Anti-prison rally slated Saturday

Governor eyes site for prison

Governor William Milliken made a surprise visit to Northville Monday morning where he took a tour of a proposed and controversial site for a 500-inmate medium-security prison. With the governor were Perry Johnson, the state corrections department head who is pushing the vacant Wayne County Child Development Center as a prison, and Northville's newly-elected state senator, Robert Geake, one of several local politicians opposing the plan. Geake said that Milliken thought the center had the "potential" for a prison. Milliken arrived by car at 9:30 a.m. for what he said was his first look at the facility on the east side of Sheldon Road, north of Five Mile Road. The governor, who is touring all of the proposed sites in Michigan, made no commitments but said he would make the final recommendation for solving the "desperate need" to ease prison crowding. After the tour, Milliken visited with township officials who rent office space at the center and then took a helicopter tour of the township before flying to Olivet to inspect tornado damage. Afterwards, Geake said the helicopter trip might graphically show how much of the township is now committed to government use. One-third of Northville Township —

5,000 citizens expected

A gigantic "Peoples' Rally" to dramatize grass roots opposition to plans for a maximum security state prison in Northville Township will be staged here Saturday morning.

The outdoor rally, which sponsors hope will attract 5,000 people or more, is to be held on the Wayne County Child Development Center grounds adjacent to the Northville Township Hall.

It is the Child Development Center where the state has proposed to establish a 600-inmate prison.

The center is located on Sheldon Road, between Five and Six Mile roads. "It looks like we've struck out at the county level, and now state officials, including Governor (William) Milliken, seem intent on putting a prison in Northville," said Blake Northrop, a spokesman for the Western Wayne County Residents Association opposed to the planned prison.

"Politicians haven't paid much attention to what our committee has been saying, so now it's time that the muscle of the people be felt. Only if we show a united front will politicians be persuaded to listen."

"People power" is essential, Northrop said.

The rally is to be held at 10 a.m. — a half-hour after the annual Jaycee Easter Egg Hunt to be held in Cass Benton Park.

Jaycees moved up the time of the egg hunt, which attracts hundreds of children and their parents, to permit these same people to attend the rally.

Fifteen thousand flyers inviting citizens from throughout Western Wayne County are being circulated.

Meanwhile, prison opponents have stepped up their letter-writing to state and county officials.

Deep concern that the prison is no longer "just talk but a very real likelihood" was expressed this past week by Mayor A. M. Allen of Northville, who last week joined Northville Township Supervisor Wilson Grier and Congressman Carl Pursell in meeting with Governor Milliken.

"I'm very worried," said Allen. "The governor seemed to be saying that although he recognizes our concerns the needs of the state for more prison facilities may be more important."

Allen said the governor appeared to be impressed with the fact that the northwestern portion of Wayne County already has a tremendous portion of its land committed to governmental institutions and park lands.

Among these are the Detroit House of Corrections — both the women's and men's divisions, Plymouth Center for NORTHVILLE JAYCEES will conduct their annual Easter egg hunt one-half hour earlier than planned Saturday. The hunt will be held in Cass Benton Park (same place as before) beginning at 9:30 a.m. sharp. The hunt was changed to 9:30 a.m. so as not to conflict with the anti-prison rally scheduled at 10 a.m. As in the case of the rally, the hunt will be held "come rain or shine." Four divisions are planned: a category for preschoolers; one for second and third graders; a third for third and fourth graders; and a fourth for fifth and sixth graders. Don't forget, the hunt starts promptly at 9:30 a.m.

A PROPOSED 1977-78 City of Northville budget is to be presented to councilmen later this week by City Manager Steven Walters. Once councilmen have received the preliminary proposal and studied it, a series of budget sessions will be held to refine it.

A PUBLIC HEARING is set for 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 12, for residents of Northville Township by its board of trustees, Supervisor Wilson Grier announced Tuesday, to discuss termination by the City of Northville of joint services. The hearing will be at township offices on Sheldon Road.

For school superintendent

'Perpetual' contract under fire

A "perpetually renewing" contract for the Northville superintendent of schools came under fire again Monday night as the school board met to evaluate its chief administrator.

Under question is the board's practice of giving Superintendent Raymond Spear a three-year contract that is automatically renewed each year unless the board gives written notice well in advance.

At Monday's study session, the board received petitions bearing the names of 1160 people who objected to the "perpetual three-year contract."

R. C. Barron, a spokesman for the group, stressed that the petitions were not an "evaluation of Spear's performance" or "recall petitions".

The people who signed, he said, objected to the nature of the contract. "We think we have a cross section of community concern," said Barron.

The controversy is not a new one. Last year, the school board approved Spear's contract by a 4-3 vote even though all seven members gave the superintendent high marks on his evaluation.

The three who voted against the contract — Robert Mandell, Martin Rinehart and Karen Wilkinson — had problems with the automatic renewal.

Rinehart and Mrs. Wilkinson are still on the board as are John Hobart and Roger Nieuwkoop, who voted for the contract.

The three other board members — Chris Johnson, Marjorie Sliger and Douglas Whitaker — were not on the board at this time last year.

Technically, the board is to notify Spear by April 1 if his contract is not to be renewed. Otherwise, the contract is extended for three more years. If the contract is not extended, Spear would still have two years remaining on his contract.

Spear waived the April 1 deadline this year to give the board time to complete its evaluation.

Monday night, Nieuwkoop — who chairs the personnel committee — said he had evaluation sheets from each board member grading Spear on 21 subject areas.

Green thumbs up!

That's the word from Hans P. Lahr of Northville, coordinator for Northville Senior Citizens — Wayne County Office on Aging.

According to Lahr, final approval for use of a five acre garden plot in Northville Township has been secured from Equity Resources, Inc., owners of the property on the west side of Sheldon Road, north of Sxi Mile Road.

The property is entirely fenced, said Lahr, and is ideally suited for gardening.

Free garden plots are to be provided local senior citizens, with NorthvilleRotariansponsoring the costing of plowing and discing, he said.

Already 16 applications have been received from Northville senior citizens who want to plant gardens. Reservations will be accepted until April 15 from Northville residents. Interested persons should call Lahr at 349-1300.

Flash flooding

Flash flooding caused by spring's heaviest rainfall blocked Center Street north of Randolph Street (above) and at Cady Street for some two hours late Saturday afternoon and early evening. "There just wasn't much we could do about it," said Assistant DPW superintendent Ted Mapes. The problem probably will continue until the planned Randolph Drain improvement at North Center and construction of a new storm drain on South Center become a reality, he said. Both projects are on the drawing boards. Photo by McFerran Studios.

Hearing on water line cutoff adjourned by city a second time

Cut-off of city water to township residents remains on the planning boards this week although the Northville City Council delayed its decision until after meeting with the attorney for township water users.

Public hearing on the planned cut-off was resumed Monday and then adjourned again until April 18.

This week's adjournment followed more public comment and a report by City Attorney Philip Ogilvie that the city could legally discontinue servicing township water customers.

The city has notified township customers of its intention to discontinue service on October 1 unless the township constructs new lines to replace and improve existing water lines.

Cut-off of the water service to township customers is planned because council insists lines servicing these customers are grossly inadequate, are in constant need of repair, are potentially hazardous to health, and because under the law the city cannot special assess township properties for installation of new lines.

An attorney for some of the township property owners stated he had spoken with Harold Bloom by telephone in Florida and had been informed that a formal agreement with the old village to provide water and that the city had assumed the responsibility of continuing provisions of the agreement. Bloom was a developer of some of the township property in question.

Despite the fact that Mayor A. M. Allen and Ogilvie have stated they are unaware of any such agreement, council granted a delay when the attorney indicated he would attempt to obtain evidence of the agreement from Bloom.

James Sugrue, a township resident and chief critic of the planned cut-off, renewed his fight against the cut-off this week by charging that the city has been servicing a 1.4-inch line needlessly, that the city's water department is so poorly administered that it does not know what lines do or do not exist or their sizes, and that the double rates township customers have been paying should have, under proper management, provided monies to maintain and improve the lines.

"I charge that the city is trying to run a water department and it doesn't even know what lines it has," he declared. Council argued that it is unaware of some lines and their sizes because they were not installed by the city, that some of these lines extensions have been "moonlighted" by private property owners, and that the lines are in such a bad state of repair that income from water users doesn't cover repair let alone replacement.

Furthermore, it noted that "double rates" are charge for a portion of the water used in the township — not all of it.

Other citizens challenged the validity of reports that the lines are potentially hazardous to health. They demanded proof of such charges from the county and-or state health departments.

At the first hearing both county and state health department representatives stated there was evidence of a potentially hazardous condition. Sugrue, however, charged that such statements are baseless. He said neither department had physically inspected the "conditions," contending that all they have done is "drive through the area."

"I think you should be prepared to back up such a statement," warned Allen.

"I am," replied Sugrue. Councilman Paul Vernon commented that it was the condition of the lines — their constant state of repair — that initially had prompted the city's request to the township that the lines be replaced. Report by the health departments simply cemented the city's position, he added.

It was noted that a township user of the water had notified the health department.

Ogilvie cautioned council that it cannot wait for a potential hazard to cause disease. To ignore the health departments' report, he said, would open the city to possible lawsuit if a user of township water becomes ill.

Nominate five for 'Man of Year' honor

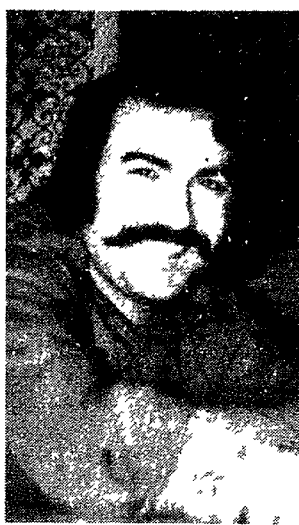

STUART BAKER

WILSON GRIER

CHARLES SIMKINS

JEFF STAFENAU

Five Northville young men have been nominated for the Jaycee Man of the Year award.

One of the five will be named the outstanding young man of the year at a banquet program sponsored by the Jaycees on May 11.

The nominees are: Stuart Baker, 18800 Jamestown; Wilson Grier, 19733 Marilyn; Christopher C. Johnson, 47234 Dunsany; Charles N. Simkins, 511 Baseline; and W. Jeff Stabenau, 19911 Woodhill.

The name of the winner won't be announced until the banquet, which will be held at the Park Haus restaurant beginning with a cocktail hour at 7 p.m. and followed by the dinner at 8 p.m.

Guest speaker for the occasion will be Wayne County Sheriff William Lucas. It is the sheriff, according to John M. Stilson, who is guarding the envelope containing the winner's name until the banquet.

"We want to generate the same suspense and excitement as the Academy Awards," said Stilson, who is the Jaycee chairman of the project.

"Just as you have supported your favorite actor to win an Oscar for outstanding performances, many of our 'stars' have been putting in fine performances over the past year. Their public can reward their efforts while enjoying the thrill and excitement by attending the banquet," said Stilson.

Tickets for the banquet are on sale now at $9 per person and can be obtained by calling 349-3203.

"Already friends, relatives and neighbors of the nominees are purchasing tickets and we want the general public to join in the excitement that will prevail that evening," said Stilson.

Concerning the nominees, Baker is assistant to the director of college relations at Schoolcraft; Grier, supervisor of Northville Township; Johnson secretary of the Northville Board of Education; Simkins an attorney; and Stabenau is a member of the Schoolcraft Student Senate.

Reject Meadowbrook rezoning

More than a dozen Meadowbrook Manor residents showed up at the Novi Council meeting last week and were successful in persuading council to reject a rezoning petition on adjacent property.

The property in question was located on Meadowbrook Road just north of Llewellyn Drive and Meadowbrook Manor. Petitioner John Malamis was seeking to have the zoning changed from R-1 single family residential to R-3 single family residential.

The change would have allowed 90 foot lots versus the 150 foot lots required in the R-1 district.

Planner Charles Cairns of Vilcan

Leman had recommended approval of the rezoning. He pointed out that the city's general development plan adopted in 1967 proposed a dwelling unit density for the area similar to that permitted in the present residential zoning district. But, "Since that time public sanitary sewer and water service, capable of sustaining residential densities of 2.9 dwelling units to the acre has become available to the area.

"Recently completed Preliminary Neighborhood Unit Plan, which took into consideration the availability of public utilities, proposed development densities of about 2.9 dwelling units to the acre for the area involving the subject parcel."

The proposed zoning would have allowed a dwelling unit density of 2.9 units per acre.

Meanwhile Meadowbrook Manor is zoned R-1 with a requirement of one acre per unit. Property both on the east and west of the subject parcel is also zoned R-1. Property to the north, owned by Kaufman and Broad is zoned R-3.

Malamis told the council that the one acre requirement per unit "is cost prohibitive."

"I can understand their feelings about rezoning. But it's not their rezoning. It's ours. K&B is to our north and those are $50,000 homes and this is a good buffer.

"It's nice to have a one acre site but these (in Meadowbrook Manor) were built in 1955, 20 years ago."

Meadowbrook Manor residents submitted a petition with 37 names in opposition to the rezoning.

Reading the petition, Jerome Howie of Llewellyn cited several reasons why the property should remain in its present zoning. Those reasons included:

- R-1 zoning is fair and was approved in the revised zoning ordinance after two and a half years of study.

- the rezoning was being sought for the personal gain of the developer.

- the rezoning would not be in the best interest of the city since it would eliminate virtually all R-1 and R-2 areas not yet developed in the city.

- the rezoning would economically hurt the Meadowbrook Manor homeowners.

Councilmember Romaine Roethel indicated opposition to the rezoning stating that the previous owner had not objected to the new R-1 rezoning.

Councilman James Shaw, who moved for denial of the rezoning, said that he saw no justification for alteration from R-1 to R-3, the same recommendation and position reached by the planning board.

He suggested that the developer should consider an R-2 rezoning as a compromise between the R-1 zoning of Meadowbrook Manor and the R-3 zoning to the north.

"I think we owe these people protection," said Mayor Gilbert Henderson. Council unanimously approved rejection of the rezoning proposal.

Novi family loves maple syrup — home style that is

John Brugeman evaporates sap water to make maple syrup

Mr. and Mrs. Brugeman and son Daniel show off final product

By WAYNE LODER

The term "liquid gold" is often used to describe oil. But if you asked John Brugeman what thought liquid gold conjures up, he'd probably answer good old fashioned 100 percent pure maple syrup.

That answer wouldn't be too surprising, either, since the Brugeman family is one of less than a handful of families in the whole area that makes its own maple syrup, a product that costs well over $4 a quart in the store — if you can find it.

The pails hanging on the 11 sugar maple trees in the front yard of the Brugeman home on Nine Mile in Novi are a dead giveaway that "maple syrup's a-coming" as they signal the start of a process that once was prevalent in certain areas of Novi but is rarely practiced today.

"We got started out of interest in the trees," says Brugeman, a horticulturist by trade. "We're the home product type of family and it never crossed our minds before that we had maple syrup in our front yard."

So four years ago the Brugemans tapped the trees and tried their own method of boiling the sap water down over the kitchen stove to the right consistency.

"It takes more effort than know how," says Mrs. Brugeman, of the process. Over the years the family has acquired some honest-to-goodness maple syrup making equipment from a commercial outfit. The equipment includes a 55 gallon drum used as a fire box and a stainless steel fluted pan two feet by four feet which allows quick evaporation of the liquid.

"We know a couple nearby in their 80's who tell us how they used to sit out in the woods at night keeping the fire going," says Brugeman. "They told of having an eight-foot diameter pan which they had in the woods on a tripod and 50 gallon drums to store the syrup in."

According to Brugeman, in the 30's the general area was a definite maple syrup producing area. He notes that Michigan's production of maple syrup today is third in all the United States.

"I just consider this a backyard operation," Brugeman says of his family's set-up. "We aren't planning on selling any."

Part of the reason is that the Brugemans make only about five gallons of the maple syrup each season (usually from late February through early April). And from start to finish the process, including feeding wood on the fire, takes 18 hours.

"You can't put a money value on something you enjoy," says Mrs. Brugeman. "We give the syrup away to friends. They appreciate the fact it's 100 percent natural — especially in a time where you stress food without additives."

Novi joins with county

Ok early warning system

Though it will apparently be on a piecemeal basis, Novi Council has indicated approval of proceeding with Oakland County in establishing sirens locally as part of a Central Disaster Warning System.

Council Monday approved city share of funding for two sirens, as well as updating of the current Fire Station One siren to sound for tornadoes.

The two fire sirens, council decided, will be placed at Fire Station Two on Paramount in the north end with the second to be mounted at Meadowbrook and Nine Mile where a new fire station is planned.

That recommendation had been given by Novi Police Chief Lee BeGole who had examined the county proposal and attended a meeting with the county March 18 on the system.

Though council voted 6-0 in favor of the system with James Shaw absent Monday, most of the discussion occurred the previous Monday. However, with five council members present and the need to have five affirmative votes to approve the expenditure of $6,000 for the sirens, a 4-1 vote defeated the proposal.

Mayor Pro Tem Martha Hoyer, the lone vote against the system last week said that she changed her mind when a count of people in the council chambers Monday indicated that only about five of some 30 present heard the fire siren sounded Saturday as a tornado warning.

Funding for the city share of the costs will come from the fire department capital improvement millage. While the city is paying $2,500 per siren, the county is matching that while the federal share will be $5,000. The county, according to the resolution approved by council as suggested by the county leaves ownership of the sirens with the county. The county will also have full maintenance responsibility.

The county plan calls for disaster warning capability for all residents of Oakland County. The sirens are to be radio activated and have three warning capabilities with different siren warbles: tornado; fire; and nuclear attack.

The county suggested that Novi needed sirens only at Seeley Road and Grand River, 12½ Mile and Dixon and on Nine Mile at the Chesapeake and Ohio tracks. BeGole as well as the city administration and council members indicated they did not believe the suggested county placement to be the best possible and decided on the new locations.

"There will be bugs... trial and error. But it will be better to go with two than 20 right off," BeGole told the council.

Asked his opinion of the overall program, BeGole replied "I think the program is good but a tornado warning might apply to us but not to Oxford or Lake Orion. If it's overworked it will be like the boy who cried 'wolf'."

BeGole added that tornado warnings are activated on the basis of National Weather Service reports or can be activated locally by officials with the tornado sighting information then relayed to the National Weather Service.

Mrs. Hoyer had previously shown opposition to going ahead with the program because the sirens were not in the budget and she had maintained that the addition of the two sirens did not benefit the whole city.

Barricade causes lawsuit for city

Lawsuits involving the City of Novi were a big concern Monday as Novi City Attorney David Fried reported on three currently facing the city.

Fried informed the council that it had been named in a $1 million lawsuit brought against it by Gabriel Glantz, an owner of the flea market property at Novi Road and 13 Mile.

The lawsuit, Fried told the council, calls for $1 million in damages because the city placed a barrier in front of the 13 Mile entrance onto the property.

According to City Clerk Geraldine Stipp, the barrier was placed late last week in front of the entrance by the city.

She explained that "The fire department indicated they had problems getting down 13 Mile Road when people were coming out of the flea market."

Several times the fire department had brought the matter to the attention of the council during council meetings but council did not take any action itself, instead referring the matter to the police department for investigation.

Fried told the council that Glantz was unsuccessful in a Saturday hearing in obtaining a temporary injunction against the city.

Fried said that he was offered a proposed settlement by Glantz in which the suit would be dropped if the city simply removed the barriers. "I advised Glantz we would not remove the barriers," said Fried.

Fried added that though the council had been named in the suit, "I'm almost certain the council will be dropped from this suit because there was no council action in the suit." Fried said he had pointed that out to Glantz and that Glantz, an attorney, seemed agreeable to dropping the council and citing the administration instead.

Council authorized Fried to defend the suit.

Fried also asked the council if it wanted him to discuss settlement on the Taft Road lawsuit with Edward Draugelis, attorney for homeowners along Taft Road who are attempting to stop a $10 a front foot paving assessment. Circuit Court Judge William Beer has indicated he will rule in favor of the homeowners but has not yet given a written ruling in the case. The city plans to appeal the ruling.

"You can discuss settlement all day long and we can respond to what you come back with," said Councilman Philip Goodman.

"What he really wants to know is are you intent on settling or is $10 a front foot the limit?" said Fried.

Celebrate Resurrection

Area churches plan varied Easter services

No matter the denomination, Novi and Wixom area churchgoers will have a full range of services to choose from as Easter approaches.

All churches are having Easter day services while many are having Good Friday, Maundy Thursday as well as other specially scheduled services commemorating the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Holy Cross Episcopal in Novi will have daily Holy Week services today (Wednesday) through Easter. Holy Eucharist is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. today.

At the 7:30 p.m. Maundy Thursday service the ceremony of the washing of feet will be performed during the Eucharist.

Stripping and washing of the altar will follow at its close.

Good Friday Office will be held from noon to 1 p.m. with administration of the reserved sacrament.

The Great Vigil of Easter will be held at 9 p.m. on Holy Saturday. This service, said the Reverend Father Leslie Harding, includes the lighting of the Paschal Candle, Liturgy of the Word, the renewal of Baptismal vows and the Holy Eucharist of Easter.

Easter will be celebrated with 8 and 11 a.m. services Sunday with Holy Eucharist.

Meanwhile four special events will highlight the celebration of Easter at Orchard Hills Baptist Church, on Novi Road between 9 and 10 mile. A Good Friday Service will be held April 8 beginning at 12:30 p.m. The service, which will last one hour, will include special music, a dramatic reading and a brief message by the pastor, Tom Martin.

The second event will be a sunrise service Easter morning beginning at 6 a.m. on the city beach on Walled Lake just west of Novi Road. There will be special music, a time of prayer and a brief message. The third Easter event will be the morning worship service at 11 a.m. Sunday in which special music will be provided by the choir and selected soloists. The pastor will then share a message on the "Reality of the Resurrection".

The events of the day will be climaxed on Easter Sunday evening when the members of the church celebrate a rather unique observance of the Ordinance of the Lord's Supper at 7 p.m.

Freedom Lutheran Church which is meeting in Novi Woods Elementary on Taft Road will start out celebrations with Maundy Thursday 8 p.m. service. This will feature a reenactment of the passover meal eaten by Jesus and his disciples (now known as the Last Supper) and sampling of traditional Easter foods including roast lamb, haroset and unleavened bread and

Grier echoed the mayor's pessimism, suggesting that unless the people mount a massive demonstration "they're going to try to shove this prison down our throats."

The two Northville officials said state officials are prepared to purchase the Child Development Center and begin housing convicts here by summer. "They're even talking about housing some of them in temporary modular units until the existing buildings can be readied for more prisoners," they said.

Last week's meeting with Governor Milliken was arranged by Congressman Pursell, who delayed his return to Washington to take local representatives to Lansing where they spoke with the governor and several key legislators.

Wayne County Commissioner Mary Dumas stated that county officials "seem to be interested in only how much money they can get for the Child Development Center. If the state comes up with the money, they'd like to sell it and use the money to get the county finances in order. They don't care if the center is used for a prison or whatever."

"Commissioner (Royce) Smith and I thought we had the votes lined up to oppose the prison, but the prospect of money and state pressure changed too many minds. It really upsets me."

"In my opinion the only way we can stop it now is to apply some citizen pressure on the governor."

According to Northrop, the local demonstration idea came out of a similar rally held in Holland. "Those people banded together and demonstrated their opposition to a prison. In their case the governor backed down because of their rally. I get the feeling that he and other politicians think we're so small and unimportant they've got nothing to worry about."

"Well, he and the others had better start listening. Election time will come around and somebody's going to be awfully surprised," Northrop said.

"We've got to get the people out for this rally," urged Allen.

In view of the thousands of people who live in Northville and surrounding communities, "if we can't get 5,000 to turn out we'll deserve to have a prison," declared Grier.

The supervisor vowed that if the state pursues the prison over the community's opposition, the township will carry its fight into the courts. "The township will sue to doomsday to keep the prison out," he declared. "I think we have a good chance. The property (Child Development Center) is zoned residential. They'll have to get permission from the courts to put a prison there."

To assist in fighting the prison, Grier said he would ask the township board at its next meeting to appropriate $1,000 to be used by the Western Wayne County Residents Association.

He and others urged financial contributions by citizens, asking them to mail their checks — "any amount" — to the Western Wayne County Residents Association, Box 49, Northville, 48167.

Those who met with the governor last week, also were introduced to key members of the legislature's Joint Capital Outlay Committee by Pursell, a former state senator. Four of these members, according to local officials, have pledged their opposition to the Northville prison.

Those who have stated they will oppose the prison include:

Senator Charles O. Zollar and Representatives Russell Hellman, William L. Jowett, and Richard A. Young.

Other members of the committee, which will have an influencing voice in whether or not a prison is to be located in Northville, include Senators Jerome T. Hart, Thomas Guastello, and David S. Holmes, Jr., and Representative Gary M. Owen.

The Western Wayne County Residents Association has urged local residents to write to these legislators as well as to Governor Milliken.

Letters to senators should be addressed:

"The Honorable... , Senate, State Capitol, Lansing, Michigan, 48902, Dear Senator..."

Letters to representatives:

"The Honorable... , House of Representatives, State Capitol, Lansing Michigan, 48901, Dear Mr...."

Letters to the governor:

"The Honorable William G. Milliken, Office of the Governor, State Capitol, Lansing Michigan, 48903, Dear Governor Milliken..."

In the hastily called "Stop the Prison" public meeting at the city hall last week Wednesday, more than 100 persons jammed into the council chambers to hear a report of the meeting with the governor and plans for Saturday's rally.

Some locally aimed bitterness was voiced at the meeting.

"Where are the city residents?" asked Clarence Harsch, president of the Northville Senior Citizens Club and himself a resident of the city. "Why aren't they here? They've got as much at stake in this as anyone."

And Northrop tossed a barb at downtown Northville businessmen for taking little active interest in the anti-prison fight. He also lashed out at William McLaughlin of Northville, who heads up the state GOP, for failure to respond to his telephone calls for assistance.

(McLaughlin has pledged his opposition to the prison, has attended one of the hearings on the matter before the Wayne County Board of Commissioners, and has personally met with the governor to voice his strong objections to the prison.)

Northrop admitted he has a selfish interest in fighting the prison, pointing out to citizens that he owns 103 acres of property immediately adjacent to the proposed prison site. But he emphasized that the entire community will suffer along with himself if the prison becomes a reality.

Escapes from such a prison, he suggested, will present a danger for residents throughout the area — not just himself. What's more, Northrop contended the prison will have an adverse effect on property values throughout Northville and Plymouth.

Referring to remarks of citizens in other communities where prisons are located, Northrop said "if they like prisons so well let them have this one."

It was pointed out that numerous local area governmental agencies have taken an official stand against the prison plan. Among these are: Northville Township, Plymouth Township, City of Northville, City of Plymouth, Northville Public Schools, Schoolcraft College, and the Plymouth Community School District.

Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors, the Northville

Chamber of Commerce, Plymouth Chamber of Commerce, and the Novi Chamber of Commerce also have supported resolutions opposing the prison plan.

When it was noted by Grier that Novi Council refused to officially oppose the prison, taking the position that "they'd rather see the prison in Northville than in Novi," citizens shouted tirades at Novi officials who were not present.

"I know that there are a lot of citizens in Novi who don't agree with their officials. I'm sure many of them will be at our rally," Grier said.

BUMPER STICKERS, posters and flyers blossomed this week throughout the Northville area as opponents of the proposed prison here stepped up their campaign to head-off the plan. One of the signs (above) was aimed directly at Governor William Milliken, who incidentally conducted a surprise visit Monday to the Child Development Center to inspect the facilities.

During the tour, according to Geake, Johnson "continued to try and impress the governor with the readiness of the facility" and indicated the center could be used as a prison within 90 days of legislative approval.

Before the tour, Milliken told a reporter that the biggest disadvantage to using the soon-to-be-abandoned Kincheloe Air Force base for a prison is that it won't be available until 1978.

Geake said he told Milliken that the "community did not feel it could absorb another institution."

"Without making any commitment, the governor did say that we had an unusual situation," Geake added.

The Northville State Hospital, the Plymouth State Home and Training School and the women's division of the Detroit House of Corrections are all in Northville Township.

"He (Milliken) did say that it was obvious that the center had a lot of potential (for a prison)," said Geake.

"He could see where it would take a minimum amount of maintenance to prepare it for a prison facility."

Johnson could give no cost for the remodeling, Geake said.

Geake was one of several people to ask Milliken to look over the property although the governor's intentions weren't made known until Monday morning.

Attempted abduction occurs during mailbox trip

In Novi . . .

An attempted child abduction was reported March 25 in the 44000 area of Galway Drive.

An 11-year-old, home after school, reported that when he went to the mailbox a vehicle pulled up and the driver asked him if he wanted a ride. The youth ran for his home.

The suspect was described as a white male, 30-35 years old wearing a white knit hat, black or brown hair with wire-rim sunglasses and wearing a blue or green jacket with lettering or striping. The vehicle was a four-door, dark blue, full-size car possibly a Pontiac with a left rear hubcap missing.

Police also received a report March 24 of a blue Gremlin which reportedly followed two youngsters on different days to the bus stop in Meadowbrook Glens. The driver had dark brown hair and was wearing sunglasses.

On March 24 a $150 door was stolen from a home under construction in the 50000 area of 10 Mile Road. The theft marked the third time the house had been broken into.

A $4,000 Hercules dump trailer was taken from Bluline Construction, 42990 Grand River March 30.

A car parked in Country Cousin Mobile Home Park valued at $1,000 was stolen sometime between March 16 and 29. The car was a 1967 Cadillac.

March 29 a breaking and entering was reported in the 2000 area of West Lake Drive. A $200 console Zenith television was taken.

An eight-track AM-FM cassette tape player was ripped out of the dash in a car parked on Wedgewood March 27-28.

A tool box chest containing assorted tools was stolen March 28 from Novi Plastics, 40100 Grand River. Besides the tool chest two one and one-half ton chain files were also taken. Value was set at several hundred dollars. A window was broken to gain entry.

Northwest Industries, 39550 Grand River was also broken into last week. Taken was an IBM typewriter, Novus pocket calculator, Lloyds calculator and Panasonic tape recorder. Value exceeded $500. Entry was gained through a window which was broken by the thieves.

A stolen automobile was recovered March 28 by police, but not before it had been torched by the culprits. According to reports, the car was found on fire at 13 Mile Road west of Haggerty. It had been stolen from Detroit.

An indecent exposure occurred March 26 at Novi Standard when a 16-year-old youth exposed himself from inside a car to the female attendant. According to reports, police were called and officers used a description of the car to stop a vehicle nearby which fitted the description. A 16-year-old youth, one of several juveniles in the car, admitted to the activity.

An All-Pro men's bicycle parked in front of a home in the 40000 area of 10 Mile was stolen March 26. Value of the bicycle was over $100.

In Township . . .

Although unknown persons attempted to break into a home on Ludlow Court Thursday night, a check of the residence by Northville Township Police found nothing missing.

Police reports indicate the back door was damaged along with a popped-out side window. Officers also found fresh tire tracks across the front lawn with an estimated damage to that property of $75.

Of four cars parked at a residence on Stoneleigh Sunday night, the oldest of the group was chosen to be stolen. The owner told police he was surprised thieves chose a 1972 Volkswagon with "a banged-up left fender and no reverse gear" as the one to take.

The owner of a residence on Longwood Court had his front lawn torn up Saturday night by a neighbor youth driving a pickup truck.

Later apprehended, the youth told police he was in a hurry. Driving the truck some 50 feet across the neighbor's lawn created and estimated $100 damage to the hurrying youth who told police he would try to repair the damage.

Two male patients at the Northville State Hospital were reported missing from the grounds. Both patients, apparent walk-aways, disappeared sometime April 1. One patient was described as dangerous to himself and others while the other was not considered dangerous.

Both men are still being sought by Michigan State Police.

the aid of an addled duck last week. While patrolling the area at the Ford Valve Plant, the officers spotted the dazed and staggering bird on the lawn in front of the plant.

The injured duck was transported to the station where it continued to stagger and reportedly wouldn't "quack". The mallard, found to have an injury to its neck and believed to have been hit by a car, was taken to Frank Kocian for care before being returned to the plant pond.

More damage to lawns reports continue to flow into the police department. Extensive damage was done to a lawn on Sherrie Lane late Sunday night when someone drove a car across the property.

The owner, apparently hearing the noise, told police the driver was spinning his wheels as he crossed the turf.

In Wixom . . .

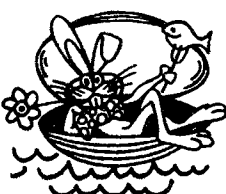

A Ferndale juvenile arrested on a drunk and disorderly charge after a two car accident on Wixom Road March 27, was later charged with assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer.

Called to the accident just south of Hopkins Drive, Wixom Police officers were met with a group of screaming and reportedly disorderly youths. Although no injuries were apparent to the occupants of the two cars, following the accident, one car was totalled.

After arresting the one juvenile, a second youth, 17-year-old Richard Beck of Ferndale was arrested on a similar charge. While seated in the rear of the patrol unit, Beck tore the wires loose from the radar unit and was subsequently charged with malicious destruction of property. Beck was later transported to Oakland County Jail and held without bond.

When taken to the police station for questioning, the first youth managed to take a screwdriver from a desk and conceal it in his pocket. Officers later related the youth suddenly jumped at them, brandishing the tool. Forcibly restrained and while in the process of

JAMES KAROUB

Lobbyist to fight prison

The Western Wayne County Residents Association gave further notice this week that it is determined to accelerate its efforts to defeat the proposed prison plan for the Wayne County Child Development Center property on Sheldon road near Five Mile.

After working to organize a "stop the prison" rally slated for Saturday at 10 a.m., the citizens' group announced that it had retained the services of a state lobbyist.

Three officers of the local organization — William Miron, Blake Northrop and William Phillips — said they had decided to hire James Karoub at a meeting with the well known legislative lobbyist Sunday.

Karoub, who is a Northville resident, was recently retained by the City of Northville along with Livonia and Hazel Park to assist the cities in opposition to proposed legislation which would reduce the share of racing revenues that would go to cities where tracks are located.

A legislative lobbyist for the past three years, Karoub previously served three terms as a state representative.

"We've hired Karoub to keep us informed and to assist us in fighting the creation of a state prison in Northville", Northrop stated. "Those of us on the citizens' committee don't really know what to do. We think Karoub does. He comes highly recommended. We don't want to be caught sleeping", Northrop added.

Three lawsuits discussed

"I'd be willing to go up to $11 a front foot if he wants to," responded Goodman jokingly.

Council member Romaine Roethel said that the fact the city had fought so hard so far should be evidence the city plans on continuing the suit.

Fried indicated that as a result of council discussion, he will not seek a settlement but will be open to listen to any settlement proposals made by Draugelis.

Council also learned that further delays in acquiring right-of-way along Novi Road could delay construction of a sewer main into Novi Heights subdivision until 1978.

That fact came out after Fried informed the council that a lawsuit with Kay Rose Investment Company over an easement on the back of property owned by Paul Bosco is now academic. Fried explained that he learned from city engineer Harry Mosher of Johnson and Anderson that a 30-foot cut required at that point could cut off water to wells in Novi Heights subdivision during construction.

Council member Patricia Karevich, a resident of Novi Heights subdivision herself, appeared angered over the discovery that engineering plans okayed two years ago by Johnson and Anderson were unworkable and that the lawsuit in which Bosco sought $80,000 from the city for the easement had been for nothing.

"Let them (Johnson and Anderson) pay for everything up to now," she said.

According to City Manager Edward Kriewall, the new route which would be directly along Grand River is one originally suggested by the city and that the route should actually cost the city less to construct. He said the route had been changed to the back of the Bosco property at the request of Bosco.

Fried indicated, however, that the new route will not completely solve the city's right-of-way acquisition problem and admitted that if there are any "hassles" involved, the sewer may not get constructed this year.

Residents in the subdivision had sought the sewer lines after several septic tank failures were reported.

problems with board members while "at least some kind of complaint by at least some of the board members" was raised on the other nine, he said.

The board then went into a scheduled executive session to discuss those nine areas. The session took nearly five hours with Spear in attendance for the second half of the meeting.

The decision from the evaluation will have to be made in a formal board meeting, but it is not on the agenda for Monday's regular session.

The next scheduled board meeting after that is April 25.

The nine qualifications that at least one board member had troubles with are:

- proper degree of confidence and idealism.
- solid philosophy of education and its role in life.
- deep-seated belief that the public schools are operated for the benefit of the children and adults enrolled in them — not for boards, administrators, teachers or parents.

- broad administrative experience, preferably in medium or large-sized school systems.
- aggressive about upgrading the public school system.
- a pronounced interest in improving the instructional program.
- ability to organize effectively and to plan ahead to meet the school system's problems.
- competence in business management; personnel administration; plant operation and maintenance; personal, community and press relations.
- ability to delegate authority and to expedite.

The 12 areas where there were no concerns were:

- excellent health.

- high moral character.
- pleasing personal appearance.
- good judgment, common sense, and perception.
- varied accomplishments.
- demonstrated ability to make decisions promptly and correctly.
- proven ability to lead and to shoulder responsibility.
- an open mind about the status quo and the many changes facing public education.
- appreciation of the need for close working relationships with teachers and board members and the general public and agencies in a position to improve public education.
- unquestioned courage, integrity and honesty.
- ability to face controversy, to remain true to convictions, and to live with a high-pressure job.
- ability to speak and write acceptably.

A visit to congressman's office

"Good afternoon," says a cheery Sylvia Skrel, as each visitor enters the Farmington Road office in Livonia. "Would you like to see your Congressman?"

There's a special emphasis on the "your" since that's the impression that was sought by Congressman Carl Pursell's visit to his home district Friday.

Pursell, who edged into office last November by a margin slimmer than a political leaflet, is working hard to form an image of a representative who keeps in touch with his constituency.

Friday afternoon, he was available to anyone who walked in the front door. About two dozen took advantage and many more called in.

He's returned to Michigan almost every week since his election and has yet to spend a weekend in the nation's capital.

"I always think that personal contact is the best," he said.

Evidently, so do voters since many of those who saw Pursell could have accomplished just as much by phoning the two women who run the Livonia office. Sylvia Skrel and Denise Radke.

About half the people want to talk about the issues of the day — amnesty, labor bills, the saccharin ban.

The rest have personal problems and most of these fall under veterans of social security benefits.

A Livonia man who will benefit from Pursell's visit is a former serviceman who received a less-than-honorable discharge because he refused to incorrectly set up a mortar that could have killed his own men.

A sheet with the man's problem was marked with a big red "Rush," and Pursell said he would "get right on getting a change of status."

Other comments, whether given verbally to Pursell or written on message sheets, had a wide range.

"We are violently opposed to child pornography," wrote one couple. Another said he was upset with a 29 percent Congressional pay hike when veteran's benefits were increasing by only seven percent.

Pursell was the only Michigan Republican to vote in favor of the common-site picketing bill, which would allow a strike of one sub-contractor to shut down an entire construction site. The bill failed.

"He must have been under pressure or extenuating circumstances," said one caller. "I'll still vote for him, but my friend is mad."

A sense of helplessness accompanies some calls, such as the man who saw his social security income decrease when his veteran's benefits went up.

"He didn't expect CDP (Pursell) to do anything about it," said a staff memo. "He just wanted him to know how he felt."

If there is a typical topic, it is the increased cost of necessities for those on fixed incomes.

Pursell pointed to notes from one conversation where a man had complained of the high cost of utilities, taxes and gasoline.

"That's a typical reading of this district," he said. "The senior citizen's biggest single tax problem is keeping up with local property taxes."

Although he's aware of the inefficient bureaucracy in Washington, the new Congressman said he is "always optimistic" about the "democratic process."

Approve staffing for Novi schools

Novi School Board has approved additional staffing needs for the 1977-78 school year.

"The planning for these new positions began over a year ago when the Needs Assessment No. II committee reviewed the school district and its future demands," said a board report. "Included in the overall study and forward planning was the present and future financial conditions of the school district and its ability to fund new positions."

Following is a list of additional teaching positions approved by the board:

High School—graphic arts teacher; automotive-woodworking; broadcast debate forensics; physical education-water safety instructor swimming teacher; geometry-chemistry-life science; social studies; learning resource (learning disabled); part-time activities director.

Middle School—English-social studies-physical education; math-science physical education.

Elementary—half-time kindergarten (Novi Woods); Grade Five teacher (Village Oaks); half-time physical education (reassignment of present personnel).

Special education—half-time speech therapist; half-time social worker; half-time director of special education.

Besides the certificated personnel, also to be hired will be: two paraprofessionals (special education); one secretary bookkeeper for high school; three community education facilitators (part-time at each elementary school); five custodians; one maintenance person; and one bus driver.

Superintendent Dr. Gerald Kratz noted that no one has yet been hired or chosen for the various positions.

Trustee Robert Wilkins observed that "people might question the number of staff we're adding to the high school" because of possible budget problems coming up.

"We are opening a new high school with new teaching areas and we'd be remiss in holding off staffing those areas," he said.

Wilkins added that if additional millage is necessary later, "at least the citizens would see it as a functioning high school."

Board unanimously approved the staffing recommendations.

David Laverty, a freshman at the University of Michigan, received the William J. Branstrom freshman prize March 25 during the Honors Convocation at Hill Auditorium.

The award is annually given to the freshmen honor students whose academic achievement during their first semester on campus places them in the upper five percent of their class.

Laverty was given a specially selected book with a bookplate that had his name imprinted on it for his all-A record.

Laverty, a liberal arts student, is a 1976 Novi graduate and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Laverty of Novi.

Novi referendum possible

Petition drive afoot on bonds

A petition drive is currently under way which could put the issuance of $650,000 in special assessment bonds for Novi's road paving program up before the voters.

The petitions must be submitted by April 18 (45 days after publication date in the Novi News) and must carry the signatures of 10 percent of Novi's registered voters, approximately 600.

The special assessment bonds would represent the $10 per front foot being assessed homeowners on: Beck Road between 10 Mile and 11 Mile; Meadowbrook from 11 Mile to 12 Mile; Meadowbrook from 10 Mile to 11 Mile; Beck Road from 11 Mile to Grand River; and 13 Mile from Novi Road to Meadowbrook Road.

Donald Young, former Novi Councilman who said he drew up the petition at the request of several other people, said that the people involved simply want a vote of the public.

"The special assessment portion was not in the newspaper or in the propaganda about the bond issue," claimed Young. "By necessity it wasn't part of the $2.6 million (general obligation) bond issue. A lot of people thought there wasn't any (special assessment)."

"We feel the bonds shouldn't be issued without vote of the people."

Young said that the city is deceiving those persons required to pay special assessments because the city has said that all persons along the road paving program roads will be charged $10 a front foot. He pointed out that in reality as a result of the Taft Road lawsuit and anticipated lawsuits on other roads, affected residents will not actually be paying a portion of the cost. He said that those portions instead will be picked up by the general fund.

During previous council meetings, council members had only discussed the possibility of cutting from the end of the road paving program or going to the one-mill road fund as a result of the loss of special assessments.

Young said he anticipates several lawsuits to stop special assessments.

"Everybody in our stretch on Nine Mile is against it because it's one of the most picturesque areas in the city," said Young. He also maintained that homeowners along Beck Road will be bringing suit to stop special assessments.

Young said that in reality homeowners are only getting $3-$5 per front foot worth of benefit from the road program instead of the $10 per front foot being assessed by the city. He added that $3 to $5 is the cost per front foot that it would cost to pave the roads if it was for the use of the homeowners only.

"This would be adequate for the people who live on the road but it wouldn't stand up two minutes under the traffic they actually carry."

Young agreed with City Finance Director Fred Todd that even though a negative vote of the people could stop the issuance of special assessment bonds, it would not stop the special assessment itself.

According to Todd, a negative vote of the residents would literally hurt those people on the roads to be paved. Instead of paying $10 a front foot and interest of seven percent additional per year on the unpaid balance of that $10 a front foot, those residents would be charged somewhere in the neighborhood of nine percent per year on the unpaid balance. Young disagreed.

Strike up the band

Harold Arnoldi, director of the Wayne State University concert band, directs more than 60 band members in a special concert at Novi High School last week. Several grades from the elementary schools, as well as high school students got to listen to the performance which was made possible through the efforts of music teacher Annie Bailey, a friend of the director.

Wixom Newsbeat

The food rates tops

By NANCY DINGELDEY

The subject this week is food — lots of food — good, rich, caloric food — the kind that tempts one's palate and throws calorie counters to the wind.

Pam and Barry Westervelt are still smacking their lips even though their food explosion is now nothing more than a memory and the extra pounds a worry.

After spending a week on Marco Island at a company convention, and lounging on the "powdered sugar" beaches at the spa, the couple boarded the Italian Steamship "Flavia" for a four-day cruise of the Caribbean waters, destination Nassau.

"When we boarded the ship, the first thing we noticed was the absence of any snack bars, although it certainly didn't take us long to find out why," laughed Pam.

"You wouldn't believe the amount of food that was served — six times a day," said Pam as she handed me a ship's itinerary. One quick glance found breakfast, lunch and dinner interspersed with snacks, buffets, tea and more buffets.

"If there's a way to go, it's got to be a cruise. And if you truly like to eat, make sure it's an Italian line. Their kitchen has no conception of one scrambled egg or one piece of toast."

Breakfast, even if just one egg was ordered consisted of a platter of eggs, sausage, bacon, fish and pizza. And those "snacks" at poolside, which were casually mentioned as a variety of beverages, found tables heaped with sandwiches, fruit and cheeses. That came one hour after breakfast followed one hour later by lunch.

"The service was absolutely fantastic — every single thing you could possibly want was taken care of — everyone was treated like a 'king and queen,'" bubbled Pam.

"There was never a time when there was nothing to do, according to Pam. There were movies and disco dancing, lounging by poolside or organized activities. There were the casinos and night life in Nassau...and food.

Sporting an absolutely gorgeous and very noticeable tan, Pam said, "We'd do it again in a minute" — that has to be a recommendation!

Closer to home, 15 local couples attended a fund-raising dinner hosted by Aini and Jack Karell at their home on Nalene Saturday night. Benefiting a senior citizen building fund for the Finnish Cultural Center, the Karells served a buffet that was superb at any standard.

Aini, long known for her ethnic pastry prowess, certainly proved herself outstanding in any culinary vein as guests were served heaping platters of steaming food while Jack urged everyone to eat more.

For one who likes to eat, the evening was sheer delight, topped off with Aini's now famous scrumptious Finnish torte. Other pastries and steaming coffee were served throughout the evening that not only benefited the Karells' favorite charity but certainly my tummy as well.

Beatles on film program

Area youngsters will be treated to a special Easter vacation week film program featuring the Beatles and the Marx Brothers on Wednesday, April 13 at 2 p.m.

The program will be held in the Community Room of the Northville Square shopping mall and will feature the Beatles in two short documentaries, followed by "The Marx Brothers Mosaic", consisting of three short comedies.

Giant awakened by prison punch

The best way to wake up a sleeping giant is to hit him where it hurts.

And in the case of that giant body of citizens known as the "Public", the two most vulnerable spots are the safety of the home and the pocketbook.

Plainly, that's why so many area citizens are aroused by the state's proposal to buy the Wayne County Child Development Center and convert it to a prison.

They fear for their family's safety. And they fear for the value of their homes and property.

These are perfectly legitimate concerns. And they can be honorably defended even while recognizing the state's need for prison space and the importance of rehabilitation programs for the confined.

There are just so many common sense arguments against the proposed prison in Northville that proponents should be blushing rather than opponents apologizing for callousness towards society's obligations.

Oh, it makes sense for Wayne County to sell the site to the state. It's a drag on the budget. Then, too, elected county commissioners would be relieved of the nuisance of responding to inquiries concerning use of the property.

But does it make sense to convert a residentially-zoned, campus-like complex of classrooms and dormitories into a prison? Would any community planner consider such a contrast?

And how does the introduction of prisoners into such a setting compare logically with the apparent desertion of an established prison (DeHoCo — Women's Division) within the same community just one mile away?

Would it be reasonable to assume that one could not argue with the continuation — or even expansion — of an established prison-use facility, while admitting that conversion of a campus into a prison would be disturbing?

More than one-third of Northville Township is occupied by tax-free lands containing facilities serving society's needs. At least two of these facilities are for the confinement of potentially dangerous inmates.

The community is not insensitive to the needs of the troubled, less fortunate, victims of broken homes, bad luck or ill health.

The Giant in Northville has been aroused. It is asking the state to look for alternatives (such as a more massive facility at Kincheloe). And it is asking the county and the state to consider providing funds to retain the campus setting at the Child Development Center in the form of a Wayne State University-Schoolcraft College Consortium.

And Saturday morning that Giant is holding a rally at the site of the proposed prison to let state politicians know that it has been hit too often where it hurts.

Police aid helps

The effort by local police departments to provide manpower for the task force delving into the murders of four Oakland County youths deserves recognition.

In some of the departments, such as Novi, the officers are being paid for the hours they spend with the task force. In others, such as the City of Northville and Northville Township, officers and clerks are volunteering time to provide what could be a future safeguard for their own communities.

Whether providing paid or volunteer help, the departments are making every effort to solve the child murders before they reach closer to home. The huge numbers of tips received by local police departments require careful processing. And they indicate the strong support residents have provided during this manhunt for a person police say could be anyone — priest, doctor, police officer, etc.

Area police departments are to be commended for "pitching in".

ERNEST QUENON

YES . . .

The cost of my college education was paid by the government. So has the college education of millions of Americans who are veterans of World War II, or the Korean or Viet Nam conflicts. The G.I. Bill paid my tuition, books, and $70 a month living expenses (a sum that seems ridiculous today, but which sufficed).

The effect of this government subsidy was great. It enabled me to get a better education, at a better school, than I otherwise would have had. It increased the educational level of two generations and spawned a higher education system unequaled in the history of the world.

My children do not have this benefit. They have not had to serve in time of war (it's a shame that this should be necessary). They are all good students, but not academic scholarship material. Finally, they are not eligible for financial aid because the income of their parents is too high. They are left to their own resources, and those of their parents.

Since I have had seven of them to educate (if they are so inclined), my solution has been to move to Ann Arbor years ago and to send them to UM or EMU, permitting them to live at home. Even this leaves me financially strapped for 14 years of my life.

I am part of the middle group — too poor to educate my children in style, too rich to qualify for assistance. In my income bracket, however, a tax deduction for college expenses would make a difference. As with the G.I. Bill, it would enable this generation to receive a better education.

If this nation is to maintain the educational level so necessary for dealing with the complex world in which we live, something must be done. Financial aid to students from low income families is the first priority, but a tax break for middle income families is also necessary.

Ernest L. Quenon

Speaking for Myself

College education tax deductible?

WILLIAM PETERS

NO . . .

Call me a member of the old school if you like, but I just don't think parents should be permitted to deduct the cost of sending their children to college from their income taxes.

In the first place, the vast majority of today's students attend colleges and universities which are already tax supported. Everybody who owns property or earns an income is already helping to pay for the college educations of other people.

If parents are permitted to deduct the cost of sending their children to college, there will be an added tax burden on people who don't have children in college. We would still have to support the numerous state-operated colleges, while the people with children in college — the very people who should be paying to educate their children — would be relieved of a portion of their responsibility.

That's not the only reason tax deductions for college educations are unfair, however. Such a deduction would put an unfair burden on the working classes and provide an additional tax dodge for middle and upper income classes. A college education is a good thing, but this country also needs farmers, tradesmen, and laborers just as much as it needs more doctors, teachers, and lawyers. To give more tax deductions to the people who go to college and not give them to the members of America's proud working classes just isn't fair.

Finally, I'd like to know what happened to the virtues which have made this country great — pride, hard work, and perseverance. What's wrong with having, to work hard and sacrifice in order to get ahead in this world?

The average American is already being driven under by taxes to operate elementary and high schools. If we have to take over the cost of college educations as well, it will drive us all under. If a parent wants his child to go to college, then he should be willing to pay for it. I don't think it's the responsibility of every hard-working American to pay for college educations so that somebody else can get a better job and make more money. The cost of education should be put on those who directly benefit.

C O L U M N

Leonard Howarth is my kind of man.

He puts off today what he can do tomorrow. That's why he proposed to his wife a day after their wedding.

Howarth, understandably an attorney, is president of the Davisburg Molasses Chapter of the Procrastinators Club of America.

It was Howarth who last week sent out invitations to members of the press and other similar free-loaders asking them to attend a big bash in Davisburg.

Davisburg's the little Oakland County community that is preparing to mark the nation's bicentennial.

Typically, Howarth's invitation announcing the bash to be held on March 7 was dated March 17.

"The Davisburg Molasses Chapter," his letter read, "will hold a free cocktail and hors d'oeuvre hour to kick off National Procrastination Week at 616 Broadway, Davisburg, Michigan."

"Free booze" would have been sufficient attraction for the press corps, but his invitation mentioned also that a 1977 Ford Thunderbird, Sony Badamax Video Recording System, and a Pioneer Stereo System would be given away as prizes."

"Response was terrific," reports Howarth. "I think we'll repeat it again next year, but we're going to have to limit invitations."

"One wag from the press tried to crash the party after it was over."

Purpose of the cocktail hour, he explains, "was to acquaint the political, spiritual, and business leaders in the Oakland County community with the positive aspects of procrastination."

The Molasses Chapter isn't incorporated yet "but we're thinking about it. Maybe next month," he told me. "We meet now and then if someone happens to show up. Like many organizations our meetings aren't too well attended. That's what makes them so great."

Howarth characterizes himself as a man with a bitter sense of satire. He champions the motto, "Wit is anger turned sideways."

He's married... and the last time he looked he had two kids.

In case you've forgotten, Howarth is an erstwhile politician.

He was the Republican opponent of Oakland County Prosecutor Brooks Patterson in the last primary.

I'm convinced I could have beaten Brooksy but too many of my supporters got to the polls late," he admits. Nevertheless, Howarth's pride of the fact that many of his backers shared his faith in procrastination.

"We look at it this way: half the world's problems could be avoided by a little more procrastination. Disasters would disappear."

"And even Nixon might have survived if he'd forgotten to turn on his tape machine."

Prison plan called 'disgusting', unsafe and 'a load'

To the Editor:

There has been a reasonable amount of public communication on the disgusting State proposition to purchase the Wayne County Child Development Center and build a maximum security prison on that site. I would like to enter two points for your readers.

First, let me join with other voices and state that I am vehemently opposed to this proposition. Second, I want to promote public awareness to preclude what normally happens during the processing of a government issue. What is a normal process? I think of it as follows:

1) the issue surfaces; 2) it becomes cloudy and distorted by overanxious officials who put their mouth before the facts; 3) the public communications media jump into the mess and attempt to put the puzzle into proper perspective; 4) a few public spirited citizens make some noise; 5) paid officials step in to serve the public interests; 6) the issue does one of three things; a) it dies (tabled) only to re-surface slightly modified at another time, b) it is adopted, c) it is defeated; 7) and finally there is a public reaction.

It is this last step that I want to pursue. We have a situation here in Northville. The State of Michigan is leaning toward adopting the proposition to build a prison in Northville!! Gasp!!! If the normal process runs its course we will see the ground-breaking and then we will stand in awe. Let us change this process to work in our behalf. Whether for or against. If we react now while in step five of the process we can possibly achieve a viable disposition from the powers on high. Public reaction after the fact is comforting but not worth the belch.

"I mean I am not talking about a decision to build a statue on the intersection of Main and Center! I'm talking about a prison that will house felons, murderers, and rapists. I'm talking about property devaluation. I'm talking about public safety. I'm talking about a dead city called Northville that was once known as that beautiful, upcoming community in the northwest area. People won't you react now and support the involved public officials who are trying to serve your interests?"

John M. Stilson

To the Editor:

The Western Wayne Oakland County Board of REALTORS has voiced its opposition to the establishment of a minimum security prison in the Northville area. In a resolution mailed to Governor Milliken, legislators and local officials, the REALTORS stated that it was important that local government retain land use within its jurisdiction.

The Western Wayne Oakland County Board is comprised of approximately 2,100 REALTORS and REALTOR-Associates in western Wayne and western Oakland counties primarily involving the sale of residential real estate. The Board said it was taking this stand on behalf of property owners because members reported increased concern among their clients on how this facility might affect property values.

The resolution stated:

"It is hereby resolved by the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of REALTORS that:

WHEREAS... The City and Township of Northville are located within the jurisdiction of this Board of REALTORS and...

WHEREAS... REALTORS are concerned with the safety of property owners' investments and...

WHEREAS... REALTORS are concerned with the excessive amount of property in the Northville area which is exempt from local property taxes, and...

WHEREAS... REALTORS are concerned citizens who desire the maximum amount of safety for the citizens of the Northville area and...

WHEREAS... The citizens of a community have the right to determine, through local government, land use of property located within the local government jurisdiction...

...We do hereby go on record in opposition to the establishment of a minimum security prison in the Northville area, and in support of the sale of the site known as The Wayne County Child Development Center to private enterprise for future development to be approved by local government, which represents the citizens of the area."

To the Editor:

ODE TO A LOAD

Some commissioners in Wayne, faced with bedlam, Penned a plot to avoid downtown mayhem.

"We'll need jail, bars and all, So let's pick someone small— If they squawk we'll just simply outvote them!"

With a planning uncommon and sound, They laid most of their cards on the ground.

"We've a spot in the West, Northville Township looks best, And they're used to such places around."

Township folks showed up strong for a hearing And were greeted with smiles — make that jeering.

"It was nice that you came And will play at the game, But we can't offer calm for your fearing."

Old Commissioners don't die it does seem, They just manage to fade from the scheme.

"We've decided to dump All that land for a lump, To the State you must now make your scream."

Other Councils close by weren't relaxed.

Only one urged the Township be axed.

"Why complain — It's your lot. Crime won't increase a dot. (Not to mention that we won't be taxed.)"

Politicians who merit their pay Might try being more honest this day. Since we're doing our share Now's the time to be fair, For enough is enough I would say.

Will some chief hear this plea — maybe not. Hope they're not with the crew that's been bought. There just must be a way That will bring pride one day When we save what is ours 'cause we fought.

This is not meant to include Mary Dumas. She has been working hard in the best interests of her constituents.

Wants report public

To the Editor:

There has been considerable concern by many people about the situation in the Northville schools. There has also been a study of the high school situation, in depth, by the North Central Accrediting Team. The entire operation of the high school was examined and a report of findings made. There are usually recommendations offered as well.

Inasmuch as there is great interest in these matters by parents and students, I wonder if there is some way that this report can be made public in a fashion so the greatest possible number of those interested may know what the North Central Accrediting Team had to say. Such disclosure could well provide the necessary understanding to afford us a better opportunity to do what is necessary to improve our situation.

I am addressing this open letter to the Northville Record because I think if the Record would undertake this public service it would be more greatly accepted as a forthright, objective and non-partisan disclosure. The probable result of leaving the findings of the examining Team publicly undisclosed is speculation; something we do not need added to the controversy. So let us all see what that report contains.

Luther B. Kleckner

Editor's Note: The North Central evaluation has not yet been completed. As soon as the report becomes available, its findings will be fully reported.

Concerned by parking

To the Editor,

Recently I had cause to inquire of the Novi Traffic Safety unit what authority police officers have regarding parking offenses in shopping center parking lots. Specifically, I was concerned about parking in the fire lane of the Novi-Ten shopping center parking lot. I was surprised to learn that the police have no authority in this regard.

In addition, I learned they could do nothing about misuse of designated handicapped parking spaces or of any other parking abuses within the lot.

This lack of full police protection, I was informed, is due to the failure of the shopping complex owners to request such protection. In view of the possible serious consequences of disregarding no parking signs in fire lanes, in view of the frustration handicapped persons in our community must feel when they find their parking spaces blatantly misused by those obviously more fortunate than they, and in view of the inconvenience indiscriminate parking could cause the patrons of such shopping center stores, I wish to make these facts known.

I also encourage anyone who also feels full police protection to be in the best interests of the community to urge the Novi City Council to take steps to assure that all parking lots in the city which serve the public come under such protection.

Split on modified

To the Editor:

Modified Calendar Approved.

The question is, "How can anyone approve something which doesn't exist?" It is unbelievable that four supposedly intelligent adults could be led to approve and adopt an unknown calendar. Is that even legal? Perhaps they have already agreed privately on what that calendar will be.

We were told March 23 that a board member had said ESY had been dropped completely. How could anyone know March 23 what action would be taken March 28 unless it had already been decided privately? There was no indication of such action at the March 14 meeting.

Some people feel encouraged by the unified schedule. They believe that it will be the one suggested by Dr. Spurlin. We have grave misgivings at this time. This superintendent has done so many "clever" things in the past that there is no guessing what calendar he will come up with now. He will, however, manage to get four board members to approve whatever he wants and the public and staff who must live with it will not have any right to reject it. Divide and conquer is the name of his game. Whatever schedule he designs, you can be sure, will be "New and innovative." Our board has traded in TSY and ESY and now we will be given the BSY!

If this board really wants to make a "name" for Northville Public Schools let it not be Laughingstock. We have been in constant turmoil and out of step with schedules of every other district for eight years. Why stop now? The word is, "Something new and experimental?" Northville will try it. They try anything!

It would be much better for all, including Mr. Spear, if we made our "name" by concentrating on educational value and opportunity, well-maintained schools, and a feeling of reasonable confidence and trust in the board and administration. These factors have become increasingly absent in the past 6-8 years.

As 20 year residents of Northville we find it most depressing to see our once-fine schools launched again into the unknown outer space of Spear's Fantasy.

Roy and Rose Williams

To the Editor:

The Amerman staff supports the concept of a modified calendar. We feel the board's decision will benefit the educational needs of our children, for the following reasons:

- In a time of double digit inflation, a unified calendar should save the district thousands of dollars without sacrificing services.
- One modified calendar would eliminate the discrepancies in class between T.S.Y. and E.S.Y.
- Services of reading, speech, and learning disability teachers will be available on an uninterrupted basis.
- With more teachers available at each grade, there will be more latitude in the placement of children.
- This will provide an opportunity for more classrooms with one grade level which would enable teachers to better meet the individual needs of students.
- This will provide greater opportunity for team teaching and better utilization of teacher expertise.
- A modified calendar would eliminate the rivalry between students involved with two calendars.
- The school can provide a more effective safety program when all children are arriving and departing school at the same time.
- Students would benefit by a better utilization of special materials and programs.
- A modified calendar allows a family to become involved in more extensive summer activities as well as providing short breaks during the school year.
- We support the board's decision to adopt a modified calendar which we believe will aid in unifying the school and community, and allow for all parties involved to work towards a school system of which everyone can be justly proud.

'Doesn't make sense'

To the Editor:

It doesn't make sense that our School District would pay a teacher for work that hadn't been completed, as was charged by Ms. Nancy Soper at last Wednesday's Regenesis hearing. If true, the blame should be placed at the door of the administration for slipshod money handling, not on the teacher who says she turned the work in as promised.

Yours sincerely,
J. A. Federspill

'School's rudderless'

To the Editor:

There's no better time than right now to attack the root causes of the non-leadership and lethargy that have left our Northville school system rudderless and second-rate. These causes are not solely our self-serving school administrators. As Record editorials of February 16th and March 16th point out, public interest in issues ranging from parent-teacher conferences to the Regenesis investigation must be kept high or public bodies will respond to our protests with the same lack of interest we appear to show when we don't attend their meetings.

That's why it's of vital importance that parents, students and teachers alike find time to attend the School Board meeting of Monday, April 11th. This is the night the Board has picked to hand down its final judgment on the Regenesis affair. Even if you had no personal involvement with Regenesis, the issues now being decided could affect you, your community and your schools for years to come.

To date, the School Board has been patient and thorough in pursuing its inquiry. On March 14th, the Board ruled that it would apologize to parents and students for any "unfair labeling" that occurred, change student records, and devise a policy to more closely supervise future funding applications.

Nevertheless, the remaining issues — the fate of the Regenesis teacher and the future of so-called "alternative programs" in our districts — are now to be decided. And there appears to be strong and insidious pressure from school administrators behind the scenes to "get" the teacher and kill the idea of an educationally sound alternative program unless it can be readily funded (whatever the source or the guidelines).

In a letter to The Record (March 2nd), Mary Jane Pettit wrote: "Miss Densmore served her students, parents and community well. She should be commended, not condemned. What happens to her will most certainly affect teachers' willingness to speak out without fear of recrimination when they feel something is not in the best interests of your child."

Unfortunately, the lack of vision indicated by our present school administrators — as demonstrated by the last-minute patching together of wafer-thin excuses for blundering and by hurried attempts to cover their mistakes — leads one to believe any good teacher's future in this district is in peril.

Certainly the admission on March 16th by the principal of the high school that a true Section 48 program involving court-referred students continued to be planned for the fall of 1977 even after shady funding practices were made public indicates that our high-level administrators haven't learned a thing to date from this whole sorry affair.

A school administration without sensitivity to student and teacher needs is intolerable in a community — and in a society — that wants its children to be educated, not programmed. I strongly urge everyone who can to attend next Monday's Board session. Decide for yourself whether school officials should be allowed to attempt harassment and intimidation of teachers and to ignore the best interests of students and parents. You may wind up concluding it's time for a spring housecleaning of some of our administrators . . . fast.

Sincerely,
Jim Lewis

Board candidates must file Monday

Candidates for the Northville school board have until Monday afternoon to submit nominating petitions to the board's administrative offices.

The April 11 deadline is a month earlier than in previous years because of a new law passed by the legislature and signed by Governor William Milliken.

Petitions must be submitted by 4 p.m. Monday.

Three school board terms — for lengths of one, two and four years — will be decided at the annual school elections held on June 13.

As of Tuesday, only one nominating petition has been submitted although several others have been taken out.

It takes 20 signatures of registered school district voters to be placed on the ballot.

Because of the new law, signatures from more than one municipality cannot be included on the same petition sheet.

In other words, candidates need separate sheets for school district voters in Northville Township, Northville City and Novi although the combined number can be counted toward the necessary 20.

The lone four-year term that is expiring belongs to Vice President Roger Nieuwkoop who said Monday night that he is undecided about running again.

The one-year term is to fill the vacancy created when Robert Mandell resigned. Douglas Whitaker, who was appointed to fill that seat until the June election, has taken out a nominating petition.

The two-year term is the result of the resignation of former board President Sylvia Gucken.

Martin Rinehart, who had served on the board for six years before deciding not to seek re-election last June, was appointed to fill the temporary vacancy. He has not taken out a nominating petition.

Since Chris Johnson and Marjorie Sliger were elected to the board for the first time last June, it is possible that — following this year's election — as many as five of the board members could have a year or less experience on the school board.

Pressure is discussed

The solution to water pressure problems in North Hills Estates Subdivision in Novi apparently will be addressed after pressure readings are made from the Novi Road-10 Mile water main currently under construction.

That was the report of City Manager Edward Kriewall who echoed the findings of City Engineers Johnson and Anderson.

Kriewall said that the city will have to find out how many pounds per square inch is available at 10 Mile and Novi Roads before making plans to continue it to North Hills.

"Ten pounds one way or another is the deciding factor," he said. "If it's 50 pounds at 10 Mile and Novi, that could do it but 40 pounds would be in the realm where we could not do it."

Kriewall added that if the pressure is not high enough, "We'd be looking at a booster pump at Eight and a Half Mile and Center. It will cost $50-$60,000 and will have electrical costs and be something else to maintain."

The process itself, of course, starts out with tapping the trees. Brugeman notes a cut has to be made upward so the sap will flow down. The cut has to be made in one of the right places on the tree supposedly under a large limb or butrus where the sap wood is the thickest. The Brugemans have 22 taps which not only allows them enough sap water for their own purposes, they also give it away to neighbors to be evaporated down.

A lot of sap water is needed too. To make one gallon of syrup it takes 40 gallons of sap water. The set-up the Brugemans use requires that the sap water be only three inches deep but with a lot of exposure to the air so as it boils, the sap water evaporates quickly.

It takes five hours of boiling before there is any noticeable difference say the Brugemans. Because of the 18-hour process, Brugeman has to get up about every two hours from bed to tend the fire and add more sap water. The sap water has to be added at just the right time and in the right amounts so that it does not cool off the sap water in the pan and stop the boiling process.

When the sap — by now a weak syrup — nears the end of the process the Brugemans take it inside the house and finish it on the electric stove in kettles so that regulated heat can be used.

"As it is boiling and ready to bottle it's difficult to bottle it at just the right consistency. If it's too thick (by waiting too long to take it off the fire) it tends to form a sugar at the bottom of the jar," says Mrs. Brugeman.

When the maple syrup is finally in the jars it's ready to use and, according to Mrs. Brugeman, "We've changed our eating habits because we use it many places where we'd normally use sugar, like on cereal.

"The kids really love it on fresh snow. It's a treat for the kids because it's something different."

Brugeman agrees, noting that his favorite use is on French toast. "you can also take plain yogurt and flavor it with maple syrup. That's something you won't find in the store."

Brugeman concedes his memory fails him a little bit as to the last time he bought syrup in the store. And he admits it may be a long time before he does it again.

They're active, leisurely people

By DENNIS KEENON

True or false:
—The majority of persons who own condominiums are likely to hold professional or managerial positions.
—The average household income of most condominium owners exceeds $25,000 a year.
—Most condominium owners participate in active hobbies, such as bicycling, tennis, golf, skiing, fishing, boating and sailing.
—The majority of condominium owners take two or more vacations annually.

If you answered true, true, true and true to the above, you not only score 100 percent, you also have a profile of the average condominium owner in southeastern Michigan as developed by Tom Demery, publisher of Leisure Living, a new magazine targeted for condo owners.

Demery has been publishing his magazine since December, distributing it bi-monthly to condo owners in Wayne, Oakland and Monroe Counties. His profile of the "typical" condo owner was developed from a survey he ran in one of his issues.

"What the survey showed," he said, "is that we're not talking about a bunch of corpses when we talk about condominium owners. Most of them are very active people who enjoy leisure living."

What Demery's magazine shows is his belief that condominiums are in Michigan to stay as a viable housing alternative.

The big pitch for condos hit Michigan in the early 1970's. They were heralded as a compromise between single family and apartment living, with the advantages of single family living but without the headaches of upkeep and maintenance.

And then the housing slump hit, and condominiums have been struggling to gain acceptance in the state.

Michael Craine, Livingston County planning director and owner of a condo at Hamilton Farms in Brighton, explains why.

"The midwest seems to be single family oriented," Craine said. "I think it will take a while to accept condominiums as a form of personal investment. I think any problem condominiums may be experiencing is a matter of time rather than any long-term problems with the developments."

Craine said he purchased a condo because it affords him the advantages of single family ownership at a price somewhat lower than a single family dwelling.

"With a condo development, you can get a total package of services," he said. "It's difficult to place a price tag on the services. You don't have to worry about landscaping, maintenance problems, snow removal, mowing your lawn and you may have access to other benefits, such as swimming pool and tennis courts."

Living in condos forces people to become good citizens, Craine said.

"You depend on a group to preserve your own investment and make it grow through an association that runs the common areas in the development," he said.

"There are going to be good citizens and bad citizens, but the association has a set of by-laws that members are to follow. Of course, there's danger of getting gung-ho types who are rule crazy and force problems by getting too regulatory."

Dan McAfee, property manager of the 700-unit Highland Lakes condominium development near Northville, says the biggest advantage of condo living is the freedom and spare time for leisure activities. The big disadvantage, he said, is coping with the close proximity of your neighbors.

"With home ownership you can say, 'I own this and everything around it' but with a condo everything outside your walls is owned jointly, including the front porch."

Demery, the magazine publisher, said there must be an education process on what a condominium is. "The Detroit market," he said, "is still single family oriented."

The biggest problems with condominium living, Demery explained, are people along with parking and pets. But mainly people.

"People don't understand that when you buy a condo you're committing yourself to a lifestyle. You have to understand and respect your neighbor's rights. There's no such thing as 'my property' or 'get off my grass' because it isn't your grass, it's everyone's grass."

"If people would understand that they're buying a lifestyle, they'd get along a lot better living in condominiums."

$3 million headache

Chuckholes are costly

By WARREN M. HOYT

LANSING—POTHOLES ARE MORE than an irritant, say state highway officials, who predict that this year's bill to fix the chuckholes on Michigan roads will reach a record $3 million.

Credit that to the record cold winter, they say.

Besides the $3 million, it will take a few more million dollars to fix the damage to county roads and city streets.

"It's literally money down a hole, but it has to be spent," says Tom Wiseman, chief maintenance engineer for the State Department of Highways and Transportation.

HERALDED as the worst in a century, the winter that's past was one of the best for potholes. They occur when water trapped under the road surface freezes and expands, lifting up

Lawn survival

It's a tough battle

By KATHY COPLEY

When you consider what most lawns must endure, it is amazing that they survive at all, much less look lush and green.

Not only do the grass plants ward off the onslaught of insects and diseases, they spring back after soft ball games and the lawn mower's tearing, and tolerate the general abuse of sporadic rain-fall, intense summer heat, and the frigid conditions of an on-again, off-again winter.

No wonder the poor plants don't always look their best.

Add to these factors the fact that most lawns must exist on the poorest soil in the neighborhood.

We fuss over the right soil for roses and yearly enrich the planting area for vegetables. But once the grass is down, who bothers to replenish the humus or improve drainage? For that matter, few of us bothered to improve the soil before the sod was laid or the seed spread.

Enough sympathy for the poor Poa pratensis and Festuca rubra?

To give a lawn its best shot at good growth, begin now with the kind of care which will the surface. Then with spring, the water contracts, leaving a bubble that cars quickly push in to form the potholes.

Highway engineers guess that potholes will be particularly prevalent this spring on Interstate 75 in Wayne County, I-94 in Macomb County and I-96 in Oakland County.

AFTER TWO DAYS in the Upper Peninsula where the hottest controversy is over Project Seafarer, Governor William Milliken made a surprise early decision to veto plans for the underground communications grid.

Just three days earlier, Milliken had said he would wait for a report from the National Academy of Science on the health impact of the project. Then, he said, he would express the will of the people — which has consistently and encourage strong roots, numerous crowns, and green blades. What this generally boils down to is an early spring mowing to get rid of much of the dead grass, and an early spring fertilizing with a high nitrogen fertilizer to promote healthy and plentiful green growth.

April and May are the months of most significant growth and are therefore the months of the most significant need for fertilizer. Use one with a nutrient ratio in the neighborhood of 3-1-1 (17-5-5, 28-8-6, etc.)

Modern fertilizers can also contain herbicides to kill dandelions, crab grass, clover, etc. Others contain pre-emergence weed seed killers. Both are good protection against the weeds which are handled more easily now than later in the season when they are well established. 2, 4-D is effective against dandelions, plantain, dock, etc.

There is a direct relationship between the length of the grass blades and the depth of the root system; grass which is 3 inches long above the ground has a root system which extends 3 inches into the soil. Leaving grass 2½-3 inches long is a good balance between good looks and good growth.

Never cut more than one-third of the total grass length at one mowing. Blades manufacture the food necessary for growth and cutting more than one-third the length in less than 7-10 days severely limits the plant's ability to produce food. In the period of spring's active growth, the lawn may need mowing every 4-5 days.

Which brings up the time-consuming part of mowing—to bag or not to bag the clippings. Leaving them returns their nitrogen and humus to the soil through decomposition. It also returns diseased grass to the soil to continue the cycle of disease. Michigan State University recommends leaving the clippings, so take it from there.

Stripping the altar

Father Leslie Harding of Holy Cross Episcopal Church at 46200 West 10 Mile in Novi is assisted by Lora Lee Longhurst, sacristan, as he prepares for the ceremonial stripping and washing of the altar which will follow the symbolic washing of feet resoundingly been against the project.

But Friday (March 18) Milliken formally said "no" to the Navy's plans in a telegram to Navy officials. Aides said it was clear to the governor that the people of the U.P. would not change their minds, and that the Navy had its heart set on Michigan.

EARLIER, on March 15, new Navy Secretary W. Graham Claytor Jr. told Milliken by letter that Seafarer was vital to national defense and the U.P. was the best place for it. He told Milliken it had "an extremely high priority."

Milliken was assured several months ago that he would have veto power over the project, but it's not clear whether that will hold up.

NAVY OFFICIALS say Seafarer, planned to allow communications with submerged submarines, has been studied for seven years and found to be safe for humans and the environment. Its installation already has been blocked in Texas and Wisconsin.

Of favorable sites remaining, Michigan is best and cheapest, they say. To build and operate the grid for 10 years in Michigan will cost about $593 million, they say, compared to $837 million in Nevada and $718 million in New Mexico.

SOME LAWMAKERS are upset that a state board has been too strict about enforcing a recent law to make all buildings accessible to the handicapped.

So the lawmakers, members of the Senate Business Committee, have vowed to scrutinize every appointment Governor William Milliken makes, to the Barrier-Free Design Board and others.

THE LEGISLATORS have gotten complaints from constituent businessmen who said that the board required them to: provide an elevator to handball courts, provide an elevator or other means for handicapped persons to use a pedestrian overpass and provide a ramp to a stage at a Grand Rapids topless go-go joint.

"There are some things here that wouldn't make sense to a 10-year-old kid," fumed state Senator Michael O'Brien, D-Detroit.

Members of the board responded that they had given some exemptions, but the law was the law.

"The Gospel Road", conceived and produced by Johnny Cash and his wife, June Carter Cash, will be shown April 10 (Easter) at the South Lyon Assembly of God Church, 62845 Eight Mile Road beginning at 7 p.m.

The film is a unique blend of scripture-based narrative, an abundant supply of specially written songs, and a series of in-depth character portrayals, with Israel itself as the mixing bowl. The public is invited to attend.

Conservation and fund raising are the compelling reasons behind the paper drive which is being mounted next week by the youth fellowship groups of the New Hudson United Methodist Church. Dates are all day April 12 and 13. The youths will be loading a semi-trailer at the rear of the building with old newspapers. Contributions of newspapers are appreciated any time and may be left in the storage trailer or shed behind the church at your convenience. If newspaper pick-up is required, call 437-3795 or 437-6367.

In addition to conserving pulpwood through the recycling of paper, the paper drives also help the groups raise money for various activities.

The Reverend Fred Prezioso, pastor of Epiphany Lutheran Church of Northville Township, will instruct classes on self awareness at the YMCA in Plymouth beginning April 18.

The classes will be held at 8 p.m. on Monday nights and Wednesday mornings at 10 a.m. Baby sitting will be available on Wednesdays. Participants will learn how to achieve more satisfying relationships with others through the use of assertiveness, communications and problem solving skills, transactional analysis and behavior modification.

Interested persons should call the YMCA, 453-2904, for further details.

This is "Easter Promise Sunday" at First Baptist Church of Northville with a membership goal of 201 set. The Sunday school at 9:45 a.m., Superintendent Richard Ruffner announces, welcomes all ages from nursery through adult.

The Northville-Plymouth-Livonia Chapter of the Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship is sponsoring a Fellowship Prayer Breakfast at 8 a.m. this Saturday in the Miles Standish Room of the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth. Men and women of all faiths are invited.

Claude Lawson, spirit-filled South Lyon police officer, associated with Open Door Christian Church in Northville, will speak on "Reality of the Holy Spirit". Donation for the family-style breakfast is $4.00. Reservations may be made by calling either 349-0006 or 349-6446.

Geith A. Plimmer, London, England, will explain the Christian Science way of worshipping God in a public lecture at the First Church of Christ Scientist, 414 South Walnut Street, Howell, on Thursday, April 14, at 8 p.m.

He is a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship and will speak here at the invitation of First Church of Christ Scientist.

Mr. Plimmer was formerly a schoolmaster in New Zealand and his native Australia, and a joint headmaster in England. He left the teaching profession some years ago to devote his full time to the practice of Christian Science.

The title of his lecture is "Christian Science: The Christian's Best Friend."

New phone directories out

The telephone directories are getting more colorful every year.

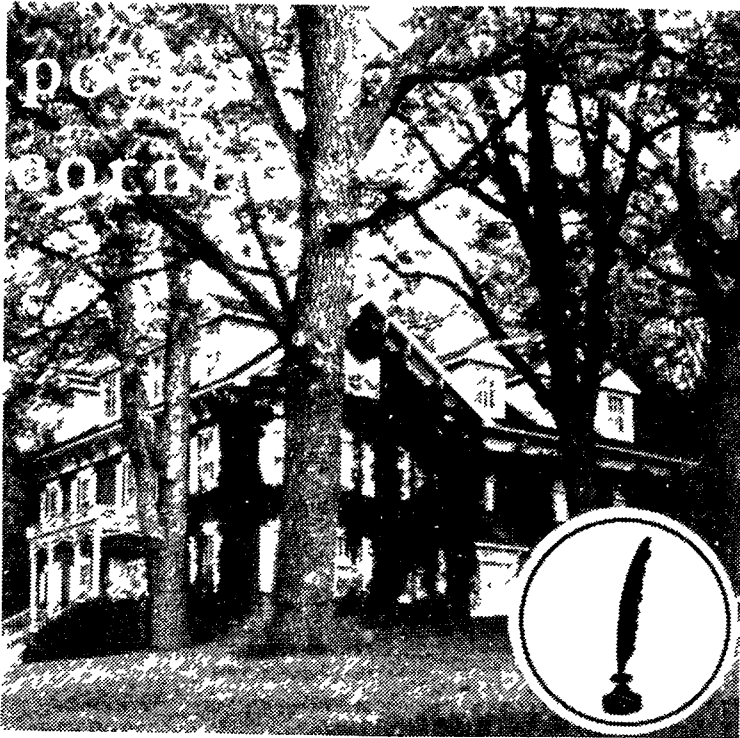

In the new West-Northwest area telephone directories, to be distributed here beginning April 1, there are the traditional white pages with the regular telephone listings; the Yellow Pages with new black alphabetical tabs and some green pages indexing the classified sections as well as consumer tips.

Also, the covers of the new directories have a colorful theme this year, replacing the historical "personalities" on last year's books.

There are nine contemporary scenes of Michigan locations, visual expressions of the state's motto imprinted at one corner: "Si quaeris peninsulam amoenam circumspice." (If you seek a pleasant peninsula, look about you.)

Michigan Bell is the first company in the Bell System to begin using the alphabetical tabs on its Yellow Pages, reported Haze Wilson, company manager for the Northville-Nowi area.

"The tabs make it more convenient to find classified advertising headings," Wilson said, adding that they make it easier and quicker "for your fingers to walk through the Yellow Pages."

Spring Fable

The lamb and the lion came in together With March in the middle and all kinds of weather;

*The lion purred slyly while the lamb did his stuff
And then roaring fiercely, began to play rough,
But the lamb called his family to give him some help,
And at last the fierce lion ran off with a yelp.*

Charles E. Hutton

Recollection

people laughing, noisy with chatter.
Somewhere in the depths of my awareness
I recalled something of a memory... at one time I had been part of the same experience... with relatives and family...
when I was a child.*

But now only time remains where every now and then I catch a memory... and am richer for having experienced again in a different way.

Pat Kotlarczyk

Spooned Surprise

*A halved grapefruit
Is a yellow flower
Petaled to segments,
Not on a bower
But on a plate;
A morning surprise
The golden sunflower
An eater's spoon plies.*

F. A. Hasenau

The Road

*There's always one more road that calls to me;
A crooked, dusty road that has no end
Is taunting me. In summer every tree
Points onward to the next around the bend.
It matter not that I've nowhere to go;
The feeling in my heart o'er rules my mind
And forces me along: I can't say no
To this command, for it is not unkind.
Don't think I leave for something you have done;
Your life, my dear, is here, and you must stay.
I wish you always peace and love, dear one;
But I have restless blood I can't allay.
You ask me if I'll ever find a home;
But I believe that I must always roam.*

Ruth Burlas

No Accolades

*Our daily lives we go about not trespassing. Unapplauded from nine to five,
we wait our turn in line and eat the medium ordered rare.*

*Without consent
by pollsters we are classified:
quoted in words we never uttered;
given pleasures we never chose.*

*For the good of the team,
our discontent we pacify and trudge with weary feet the extra mile.*

*For all of this,
we pass through life unnoticed and receive no accolades.*

Jo Bango

Assurance

*Even though our lives seem less Than our hopes had once conceived,
Though our deeds do not express
All the goals we would we would achieve;*

*If our ways seem less than perfect,
'Tis not because we haven't tried;
If, sometimes we're inconsistent,
Truth continues at our side.*

*The unguarded turns are many
On the roadway that life takes—
But we don't condemn our destiny
If we've made a few mistakes.*

*We are thankful for the gift
Of opportunities to try
To touch a star, or help uplift
Another to the sky.*

The Light Touch

by ANN L. ROY

Did you hear about the little boy in school who went to the bathroom — he returned and said he couldn't find it. So the teacher gave him directions and still he couldn't find it. So the teacher asked an older boy to act as guide. The two returned a bit later. "We finally found it," said the older boy — "He just had his pants on backwards."

Slim: "Which do you think are more affectionate blondes or brunettes?"
Jim: "I don't know. My wife's been both, and I couldn't tell the difference."

Fourth honeymoon

It's day of distress for vet

Newlyweds enjoy honeymoon celebration at VFW post

"You wanna know why the flag is flying upside-down?" asked the guy on the other end of the line.

"Well, I'm gonna tell you anyway," he continued while voices in the background urged him on.

And that's how this newspaper learned why the flag was flying at half-mast, upside-down at the Northville VFW Post 4012 on Friday.

"It means 'distress', don't you know," said the caller while the glasses clinked.

"What's the distress... what's the distress. Well, buddy, you don't know nothin' do you.

"Ain't this April Fool's Day? Okay.

"And ain't this the day that the oldest member of our VFW post gets himself married?

"Well, okay then, if that ain't a 'distress' I don't know what is!"

And that's how this newspaper learned that Everett (Mac) and Alana McCollum of Redford Township were married Friday.

Widowed three times and now having set sail with his fourth wife, McCollum agreed with his VFW buddies that Friday was indeed a day of distress.

Reached at the VFW post later where he was celebrating, the bridegroom laughed and said, "At 77 I don't know if I can take many more of these honeymoons!"

Merle Hoag, commander of the post, wasn't smiling.

"Nobody authorized that business with the flag, and it certainly was not called for or correct. I'm trying to find out who did it," said Hoag.

Windowpanes of Spring

I look from my window... the street telling me the whole story—spring fever.
Children running up and down the sidewalks so ecstatic in their sunny and warm world of pleasure.
The air caresses the earth...
bountiful with the expectancy of the forthcoming season...
Feelings show happiness as hearts turn over new leaves as it is time to bring in the next new beginning.

Pat Kotlarczyk

Tomorrow

Each day turned in;
each day tunes out...
and my senses turn toward my awareness of existence
all around me.
Each day cherished, experienced and shared with things around me makes me find that tomorrow's treasure is having today lived well.

Inner Move

The old willow tree
sways to the wind, boughs squeaking lightly...
and within the air
I feel my senses give in to the whole being of life.
And it brings me here
to my special place at the lake...
to write this poem.

Pat Kotlarczyk

Just A Minute

Do you have a little time
In the workings of the day
To think about tomorrow
And the part that you will play?

Is your optimism needed
By a friend to see him through
A problem that confronts him,
If he should turn to you?

To help an ailing friend
Who may only need your presence,
Or a moment you could spend

As you listen to his cares,
Though he mentions but a few
And you find he's more concerned
Over others, even you?

"2 days a month helps pay for our 4 on the floor."

"The pay wasn't the only reason I had for joining the Naval Reserve, but I've got to admit that monthly check comes in mighty handy. Especially in this day and age."

Good pay. It's a good reason to join the Naval Reserve. But it's only one way of making your experience count.

When you join the Naval Reserve, you'll also get the satisfaction that comes from doing an important job. And doing it well. If you left active duty with a critical rating, we'll try to get you back in the Reserve and working in that same rating. You'll do the job you were trained to do, with an opportunity to do it even better.

Life insurance is another extra. Just $3.41 a month buys $20,000 worth of insurance. You can't beat that price anywhere!

But there's more. You'll once again be eligible for Exchange privileges. As well as knowing that time spent in the Reserve builds toward a retirement pension.

So what's the catch? You have to work one weekend a month, plus two weeks during the year on active duty.

But if you think you can spare the time, you owe it to yourself to find out more. Just call or visit the Naval Reserve unit nearest you. And find out what your monthly check will be.

New club turns back calendar

Horse riding enthusiasts in southeastern Michigan have turned back the calendar at least half a century by creating an organization that will stress the basic horsemanship skills of bygone cavalry days. These skills are called combined training, and include tests in dressage (French word for horse schooling), cross-country riding over obstacles, and show-ring jumping. All three events will be combined in each of six one-day schooling shows scheduled this summer in southeastern Michigan. The group creating organized combined training in Michigan was formed recently (March 28) in Ortonville. It is called the Michigan Combined Training Association, and Ray Holland of West Bloomfield Township was elected president.

Other officers are Bob Hutton of Metamora, vice president; Mrs. Marcia Cardoza of Ortonville, secretary; and Mrs. Kathy Arrandale of Troy, treasurer.

This year's program will be launched May 6 with a Combined Training Clinic at Hadley Hills Stables, Ortonville. It will be conducted by Hutton, British Horse Society instructor and former professional at Bloomfield Open Hunt Club.

A membership drive is underway, and those interested in joining the MCTA are urged to contact Mrs. Marcia Cardoza at 1344 Hadley Road, Ortonville, Mich. 43462 (313) 627-2356.

THE ROAD TO SUCCESS

The road to success can be the Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps. Because when a student graduates from college under this program, a commission as an officer in the U.S. Navy is waiting. Then, comes a responsible, well-paying job. A job with a future. A job offering advanced technical and educational training. And a job as a Naval Officer can be anywhere in the world.

If you know of young men or women planning to attend college, tell them to look into Naval ROTC. High school juniors should apply in the spring and seniors in the fall. There are full scholarships available, covering tuition, fees, uniforms and textbook expenses, and paying a $100 a month, tax-free, subsistence allowance. For more information call 800-841-8000, toll-free, anytime. In Georgia, call 800-342-5855.

BRIGHTON'S CANOPY RESTAURANT is cited as a top family dining spot in the April Motor News magazine, James Campbell, Automobile Club of Michigan Livingston County manager, reports. The April Motor News is devoted to Michigan and highlights the state's top restaurants, resorts, scenic attractions, natural and man-made wonders and scenic drives, Campbell notes. "The Canopy still is said to be the best place to eat between Detroit and Lansing, and is well worth a stop," Auto Club's 1.2 million reader-members are told in an article entitled "Eleven Fine Eateries-Times Four, Plus." "This restaurant offers pleasant atmosphere, good food and cocktails," the article reports.

Sports still not 'the thing to do' for Northville girls

Title IX may supply the legal impetus, but there are other obstacles that must be cleared before girls' varsity athletes reach the same plateau as their male counterparts.

Steve McDonald knows that. The second-year Northville girls' track coach is in charge of a sophomore-dominated team that is only half as large as last year's team.

The small turnout can be partially traced to the new grade structure which places freshmen (er, freshmen) in the junior high school and, thus, makes them ineligible for varsity competition.

"Ninth graders could help this team." But there's another, more pressing problem.

While being a jock automatically makes a boy a "Big Man on Campus", athletics is still not a particularly prestigious thing to do in many schools, including Northville.

As girls advance in high school, they begin looking for jobs and discovering boys. Boys, of course, also start working and dating but they are more likely to put sports ahead of a job and their varsity letter is no hindrance to their social life.

"Unless a girl is pretty exceptional, she's not going to stick it out through her senior year," said McDonald. "It's going to take time to build up rapport where girls' sports are accepted both by the community and the girls."

Except for swimming, a traditionally popular Northville sport, girls' sporting events have been sparsely attended.

Participation on the teams is also low as evidenced by the 15 girls on the track team.

suffered through a winless season last fall, losing many games by large margins.

The basketball team has the same problem as other girls' sports in Northville — no effective junior high program.

Junior high boy coaches decry the need for a coach for each grade level. Girls' sports boosters would consider it an achievement if any consistent program at all was established.

Some critics complain that girls' sports aren't taken seriously at the junior high level where, because of a mix-up in hiring, the entire basketball season was missed last fall.

There's a chicken-and-egg argument at work here. Title IX to the contrary, some wonder if it's necessary to promote girls' sports if the girls don't show the interest.

As one former area coach put it:

"When they (girls) show they are willing to practice several hours a day for many years, then they'll have programs comparable to boys'."

That comment came from a male coach. Surprise!

McDonald has witnessed firsthand what may be a capricious attitude to girls' sports. Last year, there were 40 girls on the track team, including 25 freshmen.

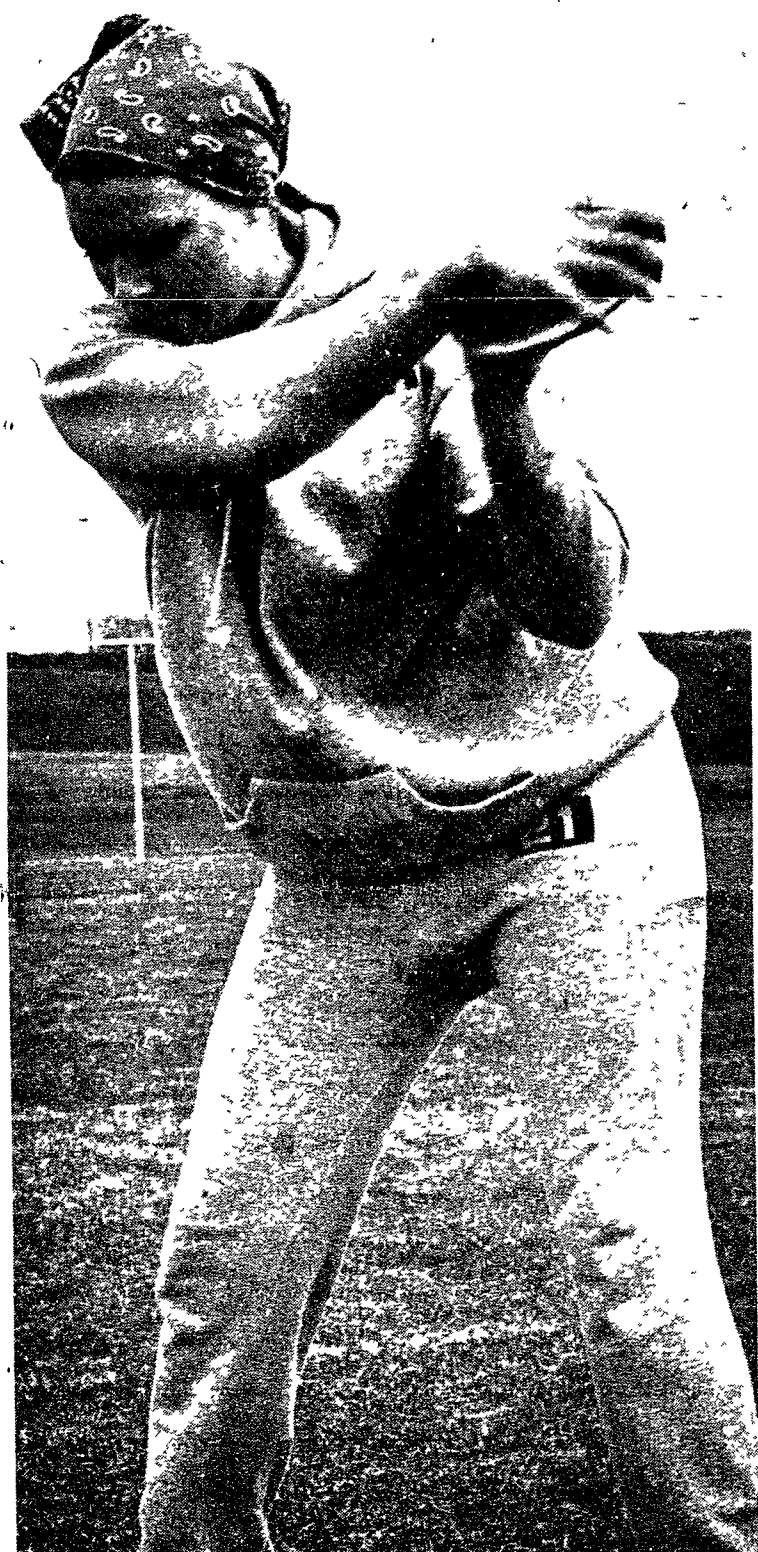

This year, there are only 15 and several of those are newcomers.

McDonald hesitates to blame girls for the dropoff. A solid junior high program, he said, would instill the necessary discipline into girls at an age where it would do some good.

It would also help girls learn skills earlier so they wouldn't be outmanned and discouraged when facing varsity opponents with more experience.

Can girls' sports ever catch up with boys?

"I hope so," said McDonald, "I really do. And I think they will if people work at it long enough."

Captain Linda Prom is the only senior on the team

And that's a pretty brave thing for a coach to say in light of the fact that the Mustangs won only one meet last season.

But things have changed since last year.

First of all, Northville High School was restructured from four grades to three, robbing the track team of any promising freshmen.

Second, the ranks have dwindled from about 40 last season to 15 this year. It's a young team, too, with one senior, a handful of juniors and many sophomores.

Third, among last year's graduating seniors was Denise McDermott who competed at the state level in the shot put.

But all is not bleak, especially in the senior contingent which consists of one person — captain Linda Prom.

"We're looking for big things from Linda," said McDonald. "She holds two school records — the 220 and the discus — and she hopes to break both."

Junior Lisa Raycraft, an enthusiastic middle distance runner, gives the Mustangs strength in the half-mile and the mile.

Two sophomores round out the nucleus of the team.

One is Amy Pery, who set the school two-mile mark last year as a freshman. The other is Ann Dayton who looks strong in both the hurdles and the 440.

These four, along with several others, will be competing in three or four events to try and compensate for the lack of depth.

Two more juniors — Liz Pixley, who's been a pleasant surprise in her first year out, and Mary Lilburn — supply help in the sprints.

Among the sophomores are Leslie Magdich, hurdles and sprints; Connie Coutts, long jump, high jump and sprints; Liz Smith, 440 and 880; Janis Jones, shot and discus; and Britt Evans, shot and discus.

Kim Kratz, a sophomore miler, broke a bone in her foot while playing volleyball and may not return to the team until the end of the month.

Although the numbers are discouraging, McDonald said he has a "pretty good outlook, and so do the girls. I know the girls who are out are ones I can count on."

Ann Dayton takes hurdles in stride

Track interest grows at Novi

That sound you hear coming from Taft Road north of Ten Mile might be the construction of a Novi track team. In the past, it's fair to say that the Wildcats have not burned up the opposition. Last year, for instance, a win over Clarenceville was their only triumph.

Numbers, mostly, has been the Novi problem. Last year, there were strong individual performers — including graduates Bryant Hammond in the hurdles and Ben Galyon in the shot put and discus.

But a few firsts and seconds don't add up to much when the opponents are taking the other two places in dual meets. And now that the first four places are counted, depth is even more important.

This year, thanks to a number of returning sophomores and an influx of promising freshmen, Novi is beginning to build that depth.

Not that the 30 out for track equal the 45 or 50 that coach Del Munson thinks is necessary to challenge Saline and Brighton for league honors.

But early practices have Munson feeling that third or fourth place is more than just a passing fancy.

One of the reasons for his optimism is co-captain Tom Morris, a junior "who can do anything he wants to do," said Munson.

Morris holds the school record in the 220 and is a good bet to break the 6'4" mark in the high jump before he graduates.

Andy Raddant has already set the league record in the long jump (21'4") and has done well this year at both the Huron and Spartan Relays.

He'll be used in many races including sprints, relays, 440 and even hurdles.

Co-captain Tom Yakel is looked to for help in the shot put, discus and relays. Andy McComas, after a year in baseball, was doing well in the high jump before taking some time off for surgery.

Downs meet ends Saturday

Saturday will be the final night of harness racing at Northville Downs until next fall.

The current 85-night season, which turned out to be 84 nights because of a storm, has been plagued by bad weather.

Margaret Zayti, assistant to Executive Manager John Carlo, noted that the Downs had only one "good weather" Monday night. And Mondays are particularly important to Northville Downs because the Windsor track closes Mondays and the local oval is without competition.

"We had a total handle of $623,000 on Monday, March 7 — a record for any night," Mrs. Zayti reported.

Despite the weather, the Downs is enjoying a 3.6 percent increase in mutuel handle over last year. The nightly betting average through last Saturday (the 78th night) was $362,867.

Attendance is lagging behind last year's pace at a rate of 5.5 percent with a nightly average of 3,100 fans.

But it's the freshmen and sophomores that have Munson thinking about the future.

Tops of these is Jeff Johnston, a sophomore who finished fourth in the SEC cross country meet last fall and 34th in the state.

As a freshman, his 10:18 in the two mile was only six second off the school record.

Three other sophomores — Glen Caudell, Rahul Sangvi and Paul Young — add depth to the mile and two-mile events.

Although only a freshman, Mike Iban may be one of the team's top hurdlers. Another freshman, Randy Piccinini, has the makings of a natural runner and should see action in the sprints and relays as should Pat Dudley.

Sophomore Steve Gillick shows promise as a runner and junior Kevin Pyant may be coming into his own this year in the 440.

Another quarter-miler is Tom Michalack, who could also run the 880 and the mile.

Some more freshmen are Tim Morris, sprints and long jump, and Pete McCloud and Dan Kavanagh in both the shot put and discus.

Joe Sylvestri, also a shot put and discus man, will be counted on in a relay.

A couple of seniors, Brad McQuiston and Brad Burnham, are making their first try at track but have looked good at moderate distances.

Dwayne Ridenour is trying a new event — the hurdles — but has the coordination, speed and strength to make the grade.

"We can finish above .500 this year," said Munson. And with a young team, that may only be the beginning.

Northville's track team enjoyed one of its finest Spartan Relay performances in several years Saturday in East Lansing.

The Mustangs made the final heat in five events and scored 12 points to finish 15th in the large field.

Hurdler Dennis Singleton had a great day, finishing fifth in the low hurdles and sixth in the highs.

The big surprise was Kevin Corcoran who "was more determined than we've ever seen him run before," said coach

Ralph Redmond.

Corcoran, like Singleton, survived the preliminaries and the semi-finals, and then took sixth in the 60-yard dash.

The shuttle hurdle relay team of Singleton, Corcoran, Brian Prom and Jim Nowka and the two-mile relay team of John Coram, Robert Gould, Brian Turnbull and John Monagle each made the final heat and took eighth.

Phil Reed was also singled out by Redmond for his three-quarter mile leg of the distance medley.

Monday, despite the cold, damp weather, Northville opened its dual meet schedule with a satisfying 86-61 win over Brighton.

The Mustangs took 10 of 15 firsts and eight seconds to dump the Bulldogs, one of the favorites for the SEC crown.

Because of the weather, there was no pole vaulting.

Classes set for Break

Special programs are scheduled for Northville students who have time to kill over the spring break.

Archery, bowling, a cheerleading clinic, a ballet clinic and open swimming are offered.

Also planned is a one-day field trip to the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago on Tuesday, April 19. The cost is $34.70 and includes supper and a bus ride that leaves at 6 a.m. and returns that night.

The classes listed above meet on various days during a two-week period. Call the recreation department at 349-0203 for details.

Classes will also be offered in the following subjects:

Crocheting, drawing, embroidery, knitting, macrame, model rocketry, origami, paper tole and water colors.

O'Hara pins 3 on way to title

Novi's Brian O'Hara wrestled past five straight opponents last weekend to win the Ypsilanti regional of the U.S. Wrestling Federation tournament and advance to the state finals this weekend in Grand Rapids.

Last week, O'Hara made the regionals by winning the district meet at Bloomfield Hills Andover.

In the regionals, O'Hara pinned three opponents and won decisions over two others.

New date set

Northville's Junior Baseball program scheduled around wet grounds for all but one of the tryouts held Saturday.

League H, for 8- and 9-year-olds, had to be postponed to 9 a.m. on Saturday, April 16 at the Fish Hatchery diamond.

Top skater

Marie Colling, 12, of Franklin Road in Northville Township, outpointed skaters from Michigan, Ohio and Indiana to place first on the cards of all three judges in Saturday's U.S.F.S.A. Tri-State Council Competition in Lansing. The winner of the preliminary figure free-style ice skating title for 12-year-olds is the daughter of John Colling and Northville Recreation Commissioner Marcie Colling. She attends Meads Mill Middle School and represents the Plymouth Figure Skating Club.

Young Novi gymnast finds age is no barrier

The nine-year-old gymnast not only competes with 10 and 11-year-olds, she wins at that level.

Earlier this year, she won the AAU Junior Olympic State Gymnastics Meet in Plymouth. She took first in the all-around with a score of 64.70 and had firsts in the balance beam, floor exercise and vault and tied for first in the uneven bars.

Last week, it was more of the same as she placed first all-around in the Michigan Association for Gymnasts Class I Sectional Meet at Plymouth. That victory qualifies her for the Michigan Association of Gymnasts (MAG) Class I State Meet which will also be held in Plymouth on April 23.

Miss Muzbeck is the current MAG State Champion in the 9-and-under age group. She won that title last year in Grand Rapids.

In February, she won still another title when a 9.1 on the balance beam helped her to the all-around crown in the Michigan Blue Water Conference Championship at Warren.

She was second all-around at the USGF Class II Championships at Lansing.

This weekend, Miss Muzbeck participates in her first international meet when her team, the Bloomfield Hills Acrobats, goes to an invitational at Cambridge, Ontario.

ATTENTION

The Northville Umpires Association is looking for men & women, 18 years or older, in the Northville-Novixom area interested in umpiring adult-youth recreation leagues.

Your new car will self-destruct in three years.

Or less. From rust.

No, your car is not rustproofed at the factory. Any factory. And undercoating alone may do more harm than good.

Have your car rustproofed by Ziebart.

We start by covering the entire underside with a sealant that locks itself in place and remains moisture-proof indefinitely.

Then our factory-trained men use special tools to spray our sealant into all the hidden, boxed-in sections of a car's body, where rust damage begins.

Cage title to Moonkin

Moonkin Toys slipped toward the end of the season, but when the pressure was on, there was no doubt that they were champions of the Northville Recreation basketball league.

In the last regular game of the season — where a loss would have meant a three-way tie for first — Moonkin roared to a 14-point halftime lead and went on to beat Art Moran, 65-59.

Two weeks ago, Moran had set the stage for the showdown by upsetting Moonkin.

This week, there was no upset as Moonkin led 17-10 after one quarter, 39-25 at half and 54-35 after three quarters before Moran came back in the fourth.

Brooklane ace is area's first

The season's first hole-in-one in the area, was reported this week by Brooklane Golf Course at Six Mile and Center roads.

Gordon Parker of Northville used a pitching wedge to ace the 145-yard fourth hole on Sunday.

Witnessing his first hole-in-one were L. Koessl, Bob Koessl and Mildred Parker.

Don Scheffield scored 24 points, 16 in the first half, to pace the win and Jeff Moon added 13.

Moran would have been tied for first if it had won, but the loss knocked it to third.

The top four teams now battle in a single-elimination tournament that could be won by any of them.

Ok Lakeshore center bid

A bid of $39,840 by Re-fine Building Con-struction Company for construction of a community building at the Lakeshore Park in Novi was approved by council Monday night.

"The building inspectors feel that was real reasonable," commented City Manager Edward Kriewall. "We had anticipated on the order of $50,000."

Novi reappoints auditors

Auditors Plante & Moran have been reappointed by the Novi City Council to be the city auditors for the fiscal year 1976-77.

Plante & Moran has been the city auditors for two years. Cost for auditing the 1976-77 fiscal year was set at $12,250, an increase of $1,900 from the current fiscal year. City Finance Director Fred Todd said the increase was attributed to additional work required in water and sewer funds attributed to construction activity, as well as the formation of several new accounting funds such as the special voted fire millage, special voted road fund and the park and recreation funds.

Todd recommended reappointment of Plante and Moran.

The community building, which is a combination bathhouse and community center is being constructed with $38,000 from Housing and Community Development funds. The remainder of the cost is to come from other sources which will be designated next year. Future HCD funding could conceivably cover the remaining cost.

Soaring arches mark McDonald's

If you deserve a break today, then you won't have any trouble finding the famed golden arches at Northville's first McDonald's restaurant.

The twin parabolic structures are hard to miss at the corner of Five Mile and Haggerty roads, just across I-275 from Livonia, where a McDonald's opened three weeks ago.

Planning commission chairman John Dugan has facetiously said the golden arches are the tallest things this side of the Gateway-to-the-West arches in St. Louis.

When a landscaping plan for the restaurant was approved by the planning board last week, Dugan wondered aloud if the shrubbery might "grow over the arches."

At nearly 50 feet high, the pylon sign is about 30 feet higher than allowed by township ordinance and twice as high as most Detroit-area McDonald signs.

The board of review waived the township restriction last April when the company said it needed the higher sign for visibility.

Dugan, who is also chairman of the board of review, was outvoted by John McDonald, John Unger and Ralph Foreman.

The bridge that carries Five Mile Road over the expressway necessitates the high sign, according to a McDonald's spokesman.

Otherwise, motorists coming from Livonia wouldn't have enough time to safely switch lanes and turn into the restaurant once they saw the sign, he added.

McDonald's studies indicate that even though the speed limit in the area is 40 miles per hour or less, the average speed is 50 miles per hour.

The higher sign is now easily visible from the Livonia side of the expressway.

No one has complained about the sign, which is near a similar-sized sign at a golf course. In fact, no dissenting public opinions were expressed at last April's board of review hearing.

And, according to McDonald's employees, the Big Macs, quarter-pounders and french fries have been served at the new location at a steady pace.

Regenesis program

Administrators reply to harassment charge

Two first-year Northville administrators responded to charges of harassment last week as the long and tedious Regenesis investigation approached an end.

Nancy Soper, director of instruction, and Michael Burley, curriculum coordinator, read aloud memos they had prepared for the board after each stated their reluctance about discussing personnel matters in public.

Several board members agreed that the public hearings about the alternative education class might better have ended before the harassment charges were aired.

"We're setting up a precedent we may long regret," said Martin Rinehart. "We're dealing in personal opinions of what happened."

However, he noted that when the teacher, Kathleen Densmore, made her statements in public, it was with the understanding that administrators would likewise respond.

"If the public says they have to know what was said, why I suppose they'll have to hear what's said, because we've carried it this far," said Rinehart.

Basically, Densmore claimed she was harassed by teachers who let "procedure take precedence over educational value."

She said administrators were upset with her for telling parents that the Regenesis class was funded from a state program called Section 48.

The board has largely agreed that there were problems with the applications for Section 48 funds because of possible unfair labeling of the students.

Mrs. Soper supplied the board with information regarding meetings she had with Miss Densmore.

At one point, Mrs. Soper said she told Miss Densmore that "I would not meet with her again without someone else present because neither she nor I could recall exactly what we had discussed with each other."

She said Densmore had taken money for work not completed and had not provided administrators with student selection procedures.

She also said she visited the Regenesis classroom three times and found it empty.

Burley said he had never called Densmore a poor teacher, as she claimed. He, like Mrs. Soper, said Miss Densmore had broken appointments when the administrators were trying to learn about Section 48.

GOOD TIME FOR WINE
—by Jim Roth—

The Moselle River rises in France and winds around Luxemburg. But when it reaches Germany it gives its name to one of the finest white wines of all. The Mosel has 20,000 acres in Germany of steep vineyards, whose nesting grapes produce about 10 million gallons of wine each year. Despite the large output, the wine is generally very good, Mosel-blumchen is one of the best known of the wines produced. It is a very tasty wine, delicate and fruity, and fine as an accompaniment to fish, shellfish, veal, or poultry.

You'll find some of the best known wines, from all over the world, available from us at GOOD TIME PARTY STORE, 567 Seven Mile Road, 349-1477. If you have a preference, however, for a wine we do not have, we will special order and stock it for you. We also have from 2500 to 3000 cases of cold beer on hand at all times. Open: Mon. thru Sat. 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., Sun. Noon-6 p.m.

Debbie's bunny collection's multiplying

By JEAN DAY

Miniature toy Easter bunnies have a distinct similarity to their live rabbit counterparts. They multiply.

Ask 13-year-old Debbie Mynatt, daughter of the David Mynatts of Galway Drive.

For 10 years, Debbie, with help from family and friends, has been amassing a collection of little bunnies made of shells, rocks, pewter, iron, soap, ceramics, felt and even wax.

By last count there are 102 of them. Usually they're kept in Debbie's room. But for the Easter season, the Cooke Junior High seventh grader, is displaying her collection across the mantel of the family room fireplace. There's plenty of room as most are only from one to three inches tall.

The collection started when Debbie was about three years old, her mother recalls, with a pinkish plastic bunny filled with candy. It was the gift of a great-aunt. It still is part of the bunny "hutch," although Mrs. Mynatt calls it "the ugliest in the collection."

"Her grandma also gave her a bunny that year, and we put them on the windowsill and then added more the next year," Mrs. Mynatt says.

"Now, we add them whenever we can find them, and that's mostly at this time of year," say Debbie and her mother.

"This is most people's favorite," Debbie mentions, showing a tiny white plastic bunny less than half an inch high which her mother has mounted in a frame about an inch high.

"But mine," she continues, "is this one I got in an Easter basket at grandma's."

Of plaster of Paris, the frolicking rabbit is clad in vivid pink with black dots and is standing on its head.

Another favorite is a pink-eared, brown clay rabbit made by Debbie's brother, John, when he was five-years old. It's been treasured for five years now.

Bunnies come in many positions and for many uses. Debbie has a bunny ring, a pink, furry bunny on a necklace, a realistically flocked-like-fur brown bunny found last year at Guernsey Farms Dairy that's a bank, and a paper origami bunny folded by a clerk at Hudson's.

The red wax bunny was made by a friend and former neighbor, Sue Seever.

Mrs. Mynatt added an old tin rabbit that was a chocolate mold found in an antique shop.

"My Grandma Mynatt gave me the black coal rabbit with moving eyes," continues Debbie, who knows the history of each piece, pointing out an Avon bottle snow bunny, a crackled-marble rabbit that was a Junior Achievement creation and a grey felt finger puppet made by Diane Ramsey for a craft show.

Travelers have brought an alabaster Italian rabbit, an onyx Mexican version and a shell bunny from Florida.

Debbie has just been gifted with a music box that's a mushroom house for some wooden bunnies. It is 30 years old and had belonged to Mrs. Mynatt's sister, Mrs. Sally Flower of Plymouth.

Another choice item is a white-painted tiny rabbit carved by a mountain craftsman that's a whistle.

Their ears stand up usually, but one has them neatly folded back.

Ears are the casualty of the collection.

"I think they're so delicate that they break," observes Debbie, "but we just glue them back on."

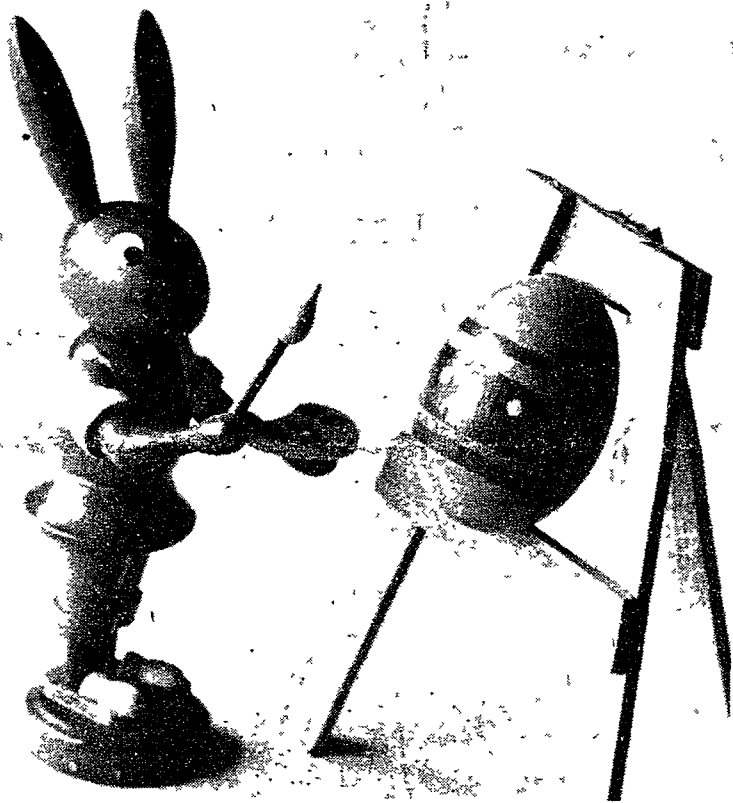

After all, when each is one-of-a-kind, it's worth giving every bunny tender care and, where needed, repair.

Consultant advises mothers

'Don't give kids your goals'

"No, son, I will not buy you a car. I won't deny you the privilege of earning it."

That statement, Mrs. Florence Sharp told a group of Northville mothers recently, was made by her husband to their son.

A speech pathologist of the learning disabled and consultant in the reading program at Farmington schools for 16 years, Mrs. Sharp often is called upon for advice on rearing teenagers.

She used the car incident to illustrate that parents today "take away the very things that made us strong."

It still makes sense in today's world, she told Northville Mothers' Club, that if you want something, you have to earn it. You have to set priorities of needs and wants, and you have to plan for the wants.

"Kids have to have priorities for themselves. Adults work for money, and cash comes from a job well done. Kids can do baby-sitting and lawn care."

Parents can guide their teenagers this way, she emphasized, if they have been supportive and in communication all along.

Mrs. Sharp has earned the nickname of "Dinghy" for originating a "bucket brigade" program in the Farmington schools in which mother volunteers help in the reading program. The buckets are filled with materials with which the volunteer helps a child, who is not her own.

The idea has been copied in many places of the United States and in foreign countries, Mrs. David Longridge, who introduced the speaker, said.

Mrs. Sharp, who takes a low-key, informal approach with both youngsters and adults, observed that "an expert is anyone 25 miles from home and carrying slides."

She drew upon her years of contact with teens; however, to make several observations before giving specific ways to help with reading problems.

"The strongest influence on your kids today," she warned, "is what their peers do. It's awfully hard to live with but true."

"But you can say that you do not approve of one of your children's friends, pointing out why."

She stressed that a parent has to be supportive of his child — "Even if he has a dumb idea, meet him half way."

She also emphasized that "your kids are always your kids," and "you don't turn the kid out. You say, 'I don't like what you do, but I love you.'"

Support, she repeated, is the one thing all parents can give their children. In doing so, she told the club, they must allow for individual differences.

She illustrated what she meant by commenting that she never told her children what each received on their report cards. It was each child's private business.

The parental attitude that creates the greatest harm, Mrs. Sharp feels, is that of putting "your own wants in front of theirs."

"We get upset with report cards," really, because they're a reflection on us when our children don't do well. We have to take a good look, and ask if we have put our own desires, goals and frustrations into our kids."

On reading, the consultant noted that the child who has learned to read at home before starting school may have a strong start with a natural affinity for reading, but that teachers find at sixth grade level they're usually on a par with the others.

Dyslexia, or the impairment of ability to read, she termed "the most severe reading problem. She has faced this herself with a child, she told her audience, and he now carries a tape recorder to class.

For youngsters who have difficulty concentrating on reading she suggested anticipatory reading methods.

"Reading," she explained, "can be most exciting. If a child knows his question is going to be answered, he will read on."

Comprehension, she defined, is looking at the knowledge you bring to

Camp Fire Girls

sew for others

Six Camp Fire Girls in a Northville Adventurer's group led by Gudrun von Recum have just completed a "Finger Fling".

Lisa Dapkis, Lynn Frellick, Cristina Trapani, Rita Turnock, Uta and Vera von Recum — with an assist from the von Recum sisters' brother, Horst — have stitched an original quilt to be given to the Detroit Needlework Guild and Camp Fire Girls Detroit-area Council.

"Finger Fling" was originated as a community service project by the two sponsoring groups. In addition to being fun and a creative learning experience for young sewers, it is intended to be unselfish service to others.

Camp Fire Girls were asked to design and make a useful new item to be given to the needy, explains Mrs. von Recum.

Her girls applied the Camp Fire motif, animals and flowers on squares alternated with bright print material. The completed crib quilt then was edged with a white eyelet ruffle.

The entries in the "Finger Fling" competition will be judged and displayed April 16 and then will be distributed to agencies indicating a need.

The young sewers become members of the Junior Needlework Guild of America and will receive a Camp Fire patch designed especially for the "Finger Fling".

The real satisfaction, however, Mrs. von Recum points out, is in doing something for someone else. Anyone who wishes to know more about the Camp Fire Girl program is invited to call her at 348-9752.

In Our Town

She sells picture of village train—twice

By JEAN DAY

Being in the "right place at the right time" is credited by Heidi Crissey of Northville for her "very Currier and Ives" color shot of the old train at Greenfield Village which was used on the December, 1976, cover of Trains Magazine, a publication for train hobby enthusiasts. Since she retained rights to the photograph, she has now sold the picture to Safetran, manufacturer of train safety equipment, to be on the cover of its annual report.

HEIDI CRISSEY

"I walked out of Clinton Inn," the photographer recalls, "and had just one shot at it, but the picture even had a sleigh in it." Mrs. Crissey still owns the negative and plans to "make a few more maneuvers with it after the report appears next August."

Mrs. Crissey mentions that she's also sold a photo of a railroad switch stand to the national Trains Magazine. Mrs. Crissey says she began her photography hobby working in black and white but recently has been shooting in color.

In addition to being a wife and mother, Heidi Crissey has been an active worker in the League of Women Voters and served as chairman for the annual wine and cheese party last November.

Tivoli Fair, home tour overlap

For the first time, two big fall events are being scheduled concurrently. Northville's annual Home Tour on Thursday, September 22, also will be the opening day of a three-day Tivoli Fair. Chairman Nicole Anderson of the fair explains that it is hoped those who tour area homes also will want to browse at the fair, which is sponsored by the Northville Historical Society. The society is co-sponsor of the home tour with Northville Presbyterian Women's Association.

This year the fair will be held at Northville Downs and will have space for 100 dealers. Opening day hours will be noon to 9 p.m., September 23, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and September 24, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Milo Hunt is assisting Mrs. Anderson.

Country store workshops begin

"We're going to begin Country Store workshops at 9:30 a.m. April 20 in the Mill Race library," reports co-chairman JoAnn Dalziel this week. While it's still almost six months until the Tivoli Fair, she and Mary Jane Brugeman already are planning projects for the Country Store, which is the historical society's own booth at the fair and is noted for its attractive handmades, including patchwork aprons and stuffed animals.

Right now workshop organizers need colorful calicos and denims as well as sturdy broomsticks for hobbyhorses. Mrs. Dalziel may be contacted at 349-5166 or Mrs. Brugeman, at 349-2659. This year, Mrs. Anderson announces, there is a patron listing for the fair for anyone making cash donations.

Here's free career help

Attention is called to two, free open forum programs to be given next week at Schoolcraft College under sponsorship of the Women's Resource Center by Northville intern Peggy Meyer. "Women in Engineering" will be given next Wednesday, April 13, and "Secretaries: General Office to Executive" will be April 14. Both are at 8 p.m. in Room B-200 of the liberal arts building.

High school and college students are encouraged to attend, says Mrs. Meyer, as panelists will discuss educational requirements, job functions, satisfactions and opportunities in these career areas.

Final Town Hall

Peter Lind Hayes coming Thursday

"For Amusement Only" will be the title of the final program in the 1976-77 Northville Town Hall series to be given by multi-talented Peter Lind Hayes at 11 a.m. this Thursday at the Plymouth Hilton Inn.

PETER LIND HAYES

Few performers have the spontaneity and talent of 68-year-old Hayes. His program will include anecdotes about the famous, comedy skits, impersonations and the up-and-coming field of ethnic humor.

Of the latter, he says, "Isn't it time we learned to relax and laugh at ourselves once more?"

He is known for his ability to mimic and does impressions of Ronald Coleman, Charles Boyer, Rex Harrison, Cary Grant, W.C. Fields and Gary Cooper. He also includes Governor Rockefeller and David Brinkley.

His mother was well known in her day as a vaudeville headliner, Grace Hayes. He began performing with his mother when he was nine, doing an imitation of Jackie Coogan. By the age of 16 he appeared with his mother at the New York Palace.

Jackie Cooper and Jeanne Cagney. It was during his Hollywood stint he met a 20th Century Fox starlet, Mary Healy, and married her after a whirlwind courtship, thereby establishing one of the best known teams in show business.

After World War II, during which Hayes served in the Army Air Corps, they had their own radio and TV shows. He also has been successful as a composer and writer, helping give him the title, "Mr. Show Business."

At this time the Northville Town Hall Awards Committee is asking any charitable organization wishing to share in awards which go to communities supporting the program to present requests in writing to Northville Town Hall, Box 93, Northville.

Sponsored by Our Ladies League of Our Lady of Victory Church, Town Hall divides its profits 50-50 with the league and other charitable groups, Mrs. Arthur Palarchio, who has served as Town Hall chairman for the past two years, explains.

At Thursday's program, she will turn over chairmanship to Mrs. Richard Booms. New executive vice-president for 1977-78 will be Mrs. Donald DiComo.

Other new officers are Mrs. James Beaudoin, recording secretary; Mrs. Michael De Francesco, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Alfons List, treasurer.

Jocelyn arrives

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Hosler of Wixom are proud parents of their first child, Jocelyn Lee, born March 24 at Botsford Hospital weighing four pounds, 14 ounces.

She is the first grandchild for Mr. and Mrs. Morris Heino of Windsor, Ontario, Canada, and for Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Hosler of Northville.

Announce 1977-78 Town Hall

Reporter, star, monologist, balladeer to appear

Reporter Jack Anderson will open Northville Town Hall's 17th season next fall with monologist Betty Jo Hawkins and balladeer Bill Schustik following. The outstanding series will conclude with Olivia de Havilland, Oscar-winning actress.

Announcement of next season's program is being made by Mrs. Richard Booms, who takes over chairmanship of the Our Lady's League of Our Lady Victory Church-sponsored town hall Thursday at the conclusion of the current series.

The lectures and luncheons again will be held at 11 a.m. at the Plymouth Hilton Inn. The first lecture will be on a Wednesday with the following three on Thursdays, as is traditional.

The lecture ticket will be $15 and may be ordered now by sending a check to Northville Town Hall, Box 93. The price, the committee points out, has had to be raised from the $12 of recent past years in order to continue to have first-rate programming.

Jack Anderson

Anderson, who will appear October 12, took over the "Washington-Merry-Go-Round" when Drew Pearson died in 1969 after joining his staff in 1947. He also is Washington editor of Parade magazine and does a syndicated TV news commentary.

His relentless digging has made him one of America's top investigative reporters, but he is nothing like the Hollywood version of the hard-drinking, hard-swearing news hound.

A practicing Mormon, he still teaches Sunday School and delivers an occasional sermon. He does not drink, swear or smoke.

He avoids cocktail parties and is more likely to be found romping with his nine children.

He has been at the bottom of some of the biggest exposes to come out of Washington. His evidence helped to convict three Congressmen of taking kickbacks. Years ago his legwork was instrumental in persuading the Senate to authorize the late Senator Estes Kefauver's investigation of the underworld.

He started out to help the late Senator Joe McCarthy, but became concerned over his methods and summed up his findings in his first book.

Anderson, now in his early forties, frankly, describes himself as a muckraker, but insists his object is reform.

Betty Jo Hawkins

"When Betty Jo Hawkins performs, the audience not only watches, it participates with tears, gentle smiles and loud guffaws. It's an experience — and wonderful." That's how one critic wrote about the gifted monologist who will appear November 10.

Miss Hawkins has a background in theatre, television and radio. After attending college in Texas at Rice and Midwestern, she graduated from the Pasadena Playhouse.

She played the comedy lead of Ado Annie in the London production of "Oklahoma" at historic Drury Lane Theatre for 18 months.

Her credits include leading roles in "Happy Birthday," "The Glass Menagerie," "Streetcar Named Desire," "Blithe Spirit," "Night Must Fall" and "Showboat."

Bill Schustik

Bill Schustik, who will appear March 19, 1978, rapidly is gaining fame as the top performer in his field of historical balladeer. He sang sea chanteys at the White House reception for Indira Gandhi, has performed at Lincoln Center and was featured performer in the Canadian revue, "Love and Maple Syrup," at the National Art Center in Ottawa.

He is the official "Sea Chantier" aboard the square-rigger, "Shanandoah," which has plied the waters of New England each summer. As a history major at Boston University, Schustik did a great deal of research in nautical and American folklore, a pursuit he carries on now as both a vocation and avocation. A traditionalist, he renders the most authentic versions he can find.

"Folk stories and folk songs, whether relating the sweat and strain involved in driving a clipper ship around the Horn, the blood and confusion of Shiloh and Gettysburg, or the more personal whims of tragedy and comedy form a vital part of our heritage," he explains.

Star Olivia de Havilland, one of the world's best loved and most respected actresses will share highlights of her career with her Northville Town Hall audience April 6, 1978.

Miss de Havilland, who has won plaudits for brilliant portrayals in every type of role from beautiful heroine to commedienne to victim of horror or tragedy will be speaking on "From the City of Stars to the City of Lights."

During the 30 years between her artless Hermia in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in 1935 and her subtle predator in "Hush, Hush, Sweet Charlotte" in 1964, she has created some 40 characters on the screen.

Since 1955 when she married Pierre Galante, executive editor of Paris Match, she has been living in France.

In her lectures she tells of her many lives — actress and mother, American and adopted Frenchman — in her own witty style.

Northville volunteer researches

Schoolcraft center offers aid to battered women

The black and blue are gaining advocates all over the metropolitan area. Locally, the Women's Resource Center of Schoolcraft College is leading the effort to aid battered women to come "out of the closet" to improve their lot. Battered women and members of the public will soon be able to pick up at the Women's Resource Center an informational bulletin on the problem. Prepared by Betty Rothbone of Northville, the pamphlet discusses the role of the police and courts, and gives suggestions on alternatives to being a victim. In addition it lists community resources such as crises intervention center and places to go for counseling and legal advice. At the present time these services, plus a sympathetic ear, are the principal help the center can offer. "A refuge for these women would be an excellent idea, but we are not geared for it," said Jean Christensen, director of the Women's Resource Center at Schoolcraft. "A shelter may be a long way away." But various women's groups in the area are working hard to make the idea of a shelter a reality. "Rather than serve as a crisis intervention center, we plan to focus on helping these women get restarted in life," said Mrs. Christensen. "We also hope to make members of the public more sensitive to the problem. It is so large, so immediate and so hidden, and it has not been dealt with. It is a closet issue. Battered women are ashamed to admit that they have been beaten." What the Women's Resource Center will offer these women is the chance to join on-going classes and programs at the school which might be of special benefit to them. "We hope that some social change will occur that will reduce the number of men who hit their wives or girlfriends," continued Mrs. Christensen. "But meanwhile we can offer them career counseling, classes to reveal to them their own potential and all of the services of the Women's Resource Center." She emphasized the message brought to Schoolcraft last November by Bonnie Jordan, a member of the NOW Domestic Violence Project of Washtenaw County. "Typically, these women have little self-confidence," Mrs. Jordan told her audience. "Their self-esteem is low and they are usually isolated individuals." Classes in human potential, Mrs. Christensen believes, could be the first step in boosting the ego of these abused women. Career counseling, leading to job training and employment, could also help to liberate many such women who feel they must remain in a situation of continual battering because they have no way to earn a living. Attending school could pull them out of their isolation.

English visitors describe abused wife shelter at meeting of local women's organizations

"In England there are no bad jokes about wife abuse any more. "You still have them here, though — things like 'when did you stop beating your wife' — and they indicate acceptance of a terrible situation." The speaker is Nikki Hay, who had a part in changing the picture somewhat in her native land and is on a fast tour of American cities to help women's groups do the same thing here. She is traveling companion to Erin Pizzey, author of "Scream Quietly or the Neighbors Will Hear You," a book that tells the story of Chiswick Women's Aid, a shelter for abused wives in south London.

The refuge, Ms. Hay said, was a community center operating on a governmental grant when, in 1971, a woman arrived after being beaten. "She showed Erin her bruises, and asked if she could stay because she could not go home," the visitor from England said. "Erin had known violence in her own life and remembered how terrible it had been to have no one to turn to, so she let her stay." That was the beginning, but the word that there was a place for women to go to escape husbands' tempers soon spread. "Before long the center was crowded with them, sleeping in the corridors, spreading out thin mattresses for their children, because anything was better than going home."

The center received a major boost when a construction firm offered to pay for a bigger location "which we picked out in a couple of days," she said.

The women also brought with them a filmed record of the work of Chiswick center which they hope to put on public television around the country. The film was shown to women from all over the metropolitan area — including representatives from Schoolcraft — who gathered in the

The two visited Detroit as guests of a number of organizations including the Women's Resource Center at Schoolcraft College — seeking to help women abused by their mates. One of those closely associated with Ms. Pizzey in operating the Chiswick Women's Aid shelter, Ms. Hay suggested that those who want to help in this country "need the anger that got us off the ground." It was that kind of anger that launched the Chiswick center, she said, but the success it is able to achieve is based on constant serving up of loving and caring to replace violence in the lives of those who come there.

Warns mothers not to set own goals for children

Continued from Page 1-D the subject. Reading is the difference in what you knew before and then after. Bucket moms, she said, do predictive reading with youngsters. If a youngster knows what the subject is about and guesses to see what will happen, he will want to read to see if he's right. Young people can read their own language, Mrs. Sharp said, telling of an 18-year-old who came to her for reading help. Since his interest was Ending seriously with the comment that young people are most concerned about their lives today, Mrs. Sharp told of one who wrote, "I didn't like the world the way I saw it." "You have to put yourself in their shoes," she urged. She suggested that all women would benefit from reading "Passages" by Gail Sheehy, which says that all life is set up in cycles.

STOP THE PRISON

IN WESTERN WAYNE COUNTY

The proposed 600 inmate MAXIMUM SECURITY prison is no longer just talk. A decision is about to be made, and all indication — from the Governor on down to County Commissioners — suggests that many politicians are favoring establishment of a state prison here.

We have only one last chance to protect our community from this disruptive threat. Continued apathy and complacency have about sold Northville and Plymouth area to the whims of Detroit!

It's time to flex our united muscle. Elected officials can still be forced to listen if they know that the opposition is not insignificant. That's why it is vital that we demonstrate our real strength now. If we don't act now it will be too late.

To show politicians that we mean business a massive people rally will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, April 9 on the grounds of the Wayne County Child Development Center on Sheldon Road, between Five and Six Mile roads, where the prison is planned.

We are aware of the state's needs. But the state and county must recognize our problems as well.

More than one-third of all of Northville Township is already used up by institutions and properties operated by the State, County and municipalities. Of the township's entire 10,700 acres, 3,600 are committed to such facilities as:

- | | |
|---|----------------------------|
| 1—Detroit House of Correction | 5—Hawthorn Center |
| 2—Northville State Hospital | 6—Our Lady of Providence |
| 3—Plymouth Center for Human Development | 7—Maybury Urban State Park |
| 4—Wayne County Child Development Center | 8—Edward Hines Parkway |

Escapees from the various institutions in Western Wayne County and in Northville Township in particular are already creating potentially dangerous problems. Last year, for example, 107 women and 143 male inmates escaped from the Detroit House of Correction. On top of that 271 mental patients, some of them criminally insane, walked away or escaped from Northville State Hospital.

No other community has assumed as large a burden of governmental institutions as has Northville.

Aside from the institutions located here, Northville School District is operating the largest educational program in Michigan for mentally retarded children. Northville volunteered to do this. No other community in the state came forward to offer to educate these youngsters — most of whom are not even from our community.

Not only would the prison adversely affect our residential community, its location right across the street for the state's own institution for mentally retarded children is a potentially dangerous situation. Parents of these children have bitterly protested the prison as well.

We Need Your Financial Help, Too!

Our organization — the Western Wayne County Residents Association — is both non-profit and very "non-professional". For most of us it's our first experience at fighting for our rights in the political arena. It's costing us some money, probably several thousand dollars. If you're on our side, please send a check made out to Western Wayne County Residents Association, Box 49, Northville, Michigan 48167. If we should receive more money than is needed (highly unlikely), we promise to donate it to a worthy charity. Thank You.
