Tiny radios alert 24 fire fighters

Northville's screaming fire whistle could one day be silenced because of a 'cigarette package' size monitor that firemen are now carrying.

Twenty-four of the pocket monitors, one for each of the Northville fire fighters, were purchased recently with monies donated by the Ford Motor Company and outlays by the city and township.

The Motorola Pagecoms are one-way receivers over which firemen are signalled the whereabouts of fires occurring in either the city or township.

Carried in a pocket or clipped to the belt, the receivers first alert the fireman with a beep, followed by the dispatcher's voice describing the fire and its location.

Firemen cannot speak to the dispatcher over the Pagecom, however. They can only listen to the dispatcher.

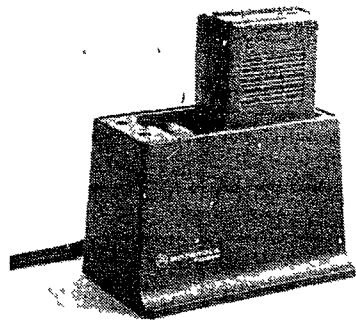

Technically, the alarm of the fire whistle is no longer needed with these pocket receivers. And eventually the whistle may be silenced except for civil defense purposes.

Previously, a fireman had two ways of learning of a fire's location: he may have heard the fire whistle and contacted the department, or he may have been at home and heard an announcement over a table monitor.

Although the table monitors are portable, few firemen carried this bulky equipment with them when they left their homes.

With the Pagecoms, firemen are carrying the monitors everywhere — to work, to the store, and even to church — because they fit so easily in a shirt, pants or coat pocket.

The monitor's range extends well beyond the boundaries of the community.

Pocket radio in charger

To activate the new pocket monitors, a special piece of equipment, called an Encoder, also was purchased. It permits the city police dispatcher to press a button, which activates the monitors by sending on the beep signal, and then speaking over a microphone to the firemen.

Each of the firemen also has a charger in his home on which he places the battery operated monitor to keep it at peak energy. While the monitor is being charged it remains functional.

Cost of the 24 monitors was $5,195.

Their purchase was given an initial boost with the donation of $1200 by the Ford Motor Company. The city and township split the remaining portion of the cost together with the cost of the $213 piece of equipment in the police department.

Main Street School to open

Northville's Main Street Elementary School will reopen for neighborhood students but not before the 1978-79 school year, if that early.

The school board voted Monday night to use $691,000 in federal funds to renovate the building for use as a 200-to-300-student elementary school and as administrative offices.

Administrators could move into new quarters by next January.

The school was closed two years ago because of low enrollment and financial problems throughout the district.

A controversy began brewing at the end of last year when board members indicated that Main Street School might remain closed for the 1977-78 school year.

Many people thought the board had committed itself to opening the school next fall when pursuing earlier millage approvals.

The problem seemed to be avoided with the Christmas-time announcement that the school district would receive nearly $700,000 for a federal public works program designed to create jobs.

But at last Monday night's meeting — the first formal session of the board since the grant was approved — Superintendent Raymond Spear said that work would not be completed on the building until December.

He recommended against opening the school for students in mid-school year after children and teachers had "settled in" at Moraine or Amerman elementaries.

Federal regulations require that grant recipients complete their projects within a year of receiving formal approval, but Spear said he didn't think there were restrictions on when the building had to be occupied.

The board offices, presently housed in the eastern-most building of the Main Street complex, would be moved to the top floor of the Main Street school next January, according to the timetable.

The present board building would then be made available to the city and township for a recreation center for a lease of $1 a year.

Marjorie Sliger was the only board member to vote against the plan. She favors opening the school, she said, but wants it done earlier.

She suggested the building's work could be completed in time for the 1977 school year.

Board treasurer Karen Wilkinson disagreed, saying "all it would take is one delivery not to happen," and the project would be delayed.

Once school starts, "it's no treat" for students to change buildings, she added.

Trustee Roger Nieuwkoop stressed that the board was only expressing its "intent" to open the school in 1978 and was not making a commitment.

He also indicated that he would not favor opening the school for students in 1977 even if the work could be completed.

"I don't believe we can justify opening that building in the fall because of declining enrollment," he said. "It's quite possible that the building could be used (in 1978), but not for our own children."

The board plans to prepare specifications during the next two months and to award bids in March. A work session Monday night has been called to study the architect's plans for the building.

Administrators estimate the cost of operating Main Street school for a year is about $80,000. There would be a $20,000 saving in closing the present board building, offset by $11,000 in moving costs to Main Street school.

First onslaught

Northville shared Southeastern Michigan's first onslaught of what is expected to be a long winter, when six to eight inches of snow fell on the community late Sunday and early Monday. The blanket of snow closed area schools and generated a chain of motoring problems. Among the most difficult was the steep grade on Sheldon south of Center where several cars slithered into the ditches, while others parked to let out tobogganing enthusiasts.

Plan under fire

Communities join to fight prison

Flexing united muscle, area municipalities are moving to officially oppose a proposal to establish a minimum security state prison in Northville Township.

Resolutions reflecting this opposition are being prepared now, said Northville Township Supervisor Wilson Grier who met Monday morning with a number of area officials to set the stage for a full-scale assault on the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

Subject of the concern is the yet unofficial proposal by the state corrections department to lease buildings on the Wayne County Child Development property located near the northeast corner of Five Mile and Sheldon roads.

The Child Development buildings, owned by Wayne County, have been vacant for the past two years, although Northville Township is leasing one of the many buildings on the premises for a township hall.

The buildings are located on the east side of Sheldon, opposite the Wayne County owned site being considered as possible location for a federal solar energy research center.

Wayne County owns about 250 acres on the east side of Sheldon, more than 500 acres on the west side.

"The state hasn't put anything in writing yet, but we are aware that prison officials have toured the buildings and are informally discussing a possible lease with the county," explained Grier. "What we have to do is to nip it in the bud. If we don't, the prison plan may gain favor among county officials and become a reality before we know it."

Grier, who warned that the development of a prison would have a serious adverse affect on residential development in Northville and in surrounding communities, said neighboring officials have voiced support of Northville's opposition.

The Northville City Council already has unanimously adopted a resolution opposing the prison proposal.

Similar resolutions, said Grier, are expected to be adopted by Northville Township, Salem Township, the city and township of Plymouth, Livonia, and Novi. These resolutions are to be presented, in a single package, to the county board of commissioners soon.

NEARLY 100 band uniforms were purchased between 1969 and 1973 in the Northville school district, but no new ones have been bought since then. Band boosters, noting that the old-fashioned uniforms are not only uncomfortable but are sometimes falling apart, told the school board Monday that they want the school to begin making more purchases. The board agreed that phasing out worn outfits and buying new ones — at a cost of about $180 apiece — was an idea worth consideration.

VOLUNTEERS are urgently needed to furnish transportation to senior citizens residing in the Northville area, it was stressed this week by Hans Lahr, senior citizen coordinator. Persons who could provide periodic transportation, with reimbursement for mileage are urged to call either Lahr at 349-1300 or Jean Campau, YMCA coordinator at 453-2968.

TOWNSHIP Clerk Clarice Sass is attending the Michigan Townships Association 24th annual convention sessions in Grand Rapids as a guest this week as the township has not voted to become a member although the decision of whether the township will join was tabled last month until this Thursday's board meeting at 8 p.m. at the township offices.

Inaugural puzzle

Gets Jimmy's invite

"I'm not even sure I'm going to like him," laughs the Northville High School senior who almost pitched an invitation to the Presidential Inauguration into the wastebasket.

Russell L. Ivory, 17, who moved to this area along with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Ivory, less than two years ago, doesn't even know why he was sent the handsome invitation from Washington.

What's more he has no intentions of attending the inauguration on January 20.

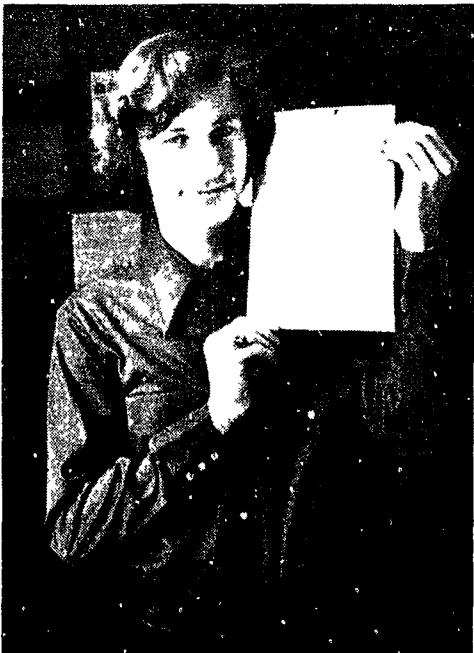

"He was about to throw it away," says his mother, "when we saw a television broadcast about a lady from Walled Lake who had received an invitation. 'You better save it,' I told him. 'Grandmother would be thrilled to see it.'"

Russ guesses he may have been invited because he worked a couple of hours this past year in the Democratic headquarters in Livonia.

A friend in school had suggested it would be an easy way to make a few dollars — $2 an hour "to look up telephone numbers and telephone a few folks. I only did it two afternoons. My friend's mother worked all the time in the office and I don't think she got an invitation."

Here's what the invitation, a handwritten scroll, says:

Babies brighten holiday season

Jeremy Michael Maynard was a New Year's Day baby, arriving at 1:52 p.m. at South Macomb Hospital. He is the son and first child of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin L. Maynard of 23510 Londonderry Drive in Novi.

His birth weight was seven pounds, nine ounces.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Maynard of Hazel Park and Mr. and Mrs. Ellis R. Martin of Detroit.

While one of the first area babies of 1977, Jeremy was not as early an arrival on New Year's Day as D'Anne Syer of Wixom who was born at 8:18 a.m. and claimed the area First Baby title and prizes.

Jeremy Alan Lane was a post-Christmas present to the Kenneth Lane family of 21944 Rosedale Court in Northville. He was born December 28 at St. Mary Hospital and weighed seven pounds, thirteen ounces.

He joins a sister, Kathryn, and brother, Darrin, at home. The baby also is welcomed by his grandmothers, Mrs. Helen Parent of South Branch, Michigan, and Mrs. Lucy Lane of Berkley.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wong of 15834 Maxwell in Northville announce the birth of their first child, Angela Marie, January 2 at Hutzel Hospital in Detroit.

She weighed six pounds, thirteen ounces at birth.

Mrs. Wong is the former Patricia McConlogue of Northville. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Jem N. Wong of Livonia and Mr. and Mrs. L. T. McConlogue of Northville.

In Our Town

Hazel Parmalee celebrates 80th year

By JEAN DAY

Memories of her 45-year teaching career were etched in icing on the birthday cakes baked to celebrate Miss Hazel Parmalee's 80th birthday last Friday.

A one-room school house scene and the type of interurban that carried Miss Parmalee from Northville to teaching duties in Plymouth were depicted by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Laurette, former Rogers Street neighbors who now live in Plymouth.

There was enough cake for everyone at Wishing Well Manor where Miss Parmalee now lives. Also at the celebration were Miss Parmalee's sisters, Misses Leona and Muriel Parmalee, a great-niece, Mrs. Marian Smith, and her son, Michael, all of Northville.

"She's the oldest survivor in our family," says Leona Parmalee, mentioning that, while her sister now has to use a walker, she has a very good memory and can recall starting teaching at Waterford School here in 1917. She taught in Northville and then elementary classes at Starkweather and Allen schools in Plymouth, retiring in 1962. Because Laurette also was a teacher, the young couple and she became friends, and they used their cake-decorating hobby to help celebrate a very special birthday.

Big Band sound coming

Tickets go on sale next week for the Northville Historical Society dinner dance February 26 at the Plymouth-Hilton Inn. Chairman Ann Brueck reports that Dick Murphy's Big Band Sound has been engaged to play for the event which will run from 6:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. She adds that it's been possible to "hold the line" with tickets still priced at $25 a couple or $12.50 each.

Since its inception in 1973 the benefit for the Mill Race Historical Village has become a truly community event supported by the entire area. Mrs. Brueck may be contacted about tickets or for table reservations at 349-2250.

League's dealing cards

"It's to help get out of the winter doldrums," explain card party planners of Our Lady's League of Our Lady of Victory. Tickets are on sale now for the event to be held at 7:30 p.m. next Wednesday, January 19, in OLV parish hall.

Chairman Rosemary Mentag may be contacted for tickets ($3.50) at 348-1089. There will be table and door prizes and dessert will be served. The league points out that this is the first such event in several years and says it's not necessary to form tables before coming. The league also is planning a fashion show in February.

Highland Lakes club's numbered

Because personality traits revealed in handwriting might be "devastating," members of Highland Lakes Women's Club submitting samples for analysis at the next meeting January 20, will have them identified only by number.

Florence Dinsler, a certified handwriting analyst who teaches at Schoolcraft College, will be guest speaker at the 1 p.m. meeting in Highland House. The club, which now has about 40 members, is open to all women who live in Highland Lakes. Publicity chairman Fifi McCutchan reports that it's very informal with coffee and cookies following meetings and members staying to chat.

Marathon scores needed

"Don't wait until the end of the year to try to catch up," warns Mothers' Club marathon bridge co-chairman Carolyn Nieuwkoop as she asks its more than 200 participants to turn in December scores so that mid-point scores may be tallied.

There are 12 leagues presently in play in the project which adds to the club proceeds earmarked for restoration of Wash Oak school in the Mill Race.

The marathon almost has tripled in size since it was an instant success when started in 1963 with 80 participants. It's as true now as it was in the fall of 1963 when In Our Town's first column reported the formation of the marathon tournament, and commented that "you can find games in progress at almost any hour in this card-conscious community."

What's sea sugar?

When Norma Vernon, as a Christmas present to us all, shared family recipes for mincemeat pie and plum pudding, they were printed just as had been handed down from great-grandmother Knight who came from England.

Readers since have queried both The Record and Mrs. Vernon about the listing of a cup of sea sugar. "It's just brown sugar," clarifies Norma Vernon, "and it doesn't matter whether it's dark or light although I always use light."

Former fatty says, love yourself and diet

"Don't say the kids or the operation did it," Kay Huberty admonished her Northville audience last Friday as she talked about diets and losing weight.

A petite size five as she stood before Northville Woman's Club in First Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Huberty confessed that until four years ago she wore size 16½.

Her "thick and thin" basic dietary advice was preceded, however, by encouraging women to begin with a sense of self-worth.

"You have to be important to yourself or you'll never get your weight in line.

"When you spend extra for a good lean piece of meat, you have to know that you're worth it.

"The better you like yourself the more you have to offer those around you, especially your loved ones."

The speaker admitted that "it's much, much easier when you're on the long end of the stick to be genuine about self-feelings."

She told the women they will spend 79 cents for potato chips, which with French dip and pop will total $2, but can't bring themselves to spend $2 on a melon that can be cut into six pieces and be a real treat for a family.

She said that, like most fat people, she had a saving sense of humor and could make a joke about being fat "before someone made one about me."

The five-foot-three lecturer in a sleek black jumpsuit told that she "bounced onto the delivery table just under 12 pounds" as she revived painful memories of growing up as a fat girl.

She was Kay Price, junior high student, crying and eating Oreos under the bedcovers, for "when an eater is depressed, she eats."

In 1968, she recalled, she was married in a size 16½ wedding dress with the saleswoman commenting, "Not many girls your size are lucky enough to find a man!"

"I got rather desperate and tried all the diets—fish, grapefruit, fasting, and I got down but I was tired and grouchy.

"You can't survive forever on 400 to 500 calories a day and I began to look for different ways of cooking. What I learned may help you:

"Don't use words like legal or cheating in regard to food. Everybody has to eat. A smoker of drinker can go "off" cigarettes or liquor, but how can you take an eater off food?

"There are two times a day that you go bananas for food—before dinner and before bedtime. Don't just sit there and feel martyred. Eat, but eat a dish of fruit or have a glass of tomato juice.

"Do not skip a meal. It's better to eat a normal meal than to play games like passing up the chocolate cake but cleaning the pan.

"The worst thing you can do when dieting is overeat. But, if you do, just admit that 'okay, you did a dumb thing' and go back on your diet.

"Every day you do things right you're one step ahead. Take moderate portions and savor every bite. It's not one meal, one serving, one bite that's going to gain weight, but doing the wrong eating a lot.

"If you're going to eat something you want very much, be civilized and eat one bite at a time. Thanksgiving is just one day. Say to yourself, 'Why should I get up more stuffed than the turkey?'

"Above all keep telling yourself that you are a special person—somebody who counts."

Here's trim Texas chili

TRIM TEXAS CHILI
1½ lb. very lean trimmed beef or veal
1 lb. tomatoes
2 C. tomato juice
2 T. cider vinegar
1 T. garlic powder
1 medium minced onion
1-2 t. cumin seed
Salt and pepper to taste
2 pkg. broth mix or 2 bouillon cubes

As she cubed the meat for a very tasty chili, Kay Huberty stressed choosing lean meat and trimming it before cooking. She used an English roast. Sear in a bit of water or broth. Add and mix well all other ingredients.

The cider vinegar, she said, is a softening agent on meat. Saying she loved garlic and used it generously, she advised her audience to use amounts they liked of ingredients. She mentioned she preferred cracked pepper.

The mixture then is cooked until tender with tomato juice being added as needed while it simmers.

Pointing out that this is a "beanless" chili, Mrs. Huberty suggested adding mushrooms, strips of green or red pepper or even green beans instead of pinto beans.

"You can serve guests the same foods you eat to diet, but don't apologize to your family or anyone for offering good food."

As an appetizer she serves a mock of guacamole; with raw fresh vegetables cut in strips:

New K&B sub Whispering Meadows gets RUD ok

Tentative preliminary approval for a new Kaufman and Broad subdivision, Whispering Meadows, was given by Novi Council last week after a long debate over various points of the plan.

The Subdivision is to be located south of Nine Mile between Meadowbrook Road and Haggerty. It will cover 170 acres and have 446 lots with a minimum lot size of 9600 square feet. Approximate average cost of the homes will be $50,000.

In a joint-planning board-city council session, the planning board reiterated its approval and council unanimously gave its approval to the RUD (Residential Unit Development) concept for the subdivision. The planning board then recommended and council gave tentative preliminary approval to the overall plan.

The RUD allows the subdivision to lower its lot size requirement from approximately 12,000 square feet downward while instead providing three open space areas. A variance was granted by the zoning board of appeals to allow two of the three open space acres closer than 120 feet to the perimeter of the parcel even though the ordinance requires that they be beyond 120 feet from the perimeter.

Plans also call for an 8.1 acre parcel in the south portion of the property to be an elementary school parcel. If, however, no school should be located there, two acres of the property would have to be parkland while the remainder would be residentially developed.

Questioning why two open space areas of two acres were to be left as natural wildlife areas, Planning Board Chairman Robert Bretz stated, "The people will cut down the trees and throw rubbish where they were. K&B won't be there long enough to police it. Unless this is cleared to be a park, someone will come in and cut down the dead trees and someone else will cut down the live ones because it looks bad."

"Each and every resident will, over a period of time, take personal care of it as it becomes an integral part of their back yard," responded Phil McCafferty, Vice-President of Kaufman and Broad. He agreed, however, to eliminate scrub brush.

City Planner Charles Cairns of Vilcan Leman noted no particular problem with the planned development except that some corner lots will need to get variances from the board of appeals because of setback requirements.

City Engineer Harry Mosher of Johnson and Anderson said that the only major problem could be legal one for K&B concerning storm drainage into Park Lake retention pond. McCafferty said that problem would be worked out.

Also discussed was a letter from the Village Oaks Homeowners Association which suggested: that boulevards be eliminated; there is not enough parkland on the interior of the property; that "phase" building of the development was bad; that the 8.1 acre school site is not large enough because the school district wants 10-15 acres; that added siltation in the retention pond will add to problems at Park Lake in Village Oaks.

The provision for north-south boulevard was resolved by K&B agreeing to eliminate the boulevard in favor of a 36-foot road with 86-foot right-of-way which will include sidewalks.

The suggestion of sidewalks was brought up during discussion by Joseph Toth who maintained that either the boulevards should remain or sidewalks should be provided for children going to school. He noted that in Village Oaks, the boulevards are currently being used by the students as sidewalks.

John Chambers of the Village Oaks Homeowners Association said that the boulevards should be eliminated because they cause people at times to go the wrong way and homeowners have a week problem in their yards because of weeds in the boulevard.

Toth also complained that K&B should do something about problems which still exist in Village Oaks including a boulevard which ends in an empty field, a park that is never maintained and a holding pond that will cost $112,000 to dredge.

"Now you want to add another subdivision," said

Interchange delay possible

Fessler fights road plan

A battle which could bring interchange improvements at I-96 and Novi Road to a halt appears inevitable. Twenty-fourth District State Representative Richard Fessler says that he is taking a stand to stop federal funding for the interchange project until an equitable solution is reached with one of the homeowners being displaced.

Meanwhile the Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation is standing just as firm and representatives say that condemnation proceedings are beginning against that homeowner.

In question is a parcel of property at 43456 Fonda owned by William Rackov. His home, as well as three other homes on the north side of the street and a veterinary clinic are scheduled to make way for the relocation of Adell Boulevard.

Adell Boulevard, which is currently located just south of I-96 on the west side, must be moved because of state plans to make Novi Road limited access for several hundred feet south of the interchange.

A decision was made by the highway department, partially based upon a public hearing early last year, to relocate Adell Boulevard to just north of where Fonda currently is, taking with it the homes on the north side of Fonda. A second alternate which called for the road to be located north of the homes on the north property line of the Big Boy property was dropped.

According to Representative Fessler, "I will be asking the congressman (William Broomfield) to hold this money up because there's discrimination. I think he can ask the department where the money is coming from to look at the situation and to reevaluate it to see if there's discrimination."

The discrimination, said Fessler, is in the form of the highway department attempting to eliminate a pocket of residential property.

"This is state money being used for urban renewal to remove residential from a commercially zoned area," said Fessler. "You're not giving the man fair market value."

According to Rackov and representatives of the Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation, Rackov was initially offered $21,000 for the property, which reportedly could buy a comparable home in White Lake or Walled Lake but not Novi.

With Representative Fessler entering the battle for Rackov, the highway department eventually backed down slightly and offered two homes in Novi and one in Northville which the highway department said were comparable.

"I delivered mail for 18 years and I saw those homes and they're not as good as the one I'm living in," said Rackov. All of the three homes are reportedly valued at $29,000.

"Actually I don't want to move," admitted Rackov. "I'm disabled and on disability retirement." He said he had planned to live out his remaining years at the house.

Rackov and Fessler both maintain that the second alternate calling for Adell Boulevard to go north of the Big Boy is still feasible.

"Adell's driveway should have gone through that field," said Rackov. "What's the idea of taking our property when there's three acres of property behind me without a twig. The only thing the state says is they have to have 650 feet of safety buffer from the ramp. If that is the law, why don't they have 650 feet on the north side of I-96 which leads into Hudson's?"

According to John Osmer, administrative aid to John Woodford, director of the highway department, location of the street north of Big Boy would not "give the right operational characteristics." He explained that problems would occur when vehicular traffic from Adells would enter Novi Road in order to proceed eastbound on I-96.

"It would require a kitty-corner movement," he said.

Osmer could not answer why the alternative had been discussed in a public hearing if the engineers felt it was a completely unworkable solution.

Meanwhile William Mitchell, district right-of-way agent for the highway department, said that the time allowed had run out and there was no alternative but to begin condemnation proceedings.

"We're preparing a case for condemnation," said Mitchell. The state department representative added that an appraisal showed that the house would bring $21,000 which, he admitted, could not buy a comparable home in Novi.

"We feel that for $29,000 he can find a reasonable home," Mitchell said, explaining the jump in cost. "The problem is he's lived in that house for 30 years and it's very difficult to find something he'd be satisfied with."

While condemnation proceedings are beginning, Mitchell said the department would be open to listening to suggestions from Rackov of comparable homes.

"If there's a comparable home to his, we'd like to see it," said Mitchell.

"We cannot put someone in a $50,000 home if he lived in a $21,000 home," he added. Mitchell also said that a redetermination may be made of the value of the property and if market conditions have changed, the offer to Rackov could be increased.

The condemnation proceeding, which includes court appearances, could take three months to two years depending on appeals.

Representative Fessler also charged that after the residential property is purchased by the state and the property needed for the Adell Boulevard right-of-way is used, there will still be 80 feet at

A day in the life

Two Novi Firemen are silhouetted against the sun as they take a break for just a few moments while ventilating a house which was extensively damaged by fire Friday. A youngster playing with matches was blamed for the fire which caused $10,000 damage to the Richard Athey home at 41071 McMahon in Willowbrook subdivision. For complete details, see police blotter.

County roads to wait for improvements

There's no immediate relief in sight on any of three projects on county roads cited by Novi officials as major traffic problems.

That's the word from John Denman, public relations man for the Oakland County Road Commission.

"I don't see any possibility of relief during this calendar year," Denman told The Novi News.

In October the road commission held a public hearing and Novi officials were there. Based upon the wishes of the Novi Council, they asked that Novi Road be widened south from Grand River to Eight Mile, improvements be made to 12 Mile near the Twelve Oaks Mall, and that Decker Road be extended south from Walled Lake.

They also asked that Grand River at Halstead Road in Farmington be improved.

The road commission has done some improvement work to Grand River at Halstead.

According to Denman, "There's merit in a lot of the suggestions, but it's impossible to assign a 1977 priority to them. All of the 1977 projects carried a higher priority. We're very limited on the funds we have to spend and we'd have to bump one or more of the projects to add any."

Denman added that no timetable has been set for any of the Novi projects and "The next opportunity would be a year from now when the staff presents a proposed 1978 program."

However, Denman did not appear extremely hopeful even at that time that much could be done. "I'm in no position to speculate on 1978," he said. "Sometimes the staff, and I'm not saying it will happen, will recommend pre-preliminary construction plans in one year with plans to do the work in a second year."

Novi City Manager Edward Kriewall said that the city had received no notification on the decision, but admitted that there had been no reason for optimism.

"We didn't expect anything out of them based on the public hearing. They're supposedly stripped," said Kriewall.

Asked if he expects any action by 1978, the city manager responded, "A lot depends on the impact of the shopping center and if there's anything that causes a real traffic headache."

Using 1976 allocated funds, the county will be providing $13,000 of the $260,000 cost of widening both Grand River and Novi Roads at the intersection. Plans call for Novi Road to be widened to five lanes between the I-96 interchange project and 1000 feet south of Grand

Train broadsides pick-up

A Walled Lake man was reported in stable condition Tuesday at Botsford Hospital after his pickup truck skidded on Novi Road and was struck broadside by a train travelling 38 miles per hour.

Initial reports of the accident were sketchy, but according to police the victim, Edward Foley, 33, was travelling northbound on Novi Road when he attempted to stop for the red flashing lights at the crossing a quarter mile south of Grand River. The pickup truck slid into the crossing at a 30 degree angle. The accident happened at 1:45 a.m.

An employee of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad who refused to be identified said afterward that "Our engineer said he knew he was going to hit him. He felt the man was coming about 35 (miles per hour), couldn't stop and slid in front of the train."

According to Fred Stricker, owner of Stricker Paints, he was standing in front of the store south of the tracks when the accident occurred.

"We heard bells ringing, lights flashing and then a thump," said Stricker. "It hit him absolutely broadside and the truck was hurled 10 or 15 feet into the air. We saw one of the wheels flying off."

Police later said the train was travelling 38 miles per hour based upon instrumentation in the engine.

The pickup truck ended up in a gully on the south side of the railroad track about 100 feet from the impact. Novi fire department used a steel cable hooked to its mini-pumper to upright the pickup truck enough to get the victim out. Police and Novi Ambulance personnel actually freed the victim.

After several minutes of work on the victim, Novi Ambulance transported him to Botsford Hospital where he was later reported in stable condition with a broken leg, possible internal injuries and lacerations about the face.

According to traffic officer Max Roder, charges are pending against the driver of the pickup truck.

D'Anne Noel Syer, who captured the Northville, Novi, Wixom area First Baby title by arriving at 8:18 a.m. January 1, poses with her mother, Mrs. Anthony Syer of Wixom, after arriving home from the hospital last Saturday. While she's still a little bundle, D'Anne is one of the largest titleholders in the history of the 21-year-old contest, having weighed in at 10 pounds, 13 ounces.

Enrollments slated

Children who will enter kindergarten in the fall at Maple Elementary in Walled Lake may enroll now in the preschool program at the school. Preschool classes are held every Tuesday from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. with the new semester beginning January 25 and running through May 24. Mrs. William Reed, coordinator, states there is no charge for the program run by volunteer mothers. Children living in the Chateau Estates area of Novi are participants in the preschool, she points out. Interested mothers may call the school at 624-6225 or Mrs. Reed at 624-5994. The preschool programs are in operation at all Walled Lake elementaries.

Echoes of Chamber

I am sincerely honored for the opportunity and privilege of serving as your president for the coming year.

I look forward to the challenge and pledge to accomplish all possible in the quality of leadership and direction you expect and desire—with the help of the following chamber directors, Les Bowden, vice-president; Wilma Albrecht, secretary; Dewey Gardner, treasurer; Marge Cinader, Sharri Corniskey, James Rother, Michael Preville and Lee Holland.

However, the growth and development of our chamber membership and the community is a team effort.

The chamber does not have a paid staff executive secretary. The time and effort that leadership of the chamber spends is all voluntary. Therefore, it behooves the business of our two communities—city and township—to become an integral part of the chamber, supporting it with its dues, interest and involvement. This we must do if we are to become an active and effective chamber in Northville.

Police Blotter

State troopers nab robbery suspects

In Wixom . . .

Three suspects wanted for an armed robbery in Wixom early January 4 were arrested by Michigan State Police in Plymouth later the same morning on other charges.

The robbery occurred as a Novi woman, leaving the Continental Bar on Grand River shortly after midnight, was confronted by two men in the parking lot. Both men demanded her money as one threatened her with a knife.

The woman told Wixom Police that after she turned over a small amount of money she was again threatened with the knife. During the incident, the woman was able to determine a third man sitting in the apparent getaway car. She was able to furnish full descriptions of two of the three suspects.

Supplied with that information as well as a description of the car, police flashed a bulletin throughout the area.

At approximately 5 a.m., Michigan State Troopers responded to a call from a Plymouth restaurant. A railroad detective there reported observing three men, one of whom had a long-bladed knife tucked through the belt of his pants. The detective held the men until the troopers' arrival.

The men were arrested on charges of carrying a concealed weapon. Troopers then notified Wixom police when the descriptions of the men arrested matched those carried on the bulletin.

Wixom Police charged Raymond Ferguson, 19 and David Bane, 17, both of New Hudson, with the armed robbery. The name of the third member of the group was withheld until the outcome of a polygraph test.

During a line-up at the Oakland County Jail, the Novi woman positively identified two of the three men as those who had robbed her.

Arraignment proceedings were held before Judge Martin Boyle in Walled Lake Thursday. Ferguson was lodged in lieu of a $25,000 personal bond. Bane, charged as an adult, was held in lieu of a $50,000 bond.

Pre-trial exam was scheduled Monday in the 52nd District Courtroom of Judge Gene Schnelz.

A car stolen January 2 from the parking lot of a Wixom apartment complex was recovered by the Okaloosa, Florida Sheriff's Department four days later.

Trooper Danielson of that department notified Wixom that 22-year-old Eddie Owens and a juvenile had been arrested and were being held on their charges.

Both Owen and the juvenile had been houseguests of Roy Sanderson in Wixom. According to Sanderson, both men were discovered missing from the apartment January 2 along with the car keys to Sanderson's company car. Prior to the car being stolen, some computer testing equipment was removed from it and placed near the entrance to the apartment.

The pair was stopped on Florida Interstate 10. The vehicle at the time of recovery was bearing Florida license plates.

A broken trailer hitch apparently foiled the attempts to steal two snowmobiles and the trailer carrying them. The incident occurred sometime during the night hours Thursday.

Wixom Police were notified by the owner who told them he was on his way to work when he found his trailer and snowmobiles sitting by the side of the road some distance from his house.

Tracks at the owner's home on Hopkins Drive showed that several people had pulled the trailer from the side of the house to the roadway.

The trailer was then thought to have been attached to another vehicle and driven off. The attempt was ditched when the ball on the trailer hitch broke off, forcing the trailer to be dumped.

In Novi . . .

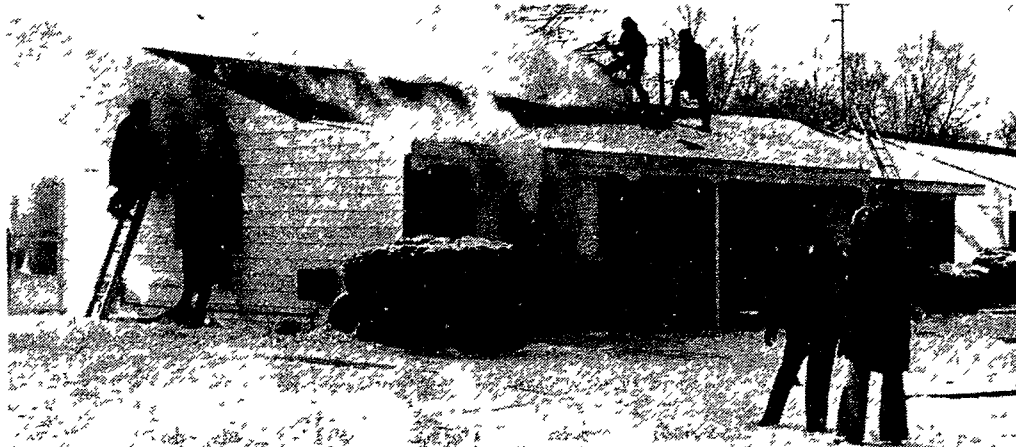

A child playing with matches is blamed for a fire which caused an estimated $10,000 damage last Friday to a home at 41071 McMahon.

No one was injured in the blaze although two pets including a dog were reported killed.

According to Fire Chief Duane Bell, the fire, which started in the family room of the house and spread to the kitchen, was begun by a four-year-old at the house who found a box of matches and began a fire in a box of interior decorating materials.

The youngster went to his mother, JoAnne Athey and told her that he had "done something bad". Mrs. Athey found she could not extinguish the blaze, which spread to other boxes of interior decorating materials, and fled with her son to a neighbor's home where the fire department was called.

Firemen responding to the blaze had it extinguished within about five minutes, according to Bell. Firemen left the scene two hours after they arrived, after ventilating the house to eliminate smoke.

While the fire itself caused extensive damage to the family room and the kitchen, the house also suffered smoke damage and heat damage. Richard Athey, Mrs. Athey's husband, was not home at the time of the fire.

Eight tires valued at $1,600 were taken from KMH Equipment Company, 25460 Novi Road sometime between December 30 and January 3.

A citizen band antenna valued at $150 was taken from a car parked at Beachwalk Apartments January 1. Brand of the CB antenna was BIG.

West End Welding, 25180 Seeley Road reported a $30 window in the building shot out with a B-B gun. Several automobiles parked there also suffered window damage from the gun.

In Northville . . .

Stereo equipment, tapes and speakers were taken from a locked van parked in the Northville High School parking lot. The incident happened early last week.

Value of the missing property was placed at $260.

A school bus parked at Northville High School during a basketball game was damaged by vandals while the driver was inside the school.

The rear window of the bus was broken out by unknown means sometime between 3:45 and 9:20 p.m., January 4.

A woman patron of Northville Downs reported to Northville City Police that a watch she was wearing was somehow taken from her wrist shortly after she entered the track last week.

The diamond watch was valued at $120.

In Township . . .

A Southfield youth, reportedly kidnapped in Southfield, was robbed of his money and then set free near the Northville Shopping Plaza during the late afternoon hours January 4.

The youth contacted the Michigan State Police after the car carrying three males and two females sped away after leaving him between the rear of the plaza and a parking lot at the Innsbrook Apartment complex.

Troopers were told by the youth that he had been hitchhiking along Eight Mile Road in Southfield when he was picked up by the subjects. He said he realized he was in trouble after he asked to be let out and was refused.

The case is still under investigation.

The death of a 66-year-old patient at the Northville State Hospital was listed as accidental by a Wayne County Medical Examiner Thursday following an autopsy.

The patient's death was attributed to death by asphyxiation after apparently choking on his food. The man was found in his room by a member of the staff shortly after 7 p.m.

Three female inmates of the Detroit House of Correction, all considered dangerous by prison officials, escaped from the facility Thursday morning.

Michigan State Police are still seeking the three who were last seen on the grounds at 8:15 a.m.

A female patient of the Northville State Hospital, who was issued a voluntary weekend pass, failed to return to the facility at the end of that leave.

Hospital authorities said the patient, considered dangerous to herself, did not return at the end of her leave January 3. She is still sought.

On Saturday, three more patients were reported as escaped from the facility. One man, listed as dangerous, left the grounds in Northville but was later returned by his parents.

The other two on a group outing at the Detroit Institute of Arts disappeared during a tour. They are still sought.

Emily Swanson of Northville was slightly injured in a two-car collision on Silver Springs Road Wednesday night, when the car which she was driving struck the rear of another car.

Novi zoning

Amendment follows 1975 map error

An error in the publication of the Novi Zoning map when it was adopted in October of 1975 was corrected last Wednesday by council.

The Planning board brought the error to the attention of the council after the building department reported it.

According to City Clerk Geraldine Stipp, a parcel of property on Novi Road owned at the time by Jafco was changed on the zoning map from M-2 to I-1 (light industrial) instead of to the corresponding zoning, I-2 (general industrial).

"We'd be returning a district to its former classification," said Charles Cairns, a city planner from Vilcan-Leman. "We do not have an objection to it."

The planning board, which was meeting jointly with the council, unanimously recommended the rezoning. The Novi Council then unanimously approved the rezoning.

The property is now owned by M&B Equipment of Novi.

Fine arts subject of Oakland directory

The Oakland County Cultural Committee is asking help in locating people involved in the cultural arts to be placed in an "Oakland County Cultural Directory".

The directory, scheduled to be printed by August, 1977 "will list and identify the various cultural groups, organizations and artistic residents of Oakland County," according to the Novi representative of the committee, Joseph Toth.

"Furthermore, it will include a calendar of upcoming events, where these events will be held, and other significant details," said Toth.

According to Toth, he is working with Cindy Hoops of the Novi Foundation for the Performing Arts and Ray Murphy and Guy Smith of the Novi Community Band. They are contacting individuals and groups with which they are familiar to obtain data for the directory in Novi.

Individuals or groups in Novi which have not been contacted should direct information by mail to Toth at 22734, Chestnut Tree Way in Novi.

Individuals should prepare a summary explanation of their talent and specialties including such items as artistic training, (schools and locations), awards received, significant achievements, poems, short stories or novels that were published, sculptures on display or other pertinent information, according to Toth.

In addition, group organizations should submit a schedule or calendar of upcoming activities for 1977-78 and where the activities will be held; a summary or listing of past achievements or programs; an explanation of how the group is structured, who the officers are and a list of the officers including names, addresses and phone numbers; and any additional information which would be useful.

"We're after everyone involved in some type of cultural activity," said Toth.

Interestingly, persons who live in Wixom or the Oakland County portion of Northville cannot be listed in the directory because at this moment neither community has a representative although Marlo Belanger, vice chairman of the committee, said that letters were sent to each community.

In Northville, the matter was brought up for discussion by council but was not acted upon because there was a lack of information as to the purpose of the committee, according to City Clerk Joan McAllister.

In Wixom, city representatives said no communications have been received from the committee.

26 mile section

Final I-275 link opens

The final link of I-275 Freeway in southeastern Michigan will be opened to traffic Friday.

The new section extends from M-153 (Ford Road) in Wayne County south for 26 miles to US-24 (Telegraph Road) in Monroe County. It connects with previously completed segments at either end of the 38-mile freeway — one extending from the I-96 — I-696 interchange at Novi south to M-153 and the other connecting US-24 and I-75 north of Monroe.

The new freeway will provide a direct north-south route for traffic by-passing populous metropolitan Detroit. It increases Michigan's freeway network to 1,665 miles and brings the state to within seven percent of completing its 1,181-mile portion of the national Interstate freeway system.

An extra feature of the freeway is an eight-foot-wide paved path at the outer edge of the right-of-way to serve both bicyclists and pedestrians. It will be dedicated in the summer.

Peter B. Fletcher of Ypsilanti, State Highway Commission chairman, called I-275 "one of the safest ever built in Michigan."

It was designed with wide medians, split-level roadways to avoid headlight glare, concrete bridge barriers, flat roadside slopes and obstacle-free roadways. Bridges over the freeway have long spans with one central pier to reduce roadside accidents. All signs are on wooden supports that break should they be struck by a vehicle.

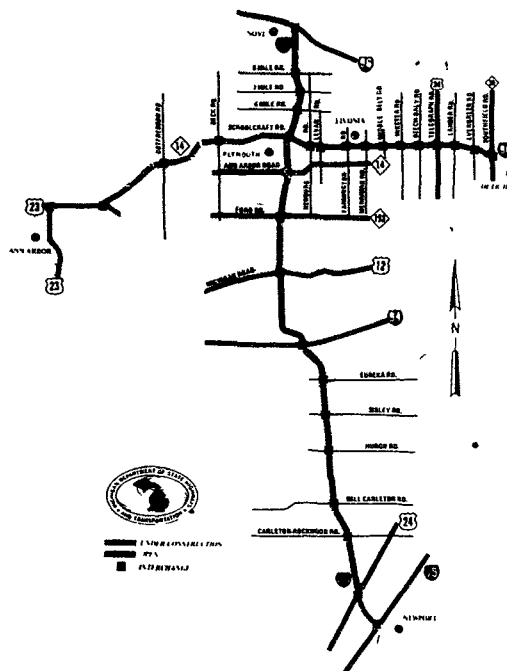

Designers and route location engineers gave high priority to scenic and environmental considerations. Roadside trees and wooded areas were preserved when they did not conflict with safety standards.

The new freeway is an eight-lane divided roadway between Novi and Livonia, where it also is signed as I-96, now under construction along Schoolcraft Road in northwestern Wayne County. From I-96 south to I-75, it is six-lanes wide.

Cost of the 38-mile freeway, exclusive of engineering and right-of-way, was $145 million.

Dedication ceremonies are set for 11 a.m. on the I-275 pavement in the interchange with I-94 west of Romulus. The main speaker will be Weston E. Vivian of Ann Arbor, as member of the State Highway Commission. A number of other state, federal and local officials also will attend.

Ceremonies will be sponsored by the Department of State Highways and Transportation in cooperation with the City of Romulus, the Michigan Trucking Association, the Automobile Club of Michigan and the Wayne County Road Commission.

Late registration at Schoolcraft

There is still time to register for winter semester classes at Schoolcraft College.

Although classes began on January 6, late registrations are being accepted through the 17th. Registrar Russell Bogarin reports the selection of classes open is quite good, especially during the afternoon and evening hours. Mornings are pretty well filled, he said.

Late registration may be completed in the Waterman Campus Center daily between 8:30-11 a.m., 1-3 and 6-8 p.m., with the exception of no evening hours on Friday, January 14.

A late fee of $2.50 per class for part-time students is required, as is a total $10 charge for full-time students. Complete information is available from 591-6400, ext. 228.

The college is located at 18600 Haggerty Road, between Six and Seven Mile roads, in Livonia.

Frosh delight debate coach

The sight of a freshman debating in interscholastic competition is a rarity.

But Novi High School debate coach Ceil Carter admits that "I've been absolutely delighted I didn't say no" when approached with the possibility of adding four freshmen debaters to the squad.

"We've made other schools in the state take notice," says Mrs. Carter reviewing what has been a successful year for the novice debaters at Novi High School.

"I had one coach who found at the end they were freshmen. He told me he'd never worked with freshmen, but if he could find some as good as ours, he'd be glad to use them," says Mrs. Carter. The four freshmen are Barry Oulette, Margaret Daley, Craig Iseli and Price Fritz. Adding to them was some outstanding help from sophomore Glenn Cawdell, according to Mrs. Carter.

By season's end, the team had walked off with five trophies while participating in two novice debate leagues. Brightest spot was Miss Daley who received the top speaker award as the second affirmative speaker in both the Brighton league and the Chelsea league. The trophies were based upon judges' rankings of each student debating.

In addition, the team was also given the third place award in the Chelsea league with six wins and four losses. Barry received a fourth place speaker trophy for first affirmative in the Brighton league as did first negative speaker Glenn.

Following up the season with the state novice preliminary tournament which is the qualifier for the state tournament, Novi's young freshman team needed six match wins to qualify but could only come up with five, still an impressive showing according to Mrs. Carter.

"This is our third year of competition," says Mrs. Carter. "We had never allowed freshmen to work with the team."

However, the freshmen were added after a middle school teacher told Mrs. Carter of the youngsters' enthusiasm for joining the debate team.

"I took them and worked them on probation," says Mrs. Carter. "I quickly saw they had exceptional ability."

Because the team is so young, Mrs. Carter says that it will have a strong nucleus for the next few years.

"Unless something drastic happens, we should have a state championship team," she says.

Focus upon problems in reading

The problem of Dyslexia, defined as reading inability or difficulty, will be discussed at the January meeting of the Northville-Plymouth chapter of the Michigan Association of Children with Learning Disabilities.

Speaker at the meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, January 19, in Plymouth Pioneer Middle School cafeteria will be John Fraunheim, assistant to the director of administrative services of the Livonia Public Schools.

He received his Ph.D. degree from Wayne State University with his research being in work with learning disabled and emotionally impaired children.

Speaking for The Record

Detroit eyes our racing revenues

Officials of Livonia, Hazel Park and Northville are understandably worried about a plan of Detroit legislators who are bent on grabbing a lion's share of these communities' race track revenues.

That Detroit would like to share these revenues is nothing new; each year fresh claims are made on the racing jackpot.

But this year legislators are maneuvering behind the scenes to develop some political clout in their quest for racing revenues. The scheme is this: Detroit lawmakers at Lansing will introduce a bill that would redistribute racing revenues to all cities within the county where the tracks are located. It would be done on a per-capita basis.

To beef up their support Detroit legislators are proposing a log-rolling proposition with Northern Michigan lawmakers: you help us pass this bill and we'll support some key piece of legislation that you might want.

Under the present law, the state receives 20 percent of the parimutuel revenues from Michigan's race tracks. And the state, in turn, returns a portion of this amount, up to a maximum of $700,000 annually, to the cities in which the race tracks are located.

Northville, for example, receives approximately $600,000 annually in racing revenues. Livonia and Hazel Park each receive the maximum $700,000 allocation.

Under the per-capita sharing bill, Northville's share would nose-dive to about $5,500 annually, while Detroit, which presently receives no revenue, would get well over a million bucks. Livonia's share would plummet to $110,000 and Hazel Park's share to $24,000.

It takes no genius to see the local repercussions of such a law. Northville would receive a devastating financial blow, losing upwards of $594,500 annually—about 35 percent of all revenues from all sources, including taxes. In order to maintain its present level of services, it would have to increase its taxes substantially to make up the race track revenue loss. Either that or cut services.

Since a mill of city taxes approximates $47,000, the loss represents more than 12.5 mills. Presently, the city's tax levy is 10.8 mills.

Hard-pressed for financing, Detroit would argue that redistribution of race track revenues would produce some much needed money for the Motor City. Many of their citizens, it would point out, frequent the suburban race tracks and therefore a portion of their betting money should be returned to Detroit.

Detroit legislators ignore, however, the justification for permitting track housing communities to share racing revenues. It is Northville, not Detroit, which must put up with the problems inherent with a race track, and it is Northville, not Detroit, which must provide monies for policing of the race track, for good streets accommodating the track, and for a host of other track related services, including water and sewers.

Can you imagine any city accepting the responsibility of having a race track located within its borders for $5,500 of the mutuel handle, while a city where the track is NOT located receives a million-dollar slice of the betting action?

Officials of Northville, having met with leaders of Livonia, were slated to discuss this potentially serious problem last night. Subject of their discussion was how best to block the plan of Detroit legislators. And in view of the growing political clout of Detroit lawmakers, particularly if they manage to persuade Northern Michigan legislators to join them, it is absolutely essential that Northville join with other race track cities in developing their own plan of action.

Let report sink in

Within the next two months the Novi City Needs and Priority Assessment Committee will be reporting to the city council on what municipal priorities should be — and what, if anything, a millage request should cover.

Made up of a good cross section of the community, the 12-member committee, we believe, is considering the problem with the same concerns in mind so often voiced by the citizenry of the city when requested to consider a millage.

While it's impossible to determine until the report is filed what reaction may follow any proposed millage, we believe the council and residents should study the report carefully and not make premature judgments. The committee will have spent almost half-a-year in its study of the situation by the time the report is finalized. Its findings should not be taken lightly.

We, and 14,000 Novi residents, will be awaiting your report.

JOE VALENTI

YES . . .

For the most part, the majority of the cities and counties did not recognize the police officer as a professional occupation, and so did not pay him for the job or service of skill level that he rendered to the community.

The Public Employment Relations Act gave the police officer the opportunity to choose a representative. Today, this local union has gained recognition in representing law enforcement officers because of its expertise in bargaining collective agreements and has gained the recognition of the law enforcement occupation as a professional one.

Prior to Teamsters' involvement, many cities paid the law enforcement officer less than the refuse collectors, overloaded them with morally pretentious laws, and required them to demonstrate wisdom and skills higher than they expected of any established profession. He is required to be an expert on the law, a psychologist, a strategist, and on occasion, a midwife, a protector of public safety, a ruthless prosecutor of crime, and at the same time a guardian of all civil liberties. For the most part, the public has used him as a whipping post during these times of high crime.

Janus-like, we have always turned two faces towards the police officer. We expect him to be human and yet inhuman. We employ him to administer the law and yet ask him to waive it. We ask for crime to be eradicated but only by the use of "sporting" methods. The police officer was praised for the most part by his employer but was refused an adequate wage.

I believe that the Teamsters Union has successfully brought about pay and recognition for the skills and responsibilities of this occupation.

Joe Valenti
President, Teamsters Local 214
Detroit

PHIL LEONARD

NO . . .

I am opposed to police officers at any level affiliating with or becoming part of any large non-public service oriented union or organization. A law enforcement officer must remain free to make objective decisions at all times without interference from other loyalties. This free decision making process is even more critical during a labor dispute involving a major confrontation with either labor or management. Membership in one of the larger unions may directly or indirectly affect the officer's ability to make a sound impartial evaluation of the immediate situation.

Police officers are unique in that Michigan Law stipulates that if all collective negotiations between police unions and employers reach impasse without mutual agreement or settlement, after meeting with a mediator, "compulsory arbitration", takes effect. Arbitration compels union and management to come to some agreement within a given time period or the dispute is referred to an arbitrator. This stipulation eliminates the need for the power of a large international union.

Police oriented unions tend to have a personal interest in the individual officer, service their contract properly and handle all grievances in an expeditious manner. A locally controlled labor management situation, assists management by giving each grievance quick, individual attention, thereby eliminating labor problems before they escalate.

HOFFMAN'S

Like a salmon having played out its life, the Christmas tree that only a few days ago was a thing of crooked beauty, now lies spent and unloved in the flower bed.

With any luck it will blow over into the neighbor's yard to join another outcast.

It's hard to shed any tears over the tree, particularly this one, because it very nearly triggered a family donnybrook from the outset.

"Let's get a small tree this year," the kids' mother had pleaded ... the same plea she's made for 23 years. Her idea of the "perfect" tree is something that will sit on a table and still only be bosom high. Something she can carry to the kitchen sink whenever it needs water.

Just as natural as her plea was the response: "No, that's not a tree, that's a plant. We want a big one, something that will reach to the ceiling so the angel looks down, not up."

"Well then you get it," she huffed.

"Let's chop down our own tree this year," someone suggested.

So we drove a hundred thousand miles to a place near Howell where our auto club said we would find 10,000 trees.

As soon as we pulled off the freeway we were lost. The station attendant smiled and said, "Don't ask. Turn left at the next crossing, go about five miles and follow the traffic. Every driver in the state has stopped here today and not one of them wanted gas."

He was right. The country road was like the Lodge at quitting time. Ten thousand cars for each of the 10,000 trees.

"What kind of tree do you want?" asked the impatient lumberjack when finally our car inched into sight of the waving hillside of green. "What kind you got?" I asked, feeling a little like the guy standing at an ice cream counter.

"Something with long needles," chorused the kids.

"Then follow that line of cars around the bend. It's our section of Scotch pine," he said, waving us on and then quickly sticking his head into the car behind us.

For an hour we tried spotting something that would garner a majority opinion. Nothing suited anyone. Back to the attendant. "We'd like something with short needles," he was told.

"Over there," he barked, even more impatiently. "It's our spruce area. Any tree, six bucks. You'd better be careful, though, there are some blue spruce in there and for those it's a buck a foot. You pay for anything you cut."

That was like saying, "Pick all the mushrooms you want,

One-year site review

Planners eye change

A proposed change of the site review provisions that would beef up the existing statutes is being considered by the Northville City Planning Commission.

Introduced last week by Planning Consultant Ronald Nino, the proposal was triggered by a recent suggestion that the deadline for implementing approved site plan work be extended from six months to one year.

Site plans are required of developers before construction of commercial buildings and multiple housing can be permitted in the city.

Extension of the deadline was recommended to city council by the city's engineer, Harold Penn, who argued that the six-month limitation has proved difficult for developers to meet because of the time needed in completing financing and in securing other governmental approvals also required for developments.

Council passed the recommendation onto the planning commission for review.

Most planners were not immediately impressed by the recommendation, fearing that an extension of the deadline would simply encourage unnecessary delays.

On the other hand, Nino noted that most communities have a one-year limitation.

He also, however, explained that Northville's site plan provisions, although relatively new, could be beefed up to better guard against development problems and to better outline to the developer the purpose and procedures of site plans and their reviews by planners.

His proposal, for example, gives a detailed statement of purpose for site plans and it spells out in detail all requirements of developers in submitting their plans.

Purpose of the site plan, according to his proposal, is "to minimize the possibility of adverse effects upon adjacent property, and furthermore, to ensure proper relationships between the development features as they relate to traffic safety, service roads, drive-ways, parking areas, accessory buildings and uses and open spaces."

The plan itself would include the "building configuration and placement with respect to the internal and external lot or parcel environment, physical changes to the natural topography of the site, proposed pedestrian-vehicular circulation, and relationship to external environment, building characteristics including internal design from which holding capacity and circulation can be determined, exterior building characteristics, all advertising and identification signing, and utilities, and proposed landscaped improvements."

Specific sections in his proposal go into detail about those characteristics that must appear in the plan.

The proposal would extend the deadline for implementation from six months to one year, but it also would place curbs on those developers who, after receiving site plan approval, complete only a portion of a phased development and leave the remaining land in an unsightly condition.

In phased developments landscaping would be required in areas where other buildings are eventually to be located.

Hunsinger joins race

Another hat has been tossed into the race for the 14th district state senate seat vacated by Carl Pursell, now a U.S. Congressman from the second district.

Josephine Hunsinger, a Democratic state representative for 22 years until she was defeated for re-election last year, formally announced her candidacy this week.

Mrs. Hunsinger moved into the city of Plymouth to become qualified for the seat. A Detroit resident in the 1st district, she lost in the August primary to Democrat Michael Bennane. A spokesman for Mrs. Hunsinger said the veteran legislator lost union support and thus her legislative seat "because she began voting too much like a suburbanite instead of a Detroit."

Mrs. Hunsinger is the first woman to serve as majority whip for the Michigan state legislature.

Her entry into the race was not unexpected. The only other Democrat to officially announce for the seat formerly held by Republican Pursell is Paul Kadish, chairman of the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees. But Patrick McDonald, supervisor of Redford Township, Wayne County Commissioner Richard Manning of Redford and Livonia Councilman Jerry Raymond are also expected to file for the primary race.

On the Republican side State Representative R. Robert Geake, Wayne County Commissioner Mary Dumas and Jane Moeble of Plymouth have announced their candidacy. Another Republican poised to file is Joseph Bida, mayor of the city of Plymouth.

The date of the primary is expected to be set soon by Governor William Milliken, probably in February with an election run-off to follow in March.

School board rejects request for busing

School buses will not roll through Westridge Downs.

The Northville board of education reaffirmed an earlier decision Monday night by declining to reinstate bus service for students in the Novi neighborhood.

Parents have argued that it is a "hazardous situation" for their children to walk to Amerman Elementary School because they must walk on a busy street when passing through a nearby subdivision that has no sidewalks.

Westridge Downs is too close to Amerman to allow busing under board guidelines unless a dangerous situation exists.

Westridge children had been bused in the past, but that was because there was no through-route to Amerman School at that time, according to Superintendent Raymond Spear.

One parent, Edward Dupke, suggested the school district was resisting the busing because it is "administratively inconvenient". He urged the board to have the "courage" to do something that is "unpopular with administrators".

Most board members have felt that conditions at Westridge Downs were not unique in the school district. Several also feel that the City of Novi should have required developers to install sidewalks in subdivisions.

Trustees Robert Mandell and Chris Johnson voted to reinstate busing. Sylvia Gucken, John Hobart, Karen Wilkinson, Roger Nieuwkoop and Marjorie Sliger voted "no".

River. In addition, Grand River is to be widened both east and west of Novi Road to six lanes. Eleven Mile Road, which hits Grand River just east of Novi Road, is to be relocated further east so that it does not add to traffic congestion at the Novi Road-Grand River interchange.

On that project, besides the county contribution, the city will be paying $13,000 and federal monies will be paying the remainder. The project is expected to be completed this year.

Denman said that other funds coming into Novi would be almost totally for maintenance of county roads.

Unusual freshman ranking

Pursell gets top spots

In his first day on the job, new Michigan Congressman Carl Pursell has accomplished what easily might have taken him two or more years to do.

The Second District congressman was selected by party leaders as the ranking freshman on both of his committees: Education and Labor, and Science and Technology.

That gives Pursell a major boost up the ancient House seniority ladder and puts him in a distinctly advantageous position to pursue legislative and district-assistance goals in his first term.

Pursell's designation puts him in an excellent position to quickly move up to ranking minority member of a subcommittee, which Washington observers say is extremely rare for a freshman and seldom happens even in a Congressman's second term.

Pursell was given top ranking among three Republican freshmen on Education and Labor, out of 13 minority seats on the committee.

His position on Science and Technology will be even stronger, as he is ranked first out of five new freshmen among the 12 Republicans on that panel.

A major reorganization of the Science and Technology Committee is underway, as some of the functions of the phased-out Joint Committee on Atomic Energy may be assumed by the House committee.

Final organization of the committees by majority Democrats is not expected until the third week in January. In the interim, Pursell will carefully analyze the various subcommittees to determine which assignments he'll request.

"I don't have an unrealistic attitude about the committee assignments," Pursell said. I realize it takes some time for a new Congressman to develop influence. But having the top ranking among the incoming members on my committees is a very factual advantage. It will be a major aid in providing the effective representation I've promised the Second District, and indicates I've had some success already in demonstrating that I can make a significant contribution in the Congress."

"Job development and expanded federal assistance to locally-controlled schools are my top priorities on the Education and Labor Committee, and I believe you'll see positive action in both areas from this Congress," Pursell predicted.

"The first priority for Science and Technology should be to conclude the '77 budget authorization for the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA), which was delayed in the last session. Beyond that there's a need to concentrate on national energy independence and a national flour-carbon aerosol ban."

On opening day of the 95th Congress, Pursell voted to try to change some of the rules which will govern the House for the next two years. He was upset with sections of the rules he said might encourage absenteeism from floor and committee work.

"Our objections were voted down," Pursell observed. "As a result I believe the quality of work in the Congress will suffer. The rules allow committees to amend bills with only one-third of the members present, instead of the usual quorum of one-half. Regulations on holding committee meetings while important debates occur on the floor have been relaxed. And the number of quorum calls, which summon all members to the House floor, will be reduced."

"I'm especially disturbed by the decision to conduct committee business with only one-third of the members present."

but there's a few toadstools in there." For goodness sakes, I can't tell a Scotch pine from a German measles, let alone an ordinary spruce from a blue one ... particularly in winter's five o'clock shadows.

So we wandered back to the mile wide stand of long needles, threading our way through everyone of those miserable devils until finally, in desperation, I closed my eyes and said, "There, that one ... and don't give me any sass."

Luck was with me. It was a handsome thing. Straight as an arrow, and as big around as it was 10 feet high.

Just as quickly as it toppled to the ground, its straight trunk doubled up with an appalling deformity. It was so curved we could have rolled it back to the car.

"Six bucks," grinned the lumberjack, surveying our prize. "That's a beauty," he lied.

Everyone disclaimed it. "It's your tree, dad," they said. "Don't blame it on us."

But they lived with dad's hunchback for two weeks, even learning to love it a little. Mom couldn't carry it to the kitchen sink, of course, but angel looked down on us and someone remarked to a guest, "If you lay sideways on the floor it's not half bad."

FISH shares 'thank you'

To the Editor:

This note was written on a Christmas card sent to FISH and addressed "to everyone who has helped us." We at FISH feel it is too good to keep to ourselves and would like to share it with the many people of the community who assisted with FISH holiday projects:

"Thank you so much for everything you have done for us. When I had the accident, I thought God had turned from us. Everything started easing in. Now I think it was meant to happen."

"I don't know why, but I know God loves us and if I can hold on to my faith and trust in our Lord, I'm sure he'll help us out of this as he has so many other times."

"I know God will bless all of you for your kindness toward us. You all truly have the true meaning of Christmas in your hearts."

"Thank you all again for caring about us. God bless you all and have a very merry Christmas. I know I will, thanks to you."

Communities join to fight prison

Northville and Wayne County Commissioner Mary Dumas of Livonia have pledged their support in fighting the prison plan.

Meanwhile, a model resolution asking the county to sell at least a portion of the Child Development property for private development is being drawn up by Grier and Geake. Area communities also will be asked to adopt this resolution as well as the one opposing the prison plan, Grier said.

"Our number one recommendation," he said, "is that the property be sold and returned to the tax roll. By selling it the county can get rid of the financial liability around its neck and at the same time spur the economy through private development and by giving the township some badly needed tax base."

"Right now about one-third of all of Northville Township property is owned by tax-free governmental agencies."

"It's costing the county, and we as taxpayers, about $300,000 annually to maintain this unused property. And the longer these buildings go unused, the more it's going to cost the county to maintain them."

Grier said his second choice, if the county remains unwilling to sell the property for private development, would be to lease it to Schoolcraft College and Wayne State University for extension of their joint educational program.

A consortium plan of Schoolcraft and WSU for use of the Child Development buildings was dropped last year when state financing appeared unlikely and when the county announced its intention to lease the property to Sacred Heart Rehabilitation Center of Detroit for an alcoholic rehabilitation campus. Sacred Heart subsequently dropped its plan, however, when it, too, ran into financing problems.

"Renovating the buildings to meet requirements of the state's new barrier free law for handicapped persons makes costs prohibitive, officials noted."

According to Mrs. Dumas, county officials are considering several alternative proposals for the center's use — including a proposal by the Northville School Board to use it for that system's special education program for institutionalized mentally handicapped children.

Northville is operating the largest such program in Michigan and one of the largest in the nation. It serves 800 mentally retarded children from the Plymouth Center for Human Development and the Northville Residential Training Center, both of which are state institutions located in Northville.

To house some of these youngsters Northville currently is leasing school buildings in the Livonia area.

After conferring with the state corrections department and with key legislative leaders this past week, Representative Geake said he is confident the prison idea will not become a reality until after a great deal more investigation.

He said he has been assured that the plan, if it takes formal shape, will first be studied extensively by a joint committee of the House and Senate, which also will first confer with local officials to determine the impact such a prison would have on Northville and surrounding communities.

Similarly, Mrs. Dumas said the public works committee of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners would give the matter plenty of public airing before it got to the point of making a recommendation to the entire board for final approval or disapproval.

While municipal officials prepare formal resolutions, a citizens organization in Northville has formed to provide additional clout. Co-Chairmen of this organization are Ross Northrop and William Miron.

9 apply for board post

All of a sudden, there are a lot of people who want to try their hand at running a school district.

Within the last week, nine people have officially indicated that they wish to be considered when the Northville board of education fills a vacancy at the end of this month.

Board President Sylvia Gucken plans to resign at the January 24 meeting because she'll be moving with her family to Pennsylvania.

Board members would like to appoint her successor at that same meeting because the next regular session, on February 14, is one day beyond the 20-day limit set by the state for filling board vacancies.

For that reason, anyone wishing to be considered must submit a "letter of intention" to the school administration offices by 5 p.m. Friday.

The nine who have already applied are: James P. Adams, 16470 Winchester Drive; John C. Colling, 16405 Franklin Road; Norman L. Davis, 534 Morgan Circle; Wesley R. Henrikson, Jr., 21107 Stanstead Road; Julia Meek, 18934 Northville Road; Peter J. Morrissey, 20076 Rippling Lane; Stephanie B. Ruiter, 433 Dubuar; Bruce Turnbull, 365 Eaton Drive; and Mrs. Edith E. Zecker, 18551 Innsbrook Drive.

Ink contract

Northville's school board unanimously approved a two-year package of "hours, wages and conditions of employment" for the district's secretaries, aids and clerical staff.

The agreement will cost the school district an increase of 6.8 percent this year and 6.6 percent for the 1977-78 school year, according to Burton Knighton, director of personnel.

Included in the agreement are wage hikes averaging 3.5 percent this year and 4 percent next year.

In accordance with a policy passed by the board Monday night, all who file letters of intention must complete short application forms by 5 p.m. Monday.

The letters of intent and application forms will be used by the board in a screening process to determine which applicants will be called in for interviews on Wednesday, January 19 at 7:30 p.m.

It is possible that all candidates will be interviewed unless the number gets so large as to be unwieldy.

Toth. "When are you going to finish the one north of Nine Mile?"

McCafferty replied that some of the points Toth mentioned are going to be taken care of while he was not prepared to address the other points.

Council member Romain Roethel, responding to a criticism by Toth that the city should be given the parks, noted that K&B had offered the parks to the city but the council had refused them. However, Toth contended that K&B should have had to put up a minimal maintenance fund on the park anyway.

Approval by council on the RUD, according to Cairns, approved the RUD concept, the general layout of the streets and open space as it relates to the ordinance. The RUD had already been recommended for approval by the planning board subject to approval by the zoning board of appeals on certain points.

The planning board also recommended unanimously tentative approval of the preliminary plat for the development. Council unanimously gave the tentative approval.

Mitchell maintained, however, that all of the homeowner's property would be used for right-of-way and none would be left over. He added that if there is property left over which is not used, a

According to Mitchell, negotiations are moving along with the other homeowners and no problems are anticipated.

The relocation of Adell Boulevard was discussed at the public hearing but almost no opposition was recorded against the relocation of Adell to the north side of Fonda.

His hunting trip triggers love affair with Arabian horses

By BILL McMILLAN

Don Ford went on a hunting trip in British Columbia and liked the mustang mare he was assigned to so well that he decided to buy the animal and bring it home.

That started his love affair with horses which has now made him and his wife Jean the top Arabian horse breeders in the state if not the country. The sprawling Lancer Arabian Farm, which covers about 200 acres, is tucked away on the outskirts of Hartland near U.S. 23 and M-59.

The Fords employ four full-time staffers, including Stanley White, the couple's trainer for eight years, to help breed the Arabian horses considered by most horse authorities as the oldest and most beautiful category of the four-legged creature.

But the couple do not just raise any Arabian horses, but the straight Egyptian variety which is the Cadillac of the animal line, so to speak.

A strong bond can be found among Egyptians and horsemen around the world towards this breed with graceful arching neck, high carriage of its tail, small head, broad forehead and dish-shaped profile below the eyes.

The animal was swift yet obedient on the long treks in the harsh desert in ancient times. The purebred horse could be traced for eight hundred years. The association was so close that man and animal shared the same tent together.

Ford liked the Egyptian Arabian horse so well after visiting the country of its origin back in 1972 that he decided to sell his entire herd of Arabians and start all over with this one specific breed.

The auction held in June of 1973 brought 3,500 people to Hartland. The average selling price for a member of the herd turned out to be $14,420, with the total price tag equalling $706,000. One 20-year-old stallion sold for $90,000.

While the auction was going on, Ford had 16 Egyptian Arabian horses hid away at a stable in Flint ready to move in after the sale.

But it was not easy getting that first group.

"The Egyptians are very careful about who gets their valuable and loved animals," Ford said, sitting in his office literally covered wall to wall with thousands of trophies and ribbons won in horse shows. "I spent three months of coffee drinking before the deal was made. And I think that we were the first non-Egyptians to be able to actually pick our own horses out from the government controlled herd."

Ford has made 17 more trips since that initial venture to Egypt and has become friends with many top officials of that land. He expects to go back in March.

The pace is hectic for a man who retired as president of Boyne Products, an electrical contracting firm, some years back in an attempt to "slow down".

Before the month of January ends, Ford will travel to Dallas, Denver and London on horse related business. Later he will tour the country, watching his horses perform in various shows and collecting more first place trophies and ribbons.

He has already traveled through the Egyptian desert, touring the pyramids while sealing deals on more Arabian horses. He has also been to quite a few parties thrown by members of the country's officialdom which sometimes includes a few belly dancers.

At one time, the Fords' herd totaled 110. But no more, he stressed. Now his goal is strictly quality, not quantity.

Ford, who wears a huge ring made of diamonds shaped into a horseshoe — a present from his wife, explained that there are about 120,000 living Arabian horses in the world, but only about 800 straight Egyptians.

About 100 breeding farms raise the Arabians and Lancer is considered about the fourth largest in the country.

The farm presently houses about 35 of the Egyptian variety, with that number rising to 11 more after the breeding season beginning in February is over.

People from throughout the world write to the Fords wishing to purchase a member of the latest foal and usually buying without seeing the horse except for a photograph. They know that the reputation of the Lancer Farm guarantees a beautiful specimen.

Ford would not pin down an asking price since he said it varied. But he did say that a newborn colt automatically costs about $15,000 before it is even looked at.

Lancer is the home of Asad, the current national halter champion. Ford was offered a quarter of a million dollars for the horse before it even earned its title. Ford said his prize possession is priceless.

Asad's 16-year-old father, Sultan, has sired nothing but national champions except in one case. And that is because the horse in question is not old enough yet for competition.

One young colt, Mahran Ibn, was recently purchased by an Australian horseman.

But the owner will not see the five-month-old horse for at least seven more months as it first must travel to New York, then England and finally to the land down under. Quarantine periods will keep the animal at each stop for a number of months.

The horses travel by air. In fact, Ford had to rent a DC-8 cargo plane when he brought the initial 16 horses over from Egypt back in '72.

One mare managed to break its foot during the trip, but trainer White pointed out that veterinarian advancements have made the death by gun mode passe.

The animals are bred artificially at Lancer since the breed is spirited and the danger of injury is more likely.

A huge semi-truck trailer which can accommodate up to nine horses stands near the farm's stable. It will be used later this year to take the prize horse to shows around the country.

The trailer is complete with a dressing and storage area.

White does most of the riding for the Fords, who "pirated" him away from the largest Arabian horse farm in the country in Maryland.

But White also has the job of making

but it grows colder, too

The old saying, "as the day lengthens, the cold strengthens," is particularly appropriate during January, says University of Michigan astronomer Hazel M. Losh.

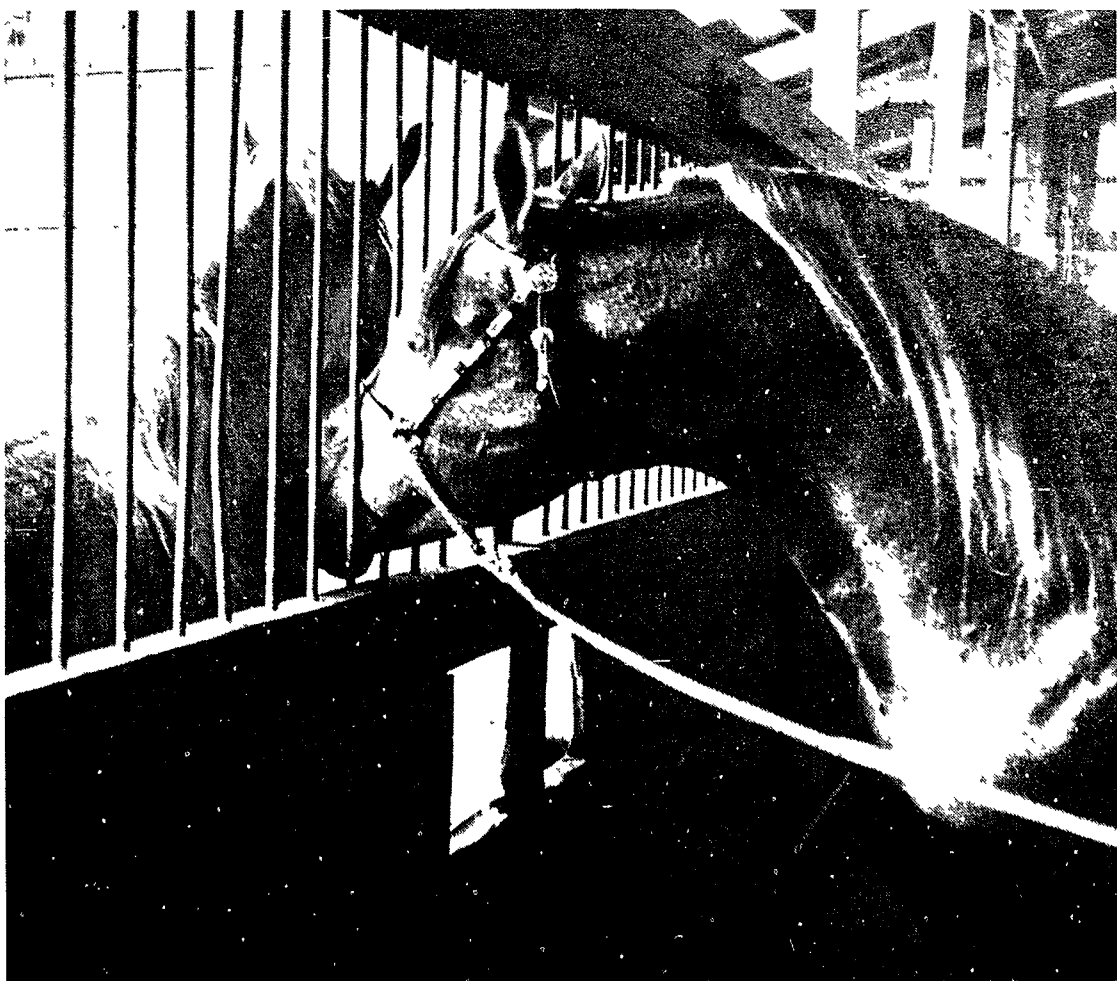

"During these cold winter mornings, it is hard to believe that we are nearer the sun than at any other time of the year," she observes. "The earth is as much as one and one-half million miles closer than its average of 93,000,000." The date of the perihelion, when the earth is nearest to the sun, was January 3.

As the month progresses, says Professor Losh, there will be a gradual increase in the length of the day. By the end of January there will be nearly an hour more daylight.

"However, along with the increasing sunlight, we are likely to have colder weather," she notes. "The lengthening of the day will have little effect on temperatures. It is not until February that the rate of heating by day overtakes the rate of cooling by night."

Although the number of daylight hours and the intensity of the sun are at

Father Kenneth Untener

Alumnae to head St. John's

With appointment of Father Kenneth Untener as the rector of St. John's Provincial Seminary, the 39-year-old priest will become the youngest rector in the seminary's history when he assumes the post on June 15.

An alumnus of St. John's, Father Untener is the sixth rector of the institution, which serves as a provincial seminary for the seven dioceses of Michigan.

He succeeds Father Lyman Fenn, SS; Father Edward Hogan, SS; Father Eugene Van Antwerp, SS; Father Addison Wright, SS; and Father Robert Rose.

The latter, the present rector, whom Father Untener will succeed, is a priest of the Grand Rapids Diocese.

Born in Detroit in 1937, Father Untener attended St. Charles grade and high school on Detroit's east side. From 1955 to 1959 he attended Sacred Heart Seminary, and from 1959 to 1963 he studied theology at St. John's Provincial Seminary, located on the Northville-Plymouth border.

He was ordained to the priesthood in 1963 by Cardinal John Dearden, archbishop of Detroit, in Blessed Sacrament Cathedral, Detroit.

His first assignment was assistant pastor at St. Mary's Redford Parish in Detroit. He was appointed assistant chancellor for the archdiocese of Detroit in 1965. In 1968 he was appointed assistant vicar for parishes. For several years he was co-host of a weekly television program entitled "Dialogue" on which he held discussions with various protestant ministers.

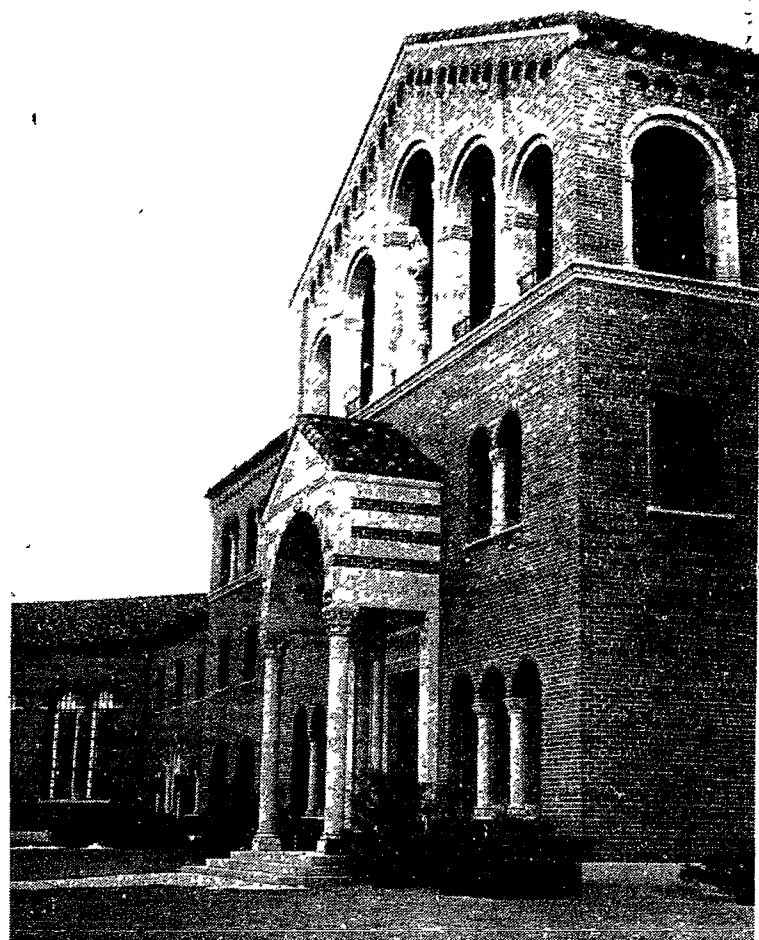

From 1969 to 1971 Father Untener was assigned to graduate theological studies in Rome where he obtained a doctorate in theology. The title of his dissertation was "The Church-World Relationship According to the Writings of Yves Congar". He returned to Detroit in June, 1971 and was appointed assistant to the delegate for the clergy office where he continues to serve.

Father Untener has continued with occasional radio and television appearances, and writes regular editorials for The Michigan Catholic newspaper. He currently serves as one of 12 priest-advisors to the NCCB Committee on Priestly Lifestyle and Ministry. He also serves as a member of the Theological Commission of the Archdiocese of Detroit.

A pancake and sausage supper is scheduled for January 17 at the New Hudson United Methodist Church beginning at 5:30 p.m. The supper is sponsored by the junior high youth fellowship and will be on a donation basis. The public is invited.

Purpose of the fund raising event is to help pay the way of 12 members of the fellowship to a Methodist retreat at Adrian on January 29 and 30.

Christian speaker Gene Lilly will be the special guest at the January meeting of Gathered In, a fellowship of charismatic prayer groups and churches in Livingston County.

The meeting is scheduled for Friday (January 14) at 8 p.m. at the Howell Recreation Center.

Lilly, a resident of Orlando, Florida, was healed of multiple sclerosis and is featured in one of Francis Gardner Hunter's most recent books, "Don't Limit God".

Baritone Gene Braun, a radio and television personality and recording artist, will be guest soloist at the newly organized Village Community Church of Hartland on Sunday, January 16, at 10:30 a.m.

The church is temporarily meeting at the Hartland Community Center, 3642 Washington, in the village. Pastor Jim Krauss conducted the first service at the church last Sunday.

Catholic seminary founded 1949

St. John's Provincial Seminary was founded in September of 1949 for the purpose of preparing men for service as ordained priests of the Catholic Church in Michigan.

Located on 180 acres of rolling, forested land at Five Mile and Sheldon Roads, at the Northville-Plymouth boundary, the seminary was founded by Edward Cardinal Mooney and the bishops of the four other Michigan dioceses of the time.

St. John's Provincial Seminary was established as a much-needed school where men could continue their theological and philosophical studies after completing their four-year college programs at St. Joseph's Minor Seminary in Grand Rapids and Sacred Heart Seminary in Detroit. Catholics throughout the state support St. John's Provincial Seminary.

St. John's presently has over 80 full-time residential students preparing for service as priests in Michigan's now seven dioceses. In addition, the doors have recently been opened to over twenty students who are not seeking ordination but who want to draw on the school's rich theological resources to improve their effectiveness in various ministries. These part-time students include many women and several non-Catholics.

Initially, priests of the order of St. Sulpice — an order devoted to the preparation of men for the priesthood — filled administrative and faculty positions. In 1971, priests from Michigan's seven dioceses assumed most of those duties. (One member of the original faculty, Father John J. Castelot, has remained with St. John's through its entire history and now teaches scripture at the school. Father Castelot has also frequently appeared as an author in the "Know Our Faith" series in several Catholic papers in Michigan.)

The seminary recently opened the Gabriel Richard Rare Book Room, a project sponsored by the St. John's Alumni Association. While the main library boasts a collection of more than 40,000 volumes and about 300 current periodicals that make St. John's a theological reference source for many scholars and researchers, the Richard Rare Book Room contains, in contrast, manuscripts dating back to the 15th Century.

Other facilities include two "Y"-winged three-story residence halls, an administration and classroom building, library, main chapel and tower, refectory and kitchen, convent and power plant.

Previous rectors of St. John's have been:

AMC thanks you for the tremendous response to our Pacer $253 Cash Rebate Offer in the best way we know how.

By extending the offer.

Since we started our $253 Cash Rebate Program last November, two very good things have happened. We've sold thousands and thousands of Pacers. And we've given away more than $2½ million.

Recognizing that you can't get too much of a good thing, AMC is extending the offer. As a way of thanking you. And with the hopes of selling a lot more Pacers, too.

So now you've got two additional months—until March 10—to take advantage of our offer. All you have to do is pick your Pacer or Pacer Wagon and make your best deal with your AMC dealer. AMC will send you the $253. Or you can apply the $253 to the down payment. After you've made your best deal, of course.

The $253 Cash Rebate offer is good on all new 1976 and 1977 AMC Pacers and Pacer Wagons delivered from dealer stock by March 10 or ordered by February 10. Sorry, but no military or fleet sales are included.

BUYER PROTECTION PLAN® II

The only full 2-year, 24,000 mile warranty on engine and drive train.

The only full 1-year or 12,000 mile warranty protecting everything else on your car except tires.

Price tag mighty for ancient Arabians sure things run smoothly at the farm. Careful attention is given to the horses during the winter months. They are not used to the snow and ice of Michigan, and they must be looked after so that they do not hurt themselves on the slippery stuff.

On each stall in the stable is the detailed history — a sort of family tree — of the horse inside. The certificate is written in Arabic, a language which Ford can converse in.

Although the farm is actually a business, it has proved to be a huge source of enjoyment for a man who actually stumbled into the career of horse breeding.

The Fords have three children. One girl, Laura, is attending college. The oldest son, Jack, is a veterinarian in California.

"The other son, Rex, is attending Arizona State University and feels that horses have four legs and run around," Ford chuckled, adding that the other two were active in their youth in riding competition.

"Think Egyptian!" says the sign on the Lancer Farm bulletin board. The breed's price tag is mighty, but so is its reputation for being the head of the horse kingdom.

Houseplants

winter, so don't worry much on this account.

Once the soil is reasonably dry, if there is no improvement, the cause must be something other than excess water. Next consider temperature and humidity. Most house plants need higher humidity than the average home provides, and they need a night temperature 10-15 degrees lower than the day temperature. A spot which is 72 degrees 24 hours a day isn't very good. On the other hand, being in a cold draft or over a heat vent does nothing for moderate temperatures.

Daily misting does a lot to bring back healthy color and vigor to most plants, especially ferns. Not only does it supplement soil moisture, but it washes the pores through which plants make their carbon dioxide-oxygen exchange.

In the end, ministering to an ailing plant is little more than a series of adjustments — a little more light, a little less heat, a lot less water, etc.

A Walk In Winter

*Like a tear drop,
it freezes in the cold,
Like my love... so many times before.*

*A body cold to a touch.
You give me warmth,
You give me life.
give me your love.*

*Eyes, I saw a touch of loneliness
Your kiss, trying to find someone,
to need, to be held,
wanting to be loved.*

*I'm here waiting,
I will not leave.*

Fred Spiker

Flight Fraught

*You and I, bird
You and I both
Have that little secret—
We are both escaping:
Chirp! Cheep! Hooray!
What matter our voice
Or notes, We're free
You and I both
You and I, bird.*

F. A. Hasenau

Today, Years Ago

*Like a tear drop,
your presence on my mind.
And if it fades, gone back to where it came.
I will still feel, what it brought.*

*The first time I touched you, wanting more, not knowing how to ask.
And when, I pass windows,
reflections of you,
of our past.*

*My love, I would give to you,
like honey,
covering all, slow, so quiet.*

We caught pitcher moments, in short lived days.

*We can do it again,
I will be better than before.
Could you take another look?*

VERLE E. MOORE, who was recently named Graphics Production Manager of the Sampson-Hill Division of Adistra Corporation, is shown here (on the left) receiving the 1976 National Association of Printing Lithographers (NALP) Craftsman-of-the-Year Award. This honor was bestowed on him by over 14,000 member companies with over 100,000 member employees.

In June of this year Verle Moore was named Man-of-the-Year for 1976 by the National Association of Litho Clubs (NALC). This award was voted on by 34 Litho Clubs throughout the United States and Canada with over 5,000 members.

Moore is responsible for all Graphics Production for Adistra Corporation, whose main office is located in the old Daisey Air Rifle plant at 101 Union Street in Plymouth and with additional facilities on Northville Road in Northville Township. Adistra corporation offers full marketing and distribution service to various businesses, including the automobile industry.

DARYL BARNABY of Northville has been named northeast district sales manager for Honeywell's Test Instruments Division.

In this position Barnaby will be responsible for a sales force that sells the division's data recording, display and analysis instrumentation products and systems in the eight-state northeast district. He will be headquartered in the division's Philadelphia branch office.

Formerly a senior sales engineer in the Detroit area, Barnaby has been with Honeywell since 1969.

He is originally from Caledonia, Michigan. In 1967 he received a bachelor's degree from Western Michigan University.

He and his wife, Sandra, have two sons: Mark, 5, and Todd, 1. The family currently lives in Northville, but will be moving to the Philadelphia area.

Advanced Equine Seminar

Advanced equine seminars are scheduled to begin February 2 at the Orchard Ridge Campus, Oakland Community College, Farmington and on January 31 at Highland Lake Campus, Oakland Community College, Union Lake. Each class consists of 10 two-hour sessions beginning at 7 p.m. weekly.

Anyone 12 years of age or older having an interest in horses is welcome to register and attend. Registrations will be accepted as space permits.

The seminars are conducted by Michael Hall, DVM; John Keating, DVM and Steven A. Rymal, DVM.

Advance (prepaid) registration is requested of all those planning to attend. Only if space is available will registrations be accepted at the first class session. The application, including name, address, phone number and choice of location, with registration fee attached should be sent to the Advanced Equine Seminar, P.O. Box 99, South Lyon, Mi 48178.

The prepaid registration fee is $40 per person for 10 sessions. If more than one member of a family attends the fee for each additional member is $25. Registration at the first session will be $45 per person with registration opening at 6:30 p.m.

Topics to be covered include: parasite control, disease prevention and vaccination programs, equine emergencies and first aid, housing and equipment, anatomy and lameness, breeding and foaling, nutrition, dentistry, restraint, trailering and shipping and surgery on the equine.

Questions on the seminar may be directed to the above mailing address or call 437-3361.

This is the second in a series of seminars presented in this area by these veterinarians.

Equestrian Dinner

An awards dinner for the South Lyon High School Equestrian Team will be held January 21 at the South Lyon United Presbyterian Church, corner of Lake and Wells streets.

The dinner will be served potluck style with team members and parents gathering to celebrate the close of their successful 1976 season in the Michigan Interscholastic Horsemanship Association competition.

One Lifetime

One.

Just me.

I write not out of loneliness, but out of realization: true, naked fact.

One lifetime to live . . .

My heart wants so much to fill.

It has so far, been filled with many people, places, and ones I love . . .
but today on, I must make it much better . . .
and fill it with things I never thought
I could do.

Seems like a lot of power . . . a lifetime.

Aside from power, it is growth, love, and courage . . .

and it will continue.

It's time to think baseball

The Super Bowl was played Sunday. The basketball and hockey leagues are well underway. The skiing season is in full swing.

Obviously, it's a perfect time to talk about baseball.

The snow on the ground notwithstanding, the next two weeks are important for youngsters in Novi and Northville who wish to play organized ball next summer.

Registration dates are coming up the next two Saturdays in Northville and an important board meeting will be held next week in Novi.

NORTHVILLE

Last year, nearly 1000 boys and girls played baseball or softball in the Northville Junior Baseball Program. This year there could be more.

Those who want to insure that there will be room on a team next summer should register on one of the next two Saturdays (January 15 and 22) from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Scout Building on Cady Street.

There are baseball leagues for different age brackets ranging from 6-15 and softball leagues cover age groups from 9 to 15.

The cost per participant ranges from $8 to $19, but there is a $50 ceiling per family.

NOVI

Bob Hartson, president of the Novi Little League Baseball, says interest there has been on the upswing for the last few years.

Registration is coming up there, too, but not before an open board meeting next Thursday, Jan. 20.

The meeting, which will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Novi High School library, is designed to formulate plans for the coming season, fill some board vacancies, and encourage input from interested citizens.

All parents are invited to attend. More information can be obtained from Hartson at 477-8896.

Armada scores 54 points but Northville loses twice

If you see Northville basketball coach Walt Koepke this week, don't be surprised if he is scratching his head and looking more than a bit perplexed. Quite frankly, his Mustangs have him puzzled.

"I've never had a team like this where we are not making any progress," he said Sunday while discussing two losses the previous week.

"At the start of the season I'm usually pessimistic; but deep down I thought this team was going to be a good one."

Before Christmas, Northville split six games, but two of the losses were to strong teams which softened the blows of defeat.

Last week, however, Northville lost to smaller teams from Farmington, (71-64) and Plymouth Canton (72-61) and Koepke thinks the Mustangs had the talent to win them both, if not for unaggressive defense.

"There are three parts to good defense," he said. "First you have to discourage your man from getting the ball. If he gets the ball, you discourage him from shooting. If he shoots, you discourage him from getting the rebound."

In the last two games, the Mustangs didn't discourage anyone but their coach.

"If we can just get five boys to accept the challenge of guarding their men," Koepke said wishfully, "but we're not getting that kind of enthusiasm."

And that's what puzzles Koepke the most. Practices are spirited and he was encouraged by six scrimmages held over the Christmas break.

But let a game start, and the Mustangs let the other team set the tempo.

Last Tuesday, for instance, a smaller Farmington team stuck Northville in the first quarter, 21-4, and led 43-19 at half time.

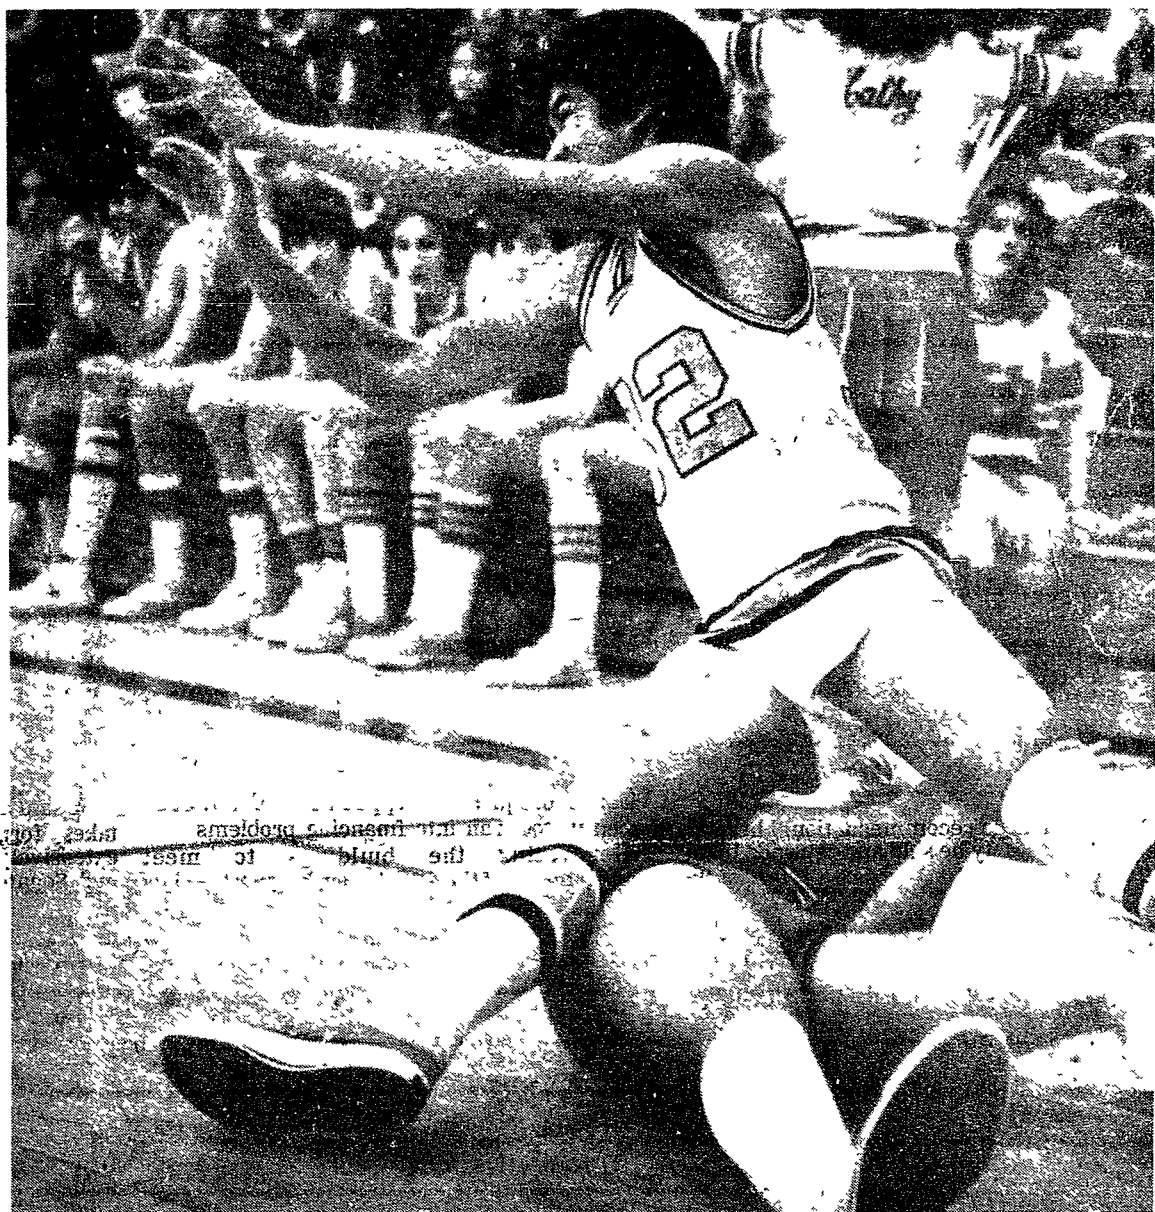

Then, in complete reversal,

Northville roared back and cut the lead to five with two minutes left in the game before falling short.

It was more of the same against conference foe Canton. Northville led after the first quarter, 17-16, but Koepke said the lead should have been greater.

By the end of the third quarter, Canton led 50-41.

He loses teeth and sets mark

Mark Yanoschik has four wisdom teeth pulled the week before but that didn't stop the Northville swimmer from setting a new school record with a 23-second clocking in the 50-yard freestyle Thursday.

Yanoschik's performance was one of several good times in the Mustangs 55-30 triumph over Plymouth Canton.

Coach Ron Meteyer said Canton was one of the strongest teams in the Western Six, but didn't have enough depth to keep up with Northville.

The brothers Cahill shared the limelight with Yanoschik.

Jim took nearly four seconds off his best time in the 200-yard freestyle with a 1:54. Tim did the 200-yard individual medley in 2:18.9, also his best time.

Then the two teamed with Yanoschik and Randy Roggenbuck to swim the 400-yard freestyle relay in 3:32.5, the team's best time of the season.

Bruce Hackman's 5:59.6 in the 500-yard freestyle was his best time of the year.

Western power edges Mustangs

The Northville-Walled Lake Western wrestling meet Thursday had just about everything that Mustang Coach Gary Emerson could ask for.

There was excitement, tension and high drama. In fact, only one thing was missing — a Northville win.

In what Emerson calls "probably the most exciting match I've ever seen," Western slipped past Northville, 32-28.

On paper, Western won with a pin in the last match involving the heavyweights. But it was so close that there were any one of a half-dozen turning points.

"It shouldn't have gotten down to that point," said Emerson, recalling missed opportunities.

As it was, heavyweight Chris Friel had a 4-2 lead when he was pinned in the second period.

"He was probably the most disappointed kid I've ever seen," said Emerson. "It's just one of those things that happens."

By the time the heavyweights hit the mats, spectators and team members had left the stands to crowd around the final event. They had been brought to near frenzy by the preceding events.

First, Dave Lucas beat his man 7-2 and Mike Lurvey was leading 8-5 with only 20 seconds left when he got pinned.

Instead of leading 6-0, Northville trailed 6-3 and, after two more pins, was down 18-3. Then it was the Mustangs' turn.

Dave Bentley, in a typical match of takedowns, escapes and reverses, won

5-4. Dan Platte was leading 8-2 when he fell on his head. Dazed, he barely held on, 10-8.

Jack Stabenau had his best match of the year to win 4-2. The Ed Talbot got a pin in 30 seconds to tie the meet at 18.

The next three matches were all four-pointers but only one was won by Northville and that was by Mike Georgoff.

With the Mustangs trailing 26-22, Earl Bingley put Northville back on top, 28-26, with a pin. That set the stage for the heavyweight bout.

"It was exciting," said Emerson who thought this would be the year to beat Western. "I think every kid will remember that."

"I would have video-taped it and shown it to wrestlers in the future if I could."

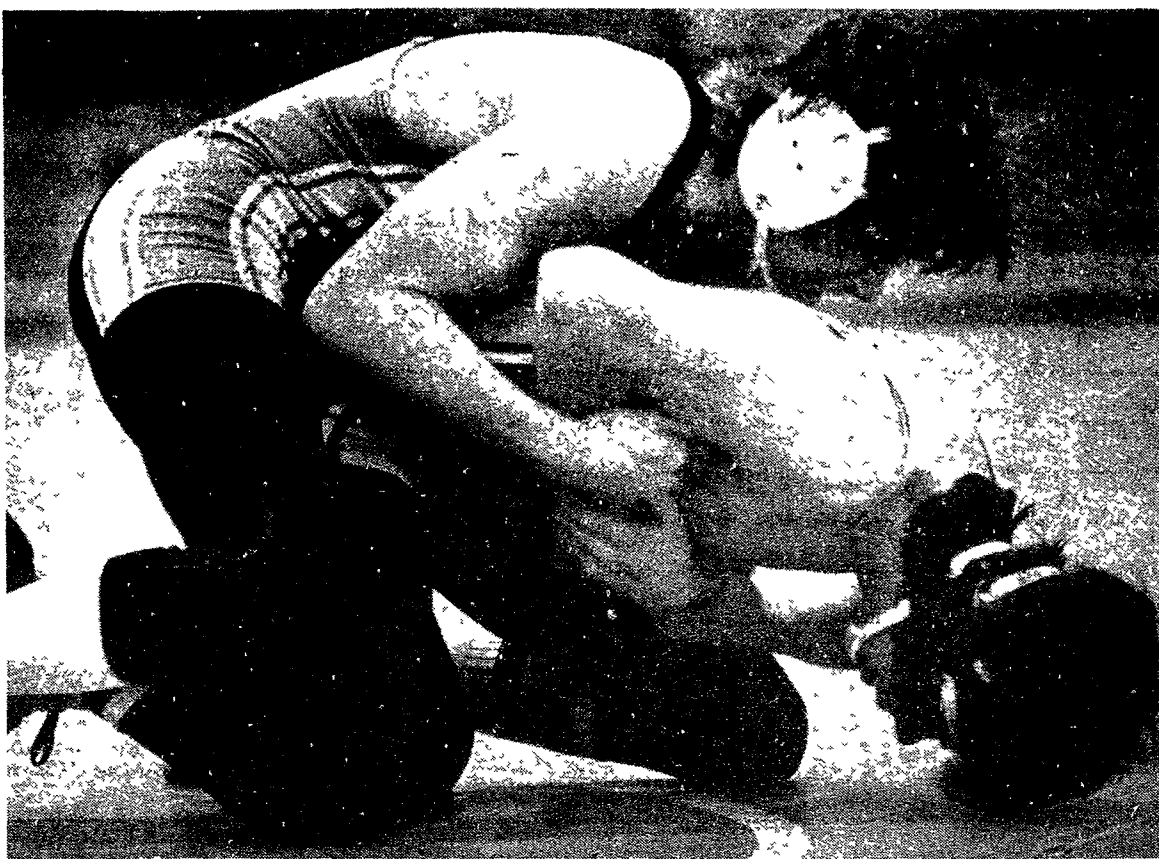

Downs goes up

The first seven nights of harness racing at Northville Downs got off to a fast start with betting up 10.9 per cent and attendance up 3.3 per cent over last year.

Northville Downs started its 85-night meet New Year's Day and through last Saturday night the total mutual handle was $2,398,538, an average of $342,648 nightly. Attendance was 20,849 for an average of 2,978 fans nightly.

The current meet at Northville Downs extends through April 9.

Mike Lurvey in action at Brighton

Wrestlers battle to 2nd

Northville wrestlers rebounded from a heartbreaking loss to Walled Lake Western on Thursday to finish second in the eight-team Brighton Invitational on Saturday.

The Mustangs took first in four weight classes, but Haslett had better overall strength and outpointed Northville, 166-146, in what was basically a two-team race for the title.

Ed Talbot had one of the most dramatic wins of the season in the title match of the 145-pound weight division.

Wrestling Brighton's John Buckless, who had given Talbot one of his few losses this year, Talbot trailed 6-2 in the third period.

Talbot rallied to 6-5 and tied it with half a minute to go when Buckless was called for stalling.

It appeared then that it would go into overtime where Coach Gary Emerson thought Talbot would have the advantage because Buckless was tiring.

But Buckless got an escape to take the lead, 7-6, and needed to hold out only 20 seconds for the win. Amazingly, Talbot drove in and got the takedown to win, 8-7.

"It was great," said Emerson. "As soon as the buzzer went off, his Dad came down from the stands and gave him a bear hug. Ed just jumped up and down, he was so excited."

Joining Talbot in the winner's circle were Dave Bentley, Dan Platte and Bob Zabinski.

Mike Lurvey was unseeded but started off by pinning the first seed. Then he pinned his second opponent before losing in the finals.

Earl Bingley wrestled to the finals where he lost 11-10 to the number one seed in a "flip-flop" match, said Emerson.

Heavyweight Chris Friel, seeded fourth, got to the finals by pinning the first seed. He then lost to the second seed, 5-2.

Northville had an important match as far as future seedings are concerned when it faced North Farmington Tuesday. The Mustangs host Plymouth Canton Thursday and go to a tough South Lyon Invitational Saturday.

Moran ties Moonkin for first

Art Moran Pontiac broke a 35-35 tie with the Hookers in the fourth quarter to win 51-45 and stay tied with Moonkin Toys for the leadership in the Northville Adult basketball league.

Moonkin Toys had little trouble with Zayti Trucking and Fairway came from behind to beat Northville Charlies as the season resumed after a holiday break.

Eight different players scored in the fourth quarter for Moran. Dave Masco, 13 points, John Zerbo, 10, and Jim Gulick, 10, paced a balanced attack.

Big gun for the Hookers was Jim Carter who didn't score until the second period but ended with 20 points.

Moonkin was led by Jeff Moon, 19, Scott Evans, 14, Jeff Spire and Lance Hahn, 11, and Steve Utley, 10. Moonkin led 18-4 after one period and coasted to a 72-41 win.

Local girls play role in Schoolcraft hopes

There's a new look to girls basketball at Schoolcraft College.

First, there is a new coach, Marguerite (Weenie) Blikken, a multi-talented athlete who once threw two strikes past Babe Ruth in an exhibition softball game.

Second, there is more interest than ever before. Ten girls make up this year's squad compared to six last year.

Third, and most important, the girls are showing more confidence and command when they dribble, shoot and pass off.

"A good deal is due to familiarity to the sport," explains Mrs. Blikken as she watched one of the girls change speed and deftly drive to the basket.

The reason, she says, for the increasing number of accomplished girls basketball players is that more and more are being encouraged to start playing at an early age.

"It takes a great many hours to develop the skills and techniques," she says.

Most of the girls — all but two are freshmen — played high school ball last year and come to Schoolcraft with a sound background in the game.

Co-captain Mary Kardel, for instance, started for a Novi team that won both league and district titles.

She is one of five girls from Novi and Northville high schools on the team. Others are Lari Neutz, Dawn Spero, Patty Brown and Kim Adams.

Mrs. Blikken knows the value of an early start in athletics. In high school and college, she competed in swimming and diving, field hockey, basketball, lacrosse and softball.

At Brooklyn College, where she attended on an academic scholarship because at that time girls weren't given athletic grants, she was undefeated on the varsity tennis team.

None of the girls on the Schoolcraft team are on a sports tender, a fact Mrs. Blikken likes to play down because other community colleges do offer athletic scholarships.

However, she adds that girls attending Schoolcraft have a shot at financial help if they keep their grades up.

"I get queries from four-year schools from all over the country looking for girls who may deserve a scholarship," she explains.

Schoolcraft opens its season Friday night at Macomb Community College and plays at home Tuesday and Wednesday against Delta and Mott community colleges.

"We're not the tallest team in the league," admits Mrs. Blikken, so the Ocelots are working hard on stamina. She hopes to shuttle well-conditioned athletes on and off the floor in an attempt to wear down the other team.

That would have been impossible last year when Schoolcraft had only six girls. Nevertheless, the Ocelots won seven of 13 games including one win when only three girls showed up.

"This is a sharp, well-executing team," she says.

Gymnasts find going is rough

As far as Debbie Davis is concerned, Sunday night's snowstorm came a few days late.

The Northville gymnastics coach would have been happy if the snow had fallen Thursday afternoon and wiped out that evening's match at Walled Lake Western.

As a matter of fact, a small blizzard on Saturday — just enough to cancel the Dearborn Invitational — would not have hurt either.

As it was, both competitions went on as scheduled and the Mustang girls took it on the chin twice.

Walled Lake Western made huge gains in the uneven bars competition and did well enough elsewhere to take a convincing 72-61 win.

"We bombed out," said Ms. Davis. "Nobody had a very good night. It was one of those things, an off-night for everybody. Maybe we got it off our chests."

It wasn't a complete waste. Natalie Folino won the tumbling with a good score of 5.9 and the floor exercises with a 6.8. Britt Evans took third and fourth in those events.

Esther Fountain's 4.9 was good for first in balance beams and Folino took third.

Sue Kinnard was third and Dana Fountain fifth in vaulting. In the uneven bars, Joan Davis and Trinky Platte had the best Northville showings.

If anything, Saturday's date at the Dearborn Invitational went from bad to worse although the 17th place finish (out of 21 teams) was not indicative of the Mustangs' relative standing.

Several teams were bunched together at that point and Northville was in striking distance of 13th.

There were about 80 girls in each event. Folino finished best, 25th on the balance beam and 32nd in the floor exercises. Theresa Norris was also strong in the floor exercises, placing 37th.

Kinnard was 32nd in vaulting. No one did better than 60th in uneven bars.

Northville now prepares for a hectic meet. The Mustangs have three meets in six days including a home meet Friday afternoon with John Glenn.

Northville spikes Novi in first meet

Northville opened up the volleyball season on the right foot Wednesday by breezing past neighboring rival Novi, 15-5 and 15-0.

The Mustang junior varsity also won, 15-9 and 15-4.

Coach Jane Stubenvoll was happy with her team which played "fundamentally sound" for a season opener.

"We even tried a few new things," she said.

The Mustangs got innovative with a "short-set-and-spike" play. Debbie Maguire got the spike off a perfectly-timed set by Becky Albus.

"Usually the defense doesn't know what's going on until it happens," said Ms. Stubenvoll.

Lauri Hopping served for 11 points during the two games to lead all servers. In the junior varsity match, Susie Heinzen was the leading server, also with 11 points.

Last night, the Mustangs went to Livonia Churchill for their first big meet of the year.

Churchill is the defending league champ. Western Six opponents play each twice with the final standings determining the league champ.

Shelby Hustlers make comeback to dump Pacers

Northville's bantam hockey team lost a tough 3-2 decision to the Shelby Hustlers last Tuesday and were eliminated from the prestigious Silver Stick Tournament.

The Pacers had taken a 2-1 lead on goals by Dave Braeseker and Gregg Williams, but couldn't score again despite several chances late in the game.

Earlier in the week, the Reef Manufacturing-sponsored team, blanked Dearborn Heights, 3-0, in a league game.

Bob Boshoven posted the shutout and Braeseker, Bob Darrow and Kevin Travers each scored goals. Rich Pattison had two assists.

The Pacers are 30-7-4.

Dave Brewer looks for two points

Defeat to Milan hurts Novi hopes

First they were derailed by Dexter. Then they were sidelined by Saline. Friday night, they were marooned by Milan.

Those three losses to Southeastern Conference foes put the Novi basketball team in a rough position as the first half of the league season approaches the end.

The Wildcats are 2-3, which puts them three full games behind Milan, undefeated in league play.

Nevertheless, Coach Ron Flutur is not dejected. "We're getting better," he said "We're improving every game."

Flutur also looks at the next eight or nine games on the schedule — beginning with the Northville contest last night — as a chance to gain a little steam.

"I think we played the toughest two teams on our schedule last week (Milan and Willow Run)," he said.

The Milan game was the big one since a win would have tightened up the league race. The Wildcats had their moments, but Milan prevailed, 73-63.

"They are a darn good team, but they are beatable," said Flutur. "If we could have played consistently ... but they could have said the same thing."

Novi fell behind by 14 points in the first half, but whittled the lead down to eight before the second quarter ended.

Milan, led by Eric Wurster and Curt Dingman, built up a 22-point second-half lead before a Wildcat comeback narrowed the gap to seven.

"Coming back 15 points, that's not too bad," said Flutur. "It's hard to play catch-up basketball. Sometimes you run out of gas."

Wurster, who Flutur called the "premier player in the league", pumped in 24 points and Dingman had 22.

Bill Giorgio had 23 to lead the Wildcats and Bob Bannatz had 12.

That's no surprise since those two have been leading scorers most of the season.

Novi had more field goals than Milan (28-27), but got beat at the foul line where the Wildcats hit just seven of 16 shots. Milan was 19 for 26.

Tuesday, Novi lost to Willow Run which is the only team to beat Milan.

Although the final score indicates a rout, the Wildcats were within two points midway through the third quarter.

Giorgio with 14 and Andy McComas with 11 were the leading scorers. Novi hosts South Lyon Friday and goes to Lakeland on Tuesday.

Lose twice

The Mustangs then cut the lead to two, but couldn't catch up despite getting "every single break" in the last five minutes.

Shining through all of this gloom is Tony Armada who led the team in scoring and rebounding both nights even though he is playing on a sore knee.

Armada pumped in 27 points each night to up his season's average to 21.1. His nine rebounds were tops against Farmington and his seven against Canton tied him with Dan Duey for team honors.

But the support was lacking. Steve Hudolin had 10 points Tuesday and Duey and John Horvath each scored 10 Friday. That was it.

Last night, Northville went against a big, strong Novi team that has never beaten the Mustangs. Friday, Northville tries for its first league win in four starts against a small but quick Walled Lake Western.

Athletes of the Week

JIM STEVENS

Jim Stevens has been one of the top Novi wrestlers for the past month with strong performances in several tournaments including a 20 team meet at Alpena and a 32 team meet at Schoolcraft College.

ED TALBOT

Ed Talbot won one of the most exciting matches of the season Saturday when he defeated Brighton's Frank Buckless, 8-7, in the finals of the Brighton Invitational. Talbot trailed by one with under 20 seconds to go.

OLV boys win

Our Lady of Victory's 7th and 8th grade boys basketball team won twice last week, including a 49-32 win over previously unbeaten St. Bernadines.

Center Jim Harding's 17 points, a tenacious defense along with good floor play and rebounding sparked the win.

OLV boys are now 9-1.

Big ski weekend eyed at Crystal Mountain

A ski weekend at Crystal Mountain near Traverse City is being planned for the end of January.

Girls win 2

Our Lady of Victory's 7th and 8th grade girls upped their season mark to 6-1 with wins last week over St. Mary's of Wayne and St. Thomas Aquinas of Dearborn Heights.

Victory blitzed St. Mary's with a press and led 15-0 after one quarter en route to a 45-14 rout. Seven girls scored led by Leslie Nadeau with 18 and Cindy Martin with 13. It was a different story against St. Thomas Aquinas as the Victory girls went cold in the first half and trailed 26-20. They recovered in the second half to win 51-36. Nadeau again was the leading scorer with 23 and Moira Witmer added 10.

Victory is 2-1 in league play.

Wrestling coach has many jobs

A wrestling coach has enough to do without getting added responsibilities. But Novi coach Russ Gardner found himself needing the traits of a counselor and a mathematician during last week's 33-team meet at Schoolcraft College.

With so many teams, scheduling is a giant headache and figuring out the final standings is almost impossible. Election returns from Chicago are easier to compute.

"Last I knew, we were 18th," laughed Gardner.

Gardner left the figuring to others, but he took the role of advisor seriously. Kevin Mills won his first three bouts Friday, but then was beaten by the number one seed Saturday. He was so discouraged that he wrestled less than brilliantly and lost again.

Gardner had a talk with the fine wrestler and Mills responded by finishing fifth, beating an opponent, 9-1, whom he had only edged 1-0 the day before.

Jim Stevens continued several fine weeks of wrestling by winning four of six matches at Schoolcraft, losing only to the first and third place finishers. He ended up seventh.

Andy Anton, who finished eighth, and Ken Kardel also did well.

Last Thursday, Novi battled Saline. Gardner thought it would be tough and he was right. The Wildcats fell, 40-18.

Jim Stevens, Mills and Tony McCarty all posted early wins to keep Novi in the running. But a tie and a pin by R. J. Bayne were all that could be salvaged out of the last seven matches.

Alma Fisher dies

ALMA FISHER

A memorial service for Alma Anna Fisher will be held at 4 p.m. Sunday at First Presbyterian Church in Northville where she had been an active participant in many areas of church work.

Mrs. Fisher, who was 60, died January 7 at University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor after an illness of six months.

She and her husband, Phillip A., who survives, moved to the community in 1952 and lived at 21501 Currie Road.

Mrs. Fisher was made an honorary member of the Northville Rotary Club in appreciation for her service to the club through the church woman's association.

The Reverend Lloyd Brasure will officiate at the service Sunday. Inurnment will be in the columbarium of the Presbyterian Church.

Memorials may be made to the Living Memorial Fund of First Presbyterian Church of Northville or to the University of Michigan Medical Center Chemotherapy Fund, attention, Dr. Bull, Oncology section, University Hospital, Ann Arbor, 48169.

Mrs. Fisher was born August 12, 1915, in Millboro, South Dakota, to John and Bertha Sohrn.

In addition to her husband, she leaves four sons, John of Belleville, Henry of Northville, Arthur and Robert of California; a sister, Mrs. Dorothea Fuller of Kansas; a brother, John Sohrn of Washington; and 11 grandchildren. A son, Richard preceded her in death.

Casterline Funeral Home may be called for further information.

ALMA FISHER

Snowstorms in that area as well as here delayed funeral arrangements. The Reverend Lloyd Brasure of First Presbyterian Church in Northville is officiating at the service at Casterline Funeral Home, Inc. Interment is scheduled for Riverside Cemetery in Plymouth.

The funeral home may be contacted for further information.

Michael, a high school student, was born March 14, 1959, in Ann Arbor to Jack and Margaret K. (Kisabeth) D'Haene, former Northville residents now living in the east.

He also leaves a grandmother, Mrs. Blanche D'Haene of Plymouth; brothers, David of Northville, George of Westland, Dirk of Pennsylvania; and a sister, Mrs. Jacqueline Avis of South Lyon.

WILLIAM WERNETT

Funeral service was held at 1 p.m. Monday for William P. Wernett, 82, of 46302 West Main, a 25-year resident of Northville and retired owner of Kenmoor Hardware in Detroit.

The Reverend Lloyd Brasure, pastor of First Presbyterian Church of Northville where Mr. Wernett was a member, officiated at the service at Casterline Funeral Home, Inc. Entombment was to be in Glen Eden Memorial Park, Livonia.

Mr. Wernett died January 6 at Botsford General Hospital after an illness of several months.

He was born February 3, 1894, in Detroit to William H. and Helen (Patterson) Wernett. He married the former Hattie Fritz, who survives, 54 years ago.

He lived in Plymouth from 1916 to 1952 when the Wernetts moved to Northville.

He also leaves a son, Bill, Jr., of Northville; granddaughter, Mrs. Sandra Farmer of Canton; two great-grandchildren, Angela and Lisa.

Novi girl plugs PIRGIM

"It's not an easy job informing the student body of the importance of working on consumer problems," says Robin Fox, contact person for the newly formed Public Interest and Research Group in Michigan (PIRGIM) chapter located on the campus of Eastern Michigan University.

"We've never had PIRGIM on campus before and it's difficult to persuade a student body that you need a public interest group."

Ms. Fox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Fox, 24380 Glenda Avenue, Novi, is among 10 other Eastern Michigan students who are organizing a PIRGIM chapter at EMU.

Currently, the PIRGIM group is distributing petitions throughout EMU's campus asking for student support of a voluntary funding system to financially support the chapter. The system would allow one dollar to be appropriated from every EMU student who would like to contribute to PIRGIM.

"We want to stress that the funding program would be strictly voluntary," says Ms. Fox. "Those students who want to contribute would be able to indicate this when they register for classes. The one dollar would be added onto their tuition fees."

According to Ms. Fox, the group will need signatures from 51 percent of the student body because of the nature of the funding system. PIRGIM must present the proposal to the University's Board of Regents for approval after the signatures are obtained.

To obtain the needed signatures, she has organized petition tables all across campus, outside classroom buildings and McKenny Union.

"Student response is not there," she points out. "We're a small group and can't reach the total student body."

Although PIRGIM is not connected with consumer advocate Ralph Nader, Robin says that PIRGIM's ideas are an offshoot of the Nader group that was active in the 1960's.

The money PIRGIM would receive through the voluntary funding program would be used for the PIRGIM lobby located in Lansing. The organization, one of 20 consumer groups in Michigan, is financially supported by contributions and student funds from various college campuses. Approximately $120,000 is received annually to support PIRGIM's eight staff members and one lawyer who work on publicity, campaigns, lawsuits and research for consumer issues in Lansing.

Before Ms. Fox began to organize a PIRGIM chapter on EMU's campus, her lobbying efforts were at the PIRGIM chapter located at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. Previously, she has worked with the public interest group and the Safe Energy Institute on controversial consumer issues such as pollution, the state proposal to ban throw-away bottles, safety systems at nuclear power plants and safe disposal systems for atomic wastes.

The educational benefits and experience Robin has received while working with PIRGIM will, she hopes, be offered to other EMU students after the chapter is organized.

"University students can benefit from our chapter," explains Ms. Fox. "Students can get internships, work study and independent study programs through PIRGIM. A student can use his educational resources to work for PIRGIM in public research and consumer affairs."

She cited other college chapters whose research has directly affected the student body and its college life.

"At East Lansing, for example, the Michigan State PIRGIM chapter produced a directory, listing all doctors in the area, what their examinations cost, what languages the doctors spoke, their attitudes and their backgrounds. They sold approximately 5,000 copies to students."

According to Ms. Fox, this type of research could also be beneficial to EMU students, so she hopes to get PIRGIM firmly established at Eastern before she graduates in April.

After graduation, she will continue her work and involvement with similar consumer and environmental protection efforts. She has a biology major and a conservation minor and will enter the field of land use planning.

Land use planning is a new land conservation area implemented in only two states — Michigan and California — so far.

Here's one option you can't get from a car dealer.

Real rustproofing. A dealer can't order it from the factory. Because it has to be done after the car is completely assembled.

Some car dealers will do a so-called "rustproofing" job, but that's about all. They might even say it's the "same as Ziebart." That's not true. Because they don't have the training, equipment or know-how to give you complete rustproofing.

At Ziebart Rustproofing we've got the tools, the sealant and the technicians to do it right.

If you're buying a new car, you should check us out. Why not give us a call?

Post sets memorial for Hart

Grand River Post 1519, Veterans of Foreign Wars located in Novi will conduct a memorial service and draping of the charter January 19 in memory of Philip Hart. Senator Hart, who died in Washington, D.C. December 26 began his long affiliation with the Grand River Post soon after he came to Michigan and was a continuous member thereafter.

The Grand River post moved from Detroit to Novi last year.

Forecast: expensive weather.

So far, this winter has been colder than last winter—much colder. And there's no avoiding what it's doing to your energy bill: When the mercury drops, your use of energy goes up—as a result—your bill goes up too.

Extremely low temperatures combined with an increase in the cost of natural gas from our suppliers are making this winter unusually expensive. So now, more than ever, you need to use energy wisely. Dial down. Turning your thermostat back from 72° to 68° will help you save. Dialing down further can save you even more. And so can insulation.

Expensive weather ahead, and there's no way around it. So let's get through it—together. Our responsibility will be the energy you need. Your responsibility will be the energy you use.

Court awards are driving up insurance cost

All of those huge court settlements you've been reading about over the past few years are starting to make big demands on taxpayers' pocketbooks. They've cost insurance companies so much money that they are reluctant to insure municipalities.

And where coverage is made available, the cost of insurance is soaring.

Take Northville, for example. Invitation for bids on city liability insurance recently went begging. Nobody wanted to offer the insurance, even though the city's current carrier readily admits Northville is a good risk. Its claims over the years have been very minimal, said Les Bowden, an insurance agent who last week told councilmen that the reluctance to provide Northville with liability insurance is by no means a local problem.

Most other communities are experiencing the same kind of problem, explained Councilman Paul Folino, himself an insurance agent.

"It's just no longer a buyer's market," said Bowden, agent for the city's present insurance carrier. Bowden twisted arms in trying to get a bid for Northville — succeeding only in getting a tentative proposal.

But even if he is successful in negotiating a policy, city officials are aware the cost will be substantially greater than what it is presently paying for liability insurance.

It appears the cost will increase from the 1975 cost of $880 to $8,200. What's more, the deductible may increase from $10,000 to $25,000.

The city's current policy expires January 12.

"They're (liability insurance carrier) are afraid to provide it because of the huge settlements courts have been awarding in recent years," said Folino. "It's gotten so bad that a million dollar settlement doesn't even make front page news anymore," said Folino.

Other insurances are less troublesome in obtaining, but even these are increasing.

Low bid of Citizens Insurance Company, represented by Insurance Exchange Agency, which was awarded the contract, came in at $9,065, up from $5,122.

(Folino, who also bid a State Farm price of $9,084; abstained from voting upon permission of the council).

Bowden was the lone bidder on the institutional policy and workmen's compensation and was awarded contracts for both. The institutional bid (Wolverine Insurance Company), as represented by Bowden, came in at $9,284 — up from the 1975 cost of $5,114, while the workmen's compensation bid of Les Bowden & Associates came in at $14,284 — up from the 1975 cost of $13,157.

NOCTI re-elects Dean Diebel

Schoolcraft College's dean of applied sciences, Ted Diebel, has been elected to serve a second term as chairman of the board of trustees for the National Occupational Competency Testing Institute (NOCTI).

Dean Diebel was elected during the meeting of the consortium of states for competency testing at the annual convention of the American Vocational Association (AVA) in Houston, Texas, in December.

A life member of the AVA, the dean has served on the NOCTI board in various capacities, including secretary-treasurer, since it was founded in 1969 through a federal grant.

NOCTI is a non-profit corporate organization which serves all 50 states in an effort to upgrade teacher qualifications in trade, industrial and technical education. Currently, NOCTI is striving to develop national standards for levels of competency to be achieved by post-secondary vocational-technical education programs.

Diebel has been at Schoolcraft since 1973 and is responsible for the college's career programs in business, health, public service and technical fields. He holds a bachelor of arts degree from Michigan State University and master of arts degree from the University of Michigan.

Snow contest set at Novi

A "snow sculpture contest" is on the docket for the Novi High School Conservation Club.

Various groups, classes and clubs are expected to participate in the event which is scheduled to take place when there is enough snow and the Conservation Club gives the okay.

The Conservation Club has Rick Trudeau as its sponsor.

Village Oaks Librarian Susan Reddy demonstrates the use of a new video tape machine to student Barbara Freeman. The machine was purchased thanks to a contribution by VOICE, the parent teacher organization from Village Oaks. The video tape recorder enables a teacher to film students at work individually or in groups and then to replay it instantly. In the short time the school has had the machines, book reports, book "commercials", playground safety messages, assemblies and Christmas caroling have been recorded.

'Table top' of this prized Novi antique lifts up to reveal four rows of musical glasses

Supervisor to speak here

What are the plans for construction of the proposed township hall complex?

This and other questions will be answered January 20 when Northville Township Supervisor Wilson Grier speaks to the Northville Chamber of Commerce.

WILSON GRIER

The 7:30 p.m. meeting, which is open to the public, will be held at the Northville City Hall.

Other questions to be discussed by the new supervisor include:

What areas within the township are under consideration for single family units?

Where are the sewer and water connections in the township?

Where does your tax money go?

Related topics for discussion will also include zoning, federal government subsidies, and budgets.

The guest speaker will conduct a question and answer period as well.

Born in Columbus, Georgia, Grier has been a resident of Michigan for the past 12 years. A graduate of Eastern Michigan University with a bachelor of science degree, he served as a captain in the U.S. Marine Corps.

Prior to his election as township supervisor, he was employed as manager of the Park Haus restaurant in the township. He retains a financial interest in the business today.

Member of the Masons, he also serves on the Schoolcraft Foundation board.

"This will be a meeting you can't afford to miss, especially if you live in the township," said Chamber President Ann Roy. "It's one of many public service meetings that the Northville Chamber of Commerce will be sponsoring."

Greeks held wine in great esteem. They cultivated their grapes carefully and drank their wine with ceremony. Their literature tells a great deal about the drinking customs of the Greeks. Did you know that they almost always mixed their wine with water except for a few undiluted mouthfuls that were saved for sipping at the end of the meal? Some people think that such watered down wine would be undrinkable for us. They think it was the Greek concern for moderation that caused them to water their wine. Others speculate that they liked the taste of water and were so proud of their springs that they would compare waters from different springs much as wine connoisseurs compare vineyards.

We at GOOD TIME PARTY STORE, 567 Seven Mile Road, 349-1477 are proud of the fine wines we carry. Before you make any purchases — come and see our complete selection. We also handle genuine draft beer in 1/4 and 1/2 barrels and have all the equipment necessary to serve keg beer at your next party. Make the evening very easy by serving hot sandwiches, sub-marines or ham and cheese sandwiches prepared by us. Open: Mon. thru Sat. 9 a.m.-10 p.m., Sun. Noon-6 p.m.

WINE WISDOM: Proper after dinner drinks are brandy, cognac, and liqueurs.

Performer carefully lifts one of the old glasses

Glasses echo musical past in home of a Novi resident

It looks a little like an antique stand-up writing table.

But flip up its handsome mahogany top and one of the most unusual musical instruments ever built pops into view.

Called a "Grand Harmonicon," it is the prize possession of Kenneth Wilson of Novi, director of collections at Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn.

It is similar to an instrument housed in the Ford museum.

Patented in 1825 by Francis H. Smith, Wilson's Harmonicon was purchased several years ago from a family in Delaware. Today it is a treasured conversation piece in the Wilson living room.

Wilson played the instrument during an open house at his home Sunday afternoon.

Playing the instrument means rubbing the tops of 28 glasses to produce soft, plaintive music similar to that of a violin. The glasses look like large wine goblets, whose stems fit into holes in the Harmonicon's sounding board.

Notes are produced by the glasses' shape and size, not by filling them with water as were earlier and later vintage instruments.

Lingering notes — deep or high, according to the size of the glass — are achieved by passing moistened finger tips around the rims, explained Wilson. Dry fingers produce little more than chilling, non-pleasing sounds.

Wilson's Harmonicon contains 28 glasses — more than the standard variety and more than any other known to be in existence. The Harmonicon at Henry Ford, which is on display now in the musical instrument section of the museum, has 24 glasses — although some of the glasses are broken.

The Grand Harmonicon was the top of the Harmonicon line. Lesser expensive models having a set of 16 glasses sold for $18 at the time of manufacture.

Having researched the history of the Harmonicon and other musical glasses, Wilson explained to his guests that the vibrations created by the glasses are said to have created problems for the player. Reportedly several of its early performers had to abandon the instrument "because the continual vibrations in the fingertips caused serious nervous disorders, and in the last quarter of the eighteenth century some unsuccessful attempts were made to substitute the use of pads, violin bows, and key-boards."

Musical glasses, he explained, were not seriously accepted in the world of music until the mid-1770's, although a C. G. Helmond of Silesia had played concertos on glasses with a string accompaniment about 1732.

"Richard Puckeridge is generally credited with having introduced and popularized the instrument in England. In 1744 he seems to have caused a sensation in London by giving a concert on 'glasses as large as bells', and he continued to give concerts throughout England and Ireland until his death in a fire in 1759."

Composer Christoph Gluck claimed to have invented the instrument An advertisement for his performance in the mid 1700's read:

"A Concerto upon Twenty-six Drinking Glasses, tuned with Spring Water, accompanied with the whole band, being a new instrument of his own invention; upon which he performs whatever may be done on a Violin or Harpsichord, and thereby hopes to satisfy the Curious, as well as Lovers of Musick."

While in London, Benjamin Franklin heard a demonstration of the instrument and later introduced his own

Novi Highlights

Exchange students speak 'Plains doesn't compare'

By JEANNE CLARKE

Parent Advisory Council

Special guests for the regular meeting of tonight (Wednesday) are the exchange students who are currently attending the Novi School district. They will be discussing and comparing the schooling available in this country with what is available in their native countries. The meeting will be held in the high school library at 7:30 p.m. Plans are also being made to have a special speaker from Youth Assistance at the February meeting.

Area Happenings

Special guests this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Warren of Haggerty were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Malone of Ames, Oklahoma. They are the American parents of Carlos Cobo of Columbia, South America. Mr. and Mrs. Warren are host parents of Armando Cobo, exchange student, who is the brother of Carlos, and in this way the boys were able to spend part of the holidays together.

Mrs. Hildren Hunt and Mrs. Alice Bigelow visited last Thursday with Mrs. Lanny Henderson, former resident of Novi who is now living in Plymouth.

The Bob Hartson family of Malott was pleasantly surprised recently by a visit from Mr. Hartson's brother Craig of Huntington, New York, whom he hadn't seen in eight years.

Mrs. Dollie Alegnani has been busy hosting several parties for her friends starting with 12 guests for a New Year's Eve party. On Monday, she hosted her pinocle club for a noon luncheon and on Thursday afternoon six ladies were present at her home for lunch and to spend the afternoon sewing.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Burton and family have returned from three week vacation during the holidays. They visited former 11 Mile road residents Mr. and Mrs. Carl Evans and daughter Cherie at Almagorda, New Mexico. They continued on to Scottsdale, Arizona to visit Mrs. Burton's sister Mrs. Mike Cook and then to visit other relatives in Los Angeles.

Richard Pierce has returned to Luxora, Arkansas where he is teaching Business Education at the Luxora High School after visiting his parents the Owen Pierce family on 12½ Mile Road.

Danny Munro of Taft Road has returned home from visiting former residents the Jim Lynn family now living in Culleoka, Tennessee.

Mr. and Mrs. William Fox had as their guests their daughter April and her family, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Pastor and three-year-old Derk, from Houston, Texas. While here they were able to spend some time with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Elie (Holly) of Clark Street and left after New Year's Day.

Novi Jaycees

At the Jaycee meeting last Tuesday held at the Holiday Inn final plans were made for the D.S.A. breakfast. Announcement of the directory distribution indicates a late January or early February release. This will be available to any citizen of Novi at no charge and will have even better coverage this year of business services available. Plans are already underway with the selection of Steve DuLac as the chairman of the Annual Gala Days.

Orchard Hills Booster Club

There will be a Board meeting January 18 at 7:30 p.m. at the Orchard Hills School. The date for the special treat given by the club to the children of the Orchard Hills School will be January 21 with performances of the magic show scheduled for 9:30 and 10:30 a.m. All parents are asked to remember 7:30 p.m. February 3,

By NANCY DINGELDEY

"Jimmy Carter's peanuts are too expensive..."

So said Carolyn Morehead after a stop in Plains, Georgia on the way home from a two week holiday in Florida. "It's so out of the way it's easy to understand why newsmen don't want to go there."

Carolyn said she planned to buy some peanuts from the most famous peanut farmer of all for souvenirs... but Carter goobers are just too expensive.

One might think Plains was straight from an Erskine Caldwell novel from her description with Carolyn adding, "Compared to Plains, Wixom looks terrific!"

The town is unbelievable... Carolyn said the six or eight commercial buildings in town looked like the fake storefronts in a western movie.

And brother Billy's gas station — "It's the filthiest, messiest hovel going — and besides, he charges 10 cents more per gallon for his gas. You'd think Jimmy would make him clean it up."

The Moreheads toured the town and visited with Cousin Hugh in his antique shop. Cousin Hugh was quite affable and the shop very nice said Carolyn.

The railroad depot was another stop for the Moreheads who reported a rocking chair was parked out on the station platform. They were told the chair was for "Miss Lillian" when she holds her daily "afternoon court" with the townsfolk and tourists.

Only "Miss Lillian" didn't make her appearance — she was hospitalized with her arthritic condition. But the Moreheads had a chance to view the Carter memorabilia housed inside the station.

Actually Plains was only one short stop in a fun-filled vacation. The family visited Disney World, actually managing to make it through the fantasyland before the really large crowds gathered later in Christmas week. It was on to Sea World, the Everglades and all the sights of central Florida before heading to the Keys and some warmer weather.

Christmas was spent with the Fran Hursts of Maple Road in the Keys — they had arrived a week earlier with the Moreheads managing to find accommodations at the same motel.

Carolyn said Christmas in Florida is not like it is up here — only the "Yankees" decorate their homes. Even the local stores are sans decorations. But being firm northerners, both families found small trees, set them up in the motel rooms and then duly decorated by the kids.

Granted there wasn't all that much sunning and swimming but, said Carolyn, "It sure was nice being able to walk down a street and not freeze."

Local boy's big winner in contest

Matt Murphy, 9, of 42135 Westmeath Court, Northville, last week was announced as a national grand prize winner in a snowman puzzle contest in the Cappy Dick column of The Detroit News.

A fourth grade student at Winchester school, he has participated in only two Cappy Dick activities when he won his recognition, his father, Thomas Murphy, reports.

Matt also is winner of a local prize in the same contest. His national entry was judged one of the five best in the competition.

TAKE NOTICE that a special assessment roll has been prepared for the purpose of defraying the special assessment district's share of the cost of the following described public improvement:

Road improvements to 13 Mile Road between Novi Road and Meadowbrook Road, said improvements to consist of grading, drainage, and vertical and horizontal alignment improvements followed by stabilized aggregate base and asphalt surfacing.

The said special assessment roll is on file for public examination with the City Clerk at the City Offices, 43315 Sixth Gate, Novi, Michigan, and any objections to said special assessment roll may be made in writing prior to the close of the hearing to review said special assessment roll.

TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the City Council and the City Assessor will meet at the Novi Middle School Cafetorium, 25299 Taft Road, Novi, Michigan, at 8:00 o'clock p.m., Prevailing Eastern Time, (or as soon thereafter as the same may be reached) on Monday, January 24, 1977, for the purpose of reviewing said special assessment roll.

version of it in America.

Because international patents meant nothing in the early 19th Century, Francis Smith managed to get an American patent for his Grand Harmonicon on April 7, 1825.

In addition to the Grand Harmonicon in his home, Wilson also has a copy of the book of instructions that were given the original purchasers of the instruments.

Currently Wilson and cohorts at Henry Ford are attempting to find replacements for the broken glasses in the museum instrument. The museum's own glass-blowing experts may attempt to make them.

Upon reading Smith's early catalogue and noting that he would provide replacements for just a few cents, "a lady a while back wondered why we were having all the fuss about making new ones. 'Why don't you send an order for a replacement?'," she asked seriously.

"I thanked her and said I didn't think Mr. Smith had the same address."

CITY OF NOVI—NOTICE OF ENACTMENT ORDINANCE No. 18.248

Amendment to Zoning Ordinance of City of Novi

THE CITY OF NOVI ORDAINS:

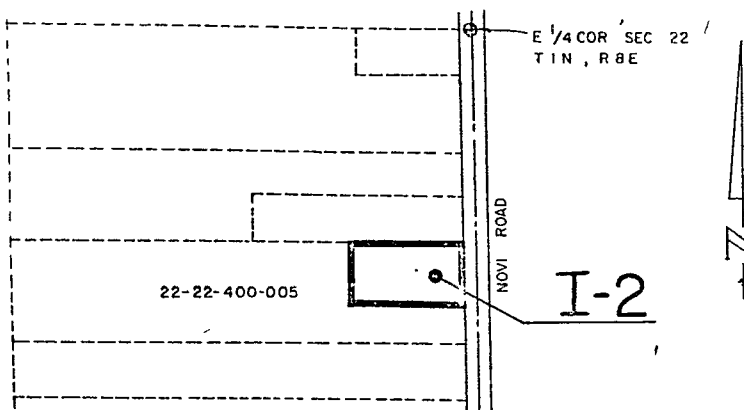

PART I. That Ordinance No. 75-18, known as the Zoning Ordinance of the City of Novi, is hereby amended by the amending of the Zoning Map as indicated on Zoning Map No. 248 attached hereto and made a part of this Ordinance.

PART II. CONFLICTING PROVISIONS REPEALED. Any Ordinance or parts of any ordinance in conflict with any of the provisions of this Ordinance are hereby repealed.

PART III. WHEN EFFECTIVE. The provisions of this Ordinance are hereby declared to be immediately necessary for the preservation of the public peace, health and safety and are hereby ordered to take effect ten (10) days after final enactment and publication.

Made and Passed by the City Council of the City of Novi, Michigan, this 5th day of January, 1977.

Gilbert Henderson, Mayor
Geraldine Stipp, Clerk

To Rezone a portion of the SE ¼ of Section 22, T.1N. R.8E., said portion designated as the North 185' of the East 350' of Parcel 22-22-400-005 on the City of Novi tax rolls.

Thursday, for a curriculum workshop open to both teachers and parents of Orchard Hills students.

Novi Blue Star Mothers

President Winnie Dobek accompanied by Hospital Chairman Lucy Needham visited the Veterans Hospital in Ann Arbor last week to take down the decorations from the Christmas season. This group will not be having any meetings until the first part of March.

Novi Lioness

The Novi Lioness group will be meeting at 8 p.m., Monday, January 17 at the home of Marsha Toth. Reports will be heard regarding the contacts with the Convalescent homes and other service projects. They will be making plans for the coming year at this meeting.

V.O.I.C.E.

Mark January 14 and 20 on your calendar as VOICE will be sponsoring workshops entitled "Television and its effect on you, your children and society." The program will be presented by Dennis Lampron, kindergarten teacher from Novi Woods Elementary School. Mr. Lampron is conducting these workshops through the school district and VOICE believes his research will prove enlightening to those attending. The first one will be January 14 from 1-3 p.m. at the Village Oaks School Library. The second one will also be the general member meeting on Thursday, January 24 from 7:30-9:30 p.m. in the Library.

Novi Cub Scout Pack No. 329

A reminder of the Clinton Valley Council sponsored fishing at Kensington Park on Saturday, January 15 at 9 a.m. The committee meeting will be January 20 at the home of Jim Lumpkin at 8 p.m.

Novi Welcome Wagon

Kitchen Witchery will have a luncheon at Marilyn's home on January 13. Call Jan at 478-0267. Couples bridge A & B will have a combined session at 7:30 p.m. January 15 at the Village Oaks Clubhouse. Daytime bridge will be on January 13. Call Sharon 349-2209. Mahjong will be January 17 at 7:15 p.m. Call Jerri 349-2276. This group is still looking for substitute or regular players.

Daytime craft group will meet January 18 to make raffia dolls. Call Sue at 349-1161. Exercise groups are meeting Tuesday and Thursday from 9:30-10:30 a.m. at the Novi United Methodist Church. Sitters are available. Call Paule at 349-3926. Tennis is every Tuesday from 10 a.m.-noon at the Western Racquet Club. Call 349-3368. Decorating Committee for the Spring Fling will meet January 13. Call Barb 349-6037.

NESPO

Rollerskating is being planned for January 18 at 6:30 p.m. at the Lakeview Roller Rink in Brighton. This is a family project with all members of the family welcome. Each family is responsible for its own transportation. Call President Diane Canup for any other information at 348-1822. NESPO members urge anyone in the community to help the school save Campbell Soup labels which will be used towards audio visual items in the media center. They are also saving Post Cereal box tops to get a trampoline for the Physical Education department.

Novi Rebekah Lodge

The Lodge will be resuming meetings following the holidays with a January 13 session. Plans are being made for the installation later in the month. Visitation will resume in February.

Novi Senior Citizens

The first meeting of the new year was held today (Wednesday) at the Novi United Methodist Church, 41671 Ten Mile. It was gratifying to have so many out for the covered dish luncheon. Table decorations were little marshmallow snowmen made by Wilma Wagonis, Dolly Alegnani and Laura Grissby, assisted by president Alice Tank and her husband Louis. Hostesses in charge of the luncheon were Mary Kal Hill, Peg Wilcox and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hughes.

Several of the members received a lovely gift in a surprise drawing given by the president. There was a member of the Lake Area Multi Purpose Center of Oakland County present who distributed the senior citizen discount books. Anyone not receiving one should contact the Novi Elementary School located at 26360 Novi Road or call 349-3780. Craft classes will resume on January 19 at 9 a.m. Contact Mrs. Albina Kraft for information as to materials to bring.

Novi Girl Scouts

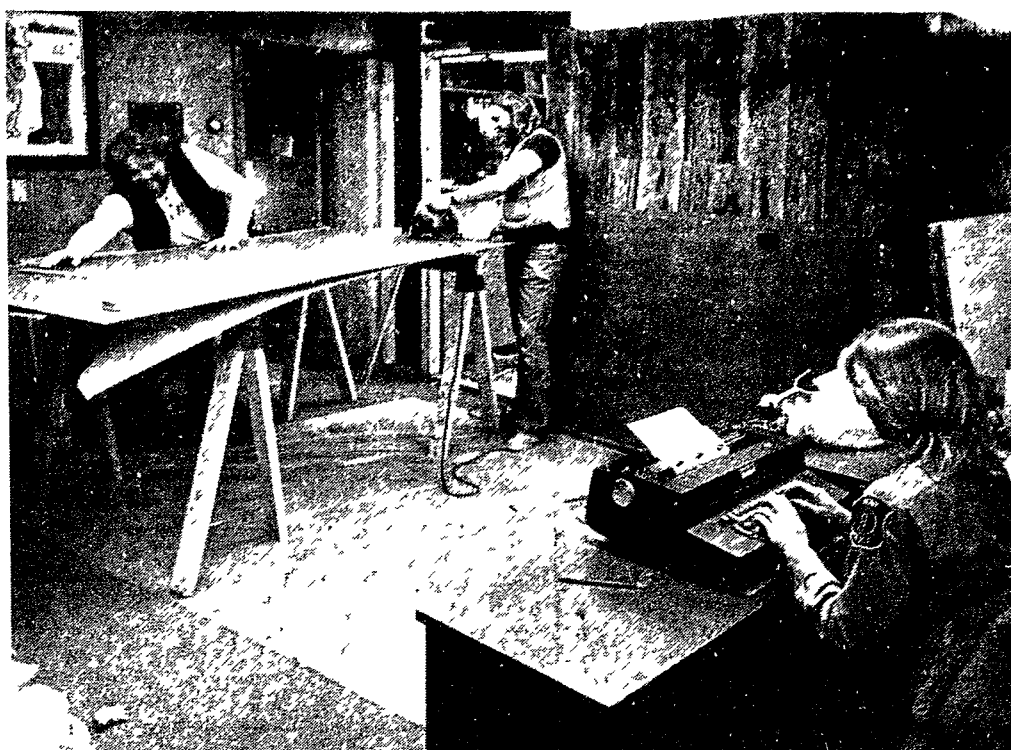

The leaders' meeting was held at Novi Woods Elementary with discussion of the upcoming cookie sale scheduled for January 22-29. Brownie groups will be participating in the cookie sale this year as they did in the calendar sale. However, they may not go door to door. Plans were made for Brownie leaders to attend the badge workshop on January 14. Looking ahead, discussion was held regarding the annual Girl Scout Banquet scheduled this year for sometime in April.

Novi Youth Assistance Committee

The next meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. January 19 at the Novi Youth Assistance Office. Many projects are being developed by the General Citizens committee and there is a need for additional workers on many committees. These needs will be presented at this meeting, several new members are expected to be present. The film "Children in Trouble" will be presented, followed by questions and answers regarding Kathy Miller's job as caseworker in the Novi area. She is available for either young people or parents who wish to discuss the Youth Assistance program.

Parents without Partners

Activities for the month of January have been going on with cards on January 4, bowling on January 7, and ice skating January 9. The first general meeting of the new year was last Friday at the Northville Park Haus with Northville Mayor Allen as the guest speaker. This Friday plans have been made for dinner at Napoleons. Call 349-7068 for reservations. Everyone is reminded of the Metro Dance, with Novi-Northville as hosts for the "Frosty Frolic" at 9 p.m. at Bonnie Brook Golf Course. On Sunday there will be coffee and conversation. Call 349-6397 for details. Cards will be January 18. Call 349-0295. Family Skiing is planned for Wednesday, January 19 at Kandahar Ski Club near Brighton. Call 349-7068 for information.

Traffic partitions

Leon Lusk (from left) and Tim Bell from the Novi DPW work on one of the plywood walls being used as partitioning in the new traffic bureau building located just north of the police department building on Novi Road.

The building was the public library building before it was vacated when the new library was constructed. Looking on as the work progresses is Edie DeForge, a clerk in the traffic bureau.

Formerly married women meet

A new YWCA club for formerly married women has been organized with members from Northville, Plymouth, Livonia and Westland. It meets every other Thursday from 7:15 to 9 p.m. at Rosedale Gardens Presbyterian Church under sponsorship of the YWCA of Western Wayne County.

Interested area women are invited to visit to decide if the group meets their needs. It was formed to provide a non-dating, on-going experience where women relate to women, the YWCA announces.

Dr. Betty J. DeLawrence will speak on "Menopause—relationship of the body to the mind" at the January 20 meeting.

A wine and cheese party is scheduled for February 3, attendance is set for February

17. "Transactional Analysis" with Les Zalewski will be March 3

Planned for later dates are "Single Parent Family Communication" by the Reverend Don Elly; a cardio-pulmonary-resuscitation demonstration, self-defense and "Women Alone Survival" by Peggy Price.

Emergencies

Police, fire and medical emergencies in Novi should be reported by calling the special emergency number, 349-HELP.

Regular non-emergency police calls can be made to 349-2444. Traffic bureau calls can be made to 349-9590 from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday through Friday. General services calls including those for detectives, concerning juvenile problems, and permits can be made to 349-2983 Monday through Saturday from 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

The fire chief should be called at 349-4300 and the police chief at 349-2444

Kent Metropark farm open weekends only

Kensington Children's Farm at Kensington Metropark near New Hudson is now open "week-ends only."

Hours are 10:30 to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday through the winter season, with a special charge of 75 cents per person — which includes a sleighride or hayride.

Visitors will also have an opportunity to see and pet the farm animals. Lincoln Friend, general manager, stated this new "week-ends only" policy was adopted after a busy week-end of enthusiastic patrons visited this new Farm attraction in southeastern Michigan. For details phone 685-9105 (Milford).

The Great Collectors ARE MAKING THEIR DREAMS AT 20% SAVINGS

ON MFRS SUGG RETAIL PRICES

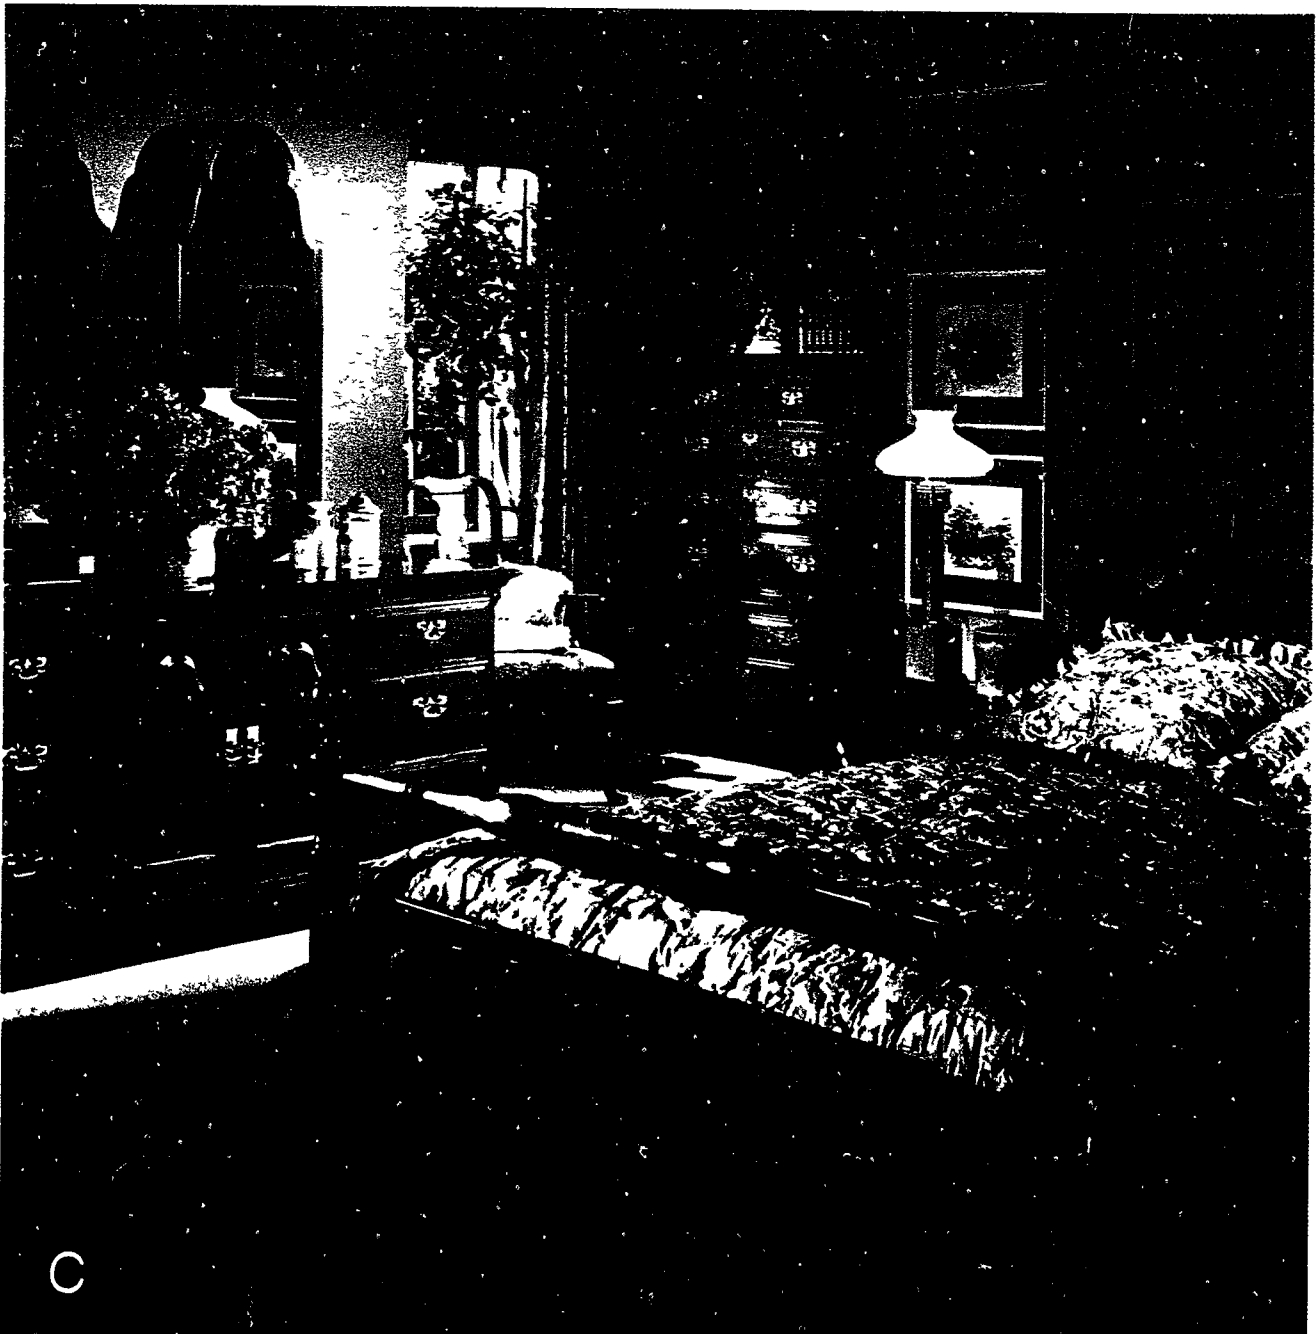

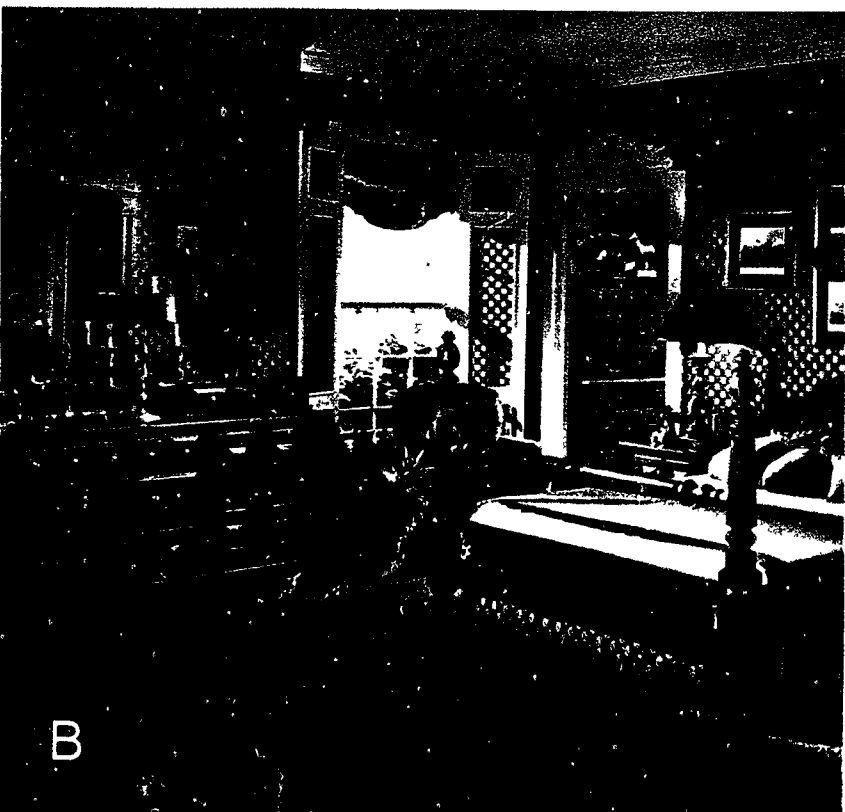

What is the look you want for your bedroom? Rustic and rather casual? Or maybe you'd like a slightly sophisticated styling. Or the beauty of an all-out elegant look! Take your pick—because right now you can have the look you love (whatever it is) at sale savings!

Yes, we're offering you three of the most-wanted bedroom groupings from our Pennsylvania House collection—at 20% off!

More than beautiful—these designs are crafted with the luxurious "extras" found only in the very finest furniture.

Like velvet-lined jewelry trays in every dresser. And slide-out trays behind dresser doors. And drawers that are hand-fitted so they glide open at a touch. Drawer interiors are waxed and buffed for a snag-free finish—safe even for your most delicate lingerie!

Why buy anything less than the best—when the best is now yours at 20% savings?

COME TRUE WITH PENNSYLVANIA HOUSE

THERE'S A SPARE BEDROOM INSIDE EVERY LUXURIOUS "AND-A-BED"® SOFA! MANY FEATURE FABRICS OF HERCULON® FIBER.

You no longer need settle for a sleeper sofa that's not exactly the look you want. Because these sleeper sofas are styled just like the designs you'll find in our regular line of Pennsylvania House sofas. Better yet, the seating comfort is just as great—and that's something you can't count on with other sleeper sofas. We show only two of the ten beautiful styles from our collection—all on sale! Every one opens to a firm, resilient mattress—most in your choice of full or queen size. There's even a headrest that adjusts for TV viewing. You can choose from our range of pre-coordinated Concord fabrics—many are of Herculon® fiber for stain release and long wear.

BE A GREAT COLLECTOR, EVEN ON A BUDGET!

START WITH A FEW TREASURED ACCENTS, from $85 to $165 MFRS. SUGG. RETAIL PRICES, FROM $109 to $209

Budget-watchers, here's sound advice.

Don't buy so-called "bargain" furniture. Pennsylvania House may cost you a little more to begin with (not much more now, though, when it's 20% off!), but it will cost you much less in the long run. Because the fine pieces you buy today will be just as beautiful years from now—even more so as the woods mellow with age!

If you must limit your investment, buy a few pieces to begin with—every piece shown here is an American Traditional masterpiece of solid cherry. You can keep adding to these pieces—as slowly or as quickly as you can afford—throughout the years. You simply couldn't make a wiser investment—even at regular prices. At 20% off, these are buys you can't afford to miss.
