Township hit with another lawsuit

Kids sang, 'It's a jolly good tree,' in the wake of their successful effort to save the graceful old hickory next to their school

Kids rally to save Beacon tree

Many township and city residents were angry at the North Beacon Woods developers last week, but not the teachers and students at Moraine Elementary School, which is flanked on three sides by the land now being cleared for the subdivision.

After the developer, Angelo Spagnoli, responded to their pleas Friday to save a huge, gnarled hickory tree adjacent to the school's parking lot, what started out to be a 2 p.m. protest march turned into a celebration.

"The bulldozer operators were contacted by CB radio and told not to touch the tree," said Dwight Sieggreen, sixth grade teacher who worked with Phil Demski, third grade teacher, from 7:45 a.m. Friday until their efforts to save the tree paid off.

To celebrate, teachers marched their students single file to the tree reminiscent of the type that holds the Swiss Family Robinson treehouse at Walt Disneyworld.

back our tree" was met with cheers from the children who sang, "For It's a Jolly Good Tree" to the tune of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

"We saved the biggest, the oldest and the most beautiful tree," Demski said, "and it's a start for the rest of the trees." Children and teachers hope the developers will spare the trees that border the school property.

Sieggreen said most of the credit for saving the tree should go to Northville Township Supervisor Wilson Grier, whom the men called early Friday. They also contacted State Representative Jack Kirksey, who was about to take action when they discovered the tree had already been saved.

"I think they would have even contacted President Carter if he hadn't been at Camp David," said Mrs. Naomi Poe, second grade teacher, who said the students were learning a lesson about environment — and how man destroys it — from the development going on.

Much of the area being cleared has been used by the school to study the environment, including a wildflower area that's now gone.

"They're destroying our environment, and I realize that's progress," Mrs. Poe said, "but it's heartbreaking to see the rabbits driven out and killed on the highway. We just want to keep these few trees."

Bill Spagnoli, Angelo Spagnoli's brother and partner, said every tree that can be saved will be saved.

"Some people get the idea we're tree killers, but that isn't our purpose," he said. "Our purpose is to develop some home sites, and there's a premium for lots that have trees. We'd like nothing better than to save every tree out there."

Spagnoli said one problem is the many underground utilities required by law, including underground electricity and underground storm drains on both the backs and fronts of lots.

"There's nothing a developer can do about it," he said, "but it causes animosity with the surrounding area because people think we're doing it haphazardly."

He said the lots backing onto Eight Mile Road were made deeper than others to preserve the trees along the road, and every effort would be made to save trees bordering the school.

The developers have been cooperative with the school, Spagnoli said.

"When the school property was laid out, someone took a measurement from one of the wrong markers, and the school was on 100 feet of our property," he said. "It ended up with our having to redraw the plans because we didn't want to have to tear out the school parking lot and part of the playground to get our property back."

The developers traded for 100 feet of

City rejects bids, but library's still in plans

Northville's planned new public library, already facing budgetary problems, has run into another obstacle under the names Headlee and Tisch.

And that's even before either of the two tax-curbing propositions are decided by Michigan voters in November.

Although city council probably would have tabled the library addition plan anyway because of higher than expected bids, officials concluded Monday that it would be wiser to await the outcome of the November election on Headlee and Tisch before redefining the project.

Mayor Paul Vernon said he is convinced that if the Tisch proposal is approved, the city hall addition — including the library, is dead. All similar projects elsewhere in Michigan probably would face the same fate, he suggested.

As for the Headlee proposal, its passage will mean the library issue probably will have to be put to voters before it can become a reality, officials commented.

The latter requirement does not overly concern council members, who appear confident that voters would approve bonding for the library. But they are taking the position that it would be better to await the outcome of the November election on the tax-curbing proposals rather than try to push through the project before either have a chance of becoming part of the state constitution.

City Manager Steven Walters indicated that council could put the library issue on the November ballot in anticipation of passage of the Headlee proposal but he suggested such action would be premature.

Nevertheless, council agreed with

Grid contest starts

Pencils sharpened, stat sheets at hand, and thinking caps on?

If not, get busy because today the first installment of the weekly football contest that over the years has proved so popular appears on Page 4-B.

This year as last, the contest is being jointly sponsored by cooperating merchants and The Northville Record and the Walled Lake-Novi News.

Prize money will be offered each week to those persons who pick the most winners of the games listed in the football contest advertisement. Winners of the first contest will be announced in next week's papers.

Deadline for this week's contest is Friday at 5 p.m. Entries must be delivered to either The Record or The News offices by that time or be mailed with a postmark that meets the deadline. All entries after the deadline cannot be considered.

Oh, yes, don't forget to include the score of the designated game each week. It's used to determine winners in cases of ties.

Northville Downs and Northville Driving Club, tenant and landlord respectively, have signed a new 10-year pact (1979-88) setting forth rental terms for the Downs to conduct pari-mutual harness racing meets at the local track facility.

And while Driving Club President L. W. (Buz) Snow, Jr., expresses satisfaction with the agreement, Downs' spokesmen are definitely not happy.

In the first year of the new pact (1979) the Driving Club Corporation stands to gain $400,000 more than it has received in rent in each of the past 10 years.

Coming on the heels of a Downs-Driving Club controversy which erupted last February when the Downs offered to buy all the Driving Club stock, the lease negotiations were both tense and lengthy.

Specifically, the new lease calls for Northville Downs to pay rent equal to one and one-quarter percent of the total mutuel handle (betting), which amounted to $33 million in an 82-night meet this year.

Additionally, the landlord corporation will receive one half the rental income from the Downs' sub-lease agreement with Jackson Raceway. The latter racing association conducts a 55-to-60-night harness meet in November and December at Northville Downs, traditionally followed from January to April by an 80-night meet under the operation of Northville Downs.

Jackson pays Northville Downs one and one-half percent of its total mutuel handle for use of the facility. Last year the Jackson-at-Northville meet recorded a total handle of $23 million.

Under terms of the new agreement the Driving Club must pay the first $10,000 of property taxes levied against Northville Downs and split the remaining property tax bill with Northville Downs. These taxes are extracted from the Jackson meet rent revenues. This year Downs property taxes amount to about $220,000.

Using mutuel handle revenues from last year's Jackson meet (Nov.-Dec.) and this year's Downs' meet (Jan.-Apr.) the first year of the new contract (1979) between the Driving Club and Northville Downs would work out this way:

Jackson-at-Northville mutuel handle: $23,000,000 x .015 equals $345,000 in rent. One half goes to the Driving Club: $172,500. Subtract $10,000 for property taxes ($162,500) leaving $210,000 in property taxes to be split between Downs and Driving Club, $105,000 each. Driving Club's share of Jackson meet rent ($162,500 minus $105,000) equals $57,500. Downs' meet mutuel handle:

$33,000,000 x .0125 equals $412,500 in rent. Total annual rent paid to Driving Club ($412,500 plus $57,500) equals $470,000.

For the past 10 years the Driving Club has received a flat rental payment of $65,000 per year. Northville Downs pays property taxes and has made all improvements. In addition, as tenant, the Downs is responsible for maintenance expenses which are estimated at $100,000 per year.

Neither Downs' Executive Manager John Carlo nor Margaret Zayti, recording secretary, like the new contract arrangement.

The stumbling block, as they view the arrangement, is the lack of provision for improvements. Northville Downs proposed paying a flat one percent while setting aside another one-half of one percent for track improvements (approximately $165,000 annually). Mrs. Zayti points out that Northville Downs has spent $3 million during the past 10 years for a new clubhouse (constructed on Driving Club property) and some $780,000 for enclosing the grandstand and barn facilities.

"Under this agreement they've assumed the responsibility for making improvements. How can they do it. As a corporation (Driving Club, Inc.), they have to pay half of their rent in taxes," Mrs. Zayti argues.

From its after-tax income ($235,000) Mrs. Zayti states that the Driving Club must pay its stockholders a reasonable dividend based upon the new value which has been placed on the stock since a voting trust was formed last February to combat Carlo's offer to buy out all Driving Club stock at $100 per share. Formerly the stock had sold at a high of $50 per share.

Mrs. Zayti, who is not a member of the voting trust but is an elected member of the board of directors of the PINCKNEY — A 20-year-old Pinckney woman who was the target of an intensive search has been found alive and healthy with relatives in Marion, Indiana.

HOWELL — A magic show, slated September 2 as a benefit for the Livingston County Special Olympics, was cancelled because fund raisers were not licensed by the state to solicit contributions. Meanwhile, warrants for the arrest of three persons were issued when the state attorney general's office indicated the trio had not posted a bond or obtained a license to solicit.

BRIGHTON — The Brighton Area Schools is studying the possibility of teaching birth control as part of the high school's health education curriculum, according to Mike Shibley, administrative assistant for curriculum.

ington Road, wants to turn over the old cemetery to the township because so few descendants of the early settlers buried in the cemetery are living in the area.

GREEN OAK — A meeting between the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and members of the Green Oak Township Board to determine pollution causes on Limekiln Lake was characterized as a "waste of time" by Township Clerk Sally York, who noted that the DNR has stated that the South Lyon Waste Water Treatment Plant had nothing to do with pollution and fish kill on Limekiln Lake earlier this summer.

LYON — A Lyon Township man has written a newly published book titled, "PBB: The Poisoning of Michigan." He is Bruce MacLean.

SOUTH LYON — Petitions calling for the ouster of the mayor and three of four councilmembers in this city have been validated and delivered to the Oakland County Clerk's office in Pontiac. According to the state law, if there is a general, primary or special election scheduled within 90 days of the time the petitions are received, the election will be scheduled on the same date.

NOVI — Results of a study on proposed improvements at the corner of Grand River and Taft roads were expected to be released by the county this past week. Novi officials requested the study in January to determine feasibility of a signal light at the corner. Since that time, three persons have died as a result of accidents at the intersection.

NOVI — An out-of-court settlement of $7,800 has been reached in connection with brutality charges against two Novi police officers. Charges, which were never resolved in court, were brought by a 20-year old man now serving a five-to-fifteen year term at the Michigan Training Unit in Ionia. The settlement has the police chief and the policemen steaming, who were confident of winning the case in court. Lawyers for the insurance company, according to police, felt it would be cheaper to pay $7,800 than fight the case through the courts.

NOVI — It's official now. The annexation of Novi Township by the City of Novi will once again be tied up in court. The annexation of seven parcels of the township is at least tentatively slated for October 1, but an appeal of the action has been authorized by township resident William B. Chase, who lives near the intersection of Eight Mile and Griswold.

NOVI — Although rising costs continue to shave off miles, the Novi road program seems finally to be having a successful year. The city's engineer anticipates paving of five miles of road in the city before the 1978 construction season is over. One of the projects he expects to be completed before the end of the year is the paving of Beck Road from Eight Mile to Ten Mile — a portion of which would be shared by the City of Northville.

NOVI — Developers of the proposed $40 million mid-rise complex at Eight Mile and Haggerty roads appear eager once more to proceed with plans to construct the giant facility. Earlier spokesmen for the developer indicated the project might be dropped because of difficulties reaching a suitable agreement with the city.

Rotarians go to bat for kids

Host 'em in ballgame

Northville Rotarians served up another winner in staging its second annual softball benefit game involving themselves as well as young residents of Northville Residential Training Center.

That game, held recently at Thomson Field on Six Mile Road, helped provide funds for two weeks of camping at Kensington Metropark's Arrowhead Lodge for NRTC residents.

"It was marvelous... a really great experience for our youngsters, and we're extremely grateful to the Rotary Club," said Ronald Meyer, volunteer coordinator, and Thomas Dolan, program director at NRTC.

"Not only was the game itself fun, but proceeds raised by Rotarians helped provide thrills in camping."

Rotarians can't claim a game victory because they played with kids on both sides, "but they were clearly winners in providing this activity for kids."

The Rotary Club received assists from Shriners, who came dressed as clowns, and from the free use of Thomas Field.

Although only those youngsters in NRTC's EPIC Center program participated in the game, dozens more enjoyed the game from the sidelines. All of them — players and spectators — were treated to refreshments by Rotarians.

Jerseys and trophies also were presented by the Rotary Club.

Unlike other residents at NRTC, located in facilities adjacent to Northville State Hospital, EPIC Center kids are not generally labeled mentally retarded. Rather, they are children ages 13 to 17 who are involved in a unique social and vocational readjustment program aimed at readying them for re-entry to society.

EPIC Center is one of three state programs at NRTC, the two other clearly aimed at assisting mentally retarded. Altogether, NRTC houses approximately 210 children.

EPIC Center places its emphasis on family participation in the program. Parents, for example, were enthusiastic boosters of their children at the Rotary ballgame.

The name of the program was coined by the children themselves — meaning "Everyday People in Control."

Fishing's great!

There's no doubt about it, fishing was "absolutely superb." Just ask any of the handicapped children who pulled in some 75 pounds of fish Saturday in the Fishing Derby sponsored by the Northville Kiwanis Club. Blue gills and bass were the main catches. "The blue gills were among the largest I've ever seen," said Kiwanis President C. Thomas Sechler, who together with other Kiwanis members supervised the fishing and later hosted the children at a Hines Parkway picnic. The "secret" fishing hole is located in Northville Township said Kiwanians, who declined to divulge any more specifics. Above the children have all they can do to lift their string of fish, while at the right Kiwanian Stuart Campbell pins a ribbon on one of the winning anglers.

Innsbrook gets new management

Levitt Multi Housing, which owns Innsbrook Apartments, has hired a new management company to run the complex behind Northville Plaza off Seven Mile Road.

The complex was previously managed by Holtzman and Silverman, a Southfield firm. It has been rumored that Levitt Multi Housing was attempting to sell the complex, which has been delinquent in taxes for the past two years.

Manager Marion Irwin said the new company, J. T. Burns Management Company of Albany, N.Y., took over on September 1.

In May this year the company paid its delinquent 1976 taxes of $114,552.27, but it still owes $120,163.40 for 1977. The company will also have to pay a four percent late penalty and a 3 percent additional penalty for each month of delinquency.

Innsbrook Apartments' former manager, Charles Sena, recently pleaded guilty in Wayne County Circuit Court to an embezzlement charge and was sentenced to five years probation. Law enforcement officials became involved in the case on March 14 when Sena left typewritten, unsigned suicide notes to his wife, son and boss before fleeing to Florida. His wife persuaded her husband to return to Michigan.

Sena said he took nearly $20,000 from 11 cash-paying tenants over an 11-month period and then squandered most of the money at Northville Downs.

Among its other problems, the complex had two fires in its laundry area this year. At 11:42 p.m. May 29 the Northville Township Fire Department quickly confined a fire to a plastic trash barrel, where someone had apparently thrown a burning cigarette. The trash barrel melted, and some floor tiles were ruined.

Shortly after midnight June 22 firemen fought around 20 minutes to control a fire in the laundry's storage room. Apparently started by rubbish and boxes stored too close to a large hot water tank, the fire burst through the ceiling but was confined to the storage room.

Hearing set on Apple Ridge sub

A public hearing for the preliminary review of site plans for the proposed Apple Ridge subdivision on the former McDonald farm property on West Eight Mile has been set for October 3 by Northville city planners.

At its September 5 meeting the planning commission informally discussed plans for the 92-acre subdivision of single family homes for which approval is being sought under the city's Planned Unit Development provision.

Chairman C. Thomas Wheaton pointed out that this is the first large subdivision development in the city in eight years and that the city ordinance since has been rewritten and there now also is a state ordinance.

Under PUD, he explained for newer members of the commission, there is a reduction in allowable lot size as the plan incorporates open, green space to bring the overall size within ordinance requirements. Stewart Kissinger, who was appointed to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of John Genitti, was attending his first meeting.

At the commission's two July meetings members had viewed plans for the new subdivision presented by Ernest Fournier, representing Four Real Estate Investors, Incorporated, and their planner, Roy J. Russell.

At the July 25 meeting a preliminary approval tentatively was given by the planners for the subdivision of about 226 lots with more than 22 acres of green space.

Fournier and Russell who attended last week's meeting stated that road changes and grade cuts would be made in plans to be submitted at the public hearing. They offered to attend the next meeting, September 19, for further discussion of their proposed subdivision.

Planner Charles Freydl, supported by Wheaton, asked the developers if they would not incorporate the two excepted lots at the easterly and westerly corners of the subdivision on Eight Mile.

One now has a home on the property, but the other previously also had been a concern of the commission. About three-quarters of an acre, lot is isolated from the rest of the planned subdivision.

Russell explained that the contour of the land made it impossible to include the properties in the subdivision and that their only access was from Eight Mile.

James Cutler agreed with the other planners that the property later could well come before the commission with a request to rezone for commercial development.

"It would be good for a bank or funeral home site," he observed. Wheaton warned the developers that he personally would oppose any such request.

The planned subdivision incorporates five cul-de-sacs on winding roads with lots ranging upward from a minimum width of 80 feet and minimum depth of 120 feet. At the July 25 meeting some residents of adjacent Lexington Commons expressed disappointment in the sizes of the lots.

On the north side of Eight Mile it directly abuts Lexington Commons and will have a connector road in Springfield Drive. Other entrance will be off Eight Mile. The west side of the development area abuts a vacant strip of property between Apple Ridge and Northville Estates subdivision.

City Manager Steven Walters, who was present at the meeting last week, stated that the public hearing was being held before planners will be asked to make a "commitment to the design concept" of the subdivision.

Developers then would seek soil erosion approval permits and other needed approvals.

A discussion and review of preliminary plat for "Ole Village Subdivision" at the north end of the Rogers was delayed until the next meeting at the request of the developer, Denis Roux.

Northville choir: 'Song sung blue'

If the Northville High School choir could sing, its first choice might be "Song Sung Blue."

But it can't sing. This is not intended to be a comment on the vocal group's ability. Rather, it is a statement of fact since there will not be a choir at the high school this semester.

If there were, former choir members say there is easily enough interest to match the 40 or so students who took the course last year under the instruction of band director Bob Williams.

But Williams, whose specialty is instrumental not vocal music, is concentrating on band classes this year and the school has not hired a replacement.

This is a somewhat touchy predicament for school officials who promised this summer that passage of a 2.6-mill increase would insure the duplication of last year's program.

The millage passed, but school officials freely concede that there was no effort to seek a choir teacher among the new instructors hired this year.

"There has been no commitment for a vocal music program for at least three years," explained Director of Personnel Burton Knighton.

He noted that there is no junior high school choir and that most agree that a feeder system at that level is necessary for a sound vocal music program in the high school.

The reason that choir was offered last year, he said, was because of the willingness and availability of Williams and the interest in choir of new Principal George Aune.

Aune said last week that he has been trying to devise a system where a choir teacher would travel to several of the school district's buildings each day.

Such a plan is unwieldy, he said, but is has been done in other subject areas, notably foreign languages.

He said he is well aware that the interest exists among students and he is still hoping to start a class for next semester.

The effort may somewhat appease but not fully satisfy former choir members.

In a letter to the editor last week, a member of last year's choir criticized the school for not interviewing vocal music teacher candidates.

"The board of education said it doesn't have the money, but Northville High School received the same amount of money as last year. Shouldn't we receive the same classes?" the letter asked.

Contacted last week, the writer of the letter said she is a junior who has been singing for 11½ years.

"I know I could find a teacher for them," she said in a phone interview. "But they don't care about us. Everybody gets into sports. We could go from school to school and sing and have competition."

She said it would be difficult, but not impossible, to start a class this fall because students would have to drop a class to alter their schedules.

"I would drop one of mine if necessary," she said.

Since there was no choir offered, incoming sophomores were not able to show their interest, but she said she has talked to many who would like to sing.

She planned to circulate a petition this week to demonstrate how many students wish to take a choir class.

Kiwanis funds aid youths

Fine monies and donations by the Northville Kiwanis Club to the Kiwanis of Michigan Foundation has indirectly aided four more Northville-Nowi area children.

According to C. Thomas Sechler, president of the Northville

Club, Foundation contributions by the club help support the activities of the C. S. Mott Children's Hospital in Ann Arbor.

And recently the club was notified, he said, that its contributions assisted in the care and treatment of these four children at Mott: Jessica Hohan, Gary Newcombe, and Anne Kniesel of Northville and Jill Mahle. All four children were recent patients at the hospital.

"We're proud of our club's participation in this program and, of course, we're especially delighted that it has benefited local area youngsters."

Northville to move cautiously toward sex education

Carlee Stewner went to school last week and was amazed by what she learned. The Cooke Junior High School teacher went to a sex education seminar.

"I thought I was pretty hip, you know, but they were discussing the latest information about reproduction and some of it really surprised me," she said.

If all goes as planned, the information that Ms. Stewner absorbed will be passed on to Northville students who take part in optional health education classes which may begin at all grade levels next year.

School officials carefully stress that it is "health" not "sex" education and that human reproduction is only part of the course which would also include hygiene, self-care, nutrition and the like.

But sex, and possibly birth control, is the operative word since this is the first year that contraception can be taught in Michigan schools.

Some schools are starting this fall but Northville has still to appoint a planning committee of educators, parents and other members of the community who will draw up the blueprint for the health course.

It is this committee, which will be formed in October, that will decide which topics — including birth control — will be taught.

By attracting "key parents in the community" — such as members of PTA's, parent action committees and the curriculum council — as well as citizens without children to the committee, Director of Instruction Nancy Soper is hoping to dispell rumors that often spark controversy when sex education is proposed.

"It is a very emotional type of thing and one little bit of miscommunication can totally destroy the program," she said.

"Every school district that I am familiar with that has developed a health education class has taken a year to a year-and-a-half to develop the curriculum."

It is vital, she said, that the community understand that the course contents must be reviewed and approved by the school board, that parents will be advised of teaching methods and that the course is optional for all students.

"No student will be isolated" for not taking the class, she added. "It would be treated like an elective at the secondary level. In the elementary grades, it would be just like band when some students leave the room and some don't."

There is virtually no formal sex education in the Northville system and very little in the health area, said Mrs. Soper.

The high school has a health class that meets North Central requirements but is less comprehensive than the one the planning committee will likely recommend.

Animal reproduction is studied in junior high school biology class and there is a three-hour night presentation offered to fifth and sixth grade girls and their mothers each spring.

The latter class is well received, but "we really need a K-12 health curriculum," said Mrs. Soper. "We need to provide the opportunity for students to participate in that type of class."

She gets strong support for that statement from Ms. Stewner who last week attended a three-day seminar in Dearborn sponsored by the Wayne County Intermediate School District.

Titled "Health: Reproduction," the in-service topics ranged from the psychological sexual development of humans to biology to methods of teaching about contraceptives.

The overriding theme, she said was "laden with values — responsibility to your partner, to yourself and to the unborn child."

She said the instructors at the seminar were aware that there is frequent community resistance to such classes, but she said the philosophy was to "give the kids the facts, let them know and explore their values."

Statistics showed that with or without health classes, students were experimenting with sex at early ages, she said.

"They said there was a VD epidemic among females between the ages of 13 and 19."

I always like to keep a few bottles of wine around the house just in case. Just in case I feel like drinking some, or just in case some friends drop over. Just in case I or my family is in the mood for some dish cooked with wine, or want a little wine with dessert. Just in case we feel like going on a spur of the moment picnic and already have the bread and cheese. Just in case I really need to relax a little after a hard day. As I said, I like to keep a few bottles of wine around the house, just in case.

Septemberfest: food, fun, beer

"Lots of food, music, dancing and, of course, beer are coming your way," promises Greg Dawson in announcing the second annual Septemberfest sponsored by the Northville Jaycees.

The big event will be held on two consecutive nights — Friday and Saturday, September 22 and 23 — in the parking lot of Northville Plaza on Seven Mile Road, said Dawson, who is chairman of the Septemberfest for the Jaycees.

"Jaycees already are hard at work making arrangements for this Septemberfest," said Dawson, who emphasized that "this year we're pulling out all the stops to make sure it comes off smoothly."

Arrangements for two bands featuring German music already have been made. The bands are the Klanenik Brothers and the Tune Mixers, both of which are composed of accomplished musicians who will be wearing authentic costumes.

All of the fun and food will be under a giant tent.

In addition to but in conjunction with the Septemberfest, a flea market will be held at the same location Saturday morning, September 22, according to the chairman.

Northville Jaycees are a non-profit organization, explained Dawson, "and this event, like others sponsored by the chapter, is our way of raising monies for the various programs provided the community throughout the year."

Anyone who wishes to assist in this project or who may have a suggestion to enhance the Septemberfest is asked to call Dawson, between 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays at 341-3800.

Committee taste-tests International Festival menu

An honest-to-goodness preview taste Thursday of the upcoming International Festival drew lip-smacking plaudits.

"There's no doubt about it, this second annual festival is going to be a hit," agreed officers and committee members of the Northville Chamber of Commerce who sampled some of the ethnic food to be served up at the three-day extravaganza.

They were treated to a surprise "show-and-tell" report by Paul Folino, chairman of the goods committee.

His report easily was the hit of the planning session for the festival held at the city hall, especially for those who arrived before supper.

The planned menu was quickly approved.

Besides Polish sausage sandwiches, served up with sauerkraut, the menu will feature a sit-down plate meal of cabbage rolls, boiled potato, green beans and dessert.

There'll also be other delicacies, as well as salads, breads, and foods for those who prefer American favorites.

The plate meal will sell for $2.75, it was agreed.

The festival will be held at Northville Downs Friday, Saturday and Sunday, October 6-8.

Officials have set the admission prices at $1.50 for adults, 75 cents for children. Monies raised from the festival will be used by the chamber for community betterment projects.

Although the festival is still four weeks off, arrangements already have been firmed up for performances in music and dance throughout much of the three-day event, reports Ann Roy, chamber president and chairman of the festival.

Here's a sample of that entertainment:

Friday — Elaine School of Dance, American; Highland Dancers and Bill Weaver on bagpipe, Scotch; Northville Gong Show hosted by Larry Santos, American; Leo Tallieu Dance Band, American; and Finlandia Chorus, Finnish.

Saturday — Spectrum Rock Group, American; Disco Fever, disco party; Larry Santos, star of Hot Fudge Show, American; June Butler and her dancers, Irish; the Women's Alliance Council Dancers, Polish; Estonian Dancers, Estonia; Northwest School of Dance, first place winners of the North American Pageantry, black; Island Dancers, Hawaii; Cuban Society of Detroit, Latin; Sarisan Dance Group and the Oakland Folk Dancers, Slavic; The Kariatides, Greek; Horst Buller Band, German and ethnic variety; and Sorina the Belly Dancer, Middle East.

Sunday — Calouste Gulbenkian Dancers, Armenian; Ralph Mannisto, accordion artist, ethnic variety; Hungarian Dancers, Hungary; Cass Weir, recording star, mandolin virtuoso; Swedish Chorus, Sweden; Hoi-jakat Dancers, Finnish; Sorina the Belly Dancer; and Mabel Arvo, Novi soloist.

WJR's popular show host Ted Strasser, a resident of Northville, reports more than eight celebrities will make guest appearances during the festival. Some of them will serve as hosts during the entertainment spots. Among them are Bob Ufer, the colorful voice of the U-M football team; Jim Fitzgerald, columnist for The Detroit Free Press; and Mark Avery, WJR radio show host.

One of the highlights of the festival this year will be a "Gong Show" hosted by Larry Santos.

Anyone with any talent of any sort who is interested in performing on the Gong Show is asked to contact show emcee Santos at 349-8465. The show will take place from 6 to 7 p.m. on the first night of the festival — Friday, October 6.

Chamber Executive Essie Nirider, who is taking reservations for booths at the show, emphasizes that "one of the purposes of the International Festival is to provide this area with an Old World Market, bringing to Northville many of the old world arts and crafts that are handed down from generation to generation."

Folino, State Farm Insurance, food chairman. Standing l to r are: Tom Cramer, security committee; Ted Strasser, host of WJR's Patterns in Music, entertainment; Stanley Johnston, realtor, his wife Frances, former mayor A. M. Allen, ticket and sign committees; John Stilson, Jaycee president, entertainment committee; Nick Serkaian, host of WMZK's Station of Nations program, entertainment; Ralph Mannisto, accordion teacher, entertainment; Kay Keegan and her husband, Ed, booth committee. Not shown but serving on committees are Edie Cole, tickets; Margaret Zayti, chairman of facilities; John Steimel, chairman of volunteers; and Mike Preville, chairman of table and chair arrangements.

Benefit concert pulls 800 fans

More than 800 folk and blue grass musicians settled into Northville High School's football field Sunday for a memorable afternoon of sun, Frisbees and beautiful music.

The occasion was the annual and steadily growing benefit concert to raise funds to battle Huntington's Disease.

Partly because of the weather — it was warm and sunny Sunday compared to the dreary cold and rainy day of a year ago — but mostly because of the presence of nationally known singer Josh White Jr., this year's event was the most successful ever.

The man behind the concert, Northville music store owner Tom Rice whose sister died from the disease, had hoped for as many as 3,000 people, but he said he wasn't disappointed with the turnout.

"The music was great and the people were entertained," he explained. "I'm an eternal optimist. Yeah, I'm satisfied."

Moments earlier, after light dust-settling rain had cleansed and partially cooled the muggy air, Rice stood before a laid-back crowd and called the day a "mini-Woodstock."

Although a few opted for the bleachers, most took their pop and beer-filled coolers to the football field where they spread blankets, tossed Frisbees, talked and listened to the music.

Several groups, ranging from individual folk singers to foot-stomping blue grass bands, performed for free.

But the man most came to see was White, a frequent performer in Michigan who finished a stint at the Raven Sunday night.

White offered his services because of his and his father's friendship with folksinger Woody Guthrie, who died from Huntington's Disease, and Woody's widow, Marjorie, who is the founder of the national Committee to Combat Huntington's Disease.

Flashing his bright, infectious smile, the bearded, bald ("God only made a few perfect heads, the rest he covered with hair") singer had his audience clapping hands, snapping fingers and singing along for nearly an hour.

Between songs written by Gordon Lightfoot and Cole Porter, he talked about the cause, joked with the crowd and complimented several youngsters who were picking up bottles and cans most of the day.

Later, he said the benefit concert could have a good future.

"It takes a while to get started," he said. "You always want more. If you had a million, you want a million and one. It's a great cause."

Rice, who owns The Gittfiddler on Center Street in Northville, said he expects an even bigger and better concert next year.

White, for one has said he would be back.

As he said in one of his arrangements which he included in Sunday's performance as a sing-along:

"Take it easy, my friend, until we meet again."

It was a relaxing way to spend a Sunday afternoon

Headliner Josh White, Jr., had grace, charm, talent. . . .

. . . . and his music had the crowd clappin', snappin' and tappin'

Public absent as officials study master plan

Northville Township's master plan will be under scrutiny the next several months as the board of trustees and planning commission evaluate possible changes to update the plan which was completed in 1974.

Here are some questions township officials will tackle:

- Should the master plan comply with federal guidelines which ask for provisions for low income housing and mobile home zoning? If so, should such zoning be scattered through the township or located in only one or a few spots?

- Or should the township ignore federal guidelines, lose its federal subsidies and pay its own way?

- Should the township consider marginal access drives that would allow commercial development on major road lots without having curb cuts to create traffic problems?

- Would such drives allow commercial development that would enhance the township while also continuing to prohibit strip zoning?

- Should the township remain basically zoned R-2, or should the board and commissioners give in to local pressure groups who've protested that residents want larger lots on land being developed near their subdivisions?

These topics were discussed at last Wednesday's joint meeting between the township board of trustees and planning commission in the first of several meetings to make decisions for the township's future development.

The township received a $10,000 grant earmarked for updating the master plan from the Wayne County Community Block Grant Program. Township officials expressed general satisfaction with the present master plan, but agreed some provisions needed strengthening.

The board and commission asked township planning consultant George Vilican to compile a draft of planning goals and objectives for them to consider at their next joint meeting.

Vilican said establishing goals and objectives — policies that have the support of the political body — should be the first priority.

"If you develop stringent standards, you must face the possibility of being in court regularly," he said. "You must be able to defend and win with regularity."

Vilican pointed out that Whipple Estate and Taft Colony residents, who protested development of North Beacon Woods, wanted a subdivision next to theirs that looked like their own.

"There's no way with sewer, water and paved streets that you can have it," he said, adding that the idea of quality housing and lot size going hand-in-hand is a misnomer. "Township standards have to reflect the economy of the time."

Complimenting the existing zoning ordinance, Supervisor Wilson Grier said, "The development in the township is as good as there is in southeastern Michigan." He suggested that the ordinance should be reprinted, incorporating amendments and changes, such as the landscaping ordinance.

Vilican suggested a loose-leaf publication in which amendments could be readily added in the future.

Township Engineer William Mosher said certain Ordinances could be worded differently to enforce policy effectively without changing the intent.

Both Grier and township clerk Clarice Sass pointed out the township's heavy reliance on federal funds. Federal guidelines require zoning for low income housing and mobile home zoning for governmental units to continue receiving funds.

"After the third year there will be no more CETA money unless the township provides these things," Vilican said. The township receives $100,000 annually from the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

Mrs. Sass said that 50 percent of the township's income came from federal money.

Grier said, "We can pay our own way — we've got that choice." He pointed out that the City of Livonia stepped out of federal programs of more than $1 million.

Commissioners and trustees discussed the dilemma of guaranteeing federal subsidies and at the same time responding to citizen's pressure for larger lots.

"We took a stand before saying the acre lot was gone," said Commissioner Bernard Baldwin, referring to the master plan that calls mainly for R-2 zoning.

Commissioner William Zapke said the township needed a reaffirmation of policy, pointing out that circulating petitions was becoming a popular pastime of dissatisfied township citizens.

"No matter how much the township reaffirms its policy," Grier said, "certain elements in the community are going to object."

Trustee Dr. John Swienkowski said, "The people are acting on an emotional basis, and if we do what they ask, we'll destroy the master plan and lose all control." He said even though deviations from the master plan and zoning ordinance would be fought successfully in court, "we are the villains in this."

Commissioner Marvin Gans said the planning commission had been consistent in its actions. "People fail to realize this," he said. "They think each case should be treated individually," he said it was tough to hold the line, but the township had to have consistency.

Baldwin suggested the board and commission needed to take a look at commercial zoning, perhaps establishing a policy for coming lots on major roads.

Vilican suggested the possibility of having businesses put money in escrow for marginal drives for such commercial zoning.

Besides the press, there was only one person in the audience at Wednesday's meeting. Richard Henningsen, treasurer, and Mark Lysinger, member of both the board and planning commission, were absent.

School opening starts smoothly

Northville school officials are hailing the opening week of classes as one of the smoothest starts in recent times.

The only problem is that there may not be enough students enjoying the relatively trouble-free sailing.

First-week head counts indicate that Northville will fall below the predicted 4,133 students that budget-makers hoped would grace the classrooms by the all-important Fourth Friday count on September 29.

Preliminary figures indicate that we will not reach our projected enrollment figure," said new Superintendent Lawrence Nichols.

That figure, established last spring by the administration of then-Superintendent Raymond Spear, was used to estimate revenues upon which the school board based its millage request in June.

The state school-aid formula provides school districts with state funds in direct proportion to the number of students enrolled on the fourth Friday of school, also known as the D-Day count.

For a district such as Northville, each student above or below the projected figure alters revenues by about $1,400.

Last year, the Fourth Friday count fell about 50 students below the enrollment figure used when the budget was prepared. As a result, the school board had to make about $70,000 in cuts a month into the school year.

This year's projection of 4,133 represents a decline of 86 students from last year's enrollment but still may be high, according to Nichols' reading of the first-week attendance.

Nichols did not estimate how far the projection may be off.

Otherwise, the word from various administrators after nearly a week of school was mostly positive.

The biggest fly in the ointment apparently was a lack of books in several ninth grade classes. Director of Instruction Nancy Soper blamed the absence on unfilled back orders with publishing companies, books that couldn't be ordered until after the millage passed in June, and books that weren't ordered until August.

Except for that, she said principals had been very positive about the first week of school, calling it one of the best they can remember.

Director of Personnel Burton Knighton said that all but one of the equivalent of 199 teaching positions were filled by permanent employees by the first day of school.

The lone exception — a laid off teacher who was recalled according to contract specifications but who was out of town — was on the job Monday morning, he said.

Michael Janchick, administrative assistant for operations, said there were relatively few problems in implementing the transportation schedule.

Nichols said he was pleased with the entire operation.

"I feel that this was a very smooth opening... (which) is a great compliment to both the administrative staff and the teaching staff, to the hard work that was done over the summer and to the attitude of the staff upon returning to school," he said.

He said it was a "good indication" of the year to come.

Boosters push for soccer team

The Northville school board is kicking around a proposal to begin interscholastic soccer teams for high school boys and girls this year.

Monday night, a contingent of soccer boosters and participants presented the board with proposal to begin a 25-member boys team this fall and a similar size girls' squad in the spring.

They said it would cost no more than $3,000 and possibly less, that youngsters from the highly successful recreation teams would supply the participants, and that the older Northville youngsters needed stronger competition.

Most of the home contests on the proposed 14-game schedule could be played at Schoolcraft College, but the boosters said other soccer-playing schools needed commitments soon to reserve a place on their schedule.

"We've got the boys, we've got the equipment, we've got everything we need except the blessing of the board," said James Nowka, a township trustee who is both a girls' team soccer coach and a member of the recreation commission.

The school board delayed making a decision until it receives a report from newly-appointed athletic director Ralph Redmond. Formal action might be taken at a meeting Monday night.

Several observers, while not objecting to soccer nor denying its popularity, said there were reasons why the request should be denied.

First, they noted, there are many extracurricular activities — such as debate and choir — that have been cut in the past because of money problems and should be reinstated before adding new activities.

Second, soccer fans are not the only people seeking expansion of the sports program. There is and has been lobbying for teams in skiing, hockey and boys' gymnastics.

Third, they say requests for some activities in recent years have been denied because there were no provisions for them in the teachers' contract. The contract hasn't changed since then, they say.

Finally, some have questioned the wisdom of adding new sports when some advanced classes are not offered because of insufficient funds.

"We get an increase in millage and some one comes up with a new sports program," said Florence Hinman who was in the audience during Monday's board meeting.

"I have no objection to kids having sports. But I do object when they take precedence over academics."

property on the opposite side of the school, he said.

Township officials say the developers have been cooperative about complaints that pured into Northville Township Hall last week concerning the ground clearing started September 1 on the 83.6-acre site adjacent to Whipple Estates and Taft Colony, where residents have strongly objected to the subdivision.

"We've received mostly the dust complaint," said deputy township clerk Margaret Tegge. "People are disturbed about their homes getting dusty."

Township clerk Clarice Sass said, "Mr. Spagnoli is doing all he can to try to cooperate. He took out a permit Thursday for water so he could water the area to keep the dust down. There's going to be disruption in any construction site, but he's doing everything he possibly can to handle complaints and see if he can resolve them."

Bill Spagnoli said the size of their water tanker had caused problems. "Because of the largness of the machine, some areas where water was available, we couldn't get the machine into," he said. he said they contacted the City of Northville, which wasn't able to accommodate their tanker, but that the township had designated an area for them to obtain water.

Angry homeowners contacted the air pollution control division of the Wayne County Health Department, and an inspector was sent to the site.

"We contacted the contractor, and he will spray water as needed to keep the dust down," said Clifford Andrus of the air pollution control division. But residents still contended that the tanker was not being used.

The health department's soil erosion control office was also contacted by residents protesting the stripping of trees. When Spagnoli was given a temporary go-ahead for selective clearing of the land, there was a verbal understanding that he would maintain a 150-foot buffer to adjacent subdivisions.

However, once a soil erosion control permit is issued, a developer can do any grading specified on the plans, Robert Barber, soil erosion control officer, explained. Spagnoli's permit was issued Thursday.

Barber said the plans call for two storm water retention ponds. His department will check weekly to see how the site is progressing.

"It's not a requirement on our part that he leave the trees in," Barber said, "but the understanding is that where they can, they'll leave all the trees possible along the area that abuts Whipple and Ross."

The development's progress has not deterred protesters who recently thought they'd won a victory in the dispute when the township board backed Trustee Dr. John Swienkowski in supporting their petition and asking the developer the reasons for not changing the green space.

The petition, signed by 299 persons, said the site plan violated the intent of the open space requirements of the zoning ordinance because the proposed green area on the southwest corner of the site is swampy land and not centrally located.

"I feel now the board of trustees simply placated us," said Denise Dobeck, one of the spearheaders of the petition drive. She said the fight against the subdivision is not over.

"We have hired an attorney, and we have several irons in the fire," she said. "They've been moving earth without any concern for what it's doing to the environment. It's a little late for those trees, but it's not too late for lot sizes."

Anger over the subdivision land development boiled over into an adjacent section of the City of Northville.

William Lineman, 20657 Lexington Court in the city's adjacent Lexington Commons subdivision, said "dust, dirt, and noise" had become intolerable by last week.

Dust and grime covered his backyard swimming pool and the "inside of our house is a mess," all because of the earthmoving going on in Beacon Woods, he claimed.

What's more, Lineman charge that a bulldozer damaged his fence at the rear of his property and destroyed grapevines — matters that he has taken up with his attorney.

"I cannot believe there is no way to protect neighbors against this kind of nuisance and health hazard," said Lineman, who said earthmoving was being carried on from before 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. "The noise is terrible and what they are doing to the vegetation is worse."

About 50 concerned citizens from Whipple Estates, Taft Colony and Lexington Commons met Thursday night to join forces against the developers.

"We have home values to protect and what were beautiful lots to protect," Lineman said. "Spagnoli is, in effect, telling us, 'It's my property, and I'll do what I want to with it.' We say there should be some guidelines and he should work within them."

He said the group has financing from many people willing to contribute to the cause. "We want to try to preserve a little bit of what has taken years to grow."

Bill Spagnoli said, "I think it's going to be one of the nicest subdivisions in all western Wayne County. All of the lots are a minimum of 100 feet, and we didn't go in there trying to build some cheapie. When we get it all in, maybe even the 10 or 15 people over there who don't want anyone else to move into Northville might even be appreciative of the subdivision."

Spagnoli said about $1,000 worth of stakes had been pulled up and destroyed on the property.

"Aside from that, it cost the contractor a great deal of money because he had a couple million dollars worth of equipment sitting there, along with men to operate it, and they weren't able to get in a day's work."

He said the contractor had hired a security guard.

Although Spagnoli said he hopes building can begin yet this year, roads and sewers cannot be constructed until the engineering plans are approved by the township board. The plans will not be ready for the September 14 board meeting.

Township engineer William Mosher said he has reviewed an outline of what the developers propose to do and found it in accordance with all township requirements.

Of Spagnoli and the controversy, North Beacon Woods has caused Mosher said, "We've never had anybody more amenable and more willing to follow the letter of the ordinance and the laws, but he wasn't willing to throw away money for the sentimental wishes of the people living to the south. When the subdivision is developed, those people will not find it bothering them as much as they think."

Council rejects bids

him that preliminary stops for the library project should be started before the November election.

Thus, in rejecting the bids for the city hall addition Monday, council also authorized the city manager to prepare specifications for bidding the project out in three separate parts — bidding on the library, police and fire department additions separately.

Paperwork for request for approval by the Michigan Municipal Finance Commission of the project also was authorized.

Council emphasized that the library project is not dead, that the city has a "moral responsibility to provide a new library" in wake of council's earlier commitment to the people of both the city and township.

As things stand now, council probably will bid out the three-way project sometime next winter when, it hopes, the construction market will be more conducive to less costly bidding.

According to the architect for the addition, Merritt Gordon R. Merritt, 15 contractors were personally encouraged to bid on the project last month but only three did so.

"It was just a bad (construction) market time," commented Mike Proctor of the architectural firm.

Nevertheless, Proctor cautioned council that there is "a calculated risk" in waiting until a later date in hopes of attracting more and less costly bids. Costs, he suggested, might be even greater than represented by the bids already received.

The city manager said the bids were simply out of line with the project budget, with costs about $100,000 greater than the suggested budget of $370,000.

Analysis of the bids, according to the architect, indicate that the library-city offices represent a cost of $305,125, the police department addition and improvements $114,800, and the fire department addition $51,200.

As originally conceived, the plan was to build only the library — an addition to the city hall. But in view of additional space needs in the city hall, council concluded that it probably would be financially advantageous to construct other additions at this time rather than wait for a later time.

Now, however, in the wake of the high bids council appears ready to dump the police and fire hall additions if their costs jeopardize the library plan.

By having separate bids on these three sections of the plan, council hopes to be in a better position to decide whether or not to proceed with non-library additions.

Walters stressed Monday that architectural plans for the police and fire department additions are not wasted money since architectural plans can be used later should these two projects be postponed. For example, he pointed out that the mechanical plans for the library would complement the fire and police additions whenever they occur.

Township faces another suit mendation, Supervisor Wilson Grier said.

This is the second lawsuit pending for the board, and the planning commission, who were sued last month by Highland Lakes Shopping Center.

The $2 million lawsuit charges that the planning commission's failure to approve a site plan and issue construction permits for the third phase of the shopping center's development has resulted in lost profits.

Commissioners approved the proposed final site plan on condition that an additional water main loop be required and a curb cut eliminated.

After commissioners met Tuesday morning with township attorney Donald C. Morgan, Chairman William Bohan said, "After reviewing the facts surrounding the Highland Lakes Shopping Center, we believe the lawsuit filed against us is defensible.

"The planning commission continues to believe that it acted in good faith to protect the health and safety of township residents and properly discharged its duties of site plan review. Concurrently, we believe the judgement of $2 million requested in the suit is unjustified, unwarranted and without substantiation."

A hearing is scheduled before Judge H. J. Dingeman at 2 p.m. tomorrow.

Threat of still another lawsuit looms for the township. Residents of Whipple Estates, Taft Colony and Lexington Commons — who have objected to North Beacon Woods — recently hired an attorney and have said they will continue to protest the location of the subdivision's open space and the size of the subdivision's lots.

Commissioners and board members repeatedly have contended that the site plan does conform to the ordinance.

How does one adjust to widowhood?

There are many excellent texts and reference books relating to the adjustments which surviving widows and widowers must make. Most are not overly technical and may help you understand better the transitional stages of widowhood. These books help explain how to facilitate healthy mental and physical adjustments after the loss of a loved one

Here are just a few of them:

Parents Without Partners—J. Egleson
Explaining Death to Children—E. Grollman
For the Living—Edgar Jackson
When Death Takes a Father—G. Koolman

Welcome back, Kotters

Northville school board Secretary Karen Wilkinson (left) did some of the pouring Friday for the several hundred school teachers who were guests at the board's welcome back party at Northville Downs. This is the second year that board members have given time and money to host the gathering of both the K-12 and special education staffs. Other contributors from the community to the party were Northville Downs, Good Time Party Store, Stone's Unfinished Furniture, Schrader's Home Furnishings, Manufacturer's Bank, Long's Plumbing Company, Belanger Incorporated, Anger Manufacturing Company and the Northville Record.

In and out of court

County organization under the gun

By TIM RICHARD

On paper, it looks like a court challenge to Oakland County Executive Daniel T. Murphy.

Beyond the lawyer's pleadings, however, there are far different visions of what government should be like in an urbanized county.

Three conservative Republican politicians and one bipartisan group, the county road commission, are asking Circuit Judge Steven Andrews to eliminate Murphy's job. Their request:

"That this court enter a declaratory judgment ordering that the office of Oakland County Executive is unconstitutional and unlawful, order that defendant Murphy to cease exercising any of the functions of said office."

The suit would do more, however, than eliminate Murphy's office. It would change the thrust of government in Oakland County and southeast Michigan.

If successful, it would allow Oakland to withdraw from the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority and probably wreck the seven-county agency; it would halt the efforts of Murphy and his supporters to consolidate three public works agencies under one roof; and it could lead to establishment of a "bulk appropriation" process in which a department head would get one lump sum from the county budget to spend as he pleases.

The plaintiffs are Commissioner Henry W. Hoot (R-Bloomfield Township); Drain Commissioner George W. Kuhn; Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson; and a 2-1 majority of the road commission, an appointed body which functions relatively independently of general county government.

Personal politics is involved, too. Murphy and some moderate Republicans put up a candidate against Hoot in the August 8 primary. Kuhn was a state senator until he was defeated in the 1970 GOP primary by Carl Pursell, who was to be chief sponsor of the county executive law. Patterson is generally outside the mainstream of Republican politics and took a 4-1 drubbing from U.S. Senator Robert Griffin in the August 8 primary after other candidates dropped out.

What the four are arguing is that the 1963 Michigan constitution contemplates only two forms of county government.

One is the traditional form of a host of independent officials. The other is charter form with an elected charter commission drafting changes.

They argue that Pursell's 1973 bill is flawed because it allowed voters to create the county executive directly, without going through the channels of a charter commission.

Murphy's attorneys haven't filed a response yet. But when they do, they are likely to rely on the final section of the local government article in the constitution which tells courts to give a liberal or broad construction to statutes concerning the powers of local governments.

Hoot's complaint is that Murphy vetoed a board of commissioners resolution withdrawing Oakland County for SEMTA. The vote was 18-8.

Actually, Oakland politicians were using the withdrawal as a plot to draw SEMTA's attention to their problems. Few were serious about actually quitting SEMTA. Hoot was in the latter group.

Withdrawing county of one million population from an agency which serves about three million would effectively wreck SEMTA. Any rapid transit funding from Washington for metropolitan Detroit would likely fall through.

Hoot indicated his feelings about regionalism when he was a fill-in delegate to the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments. He voted with a hard-core minority from Washtenaw County to give SEMCOG virtually no role in water quality management.

Murphy, on the other hand, has taken a conciliatory attitude toward the City of Detroit and a willingness to deal with SEMTA.

Three different agencies have some public works authority within Oakland — the drain commissioner, under the independently elected Kuhn; the department of public works, under Murphy; and the road commission, whose members are appointed by the county board of commissioners but whose funding is almost entirely from the state.

In 1976 a Democratic-controlled board of commissioners voted to take DPW away from the executive and give it to Kuhn, who would become a public works commissioner. Murphy vetoed the resolution.

Murphy also vetoed four project engineer manager posts in Kuhn's office.

The road commission has sought money from the county general fund. It approached — with some success — several commissioners with a plan for a five-year package. The road commission offered to work with the board of commissioners over which projects would be undertaken in return for the general fund money.

Murphy put a halt to it. He argued the county can't predict what financial circumstances it might be in five years from now.

A friend of Murphy's pointed out that the road commission's complaint failed to charge Murphy with any wrongdoing. Rather, it asks the court to restrain Murphy from vetoing any future actions of the board of commissioners relating to the road commission.

What is unsaid in the suit is that Murphy is seeking state laws to abolish the road commission.

The frank plan of the "unified county government" people, one of whom is Murphy, is to unify all operations under one executive and all policy-making under the elected board of commissioners.

But if there were no county executive, as the lawsuit seeks plaintiffs wish, there would be a separate public works commissioner and a separate road commission, each free to lobby and deal with the board of commissioners without interference from an overall chief like Murphy.

Patterson's argument is a little different.

The prosecutor promoted 27 of his 40 assistants and granted them substantial pay raises. When the paperwork went to the personnel department, under Murphy's control, the executive blocked the changes as being out of line with general county policies.

Patterson is asking the court to order Murphy to approve the list of promotions.

A Murphy aide refers to Patterson's budgeting idea as the "block appropriation" theory. Put simply, a department seeks a single sum of money and asks freedom to allocate it any way he wants.

Oakland's circuit judges, for example, have asked for such a block appropriation, but the board and Murphy have refused to go along.

A Murphy aide said another result of the suit, if successful, would be poorer control of county spending and less than uniform policies. "Outside the county executive," he said, "department heads would be able to lobby the board to do their bidding. With an executive, they have to lobby in two places."

At Schoolcraft

Foundation dance set

The Schoolcraft College Foundation will hold its annual fall dinner-dance on September 23.

Dinner will be served from 7 to 9 p.m. and dancing is planned from 8 to midnight in the Waterman Campus Center.

This year's menu consists of salad and assorted relishes on each table, roast sirloin of beef flambe, sauce bordelaise, Parisian potatoes, stuffed zucchini, hot French bread, a table torte for dessert, coffee, tea or milk. There will be a beer and wine cash bar.

Donations are $15 each with eight persons seated per table. Proceeds are designated for special projects of the Schoolcraft Foundation.

Table centerpieces will be streptocarpus plants donated by industrialist Jan Reef of Northville. The plants will be raffled to raise additional funds for the Foundation.

Under the direction of President Leroy Bennett, formerly a member of the college's board of trustees, the non-profit corporation is studying worthwhile projects to which proceeds can be designated.

Dinner reservations may be obtained by calling Joyce Ludwig in the Schoolcraft president's office at 591-6400, extension 213. Schoolcraft College is located at 18600 Haggerty Road in Livonia.

SPEAKING for The Record

By BILL SLIGER

An uneasy agreement has been reached between the Northville Driving Club and Northville Downs for harness racing at the local track over the next 10 years.

And despite the fact that a landlord-tenant marriage has existed for 35 years, each strongly suspects the motives of the other.

It would be impossible to declare which cast of characters is wearing the white hats in this intriguing business relationship. Even an outsider listening to both sides comes away with mixed emotions.

For years the dominant figures in the Downs-Driving Club association have been John J. Carlo and Dr. L. W. Snow. And while at times they have stood steadfastly at odds, there exists a mutual trust and respect that comes from long association.

Carlo and Dr. Snow are still very much on the scene. But the aging veterans have been joined by new, younger voices. This is particularly true of the Driving Club, the corporation which owns most of the land and buildings where the Downs conducts its racing meets.

Carlo, himself, may be responsible for the turnover in Driving Club management. It all happened earlier this year when an offer of $100 per share for Driving Club stock that had been selling for $50 was made by Northville Downs.

But in truth, Carlo was responding to a suggestion proposed by the Driving Club when he agreed to buy up all the stock so that the harness racing plant would come under single ownership.

For whatever reasons the majority stockholders decided the offer should not be accepted. They formed a "voting trust" composed of stockholders representing 8400 of the 14,200 outstanding shares. New faces were introduced to the Driving Club's board of directors and its first assignment became the negotiation of a new 10-year contract with the Downs.

Presumably, it can point with pride to what it has accomplished. Starting in 1979 rental revenues paid to the Driving Club will jump from a flat $65,000 annually to an estimated $470,000, which will increase if more fans bet more money at the mutuel windows.

But the fruits of victory may have a bitter taste.

The arrangement between the Driving Club and Northville

Downs is a crazy quilt affair that invites controversy and defies easy description.

The former obtained a track license and the latter an operator's license. Roughly speaking, the working agreement called for the Downs to make all improvements and pay all property taxes. The buildings became the property of the Driving Club, which owned the track and land.

Gradually over the years, the Downs has acquired some land of its own. It has built pad-docks and barns and it has acquired parking space. The Driving Club owns most of the property — the grandstands, clubhouse, some of the parking — but the Downs owns enough so that neither can conduct a race meet without the cooperation of the other.

The Downs must negotiate with a private property owner for a good share of the track parking space, which is owned neither by the Downs nor the Driving Club.

If one were to believe both sides, you would be certain that their common goal is to continue to improve Northville Downs until it becomes the finest racing facility in the nation.

On the other hand, you would also wonder if there were any credence to their respective suggestions that the other side really wishes to: 1 — bleed the track for all the money they can make; or 2 — move the operation out of Northville.

Unquestionably, Northville Downs could be operated more efficiently and with greater definition of direction if it were totally owned by one individual or corporation.

It is equally evident, however, that this is not going to happen in the foreseeable future.

Northville Downs is a unique enterprise. It is privately owned, yet its operation has a strong impact on the public. To some it is a nuisance; to others it is appreciated as the city's major producer of tax revenue. Whatever, it is a legal business conducting itself in a community-supportive manner.

There is, therefore, valid reason for public concern over infighting that exists in the longtime Downs-Driving Club partnership.

The Downs feels the new contract jeopardizes the track's future because there is no earmarking of funds for a specific improvement program. It accuses the Driving Club of hiking the rent unreasonably for the sake of stockholder dividends.

The Driving Club denies the charge claiming it will invest in necessary future improvements. But it wishes to control the expenditures.

Perhaps it is time for the veteran leaders of the two sides to demonstrate again their ability to iron out differences as they have managed to do over the past 35 years.

Speaking for Myself

Punch card voting system?

CLARICE SASS

JACK FAXON

GOOD . . .

In past elections there has been as long as an hour's wait to vote. If one projected the number of lever machines that would be needed to eliminate this delay in voting, the capital expenditure would be excessive.

The setting of ballots on lever machines and constant need of repair has been very costly. We set our own ballots on the votomatic at a great savings to the township.

Computer programs are prepared and publicly tested in the township hall. The results are much more accurate since no mechanical tabulation is necessary with the computer doing all the work.

Tight controls have been placed on the system at all levels to ensure the security of the ballots at every stage in the process. The checks and audits required by the state in the ballot counting programs and the computers used to tabulate the votes complete the security of the total system. With the many manual recounts conducted in the State of Michigan over the past years, the CES Punch card system has provided tangible proof of its accuracy.

The general reaction of the voters to the new system is overwhelmingly favorable and their reaction is reflected by the election inspectors and myself.

Clarice Sass
Northville Township Clerk

BAD . . .

The right to vote is one of the most sacred and basic principles of a democratic system of government. Government has a responsibility, therefore, to facilitate the people's participation in the election process to ensure a truly representative government. Consequently, systems of voting that impair the ability of persons to make their votes count undercut that objective.

Recently, convenience has dictated the use of punch card voting because it speeds up the counting of ballots. However, our prime concern should not be the reporting of election results before midnight, but rather, ensuring that votes are not arbitrarily disqualified.

One wrong move in punching a card can void that ballot. When Detroit had punch card voting in the 1970 primary election, the resultant chaos and error were monumental.

We are also placing an undue burden on senior citizens by using the punch card method for absentee voting, a method requiring extreme precision on a single card provided for casting the ballot. This method invalidated approximately 25 percent of the absentee votes cast in my district alone, well over 1,000 voters!

Without punch card voting, maybe the news media will be a little late in giving out election results. More importantly, however, we will be ensuring that no one is arbitrarily disenfranchised because he or she cannot cope with the mechanics of the voting system.

JACK W. HOFFMAN'S COLUMN

We had been friends for perhaps six months when I asked him home to have dinner with my family.

The crusty, old newspaperman, intimidated by a quirk of the court to a mental institution, declined instantly. "Oh, no, I couldn't do that. Your neighbors would panic if an old nut like me came calling."

Indeed, he was a scarecrow of a figure. He dressed in shirt and pants three sizes too large. The red nose, uncombed tufts of white hair and unshaven face ideally suited the gangly, skinny frame in the institutional setting.

But Rusty McFarland was not stuffed with straw. His mind and wit were as sound as the brick and mortar that separated him from the outside world.

"They think I'm loony," he confided, "but the really crazy ones locked up the fox."

After a half century of covering the White House and five different presidencies, Rusty had "retired" and traveled to Grand Rapids only to have some street thug club him for his wallet. He woke up in a mental hospital, too weak to wrestle the red tape that got him there.

By the time he recovered sufficiently to protest, they'd transferred him to Northville State Hospital. He fell in love with the place. "Hell, if you're an old man with no home and no family, a free bed and meals in a place like this isn't half bad." So now instead of fighting to get out, he maneuvered to stay in.

He played the psychologists' game, giving 'em all the right answers to ensure his permanent residency. His stories about close friendships with Woodrow Wilson, Henry Ford, Thomas Edison and the like helped turn the key. When a roomy tried to outdo him by claiming to be Jesus Christ, Rusty let fly with a harrowing experience with Pancho Villa. That one cinched his residency for awhile... until someone discovered his stories were more fact than fiction.

"You look great," I lied. "Come on home and have supper. My family is dying to meet you."

"Well, maybe, if we go after dark," he hesitated.

"You are crazy," I laughed and then made arrangements with the hospital to pick him up in broad daylight.

When he climbed into the car I noticed his whiskers were gone and somehow he'd

School crossing

'Painted lines not enough'

Wayne County work crews should soon be installing road signs and painting crosswalk markings on two roads that Northville youngsters have to cross to get to school from a new township subdivision.

A Wayne County Road Commission work order was signed September 1 for the projects on Bradner and Franklin roads, said Township Police Chief Ronald Nisun.

Franklin and Bradner are north-south streets south of Six Mile Road which must be crossed by children in the new Whisperwoods Subdivision to reach nearby schools.

"We're concerned about young kids coming out of Whisperwoods on the east side of Franklin Road, particularly those walking across Bradner to get to Winchester Elementary School."

A second school in the area is Meads Mill Junior High School.

Nisun said police are "strongly enforcing" the 25 mile-per-hour speed limit on Franklin and Bradner, which is a connector between Five Mile and Six Mile.

"We've been hanging a lot of tickets," he said.

The work by the county road commission would include "School crossing" road signs and painted crosswalks on each street, said Nisun.

There are no plans for flashing warning lights, he added.

"I would suspect the work would be done anytime," he said, "possibly the first of this week. I would have thought it would be done already, but they are swamped because there is a real concern about school crossings."

Nisun said the police have discussed safety measures with both the county road department and the school.

Monday night, several parents from Whisperwoods told the school board that they were not satisfied with the crosswalk and signs.

The school board said it was already committed to funding its share of the salary of a crossing guard who would escort youngsters across Bradner.

The guard cannot be hired, the board said, until the township board approves the rest of the funding, hires someone and provides him or her training.

Township Trustee James Nowka, who was in the audience for another purpose, said he was in favor of the stiffer safety precautions along Bradner and encouraged parents to attend Thursday night's township board meeting when the matter will be discussed.

'Extras' preview C B D

A preview of downtown public improvements will be built into the new municipal parking lot at the corner of Hutton and Main Streets.

Northville City Council voted unanimously Monday to appropriate an extra $4,000 to finance lamps, brickwork, bench and greenery at the corner lot as an example of the kinds of public improvements envisioned elsewhere in the downtown area.

Part of these amenities — enough "to give the people a good idea what is in the future" — are expected to be completed within four to eight weeks.

The remainder, including an island planter inside the parking lot, is to be completed next year when it is expected that construction of retail shops will be constructed at the north edge of the parking lot overlooking Ford Field.

Much of the new parking lot already is completed, including sidewalks. But with paving still to be completed, it was concluded that now would be the best time to include some of the "extras."

Between the new sidewalk and the curb, for example, an interlocking brick-like product is to be installed. It is the kind of material that the Downtown Improvement Committee has proposed for sidewalks throughout the downtown area.

Similarly, lamps, bench, and Victorian tree skirts will be of the kind the committee envisions for Main Street.

City council members, several of whom serve on the improvement committee, voiced enthusiasm over the planned "extra touch."

"Besides serving as an example of what can be expected in the future, this will tend to tie the east side of Hutton to the new look planned for downtown," officials agreed.

In a unrelated parking lot discussion, council authorized City Manager Steven Walters to devise a plan for charging a fee to Northville Downs patrons who park in the municipal lot south of Northville Square shopping center.

Patrons during the last racing season jammed the lot, leaving little space for others to park. Council wants to avoid a similar situation this year when racing resumes October 23.

Downtown shoppers will be permitted to continue free parking, but just how they are to be distinguished from Downs patrons has yet to be determined.

'Moon walk' to center

Residents of the Plymouth Center for Human Development received a new "Moon Walk" on Sunday.

It was presented to them by the Soupy Sales Telethon for the Retarded, Inc. Representatives from the Telethon made the presentation. Eranell McIntosh-Wilson, Plymouth center acting director, accepted the Moon Walk on behalf of the residents.

The presentation was done in conjunction with the annual Alhambra picnic sponsored by Galicia Caravan, International Order of the Alhambra. Five hundred center residents are expected to attend the event held on the recreation building parking lot.

The two events coincide by design. Members of the International Order of the Alhambra are dedicated to helping people who are mentally retarded. Members of Galicia Caravan have provided support and assistance to the Telethon since it began.

Galicia caravan also has been actively involved at Plymouth Center for over 10 years.

Donation of the $4600 Moon Walk was made possible by pledges and donations received during the 1977 Telethon hosted by comedian Soupy Sales.

"Sure, anything. Something wrong?"

"Naw. It's just that the circulation's not too good anymore," he said, rubbing his legs and wiggling his feet. "When I get out I want to walk straight and proper."

Then the old man began crying.

"To be honest with you, I'm scared," he said. "Suppose your family doesn't like me. Would you stop visiting?"

"If FDR hadn't liked you, would you have stopped banging on the White House door?"

And with that the scarecrow walked 'straight and proper' right into my family's heart.

Driving Club as well as being one of the owners of Northville Downs, points out that salaries and expenses for Driving Club officers amount to $30,000 annually. A 10 percent dividend to 14,000 stockholders would cost $140,000 leaving $65,000 for improvements, she notes.

"That's nothing," claims Mrs. Zayti, who estimates that between $6 and $10 million must be spent for parking structures and additional grandstand facilities in the next 10 years at Northville Downs.

Driving Club President Snow takes exception to the Carlo-Zayti arguments. He points out that the Driving Club agreed to accept a reduced rental payment ($65,000 annually) over the past 10 years so that Northville Downs could make improvements. By so doing he estimates that the Driving Club paid for at least half of the cost of the improvements.

"We'll (the Driving Club) make whatever improvements are necessary for the track. I estimate we should be able to contribute more than $150,000 per year," Snow stated. He said that the Driving Club wishes to retain control of where improvements are made, preferably on Driving Club owned property and not property owned by the Downs. He said stockholders were aware of the importance of improvements and would not demand high dividends.

"We recognize the need for additional parking and grandstand facilities. We don't plan to stand still. We formed a voting trust to save the track for the city of Northville. We feared the license could have been moved. We want to make sure we can control destiny of the track," said the Driving Club president.

While Snow said he was hopeful the Driving Club and Downs could cooperate on a program of improvements to provide for parking and additional grandstands, the Downs has taken the position that the responsibility for capital improvements now rests with the Driving Club.

The Downs-Driving Club negotiations began last June and were not concluded until September. Attorney Edward Druagelis represented the Downs, while Attorney David Simon and James Karoub, a lobbyist and stockholding member of the voting trust, negotiated for the Driving Club.

is on strike. GarWood was low bidder on the Dump Box awarded last meeting. He recommended the City cancel the order with GarWood and give it to the next lowest bidder — Fruehauf Corporation in the amount of $2,098.00. Fruehauf have many such boxes in stock and have given the City a discount.

Motion by Councilman Johnston support by Councilman Gardner that if GarWood is unable to meet the thirty day delivery, the City will accept the next lowest offer of $2,098 from Fruehauf Corporation. Motion Carried Unanimously.

Mayor Vernon commented on the Meeting, at the invitation of the Novi Mayor, at which sixteen different communities were asked. Mayor Vernon mentioned 6 communities showed up, Wixom, South Lyon, Farmington Hills, Walled Lake, Novi and Walled Lake. The communities agreed to organize and meet regularly as a coalition Mayor Vernon stated he would like to endorse the concept with the approval of the City Council.

No offense, no victory—Mustangs bow

It's apparently "back-to-the-drawing-board" time for Northville's 1978 football squad.

The Mustangs, rated one of the strong early-season contenders for this year's Western Six conference championship, found Thurston quarterback Mike Fitzsimmons and their own inexperience too much to overcome as they opened the new season with a 14-0 loss to the Redford club on their home field last Friday night.

It marked the first victory since 1976 for Thurston, which struggled through an 0-9 season last year while competing in the tough Northwest Suburban League.

Fitzsimmons, who was also Redford's starting signal caller last season, rammed six yards on a rollout in the second quarter and added a one-yard plunge in the third for the only two touchdowns of the game as the Mustangs lost their season opener for the first time since 1973.

"Fitzsimmons is an outstanding ballplayer," coach Chuck Shonta acknowledged, "but we just made too many mistakes to deserve the win. We couldn't seem to get untracked."

Northville's only real threat occurred late in the third quarter, when the Mustangs drove down inside the Thurston five-yard line. A fumble ended that drive, though, and sealed the shutout for the Redford club. All told, Shonta's club picked up only five first downs in the contest.

The loss spoiled the debut of junior quarterback Bob Crisan, who's replacing 1977 All-Area signal caller Doug Marzoni. Crisan, who directed last year's jayvee squad to a 7-1 record, completed just two of nine passes for 13 yards and threw a pair of interceptions.

But he wasn't getting much help from up front, either.

"Our offensive line was very disappointing," Shonta observed. "I thought they were ready, but our blocking just wasn't there at all."

And although he felt his defense was somewhat better, he saw a need for improvement there, too.

"Our defense started out good, but after awhile Thurston started completing a lot of third-down passes, and that really hurt," Shonta recalled. "We weren't able to shut down their option either. We knew we had to stop Fitzsimmons and we didn't."

The 6'2" 190-pound senior carried 17 times, in fact, and picked up close to 80 yards.

His first touchdown, a six-yard run, came with just 26 seconds remaining in the first half and climaxed an 85-yard drive. The big play in that drive was a 25-yard pass completion from Fitzsimmons to tight end Shawn Salisbury.

Thurston's other score came near the end of the third quarter, after one of the Everything's Blue in state tourney!

The Village Blues are state champions, no doubt about it.

Northville's perennial American League powerhouse did everything but sweep off the bases as they climaxed their greatest season yet with two easy victories over Mario's Pizza of Grand Blanc in the Class C MRPA finals in Clarkston last Saturday.

The Blues had earned a spot in the finals after winning the 17-team metro Detroit district three weeks ago in Dearborn Heights, and they merely needed to win a best-of-three series from Mario's, the outstate district champ, to walk off with the state crown.

The Blues gave an indication of just where they were headed with an 18-5 victory in the series opener Saturday morning.

Led by Todd Eis, Jerry Holbrook, Jim Yanoschik and Ed Kritch the local club roared to a 16-1 advantage in the first four-and-a-half innings of the ball game and coasted.

John Boland opened the gates to a nine-run flood in the top of the fifth with a one-out solo home run. Then, with two outs, the Blues erupted for their other eight on run-scoring singles by Jerry Dettler and Eis, an RBI double by Toby Roggenbuck, a two-run single by Yanoschik, and back-to-back home runs by Kritch and Dave Conlin.

Leadoff homers by Holbrook in the sixth and Eis in the seventh gave the Blues their other two runs while Mario's scored their last four in the bottom of the fifth.

Holbrook wound up with three hits, four RBI's and three runs scored in four trips to the plate in the contest while Kritch was 3-for-5 with two RBI's.

Eis wound up 4-for-4 with three RBI's and three runs scored for the winners while Holbrook went 3-for-4 and had four RBI's. Kritch went 3-for-5 and had two RBI's and Dettler 2-for-4 with four RBI's.

Propelled by that victory, the Blues jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the first inning of the second game and went on to sew up the state title with a 14-7 triumph.

New athletic director has old ties to Northville

The new face behind the athletic director's desk isn't really a new face at all.

He's Ralph Redmond, who's been around the Northville school system for 19 years now, and he's apparently eager to tackle his added responsibilities.

"I'm looking forward to it," he says, of his new job, which involved the duties of assistant principal as well as those of the athletic director. "This is something I've wanted to do for a long time."

"Looking at it from an administrative position, it's going to be a great privilege for me."

Redmond was hired as the new athletic director/assistant principal two weeks ago and was officially confirmed by the Northville school board Monday night.

He'll be replacing Ed McLoud, who resigned last month after serving for two years in the dual role. Despite the workload involved, though, Redmond figures he can handle the position.

"I know the first year is going to be very demanding because of the time involved," he says, "but you have to expect that in any job. I'll just have to wait and see how things go."

Because the cross country season had already started when Redmond was hired, the veteran coach will complete his eighth season as head of that sport before stepping down. But Redmond makes it clear he doesn't plan on favoring any one activity as athletic director. "I've always felt an athletic director can't be involved with one sport, and that's why I won't continue coaching cross country after this year," he explains. "I want to be at work in a total capacity, and do the best I can for people in those respects."

Redmond actually served as an interim athletic director during the 1975-'76 school year, when Northville appointed one director for each sports season. But this will be the first time he'll see what it's like over the course of an entire school year.

Before his appointment Redmond had been teaching English, reading lab and journalism editing and publishing in addition to coaching cross country.

His new job as athletic director will involve scheduling and overseeing dozens of sports at both junior high schools and the high school while working with the coaches.

His responsibilities as assistant principal include working with high school principal Dr. George Aune, working with the teachers and administrative staff of the high school, handling disciplinary problems, and being involved with attendance procedures.

Ralph Redmond figures on being a very busy man this school year

Alpena native is new b-ball coach

The man hired to replace Walt Koepke as Northville's varsity basketball coach this winter says he "really loves athletics and kids."

Tim Lutes, a three-year varsity coaching veteran from Alpena, was officially confirmed Monday night as the second coach to head up the local team since it joined the Western Six conference in 1971.

Lutes, who was born and raised in Alpena, has a total of eight years experience at coaching basketball. He spent five years at the helm of Midland High School's jayvee squad before taking the varsity reins at his alma mater, Alpena High, in the 1975-'76 school year.

And he's apparently pretty excited about coming to Northville. "I'm really looking forward to it," Lutes, one of about five dozen Alpena teachers laid off over the summer because of budget problems there, remarked in a recent telephone interview. "I really love athletics and kids."

"I'd been looking around, and then Northville contacted me. They liked what they heard and I liked what I heard, so I took the job."

The 30-year-old father of two said the idea of being in a conference is particularly appealing to him.

"That's going to be a real plus," he noted. "Alpena's team is an independent. Consequently they play 20 games to get to the districts, so it's hard to keep the kids up for a game."

"In a league you have something else to aim for during the season, so you're not waiting all year for the state tournament."

He added he'll also be glad for the reduction in travel time. Because Alpena was so isolated and scheduled very few home games, he explained, the team traveled literally thousands of miles each season.

During his three years as head coach there Lutes compiled a 33-31 overall record. In his first season, he recalled, the team logged over 5000 miles on the way to an 8-13 season.

The following year their record rose to 9-12, and this past season they leaped to 16-6. They won their first district game in the process but lost to Midland, which eventually won a regional crown, in the district finals.

"Travel was a big factor in how well we did during the season," Lutes noted. "Two years ago I thought we had a good chance to win our district, but our last five regular season games were away and we just weren't ready. We lost in the first round."

Although he acknowledged he doesn't know much about Northville's program yet, his style is apparently similar to Koepke's. Lutes described himself as "primarily a fast break, man-to-man, pressure-on-defense" coach who likes to play "all over the floor."

Part of that influence, he explained, came from his high school basketball days at Alpena, where he played under Bill Freider, now a University of Michigan coach, as a jayvee and under a "fine, fine coach" named Dick Dennis as a varsity player.

Lutes graduated from Alpena High in 1966, then spent two years at Alpena Community College and two at Alma before starting his high school coaching at Midland High.

In addition to heading the varsity basketball program Lutes, who's been a teacher for the past eight years, will also teach English and phys-ed at the local high school. The basketball season begins in late November.

Openers are sweet for Northville Colts

The Northville-Colts Varsity Squad opened their 1978 football season with a big 27-7 win over the Garden City Tigers at Garden City last Sunday.

Dave Chickowski opened the scoring in the first quarter when he intercepted a Garden City pass at the Colts' 10-yard line and scampered 90 yards for a touchdown, giving the local team a 7-0 lead.

The Tigers bounced right back, though, when T.J. McGlothlen took the ensuing kickoff and raced 70 yards to tie things up, 7-7.

But early in the second quarter the Colts took the lead for good on a 45-yard pass play to Mike Haggerty after an interception by Jeff Evans.

They added 13 more points in the second half on touchdowns by Ray McDonough and Chickowski.

The Colts, who finished 6-2 last year and have compiled a remarkable 35-4-3 record over the past six years, will host the Plymouth-Canton Steelers in their second game this Saturday beginning at about 9 a.m. at the Northville high school field.

The Colts' second game gets underway this Saturday at about 7 p.m. when they take on the Plymouth-Canton Steelers.

Brad Abbott's 25-yard run off tackle in the second quarter was the only touchdown of the game as the Colts' freshmen completed a clean sweep for the Northville-Colts junior football program with a 7-0 victory at Garden City Sunday.

Abbott's touchdown run came one play after the Colts had recovered a Garden City fumble. John Tashner added the extra point with a run around end, and the Colts' defense did the rest.

Last year's freshman squad went 4-3-1 overall. The Colts will take on Plymouth-Canton this Saturday at 5 p.m.

Ocelot runners start season

With the fall term now underway, Schoolcraft College's cross country Squad has taken to the slopes and will be competing against top junior college teams from all over Michigan and Ohio in the next two months.

Among the new Ocelots on the team this season is Phil Reed, a 1978 graduate of Northville High School who ran with the Mustangs for three years before sitting out his senior season because of an age restriction.

Joining Reed as newcomers are Paul York, Mark McKenney, Randy Schacht, Mike Guzman, Brian Hanna and Jennifer DeVenny. Doug Vorbeck, a 1977 graduate of Livonia Bentley is the team's only returning letter winner.

Steve Smith scored twice on runs of 45 and 41 yards and Doug Hartman added another on a one-yard plunge to lead the junior varsity Northville-Colts to a season-opening 20-0 football victory over the Garden City Tigers Sunday.

The Colts scored another touchdown on a 50-yard breakaway by Jeff Tomanek, but that one was nullified by a penalty. Dave Denhof added an extra point for the winners.

John Quinn, Dan Perpich, Dave Trumbull and John Klakkenga all came up with outstanding defensive plays in leading the jayvee Colts to their seventh victory against just two defeats since the start of last season.

In West Bloomfield Invitational

Times are 'amazing,' but Mustangs wind up 5th

Northville's 1978 cross country squad is off and running, and so far looking better than ever.

Competing in the rough-and-tough West Bloomfield Invitational at Mar-shbank Metropark last Saturday, the Mustangs picked up where they left off last season, one of their most successful in the sport's history, by winning their third straight trophy in the annual early-September event.

Although the local team as a whole finished only fifth in this year's 22-school Class A division, dropping two notches from their placement last year, all of their top five runners had better times than their counterparts in the West Bloomfield race last year.

"That was really a meet," coach Ralph Redmond asserted, noting that several of the top cross country squads in Michigan were present. "I think it was probably an early-season state showdown.

"The times were absolutely fantastic, and they (the runners) were fighting all the way."

What made this year's race so competitive, he noted, was that some of the top schools from last year's AA division (the West Bloomfield meet is split into three races, with AA involving the biggest schools) dropped down into the A division, in which Northville competes, for the '78 meet.

"We would've probably finished higher in the AA division than we did in A," Redmond said. "The A division was the strongest one there this time."

Northville's results certainly indicated that, anyway.

Brian Turnbull and Harry Couyoum-jian, for instance, placed fourth and sixth respectively with times of 15:16 and 15:17. Last year Turnbull ran the hilly three-mile course in 15:50 and wound up sixth.

Jim Bedford was Northville's next highest finisher, placing 19th with a 15:47 clocking. Next came Joe Martin, a newcomer to this fall's squad who wound up 33rd in 16:10, while Tom Doyle placed 58th in 16:35, giving the Mustangs a team total of 120 points. All five of those times would have been good enough to place among the top 37 in last year's meet.

Northville's other two varsity runners — Steve Stuart and Dan Whitaker — cramped up during the race and wound up 107th and 118th respectively.

But better times wasn't the only thing rougher about this year's West Bloom-field meet. According to Redmond there were plenty of scratches and bruises over the first half mile of the race as the 150 runners fought for position. Turnbull, in fact, ended up with a gash in his leg.

Despite that and the lower team finish, Redmond was more than happy with the Mustangs' overall performance.

"Brian and Harry were just amazing for this early in the season," the veteran coach said of his top two finishers. "I think they really ran a mental, gutsy race, and that's en-couraging.

"The kids still have a long ways to go before they're really in shape, but the big thing now is that they're dismissing the physical aspects of the race and concentrating on running mentally tough."

Winner of the Class A race was Flint Kearsley, which ran AA last fall, while Jackson High, another former AA school, finished second. Brighton came next, followed by Walled Lake Central and then Northville. Grosse Pointe North won the AA division while defending state champ Grand Blanc was runner-up.

The Mustangs were scheduled to go against North Farmington yesterday for their first dual meet of the season. This Saturday they'll be competing in the annual Schoolcraft Invitational. Last year Northville finished second in the Schoolcraft meet, and this year the team is among the favorites to win it.

Mack shines, but golfers lose opener

Todd Mack shot a remarkable two-under par 33, but it wasn't enough to prevent Northville from losing its season-opening golf match, against Western Six rival Farmington Harrison Monday afternoon, 201-208.

Mack, a junior, was almost flawless as he collected birdies on the fourth and seventh holes and parred the rest at the local team's home course, Brae-Burn Golf Club. According to coach Joe Blake, in fact, that might just be the best round ever registered by a Mustang golfer.

But the rest of the club -- well, that's another story.

"Most of the guys just weren't on their game at all," Blake explained. "If we would've played like we're capable of playing, we would've won the match."

"But I guess it's just one of those things we'll have to iron out. We're going to have to be a little more balanced."

The Northville scores, in fact, were about as spread apart as Jimmy Carter's jaws when he smiles.

After Mack's 33, the best Mustang effort was a 40 by junior Bob Stephens. Jim Maricicki came next with a 44, while Mike Seltz followed with a 45 and John Pawlowsky and Mike McNamara had 46's. Dave Hawthorne paced Harrison's winning effort with a 35.

"I was concerned before the meet because Harrison is a good team," Blake recalled, noting that the Hawks should be the chief challengers to Northville's seven-year stranglehold on the Western Six title. "But I think we could've played well enough to win, and that kind of hurt.

"It's tough to lose a league match like that, but I'm glad we have that one out of the way now. We lost our first meet last year, too (against Redford Thurston), and ended up with a good season."

The Mustangs' next meet takes place tomorrow against Western Six foe Plymouth Canton.

Jayvees trounce Redford in opener

Northville's jayvee football squad picked up right where they left off in 1977 with a season-opening 42-0 romp over Redford Thurston last Saturday.

Unlike their varsity counterparts, the junior Mustangs scored at will last weekend, storming out to a 26-0 lead in the first quarter before sending in the subs.

Quarterback Dave Greer and running back Rob Burnham each scored two touchdowns while Scott Robins and Todd Jennings added one each as the jayvees collected their eighth victory in their last nine games over the past two seasons.

Greer hit on five of nine pass attempts for 56 yards and one touchdown while running for an additional 80 yards on seven carries. Burnham led Northville's rushing attack, which accounted for 286 yards, with 90 yards on eight carries.

Coach Dennis Colligan's defense, meanwhile, limited Thurston to just two first downs in recording the team's fourth shutout over the past nine games.

"I was very pleased with our performance. The main thing is we were able to look at a lot of kids," Colligan said later, noting that nine different players carried the ball in the rout, but added that the Mustangs won't really know what they have until meeting up with some stiffer competition.

They'll get that chance a week from tomorrow (September 21) when they take on Westland John Glenn, the only team to beat them in a 7-1 season last year. Tomorrow they travel to Milford for a game with the Redskins.

Schoolcraft run is this weekend

More than 250 high school cross country runners are expecting to compete in the 13th annual Schoolcraft College Invitational at Cass Benton Park in Northville this Saturday.

This year, for the first time, a separate race for girls will also be held. Nineteen boys teams and 20 girls teams from the area have been invited. There will be three races: the boys' varsity starts at 9 a.m., the girls' race at 9:45 a.m., and the boys' non-varsity at 10:30 a.m.

Northville High finished runner-up to Wayne Memorial in last year's race.

visitors' two interceptions put them in excellent field position near the Northville 20. From there they drove to paydirt in six plays, finishing up on Fitzsimmons' one-yard quarterback sneak.

Among Northville's brighter spots in the game was senior linebacker John Marzonie, whom Shonta credited with "a heckuva game." The Mustang co-captain had 15 first hits and eight assists in the game, leading the Mustangs in both categories.

Defensive back Mike Lurvey added eight first hits while defensive lineman Norm Tiilikka was in on 11 tackles, three of them first hits. Ken Weber had Northville's lone interception.

Offensively the Mustangs, who finished with only 92 total yards (79 rushing, 13 passing), were led by senior running back Don Borthwick, who carried nine times for 41 yards. Crisan, with 24 yards on seven carries, was the only other Northville back with more than 10 yards.

The Mustangs' next game takes place this Friday when they travel to Westland John Glenn, and the timing couldn't be much worse. John Glenn handed Northville its only non-conference defeat and one of its two shutout losses last season in a 10-0 defensive battle, and the Westland club is coming off a 47-0 victory over Garden City West last week.

BRIAN TURNBULL

Athlete of the week

Coming off a spectacular junior year, cross country co-captain Brian Turnbull appears headed for his best season yet as a senior this fall. The lanky distance ace, who already owns the school record at Northville's three-mile home course in Hines Park, started the '78 season by finishing fourth out of some 150 runners in the annual West Bloomfield Invitational at Marshbank Metropark last weekend. Turnbull chopped 34 seconds off the time he ran at Marshbank last year with a 15:16 clocking, nine seconds off the winning individual effort, and led the Mustangs to fifth-place team finish in the Class A division of this year's event.

Blues roll at states

Detter, Holbrook, Jim O'Brien and Tom Eis all knocked in runs during the first-inning surge. Roggenbuck's two-out homer in the fourth capped a three-run rally that gave the Blues a 7-1 lead, but Mario's bounced back to tie the score with six runs in the top of the fifth.

Undeterred, the Northville powerhouse scored three more times in the fifth and iced the victory with a four-run surge in the sixth capped by Conlin's three-run homer.

Detter led the Blues' 14-hit attack with a 3-for-4 performance and one RBI while Kritch, Holbrook, O'Brien and Tom Eis slapped two hits each.

During the regular season in Northville's recreation league the Blues walked off with the American League crown with a 17-1 record, winning the title by four full games. Their only loss was a 9-6 stunner at the hands of third-place State Farm, which snapped a whopping 43-game local winning streak the Blues had going into the contest. The Class C state champs are managed by recreation director Ed Krietz.

To help eliminate some of the confusion about style names and antecedents, here is a look at the nine major influences that are the most significant contributors to the design of today's furniture. They are French, English, Italian, Oriental, Spanish, American Traditional, German, Scandinavian, and American Modern. Furniture styling tends to follow social history. In past centuries, furniture was made by cabinet-makers serving royal courts, or by country craftsmen who translated the elegant court styles into crude but pleasant provincial adaptations. Few can afford the truly authentic antiques, but all can have the handsome reproductions and adaptations of earlier designs that are available in today's furniture.

Regardless of what period your furniture is, you can add to it with unpainted furniture from GREEN'S CREATIVE HOME CENTER, 107 N. Center St., 349-7110. We can show you paints and stains to match your present furniture and we'll give you helpful hints on how to do a most professional job. Second doubles partners Kim Hubbard (left) and Lisa Friel in action at Bentley meet

Netters open with victory, 5-2

The Northville netters' youth-dominated singles players may be inexperienced, but they didn't show it last week.

Despite losing their top three singles players from last year's team, the Mustangs displayed a surprising bit of strength in that area as they opened their girls' tennis season with a 5-2 home court victory over Livonia Bentley Thursday.

All four singles players — including sophomore Holly Sixt, who's playing number one singles in her first year with the Mustangs — won their matches in straight sets.

Sixt knocked off Bentley's Lauri Siemert 6-3, 6-2 while junior Lynn Herald, formerly a doubles player, edged Janet Ray 6-4, 6-3 in another hotly contested battle at number two singles.

"Those two were really hard-fought matches," coach Uta Filkin remarked. "I think they (Sixt and Herald) were both pretty much exhausted after that."

Eve Engelmeyer, the team's only returning varsity singles player, beat Gloria Devon 6-4, 6-0 at third singles and Kellie Jameson trimmed Shelly Mauch 6-2, 6-4 at fourth singles to complete the Northville sweep in singles play. The Mustangs' only other victory came in first doubles, where Tracy Ade and Sue Kaestner teamed up for a 6-3, 6-1 win over Pam Collins and Audrey Devon.

Bentley's triumphs were registered by second doubles partners Ann Sibuda and Gretchen Payne, who edged Lisa Friel and Kim Hubbard in the day's only three set match (7-6, 2-6, 6-3), and by Jan Eichhorn and Pat Paulick, who beat Lisa Aaron and Lisa Gejoff (6-4, 6-2) at third doubles.

The Mustangs' next meet takes place tomorrow when they host Farmington.

Close battles mark start of soccer season

Northville's 1978 fall soccer program is underway, and it couldn't have opened on a more even keel.

With last spring's divisions revised in order to make the Western Suburban Soccer-League more competitive, 13 of the 20 games reported involving Northville teams were decided by two goals or less.

The most evenly-matched contest was a showdown between last spring's finalists in the 12-and-under playoff tournament, Northville Arsenal and the Farmington Falcons. When the dust had cleared the two teams had battled to a 1-1 deadlock. Chris Seftic had the only score for Arsenal, which went undefeated and unscored-upon during regular season action in the spring.

In other local 12-and-under boys' action goals by Chris Hauser, Scott Kubit and Fred Cahill and halfback Tom McConville's eight defensive saves propelled the Cobras to a 3-1 triumph over the Livonia Cardinals while the Hot Spurs, a combination of last spring's United-Hot Spurs-Blazers teams, sizzled 32 shots on goal, 15 of them in the fourth period, in earning a 3-1 win over the Farmington Flyers.

Matt Lotarski scored two goals and Chuck Keller one in the Hot Spurs' victory. The winners broke open a 1-1 tie by scoring twice in the second half and almost had a third on an eight-foot header by Scott Gala, who took a pass from Randy Eppers at the mouth of the net.

In 10-and-under action Matt Peltz scored a second-quarter goal on a pass from Stuart Kissing to give the Northville Champs a 1-0 victory over the Northville Tornados while Northville United picked up one of the few big victories of the day with a 5-1 win over Livonia no. 21.

Goalie Mike Oswald turned the latter game in United's favor by blocking a point-blank shot with his team leading 1-0 in the first half. Brent Wasik and Doug Martin had two goals each and Rick McCulloch one for the winners.

In 14-and-under play Arsenal, thanks to a strong defensive effort headed by center fullback Chris McCormick, picked up a 3-2 victory over Livonia no. 2, with Steve Gribbell getting two goals and John Moran one.

In local girls' action, meanwhile, the 19-and-under Stars edged the Livonia Super Stars 2-1, the 12-and-under Foxes trimmed the Livonia Cosmos 1-0, and the 10-and-under Pink Panthers swept past the Aztecs, 3-1.

Cindy Martin scored both the Stars' goals in the first half, one on a tap-in after a hard shot by first-year player Martina Millen-bounced back in front.

Jane Moylan scored on a pass from Lisa Cahill for the only score in the Foxes' triumph.

Mary Beth Larabell scored twice, once after a deflected shot by Lisa Irwin and once on a pass from Laurie Ryba, to lead the Pink Panthers. Mary Duwel scored the winners' other goal on a one-on-one breakaway, while Colleen Kirwan just missed on a penalty kick. The Panthers had a shutout going until the last four minutes, when Mandy Olgren raced across half the field to score for the Aztecs.

Other results reported from last week's games are below, with Northville scorers listed in parentheses.

Funeral services held here for long-time residents

DONALD E. SHERRICK

A "happiness" tribute to the memory of Donald E. Sherrick, 66, rather than a period of sadness marked the funeral service here Monday for one of Salem Township's most respected former farmers.

Eulogies delivered by friends and neighbors of Mr. Sherrick, who died Thursday, September 7 at his home in Northville, reflected the man's kindness and friendliness and, at times, evoked laughter in recollection of humorous incidents in his life.

There was no formal religious ceremony, although comments focused on Mr. Sherrick's Christian beliefs, including a reading of his own words on salvation.

Born March 14, 1912 in Michigan, Mr. Sherrick was the son of Caleb and Catherine (McRitchie) Sherrick.

He was a farmer much of his life, owning and operating a farm in Salem at Seven Mile and Angle roads.

Ten years ago, after many years of working the soil, he gave up farming to become plant manager of the General Tractor Company where, according to one of his employees, he was a much respected human being and an excellent supervisor.

He made his home at 635 Horton Street in Northville.

Besides his wife, Catharine (Compton) Sherrick, he is survived by two children, Peter Lynn Sherrick and Mrs. Daniel (Linda Jane) Dowsett; two sisters, Mrs. Ruth Retfore and Mrs. Elizabeth Myall; and four grandchildren.

The funeral service was conducted at the Ross B. Northrop Funeral Home, followed by burial in Rural Hill Cemetery, Northville.

In lieu of flowers, contributions were made to the Linus Pauling Foundation.

ROSE MARIE TOUSSAINT

Services for Rose Marie Toussaint, 75, of 528 Horton Avenue were held Saturday at Casterline Funeral Home.

Officiating was Mr. Jerry Finnegan of the Jehovah Witnesses Plymouth congregation. Burial was in Rural Hill Cemetery.

Born June 4, 1903 in Dottingen, Germany to John and Katherine (Stillhammer) Lillich, Mrs. Toussaint was living with her son, Charles, when she died Wednesday, September 6.

On April 7, 1927 she married Henry Karl Toussaint and they lived and raised their family at 528 Horton. Mr. Toussaint preceded her in death on January 30, 1977 just a couple of months prior to their 50th anniversary.

Mrs. Toussaint was very active as a Jehovah Witness since 1951 and continually made new friends while witnessing, many of whom attended her services to pay their final tribute to her.

She was well liked and highly respected by her neighbors and friends.

She cared about people and was always willing to share with others anything she had, especially the many flowers that she grew in her yard and garden.

Although very ill with cancer for several years, Mrs. Toussaint had her son, Charles, take her to St. Mary Hospital July 16 so that she could visit with Robert Strachan, her good friend and neighbor for 50 years. Mr. Strachan, who also was ill with cancer, died the following Sunday.

Mrs. Toussaint sponsored a nephew, Herman Gebert, so that he could come to the United States in 1954. Gebert lived with the Toussaints until he married in 1967 and moved to Plymouth.

Mrs. Toussaint leaves two daughters, Mrs. Keith (Arlene) Camarigg of Aurora, Colorado and Mrs. Patrick (Joan) Noonan of Northville; her son Charles, and a step-son, Herman Toussaint of Northville; and four grandchildren. She also is survived by a sister, Lina (Lillich) Klein of Dottingen, Germany.

IRENE JOHNSTON

Irene Johnston, 80, a life-long resident of this area, died Wednesday, September 6 in St. Mary Hospital, Livonia after two-day illness.

She had lived at 209 South Center Street.

Born September 15, 1897 in Plymouth, Mrs. Johnston was the daughter of Louis and Addie (Westfall) Fisher. Her husband, Charley Johnston, survives as does a daughter, Mrs. Geraldine McCrumb of Plymouth, and a grandson, David McCrumb of Northville.

She was a member of the United Methodist Church of Northville and the United Methodist Women.

Funeral service was conducted Saturday, with the Reverend Guenther C. Branstner, pastor of the United Methodist Church of Northville, officiating.

Burial was in Riverside Cemetery, Plymouth.

RUTH DORA BRIGGS

A former Northville resident living in California died September 7 at the age of 74.

She is Mrs. Ruth Dora Briggs, who lived at 2280 East Valley Parkway in Escondido, California.

Born November 22, 1903 in Ypsilanti, she was the daughter of Fred C. and Louise (Schrader) Casterline. She was married on March 21, 1926 to Dana A. Briggs, who survives her.

Other survivors include a son, Duane B. Briggs of Northville; two daughters, Mrs. Vera A. Shettler of Escondido, California and Mrs. Dorothy L. Ippolito of Milford; a sister, Mrs. Esther Dixon of Florida; 12 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren. She was preceded in death of four brothers.

Mrs. Briggs moved to California in November of 1973.

A private funeral service was conducted from the Casterline Funeral Home here, followed by burial in Oakland Hills Memorial Gardens, Novi.

JAMES CARL MARR

Funeral service for a 23-year-old Livonia man, James Carl Marr, who died Friday at Botsford General Hospital as a result of automobile accident injuries, was conducted Tuesday from the Casterline Funeral Home.

Officiating was the Reverend William Moore of Ward United Presbyterian Church, Livonia, followed by burial in Oakland Hills Memorial Gardens, Novi.

Born June 14, 1955 in Northville, Mr. Marr was the son of Robert and Thelma (Gow) Marr, both of whom survive him in Livonia. The young man was not married.

Besides his parents, he is survived by two grandparents, Mrs. Rebecca Marr of Royal Oak and Mrs. Cora Gow of Novi, and two brothers, Dennis Craig Marr of Farmington and Brian Lee Marr of Livonia.

Mr. Marr made his home at 27421 Margarete in Livonia.

MICHAEL G. EVERETT

Services for Michael G. Everett, 15, of 22536 Brook Forest, Novi, were held at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the Church of the Holy Cross in Novi with the Reverend Father Leslie G. Harding officiating.

Interment followed in Grand Lawn Cemetery with arrangements by Ross B. Northrop and Son Funeral Home in Northville.

Born in Detroit on May 19, 1963, Michael was a student at Novi High School. His death on September 5 was accidental.

He leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Everett; a brother, Roger, and a sister, Susan.

Auditions set Monday

Schoolcraft College will hold auditions for its jazz ensemble at 7 p.m. on September 18 and 25.

Individuals who want to audition should bring their instruments to Room 310 of the Forum Building either evening.

Formed in 1970, the jazz ensemble rehearses on Monday evenings from 7 to 10 p.m. through the fall semester. Their concert series begins in January and will include 12 to 15 public performances in area high schools, colleges and shopping centers.

In addition to high school and college students, previous members of the jazz ensemble have included engineers, educators, physicians and others representing many professions and backgrounds from the community.

Gary Laura will direct the ensemble this year. According to Laura, the group performs jazz and jazz rock selections using recorded arrangements by the Maynard Ferguson, Woody Herman, Stan Kenton and Count Basie bands.

Jazz performance or improvisation experience is beneficial, but not a prerequisite for ensemble membership.

Further information may be obtained by calling the fine arts department at 591-6400, extension 510.

Schoolcraft's Jazz Ensemble makes a dozen appearances beginning in January

I'm a Consumers Power gas service man, and it's my job to troubleshoot. If people smell gas in their homes, they call me and I get there fast.

But sometimes while I'm working in a customer's home, I find more trouble — like no insulation. You'd be surprised to learn how many homes I go into that aren't adequately insulated.

Some customers tell me they can't afford insulation. But what they really can't afford is to pay for all the natural gas it's costing them by not insulating. Over the long winter, insulation doesn't cost money — it saves money and scarce energy. It's the best thing you can do to your home, and for your gas bill. Believe me, I know. I get a gas bill at my home every month just like you.

Geake elected assistant minority leader of senate

Robert Geake, Northville's State Senator, pulled a political surprise last week when he was elected assistant minority leader in a special polling of the Republican Senate Caucus.

The election of Geake, 41, was unexpected because he is the youngest and newest of 14 Senate Republicans.

Robert VanderLaan of Grand Rapids was elected as minority leader. He replaces Robert Davis of Gaylord who stepped down because he is running for Congress.

VanderLaan, who has held the minority leader's position before, is the Republican Senator with the most seniority. Republicans are outnumbered in the senate, 24-14.

Geake's election may give him ammunition against frequent charges that he lacks leadership, effectiveness and influence in Lansing.

The criticism, which usually arises during political campaigns, has had little, if any, effect on Geake's success.

Geake, elected easily to three terms in the Michigan House, swept to the senate in a special election early in 1977 after former State Senator Carl Pursell was elected to the United States Congress.

This year, in his first attempt at a full, four-year term, Geake routed taken opposition from Livonia City Clerk Addison Bacon in the primary election.

In November, Geake squares off against Democratic nominee Paul Kadish, the chairman of the Schoolcraft board of trustees who was unopposed in the primary election.

Geake said he was "pleased" by his election as assistant minority leader. "I knew I had some support," he said.

In an interview before the August primary, Geake denied that he lacked effectiveness in Lansing but conceded that he may have been too dogmatic along party lines when he was first elected to the House.

He said he has learned that cooperation on both sides of the aisle is necessary to be a good legislator.

Following last Tuesday's election, Geake said:

"My role in the caucus has been to serve as a kind of mediator between the more conservative and more moderate factions among the Republican senators.

"As the assistant Republican leader, I intend to continue as a positive and, hopefully, unifying force to help the Republican Senate Caucus be the most effective and constructive force possible in state government."

Kadish criticizes Geake's spending

Paul Kadish, Democratic candidate for State Senate in the 14th Senatorial district, formally opened his campaign at a mass rally attended by more than 150 volunteers, issued a sharp attack at what he called the "lavish spending practices" of his opponent, Senator Robert Geake.

Kadish contended "Geake must be held accountable for his record of excessive spending while professing to favor tax limitation. At the same time he helped passage of the onerous Single Business Tax and outspends the majority of the State Legislators in his personal mailings. He has moreover failed to introduce one single significant tax saving measure in the Senate."

Speaking at his campaign headquarters located at 29115 Eight Mile Road in Livonia, he accused Geake of having spent almost $25,000 on postage alone in his first 15 months in the senate.

"At that rate, Geake will spend $80,000 on postage alone if he is given a full four year term in the State Senate," he said.

Kadish expressed respect for the voters of the District when asked about the prospects for a Democrat in the 14th District Senate Seat which includes the cities of Livonia, Plymouth, Northville and the Northeast corner of Westland as well as the Townships of Redford, Plymouth and Northville.

"The people of Northwest Wayne County have voted time and time again for both Democrats and Republicans, depending on the abilities of the individual candidates. Our voters are intelligent, discerning and independent and any one who doesn't think so is grossly underestimating the electorate," he said.

Chamber seeks 'Citizen of Year'

Search for "Citizen of the Year" candidates has been launched by the Northville Chamber of Commerce.

Chairman of the "citizen" program by virtue of being named last year's winner is A. M. (Mike) Allen, former mayor of Northville.

According to Allen, nominations must be received by the chamber no later than October 10. The persons selected from the nominations will be feted at the annual chamber dinner in October.

Candidates must be residents of either the city or township of Northville.

Nominations must include written documentation of residency, and list the offices held by the individual in civic, profession, church or other activities, indicate his or her participation in Northville city or township organizations, and detail "positive contributions made to the Northville

Fund raiser fetes Ryan

State Supreme Court Justice James L. Ryan, candidate for re-election, was feted at a campaign fund raiser in Northville Monday evening.

The "Hawaiian with Ryan" part was hosted by Mike Ilitch and Larry Sheehan and their committee at 43333 Seven Mile Road.

It featured cocktails, Hawaiian hors d'oeuvres, steamship round of beef, and entertainment.

Northville launches community education next week

Community education is coming to Northville Public Schools.

Starting next week, self-improvement and enrichment classes will begin at the high school. Most of the 13 courses offered can be taken for high school credit.

Classes range from typing to bridge, from auto mechanics to astrology, and from English to gourmet cooking.

This will be the Northville Schools' first venture in community education. Attempts at adult education in the past have not drawn sufficient numbers of students.

This year, the Plymouth-Canton school district is helping the Northville system start the program by providing instructors, expertise and administrative assistance.

In return, Northville is providing classroom space and Plymouth will be able to receive state aid for students working to complete their high school education.

"They (Plymouth) have the staff and federal money to help us get started," said Director of Instruction Nancy Soper. "The long range goal, if there is interest and need, is to take over the program completely ourselves."

The big advantage of running the community education program locally, she said, is to "provide service to local residents of Northville through the schools."

The classes offered this year were chosen after examining which courses offered by Plymouth in the past were most popular with Northville residents, said Mrs. Soper.

The classes generally run between 10 and 15 weeks on Tuesday or Thursday nights.

Fees ranging from $14 to $30 are charged. However, people under 20 years old by the fourth Friday of September can take classes for high school credit for free.

Registration, which should be done soon since classes begin next week, can be done by walking into the Northville board offices between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m., Monday through Friday, or by mail, making checks payable to Northville Public Schools.

There are no refunds if you drop the class after the second meeting starts. If there are not enough students to form the class you chose, Northville officials will assist in enrolling you in neighboring districts offering the same course.

Here are the courses which can be taken for high school credit.

Auto mechanics, Tuesday nights from 6:30-10:30 for 15 weeks, $30.

Bookkeeping, Tuesday and Thursday nights from 8:30 to 10:30 for 15 weeks, $30.

English, Tuesday nights from 6:30-10:30 for 15 weeks, $30.

GED (preparation for General Education Development Tests which serves as equivalency for high school diploma among most colleges and employers), Monday and Wednesday nights from 6:30-10:30 for 15 weeks.

Gourmet cooking, Tuesday nights from 6:30-10:30 for 15 weeks, $30.

Painting, Thursday nights from 6:30-10:30 for 15 weeks, $30.

Secretarial science, Thursday nights from 6:30-10:30 for 15 weeks, $30.

Typing, Tuesday and Thursday nights from 6:30-8:30 for 15 weeks, $30.

Nation and the world, Thursday nights from 6:30-10:30 for 15 weeks, $30.

These classes are also available for enrichment or self-improvement, but not for high school credit.

Bridge, Thursday nights from 7-9 for 10 weeks, $14.

Genealogy, Thursday nights from 7-9 for eight weeks, $13.

Flower arranging, Tuesday nights from 7:30-9:30 for 10 weeks, $14.

Do Something Different, Tuesday nights beginning at 7 p.m. for eight weeks, $25. This course offers eight mini-courses, of which students take six. The topics are Ghosts, Keeping Sunny Side Up, Astrology, Birdwatching, Bio Rhythms, Handwriting Analysis, Psychic Reading and Home Decorating.

Funds sought for officer

Federal Funds are being sought to pay for a police officer who would deal with drugs and other problems confronting students in Northville schools.

Northville City Police Captain Louis Westfall, after a meeting last month between police and school officials, is checking with county authorities to see if federal grant money is available.

Such an officer would spend lots of his time in Northville's seven school buildings and would usually be wearing street clothes rather than a patrolman's uniform, said Westfall.

"His function is not to make arrests," said Westfall. "The function, the way I understand it, is to put on programs for the students and to assist counselors and administrators."

The August 28 meeting was the result of a news story which reported that Westfall had complained to the city council about a lack of cooperation from the high school in drug cases.

A week later, a joint statement from school, city and police officials said that the incidents referred to by Westfall were more than a year old and that relations between police and the high school had been good during the past year.

However, officials did agree to meet monthly to discuss the drug problem and to revive the idea of a liaison officer which was endorsed several years ago after a high school student died after an overdose.

Westfall said that his department favored such an officer.

"Kids hear the word 'police' and they take a negative attitude," he said. "This officer could build up rapport between students and the police department."

The next meeting, on September 25, will include representatives from the Northville Township Police Department and the Northville post of the Michigan State Police.

CBNU selects local girl

A Northville woman has been selected to participate in graduate classes at Christian Broadcasting Network University (CBNU).

Graduated from Michigan State University with a degree in advertising August 29, Sharon Seiler has left for CBNU where she is taking her master's degree in advertising management.

She was but one of 150 selected from 1700 applicants for participation in this first graduate program in CBNU's school of communication.

According to Dean of Students David Gyertson, selection was based on outstanding academic accomplishment and having "a direct sense of God's call upon their lives."

CBNU President Pat Robertson said, "We're enrolling 150 outstanding students."

Just prior to leaving for CBNU in Virginia Beach, Virginia, Ms. Seiler was feted at a graduation-going away party at her parents' home here at 120 Rayson. More than 68 friends and relatives attended.

A graduate of Northville High School where she was a member of the marching band and 1973-74 Palladium editor-in-chief, Ms. Seiler held one of the top student management positions on The State News — MSU's official newspaper with a daily circulation of more than 40,000.

Novi band seeks members

Coin collecting

Millions enjoy this hobby that's like money in the bank

By MIKE LASH

Wait a minute, now. Before you plug that next quarter into the cigarette vender, check its date and mint mark.

Is it a 1970-s, by chance? Maybe even an old silver quarter?

Or how about that penny you just shoved through the coin slot in the gum machine — what if it was a rare coin, say a "1960" with the numerals stamped a bit smaller than usual?

Or worse yet, what if it were a 1955 double die, in which case you could've just bought a few bubble gum machines of your own instead?

No, don't break open the machine to find out. Actually the chances are about a million to one that you won't be causing a needlessly unpleasant scene, anyway.

But it might not hurt to take a quick glance at some of those older or more unusual-looking coins you come across while shopping.

Ever since coins were first struck in America way back in 1652, collecting the metal spheres as a hobby has been growing steadily. Today millions of Americans are numismatists — another word for coin collectors — in one way or another.

One of them is 28-year-old Ken Jared of Howell, who's been saving and buying valuable American coins since he was 12. His collection now numbers about 500 coins with an estimated worth of well over $1000 (their original face value was about $100).

"I'd consider myself an experienced numismatist," Jared says, "but I'm not really an extremely serious enthusiast. I know some people who spend almost as much time with their hobby as they do with their jobs."

"It's a good thing to get into. You can't go wrong because it involves something always in demand — money — and it gets more and more valuable as time goes by. Coins are also something that don't take up much space."

The origin of American coinage is a story in itself.

Up until the mid-17th century the early colonists had either swapped goods with the Indians or used a form of currency known as "wampum" — beads made from clam and mussel shells that were strung together and sewn to a form of cloth with various designs on it.

Larger settlements needed something handier, though, and so tried using European coins. But because they still needed those to purchase goods from the Old World, the colonists began striking their own.

The General Court of Massachusetts appointed John Hull to head up the first mint, located in Boston, in 1652. A man named Joseph Jenks made the dies.

The New England (or NE) coins, as they were known, were crude and simple. Struck in three different sizes (for shillings, sixpence and threepence), they were approximately round (rough at the edges) with the letters NE and the value of the coin chiseled on.

The NE shilling, the counterpart of the present dollar at that time, would

"It's a good thing to get into. You can't go wrong because it involves something always in demand — money — and it gets more and more valuable as time goes by."

The NE shilling, the 17th-century counterpart of the present dollar, would now sell for about $3000 in decent condition, $12,000 in excellent condition.

In 1960 a good number of pennies struck at the Philadelphia and Denver mints had smaller dates than the vast majority manufactured that year, and those go for roughly $2 apiece.

"A coin in exceptional condition can be worth 10 or 12 times as much as one in poor condition, especially in rarer coins."

now sell for about $3000 in decent condition, $12,000 in excellent condition.

But because NE coins were so simply designed they encouraged counterfeiting. Thus in the following years the designs became more complex, from willow and oak trees to eagles and Liberty heads to reproductions of Presidents and the Lincoln Memorial.

It wasn't until the 1790's, though, that Congress finally began taking steps to establish a national coinage. In 1792 a federal mint was built in Philadelphia by virtue of the Mint act, which set up fineness and alloy standards and fixed the value ratio of 15 parts silver to one part gold.

The denominations of the first coins produced under direction of the Mint Act were the copper cent and halfcent, the silver halfdime and dime (now called dime), the silver quarter dollar, half dollar and dollar, the gold quarter eagle ($2.50 piece), the gold half eagle ($5 piece) and the gold eagle ($10 piece).

The half cent and half dime coins remained in circulation until the late 1850's, when both the cent and dime pieces were redesigned and their half parts eliminated. Gold coins stayed around until the 1930's, when the national Depression spelled their doom.

An example of the incredible growth of the mint — as well as a reflection of growing inflation — is shown by the amount of coinage produced since the Mint Act. Between the years 1792 and 1800 the federal mint manufactured about $2.5 million worth of coins. Today federal mints in Philadelphia, Denver and San Francisco put out more than 12 billion pieces of coinage worth over $600 million in a single year.

The metal content of coins greater than the nickel, though, has been drastically reduced. Up until 1965 dimes, quarters, half dollars and silver dollars consisted of 90 percent silver and 10 percent copper. Now dimes, quarters and the dollar piece have an inner core of 100 percent copper and an outer core of 75 percent copper and 25 percent nickel, while half dollars have an inner core of about 20 percent silver and 80 percent copper and an outer face of 80 percent silver and 20 percent copper.

So what does a good numismatist look for in a coin?

"Well, content is one thing," says Jared, referring to the metal make-up of a coin. "But the two most important things are scarcity and condition."

A serious numismatist, he explains, normally collects series of coins, waiting to purchase the rarest until he's acquired all the others. If he's trying to get the entire series of 1930's pennies, for instance, he'll make sure he has the more common coins from those years (like the 1936, 1937 and 1939) before going after the others.

The 1931-S penny (S stands for San Francisco, its mint location, while D stands for Denver and a plain coin is minted in Philadelphia), because of its Patients revolt, cure their own ills

A University of Michigan psychiatrist is teaching patients to cure themselves of the effects of anxiety illness by "revolting" against the disease by taking over control of their own bodies.

This overthrow of stress control, reported by Wiecher H. Van Houten, M.D., does not emphasize psychotherapy or drugs, but instead employs biofeedback techniques at the University Hospital Psycho-Physiology Clinic.

A high degree of success has been achieved with a growing list of psychosomatic illnesses: hives, alcoholism, migraine, hypertension, difficulties in swallowing, chronic pain, severe anxieties, phobias, insomnia, "wry neck" and partial paralysis.

So far more than 100 persons have been treated over the past two years by biofeedback, according to Dr. Van Houten, who heads the Psycho-Physiology Clinic and is chief of the U-M Adult Outpatient Psychiatry Service.

He believes an even wider range of stress illness could respond to his treatment.

He explained that instead of the doctor giving and the patient receiving treatment, the clinic's method involves teaching and encouraging the patient to become an active participant in his own care. The patient is taught to utilize the body's own ability to turn off pain and turn down anxiety "instead of remaining the helpless victim of the dictates of his disease."

"No matter how bad the condition, the patient can be helped to do something for himself," the psychiatrist said.

The key is teaching patients to achieve complete relaxation — at will.

"This is very important because anxiety and relaxation are mutually exclusive. You cannot be completely relaxed and feel anxious, worried or tense at the same time," Van Houten said.

"Some people cannot turn off stress, even when there is no reason for it. It's as if they are driving down the freeway 80 miles an hour and don't know how to slow down enough to turn into a rest stop. We teach them how to let up on the accelerator."

Since these patients don't know how to relax, they also don't know when they have achieved a state of relaxation, the physician added.

Biofeedback monitors therefore are used to tell the patient by means of an audible tone when he or she has achieved relaxation as detected by forehead muscle tension, temperature in the fingers, perspiration and alpha brain waves.

The forehead and finger sensors are used most often, Van Houten said, because they are the best indicators of overall body tension.

Good results have been achieved with migraine headache patients by teaching them to relax their body and to raise the temperature of their fingers, Van Houten said. "When the hands become warm, the headache often goes away," he noted, "because the pressure on brain blood vessels is reduced as arteries and capillaries elsewhere relax and expand."

One patient had a severe case of hives which appeared at the same times each day. All he had to do was look at his watch and if it was 'the' time, he broke out," Van Houten said. When the patient was taught to relax before the attacks, the hives stopped appearing.

Another patient suffered from torticollis or "wry neck." The chronic spasm of the neck muscles so severe that, most of the time, he walked around with his head so far to one side that his left ear almost touched his shoulder blade. After learning to relax his whole body, the patient found he could loosen his neck muscles and pull his head erect.

New patients at the clinic are given a health questionnaire, receive a brief physical checkup, and then rate themselves on psychological and anxiety scales for later followup.

Treatment consists of seating the patient in a comfortable chair, in a quiet room, attaching the biofeedback electrodes and instructing him in person, reinforced by pre-recorded voice tapes, in two methods of relaxation.

One is progressive relaxation of the body's main muscle groups, first by tensing them and then letting go.

The second method (most prefer one or the other) is autogenic training.

The patient is urged by a soft contralto voice on the tapes to recall a place in his childhood where he felt very safe and to imagine himself there now on a warm sunny day, "to breathe softly and to inhale the warmth and let it suffuse his body."

Learning to hold that thought and maintain a steady state of relaxation, whenever and wherever desired, takes most patients about 10 sessions at the U-M clinic bolstered by practice with tape-recorded lessons at home.

According to Van Houten, the very feeling of relaxation is completely foreign to most over-tense patients. After learning how to relax, he said, they describe a sensation "of floating out of the chair," "a loss of feeling in their hands or legs," and, often, a euphoric high.

For alcoholics, this natural "high" can be substituted for that which comes out of a bottle and assists them in resisting the temptation to drink.

Because so many anxiety or stress disorders involve tension, this achievement of relaxation acts as a sort of psychic penicillin, the psychiatrist explained, whether the problem is a fear of flying or trouble sleeping.

Associated with Van Houten at the Psycho-Physiology Clinic is David W. Bostian, M.D., U-M clinical assistant professor of psychiatry.

MR. AND MRS. RUSSELL A. GILBERT of The Car Store in Wall Lake attended the 1979 national dealers conference in Atlanta recently.

While at the conference, they saw the new Chrysler-Plymouth cars, including the new Plymouth Horizon TC3, two-door hatchback with front-wheel drive.

SPEEDY PRINTING CENTER OF BRIGHTON, 107 East Grand River, has been named the center of the month for outstanding sales achievement in July, according to manager William Thomas.

The Brighton franchise, which opened in late January, topped its sales goal for the month by some 30 percent. It also ranked second among 37 Speedy Printing Centers in the southeast Michigan region, including the Ann Arbor and Detroit areas, to gain a place in the company's Top Five Club.

About 24,000 photocopies were sold in Brighton in July, making it the single largest volume photocopy center in the region, Thomas said.

"We're very pleased with the business in Brighton," he said. "We've grown a little every month. We're a full-service center with the emphasis on quick offset printing jobs."

Gregory Tigani, owner of the Brighton franchise, is opening a second center in East Detroit this month. The printing company had 17 franchises in the southeast region of the state in January and now has grown to 37.

He also was partner and manager of a 500-acre farm in Lexington, Michigan where he was responsible for production, harvesting and marketing of produce.

Dowsett was agricultural superintendent for the Glades Company sugar operation in Moore Haven, Florida for four years. In 1973 he supervised construction of a labor village consisting of 300 homes to house sugar cane cutters. He also was general manager of the 750-acre Sleeping Bear Orchards in Empire, Michigan.

Dowsett has a degree in agriculture from Michigan State University and he also has taken additional courses in accounting from Indiana State University, business education from Wayne State University, and agriculture from the universities of California and Florida.

An Eight Mile Road resident in Lyon Township, he is living in the home where he was born.

Said Dowsett of his new position: "Having grown up in the South Lyon-Northville Area and having watched it grow from a sleepy farming area to the active suburban community of today, I feel that I would like to be a part of the future of my birthplace and home towns. For these reasons, I feel that real estate sales is the method by which I can assist in the future development of this fine living area."

"Arf! Arf!"

Wonder what's happened to poor "Happy Hooligan"

And where "Buster Brown" is, now?
I'd sure like to see "Little Nemo" again,
And hear "Jiggs and Maggie" yell "POW!"

Who can forget our friends "Mutt and Jeff"
Or their troubles that had no ends?
There was old "Major Hoople" and "Andy Gump"—
What's happened to our "funny page" friends?

Will we ever forget the "Katzenjammer Kids"
With mischievous Hanz and Fritz
And their Captain's wallpings every week
On the place one usually sits?

"Foxy Grandpa" was good for a laugh
With tricks he would always play—
The kids of today are missing a lot
With no "funnies" like those of "my day!"

'Oh'

Oh to run for election
what a thrill it would be
Oh to run for election and have the folks vote for me
I'd have so much power
but unfortunately
My head would get bloated an they'd impeach me

Oh to run for election
what a challenge it'd be Oh to run for election and campaign for me
I'd have so much power
but unfortunately
My level of incompetency would catch up with me

Yes to run for election
what a thrill it would be What a thrill what a thrill
what a thrill it would be But oh oh-oh-oh
oh unfortunately

Coin collecting hobby

scarcity (only 866,000 were minted, compared with 316 million 1939 pennies), would probably be the last he purchased to complete the series. One 1931-S, depending on its condition, could sell anywhere from $10 to $40.

Obviously the older coin is, the more likely it is to be valuable. Pennies minted before 1959 (when the design on the reverse side was changed), dimes and quarters before 1965 (when the silver content was eliminated), and nickels before 1946 are usually a good bet to be worth more than their face value, especially if they're in good condition.

But several recent coins are worth looking out for as well. Most quarters and dimes mined in San Francisco (1968-S, 1969-S, etc.), for instance, will probably increase in value in the next 15 or 20 years simply because there are far fewer of them than those minted in Philadelphia and Denver.

Another valuable type of coin is one identified by some sort of mistake. Several 1955 pennies, for instance, were struck twice before the problem was discovered and corrected.

The words "In God We Trust" and "Liberty" plus the date 1955 appear blurred because of the double strike, and the average buying price of a 1955 double die is $125. Those in particularly good condition go for over $200.

The same thing happened with several 1972 pennies, and those, too, sell for several times their face value.

In 1960 a good number of pennies struck at the Philadelphia and Denver mints had smaller dates than the vast majority manufactured that year, and those go for roughly $2 apiece.

Other coins with valuable mistakes include some 1942 dimes (where the number "2" was struck over the number "1"), worth between $60 and $200, and some 1937-D nickels (an old buffalo head nickel, with three legs on the buffalo), worth between $25 and $70.

Among the coins with the least number of mintages since 1900 are the 1909-S, 1914-D and 1922 pennies (the average buying prices are about $28, $20 and $18 respectively); the 1912-S, 1913-S and 1950-D nickels (with average buying prices of about $13, $15 and $6 respectively); the 1901-S, 1916-D and 1921-D dimes ($9, $55 and $11 respectively); the 1901-S, 1913-S and 1916 quarters ($160, $58 and $125 respectively); a 1921-D half dollar ($35); and a 1928 silver dollar ($55).

New owners give their old home a touch of class

By JEAN DAY

Those who have watched the transformation of the 99-year-old white house at 536 West Main during the past year will have an opportunity to see what the new owners have accomplished inside on the Northville Home Tour September 28.

Since moving in a year ago in August, energetic Lynn and Louie Paquette have cut away the overgrown shrubbery in the front of the home, revealing a Victorian side bay window and pillared entrance.

They have added green shutters and window mullions, or dividers, on first floor windows. There's also an attractive lightpost and picket fence.

"Louie had the fence and gate ready to put in the day we moved it," recalls Lynn Paquette. Behind the fence is an attractive courtyard with patio furniture.

Inside has been papered, painted and refurbished throughout. The Paquettes installed the real slate entry floor themselves. In one corner is a brass hatrack while an antiqued tall case clock faces the door. Its shell inlay design in the door is repeated on the fence.

A fresh stripe medallion-pattern wallpaper in the hall "lives well" with the yellow Jacobean leaf floral design paper in the adjacent living room.

The brick-front fireplace with white old mantel in the living room, Mrs. Paquette confides, is a recent addition. The mantel was a "find" at a wrecking company in Ann Arbor. The Paquettes are hoping to make it a working fireplace in the future.

Plain white draperies and valances have been set inside the bull's eye woodwork at the windows in order to show off the woodwork and give as much light as possible.

The wing chairs and camel-back loveseat have been upholstered by Mrs. Paquette, who agrees it's hard work with each piece taking about a week.

A sliding door separates the dining room from the living room. Besides the kitchen beyond, there's a first-floor bedroom for daughter Susan, 17. The Paquettes have added a complete first floor bath.

In Susan's pink and white bedroom is a three-story dollhouse that moved with the family from a former home in Rosedale Park. There's also a cupboard moved from the dining room that holds a doll collection.

Garden ceremony unites couple

Patricia Francis Gadwa and Gerald Orin Dobek were married in a garden ceremony at his family's home July 22. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Gadwa of 1122 Washington Circle, Northville, while the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dobek of 44100 West 12 Mile in Novi.

The Reverend Thomas F. Brown, uncle of the bride from North Rose, New York, officiated at the 11 a.m. service in the garden setting.

The double-ring ceremony included the symbolic lighting of a single candle from two.

Dennis Gadwa of London, Ontario, and Gerald Gadwa of Traverse City, brothers of the bride, provided the music with the former playing the guitar while Gerald sang "Time in a Bottle" before the ceremony.

As she was given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white polyester chiffon gown in Victorian style. Nottingham lace adorned the ruffled bodice and high collar. It was embroidered with seed pearls. The full sleeves gathered into ruffled cuffs. The skirt extended into a chapel train.

The bride's fingertip veil was chiffon.

She carried a cascade arrangement of white roses and daisies.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Yvonne Funk from Spruce Home, Saskatchewan, Canada, was matron of honor in a floor-length dotted swiss gown in apricot color with matching picture hat. She carried a natural basket with Sonia roses and white daisies.

Donna and Deborah Dobek, sisters of the bridegroom, and Maureen Fogarty were bridesmaids in yellow dotted swiss gowns and matching hats. They carried baskets of yellow roses and daisies.

Rose Marie Dobek, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl in a white floor-length dress made by her mother. She carried a small basket of white daisies.

Ring bearer was Dylan Gadwa, nephew of the bride.

Robert Dobek was his brother's best man. Ushers were Bruce Kinney and Dennis and Gerald Gadwa. The bridegroom and his attendants wore candlelight tuxedos with brown accents.

A reception followed at the Plymouth Hilton Inn for 118 guests. The list included Charles D. Brown, uncle of the bride from Orlando, Florida; the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Delphis Gadwa of Waterford; Mary Rose, sister of the bridegroom from California; his brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dobek of Georgia; and the family of the minister.

After a two week honeymoon spent at a Colorado dude ranch, the newlyweds are living in Williamsburg, Michigan. They had met at a dance.

The bride is a 1977 graduate of Northville High School and her husband is a 1976 graduate of Novi High School. He is a certified auto mechanic.

MR. AND MRS. GERALD ORIN DOBEK

MR. AND MRS. DANIEL JOHN O'GRADY

They make Dundee their home

After a month-long wedding trip through the capes of Atlantic Canada, Deborah Lynne Guido and Daniel John O'Grady are making their home in Dundee.

The Reverend Charles Boerger officiated at the candlelight marriage July 22 in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, which the bride had attended since childhood.

She is the daughter of former Northville residents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene S. Guido, who now live on White Lake in Highland. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. O'Grady of Savannah, Georgia.

The couple met while employed with Eastern Michigan University's newspaper, The Echo, where he was editor-in-chief.

Harpisichord and flute music — Handel's "Largo" and "Sonata No. 5" — was by David Heinzman and Carol Miller. James Berlinski sang "The Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The ceremony included the symbolic lighting of a single candle from two by the couple.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a modified Victorian-style gown of white chiffon appliqued with silk Venetian beaded lace. The high sheer neckline of English net and Brussels lace blended into the full, bishop sleeves. The skirt extended into a chapel train.

A Camelot headpiece held her circular, waltz-length veil which was etched with matching lace. She carried a cascade of African lilies, white sweetheart roses and stephanotis. She wore cultured pearl earrings and carried a hand-crocheted handkerchief, gifts from her great-aunts.

Michele (Rody) Harris was matron of honor. She and the bride had been friends since grade school with the bride earlier serving as her honor attendant.

Bridesmaids were Deirdre McGahey of Birmingham, Karen Grimshaw of Ypsilanti and Katie Forgacs of Kent, Ohio, sister of the bridegroom.

All wore off-the-shoulder gowns of apricot chiffon and carried cascade arrangements of African daisies.

Flower girl Wendy Forgacs, seven-year-old niece of the bridegroom, provided an appealing and humorous touch to the ceremony when she delicately placed each individual rose petal on the carpet her new aunt would travel.

Terrance Lynch of Clinton, Iowa, was best man. Groomsmen were Thomas Grimshaw of Ypsilanti and the bride's brothers, Douglas Guido of Houston, Texas, and Daniel Guido, a junior at Central Michigan University.

About 200 attended the ceremony and dinner reception at the Plymouth Hilton Inn. Guests included surprise visitors from Harrogate, England, the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William C.

King. He is a former South Lyon resident and had not seen his family in two years.

Others included the bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. Rosie O'Grady Crowder of Johnston, New York, and his great-aunt, Miss Anna Hines of Philadelphia. Others attended from New Jersey, Florida, Indiana, Ohio, New York and Northern Michigan. A telegram was received from Sydney, Australia.

The bride is a 1972 Northville High School graduate and a 1976 EMU graduate with a BA in radio-television and film. She expects to complete her MA in communications in December at University of Michigan where she is a teaching fellow.

Her husband is a graduate of George C. Marshall High School in Ankara, Turkey, and holds a BA in political science from EMU. He is the editorial editor at The Monroe Evening News.

Opening nears for TH's new lecture series

Opening of Northville Town Hall's 17th season is just a month away, officials emphasized this week in reminding readers that tickets are available.

George Plimpton, called the "contemporary Walter Mitty," will open the 1978-79 TH series on Thursday, October 12.

He will be followed by party-giver Allison LaLand November 2; Dr. Murray Banks, March 8, 1979; and Broadway-television personality Bob Wright, April 12, 1979.

Prices for the four lectures remains at $15. They will continue to be held at the Plymouth Hilton Inn on Northville Road.

Celebrity luncheons will follow each of the lectures. Unlike the lectures, they may be reserved and paid for individually. They will be $6.50 each or may be pre-paid at $26 for the series.

Checks and self-addressed envelopes should be sent to Mrs. Frank Shokaluk, Box 93.

Baby sitters also are available through Our Lady of Victory School. For information, call Mrs. Robert Hodson, 349-7888.

George Plimpton

Plimpton, the season opener, is known for having done a multitude of unlikely things and then writing about them very well.

He quarterbacked with the Detroit Lions, pitched to the All Stars in Yankee Stadium, played bridge with Oswald Jacoby, tennis with Pancho Gonzales and percussion with the New York Philharmonic under the baton of Leonard Bernstein.

Then he wrote about what makes champions tick. His first achievement after Harvard and Cambridge was to be one of the founders of "The Parish Review," a highly esteemed literary magazine.

Allison LaLand

LaLand, who frequently appears on radio and television, gives a complete dimension to the party scene and is known as Washington's "hostess with the mostest."

She attended Greenbriar and Agnes

Ms. Grover's winner

Dance 'best of class'

Elizabeth Grover, a Northville Estates resident, took the Best of Class trophy in the over-17-year old open class competition for Highland dancers at the 49th annual Windsor Firefighters Scottish Highland Games held September 2.

Miss Grover won three second place medals and a first place in the four dances in which she competed, and then was declared the best dancer in the group.

Jeri Brundage and Leslie Grover, both of Northville, and Heather Neil of Novi also won medals at the Windsor games.

Other area dancers who competed were Chris Townsend of Plymouth, Mary and Beth Ross of Northville. All are students at the Bill Weaver School of Scottish Dancing in Northville.

The Windsor games attracted more than 800 dancers from Ontario, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Ohio.

This year's games featured a spectacular ski-diving demonstration in addition to the usual Highland events. They included caber toss, tug-of-war, pipe and drum competition.

Newcomers

New residents of the community attended a Newcomer coffee Wednesday night at Northville United Methodist Church where they learned about the club's first couples party of the season. That event, a Wine and Cheese Tasting Party, will be held Saturday, September 23 in the New School Church in Mill Race Historical Village off Griswold. Above, Jackie Mathis pours coffee for Kay Carbonari, Newcomers President Angie Lehmkuhl, and Pat Gossard. Below, admiring scrapbooks and awards of the club, are Chris Abbey, Peggy Calandro, and Cheri Pearson.

Mormons direct 'roots' program

Members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormons) in Western Wayne County are among those searching for their roots in a church program that has become that most expensive genealogical program in the world.

They report that for seven generations the Mormons have searched for records of their kindred dead.

Mormons now operate the largest genealogical library and are engaged in the most aggressive genealogical microfilming operation ever known, reports Glenn Jensen of the local church.

Local members have the use of a branch library which presently is located in the church building at 20201 Rotunda Drive in Dearborn and is due to be relocated in a new church building at 7575 North Hix Road in Westland about the first of the year.

Anyone interested in getting started on researching family "roots" may obtain a genealogy starter kit through the church or may register for a basic genealogy class beginning this month by calling Len Pavia, 981-2633, or Sharlene Simmons, 459-5024.

Seeking records of their kindred dead is much more than a hobby for four million Mormons throughout the world, they explain.

Members believe that family ties established in this life do not simply last "until death do you part," but they will continue for "time and all eternity" when sealed, or married, by the proper authority in one of the church's 16 temples.

This sealing to unite families also can be performed vicariously for those ancestors who have passed on. In this way, the church states, not only are husbands and wives joined for all eternity, but parents and children, grandparents and grandchildren, for as long as the family line continues.

The present collection of microfilmed records is of pre-1900 vital and legal records collected from 35 nations and every state of the union and represents the equivalent of more than four million printed volumes of 300 pages each.

Microfilm copies are available for researchers at the church genealogical library in Salt Lake City or in 231 branch libraries. They are open to the public as well as church members.

The church points out that the same obsession that prompted Alex Haley to spend 12 years researching and writing his family genealogy story, "Roots," being aired a second time on ABC, has moved the Mormons to collect nearly a million rolls of microfilm containing genealogical records.

The 12-hour television adaptation in Africa to slavery in America to freedom again, became the most-watched U.S. TV series of all time.

"There's something about 'Roots' that's caught the country's responsive chord," said ABC vice-president Brandon Stoddard. "I think it has something to do with the feeling of family and traditional values..."

Mormons say they call this feeling "The Spirit of Elijah" and view it as a literal fulfillment of Biblical prophecy, citing final verses of Malachi 4:5,6 in the Old Testament: "And he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers, lest I come and smite the earth with a curse."

Mothers set meeting

First meeting of the new year for the Northville Mother's Club will be held Monday, September 18 at the home of Barbara Willoughby.

The 8 p.m. meeting will be hosted "by" Carolyn Nieuwkoop, Connie Conder and Luanne McCurdy.

During the session, the club will welcome and introduce a new member,

Judy Somershoe.

Club president, Sue Wright, has extended the club's thanks to Carolann Ayers and Sue Anger "for a great job in arranging all of the marathon bridge groups for the year."

Also, it was announced that the Mother's Club cookbook is still available and on sale at Schrader's Home Furnishings.

Youth club eyes bible study

Northville Presbyterian Youth Club will begin its weekly meetings starting September 20, co-chairman Charlene Frellick and Joan Sellen announce.

The program for students in fourth grade through high school begins at 4 p.m. Wednesdays and runs through the dinner hour. Choir practice, Bible study and a short worship service are included.

This year the new assistant minister of the church, John Mishler, will be in charge of the program based on a national one carried out in more than 2,000 churches of different denominations.

Mrs. Frellick explains.

In past years between 45 and 80 young people have been enrolled. The club is open to all young people in the community.

Meetings for parents to hear about the program and to enroll youngsters will be held at 7:30 p.m. September 18 and 19 at the church. The $17.50 semester fee includes dinners.

Bob Yandain to speak here

Bob Yandain will be the speaker at the seminar held at Open Door Outreach Center, 145 N. Center in Northville. Yandain, a Bible teacher from Tulsa, Oklahoma, is currently an instructor at Rhema Bible Training Center, where he teaches classes on The Life of Christ, New Testament Survey, Galatians, Ephesians, and Colossians.

Teaching sessions will be held Friday the 22nd at 7:30 p.m., and Sunday the 24th at 11:00 a.m.

Speaker aims to clear name

Fall programming of the Wixom Historical Society will have an exciting send-off with the appearance of guest speaker Dr. Richard Mudd on Thursday, September 21, at Wixom City Hall on Pontiac Trail.

Dr. Mudd opens the series presenting the case of his grandfather, Dr. Samuel A. Mudd, a convicted conspirator in the Lincoln assassination. Dr. Mudd has spent 50 of his 78 years attempting to clear the family name and erase the stigma of a 113 year old colloquial expression, "his name is mud."

A wealth of Lincolnian information, the Saginaw physician also holds degrees in history and sociology. Although in retirement as medical director for the General Motors Corporation, Dr. Mudd serves as a substitute director, is a hospital consultant and examiner for the United States Coast Guard and Federal Aviation Agency.

Still active in the Air Reserve and several social organizations, Dr. Mudd is the founder of the Saginaw Genealogical Society and former president of the Saginaw County Historical Society. He is the author of two books about his grandfather and recently published the third edition of the Mudd family genealogy.

The public is invited to hear this outstanding speaker with older children cordially welcome. There is no charge for the entire program series.

Stop smoking!

Clinic slated Monday

Plymouth-Canton High School will host a "Better Living Seminars" smoking withdrawal clinic beginning at 7:30 p.m. Monday, September 18.

This program is based on the Public Service Five-Day Plan to stop smoking developed by the Seventh-Day Adventist Church and will be held in the school's Little Canton Theater.

Cancer Surgeon, Dr. Arthur Weaver, of Northville, will head a group of several professionals who will be donating their services for the free five-night seminar.

Dr. Weaver is associate professor of surgery at Wayne State University and is noted for his fight against tobacco.

His stop-smoking techniques have been popularized by television, radio and many newspaper articles.

He attributes the high success rate of these programs to the combined attack on both the physiological and psychological aspects of the tobacco addiction.

Each of the five evenings will be filled with lectures, audiovisual presentations and group interaction.

Every participant receives a personal "control booklet" with instructions and encouragement programmed for each day of the withdrawal program.

"Every aspect of living has become incorporated into the smoking habit," says the doctor, "and this seminar disentangles the smoker's entire life style."

"We find that most smokers actually enjoy the week! My real pay comes when I see how grateful people are to be rid of the dirty habit!"

No registration is required for this clinic. The program begins at the same time each evening at the Plymouth-Canton School located on Canton Center just south of Joy Road.

OLV's 'Parish Cookbook' hot off presses

By JEAN DAY

A new Northville cookbook is off the presses. It is the "Parish Cookbook of Our Lady of Victory" and is the first to be published by Our Lady's League of the church. Cookbook chairman Barbara A. Isom reports it contains 340 recipes submitted by 155 women of OLV parish and the Northville community. The Town Hall Committee and other friends, including some who have moved from the community, she explains, donated recipes.

"The book," she writes in the introduction, "is representative of the families that make up Our Lady of Victory Parish. Each recipe represents something special to someone in the parish. Some of the recipes are so old that their origins have been lost... one recipe of Polish origin can be traced back through eight generations to ancestors who lived in the venerable city of Krakow around the year 1750.

"Other recipes are of recent vintage. In fact, at least one recipe was created and tested especially for the OLV cookbook."

Printed in easy-to-read type, the book has an attractive yellow, plastic-bound, four color washable cover with the motto, "Kissin' Wears Out — Cookin' don't!" The book is comprehensive with 72 main dish recipes ranging from "Almost Shish Kabobs" to "Zubeefi," as well as a full variety of recipes from appetizers to candies and beverages.

The cookbook was the idea of Marianne Hamell, president of Our Lady's League last year. Recipes were collected from September of 1977 through last February. Mrs. Isom typed and edited the collection with Mrs. Hamell and Shari Zeleznik, current league president, doing the proofreading.

The cookbook will be offered for sale at $4 for the first time in conjunction with a bake sale the weekend of September 24 after all masses in the church social hall. In addition, on weekends of October 1 and 8 it may be purchased. It may be obtained by mail by sending $4 plus 50 cents postage to Cookbook, Our Lady of Victory Church, 770 Thayer Boulevard, Northville.

All profits received will go to league-supported projects, says Mrs. Isom. Past league projects have been purchase of such things as a piano and stage curtains for the social hall, help for area convalescent homes, money to senior citizen groups and sponsorship of a Girl Scout Troop.

It's now 'Camp Fires'

No longer are the Camp Fire Girls called that. The organization officially is The Camp Fires and is organized as a Northville-Canton-Plymouth cluster. The name change reflects the fact that boys as well as girls may participate in the program at the choice of the leader. To date, however, no boys have been enrolled locally.

A field day with sing-alongs, games, displays and demonstration opening and closing ceremonies will be held from 2-4 p.m. Sunday, September 17, in Kellogg Park in the heart of downtown Plymouth. The entire family is invited, report planners, so that they may learn about Camp Fires.

Nancy Smith is leader of the Northville group and may be contacted for information at 349-9326.

They're Taking Off Pounds fashionably

Northville's evening TOPS (Top Off Pounds Sensibly) Chapter No. 177 is holding three special programs "as positive moves to help members toward their goals of weight loss," reports Sue Holstein, adding that the public also is invited to the meetings at 8 p.m. Monday nights in the scout-recreation building at 215 West Cady.

He will present musical highlights of hits, including "Beggars Opera," "Applause" and "My Fair Lady."

A long time stage and TV entertainer, he has been seen on Hallmark Hall of Fame, the U.S. Steel Hour, Jack Paar Show and the Mike Douglas Show.

They're having lunch with the new 'super'

The prospect of having 48 guests for lunch today didn't seem to concern Marge Ercoli at all last week. Actually, she's opening her home for the luncheon being given by the Northville PTA Council. Guests are the school principals and new superintendent Lawrence Nichols. The event has become an annual council-school officials' get-together each fall.

Old home transformed

Upstairs, reached by a closed stairway off the living room, there is the master bedroom, a bath and the bedroom of the other two daughters of the family, Charlotte, 14, and Claudia, 8.

A pale blue color scheme is used in the master bedroom with floral bouquet pattern wallpaper. Here is a handsome brass and white-painted iron bed, a newly covered chaise lounge and a distinctive French marble-top dresser with wicker back and matching chair.

As she leads visitors through the home, Mrs. Paquette mentions that much of their work, such as having new floors laid and removing wallpaper from ceilings, doesn't really show.

There's a new tile floor in the bathroom but the old footed tub was retained. A brown plaid paper sets the color scheme.

Focal point is a daffodil-pattern stained glass window created for the existing window by a local glass shop.

The Paquettes have brought many pieces with them from their larger former home. A large tapestry now hangs in the dining room as does an appealing picture of a young girl.

But the oil painting over the living room mantel, an imposing figure of a man, was "bought to go with the house."

"The house is much farther from my husband's work," Mrs. Paquette comments, mentioning that he now takes the SEMTA bus to his work as a stockbroker in Detroit Renaissance Center.

She adds that he and all the family feel "it's worth it to live here!"
