Budding scientists

Silver Springs School students such as Steve Manasco (above) and first-place ribbon winner Jennifer Johnson (below) were among the many participants in the elementary school's science fair last week. Energy was a common topic, so was outer space as evidenced by exhibits about the solar system and UFOs (right). Science fairs are scheduled in the future at Winchester and Moraine elementary schools. Amerman Elementary School hosted its fair two weeks ago.

Geake wants changes

Abuse blamed on many

"Better administration and not just more money" is needed to curb abuse at the Plymouth Center for Human Development, according to Northville State Senator Robert Geake, a former administrator at the troubled institution which is in the district he now serves.

In an interview Monday, Geake said it cost the state $19,000 a year to house a resident at the Five Mile Road institution. That's five times as much as room, board, tuition, books and supplies cost for a University of Michigan freshman, he said.

"To my mind, there's already plenty of money being thrown at the problem," said Geake. "What we need is better administration and not just more money."

Nevertheless, Geake said he would not support State Representative Charles Varnum's resolution calling for the resignation of the state's mental health director Donald Smith in the wake of charges of widespread and unchecked abuse at the center.

"I'm convinced that the allegations are based on fact," said Geake, who joined the center's psychological staff in 1966 and was an administrator there when he left in 1969.

"I think there is plenty of blame to go around at all levels...from the ward attendants to the Department of Mental Health in Lansing."

"There have been deficiencies. But I'm not aware of anyone in the state better qualified than Dr. Smith."

Geake said the "isolated incidents" of abuse that occurred when he was at the center which were "handled expeditiously" with discipline and dismissals "have gradually been allowed to become more and more pervasive."

Geake has made the following recommendations to Governor William Milliken for reducing abuse at the Plymouth Center:

- Eliminate the bureaucratic layer of three unit directors who stand between the supervisors of the halls where the 850 residents live and the director of the institution.
- Re-establish the position of "child care worker" which requires more education and pays a higher salary than the attendant classification.
- Require each attendant on the day and afternoon shifts to be "directly and personally responsible for a specific

School board asks 5.5 millage hike

The Northville School District will ask voters to approve a 5.5 mill tax hike for the next ten years at a special election on April 29.

The additional taxes would raise about $960,000 next year and would mean a $165 increase in property taxes for the owner of a $60,000 home.

The school board unanimously approved the request Monday night, moments after learning that a 5.7-mill issue in the neighboring Livonia school district had been defeated by several thousand votes.

Last July, by a 1630-686 tally, Northville voters defeated a five-year, 2.8-mill request.

School officials say the higher taxes are needed to maintain the present program, to insure at least minimum maintenance on the district's buildings and to reinstate community-requested programs that were cut during the financial crises of the early 1970's.

"Really, all we're doing is trying to get back to the level of 1974-75, the year of the deficit," said Board President John Hobart. "This millage is not going to give us all sorts of added fringes."

Additional teachers, new textbooks, instrumental music for sixth graders, a six-hour day in the high school, a fulltime athletic director, department chairpersons at the high school and more maintenance are among the items that will be funded if the millage passes.

If the millage is defeated and there is no tax increase, the district's revenue next year will be about $300,000 short of what is needed to duplicate this year's program.

For this reason, board trustee Charles Peltz suggested the millage issues be split — a 3-mill request to maintain the program, buy some books and provide some maintenance and, if that passes, a 2.5-mill request to fund the additional programs.

The board has the "responsibility of carrying forth the existing programs," said Peltz.

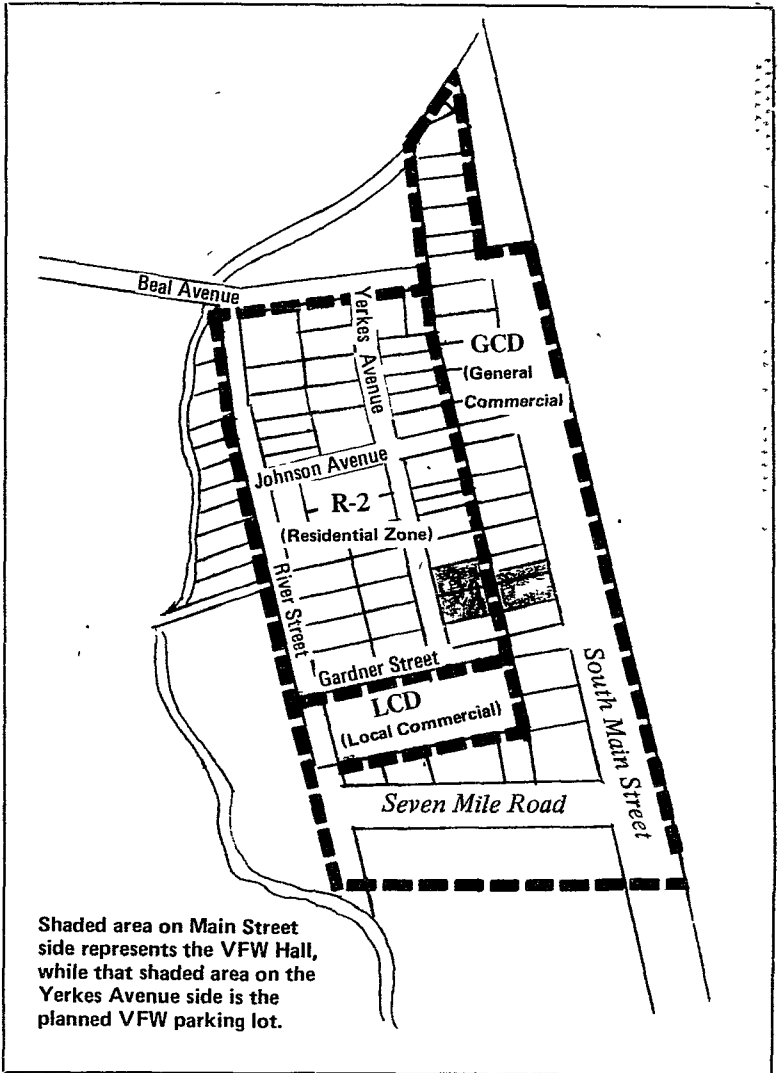

Other board members, however, said the district should attempt to fund the items that have been determined as necessary during several weeks of study.

Vice President Douglas Whitaker said he was "committed to our best estimate of what our real needs are."

"I think it's really important that this board go out and tell the community point blank that we need 5.5 mills," said Secretary Christopher Johnson, "and that the figure was not pulled out of a hat."

Peltz deferred to majority opinion but warned, "If we do not pass this millage in April, it has got to be clear to this community that we will be faced with the same kind of cuts that we were faced with two years ago."

Trustee James Lewis initially abstained from the vote to approve the millage request, but voted "yes" when the board was repolled.

Split vote gives VFW rezoning

Backyards of two Yerkes Avenue houses are to be used for VFW parking.

The parking facility received the green light Monday as the Northville City Council voted 3-2 to rezone the property from a residential classification (R-2) to commercial (GDC).

Council action capped weeks of debate, which started at the planning commission level where commissioners unanimously recommended against the rezoning.

VFW officials are expected to move rapidly in completing construction of the parking lot, which is located behind the VFW hall. Preliminary work had been started last year before protests of citizens halted work.

Under zoning regulations the VFW must erect a four-foot high barrier to shield the lot from adjoining residential properties.

Although council was split, the 'no' side did not reflect planners' contention that the property should remain residential to preserve the character of the neighborhood.

Mayor Paul Vernon and Councilman Dewey Gardner cast "no" votes because they preferred that the entire two-block length of the east side of Yerkes be rezoned to commercial rather than just two lots.

Vernon tried unsuccessfully to persuade council to consider rezoning of the larger area, arguing that council

It will buy...

Here is a list of the items — and their estimated costs — that the Northville board of education hopes to fund if the April 29 millage election is successful.

The board voted Monday night to seek 5.5 mills.

Continuation of this year's program — $373,000. Based on estimates of next year's student enrollment, revenue, inflation and salary settlements, this is how much extra money is needed to prevent any program cuts.

Staff recommendations — $192,000. This includes new elementary and junior high school teachers, part-time assistant principals at each junior high school, hiring special support staff, and providing more lunchroom and hall supervision.

Textbook needs — $70,000. This is over and above the $50,000 already in the budget for books. About $40,000 would be used to replace and update current books. The other $30,000 would be used to buy "essential" books to relieve shortages.

Despite stiffer fines, motorists were given a break: parking violators are to be given seven days instead of three in which to pay fines without penalty.

BRIGHTON — An additional millage proposition which would add or improve programs in both academic and athletic areas is being considered by the Brighton Board of Education for placement on the April 22 ballot. Already slated for the ballot is a 10.60-mill proposal, which includes 7.25 mills of renewal and 3.35 new mills.

BRIGHTON — The township board here is seriously considering the possibility of reviving its plans for a new township hall on property it owns on the southwest corner of old US-23 and Hyne Road.

Second floor rejected

Revised city hall plans studied

Revised city hall addition plans were to be considered by the Northville Historical District Commission last night.

But in sending the revised plans to the commission, the council rejected consideration of a second story above the proposed library wing.

Cost of such a second story, council concluded, is prohibitive.

Furthermore, council members and City Manager Steven Walters argued that the additional space is not now needed nor is it expected to be needed in the future.

The addition housing the library (which is slated to be moved this coming summer from Northville Square to the city hall) is seen as temporary in nature. Officials expect the library, as it grows in use, will require a larger, free-standing library building — perhaps at the southeast corner of the school's administrative parking lot adjacent to the city hall.

When the library is moved to a separate building in years to come, that move will free up city hall space for expansion of other city hall functions, councilmen agreed.

This additional space, contended

Walters, will more than adequately serve future needs for city hall. A second story would represent a surplus of space.

And this additional space, he noted, would be very costly.

"The two-story plan is also more expensive per square foot for the additional area built," he said. "The one-story plan is estimated to cost $231,500 for the additional 5,505 square feet including interior remodeling, or $42.05 per square foot. In contrast, the two-story plan is estimated to cost an additional $137,300 for the additional 3,117 square foot, or $44.05 per square foot."

As it is, even without the second story over the library wing, cost of the project has increased appreciable because council has decided to extend the existing fire station south, creating a two-story wing on the west end of the building.

Expansion of the fire hall, according to the city manager, "could be accomplished by eliminating the carport addition and extending the west wing south, with the lower floor providing the police security garage and two-non security garage bays; and the upper floor providing deep fire truck bays and/or wash-up and other facilities.

"This expansion would be most economical if done as one phase, and would cost approximately $65,500 additional for the fire hall space.

"The police department would gain 400 square foot of additional office space and two garages, but would lose the four carport spaces. The fire hall addition would be large enough to accommodate any type of fire vehicle which the city might purchase in the future."

(Fire department officials are expected to recommend the purchase of a long aerial rig in the next year or two).

The revised plans considered by the historical district commission reflected the expansion of the fire department, but they also offered for consideration a selection of roof lines for the library wing.

Commission members had objected to the original plans in part because the proposed library roof lines were inconsistent with the lines of the existing building.

One of the modified plans suggests a flat roof with molded cornice boards, while another suggests a gable-like roof that has the same pitch as the existing city hall roof, although it would be covering a one-story addition.

Plans call for the library to occupy the lower level of the city hall space now used by the recreation department; plus the additional space to be added to the east and south sides of the city hall.

None of the revised changes suggest any change in the library floor space, which remains at about 6,000 square feet.

New subdivision perils tranquility

Long before the "Pavement Ends" sign, the Main Street route from Northville City to Whipple Estates in the township becomes rutty, potholed and slightly foreboding.

Following Main Street west out of the city to Springwood — carefully guarded by a "No Outlet" sign — is the only way to get to Whipple Road, a 1900-foot street that serves the proud homes of Whipple Estates.

Whipple Road, as is Springwood and that part of Main Street, is unpaved. The last 300 feet of Whipple are impassable for much of the winter, according to one resident.

And that's just fine with most of the people who live there.

Poor, dead-end roads mean no traffic.

It's this seclusion along with the large, wooded lots that make the homes there "some of the most desirable in western Wayne County," according to Nate Whiteside.

But Whiteside and others in Whipple Estates are worried that a proposed 160-home development on neighboring land will threaten their cherished tranquility.

Angelo Spagnoli, who owns the 80 acres — commonly referred to as the Salvation Army property — which border Whipple Estates, was scheduled to appear before the Northville Township Planning commission last night (Tuesday).

Whiteside said that the recently reactivated Whipple Estates Property Owners Association would be there to voice discontent.

Specifically, the association was expected to present a petition that objected to Spagnoli's plans on three major accounts.

First, they want the only entrance to the new development to be from Eight Mile Road, rather than extending the twin dead ends of Whipple to feed the subdivision.

Making Whipple a thoroughfare to Eight Mile Road would increase traffic through Whipple Estates said Whiteside. It would ultimately force the upgrading and perhaps paving of Whipple, he added, and that is something that the homeowners do not want.

Second, the association wants all of the lots that border Whipple Estates to be "compatible" with their homes.

That means lot sizes of an acre or more, rather than the minimum 12,800 square feet allowed in the zoning ordinance for Spagnoli's property.

"We all deplore the idea that he has lots that are 29 percent of an acre," said Whiteside.

Third, Whipple Estate homeowners want the township to insure that there will be adequate drainage for the large number of paved streets, curbs and gutters, driveways and downspouts that will be part of Spagnoli's development.

"A tremendous amount of this acreage will be turned into instant runoff onto our property," said Whiteside.

The association was hoping to obtain at least these concessions — or, if nothing else, force a delay — at last night's meeting.

Since the association fears the township board is already in favor of the project, it feels the planning commission is the last chance for changes.

Otherwise, homeowners are convinced that the Spagnoli development will not only mean "most objectionable" paving for Whipple Road, but eventually municipal lines and storm sewers.

It was a nice try, but...

Two patients at the Northville State Hospital tried to do something Saturday to cut down on the frequent "walkaways" from the institution for the mentally ill.

They tried to ride away. And they might have made it, too, had it not been for a defective muffler and an alert state policeman.

Trooper Carl Stutzner stopped a car on Seven Mile Road near the hospital Saturday because of the loud muffler.

While talking with the driver, Stutzner became suspicious of his two passengers. A check with the hospital confirmed that they were recent escapees.

The driver told police the pair had hitched a ride from him at the hospital, claiming they were mere visitors there.

Shock waves continue from abuse cover-up charges

An eight-day Detroit Free Press series charging the Plymouth Center for Human Development with child abuse and cover-ups has started a series of shock waves that began in the Northville Township state residential center and reached the highest political offices in Lansing.

Last Tuesday—two days after the first article detailing the physical, verbal and sexual abuse—the center's director, Dr. William Womack, agreed to be reassigned to a central office administration post in Lansing.

Womack, who was at the center for six years, will serve as a liaison between the departments of mental health and education even though he has been a critic of the education department's roll in the schooling of institutionally retarded children.

A source in Lansing confirmed that Womack was given his new reassignment "because they needed a place to put him, not because he was qualified." He will receive his same salary, about $35,000.

Also on Tuesday, state mental health director Donald Smith submitted a seven-page report to Governor William Milliken which said that abuse at the Plymouth Center was a "persistent problem of which the department has been aware for some time."

He denied that the center or the state had tried to cover up the charges.

On Wednesday, Evelyn Provitt, a 12-year administrator and associate administrator for mental retardation at the state level, was named acting director at the center.

Miss Provitt began work there Friday and said she would "take whatever steps necessary" to fulfill Milliken's and Smith's mandate "to correct those problems at Plymouth Center which have recently been brought to the attention of the public."

On Friday, Milliken released a 13-point program to delve into the causes of the abuse and to prevent their recurrence.

He appointed Smith to head a three-person panel with yet unnamed representatives from the Department of Social Services and the Michigan State Police. The panel will concentrate specifically on the Plymouth charges.

At the same time, Smith has been coming under heavy criticism from two state lawmakers.

State Senator Joseph Snyder, chairman of the sub-appropriations committee of mental health, said Smith has been "shortchanging the patients" in mental health with budget cuts.

State Representative Charles Varum said he would introduce a resolution calling for Smith's resignation.

Meanwhile, regional mental health director Donald Worden, Womack's immediate supervisor, was granted a leave of absence after a WXYZ-TV news report that he had pleaded guilty to a reduced charge after being arrested for soliciting a male undercover policeman several years ago.

Worden is a Northville resident and is a former director of the Northville Residential Training Center which is located on the state hospital grounds.

By week's end, the Wayne County board of commissioners had asked for a grand jury investigation of the abuse charges at Plymouth Center. Wayne County circuit court judges will have to grant or deny that request.

In another arena, the Michigan Association for Retarded Citizens filed a lawsuit in U.S. District Court seeking an injunction to prevent further abuse.

The suit, among other things, seeks a larger and better trained staff. Hearings begin Friday.

On Monday, center attendants staged an informational picket to protest the Free Press stories which, they said, were unfair, one-sided and falsely implied that most attendants were guilty of abuse.

Monday was also the first day in more than a week that the Free Press did not contain a story about the Plymouth Center for Human Development.

'Unfair' stories rile attendants

Evelyn Williams has been an attendant at the Plymouth Center for Human Development for nearly 18 years and has never abused a resident, she said. But they have abused her plenty.

"I've been beaten up many, many times," she said Monday. "I've been beaten by the blind and the sighted. I've had my hair pulled out."

Her experience isn't unusual, she said. Most attendants have been injured by the residents of the state institution for mentally retarded located in southern Northville Township.

One large man—"He's 6'7", 240 pounds and can lift 150 pounds easy," said Ms. Williams—has personally attacked several attendants, doctors and administrators.

"He tore up his building last Wednesday, broke every light up and down the hallway. These kids are large and abusive, but you never hear of employee abuse," she sighed.

Ms. Williams was one of the attendants who braved the cold Monday to demonstrate in protest of a series of Detroit Free Press articles which charged that the center's patients suffered physical and sexual abuse.

"The stories were terribly unfair to staff," said Yvonne Newby, the president of the Plymouth local of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees which represents the attendants.

"They (the Free Press) gave the kids' side of the story. In all cases, there were extenuating circumstances."

"We're not saying there's no abuse. We couldn't say that. There are quirks, bad people everywhere. But they've lumped us all in one basket and said we're all rotten apples."

Ms. Mewby, an attendant at the center for 11 years, said she "couldn't identify" with stories that abuses were not reported.

Ms. Mewby, an attendant at the center for 11 years, said she "couldn't identify" with stories that abuses were not reported.

"My teaching is that any scratch is reported," she said. "A bad look can be called abuse."

Inadequate staffing makes it impossible to prevent residents from harming each other, said the attendants.

"You have anywhere from 10 or more (residents) per attendant," said one.

"Sometimes, it's 40 for one person on

VFW rezoning ok'd

should focus its attention on "good zoning" rather than a problem of the VFW or Yerkes homeowners.

The mayor contended the two lot rezoning leaves Bealtown (popular name of the neighborhood) property owners in the uncertain position of not knowing the future of their neighborhood.

Later suggestion that planners be formally asked to study the larger rezoning triggered another round of council debate and the matter was left hanging. Stiffest opposition to more encompassing rezoning came from Councilman Bert DeRusha, who contended council should consider rezoning piecemeal to assure acceptable development.

Rezoning of the two lots in question, DeRusha argued, resolves a problem while minimizing nuisance to the neighborhood. Rezoning a larger area would subject the neighborhood to the potential development of less desirable use, he reasoned.

Only one citizen, Ann Nichols, spoke up in opposition to the two-lot rezoning. However, she noted that petitions containing the signatures of opponents and the verbal protests of others were registered at a planning commission hearing.

Her major contention was that Bealtown property owners want to preserve the residential character of the neighborhood and that the rezoning is a direct threat to that desire.

When it was noted that the VFW will have to voluntarily provide a green belt around the lot, she suggested the VFW could not be trusted to provide this protection since it had acted illegally in preliminary development of the lot without first securing permission.

A spokesman for the VFW angrily denied Ms. Nichols' allegation, pointing out that she may represent a conflict of interest because of her real estate business association. "We've (VFW) been in Northville 30 years, and if we say it will be done it will be done," he declared.

He noted that several of the homes in the Bealtown area are occupied by members of the VFW. With more than 650 members, the VFW must provide additional parking for its membership and guests, it was stressed.

In reference to contention that homes of Yerkes Street are generally in good repair, Councilman Stanley Johnston observed that "beauty is in the eye of the beholder. Several homes are in nice repair and it is obvious that some take pride in ownership, but several homes on Yerkes are in disrepair."

Johnston said he had toured the area and did not find the general good condition others have claimed. "I just don't feel rezoning (of the two lots) will devalue the area."

Those arguing for consideration of a larger rezoning pointed to the impracticality of the existing commercial zoning on South Main Street.

Only the South Main street side of the blocks from Beal to Seven Mile is zoned for commercial, while the west half of the block (Yerkes) is zoned residential. Thus, only an alley separates the commercial zone from the rear of the Yerkes homes.

The two lots on Yerkes purchased by the VFW for parking contain two houses. The houses are not to be removed, VFW spokesmen said, but rather will remain to produce rental monies that the veterans will use to pay for the lots.

group of children on her ward."

— Move the physicians' offices back across the street from the administration building to the wards where they "can see what is going on there."

— Hire a person outside of the administrative structure, perhaps a state trooper or a social services employee, who would patrol the grounds during the midnight shift to check for abuse, theft and vandalism.

— Require exit interviews with someone in the central mental health office for every administrator who resigns from the center and for a random sampling of professional staff and attendants.

Geake said that people who qualify as "child care workers" would need some college training in teaching, social services, nursing or related fields and would view their job more as a profession than as a means for getting a paycheck.

An attendant, he said, does not even need a high school diploma.

"When I was there, we always had a lot of applications (for attendants) when the assembly lines shut down and then we had trouble filling jobs when they started rehiring," he said.

Geake said attendants should be held accountable for residents in their charge who suffer unexplained injuries.

Doctors, he said, had moved to the administration building for the stated reason that they wanted to "normalize our children" by giving the experience of "going to the doctor."

The "real reason," charged Geake, is that the physicians preferred the "cleaner and quieter" administration building where they could "associate with a higher level of people."

Requiring Lansing officials to conduct exit interviews would give disgruntled employees a chance to air their gripes, said Geake.

Although Geake said he was "disappointed" that Governor William Milliken's 13-point program to end abuse "lacked specificity," he said he was confident that the governor is "determined not to let this drag on."

Geake, a member of the Plymouth Association for Retarded Citizens, said he had been aware of "scattered complaints" about abuse at the center, but "was astonished and dismayed" when he read the Free Press accounts.

"If the reporters had not done that, (the abuse) would still be going on," he said.

"That information was available, but it was gathering dust in Lansing. There is no system that will substitute for competent staff."

Crucial evaluation to begin for Spear

A crucial board of education evaluation of Northville Superintendent Raymond Spear gets underway Monday night.

Board members, who will have completed evaluation forms, will meet with Spear at 7:30 at the board of education officers.

Much of the meeting will be a closed session since Spear exercised his right to hear any of the board's complaints in private.

Only those items in which none of the trustees have any criticism will be discussed in public.

Spear came under much criticism from the public last year and two board members, James Lewis and Charles Peltz, were elected in June after saying in campaigns that the superintendent should be replaced.

Spear, who has been a Northville administrator for the past 15 years, is in the second year of a three-year contract.

Until the practice was discontinued last year, Spear's contract had been annually renewed for three-year periods.

The board's consensus evaluation of Spear will be announced at the regularly-scheduled March 13 meeting.

On March 20, the board will conduct a closed executive session to discuss the terms of Spear's contract. Formal action on his salary and length of contract is scheduled for March 27.

Instrumental music — $25,200. This would return band to as many sixth graders as possible who are interested. If the money held out, fifth graders could also take band.

Six hour day in high school — $28,000. This would allow hiring enough teachers to provide six class hours for all high school students who want more than the minimum of five.

Capital outlay — $175,000. The exact use of this money has not been specified.

Extra-curricular program equalization — $40,000. About $15,000 of this is earmarked for upgrading activities — sports, in particular — for girls. An eleventh hour request by coaches convinced the board to include in this category the funds for a full time athletic director.

1978-79 Vocational Education program — $15,000. The district has a five-year plan for improving vocational education programs, but has never allocated the money for implementing it.

1978-79 paint schedule — $10,500. Department chairpersons at high school — $17,000. Teachers say they need an hour of release time each day rather than financial incentive as provided in the contract. The board agreed, but only if contract is renegotiated.

Crossing guards — $2500. Additional guards will be needed as new subdivisions are completed.

Program for the gifted — $10,000. This is combined with a state grant and will be used to continue the elementary school program that has survived thanks to volunteer help.

Sophomores waiting for NEDT test results

Northville High School sophomores will receive the results of the National Education Development Test in about four weeks, according to Principal George Aune.

The test, given to 318 tenth graders on February 15 and 16, is designed to measure a student's academic achievement in English, math, social studies, natural sciences and word usage.

Test results indicate which areas a student may need to concentrate in during his next two years in high school.

Composite results may also indicate strengths and weaknesses in the school's curriculum.

Many volunteers from the community assisted in administering the test. They were:

"And the sole duty is not monitoring behavior. We've got to prepare food carts and medication. You're not just staring at them. It's a good day when only one acts up."

The protesters made it clear that they blamed state Mental Health Director Donald Smith rather than the center's former director William Womack who left his post last week.

Smith is "completely inadequate," charged Ms. Newby. "You make a scapegoat out of one administrator (Womack) and pat the other on the back. If Dr. Womack had gotten the help he was seeking, a lot of this would not have occurred."

Smith was named by Governor William Milliken to head a three-person panel to investigate the abuse claims at the center. AFSCME spokesman Michael Cain said that was akin to "placing Dracula in charge of the blood bank."

The public is unaware of the difficulty of restraining retarded youngsters of all sizes from hurting each other and themselves, said the attendants.

"The staff can be right there and not stop it," said one attendant. "There's one (resident) that if you blink your eye, he'll bite someone. How do you make him turn loose without using force?"

Hilltop apartments get planners' approval

Hilltop Apartments composed of two four-unit buildings in the semi-luxury category received recommendation for approval from the Northville Planning Commission at its February 21 meeting.

The request for site, landscaping and architectural approval for the project to be constructed at the top of East Street was an item added to the agenda at the request of city planner Ronald Nino.

Property owner William Craft had been before the commission last year and had received approval to rezone the property from duplex to multiple (RM-1). It is located on the east side of East between Walnut and Baseline.

John Bailey, developer, showed plans for the units, each to have 1200 feet, including two bedrooms, a bath and a half and a fireplace. The two-story buildings will be brick with cedar trim, Craft said.

Craft, who is principal at Amerman elementary, indicated that he and his wife planned to occupy one of the units and rent the others. He now lives in Livonia. Craft said the project was a new venture for him and priced it between $180,000 and $200,000.

Before giving it unanimous approval, planners questioned storm drainage and made approval subject to requirements concerning it by city engineer Harold Penn.

Commissioner James Cutler questioned whether there might be "a torrent (of water) going down East Street?"

Paul Folino, a member of the audience, asked if it would not be applicable to tie into a storm drain as had been required for his new building on Center and for the neighboring one of Denis LaRoux.

Craft said that some trees already had been removed from the wooded site in preparation for construction.

Other petitioners at the meeting did not fare so well.

The commission unanimously recommended denial to the city council of the change of use request of James Bress for property at the southeast corner of North Center and Rayson. Denial was on the basis of the plans not being acceptable as presented.

The review committee headed by Donald Fee had gone over the application by Bress to move a Detroit News station from the corner building, a former small gas station, to the adjacent house of Rayson Street.

The house already is zoned commercial on the master plan. It presently is rented as residential.

Bress said he would like to continue renting the upstairs apartment as residential and have the newspaper station below.

He stated he is negotiating with a fast food carry-out for the corner building.

Planners would like to eliminate one of the accesses to the property from Center Street and planner Nino displayed a drawing he had made showing an access connecting from Rayson to one farther south on the property on Center. Bress said this would be unacceptable to him.

Kenneth Harrison of 119 Rayson presented a petition to the commission signed by residents of the area indicating their opposition to the change of use petition.

"We now have a very strong residential area and there's already a definite parking problem as parking is allowed only on the north side of Rayson. It's hardly enough when we have company," Harrison told the commission.

He added that the area is one in which residents have been upgrading and remodeling homes but already are "inundated by those who by-pass Center and town and by cider mill traffic in the fall."

He and his neighbors, he said, objected to the fact that "there's no definite break between residential and commercial."

Harrison also told the commission that a newspaper distributor station "doesn't hold with the character of the street" and asked commissioners to "look at the property Mrs. Bress presently owns."

Bress countered by saying, "The reason the corner looks as it does is the hassle I'm getting here (at the commission)" and denied that there would be more traffic on the street.

Denial was voted on the basis of the proposed plan "not being well designed" in the planner's opinion.

Nix Center Street rezoning

Northville City Planning Commission recommended denial of a petition by Steve Folino to rezone eight lots on South Center across from the race track from residential (R-2) to Central Business District commercial (CBD) after a public hearing February 21.

Folino earlier had appeared before the planning commission seeking rezoning for two lots (219 and 220) owned by his mother. He said he had been unable to sell them as residential property.

The commission then informally indicated that he "would have a better chance of rezoning if his neighbors also wished it and joined in the petition." Only one resident involved in the area had not signed, it was pointed out.

City planner Ronald Nino told the commission that "being across from the track doesn't necessarily justify extending CBD" and noted that the city was "having trouble coping with its present CBD boundaries."

Marginal areas, he said, tend to encourage business that doesn't really contribute a lot to the community. He agreed that the area is not desirable for single family living and said he suspects it is not economically feasible to tear down and build apartments.

"I tend to feel it should be for office space. A small amount so zoned tends to be architecturally pleasing," Nino offered, adding that he thinks Wing Street (adjacent to the property) should continue as residential.

He recommended denial with consideration to be given to business and professional zoning.

Commission Chairman Thomas Wheaton asked the petitioner if he would be interested in this zoning. When Folino stated he did not think so, denial motion was voted unanimously.

The planner advised the commission during the hearing that "rezoning purely on a speculative basis has no legal credence."

Novi to get Ward's store

A Montgomery Ward store is planned for construction along Novi Road west of the Twelve Oaks Mall.

The planning for the store's entry into the city will be handled by the Ramco-Gershenson Real Estate Company of Farmington Hills.

Ramco-Gershenson is presently working with Commerce Township for the construction of Kmart at Union Lake and Commerce Road.

"We'll be coming into the city in the very near future," says Mike Ward, owner and executive vice-president of Ramco-Gershenson, "and I will then be able to more fully discuss the concept of the development."

Ward noted there are still numerous problems that must be worked out between the city and Montgomery Ward before the store becomes a reality.

"Hopefully, we'll be able to convince the city that the store will be an asset to the community," Ward says.

Ward plans to appear before the planning board soon with specific plans for the development.

Ward said the store would be regular full-size Ward store, similar to the store in the Tel-Twelve Mall in Southfield.

Montgomery Ward officials says such a store would cost approximately $3.5 million to construct.

Using the $3.5 million figure, construction of a Ward store in Novi would mean an additional $39,000 a year in taxes to the city and a additional $140,000 a year to the Novi school system.

Ward said negotiations between Ramco-Gershenson and Montgomery Ward had gone on for about a year before any sort of agreement was reached.

Ward would not comment which parcels near Twelve Oaks were being sold to Montgomery Ward, but The News has learned that three separate parcels are being considered for the site.

Montgomery Ward officials still will not comment on the construction of a store in Novi, other than to note that Novi has indeed been considered as a possible site of a new store.

Library seeks poster entries

Northville Public Library invites students in grades three through nine to advertise their favorite book or book character in a poster contest which will be going on this month at the library.

Prizes will be awarded and all posters entered will be on display in the library during National Library Week, April 3-8.

One winner will be selected in each of the following three categories: grades 3-4, grades 5-6, and grades 7-9.

All entries should be done on 22" x 28" poster board. Participants are urged to use a variety of techniques in lettering or drawing the poster.

Deadline for entries is Wednesday, March 29. Each of the three winners will receive a paperback book of his choice.

Detailed information is available at the library.

GOOD TIME FOR WINE

by Jim Roth

The skin of the wine grape is very important to the wine making process. First of all, it provides the color of the wine. Grape juice is itself almost colorless. Secondly, during the fermenting process, the skins release tannin. Tannin causes a harsh and astringent taste in young wines, but it helps wines age slowly and maintain their quality over a long period of time. A mature wine will lose the harsh tannin taste and provide delightful drinking for a long time.

One of the most important parts of our business is to provide you with wines that will add to the enjoyment of your meals. Don't hesitate to ask our staff at GOOD TIME PARTY STORE, 567 Seven Mile Road, 349-1477 for suggestions. Come to us too for all your party needs. We have a fine assortment of nuts, party crackers, pretzels and potato chips. Hours: Mon. thru Sat. 9 a.m.-10 p.m., Sunday Noon to 6 p.m.

HANDY HINT: Avoid heavy wines with heavy meals.

RUSTPROOFING.
EITHER YOU HAVE IT OR YOU DON'T

Car makers don't build the rustproof car and no car dealer can deliver the real rustproofing you get with the exclusive Ziebart process. Don't be misled by some sweeping references to "anti-rust" methods used in building some 1977 cars. Real rustproofing must be done after the car is built. And it must cover every critical area inside and under the car. That's the proven Ziebart method. There are no shortcuts. That's why your Ziebart Dealer uses nine different patented spray tools to reach rust-prone areas. That's why he uses a rustproofing sealant that actually penetrates welded seams where rust can start. Your Ziebart Dealer can deliver a rustproofed 1978 car because that's his business—and he knows it. Call him.

Motion Carried Unanimously COMMUNICATIONS FROM CITIZENS: Mr. Robert D. Borthwick, 21041 Stanstead, commented the roads in Northville Estates are still in a very slippery condition. He stated the Subdivision roads were not being salted.

The City Manager explained the City was receiving only limited salt from the salt mines. Mr. Borthwick had one other comment which he thought was more serious and that was the pothole condition of Eight Mile Road between Taft and Back. He stated he had been forced off the road by people dodging holes.

Mayor Vernon advised Mr. Borthwick that Eight Mile was a county road over which the City has no jurisdiction. The County would be contacted.

Mrs. Jerry Dillard, 21248 Summerside, asked why people are allowed to park on both sides of Sheldon Road south of Seven Mile Road. She stated it was mass confusion because of the hill and the snow condition.

Mayor Vernon advised the City could not do anything as this also was a County Road. All the City can do is advise the County of the hazardous condition.

SPECIAL ASSESSMENT ROLL

HEARING — NORTHVILLE ESTATES PAVING: Mayor Vernon opened the Special Hearing and asked for comments from the audience.

The City Manager explained all residents of Northville Estates received a letter and an assessment. If there aren't any corrections to the letter or assessment then the Assessment role should be confirmed. The first payment is due with the July tax bill. Everyone has sixty days to pay the bill, after that time the interest will be charged at 8% per year. He stated there is some work left to be done and the letters in the packet from Mr. & Mrs. Shaughnessy, 21183 E. Childwiden; Mr. Frank Poirier, 21188 Stanstead, and Mr. Dale E. Warning, 21201 E. Childwiden; described the problem areas. The City Manager mentioned all the work would be done in the spring and that normally an assessment roll is confirmed first.

Mr. Paul Dawson, 21219 Chigwidden, stated the City Manager had answered his questions relating to the problem of the culvert. He stated his is partly a problem caused by the spring rains when his culvert is under water. He mentioned the area to the culvert had been back filled with sand and gravel. He wanted assurance from the City that the back filling and paving would not be able to get in and out of their driveway.

Councilman Nichols stated the job has to be completed as bid or the contractor does not get his money.

The City Manager commented the work should be done to the residents' satisfaction before the July billing.

Mr. Frank Poirier, 21188 Stanstead, commented on the letter he wrote to the Council concerning the taper into the driveway and asked for assurance that this would be taken care of.

Mr. John A. Federspill, 21150 E. Chigwidden, asked how much money was being held back from the contractors.

The City Manager stated $3,000 on the unit price for that work.

Mr. Federspill commented there was some significant grading work that needed to be done.

The City Manager stated that some of the ditching is routine maintenance and not charged against the construction project.

Mr. Federspill wanted to know what recourse the homeowners have to see that the ditching will be done.

Mayor Vernon responded the Council's assurance. The residents indicated they were satisfied.

Mr. Robert D. Borthwick, 21041 Stanstead, commented he lives at the other end of the subdivision where all work is completed including feathering, grass was planted. He stated the work was sloppily done. He thought the grass would have to be redone and asked if this would imply this would be taken care of.

The City Manager stated if this were a major problem it would be redone. The feathering is to be done throughout the sub where needed.

Mayor Vernon stated he appreciated the concerns of the people, also the work was done in a relatively short time and left some things undone. The City would see that the contractor lived up to the contract.

Mr. Dillard asked if a contractor would come in and get estimates on paving driveways. The City Manager responded a contractor would be out to the Subdivision in the spring. He stated a letter would be sent to the Subdivision notifying them of a contractor.

Mayor Vernon closed the Public Hearing.

Motion by Councilman Nichols support by Councilman Gardner that the City Council adopt the Resolution confirming the Special Assessment Role without any changes.

Motion Carried Unanimously PUBLIC HEARING — CD GRANT PRIORITIES: A memo from the City Manager which lists the projects considered at the first public hearing as follows:

1. Library
2. Police Facilities
3. Recreation — Ford Field and renovation of the community center
4. Mill Race Historical Village
5. Downtown Development
6. Housing rehabilitation program

Mayor Vernon asked whether the S. Main beautification would qualify under the three year plan.

The City Manager stated there is a need to set a priority on the application.

Discussion followed on priorities.

Mayor Vernon stated the City could pay 1/2 and the CD grant two-thirds of the cost to provide permanent housing for the library.

The City Manager suggested this be the City's first priority and the Ford Field improvement should be No. 2 if the Oakland CD falls through. Twelve thousand dollars would be the amount budgeted for improvement.

Mr. Paul Dawson, 21219 Chigwidden, stated when he moved to Northville fifteen years ago a community building was built and turned over to the school. He would like to see a comprehensive program for people his age such as duplicate bridge or chess. A gathering place of a recreational nature that older people might be interested in.

Mayor Vernon stated he felt the costs would not be extreme and there is a need for this.

Mr. Paul Folino, 20556 Clement Road, asked that the Mill Race Pond be considered.

The priorities were established as follows:

1. Library addition to City Hall
2. Improvements to Ford Field
3. Downtown development improvements proposed in the Parking Study
4. Renovation of the former Community Center to recreation use

Mayor Vernon closed the hearing.

Motion by Councilman Gardner and support by Councilman DeRusha to establish Wayne County DD block grant priorities and allocations as follows:

No. 1 — $140,000 for the library addition to City Hall

No. 2 — $15,000 for improvements to Ford Field

No. 3 — $300,000 for downtown development as proposed in the Parking Study

No. 4 — $200,000 for renovation of the former Community Center for recreation use

The City Manager also explained if the Environmental Impact Study does not go through the sewer project would be set back years.

Motion by Councilman Nichols support by Councilman DeRusha that the Mayor and City Clerk sign the Huron Valley Wastewater Control System Preliminary Contract.

WHEREAS, the federal snow emergency declaration authorized reimbursement of expenses after 6:00 p.m. on Friday, January 27, 1978, and

WHEREAS, some areas did not make an early effort, and are thereby being rewarded by Federal Assistance, and

WHEREAS, Northville is being penalized for clearing their streets early and effectively; and

WHEREAS, in the foreseeable future local units might be reluctant to clear snow early in anticipation of Federal Assistance, thus aggravating the emergency conditions,

NOW, THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the City of Northville hereby object to the federal emergency declaration process which rewards the indolent communities and penalizes the efficient ones, and

The Council concurred that posting of the Agenda was sufficient.

What is most "Distressing" and pleasing at the same time? It's the technique used to mark up the finish of wood (not the wood itself) to make it look old, used and valuable. It takes courage, to smash up a new or used piece of furniture with chains, but it is common practice in the nicest furniture factories. Dirty, rusted and pitted chains will give you the best results for a truly "distressed" effect. After six or seven heavy swings, wipe the piece clean with a wet cloth, steel wool any rough spots, apply stain and dull varnish as a top coat. Use on raw wood or finished pieces and create your own antiques. It works!

Speaking for The Record

Only a taxpayer would understand

The western suburbs are caught in a governmental squeeze that could have devastating effects.

On the one hand, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources is telling the suburbs they must do something about improving their sewer facilities or face a construction ban, while on the other hand the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has delayed the long-planned super sewer project for 10 to 15 months while it studies the environmental impact of such a new sewer system.

The EPA's decision is almost as comical as it is tragic.

EPA fights pollution of the waterways, but delays implementation of a sewer plan that seeks to clean up streams and rivers.

No EPA urgency appeared necessary two or three years ago when planning for the super sewer came off the drawing boards.

In fact when Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti were part of the super sewer plan and then sought to disconnect themselves from the plan in favor of the less costly proposal to empty their sewage directly into the Huron River, the EPA ignored pleas for an impact study and the two cities were allowed to proceed separately.

Now, suddenly, as contracting for the design phase of the super sewer is at hand, EPA wants a study.

We suspect county officials may be correct when they suggest that the decision out of Chicago was made "to meet the federal government's quota of impact studies" and not necessarily made out of need.

Interestingly, EPA's study will involve a mile-wide strip of land from Oakland County to the southern tip of Wayne County.

When county officials argued that the study should await conclusion of the design (engineering) phase of the super sewer to pinpoint a more exact route of the sewer, EPA said it didn't need to know the exact location — only approximation. So they'll study a 5,280-foot strip for a 15-foot wide sewer.

Furthermore, even though Wolverine Lake Village and White Lake Township in Oakland County quit the sewer project a year ago, EPA insists their study should cover that area as well. "If they don't want the service, that's fine," but they'll get it anyway, a spokesman from EPA's Chicago office said.

EPA can't understand why anyone would object to the study since the federal government is picking up the tab. Only a taxpayer would understand.

Indolence awarded

"The government is awarding indolence, penalizing efficiency."

That observation by city councilmen aptly describes the absurd federal regulation relative to financial aid to Michigan communities for removal of snow resulting from the recent disastrous storm.

City officials here are understandably upset, and their concern is shared by a host of other Michigan communities.

Council is so angry it has adopted a resolution attacking the regulation and suggesting modification. The resolution was fired off to Congressman Carl Pursell, who is investigating the problem.

The issue is this: The federal government has agreed to provide financial aid to communities only for snow removal work performed after 6 p.m. on Friday, January 27 — nearly two full days after the storm hit.

Thus, those communities,

Job's not done

In rezoning two Yerkes Avenue lots Monday night, the Northville City Council dealt only with an immediate problem.

Planners and council ought now finish their task by seriously considering the best possible zoning for the remainder of the street. To do less would be a disservice to the property owners, who at this point cannot be certain what the future holds for them.

Property owners can speculate, of course, that the remainder of the street is likely to become commercial because of the two-lot change but they cannot be certain.

We agree with those who believe dividing the block originally into two distinctly separate zones was a mistake. One classification — whether it be residential, commercial or track related — would be far preferable than the existing two-purpose puzzle.

In our opinion, property owner uncertainty, not the VFW's expanded parking lot, is likely to become the greatest menace to the neighborhood.

Officials must not bury their heads in the sand. The problem will fester until more definitive action is taken.

Speaking for myself

Campaign finance act?

ALAN C. FEUER

GOOD . . .

As election years go, 1972 was not a very good year. Political campaign fund raising that year was a nightmare of special interest influence, secret deals and cash in office safes. The problems still remain. But in some very important ways, the election year 1978 will be different.

Passage of the Common Cause supported Campaign Finance Act of 1976 puts limits on contributions to political candidates, and makes those contributions public. The special interests, groups looking for special favors from state government, will have less influence. There's more room for the individual to participate. Candidates will have to tap the grass roots for campaign money. Your small contribution or donation of time means a lot more to a candidate.

It means that one important part of special interest influence has been reduced. And campaign reform means an end to secret cash — we'll know where the special interests put their money, and how they seek to influence legislation for private gain against the public interest. Some political candidates don't like the paperwork of listing who gives them money, but you should, if you want to know who's trying to influence your legislator. Keep your eye on the money — and put your efforts into the campaigns of 1978. It's been said that everyone's organized but the people — and it's time we got to work.

BAD . . .

The new Michigan regulations governing campaign financing instituted last year is a document of questionable origin at best, which numerous political neophytes and veterans alike were ignorant of.

One can appreciate the need for mandatory campaign finance record keeping in view of recent blatant abuses. As a recent candidate for local office I was appalled at the ridiculous required statements (i.e. name a bank that would house campaign funds even if there were none).

The major issue I have with the new law is the post campaign statement. The first knowledge I had of this statute was a registered letter from the county clerk. I was informed of a $10 per diem penalty for not filing within the 30 day time limit. Needless to say the letter arrived six days after the deadline. This was despite attempts after the election in the form of inquiries at the city clerk's office as to any necessary requirements. The county election office made no mention of the form in my exchanges with them prior to the election.

I requested that all necessary documents be sent. The assumption was per that contact I had met all demands. Compliance with the law is not the issue; now through ignorance, prosecution by the Attorney General or payment of a sixty dollar fine are the remaining alternatives.

Atom blasters zero in on army

"Didn't you walk into ground zero?" he asked incredulously.

Certainly not, no one did. We didn't get any closer than perhaps a mile or more away from it," I answered the disbeliever on the other end of the line.

"That's all the closer you got?"

His suddenly disinterested voice trailed off as though my information was unwelcome. He declined to answer any questions, thanked me for calling, and hung up.

Now, following that very brief conversation, I'm more convinced than ever that the Army is in for an unfair going.

A veteran who participated in an atomic test in Nevada in the early 1950's, I had responded to a plea for participants to call a toll-free number to recount their experiences.

The information is to be used in a Congressional investigation.

Having read wads of recent stories about the tests and the awful things the Army did to us, and now having spoken to the collecting agency of that information, it seems to me somebody may be out to crucify the Army.

Let me reiterate, I and the others I was with were not "forced" to participate in the tests as has been charged and we were fully apprised of the potential dangers beforehand. Nobody was permitted to look at the explosion, soldiers who were pummeled by the shock wave disobeyed orders, and all of us were carefully checked for radiation following the blast.

Furthermore, stories surfacing now that soldiers were forced to walk into 'ground zero' immediately following an atomic explosion are preposterous.

Senator Geake draws fire over Plymouth Center role

To the Editor:
It was with much interest that I read the newspaper accounts of the instances of alleged misconduct on the part of the staff of Plymouth Center for Human Development.

The reaction of Senator Robert Geake, however, was also interesting. I commend him for the zeal and enthusiasm which characterized the reported use of his fists in desk pounding, while demanding to know the "whole truth." Good show!

But, I wondered, where has the Senator been the last six years? Senator Geake was working at Plymouth Center as a psychologist while I was employed there as an Institution Social Worker in 1972. I did not once witness him leave his air conditioned office in the Administration Building to venture into the resident dormitories located across Sheldon Rd., and perhaps this might explain his naively regarding the resident care and conditions there.

It is difficult for me to believe his "shock and dismay" are genuine, however. As a past member of the Mental Health, Public Health, Youth Care and Civil Rights Committees in the Michigan House he must have been educated to some degree to the conditions of state institutions, at least those in his district!

In February of 1976 I personally called Dr. Geake's office to inform him of what was felt to be a dangerously low staff level at Northville State Hospital. He was neither available, nor did he return my call.

Abuse and neglect does occur at the state institutions in the senator's district, at both Plymouth Center and Northville State Hospital. And there does exist an "understanding" with regard to the reporting of misconduct on the part of the staff. While employed at one of the institutions I personally was threatened and my automobile was damaged. I could leave and work elsewhere. For many persons, however, their jobs are their livelihood. The decisions they must make are more difficult.

I would suggest that instead of waiting until an election year to "call mental health officials on the carpet," the good senator spend the years he intends to serve in public office working as an advocate for real services and treatment for the institutionalized populations in his district. The needs of these individuals are not now a priority and never have been in this state. Civil Service hiring practices are not geared to select the people best suited for resident training and care. Personnel are not educated nor trained while in service to perform adequately.

The attendant nurse 03 has the most important job in the institution, yet he or she is the lowest paid, least supported and minimally trained. The result is a number of people, totally frustrated, using what power they do have against those who have been left in their care. And humane treatment remains the chaotic hit and miss effort by individuals that it currently is.

Instead of "making charges" and fainting dead away in dismay, I would suggest that Senator Geake use his legislative skills and work to upgrade the resources of our state institutions. What is sorely needed is a wholesale change in legislative apathy. Last minute "fist-pounding" isn't going to achieve much of anything.

'Bill hurts business'

To the Editor:

The United States Senate will soon be considering a bill, which is Senate Bill 2467, that will change the National Labor Relations Act so that small business in Michigan and throughout the Nation will have little or no chance to resist unionization.

This bill gives the large, well financed unions weeks or even months to work in secret to unionize a small company, but gives the company only three short weeks after they are notified that a unionization attempt is to be made to present their side of the argument to the employees before a vote must be taken.

There are so many things that small businesses have to contend with that this appears to be an attempt by government to "pound in the last few nails in our coffin". We are threatened with a $10,000 fine if we do not fill out voluminous forms from the Census Department, Department of Commerce and numerous other forms from other government agencies. For nursing homes the State of Michigan is currently considering the Otterbacher bill which would add another layer of bureaucracy and regulation on the already burdensome regulations that control nursing homes in Michigan.

Business, and especially small business, is not able to find the time and energy to fight these ever increasing demands on our time so that we have little time left over to try and run our business and be a compassionate employer with our employees.

If you, the public, are not willing to help us by writing Senators Griffin and Riegle today to vote "no" on Senate Bill 2467, you may find, some day, that there is no one left who is willing to try to run a small business service in your community. When all local businesses are members of a chain from some big corporation centered in a city hundreds of miles away, the personal service you have always expected from your local small business will no longer be there.

Labor unions have grown to the size of large corporations with the financing and extremely well trained individuals. There is no way that small businesses can match this expertise, but the present law at least gives them an equal opportunity. The new law would swing the pendulum very heavily in favor of unionization.

'School fails measurably'

To the Editor:

I'm in a state of shock, and I'd like to share my grief with you other concerned parents of Northville school children.

My husband and I decided we might send our oldest daughter to a private high school, so we had her take an entrance exam for a nearby parochial school.

After careful consideration on our part, we decided she was doing quite well here. After all she had all A's and was in a special math class. Maybe she was even better off here.

After talking to my daughter about our decision, she asked if I would get her scores from her entrance exams. These are her scores: Reading 76 percent Math 88 percent and here's the shocker Language .07 percent — Average score for the test 73 percent.

No she didn't have a bad day, she did her usual best. But, in the last five years, look what Northville schools did for her.

My daughter is mortified. She can't seem to understand that she didn't fail, Northville Schools failed.

How do I answer her question "Mom, how will I ever make it in college?" Is there an answer to my question, "How will she ever make up what she's lost, or should I say never had?"

Someone should have a red face, Mr. Spear.

I'm withholding my name, not because I don't want it known who I am but to spare my daughter any further embarrassment.

Name withheld

Applauds volunteer help

To the Editor:

I want to express my personal thank you and publicly acknowledge the efforts of the individuals named below for the assistance with the Walk for Mankind sponsor pledge billing.

Last August, Project Concern switched to a computer billing procedure which resulted in an unforeseen billing discrepancy discovered in October. The Northville Jaycees process sponsor pledge payments for Project Concern to keep a more personal touch with our sponsor and sharing groups.

As the Walk treasurer, I asked for volunteers to manually process the 650 pledge billings representing the 20 mile effort of 100 walkers. The task involved a very tedious and time consuming hand billing of all these sponsor statements. These individuals volunteered their time and services to correct this situation and to make sure that the 100 walkers, who walked 20 miles, did not go unrepresented. It is a personal pleasure to be acquainted with these individuals and satisfying to know they are part of the Northville Community. Thank you:

Jack and Joyce Buesquet, George Buellow, Ron and Marty Barnum, Ron Bodnar, Jim and Lynn Hepler, Bill Hartmann, Glen Fogle, Scott Liekett, Dennis and Joan Noel, Howard Kern, Cathy and Susan Stilson, Tim Wilcox, Pete and Mary Winters, Paul Wiegand, Laurie Young, Marilyn Miller, Sue, Bill and Rose Zapke and the following businesses for their contributions and assistance: Michigan National Bank, Northville Stationery, U. S. Post Office, Michigan Bell, Northville Animal Aide, Copy Boy Printer, Little Caesar Pizza and Brooklane Golf Course.

DR. AUGUST A. HOLCOMB

Dr. August A. Holcomb, one of the last of the "Golden Age of medicine" physicians, died last Wednesday at the age of 83, just a little more than a year after he officially retired from practice.

The Reverend Lloyd Brasure of First Presbyterian Church officiated at the service at 2 p.m. Saturday at Casterline Funeral Home, Incorporated. Interment was in Rural Hill Cemetery.

"Doc" Holcomb died unexpectedly at St. Joseph Hospital in Ann Arbor.

He was born August 20, 1894, in Juds Corner, Michigan, but grew up in Novi and was graduated from Northville High School in the Class of 1912. After receiving his MD degree in 1916 in Chicago he started practice in Walled Lake.

He was prevailed upon by Northville friends to practice here in 1924, moving his practice in 1929 to 117 North Wing Street where he lived until his death.

He practiced medicine, he said as he retired, "in the days when the doctor knew the kind of ticking in the blankets of his patients."

He was a key doctor at the old Sessions Hospital and was in general practice specializing in abdominal surgery. He regretted, he said, that medicine today is "no longer a personal thing" as it was for him and his patients.

"Doc" Holcomb also was active in the community, co-sponsoring professional prize fights and helping many who needed it.

He was a life member of Northville Lodge No. 186, F & AM, Eastern Star, and Northville Commandery No. 39, KT.

His father, Augustine T. Holcomb, also was a doctor. His mother was E. May Hartshorn.

He married Dawn Clark, who survives. He was preceded in death by his only child, a son, Jack, who was killed in an automobile accident in 1942. He was the brother of Mrs. May H. Babbitt.

He'll challenge Cooper

Doug Ross, former Executive Director of Common Cause and co-director of the Michigan Citizens Lobby, has announced his candidacy for the 15th District seat in the Michigan State Senate.

The seat is presently held by Oak Park Democrat Daniel S. Cooper, the majority floor leader in the Senate. Cooper was elected to the House of Representatives in 1964 and to the Senate in both 1970 and 1974.

Cooper has not yet announced his plans for the upcoming election.

In announcing his candidacy in Oak Park Sunday, Ross said that "this campaign represents something unique in Michigan. We are seeking to take the citizen commitment and participation that have worked so effectively outside government through groups like Common Cause, the League of Women Voters, and the Michigan Citizens Lobby, and use that energy and dedication inside state government. It is an ambitious undertaking," he said. It is our only real hope for making government in Michigan work better."

Ross pointed to broad citizen participation as the best antidote for "the arrogance of politicians and bureaucrats who come to believe that they alone know what is best for the people of Michigan."

According to Ross:

"Better state government will mean an end to funding programs and agencies each year simply because they existed last year. The Legislature must be forced to undertake the not-so-glamorous job of regularly evaluating the performance of all state programs to see if they've really accomplished their purpose — and to eliminate those that don't work."

"Better state government will mean an end to backroom politics in Lansing where special interest lobbyists spend huge sums of money to buy influence. Tough lobbyist reform legislation is at the head of my agenda. The people of this Senate district, not the special interest lobbyists, are my constituency."

"Better state government means no more grand political promises.

Alcohol awareness classes to start

A month-long public alcohol awareness program begins Tuesday night at the second floor of the Plymouth City Hall, 201 South Main, Plymouth.

The program is free and is open to anyone curious about alcoholism and the effect of alcohol on the mind body and lives of people.

The meetings, sponsored by the 35th district court and the Northville Jaycees, begin at 8 p.m. each Tuesday in March.

On March 7, Dr. Frank Hollingsworth, Ph.D., will speak on the physical effects of alcohol.

Most of the meetings are of the discussion type and questions will be answered regarding treatment facilities in this area.

Settlement appears close

Schoolcraft College trustees still have no contract with the secretarial union, have picked a bargaining team to meet with the faculty union, and have extended contracts with four persons on the faculty.

After a closed-door strategy meeting February 22, the board issued a statement saying it was nearer agreement with the SCAOP (association of office personnel) "than at any time since negotiations began."

SCAOP's 60 members, mostly office and clerical workers, have been without a contract since last June 30.

The board statement said unresolved matters include two fringe benefit items, salaries and length of contract.

An underlying issue appears to be the board's insistence that employees pick up at least part of the increase in health insurance costs, an item that has been rising far faster than the consumer price index.

SCAOP has resisted this proposal, charging the dollar cost would be far greater as a percentage of income for its members than for such classes as faculty and administrators.

The board recently designated its four-member bargaining team for negotiations with the Faculty Forum, agent for 160 full-time and other part-time instructors.

The team consists of John Graves, new labor relations director; Barbara Geil, director of admissions; Norman Wheeler, assistant dean for research; and E.F. Petersen, manager of business services. Graves will head the team. In addition, there will be one other "floating" member.

The Forum is in the second year of a two-year contract that expires in August. Negotiations are expected to start in April or May. The college's negotiations council plans its strategy in February and March.

Two faculty members were granted full status contracts after completing probationary periods.

They are Robert Grubb, in the automotive department; and Dr. John Nathan, who has completed his third year as temporary full-time instructor in English.

Ellen Lee was granted a second year probationary contract after completing her first year in the medical records department.

Fred Wrenbeck received a one-year extension of his contract as director of security from July 1, 1978 to June 30, 1979. Wrenbeck turned age 65 last December 21. Board approval is required for such an extension.

"Actually," said President C. Nelson Grote, "this question will probably be moot between now and July 1 due to the fact that legislation is being considered at both the federal and state levels that will more than likely eliminate mandatory retirement based on age."

Wrenbeck requested the extension because he needs 10 years of service to qualify for the Michigan Public School Employees Retirement System. He will have nine years and 41 days as of June 30.

'Ground zero' is that area directly beneath the center of the explosion. Here desert sand crystalized, metal melted, man-made objects dissolved or were reduced to ashes, and nothing survived.

To walk here shortly after a blast would have been like walking on a bubbling pool of lava. It just didn't happen.

In fact, in the spring of 1953 when I was there, soldiers were not even permitted into 'ground zero' of tests conducted a year earlier. It was still "too hot" to permit humans.

Veterans who are making contrary claims have either forgotten what occurred, are echoing unsubstantiated claims made by a private research firm that so alarmed Congressmen, or they are deliberately coloring their stories in hopes the government will pay them for every illness they've experienced in the past two decades.

What's more, if the questions asked of me are indicative of what others are being asked by the agency making the survey of participants, Congress may find itself with a pile of data that has been orchestrated to put the military in the worst possible light.

What's an atomic explosion like? Next week I'll try to recount, as best my memory and some old letters will permit, what happened when the first atomic cannon test was made.

Meanwhile, I'd be interested in learning, Congressmen Pursell and Broomfield, how my response was tabulated by the government agency to which I spoke.

Southfield wins district opener

Mustangs battle to the wire but lose

Action gets hot and heavy in district play, as Jeff Norton (34, face down) and Marc Hooth (offering help) found out Monday

Northville squeaks by twice

Flu bug bites swimmers hard

Maybe they oughta start holding these meets outside a hospital ward. It sure would be more convenient for the Mustangs.

Northville's swimmers, beset by a flood of illnesses throughout the season already, suffered their heaviest casualties of the year last week and almost lost a pair of dual meets that looked like breathers not long ago.

Eight local swimmers were bedridden with the flu when coach Ron Meteyer's forces took to the water last Tuesday, and two more suffered lapses in the meet itself as the Mustangs pulled out an 89-82 squeaker at North Farmington.

Two days later the team was still without several of those members when it came from behind to edge conference foe Farmington Harrison, 85-84, at Harrison.

"I'm just hoping we don't lose any more people," said an obviously worried Meteyer after the Harrison shave.

And worried he should be. Tomorrow and Friday Northville will be shooting for its fourth straight Western Six championship — at Harrison's pool, no less.

"I think it's going to come down to which team's the healthiest at the time rather than which is the most talented," the second-year mentor remarked in analyzing the league meet, noting that several other area schools are afflicted with illnesses as well. "It's going to be between three teams (Northville, Plymouth Canton and Harrison) and right now I wouldn't bet on any of them."

"I don't know what's going to happen, but it should be very interesting."

To its credit, North Farmington had several swimmers missing, too (almost 20 percent of the school's student body was absent at one point last week). Despite that the Raiders were in the meet right down to the final two events.

Northville's saving grace was its first and second places in individual events. After finishing only second and fourth in the medley relay the Mustangs won seven of the next eight events and went 1-2 in four of them to take a 78-61 lead.

Mark Yanoschik was the team's only double individual winner. He copped both the 100 and 200 freestyles, the former in 52.9 and the latter in 1:55.4.

Also taking firsts were Tim Cahill, who swam the individual medley in

2:14.2; Jamie Pitak, who won the 50 free in 24.3; Paul Cooper, who took diving with 173.4 points; Derek Gans, who won the butterfly in 1:03.8; and Brady Kramer, who won the backstroke in 1:06.1. Seconds were posted by Rick Bargert in the 50 free, Dan McMann in the fly, Pitak in the 100 free, Tom Cahill in the 500 free, Tim Cahill in the

It wasn't a runaway, not by any means. And by any comparison of statistics it should have been.

Southfield's high-flying Blue Jays, though, had enough talent to pull off a 70-62 victory over Northville in first-round action at Southfield High Monday night.

The victory moves Southfield, champions of the Southeastern Michigan Association and holders of a 19-2 season record, into tonight's semifinals opposite Detroit Chadsey. The winner of that game plays the winner of last night's Plymouth Salem-Plymouth Canton contest for the district championship on Friday.

The Mustangs, on the other hand, bowed out with a 10-11 overall mark this season. They were heavy underdogs going in but hardly looked the part of losers for three-and-a-half quarters.

Sparked by a smooth-running fast break offense and balanced scoring Northville actually led through much of the game but fell apart in the last three minutes, largely as a result of a controversial foul call.

At halftime Koepke's crew held a slim 33-32 advantage, and entering the final eight minutes the two schools were deadlocked at 50-50.

With just over three minutes remaining, though, Northville, facing a one-point deficit, was assessed a foul underneath the basket on what Koepke considered "a perfectly clean" blocked shot. Two player technicals ensued, and before the Mustangs could recover they were nine points down and out of the game.

"Some of those (foul) calls were very creative to say the least," Koepke said. "It seemed a shame to get hurt so late in the game that way."

Altogether Southfield netted eight of its 20 points on free throws in the last quarter, while Northville matched that figure with eight of its own.

Leading a balanced scoring attack for the Mustangs were Jeff Norton and Doug Harding, who had 13 points apiece. John Horwath and Joe Schimpf pitched in 10 each while Marc Hooth and Pete Wright had eight each.

Harding and Schimpf topped the local squad's rebounding efforts with 10 apiece while Norton grabbed nine and Hooth eight. Scott Russell, Southfield's 6'7" center, led the Blue Jays with 24 points.

"We really played well, both offensively and defensively," Koepke said of the Northville effort, noting that Southfield's front line dwarfed his own team's.

"Our fast break was just going as well as it has all year. I also thought we rebounded very well."

After winning five of its last seven games the Mustangs finished 10-11 overall this season.

Local club's 3rd

Park Haus, Northville's second-place men's recreation squad, finished third out of eight teams in last weekend's second annual Novi's men's basketball tournament.

Paced by Don Sheffield and Jeff Moon the local club won three of five games in the double elimination tourney and averaged 80 points per contest. The team's only two losses came at the hands of Walled Lake's McIntosh Construction, which won the tourney, and Howell's Leist and Associates, which finished runner-up.

Moon garnered 81 points during the two-day tourney while Sheffield had 94, including 26 in an opening-round 77-75 victory over the Broncos of Farmington Hills.

Harding makes first team

Doug Harding, Northville's aggressive 6'3" 205-pound senior center, was named to the All-Western Six first team in a balloting of conference coaches last weekend.

Harding was one of three Mustangs honored. John Horwath, a 6'1" 180-pound senior guard, was tabbed for the second team while Joe Schimpf, 6'3" 175-pound junior forward, received honorable mention.

Harding averaged 13.8 points per game this season, second best on the team, while leading Northville in rebounds (13.5 per game) and field goal percentage (53 percent from the floor). He joined Kevin Hetherington of Waterford Mott, Butch King of Plymouth Canton, Jim Seefeld of Walled Lake Western and Paul Butkunas of Farmington Harrison as first-team members.

Players selected to the second team were Horwath, Ray Progar of Livonia Churchill, John Cooperrider of Mott, Mike Paulson of Western and Russ Mandle of Canton. Horwath was the Mustangs' leading scorer with 14.8 points per game in 21 contests and also topped the team in assists with 65, or 3.1 per game.

Schimpf was one of four players to receive honorable mention. Others were Randy Rienas of Canton, Craig Hanton of Churchill and Jim Mellema of Mott.

Schimpf, who was the club's second-leading rebounder (6.7 per game) and top free throw shooter (82 percent), was also one of only three juniors honored. The others were King and Mandle.

Tired cagers close on sour note

Northville got a taste of what it's like to play basketball on back-to-back nights last week. And the Mustangs didn't like it at all.

Coming off an impressive 71-64 victory over Milford the night before, the local cagers closed their 1977-'78 regular season with a 58-53 loss at Livonia Churchill last Wednesday.

The defeat snapped a five-game winning streak, the team's longest of the year, and cost them a chance to finish above .500 both overall and in the Western Six. They wound up 5-5 in conference play, good for third place in the final standings, and 10-10 through the regular season.

Coach Walt Koepke could only wonder what might have happened had his squad been more awake that night. The Mustangs started out like a house on fire, racing out to an 18-9 lead in the first six minutes of the game.

But that's as far as they got in the first half. Apparently giving in to the strain of playing twice in two nights, the local squad went ice cold on offense and scored but four points in the next 10 minutes.

Churchill, meanwhile, was just getting warmed up. Paced by Craig Hanton the Chargers stormed to a 31-22 lead by halftime, and they were never headed again.

"That second quarter's the one that killed us," Koepke remarked, noting that Northville was outscored 14-2 in that stanza. "The kids were just dead tired out there. They were dragging their feet."

In an attempt to liven things up the Northville coach substituted five new players in the last few minutes of the half, but the strategy failed to produce. A bucket by Chris Campbell was the team's only score that quarter.

By the end of three quarters Churchill held a commanding 43-32 advantage, and for all practical purposes the game was over.

"We didn't really play all that bad outside the second quarter," Koepke said, pointing out that Northville's defense held Churchill to under 60 points.

But the result went down in the loss column, marking the third straight year Koepke's squad has failed to win at Churchill despite beating the Livonia club here.

John Horwath topped all scorers in the game with 18 points while Doug Harding chipped in 14 and Pete Wright eight. Harding also had 14 rebounds and Joe Schimpf seven. Hanton led the winners with 14 points.

Against Milford the story was reversed.

Facing a 22-20 deficit going into the second quarter, Northville went on a 19-11 scoring spree and held on for the seven-point triumph.

Horwath again had a strong shooting performance, netting 16 points to lead the Mustang scoring attack for the fourth game in a row. Four of his teammates broke double figures as well, though.

Harding and Schimpf had 14 points each while Wright had 11 and Jeff Norton 10. Brian Birckelbaw paced the Redskins with 20 points.

Schimpf headed a balanced board game for Northville with 11 rebounds while Horwath, Harding and Norton snared eight apiece. Horwath, and Wright also has six assists each.

Koepke noted that one big factor in the victory was his team's free throw shooting. The Mustangs dumped in 17 of 24 tosses from the charity stripe, one of their best showings in that category in weeks, while hitting a respectable 47.4 percent (27 of 57) from the field

Dena Irwin performs on balance beam

Gymnasts get year's top score in defeat

On paper the results may not look outstanding.

But Debbie Davis couldn't have been happier with some of the things that happened with her gymnastics squad last week.

On Monday the local girls hosted a tri-meet against Plymouth Canton and Farmington Harrison, and despite winding up third they had their top overall performance this year. With ten Mustangs giving what Davis considered their "best team effort of the season," Northville earned a score of 62, by far the team's highest to date.

"Our goal this year was to hit 60 in a meet," the second-year mentor explained, "and we did even better than that. It was really encouraging. Even though we finished third we did as good as we possibly could have."

And, according to Davis, all ten girls had a hand in it. "Everybody performed well," she said.

Sue Kinnaird and Britt Evans both competed in three events, Kinnaird in vaulting, floor exercise and bars and Evans in vaulting, floor exercise and balance beam.

Two other local gymnasts, Sally Nair and Amy Missel, were in on two events. Nair competed in vaulting and bars while Missel did floor exercise and bars.

Other girls who helped out in the meet were Dena Irwin, who performed on the beam; Laura Mitchell in vaulting; Mary Westphall on bars; Lori Herguth in floor exercise; and Cyd Warren and Debbie Bauer on the beam.

Harrison came out on top in the threeway match with 79 points while Canton wound up second with 78.

Two days later the Mustangs again finished third in a tri-meet with two Bloomfield Hills schools, Lahser and Andover. But again the news wasn't all bad.

Kinnaird, who's been competing in three and four events all season long, capped another fine season by earning a 6.9 in vaulting. It marked the fourth time this year the peppery little junior has gone 6.8 or above in that event, thus qualifying her for this weekend's regionals in Ludington. It's also the second straight year Kinnaird has qualified for the regionals in vaulting.

Her performance helped Northville to a 52-point score, well behind Lahser, who won the meet, and Andover.

Closing out their league season, the local girls finished 10th out of 12 schools in Friday's league meet at Andover High. While the local girls' final score of 58 was far behind Lahser's winning 91-point total, Davis felt the girls "did pretty well." North Farmington placed second.

The Mustangs are now 2-11 on the season with just one more meet remaining. Tonight they host Pontiac Northern in a match that gets under way at 7 p.m. in the local gym.

Athlete of the week

JEFF NORTON

Steady play is the trademark of Jeff Norton, and that's a good part of the reason Northville wound up its basketball season with five victories in the last seven games. The speedy 6'1" 150-pound junior forward had 10 points and eight rebounds to help the Mustangs to a 71-64 victory over Milford last Tuesday. Two nights ago he finished the year with one of his top performances of the season, leading Northville with 13 points and chipping in nine rebounds in a district game against Southfield that went down to the last three minutes before being decided.

Titans take lead

The Titans took over sole possession of first place in fifth and sixth-grade junior basketball action last Saturday.

The Hurons took care of that with an 18-16 upset over the Trail Blazers. Paced by Mickey McGrath, who collected 10 points, the Hurons crept out to a 10-8 halftime lead and held on the rest of the way. McGrath scored all four of his team's fourth-quarter points while Greg Ryba and Jeff King topped the Trail Blazers with six points each.

The Titans; meanwhile, went one game up on the Trail Blazers with a 39-28 victory over the Spartans. Bob Guldberg topped the winners with nine points while Matt Meyer and Steve Schrader added eight apiece.

In other fifth and sixth grade action the Pistons, led by Steve Starcevic's 17 points, remained one game off the pace with a 28-19 win over the Mustangs; the Royals, sparked by eight points each from Jim Robertson and Dirk Nowka, upset the Wolverines 29-25; the Ocelots, thanks to a 19-point effort from Dave Longridge, knocked off the Bulldogs 32-15; and the Huskies, sparked by Todd Deal, edged the Tartars 21-19. Deal wound up with 11 points and scored the game-winning basket with just 35 seconds left.

Cagers wind up second

Churchill loss ends jayvee season

Northville's hard-luck jayvee basketball squad closed its year on a low note last Wednesday.

Playing their second game in as many nights, the Mustangs struggled through a cold-shooting first quarter and lost to Livonia Churchill, 55-49, in their season finale.

The defeat gave them a final 7-3 record in Western Six competition and dropped them into a second-place tie with Churchill, two games behind league champion Plymouth Canton.

"The difference was the first quarter," coach Omar Harrison noted. "We went out after playing Tuesday and looked lethargic. We just didn't play ball."

During that first quarter the local cagers were outscored 18-3, and they never recovered. At halftime the margin was still 10 points, 32-22.

Dan Bartels paced the losing effort with 21 points and 10 rebounds, but was the only Northville player to hit double figures in either category.

Prior to that contest the Mustangs had won three straight games, including a 78-41 rout of Milford the night before.

Led by Bob Crisan, who had 17 points and seven rebounds in all, Northville jumped out to a 46-17 halftime bulge and coasted. Harry Couyoumjian chipped in 16 points and Bartels 15 as Harrison played his entire squad in the game.

The week before that the Mustangs had knocked off Garden City West, 64-56, and Walled Lake Western, 56-51. In both instances they were trailing throughout most of the game but came on strong in the final quarter to win.

Bartels and Crisan sparked the two victories, Bartels with 18 points against Garden City West and Crisan with 24 points and 12 rebounds against Western. Other leading scorers against Garden City were Tom Doyle with 12 points, Ken Weber with 11, Couyoumjian with nine and Gans with eight.

Against Western Bartels and Doyle had nine points each and Gans six, including four clutch free throws in the last minute and 20 seconds of the game, while Rob Ade snared eight rebounds.

Overall Northville finished 16-4 for the season. Bartels was the team's leading scorer and rebounder with 16.4 points and 12.3 rebounds per game. He netted 145 of 241 shots from the floor for a sizzling 60 percent field goal accuracy.

Other leading scorers were Crisan with 15.9 points per game, Couyoumjian with 8.8, and Doyle and Weber with 5.1 each. As a team the Mustangs outscored their opponents by an average score of 61-48, outrebounded them 36-21, and shot 44 percent from the floor.

Men's b-ball roundup

Farm keeps rollin'

Goat Farm just keeps on winning. Northville's recreation basketball leaders, paced by Mark Lisowski and Kevin Callahan, caught fire in the second half and rolled to their seventh straight victory last Thursday, beating third-place Wack Pack 73-57.

Wack Pack struggled out to a 36-33 halftime lead but Goat Farm roared back to go ahead 54-49 by the end of the third quarter. All five starters then scored in the final eight minutes of play as the winners went on a 19-8 scoring spree.

Lisowski wound up with 26 points for the game, 15 of them in the second half, while Callahan had 16, Gary Lisowski 11 and Larry Kaplan 10. The losers were topped by Jim Cahill, who had 18 points, and Brian Gulick, who chipped in 13.

In other men's action Park Haus remained one game out of first with a 68-47 triumph over the Cavaliers and Brodie's Muffler beat Zayti-Long for its first win of the season.

Park Haus had a tight 28-25 advantage at halftime but then outscored the Cavs 22-8 in the third stanza for its sixth victory of the season against one loss. Jeff Moon and Howard Bennett paced the winners with 22 points apiece while John Pantalone added 11. Dave Duguid and James Doyle had eight each for the fourth-place Cavaliers.

Brodie's, meanwhile, made a 30-29 halftime lead stand up for its first victory in seven outings. League-leading scorer Al Schultz paced Brodie's with 29 points and Dave Brewer had 18 while Jim Long with 20 points and Jim Zayti with 18 led the losers.

Spikers lose 5th straight

Northville's volleyball squad lost its fifth straight game in Western Six competition last week, dropping a 15-8, 9-15, 15-6 decision to last-place Walled Lake Western.

For Western it was the first victory in eight league outings this season, while Northville's league mark fell to 3-5.

Chris Suddendorf, Lorri Hopping and Kim Kratz led the local team's efforts in serving. Suddendorf had nine good serves in 10 attempts, two of them good for points, while Hopping and Kratz each had eight good serves and three points in nine attempts.

Hopping had 10 good spikes to lead Northville in that category while Cheryl DeHoff had seven, and Kratz was good on 11 of 13 receptions.

The loss dropped the Mustangs to 8-5 on the season. They'll host a six-team invitational in the high school gym this Saturday before closing out their regular season with a game at Farmington Harrison next Tuesday.

This weekend's double elimination tournament will get under way at 9:30, a.m. and continue throughout the day. Schools competing include Redford Thurston, Livonia Franklin, Livonia Bentley, Westland John Glenn, Wayne Memorial and Northville.

A week from tomorrow (Thursday) coach Steve McDonald's spikers will play here against the winner of next week's Livonia Churchill-North Farmington game in the pre-regionals. Eight schools in the 20-team tournament will qualify to compete in the regionals on March 11.

Jayvees are 2-11

Going into a game last night against Plymouth Canton, Northville's jayvee spikers were 2-11 overall this season and 1-7 in the Western Six.

The team's only victories came against two Plymouth schools, Canton and Salem, but nine of their 13 games have gone a full three sets this season.

Top servers for the Mustangs have been Lisa Arron and Kathy Phillips while Lynn Herald, Pam Metz, Kris Morrison and Phillips have been their top spikers. Coach Louise Hopping's squad closes its season with a game at Farmington Harrison next Tuesday beginning at 7 p.m.

OLV wins tourney opener

Our Lady of Victory opened defense of its 1977 metropolitan CYO playoff basketball championship with a 41-28 victory over Wyandotte St. Stanislaus Sunday.

After drawing a bye for Saturday's first round the Cougars struggled to a 14-11 half time lead at the Dearborn Divine Child gym, then took charge and coasted the rest of the way.

Tim Wagner, Tim McClorey, Terry Nadeau and Kevin McDermott keyed a scrappy OLV defense that forced the Titans into numerous turnovers and helped the winners to a 16-point cushion during the final quarter.

Bob Isom paced the Cougar scoring parade with 11 points and was assisted by Tim McLaughlin with eight, Wagner seven, Nadeau and Pat Foley four each, Carl Lang, three and McClorey and McDermott two each.

Isom also helped shut down the Wyandotte squad's normally strong board game with eight rebounds while Foley, Wagner and McLaughlin snared four apiece.

Sunday's victory was the local seventh and eight grade powerhouse's tenth in a row and its 15th in 18 outings this season. The Cougars will go for number 16 this Saturday when they play at Dearborn St. Alphonsus against a yet to be named opponent.

Local girl qualifies

Hollie Raycraft of Northville finished first place overall in last week's YMCA district gymnastics meet at Plymouth Canton, thus qualifying to perform at the national regionals in Ohio next month.

Competing against dozens of other girls in the Class III (14 and over) age bracket, the 14-year-old local resident took firsts in vaulting, floor exercise and balance beam and placed second on the uneven parallel bars.

She will be one of two Northville girls making the trip south for the regionals in April. Paula Broderick, competing at the Class II level, qualified as well.

Hollie, who belongs to the Farmington YMCA, was one of 11 girls from the "Gym J's" who qualified for the regionals. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Raycraft of 44575 Thornapple.

Bruce Hackmann had crucial fourth-place finish in the 100 freestyle against Harrison

Illnesses keep swimmers on edge

backstroke and Matt Sullivan in the breaststroke.

The local squad failed to take a first in either relay. The medley foursome of Kramer, Sullivan, McMann and Bargert placed second in 1:54.3 while Pitak, Gans, Tom Cahill and Yanoschik lost the freestyle on the last leg and finished second in 3:41.2. Bargert, Tim Cahill, John Doyle and Doug Wright placed third in 4:05.9.

Still missing many of those swimmers, Northville edged Harrison by one thin point when the team's two freestyle relay quartets came through with a 1-3 finish in the last event of the meet.

The victory gave the Mustangs a final 7-1 record in Western Six dual meet action, 10-2-1 overall, but it marked the second time this season they've been surprised by Harrison. Last month they beat the Hawks by a then-surprisingly close 48-35 margin.

Northville won only five of 11 events, but won the meet on the strength of a 1-2-4 finish in the 100 free and the freestyle relay.

Tim Cahill (individual medley), Pitak (50 free), Tom Cahill (100 free) and Sullivan (backstroke) were the team's only individual winners while Bargert (50 free), Pitak (100 free), Tom Cahill (200 free), Gans (butterfly) and Carl Haynie (backstroke), who returned from a bout with the flu, nabbed seconds.

Bruce Hackmann, also returning after an illness, picked up a crucial fourth in the 100 free. Going into the final event Harrison held an 80-75 advantage.

Then Bargert, Gans, Haynie and Tom Cahill came through with the clutch relay victory in 3:39.8 while McMann, John Zimmerman, Tim Cahill and Kramer came from behind in the last two legs for a third in 4:02.4.

Harrison's big gun was a swimmer named John Rudel, a slim freestyler Meteyer described as having "arms like canoe paddles."

"He's so skinny you turn him sideways and you can't see him," Meteyer kidded, "but he's a beautiful swimmer. They call him the human torpedo."

Rudel won both the 200 and 500 freestyles, the former in 1:55.9 and the latter in 5:13.7, and swam a leg on the Hawks' second-place freestyle relay as well. Farmington's other individual firsts were registered by Al Laforet in the butterfly, Jay Emerson in the backstroke and Eric Federspill in diving.

Tomorrow's Western Six preliminaries get under way at 4 p.m. at Harrison, with the top 12 finishers in each individual event advancing to Friday's finals. The finals begin at 7:30 p.m.

Darn goggles

It must've been those goggles.

Last week's swimming picture on page 1-B was mistakenly identified as Matt Sullivan. It was actually Carl Haynie swimming the breast stroke leg of the individual medley in a meet against Plymouth Canton. Haynie set a school record in that event with a 2:07.0 clocking, while Sullivan swam the breast stroke leg of the medley relay.

Geake opposes 'right-to-die' bill

State Senator Robert Geake has denounced proposed "right-to-die" legislation, calling it "a threat to the sanctity of life."

In a speech in Livonia last week to members of "Lifespan," a pro-life organization, the Northville Republican voiced his strong opposition to a bill, currently before the House Public Health Committee, which would allow people to appoint agents to represent them in life-and-death medical decisions when they are unconscious or otherwise incapable of making such decisions on their own due to injury or illness.

"This bill is, in my opinion," a treat to the sanctity of life," he said. "No amount of rhetoric — and rhetoric it is — about individual rights, death with dignity, and the like, can overshadow this threat."

Senator Geake raised several questions about the validity of "right-to-die" legislation.

"Is it really necessary?" he asked. "I think not. Michigan law already allows people to make their own medical treatment decisions as long as they are capable. After that, physicians, in consultation with the patient's family, are responsible for deciding what, if any, further treatments are appropriate."

"In light of the fact that physicians are overwhelmingly more qualified to make decisions regarding treatments than anyone who is not a member of the medical profession, I can think of no valid reason for usurping their authority to exercise judgment over their patient's treatments — particularly at a critical moment," he continued. "In fact, to do so strikes me as a slap in the physician's and the family's faces."

He claimed the bill would leave the door open for potential error and abuse.

"What this bill would do, in essence, is give a nonmedical person the power to practice medicine without a license, to make life-and-death decisions, and still remain immune from any civil or criminal liability," he noted.

"Of course, we could hope that no mistakes or wrongdoings would occur, and we could write bountiful safeguards into the bill to prevent them, but we could never assure that opening the door to 'right-to-die' legislation wouldn't lead to tragic cases or error and abuse," he added.

In addition, Senator Geake, an educational psychologist, questioned whether the bill would really guarantee, as it has been purported to do, death with dignity.

"I would assert that by giving patients the 'right-to-live,' rather than the 'right-to-die,' we would be guaranteeing them much more dignity — dignity that comes from respect for the sanctity of life," he said.

"I believe life is just to precious to permit even the remotest possibility of it being shortened prematurely. And, in my opinion, the proposed 'Medical Treatment Decision Act' goes a great deal further than allowing just a remote possibility," he commented. "I believe, in sum, that it is unnecessary, dangerous, and misleading."

Senator Geake urged consideration of several alternatives to legislative action in this area, including the establishment of more uniform, well-defined hospital policies to provide support in making decisions regarding death and dying, better education of the public and medical personnel regarding this issue, pastoral care support for patients' families and medical personnel, the formation of alternatives to acute care for the terminally ill, and the legalization of certain drugs for treatment of the terminally ill.

New members elected

Five new members were elected to the board of directors of Highland Lakes Condominium Association at the annual meeting held Monday night at Highland House.

Voting to replace retiring members took place the entire week preceding the meeting from a slate of eight candidates.

Four of the co-owners were elected for terms of two years. They are Carl J. Michalski, Larry Irwin, David L. Hamilton and Irving E. R. Benson.

Elected to a one-year term was Edmund Valdukaitis, who currently is association treasurer.

Continuing on the board are Robert Russell, vice-president, and Dorothy K. Gay, secretary.

Retiring members are Mrs. Pat Pezanowski, Jack VanDam, who served three years; Ms. Betty MacKenzie, who served as president for the past 18 months, and Michael Wilson.

The meeting was the third annual one of the association and board under a plan in effect for three years, whereby the board is totally responsible for management of Highland Lakes.

Previous to that, the board, it was explained, acted in an advisory capacity only to Leavitt Corporation.

Two killed as 'wrong way' car causes head-on crash

The Novi driver of this car was killed when she drove through a red light at Sheldon and Five Mile roads

Five deaths in 1978

A white Cadillac crossed the centerline of Seven Mile Road east of Northville Saturday, bounced off one car and struck another head-on. The driver of the Cadillac and a passenger in the second car were killed.

A Wayne County medical examiner told state police Monday that blood samples indicated the Cadillac driver was under the influence of liquor.

She was identified as Patricia Williams, 36, Detroit, an employee of the Northville State Hospital. She had finished her shift there Saturday shortly before the 3:50 p.m. accident.

Stella Nidzgorski, 68, Detroit, also died in Northville's second double fatality in little more than a month and the third traffic death in a four-day period.

Mrs. Nidzgorski was a passenger in an eastbound yellow Thunderbird whose driver, Robert Nidzgorski, 26, Detroit, is being treated at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia for a punctured lung, internal bleeding and severe bone breaks in both legs and feet.

Nidzgorski told police that he saw the wrong-way Cadillac hit a car in front of him — driven by Lynn Jedinak, 24, Plymouth — but could remember nothing else.

Jedinak, who like Nidzgorski was driving west on Seven Mile Road, told police he saw the Cadillac cross the centerline and then swerve back to the proper side, narrowly missing another car.

Then, he said, the Cadillac — which was "kind of floating over bumps in the road" — recrossed the centerline, hitting Jedinak's car in the far right lane and spinning it around.

Jedinak was not seriously injured.

The Cadillac, which witnesses said was travelling at about 60 miles per hour, continued east 137 feet before hitting

PLYMOUTH RUG CLEANERS

Runs red light, dies

Police have no idea why a Novi woman ran a red light and into the path of an empty gravel truck and her death last Wednesday.

It's possible, they say, that Linda Jean Harper, 28, 20818 Glenhaven Circle, may have been daydreaming about the upcoming down payment on the new house she and her husband, John, were going to purchase.

At 3:15 p.m., Mrs. Harper, driving north on Sheldon Road after paying her car insurance premium in Plymouth, drove her 1974 blue Chevelle through the intersection at Five Mile Road even though the traffic light had been red for several seconds, according to witnesses.

Her death was the Northville community's third traffic fatality in 1978. Two young girls were killed in a crash on Eight Mile Road on January 21.

Her car was hit just as it reached the center of the intersection by a gravel truck whose driver said he had shifted into second gear and was accelerating when he saw Mrs. Harper's car.

Delmar Vitore Jr., 23, South Lyon, the driver of the M & B Contracting truck, told police that he honked his horn and applied the brakes. Mrs. Harper, he said, neither looked in his direction nor tried to stop.

After the collision, the two vehicles continued across the intersection toward the northeast before coming to rest against a fence which surrounds the Plymouth Center for Human Development.

Vitore told police he thought there had just been a glancing blow until he discovered that Mrs. Harper's car was pinned beneath his cab which had jackknifed and was pointing west.

It took three wreckers more than an hour to pull the truck off the car. The "jaws of life" were required to extract Mrs. Harper from the wreckage.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia by Dr. Carlos Sosa at 4:40. An autopsy showed she died of multiple injuries. The only other occupant in the car, a pet dog, also died in the crash.

Vitore was treated for injuries at St. Mary.

The South Lyon truck driver told police that the light turned green for him as he approached the west entrance of a gas station on Five Mile Road before the intersection.

A westbound driver on Five Mile who was preparing to turn south onto Sheldon also told police that the light had turned green for Five Mile Road drivers even before he had entered the left-turn lane.

Police were unable to locate Harper, who was at an insurance convention at the Hyatt Regency in Dearborn, until 1 a.m. the next morning.

The couple's son, who is in kindergarten, stayed with neighbors until his father was located.

Township Fire Department Captain Donald Riffenberg installs alarm in Northville City home

Detector sales zooming

If the Northville Township Fire Department is any more successful with its smoke and fire detector sale, the volunteer fire fighters may be out of their jobs.

The Honeywell alarms have been on sale for only 10 days now and the department is already about halfway toward its goal of selling 2500 to 3000 units in the Northville area.

As of Monday, 1305 four-stage detectors had been sold, leaving the department with only 300 in stock. Another 400 have been ordered.

Although some are being sold to people in outlying areas, most are going to Northville residents where Fire Chief Robert Toms hopes that every residence will have two alarms.

"If we do that, we have got to know that this will be a safer place to live," he said.

The detectors — which can be activated by flames, heat, smoke and tiny combustion particles which are invisible to the eye — are being sold for the cut-rate price of $14.95, including battery.

Buyers need $20 to purchase the device from the fire department, but Honeywell will rebate $5 with proof of purchase.

The detectors are sold at the volunteer fire department on weekdays. It is located in the county child development center, east of Sheldon Road and north of Five Mile Road.

The fire fighters have also conducted three sales at selected locations in the township. Two of those — last Saturday's at King's Mill Cooperative and one seven days earlier in Highland Lakes — were immensely successful.

"We sold over $7000 worth last Saturday morning," said Toms.

Thursday, about 150 alarms were sold at Winchester Elementary School.

Toms stressed that, although the township fire department has organized the sale, the alarms are being offered to all comers.

Several have been sold to people from Livonia, Canton Township, Troy and Pontiac, he said.

He said a large number of Northville City residents have also purchased the alarms.

For a dollar, the fire fighters will install the devices for the elderly or the invalid who cannot do it themselves. The money will be deposited into the department's fund to help the needy.

In fact, even though nearly $20,000 worth of detectors have been sold, the fire department isn't making a penny on the sale.

The alarms are being passed onto buyers at cost. The department, said

Toms, wants only to improve the safety of Northville residents.

"To say it has been a success would be lying," he said. "It's been more than that."

Sports violence 'no worse than ever'

But controversy boils in public limelight

By MIKE LASH

Of all the aspects of sports in the 1970's perhaps none has evoked more controversy, more coverage or more concern than its violence.

From "Bad Boy" Dave Schultz to Mean Joe Greene, from Lenny Randle to Kermit Washington, violence in the sports world, at a professional level anyway, has been exhibited as never before in recent years.

Television, radio, magazines and the press have all made the public increasingly aware of incidents like the Kermit Washington-Rudy Tomjanovich punch-out in January.

On the surface it would appear that violence has jumped dramatically in the past decade or so. Most people associated with sports over the years, however, tend to feel little, if any, increase has occurred at all.

Art Spander of the Sporting News pointed out in a recent column that professional sports teams have always had their hatchet men. Jim Loscutoff of the old Boston Celtics was one.

Loscutoff, also known as "Jungle Jim" around the NBA, had little fame for his athletic abilities but was noted for his role of intimidating opponents with roughhousing tactics.

Athletic directors in the Sliger area, for the most part, agree that violence is little different now than it was in the past.

"I don't know if you can say (violence) is growing," says Ed McLeod of Northville, "but I think it's being showcased more. It's being brought out in the open."

That violence has been more publicized in recent years seems indisputable. Whether that publicity is advantageous or not, however, is another issue.

John Osborne, athletic director at Novi High, sees televised violence as having a negative effect on sports, particularly among youngsters.

"Young people are impressionable," he notes. "They watch (violence) on television and it gets encouraged."

Bob Keezer of South Lyon agrees. "I think it has a definite effect," he says. "Kids are great imitators. Fights break out on TV and they talk about how cool it is, and how they wish they could've been there to see it."

Allen Bush, executive director of the Michigan High School Athletic Association, sees a positive side to publicity, though. Although he "hates to see it (violence) brought to the kids' attention," he points out that bringing it to the attention of state athletic officials creates an awareness of the need to maintain control at the high school level.

Hartland's Chris Holman sees a potential benefit in bringing it to the attention of the public in general.

While he won't bring his own kids to see professional sports contests ("there's not a lot the pros can teach them") and feels publicity on violence is "acutely negative," Holman feels greater public awareness may cause people to eventually become fed up with what's happening and pressure owners into finding other ways to "appease" their customers.

"The pros are selling a show, just like a circus or big-time wrestling," he explains, "and so they have to sell spectacularism. They sell it in the form of violence."

There's little arguing that. In a televised interview not long ago Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, remarked that "if violence ceases to exist, it (hockey) will not be the same game. Insofar as it is part of the show, certainly we sell it. You don't change a successful formula."

So who's to blame — management, players or fans?

"It's a vicious circle," says Holman. "The front offices encourage violence and the players practice it because the fans will come to see it. Unfortunately one can't exist without the other."

Among other causes most frequently cited for a pro player's tendency toward violent acts are the intensity of competition, financial motivation, tolerance on the part of both officials and management, extended seasons and, in the case of contact sports, the very nature of the sport itself.

Perhaps because some of those factors are non-existent in high school sports, violence at that level is thought to be relatively negligible.

According to Bush, violence in Michigan high schools "is very limited, although that's not to say there isn't an occasional outbreak."

High school athletes, obviously, aren't affected by financial motivation and extended seasons. But they are affected by "management" and officials, and it's this area that, according to the athletic directors, sets high school sports apart.

All nine area athletic directors claim that violence in their schools is not a serious problem. And their reasons?

"Part of it is that the kids are playing under strict supervision," says Howell's Frank Gill, who's been associated with high school sports for the past 17 years.

Elaborating on that, Dave Stewart of Whitmore Lake says "officials in the state of Michigan just won't allow for it. They're awfully sensitive about keeping things under control. They don't let contact get out of hand."

In professional sports, he says, contact — specifically in basketball, generally considered a non-contact sport — is permitted to a much greater extent. Fouls aren't called as stringently.

"Where's the line drawn?" he asks. "How much leeway do you allow player contact before calling a foul?"

Columnist Leonard Koppett of Sporting News views violence at the pro level in a similar light. According to him "the true violence is embedded in games in actions that are...done in a manner intended to go undetected."

Pro basketball players, for instance, have traditionally gotten away with things like submarining a man in mid-air, elbowing, kneeling and so forth, incidents that tend to invite retaliation and spark fights.

But in the final analysis, he says, "the behavior of the player is the result of club policy. No individual can be a 'dirty' player for any length of time without the acquiescence of his coach and club owner."

Which may help explain the comparatively low incidence of violence in high school sports.

According to Brighton's Duke Williams "the coach is the most important person in determining how a crowd and players act. If he's a cry-baby who yells and screams continually, he'll generally put up with the same thing from his kids."

Because high school coaches aren't under the same type of pressures professionals are they're less likely to be highly volatile. High school coaches in general are expected to concentrate on developing youngsters in the fundamentals of the game and on preaching sportsmanship while professionals — due to big-money contracts and the ever-present threat of being fired — are more pressured into winning.

Tom Evans, who's headed the Walled Lake school system for the past 25 years, claims he's never had a serious flare-up of violence during a game in that time, and attributes it to coaching.

"It's so important that coaches set a good example, because kids are impressionable," he says. "We've been pretty fortunate."

D. J. Lincoln of Pinckney agrees. "A team's behavior starts at the coaching level," he says. "When a youngster knows his coach doesn't condone it (violence), he'll tend to avoid it."

Contact

Close contact in high school sports seems to be more carefully controlled than it is at the professional level. That, in part, may help explain why incidents of violence occur far more frequently in the pros.

Legislation aimed at curbing hospital costs

By Warren M. Hoyt

The House of Representatives with its sights set on containing hospital costs, recently approved legislation to require health authorities to identify areas that have excess hospital beds and then eliminate them.

The legislation is the first piece in a package to help contain spiraling hospital costs. Other measures will require a certificate of need for new equipment and distribution of medical services.

Under the bill, excess hospital beds could be eliminated through hospital consolidation or closure of either entire or portions of hospitals.

Hospitals with excess beds would also be prohibited from new construction unless they could demonstrate actual need.

Bill sponsor Rep. Raymond Kehres (D-Monroe) said nearly as many as 5,000-6,000 hospital beds could be eliminated within the next five years because of the bill.

Ironically, the day after the bill's passage, Kehres was involved in a serious airplane crash leaving him hospitalized in a Florida facility.

Rep. Bela Kennedy (R-Bangor), a staunch opponent of the bill, warned representatives that local interests would be nearly excluded from the process of developing plans to eliminate beds. His arguments were apparently outweighed by the continued spirals in hospital costs.

The bill was amended to give special consideration to hospitals that are more than 25 miles from the next nearest facility.

Department of Public Health officials and the attorney general's office have squared off on a total ban of radioactive waste disposal within the borders of the state.

The Public Health Department said the state should not completely preclude the storage and disposal of the wastes while attorney general's office urged imposition of the most absolute and total ban is possible.

Donald E. VanFarowe of the Department of Public Health told the House Public Health Committee amendments were needed to legislation to allow the storage of some low-level radioactive material for medical, scientific and educational purposes. He said the language of the bills under consideration, taken at its extreme could prohibit storing milk in refrigerators because it contains potassium-40, a radioactive isotope.

A spokesman for the attorney general said the change is not acceptable. He said in every case in which nuclear wastes have been deposited, they have leaked and all the state gets is an apology.

He said the people of this state have no reason in the world to trust the federal government in the handling of nuclear wastes, or to trust private industry. Disposal is a national problem and requires a national solution.

The legislation prohibits anything except above-ground storage of radioactive wastes.

The House panel is expected to take a final vote on the proposed legislation within the next two weeks.

Michigan taxpayers got a real bargain with the $13 million appropriated to the Attorney General Frank J. Kelley's office in 1977. For those state dollars, the office saved the state $408 million that could have been withdrawn by the federal government, netted $10 in fines or settlement paid to the state and took action to return more than $21 million to citizens.

Some $3.4 million of the funds paid directly to the state came through settlements with six of the state's largest water polluters which violated the state clean water laws. Along with the penalties, the companies agreed to start construction on more than $95 million worth of pollution control installations.

Most of the $10.3 million of the funds paid to the treasury, $5.1 million was money from estates without heirs. The remainder of the fund came from other pollution cases, welfare fraud and Medicaid fraud investigations.

Of the funds going back to consumers, $6 million will come from Michigan Bell in the form of reduced rates because the attorney general's office discovered an error made by the Public Service Commission in granting rate increases. Another $1.6 million comes from a refund from Consumers Power Company based on a complaint on how the company was passing along increased fuel costs.

Another $2.4 million will go back to Michigan citizens as a result of a settlement with General Motors over the Chevrolet powered Oldsmobile.

Kelley's office also successfully obtained injunctions keeping the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare from withholding more than $9.2 million in Medicaid funds. Another injunction sought by Kelley preserved $399 million in federal water pollution funds.

All things considered, the $14 million budgeted to the state chief law enforcement officer was a great deal for Michigan taxpayers considering the return.

Sports violence

That's not to say flare-ups don't occur. Three months ago a Walled Lake Central girls' basketball player was injured during a post-game locker room fight, although Evans maintains the incident had nothing to do with the game itself, and several other athletic directors acknowledged periodic scuffles.

Two of last year's state basketball championships were marred by outbursts, including one in which a player was ejected from the game and court.

But, according to Keezer, those incidents are more the exception than the rule. "You can pinpoint troublemakers more easily in high school," the South Lyon director says.

And you can enforce the rules more stringently.

According to Holman Hartland's hockey squad, the only one in the Sliger area, has been relatively free of problems because of particularly strict regulations enforced by the Genesee County League. One league ruling, for instance, requires that players disciplined for violent actions be suspended for three rather than the state-recommended two games, and that second-time violators be suspended for the season.

"I feel we're teaching the proper things at the high school level," he says, "and that's why you don't see a lot of stories any more where fights break out in the stands."

"I just feel that when the people in charge do the right things, those incidents won't happen."

NELLIE JEAN LANPHAR of Northville became the first woman to head a major national real estate franchise assignment when she was named president of the Michigan Region of Realty World, an international organization of over 850 franchised independent Realtor firms in the United States and Canada.

Within her first six months as president, membership in the Michigan Region escalated from 35 to over 60 broker member firms and has grown to include three pre-license training centers in Detroit, Flint and Lansing metro centers.

She joined the sales staff of Thompson-Brown, a major Michigan builder-developer real estate firm headquartered in Farmington Hills, in 1966. She was named manager of that firm's Northville office, and then was promoted to manager of the Livonia office where she supervised a staff of 20 — accounting for real estate sales of over $1 million monthly. Mrs. Lanphar obtained her broker's license and was named an assistant vice president of the company in 1972.

She joined the Realty World Michigan Region as a business development representative in 1976.

Prior to her real estate activities, Mrs. Lanphar was the corporate treasurer for Lanphar-McNeely, Inc., an electrical contracting firm performing sub-contract work for the U.S. Government during construction of Air Force bases in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

Mrs. Lanphar is a Realtor and holds memberships in the Michigan Association of Realtors, National Association of Realtors, the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers, and the Realtors National Marketing Institute. She is a life member of the Realtors Political Action Committee.

Mrs. Lanphar was twice elected president of the Women's Council, Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors, and also served on its Ethics and Nominating Committees. She served three years on the governing board of the Michigan Chapter of the Women's Council of Realtors and also has served on the Membership Committee — Detroit Board of Realtors.

Mrs. Lanphar attended Michigan State University and has successfully completed real estate courses offered by the Davenport Institute (Grand Rapids, MI), the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers, and the Dave Stodieck Institute. She was among the first to complete the Realty World 60-hour advance Professional Supervisory and Managerial Course. She presently is working towards her CRB (Certified Real Estate Broker).

Mrs. Lanphar also is a member of the Founders Society of the Detroit Art Institute, the Northville Historical Society, and the Smithsonian Associates.

Alfred and Nellie Jean Lanphar have three sons and make their home in Northville.

Northville Square

*I stopped in at the Northville Square
To note the varied items there.
The warm, attractive atmosphere
Gave a pleasant and informal air.*

*The soft and muted carpetings
Invited leisure wanderings
In Trader Tom's tobaccos
And Vintage Sweet's mouth waterings.*

*Enticing, too, were Travel logs
Awaiting one's vacation days,
While fascinating Book Mark wares
And Et Cetra objects caught our gaze.*

*The spacious mall-way lured us on
To pause within the library,
As I wondered: why no music store
To grace this merchant sanctuary?*

*A florist's shop would blend in well
And arts and crafts could soon entice;
Accessories to fill a void,
A sports shop would be very nice...*

*Retracing back the way I came
I turned before a famous name;
Slipped inside for a cup of brew
And mused about the town I knew.*

Charles E. Hutton

Winged Weight

*The wait and wait
Can be the bait
For many, many things:
For conversations
Listened to
The size of women's rings;
The kind of breakfast ordered,
The luggage being boarded;
The stewardess' smile or blouse,
Is the Captain man or mouse?
Must we, aplane, talk above the roar
Or be distant to our close neighbor?
Will the food and drink sit right
On my stomach through the night?
Strapped in our seats, such thoughts must wait—
Until we're again outside the gate.*

F. A. Hasenau

Enchantment

*All trees and branches stand glistening white
With snow diamonds sparkling beneath.
Every frond, every twig, every hair-like blade
Unreal in their crystal sheath.*

*All wrapped in shimmering silence and awe
Are these jewels of silvery glow—
Mystery and mastery in magical blend,
They appear, and in stillness, they go.*

Charles E. Hutton

Running Shadows in The Dark

*The child and the man,
Shadows running from time,
Finding only empty mountains,
Just an endless uphill climb.*

*The shadows of a child,
The silhouette of a man,
And a narrow street of cobblestone,
Down which they both ran.*

*Running down cobblestone they leave,
Empty echoes in their wake,
Over which the hands of time,
Will painstakingly rake.*

*The hands of time,
Of joy, of sorrow, and such,
Of the child and the man,
Its hands will both touch.*

*Time as the inevitable,
Its hands they must face,
But rather than accept,
After empty shadows they chase.*

*Without the light of time,
Shadows can't be seen, can't make a mark,
Just onward against time,
Merely dancing shadows in the dark.*

*But tell me who can catch,
Empty shadows that make no mark,
But tell me who can see,
These running shadows in the dark?*

Family auto may hold key to tax deduction

The family automobile could provide a $542 deduction on 1977 federal income tax forms for some Michigan motorists, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"The figure would apply in the case of a person who purchased a new automobile for $5,500 at the beginning of last year, financed $3,000 of the purchase price for three years at 10 percent annual interest and drove the car at least 10,000 miles strictly for pleasure," states Auto Club Touring Manager Joseph Ratke.

The four percent state sales tax paid on the new car would provide a $220 deduction, and first-year interest would be $272, Ratke noted. If the car achieved the federally mandated 18 miles per gallon, it would consume 555 gallons traveling 10,000 miles, with deductible Michigan gas tax on nine cents per gallon, or $50.

State gas taxes, sales tax and loan interest on a car are just three allowable deductions for motorists who file the long federal tax form.

Others listed in the Auto Club booklet, "Automobile Income Tax Deductions," include: finance charges on purchases of gasoline, oil or accessories, unwilling damage to, or loss of, an automobile not covered by insurance in excess of $100 per incident and any unreimbursed expenses for charitable services.

Auto Club points out that auto travel expenses for personal, medical or dental services also may be claimed, if the taxpayer's total annual medical bills exceed three percent of gross income. In addition, auto insurance premiums for personal protection medical coverage, along with other medical insurance premium expense, can be deducted up to $150.

A standard rate of seven cents per mile, plus any parking fees or tolls, may be used to figure deductions for charitable contributions and personal medical expenses, in lieu of itemizing actual costs.

If a car is used for business, the following are deductible, in whole or in part, depending upon the extent of business use: license plate and driver license fees, auto insurance premiums, depreciation, cost of a court judgment for damages due to negligent driving by the taxpayer, gas, oil, accessories, lubrication, maintenance and repair charges, loss on sale of automobile, garage rental, parking and toll charges and cost of auto club memberships.

Instead of maintaining detailed records itemizing business costs, a person may take a standard 17-cent-per-mile deduc-tion for the first 15,000 miles and 10 cents per mile in excess of that

They partied to re-roof Yerkes House

More than 400 members and friends of Northville Historical Society dined and danced at the Raleigh House in Southfield last Saturday night, raising more than $2,000 to help "put a new roof on the Yerkes House" in the Mill Race Historical Village.

Sixth annual dinner dance to benefit the Mill Race restoration, as all preceding ones, was a community event with local officials, club groups, friends and neighbors mingling and dancing to the music of Dick Murphy's Big Band Sound.

It was one of Northville's most festive events of the year with most women in long dresses. Quite a few, however, opted for elegant cocktail dresses.

It's Christmas in March at OLV party

In Our

By JEANDAY

They're decking the hall, the social hall, that is, of Our Lady of Victory Church with greens and a Christmas tree for a belated Christmas party at 7:30 p.m. next Monday that annually honors Northville Town Hall's hard working committee.

DAR luncheon honors 13 Good Citizens

Sarah Ann Cochran Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, honored 13 Good Citizens and their mothers at its annual American History Month luncheon meeting last Wednesday at King's Mill Clubhouse.

The meeting held a special sentiment for Northville's honored senior high student, Lorraine Hopping, and her grandmother, Mrs. Louis Hopping.

Lorraine is the Northville High senior chosen for the Good Citizen Award and her grandmother is a member of the chapter.

The awards are given to young men and women, high school seniors, and are based upon leadership, dependability, service and patriotism. Winners are chosen by their high school faculty.

"Good Citizen recipients are the best all-round students in their graduating class," explained Mrs. D. H. Baumhart, chapter chairman of the project, who presented certificates and pins to the students.

Lorraine Hopping, Northville's recipient, has been working with the PTSO at Northville High. She plans to attend Kalamazoo College and participate in its foreign study program.

Ricci Lynn Mulligan, Novi High School winner, has enlisted in the U.S. Army and plans to study law. She has been active in forensics, debate and plays basketball and softball.

South Lyon winner Julianne Little plans to attend Adrian College in a pre-med program. She is National Honor Society president at her school, a three year varsity participant in basketball and a seven year band member.

Her mother, Mrs. Ronnie Little, was Good Citizen winner when she was graduated as Patricia Hampel in Isabella County.

During the program Mrs. Baumhart also explained the DAR chapter's involvement and service to three area museums, Greenmead, the Livonia Hill house museum; Northville's Mill Race Historical Village; and the Plymouth Historical Museum.

Mrs. Albert Heindryckx, regent, president and welcomed guests, who included Mrs. Betty Cowie and Mrs. Phoebe Huff, a prospective member, both of Northville. Louis Hopping also was on hand to see his granddaughter honored.

Mrs. Hopping, luncheon chairman, was assisted by Mrs. Irene Johnson, Mrs. Robert Greenier, Miss Joyce Greenier and Mrs. Gregory Dean.

Miss Florence Keith presented the national defense report for the chapter.

When the event was "snowed out" in the December blizzard, it was the idea of Marianne Hammell, president of Our Lady's League, which hosts the gourmet potluck "thank you" to Town Hall, to hold "Christmas in March."

Our Lady's League sponsors Northville Town Hall and shares the profits of the very successful enterprise with community organizations on a 50-50 basis. Now in its 17th season, Town Hall is headed by Florence Booms and has a committee of about 30 who decide upon programs, take luncheon reservations, serve as hostesses and check details.

Monday night the Mercyaire song and dance group from Our Lady of Mercy High School will present a program that will include some Christmas carols to carry out the party theme.

Third Town Hall program in the current series being held at the Plymouth Hilton Inn will be balladeer Bill Schustik at 11 a.m., March 9. The committee already has signed next season's programs and will announce them at the April 6 Town Hall.

They'll entertain club's mothers, daughters

The Mercyaire also will be singing in Northville at the annual mother and daughter tea of Northville Woman's Club. For this event the club is changing its usual Friday meeting day to Saturday, March 4, at 1:30 p.m. in the social hall of the Presbyterian Church so that school-age daughters may attend with their mother members. Cher Bourne, the club's delegate it sponsored to Girls' State will be an honor guest and tell of her experiences.

This is the fifth year that the club has held a mother and daughter tea. The Mercyaire also entertained at the first one in 1974. Mrs. Bal Capote will introduce the 20-girl singing group under the direction of Larry S. Teeves.

One of the Mercyaire's members this year is Karla Bacsanyi, daughter of the Ernest Bacsanyis of 44262 Wyngate.

Mayor Allen Night tickets on sale

Tickets for the recognition night for former Mayor A. M. Allen to be held at 7 p.m. Saturday, March 11, in Northville high School cafeteria now are on sale at city hall and other locations for $10 a person.

Norma Vernon, wife of Mayor Paul Vernon who succeeded "Mike" Allen in November, is in charge of arrangements with City Manager Steven Walters. The former long-time mayor did not run for reelection after serving the village and then the City of Northville for 25 years.

Tickets for the buffet dinner reception are limited to a top number of 350 because of the facilities, Mrs. Vernon explains.

500 Northville Girl Scouts mark 'Thinking Day'

To most people, February 22 is the birthday of George Washington. However, to the nearly 500 Girl Scouts in the Northville area, it meant another celebration — the double birthdays of Lord Baden-Powell, who started the worldwide Guiding and Scouting movement, and his wife, Lady Baden-Powell, for many years the World Chief Guide.

Thinking Day, as it is called, is celebrated by Girl Guides and Girl Scouts throughout the world.

In addition to the girls thinking about their sisters around the world and sending messages to people abroad, this is also a time when girls start special projects or celebrate their completion.

Junior Girl Scout Troop No. 379 at Amerman Elementary had Mary Jane Soucy, 43757 Park Grove Court, give a presentation on the Girl Guide companies (or troops) near Nairobi, Kenya, where Lord Baden-Powell died and was buried. Ms. Soucy lived near Nairobi for two years and during that time lead a company of Girl Guides.

This Junior Troop, lead by Margaret Sweet, 46143 Neeson, and Mary Beth Baxter, 19061 Sheldon Road, also had a display that included Guide uniforms.

Another Junior Troop from Amerman Elementary, Troop No. 234, celebrated Thinking Day with a presentation by one of the girls who described Juliette Lowe as a woman and told her role in starting Girl Scouting in the U.S.

The troop introduced Brownie Girl Scouts from Troop No. 220 to the Junior Girl Scout program. The leaders of the Junior Troop are Dorothy Sanders, 330 Eaton Drive, and Carol Merrifield, 384 Welch Road; Brownie leaders are Joyce Bousquet, 43700 Galloway, and Barbara Schink, 21904 Cumberland.

Sharing their Thinking program with patients at the Wishing Well Manor Nursing Home, Troop 621 from Our Lady of Victory performed skits and conducted bingo games for the residents.

Thinking of Senior Citizens, the 17

Brownies made new friends with 17 Wishing Well Manor "Grandma" or "Grandpa" partners in the games. All received a prize of a pocket size tissue packet with a quarter on top. Brownie songs were sung and residents and troop members joined hands for the traditional Brownie Ring. The girls exchanged name tags with residents to remember them on future visits.

The Brownies also sent a Thinking of You card to Nancy Bohn, a former Northville resident now living in Panama, who was active in scouting here.

This troop, led by Judy Williams, 15714 Robinwood Drive, aided by Diane Roslinski and Karen Cote, collected "Dimes for Daisies," which were donated to the Juliette Lowe World Friendship Fund.

An International Dinner is how the girls from Junior Troop No. 720 honored Lord and Lady Baden-Powell. The girls passed dishes made from recipes from around the world. Some of the girls dressed in the national costume of a country while others sang a song or taught a dance from different countries.

A belated celebration will take the form of a mother-daughter potluck dinner for the Girl Scouts in the Winchester Cluster March 2 at the First Presbyterian Church at 6:30 p.m.

Troops participating in the dinner include Brownie troops 149, 710 and 715, Junior troops 78, 110 and 656, and Cadette Troop 363. Following the dinner, the girls from each troop will perform either a song, dance or skit illustrating Girl Scouting or Girl Guiding around the world.

Balladeer to entertain at March Town Hall

Historical balladeer Bill Shustik will recall for his Northville Town Hall audience in the early days of our country through folk stories and songs in the third program of the current series at 11 a.m. next Thursday, March 9, at the Plymouth Hilton Inn.

"Folk stories and folk songs, whether relating the sweat and strain involved in driving a clipper ship around the Horn, the blood and confusion of Shiloh and Gettysburg, or the more personal whims of tragedy and comedy form a vital part of our heritage," he explains.

He contends that "the presentation of these stories and songs illuminated within their environment helps to retain some of our human qualities in an increasingly mechanized and mass-produced society."

As a history major at Boston University the speaker did a great deal of research in nautical and American folklore, a pursuit which he relentlessly carries on today as both vocation and avocation to increase his extensive repertoire.

As a traditionalist, he renders the most authentic versions he is able to find.

He rapidly is gaining fame as top performer in this field.

Schustik has sung sea chanties at the White House reception for Indira Gandhi, has performed at Lincoln Center under the direction of Andre Kostelanetz, was featured performer in the Canadian revue, "Love and Maple Syrup," at the National Art Center in Ottawa and has represented the United States in the International Festival in

BILL SCHUSTIK

Italy with the Bar Harbor Festival.

He is the one and only official "Sea Chantier" aboard the square-rigger Shenandoah, one of the ships which ply the waters of New England each summer.

His programs have been called "unique and appealing" for all ages and types — from coffee house audiences to club and college groups and historical associations. He has served as "artist in residence" at Dartmouth College.

Luncheon will follow his program here. Reservations at $5.25 must be made by the Friday preceding the lecture, ticketholders are reminded. They should be made with Mrs. Frank Shokaluk, 349-4714.

Area women to mark World Day of Prayer

Women of the community will be joining millions of women on every continent as they seek "Community Spirit in Modern Living" on World Day of Prayer this Friday.

In Northville the service will be held from 10 to 11 a.m. in First United Methodist Church, Eight Mile at Taft, Kathy Witt of the host church announces.

Women from First Presbyterian, Our Lady of Victory and Novi Methodist churches have been sharing in the program planning, as has become a tradition locally.

This year's World Day of Prayer theme focuses on "the high incidence of loneliness and alienation in modern life" during the first Friday in March as women seek a way to "serve God's will for fullness of life for all people."

World Day of Prayer is being celebrated in 140 countries and 22 islands on Friday by Christian Women united in study, liturgy and prayer.

Each year the International Committee for the World Day of Prayer chooses one nation to write the service.

This year the women of Canada explore the conflicts, tensions and compromises of living in a community under the theme "Community Spirit in Modern Living."

The Canadian women show their concern for the issue of diversity within community in the message they send with the service:

"Our life in Canada is becoming fuller and richer as people of many cultures, many races, many creeds, and many tongues have come to make their home here. As Canadians, we call our sisters and brothers around the world to share their lives with us and with one another so that all of humanity may grow in unity and wholeness through fellowship with one another."

In the United States, World Day of Prayer is sponsored by Church Women United.

The community is invited to attend the Northville service which will be followed with refreshments. Free babysitting will be available, Mrs. Witt adds.

The first World Day of Prayer was held over 90 years ago, and the first offering was taken in 1920.

Annual grants are made to Christian Colleges for Women in Asia and the Committee on Christian Literature for Women and Children, as well as short-term grants to migrant ministries, Native American self-help projects, and programs for women in prison, for community development, and for ministry to the aging.

The spiritual and practical influence of World Day of Prayer is powerful, good and lasting, and that's why the women who plan this event call it a "celebration," Mrs. Witt explains.

Catholic parishes, a county youth home and agencies such as the Archdiocesan office of Peace and Social Justice.

This is the third year that Pastor Phezioso has supervised students from St. John's.

In describing the crisis center placement, Pastor Phezioso states, "These students first go through a 50-hour training program where they learn the basics of crisis intervention, and then work as peer counselors for the remainder of the year."

"My role is to help them get the most out of this training experience, and to supervise their ongoing work at the center throughout the year. Because I am a parish pastor as well as a volunteer at the center, I am in a unique position to share with the students how the experience at the crisis center prepares them for the responsibilities they will face as parish priests, and how to integrate parish ministry with community ministry."

St. John's Seminary is maintained and governed by the residential Bishops of the Province or Detroit, and trains candidates for the priesthood to serve the Roman Catholic Church throughout the state of Michigan.

Currently, 25 persons serve the seminary as field education supervisors.

Interlochen dancers here March 8

Fifteen Interlochen Arts Academy dancers will perform in classical and fairy tale numbers in Northville schools next Wednesday and Thursday under sponsorship of the Northville Junior Entertainment Series.

Everyone in the community is invited to the program at 7:30 p.m. March 8 in Northville High auditorium.

Meads Mill Junior High students will view a program that Wednesday morning while Cooke Junior High will see it the following morning on March 9.

The young Interlochen artists are touring Michigan this season under an "outreach" program sponsored by the academy and the Michigan Council for the Arts.

"Peter and the Wolf," a traditional Russian fairy tale, highlights the dance performance with academy students dancing the roles of Peter, his grandfather, the hunters and the forest creatures.

Serge Prokofiev's orchestral score provides the characters' voices.

The dance company also will be presenting ballet and modern dance works choreographed by the Interlochen dance faculty.

Their program is designed to "show the precision of classical ballet and the free-form beauty of modern dance."

The young dancers, who are being housed by Northville families during their stay here, study at the Traverse City-area arts center, coming from all over the country to study with the academy's three dance teachers. They prepared the show.

Tours give the young, high-school age artists experience in staging exhibits, plays or concerts and provides concentrated performance experience with one or more shows a day, sponsors explain.

"The Interlochen Arts Academy is fortunate to be a part of the outreach program of the Michigan Council for the Arts," according to Bruce W. Galbraith, academy director.

"The programs continue to be mutually beneficial, as local cultural attractions and pre-professional experience for our students."

The state arts council recognized the Interlochen Center for the Arts (the academy and the summertime National Music Camp) as one of the state's six major cultural institutions. This enables Interlochen to share in funding provided by the Michigan Legislature.

This fall, art works by Academy students are on a traveling display in the Upper Peninsula. The Academy Orchestra goes downstate in January; the choir and jazz band tour in February; and dancers perform for outstate audiences in March, and do brass and percussion ensembles. Pianists go on tour in April, followed by the IAA Band. Poetry readings and plays are on the May agenda.
