Council approves 1.5 mill tax increase

A record high budget calling for a 1.5 mill tax increase was approved by the Northville City Council Monday night, despite pleas by three citizens that the outlay be rolled back.

Council took its action following a public hearing at which only E. Sam Kunst, Arthur J. Adams and Scottie Strachan commented — the same three who have raised objections at previous annual budget hearings.

The new millage rate was fixed at 14.4 mills, up from 12.9 last year and 10.8 the previous year. Since 1971, the millage rates have been 10.3, 10.2, 8.1, 10.3, 9.9, 10.8, 12.9 and now 14.4.

Maximum under the law which council may levy without a vote of the people is 20 mills.

Consensus of the three objecting citizens was that the council must call a halt to tax increases or face "the day of reckoning" when the overtaxed public takes measures into its own hands.

By itself, the city tax hike may not be dramatic, they reasoned, but when faced with all other governmental demands on their pocketbook the public is reaching or exceeding the limit of its capability.

"I think you ought to consider how badly the school millage was defeated and take a hint from that," said Strachan. (The recent school millage increase proposal went down by a two-to-one margin).

He and the others took council for task for its overall tax levy increase of 18 percent (including the millage increase as well as the state equalized valuation increase), which exceeds substantially the general inflationary rate.

Total expenditures for the 1978-79 fiscal year (beginning July 1) are pegged at $1,700,266 — up from the $1,509,340 budget figure for 1977-78 and up from $1,596,974 estimated actual expenditure for the year.

The higher millage rate reflected by the new budget is expected to generate $750,380, based on the estimated 1978 SEV of $52,109,700.

A mill of city taxes is $50,650 in taxes. The 1.5 mill increase represents $75,975.

Referring to the citizens' comparison of the percentage of increase compared with the inflationary rate, officials noted that the bulk of the projected budget increase can be laid at the doorstep of two factors not under the control of the council — increase in insurance costs and the split in the former jointly operated fire department.

Insurance premiums alone, pointed out City Manager Steven Walters, will go up by two-thirds of a mill. As for the fire department, he noted that with the separation (the township established its own department) the city had to purchase a new fire truck (paid for over several years at $16,000 annually) and other equipment. This increase is put at .53 mill.

If these costs are subtracted from the 1.5 mill increase, only about .3 of a mill is left for other inflationary increases,

Fenton's first woman mayor, Lucy Brabon, visits Northville Monday for Michigan Week

Michigan Week guests

Visiting mayor's a woman

Lucille (Lucy) Brabon, the first woman mayor ever in the City of Fenton, will be a special guest in Northville Monday for the traditional Michigan Week festivities.

The Fenton mayor and her husband, William, and Fenton Councilman and Mrs. Harry Bourne will be hosted during the mayor's exchange program by Northville officials.

Editor of the Tri-County News, one of the two newspapers in Fenton, Mrs. Brabon served one term on the Fenton city council before being elected mayor in a protest campaign largely targeted at slowness of rebuilding downtown Fenton following an urban renewal program.

Both the mayor and Councilman Bourne are controversial figures in their community and have been embroiled in political battles ever since being elected. Currently, Bourne is the mayor pro-tem.

Mrs. Brabon is author of a personal column of comment appearing weekly in the publication she edits.

Mayor Brabon was elected November 8, 1977. She has lived 34 years of her 44 in Fenton where she and her family live at 613 Park Street. A 1951 graduate of Fenton High School, she has been married to her husband for 24 years and is the mother of four children, Teresa, 23; Scott, 21; Christine, 17, and Rachel, 13.

She has been employed by the Tri-County News for eight and a half years and credits her newspaper affiliation with her close involvement in city government.

She is a member of St. John's Catholic Church, American Legion Auxiliary, Women's International Bowling Congress, former Girl Scout leader, past historian at Fenton's State Road Elementary, state legislative representative in the Business and Professional Women's Clubs and a board member of Adopt-A-Pet, Incorporated.

Mayor Brabon is a member of the Fenton city planning commission, museum board, community center board of directors, treasurer of Genesee County Small Cities Association, current chairman of Region IV, Michigan Municipal League, and director-at-large for Michigan on the National Board of American Small Cities Association.

The Fenton mayor enjoys bowling, all kinds of music, watching her youngest daughter pitch on St. John's softball team in the senior girls' league, and

Teachers, sports face ax

The Northville school board is prepared to lay off 25 teachers, eliminate junior high school and senior high school busing, and drop all extracurricular activities including sports if both June millage issues fail.

The $372,000 in cuts would mean five-hour days in grades 7-12, higher pupil-teacher ratios throughout the district and "devastating" reductions in the classes and activities offered to students, according to school administrators.

The board said Monday night that such actions would be necessary if voters fail to approve a 2.6-mill tax hike which is needed to maintain the present program.

A second issue for 2.9 additional mills to reinstate previous cuts is also on the June 12 ballot.

On April 29, school district voters soundly defeated the two issues when they were combined in a 5.5-mill package.

Earlier this month, the board decided to spell out the ramifications of a June millage defeat in contrast to what President John Hobart has termed a "non-threatening" campaign prior to the April vote.

Without a millage increase, the district will be $372,000 shy of funding this year's program in 1978-79 but the board put its unofficial approval on about $600,000 in cuts Monday night.

The additional amount is in anticipation of reduced state aid for students who may move out because of program cuts and to cover unemployment com-

NEWS BRIEFS

SUMMER HOURS will begin at Northville Public Library after Memorial Day. It will be closed on Monday, May 29, for the holiday and then will be open on the following schedule: Monday through Thursday, noon to 8 p.m.; Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and closed Saturday.

MEMORIAL DAY parade plans, originally calling for the parade and cemetery services to take place Sunday morning, have been changed to Monday, May 29 at the suggestion of the city council. Council saw a conflict with church services and church traffic. Details of the parade and services are to be announced by Northville's veterans groups next week.

A RESOLUTION supporting the position of David Woodsum, president of Lexington Commons Association, that traffic speed on Eight Mile Road between Taft and Beck roads be reduced to 40 MPH "to coincide with the limit between Taft and Sheldon," has been adopted by the city council. Woodsum had urged the reduction in a letter to the Oakland County Road Commission, which has jurisdiction over that portion of Eight Mile.

CONTRACT for the widening of Hutton Street near Main and surfacing of the municipal parking lot at Hutton and Main has been awarded to the low bidder, Morrison Company, at $77,742. The city received three bids, all within earlier costs estimates and all within a few hundred dollars of each other.

THE CITY has pledged $1,000 to the Northville Jaycees to help underwrite the cost of the Fourth of July parade and fireworks — provided a matching amount is contributed by the township. Last year the city and township each contributed $750 for this purpose.

SILVER SPRINGS Elementary School is the site for Monday night's Northville board of education meeting. The 7:30 p.m. meeting will likely have a discussion of budget cuts outlined by the school board if the June millage fails. The future of Movement Education in the district is also on the agenda.

Area Newsbeat

BRIGHTON—The man who has had a virtual strangle hold on the job of representing Livingston County in the Michigan House of Representatives — Republican Thomas G. Sharpe — has announced he will not seek another term. Sharpe, 61, has represented the county for 16 years.

HARTLAND—Boards of education have the right to set and enforce school rules and the issue of school discipline does not belong in the courts. That's the upshot of a circuit court ruling that said the school board here was within its rights for expelling a 13-year-old student for possession of marijuana.

BRIGHTON—What must have once seemed like just a pipe dream is now a reality — a new athletic conference, featuring Brighton, Howell, Hartland, Pinckney, Novi and possibly other schools, will begin competition in the fall of 1979.

SOUTH LYON—The high school here has begun a search for new head coaches in two major prep sports, football and basketball. Tom Wheatley, the state's Class B football coach of the year in 1977, has accepted a job in Phoenix, Arizona, and Bill Thomas has been forced to resign because of recent unsuccessful basketball seasons.

SOUTH LYON—Fifteen to 20,000 people are expected to be living in the city here by the end of the century, according to estimates of the city manager.

SOUTH LYON—The school board extended Superintendent Jack Meeder's contract one year by a unanimous vote. The decision gives Meeder a three-year contract which runs to July 1, 1981. Conditions of Meeder's contract and pay are to be determined later, according to the board president.

NOVI—Should there be high rise buildings in the City of Novi? That's a question city council will be debating in the weeks ahead, although no specific date has yet been established for the discussion.

NOVI—On a 4-3 vote the city council has endorsed the recommendation of the new fire chief, Art Lenaghan, to reject a proposal to join a regional fire cooperative.

WOLVERINE LAKE—An election date on whether Commerce and Wolverine Lake Village should incorporate to form a new city probably will be set by the State Boundary Commission at its June 28 meeting.

Constable is only one to file in township

With only 13 days remaining to file nominating petitions, so far only one person has filed to seek elective office in Northville Township's August primary election.

Township Constable James Schroat has filed to seek re-election, according to Township Clerk Clarice Sass, who said she also intends to seek re-election.

In addition, Mrs. Sass said, nominating petitions have been taken out by Supervisor Wilson Grier and Treasurer Richard Henningsen.

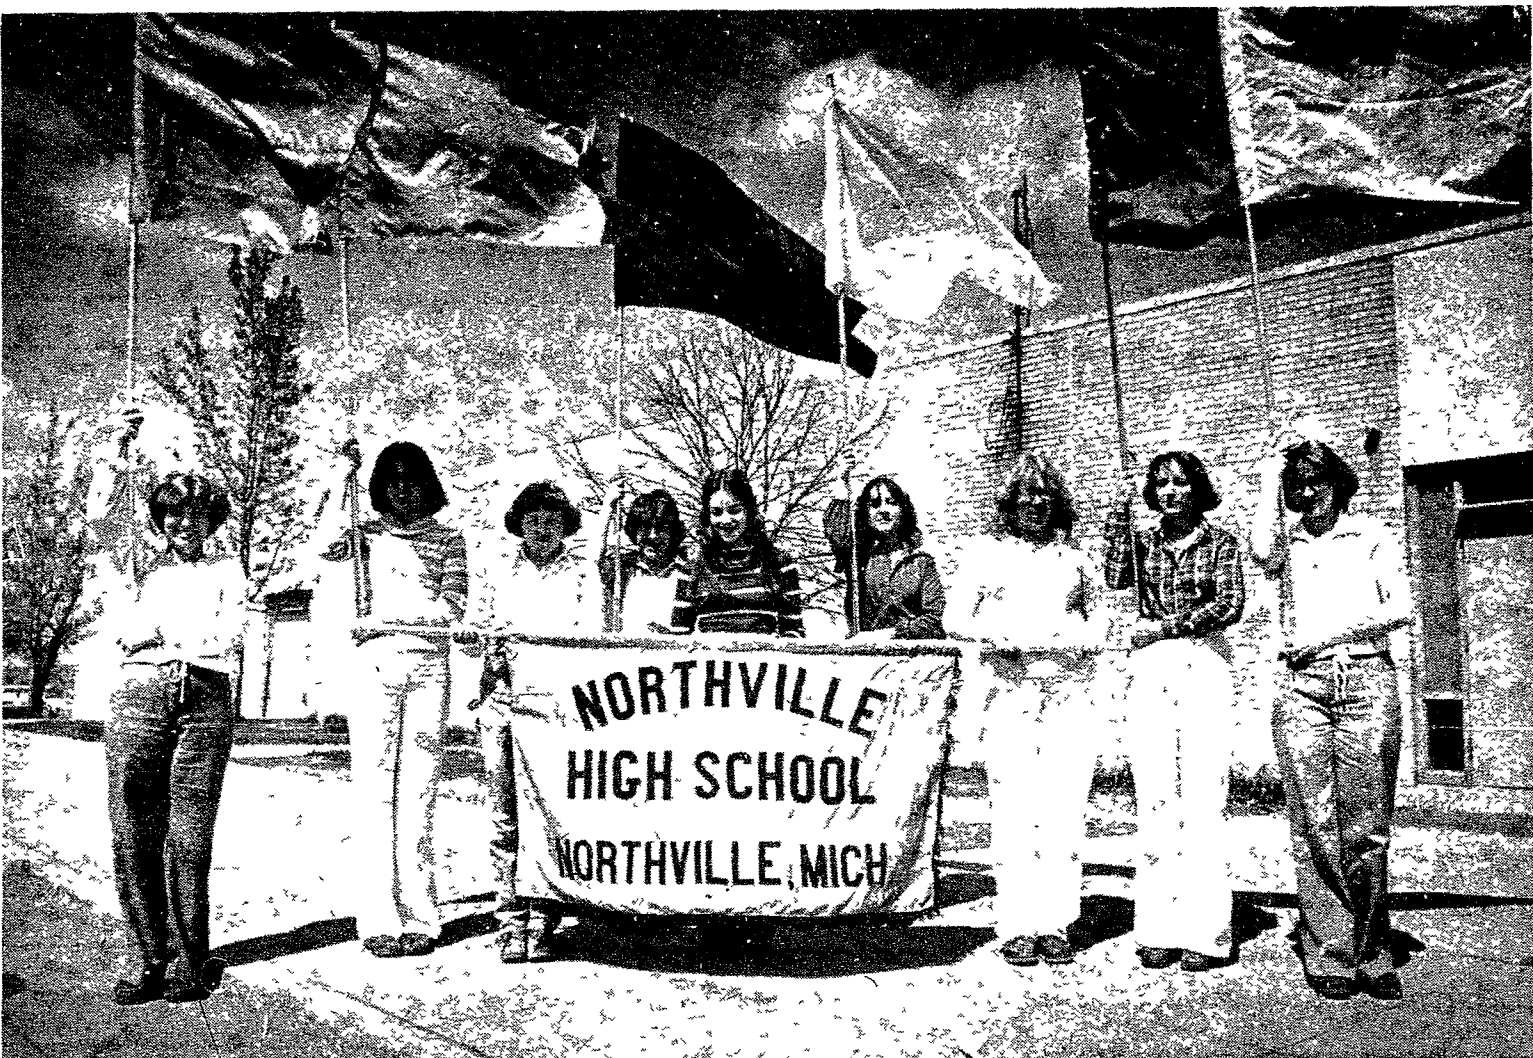

Positions to be filled in the August primary include: township supervisor, clerk, treasurer, constable and two trustees. Persons wishing to run for these seats have until 4 p.m. Tuesday, June 6, to file nominating petitions.

Petitions are available at the township offices.

Trustees James Nowka and Mark Lysinger hold the two-year trustee positions to be filled this year. Nowka told The Record there is a "good possibility" he will seek re-election; Lysinger could not be reached for comment.

According to Clerk Sass, persons wishing to become Republican candidates in the August primary are required to file petitions bearing a minimum of 13 signatures and a maximum of 48. Those wishing to run as Democrats are required to submit no less than 50 signatures and no more than 76.

Northville Township offices are open from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Beginning May 30, Clerk Sass said, township office hours will be from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Show's approaching

With the annual ASHAM-Kiwanis horse show rapidly approaching, some of the handicapped youngsters who directly benefit from show proceeds, feed Ramjet, a nine-year-old gelding owned by the Donald Abrams of 19260 Clement Road. The Abrams' stallion, Gai Torero, will be shown by Dr. James Rooker in the upcoming horse show, which will be held at Northville Downs over the Memorial Day weekend. The show will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday, May 26-28. Proceeds from the show, one of the largest of its kind in the Midwest, are used by Northville Kiwanians to aid local handicapped children's programs. Kiwanis club chairman of the show is David Ryan of D&D Floor Covering, Northville.

Cabbage Town Association

Name out of our past revived

A name out of Northville's past is being revived.

At 4 p.m. Sunday, the first meeting of a new organization called itself Cabbage Town Residents' Association will be held at the Mill Race Historical Village.

"Cabbage Town" is the name that 75 years ago was tagged on that area of Northville located northeast of Center and Dunlap streets.

The association is including within its boundary that area roughly bounded by Eight Mile Road, Main Street, Center Street and Griswold Road.

It has been formed "in an effort to create a greater sense of community among residents of this area," according to the association steering committee, "and to ensure that the surrounding Northville community realizes the potential of this district whose character has changed dramatically over the last few years as a result of an influx of civic-minded families."

Members of the steering committee are George M. and Jenny Patak, Donald and Heather Fee, and Kenneth and Jean Harrison.

The area represented by the association, they point out, is "full of quaint homes, Northville history and lots of friendly concerned residents."

Purpose of Sunday's meeting will serve as a "get-acquainted" session for potential association members as well as dealing with the current Rayson Street zoning issue.

Lone qualification for attendance is residence within the Cabbage Town boundaries, they point out. People with questions about the association may contact the Pataks at 349-4090.

Although he was unable to determine the origin of the name, Jack Hoffman in his book, "Northville... the First Hundred Years", said it might have been coined because George Rayson, whose wife was killed by an icicle falling from a neighbor's house, grew cabbages in the area.

It was Rayson for whom Rayson Street was named. His old home still stands on the street.

Residents of the area years ago didn't like the name, Cabbagetown, so the then editor of The Record conducted a tongue in cheek poll for new names.

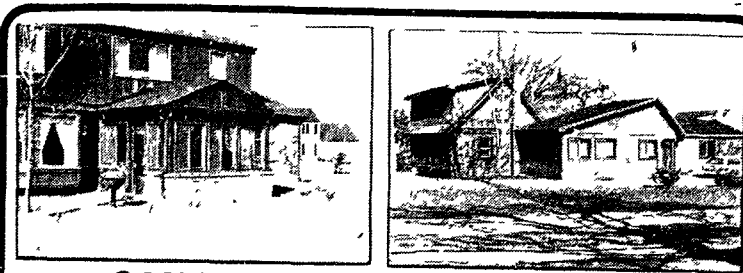

"And in they poured — by ones and twos — until a variety of names had been nominated," said the book. "Finally, the name 'Northside' was announced as the winner, edging out second place 'Pleasant Valley'. And trailing way behind was 'Dubuartown'."

"Cabbagetown, promised Editor (Frank) Neal would thereafter be called Northside. And so it was. Although not all residents were thrilled with the name, some insisting that 'Pleasant Valley' was the better name, everyone agreed it was a vast improvement over Cabbagetown. Said one old codger in a letter to Editor Neal:

"Even the polysyllabic name of North latitude-forty-two-and one-half degrees, though rather long is vastly better than that of the kitchen-garden vegetable which has been unanimously rejected."

Rejected until now.

Everywhere board looked, slashing budget will hurt

For the 400 who attended Friday night's first-ever band awards banquet at the high school, it was the best of times midst the worst of times.

For even while they are applauding a highly successful year, many feel that the Northville music future faces an inevitable downward slide.

They believe this because past and proposed budget cuts take band out of the lower grades which feed the high school programs.

Budget cuts eyed by the board should June's two millage issues fail would not only eliminate junior high school band, but they would also preclude after-school activities by the jazz band, marching band, wind ensemble, orchestra and choral.

All extra-curricular programs would be eliminated if voters turn down a millage hike as they have four times in five tries since 1975.

Other casualties include the fall and spring plays, the newly-revived forensics teams, cheerleading and pom pom squads, the high school newspaper and yearbook, the safety patrol and all clubs.

All sports, from junior high school track to varsity football, also face the budget axe despite warnings of dire consequences from building and central office administrators.

Proposed cuts are severe

Compensation claims that may total more than $100,000.

In addition to teachers, a number of other school employees including custodians, kitchen workers, bus drivers and clerical staff face lay offs.

One administrative position is also on the chopping block. It will be either the administrative assistant for operations, an assistant high school principal, the curriculum coordinator or the special education coordinator.

Superintendent Raymond Spear, whose original recommendation to the board did not contain any administrative cuts, said the positions should be eliminated for financial reasons only.

"To do it because you think the public needs administrators' blood" would be a mistake, he said.

The severe cuts considered by the board will require more not less administrative responsibility, said Spear.

The loss of 25 teaching positions would mean that some Northville teachers who have been in the district since 1974 would be laid off next fall, according to Northville Education Association President Barbara Boeuf.

"In no way should the entire extra-curricular package be cut," wrote Assistant High School Principal and Athletic Director Eddy McCloud in an April memo.

"The effect is devastating not only to the school population but the entire community. As (Director of Instruction) Nancy Soper stated at our April 4 Ad Staff meeting, it takes five years to fully recover."

Board members debated alternatives Monday night — ranging from a partial across-the-board reduction to scrapping the more expensive athletics but keeping the rest of the extra-curricular program.

The only consensus, however, was complete elimination.

Some board members wanted to cut as much as possible before laying off teachers. Others were reluctant to cut some activities in favor of other. And there was also the feeling that people would be more supportive of a tax hike if they knew what's on the line.

No matter where the board looked Monday night, it was bound to hurt somebody.

"Eighty percent of our budget is people (salaries and fringe benefits)," said President John Hobart. "Somewhere, we are going to have to get the layoffs."

"We're starting with teachers again," complained trustee Marjorie Sliger. "We're going to have to take (lay off) some, but let's not start there."

As it turns out, the board is anticipating it will lay off at least 25 teachers, a high school counselor and a librarian and several other school employees.

This, even though the entire $111,000 for extra-curricular activities has been scrapped and several other money-saving alternatives were debated.

The busing program was one area that several board members thought was expendable even though Superintendent Raymond Spear reminded them that four Romulus board members were recalled for making a similar decision.

The board settled on a hoped-for $30,000 savings by stopping junior high and high school busing. Dropping the entire transportation program would save another $60,000 but the majority of the board thought it would be too hazardous for elementary-aged children.

The end result of three hours of debate Monday was that the board was looking at virtually the exact number of teacher layoffs recommended by Spear and his administrative staff a month ago.

Principal Aune.

He recommended a partial reduction which would save some of the activities in the high school where he said there were a "disproportionate portion" of the cuts.

In addition to teachers, the high school will also lose one of four counselors and one of two librarians.

The estimated saving from eliminating extra-curricular programs is $111,000 — $84,000 in sports and the rest in non-athletic activities.

The decision to limit busing to elementary students was a compromise between proposals to limit buses to main roads and to drop the transportation program altogether.

All field trips would also be dropped if the millage fails.

Says attorney

Hearing not mandatory

Lack of a quorum at an April public hearing plus continued challenges by area residents may result in the Northville Township Planning Commission calling another public hearing to consider the zoning of 10 acres on Seven Mile Road just west of Grand View Acres subdivision.

Armed with a new legal opinion from the township attorney, planning commissioners are likely to consider the Seven Mile zoning question when they meet in regular session May 30.

Planners have been asked by Grand View Acres residents to consider rezoning 10 acres presently zoned for professional offices to single family residential. Before such a zoning change can be accomplished, a public hearing on the matter must be held. The commission then would make a recommendation to the township board.

The property in question is part of a larger parcel owned by Dr. Waldemar E. Gizynski. Area residents originally objected to the zoning of not only the 10 acres of professional offices but also 29 acres zoned for multiples. A consent order issued April 10 mandated that the multiple zoning should stand, however, and plans now call for a 224-unit apartment complex to be constructed on the 29 acres north of Seven Mile near Marilyn.

Before Visiting Circuit Court Judge Larry Emmert issued the consent order, planners had scheduled a public hearing on the rezoning question for April 11. Planning Commission Chairman William Bohan conducted that hearing as scheduled but confined discussion to the office zoning. However, only three commissioners attended the hearing, leaving the commission short of a quorum.

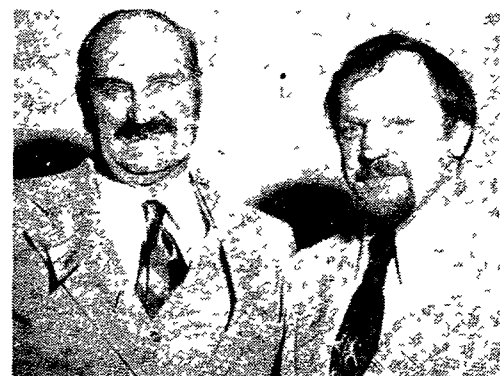

Township Attorney Donald Morgan later advised the commission that its hearing was invalid due to the lack of a quorum. At the commission's regular meeting April 25, Grand View Acres residents asked commissioners to schedule another public hearing to make up for the one ruled invalid.

Commissioners responded by seeking yet another opinion from Morgan, this time asking whether the commission was obligated to schedule another hearing. In a letter directed to the commission last week, Morgan advised that commissioners were not obligated to hold another hearing. However, Morgan added, if the commission wishes to consider rezoning the 10 acres in question, it must schedule another public hearing on the matter.

Residents of nearby Grand View Acres and other areas of the township had objected to the professional office zoning, often citing potential traffic hazards which they contend would result from development of offices on the 10 acres fronting on Seven Mile.

When residents registered objections to the multiple zoning, developers had already presented a plan for development of the apartment complex. Proponents of rezoning have noted that no such plans have been submitted for the office areas, thus — residents say — eliminating one of the main contentions of the owners and developers for retaining the present zoning.

Masons honored

Two Northville residents were among the 42 Southeastern Michigan Masons, who received consistory degrees, 19th through 32nd, at the Masonic Temple Saturday during graduation exercises. They were Michael J. Willing (left) of 1026 Bristol Court and Gehardt H. Obrikat of 18512 Jamestown Circle.

ARTURA E. VERSCHAEVE

A memorial service for Artura Eufraze Verschaeve, 53, will be held at 2 p.m. this Sunday at Casterline Funeral Home Incorporated with the Reverend Lloyd Brasure officiating.

Interment will be at Rural Hill Cemetery.

Miss Verschaeve, a retired art teacher, had been a resident of the community, where she lived at 19759 Clement Road, since 1943.

She died May 6 at the John Knox Village infirmary in Ann Arbor after an illness of six months.

She was born May 7, 1924, in San Francisco, only daughter of Ethelwyn (Robinson) and the late Arthur J. Verschaeve.

Miss Verschaeve retired from the Ann Arbor school system as an elementary art teacher in January, 1977. She received her BS and MA degrees from Eastern Michigan University with supplementary work in Wayne, Columbia and New York universities.

Her specialty was jewelry, fashioned from gold, silver and semi-precious stones. Her work was known as original and unique. She exhibited in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, New York and Paris.

She was a member of the Ann Arbor Art Association, Michigan Academy of Science, Arts and Letters and of Northville Woman's Club.

WILLIAM C. FENWICK

An all-faith Communion service for William C. Fenwick, 66, of 19652 Aqueduct Court will be held at 11:30 a.m. today (Wednesday) at Ross B. Northrop and Son Funeral Home with Father Paul Fetting officiating. Interment will be in Glen Eden Cemetery.

Mr. Fenwick died May 14 at Henry Ford Hospital.

He had retired as head of the dental laboratory department of Henry Ford Hospital with 35 years of service.

He was graduated in 1930 from Redford High School where he was a member of the basketball and track team as well as golf team which set the city and state high school golf championship record, a record that still stands. He was a member of the Michigan Public Links Association (Publink).

Mr. Fenwick came to the community in 1974 and was a member of the Highland Lakes Association and its grounds committee.

He was born October 24, 1911, in Kentucky, to William J. and Nellie (Brink) Fenwick and married Florence Burch, who survives.

He also leaves a daughter, Susan; a son, William B.; his mother and four grandchildren.

PAUL M. RIVARD

Paul M. Rivard, 57, of 18669 Jamestown Circle, died May 14 at St. Mary Hospital. Funeral service is to be held at 10:30 a.m. Thursday at Our Lady of Victory Church where he was a member with Father Gerard Hadad officiating.

Interment is to be in Holy Sepulchre. Arrangements are by Ross B. Northrop and Son Funeral home.

A tool and die maker for 18 years at Park Davis and Company, Mr. Rivard was born March 31, 1921, in Vermont to Dona and Mary F. (Matthews) Rivard.

Survivors include his wife, Dorothy; his father; a daughter, Mrs. Lee (Sandra) Phillips; sons, James, Paul and Gerald; and nine grandchildren.

ORVILLE G. WHITCRAFT

Funeral service was held Saturday for Orville Grooms Whitcraft, 70, at Casterline Funeral Home Incorporated with the Reverend Guenther C. Branstner of First United Methodist Church in Northville officiating.

Interment was in Glen Rest Cemetery in Columbus, Ohio.

Mr. Whitcraft drove a Short Way Line bus to Toledo and Northville.

He was a member of Masonic Blue Lodge F & AM of North Dakota and of Shrine Temple, Elf Khurafah of Saginaw. A resident of 19515 Lahser Road, he came to the area 10 years ago. He had served in the U.S. Air Force for 27 years.

He was born September 26, 1907, in Zanesville, Ohio, to Roy and Peerless May (Grooms) Whitcraft. He leaves a son, Theodore of Columbus, a sister, Mrs. Janet Jackson of Garden City; four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

HARRY J. ZARISH

Funeral service for Harry J. Zarish, 52, of 46450 11 Mile, Novi, was held Thursday at Casterline Funeral Home Incorporated with the Reverend Dale Gross of Milford Baptist Church officiating.

Cremation was at Evergreen Cemetery in Detroit.

Mr. Zarish died unexpectedly May 8 at St. Joseph Hospital in Ann Arbor.

He was born June 20, 1925, in Novi where he lived all his life. A retired farmer, he was employed at Plymouth Center for Human Development. He was the son of Joseph and Mary (Kozena) Zarish and married Phyllis J. Ender, who survives.

He also leaves three daughters, Candice of Northville, Dr. Debra West of Boylston, Massachusetts and Susan of Novi.

Northville's Nancy LaPlante, 13, shows you can get in a jam if you ride bikes in traffic

100 million bikers can't be wrong

Nearly half of the people in the country own or ride a bicycle. Even more Americans are licensed drivers. Therein lies the problem.

With 100 million free-wheeling cyclists taking to roads and trails for exercise, transportation, energy conservation and, mostly, fun and recreation, there are bound to be conflicts with the automobile — better known as the King of the Road.

"There's no better time than during American Bike Month (which is May) to remind citizens that bicycle safety is everyone's job," says Northville Township Police Chief Ronald Nisun.

As drivers scan the road for other cars, they often overlook bikes, he said.

A recent study by the U.S. Department of Transportation showed that this "blind eye of the motorist" was a common cause of many car-bike accidents.

The study also pointed to erratic bicyclist maneuvers such as darting into the street and failing to yield the right of way.

Nisun suggests that bike owners follow a few simple preventive maintenance steps.

"Handlebars and seats should always be adjusted to fit the bike driver," he says. "Chains should always be kept lightly oiled and brakes should always be checked before going out on a bicycle."

"Meanwhile, it is a very simple procedure to check tire treading to make sure there are no stones or glass bits lodged there."

Bike shops often provide maintenance inspections but it is a service that is not normally used.

"It's kind of like owning a car. The next time you take it in, it will be broken," says Larry Gillelan who owns Town and Country Cyclery, North Center in Northville.

"There's not much that goes wrong with a bike, but it's not a bad idea to check brakes and pedals."

Still, he says the cyclist's biggest problem is the car and the lack of a safe place to ride.

"Look at Northville," he explains. "There are all sorts of (traffic) signs for cars, but none telling bikes what to do."

Along side I-275 is a "dumb place" to build a bike path because the cyclist needs a car to get there.

Far better to build trails to the front doors of factories so that people can cycle to work, he says.

Many people now take advantage of bike trails in Maybury State Park west of Northville.

"The most dangerous part of Maybury is the ride on Eight Mile you have to take to get there," he says.

Since he was talking about bikes, Gillelan could not pass up the chance for a sales pitch.

"It (bicycling) is probably the least expensive thing you can do to have fun," he says. For as little as $100, "less than a car payment" — a person can buy a sound bike.

And Gillelan has no doubts that recreation — rather than physical fitness or energy conservation — is the main reason behind the bike boom that has lasted at least five years.

"People who own bikes still use the car to go to the grocery for a loaf of bread," he says.

Novi resident sentenced in theft

A Novi resident has been sentenced to 30 days in the Wayne County Jail and two years probation after pleading guilty to stealing coins from the cash register and juke box of a Northville restaurant.

27400 Meadowbrook Road, also agreed to make full restitution for the stolen money and damages to Mynk's Restaurant during the theft.

Millard, who used to work at the restaurant,

had a similar 'breaking and entering charge dismissed in exchange for his guilty plea.

Millard also has a breaking and entering charge pending against him in Novi where police say they caught him in a closed party store.

Cross-section view looking eastward shows arcade extending from parking lot north of Main street through theater and across Main street in direct line to Town Square. This pedestrian flow leads to Mary Alexander Court and the existing parking deck on Cady street. Eventually the existing deck on the north side of Cady street would be connected by pedestrian overpass to proposed Northville Downs parking deck on south side of Cady street.

Planner Ron Nino and staff illustrated some changes that might be made in existing downtown store fronts. These proposed improvements would be a matter for store owners to decide and do not constitute a part of the Mainstreet 78 project.

Mainstreet 78 — The Overall Plan:

- A—Beautification of parking area behind stores on North Center street. Walkway access from lot to North Center proposed.
- B—Sidewalks widened on N. Center, most parking removed. Two-way traffic retained on both N. and S. Center. Trees planted.
- C—One-way traffic eastward along two-block length of Main street in CBD. Sidewalks widened with brick, angle parking intermittently.
- D—Parking area behind stores on north side of Main street improved, service courts behind shielded by landscaping.
- E—Arcade provides pedestrian access to Main street from parking lot. Arcade winds through D & C Store and lobby of P & A Theatre.
- F—Town Square replaces Main street parking lot between Northville Drug Co. and Northville Insurance Exchange. Pedestrian walk lines up with arcade and extends to parking deck on north side of Cady.
- G—New parking lot created on north side of Mary Alexander Court just east of Long's Boutique and behind Main street buildings.
- H—Proposed parking deck for Northville Downs in future would be connected by pedestrian over-pass over Cady street to city's parking deck making more parking available for commercial district employees or shoppers.
- I—In the event Mainstreet 78 is successful and results in new businesses plus reawakening of Northville Square (J) a second-level parking deck could be erected at this point over the existing Main at Wing street lot.

Plan to preserve old downtown unveiled

sion by recalling the history of the Downtown Improvement Committee. It was formed, he explained, June 28, 1977 and has been meeting weekly on the Mainstreet 78 proposal. Members of the committee include Mayor Vernon, Councilmen Dewey Gardner and Stanley Johnston, Glenn Long, Herman Moehman, Bill Sliger and City Manager Steve Walters.

As first steps in the program for proposed improvements Mayor Vernon noted that comprehensive surveys were undertaken in both the business district and the trading area. Questionnaires were delivered to all merchants and 63 percent responded. Some 750 samplings were mailed to local residents with 39.3 percent completed and returned.

Suggestions gathered from the surveys were valuable tools in the formation of Mainstreet 78.

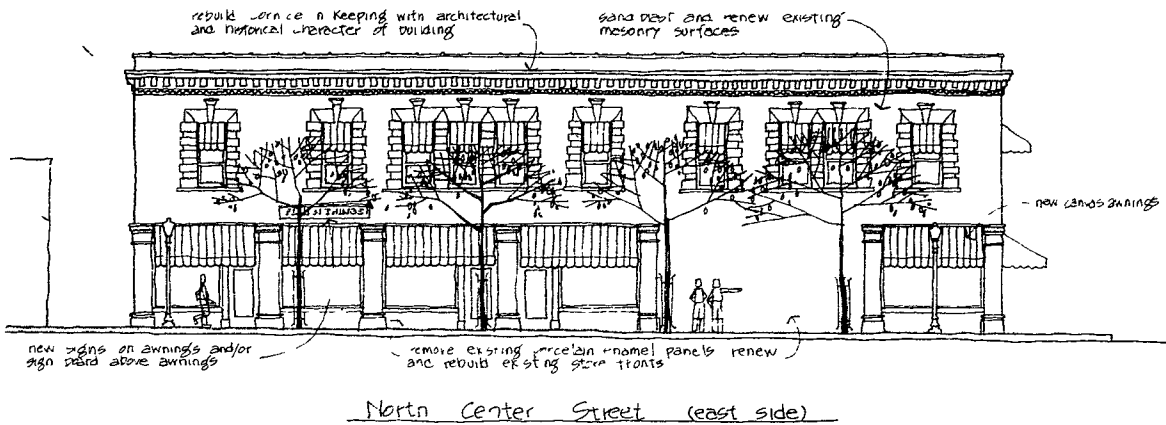

The committee also contacted community lending institutions seeking the most favorable money rates available for merchants who would undertake to make improvements to their store buildings. Full cooperation was promised by banks and federal savings institution. In addition the Northville Community Federal Credit Union offered individual renovation loans for downtown Northville businesses of up to $5,000 each for a term of 60 months at an eight percent interest rate.

Mayor Vernon introduced Planning Consultant Ronald Nino who unveiled via slide projections the proposed Mainstreet 78 plan.

Mainstreet 78 was so named because it is a project that can be undertaken immediately and completed within a reasonable time, perhaps one year. It is designed, Nino explained, as a "do-able today" project that will attract new business and encourage improvements by existing retailers.

It envisions one-way traffic on main street eastward from Wing to Hutton. Sidewalks along this two-block area would be widened with intermittent angle parking and tree planting on both sides of the street.

Traffic flow on all other streets in the downtown area would remain as it is now. Some parking would be removed from North Center street to provide for wider sidewalks and tree-planting.

Landscaping improvements would be made in existing parking lots (Wing street between Main and Dunlap, and Dunlap street behind stores along the north side of Main street). A provision for pedestrian access to North Center street stores from the Wing street lot would also be sought.

The Dunlap parking lot behind Main street stores would undergo major improvements for parking convenience as well as landscaping beautification. Small service court areas would be reserved behind these Main street stores for delivery trucks.

An arcade from this parking lot would wind its way through the existing D & C Store and a remodelled P & A Theatre. This arcade flow of pedestrian traffic would line up with a walk-way next to Northville Drug Company leading to the existing parking lot atop the Cady street double-deck facility.

Between this walk-way and Northville Insurance Exchange building would be the Town Square, a landscaped area for activities or relaxation that would replace the existing Main street parking lot.

The removal of most parking from Main street and North Center street along with the replacing of the Main street lot with a Town Square would result in a net loss of 50 parking spaces. New parking is proposed in a lot along Mary Alexander Court behind the Main street offices of Dr. Victoria Lovewell (180 E. Main) and the former pizza parlor (168 E. Main).

Greater use of both decks of the Cady street structure would be encouraged. Furthermore, if business should improve to the point where added parking in the four-block CBD area is needed, a second deck has been proposed over a portion of the existing lot at Main and Wing streets (across from Northville Square).

Furthermore, negotiations between the city and Northville Downs have been under way for some time to construct a decked parking facility south of Cady street directly across from the existing double-deck on the north side of Cady. The new parking facility would be used primarily for harness racing fans. But the proposed plan calls for a pedestrian over-pass from the top of the Downs' parking deck to the city's town square.

One of the major keys to the improvement of pedestrian traffic flow is the arcade from Main street to the parking lot north of Main street stores.

Committee representatives have met with owners of the theater and D & C buildings. The theater owners, Jay and Inga Zayti, are currently planning major improvements in the old landmark P & A Theatre. It is temporarily closed. The owner of the D & C building, Charles P. Meredith, has expressed interest in the arcade proposal. First consideration would be the desires of the existing tenant, D & C.

It has been suggested by the Mainstreet 78 plan that the D & C building could be extended to the rear to square up with the rear of the theater building. The additional floor space gained by this extension could provide ample floor space for both the arcade and D & C. If, by chance, D & C would prefer to relocate in the downtown area, it has been suggested that a series of shops could line the arcade. The arcade plan in that location would be dropped if D & C cannot be accommodated by the proposal.

But should the arcade connect Main street and the parking lot as now proposed, the Main street entrance to the arcade would be through an enlarged theater lobby. It would lead in a winding fashion eastward through D & C and then northward to the parking area behind the theater and D & C.

In explaining the objective of Mainstreet 78 at its presentation Thursday night the mayor, city manager and committee members emphasized that only the plan for public improvements in the central business district would be governmentally financed. Even this is not entirely true. Sidewalk improvements in the central business district are already scheduled to be made, partially assessed against business building owners. The Mainstreet 78 package would use these assessments but make the more extensive (brick and wider) improvements as proposed rather than mere replacement of existing walks.

But individual building improvements would, of course, be financed by property owners — such as would be the case in the theater and D & C arcade proposal.

For financing the city manager points out the city already has $110,000 available from the federal community development block growth program. Over a three-year period the city will receive $240,000 from this source. Some $130,000 has been earmarked for the new community library and the balance, $110,000, for downtown improvements.

In addition the city will seek grants through federal beautification and community development program sources.

Finally, a Downtown Development Authority will be formed which can recapture taxes gained from new buildings and improvements generated by Mainstreet 78 to help retire project bonds.

While it is planned to make use of some of the city's public improvement funds, generated mostly from race track revenues, to help finance Mainstreet 78, both Mayor Vernon and Manager Walters emphasized that it is not the intention of the city council to levy additional tax millage to finance the program.

An interested observer at Thursday night's meeting was Thomas Dailey, owner of Northville Square. Dailey spoke briefly and emphasized that it is his intention to bring a major retailing business to the vacated main floor of Northville Square. He said an announcement of this nature could be forthcoming in the near future.

Next step for Mainstreet 78 would be for the city council to approve proceeding with detailed plans. It was estimated by City Manager Walters that work could get under way this summer resulting in completion yet this year of the Main street improvements, the Town Square and possibly the arcade.

Fountain's dedicated

Although construction of Allen Terrace apartments is not far enough along to have the decorative water fountain that is the gift of the Northville Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association installed at the entrance, the cornerstone symbolically was presented "with love and affection" Monday by retiring president Barbara O'Brien, front, to Mayor Paul Vernon. The weather "showered" the official dedication committee at the noon ceremony. From left are architect Donald DiComo; Russell Amerman, chairman of the building committee; City Manager Steven Walters; Mary Keese, new branch president; Marion Barrett of Ann Arbor, past president of the Michigan division, WNFGA; Veronica Gaines, branch publicity chairman; Marian Renaud of East Lansing, Michigan division president; June Lafferty, branch vice president; Lola Alexander, a branch past president; and Ruth Klein, branch ways and means chairman. Branch members then toured a portion of Allen Terrace and reported back to the meeting being held Monday afternoon. Walters told them that all 100 units are rented with a waiting list. First occupant is expected to move in the end of June.

It was hit-snitch at duck crossing

It was not the best way to start a day.

Several employees of Century 21 real estate office, 224 S. Main Street, watched in various degrees of disgust and anger Friday morning as a car ran down one of the ducks that frequently cross the road from the nearby Ford Motor Company valve plant.

For the ducks, crossing the busy street is hazardous at best, and such accidents are sometimes unavoidable. But this one seemed different.

"They did it on purpose," said one of the women who watched the incident. "The kid ran right over the top of him."

While its mate wandered about helplessly, the wounded duck flapped its wings in distress. Before anyone could help, however, the car returned and one of the occupants grabbed the duck and threw it into the back seat.

"What a morbid thing to do," said the woman. "It was sickening."

The occupants of the car were described as two young males — either teenagers or in their early 20's.

The car was a bright turquoise, but the make was not known and the license number could not be read because the plate was hanging sideways.

It was at least the second duck fatality in the last week.

Wednesday afternoon, an unidentified woman said she was unable to avoid hitting a duck.

"I'm really upset," she said after returning to the scene to see if the duck was still alive. "But I couldn't help it."

Although the ducks frequently cross the busy road from the Mill Race where they live, city police say there are relatively few problems such as Friday's.

Most people observe the "Duck Crossing" signs, said the spokesman. He could not recall any city motorists complaining about the ducks.

One of the "Duck Crossing" signs, however, has been stolen.

Grand jury seeks crime information

Persons with specific information about crime or suspected crime that ought to be investigated are being urged to contact a newly empaneled grand jury.

Wayne County Circuit Court Judge William J. Giovan, who recently empaneled the new Wayne County Citizen's Grand Jury, stresses that all responses "will be kept in strict confidence."

Northville area residents should address their letters to the Wayne County Citizen's Grand Jury, P.O. Box 30, Detroit 48231.

"The fight against crime in Wayne County can only be successfully waged with the full cooperation of the people of the community," said Judge Giovan.

"One-way for the ordinary citizen to assist is to communicate with the Citizen's Grand Jury when he or she has personal knowledge about crime that should be investigated. I emphasize that all communications will be kept confidential."

The "privilege" of driving to Northville High School may be limited next year to about 250 students

Parking restriction eyed

Tighter controls at high school?

The number of students allowed to drive to Northville High School might be measurably reduced next year.

Those who do qualify for parking permits may have to pay for using one of the approximately 250 spaces in the paved lot west of the Eight Mile Road school.

"Driving your car to school is a privilege, not a right," said Principal George Aune in an interview Thursday. "The school district provides (free) transportation."

East week, Aune told the school board that it could raise up to $5000 by charge $10 a semester for parking permits. That money could be used for parking lot supervision and maintenance, he said.

An overcrowded and littered parking lot has been a headache in recent years for high school administrators who say they lack the manpower for proper monitoring.

In February, on what turned out to be a false alarm, a Northville City fire engine was unable to reach the parking lot because of cars improperly parked in aisles.

Had there been an emergency, it could not have been met in a "sufficient and proper manner," wrote Superintendent Raymond Spear in a memo to Aune.

Daily announcements have since been used to "warn and admonish" students, but Aune said new regulations should be adopted for next year.

Basically, he suggested limiting the parking lot to those students who need to drive because of physical disabilities, jobs or after-school activities.

The number of parking permits would be limited by available space, he said, and would not be offered to sophomores without a "special need."

Such permits are required now, but Aune readily conceded that "if I went out there and checked, there would be a number of cars that haven't got them."

A supervisor, whose salary was paid by parking lot revenue, could not only check for the decals but could also crack down on loitering and drinking in cars, said Aune.

Despite weekly clean-ups, broken glass from beer and liquor bottles can usually be found on the lot.

"There might be some of that (drinking) during the day. I don't doubt it," said Aune. "And we'll act on it if we catch them."

No one has a handle on the total number of cars that cruise through the lot in a day, but Aune said the number is high.

"With an open campus, the opportunity for the student to leave the building during his lunch hour is here," he said. "There is going to be a lot of traffic."

The parking problem could be eased by expanding the parking surface, but Aune said that expense has a low priority in relation to more pressing high school needs.

Youth faces charge of assaulting officer

A Brighton youth and former Northville resident was still in jail Tuesday after being charged with two counts of assault and battery of a policeman.

Gary Eddington, 19, was arraigned Friday morning in district court on the charges stemming from an incident the night before.

Northville City police say Eddington attacked them when they approached his car in a Wing Court driveway after he was spotted squealing his tires and fishtailing around midnight.

Officers say Eddington became angry and swore at them when he was asked for his drivers license which he failed to produce.

Eddington then got out of the car, threatened to hit one policeman and then swung at another, according to police reports.

The policeman took one blow to the collarbone, blocked a second and then hit Eddington on the mouth, the report continues.

Police say they took Eddington to the station where he continued to be abusive and kicked a policeman in the leg.

He was handcuffed and placed in a cell while police called his father, who now lives in Plymouth.

The next morning, police say Eddington again attacked an officer when he was taken from his cell for mug shots and finger printing.

When Eddington was being overpowered, police said he hit his head on the booking table and reopened the cut on his mouth that he had sustained the night before.

Police say that Eddington and the Northville department have had scrapes before. He is currently on probation for fighting.

No date has been set for his preliminary examination on the assault charges. Cash bond has been set at $500.

Post gets new sergeants

The Michigan State Police Post in Northville will have two new sergeants by the end of the month.

Earl Raczkowski was transferred from Clinton to Northville on May 14 and was promoted from trooper to sergeant at that time.

Raczkowski, who joined the department in 1967, had previously served in East Lansing and Newaygo.

Trooper John Davis, now at Flat Rock, will be promoted to sergeant and transferred to Northville on May 28.

Davis, also in the department since 1967, has been stationed in South Haven, Mt. Pleasant and Lansing.

One million receive help

Last year over one million families went to The Salvation Army for help.

The problem might involve finances, unemployment, heavy drinking or drug addiction, strained relations between parent and child, or battling between the parents.

Skilled Salvation Army counsellors help them sort out their problems, guide them to sources of aid in the community, and help to re-establish communications between family members.

Superintendent hopefuls pared

The search for a new superintendent of Northville Public Schools will be narrowed down to a manageable number following two sessions this week.

Two committees — one of school board members and the other of university placement officials — will determine which of about 70 applicants should be interviewed by the full board.

One of that as yet unspecified number will be chosen to replace Raymond Spear who announced his resignation earlier this year after 11 years as Northville superintendent.

Spear is taking a job as superintendent of the DeWitt school system north of Lansing.

Wednesday afternoon, a committee of board Secretary Christopher Johnson and trustees Marjorie Sliger and Charles Peltz will sift through applications to determine a list of prospective candidates.

Thursday, six lower peninsula university placement directors will do the same thing prior to a dinner meeting with the board at the Plymouth Hilton.

Since applicants have the right to request that their credentials be kept confidential, much or all of the Wednesday and Thursday sessions will not be open to the public.

The board interviews of those candidates selected through this week's process must be conducted in open meetings, however.

The board plans to make its selection before Spear's resignation becomes effective on July 1.

Reform debate begins

As it turns out, Common Cause didn't need State Senator Robert Geake's vote after all.

But Common Cause may yet need the vote of the Northville legislator.

Common Cause, Michigan's "public interest lobby," was pushing last week for Senator Geake's help in a rare discharge vote which had been scheduled for today (May 17). The vote had been scheduled as an attempt to force the controversial Lobby Reform Bill out of the Senate Judiciary Committee, where it had been bottled up since October.

Common Cause had been pursuing Geake as one of a number of what it considered "swing votes" necessary to help push the lobby bill out of the Judiciary Committee and onto the Senate floor.

However, in a surprising turn of events, the bill was voted of the Judiciary Committee last Wednesday morning. Debate on the controversial legislation, which would set forth guidelines for all lobbyists dealing with Michigan legislators, is set to begin today. Which means Common Cause may need Geake's vote yet.

A PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS: The annual sale of Buddy Poppies by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States has been officially recognized and endorsed by governmental leaders since 1922; and

WHEREAS: V.F.W. Buddy Poppies are assembled by disabled veterans, and the proceeds of this worthy fund-raising campaign are used exclusively for the benefit of disabled and needy veterans, and the widows and orphans of deceased veterans, and

WHEREAS: The basic purpose of the annual sale of Buddy Poppies by the Veterans of Foreign Wars is eloquently reflected in the desire to "Honor the Dead by Helping the Living"; therefore

I, Paul R. Vernon, Mayor of the city of Northville do hereby urge the citizens of this community to recognize the merits of this cause by contributing generously to its support through the purchase of Buddy Poppies on the day set aside for the distribution of these symbols of appreciation for the sacrifices of our honored dead.

I urge all patriotic citizens to wear a Buddy Poppy as mute evidence of our gratitude to the men of this country who have risked their lives in defense of the freedoms which we continue to enjoy as American citizens.

Signed,
Paul R. Vernon
Mayor

It can't be done . . .

By WARREN M. HOYT

For the fourth year in a row, legislators and the executive branch have declared a rewrite of the workers' compensation system cannot be accomplished.

This year, Senate Labor Committee Chairman David Plawecki (D-Dearborn Heights) blamed the inaction on insurance company alliances for failing to provide accurate cost estimates.

For the past few years, the Democratic-controlled Legislature and the Republican executive office have differed on how to approach the rewrite of the workers' compensation system. Democrats wanted immediate increased benefits and Governor William Milliken would accept nothing short of a total rewrite at one time.

Plawecki, who in December introduced a compromise reform bill, said the lack of cost data has set back negotiations on the bill so much that "there is virtually no way that the bill of this magnitude can be worked out and approved in both houses before consideration of the appropriation measures must begin."

Milliken, although accepting that the issue was probably dead for the year, stressed work on reform must continue as a critical part of the state's effort to improve its economic climate.

"I remain committed to achieving a fair, reasonable and balanced reform of Michigan's workers' compensation system and have directed my administration to continue efforts which are underway to resolve the differences which still exist," he said.

Plawecki also charged the Workers' Compensation Commission of the state Chamber of Commerce for distorting information in its efforts to block the version in the Senate Labor Committee. He said the information has built up so much resentment to the measure in the business community that negotiations cannot proceed in a thorough and well-reasoned manner.

Walk's in kilometers

It was bound to happen sooner or later.

Those miles for the Jaycees annual Walk for Mankind have been converted to kilometers — a bow to the metric system.

So this year participants in the walk, scheduled for Saturday, June 3, will travel by foot over 30 kilometers of sidewalks and street shoulders in the city and township.

But participants, who blistered their way through the walk in past years, need not despair, say David Llewellyn and Rose Zapke, co-chairpersons of the project for the Northville Jaycees and Jayettes. "The walk's about the same distance as previous walks."

Jaycees are hoping last year's 1,500 turnout will be increased to between 2,000 to 3,000 persons, mostly students but with a smattering of adults.

This year's walk is expected to attract participants from other area towns which do not have a Walk for Mankind — including South Lyon, Milford, Walled Lake, Novi and Plymouth.

Exact route of the walk will not be disclosed until the morning it begins "for safety reasons."

Purpose of the walk, of course, is to raise money for Project Concern — a non-profit organization backed by Jaycees that provides medical supplies and services and food for needy children and adults in the United States and elsewhere in the world.

Participants already have begun circulating "sponsor" sheets in the community. Sponsors pledge to contribute a specified amount of money for each mile walked by the participants they designate.

Under the program, walkers may designate all or part of the monies they raise for Project Concern. If they choose, they may earmark up to 20 percent of the monies for a local charity or civic organization of their choice.

Unlike other walks in the metropolitan area, the Jaycees will be providing a lunch for participants "about mid-way through the walk."

The Northville CB Club will be providing radio communication for the Jaycees, while city and township police will be providing special surveillance.

Local organizations will operate check-in stations along the route, verifying the miles walked by participants and providing them with refreshments, first-aid if needed, and encouragement.

Two medical doctors will be stationed along the way to provide any special attention participants might need.

Jaycee publicity chairman for the event Gregory Dawson, reminds participants that this year's walk will begin a half hour earlier than previous walks. Late registration will get underway at 7 a.m., and the official start of the walk — led off by members of Northville High School track team — will begin at 8:30 a.m.

The walk will be held, rain or shine, says Dawson. If it rains, however, the walk will be shortened to five miles and participants completing the five miles will get full credit.

A special telephone number has been established — 459-0630 — for those persons who may have any questions about the walk, rules or purpose.

$8000 lost in break-ins

An estimated $8000 in tools, stereo equipment and a color television were stolen in three separate Northville breakings and entering cases last week.

Another $450 worth of stereo equipment was taken from a township home, but it was returned by a companion of the suspected thief.

The biggest heist was $4000 of tools stored in a garage adjacent to a West Seven Mile Road house. The home, which is being repaired because of a recent fire, is unoccupied.

Township police believe more than one person entered the garage through the roof.

The theft may have occurred anytime during a 20-hour stretch ending shortly after noon Saturday, but police think it happened during the night.

In another township incident, a 16-year-old girl returned from school to her West Six Mile home Friday to find $1000 of items stolen from an upstairs bedroom.

Missing were a $280 stereo receiver, a $200 eight-track tape deck, a $200 turntable and a $350 color TV.

More fortunate was the Norton Street resident who had $450 worth of stereo equipment stolen from his house last Tuesday.

Township police say a 16-year-old returned the merchandise when he realized his friend, also 16, had stolen it.

The homeowner then declined to press charges.

In the city, police are investigating the theft of $3000 of tools from the River Street barn area of Northville Downs.

Last Monday night or early Tuesday morning, someone rammed a gate to gain entrance to the area, police said

Northville High School students such as Amy Lincoln (above) discovered that giving blood wasn't such an ordeal after all. The first-ever high school blood bank last Tuesday produced 72 pints, according to Patti Kelly (left) who was the Student Congress chairwoman for the event. The total would have been in the 80's had not several potential donors been turned down. By contrast, the annual Northville blood bank at the Presbyterian Church a few days earlier produced only 65 pints.

137 pints

Northville blood flows

The blood didn't exactly pour like Niagara Falls two weeks ago in Northville.

But neither did the annual Red Cross blood bank at the Presbyterian Church resemble a slow day at the North Platte River in the midst of a Nebraska drought.

The day's last pint — donated by Lance Hahn, husband of assistant coordinator Lynne Hahn — brought the total to 65. That was neither very good nor very bad.

The Northville bank has been hitting about 60 pints for the last five years and 65 was the minimum goal set by coordinator Janice Dyke and Mrs. Hahn.

"If everybody had come in and done their thing, we would have broken that record," said Mrs. Hahn.

As it was, eight people who wanted to donate blood were turned down for various reasons and five others who had made appointments were "no-shows."

Northville will get credit from the Red Cross for the 73 people who stopped in at the blood bank.

That "credit" is basically for record-keeping purposes since everyone in the five-county southeastern Michigan region can receive free blood at most area hospitals through the Red Cross Community Coverage Plan.

Except for a few hospitals which charge for blood that isn't replaced by friends or family, the only fee for blood at most hospitals is for administering and collecting the vital substance.

But getting the blood is another matter. The 1000 pints a day needed in Wayne, Oakland, Washtenaw, St. Clair and Macomb counties came mostly from volunteer blood banks.

"It's easier to ask for money than for blood," said Mrs. Hahn.

Northville actually produces more than the 65 pints collected Thursday.

Last Tuesday, for instance, the high school Student Congress hosted a "closed" clinic for students over the age of 17 and staff.

Some 72 gave blood bringing the total for the two blood banks to 137 pints in five days.

Each fall, Our Lady of Victory Church also sponsors a Red Cross blood bank.

"A lot of people give once a year, either at the Northville bank or the OLV bank, said Mrs. Hahn. "That's fine, but they can give more than once if they want."

In fact, donors can give up to five times a year as long as they wait six to eight weeks between times.

A number of Northville residents also give in the community where they work.

Last Thursday's blood bank got a big boost from Foundry Flask and Equipment Company, 456 E. Cady, which sent 16 volunteers to give blood.

Anyone who wants to give blood and doesn't want to wait for the next local blood bank can contact the Red Cross office in Livonia.

It is open daily but the times vary so it is best to call for an appointment.

Local Jaycees seeking help for July 4th

"Think summer!"

That's the word from the Northville Jaycees, who are already gearing up for their annual Fourth of July festivities here.

Heading up the 14th annual extravaganza will be James Totzkay, past president and member of the Jaycees for more than five years.

"He's already laying the groundwork for a fantastic celebration," says Jaycee publicist, Gregory Dawson.

"Like years past, we will be having the parade downtown at 10 a.m., the chicken barbecue, watermelon eating contest and more fireworks than ever before," he points out.

Meanwhile, the Jaycees are seeking financial and morale support.

Persons wishing to participate in the parade or to make financial contribution are asked to call Totzkay at 349-7185 or write the Northville Jaycees, P.O. Box 241, Northville 48167.

SPEAKING

By BILL SLIGER

The very week that a front page story in the Detroit Free Press relates what is happening to small town downtown business districts in general and Niles, Michigan specifically, Northville is launching a revitalization campaign for its central business district

It isn't an accident that Northville's downtown has survived and promises to strengthen itself and become modestly flourishing within the obvious limitations of its market area

But it isn't beyond the realm of possibility that Northville could join Niles and countless other "downtown ghost towns" as described in the story of small town business district decay

A city councilwoman in the 119 year old historic city of Niles said in looking at the shambles left in her city's business district, "towns die only because people want them to"

Northville's downtown will not die, despite its struggles for survival and its competition from major shopping centers, because its people will not permit it to die

And chief among these community leaders has been the former mayor, A. Malcolm Allen

Although it is a new administration sitting on the city council as "Mainstreet 78" makes its official debut, the groundwork goes back many years

So I decided to call Mike Allen Monday to get his reactions to the work that had been done by a committee he appointed as one of his last acts as mayor. The Mainstreet 78 committee was formed last June and Mike retired as mayor after 20 years last November

Typically, the interest was as intense as always. There were reservations and concerns, and there were positive suggestions

It was like opening the gate for a thoroughbred race horse that hadn't been to the post recently

"Can the project be completed without levying additional taxes on the average homeowner? Have you checked out the problems with underground utilities with the DPW? Are the merchants willing to pitch in and spend some money of their own on store improvements? What about parking? Will we have enough when the project is completed?"

Mike had attended the introductory session last Thursday night. But he had remained silent, noncommittal

But his interest in the preservation of the downtown business district and conviction that its taxbase is one of the city's most important contributions to the total community welfare remains as firm as ever

It is just that Mike looking outside in instead of inside out for perhaps the first time is apprehensive

His counsel has been requested and he has promised to provide input to help the project take a final form. And when a Downtown Improvement Authority is named to direct the project, Mike Allen will most certainly serve

For many years Mayor Allen, his fellow councilmembers, a succession of city managers and the Northville Area Economic Development Committee have plotted and planned to preserve the downtown

Northville Square was a brainchild of this group of community leaders. It has not been the rousing success that had been envisioned, but who could have predicted an economic recession would coincide with its grand opening?

But the philosophy has always been to preserve as much as possible, avoid destruction of old buildings, yet make available as much land as possible for parking

Northville Square will make a comeback. It is today on the very verge of becoming the retail attraction its creators had hoped it would be Mainstreet 78 is possible today because a variety of options are open for any revitalization plan. Although anyone would hope that business would be so brisk that parking would be in great demand in downtown Northville, the city is fortunate today to have an excess of space that can be used for parking, buildings or beautification

And as the relatively inexpensive approach of Mainstreet 78 takes form and introduces beautification and improved pedestrian flow to the downtown, new business will be attracted and old business will improve and expand

It can be accomplished because Northville has not permitted its downtown business district to deteriorate or to become cluttered. It is not necessary for the promoters of Mainstreet 78 to condemn or destroy. Their plan is merely an overlay on what already exists

Fortunately, the proposal has received the enthusiastic support of at least two property owners who will face some major renovation costs if an arcade is to connect a parking area with Main Street and the Town Square. There is a willingness, at least, to explore the arcade idea

In reality, Mainstreet 78 is rather simple. It is a project designed to demonstrate that Northville does not want its downtown to die, to let existing and prospective retailers know that the community cares about its downtown

And it can be accomplished without undertaking desperate crash spending programs in a last ditch effort to avoid another ghost town

It is that way in Northville because for the past 20 years the city council has used a share of its public improvement funds for downtown preservation

I honestly believe Mainstreet 78 can be completed, perhaps totally, within a period of two years. And it will bring new business to town and produce greater volume for existing stores

It can be accomplished without new taxes. To the contrary, it will produce more commercial taxbase and reduce the burden on the residential community

This is true because Mainstreet 78 is the realization of a conviction held for 20 years by the ex-mayor, A. Malcolm Allen

Ebenezer Scrooge

YES . . .

Bah Humbug! Tipping should be eliminated and it should be 'minuted now

Most waiters and waitresses nowadays are making more money than Reggie Jackson, and I, for one, see no reason why I should contribute to their second home in California

In the old days, before running water and automobiles, it was not unusual to see waiters working sixteen hours a day in some old scumbag greasestrip collapse as they struggled back to get my steak and potatoes

Under those circumstances, even I was not totally opposed to the practice of tipping. Usually the tip would be, "Why don't you get a different job, kid?"

Sometimes I would even give them a penny or two. But today, with the advent of waitresses' unions and halter tops, the inflation of tipping has become clearly unbearable. Some sly little thing will approach you after the meal and ask you to empty your pockets on the table for her tip

Most poor souls are too overcome by the whole scene to protest, to make a stand for their pocketbooks. Me, I just stuff all my loose change in my shoes. Never once have I been asked to empty my shoe onto the table

My opinion is that there is only so much money in the world and the more of it that stays with me, the better. Let waiters and waitresses get it their own selves, without bothering me

Bah humbug!

Speaking for myself

Eliminate tipping?

NO . . .

Tipping, if handled properly, can be a positive force in the restaurant business in particular and all service related businesses in general. However, I believe that most Americans handle tipping improperly

A tip or gratuity is a way of saying "thank you" for service over and above the average. Most of us tend to tip 10 to 15 percent no matter how good or bad the service has been. This is wrong and merely encourages a bad waiter or waitress to continue to be bad. If we regard the tip as a means of rewarding excellence, then the bad waitress will either get better or get out of the business because she won't be making enough money. This accomplished, we will be able to attract more good people, and thereby be able to give better service

However, to arbitrarily eliminate all tipping is not the way to handle it either. Why? Because eventually the cost of increased wages will have to be passed to all customers and therefore we will be rewarding all waitresses, the good and the bad

I encourage my customers to start at ground zero, that is, bad service and/or attitude is rewarded with no tip at all, average service is rewarded with a low or average tip, perhaps 5 to 10 percent, and excellence is rewarded with an excellent tip of from 15 to 20 percent for speedy, friendly, courteous and honest service

Don't allow yourself to be intimidated into giving a bad waitress a good tip, or, for that matter, any tip. If a waitress gives bad service and receives no tip, she knows why and if she is smart, that continuance should cause her to take stock in herself

JACK W. HOFFMAN'S COLUMN

'Mary, Mary, quite contrary'

We read it together, you and I, when grasshoppers and all those other delightful creatures spoke to us from books. You turned those brown, button eyes at me and asked "Is that Mary me, Dad?" And I laughed and said, "Why yes, of course, Mary Mary"

That's how it began

So over all these years long after grasshoppers ceased speaking to you, you've been Mary Mary to me. And I've been teasing you at the most inopportune times. How does your garden grow, Mary Mary?

You've laughed sometimes. But sometimes, especially as you neared the upper elementary grades you stomped your foot and declared, "I'm Mary and I don't have a garden"

Then I nicknamed you two closest friends, "Helen" and "Mabel" partly because I had difficulty remembering their real names and partly because I enjoyed teasing them, too

The teasing followed you into junior high, and the years slipped rapidly by. Suddenly, mother and I found ourselves sitting on the high school hill grass cheering, and regretting a little, Mary Mary's graduation

Soon "Helen" (or was it "Mabel"?!) was married, and it wasn't very long and she was a mother

Then last year I followed you to school one day and there, in a classroom of children I nearly wept when one of your pupils turned to me and asked "Are you Miss Mary's dad?" Instead, remembering another time and another place, I beamed proudly. Yes, of course, Mary Mary's mine. She has a garden, you know

The button eyed little girl who shares nursery rhymes with her father grew up and now shares them with others

And now as the biggest event in your life nears, the secret I've cherished all these years is out

It was discovered by the young man who stood by our bedside in the middle of the night, trembling a little as he said "I love, Mary. I'd like to marry her"

So you see, your Doug knows, as I've known always, Mary Mary does have a garden, it grows in our hearts. The loving garden where grasshoppers and those other delightful creatures speak to us always

Decries parking loss in downtown preservation plan

To the Editor:

Subject: Make the Gazebo — Away!

Thursday night, Northville's merchants were treated to a preview of the newest plan for beautification and alteration of our downtown business district. Before the barrage begins, please acknowledge the fact that I am dedicated to the preservation and expansion of trees and parks. I am equally dedicated to the preservation and expansion of our downtown business district.

For years, the city fathers have planned more and more parking space for a diminishing area of business. Anyone wishing to open a business in this town had to have space available for parking according to a master formula. Merchants have paid dearly for parking assessments in order to comply with this demand. You really wouldn't think that anyone could possibly object to the removal of one of these parking lots, then, would you? As illogical as it seems, I do object. The single most widely used parking lot in Northville is going to be turned into a park. Located between Northville Drug Store and the Rathert Building, it will feature trees and a gazebo. The rude female person who suggested I might not know what a gazebo is was wrong. I've always wanted one. In fact, I admire one that is already located on Main Street (West) very much.

According to the City Manager and the editor of this newspaper, approximately 18 to 19 angle parking spaces will be provided on Main Street, which will have one way traffic. Here goes the race track around Dunlap and Cady Streets. Currently, I can conveniently park, leave my car, and enter the front door of most of the businesses in this town. Now I will be forced to park my car in a two-story cement mausoleum which has never been used by shoppers in this town. I will have to park on the lower level on Cady Street when the Farmer's Market is on the upper level. Can our merchants really expect that I will park on Cady Street in that dark building, walk up a city block to get to the E & B for 10 pounds of groceries? Not today, and not tomorrow! These areas are snow covered during a major portion of the year. I'll drive less than ten miles to a shopping area that will require only one stop, with a short walk to the area in which I plan to shop.

Northville merchants have really beautified our business district with renovations to the facades of their buildings. Alas, I will not see them often when I come through the back doors, which will be closer. Perhaps they will not have to consider "face-lifting" their back entrances.

This new plan also calls for double-deck parking behind the area of Black's Hardware, the bakery, etc. At least the merchants on that side of the street have a better deal. An arcade will be constructed between the P & A Theater and the dime store. Of course, a good deal of the dime store will have to be eliminated in order to acquire the space. But at least the deluge of shoppers coming to rest in the gazebo will be able to get to it in a reasonable walking distance.

It was a stroke of good thinking that the new park will feature quaint benches to rest on. They'll be useful. I also liked the proposed street lights. As I recollect, they are just like the ones that were taken out in order to install the ones we have now.

All this anti business is distasteful to me. But practicality is a matter that must be reckoned with. A nice rest stop on a hot day in July might be just the trick. But I doubt that I could have warm feelings about all that space when it is covered with two feet of snow and I have just had to walk two blocks to get to the store I want. Perhaps we could put some benches on the sidewalks we now have. The city fathers are making some terrific proposals regarding new sidewalks and curbs — costly, too. The planters which were put in the fronts of the Main Street stores might be tried once again if more greenery is desired. However, I cannot recall any successfully maintained planting project in the history of this town.

If I want to shop near a park, I can go to what is left of the Northville Mall and walk across the street to the area behind City Hall. Maybe they could put the gazebo in the mall — there's certainly enough room! Just don't urge me away from our local merchants' by making me stop and smell the roses in the park. I haven't got the much spare time.

Most sincerely,
Mrs. Carole E. Miller

EDITOR'S NOTE: No parking deck is planned behind Black's Hardware as suggested in the letter.

Who has equipment?

Dear Editor,

In the excitement of passing out the beautiful, brand new softball uniforms, making sure each girl was safely in the right car and on her way home from softball practice, I completely forgot to pack up the softball equipment we had used. This took place on Wednesday evening, May 10, at the Amerman School playground. As you have probably already deduced, the equipment is now missing.

We know that it was seen at the playground as late as nine o'clock that night, but has not been seen since. We were able to replace everything, but my conscience and the Recreation Department's budget would both feel better if the equipment could be returned.

I wonder if you would ask the readers to take a look around in the next few days, in their garages, backyards, and the kids rooms, and see if they notice a few extra softballs, two bats, and a set of black catcher's equipment (mask and chest protector). A telephone call to the Recreation Department would be appreciated in helping locate this equipment.

Thank you,
Karen Woodruff

Campaign aid praised

To the Editor:

I wish to express my gratitude to all of the many people who worked with the board of education on our recent millage campaign. While we were not successful on election day, we did reach many people, and we convinced nearly 1,000 citizens of our needs. I am sure that with more time and effort we will reach and convince many more citizens in order for us to have a successful election on June 12th.

In addition I would like to thank all the citizens who voted "yes". Your support was appreciated and we look forward to your continued support.

To those citizens who could not support our needs I would urge you to reconsider our request. Our needs are very real. If you have any questions regarding the millage please contact any member of the Board of Education and we will see that you receive an answer. With the available tax credits one should calculate the exact impact of the tax in their specific case. Perhaps the next tax increase will not be as great as you may have estimated.

Again, I thank all of our supporters and I look forward to thanking an even larger group after a successful millage election on June 12th.

'Aid PBB battlers'

To the Editor:

Once again the Governor and a State Agency are saying, "We'll do our own thing — rather than listen to the people." Witness the PBB fiasco in Oscoda County, shades of a full security prison in the Northville area. By virtue of size we were able to make our voices heard — not so in Oscoda where only 4-5,000 people live compared to the millions in Wayne and Oakland Counties. The Governor didn't want a prison in his home town of Traverse City, with its wide open spaces and he doesn't want the cattle buried there either.

We should all support the Oscoda people in their efforts against burying of contaminated cattle in their backyards. Those of us who own property and those who vacation in the Northland can help by sending a contribution to:

Oscoda County News
PBB Action Committee
Box 426
Mio, Michigan 48647
Those who cannot contribute can pray that big government will begin to listen and to the voices of the little people. We can all help in November by remembering at election time just who our friends in Lansing are, and vote them out of office.

Mr. & Mrs. Wm. T. Maher,
Northville

Shades of 'Red Hen'

To the Editor:

I guess it was to be anticipated, but I've been decidedly underwhelmed by the response to my appeal to administrators and teachers (Record, May 10, p. 4) to consider voluntarily taking a percent or two less in wage increases in order to help our schools during a time of financial stress.

So far, the positive response has been... zero.

I talked to a friend in another community about the lack of response and asked if he thought anyone could be expected to step forward and help save our schools. He replied that the most I probably could expect was the Little Red Hen go-round.

"What's that?" I asked, trying to remember my nursery fables.

"Well, from what you've told me," he said, "the response will go something like this: 'Not I,' will say the parents, 'we're overtaxed as it is.' 'And not I,' will say the superintendent, 'I'm leaving for another district.' 'And not I,' will say the administrators and the teachers, 'it's not up to us to take less than we bargained for.' So it looks to me as if your Board's got a problem — and so have the kids in Northville."

Then he added: "Maybe you should try the old 'Sky is falling down' approach."

"Our Board's already looking at cut-backs in the total program for next year if the next millage doesn't pass," I said, "but threats of impending disaster aren't really the answer. The only real answer is for everyone to give as much time and effort to helping the system work as he or she can, and, where possible, take just a little less in return."

All we would need to begin changing things for the better would be a few individuals who were willing to break out of the vicious circle we're all locked into."

"Sounds like you're asking for a miracle," said my friend, "and schools these days appear to have run clean out of miracle workers."

We left it at that. But I still hope he's wrong.

Sincerely,

Watchdogs needed

To the Editor:

Once again the Scribes have recorded the reasons why the voters turned down the recent millage request. Not surprisingly, you reported dialogue advanced by school board members, deeply involved in rationalizing their lack of understanding about the real significance of this election.

Essentially our citizens support quality education offered by our school system. But they have lost faith in the ability of the administration to spend the money where it is needed most, mainly in supporting the learning process.

Of course, it is much easier, for the Millage Committee, to thrash out at one of the Wise Men, who has supported the need for learning priorities, because he now editorializes about the truth regarding the lack of faith created by a recent history of shenanigans, charades, and manipulations generated by one departing to the west.

Sometimes revealing the truth is as painful as extracting an infected tooth, but the cure can only prove beneficial, in the long run.

Furthermore, basic reform is clearly needed in all levels of our political system. Consequently, we should be interested in advancing positive suggestions to improve the political decisions, which obviously have such a great impact on our lives.

Moreover, we need individuals who are willing to act as watchdogs, overseeing and analyzing the performances of politicians, while objectively suggesting solutions for many of the problems created by our mundane leaders.

We can only hope that the critics of the Good Samaritan will join in this crusade to bring necessary reforms, for the purpose of restoring faith in our political system. It would demonstrate a higher level of intellectualism, if they would pause for a moment, in the midst of their stone throwing, and try to read the above reasons supporting the absolute need for the revelations produced by this type of reformer.

Of course, as we have observed, Daniel was forced to listen to the roar of Lions, but his wisdom was respected by the majority of the people. Now that the Good Samaritan has climbed from the Den, he will continue to ignore his critics, while they wallow in self-pity and lethargy.

Sincerely,
Larry D. VanderMolen

'Supplement's great'

To the Editor:

Have spent some time the past few days reading the supplement to the May 10, 1978 Record.

I feel it was outstanding and the staff of the Northville Record should be commended for their efforts in putting this magazine together.

I intend to call the material presented to the Amerman staff and have them discuss it with our children.

Blood donors lauded

To the Editor:

Janice Dyke and I would like to thank The Northville Record for the generous publicity they extended to the recent Northville Red Cross Blood Drive. The ample column space you provided, the excellent copy by reporter Rich Perlberg (and a pint of his blood!) helped to make this blood bank a most successful one. We also would like to extend, via The Record, a special thank you to the seventy-three kind and generous people who literally gave of themselves to help others.

Bust Fuzzbusters

To the Editor:

Just the name Fuzzbuster implies disrespect for the police and law. Mr. Walter Bird's argument supporting the use of fuzzbusters included statements like, "If drivers did not have them the police would be writing a lot of needless tickets... I have nothing against the 55 mile-per-hour limit and follow it when I'm not in a hurry..." These show an attitude being picked up by many young people who refer to police as Pigs.

I believe tickets are not needless. They let the auto insurance companies know which drivers are most likely to cause accidents and therefore charge these drivers higher rates. Also, I think anyone who usually drives 65 or 70 miles-per-hour with a fuzzbuster will continue to use it at these speeds when he's not in a hurry.

For the energy crisis we are supposedly experiencing, it has been proven that the majority of cars and trucks get better gas mileage at 45-to-55 miles per hour. A person who drives 65 to 70 miles-per-hour wastes gas and time. The time is wasted at the gas station with more frequent fill-ups to go the same distance.

Thomas J. Northrup

Do you know the name of your district representative in Congress? Of course, if you're reading this column you do, but a nationwide poll conducted by CBS-News in January revealed that 58 percent of those responding didn't.

Part of the problem lies in the fact that a Congressman's schedule requires spending ten months in Washington, making district work possible only on weekends or during recesses.

This situation disturbs me, because I think district work is central to the definition of representative government. How can we have a government "by the people" as our forefathers envisioned if the people don't have contact with their representative?

Because I don't want this to happen in the second district, I've logged over 10,000 miles between Washington and Michigan, returning to the district on weekends. While there, I try to be accessible to citizens through various scheduled events, or by just walking door-to-door through neighborhoods and area facilities.

I've found that constituents have been quite open with me, whether their remarks take the form of compliments or complaints.

I think one of the most effective means for keeping these channels of communication open has been our neighborhood town meetings. We've had ten of these so far, and by the end of April, we will have had one in all areas of our district, centrally located in places that make it easy for all interested citizens to attend.

I conduct these meetings personally with chalkboard nearby. We keep them informal, and any issue is fair game. Some have led to rather lively discussions.

One of the complaints that I've heard often in these meetings, and in other areas throughout the district, is that our government has turned into a "crisis" government. These citizens feel that too much is done too fast, before they even have a chance to make themselves heard on an issue.

A recent example of such a situation was the "quick-fix" Social Security bill which was pushed through Congress before the Christmas recess. Many congressmen who voted for the bill went home and found constituents who were unhappy with the tremendous tax increase they would face because of it. Now, these legislators are in the midst of trying to undo the damage.

Such a situation need not be. I'm happy to say that I voted against the bill, largely because citizen after citizen back in the district told me they were against the bill before the vote took place.

This kind of communication must continue. It's essential to assure that Members of Congress serve not only as legislators, but also as true representatives.

News

From Lansing

By R. Robert Geake
State Senator

Final legislative approval has been given to the controversial "holder-in-lieu-course" bill, better known by its popular name, "The Auto Lemon Bill."

The measure, House Bill 4073, would allow people with defective automobiles to withhold their monthly payments until their vehicles are repaired. This stop-payment plan would apply only to car sales in which the dealer provides financing through a financial institution — estimated to be about 30 percent of sales in Michigan.

It took many months for the bill to work its way through the legislative process, largely because Senate and House members differed widely as to how broad the measure's provisions should be.

The House advocated a more liberal version of the bill which would have allowed people to stop payments altogether during a legal dispute over a vehicle which turns out to be defective, and to withhold payments at any point during the entire length of a loan.

The Senate, on the other hand, approved a more restricted version which would have required payments to be deposited in an escrow account during disputes, and set a two-year statute of limitations on the stop-payment provision.

The House later agrees to a compromise, voting to require a judge to determine if the buyer would be financially hard-pressed before ordering payments deposited into an escrow account, but refusing to go along with the statute of limitations.

I voted in favor of the compromise version, which passed the Senate by a vote of 28 to 5. The measure has now gone to the Governor for his signature.

Patients in nursing homes in Michigan would see their legal rights spelled out in law, under a bill recently reported from the Senate Appropriations Committee.

This bill, Senate Bill 659, had earlier won approval by the Senate Committee on Health, Social Services, and Retirement, on which I serve. It then went to the Appropriations Committee for study of its fiscal implications.

The bill was designed to ensure quality treatment of persons living in nursing homes, but is highly controversial because it would require much higher standards of care and facilities than the state provides in its own institutions, while doing nothing to guarantee medicare reimbursement rates at a level anywhere near what the state is now spending from taxpayer funds for the public facilities.

The bill has been criticized for interference with nursing home administrators' right and freedom to manage their own facilities and praised for the standards and patients' rights safeguards it contains. The full Senate began consideration of the bill this week, then halted abruptly when several members realized the vast implications and profound complexities of the bill, which they had not had an opportunity to study.

Fenton, 1978 exchange city, boasts long history

Like Northville, Fenton resides in the extreme corner of the county in which it is located — in this case Genesee.

First record of any governmental action affecting Fenton was the split between the town and the township, then known as Argentine, early in 1837.

First Fenton Township meeting was held in "Fentonville" in what now is downtown Fenton.

The township form of government continued for the next 20 years. In 1857 the state legislature authorized formation of villages and cities and on September 10, 1862, a list of 25 registered voters of the area incorporated their town as a village.

closely following the Detroit Tigers baseball games.

The Fenton dignitaries will be welcomed at Northville City Hall at 9:15 a.m. Monday with flag raising by city police at 9:30 a.m. accompanied by the Northville High School Band.

A tour of city hall will follow with visitors then being taken to Northville Laboratories for a tour at 10:15 a.m.

Mayor Brabon and her party will be traditional honor guests at the Northville Rotary luncheon at Northville Presbyterian Church. At this time annual beautification awards will be presented.

At 1:30 p.m. men in the visiting group are to tour the Ford Valve Plant while women shop in Northville stores.

At 2 p.m. Jack Burkman will guide guests on a tour of Mill Race Historical Village. Tour of Northville Downs is scheduled for 3 p.m. before the Fenton guests return home for a traditional exchange dinner with Northville dignitaries at John Laffery's Fenton restaurant at 7:30 p.m.

Northville Mayor and Mrs. Paul Vernon with Herman Hartner, Jr., superintendent of the Northville Department of Public Works, and Mrs. Hartner will arrive in Fenton at 8:45 a.m. Monday to begin a day of festivities there.

The Fenton party's Northville hosts for the exchange day, City Manager Steven Walters and Michigan Week chairman Anne Brueck, with their spouses, will go to Fenton for the dinner.

During the day Northville council members, Wallace Nichols, Burton DeRusha, Stan Johnston and Dewey

Gardner, also will host the visitors. They and their wives are invited to the exchange dinner as are City Attorney Philip Ogilvie, Ted Mapes, assistant superintendent of the DPW, Police Captain Louis Westfall, Fire Chief James Allen and Betty Lennox, controller, and their spouses.

Traditional signal that Michigan Week officially is beginning, the hanging baskets in downtown Northville, are being refurbished and will be in place through the efforts of the Northville Beautification Commission under Norma Vernon's direction.

The week officially begins with annual street washing of Main Street from Hutton to Center and city hall by Northville city firemen at 7:15 a.m. this Saturday.

Sunday parishioners will be asked at church services to pause to reflect on their religion in Michigan, Mrs. Brueck reports.

Downtown shoppers will be entertained on Thursday, May 25, of Michigan Week with an hour-long concert by the Northville Jazz Band in front of Northville Pharmacy on Main Street.

A civic recognition dinner at which the city says "thank you" to officers, commission and board members, firemen and DPW workers and their spouses has been revived this year and will be held at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, May 25, at United Methodist Church of Northville. About 200 are expected. Service awards will be presented.

A highlight of the evening will be a presentation by Northville Recreation Commission of 20-year old film clips depicting early day camps and junior baseball activities as well as other recreation projects that were under the direction of Stan Johnston at the time.

Trust and respect

Band's Quebec trip earns raves

The Northville High School band students who journeyed to Quebec earlier this year returned home with more than a thrilling musical experience.

The 76 youngsters not only turned in music hall, but, according to the chaperones on the trip, they also behaved perfectly during what was for many their first real test of self-responsibility as an independent person away from home.

While at Quebec, they played before packed houses, got a first-hand look at a different culture and, not incidentally, had a great time.

"Musically, it was outstanding and personally it was one of the best times of my life," said band director Robert Williams.

The seniors who went to Daytona for the unofficial class trip during Spring break also had a fine time.

Unfortunately, for some, the revelry, excitement and drinking got out of hand to the point where damage was done to a local motel where they were staying.

The Quebec and Daytona experiences demonstrate the pluses and minuses of student trips. They can be extremely rewarding both in terms of education and self-growth. Or, they can be major headaches when the students are not able to handle the responsibility.

"Travel is a great experience," said high school Principal George Aune.

"It comes down to a philosophy of how much trust do you give a young person. Basically, we have a lot of trust and faith.

Situated between Linden and Holly, it has had a healthy commercial and industrial growth and has played a key role in Genesee County government.

It is Fenton's industrial corridor that Northville motorists see as they head north on US-23 expressway. Consisting of 170 acres of land, which has paved streets and utilities in place, it is one of the few industrial parks in Michigan to have a Class A industrial park rating.

Besides having four interchange connections with US-23, three of them inside the city limits, Fenton is on the main line of the Grand Trunk Western railway.

Fenton, Fenton Township and Linden share in operation of the sanitary sewer district, which services the entire area. The city is served by three city-operated water wells with a capacity of 3,000,000 gallons of water per day. The water is treated to remove iron.

Fenton Area Public Schools services approximately 3,500 students with more than 152 teachers and a total personnel staff of more than 265. Its student-teacher ratio is 24-1, with better than 40 percent of the teaching staff at the masters degree level or above.

Fenton has five public schools and one parochial school (Catholic, K-8). Except for the main structure at the middle school, all public school buildings were constructed after 1966.

The school system has been accredited by the North-Central Association since 1926, and it holds the distinction of being accredited by the University of Michigan since 1876 — an honor shared by only five other school systems in the state.

Within a 10 mile radius of the Fenton-

Holly-Linden area are 58 lakes.

The new Seven Lakes State Park, an area of 1,400 acres offering swimming fishing and camping facilities, is on the city border of Fenton. On Silver Lake, within the Fenton city limits, is Silver-Lake Beach and Park with a municipal beach and picnic site.

In Fenton the chief service and fraternal organizations are the Kiwanis club, the Lions club, the Jaycees, the Double X club, the Optimists, Eagles, Masons, and the Order of the Eastern Star.

The remaining section of Fenton Township, which is approximately 10,000 population, is located 12 miles south of Flint and is divided by US-23.

Township governmental offices are located in a new Civic Community Center on Lake Fenton. The township provides sanitary sewers, police, fire and garbage collection.

1.5 millage hike

it was pointed out.

Among other more specific complaints or questions leveled at the budget and council reactions to them:

— Why must council hire a police chief?

Answer: The position was provided for in the last budget, but was not filled. Part of the earmarked monies, however, were used for overtime payments. City officials have been bombarded with demands that a chief be hired, and they recognize that from an operational and morale standpoint filling of this long vacant post is essential.

— Crime does not justify the hiring of two additional patrolmen.

Answer: If it were not for the city's obligation, under state law, to provide adequate police protection at Northville Downs the two additional officers would not be necessary. One reason the city receives racing rebates ($679,000 this year) is to provide this service.

The two regular full-time policemen, which will be used at the Downs only about five months a year, will be assigned to city duties the remainder of the year. Hiring of qualified officers for only five months a year is not possible.

Because presently the city is using more experienced, ranking officers for this work on an overtime basis, council believes pay of the two new patrolmen will be offset by the reduction in the more costly overtime pay of ranking officers, while at the same time providing more efficient police service elsewhere in the city.

— Why does the budget show so much equipment rental?

Answer: It is an accounting procedure to better keep track of how city equipment is used. In effect, the city is renting its own equipment to itself. The procedure enables the city to assign cost of the equipment to those departments that use it.

— Under reorganization of the department of public works, the existing assistant DPW superintendent is to take the place of the retiring superintendent. If the reorganized DPW is not to have an assistant now why was the assistant necessary before?

Answer: Because previously the assistant was more a title, a training ground for the superintendent-to-be. The salary paid the assistant was not consistent with the title.

— The budget increase far exceeds increases in social security for senior citizens.

Answer: The increase millage is completely offset by rebates in state income taxes. Citizens should take advantage of the rebate credit formula.

Although they remained convinced that the increased city tax "is too high," the three citizens conceded that city services generally are exceptionally good and that reduction of those services would not be appreciated.

Kunst's conclusion pretty much summed up the position of all three:

"I don't come here to be abusive or abrasive. Steve (Walters) is a heck of a good neighbor — and so is the mayor — even though I disagree with them. But the fact remains, it (budget) keeps coming out the same (higher and higher)."

"It (the annual increase) has to stop someplace," said Adams.

High school PTSO meets Tuesday

New Northville High School PTSO officers will be elected Tuesday night when the association conducts its last general meeting of this school year.

The Parent Teacher Organization meeting begins at 8 p.m. in the high school cafeteria.

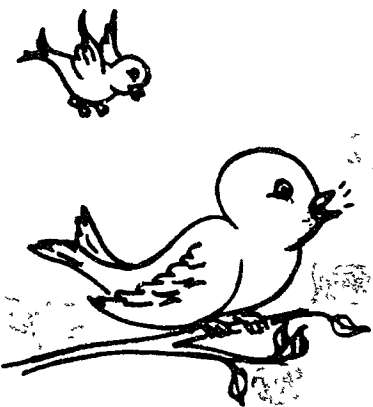

Richard Barron and Karen Wilkinson, the candidates who are running unopposed for two board of education seats in the June 12 election, will speak and answer questions at the session.

"The PTSO specifically invites all the ninth grade students and their parents to attend," said President Elizabeth Lockwood.

"It will provide an opportunity for the incoming sophomore class and their parents to view the school and meet some of the other high school parents."

Mustangs capture Cardinal Relays

The Cardinal Relays have been like a welcome friend for Northville's tracksters the last two years.

Sparked by victories in five events and top three finishes in four others, the Mustangs came home from the Jackson-area meet with their second straight championship trophy last weekend, beating out seven other schools for top honors.

The local squad won all three medley races — the sprint, intermediate and distance — as well as the long jump and mile relays, garnering 44 points in all and finishing seven points ahead of runner-up Holt. Mason wound up third with 36 points while Jackson Lumen Christi was fourth with 33 points.

In the process of winning the Mustangs also corrected one of the biggest troubles they've had this spring.

"All season long we've been having problems with our handoffs," coach Ed Gabrys explained, noting that the team has been successfully turning over the baton at only about a 70 percent efficiency rate this spring. "I felt we should be closer to 99 percent."

So, the Mustangs stumbled just once in 24 handoffs at the Cardinals, and the result was some of the team's best performances of the season, including a meet record in one event.

Brian Turnbull, Harry Couyoumjian, Doug Wright and John Monagle combined for a 5:59.6 clocking in the intermediate medley relay (one and a half miles), setting the team's third meet record in the past two years. Last year Northville set marks in the shuttle hurdles relay and the distance medley relay.

Earlier in the meet Turnbull, Couyoumjian, Monagle and Tom Doyle had joined forces to successfully defend Northville's distance medley championship, winning the five-mile event in 24:08.6.

Ken Weber, Brian Prom, Myles Couyoumjian and Jim Weston teamed up to give the Mustangs two more victories — in the sprint medley and mile relays — while Prom, Ray Coram and Myles Couyoumjian led the squad to yet another triumph in the long jump relay. Prom's 20'9" leap during the long jump relay was Northville's longest of the season.

Coram, Prom, Toby White and Rob Marzonie just missed giving Gabrys' crew a sixth first place in the shuttle hurdles relay. The four combined for a 59.6 clocking and a second-place finish,

.2 seconds behind Mason's winning unit.

In addition the Mustangs posted third-place finishes in the 440 relay (Coram, Kevin Schugar, Andrew Walsh and Dan Troher), the two mile relay (John Coram, Brian Gallivan, Dave Massel and Scott Fisher) and the pole vault relay (Steve Jensen and Craig Raycraft).

Walled Lake Western victory is track squad's first of season

Those sprinters coach Ed Gabrys figured he was lacking earlier in the season came through in the clutch last Thursday.

Northville's track squad, spurred by key victories in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, won its first dual meet of the year with an 81-77 triumph over Walled Lake Western.

The Mustangs only took seven of a possible 16 first places in the meet, held at Western's track, and failed to get any victories at all in what's considered their strongest areas, the middle and long distance events.

But when things got tight it was the sprints that turned the tide in Northville's favor.

Paced by Myles Couyoumjian the Mustangs went 1-2-4 in the 100-yard dash and 1-3-4 in the 220, giving them a crucial 17-5 edge in an area Gabrys considered weak at the start of the season. Andrew Walsh was right on Couyoumjian's heels both times while fourth place went to Dan Troher in the 100 and Ray Coram in the 220.

"We expected to run ahead of them by about five points in the sprints," Gabrys acknowledged, "but not by 12. Those kids really came through for us."

He also noted some exceptional performances from his hurdlers. As usual

Brian Prom and Rob Marzonie placed Northville's efforts in the low and high hurdles, where they outpointed the Warriors 17-5.

But the biggest surprise of the day came in the high hurdles when Marzonie, a sophomore, edged Prom out by .05 seconds to win the event in 16.0. It was the first time this season any Mustang runner has beaten Prom in the hurdles, and it gave the local squad a 1-2-4 finish. Toby White placed fourth in 17.3.

Earlier in the meet Prom and Marzonie had gone 1-2 in the lows, Prom in 41.5 and Marzonie in 41.6.

Another crucial sweep came in the long jump, where Prom's 20'3" leap paced a 1-2-3 Northville finish. Coram finished second and Couyoumjian third.

That, plus White's winning showings in the discus and shot put, helped the Mustangs stay within five points of Western coming out of the field events, where Northville has normally been overwhelmed this season.

Tim Ellis (125'11") and Luigi Folino (125'10") went 2-3 in the discus and Ellis placed second in the shot.

The local squad's only other victory came in the 880 relay, where Coram, Troher, Couyoumjian and Kevin Schugar combined for a first-place finish. Northville failed to win an individual running event longer than the 220, however. Led by Mike Mayes, one of the top distance runners in the state, the Warriors won the 880, the mile and the two mile. They also finished 1-2 in the 440.

"We knew Mayes would be tough to beat," Gabrys said, "but we didn't expect to get outscored by so much (27-17)" in the four middle and long distance events.

Brian Turnbull and Tom Doyle placed second and third in the two mile, Harry Couyoumjian and Turnbull were third and fourth in the mile; John Monagle, Harry Couyoumjian and Brian Gallivan placed 2-3-4 in the 880; and Jim Weston and Ken Weber went 3-4 in the 440.

"It was kind of nice to win that one," Gabrys said. "We expected to run a little better overall in terms of points, but there were a lot of good performances."

The Mustangs are now 1-2 in the league, with a meet at Plymouth Canton scheduled this afternoon. Saturday they'll compete in the Class A reginals at Farmington High before closing their Western Six dual meet season against Farmington Harrison next Monday.

Brian Prom had team's best effort of the season in long jump relay

Baseball team loses 2

Goodbye Western Six title hopes

Inconsistency killed the Mustangs — and their hopes for a high Western Six baseball standing — last week.

Despite getting off to early leads both times, Northville dropped a pair of league games to Livonia Churchill and Waterford Mott, plunging their Western Six record to 2-5 and destroying any chances the club had for a first or second-place finish this season. The Mustangs have now lost five straight games and stand 5-7 on the season.

Northville outhit Churchill 5-4 last Wednesday and played what coach Bob Kucher termed a "very strong" defensive ball game, but wound up on the short end of a 5-3 score. Two days later the Mustangs more than tripled their scoring output, but this time fell apart on defense and suffered a 13-10 setback at the hands of Mott.

"A key hit here and there could have turned the game around," Kucher said of the Churchill contest, played in the best weather the team has seen all spring. "I think the big difference was that they (Churchill) were able to push runs across when they had men on second and third but we weren't."

A perfect example was the sixth inning. Trailing 3-1 in the top of the sixth, Northville loaded the bases with no outs but failed to score. A force out at the plate, a botched suicide squeeze and a strikeout snuffed the threat.

Churchill then wrapped things up in the bottom of the inning on a two-out, two-run single by Dave Krick with men on second and third.

"That kind of hurt," Kucher said of the Chargers' sixth-inning scores, "because I felt we still had a good chance of catching them until then. But instead of going into the seventh trailing 3-1 we were down 5-1, and that's tough to make up."

The Mustangs did threaten, though. They again loaded the bases on a leadoff single by Tim Doyle, an infield error and a walk to Dan Thomas. Back-to-back sacrifice flies by Jim Behen and Doug Marzonie knocked two runs in, but that ended the scoring.

Northville had jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the top of the first on a leadoff single and stolen base by Marzonie, a sacrifice bunt by Mike McClure, a walk to Don Borthwick and a double steal. Churchill bounced back with two in the first half of the first, though, on a two-out two-run single by Chris Klegg, and the Chargers never trailed again.

Doyle pitched what Kucher considered his "best outing of the year" but took the loss, dropping his record to 2-3 this season. The senior right-hander gave up just four hits and five walks and struck out three in going the distance.

A day later the Mustangs finally took advantage of their men on base, scoring 10 runs on just eight hits, but lost a 13-10 slugfest to Mott.

"It was the kind of game where it appeared neither team really wanted to win," Kucher said. "We had a real good hitting game, but we had a lot of defensive letdowns."

The Mustangs, in fact, had five errors that resulted in eight unearned runs for Mott.

Mott opened the scoring with a run in the top of the first, but Northville retaliated with four of its own in the bottom of the frame, all with two outs. Jeff Norton cracked a bases-loaded single to get two in, a third scored on a wild pitch and Norton came home with the fourth on a double steal.

The Corsairs came back to knot things up, but Pete Wright slammed his second homerun of the season in the third to make it 5-4.

Northville came up with four more in the fourth, all with two outs again, on an error, a passed ball and four singles, including run-scoring punches by Thomas, Norton and Doyle. That made it 9-6 in favor of the hosts, but then came disaster.

Mott exploded for five unearned runs in the fifth on two walks, two errors and two hits, including a three-run homer by Jeff Berridge, and stayed ahead for good. The Mustangs scored once more in the sixth on a walk and stolen base by Wright and an error, and Mott finished up with two more in the seventh on a two-run homer by John Cooperdier.

"That was a little discouraging," Kucher said of the Mott loss, "especially since eight of their runs were unearned. It was just a combination of poor defense and poor pitching."

Among Northville's bright spots in the game were Norton and Wright. Norton went three-for-four at the plate, upping his team-leading batting average to .333, and knocked in three RBI's while Wright went two-for-three and knocked in two to kick his batting average up to .297.

The Mustangs next see action this afternoon when they host league-leading Plymouth Canton. Tomorrow they'll host Howell in a make-up doubleheader that gets under way at 2 p.m., and on Friday they'll host Walled Lake Western in another make-up game from two days ago.

They'll meet the winner of this week's Farmington-Southfield state tournament contest in pre-district action next week. That game will most likely take place either next Thursday or Friday (May 25 or 26).

Rain, rain won't go away

It may be great for the grass, but all that rain we've been getting this spring has been making a shambles of Northville's school and recreation sports schedules.

As of Monday rain and poor field conditions caused by the downpours had cancelled or postponed eight varsity and seven jayvee baseball games, two tennis matches, six softball contests and three track meets at the high school level.

It's also been responsible for postponing the start of the rec department's youth soccer season last month, and most recently washed out 32 of last week's 36 scheduled junior baseball games, 12 of 16 men's softball games and all six of last week's women's and co-ed softball contests.

But that's not all. It also postponed last weekend's early men's softball tournament at Thomson Field until this weekend and forced a revamping of the tournament's set-up because of some teams dropping out.

And there's still five full weeks of spring left.

Athlete of week

Doug Castillo hasn't even come close to losing a match for Northville's powerful tennis squad this season. As of Monday the Mustangs' second singles ace was 13-0, winning all 13 matches in straight sets, and he's rated the top player in his flight at this weekend's Plymouth regionals. Last week the big senior picked up his 12th and 13th victories of the season over Livonia Churchill and Waterford Mott, losing just four games in the process.

Netters roll on, dump Churchill and Mott

It wasn't quite as easy the second time around, but Northville's netters kept their unbeaten Western Six record intact last week, battling two league foes for the second time this season.

The Mustangs lost two of three doubles matches and had to battle back for a win in the other at Livonia Churchill last Wednesday, but wound up a 5-2 victor. Earlier in the season the local squad had beaten Churchill 6-1 at home.

"The same type of thing happened last year," coach Bob Simpson remarked. "It's always tougher beating them at their place. You'd like to win 7-0, but it's a victory and I'm pleased with that."

Northville's only doubles victory came from Greg Bach and John Cannarsa, who roared back from a 6-0 defeat in the first set to win two tiebreakers at third doubles. Steve Laffler and Steve Pyett lost 7-6, 6-3 at first doubles while Jeff Hodge and Eric Engelmeyer bowed 5-7, 6-3, 6-3 at number two.

All four singles players, however, came out on top.

Barry Ouellette upped his record to 11-1 with a 6-4, 6-2 victory at number one. Doug Castillo remained undefeated with a 6-0, 6-2 win at number two. Lance Carter won 6-3, 6-0 in a romp at number three and John Marzonie took number four 6-2, 6-3.

A day later the Mustangs won six matches in straight sets but lost the seventh in a 6-1 victory over Waterford Mott. Earlier this season Simpson's squad had beaten Mott 7-0.

All three doubles team rolled to easy wins this time. Laffler and Pyett won 6-2, 6-2, Hodge and Engelmeyer duplicated that score and Bach and Cannarsa breezed 6-0, 6-0.

In singles play Ouellette romped 6-1, 6-0. Castillo coasted 6-1, 6-1 and Marzonie won 6-4, 6-3, but Carter lost a tough three-setter 4-6, 6-4, 6-1.

The two victories hiked Northville's overall record this season to 12-1, 7-0 in the Western Six, with a home meet slated against Plymouth Canton this afternoon.

What rain? Soccer teams play on

There was no swimming pool around, so Northville's Cosmos soccer team celebrated their first victory in 20 games by tossing their coach into the next best thing last weekend — a big mud puddle.

The Cosmos victory highlighted a weekend full of unusual happenings as WSSL soccer clubs throughout the area were forced to play in weather more suited for ducks.

Eric Smolenski scored two goals and George Daraban tallied one, the fourth straight game in which he's scored, as coach Don Disdorf's squad walked off with a 3-0 win over Westland no. 2, thus ending a 19-game losing streak that dated back to last spring for the local 10-and-under club.

Preserving the shutout for the Cosmos was goalie Robby Huot, who had a puddle of his own to overcome in front of the net.

In other 10-and-under action last week the Black Knights rolled up the biggest reported score of the season in stomping Westland no. 1, 18-0, while United fought to a 1-1 standoff with Livonia no. 11.

Despite rotating players throughout the game, coach Pete Maganan was unable to keep the score down in the Black Knights' victory. Led by Phil Pendleton, who had four goals, nine different players scored.

Ken Slattery added three for the winners; Mark Zayti, Mark Guard, Wade Magnan and Herguth tallied two apiece; and Mike Kelly, Kenet Neal and Rick Alonzo had one each. Center half Andy Levan also helped set up several of the goals.

Flip of Kiwanis coin decides winner of big trophy

"It's a draw," conceded members of the Northville and Holt Kiwanis clubs finally as the teams of handicapped children sponsored by the two rival clubs would up a home-and-away bowling tournament here Saturday.

But by a flip of the coin the bigger of two team trophies went to the Holt children.

"If it wasn't for the fact that every one of these children performed so well — both from Northville and from Holt, we might protest the judges' findings," said Northville Kiwanis Club President

C. Thomas Sechler.

Sechler and his fellow Kiwanians had proclaimed Northville the champ even before the last bowler swung for the pins at Northville Lanes.

Northville, however, by previous agreement had to spot Holt 35 pins.

Even so, and despite what Sechler called "devious scoring" in the first contest at Holt, the children from Northville piled up a total of 1759 pins. Holt children had 1394.

In the first contest held at Holt, a community located near East Lansing, Holt Kiwanians claimed a narrow victory based on what they called a "rolling inverted average."

Developer of the controversial Holt scoring was Hugh Lockhart, formerly of Northville, who directs the Kiwanis bowling program for the Holt club.

Lockhart, immediate past president of the Northville Club, established the bowling program for physically and mentally handicapped children here several years ago. He did the same in Holt upon moving there last year.

Holt Kiwanians hosted the Northville children for lunch following the first contest in Holt on April 22.

Following the second "home" contest here Saturday, Northville Kiwanians hosted children from both communities, their parents and chaperones at a picnic lunch at the city hall.

Originally planned for the Rouge Parkway, the picnic was chased indoors by Saturday's rain.

Each of the children was presented a "certificate of outstanding accomplishment" by the Northville club.

The Kiwanis bowling program here is conducted twice monthly at Northville Lanes. Monies for the program is provided by the club through its various fund-raising events — such as the annual horse show to take place Memorial Day weekend at Northville Downs.

Because of the horse show activity, bowling originally scheduled for children on May 27 has been cancelled. The next bowling session will be held on June 10.

All winners!

The fishing's VERY good

That's no baby fish Englishman Bob Martin (center) is showing off. It's an 18½-pound carp he caught off the shores of Highland Lake last week. He also caught the 10½-pound carp his son Roger is holding as well as the 14-pounder lying there in the net. The Martins, an English-born family now living in New Zealand, are visitors of Alan and Jean Cooper of Malvern Court in Northville. Martin, who says he's been "fascinated by the big shops" and small-town atmosphere of this area during his visit here, is an avid fisherman in New Zealand as well, only he goes for a bit larger game there — sharks. Oh, and that's Tina Martin holding the family cat Cocoa on the left.

Youth soccer teams play over rain

United, sparked by Matt Spencer's first goal ever, had a 1-0 lead throughout most of its contest before Livonia tied the game with just five minutes remaining.

In 12-and-under boys' action, meanwhile, Arsenal romped to an 11-0 victory over Plymouth no. 6; United edged Livonia no. 3, 2-1; and the Champs blanked the Blazers in an all-Northville game, 3-0.

Steve Starcevic's three goals paced Arsenal's triumph, while Mickey McGrath and Jeff Metz added two each and Bill Butterfield, Mike Sylvestre, Chris Sefic and Larry Salmeto one apiece. Salmeto's goal was his first of the year.

Mike Wissman tallied both United goals, including one on a curving shot from the corner that his coach termed "the score of the year."

Tom Veselenak, Shawn Allen and Scott Greiner each scored once in the Champs' victory, but Blazers' goalie Chris Cole prevented a bigger rout by stopping three penalty shots during the contest.

In girls' 10-and-under action the Foxes bounced Westland 11-0, while the Start and Pink Panthers both lost 1-0 games to Plymouth clubs.

Stacy Lineman had four goals, including one on a header, to lead the Foxes to victory, the team's eighth in a row dating back to last fall. Lineman now has 19 goals in four games this spring. Julie Anger added three goals for the winners while Jennifer Kuffner, Julie Kaestner, Devan Voelker and Carla Vincenti kicked in one apiece.

Despite their losses both the Stars and Panthers got strong efforts from their goalies. Charise Beether made 14 saves for the Stars while Laura Daly, playing goal for the first time, had nine saves. Daly was helped by Laura Ryba, who made eight defensive saves as a center fullback.

In other girls' action over the weekend the 12-and-under Foxes defeated Livonia no. 3, 6-0 and the 14-and-under Aztecs tied 1-1 with Farmington no. 1.

Fullbacks Patti Payne and Krista Kibby sparked the Foxes' victory with a strong defensive effort, limiting Livonia to just one shot on a goal in the game. Jan Moylan and Kathy Kerwin had two goals each and Lisa Cahill and Jill Anger one for the winners.

Center fullback Michelle Waldman, meanwhile, was named player of the game in the Aztecs' contest. Lisa Brownell scored the local club's lone goal.

Other reported scores from Northville teams are listed below.

Lucky Stars

Members of Northville's 19-and-under Stars' soccer squad served as ball girls at the Detroit Express contest in the Pontiac Silverdome last Sunday.

The local girls were responsible for retrieving out-of-bounds kicks during the Express's game with the Minnesota Kicks and visited with the players afterwards. The Express, unfortunately, lost 1-0.

HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS

What has a Week in May to do with Financial Aid and a College Education?

If you haven't yet made plans for college because of finances, or because of indecision about what your life's work should be, DON'T DELAY! We have scholarships, loans and jobs available to assist you. In fact, 100% of your need — as computed by state and federal scholarship agencies — can be met, so it may be easier than you think to attend college this Fall. You needn't be concerned, either, about not knowing what you want to study. Over 30% of college freshmen generally, haven't made this decision. You can start with the basic subjects and not waste time and besides college is the place to find the answers. Often, waiting until "I can afford it," or until "I'm set on a major," can turn into a lifetime of waiting. At Northern we have programs ranging from Pre-med to Art & Design, and vocational training from Aviation Tech to Welding. Northern has a one, two, or four-year program that can lead you to a richer and fuller life.

CALL US ON OUR HOT-LINE 1-800-682-9797

Use our toll-free line (within Michigan) to discuss financial aid and get answers to all your questions. Because the daytime use of the line is so busy, we've set a special week May 22-26 to have the line available from 6:00 to 9:00 p.m. We look forward to your call.

"Working to put tomorrow in good hands."

Softballers lose, 10-2

Livonia Churchill proved its 2-0 victory earlier in the season was no fluke as the Chargers rolled to a 10-2 victory over Northville in softball action last Wednesday.

Mustang pitcher Julie Abraham held the visitors to just one hit in the first three innings as Northville jumped out to an early 2-0 lead, but Churchill bounced back with all 10 of its runs in the next three innings and coasted.

"Churchill's pitcher put on a fine display of pitching talent," coach Mary Minor commented afterwards, noting that she struck out five Northville batters while giving up just four hits and no walks. The Livonia club, on the other hand, picked up nine hits but only one walk off Abraham.

Both of Northville's runs came on singles by Kim Kurzawa and Chris Suddendorf plus a pair of steals and errors in the first inning.

The Mustangs are now 5-4 on the season, 3-3 in the Western Six, with a game slated this afternoon at Plymouth Canton.

Illnesses hurt tracksters

Illness, tough competition and a severe shortage of first places contributed to two more losses for Northville's girls' track squad last week.

Competing without several team members who were ailing, the Mustangs lost 95-39 last Tuesday at Ypsilanti and 88-46 on Thursday to Walled Lake Western. Northville won a total of just five events in the two meets.

Lisa Youngquist threw the discus 88'7½", Laura Willoughby finished the two mile in 14:23 and Ann Dayton ran the 880 in 2:35 for the local team's only victories against Ypsilanti.

Other top finishers for Northville included Lissa Carter, who broke her own school record with a 16.8 clocking in the hurdles but still only placed third (she also finished second in the long jump), Yvonne Swayze (second in the discus and shot put), Kristy Iversen (second in the high jump, third in the mile) and Dayton (second in the 440).

Two days later Carter was the only winner the Mustangs had in a league loss to Western. She won the hurdles in 17.0 and the 100-yard dash in 12.2. Second-place finishers for Northville included Swayze in the shot put, Youngquist in the discus, Carter in the long jump, Iversen in the high jump and mile run, Dayton in the 220, 440 and 880 and Liz Pixley in the hurdles.

The low cost of Semta just got lower.

SEMTACARD.

Our new fare-cutting monthly pass will make you think twice about driving downtown to work.

Pay once. Save all month.

Buy SEMTACARD and you ride all month on our buses and trains, as much as you like, wherever we go. Other members of your family can use your SEMTACARD too. And you save 25% compared to our one-way cash fare over a typical 20-day commuting month. You even save 10% with our new 10-trip strip tickets. Deflation just hit transportation!

How to figure your Semtafare.

You'll notice that our map is divided onto zones, 1 through 7. Downtown Detroit is Zone 1. Locate the zone you live in and read across to your destination zone in the SEMTAFARE Table to find your cash fare denomination. (For Park & Ride or commuter train service, add an extra zone.) Under "What you pay for passes" you'll find the price of SEMTACARD and 10-trip strip tickets for that denomination.

Where to buy it.

Lots of places: SEMTA commuter rail stations, SEMTA terminals, J.L. Hudson stores (put it on your charge), many Detroit area banks and other handy places where you see our SEMTA ticket sign.

The June Semtafare is on sale now.

Buy now and be ready for a full month of savings.

LOOK WHAT YOU CAN WIN IN OUR SEMTACARD SWEEPSTAKES.

1 PRIZE OF ONE YEAR'S FREE COMMUTING. Some lucky commuter will win 12 monthly SEMTACARDS—a value of up to $480.00. And when you consider the savings this prize amounts to compared to the cost of driving downtown for a year, it's really a Grand Prize

3 PRIZES OF 6 MONTH'S FREE COMMUTING. One SEMTACARD a month for the next 6 months. Each prize has a value of up to $240.00 depending, of course, on the commuting distance. Again, the value grows even bigger when you compare these freebies to the cost of driving to work.

5 PRIZES OF 3 MONTH'S FREE COMMUTING. A very substantial saving for the 5 lucky commuters who will receive one SEMTACARD a month for 3 consecutive months. That's long enough to get them in the habit of riding SEMTA. And it's very habit-forming 100 PRIZES OF 1 MONTH'S FREE COMMUTING. For 100 people, the ride on us, is on us. For a full month. For some, it will be an opportunity to sample our service for free. For all it'll mean a tidy saving in daily travel cost.

PICK UP YOUR ENTRY BLANK WHEREVER SEMTA TICKETS ARE SOLD. You don't have to buy anything to get one. Ask for your entry blank at any SEMTA ticket outlet, including commuter rail stations, J.L. Hudson stores and banks displaying our ticket sale sign. SEMTACARD mail order customers will receive an entry blank with orders received on or before June 15.

SEMTACARD SWEEPSTAKES RULES:
1 Print name, address and zip code and mail entry blank to SEMTACARD SWEEPSTAKES, P.O. Box 333, Detroit, Michigan 48231. Entries available at SEMTACARD sales locations and by mail.

2 SEMTACARD Sweepstakes prizes will be awarded June 30, 1978. All prizes must be used before August 1, 1979. Prizes are nontransferable and substitute cash awards will not be made.

3 Entries must be received by June 15, 1978 to be eligible.

4 Winners will be determined in a random drawing conducted by SEMTACARD personnel. The probability of winning is based on the total number of entries received. All prizes will be awarded. No substitution of prizes will be allowed.

5 Employees (and their families) of SEMTA and its advertising agencies and suppliers are not eligible.

Anti-terrorist school

Wayne County Sheriff's Detective Louis Levin dismantles a radio-activated "bomb" discovered in the backseat of a limousine being used to carry a "presidential candidate" during special-anti-terrorist training conducted at the former Child Development Center campus in Northville Township. George Simmons, far left, executive protection specialist taking the course, discovered the "bomb" before it could go off. Instead of exploding, the training devices are rigged to send off loud beeps. Umpires then decided if the "candidate" was killed or not. Looking on are Wayne County Commissioners Mary Dumas, Norbert Wisniewski and Alex Pilch. According to Raymond Megg, Wayne County Sheriff's Department internal security chief, who was in charge of the school, said more than 50 students from as far away as Georgia and Tennessee took part in the two-day exercise.

A mystery and a novel about the Cold War are among the three adult fiction and two juvenile books that have been added to the Northville Public Library shelves.

JUVENILE

"A Very Young Rider," by Jill Kremetz; a 10-year-old girl relates her experiences as she and her pony train and prepare for riding competition.

"The Strongest One of All: based on a Caucasian folktale," by Mirra Ginsberg, in which a lamb asks the ice, clouds, rain, earth and grass who is the strongest one.

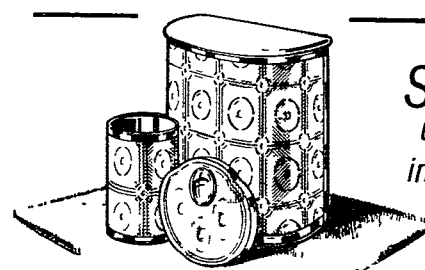

ADULT FICTION

"The Public Burning," by Robert Coover, is a novel of the Cold War in the early 1950's.

Legion poppy sale's coming up Thursday

Aiding disabled veterans and their families is the theme. The poppy is the symbol. And the American Legion, Post 147, of Northville will put it all together Thursday.

This year's annual poppy sale, according to Elizabeth Hartley, Miss Poppy Queen for Post 147, is as important as any since the American Legion became the first national organization to adopt the poppy as its memorial flower.

It was the poppy that bloomed on the battlefields of France in 1919.

The red crepe paper flowers are made by disabled veterans in hospitals and given to those who donate monies to aid these veterans.

Together with other members of the American Legion post here, Mayor and Mrs. Paul Vernon will be "selling" the poppies on Northville's street corners.

The sale will preview the annual Memorial Day parade and cemetery services here later this month on May 29.

"The veterans who make these poppies receive so much for each poppy they make," notes Miss Hartley, "so just give a little thought on this special day to these veterans and their families. Buy one and, believe me, you'll put a big smile on their faces."

PWP group hosts dance

Novi-Northville Chapter of Parents Without Partners is sponsoring a spring dance, "May Madness," from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Saturday at Mercy Center, 28600 Eleven Mile east of Middlebelt.

Dancing will be to the music of The Frontier. The dance is open to the public with an admission of $4.50. There will be a cash bar.

HONORED

Ann Taylor, a senior at Ladywood High School, was presented with a certificate in recognition of scholastic achievement from the Detroit Association of Phi Beta Kappa at the 13th annual honors convocation May 8 at Ford Auditorium. She lives at 902 Ely Court and will be attending the University of Michigan College of Pharmacy.

MASB backs competitive ban

The Michigan Association of School Boards, which represents some 600 Michigan school districts, has voted to support a recent National School Boards Association resolution against the institution of national championships among high school athletes.

"We believe national competition would be detrimental," said Norman Weinheimer, executive director of the MASB. "Too much pressure would be placed on high school athletes while they are still maturing."

CITY OF NOVI COUNCIL

Northville City Council Minutes

May 1, 1978

Mayor Vernon called the meeting to order at 8:00 p.m.

ROLL CALL: PRESENT: Vernon, DeRusha, Gardner, Johnston, Nichols.

MINUTES OF PREVIOUS MEETING: The Minutes of the April 17, 1978 meeting were approved with the following corrections:

Page 3, last paragraph, last sentence should read: He stated he had represented Mr. Boyd in filing the liquor transfer request and that work was completed last summer.

Page 4, 8th paragraph, Ayes: Vernon, DeRusha, Gardner, Nichols.

Page 7, "Motion Carried Unanimously" should be typed after the Motion regarding the Michigan Week Resolution.

MINUTES OF BOARDS & COMMISSIONS: The minutes of the Northville City Planning Commission, April 4, 1978, Northville Historical District Commission, February 28, 1978, Northville Housing Commission, April 18, 1978; Downtown Business Development and Expansion Ad-Hoc Committee, January 12, 1978, January 24, February 28, March 13, March 21, April 4, 1978; Recreation Commission, April 20, 1978 were placed on file.

APPROVAL OF BILLS: Motion by Councilman Johnston support by Councilman Gardner to approve the following bills as listed:

GENERAL FUND — $111,406.42; LOCAL STREET FUND — $3,219.75; MAJOR STREET FUND — $3,513.31; EQUIPMENT FUND — $18,040.37; PARKING FUND — $21,000.00; PUBLIC IMPROVEMENT FUND — $95,571.90; WATER AND SEWER FUND — $9,589.37; ALLEN TERRACE CONSTRUCTION FUND — $1,179.03; PAYROLL FUND — $6,757.16; RECREATION FUND — $5,848.08.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

COMMUNICATIONS: Association of Treasurers, Wayne County, communication regarding the Revolving Tax Fund concept which has been passed by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

Communication from Richard F. Lyon expressing concern over the action taken by the City Council in their denial of the application of William Boyd to reclaim his liquor license and reopen his bar. The communication was read in its entirety.

Councilman Nichols agreed but commented there were mitigating reasons why Council took the action they did.

Councilman DeRusha mentioned the State required the Council to act and review this type of business.

Mayor Vernon stated Council does have the right.

Councilman DeRusha asked if the City Manager could send a letter clarifying the vote to the Liquor Control Commission.

The City Attorney read his communication to the Council which stated that Mr. Boyd, in conversation with the LCC, was told he had fifteen days in which to come up with another location otherwise he would lose his license.

The City Attorney called the LCC to confirm this and was told by the LCC Supervisor of Class 'C' License Transfer Department that a meeting would be on the LCC's agenda, and that the LCC do not approve transfer of ownership of a license unless the applicant also has an approval of location. Liquor Licenses are no longer held in escrow for one year pending the owner coming up with an approved location. The LCC would likely disapprove Mr. Boyd's application and notify him. He could then request a Public Hearing.

Mayor Vernon stated Council did not want to jeopardize Mr. Boyd's license. He also asked if Council should negotiate the action that they took.

The City Attorney responded that if Council were to negotiate previous action and ask the LCC to submit with clarification the transfer, the LCC might defer their action.

The City Manager stated Council could rescind the disapproval and point out that they did not realize that both the applicant and address now had to be acted on as one consideration. He suggested this action might give Mr. Boyd more time to find another location.

Mayor Vernon expressed the Council has no qualms about Mr. Boyd as a bar operator just the location.

Motion by Councilman Nichols support by Councilman DeRusha to adopt a resolution to rescind action taken on April 17, 1978, with clarification of the reason.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

COMMUNICATIONS FROM CITIZENS: Mrs. Dorothy Baker, Owner of the Dons Beauty Shop, commented the Northville Record article on the Liquor license transfer stated nobody in the audience commented on it. She stated she wanted to but nobody saw her hand. Mrs. Baker added she would like to see Ramsay's Bar back in Northville and that you were not ashamed of it.

Mayor Vernon thanked Mrs. Baker and assured her of the importance of her opinion.

PUBLIC HEARING — FEDERAL REVENUE SHARING: The City Clerk read the notice of public hearing as published.

Mayor Vernon opened the Public Hearing and asked for any comments. There being none, he closed the public hearing.

Communication from Mrs. Shirley Matthews, 605 Grace Street, was read asking that the Federal money be used for rehabilitation of older homes, especially for older citizens or disabled and living on a fixed income.

The City Manager talked to Mrs. Matthews earlier in the day by phone. He informed her that the Federal Revenue Sharing was not the Federal monies she was referring to in her letter. He also stated the money should be assigned to the Public Safety Operational Expenses. The Revenue Sharing is not really designed as a capital outlay.

Motion by Councilman DeRusha support by Councilman Johnston to allocate the 1978-79 Federal Revenue Funds in the amount of $40,615.00 to the Public Safety Fund.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

PUBLIC HEARING — ORDINANCE TO AMEND CHAPTER 3, SECTIONS 7-318 AND 7-323 OF THE WATER SYSTEM AND CHAPTER 4, SECTION 4-402 OF THE SANITARY SEWER: Mayor Vernon opened the Public Hearing and asked for any comments, there being none, he closed the public hearing.

Motion by Councilman DeRusha support by Councilman Johnston to adopt an Ordinance to Amend Sections 7-318 and 7-323 of Chapter 3, Water System, of the Code of Ordinances of the City of Northville, to increase the Water Rates and an Ordinance to amend Section 7-402(a) of Chapter 4, Sanitary Sewers, of the Code of Ordinances of the City of Northville to increase the sewer rates.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

STAR TAXI CAB LICENSE: Mr. Henry stated he had been using the approved rates rather than his own and found he could live with them.

Motion by Councilman Johnston support by Councilman DeRusha to approve the Star Cab Company license subject to getting our insurance policy.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

VACANT LOT CARPENTER AND BASELINE: Discussion followed on this piece of property.

Mayor Vernon stated Council has chosen not to sell the property at this time.

BIDS: LIGHTS & LAMP POSTS — MILL RACE VILLAGE: The bids for light fixtures were opened at 11:00 a.m. on Friday, April 21, 1978 at the Northville City Hall, in the presence of the City Manager, City Clerk and the Tax Assessor Clerk as follows:

Addison Lighting Co., Suite 12-117 Merchandise Mart, Chicago, Ill. 60644 — 45 days del. $2,293.00

Motion by Councilman Johnston support by Councilman Gardner to accept the bid of Addison Lighting Co. in the amount of $2,293.00.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

The bids for lamp posts for Mill Race Village were opened at 11:00 a.m. on Friday, April 21, 1978 at the Northville City Hall, in the presence of the City Manager, City Clerk and the Tax Assessor Clerk as follows:

A. F. Schwerdt Mfg. Co., Pittsburgh, Pa. 15212 — 60 days del. $2,620.00

Somerset Door and Column, S. Edgewood, Somerset, Pa. 15501 — 60 days del. $2,573.00

Saco Mfg. Co., Saco, Me. 04072 — 60 days del. $336.60

Northville Lumber, Northville, MI 48167 — 7 days del. $669.60

Henry V. DeGaiaon C., Hamtramck, MI 48212 — 60 days del. $540.00

Communication from the City Manager stated an error had been made in the bid material sent out, and the model specified for Northville Lumber did not meet specs because of finger-joint construction.

Northville Lumber was asked to furnish another price according to specs, without them knowing the bids received. Their bid for a one-piece post is as follows:

Northville Lumber Co. — 7 days del. $715.00.

Motion by Councilman Gardner support by Councilman DeRusha to accept the bid of Northville Lumber Co. in the amount of $715.00.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

EIGHT MILE AND TAFT CROSSING: Mayor Vernon and the City Manager attended a meeting at Amerman School with the PTA and Amerman School officials. Mayor Vernon stated there was nothing to be acted on presently. However, there will be proposals in the near future.

Mayor Vernon commented the ingress and egress to the parking lot and parents picking up their children in front of the school are very definite problems. Also, discussed was the question of whether a guard should be placed at 8-Mile and Taft.

Mayor Vernon stated the School officials have pledged their support. He also stated the mothers will come to a Council meeting with some solutions.

Mayor Vernon asked the City Attorney to check on House Bill HB5002 the School Zone Speed Limit bill.

RESOLUTION — MUNICIPAL CLERK'S WEEK: Motion by Councilman Johnston support by Councilman Gardner to adopt a Resolution proclaiming May 14th to the 20th as Municipal Clerk's Week (A profession almost as ancient as the Clerk.)

Motion Carried Unanimously.

NORTHVILLE JAYCEES REQUEST: a. Walkathon June 3, 1978. Request for permission by the Jaycees for the City portion of the Walk for Mankind on June 3 starting at approximately 8:30 a.m. from Northville Downs. A map of the route was submitted. Also a request that the City man check point No. 1 as in the past.

Motion by Councilman Johnston support by Councilman DeRusha to approve the request of the Jaycees for the City portion of the Walk for Mankind to be held on June 3 subject to the City Manager and Police Department.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

Motion by Councilman Johnston support by Councilman Gardner to Council will again man check point No. 1.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

b. Fourth of July Parade. Mr. James Totzkay, President of the Jaycees, was present and discussed the parade route and also monies needed for parade expenses and fireworks.

Mayor Vernon asked Mr. Totzkay to submit a joint proposal to the City and Township.

Mr. Totzkay noted one change in the parade route as follows:

Starting from the Northville Downs parking lot, heading east to Beal Street to Grinswood Street instead of Northville Road then following the route as stated.

Motion by Councilman Johnston support by Councilman Gardner to accept the July 4th parade route with the change subject to the City Manager and the Police Department.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

Council recessed at 10:00 p.m. and reconvened at 10:05 p.m.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH RE: HANDICAPPED LOADING ZONE: Request from the First Presbyterian Church for a portable sign designating two parking spaces for loading and unloading handicapped persons attending functions held by the church and other organizations meeting at the church.

The City Manager will bring back a traffic control order for the next meeting.

SET PUBLIC HEARING FOR 1978-79 BUDGET: Motion by Councilman Johnston support by Councilman Gardner to set May 15, 1978 as the date for the Public Hearing on the 1978-79 Budget and publish in the local newspaper.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

ESTABLISH BUSINESS SAVINGS ACCOUNT FOR ALLEN TERRACE OPERATING FUND: Motion by Councilman Johnston support by Councilman Gardner to establish the business savings account for Allen Terrace operating fund with Manufacturers National Bank.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

MML ANNUAL CONVENTION: Communication from the MML regarding the Annual Convention to be held on September 14-16, 1978 and asking that any Resolutions which are to be considered be received by the MML by June 1.

NPOA CONTRACT PROPOSAL: Communication from the Northville Police Officers Association with a list of issues to be considered in this year's contract bargaining session.

WATER PUMPING IMPROVEMENTS: Held over for next meeting.

MISCELLANEOUS: TRAFFIC CONTROL ORDER 78-5: Communication from Louis Westfall, Captain, P.D., regarding review of the present restrictions governing all City owned parking lots. Parking restrictions at the present time only cover a twelve hour period from 9:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. daily. Traffic Control Order No. 78-5 will control problems the PD are experiencing such as overnight parking and parking of disabled vehicles placed there by automotive repair businesses.

The following changes in the order were suggested:

Municipal Parking Lot No. 2 (located on the North Side of Main Street west of Center Street to West Street):

Three (3) hour parking limit from 7:00 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., except the westerly 3 lanes north of West Street entrance.

Marking from 2:30 a.m. to 7:00 a.m. by permit only in all spaces.

It was also recommended that Free parking be changed to Unrestricted parking with the following conjunction, with Businessmen's Association, be deleted.

Motion by Councilman Nichols support by Councilman DeRusha to adopt Traffic Control Order 78-5 as amended.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

It was mentioned that those persons who live in the hotel or apartments and need to park in the City lots should apply at the City Clerk's office for a parking permit.

VANDALISM BREAKDOWN: Communication from the Police Department with the vandalism breakdown figures for the period January 1978 through March 1978.

RESOLUTION — HB 5260: Mayor Vernon pointed out that cities and villages that prohibit overnight parking will have to post specific "no parking" signs throughout the municipality. If HB5260 is enacted, it would cost the City of Northville a large sum of money to purchase and maintain these signs.

Motion by Councilman DeRusha support by Councilman Johnston to adopt a resolution No. 78-22 opposing HB5260 and that copies be sent to our Representatives, Senators, and all neighboring communities.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

RESOLUTION — SB1517: If enacted, townships throughout the state can go into court to force the county to provide a "free" road patrol which would be heavily subsidized by city taxpayers. Only 20% of the cost would be borne by the townships.

Motion by Councilman Johnston support by Councilman DeRusha to oppose Senate Bill 1517 which would mandate sheriffs patrol by the cities to patrol townships.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

Councilman Gardner requested the ordinances be examined regarding commercial vehicles being parked on private property.

The City Attorney was instructed to come back to the next meeting with suggestions for an ordinance.

Communication from Ray Spear, Superintendent of Northville Public Schools thanking City and Township in helping them become eligible to qualify for the federal emergency aid resulting from the severe snow storm of January in the amount of $1,398.

No response as yet from the United States Post Office to the City Manager's communication regarding the expansion of the Northville Post Office.

Meeting adjourned at 11:00 p.m.

Respectfully submitted
Joan G. McAlister
City Clerk

For Whipple Estates

Dead-end decision is a victory

Approximately 20 residents of Northville Township's Whipple Estates subdivision found the time to attend a morning meeting of the Wayne County Road Commission last Thursday and emerged from the 30-minute session as winners.

By unanimous vote, road commissioners elected to leave as dead ends four Whipple Estates roads which had been slated for opening in conjunction with the proposed development of North Beacon Woods, an 83.6-acre subdivision scheduled to be developed adjacent to Whipple Estates, south of Eight Mile Road and just west of the City of Northville.

Plans for the new 166-lot subdivision called for the opening of four roads in Whipple Estates: Fonner, Whipple, Ross and Valencia. However, residents of the existing subdivision opposed those plans and submitted petitions asking the road commission to leave the roads as dead ends rather than allowing them to be opened as through streets connecting both subdivisions.

In voting to grant the residents' request, the road commission went against the recommendation of its street engineer, William LaGosh.

LaGosh told commissioners it was his opinion that the opening of Whipple, Ross and Valencia represented "good planning." LaGosh recommended that Fonner be preserved as a dead-end street, however.

"In subdivisions such as these, it has been standard practice to allow for circulation through them," LaGosh stated. "Thus, this situation is very typical and it represents good planning. Opening of these three streets would provide added access opportunity for service vehicles."

But such added access is unnecessary, Northville Township Supervisor Wilson Grier told the commission. In answer to a question from Commission Chairman Michael Berry, Grier said Township Fire Chief Robert Toms "knows the fire department can adequately service Whipple Estates" through the present road configuration.

Grier also told the commission it was the consensus opinion of township board, and planning commission members that the roads should not be opened.

"We usually concede to the wishes of the people in how they would like to develop," Grier said, "and they do not want the people of the new subdivision flowing through their subdivision at this time."

Grier then made what Road Commission Chairman Berry termed an "improper request," asking if the proposed North Beacon Woods roads could be built to join the Whipple Estates roads but be barricaded until Whipple Estates residents wish them to be opened.

"That's an improper request, Mr. Grier," Berry said. "I seem to be hearing you asking to have it both ways and I don't think that can be done."

"If the fire chief thinks adequate protection can be provided with the streets dead-ended, that answers my prime concern for the safety of the area," Berry added, moments before the commissioners cast their votes to a ringing round of applause from Whipple Estates residents.

County balks at cost of new juvenile code

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners again has voted its opposition to proposed revision of the State juvenile justice code — this time because of the $6.8 million price tag for the county.

Last December, the county board opposed the proposed revisions on grounds that the removal of "status" offenses (truancy and curfew violations) from juvenile court jurisdiction would deprive parents of control over their own children.

The board's latest expression of opposition was voted at a May 11 meeting of the ways and means committee, consisting of all 27 commissioners. Formal board action was expected at a May 18 meeting.

The legislation now pending would saddle Wayne County Juvenile Court with complex new procedures which would cost $6.8 million per year," explained Commissioner Samuel A. Turner (D-Detroit), ways and means chairman.

"We already face a potential budget deficit of up to $12 million. There is no way we can absorb the horrendous additional costs of this new legislation."

Striking a related theme, the ways and means committee opposed pending state legislation which would add two circuit judges to the 33-judge Wayne County bench unless the state also provides the $300,000 annual cost of operating each additional courtroom.

The ways and means committee acted after hearing Chief Juvenile Court Judge Y. Gladys Barsamian express her opposition to the juvenile justice revisions for the same reasons.

In addition to "prohibitive" higher costs, Judge Barsamian charged, the revisions would "deal a death blow to the juvenile court system of Michigan."

"It represents an attack on the fundamental institutions of our society — the family, the school and the police," Barsamian declared.

The judge earlier had expressed her opposition in an appearance before the House judiciary committee in Lansing.

The proposed code revisions are contained in two identical measures, House Bill 6184 and Senate Bill 1463.

Barsamian charged that removal of status offenders from juvenile court jurisdiction will allow children "to run the streets without control" and require police simply to drive curfew violators home.

She said the revisions would require a tremendous increase in juvenile court staff — 6 more judges, 20 more referees, 34 more prosecutors and 45 more courtrooms — and make the County's new James H. Lincoln Hall of Juvenile Justice obsolete before it ever opens next year.

Alfred N. Montgomery, director of the Detroit Wayne County Criminal Justice Coordinating Council, told the commissioners it could cost up to $12 million more to operate juvenile court at its current efficiency level.

Turner said proposed revisions also practically erase the distinction between children and adults in the court process, thus undermining the court's effectiveness in dealing with the specialized problems involving juveniles.

'Pros' may sell 700 unused county acres

Wayne County Commissioner Edgar Harris has proposed that several thousand local real estate representatives be offered the opportunity to sell the Wayne County Child Development Center property in Northville Township for a six percent commission.

The county tax bureau estimates the property value at $14.7 million, including buildings and more than 700 acres of land.

Harris (D-Taylor) says that the $200,000 annual maintenance on the now idle property is a drain on the county's depleted general fund and that previous and current attempts to sell the property have been futile.

He made his proposal at a May 10 meeting of the public works committee of the county board of commissioners. The committee has had sale of the property under active consideration for some time in order to shore up county finances, but Harris said "the whole thing has become bottlenecked in technicalities and sales procedure."

Harris has asked the committee to recommend to the full board of commissioners that the property be approved for "an open listing" with area real estate offices.

At present, the property is on the open market, but on a sealed bid basis, per a previous resolution approved by the board of commissioners. Harris wants that resolution rescinded.

"Wayne County is faced with a large projected deficit of $8-$12 million for the second straight year," Harris stated. "The way we're going about trying to sell this property is too time-consuming. To put it bluntly, we're spinning our wheels and not getting anywhere."

"Sale of this property could mean the difference between county bankruptcy and county solvency," he declared.

Harris said that in the past five years, maintenance on the rambling, vacant property has cost the county taxpayers $1 million.

"The property represents a continuous, ongoing loss of revenue to us — and I think we have to face that fact," Harris warned. "We've had very few offers to buy the property that I know of and none of them has worked out."

Harris noted that several commissioners and local citizenry had vehemently opposed a $9 million offer by the State of Michigan to purchase the property for a state prison.

"Right now, anyone can submit a sealed bid to the County Board of Auditors, according to certain criteria established by the Board of Commissioners," Harris said. "However, there is some concern about the amount of time we should allow in accepting bids. The original task force that studied this sale recommended we advertise for 365 days and then open the bids."

"What bidder wants to sit on his bid for over a year before he knows whether or not it's been accepted?" Harris asked.

"I submit we turn this sale over to the professionals in real estate. They have the expertise to come up with the best possible offer."

Harris said the sale would "turn a current maintenance liability into an asset by returning the property to the county tax rolls."

He said that the county would also gain because it wouldn't have to invest money in advertising, bid taking and other such expenditures. "We wouldn't have to put out additional money until it was sold and we had to pay the standard commission," he said.

Harris said that property values in the area of the Child Development Center are high.

Local officials confirmed that land was selling for $5,000 to $7,500 an acre for raw, undeveloped land.

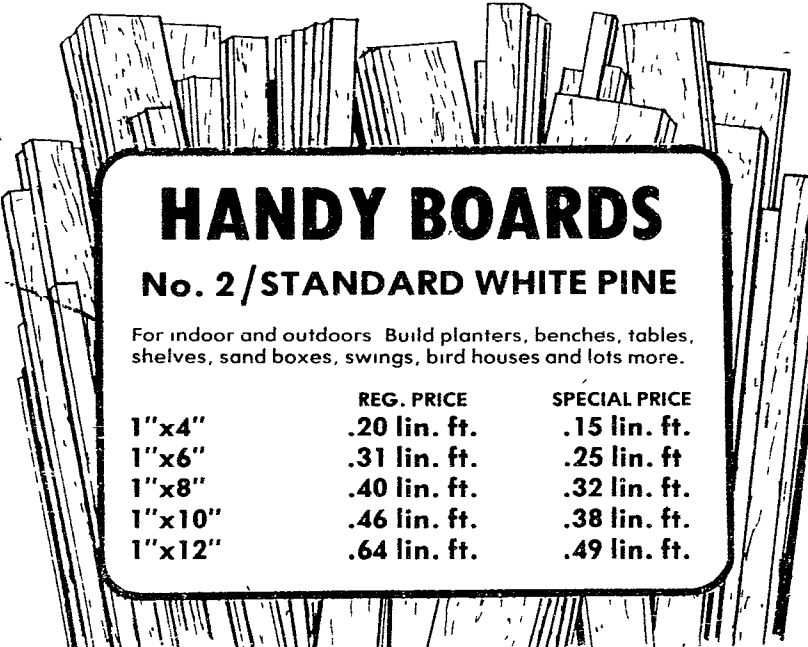

The committee passed the resolution for the day, pending a report from a task force.

Northville boys advance in Navy

Midshipman Fourth Class Robert J. Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence C. Fisher of 44827 Galway, was selected for both the Superintendent's and dean's List at the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Maryland.

The Dean's List recognizes midshipmen who have excelled in academic studies, while the Superintendent's List recognizes both academic achievement and the professional training required.

Midshipmen undergo four years of extensive study in engineering, mathematics, physical and marine science, management and government. In addition to an active physical fitness curriculum, they study military justice, leadership and naval history, plus a variety of elective course leading to a baccalaureate and commission in the Navy or Marine Corps.

Navy Seaman Robin F. Kolb, son of Kenneth E. Kolb of 18764 Jamestown Circle, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Illinois.

During the eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Included in his studies were seamanship, close-order drill, Naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in Physical Education and Hygiene.

He joined the Navy in February 1978.

Navy Data Systems Technician Second Class Steven B. Kaake, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elwyn R. Kaake of 46234 Fonner Court West, has been promoted to his present rank while serving with Flag Administration Unit, Commander Patrol Wings, U.S. Pacific Fleet, Naval Air Station, Moffett Field, California.

A 1970 graduate of Northville High School, he joined the Navy in May 1971.

Northville Advisor Ralph Redmond and Mustang Editor Diane Townsend check over paper

By JACK W. HOFFMAN

High School newspapering, especially in this area, produces a mixture of pride, jealousy and a little shame among professionals.

For the professional journalist who can recall his or her own high school or college newspapers of a decade or two ago and who, perhaps, still treasures a copy or two of the now frayed editions of yesterday, today's high school newspaper is a marvel.

There is just no comparison, even the most stubborn professionals must admit. Today's high school newspapers generally are superior to yesterday's college papers.

This writer, for example, would be ashamed to have the high school and college newspapers he edited compared with the prize-winning editions of Brighton's BHS Times, South Lyon's Lion's Roar, Northville's Mustang, or the Wildcat's Roar in Novi.

Yesterday's high school products were gossippapers, today they are NEWSPAPERS.

Remember? "Bill S. was seen whispering to Sally J. in the library. Was there more than a whisper?"

"A combination of factors probably account for the improvements (in high school newspaper)," says Ralph Redmond, who has been advisor of Northville's Mustang for the past 12 years.

"Students are more mature, some see the newspaper as a stepping stone to journalism careers. They are more aware of the broad field of communications... PR, television, news magazine, etc.

"They're more involved in what's going on around them; they're getting into 'heavier' subjects that used to be avoided or were not interesting to the vast majority of students.

"For example, today student reporters regularly attend school board meetings and they write about them and about millage issues... things that we wouldn't think about getting into when we were students.

"The younger voting age has something to do with it. Probably, too, staffers on newspapers are more conscious of what other student newspapers are doing and they're more competitive. Contests, such as the one conducted by Schoolcraft College, challenge and excite students."

Other factors must include, of course, the newspaper advisors. More and more of them have had training in journalism, and a surprisingly growing number of schools are requiring staffers to take high school journalism courses before joining the newspapers.

In most cases the advisors teach these classes.

Richard Petrie, Brighton's student newspaper advisor and journalism instructor, notes that BHS Times staffers generally have "B" or better averages. At South Lyon, staffers are required to take at least a primary journalism class before joining the paper. Later, they may take an advanced newspaper journalism class or yearbook class.

Only occasionally does the Lion's Roar accept free lance materials from non-journalism class students and staffers, says advisor Carolyn Scharret.

Walled Lake Western, according to The Western Union's advisor Douglas Bond, also has journalism classes for newspaper staffers.

In Northville, a beginning journalism class is offered for a semester. Generally, however, it isn't until the student takes another journalism course, editing and publishing, that he or she begins writing regularly for the newspaper.

A third journalism class, usually composed of senior staffers on The Mustang, offers the students "independent study" in which they may "go into journalism in more depth." It's more for senior editors of the paper, he explains.

In Novi, even after having taken one or more of the three journalism courses students are not assured positions on the newspaper.

It's as tough to get on the newspaper staff as on the football team.

Fewer high schools put out mimeographed newspapers of yesterday. Today, they are sophisticated products.

Most are "offset" newspapers (which means they are produced photographically). Most are tabloid size (half the size of this newspaper), but one nearby paper in Livonia is experimenting successfully with the boardsheet (same size as this newspaper).

And a growing number of these student publications no longer "job out" the production work. They're produced — from writing, photography, typesetting, and composition to sales and printing — entirely by students.

What's more, they are self-supporting.

Self supporting, of course, is a "qualified" term, explains Jan Ban, advisor of the Wildcat's Roar in Novi. "If you mean do we buy and pay for equipment or for the space and utilities we use in school, no. But everything else is paid entirely by revenues raised by the newspaper."

Novi High School is one of those schools which recently began printing its own newspaper.

It, like others, produces the newspaper on the school's graphic arts department where non-newspaper staff students print it.

This production aspect of today's student newspapers "has opened up a valuable new area for students," says Redmond. Not only does it provide students an occupational training ground, "it gives the student journalist a better appreciation of all aspects of newspaper production."

Although Mustang staffers are not directly involved with production after composition, the newspaper has a production coordinator on its staff that follows the pages to the graphic arts department to watch and report back those problems that might develop there. "It's our pipeline to the production room."

Until this year, the BHS Times was a tabloid-size paper. This year "we've experimented with a magazine style format" and it seems to be doing quite well, says Petrie.

The Brighton newspaper, which incidentally is a regular state and national prize winner (as are some of the others), is typical:

It has a staff of about 30 students, sells about 10 to 15 ads per issue, has a 600 paid ($1.50 per year) circulation, and generally ends the year at a "break even" point with perhaps $100 to $200 left over.

"Our goal," emphasizes Petrie, "is not to make money but to pay our costs."

Most of the newspapers in this area place a heavy emphasis on local, in-school news stories, although advisors find that students on their own or at the suggestion of student editors "like to do stories outside the school."

Generally, however, the winningest papers are those that emphasize in-school events or issues.

Editorially, the high school newspaper of the 1970's is less militant than the paper of the 1960's, observes Redmond. That doesn't mean today's editorials are less aggressive, he says, but it does mean "we don't find the number of 'rebels' characteristic of the war years," he explains. "Oh, occasionally, we have a militant, but I think most today are more responsible."

Redmond echoes the sentiments of other advisors when he says, "I think kids are more conscious of reputation, of professionalism. They're promoting pride, respectability and confidence in themselves, their schools and their communities."

Advisors agree that censorship rarely occurs. But freedom to write what one pleases must carry with it a responsibility, says Redmond.

"Fortunately, here (at Northville) we are blessed with some real good editors. It makes it easier for me to sleep at night."

Usually, by the time a questionable story reaches the advisor it already has been "hashed over" by the editors.

"We've had very little difficulty with materials contained in the newspaper," says Western's advisor, "because we don't have a controversial staff that goes out looking for trouble."

Petrie places an emphasis on guidance. Mostly, it's a matter of making suggested changes, "because we don't attempt to censor the students."

"Last year we had a little more controversy than this, but I received little direct flack for it. Some people were annoyed, but nobody formally protested," he points out.

Redmond keeps closer tabs on stories written by staffers than does the Novi advisor, who says she frequently does not see stories until they are pasted on the pages and ready for "final" proofreading.

"Sure, I read them," says the Mustang advisor. "I want to know who is writing what. If I feel there's a problem, I'll take it to the student editorial board and discuss it. If they decide it's a 'go' situation and I still question it, I don't hesitate in bringing in an administrator to offer his advice."

Redmond emphasizes, however, his close attention is not intended to not do it discourage good, hard-hitting editorials and investigative stories on controversial subjects. "We have them and I'm proud of them."

Planets are parading across our May skies

gresses, Venus will approach closer and closer to Jupiter until the 8th when their distance apart is less than 2 degrees.

"In a similar fashion, Mars will be approaching Saturn, situated near Regulus in Leo. At the beginning of May, Mars and Saturn are well up in the southwest at dusk, 21 degrees apart, both west of Regulus. By the end of the month, Mars catches up with Saturn, less than 2 degrees apart.

"An interesting observation on the 23rd, the following pairs are 5 degrees apart — Venus and Jupiter; Mars and Saturn; and Saturn and the bright star, Regulus."

Among the constellations, Professor Losh says, a special group to watch is Scorpius, visible during the summer evenings in the southern sky. "Made up of many bright stars, it curves up to the left like a giant fish hook, and very much resembles the creature that it is supposed to represent."

"This group is said to depict the famous Scorpion which sprang out of the earth and stung Orion from which he is said to have died. The star pictures of Orion and Scorpius are so placed that as Scorpius rises in the east, Orion, as if in fear, disappears from view in the west."

Another constellation, Lyra, rises in the far northeast, Professor Losh says. "This group takes the form of an equilateral triangle with a parallelogram attached at the lower right corner and the bright star Vega at the apex."

"Lyra is of special interest to us, because it is in this general direction that our sun, dragging the planets along with it, is believed to be flying through space at 12 miles per second."

"Not only is Vega believed to be the goal of travel of our solar system, but it is also thought to be the former and future Pole Star — 14,000 years ago it served in this capacity and in the course of another 12,000 years will play again this important role."

While you are reading about it . . .

By JANE FRANCOEUR

We received our IRS refund the other day. I was happy to see it, but it called to mind the ignominy of my occupation — H/W. How embarrassing to be only an abbreviation. And how vague a term, anyway. It has various meanings, among them house/his wife.

I propose a new nomenclature for my job classification. Domestic engineer is just too cutesy. And home manager doesn't convey the warmth and care that goes into running a house and family.

I suggest a more precise name for the same old job — WHILE COORDINATOR. For, as any H/W worth her apron call tell you, it's the WHILEs that run her life. "Dear, while you're out grocery shopping, will you get me fifty pounds of cement at the lumberyard? Oh, and my cleaning should be ready." "While you're at it, pack me a lunch, too." "Gee, mom, you're just baking cookies. Can't you mend my shirt while you're waiting?"

No red-blooded American husband could resist pointing out that modern conveniences have lightened the H/W's load, enabling her to double her output. Perhaps. But only if she can learn to coordinate her WHILEs. While washing clothes, she can vacuum the upstairs. She can make dinner while washing the dishes. She can even wait in the orthodontist's office while cleaning the oven.

However, some days the WHILES stack up, and the WHILE COORDINATOR must make executive decisions as to which WHILE takes precedence. For instance, while she's cleaning the floor where the five-year-old had lunch, the two-year-old is admiring the curtains with mud-pie hands, when she should have been whiling away the ashes from the fireplace. Or, in order to accompany the kindergarteners to the zoo, she must start dinner while washing the breakfast dishes, while tossing on some duds — all this while 8:45 a.m. is approaching.

It is such a well-developed institution that there are even variations on the theme. "Since you're..." and "Just stop off on your way..." and "You're up there. Get me the..."

One harried Thursday, when my WHILEs were extraordinarily out of control, junior asked, "Mom, while you're up, will you bring me an apple?" I sweetly replied, "Did you hear there was a lady who died while she was up?"

Tomographing disease

University of Michigan inventors call it The Humongotron because, after designing and assembling it, it looked "humonguous."

In size and clumsiness the Humongotron resembles the Big Bertha Cannon of World War I, but it shoots only pictures. Although some of its parts were borrowed from the now conventional cobalt therapy machine, Humongotron does not bombard patients with tissue-destroying rays aimed at cancer cells.

Instead Humongotron revolves a full 360 degrees around the patient taking images, which when processed through a computer produce three-dimensional "tomographs" of diseased or injured parts of the body.

Inventor John W. Keyes, Jr., M.D., associate professor in the U-M nuclear medicine section of the department of internal medicine, calls Humongotron "the first of its breed."

"We believe that the Humongotron is the prototype of the first scintillation camera transaxial tomograph," he reports.

This is better understood in the jargon of war, peaceful and gentle though the Humongotron is.

Nuclear medicine specialists send radioactive agents (nuclides) behind enemy lines. Capable of seeking out and infiltrating diseased organs, these agents act as spies, outlining disease and emitting gamma rays which can be picked up by a special camera in the Humongotron's head. From there signals are sent through a computer which calculates the tomographs, or pictures, of the pattern of radioactivity in the body.

Unlike its cousins, the x-ray and scanner, the Humongotron produces three-dimensional images of diseased organs. "The beauty of this beast is that it helps us see the volume, as well as the shape of the diseased section," Dr. Keyes states. "Now we can actually see in, around, and through, not merely look at, a diseased organ or tumor, whatever the case may be."

In coronary artery disease, for example, blood flow is blocked, or slowed, causing tissue to die from lack of blood supply and oxygen. If blocked, heart attack results; if slowed, debilitating and often painful (angina) disease results.

In either case, according to Keyes, the mass of the injury is critical to treatment.

While current technology, such as EKG machines and even some nuclear medicine techniques, is invaluable and indispensable to diagnosing such events, they reveal limited information. EKG's are indirect measures of the heart, and nuclear scanners, while coming closer to an inside view of the problem, are still only two-dimensional.

"The Humongotron is more than a scanner, or a seeker, or a spotter, although it is all of these," Keyes states. "It is more of a computerized sculptor which creates an experience of fullness and form, rather than flat shape."

Tomography, Keyes explains, is like surgery without a knife. It is a technique which allows an observer to look at cut cross-sections of the body without actually invading it. "It's the next best thing to being there," Keyes states.

The Humongotron has another remarkable talent. It can take pictures of something that doesn't exist, in a sense. That is, it can spot a diseased artery before it becomes blocked causing a heart attack (infarction).

Since radionuclides have an uncanny capacity for spotting trouble almost anywhere in the body, and since the Humongotron can follow these nuclides almost anywhere, a potential heart attack, for example, can be detected before it happens.

"The Humongotron has" reconnaissance capability it senses trouble while it is brewing and before it bursts," states Keyes.

Also important is the Humongotron's potential for following a patient during treatment and recovery. Since not all patients respond in the same way to the same treatment, it is important to know when a specific treatment should be increased, slowed, or radically changed. The Humongotron stays with the patient and watches for such indications.

To date the Humongotron has not been let out of the laboratory. "I wouldn't exactly call the Humongotron experimental, since the tomographs it has taken match up with gross and refined examinations of animal tissues that have been deliberately diseased," Keyes states.

"We are impatient to turn Humongotron loose, but we have to be certain we can't do better," he states. Dr. Keyes and his associates are, therefore, "breeding" Humongotrons. They are already working on the Son of Humongotron.

Summer

Old Eyes

The word is unheard and sight is unseen when the young are allowed to consider the old as has been

There is something strange with the coming of change and to break the old ways will some take many some days

Being kind one does find deep within mind
a peaceful at ease with mankind

With change all around so much noise in the sound like a corkscrew are wound little children I've found

Grandparents are that and to them goes my hat for only with age can one turn the page and fully realize there's nothing save love in the very young's eyes

Douglas A. Bouza

Low, blue sky and tall green grass,
A bob-white calls in the willow tree,
A vagrant breeze fingers the meadow,
A butterfly flits aimlessly.

The ripening summer lies in waiting
For fall and its busy time of reaping,
But now the lazy lush of growing
Rocks in the buzzing shadow sleeping.

Viewpoint

Youth is a substance of dreams, not years,
No matter the age we've attained,
We may be old with worries and fears,
Or young in the faith we have gained.

The purpose of time is only to serve
In forming the way we would go,
We can live an eon, yet never observe
Its speed, whether fast or slow

A breath can be filled with the joy of life,
Or lost in the depths of despair,
It only depends on our point of view
As we take it, or leave it there

Guide for May

Don't let 'em bug you

If the gardening bug doesn't get you by the end of this month, you must be immune! Here are some tips on timely lawn and garden activities from Michigan State University Extension specialists:

—Plant tuberous begonias and caladiums outdoors in shaded areas.

—Plant new chrysanthemums and divide old ones. Pick the tips to produce bushy, compact plants.

—Fertilize spring flowering bulbs before or during bloom. Remove flower heads after blossoms fade, but let the leaves remain on the bulbs until they die. They help build up the bulb for next year's blossoms.

—Plant dahlias, cannas and summer flowering bulbs through the end of the month. Planting gladioli now through the end of June should give you a continuous supply of cut flowers through the summer.

—Fertilize roses and begin to spray them once a week with an all-purpose rose spray to keep diseases and insects under control. Start spraying as soon as new growth appears and continue through August.

—Plant petunias, impatiens, wax begonias, alyssum, etc., after the danger of frost is past.

—Prune away unwanted sucker growth around raspberries when the shoots are about a foot high.

—Thin the fruit on apple and peach trees two to three weeks after petals fall so that individual fruits are about eight inches apart. This should result in bigger, high quality fruit.

—Maintain a regular spray program to protect fruit trees against diseases and insects.

—Remove the May blossoms from everbearing strawberries.

—Help vegetable transplants adjust to outdoor conditions by setting flats outdoors in a sunny, protected spot during the day and carrying them indoors at night for 10-14 days before setting plants into the garden.

—Transplant in the evening or on a cloudy day to give transplants a chance to get over the initial shock before they have to withstand hot direct sunlight.

—Plant onions, lettuce, radishes, spinach, beets and carrots for the second and third times.

—Hold off planting tomatoes, peppers, squash, pumpkins, eggplant, beans, sweet corn and cucumbers until after the danger of frost is past; or plan on providing them frost protection.

—Mulch or cultivate the vegetable garden to control weeds. To cultivate, chop off weeds just under the soil surface. Deeper cultivation can injure crop roots and bring weed seeds up to the surface where they can germinate and grow.

—When all danger of frost is past, set houseplants — except African violets — outdoors in a sheltered spot. Avoid exposing them to direct sun — they'll burn. Check them frequently for insects and water as needed. Houseplants exposed to drying breezes may need water more often than they required indoors.

—Plant amaryllis bulbs outdoors for the summer. Sinking the pots into the garden soil in a shaded spot will reduce moisture loss.

—Check ornamentals for tent caterpillars. Remove the caterpillars and their tents or spray with Bacillus thuringiensis, a bacterial disease that will control the caterpillars.

—Check pine trees for sawfly larvae. They look like caterpillars and raise their heads when disturbed. Control them with a spray of malathion or Sevin.

—Weak, old, damaged or poorly placed branches should be removed from spring flowering shrubs as soon as they have finished blooming. Retain the young, vigorous growth that will bear next year's flowers.

—Remove old flower heads from rhododendrons after they have bloomed.

—Watch for spring and fall caterpillar larvae devouring the foliage of maple, hickory, beech, elm and cherry. Larvae travel with an inchworm motion. A spray of Bacillus thuringiensis will control them.

—Early in the month, plant dormant trees and shrubs.

—Water a new or renovated lawn as needed to help it get established before hot weather.

—Late in May or early in June, give an established lawn its first nitrogen application of the year. Avoid fertilizing earlier than this. MSU research has shown that early spring fertilization predisposes some turfgrass species to disease.

—Go mushroom hunting. May is morel month in Michigan.

Moss roses

If you ask a child to describe portulaca (or moss rose) the answer might be, "That shiny little flower that closes when it's cloudy." True, the many layered petals have a distinctive satin-like sheen and portulaca blossoms are open only when the sun shines. But children can't appreciate the brilliance and the countless variations of portulaca colors. You might share with them the information that portulaca does best in sandy or dry soil and that one should wait until the soil is warm before planting seeds.

Purple

Waffle's exotic!

You've heard of the purple cow — now hear about the purple waffle.

No, it's not a new toaster breakfast food — it's a houseplant. And Michigan State University horticulturists suggest it's ideal for a bathroom or kitchen where light is low and humidity is high.

The purple waffle (Hemigraphis 'Exotica') is a native of New Guinea. It is a trailing plant with wine red stems and metallic green leaves with red undersides. It thrives in shade.

Warm temperatures — a night minimum of 62-65 degrees and daytime temperatures of 80-85 — are ideal. High humidity is a must.

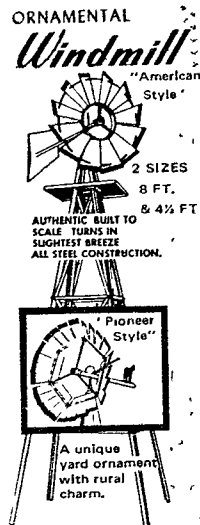

Pot in a standard houseplant potting soil and water whenever the soil surface feels dry. Never allow the soil to dry out completely, especially under high temperatures.

Fertilize every one to two months with any standard houseplant food.

This fast growing plant may be used as a specimen plant for a table or shelf, in a hanging basket or as a ground cover in a large planter.

Early geraniums best from cutting's

If you want a big, impressive-looking geranium early in the summer, buy one of the traditional varieties grown from cuttings. But, be prepared for it to decline as the summer goes by.

If you want one that grows bigger and looks better as time passes, choose one of the new hybrid geraniums grown from seed.

"Geraniums grown from cuttings are usually at their peak when you buy them in early summer," points out Will Carlson, Michigan State University Extension bedding plant specialist. "They tend to become less vigorous over the summer so that, by fall, they look pretty bad."

"Seed geraniums, on the other hand, aren't very big or flashy-looking when you buy them, but by the end of the summer, single plants may be two feet across and still growing and blooming vigorously."

How can you tell geraniums grown from seeds rather than cuttings? Look for compact plants and single flowers.

Plant these geraniums after the danger of frost is past in the spring, Carlson advises. Use them as you would use any other sun-loving annual — in large masses for an impressive display, or in combination with other annuals or perennials in beds, borders, window boxes and patio containers.

To avoid carrying disease problems over from year to year, rotate annuals the same way you move crops around in the vegetable garden, the specialist advises. If you planted geraniums in the same spot the last couple of years, use petunias or snapdragons or moss roses this year and grow geraniums in another sunny spot.

Annuals provide riot of color

Bedding plants

Spring is sprung! Planting time is here. Why not try some instant color.

Consider the riot of color you can have with annual bedding plants around shrubs, in beds alone, and even under trees.

Consider too, the selected use of hanging baskets or porch and patio containers, of annuals. After a summer-long of beautiful flowering annuals you will be pleased with yourself.

Often overlooked is the extra touch that annual bedding plants give to an otherwise uninteresting landscape. They love the sun. They lack the true sky-blue colors as yet.

Another fine All-America Selection is Petunia 'Blushing Maid'. It is a prolific producer of double, rose-like blooms of pale pink, shading to darker pink in the centers.

Ageratum and Alyssum have blues, whites and purples. They hug the ground, being only a few inches tall, and plants are carpeted with blooms, in Bronze Medal winner for 1977.

Another All-America Selection about the same size with large, double, golden yellowblooms is Marigold Yellow Globe.

For whites, pinks and reds, geraniums are one of the finest. The seed geraniums excel in vigor and bloom. Try the 1977 All-America Selection seed geranium "Showgirl" for a vivid pink. Showgirl is a vigorous grower, with a multitude of flowers from June until frost.

Petunias come in a range from deepest purple (almost black) through blue, red, pink, white and mixtures of all these colors, in both single and double flowers. They love the sun. They lack the true sky-blue colors as yet.

Another fine All-America Selection is Petunia 'Blushing Maid'. It is a prolific producer of double, rose-like blooms of pale pink, shading to darker pink in the centers.

Ageratum and Alyssum have blues, whites and purples. They hug the ground, being only a few inches tall, and plants are carpeted with blooms, in many cases completely hiding the foliage.

The selection of annuals is endless, in all colors of the rainbow. Few plants give us so much color for so long a period of time with so little care.

Some care in selection is needed when planting annuals in shady locations. Those best in shade are Coleus, grown for the variegated, multicolored foliage rather than flowers;

Lobelia, one of the true blue flowers, on small, bushy plants;

Impatiens, with pink, salmon or red flowers;

Vinca, with heavy, shiny foliage and starlike, white or pink flowers;

Begonias, the fibrous rooted variety which are bushy and covered with a mass of small flowers, or Tuberous, with large, showy flowers in a wide variety of colors;

Basil, grown for its dark purple foliage.

If you're thinking of planting fruit trees in your backyard, think small — buy dwarfs.

They're early bearing, easy to prune, spray and pick, and they require less space to grow than ordinary fruit trees.

Dwarf fruit trees are vegetatively propagated from rootstocks rather than seeds. Rooted cuttings are budded with the desired apple or other fruit variety to produce a dwarf tree in about 2 1/2 years. This special process produces a much smaller tree that bears normal-sized fruit.

Dwarfs need the same sort of care that full-sized trees need — water, fertilizer, and disease and insect control programs — but their small size makes these chores somewhat easier. Spraying and harvesting can be done without ladders.

When buying dwarf apple trees, backyard fruit growers should look for two or three varieties, advises Robert Carlson, Michigan State University horticulturist.

The ideal one, M.9, is attractive for its height and bears fruit the first or second year after planting. It may be in short supply, however. Other acceptable varieties are M.26 and M.7. They grow a few feet taller than M.9 and bear later.

If you prefer pears to apples, ask your nursery operator for a dwarf pear that is grown on Quince-A rootstock. Peaches and plums are usually grown on sand cherry, Nankin cherry or St. Julien-A rootstocks.

Check for the rootstock on the tag on any tree you buy, Carlson says. Then you will know you're getting a genuine dwarf.

THE WESKONSON Company, specialists in quality remodeling in the area for the past five years, recently celebrated its first year in the firm's new offices in downtown Northville at 142 North Center Street.

The fact that Weskonson "has developed an unparalleled reputation and honesty has enabled the firm to become a leader in remodeling in Northville," notes its owners, Michael A. Melford and William C. Gourlay.

As the company has grown so have the services it offers. "Our company has the experienced design staff that ensures the customers' modernization or addition will be in harmony with the architecture of the existing structure," they point out.

The firm is a member of the Michigan Solar Energy Association and presently is building an energy efficient custom home which is designed to be solar heated.

In addition to residential projects of all types and sizes, Weskonson Company is involved in the design and construction of light commercial projects such as the new store fronts of several businesses in the central business district.

Melford and Gourlay are residents of Northville.

PONTIAC STATE BANK has announced the promotion of Robert Stengle and Gary King to the positions of Assistant Cashiers. The promotions were announced by President Edward E. Barker, Jr.

Stengle, who lives in Milford, is managing the new Walled Lake office, while King, who lives in Clarkston, is manager of the bank's Credit Card Division.

Four other changes in management responsibility were announced at the last meeting of the Board of Directors. Kenneth Bell of Roseville moves from the Baldwin Avenue office to become Installment Loan Manager. Robert C. Baden of Union Lake moves from the Union-Commerce office he has headed since it opened to become manager of the Baldwin Avenue office.

D'Arcy Gonzales of Clarkston, who has managed the Pink Knob office since it opened, will manage the Union-Commerce office. Fay Renchik of Waterford will become the new manager of Pine Knob.

F/STOP PHOTO GALLERY in Novi is currently featuring the works of David K. Root of Milford. His photographic display will be featured throughout May.

A photographer for many years, Root, 31, began his career in photography when he was in the Navy and met a professional photographer.

"He got me started as an amateur photographer and from there I graduated to a Nikon system," said Root. "After I got out of the Navy I looked for apprenticeship jobs in studios."

A native of Ohio, Root worked in three different portrait and commercial studios before going to work at a custom lab. He later opened up a commercial photography and advertising agency in the area which he operated for two years before going to work with another professional lab where he is now an assistant production supervisor.

Root says that he enjoys taking scenes, flowers and landscapes with an artistic flare, "concentrating on an item rather than a whole landscape."

His pictures, on display at f/Stop, show that artistic flare while bearing such deceptively simple means as "Blue Flowers," "Snowy Branches," "Wagon Wheels," "Two Birds," and "Five Apples."

Root also enjoys doing photo-decor — decorating the home and office in original photographs.

F/Stop, a recently opened photographic store and studio, is located at 43220 Grand River, just east of Novi Road. It features a complete array of photographic and darkroom supplies and has a portrait photographer on duty five days a week.

D&D MOVES—D&D Fence of Brighton has a new home. The company moved down Grand River (to 7288) and closer to Brighton, because the company needed more room for its growing business. The building D&D now occupies formerly housed Custom Fun Machines. "We've got 10,600 square feet here," said Dale Vesper (right, above), who, along with Duane Franklin, own the business. Henderson Glass is moving into the building D&D vacated, at 7979 West Grand River.

FRITZ STEGER, of Brighton, has opened his own automotive assembly line design firm in Brighton called Straightline Design located at 9947 East Grand River.

An engineer for over 15 years, Steger will specialize in designing special automotive machine products.

MICHIGAN BELL plans to spend a record $469 million this year for the expansion and improvement of its communications facilities throughout the state.

David K. Easlick, company president, said the outlay will be spent on land and buildings, poles and cable, tools and vehicles, telephones and switchboards, and switching equipment.

"Improved company earnings in 1977," Easlick said, "have given us the confidence to move ahead with a program of this size."

He said it will increase the company's total investment in service facilities in Michigan to more than $3.6 billion.

Last year, $394 million was spent on facilities statewide for telephone service.

Coupled with a $498 million payroll which Michigan Bell paid its 29,340 employees in 1977, "it's easy to see what an economic impact our company has had on this state," Easlick said.

Of the total statewide payroll, $367,330 went to 19 employees in Northville and South Lyon, reported Haze Wilson, Michigan Bell's local manager.

ROBERT W. CLARK OF BRIGHTON has been named executive director of the industrial relations staff of General Motors, announces George B. Morris, staff vice president.

A native of Brighton who has been director of labor relations since 1971, Clark will coordinate industrial relations activities in his new position.

He received a bachelor degree from Michigan State University and joined General Motors in 1949 with the Chevrolet Motor Division. He served in a number of labor relations and personnel positions before becoming a member of the Chevrolet Central Office labor relations staff in 1951. He joined the corporate labor relations staff in 1952.

ROBERT CLARK

ROBERT R. JENKINS, Vice President of Shopping Center Operations for Dayton Hudson Properties, has announced the appointment of Lorraine Latour, APM, as Regional Personnel Manager.

Mrs. Latour will be responsible for all personnel activities at the Dayton Hudson centers in Michigan.

She was formerly manager of employee relations at Maccabees Mutual Life Insurance Co.

LORRAINE LATOUR

NATIONAL BANK of Detroit has announced a charge card innovation that will save NBD Master Charge and Visa customers a full 33 1/3 percent on interest charges.

Under the new program, called the NBD Savings Bonus Plan, customers who put $1,000 or more into an NBD Time Investment Savings Account will receive a reduction in the annual percentage rate they pay on their Master Charge and Visa accounts from 18 percent to 12 percent. The line of credit on the charge card account will be up to the balance in the savings account, which is pledged as security.

CLAUDE LACOSTE, of Brighton, has recently joined the Detroit staff of William M. Mercer, Incorporated, world's largest firm of employee benefit consultants and actuaries.

Lacoste, a native of Montreal, Canada, formerly served as an actuary with Taskins & Sells in New York, and Chief Actuary of La Societe des Artisans in Montreal.

A fellow of the Society of Actuaries since 1963, he received a bachelor of arts degree from College Sainte-Marie, Montreal, and a Bachelor of Science in mathematics from the University of Montreal.

BENNETT HOUSE, an unusual antique shop in an old Victorian home in Plymouth, opened in late April. Operators are Agnes Barnard of Northville, Cathie Bosker of Plymouth and Molly Burnstein of Southfield. The living and dining rooms and bath are furnished appropriately with a general line of antiques that includes furniture, clocks, silver, cut glass and jewelry. Hours are noon to 4 p.m. Sunday; Tuesday through Thursday, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and Friday, 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. The partners had been antique dealers in the Plymouth Old Village.

AL CARPENTER, a Hamburg resident, was recently appointed staff representative for the National Safety Council's Glass and Ceramics Section. He also is the NSC staff representative to the Power Pressing and Forging Section.

Carpenter accepted early retirement from the Ford Motor Company in May of 1976 after a career of 30 years, 20 of which were as personnel services manager of the glass division. While services manager, he was responsible for safety, fire and security in the division's operations.

During Carpenter's brief retirement, he remained active in the Glass and Ceramics Section of NSC by attending congressional programs and executive committee meetings. He has served the section from the industry side as secretary, program chairman and member of various committees.

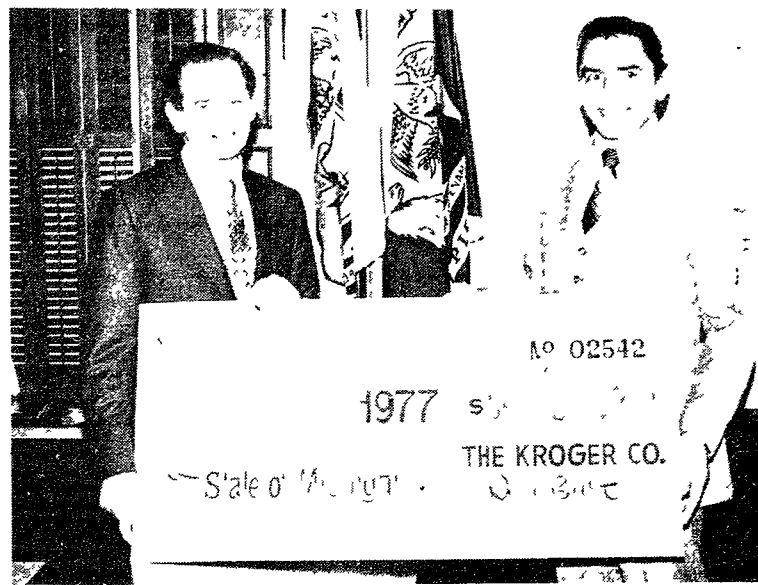

He and his wife intend to remain living at 6221 Cowell Road in Brighton.

DR. RICHARD ISGRIGG, a graduate of the University of Detroit School of Dentistry, has recently opened an office for general family dental care in Hamburg.

The office is located at 7468 East M-36 in Hamburg, next to the new Hamburg Pharmacy.

Isgrigg, who also attended Albion College and the University of Michigan, has previously practiced in South Lyon and Jackson.

DAVID A. BURT, vice-president of Kroger's 108-store Michigan marketing area, presents Governor William Milliken with a mock check for $544.8 million — the amount representing Kroger expenditures for Michigan products and services in 1977.

"We've come a long way since opening our first Michigan store in 1917," said Burt in announcing future plans and the company's expenditures in Michigan in 1977. "We plan to increase our sales area an additional 22 percent over the next three years, a commitment which indicates our confidence in the continued economic growth and vitality of Michigan."

Burt added that approximately $349 million of the state expenditure represents purchases of products from Michigan farms and plants.

Kroger spent $58.2 million to buy dairy products and eggs here last year; $81.6 million for meats and poultry; $142.5 million for canned and packaged foods; $12.6 million for fresh fruits and vegetables; and $54 million for products other than food which are sold in its stores.

The company's 8,226 employees in the state were paid $109.4 million in wages — most of which was returned to the local community.

Park farm now open

Continued from Page 1-C farm implements. The farmyard has a variety of animals — including cows, chickens, geese, turkeys, ducks, horses, goats and lambs — which visitors can watch frolic, feed or pet. The primary purpose of the farm is the educational value to families throughout Michigan.

The site also has pony rides, hay rides and swan boat rides, each available at a nominal charge.

The Children's Farm is open to the general public daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Memorial Day through Labor Day and week-ends in the fall, spring and winter.

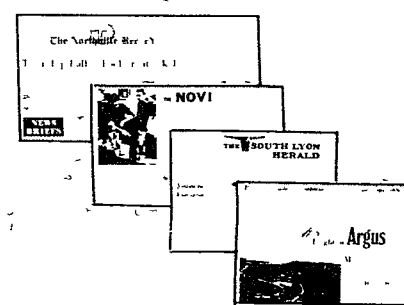

During the week activities throughout the rest of the year are reserved for school and civic groups by advance appointment, with conducted tours by farmhands, plus cow-milking and other farm-type demonstrations.

The Farm House Inn Restaurant, where you can get a chicken dinner or a snack, is open Tuesday through Sunday year-around.

Peter J. Cristiano, Jr., is the general manager.

Admission fees are adults — $1.50; children — $1.00 (ages 3 thru 12).

Low tar MERIT proven major alternative for high tar smokers—see results below.

Can low tar MERIT packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco measure up to the taste expectations of current smokers of high tar cigarettes?

Read the results from a new, nationwide research effort involving smokers who actually tested MERIT against leading high tar brands.

Results Confirm Breakthrough

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers rate MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading high tar cigarettes tested! Cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers confirm taste satisfaction of low tar MERIT.

And in detailed interviews conducted among current MERIT smokers?

Confirmed: 85% of MERIT smokers say it was an “easy switch” from high tar brands.

Confirmed: Overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers say their former high tar brands weren't missed!

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 MERIT smokers not considering other brands.

First Major Alternative To High Tar Smoking

MERIT has proven conclusively that it not only delivers the flavor of high tar brands—but continues to satisfy!

This ability to satisfy over long periods of time could be the most important evidence to date that MERIT is what it claims to be: The first real taste alternative for high tar smokers.

Rotary student hails from 'down under'

By JEAN DAY

Last weekend Rotary's Northville exchange student Bill Bowman from Australia made the first of two "exchanges" in host families as he gathered his belongings from the David Totten home at 791 Horton and moved in with the Michael Malinowskis of 20545 Clement.

The rotations of host families are part of the Rotary program which brought 150 students from "the land down under" to the United States and Canada January 15. Bill, who is 18 and a senior at Northville High School, will be here until January 12, 1979.

He's now one-third of the way through his stay in the United States and at "host exchange time." He'll stay with Mike and Janet Malinowski and their son, David, until September 15 when he'll join another Northville family now being sought.

Does moving about like this bother the young student? Not at all, he grins. In fact, he says, it has been fun to be part of the Totten household with four sons, Charlie, 12, Danny, 11, Jimmy, 9, and John, 7.

"I've never had a brother before," he explains, "only a sister."

His sister, at home in Toronto, New South Wales, Australia, is Jennifer, 15. Bill's father is "charge engineer" (the engineer in charge) at a power station. His mother works part-time a day a week for a solicitor.

Bill adds that he was "one of the lucky ones" having a part-time job himself in a consumer cooperative selling hardware and liquor.

"Very few kids at home have jobs," he explains, "because shops close at 5:30 p.m. and are open only from 8 a.m. to midday Saturdays, so there's not the need for part-time workers."

He adds that it's good he had some extra money saved as United States regulations do not permit him to work while here. Exchange students are not issued social security numbers.

"At first," confides Bill, "I was saving for a car, but then I applied for the Rotary exchange and was glad I had the money."

Bill recalls he initially made application to his local Rotary and then to the district. Character references are required from school. Then the student is asked to give his exchange preferences from eight or nine countries on the exchange program.

Bill chose Canada or the United States — and got both.

"Imagine," he says, "being able to get in a car and drive to another country." That's what he did on a visit to Windsor.

"Australia's so far from any other (country) that that was a surprise," he relates enthusiastically. Postcards went home from Windsor.

Another trip that Bill ranks as top experience of his stay to date was one to Lansing with Northville Mayor Paul Vernon and City Attorney Philip Ogilvie for a legislative conference of the Michigan Municipal League. Both men are Rotarians with Vernon currently serving as president of the Northville club.

In Lansing State Senator Robert Geake of Northville introduced the young Australian to the senate.

"That was really, really good," Bill says with obvious pride.

Bill has another trip coming up June 10 as he and 88 other Rotary exchange students, including two from Australia, will go on a 22-state bus tour. It is to include Washington, D.C., and Yellowstone National Park, concluding July 3.

Bill is enthusiastic about his Northville Rotary host club whose luncheons he attends weekly as a club guest, as well as about the Rotary program.

EXCHANGING—Bill Bowman, Northville Rotary exchange student from Australia, center, bids good-bye to the Totten family, David, Carolyn and children, John, 7, Jim, 9, Charles, 12 and Danny, 11, with whom he has been living since January. Waiting to welcome him last weekend, at left, are Michael Malinowski, Janet and son, David. The 18-year-old senior at Northville High will stay with the Malinowskis at their Clement Road home until mid-September when he makes the third and last rotation of his stay.

Mill Race library renamed 'New School Church'

By JEAN DAY

A sunny afternoon is what Docents at Mill Race Historical Village are hoping for this Sunday as the village off Griswold opens to visitors from 1 to 4 p.m. for the first time this year.

From now through late fall the village will be open every Sunday afternoon and on such special-event days as the Fourth of July. It will no longer be open Saturday afternoons, however, as staffing has proved too difficult.

There's also a major name change for one of the five village buildings. As Carol Butske of Northville Historical Society explains, the policy has been to call the buildings by their first owner or use name. The exception has been the old library building, the first structure moved to the Mill Race in 1972.

It was constructed in 1845 as the New School Church and was built by members of the First Presbyterian Church of Northville who objected to that church's decision in 1838 to withdraw from the Detroit Presbytery (liberal) and join the newly organized Michigan Presbytery (conservative.)

The building served as a church for only four years, 1845-1849, and subsequently became a school, YMCA, Salvation Army barracks, opera house, and library (for 72 years) before being used by the Northville Board of Education and Northville Township Hall. It is 95 percent restored, is used as a meeting place for many groups and may be rented for weddings. This season it will not be open on Sundays.

The adjacent Hunter and Yerkes houses, now in process of being furnished, will be open on Sundays and each will have a Docent on hand to tell their history and describe the furnishings. Adding to furnishing of the Hunter house are more than a dozen pieces on loan from Detroit Historical Museum. Eleanor Lowell, an antique dealer and historical society member, also has loaned pieces for the Greek Revival house.

Furnishings in the Victorian carpenter gothic Yerkes house have been purchased by the National and Michigan Quarters, or are gifts or purchases of Northville Historical Society.

Docents are volunteers who wear costumes of the period as they greet visitors who are welcome to tour without charge. Anyone interested in joining the group is invited to call the new chairmen, Sharon Lineman, 349-6679, or Karen Poulos, 348-2474.

Other new officers for the 1978-79 year are Shirley Davis, recording secretary; Diane Ramsey, corresponding secretary; Pat Wright, display and special day chairman; Claudia Berry, craft day; Connie Eis, Karen Brown, luncheon co-chairmen; Margaret Renaud, Junior Docents and costumes; Mrs. Butske, co-ordinator to historical society.

Eight homes on tour

Historic, contemporary and decorator-furnished homes will be featured on the 1978 Northville Home Tour, chairman Cheryl Gazlay announces. Serving with her as co-chairmen are Gail Gross, Rose Beaudoin and Charlene Merritt. They presently are finalizing arrangements on houses to be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday, September 28.

"Having eight homes on tour should help cut down on long lines and give 'tourers' a sampling of different types of homes," explains Mrs. Gazlay as she mentions that the planners feel people taking the tour will choose only homes in which they are most interested to tour, rather than trying to see all.

On this year's tour committee are Grace Reed, treasurer; Faith Orphan and Jewell Luckett, corresponding secretaries; Martha Neild and Pat Stringer, publicity; Lucia Danes, posters; Elaine Tomalty and Janet Bickner, tickets; May Mohr and Kathy Peovar, staging; Mrs. Gross and Betty Allen, tour booklet; Lois Winters, hostesses. The tour is co-sponsored by First Presbyterian Church women and Northville Historical Society.

Special volunteers needed

Chaperones are needed to escort perhaps eight Northville youngsters to Special Olympics for handicapped youngsters being held at Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant June 1-4. Transportation is furnished by the Northville Recreation Department, and volunteers stay in the dormitories with the young people.

"It's really very rewarding," says Mary Ellen Demrose, mother of a son in special education, who very much "wants to make sure the kids get there." Problem is that, while it's a one-shot volunteer project, it is necessary to be available on Thursday and Friday as well as the weekend. College students, if they're at least 18 years old, would be most welcome. Mrs. Demrose, who may be contacted at 349-9031, reports one man and one woman still are needed. Anyone interested also may call Ed Kricz at the Northville Recreation Department, 349-0203.

MR. AND MRS. GARY EUEL BOWLING

Carol Nyquist wed

When Carol Ann Nyquist became the bride of Gary Euel Bowling in a candlelight service at First Baptist Church of Northville, the vows recited were written by the couple themselves.

The Reverend J. Michael Farrell, former youth pastor at the church who now lives in Covington, Kentucky, officiated at the April 7 ceremony, which also featured a solo, "I've Always Loved You".

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland C. Nyquist of 1011 Jeffrey Drive. Mr. and Mrs. Homer Bowling of Canton are parents of the bridegroom.

As she was given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white organza and chiffon with embroidery adorning the square yoke and long sleeves that gathered into a ruffled cuff. Lace trim outlined the yoke and deep hemline ruffle. Three rows extended down the dress front.

A matching Juliet cap held her illusion veil, also edged with lace.

White roses, yellow sweetheart roses, stephanotis and baby's breath with blue statice formed the bridal bouquet.

Janice Nyquist was her sister's honor maid in a light blue gown with pink-tucked bodice, elbow-length sleeves and back bow. She carried three yellow roses tied with greens and baby's breath.

Joyce Janes, who had been a pen pal of the bride's for eight years came from Long Island, New York, to be a bridesmaid with Mrs. Kathy Miller of Saginaw. Kim Balko, Mrs. Vicky Parks and Linda Anderson. Their gowns matched the honor maid's and they carried single yellow roses.

Kim Thompson was flower girl in a light blue gown with pin-tucked bodice and white satin sash. Lace trimmed the front and edged the hem.

David Farrell was ring bearer.

Douglas Gaynor was best man. Ushers were Bill Royster, Jim Parks, Ben Anderson, David and Danny Nyquist. All wore gray tuxedos.

A reception followed for 300 guests in the church fellowship hall with out-of-town guests attending from Ohio, California, Pennsylvania and Kentucky.

The couple, who had been introduced by friends' at Highland Park Baptist Church, chose the mountains of Pennsylvania and Virginia for their wedding trip.

The bride, a 1974 graduate of Northville High School and a 1976 graduate of Carnegie Institute, is medical assistant to F. Gurol, M.D., in Farmington. Her husband is a 1974 graduate of Wayne State University in civil engineering and is employed with the Detroit water and sewage department.

They plan to live in Detroit.

GOOD TIME WINE

by Jim Roth

Champagne means the good life. Just serving it makes an occasion special, whether it comes at the beginning, end, or middle of a party. Its appearance in a glass, its glitter, clearness, and life, are delightful and festive. And, of course, the drinking of an extra dry, fine champagne, in a well-chilled glass is always a treat to the senses. Although the only "real" champagne comes from the Champagne district in France, many manufacturers of sparkling wines use the champagne designation and are not cheating the consumer. The wine makers of California, for instance, can be trusted to produce some excellent (and some not so excellent) champagne or sparkling wines at all price levels.

The next time you want to make an occasion special stop in and buy a bottle of champagne from us at GOOD TIME PARTY STORE, 567 Seven Mile Road, 349-1477. We have cold wine, champagne and beer available at all times and we also have live lobsters available from our tank. Pick your own and we will explain how to cook and serve. Open: 9 a.m. - 10 p.m. Mon. thru Sat., Noon-6 p.m. Sun.

Donald Baxter home is one of eight to be open September 28. See In Our Town. The desk had belonged to Mrs. Baxter's father, a country doctor in Pennsylvania. Mary Beth Baxter, above right, has her own studio by her home where she paints much-in-demand designs on wood and tin.

Brasure-Tuuri vows read here

Leslie Ann Brasure and Thomas Arthur Tuuri asked both the minister of their church, Trinity United Methodist in Flint, and her minister, who also is her father, the Reverend Lloyd G. Brasure of First United Presbyterian Church, to officiate at their marriage.

The double-ring ceremony took place at noon, Saturday, April 29, in the Northville Presbyterian Church and included Communion and the symbolic lighting of one candle by the couple.

The Reverend David Kidd of the Flint church was joined at the altar, decorated with an arrangement of tulips, pussywillows, ferns and ranunculus, by Leslie's father after he and her mother escorted her down the aisle.

The bridegroom also walked down the aisle with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Tuuri of Flint.

Both sets of parents presented the couple for the marriage service.

The bride's gown of ivory chiffon was designed with three deep tiers forming the skirt and with a deep yoke cape, over a fitted dress. A turban ring formed her headpiece, and she wore a wristband corsage of gardenias.

The locket Leslie wore held special sentiment as it was a gift from her father to her mother at their wedding.

Lisa Brasure was here from New York to be matron of honor for her sister-in-law. Bridesmaids were Marianne Crain, a high school friend, Dawn Swenor, a childhood friend from Petoskey, and Ann Tuuri, sister of the bridegroom.

All wore strapless ivory knit dresses with long chiffon capes tied on one side at the hipline. A swirl of pastel peach, rust and light aqua flowers was the design printed on the chiffon. They carried floral cascades matching the altar arrangement.

Eric Edwardson was his aunt's ring bearer.

brother, Wayne Brasure, and Mike Pankey, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

A champagne brunch followed at Meadowbrook Country Club for 250 guests, including out-of-towners from Florida, Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin and Flint and Kalamazoo.

After a weekend trip to a neighbor's cabin at Hubbard Lake, the newlyweds are living in Brighton.

They had met four and a half years ago at Western Michigan University. The new Mrs. Tuuri is completing her internship at the Northville Montessori Center where she will teach next fall. The bridegroom is a general contractor in Flint.

Newcomers plan dance

Preceding Northville Newcomer Club's annual spring dinner dance this year will be a cocktail party for current Newcomers in the Mill Race Historical Village.

Couples will cross the bridge into the restoration village beginning at 6 p.m. Saturday, June 3, for the complimentary event before dinner at 8 p.m. at Meadowbrook Country Club. Dancing to the music of The Variations with vocalist Vic Gray will follow.

Chairmen for the cocktail party are Angi Lehmkuhl and Jacque Downs. Mrs. Lehmkuhl is the newly elected president of the 400-member club. She succeeds Beverly Walsh.

Dinner arrangements are being made by Arliss Wickstrom and Maryann Stanford. Reservations at $25.50 a couple for the evening are to be made with Mrs. Wickstrom, 348-2617, by May 27. She mentions that the dinner

Retiring officers of the club turned over their files to the new officers at a potluck dinner May 16 at the home of Mrs. Walsh.

New officers working with Mrs. Lehmkuhl will be Barbara Riebe vice president; Charlotte Shake, secretary; Laurie Hoggatt, treasurer; and Bette Moran, membership chairman.

Other new chairmen are Peggy Calandro, art; Prudy Vannier, interest groups with Barbara Kowalski assisting; Nancy Naszradi, newsletter editor with Cheri Pearson assisting; Michele Buelow and Barbara Peters, couples social co-chairmen, and Kay Carbonari and Pat Cossard, ladies day co-chairmen.

Newcomers Club is open to residents of the Northville school district who have lived in the community for less than two years

Local artist featured in Musicale benefit

Northville watercolorist Caroline Dunphy is among 15 Michigan artists whose original work will be shown during an unusual evening of art and music, "Champagne Prelude," planned as a fund-raiser for Farmington Musicale.

Beginning at 8 p.m. next Wednesday, May 24, at Mercy Center, 11 Mile and Middlebelt, more than 100 pieces of multi-media, original art will be on exhibit, preceding a musical program.

Certain pieces in the art collection, including Mrs. Dunphy's "Brass Quartet," will be based on musical subjects. Mrs. Dunphy and her family live on Dubuar in Northville. Her studio is at 140 North Center.

The entire program is planned as a fund-raising activity to augment the Musicale's scholarship-fund and other community service projects. Tickets for the Champagne Prelude are $1 and may be purchased for Musicale members or at the door. Those attending are asked to enter Mercy Center by Gate 4.

The art showing has been organized by Sandra Boak, art consultant who operates Artists' Forum and represents area artists. She is a member of the Musicale.

Representational as well as abstract compositions, paintings — framed and unframed, serigraphs, lithographs and sculpture will be in the benefit showing. Four artists from Uganda, Florida and Chicago will have their works on view along with those of Michigan artists.

The musical program will be presented by Musicale members, Sharon Cardecia, soprano; Fern Barber and Lois Swanson, clarinetists; Helen Anderson and Sue McCallum, pianists.

Other artists who will contribute works in their specialties are Al Gerstenberger, Tom Hale, Margaret Reed and Albert McNea. Works will be for sale.

Singles group plans dinner talk

Singles, a Christian fellowship for single adults from 18 to 40 years old, will have a dinner meeting and program this Friday at Open Door Christian Church.

A get-acquainted hour will begin at 6:30 p.m. with dinner to be served at 7:30 p.m.

Dinner reservations may be made by calling the church at 348-2101.

Gary LeDuc and Lu Freer will be speaking on "How to Live a Victorious Christian Life" and "Dating, God's Way." Kathy Assenmacher will provide special music.

Singles also will meet at 1:30 p.m. Sunday for a visit to University of Michigan botanical gardens.

Singles who are interested also are invited to join the group at 9:45 a.m. Sunday school class every week at the church.

Virtuous woman topic of class

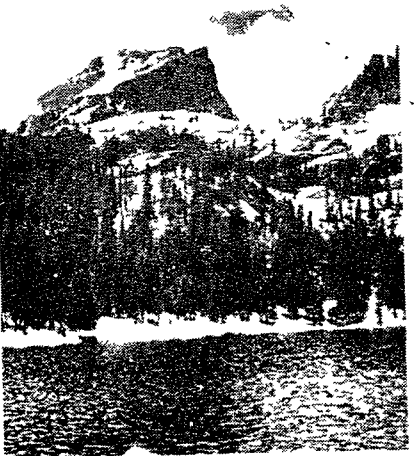

Open Door Christian Church in Northville is offering weekly teachings on "The Virtuous Woman."

The sessions began Monday and are to be held every Monday from 8 to 9:30 p.m. at the church.

The church announces they will be based on the quotation from Proverbs 31:10, "Who can find a virtuous woman for her price is far above rubies."

"God calls all women to be virtuous in every area of their life," it is explained, as plans are announced to define virtuous women as "moral, worthy, righteous."

Should my Wife have a Written Will, too?

If your wife owns property, solely or jointly, or if she is heir to an estate, she should have a will of her own. This applies in quite a few other cases, too.

Husband and wife may be double victims of a fatal accident. The husband may have designated his wife as major beneficiary in his will. Without the wife's having a will of her own, distribution of her share of the estate will not have been provided for. Her share may be subject to state laws, tying it up for long periods right when it may be needed.

If the wife is a business partner in a family business, it is to the firm's advantage to have its business continuity assured by her having a will.

After the man has made his will, he should discuss with his lawyer a separate will for the wife. Above all, be sure to consult your attorney. We've seen bad situations arise because no wills were made or because they were drawn up by amateurs.

Leads at Our Lady of Providence

Girl Scout Council cites exceptional volunteer

Huron Valley Girl Scout Council calls the honor it has bestowed on Barbara Jean Eckles of Northville "a goal award."

Observers who have watched her lead a Junior Girl Scout troop at Our Lady of Providence School on Beck Road in Northville Township aren't surprised that the woman "with a smile and incredible patience" is one of two honored at the council's annual meeting.

In announcing her award, the Huron Valley Council points out that Mrs. Eckles, a communication (non-verbal) specialist at the school, received the honor "for shouldering responsibility as a Girl Scout volunteer to communicate and participate... In addition to her responsibility for her troop, she organized two additional troops and acts as the troop services director."

Ruth McMahon of Plymouth was given a certificate of appreciation for contributions as a leader, committee member and trainer.

A record crowd of 151 girl and adult delegates and about 50 visitors attended the recent annual meeting at Camp Linden.

Mrs. Eckles lives in King's Mill and is the widowed mother of one of Our Lady of Providence students as well as a staff member.

She explains that she had been a Girl Scout leader and mother helper and, thus, was willing to start Troop 406 in the school year of 1975-76 at the school.

The teacher points out that "our school, being a resident facility for mentally handicapped girls, draws its population from many areas, often quite a distance from the school, so it is difficult for mothers to become involved," as they do in most troops.

Since, by law, special education classes are limited to 15, she explains, it was decided that eight would be a good number for troop membership, especially if there was but one leader.

This year Mrs. Eckles' troop has been working on a cooking badge, earning it in April. Now the girls are in process of earning their songster badge, and a ramble one.

"They've already earned their sewing badge, and last week they made terry cloth bibs for one of their teachers who is expecting a baby," reports Mrs. Eckles proudly.

The girls also have helped others by making place mats for a convalescent home at Thanksgiving, preparing and giving a play for cottage mates and by entertaining guests at an evening meal for which they did the planning, shopping, preparing and cleaning up.

"Girl Scouting at Our Lady of Providence was begun many years ago, Mrs. Eckles reviews, "by an energetic, devoted lady named Anne Fowler. The movement was carried on by two equally dedicated creative young nuns, Sister Janet and Sister Joanne.

"When these leaders were re-located, the Girl Scouts were without a leader, and, after a while, enthusiasm dwindled

"The lady mainly responsible for regenerating interest in scouting is Mrs. Ian (June) Clinton."

Mrs. Eckles recalls that she came to speak to the Parent Club, firing enthusiasm but unable because of distances to find a mother leader.

It was then that Barbara Jean Eckles became involved. Mrs. Clinton helped a great deal as troop services director, she says, and Beth Martinek, a Senior Scout from Plymouth, has met loyally since the beginning with the troop.

Because of the size limitation, many girls at the school were on a waiting list, and an attempt was made to start a second troop.

Mrs. Yvonne Issacson of Northville had several lively meetings with the new troop, Mrs. Eckles remembers, before circumstances caused her to move.

Then during the 1976-77 year with the help of the Huron Valley Council Miss Kathy Yudashkin and Miss Kathleen McNeely were found to begin two new troops, with Pam Henry co-leading Miss McNeely's troop.

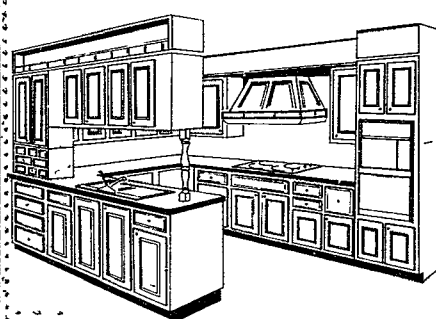

When she took a job in the East during the present school year, Miss Yudashkin searched until she located a new leader for her troop, now headed by Mrs. Jenny Owens.

1968 class sets reunion

Tenth anniversary reunion of Northville High School Class of 1968 will be held July 22 at Bonnie Brook Country Club on Telegraph south of Eight Mile.

Following a sit-down dinner about 8 p.m. there is to be dancing with a live band until 1 a.m., announces Ron Barnum of the planning committee. Awards will be distributed throughout the evening and a surprise entertainment is planned.

Notices have been mailed to class members, but anyone not contacted is asked to call Barnum, 349-8027, or Penny Anchors, 474-7410. The committee asks those planning to attend to send in their checks as soon as possible so it will know how many to anticipate.

The evening is $15 a person or $30 a couple with spouses encouraged to attend.

Library shows Michigan films

The history of Michigan will be the subject of this month's senior citizen film program at the Northville Public Library.

Two 30-minute films, "Mich-i-gan-i-a" and "When Michigan Was Young," trace the history of this region from the formation of the Great Lakes to the 20th century.

The program will be shown Thursday, May 18, at 2 p.m. All age groups are welcome and admission is free.

tend should register at the library or by calling 349-3020.

Questers plan auction

An auction of antique items donated by members will highlight the annual meeting of Baseline Questers at 1 p.m. Thursday at the home of Ruth Whitmyer at 46935 Dunsany.

The auction has become the chapter's traditional way of raising extra funds which have been donated in the past to Mill Race Historical Village.

Haze Wilson, Community Relations Manager, Livonia, offers you this telephone tip:

"Two-Party Budget Service may help you save money on your phone bill."

Two-Party Budget Service is especially designed for people with fixed incomes, such as retirees. For a low monthly charge* you would share a two-party line and have an allowance of 44 local calls a month. Extra local calls you make are only 5.1¢ each. This is about the lowest-cost phone service in the country. If you think Two-Party Budget Service might be what you need, just call your Michigan Bell Business Office and talk to a service representative about it.

"They're even buying me a class ring," he reveals, telling how the club provides him with $40 a month spending money and pays school fees.

His host family is responsible for what Bill calls "bed and board."

Bill has another limitation that local 18 year olds don't have. He and other exchange students are not permitted to drive.

"It's not too bad," he says without complaint, "and fortunately Linda does."

Linda is Linda Korody, also a senior at Northville High, who will be Bill's date for the Northville High senior prom May 26 at Botsford Inn. Bill mentions that one of the restrictions in the program is that he is "not permitted to go steady" while here.

Rotary, Bill continues, also keeps track of its exchange students from their home base. He writes two letters monthly, one to his local club and one to the district.

Good behavior is expected with students understanding that any infraction, such as trying drugs, would mean the student would be sent home immediately.

"There's very little marijuana and practically nothing else at home," Bill reports, saying that instead there perhaps is more alcohol consumption among students.

In his home town in Australia students attend school from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. with classes every hour of the day. Classes are mainly academic with little vocational education.

Because he hopes for a career in banking or accounting back in Australia, Bill is delighted to be taking accounting and typing here as well as American government and economics. He lists the latter as his favorite subject.

"The kids are really friendly," he reports of his Northville classmates, adding that the eight foreign exchange students now at Northville High rather "keep together" because of the similarity in their circumstances.

Northville is quite similar to home in Australia, Bill compares, as Toronto located 80 miles north of Sydney on the east coast has a population of 14,000.

"It's similar except that we don't have snow. It never goes below 45 degrees and that's a really cold day. When I left last January it was 90 degrees. Seasons are turned around with January and February our summer."

Bill says that then there's sailing and fishing on inlet Lake Macquarie.

There's another turned-around situation in coming here. The Australian school year begins in January; so Bill is taking the second half of his senior year now and will begin the first half in the fall. This does mean that he will be involved with an entirely new group of Northville students then.

Bill doesn't think that's a problem, though, as he feels he has a distinct advantage over most exchange students in that he has no language barrier.

Bill himself also is outgoing and friendly. He's brought with him some 200 slides of Australia, showing them and giving talks on his country to about a dozen groups, including Rotary and school classes.

"I really don't show them all at once," he declares, inviting anyone interested to "ring up Chuck Mann from Rotary at 349-5400 daytimes."

Bill and the Northville Rotary Club also would like to have any family who would like to host Bill's third portion of his stay in Northville contact Mann. It is not necessary to be a Rotarian to host a student.

In the fall the club will be taking applications from families interested in hosting future Rotary exchange students.

In fact, the only way anyone would know Bill isn't an American 18-year-old is by the Australian accent.

Has it been commented upon?

Bill laughs indicating it might be a "plus," as he observes, "It has been said that the girls like to hear me talk!"

Montessori music

Joey Kupsky, 4, son of the Lawrence Kupskys, 862 North Center, demonstrates the soprano xylophone, one of the Orff instruments preschoolers at the Northville Montessori Center will play in a concert at the open house beginning at 7 p.m. today at the center, which meets at Winchester School. Director Lynn Gall will give a brief explanation of the preschool program for interested parents.

EMU professor to talk at MACLD meeting

Larry Bemish, assistant professor in the Department of Special Education at Eastern Michigan University, will be guest speaker at the Plymouth-Canton-Northville chapter of the Michigan Association for Children with Learning Disabilities (MACLD) meeting today.

The final meeting of the season will be at 7:30 p.m., in Plymouth Pioneer Middle School's cafeteria.

Professor Bemish, who has taught regular as well as Special Education, will discuss "The Adolescent with Learning Problems". This meeting should be of interest to all parents of children with learning disabilities or suspected learning disabilities, chapter officers point out.

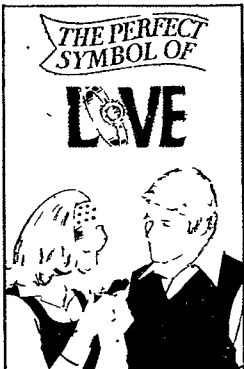

MACLD's Plymouth-Canton-Northville chapter is an aid to parents and is dedicated to finding and helping the child with hidden handicaps.

The child whose learning performance does not measure up to his or her learning capabilities is considered learning disabled.

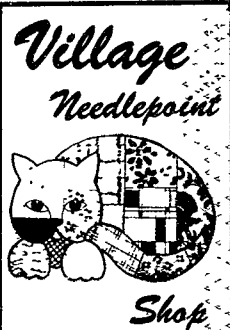

Meetings are free and open to the public. Today's meeting is the last in this series until the third Wednesday in September.

LaLeche series begins

A series of four meetings on breastfeeding, sponsored by the Plymouth-Northville La Leche League, will begin at 8 p.m. today (Wednesday) in the home of Joan Mason, 549 W. Dunlap.
