

From Tehran to Northville with one hour's notice

Still "shaky in the tummys" from a rush flight out of beleaguered Iran, a former Northville resident and her 17-year-old son were looking for a place to live Thursday morning.

Less than 48 hours earlier, Mrs. Dorothy Meissner and son David were boarding a Pan Am 747 in Tehran where they have lived for the past year.

Mrs. Meissner's husband, Ken, is still in Iran where he works for American Bell International, a company formed by AT&T at the request of the Iranian government to update telecommunications in that country.

The quick exodus — they were given an hour's notice — was arranged by the company in the wake of increasing violence, riots and demonstrations resulting from attempts by traditional Moslems to wrest power from the shah.

"I read in today's paper that we went out without radar," said Mrs. Meissner. Although there were troops and tanks in the streets, it was the closing of schools and not fear that prompted the return to the United States.

David, a senior in high school, attended the Tehran American School. Now, he and his mother hope to find furnished living quarters in Northville so he can graduate from Northville High School where he once was a student.

The fighting in Tehran has been prevalent since August when a crowded movie theatre was fire bombed, said Mrs. Meissner, but she said her family has not been endangered.

The Meissners lived in a mostly Iranian sector of north Tehran and said they got along well with their neighbors.

"The last four days, we were told by the Embassy not to leave home. Our Iranian house man went to the supermarket for us," said Mrs. Meissner.

Most of the rioting was in the older, southern part of the city and, although news was limited by the government, they were aware of the fighting, bombings and fires.

"Oh, there were so many fires," said Mrs. Meissner. "And at night, they would turn all the electricity off at 8:15 and soon a chant would start. 'The shah must die. The shah must die.' Five million voices. It was eerie."

Does she have any reservations about her husband staying behind?

"Oh, yes, definitely. But there was a job to be done. He couldn't just pick up and go."

The hostility of the Iranians to Americans puzzles the Meissners.

"Five years ago, everyone was working in offices right with the Iranians," said Mrs. Meissner who also worked for American Bell.

"Then the Iranians came in masses and handed out cards saying 'you are taking our money that belongs to us, so please leave' or to that effect.

"One said, 'We'll be back in five minutes so don't get smart.' There were 20 to 30 of them and my husband said he was scared silly at that point."

The Americans cleared out of the building and have set up temporary quarters elsewhere in the city, said Mrs. Meissner.

The Meissners, who lived in Highland Lakes for about four years before mov-

Scrap super sewer? Northville says 'no'

Winter setting

Sure, it's cold. But the stark, sub-zero weather and the twilight hours often combine for simple beauty for the contemplative soul who is hearty enough to search for it. Record

Photographer David C. Turnley caught this scene on the Ana and Flanders Hamlin farm on Currie Road, between Six Mile and Seven Mile, west of Northville.

Officials score EPA at hearing

Plans for a super sewer in the works for more than 10 years may be scrapped for lack of sufficient data to convince environmentalists the sewer is needed.

That was the unofficial conclusion after more than six hours of public hearings Thursday in Romulus City Hall when both the Northville and Novi mayors, both the Northville Township and Novi engineers and both the former and present Northville Township supervisors spoke out against scrapping the super sewer plan.

The U.S. Environment Protection Agency, which holds the purse strings for a federal grant to finance the $207 million super sewer system, recommended an alternate sewer plan which limits wastewater capacity for the Northville, Novi and Plymouth communities, but expands capacity to the south.

"We are two to three years away from having sufficient data in Novi, Northville and Plymouth" to justify supporting the super sewer, Douglas Ehorn, EPA senior environmental planner, said after testimony had been heard from the large night-time audience, including around 35 Meadowbrook Lake residents.

Echoing the audience's anger at the EPA's stand, Novi Mayor Romaine Roethel said, "What they are really telling us is once you're across Eight Mile Road, don't bother to flush your toilets for the next 20 years while we study the problem some more."

Meadowbrook Lake residents turned out in force to protest improvement of the Walled Lake disposal plant, proposed in the alternate sewer plan supported by the EPA. However, after hearing their protests, Ehorn said, "We don't think enlargement of the Walled Lake plant is a good idea. That's not one of the issues. We believe there are sufficient interceptors to serve Novi and Northville."

The alternate plan proposes the continued use of the Middle Rouge Interceptor and the City of Detroit treatment plant by southern Novi, Northville, Northville Township, Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

Ehorn said the EPA had asked for data from the Wayne County Department of Public Works and that "the burden was on the people to supply the data."

Ehorn said more data was needed on soils, water quality and septic failures. He said existing data was adequate enough to show that plants are needed in the southern area, but "it doesn't show the need in the north to support moving ahead."

Duane Egeland, deputy director and engineer for the Wayne County Department of Public Works, objected that the county received the blame for lack of data.

"We've spent $200,000 to provide you with information," he said. "There comes a point in time when a decision must be made with the information available, and that time is now. If you insist on not making a decision, you've made a decision."

Egeland said communities, unable to wait any longer for a comprehensive sewer plan, would be forced to improve their local wastewater treatment plants. He said such improvements would be the least efficient method of solving the sewer problem.

Egeland pointed out that of the 22 communities involved in the super sewer study area, 15 have signed agreements and committed funds, and five declined to participate in any project. He pointed out that the EPA's alternate plan required participation of White Lake and Wolverine, both of which chose not to join. "Only one community (refusing to join) could upset the funding plans," he said.

"Prognosis for the implementation of Alternate D is very negative," Egeland said, adding that he believed im-

'Mainstreet' financing on February 20 ballot

A special election seeking public support for the issuance of up to $1.6 million in general obligation bonds for improvements in the downtown business district has been called by the Northville City Council for Tuesday, February 20.

The action was taken Monday night. It follows a study of more than one year during which a proposed "Mainstreet 78" plan was adopted by a council-appointed Downtown Development Authority.

In reality financing of the downtown improvements will be accomplished under the relatively new "tax increment" concept. But because of the recently adopted Headlee amendment, plus the necessity of gaining taxpayer-guarantee to make bonds saleable, if Mainstreet 78 is to be accomplished it must have voter approval.

What's involved in the improvement plan is the renovation of the Dunlap street parking lot including installation of underground utilities, new lighting, landscaping and easier access routes; conversion of most of the Main street parking lot east of Northville Drugs to a town square as a center for activities; improvement of access through the town square to deck parking on Mary Alexander Court; new sidewalks, landscaping, lighting, benches, etc., on Main and Center streets.

Mainstreet 78 is an effort by the city to reverse a declining downtown tax-base by making certain improvements in the four-block business district to attract new private investment and encourage improvements in existing business facilities.

DDA committee members are convinced there is already evidence that Mainstreet 78 will accomplish its objective. Under tax increment financing it is possible to retire the improvement bonds by diverting all taxes levied against new taxbase in the downtown area for the purpose of making payments.

Although taxpayers will be asked in the special election to guarantee payment of the Mainstreet 78 bonds, it is anticipated that nearly all of the payments will be made from the new taxbase revenues, however.

At the outset of the project, which will take between one and two years to complete and 12-15 years to finance, it is anticipated up to $365,000 from the city's public improvement fund will be needed to meet bond payments. The city already has some $138,000 in start-up monies for the project earmarked from federal community development grants.

But general obligation bond approval by voters means that the council could levy additional millage to cover bond payments if tax increment financing failed to be adequate. This is precisely why more favorable interest rates can be gained by sale of general obligation bonds.

While estimated cost of the Mainstreet 78 project has been tabbed at $1.4 million, the resolution calling for the special election provides that up to $1.6 million may be sold.

The council approved the election by a unanimous 4-0 vote. Councilman Wallace Nichols was absent. He is recuperating from surgery.

Historic program

School to break special ed tie?

By RICH PERLBERG

For nearly three years, the Northville Public Schools have been responsible for the education about 700 mentally retarded residents of two state-run institutions located with school district boundaries.

Funding has come from the state which in 1975 said that those confined to institutions also have the right to the education mandated in 1971 for all handicapped people up to the age of 26.

But the administration of the program — the hiring and firing, the choice of schools, the imposing transportation program, the direction of the curriculum — rests solely on the shoulders of the seven-member Northville board of education.

It is a precedent-setting situation. Northville's special education program is the largest of 10 such operations in the state and one of the largest in the country. It is also the only one run by a local school board.

In many ways, it is a huge success. Last summer, Special Education Director Leonard Rezmierski was invited to Scotland where he described Northville's program to a world conference on special education.

But last Saturday, the Northville school board spent a large part of a three-hour meeting discussing the wisdom of continuing its role in ISEP, the acronym for Institution Special Education Program.

It is not that the board is critical of ISEP, its goals or performance. To a person, board members have been impressed with both the advances made with seemingly hopeless retarded youngsters and with the innovation, enthusiasm and dedication of the staff.

Rather than shortcomings of ISEP, the board is questioning itself. Does it have the expertise — or desire — to administer one of Michigan's most expensive programs?

Trustee Charles Peltz may have best worded the quandary felt by several board members.

Although not an educator, Peltz said he has a "frame of reference" — garnered as a student and a father — that is helpful when he discusses K-12 education. That "frame of reference" is lacking when special education topics reach the board agenda, he said Saturday.

President Douglas Whitaker took the point a step further.

"I don't think any of us like to sit here and approve item after item that we don't understand, but we've been doing it," he said.

"Maybe there ought to be some thinking by the intermediate school district for another way to do this."

The items approved by the board are staggering — both in cost and in accomplishments.

ISEP has perhaps $1 million in federally-funded computer hardware which is giving some youngsters the first chance in their lives to communicate. Michigan State University Professor John Eulenberg called it the most advanced system of its type in the world.

A new curriculum — hailed by its creators as the first of its kind for extremely low functioning students — was completed last year and is now in use.

General operating expenses — which Northville Township residents will go to the polls to decide who gets the seventh seat on the Board of Trustees.

In fact, they'll go to the polls twice — once for a primary election to decide upon a Democratic and a Republican candidate and then for a general election to decide between the two party winners.

Township Clerk Clarice Sass estimates each election will cost $1,824 for a total of $3,648.

Both elections are necessary even if no Democrats run, as happened in the 1978 primary when the supervisor's, clerk's, treasurer's and two trustees' posts were up for grabs. If 1978 election history repeats itself, the general election could have but one name on the ballot — the winner of the Republican primary.

Even with just one name on the ballot, an election would be necessary in case history repeats itself again with a write-in candidate vying for the seat vacated by Michael Wilson's resignation.

Mrs. Sass notified the county clerk Monday that the Northville Township Board of Trustees had not filled the vacant seat within the 45 days allowed by law after a resignation. The county clerk will notify the governor, who will set both election dates.

In attempts at four different meetings, the board failed to agree on an appointment for the trustee seat, making Trustee Dr. John Swienkowski the winner in the board's battle to complete the township governing body's membership.

Since politicking for the seventh seat replacement began November 30, Swienkowski has held out for the electoral process in selecting a board member to fill the pivotal seat.

Swienkowski voted 'no' on every candidate nominated, including three nominations at two special meetings last week.

At the January 3 meeting, Northville Township Planning Commission Chairman William Bohan urged the board to either appoint a trustee or consider assigning a board member temporarily to the planning commission.

"It is most difficult (for the planning commission) to operate short-handed," Bohan said. "We need the input of a seventh member and the communication between the board and the planning commission."

Supervisor Donald Thomson also stressed the need for a seventh board member before budget negotiations which begin in March.

Mrs. Sass said the elections could be finished by the end of February, at the discretion of the governor, but Treasurer Lee Holland called such a timetable an "unrealistic forecast."

Referring to the projected $3,648 cost of the elections, Swienkowski said he did not find the cost "out of line or out of sight."

Trustee James Nowka disagreed. "There must be a better place to put the money," he said. "If I were a citizen of Northville Township, I would feel the board is going to develop a lot of risks ... I'd be concerned that we can't make a decision."

Sass said she's had many calls from citizens who think an election "is the only fair way to go."

Swienkowski pointed out that the board hadn't "seen anything else come to loggerheads other than this seat."

Nowka called an election an "expensive and wasteful way. It's an unfortunate expense when so many outstanding people" were candidates.

Trustee William Zapke said he was still firmly entrenched in wanting a candidate from Highland Lakes. "Someone chosen now would look like a compromise candidate," he said. "That would be a bad label to wear."

The candidates were Bernard Baldwin, Marilyn Donovan, Dorothy Gay, James Ellenburg, Richard Henningsen, Kenneth McLarty and David Mitchell.

Thomson reminded board members that at a special meeting December 19 Mrs. Sass and Zapke had said they could accept Dorothy Gay, Richard Henningsen or Kenneth McLarty. The board recently appointed McLarty to the planning commission.

Holland said, "McLarty impressed me. He has a law degree; he's an executive with Michigan Bell; he's an independent thinker. I'm proud to nominate him."

Nowka seconded the motion. Zapke said, "We're all convinced he's a qualified individual, but I still support a candidate from Highland Lakes, and my vote will reflect that."

Nowka, Holland and Thomson voted in favor of McLarty, and Swienkowski, Zapke and Mrs. Sass voted against him.

Defeated in avoiding an election, Nowka said, "I don't want to deny anyone the pleasure of going to the voting booth or of campaigning in this weather."

At a special meeting called for Friday in the supervisor's last-ditch effort to get the board to agree upon a candidate and avoid an election, Nowka nominated David Mitchell, whom he had nominated at a previous meeting. Holland seconded the motion.

Nowka, Holland and Thomson voted in favor of Mitchell, and Swienkowski, Zapke and Mrs. Sass voted against him.

From the audience Joseph Fiorilli accused Swienkowski, Zapke and Mrs. Sass of trying to "establish a platform" for former supervisor Wilson Grier so the board could say they had a "do-nothing supervisor for two years."

Swienkowski said he personally hoped Grier didn't run for the trustee seat. "You have a penchant for putting suspicious clouds over everything you don't agree with," he told Fiorilli.

Thomson then addressed Robert W. Russell, member of the board of directors of the Highland Lakes Condominium Association, which asked the board to appoint a Highland Lakes resident to the empty trustee seat. Thomson clarified that the association would be happy with any Highland Lakes resident, not just Dorothy Gay who had previously been nominated.

Thomson then read a resume for Dorothy P. Johnson, 42048 Queen Anne Court, a township resident since 1970 who previously lived at Kings Mill Cooperative.

Thomson said Mrs. Johnson might be "the answer to Zapke's need to have someone from Highland Lakes." He also pointed out that Mrs. Sass had said she would like more women on the board. recently had many calls from township citizens who agreed that an election was the way to go.

Zapke reminded Thomson that he, the supervisor, had refused to support people whom he didn't know. "We started with the idea that each candidate should be interviewed," Zapke said.

Thomson said Zapke had "felt short-changed" and was now being given an opportunity to vote on a Highland Lakes candidate.

The vote went the usual way.

From the audience Leon T. Sylvester said he was disappointed that board members couldn't reach agreement on very good candidates. He expressed concern that some candidates wouldn't run in the primary and general elections, saying the person serving on the board should serve the whole community.

Serious crimes drop 10 percent in city

Serious crime in Northville City continues to run nearly 10 percent behind last year's pace through the first ten months of the year.

Through October, there have been reports of 194 Part I or serious crimes in the city compared with 214 for the same period of time last year.

That marks more than a nine percent drop in that category even though the 21 Part I crimes reported in October of 1978 equals last year's October figure.

Part I crimes include murder, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny and car theft.

Almost all of Northville's Part I crimes are either burglary (also known as breaking and entering), larceny or car theft.

Through October of 1977 and 1978, there have been no murders, one attempted rape, one armed robbery and 20 aggravated assaults.

By contrast, there have been 90 burglaries (47 this year and 43 last year), 259 larcenies (121 this year and 138 last year) and 36 car thefts (14 this year and 22 last year).

The total number of complaints received by the department dipped for the month bringing it almost exactly equal with last year's pace.

The city received 377 calls in October bringing its year's total to 4,210. Last year, the department received 469 calls in October and had 4,215 calls through the end of the first ten months.

Traffic complaints have jumped by 78 percent this year, from 333 to 594.

School heads get pay hike

Pay hikes that will raise most central office administrators' salaries by ten to eleven percent were unanimously approved by the Northville school board Monday night.

The new salary schedule was recommended by Superintendent Lawrence Nichols who said it will "help to reduce the large salary gap which has developed between our central office administrators and those of surrounding districts."

He said he would also move to develop a new pay plan for his central staff that would eliminate the longevity steps that several board members have found troublesome.

In June, the school board delayed approval of a new pay schedule because some board members complained that administrators were, in a sense, getting a double raise because of the step system.

At that time, the board allowed administrators to move up a step on the experience ladder — equivalent to an approximate four percent raise — but did not increase the salary schedule.

Monday night, following what Nichols called a "very complete and thorough study" of Wayne and Oakland County school districts, the board improved the entire pay schedule by 6½ percent.

Coupled with the longevity steps, the new schedule means all administrators who have not reached the fifth year or final step of the schedule will be paid ten to eleven percent more this year than last.

Board President Douglas Whitaker, who in the summer of 1977 cast the deciding vote in favor of administrative pay hikes under the stipulation that the system be reviewed, defended the new schedule.

"This is the last time where we will be annually adopting a salary schedule and automatically adjusting everyone at the same rate," he said.

"People will be moving up if their rating performance justifies it."

Whitaker described central office administrators as a "group not limited in anyway to the contributions it can give" and can "very truly be classified as change agent positions. These people do make change happen."

Nichols said an administrative study of 17 Wayne and Oakland County School districts "which we typically compare ourselves with" indicated that Northville pay scales were "somewhat below" the average for comparable job functions.

He said the new pay plan he will be working on will contain three features: a recognition of position responsibility, a scale of pay grades recognizing relative responsibility, and a range within pay grades reflecting employee performance.

He said he would present one or more plans to the school board by the end of the school year.

The apparent end to the "step" system for central office administrators comes at a time when several members of that group have reached the top step and will no longer benefit from longevity raises.

Here are the new salaries and the total percent increase from last year: Director of Instruction Nancy Soper, Director of Personnel Burton Knighton and Director of Special Education Leonard Rezmierski, $33,708 (11.4 percent); Curriculum Coordinator Michael Burley, $29,012 (10.6 percent); Administrative Assistant for Operations Michael Janchick, $25,496 (6.5 percent);

ISEP Coordinator for Business and Operations John Flaughter and Special Education Coordinator Clark Kelly, $29,339 (11.4 percent).

Harold Hines, the district's new business manager, will receive $29,839 and Rick Cross, who was named to the new position of personnel coordinator, will receive $24,949.

Wrong number

Emergency line has been misused

The Northville Township Police Department's new 911 emergency phone number is getting some use.

And for those who have been dialing 911 as a joke or to make obscene calls, police have a warning.

"We will be over to your house," said irritated Police Chief Ronald Nisun. "Whenever you dial 911, you can hang up all you want but they can still trace you."

Nisun said the department has received a number of crank calls over the line which is supposed to be used exclusively for emergencies.

"If this continues, we'll prosecute," said Nisun. Pranksters, he added, may be under the mistaken impression that their identities will be safe once they hang up.

"Once you dial, we've got you until the police department makes the trace," he said.

Lt. Robert Robertson and tips that failed to nab child killer

After 2 fruitless years, child killer manhunt ends

By RICH PERLBERG

The two-year manhunt for the Oakland County child killer is all over but the questions remain.

Who was he? Why did he kill four young children? Is he still alive? Where is he? Will he strike again?

The trail leading to these answers never did get very warm — despite 300,000 police manhours, a multi-department task force that numbered 250 and more than 16,000 tips — and it is even colder today.

The task force center in a Beverly Hills school has been shut down and records moved to the Northville state police post on Seven Mile Road.

Where there were once nearly 160 investigators assigned to the case, there is now a single full time state trooper.

The flood of tips has dwindled to a trickle and many of those, like the one phoned into Michigan State Police Lieutenant Robert Robertson during an interview last week, have already been checked out and cleared.

Robertson, an assistant commander at the state police district headquarters in Northville, has headed the Oakland County Organized Task Force since March of 1977, two months after it was formed.

"Everybody is frustrated about not solving the case and about the time spent following leads to dead-end after dead-end," he said Wednesday.

"But you've got to get back to normal duties. We're not giving up. We may still get lucky and solve it. A phone call — just like that one — that's all it takes."

That big break has eluded one of that nation's most intensive manhunts. The prey is the man who kidnapped four boys and girls, aged 10 to 12, held them captive for four to nineteen days, and then killed them and then left their bodies lying in the snow.

At the height of the case — during the absence of 11-year-old Timothy King of Birmingham whose body was found March 22, 1977 in Livonia just a few miles west of Northville — there was nearly public hysteria, particularly in Oakland County where all of the victims lived.

Now that the killer has not struck in 22 months, there is mostly apathy; the fear is gone. Even Robertson, who is given to sticking with provable facts rather than speculation, feels that the man is off the streets.

"I accept the psychiatrist's report," he said. "He's been taken away from society either through the form of institution or death."

Wherever he is, police know little more about him than when the Oakland County Task Force was formed two years ago following the disappearance of Kristine Mihelich, a 10-year-old from Berkley who was the third victim.

The case has no precedent. From the start, that has made the investigation worse than looking for a needle in a haystack since police don't know what the needle looks like.

"If you found nude bodies at least you have some idea of what you are looking for — a rapist," said Robertson. "At least you are narrowing the field a little bit."

"In our case, there is no other case like it in the United States or the whole free world. There's the boy-girl thing. The boys are violated, the girls aren't. How come? There's a whole list of 'Why this? How could he possibly do that?'"

The case is like a jigsaw puzzle that may not have enough pieces ... or too many ... or parts from another puzzle ... or pieces that may never fit.

"We can't even get the corners (of the puzzle). If we could, maybe we could get inside," said Robertson.

"In a nutshell, what we're dealing with is that we don't even know where they were abducted. They were going from point A to point B, but where did he abduct them? What does he do with them? Why does he kill them? Why does he leave them along the road?"

"We don't know the answers to any of those."

And despite much publicized events such as the search for the blue Gremlin thought to be driven by the killer, the letter to the psychiatrist from a writer who claimed to live with the killer and the belief that the deaths were somehow triggered by snowstorms,

High school speeding raises residents' ire

It was midnight before Northville's City Council adjourned Monday after wading through an agenda that included citizens' concern over speeding motorists, paving of Beck road north of Eight Mile, appointments to the library commission, board of review and a newly-established city economic development corporation, approval of the District Court budget and pay hikes for department heads.

Tom Berry, 611 East street, reminded council members that two years ago residents of the street serving as the rear entrance to the high school were concerned with speeding traffic to and from the high school.

Berry was joined by Joseph Shipley, 425 East street, and Mrs. Charles Meyers, 146 Walnut, in expressing concern over the safety of area residents, students and residents of the new Allen Terrace senior citizens facility.

They declared that cars ignore speed regulations and often drive two abreast along the street.

The council recalled that when the complaint was first heard two years ago police patrolled the area as often as possible. With the issuance of some tickets it was reported that violations did decrease. But no action was taken to install speed bumps on the steep roadway or a stop sign midway along East street at the Walnut street intersection.

Council members expressed concern over the danger of using speed bumps and also doubted that a stop sign would help. It was noted, however, that a stop sign violation is easier to catch than speeding.

After discussing various solutions including one-way traffic uphill on East street from Walnut and one-way traffic west along old Baseline, which runs along the southern boundary of the high school, it was finally decided to increase police patrol again and investigate the installation of speed bumps to slow down traffic.

The council was given a preliminary estimate of the cost of paving Beck road from Eight Mile to Ten Mile by Harry Mosher, engineer for the city of Novi. One-half mile of Beck road north of Eight Mile along the easterly side of the road lies in the city of Northville, or about one-eighth of the proposed two-mile paving project.

Based upon an estimated $1,000,000 cost for the project, if the costs were split strictly on proportionate share, the paving would cost Northville $125,000. Paving is planned for next spring, said Mosher. The council directed City Manager Steve Walters to discuss the project with Novi officials.

Council unanimously adopted the $372,816 budget as proposed by the 35th District Court. Divided between the Township of Canton and the cities of Northville and Plymouth the Northville share of the total budget amounts to $89,476, up some $5,000 from last year.

In making pay hikes to department heads the council noted that they would be retroactive to July 1, 1978. A five percent interim adjustment was made in September pending union contract settlements for non-department heads.

City Manager Walters was given an increase from $28,080 to $32,500 in salary and accorded the same cost of living increase provided all employees. Police Captain Louis Westfall remained unchanged at $22,818 pending a decision on the hiring of a police chief. City Clerk Joan McAllister's salary was increased from $16,224 to $18,304, while DPW Director Ted Mapes was hiked from $25,958 to $27,955.

Fire graduates

Now that the three newest patrolmen have completed the course, all Northville Township policemen have graduated from the University of Michigan basic fire training course. The

'Best in 100 miles'

Fire chief defends department

Calling the Northville Township Fire Department "the best small fire department within 100 miles," Township Fire Chief Robert Toms delivered an emotional defense of his department at Friday's special Board of Trustees meeting.

His statement was prompted by a brief discussion at Wednesday's special board meeting when Nathaniel Whiteside, 20173 W. Whipple Drive, asked the board to consider joint services with the city for fire protection.

When Whiteside expressed concern that the western end of the township "is without good fire protection," Clerk Clarice Sss said that Mr. and Mrs. Robert Donovan were pleased with the fire department's response when a fire started in the garage of their home at 30131 E. Whipple Drive on December 29.

Whiteside said Ms. Donovan had indicated she was not that pleased. He said, "The fire department arrived there quickly, but there was nothing for them to work with. He said it took 20 minutes for the equipment to arrive.

Township records show that an equipment van was at the scene in 11 minutes, and a tanker was standing by on Main Street in 15 minutes.

Trustee James Lowka said, "Maybe we should try to work something out with the city." Treasurer Lee Holland echoed Whiteside's concern, and Trustee William Zapke suggested locating some place in the western area to store a tanker.

The brief discussion raised Chief Toms' ire and bright him and several firemen to the Friday meeting.

"We had 10 men on the scene, with three fire extinguishers, within two minutes of the call," Toms said, "and all of our equipment was on the scene within 10 minutes. There is no place in the township day or night that we cannot have all of our equipment on the fire scene within four to 12 minutes."

Contacted later, Mrs. Donovan said, "We didn't say they were inefficient in handling this fire and meeting our emergency. In fact, we thought they handled it very well. My comments had to do with the distance involved here, between the Six Mile Road fire station and my home."

"While standing here waiting for the fire equipment to come — as were the volunteer firemen who were here almost immediately — I couldn't help but think about the fire station right down in town which could have been here with the volunteers."

Mrs. Donovan said she felt that the equipment took 20 to 25 minutes to arrive, but in recounting the time, she realized the trucks did not take that long.

"Time seems like it is dragging, not moving at all," she said. "I think they did a good job. I have absolutely no qualms about their abilities. It just seems the town and township could combine efforts in areas where distance is a big factor."

At Friday's meeting Toms said that the City of Novi has a station at Novi Road and Nine Mile Road. "They could cover the northern part of the City of Northville faster than the city can. But I hear no hue and cry that this should be."

He pointed out that the township fire department takes 9,000 gallons of water to fight a fire, and city equipment handles only 1,000 gallons of water.

"Therefore, we would be doing a disservice to our people to have any fire department but our own handle fire protection for any area in our township.

"If the city fire department were to respond to an area like Whipple, they would arrive on the scene only minutes ahead of our department's equipment and they would be in the way of what our men have been trained to do."

Toms called the township's fire protection "the biggest bargain in the state." Of the $43,232 yearly budget, federal revenue sharing pays half, and the state pays $16,000 for protection of state buildings. The township pays $5,615, which works out to $1.75 for each home per year, Toms said.

He pointed out when the township broke off joint services with the city, the township had 1½ fire engines and one-half equipment van.

"Today we have three engines, three tankers, one equipment van, two fire stations and 26 men," he said.

He said he believed if people in the western section of the township wanted to contract for other fire service, they should pay for it out of an assessment. "But as a taxpayer and as the fire chief, I think it is a waste of money," Toms said.

College names executives

Schoolcraft College President C. Nelson Grote has announced two changes affecting executive administrators at the community college.

Dean Fred Stefanski, dean of arts and sciences and coordinator of the office of instructional affairs, is the acting vice president of instruction affairs effective January 1.

Dean Ted Diebel's temporary appointment as acting administrator of the Garden City Center has been extended through the month of January.

Brazil is next stop for Novi travel films

With the holidays over, the Novi Adventure Travel Series returns Wednesday, January 17, with a film trip to exotic Brazil.

Yale-educated freelance writer William Stockdale narrates the 90-minute journey through the home of 95 million people. President John Kennedy once described Brazil as "the only country in the western hemisphere capable of becoming a world power."

The show begins at 8 p.m. at the Novi High School Furst Auditorium located at the corner of Ten Mile and Taft roads. Tickets cost $3 and may be purchased at the door.

This is the fourth stop on the travel series which was booked and arranged by world famous traveler and Detroit-area personality George Pierrot.

The series is sponsored by the Novi Lions Club and proceeds will be used to fund Lion projects to assist the blind.

Season tickets for the last six shows — including next Wednesday's — are $15 and are still available. Still to come are shows featuring California, Mexico, Germany, Hawaii and western Canada.

Season tickets may be purchased at the door, at Travel Masters (43546 Grand River in Novi or call 348-3200) or at Hudson's.

Scrap super sewer? Northville says no

plementation of the original super sewer plan could begin within a few weeks.

At Thursday's 10 a.m. hearing both Wilson Grier, former Northville Township supervisor, and William Mosher, Northville Township engineer, received standing ovations for their appeals to the EPA and WAPORA, Inc., personnel.

EPA was represented by Ehorn and Gene Wojcik, both from the Chicago regional office. Also listening to the audience's concerns were Dan Sweeney and Wayne Lee, representatives of WAPORA, Inc., a Chicago consulting firm which assisted the EPA in its sewer evaluation.

Mosher attacked "pages and pages of irrelevant material" in the EPA's environmental impact statement concerning the Huron Valley wastewater control system facilities plan. He criticized the statement's "elementary schoolbook discussions" of environmental data and its "schoolboy essay" on the variations and degrees of wastewater treatment.

Mosher scoffed at the EPA's concern that sewer construction might disturb a "kirtland's warbler or an eastern timberwolf, neither of which has inhabited this area within the memory of the oldest resident."

Mosher said, "Your staff apparently have been most successful in sheltering themselves from contamination or confusion by exposure to any facts," pointing out that no EPA or WAPORA representative had contacted Northville Township for data compiled over the years.

He gave statistics which he said showed that both the impact statement's population projections and domestic and industrial wastewater figures were in error.

The statement projected a 1995 Northville Township population of 22,390, even though development now in progress will bring the population up to 22,300, he said.

"We know that your population figures for neighboring communities are similarly distorted," Mosher said. "The only possible conclusion is that they have to be politically inspired prophecies which the perpetrators hope will be self-fulfilling."

He contended the proposal that much of the Northville Township area be served by septic tanks ignored the Wayne County Department of Health's decision that much of the area is unsuitable for them. He also objected to the proposed enlargement of the Walled Lake treatment plant, saying he doubted if such enlargement could be accomplished.

"You may be well advised to realize that throughout this region there is a powerful feeling of resentment that the taxes we pay the federal government are expended to compile and publish such falderol as this," Mosher said, "while unreasonably delaying implementation of our project and progressively increasing the cost of any project."

Mosher urged that the EPA discard the "insupportable conclusions" of the statement and begin immediate development of the super sewer, a 50-mile long line running from southern Oakland County to Lake Erie, where a new treatment plant would be built. The super sewer would free western communities from their dependence upon the Detroit treatment plant.

Ronald Birou, 23088 Ennishore Drive, Novi, pointed out that the super sewer was supposed to cost $207 million, while the alternate plan would cost $153 million. "The red herring that delayed the program two years has already caused us to spend the $50 million difference waiting for you to make up your mind," he said.

He said the EPA's alternate plan was good for only 15 years, as opposed to the super sewer which would solve the sewer problem indefinitely. He pointed out that the super sewer would cost $22 per year per person, while the EPA's alternate plan would cost $21 per year per person.

Varied workshops offered at Madonna

Reflecting its wide range of majors, the Business Administration Department at Madonna College in Livonia is offering a series of Winter Workshops and Seminars on everything from computers in law enforcement to women in management.

Madonna's Department of Business Administration, a relatively new department within this four-year liberal arts college, has exhibited steady and rapid growth, and this year offers Business Administration majors in Accounting and Finance, Bank Administration, Computer Science, Management Administration and Marketing.

Spanning the entire Term II, the workshop and seminar offerings may be classified into several main categories: Allied Health Management, Public Relations, Women in Business, Law Enforcement and Tax Preparation. Registrations will be accepted until the week prior to each workshop.

In the area of Allied Health Management, Dr. Bernard Landuyt, Dean Emeritus and Distinguished Professor from the School of Business and Administration, University of Detroit, will conduct a series of lecture-seminars on a systems approach to health care administration.

The course, offered for either credit or non-credit, will take place on the following Friday's from 3:30 to 8:30 p.m., January 12 and 26, February 9 and 23, March 9 and 23 and April 6 and 13.

The three credit course is a combined offering of the Business Administration and Radiologic Technology Departments at Madonna.

Within the Marketing area, Madonna's

Business Administration Department is this term offering a series of three workshops in public relations. Taught by Theresa Spinelli, B.A., of the Madonna Business Administration Department, the courses are: P.R. Doing Your Own Thing, March 23-24; P.R. On Peanuts, March 30-31; P.R. The Rules of the Game, April 20-21.

Additional information may be obtained on any of the workshop-seminar offerings or on the Business Administration Department and its selection of areas of specialization by contacting Dr. Charlotte Neuhauser, Department of Business Administration, Madonna College, 36600 Schoolcraft, Livonia, Michigan, 48150, 591-1200.

"You are forcing the desires of the City of Detroit on me," Birou said. "The migration from the city should be handled in other ways."

Birou said he spoke for residents at Meadowbrook Lake, which had 150 homes. He said the residents efforts to clean up the lake since 1969 would be spoiled if the Walled Lake treatment plant were enlarged.

"You are not protecting my environment," he said.

At the conclusion of Birou's speech, more than 30 audience members raised their hands that they agreed with him, and then the crowd gave him a standing ovation. Several other Meadowbrook Lake residents also protested the EPA's alternate sewer plan.

Donald Thomson, Northville Township Supervisor, objected to the EPA's contention that much of the township could be served by septic tanks. He also objected that enlarging the Walled Lake treatment plant would be a danger to the Rouge River.

After telling the audience that data available was not sufficient to support the need for the super sewer, Ehorn responded to the audience's frequent allegations that the EPA's sewer recommendation could prevent migration from Detroit to the suburbs.

"We are not a growth control agency, but our job is to discourage wasteful sprawl," Ehorn said. The EPA has contended it opposes the 'super sewer' because it would spur growth and pollution. Such suburban growth, it suggests, would be inconsistent with President Carter's pledge to assist central cities.

SEMCOG nixes EPA's sewer plan

In a surprise move Monday SEMCOG went on record supporting the proposed super sewer and opposing the EPA's alternate plan D.

Northville Mayor Paul Vernon and City Manager Steve Walters attended the meeting to urge opposition of Alternate D as proposed in the Draft Environmental Impact Statement for the Huron Valley Wastewater Control System.

Pleased that SEMCOG endorsed the super sewer (alternate A-1), Vernon said, "It's not generally SEMCOG's policy to endorse a system, but only to react to a statement," that is — to take either a negative or positive stand on the statement's recommendation.

"We were able to prevail and to get the committee in two separate motions to oppose alternate D and to recommend proceeding with the planning of alternate A-1," Vernon said. "There was some feeling that the impact statement was only an attempt to delay implementation of a super sewer system until such time as the capacity of the Detroit water treatment plant is determined. With that belief we felt that to continue with the planning for alternate A-1 (the super sewer) would be most appropriate."

Commerce Township Supervisor Robert Long and Novi Mayor Romaine Roethel — both opponents of the EPA's alternate plan D — served on the SEMCOG committee that revived the impact statement.

April millage vote expected

A millage election will be presented to Northville school district voters this spring — possibly in April.

Three of the mills currently levied in the district for general operating funds expire this year.

"There is no question in my mind ... (that) we are going to need at least all of those three mills to maintain the current program," Superintendent Lawrence Nichols told the board of education Monday night.

Nichols left open the possibility of seeking additional mills beyond the renewal. He said he would have a recommendation for the board in February based on preliminary budget estimates.

Last June, voters narrowly approved a 2.6-mill hike to maintain the current program while soundly defeating a second request for 2.9 mills which would have restored programs.

The June election came six weeks after a combined 5.5-mill package had been clobbered at the polls.

Board members generally agreed that a special millage election should be conducted this spring rather than waiting for the annual school board election on June 11.

Nichols said the earlier election date gives central office administrators more time to plan for the 1979-80 school year.

Many school officials favor spring millage elections for two other reasons: they prevent millage requests from becoming issues for school board candidates and, if a spring issue fails, there is time for one or two more requests before school starts in fall.

Early board comments indicate that the election would be on March 26, when Schoolcraft Community College has already scheduled a millage election, or late in April.

Board Vice President Christopher Johnson suggested that the board "shy away" from the March date "because people tend to vote for their local (millage) and sink Schoolcraft."

"I'd like to see Schoolcraft stand on its own."

State trooper post gets nine new recruits

As freeway patrol responsibilities continue to grow for Northville's Michigan State Police Post, so do the number of troopers assigned to the Seven Mile Road facility.

When the 95th and largest-ever recruit school was sworn in on December 29 in Lansing, nine of the new troopers were assigned to Northville.

They are: Gregory Bristol of Fenton, Willie Green, Jr., of Detroit, Steven Hartwig of Benton Harbor, Kelly Hillary of Grand Rapids, Frank McCrary of Detroit, Larry Metcalf of Detroit, Carl Nelson of Detroit, Gary Robinson of Detroit and Lorenzo Veal, Jr., of Detroit.

Nelson earned one of four recruit class awards. He was cited for marksmanship.

The class, which began with 24 candidates in September, graduated 133 which was 19 larger than the previous high of 114 in April of 1956.

It came on the heels of 113 graduates in September which is now the third-largest recruit school. Only four schools in history has exceeded 100 at graduation.

The December graduates, the fourth group to graduate in 1978, contained 31 members of minority groups or 23 percent.

The class breakdown by sex and/or minority groups is numerically and by percentage as follows:

White males, 97 and

Death may spur new policy at state hospital

The death of a Northville State Hospital patient from injuries sustained Christmas Eve has had a "devastating impact" on the institution's staff and may result in procedure changes.

But Acting Director John Reynolds said that he is satisfied that the death — the hospital's third in 1978 — was not due to negligence.

"This has had a devastating impact on the whole staff," Reynolds said Monday.

"Anytime there is a situation like this, you have to reassess to see what you are doing and what extra we can do."

Possible needed changes, said Reynolds, include an improved staff ratio, better programs for patients and more supervision and surveillance.

Angelo Lutchter, 17, Detroit, died from head injuries early Sunday morning, December 30, at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia.

He had been a patient there since Christmas Eve when he was reportedly found unconscious on the floor of his private room at the state hospital, located on Seven Mile Road in eastern Northville Township.

A fellow patient, Anthony Moore, 21, also of Detroit, was arraigned Friday on a manslaughter charge in connection with the death. Moore was scheduled to face a preliminary examination in circuit court tomorrow (Thursday).

Moore told state police in Northville that he fought with Lutchter and kicked him 20 to 30 times shortly before Lutchter was discovered.

A Wayne County Medical Examiner's report said Lutchter's injuries did not indicate such a beating. Lutchter, according to the report, died from brain damage from a blow to the head.

Detective James Collins of the Northville state police post declined Monday to discuss details of his investigation leading the manslaughter charge. He did say he thought discrepancies between Moore's alleged report to police and the Medical Examiner's findings had been straightened out.

"My theory of the case will fit in with the pathologist's," he said.

Moore may not immediately stand trial. Two days prior to Lutchter's injury, Moore was found not competent to stand trial to face a car theft charge.

Collins said he saw no reason to suspect the state hospital was guilty of negligence.

The Department of Social Services is investigating the incident. Acting Director Reynolds said he did not want to discuss possible changes in hospital procedures until that investigation was complete.

Lutchter's December 30 death means the hospital ended 1978 just as it began the year — with death.

On January 3, a 19-year-old Detroit youth apparently committed suicide by using his nylon T-shirt to hang himself from a heating pipe in a small seclusion room.

Hospital officials said the youth had been allowed to keep his clothes because he had shown no suicidal tendencies and had been checked every 15 minutes in accordance with regulations.

Four days later, a 31-year-old female patient was struck by a car and killed on Seven Mile Road in front of the hospital.

The woman, who had left hospital grounds without permission, had almost been hit by a car under similar circumstances three months earlier. At that time, she had told authorities that she was trying to commit suicide but had changed her mind.

When she died in January, she was not under constant supervision because hospital psychiatrists said she was not suicidal.

The hospital, which in the past has riled and sometimes scared neighbors because of escaping patients, has had other deaths in recent years.

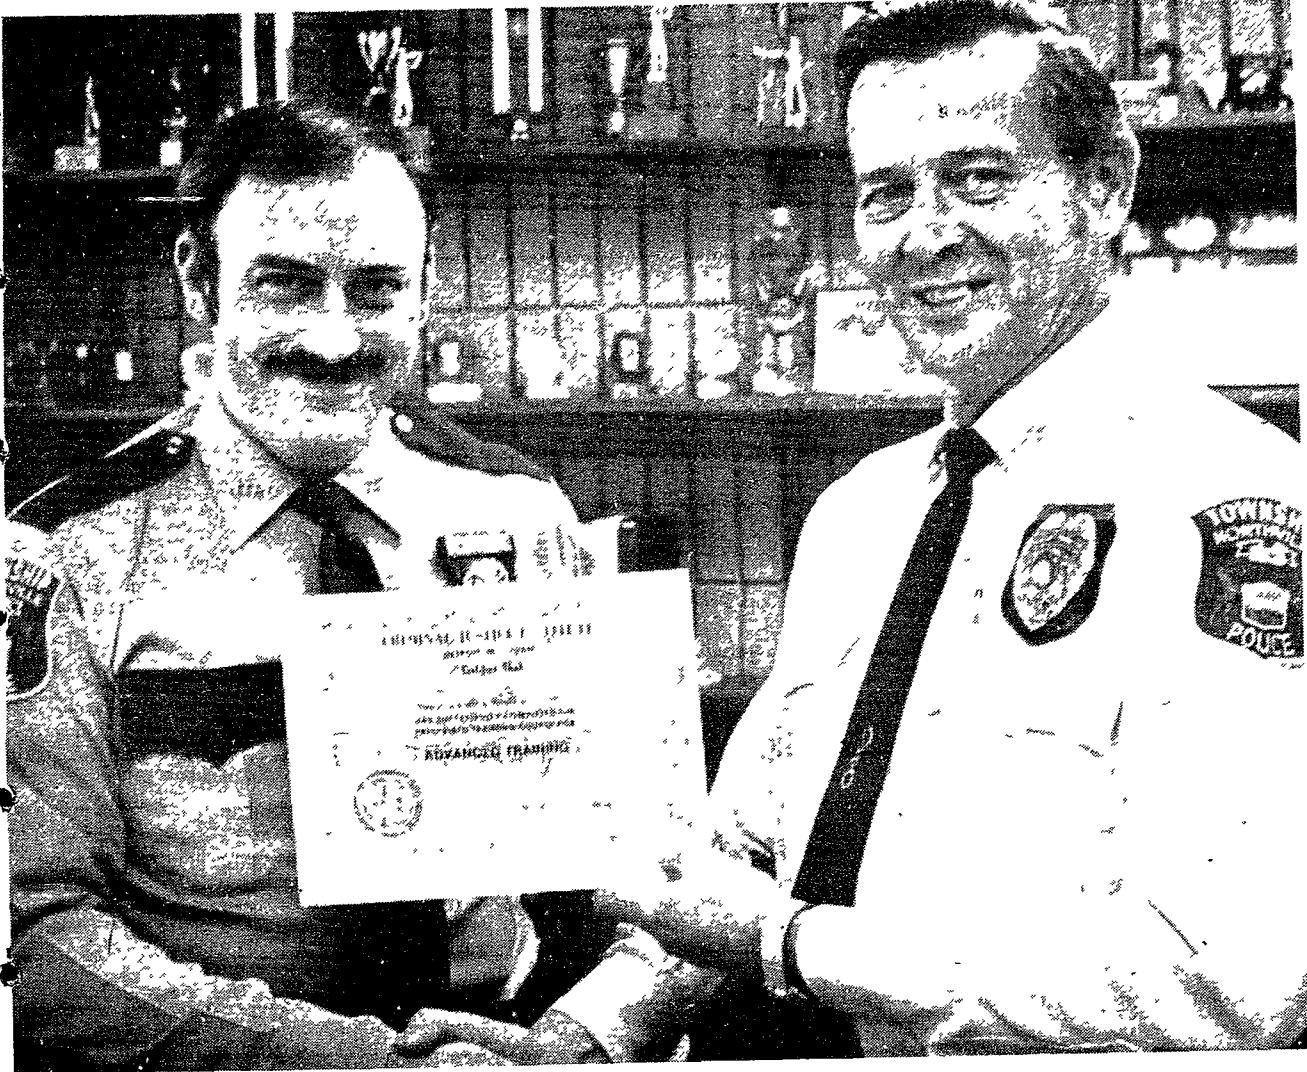

In 1975, a patient escaped and drowned in a nearby lake. Later that same year, another patient died after reportedly being attacked by another patient.

Ironically, the 43-year-old female suspect in that case herself suffered head wounds and a fractured arm when, according to hospital staff, she was attacked by another patient.

The mother of the woman claimed her daughter was beaten by the staff who then tried to cover up the injuries.

The charges were not substantiated but Office of Recipient Rights officer said the staff erred in not reporting the injury to the mother who said she did not learn of them until her daughter visited home.

In 1976, a male patient died when he jumped more than eight floors to his death.

No improvement

Northville Township Patrolman Gary Batzloff (left) couldn't improve on his class standing when he went to an advanced training course at the Wayne County Criminal Justice Institute but Chief Ronald Nisun isn't upset. That's because Batzloff finished the course in the same position as he did in the basic training course three years ago — at the top of his class. Batzloff's 98 out of 100 score was tops among the 28 suburban police officers at the institute.

Tech honors

Two Northville residents are among the 761 students at Michigan Technological University who have been cited for academic excellence.

Named to the honor roll from Northville were:

John M. Bedford, a freshman majoring in forestry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Bedford, 19450 Beck Road; and Ole J. Thorsrud, a junior majoring in mechanical engineering, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ole J. Thorsrud, 22301 Napier Road.

Dorothy Meissner and son David were looking for a new home Thursday

Their plane had no radar

ing to Tehran, found the city to be exciting, entertaining and unusual. "You'd never believe it. Everything is so high priced," said Mrs. Meissner. "An apartment is 80,000 rials a month ($1,200), a box of cereal cost $3.50 and Hi-C orange juice is $5 a can and they are on the shelf so people must be buying them. "They refrigerate nothing. And they'll kill their sheep right in front of your home. Someone will be walking his herd through town. Someone else will buy a sheep, kill it and cook it right there. A beautiful neighborhood and blood running in the street. "We never drove a car because of the way they drive. They just put in center lines but when I asked a taxi cab driver why he didn't follow it, he said they were just for the Americans. "If there's an accident, the driver who has his front fender on the inside has the right of way." Americans on business had to keep a low profile and recently were advised not to get into the long bread and gas lines caused by the unrest and strikes. Nevertheless, she said she enjoyed living in Tehran and, if the turmoil subsides, she would return to stay the three years as originally planned. "We wanted to stay. You think you are reading a book, but you are living it. There's so much to see. The weather was perfect — the only snow was in the mountains — and it's so picturesque. "We traveled to Europe and planned to go to Singapore — all the places you read about."

Manhunt ends

Robertson said he never once thought he was close to breaking the case. "Not me," he said. "There are 8,000 blue Gremlins in Michigan. We never made contact with the person who claimed to be the roommate. We don't know if it was valid or a hoax." And the snow? "Certain theories we accept. But everyone has a theory and the media prints all this BS." The killer has not been caught but Robertson said the task force worked well. It is the best way, he said, to avoid duplication and share costs. "Nobody has sufficient resources to handle a major case. The best way is to pool your resources. We've lived in a glass house and conducted ourselves in acceptable fashion. "I think we proved it works. I think we proved to the nation it works." Jealousies and bickering between departments — criticism from Oakland County Sheriff Johannes Spreen notwithstanding — have been minimal, said Robertson. "There have been suggestions that the task force should have been started sooner. I'm not sure how it could have. There has to be a series of crimes before you realize you've got a multi-jurisdictional problem." Tips will be followed but the task force will not be operational again unless another child disappears, he said. "Then it's up to the local police chief. If he wants the task force, he can have it." And it's true, Robertson conceded, that unless a long-shot tip emerges, the best chance of catching the killer is if he strikes again. "With that alternative, you'd never want to catch the guy. Nobody wants that. We've already lost four kids and families have suffered so greatly. "As you walk through a case like this, you ponder what could we have done, what could have been done to get Timothy King back? "But you realize that when you are ramrodding this thing that if you follow through with accepted police procedures, you are probably going to come out all right and walk away feeling you have done all you can do." That, said Robertson, is how he feels.

GOOD TIME WINE
by Jim Roth

Winter sports enthusiasts often find that wine can be one of their best friends. After a hard day on the slopes, a hot spiced wine can really hit the spot. Or, if you are cross-country skiing and planning to picnic, try bringing along a port, which is so rich in flavor. On a warmer day, perhaps for an early spring picnic, try a German white or Portuguese rose, both wines that are generally served chilled and so will be enhanced by the cold air. Save other reds for room temperature service in warmer settings.

Wines go well with all kinds of meals, wherever and whenever you want them. Stop by soon and see our complete selection at GOOD TIME PARTY STORE, 567 Seven Mile Road, 349-1477. Hot sandwiches, submarines, ham & cheese sandwiches are also available from us. Open: Mon. thru Sat. 9 a.m.-10 p.m., Sun. Noon-6 p.m.

'Mini bond'

Settling muddles projects

A settling problem at Amerman Elementary School is having an unsettling effect on $1 million worth of improvements planned for the Northville school district.

The cause and severity of the settling on the western or newer portion of Amerman will not be determined until this spring, according to school officials.

The uncertainty about how much correction measures will cost — estimates vary between $70,000 and $220,000 — limited the school board Monday to approving only those projects which have "first priority" status.

School officials have divided $1 million worth of projects into three priority classifications. Most of those fall under "first priority" heading where job estimates totalled $700,000.

But, because of the Amerman settling, other estimates that have not been nailed down and inflation, Superintendent Lawrence Nichols said, "The first priorities could expend all of the one million dollars."

The $1 million comes from a "mini-bond" issue that was narrowly approved by voters last June to fund capital improvements. Because of financial problems in the school district, maintenance and major repair have been largely neglected in recent school budgets.

Work on some of the first priority projects — remodeling the high school auditorium and reroofing the high school and Cooke Junior High School — began earlier in the school year because of special action by the board.

Finishing those projects will be the first tasks tackled as a result of Monday's board action, according to Michael Janchick, administrative assistant for operation.

Other prime projects will be obtaining plans for a new outdoor athletic facility for Meads Mill Junior High School and providing emergency lights for Meads Mill, and Silver Springs and Winchester elementary schools, said Janchick.

The projects were approved by a 5-1 vote. Trustee Marjorie Sliger objected to the $100,000 budgeted for work on the third floor of the Main Street Elementary School where central administrative offices are located.

Other first priority projects:

High school — floor improvements, locker room repair, gym bleacher replacement, ventilation system for science area, re-keying and replacing doors, and exterior lights installation.

Cooke Junior High School — floor renovation in gym and classrooms, locker room improvements, automatic fire alarm system for kitchen, and heat control improvements.

Meads Mill Junior High School — parking and driveway improvements.

Moraine Elementary School — additional playground facilities, and reroofing.

Amerman Elementary School — heat control improvements.

Silver Springs Elementary School — paving of additional playground facilities and site improvement.

Other first priority projects — paving of parking lot and site improvements and the bus garage; and providing more parking space at Main Street Elementary School.

Good job

Northville resident Frank Tomjack (right) received a state police commendation from Lt. William Tomczyk for his part in helping to get a drunk driver off the road. Tomczyk is commander of the state police post in Northville.

Evaluates evaluation

A Northville school board member evaluated the district's evaluation process Monday and he gave it a low grade.

Trustee Charles Peltz, while perusing supporting documents for two special education teachers recommended for tenure, noted that their evaluations were grouped closely together.

"Really, we evaluated twice in a one-month period which primarily seems to be to meet the requirement of four (evaluations) in two years," said Peltz.

"I'm afraid that's more window dressing than effective evaluation."

Evaluations, he said, should be on a more regular basis to allow for frequent feedback and "not just to meet rules."

One of the teachers was evaluated in December of 1977, March of 1978, December of 1978 and January of 1979.

The other, who works in a different school, was evaluated in December of 1977, February of 1978, December of 1978 and January of 1979.

Personnel Director Burton Knight agreed that the evaluations should have been spread out.

Both teachers were granted tenure.

COMMUNICATIONS FROM CITIZENS: L. W. "Buz" Snow III presented a check to the Allen Terrace Fund in memory of L. W. Snow in the amount of $577.

Mayor Vernon accepted it on behalf of the City of Northville and thanked him. Mayor Vernon stated this would be a living memorial to Dr. Snow and hoped others would do likewise.

A bulletin was read from the Presbyterian Church concerning on the work done at the corner of Main and Hutton and how it enhanced the whole corner.

Mr. John Regan, 1020 Fairfax Court, and Mr. Patrick McConnell, 421 Morgan Cr., had questions regarding the water billing and asked if the City pays the same as Novi and Northville Township.

Mayor Vernon stated each community pays a separate amount. They were reasonably close.

The City Manager gave him a copy of the budget which showed that half the amount goes to Wayne County and the City of Detroit Water and the rest goes for maintenance and various other costs.

Mr. Regan asked approximately how much of the increase represents the additional cost to Wayne County.

City of Detroit concerning the rate increases.

Mayor Vernon also explained how Mayor McNamara of Livonia was on the Water Board and ousted by Mayor Young of Detroit.

Michael S. Kowalski, 985 Springfield Ct., asked where the money was being spent that was supposed to improve the treatment plant.

Mayor Vernon commented the City of Northville is trying to find out. He mentioned the City is trying to get Super Sewer going which would be under the control of the suburbs. The consensus was the City of Detroit did not want this to happen.

Mr. Jay Wendt, 20588 Clement Road, asked when the service charge would be removed, he understood it was temporary.

The City Manager explained the City has carried a service charge for many years but did not itemize it on the statement.

Mr. Wendt asked if the City had ever looked into the possibility of their own treatment facility.

Mayor Vernon commented it would be impractical for each area to have their own facility.

Mr. Richard Wilhelm, 501 Morgan Cr., asked, other than the court case, what action was being taken to resolve the issue. His October bill was $285.

Mayor Vernon mentioned when the deficit is recovered and the Water and Sewer Fund is in a healthy condition, the City Council would consider reducing the rates. He also mentioned a coalition of communities to consolidate efforts to accomplish things that could not be done individually. He stated 22 or 23 communities have indicated interest.

Councilman Johnston explained this is the most frustrating thing the City Council has faced. He mentioned $54,000 for the collapse of the sewer and the need to maintain the pumps and stated Council does not know what else to do.

Councilman Gardner asked for any suggestions.

Mr. Lewis Bartula, 1014 Fairfax Court, asked when the tap fees were raised.

The City Manager answered the rates were developed approximately a year ago and vary from $500 to $700 and slightly higher for commercial.

The City Manager mentioned that 300 new homesites will be built next season and the City should take a look at the tap fees.

Mr. Norris Shake, 429 Morgan Cr. asked the actual Detroit rate charges Northville for the sewer rates.

The City Manager stated the sewage is 30.12.

The City Manager explained the charges.

Mr. Shake mentioned he appreciates the Council saying they are not going to pass on the rate increase at this time. He also asked for guidelines for installing a well to water his lawn.

The City Manager commented Mr. Shake would have to have a county health permit and the well could not be clogged with the water system in the house.

Mayor Vernon commented any additional charges are going into a fund and are not going to the City of Detroit.

The City Attorney stated if the court determines in favor of the suburbs, the cost or portion thereof would have to be related back.

Mayor Vernon thanked the audience for coming and expressing their opinions and recessed the meeting at 9:55 p.m.

Meeting reconvened at 10:05 p.m.

Mr. Mike Kowalski, 985 Springfield Ct., a member of the Northville Newcomers Club, made a presentation on behalf of Mr. Marge Lemkuhl, President.

Mr. Kowalski stated the Newcomers Club would be holding a Millionaires Party in February and needs a Resolution stating the Club is a non-profit organization in compliance with State Law.

Motion by Councilman Nichols supported by Councilman Gardner to adopt a Resolution recognizing the Northville Newcomers Club as a non-profit organization subject to the City Attorney's approval.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

PUBLIC HEARING TO CONSIDER AN ORDINANCE TO THE PARKING OF CERTAIN COMMERCIAL VEHICLES UPON RESIDENTIALLY ZONED PRIVATE PROPERTY, TITLE 5, CHAPTER 10:

Mayor Vernon opened the Public Hearing and asked the City Clerk to read the notice as published. He asked for any comments.

Mr. Cliff Shoebridge, 303 Pennell, asked if this referred to pieces of machinery or just trucks.

Mayor Vernon stated just trucks.

Mr. Shoebridge stated the machinery has been there many years and a landfill was operated on Pennell and Butler.

he was being deprived of this constitutional rights as he uses the truck in his work.

Councilman Johnston asked what the other vehicles were.

Mr. Cross stated the others were panel trucks with ladders. He was told these were allowed under the ordinance.

Mr. Cross stated some of his equipment is in his truck.

Mayor Vernon mentioned it was hard to pass an ordinance that did not inconvenience someone, and that ordinances must apply to all citizens equally.

Mr. Jerry Ashby, 765 Grace, asked about having signs on trucks.

The City Attorney responded there was nothing in the ordinance prohibiting signs.

Mrs. Blanchard agreed with Mr. Cross and further stated she thought the City is making an eyesore more important than someone's business.

Mrs. Blanchard also mentioned they would either have to buy another truck or she would have to get up early and take him to work.

Mr. Cross stated she was being deprived of her rights.

Mayor Vernon asked if there were any more comments, three being none, he closed the Public Hearing and opened it up for discussion by the City Council.

Councilman DeRusha stated he was sympathetic however Council has to think in terms of the whole City rather than several people.

Motion by Councilman Johnston support by Councilman Gardner to adopt an Ordinance To the Parking of Certain Commercial Vehicles Upon Residentially Zoned Private Property, Title 5, Chapter 10.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

LIQUOR LICENSE TRANSFER TO 111 W. MAIN: Mayor Vernon explained that Mr. Rea would not be at the Council meeting due to a death in his family.

A memo from the Building Office stating the basement had been cleared of combustibles, the first floor halls have been cleared of pinball machines; the fence removed from the rear of the building; an electrical permit has been obtained and a building permit has been obtained for the remainder of the required work, but that all work has not been completed.

Mr. Huntoon, owner of the Winner's Circle, stated they would like to have the transfer for the holidays.

Councilman Nichols thought Council should wait until the work was completed.

Councilman Johnston commented the work should have been months ago.

Councilman DeRusha asked that a statement from the Building Inspector saying the work had been completed be received before acting on the license.

Mayor Vernon concurred that Council should wait until a report had been received from the Building Official that the work was completed.

FAIRBROOK COURT ASSESSMENT REPORT: A communication from the City Manager, of Street Construction Project for Fairbrook Court with an estimated assessment roll. The project total was approximately $40,090. It was recommended the basis of assessment be according to benefit, with the assessable cost distributed one-half (1/2) share per lot fronting on Fairbrook Court, and one (1) share per lot fronting on Fairbrook Court.

Mr. Robert Quirk, 380 Fairbrook Ct., Mr. Norman Sarvis, 420 Fairbrook Ct., Mr. James Long, 400 Fairbrook Ct., Mr. Richard Poole, 320 Fairbrook Ct., Mr. Robert Cole, 356 Fairbrook Ct., Mr. Roy Singleton, 378 Fairbrook Ct. all spoke against repaving.

Mr. Singleton and Mr. Quirk mentioned they would like to see the road maintained a little better.

Consensus of the Council was not to call a Public Hearing on the Assessment roll to pave Fairbrook Court.

SEMCOG MEETING JANUARY 4, 1979: HURON VALLEY WASTEWATER CONTROL SYSTEM DRAFT — WIA: Mayor Vernon asked the City Manager if he had talked with Duane Egeland.

The City Manager answered in the affirmative but had not received any new information from Mr. Egeland.

Mayor Vernon asked the City Manager to submit a written statement to SEMCOG.

DDA FINANCING: The City Manager suggested the City Council needs to consider calling for an election for the DDA bonding.

Mrs. Carolann Ayres, President of the Library Commission, asked Council to call for an election at the same time for the Library funding.

Mayor Vernon stated he felt there was not enough time to prepare the Library funding proposal with the DDA proposal.

Motion by Councilman Gardner supported by Councilman DeRusha to call for an election on the DDA bonding for Tuesday, February 20, 1979; or if not possible, on Tuesday, February 27, 1979.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

Motion by Councilman Nichols supported by Councilman Johnston that the low bid of Macaulay's of $1,543.66 City and $741.18 Police be accepted.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

A letter was also received from Bowden & Assoc. indicating a lower umbrella bid is expected, but the quote had not been received as of the Council meeting.

Letter received December 18, 1978, with the 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 quotes. The $3,000,000 cost was $11,628.00.

Motion by Councilman Johnston support by Councilman DeRusha to accept the bid from the Insurance Center to purchase $3,000,000 Umbrella Insurance bid at $11,628.00.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

Three new businesses are open in Ware's Square on Hutton in Northville's historic district. Garlands, roping and wreaths have decorated the cinnamon-colored buildings during the holiday season, creating a picturesque winter scene. They hold a restaurant, needlework shop and decorative trim shop. The Square was opened in 1978 by Donald and Mary Ware with Connie's Corner Sitchery becoming the first occupant. IV Seasons Flowers added the Vth season for decorative trims and Crichton House restaurant began serving lunch and dinner in December.

Police outlook

Chief sees need for bigger force

For Northville Township Police Chief Ronald Nisun, the need for increasing the size of his department is one of simple arithmetic.

There are and will be more homes and people in Northville Township. Logically, he says, there will also be more crime. Carry that one step forward, he says, and there will be a need for more police.

"I sure hope so," he says when asked if 1979 will bring him a larger force. "We definitely need more manpower."

The township force was increased by two — from eight to ten — last year but Nisun has already asked for more.

"I want to be able to maintain at least two (patrolmen) on the road at all times," he explains.

A larger force would also let the department spend more needed time on investigations, he adds.

More investigation, he says, should be spent following up arson, breaking and enterings and vandalism. He also wants to concentrate more on traffic control to possibly reduce accidents, particularly those caused by excessive speed or alcohol.

But it is the arson, which struck the township at a regular rate last year; the break-ins, where there has been a "definite upturn" with the addition of new homes; and the vandalism, "lawn jobs and mail boxes" where Nisun says he is lacking in staff.

"Somebody has to follow these things up and investigate them," he says. Additional police officers I feel, as chief and head of the department, are badly needed."

Nisun concedes that, in addition to more police, he also wants more promotions. At the moment, only he and Sergeant Kenneth Hardesty are sergeants.

That is demoralizing, he says, to those officers looking for a career ladder to climb. It is especially grating when they look down the road at the 14-man Northville City Police Department which at five, already has 2½ times the command officers of its township counterpart.

To make matters worse, the city will soon promote three patrolmen to corporal giving the department literally more chiefs than Indians.

Captain Louis Westfall justifies the promotions. He says they insure that a command officer will be on duty at all times, particularly during racing season when one command officer is assigned to the Northville Downs track. "There are times right now when we have a senior officer in a command responsibility," says Westfall.

Since all non-command officers are members of the same police officers' association, Westfall says it is possible that a junior officer might refuse to follow another patrolman's order.

"It's just a good situation to have a command officer in charge of a shift," says Westfall.

As for the upcoming year, Westfall hopes to see a continuation of the decreasing serious crime rate within the city.

No doubt he and other members of the force would like to see some resolution of the long-unfilled police chief's position.

The city has been without a police chief for five years and city fathers have consistently delayed and postponed efforts to name a new one.

Oral interviews with six finalists for the job were to have begun this month. Westfall, who has been running the day-to-day operations of the department since 1973, is one of the candidates.

For Lieutenant William Tomczyk, commander of the Michigan State Police post in Northville, 1979 will mean continued expansion.

With his post assuming expressway patrol for portions of I-96, I-696, I-275 and the Southfield Freeway, the manpower at the Seven Mile Road department has expanded to 77 with another 12 to 15 on the way.

MSU student gets grant

John L. Elstro, a student at Michigan State University, is one of 22 students to be awarded food service scholarships by the Michigan Restaurant Association.

He received $400, with $200 coming from the association and $200 from the Lansing area chapter. He is the son of Henry and Beatrice Elstro of Lake Success Drive in Northville.

Paul Andries, a Mercy College of Detroit student from Novi, also received $400.

A total of $8,000 in food service scholarships was given by the Michigan Restaurant Association. Spring 1979 semester scholarships amount to $600 more than those given by MRA last fall, according to Myron Osborn, general manager of Ram's Head Inn in Midland and chairman of the scholarship committee.

The association represents 1,800 restaurants in the state. It has given out $15,400 during 1978 and a total of $31,400 since the scholarship program started in 1976.

Scholarships are awarded twice a year by MRA to students in bona fide food service courses at the college level.

Deadline for 1979 fall term scholarships is June 1. Applications and information are available by contacting the association, 30161 Southfield Road, Southfield, 48076.

Laser fusion studied as new energy source

Industry and university participation in the ICF program amounts to about 20 percent of the available funding while about 80 percent is used to fund research conducted at three DOE national laboratories: Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory in New Mexico, Lawrence Livermore Laboratory in California and Sandia Laboratories in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

The development of laser fusion as an energy source is based on the concept of using extremely high-powered, short pulses of laser energy to implode and compress pellets of thermonuclear fuel to densities of approximately 1,000 times and density of normal solids, and thus heat the pellets to "ignition" of the thermonuclear fuel. ICF experiments involve electron and ion beam devices, in addition to various types of lasers.

SPEAKING for The Record By BILL SLIGER

A wire service story in the national press recently reported that Dan Rather, the CBS television reporter, was one of the top 10 men on a list compiled by some sort of women's organization devoted to looking at men.

I don't know whether Rather is handsome or not. But ordinarily my reaction to almost any TV newscaster appearing on such a list would be predictable.

From my biased print-media viewpoint most TV news commentators are show biz personalities reading scripts.

Upon reading "The Camera Never Blinks" I'm convinced Dan Rather is a first class journalist, who would be a welcome reporter to any newspaper. If the gals happen to think he's attractive, all the better. I hope it helps his ratings. And for these long winter evenings I'd recommend reading the Rather book.

He covers some of our recent history's most exciting and tumultuous events including civil rights, the marches in the South, Vietnam, the assassinations of John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King and Watergate.

Actually, Rather covers much of his life going back to the days when he could not afford to attend college and tried his level best to win a football scholarship. Aside from questionable talent, Rather suffered from being small and having a coach who delighted in testing his courage. The under-sized Rather was installed as a defensive end in scrimmage. A series of power sweeps around Rather's end nearly cost him his life. But the coach of the tiny East Texas college finally had to tell Rather he was through after more than a full season of hanging on — still hoping for a scholarship — and working odd jobs. It was, he says, one of the few times he remembers crying.

Fortunately for Rather he had a bright, young professor with a master's degree from the Missouri School of Journalism. Obviously, he recognized talent in Rather. And he saved him from the punishment of football by securing the youngster an announcer-handyman job for a small radio station.

The professor is credited by Rather for inspiring his career in journalism. And it is one well founded in the fundamentals of getting the story and writing it promptly and accurately.

There have been, and still are, many outstanding radio-TV journalists. I'd like to think most of them came through the newspaper ranks. But while television promotes its commentators via a ratings-star system, it is evident that such men as Ed Murrow, Walter Cronkite, David Brinkley, John Chancellor, Harry Reasoner, Eric Sevareid, Mike Wallace and Edwin Newman are much more than just pretty faces and voices. They are all first-rate journalists of the electronic media.

"The Camera Never Blinks" gives the reader a real insight into the kind of thinking that goes through the mind of a journalist when he is working on a story like "Watergate" day after day. It reveals the anxieties and dangers of covering civil rights demonstrations in the South. And it takes you to the battlegrounds of Vietnam.

But moreover in my view it demonstrates the burden of responsibility felt by a journalist to do his job totally and accurately regardless of personal feelings.

I think Rather accomplished this remarkably well under most trying conditions. He was not the hero of Watergate to many viewers, nor to those in the Nixon White House.

But to this reporter Rather stands as one of the most thoughtful, sensitive and dedicated professional newsmen serving the broad television audience.

One of Northville's most popular downtown merchants passed away last Friday after an 18-year career of greeting customers.

The announcement of her death won't make the obituary page. So for her many friends who might be planning to visit Lapham's Men's Shop in the near future here's the sad news.

Zippy is dead.

The little black mongrel has been a fixture at Lapham's since she was two months old. She was one of a litter of six and the last puppy to be sold from the store window in a "dog days" promotion sale. But she was returned by the little girl who had made the two dollar purchase because "mommy says she's the wrong kind."

So Scott and Terry, the son and daughter of Lapham's owners Chuck and Maxine Lapham, contributed one dollar apiece to buy the reject black puppy with a white streak in front ... "like a zipper."

Zippy always wore a white starched collar, imported from England by the dozen, and a plaid bow tie. During business hours she was in the store — not guarding, but greeting.

She had friends who brought her chicken broth when she was sick and presented her with a chocolate cake on her birthday.

At the annual "dog days" sale Zippy's picture appeared in Lapham's newspaper advertisement. But she became the attraction — not one of the sale items.

She is one refund the Laphams are happy to have made; a reject that will be missed by everyone.

Speaking for Myself

Too much sex on TV?

DENNIS DUNWOODIE

YES

My point of view is based primarily on my feelings as a parent of young children. The fact that adult programs are presented at late hours is not to be considered as subject to my criticism.

Many of the highly-rated situation comedies on TV which are intellectually aimed at elementary and middle school aged children are laced with sexual innuendo and are often presented in a manner which is highly suggestive of teenage and young adult promiscuity.

Many people would argue that this material passes over the heads of young children. An occasional sexual reference might be missed by children; however, the constant bombardment of sexually oriented material is certain to leave an impression and, unfortunately, one that is not consistent with the role that sex plays in the lives of mature and responsible adults.

TV advertising is perhaps the most offensive of all. To be watching a children's Christmas special as a family only to be interrupted by some shapely actress stating that her panty hose make her look like she "ain't wearing nothin'," or a daytime homemaker who uses a certain brand of perfume to turn her into a nighttime sex kitten is at best a most distasteful use of mass media as a means of selling a product to a captive audience.

At the very least TV has a responsibility to refrain from this type of blatant abuse of its power during the hour which was once referred to as the "family hour."

TV offers much in the way of enriching and entertaining programming. It is more than simply unfortunate that sex is used in such large measure to influence impressionable young minds. It is an issue to which all conscientious and responsible adults should be addressing themselves.

Pat Miltimore
South Lyon PTA president

NO

I disagree with the many people who seem to think that modern television shows too much sex.

Television shows that deal with some aspects of sex are restricted to programming after the family hour, 9 p.m. The programmers realize that some subject matter is not suitable for young viewers, and therefore place them in that time slot.

Shows heavily laden with "mature" themes are specifically labeled "parental discretion advised."

These shows are set aside as such to avoid broadcasting them to people who might be offended by their content.

If there really is too much sex on TV, who's to say that it is or will be harmful?

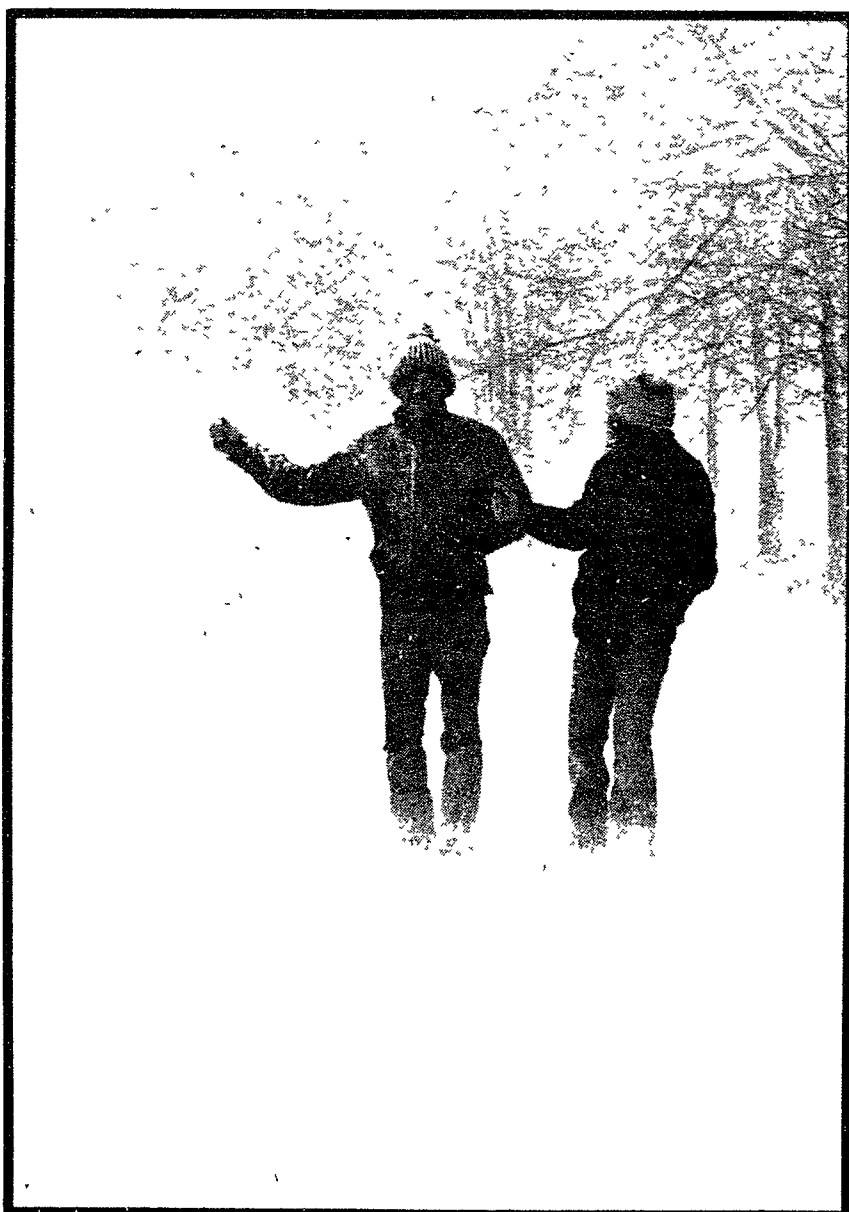

Canadian television is relatively uncensored, showing many risque movies in their entirety, yet we notice no great depravity on the part of most Canadian children. This leads me to believe that there is no real hazard at all.

There is always one good answer to people who find modern television obscene or disgusting, and that's this: every television still has a switch to turn it off, and if you don't like the quality of a particular show, nobody is forcing you to watch it.

JACK W. HOFFMAN'S COLUMN

They had never dated. Their romance, his proposal and her acceptance had been by mail.

On the church steps, she said, "Meet your best man. Isn't he handsome?"

She and the best man giggled, and then he said, "Forget something, flatfoot?"

If there's anything worse than meeting your best man for the first time on the church steps, it's meeting a best man who demands a salute.

An infantryman, the nervous bridegroom had traveled half way around the world to get married in a strange place, among strange people. The bride, an airman, had arranged everything, even the best man.

The only thing going for the bridegroom was that he wore two stripes, his bride only one.

En route to the altar, the soldier asked his bride, "Where did you get the best man? In the PX?"

"Why, honey, you remember. He's in my outfit. I wrote you about him. He's so nice and sooo much fun."

"I'll bet he is," whispered the bridegroom. "He reminds me a little of the cook in our mess hall. Both give me indigestion."

So they were married. And when the bridegroom left a few days later, the best man demanded another salute and then said, "Don't worry, I'll take care of her."

"I know, that's what worries me," said the soldier.

All of that was a quarter century ago, but history has a way of repeating itself.

The Hoffmans were remarried yesterday ... half way around the world in a strange place, among strange people.

include the wages of a large and often specialized staff — will be close to $7 million this year. That's nearly as much as Northville spends on K-12 students of which there are six times as many.

Director Rezmierski, who has said that the rights of the handicapped are best promoted at the local level, argued the costs may be high but they are justified.

"From birth to age 26, we have every known handicap in our program," he said. "We don't have football coaches, we have physical therapists. We don't have band directors, we have occupational therapists."

He said the program is cost conscious. Rather than spending $60 million on a super school which the state would have financed, ISEP chose to use vacant school buildings in nearby districts.

ISEP is heavily audited and documents every need and expansion, said Rezmierski. When the board doesn't fully understand, he said it should fall back on previous experience and trust the experts.

Whitaker said the board must do more than trust.

"There is a lack of understanding on the part of the ISEP staff on what our role should be," he said.

"We can't just trust you. We do trust you. We think you are doing a brilliant job with this program. But there is a difference between our admiring that and our understanding that and giving you the overview and the administration that the law demands."

"We can't just trust you anymore than we do K-12. We have got to do more than that."

Doing "more than that" will require more time and effort than some board members wish to give to an already demanding and time consuming job.

One who feels differently is Trustee Marjorie Sliger. She, too, feels "uncomfortable" with her "lack of experience" but felt decisions "should be local. There are those who know less than we do and would make our decisions."

Richard Barron, the board's newest trustee, took exception with that line of reasoning.

"Our own behavior in the last three years is that we give it (ISEP) precious little direct supervision. Where is the great thrust (of local control)? Where is the compelling argument?"

"I don't think it is our job. I think it is something we assumed and can't deliver. I don't think we have the stretch to do both K-12 and ISEP."

"I've been suspicious of the motives that got us into this for a long time."

Geography — Plymouth Center for Human Development and Northville Residential Training Center are both located in Northville Township — and finances — Northville took over ISEP when it was faced with the prospect of empty school buildings — rather than philosophical tenets brought ISEP under school board auspices, he argued.

It is true that ISEP, for economic rather than humanitarian reasons, is an attractive lure for school districts with more classroom space than students. Rezmierski said several school districts that caught wind of Saturday's meeting have already offered to accept ISEP.

ferred to accept ISEP.

"If the district does not want the program, then it should be said," he told the board. "We can move intact."

Indeed, most of the students attend schools outside of Northville. But despite their misgivings, Northville board members are not eager to abandon ISEP without assurances of its destination.

"You don't want it to exist strictly to provide an economic base for a school district," said Trustee Peltz.

It is not, in fact, a foregone conclusion that Northville schools and ISEP will part ways. The district has a contract with the Wayne County Intermediate School District which, if no action is taken, renews annually each summer.

The board, however, may make its intentions known before then. Superintendent Lawrence Nichols said his staff can prepare a position paper in time for a special study session called for Saturday morning, January 20.

That paper and the meeting may provide substantial clues to whether ISEP will continue to be run by the local school board or whether control will be transferred elsewhere.

Annex renovation gets another delay

The Northville school board's decision to take a close look at its involvement with the education of institutionalized mentally retarded youngsters has meant another delay in the renovation of the Main Street Annex.

The 60-year-old, two-story former high school has provided classrooms for nearly three years for deaf and blind students who live in the Plymouth Center for Human Development.

Two years ago, three of the aging structure's rooms were condemned after the discovery of cracked and sagging joists that served as floor supports.

Last fall, after a long delay, the state legislature approved $1.2 million to upgrade the Annex and to bring it into conformity with existing building codes.

The appropriation was based on the architect's estimate but the bureaucratic delay means that prices have since escalated. Some officials believe it could cost 25 percent more to approve the original plans.

Special education officials said they would have to bring the blueprints back to the school board for necessary cuts to fit within the $1.2 million allowance.

But that action will probably be postponed until the school board decides if it is going to continue to administer ISEP, the Institution Special Education Program.

Students go to the Main Street Annex as part of ISEP which is funded by the state.

This time, though, the best man arranged everything ... even himself.

"Oh, you're sooo nice, John" said the bride. "Isn't he a darling?"

"There are other names for John Steimel, some of which are best not repeated," said the bridegroom. "I've a hunch he was a cook in the Army."

"It was a mail-ordered wedding, naturally. 'If you can't trust the mail, who can you trust?' the best man said. 'Don't worry, I've taken care of everything.'"

"I know, that's what worries me."

En route to the altar, the nervous bridegroom asked, "Are you sure you want to go through with this, honey? The minister looks a little like Jim Jones, and I've a feeling the natives are restless."

"Shut up!" said the bride. "You're getting married whether you like it or not."

The only thing going for the bridegroom was that he wore two rings ... one on his finger and the other in his nose.

Killeen wants to reject patrol grant

Wayne County Commissioner George Killeen says that he will urge the county to temporarily reject a $1.3 million state grant to beef up sheriff's traffic patrols unless the state agrees to let the county spend those dollars on more critical law enforcement needs.

Killeen (D-Detroit) said that a November 27 letter from Wayne County Sheriff William Lucas asks the board of commissioners to apply for a $1,253,620 state grant to establish what amounts to a "traffic control and ticketing team" on county secondary roads in an effort to reduce auto accidents.

Under Public Act 416 of 1978, commonly known as the Sheriff's Secondary Road Law, the state made all 83 Michigan counties eligible for state funds to expand sheriff's road patrol services in the area of traffic law enforcement.

The state legislature has appropriated an initial $8.7 million for a statewide secondary road patrol program with Wayne County slated to get $1.3 million for fiscal 1978-79.

"I think it is foolish to talk about expanding traffic road patrols when there is a critical need for those dollars in the criminal justice system already," Killeen stated at a recent news conference called to express his concern about the recently approved legislation.

"Wayne County is in a financial straight jacket," Killeen said. "We are laying off prosecutors and have slashed court budgets and other vital county services in an effort to balance our budget."

"Then, along comes the state, with a tantalizing $1.3 million offering — but unfortunately, those much-needed state dollars are directed solely at the enforcement of traffic violations, rather than the hard-core criminal who is roaming the streets committing murder, rape and armed robbery," Killeen added.

"It would be wonderful if we had the money to do all things — including catching all the speeders and drunks on our highways. But we don't! And it's up to the board of commissioners to determine and adjust our spending priorities so that we use limited dollars in the best interests of all of the taxpayers of this county," he added.

Killeen said he will seek the necessary legislative changes to allow the county to spend those dollars on a county-wide basis for priority law enforcement needs such as the Organized Crime Task Force and the jailing of hardened criminals.

He said he will introduce a resolution before the board of commissioners at its next meeting urging the state to "reconsider" its imposed restrictions on this tax money, especially in light of Wayne County's dire need for funds in the criminal law enforcement area.

"What frustrates me is that the state is willing to spend $1 million to catch normally law-abiding citizens — but it turns the other way when we ask for funds to catch and lock up crooks and violent criminals," he added.

"As the grant offer now stands, only 20 percent of the people of Wayne County would derive any benefit from the million-dollar expenditure," he pointed out. "Cities like Detroit, Dearborn, Harper Woods and the Grosse Pointes already have police departments with traffic control units — and the state police are doing the job on county freeways."

He said that only the villages, and townships (the unincorporated areas) would derive any benefit at all.

In addition, he said, the majority of the revenue collected from traffic offenders would go into the coffers of the few municipalities where the Sheriff would be patrolling.

"That means that a resident of cities like Detroit or Harper Woods would be getting zero — nothing in terms of increased traffic patrols, nothing in increased revenues and nothing out of a $1 million state hand-out of taxpayers' money!"

Killeen also said he had "reservations" about accepting state grants that were "subject to run out in a few years."

"This could leave the county with a new program to fund down the line — and the accompanying labor difficulties, such as we have now, if we try to lay off anybody once state funds run out," he warned.

Killeen said that he wanted the public safety and judiciary committee, which he chairs, and the full board of commissioners, to take a "very close look" at the terms of this grant.

According to the sheriff's letter, the grant would fund a secondary road patrol unit consisting of 27 police officers, one detective (traffic specialist), a police sergeant, and a lieutenant. It would also purchase a fleet of 17 patrol cars, one van, radar sets, radios and other supportive equipment.

He said that in the case of Romulus alone, this grant would cost the county 10 percent to administer the program along with fringe benefits.

"We simply can't afford to be taking on new costs when we are laying off people in critical public services," he concluded.

The public safety and judiciary committee voted to send the sheriff's request on to the ways and means committee without recommendation so that it could be "fully discussed by all 27 commissioners." The ways and means committee is expected to meet in January.

No asbestos suspected in Northville schools

Northville school officials say it is extremely unlikely that potentially hazardous asbestos fibers are floating in the district's classes and hallways.

"We don't have any glass-blown insulation," said Michael Janchick, administrative assistant for operations.

"Glass-blown insulation is found mainly in older structures. In newer schools, only heating and cooling ducts are insulated. Other than that, the only insulation is in our roof structures."

State officials have recommended that individual schools explore the chance that asbestos fibers, a known carcinogenic, may be in school-room air.

Asbestos, a fireproof substance, has been used in the insulation of many schools and state investigators have found, in some cases, that the fibers have been dislodged from the insulation.

Janchick said the only two buildings in the district which might have that type of insulation are the Main Street Annex — which is the 60-year-old former high school — and the Main Street Elementary.

Neither school is now used by Northville public school pupils but both are used daily by other students.

The Annex is a school for blind and deaf retarded youngsters from the Plymouth Center for Human Development. Main Street Elementary, closed three years ago because of financial problems, is rented by the Plymouth Christian Academy.

Janchick said he would soon discover if those buildings had insulation with asbestos lining.

If found, Janchick said the only resource will be to "rip it out."

"The problem is likely going to be in Detroit. Many of those buildings were built in the early 1900s. You could almost bet your bottom dollar that they have it."

And the bottom dollar, said Janchick, may be what it costs to correct the problem.

Defense is awesome, 57-28

Crunch! Mustangs stampede Lions

South Lyon's basketball team met a brick wall called Northville defense last Saturday night.

And the brick wall won.

Exhibiting the type of aggressive man-to-man defense Coach Tim Lutes has been preaching all season long, the Mustangs blazed to a 20-1 lead in the first quarter and went on to manhandle their non-league hosts, 57-28.

South Lyon's point total was the least given up by a Northville team since the Mustangs defeated Monroe in a Christmas tournament 13 years ago, 45-27, and it marked only the third time in the last 25 years that the local squad has held an opponent to under 30 points.

"Everything fell into place," Lutes said of his team's performance, particularly gratifying since it was the Mustangs' first game in almost three weeks. "We just came out and played a super, super defensive ball game."

But then defense has been Northville's strong point throughout most of the season so far. The Mustangs haven't allowed more than 60 points in a game since their season opener.

Lutes, however, felt last weekend's victory was "the first game we've played good man-to-man defense for more than just a few minutes." Prior to the South Lyon contest the first-year coach had been alternating frequently between a man-to-man and zone defense.

"I've always taught man-to-man defense," he noted, "and I'd like to be able to stick with it a lot more than we had been before Christmas. Now, with the way we played Saturday, I won't be afraid to go with it more.

"That (defense) was the key. South Lyon isn't that bad a ball club (they're 2-3 in the tough Southeast Conference), but we just weren't letting them get down the floor."

The Lions, in fact, didn't sink a shot from the floor until midway through the second quarter, and for the game hit only eight field goals in all (on only 31 attempts). Northville's defense, meanwhile, had a whopping 16 steals.

Another big difference was Northville's play under the boards. The taller visitors had a 56-20 rebounding advantage, with eight players nabbing four or more.

After opening up a 19-point bulge in the first quarter, Northville continued to play impressively in the second and had a 37-9 cushion by halftime.

Lutes then substituted freely throughout most of the second half. The Mustangs were ahead 51-15 by the end of the third quarter, and the bench emptied.

Offensively Lutes felt his club played fairly well, although he noted "we didn't really have a chance to set up as much as I would have liked" because of the number of turnovers his defense was forcing. The Mustangs shot only 38 percent from the floor, but had been hitting a more respectable 42 percent until the final quarter. They also limited their own number of turnovers to just 16, and only eight through the first three quarters.

Chris Campbell led a balanced scoring attack for the winners with 11 points, canning five of six from the floor plus a free throw. Jeff Norton added 10 points while Myles Couyoumjian, Dave Ward and newcomer Mike Wagner had eight each. Ward topped both clubs with 12 rebounds.

"We also had some pretty good help from our bench," Lutes pointed out, noting the eight points scored by Wagner, a transfer from Detroit Catholic Central, and Bob Crisan's eight rebounds.

Following last night's non-league game against Novi, the Mustangs will resume Western Six action at Livonia Churchil this Friday, then travel to Livonia Clarenceville for another non-league encounter next Tuesday.

Sign soon for baseball, soccer

It may be the dead of winter, but organizers of Northville's junior baseball and soccer programs are already thinking spring.

Within the next month both programs will be holding two registration sessions for their 1979 seasons at the recreation offices, located at the corner of West Main and Wing Streets.

Junior baseball sign-ups will take place on January 20 and February 3 between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m., while soccer registration will be on January 20 and 27 between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Both programs are open to all youngsters, boys and girls, aged 16 and under. In addition the junior baseball program will have try-out teams for youngsters interested in joining Connie Mack (18-and-under), Mickey Mantle (16-and-under) or Sandy Koufax (14-and-under) leagues, and the soccer program will include competition for 19-and-under girls.

Practices for the upcoming seasons will be getting underway around late March or early April. For further details phone the recreation department at 349-0203.

The Northville Recreation Department's open swimming program will be taking place between 8:30 and 9:30 p.m. on Monday and Wednesdays now instead of between 7 and 8 p.m.

Open swimming is also being offered on Saturdays between 3:30 and 5 p.m. The fees are 50 cents for children, 75 cents for adults and $1.50 for families during the week and 65 cents for children, $1 for adults and $2 for families on Saturdays.

All Wednesday trips to Alpine Valley have been cancelled until further notice for recreation ski club members.

Friday trips will continue to take place every week, with buses leaving from the front of the Scout Recreation Building at 4:45 p.m.

Anyone interested in coaching junior baseball this spring should contact Wade Beal at 349-1129. Junior baseball includes competition for both boys and girls aged 16 and under.

Coach of year honors cap Lauber's big year

A little more than two weeks ago, Ben Lauber's Saturday morning slumber was interrupted by a phone call.

The call may have cost him some sleep, but Northville High School's long-time swimming coach couldn't have hoped for a sweeter way to start the day.

The caller, you see, had phoned to congratulate Lauber on being named the Detroit News' 1978 girls' swimming coach of the year — an honor he wasn't aware he'd received before that morning's paper came out.

And Lauber, needless to say, was jubilant — not to mention a bit surprised.

"It was kind of a nice Christmas present," Lauber said later (the All-State team came out December 23). "It's something I've always dreamed about, but really I'd pretty much given up on ever having it happen."

"There's two things I'd always wanted as a coach: a state championship team, and to be honored as coach of the year. Now I've had both."

Lauber, who's been coaching boys' and girls' teams at Northville since 1969, guided his 1978 squad to the Class B boys' state championship but finished second in the balloting for coach of the year.

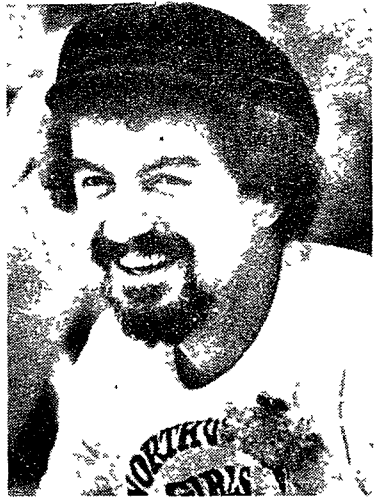

"I thought maybe that chance would never come again," he recalled.

After seven seasons at the boys' helm, during which time his teams compiled an incredible 99-7 record, Lauber took a year off but returned to coach the girls in the fall of 1977.

Led by individual medley state champion Sue Cahill that squad went 12-4 overall, won the Western Six league championship for the first time in two years, and finished fourth in the Class A state finals.

This past fall the Mustangs posted a perfect 12-0 dual meet record, won their second straight league title, and finished third in the state finals behind perennial powerhouses East Lansing and Ann Arbor Huron.

Two of the girls from the '78 team — Cahill (500-yard freestyle) and Allyson Farquhar (breaststroke) — were also named to the Detroit News' All-State squad, which includes one girl from each of a regular meet's nine individual events plus two relay teams. The News is the only organization outside the state high school coaches' association to officially name an All-State girls' swimming squad.

Ben Lauber

And the chance Lauber though "would never come again" became reality.

As usual, however, the 40-year-old mentor passed on much of the credit for his team's success this year to others.

"I don't care what anybody says, anyone who receives an honor like that has had an awful lot of help," he said. "There's no way you can do it yourself."

"So many people have contributed to making this year such a successful one: parents, kids, the athletic director, the teachers in school, even the other coaches that gave us advice and helped us correct some of our mistakes. No way can you pat yourself on the back and say 'I've done it.'"

Lauber's coaching career began in Ohio, where he graduated as a star swimmer from Sandusky High School in 1955. He coached North Robinson High for six years (1961-66), then came to Michigan and headed the Mt. Clemens High program for two years (1961-68) before coming to Northville.

None of his 10 teams here has had a losing season, and three of them, including last fall's girls, have gone unbeaten. Three of his boys' squads and both his girls' teams have won Western Six championships.

"I've been very lucky to have as many good teams as I've had, and this was probably the best," he said. "What a group of girls they were. It's been a dynamic year, one of the nicest years I've ever had."

"I mean, who could ask for a nicer year?"

First week's slow

Weather hurts Downs

Sub-zero temperatures caused a drop in both attendance and mutuel handle during mid-week as Northville Downs opened its 36th year of harness action last week.

The first six nights drew a total of 16,039 people, or 2673 per night, who wagered $2,190,676, or an average of $365,112 nightly. Those figures were down 12.7 and 13.8 percent respectively as compared with those during the first week of the 1977 meeting.

Both attendance and handle were up significantly, however, on both Friday and Saturday. Attendance totalled 8844 and handle $1,162,849 on those two nights, higher than the totals for the other four nights combined.

This winter's 84-night meeting will continue through Saturday, April 7, with racing taking place each week Monday through Saturday.

SENIOR GYMNASTS—Among the girls who'll be carrying the hopes of this year's Northville gymnastics squad are the above six seniors, who were all members of last year's team. They

10 girls return

Gymnasts talented; can they win?

Don't expect miracles, but Northville's 1979 gymnastics team should be an improved lot over last year's 2-12 club.

That's what first-year coach Jack Townsley is looking for, anyway. Townsley, a former wrestling coach at Northville, is taking over the reins of Debbie Davis, who coached the Mustangs for the past three years.

His objectives?

"I'll tell you one thing — one of our goals is to be better than last year," he says. "We want to win more than two meets."

And with the talent he has coming back, that shouldn't be too difficult.

A total of 10 girls are back from last year's squad, including seven seniors and a trio of juniors. Four of those seniors have been with the team for the past two years: Sue Kinnaird, Britt Evans, Sally Nair and Lori Herguth.

But Townsley, whose father was a gymnast at the University of Michigan, points out that it'll take more than just experience to make a winner out of the Mustangs.

"We have a few kids with some pretty good talent," he says, "but we still need to work on a lot of things, and work hard."

He's also concerned about the lack of practice time his team's been getting so far.

Because they have to schedule their practices around the activities of several other sports in the high school gym, they've been losing valuable practice time.

"Most schools have a room of their own to practice in, so they don't have to keep setting up their equipment every

Down Novi in 2 sets

Spikers win opener

Northville opened its volleyball season in style Monday night, rolling past Novi, 15-2 and 15-6, in a non-league clash at Novi.

"Being it was our first match, we played fairly well," Coach Steve McDonald observed afterwards. "We played well, but not as well as we're capable of playing, I'm sure. I think we learned some things about ourselves."

McDonald credited Theresa Norris, Kim Kratz and Kim Kurzawa with particularly strong games.

Norris, he noted, played "extremely well on defense" and also had a good serving game. She had seven serves for points, and added two dinks.

Kratz, meanwhile, had five spikes and five good serves in the two-setter while displaying a good defensive effort as well. Kurzawa had four spikes and five good serves plus a dink.

The Mustangs will compete in the Schoolcraft Invitational this Saturday at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

Rec department releases '79 winter brochure

Cold weather has set in for good for the winter, but as far as the Northville Recreation Department is concerned, things are just beginning to warm up. The local rec department is releasing its 1979 winter brochure this week, which means dozens of activities will be getting underway later in the month. Among them are classes in cheerleading, ballet and disco dance; conditioning programs for men, women and children; competitive sports leagues, private music lessons, ice skating instruction and swimming programs for all ages; why, there's even a course called issihinryu karate. No, that's not a misprint. Issihinryu karate, for those unfamiliar with it, is a type of karate that involves all aspects of the martial arts, including judo, self defense, aikido and weapons. It's being taught by Master Bob White, a fourth degree black belt. Registration for this winter's programs will be taking place next week (January 15 through 19) at the recreation offices, located at 215 West Main Street, between 8 a.m. and noon and between 1 and 5 p.m. Listed below are some of the programs being offered, plus pertinent information. For further information on private music lessons, contact John Mason at Meads Mill Junior High (348-2620); for information on ice skating lessons contact the Plymouth Cultural Center (455-6620); and for information on the department's daily nutrition program for senior citizens, contact Mary Schnell at the recreation offices (349-0203).

For further details on any of the other programs, or on registration procedures, phone the recreation department at 349-0203.

Jayvees roll to 4th cage win, 52-40

Northville's varsity players weren't the only cagers displaying awesome defense at South Lyon last Saturday night.

The jayvee Mustangs, sparked by a strong first-half effort, limited their opponents to just four first-quarter points in rolling to a 52-40 triumph over the Lions.

Led by Duke DuSablon, who returned to the starting lineup after missing Northville's last game with a strained back, the Mustangs raced out to a 12-4 first-quarter and 26-12 halftime advantage.

"We played a good ball game, considering it was our first one after the Christmas break," Coach Omar Harrison reflected. "I thought we played exceptionally well defensively, although our offense could have done a little better."

DuSablon topped the winners with 16 points and 10 rebounds while Todd Jennings, playing what Harrison described as his "best game of the season," added 10 points.

The Mustangs are now 4-2 overall this year, with a Western Six game at Livonia Churchill scheduled this Friday.

Lurvey wins 126-pound title

Wrestlers place 3rd at Brighton

Considering the competition, Northville's wrestlers didn't look bad at all in the Brighton Invitational last Saturday.

Not bad at all. Despite having only four grapplers who were seeded (rated among the top four wrestlers in their eight-man flights), the Mustangs placed 10 of the 12 entrants they brought along. Their performances sparked the local squad to a third-place finish in the eight-school meet. Holly won the invitational with 166½ points while Haslett placed second with 125½ and Northville third with 118½. The host school finished fourth with 98 points.

Mike Lurvey's victory in the 126-pound bracket highlighted Northville's efforts at the meet. Lurvey, seeded only fourth going in, pinned his first opponent, then decided to top seed Kevin McCarthy of Ann Arbor Huron in his second match to qualify for the finals.

He then beat Scott Mills of Pinckney, 9-0, to win the 126-pound championship.

"That's probably the best he's wrestled all season," Coach Gary Emerson said of Lurvey's showing. "He was really impressive."

The Mustangs' two heaviest wrestlers — 191-pounder Matt Baker and heavyweight Jack Lancaster — both finished second in their flights while Paul Raczowski (112 pounds), Brian Faustyn (145), Don Lucas (165) and Scott Morgan (178) finished third and Bill Blanchard (105), Vilas Allen (138) and Rob Savagenu (155) placed fourth.

Baker, the top seed in his flight, advanced to the finals before losing a 6-3 decision to Holly's Dan Strickler. Lancaster, seeded second, lived up to his expectations by advancing to the finals and then losing to top seed Jim Lamb of Linden on a pin.

Both Raczowski and Morgan won their consolation finals matches (4-2 and 4-1) against opponents they'd lost to in the opening round while Faustyn's only loss (10-1) was to top-seeded Curt Schaibly of Haslett and Lucas' one defeat came against the second seed.

"Our kids did a real good job, probably the best they've wrestled all season," Emerson observed.

"I told the kids the competition was really tough all the way down the line, but our kids showed they were equal to many of them, despite the difference in records."

"It's an indication, I think, of just the way our team is."

Local hockey squad's a winner

Each Sunday afternoon over the past two months a group of 16 high school age hockey players and their coach have been taking over the ice for an hour of practice or competition at Novi Ice Arena.

They're not just another group of high schoolers looking for something to do with their weekends, however. Most of the players, in fact, have been doing this together for the past eight years.

They're members of the Northville-Novu team belonging to the Aday Community Hockey League (ACHL), and they represent perhaps the best high school hockey talent this area has. Their record certainly indicates that anyway.

Competing at the Midget AA (ages 15-16) level, they've compiled a 12-4 record in league competition so far this season, and are leading their division of the ACHL. But then winning's hardly a new experience for them.

Since joining the ACHL three years ago, Northville-Novu has won two divisional championships and one playoff championship. Since 1971 they've won four tournament championships, including the regionals of the prestigious Silver Stick international tournament, while finishing as runners-up in their district of the Midget AA state hockey playoffs each of the past four years.

And where, exactly, does this team come from?

They come from a group of players who broke away from the Plymouth Hockey Association eight years ago to form their own league.

It all started in 1970, when the Plymouth Hockey Association closed its membership to Plymouth residents only. At the time several players from the Northville-Novu area were competing in the Plymouth league.

A group of concerned local parents, interested in keeping hockey alive here, thus formed the Northville Hockey Association that fall. Consisting of four teams in four different age groups, the NHA played independently against clubs from all over the Detroit metropolitan area.

But keeping the NHA going was far from being easy. Because there were no ice arenas here at the time (Novi Ice Arena didn't open until later), the teams had to travel all the way to Jackson for their four-hour, once-a-week practices and "home" games.

In 1971 things improved slightly. The NHA joined an Inkster league and began playing its home games much closer to home.

But it wasn't until 1973, when Novi Ice Arena opened, that the NHA truly became local. Three years later they joined the newly-formed Aday league, and have been winning ever since.

By 1976 the original four-team NHA had dwindled to two clubs and the following year to one, but it's still considered the Northville Hockey Association and, apparently, it's still going strong.

Competing in the five-team Red Division, one of two Midget AA divisions of the ACHL, Northville-Novu appears headed for its second straight title.

And it's little wonder. Of the 16 players on the current roster, 11 have been playing together on the same team since they were Squirts (9-10 age division). They include Bob Boshoven, Danny DiComo, Doug Horst, Richard Pattison, Bob Darrow and Todd Vincent, all of Northville; Dave Braeseker, Mike Shingler, Dean and Don Rose, all of Novi; and Mike Zdanowski of South Lyon.

Other members of the team include

Don Lucas and Kevin Travers of Northville, Bill Knauer and Paul Kopasz of Farmington, and Rick Wisniewski of South Lyon.

That was basically the same group who played together on Northville-Novu's first Aday team three years ago. The ACHL began with 19 teams four years ago; there are now 152 teams.

But while Northville-Novu has been playing winning hockey ever since joining the league, one of its proudest accomplishments — at least in the eyes of Coach Doug Pattison — was winning the regionals of the Silver Stick international tournament in 1974. The Silver Stick tournament (regionals are held annually in St. Clair Shores), includes some of the top clubs in each age group from all over Michigan, Ontario and even from places as far away as Wisconsin and New York.

Pattison, a Northville resident who's been coaching the current players since they were Squirts, also points out that his club had the fewest penalty minutes of any Midget AA team in the league on its way to a first-place finish in the division and a second-place finish in the ACHL last year.

Despite the quality of local talent, though, he doubts the sport's chances of making it big at the high school level, at least in Northville.

Athlete of the week

Chris Campbell's impressive all-around play has been one of the major reasons for the Northville basketball team's surging fortunes the past few games. The senior guard's defensive play helped the Mustangs limit South Lyon to just nine points in the first half of last Saturday's 57-28 triumph, but that wasn't the only way he contributed. He also was the team's leading scorer with 11 points, hitting five of six shots from the floor. Despite his relatively small size, Campbell is Northville's second-leading scorer so far this season.

Northville icers thrive on talent

"It's an expensive sport," he notes, estimating that it costs over $3000 a year to operate the Midget AA club alone.

But that doesn't diminish his own support of youth hockey.

"In my opinion it's the best contact sport there is for kids," he says,

"because it's a sport in which the little guy can excel. You don't have to have a particular build to play hockey — just desire and experience."

"It's also a sport that gives kids a chance to compete internationally because the game's rules are consistent throughout the world."

And he's joined in his support by a surprising number of parents and friends.

"Usually at the Midget level people quit following the team," he observes, "but ours for some reason is still getting a lot of support."

For the past four years the club has been sponsored by Reef Manufacturing Company of Northville. Other contributors to this year's team include the Northville City Police Officers Association, the Northville City Command Officers Association, Exotic Rubber and Plastics of Farmington Hills, Jerry's Shell of Farmington and Monk Celler of Farmington. Greg Phillips is the team's assistant coach and Kope Kopasz its manager.

Northville-Novi competes against Livonia, Lakeland, Flint and Farmington in the Red Division and has a 28-game ACHL schedule plus several other non-league contests.

Besides their Sunday afternoon sessions at Novi Ice Arena, they also practice or play home games at Beechwood Ice Arena in Southfield on Tuesday evenings.

Among their top players so far this season are Knauer, Horst and Shingler, the team's three leading scorers, and goalie Bob Boshoven.

Pattison is hoping most of the players from the current team will be moving up to Junior Division (ages 17-21) competition next year. Their opponents, however, probably aren't.

Adray team wins key game, 2-1

A pair of second-period goals by Kevin Travers and Mike Zdanowski led Northville-Novi to a 2-1 victory over Flint in a key Adray Community Hockey League game at Novi Ice Arena last Sunday.

The victory lifted the local Midget AA club's league record to 12-4-4 this season and gave the Red Division leaders a four-point edge over Flint, which entered the contest tied for second place with Livonia, with eight league games remaining. Northville-Novi has 28 points and Flint 24.

Travers scored first on assists from Danny DiComo and Don Rose with 4:52 left in the second period. Less than three minutes later Rose made it 2-0 on an assist from Rick Wisniewski. Flint's lone score off goalie Bob Boshoven came in the third period.

Five days earlier Coach Doug Pattison's club, which is now 19-11-7 overall this year, overcame a pair of four-goal deficits but lost an 8-7 heartbreaker to Garden City in the finals of a Christmas tournament in Dearborn.

Garden City scored the winning goal late in the third period after Northville-Novi had fought back from deficits of 4-0 and 5-1 to tie the game at 7-7. Earlier in the tournament the two teams had fought to a 3-3 standoff.

Northville-Novi's next home game takes place this Sunday, when they take on Farmington in an Adray league game beginning at 4 p.m.

OLV teams both beat Divine Child

Our Lady of Victory's basketball teams opened the new year on a happy note last weekend, winning a pair of games over the Divine Child Falcons at Dearborn on Sunday.

Sparked by Terry Nadeau and a stingy defense, the seventh-grade squad broke open a tight game in the second half and rolled to a 39-22 triumph. The victory was OLV's third in four CYO league games this season and lifted the Cougars' overall mark to 6-3.

Nadeau topped the winners with 15 points while Rick Paler added 10, Chris Wagner seven, Ray McDonough five and John Daly two.

OLV's fifth-grade team, meanwhile, stormed from behind for a 34-32 double overtime victory over the Falcons.

Fred Cook scored the game-winning basket midway through the second overtime. Trailing throughout the contest, OLV had taken its first lead on a pair of free throws by Pat Wagner with a minute left in regulation.

Then, with the Cougars behind by two again, Greg Wendell tied the game 30-30 on a bucket with 39 seconds left. Wendell, who paced the winners with 14 points and 11 rebounds, also scored OLV's lone basket in the first overtime.

Wagner added eight points for the Cougars, who are now 5-1 overall, while Cook and Dan Sheehan had four each and Mike Dewan and Sean McLaughlin two each.

Hockey donation

The Northville Hockey Association received a little help from the Northville City Police Officers and the Northville City Command Officers Associations last week: a check to purchase jerseys for Northville-Novi's Midget AA hockey team. Presenting the check, which was for about $360, are city police officers Jerry Ryan (far left) and Al Cox. Rich Pattison (center) and Danny DiComo, who both play for the local 15-16 year-old club, accept the check while Coach Doug Pattison displays one of several trophies the team has won over the years.

OLV girls win two of three in tourney

Following an opening-round defeat, OLV's seventh-eighth grade girls bounced back to finish third in a Christmas basketball tournament at Livonia Ladywood over the holidays.

Coach Denny Nadeau's squad fell to Livonia St.

Michael's in the opener,

25-13, after St. Mike's scored seven straight points to break a 9-9 deadlock midway through the third quarter. Mary Quinn had six points, Suzette Beaudoin four and Mary Sullivan three to pace the Cougars.

OLV then came back to beat Dearborn Heights

St. Mel's, 29-10, before knocking off St. Damian's, 15-10, in the consolation.

Mary Heslip had eight points while Quinn and Patty Payne added six each in the victory over St. Mel's.

In the consolation finals Beaudoin and Heslip paced the winners with six points each while Lisa Dewan had three. Beaudoin also had 19 rebounds and Paula Witmer added 11.

Heslip, who finished with 14 points and 10 rebounds altogether, was later awarded the tournament's Miss Hustle plaque.

Did you know that . .

The winningest coach in Northville basketball history was Dave Longridge. During his seven years as the Mustangs' head coach Longridge, now the principal at Cooke Junior High, compiled an 88-49 record.

In 1962, his first as head coach, Northville won a school record 20 straight games before falling to eventual champ River Rouge in the Class B state semifinals.

Between 1963 and 1968 the Mustangs added one league co-championship (1966) under Longridge and finished runner-up twice (1967 and '68) in the Wayne-Oakland League.

The most points ever scored by the Mustangs in a basketball game was 106. On March 1, 1912, Northville routed Higgins High of Detroit, 106-6, with Charley Johnston scoring a school record 50 points to lead the way.

The modern-day record for points scored by Northville in a basketball game is 101. On December 10, 1974, the Mustangs whipped Dearborn Heights Crestwood, 101-58.

Between February 9, 1934 and December 18, 1937 — a span of 33 games — the Mustangs never lost a regular season varsity basketball game during regulation time. Their only two losses — both to Melvindale during the 1936 season — were in overtime.

The team's longest winning streak ever occurred in 1962, when Northville won 20 straight games.

One of Northville's 11 district basketball championships came in a year the Mustangs experienced their worst losing streak in history. In 1973 the local team dropped 10 straight games between January 12 and February 20, but then finished the season with six straight victories — including three in the district tournament at South Lyon — before falling to Southgate Aquinas in their regional opener.

City planning commission

Ask Abbey Knoll developers for plat redesign

For the last large piece of land awaiting subdividing in the City of Northville, a 40-acre parcel located immediately east of Northville Estates on Eight Mile, city planners have gone on record that they intend to achieve as attractive a development as possible.

The planners looked at proposed plat for Abbey Knoll Subdivision at their January 2 meeting and agreed with Ronald Nino, city planning consultant, that they would like to see a redesign with alternate street plans.

Excessive grades, especially in the south portion of the proposed 89-home subdivision, were cited by Nino as the principle obstacle. As submitted, the Abbey Knoll plan was laid out with two main north-south roads with Elmsmere Drive the east-west crossing in the north portion.

In his memorandum to the commission, Nino stated he felt that "given the natural topography, roads should run in an east-west direction to maximize grade conditions for the best lot orientation."

The commission accepted his report and moved to recommend to the petitioner that he return with a different plat with alternate street plans.

Developers are Bert L. Smokler and Guy Barron of Southfield. Their architect, Gene Zeimet, attended the meeting and indicated he was surprised by the request.

Nino admitted he had received the plat plan with a redesign of Elmsmere, as requested when the plat first was viewed early in December, before Christmas. He apologized to Zeimet for notifying his office only the same day as the meeting regarding his concerns about grading.

Zeimet disagreed that the grades were excessive.

In his analysis Nino cited a proposed Portsmere Drive with grades reaching 10 percent and an overall grade of eight percent.

This, he stated, cannot be rectified by cut and fill actions because the lots on either side would have difficult grade problems in relationship to the road. Given the natural topography, roads should run in an east-west direction, he advised.

Commission Chairman C. Thomas Wheaton emphasized that the parcel "is the last significant-size piece of property in Northville so we would like to go over plans very carefully."

He agreed that the commission would prefer to have the contours of the land worked with rather than see mass grading. Commissioner James Cutler concurred, saying he would like to see cul-de-sac arrangements rather than straight-shot roads.

Nino emphasized that the "severe grade problem exists only on the south half of the proposed plat" as he recommended asking for a redesign. In apologizing to the architect, he said the Christmas holidays had delayed his review of the plat until the day of the meeting.

Zeimet told the commission that he did not anticipate problems with the grading, saying he had done the Whisper Woods subdivision in the township and also a Herman Frankel development at Lone Pine and Mid-debelt. At the latter, he said, the builder utilized extremely high grading imaginatively.

In following the planning consultant's recommendation, the commission indicated it agreed with Wheaton that "we'll be here when the developer and architect are gone, and people have the right to expect we represent the city's best interests."

Potential Savings by Reducing Infiltration
 It should be possible to reduce the draft index for a building to 1 (that is, reduce the number of air changes to one per hour). If the draft index for this building were improved to 1, the infiltration loss would be:

$20,888 \times 1 \times 1.25 \times 0.02 = 522$

Here is a sample heat loss calculation. For your own home, use the chart on page 8-C.

Here's how you can reduce it

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of three articles explaining how to figure heat loss for your own home.

By HOWARD RONTAL

Estimating how much the homeowner can save by insulating his house may have become America's unofficial national sport.

Before the nation's do-it-yourselfers become experts in the "how tos" of home insulation they all make a stab at becoming experts in the "how much" — how much will it cost and how much will it save.

Most people end up taking the salesperson's word on the matter, or the gas company's, or that of their brother-in-law, who boasts of remarkable savings ever since he enclosed his home in an airtight baggie and forbade anyone from leaving during the months of January, February and March.

When the hardier souls try to figure their savings on their own, they frequently turn to the average percentages turned out by various environmental groups, manufacturers of insulating materials and utilities.

If you ever added up the various savings estimates that would accrue by insulating everything possible you soon find out that you can reduce the cost of heating your home to zero, or less.

The Ohio Department of Energy, however, has a handy-dandy guide for estimating your own savings — a formula that requires only a knowledge of simple arithmetic, a willingness to measure your home and to examine it closely for air leaks.

Infiltration and conduction are the two basic ways in which homes lose heat.

This article will show you how to calculate the percentage of savings you can achieve by insulating your home against infiltration.

In subsequent issues we will tell how to calculate heat loss and potential savings by weatherizing your home against heat conduction losses.

In a following issue, we will tell you how to add up your calculations of infiltration and conduction losses to see how much total heat your house is losing and how much you can save.

All homes lose heat. Any building, says the Department of Energy manual, will constantly exchange air with its environment. Outside air leaks in, inside air leaks out. A certain amount of this exchange, say one complete change per hour, is necessary for ventilation. Unfortunately for your heating bill, most buildings exchange air more than needed.

To make matters worse, in winter, cold air leaks in and hot air leaks out.

This leakage is caused by wind whistling through cracks in the building, the "chimney effect" and the opening of the outside doors.

The effect of opening the door and the wind needs little explanation, but the chimney effect may not be so obvious. When air in a building is warmer than the outside air, the entire building acts like a chimney — hot air tends to rise

This weekend

Sliger photographer opens Irish show

The premier exhibit of a new portfolio of photographs from the Republic of Ireland is featured this weekend through February 8th at The Blixt Gallery on the U of M campus in Ann Arbor.

The photographs are the work of D. James Galbraith, 48, Director of Photography for Sliger Home Newspapers.

"To see the face of Ireland," says Galbraith, "is to be touched by an intellectual innocence, a strength of character, a zest for life and an uncompromising belief in the goodness of man to be found nowhere else on earth. It is a land of uncommon joy cradled in the arms of infinite sadness."

The 20 photographs which comprise the portfolio have been printed in a limited edition of one hundred and range from a Dolman, a 5000 year old burial monument (which reminds one of Stonehenge) to a simple scene of two lads and their donkeys. The photographs were made over a period of eight years during which Galbraith returned to Ireland a number of times.

Jill Blixt, gallery director has announced a companion exhibit of other Galbraith photographs to go with the Irish works. Among these will be photographs of prominent personalities such as Aaron Copeland, Andreas Segovia and Will Geer.

"The world is his easel," the late Will Geer has said of Galbraith, "his brush is his lens — nature is his palette, and on that palette he blends light and shadow, line, form and texture as few others ever have."

The Blixt Gallery (formerly Arcade Gallery) is located in Ann Arbor's historic Nickels Arcade on State Street near the U of M campus. Hours are 9:30-5:30 Monday thru Friday and 10 til 2 on Saturday. A special champagne reception for the artist will be held at the gallery Sunday, January 14 from 1-5 p.m. The public is invited.

Michigan Mirror

Topic is staying in the headlines

By WARREN M. HOYT

The new Legislature which will convene January 10 will immediately begin consideration of a property tax relief package which could result in heading off another attempt to radically lower property taxes throughout the state.

Although the so-called Tisch property tax cut proposal was defeated by the voters in November, the fact that it was before the voters and may be back in the future has made a lasting impression on legislative leaders.

These leaders have listed increased property tax relief as a priority for the new Legislature to strive for a more balanced approach to solve the problem of spiraling property taxes, yet with not such drastic means and provide a replacement tax that will not cripple necessary services needed.

A proposed plan, now in the drafting stages, could provide as much as $300 to $500 million to Michigan citizens. The plan basically would increase the property tax circuit breaker while making up revenues through an income tax increase.

The proposed plan could also allow for increased income tax exemptions to provide more relief to citizens where it is most needed.

To make up the cost of the plan, the state would increase the income tax from its current 4.6 percent to 5.6 or 6 percent. Each full percentage point increase in the income tax nets the state nearly $500 million annually.

A major part of the plan would also educate Michigan property owners that Michigan already has a property tax relief program. This is designed to make people realize the current system is equitable and a drastic change may create more problems than it would solve.

A so-called Montgomery plan, named for Representative George Montgomery (D-Detroit), chairman of the house Taxation Committee, will probably be revived after it failed last year as members opted to let the voters have their say on the property tax question after petitions were certified to get the question on the ballot.

Under a warrant system, taxpayers would get a warrant entitling them to a rebate through their local treasurer. The sole purpose of the warrant is to show people they are getting a property tax cut through a state write-off from their state income tax liability.

The PBB question has not been heard from since the November election until recently when a circuit court judge ruled that Attorney General Frank J. Kelley has authority to sue several companies for more than $120 million in damages for negligence in dealing with the fire retardant chemical.

Ingham county circuit court Judge James Kallman dismissed a motion by defendants in the state suit that argued the attorney general did not have the proper authority to sue the various companies on behalf of the people of Michigan.

Kelley is suing seven corporations for involvement in the industrial mix-up when toxic chemicals were mixed in to dairy cattle feed. The chemical subsequently entered Michigan's food chain and became one of the hottest political topics in the state coming to a head during the past gubernatorial election.

Being sued is the Michigan Chemical Corporation, Velscol Chemical Corporation, Northwest Industry Incorporated, Northwest Chemical, Michigan Salt Company, Michigan

Farm Bureau and Farm Bureau Services Incorporated.

Should the state win, damages will go to pay Michigan's share of destroying and disposing of contaminated animals and running scientific tests.

Housewife sells 'glass plate'

for $40; worth $1,700

NILES III — The story of a small fortune lost because a housewife had no idea her glass plate was a collector's item, recently came to light.

In a letter to J. R. MacArthur, chairman of The Bradford Exchange world's largest trading center in collectors' plates, a Madison, Wis. woman wrote: "I had a Lalique 1965 plate which I sold to a friend for $40. I had not heard of you at that time."

The plate she sold is actually valued at more than $1,700. Although MacArthur points out that this price is exceptionally high, he said, "I'm afraid others may be losing hundreds or thousands of dollars by not knowing what their plates are worth."

To aid in identifying valuable plates, the Exchange issues a report that includes current prices on more than 900 plates, guidelines on what to look for and when to buy, and the plate evaluation checklist used by the Exchange.

To obtain a copy with our cost of obligation, send your name, address and zip code by Saturday of next week to The Bradford Exchange Dept. 16502, 9301 Milwaukee Avenue, Niles, Illinois 60048. (Not available to Canadian residents.)

H and R BLOCK OF SOUTH LYON announces that two South Lyon men have completed the basic income tax preparation course offered annually beginning each September.

Gilbert Penner and Gary Ramos received 14 weeks of training in all aspects of individual income tax preparation and will be joining the staff of H and R Block at 127 East Lake Street in South Lyon.

The office will be open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. weekdays, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays and 1 to 5 p.m. Sundays during the income tax season. Appointments can be made by calling 437-6922.

JAMES BRADLEY BOGAN has successfully completed Ziebart Rustproofing Company's technical training announced Don Wilson and Ken Carlson, owners of the Ziebart Auto Truck Rustproofing facility located at 5955 Whitmore Lake Road in Brighton.

The technical training was designed to familiarize Bogan with the details of Ziebart automotive rustproofing.

With the Ziebart process, all rust-prone metal throughout the bodies of cars and trucks are coated with an exclusive rust preventive sealant. Small holes are strategically placed throughout the vehicle body, allowing Ziebart's patented spray tools to be inserted into all hidden, "boxed-in" sections, such as rocker panels, headlight rims and door assemblies. These are the areas most prone to rust. They trap and hold moisture and seldom have a chance to completely dry out.

Ziebart Rustproofing Company is a subsidiary of Ziebart International Corporation, the licensing organization for more than 700 independent Ziebart Dealers throughout the world.

ANN PERSON, originator of the Stretch & Sew concept and founder and president of the firm, is in the Detroit area this week. Among women franchise holders having dinner with her tonight is Edith Fonde, a Northville resident who with her husband, Henry, has the Farmington Stretch & Sew. She mentions that Ann Person will be seen on Detroit television this Thursday morning.

FILL IN AT JOB SITE

Multiply the number of check marks in the first column by 1, the second column by 2, and the third column by 3. The Draft Index will be the sum of these products, divided by 4.

$$\boxed{\text{Floor area sq.ft.}} \times \boxed{\text{Height to ceiling (to upstairs ceiling in two-story house) ft.}} = \boxed{\text{Volume of air in building cu.ft.}}$$

$$\boxed{\text{Volume of air in building}} \times \boxed{\text{Draft Index}} \times \boxed{\text{District heating factor}} \times .02 = \boxed{\text{Heating units required}}$$

Potential Savings by Reducing Infiltration
It should be possible to reduce the draft index for a building to 1 (that is, reduce the number of air changes to one per hour). If the draft index for this building were improved to 1, the infiltration loss would be:

$$\boxed{\text{Volume (from above)}} \times \boxed{1} \times \boxed{\text{District heating factor}} \times .02 = \boxed{\text{Potential heating units}}$$

Subtract the potential heating units from those now required and enter here and leak out of cracks at the upper levels and sucks cold air through cracks at the lower level. Both the temperature difference and building height contribute to this effect.

A two-story building having a 68-degree inside temperature and a 30-degree outside temperature will produce "chimney" leakage equivalent to a 10 mile per hour wind blowing against the building.

To figure out the infiltration rate you must first examine your home for air leaks, categorize them by severity, figure the volume of air in the building, figure the draft index and find the "heating factor" for this area of the country.

Sound difficult? It isn't. The categories are easy to understand and the draft index is computed from numerical equivalents given the categories listed here.

The heating factor is provided in a chart included in the Ohio Department of Energy booklet. The heating factor for our portion of Michigan is "1.75."

By way of comparison, it might be noted that the upper most part of Minnesota is a "2.5" and the southern most part of Texas is a ".25."

To find the volume of air in your home, multiply the building's length and width. This will give you the area.

For homes of two or more stories you must also find the area of the upper floors. When you have the total area multiply that figure by the height of the room, usually eight feet in most houses built since World War II

If you aren't sure of a measurement, estimate it. It is not necessary to get the measurements down to the nearest inch. Feel will do.

Accompanying this article you will find a sample calculation sheet with the heat loss and potential savings figured in. If you make up your own chart and follow it you shouldn't have any problem.

Before you begin, two last notes. First, remember that this is only the first of three articles on how to calculate your home heat loss and potential savings.

Second, the writers of this booklet are interested in finding out what you think of their program.

Asking the plant doctor

By GREGORY PATCHAN

Dear Plant Doctor: How do you treat our potted amaryllis?
G K — Troy

Dear G. K.: Between now and April your amaryllis will send up a large fleshy stalk that will produce one or more large trumpet shaped flowers. Shortly afterwards several sword shaped leaves will appear. Place the pot in a brightly lit window and keep the soil moist. Fertilize about once a month to keep the plant growing actively so that the food supply in the bud can be replenished. During the summer, place the plant outdoors in a lightly shaded area. In the fall when the leaves begin to yellow, withhold water and allow the plant to die down for its rest period. When new growth begins to show, return the plant to a sunny window and begin watering to resume the growth cycle. If the bulb has enough strength, it should flower if given the proper care. Repotting every third or fourth year is adequate. Use a good potting soil in a pot just large enough to comfortably hold the bulb. Remember that the top half of the bulb should be exposed.

Dear Plant Doctor: Why is rain water or melted snow recommended for house plants?
W. Z. — Rochester

Dear W.Z.: Some gardeners prefer these sources for water because they are more free of minerals and chemicals than tap water. In this area, it usually is not necessary to obtain rain water or melted snow except in unusual circumstances. For example, rain water would be beneficial in raising acid-loving gardenias because our normal water supply is somewhat alkaline. Most gardeners use tap or well water without problems. Softened water should be avoided because of the high sodium content.

Dear Plant Doctor: I have my dahlia roots stored in damp peat moss, and I noticed that the roots are starting to mold. What can I do?
D. K. — Pontiac

Dear D. K.: Mold is attacking your dahlia roots because something is amiss in your storage conditions. Ideal storage conditions should have temperatures from 35 to 50 degrees F. with enough moisture in the sand or peat to prevent shriveling. I have found that roots will store well if placed in lightly sealed polyethylene bags. Your mold problem is probably caused by too warm a temperature and/or too much moisture. I suggest you sort through the roots and discard those that are rotted severely. Clean up the remaining roots and dust with sulphur or captan. Finally, store the roots under cooler and drier conditions.

Dear Plant Doctor: I have heard the poinsettias are very poisonous if eaten. Is this true?
I. S. — Birmingham

The poinsettia is not the villain that it is reported to be. Ever since 1919 when one child in Hawaii died after one leaf, the poinsettia has been classified as very poisonous. Fortunately this incident has never been repeated. From the many reports of people ingesting parts of leaves or berries, the worst illness was a very few cases of vomiting. This does not mean anyone should be careless about eating parts of plants. Many plants are quite poisonous, and a reference on edible plants should always be consulted by any novice before eating leaves, nuts, fruits, etc.

Body language—

'An infant social science you can't afford to ignore'

You may not have realized it, but you were making a statement when you chose what you would wear today.

"Clothes are 'object' language — one of the means by which an individual can be socially classed," Sandra Thornton told Northville Woman's Club last Friday.

A teacher at Schoolcraft College and Eastern Michigan University, Mrs. Thornton has been a Novi resident at Beck and 10 Mile for two years. Her talk explored meanings of non-verbal communication, which she called "an infant social science, but one you can't afford to ignore."

She gave as a definition of non-verbal communication, or body language, all communication except that specifically coded into words. The non-verbal communication, she continued, is of three types — sign, action and object language.

"The typical thing to do if you feel bad," she pointed out, "is to put something old on."

"But if you decide to wear your best, you may find you feel better. If you feel good, you look good."

She stressed that "physical appearance says so much about the way we feel," and recalled a funeral where all members of the family wore white.

As an example of the importance of color choice, she related that the woman who died had been very ill and wanted to die. She did not want her family to mourn, so they decided upon the white garb. Mrs. Thornton related that their choice was much noticed by those attending the funeral.

"Thirty-five percent of our meaning comes across verbally and 65 percent otherwise, or non-verbally," she told her audience at First Presbyterian Church, "so that it is important to understand the facets of non-verbal communication."

Sign language, or gestures, she explained, is a substitute for words. The "O" formed by a thumb and finger is universally understood as "okay."

The thumb extended by a hitchhiker says "Are you going my way?"

Those are accepted signs, the speaker said, but others also are as easily identified, including logos, such as that of Bell Telephone Company.

"A lady's figure in a skirt on a rest room door," she said, "registers far faster than you can read 'women' and is part of international sign language."

"Action" non-verbal communication, she continued, "includes how you walk — if it's fast, is it appropriate to the situation?"

Eating and sleep positions also tell something about the person, the lecturer added.

She told of serving pie to a table of 12 persons with the wide, crust edge toward the diner. "Simultaneously, all 12 people turned their pieces around to eat them," she reported, theorizing that habit plays a part in such action.

"When we move, we carry with us our personal space," the speaker declared.

"When someone comes too close, we back up. This behavior is one of our intercultural misunderstandings."

"We are expected to be different, but also to accept others as they are. It is necessary to be aware of pitfalls in cross-cultural dealings."

Mrs. Thornton told of asking an Italian for directions. As he came too close, she found herself backing up "to protect my territory."

It took eight months, she said, for participants at the Paris Peace Talks to agree on the shape of the table to be used.

Such things as how people face each other, the colors in a room as well as its size are all part of non-verbal communication, Mrs. Thornton stated.

Mrs. Thornton received her BS degree from Eastern Michigan University in speech and English and her MA in communication and public address. She is earning a second master's in dramatic arts. She will be teaching non-verbal communication in the Schoolcraft communication and speech department curriculum.

"Perhaps a million years ago Zero Zonk lived and reacted to meet emergencies. He had an automatic, mechanical reaction. If his flash association said 'Tiger,' he went up a tree. An error cost him nothing," the speaker stated.

"This was a fixed standard interpretation and a fixed response."

"But what has happened today with a variety of cultures is a Tower of Babel resulting."

"This is not to say that anything goes, but that different things can have different meaning."

Settings, Mrs. Thornton continued, can influence communication.

"As a rule," she outlined, "the greater the individual's prestige the greater office space, he has, but it's not only quantity — windows and closeness to the president are factors."

She pointed out that the man selling insurance doesn't want to be in the "company chair" remotely placed in the living room, but at the kitchen table close by the prospect.

The speaker warned that stereotyping does exist. Body types are associated with the kind of person — a mesomorph, big and muscular, an endomorph, heavy and maybe lethargic, and ectomorph, thin and perhaps frail.

"It's important," she concluded, "to look at communication coming toward you and see what it's really saying."

Bill Bailey displays card that came with surprise gift - See In Our Town

In Our Town

Annual Florida reunion coming

By JEAN DAY

This will be the eighth year that Northville residents who winter in Florida or those who have retired to Florida will have an annual reunion. It is set for noon Tuesday, February 20, at the Crown House Restaurant between Bradenton and Sarasota. The restaurant, reports Edward Barnes, this year's chairman for the get-together, is a mile-and-a-half south of the area airport.

Ed Barnes, who now lives in Ellenton, Florida, at 324 Sally Lee Drive, may be contacted by anyone wishing to attend. He will be remembered as the popular manager of the Northville Kroger store, formerly located in the building now occupied by Arbor Drugs.

Baileys came home

"The best Christmas we ever had," is the way Mrs. Bill Bailey describes the holiday just past. She adds that it was the first time in 20 years that all the Bailey children were together for Christmas dinner. Friends and grandchildren brought the total at the dinner table at 118 East Cady to 31.

Adding to the fun was the surprise gift of a new refrigerator from their family, accompanied by a giant card created by Chris Campbell, one of the grandsons. "I don't know how they managed to get the refrigerator into the kitchen while we were opening presents, but they did," laughs Mrs. Bailey. She and her husband have taught dancing for years at their studio-home on Cady. They met as dancers more than 50 years ago and still are experts.

Visitors included their daughter, Racena Fitzgerald with a friend, William Fisher, both from Manhattan Beach, California; another daughter, and her husband, June and Robert Slusarski, and their three sons, from Lucerne, Michigan; a

Messianic Jew

Sid Roth to talk at Gospel Fellowship

Sid Roth, a Messianic Jew, writer and producer of a radio program, "The Messianic Vision," broadcast at 10:30 a.m. daily on Detroit radio station WBBG, as well as many other stations throughout the United States, will be principal speaker at the January dinner meeting of the Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship.

It will be at 7 p.m. Friday, January 19, at the Plymouth Hilton Inn.

Roth's book, "Some thing for Nothing," published by Logos, relates his efforts to get wealth and success.

This, he says, was an obsession that cost him his money, health and his marriage. He claims the Messiah of Israel set him free and gave him the only "something for nothing that this world has to offer."

He also claims that the Jew is the timetable for the second coming of Jesus and points out that "Jesus said that a major sign of his return would be the removal of spiritual scales from Jewish eyes, and that this is evidenced today in that more Jewish people than Gentiles are receiving Jesus, percentagewise, for the first time in 2,000 years."

Roth, who lives with his wife and daughter in the Washington, D.C., suburb of Potomac, Maryland, will "share his vision that every believer, both Jew and non-Jew, should be aware of God's true will and purpose for the Jewish people and Israel during this exciting age." The meeting is open to all men and women by reservation.

Checks for reservations at $8 a person should be made payable to Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship and sent to P.O. Box 5332, Northville, by January 17.

For additional information call 349-0006 or 421-2111.

HARRY J. WILL Funeral Homes, Inc.

How can I help the newly widowed?

It doesn't matter whether one's husband or wife died after a prolonged illness or whether it was a sudden death. The resulting widowhood is a deep-seated impact which may last for days, weeks, even months.

During this period of initial shock, you must help the widow or widower to be ACTIVE. By occupying his or her time with the important details of "getting things together" for everyday living, he (or she) is forced, thankfully, into activity.

With our professional responsibilities and experience, we as funeral directors can be of immediate help. We assist in processing the various legal papers such as Social Security and VA. We handle literally hundreds of details for the family throughout the total service. And we try to help as best we can with the widow or widower in their emotional adjustments. One of our chief goals is to bring peace and comfort to the living in their hours of need. If we can help you in this, please let us know.

This visitor's a champion fisherman

Bruce Brubaker, who holds the world's casting championship, was in the Detroit area last week to participate in the sportsman show at the Pontiac Silverdome. He renewed acquaintance with Louis Zimostrad, his wife and daughter Julee, township residents of Rippling Lane for two-and-a-half years.

The Zimostrads took their guest to Saratoga Trunk for dinner before he went on to the four-day show. A resident of Cape Coral, Florida, Brubaker met Zimostrad a half-dozen years ago when Zimostrad was in fishing promotion and doing an in-store demonstration. "He holds 56 casting records," reports Zimostrad, who also admits to being an avid fisherman. "I'm a bass fisherman and still fish about 120 times a year, but not professionally," says Zimostrad.

Brubaker, he mentions, represented the United States at the Brussels World Competition and has radio and television fishing-news shows.

Resilient floor coverings are made from different combinations of synthetic materials. They are smooth and hard, dirt-resistant, easy to clean, long lasting, and usually permanently installed in either tile or sheet form. Many patterns copy natural materials such as marble, brick, stone, wood, ceramic tile and slate, and are often less expensive and easier to install. Some examples of sheet-form resilient floors are linoleum, moderately priced but limited in color and design, roto-printed vinyl, which is the least expensive, but most subject to wear and inlaid vinyl, which comes in a wide range of prices. The design is inlaid into the body of the vinyl rather than printed on and is thus less subject to wearing off.

Bring in a swatch of your floor covering to us at GREEN'S CREATIVE HOME CENTER, 107 N. Center St., 349-7110, and let us help you color coordinate your rooms. We will help you select just the right colors and shades of FULLER-O'BRIEN PAINTS to create the effect most pleasing to you. We will custom-tint paint to just the color you want—more than 1,000 possible colors. ## New YMCA offering

Marion Sober to teach basket-collecting classes

Finding and using old or different baskets has become one of the big areas in collecting. The YMCA of Canton, Northville, Plymouth has taken note of the interest by scheduling a basket-collecting seminar as one of its winter offerings.

Its winter program of activities now is available by calling 453-2904. It covers a wide variety of workshops, after-school activities for students, preschool programs and events for parents.

Basket collecting for adults is to be held from 9 a.m. to noon Thursdays in four sessions — January 25, February 1, 8 and 15. It is $10 a time with registration to be by telephone a week prior to the class.

Marion Sober, well-known area artist and former Northville resident, will conduct the basket workshop at her studio at 48760 North Territorial.

Those attending are invited to bring their old or new baskets for evaluation. The class will discuss how baskets are made, what to look for when buying a basket, their history and lore.

Mrs. Soper currently has an article in the Time-Life series of the Encyclopedia of Collectibles on baskets.

She also has published an article on how to make Shaker cheese baskets.

Other adult workshops scheduled by the YMCA include basics of interior design, corn-husk doll-making, rug hooking, dried flower arranging, calligraphy, chair caning and ethnic gourmet cooking.

Youth programs include basketball skills (new), beginning piano group sessions, guitar, baton, tumbling, floor hockey and a beginning magic class.

Preschool Kreatives for ages three through five continue Monday through Friday in three six-week sessions.

Dance offerings range from creative movement, pre-ballet and tap to modern, jazz and disco.

Racquetball and men's fitness and gym classes as well as women's slim and trim classes continue. The slim and trim classes are the only ones given in Northville. Others are at Plymouth and Canton locations.

Peg Kozler teaches slim and trim classes at First Presbyterian Church in Northville on Tuesdays and Fridays in six-week sessions. They are held from 10 to 11 a.m. Fees are $10.50 for one-day sessions for members and $13.50 for non-members; two days weekly are $13.50 and $16.50.

In addition, Janet Luce, program director, announces, Indian Guide, Indian Maiden, Trail Blazer and Princess programs are continuing.

The YMCA, located at 292 South Main in Plymouth, offers professional counseling by appointment.

Counseling courses in the winter program include The Force in Your Life, Emerging Woman, Coping with Older Parents Effectively, Awareness and Parapsychology.

Advance registration is required for programs, Mrs. Luce emphasizes. She may be contacted at the YMCA, 453-2904, for the brochure or additional information.

Northville resident plays in starring role in 'Mary, Mary' dinner-theatre offering

Patricia Bray of Northville is taking bows in the title role of "Mary, Mary," second dinner-theatre presentation of the Plymouth Theatre Guild in cooperation with the Mayflower Meeting House in Plymouth.

A King's Mill resident for the past seven years, she has become an active member of the guild and currently is serving her second term as its president. During her five years as a guild member she has acted, directed and produced several plays. She now is producer of "Mary, Mary."

The play opened January 7 and is to run for six weeks on consecutive Sundays. Reservations are necessary and may be made by calling, 453-1620.

The $12.95 cost includes a cheese bar, which opens at 5:30 p.m., dinner and the play at 8 p.m.

Ms. Bray has been employed at Multi-Elmac Company in Novi for the past two years. Before becoming president of the guild, she served on the board of governors as recording secretary and vice-president.

As director Ms. Bray's credits include the production of "A Gentleman and a Scoundrel," "We Have Always Lived in the Castle," and "Under the Yum-Yum Tree."

As an actress she appeared in "Barefoot in the Park," "All My Sons,"

PATRICIA BRAY

"Six Rms Riv Vu" and was the female lead in the Plymouth Theatre Guild's entry in the statewide Community Theatre Association of Michigan's 1977 play contest in "Hello Out There."

She previously appeared in many plays at Livonia Stevenson High School.

Experiment with herbs

Dishes may be served with a continental flair by choosing herbs "of the country." To add a French accent, cooks should season with tarragon, chervil and shallots (big chives). A German dish will call for anise, caraway and onion. No Italian dish would be complete without basil, oregano, garlic, and mint (remember savory).

A plain dish can take on a Greek air by adding lemon, mint and cinnamon, while Oriental would require coriander, sesame, and chives.

For the past two years she has chaired the committee for the guild's cotton candy wagon in the annual Plymouth Fall Festival.

She may be contacted at 349-4136, for additional information about the current dinner-theatre production.

Gala U-D High dance takes Polish theme

Area mothers whose youngsters attend University of Detroit High School have been working on a benefit dance with a Polish theme to be given at 7:30 p.m. this Saturday at the school, 8400 South Cambridge in Detroit.

The gala evening is the mothers' club's 43rd annual benefit for the school, which is launching its 102nd year.

In addition to a Polish menu, there will be music by Stan Aramus and his polka band. Tickets are $9 a person.

Alumni, parents and friends are invited to purchase them at the door or to make reservations with Mrs. Joseph Panetta, 477-3932, or Mrs. Joseph Jackman, 537-1637.
