

Unicameral legislation: A single house for Lansing?

By LENORE BECHTEL

If State Representative Jack Kirksey has his way, 48 Michigan legislators will lose their jobs in 1990.

Kirksey, R-Livonia, favors a unicameral legislature which would combine Michigan's 110 representatives and 38 senators into one body of 100 people selected on a representative basis across the state.

"Right now we have an unnecessarily expensive form of representative government," Kirksey said. "I don't believe we would compromise the democratic process with a unicameral legislature, and I think we would greatly enhance the efficiency of government and save many tax dollars currently being spent."

Kirksey, who represents Northville, will introduce a joint resolution favoring the one-body legislature, hoping to get the two-thirds 'yes' vote needed from both houses to place the issue on the ballot.

He is not the first Michigan legislator to try to accomplish this end. Representative Dennis Hertel, D-Detroit, introduced the same resolution last legislative session. According to Representative Roy Smith, R-Saline, the idea of a unicameral legislature has been discussed since he was elected 12 years ago.

Smith opposes the idea. "It's much easier to pass legislation with one house, but it might not always be in the best interest of the people," Smith said. "You need checks and balances in government, and one of the best checks is having two houses."

Kirksey sees the two-house system as "very cumbersome and unnecessarily complicated."

A unicameral legislature is not a new idea in the United States. Pennsylvania had a one-house government until 1790 and Vermont until 1836. Nebraska citizens voted in 1934 to combine their 100 house members and 33 senators into one body of 43 members, later expanded to 49. Voters in Oregon, Oklahoma and Arizona defeated proposals for unicameral legislatures, and constitutional conventions in New York and Ohio considered the idea, but discarded it.

Nebraska is unique among the 50 states in having a unicameral legislature and also unique in that the 49 senators are elected on a nonpartisan basis.

In a recent letter to the RECORD, Nebraska Governor J. James Exon said Nebraskans feel the one-house legislature is satisfactory.

"However, it is not functioning properly because the senators are elected on a supposedly non-partisan basis," Exon wrote. "As a result of the election on a non-partisan basis, there are no stands taken by either party on major state-wide issues. As a result, the public cannot elect a team they believe will bring about the changes which the majority desires. They end up voting for each senator on local issues and then have to accept whatever affiliations they make on major issues after they get elected."

Exon said that the legislative body in reality operates on a semi-partisan basis to benefit the legislators' majority affiliation.

"If anyone wants to consider a one-house legislature, they should make sure that the individuals are elected on a partisan basis," Exon concluded.

Senator R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, agrees that a state legislature should be partisan.

"I think too often the average voter does not have a clear idea of the philosophy or platform of candidates for the state legislature," Geake said. "Knowledge of the candidate's party affiliation may help the voter in deciding which candidate would best represent his or her views."

Geake said he could see both pros and cons to a unicameral legislature and would not endorse or reject the idea until giving it careful study.

"It would certainly reduce the cost of the legislative branch of government," he said. "It would also force legislators to consider bills more carefully before voting. Now there is a tendency for some legislators to vote for a bill with some reservations on the assumption that any problems with the bill will be discovered in the other house. That's a slipshod way of doing business."

Geake said a disadvantage of a one-house legislature would be the advantage it would give to lobbyists. "It would be easier for lobbyists and special interest groups to influence legislation when they only have to deal with one legislator from each area."

Representative Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, supports the unicameral legislature concept. "The aim is to give people a clear choice in the legislative process, making that process more visible, more understandable and more accountable to the public," Bullard said. "Responsibility is hard for the public to pinpoint in two houses. One would make it clearer what policy is being made and who's responsible for it."

Although Representative Richard Fessler, R-Union Lake, agrees that a unicameral legislature has some positive aspects, at this point he prefers a two-house system.

"I think there are overhauls that need to be made in the two-house system to make it more efficient," Fessler said. "We need streamlining in the committee structure; there are too many at this time."

He thinks present methods of assigning bills to one house committee, such as the judiciary, and then to another senate committee, such as the civil rights, is a method of side-stepping and killing a bill. He favors agreements that would keep the bills in the same committees and result in better legislation.

He thinks the two-house system is needed for checks and balances. "Are the people being represented by those

Church may convert to restaurant again

From 1885 until 1972 the stately building with its tall clock tower at the corner of Center and Dunlap streets in Northville served as the worship center for area Methodists.

In April, 1973 it opened as the plush Drawbridge Restaurant. A new First United Methodist Church building was erected on West Eight Mile Road and the old downtown building soon became a popular dining place for Detroit area residents.

Police chief interviews still on hold

Northville City may have its first police chief in five years by the end of this month.

Then again, maybe it won't.

City Manager Steven Walters has interviewed the six finalists for the long-vacant position and he said Monday that the only step left in the selection process is an appearance by each candidate before an oral board.

But Walters said that the oral board, which will consist of area law enforcement officers, has not yet been selected.

He said he would select the examination panel soon — "hopefully before next week" — but he added that the timetable would depend upon whether or not there are time conflicts among the police officers he chooses.

Once the board convenes, Walters said it would only take a day for the in-

Following its first flush of success, the Drawbridge failed. On the way down it changed its name to the Captain's Table. Finally, bankruptcy struck in the spring of 1976.

In November, 1977 the tiny congregation of the Open Door Christian Church miraculously came up with a $50,000 down payment to purchase the building. Its first services were conducted on December 4, 1977.

Now the Open Door Christian Church is for sale again. And chances are its next owner will be a restaurateur.

Elders Barry Egeler and Mark Freer have announced that the building has been turned over to the real estate firm of Byron W. Trerice Company of Southfield and listed at $350,000.

The figure is very close to what it cost Open Door to acquire the building little more than one year ago. Actual sale price was $250,000, but unpaid property taxes and parking assessments may have amounted to another $100,000.

Ken Berris, sales representative for Trerice, said that it will be his objective to sell the building for restaurant use. He said contacts had already been made for the possible acquisition of an available liquor license.

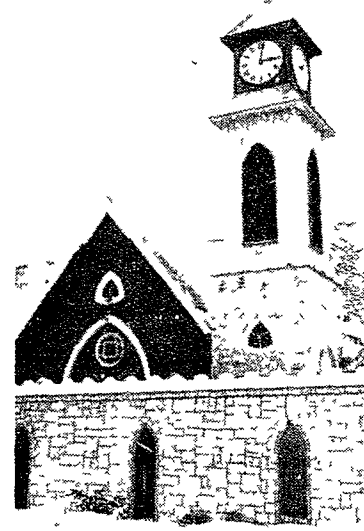

"It is obvious that it would easily lend itself to a restaurant operation again," said Berris. He noted that his specialty in the real estate business has been restaurants and that he has already contacted several potential clients.

Egeler said he was hopeful that a transaction can be arranged this spring. He noted that the Open Door congregation is looking for a building that can provide Christian education facilities for youngsters, possibly Bible college classrooms as well as church sanctuary space. He said the church would like to open its school in September.

"We want to remain in Northville. We know the Lord will provide us with the proper facilities," Egeler mentioned the Main Street elementary school and Northville Square shopping mall as possible new sites for the Open Door Christian Church.

About two years ago a dozen area residents calling themselves "the faith people" formed the Open Door organization. Within a short space of a

Northville voters face 5 elections

NORTHVILLE CITY

1979 may be a non-election year, but Northville polls are certainly going to be active this winter and spring.

No less than four units of government — Northville Township, Northville City, Northville Public Schools and Schoolcraft Community College — are planning five elections in the upcoming four months.

The issues involve millage requests, a board vacancy, and the public approval of a financing plan for an ambitious downtown renovation.

Only the college and the city have set their dates. Unless there is some jockeying to conduct two elections on at the same time, there could be four trips to the polls for the conscientious township voter and three for his counterpart in the city. All this before the snow melts.

Here's the line-up:

It's called Mainstreet 78 but one of its most important dates will be in early 1979 — February 20, to be exact. That's when city voters will be asked to approve the sale of $1.6 million in general obligation bonds for improvement to the downtown district.

In theory, most of Mainstreet 78 will be financed by taxes levied against the new tax base in the downtown area covered by the renovation plan. This can be done under the relatively new "tax increment" concept passed a few years ago by state lawmakers.

Because of the voter-approved Headlee amendment and the need to make the bonds more saleable, Northville City Council feels voter approval of the bonds is necessary.

The voter approval would commit the city to paying off the bonds — by levying additional millage — should tax increment financing fail to provide sufficient funds.

The failure of tax increment financing could occur if the new business growth envisioned by the council-appointed Downtown Development Authority did not materialize.

Voter approval would probably make bond consultants more likely to recommend the bonds and should result in a more favorable interest rate.

One of the city's most pressing tasks in the months preceding the election will be to explain these concepts to the electorate.

NORTHVILLE TOWNSHIP

For 45 days, six members of the Northville Township board of trustees struggled to name a successor to the seat vacated when former Trustee Michael Wilson resigned.

They failed. Now they must wait for Governor William Milliken to choose dates for both a primary and a general election when township voters will make this choice.

Not everyone thinks this is such a bad idea. Trustee John Swienkowski, for instance, has said from the start that such an election is the only way to go.

For this reason, Swienkowski voted against every candidate brought before the board. None of the others could garner more than three of the remaining five votes. Thus, an election was born.

Two elections, actually. First there will be a primary election to choose Republican and Democratic nominees for a general election. If past elections are any indication, the election will be decided in the Republican primary and the general election will be a formality. Estimated cost of the two elections is $3,648.

ISEP analysis

Who should educate these kids?

By RICH PERLBERG

The Northville Board of Education study session this Saturday may be a pivotal moment in the three-year history of the Institution Special Education Program.

ISEP, as it is called, is a state-mandated and state-financed education program for about 700 mentally retarded youngsters up to the age of 26 who live in either the Plymouth Center for Human Development or the Northville Residential Training Center.

Because both institutions are located within school district boundaries, the Northville school board has assumed the policy-making role since ISEP's birth three years ago.

Theoretically, the board has the same relationship to ISEP as it does to the standard K-12 program. The only supposed difference is that all of the ISEP funds come from the state and federal governments rather than from local property taxes.

Ten days ago, several members of the Northville school board questioned the wisdom and reality of this relationship.

They raised doubts about their ability to properly oversee the huge program with its $6.4 million budget and school buildings in five school districts, to understand the professional jargon and to reasonably pass judgment on a plethora of grants.

At Saturday's meeting, Superintendent Lawrence Nichols will present to the board an administrative position paper which could heavily influence whether or not the board renews its contract to run ISEP.

The meeting begins at 9:30 a.m. in the school board offices on the third floor of the Main Street Elementary School.

There are at least four questions that Nichols and the board may be wrestling with.

First, should the moral obligation of educating these youngsters rest with the local school board merely because of the proximity of the institutions?

Second, on a less altruistic plane, can the district afford to let go of ISEP?

Third, who is both better qualified and willing to accept ISEP if Northville decides to part ways?

And fourth, how much if any of the desire to drop ISEP stems from anti-Raymond Spear feelings?

The first of these questions may very well be the deciding factor.

Both institutions are located in Northville Township. But does that make them part of the community — and, thereby, a local responsibility — or is the residents' education a state, or at the very least, county function?

Many in ISEP champion the local control concept, but there is little doubt that, rather than meshing together, the ISEP and K-12 programs have remained separate entities with the Northville Public Schools system.

It has been a fairly harmonious relationship if for no other reason than because the staffs of each program rarely come in contact with each other.

But now that the board is suggesting a parting of the ways, some heretofore hidden sore spots may begin to fester openly.

"They never wanted us anyway and that hurts," explains one ISEP staffer who asked to remain anonymous. "When someone doesn't want you, you feel they can just shove it. Things that we have been unhappy with are now surfacing."

"You work so hard for something you feel is right. There's a moral commitment (among ISEP staffers) because you're dealing with someone who can't help themselves."

School board members, however, are not questioning whether ISEP is a good program and should continue, but they are wondering if they should be saddled with the imposing administrative responsibilities.

It is not strictly for charity that Northville has assumed this administrative role.

Because of the difficulty in assessing shared services, there is no firm figure on how much ISEP is worth to the district. But there is little doubt that it is an economic plus.

In this year's K-12 budget alone, there is about $215,000 in revenue from ISEP. Some of this is pro-rated rent and utility payments for a few rooms used in Moraine Elementary and Cooke Junior High schools.

There are also rent and utility payments for the Main Street Annex, the 60-year-old former high school that may get a $1.2 million state-funded facelift because of ISEP.

Also, because of an influx of special education students into the ISEP system this fall, state aid payments this year to the Northville school system were sweeter than expected.

(Nichols said last week that the six-figure estimates bandied about last fall may be suspect and he said a revised state aid picture might be included in Saturday's report).

The possible financial benefits available to a school district — particularly one with empty school buildings — may be at the root of the interest in ISEP by several area school districts who reportedly have said they'll take the program if Northville wants out.

That leads to question three. If Northville does let go of ISEP, is there any reason to believe that another, completely inexperienced school board could do a better job?

Of the state's 10 programs that educate the institutionally retarded, Northville is the only one run by a school board.

Others are run by county intermediate school districts. The Wayne County Intermediate School District, however, has indicated it does not want that role and, if Northville cuts it ties, would likely contract with another school district on a similar basis.

The one topic that has not been publicly discussed — but has found a forum within school district hallways — is whether or not there is any feeling on the board that the loss of ISEP would eliminate one more remnant of the memory of former Superintendent Raymond Spear.

The sometimes controversial Spear was a Northville administrator for 16 years, the last 11 as superintendent, and it was under his guidance and prodding that the Northville board took the unprecedented step of assuming ISEP control.

Spear enjoyed innovations such as ISEP and the Extended School Year, an optional year-round school plan that was as bitterly opposed by foes as it was warmly greeted by advocates.

Two years ago, ESY quietly ended in Northville. Last year, Spear resigned and took the superintendent's job in DeWitt. Now, wonder some, is ISEP to be next?

Church may convert to restaurant again

year the congregation grew rapidly (now estimated at 165 by Egeler) and they "laid claim" to the old Drawbridge building as their first church.

Told by officials of the financial firm holding the Drawbridge mortgage that it would take a $50,000 down payment to make their "claim" legal, the members of Open Door congregated at the building — planted their hands firmly on the brick and mortar — and declared the building to be theirs.

Open Door gave itself seven weeks to raise the $50,000. The money had to be in addition to its $100,000 annual budget.

At the morning services on the seventh Sunday the pastor announced that $12,000 had been collected. A Record newspaper account of the event noted the following:

"One by one those in the audience rose and came forward to give not just their money but their personal valuables.

"Women stripped diamond wedding rings from their fingers, necklaces from their necks; men who had already given to the Lord's work, gave still more. Watches, coin collections, sewing machine, an antique violin, land, much more."

A final accounting by the financial institution of the contributions revealed that more than enough had been contributed to meet the down payment obligation.

Now, apparently, "the faith people" are ready to lay claim to even larger facilities, where they may start a Bible college and provide Christian education classes for the young.

And they are confident the Lord will show them the way.

Come toot your horn

Community residents interested in joining the new Schoolcraft College concert band are invited to attend rehearsals on Wednesday evenings.

The band will meet from 7 to 10 p.m. in Room 310 in the Forum Building beginning January 10.

Under the direction of Gary Laura, the band is starting its second semester. Nearly 40 musicians participated during the fall. The band has been patterned after the Schoolcraft jazz ensemble and community choir. Students may take concert band for college credit by registering prior to January 16. Others may also participate for the balance of the winter semester without registering and with no charge or obligation.

While open to all instrumentalists high school age or above, an audition is required. The band has scheduled a spring concert for April 12. Further information may be obtained by calling Dr. Richard Saunders, assistant dean of arts and sciences, at 591-6400, extension 510. Schoolcraft College is located at 18600 Haggerty Road in Livonia.

Dems to meet

The Southwest Oakland County Democratic Club will meet on Thursday, January 18 at the Depot Restaurant on Novi Road just north of Grand River in Novi. Officers for 1979 will be nominated.

On Phoenix Lake

What cold? Swans like it here

A pair of European mute swans have found a home in Northville — and come bitter cold or blizzard, they're apparently not about to leave.

Defying the worst of weather conditions the swans, owned by Hargrave Garrison of Lakeside Drive in Northville Township, have spurned the natural habits of other members of their species and stayed in Michigan over the past two winters. Home for them is Phoenix Lake, located near the corner of Five Mile and Northville Roads.

The sight has aroused more than a few curiosity seekers, and even caused a slight stir two weeks ago when a passerby, seeing the swans in the same place on two successive days, became concerned that they'd become stuck in the ice and called up several local agencies to investigate.

Garrison, who lives on the east side of the lake, bought the swans from a man in Battle Creek in the spring of 1977 in the hopes of enlivening the lake's appearance. But he hardly expected to have them this long.

"One of the most interesting things about them is they're very territorial," he says. "Their previous owner said they'd probably leave about October."

Instead the swans, which Garrison estimates to be about four years old, braved one of the area's roughest winters ever last year, living under a bridge near Northville Road until Garrison caught them and brought them up to his backyard. They spent the rest of the winter there, using a wood duck house built by a neighbor for shelter.

Then, after nesting successfully on a muskrat pile last spring, the female laid a pair of eggs, producing two more swans.

The offspring apparently had minds of their own, though. After spending the first week of January on the lake (when temperatures dipped below zero several times), they decided they'd seen enough of their parents' way of life and flew off, presumably south.

But the two elder birds remained, sticking out another week of freezing temperatures before Garrison rounded them up again last weekend.

"I admire them," Garrison says of his fine-feathered friends, pointing out that they won't hesitate to climb the steep, snow-covered slope leading down to the lake from his backyard to get to the food he leaves out for them.

He also notes that, during the warmer months, they tend to attract a lot of Canadian geese, adding further beauty to the lake. Garrison adds, however, that "they don't seem to like other birds being around."

Nor are they fond of any other creature that strays into their territory. Last summer, Garrison recalls, he saw the two chasing what appeared to be a goose through the water.

The "goose" turned out to be a deer who'd been scared by picnickers from nearby Hines Park and was high-tailing it across the lake. Undaunted by the animal's size, the swans chased their unwelcome visitor right back out of the lake — and right back through an undoubtedly stunned group of picnickers.

It may be freezing, but swans find Michigan weather just ducky

Edison error brings refund plans

Detroit Edison has announced plans to refund approximately $19.8 million to its customers over a 12-month period beginning February 1 through credits to current fuel clause billings.

The refund, which would be 26 cents per month for the average residential customer, if approved by the Michigan Public Service Commission, is the result of the incorrect conversion of Canadian dollars to U.S. currency while paying for about $350 million of fuel oil purchased from a Canadian supplier for use in Detroit Edison power plants during the period 1974-78.

The mistake was discovered by company personnel and was reported to the Michigan Public Service Commission.

Company officials emphasized that amounts paid to the supplier were correct, as was its accounting for quantities of oil received and consumed.

The refund is due to the currency conversion calculations made when recording the cost of fuel consumed, which in turn resulted in higher fuel adjustment clause billings to customers than would have occurred.

Northville man hopes never to perform new state job

A Northville man has the unusual distinction of serving on a commission which he hopes will have very little work to do.

Lawrence M. Roslinski, 1009 Springfield Court, was appointed last week to the newly created State Toxic Substance Control Commission, which has the authority to ask the governor to declare a toxic emergency.

"We would hope there's very little work for the commission to do because it would mean we wouldn't be coming up with anything unusual in toxic substances in the state's environment," Roslinski said. "We would hope everything would be routine and easily handled, that the commission will not have to declare any toxic emergencies."

A growing concern about toxic, hazardous materials entering the environment — whether it be through landfills, spills or a scare as monumental as the PBB scandal — led to the formation of the new commission.

"The department of agriculture deals with agriculture measures, the department of health with human beings and the department of natural resources with preserving the environment," Roslinski explained. "Toxic materials may transgress the whole gamut."

The toxic control commission would act if a problem were not being handled by another existing agency.

"The commission will be mostly involved if an emergency situation can't be readily handled by existing agencies in the state," Roslinski said.

As an example, Roslinski explained that if a tank truck overturned on an expressway, local authorities would take steps to handle toxic materials without any action needed from the commission.

"But if the spill ended up in the agricultural land or the waterways, and if it were not obvious what steps to take, the commission would be asked to comment on it," Roslinski said.

"Do we have to take off the first four inches of top soil? Or shut off the water for a certain period of time? We would give our recommendations to the governor for his decision."

The commission will help coordinate the federal government's toxic substance control act passed in 1976 and administered by the Environmental Protection Agency.

"The intent is to be aware of potentially hazardous materials and to control them before they enter the environment," Roslinski said, explaining the commission hoped to head off problems such as mercury in Great Lakes fishes, discovered after the substance was in the environment.

The law puts the burden of proof that the use and release of chemicals will not prove hazardous to man and his environment on the processor of the chemical.

"Information on the potential degree of risk is given to the government," Roslinski said, explaining that the risk is weighed against the benefit.

"They may or may not regulate the use of a drain cleaner, for instance. The risk is the poisonous nature of the material (weighed against) to what extent the agency should go to minimize the risk."

Roslinski, who has a master's degree in occupational and environmental health and a PhD in pharmacology and physiology, has worked as an industrial toxicologist with Ford Motor Company since 1972. Before joining Ford Motor Company he was a toxicologist with the EPA in Washington, D.C.

The auto industry consumes several thousand chemicals in the production of an automobile, whether it be for fenders, nuts, bolts, paints, solvents, plastic materials, metal cleaning solutions or plating solutions.

"Toxicologists deal with suppliers of these materials to be assured what we're using is used in an appropriate manner," Roslinski said.

"We concern ourselves with the hazardous nature of the chemical used, consumed or produced to be assured that the risks associated with them are minimal or non-existent."

Roslinski and six other similarly experienced Michigan residents will combine their highly specialized skills to help protect the Michigan environment.

The less they have to do, the happier they'll be. "That would mean everything is going fine and dandy," Roslinski said.

Traffic deaths top 2,000 mark

For the first time in five years, Michigan with 2,043 fatalities for 1978 has recorded an annual traffic death toll that has exceeded the 2,000 mark, Colonel Gerald L. Hough, director of Michigan State Police, has reported.

The provisional total is already 93 or about 4.8 percent higher than the toll of 1,950 in 1977.

Other recent year tolls below 2,000 include 1,955 in 1976, 1,811 in 1975 and 1,875 in 1974.

The state's all-time high of 2,469 occurred in 1969 and was part of a 10-year span, 1964-73, in which all the annual tolls were above 2,000.

State Police traffic services division officers point out that the 1978 toll will likely increase by another one or two percent when records for the year are complete.

While a better evaluation of factors contributing to the increase will be available later when data are more complete, traffic officers already know that some of the factors include increases in vehicle mileage traveled, in numbers of licensed drivers and in numbers of motor vehicles registered.

Other factors they said would include a more active economy and the tendency on the part of some drivers to travel at excessive speeds.

Despite the increase in the annual toll, traffic officers feel that the death rate in 1978 per 100 million miles of vehicle travel should again be one of the state's lowest. The rate for 1977 was an all-time low of 3.0.

Part of the 1978 toll was the 136 deaths charged to December accidents. This toll was down by 22 from 158 in 1977. The average toll for December was 148 in the five-year period 1973-77.

Michigan's traffic death toll for the Christmas weekend in 1978 was 27, which was 13 more than for that period in 1977. The recent New Year weekend toll was four and that was 11 less than for that period a year earlier.

City's EDC forms; eyes initial project

The city of Northville's new economic development corporation (EDC) was hardly formed before it reviewed its first application for financing Monday night.

Established by council ordinance last fall the EDC is provided in accordance with articles of incorporation with the state of Michigan to "Assist the city in retaining local industry, commercial and residential base by encouraging and assisting industrial and commercial enterprises in locating, purchasing, constructing, etc., and expanding facilities which would benefit the city of Northville."

With approval of the city council Mayor Paul R. Vernon appointed a nine member EDC board of directors consisting of Mayor Vernon, Richard Morgano, Stewart Kissinger, Robert Brueck, William Sliger, A. M. Allen, Steven Walters, Carolann Ayers and Dewey Gardner.

Monday night the directors elected Brueck chairman, Gardner vice chairman and City Manager Walters secretary.

Immediately the newly-constituted body reviewed a presentation by Ronald P. Keller for a proposed three-level retail-office complex facing both Mary Alexander Court and Cady Street at a site west of the First Presbyterian church.

Keller told the EDC board that along with his partner, Donald G. Heinonen II, he planned to erect a 13,500 square foot building with some 9,000 square feet of retail-office space and 4,500 square feet of storage. He noted that the size of the facility could be increased considerably if additional land can be acquired.

Keller and Heinonen intend to secure revenue bond financing up to $500,000 through the EDC.

Under the provisions of the EDC act the local, non-profit organization can recommend such a project for financing to the city council, which must ultimately approve all projects. With city blessing the private developers may then seek financing from any institution which may be willing to provide mortgage funds for the project.

The contract becomes one between the developer and the lending institution with no obligation upon the EDC or the city to make payments from revenues. The role of the EDC is to provide support for projects that it deems to be beneficial to the economic welfare of the community. The EDC support is helpful in gaining lower-than-normal financing rates because all income to the lending institution from EDC supported projects is tax free to the financial institution. Thus the bank or savings and loan may reduce its interest rates for the loan in direct relationship to its savings in taxes.

A tank and mask

The first line of defense inside a burning house

By RICH PERLBERG

Bob Schultz remembers the first time he entered a smoke-filled home as a firefighter.

His "training" consisted of a veteran on the force patting him on the back, saying "follow me," and then plunging toward the thick, gray clouds.

Someone said, "Watch out for the backdraft." Schultz was still trying to figure out what that meant when he was yanked away from the door — scant moments before flames shot through the space where he was standing.

It's many years later now and Schultz is doing what he can to see that today's firefighters have a better idea what they are getting into when they don a mask and air-pack and enter a burning house.

"This is your first line of defense," Schultz says of portable air support systems. "This is the equipment that is going to sustain you in an atmosphere where nothing else can live."

Schultz is the acting director of the University of Michigan's reputable fire training school which offers seminars in firefighting techniques to many Michigan fire departments.

The seminars can be elementary or advanced, specific or general, and can last a few hours or six weeks.

For the last two Saturdays, Northville's volunteer firemen from both the city and township departments have attended specially tailored classes designed to increase their expertise — and confidence — with air packs.

The course structure is simple. One or two fires are set in the fire school's 2½-story, concrete structure located near Plymouth Road on the University's North Campus.

When the smoke in the virtually sealed-off building becomes so dense that it is literally impossible to see your hand in front of your face, the groping firefighters are led inside.

There, lugging up to 50 pounds of equipment — most of the weight consisting of the air pack and the protective coat and boots — the firemen got a firsthand look at a smoke-filled room.

"Look" is a loose term. A Record reporter was invited to go through the building. When you are peering through alternately frozen and fogged-over lenses into thick smoke from a fire that is blazing only a few yards away, you feel you are seeing less than you would at the bottom of a coal mine when the lights are turned out.

"It's as close to an actual fire as we can get you guys," says Instructor

James Porter.

City and township firemen say the setting was an accurate re-enactment. The only difference, they add, was the suddenness. In the morning session they step through an outside basement door from the bright sunlight and plunge into instant darkness and total dependency on the instructors.

The lack of self-determination fueled by a growing disorientation gave some of the firemen an eerie — and not entirely pleasant — sensation.

Most enjoyed the experience, however. And in the afternoon, they were allowed to charge through the smoke on their own to extinguish a fire on the top floor.

Fighting in smoke means relying on senses other than sight. Even when the blaze is only a few feet away, all that can be seen through the dense vapors is a lurid orange glow.

The firefighter aims his water line in that direction. If he hears a sizzle and feels an onrush of heat, he knows he's struck paydirt. If the glow diminishes, he's beating the fire back.

The water line serves another vital service besides the obvious. It is, a lifeline for firemen who may not be able to see their way out of a strange building. Ala Hansel and Gretel, all they have to do is follow the line out of the building — provided, of course, that the path is still clear.

In the confusing, hectic and unpredictable course of a fire, it is essential to a firefighter's safety that he keeps his poise.

A firefighter who is not confident about his equipment may erroneously rip his air mask off at the first indication that oxygen is not coming through. With the highly toxic fumes that accompany modern day fires, that can be a fatal error.

The less a firefighter is prepared, the more likely he is to panic, said Schultz. "You can't make up time between when an alarm is set and the scene except by cutting down motion," he explains. "A lost minute makes you excited. You become your own worst enemy."

He tells of three Milwaukee firefighters who died after entering burning buildings with air-support devices. All three, he says, broke two cardinal rules — they went in alone and they panicked when something went wrong.

"Each one was found with at least a half of a tank of air," he says. "They did not know their equipment."

Porter and John Reardon, both full time Detroit City firefighters, went over the basics of the equipment with the Northville volunteers.

"Hopefully, by the end of the day, you'll have enough trust in this mask that if something goes wrong, you'll know what to do about it," says Reardon.

First, there is the harness — a backbrace type of contraption that straps the air bottle to the firefighter's back.

The air bottle itself supposedly carried between 30 and 45 minutes of oxygen. But that rating was developed by someone who was taking it easy.

"You'll be breathing a lot faster than that guy," warns Reardon who suggests that 15 to 20 minutes is a more realistic maximum. Some larger men can go through a tank in 10 to 12 minutes.

A warning bell rings when there is only a five-minute supply of air remaining. It is necessary because usually it is impossible for a firefighter to see the measuring gauge even if he thought to look.

When the bell rings, says Reardon, the firefighter has no choice — he should tap his partner on the shoulder and the two of them must leave the building.

But, he was asked, what if you are on a rescue operation?

"You're going to break some rules," he answers. "You might end up working alone. But you shouldn't jeopardize your life. We don't trade lives because the victim may be dead and you're trading your life for a dead man."

A mainline valve regulates the air from the bottle to the mask at the demand of the firefighter. If something

Chamber to get Mainstreet '78 update at dinner

Northville Chamber of Commerce members will hear an update of Mainstreet '78 at a dinner meeting set for 6:30 p.m. next Thursday, January 25, at First Presbyterian Church.

The dinner, according to Chamber President Paul Folino, will be the first of planned quarterly ones if it goes over well.

Folino also announces that the chamber has become a charter member of the newly-organized West Suburban Area Council of Chambers formed to assist one another and exchange ideas.

Folino and Essie Nirider, executive director of Northville chamber, have been attending meetings of the area council composed of 11 communities. In addition to Northville they include Belleville, Farmington, Garden City, Greater Romulus, Livonia, Novi, Plymouth Community, Redford Township, Wayne and Westland.

First official meeting was held in December when by-laws were passed and officers elected. Frank Hand of Livonia was named president, and David Willett of Wayne vice-president. Robert Brueck of Northville, who is a member of the Greater Romulus Chamber of Commerce as he works in that community for Ford Motor Company, Folino explained, is secretary-treasurer.

Each chamber will have one vote in the West Suburban Area Council, Folino added, saying he feels "it will be a great way to get involved with local and state bodies on issues that affect the area." He and Nirider will represent Northville.

The council represents a total of more than 2,500 business people, Folino pointed out. He added that he feels the involvement is well worth the $50 yearly dues, saying that such an area organization "would have been very beneficial to enlist aid at the time of Northville's fight against the prison on Wayne County Training Center property."

"While there is no real legislative issue at this time," Folino stated, "I feel we can accomplish a worthwhile exchange of ideas at our quarterly meetings."

He and Nirider are meeting this morning at 7:30 a.m. at a coffee session of the area council in the Livonia Chamber office on Farmington Road.

Folino emphasizes that he wants to see the Northville Chamber become more active and that the January 25 dinner meeting is one of the ways he hopes will help.

City Manager Steven Walters will be the guest speaker, giving the current picture of the status of Mainstreet '78 revitalization for Northville. The dinner program will be $6 and is open to anyone interested as well as all chamber members.

Folino is asking current members to make an effort to bring guests to the meeting. He may be contacted at 349-1189 or 349-1473, or the chamber office, 349-7640, may be called to make reservation.

The chamber's plans for the year will be outlined and the new area council explained, Folino said.

"We welcome all who are interested to become chamber members," Folino said, announcing that the chamber now has a new individual class of membership at $35. This, he noted, will include such persons as physicians and dentists.

New Old Mill owners!

The Old Mill Restaurant has two new owners who are busy giving it a new look inside and out. Dan Collins, 34, and Costa Katrakis, 29 (l. to r.) recently bought both the building and business at 130 East Main Street. Costa had previously owned Maranatha Coney Island, next door to the Old Mill. An open archway now connects the counter-service Coney Island to the Old Mill family restaurant area. And the connecting restaurants will be renamed "Costa's Old Mill" and "Costa's, Too!" Home-cooked specials will be featured and the restaurants will be open every day from 6 a.m. until 9 p.m. The new owners expect to reopen the Old Mill this week. The counter-service portion has continued in operation. In addition to interior improvements a new front is planned for the exterior of the restaurants. Helping Costa in the restaurant is his wife, Elyse. Costa, incidentally, became a U.S. citizen just two weeks ago. Collins is the owner of Lila's Interiors at 135 North Center Street. His wife, Carole, will continue to operate the decorating business, while Collins will devote attention to the new restaurant venture. Dan's mother, Lila Collins, will assist in both businesses.

Fire school

goes wrong, the firefighter can activate a bypass valve that sends a steady stream of air to the mask.

When the bypass valve is used for this reason — it can also be cracked to clear smoke from the mask — it is time to make tracks for the outside, says Reardon.

The air travels through a corrugated hose that can resist most twists and turns without cutting off the supply. If the hose is pinched, the firefighter learns quickly because his mask flattens against his face.

The mask — or the entire face piece really — is part of the equipment that may soon be changed from a pressure-demand to a positive supply system to get a better seal around the face.

The alteration is necessary because the increasing amount of synthetic materials used in construction and home furnishing emit lethal fumes when burned.

The hay and wood burned at the fire school last Saturday resulted in a relatively clean smoke that can be uncomfortable but, for a short period of time, can be safely endured.

But exposure to a two or three percent concentration of nylon, rayon or polyester fumes for as little as three minutes can be fatal.

"If you shaved this morning, there will be a one to two percent leak (in your mask)," says Schultz. "If you didn't shave, it's a 6 to 10 percent leak. If you have a beard, it can be over 25 percent."

"With a large amount of leakage in a heavy concentration of lethal properties, you can get killed in one of these masks without a proper seal."

Thus the need for closer fitting masks. In a few years, Schultz says, firefighters will have personally-fitted face pieces.

"This is your protection in an environment that is becoming more and more lethal."

Madonna art class set

Art classes in the Adult Education program at Madonna College in Livonia will begin the week of January 22, and continue for a 10 week period. All classes are non-credit. Registration for the classes will be conducted in the Art Department, Room 192, Friday, January 19 from 1-2 p.m. and from 7-8 p.m.

For more information, call Sr. Angeline, 591-1200, ext. 8.

Madonna is on the corner of Schoolcraft (I-96) and Levan in Livonia.

Morning fitness class offered by Schoolcraft

A new continuing education fitness class will meet on Tuesday and Thursday mornings at Schoolcraft College beginning February 6.

Called "dynamic health fitness," it is one of four new course offerings in the winter schedule recently mailed to all residents of the College District.

Those interested in the course should note that it meets from 9:30 to 10:50 mornings rather than in the evening as inadvertently listed in the schedule.

Also new for this winter are "successful home management for working women," "non-vocal communications," and "women in cross cultural perspective."

The printed schedule also contained one other time mistake. Advanced French will meet from 8 to 10 evenings rather than from 6 to 8 as indicated in the schedule.

Mail registrations for both continuing education and community services courses will be accepted through January 16, and walk-in registrations will be taken January 15-17 from 2 to 7 p.m. in the Waterman Campus Center.

February 13-14 have been designated for late registrations and course adjustment. For information, telephone 591-6400, ext. 404.

STEPHEN SERKAIAN

He's Senator Levin's secretary

Twenty-two-year-old Stephen Serkaian of Northville has been named assistant press secretary for newly-elected U.S. Senator Carl Levin. Serkaian, a graduate of the Northville High School class of 1974, is the youngest member of the senator's staff. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Serkaian of Bloomcrest drive, Steve was recently graduated cum laude from Central Michigan University where he majored in broadcasting and journalism. He worked for the Levin campaign following the primary election as media coordinator. The Northville youngster has already assumed his new duties and moved to Washington, D.C., last Saturday.

Ken Wittwere — If I could go out with

7th graders choose

Guess who is coming to Cooke lunch?

A few weeks ago, The Record asked several area personalities who they would want as a lunch partner if they could choose anyone in the world. The answers, printed two weeks ago, were interesting and intrigued the seventh grade students in classes taught by Dorothea Bach at Northville's Cooke Junior High School. Here is a sampling of some of their selections:

anyone it would probably be Steve Martin. He is a very amusing person and could probably even make jokes about the menu.

Steve Frellick — It would definitely be Carl Yazstremski. I think he's one of the best baseball players that ever played. He had a back injury this year, but still played. That takes courage and a certain want to win.

Matt Pendleton — I would like to have lunch with Godzilla, but I would want to make sure I wasn't going to be the main course.

Ricky Vach — Jerry Lewis. I think he is very funny and there is a lot I would like to know about him. I would go to a place where there isn't much noise.

David Boun — The Muppets — Kermit, Gonzo the Great, Miss Piggy, Ralph, Beaker, Animal, P. Bunsen, Honeydew, Fozzie Bear, Staler and Waldorf — because they are funny and they make you feel real happy and you can forget about the cares of the world.

Kelly Parker — Gerald Ford (so) I could ask him about being President. Mr. Ford knows my grandpa and I am interested in knowing what he thinks of my grandpa. Besides, if Mr. Ford asked me to lunch, I could have anything to eat.

Donn Bousquet — David Pearson, the famous stock car racer. I go to most of his races that are at the Michigan International Speedway. He is my favorite.

Gary Kavanagh — Mork from Ork because I like funny people. I watch his show every week, even if it's a repeat. I wish he landed in my city. I would give him a room in our house.

Judy Bustamanti — My grandpa. You see, my grandpa is dead and I've never met him. My dad says he was an outdoors man and that's what I love. I love doing all the things he did and my dad says I am just like him. If only he could live for one day.

Jill Anger — Pele, the famous soccer player. When I get older, I hope they have pro soccer for girls. That's what I would really like to do.

Steve DeMattos — Jerry Lewis... to find out how he has time to take trips all around the United States to collect money for muscular dystrophy. And I would like to see where he gets all of his jokes for TV.

Larry Galmets — Bob Hannah because he is the nation's best motocross rider and maybe he could give me some tips on moto-cross.

Woody Hoye — Miss Piggy because I like her personality. We would eat lunch at Stouffers in Cincinnati. The restaurant is on the 32nd floor and it goes around in a circle.

John McLeod — I would like to have lunch with animals in the wilderness.

Dave Longridge — Billy Sims, this year's Heisman Trophy winner. We would talk about how he got his start in football and how old he was when he started. I like the way he runs. He's big and strong to knock people over, yet fast to break open on long runs.

Brent Madigan — My great grandmother who I have not seen in seven years. I'd like to go to a Chinese restaurant.

Ken Kaisner — Mr. Sieggreen. I like his personality. He is also very funny and cracks good jokes.

Steve Dyer — Trevor Francis because he is a good soccer player. It would be neat to talk to a great professional soccer player.

Don Nuquist — The good trumpet player, Maynard Ferguson. The reason I would (is) because he's an excellent musician and has a creative mind.

Chris Smith — The Dallas Cowboy Cheerleaders because they are "foxes."

Julie Wickens — Bert and Ernie because I think those two are so funny because they are two of the most opposite people. I wouldn't feel uneasy with them because they are Muppets and also they taught me my A-B-C's.

Jeff Metz — Buddy Rich. He is a drummer and so am I. I have a couple of his albums and they are great. I always try to see him every time on TV.

Kathie McConville — Scott Baio, one of my favorite people on TV. I personally think he's got a lot of personality and I think he's really cute.

Laura Ficyk — Jeff Conway because I think he's the biggest Fox. He's also a good actor. He's also a very good singer. I thought he was great in Grease and should have had Travolta's part.

Sue Borthwick — Woody Hayes, just to find out what he thinks about that game. I wonder if he really thinks that he should have been fired or if he would have coached the team longer.

Pat Hixson — Ex-President Nixon to see what he's really like. I don't think all the stuff that reporters write is true.

List new classes in community ed

The Answer: Fun, self improvement or obtaining a high school diploma.

The Question: Why might you want to enroll in Northville's community education program?

Twelve second semester classes begin January 29. Five may be taken for high school credit. The rest fall into the fun and self-improvement category and range from disco lessons to investments.

Registration has already begun at the board of education offices at 405 West Main Street (third floor of Main Street Elementary School). Registration can also be accomplished by calling Curriculum Coordinator Michael Burley at 349-3400.

The high school classes may be free for persons working toward their diploma and not attending a public day school or for persons under 20 as of September 1, 1978 with a high school diploma.

Here are the high school classes, dates, times, places and costs:

GED — preparation class for General Educational Development test which, when passed, is accepted by most Detroit-area colleges and employers as equivalent to a high school diploma. Begins Monday, January 29 at high school and continues from 6:30-10:30, Mondays and Wednesdays, for 15 weeks. No charge.

Real Estate — Begins Monday, January 29 at high school and runs from 6:30-10:30 for 15 weeks. $50.

Typing I & II — Begins Tuesday, January 30 at high school and runs from 6:30-8:30, Tuesdays and Thursdays, for 15 weeks. $30.

Shorthand I — Begins Tuesday, January 30 and runs from 8:30-10:30, Tuesdays and Thursdays, for 15 weeks. $37.

The following are non-credit courses: Disco — Meets Mondays beginning February 12 at Amerman Elementary School, from 7-8 for six weeks. $8.

Women's Volleyball — Meets Tuesdays beginning February 6 at Amerman Elementary School from 7:30-9 for 12 weeks. $13.

Volleyball for Couples — Meets Thursdays beginning February 8 from 7:30-9 for 12 weeks at Amerman Elementary School. $16.

Do Something Different — A smorgasbord of topics beginning Tuesday, February 13, at high school and continuing for eight weeks. For $25, participants can attend six of the sessions.

Topics are ESP, psychic phenomena, handwriting analysis, "Coping when you can't cop out," Mr. Fixit, the games people play, body language and hypnosis.

At Schoolcraft

Need 8500 yes votes for millage

Richard Hayward, the only Schoolcraft College trustee with no political background, raised the delicate question the other seven trustees missed:

How is the community college going to recruit more than 8,500 "yes" votes for a property tax proposal on the March 26 ballot?

Hayward, appointed to the board last August, raised the question at the tail end of the board's January 11 meeting, almost two hours after trustees decided to ask voters to authorize up to one mill for five years.

"There are 8,500 'no' votes, automatic," said the structural steel company executive. "We need to get 8,500 or 8,502 — or 8,505 in case of a recount."

"A committee will be set up very quickly," said Board Chairman Paul Y. Kadish. "It would be good if every member of the board were on the committee."

Vice-chairman Harry Greenleaf suggested plans be outlined not in a large committee but by only two or three persons, then approved by a committee.

Other than that, there was no discussion of how the board plans to spend the money and what it must do to convince the public to vote for it.

One mill is $1 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation. On a house with a market value of $50,000, assessed for taxes at half that amount, one mill will cost $25 a year.

District-wide, one mill will raise about $2 million the first year and a total of $12 million over five years, considering growth of the tax base.

The board has yet to spell out precisely where the money will go, but top priority is to raise $400,000 more locally for the Culinary Arts addition to the Waterman Campus Center. That is a $1.5 million project, when state aid and the current bank balance are added.

A second priority will be a new library and remodeling of the current Bradner Library into offices and classroom space. The current library is considered to be about half the size Schoolcraft should have, accrediting agencies say.

Other previously discussed priorities are major maintenance and a new road to the west side of the campus from Six Mile.

The ballot proposal specifies only capital expenditure, site improvement and maintenance.

Board members revealed they had declined to take advantage of a "one-day law" which would have allowed them to float a bond issue by resolution, and without voter approval.

The so-called Headlee Amendment, approved by voters Nov. 7 and taking effect Dec. 22, prohibits general obligation bond issues without voter approval.

So the Michigan Legislature passed, and Gov. Milliken signed on December 21, a bill to allow charter authorities to start the bond issue process by a simple resolution on December 21.

President C. Nelson Grote polled board members by telephone to see if they wanted a special meeting December 21. The consensus was negative.

Said Kadish: "The decision not to call a special meeting of the board was not an indication there wasn't the need. There's a definite need for funds for capital improvement — well, actually for all purposes."

"Members of the board were influenced by the vote of the people in favor of the Headlee Amendment."

"I was aware in October this kind of legislation would be introduced (if Headlee passed), but I didn't think it (the bill) would pass."

The bonds will pledge the full faith and credit of the City of Novi for payment of the principal and interest thereon and will be payable from ad valorem taxes, which may be levied without limitation as to rate or amount. The General Obligation Street Bonds, Series III, were authorized at an election held March 23, 1976, and are issued as a third and final series of a total authorization of $4,825,000 for the purpose of defraying the cost of acquiring and constructing various street improvements in the City. The bonds will pledge the full faith and credit of the City of Novi for payment of the principal and interest thereon and will be payable from ad valorem taxes, which may be levied without limitation as to rate or amount.

GOOD FAITH: A certified or cashier's check in the amount of $35,000, drawn upon an incorporated bank or trust company and payable to the order of the Treasurer of the City must accompany each bid as a guarantee of good faith on the part of the bidder, to be forfeited as liquidated damages if such bid be accepted and the bidder fails to take up and pay for the bonds. No interest shall be allowed on the good faith checks and checks of the unsuccessful bidders will be promptly returned to each bidder's representative or by registered mail. The good faith check of the successful bidder may be immediately cashed in which event payment for the balance of the purchase price of the bonds shall be made at the closing.

AWARD OF BONDS: The bonds will be awarded to the bidder whose bid produces the lowest interest cost computed by determining, at the rate or rates specified in the bid, the total dollar value of all interest on the bonds from March 1, 1979, to their maturity and deducting therefrom any premium.

LEGAL OPINION: Bids shall be conditioned upon the unqualified approving opinion of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, attorneys of Detroit, Michigan, a copy of which opinion will be printed on the reverse side of each bond, and the original of which will be furnished without expense to the purchaser of the bonds at the delivery thereof. The fees of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone for services rendered in connection with such approving opinion are expected to be paid from bond proceeds. Except to the extent necessary to issue their unqualified approving opinion as to validity of the above bonds, Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone has not been requested to examine or review and has not examined or reviewed any financial documents, statements or materials that have been or may be furnished in connection with the authorization, issuance or marketing of the bonds, and accordingly will not express any opinion with respect to the accuracy or completeness of any such financial documents, statements or materials.

DELIVERY OF BONDS: The City will furnish bonds ready for execution at its expense. Bonds will be delivered without expense to the purchaser at Chicago, Illinois, New York, New York or Detroit, Michigan. The usual closing documents, including a certificate that no litigation is pending affecting the issuance of the bonds, will be delivered at the time of the delivery of the bonds. If the bonds are not tendered for delivery by twelve o'clock noon, Eastern Standard Time, on the 45th day following the date of sale, or the first business day thereafter if said 45th day is not a business day, the successful bidder may on that day, or any time thereafter until delivery of the bonds, withdraw his proposal by serving notice of cancellation, in writing, on the undersigned in which event the City shall promptly return the good faith deposit. Payment for the bonds shall be made in Federal Reserve Funds. Accrued interest to the date of delivery of the bonds shall be paid by the purchaser at the time of delivery.

CUSIP NUMBERS: It is anticipated that CUSIP identification numbers will be printed on said bonds, but neither the failure to print such numbers on any bonds nor any error with respect thereto shall constitute cause for a failure or refusal by the purchaser thereof to accept delivery of and pay for said bonds in accordance with terms of the purchase contract. The difference between the highest and lowest interest rates bid shall not exceed 2%. No proposal for the purchase of less than all of the bonds or at a price less than 100% of their par value will be considered.

Useful objects decoratively displayed are usually most appropriately used as wall decorations in kitchens and dining rooms. Floors, although not first to come to mind, can also serve well as major areas available for display of such accent pieces, such as area rugs, floor-based sculpture or large plants. Windows, occasionally, can be fitted with glass shelves, and used as a display case for small plants or for collections of colored glass. A good idea is to store part of your collection and give variety to the display by frequent changes. Functional decorative items such as screens, pillows, clocks, bowls and vases may also be used for accent.

GREEN'S CREATIVE HOME CENTER, 107 N. Center St., 349-7110, has a large selection of decorator wall clocks and all types of wall hangings for your selection. We invite you to come in and browse — we offer personal, friendly service. Make us your headquarters for paint and wall coverings. We are wall covering specialists and we can help you select just the right pattern, material and colors of wall covering to make your rooms a joy to behold. Our paints are by FULLER-OBRIEN PAINTS in popular colors for the interior and exterior of your home. We are open from 9 until 5 daily — Thur. & Fri. 'til 9.

HELPFUL HINT:
Beware of the temptation to show off too many things in limited space, risking an effect more cluttered than decorative.

Be sure to stop in and visit the YANKEE CARPENTER in our Lower Level. He has QUALITY UNFINISHED desks, rockers, chairs, plant stands, wall hangings and much more.

Solitary jogger

If there is a sport that can be done — and enjoyed — in solitude, it must be jogging. Record Photographer David Turnley captured the runner's isolation when he saw Steve Bourne last week.

Reduce beds, meet guidelines

$11 million is requested to renovate institutions

Renovation projects totaling nearly $11 million are being planned for two state institutions in Northville Township even though each facility plans to drastically reduce its population in upcoming years.

The money will be used to upgrade the institutions to make them more home-like for their mentally retarded residents and to comply with federal guidelines.

Most of the money — nearly $10 million — will be spent on a three-phase, five-year revamping of the Plymouth Center for Human Development. Located at Five Mile and Sheldon roads, the center last year was involved in a scandal involving child abuse, cover-ups and mismanagement.

Approval of a $1 million building improvement project is also being sought for the Northville Residential Training Center, the unit for mentally retarded people that is located on the grounds of the Northville State Hospital on Seven Mile.

Both projects are now seeking certificates of need from the Michigan Department of Public Health.

The Plymouth Center now has about 750 residents. Renovation plans call for a reduction of 210 beds when the project is completed in 1983.

By then, the center should not need that many beds, according to Acting Director Eranell Wilson. She said the center is "on target" at meeting its goal of reducing the center's population by 96 residents a year.

Recent thinking in the mental health field is geared toward getting as many residents as possible out of institutions and into more normal community settings.

Even so, Ms. Wilson said the lack of community programs now available justifies the renovation of institutions for those residents who can't be placed in the community.

Otherwise, she said, "you are saying that those remaining in institutions need to live in conditions worse than those specified by federal standards."

Finding community homes for all of the state's institutionally retarded is "going to take some time," she added.

All mental retardation institutions in Michigan are expected to undergo renovation projects.

At the Plymouth Center, buildings are to be made more home-like by installing room dividers, new furniture and carpeting and by completing structural improvements such as electrical, plumbing and air conditioning work.

Phase I would cost about $150,000 and would reduce the beds in Kennedy and Binet halls by 64. It should be completed next year.

Phase II would cost approximately $3.2 million and would reduce the beds in Sullivan and Willis halls by 32. Work should be completed in 1982.

Phase III would cost about $5.3 million for renovating the remaining buildings on the property with a reduction of 114 beds. Completion date is June 1983.

Architect and engineering fees are $340,000.

Work at the much smaller Northville Residential Training Center is aimed at creating living units which are as close as possible to family living conditions.

The project calls for improved lighting, resurfaced ceramic tile walls, new floor and ceiling, repainting, new furnishings, remodeled restrooms and shower rooms to increase privacy, and new living quarters for each resident rather than large dormitories.

Law is named assistant GOP Whip

State Representative Robert Law (R-Livonia, Westland) has been selected Assistant Whip of the House Republican Caucus, it was announced today.

Law, elected to his second term in November, will be responsible for the attendance of the 40 members of the Republican Caucus in the absence of the Whip, and will also assist the minority floor leader in maintaining specific caucus positions during debate and votes on the House floor.

"I am pleased that I was selected for a leadership position and I am looking forward to serving my fellow Republicans for the next two years," Law said.

"We have a bright, energetic membership in the House of Representatives and through my new leadership position I will be able to influence the movement of legislation and work for the good of the entire state.

"It will be a challenging and rewarding job," he said.

Law, 31, was named one of the top two freshman legislators in a Detroit News poll last year. An attorney who has actively worked on the problem of declining enrollment during his first term in office, Law was also named one of the Michigan Jaycee's Five Outstanding Young Men of the Year in 1978.

GOOD TIME FOR WINE

by Jim Roth

It is said that a French general used to order his troops to present arms every time they marched past his favorite vineyard. Alexander Dumas, the author of "The Count of Monte Cristo," and a well known cook in his time, said that certain wines should only be drunk kneeling, with head bared. Wine has been praised and condemned in literature, myths, and folk tales for centuries. It has been blamed for breaking up families, causing wars, and leaving drinkers with hangovers. It has been praised as a pathway to religious fulfillment, a truth serum (in vino veritas — in wine is truth), and a generally delicious beverage.

For a complete selection of wines, beers and liquors visit us at GOOD TIME PARTY STORE, 567 Seven Mile Road, 349-1477. Are you aware that we have keg beer in both 1/4 and 1/2 barrels? SPEAKING for The Record BY BILL SLIGER

You can almost feel the politicians slumping comfortably back into their familiar roles of advocating more programs of government assistance.

It's the same posture most of the state's elected officials disavowed last fall when they were running for their lives from the backlash of Proposition 13, the Tisch and Headlee amendments.

The heat's been greatly reduced now. Presumably, the voter-approved Headlee does not constitute the threat to government spending that California's proposition 13 does . . . or that the Tisch might have in Michigan.

So the state's party leaders are showing signs of easing themselves back into a "business as usual" position. Something like the old blind pigs reopening after periodic police raids.

They haven't forgotten entirely that the public has kicked up its heels at ever-increasing taxes. So they are suggesting methods of "shifting the tax burden . . . introducing equity . . . taxing according to ability to pay."

Apparently "forgotten" are the campaign slogans that would have voters believe every candidate favored less government and reduced taxes.

Perhaps it shouldn't be surprising that political leaders at the state level have abandoned their brief courtship with belt-tightening. Their careers have been built upon doing favors for constituents and they know full well that the definition of government efficiency is to reduce spending programs in other than their home districts.

But I never cease to be amazed at the ability of Northville Township Police Chief Ron Nisun to successfully expand his department services.

You must understand I have never believed that the township needs a police department. Perhaps it is because neighboring Plymouth Township with approximately twice the taxbase and population to protect has no police force. Instead it has a most efficient fire department and rescue squad facility. Plymouth Township taxpayers take advantage of services provided by Michigan State Police and Wayne County Sheriff patrol.

This will be denied. But the fact of the matter is that instead of using the services and facilities of the Michigan State Police complex located in the heart of Northville Township, our department chooses to compete with the troopers. The state police receive far more calls for help in Plymouth Township than in Northville. And rare is the day when the local police ask for state police assistance.

Maybe we can afford this luxury in Northville Township. But I do not think so.

Last week Chief Nisun announced he needs a larger force. Last year the number of township police officers was increased from eight to 10. This year there will be more homes and people in the township and therefore more crime, says the chief. Consequently, a larger department is needed. He'd like to concentrate more on traffic control to reduce accidents and to have more men to investigate vandalism cases.

Who can argue against motherhood? You can bet your ever-increasing tax bill that no member of the elected township board of trustees is going to speak up before an audience of police department employees, volunteers and their families and declare that police department spending must be reduced, or even held in check.

The clock cannot be turned back on police services in Northville Township. The department is here to stay. But someone in authority should muster up the intestinal fortitude to say "enough is enough."

In my opinion police spending should be cut—not expanded. And expert attention should be directed at maintaining and improving fire protection facilities.

Now that the township has its own fire department, any suggestion that the western portion of the township should be covered by city firemen is totally without merit. The empire building is already under way and there can be no more spirit of cooperation between city and township fire departments than is demonstrated by the township police department towards state troopers or county sheriff patrols.

One community fire department under a single chief might be feasible. But city residents are not likely to see any advantages in such an arrangement for their comparatively small confines.

Instead, the township should be undertaking a study to determine the need and cost of expanding its fire protection services in the western portion of the township.

This study should not be conducted by firefighters, incidentally. It should be undertaken by citizens capable of digging up the necessary statistical data to assist the board in making a decision.

JOHN OSBORNE

Speaking for Myself

Who'll win Super Bowl?

CHUCK APAP

Cowboys

It's going to be Dallas all the way. You've got to go with the defending champions. It was Dallas last year and it will be Dallas again this year.

You've got to consider the Cowboys' experience in championship games and the Dallas organization which is probably the best in all of pro football. Pittsburgh has been to the Super Bowl before, but that was a couple of years ago and Dallas was there last year. Champions know what has to be done and Dallas will be there to make it two in a row on Sunday.

I look for the Dallas defense to be the difference. Too Tall Jones, Randy White, Jethro Pugh, and Harvey Martin have got the potential to shut off Franco Harris better than anyone else has. Dallas also has a very strong linebacking corps which will help shut down Pittsburgh's running game.

I think the Dallas defense will force Terry Bradshaw to go to the air more than he wants to. That will enable the secondary to set up better to stop John Stallworth and Lynn Swan. An interception by the Dallas secondary could be the turning point just like it was against the Rams.

I also think Dallas has the edge in the backfield with Tony Dorsett. Franco Harris is an outstanding running back, but Dorsett is the kind of back who can break a game wide open.

It's going to be the Cowboys all the way in the Super Bowl.

John Osborne
Football Coach
Novi High School

Steelers

Pittsburgh is favored to win Super Bowl III and the Steelers will make the odds look good by knocking off Dallas on Sunday to become the first team ever to win three Super Bowls.

You win with your quarterback in pro football and Pittsburgh has the hottest quarterback around right now in Terry Bradshaw. Bradshaw is at the top of his game this year and when your quarterback is hot, everything else seems to fall in line.

Motivation is another key element in championship games and I think Pittsburgh is a lot hungrier than Dallas. Both teams have won two Super Bowls, but Dallas won it last year and it's been a few years since the Steelers won their last Super Bowl. I think the Steelers really want it this year.

Dallas may have some injury problems. Robert

Newhouse, their starting fullback, didn't play against Los Angeles. He's supposed to be back for the Super Bowl, but I don't think he'll be 100 percent.

Pittsburgh had a pretty easy time of it against Houston, but Dallas had a tough time against the Rams and I think that will be another factor.

All things considered, you've got to go with Pittsburgh. They've been rolling over everybody, they're in good physical condition, and their quarterback is having a super season. Dallas has been playing just well enough to win lately and I think the Steelers are going to take them pretty easily in the Super Bowl.

JACK W. HOFFMAN'S COLUMN

All of us have our special quirks.

Take our advertising manager, Mike Preville, for example. His favorite pastime or pleasure is "poking around in old ruins." By ruins he means old barns, crumbling houses and country dumps.

Ponce de Leon got no greater kick exploring than does Mike in snooping around a decaying outhouse.

Running a close second and third, for Mike, is walking through fields in fall to pick weeds for special decorative arrangements, and driving along old, country roads.

Think about it. What oddity gives you a special kick?

For me there's absolutely no doubt:

Number one on my list is visiting lumberyards. I don't mean the retail offices but rather the yards themselves. The thrill is a combination of smell, seeing unused stacked lumber, the sound of buzzing saws, picking and choosing boards with the least flaws, watching gutters being sawed to the desired size, and sawdust.

Sawdust. Boy, it really turns me on. The smell is out of this world.

Molly Manley, in our office, says "feeling fabric" is her favorite. It's a little like squeezing toilet paper.

"My greatest contentment," she says, "is being inside a tent during a hard rain." Her third favorite is wading in water. And the water can be in a romantic or non-romantic setting. Wading gutters filled with water is as much fun as wading a seashore.

Our staff photographer, David Turnley, lists his favorite as sitting in airport terminals watching people coming and going. Second best, for him, is "going into book stores — just to look, not to buy," and third is sneaking into sporting events. Most of the thrill is getting in, not watching the action, he says.

And our office manager, Jan Murany, has the oddest favorite of all: work. "I really mean it; I just love work." Her second and third special pleasures are visiting old, small-town museums, and browsing in odd (gift) shops.

Knife fight victim recovers in hospital

A night at the races ended in a knife fight at Northville Downs Saturday. It's hard to decide who got the worst of the deal.

A Mt. Clemens man is in Botsford Hospital today recovering from three knife wounds he reportedly received as he was leaving the track around midnight.

But the Dearborn Heights man who has been charged with the assault has a broken nose and ankle. He was taken to Wayne County Jail yesterday following his arraignment on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder.

Here is the police account of what happened.

Bernd Ratfisch, 38, Mt. Clemens told officers that a man tried to pick a fight with him in the Downs parking lot.

When Ratfisch refused, the man — identified by police as Lewis S. Wallis, 22, Dearborn Heights — went to his car and returned with an eight-inch dagger-type knife.

Wallis, according to Ratfisch, took a swing at his neck through an open window and missed. As Ratfisch got out of the car to defend himself, he was stabbed in the lower abdomen area, he told police.

Ratfisch said he was stabbed again on his right hand as he warded off a blow. The two men grappled and fell to the ground where Ratfisch suffered another wound to the back.

None of the stabbings hit a vital organ and Ratfisch is in satisfactory condition, said Detective Alan Cox.

When Ratfisch escaped, police say he broke Wallis' ankle and nose.

By this time, someone in the gathering crowd had contacted police.

Wallis, who could face life in prison if convicted, has a preliminary exam set for January 25.

A $2,500 surety bond was set. The men apparently did not know each other and Ratfisch told police he did not know what provoked the fight.

Departments can work together

To the Editor:

I picked up a copy of your paper dated January 10 for the picture of the Northville City and Northville Township fire fighters completing their fire service training. In my search I also noticed the article "Fire Chief Defends Department".

My concern is:

FACT: On page 3A you show a group of fire fighters, most from the city, that will soon receive State of Michigan Certification as fire fighters. These men that earn certification were instructed in the theory and the practical application of STANDARDIZED fire service practices.

FACT: On Page 5A the Chief of the Northville Township Fire Department is quoted as saying "they (referring to the city fire fighters) would be in the way of what our men have been trained to do."

ASSUMPTION: If these facts serve as a basis, then I am led to believe that the Northville Township Fire Department either needs more training, or training in acceptable STANDARDIZED fire service practices.

The aim of the Michigan Fire Fighters Training Council is to provide and standardize training throughout the state so every fire department can work with another, in an effective and efficient manner. I recommend the chief of Northville Township Fire Department contact these people if he has a problem working with a certified fire department in another area.

If a department is not concerned with standardized training practices and will not accept standardized fire service practices than I am concerned for those members' safety, the safety of other department members that may work with that department through mutual aid agreements, and most of all, the citizens protected by that department. I sincerely hope this is not the case here.

Sincerely
John A. Reardon

No offense

To the Editor:
Re: Article in the Northville Record on January 10, 1979.

I would like to explain my intent regarding the above referenced article.

In no way did I intend to say that the Northville City Fire Department is inept or ill-trained. My association with them have left me with the feeling that they are a fine professional Fire Department.

In my statement to the township board, in reference to the type of fires we fight (rural with no water), our three water tankers are invaluable, and we are the only fire department around that has this equipment.

In the article, we mentioned that if the city department responded on Whipple Drive, the city department would be in the way of what our men have been trained to do. By the same token, Northville Township Fire Department would be in the way in the city under the same circumstances.

Any inference that would undermine the Northville City Fire Department is certainly not my intent.

We were forced to defend ourselves at a meeting before the Northville Township, but at no time did I intend to cast a shadow of any kind on the Northville City Fire Department or any other fire department.

The Northville City Fire Department is a fine group of men.

Respectfully
Robert H. Toms, Chief
Northville Township Fire Department

Well trained

To the Editor:

This letter is written in response to an article which appeared in the December 28, 1978 issue of the Northville Record titled "City's First Female Cop Quits". In this article reference was made that Mrs. Barbara Richards who had a criminal justice degree from Michigan State University, was one of only two officers who had graduated from college.

I wish to clarify that statement and reply that presently on the police department there is one officer who holds a bachelors degree and working on his masters degree at the University of Detroit and one officer due to graduate in July with his bachelors degree. In addition, four officers have four semesters toward a bachelors degree, five officers have two semesters toward bachelors degrees and two officers have one semester.

In addition to the above officers who have credits and degrees in the criminal justice field, one officer has a bachelors degree in business administration and is now taking credits in the criminal justice field.

All the fulltime officers presently employed by the City of Northville Police Department have all attended the 256 hour basic police academy and in addition have attended numerous in-service training schools offered by federal, state and local police agencies and colleges within the area.

Departed dogs may meet in 'better place'

To the Editor:

When I sat down to eat dinner last Wednesday evening my wife, Cathy, asked me if I knew that one of our towns merchants had passed away. I said "No ... who?" And she handed me The Record and told me to read the editorial.

I started to feel a sense of sadness when I began to read "one of Northville's most popular merchants had died ... but I nearly choked on my chicken and pilaf when I learned that it was a dog (merchant?) named Zippy."

Now with respect to the deceased, her loved ones, and mourners I feel that it is only appropriate that you, too, experience with your food what I went through. But I doubt that you'll gag on chicken and pilaf ... maybe a hot dot (no pun intended)!

Zippy "as a merchant?" greeted me many times I agree ... but if you call sniffing my feet, saying to herself "yeah, he's O.K." and curling up on her mat and dozing off ... if that's called "Greeting", then I swear I'll never send another greeting card at Christmas or any other holiday to my loved ones or friends.

I, too, love animals and have had dogs as pets for most of my life. None of them had a "white streak down their front ... like a zipper" ... but I did have one mutt named Pookie that had a white "strap" behind her front shoulders just like a bra and if any dog deserved to get chicken soup when she was sick or chocolate cake on her birthday it was my dog ... she was a pure unadulterated Vixen.

I miss Pookie just as I'm sure the Lapham's will miss Zippy ... but now maybe and hopefully our two dogs will meet in a "better place" and start their own specialty shop called "The Zipper & Bra-Strap."

And when they have a sale they can put your picture in the paper "not as a sale item but the attraction."

With a collar, bow tie and pencil behind your ear, maybe someday somebody someplace will call you "merchant", too!

Unicameral support

A single house for Lansing?

48 people (who would lose their legislative jobs) going to get the type representation they should have in state government and the type of problem solving they need?" he asked.

He also feels the financial savings would be insignificant. "You might eliminate the salaries of 48 legislators, but are you able to eliminate the staff supporting them?" he asked. "Probably not, because most are understaffed now."

Kirksey thinks checks and balances would come from the partisan quality of the legislators. "It would be just as now, with the minority party analyzing and critiquing anything the majority party does," Kirksey said. "As long as the two-party system survives, it would serve as the check and balance."

He pointed out that the judicial and executive branches of government serve as further "watchdogs of the people."

Kirksey said the impact of lobbyists would not be significantly different from now, when they try to single out senators, the smaller body of the two houses. "A unicameral legislature of 100 is a large body to divide and conquer," he said. "That's 100 individuals who could vote 100 different consciences."

He said he thinks the role of lobbyists will be greatly diminished in 1990. "I definitely see a trend that the effectiveness of lobbyists will be compromised," he said.

Kirksey thinks 1990 is a realistic time for implementing a unicameral legislature. Resistance from legislators wanting to hold onto their jobs might be overcome by the fact that they qualify for some retirement benefits in four terms, or eight years. If the unicameral issue were on the ballot in 1982, those in the legislature would qualify for basic retirement if they continued to be reelected until the 1990 effective date.

Why is Kirksey so dedicated to changing the form of state government?

"I cannot believe how overly complicated the two-house process is," Kirksey said. "The day I was sworn in, they were debating issues, and they're still debating the same ones, using the same speeches."

He explained that identical legislation is often introduced in both houses.

"We have this duplication of effort, with unnecessary time, energy and money spent that way," he said. "It's an unnecessary distilling of ideas which are hashed, reshaped, diced, cut and packaged 101 different ways. It's almost impossible to feel we really accomplish anything."

Kirksey might take two approaches to trying to get the question on the ballot, not only trying to get the joint resolution approved by the house and senate but perhaps also trying to interest citizens in a petition drive to get it on the ballot.

"The only way a concept of this type stands a chance of success is if the average person — one alerted to the issues, the greater efficiency it would produce, the monetary savings that would result — could produce the support needed," he said.

He hopes to spur a broad base of interest and motivate citizens to write their representatives and senators with their feelings on the issue.

NORTHVILLE SCHOOLS

There has never been a serious doubt that the Northville board of education would seek to renew the three mills for operation that expire this year. The question is: Will it ask for more?

The answer should be soon forthcoming as the board and administrators prepare for what will probably be a late April millage election.

The board could schedule the election for March 26 — a date Schoolcraft College has already reserved. But some board members feel that would be doing the college a disservice.

Thus, the election would have to be at least 30 days prior to March 26, which would give the board precious little time to develop and publicize the rationale for the millage, or 30 days after the Schoolcraft election.

The board appears to favor the late April date which would not only allow time for a public information campaign but, should the millage lose, allow sufficient time to put another request on the annual school board ballot on June 12.

Last June, a 2.6-mill hike was approved only after an earlier, disastrous 5.5-mill request was split into two parts.

SCHOOLCRAFT COLLEGE

A decision by the Northville schools not to hold an election on March 26 would be warmly greeted by officials at Schoolcraft. There, trustees, specifically set the March date to avoid being on the same ballot as money requests from any of the five school districts in its service-area. The special election will cost Schoolcraft $30,000.

The college is seeking one mill for a five-year period which would raise an estimated $11 million. The money would likely be used to double enrollment in the popular culinary arts program, build a road to the east of the campus from Six Mile Road and expand the library.

Schoolcraft levies 1.77 mills for operation, a rate that has been unchanged since 1967. Three millage requests in the 1970s have been defeated.

Police chief interviews may conclude this month

terview and for the board to make recommendations to him.

According to the city charter, Walters said he has the sole responsibility to hire a new chief.

He said he would take the recommendations of the oral examination board under consideration.

"If one (candidate) is superior and stands out," among the oral board recommendations, "chances are that's who I would take," said Walters. But if "two or three are rated high," then Walters said he would probably choose among them.

Walters said that he did not think that the state's new open meetings law required the oral examination to be conducted in public because Walters rather than an elected body will make the final selection.

But, said Walters, if none of the candidates object he would prefer that here be outside observers.

"If there are no strong objections, I'll invite the paper, and the council should feel free to attend if they want to," he said.

Northville has been without a police chief since 1973 when Sam Elkins retired and went to Florida.

For several years there was no movement to name a successor. City officials said the inaction was because they were waiting to see how the ill-fated effort to annex the township turned out.

Beginning early last year, the city began taking applications for the head of the 14-member force but the process dragged on with little progress through the summer and fall.

Walters said last year that the delay was because he was spending most of his time on opening the Allen Terrace senior citizen complex and completing plans for the Mainstreet 78 project to renovate downtown Northville.

Last fall, Walters said a chief might be hired by Christmas but that timetable was eventually altered so that the interviews would not take place until after New Year's.

As city manager, Walters is the official police chief.

But day-to-day matters have been handled since Elkins' retirement by Captain Louis Westfall.

Westfall is one of the six finalists for the police chief position.

Tourney win is 1st of season

Wrestlers capture South Lyon crown

If there were any lingering doubts about the improvement of Northville's wrestling team this year, they were sure cleared up in a hurry last weekend.

The Mustangs, getting the type of team effort characteristic of them this season, waltzed to their first tournament championship of the year Saturday in the annual South Lyon Invitational.

Ten of the team's 12 entrants placed as Northville rolled up 161 points, 32½ ahead of second-place Willow Run in the eight-school tourney. And that's quite an accomplishment, considering that in their season opener six weeks earlier the Mustangs had lost to that same Willow Run squad, 50-15.

"The kids really wrestled their tails off," Coach Gary Emerson beamed after, noting that last weekend's performance marked the first time Northville's ever won the South Lyon Invitational. Three years ago the local squad came in second behind Willow Run.

"It was really nice because for some reason or another we've never wrestled well over there before. We'd always have a bad meet."

But history didn't repeat itself this time. Going into the consolation and championship finals the Mustangs had a 30-point bulge over Willow Run, and they protected that lead by winning two of five matches in the consolations and two of five matches in the finals.

Steve Platte and Matt Baker were Northville's individual champs.

Platte, seeded second, capped an outstanding week by recording three straight major decisions to win the 112-pound championship. After defeating his first two opponents, 14-2 and 15-2, he defeated Scott Nelson of Fowlerville in the finals, 12-1.

Combined with three other victories in dual meets earlier in the week, Platte was 6-0 for the week and raised his season record from 5-9 to 11-9.

Baker, meanwhile, substantiated his first-place seeding by capturing the 191-pound crown. After pinning his first two opponents the big senior decisioned Jack Giarmo of Monroe Catholic Central, 5-0, in the finals.

Three other Mustangs — Mike Lurvey, Brian Faustyn and Jack Lancaster — advanced as far as the finals before bowing out.

Lurvey, overcoming a seven-point deficit in the semifinals, knocked off his first two opponents before top-seeded Brian Uren of Fowlerville edged him in the 126-pound title match, 5-4.

Lurvey, seeded third, opened the day by pinning his first opponent but appeared headed for defeat in his second match. He trailed 6-1 in the third period to second-seeded Eric Fallow of South Lyon.

Lurvey recovered with a reversal and three back points in the final two minutes, though, to send the match into overtime. Then, in the three one-minute periods of overtime, he won a 7-0 decision over Fallow to qualify for the finals.

Faustyn, another third seed, placed second in the 145-pound flight. After drawing an opening-round bye and then winning a 6-2 decision in the semis, he lost to Willow Run's Rodney Williams in the finals, 4-0.

Lancaster, meanwhile, lived up to his second-seed billing at heavyweight by pinning his first two opponents before getting pinned himself by Fowlerville's Joe Showerman in the finals. Showerman, a 320-pound senior (Lancaster weighs 220), was the third-place heavyweight in last year's Class C state finals and has been a state qualifier for three straight years.

Perhaps Northville's biggest boost of the afternoon came from its consolation finalists, who won four of their five matches for third place. Bill Blanchard, Dale Presswood, Steve Morgan and Scott Morgan all won each of their last two matches on pins after splitting their first two.

In the consolation finals Blanchard, wrestling in the competitive 105-pound bracket (six of the seven entrants had records above .5000, defeated Mark Boujous of South Lyon; Presswood defeated John Rondeau of Clarenceville at 132 pounds; Steve Morgan defeated Brad Hollister of Pinckney at 138 pounds; and brother Steve defeated Paul Nutt of Lutheran West at 178 pounds.

Don Lucas, who lost a 10-4 decision to John Gronemett of Monroe Catholic Central in the 165-pound consolation finals, was Northville's lone fourth-place finisher.

While the meet was the Mustangs'

Registration begins this weekend for youngsters interested in joining the recreation department's junior baseball or youth soccer programs.

Junior baseball sign-ups will take place this Saturday (January 20) and on February 3 between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. at the recreation office, while soccer registration will be this Saturday and the following Saturday (January 27) during the same hours.

Both programs are open to all youngsters, boys and girls, aged 16 and under. In addition, the junior baseball program will have try-out teams for youngsters who want to play Connie Mack (18-and-under), Mickey Mantle (16-and-under) or Sandy Koufax (14-and-under) baseball this summer, and the soccer program will include competition for girls 19 and under.

For further details phone the recreation department at 349-0203.

Registration is now under way for the Northville Recreation Department's 1979 winter program.

Anyone interested in signing up for any of the dozens of activities being offered can do so by stopping at the recreation offices, located at the corner of Main and Wing Streets, or by mailing

The offices are open Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and noon, and between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. Brochures have been sent out to thousands of local residents' homes.

For further information call the recreation department at 349-0203.

Coaches are still needed for Northville's junior baseball program, open to all youngsters aged 16 and under.

The program is divided into several age group leagues for both boys and girls. The junior baseball season begins in the early spring.

If interested in helping out phone Wade Deal at 349-1129.

Senior citizens are welcome to attend the recreation department's adult swimming exercise program, which takes place every Saturday between 1 and 2:30 p.m. at the Northville High School pool.

Participants in the class can either swim at their own pace or set up a regular schedule with one of the program's instructors.

Spikers lose league opener

Despite a dramatic come-from-behind victory in the first set, Northville's volleyballers dropped their Western Six opener against Farmington Harrison last Wednesday, 16-14, 11-15 and 9-15.

The Mustangs were just one point away from losing the first set, 14-8, when Kim Kratz served eight straight points to bring the Northville girls back.

Coach Steve McDonald's squad was unable to capitalize on the rally, though, and dropped each of the last two sets without a fight.

"You really can't say much about it (the loss)," McDonald said dejectedly. "As a team we just didn't play well."

"I thought we might be in for a good night after what happened in the first set, but I think the girls choked a little bit."

Diane Perpich had five spikes, two dinks and seven good serves in the losing effort.

Three days later the Mustangs won only three of eight matches and failed to qualify for the finals of the 30-school Schoolcraft Invitational. Northville, competing in a five-team preliminary pool, beat Walled Lake Central twice and split a pair of games with Dearborn Edsel Ford, but lost twice each to Livonia Franklin and Dearborn Heights Crestwood.

The Mustangs are now 1-1 overall, with a game scheduled a week from tomorrow at Livonia Churchill.

Goalie Bob Boshoven allowed just one goal in 90 minutes of play and Doug Horst scored twice to lead Northville-Nowi's Midget AA hockey squad to league victories over Livonia and Farmington last week.

The wins gave the local icers a 14-4 record in Adray Community League play this season and moved them two steps closer to successfully defending their Red Division championship. Only six league games remain.

Horst scored one goal three minutes into the first period and assisted on another four minutes later to spark Northville-Nowi to a 4-0 victory over Livonia last Tuesday. The winners added a goal in each of the last two periods.

Horst, Rich Pattison and Bill Knauer all had one goal and one assist each in the contest while Don Rose and Bobby Darrow were credited with one assist each. Mike Zdanowski scored unassisted in the third period.

Five days later the local icers overcame an early 1-0 deficit and edged Farmington, 2-1.

Farmington scored just 11 seconds into the game, but Horst tied things up nine minutes later and Mike Shingler tallied the game-winning goal with just 3:43 remaining in the third period. Horst, Shingler and Dave Braeseker were also credited with one assist each.

Northville-Nowi is now 21-11-7 overall this season.

3rd-quarter surge wins for cagers

Northville's cagers apparently solved a couple of important problems last Friday night, and the timing couldn't have been much better.

Needing a victory to stay in the thick of the Western Six race, the Mustangs showed the poise they'd previously been lacking — and an effective zone defense — in knocking off Livonia Churchill at the Chargers' home court, 56-46. The win came on the heels of a tough 55-49 defeat at Novi three nights earlier.

It was Churchill's first league loss of the season and left the Livonia school tied with Northville for second place in the Western Six, one game behind Plymouth Canton. Churchill and Northville are 2-1, while Canton is 3-0.

It was also only the second time the Mustangs have beaten the Chargers on their home court (Northville won 43-42 in 1975).

Although the Mustangs led throughout the first half, they never really took control and had only a slim three-point margin at the half, 28-25.

In the third quarter, though, Coach Tim Lutes switched defenses—going from man-to-man to a slightly modified zone, with his guards moved back a little — and the local cagers caught fire. They outscored Churchill 14-4 and entered the final stanza with a comfortable 42-29 advantage.

"They (Churchill) just couldn't solve the zone, and I think that was the turning point," Lutes observed. "Another big factor was our poise."

"We showed real good poise in the second half. We worked against their zone a lot better, and held our own real well when Churchill pressed all of the last quarter."

It didn't hurt, either, that Northville's shooting was the best it's been all season long, and that the local club had only 15 turnovers. The Mustangs shot 54 percent (21 of 39) from the floor, and added 14 of 22 from the free throw line.

"I was real pleased with our shot selection," Lutes acknowledged. "We'd worked all week on playing against the zone, on setting up and taking better shots, and the kids did a good job of making it pay off."

Bob Crisan, starting for the first time this season, had his top game of the year in the victory. The 6-0 junior scored 15 points and added seven rebounds to lead the Mustangs in both categories.

Joe Schimpf added 10 points and Greg Suckow nine while Jeff Norton picked off six rebounds as Northville ran its overall record to 4-4 this season.

Three nights earlier, however, the story had been a different one.

Unable to overcome a poor showing in the second quarter, the local squad lost a non-league encounter, at Novi, 55-49.

The two clubs were tied after one quarter, 14-14, but Novi outscored its visitors 21-10 in the second stanza to

Swimmers breeze past Harrison

Northville began its chase for this season's Western Six boys' swimming championship with an easy 115-49 victory in its dual meet league opener at Farmington Harrison last Tuesday.

Harrison, competing with a total of just nine swimmers, won five of the meet's 11 events. The Mustangs, however, swept the top three places in five other events, including the 200-yard medley relay.

Tim Cahill was the local squad's only individual double winner. Cahill paced 1-2-3 finishes in both the individual medley (2:15.9) and breaststroke (1:06.0).

Brady Kramer and Tony Nader completed the individual medley sweep while Nader and John Zimmerman were 2-3 in the breaststroke.

Cahill also joined Bill Lockwood, Dave MacDonald and Rick Bargert on Northville's winning medley relay team, which posted a 1:50.0 clocking. Harrison's lone entry in that event was disqualified, giving the Mustangs another 1-2-3 sweep.

Other Northville winners included Bargert (followed by Dan McMann and Lorne Demrose) in the 50-yard freestyle, MacDonald (followed by Bargert and Gary Beason) in the 100-yard freestyle, and Paul Cooper (followed by Dale Fisher in third place) in diving. Kramer (backstroke), Rus Gans (200 freestyle and butterfly), Bush (500 freestyle) and the 400-yard freestyle relay team of John Doyle, Mike Gladd, Bruce McLeod and Dou Iversen all finished second in the events.

John Rudel, who took firsts in the 200 and 500-yard freestyles, was Harrison's only double winner. The Hawks won the butterfly (Al LaForet backstroke (A. Babcock) and the freestyle relay.

While Northville Coach Ron Meteyer was happy with the victory, he acknowledged he'd been hoping for more competitive meet to help his team's individual performances. As was Gans (1:57.0 in the 200 free) and MacDonald (53.9 in the 100 free) were the Mustangs' only first or second-place finishers to improve their time.

The local tankers, who've won each of the last four Western Six crowns, are now 3-1 overall this season and will resume league action with a meet at Livonia Churchill tomorrow night.

first tournament championship of the season, it was far from being their first strong showing in a large field of schools. Before last weekend Emerson's squad had placed third in its only other major invitational (Brighton) and had won one and placed a close second in each of its last two quadrangulans.

"This is the best team I've had for that (doing well in tournaments)," Emerson said. "The kids are very conscious now about knowing they can be a good tournament team."

"I think they really believe they can go into a tournament and win it, and they're like to add a few more trophies yet this year."

The veteran coach also attributed much of the team's success to the support his wrestlers have been giving one another.

"They're very team-oriented," he said. "Some of our kids have wrestled well all year long, but a lot of others have been coming on strong lately."

Earlier last week the Mustangs had suffered a pair of heartbreaking defeats in a double dual meet against North Farmington and Howell, but kept their Western Six record unblemished with a victory over Waterford Mott.

Competing without Lurvey last Tuesday, Northville lost 32-30 to North Farmington and 30-27 to Howell.

The local squad had a 30-29 edge going into the final match against North Farmington, but lost when the Farmington school's heavyweight, George Houttekier, beat Lancaster on the strength of a second-period reversal, 2-1. Northville's winners in the meet were Blanchard (forfeit), Platt (20-0), Presswood (pin), Lucas (12-0), Baker (pin) and Scott Morgan (7-0).

In their second meet the Mustangs won each of their last three matches against Howell, but fell just short again. Their winners included Blanchard (3-1), Platte (pin), Faustyn (6-4), Baker (pin), Lancaster (pin) and Scott Morgan (4-0).

Two days later Northville hiked its league record to 2-0 with an easy 55-15 triumph over Mott.

This time the Mustangs won 10 matches and lost only two while forfeiting, as usual, at 98 pounds.

Blanchard, Platte, Presswood, Baker, and both Morgan brothers won their matches on pins while Mark Tomczyk (112 pounds), Rob Savagenu (155 pounds), Lucas and Lancaster decided their opponents.

That gave the local grapplers a 10-7-1 overall record this season, with a meet at Livonia Churchill scheduled tomorrow.

This Saturday the Mustangs will be shooting for their second consecutive tournament crown when they compete in the 10-school Holly Invitational. According to Emerson Holly and Novi will be Northville's two toughest rivals in the tourney, which will award trophies to the first and second-place teams.

Athlete of the week

MATT BAKER

Try as they might, six 191-pound wrestlers were unable to defeat Matt Baker last week. But then that's hardly surprising. Northville's experienced senior grappler has won 21 of 24 of his matches this season, 13 of them on pins. Last week he recorded five more pins, but his biggest victory was a 5-0 decision over Jack Giarro of Monroe Catholic Central. It occurred in the finals of the South Lyon Invitational, giving Baker the 191-pound title and helping the Mustangs to their first tournament team championship of the season.

take a 35-24 halftime lead and the Wildcats never trailed again.

Norton scored three straight baskets to give the Mustangs an early 6-0 lead, but Novi reeled off eight straight points to go ahead. Then, after Northville had regained the lead, 12-10, the Wildcats went on a 12-2 scoring binge.

The closest the Mustangs came after that was early in the fourth quarter, when they rallied to tie the game. Trailing 42-35 after three quarters, Northville scored seven straight points to start the final stanza, including a three-point play by Suckow that made it 42-42.

Novi took the lead for good, however, on a pair of free throws by Dwayne Ridenour with 6:05 remaining. Five minutes later, with the score still only 50-47, Chris Giorgio hit a jumper to ice it.

"Novi's experience and their poise was the difference in the ball game," Lutes said afterwards. "They had it down the stretch and we didn't."

"We were forcing our shots a little in the last three minutes. Novi, on the other hand, shot from the outside really well. I think it was just a matter of being more poised, which comes with experience."

That particularly showed up at the free throw line. While both clubs shot fairly even from the field (Northville was 21 of 56, Novi 20 of 54), the Mustangs were only seven of 19 from the charity stripe while the Wildcats were 15 of 21.

Norton topped both teams with 16 points in the game while Crisan added eight. Suckow, meanwhile, pulled down 12 rebounds.

The Wildcats were led by Ridenour with 14 points, Phil McCarty with 13 and Giorgio with 11.

Northville's next game takes place this Friday, when the Mustangs host Farmington Harrison in another Western Six clash. Harrison, which lost 58-54 to Waterford Mott last week, is 0-3 in the league and 2-7 overall.

Wack Pack wins pair to open rec season

Wack Pack is off and running in the chase for this year's recreation men's basketball title.

Last year's second-place finishers were the only team in the league to come out of their first two games unbeaten, but don't count on them staying that way all season.

Unlike last year's circuit, the four-team 1979 league appears extremely balanced, as witnessed by last week's results.

In a pair of cliffhangers at Meads Mill last Thursday, Wack Pack held on for a tight 53-49 victory over Goat Farm, the defending league champs, while Little Caesar's rallied in the second half for a 46-41 triumph over Long Plumbing.

Combined with opening night victories by Wack Pack and Goat Farm, that left Wack and Long Plumbing with perfect records (2-0 and 0-2 respectively) while Goat Farm and Little Caesar's were tied for second place at 1-1. Wack Pack, which wound up 9-3 overall last season, jumped out to a 27-20 half time advantage en route to its victory over Goat Farm. Goat Farm cut the gap to 49-45 entering the final quarter, but couldn't quite catch up.

Both teams had three players in double figures. Hank Bodiya paced the winners with 15 points while Brian Gulick had 14 and Ed McGowen 12. The losers were led by Mark Lisowski with 15 points, Ronnie Smith with 12 and Russ Olsen with 10.

Little Caesar's, meanwhile, had to overcome a 25-18 deficit at the half for their victory. Going into the final stanza Long Plumbing still held the upper edge, 37-35, but a balanced scoring effort brought Caesar's back.

Tom Eis and Ed Kritch shared scoring honors for the winners with 14 points apiece while Jerry Wood had 16 and Jeff Moon 11 for Long.

Jayvees win in overtime

Ted Seltz came off the bench to score nine points, four of them in overtime, in helping Northville's junior varsity cagers to a heart-pounding 60-58 victory at Livonia Churchill last Friday.

The Mustangs saw a 32-25 halftime advantage disappear in the third quarter, and needed a pair of key breaks in the dying seconds of regulation to force the game into overtime. With 12 seconds left and Northville ahead, 55-54, Churchill hit one of two free throws to deadlock the contest.

Moments later the Chargers had a golden opportunity to win on a technical foul, but failed to hit their free throw and then missed a last-second bucket.

Seltz then scored four of Northville's five overtime points while Todd Jennings added the other on a free throw with three seconds left.

Duke DuSablón led the winners' scoring attack with 18 points while Gary Kucher added 12, including 10 of 14 from the free throw line.

Three nights earlier the Mustangs had staged off a late rally in edging Novi, 46-40. Northville held a 10-point lead, 35-25, going into the final quarter, but Novi closed the gap to three before the Mustangs pulled away in the final minutes.

Greg May topped the winners with 16 points and nine rebounds while DuSablón contributed 15 points and sophomore guard Kevin Swayne had eight rebounds.

The Mustangs hit only six of 19 shots from the free throw line, but won the game on the strength of their defense, which held its opponent to 40 points for the second straight time.

The Jayvees are now 6-2 overall this season, 2-1 in the Western Six, with a league game scheduled this Friday against Farmington Harrison.

Storm cuts crowd at Downs

Despite a poor turnout for Saturday's program, caused by last weekend's snow-and-ice storm, attendance and mutual handle took a slight jump at Northville Downs last week.

Attendance for the six weeks of racing averaged 2795, up 4.6 percent over the previous week's average, while handle averaged $401,361 per night, up almost 10 percent over the previous week.

A total of 4395 people wagered $579,260 in the week's biggest night last Friday. But the respective figures for Saturday, normally the week's busiest night, dipped roughly 50 percent.

Scott Leu as a Mustang

He's co-captain for Huskies

Leu closing career at Michigan Tech

Scott Leu, who helped Northville's 1975 basketball squad to one of the school's finest seasons ever, is now finishing up a colorful four-year career with the Michigan Tech Huskies.

The veteran senior guard, who's been playing with the Huskies since his freshman year, is one of the team's top defensive players and a co-captain.

While Leu has been a starter during much of his career at Tech — he was the team leader in assists the past two seasons and was named the top defensive player as a sophomore — he's been used primarily as a sixth man on this year's young, depth-laden club.

Still, Leu was a major factor in getting the Huskies off to a 5-3 start this season. He has come off the bench to hit 54 percent of his floor shots and average more than three assists per game.

A week and a half ago he netted five of eight field goals plus a pair of free throws for 12 points in helping Tech to its fifth victory, a 97-77 triumph over Minnesota-Duluth. He also had four assists and five steals in the contest, lifting his team-leading total in the latter category to 10.

Playing without Leu most of last week, the Huskies dropped three straight games.

"Being the only senior on the team, I think my role is to provide some leadership out there," says Leu. "I'm out there to get the offense going and play good defense. I can supply a spark coming off the bench."

He has some specific goals he wants to reach before he finishes his career at Michigan Tech. "I'd really like to set the school record for assists in a game, a single season, and in a career," he acknowledges.

"I'm a little behind schedule right now, but with some added playing time I think I can reach those goals. Overall I've been satisfied with my career here, but with one more good year I'll really be pleased."

Leu notes that the team record also set some goals for the season — among them a team record 17 victories plus a conference title.

During his senior year at Northville Leu averaged 14 points per game in leading the Mustangs to a 20-2 record plus their only Western Six conference basketball championship to date. He was a first-team All-Area choice.

OLV storms back for cage victory

Recovering from a slow start, Our Lady of Victory's seventh-eighth grade boys went on a 20-2 scoring rampage in the first half of their way to a 38-28 victory over Livonia St. Michael's in a West Suburban League contest at Cooke Junior High last Sunday.

St. Mike's jumped out to a 9-2 lead in the opening minutes of the contest, but the Northville squad refused to fold. Spurred by a tenacious man-to-man defense and the hot shooting of Chris Wagner and Terry Nadeau, the Cougars held their visitors to just two points the rest of the half and led 22-11 at intermission.

Dave Bach spearheaded the winners' defense, which successfully shut down St. Mike's 6-5 Dave Michuta, by hauling down 12 rebounds and making four steals to lead both clubs.

Nadeau paced OLV's scoring attack with 18 points, including eight of nine from the free throw line. Wagner added 10 points, Rick Paler six, and Bach and Ray McDonough two each.

Earlier in the week Coach Gene Wagner's club had been upset by Orchard Lake's Our Lady of Refuge on the North Oakland County team's court, 41-35. The local squad hit only one of 12 free throws in the losing effort.

Wagner topped OLV with 13 points while Paler tallied 10 and McDonough and Nadeau six each.

The fifth and sixth grade Cougars, meanwhile, chalked up their fifth straight league win as they dumped Livonia St. Mike's, 34-26. Trailing 13-6 at the end of the first stanza, Coach Bernie McClorey's squad surged to a 21-19 halftime lead.

Mickey McGrath led the winners with a team season high of 18 points. Greg Wendell and Pat Wagner notched four each, Fred Cook and Mike Dewan three apiece. Dan Sheehan two. Wendell and McGrath dominated the board with 14 and 10 caroms respectively.

The two victories over St. Mike's set up a pair of showdowns at Cooke this Saturday between the local teams and Farmington Our Lady of Sorrows.

Farmington's seventh and eighth graders are so far undefeated, having beaten the Cougars 36-35 in league play and 21-17 in the Catholic Central Tournament championship game last month. OLV needs a victory to give them a share of the league lead.

The situation is reversed at the fifth-sixth grade level, with the visitors one game behind the Cougars. The two squads split their two previous encounters, with Sorrows chalking up a 37-32 non-league win only to see OLV win 34-24 in an official league match-up.

Girls win, too

Our Lady of Victory's girls' basketball team, rallying from a six-point halftime deficit, posted their first league victory of the season by edging Livonia St. Michael's, 23-20, last Saturday.

Down 14-8 at the half, the Cougars used a full court press in outscoring St. Mike's 15-6 in the second half.

Mary Quinn led the winners with 10 points while Suzette Beaudoin and Paula Witmer chipped in four apiece, Donna Schlachter three, and Julie Mellish and Patty Payne one each. Beaudoin also pulled down 11 rebounds and Witmer added six.

OLV's girls, coached by Dennis Nadeau, are now 1-4 in league action.

MICHAEL RUMBELL leads the Cooke Junior High School Symphonic Band through a rehearsal in preparation for a big night ahead. On Friday, the band will perform at Hill Auditorium in Ann Arbor as part of a midwestern music conference. The band earned the honor by virtue of first division ratings in competition last year. The concert is open to the public.

High-rating band to play at conference

Northville's Cooke Junior High School Symphonic Band, under the direction of Michael Rumbell, will perform an hour-long concert at the Midwestern Conference on School Vocal and Instrumental Music.

The concert will be presented Friday at 9 p.m. in Hill Auditorium on Ann Arbor's University of Michigan campus.

The Cooke band was selected on the basis of its first division ratings at last year's district and state band festivals.

The rankings place the Cooke Symphonic Band among the finest in the state. The public is welcome at Friday's performance.

This is the 34th year for the Midwestern Conference. It is sponsored by the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association, the Michigan Music Educators Association, the Michigan School Vocal Association, the American String Teachers' Association and the University of Michigan.

The conference is planned in such a way as to help teachers meet immediate practical problems facing their profession in its relationships with other areas of music and education.

In order that the benefits of the conference be extended as widely as possible, teachers from the entire midwest are invited to attend.

Since 1946, the Midwestern Conference has grown to become one of the largest of its kind in the nation. More than 2,000 Michigan music educators join together to hear concerts and nationally recognized clinicians.

Voc-Ed survey mailed to 1978 grads today

Dear members of the Northville class of 1978: Your high school wants to know how you are doing.

Questionnaires are being mailed out today to June graduates asking them what they are doing, how they got their job or how they chose their college, and how well their high school days prepared them.

The survey is being conducted in cooperation with the Michigan Department of Education and the United States Office of Education. The survey originally began as a method of assessing vocational education programs but in Northville, where a large percentage of students attend college, it has been expanded to all students.

"The information we receive ... will help us in planning for a better Northville High School and more interesting learning experience for students who are presently enrolled," writes Principal George Aune in a cover letter accompanying the survey.

Former students are not requested to put their names on the forms but they can be identified by code numbers used to help the district follow-up on students who do not return the questionnaire.

"Our hope is that all of the graduates will return a completed survey," says Aune.

Last year, the school eventually received replies from all of the vocational education students, according to Curriculum Coordinator Michael Burley. About two-thirds of all the students returned completed surveys.

The information culled from the responses is supposed to help the district improve its curriculum and indicate what, in the minds of former students, were the strengths and weaknesses of the high school.

MAN'S WORLD

At Mt. Brighton

There's no business like snow business

By EVELYN BAGWELL

The first few months of winter brought very little snow to southeastern Michigan this year, but ski enthusiasts hardly gave it a second thought.

Because the area's ski resorts do more than just talk about the weather — they've got a way to create it.

Business has been booming at Mt. Brighton ski area, where despite the lack of natural snow skiers have been enjoying the slopes since mid-November.

The key is the resort's snowmaking machines, which this year will cover Brighton slopes with about 600 inches of snow.

From November to March, at least three men will spend 12 hours a night making and distributing snow on Mt. Brighton's slopes.

Each night, in fact, Mt. Brighton's snowmakers use millions of gallons of water to create what they believe is the best surface possible for skiers.

This year alone, Mt. Brighton's owners have budgeted $100,000 to cover the cost of making snow, excluding the cost of the machines which actually produce the white stuff.

Yet, snowmaking is theoretically such a simple process that the average home has on hand almost all the materials needed.

"There's no magic to it," says Mt. Brighton General Manager Bill Risky.

The process could possibly be duplicated at home with just a garden hose, sprinkler and compressed air.

By somehow adding the air to the water as it shoots through the sprinkler you could theoretically make snow, says Mt. Brighton snowmaker Robert Wells.

Risky explains that air breaks water into fine flakes and freezes it and it comes out snow.

It's a relatively simple process, but Mt. Brighton has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars on equipment which can manufacture enough snow to cover its slopes.

Mt. Brighton employee Bob Larabee, who grooms the slopes to keep them fresh for skiers, says artificial snow actually has advantages over the real stuff.

Mt. Brighton snow doesn't compact as quickly or become as hard as real snow, so it doesn't turn icy as soon after a few skiers slide over it, and the surface stays better longer Larabee said.

Snow is usually made at night when temperatures and humidity are low,

Wells said. Snow is made even if natural snow is falling, he said.

There are five different types of man-made snow, ranging from very fine to heavier snow, Wells said.

Some of the snow machines sit atop poles on the slopes, while others are large "guns" which can be moved to spread the snow to areas not reached by the poles.

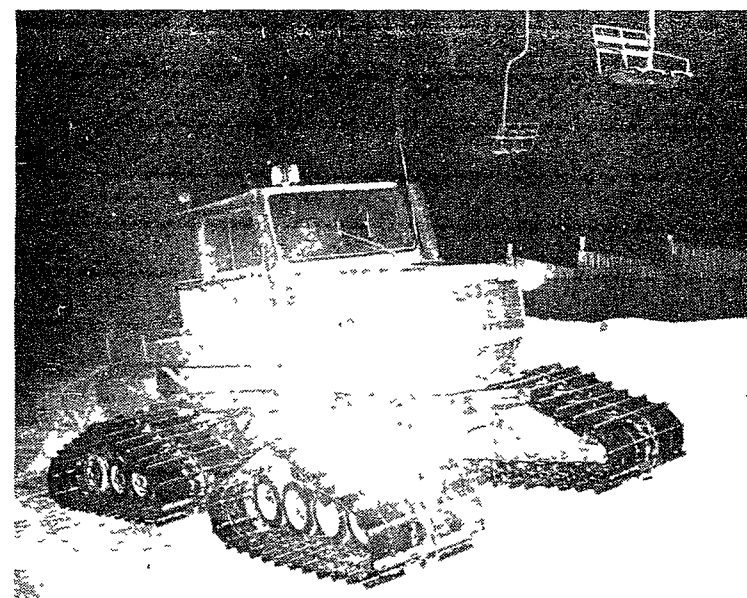

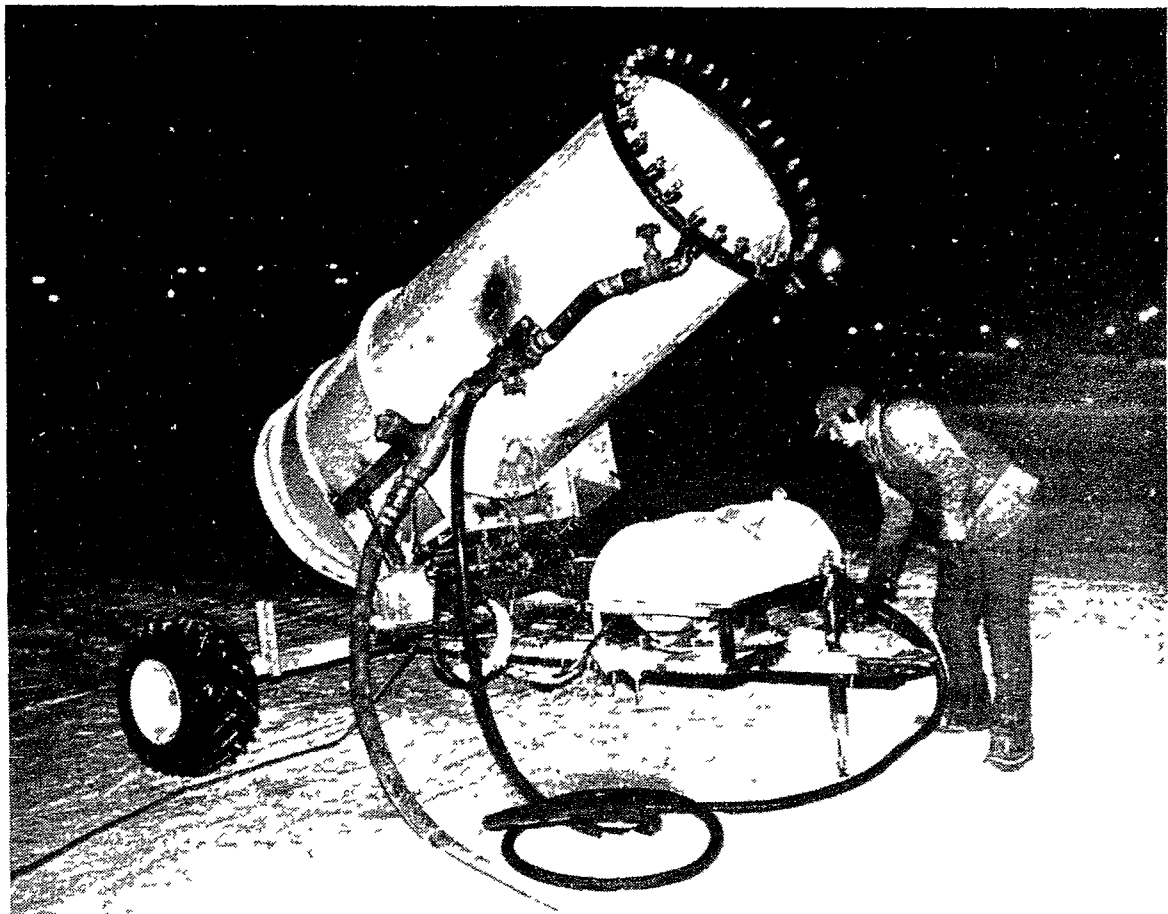

Temperatures at night while the snow is being made can be as low as 40 degrees below zero, considering the wind chill factor, Larabee said.

The snowmaker adjusts the machine, then stands in front of it as it begins to shoot out snow. Only this way can he tell if the snow is the type and quality he wants, Larabee said.

Though the snow-covered Mt. Brighton slopes look the same to the untrained eye, artificial snow does not come out as flakes, but as crystals.

Though the people at Mt. Brighton say snowmaking is a relatively simple process, creating the best snow for skiing almost seems like an exact science.

And though many of us have little use for snow on our streets and roads, artificial snow has allowed the skier to enjoy his sport all winter long — whether we're "blessed" with the real stuff or not.

Snow power

When the elements need a little help, the crew at Mt. Brighton is equal to the task. Robert Wells gets ready for an instant blizzard by making final adjustments on a cannon-like device (top). Then Alan Wood tests the man-made snow that must be groomed by a Sno-Cat to provide better skiing. The thick misty material that shoots out of the nozzle below becomes a snowy carpet (far left) for Mt. Brighton enthusiasts.

Gas and weight tax roll-back?

By WARREN M. HOYT

Supporters of a petition drive to roll-back the legislatively approved hike of gasoline and diesel fuel taxes and license plate fees are claiming victory but petitions were not filed in time to keep the hikes from going into effect on January 6.

Backers of the petition drive to suspend the new increases announced they had reached their goal with 250,000 signatures but announced they would not file the petitions until they were properly checked and validated.

Barring a court injunction or challenge, which opponents to the petition drive plan filing, the State Board of Canvassers could certify the petitions at the earliest between January 17-19.

Upon certification by the board, the 11 cent per gallon state gasoline tax will be returned to nine cents and the diesel fuel tax will go back to seven cents instead of the increased nine cents per gallon.

Additionally, the increase, an average of 30 to 35 percent, in motor vehicle license plate fees will be rolled-back to their current levels until a final decision is reached.

One of the final actions of the Legislature last year was to pass legislation providing the secretary of state with the authority to make refunds to persons purchasing their license plates at the new rate while those who waited for the outcome of the petition drive could purchase theirs at a lower rate.

Both legislatively approved increases will be determined by the voters in the November, 1980 general election upon certification of the petitions which will place the increases in limbo until that final decision is cast.

Baby Mickalacki wins 1979 title

The opening days of 1979 brought two big changes in the life of John Michael Mickalacki and his wife, Valerie Ruth.

On January 3 their second son, Michael Lynn, was born at 12:42 p.m. at Wayne County General Hospital, capturing the First Baby title in Northville.

Last Monday, January 8, Mickalacki landed a job as a tool and die maker with Rock Tool company in Redford.

The night shift job promises an overtime week with 57 work hours, plus benefits.

That's important to John, 21, and his wife, who is 20, as her Caesarean section delivery cost $1,500. The young couple and their first son, Gregory Scott, two-and-a-half, have been living with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mickalacki, at 505 Griswold.

Valerie Mickalacki is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Wilenius of Novi. Her parents have been caring for their older son during the first days she and the new baby have been home from the hospital.

It was the proud father who reported his son's birth to The Record last week. Since the deadline for reporting first babies of the new year was 5 p.m. Monday, January 8, there was a wait to see if an earlier birth would be registered.

None was; so Mickalacki was notified.

Michael had captured the title and prizes from 12 local merchants. When the call was made last Monday, he was on his way to the interview which landed the tool and die job.

A life resident of Northville, Mickalacki explained that he attended Northville High School until he quit to work in Detroit with his father. He was a tool and die apprentice, but was seeking other work as the job with his father did not include insurance and other benefits.

Valerie mentions that she earlier had gone to Botsford Hospital, intending to have their second child there, but she was quoted a $6,000 price for the hospitalization and delivery.

"They sent me to Wayne County General," she recalls. She was seen there December 28. The next day fluid was taken. On January 2 she entered the hospital to have the baby the next day.

This time she knew it was to be a Caesarean section, but when Gregory was born, she was not told until just before the delivery that it would be a surgical birth.

The new baby arrived safely and well, weighing seven pounds, 10 ounces.

"He was the only one of eight born that day who did not have problems," reports his mother thankfully.

His birth brings to nine the number of first baby boys born in the 23 years the contest has been held. Girls still are in the majority with 14 "firsts."

Michael takes over the First Baby title from Meghan Rooney, First Baby of 1978, who was born on the second day of last year to Colleen and Douglas Rooney.

At that time she became the sixth consecutive baby girl winner.

Before Michael this year, the last boy winner was Derek John Lauber in 1972.

Historian chronicles Lincoln assassination

While the Martin Luther King and Kennedy assassinations are more recent, there still are threads of history to unravel about the first presidential assassination — that of Abraham Lincoln.

Dr. Weldon Petz, principal of Sanders School in Farmington and consultant on Lincoln for Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village, has spent a great deal of his life investigating this and all other aspects of Lincoln's life.

"It's the blood and thunder of the Lincoln story," he declares, "and still is one of the greatest mystery stories in our country."

Dr. Petz detailed events of the assassination for members of Station VI Questers at their January meeting.

"Lincoln's assassination has an ever-increasing hold on people. I don't know if some questions about it can ever be answered about the Lincoln conspiracy," Petz said as he recalled that April 9, 1865, the day the Civil War ended was "very happy for Lincoln."

On April 10, one of the rare photographs of Lincoln smiling was taken and, while the negative cracked across the top, the photographer, Alexander Gardner, made a print of it. Petz has one of six copies made from the print.

A few days later, on Good Friday, April 14, Lincoln was invited by two theaters, Grover's and Ford's to attend performances.

"He accepted both," says Petz, "and on the morning of the 14th decided to attend Ford's and send his son Tad to Grover's where 'Aladdin and His Magic Lamp' was showing."

"Laura Keane was onstage at the Ford Theater, which first had been a church. It was her 1,000 performance and a benefit night for 'Our American Cousin.' After that night she never again stepped onstage."

Petz mentioned that, when the building became a theater, one of the church parishioners placed a curse on it for becoming a house of entertainment. In addition to the assassination there, Petz said, the second floor once collapsed resulting in 22 lost lives.

By April 14, Petz recounts, General Grant was in Washington as a hero. Lincoln invited the Grants to attend the theater and they agreed. Then they sent word that they would not be able to attend as they were taking an early train to New Jersey to visit their daughter.

"They did leave Washington, but the reason they declined was that they couldn't stand Mrs. Lincoln," said Petz.

Clara Harris, the daughter of a senator, and her fiancé, a Major Rathbone, finally accompanied the Lincolns. Petz makes the observation that "everyone in that box that night ended in a tragic death. Rathbone later went insane."

In Our Town

These local weight-loss groups welcome dieters

By JEAN DAY

If your holiday festivities included rich food and resulted in unwanted pounds, you may want to investigate one of our town's weight-loss groups. Each has a slightly different approach to the problem of shedding pounds and each encourages members to keep the weight off. Meeting times vary from morning to evening.

Costs also differ with non-profit groups, such as TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) and Overeaters Anonymous the most minimal. Weight Watchers offers a strict diet program. Newest addition to the clubs is International Diet Centre, which began in December.

This TOPS group is 20 years old

"When I stop coming, I gain," Laura Jerome, who joined Northville TOPS 20 years ago as a charter member, told fellow TOPS members as she was honored at the club's 20th anniversary program January 8. Leader Nancy Hammond explains that the honoree actually reached her weight-loss goal 19 years ago and has been a KOPS (Keep Off Pounds Sensibly) ever since.

She adds that the group always welcomes new members. It meets at 7:30 p.m. every Monday in the scout-recreation building at 215 West Cady. Mrs. Hammond outlines rules of the TOPS program — the member's personal physician has to supply any diet and set weight-loss goals. Members pay 25 cents a week as they weigh in. "We're a support body," she says. She may be contacted at 420-2543.

There's Daytime TOPS, too

Daytime TOPS group, which meets at 9 a.m. every Thursday in First Presbyterian Church, also welcomes additions. "It's a good time as we're starting a new weight-loss contest on January 25," says Evelyn Stern. "We have gotten some new members who joined after the first of the year," she reports. Doris Srock is leader. At the January 25 meeting she will be citing Jeanette Stedman for her loss of 35½ pounds last year. Ilene Watson, who lost 57 and three-quarter pounds and kept it off to attain KOPS status, also will be honored. "There's a lot of caring for each other in our TOPS," says Mrs. Stern, who confirms that this TOPS chapter also has no particular diet but operates "by encouraging." Members weigh in at 9 a.m. with the meeting and discussion starting at 9:30 a.m. Mrs. Stern may be contacted at 348-2486.

Overeaters Anonymous compares to AA

Overeaters Anonymous is for compulsive eaters. "We probably never eat because we're hungry," admits Leader Joyce Laskowski. "Our secret is to be honest with ourselves — we're the ones who do the eating." The group meets at 9:30 a.m. every Friday at First Presbyterian Church and always has room for new people. A non-profit organization with headquarters in Torrance, California, its program, says Mrs. Laskowski, is modeled on Alcoholics Anonymous. The fee is by individual donation.

"We don't weigh you. We just ask that you weigh yourself once a month, but you don't report it," Mrs. Laskowski explains, saying this group is for people to whom food control is a way of life. It's mental, spiritual and physical help. Usually this is a good time for new members, but many quit at Easter, the leader mentions. Members aid each other. "When someone ad-

FATHER GERARD HADAD, MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM BAYNE

Cynthia DiComo wed

A ski trip to Vermont and stop at Cape Cod followed the marriage of Cynthia A. DiComo and William J. Bayne, who have just celebrated their first Christmas together in their home in Westland.

The Reverend Gerard Hadad of Our Lady of Victory Parish officiated at their marriage November 18 at Madonna College Chapel in Livonia.

The reception followed immediately at Madonna Student Center.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. DiComo of Edenderry. She is a 1975 graduate of Northville High School. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Bayne of Westland.

For her wedding Cindy wore a chiffon gown fashioned with a keyhole neckline and long sleeves. It was accented with lace and pearl embroidery. Lace and pearls adorned the Juliet crown holding her fingertip veil. She carried a bouquet of orchids with stephanotis and baby's-breath.

Nancy Drolshagen was maid of honor. Maryann Bayne, sister of the bridegroom, Candace DiComo, sister of the bride, Dina Besh and Lisa Schummer, cousins of the bride, were bridesmaids. They wore calico-print skirts, accented with a burgundy ruffle and matching blouse and carried arrangements of burgundy carnations and baby's-breath.

Peter Deptula of Livonia was best man. Donald and Daniel DiComo, brothers of the bride, John C. and Michael Bayne, brothers of the bridegroom, ushered. William J. Bayne, Jr., was ring-bearer.

mits 'I ate the whole cake the other night,' we can help by admitting, 'I've done that, too,' and then suggest things to try," explains Mrs. Laskowski.

The group recently held a convention at the Plymouth Hilton Inn. It brings in speakers, often those who have lost a great deal of weight. Members help each other with their goals. "What we have basically is a disease — if, in three months in the group, we have the same weight, then we don't want help," declares Mrs. Laskowski. She may be called evenings at 348-1662 for information.

International Diet Centre's in the Square

International Diet Centre holds two meetings every Thursday in Northville Square — at 10:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Gladys Hacker is area manager and morning lecturer for the Centre. The organization was founded by Lily Ann Grossman, now its president and a Detroit-area resident. With her program, she explains, she lost 43 pounds in 1970 and has kept it off. "It's easy to be normal on this program," she asserts, explaining the focus is on a well-balanced diet which features "an exchange program" of foods so that the dieter may eat foods he or she enjoys.

"You can eat out with this diet," she says. New members have joined the Northville Centre since Christmas, she adds. They weigh in at meetings. Joining fee is $8 with meeting charge of $3. Mrs. Grossman reports that members actually continued their weight loss through the Christmas season on the program. She or Mrs. Hacker may be contacted at 963-3438.

They return to Weight Watchers

"Many, many people return to Weight Watchers after the New Year starts," the WW office on 12 Mile reports. The Northville chapter, led by Marie Bittner of Detroit, meets at 7 p.m. every Wednesday in Northville Square. Registration fee is $6 with each meeting costing $4. The office may be contacted at 557-6100.

Woman's Club lists jazz night, art talk

SANDRA BOAK

Art and music will be the subjects of the two upcoming programs of Northville Woman's Club — and both promise to be served up with flair.

Mrs. John Winters, program chairman, announces that the annual men's night dinner program at 7 p.m. Friday, February 2, will feature Jazz Scholar James Dapogny speaking and playing in "The Solo Jazz Piano Tradition: 1895-1945."

Now an associate professor of music theory at the University of Michigan, he had been on its faculty since 1966 and is a U-M associate of William Albright, a past performer of jazz at the club men's night. Albright presently is in Europe.

The club program at 1 p.m. this Friday at First Presbyterian Church, "Meet the Artists," focuses on the world of art as presented by Sandra Boak, a Plymouth resident and originator of Artists' Forum of Michigan.

Last fall she also launched the Cafe Concert Series Sunday afternoons at the Plymouth Hilton Inn. A pianist with the Farmington Musicales who has taught French for five years, she combined all areas of her expertise into her projects.

Her Artists' Forum is a traveling gallery of multi-media original works of art by local Michigan artists. She offers shows for groups, for benefits and in homes. Artists represented include Caroline Dunphy, Northville watercolorist, Al Gerstenberger, also a watercolorist, and Tom Hale, who does acrylics, both Farmington residents.

Mrs. Boak stresses that she believes art should "reflect your personal taste."

Louise Cutler, program chairman of the day, says this is a guest day program.

Reservations will be taken at Friday's meeting for the men's night dinner, Mrs. John Brown, president, announces.

The men's night jazz program also will be held at the church. It has become a club tradition to invite husbands to be guests at the annual event.

Artists Dapogny's solo piano repertoire includes ragtime, blues, jazz and pop classics.

Mothers' Club plans supper before game

Northville Mothers' Club will make plans for a pre-game pancake supper at its next meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at the home of President Sue Wright on Linden Court.

Co-hostesses will be Jean Boll, Jean Ann Weston and Ida Wheatley.

The pancake supper will be served from 5:30-7:30 p.m. Friday, February 2, in the Northville High School cafeteria. Tickets at $2 for adults and $1.50 for students will be sold at the door and now are available from club members. Diane Schrader and Sue Anger are co-chairmen.

Arrangements for the February 5 meeting have been changed, Mrs. Wright announces. It is to be a three-hour pulmonary resuscitation course given from 7-10 p.m. in Winchester gymnasium.

Hostesses will be Claire Lincoln, Ardis McLeod and Judy Somershoe.

He was born in 1940 and grew up and went to school in Downers Grove, Illinois. He already had studied piano for several years when, as a young teenager, he became interested in jazz. He played jazz trombone and piano around the Chicago area, eventually meeting and occasionally playing with some of the older jazz pioneers still living and playing there.

He attended University of Illinois where he received his Doctor of Musical Arts degree in composition in 1971.

A jazz scholar as well as a performer,

Dapogny also is editor-author of the current Smithsonian Institution press publication, "The Collected Piano Music of Ferdinand 'Jelly Roll' Morton," and has written several biographical-critical articles for the "Grove's Dictionary of Music and Musicians."

The Smithsonian has issued his solo LP recording, "Piano Music of 'Jelly Roll' Morton." "Chicago in the 1920s: jazz and hot dance music" has been issued by the University of Michigan School of Music. It recreates the sound of a 1920s jazz dance band with Dapogny playing piano and leading the group.

Dapogny's appearances are cited for bringing together in entertaining, informal programs jazz history and outstanding performance.

Having an enormous repertoire, he performs in the great classic jazz piano styles — the ragtime of Joplin and others, Jelly Roll Morton's brilliant innovative New Orleans jazz, the classic East Coast stride piano of James P. Johnson and Fats Waller, the dashing, emphatic Midwestern styles of Earl Hines and Joe Sullivan, and the delicate and refined styles of the late swing-era masters, Teddy Wilson, Art Tatum and others.

This is the time of an era when solo piano was important jazz medium — when the jazz pianist could be completely independent, creating the entire musical fabric himself, states Dapogny.

Dapogny also heads his own Chicago Jazz Band, an all-star group of musicians who have played in the United States, Europe, South America and Japan. They have made more than 40 recordings.

Newcomers have night at Downs

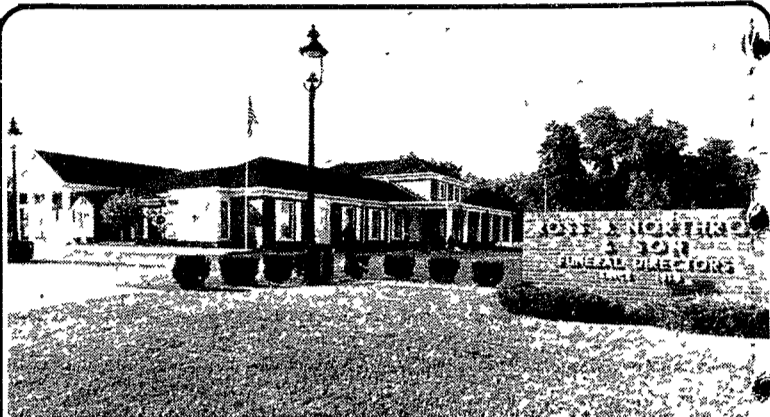

A capacity group of 45 couples attended the second annual Northville Newcomers' Night at the Races at Northville Downs last Friday. After cocktails and a buffet dinner in the clubhouse, they cheered on the trotters. Seventh race, the Perfecta, was named in honor of the Newcomers.

At left, John J. Carlo, executive manager of Northville Downs, greets Mr. and Mrs. David Lehmkuhl. Mrs. Lehmkuhl is president of the Michigan Harness Horseman Association. Friday evening the Michigan Harness Horseman Association paid a special salute to Carlo, who is beginning his 36th year as manager and senior partner of the Northville half-mile oval. Studying their programs are Mr. and Mrs. George Buelow, below, and Mrs. Ted Peters and her husband.

OLV Parish schedules charismatic seminar

Our Lady of Victory Parish is planning a "Life in the Spirit" eight-week seminar to be held Tuesday evenings, beginning January 23, at the church.

Father John O'Callaghan will conduct the introduction to the Catholic Charismatic Movement. The seminars will be held from 8 to 10 p.m. in the Walnut Room of the administration building at the church.

Planners explain that the seminar "will harmoniously combine the best of the Catholic tradition with the best of the authentic charismatic experience."

Purposes of the seminar are listed as "helping effectively establish, reestablish or deepen relationships with Christ,

"Yielding to the action of the Holy Spirit in our lives so we can experience His presence and His working in us and through us,

"Deepening our love and understanding of scripture, sacraments and prayer."

All who wish to attend for the full eight weeks are welcome, according to Judy Krueger, who may be contacted at 349-1263.

Lincoln report

Assassination still holds mysteries

Lincoln earlier had asked Major Thomas Eckert to be his bodyguard that evening, Petz reports, but Eckert declined, saying he had to man the telegraph line into Washington.

"However, he went home to bed and that night the telegraph lines coming in to Washington broke down.

"Parker, the man who was Lincoln's bodyguard on the assassination night, had been arrested 17 times for neglect of duty and, half an hour after the play began, left his post outside the presidential box to go to the bar.

"He never was brought to trial for this," Petz added.

"Because Parker left, John Wilkes Booth, a 24-year-old actor and southern sympathizer, was able to enter the Lincoln box unquestioned.

"Booth had problems," Petz continued, "his popularity was beginning to slip and his voice was giving out. There is pretty conclusive evidence that he had throat cancer.

"The day of the assassination he drank heavily all day long. Booth and those who worked with Booth, mainly young school friends, twice had planned to kidnap Lincoln.

"When the war ended, Booth was panic stricken," Petz feels, "and his ego hatched the plot to assassinate Lincoln and also the Secretary of State and set the government in turmoil. The plan was made at the home of Mary Surratt, the mother of one of the conspirators, John Surratt.

"It was never established that she knew of the conspiracy," relates Petz, "but she was tried and executed as a conspirator. This was one of the great inconsistencies."

John Surratt made his way to Rome where he was found serving as a Papal guard. He was declared not guilty in a civil trial, Petz recounted.

"Booth came close to the president to fire a single shot from a Derringer. There was a single shot on the left side a foot-and-a-half away. Lincoln slumped over and the deed was done."

Rathbone grappled with Booth who slashed his arm with a dagger, Petz related.

"Lincoln did not bleed," Petz declared, revealing that the blood on the Lincoln assassination chair in Greenfield Village was that of Rathbone.

Booth broke his leg jumping from the box to the stage. Orchestra Leader William Withers also was slashed with the dagger as he tried to stop Booth.

Earlier that evening Withers ordered another conspirator, Edman Spangler, away from backstage, according to Petz. Spangler was to have turned off the gas jet immediately after Lincoln was shot, providing cover for Booth, he explained.

Booth with Davey Herald crossed the bridge into Maryland.

Meanwhile, at the theater, the speaker said, Surgeon General Barnes was sent for and Lincoln was moved to a house across the street.

"He lingered all night long, holding out until 7:22 a.m. It was said that he had the strong heart of a young person," said Dr. Petz.

"For almost a month," he continued, "he lay in state and finally was laid to rest at Springfield." The same engine that had pulled the train that took Lincoln to Washington and to Gettysburg pulled the funeral train. It was one of many coincidences.

Booth in great pain went to Dr. Samuel Mudd to have his leg treated.

For this, Mudd was brought to trial and given a life sentence. He later was freed after fighting Yellow Fever in Florida but his citizenship was not restored.

He still is not a citizen, and Dr. Petz does not believe his grandson Dr. Richard Mudd of Saginaw, now 77, will be successful in his attempts to do so.

"The reason Mudd's citizenship never will be restored," Petz declares, "is because the family of Mary Surratt is waiting in the wings to ask for hers."

"Booth," Petz related, "was traced through Virginia and surrounded in a tobacco barn. When he refused to come out, it was set on fire. The blaze outlined the figure inside on crutches. A single shot rang out and he fell. Sergeant Boston Corbett, not following orders, was credited with the firing."

Petz isn't convinced that he did the shooting and feels Booth may have committed suicide. Still, he says, is one of the many questions still being asked about the assassination.

In conclusion, he points out that the Lincoln and Kennedy assassinations happened exactly 100 years apart and that both were advised not to go to the locations where they were shot — the theater and Dallas.

Bells will ring

The story of bells present and past will be told at the January meeting of Northville Historical Society at 8 p.m. next Thursday, January 25, in the New School Church in Mill Race Village.

John Harper, a Northville resident and treasurer of the Great Lakes Chapter, State of Michigan, of the American Bell Association, will speak on bells and show examples from his collection.

Members of the American Bell Association, he explains, study what bells have been used for, where they originated and their composition. Some members, he mentions, have as many as 4,700 in their collections.

He recalls that he became interested in bells through his mother-in-law, Mrs. Viola Noble of Northville. It has become a family interest with his daughter, Margo Harper, seeking out examples on her travels. She presently is teaching children of military personnel for the U.S. Department of Defense in the Philippines.

On a recent vacation to Burma she sent the Harpers a picture of "the largest ringing bell in the world" located there.

The meeting is open to anyone interested in bells or the Northville Historical Society, Robert Daniel, president, announces.

White Shrine plans Grange Hall dinner

Swiss steak will be the main course of the dinner planned by women of the White Shrine of Jerusalem for Saturday, January 20, in the Plymouth Grange Hall, 273 Union, Plymouth.

Because the Shrine's recent smorgasbord was a sellout and many persons were disappointed when planners ran out of food, dinner will be by reservation only.

Two seatings will be served at 5 and 6 p.m. Reservations may be made by calling 422-4397, 453-4909 or 349-7222. Donation will be $4 for adults and $1.75 for children.

According to Violet Bradford, Ann McGeorge and her committee will be serving mashed potatoes, carrots, harvard beets, cole slaw, molded salads, relishes, assorted breads, homemade fruit cocktail cake dessert and beverages.

Having trouble paying your electric bill?

Help us help you.

All of us, of course, must pay for the goods and services we use. From time to time, many of us may have difficulties making those payments—due to illness, loss of employment, an accident or a disability.

If this happens to you, let Detroit Edison know. Detroit Edison has programs to help you if you're having problems with electric bills and to help you avoid overdue bills in the future. The programs are designed to assure uninterrupted electric service.

You can help Detroit Edison help you by getting in touch as soon as possible—by mail, by telephone or by stopping in at any Detroit Edison Customer Office.

Here are Detroit Edison Programs to help when your bill is overdue:

Bill Payment Counseling

Company Customer Representatives will offer advice and assistance and suggest ways to obtain aid in paying Edison bills through public assistance programs such as social service or welfare agencies, if needed. So call or stop in at any Customer Office and talk things over.

Payment Plans

If an extra-large overdue bill seems impossible to pay, don't despair. Payment plans can be tailored to fit your situation and clear things up.

These Detroit Edison Programs can help you avoid problems arising from overdue bills.

Double Notice Protection Plan

When you sign up for this plan, if your overdue bill could result in a service shutoff then a friend, relative or community agency is notified so they can remind you that your bill must be paid, or pay it for you. This plan is especially helpful for the elderly, the sick, the shut-in or persons who spend extended periods of time away from home.

Senior Citizen Rate

If you are 65 years or older and the head of a household, this new rate can help lower your electric bills if you use less than 548 kilowatt-hours a month—848 kilowatt-hours or less if you have controlled electric water heating combined on your regular meter. If you want more information, call or stop in at any Customer Office so that a Customer Representative can review this new program with you.

Wise Use of Electricity

Detroit Edison has booklets on how to use your electric lights and appliances wisely and other ways to save energy around the home.

Stop in at any Customer Office and pick up what you need to get the most out of your energy dollar.

Detroit Edison does everything possible to get in touch with you to see if you need help when your electric bill is overdue. But you can help by getting in touch with Detroit Edison.

Detroit Edison wants to do everything in its power to keep the power in your hands.

So please help us help you.

Baby Michael takes title

Even in the beginning years of the contest, baby girls had the edge. Ruth Ann Edgin was first in 1957 with Sherry Coykendall following in 1958. It wasn't until Timothy McDonald arrived in 1959 that a boy was the first Baby winner.

Gifts that go to Michael Lynn Mickalacki and his parents and the businesses supplying them include: TG&Y, a Basketette; Del's, a pair of shoes; Noder's jewelry, a silver spoon; Guernsey Dairy, 10 one-half gallons of milk; Little People Shoppe, a gift certificate; Freydl's Women's Wear, a gift for the mother; IV Seasons, a floral arrangement; Brader's Department Store, a baby crib blanket.

D&C Store, a potty chair; Ferran's studio-photographer, an 8 x 10 portrait; Erwin Farms, five gallons of milk; and Fashion Cellar, haircut and blow dry for mother.

Valerie Mickalacki says she's looking forward to "raising babies" this year. The gifts should help.

'Total education' MACLD topic

Total education of the handicapped youngster will be discussed at the meeting of Plymouth, Canton, Northville Chapter of the Michigan Association for Children with Learning Disabilities at 7:30 p.m. today (Wednesday) in Plymouth Pioneer Middle School's cafeteria.

Speaker will be Stewart M. Gordon, psychologist with the Plymouth-Canton school system. His topic will be, "Education in the Real World."

He has his BA degree in psychology from the State University of New York, master's degree from Bowling Green University in clinical psychology and an Educational Specialist's degree in school psychology from Michigan State University.

He worked for the High Scope Educational Research Foundation as an evaluator for National Education projects sponsored by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare prior to coming to Plymouth.

Gordon explains that in focusing on "total education" he means "total" recognizes that a youth's ability to adjust and cope within his present social world and be productive in later life transcends the bounds of the classroom.

"To this end we must look at the diversified opportunities within the schools and also at the role of the family and the opportunities within the community that contribute to the growth of the total child," he asserts.

The MACLD meeting is open to the public without charge. The local chapter is dedicated to finding and helping children with hidden handicaps. It explains that this is "the child whose learning performance does not measure up to his or her learning capabilities."

Parent advisors are at the meetings to aid new members. Meetings are the third Wednesday of each month, September through May, with the exception of December and April, at Pioneer Middle School.

LaLeche to start new series

"Benefits of Nursing for Mother and Baby" is the topic for discussion at the first meeting in a new series of the La Leche League.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. Thursday in the home of Margaret Mazur, 227 North Rogers.

Each La Leche series consists of four monthly meetings at which different phases of breastfeeding are discussed informally. The League is a non-profit organization dedicated to helping interested mothers learn the medical and emotional advantages of breastfeeding.

Meetings are led by qualified leaders and telephone counseling is available to mothers at any time. Each group is equipped with a lending library containing books and pamphlets on childbirth, nursing and related subjects, Mrs. Mazur explains.

A board of 45 medical doctors who act as consultants for breastfeeding research and medical problems is affiliated with the League.

Anyone interested in further information about the series may contact Charlene Frellick, 349-2840, or Kay Semion, 981-1028.
