

Township board to go ahead with new library plans

See reduced building size, cost shaving

Despite sharply different views between the township board and the city council, construction of a library building in Northville Township appears certain.

In two-part action last Wednesday, a day after their joint meeting with the city council, Northville Township board members voted to reject all three bids for design-construction of the proposed library building but they also directed the supervisor to pursue the energy-saving design concept of one of the bidders.

What the board has in mind is to scale down the size of the building to more approximate the amount of federal grant money ($137,000) to be received for the building's construction.

Very likely the proposed building will be reduced from its present planned size of 6,000 square feet to approximately 5,000 square feet, a majority of the board agreed.

Although Wednesday's board action was by unanimous vote (Trustee James Nowka was absent), Trustee Michael Wilson made it plain that he will vote against the project when the time comes for awarding a contract if it means providing a library building but reducing the library's service level.

Wilson said he preferred that the federally financed building be put to a different use, rather than jeopardize the library service level.

Other board members were equally adamant that in taking their action they intended that the building be used as a library with accommodations for senior citizens' activities. They opposed changing the use of the building.

The board rejected bids from the three potential contractors: Refine Building and Contracting Company, base bid of $195,000 or $242,000 with all options; Hodge System, Inc., base bid of $202,880 or $213,480 with all options; and Hillver Construction Company, $165,000 base bid or $190,930 with all options.

It is Hodge's energy-saving design concept that interests the township board.

The proposed library-senior citizen building is to be located on the Six Mile Road site of the new township civic center.

It is unclear at this point, given the city's position that it will not permit the library to leave the city's central business district area, what will happen to the existing joint operation of the library system by the city and township.

The city contends that it cannot forfeit a local library or sacrifice the existing service level for its taxpayers, nor can it support a two-library building system if it means increasing costs without a corresponding improvement of the service level. (See related story).

In discussing the proposed new township library plan last Wednesday, Trustee Dr. John Swienkowski acknowledged that the new township library building might not immediately represent a service improvement, but he emphasized that the township building is a good starting point for eventually offering township residents a better level of service than they are now receiving.

The short-run benefit of the new township library building might not be as evident as was the establishment of the township fire department, he said, but the long-run improvement is a compelling reason to construct the building now.

"You have to start somewhere," he and Clerk Clarice Sass argued.

Nevertheless, Wilson cautioned the board that its action could trigger the City gets new mayor on Tuesday

Workmen lay concrete drive at Northville Township civic center where library building is also planned

Voters will fill 3 council seats, too

For the first time since 1958, City of Northville voters will not find A. M. (Mike) Allen's name on the ballot when they go to the polls here Tuesday.

That's because Allen is giving up the mayor's post, retiring from elective office after serving 25 years as councilman or mayor. He will chair his last council meeting next Monday, the day before the election.

Replacing him as mayor will be either Paul Folino or Paul Vernon, both of whom are veterans of the city council.

Not so well known are those battling for two of the three council seats up for the election.

Contestants for two four-year council posts are Louise Cutler, a Northville real estate executive; J. Burton DeRusha, chairman of the Northville Planning Commission; Dewey Gardner, a Northville store owner; John Stilson, a Northville Jaycee officer; and Eugene Wagner, a Northville business owner.

The sixth council candidate, Wallace Nichols, is unopposed for a two-year seat. Next to Allen, he has served longer than any current official.

All of which means the make-up of the new council will change significantly, no matter which candidates are elected.

At least two new members of the council will be elected, joining Nichols (who is virtually sure to be re-elected since he has no opposition) and Stanley Johnston, the only councilman who is not up for election. He has been a councilman for two years.

Seat shuffling is a byword of this election.

Vernon, for example, is risking a seat on the council to run for mayor.

Folino, who would have had to stand for re-election to the council this year, choose instead to run for mayor. And Vernon, whose four-year council seat would not have expired until 1979, also opted to run for mayor.

In Vernon's case, he resigned two months ago, and stepped down from the council, to permit the election of someone to fill the remaining two years of his term. He could have resigned later, which would have meant that the council itself would have appointed his replacement.

Nichols, whose four-year term on the council expires this year, choose instead to run for Vernon's unexpired two-year term rather than seek another four-year seat on the council.

Until Nichols made his decision, it was unclear if the remaining candidates would seek four-year terms or the two-year term. Apparently, they preferred not to face off against the veteran council incumbent.

Despite the competition for the four-year council seats, the focus of this election will be on the mayor's race. Election 1977 represents the first time in many years that there has been any significant competition for the post.

City, township at odds on library

A library system serving both the city and township since the turn of the century may be nearing an end.

Despite pleas of the director of the Wayne County Federated Library System, (WCFLS), neither city nor township officials budged from their conflicting positions at last week's meeting.

At issue is the planned establishment of a library building in the township. (See related story).

The township board, which applied for and was awarded a $137,000 federal grant for construction of a library-senior citizens building, intends to build this new facility on its Six Mile Road civic center site.

Board members suggest that this new building can be used either as a single, temporary library serving both the city and township or it can be a branch library. Either way, they argue, it will represent a more convenient facility for the most populated center of the township.

City councilmen, on the other hand, insist they cannot permit a library to leave the city depriving convenience for its citizens. Furthermore, they emphasize that they cannot approve of a jointly operated library branch if operation of that second building means a diminishing level of overall service for their constituents.

Relative to this latter point, there seemed to be no question that operation of a second library building will necessarily mean either a lesser level of library service or a substantial increase of operating cost to maintain the present service.

Leon Dinnan, director of the WCFLS, told officials and citizens who packed the council chambers that preservation of the existing level of service would be more costly with two libraries.

He recommended the library be located in the "commercial-geographic" center of the community, and, based on the library's current patronage and future growth potential, Dinnan advised against two library buildings.

Relative to its library plans, the township board offered the city two options: a single new library in the township or a branch library in the township.

Supervisor Wilson Grier listed these benefits of the single new library proposal:

- Centrally located for a majority of joint population to be served.
- Ample parking.
- Ability to increase the size of the facility when required.

"If the city in the future builds a master library, at no capital expense to the township, the township will assume a satellite status for the proposed (township) facility," Grier said.

"Cost breakdown of operation will be handled under existing contract formulas, and billing practices currently used by the city to bill the township," he added.

Under the branch library proposal, the supervisor explained that two library buildings would be provided, with the city paying all costs for building, maintenance, electricity, heat, and air conditioning for its

Approach to township's new municipal-police and fire facilities

NEWS BRIEFS

REPAIR of the railroad crossing on Base Line has been completed and motorists are reporting a "smooth ride" over what formerly was "a very rough" experience. The C&O work took about two weeks to complete.

THE FIRST monthly meeting of the Northville school board, normally held on the second Monday of the month, has been rescheduled for next Monday night. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Main Street central administrative offices.

PARENTS AND students who want more information about the Spring trip to London over Easter vacation should attend a 7:30 meeting

Thursday night at the high school library. High school teacher Walt Koepke and his wife are chaperones for the trip and they will be answering questions Thursday.

PUBLIC HEARING on a proposal for removing run-away and truant laws governing children under age 18 will be held for area residents on November 16 at Schoolcraft College at 7:30 p.m.

- Pinckney okays bond issue
- Ex-treasurer gets probation
- Salem's biggest barn destroyed

BRIGHTON — It took three ballots and some consultation with Roberts' Rules of Order, but Brighton Township finally came up with a new supervisor. He is Thomas Walsh, who claimed the right to succeed Jack Wheaton, who resigned, by garnering four votes on the third ballot to Trustee Lawrence Till's two. Walsh had lost to Wheaton by a scant four votes in the August primary.

PINCKNEY — A little less than 40 percent of the electorate turned out to vote here on the school's proposed bond issue to finance school construction. And when the votes were tallied, the bond program had been approved by a wide margin — 1,342 to 874. The $10,975,000 bond issue calls for the construction of a new elementary school in Hamburg Township, in addition to extensive remodeling of the other elementary schools and the high school. A swimming pool and an auditorium also are included in the construction package.

HOWELL — A hunter's stray bullet shattered the leg of an eight year old girl, Charlotte Kenny, as she walked home from a friend's house on Argentine Road. The accident occurred on a Sunday — the day hunting is illegal in Livingston County.

HAMBURG — Former Hamburg Township Treasurer Ellen McAfee unexpectedly pleaded guilty of the lesser charge of making a false statement of public finances, a misdemeanor, in district court. Mrs. McAfee, 66, originally was charged with embezzlement of township funds and co-mingling public and private monies. She was sentenced to two years probation, with the last 90 days, if she is found guilty of another misdemeanor in that time other than a traffic violation, to be spent in the Livingston County Jail.

HAMBURG — September's unsuccessful recall election here could wind up costing township taxpayers around $4,000. That is the word from Hamburg's new treasurer, Kathy Jezowski.

SOUTH LYON — Police and city representatives say they are pleased with an agreement reached on a new contract. The agreement, which took eight months to complete, does not include a pay raise but does include a cost of living clause and a new retirement plan.

LYON TOWNSHIP — Citing insufficient evidence and lack of law, the Oakland County prosecutor's office has decided not to press an alleged case of election fraud against township Supervisor William Smith, his son Bill Smith, Jr., or Clerk Mary Canfield.

SALEM — Vandalism is suspected in the destruction by fire of a huge barn (largest in the township) on Seven Mile Road about a quarter mile east of Pontiac Trail. More than 50 years old it was best known as the Henning barn. It had stood vacant for several years on property now owned by George Schoenrock. The house of the site burned more than four years ago.

COMMERCE TOWNSHIP — Several state lawmakers touring the abandoned U.S. Army Nike missile base here voiced opposition to a proposal that it be converted to a state prison.

NOVI — City Manager Ed Kriewall says the city will likely conduct a special census in 1978 to perhaps gain more liquor licenses. Liquor licenses are available to communities based on population. Estimates of Novi's population today run from 17,000 to 19,000.

NOVI — William Adamo of Northville has been chosen as an administrative assistant in the Novi school system. He replaces James Koster who recently took a similar position in Howell.

NOVI — Eviction notices were served to several residents of Country Cousin Mobile Home park. Those receiving the notices were members of a park group conducting a rental strike to protest park conditions.

NOVI — The 53 year old Oddfellow Hall, which had been condemned, has been razed. It stood on the east side of Novi Road, just north of Grand River.

Similar names are confusing

Subdivision streets vex firemen

A road by any other name is a pain to firefighters and other emergency workers.

Curving subdivision roads that wind through expensive homes and well-manicured lawns may make a pretty picture, but it's also more confusing than the "grid" approach to street layouts.

A burning home can be even more difficult to locate if it's located on Iron Gate in the same subdivision where there is also an Iron Woods.

"At three in the morning, this can get very confusing," said Northville Township Fire Chief Toms.

Another way to make the firefighter's job tougher is to change the name of the street every few hundred yards or so.

"A prime example is Old Bedford in Northville Commons," said Toms.

"It's a big circle with three different names depending on where you live."

Another example of how Toms wishes streets wouldn't be named is in Highland Lakes where there is a Scenic Lane and a Scenic Drive.

"There's a flock of them (troublesome road names) in the township," he said.

It's a far cry from days past when a person could memorize maybe a dozen roads — the "Mile" roads running east and west and the section line roads running north and south — and pretty much know the street directory of the township.

Northville Commons and Northville Colony — located between Five and Six Mile roads east of Northville Road — have more than 20 lanes, courts and drives between them.

And more subdivisions are on their way on both sides of Six Mile Road.

"That's why I went to the planning commission meeting" last Tuesday, he said.

At the meeting, Toms suggested that developers for a proposed 313-home subdivision between Five and Six Mile Roads reconsider some of the road names.

He pointed out a street whose name changed from Waterfall Lane to Crestwood as an example.

The developers seemed agreeable to his suggestion, "but if somebody hadn't brought it up, they wouldn't have thought about it," said Toms.

Continuing his "ounce of prevention" philosophy, Toms said he hopes to promote standard fire hydrants in the area.

Now, he said, fire trucks need to carry a "bagful of parts," in order to adapt hoses to a wide variety of threads and hydrant openings.

"It's enough to drive you up a wall," he said.

Since his trucks generally carry about 1000 feet of hose, Toms would like hydrants placed no more than 350 feet apart.

Then, he said, if a hydrant couldn't be used because it was frozen or otherwise damaged, the next hydrant down the street would still be in range of the fire.

If the hydrants were 600 feet apart, a relay system involving a second truck would be required.

Developers might not like the idea because it would require more hydrants, but it would be worth it to homeowners in terms of safety and lower insurance premiums, said Toms.

The same goes for water mains which, he said, should be no smaller than eight inches.

"The difference between six and eight is not merely two inches," he said.

"The water flow is practically doubled."

Since large-scale development is apparently around the corner for Northville, Toms said now is the time to set requirements for water mains, hydrants and the like.

"If we think about it now, it's going to pay off after I am long gone," he said.

"Somebody's going to look back and say, 'They were pretty smart.'"

Almost completed

It's been a long time in coming for Northville Estates residents, but resurfacing of the subdivision's streets is now, just about completed. City Manager Steven Walters reports that the bulk of asphaltting is done, with perhaps three more days of touch-up surfacing, shoulder work, seeding and surfacing of private drives still to go.

Solar hopes die; rezoning sought

The chance for a place in the sun behind them, Northville Township officials are preparing to rezone 320 acres that were once eyed as a possible site for a national solar energy research center.

The township planning commission heard no objections during a public hearing last Tuesday to rezoning the property from "research and development" to its original "residential" status.

The property, a half of a section bordered on the north and south by Six Mile and Five Mile roads and on the west by Beck Road, was zoned for research in hopes of landing the $20 million dollar Solar Energy Research Institute (SERI).

But since the federal Energy Research Development Administration (ERDA) decided to locate the center in Colorado, the "R" and "D" zoning is "very restrictive," said the township's planning consultant, George Vilican.

Vilican noted that the township originally rezoned the land on the premise that SERI would "encourage the development of very fine housing."

He added that it was always the township's intention for the land to revert to residential if SERI went elsewhere since the scope of the research center could not be matched by private enterprise.

The residential zoning sought by the township allows about two homes per acre to area serviced by public utilities and 1.19 dwellings per acre in areas without utilities.

There were no objections to the rezoning voiced at last Tuesday's hearing. The only member of the audience who spoke was in favor of the plan.

The rezoning will come before the planning commission at its November meeting.

Township advisers, however, were miffed at a letter from the county road commission which said the township should dedicate 120-foot rights-of-way on the three bordering roads in conjunction with the rezoning request.

Existing rights-of-way on the roads are 66 feet.

"The road commission is greatly exceeding its authority in demanding such a thing be done," said engineer William Mosher.

"It's ridiculous," agreed Vilican. "The two things aren't related."

The rezoning will be the final chapter in a township dream that began when ERDA first considered Michigan as a possible SERI site.

Northville Township was one of five Southeastern Michigan locations in the running for the research plum which was expected to generate 3700 jobs.

Once Colorado was selected for SERI, it was announced that Michigan would receive one of several, much smaller regional research centers.

That, most likely, will be located in the American Trade Center in Southfield.

Northern Michigan forest is classroom

Conservation taught with self-reliance

When Ron Meteyer tells his students that the great outdoors is their classroom, he's not kidding around.

Like early in October, for instance, when the Huron National Forest served as the place of learning for the fall conservation class.

Actually, that was the ninth semester in a row that Meteyer has taken the class to Northern Michigan where they spend three days based at the YMCA's Camp Mahn-Go-Tah-See, north of Hale.

The trip is no lark. Meteyer makes a lot of demands — up at 6:30 a.m., no hair dryers, make your own camp fires and cook your own food — but attendance for the voluntary excursion has been 100 percent the last five or six times.

"Word has pretty much gotten out that it's worth the time and effort," explains Meteyer, who teaches four sections of biology and coaches the boys swimming team in addition to the conservation class.

Meteyer's class may be a product of the 1960's. It certainly is an ecologist's dream, covering such environmental topics as watersheds, air pollution, population, water quality, endangered species, solid waste disposal and energy.

Students, who must get a "B" in biology just to be considered for the class, are responsible for three textbooks and a bulletin board full of current news items.

The students' reading comes to life with the help of six field trips scheduled each semester, the longest of which is the northern journey.

"Before the trip was over, students were able to study forestry practices, wildlife management projects, watershed management procedures and soil conservation techniques," says Meteyer.

During the three days and two nights, different groups of students are responsible for preparing meals which leads to some "very interesting culinary experiences," laughs Meteyer.

The students, however, find that they are dishing out self-reliance as well as the evening chow.

"Some things I had to do during the trip I had never done before, like building a campfire and cooking over it," said one.

"I think that giving us short times to get things ready, and not leading us by the hand, helps us to realize that we could do those things," said another.

Meteyer may not lead them by the hand, but he does crack the whip. From the time two jam-packed vans leave Northville on Sunday, Meteyer has a full scheduled planned.

The ride north takes six or seven hours because there are stops to study glacial effects, sugar beet and soybean areas, in the Thumb, a strip-mining operation near Tawas and northern Michigan's forestry heritage.

Upon reaching Camp Mahn-Go-Tah-See, the class almost immediately begins a soil erosion project which serves several purposes.

First, it allows the students to stretch a bit after the cramped van trip.

Second, it's a "hands-on experience in soil erosion." This year's class found tiny white and red pine seedlings and planted them on a hill with an erosion problem.

Third, the project gets the students to work together, the first step of a camaraderie that generally prevails throughout the trip.

The next morning, Meteyer is pounding on doors at 6:30, telling the students they have 15 minutes to be ready to go.

It's not that the likeable Meteyer is such a taskmaster, it's just that there's so much to do.

On Monday, for example, students trekked into the woods to observe a recent forest fire area. From there, they saw the Five Channels Dam Hydroelectric Plant, Iargo Springs where they could drink water swelling up from the ground, the AuSable River, the AuSable Sand Dunes and the Lumberman's Monument.

All that was before lunch.

In the afternoon, they visited timber harvesting areas, Foote Site Dam on the AuSable where they saw Chinook Salmon spawning runs, Wurtsmith Air Force base and the Coast Guard Station at Tawas.

Conservation class visits Tawas Coast Guard station

There were also several nature hikes and then it was time for dinner.

The evening was more relaxed with a visit to the home of Homer Roberts, a naturalist and ornithologist, who talked about the Kirtland Warbler.

Before heading home on Tuesday, there were trips to a saw mill and the Kirtland Warbler Management Area.

Despite the rigors of the class and the trip, more students want to take the class than there are openings

Science teachers screen the applicants and Meteyer says that for every qualified student who is accepted, there is another one who is left out.

Expanding the class would probably require more money and probably another teacher since Meteyer says he spends as much time preparing for Conservation as he does for his biology courses.

The cost of the trip north is split between the school district and the students, who pay $22 apiece. Most seem to think it's well worth it.

"I enjoyed every moment of the 2½ days we were up north," wrote one student on comment cards passed out by Meteyer.

"The trip was more educational, interesting and fun than school ever could be," wrote another.

"Theory has it that teachers don't care about their students, but you really proved it wrong," said a third.

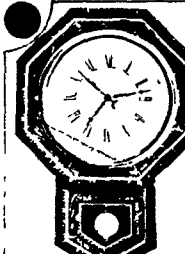

The ultimate praise may have come from the student who said, "There isn't anything I would leave out, not even getting up at 6:30."

Hopes buoyed

Construction of the upper levels of Allen Terrace senior citizens apartment complex is progressing rapidly, boosting hopes of city officials that the 101 unit building on the hillside south of the high school will be ready for occupancy in February. The superstructure of the third level at the west end of the massive complex is in place.

Many senior citizens already have placed deposits on apartments, guaranteeing them living quarters upon its opening. The majority of apartments will be occupied by city residents, former city residents or relatives of city residents. Some, however, will be township residents.

Concert honors retiring conductor

Livonia Youth Symphony Society will dedicate its first concert of the 20th season to Albert Larson, recently retired conductor of its youngest group, the String Orchestra.

This concert featuring all three youth orchestras will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday, November 13, in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School, 46191 Joy.

Larson has been the inspiring conductor of this youngest symphony orchestra in Michigan for 12 years. His patience and humor are credited with encouraging many young musicians to appreciate and love their musical talent.

When he felt it necessary to retire due to health, his resignation letter contained the following statement which conveys this dedication that launched so many successful musical careers though concerts and weekly Saturday morning practices:

"Thank you for the privilege of conducting my 'jewels' through many happy hours. At times, I'm sure even Bernstein would have been envious."

A violinist himself since a very early age, Larson understands the problems of the budding musician. He has taught public school music for 27 years, 14 of these in Livonia where he continues to contribute his talents and inspiration to young students.

The LYSS Board especially invites all former members of the society to attend this free concert in honor of their mentor, Albert Larson. Judith E. Culler, Redford, is the new conductor of the String Orchestra whose members are from the fifth to seventh grades. This is one of two performances during the six-concert season when all three LYSS orchestras participate.

The Junior Orchestra, conducted by Robert Randall, is the intermediate group from junior and senior high school.

Lester Farkas of Northville conducts the advanced orchestra which is the Youth Symphony.

Many of these high school musicians have been with the orchestras for eight years. They include Northville students.

There is no charge for this concert.

This year the chapter of the teacher honorary will hold its meetings in various locations.

Get shots or else!

A number of Northville children will be getting a shot in the arm soon. If they don't, they won't be going to school next week.

That's because all students entering the Michigan public school system for the first time must be immunized against certain diseases.

Northville, in cooperation with the Wayne County Health Department, has set a Monday deadline.

By then, students must either produce proof that they have taken the shots or show that they have at least started the immunization process.

Basically, the students affected have transferred to Northville from out of state or private schools.

Dewey Gardner for Council

4 year term

I believe a candidate for City Council should have given careful consideration to the responsibilities of the office long before seeking signatures for nomination.

This I have done by attending Council meetings for the past six months, taking notes and gaining valuable knowledge of present situations and future needs of the community.

I believe a candidate should know his motives for seeking the public office of City Councilman.

I do know mine. I want a healthy, happy, prosperous community. As a responsible, dedicated individual I believe I can help bring this about. This is not a contest for prestige or personal gain. It is not just a Monday night meeting job.

I believe a candidate should already be actively involved in the affairs of the community.

This I am doing, I am serving as Treasurer of the Northville Chamber of Commerce. Serving on the Historical District Commission. Secretary of the Downtown Business Development and Expansion ad hoc committee. I am also an active member of the Northville Rotary Club and a past president of the Retail Merchants Association.

I believe I have given careful consideration, I am motivated and qualified for this important office.

Million thanks for festival help

By ANN L. ROY

As I sit down to write this article, the first thought that comes to my mind is the recent International Festival and all of the wonderful local townfolk that unselfishly donated their time and talents to help the Chamber of Commerce make Northville's first International Festival a huge success.

The volunteer list is long and it is impossible to thank all of these fantastic people individually. I am going to take this opportunity to thank the following people for their services on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce.

A special thanks to the following chairmen and their committees for the many hours they spent performing their assigned duties.

If you know of someone that we have overlooked — believe me, it wasn't intentional. Please call and give me the name of that person.

Although the Festival was the highlight of the Chamber's activities last year, your Chamber directors have been actively engaged in many other projects for the betterment of our community. We all worked hard but it was a pleasant experience for us.

Yet, the question has been asked, "What is a Chamber of Commerce and how does it function?"

The Chamber is made up of people, volunteer people who serve without salary, people who are dedicated to the betterment of our community. These people could be retail merchants, service people, shop workers and others from all across the spectrum of our working community. They are people who believe in themselves and in their community, people who give freely of their time and sometimes money for the betterment of their hometown. People who are willing to share their time and talents, who are willing to attend meetings, make plans for community projects and have the ability to see these projects through to a successful conclusion and all this for zero salary.

Their salary is the satisfaction each receives in seeing their community improve through the results of their efforts.

Here are some of the projects your directors have accomplished this past year.

1. Had monthly meetings, public forums, guest speakers.

2. Printed and distributed to members at no cost — Chamber membership, business directory, no solicitation cards, city and township of Northville business registration lists, organizational book.

3. We initiated this column "Echoes of Chamber" this year.

4. Supported Anti-Prison Movement with time and money.

5. We initiated and endorsed hospital group insurance plan for members.

6. Compiled an excellent "new member" introductory packet.

7. Increased our membership from 50 members in 1976 to 88 in 1977.

8. Promoted and shared in a 50-50 drawing with the retail merchants.

9. Erected a "Chamber of Commerce" sign in front of city hall.

10. Sponsored band concerts in city park for six weeks in summer.

11. Manned a Chamber of Commerce booth 4th of July at Mill Race.

12. Hired a paid staff part time director last June.

13. Mailed application blanks to the entire business community.

14. Financially supported Santa Land, street decorations, Midnight Madness, One week's radio time WJR for opening week of Twelve Oaks Mall.

15. Chamber staff has answered and resolved business complaints.

16. Chamber staff has in answer to requests mailed out hundreds of pieces of literature about our area.

Your Northville Community Chamber of Commerce is your local tourist bureau and focal point for information about our area. Please support them, they are doing for you what you don't have the time to do.

Dues billings have been mailed out. Please put that check in the mail today. If you are not a member and are desirous of joining your towns Chamber of Commerce, please call Essie Nirider at 349-7640.

OOPS! Almost forgot to tell you about our annual dinner which was held at Meadowbrook Country Club on October 26th.

We had almost 100 in attendance — the food as usual was excellent; the champagne toast by Jan Reef was in order and enjoyed by all; elected to the Chamber Bd. of Directors was Marge Cinader, Bob Sellen and Gene Wagner; Mayor Mike Allen received the Chamber's "Citizen of the year" award; the dinner music was refreshing; door prizes were distributed; a birthday cake was presented to Marge Cinader, who was celebrating her 39th birthday, as usual, and yours truly is running around with the foxiest set of earrings in her ears that you've ever seen — gifted to her by the Chamber of Commerce.

Concert set

Saturday

by Ensemble

The Northville High School band's wind ensemble will have center stage Saturday night.

All kinds of music will be on tap for an 8 p.m. concert at the high school, said director Robert Williams.

Jazz, marches, Latin music and much more will be offered as the Northville bands head into an active pre-Christmas schedule.

Four seniors who are fulfilling their conducting requirements will be featured during Saturday's concert.

They are Rick Frost, Viki Purcell, Tim Miner and Amy Vargo.

Upcoming events include the jazz show, the symphony concert and Band-arama.

"This is a super, marvelous band this year," said Williams. "People should really come out and hear them."

Study Bible

The Open Door Christian Church has scheduled a Bible teaching session for 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Northville High School where the church holds its meetings.

A Bible class for women will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Papa Geppeto's.

Seek grads

Area residents who were January or June graduates of the Class of 1947 at Hamtramck High School are being sought for a 30-year class reunion. It will be November 19 at the Rochester Elks.

Graduates are asked to contact Richard (Milczuk) Mills, 879-1129.

Appoint Mary Dumas to NACO committees

Wayne County Commissioner Mary E. Dumas (R-Livonia) has been reappointed for a third term to the criminal justice and public safety steering committee of the National Association of Counties (NACO).

She was also named vice chairman of the subcommittee on law enforcement.

NACO has 12 policy steering committees. All of them study and debate issues of national importance for the purpose of making recommendations that will become part of the American county platform which is the official policy statement of NACO.

The criminal justice and public safety steering committee has been responsible for key public positions taken by the 1600-member association of counties in the area of juvenile delinquency prevention and custody and criminal justice block grants for local law enforcement programs.

"The NACO law enforcement subcommittee is presently making a survey of law enforcement officials throughout the country to determine what new programs have proved effective in their regions," Mrs. Dumas stated.

"We're also seeking widespread support for increased funding to states and local governments for public safety programs — especially those aimed at curbing juvenile crime," she added.

notified by the school. Those who have not complied by Monday will be "excluded from school," according to Superintendent Raymond Spear.

As of last week, there were some school buildings that had ten or more students who hadn't taken the shots. Other buildings, however, had two or less.

The school district is also strongly encouraging physical examinations for all students entering a building for a first time.

This would include students who moved from the elementary to the junior high level this year or from the junior high school to the senior high school.

Novi voters to decide three proposals Tuesday

Novi voters will be asked to express their opinions on three proposals which will affect the city's millage rate when they go to the polls next Tuesday.

According to proponents of the three proposals, however, voter approval of each of the three propositions will enable the city to meet existing needs at a relatively insignificant cost to the individual property owner.

The need is there, they argue. The city will someday in the very near future be in the position of having no other choice but to make the improvements.

Better (and cheaper) now, then later, they maintain.

The three ballot proposals which will affect the millage rates are:

—Shall the City of Novi borrow up to $2,375 million to acquire 71 acres of land as a site for a civic center complex and to construct, furnish, and equip a new police administration building as the first phase of the civic center complex?

In order to pay for the project, the city is asking taxpayer permission to issue general obligation unlimited tax bonds.

—Shall the City of Novi borrow up to $335,000 to pay the cost of completing the construction, furnishing, and equipping an addition to the Novi Library for use as interim city administration offices and future library purposes?

Again, in order to pay for the project, the city is asking taxpayer permission to issue general obligation unlimited tax bonds.

—Shall the City of Novi levy one-half mill for a period not to exceed three years to establish and maintain a parks and recreation program?

Each of those three ballot proposals will appear of the ballot as a result of the recommendation of the Needs and Priority Assessment Committee, a 13-member committee appointed by the city council and comprised of 12 residents and one member of the city administration.

Members of the committee reviewed existing municipal facilities and met with various department heads to determine the city's needs.

Upon completion of their investigation, the committee drew up the three proposals which the city council subsequently voted to place on the November ballot.

Here's a breakdown on each of the three proposals:

Police Building Proposal

The city is asking to borrow up to $2,375 million to purchase 71 acres of land as the site for a proposed civic center complex and to construct a new police administration building.

Approximately four years ago, the Novi School District purchased a 160-acre parcel on the southeast corner of Ten Mile and Taft Roads for the purpose of developing a joint city-school-library complex.

A Master Plan for development of the 160 acres was drawn up and approved. The new Novi High School and municipal library have already been constructed in accordance with that Master Plan.

Approval of this proposal would enable the city to purchase the property it will need to construct a new municipal complex. Further, as a first step toward that long-range plan, voter approval of this proposal would enable the city to construct a new building for the police department.

According to the Needs and Priority Assessment Committee, replacement of the existing police department on Novi Road is a high priority item.

The existing police department building was constructed in the early 1950's and does not serve the needs of the community from the standpoint of safe, efficient operations.

Approximately 60 employees work out of the present building which contains some 2,000 square feet.

The city has already employed the services of an architect to design the new police building if the proposal is approved by the voters next Tuesday.

Mayor Gilbert Henderson maintains that the new building could be ready for occupancy in 24 months.

Library Building Proposal

The city is asking voter permission to borrow up to $335,000 to complete, furnish, and equip the new library.

This proposal is also related to the long-range plan to construct a new civic complex on the Ten Mile-Taft Road site, except that it is proposed as an interim solution to the need for municipal facilities.

The library building has already been constructed, at the present time, however, the library only needs about half of its available space.

The plan calls for the city to move into the unused portion of the library for a period of approximately 10 years. At the end of that period, it is estimated that the library will need the additional space.

City officials also are hopeful that the new police department will have been completed and paid for by that time and that they will then be able to pursue completion of the Civic Center Master Plan by constructing a new municipal complex.

In recommending approval of this proposal, the Needs and Priority Assessment Committee noted that municipal facilities are now scattered in seven locations.

According to Raymond Weidenbach, chairman of the committee, the city should utilize available community facilities (such as the unused portion of the library) rather than consider construction of a new city hall at this time.

"Since the library can provide this space in the unfinished portion that is now vacant, it is felt that this would be to the advantage of the community," he said.

The committee also believes that voter approval of this proposal would have a double advantage. In addition to providing space for municipal offices on an interim basis, it would also provide for the completion of the library facility. Thus, when the library finds it needs the additional room, additional renovation costs will be minimized.

Parks and Recreation

The city is asking voters to approve an increase of one-half mill for a period of three years to establish and maintain a parks and recreation program.

Weidenbach reported that the Needs and Priority Assessment Committee believes that the present level of funding for parks and recreation has been inadequate to serve the needs of the community.

Mayor Henderson notes that the parks and recreation budget has grown from $2,000 several years ago to the point where it now is a $15,000 to $20,000 line item in the annual budget.

If voters do not approve the millage increase, the current level of services will have to be cut since the department is presently being operated largely on temporary federal funds, the mayor maintained.

18 Novi candidates seek election

Novi voters will approve or reject six ballot issues, choose three council candidates from a field of 18 and one mayor from a field of two when they go to the polls November 8.

Polls open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m. at seven precincts in the city. The precincts and locations are as follows:

• Precinct 1 — Fire Station 1, 25850 Novi Road

• Precinct 2 — Middle School, 25299 Taft Road

• Precinct 3 — Community Building, 26360 Novi Road

• Precinct 4 — Walter Tuck Fire Hall, 1919 Paramount

• Precinct 5 — Orchard Hills School, 41900 Quince

• Precinct 6 — Fire Station 1, 25850 Novi Road

• Precinct 7 — Village Oaks School, 23333 Willowbrook Drive

The first three ballot issues deal with proposals that require additional finances, the fourth asks for approval of a new city charter and the fifth and sixth deal with whether residents along mile roads should be specially assessed.

The first issue asks for money to buy

71 acres of land from the school district to use as a civic center complex site and to construct a new police station.

City officials point to crowded conditions and inadequate holding facilities as reasons why a new police facility is needed.

The 71 acres is also expected to be the site of a new city hall when such a building is constructed.

The second ballot proposal asks for money to complete the library. The plan is to utilize the new library expansion completion as city offices for about ten years.

City offices are now scattered in seven locations but the appointive Novi Needs and Priority Assessment Committee decided available community facilities could be used rather than building a new city hall.

If the proposal is approved by voters, the plan is to give the facilities back to the library after ten years.

The third proposal seeks ½ mill for three years for the purpose of establishing and maintaining a Parks and Recreation program within the city. The Needs Committee judged the level of funding for Parks and Recreation as inadequate.

The fourth ballot issue asks voters to approve or reject a new city charter. The proposed charter contains three basic changes from the present charter: a primary election for council, the consolidation of 20 departments into three departments and the clarification and expansion of the city manager's powers.

Backers of the proposed charter point to an increased efficiency of operation as the main reason it should be passed. Supporters say the primary would allow citizens to make a more informed choice of candidates.

Opponents to the charter say it would be costly and could give the city manager too much power. The consolidation of departments, critics contend, would create three unelected bureaucratic heads at the cost of about $30,000 apiece.

The primary election has also come under fire in some quarters as being an unnecessary waste of time and money.

City Attorney Dave Fried emphasizes that the changes the proposed charter would bring are unclear and subject to council interpretation.

Ballot proposals five and six ask whether residents along mile roads should be specially assessed for road improvements. The fifth proposal is an advisory question and the sixth actually asks whether the city should sell special assessment bonds for the road paving program.

The mile road assessment question was forced after a petition was circulated to bring the matter to a vote. The city proposed an assessment of $10 per front foot against property owners along mile roads.

City officials say defeat of the proposal would bring financial complications to the road program and may cut back the number of miles to be paved.

Voters will also choose three candidates from a field of 18 for city council. Four candidates have withdrawn, but their names will remain on the ballot.

Incumbent councilwoman Pat Karevich heads the list of candidates. She has served on the council for the past two years.

Dedication's Sunday for Holy Family parish

Saturday will mark a special day in the history of the Church of the Holy Family and the 650 families of the Novi parish.

On that day, 11 a.m. dedication ceremonies of the new church at Ten Mile and Meadowbrook Roads will mark a milestone for Father Kevin O'Brien and his congregation who have been meeting at Orchard Hills School since September, 1974.

Growing from a small parish to its present number, many of the families have their roots with Our Lady of Victory Church in Northville. To mark those ties, the Northville parish will serve a luncheon immediately after the ceremonies Saturday afternoon.

Officiating at the dedication of the new edifice and principal celebrant in the mass will be John Cardinal Dearden. Together with other priests including Father O'Brien, Cardinal Dearden will begin the ceremonies by blessing the outside walls of the building.

Entering the sanctuary, the inside walls followed by the tabernacle, altar and cross will be blessed in the tradition-steeped rites.

In the one year since ground breaking, the families of the church have seen their new home rise in what Father O'Brien termed a "very real parish project."

Father O'Brien said that $195,000 has been pledged to the building fund by the families over and above their regular Sunday offerings. The fund raising drives have been spearheaded by seven men and their wives.

"The celebrant's chair, altar, drapes and lectern are being made by members of the parish," said Father O'Brien. In addition, there is a 35 member choir with some 60 parents involved in coordinating and teaching Christian education.

"Families serve mass together rather than using altar boys," commented Father O'Brien adding that parish families are very active in all areas of the church.

Assisted by the church building commission, the architectural firm of R. J. Hapley designed the church with a seating capacity of 800 people.

League releases land use findings

A Consensus report was announced this week in the wake of a two-year comprehensive study of land uses in this area by the League of Women Voters of Northville, Plymouth, Canton and Novi.

Purpose of the study was to try to determine the best use of property for the greater number of people, according to the league's publicity chairman, Jan Stacy.

"Competing demands for land are increasing every day — for housing, community development, recreation, agriculture, commerce, industry, mining, and open space," the league pointed out.

In 1973 the U.S. had a population of over 210 million, and the most modest census projection predicts 40 million more people by the year 2,000.

"Where will they live and work? If our government is to be responsive and remain democratic, citizens must participate in the decision-making process. The league believes we can help our professional planners and public officials determine what is needed and how the land will be used."

In considering land uses, the league reached a consensus, which supports:

- Efforts by local governments to provide for citizen participation in the earliest planning and regulation stages

- and throughout the planning process;
- Coordination of regional and local planning to assure the best possible use of local land. To encourage inter-governmental cooperation between school, local government, etc., as is necessary.
- Efforts by the local governments to regulate development so as to ensure adequate open space and quality of life for its citizens.
- A master plan which is adequate, current, and insures orderly growth.

To achieve the development of sound planning concepts, we support:

- A growth policy which established priorities.

- Periodic review of the master plan, with input from the community. To assure that the master plan is adequate, it should be evaluated in terms of changing growth and transportation patterns, current economic and social factors, development in neighboring and surrounding communities, and changes in zoning.
- Provisions for open spaces, parks and other recreational lands in local neighborhoods as well as for general use.
- Requirements for sign control, noise abatement, traffic control, land-

I. PAUL TERRY

I. Paul Terry, 61, of 825 Carpenter, a Northville resident for 40 years, died unexpectedly October 28 at Botsford General Hospital.

Services were held at 1 p.m. Monday at Casterline Funeral Home, Incorporated, with the Reverend Guenther C. Branstner of First United Methodist Church where Mr. Terry was a member officiating. Interment was in Salem Walker Cemetery in Salem.

Mr. Terry, an electrical engineer for Detroit Edison Company also was a member of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 4012 in Northville. He was a Navy veteran of World War II.

He was born February 17, 1916, in Coatesville, Indiana, to George and Myrtle (Ray) Terry.

He leaves his widow, Norma L.; two daughters, Mrs. John (Martha) Wiley of Berea, Ohio, Mrs. Tony (Betty Jo) Welsh of Coldwater; a son, Michael Paul of Garden Grove, California; sister, Mrs. Earl (Ruby) Chappell of West Branch, brother, Otis of Laguna Hills, California; and four grandchildren.

TILLIE HORSFALL

Tillie Horsfall, 90, of 600 Horton, died October 24 at Livonia Nursing Center after an illness of two months. She had been a Northville resident since 1920.

Services were held at Casterline Funeral Home, Incorporated, at 1 p.m. last Wednesday with Pastor Ralph Palmer of First Baptist Church of Northville, where Mrs. Horsfall was a member, officiating. Interment was in Oakland Hills Cemetery in Novi.

Mrs. Horsfall was the mother of Owen Horsfall and Mrs. Vera Buckles of Northville and of Mrs. Alvera Wood of Wayne. She had six grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her husband, William, in 1952 and by four brothers and two sisters.

She was born July 27, 1887, in Bay City to Edward and Bertha (Giesler) MacKelvey.

EDWARD J. FORNWALD

Services are being held at 11:30 a.m. today in Cheboygan for Edward J. Fornwald, 61, a former Northville resident for many years who moved north in 1974.

Father Francis Partridge is officiating at the service at Nordman Funeral Home with interment to be in Calvary Cemetery of Cheboygan.

Mr. Fornwald died unexpectedly October 30 in Cheboygan. He had been warehouse superintendent at Wayne County Child Development Center and was a member of Lloyd H. Green American Legion Post 147 in Northville.

He was a member of St. Mary's Church and Knights of Columbus in Cheboygan.

He was born June 27, 1916, in Cheboygan County to Henry and Anna Fornwald.

He leaves his widow, Catherine; a brother, Lawrence, and sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Wood, both of Canton.

The family suggests the memorials be sent to the Coronary Care Unit of Community Memorial Hospital in Cheboygan.

CHARLES KONOPASKA

Services for Charles Konopaska, 54, of 310 Yerkes, were held at 11 a.m. Friday from Casterline Funeral Home, Incorporated, with Father Alphonse Babonas officiating. Interment was in Rural Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Konopaska, who was head of the maintenance department of Smith School in the Plymouth Community School system, died unexpectedly October 25 at St. Mary Hospital.

He had been a Northville resident for 27 years and was a member of Our Lady of Victory Church.

He was born February 27, 1923, in Brantford, Canada, to Herman and Veatrice (LaFortune) Konopaska.

He leaves his widow, Florence; three sons, Charles David of Florida, Frank Herman and Michael Stanley, both of Northville; a brother, William of Fowlerville; sisters, Mrs. Laura Davis, Mrs. Carrie Hartmann, both of Fowlerville, and Beatrice Baker of Illinois; two grandchildren. He was preceded in death by two brothers.

ORVILLE J. DUDLEY

Services for Orville J. Dudley, 77, of 16901 Beck Road, a retired farmer who also operated a horse-boarding stable, were held at 11 a.m. last Thursday at Casterline Funeral Home, Incorporated, with the Reverend Lloyd Brasure of First Presbyterian Church in Northville officiating. Interment was in Thayer Cemetery in Northville Township.

Mr. Dudley moved to Northville in 1940. He died October 25 unexpectedly at St. Mary Hospital.

He was born November 29, 1899, in Redford to William and Sally (Garner) Dudley. He was preceded in death by his wife, Nora B., who died November 30, 1973.

He leaves a daughter, Mrs. Betty Asher of Northville; brothers, Ted of Northville and William of Detroit; three grandchildren, Lee, Pattie and Mike. He was preceded in death by a brother and a sister.

HARRY BILLINGS

Harry Billings, 75, a Plymouth Township resident, died October 20 at Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn after a long illness.

Services were held at 10 a.m. Saturday at Ross B. Northrop and Son Funeral Home in Northville with Pastor W. Ross Rainey of Lake Pointe Bible Chapel officiating. Interment was in Michigan Memorial Park in Flat Rock.

Mr. Billings came to the area four years ago from Monroe. He retired in 1965 as a foreman with Detroit Edison in Monroe with 39 years of service.

He was born May 15, 1902, in Dundee, Michigan, to Thomas and Lucy (Briggs) Billings.

He leaves a brother, Lawton, of Plymouth Township. He was preceded in death by one sister.

ROBERT L. WATSON, SR.

Private services were held for Robert L. Watson, Sr., 78, of 20268 Longwood Court, a former resident of Pittsburgh who moved to the community a year ago, October 28 at Casterline Funeral Home, Incorporated.

The Reverend Lloyd Brasure officiated. Interment was in Rural Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Watson died October 26 at St. Mary Hospital. He was the father of Mrs. Eugene (Joanne) Cook of Northville and of Robert L. Watson, Jr., of Sewickley, Pennsylvania.

Pain in the neck

"That's not what I meant when I said we could go necking," is what the young lady might be saying if, indeed, she were a young lady, which she isn't. "She" is actually Senior Andy Bemish who won the Most Original Costume contest during the second lunch hour at Northville High School on Halloween Monday. The werewolf, who won the Most Frightening Costume competition, is Junior David Lucas.

News from Lansing

Many help defeat prison proposal

By R. ROBERT GEAKE
State Senator

Governor Milliken's recent announcement that the state was finally abandoning efforts to locate a state prison at the former Wayne County Child Development Center, and, instead, to use property already held by the Detroit House of Correction, signaled the successful conclusion of a long and strenuous campaign, in which many people played important parts.

It would probably be impossible to know the contribution that each person made to the massive, sustained community effort, but the following people played particularly key roles and are especially deserving of our notice and appreciation:

Blake Northrup, Bill Miron, Bill Phillips, Eunice Switzer, and Jim Littel, who organized and spearheaded the citizens' group which held rallies, raised money, rented buses, staged demonstrations, and kept the entire movement going during the long and difficult struggle;

Northville Township Supervisor Will Grier who, along with Clerk Clarice Sass and other township officials held meetings, wrote letters, passed resolutions, organized constituents, gave press conferences, and did everything possible to keep the pressure on;

Mayor Mike Allen, Mayor pro tem Paul Vernon, and other city officials who likewise provided energetic leadership to the cause;

The management and staff of the Northville Record, particularly Bill Sliger, Jack Hoffman, and Rich Perlberg, who kept the issues in the forefront of public awareness through forthright editorials, meticulous news coverage, and pilgrimages to Lansing;

James Karoub, one of the most influential and respected lobbyists in Lansing (and also a resident of Northville Township), who used all of his skill and experience to discourage precipitate legislative action on the original proposal while encouraging the consideration of alternative sites;

Superintendent of Schools Ray Spear, who used his special knowledge of the potential negative effects of the original proposed site on school property and school children to add muscle to the campaign;

Congressman Carl Pursell, who returned to Lansing from Washington to meet with the governor, state budget officials, and his former colleagues in the Senate on behalf of Northville;

State Representatives Richard Fessler, Roy Smith, and (after his election) Jack Kirksey, who kept their colleagues busy considering alternative sites, high renovation costs, and every other reason they could think of for not locating a prison at the Center;

Wayne County Commissioner Mary Dumas, who battled almost single-handedly at the Wayne County Board of Commissioners to delay and finally block its original plan to sell its Child Development Center land to the state;

All of the countless citizens who contributed money, attended rallies, and wrote letters to the governor, the legislature in Lansing, and the Wayne County Board of Commissioners protesting the proposal, but especially to those unselfish residents in the southwestern part of Northville Township, who did all these things fully aware that the most likely alternative site at DeHoCo was actually nearer their homes.

Congressional Searchlight

'Carter confused'

BY CONGRESSMAN CARL PURSELL

Despite all the fervor of his latest campaign to save his "energy" bill, President Carter is still missing the point of his own argument.

His program won't do the job. That's why it's had trouble on Capitol Hill.

Not because the oil companies are engaged in some evil or greedy attempt to sell out the American people for the sake of their profits, as Mr. Carter charges. And not because Congress doesn't want a real energy program.

The President himself implied with his veto threat that we might be better off to start over than pass a woefully inadequate program that lulls us into thinking we've accomplished something.

Mr. Carter's vehement rhetoric has the ring of someone who has just received a lesson in how Democratic Presidents are supposed to "talk tough" and use big business as a "straw man" to build popular support for programs.

But the President is confusing personal success in getting HIS program passed, with real national success in achieving energy independence.

The more members of Congress look at his program, against the backdrop of the very real and serious energy problems we face, they realize we need something more.

All we have up to now is a program to pile up energy taxes in an attempt to force widespread conservation. And there's no compelling evidence that it will even do that.

We need, and don't have, a clear-cut plan of what will happen to those taxes once we impose them.

We need, and don't have, clear proposals to generate new supplies of fuel.

We need, and don't have, a major effort to develop solar energy, laser fusion energy, and other alternative sources which must quickly be brought on line if we're ever going to escape dependency on foreign supplies.

It is precisely because Congress is trying to find these comprehensive answers, and is not finding them in the Carter program, that the President is encountering resistance.

We need hard proposals to vote on, not a "trust me" approach to the most critical challenge to our nation's future.

No matter what comes out of the House-Senate conference on the President's plan, there's going to be a great deal left to do.

- Environmental planning which provides for land conservation, noise and flood control, and programs for air pollution and solid waste disposal. We support regional, rather than purely local, planning and cooperation in these areas.

- Good transportation planning to ensure ready accessibility to various community activities.

- Identification of critical lands for future conservation and/or preservation including land suitable and necessary for agricultural or horticultural use; sensitive or unique environmental areas such as wetlands, wildlife habitats, flood plains or natural wooded areas, historical sites, structures or areas.

- Acquisition of land for public use to ensure adequate recreation and open space for local residents.

- Requirement of environmental, social, and economic impact statements as part of site plans on major public and private developments.

- Provision by the local government of information on social, environmental and economic needs of its citizens.

- A sufficient amount of non-residential zoning to provide an adequate tax base and ample employment opportunities for citizens in the community.

- Design of commercial areas so they are compatible with surrounding developments. The health, safety and welfare of the local citizens should be promoted through use of buffers such as berms, landscaping or green belts.

Council, township board at odds facility, while the township would pay all of these same costs for its facility.

Operation cost of the two-library system, he added, would be shared under the current formula.

In support of its township library plan, the board pointed to a proposed budget prepared for it by Dinnan, which indicated a net cost of operation at $47,896. That cost, the board argued, is only slightly more than the township's current cost ($46,058 or 58.1 percent of the overall $79,684 cost.)

City councilmen, however, emphasized that the budget provides for a substantially reduced service level.

Board Trustee Mark Lysinger said he couldn't be concerned with the council's contention, that he could go only by the budget figures presented to the board by Dinnan.

When pressed by Councilman Stanley Johnston, Dinnan said that a division of the existing book stock (30,000 volumes) between the city and township (either as independently run libraries or a jointly operated two libraries) would mean "nobody's going to end up with a balanced collection."

"Won't the service be greatly decreased?" Dinnan was asked. "Yes, that is correct," he replied.

He added, however, that this problem could be minimized somewhat by a twice weekly transfer of books demanded at one library but located at the other.

Mayor A. M. Allen summed up the position of the council this way: "Almost from year one there has been a library in the so-called downtown area of Northville. That's the way it has been, and that's the way we are going to keep it. We are not about to move it or become a satellite."

He added that the council "has no objection if you want to build a satellite library or operate a separate library system," but the city cannot cooperate in such a plan if it means "an end to our library."

Supervisor Grier told the mayor that the township is offering the city an opportunity of keeping its library while one is provided for the township. Each, he said, would be responsible for maintenance of their own facility but both would be operated jointly.

"We would like a library to serve our most population area for the same reason the city wants a facility for its people," said Grier.

Allen said he would have to be shown documented cost figures for a jointly operated two-library building system before he could be convinced of its economic practicality.

Referring to Dinnan's suggestion that the best location for a library is in the central business district, Councilman Johnston asked the board if the CBD doesn't represent a value to the township.

"It definitely helps your community (city)," responded Township Treasurer Richard Henningsen, suggesting that its value to the township is minimal or non-existent.

Relative to council arguments that the central business district is more conducive to library patronage because "people come to town for more than just going to the library," Supervisor Grier suggested a Six Mile Road township would discourage township residents from going to Livonia to use libraries and shopping centers there.

Library Commissioner Jay Wendt cautioned board members that a division of the book stock could result in an additional cost of perhaps $150,000 to give both libraries up to the current collection level.

Dinnan, however, said the cost would not be quite as great as suggested by Wendt. He estimated the cost at about $8.50 per book (or about of $125,000).

The WCFLS director said it would be unwise to think that book donations would reduce the cost. The wiser course, said Dinnan, would be to program the purchase of the books over a seven to 10 year level until the stock is back to its present level.

Dinnan also advised officials that in addition to rebuilding the book collection they must also consider the cost of replacement. A library must expect to discard five percent or more of its books annually because of wear or because they become outdated.

Trustee Dr. John Swienkowski reasoned that if two libraries each have smaller patronage than the present single library a smaller number of books might be required in each. Dinnan concurred that the book need would be reduced but it wouldn't be proportionate to the patronage reduction.

Concerning book stocks for two libraries, Grier suggested costs might be minimized if the township library was used as a "neighborhood" type facility containing less expensive "popular" books and if the city library was used as the main "reference" facility containing the more expensive volumes.

With this kind of division, which Dinnan said is not uncommon in library systems, the same books need not be provided in both libraries, said Grier.

Pointing out that the township plan calls for no city money for construction

He seeks enforcement of school fire codes

State Representative Richard Fessler (R-Union Lake) has introduced legislation that could give local fire officials greater powers to eliminate dangerous conditions in school buildings.

Currently, Fessler points out, local fire chiefs or firemen have no authority to enforce fire safety regulations in school buildings because these buildings are part of a political entity separate from the local unit of government.

Fessler said he introduced this bill, H.B. 5580, after the situation was brought to his attention by Martha Hoyer, Mayor Pro-Tem of the City of Novi and Novi Councilwoman Pat Karevich.

"I developed the legislation at the urging of these two Novi city officials and discussed it with them two weeks ago. Mrs. Hoyer and Mrs. Karevich agreed that the bill solved the problem they are concerned about and I introduced it this week," Fessler said.

The bill allows each local unit of government in Michigan to seek state fire marshal certification of a local fire chief or fireman and, once certified, gives this individual the same powers as the state fire marshal in enforcing local violations.

"This is permissive legislation, meaning that local units do not have to separation of the existing joint library service and lead to a reduction of service of township residents.

"We'll be providing a new library building only half filled with books. You are going to place a burden on (township) taxpayers for more books," he warned, noting that splitting up of the existing book stock with the city could mean that upwards of $125,000 of additional township money would be needed to return the library to its present service level.

Emphasizing that he does not want to lose the grant monies, Wilson said he also does not want to lose the existing joint service.

He wondered aloud why the board cannot consider a different use for the building or possibly consider a community swimming pool. He contended that with some "real thought" an acceptable, useful purpose for the building could be developed.

Dr. Swienkowski replied that grant regulations carry constraints on what can and cannot be built with federal money. He was not certain, however, if a swimming pool would qualify.

Concerning the delay that will result with the scrapping of bids "and starting over," Supervisor Wilson Grier and Mrs. Sass assured board members that the government would accept such a delay and that it would not jeopardize the grant.

Two persons in the audience — Library Commissioner Frances Mattison and Deputy Clerk Margaret Tegge — supported the library building concept. However, Mrs. Mattison expressed concern with board intention of trimming it to 5,000 square feet.

The present library offers 6,000 square feet and is inadequate for such things as meeting space for senior citizens' activities, she noted. An even smaller building would compound this problem, she said.

However, board members reminded her that perhaps only half of the number of patrons would be using the new township library building if the city maintains a library in the city's central business district

City to pick mayor

Mayor Allen, who had become a symbol of Northville as much as Mayor Orville Hubbard is synonymous with Dearborn, never really had any serious challenge since 1963.

In the case of Folino and Vernon, the situation is different. Both men have, in past elections, proved popular choices at the polls; both are well known in city government; both have active campaign support; and both have been active in local civic and-or church organizations.

Vernon, who has an edge in governmental seniority, is the choice of Mayor Allen. But Folino, a life-long resident of Northville, has built up a force of loyal friends and he, unlike Vernon, is in business locally and therefore has more local exposure.

Given these assets, the election must be considered a toss up.

Similarly, in the race for council, no one can be labeled a sure winner.

DeRusha, by virtue of his service on the planning commission and the board of review, is clearly the candidate with greater governmental experience. But, popularly, he may not be as well known as some of the other candidates.

Wagner is a previous unsuccessful candidate, so his name on the ballot will not be a new one. He has worked in youth groups locally, is an active member of the Chamber of Commerce, and is in business locally. That business — the pinball arcade in Northville Square — has not been a popular one among adults, however, and could prove more of a liability than an asset.

Of the other two local business people — Gardner and Mrs. Cutler — Gardner has an edge in governmental service, having served several months on the Northville Historical District Commission and he is a recent appointee to an city committee studying revitalization of the downtown area, but Mrs. Cutler has been very active in civic work, is widely known because of her profession, and her husband serves on the planning commission.

Stilson may be less generally known than the other candidates, but he has been very active in the Northville Jaycees and as such is expected to garner support among younger adults.

Polls at Monday's election will open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

The city precincts 1 and 2 are in Wayne County, south of Base Line. Polling place is city hall, 215 West Main Street.

Precincts 3 and 4 are in Oakland County, north of Base Line. Voting is at Amerman School library, 847 North Center.

According to Clerk Joan McAllister, a total of 3,556 persons are eligible to vote in the city election — a record high number.

VOTE FOR WAGNER FOR NORTHVILLE CITY COUNCIL

Pol. Adv. Paid for by Wagner for Council Committee, WM. F. McLAUGHLIN, Treasurer 663 Thayer, Northville, Michigan 48167

For mayor and council

We like Vernon, DeRusha, Gardner

Two candidates stand head and shoulders above the field in next Tuesday's city council election.

They are Paul Vernon for mayor and J. Burton DeRusha for a four-year council seat.

We exclude W. Wallace Nichols, a proven incumbent, because he is unopposed.

For those attending last week's "meet-the-candidates" session the comparative competency of Vernon and DeRusha versus their opponents was certainly most apparent.

In Vernon's case, we have observed his growth in stature over the years. No single council person has contributed more to his community than Vernon.

He has poured vast amounts of time and effort into making Northville a better community in which to live. And he has done so with a style that makes him particularly well suited to take over the reins held for so long by retiring Mayor A. M. Allen.

Vernon is intelligent, hard-working, informed and dedicated to serving the city without thought of personal gain.

Some of these same qualities can be ascribed to his opponent, Paul Folino, who certainly has become a dedicated, hard-working and informed councilman.

But too often we have seen Folino stray into areas where one would hold genuine concern over the councilman's ability to discern between his personal welfare, or that of his friends and relatives, and the public's interest.

PAUL VERNON

J. BURTON DERUSHA

In a past campaign Folino sought the endorsement of this newspaper for his candidacy. Having failed, he retaliated by distributing campaign literature urging voters not to let the press (Record) run the town.

This characteristically Folino device is most effective. And it may well be used again in his campaign for mayor. But Folino knows full well this newspaper has never sought personal favor from any elected official. What he does not understand is why.

Further, there is no doubt in our mind of Vernon's ability to project a more favorable image for the city in public appearances.

In many respects the office of mayor is one of image. The mayor carries no more voting power than any other councilmember.

But he is frequently called upon to represent the city in speaking appearances.

Vernon weighs his words carefully and speaks with the authority of one who has done his homework.

Frankly, we can think of no candidate for public office in the community of Northville in recent years who has impressed us more than Burton DeRusha.

In addition to being articulate, DeRusha combines common sense with a sense of humor that serves to increase his effectiveness. And having watched his performance as chairman of the Northville Planning Commission we know, too, that DeRusha can think through a problem and be most decisive.

Of the other candidates for the two four-year council seats, we believe all possess desirable qualifications.

Our choice for the second spot on the council is Dewey Gardner.

Louise Cutler must be ranked very close. But two factors prevent us from giving her our endorsement.

If elected she would be the second real estate salesperson on the five-member council. And her husband, Jim Cutler, is already serving (and serving well) on the city's tax review board and the planning commission.

We were disappointed in responses of several candidates to questions at last week's candidates' forum. Their answers, including Gardner's, suggested that they are not as well informed on local issues as they should be.

But having seen Gardner perform in other capacities, we are confident that he will quickly learn what he doesn't already know about local governmental matters.

Finally, we feel compelled to comment on a candidate who is not receiving our endorsement, but who will most certainly garner support from many voters, especially younger adults of the community.

John Stilson, a political newcomer, is a personable, hard-working individual. But as he suggested himself, this is not a personality race and one should not be elected just because he is a "nice guy".

We are most disturbed by Stilson's answers to questions posed by the League of Women Voters. In essence, he said the success or failure of downtown business should be of no concern to the city council.

Such disregard for an important portion of the community's taxbase reveals immaturity and lack of understanding of economics. Would Stilson have homeowners pick up the tax bill for business taxbase lost because the council refused to get involved?

As an active member and officer of the Northville Jaycees, John Stilson ought to know that the success or failure of a major local business has a direct affect upon our taxes, upon the welfare of our community and even, indirectly, upon the Jaycee organization itself.

It is understandable that a public official might object to aiding financially a crippled private enterprise, but to suggest that a city councilman ought not spend any time finding a cure for the malady is unthinkable.

He also mistakenly suggests that the Township has voted to have separate services. On the contrary many township residents, as well as city, would hope that where jointly-sponsored services can be provided at a higher level and more economically (such as library, recreation), they should be continued.

A recap of our choices:

Vernon for mayor;
DeRusha and Gardner for four-year council terms;
Nichols for two-year term.

Speaking for The Record

New township politics dumps community concept

By BILL SLIGER

A British author once wrote that "history is past politics, and politics present history."

It is, in my opinion, an unfortunate truism.

And a classic example of this may be observed today as the history of old politics in the community of Northville is slowly, but resolutely, being erased.

While it may be unfortunate, it is not unique for new brooms to sweep clean. How, or why, the old broom performed as it did is rarely significant. In our rush to introduce our own ideas, we have no time to examine history.

It is important, particularly for those of us who reside in Northville Township, to recognize the politics of today... the change that is taking place.

A reversal in the attitude towards the community of Northville is most evident.

And this is not intended to be a declaration of whether the "old or new" politics is preferable. It is simply a fact of which we should take note. We are changing directions.

I remember the late Bob Shafer, in particular, as an advocate of the community concept for Northville. He was a staunch supporter of township govern-

*. . . this is not intended to be a declaration of whether the 'old or new' politics is preferable.
It is simply a fact of which we should take note.
We are changing directions.*

ment, but he viewed the central business district of the city as a community attraction to be preserved.

Shafer was most active in township planning activities. He was not ready to concede that the city and township should become one government. But he firmly believed the cooperation between the two governments was imperative if the magic of Northville as a desirable residential community were to be maintained.

There were (and, perhaps, are) others who shared this philosophy. They viewed the township as an area to be developed as a complement to the city core... sparse in convenience-type commercial centers and well-planned residentially.

It was not a question of competing with the city; it was, rather, a desire to take advantage of what the city might have to offer and couple it with the obvious attributes of the township.

In the minds of these leaders of a decade or so ago, shared services represented better programs at lower cost for residents of the community of Northville.

At a joint meeting of the city council and township board held last week to discuss the proposed construction of a township library building, the new politics was most evident.

In seeking to establish a position for the argument that at this time in the joint operation of the library the building should be located in the community's commercial center, Councilman Stanley Johnston asked the board what value, if any, the city's central business district represented to the township.

Treasurer Richard Henningsen was quick to respond.

"It definitely helps your (city) community."

And when a member of the library commission noted that people couldn't shop and at the same time visit a library on Six Mile road (site of the new township library) another board-member had an answer.

"Just wait," said Trustee Mark Lysinger.

So does the central business district of the city mean anything to residents of the township? Were any of the homeowners of the township attracted to Northville because they liked the city's "old fashioned" downtown?

If so, they should inform exponents of the new politics... like Henningsen, Lysinger, Clerk Clarice Sass and Supervisor Wilson Grier.

Clerk Sass, for example, is on record as having voted against seeking federal funds last year for a community library in the city.

She continued this opposition by voting not to give priority status to the library request over the township's bid for federal money for a township hall.

Last year Clerk Sass was in the minority. But today we have a new board and the new broom. It has swept aside the community-cooperation concept.

And the city and township are now in competition.

Look for our library and recreation services to split. Look for commercial development to challenge the city's CBD. Look for another city around a city.

And the new politics will have won.

The question remains: what price will the community of Northville pay for the victory?

Novi should pay paving cost

To the Editor:

On Tuesday, November 8th, Novi residents will vote on an advisory question, Proposition 5, which in effect asks, should the owners of property along the mile roads be charged for the paving of those roads in proportion to the benefits received.

I suspect that the assessment would be acceptable to the property owners if actually based on the proportion of use of the road by the residents and the public in general; however, it usually winds up with the adjoining property owners paying 40 percent to 50 percent of the cost and the community in general getting 95 percent of the use of the road. To add insult to injury, the property owner suffers the loss of the trees and shrubs that shield him from the road and traffic, and is thereafter subjected to the increased noise and danger from more and faster traffic.

The real question is what is the property owner getting that he does not already have. He has a road that is quite adequate for his needs. That road would not even be considered for paving to benefit only the people living along it. But, now general community traffic has increased beyond the point where the mile roads can be maintained economically. They must be paved to carry the high volume of community traffic, and since the paving is for the benefit of the community, it should be paid for by the community.

Those who live in Novi subdivisions could face the same situation. Suppose the City routed a detour through your subdivision and down the road in front of your house. Heavy traffic would exceed the design capacity of your road and it would be destroyed. You would certainly object to being charged for rebuilding your road after it had been destroyed by the rest of the community.

Likewise, increased traffic from the new subdivisions has either destroyed the gravel mile roads, or made proper maintenance difficult and costly; but, now city officials want the property owners to foot the bill to pave these roads for the use of the community. It is like you telling me to go to my friendly Ford dealer and buy a new station wagon because you want to use it for a trip.

Most small communities have a two or three mill tax specifically for road construction. Novi started this direction when the voters approved one mill for road construction years ago, and recently another average two mills to retire general obligation bonds issued to finance road construction. Now the city still wants adjoining property owners to pay a large part of the construction cost in addition to the voted taxes.

We suggest that a NO vote on Proposition 5 will put an end to the endless public hearings, unfair assessments and costly law suits. It might even start a fair and equitable program of building roads for general community use financed with general community funds.

PHIL MOILANEN

YES . . .

Should reverse discrimination be allowed? Was there discrimination in the first place? Discrimination is the act of disallowing someone to do something because of race, creed, or color.

Discrimination has gone back to the beginning of our country's history. As the white man became the majority he picked up all the jobs available. As the centuries passed this still held true even after the slaves were freed, and more and more immigrants were coming to this country. But the white man was still a majority, so naturally he still got most of the jobs.

So today we hear cries of discrimination, only because the quota system we have set up allows one minority per so many whites. The minority have been so effective in their argument they are now picking up the jobs that were usually filled by Caucasians.

This has brought on a new rash of complaints from the white man.

Reverse discrimination is now being shouted about because of the lack of jobs. It now appears that the white man is being discriminated against only because he is the majority.

Is this fair? Of course it appears that the minority groups in the United States have received a raw deal, but if you compare the situation on a percentage basis rather than one to one, it can be seen that it is fairly even.

Perhaps the best way to combat this situation is to eliminate all quota systems and any discrimination arguments and just choose the best man for the job.

CATHY DOPKOWSKI

NO . . .

Discrimination, a fact many people of this generation have learned to grow up with. Technically defined in the dictionary, discrimination means making a difference in favor of or against something or someone.

Being a senior at high school has made me aware of the possibilities of reverse discrimination. Applying for college admittance is an example where this could happen.

On an application form, a space is provided for type of race. A friend of mine who was white circled Caucasian and was not accepted. She later then, re-applied and circled Negro. She was accepted with no questions asked.

What does this mean our world is coming to? Will there always be this constant fight between races? Discrimination is like a pendulum. It swings one way and then the other. One time the Caucasians are in favor, the next Negroes are. When will it ever stop in the middle?

The movement is towards discrimination of white people now. How long will it last? Why did it ever happen in the first place? Was one side trying to get at the other?

I think it is unfair to play this game with people's education. When it comes to someone's chance to better their education, and the lesser of the two gets the chance, I feel it's unfair. Maybe if I dye my skin another color, I will make it in the world. If not, I will be just like everyone else who loses the chance at a good education.

League backs charter

To the Editor:

The League of Women Voters is non-partisan in that it may not support or oppose any political party or candidate. However, the league is empowered to take stands on governmental issues chosen for study and action. After study the League of Women Voters of Northville, Plymouth, Canton, and Novi support the proposed new city charter for Novi.

We support the council-manager type of government, as well as non-partisan at large elections. The primary provision is far sighted as a good charter should be. In fact, the need is already apparent with the current abundance of candidates for council.

We would have preferred a more flexible provision for filing petitions, such as a percentage of the votes cast in the last election, rather than a set number. As for the filing fee, we disapprove of accepting them in lieu of petitions. It is our contention that filing fees fail to show any public support for a candidate, and encourage "spoiler" candidates.

We quarrel with chapter 7, section 8 (e) and (f) which give the council the right to ignore the will of the people "after two years", where initiatory and referendum proceedings are concerned.

The added safeguards in the area of finances are commendable. The creation of "umbrella" departments of Finance, Safety, and Public Service should be helpful in delineating responsibilities. Hopefully, it will increase efficiency.

Inasmuch as the two areas where we disagree (filing fees and initiatory proceedings) are no worse than the wording in the current charter, we think the strong points outweigh the weak and, therefore, we urge voters to vote "YES".

Sincerely,
Neva Carter, President

Finest floats ever

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to compliment all of those students who worked on float construction committees for the recent Homecoming parade and game. This year's entries were of the finest quality I have ever seen entered here at NHS.

Four years ago, the Honor Society decided to enter the float competition for three basic reasons:

- 1) To stimulate club entries (German club should be especially commended for their fine effort!)
- 2) To improve the quality of entered floats. (Although Honor Society won again this year, there really was ample evidence to award multiple first places.)
- 3) To increase Honor Society membership involvement.

Again, my compliments to all concerned. Let's do it again next year!

Daisy Mae is well

To the Editor:

I thought this might be of interest to you nice people. Do you remember October 14, 1965 when my husband and I lived on Dickerson, Salem? You came and took a picture of my Daisy Mae cat who ran away five times back to Chubb Road. The last time we thought she was gone for good.

We still have that picture of Daisy Mae and myself. And Daisy Mae is well and living and going on nineteen years old. She is very fussy and requires special attention. She still goes out at night when it is warm.

I live on a country road now in Buckley. Elmer died of cancer June 26, 1973.

I don't write like I should, but I hope you can read this. The pen wants to go another direction. I broke my right wrist September 30, 1976 and in January, I broke the elbow of the same right arm. I was in the hospital for three weeks last winter, having two operations on the elbow.

Festival news was great

To the Editor:

We wish to take this opportunity to express our sincere thanks for the wonderful coverage that you gave to our International Festival. Your generous contributions in time and coverage is greatly appreciated.

Nearly 20 years have passed since Frazer Staman made me bristle with those introductory words... words that would be repeated in one form or another many times in the years to follow.

"He's called me a "Democrat... a jackass Democrat," a Fourth Estate whore," and a "Bachert patsy."

But the truth of the matter is that he likes me. And he likes a whole lot of people whom he has showered with scorn. He's a guy you want to punch out one minute, hug the next. That's because he minces no words, slicing up friends and foes alike.

When this reporter adds up the score, however, he can say with all honesty: the exterior Frazer Staman is a facade; inside he's a gentle, friendly man.

So with the announcement of his retirement from his Novi real estate business — his last close tie with the community he helped shape, I'm mourning the passing of an era.

(I can hear his words now: "— — — — —, Hoffman, I thought St. Peter had given me a reprieve and I was reading an obituary.")

Super sewer under microscope

Consultants hired by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) are expected to visit the Huron Valley area within the next month to conduct tests as part of the preparation of an environmental impact statement (EIS) on the proposed super sewer wastewater treatment project.

According to Doug Ehorn, of the EPA's Region V Project Review Section in Chicago, the consultants will test soil conditions and ground water in the 17 communities that have formed the Huron Valley Authority in an effort to "document pollution problems."

Other experts hired by the EPA were scheduled to meet last week with representatives of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) to review data already compiled on the $146-million super sewer proposal, Ehorn added.

Preliminary work on the EIS — required on projects that are paid for in part with federal grants — have not led to any conclusions so far on the part of the EPA, Ehorn said.

"We're still up in the air on the best way to handle wastewater treatment in the Huron Valley area," he added.

Once the preliminary data has been collected, Ehorn continued, the EPA will begin scheduling a series of public meetings in the area to gather additional information on the need for and impacts of the super sewer project and to explain its procedure on preparing the EIS.

Two of the meetings will be held before the draft EIS is completed, Ehorn said, probably sometime in December.

In declaring its intent to prepare an EIS on super sewer last summer, the EPA staff said the draft report would be ready by mid-November and the final statement would be completed in about 10 months.

Ehorn said last week, however, that the hiring of the consultants has delayed the EIS preparation by three or four weeks.

Wayne County public works officials have objected to the EIS requirement, charging that the EPA has made the super sewer proposal a "sacrificial project" to allay criticisms from the Congress that the agency wasn't ordering enough impact statements on other projects.

Working with Congressmen Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth) and William D. Ford (D-Taylor), the Wayne County officials won assurances from EPA Director Douglas Costle that the EIS would be completed as soon as possible.

Of particular concern to Wayne Board of Public Works Director George Bingham is a proposal from the EPA that sewer interceptor lines might run from west to east and tie into the Detroit sewer system, rather than the north-south interceptor that would connect to a new wastewater treatment plant near Rockwood.

Bingham also has objected to EPA contentions that the Huron Valley project could encourage development in an undeveloped area. The public works director said the area already is developed and deserves a sewer system to meet its needs.

Because of the EIS requirement, the EPA has not approved the start of phase two engineering work on the project, Bingham said, although the federal agency has agreed to allow Wayne County to proceed with plans for the lower valley portion of the sewer system. The rest of the super sewer project area and its possible connection to Detroit facilities will be studied in the EIS, Bingham has said.

Meanwhile, all of the 17 communities in Wayne and Oakland counties that are included in the super sewer project area have ratified the articles of incorporation of the new Huron Valley Authority, according to Canton Township Supervisor Harold Stein, although two of the communities — Trenton and Northville — haven't submitted signed copies of the document to Stein.

seek such certification if they don't choose to.

"To initiate such certification, the local unit must pass a resolution designating the individual the city council or township board wishes to certify. Then, the individual must come to Lansing and undergo training by the state fire marshal, paid for by the local unit," Fessler said.

"When the individual completes the training and is certified, powers of the state fire marshal will be delegated to that individual," he continued.

Additionally, the bill mandates the annual inspection of each school building and school dormitory in the State of Michigan. The first inspection would still be made by the state fire marshal. Subsequent inspections can be made by a local fire official who has been trained and certified.

"I believe this bill answers a number of concerns expressed by fire officials and city officials like Mrs. Hoyer and Mrs. Karevich. Local officials have attempted to solve a number of fire hazard problems in local school buildings, but have not been successful because they do not have the proper authority," Fessler said.

years ago, his name was a household word in Novi and the communities around it. Today, the face of Novi has changed. Its population has spiraled upward; farmlands have been transformed into subdivisions and schools and businesses; and new political leaders have come and gone.

School board member, board of commerce leader, assessor, supervisor, board of supervisors' kingpin, county road commissioner... these are just a few of the public roles he served over the years for Novi.

But it was as supervisor of Novi Township — his then 36-square mile "fiefdom" stretching from what now is Northville High School property and Northville Estate Subdivision to what now is the Wixom City Hall property and the vast community of apartment buildings along Pontiac Trail — that I and others know him best.

He was supervisor of Novi at a time of its puberty... when changes occurred so rapidly that many found it difficult to keep up as Staman locked horns with political foes and the "outsiders" who began nibbling away at his kingdom.

Those of us who think that no other single development in Novi has changed the community more than Twelve Oaks, one of the world's largest shopping centers, have forgotten the past.

In truth, Twelve Oaks pales in the face of a pair of other developments that occurred during Staman's tenure as supervisor: the expressway that cuts through the heart of the community and Ford Motor Company's giant Wixom plant. And they occurred at a time when Novi had more cows than condos, more corncribs than municipal employees, and more outhouses than its single policeman, Lee BeGole.

Much of what Novi and Wixom are today can be traced back to the expressway, the Ford plant, and to the men like Frazer Staman who were leaders when the community switched from knickers to long pants.

As sure as I write this, Frazer Staman will toss another barb my way: "You journalistic imbecile, don't blame Novi and Wixom on me! The cows did a whole lot more for the community than that city hall army they've got running the place now."

Mark my words.

It's auction time

Crime may not pay, but that doesn't mean that the law-abiding public can't take advantage of the fruits of illegal labor.

The Michigan State Police will be holding the second of two yearly auctions in Lansing Tuesday to rid its storage bins of lost, stolen, confiscated and otherwise unclaimed items.

The auction begins at 9 a.m. at the National Guard Armory, 2500 South Washington, and continues until all 317 articles have been sold.

The items on the auction block range from car accessories to shotguns and from cameras to clothing.

This is the first year that the state police have held two auctions. The second was needed "to expedite disposal of the items and to hold to a minimum the storage area needed," said a police spokesman.

The auction is authorized by law to dispose of confiscated and unclaimed articles whose owners could not be located, items lost or abandoned at state parks, and the personal effects of persons who have died in state institutions, without leaving heirs.

The state treasury gets the proceeds after advertising and auctioneer expenses are deducted. The first sale this year, held in June, netted the state about $15,000.

Items included in Tuesday's sale include bicycles, a motorcycle, a minibike, record and tape players, radios, CB sets, television sets, rings, watches, cameras, clothing, toilet articles, power and hand tools, hunting and fishing gear, shotguns and rifles, home and office equipment, car parts and accessories.

Runners win league, qualify in regionals

Goodbye Churchill dynasty, hello states!

Two months ago it probably seemed like an impossible dream. By last week it was a foregone conclusion.

It's what may have been its most glorious week ever, Northville's powerful cross country squad roared to a convincing victory at the Western Six meet in Hines Park last Tuesday, then qualified for its first state finals berth in seven years four days later.

"This has been just a fantastic season," an elated coach Ralph Redmond said later. "These kids set goals early in the season and they've hit every one."

"They're just a great bunch of kids. They've been believers all year long, and they knew they were capable of getting into the states. But the league meet was the big one. That's what they'd been aiming at all season."

And they certainly didn't disappoint themselves.

Paced by junior Brian Turnbull's second-place finish over the rugged three-mile course at Northville's own Cass-Benton, the Mustangs placed all seven varsity runners in the top 20 and shattered the longest dynasty in Western Six sports. Livonia Churchill, which finished third in the meet, had won every championship since the conference came into existence eight years ago.

But then the victory hardly came as a surprise. Although they had figured on strong challenges from Churchill and Waterford Mott before the season began, the Mustangs waltzed through their conference dual meets without so much as a close call.

And in the conference meet itself they were overwhelming. After Turnbull, who finished six seconds behind winner John Yuhn of Walled Lake Western in 15:58, Northville's famed pack took over and placed four runners between sixth and 12th place.

Senior John Coram (16:19) regained his early-season form with a seventh-place finish that qualified him for the final spot on the All-Conference squad. Close behind came Don Wilber (16:28) in eighth, Jim Bedford (16:37) in 10th and Harry Couyoumjian (16:40) in 11th. Rounding out the winning effort were John Monagle (13th in 16:55) and Tom Doyle (17th in 17:13).

"Those were the best overall course times of the season for them," Redmond observed.

Northville's strong finish gave them 38 points in the meet, 17 ahead of second-place Mott and 46 ahead of Churchill.

As if the varsity squad's performance wasn't enough Northville's back-ups pulled an even bigger victory in the jayvee race afterwards. Paced by Ken Greene's 17:20 clocking and Randy Tharp's 17:46, the Mustangs slammed the entire league with a 1-2-3-4-5 finish.

"That was really startling," Redmond remarked. "I've never seen that happen before in our league."

"I figured Ken and Randy had a good shot at finishing 1-2, but I never expected us to place 3-4-5 as well."

Again all five runners had their best course times of the season, with Steve Stewart finishing third in 17:57, Dave Massel fourth in 17:59 and Myles Couyoumjian fifth in 18:00.

Four days later Redmond's crew capped the week with a second-place finish in the regionals at Howell's Faulkwood Shores Country Club. That qualified them as one of the 24 Class A team finalists at Saturday's state championships in Grand Rapids.

"This was just frosting on the cake," Redmond said of the state berth. "We got our cake at the league meet and put frosting on it at the regionals."

Running on a fast, fairly flat course the Mustangs placed all five of their top men among the first 40 runners in a 22-school, 150-runner field.

Turnbull again placed ahead of the rest of the pack with an eighth-place finish in 15:25 and was followed by Wilber (19th), Bedford (22nd), Couyoumjian (34th) and Monagle (39th). Coram, who was running among the top 15 runners at the two-mile mark, injured a tendon and fell to 54th while Doyle finished 59th.

What made the runner-up spot especially satisfying for Redmond was the fact that Northville beat out four other highly-rated schools in the process. The Mustangs, who had 122 points, finished well behind winner Jackson but ahead of such powers as Brighton, Howell, Lansing Eastern and Walled Lake Central.

And his assessment of Northville's chances at the state meet?

"Anything can happen," Redmond said cautiously. "If we run well we may surprise some of the top teams. Like I said, these kids are believers."

Running game awakens, Mustangs slip past Milford

That long-lost running attack Northville has been searching for all season jumped out of the shadows at Milford last Friday night.

While Milford's defense was busy preparing themselves for another aerial explosion by the Mustangs, quarterback Doug Marzonie was handing off and running himself for 196 yards on the ground to help the visitors to a 13-6 victory, their sixth in eight outings this season.

The 196 yards rushing easily represented Northville's highest output of the season, and much of the credit belonged to senior Dave Duguid. Duguid, who became the team's number one running back after Don Borthwick broke a collarbone one month ago, carried just 13 times for 104 yards and a near-touchdown.

That, plus the soccer-style kicking foot of Matt Davis, helped the Mustangs break an eight-quarter regulation time scoreless streak dating back to a 28-7 win over Livonia Churchill three weeks ago.

"I think offensively we had a very good ball game," coach Chuck Shonta later commented. "It could have been 28 points just as easily as it was 13."

And he was equally happy with his team's defensive efforts.

"Our pass defense was particularly good," he said, noting that Northville's secondary hasn't allowed a touchdown pass all year long. "All in all it was a very good game. We made the big play when we had to; like the saying goes, we bent but we didn't snap."

Surprisingly enough the Mustangs' first big play of the contest came from neither their offense nor their defense. Instead it was kicker Matt Davis who set Northville up for its first score when he forced a Redskin fumble on a crunching tackle after the game's opening kickoff.

Frank Bustamante recovered the loose ball at the Milford 40, and from there the visitors marched downfield in seven plays for their only touchdown of the evening.

Marzonie, who carried four times for 38 yards during the drive, went the final six yards on a keeper. Davis' extra-point conversion made it 7-0 with less than three minutes gone.

That's the way it stood at halftime, although Marzonie twice killed Milford threats with interceptions from his defensive safety position.

Taking the opening kickoff in the second half Northville drove from its own 30 to the Redskin 29 to set up a second score, a 37-yard field goal by Davis. More significantly, though, was the fact that the 15-play march ate up all but 4:40 of the third quarter and left Milford short on time.

The Redskins responded with a seven-minute drive of their own on the ensuing kickoff, though, starting at their own 29 and hitting paydirt 17 plays later on a one-yard plunge by halfback Dave Jarvie. Marzonie batted down a two-point pass play on the conversion attempt, and the score remained 10-6 with 9:44 to go.

Northville put the game on ice eight-and-a-half minutes later following a controversial call at the Milford goal line. Starting from their own 20 with a little under eight minutes left the Mustangs moved 80 yards in seven plays, apparently scoring on a 43-yard run by Duguid.

The referee claimed Duguid ran out of bounds at the one-foot line, however, sparking a disagreement from Northville players. The Mustangs were promptly dealt a 15-yard misconduct penalty and had to settle for a 27-yard field goal instead.

The call enraged Shonta.

"We felt the official was unfair, very unfair on that play," he complained. "It was completely unjustified, and our movies bear that out."

Despite the call Northville hung on for the win, its second in a row after losing to Farmington Harrison last month.

"I think we played very well considering that Milford effectively shut down our passing attack," Shonta commented, pointing out that the Redskins used a 6-2 defense to prevent Marzonie's passes from stinging them deep.

"They're a very good team. They came out hitting, but our kids played well when they needed to and controlled the ground game."

Marzonie picked up 58 yards rushing on 14 carries while John Millen, who did an effective job of blocking for Marzonie and Duguid, had 30 yards in eight attempts Split end John Horwath was on the receiving end of Marzonie's aeriels three times for 41 yards, while Marc Hooth added 25 yards on two receptions. Defensively the Mustangs were led by nose man Mark Van Ingen (12 solo tackles, five assists), tackle Chris Friel (seven solos, two assists), linebacker John Marzonie (10 solos, two assists) and cornerback Pete Wright (four solos, five assists).

Early Ypsilanti TD's shock Colts in finale

Two first-half touchdowns and a series of frustrating stalled drives on offense spelled disaster for Northville's varsity Colts football squad Sunday as they dropped their season finale to the Ypsilanti Huron Braves, 12-8.

Playing their last game under head coach Lee Holland, who rolled up a 34-4-3 record in his five years with the varsity, the Colts fell to a 6-0 deficit early in the first quarter following a lost fumble at their own 30 and a 29-yard touchdown pass by the Braves.

Northville battled back to knot things up on Dave Lennox's one-yard touchdown plunge, capping a nine-play, 50-yard march.

But minutes later Ypsilanti was on the board again, this time scoring when halfback Mark Novak ran for a touchdown on a broken play that was meant to be a punt.

The Colts threatened to score several times after that but fell short each time, losing the ball on downs at the Ypsilanti four-yard line on their last chance with a minute left in the game. Their final two points came on a safety with 40 seconds remaining.

Brian Jordan with 48 yards, Dave Chikowski with 42 and Todd Parsons with 41 were the leading rushers for Northville, which outgained the Braves 84 to 85 in the game.

The loss was only the fifth the Colts have suffered in the last eight years. They closed out their 1977 season with a 4-2 record, outscoring their opponents 41-34 and collecting six shutouts in the process.

The Colts' junior varsity squad, meanwhile, rolled to an early 20-0 lead and went on to defeat Ypsilanti 32-12

Sunday for its fifth victory in a row.

Chris Wagner scored three touchdowns, two of them defensively, to lead the rout. Wagner's first score came when he recovered an Ypsilanti fumble in the end zone early in the game. A short extra-point pass from Rod Wendle to Ron Greer made it 7-0.

Minutes later halfback Bob Pegrum exploded for a 70-yard touchdown run, and an extra-point pass from Pegrum to Steve Korte made it 14-0.

Wagner scored his second touchdown of the day on a 20-yard interception return two plays into the second quarter, then added another in the third stanza to cap an 80-yard drive sparked by Korte's 65-yard run from scrimmage.

Korte then capped another 80-yard drive with a short touchdown run of his own after Pegrum had put the Colts into scoring position with a 75-yard romp. Defensively Northville was led by Greg Wendel, Steve O'Hare, Jeff Thomas, Shawn Tague, Jeff Evans, Marty Ingle, Ernest Bock and Darryl Brockman.

The j. v. Colts, coached by Bernie McClorey, had 276 total yards in the game and wound up their season with a 6-2 record.

One second-quarter touchdown took care of all the scoring in the freshmen Colts' 7-0 defeat to Ypsilanti Sunday. The Northville squad never threatened again after driving down to the Braves' 28-yard line on its opening series. Despite the loss coach Lou Denhof's ninth and tenth graders wound up the season with a respectable 4-3-1 record.

Jayvee defense sparks Northville to grid crown

It seemed only fitting. A defense that's been awesome all year long came through in the clutch again last Thursday to lead Northville's junior varsity football squad to a season-ending 10-0 victory at Plymouth Canton. The win sewed up the junior Mustangs' first Western Six championship in three years.

But it didn't come easy.

Despite playing a team that hadn't won a single game in seven previous outings, Northville's players found themselves struggling for their lives in the first half.

After squaring off to a scoreless deadlock in the first 24 minutes the Mustangs finally broke the ice on Russ Gans' 33-yard field goal midway through the third quarter. Their only other score came on a 13-yard touchdown pass from fullback Scott Millard to Ken Weber in the dying minutes of the game.

"We didn't play as well as we could have," coach Steve McDonald acknowledged, "but we played well enough to win."

"We had a rough first half but came back and started playing like we knew we could in the second. That's when the kids really started sticking."

And stick they did. Paced by strong performances from Steve Fenby, Tim Marshall and Norm Tiilikka, who at one point returned a fumble recovery for a touchdown only to have it called back, Northville's defense never allowed Canton past midfield in the second half.

Other defensive standouts in the Canton game included Bob Boshoven, who had an interception, Rob Marzonie, Paul Cooper and cornerback Craig Cattaneo.

On offense the winners were sparked by Gans, who filled in for injured quarterback Bob Crisan the last three weeks of the season, and Millard who, behind the blocking of fellow back Dan Troher, rolled up 160 yards rushing in 27 carries. Millard averaged close to 100 yards per game on the ground this season.

The victory gave Northville an overall record of 7-1 this year, including five straight triumphs in Western Six competition. Coached by McDonald and Dennis Colligan, the Mustangs outscored their eight opponents by a combined total of 144-36.

Soccer teams clash for title

Northville United and the Hotspurs of the 10 and under boys' division will play tonight for the Northville Cup Soccer Tournament championship at Ford Field beginning at 7 p.m. United earned a berth in the finals by beating Arsenal 3-1 last week while the Hotspurs knocked off the Rovers 5-0.

Northville Arsenal, meanwhile, clinched the 16-and-under boy's division title in WSSL competition by defeating Farmington 3-1. Arsenal is now 6-0.

Five Mustangs are All-League

JOHN HORWATH MARK VAN INGEN DOUG MARZONIE DOUG HARDING PETE WRIGHT

Five Northville players were named to this year's All-Conference football squad last week, the Mustangs' strongest showing ever in the Western Six selections.

Senior-co-captain John Horwath was the team's only representative on offense. Horwath, a 6'1" 175-pound split end who made honorable mention last year, nabbed 24 passes for 357 yards in conference play this season and was a defensive standout as well, picking off six interceptions as a safety.

Northville, meanwhile, dominated the first-team defensive unit with four players. Mark Van Ingen, a 5'10" 205-pound nose guard, and Doug Marzonie, a 6'2" 180-pound safety and co-captain, were among three Mustangs unanimously selected to the squad by the league's five head coaches (excluding Northville) last Wednesday. Horwath was the other.

Van Ingen, a senior, had 49 first hits and 38 assists this season and has been the team's leading tackler in five of its last six games. Marzonie, who just missed getting the nod as the first-team quarterback, had 26 first hits, eight assists, a fumble recovery and an interception as well as 10 touchdown-saving tackles on defense this fall.

Also named to the defensive unit were Doug Harding at linebacker and Pete Wright at cornerback. Harding, a 6'3" 210-pound senior and co-captain, was an honorable mention choice at defensive end last year and had an outstanding all-around 1977 season. He had 40 first hits, 33 assists, caused two fumbles and recovered two others while putting in time at offensive tackle, fullback and defensive end as well.

Wright, a 6'0" 160-pound senior who doubled as an outstanding flanker, was in on 28 tackles and had two interceptions and a fumble recovery this season.

The five first-team selections represent the most players Northville has ever placed on the All-Western Six squad. The Mustangs had four All-Leaguers in each of the past three years.

Only conference champ Farmington Harrison with seven players had more representatives than Northville on the team. Harrison's Brett Homocov nosed out Marzonie for the starting quarterback position while Paul Neville, an offensive tackle from Churchill, was the only junior All-Conference selection.

In addition five other Mustang seniors received honorable mention in the balloting. They were Dave Duguid (halfback), Marc Hooth (offensive end and co-captain), Jeff Weber (offensive, defensive tackle), Chris Friel (defensive tackle) and Al Korte (defensive end).

Pode wins contest

Bob Pode of 21620 Bedford Drive, Northville, came within three points of predicting the score in Notre Dame's easy 43-10 triumph over Navy last week.

He guessed Notre Dame would win by a score of 42-12.

Not bad, not bad at all. In fact, it was good enough to earn Bob first-place money in the weekly football contest sponsored by this newspaper.

Bob was one of six contestants who came up with just two mistakes in the 16 game line-up.

The second and third place winners also were determined by their tie-breaking scores.

Taking second, just eight points off the mark, was Robert Foster, 22326 Taft Road, while Erich Nowka of 15707 Bradner Road won third place, 16 points off the mark.

Other contestants who made just two wrong picks but who finished out of the money were Bob Blackmer of Novi, and Scott Anderson of Northville. Another contestant also had two mistakes, but forgot to include his or her name and address on the entry.

Twenty-one contestants missed three games, 17 missed four, 24 missed five, and the remainder missed six or more games.

Toughest games for contestants proved to be California's 17-14 victory over Southern Cal, Eastern Michigan's 42-28 win over Akron, and Auburn's 29-14 triumph over Florida.

According to judges, several contestants continue to submit entries containing results of games already played. Two, for example, submitted game results from two weeks ago.

Entries submitted through the mail must be postmarked by Friday. Those bearing later postmarks are automatically disqualified.

Medals abound, relay girls shine

Records toppled and medals abounded for Northville swimmers in last Saturday's Detroit News Girls' Swim Invitational at Schoolcraft College.

Paced by record-setting performances from their never-beaten medley relay team and Sue Cahill, the Mustangs staged one of their most impressive showings of the season at the meet, considered somewhat of a sneak preview of the state finals next month.

Each of the four local girls who qualified for the News Invitational walked off with at least two medals, awarded to the top six finishers in each event.

"We can't come home complaining about that," coach Ben Lauber remarked, noting that his girls copped six medals in all. "I felt they did a real fine job."

"We don't rest up or peak for a meet like that...it's not treated extra special. As a consequence I was very proud of their times."

By far their most surprising performance came in the 200-yard medley relay, where Vida Mikalonis, Janet Shaw, Kyle Roggenbuck and Cahill swam to a stunning victory over a powerful Ann Arbor Pioneer quartet in the day's first event. Pioneer's girls, seeded first in the invitational, had posted a 1:56.6 clocking in the medley relay earlier this year, the best time of any team in the state this season.

Northville's third-seeded contingent matched that time Saturday, though, and registered the school's 15th consecutive first-place finish in that event, breaking a month-old school record in the process.

Two events later Cahill was in the record books again, this time breaking a meet record in the individual medley by two full seconds. The 15-year-old sophomore swam to victory in 2:13.9, bettering Livonia Stevenson swimmer Linda Hein's year-old mark of 2:15.9. Despite the win Cahill fell 1.4 seconds shy of her own school record in the medley.

In addition the Northville girls picked up two third-place and two fifth-place medals. Cahill's 1:00.5 clocking in the 100-yard butterfly set another school record and was good for third place at the invitational. Mikalonis placed fifth in the same event in 1:00.9, just one-eighth of a second short of the previous school record.

Mikalonis also finished third in the 100-yard back stroke, swimming it in 1:03.9. Roggenbuck posted a 25.4 clocking in the 50-yard free style, her best time of the year, for place fifth. Earlier in the week the Mustangs had picked their unbeaten Western Six record to 7-0 with a pair of victories over conference foes Livonia Churchill and Plymouth Canton.

Despite a scrambled lineup last Tuesday the girls nabbed seven first-places on their way to a 50-33 home triumph over Churchill. They completely dominated the free style events at the meet, with only one Churchill girl finishing ahead of any Mustang.

Janet Shaw and Kristy Ifversen placed 1-2 in the 200-yard free style while Dianne Townsend and Carolyn Shrot repeated the act in the 50 and Ifversen and Lori Herguth in the 500. Only in the 100 free style did Northville fail to win, but Lori Hackmann and Mary Hartmann came on strong to finish 2-3.

Other Mustang winners included Cahill (butterfly), Andy Conder (diving) and, as usual, both relay teams. Helping out those winning relay squads, though, were a pair of back-ups that both finished third.

Sue Harris, Sheri Brown, Herguth and Schrot posted a 2:23.3 clocking in the medley relay, 20 seconds behind winners Mikalonis, Cahill, Roggenbuck and Leslie Farquhar. And in the 400-yard free style relay Lisa Copp, Michelle Stevens, Jackie Chua and Harris combined for a 5:14.1 clocking, while Shaw, Cahill, Mikalonis and Roggenbuck won the event in four minutes flat.

Two nights later the Mustangs swam off with nine more first-places in a 98-74 victory at Canton.

Mikalonis helped both relay teams to victories and won the individual medley herself. Helping her out in the winning medley relay, which won in 2:01.1, were Shaw, Cahill and Roggenbuck. In the free style relay she combined with Townsend, Ifversen and Krystn Van Renterghem to win in 4:16.2.

Other winning Northville swimmers included Cahill (200 and 500 free style), Roggenbuck (50 free style and butterfly) and Shaw (breast stroke). Conder took another first in diving with 173 points and was backed up by Britt Evans, who had her best showing of the year with 132.4 points, good for fourth place overall.

The only events the Mustangs didn't win were the back stroke, where Laurie Sellen placed second in 1:16.5, three seconds ahead of third-place teammate Carol McLaughlin; and the 100 free style, where Hackmann finished third in 1:07.5, just .6 seconds ahead of Townsend.

With only two weeks remaining in the regular season Northville's girls are now 10-3 overall, and have one more Western Six dual meet left (tomorrow night at Farmington Harrison) before competing in the conference meet November 16 and 17.

The Northville Recreation Department is looking for teams to complete its men's basketball league this winter. Interested parties should attend an organizational meeting that will take place tomorrow (Thursday) night starting at 7:30 in the recreation office, located at 215 W. Main St.

Registration for the youth basketball league ends a week from Friday (November 11). Practices for both boys' (third through eighth grade) and girls' (fifth through eighth grade) teams starts Saturday, November 12, at Amerman Elementary School. Third and fourth-grade practices get under way at 9 a.m., fifth and sixth graders start at 10 a.m., and seventh and eighth graders at 11 a.m. For further information contact the rec department at 349-0203.

The recreation department's open swimming class gets under way for the winter beginning next Monday, November 7. Open swimming will take place every Monday and Wednesday (excluding holidays) at the high school pool from 7 to 8 p.m. Fees for the class, which lasts through March, are as follows: 50 cents per youngster, 75 cents per adult, and $1.50 per family. There is also open swimming on Saturdays from 3:30 to 5 p.m. at the high school, with the fees slightly higher.

Registration has begun for the recreation ski club. Area residents interested in joining who missed yesterday's organizational meeting can still sign up by contacting the recreation department at 349-0203.

HOLE-IN-ONE

Ken Vogt of 15874 Portis in Northville has qualified for the chance to win a free trip to Scotland and $1000 by scoring a hole-in-one at the Godwin Country Club last month. Vogt's ace qualified him for the 17th annual Rusty Nail Hole-in-One Sweepstakes, a national competition sponsored by the Drambuie Company of Edinburgh, Scotland. The winner will be announced early next year.

VIDA MIKALONIS

JANET SHAW

KYLE ROGGENBUCK

SUE CAHILL

DAVE DUGUID

When Vida Mikalonis (upper left), Janet Shaw (upper right), Kyle Roggenbuck (lower left) and Sue Cahill (lower right) in the 200 yard medley relay there just aren't many other quartets that can keep up the four. In fact, have never been beaten yet despite competing against the best Michigan has to offer. Last week they lowered the previous school record by almost three seconds in swimming to a surprisingly easy victory at the Detroit News Girls' High School Swim Invitational at Schoolcraft College, where top swimmers from across the state had gathered to compete. Their winning time of 1:56.6 matched the best clocking posted by any team in Michigan thus far this season and was one full second better than that of runner up Farmington Our Lady of Mercy.

With their passing attack stymied by a stubborn Milford defense, the Mustangs turned to a previously absent running attack and found Dave Duguid ready to carry them through. Thanks to him they controlled the ground-oriented ball game throughout most of the contest on their way to a tight 13-6 victory last Friday. Duguid, a 6'0", 165 pound senior, personally accounted for 104 of Northville's 196 rushing yards on only 13 carries and just missed scoring a touchdown on a 43 yard sprint to the goal line late in the game, by far the best performance by any running back this season.

The final score may not be much of an indication, but for about eight minutes last Thursday Northville's girls played their most impressive basketball of the year. In the end Livonia Churchill came out on top, 52-29, but Mustang coach Omar Harrison didn't see things as all that bad. "I think we played the best eight minutes we've ever played in that first quarter," Harrison said, noting that Churchill took only an 8-4 lead into the second stanza. "We came out playing aggressive and we were rebounding right up there with them. "But after a while we started making those silly mistakes again and never got back in the ball game." By half time the local girls were behind 21-10, and from there it was all downhill.

Center Lori Young played one of her stronger defensive games of the year with seven rebounds but couldn't put any points on the board. Diane Perpich with eight points and Kathy Rich with six led the losing effort, but as usual it was turnovers, as well as a poor shooting percentage, that cost Northville the game. The Mustangs hit only 14 of 63 floor shots, one of eight free throws, and lost the ball 42 times on turnovers. The junior varsity squad, meanwhile, had similar problems in dropping a 51-23 decision to Churchill. Karen Goxem placed the losers with seven points while Sue Townsend and Lissa Carter chipped in six apiece. The j.v. team is now 4-8 on the season while the varsity stands at 1-11.

Lori Young (45) was Mustangs' top rebounder against Churchill

City candidates speak but avoid debate

If anyone expected a fight they were disappointed Thursday as Northville council-mayoral candidates spoke at the public forum conducted by the League of Women Voters.

Although more people attended this forum in the school board auditorium than have attended in past years, it still drew only a small fraction of the city's eligible electorate. An estimated 50 attended, and many of these were friends or relatives of the candidates.

The only candidate to voice what might be interpreted as a criticism of the current council was John Stilson, candidate for a two-year term, who said "the city needs new leadership and new ideas."

Most candidates lauded the council and the retiring mayor, A. Malcolm Allen. And most expressed concern over the township's plan to build a library in the township, perhaps signalling the end of the jointly operated library service.

In their opening five minute remarks, each candidate spent most of his or her time reviewing backgrounds and qualifications.

They expressed more specific points of view in the question and answering session that followed. Written questions were asked by the audience.

Stilson said, if elected, he will concentrate on improving communication between the council and the public and on bringing fiscal responsibility to the council table.

He cited his recent approved suggestion that council agendas be published prior to meetings as the kinds of things he is prepared to do upon becoming a council member.

Eugene Wagner, another four-year council candidate, said he is deeply interested in rejuvenation of the Northville Square shopping center in the city's CBD. He offered a proposal that would have tenants of the Square purchase their stores, as one might a condominium.

Similarly, Wagner wondered aloud why the space now occupied by the library might not be purchased by the city under this "condo arrangement."

Furthermore, he suggested that the planned new Fraternal Order of Eagles home be located in the Square rather than on its South Center Street property.

Wagner, who operates the pinball arcade in the Square, said he is paying $100,000 for rent and would gladly give up his space if a single, large tenant could be found for the shopping center.

Four-year council candidate Dewey Gardner referred to his life-long residency in the city, and cited his business background and his membership on the recently established CBD study committee and on the Northville Historical District Commission as evidence of his active interest in the community.

J. Burton DeRusha, four-year council candidate, said he believed studies and attempts to improve the CBD are proper concerns of the city council since these businesses pay a fair share of taxes and provide jobs. He pledged to work to continue the integrity of the existing city government if elected.

Louise Cutler, still another four-year council candidate, focused her attention on her involvement in community affairs here and elsewhere to show her interest in the city.

She emphasized that the council, now an all-male body, needs a woman's point of view.

Wallace Nichols, unopposed incumbent candidate for a two-year council term, cited his past service and promised to continue to try to hold down taxes. He cautioned voters, however, that costs may necessarily go up if existing joint services with the township are discontinued.

Both mayoral candidates, Paul

Folino and Paul Vernon, detailed their past services and responsibilities for the city.

Vernon pointed out that during his tenure on the council there has been very little dissention among members, even though it has not been a "rubber stamp" body of officials.

Folino, referring to the new Twelve Oaks regional shopping center in Novi, said Northville has nothing to fear competitively provided Northville citizens and officials work together.

Some of the questions and responses at the forum included:

On annexation — Folino, who said a single community would be more advantageous than two, stressed cooperation even though voters twice have opposed annexation. Nevertheless, he said the financially beneficial joint services are likely to be scrapped by the township.

Vernon said total annexation of the township to the city is a dead issue, given the past negative elections on the subject. He added, however, fragmented boundaries suggest that smaller annexations, such as the recent request by township property owners just west of the city, appear to be good answers to on-going problems.

Gardner said he had favored annexation at the time when it was earlier considered, but in view of the rejections annexation is no longer a viable issue.

DeRusha said he would support the annexation of township properties lying west of the city, including land on which Moraine Elementary School is located.

Despite recent indications that the township wants to end its joint services with the city, DeRusha expressed a hope that lines of communication between the city and township can be kept open.

Nichols said it is time for the city to stop worrying about township problems of its own doing and to concentrate council attention on city services. He added, however, he would favor annexations of smaller sections of township properties immediately adjacent to the city.

Stilson observed that a "total community" would be economically the wiser choice, but he doubted annexation is likely since the township is larger than the city.

Wagner reminded his audience that he was the only candidate to have opposed annexation in the past, pointing out that in his opinion the city stood to lose more than it gained through annexation. Now, he emphasized, it is a dead issue.

Summer tax collection for schools—Wagner said he favored such collections.

Stilson indicated he would favor such collections only if figures proved that split tax collections were truly beneficial.

Gardner said he could not see this as a proper concern of the council, adding that he didn't see how summer tax collection would help schools.

DeRusha said he would gladly support the proposition to help save the school district thousands of dollars of interest on borrowed money.

Mrs. Cutler said that, as a councilwoman, she would study the matter before making a decision.

On favored north-south route—Gardner said the present main north-south route (Center Street) is best, but that if current studies of alternate routes showed another to be better he would support it.

Stilson did not speak to the question, commenting instead that as a councilman he would ban double-bottom tank trucks from Northville streets.

DeRusha briefly reviewed current studies of alternate routes, suggesting that the Griswold Street proposal appears to be the most feasible.

Folino noted that it was the council's action that prevented the county from making Center Street a wider thoroughfare through the city, also suggesting the Griswold street alternative.

On joint city-township services—

DeRusha referred to the township's plan for constructing a library in the township, contending it may lead to the demise of the current library system. He argued that the township is forcing the city to withdraw from the joint service, commenting that the township's planned use of its federal funds "is a dreadful way to spend 'free' money."

Folino said that as a recreation commission member for seven years, he has been fearful for the past two years that the township is purposely moving to end all joint services, including the recreation department. He said he has personally seen the mutual benefits of joint services, particularly within the recreation program.

Stilson observed that the only people to suffer from a splitting of joint services will be the citizens of the city. And that being the case, the council must be certain that whatever occurs city residents are not penalized at the expense of the township.

Nichols emphasized that the currently debated library service, if disrupted, must necessarily mean the city council has to continue giving the city a library service they desire. A split of services, he predicted, may mean immediate additional costs for the city but that in the long run the cost is not likely to be much more than the jointly operated one suggested by the township.

Vernon said he is convinced that joint services are beneficial for both the city and township. However, he said as mayor he would not sacrifice a downtown library as a means of preserving the joint program. "I will make sure the city is not shortchanged and that its citizens receive the same level of library service."

Gardner supported the mayor's position that the library should not be moved from the central business district of the city.

On vandalism—

Wagner said the city has sufficient existing laws and needs only enforce them to combat vandalism. However, he added that he is not aware that vandalism is a major problem in the city.

Nichols said that he and another council member have been appointed to study the vandalism problem and to come up with some recommendations, and that once the election is over he intends to concentrate on this matter.

On number of municipal personnel—

Vernon said that as a council member he has always strived to keep the number of personnel within a reasonable financial framework, and that he continues to try to hold the line.

Folino agreed with his opponent's position, adding that increasing payroll has reflected increasing demand of services by taxpayers.

On possible conflict of interest—

Mrs. Cutler said she definitely sees no conflict of interest by her serving on the council while her husband is involved on other municipal bodies. She said she and her husband are independent thinkers.

On other problems in the city—Nichols said vandalism is one that the city council must deal with.

Stilson focused his attention on youth dissention, maintenance and expansion and growth within limited boundaries.

Wagner said that if vandalism is a problem in the city, he could be very useful in solving it because of his youth work in the past.

On school operated recreation program—

DeRusha said that he believes recreation is important and beneficial to the city and that operation of the existing recreation program by the school system is a decision that the school board must make.

Gardner said he would not object if the school took over the community's recreation program, but that he is not certain the school system would be financially able to do it.

Signs broken on Devil's Night, Halloween quiet

Devil's Night brought out the vandals in Northville City and Northville Township last Sunday night and early Monday morning.

Police reported several complaints of broken windows, most of which are apparently the work of Halloween pranksters.

In the city, the worst damage may have been done at the Casterline Funeral Home, 122 W. Dunlap, where someone used a club or a stick to break an $800 sign.

The vandalism took place between midnight and 3 a.m. Monday.

Another business sign that was victimized sometime Monday belongs to Century 21, 224 South Main, where a $150 sign was broken, perhaps by a pellet-type gun.

Within a two-hour span, two city residents reported that objects came crashing through their home windows.

A brick smashed into a Hill Street home shortly before midnight on Sunday causing $209 damage.

Then, at 1:45 a.m. on Monday, a rock was thrown through another home's window causing $100 damage.

A pickup truck parked at G.E. Miller Sales and Service, 127 Hutton, was also struck by vandals. Rocks were thrown through both the front and driver's windows between 4 p.m. Sunday and 7:50 Monday morning.

In the township, there were several incidents in the Highland Lakes area. Someone tried out his artistic talents on a car there. The paint was water soluble, but some of the paint got on cloth strips around the windows and discolored them.

Also on Devil's Night, someone painted obscenities on Silver Springs Elementary School.

The most extensive damage was done to a home on Silver Springs Drive where a large rock was thrown through a window.

The damage, estimated at $300, was done between 4 p.m. on Sunday and 7:45 a.m. on Monday. The rock was seven inches in diameter.

Vandals were also on the prowl on Bradner where someone broke the rear window of a parked car sometime Sunday night.

And a Novi boy, while driving east-bound on Seven Mile Road near Valencia, got a rude surprise when he was passed by a van.

The van stopped, an occupant got out and threw an object at the boy's car, breaking the windshield, denting the hood and causing $150 damage.

Halloween, however, was a different story. Both city and township police said there was little if any vandalism on Monday night.

"It was one of the quietest Halloweens I've seen here," said a member of the city's auxiliary force.

Both the city and township increased their regular and auxiliary patrols for both nights.

Police Blotter

Nab speeding cyclist after wild chase

A young Northville man has been charged with reckless driving after he and his motorcycle reportedly led police on a wild, high-speed chase early Saturday morning that criss-crossed many of the streets on Northville's east side and ended on Taft Road in Novi.

City police finally stopped the cycle, which they said reached speeds of 70 to 90 miles per hour, by striking the bike's rear tire with their squad car.

A second Northville City police car was damaged when the brakes apparently failed and the car jumped a curb on Reed Street near Maplewood. The car's driver, who was hoping to intercept the motorcycle at Reed and Maplewood, was unhurt.

Mark L. Holland, 19, 19832 Irongate Court, was charged with reckless driving.

Police said the chase began about 2:30 a.m. when the motorcycle ran a stop sign while turning onto Rayson from northbound Hutton.

From there, said police, Holland turned north on Horton to Eight Mile, east to Novi Street, north to Hill, west to Horton, south past Eight Mile to Lake, west to Grace, and then north past Eight Mile again to Maplewood.

During that time, Holland ignored the police car's siren and flashing lights, was airborne each of three times he went over Baseline Road, hit speeds of 70 mph or higher and ran eight stop signs, according to the trailing patrolmen.

At Maplewood, Holland worked his way north by heading east to Welch and the northwest to Galway in Novi City, said police.

Once on Galway, the cycle reached 90 miles per hour as it sped west to Taft Road, said police. At Taft, police were able to knock the cycle over.

Neither Holland nor his passenger, who was not charged, were seriously injured, according to police, although the Novi Ambulance Department was called to the scene.

In township

Someone stole a television set from an elderly lady last Monday while she was having lunch at a senior citizen center.

Michigan State Police said the thief apparently broke open a rear door to gain entrance to the Haggerty Road residence in southern Northville Township.

The television was valued at $150.

A number of escapes were reported from the Northville State Hospital, including two patients who are described as "extremely dangerous."

One, a 36-year-old white woman with burns to the lower half of her body, escaped Friday and has not been returned as of Monday.

State police picked up another hospital patient around 8 p.m. on Thursday when he was walking in the Seven Mile Road traffic.

Vernon reminded the audience that operation of the recreation program by the school system is not a new idea. It was recommended to the school board some time ago, he said, pointing out that the board was advised to spread earmarked millage for the recreation department over a 10 year period.

Noting that one of the problems inherent with this proposal is that the school district encompasses more communities than only the city and township, Vernon said that earmarked millage would be essential to its success to guarantee continuation of the recreation program should the school district find itself financially strapped and decide to cut out or reduce the recreation program.

Folino briefly reviewed the history of this proposal, noting that it had been a recommendation of the recreation commission. He said the matter had been taken under advisement by the school board and that no definitive decision has been made as yet.

Wagner said that if placement of the recreation program under the school system is not feasible, he would suggest that consideration be given to making it an operation of a non-profit corporation.

Stilson said the existing joint service is an excellent one, and he expressed hope that it could be continued. If the recreation program is abolished or curtailed it will only give rise to other problems, he warned.

Nichols said that geographically and logically the recreation program belongs to the school district, and that sooner or later he is convinced it will materialize, particularly in view of the constant "tug of war" between the city and township over recreation.

In summation—Wagner said he was impressed by the caliber of candidates by office, that he believes he could be an asset to the council, that he owns and operates the arcade pinball business in the Square and that he is proud of its model conduct, and that children who visit the arcade are looking for recreational outlets. Those attending "are your kids," he told the audience.

Stilson said he favors a "hold the line" on taxes position, that the idea that taxes must increase is a facade, that as a council member he will do his very best to see that every dollar spent is spent wisely.

Nichols expressed past confidence placed in him by the voters and that hopes to continue to honor that trust. He added that one of his "pet projects" will be to establish a full time position of city engineer to maximize dollars spent for engineering.

DeRusha noted that nobody likes to pay taxes, but he observed that the lion's share of taxes paid by city residents are not for the city but for the school district and the county. In the final analysis, taxes are by law based upon the value of one's property. And as long as property values increase it is unreasonable to expect taxes to decrease. As council member, DeRusha said he will continue the council practice of prudently spending tax dollars.

Gardner said he will strive to make Northville the happy, prosperous community it has been, that he seeks no personal gain by seeking office, and that he will be much more than a "Monday night" member of the council.

Mrs. Cutler said she supports the proposed addition to the city hall for a library, but that if it does not materialize and the township goes its own way, the community need not panic because the library can always be returned to its old location in the city hall. She sees the eventual expansion of Novi Road to five lanes as raising problems in Northville that must be dealt with now, adding that she would like to see Center Street become a three-lane street through the city.

Vernon insisted that Northville Square is not a "dead albatross," and that he is as an appointee of the city actively working to revitalize the shopping center and reinforce the economic success of the CBD and the community. He said he has no personal gain or private interests in mind by wanting to be mayor, and he said he was pleased to have received the endorsement of retiring Mayor A. M. Allen.

Folino also emphasized Northville Square is not dead, predicting that it will bounce back through council and mayoral initiative and work. He reminded his listeners of his past service, in several capacities for the city, and asserted that "Northville problems are my problems."

IN THIS CORNER — Even though the race for mayoral and council positions is moving into the last round, candidates were more cordial than battlers as they met the public at last week's forum sponsored by the League of Women Voters. Posing here are the candidates who are seeking voters' support in next Tuesday's election. In the foreground are Paul Vernon (left) and Paul Folino, mayoral candidates, while in the background (l to r) are John Stilson, Eugene Wagner, Louise Cutler, Dewey Gardner, J. Burton DeRusha, and Wallace Nichols.

Former councilman and 1975 mayoral candidate Louie Campbell has also decided to give it another shot. Campbell is employed at Detroit Gas Products in Royal Oak.

Other candidates for council are: —Ray Wiedenbach, chairman of the Concerned Citizens Committee. Wiedenbach recently served on the committee that recommended to council the architect to build the proposed police facility.

—Doug Anglin, part-owner of the Anglin Excavating Company.

—Charles Bieler, a CPA employed with the Gerald Schroeder Company in Southfield.

—Russell Button, a Novi resident for 68 years and the owner of Country Cousin Mobile Home Village.

—David Collins, a pharmaceutical sales representative.

—Gary Gustafson, an accountant for Ford Motor Company in Detroit.

—Guy Smith, an accountant with the Federal Mogul Corporation in Southfield. Smith served as manager for successful mayoral candidates Robert Daley in 1973 and Gil Henderson in 1975.

—Thomas Sumiec, a real estate agent with Rymal-Symes.

—Ron Watson, an attorney with an office in Northville.

—Kathleen Roman, a housewife and law student at Eastern Michigan University.

—Charles Bickes, a certified public accountant. Bickes had withdrawn from the race but has re-entered. Bickes suffered a mild heart attack while taking part in a group candidate interview at the Novi News office.

—Carol Merriman, a housewife.

—Eugene Yzquierdo, a teacher at Our Lady of Grace in Dearborn Heights. Yzquierdo has kept active in politics by researching and writing political articles over the past 14 years.

The three candidates who have withdrawn are: Vivian Vowell, Greg Synowiec and Phil Manning.

In the mayoral race, two names will be listed on the ballot although Vince Williams has decided not to run. Williams was transferred to Ohio a week after filing for mayor.

Councilwoman Romaine Roethel thus became the only candidate for mayor. Mrs. Roethel has served on the council for four years.

Charter on line

Novi voters will be asked to approve or reject a new city charter November 8, and few citizens are agreed on what changes the charter would actually produce.

The charter contains three basic changes from the present charter: a primary election for council, consolidation of city departments into three basic units, and clarification and expansion of the powers of city manager.

The primary election proposal is clean enough — but its need and expense have been questioned in some quarters. Mayor Gil Henderson says the primary would be an unnecessary increase in costs and time.

Candidates would likely have to file in mid-summer and if there were more than two candidates for each vacancy, a primary would be held. The length of the campaign would increase from roughly a month to three or four months.

Many candidates have commented that it is difficult to maintain interest in a one-month campaign and that three months would be just too long for a council race.

Another point raised is that the increased campaign length might serve to promote "machine" candidates, who would have a large enough staff to handle the extra time and expense involved.

The cost of conducting a primary election is estimated at $3,500.

The advantages of the primary are obvious, especially in light of the 18 candidates who filed for council this year. The primary would allow citizens to better know the final field of candidates.

The change that may grab most of the attention in city offices is the consolidation of administrative functions and powers of the city being divided into three departments — Finance, Public Service and Public Safety.

The city is presently divided into 20 departments.

The changes such as a consolidation would bring are uncertain. It is expected, however, that the proposal would bring about a centralization of financing operations in the city. It would also create another administrator to oversee the fire and police departments.

The Public Safety Office is the change that has brought about the most disagreement. Police Chief Lee BeGole says the creation of the department is unnecessary and would basically add another $30,000 salary to the city payroll.

One reason behind placing the police and fire departments under one head is to increase the efficiency of the fire department. With a volunteer fire department, there is often difficulty in obtaining the necessary manpower.

The consolidation would allow policemen to be trained in firefighting procedures so that they would be available in emergency situations.

City Attorney Dave Fried emphasizes that the police and fire departments would likely continue to operate autonomously, but under the direction of the Public Safety Department.

It's story time

Registration for a pre-school story hour is now being accepted at the Northville Public Library.

The story hour will begin next Tuesday, November 8, and run for six consecutive Tuesdays, through December 13. Open to all children from three-and-a-half to five years old, the program features stories, songs and filmstrips.

Parents may choose either the 10 or 11 a.m. session, each of which lasts 30 minutes.

Poets' Corner

Has The Little Girl Gone?

As a child she had the dreams and ambitions of any other normal child her age. Her biggest worries were if the picture she had so steadily colored would be as good as the other children's in her class, or if she could run fast enough to reach the teeter-totter first so she and a friend could use it on recess. She would sit for hours on end in the sand box digging; dreaming about what it would be like when she had finally reached China. If she had run into a problem that day, they could all be so easily solved in the arms of her mother or with the wind in her hair as she soared higher than the trees in her favorite swing.

But as she grew a little older, she noticed that teeter-totter that she had raced for each day on recess no longer brought her desire; and her favorite swing that she had so loved no longer had a laughing child in its clutches, and it no longer could soar higher than the trees, only as high as the slight wind could push it.

She wondered about God. Was he really there? Was he watching her in all that she did, when she was awake and when she slumbered?

All these questions began to fill her mind and she was very frightened for all these questions she could not begin to answer. She felt as if she were on a Merry-go-round of confusion and she could not stop, or could not get off.

Now somehow, that little girl has changed. She still sometimes must ride that Merry-go-round for there are questions in life that sometimes none of us can answer. But yet she knows life and is fulfilled as a person. And when she looks at a sunrise coming up over the horizon tears of happiness come to her eyes, for she knows this is God, and God has given to her the greatest gift of all, the gift of life, and she will be forever grateful.

When things go wrong, or something comes out not the way it was planned, she is never to old to find comfort in the arms of her loved ones, for that is the greatest comfort of all.

We all know this little girl. For no matter how old or mature we are, this little girl is found in each and everyone of us.

extensive training in counseling during their years in seminary. This has been a growing trend in recent years because of the growing ratio of marital problems.

Father Howard Vogan, pastor of the St. Joseph Catholic Church in South Lyon, is one of several area professionals who are currently attempting to establish a social services office of Oakland County in the area bounded by South Lyon, Wixom, and Milford.

He reports that in most cases where he is sought out for counseling, he can work directly with the people himself. He likes to do this since he feels that faith has an important place in counseling.

When Father Vogan does think further counseling is warranted, he suggests Catholic Social Services which has an office in the Highland-Milford area as well as in most larger cities.

These agencies are open to all regardless of religious denomination. Father Vogan also finds that in some cases he recommends that the persons he counsels see a psychiatrist or psychologist for additional help.

A distorted feeling and faulty perception of themselves as people is the underlying cause of most marital conflict, according to the Reverend David Hurst who heads Pastoral Care Services in Ann Arbor.

The agency which Mr. Hurst, a Methodist pastor, initiated four years ago with support from various denominations, has grown to include two full time counselors, five part-time and several trainees from the University of Michigan School of social work.

The interdenominational service also includes a psychiatric team of professionals who are called upon when the counselors feel it is necessary to evaluate a case further.

Is any price too high to pay for a healthy marriage?

Most counselors don't think so. They equate maintaining a healthy marriage to maintaining a healthy body.

"If you're ill, you go to see a doctor," says Betty Quenon, an elementary guidance counselor in South Lyon schools. "With a sick marriage, it should be the same. You can't afford not to seek help when you consider the number of people involved and the anguish caused by the harrowing arguments."

While the therapy is only as good as the person who gives it, the first step away from those arguments that split a couple in two seems to be similar to that first step in overcoming alcoholism. The parties involved have to admit that there is a problem that cannot be solved without outside help.

Mrs. Quenon observes that many parents who call her for an appointment to "talk about the kids" really are seeking help for themselves.

"They can come to me about their children without having to first admit that there is something they can't handle with their marriage. I try to listen with that third ear and I often find out where the basic problem is that is also adversely affecting the children," adds Mrs. Quenon.

Although the number of counseling sessions it takes to resolve problems in a marriage varies with each couple, Mr. Hurst says that with those who really make a continuing effort 10 to 15 sessions (usually one hour each in length) will be adequate.

His organization records approximately an 80 percent success record in helping couples to mend broken marriages. Sometimes this is achieved in conjoint meetings and sometimes in individual counseling sessions with each party.

"We have others who continue through 50 sessions or as in one case, as many as 100. We encourage the couples or individuals to come back whenever they feel they can't handle a crisis situation. This may be two or three months after their regular weekly counseling was terminated or maybe as much as a year or two years later."

Mr. Hurst relates that often when a marriage is not saved that one or the other of the couple will continue in counseling to help them face the problems created by divorce and loneliness.

Most of the persons seen at the Pastoral Care facility which has offices in St. Andrews Episcopal Church in Ann Arbor are referred there by pastors or personal friends.

Most counselors report that many of their clients come to them because a friend has had a successful experience in solving his or her problems. This seems to indicate that most individuals' original reluctance to admit that they have a problem is erased after counseling. They then become willing to share the successes of counseling with friends.

Lack of communication between the two principals in a marriage is a major stumbling block in resolving conflict.

Mr. Hurst recalls one couple who were totally unable to communicate with even a modicum of courtesy.

"At the first sessions, they would interrupt each other, call each other names and speak condescendingly. Even when I would try to change the subject and work toward being able to converse with them, they would go right back to the name calling and recriminations."

"We agreed at that first session that I would meet individually with each of them for a while."

"So we did in an effort to take some of the steam out of things and to build up their own individual feelings of adequacy and self-confidence."

"We finally were able to meet part of the time in conjoint sessions but after eight months of counseling the husband said he felt counseling was not accomplishing anything. His wife also became disenchanted, feeling that if he wouldn't try neither would she."

"At this point I'm not seeing either of them by their preference. The door is still open, but unfortunately this looks like one of our failures."

Those who set up private marriage counseling services in Michigan must be certified by the state.

Criteria for becoming a certified marriage counselor is mandated by law and requirements are generally demanding. In Michigan, a private marriage counselor must have a Ph.D. in psychology, a Ph.D. in theology or a master's degree in social work with five years supervision under a certified marriage counselor.

Mrs. Quenon says that the American Psychological Association is working with the states to make certain changes in licensure requirements which would allow those who have taken comparable course work to take a "so-called bar exam" for certification.

Is there a trend in what causes marital conflicts? Most counselors agree that there is and that general areas where trouble arises involve money, children, in-laws and sexual relations.

"These are really symptomatic of the more basic thing — a feeling of inadequacy," says Mr. Hurst. "Although it may manifest itself in selfishness, stubbornness and criticism of their partner, often the basic problem is a feeling of failure."

According to Mrs. Quenon, no one goes through life without meeting crisis situations from time to time. She feels that everyone, big and small, needs a little "stroking" from time to time.

She reports that many of the parents she sees in connection with student problems often seek her aid a second or third time.

"They find that things go so much better after they understand the basis of their own and their children's problems that they will call me at the least sign of trouble."

One couple which Mr. Hurst successfully counseled into a happier relationship had trouble at first adjusting to the fact of recurring crisis situations.

"They seemed to feel, particularly the husband, that if they had another crisis situation after counseling they had actually gained nothing. He seemed to think that if he lost a battle, he had lost the war."

"We finally convinced him that everybody suffers crisis at some time or other. The problem is in learning to cope with them as they arise."

Obscenity law spurred

LANSING — Following a recent Supreme Court ruling, the Legislature is being spurred to enact a uniform, enforceable obscenity law. The ruling precluded local ordinances from applying standards beyond those of the state.

The problem, however, is that the Legislature has been struggling for years to write such an obscenity law, while local ordinances were keeping the proliferation of obscene materials in check.

On a 4-3 decision, the high court said a uniform, statewide system of obscenity regulation provides not only the fairest, but also the most effective means of combating obscenity.

The court said local obscenity ordinances cannot stand that seek to establish their own definitions and test for obscenity, to modify the state standards for a presumed case of prohibited conduct and to alter the state prescribed punishment upon conviction.

The ruling noted local units may, however, enact zoning ordinances regulating the locale of businesses selling sexually explicit materials. The location ordinance was previously affirmed by the U.S. Supreme Court in upholding a Detroit zoning ordinance.

The state has not had a workable law since 1975 when the Supreme Court then said the current law could not be enforced without further legislative guidance on definitions of obscenity. The court declared the current state law was not enforceable in respect to activities of adults.

The House of Representatives was first to act on a bill to give the state such an enforceable pornography law.

House Judiciary Committee Chairman Paul Rosenbaum (D-Battle Creek) said the main battle in the chamber was defeating any attempts to apply the proposed law to nonconsenting and consenting adults.

He suggested such an application could bring about an unconstitutional ruling by the Supreme Court which could set back enactment of an obscenity statute by as long as 10 to 15 years.

Problems with understanding terminology in insurance contracts?

The Michigan Insurance Commission, attempting to make insurance coverages readable and understandable to the layman, will open public hearings on proposed rules applying the insurance industry to the new uniform trade practices act.

The new law and proposed rules are designed to curb abuses in the insurance industry. Misrepresentation in sales, false advertising, shoddy claims practices and unfair discrimination are identified and prohibited.

Another key area prohibits unfair claims settlement practices. Companies would be prohibited from paying claims late and using that as a negotiating tool to get lower settlements.

The new law and rules require companies to investigate and respond to claims quickly and fairly. Interest penalties would be imposed on companies which fail to pay valid claims on a timely basis.

Twenty-three Michigan counties in the northern regions of the state are without enough doctors to meet basic needs of county residents, according to a study by a Republican Legislative Task Force on Health Manpower Resources.

The problem of a lack of family and general practitioners and other primary care doctors was discovered to be most serious in Keeweenaw, Alcona, Leelanau, Lake and Kalkaska counties.

DENNIS M. VOCSON of Commerce Township has assumed new duties at the advertising agency of D'Arcy-MacManus & Masius. The announcement was made by W. D. "Pete" Moore, president of the Bloomfield Hills office.

Vocson has been assigned to the Pontiac account as an account executive and reports to Ronald M. Fallis, vice president-account supervisor. Harold G. Bay is senior vice president-management supervisor on the account.

Prior to his new assignment, Vocson had been account supervisor on the Burger Chef account. He also had been affiliated with Hardees Food Systems, Stone and Simons, and J. Walter Thompson.

Vocson is a native of the Royal Oak area. He graduated from Kimball High School and attended Oakland University.

Vocson is an active community volunteer worker. He is a recipient of a Certificate of Appreciation award from The National Foundation of the March of Dimes for his work on their behalf. Currently he is serving as a Team Captain for the United Foundation on their fund drive. Vocson also spends many hours at the Oakland County Mental Retardation Center as a volunteer worker helping the mentally handicapped.

Vocson and his wife, Judith, live in Commerce Township with their daughter, Christine.

BACH ENGINEERING & ASSOCIATES, a business dealing directly with energy management and conservation, has established an office at 331 East Main in Northville. Bernard R. Bach, a registered professional engineer with 25 years' experience in the electrical control field, heads the new business. Currently involved with energy management in industry, Bach predicts that heat reclaim fans, fixed temperature thermostats and peak load demand controls will play a major role in saving energy for business and industry.

DR. JOHN R. SWANSON, 435 North pontiac Trail, Walled Lake, recently attended an orthokeratology seminar in Dearborn.

Orthokeratology is defined as the reduction, modification, or elimination of refractive anomalies by the programmed application of contact lenses or other related procedures. Dr. Swanson is a practitioner of orthokeratology.

Speakers at the seminar included Dr. Albert Fontana of Chicago, Dr. Ned Paige of Toronto, Dr. Milt Meyer of Detroit, and Dr. Cowans, also from the Detroit area.

A SOUTH LYON MAN, Christian A. Krauter, vice-president of Easco Sparcatron, Inc. in Ann Arbor, has been on the speaking circuit across the country for the Society of Manufacturing Engineers.

During the first week of October, he was in Portland, Oregon at the Monte Carlo Club speaking to a cross section of manufacturing personnel on the subject of the original manufacturer and on-board maintenance of turbine engines used in the new super tanker ships in the merchant marine. Other aspects of his talk dealt with the electrical discharge machining of manganese and super alloys used in marine and heavy equipment applications.

In Chicago, Illinois, last week, Krauter was chairman of a series of presentations entitled "contemporary developments in EDM" during the Engineering Conference and Tool and Manufacturing Exposition.

In addition, Krauter presented a technical paper on the latest developments in the fields of electrical discharge machining and in total form machining — a new process developed by Easco.

Vice-president of U.S. operations for the Ann Arbor-based firm which designs, builds, and sells EDM and TFM machines worldwide, Krauter is much in demand as a speaker.

This week, Krauter is at the Pacific Hotel in Los Angeles giving a presentation on total form machining, a new grinding process used to manufacture electrodes 90 percent faster than the present three-dimensional NC processes now being used.

TWO SPIKER FORD-MERCURY employees have recently attained membership in the Ford Society of Professional Sales Counselors for 1977.

The Ford Division of the Ford Motor Company announced that Terry Anderson and Mike Duffie recently achieved Membership in the organization.

Society membership can only be obtained by those Ford Salesmen who display outstanding sales achievement during the calendar year. Anderson and Duffie have been members of the Spiker Ford-Mercury sales staff in Milford since 1968.

STEPHEN BARNES, 26, of 4181 Aspen in Novi earned one of the highest scores in the Broker's Associate Tests conducted in Lansing October 3.

Barnes scored 97 out of a possible 100 on the test. He is employed with Realty Workd on 12 Mile in Farmington.

ROBERT WISEMAN

ROBERT J. WISEMAN was appointed vice president and general manager for Ex-Cell-O Materials Handling Company, a subsidiary of Ex-Cell-O Corporation in St. Paul, Minnesota.

Prior to this appointment, Wiseman was director of management information services at the corporation's Walled Lake facility. He joined Ex-Cell-O in 1966 and has held various positions in corporate systems.

He graduated from the University of Detroit with a BA degree in accounting.

Wiseman and his wife have two children. They will make their home in the St. Paul area.

LITTLE CAESARS PIZZERIA at 43333 Seven Mile in Northville Township opens officially for business with a ribbon-cutting ceremony by Township Supervisor Wilson Grier as Larry Sheehan and his wife, Joan, look on. The Sheehans' new pizzeria, located just east of the railroad tracks near Northville Road, opened October 27. It has a liquor license.

KEITH COLLINS (right) of Novi, Fram Automotive Division District sales representative in the Detroit area and a recent graduate of the Autolite Spark Plug Training School, receives his diploma from David Bowman, Director of Autolite Technical Services.

The course is one of a series held at the Autolite Training Center in Fostoria, Ohio, for Fram-Autolite sales management personnel. The four-day program is designed to present an overview and working knowledge of the manufacturing, engineering, and quality features of Autolite spark plugs, marketed by Fram Corporation.

GUARDIAN Industries Corp. of Novi reported that both sales and earnings for the third quarter and first nine months ended September 30, 1977, were substantially ahead of the same period a year ago and a record for any quarter or nine months in the company's history.

For the third quarter, net income was $4,723,000, or 68 cents per share, up 15 percent on a per share basis from earnings of $4,317,000, or 59 cents per share, in the same quarter last year. Sales during the quarter were $42,252,000, a gain of 16 percent over sales of $36,383,000 in the third quarter of 1976.

XENDORA THE WITCH, Dianna Hobbs, met all the little trick or treaters who visited her Halloween night at the James C. Cutler Realty located across from the Burger Chef on Center Street, Northville.

Dianna, secretary at Cutler Realty, was busy for the last few weeks making her costume, experimenting with weird make-up, and getting her act together to add to the scary fun of Halloween.

WILLIAM LEE WALKER, Sr. of Northville has been named president of the Walway Company of Southfield.

With more than 40 years in the business, Walker assumes the post formerly held by his father, the late William B. Walker, Jr.

Paul Beard of Northville is vice-president of Walway.

Walker, who has five married children and 11 grandchildren, lives at 42625 East Seven Mile Road with his wife, Bette.

A member of the Meadowbrook Country Club, Walker has been a resident of the Northville area for more than 40 years.

WM. WALKER SR

PAUL VERNON of Northville has been re-elected to the board of directors of the Equipment and Tool Institute. The institute is a national organization of manufacturers of tools and equipment for the transportation industry.

ROBERT MAYNES has purchased the 21-year-old Stannan Insurance Agency, 25939 Novi Road, Novi. Maynes, a Livonia resident, intends at least temporarily to retain the company name.

The company's founder, Frazer Staman, former Novi Township supervisor and Oakland County road commissioner, is retiring from business. He lives in Wixom.

THOMAS GARDNER has successfully completed Ziebart Rustproofing Company's technical training announced Joanne Waite, owner of the Ziebart Auto Truck Rustproofing facility located at 5955 Whitmore Lake Road in Brighton.

The technical training was designed to familiarize Gardner with the details of Ziebart automotive rustproofing.

With the Ziebart process, all rust-prone metal throughout the bodies of cars and trucks are coated with an exclusive rust preventive sealant. Small holes are strategically placed throughout the vehicle body, allowing Ziebart's patented spray tools to be inserted into all hidden, "box-in" sections, such as rocker panels, headlight runs and door assemblies.

These are the areas most prone to rust. They trap and hold moisture and seldom have a chance to completely dry out.

Ziebart Rustproofing Company is a subsidiary of Ziebart International Corporation, the licensing organization for more than 500 independent Ziebart Dealers throughout the world.

NAUTICAL ENGINEERING has purchased a building in Northville, and the manufacturing operation has been relocated to 19442 Gerald.

The firm's new building, which is more than double the size of its previous location, also provides greater work space for service and office personnel.

The move was prompted by Nautical Engineering's expanding line of marine hardware, and increased demand for their products.

TWO TECHNICAL sales representatives have been added and two promotions announced by Thermofil, Inc., Brighton based producer of engineering thermoplastics.

Ronald M. Sohr, vice president, marketing said the new personnel and related advancements will provide strengthened sales coverage in several new market areas.

James V. DeMattei of Atlanta, Georgia has moved to Thermofil after 20 years experience in the plastics industry with Nosco Plastics and ITT. He will be based in Atlanta and cover seven southeastern states as technical sales representative.

Michael Irish of Cary, Illinois has joined Thermofil from Union Carbide of Chicago, and will handle technical sales in Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa.

Ken Snooks and Ron Crossman have been named District Sales Managers.

PAUL J. FENELON has been named technical director for Thermofil, Inc., a Brighton-based producer of engineering thermoplastics, it was announced by Ronald J. Woods, president.

Dr. Fenelon joins Thermofil after eight years with the Chemical and Plastics Division of Borg-Warner Corp. Based at its headquarters in Parkersburg, West Virginia, he served that company most recently as technical manager responsible for the product development of high nitrile thermoplastic resins. He is a respected authority of polymer rheology and polymer impact modification.

At Thermofil, Dr. Fenelon will head up research and development activities for the four plant manufacturing operation and will be based at the corporate laboratories in Brighton.

Dr. Fenelon has had a number of important papers on thermoplastics and plastics processing published in leading trade magazines and engineering journals.

Depression Glass is no give-away today

By JEAN DAY

Carolyn Kugler isn't old enough to have gathered her collections of Depression Glass at movie theater give-aways or in boxes of cereal as her mother or grandmother would have. She's just as delighted with the colored glass in pinks, greens and rare black-amethyst, however, as women were in the Depression days of the 1930's which gave this glassware its name.

"I love it," Mrs. Kugler admitted as she points out pieces in two oak china cupboards in her home on Rayburn. The Kuglers and their two daughters have been Northville township residents for five years.

"Not all glass of the 1930's was give-away," she emphasized, as she held a treasured Miss America bowl given to the Kuglers by his grandmother. The eight-inch curved fruit bowl in soft pink was diamond-cut pattern that glowed in the sunshine.

Mrs. Kugler contrasted this piece with a typical, pink glass give-away plate in etched cherry blossom pattern.

Collectors today differentiate the glass produced by hand work companies and mechanized glass companies by calling the machine-made glass Depression Glass and the handmade Depression-Era Glass.

Mrs. Kugler collects both types and is one of an estimated 100,000 collectors of Depression Glass in the country today.

Seeking out the relatively inexpensive glassware in the many shades of pinks, greens, yellows, ambers, blues, amethysts as well as clear has become a "fun" thing to do.

It's available at garage and moving sales, Mrs. Kugler pointed out, mentioning how she acquired a luncheon set of popular pink decagon (10-sided) when a woman in Redford area was moving.

The glass also is sold at antique shows.

Michigan Depression Glass Society presented its fifth annual show and sale earlier this month in Ypsilanti.

There are two chapters in the area, one in Oakland and the other in Livonia. Mrs. Kugler has been a member of the Livonia group for about a year. It meets on the first Monday of the month in the Livonia Senior Citizens' building at 15208 Farmington Road off Five Mile.

During the first hour from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. members have coffee and exchange glass. There's a brisk business in exchanging pieces, she says.

"I joined the club to learn," Mrs. Kugler explained, recalling that as her husband searched out oak furniture, she became more interested in looking at the colored glass.

"But you stay away from things you don't know about, and I wanted to know more," she continued.

Because members take turns bringing complete place settings, including creamers and sugars, and centerpieces, the group offers "a wonderful way to see a variety of patterns—sometimes really rare one," the collector points out.

She added that the membership in the Livonia chapter group is open so that anyone interested in Depression Glass collecting is welcome.

Mrs. Kugler's mother collects Depression Glass in the Normandie, or bouquet and lattice, pattern.

It and such patterns as Adam, produced from 1932 to 1934 in pink and green, Heritage and Diana all are detailed in a book for collectors.

"I carry it under my arm," Mrs. Kugler said, noting that "Colored Glassware of the Depression Era" is a great reference. She met the author, Hazel Marie Weatherman, at Oakland University. It's a well-researched book, Mrs. Kugler, a former teacher, declared, pointing out that it covers all popular patterns and offers pictures in color.

There's also a larger, second volume available.

Choice "find" in Mrs. Kugler's collection is a luncheon set of black-amethyst decagon. This rare glass never was given away but was the product of Cambridge (Ohio) Glass Company, one of the firms specializing in much finer quality, handmade glass.

Bring your own wine glass to annual League party

By JEAN DAY

Members of the League of Women Voters of Northville, Plymouth, Canton and Novi, who as a matter of practice put coffee and cookies far below business of the league in importance, are about to party. The women, respected for their knowledge of candidates and issues and land use studies, are planning their annual wine and cheese party.

They've invited local governmental officials, finance advisors, contributors and legislators to gather with them at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dumont Hixson at 512 West Dunlap in Northville's historic district from 8 to 10 p.m., Friday, November 11.

Proceeds from the party will be applied to LWV projects. There is a minimum donation of $7 per couple. Reservations are to be made with Lois Hoffmeister, 348-1016, or by sending a check payable to the league to Annalee Mathes, 835 West Main, by November 9.

Honor guests invited to sample the wine, cheese, punch and hors d'oeuvres include U.S. Senator Carl Pursell and State Senators R. Robert Geake, Daniel S. Cooper and William Faust, Representatives Richard D. Fessler, Thomas Brown and Roy Smith, as well as local officials. Finance advisors, also traditionally honor guests at the annual event, include Philip Ogilvie and A. R. Sellen, from Northville.

Incidentally, it's a BYOWG party — "bring your own wine glass."

String quartet to play at Woman's Club

Northville Woman's Club is understandably elated about this Friday's program, set for 1:30 p.m. at First Presbyterian Church. Detroit Symphony Orchestra's string quartet will be presenting "Warm Music for a Cool Afternoon."

Its appearance here is being made possible by a matching grant applied for through the Detroit Federation of Musicians to the Music Trust Fund headquartered in New York City.

"You ride a long way into Detroit to hear this caliber of music, and now it's right here," declares Mrs. Donald Willoughby, program chairman for the day, who obtained the grant. Only stipulation is that no admission fee is charged, she notes. She's hoping that members will invite friends who appreciate fine music to the guest-day presentation. It will feature selections by Haydn, Mozart, Schubert and Schumann as well as some semi-classical music. The quartet is composed of two violins, a viola and a cello.

AAUW to auction goodies

"Make It, Bake It, Sew It, Grow It" is the theme of the annual auction being sponsored by the Northville-Nowi Branch of the American Association of University Women at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, November 8, in the Northville High School cafeteria.

Shari Clason who served as a most popular auctioneer last year again will be seeking bids for plants, baked goods and many craft items, including patchwork pillows and Christmas wreaths. A special feature will be a hand-crocheted afghan made by Mrs. Mary Chysiski at the request of member Jay Ward who supplied the beige-to-brown toned yarns.

The public is invited, says President Jane Rodgers, who suggests that the fun evening is an ideal opportunity to do some early holiday shopping. Proceeds will be contributed to the AAUW Educational Foundation Fellowship Program which provides grants to women doing graduate, doctoral and post-doctoral research. Anyone interested in the AAUW and its programs is asked to call Joyce Murdock, 455-3059.

Newcomers plan dinner - theater night

Curtain call for Northville Newcomers' dinner theater evening will be 7 p.m. Saturday November 19 at Vittorio's dinner theater, 33201 Plymouth at Farmington Road. Members and alumni, who are welcome, will see Neil Simon's "Last of the Red Hot Lovers" after a buffet featuring roast beef, lasagna and baked fish. Dancing will top off the evening.

Reservations at $12.50 a person are being taken through November 5 by Kaye Groombridge, 348-1925, Newcomer President Beverly Walsh announces.

She also reports that substitutes are needed for two tennis leagues, mixed doubles (first and third Fridays) and men's league (Thursdays from 9:30 to 11 p.m.). Openings also exist in the ladies beginner league meeting Thursday afternoon. Anyone interested is asked to call Jane Litchfield, 348-9887.

Lisa Webster, Guy Dixon wed on special date

Lisa Webster and Guy Dixon, who met at Northville High School, were married in a double-ring ceremony they wrote themselves at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, October 15, at Our Lady of Victory Church.

They chose that date as it was exactly seven years after their meeting.

The bride's parents, Harry and Sylvia Webster of 45893 Fermanagh, escorted her down the aisle. The bridegroom's parents, Hedy and Sanfrid Dixon, former Northville residents who have built a new home on Presque Isle, accompanied him.

As Father Gerard Hadad officiated, each mother lit a candle and during the ceremony the wedding candle was lighted symbolically by the couple from the two. Flowers from pink to deep rose decorated the altar.

Processional music was "March Pontificate" with the recessional being an excerpt from Water Music by Handel. Steve Ellis and Mike Sivak, guitarists, during the ceremony played "I Propose", "Beautiful" and "Evergreen", which was sung by the bride.

Delicate beading on the bodice of the bride's Qiana jersey gown formed a V-front from the high neckline and edged the long sleeves fastened with covered buttons. A full train flowed from the yoke in back. A matching beaded headpiece held her fingertip veil of illusion.

She carried a cascade bouquet backed with a variety of greens, including root ivy, pink sweetheart roses, phalaenopsis orchids and stephanotis.

The bride, a June graduate in advertising from Michigan State University, asked her roommate, Cherie North, from Charlotte, Vermont, to be maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Karen Diebolt, Mrs. Sue Ellis, Linda Gasow, and the bride's cousins from Dallas, Texas, Candy Martella and Elissa Stewart.

They wore dusty rose Qiana gowns with high waists and full-length raglan sleeves and carried arm bouquets for three long-stem roses, with greens and pink miniature carnations.

Mark Dixon flew in from Denver to be his brother's best man. Ushers were Doug Brown from Indiana who attends Northwestern, Tom Esper, Dennis Degan, the bride's brother, Doug Webster, and Bob Crum of Cupertino, California, who flew in from a business trip to Geneva, Switzerland.

A punch and cookies reception followed the ceremony at church. Later 260 guests gathered at the Plymouth Hilton Inn. They included out-of-towners from California, Pennsylvania, Texas, New Jersey, Colorado, Vermont, Indiana, New York and Ohio.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will be living in Port Huron. The new Mrs. Dixon will be working at Arden's in that area. Her husband, a 1976 engineering graduate of University of Michigan, employed with Bechtel Power Corporation, is working on a Detroit Edison project in Port Huron.

Celebrate golden wedding

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Straus of 1754 Gloucester in Plymouth and former Northville residents of Beck Road celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary October 22 with a special 5 o'clock mass at Our Lady of Victory Catholic Church.

The couple repeated marriage vows before Father Gerard Hadad who blessed their marriage.

Sunday, October 23, an open house was held with many long-time friends gathering. Mr. Straus is a retired Detroit teacher who is active in the Detroit Retired Teachers' Association. Both are active in the Plymouth-

Northville AARP, having served as greeters for several seasons.

JeanAnn Weston, Carol Donnelly and Anne Rogers check membership lists for FISH

FISH opens membership drive

FISH needs help. The Northville-Novl emergency help organization is beginning an all-out volunteer drive.

"It's not financial aid, but two kinds of volunteer helpers that we need," reports Jo Krause, who had long been a FISH volunteer.

FISH-for-a-day, a volunteer who works on a scheduled day, checking the FISH answering service and then calling other volunteers for the help needed, is one type of volunteer being sought.

Other need for help is transportation volunteers who respond to calls of those who may need to get to a doctor or get a prescription filled.

Sometimes there's a need for a handyman to do a chore, especially for the elderly, or to babysit.

This need for help is primarily non-financial, says Mrs. Krause of the non-demonstrational organization that has support and endorsement from area churches.

"When we need funds, we put out a plea and they do a terrific job of coming to our aid," she explains.

Money is used to give help and to pay for the 24-hour answering service that takes the calls for assistance.

Carol Donnelly is scheduling chairman, arranging for FISH-for-a-day helpers who work one day every five or six weeks on an average. Anne Rogers is the agency referral person who seeks long-range help through existing area agencies for those in need.

A November membership drive now is under way with FISH updating its volunteer lists and seeking additional helpers through letters to area churches.

Anyone interested in participating in this worthwhile volunteer effort is invited to call 349-7337, 349-7458 or 349-3471.

'Make a wreath'

Anyone participating in the pine cone wreath-making workshop sponsored by the Northville Cooperative Nursery will "come home with a wreath," planners promise. Mrs. Carol Gatti of 19630 Maxwell and her son, Tom, place one of her cone-and-nut wreaths on the door of the scout-recreation building at 215 West Cady where the co-op meets. The workshop will be held there at 7:30 p.m. November 10. It is limited to 75 with reservations at $10 to be made by calling 349-7538 or 477-2863. The public is invited to participate in the new fund-raising project of the nursery mothers. All materials will be supplied.

Monologist to star at Town Hall

"When Betty Jo Hawkens performs, the audience not only watches but participates, with tears, gentle smiles and loud guffaws," wrote a critic about the program of the gifted monologist who will star at the second lecture of the current season of Northville Town Hall.

It will be at 11 a.m. Thursday, November 10, at the Plymouth Hilton Inn.

The critic went on to term Miss Hawkens' performance "an experience — and, wonderful."

Miss Hawkens comes to the lecture platform with a varied and highly successful background in the theatre, television and radio. After attending college in Texas at Rice and Midwestern, she was graduated from Pasadena Playhouse where she starred in many of their finest productions.

Following a stint as star of the Houston Little Theatre, she became a favorite in New York Theatre Guild productions, both on stage and in network television. Among her credits were roles with Betty Field and Walter Abel in "Angel Street," with June Havoc in "Lysistrata" and the comedy lead of Ado Annie in the London production of "Oklahoma," which she played at the historic Drury Lane Theatre for 18 months.

Following her marriage to an Air Force officer, she continued her theatrical profession as the dual role of wife and mother permitted. She performed on television in Ohio and Maryland, and has done commercial work in the District of Columbia.

Her credits include leading roles in "Happy Birthday," "The Glass Menagerie," "Streetcar Named Desire," "Blithe Spirit," "Night Must Fall" and "Showboat." Miss Hawkens' programs of Monologues are drawn from this varied background.

Reservations for the celebrity luncheon following her performance are $5.25 with reservations and checks to be sent to Northville Town Hall Box 93 by this Friday. Mrs. Frank Shokaluk, reservations chairman, may be contacted for information at 349-4714. Mrs. Richard Booms, Town Hall chairman, stresses that early reservations are needed for the luncheon. The opener with Jack Anderson was sold out.

Firebox or chimney — it's the place where the fire snaps and crackles and is a decorator's delight. If it's in good condition and the flue works, make your fireplace the focal point of your room. You might want to alter its proportions, add a new mantle or face it with a different material. Then you are ready to arrange your furniture. Twin sofas or loveseats facing each other with a large low table between can be an informal place to serve cocktails or dine. Pull-up chairs or a swivel lounge can be added to the grouping for company and conversation. Make the wall important with bold color and texture. Hang your favorite picture, mirror or clock, build bookcases on either side — center interest on the fireplace.

GREEN'S CREATIVE HOME CENTER, 107 N. Center St., 349-7110, will be happy to help you to coordinate your rooms. We feature the famous FULLER O'BRIEN PAINTS' top name wallcoverings which we discount from 15 percent to 25 percent, window shades, woven wood shades, unfinished furniture, etc. We have all the necessary supplies for the do-it-yourselfers such as brushes, rollers, drop-cloths, etc. We are more interested in helping our customers decorate their homes beautifully and in good taste, than in just selling merchandise.

DECORATING TIP:
In warm weather, fill the fireplace with flowering plants or greens in interesting containers or baskets.

'Good Scouts' provide fun

When you're very young, going to a fun-and-games Halloween party is tops in excitement, but when you're older, giving such a party is exciting, too.

That's what Girl Scouts in Cadette Troop 363 at Meads Mill School found as they hosted a party for 18 Brownies in Troop 715 of Winchester Elementary.

Invitations went out from one patrol containing papier-mache spiders and rope webs.

Then, last Friday a second patrol took over to supervise fortune-telling, "feel-y" and pin-the-nose-on-the-witch and drop-the-cat-in-the-bottle. The "cat" was created from a clothes-pin base.

Finally, a third patrol served witches' brew and krispy pumpkin cookies and passed out ghost suckers.

She's planning a night of music to help others

It will be music-for-a-cause tonight at Meads Mill Junior High.

From 6:30 to 11 p.m. "Spectrum," a rock and roll band, Northville High Jazz Band, Tom Rice of the Gifted and several soloists will star in a concert. Country singer Pete Bradford is to sing.

Karen Toms, who will be playing guitar and singing, says the musicians have agreed to perform to aid retarded children at the high school.

With concert proceeds Jane Crawford's high school personal psychology class will be purchasing educational materials needed by teachers of retarded, she explains. Karen is a student in the class and has been arranging the public concert.

Three Cities Club plans watercolor talk

Cuyler McCutchan, colorist, will present the program at the club's next meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday, November 9, at the Plymouth Community Credit Union.

LWV to take energy consensus at November 9 area meeting

Next Wednesday, November 9, the League of Women Voters of Northville, Plymouth, Canton, and Novi will take consensus on Energy, a subject being studied nationally by the league.

The meeting will be held at 7:15 p.m. in the conference room of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools administrative offices, 454 South Harvey in Plymouth.

"Everyone is talking about the energy crisis, but it still remains unclear as to what should be done about it. The administration has its views, the man and woman in the street have theirs, oil companies have theirs, and on and on it goes," notes the league.

According to a new League of Women Voters Education Fund publication,

"Energy Options", if the U.S. is to fashion an energy policy which addresses both immediate needs and yet focuses adequate attention on the long-range international impact of the energy crisis, both political and geological concerns must be dealt with.

These concerns will be discussed and consensus will be taken at this meeting.

Neva Carter, president of the local LWV, states that consensus in the LWV means agreement among a substantial number of members reached after sustained study and group discussion. It is not just a simple majority, nor does it necessarily mean unanimity.

The decision reached by the local league is forwarded to the state and national league boards who analyze consensus reports from all over the country.

This majority opinion then is formulated into a national LWV position statement, and the league can then begin to take direct action through legislative processes.

Now's time to enroll at Y

There still are some openings in fall classes at the Canton, Northville, Plymouth YMCA, Janet Luce, program director, announces.

Slim, trim and aerobics for adults is being offered at First Presbyterian Church in Northville November 7-December 16 from 10 to 11 a.m.

An awareness class for adults currently is being held at Epiphany Lutheran Church with Pastor Fred Presioso as teacher.

A first-time offering is an "Attitudes in Action Workshop," termed an adventure in attitudes. "Your life is what you thoughts, attitudes, behavior and communications make it" is the premise of the course to be given November 14-18, Monday through Friday, from 7 to 10 p.m. at Geneva Presbyterian Church.

Paul Rakow, who holds an MA from Western Michigan University, will teach the class. He has been leading workshops and seminars in personal growth for varied groups.

The workshop is $35 for Y members and $45 for non-members.

Some of its objectives are to change self-defeating behavior, expand achievement and productive capacity, increase inner strength and personal effectiveness.

A rapid reading course for teens and adults will be given November 22 and 29 and December 6 (three sessions) at Plymouth Middle School West from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Other offerings include men's adult gym, dried flower arranging, volleyball for women, mini-bread making for adults, gourmet cooking, effective parenting, emerging woman, planning for retirement.

Call the Y at 453-2904 for information.

College has child care information

If you're having trouble locating adequate child care, you can call the Women's Resource Center of Schoolcraft College for assistance.

Answering your call will be the Livonia Council of Early Childhood Services (LCECS), now providing a child-care referral service through the Center.

According to Jan Burke, Chairperson of the LCECS, the purpose of the LCECS is to make information concerning locations, fees and services readily available to parents seeking child care.

To do this, the Council has compiled information from questionnaires that were sent to licensed child-care facilities in Farmington, Farmington Hills, Garden City, Livonia, Northville, Plymouth, Redford and Westland.

With this information, it can answer questions about fees charged by various facilities, the ratio of adult supervision per child, the number of meals served, the minimum or maximum number of hours a child can be at the center including evening, holiday and after-school hours.

"Parents requesting information will be given the names of three to five facilities that may meet their particular needs and will be advised to contact and visit the given centers prior to making a decision," Ms. Burke said.

She added that they will be sent a booklet describing what to look for when trying to decide which facility to choose plus a parent checklist to be used in evaluating the facility.

Persons wanting to take advantage of the services offered by the LCECS, as well as persons wanting to add their facility to the referral list, should call the Women's Resource Center, 591-6400, Ext. 368, between 1 and 3 p.m. any Monday or Tuesday afternoon.

Depression Glass is no give-away pieces 'in the set. However, not all pieces have the mark.

"I bought it knowing the quality," Carolyn Kugler said, telling how she has become more and more fond of the black set with clear glass cups. It's not easily used, she admitted, and for that reason probably not so popular as the pink tones, also made by Cambridge in the same pattern.

This unetched, or blank, type of glass often was decorated with silver deposit, Mrs. Kugler mentioned, perhaps to be purchased as a wedding gift. It was not "cereal box" glass.

The company ceased production in 1954 and had its final closing with an auction in 1958. Imperial Glass Company bought several of the molds but could not continue the "C" mark. Therefore, the older sets like the Kuglers' with the mark are considered more valuable.

"If I happen to see a piece I like and it's a good price, I buy it," Carolyn Kugler declared, showing a set of vaseline green fruit bowls. She's now seeking plates for them.

That's part of the fun for the glass is still available and generally affordable.

Michigan Depression Glass Society's research shows that, as an example, in 1935 people could buy a 32-piece set of dinnerware for a mere $1.59. This same set of six cups, saucers, dinner plates, bread plates, sauce dishes, platter and open vegetable bowl today would sell for about $65 to a collector of the pattern.

"Since many different patterns and colors were offered in open stock, gathering a complete set became the thing to do in the 1930's."

"Housewives pieced together their sets of dinnerware just like they all pieced their lives back together. Each piece of glassware obtained was a little step forward," it was noted at the state show.

In addition to the challenge of finding "your patterns" at flea markets, shows and garage sales, the collector has the enjoyment of setting a pretty table in multi-color hues of sparkling glass.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTHVILLE WAYNE COUNTY, MICHIGAN

ADOPTION OF BONDING RESOLUTION

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that the Township Board of the Township of Northville, Wayne County, Michigan, at a Special meeting of that Board on October 25, 1977, adopted a bonding resolution in the total sum of $90,000.00 for a special assessment bond issue in anticipation of the collection of the sum of Ninety Thousand ($90,000.00) Dollars of future due installments on the special assessment roll hereinafter described.

Special Assessment District No. 8	Description of improvement	Amount Assessment Roll
	598.8 feet of 10" sanitary sewer in Phillips Road from Fry Road to Smock Road	$94,000
	211.8 feet of 10" sanitary sewer in Smock Road south from Fry Road
	1436.5 feet of 10" sanitary sewer in easement, easterly from Smock Road

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the full faith and credit of the Township of Northville, Wayne County, Michigan, has been pledged as security for the payment of said bonds and that if for any reason the assessment to be received from the properties included within this special assessment district are insufficient to pay the bond payments as they become due and payable then the Township of Northville shall assess a tax levy sufficient for the payment of the principal of and interest on said bonds.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that if a tax levy is made, the ad valorem taxes shall not be subject to limitations as to rate or amount.

Shall the City of Novi, County of Oakland, Michigan, borrow the principal sum of not to exceed Two Million Three Hundred Seventy-Five Thousand Dollars ($2,375,000) and issue its general obligation unlimited tax bonds therefor, for the purpose of paying the cost of acquiring approximately 71 acres of land in the City as a site for a civic center complex and for paying the cost of acquiring, constructing, furnishing and equipping a new police administration building and all necessary appurtenances and attachments thereto, as a first phase of said civic center complex?

Special Assessment Bonding Proposition

Shall the City of Novi, County of Oakland, Michigan, borrow the principal sum of not to exceed Six Hundred Fifty Thousand Dollars ($650,000) and issue its special assessment bonds therefor, payable primarily from the collection of special assessments against benefited properties in Special Assessment Districts nos. 32, 33 and 35 to 40, inclusive in the City and secondarily by the unlimited taxing power of the City of Novi, for the purpose of defraying part of the cost of acquiring and constructing street improvements in said special assessment districts in the City?

Each of the above bonds will be payable in not to exceed thirty (30) annual installments, with interest on the unpaid balance at a rate of not to exceed 8 percent per annum, or such higher rate of interest as may be authorized by law.

THE PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST OF THE SAID GENERAL OBLIGATION BONDS AND IF THE SPECIAL ASSESSMENT COLLECTIONS PROVE INSUFFICIENT, THE PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST ON THE SPECIAL ASSESSMENT BONDS SHALL BE PAYABLE FROM THE GENERAL FUNDS OF THE CITY, AND THE CITY IS REQUIRED BY LAW TO LEVY SUFFICIENT AD VALOREM TAXES, IF NECESSARY, FOR THE PAYMENT THEREOF UPON ALL TAXABLE PROPERTY IN THE CITY WITHOUT LIMITATION AS TO RATE OR AMOUNT.

PARKS AND RECREATION PROPOSITION

Shall the City raise, for a period not to exceed three (3) years by a general tax upon the real and personal property in the City, an amount of up to one-half of one percent (1/2 mill) for the purpose of establishing and maintaining a parks and recreation program within the City?

PROPOSED CHARTER

Shall the proposed Charter for the City of Novi drafted by the Charter commission elected on November 5, 1974, be adopted?

ADVISORY QUESTION

Shall the Council specially assess property along mile roads in the City of Novi in proportion to the benefits derived or to be derived for the paving of such roads in order to defray the cost and expenses of such paving?

All qualified and registered electors may vote on the above proposition. Also the following Offices are to be filled at this election:

Mayor — two year term

Councilman — Three to be elected for four year terms

The places of voting will be as follows:

Old orchard landmark may disappear in Novi

Novi could well be losing one of its oldest landmarks.

The Novi Planning Board last week voted unanimously (7-0) to recommend approval of a request from Robert M. Rosin of the Rosin and Rosin Company to rezone 67 acres of land on the north side of Ten Mile between Taft and Beck Roads from R-1-F (small farms residential) to R-4 (one-family residential).

The R-1-F designation requires minimum lot sizes of one acre (approximately .8 dwelling units per acre), while the R-4 designation requires minimum lot size of 10,000 square feet and minimum lot width of 80 feet (approximately 3.3 dwelling units per acre).

The Simmons Apple Orchards are presently located on the 67 acres for which the planning board recommended approval of the R-4 zoning.

Bruce Simmons, former owner of the 67-acre apple orchard parcel, told The News that the property has been in the family since the early 1800's.

A beautiful white brick farmhouse located west of the apple orchards was constructed by his grandfather during the Civil War, Simmons reported.

The farmhouse was not included in the rezoning.

In addition to the 67 acres on which the orchards are presently located, the rezoning request also includes a five-acre parcel on which the Simmons' warehouse and several additional buildings are also located.

Simmons reported that even though the five-acre parcel was included in the rezoning request, he still retains ownership of the parcel and it will not be included in development plans for the remainder of the 67 acres.

Simmons stated further that Rosin and Rosin apparently plans to develop a subdivision of single family residences on the 67-acre parcel.

The future of the proposed development, however, is contingent upon city council's approval of the rezoning request as well as the availability of sewer and water.

The city council, which makes the final determination on all rezonings, is slated to hold a public meeting on the Rosin and Rosin request on November 21.

Sewer and water lines are presently approximately one-quarter of a mile from the property at the corner of Ten Mile and Taft Roads. Sewer and water lines would in all likelihood have to be extended from there before the development can get under way.

In recommending approval of the rezoning request, City Planning Consultant Charles Cairns of Vilcan-Leman told the planners that the land surrounding the parcel in all directions is uniformly zoned for R-4 (single family residential which permits up to 3.3 dwelling units per acre).

Land use in the area consists of scattered single family homes, a church, public schools to the northeast, and vacant lands.

Cairns pointed out, however, that the city's Master Plan proposes the area for single family residential development at a dwelling unit density of 1.5 to 2.7 units to the acre. In addition, he noted that the Preliminary Residential Areas Plan proposed a dwelling unit density of 2.9 units to the acre.

"The present pattern in zoning in the area signifies an apparent deviation from the dwelling unit densities intended for the area in the city's master plan," stated the planning consultant.

"Lands around the applicant's site are presently classified for a higher dwelling unit density (R-4) than those proposed for the area on the City's Master Plan (R-2 and R-3), while the applicant's land is presently classified for a lower dwelling unit density (R-1-F) than proposed on the master plan."

Cairns went on to recommend that "since both the applicant's land and the land around it present deviations in dwelling unit density levels from those proposed in the Master Plan, the most logical undertaking in this case would be to create uniformity in zoning for the area."

Cairns added that he believed the overall intent of the Master Plan could best be served by permitting the present low density of the zoning on the applicant's land transition to the high density residential district requested in the application.

"The residential district being requested by the applicant is the same district which presently exists all around the applicant's land," stated Cairns.

The planning board voted to recommend approval of the rezoning to the request to the council by a unanimous ballot (7-0).

The only opposition to the requested rezoning was expressed by Mrs. Eileen Becker, a Connemara Hills resident. Mrs. Becker suggested that R-3 (12,000 square foot minimum lot size with 90 foot minimum frontage) would be preferable to an R-4 because it would provide a lower density.

Cairns responded that the R-4 would create uniformity of zoning in the area since the surrounding property is presently zoned R-4.

WHERE TO FIND HELP IN CRISES
"The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom..." (Psalm 111:10)

A sociology study published in the Journal for the Scientific Study of Religion states that religious people are more apt to help in crises as well as day-to-day situations. It stresses he is more likely to give aid than a non-religious person. We would prefer to say, when in trouble turn to the nearest Christian (born-again) person available for help. The reason is quite simple. He is in touch with God, the treasure of all wisdom and knowledge.

Sponsored by Kiwanis

It's photo time for retirees

Identification pictures of Northville senior citizens — the first phase of a Golden Years Program sponsored by the Northville Kiwanis Club — will be taken Saturday, November 5.

Pictures taken at that time will later be used for identification cards, which in turn may be used by senior citizens for discounts in some local stores, according to Kiwanis project chairman John Steimel.

Any member or non-member of the Northville Senior Citizens Club is eligible, said Steimel, who urged local residents "to take advantage of this free program."

The pictures are being taken free of charge by a professional photographer who takes the pictures of students in the Northville school system, he explained.

Hours for picture taking will be from 9 a.m. to noon in the Northville Board of Education offices on Main Street, next to the city hall.

In the event that someone may be unable to be present on November 5, a make-up photography session will be held on Tuesday, November 15, from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. at Cooke Junior High School on Taft Road.

Theatre Guild stages comedy

Plymouth Theatre Guild, involving members from the Northville-Plymouth communities, will present "6 RMS: Riv Vu," a fast-paced sophisticated comedy at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, November 11-12 and on the following weekend, November 18-19.

It will be given at Plymouth Central Middle School, Church and Main, with tickets to be available at the door. They will be $3 for adults and $2 for senior citizens and students with identification.

Additional information may be obtained from Patricia Bray in Northville at 349-4136, or Patricia Troth, 453-3305.

Our cider mills attract big crowds

Whether people go for apple cider and hot doughnuts or just to enjoy the atmosphere, the area's two best known cider mills are enjoying a brisk fall business.

Although both mills are located in Northville, each weekend folks come from as far away as Detroit to sample the wares and soak up the country charm.

Foreman's Cider Barrel, on Seven Mile, goes through 300 dozen doughnuts and 1,200 gallons of fresh apple cider per weekend, according to owner Ralph Foreman Jr.

Vern and Ruth Bodker, owners of Parmenter's, just off Griswold, say they sell 1,200 gallons of cider on Sunday alone.

The atmosphere of both establishments has been described as "folksy," "country," and "farm decor."

During the week at Foreman's you can pick your own apples and watch the cider presses run. The presses at Parmenter's don't operate on a fixed schedule.

Offer workshop on grooming, self-awareness

Schoolcraft College Women's Resource Center will conduct workshops on self-awareness and personal grooming during November.

New Horizons, a four-part self-awareness workshop, will meet 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. on Wednesday mornings from today through November 23.

According to facilitator Susie Durkin, New Horizons is a positive, supportive, small group experience in self-awareness.

It has been a successful first step for many women who may be asking themselves, "Who am I?" "Where have I been?" and "Where do I want to go from here?" A $5 fee is charged.

The program is not a career workshop, but is designed to provide an informal exchange of ideas, personal re-evaluation and goal setting.

Topics to be discussed include: returning to school after age 35; finding satisfaction at home or work; decision-making and getting control of one's life.

Holiday Sparkle, a four-part personal grooming workshop, will meet 7:30-9:30 on Monday evenings from November 7 through 28.

Facilitator June Lark will teach proper make-up application, clothes coordination, wardrobe up-dating, accessorizing techniques, poise and confidence.

Richard Emile of Emile's Salon in Southfield will give tips on hair coloring, styling and proper use of hair products.

A holiday recipe exchange is also planned. Participants should bring make-up, scarves and mirrors to the first class session. A $20 fee is charged.

Persons wishing to register for either workshop should send their name, address, and phone number with the required fee to Cashier-WRC, Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty Road, Livonia, Michigan 48152. Checks should be made payable to Schoolcraft College.

Further information may be obtained by calling the Women's Resource Center at 591-6400, extension 370.

She's Alma Queen

Reigning over homecoming activities on the Alma College campus in October was Jennifer Gail McLaren, a senior from Northville who is majoring in religion and also is vice president of the college student council and a member of Alpha Theta sorority. The 1974 Northville High School graduate is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne S. McLaren of 42243 Nottingham Court. She was crowned by Alma President Robert D. Swanson in a ceremony during half time of the Alma-Olivet football game.

GOOD TIME FOR WINE

by Jim Roth

If you like to have fruit for dessert, one way to give it a special flavor is to add a bit of wine. Grapefruit can be baked with a little wine on top, or peaches and pears can be simmered in red wine. You can take a bowl of mixed fruits and moisten them with a sauterne or a little sherry to give them that extra something. If you want to get fancier with your fruit and wine desserts, check out your cookbook for the various taste delights available with a little more effort and a few more ingredients.

With a little effort you can make elegant meals by cooking with wines. For help in selecting these wines, ask any member of our knowledgeable staff at GOOD TIME PARTY STORE, 567 Seven Mile Road, 349-1477. Serve your company a different meal by choosing live lobsters from our tank. If you don't know how to cook and serve them we will be happy to help. Open: 9 a.m. - 10 p.m. Mon thru Sat, Noon - 6 p.m. Sun.
