3 battle for 2 trustee positions

EDITOR'S NOTE — Three candidates are seeking the Republican nomination for two trustee seats on the Northville Township Board. There are no Democratic candidates, thus two of the three candidates polling in the most votes in the August 8 primary election are virtually assured election at the regular election in November. Terms are for two years. One of the candidates, James Nowka, is an incumbent member of the township board, while the two others, William Greer and William Zapke, are political novices having never before sought elective office. Following are observations of the three candidates made in taped interviews conducted by this newspaper.

Greer: Independent thinker

Although he is a member of a political slate, William Greer says he will be an independent thinker when it comes to voting on issues before the township board.

Membership on a four-member slate (Donald Thomson for supervisor, Donna Boshoven for clerk, Lee Holland for treasurer, and himself for trustee) merely means, he explained, that "we are part of a team that has similar philosophical views; we seem to think alike, and we believe we can be supportive of one another."

"But we know on voting day that it's a one-on-one race. We are our own persons, and I don't believe we will have the identical view on every issue. I know I'll be my own person, and I feel comfortable in saying I believe they (other members of the slate) will, too."

The major philosophical view where each of the four members agree, he said, is a determination to revive a cooperative, positive relationship with the city.

It is the "breakdown" in the spirit of cooperation that is at the root of many of the township's problems, he contended, adding that this is the area where the current board has most failed the citizens it represents.

The Republican challenger said return of a non-competitive, cooperative government is his top priority.

"When we moved here close to eight years ago, we moved to 'Northville.' We didn't move to either the city or the township, we moved to the 'community'"

Nowka: Keep joint services

Retention of the existing joint city-township services, such as recreation and library, is an absolute must for the good of both municipalities, declared incumbent Trustee James Nowka.

Campaigning for the GOP nomination and re-election to the board, he said joint services "need the total community, and they are tongue and groove with existing programs that very nearly follow school district boundaries."

"The library, for example, needs the larger area to be economical. Alone, neither community can justify its cost. For economic reasons, therefore, single services are better than two."

"But more importantly, perhaps, the single service is superior because its users are neighbors having common interests."

It would be foolish and tragic to say to one youngster 'you can't play ball with your school classmate because he lives in the city and you live in the township,' he said. Socially and educationally, the people of the city and township are in the same community, he added.

"These services must be maintained, and I look for other opportunities where the towns can come more closely together."

"Although I honestly believe a single government would be better, the possibility of this ever happening are remote. But that doesn't mean we can't share services."

As for the split in the fire service and establishment of the township's own department, Nowka said he voted for establishment of the township fire department, despite some ambivalent feelings, because "I was convinced the township needed more fire protection. This is probably the most important service needed by a community, more

Zapke: Guard growth

"Responsible growth" is his number one priority as William Zapke campaigns for the Republican nomination for trustee.

"I've sat on the planning commission for the last six months, and I am aware that we are probably undergoing the greatest growth of Northville Township's history and I think it has to be a responsible growth."

People are concerned, he noted, pointing to complaints from Grand View Acres and Whipple Estates residents. "In our hands is the decision to create either a West Bloomfield or an Oak Park. We've got to be responsible, to be alert about the types of businesses that come in on Seven and Six Mile, the kinds of subdivisions and homes that are allowed."

Nevertheless, Zapke said he is "upset" by the position taken by residents of Grand View and Whipple Estates because it ignores the existing zoning ordinance.

The zoning affecting the two areas, he pointed out, "did not occur six weeks ago or six months ago but it occurred years ago. And it is only now when they begin to file for permits to build that people are becoming aware of the problems. I think it shows a little apathy on the part of the people that they don't get concerned about these things until it is too late."

Pointing out that he has, as a planner, done all he can to make sure that the concerns of the people are heard, Zapke said he must interpret the zoning ordinance as it is written. And in both cases, he said the developers have followed the ordinance.

Council's angry over report of drug 'cover-up' at school

A report that local police are being barred or discouraged from investigating drug problems at Northville High School have come under a stinging attack by city councilmen.

Council alarm was expressed Monday when Police Captain Louis Westfall, in reviewing the monthly police report with council, disclosed that the department is not being notified of drug crimes at the high school.

Westfall said his officers are hearing about the problem second hand and, when inquiries are made, school administrators are either noncommittal or they simply refuse to cooperate.

In one instance last year, officers were barred from entering the school by a principal, Westfall said.

In another case, the school did not report sale of drugs by a student until after the third offense, he said.

Westfall observed that school administrators either don't want the adverse publicity that might arise with a police investigation or they want to protect the rapport between student and counselor.

Concerning council intentions many months ago to periodically station a juvenile officer at the high school, city officials noted that arrangements with the school never materialized and that with a change in school administration the plan "evaporated."

Mayor Paul Vernon was appalled by what sounded to him like a crime "cover up." "Is the school ground sacred territory?" he asked rhetorically.

Councilman Wallace Nichols was even more disturbed. "It seems to me a teacher (or administrator) could be held as an accessory to a crime" by withholding evidence that a crime has been committed.

Other council members and City Attorney Philip Ogilvie concurred.

"I can appreciate the rationale they (school) may be using, that they can do more good working with parents of offending students than using the county juvenile court system," said Ogilvie, who added, however, that it is no excuse for deliberately keeping these matters from police.

Ogilvie said his proposal that these kinds of problems be dealt with through the local district court and the local voluntary probation department has fallen on deaf ears. The county juvenile court, he observed, takes the position that the local probation department is non-professional.

That's far from accurate, declared the city attorney, who said local probation officers can be far more effective than the so-called "professionals downtown."

Westfall said police officers have been discouraged so often by referring local cases to the county juvenile court that they are reluctant to get involved. Long delays and frequent dismissals with no apparent correction are recurring problems, he said.

Local police, he added, have more success dealing with the problem by "working out" work details between parents and the police department for the offending youth.

Westfall's disclosure came as Mayor Vernon wondered aloud why so few cases of curfew violations show up in the monthly police reports. The mayor said, based on his personal observation, that many violations are occurring.

In other observations about the police report, Westfall, in response to a question by Councilman J. Burton DeRusha, said he strongly favored raising the minimum drinking age back to 21. He said his department is finding that more and more juveniles under the age of 18 are drinking alcohol.

When the minimum age was lowered, he said, drinking offenses began showing up at an earlier age.

Besides favoring the raising of the drinking age to 21, the police captain said the minimum age of those permitted to sell liquor also should be returned to 21.

Nevertheless, Westfall said most local liquor establishments, especially Hamlet Market, are carefully checking identifications and ages of young people purchasing alcohol. Also, he said police officers make periodic, unscheduled checks of taverns.

Earlier Monday, in a talk to the Northville Kiwanis Club, a representative of the district court probation department said the majority of cases the department is involved with in Northville are alcohol-related.

In one instance, he said, a confirmed case of alcoholism involving a 14-year-old had been identified.

A proposition that would raise the minimum drinking age to 21 will appear on the November ballot.

Concerning Westfall's report of the school situation, council directed Westfall and City Manager Steven Walters to meet with school officials to express council concern.

SUPERVISOR Wilson Grier has been named to the 11-member Wayne County Economic Development Corporation by the county board of commissioners. His term of appointment is for two years.

DEVELOPMENT PLANS for property known as the McDonald farm on the north side of Eight Mile adjacent to Lexington Commons in the City of Northville were scheduled for a preliminary plat discussion by city planners Tuesday night. This discussion had been postponed from the June 20 meeting at the request of Ernest Fournier, representing Four Real Estate Investments, Incorporated, who earlier said about 82 acres are being considered for a Planned Unit Development of residential and commercial building.

A $500 contribution by the city to the Canton, Northville, Plymouth WMCA to help underwrite that that agency's senior citizens services now being enjoyed by a large number of local residents. The "Y" requested $200. Council's amendment to an original motion to increase this amount to $500 drew the opposition of Councilman Bert DeRusha. But once the amendment was approved, DeRusha made the approval for the $500 unanimous.

NORTHVILLE TOWNSHIP officials have deposited with Manufacturers Bank a check for $15,964 received from the state as reimbursement for state-owned properties within the township boundaries. Under a new state law, explains Supervisor Wilson Grier, townships are to be given money annually for protection of state properties. This year's money, he said will be used for operations but in the future money is to be earmarked for debt retirement for a new fire station in the western portion of the township.

State aid hike to hit $110,000?

The Northville board of education may find itself in the unusual position of having $110,000 more than it expected to run the school system next year.

The excess would be due to a revised state school aid formula and a higher than anticipated tax base within the district.

Northville's actual revenues will not be known until late in September when the official school enrollment is tabulated. State aid payments are based on the number of students.

The school board, wary of the fact that the $110,000 surplus is only a fraction of next year's budget, decided Monday to earmark the excess in a contingency fund until more exact figures are available.

Next year's budget will be more than 76 million and Treasurer Charles Peltz said it would be "premature" to "play with" an amount that is only 1 1/2 percent of the total operating budget.

Board members also recall last fall when a lower than expected enrollment forced them to make last-minute cuts totalling $70,000.

If enrollment estimates prove to be too high, the district would have to tighten its belt by more than $1000 for each student under the 4133 projection.

The contingency money was made

GREEN OAK — Residents of Green Oak Township will have an opportunity to decide at the ballot box if they want Green Oak to become a charter township. By unanimous vote, the township board decided to place the question on the November general election ballot.

PINCKNEY — A former assistant principal in the Lansing School District, William Haak, has been named the new principal for the Pinckney High School, replacing Ronald Kennedy who underwent corrective heart surgery this past spring.

BRIGHTON — "I, for one, do not intend to let my beautiful lawn go dry," Robert Ellig told the township board in the wake of the disclosure that water use within the subdivision had soared from 20,000 gallons per day to 200,000 gallons, apparently because of watering of lawns as much as 24 hours a day.

HOWELL — A letter from five Howell Education Association representatives at Howell High sharply critical of the high school administration and its performance near the end of the school year was read at the school board meeting here.

SOUTH LYON — Green Oak Township is ready to go to court to stop the cities of Brighton and South Lyon from emptying sewage effluent into township waters. Green Oak Board members voted unanimously to instruct the township attorney to take "whatever steps are necessary" to stop the two cities' sewage treatment plants from emptying into the township.

NORTHFIELD — The Northfield Township Board, on request from a joint committee on rules from the Michigan state legislature, rescinded its ban against duck hunting on Whitmore Lake at a special meeting June 22.

SOUTH LYON — Phil Lemale, 22, a native of Tennessee, moved through South Lyon last week on a 2,250 mile hike from Louisiana to Quebec, Canada — on foot.

NOVI — Garry Kidd, a critic of the assessing methods used in Novi, is expected to fire a letter to the Michigan Tax Commission asking for a formal investigation of assessing in the city. Kidd already has been successful in getting the city to hire Wynn Berry, assessor for both the City of Wixom and Commerce Township, to investigate the assessing procedures here.

WALLED LAKE — The Walled Lake Action Committee of the Lakes Chamber of Commerce has met with city officials for an up-date on efforts to beautify and revitalize Walled Lake.

WIXOM — Downtown Wixom may receive a facelift in the future if plans for an "Old World" theme are approved by the Oakland County Overall Economic Program. Estimated cost of the project is $500,000, with 50 percent of the cost being picked up by an EDA grant.

Punch voting to speed elections

STEP 1

Using both hands, slide the ballot card all the way into the Vote Recorder.

STEP 3

To vote, hold the Punch straight up and push down through the card for each of your choices. Vote all pages. Use the punch provided. Do not use pen or pencil.

STEP 2

Be sure the two holes at the top of the card fit over the two red pins on the Vote Recorder

STEP 4

After voting, slide the card out of the Vote Recorder and place it under the flap in the write-in envelope. If you make a mistake, ask for another ballot.

For the first time, Northville Township residents will cast their votes August 8 by punching their choices into cardboard computer cards.

Township Clerk Clarice Sass predicts the long lines usually present at the polls will be eliminated this year.

"This will be more efficient and easier," she said. "We'll also get results faster."

After the 1976 election, precinct workers finished their jobs at 4:30 a.m., but Mrs. Sass expects the election results will be known and everything will be wrapped up by 10 p.m. this year.

Compact suitcases which open up to make concise voting tables enclosed on three sides will replace the bulky booths of the past. Computer cards will be placed under a booklet listing candidates for each office.

"Voters can cast their vote simply by turning a page and punching a hole," she said.

The Votomatic Computer Election System will result in reduced election costs, she said.

The 43 units and two precinct counters were bought with approximately $14,000 of federal anti-recession funds — less than the cost of three new old-style voting machines, Mrs. Sass said.

The township had been plagued with breakdown problems on the old machines, which were used machines when they were purchased several years ago. Six of the old machines had been sold for $3,000, she said, and 19 others, which are still in good working condition, have been advertised for sale.

The township will no longer have to hire workers to set up the machines and will have less costs involved for precinct workers because of the time saved with the computer system, the clerk said.

Precinct chairmen received training for the computer system July 7, and their workers will receive training July 17. More workers are needed for election day, and anyone interested can get an application at Northville Township Hall. Workers, who must be at the polls by 6:15 a.m., will be paid minimum wage.

Two new precincts have been added to the township since last election. Precinct 2, consisting mainly of the Highland Lakes area, has been divided into precincts 2 and 9. Parts of precincts 6 and 7 south of Six Mile Road and east of Bradner Road have been turned into Precinct 10.

All voters will receive new precinct cards by mail. As in the past, the registered voters in precinct 4 will vote by paper ballot.

The precinct chairmen are: 1 — Fran Mattison; 2 — Helen Seigle; 3 — Rose Marie Palarchio; 4 — Shirley Beason; 5 — Delores Mele; 6 — Rose Williams; 7 — Betsy Van Ee; 8 — Joe Angell; 9 — Sue Specht; 10 — Winifred Mitchell; and absentee ballot chairman is Virginia Sherman.

The chairmen and other precinct workers will instruct voters on using the computer system. Voters will have an opportunity to practice on demonstrator unit at each precinct.

Doug Whitaker is new president

Douglas Whitaker, vice president for the past year, was unanimously elected as president of the Northville board of education at its annual organizational meeting Monday night.

Whitaker, deputy director of the Wayne Oakland Public Library System, was appointed to the school board in March of 1977 to fill a vacancy. Three months later he was elected by the public to fill the remaining two years in the term.

Whitaker is replacing John Hobart who became president in early 1977 when Sylvia Gucken resigned to move to Pennsylvania. Hobart was elected to a full year term by the board last July.

"We all had a heavy workload but John's was heavier," said Whitaker Monday night. He praised Hobart for conducting meetings with "fairness and impartiality."

Former secretary Christopher Johnson, a 1973 graduate of Northville High School, was elected vice president.

Northville man killed in Detroit

A Northville Township man was shot and killed late Monday afternoon during a robbery attempt outside the northwest Detroit printing and mailing company where he worked.

Peter June, 52, 42280 Old Bedford Road, was dead on arrival at Mt. Carmel Mercy Hospital after being shot twice shortly before 6 p.m. as he left work.

June, who sold printing for the Mail Clinic, 8044 Lyndon, was sitting in his car in the adjacent company parking lot when he was approached by three young black men who attempted to rob him, according to Detroit City Police.

June, who is white, was fatally shot in the chest and left arm. It is not known if he tried to resist his assailants who left the scene without stealing anything.

Police said witnesses who heard the shots identified the attackers as three youths aged 15 or 16.

Tuesday morning, police said they had a 19-year-old suspect who was scheduled to face a line-up yesterday afternoon.

June, the father of five children, including three at home, is a former Sunday School teacher. He and his wife, Jean, have been active in the Northville First Presbyterian Church.

June, a Northville resident for nine years, had worked for the Mail Clinic since 1975.

The Mail Clinic, located at the corner of Lyndon and Greenlawn roads, is in an industrial area of Detroit bordered by Schoolcraft, Wyomiting, Fenkell and Livernois.

Its owner, Frank Kastner, also of Northville, did not see the shooting. Police were on the scene within three minutes, he said.

He said the area was usually well patrolled.

For funeral arrangements, see June's obituary on page 6-A.

Fireworks end July Fourth party

Fourth of July fireworks were not limited to the skies last Tuesday night.

About the same time the fireworks display was ending, a private beer party off East Eight Mile Road had turned into a rock-throwing, bottle-hurling, fist-fighting melee that sent a pair to the hospital, damaged at least five cars and resulted in a single arrest.

The brawl was apparently triggered by party-crashers who, according to 18-year-old host Howard Hancock, not only were responsible for the incident but who also exaggerated its scope.

"They were telling some wild stories," said Hancock. "It was no big deal."

Northville Township Police, backed up by city and state police, broke up the fracas by midnight. They were called to the scene shortly after 11 p.m. by a Highland Lakes woman who complained that her windshield was broken and her car pelted with rocks as she drove past the party.

"It could have been a nasty situation," said Township Police Chief Ronald Nisun. "It was a large can of worms."

"We broke up the party, but we weren't there to break heads."

Police estimate that about 50 people were at the party, located in a vacant field next to Hancock's father's home, 42565 Eight Mile, a short distance east of Highland Lakes subdivision.

Hancock said he and some friends chipped in for food and drinks for the private party. He said the trouble started when out-of-town party-goers tried to crash the party and were told to leave.

When some tried to leave the ensuing fight, according to police, others threw rocks, bottles, tree limbs and whatever else they could get their hands on at the departing cars.

Some of this debris apparently struck the car of the Highland Lakes woman. Two other cars were also damaged by thrown objects.

One driver virtually totaled another car when he rammed it broadside while trying to leave the scene. He was driving, police said, because the car's owner's face was bloodied when his glasses were broken during the ruckus.

The injured man and a female passenger in his car, who apparently was either kicked or struck, were taken to a nearby hospital by ambulance.

Nisun said there would have been no arrest had not one of the partygoers scuffled with a policeman who was trying to break up the party.

Terrance J. Phelan, 19, 387 Welch, Northville, pleaded innocent Wednesday during his district court arraignment to a charge of assaulting a police officer.

He is free on $50 bond.

Free classes are real lifesavers

When a person stops breathing, the minutes spent waiting for emergency personnel to rush to the scene may mean the difference between life and death.

Studies have shown that a victim's chance of surviving is as high as 95 percent if proper lifesaving techniques begin within the first minute.

Those odds drop to 80 percent in the second minute, 40 percent in the third minute and 30 percent in the fifth minute.

Unfortunately, it takes at least five minutes and often more between the time the person stops breathing and the rescue unit reaches him.

"By then, it's practically too late," said Northville Township Fire Chief Robert Toms.

Even if the emergency technicians can revive the victim, the brain is subject to irreparable damage if it is without oxygen for too long.

"Then, in all honesty, if you bring them back, you are bringing back a vegetable," said Toms.

A person's chances brighten considerably, however, if someone at the scene knows how to apply cardiopulmonary resuscitation. CPR is a life-saving technique that combines mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and hard hand pressure on the chest to mechanically force breathing.

Monday night, the township fire department conducted the first of what it hopes are many free public classes designed to teach township residents CPR.

"I would hope that people would do this," said Toms. "The thing is, it's not hard to learn."

He, especially, urges swimming pool owners and people who live near pools and swimming holes to attend the classes.

Monday's class attracted about a dozen participants. The department is willing to set up other free sessions if interest warrants. Call 455-5535 for more information.

Speed and proper CPR application are essential if the victim is going to have a chance, said Toms.

The trick, he said, is to force oxygen to the brain until the patient can be taken to the hospital and hooked up to more sophisticated devices.

"Even if the person is 'dead,' his brain is still alive and his body functions are operating," said Toms.

"Even though you are not breathing yourself, you are not dying either. They've had cases where guys have been out of the picture for over an hour and they bring them back and it's all right."

At Toms' urging, each member of the year-old volunteer fire department has completed a CPR course. Five have gone on to become certified instructors and will teach the free township courses.

People who complete the course taught by the firemen will receive Michigan Heart Association CPR lifesaving certificates.

The super sewer project area have been invited to attend a meeting today (Wednesday), called by the Wayne County Department of Public Works (DPW).

According to Duane Egeland, deputy director of the DPW, the session was scheduled in order to provide the local officials with information provided by the chief of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) regional environmental impact statement section on alternatives to the controversial regional wastewater interceptor and treatment plant facilities.

"This is information they should have before the public hearing," added Egeland.

The EPA has announced that a draft impact statement will be published in "The Federal Register" on August 4, with a public hearing on the report tentatively scheduled for September 7.

Of the several alternatives discussed at a series of four public informational meetings earlier this year, Egeland said, four plans appear to be in the running for an EPA recommendation.

Those plans include:

- III-M, a modified regional system that would serve Wayne and Oakland counties with interceptor lines and one large treatment plant to be built near Rockwood, with effluent to be discharged into Lake Erie;
- XIII, a regional system similar to III-M that would cover the area south of mid-Nov, with northern Novi, Commerce and Walled Lake to be served by an expanded Walled Lake-Nov treatment plant;
- an alternative that calls for construction of super sewer to Canton Township, with Plymouth and Northville to be served by "traded capacity" in the Rouge River basin. The Oakland County communities would be dropped from the project, although

Area officials to meet on 'super sewer' today

By DAVID RAY

Officials from the 19 Oakland and Wayne county communities included in Northville board elects Whitaker

Karen Wilkinson, who announced earlier that she wished to relinquish the treasurer's position she held for two years, was elected secretary.

Charles Peltz, beginning his second year on the board, was elected treasurer.

There was only one candidate nominated for each position and each was elected by unanimous ballot.

The organization meeting was the first for board newcomer Richard Barron, a Michigan Bell executive who, along with Mrs. Wilkinson, ran opposed in the June 12 school board election.

The board voted to continue to conduct its formal meetings on the second and fourth Mondays of each month.

The location for most of these meetings will be at the board of education offices, 303 West Main Street. Seven of the fourth Monday meetings, however, will be conducted at various school buildings throughout the district.

The board again designated Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit as its official depository for the 1978-79 school year.

The board also adopted a resolution recognizing the services of past board member James Lewis.

Lewis, elected to the board in 1977 to fill the last year of a four-year term, did not run for reelection.

Local Fourth of July celebration's a real humdinger

From start to finish, it was indeed a "glorious Fourth," most citizens would agree in assessing last week's July 4 celebration in Northville.

Although the third annual ecumenical service, first event of the day, had a poor attendance, those who were present found it inspiring.

The turnout at the parade, however, had to be close to a record. Spectators stood on both sides of Main Street, in some cases six and even seven persons deep, from Griswold to Rogers Street. Many others lined Rogers Street, where the parade turned south to Cady.

Numerous officials participated in the parade. Among them were U.S. Senator Robert Griffin and Governor William Milliken.

The governor was not expected to arrive in time to participate in the parade, but his earlier than anticipated arrival plus the length of the parade permitted him to join in near its conclusion.

Later, in a short ceremony at the Mill Race Historical Village, he was introduced to the crowd by Mayor Paul Vernon of Northville. The mayor presented him with a copy of the book, Northville... The First Hundred Years, and with a miniature Northville flag as a token of the city's salute to him and the office he holds.

The governor also was presented tribute by the Jaycees.

Throughout the day, the largest crowd ever to assemble at the Mill Race enjoyed a host of activities co-sponsored by the Jaycees and by the Northville Historical Society.

"We were swamped; it was simply staggering," said Jaycee overall chairman James Totzkay of the crowd at the Mill Race. "I'd say the parade turnout was about as big as last year, but the number of people at the Mill Race and later at the fireworks was unbelievable."

Concerning the fireworks, Totzkay said the Jaycees staged a bigger than usual show. "It was primarily an aerial show, though, because we purposely cut down on the ground display. I think the people really enjoyed it."

"Overall, we're (Jaycees) really delighted with the way things turned out. Frankly, I'm proud of the job the Jaycees did."

According to Totzkay, winner of the big prize offered by the Jaycees went to Joe F. Gallagher of Plymouth.

Gallagher chose the five $100 U.S. Savings Bonds rather than the alternative color television set offered by Jaycees. The prize was presented to him Saturday night at the July Fourth Afterglow held at the home of one of the Jaycees.

Jaycees also announced winners of

Floats — first, Northville Newcomers; second, Montessori Center; and third, Northville-Novii Colts.

Senior Band Groups — first, Amherstburg Community band; second, Plymouth Community Band.

Junior Band Groups — first, Farmington Community Band; second, Northville High School Marching Band; and third, Plymouth Community Band.

Beer Hill is calm

Call it Peaceful Hill

Joseph Michrina remembers how it used to be on Beer Hill. His King's Mill home gave him a front row view of the daily activities.

Drugs. Rowdy youngsters. Heavy drinking. Disrespectful kids. He saw it all.

"We could see everything that goes on there when it used to be bad," he said.

In fact, he said he was one of the first to give a name to the popular gathering spot off Edward Hines Drive, north of Six Mile Road and directly south of the King's Mill Cooperative in Northville Township.

He called it Beer Hill. But something has changed, he said. In the last two summers, the troublemakers have gone elsewhere and families now are free to picnic in the area without being bothered.

There is even grass growing there now — the lush, green variety and not the illegal stuff that kids used to sell freely there.

"They ought to call it Peaceful Hill now," he said.

The change, he said, can be traced directly to a police raid on the area about a year ago.

"It was just like in the movies, every night you could expect something," he said.

"One evening, the crowd was gathering and one of those vans came up — went right up that hill.

"People started to shout, 'Hooray' — they thought it was some more dope. Then a bunch of policemen came out (of the van) and they scattered all over."

Some ran toward King's Mill to jump the fence that separates the co-op from the hill. Youngsters liked to park on the King's Mill side of the fence, said Michrina, because it made their getaway easier in case of a raid.

"A bunch tried to get over the fence. A lady followed and pulled out a gun. She was an undercover policewoman. She told them to lay down.

"A few didn't want to listen to her, but then a policeman came over and said, 'Do what she says or she'll shoot.'"

Ever since, said Michrina, "it's been better and better on that side of the hill. Nobody comes except families. You can lunch there and have picnics."

There is a bike path along Edward Hines Parkway which he and his wife often follow while walking.

"You never could have done that before," he said.

It's a far cry from a few years ago when Beer Hill was known throughout southeastern Michigan and northern Ohio as a drug center.

At night, cars used to line both sides of the Parkway and police helicopters often hovered overhead.

The improved conditions at Beer Hill are probably due to increased police patrols and the fact that popular hangouts are now further south along the Parkway.

That doesn't mean that all trouble has disappeared. Two weeks ago, someone shot at a Wayne County deputy as he drove his marked police car in the park area just south of Northville Township in Plymouth Township.

For the most part, though, the Beer Hill scene is greatly improved, said Michrina.

"It's nice even in the winter time," he said. "The only thing bad now, we don't get free shows," he laughed.

DESPITE endorsement by other suburban officials, the city council has taken a temporary "hands off" position on either of the tax cutting or tax limiting proposals headed for the November ballot. However, Mayor Paul Vernon observed Monday that the so-called Headlee amendment appears to be a good deal more sensible approach to tax limitation.

NORTHVILLE councilmen have joined Novi officials in opposing a proposal to pump Oakland County money into the Pontiac Silver dome in an attempt to attract the Superbowl football game to the Pontiac stadium.

PUBLIC HEARINGS have been set for Monday, August 7 on two proposed zoning amendments — one setting down procedures for site development plan review and the other giving the Northville Historical District Commission final approval for projects located in commercially zoned areas within the historic district.

BIDS ARE DUE August 7 on bonds for financing the sprinkler system at Allen Terrace senior citizens apartments and for the widening of Hutton Street at Main.

THE LATE great superintendent search begins anew Thursday night at 7:30 for the Northville board of education. The board thought it had hired Albion Superintendent Garth Errington last month but he backed out at the last moment. Thursday, the board will review applicants who were recommended by university placement centers but who were not among the eight in the first round of interviews.

First summer concert is tonight

A varied program of musical fare, including songs from Dr. Zhivago, will be played from the top of the Northville High School hill as the high school band presents its first outdoor summer concert of the season at 7:30 p.m. today (Wednesday).

Area residents are invited to bring chairs or blankets to sit on the grassy hill for the concert under the direction of Robert Williams, high school band director.

Guest conductors for the 50-minute concert will be David Kleckner and Joe Mason. Kleckner and Mason both are former band members. Kleckner has graduated from Wayne State University as a band director and Mason is a student in music at University of Michigan.

Other features of the program include "an international treatment" of "This Old Man," "Citation," "Phantom Regiment,"

"California Dreamin'" and "Monday-Monday." The latter two numbers, Williams explains are a combination in the style of Carole King.

In event of rain the concert will not be held.

Two additional free outdoor concerts are scheduled for July 19 and 26. Rehearsals, which high school band alumni are invited to join, are held at 7 p.m. Monday nights at the high school.

EPA officials have said that other plans would be studied for treatment facilities for Commerce, Novi and Walled Lake; and —a proposal to decentralize treatment facilities by expanding all existing plants instead of construction of a new regional system.

Egeland said the Wayne DPW favors alternative III-M.

The alternatives calling for construction of super sewer to mid-Nov or dropping Oakland County from the regional system are not acceptable, he said.

While those plans would "solve Wayne County's problem, although at a higher cost," Egeland said the Oakland communities probably would have to be served by a "larger plant up-stream and we don't want that."

Valo on list

Joan Valo of Northville was one of 330 Grand Valley State Colleges students named to the College of Arts and Sciences Dean's List for the 1978 winter term.

To make the list, Valo had to maintain at least a 3.5 grade point average while carrying a 15-credit hour course load.

Sunday bloodmobile set at St. Paul's church

An unusual Sunday bloodmobile is scheduled for St. Paul's Lutheran Church for the last Sunday of the month, July 30.

The bloodmobile hours are from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. and the public is encouraged to participate. Reservations, by calling 349-1557, are recommended.

The Sunday blood drive is necessary to provide area hospitals with an early week supply of platelets.

Platelets, a blood-clotting element, are effective only when administered within 24 to 48 hours of the time that blood is donated, according to Linda Röss, Red Cross representative for the northwest Wayne County region.

"To have the blood in the hospitals on Monday and Tuesday, we have to collect on Sunday," she said.

The Livonia regional office has had to open its doors on Sunday because "we have been unable to find church groups in the five-county area to sponsor a bloodmobile," she added.

St. Paul's, however, had responded positively to an earlier Red Cross survey which had asked churches if they were willing to sponsor a Sunday bloodmobile.

When Ms. Röss uncovered that survey, she contacted St. Paul's and set up this month's blood drive.

"We're shooting for 50 pints which means we have to register 60 people," she said. A certain percentage of blood donors are usually turned down for a

90 days for slapping wife

Woman 'wasn't damaged enough' finally voted raises

By RICH PERLBERG

The serenity of a Northville Township neighborhood was shattered early one morning when a frantic woman raced screaming into her front yard.

Inside her Highland Lakes home, a seemingly crazed man was beating and choking the woman's daughter. He had also slapped the woman's seven-month-old grandchild who was in her mother's arms when he bashed down the door.

Called by neighbors, two Northville Township policemen rushed to the scene and arrested the 225-pound attacker.

Had the man intended on stealing a television set, he could have been charged with a felony and, if convicted, faced a prison term of up to 15 years.

But all he wanted to do was slap his terrified wife around. That's a misdemeanor. A day after the attack, he pleaded guilty to assaulting his wife and was sentenced to 90 days in the Detroit House of Corrections.

Northville Township Police, who wanted a stiffer penalty, were thwarted because the woman suffered only relatively minor injuries — a few bruises and a possible strain.

"True, he didn't kill her and didn't break her neck," said investigator Phil Presnell. But she had been subjected to a frightening night, continued threats and intimidation and, with her husband's arrest, threats of retaliation, he added.

"This isn't the judge's fault. He gave him the maximum he could under law," said Presnell.

"If he had hurt her worse, if he had picked up a chair or used a weapon, he could have been charged with a felony. But since he was using his hands, he couldn't."

"She wasn't damaged enough," sighed Jean Zuber, a spokesperson for the National Organization for Women (NOW). She said the story is all too common and can't be remedied without new legislation that gives police more power.

The wife's night of terror began earlier the preceding day when she and her husband quarreled in their downriver home.

When the husband threatened violence, the wife — with police escort — fled to her mother's Northville home.

Enraged, the husband — a 29-year-old, self-employed laborer — began wreaking his own home and periodically called his wife with repeated threats. She told police he promised to kill her.

Alerted to the volatile situation, township police kept an eye on the neighborhood.

At about 2:15 a.m., however, the husband eluded the single car on patrol and coasted into his mother-in-law's driveway with his headlights out.

Barging through the door, he tore the phone from his mother-in-law and ripped it out of its wall socket. Then, according to police reports, he turned his wrath on his wife who was holding the couple's seven-month-old baby child.

The wife told police that he struck her and the baby and then placed his hands around her neck.

Police arrive shortly after and, when the husband refused to leave, made the arrest.

He was charged with two counts of assault and battery and single counts of unlawful entry and destruction of property.

He pleaded guilty to assaulting his wife and innocent to the other charges.

"We had hoped, due to the violence, that we could get something more serious," said Presnell. In particular, he wanted a charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm, a 10-year felony.

But intent is a "very, very difficult thing to prove," said John Quaine, the Wayne County assistant prosecutor who issued the warrants.

It's especially hard in this case, he said, because the strapping husband was easily capable of doing serious injury and yet the woman was relatively unharmed.

"He didn't, in fact, do great bodily harm," he said. "All she came out with was a couple of bruises."

"He's a typical, loud-mouthed bully who is intimidating two women. He wants submission. He wants to show who is boss."

"As far as I know, this guy has no real history of violence. I think if he was going to kill her, he would have come in with a weapon."

But what of his repeated threats? "Threats are not actionable in Michigan," he said. "Women's groups think every guy should go to jail for 100 years. I don't recommend cases unless we've got a good shot (at winning them)."

Had the man seriously injured his wife or used a weapon, "no question, I would have hit him with two or three felonies."

Entering a home against the owner's will is a 15-year felony only if the man enters with the intent to commit a felony, he said.

"If he broke in to slap his wife, you don't have a felony," he said. NOW's Zuber admits that spouse-beating often ends up as a "dead end for both woman and police."

"Some cops are suggesting that the women pull up roots and leave town."

The victim in this case has told police that she may flee the state rather than face possible retribution by her husband or his sister, a member of a motorcycle gang who allegedly promised revenge.

The problem is heightened because the typical victim is usually characterized by low self-image, guilt and economic binds.

Self esteem is usually the pits," said Zuber. "She's had years of being demoralized and beaten. Often the woman feels responsible and needs counseling."

She urges the passage of legislation which would provide for stiffer penalties for wife-beating, enable police to press charges when the woman is afraid to, and fund survival centers for women forced to leave their homes.

There are some places to turn for help.

The Women's Survival Center in Pontiac has a crisis hot line (335-1520); the Ann Arbor Domestic Violence Center (994-9100) provides temporary shelter; and the Women's Justice Center in Detroit (961-7073) is a source for information.

Wife beating, although a longtime problem, has only recently become publicized. Zuber said the notoriety has had a pleasant side effect.

"Men seem to care about it," she said. "I'm delighted."

Most people over the age of 18 — 17 with parental consent — can give blood and many find it to be painless once they get over their initial reluctance.

In early May, the annual Northville Red Cross blood drive at the Presbyterian Church produced 65 pints and a week later, the first-ever bloodmobile at the high school collected 72 pints.

Those donors can participate in the St. Paul bloodmobile since people may safely donate blood once every eight weeks up to five times a year.

In the fall, Our Lady of Victory Catholic Church sponsors a bloodmobile.

Alcohol topic of programs

A three-day alcohol awareness program got underway last night at the 35th District Court on the second floor of Plymouth City Hall.

Dr. Frank Hollingsworth, Ph.D., discussed the pharmacology of alcohol and its effect on the body.

He also will discuss the progression of alcohol as a disease at the second session at 8 p.m. July 18.

Members from Alcoholics Anonymous and Alanon will tell their experiences with alcohol at the third session at 8 p.m. July 25.

Co-sponsored by the court and the Northville Jaycees, the sessions are open to the public. Information about treatment facilities in this area will be available

Substitute teachers

finally voted raises

Northville's sub-par substitute teacher's pay got a boost last week that school officials hope will make the district more competitive.

By a unanimous vote, the school board upped the daily wage for a substitute teacher from $26 to $30, the first increase in about ten years.

Northville, which has been paying more for substitute custodians than for substitute teachers, had a lower wage scale than most county and neighboring districts.

"It's made it tough," said Personnel Director Burton Knighton. "Some of our good subs have been going to neighboring districts where they are getting more money. You can't be as choosy."

Northville's new rate is barely higher than last year's average for seven neighboring schools, but it is still lower than the $31.50-a-day Wayne County average.

The board budgeted $11,000 to cover the raise.

Substitute teachers make about half the daily rate of the lowest paid teachers in the system and less than a third of what the average Northville teacher earns in a day.

The school contributes five percent of a substitute's salary into a state-mandated retirement fund, but there are no other fringe benefits.

School districts have taken advantage of the teacher surplus that has flooded the market during the last decade and kept the per diem rate down.

As a result, many former substitutes have looked for different jobs. Northville had a list of 100 possible substitutes to start the school year, said Knighton. By year's end, it had dwindled to 50.

Even though other districts may also raise their wage structure, Knighton said the board's action "is going to keep us fairly competitive. We feel it is going to help us considerably."

At $26 a day, a Northville substitute was working at a rate equivalent to less than $5000 for a standard teaching year of 187 days.

Battle with kids continues down at swimming hole

By LENORE BECHTEL

Northville Township police are taking a get-tough policy toward trespassers at the gravel pit between Highland Lakes Subdivision and Griswold Road. And township officials are trying new methods of discouraging swimmers from frolicking in the deep, cold, dangerous waters known as Lake Success.

"We've had this problem for five or six years," Township Supervisor Wilson Grier said, "but 1978 is going to be better. We don't have the tremendously large groups this year, but it's still a problem."

Last month the township hired a contractor to trench every spot giving access to the popular off-limits swimming hole. Now persons wanting to drive to the forbidden pit are faced with deep ditches and hills of dirt at every entrance.

"Now they must park on Griswold, and if they do, they're towed away," Grier said.

Township Police Chief Ronald Nisun estimates 12 cars have been impounded from the area. Officials are hopeful that parents who have had to come after their teenagers and their cars will prohibit their children from breaking the trespassing law again.

"We've had many irate parents at the end of the phone," the supervisor said. Unfortunately, some motorcycles and four-wheel drive vehicles are making it over the mounds of dirt, Chief Nisun said.

"We're spending too much time and taxpayers dollars trying to keep people out," he said. "We're doing that when we should be doing other things."

In June, July and August last year, police responded to 221 complaints from the Highland Lakes area. They issued 474 appearance tickets to trespassers and 21 parking tickets to drivers parking their cars on Griswold.

"We also had trouble in May and September," the police chief said. "We issued well over 100 tickets those months."

But tickets issued do not tell the whole story, he pointed out. "When there are 200 to 300 people, we can't do anything but get on the PA and tell them to get out. On a hot day, it looked like a park with wall-to-wall people."

A policeman was assigned overtime duty each Saturday and Sunday from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. to do nothing but chase people away from the gravel pit and keep others from coming in.

"If we hadn't done this, we'd have had even more tickets," Nisun said.

In June this year 74 tickets were issued, and Nisun contributes the decrease to the get-tough policy.

"When they started getting heavy this year, we clamped down right away," he said. "The get-tough policy has made a big difference."

The area is posted with No Trespassing signs, but the signs are quickly torn down.

Michigan law requires that a person cannot be convicted of trespassing unless it can be proved the person was adequately notified that he was infringing upon private property.

Last summer the Northville Township Board passed an ordinance requiring fences to be erected and maintained around open bodies of water.

The 437 Land Company, which took over the Highland Lakes project from the developers, Levitt Residential Communities, spent $29,000 building a fence, Grier said, but it was quickly torn down by young people anxious to get to the pits. The New York company repaired the fence two times, and they also paid the bill for trenching the access spots.

"So far they have complied with every directive," he said.

But the corporation is balking at repairing the fence again. Starting this month Building Inspector Troy Milligan has issued daily citations to James DeFrancie of the 437 Land Company citing the company with violation of the ordinance requiring maintenance of fences around open bodies of water.

Every day the fence goes unrepaired is a separate offense, Milligan explained. The company could be fined $500 a day.

"The developers and owners created the problem," Chief Nisun said. "It's up to them to help solve it."

Robert Nelson, attorney for the 437 Land Company, said he does not yet know how the company will respond to the daily citations. "We'll decide what our response will be as soon as we've reviewed the ordinance," he said.

The supervisor said he thinks the problem will not be totally solved until there is construction around the gravel pit.

Township police also have problems with trespassers at another gravel pit, Swan Harbor Lake, which has Highland Lakes condominiums on one side, but is undeveloped on the other.

Controlling trespassers here is difficult, Nisun said, because "It's hard to

Former football star now tree top tackler

Jerry Imsland: "They asked me if I'd do it . . . for 25-cents an hour more"

by JACK W. HOFFMAN

It's a long way from the Big Ten limelight to his precarious perch atop the 54-year-old maple tree.

But Jerry Imsland, the former football star who quit college just 18 credit hours from graduation at U-M, likes what he sees and does.

He's a tree-trimming foreman with Green Ridge tree service in Northville Township and today he's tied to the swaying neck of the 50-foot dead giant and sawing off its limbs.

It's a tree removal job, second of this Thursday morning, and Jerry and his crew of two — Bill Epps of Northville and Matt Norris of Plymouth — are methodically slicing up the tree in the front yard of a Penniman Avenue home in Plymouth.

High above the ground, often out on a limb, Jerry is using ropes and saws. As he slices off each limb, Bill and Matt direct traffic, tug telephone wires from the path of the fall branches and clean up the litter.

He uses a hand saw on the smaller branches, a chain saw on the larger ones.

And those larger ones are tied to the trunk and then carefully lowered to the ground by ropes.

It's tough, dirty and dangerous work. This tree, for example, stands right next to wires running along the street perhaps 10 feet away. More wires run past it to the house 15 feet away, and its brittle branches are directly above a brand new picket fence.

A wrong move and the still unpainted fence is kindling, a section of Plymouth is without power or phone service, or worse, Jerry Imsland is falling.

But the job's going well. Almost as quickly as Jerry drops another limb, Bill and Matt have cut it up and stuffed it into the roaring chipper parked behind the truck at the curb.

After cutting off all of the branches, leaving a naked 25-foot high stub, the ex-grinder unties his safety ropes, lowers his chain saw, digs his spurs into the bark and comes down 90 minutes after going up.

Now comes perhaps the most difficult part of the job.

With eight full years with Green Ridge, Jerry's experience helps. He measures off the distance to where the tree will fall, then retraces his steps to make sure. He checks and rechecks the wires and the fence, makes sure the tug line is secured, then orders his helpers to place thick limbs across the sidewalk to keep one end of the tree trunk off the ground when it's down.

If his calculations are correct, the tree will fall just short of a "no parking" sign, missing the wires and the fence by inches. If he's wrong somebody's going to be upset.

This is a job for the bigger of two chain saws the trio is using. It bites into the side of the tree facing the direction of the fall. Two cuts, and Jerry lifts out a heavy triangular wedge.

He backs off and checks again. Not satisfied, he changes the shape of the cut with another pass with the saw.

Now he's ready. While Bill tugs the wires as far away from the path as possible and Matt pulls hard on the tug-line attached near the top of the tree, Jerry makes a cut parallel to the ground on the opposite side of the wedge.

The tree quivers, and he drops his saw and runs to join Matt on the tug-line. There's the unmistakable crack of a falling tree... but no shouts of "timber."

It falls precisely along the predetermined path.

Now it's mop up time (slicing the trunk into smaller pieces more easily lifted into the truck), but the three first break for lunch.

"It's good work; I like it," says Jerry, who has no serious regrets about leaving college before getting his physical education degree. "Oh, I'll probably go back someday to finish up, but right now this (job) suits me."

Besides, at Green Ridge employees get a piece of the action. Eventually, they'll become owners, he points out.

He worked two summers with Green Ridge while attending the university, then began full time employment after dropping out of school just after football season in his senior year.

His first jobs were in the Green Ridge nursery division.

Then one day "someone didn't want to climb a tree. They asked me if I'd do it... for 25-cents an hour more." He's been at it ever since.

The former all-stater at Northville High School where he was a three-letterman, Jerry spent his first year at Kentucky before transferring to U-M. A starting offensive end in his junior year ("nine out of ten games"), he was on the sidelines much of the time the next year.

Now married and the proud father of twin boys, the still trim Jerry Imsland, who is sporting a blond, sawdust-covered mustache, figures his future is as bright now as it was when the scouts were beating on his door.

"I'm happy," he says, and that's what counts — whether it's racing across the Michigan Stadium artificial turf or swaying in a tree above Penniman Avenue.

Two Northville students returned Sunday from a two-week jazz session at the Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp in Twin Lake, 15 miles north of Muskegon.

Attending were Seth Swallow, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Swallow of 318 S. Rogers St., and Stephen Tsoucaris, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Tsoucaris of 18945 Edenderry Dr. Blue Lake's 13-year-old

GOOD TIME FOR WINE

by Jim Roth

Tasting a wine is easy, but describing its taste is not. Often, wine brings various kinds of fruits into the minds of tasters. Raisins, coconuts, apricots, and raspberries are perhaps the most common tastes described for good wines. Bad wines are often described in terms of a vegetable taste, or flowers, such as geraniums (though you might wonder how many people have actually tasted geraniums). But everyone has their own taste and what might be an apple to one person might taste like a prune to someone else. And who says vegetables don't taste good?

You'll find wines to please every person's taste when you come to us at GOOD TIME PARTY STORE, 567 Seven Mile Road, 349-1477. 'Get involved in your community'

Overcast skies that seemed to threaten rain were blamed for the small attendance, estimated at about 100, for the third annual outdoor ecumenical worship service at the Mill Race on July 4.

The Reverend Father Gerard Hadad of Our Lady Of Victory Church in the morning homily appealed to the audience to "live up to the Second Commandment so that we love on another as a family."

He charged those attending to live up to responsibilities in government and the community, saying, "It is easy to blame the government — but it is we who are responsible, it is we who are the government."

"When we find ourselves blaming policies, then we do not understand what our responsibilities should be. When we select leaders, how many of us vote?"

Father Hadad cited the last election for school board officers as an example of failed responsibility as he pointed out that only two people were interested enough to run.

"There is so much work to do and so few to do it," he admonished.

The Reverend Lloyd G. Brasure of First Presbyterian Church gave the morning greeting and the benediction. The Reverend James Andrews of Full Salvation Union Church led the lessons from the Scriptures.

The ecumenical choir sang the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "Faith of Our Fathers" and concluded with "O Beautiful for Spacious Skies" and the choral benediction, "Blessings of Aaron." It was under the direction of Kenneth Clum with Ann MacDonald accompanying on the piano

SPEAKING

for The Record

By BILL SLIGER

Beauty, they say, is in the eye of the beholder.

And many, I am sure, will find it difficult to detect beauty in the $40 million shopping center-office-hotel complex proposed for 87 acres at the northwest corner of Haggerty and Eight Mile roads.

They are the ones who feel the tensions relax as they turn westward off the new I-275 expressway to view rolling woodlands on both the northwest and southwest corners of Eight Mile. And the feeling that you are leaving the rat race behind builds as you inhale the odor of the apple orchards and peer at the rolling fairways of Meadowbrook Country Club.

Ah, the countryside.

But not for long. Make way for progress.

Both corners at the Eight Mile road intersection of the parallel Haggerty and I-275 highways will one day see their trees shorn in favor of commercial development.

This is as much a fact of life as the loss of youth to age.

In some ways it reminds me of the wildlife films: that almost matter-of-factly reveal the survival of the fittest. The lion kills and devours the fawn. That's the way it is. It's understandable. But I'm always pulling for the fawn to get away. At least for another day. Let the lion go to bed hungry.

It's unrealistic, of course, to expect that a community should build a protective wall around its open spaces any more than it can effectively control its population growth.

Landowners have the right to sell their property for development that complies with reasonable zoning regulations. And people are free to move wherever they wish.

When you have open land with access to a busy freeway convenient to increasing numbers of people, you have a sure-fire sale for commercial development.

There are choices, however. And there are responsibilities to be exercised by government to avoid extremes.

For example, within the limits of the taxpayers' willingness and ability to pay open spaces can be preserved. Such luxury means that community residents would not only be willing to acquire property simply for beauty's sake (as well as limiting traffic and congestion), but that they would also forego the tax revenues that development provides.

To some degree the city of Northville has moved in this direction by acquiring several open space sites within the city limits.

But at Haggerty and Eight Mile roads we are dealing with massive sites of great financial value. It would be foolhardy to hope that such parcels could be forever preserved in their natural state.

What's more, two governmental bodies are involved. The northwest corner is in the city of Novi. Across the road is Northville Township.

And before this begins to sound like a total anti-development treatise, it must be noted that there are many sound arguments in support of commercial complexes.

They provide employment, taxbase and needed services for the public. They represent huge investment and play an important role in our economy.

By some such development may be viewed as a necessary evil; by others as desirable progress; still others would argue that they moved out in the country to get away from such centers.

But they are not selling the property, or looking for jobs, or having to deal responsibly and equitably with all such requests at the governmental level.

Yet it seems to me that there is a tendency on the part of local-level officials to become over-anxious in the face of elaborately-drawn development schemes.

In dealing with promoter "lions" some officials, perhaps because of inexperience, are reluctant to assume a reasonable hardline stance.

Especially in instances such as the Eight Mile-Haggerty area where major development has an impact on two communities; it behooves local authorities to move slowly and consult their neighbors.

Nature's beauty does not have to be raped to develop a prosperous commercial complex. Quite the contrary. Proper setbacks, the use of greenbelting and well-planned traffic patterns can often make the difference between a successful business enterprise and a concrete jungle that appeals to neither merchant nor customer.

My advice to officials holding the power of approval is to let the lions wait until you are satisfied that you are obtaining the very best development possible for your community and its citizens.

If the lion is hungry, he will be back for the fawn tomorrow.

GOOD . . .

Comic book superheroes are a positive influence on their readers. Most young people begin to read superhero stories as they approach adolescence and continue to read them as teenagers. During this time most begin in earnest to try to find themselves and establish their individuality. Superheroes present to these youths all the positive images of the individual wrapped up in an attractive and entertaining package which neither preaches nor nags, but does consistently put forward the positive values and ethics of contemporary society.

Within the pages of the comic book different is special, evil is punished, beauty is not always equated with good, and awesome power brings awesome responsibility. As examples of strong individuals dedicated to using all their resources for the benefit of humanity without regard to, or at times in spite of, criticism and ridicule regarding their physical differences, superheroes can only be regarded as positive images.

Folkheroes are an essential part of any culture, and identification with contemporary folkheroes is an important part of coming of age in any time. Comic book superheroes are the modern embodiment of the universal folkhero whose stories not only provide entertainment but also reinforce the positive values of the society in which they are written.

BAD . . .

First of all, in developing the thesis that "Superheroes are Bad," I would have to say that Superheroes are Good. Modern day heroes such as Tarzan, Mowgli, Paul Bunyan, the Lone Ranger, Hulk and Spiderman are as important to the development of children in our culture as were Solomon, Hercules, Atlas, Zeus, Achilles and Mercury (Shazam) to children of ancient Israel and Greece.

It should be clear at this point that I am not against childhood. My own children continue to introduce me in terms other than, "I'd like you to meet the man who hates Wonder Woman." The search for a bad guy continues. There is a little and a lot of badness in some and all of us. Purity of badness is only found in melodrama. So we should talk about bad practices in art and parenting.

There are artists who produce bad stories for TV, movies, books and comic books. Children are not entertained, their curiosity is not aroused, their intellect is not developed and their emotions are not clarified. There are parents who do not know the difference between good art and bad; and there are others who don't care. There are, consequently, children who live on a very bad story diet with the same unhealthy results as if they were on a bad food diet.

JACK W. HOFFMAN'S COLUMN

If you don't think Watergate has had a positive effect on lawmakers, consider the mountain of Open Meetings bills that were introduced in the legislature this past year.

Government officials have seen nothing like it in the history of the state.

Through May 22 of this year, the 1977-78 session of the legislature produced 203 bills on Open Meetings — the second largest number of bills for any category. And that includes the perennially important appropriations (money) bills.

What's more, 22 percent of all of the 397 bills enacted into law on all subjects during this same period dealt with Open Meetings — the people's right to know what government is doing.

If my calculations are correct, based on material supplied me by State Senator R. Robert Geake, a total of 89 Open Meetings bills became law. That's a 44 percent batting average.

It was such an important subject in the legislature that it produced a new leader in the number of successful bills sponsored by a legislator. He is 36-year-old David C. Hollister, a Democratic representative from Lansing who has been in the legislature only four years.

Hollister, a history-political science honors graduate of Michigan State University who later became a county commissioner, sponsored a whopping 51 approved bills — virtually all of them having to do with Open Meetings. Not even the recognized veteran kingpins of either the House or the Senate could come close to that record.

And there were enough other Open Meetings bills around to produce the runner-up in the most-bills-enacted-into-law category. W. Perry Bullard, a young lawyer representative from Ann Arbor, sponsored a total of 25.

Also riding the Open Meetings cause was the third-place leader, Thomas H. Brown of Westland. He sponsored 24 successful bills.

To give you a better idea of how big Open Meetings legislation has been during the year, my figures show that the 203 Open Meetings bills (unapproved and approved) was second only to those bills dealing with the state.

'Use additional state aid to reinstate cuts'

To the Editor:
I have been watching the 1978-79 school year budget planning for the past several months and, as different factors came into focus, altering or qualifying preliminary plans, I have made some observations to which I would like to call attention.

For instance, in last week's Record a front page article was headlined "School District May Get an Extra $57,000 in Aid." It was thought provoking for several reasons.

First: Our state aid for 1978-79 was projected to be $712,600 on an assumption that the D-day enrollment would further decline from 4,133 (the preliminary budget projection) to 4,072 if the 2.6 millage was defeated. This was the basis for $463,000 in proposed budget cuts.

Since the 2.6 millage did pass and the state aid has been increased, there now should be sufficient revenues to reinstate the cuts and still have approximately $150,000 left (including the $57,000) in excess of the $7,673,000 itemized in the May 4, 1978 No. 1 Preliminary Budget Forecast, providing the D-day enrollment is 4,133.

Some of this excess undoubtedly will be needed to cover cost increases occurring since May, but most of it should be available for some of the things envisioned if the 2.9 millage had passed.

On the other hand, a decrease or increase of just 100 students on D-day from the projected, 4,133 either could eliminate or double this $150,000. This uncertainty is not conducive to sound planning, especially since D-day is well into the school year.

Second: State aid for the Northville district will be $209 per pupil for the 1978-79 school year if the D-day enrollment is 4,133. The $1,474 referred to in last week's Record is the gross allowance per pupil. This is reduced by a formula: the product of 30 mills times the State Equalized Valuation of real estate divided by the number of students enrolled on D-day. This is the deductible part of the state aid formula and this variable factor results in severe and illogical losses or gains in state aid.

For example, the property tax revenues for 1978-79 at 35.4 mills will be $6,171,500 and the state aid for 4,133 students will be $863,800 for a total of $7,035,300 or $1,702 per student. If the final D-day head count is 100 students fewer, the property tax remains the same but the state aid is reduced by $150,000 to $713,800 for a total of $6,885,300, or $1,707 per student. While the total revenues per student remains virtually unchanged there is a significant loss in state aid revenues, amounting to $1,500 each for the 100 students lost.

It is highly unlikely that there would be a significant increase in enrollment over the projection of 4,133. The trend in our district over the past four years is that the total population has increased but the school population has decreased.

A reduction in state aid to education students remaining after a drop in enrollment is illogical. Fixed and semi-variable costs alone would increase the per pupil cost to educate the fewer number of students.

Third: Senator Geake was quoted "We must improve the state aid formula." I concur, but if this is not speedily accomplished, our district homeowners could be faced with requests for substantial increases in millage every year, starting next year.

Past experience as well as forecasts indicate two facts: 1, our school district's S.E.V. will increase each year; and 2, the student enrollment will stabilize or possibly decline over the next several years. These factors decrease state aid under the present formula, forcing an increase in property taxes just to maintain the present school programs at inflationary costs.

All state aid for our district could vanish as early as 1980-81 with the current declining enrollment rate or by 1981-82 if enrollment levels are unchanged.

Consequently, homeowners could be faced with an average annual increase of 13% in school property taxes for 1979-80, 1980-81, and 1981-82. A homeowner paying $1,130 for 1978-79 could be asked to pay $1,280 next year rising to $1,640 in 1981-82, just to cover increasing costs with no improvement in programs. These tax increases will be the result of the present state aid formula.

I agree with Senator Geake that the state aid formula must be improved, but the improvements should not result in increases in any federal, state, or local taxes. Unless these are carefully tied together, a revised state aid formula could be counter-balanced by some new form of taxation at one government level or another.

A re-allocation of the existing tax revenues is required. All allocations should be in accordance with the priorities indicated by the majority of the taxpayer-voters. A recent national survey, taken since the California tax proposition was passed, indicates that education along with fire and police protection top the list.

Senator Geake apparently understands the problem. A major coordinated effort is required to get the message emphatically across to other state, federal and local elected officials. A consortium of school boards of all suffering districts (Northville, Livonia, Redford Union, etc.) with their administrators, teachers and supporting taxpayer-voters should be formed to accomplish this objective.

'We're not trying to impede progress' know who's the good guys and who's the bad guys."

However, when an apartment complex which will soon be built in the undeveloped side is completed, Grier said he thinks that problem will be solved.

Then there will be just one other gravel pit for township police to patrol — a very dangerous one on Beck Road south of Seven Mile Road.

We are only trying to preserve the beauty of Northville Township via the rolling terrain, trees and lot sizes.

Quoting from the Northville Township Zoning ordinance No. 47, sec. 14.25, Site Plan Review (all districts), effective date April 1, 1974: Page 27 — "3. In the process of reviewing the site plan, the Planning Commission shall consider — (2) Satisfactory and harmonious relations between the development on the site and the existing and prospective development of contiguous land and adjacent neighborhoods."

—(g) "The planning Commission in reviewing all open spaces provided in any PND Planned Neighborhood Development, or in any cluster, residential or in any multiple family site plan, shall require that said open space be so distributed as to area and so conveniently located physically with respect to the overall development that the open space is central to all residents of this development. Where large acreage is placed in open space development the placing of several such open spaces in the site plan shall be permitted by the Planning Commission after it finds said space well located to the needs of the residents."

Beacon Woods has placed this open space at the Northwestern edge of Whipple. It is now a swamp and houses cannot be built on it. However, having open space allows the builder to build homes on smaller lots.

We have attended meetings and discovered that the lot sizes and the 'straight street' approach do not conform to adjacent neighborhoods. Information regarding size of homes and whether lot sizes would permit side garages was not made available.

With so much land for sale in this area, we have the opportunity to preserve the natural terrain of our township and to meet the desires of the people before it is too late.

Sincerely,
Tad and Glad Evans

Even though bills dealing with all aspects of state government won easily, it should be noted that not even five percent of the 554 bills were enacted into law.

So the batting average for Open Meetings was clearly a winner.

Legislation dealing with schools — including school aid, school board, school building, school bus, school district and school employees bills — totalled 182 bills. Only 17 of these became law.

Among other categories: Counties, 142 bills, corrections (penal institutions) 132, business 99, civil rights 92, consumer protection 82, townships 77, agriculture 66 and cities 55.

Perhaps indicative of the times, bills dealing with divorce bested those dealing with marriage, 14 to 8.

Bills dealing with Detroit tied for near last with dog racing, aliens, bingo, condemnation and recycling. Each had two bills. That's one more than were introduced about lobbyists.

In the last place, with one bill each, was off road vehicles and fiduciaries. (Look it up; I had to).

Jaycees lauded for big parade

To the Editor:
Applause, applause for the Northville Jaycees!

The 4th of July has come alive each year since this organization "arrived" in Northville. The parade was fun and the fireworks left us speechless (and that's not easy to do).

It was a glorious 4th because of their efforts.

I'm only echoing the comments of the community at large when I say thank you Northville Jaycees.

Susannah Holstein

To the Editor:

With warm and happy feelings, I congratulate the Jaycees on yet another fantastic parade. They seem to get better every year, and all our family and friends join me in a hearty thank you for a terrific job and a tremendous effort. It was the greatest!

On a personal note, I would like to most sincerely thank the Northville

High School Marching Band and Mr. Bob Williams for their great response to my "special request". I only asked for maybe one trumpet to play Happy Birthday to my husband. What a happy surprise to hear the entire band singing to him. Thanks just a million. That'll be a hard one to top, believe me! And Mr. Williams — if George calls you later in the fall, just tell him you don't want to talk about it!

Thanks again.

Most sincerely,

Fire chief gets citizen's praise

To the Editor:
I was glad to see Chief Toms' letter in the June 28th edition of The Northville Record.

While I have been fortunate not to have had a home fire myself, I did report a fire in nearby woods last winter. The chief and his men were there in spite of the weather and my assurance to the dispatcher that this fire probably could not spread.

On another occasion Chief Toms took considerable time to evaluate and make recommendations with respect to a potential fire hazard in my home. This and his smoke detector program did in fact prevent a fire there.

Now Chief Toms is offering us the opportunity to learn cardio-pulmonary resuscitation techniques free, which could, and probably will, save some of our lives. In none of the communities in which I have previously lived has the fire chief been so aggressively and imaginatively concerned for the community's well-being.

I, and I'm sure many, many others, are deeply grateful.

Extra $110,000?

possible partly because of a school state aid bill passed early July 1 which provided an extra $12 per student.

That bill also allows district such as Northville to recoup some of the financial losses suffered because of declining enrollment.

Northville also has a little higher tax base than officials used for budget projection purposes. The school district's state equalized valuation for next year is $177 million, about two percent higher than the $174 million estimate.

In June, school district voters passed a 2.6-mill tax hike which will raise about $460,000 to maintain the current program and purchase about $80,000 worth of textbooks.

The $110,000 contingency is equivalent to about .6 mill.

Thomas Goulding, Northville's administrative assistant for finance, suggested the money could be used for instruction, contingency fund, instruction equipment, budget adjustments for utility and insurance bills, or maintenance which has been short shifted in past operating budgets.

Betsy An Mach of Northville was one of 271 students named to Chancellor's list for the spring term at Northwood Institute in Midland.

Four Northville youths who will be freshmen at Western Michigan University this fall have completed their three-day summer orientation.

Mary Devereaux, Cheryl Bourne, Mark Goldi and Valerie LaPonsey visited campus buildings, took tests, conferred with faculty advisors and registered for classes. The fall term begins Monday, August 28.

Greer: makes own decisions

of Northville. And I think many others did as well.

"But over the last year-and-a-half, I've been seeing a division taking place and it bothers me and a lot of other people. So I really would like to do, whatever is within my power to do, to promote a smoother, economical 'team' relationship community."

If the competitive aspect ('we're better, and bigger and will do it alone') is allowed to spread, the worst fears of growing numbers of people will become a reality, he warned.

Aside from the 'separatism' that led to a split in fire service with the city and that nearly split the library ("thank goodness the people spoke up and said they didn't want two library systems"), the promotion of commercial and residential development by officials is a signal to the people their 'community' is being threatened, said Greer.

Unlike his two opponents for trustee, Greer takes the side of the residents in their fight to stop office development on Seven Mile Road (near Marilyn) and the plan for Beacon Woods subdivision on Eight Mile Road — even though he recognizes the developers have the zoning ordinance on their side.

Greer, who lives at 42110 Baintree Circle, noted that if elected he will vote his own personal convictions and not necessarily reflect popular positions. "I will not be persuaded to change those convictions by pressure groups."

But he doesn't see his position on the Seven and Eight Mile road plans as evidence of caving in to popular demand. His position on these issues represents a personal conviction, he said.

"I'm not easily intimidated. And when I hear the stories about how special interest groups have had property rezoned to fatten their pocketbooks, I really get upset. I've asked people about this and they tell me 'you can't believe what happens... they bring in their lawyers and everyone to make their case.' My response is they (special interest groups) can do all of that but they cannot make my hand go up or my hand go down."

"I believe growth should take place, but it should take place gradually. We shouldn't intentionally accelerate it. For example, I don't believe our current supervisor showed a lot of wisdom when he commented that the school should sell its property (on Six Mile Road) in hopes that a special interest group would develop it. I just don't think it was in the best interest of the entire community."

Relative to the Seven and Eight Mile issues, Greer said officials should not lose sight of the fact that "over the long haul we live with the people in the township but developers come and move on. So I think our primary responsibility is to the people. We have to be in tune with the peoples' needs and I think some of our officials, in their haste to 'build an empire', have ignored the peoples' needs and desires."

Admitting that he has not attended township board meetings regularly until recently, Greer said he been to enough of them and read enough reports of them to see some shortcomings "Empire building" which fosters separatism is but one of the faults that he sees, he said. Economy in government is another, he added.

Greer said he was appalled when, upon attending a board meeting, he saw the board ready to accept a proposal for landscaping the new township hall grounds. "It was a good one, but I waited to hear other proposals. There were none. Here we had a board that was ready to spend nearly $10,000 for landscaping without inviting or securing alternate proposals."

Involved in recreation, Greer said he finds it a sad commentary when on the one hand bids are demanded in the purchase of a hundred dollars worth of bats and balls while on the other hand township officials are so easily persuaded to make much larger expenditures with little real concern about cost or about who, ultimately, will pay it.

The new township hall itself, suggested Greer, is an example of misguided thinking. The argument is made that the township secured something for nothing because it obtained federal funds.

"Who do they think they are fooling? Federal grants are paid by you and I..."

Cost of the township hall will exceed the grant and, in addition, cost of equipping and maintaining the facility must still be dealt with, he said. But because officials were anxious to grab federal monies, little or no thought was given to perhaps utilizing other facilities that would be just as functional and perhaps, overall, a good deal less expensive.

Although Trustee incumbent James Nowka does not share his position on the Seven and Eight Mile controversy, Greer said he supports Nowka over William Zapke for the second trustee seat primarily because of his experience and record of achievement on the board.

so maybe than police." Thus, the incumbent trustee defends this move, but he said it is untrue that the separate department is less costly than the joint service. "It is costing us more, not less," he said.

Nowka said the most important priority of the township should be "maintaining a strong connection with the City of Northville. The city is a focal point of the whole area. How we develop in the township should enhance the historical and established values of the city."

To destroy those established values of patterns, he suggested, not only hurts the city but adversely affects the township. It destroys the attraction of the total community, he suggested.

His second priority is to control spending.

Wise use of money will be even more important if some of the tax limitation proposals are approved at the state level, he said. "If there is a property tax reduction, there will be fewer gifts. And if there are fewer 'gifts' there will be less outside money to operate the township. Thus, if township officials do not watch more carefully how they spend money the resulting financial pinch could be greater than was experienced in 1974, he warned."

"The current board has been a very aggressive one, which has produced a 'do it or get it done' philosophy without much restraint, particularly as has been demonstrated by the supervisor. That is an attribute, but it is also a weak point in that we are not sitting back and strongly evaluating the ramifications of decisions as have previous boards."

"Also, some board members tend to be separatists. And in the anxiety to separate they make quick decisions to accomplish separation with little thought as to how it will affect people and the community down the line."

Nowka said he is "inclined to support Bill Greer" for the second trustee position over William Zapke because he knows Greer whereas he doesn't know much about Zapke.

Concerning his own role on the board, Nowka recognizes that he missed meetings during the past term because of business commitments, but he confidently predicts that because he has more control now over his job functions his attendance in the future should be significantly better.

Nowka said his initial reaction to the idea of the township becoming a "charter township" is to oppose it because "it will do the thing that seemingly the people in the township don't want and that is giving permission to the township government to raise taxes without a direct vote of the people."

"On the other side of the coin, I think if the township did charter there would be a possibility of having a system of government like a township superintendent or management form of government that I favor. My exposure to many governments shows me that the manager type of government is far more beneficial."

Concerning the executive roles of the incumbent supervisor and clerk, Nowka said he finds it difficult to score their performance. On strictly day-to-day functions, both people "seem to be very busy and involved," he said, "but it seems to me that they tend to do those things that perpetuate and enhance or strengthen the growth of the township. I think, therefore, it is up to the people to decide if they feel the township is growing in the right fashion or doing the things that are acceptable to them."

The veteran trustee defends the zoning on Eight Mile Road that has triggered a controversy over the proposed Beacon Woods subdivision.

"The R-2 zoning (existing) is really a tough zone. The thing that probably concerns me most is that we can't keep people out. We just can't do that; it's unfair, it's unrealistic and it's undesirable. We have a composite of some of the best citizenry in Wayne County here in Northville. I think our zoning is protective and I think the development there (Eight Mile) will be a high quality one."

Relative to the Seven Mile controversy, Nowka pointed out that while he has never been a booster of multiples, the existing zoning permitted it as it also permits an office development. "It's very, very difficult to remove zoning once it is established, and in this case the developer has the perfect right to develop the land consistent with that zoning."

Nowka said he was surprised by the supervisor's recent announcement that the master plan and zoning ordinance would be overhauled this year. "We've (board) never discussed it. I think it was prompted by the fact that we had some irate citizens in the audience and he was reacting to it. The funds we're using is for study of the Wayne County Child Development Center, not the master plan or zoning ordinance. There have been no funds allocated for it (overhaul) in the budget."

Nowka said he sees no "great holes or problems" in the zoning ordinance that would require a major overhaul at this time.

Zapke: guard town's growth

Zapke hinted a "compromise" might be reached on the Seven Mile case — provided "the people come out in force," — but in the Eight Mile case he favors the side of the developer of Beacon Woods. "He (the developer) has very responsibly shown us adequate proof of his storm and drainage system, the road development, has given in to people as far as access to Whipple Estates is concerned, has met with us at least six or seven times and come back with alternate plans, has helped the school correct a property ownership problem, and the homes he proposes to build would be, in my opinion, an asset to our community."

A resident at 42621 Ravina, Zapke favors overhaul of the zoning ordinance that he believes in some cases "has become obsolete." For example, in view of today's costs one-acre and half-acre lots are no longer economically realistic, he said, suggesting that the zoning ordinance should be updated to reflect this changing economic condition.

That doesn't mean, however, that the township should not control the kinds of developments occurring on smaller lots. "That's what I mean about responsible growth. We have to make sure that the kinds of residential and business developments coming here are what we want."

Concerning the business strip developing along Seven Mile Road, Zapke said he does not find it offensive but rather he sees it as beneficial to residents of Highland Lakes and Northville Commons. "I think it is good even though, unfortunately, it may not be good for the downtown area."

Like his two opponents, Zapke said he is upset by the breakdown in relationships between the city and township. "It used to be that people said they lived in Northville; but now it's come to the point where people are saying 'I live in the township or I live in the city.' For some reason, during the last two or three years, we've built a wall between the city and township that shouldn't exist."

"We have mutual problems with business, with growth, with schools, etc. and I'd like to see the township board of trustees and the city council try to work a little more closely and try to cement their relationships that have been strained in the last couple of years. I don't know what has strained them, but I think we all agree that they are strained and something must be done about it."

Overall, Zapke is pleased with the performance of the current board. Made up predominately of "newer" members, he said, its early work reflected this leadership inexperience "and it's taken some time to jell. On the other hand, the strongest thing they've got going for them is their youthfulness that gives you some enthusiasm that you don't find in some of the older gentlemen who are running. I think the board has done a very good job, particularly in the last year."

He is especially pleased with the board's development of a strong fire department, and he is convinced establishment of the department was a wise move.

Although he opposes establishment of a separate township recreation department, he remains unconvinced that a single, jointly operated library system is better than two libraries.

Zapke said his thinking about the fire station in the township hall is "obviously colored" by the fact that I live only a said he never heard from EPA project officer Doug Ehorn after an initial letter that indicated that the workshop would be held during the first week in July.

Long said he was going to write the EPA, expressing the township's concerns over the possibility that Oakland County may be dropped from super sewer and adding that expansion of the Walled Lake plant would not be a viable solution since it would mean that wastes from the Huron River basin in Commerce would be treated by Rouge River facilities.

block and a half from it. Naturally, I'm pleased. But beyond that I think the (fire) chief is doing an excellent job."

Relative to cost of the separate service, he said he does not personally know if it is greater or less than the previous service but he is convinced the township fire department is needed and effective. An additional fire station in the western area of the township is needed, he said.

On issues that would come before the board, Zapke said he would have to give greater credence to the demands of the people than to his own personal conviction. If, for example, the people's demand goes contrary to his own position he would make sure that the demand is reflective of the majority before setting aside his own view.

"Too many times you can make three phone calls and assume from those calls that the people are against something only to find out that the 25 people you didn't call are in favor of it. So I think I would conduct extensive surveys to determine the real position of the people before I would let this influence my vote."

Although he considers himself "one of the best experienced candidates running for office" because of his leadership roles in the Northville Jaycees, his service on the township planning commission, and his working relationship with key state officials such as Governor William Milliken, Representative Kirksey, and Senator R. Robert Geake, Zapke said Trustee James Nowka's performance and experience on the board will persuade him to support Nowka over William Greer for the second trustee post.

Zapke said he is an independent thinker and, although he met Supervisor Wilson Grier through the Jaycees, he emphasized that neither Grier nor any other incumbent official asked him to run for office. "Frankly, I don't know him very well. He's attended only one or two of our (Jaycee) functions a year. I've never been to his home and I've never been out socially with him, but I do respect him and think he works very hard."

*Downs' history is recalled'The Northville miracle': how it began

Northville Downs will be enjoying its 35th year of harness racing next season, and if last year's figures are any indication it's going to be another big one.

But things weren't always so bright. When the track first opened in 1944, in fact, most observers felt there'd never be enough horses to even show up for opening night. But there were, and among the interested spectators that night was a man named Edwin T. Keller.

Keller is a proud 71-year-old expert on harness racing, an expert who's dedicated more than half a century to the sport he loves. His 61 years in the business include stints as an official, general manager, racing secretary, starter, announcer, program director and publicity man at some 140 different racetracks across North America.

He currently lives in Massachusetts and busies himself writing stories about his experiences in harness racing for publications throughout the country.

Following are excerpts (edited for clarity) from an article Keller recently put together on the history of the Downs, including a memorable opening night. In a letter he sent to track secretary Margaret Zayti along with the contents of this article, which he entitled "The Northville Miracle," Keller recalls: "In all my long experience I never had anything to compare with that opening."

Because of the length of the article it's been split into two parts. This week's story deals with the Downs' precarious beginnings — and that opening night Keller still so vividly remembers

Harness racing in Michigan. One can go on at great length and tell about the world of the trotter and pacer in the Wolverine State, dating back to the very beginning of the sport. Since the 1850's Michigan has been at the forefront of everything that pertains to the industry.

Some of the greatest moments in race history have come from Michigan, from the smallest of county fairs to the imposing Grand Circuit meets.

Now there has to be another chapter added to those of bygone days. It's a chapter that had its beginning on September 1, 1944, and which concluded on April 8 this past spring, a chapter that tells of the 35th anniversary of one of the sport's modern-day miracles — the Northville Downs.

Search through all the records and you will not come up with another to match the Northville miracle.

First, let's get a picture. The World War II years had put a big crimp in all sport activities, particularly harness horse racing. At Northville there was a fairgrounds built near the turn of the century, with a small wooden grand-

2nd place is still wide open in F League

The battle for second place in Northville's F League junior baseball division will apparently go down to the wire this weekend.

Five teams are still in contention for the runner-up spot, although the Angels and Dodgers appear to have the inside track. The Angels came up with three clutch victories last week to lift their record to 9-4, just a half game shy of the 10-4 Dodgers.

Sparked by strong pitching performances from Steve Fraellick and Dan Nielsen the Angels knocked off the Astros, 10-0, and beat the Braves twice, 8-6 and 9-2.

Fraellick struck out 10 batters and walked just one in shutting out the Astros while Todd Deal went 3-for-3 to pace the winners' hitting attack. Bob Orlowski was 2-for-2 for the Astros.

Nielsen went all the way in both victories over the Braves. Supporting him the 8-6 win were Jim Rose, who went 2-for-3, and Dan Nyquist, who went 2-for-2. Jeff Metz went 2-for-3 and Tim Hendra blasted a home run over Ford Field's rightfield fence for the Braves.

Sparkling defensive play highlighted the 9-2 victory. Braves' second baseman Tim Campbell robbed Tim Boyd of an extra-base hit early in the game with a leaping stab of a sharp line drive, but Boyd, playing second base for the Angels, later came back with a smart unassisted putout at first base when he scooped up a grounder far to his left side. Nielsen went the distance and had 11 strikeouts for the winners while John Naar broke out of a slump with a line shot triple in the seventh.

The Braves also took it on the chin against the Dodgers, who moved up to second place with a 9-6 victory. Chris Odom went 2-for-2 and scored four runs to pace the winners.

The Astros, meanwhile, kept their outside hopes for second place alive with victories over the Reds, Braves and Giants.

Willie Newman cracked a home run and double to power the Astros past the Reds, 20-2, while Bob Orlowski went 3-for-4 in a 9-3 win over the Braves.

But the Astros' biggest triumph of the week was a 14-9 victory over the Giants. Shortstop Mickey Newman, third baseman Omer Anisoglu and first baseman Willie Newman combined for a triple play, the second in two weeks in the F League, to kill a clutch third-

UP FOR GRABS—While the F and H League titles are already pretty much sewed up, the G League title is still very much up for grabs going into the final days of the Northville junior baseball season this weekend. The two favorites will be the Pirates and Dodgers, shown above in a crucial game earlier this year. The Pirates won that one, 6-2, but they'll need another victory Saturday in their 1 p.m. season finale. The Dodgers, meanwhile, will take on the third-place Yankees, also a contender, starting at 11 a.m. Both games take place at the Fish Hatchery.

'Big 4' keep streaks going in National League

It's been a long time since any of the local National League's top four softball clubs have suffered defeat.

Carl's, Real Estate Two, Sheehan's Little Caesar's and It's Custard Time, in fact, have more or less monopolized their division all season long, and it doesn't appear things are about to change.

After last week's action the quartet had a combined winning streak of 30 games, and barring upsets or rainouts that figure will reach 36 this week.

Not since It's Custard Time pinned a 13-7 defeat on Sheehan's more than three weeks ago has any of the four lost a game. And not once this year has any of the other eight National League clubs beaten one of the top four.

Carl's and Real Estate Two are undoubtedly the teams to beat right now. More than two months into the season both are still unbeaten.

But Real Estate Two found the going a bit rougher than usual last Thursday and needed a late rally to subdue Ely's,

After racing out to an early 4-1 lead, Real Estate Two watched their lead disappear in the fifth inning when Ely's scored four times to take a 5-4 advantage.

The league leaders jumped back ahead, 7-5, in the bottom of the sixth but the game was far from over.

Singles by Mike Penrod, Phil McNary and Dennis McLaughlin plus a pair of errors drew Ely's even in the top of the seventh. Then, facing the prospect of ending a nine-game winning streak, Real Estate Two rallied for victory when Mike Schroeder smacked a one-out triple and came home on a single by Joe Higgins.

Carl's, on the other hand, had no trouble at all in disposing of its two opponents last week.

Led by Dan Fisher, Chuck Caksackkar, Joe Bustamante and Joe Herter the National League powerhouse roared past St. Paul's 20-3 on Thursday and smothered the Jaycees 14-4 a day later.

Fisher had four hits, including a two-run homer, and four RBI's as Carl's stormed to an 11-0 lead in the first two innings and coasted against St. Paul's. Caksackkar added two hits and three RBI's for the winners.

It was more of the same against the Jaycees. Paced by Bustamante, who went 3-for-4 and had two RBI's, and Herter, who poked a single and a triple in two official at-bats, the National League powerhouse scored eight runs in the top of the first and never looked back. The win hiked Carl's record to 9-0, a half game behind Real Estate Two It's Custard Time, meanwhile, extended its winning streak to six games with victories over the Jaycees and Community Credit Union last week.

Led by Pete Zabala, Barry Long and Roy Sabin, who belted one home run apiece and had eight RBI's among them, Custard Time raced out to a 12-4 lead in the first four innings and breezed to a 16-12 win over the Jaycees. George Buelow had two doubles and two singles in four at-bats for the losers.

Credit Union, though, gave the league contenders a run for their money before falling, 19-12.

Led by Rick Pariseau and Joe Staknis, Credit Union crept to a 10-9 lead in the first four-and-a-half innings. Custard Time exploded for 10 runs in the bottom of the fifth, though, to sew things up. The winners got eight hits in the 10-run outburst, including two hits and three RBI's by Jim Honsinger.

Bob Radigan went 4-for-4 in the victory while Honsinger, Long, Jim Taucher and Ed Thompson added three hits each. Pariseau cracked four hits, including a pair of two-run homers, and six RBI's for Credit Union while Staknis had a single and a triple.

Custard Time, now 7-2 on the season, has been unbeaten for over five weeks and its only two losses have been to Carl's and Real Estate Two.

Sheehan's Little Caesar's, whose only losses in 10 games have been to Custard Time and Carl's, picked up its fifth straight victory with an 8-4 win over Brew Hogs Friday.

Bob Martin had four hits, including a leadoff triple in the fifth that triggered a four-run rally, to pace the winners while Paul Steckley, John Osborne, Steve Gossard, Mike Taschner and Tony Pump added two hits each. Brew Westfall had a single and a triple for the losers.

In other National League action last week Rick Pariseau, Ted Mohareff and Joe Staknis combined for 10 RBI's to lead Credit Union to a 16-6 victory over the Eagles, while home runs by Nick Hamp, who went 3-for-3 in the game, and Bill Brielmaier helped OLY to a 9-0 triumph over the Northville Players.

Blues win again, 8-3

The Village Blues put together three-run rallies in the second and fourth innings and went on to beat Zayti-Long, 8-3, in a rematch of the league's first and second-place clubs last Wednesday.

Zayti, which had suffered a 16-6 loss to the Blues just one week earlier, got off to a 1-0 lead in the first on a run-scoring single by John Sinclair.

The Blues, though, bounced back for three of their own in the second on a solo home run by Gary Winemaster plus a two-run shot by Bill McDonald and led the rest of the way. They added three more runs in the fourth and two in the seventh while Zayti picked up single tallies in the third and fifth innings.

McDonald and Jim Yanoschik both went 3-for-3 for the Blues, who now sport a 10-0 record. Zayti, which fell to 5-3-1 with the loss, was led by Rex Balko, who went 3-for-4.

The Blues followed up their victory over Zayti with a 26-3 drubbing of the Cyclones afterwards. John Boland cracked three home runs and a single to lead the onslaught while Jim O'Brien added two homers and Winemaster and Jerry Holbrooke one apiece.

In other American League action last week Winner's Circle scored six times in the first inning and held on for a 7-5 win over the Cyclones while Sheehan's On-The-Green tied Rizzo Real Estate, 8-8.

Nick Trapani had a two-run double in the first and James Hostetler and Dan Taylor picked up two hits each to pace Winner's Circle, which upped its record to 6-3 and took over sole possession of second place with the victory.

Sheehan's scored twice in the top of the seventh to tie Rizzo. With two on and two out, Rick Marcicki went all the way to third and pushed the typing runs across on a three-base error. One inning earlier Rizzo had rallied for four runs to take an 8-6 lead.

Bill Staron had a three-run homer in the fifth for Sheehan's while Howard Inch paced Rizzo with two hits and two RBI's.

BIG HITTER—Jim Honsinger had three hits, including two in a clutch fifth-inning rally, and handled the pitching duties to help It's Custard Time to a 19-12 victory over Community Credit Union last Friday. The win gave Custard Time a six-game winning streak and kept them in the thick of the four-team National League race.

2 more holes-in-one reported; that's 6 in all

Holes-in-one are becoming more and more frequent at Brooklane Golf Course this year.

Two more aces were reported by area residents last week, bringing the total to six since the local course opened in the spring.

Jim Himmelstach, a Canton resident, used a six-iron to ace the 122-yard seventh hole last Wednesday.

Himmelstach has been golfing for only three years, and his nine-hole total for the round was 36.

Five days earlier Norman Boynton of Ferndale had aced the 166-yard 10th hole at Brooklane.

Boynton used a three-wood for the feat, his first hole-in-one in 20 years of golfing, and had a round of 34 over the par-30 back nine.

Some ill-informed people think of eyeglasses as a sign of deficiency, something life a crutch. Women, especially, are reluctant to accept the fact that they need help if they are to see adequately. The need for eyeglasses to correct visual difficulty is something that comes to all of us, sooner or later.

About 15 percent of all people would benefit from vision correction before the age of six! By the time we are 25, almost a third of us need glasses. After age 40, the percentage rises sharply. Until, at age 50, only the rare exception has normal uncorrected vision.

At any age, an eye examination can insure that your vision is getting the help it needs.

Last-place co-ed team pulls upset

E F Hutton couldn't have been more convincing in its first victory of the season last weekend.

Despite the 0-4 record they brought into the game, the co-ed softball league cellar dwellers looked the part of anything but losers as they romped to an easy 20-3 victory over Rollerama Sunday.

Led by Rick Morelli, Ed Gabrys and Terry Slater, E F. Hutton jumped out to a 9-2 lead in the first three innings, then erupted for 10 more runs in the fourth to put the game on ice.

Morelli and Slater each collected four hits in four trips to the plate while Gabrys slammed a home run, a triple and a double. Louise Hopping and Marla McKenney chipped in two hits apiece while Betty Banks and Meg Thams each added a triple.

Patty Paercher and Jimmy LaParite had two hits apiece to pace Rollerama whose record dipped to 2-3 with the loss.

In Sunday's other co-ed contest league-leading Mark Finley Chevrolet took a one-game lead over second-place Goat Farm with a 10-1 victory over Realtron.

Tom Williams slapped a double and a triple to spark a four-run outburst in the fourth inning which gave Mark Finley a 9-0 cushion. Dale Miller, Jack and Karen Huguenard added two hits each for the winners while Chris Perry had a triple for Realtron's only extra-base hit.

H League round-up

Rangers romp to 15th straight

There's no stopping Northville's H League Rangers.

The Rangers, who've been gobbling up opponents by an average score of about 24-6 in junior baseball action this season, won their 15th game without a loss last Saturday when they blanked the Giants, 20-0.

What made the score particularly amazing was that the winners needed only two hits for the victory — and, in fact, hit only four fair balls all day.

The Giants, it seems, had a case of "walkin'-eumonia" — they gave up a grand total of 32 walks in six innings while striking out 16.

The big hit of the day turned out to be Brian Baldrice's leadoff home run in the third inning, which gave the Rangers a 6-0 lead and started a four-run rally. Two innings later Brian Riker connected for the winners' only other hit, a run-scoring single that capped a five-run outburst.

But the real story of the game was the Rangers' pitching. Scott Griggs and Riker combined for a two-hit shutout and gave up just one walk in the contest while striking out 17 Giants.

Griggs, in fact, struck out each of the last nine batters he faced after giving up a leadoff single to Jeff Harp in the first. Doug Ayers got the Giants' only other hit, a leadoff double in the fifth.

With less than a week left in the season the Rangers can wrap up the H League title with either a victory over the Padres last night or over the Braves tomorrow.

In other H League action last week the Dodgers maintained a solid grip on second place with victories over the Giants and Cubs.

The Dodgers, who've lost just twice this season, roared past the Giants 13-0 but needed some clutch pitching help from Greg Benvenuto to eke out a 4-3 win over the Cubs. There were a combined total of 31 strikeouts in the latter contest, with Mike Reitenga and Doug Martin handling the Cubs' pitching duties.

In the most exciting game of the week the Pirates roared out to an early four-run lead, lost it, then stormed from behind for a 10-9 victory over the Cubs.

Trailing 6-2 going into the sixth the Cubs scored seven times on the strength of Mark and Mike Reitenga's hitting to take a 9-6 lead. The Pirates, however, bounced back for four of their own in their last turn at bat for the win.

The Braves, meanwhile, got a strong pitching performance from Steve Lee and defeated the Phillies, 12-3. Lee struck out nine of the 11 batters he faced in the first three innings while teammate Steve Wilson supported the winning effort with a three-run homer over the fence.

In other games last week the Expos shaved the Padres 10-9, the Mets downed the Cardinals 17-10, and the Braves scalped the Reds, 11-4.

Day camp bikers

More than 30 kids showed up for a bike rally at Northville Downs last Friday to kick off the recreation department's summer day camp program. Each took part in a bike safety test conducted by the Michigan State and Northville City Police, and awards were given out to the best riders. The test involved riding through an obstacle course and learning to land that would, when taxed to full capacity, seat a mere 2000 fans.

Trotting interests and promoters were anything but active. Yet underneath the surface there were forces working that were to change the atmosphere of the entire industry.

This became a reality in 1940 when individuals who had no prior experience with the sport tried their hand at something Ohio had been doing for a half-decade — night harness racing.

There was no great rush to get into this new racing act by would-be investors. There were more arguments about taking such a risk than there were in favor.

In the meantime a group of six men headed by a dynamic promotional wizard named I S (Sam) Wiedrick had decided they would take a shot at this new night harness racing jackpot. Joining Wiedrick in the venture were his friend Harold Dennison of Rochester, New York, plus four other men from Buffalo — John J. Carlo, Earl Reed, Abe Goldberg and Max Brock.

They went far afield, and the knowing ones on the sidelines started shaking their heads at the news that emanated from a place so few had heard about, a place called Northville, Michigan. The news terms had been arranged with the Northville directors for a lease of the old, rundown fairgrounds track for the start of an inaugural meet of 20 nights duration.

It's a solid bet that not one of the six that were now race track promoters — each became involved with an original investment of but $5000 — knew of the trials and tribulations that awaited them once that lease was signed.

But they soon found out

Getting things like lights and track equipment was easy enough. Their hopes ran high as the first stream of publicity went out telling all about the coming of "big-time night harness racing."

Race time drew near, for September was the opening night. But suddenly they found out that horsemen were not going to flock to the new track for that first meet, as they'd anticipated. And if there was one thing they couldn't do without, it was horses to parade to the starting post.

Wiedrick and the writer who had agreed to take charge of the racing hoped every nook and corner where horses raced. "Not interested" was the usual reply. John J. Carlo stood by the track office phone waiting for calls to come in for stall assignments, but they didn't materialize.

The entry box was ready in the race office, which called for a two-day declaration. At 11 a.m. there were all of eight or nine horses in the box — this for a program that listed eight dashes. Late that evening there were still not enough horses for a program.

Now it was the day before, the race program printed and ready for opening night — but a program still had to be filled. By this time the Monday morning quarterbacks were in full cry.

By mid-afternoon, however, the call went out over the loud speakers: tomorrow night's program was ready for the draw!

What a draw it was, and what a program!!! Exactly 17 horses had been declared for the eight dashes. In order to get the 17 starters the Downs' promoters had promised owners $100 on top of their purse winnings for each horse they raced.

This, then, was the start of the "miracle - history-making meeting." The first race — with five horses facing starter Harvey Hartman — was for two dashes. The first was five-eighths of a mile, the second approximately three-fourths of a mile. The first winner was Mr. Grattan, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ray C. Dahlinger of Dearborn, in 1:14; the second was Anna Held, owned by A. A. Snyder of Belleville. Both were even up at the finish, 1-4 and 4-1, with a $400 purse for a 2.10 bar pace.

The second race was a trot classified — three dashes at approximately five-eighths, three-fourths, and one mile for a total of $300. The Dahlinger stable scored a fourth on the card, winning all three dashes with Hollywood Happy Thought from a field of six.

The final class — also three dashes with a total purse of $300 — went to a local horse, Vincent Grattan. Vincent Grattan, owned by veteran horseman and tracks superintendent William Rattenbury, was driven by Rattenbury's son George. George went on to race horses until he was seventy years old, and only last year served as the tracks superintendent — on his 80th birthday.

The home candidate lost out in the short first dash to Midnight McKay from the R. H. Emmons stable in Jackson. But then it was all Vincent Grattan, much to the delight of the home crowd.

There were a grand total of 1805 fans who turned out for the noble experiment, and if my memory is correct the opening night's handle was just a little more than $9000. Top handle for any one night eventually got up to the $45,000 mark that season — quite a contrast from the 1978 meeting.

But now another serious problem arose. With opening night out of the way, how would a second race card be made up?

inning rally by the Giants.

Newman again had a strong day at the plate, collecting three hits (including a double and a triple) and four RBI's for the winners, while Andy Dimitroff scored three runs and Ted Behen two for the losers.

The Astros are now 8-6 on the season and in sixth place. The Giants, who also lost a 30-11 decision to the Padres last week, tumbled from second to fourth place and are now 10-5.

Bob Martin, Dave Malinowski, Bob Schoettley and Gary Metz had three hits apiece to lead the Padres in their romp over the Giants. The victory, the Padres' 15th without a loss this season, clinched the league title for the winners.

In other F League action last week the Phillies got two hits each from Shawn Allen and Todd Kerry and edged the Cubs, 5-3.

The Expos, sparked by Dave Wilson's 3-for-3 showing at the plate, crushed the Mets, 21-5.

The Mets, though, bounced back with a 15-6 romp over the Phillies. Jim Ziegler pitched five strong innings for the win and went 3-for-3 at the plate while second baseman Mark Knott and rightfielder Tom Millen provided the defensive clout. Dave Temple had two hits for the Phillies.

The Cardinals, meanwhile, upped their record to 7-9 with high-scoring victories over the Cubs, Expos and Mets. They edged the Cubs, 10-9, and the Expos, 24-23, but breezed past the Mets, 18-10.

Mosquitoes more than pests man by the bite of the mosquito.

Last year two birds out of over five thousand tested throughout Michigan showed evidence of some virus activity. Health officials are uncertain if the virus is carried over from year to year or whether a new disease cycle begins each year.

All area residents can help reduce the number of mosquitoes and the possibility of diseases. Since all mosquitoes require water for hatching of eggs, residents can help themselves and their neighbors by the elimination of water holding containers or ponded water on their property.

Specific suggestions from the health department for reducing mosquito breeding in the neighborhood include the following:

Keep water changed daily in wading pools, swimming pools unused for several days should still be filtered and disinfected daily, deep water changed weekly in bird baths, fill in low areas of yards that cause water ponding, discard any items such as old tires that hold water, check house rain gutters and downspouts for clogging or holding water, keep drainage ditches in front of property clean, and ornamental ponds should either be stocked with fish or drained and cleaned weekly.

Other helpful measures include cutting of grass and weeds close to the ground; and where mosquitoes are still evident the treatment of yard vegetation with residual insecticides such as Malathion.

145 E. Cady - Northville - 349-4480

It's easy this year; 7% city police pay hike approved

Calling it "well within the budget," the Northville City Council unanimously approved the 1977-78 contract with the Northville Police Officers (DPOA) Association Monday night.

Earlier, the DPOA unanimously ratified the contract.

That contract, calling for a 7-percent increase in wages, was hammered together in just two negotiation sessions — a marked departure from last year's bargaining that dragged on until mid-year before settlement.

Mayor Paul Vernon and Councilman Stanley Johnston, noting the spirit of cooperation that existed in the latest round of bargaining, emphasized that the contract fits the guidelines laid down by council when it adopted the budget this past spring.

Both, together with City Manager Steven Walters, served on the city's bargaining term.

Here are the major changes in the new contract:

- Wages: 7 percent increase in all wage rates, resulting in top pay for

- patrolmen of $19,344
- Life insurance: Increased coverage from $30,000 to $50,000.
- Dental insurance: Coverage for orthodontics added to plan.
- Hospitalization: $2 prescription rider added to plan.
- Clothing allowance: Increased from $350 to $400 per man per year.

- Mileage allowance: For use of personal car increased from 15-cents to 18-cents per mile.
- Bereavement leave: Increased from three days to six days for death of spouse, child or step-child.
- Longevity pay: Increased from $200 to $350 after five years' service.

Other provisions include providing a bulletin board with a locking cover in the department; rules governing those officers who may be temporarily suspended for disciplinary reasons; and payment of $100 by the first payday in November and April of each year for uniform maintenance.

OEDP picks policy officers

Members of the recently formed Overall Economic Development Program Committee for Wayne County (OEDP), a voluntary group of private citizens, has chosen officers from its membership who will guide policy they establish to attract federal dollars for local expansion of industry and commerce.

The 24-member OEDP was created by the County Board of Commissioners in April to qualify and compete nationwide for receipt of funds from the U.S. Economic Development Administration (EDA).

In 1979, the EDA expects to have available over $625 million for local communities to encourage, develop and expand economic and job programs in areas with a 5 percent or more unemployment rate.

Chief among the new OEDP officers who will lead strategy in developing and deciding on projects that satisfy the EDA are: Arthur C. Gibson, chairman; David S. Williams, vice-chairman; Phillip C. Sims, chairman-Economic Development sub-committee; Evelyn Caise, chairman-Manpower sub-committee; and Susan Sommer, co-chairman-Manpower sub-committee.

Within its current structure, the committee was sub-divided into two standing sub-committees — one will explore the economic development resources and possibilities while the second will take up a consideration of the available manpower aspects of the projects.

5 from Northville are U-M scholars

Five of the more than 1,000 outstanding Michigan high school graduates to be named University of Michigan Regents-Alumni Scholars are Northville residents.

They are:

- Elaine Marie Hinman, 916 Novi Avenue; Marc Howard Hooth, 574 Morgan Circle; Kurt K. Kastner, 18419 Donegal Court; Julia Lee McDaniel, 212 South Ely Drive; Brian Douglas Odum, 797 Springfield Drive; and Kathleen Marie Settles, 21742 Woodside Court.

Each year the U-M selects Regents-Alumni Scholars for their "superior academic achievement and their potential contributions to the scholarly community of the University of Michigan."

This year there were more than 1,800 candidates, from nearly 400 Michigan high schools for the honor, according to William L. Grothe, chairman of the U-M Regents-Alumni Scholar Program.

U-M alumni play an active part in the selection procedure. Finalists chosen from all applicants for freshman admission, are referred to local alumni for interviews and recommendations. Some 260 alumni participated this year.

All Scholars will receive a $50 honorarium when they enroll in the U-M in September. Financial need is not a consideration in the selection of Regents-Alumni Scholars.

Carry disease

Other relatively safe insecticides which can provide mosquito control for up to one or two hours are pyrethrum sold in several brand name products. These are contact sprays which have very little residual action, but provide short term effectiveness.

To minimize the annoyance of biting mosquitoes, the health department recommends that doors and windows be closed unless insect screening is available, that protective clothing be worn or insect repellants used when outdoors in areas with numerous mosquitoes. If possible, it is better to stay away from wooded and heavily vegetated areas.

What a life!

Guarding swimmers is great job

By RICH PERLBERG

He looks like a California lifeguard. Perched casually on a platform above the Highland Lakes Condominium swimming pool, Steve Laffler and his blond, layered hair turn from side to side as his sky-blue eyes keep watch on 15 to 20 swimmers.

Laffler, 18, has what seems to many to be the epitome of a summer job — the lifeguard.

He gets paid — not highly, mind you, but real money nonetheless — for soaking in the rays all day long. And, as an unbeatable fringe, there are all those beautiful girls and you know how they go for lifeguards.

"Not here," he laughs. "There's nobody over 14."

There are, in fact, quite a few people over 14, many of them quite attractive. But they are mothers, mostly, lounging beyond the pool fence or languorously sunbathing along the terrace.

It's their children who are in the pool and who get Laffler's attention. He was happy to talk about his job, "but I'll have to keep looking around."

Laffler is one of about 20 area lifeguards who watch over mostly young swimmers at Highland Lakes, the Northville Swim Club and Meadowbrook Country Club.

The majority are recent Northville High School graduates, avid swimmers, sun worshippers and holders of at least advanced lifesaving certificates from the Red Cross.

A lifeguard, according to a World War II version of Webster's Collegiate Dictionary is an "excellent swimmer employed at a bathing resort to save bathers from drowning."

That's about semi-true in the case of Northville lifeguards.

There is no question about their swimming prowess. Their names sound like the roster of recent Northville swim teams.

Vida and Saul Mikalonis, Ed Erdos and Leslie Farquahar at Meadowbrook. Laffler, Eva Erdos and Sherri Pink at Highland Lake. Both these places also employ strong swimming lifeguards from places like Royal Oak and West Bloomfield.

The all-Northville line-up at the Northville Swim Club behind the high school includes assistant manager Lea McElroy, Kate Fuertges, Elizabeth Harrison, Cathy Faust, Bruce Hackman, Neil Bradley, Carol McLaughlin and Anne Sherman.

But the drowning aspect just doesn't float in Northville pools. None of a half-dozen lifeguards interviewed last week had ever rescued a struggling swimmer.

"At a pool, you usually don't have to," said the Swim Club's Hackman, a three-year veteran. "At a lake, it's a lot different. I've got friends at Kensington who have to make a rescue every day."

"We really practice preventative lifesaving," said Eva Erdos at Highland Lakes.

Much of her job involves stopping youngsters from running around the pool, keeping beginners out of deep water and testing young swimmers to see if they are capable of coming to the pool without parental supervision.

"You're almost like a baby-sitting service," said Laffler, who is at his second year at Highland Lakes. "It's not really too hard."

At Meadowbrook, "it's understood that this isn't a baby-sitting service," said Royal Oak's Susan Stevenson who has worked there four years.

At Meadowbrook, as at the Swim Club, lifeguards double as coaches for competitive swim teams.

In fact, the typical Swim Club lifeguard came up through the ranks, taking swimming lessons and competing on the swim team before landing one of the coveted posts.

"We've got some of the best looking and most intelligent looking lifeguards in Northville," boasted Douglas Dent, a high school teacher who manages the pool for the private association.

When two male lifeguards shrugged off suggestions that they had premium girl-watching jobs, Dent spoke up.

"They've got great jobs, Dent spoke up. I'm envious of them."

Neil Bradley, 18, the owner of one of the better tans among the lifeguards, had to suffer for two years before a full-time position opened up. He conceded that the "job is kind of popular."

But Hackman protested that the job was not the piece of cake that some people try to waterpaint it.

"You get tired from the sun, it really takes away your energy," he said with a straight face. To lessen the sun's damage, lifeguards shift every 15 minutes to posts at the swimming pool, the separate diving area and inside the clubhouse behind a counter.

Nevertheless, the responsibility can be great. On a truly hot day, 400 to 500 people may use the pool.

Considering all of that, Hackman was asked, is being a lifeguard really the good life?

"Hm, yeah," he said. "People can make the big bucks on the line, but it's nice to have a job while you are still having a good time."

Eva Erdos provides a splashing good time at Highland Lakes

Steve Laffler says the view is fine, but the girls are young

The World's Worst

Now you know why these jokes are 'groaners'

By RICH PERLBERG

Who would have the temerity to challenge this collection of the World's Worst Jokes?

It's not that the list is infallible. But it's hard to imagine anyone with the gall to admit he or she knows a joke worse than these groaners.

By necessity, the World's Worst Jokes are pretty much limited to puns — those grating plays on words that are publicly disdained and closely coveted by most of us.

Examples: Larry Flynt is a porn-again Christian; Superman is opening a Jewling alley and calling it Lois Lanes.

If there are people around, we normally look pained upon hearing such an atrocity. Secretly, we're suppressing a great guffaw and chafing at the chance to retell it.

So, find yourself a private place to read these and get ready to chuckle. It can't hurt — much.

The status-conscious Indian chief had done well in life. An oil well here, a stock option there — these things tend to add up.

But he had started poor and always longed for the chance to hobnob with the social elite. Alas, the country clubbers in his community were more impressed with those who were born into wealth than those who had attained it.

The way the chief figured it, his biggest drawback was a lack of proper breeding. Determined not to let his boys suffer the same ignominious fate, he sent them both to Harvard where they not only learned law and medicine, but proper etiquette.

The tactic worked. One summer, both lads were invited to participate in the country club's most prestigious event — the annual regatta.

The chief at last knew he could die happy. He had red sons in the sail set.

One of baseball's most forgettable pitchers was named Mel Famie. He had no fastball, curve or slider. But he did have a father who owned the franchise.

The manager was forced to keep Mel on the roster, but he never put him in the line-up. That was fine with Mel who was content to wile away his time in the bullpen, guzzling his favorite brew.

As luck would have it, the day dawned when all other pitchers had been used and the beleaguered manager had no choice but to call on Mel.

Mel, to say the least, did not expect this honor and had already consumed the better part of an afternoon's ration of beer.

Nevertheless, he gamely stumbled to the mound where he proceeded to walk four straight batters and force in the winning run.

When the victorious team left the field, one player noticed a pile of empty cans and asked what they were.

"That," replied a mate, "is the beer that made Mel Famie walk us."

A group of scientists discovered a concoction that would allow dolphins to live forever. Unhappily, the main ingredient was the blood of a rare seagull that lives only on a remote, uncharted island.

Undaunted, the scientists made their way to that Pacific isle and, after days of searching, spotted one of the baby gulls. Unfortunately, the path to the prized bird was blocked by a large, albeit sleeping, lion.

Nevertheless, one brave scientist crept up behind the seagull, captured it and then raced back to his comrades by leaping over the dormant beast.

His fellow scientists were ecstatic, but not the local police who immediately ly arrested the daring fellow.

His crime? Transporting a young gull across a sedate lion for immortal porpoises.

Three Indian maidens took husbands and soon became pregnant.

The wife of the chief, understandably, lived in the finest quarters and was allowed to sleep on an exotic hippopotamus hide.

The other two, who rested on the standard skins of bear and elk, gave birth to healthy boys.

The chief's wife, however, delivered twins proving conclusively that the sons of the squaw of the hippopotamus is equal to the sons of the squaws of the other two hides.

An Irish potato immigrated to the United States where he worked long and hard to make it to the top of the bushel.

Eventually, he became wealthy and respected enough to marry into one of Idaho's finest potato fields.

The couple raised a fine crop of spuds until one day their eldest daughter disrupted their happy lives with the unsettling announcement that she planned to marry David Brinkley.

"You can't do that," boomed her indignant father. "He's just a commentator."

A youngster attending his first track meet was duly impressed with the pole vaulters, long jumpers, discus throwers and, of course, the speedy runners.

But he couldn't figure out the men who stood at the end of every race with stop watches clutched in their hands. "Who are those guys?" asked the boy.

"Those," replied his father, "are the souls that time men's tries."

'There's a fly in my soup. . .'

Henny Youngman would dig a grave just so he could roll over in it if the list of World's Worst Jokes didn't include a few of the "Waiter, There's a Fly in My Soup" genre.

That these jokes are moldy old and of questionable humor is beside the point. They are traditional, as American as a chicken in red suspenders crossing the road.

To wit:

Waiter, there's a fly in my soup.

Don't worry, sir, it can't drink much.

Waiter, what's this fly doing in my soup?

It looks like the backstroke to me, sir.

Waiter, what's this fly doing in my soup?

Drowning, probably.

Waiter, there's a fly in my soup.

Don't worry, you won't be charged extra for it.

Waiter, your thumb is in my soup.

Thanks for your concern, sir, but the soup isn't hot enough to burn it.

Then, there was the guy who sat down to dinner only to have a busboy drop a tray of food in his lap.

Calmly, he said, "Waiter, there's a soup in my fly."

Bees hide if rain's near? Don't believe it!

Mankind has been fascinated by bees for thousands of years. Primitive man hunted wild bees for their honey and made tubes of leaves and bark in hope that bees would inhabit them.

The bee was the royal insect of Egypt, and beekeeping was practiced by the Greeks and Romans.

Over the years, a sizable body of bee lore and superstitions grew up around this mysterious insect and the wonderful things it produces. Science has shown some of these notions to be nothing more than myth and misconception.

According to apiculturists at Michigan State University, however, some "old wives' tales" about bees have some truth to them. Close observation of bee behavior has led to a number of sayings about bees as weather prophets.

"A common saying is that bees stay close to the hive when rain is close by," says apiculturist Roger Hoopingarner. It's true that bees are very sensitive to changes in barometric pressure. They don't like to fly on rainy or foggy days, so they will tend to stay close to home when a storm front is moving in.

"Experienced beekeepers can predict the weather by watching their bees. And they know enough not to visit the hives when the barometer is falling. The bees tend to get a little aggressive when the weather is unsettled and they're crowded into the hive."

Seeded melons more hardy

Michigan State University Extension specialists answer timely questions on vegetable gardening, garden flowers, insect pests and related topics.

Q. It was my understanding that you generally have to use transplants to grow warm season crops that take a long time to mature. So I set out both watermelon and muskmelon plants and lost them all. Should I have grown them in the garden from seed instead?

A. Melons are particularly susceptible to transplant shock. It's not unusual to have 30-40 percent mortality. If you set out only a handful of plants, you could very well lose them all. Next year, either grow them from seed or

Planter pleaser

This handsome white planter had been only recently planted and the flowers had not fully filled when photographed. At this stage you can see how three levels of flowers combine to add vertical dimensions to the planting. The container measure approximately 3 feet by 2 feet by 1 foot and is planted with 24 flower plants, giving constant color for about 90 days before plants become rootbound and begin to decline. Trailing blue lobelias and ivy-leaved geraniums were planted near the edge to cascade down. Lavender petunias and pink geraniums fill in the second level. Kochia or summer cypress in the background will grow to two feet or more by the end of the summer and add height without heaviness. By grouping three flower heights the maximum number of plants can be combined without crowding.

ing is, "A bee was never caught in a shower." This one is not true. A quick summer shower may very well catch some of the workers out in the field. They simply take cover under leaves and wait the rain out.

The notion that ringing bells, banging on pots and pans and blowing horns will charm a swarm of bees into settling down to be captured is also false.

"Once the bees are moving, they won't settle down until they're ready," Hoopingarner says.

Another frequently mentioned home remedy for swarming is to throw dirt or water on the bees. This doesn't work, either, he says.

A common bee superstition is that bees must be told about a death in the family of their keeper. If they're not, they may die. Or they may fail to produce any honey. Or they may resent being neglected and simply fly away. The person who tells the bees must do so politely, to avoid offending the bees.

In some cultures, the person who tells bees of a death refers to the deceased person as a relative of the bees: father, uncle, sister, etc.

"This notion of the bees as part of the family may explain why many people have felt it unlucky to sell bees," suggests graduate student Gordy Wardell. "After all, you don't sell a member of your family."

The notion that it's unlucky to sell bees is fairly common in European bee lore. It's also supposed to be unlucky to steal bees. "Stolen bees produce no honey" — or so the saying goes. Giving away bees supposedly brings good luck, however, and counting your beehives, bad luck.

Another bee superstition is that the death of the bees or their leaving the hive means there will be a death in their keeper's family within a year. The idea that the prosperity of the hives depends on the health of the master has a little more truth to it.

"Beekeeping is more than just having bees," Wardell points out. "It takes some work to keep bee colonies healthy and strong. If the beekeeper is ill so he can't tend his bees properly, they probably will suffer from it."

Another common belief with some fact behind it is the idea that it's good luck to have a swarm of bees make their home in or around your house or garden. Though it's hard to convince the city dweller with a colony of bees in his wall that he is lucky to have them there, the vegetable or fruit grower whose prosperity depends on bee-pollinated crops is more than glad to take in a new swarm.

Strawberries and other small fruits, tree fruits and many vegetables rely on bees for pollination. Improving pollination by introducing bees increases yields and so improves the grower's prosperity. "The honey and beeswax he can harvest don't hurt his pocketbook, either."

The health claims made for honey over the years could fill a book. Even today, practitioners of folk medicine claim that honey soothes the stomach and digestive tract; relieves raspy coughs; acts as a sedative, a tranquilizer and a gentle laxative; relieves arthritis pain; prevents bedwetting; acts as an antiseptic; prevents colic in infants; and prevents and cures allergy symptoms, colds and other respiratory problems.

The Egyptians used honey as a wound dressing. It's used today in Switzerland on burn patients, and it's an ingredient in at least one popular cough syrup. "A dab of honey on a bee sting is an old home remedy that works," Wardell says. "The honey helps draw the venom out of the wound."

Medicinal properties are also attributed to beeswax. The folk medicine prescription for hay fever calls specifically for comb honey rather than extracted honey. Beeswax has also been used for years as a furniture finish. And it's an excellent outdoor lubricant and a sealant for tree grafts — it doesn't freeze and get brittle as paraffin does.

Bees have played an important part in the mythology, history and folklore of many countries. "As we learn more about bees, we find that some of the old beliefs are at least partly true," Hoopingarner says.

Edible vegetables make ornamentals

Ornamental vegetable gardening can be a tasteful enterprise, a combination of exterior decorating in your yard and interior decorating on your table.

"Many common edible vegetables are interesting or attractive to look at," observes J. Lee Taylor, Extension horticulturist at Michigan State University. "Some are grown strictly for their looks. Whether you have a large garden or a small space, ornamental vegetables provide many gardening possibilities."

One approach is to combine flowers and vegetables in the same plot. Another is to plant an edible but attractive border around a flower or vegetable garden.

"Some examples of ornamental combinations are kale and cabbages of contrasting colors. Swiss chard or other, rhubarb-type plants make a nice border," Taylor says.

Lettuce, peppers of various shapes and colors, broccoli, cauliflower — white-headed and green — and brussels sprouts are good choices to combine with flowers. As garden edgers, try carrots, parsley or parsnips; as a screen, scarlet runner peas.

Such plants can also be used as borders along walks in the front yard, as a decorative eye catcher on the front lawn or in containers on a porch or beside it.

Asparagus makes a nice bushy border and has a lovely yellow color the fall. Along with rhubarb, which is also a perennial, it can be used as a permanent border.

Read seed packets and catalogs carefully, Taylor advises, and choose ornamental vegetables the same way you'd choose flowering annuals: by height, color, flowering time, amount of space needed, etc.

If you're not satisfied with this year's combination, make a note when your garden is at its best to arrange the colors, textures, heights and spacing differently next year.

One of the easiest grown flowers in this area is the Foxglove (Digitalis), which provides handsome spotted, bell-shaped blossoms. Foxglove does well in either shade or sun, and it succeeds in ordinary soil. It ranges in height from one foot spires to 3 feet. The purplea Giant Shirley has magnificent flowerheads of more than 3 feet that are crowded with big, bell-shaped blossoms. Colors range from white and shell pink to deep rose; many are dotted crimson or chocolate. A biennial variety reseeds itself.

Total savings are estimated at $15,000 a year and should double by 1982 if prices for electricity rise as much as predicted by the industry's forecasts.

COMMUNITY NATIONAL BANK of Pontiac plans to issue a 25 percent stock dividend to its shareholders of record on a date to be determined during the fourth quarter of 1978, according to Warren H. Eierman, chairman of the board and bank president.

Shareholders of the bank would receive one additional share of the bank's common stock for every four shares. The bank currently has 800,000 shares of common stock outstanding. It will have 1 million shares outstanding after distribution of the proposed stock dividend.

The stock dividend was authorized by the bank's board of directors subject to the required approvals of the Comptroller of the Currency and of the bank's shareholders authorizing the issuance of the 200,000 additional shares. Eierman said a special shareholders meeting will be called to vote on authorizing the additional shares of common stock.

According to Eierman, the bank's board of directors also intends, if conditions permit, to increase the dividends payable on the bank's common stock to a rate of $1.24 per share on the 1 million shares outstanding after the effective date of the proposed stock dividend. This rate is equivalent to $1.55 on each of the bank's shares currently outstanding and represents a 10.7 percent increase over the annual cash dividend of $1.40 currently paid.

Eierman explained that the bank's board of directors believes that these actions reflect the continued growth and rising earnings of the bank.

TRUDI MALHOTRA

DAYTON HUDSON PROPERTIES has announced the appointment of Trudi Malhotra to the Twelve Oaks Mall management team. She succeeds Catherine O'Malley who has been transferred to Eastland Center in Harper Woods.

Mrs. Malhotra will be assistant to the center manager and will be responsible for all center promotional activities at the Novi mall.

She was formerly a store manager for Alvin's, Inc., and has an extensive background in retailing.

Mrs. Malhotra attended Stout University and the University of Wisconsin. She is married to Kris Malhotra, a product design engineer at Ford Motor. They have an 11 year old daughter, Paige Anne, and make their home in Canton.

Construction has begun on the new full-service branch which will replace the present facility at the same location. The new expanded office is expected to be completed about a year from now.

"We are proud of this new commitment to the Novi Community," said Robert K. Barbour, vice-president and officer-in-charge of the bank's Metro West Regional Banking Center. "Our new full-service facility will provide customers with a complete line of products and services to draw on for their financial needs."

The new office will feature four drive-in banking lanes that can be expanded to six; eight inside teller stations; 24-Hour Banker; safe deposit boxes; a night depository; and an Instant Loan Center incorporated in the facility.

It will have 50 percent more interior space with an additional 575 square feet in the banking lobby and a larger customer waiting area in the management section for added customer convenience. The branch exterior will more than meet long-term demand with an increased parking area designed to accommodate approximately 123 vehicles.

Banking hours for the new branch will be from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 9:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. on Friday. Drive-in hours will be extended, 8:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. daily and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday.

FIRST WINNER — William P. Fisher (right) shows part of the Father's Day Give-A-Way Wardrobe he won from Washington Clothiers, located in the Kmart Shopping Center at Grand River and Halstead. For Fisher, a retired tool and die maker who has lived 23 years in Farmington's Old Farm Colony, the prize came just in time for the long-planned trip to Europe for him and his wife, Beatrice. The grand prize includes a three-piece suit, matching shirt and tie and an all-weather coat. Store manager Fred Fernandez (left) said the contest, which started this year, will be an annual event. Washington Clothiers has been in business for 57 years, the last three at the present Farmington location.

COMMUNITY CAB COMPANY, of South Lyon, will now operate within the city of Wixom, following the license awarded to the company by the Wixom city council last week.

The taxi-cab service, owned by Mitchell Roberts, currently operates in Novi, Northville, and South Lyon. It can now pick up residents from the city of Wixom and deliver them to their destination. The fare for the transportation service is 70 cents a mile.

FIL SUPERFISKY of Rymal Symes Company, Novi has achieved another important distinction in his career as a professional realtor.

DECORATOR SEMINAR—Keith's Decorating of Brighton recently held a tale and decorative painting seminar attended by many area residents. Sharon Stoeckel (standing, above), a certified degree teacher, instructs the class as Thresa Trujillo and Gail Bradford work on some of their projects. PONTIAC STATE BANK has completed an energy conservation program which will save enough power to provide electricity for 25 homes for a full year.

The savings illustrate how commercial enterprises can contribute to conservation, according to Juanita Roselli, president of the Pontiac State Bank (PSB) Building Corporation.

"In effect, we are simply following the same course as homeowners who dial down and turn out lights to save energy," Mrs. Roselli said, "but our systems are so complex that we needed more time to make the adjustments."

The changes, which are part of a complete evaluation of the bank's power requirements, include alterations in the lighting and heating systems at the bank's 17 service centers. The lights around the property no longer burn from dusk to dawn, except for those needed for security purposes. New clocks turn the lights out at 8 p.m. in the winter and prevent them from going on at all in the summer. New timers were also installed on PSB signs, turning off the circuits eight hours earlier. The heating and air conditioning units were also adjusted. New circuits shut them down when the bank closes and start them up again before the bank re-opens in the morning.

'Capitalism threatened'

National debt tops $3,400,000,000,000!

By REX DYE

In a news release from the Bureau of Economic Analysis, U.S. Department of Commerce, dated June 6, 1977, it was stated that public and private debt had reached a total of $3.4 Trillion at the end of 1976.

This was an increase of 28 percent from the total at the end of 1973 of $2.5 Trillion. This increase occurred in only three years averaging over 9 percent per year. Our debt structure grew from a total of $4.6 billion in 1945 to over $3½ trillion in 1976, over 800 percent for the period.

Before we go further, let us try to realize the magnitude of a trillion dollars. If a million millionaires pooled their combined resources it would be less than one third of our public and private debt at the close of 1976!

If our total of public and private debt at the close of 1976 were equally divided among our total population, it would amount to more than $15,000 for every man, woman and child in the nation.

Try to visualize a trillion dollars in terms of research, homes, automobiles and other actual wealth. It is almost incredible to imagine the wealth that has been lost to the world due to the failure of holders of unspent dollar credits to exercise the effective demand that would have made the creation of that wealth possible.

An even greater loss is that of the countless hours of constructive employment by thousands of workers and the vastly improved living standards that could have resulted.

What is the nature of debt?

From the creditor's side, it is unspent dollar credits, unexercised rights to wealth, the failure to exercise the effective demand upon which production of wealth depends, wealth that was not produced because that demand was not exercised. Creditors, mistakenly regarding money as a commodity and a form of wealth when it is not a commodity or actual wealth but simply a right to wealth, are guilty of a fatal flaw in their capitalistic thinking.

From the debtor's side, debt is a lien on his present and future buying power; a commitment of present and future income to debt service. Some debtors such as federal, state and local government, are able to pass debt service costs along to taxpayers; to corporate and non-corporate producers, debt service is a cost and, plus a profit, is passed on to customers in price of goods.

Public debt increased more rapidly than private debt for the second consecutive year according to this release for the first time since 1945. The increase in 1976 was said to be the second highest since 1945.

Corporate debt was $1.4 Trillion at the end of 1976 while individuals and unincorporated enterprises totaled $1.1 Trillion.

The bulk of this total of $2.5 Trillion was passed along to consumers in the form of higher prices for goods and services. Assume an interest charge averaging 8 percent and add to this cost a profit of 30 percent.

On the total of $2.5 Trillion of private debt and we have a price increase on goods and services of $950 billion up to 1976, which accounts for a large part of the disastrous inflation we are experiencing.

Consumer debt totaled $217.8 billion at the close of 1976. This lien on future consumer income makes that income unavailable for present and future goods purchase, depleting future markets by the amount of the debt.

Coupled with the debt service on the $2.5 Trillion debt of incorporated and unincorporated enterprise charged into the price of present and future goods and services, this is certain to be inflationary and cause further market depletion.

Business and farm debt, listed under individual and unincorporated enterprises debt totaled $342.3 billion. One to four family non farm mortgages totaled $546.5 billion.

The total net private debt of over $2.5 Trillion is future buying power already committed to debt service. It cannot be used for goods purchase and so create future employment.

The total of public and private debt for 1976 of $3.4 trillion consisted of $833.4 billion of federal, state and local debt so private debt is by far the largest element in our debt structure. As public debt, however, increased more rapidly than private debt for the second consecutive year, a trend toward the increasing dependence by federal, state and local governments on borrowing rather than taxation for revenue.

It also may indicate that governmental bodies are reaching the limit of the taxpaying power of the public and must resort to borrowing to secure funds.

It may occur to our politicians to tax the creditors who own the $3.4 trillion debt structure. This appears to be the source of funds large enough to meet the growing demand of federal, state and local government for revenue.

It is my reasoned conviction that the economic system of capitalistic individualism is the most equitable and efficient ever devised by men for the production and distribution of wealth, but I am equally convinced that the violation of basic laws under which a capitalistic economy must operate, if it is to survive, has placed this system in the most serious jeopardy.

Our capitalistic economy has two markets for goods, mass markets consisting of wage and salary earners and non-mass markets consisting of profit makers. An understanding of this distinction as to markets is vital to an understanding of the problem to be solved if world capitalism is to survive.

Aggregate mass markets must receive income from sources other than wages paid in the production of mass consumer goods if they are to buy and pay for the aggregate mass consumer goods produced.

Unless sufficiently large segments of the aggregate mass consumer market find employment in the production of non-mass consumer goods to compensate for the deficiency of buying power received by mass markets in the production of mass consumer goods, the production for profit cannot be sustained.

Thorstein Veblin, in his "Theory of the Leisure Class," apparently did not develop this. We need more "conspicuous" or inconspicuous spending by those who have accumulated huge totals of unspent dollar credits if capitalism is to survive.

Non-mass consumer goods are produced for export to foreign markets and for sale to domestic non-mass markets consisting of profit takers and interest receivers.

As other capitalistic economies are faced with this same problem, production for export sales cannot be expected in sufficient volume to maintain our domestic mass buying power. The reduction in our balance of trade points to this fact.

The conclusion seems inescapable that we must develop domestic non-mass markets to the required level.

As the aggregate wage deficiency in mass consumer goods production and distribution equals the aggregate profit in pricing these goods, it follows that aggregate wages paid in the production of non-mass consumer goods must equal the aggregate profit of mass consumer goods production if mass markets are to buy and pay for these goods. Therefore the profit from goods production must be taken in non-mass consumer goods if the profit system is to survive.

Profits, under a sound and healthy "capitalism" must be taken in goods, not simply in credit rights to goods.

It seems obvious that under a profit system, producers and distributors of mass consumer goods cannot pay enough in wages and salaries to enable those employed in such production to buy and pay for the goods they have produced. The profit factor necessitates an aggregate price higher than aggregate cost, which includes payrolls.

Unless the dollar profit factor representing rights to goods is exercised in our markets for non-mass consumer goods and so creates an effective demand for the production and distribution of such goods, thereby establishing payrolls in mass markets, adequate to replace the deficiency of buying power in these markets resulting from the profit factor, capitalism and the profit system cannot survive.

Unspent dollar credits, in whatever form, represent only a right to wealth and, under basic capitalistic law, cannot be properly considered as "wealth" in itself, but only as a right to wealth in our markets.

Economics is concerned with the production and distribution of wealth, not with the accumulation of the medium of exchange or unexercised rights to goods.

Capitalism, as a system of economics, must have the same objectives. When capitalistic society fails to maintain these sound objectives it plays host to a cancerous body that will destroy it along with the unspent dollar credit structure which it has fostered.

The fact that we have a debt structure of over $3.4 Trillion of these unexercised rights to wealth in the United States alone, requiring the payment by our domestic markets of astronomical funds in interest and principle debt service annually, is indicative of how far we have divorced ourselves from fundamental "capitalistic" thinking and practice.

The $3,400,000,000,000 represents wealth that was never produced and distributed because this effective demand for that wealth was never exercised in our markets. Yet a capitalistic economy must depend upon the exercise of these rights; if they are not exercised the system must inevitably fail to function.

Lending does not change the nature of unspent dollar credits as unexercised potential effective demand; it only changes the form of debt, the paper evidence of it.

An unexercised dollar credit has been simply exchanged for an unexercised dollar credit in a different form. These are rights to wealth but, if they are not exercised, wealth is not produced and distributed. Unless such rights are exercised, no demand for non-mass consumer goods can occur nor will wages to mass markets be paid in such production.

Debt, unspent dollar credits, constitutes unexercised effective buying power held by creditors (largely non-mass markets), a lien on future buying power on the part of debtors (largely mass markets). The future buying power of our domestic markets now has over $3,400,000,000,000 of such liens against it.

If I Could Not See a Tree

If I could not see a tree,
If I could not
See a forest growing,
Tall and vaulted,
Hushed cathedral domed;
If I could not smell the leaves,
The good, rich humus
Moistening the forest floor,
The loamy feeling sifting
Through my fingers;
If I could not hear
The sounds of wooded creatures,
Bluejays, chipmunks, katydids and deer;
If I could not feel
The cool, damp forest air
Against my cheek
And think long after I am gone
It will be there,
Then pity me.

CURIOUS CONQUERORS

They ran to the ocean shore
To swim across it;
At seven and five years
It's not hard — not a bit.

They planned to pick
All the shells on the beach —
At least every one
That was within reach.

They built a sand castle's
Moat to tunnel the world —
In 60 minutes mother had Their sleeping bags unfurled.

WORDS

What depth of thought do words contain —
Or lack, as it may be.
How often do we say a word
That really needed three!

"Morning" seems a bit remote;
"Good morning" sounds much better.
Surprising what a change is made
If we but add a letter

Or two or three or more, in fact,
To really greet the day,
And all the folk who come and go
Whom we meet along the way.

It might just be a better world
In which to work and play
If we filled more words with meaning
In the friendship we convey.

Summertime

Cultivate, weed and water
Flower beds, vegetables, too.
Mulch the peas and tomatoes —
Spring chores, to name but a few.

Prune, trim and spray
The fruit trees, pines and shrubs;
Fertilize, mow and rake the grass
And work on the moles and the grubs.

It sounds like an unending job
To keep up with those chores until fall,
But when we think of what follows,
They seem like nothing at all!

Greene may not make the ballot

United States Representative Carl Pursell of the 2nd Congressional District could be a winner sooner than he originally expected.

Already unopposed for the Republican nomination in the upcoming August 8 primary, Pursell has learned that the lone Democratic candidate, Ann Arbor Councilman Earl Greene may be disqualified.

But Greene, who expressed the disappointment in a ruling that his petitions did not contain a sufficient number of signatures to qualify him for a place on the ballot, remains "confident that we'll win this yet."

Greene told this newspaper that officials have agreed to recount the signatures "and we're going over each one right now. We've already found some good ones (signatures that had not been properly counted) and we're sure we'll come up with a sufficient number."

He needed 930 signatures for placement on the ballot.

Greene said 1,176 signatures were obtained — "a cushion of 16 percent," but he was told his petitions fell short by 74 names.

What bothers Greene is that the person who was checking his petition signatures "suddenly took off" on a trip to Hawaii and left the remainder of the job to someone else.

"I think they realize that what happened (clerical switch) leaves something to be desired, and they've agreed to go over them again." He expected rechecking would be completed sometime this week.

The ballots already have gone to the printers, said Greene, so if his petitions are invalidated it will mean that stickers will have to be prepared, containing his name, for placement on the ballot.

And even if there are an insufficient number, Greene indicated he would mount a write-in campaign.

Write-in campaigns rarely work successfully, however, so Congressman Pursell's staff is understandably "delighted" that their candidate may win in a breeze.

Without a ballot opposition in the November election, Pursell would not have to drain his financial war chest, nor devote large chunks of his time for campaigning.

Pursell sponsors bill for elderly

Calling it "one of the most important pieces of legislation for senior citizens," Congressman Carl Pursell said the bill he is co-sponsoring is especially important in dealing with the needs of homebound elderly, blind, and disabled persons.

The proposed amendments are tacked on to a bill which was passed 13 years ago — the Older Americans Act — which was created to service senior citizens.

His bill, said Pursell, "will allocate funds for the construction of senior citizens multi-purpose centers in communities where none now exist. The amendments would finance alternatives to institutional living and long-term care.

"The co-sponsors and I believe that elderly citizens who are not greatly impaired will often find their own home more suitable, cheaper, and more dignified than hospitals and nursing homes."

Tax cut backers spark his wrath

Chiding his opponents for their "simple minded" approach to cutting taxes, Alan K. Stonex, Republican candidate for the 51st District state representative seat, demanded that they repudiate harmful tax-slicing proposals.

"Stonex, of Brighton, is seeking the Republican nomination for the seat which will be vacated by Republican Thomas G. Sharpe, a Howell resident.

Stonex, who favors strong tax limitation proposals, blasted his opponents who support the so-called Tisch Amendment, which would make radical cuts in public funding.

"Everyone wants to jump on the tax cut bandwagon," Stonex said. "But it is sheer demagoguery to favor tax cuts without specifying which of the two proposals you support."

An accountant, Stonex favors the Michigan Tax Limitation Amendment, which would freeze property tax assessments at their present level and limit tax hikes to those which parallel personal income growth.

"It's popular for politicians to support tax cuts now that California's Proposition 13 has passed," said Stonex, who faces five other Republicans in the August primary. "But some of the proposals have been ridiculous, including one for a graduated income tax."

Stonex challenged his Republican primary opponents to step forward and clarify their tax proposals.

"We'll leave fiscal demagoguery to the Democrats," he said. "We Republicans should stand for fiscal responsibility. I challenge all of my Republican opponents to detail their tax position immediately."

Stonex, who holds a master's degree in business administration, is an accountant with General Motors, a Brighton City councilman and former city mayor.

VanderVeen gets MEA support

U.S. Senate Democratic candidate, Richard Vander Veen, has accepted "with great pleasure" the endorsement of the 85,000 member Michigan Education Association.

Vander Veen said he was particularly grateful to win the 125-year-old organization's first primary endorsement in its history.

The candidate's campaign manager, Glenn Barkan, said the endorsement "may well be the turning point in this campaign."

He noted that Vander Veen also has received endorsements from the Sheet Metal Workers of Michigan, the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, the Maritime Engineers Benefit Association, the International Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers, the Steamship and Airline Clerks, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Railway Clerks, and the Railway Labor Executives Association.

G. MENNEN WILLIAMS

Justice Williams seeks re-election

Former six-term governor G. Mennen Williams has announced that he will seek re-election to a second term as Justice of the Michigan Supreme Court.

As an incumbent Justice, Williams can file an affidavit of candidacy which places his name on the nonpartisan ballot in the November election. Parties also can nominate candidates at their state conventions in August.

Justice Williams' long record of public service includes two Michigan records as governor from 1949-1960 — most times elected: six, and most years as governor, 12.

Justice Williams' career also includes service as United States ambassador to the Philippines, 1968-69; appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson, and as assistant secretary of state for African Affairs, 1961-66, appointed by President John F. Kennedy.

In 1970 Williams, a Democrat, was elected on the non-partisan ballot as Justice of the Michigan Supreme Court. His term expires at the end of this year.

In announcing his decision today to seek re-election Justice Williams said: "I believe in public service. In fact, I love it.

"These eight years on the Michigan Supreme Court have been among the most satisfying of my life because they have allowed me to serve in a new and meaningful way. "I feel that I can continue to make a meaningful contribution to the court."

Hilda Gage gets judge's backing

Oakland County Circuit Court Judge James S. Thorburn, the top vote-getter for circuit court on the 1976 primary ballot, said he is endorsing Hilda Gage, 39 year old Oakland County attorney for one of the three newly created Oakland County Circuit Court judgeships seats.

In an official statement, Judge Thorburn said, "I am pleased to endorse the candidacy of Hilda Gage, an able and brilliant Oakland County trial attorney, as best qualified among the candidates running for one of the three newly created Circuit Court Judgeships.

"Mrs. Gage's qualifications are outstanding. Her academic record is impeccable, graduating Magna Cum Laude, at the top of her class, when she received her Juris Doctorate from Wayne State University Law School."

Primary Countdown 78

Thorburn said that over the years he has been impressed with her legal abilities in court and that everything he knows about her past background leads him to believe that "she will bring fresh vitality, professionalism in legal analysis and outspoken leadership integrity to the bench."

"She also has some pragmatic solutions for our Circuit Court dockets by way of arbitration and mediation, and it is for these reasons that I am enthusiastic about endorsing her candidacy to the Circuit Court bench," Thorburn said

Broomfield sees federal waste

If government's excessive spending is the engine of inflation, Congress and the bureaucracy's lack of fiscal responsibility must certainly be considered as the fuel, according to Congressman William S. Broomfield (R-19th District).

"If we are ever to experience relief in the inflation rate and the enormous tax burden borne by the people, Congress must begin to control its spending by placing priorities on the programs it funds.

"Beyond Congress' role, however, the bureaucracy must begin to exercise its own sense of fiscal responsibility to put our economy back on the track," Broomfield said.

A recent example of bureaucratic waste involves the General Services Administration (GSA), Broomfield pointed out.

The General Services Administration, the property manager of the federal government, found last summer that two months away from the end of the fiscal year, it had spent far less money than the Congress had authorized.

Instead of returning this money back to the Treasury, GSA issued an order to spend money and spend it fast. As a result of this order, GSA's spending nationwide increased by as much as 40 percent. In fact, the agency overspent its money by more than $6 million.

U.S. Senator Robert P. Griffin, R-Michigan, prime sponsor of federal tax relief legislation, is urging support of the Tax Limitation Amendment to Michigan's Constitution.

He fully supports the proposal because it is "the most responsible way to tie the growth of taxes in government to the people's ability to pay," Griffin said.

"There is no doubt in my mind that a tax revolt is in progress. I have noted it as I travel around the state. I understand it; I sympathize with it, and I support it."

Griffin who seeks the GOP nomination, said the proposed Tax Limitation Amendment for Michigan is based on the same theory as legislation he is sponsoring in Washington — to keep tax rates constant in proportion to income.

Griffin's bill would adjust personal income rates, deductions, and exemptions every year to compensate for increases in the cost of living.

"This 'indexing' of the tax rates would end the situation too many workers find themselves in today, of receiving pay raises just to keep pace with the cost of living only to discover they have been boosted into higher tax brackets and have less money to spend than before," he declared.

Patterson chides Senator Griffin

L. Brooks Patterson, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, blasted incumbent Senator Robert P. Griffin for his "tardy" support of the tax limitation proposal.

In a letter to Griffin, Patterson, who currently serves as prosecutor of Oakland County, said, "As usual, your position becomes known long after the actual work is done and the mood of the public is evident. It's obvious you have been blown off the fence by the mandate inherent in California's Proposition 13."

He said Griffin's tardy support "is another typical Griffin example of 'follow-ship' not 'leadership'."

"As one involved in Proposition 'C' (a tax limitation proposal on the ballot in 1976 that failed) and as one of those instrumental in drafting the current tax limitation amendment in Michigan, I resent your attempt to jump on the bandwagon. Your tardy support is a ridiculous political ploy merely designed to attract attention..."

Patterson challenged Griffin to show his genuine interest by publicly taking a position now on the proposed constitutional amendment introduced by Congressman Philip Crane of Illinois.

Dumas surprised by no opposition

In filing for a fourth term as Wayne County Commissioner in the 19th District representing Livonia and Northville, Mary E. Dumas expressed surprise at being unopposed in either party primary.

"I believe that such lack of opposition is a reflection of my serious efforts throughout six years as commissioner to represent the interests of the district as a whole rather than from a purely partisan point of view.

"I intend to continue my efforts to speak out on behalf of the residents of our district and Western Wayne County, and to assure that the taxpayers' dollars are cost effective in providing needed services. Not having to conduct an active campaign will give me time to concentrate on some very serious issues facing the County. The Millage Steering Committee has a tremendous task ahead in selling the one-mill renewal to Wayne County taxpayers.

"In addition, I have just been appointed Vice-Chairman of the Board of Commissioners Corrections Committee. We must determine whether Wayne County is obligated to take over the housing and care of adjudicated prisoners at the Detroit House of Corrections. If DeHoCo goes out of business in November, we may be faced with the problems of housing and caring for up to 800 adult male misdemeanants and felons."

Kadish backs tax limitations

Paul Kadish, Democratic candidate for the state senate, announced last night that he will support the proposed state Tax Limitation Amendment "because I have been arguing since 1969 for effective homeowner tax relief."

"Nearly ten years ago I labelled the Michigan Constitution a 'soak-the-homeowner constitution,'" said Kadish. "I said then that 'we need a new method of financing... one that will give relief to local property taxpayers.' I called, too, for a ceiling on state spending: 'It is time... to require all programs instituted and funded by the legislature be given a time limit.'"

Kadish claimed that the State Equalized Valuation Formula, a provision of our State Constitution which levies property taxes is unfair because it "imposes increases without homeowners or voters having any say in the matter."

"It has taken others a long time to pick up the themes I preached in 1969 and 1970," commented Kadish. "Meanwhile, homeowners, and especially senior citizens are being taxed out of the homes they spent their lives building and buying."

"The present state senator from this district, R. Robert Geake, Republican-Northville, has taken no initiative in cutting state spending or in relief measures for taxpayers. I regard the Tax Limitation proposal as just a beginning. The next step will be to pursue methods which will reduce or eliminate the residential property tax as the major resource for financing public schools."

Kadish is the Democratic candidate for state senator in the 14th District. He is unopposed in the primary election. For further information, contact Paul Kadish, 522-6565.

Curran's out of 35th race

There'll be no primary race for the 35th State Representative District after all.

That's because Francis Curran has withdrawn his candidacy for the Democratic nomination, leaving Joseph Horwath unopposed for the Democrats' nod. Both are Livonia residents.

Curran offered no explanation for his withdrawal.

Incumbent Representative Jack Kirsey of Livonia is unopposed for the Republican nomination. He was the lone Republican to file for the post.

With neither party hopeful facing opposition, the battle for the seat formerly held by now State Senator R. Robert Geake won't get underway in earnest until after the primary.

Geake gave up his House seat to take the Senate job formerly held by Congressman Carl Pursell. Both Geake and Pursell are up for re-election this year.

Plan would guarantee policies of firms that go bankrupt

By WARREN M. HOYT

The Michigan Insurance Bureau is developing a plan to guarantee the continuation of insurance coverage even if companies go bankrupt or are unable to provide future insurance.

Under the proposed plan, policies would simply go to another company. It is designed to assure that life insurance policies will lose no cash value earned from the original company.

The plan, a life and health insurance guarantee program, is now being studied by the Department of Commerce in the insurance bureau's insurance industry standards compliance division.

Based somewhat on a guarantee plan for property and casualty insurance effective in Michigan since 1969, it will require legislative action before it can be implemented. Similar plans are in effect in nearly half of the states in the nation.

David Jordan, director of the insurance compliance division, said Michigan hasn't had any problems with life and health insurance companies going bankrupt or suffering major setbacks, but with so many insurance companies doing business in the state, "we're not saying none will ever go broke."

Though there seems to be no current threat of companies closing, companies have taken on greater risks by writing more credit insurance, Jordan noted. Credit insurance insures that an item bought on credit will be paid off if the purchaser dies or is unable to complete payments.

Insurance companies, especially smaller companies, are increasingly subject to economic pressures and slowdowns.

Since the property guarantee plan went into effect, two Michigan-based companies have gone into receivership and could have cost their customers over $2 million had the policies not been picked up through the program, according to Jordan. Nationally, 45 property insurance companies have gone into receivership.

Cost of the developing and maintaining a life and health guarantee association will be covered by the customers, but very minuscule, Jordan said. He noted cost of the property and casualty plan is down to 1/10,000th of the whole rate.

The plan would create an association to which all insurers writing life and health insurance would have to be members. A board of governors would manage the association.

In case a company goes into receivership, or is unable to handle any more business, the association would look for someone interested in buying the company's book of business. Should no company be interested in buying the policies, the association would be able to assign the policies to a company.

Companies would also have to pick up policies similar to those they write. The proposed plan, in effect, provides insurance coverage for insurance coverage.

A July meeting between the Insurance Bureau and Commerce Department officials has been set to discuss the plan and consider possible changes in a draft. There are no immediate plans to have the proposal introduced into the Legislature until the fall session.

The Michigan House of Representatives took a giant step recently in voting to place a permanent statewide ban on the use of double-bottom tankers transporting hazardous materials. Also the ban would continue an immediate ban on tandem trailers in the Wayne-Oakland-Macomb tri-county area except to go to and from supply depots during the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 a.m.

The ban was ordered by Governor William G. Milliken using emergency powers following a series of devastating accidents in the highly populated areas.

The legislation also prohibits any tanker from carrying more than 9,000 gallons of fuel in the tri-county area, except in certain designated areas.

In an effort to make all tankers safer, the legislation further requires tankers to be remodeled to increase stability. The stability requirements are based on a study conducted by the University of Michigan. The university's Highway Safety Research Institute will make future recommendations on vehicle design for safer transportation of gasoline and other flammable liquids.

The Senate must now complete legislation action on the ban, but that action is not expected until at least fall when the Legislature reconvenes following the summer recess and the August primary elections.

The Michigan Legislature is often off target.

This is the case with the pending legislation to require registration and expenditure reporting of lobbyists and their agents.

The Senate has been going through a long painful process of rewriting and refining the so-called lobbyist reform bill placing financial disclosure requirements on lobbyist expenditures in the course of doing business with public officials.

In its present form, the bill at best is vague and would unlikely stand up under a constitution challenge. It requires any person who spends more than $250 per year on an individual public official or $1,000 per year on lobbying practices to register and report quarterly to the secretary of state's office.

Arguments presented indicate a business owner could not petition government — a guaranteed right of both the U.S. and State Constitutions — without fear of being subject to criminal penalties after reaching a certain dollar value expenditure in both direct and indirect expenses.

Who can define what an indirect expenditure is and what should be reported? How about parking fees, shoeshines, haircuts or even the cost of a baby-sitter so a person could attend a committee meeting?

This vagueness alone would be grounds for the courts to strike the reporting requirements down as unconstitutional.

Another constitutional grey area the legislature is toying with is the removal of members of the press who were exempted from the registration and reporting requirement. The First Amendment guarantees the right of free press and such inclusions infringe upon these rights.

Farmer's market opens tomorrow

If your mouth has been watering for a taste of fresh-from-the-garden zucchini squash, plan to arrive early at the Northville Farmer's Market tomorrow.

The first weekly market of the season will be held at the municipal parking lot on Main Street next to the Northville Pharmacy and across from the theater with area farmers setting up tables at 8 a.m.

From tables or truck tailgates at least 10 farmers are expected to be selling the squash, green onions, spinach and the first sweet corn.

There won't be too much corn this first week, anticipates Linda Dowsett, who with her husband Daniel, operates a farm on Angle Road at Seven Mile jointly with neighbors, the Ron Webers.

By next week, however, she expects corn and tomatoes that were just being stalked last week.

This year the market is a project of the Northville Chamber of Commerce, reports Essie Nirider. He explains that the retail merchants in town asked the chamber to take over administration of the popular weekly summer market which was started by John Genitti.

"We're going to try to make it bigger than ever," he promises, mentioning that growers of specialty products are being signed. There is to be an herb and plant booth as well as a honey one.

Official hours for the market will be 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. beginning this Thursday and continuing each Thursday into November.

Coming to the Thursday market is a family project for both the Dowsetts and the Webers. The families live across from each other and work the farm together.

Assisting in the field and at the market are their children Kristine and Danna Dowsett are 10 and 13 respectively, while Ronnie Weber, Jr., is 11 and his sister, Cathy is six.

Last week they were confident that the two-inch long zucchini would have grown to market size. The families also sell their produce at a roadside stand at the intersection of Angle and Seven Mile roads.

Called Dan's Place, the stand has become known as a place to get cooking and freezing help.

Pauline's caring made vows possible

The marriage of Pauline Simms and Edwin Luoma took place on June 18 only because of exceptional caring.

It culminated a romance that began about 1959 and survived a severe stroke that hospitalized the bridegroom for a long period.

The couple met when the bride first operated the White Kitchen for three years before opening Pauline's Restaurant at 126 East Main. She owned the restaurant for 10 years before selling it in 1970.

Luoma, who had been working as a carpenter for Greenspan North Woods subdivision and living in a downtown hotel, proposed two years ago in April.

That June, however, he suffered a severe stroke and was hospitalized in Veterans' Hospital in Allen Park. He had been discharged after World War II as a lieutenant in the Naval Air Force.

Mrs. Simms visited him faithfully at the hospital and then in nursing homes, helping him eat and offering encouragement.

Friends say it was her exceptional caring that was incentive for Luoma to fight his way back to recovery as well as he has.

Their Sunday, June 18, marriage took place at the Finnish Center on Eight Mile in Farmington Hills before 70 friends and relatives in an altar setting of candelabra and greens.

The Reverend William Whitley of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in Livonia officiated at the double-ring rites. Since the bridegroom speaks little since his stroke, the service was adapted so he might nod his head with the minister giving special prayers from "Praying Hands" as part of the ceremony.

Ralph Mannisto, a neighbor of the bride's, played the wedding march and for dancing later.

Special music also was provided by Mexican singer El Trovador Michoacano. It included "Feelings" and "In the Shadow of Your Smile".

Lowell Simms gave his mother in marriage. For the ceremony she wore a pink silk gown with a tunic top edged with pink lace. She wore a corsage of pink and white carnations.

Women earn top place in marathon benefit

When scores were totaled after 11 separate groups completed play in the Northville Mothers' Club marathon bridge tournament the end of May, Phyllis Lemon and Nan Oliver were found to have earned top score of 33,620.

Bonnie Rinehart and Beverly Williams were just 650 points below with a score of 32,970.

Chairman Ardis McLeod, in announcing the scores, reports that 224 played in the 1977-78 benefit. Proceeds are used by Northville Mothers' Club for projects in the Northville Public Schools.

Mrs. McLeod adds that it was a successful year with few queries regarding official play.

Most unusual question, she recalls, concerned a hand in which the 100 honors were held by opponents. "The Official Encyclopedia of Bridge" by Richard L. Frey, used as the final word in event of dispute during the annual marathons, confirmed that the honors could be counted by the defenders.

Carolann Ayers, who had been co-chairman for this year's marathon play, will head next year's marathon.

She may be called at 349-1710 by those wishing to participate. Her co-chairman is Sue Anger.

For 15 years the marathon bridge project has been a major fund-raiser for Mothers' Club and has had community-wide participation. Play begins in September and continues through May for most groups. The couples' groups, however, this past year did not meet in December.

Mrs. McLeod suggests that more couple signing up will make it possible to return to one-table play. This past year all three couple groups were two-tabled. Couples pay $20 a season and women in the ladies group each pay $10 as they register to play. Prizes are provided for the monies for the top three winning teams in each group.

Groups and the top winners in each are:

Ladies Day Group I, Bonnie Rinehart, Beverly Williams, 32,970; Mary Pohlot, Janet Traudt, 31,490; Barbara Henrich, Rosemary Mentag, 25,650.

Holiday events drew visitors

By JEAN DAY

Northville's Jaycee-sponsored Fourth of July parade and Northville Historical Society Mill Race activities have become a major attraction on the Independence Day holiday. In addition to drawing Governor William Milliken and other leaders on this election year, the events brought former residents and friends to town.

Incidentally, this was not the first time that a Michigan governor participated in a July 4 parade here. George Romney was Republican gubernatorial candidate, however, when he rode in the July 4 parade in 1962.

Northville Historical Society realized $1,450 after expenses for the Mill Race activities, Jim Harris, who banked the monies, reports. The sum included the historical society flea market (with a profit of $550 under Helen Maki's direction), horseshoe games, ice cream served by the Junior Docents, square dancing in the New School Church and rental of space.

Beth Griffith, sister of Mrs. Harris from Georgetown, Illinois, was a holiday guest — and one of the many visitors who exclaimed they "just couldn't believe" a community could have such a festive celebration.

Sue Holstein's mother, Mrs. Jerome J. Eagan of Hagerstown, Maryland, planned her visit to the Milton Holstein family to coincide with the celebration as she had so enjoyed the Bicentennial one. Mrs. Holstein volunteered during the day as a docentess in the Hunter House. It was she who organized the guide group for the Mill Race buildings.

Nancy Bohn visits here

Former resident Nancy Bohn was in town for the Fourth and expressed her pleasure in progress at the Mill Race Historical Village. She and her husband, Richard, had been active historical society members before being transferred to the Panama Canal Zone. Mrs. Bohn visited JoAnn Kissel at her home on Springfield last week. After a trip east to look at colleges with daughter Carolyn, who will graduate from high school in Panama in June, Mrs. Bohn plans a return visit here with Jackie Daniel about July 24.

The Bohns' other daughter, Marjorie, a student at University of Michigan, has been working for the park service in Idaho this summer. Dick Bohn is coming from Panama to take a Colorado River raft trip before the family gets together at his parents' home in Los Angeles. Then, with both daughters, the Bohns will return to Panama City via Mexico, Guatemala and Costa Rica.

New occupants of the Bohn home on Wing Street are the Ransom Halls who have sold their home in Lexington Commons. The Bohns plan to continue to rent their home while they're in Panama. Nancy Bohn says it's more hot and humid there but adds that they enjoy the port city.

Other former residents visiting the Mill Race last Tuesday were the E. I. "Chips" Elys, Jr., who now live in Elk Rapids. Chips was especially interested in restoration of the Yerkes House, mentioning that he and his family had lived in it for three years when it was on Cady Street.

The Harvey Smiths, former Randolph Street residents, and also active in the Northville Historical Society, came from their home near Port Huron in Washington, Michigan, for the festivities.

Woodhill residents leaving

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Sarnes, residents of the white colonial home at 20248 Woodhill for more than 15 years, moved last weekend to the retirement home they have built at Fairview, north and east of Mio, on 80 acres. Daughter Ann was going with them to spend the rest of the month there, helping with the settling. Their son, Fred, is living in Plymouth. Ruth and Mike Sarnes plan to leave with their travel trailer for Arizona when the weather gets cold.

Moving into their home on Woodhill will be Lionel "Bud" and Lynn Belanger.

Another Woodhill Road resident, Anita Andringa of 20391 Woodhill, with children, Kip and Jill, will be moving to Okemos the end of the month. The home has been sold to William and Janet Martin of Novi. He is an assistant principal and she a teacher in Farmington.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES EDWIN ORVIS, JR.

MR. AND MRS. MARK COIR

Couple wed in historic home

Marlene Wolfe and Mark Coir exchanged marriage vows in a 4 p.m. ceremony June 17 at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Coir, at 317 Dunlap.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Wolfe of Tucson, Arizona. She was given in marriage by her uncle, Edmund Bednarz. The Reverend Lloyd Brasure of First Presbyterian Church officiated.

The bride wore an off-shoulder gown of crushed satin with antique lace edging the full, gathered sleeves. She wore fresh flowers in her hair and carried a nosegay of mums and blue roses.

Mildred Harris Caplitz of Muskegon wore an ecru cocktail-length gown with a waist corsage as matron of honor. Ronald William Coir was his brother's best man.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Coir home.

The bridegroom, who received his BA in 1975 and his MSLS degree in 1978 from Wayne State University, now is a librarian in the Burton Collection at the Detroit Public Library.

He has researched his parents' home, built nearly 100 years ago, about 1882 by John Harmon, father of Frank S. Harmon, village mayor of Northville from 1904 to 1906, and discovered that Helen C. Barron was married in the home 50 years ago.

She was a stepdaughter of Dean Griswold and his wife who occupied the home for many years. The Coir family has lived in the brick home for a year. Mark Coir's research reveals that the home was built with approximately 60,000 bricks with interior woodwork entirely crafted of white ash.

The bride, a graduate of Grand Valley State College in Grand Rapids with a BA degree 1975, received her MSLS degree in 1978 from Wayne State University and also is employed by the Detroit Public Library in its general information section.

After a wedding trip in the Georgian Bay area of Ontario they are living in Detroit.

Keen-Carlson vows read in Phoenix ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. David Keen of Rayburn Drive in Northville announce the marriage of their daughter, Donna, to Paul Carlson in Phoenix, Arizona.

They were married May 26 in Phoenix and then traveled to Michigan as part of their honeymoon.

A congratulatory dinner was given by the bride's parents in Farmington for the immediate families.

The bridegroom is employed by the Tempe, Arizona, School District. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Carlson of Plymouth, he was graduated from Plymouth High School and is completing his studies at Phoenix College.

The newlyweds will be living in Phoenix.

Sarah Horner married in Village

Mill Race Historical Village was the setting for the 1 p.m. June 17 wedding of Sarah Jean Horner and James Edwin Orvis, Jr.

The bride is the daughter of Robert D. and Jeanne Horner of 351 South Rogers and was salutatorian of her 1972 Northville High School graduating class. She was graduated from University of Michigan School of Music in 1976 and has been teaching for two years in Man- ton, Michigan.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony was Father John McGrail of Sts. Peter and Paul Church in Detroit, uncle of the bridegroom. He is the son of James and Margaret Orvis.

Music, a French horn duet, was performed by Kathryn Hildebrandt and Robert Horner, brother of the bride.

The bride made her wedding gown of ivory silk satin which was fashioned with a portrait neckline and Empire waist with matching ivory lace trim.

Her floral headpiece and Williamsburg colonial bouquet were made by Marilyn Lorenz of silk and dried white roses, azaleas, daisies, lily of the valley, boxwood and statice.

Mrs. Dan Schulz of Stanton was matron of honor in an Empire-waist peach floral print dress. She carried a Williamsburg colonial permanent bouquet of peach and white daisies with boxwood and statice.

Dale Palka of Livonia was best man. Ushers were Michael and Eric Horner, brothers of the bride.

A wedding reception followed the ceremony in the New School Church for 45 guests, including out-of-towners from Ohio and Illinois.

The couple had met when both were employed by the same company. The bridegroom is a boring mill operator at S and J Boring in Livonia.

DEBRA L. MASSON

DIANA DEAN

Joan L. Campsall of Inkster wore a blue gown with blue and white corsage and carried a Bible as she attended her mother.

Leonard Holmbo of Redford was best man.

A highlight of the reception following was the decorated wedding cake that featured both fruit and batter layers. It was made by Beverly Pixley as a gift for the couple. The batter layer was especially for the bridegroom.

The newlyweds now are living at the bride's home at 19850 Marilyn and are planning an August wedding trip to Isle Royal and to Ahmeek in the Upper Peninsula where the bridegroom was born.

And they're doing just what the minister asked in his prayer. They're "living for this day." Happily.

ADVERTISED ITEM POLICY Each of these advertised items is required to be readily available for sale at or below the advertised price in each A&P Store, except as specifically noted in this ad.

WHAT ABOUT TRIM?

The proper trim on our beef is important at A&P's Butcher Shop because we don't want you to pay, or even think you're paying one penny extra for unnecessary bone and fat. It's a precise business. We have to trim the beef so the extra bone and fat is taken off before the retail cut is weighed, packaged and priced by weight. Yet we have to leave on just enough fat cover for full flavor. At A&P we trim off all fat in excess of 1/2 inch.

PRECISE TRIM - LOOK FOR IT NEXT TIME YOU VISIT THE BUTCHER SHOP.

Prices effective Wed., July 12 thru Sat., July 15, 1978. We reserve the right to limit quantities. Items offered for sale not available to other retail dealers or wholesalers.

She buckles up

Lisa Herzog, 12, believes in safety belts enough to create a winning poster in the American Automobile Association's 34th annual school traffic safety poster contest. She received a merit citation award as her entry was chosen from among more than 38,000 posters submitted by elementary and secondary school artists from across the country. The daughter of William and Patricia Herzog of 1038 Bristol Court, Lisa made the poster while a student at Moraine last spring. She will be entering Cooke Junior High this fall. Her mother credits her Moraine art teacher, Shirley Talmadge, for encouraging the young artist. Lisa's entry was among Michigan winners sent to Washington, D.C., where it received the merit citation for "original thought and design," A.C. Gibson, manager of Michigan AAA safety and traffic engineering department, explains.

FISH seeks drivers, board members

The Northville-Novi FISH organization, an all-volunteer group helping people of the community in many ways, is now in need of people to assist with transportation.

Both local and distance drivers are needed. Volunteers also are needed to serve on the board of directors of FISH, helping in the administrative area.

Board meetings are held only two to three times a year. Anyone interested in either volunteer job is asked to call 349-3471.

Since FISH is a volunteer group and depends upon donations to make possible its emergency help, a donation day is to be held at the A & P on Seven Mile Wednesday, July 19.

Members have received donation cards and all are urged to participate by shopping that day. Anyone else wishing to help FISH in this way may receive a card by calling—the 349-3471 number.

A percentage of the day's proceeds, if the cards are used, is donated by the grocery supermarket to FISH.

Speaking for FISH, volunteer Jo Krause says the help given by the community is greatly appreciated for it makes possible the help program.

MSU expert views marriage today

The shortcomings of marriage are being spelled out on magazine covers, railed at on television and whispered about at weddings.

However, Dr. Vera Borosage, Michigan State University specialist in family and child sciences, believes marriage in America is not a dying institution despite highly publicized and often contrary statistics.

Dr. Borosage spoke at the recent College Week, a program sponsored by the MSU Cooperative Extension Service on the MSU campus.

For most people courtship is a time of excitement, of discovery, new understanding and warmth.

But what happens after you marry? According to Dr. Borosage, adjusting to and living with the everyday "real person" in your mate is seldom easy.

There is no secret formula for marital bliss.

"Every person is different, so every relationship is different," she said, "but the mental attitude of spouses toward marriage has a tremendous influence upon whether their partnership continues successfully or fails."

People often accept as truth certain myths about marriage which persist in our society, and these myths influence attitudes. Too often people marry with the wrong ideas about what marriage will or will not do for them.

Is marriage really problems galore? According to Dr. Borosage that attitude breeds problems.

"A marriage doesn't need crepe-hangers. Negative attitudes have broken more marriages than money," she observed.

The myth that marriage is "no bed of roses" has been processed into our brain since childhood, according to Dr. Borosage.

"The American educational system is missing the boat. Children should be given a realistic picture of marriage in school," she said.

Though gloomy statistics indicate one of every three marriages will fail, Dr. Borosage pointed out that America is a "marrying society" anyway.

"Marriage can't be all that unpleasant — 60 percent of divorced people remarry, and there are still two out of three marriages which don't end in divorce," she stated.

Dr. Borosage predicted that the divorce rate will probably stop rising and stabilize.

One reason may be that today, the average person marries at an older age, and an older-age person will probably have a more realistic picture of what to expect from marriage.

Too many people believe the myth that marriage is a downhill experience, according to Dr. Borosage. Most certainly, the honeymoon ends, but there's no reason why a marital relationship should be downhill, boring or empty. Couples can keep a marriage alive.

If two people strive to grow as individuals, there is a much better chance that they will continue to grow as a couple, she predicted.

A Cornell University study shows that when couples reach middle age and older, marriages are happier.

The unhappiest years of marriage are when couples are young — during the first 10 years.

Financial problems are most likely to occur during the early stages of marriage, and children often lend to marital conflict.

"Once children go off to lead their own lives, the marriage usually gets better — depending, of course, upon the quality of the marriage from the beginning," Dr. Borosage said.

She does not recommend that spouses give up their own individuality and goals.

She called to mind the classic case of a wife who sacrifices her time and educational pursuits to work and support the family while her husband finishes school.

The wife becomes isolated in a menial job where she has no opportunity for growth, and suddenly, she doesn't measure up to her spouse's standards. So, he divorces her, and she's left with no fruits for her efforts.

"Women should not allow this to happen," Dr. Borosage asserted. "Let your husband work part-time. Even it takes him a year longer to get through school, it will be better for the marriage," she said.

Another myth that should be exploded is the one that contends men are different from women, according to Dr. Borosage.

There are biological differences between the sexes.

Men are physically stronger, but most women are perfectly capable of doing most jobs that men can do, she said. Except for biological differences, any other differences are learned — not inherent.

"People are individuals and can't be stereotyped. We need to respond to the person — it doesn't matter what the sex is," she said.

Can children cure an ailing marriage?

"That's another silly myth," says Dr.

Borosage. If the marriage is wavering, a child is likely to totally destroy what little stability is left.

Is marriage a solution for problems and unhappiness?

No, it is not, according to the specialist. Marriage does not change basic personality traits. If people tend to be unhappy or negative, they bring these attitudes with them into the marriage.

Marriage cannot fulfill all of a person's needs either," she said. No couple should expect everything from each other.

Each spouse will have needs the other cannot fulfill.

For example, one may want to see a football game while the other wants to see a play. There is no reason why either should give up those individual pursuits, according to Dr. Borosage.

"Find a friend who shares your interests to fill the gap," she suggested.

Another legend perpetuated by our society contends that successful marriages have no conflict.

"Couples must have the ability to overcome anger and put disagreements in the past."
