Clowning around

The day before spring break seemed a perfect time for the PTA-sponsored carnival at Moraine Elementary. Music teacher Jan Brachel turns Eddie Wickens, left, into a clown

All township board members

They'll get 4-year terms in 1980

Election's still eight months off, but township board incumbents and challenging candidates will be looking at some new terms of offices come November.

That's because a newly enacted law is on the books that will preview in November what will become a reality in 1980.

In 1980 all township board terms of offices will be for four years.

Presently, only the terms of trustees are for four years. Terms of supervisor, clerk and treasurer are for two years.

Beginning in 1980, the terms of all township board officials will run concurrently.

All of which means that come this November two trustee seats, which normally would have carried four-year terms, will be for only two years so that in 1980 all seven members of the board can be elected for four years.

Thus, all township officials will be elected in Presidential elections beginning in 1980.

Locally, this means that the two trustee posts up for election in November will be for two years instead of the normal four.

The two trustee seats up for grabs this year are filled now by Mark Lysinger and James Nowka. Nowka is finishing out a four-year term, Lysinger a two-year term.

Lysinger was elected to fill the unexpired term originally held by Charles Rosenberg. Rosenberg gave up the seat to accept appointment as treasurer upon the death of Joseph Straub.

Incumbents Dr. John Swienkowski and Michael Wilson will be the only township officials not up for election in November, having been elected in 1976 to four-year terms as trustees.

So this year Supervisor Wilson Grier, Clerk Clarice Sass, Treasurer Richard Henningsen, Nowka and Lysinger must stand for re-election if they want to retain their seats. All of their terms will be for two years.

None of the incumbents have publicly stated whether or not they will run for re-election.

If they choose to run, their first tests will come in the August primary election — an election that decides party nominees. All incumbent township officials here are Republicans.

The new four-year term law (House Bill 4230) was passed by both houses of the state legislature and subsequently signed by Governor William Milliken. All local area legislators — Senators R. Robert Geake and Daniel Cooper and Representatives Richard Fessler and Jack Kirksey — voted for the bill.

It was passed 63-37 in the House and 31-1 in the Senate.

The bill had wide endorsement, garnering much of its support on the argument of proponents that two years was too short a term for board members to become effective township officials.

Another argument used by proponents was that it would cut election costs.

The longer terms also are expected to make township posts more attractive — especially for the offices of supervisor and clerk.

Locally, the board last week made the top posts even more attractive by hiking the salaries of the supervisor, clerk and treasurer.

The new salaries of these three posts were earmarked for increases to $20,208 for the supervisor, $16,200 for the clerk, and $3,000 for the treasurer.

In Northville, the offices of supervisor and clerk have been viewed as full time jobs, the treasurer as a part-time one. There is no statute, however, that requires them to be either full time or part-time.

During their budget discussion of the supervisor's salary board members discussed the matter of attractiveness and it had some influence on their decision, to approve a 12-percent increase. They acknowledged, however, that the new salary level could become inappropriate if a supervisor decided to work at the job only part-time.

In case you've forgotten, here's how the present officials acquired their posts:

Supervisor — Grier defeated the then incumbent Betty Lennox in the August, 1976 primary (1,058 to 946) and then won the seat unopposed in the November election.

Clerk — Mrs. Sass, who had been appointed clerk in 1975 to fill a vacancy created when Mrs. Lennox was appointed supervisor, defeated Rosemary Zillich in the August, 1976 primary (1,246 to 581) and then won the seat unopposed in the November election.

Treasurer — Henningsen defeated Constantine Carson in the August, 1976 primary, and then won the seat unopposed in the November election. Henningsen's predecessor, Rosenberg, decided not to stand for election.

Trustees — Dr. Swienkowski, who had been appointed in 1975 to fill Rosenberg's vacancy as trustee, decided to run for a four-year term rather than the still unexpired term of Rosenberg. In the August, 1976 primary

Ray Spear takes job in DeWitt

Superintendent of Schools Raymond Spear will leave Northville this summer to become the top administrator in the mid-Michigan school district of DeWitt.

Spear, who resigned two weeks ago after the Northville school board declined to extend his three-year contract beyond next year, signed a three-year superintendent's pact with the Clinton County school district on Friday.

The DeWitt system, located six miles north of Lansing, has about 2000 students. Spear begins there July 1.

Northville School Board President John Hobart called a study session for April 13 to establish guidelines for selecting Spear's successor. Hobart said he "doubted very much" that the right person can be found in 90 days and suggested that an interim superintendent may be appointed.

Spear, whose stated reason for leaving the Northville post he held for 11 years was his dissatisfaction with a four-percent salary increase, said Monday he was pleased with the package offered by DeWitt.

Spear's resignation, worked out with the board during evaluation meetings earlier this month, was not effective until July 1, 1979.

By resigning now, Spear can take advantage of the board's offer to pay up to $9600 to cover the difference between the salary of a new job and the $38,235 he would have made had he stayed in Northville next year.

Spear said that payment would be less than $3000 since DeWitt will pay him more than $35,000 next year. The Northville district will also pay Spear about $6000 for his accumulated vacation days.

Spear said Monday that DeWitt school officials were apparently impressed with his experience in administering rapidly growing school districts.

Township oks new budget at $816,546

Except for two relatively minor changes, the new township 1978-79 budget was approved intact at $816,546 by a unanimous vote of the Northville Township Board last week Tuesday.

The new budget covers the period from April 1 of this year through March of next year.

Only a handful of persons attended the budget sessions last week and most of these were employees of the township.

Two changes not previously discussed publicly by board members included fixing the contingency fund at $97,817 (initially it was pegged at $100,707) and setting the clerk's salary at $16,200.

Earlier the board had shaved the clerk's proposed salary increase from $2,400 to $800. (Vacationing at the time, the clerk was not present when the board decided to shave her salary increase). As now approved, the clerk's salary will be boosted from $14,800 to $16,200 or by $1,400.

It was the salary of the supervisor, Wilson Grier, which was increased from $18,000 to $20,208, that drew the ire of a citizen in the audience, Joseph Fiorilli.

Fiorilli objected to the fact that the supervisor's new salary is greater than that of the township police chief, Ronald Nisun. The chief's salary was increased from $18,600 to $20,207 — one dollar more than that of the supervisor.

Based on workload and past performance, the salary of the chief ought to be greater, argued Fiorilli. "Look what the chief has done over the year. Based on his work it seems he is deserving."

Board members lauded the performance of the chief, but refused to budge from their salary hikes.

Trustee Michael Wilson reminded Fiorilli that in business and industry the chief executive generally makes more money than employees.

When Trustee James Nowka asked Fiorilli if he would be satisfied if the chief's salary was made one dollar more than the supervisor's salary, he replied, "You're missing my point."

Later Fiorilli took the board to task on its budget salary provisions for township building inspectors. He supported the position of Township Building Official Troy Milligan who cautioned the board that insufficient monies were being allocated for inspections based on the anticipated workload during the forthcoming fiscal year.

Fiorilli noted that of all employees in the township, inspectors are the only ones who "pay their way" through fee reimbursements.

"These people earn their way by permits, but you (the board) are saying, 'Like it or lump it,'" he said.

The budget increases the salary of the building official from $15,500 to $16,500, and it provides $11,500 for inspector salaries — $10,000 less than had been requested by Milligan. Last year $4,000 was allocated for inspectors.

Supervisor Grier defended the inspection allocation, telling Milligan that if additional monies are needed to cover salaries of part-time inspectors all he need do is request it "and you'll get it." Sufficient monies are available in the township's contingency fund for these kinds of expenditures, he said.

Trustee Dr. John Swienkowski pointed out that if the board hired full time inspectors and learned later that the anticipated workload did not materialize these people would have to be laid off.

As presently planned, however, additional part-time help can be hired if the need arises, he argued.

Milligan said the township can expect between 225 and 250 new housing starts in the 1978-79 budget year. The budgeted allocations, he said, will provide for inspections but not necessarily "quality inspections."

On another budget related matter, Fiorilli drew positive reaction from the board when he urged officials to lobby for change in assessing procedures that would allow for earlier placement of new houses on the tax rolls.

Under the present procedure, said Fiorilli, many owners of new homes "get a free ride" for much of the year

80 protest assessments

Going into its last hearing yesterday, the City of Northville Board of Review had heard assessment protests from 80 property owners.

Most of these protests, according to the board's chairman, James Cutler, involved Oakland County property owners. Oakland County increased assessments in the northern section of the city by an average of 12 percent.

In the Wayne County section of the city, where assessments were left intact, a factor was applied that in effect increased assessments by about 5 percent.

The biggest problem area, said Cutler, occurred in Northville Estates

A PUBLIC HEARING to consider an amendment to the city zoning ordinance rezoning lots 651 and 652A on the south side of Rayson east of Center to PBO (professional and business office) from R-2 residential will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday in city council chambers. Apparently the council voted July 22, 1974, to rezone the lots PBO but the change never was made on the zoning map, which is the legal designation, C. Thomas Wheaton, planning commission chairman, explains.

INVESTIGATION into the availability of federal funds for development of an industrial park plan for approximately 200 acres of Wayne County Child Development Center land front on Five Mile Road west of Sheldon Road, has been launched by the township's Economic Development Corporation. At the same time, grant monies for plans that would convert the development center buildings and grounds on the east side of Sheldon to residential housing are being investigated. Supervisor Wilson Grier sees both projects as being ideally suited for cooperative arrangement with the local and the newly-formed county EDCs.

AN EARLY July completion of the Northville Township hall complex on Six Mile Road appears likely, according to the supervisor, who indicated there is an outside chance that it may be finished earlier.

U.S. SENATOR Robert P. Griffin will be the guest of honor tomorrow night at the third annual Race Track Party of State Senator A. Robert Geake of Northville. Proceeds from the fundraiser at Northville Downs will go towards Geake's re-election campaign.

HARTLAND — After two board members indicated dissatisfaction with the performance of Superintendent Harold Bessert, the Hartland Board of Education failed to approve an extension of Bessert's contract through June 30, 1980 at its meeting last week. The failure to approve, however, will not stop the extension of the contract because state law provides for automatic extension unless the board votes to deny extension.

HOWELL — It appears Livingston County motorists will have to pay an added $2.50 for license plates — the same as motorists in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties, according to an opinion of the state attorney general. The extra money is to be put into a special mass transit fund. Livingston Commissioner Frederick Dillingham expressed the opinion of many of his fellow board members when he said, "It's bailing out the City of Detroit and their mass transit and I don't like it."

HAMBURG — The township board here has moved a little closer to taking title to the six-acre Hamburg Cemetery and hiring Dale Bennett as sexton. The cemetery is currently owned by the Hamburg Cemetery Association, and Bennett is its president.

BRIGHTON — The state police post here is having a string of bad luck with patrol cars lately. Three vehicles have been "totaled" and one of them is being junked.

WHITMORE LAKE — "I'm not going — period." So said Whitmore Lake School Superintendent Ed Heathcote as he announced that he will not be seeking a millage increase for the 1978-79 school year.

SOUTH LYON — Voters here gave a thumbs up on a seven-mill renewal, but a thumbs down on a three-mill increase for schools. Defeat of the three-mill proposition by a convincing 1,217 to 609 margin left the school board wondering if there is any hope at all that taxpayers will reconsider if the matter is placed back on the ballot in the June 12 school election.

SOUTH LYON — This community likes the recognition as the "horse center" of the state, but the honor has its shortcomings. Wandering horses nearly caused the death of a motorist who struck one of a herd of horses on Ten Mile Road. The district court found both the owner and the manager of the horses guilty of allowing animals to run at large.

SOUTH LYON — City Attorney Arnold Shifman has been sent back to the drawing boards to draft another version of an ordinance that would require installation of smoke detectors in many city homes. "Do we require existing homes to have smoke detectors and what time limit for installation do we set? If I sat on the council, I wouldn't vote in favor of what I drafted," Shifman told council.

SOUTH LYON — An ordinance establishing a compensation commission to determine salaries of elected officials is nearing adoption here. Under present city charter council members receive $4 an hour for meetings, while the mayor receives $5 an hour. It adds up to between $300 and $400 a year.

NOVI — School officials here are considering the laying off of "some key personnel" in the wake of a defeat of a millage increase proposition. The additional mill request was denied by 27 votes. Renewal of 13 mills, on the other hand, was approved by an overwhelming 1,375 to 475 vote.

Racial issue

College trustee triggers rebuke

By TIM RICHARD

If Trustee Mark McQuesten believes Schoolcraft College's admissions policies are "racially, socially and economically restrictive," he was unable to prove it to seven other trustees and the administration.

Instead, McQuesten was publicly admonished by board Chairman Paul Y. Kadish for implying the two-year community college is racist.

The clash occurred at the March 23 meeting when McQuesten asked for discussion of an admissions policy that excludes non-residents of the college district when programs are full. The college district includes the K-12 school districts of Clarenceville, Garden City, Livonia, Northville and Plymouth-Canton.

Admissions Director Barbara Geil said applications are refused from non-residents for only four programs: associate degree nursing, practical nursing, culinary arts and medical records technology.

Non-resident enrollment since 1972 has been 30 percent of the total, then 29, 27, 25, 24 and currently 27 percent, according to an administration report.

An enrollment breakdown of Schoolcraft's Garden City campus showed 62 students from Detroit, 33 from Redford Township, 39 from Dearborn, 27 from Inkster, 20 from Wayne and lesser numbers from other communities. No racial breakdowns were immediately available, according to Edward McNally, vice-president for student affairs.

The policy of not admitting non-residents to crowded programs was adopted in 1976. Miss Geil said that when a non-resident applies for one of the four programs with a waiting list, his $10 application fee is returned and the application not even accepted.

"I voted against that policy in 1976," McQuesten began. "The board's concern is for the local taxpayers. Fine — but not for the total exclusion of non-residents."

"The population of the Schoolcraft College District is homogeneous. To restrict people in programs is to restrict the programs to certain socio-economic groups.

"A college should have a free association of ideas. Discussions in classrooms become limited because of where we came from."

"I'm worried about the quality of the institution. I remember when this college had a very good mixture," said the board's only Schoolcraft graduate, adding: "There is de facto segregation."

The other board members came down hard on McQuesten.

"Until you have a Supreme Court opinion — and you're not even a lawyer — I suggest you not make statements like that," said Kadish.

"I resent being called racist. I resent the idea that this board isn't willing to discuss a situation. Your attitude is a holier-than-thou type of thing," said Kadish.

Trustee Rosina Raymond pointed out that the board has sought property tax increases from residents and, in return, should "be willing to give them priority."

"I agree with you philosophically," she said to McQuesten, "but realistically..."

"That's the brightest thing you've said all year," chimed in Trustee Leonard Wozniak.

Vice-chairman Ron Cowden said: "This is a community college. That's the name of it."

"This board can't do much about" racial segregation in housing, added Trustee Gerald Cox.

There was no motion to change the admissions policy, which will continue to state:

"1. After January 28, 1976, non-resident applications will be accepted to courses and/or programs on a space available basis.

"2. Normally, priority for placement on waiting lists and admission to programs for applicants will be given in the following order:

"I. United States Citizens. A. Applicants who are bona fide residents of the college district. B. Applicants who are bona fide residents of the State of Michigan, but who reside outside the college district. C. Applicants who reside outside the State of Michigan.

"II. Aliens..."

New lease on life

Old city fire engine turns up in Jackson

Northville's old Ahrens-Fox fire engine is still alive and looking for a new lease on life.

Recently the city's fire chief, Herman Hartner, wondered aloud what had happened to the old truck which years ago had been given to the Jaycees.

Its whereabouts were raised when a reader submitted an old picture of the vehicle that was published in this newspaper.

Now comes word from James Tallman of Jackson, Michigan, who reported that he found the old vehicle in a field near Northville, purchased it from the property owner, and is now in the process of restoring it.

"My plans for restoring this truck include as complete a historical record as possible and the restoration of the highest quality which this truck deserves," Tallman wrote Charles Gross, a Northville fireman.

"At some time it appears that the Northville Fire Department repainted the truck and did not preserve the gold striping. For this reason, I'm trying to locate any photos of the truck that may have been taken before this repaint."

"I am also looking for any photos that show the left and left-rear views." Anyone who may have an early picture of the truck is urged to contact Gross at 349-4997.

YOUR Optometrist's CORNER

By DR. D. W. SCHIFF and DR. H. J. KUTINSKY

For those with imperfect uncorrected sight, good vision usually means lenses, properly ground with the proper correction. Although this is certainly fundamental, the lenses are not the only factor in satisfactory vision.

The spectacle frames which hold your lenses have a great deal to do with your comfort and appearance. Frames should be selected for their appropriateness to your facial features, your hair style and color. Your comfort and satisfaction with your glasses will be influenced by the size of the lenses, the width of the frame, length of the temples and the fit of the frame where it rests on your nose.

Cooke freshmen writing cited

Eight talented freshmen writers at Cooke Junior High School in Northville know they have been singled out for merit.

They are just not sure what for.

The eight, all students of Mary Freydl, won honors in the Detroit News 1978 Scholastic Writing Awards contest.

Last week, the News notified Mrs. Freydl that the students were winners, but the newspaper would not tell her which categories or selections were chosen.

And that creates a problem because most of the students submitted more than one piece of work.

"When you get a writer, you've got a writer," said Mrs. Freydl in explanation of the multiple entries.

She does know that Sabina Vanderwouw and Dee Christian took top honors by each winning a key award. An engraved dictionary, a certificate and a golden key accompany that award.

Six other students received certificates of merit for honorable mention and commendation awards.

They are Gail Maiberger, Scott Freydl, Sharon Swanson, Joe Bayerl, Kay Chandler and Scott Santos.

Santos, who won two certificates of merit, has an idea about which category he was successful in. The budding musician submitted six entries in the original song competition.

Other students submitted manuscripts in the categories of short story, short-short story, sketch and autobiographical article.

Last year, the first time that Cooke competed in the Junior division of the annual contest, there were three local winners. Mrs. Freydl said she was totally unprepared for this year's success.

Northville students were competing with public, private and parochial students in Genesee, Lenawee, Livingston, Macomb, Monroe, Oakland, Washtenaw and Wayne counties.

Well-known authors, journalists and educators served as judges.

Care for elderly

Agency moves hospital into home

A private, non-profit agency is trying to move the hospital into the home for the elderly, disabled and poor who do not require daily medical attention.

"We're trying to provide an alternative to long institutionalized care for homebound patients," said N. A. Daniels, the vibrant administrator for the newly-formed Home Health Care of Southeastern Michigan, Inc.

Based in Ann Arbor, the agency serves a geographical area roughly bordered by I-96, Inkster Road, M-50, the Washtenaw County line and M-36.

In addition to all of Washtenaw County, the service area includes Brighton, Pinckney, South Lyon and Northville. Presently, it can only accept Medicare patients but soon, perhaps in a matter of weeks, the agency expects to be licensed for Medicaid.

The premise is simple. Homebound patients who need intermittent medical care often have no alternative than long-term care facilities or nursing homes.

Through Home Health Care, such a patient could stay at home and still receive the professional medical treatment prescribed by his or her physician.

Not only is this method cheaper, but Ms. Daniels said the home environment is generally better for the patient and his family.

"We have found patients have been rehabilitated quicker at home," she said.

And rehabilitation is the key word. "The primary goal of Home Health Care is to increase each patient's independence and rehabilitate them to their fullest potential," said Ms. Daniels.

Since its first patient referral in August, the agency has built a caseload of about 50 patients including some in Brighton, Plymouth and, just last week, Gregory.

The agency is referred patients by doctors, discharge planning offices in hospitals, health care professionals and family friends.

"All of the services must be ordered by your physician," stressed Ms. Daniels.

The services are performed by a staff of 14 which includes three registered nurses, physical therapists, speech therapists, occupational therapists, medical social workers and home health aides.

On a regular basis, from two hours a day twice a week to four hours a day five days a week, these professionals visit the patient's home where they may administer medication, change dressings, teach wheelchair patients how to take baths, or give speech and therapy lessons.

The agency treats only the homebound — those who because of physical restrictions could not go to a health clinic for the same treatment — and only those who do not require daily attention.

Since Ms. Daniels expects the scope of the program to expand once it receives its Medicaid designation, she is looking for additional staffers.

Interested persons should call her or Mary Lou Connolly, director of nursing, at 973-9100.

Ms. Daniels, who has spent 20 years in the health care field including 15 as a supervisor and five as an administrators, graduated from the University of Michigan in 1958. She received a Master's in guidance counseling from Michigan in 1972.

She has also taken a number of graduate level courses in business and administration finance.

The agency is governed by a volunteer advisory board which includes businessmen, community leaders, a lawyer, a senior citizen and a consumer's advocate.

In-service training is an important function within the agency, she said. So are the surveys taken of present and former patients.

"We've only had one complaint," she laughed. "That was from an 80 year old gourmet cook who didn't like the way we prepared her meals."

Of a more serious vein, Ms. Daniels points to the agency's philosophy which says Home Health Care is a "vital link...to provide continuing care to patients in their own homes."

"Therefore," the philosophy reads later, "this agency commits to the rehabilitation of aged and/or disabled individuals within the structure of their home environment for the purpose of allowing maximum contribution, retention of self-respect and independence."

Serious crime is down, city police report shows

Northville City Police reported nine part I crimes for February in its monthly activity report released last week at a city council meeting.

Larceny and motor vehicle theft led the way with three complaints apiece. There were two burglaries and one aggravated assault.

There were no murders, robberies or rapes.

The report shows a marked decline from a year ago when there were 22 part I crimes in February including 14 larcenies.

For the year to date, there have been 22 part I or more serious crimes, down nearly 50 percent from 42 such complaints through the first two months last year.

Total number of complaints to the department continues to increase, however. The department received 434 calls this February, a 33 percent increase from last year's 327 figure. For the year, complaints are up about 25 percent, from 720 to 913.

Most of the increase can be found in relatively minor categories such as miscellaneous complaints and traffic tickets.

Among the more serious part II crimes, the biggest increase was drunk driving. There were seven arrests this February compared with only three in February of last year. There were no drunkenness arrests, however, but there were nine in February of 1977.

Vandalism also was down with only three incidents causing $80 in damage this February compared with 16 incidents causing $1,665 in damage for the same month last year.

For the year, seven cases of vandalism have caused $380 in losses. That's a big decline from the two-month total last year of 25 cases and $2,890.

Too many chiefs, charge Indians

Schoolcraft College faculty members might be more inclined to support a property tax increase at the polls "if more attention were paid to instruction."

That message went to the board of trustees with William G. Nickels, chemistry instructor and leader in the Faculty Forum, bargaining agent for 162 full-time instructors and other part-timers.

Nickels at the March 23 board meeting launched the faculty's second consecutive attack in as many meetings on the college's budget priorities.

The forum's attack was two-pronged: Nickels said administrators have grown in number from 24 to 36, or by 50 percent since 1968, while full-time faculty have increased only 17 percent. And he attacked the policy of holding the number of full-time faculty stable since 1970 while more than doubling the numbers of part-timers.

"Some decisions have to be made about part-time instructors. We're going to need some full-time instructors. The question is priorities," Nickels said.

College president C. Nelson Grote flatly challenged Nickels' statement that there are 36 administrators.

"It's not the Faculty Forum view vs. my view. Administrators are defined by the master contract with SCAPP" (the managers' bargaining unit), said Grote. His count showed 31 administrators.

The faculty spokesman said the union's count included the assistant to the registrar, assistant to the director of college relations, assistant to the director of physical plant, accounting supervisor and bursar.

Trustees said the reason for hiring part-timers (who are ineligible for fringe benefits, which add one-third to the payroll) is the college's inability to win three straight millage elections.

"It basically goes back to funds in general — to millage," said Trustee Nancie Blatt.

Added Chairman Paul Y. Kadish: "There's no one who wouldn't like to have 95 percent of the faculty full-time."

Nickels and Grote clashed on whether materials and equipment were in short supply.

The Forum spokesman said library investment dollars are fewer today than in 1968; that the biology department has nothing left to buy supplies; physics has only $24 in its supplies account; and chemistry ran out of paper towels in the laboratories.

An angry Grote replied that neither he nor academic Dean Fred Stefanski had been informed about the supply shortages. "You have an administrative procedure to use for supplies. This shouldn't have had to come before the board," Grote snapped at Nickels.

Citing a case of sudden need for maintenance of biology microscopes, Grote said, "Several months ago I was advised of the maintenance problem. Stefanski requested $1,000 from the contingency fund for it. I took care of it the day I got it."

In another faculty matter, Richard T. Arlen, president of the Forum, formally notified the college that the union is ready to open negotiations on a new master contract. The current one expires at the beginning of the fall semester in late August.

Dinner theatre plans for 'meller-drammer'

Schoolcraft College's student production of Ned Albert's "East Lynne," an old-fashioned "meller-drammer," is scheduled for dinner-theater performances on April 1-2, and stage performances on April 7-8.

Dinner-theater tickets are $8 and must be purchased in advance at the college bookstore. Dinner will be served at 6:30 with the play following at 8 both nights in the Waterman Campus Center.

The menu features Breast of Chicken Kiev, Anna Potato, Cauliflower au Gratin, tossed salad, rolls and butter, beverage and Tort Cake.

Tickets for these performances may also be purchased at the bookstore and at the door, if still available.

Directed by Dr. Lawrence Rudick, the cast includes Buzz Buzzell, Marc Harlow, Peggy Kasenow, Joseph Rohatynski and Karen Weinberg of Livonia; Betty Hancock, Paige Lysinger, Peggy Sitarski and Douglas Webster of Northville; Karen Armstrong, Canton; Michael Corliss, Plymouth, and Linda Lawson, Westland. Kellie Siefert of Livonia is featured as Little Willie.

The "meller-drammer" centers around the tribulations and misfortunes of the heroine, Lady Isabel Vane, who was orphaned and spent her childhood in the home, East Lynne, until it was sold to Archibald Carlisle who becomes its young master. After her father's death, she was left penniless and was asked to live with her only living relative, Lord Mount Severn.

Insulted and mistreated by Severn's wife, Emma Vane, Isabel gladly leaves when Archibald proposes to her and they elope, after which they come back to East Lynne to live.

Director Rudick especially encourages groups of students from junior and senior highs to attend the matinee. For information, telephone 591-6400, extension 265.

Township to retain one monthly meeting

Northville Township Board meetings will continue to be held on the second Thursday of the month.

Although Trustee Mark Lysinger observed that twice monthly meetings may become necessary, the board unanimously voted to continue the once-a-month regular meetings during the 1978-79 year.

Two exceptions to the Thursday date were made. One makes the April meeting fall on the third Thursday (20th), and the other changes the June meeting to June 15.

Math prize winner

John L. Eltinge, 17 year old senior at Northville High School, has been awarded a bronze award in the 21st annual Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition. Presentation of the award was made at Eastern Michigan University. Winners were determined through a two-part testing program in October and December. The local winner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lamont Eltinge of 45754 Fermanagh Drive. Above, John accepts his award from J. E. Adney, chairman of the Michigan section of the Mathematical Association of America.

Curriculum changes approved for college

Schoolcraft College is upgrading its occupational therapy program, starting a program in how to manage a beauty shop and beginning a technical drafting certificate program.

All three curriculum changes were approved March 23 by the board of trustees based on recommendations from Dean Thad Diebel and the applied sciences faculty.

The occupational therapy assistant program is being upgraded from a one-year certificate program to a two-year associate degree program.

Masline Horton, instructor-coordinator, said "the trend is to make these programs into associate degree programs across the country."

"Further, the student will be able to transfer to programs in occupational therapy at senior colleges and universities."

Graduates work as assistants to registered occupational therapists in general hospitals, psychiatric hospitals, nursing homes and day-care centers. The OT program is one of the health careers.

Mrs. Horton told the board that persons taking the Schoolcraft course have "100 per cent passage" of the written national examination, and as a group have scored above the national norm.

The new two-year program is expected to enroll a total of 48 students by the second year. One additional faculty member will be needed, but costs for consultants will be reduced.

Licensed cosmetologists requested that Schoolcraft offer the cosmetology management program, which will lead to an associate of applied science degree.

The 30-credit program was developed by Dean Diebel working with the West Suburban Affiliate Organization of the Michigan Cosmetologist Association.

"Students will be given 30 credit hours toward an associate degree based on evidence of having a State Board of Cosmetology license, and having successfully completed 15 credit hours at Schoolcraft," said Diebel. Potential enrollment is 20 to 30. Required will be two English courses, one psychology course in human relations, one in speech, one in political science, three in business, one in accounting and one in business math, for a total of about 33 credit hours.

The technical drafting program was developed by Diebel, Assistant Dean Fernon Feenstra and the drafting department working with area employers and an advisory committee.

Nino recommends residential zoning for Bealtown

The residential character of Bealtown (southeastern section of the city) should be reaffirmed. That's the opinion of the city's planning consultant, Ronald Nino, following a survey of the area. The zoning of this section of the city had sparked a controversy recently when the VFW Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) sought and won rezoning of two lots directly behind the VFW post for use as parking. The city council voted for rezoning over the contrary recommendation of the planning commission. In the wake of the rezoning of the two Yerkes Street lots from residential to a commercial classification, council members requested the planning commission to re-examine the zoning of Bealtown to determine if other sections should be rezoned for another use. Not only did Nino conclude that the residential zoning of the area should be preserved, he also suggested that the residential character of South Main Street should be maintained. The lots on South Main from the historic well south to Seven Mile Road was established as a commercial district several years ago. Although several commercial establishments exist on South Main, most of the street still is characterized by older homes.

"Since the enactment of the new zoning ordinance some five years ago, the only bona fide effort to convert the land used for residences to non-residential use is the VFW organization," said Nino. "I would remind the (planning) commission that this requirement (VFW rezoning) could just as easily have been satisfied by acquiring frontage commercially zoned property, rather than extend into the residential district. The rezoning action was a major land use decision which further clouds the issues. "It is my opinion which is given some level of support by the relative lack of interest in the land in Bealtown, including the fronting South Main Street properties, that the property is not in great demand for non-residential purposes. This is in part due to the fact that land costs are greater than in the adjacent township. For those wishing to convert residences to a commercial activity the risk of unsatisfactory and marginal land use activity is great. "Short of public acquisition and renewal efforts existing residential areas in the absence of short land supply simply are not renewed by private efforts." Nino told planners that a recently completed housing survey disclosed 58 residential structures in Bealtown. "In all of the blocks expect the block lying south of Gardner Street, the incidence of structural deterioration advised that more than 20 percent of the residential structures were deteriorated," he said. Nino added, however, that "a deteriorated assessment implies that the structures should be rehabilitated and does not imply that the area is blighted or that structures are unsuitable for habitable purposes. Such an assessment is not uncommon for pre-WWII housing." "Given the incidence of non-residential encroachment and external environmental influence, it is surprising that the neighborhood is not structurally in worse shape," he said.

Kirksey supports 30-mile formula

State Representative Jack Kirksey (R-Livonia, Northville) testified recently before the Senate Education Committee in support of the Weighted Pupil Formula bill.

The proposed new formula, Kirksey explained, would provide a state guaranteed 30-mill base support, regardless of how many mills the local school district actually levies.

"This weighted formula proposal is based on the number of pupils rather than the local millage effort, and I think it would be the first step in eliminating the fight between wealthy and poorer districts for state dollars," Kirksey said.

"The Livonia School District would benefit greatly from this kind of approach. The district is perilously close to levying the constitutional limit of 50 mills, yet declining enrollments and increased costs point to curricula cuts, school closings and half days for the students in my district."

Kirksey said that Livonia Superintendent Dr. George Carver testified in support of the basic concept of the bill, and that school board members Carol Strom, Constance Hiarta and Charles Akey also were in favor of the concept.

"Dr. Carver is considered one of the leading authorities on the problem of declining enrollment, and I am sure his input was of value to the committee," he added.

Kirksey said the weighted formula would allow a standard $1460 per unit grant, with higher amounts going to lower and upper grades.

"According to the provisions of this bill, grades 1-3 would receive a grant of 1.1 times the standard, and grades 10-12 would receive 1.05 times the standard grant," Kirksey said. "However, grades 4-9 would get the standard grant, and kindergarten children would be provided with three-fourths of the grant."

"This legislation would also affect adult education students — at 480 hours they would be backed by the standard grant," he continued.

Kirksey added that the formula includes an additional factor for the reduction of class size.

"An interesting facet of this bill is that it would permit a 50 per cent payment for declining enrollment for the first year, 30 per cent for the second and 10 per cent for the third," Kirksey said.

"This would help districts like Livonia immensely, and provide the standard for quality education across the state."

The estimated budget necessary to implement the bill is estimated at $1,997.2 million, including federal and school aid dollars, Kirksey said, and aid for districts with very high non-school taxes is written in the bill at $29.6 million.

"I strongly supported this bill during the Senate hearings, and I will work very hard for its passage in the House," Kirksey said.

"I think it is a sound and comprehensive approach to the complex problems inherent in our traditional school aid formula, because of shifting population and declining enrollment," he said.

In Schoolcraft district

Believe it or not! lower tax rate seen

Property owners in the Schoolcraft College District will pay a lower rate next December, but the savings will be hardly noticeable.

College trustees approved a rate of 2.09 mills, down 0.02 from the current year.

That amounts to reduction of two cents per $1,000 of state equalized value. Thus, a house with a market value of $40,000 and an SEV of $20,000 would see a reduction of 40 cents — that is, if the assessment isn't hiked due to inflation.

The rate includes 1.77 voted mills which will be used entirely for operations and 0.32 mills for debt retirement. The debt retirement need has shrunk in recent years as old bond issues are paid off.

All sources of revenue — state aid, property taxes and local tuition — are estimated to raise $11.8 million in fiscal 1978-79, according to E. F. Petersen, manager of business service.

"The board should be aware of the fact that the state appropriation is presently under consideration by the legislature, and that the bill may not be signed into law until sometime after the start of the college's fiscal year on July 1," Petersen said, adding:

"The state equalized valuation is normally certified by the county in the latter part of May, at which time the estimated tax revenue will be finalized."

In a separate report, Petersen said that current fiscal year revenues are estimated at just under $10.6 million, or 0.23 percent above the estimate of last June 29.

Cab firm seeks license

Application for a second taxicab company license in Northville has been received by City Clerk Joan McAllister.

Making the application is Charles Henry of the Star Cab Company of Novi. The existing firm operating here is Community Cab Company.

Henry appeared before council last week to explain that his firm has been operating in Novi for a number of years and oc-asionally receives requests for service from Northville residents.

Banks picked

Three banks have been designated as depositories of Northville Township monies.

Named depositories by the township board last week are National Bank of Detroit, Manufacturers, and the Michigan National Bank.

Council tabled action on the application pending a report and recommendation from the police department on Henry's police record and inspection of his cabs as well as confirmation that the owner's rates are consistent with Northville's requirements.

Handicap's nothing for these bowling enthusiasts

"Handicaps mean nothing for these children whose smiles and laughter tell it all," says C. Thomas Sechler, president of the Northville Kiwanis Club as he describes the joy experienced twice monthly by retarded or physically handicapped children in the club's three-year-old bowling program.

Ranging in age from 7 to 21, "the kids take the game seriously but their laughter infects all of us. It's a real privilege to be able to share this joy in their lives."

All of them, he points out, have made remarkable improvements in their game.

"One youngster who was barely able to lift the ball when he began bowling had to set it on the floor and push the ball down the alley. "Now he tosses the ball like a pro and his scores have doubled."

The children are the sons and daughters of Northville area residents.

The Kiwanis sponsored program was the first of its kind in the nation, but has now been duplicated in Hold, Michigan where Hugh Lockhart, former Northville resident and immediate past president of the Northville club, has launched a similar program under the auspices of the Holt Kiwanis Club.

The two clubs will sponsor home-and-away matches between the two groups of kids on April 22 and May 13.

Also planned in April is the annual Bowling Olympics. Local participation in this state-wide program is sponsored by the Northville Recreation Department.

Parents whose retarded or handicapped children are not yet taking part in the Kiwanis program are encouraged "to give your children this opportunity to share in the fun," says Sechler.

The program's free, held twice monthly on Saturday at Northville Lanes from 10 a.m. to noon. The next session is scheduled April 8.

County cites ham radio operator

Michael Gillahan, a resident of Allen Drive in Northville, was recently honored by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners for helping people in need during the snow emergency created by the January 26 blizzard.

Gillahan, who operates K8TTE, was awarded a certificate of appreciation for public service rendered as a member of the Wayne County Amateur Radio Public Service Corps.

The certificate was awarded as a result of a general resolution honoring 62 corps members that was unanimously approved by the Board of Commissioners in February.

John Barr, former chairman of the board, and Commissioners Clemens Bykowski (D-Detroit), Alex Pilch (D-Dearborn), Thomas Presnell (D-Westland), and Loretta Young (D-Detroit) sponsored the resolution which cited many of the year-round community services rendered by the Amateur Radio Corps with a special emphasis on their volunteer efforts during the "Great Blizzard of '78."

While most people either struggled to get home or simply stayed at home during the blizzard, the members of the Radio Corps fought to maintain communications between rescue units and Red Cross Shelters across several nearby counties, the commissioners stated.

The Ham network worked closely with the Wayne County Office of Emergency Preparedness for four days after the storm began trying to crash through 10 and 15 foot drifts to reach snow-bound families shivering in their cars or at home without food, heat, or electricity, they said.

The local volunteers had mobile radio crews scattered through Wayne, Washtenaw and Monroe counties.

RUSTPROOFING.
EITHER YOU HAVE IT OR YOU DON'T

Car makers don't build the rustproof car and no car dealer can deliver the real rustproofing you get with the exclusive Ziebart process.

Don't be misled by some sweeping references to "anti-rust" methods used in building some 1977 cars. Real rustproofing must be done after the car is built. And it must cover every critical area inside and under the car. That's the proven Ziebart method. There are no shortcuts. That's why your Ziebart Dealer uses nine different patented spray tools to reach rust-prone areas. That's why he uses a rustproofing sealant that actually penetrates welded seams where rust can start. Your Ziebart Dealer can deliver a rustproofed 1978 car because that's his business—and he knows it. Call him.

Police place ban on flame throwers

The life of a policeman has never been an easy one.

What with Miranda decisions, pesky defense attorneys, increasing emphasis on civil rights and sensation-seeking reporters, it's tough for a guy to enjoy his job.

It's getting even tougher. That's because of a number of little-publicized directives and policy amendments which have been distributed to Northville City police.

A copy of those directives were slipped to this newspaper by an uninformed source.

Here they are:

—Patrol drivers will use particular care in the manipulation of the ejection button to reduce the number of drivers ejected through a closed canopy.

—The current practice of certain patrol units using the dog warden's blow gun on traffic violators will cease immediately.

—In the future, the department Bazooka will not be used to fire a warning round at overweight trucks.

—Due to the number of men on sick call, patrol sergeants will discontinue the practice of flogging subordinates sleeping on duty.

—Supervising officers will desist from wearing unauthorized gear such as sombreros and bandoliers, flying helmet and white scarf, officer's daggers and the like while in dress uniform. At no time will a bow and arrow be carried in the gun rack.

—Officers and buglers assigned to the mounted troop will discontinue drawing sabers and blowing the charge while responding to a disturbance call.

—This is to inform all personnel that due to complaints from the Airline Pilots Association and the Strategic Air Command, low flying aircraft are not to be fired on, they are not violating our air space.

—Due to the number of claims against the city, police officers will refrain from using their Sidewinder missiles in a residential area.

—Officers while in hot pursuit will continue to use proper radio procedures. Loud panic phrases or screams over the radio such as "Tally ho", "Torpedoes away", or "Bandits at 12 o'clock" will not be tolerated.

—Court procedures and rules for officers: While attending court, officer will refrain from using the following tactics to influence the judge and jury:

a) Stamping feet and cheering for a stiffer sentence.

b) Using Roman custom of "thumbs down" to signal judge.

c) Demanding defendant be tried by ordeal of fire.

d) Testifying in Polish to confuse the jury.

e) Winking and blowing kisses to the jury.

—Due to a large number of complaints from labor units and citizens, the department flamethrower will no longer be used at strike details.

Murdered women found in Novi

By STEVE BELL

Searching for the charred remains of two Detroit area women, Novi and Detroit police sifted through the ashes in a furnace in the basement of a secluded house along Garfield Road near Eight Mile on Easter Sunday morning.

Discovered in the furnace were the skeletal remains of two women believed to have been Betsy Zink, 41, of Southfield, and Stella Potter, 42, of Detroit.

Charged with the murders of the two women is John Latits Laszlo, 28, of Detroit.

Police say Laszlo burned the bodies of the two women more than a month after he had strangled them both to death in a drug-induced frenzy.

Laszlo, a Hungarian immigrant, told Detroit police he had met the two women while he was working in a parking concession stand near Laffrey's Restaurant on West Seven Mile in Detroit on January 27.

According to police, M. S. Zink worked at the restaurant as a waitress.

Laszlo told police he later met the women at the Red Cedars Lounge in Southfield and drank with them until about two in the morning. He then said the three decided to go back to where Ms. Potter lived — the Bonnie Brook Apartments at Telegraph and Eight Mile Roads in Detroit.

Laszlo told police he continued drinking with the ladies and "snorted" up about $25 worth of cocaine. The party continued, reports state, and later, both women fell asleep.

Laszlo reportedly told police he saw a black scarf near the neck of one of the women as she was sleeping. He reportedly said it reminded him of an advertisement he had seen where a snake had been wrapped around a woman's neck.

He told police the advertisement triggered him into using the scarf to strangle the woman. He reportedly strangled the other woman soon after the first had died.

After the alleged murders, Laszlo reportedly pushed one woman under the bed and the other into the closet, then leaving the apartment to go home. He borrowed a van, carted the two corpses into the vehicle and drove to the vacant house on Garfield Road.

Police are unsure how Laszlo knew the old red-brick house on Garfield was unoccupied, but theorized he must have known someone somehow connected to the residence.

Once at the house, Laszlo told police he carried the bodies down to the basement.

He then left the house and returned to work at his job in Detroit, police said.

Laszlo stated he left for Florida the next day.

Laszlo remained in Florida for three or four weeks before returning home to Michigan. He told police he finally visited the Garfield house again on March 6.

Police reported when the alleged killer returned to the house, the bodies were decaying and he figured he should do something so he sliced up the bodies with a saw and threw the dismembered parts into the furnace.

About a gallon of gas was thrown into the furnace to ignite the blaze, police report.

Laszlo told police he returned to the house a couple of nights later to make sure he had done a thorough job.

In his opinion, he told police, he thought he had.

Laszlo's confession came shortly after a Detroit police investigation had linked Laszlo with the disappearance of the two women.

Ms. Zink was reported missing January 31 and Ms. Potter a day later.

Laszlo was arraigned before Recorder's Court in Wayne County on March 27.

Laszlo is being charged with second-degree murder, which means the prosecution will not maintain the crime was planned in advance, but rather was committed in the heat of passion.

The house in which the murder was committed belongs to the Chargo family, long-time residents of the area. The family began renting the house out about a year ago.

According to John McEwen of Plymouth, related to the Chargo family, the present renters left for Florida some time ago without paying their rent.

The renters are not suspects in the case, police reported.

McEwen said, however, the present renters, a couple, had apparently rented the house to another couple.

McEwen would comment no further on the matter until he had had a chance to speak with Novi police.

The nearest neighbor to the house, Mrs. Mabel Ash, said she had seen "two or three" young men around the house in recent months.

Mrs. Ash said that about two or three weeks ago, some young men had come to the house to take a house trailer away. She said a very young-looking fellow, about sixteen, had come to her house to borrow a shovel, to dig out the snow around the trailer.

She added another, older man was with the boy.

Police officials report there was some behind-the-scenes haggling between Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson and Wayne County officials over who had jurisdiction over prosecution of the case.

Officials from Patterson's office maintained Laszlo should be tried in Oakland County since the bodies were discovered there, although the murders were committed in Wayne County.

Machines get beating at hands of crooks

People have been pretty mean to machines lately.

In two instances last week in Northville Township, crooks not only took the money from coin-operated devices, they took the machines as well.

A Michigan Bell Telephone employee was making a routine service check at Northville's state mental hospital when he noticed something that wasn't routine.

The wall phone at an abandoned nursing station was gone. A spokesman for the Michigan State Police, who investigated the theft, said the unit may have weighed 40 pounds or more.

There was about $40 in coins in the coin box.

Monday morning, an even bigger machine was discovered missing. This one was a pop machine located in front of a Texaco service station at Seven Mile and Beck roads.

Township police said the machine was carted away sometime after the station closed on Friday. The estimated value of the machine, pop and coins was $800.

A portable, color television set which belongs to a patient is missing at the Plymouth Center for Human Development.

The television had been sent to the center's maintenance department for repair, but when a nurse called to ask about its condition on last Tuesday, she was told it was gone.

A center spokesman said as many as 35 to 40 people have keys to the room where the television was stored. Michigan State Police are investigating.

Township police are looking for a $1500 fox fur, but they have no idea if the trail is even lukewarm.

That's because the coat's owner knows only that it was stolen sometime between November 1 and March 19.

The coat was stored in the front hall closet of a home on Pickford. The owner's 19-year-old daughter was the home's only occupant from November 1 through mid-December and she has not lived there since.

The only lead police have to work on is that the coat may have been taken by a guest at a party hosted by the girl.

Council to buy 2 new police cars

Purchase of two new police cars was approved by the Northville City Council last week.

The contract was awarded to P.C. Chapman Pontiac of Ypsilanti, which submitted the low bid of $9,969.34 for two full-size patrol cars.

Four firms submitted bids.

According to City Manager Steven Walters, the cars are slated for delivery at the end of June. Payment for the vehicles will occur in the new 1978-79 budget year that begins July 1.

GOOD TIME FOR WINE
by Jim Roth

You might be surprised to know that the juice of wine grapes is basically colorless. The color of the wine comes from the skin of the grape. So grapes are crushed with their skins still on and then both the juice and the skins ferment together. The longer the skins remain in the vat with the wine, the redder the wines will be (if you are using red grapes). Once the fermentation process is over, the juice is run off into vats to allow the wine to age.

You'll be pleasantly surprised to see the wide selection of wines we have available at GOOD TIME PARTY STORE, 567 Seven Mile Road, 349-1477. A bottle of wine can highlight a meal and add a touch of gaiety to the dining table. We will be happy to suggest a wine to complement your meal...and a fine cordial for the finishing touch. Hours: Mon. thru Sat. 9 a.m. - 10 p.m., Sun. Noon - 6 p.m.

Speaking for The Record

Gizynski zoning: grandstanding or discrimination?

Discrimination is a double-edged sword. When it cuts its prejudicial swath, it amputates the rights of individuals without concern for class distinction. And everyone loses.

There's a touch of irony involved in the controversial case currently being argued by the Northville Township Planning Commission. There are those who would have you believe it is a classic example of defenseless people being pitted against an arrogant land-owning developer.

At issue is a 60-acre parcel of land owned by Dr. Waldemar E. Gizynski. It is zoned for multiple family development. A proposal for such development has been presented to the planning commission. Residents of the Seven Mile-Marilyn area have petitioned through an attorney to have the land rezoned to single family classification.

The mid-stream horse-switching is clearly discriminatory. If it were ever upheld by the court it would be a travesty of justice. It would make a mockery of all township zoning.

It is like the dealer of a stud poker game declaring deuces wild after examining his hole card; or police ticketing every other car parked in a no-parking zone.

It is, inconceivably, a planning commission appealing for its zoning NOT to be upheld.

If this is true, how could such a circumstance take place?

Unquestionably, explanations of the fiasco will vary. But there are a couple of hard facts that cannot be dodged.

1—The Township Planning Commission has known for more than a decade that the Dr. Gizynski property was zoned for multiple housing and that one day a plan would be submitted for its development. Yet it has taken no action to rezone the property.

2—Planning Commissioner Mark Lysinger has assumed the role of "champion of the people" in the dispute and has been the leading advocate of the planning commission's decision (by a 3-1 vote) to consider rezoning the land, thereby temporarily shelving the pending multiple housing plan. Lysinger is also a member of the Township Board of Trustees and his term comes up for election this year.

It could be argued, too, that residents of the area have known about the multiple zoning in the midst of their single-family neighborhood. But it is easier to understand the concerns of homeowners who fear depreciation of their property values. Their reaction is natural.

They have not been elected or appointed to adopt and uphold the regulations of the

Those who would argue that the land is not being developed as originally proposed (senior citizens village) have poor memories and ignore the fact of the sustaining zoning.

The senior citizens village proposal, a dead issue for several years, never garnered public support, either. Quite the contrary, it encountered stiff public opposition, some because a few citizens feared the village might attract blacks.

Furthermore, no action was taken by the public, or by the Planning Commission on its own initiative, to change the zoning during the ensuing years.

Clearly, the responsibility for zoning rests upon the shoulders of the township's planning commissioners and elected board of trustees. And these officials have seen fit to zone the Dr. Gizynski property for multiple housing development, and to retain that zoning.

There is one obvious exception, however. Trustee/Planning Commissioner Lysinger has chosen to disregard these facts and jump aboard the "citizens' bandwagon. And we suspect his objective is votes in the fall. Certainly, he will run again. And certainly he has not forgotten that he never won an election when he has faced opposition and that he owes his place on the board to the fact that he maneuvered himself onto the ticket for an unopposed two-year term.

The question that plagues us about Lysinger's action is whether or not his role is truly one that represents the best interests of the people of the township.

If this case goes to court, and it most certainly will if rezoning or delaying action is taken, who picks up the tab? And what chance does such an obvious abuse of the law have of being upheld? And even if it should be, where does that place all the other zoning in the township that is presumably "protecting" the people?

And if the court should rule against the township and uphold the existing zoning, where will that leave the status of concessions granted by the developer?

If Dr. Gizynski is forced into expensive legal action, will the development still contain fewer than legally-permitted apartment units? Would set-backs remain greater than required? Will access to the apartment complex from neighboring Grandview Acres be eliminated?

Certainly, reasonable citizens must realize that there are times when the law, and yes, even fair play, must be considered above personal preference. They know that rights of individuals applies to developers as well as everyday homeowners.

On such occasions it is the responsibility of elected/appointed officials to make the facts known to the public. Even when it means admitting failures of the past.

Responsible governmental boards do not correct errors by taking discriminatory action or making grandstand plays.

Hopefully, citizens who are closely involved will recognize what is taking place even though it is personally disturbing.

YES . . .

Should parents, the school, society in general and most important the student, expect that certain basic skills have been mastered prior to the student's graduation from high school: The answer to this omnipresent question, which is being asked by many interested citizens across the nation, is yes!

Educators are being asked to identify minimal expectancy skills, in which the student can demonstrate proficiency prior to graduation, inclusive of the following areas:

(1) I believe that it is reasonable to expect the student to demonstrate that he/she can read. For example, most newspapers are printed at the sixth grade reading level; therefore, students should be able to read at or above the sixth grade level.

(2) Computational skills necessary to balance a checkbook, figure income taxes, or understand interest accrued on a savings account or charged to an installment loan are basic survival skills used by most adults.

(3) The success an individual experiences in communicating with his/her proficiency in writing, spelling and speaking on a literate level. Demonstration of one's high school diploma.

Probably the most important reason for administering a competency test to high school students is its diagnostic potential. A student's weaknesses in the basic skills should be identified early in his/her high school career, so that the proper remedial classes may be offered to correct that deficiency prior to taking the test a second time.

Speaking for myself

High school competency tests?

PAUL ALMLI

NO . . .

The idea of establishing a competency test for students preparing to graduate from our high schools is proposed, I'm sure, with good intention, but really misses the mark.

A competency test, should it become a major criteria for graduation, would shift attention away from the broad body of knowledge and skills which ought to be taught and toward a much narrower range determined by the test makers. The focus of both teacher and student would be aimed at passing the test.

Socio-economic factors play an important role in pre-determining academic success. The school curriculum must be designed to fit the community. A national or state competency test would lead us down the road to a universal curriculum.

Testing should be an integral part of the school program. However, test should be locally designed to measure how well the students are mastering the objectives of the curriculum each local school offers. They should be administered early enough in the student's career so that remedial assistance can be given to those students who are lagging behind.

Finally, educators should utilize test results to determine where they might be falling short in accomplishing certain of their local curriculum objectives, and improve accordingly.

A national or state competency test would not be productive. New York has such a system. Michigan's high school graduates are no less literate than graduates from that state's schools.

He'll take 'trip' into past life

"You've got nothing to lose, and it could prove very interesting," said old friend, Herb Abrams of Wixom, when I asked him whether or not to accept an invitation to take part in a hypnotic regression workshop.

Former postmaster of Wixom, Herb is a psychic phenomenon aficionado who is a former president and long-time board member of the Michigan Chapter of the National Association of Advancement of Ethical Hypnosis. Although he is no longer active in the organization, Herb's still deeply interested in the subject.

"A lot of good work has taken place in the field (hypnotic regression), and I have seen some things that are a little astounding," he said.

"But I've never seen anything that could be factually proven...at least to my complete satisfaction. I'd sure be interested to learn about your experience."

So I've accepted, and on April 12, Dr. Helen Wambach will use me along with others for base data in her forthcoming book, "Reliving Past Lives: The Evidence Under Hypnosis," scheduled for publication by Harper & Row.

She is conducting a series of workshops in the Detroit area next month (at $30 a crack for participants), providing "a four-hour guided trip back through several past lives."

News From Lansing

By R. Robert Geake
State Senator

Although both houses of the Legislature have approved a bill which would allow people with defective automobiles to withhold their monthly payments until their vehicles are fixed, the fate of the measure is still up in the air.

At issue are whether judges should be allowed to order that car payments be deposited into an escrow account until the dispute is resolved, and whether any defects should be required to be discovered within two years after the car is purchased.

The "auto lemon" bill (HB 4073), as it is commonly referred to, would modify the "holder-in-due-course" doctrine by allowing buyers of vehicles which turn out to be defective to stop paying for them and to defend in court their refusal to pay. Judges could then order the vehicles fixed or force other settlements if the buyers' arguments won out in court.

Currently, people who stop paying for a vehicle, whether it is defective or not, could see it repossessed.

Earlier this week, the House decided to go along with the Senate version of the bill, but a couple of days later, voted to reconsider its decision, leaving the matter up in the air at this time.

Most Senate members, including myself, advocate the escrow account approach on the basis that the money to pay off the payments which back up during negotiations should be available, and not spent on something else in the meantime, if the court decides against the vehicle owner. It is also believed that the escrow account requirement would make lending institutions more likely to continue financing of cars, something they might otherwise be reluctant to do.

Some House members, on the other hand, say the escrow account requirement would prevent those stuck with defective cars from using their monthly payment money to buy another car to get around in during the negotiations.

Gas carrying tandem tankers may be banned statewide as of May 1st of next year if the full House goes along with a bill approved by a House Committee this week and the Senate concurs.

The bill, HB 5347, would prohibit the double-bottom tankers on roads in the Detroit Metropolitan Area starting May 1st of this year, and on all other state roads the following May. The ban would apply only to tankers carrying gasoline.

The Senate has already passed a bill, SB 1032, which would ban statewide all tandem trucks carrying gasoline, and any other flammable liquids, as of May 1st of this year. The House Roads and Bridges Committee voted to report its own House sponsored bill, however, with the later statewide effective date.

'Voluntary quitters bill' draws ire

To the Editor:

I just received Senator Geake's news bulletin wherein he is quoted as saying, "By removing these employees who voluntarily quit their jobs, we would be making more jobs available to deserving individuals who are now unemployed..." He states this as his defense for passage of a bill prohibiting voluntary quitters from collecting unemployment. Unfortunately, this statement is made from only the employers' point of view... the group that holds the entire welfare and existence of every employed individual and their families in their hands.

What he is totally ignoring is the fact of employee abuse. Unfortunately, there are many employers who will do anything, and subject their employees to anything just for their own personal gain.

By passage of such a bill, you would be opening a "Pandora's box" of rampant, illicit employee abuse.

Employees would be forced to do things they felt morally or legally wrong because the threat of impending firing would be held over their heads. Many could be threatened with blackball from the entire job market in those areas of specialized trades. Women are just now making a place for themselves in the working world on the basis of their qualifications. Your bill would be a disastrous reversion to the days of "put up or you will be put out."

As it is now, an employee who is faced with physical, moral or any other abuse can walk away from such a situation with the security that his or her family will not starve while they are temporarily out of work.

Yes, our Unemployment system needs revamping. I know this from past personal experience. One suggestion is that temporary and part-time work be continually posted and available to unemployed persons, and without the fear of their losing their only real subsistence. I have been looking for a housekeeper to come in once a week. I know of at least a dozen other women in the same position. We have called the Employment Security Commission and they refuse... refuse to post this as it is not full time work, "it's too bothersome, it's too much paperwork," etc. Is it anymore paperwork than all the unemployment filings - it could eliminate? A person could make full time work out of a few such part-time positions.

There is work out there... and lots of it. There is a dire need for handymen, yardkeepers, housekeepers, babysitters, senior citizen sitters, etc. I wish I had a penny for every person in the unemployment lines who so often stated, "Why should I go out and do that kind of work when I can just come in and collect unemployment." Then again, there are a lot of unemployed people who would give their eyetooth for this kind of work, but have no way of access to it.

Yes, unemployment needs a real cleaning up... but subjecting people to employers' abuse is not the way... and a bill to prohibit people who voluntarily quit their jobs would do just that.

Very concerned,
Pamela Phillips (Mrs.)

Sees arrogance in zoning issue

To the Editor:

Recently a controversy has developed over the proposed Northridge Apartments project, on Seven Mile, across from the Northville State Hospital. For one thing, the property was originally zoned multiple, with the understanding that it would be used to build a senior citizens retirement center. Later the landowners changed the design of the project into an apartment complex, because of "changing" market conditions.

To be sure, the major issue of concern, to most of us, is the arrogance of power. When landowners promise the construction of a senior citizens retirement center, with the direct intention of securing multiple zoning, and then change horses in the middle of the stream, one can only conclude such a move is the height of arrogance. Little concern is displayed for the homeowners, in the immediate area, when the developers seek to manipulate projects simply to make more money.

We should support the excellent housing provided by Highland Lakes, King's Mill, Northville Forest, and the Innbrook Apartments, because they provide a wide variety of income groups to obtain housing in Northville Township.

But we should oppose the Northridge Apartments because of the arrogance of power displayed by the landowners, in this case. Moreover, there appears to be an attempt to thwart the wishes of a majority of township residents, by direct attempts to put the squeeze on our Planning Commission. Consequently, we can expect our board members and planning commissioners, to make a wise decision, because they will give full attention to the desires of most of our residents.

We should urge the Planning Commission to adopt a recommendation that the land be rezoned, for the construction of single-family homes. Another alternative would be to insist the land be used for the construction of a senior citizens retirement center.

After all is said and done, we owe it to our senior citizens to provide high quality housing, for them, in Northville Township. Ultimately, the landowners would gain the respect and admiration of our community, if they would go along with their original proposal for a retirement village. Therefore, justice would prevail for the homeowners, taxpayers, and voters, who make up the majority, in our township.

Sincerely,
Larry D. VanderMolen

Plymouth Center abuse

Needed: 'compassion not politics'

By RICH PERLBERG

A federal judge has ordered a panel of five people to monitor the Plymouth Center for Human Development where mental health officials have been unable to prevent the abuse and neglect of retarded children and, perhaps as important to them, unable to stop newspapers from writing stories about it.

This one may do some good. Unlike the previous committees that have formed since the Detroit Free Press helped settle everyone's breakfast with grisly accounts of alleged abuse and documented neglect, this panel seems to be appointed for other than political or self-protective reasons.

Most importantly, the five members have round-the-clock access to the facility and each is required to spend at least 20 hours a week at the center which is located in Northville Township.

An independent investigating team with the power of surprise inspections is not as obvious a step as might first seem.

Governor William Milliken's first attempt to get to the bottom of the abuse was to appoint Mental Health Director Donald Smith to head a three-person fact-finding committee.

Smith, however, was the very man who was responsible for seeing that outrages such as those at the Plymouth Center didn't happen. Other people noticed this, too, and Smith was removed.

A larger task force was formed and this one included none other than John Dempsay, the head of the state Department of Social Services, an agency which refused to investigate child abuse at the center until ordered to by the Michigan Appeals Court.

How tough will this committee's investigation be? An indication might be a tour that the committee took last month. Afterwards, a spokesman said he found conditions no better or worse than at other state institutions.

Opinion

That tour, by the way, was announced. Hours earlier, State Senator Joseph Snyder (Dem.—St. Clair Shores) made a surprise visit before the spit and polish was applied and he was not as impressed.

A cynic might guess that, even under a supposedly new regime, center officials are more concerned about making the facilities look pleasing to the panel than about making life easier for the 850 patients who live there.

Locally, cynics may also take the many public outcries by politicians with a grain of election-year salt. Locally, State Senator Robert Geake (Rep.—Northville) said he was "astonished and dismayed" and County Commissioner Mary Dumas (Rep.—Livonia) said she was "appalled" by the abuse stories.

What else did you expect? They certainly were not going to say that they were pleased and encouraged by reports of beatings, sexual abuse and administrative indifference. Their concern, while no doubt sincere, would have been more reassuring had it been voiced before the center made headlines.

Geake, a former staff psychologist at the center and a member of the Plymouth Association for Retarded Citizens which played a major role in exposing the abuses, was in an especially good position to start reform.

But in an interview three weeks ago, he said he had been aware only of "scattered reports" of abuse until the Free Press stories.

Reform in any case may be a pipe dream since the apparent attitude within the Department of Mental Health is that none is needed.

The most disturbing of the official responses to the abuse claims is the reasoning that a lot of the unexplained injuries were probably the result of patients who either hurt themselves or others. Officials at all levels seem to feel this is a legitimate defense. It isn't.

The key words here are "probably" and "unexplained." The fact that retarded patients under state care can be seriously harmed and repeatedly abused without anyone knowing why and without anyone knowing being held accountable is the real crime at the Plymouth Center.

Caring for the retarded can be an ugly, thankless and degrading job. There are grown men who are not toilet trained. There are strong, 20-year-old boys who become violent. There are boys and girls who masturbate openly. There are patients who are often smelly, offensive and deformed.

They are also retarded. And they are also people.

They are also human beings who are retarded. Thus, not only do they not deserve the treatment described by the Free Press, but it should also be the state's top priority to insure that these wards are safe and protected.

Yet nowhere in the entire Department of Mental Health — from the doctors at the center to administrators at the local, regional and state levels — did anyone step forward and say that there must no longer be any unexplained injuries.

In fact, the Mental Health and Social Service bureaucracies actively hindered the efforts of citizen groups to explain the injuries.

While children were being repeatedly harmed, officials from those two agencies were waging a memo war in an effort to escape the responsibility of investigating the abuses.

Had it not been for groups such as PARC and for the two Free Press reporters, the memos would still be flying and the abuses would undoubtedly remain largely unchecked.

For it is hard to argue against the contention that the Department of Mental Health would have felt no need to curb the abuse without outside prodding.

And if this is the attitude that prevails, if politics rather than compassion and competence rule the mental health system, then any improvements at the center will vanish as soon as the current outrage disappears from the public eye.

Then the story will start again.

Downs gains

Northville Downs posted gains in both attendance and betting for the second straight week during six nights of harness racing last week.

Attendance figures for the week totaled 18,666 and averaged 3111 per night, up 0.8 percent compared to last year's overall figures, while the mutual handle was $2,525,667, or $421,111 per night, up 15.7 percent.

Through the first 70 racing nights this season the Downs has accumulated $28,019,228 in mutual handle, which averages out to $400,275 nightly. That's up 10 percent over a year ago.

Attendance has been lagging somewhat, however. Through Saturday attendance figures were 209,202 for the season, an average of 2989 per night, and that's down 3.2 percent.

Only 12 more nights of racing remain this season, with the conclusion of the 82-night meet slated for April 8.

CONGRESSIONAL SEARCHLIGHT

by CONGRESSMAN
CARL PURSELL

A mind is a terrible thing to waste.

As a former teacher, I cringe at the thought of bright young students whose special talents — whether they be in music, art, theatre, or science — aren't given an opportunity to develop.

Often these children — an estimated 2 million of them throughout our nation — are not always adequately challenged by regular classroom exercises. Their educational experience could be so much more rewarding — both for themselves and for our nation — if their talents were encouraged.

However, with the increasing sizes of classrooms, teachers are often limited by sheer numbers alone from giving students the individual attention they all deserve, much less provide special assistance to those who demonstrate special gifts.

Until recently, the federal government has offered little financial help to local school districts for development of special programs for the educationally gifted. Although Congress has appropriated $2.7 billion for educational programs for the disadvantaged, funding for gifted students has been a forgotten field. Only within the last two years has federal assistance been offered — at a modest level of $2.5 million.

The time has come — in fact it is long overdue — to make a commitment to help our brightest students realize their full potential also.

As a state senator, I authored the proposal which provided Michigan's first funding for academically talented programs. Now, I am pleased that I have been able to help generate awareness among my colleagues in the House of the necessity for such programs.

An amendment which I proposed that would enable local schools to apply for grants to develop programs for the gifted was recently adopted at the subcommittee level.

This amendment would phase-in increased funding available for academically talented programs, starting with $10 million next year, and increasing to $25 million over a four-year period.

The great bipartisan support this amendment received at the subcommittee level — including both Education and Labor Committee Chairman Carl Perkins (D-Kentucky) and Representative Al Quie (R-Minnesota), the ranking Republican on the committee, make me optimistic about its chances for passage in the full committee and House. Other non-committee supporters include House Majority Whip John Brademas of Indiana and Representative Shirley Chisholm of New York.

It's money well spent — we can't afford to let the talents of our nation's brightest students go to waste easy subject in me. I've never been hypnotized.

Herb tried "putting me under" several years ago and failed. I've seen him work successfully with others, however, including with a former Northville school board member who was left with a post hypnotic suggestion that was carried out to the letter a whole week later. Also, I've attended some work sessions of NAAEH with Herb. So I know hypnosis is for real.

But hypnotic regression is another matter.

I've never been a ghost believer...although I scare pretty easily. So going into this experiment, I'm a skeptic. But the thought that I may have been someone else in another lifetime is intriguing and I'm anxious to give it a try.

I'm told Dr. Wambach's workshops "are sort of like high class Tupperware parties" where, after the hypnosis session, everyone sits around discussing their experiences. Under strong post-hypnotic suggestion, we're supposed to be able to complete questionnaires about our previous lives...and deaths.

Thus far after some 1,000 documented "trips," Dr. Wambach makes the following observations:

- Ninety percent reported dying was not an unpleasant experience, but 80 percent didn't really want to be born again.
- Men are embarrassed to learn they were a woman in at least one of every past three lives...and not always the same color.
- They knew some of their current friends in previous lives.
- Subjects report they lose their fear of dying after having seen their previous deaths and enjoying the immediate "release from, and being outside the body."
- Other subjects report losing small phobias once they learn it originated in a past-life experience.
- Subjects — from 30 to 80 percent of any given session — can telepathically anticipate Dr. Wambach's mentally asked questions.

Are the workshops "rip-offs"? Is hypnotic regression for real? Is Jack Hoffman really a made-over Cleopatra? Tune in April 19 and find out.

8-Mile hazard area scene of another crash

Michigan State Police are looking for a driver who was a witness to a collision between a dump truck and three cars Tuesday morning on Eight Mile Road just east of Northville City.

The 7:33 a.m. accident, which wrecked three vehicles and sent one driver to the hospital with four broken ribs, occurred between Novi Road and Old Novi Road.

It is the same troublesome stretch of Eight Mile Road where two young Northville girls were killed in a car-truck head-on collision last January.

State police said the westbound truck, driven by Gerald Murphy, 19, Detroit, apparently crossed the centerline and hit three eastbound cars in succession.

The driver of the car who passed the accident scene scant seconds before the crash may be a valuable eyewitness, according to Trooper Ted Nelson. The driver, who may be a Northville or Novi resident, is asked to call Nelson at 348-1505.

The driver of the second car struck by the truck, Ronald Strohmer, 41, Canton Township, was admitted to Botsford General Hospital in Farmington Hills for treatment of his broken ribs and a lacerated chin.

Pamela McMacken, 19, 1058 Bristol Court, Northville, driver of the first eastbound car, suffered minor injuries and was treated at Botsford and released.

The driver of the third car, Jody Alcorn, 23, 649 Horton, Northville, was uninjured.

before they must pay taxes — even though their children are attending local schools.

This procedure unfairly places the burden of educating and providing other services for non-taxpayers on existing taxpayers. It penalizes the school system which needs all the money it can get, he said.

During the discussion, it was noted that if a house under construction is not completed before a date in December but is completed and occupied shortly thereafter no taxes are paid on the property until the following December.

Some provision is made, however, for taxing of partial construction.

Grier said he would be happy to compose a letter to legislators in hopes of securing a change in placement of new homes on the tax rolls. And Fiorilli volunteered to assist him.

Here's the departmental expenditures as approved in the new budget.

Legislative, $134,117 (includes $97,817 contingency); supervisor, $28,558; clerk, $42,295; treasurer, $30,790 (includes an increase in the treasurer's salary from $2,500 to $3,000); elections,

$10,950; auditing, $3,500; board of review, $650; cemetery, $450;

Township hall and grounds, $30,525 (landscaping of the new township hall grounds is to come out of the contingency fund); police, $238,494 (includes the chief's salary of $20,207, and it provides for the hiring of two additional police officers);

Ambulance, $3,500; fire department, $43,232 (includes a salary increase for the fire chief from $14,500 to $15,000); building department, $30,710; public works, $8,500; senior citizens, $2,050; recreation, $34,688; library, $53,917;

Planning commission, $9,790; board of appeals, $1,100; employee fringe benefits, $65,370; and general administration, $42,910.

According to the supervisor, the budget provides a 31 percent hourly increase for dispatchers, from $3.50 to $4.60, and a 23 percent hourly increase for clerical employees, from $3.50 to $4.30.

Also a new, more attractive pension plan is to be provided for employees.

Concerning services jointly provided by the city and township, Grier pointed out that the budget outlays for these are exactly the same as had been requested.

subdivision where some assessments were increased by as much as 25 percent.

Cutler minced no words in suggesting that many of the assessment increases made by Oakland County were unreasonable.

"What really concerns our board," said Cutler, "is that there seems to be no uniformity in Oakland County's assessments from one house to another. We question the basis for their increases."

The assessments in the Wayne County section of the city appear reasonable, said the chairman. "We don't think property values have risen any more in the Oakland County section than in the Wayne County section," he added.

Cutler said Oakland County assessing officials failed to reappraise property values "as they promised us." Instead, they simply re-examined their field studies.

Because of its concern, the board has ordered its own deeds study of sales in the area and, going into yesterday's hearing, was prepared to use this study in reaching some of its conclusion.

Whether or not Oakland County "goes along" with the board remains to be seen, said Cutler.

"Frankly, I'm convinced Oakland County just doesn't have any concern for our property owners in that section of the city."

Assessing in the city is done by the two counties under contract with the city.

Councilman Wallace Nichols echoed Cutler's concerns at last week's council meeting.

The councilman advised fellow council members that he had reviewed assessment of several adjacent houses in Northville Heights subdivision and found a disparity of assessments that appeared to have no foundation.

One house of equal value with another, he noted, had a greater assessment.

Dr. Swienkowski topped candidates with 1,082 votes.

Lysinger, who was an unsuccessful candidate in 1974, was unopposed in the August, 1976 primary and he won the remaining two-year post of Rosenberg unopposed in the November election.

Wilson edged out John Unger for a second trustee post in the August, 1976 primary (769 to 717) and in the November election, he and Dr. Swienkowski won four-year seats by trouncing the lone Democrat, Margaret Cramer.

Not running for re-election in 1976 were trustees Richard Mitchell and John MacDonald.

Nowka topped the Republican ticket for trustee in the August, 1974 primary, 522 votes. Also nominated was Rosenberg with 470 votes. Losing in that primary was Lysinger, who picked up 363 votes.

In the November, 1974 election Nowka was the leading Republican vote-getter for trustee, picking up 1,816 votes. Rosenberg, who also won a trustee post, garnered 1,794 votes. The two losing Democrats were Hugh Sutherland (1,219) and Donald Marengere (1,200).

2-year pact protested

School principals get contracts

Contracts for most Northville principals and central office administrators were extended Monday night, but not before two school board members protested the practice of providing two-year working agreements.

Trustees James Lewis and Charles Peltz particularly objected to Superintendent Raymond Spear's recommendation to present new two-year contracts to five central office administrators who are currently finishing the first year of two-year pacts.

Lewis said that the board is facing a "year of transition" when it will have to select a successor for Spear who will become DeWitt's superintendent on July 1.

He said it was not "valid to hope that all working relationships work out" between the new superintendent and the present administrative staff.

Peltz had similar sentiments, saying he had "no problems with the people who are being offered two-year contracts other than the fact that they are two-year contracts."

Spear, however, told board members that the central office administrators are "your team. They work directly for you. It's my humble opinion that you should be doing something to provide some job security."

In response to Lewis, Spear said the DeWitt school board had already approved contracts for all but one of his new administrative staff.

"I've no reservations at all going into that school district," he said.

Secretary Christopher Johnson said a stable central office staff became more important now that a new superintendent will be hired.

"I would like to make sure that these people are around for a couple of years," he said.

The board has to take some action on all administrative contracts by April 1 or they will automatically renew for one or two years, depending on how long the administrator had been in the district.

Peltz and Lewis voted against all two-year contracts but President John Hobart, Vice President Douglas Whitaker, Johnson and Marjorie Sliger all voted in favor of Spear's recommendations.

Treasurer Karen Wilkinson was absent.

Two-year contracts were awarded to Director of Education Instructor Nancy Soper, Director of Personnel Burton Knighton, Director of Special Education Leonard Rezmierski, Administrative Assistant for Finance Thomas Goulding, and special education coordinator Clark Kelly.

All were completing the first year of two-year contracts.

Two-year contracts in accordance with union provisions were awarded to principals with union provisions were awarded to principals William Craft (Amerman), Milt Jacobi (Winchester), Ron Horwath (Meads Mill), David Longridge (Cooke) and Donald Van-ingen (Moraine).

One-year contracts were given to principals who have not been in the district long enough to be eligible for two-year pacts. These include high school Principal George Aune, assistant high school principals Barbara Campbell and Eddy McLeod, Silver Springs Principal Nancy Fieldman and the supervisors of special education schools.

Administrative Assistant for Operations Michael Janchick and special education coordinators Donald McGahan and John Flaughter were awarded one-year contracts, as recommended by Spear, even though they were eligible for two-year pacts.

The board also approved Spear's recommendation to take no action on the two-year contract of Curriculum Coordinator Michael Burley whose two-year agreement runs through next year.

Spear said his recommendation on those last four administrators made it "rather obvious" that he does have "some reservations."

Spear takes DeWitt job

DeWitt is almost the same size that Northville was when Spear came to the district from Inkster Cherry Hill in 1962 to become principal of Amerman Elementary School.

Five years later, Spear was named to follow Alex Nelson as superintendent of schools.

During his tenure, he piloted the district through record growth that doubled its size to 4475 by the early 1970's.

In 1974, however, the bubble burst and a steadily declining enrollment coupled with millage defeats to plague the district with continuing financial problems.

Of late, Spear has fallen into disfavor with some citizens who claim the district has been deteriorating educationally. Two board members, James Lewis and Charles Peltz, were elected in June after saying they would work for Spear's ouster.

Ironically, Spear's announcement came a day after published reports that Northville trailed only four school districts — Grosse Pointe, Birmingham, Bloomfield Hills and Novi — in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties in cumulative scores of state reading and mathematics assessment tests given to fourth and seventh graders.

Spear, whose high points in Northville included the state's first year-round school and a nationally acclaimed education program for the institutionally mentally retarded, acknowledged but would not defer to his critics.

"To those in the community who have found my methods, ideas or attitudes to their dislike, I apologize; but express no regrets," he said in a letter to Hobart which was read during Monday night's board meeting.

"It would be unreasonable to expect a superintendent to please the total school/community all of the time;

however, as I reflect upon my 16 years of service and contemplate leaving, I feel that I did succeed in pleasing most of the people most of the time.

"I will miss Northville but look forward, with excitement and enthusiasm, to a new superintendency."

Spear will continue at Northville through the end of the fiscal year on June 30. On April 29, the district is seeking a tax hike of 5.5 mills.

It's called enthusiasm

Girls catching spring sports fever

Track crew's lacking, but willing to work

Nobody's expecting particularly big things out of the Northville girls' track team this spring.

After all, the Mustangs won only one dual meet all season in 1977 and wound up dead last in the Western Six. Gone from that squad is Linda Prom, an outstanding sprinter who never lost a race in the 220-yard dash during the regular season.

Worse yet, only four letter winners are back altogether. Most of the other girls from last year's young club are now either working or just plan missing, leaving a 1978 contingent dominated by underclassmen again.

But you gotta give 'em credit — the Mustangs aren't about to lie down and say die. In fact there's good reason to believe this year's unit may even be improved.

That's the way first-year coach Bob Prom — he's Linda's dad — sees things, anyway.

"If nothing else we should be improved simply by numbers," says the new mentor, who acted as an assistant under Steve McDonald last season. Twenty-three girls, he notes, are already out for the team and he hopes to have around 30 — almost twice the size of last year's squad — by the time competition gets under way in two weeks.

But that's not all the Mustangs have going for them.

"I'm really delighted with their enthusiasm," Prom says in all sincerity. "There's a real willingness on their part to go out and work to improve themselves."

"Many of them are tackling events they've never been in before, but they're putting out a lot of effort just the same."

Among the squad's returnees are co-captains Ann Dayton, Liz Pixley and Lisa Raycraft.

Dayton, a junior, was the only Northville girl to qualify for last year's state finals. Her specialty is the 440, which she ran in 60.3 at the state meet and set a school record. She'll probably be the team's top prospect for taking over Linda Prom's place in the 220 as well.

Pixley, also a junior with good sprint-

Softballers are deep in talent—coach thinks too deep

Mary Minor has a problem that most high school softball coaches would love to share. She has too many good ball players.

And she isn't enjoying the situation one bit.

Because she can only keep 18 girls on the team for the start of regular season play, Northville will be forced to cut two of its remaining 20 players either this week or next to meet the limit. Minor's already had to chop out 17 of the 37 prospects who showed up for the start of practice this season, and she isn't looking forward to her last cut at all.

"I'll have to cut two girls from an excellent group of players," she says, adding that the lack of jayvee program in the high school is costing several deserving girls a chance to compete this spring. "The thing is they're all potentially super athletes and it's because of the summer rec program out here."

She's referring to the local recreation department's summer softball league, open to girls eight years old and above. Because of that, the veteran coach says, and "the work that coaches have done at that level, I have better girls coming in than I ever have before."

Does that mean she's expecting a championship contender this spring?

"We may not take first, but I think this is going to be THE year for our softball team," Minor asserts, and that's saying quite a bit for a club dominated by underclassmen.

The Mustangs seem solid at every position but the mound, and even there the fourth-year mentor acknowledges "three promising pitchers" who should help Northville improve on its third-place Western Six standing in 1977.

Chris Suddendorf, a senior who can play almost anywhere, is the team's only returning regular hurler but Minor is expecting good things from sophomores Julie Abraham and junior Susie Heinzman as well.

"This is the first year that I've seen real promise in our pitching staff," Minor says noting that most local girls never get a chance to play fast-pitch outside the high school season, "but we're still going to be weak because of our inexperience."

But look at the rest of the defense. The Mustangs are at least two deep throughout the infield. Heinzman, who plays fast-pitch summer ball with an Ann Arbor club, is one of the league's top shortstops and an equally strong hitter. Backing her up will be sophomore Kim Kurzawa, who'll also be vying for a slot at second base along with Julie McDaniels and Suddendorf.

Kim DeRusha and Sherry Metz are currently Northville's two hopefuls at first base, while Kathey Rich appears to have the inside track at third base. Strongest prospects at catcher are Nancy Schlachter, a starter last year, and Stephanie Colovas.

Almost all of them competed in summer ball last year.

The graduation of All-Leaguer Louis Hopping and Debbie Korte in the outfield, Minor concedes, may hurt the Mustangs there, but again the team should be able to come up with adequate replacements. Among their top prospects are Colovas, Susan Kinnaird and Lynn Sylvester.

"We should be pretty well off this year," Minor says. "I think we'll have an infield that's out of sight, and we should be a good defensive ball club all the way around. It should be an interesting year."

Minor gives much of the credit for her team's vast improvement over the past year to assistant Bess Cureton, whom she considers "one of the most knowledgeable" softball coaches in the area. Cureton hails from Florida and coaches softball there during the winter months. The team's student manager is Angela Carson.

The Mustangs begin regular season play a week from tomorrow (April 6) when they host Brighton in a non-league battle. They start Western Six competition on April 19 against Waterford Mott.

Catcher Nancy Schlachter is one of several returning starters

Tryouts for E League players will take place at Cass Benton Park beginning at 1 p.m., for F and G League players at Ford Field (9 a.m. and 1 p.m. respectively), and for H League and girls' softball players at the Fish Hat-

Sandy Koufax, Mickey Mantle and Connie Mack League players will have tryouts after the season has begun.

Two-mile relay places

Northville's two-mile relay team was the local track squad's only point-getters in last weekend's annual Huron Relays at Eastern Michigan University.

Brian Turnbull, John Monagle, Harry Couyoumjian and John Coram combined for an 8:35 clocking in the event, finishing 12th out of some 70 schools that competed. The Mustangs had been in fifth place going into the last leg of the relay but faltered.

Other strong performances at the meet were registered by sophomore Tom Doyle and junior Jim Bedford. Doyle ran a 4:54 in the open mile run while Bedford had a 10:11 in the two mile.

"None of the times were exceptional, but for our sophomores and juniors it represented some of their best efforts," coach Ed Gabrys said of the meet, which attracted some 80 Class A schools in all.

The Mustangs will get another taste of pre-season action this weekend when they compete in the Spartan Relays at Michigan State University. The meet gets under way Saturday morning.

Yvonne Swayze is Mustang track team's top returnee in the discus

Girls' tracksters show enthusiasm

ting background, will be one of a host of girls who'll be competing in the 110 low hurdles this season. She's probably a good bet to be on either the 440 or 880 relay team as well.

Raycraft is one of only two seniors on the squad, but thus far has been sidelined by illness and may not be up to par at the start of the season. She ran distance for last year's Mustangs but will be used more in the mile relay and long jump this season.

The team's only other returning letter winner, Yvonne Swayze, is experienced in the shot put and discus and looks strong in both again.

While the Mustangs are knee-deep in sprinters and hurdlers, Prom acknowledges a lack of distance runners. Laura Willoughby appears his only clear-cut choice in the two mile so far while Chris Vanderwouwe, Kristy Iversen, and Michelle and Lisa Moulds are vying for position in the mile.

The middle distances aren't much better off. Sophomores Laurie Leinonen and Leslie Farquhar and junior Debbie Smith are trying out in the 880 while Dayton and Teresa Hancock, a junior, are good possibilities in the 440.

But sprints are where Northville's strength is. Competing in the 220 will be Dayton and Leslie Dilts, a sophomore, while sophomores Mary Dooley and Kathy McMillan are also in the running.

Two more sophomores, Chris Spigarelli and Lissa Carter, look strong in the 100-yard dash. They'll be pushed in that event by Dooley and Dilts.

The Mustangs also boast several good hurdlers, including Pixley, Carter, Spigarelli, Dooley and Leinonen. "I think we show a great deal of promise there," Prom says.

Swayze and Ericka Smith, the team's other senior, head up a group of good shot putters and discus throwers that includes Willoughby and junior Lisa Youngquist as well. In the high jump it's Iversen, Carter, Farquhar and Leinonen battling for position while the long jump, Prom notes, is still "up in the air."

admits "we have a lot of question marks right now," but he isn't about to concede anything to the opposition just yet.

"I think we'll be okay this year," he says. "I'm not saying we're going to be a championship team or anything, but I think overall we're better off than last year."

Assisting Prom this spring will be Lori Standford, a local phys-ed teacher. The Mustangs will start their season with a tri-meet against Wayne Memorial and Brighton a week from tomorrow (April 6). Western Six action gets under way April 27 when they host Waterford Mott.

Old man? Cavs' Doyle doesn't look the part

You might call him the Gordie Howe of Northville recreation basketball. James Doyle, a 48-year-old father of four, had one of the top individual performances of the season last Wednesday when he fired in 27 points for the Cavaliers. The effort proved fruitless, though, as the rest of the team combined for a mere 25 points and the Cavs suffered a 73-52 loss to second-place Wack Pack.

Doyle, who's now scored 47 points in the only three games he's started this season, didn't even get on the scoreboard in the first quarter, when Wack Pack raced off to a 23-7 advantage. The middle-aged sensation caught fire in the second, though, tossing in six straight buckets to almost single-handedly keep the Cavs in the game. By half time they'd cut the gap to 37-25.

Doyle tallied 15 more points in the second half, but Wack Pack hung on for its fifth straight triumph this month and its eighth in 11 outings overall.

Four players scored in double figures for the winners, paced by Brian Gulick's 19 points. Jim Cahill added 12 while Doug Rooney had 11, Howard Boyer 10 and Jack Cahill eight. Tom Laffey had eight points and Doug Harding seven for the Cavaliers, now 3-8 on the season.

In other men's action last week Goat Farm came within one game of completing a perfect record in regular season play with a 76-42 shellacking of Brodie's Muffler, and Park Haus stayed in a tie for second with a 101-70 victory over Zayti-Long.

Paced by Howard Inch and Mark Lisowski, Goat Farm rolled out to an early 18-2 lead and had a 38-18 cushion by half time. Inch wound up with 22 points for the game while Lisowski pitched in 16 and Kevin Callahan 10 as the winners extended their unbeaten record this year to 11 games.

Dave Burt had 18 points, 13 of them in the second half, to top the losers while Dave Brodie tossed in eight. Brodie's loss dropped them to 2-9 this season.

Park Haus had five players in double figures as they stormed out to a 47-26 lead at the half and coasted.

Jeff Moon topped all scorers as he tallied 28 points, all in the last three quarters, for the winners and hiked his scoring average to 21.5 this season. John Pantalone chipped in 19 points while Tom Shillito added 16, Howard Bennett and Dennis Diem 12 apiece, and Jeff Spira eight.

The losers were paced by Jim Zayti, who collected 26 points, and Bill Sinclair, who had 21. Pat Hall added nine and Rex Balko eight.

Park Haus now stands 8-3 on the season while Zayti-Long dropped to 1-10.

The recreation league winds up its regular season April 6 when Brodie's Muffler takes on the Cavaliers at Meads Mill in a game beginning at 7:15 p.m.; Goat Farm plays Zayti-Long at Meads Mill starting at 8:45 p.m.; and Park Haus and Wack Pack battle it out for second in a game that gets under way at 7 p.m. at Cooke.

Local pilot Eddie Stinson was among world's best

By MIKE LASH

On a warm, windy Florida morning 50 years and one day ago Edward Stinson and George Haldeman climbed aboard a heavily-loaded Stinson Aircraft plane, guided it down a mile-long runway and took off into the sunny skies over Jacksonville.

They stayed up there for 53 hours and 36 minutes.

It was but another in a long list of Stinson accomplishments, climaxing a two-month-long struggle to break the world endurance flight record.

Considered one of the greatest aviators of his time, Eddie Stinson was just 30 years old when he opened an airplane manufacturing plant off Northville Road in mid-1926.

For the next three years Northville was the home of the Stinson Aircraft Corporation, a closely-knit organization noted for producing some of the best early cabin planes in the world.

Stinson himself was known as quite an adventurer in the aviation field. He learned how to fly when he was about 14 years old, and at age 16 he was an instructor in the army.

And he apparently loved stunt flying. According to an early newspaper account he once challenged Haldeman, also a well-known pilot who unsuccessfully attempted a transatlantic crossing in 1927, to a loop-the-loop flying contest above Northville. He reportedly won by doing somewhere between 35 and 60 loop-the-loops.

One of his most famous accomplishments, though, had to be the world endurance flight record, which he set 50 years ago this week.

During the winter of 1928 he tried to break the standing record of 52 hours and 30 minutes over Lake St. Clair, but failed when a blinding snowstorm forced him down.

Then, on March 28, he tried again. This time, however, he decided to avoid the ever-changing weather conditions of Michigan by attempting the feat in Jacksonville, Florida.

After being delayed for over an hour he and Haldeman took off at 7:37 a.m. under sunny skies and powerful cross winds and stayed aloft until 1:13 p.m. March 30.

According to a newspaper account of the flight Stinson would have continued for several more hours, but rough winds were eating up his gas supply faster than expected.

Stinson's plane weighed some 6200 pounds when it lifted off but maintained an altitude of about 1000 feet throughout the flight.

"The record we have just brought back to Northville is one of the most sought after in the aviation business," Stinson said at a banquet held in his honor afterwards. "The point (was) to produce a plane that (would) carry the heaviest load with the least power. We have accomplished that purpose."

Stinson's relationship with the local townspeople was apparently a good one. From the time he first opened his plant in the summer of 1926 to the day he moved his expanding corporation to Wayne in the spring of 1929 he maintained close ties with the community and was a well-liked personality.

His factory was located west of Northville Road just south of town. Financed by a group of Detroit men that included Harry Graham and helped along by men like William Mara (company vice-president) and George Hopkins (a local test pilot), it quickly grew.

The first Stinson plane took to the air for a test flight in early August of 1926, and within two years the plant was turning out a plane per day.

Once built the ships would be carted through town by a pair of trucks — one to haul the body of the plane and the other to haul the wings — and taken to a landing strip located off Six Mile Road just west of Beck for testing.

Northville-manufactured Stinson planes were responsible for several significant missions. In September of 1926, for instance, a Stinson-built aircraft was the first to reach a severely stricken storm area in Florida with $500,000 in gold for relief aid. Stinson planes were also used in several prominent international ventures in the late '20's, including an around-the-world journey.

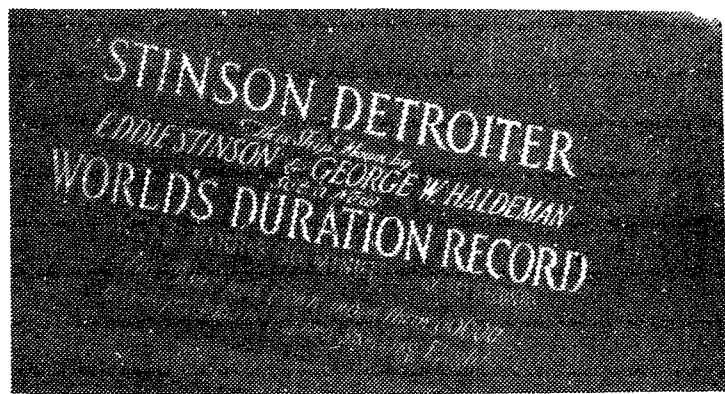

Eventually the organization outgrew Northville and transferred to Wayne, where it was purchased by the Cord Company with Stinson kept as its president.

The property on which the old landing strip was located was originally owned by the Ponsford family, now the Laphams. Plans were made to turn it into an ale brewery after Stinson left, but the plans eventually fell through in the mid-'30's.

Throughout his tenure as president of the corporation Stinson, who lived in Northville's Orchard Heights, continually set out on new ventures, breaking several speed and endurance records.

He was killed in a plane crash at Chicago in early 1932, ending a flying career that spanned over two decades during the pioneer days of airplanes. During that time he reportedly logged more flying time than any other pilot in the country, traveling nearly 15 million miles in the air.

Soccer boom's causing recreation headaches

"You can browbeat parents into coaching, but you can't browbeat fields into turning out places for playing soccer."

That comment, made by Western Suburban Soccer League (WSSL) director Craig Parker of Northville, reflects the growing problems afflicting youth soccer programs throughout the area this spring.

The sport is enjoying an unprecedented boom in the United States, particularly among youngsters, and because of it recreation departments all over are experiencing severe crises in providing adequate facilities for their programs.

While finding enough coaches has been a problem in the past, this year shortages of playing fields has created particularly big dilemmas.

In Northville, for instance, the number of youngsters participating in the rec department's WSSL-associated program has leaped from 410 a year ago to 617 this spring (and there are 38 more on a waiting list) — an increase of over 50 percent — and yet only two more new fields, bringing the total to eight, are now available. Northville now has 34 teams, an increase of 10 over last year, in the 176-team WSSL.

According to Parker, who anticipates a nine-team increase by this fall, "we'll need at least 11 fields by the fall, for the simple reason that the kids have to have a place to practice. Right now we have enough fields for the games, but there's not enough practice time."

The WSSL, an organization involving kids aged eight through 19 from Plymouth, Farmington, Livonia and Northville, actually has two two-month seasons — one in the spring and one in the fall — during which time each team plays once a week.

What makes things particularly rough in the spring is the overlapping of the junior baseball season.

Because many local youngsters like competing in both programs, Northville scheduled all of its teams' home soccer games on Sundays to avoid conflicts with the baseball schedule. A good number of away games (at Plymouth, Farmington and Livonia), however, take place on Wednesdays and Saturdays, directly clashing with Northville junior baseball, because the other cities don't have enough fields to accommodate all the games on one day.

One solution, obviously, would be to bar youngsters from participating in both programs. But that's not in line with Parker's feelings.

"A child shouldn't have to be forced to make a choice between the two," he says. "We don't want to discourage kids from being active in both so we try to minimize our scheduling differences as much as possible, but it's getting to the point where something is going to have to change fast."

And, according to him, a change will mean either co-existing with junior baseball or separating the baseball and soccer seasons.

In order to co-exist the program will have to find new fields. One possibility, he notes, is a vacant lot off Six Mile Road between Beck and Sheldon. The land is presently owned by the school district and was planned on being used to build a new high school.

Between now and the time a new school is built, Parker says, the school district would allow it to be used for soccer fields. One problem may be that the terrain there is too hilly.

Another possibility, he says, is that the program might be able to lease property currently owned by area corporations.

"If there are any major corporations in the area who have large, flat lands they'd be willing to let us use we'd gladly develop them," he says.

The rec department has also considered separating the soccer and junior baseball seasons by changing the soccer schedule to the summer instead of the spring.

According to Parker one major drawback to that idea is that "the vast majority of parents don't want the program to go past the middle of July because of vacations and so forth." He also points out that the rest of the country plays soccer in the spring, anyway.

Complicating matters further this spring has been all the precipitation the area's been getting in recent weeks. Because of it practice time has been limited even more this year, and may result in the start of the soccer season getting set back one week. Competition was originally scheduled to start April 8.

Despite all the problems, though, Parker sees nothing but a bright future for the game of soccer itself.

"It's a sport that any young kid can play," he says. "Parents like it because there's so few injuries, and the WSSL rules state that each player on a team has to play at least half a game."

Northville fields currently available for WSSL play are at Meads Mill and Cooke junior high schools, Winchester Elementary, Ford Field and the Fish Hatchery. There are also three fields next to the township offices off Sheldon Road.

Home games for Northville's teams will take place on Sunday afternoons at 1, 3 and 5 p.m.

'Spot zoning' defined by plan consultant

What does "spot zoning" mean? Because the term frequently comes up in local rezoning cases, the city manager requested the city's planning consultant to provide a formal definition for council and planning commissioners.

"In view of the fact that the term 'spot zoning' has been used in a specific way in court cases, and is often the subject of a court challenge of a local government's decision to either rezone or not rezone a parcel of land, it would seem advisable to restrict our use of this term when we use it in public hearings," City Manager Steven Walters told local officials.

Here's the definition: Spot zoning is a zoning relationship which will result in a property taking on a use relationship entirely different than that which is permitted on adjacent properties.

Spot zoning is the condition in which a rezoning will confer a "special land use status" on a particular piece of property different than that permitted on surrounding properties.

Conditions for spot zoning:

1. Contiguous properties on all sides should be zoned for a different use classification (i.e., residential as opposed to commercial, industrial as opposed to commercial, less certain single family as opposed to multiple family).
2. Zoning use districts should be pure for some distance in all directions save where divided by a main street.
3. Zoning on the opposite side of a major street when different does not constitute "spot zoning."

HOFFMAN HONORED — Both houses of the Michigan State Legislature paid tribute to Jack W. Hoffman through the presentation of Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 362 Monday night. The recognition award caught Hoffman by surprise. It was made at Monday night's meeting of the Northville Kiwanis Club by Senator Robert Geake, shown above handing the handsome framed document to Hoffman. The recognition award was made as the result of Hoffman having been named Suburban Journalist of the Year by Suburban Newspapers of America (SNA), a national association of suburban weekly and daily newspapers. Hoffman, who is assistant to the publisher of the Northville Record, Novi News, South Lyon Herald and Brighton Argus newspapers, accepted the national newspaper award at the annual SNA convention in Phoenix, Arizona last month. The resolution took note of Hoffman's contributions as a "versatile, astute, and objective newsman" and his talent as an historian and author of "Northville... the First Hundred Years." It concluded with: "Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the highest praise and tribute be hereby accorded Mr. Jack W. Hoffman upon being named Suburban Journalist of the Year; and be it further resolved, that a copy of this resolution be transmitted to Mr. Hoffman as evidence of the high esteem in which his achievements in journalism are held by the Michigan Legislature." Smilingly approving the presentation are Kiwanis President Tom Sechler (left) and Don Thomson, club treasurer.

8 Mile hazard needs attention

A trio of resolutions adopted by the Northville City Council have received the support of the township board. The board voted to support the city in calling for shoulder improvements along Eight Mile Road, in opposing package liquor sales at gasoline stations, and in opposing the elimination of inspection of multiple family dwellings.

Here's a synopsis of those resolutions:

Eight Mile — It notes that Eight Mile Road consists of two lanes of pavement with gravel shoulders from Griswold Road west to the Northville Township limits; that high level of traffic cause vehicles to pass left turning vehicles on the gravel shoulders, that narrow pavement and hills and curves cause vehicles to momentarily run off the pavement on the gravel shoulders, all of which leave many areas along the road with dangerous ruts at the exposed edge of the pavement.

The resolution asks the Wayne and Oakland County road commissions "to evaluate whether lane widening and/or four lanes with curbing should be considered to improve the safety of the road."

Packaged Liquor — It opposes a proposal, drafted by the State Liquor Control Commission at the urging of large petroleum dealers, that would allow gasoline stations with connected grocery trade to sell packaged liquor.

The resolution notes that the proposal is strongly opposed by the Michigan Council on Alcoholic Problems, and it notes that local officials also oppose the proposal's adoption because "it could, in effect, condone and promote drunk driving."

Copies of the resolution were submitted to the Michigan Liquor Control Commission, Senators R. Robert Geake and Daniel S. Cooper and Representatives Richard D. Fessler and Jack E. Kirksey.

Inspection — It opposes a bill recently passed by the state senate that would eliminate inspection of multiple dwellings for 15 years after the issuance of a certificate of occupancy.

It argues that such a law would create a serious safety hazard, and that it contradicts a state act which requires inspection of multiple dwellings every two years and that it is inaccurate in that it refers to elimination of building code inspections rather than housing code inspections.

Copies of the resolutions were sent to the same legislatures earlier mentioned.

School board election

Deadline nears for nominations

Persons who are interested in running for a position on the Northville board of education have less than two weeks to file nominating petitions.

The petitions, which require only 20 signatures from registered school district voters, must be turned into the board of education offices, 303 West Main Street, by 4 p.m. on Monday, April 12.

Petitions may be obtained at the board offices during regular working hours.

Two four-year terms, presently filled by Treasurer Karen Wilkinson and Trustee James Lewis, will be up for grabs in the annual school election on June 12.

Both Mrs. Wilkinson, who is completing a four-year term, and Lewis, who was elected last June to fill an unexpired term, have said they are considering running for re-election.

As of Tuesday morning, no completed nominating petitions had been filed with the school district.

Persons who circulate petitions should take care not to have the signatures of people from more than one unit of government on the same sheet of paper.

In other words, separate petitions must be circulated in Novi, Northville City and Northville Township. The total signatures may be used to reach the minimum requirement or all may come from the same unit of government.

If more than two people successfully file for nominating petitions, the top two vote-getters in the June election will win the four-year seats.

If only the incumbents file, it would be a turnaround from recent elections.

No incumbent has sought re-election to the Northville school board since President John Hobart in 1975.

In 1976, Marjorie Sliger and Christopher Johnson paced a field of seven candidates for two four-year terms.

Last year, Lewis, Douglas Whitaker and Charles Peltz won terms on one, two and four years in an election that attracted eight candidates.

Third 'impact' hearing tomorrow on Super Sewer

The third of five public information meetings concerning the development of an environmental impact statement (EIS) for the proposed super sewer system will be held tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the Trenton Performing Arts Center, 2447 West Jefferson.

According to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) Region V office, the meeting agenda includes discussion of systems alternatives "for solution of wastewater problems in the project area," and presentation of reports on population distribution and projections and economic conditions in the 20-county Huron Valley area.

The EPA's second newsletter on the project includes a population analysis, based on projections made by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG).

The report states that communities in the super sewer area "gained population between 1960 and 1970. Rates of population increase were higher in both the 1960 to 1970 and 1970 to 1975 periods" than the growth rate in the six-county region of southeast Michigan and that "present population trends indicate that project area growth primarily consists of persons moving out from Detroit's inner areas. Much of the project area is located in an area of rapid suburban development."

The SEMCOG figures indicate that the super sewer project area will have a population of 323,650 by 1980, increasing to 407,605 in 1995.

Economic conditions listed in the newsletter include employment, unemployment and manufacturing employment trends.

The fourth public information meeting, which will focus on the environmental assessment process and effects of the various alternatives, will be held in late April, according to

Thomas Lera, EPA senior environmental planner, while the fifth session, at which the draft EIS is expected to be presented to the public, has been tentatively set for the week of May 15.

Public hearings on the draft EIS are scheduled to be held in June and July, with a final EIS available for agency and public comment in October, EPA officials said.

The alternative favored by Wayne County public works officials calls for construction of an interceptor line from Commerce Township in Oakland County south through Walled Lake, Novi, Northville, Plymouth, Canton, Van Buren, Belleville, Sumpter, Huron, Flat Rock and Rockwood to a new wastewater treatment plant in Brownstown, with discharge into Lake Erie.

Panels to investigate Plymouth Center

An independent committee and a joint legislative panel have formed in the continuing investigation into abuse charges at the Plymouth Center for Human Development.

The five-member committee, appointed by a federal judge, will monitor and report on conditions at the state institution for mentally retarded located in Northville Township at the intersection of Sheldon and Five Mile roads.

The 14 members of the House-Senate panel, which includes Northville's Republican Senator Robert Geake, will probe into the abuse charges at the center and other state facilities.

Last month, a series of newspaper articles disclosed widespread abuse and neglect. The stories prompted the transfer of center Director Dr. William Womack and the resignation of state Mental Health Director Dr. Donald Smith.

As the stories were being published, parents of Plymouth residents filed a federal court lawsuit against the mental health department. The suit sought an injunction against the abuses at the center.

U.S. District Judge Charles Joiner than ordered several wide-sweeping changes at the center including the hiring of 270 additional employees.

Last Wednesday, Joiner approved a committee of five monitors, each of whom will spend at least 20 hours a week at the center. They will be paid by the Department of Mental Health.

The monitors, who will work in teams of two, will have round-the-clock access to the facility and access "at all reasonable times" to resident and employee personnel records.

Employees are not required to answer any questions from the monitors, according to Joiner's order.

The monitors are Kenneth Ostrowski, a Detroit attorney who specializes in the handicapped; Michigan Nurses Association President Ann Zuzich; Lee Martin, special education director for Romulus schools; Sandra McClennen, special education assistant professor at Eastern Michigan University and a former center employee, and Evelyn Rogers, medical administrator at the Wayne County Jail.

Included on the joint legislative panel are State Senator Joseph Snyder, Dem. — St. Clair Shores, who staged a surprise visit at the center two weeks ago, and State Representative Charles Var-num, Rep. — Manistee, who led a move in the House for the removal of Mental Health Director Smith.

Moonlighting

4.6 million Americans hold two or more jobs . . . 600,000 more than in 1977

By CHRIS GOLEMBIEWSKI

Dr. Louis May arrived at his new greenhouse late on a chilly St. Patrick's Day morning to talk about his second career.

The birth of a baby at McPherson Community Health Center had detained the Howell M.D. "Sorry," he said "We had an anesthesia problem."

Then he bent down to pick up a tray of densely growing, hardy-looking baby tomato plants snuggled in the midst of 80 feet of vegetable and flower seedlings.

"Diseases of plants and people are really quite similar," May remarked. "These aren't so different occupations."

The doctor who helped put Howell on the map with his hybrid version of the Howell Honeysweet melon is one of more than 4.6 million Americans who hold two or more jobs — moonlight, that is.

Record numbers of workers now hold down multiple jobs — 600,000 more in May, 1977 than a year earlier, according to U.S. Department of Labor statistics.

Moonlighters give a variety of explanations for taking on second, even third occupations. Historically, Dracula probably had the most bizarre excuse for literally working by moonlight. Then there was Michael Landon, who early in his career, immortalized the lifestyle of the teenage werewolf on the silver screen.

These days, teenagers are more likely to work after school in a supermarket, discount store or burger restaurant for spending money.

Mushrooming inflation and a shaky economy are no doubt major factors in the trend toward working after dusk.

Nationally, one-third of multiple job holders in the 1977 survey reported that they held second jobs to meet expenses and an additional 5.3 percent to pay off debts. One-fifth said that they moonlighted because they enjoyed the work on their second jobs.

Dr May is obviously in this last category. He says raising fruits, vegetables and seedling plants for sale is "good diversion" and very related to his medical career.

His Howell melons are the pride of his agricultural project and he is often asked to speak on melon diseases because of his experiments in breeding better melons.

May works about 10 hours a week on his farm outside of Howell and enjoys digging into the soil and helping living things survive.

He sees it that others learn the rejuvenating benefits of horticulture, too. Calling it a "ministry that makes better people," May talked about his efforts in hortotherapy.

"Some kind of confidence is transferred along when you help make things grow," May said. "I've had schizoid Phi Beta Kappas working with me here who improve in a couple of weeks.

"It gets their roots back into the ground. Man is normally a ground animal," May feels. "He wasn't built to live on the 54th floor of the Plaza."

"I've had 200-300 kids on this farm who have learned to work, to function. A couple dozen went on to college who wouldn't have worked otherwise."

May likes the challenge of perfecting the melon and working on other plant disease problems, providing a change of pace yet parallel outlet for his scientific knowledge.

Plants, like people, he says, have emotional, respiratory, fungus, bacterial and viral problems. His assistants use surgical gloves to handle the tiny young plants growing in sterile soil.

"Melons are the most difficult crop to raise," May believes. Every year he experiments with a few new breeds from all over the world. "The 'father' of our melon is the PMR-45 from Mexico and the 'mother' is the Iriquois from New York state," he explained.

Michigan is one of the best places to grow melons, he bragged. It offers sandy soil, cool nights, high elevation and "less humidity than any other state east of the Mississippi in July and August."

Private businesses have developed around the availability of cheap part-time help. Entire hamburger empires and giant discount chains have been built with the aid of several shifts of moonlighters who can be scheduled seven days a week throughout long dawn-to-dusk business days.

Bob Lubic, manager of the TG & Y store in Northville Township, said 60 percent of his employees work part-time, 15-20 hours per week. "About 95 percent are high school or college students. Not many of them are married women," he said.

"But because the minimum wage is going up, we're going to try to hire more mature people. They want the job; the younger people just want the money."

Lubic thinks that older workers are more conscientious and will stay on the job longer. "Of my older employees, they say they want to work to get out of the house or because they need the money."

But, he added, company policy does not allow the hiring of those over 65 years of age.

According to the U.S. Labor Department, women now make up over one-quarter of all moonlighters. Increasingly accepted ideas about the independence of women probably play a part in the trend, as well as that desire "to get out of the house." But economic reasons can't be overlooked.

Among both men and women, the highest multiple job-holding rates are found among those in the prime working ages of 25 to 44 years — which are the prime buying years, too.

Economic reasons were cited in the national study more often by black dual job holders than white. Blacks were also much less likely than whites to report that they enjoyed the work on their second jobs.

There comes a time, as South Lyon Police Chief Joel Allen puts it, "when work becomes your whole life. You have to draw a line at how much to work. What good is buying a boat and a recreation vehicle if you never have time to use them or see your kids?"

He said his police department's patrolman contract contains an agreement that an officer shall not engage in other employment or private business that creates a conflict or infringes on the responsibilities of the police officer.

"This is one area we want to avoid problems with," Allen said. "We feel our policy is workable. Everyone has adjusted to it."

Allen said about four of eleven officers also work outside his department, but none involve a conflict of interest.

Situations which would, he said, include work as private investigators for insurance or security companies, eager for access to official computerized police files.

And the dilemma in private security is: where does police authority begin and private duty end?

Dale Berry, a South Lyon patrolman, agrees with his chief. Joel Allen, who said, "A day's work in police service tires you out. People don't usually work elsewhere unless they really want the money."

Berry said he had been in charge of the police force at Camp Dearborn until he was hired at South Lyon on June 1 and found it necessary to stay on at the camp on a part-time basis last summer "to ease out of it."

"But this job is too taxing," Berry said, "and a lot of overtime is available here in South Lyon," so that outside work is not necessary.

Another South Lyon officer is employed on a part-time basis as a patrolman for the village of Milford (eliminating the jurisdictional question). A third is similarly employed by the City of Northville and is assigned to Northville Downs racetrack, which reimburses the city.

A fourth man operates his own water softener company in his free time, Berry said.

Edward Madere, Brighton city manager, said the municipality had no specific policy about moonlighting, but the unwritten rule is that outside work should not affect one's job.

"We would expect the officer to come in when needed, and we've never had difficulty," Madere said he knew of no Brighton police with additional jobs with the exception of Lt. Jess Winters who enjoys freelance photography. Chief Eugene Ali, Madere noted, prefers that his officers devote their full energies to law enforcement.

Administrators in both Livingston and Oakland county government said that there were no official policies against moonlighting but that conflict of interest questions would be dealt with on an individual basis using other employee policies.

"Employees are free to do with their free time as they wish, as long as it doesn't interfere with their performance," said Vince Luzi, assistant personnel director for Oakland County. He said no informal survey had ever been taken to discover the number of persons who might be holding down second jobs.

Price Banks, internal services director for Livingston County felt that a number of county employees do moonlight on second jobs, but that information has never been recorded. Many work for private businesses, Banks believes.

An increasing segment of young professionals find they must moonlight in the occupations they love and have prepared for, because of the employment crunch in popular fields.

Artists, models, musicians and other entertainers, and, increasingly teachers and journalists, must take "day jobs" to get by while waiting for the right break.

One of those who makes ends meet with a combination of meal tickets is Pam Stansberry, a young Michigan State University grad who holds a degree in music.

She has waitressed, taught piano lessons and is now herself taking typing lessons — "just in case" — while entertaining as a bar singer and piano player at night.

Pam is now at the piano bar at Harold's In Between in Brighton "I don't really expect applause," she says. "But I like being onstage, so to speak."

Sometimes that's a better feeling than having money in the bank.

Dr. May....the Howell physician and melon expert

Astronomically
it's spring!

A special program entitled "Sights and Sounds of Spring" will be presented at the Nature Center of Kensington Metropark near Brighton/Milford on Sunday, April 9 at 9 a.m.

Naturalist Bob Hotaling said "Astronomical spring is here! But, spring is a gradual process — every plant and animal has its own time clock." By early April, many signs of spring may be seen and heard.

Join Naturalist Hotaling on a two-hour walk to celebrate the renewal of nature. Persons should have binoculars and since the trails may be muddy, have suitable footwear.

Advance registration is required (and the program is for families and individuals only).

This column is open to news of all breeds of horses and ponies. Send your questions, comments and horse show news to: "Sally Saddle", care of South
Lyon Herald, South Lyon, MI 48178.

The clinic will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Veterinarian Auditorium on the Michigan State campus in East Lansing.

Featured will be Sharon Saare of Santa Rosa, California, nationally known for her promotion and participation in the field of distance riding. She has authored books, helped produce films and slide presentations on trail riding and is a successful competitor and recognized judge of trail riding events.

The clinic is geared to the beginning and intermediate level riders so that they will have the basic knowledge required to begin conditioning and training their horses for the coming riding season.

Competitive trail riding is said to be the fast growing equestrian sport. It involves completing a marked course over trails and roads within a specified time limit. Judging is based on soundness, conditioning, manners and trail suitability of the horse and the horsemanship of the rider.

The clinic will also have MSU veterinarians on hand to discuss veterinary aspects of competitive trail riding. Ride information, examples of equipment, etc., will also be available.

tle of a 2-hour night walk to be held at the Nature Center area of Kensington Metropark near Brighton/Milford on Naturalist Steve Horn.

Many animals are extremely active during warm spring nights, including raccoons and opossums who are often seen leisurely searching for food and the songs of frogs can be heard from the ponds since this is their prime mating season. Sometimes, visitors will come across the lingering scent of a skunk.

AMERICANS are the most talkative people in the world.

U.S. residents used their 155 million telephones to make a record 210 billion local, long distance and overseas calls — more than 6,600 calls per second — in 1976, the centennial year of the invention on the telephone.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company reported these and other related statistics in its annual publication, "The World's Telephones." Based on information from more than 220 countries and territories in the world, the data are dated as of January 1, 1977 since it takes a year to gather and publish them.

The publication reports there are some 2.5 million telephones in the Detroit area — that's more phones than there are in nine out of 10 nations in the world.

Washington, D.C. and Southfield (Michigan) still maintain the number one and number two rankings as the cities with the greatest number of telephones for every 100 residents. The nation's capital had 145.8 telephones for every 100 residents and Southfield had 141 phones per 100 population.

Following on the list of cities with more telephones than people were Sweden, 114.9; Geelong, Australia, 110.4; San Francisco, 108.1; Fullerton, California, 106.7; Paris, France, 105.9; Palo Alto, California, 105; Zurich, Switzerland, 104.3; and Newport Beach, California, 103.8. All except Geelong and Paris had previously reported more telephones than people.

The world added 18.6 million telephones during 1976 for a year-end total of more than 398 million. This was a 4.9 percent increase over the previous year's total.

Japan had 48.4 million telephones, to rank a distant second behind the U.S. Third place went to the United Kingdom with 22 million while West Germany was fourth with 21 million. Russia was fifth with 18 million phones.

In terms of talking, France was second to the United States with more than 33 billion conversations during the year. Sweden was third with 18 billion.

GROUND BREAKING CEREMONIES for Bob Sellers Pontiac, Inc. has been slated for Thursday, April 6, at 11:45 a.m.

Sellers, who has operated his present dealership at 22520 Grand River in Detroit for the past six years, will be relocating at 38000 Grand River at Ten Mile in Farmington Hills.

Construction of the new Bob Sellers Pontiac facility will begin in April 1978 with completion scheduled for October 1978. The building site is located across from the Farmington Holiday Inn.

Sellers has been in the automotive retailing business for 12 years. Born in the Detroit area, he graduated from Redford High School and the University of Michigan. He resides with his family in Oakland County.

About his new Farmington Hills location, he says: "Although my present dealership in Detroit has experienced many good business years drawing satisfied customers from the entire metropolitan area, we are looking forward to providing the Farmington Hills area with the most modern highly efficient service center possible. We are presently operating out of five independent buildings and I feel having a new modern facility, to be located just off M-102, near the I-275 and I-696 interchange, will enable use to better serve our sales and service our customers."

Sellers, who is personally involved in the operation of the service department, said he believes that good service with the personal attention of management is the key to the success of a dealership.

Ed Chambliss, Assistant General Sales Manager of Pontiac Motor Division, said that the Pontiac Division of General Motors has been following the increased population trend in Western Oakland County for some time. "We are indeed pleased to announce that Bob Sellers Pontiac, presently one of the outstanding Tri-County Pontiac dealers, will be relocating in Farmington Hills in the fall of 1978."

PORTEC, INC. will have record sales for the first quarter 1978 while earnings will be about the same as last year because of severe weather and other problems, James A. Miller, chairman and president, said today.

Miller, speaking to members of the New York Society of Security Analysts, said Portec is not only rebounding from a substantial inventory adjustment at its Paragon Railcar Operations, but already has this unit operating profitably again.

"We did not expect to accomplish this turnaround until the second quarter," Miller pointed out. "Under new leadership, this operation achieved almost break-even results in February and will be profitable this month."

Net sales and other income for the first quarter in 1977 were $33,004,000 while restated net income a year ago was $652,000.

Severe weather, completion of a plant expansion and work build-up at Midwest Railcar Operations, plant expansion at RMC, and costs at Paragon, impacted unfavorably on 1978 first quarter results.

Tapping, sapping season arrives

Once upon a time — as legend has it — an Indian squaw was preparing venison in the clear sap from a maple tree. During the cooking process, she wed the sap to boil down and it formed a sweet syrup which her husband found delicious. At that time or the time used maple syrup extensively, tappers, eventually using their secret on to their neighbors.

The legend does not say whether the squaw's tribe was one native to Michigan, but as a result of her discovery Michigan is the fourth leading producer of maple syrup in the United States today.

And, tree tapping time in Michigan is a special time of the year, according to the Travel Bureau, Michigan Department of Commerce.

Maple trees produce sugar during the summer months. Some is used immediately in the growth process and some is stored for use during the winter months. As the days begin to warm, in late winter or early spring, the sap in the trees begins to move picking up some of the stored up sugar along the way. This is "harvest season" for Michigan "sugar bush" owners, and maple syrup producers.

The sweet sap is gathered by drilling holes into the trees and inserting a "spile" or spigot which allows the sap to drip freely into a container attached to the "spile."

Sap from the individual tree containers is usually collected by hand, poured into a gathering tank and transported to the sugarhouse. There the sap goes into an evaporator where it is boiled down into pure maple syrup.

When the sap is running, the collecting and boiling down process often goes continuously 24 hours a day.

Incidentally, if you think pure maple syrup seems a bit expensive, consider that a maple tree should be at least 40 years old with a diameter of 10 inches before it is tapped. Each tap of a tree will yield about 15 to 20 gallons of sap per season and it takes 30 to 50 gallons of sap to boil down into one gallon of pure syrup.

Old button box can be beginning of fun collection

"Every collector starts out as an accumulator. Then you say, 'Why do I like this?' and you begin to learn."

Evelyn Gibbons was talking about her button collecting, but her statement, as most antiquers know, applies to almost any collecting.

As she spoke to a winter meeting of the Baseline Questers in Northville, Mrs. Gibbons urged they consider ways to display unusual and pretty examples of old buttons. "Don't keep them in boxes," she urged.

An officer of the Plymouth-Northville Mayflower Chapter of the Button Collectors and member of the Michigan Button Society, Mrs. Gibbons has literally hundreds of old buttons.

Collectors, she said, specialize in different types and try to fill cards with a complete range of each kind.

Even old overall buttons, she illustrated, are collectible. Her collection includes examples of the Detroit Finck Company ones.

"Manufacturers thought so much of their products that they even put their names on these sturdy buttons," she noted.

"There probably are more black glass buttons around than any other type," she told the antiques study club, explaining that "there are too many to interest the serious button collector."

However, they do recall days of bodices that buttoned high. They also symbolized Victorian mourning. Black glass buttons were worn the first year after a death, with part-satinized ones of semi-mourning the second year and then satinized ones the third.

"It's possible to pay up to $750 for a single button," she related, mentioning that collections have been handled by the famous Park Bernet auction house.

The best buttons, she cited, are considered to be enamels and cloisonne. Some buttons are works of art, she continued, showing "picture" buttons that depicted a man in a swan from the opera, "The Swan Knight," and Pirouette.

While these buttons are choice and expensive, she said, others are hard to find simply because so many, like the china stencil ones, broke in the washing machine wringer.

"You may find a velvet-backed button in someone's button box," the speaker told the club, explaining that these were Victorian perfume buttons with scent to be dabbed on the velvet.

It was not women, but men, who typically had the best buttons, she stated.

"In Revolutionary times men wore their wealth in buttons of gold or silver set with diamonds and other jewels. The workmanship was equivalent to that of jewelry, and they were considered an ideal way to give a gift. Men customarily wore them on their vests fastened with toggles so they could be changed."

For most collectors old button boxes are the place "to find everything from aspirins to one-of-a-kinds," the speaker said, suggesting that a beginner might like to start collecting buttons on a special subject.

She displayed her own sheet of "owl" buttons, saying it represented 10 years of collecting.

Ships, trees, Christian symbols are other collectible subjects.

Collectible buttons of the future being produced today, Mrs. Gibbons suggested, may be the well-made buttons

New Life Member scholarship tops local grants

By JEANDAY

A $650 scholarship, largest to be offered locally to a graduating senior at Northville High, is announced by the Life Members of Northville Mothers' Club. Applications for the scholastic aid now are available in the high school counseling office, Margie Davis, club scholarship chairman, reports.

The Life Member group organized officially just a little more than a year ago in February, 1977, electing Ruth Mary Atchison, president; Dotty Bach, vice-president and treasurer; and Nancy Wistert, recording secretary. The group's next meeting on May 9 with Jeanne Ambler will be the annual election meeting.

As former Mothers' Club members who had been in that organization at least 10 years, the Life Members decided they would meet informally only four times a year and that their goal would be to give a scholarship to a graduating senior, a project often mentioned through the years.

After a successful talent auction and Christmas party, the goal was realized and scholarship terms set up by Mrs. Davis and her committee of Mrs. Bach and Terry Secord. Since it was to be based on financial need, the Life Members voted to establish the scholarship this year as a single large one to be most helpful to a recipient.

Diesel scholarship doubled

Jack Wickens, high school counselor for seniors, in confirming the new grant, adds that he's delighted that such donations are on the increase. Last year, he says, Cummins Diesel gave its first scholarship. Recipient Robert Oginski who was in the high school automotive program reported he "really benefitted" from the training. Apparently Cummins' head, Von Boll was pleased, too, as this year he is giving two scholarships. Wickens points out that there are all too few such non-academic awards available.

Deadline set for Woman's Club grant

Northville Woman's Club is continuing its grant-in-aid gift to a graduating senior. Glad Evans, scholarship chairman, says the club's annual grant is posted in the counseling office and stresses that boys as well as girls are most welcome to apply. At least a B- average is required. Deadline for application is May 1.

Branch offers two scholarships

Northville Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association announced in February that it is returning to awarding single-year scholarships rather than four-year renewable ones. This year two one-year awards of $360 each are offered. Polly Kelly, scholarship chairman, hopes that graduating seniors, boys or girls, attending private schools but living within the boundaries of the Northville school district, are aware that they also may apply. She may be contacted at 349-3209.

NEA gives first Berryman scholarship

Northville Education Association this year also is offering two scholarships. A George Berryman scholarship for a graduating senior interested in music is being established in the name of the popular junior high band and music instructor who was forced to retire for health reasons.

For several years the association has given the Diana Lance scholarship in memory of the late mathematics teacher. It is awarded for academic achievement and in terms of need, association president Barbara LeBoeuf explains. Both the Lance and Berryman scholarships are for $500 each.

BPW to honor outstanding senior

Northville Business and Professional Women's Club is continuing its annual scholarship, Louise Cutler, president, announces. Applications now are available in the high school counseling office for the $200 award which is to be given to an outstanding graduating senior. The club judges its applicants by number, considering work experience, activities and grade point. Mrs. Cutler points out that even judges do not know the name of the winner until after the judging.

Class of 1973 plans reunion

First reunion of Northville High School Class of 1973 is set for July 1 at the South Lyon farm of Ken Zeuner, planners report. Chris Johnson, who was president of his graduating class and now is a member of the Northville school board, is heading up arrangements. Dennis McLaughlin is serving as treasurer for the reunion, which will be $10 a person for those attending.

Letters are going out to graduates of the class which had about 300 members. Addresses of anyone who has moved are being sought. Chris may be contacted at 349-5298; Dennis at 349-0045.

Julie's $250 richer

Northville's Junior Miss, Julie McDaniel, was singled out from among the 36 girls participating in the 20th Michigan Junior Miss Program February 18 in Pontiac to receive a scholastic achievement scholarship from the City of Pontiac. It was presented to Julie by Mayor Wallace Holland of Pontiac. The award originally was posted at $150 but had been increased; so Julie is to receive $250. She is the daughter of the George McDaniels of 212 South Ely. She plans to attend University of Michigan.

of the J.H.B. firm. The burrwood buttons of the 1940's should be saved, she added.

Fur coat buttons from the 1950's, she continued, are among the most elaborate.

"Remember those black monkey fur coats with jeweled buttons in pronged settings?"

By contrast, she said, button collectors also seek "diminutives." By strict regulation of the button society these must measure less than three-eighths of an inch to be so considered. Many are flower designs.

In addition to preparing cards attractively for competition, button collectors, she said, "do a lot of fun projects."

What kind of fun projects?

Mrs. Gibbons displayed a vest with 700 white buttons sewn all over front and back. "The button king of London in 1934," she compared, "had a suit of 22,000."

Trays for competition are precise as to quality, shape, condition and size, she explained.

"It's a hobby that encourages learning rather than having a money motive," she stressed. "If it were not for collectors, much of any history would be destroyed."

Cold hunt

Icy cold weather and a change in location due to flooding failed to deter hundreds of youngsters who happily participated in the annual Easter Egg Hunt sponsored by the Northville Jaycees Saturday morning. The children were divided into five age groups in their hunt for candy eggs, many of them specially marked and entitling their finders to special prizes. Jaycees were forced to relocate the hunt in the Edward Hines Parkway when flooding earlier in the week inundated the section of the parkway in Cass Benton. The hunt was moved a half-mile south in the township. In the picture above some of the pre-schoolers scramble for eggs as their parents look on in the background.

WHAT SHOULD A CHILD BE TOLD ABOUT DEATH?

Do you explain Grandpa's death with a fairy tale? Do you say, that God called him away? Or do you answer truthfully, and simple, so that the child may relate his grandfather's death to familiar things, flowers, for example, which live, grow, wither and finally die?

We believe the flower example can be understood by the child because it relates to things he's seen and can grasp. "Flowers," you may explain, don't live a long time but we like them while we have them. Grandpa lived a long time and you and he had many good times together. But, like the flowers, he too, died. We will remember him with love, won't we?

The child needs to understand that what has happened is a natural course of events—like the seasons and the rising and setting of the sun. He comes closer to his family through such honest involvement, maturing as he finds his own sadness is shared and understood.

Your questions and comments on this and other subjects are welcome—in private or publicly through this column.

Mizpah circle to view Greenfield Village film

Mizpah Circle of King's Daughters will see a color film, "When America was Young," following its business meeting at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday at Northville United Methodist Church.

Augie Chartier of Greenfield Village will show the film which chronicles the restoration of a 1913 merry-go-round, a colonial military muster, a country fair and other village events. Members of the King's Daughters thank those who attended Good Friday services at the Methodist Church as the offering makes possible the circle's continued charitable work in the community.

The circle also has state obligations and contributes to the King's Daughters Home in Redford, to Camp Missauki at Lake City and Mott Children's Hospital in Ann Arbor. At Christmas time members give money, toys and knitted garments to the hospital.

Laura Shaw on retail tour with Ferris students

Laura Shaw of Northville was among fifteen Ferris State College retail fashion merchandising students who got a behind-the-scenes view of the fashion retailing business in New York City during spring break.

The students flew out of Grand Rapids Sunday, February 26, accompanied by Robert Rock, head of the marketing department, and display teacher Alice Bennett. They spent the week learning about the New York fashion world including the manufacturing of fabrics, design studios, retailing, soft goods and showrooms as part of a Ferris class.

Several places were visited each day, such as Thomas Textiles; Pattie O'Neil, a ladies' sportswear maker; and Vera, designer who is famous for scarf designs.

The 15 co-eds got a view of what goes on behind the scenes with a Fifth Avenue retailer and in the J.C. Penney offices. They spent one afternoon at the "Seventeen" magazine offices learning about its retail promotion. They also attended a presentation by the Ladies Garment Workers Union.

As the highlight of the trip, each student spent a day with a resident buyer in the working market. These buyers represent stores throughout the country. This gave a view of what being a buyer is all about. And many of the fashion merchandising students will become buyers.

Those who went on the trip were required to register for it along with their regular classes.

Piano recital stars three

Loriann Steeber presented three of her students in a piano recital in her Northville home on Sunday, March 19.

Those students performing for their mothers and grandmothers were Beth Lamana, Dante Lamana and Sandra Donnan.

'Someone to talk with'

Program to aid senior citizens

County Commissioners Mary E. Dumas and R. William Joyner have announced the implementation of a Tele-Care/Vial of Life/Early Alert Program in the City of Northville and Northville Township.

The program, sponsored by the Wayne County Office on Aging in cooperation with the City and Township, is aimed at senior citizens.

"Having someone talk with an elderly person daily to check on his or her well being can decrease the senior's sense of isolation," said Commissioner Dumas.

Added Commissioner Joyner: "I am encouraging all residents who feel that they need this service to call for information about the program."

Essentially, the service helps those older persons who live alone or are temporarily alone to live independently, explained Mrs. Dorothy Jane Gaitskill, program coordinator.

The Tele-Care service is a telephone reassurance program operating a five-day-a-week personal contact with a built-in emergency response plan. A phone call is made each day to a subscriber by a Tele-Care worker, Mrs. Gaitskill said. If the phone call is not answered, a sequence of emergency actions is undertaken, she continued.

For example, "A neighbor may be called to check on the senior or the police may be called," said Mrs. Gaitskill.

"If a medical crisis is discovered, the senior citizen's physician will be contacted and appropriate medical action taken," the coordinator said.

The Vial of Life component is an emergency information program which uses a container to store vital medical and personal information in one common location in all households — the refrigerator. This information will be used in a medical crisis when an individual who is alone may not be able to communicate with medical authorities.

The Early Alert component is an emergency response system through which the U.S. Post Office notifies city hall when elderly patrons registered with the post office are not picking up their mail and may need assistance.

Mrs. Dumas feels the program "helps meet the needs of older persons who wish to continue to live independently."

"Through this program, we hope to eliminate some of the dangers that living alone entails."

One of the most important elements of the Tele-Care program is the firm commitment of all people involved. Telephone aides, who are senior citizens themselves, are well-trained, reliable, and dedicated. In addition, the aides will have knowledge of other community services, according to Commissioner Joyner.

Finally, the Office on Aging has received the full cooperation of local police agencies as well as postal authorities.

The important details are:

1 Senior citizens of Northville City and Township may directly request the service or they may be referred by a concerned relative, friend, or neighbor.

2. Essential information about health problems of the senior subscriber will be obtained. Also, the name and phone number of a friend or relative and the name and phone number of the family physician will be registered with the service. All information will be held in confidence.

3. Regular telephone calls are made at appointed times. The time will be determined by the subscriber.

4. The senior citizen must notify the service if for any reason they will be unable to be contacted by the service.

5. A carefully worked out emergency plan will go into effect immediately if the call by the service is not answered.

Similar programs are in operation in other Wayne County communities.

For more information, residents of Northville City should call 349-1300. Township residents should call 459-1710.

If you're losing interest in interest rate claims, try 7.75%.

We think a lot of people have been confused for a long time about savings interest rates. Lately, we think they've become more confused by the numerous attempts to "straighten out the confusion."

So here is a simple fact. we pay 7.75% annual interest, guaranteed for the full term, on a six-year certificate savings account; no place pays a higher rate, and many places (possibly including the one where you're saving) are not allowed to pay as much.

To earn this high interest—which is an effective annual rate of 7.98%—just deposit $1,000 or more and leave it in the account for the full six years.

Obviously, it's not the account to have if you're saving up for this summer's vacation or September college tuition. But it just might be the account to have for your dream vacation, or for college tuition for a child who's now twelve, or even as a supplement to your retirement fund.

Type of Account	Minimum Amount	Annual Rate	Effective Annual Rate	How and When Paid
One-Year Certificate*	$1,000	6.50%	6.66%	Paid and compounded quarterly
2½-Year Certificate*	$1,000	6.75%	6.92%	Paid and compounded quarterly
4-Year Certificate*	$1,000	7.50%	7.71%	Paid and compounded quarterly
6-Year Certificate*	$1,000	7.75%	7.98%	Paid and compounded quarterly

*Federal regulations require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal from these accounts.

What's more, this account, as you can see in the chart, is just one of many certificate savings plans we offer, all designed to help you have more money than you started with. Any of these accounts—even more than one—can be opened in addition to your First Federal Regular Savings Account. In fact, our Regular Savings Account is how many people get the $1,000 for the certificate account.

Come and talk with us about your savings goals. We'll help you plan how much to put where and for how long. If you already have a regular savings account or maturing certificate somewhere else, just bring your passbook with you and we'll have the funds transferred to First Federal. You'll find it pays to do that.

We know what money is for.

State may lose juvenile funding, Dumas warns

An all-out statewide effort is underway to remove most status offenders from secure juvenile detention facilities by June 1 — or the State of Michigan will lose millions of dollars in federal juvenile justice funds for next year.

That's the message from Wayne County Commissioner Mary E. Dumas who sits on Wayne County's Juvenile Justice Executive Committee and the Michigan Juvenile Justice Advisory Committee.

Dumas said Wayne County stands to lose some $3 million in federal funds unless "the entire state moves fast to establish alternative programs and additional youth shelters."

Dumas (R-Livonia) made the announcement after attending the recent National Advisory Conference on Juvenile Delinquency in Reston, Virginia, and a Wayne County-Michigan Juvenile Justice Advisory Committee meeting held in Detroit.

"We were told that all states receiving funds under the 1974 Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act (JJDP) must meet a federal requirement that calls for a 75 percent reduction of all status offenders housed in secure detention facilities by June 1," Dumas explained. She said reductions would be based on figures for June, 1976.

"The requirement is aimed at separating status offenders (who are youngsters charged as runaways, truants and with other minor offenses not applicable to adults) from juveniles who have committed serious crimes," she said. "In addition, it's the government's way of saying 'find alternative treatment and help for your youth who commit non-criminal offenses.'"

"The urgency of the county's situation was discussed at the meeting in the Veterans Memorial Building," she stated. "The last official head count showed 101 status offenders in Wayne County detention facilities. To comply with the Act, we must have no more than 30 status offenders in such facilities when June 1 rolls around." (Wayne County's June, 1976 count was 120, calling for a reduction of 90 youth.)

Dumas said the county was averaging seven new admissions a day.

"I don't think we can make it — but I think if we show a clear and concerted effort to meet the federal deadline, along with actual progress, they will show some understanding," she declared.

But, she warned, if other states are all meeting their deadlines, and Michigan is one of a few states that is not, "I think they'll deny us funding next year."

Dumas said that other big, urban counties in Michigan were also "in trouble as far as having a lack of alternative programs available."

"If just one county defaults on the requirement, the entire state will lose funds — so we must work together," she stated.

Dumas said the Tuesday meeting produced "new concern and commitment" to establish the necessary alternative programs. Representatives from local police departments, youth bureaus, the Wayne County Intermediate School District and other school districts, the mental health board, employment agencies and other community and private youth agencies attended the conference.

Counties must establish alternative education programs (specifically directed at problem children who are normal but who don't fit into a regular school classroom), new counseling programs directed at the families and the status offenders and new mental health programs.

"Private agencies like the Boy Scouts and YMCA are encouraged to step forward and claim these JJDP dollars," she said. "But they must be willing to change traditional attitudes of catering to just the nice kids — and try to help the troubled ones."

Dumas said that the National Conference in Reston was the "first time all 50 states sent representatives of state advisory councils to a national meeting."

She said it produced a "hot, debate" on the government's insistence to disallow funding for any public or private facility that has "a mixed bag of kids, including delinquents and status offenders on the same grounds, even though the youth may be physically separated."

She said the protest was so loud over this requirement that John Rector, associate administrator of the federal Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, promised he'd review the guidelines in April following publication in the Federal Register.

In the meantime, she said, a lot of hard work lies ahead.

In addition to Dumas, Wayne County Commissioners Jackie L. Currie (D-Detroit) and Martha Scott (D-Highland Park) and Juvenile Court Judge Gladys Barsamian are members of the Wayne County Juvenile Justice Executive Committee.

The committee must approve the spending of all juvenile justice dollars in Wayne County.

That's Bob... Sellin!

Pardon the pun. But our photographer just couldn't resist taking a picture of Rotarian Bob Sellen "sellin" Easter lilies. The buyer in this instance is Terry Junod. The annual Easter lily sale is conducted by Northville Rotarians to raise funds for the Wayne County Easter Seal Society's program for crippled children and adults. The two-day sale netted approximately $600, reports Co-Chairmen Philip Ogilvie and C. A. Smith.
