For school millage

April 28 vote seen

A school taxing proposal asking for at least the renewal of three mills will likely be placed before Northville voters at a special election on Saturday, April 28.

The board of education will not decide until preliminary budget figures are available next month whether or not to seek a millage increase.

It is almost a foregone conclusion, however, that the board will seek renewal of three mills ($3 for every $1,000 of assessed valuation) which expire this year.

If thought necessary, the board could choose to seek additional millage either by tacking a proposed increase to the renewal request or by offering two separate issues.

The cost of the special election is estimated at $2,500.

The expense could be reduced or eliminated if the board conducted the election on March 26 when Schoolcraft

Community College has already called an millage election or on June 11 when the annual school board election will be conducted.

Board members discarded the March date because, they said, it would be too soon to mount an effective campaign and because it might sabotage Schoolcraft's chances.

Waiting until June would create problems for principals who need to know their budget to plan class offerings and schedules, according to board members.

"It would really put a crunch on principals," said Secretary Karen Wilkin-

Trustee John Hobart, however, favored the June date.

"If we can save $2,500, we should save $2,500," he said.

Other than that, the only debate was

The governor's quick action in setting dates — February 27 and March 20 — to elect a Northville Township trustee will get candidates' campaigns in action next week.

The dates also assure that a seventh board member will be elected in time to participate in budget hearings which begin in March.

The dates also should spur unregistered township voters to get their names on the registration list quickly. Monday, January 29, is the last day to register, any time between the hours of 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. at the Township Civic Center.

Four p.m. Tuesday, January 30, is the deadline for candidates to file nominating petitions. All of the candidates considered by the board in their unsuccessful attempt to fill the vacant seat are not expected to run. Bernard Baldwin, recently reappointed to a planning commission seat he has held for 14 years, said he will not be a candidate.

Others vying for the seat vacated by Michael Wilson's resignation include Marilyn M. Donovan, 20131 E. Whipple Drive; Dorothy K. Gay, 19605 Neptune Court; James M. Ellenburg, 18437 Jamestown Circle; Richard M. Henningsen, 42117 Banbury Road; Kenneth A. McLarty, 46600 W. Six Mile Road; David E. Mitchell, 42246 Old Bedford Road, and Dorothy P. Johnson, 42048 Queen Anne Court.

Board members have encouraged these candidates and other interested township residents to run in the election.

Since board members interviewed the candidates, they appointed Kenneth A. McLarty to the Northville Township Planning Commission. Another planning commissioner, Chairman William Bohan announced as a candidate, but then withdrew from the race in deference to Bernard Baldwin, whom Bohan favored. With Baldwin not run-ing in the election, the possibility of Bohan's throwing his hat in the ring exists.

The candidates — whoever they turn out to be — will have little time to hit the campaign trail. The primary election, which will decide upon a Democratic and a Republican candidate, will be February 27. Because the township traditionally has no Democratic candidates, it's possible only one name will appear on the ballot for the general election, scheduled for March 20 — the winner of the Republican primary.

The vacant trustee seat could have been filled by board appointment, but board members were unable to agree upon a candidate. Trustee Dr. John Swienkowski, who favored an election for the pivotal seat, consistently voted 'no' on every candidate.

By law, if a vacant seat is not filled within 45 days, the county clerk notifies the governor, who calls an election.

Math and reading

Students ace state tests

Northville fourth, seventh and tenth graders scored well above the state average on reading and math tests given last fall to most of their Michigan counterparts.

Northville students not only had better overall scores but also did better than the state average in each of 172 specific objectives, according to an analysis of the Michigan Education Assessment Program results.

"We're very pleased," said Director of Instruction Nancy Soper.

The MEAP purports to measure the mastery of minimum reading and math skills and is mandated by the state department of education for all fourth and seventh graders.

The relatively new tenth grade version of the test is optional. This is the first year that Northville High School sophomores have taken the test.

Anywhere from 19 to 45 objectives may be measured on the various tests depending on the grade level and subject area.

Each objective, such as "adding mixed fractions" in the seventh grade math test, has four or five related questions. A student is said to master the objective if he or she misses no more than one of the questions.

In reading, Northville fourth graders scored 15 percent higher than the state average and seventh and tenth graders each scored 11 percent higher than the state norm.

In math, fourth grade scores were seven percent greater, seventh grade scores were 11 percent greater and tenth grade scores averaged 12 percent better on all objectives than that statewide attainment.

The figures were compiled by Curriculum Coordinator Michael Burley.

Specifically, 77 percent of Northville's fourth graders achieved successfully three-quarters or better of the reading objectives. In math, 90 percent of the fourth graders achieved three-quarters of the objectives.

In the seventh grade, the scores were 85 percent in reading and 70 percent in math. In tenth grade, the scores were 81 percent in reading and 75 percent in math.

For the most part, the fourth and seventh grade results were roughly equivalent to last year's Northville scores and showed a noticeable increase from the scores of four years ago.

The lone exception is seventh grade math which is five points lower than the scores recorded three and four years ago.

There is no comparison available for tenth graders since this is the first year the test was given in Northville but Sophomore Counselor Jack Wickens said he was pleased with the results.

"It shows that the junior high schools are doing a good job since the kids take the tests at the start of the tenth grade," said Wickens.

In Northville, junior high schools comprise the seventh, eighth and ninth grades.

School Board Trustee Richard Barron said he had concerns about the number of sophomores — anywhere from 13 to 76 depending on the objectives, he said — who apparently have serious reading problems.

"If you're not attaining the objective, you're probably in pretty bad shape in order to get around in a society that depends on reading," he said.

What is being done, he asked, to help that student "who is only going to have two more years to learn to read?"

Burley and Wickens said that many of these students have already been identified prior to the tenth grade. There were some surprises, Wickens said, and these students would probably be referred to learning disability classes.

But Wickens warned that identifying a problem and solving it are two different matters.

School board will seek long-term ISEP commitment

The Northville school board Monday night affirmed its commitment to run a special education program for 700 mentally retarded youngsters who live in two area institutions.

By a 5-2 vote, the board instructed Superintendent Lawrence Nichols to seek a three-to-five year contract that would give the district supervisory control over the innovative and massive Institution Special Education Program (ISEP).

ISEP provides the state-mandated classroom instruction for residents under the age of 26 who live in the Plymouth Center for Human Development and the Northville Residential Training Center.

Northville is the only one of ten state special education regions where the local board of education rather than the intermediate school district governs the school program for institution residents.

For three years, the Northville board with complete state funding has overseen ISEP under the terms of an annually-renewable contract with the Wayne County Intermediate School District.

For the past two months, the board has been analyzing its role in the expensive and precedent-setting program and found "no apparent reason to disassociate with ISEP," said President Douglas Whitaker.

"Having invested three years, as one board member said, in making the mold, it seemed foolish to give it away now."

Whitaker said a long-term contract would assure program continuity among the staff and would allow the school district to undergo an administrative realignment to increase efficiency.

Former Board President John Hobart, one of only two current board members who were serving when the original ISEP contract was signed, said the board's decision was a move toward recognizing the district's responsibility for all special education students.

"There really is no difference whether it's ISEP or eight blind children residing in the school district," Hobart said Saturday in a work session that preceded Monday's vote.

"We really have to deal with special education as a classification rather than picking and choosing."

Both of the state institutions are located in Northville Township and, thus, within school district boundaries.

While all board members said they were impressed with the ISEP staff and with the strides made by many of the retarded students, some said the district was assuming responsibilities which it is unprepared to handle.

"In all humbleness, we must admit that this board has not played a significant role in (ISEP's) success and acclaim," said Trustee Richard Barron.

He referred to the horse in George Orwell's classic novel, "Animal Farm," that continually accepted greater work loads.

"I would only add that the horse died," said Barron. He said that was the risk the board was taking when it accepted the "enormous responsibility" of running ISEP.

"My objection is based solely on my own belief that we have a more than adequate challenge" in meeting K-12 demands, he added.

Barron and Charles Peltz, who stated concerns about future financial obligations, voted against seeking a long-term pact.

The school board met on two Saturday mornings during January to discuss the ISEP contract. During those meetings, Whitaker said the board reached several "conclusions of general agreement" including:

—The quality of ISEP is extremely high.

—The board's governance, while not all it might be, is as good as any other school district could supply and better than could be offered by the intermediate school district which doesn't want to run ISEP.

—There has been "scant evidence" of community concern since the district-ISEP tie began three years ago.

—There is no cost to local property tax owners. The current contract specifically places financial responsibility on the state and the intermediate school district and none to Northville Public Schools.

The district actually realizes a "small but significant" financial benefit in the form of indirect costs such as rent and utility bills that are charged to the state on a pro-rated basis.

—There are current and potential benefits for the K-12 program that can be derived from ISEP staff and resources.

—ISEP currently takes about 15-20 percent of the superintendent's time and that figure is unlikely to decrease.

—The amount of time the board spends on ISEP, however, may decrease now that the program is three years underway. Also, several board members expressed support for a suggestion to form an ISEP advisory committee.

Board Vice President Christopher Johnson said the board's method of careful and reasoned debate concerning ISEP rather than waiting until the last minute was a "healthy process."

"I hope we are able to use this model when we handle more difficult and maybe more emotional issues that come before the board."

ISEP, which has received both national and worldwide attention, has a budget of more than $6 million for about 700 students. The Northville K-12 budget, by contract, is under $8 million for about 4,000 students.

Much of the greater expense is due to the special equipment and low pupil-staff ratios required in the classroom.

Some ISEP students attend classes in Northville at the Main Street Annex (the 60-year-old former high school), Cooke Junior High School and Moraine Elementary School.

City master plan may get review

As Northville city planners prepared to discuss the possibility of revising the city's master development plan, it was apparent at their January 16 meeting that Bealton was a pivotal area.

"The major problem between the real world and the master plan is Bealton," concurred Ronald Nino, planning consultant, pointing out that "the results of the last four years suggest that this is anything but a declining neighborhood."

Bealton is one of the city's areas of older homes near the race track. It includes Gardner, Johnson and Beal avenues intersecting Main, Yerkes and River.

Stewart Kissinger, new to the commission since the master plan was adopted in 1974, indicated he was in favor of a revision study as "it should reflect what actually is going on regarding reconstruction of older areas."

Chairman C. Thomas Wheaton brought up the possibility of a master plan revision, saying that the city council recently had been discussing the master plan in relation to rezoning for extended parking near the Northville Square. He said the city feels prospective tenants are not willing to take on the building without additional parking.

Nino pointed out that there have been two updates of the master plan, including a 1976 parking feasibility study and a market study in conjunction with Mainstreet '78, the plan to improve the downtown district.

Nino said that the Bealton area is "hemmed in by commercial (on Main Street) and at the track."

Commissioner Luke Durst questioned whether there should be consideration given to rezoning the area back to residential.

Before the next meeting, Wheaton requested commissioners, "Do your homework and study the present master plan."

"Everybody," he said, "likes Northville—we can't always put our finger on exactly why, but that's what we are here to protect."

Commissioner William Tucker pinpointed one of the reasons he feels Northville is a community rather than a shopping center, saying, "Northville has people living in town — this makes the community more viable." He said he felt one of the problems in Detroit was that people haven't wanted to live in the city itself, pointing out that Boston and New York do have people living in the city and making each a better situation.

The area recently named Cabagetown, located east of Center Street and south of Eight Mile, also was mentioned as an older section in which residents have been renovating their homes.

Nino was asked to compile a list of items the planners might consider with an eye to a master plan revision for the next meeting February 6.

Earlier in the meeting the planners discussed the proposed Abbey Knoll Subdivision for which developers Smokler and Barron are seeking preliminary plat approval for a single family residential development on 40 acres on West Eight Mile.

Zoned R-1A, the plat was proposed in December with 90 lots. Planners then indicated they would like to see a different layout with improved grades for the property located west of the planned Orchard Ridge Subdivision and east of Northville Estates.

The Abbey Knoll Subdivision, Wheaton observed, is the last large area to be developed in the city. Since no representative of the developers was present last week, no action was taken.

The commissioners, however, studied the proposed plat with two long north-south roads, trying to suggest design improvements.

Chairman Wheaton told his fellow commissioners that "we're wrong in trying to make his (the developer's) problems ours."

Northville's value is its people, Wheaton said, urging the members to study what is best for the city.

Durst concluded the night's discussion as he commented on the beauty of the community in the winter, saying he nightly walks in downtown.

"Last night as the snow fell," he observed, "anyone should have had to pay for the privilege of walking through downtown."

It was obvious that the city is close to the hearts of Durst, Wheaton, Tucker, Kissinger, James Cutler, Lesa Buckland and Charles Freydl, the commissioners present, as they gave similar views.

It's 'business as usual' at township board meeting

Whisper Wood residents lambasted Building Contractor Lawrence Landau who they contend is shirking his obligation in correcting flaws in their homes. Northville Township officials expressed concern as Building Inspector Troy Milligan reported on efforts to get action from Landau.

Police Chief Ronald Nisun was turned down in his request to promote some of his men and to create new positions in his police force.

Fire Chief Robert Toms was stalled in his effort to purchase a compressor and filtration system to fill fire fighters' tanks.

Township Supervisor Donald Thomson received unanimous support when he nominated himself to serve temporarily on the planning commission.

Treasurer Lee Holland, hastily appointed as a zoning board of appeals member, resigned within a matter of minutes. Township Clerk Clarice Sass ended up getting a six-month appointment to the post, with only one board member — Lee Holland himself — voting against her.

It was business as usual at the Thursday night meeting of the Northville Township Board of Trustees.

Appointments

Although the appointments of Thomson and Sass were approved, the supervisor disclosed this week that he now has been advised by the township attorney that the law requires the appointments be for the duration of the terms — not temporary as made by the board.

Therefore, said Thomson, the vacancies still legally exist and the board will have to revise the appointments at its next meeting.

The supervisor's nomination of himself to serve for a four-month or less period on the planning commission last week was seconded by Nowka and passed unanimously. The board took its action because Commission Chairman

William Bohan, noting importance of a full commission, urged the board to either appoint a trustee for the full term or consider assigning a board member temporarily to fill the vacancy.

Thomson preferred temporary appointment, suggesting the permanent appointment await the election of the seventh township board member to allow a full board to decide who should fill the appeals board and planning commission vacancies.

Mrs. Sass's appointment to the appeals board lapsed November 20, the last day of her last term in office.

After Swienkowski asked several township board members if they would be interested in the position, he nominated Holland for a one-year period. Mrs. Sass seconded the motion, and Nowka quickly called for the question. Zapke, Nowka, Swienkowski and Mrs. Sass voted for it, Thomson and Holland dissented.

'Let's get that ordinance. . . There's got to be some way to protect people against this kind of nonsense'

Later in the meeting when Thomson asked if there were any other business to come before the board, Holland submitted his resignation to the board to which he had only minutes before been appointed.

Swienkowski then nominated Mrs. Sass for a six-month temporary term, Zapke supported the motion and only Holland voted against it.

Whisper Wood

Building Contractor Lawrence Landau, who met January 8 with Mrs. Sass, Thomson, Holland, Milligan and Trustee Dr. John Swienkowski, expressed a desire to finish the homes he started in the Whisper Wood subdivision.

"He hasn't done as much as I think he should have done (since that time)," Milligan told the board.

Milligan explained that a major problem with one of the models was that the family room is inadequately heated because glass shown in the open stairwell in the original design was taken out. He said a heating contractor had come up with an alternative "to possibly heat it."

Milligan suggested all homeowners with this heating problem send a registered letter to Landau.

Mike Williams, Whisper Wood resident whose home was constructed by another contractor, complained that Landau houses under construction remain for months at a time without any activity. He expressed concern about hazardous open basements, also pointing out that there had been vandalism and fires in the partially completed buildings.

Barbara Hajdusiewicz, City of Northville resident who owns a Whisper Wood lot, said there had been no action on her home since September when the basement was poured.

"How many times must we go to the bank and have our interest rates raised?" she asked.

Milligan explained that the township should not cancel a building permit until a building had been abandoned for six months.

Trustee James Nowka suggested that township officials "become such a nuisance" to Landau that he will know they will continue harassing until he fulfills his obligations.

Although several residents contended that development was at a standstill, Milligan enumerated some progress that Landau had made. He said 15 months was longest time Landau had taken to construct any one house.

James Pollack said every house has some plumbing problem, and every house has some drywall torn down. He said officials were going to be confronted with facing a class action suit against Landau and Northville Township.

When Mrs. Hajdusiewicz pointed out that Landau dug another basement just three weeks ago, Milligan said the township has no right to refuse him another building permit. He said Landau had "15 or 20" houses yet to be finished.

Swienkowski said he thought going to Lansing to have Landau's license pulled would not solve the problem. "We have to keep on his back," he said. "Since we can't stop him on legal ground, not moral grounds, all we can do is work with him and try to get the job done."

After Milligan explained that Dearborn was the only community he knew of that required bonding for builders, Trustee James Nowka said, "Let's get that ordinance then. There's got to be some way to protect people against this kind of nonsense."

Nowka's motion to keep the Landau item on the agenda and work with Township Attorney Donald Morgan to improve the ordinance passed unanimously.

More policemen

Police Chief Nisun requested permission to promote some patrolmen to sergeants and the township's one sergeant to lieutenant, as well as create some new positions in the department.

Mrs. Sass explained that the promotions could be made without monetary compensation until after budget hearings, pointing out that Nisun needed time for testing patrolmen for their promotions to sergeants. She moved to create the positions, and Trustee William Zapke seconded the motion.

Nowka objected, saying the positions should not be created until budget time. Swienkowski agreed.

Zapke said he interpreted the chief's request as "a structural, not a financial, change."

Thomson reminded the board that they had voted at a previous meeting to table the chief's request until budget time. "I believe some of the promotions are called for, but I concur with Nowka, Swienkowski and Holland that they should wait to budget time. I've got more things on my mind now than the police department."

Only Mrs. Sass and Zapke voted in favor of the motion.

"I do not want the police force moral or enthusiasm to drop," Thomson said. "Just give us an opportunity to work with this. We have 60 hectic days ahead during budget hearings."

Chief Nisun said, "No department, no company, no government is any good without the proper organization. We will never be what we should be without the proper organization."

Fire equipment

Fire Chief Robert Toms requested permission to spend $5,000 to purchase a compressor and filtration system to enable the township fire department to fill their own air tanks.

He explained that the method now used to fill them allows firefighters to use their masks for 15 minutes. "They could be used for 30 minutes with this equipment," he said. "The additional time would be valuable to the safety of our men in fire suppression."

Toms said it currently cost about $400 to fill the bottles.

Holland asked if it were feasible to contact the City of Northville about sharing costs and jointly using the com-

Study recreation plan

A master plan for recreation facilities may be developed for Northville Township in order to qualify the township for Land and Water Conservation grants.

Recreation expansion was discussed at a joint meeting between the Northville Township Board of Trustees, the planning commission, the economic development corporation and the recreation commission last Tuesday night.

Garry Stolkker, planner with Vilican-Leman and Associates, Inc., explained that to qualify for grants, communities must have a comprehensive five-year recreation plan.

Order or priority for use of the $10,000 was Ford Field improvements, traffic improvements at Eight Mile and Center, park property acquisition, and sidewalk improvements.

Nichols argued that traffic improvements at Eight Mile and Center should be the number one priority.

Of the $80,000, council unanimously approved use of $40,000 for the central business district improvements and $40,000 for a library.

to determine if the two communities could join together with the use of such equipment. The motion passed unanimously.

GOOD TIME WINE

by Jim Roth

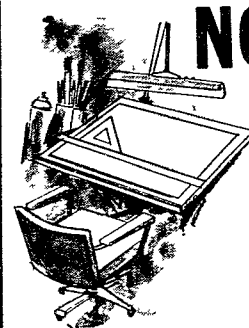

If you aren't sure what cheeses to serve with your wines try these combinations. They are designed to have the wines and cheeses bring out the best flavors in each. Blue cheeses, like Roquefort and Danish, are good with Burgundies and Pinots; soft cheeses like Brie, Camembert, and Lieder Kranz go well with Red Bordeaux and Cabernet Sauvignon. Cheddars and Swiss cheeses go with Beaujolais, Zinfandel, and Gamay wines. Rieslings and roses are best with milder cheeses such as Monterey Jack. Serve the cheeses on a board near their wine partners, with a separate knife for each.

Cheese and wine parties can be great fun. If you would like help in planning your party talk to us at GOOD TIME PARTY STORE, 567 Seven Mile Road, 349-1477. You can save 10% on your wine by the case, whether it's a mixed assortment or all of one kind. We will be glad to discuss the proper selection, preparation and serving of wine with you. Open: 9 a.m.-10 p.m. Mon. thru Sat., Noon-6 p.m. Sun.

City selects new auditors

Two decades of business with the city's auditing firm came to an end Monday with the naming of a replacement.

By unanimous action, Northville City Council voted to retain Plante & Moran as the city's auditor.

Iceman, Johnson & Hoffman had been the city's auditor for 20 years or more. Its representative was not present Monday as council heard "an impressive" presentation by a partner in the firm of Plante & Moran, Kenneth Kunkel, CPA, of Northville.

Switching of the auditing firm, however, was not a surprise. For a number of years, council members have considered a switch—not because of a dissatisfaction with Iceman, Johnson & Hoffman, but because they felt it would be wise to get a "fresh" appraisal of the city's financial structure.

Council came close to making a switch last year, with the Lee Holland firm of Northville being one of those considered. But when it came down to a decision, council opted to retain Iceman, Johnson & Hoffman for another year.

Fees charged by the two firms are comparable.

Plante & Moran estimates its annual fees at between $7,500 to $8,000—but not more than $8,000.

One of the largest auditors of municipalities in Michigan, Plante & Moran does auditing work for two dozen municipalities, one county and three county road commissions, 28 school districts and four colleges.

In this area, it is the auditor for the Northville school system, Novi, Wixom, the cities of Farmington and Farmington Hills, the Walled Lake and South Lyon school systems, and Schoolcraft College.

Kunkel will be Plante & Moran's chief auditing specialist assigned to Northville. He has been a resident here for three years.

Based in Southfield and Mount Clemens, the 50-year-old firm has 180 employees, 85 certified public accountants, and is recognized as the largest Michigan-based CPA firm and the 31st largest CPA firm in the U.S.

42408 FORD RD. (Corner of Lilley) CANTON
455-6200Jet crash kills
Northville man

A Northville father of three was among the six victims who died in a fiery jet crash at Detroit Metropolitan Airport Friday night.

Services for Robert D. Campbell, 36, 21680 North Center, were conducted last night in a funeral home in Mt. Prospect, Illinois, where his parents live.

He was to be buried this afternoon in Davenport, Iowa.

Campbell, a purchasing director for Massey-Ferguson Incorporated, was returning home from a regular monthly meeting at company headquarters in Des Moines.

The leased, twin engine Lear jet that was to drop off Campbell and a Birmingham co-worker in Detroit burst into flames as it touched down on a Metro runway at 7:35 p.m.

All six occupants on the private jet were killed including two Massey-Ferguson employees who were to fly onto Toronto, the pilot and the co-pilot.

Federal investigators are in Detroit trying to determine the cause of the accident. Witnesses said the right fuel pod may have ruptured, causing the explosion, according to published news reports.

Airport officials said the deaths were Metro's first aircraft fatalities.

Campbell moved to Northville last August when he was transferred to Massey-Ferguson's Southfield office from Akron where he had worked since he joined the farm implement manufacturer in 1974.

He and his widow, Patricia, had three children, Heather, 11, Mathew, 8, and Ryan, 4. Heather, a sixth grader, and Mathew, a third grader, attend Amerman Elementary School.

A fourth child, Wendy, died 11 years ago at the age of two and is buried in the family plot in Davenport.

Mrs. Campbell learned of the accident Friday night at about 10 when a news bulletin was flashed across the television screen, according to a neighbor and friends.

No names were mentioned in the bulletin but "she knew he was on the only Massey-Ferguson jet" coming into Detroit, said the neighbor.

Campbell, described by the neighbor as a "super guy," had a history of civic involvement.

In Akron, he was on the Junior Achievement board of directors and he was chairman of the United Fund Drive.

In lieu of flowers, the family has asked that memorials be sent to Junior Achievement, 794 East Talmidge, Akron, Ohio.

Besides his wife and children, Campbell is survived by his parents, Eugene and Pauline, and his brothers, Ronald and Allen, all of Mt. Prospect.

Township to consider assured of development within the next two years.

Grants are given on the basis of a 50-50 matching program.

The township master plan, currently being re-evaluated by township planners, shows no specific areas designated for tennis courts, swimming pools or golf courses.

Planning Commissioner Marvin Gans said the township should project for recreation now or lose out entirely on acquiring funds for expansion. He said plans should include specific purposes for land the township wanted to acquire for recreational purposes.

Planning Consultant George Vilican said the township needed to acquire more land adjacent to the Township Civic Center. He suggested that officials investigate a site to increase civic center land by about 15 acres.

Recreation Director Ed Kriczys inited board members to attend a January 24 recreation commission meeting at which Recreation Planner Mark Horning will present a master plan recreational proposal.

Planning Commissioner Bernard Baldwin said he favored including recreational development in the update of the overall master plan, so that recreation would have a relationship to the overall needs of the community.

He explained that recreational development was not included originally in the master plan because people felt plans for recreational facilities were not needed because of the abundance of wide open space in the township.

Planning commissioners have had several meetings recently to re-evaluate the master plan and to establish planning goals for the township's development. Their next meeting for this purpose will be 8 p.m. Thursday, January 25, in the Township Civic Center.

Super wall

There was a time when a person could get in trouble for painting on school walls. Not anymore — at least not when the painting is a "super graphic" such as the one designed and completed by Rick Aldred, a junior at Northville High School. Rick began the project in October to earn extra credit in his art class. The benefactor is a spruced-up learning disability classroom that Special Education Consultant David McLaren said is much more colorful than before.

On unused COC land

Study favors facility for elderly

The area's elderly may someday have the opportunity of living in a regular apartment unit until they are no longer able to fend for themselves, then moving to a home where they will be provided meals and finally — if their health deteriorates — transferring to a nursing facility where they will receive medical care.

The possibility exists if Northville Township officials can convince the Wayne County Board of Commissioners that such an elderly facility would be the best use for the Wayne County Child Development Center on Sheldon Road near Five Mile.

A demand for such housing exists, according to a feasibility study reported at a township meeting last week Tuesday night.

Representatives from Vilcan-Leman and Associates, Incorporated, the township planning consultants, presented the results of a six-month study funded with a $10,000 community development block grant to a big audience at the Township Civic Center.

The board of trustees, planning commissioners, recreation commissioners and members of the Northville Township Economic Development Corporation were receptive to the study's conclusion that the elderly facility could be an asset to the community.

A committee to pursue the plan is being formed with representatives from the board, the planning commission and the economic development corporation. Trustee Dr. John Swienkowski and Treasurer Lee Holland will be the board's representatives, and other members will be named soon.

Vilcan-Leman Planner Claude Coates said there were presently 4,900 elderly housing units in the studied market area, but the demand for such units would increase to 6,600 by 1985.

This type unit has kitchen facilities and is designed for elderly people able to care for themselves.

Coates said that although the area currently has 1,200 excessive beds in nursing care facilities, 3,500 additional beds will be needed by 1985.

A large waiting list now exists for all homes for the aged in the market area. Homes for the aged cater to the elderly who are capable of fairly independent living except in terms of meal preparation and housekeeping.

Coates pointed out that proposed aged units and those under construction get rented as soon as their building plans are announced because of the great demand. A waiting list of 16,000 exists.

Dan Tosh, architect for Progressive Associates, said the Child Development Center site lends itself to development for an elderly facility. He said the 19 cottages, designed for group living, were well-maintained buildings which could be converted to six dwelling units. The two-story building with basements might house one-bedroom, two-bedroom and efficiency units.

The administrative buildings, which include a large arts and crafts area as well as a swimming pool, could be maintained as a activity center to serve the elderly. Because there could not be enough residents in the existing cottages to sustain the administrative facilities, expansion would be necessary.

Coates said he visualized the facility breakdown as 75 percent senior citizen housing with kitchen facilities, 20 percent home for the aged with meals provided and five percent nursing care facilities.

Township Planning Consultant George Vilcan said the site lends itself to a cross section of types of buildings.

He said mid-rise buildings four stories high would be amenable to the site and would allow developers to maintain 50 percent of the area for green space.

Vilcan said he had no doubt the township could interest builders in renovating the existing buildings and constructing the needed new ones.

If funding can be arranged, only Wayne County, which owns the land, could prevent the plan from becoming a reality. The property's worth has been estimated between $10 million and $14 million, but Architect Tosh said studies indicate costs of demolishing the existing building would cost more than the land is worth.

Wayne County was paying $290,000 a year to maintain the buildings, but in the face of a budget crunch, they lowered that figure by turning off the heat for the 38 buildings which contain 402,000 square feet. Planners contend that the buildings will deteriorate without heat.

Vilcan pointed out that the southwestern portion of the site might be better developed as a separate entity, such as cluster-type family housing. That portion of the 101-acre site has a marked difference in elevation and is separated from the site's largest section by a wooded area.

Liquor license put in escrow 'til October

An unused liquor license probably will be kept in reserve for its owner for another six months.

At least that is what Northville City Council intended Monday as it voted 5-0 to recommend to the State Liquor Control Commission that it hold in escrow for another six months the liquor license of William Boyd.

Approval by the commission is seen as an almost certainty.

The license early was placed in escrow, upon recommendation of the council, to preserve it for Boyd while negotiating for a place to use it. That shelving remains in effect until April when, if approved by the commission, it will be extended for another six months.

Boyd's license originally was operable when he owned and managed Ramsay's Bar on North Center Street between The Record building and Schrader's Home Furnishings. He sold the license, however, to the owners of the then new Drawbridge Restaurant.

When the restaurant went bankrupt, Boyd's license was returned by default proceedings.

He then attempted to reuse his license by reopening Ramsay's. Council, however, by a split vote disapproved use of the license at the old North Center location on grounds that the downtown area already had a number of other bars. Fearing Boyd might lose his license altogether, council urged the liquor control commission to place it in escrow for him.

Meanwhile, Boyd began negotiating a license sale to Pizza Hut, which proposed construction of pizza parlor and bar on North Center in the parking lot area of Arbor Drug. That deal collapsed, Motion Carried Unanimously.

2. Resolution from the City of Novi urging Governor Milliken to strongly consider placing Robert McConnell, Oakland County Commissioner, to the State Highway Commission.

4. Resolution from the City of Trenton opposing the EPA's Alternate Plan D.

5. Communication from Mayor Vernon to Mr. Richard W. # Non-resident named to beautification unit

City of Northville's beautification commission once again has a member who resides in the township.

Although there is some question about the legality of an appointment of a non-city resident, council named Mrs. E.O. (Louise) Whittington to replace Ruth Burkman who has resigned.

Mrs. Whittington, who lives at 46945 Stratford in the township, is a partner in the IV Seasons business in the city. She was recommended for appointment by the beautification commission.

Because there was some question about the legality of a non-resident's appointment, Councilman J. Burton DeRusha cast the lone dissenting vote.

It was noted that a township resident — Dr. John Swienkowski, a township trustee — had previously served on the commission.

The ordinance establishing the commission does not require city residency, although the city charter appears to make the requirement.

However, unlike boards and commissions, such as the planning commission, which are specifically addressed in the charter, the beautification commission is not mentioned. Previous City Manager Frank Ollendorff had rendered an opinion in Swienkowski's case that the appointment was legal. It was not challenged.

Mrs. Burkman's resignation was "regretfully" accepted by both the beautification and the city council. She decided to resign, she said.

Mrs. Burkman, a member of the commission for many years, said she cherished her membership but because she is no longer able to devote the time and energy she felt it necessary to turn over the job to a younger person.

Both the beautification commission and the city council "regretfully" accepted the resignation, and the council directed that Mrs. Burkman be sent a letter of appreciation for her many years of devoted service.

Appropriations committee

Pursell gets nod for key post

It's one thing to pass a law. It's another to get it funded. And that's why U.S. Representative Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth) has been maneuvering his way onto the House Appropriations Committee.

"Those people on appropriations set national priorities," said the 2nd

District congressman last week after House Republican leaders forwarded Pursell's name to the executive committee.

Appropriations is one of the two most powerful committees in the House. The other is ways and means, where tax laws are written.

Landing on Appropriations was a major political coup for the second-term congressman.

"There were two slots open in the nation — one for the Midwest and one for the West," he said. Pursell began making phone calls when the Midwest slot opened up and landed it.

One major asset was that he had served six years on the Michigan Senate Appropriations Committee. House GOP Leader John Rhodes was impressed by Pursell's background.

There are two kinds of committees recommending bills — authorization and appropriations. Most bills require work in both kinds of committees. On appropriations, Pursell will get a final crack at all of them.

To get the appropriations seat, Pursell must give up two other committee assignments — on Education and Labor and on Science and Technology.

"It's an honor to serve on it, even if it's unpopular at times, because you have to say 'no' to some people," said Pursell.

He fully expects traffic in his Washington office to multiply as special interest groups learn about his post.

"You are exposed to extreme points of view, but you have a chance to become a catalyst and bring those points of view together."

The committee has 54 members — 36 Democrats and 18 Republicans. Each member serves on one "major" and one "minor" subcommittee. Pursell doesn't know which subcommittees he will draw.

CARL PURSELL

"That's a matter of negotiation with the Democrats," he said, adding there's a question whether some subcommittees will have 6-3 or 8-4 partisan divisions.

Checking the the Library of Congress, Pursell found he is the first Michigan congressman from the Detroit area to land an appropriations seat since Billie S. Farnum (D-Drayton Plains) held the old 19th District seat in 1965-66.

License escrow extended

however, when Arbor Drug decided not to sell the necessary land for the Pizza Hut.

That left Boyd with a license and no place to use it, with time running out on the escrow.

Since then, however, Open Door Christian Church, has placed its building — formerly occupied by the Drawbridge — back on the sales block for use as a restaurant again.

If a purchaser of the church building is found, Boyd is prepared to negotiate a sale of his license to the owner of the new restaurant.

Representing Boyd at Monday's meeting, Clifton Hill, lawyer, urged approval of the extension of the license escrow but also appealed to council that it formerly indicate its intentions should the new license sale negotiations with the restaurant fail.

Hill argued that Boyd had already sacrificed earnings because of his inability to use the license and that "it's only fair" that he not be left dangling again. What the attorney was seeking was a commitment from council that should the negotiations fail it would permit Boyd to reopen Ramsay's Bar.

However, when council cautioned Hill that a vote on the Ramsay Bar location might again be turned down by the city, the attorney withdrew his request and went along with just the extension of the escrow.

Free tax services available

For the fifth year in a row, the local chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons, Inc. is offering senior citizens free income tax assistance.

According to Fred Bradley of Northville, president, a team of 10 chapter members has just completed a four-day training course in both federal and state income tax returns.

Dates and places for this free service, he said, will be announced soon. No appointment will be necessary, and participants need only bring their income tax papers, he said.

"Although there already have been requests to have the service offered in libraries, clubs, housing complexes, etc., there is still room for a limited number of additional locations," said Bradley, who asked interested persons to call him at 348-2909.

Monday, Thursday, Friday till 9 P.M.

Seventy-five years ago Joe Denton was breaking broncos in Western Canada. And last Thursday on his 91st birthday he vividly recalled some of his experiences as a youthful cowhand.

"By golly, I'm glad I was part of the old west. You had to be a fighter to survive."

I first met Joe Denton when he was the city of Northville's police chief. He retired in 1959 and hundreds of friends from throughout the area came to honor the rugged old warrior with the English accent at a retirement dinner here.

One of the county prosecutors paid tribute to Joe by stealing a familiar Denton declaration: "By golly", the prosecutor started out, "I'm sure going to miss you, Joe."

And, by golly, Joe's still around and looking chipper as ever. The legs and hips are crippled up by arthritis. But there's nothing wrong with the mind or spirit.

"I've never been sick a day in my life and I was only laid up when I was gassed in World War I. Never missed a day of work. People worry themselves into sickness. I never meet trouble halfway by worrying about things. If I'm going to die tomorrow, so be it."

I remember Joe was always pretty crippled up even when he was chief. He told me that the best relief he got for his aches and pains was a liniment prescribed by the late Dr. L. W. Snow, which was also frequently used for the trotters down at the track.

Joe says that a specialist once told him that 45 years of riding horses and breaking broncos wore out his joints.

Joe was born in 1888 at Saint Ives, England, the home of Oliver Cromwell. At 16 he was discharged as a bugler boy from the British Army. As a reward for service, the young veterans were entitled to a free trip anywhere in the British Commonwealth. He chose Western Canada. It was in the days of opening up the west — in the United States as well as Canada. Joe worked for a man who bought and sold horses. He'd buy them from the Indians for about $10 each. Joe, who remembers he was paid $15 per month, would break the broncos so they could be sold at a handsome profit.

He recalls that around 1906, when he was 18, he travelled down into Montana and Wyoming from Manitoba. He was sent to hire cowhands. "I got into a card game in Butte. I shouldn't have. I noticed one of the men picked up a card from his lap. I said something. He shot a bullet through the palm of my hand and someone else hit me over the head. I woke up in a livery stable, happy to be alive."

Joe laughs when he thinks about the time on the same trip he saw a group of men standing around who looked like good prospects to hire.

"You don't want them," he

Joe Denton

"You had to be a fighter to survive"

was told by an oldtimer. "They're sheep herders. All they do is say 'baa, baa'. Ask them what time it is and they'll say 'baa, baa'. They've been with sheep so long they talk like them."

Young Denton returned to England in 1914 to visit relatives. World War I broke out and he joined on the third day of the war. He was a cavalry scout in the British Army until 1919, when he returned to Canada.

By this time, of course, Denton was an accomplished rider. He worked in rodeos as a bronc buster. "I never rode those Brahma bulls. You could get hurt."

Somehow the late Phil Grennan heard about Denton's talents as a horseman. Grennan was owner of Farm Crest Farms, which until the fifties was located along Six Mile road where Northville Commons subdivision now stands.

So Denton came to Northville as superintendent of the farms and to train polo ponies for Grennan.

That job lasted for 20 years — 1921 until 1941. Shortly thereafter, Joe went to work for the village of Northville as a patrolman. It was a three-man force in those days. And not much larger when Joe became chief for a dozen years from 1946 until retirement in 1959.

Not many of Joe Denton's contemporaries are still around. And while he enjoys reliving the old days and talking about meeting Buffalo Bill and displaying a neck scar received in a fight with a man armed with a branding iron, he's very much with it today, too.

"By golly, I've had a lot of phone calls this morning," he told the reporter and photographer as they arrived late for an 11 a.m. appointment at his neat little Randolph street home.

"I was afraid I wouldn't have time to straighten things out before you got here. Sit down. Let's talk."

We take his picture. He smokes a cigar and blows smoke rings for the photographer. A neighbor, Sue Wright, knocks at the door and drops off a birthday card. "When I'm low, he peps me up," she admits.

And Joe is all smiles.

By golly. He sure looks great.

Speaking for Myself

What food fits fancy?

PAULA SKURATOWICZ

Junk

Americans all across the land are always on the go, and no matter what they are doing they have to eat. Thank goodness for junk food!

You may be thinking, "hey, junk food is bad for you." Right?

No way. Most junk food is quick energy. Things like soda pop, candy bars, gatorade, even twinkies and chocolates — they're all forms of power-boosting nourishment.

Today's college students — myself being one of thousands — are the United States' number one junk food eaters. But how about this — would you believe some of the most well-conditioned Americans of all of us eat almost as much junk food as those college students?

Our top athletes — track and cross country runners, basketball and football players and so forth — they're always eating quick, high energy, get-up-and-go types of junk food.

Now how can millions of people like that be wrong?

Paul Baetz
Northville

Natural

Eating satisfies far more than my nutritional needs. My choices are based on lifetime patterns reinforced with rationale from many different diets. Who I am, physically and emotionally, is reflected in my food choices so I must take the responsibility for the kinds of food that I put into my body.

With these considerations, my choices are obvious. My direction is to eat foods that I want my body to be made of.

I avoid artificial flavoring and coloring of any kind. We are accustomed to bright yellow cheese, but that is not natural. Butter is the same way. There is only one brand that I know of that is undyed.

The only sweets I eat are the ones I make with honey and I make sure they include a fair amount of protein. That's easy to do. I started into natural foods ten years ago and two years later I became a vegetarian. Animals are at the top of the food chain. I am not so sure I want to eat what goes into fattening them up.

You have to be realistic. Health foods are not going to do any good unless they are eaten. But we separate our "celebration" food from everyday food rather than replace our diet with foods that really don't have nutritional value.

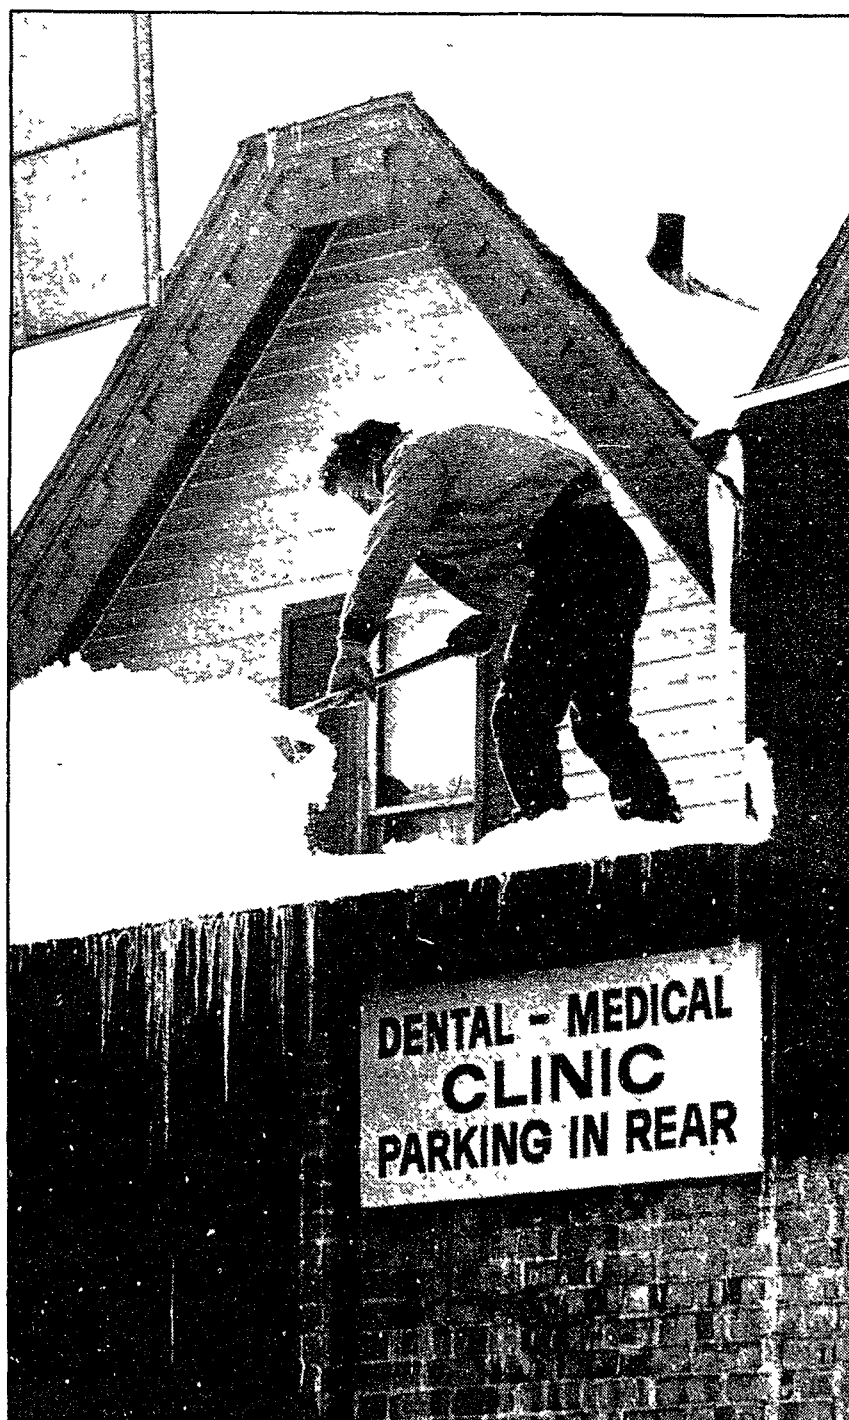

I try to buy our family's food as close to its growing form as possible. This means shopping at open markets, buying from friends and even foraging for wild foods.

Food preparation has become more fun, more satisfying and more work. At times it is an overwhelming task and I join the ranks in the supermarket lines or soothe my soul with a donut and coffee.

JACK W. HOFFMAN'S COLUMN

Inside the cab of a six axle giant enroute to Neah Bay in Washington's beautiful Olympic mountain range, the GMC truck driver brushed aside my accolades and said, "It's nice, but the most romantic place on earth is Hawaii."

And then for the next three hours, the trucker insisted on describing the island paradise as we toiled through the grandeur of the Northwest.

That was years ago, but I'd never forgotten the truck driver's lecture and his parting advice: "Take your wife to Hawaii and you'll fall in love all over again."

Now just back after two weeks in the 50th state, my wife and I must agree with the trucker: there can be no lovelier place than Hawaii.

Those who have visited Hawaii need no reminders of its beauty. But for those who have only dreamed of it while listening to the old radio show, Hawaii Calls, rest assured it is every bit as romantic as you imagined.

Some observations:

- Except for rain for three days (five feet of it, believe it or not), the weather was excellent. During the rain, enroute to Hana and the Seven Pools, we found the twisting, mountainous trip spectacular ... and terrifying. With the writer driving and John Steimel navigating, we nearly lost our car in the road washouts.

- Schools were closed to allow children to see the once-in-a-lifetime heavy snowfall on the top of the Haleakala volcano.
- Although each of the Hawaiian islands are said to be distinctly different, we found the four principal ones all spellbindingly alike.

- If you think housing here is expensive, try Hawaii. A $50,000 house here would sell for $200,000 there.

- The Pacific surf is much warmer than the hotel pool water and much, much warmer than Lake Superior.

Nisun disputes editorial regarding township police

To the Editor:
As you know I usually do not respond to political editorials and there have been quite a few over the years, written by you regarding your feelings about the Township having its own police department. However, this time I feel I must respond.

You stated that you are "amazed" at my ability to expand the services of the police department, well Bill, you know full well that I do not have the authority to expand the department; that is done by the elected officials and they are responding to the demands and needs of the people requesting police services.

Also, you make reference to Plymouth Township not having a police department and relying on the State Police and Sheriff to handle their problems. I would suggest that you talk to the residents who live there and find out if they are happy with that level of protection. There are 44 cities and townships in Wayne County, with only two of those not having their own local police department, so it appears that Northville Township, when it made its decision to have a police department, acted with the majority of communities in this county. Also, I should point out, it is my understanding that Plymouth Township is, at this time, looking into having its own local police coverage.

As far as Township residents calling the Michigan State Police or Sheriff's Department, instead of the Township Police Department, that is perfectly alright with me because we "do not compete with troopers." We provide a needed local police service. We have no responsibility for freeway enforcement and are always here when needed, and when we have a need, we call upon the troopers to assist us and if they have the manpower available, at the time, they will respond and lend their assistance; but I should point out sometimes they just do not have any troopers in the area to respond to help us.

Bill, please do not give the people in Northville Township the false sense of security that just because there is a State Police Post here that this will be their salvation and that criminals will shake in fear and stay away from Northville. Remember the State police serve all of the people of the State and have no particular obligation to Northville Township and further; good local police protection is not a luxury, it is a necessity.

Yes, Bill, I did state last week that we need a larger police force, and I believe that most of the residents of the Township do also. When you have a community close to 15,000, and cover an area of 17 square miles you definitely need more than ten police officers to handle the problems. Last year this department handled 3,769 complaints; issued 1,848 tickets and arrested 432 persons, including 31 drunk drivers.

Even the City of Northville has fourteen officers and they have only two square miles and 5,000 people to protect and I do not in any way mean that the City of Northville does not need that amount of protection. That kind of coverage is not a luxury.

Bill, your inference that the Township elected officials are afraid to speak up before an audience and cut out items from a proposed Township Police budget is very wrong. You should take the time to attend Township Board meetings because they do make cuts all the time. That is their job. However, my job, as the Police Department Head, is to request what I believe is needed and although sometimes I do not like the cuts the Township Officials make, I respect their decisions.

Also Bill, you state that "in your opinion police spending should be cut." I do not clearly understand if you mean all police spending; Northville City, State Police and Sheriff's Department or just Northville Township police spending be cut.

Bill, in the past 13 years I have worked for the Township, I have read quite a few of your opinions in the Northville Record and most I have respected you for; but this time you are letting politics get into the way of good common sense. Cutting police budgets for the sake of politics is cruel and is wrong because someone might be seriously injured or die because of it. I believe you are too responsible a man to jeopardize lives, in Northville, for politics.

Finally the officers and employees of this department are good, hard-working people; well educated and trained. They act and think as professionals and I believe that you know that, after having been a member of our last oral police officers hiring board. Further, I am very proud of being the Chief of Police for Northville Township for the past 8½ years, even though the hours have been long and the department growth very slow and the outside politicians interference very frustrating.

I have put together a very professional department. Our arrest and conviction rate is among the best in the County. Also, I have been elected three times by my peers, as President of the Wayne County Chiefs of Police Association, an organization made up of all the police departments in Wayne County.

Neither myself, nor any of my officers or employees have ever brought shame or disrespect to Northville Township, so Bill, I wish you would change your attitude toward this department and treat us as professional police officers, the same as we treat you as a professional newspaper editor.

Come on Bill, be fair with the Township Police, but the politics aside for a change.

Cordially,
Ronald L. Nisun
Chief of Police

PS: I respectfully request that this letter be published, in its entirety, in the next edition of the Northville Record.

'Enough police in township'

To the Editor:
Northville Township is fast becoming a paradise for those desiring additional police protection. For one thing, we observe the increase in manpower at the State Police Post. Consequently, our state police have performed remarkably well, while they cruise the area catching speeders and checking on suspicious automobiles.

Moreover, combine this increase in state police manpower with the increase in the number of township police, and we should feel secure that enough is enough. How then does our township police chief claim there is a need for more officers? The cumulative effect of all these additions would obviously negate this assertion.

On the other hand, could it be possible that township officials are preparing us for another millage request? The answer, I believe, lies in the temptation to create more administrative positions, the lust for which most public officials simply cannot avoid.

More bunk is presented by the chief when he compares the township police department with that of the city of Northville. Our fight against annexation was based upon a desire for reform and saving tax dollars. Not surprisingly, the chief compares our township with a city with four times the tax rate contrasted with our township. If the city is featherbedding, in its distribution of police jobs, that is no excuse for township officials to suggest we be forced to wallow in their tax miseries.

Sincerely
Larry VanderMolen

Band performance draws praise

To the Editor:
Because I work in Ann Arbor and my daughter is a band member, I fortunately decided to attend the performance of the Cooke Middle School Symphonic Band at 9 a.m. January 19th, in the University of Michigan's Hill Auditorium. This Northville group was invited to play before an audience of musical educators and band directors.

While I claim no great knowledge of musical techniques, I do feel these young people played with an expertise and enthusiasm well beyond their years. All of us can take pride in the accomplishments of these young musicians under the excellent leadership of their band director, Mr. Rumbell.

Sincerely
Jack Hinman

Jaycees mark 18th birthday

To the Editor:
"Building tomorrow's leaders today" is the theme for this years National Jaycee Week. Jaycees are an organization of many young men working collectively to build better communities. The Northville Jaycees, during their 18 years of service to our community, have become as much a part of our lives as the symbolic water well or our famed Historical Village. Their traditional Fourth of July Celebration, Walk for Mankind, Toys for Tots, Septemberfest and other endless projects are enjoyed by all of us.

On this, their birthday celebration, we, the Jaycee Auxiliary, wish to salute and thank our 120 Jaycees for making Northville a better place to live.

Proudly,
Rose Zapke,

One other Michiganian is on appropriations, J. Bob Traxler (D-Bay City). Representative Elford Cederberg (R-Midland) held an appropriations seat since 1959 but was defeated for reelection last year.

In 1967, his first year in Congress, Representative Donald Riegle, then a Republican, landed on appropriations. Riegle switched parties in 1973 and became a senator in 1977.

Pursell will assume one of only two open Republican seats on the panel.

The Second District congressman has had his sights set on appropriations since he came to congress. He previously served six years in the Michigan Senate, all of them as a member of the appropriations committee.

That experience, plus the backing of the Michigan GOP Delegation, were major pluses for Pursell in the contest for the committee seat.

"This is the realization of one of my major goals," Pursell commented. "I consider appropriations decisions to be the key phase of the legislative process."

"I view my role as a catalyst to bring about agreements between extreme positions, so that we can have reasonable expenditures and move in progressive steps to a balanced budget."

"I consider this to be an important development in effective representation for our S.E. Michigan area," Pursell added.

Subcommittee membership within the appropriations committee will be determined within the next several weeks.

• Hawaii has no snakes ... only rats and the now more prolific mongoose, which was imported to combat cane field rats. Those hoping to eradicate the rat with the mongoose failed to note that the mongoose feeds during the day while the rat romps during the night.

• The macadamia nut, a native of Australia and now a principal crop of Hawaii, is as expensive in the islands as on the mainland.

• We found visiting Hawaii by "tour" very enjoyable, certainly not boring as some had warned it would be. Tour guides are pleasant, informative, and entertaining.

• The pineapple and sugar cane farmers say their industry will be wiped out within five years because of federal pricing and environmental regulations.

Native Hawaiians don't like mainlanders, especially those from Pennsylvania, because they still carry a grudge against Christian missionaries who, they say, pirated their lands and strangled their culture.

• Delightful surprise: orchid blossoms in drinks, slices of pineapple on glasses of coke.

• Delightful nuisance: birds feeding on your breakfast table, flower petals blowing into your room.

• Stores, restaurants, hotels, and airport terminals are open: walking the streets is like strolling through an inside-out shopping mall.

• We saw one fly in two weeks, no mosquitoes, flowers everywhere.

• Waving the little finger and thumb, meaning "hang loose," or "take it easy," isn't a faked pleasantry for tourists. I saw a teacher flash the gesture to a crying child on the Lahaina school playground.

• Unfair: national TV weather shows give reports for only 48 of the 50 states. Hawaii and Alaska are left out.

• Next time you lose a bet to the guy who claims Canada is south of Detroit, bet him the southernmost tip of the United States isn't in Florida. It's in Ka Lae, Hawaii.

• It takes longer to jet from Los Angeles to Hawaii than from Detroit to Los Angeles.

• Japanese are everywhere in Hawaii. They make up a large part of the population, own much of the real estate, and are a major part of Hawaii's tourism. There are so many visitors from Japan that Japanese language tours are conducted at Pearl Harbor.

• Japanese place food ... even bottles of beer in their cemeteries to pay their respects which, if you think about it, is no less logical than flowers in our cemeteries. The dead are likely to eat just as easily as they can see and smell our flowers.

• A native Hawaiian explained that as a child in a home where food was scarce, "raiding" Japanese cemeteries was a necessity: "We survived because those cemeteries provided us with our only luau."

Former school official dies in Adrian

Dr. Kenneth M. MacLeod, who left the Northville Public School System where he was an administrator to take a professorship at Adrian College, died January 16 at Bixby Hospital in Adrian after an illness of several months. He was 74.

Dr. MacLeod came to Northville in the mid 1950s and served as administrative assistant to Superintendent of Schools Russell Amerman. He left for Adrian in the fall of 1965 following Amerman's retirement.

Mr. and Mrs. Amerman and Elroy Ellison, who also had worked with Dr. MacLeod, attended services at 11 a.m. last Friday in Adrian. The Reverend John Berges officiated.

In Adrian Dr. MacLeod was a member of the Presbyterian Church and Rotary. He was a member of the Wyandotte Masonic Lodge F & AM, the Royal Order of Scottish Clans, and had served as a commander in the U.S. Navy in World War II.

He received his bachelor's degree from Wayne State University and his master's and doctorate degrees from University of Michigan. Before coming to Northville he had been principal of Fordson High School in Dearborn and also had spent five years in Phoenix, Arizona, where he was a school principal.

As he attended the funeral, former Superintendent Amerman recalled that Dr. MacLeod had achieved his wish to complete his days in the education field as a college professor. He had been in the College of Education at Adrian for more than 10 years.

He was born July 30, 1904, in McBain, Michigan, to James and Sarah (MacKenzie) MacLeod.

He is survived by one brother, James of Livonia.

RUBIN EARL WARD

Funeral service will be held at 11 a.m. today (Wednesday) at Casterline Funeral Home, Incorporated, in Northville, for Rubin Earl Ward, a former Novi resident, postmaster and store owner at Grand River and Beck roads.

Mr. Ward died at his home in New Port Richey, Florida, January 20 after an illness of several years. He was 92 years old.

The Reverend Robert Mitchinson of New Hudson Methodist Church officiates at the service today. Interment will be in Oakland Hills Cemetery in Novi.

Mr. Ward moved to Florida in 1957 from Novi. He was a member of New Port Richey United Methodist Church and Jasmine Heights Civic Club of New Port Richey.

He was born September 3, 1886, in Wolf Bayou, Arkansas, to Lafayette and Jeanette (Phillips) Ward. He was married to the former Myrza Lackey who survives.

He also leaves two sons, Doice Earl Ward of Novi and Lester Ward of Lakeland, Michigan; a sister, Mrs. Ina Bowman of Arkansas, six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Northville test scores

"Reading is a developmental skill," he said. "You can recognize the problem early but it takes a lot of time and patience to improve it."

Test results are broken down not only by school district but by individual school building and, of course, for each student. The individual results are sent home to parents.

The tests themselves have come under scrutiny especially since results are often used to compare school districts even though the department of education strongly discourages such practice.

Individual questions on the test can also be misleading. Board Secretary Karen Wilkinson noted that Northville seventh graders always score relatively low on fractions. At least part of that reason, she said, is because Northville doesn't concentrate on fractions until the seventh grade.

Trustee John Hobart, noting the generally high Northville scores, said the board should be happy with the results.

"It's our job to question," he said, "But I think sometimes we forget to congratulate the students and staff for the good job that has been done."

Eye April 28 election

whether Saturday or Monday was a better day to conduct an election. Treasurer Charles Peltz favored Saturday because it might lead to a larger voter turnout.

"We lost on Saturday and we won on whatever the other day was," noted President Douglas Whitaker.

Last year, on a special Saturday election in April, a request for 5.5 additional mills was soundly defeated in a turnout of about 2,900 voters.

The issues were split into 2.6- and 2.9-mill requests for the annual school board election in June which is always on a Monday. The 2.6-mill request narrowly passed and the other was defeated.

More than 3,200 voted in that election. If for some reason the election cannot be scheduled for April 28, the board selected Monday, April 30, as its second choice.

Defense holds true, Mustangs win again

There was a time not long ago when Northville's cagers lacked that second-half intensity so vital to a basketball team's fortunes.

Three times in their first five contests the Mustangs were well within reach of victory in the fourth quarter but lost, and each time it was a prolonged let-down that cost them the game.

Not so anymore.

If last week's games are any indication, anyway, the Mustangs seem to have found what it takes to win ball games after halftime.

Sparked by a pair of "strong third quarters, Northville rolled past Livonia Clarenceville (67-42) and Farmington Harrison (72-57) last week, vaulting the local squad above the .500 mark for the first time this season. The Mustangs are now 6-4 overall.

"You have to give our defense a lot of credit," Coach Tim Lutes reflected after the Harrison victory last Friday. "They've come out in the second half, particularly in the third quarter, and done a super job the last four or five ball games in a row."

Northville's defense, in fact, has given up a grand total of only 30 third-quarter points in the team's five outings since Christmas — and never more than eight in one game.

In Friday's Western Six contest, the Mustangs led by only six at the half, 38-32, but then opened that up to a 14-point bulge by outscoring Harrison 16-8 in the third stanza. The Hawks, who came to town sporting a mediocre 2-7 record, never came closer than nine after that.

The turning point came at the outset of the second half, when Northville scored eight straight points on a pair of buckets by Jeff Norton plus one each by Greg Suckow and Bob Crisan, making it 46-32 midway through the third quarter. And considering the reliability of the local team's defense, that pretty much wrapped things up.

"I feel we beat a real good ball team," Lutes observed afterwards, noting that the Hawks, who've been playing several tough teams in the early going, have a deceiving record. "I think they'll be a very good ball club in the second half of the season."

He was particularly happy with the way his own squad came out after intermission.

"We were pressing a lot in the first half, and I think they (Harrison) handled it real well," he recalled. "They were scoring a lot of easy baskets off it.

"In the third quarter we decided we'd stop giving up the cheap baskets, so we just sagged back on defense, and it worked."

The offense did its share with some clutch free throw shooting down the stretch (12 of 17 in the last quarter alone). "When we needed one or two points, we got 'em," Lutes said, pointing out that's been a major improvement for his team lately.

"One thing I do feel we could've done better was to play with a little more intensity down the stretch," he acknowledged. "I think maybe we lacked that killer instinct in the fourth quarter."

"It seemed like we'd get a nice lead, have a little bit of a cushion, and then relax. But it was a big win for us."

Lutes also credited his two centers, Joe Schimpf and Dave Ward, and Norton with outstanding games. Schimpf, who started at center and later switched to forward, scored 14 points while Ward came off the bench to grab 14 rebounds and add 15 points, including a 7-for-11 showing at the free throw line.

Norton, meanwhile, led a parade of four Northville players in double figures with 16 points. But just as significant, he held hot-shooting Scott Hendries to just four points in the second half, after the Hawks' senior forward had tallied 15 in the first two quarters.

Rounding out a balanced scoring attack for the winners were Crisan with 10 points, Suckow with eight and Myles Couyoumlian with seven.

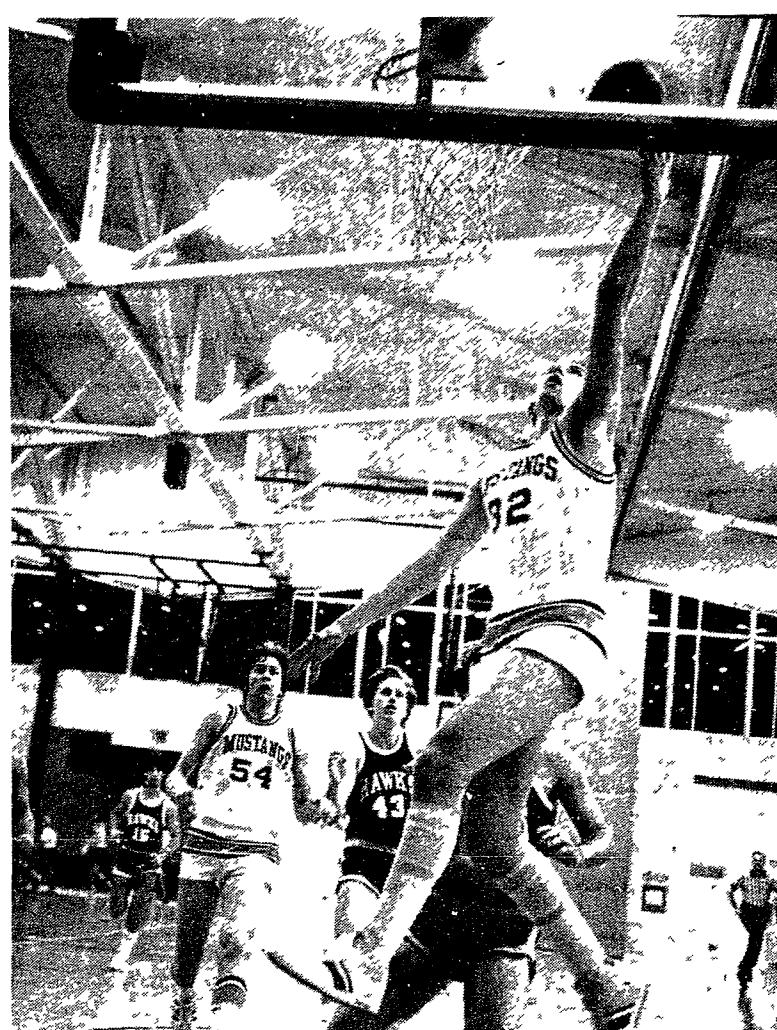

Three nights earlier the Mustangs had gone on a 38-19 scoring binge in the middle two quarters on their way to a 67-42 triumph in a non-league contest at Livonia Clarenceville.

The Mustangs led 17-10 at the end of the first quarter, then exploded for 25 points in the second and led at halftime, 42-24.

That's when their defense took over. Clarenceville scored just five points off Northville in the third stanza, and entering the final eight minutes it was 55-29.

The Mustangs' two centers again had exceptional shooting performances, combining to hit 10 of 11 field goals. Schimpf was 5-of-6 from the floor and had 12 points to lead both clubs while Ward was 5-of-5 for 10 points.

Crisan added 10 points, Mike Wagner nine and Norton eight for the winners while Bob Shoemaker topped Clarenceville with 11.

Chiefs and Warriors are coming

It's really too early in the season yet for any do-or-die sports showdowns in the Western Six, but in the upcoming week the Mustangs will be hosting Plymouth Canton in a pair of events that could go a long way toward determining conference championships.

This Friday Northville's rapidly improving basketball squad takes on the powerful league-leading Chiefs, while the local swimmers will try to avenge their only conference loss of 1978 when they host their rivals from the south next Tuesday.

Add to that a key wrestling meet that will take place here tomorrow night between the Mustangs and the Walled Lake Western Warriors, and this looks like the biggest week of the winter for sports events at Northville High.

Northville's greatest underdog would have to be its basketball team, which will be facing a veteran lineup that includes first-team All-Western Six guard Butch King, a 6-1 senior; second-team All-Western Six guard Rusty Mandle, a 6-2 senior; 6-5 senior center Mike Gollnick; and forwards Dave Visser and Mike Leary.

Canton's cagers have stormed to eight victories in their first 10 games this season, and are 4-0 in the Western Six. They've averaged over 80 points a game in knocking off each of the other schools in the league.

That'll certainly provide Northville's stingy defense with its stiffest test of the season so far. The Mustangs, 6-4 overall and 3-1 in the league, have given up an average of just 52 points per game this season.

They've allowed only 212 points in Western Six competition, lowest in the league, and haven't given up more than 60 points in a game since their season opener, a span of nine games. That, incidentally, is the most consecutive games a Northville team has gone without allowing more than 60 points since the 1965 quintet did it 11 times in a row.

Tankers sink Churchill

Displaying what Coach Ron Meteyer termed their best all-around effort of the season, Northville's swimmers breezed past Livonia Churchill last Thursday, 186-109.

The two teams used all eight lanes instead of six at Churchill's pool in tallying the final score, which is normally much lower.

The Mustangs won nine of 11 events in posting their second straight Western Six victory.

Sophomore Tony Nader highlighted the team's individual performances by pacing 1-2 finishes in both the breaststroke (1:07.4) and the butterfly (1:06.2), and swam the second leg of Northville's winning medley relay unit. Brady Kramer followed him with a 1:09.0 clocking in the breaststroke while Dean Guard's 1:09.6 was good for second in the butterfly.

Northville also placed 1-2 in the 100-yard freestyle and 400-yard freestyle relay, and 1-2-3 in the 200 and 500-yard freestyles.

Rick Bargert had a 2:01.8 clocking to lead the way in the 200 freestyle sweep, and placed second in 55.2 behind Tom Cahill in the 100 freestyle. Cahill's time was 53.1. Bill Lockwood and Lorne Demrose came in second and third respectively in the 200 free.

Russ Gans paced the 500 freestyle sweep with the best time of any Northville swimmer this year in that event, 5:23.6. Char Ramsey followed in 5:53.0, and Lockwood was next in 6:02.8.

Bargert, Gans, Guard and Kramer made up the winning medley relay quartet, which posted a 3:49.6 clocking.

Behind them came Gary Beason, Bill Boyd, Sam Doyle and Ramsey, who combined for a 4:08.4 clocking.

The Mustangs' other three victories came in the 50 freestyle (Dave MacDonald in 23.2), the individual medley (Tim Cahill in 2:14.1) and the medley relay (Tim Cahill, Nader, Gans and Tom Cahill in 1:52.8).

Churchill's only victories came in the backstroke (Mike Stetz in 1:02.0) and in diving (Keith Wagner with 162.05 points). MacDonald placed second in the backstroke and Dale Fisher second in diving.

"I was really very, very pleased, not so much for the times, but I really enjoyed the way they worked together," Meteyer said of his team's performance. "They're beginning to work as a unit, pulling for each other and showing some serious team spirit."

He pointed out several impressive performances by some of his non-winning swimmers as well. Demrose, for instance, chopped almost three full seconds off his previous best time in placing fifth in the breaststroke (1:14.7), while Doyle (fourth in 1:01.4) in the 100 freestyle, Beason (second with 141.25 points) in diving and Kramer (third in 2:18.5) in the individual medley also recorded personal bests.

The Mustangs, now 4-1 overall, next see action tomorrow night, when they host Walled Lake Western. Next Tuesday they'll try to avenge their only Western Six loss of last year when they host unbeaten Plymouth Canton, which edged the local swimmers in their own pool last February, 42-41.

Must register Saturday

No mail order forms are being accepted for junior baseball and soccer registration. In order to sign up, youngsters must come in person to the appropriate registration session.

The last of two registration sessions for the recreation sessions for the recreation department's youth soccer program will take place this Saturday (January 27) between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m., while the final sign-up session for junior baseball will be on the following Saturday (February 3) between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Both will be held at the recreation offices, located at the corner of Wing and Main streets.

The soccer and junior baseball programs are open to all youngsters, boys and girls, aged 16 and under. In addition, the junior baseball program will have try-out teams for youngsters who want to play Connie Mack (18-and-under), Mickey Mantle (16-and-under) or Sandy Koufax (14-and-under) baseball this summer, and the soccer program will include competition for girls 19 and under.

For further details phone the rec department at 349-0203.

The recreation department is still looking for coaches to help out with its junior baseball program this year.

Anyone interested in coaching in the program, which is open to youngsters aged 16 and under, should contact Wade Deal at 348-1129. Practices for the various junior baseball leagues will start in the early spring.

Here come the Chiefs!

up will be another rugged test for the Mustangs. Canton is unbeaten in five dual meets so far this season, and the Chiefs have won each of their last 12 dual meets stretching back into last season, including a dramatic 42-41 victory on Northville's Senior Night at the local pool.

The Plymouth squad is strong all over. They have top-notch talent in practically every event, particularly in the butterfly, breaststroke, individual medley, diving and mid-distance freestyles.

Defending league champs Paul Peterson (breaststroke), Dave Tanner (200 freestyle) and most of the squad's freestyle relay team are back.

Northville, meanwhile, is 4-1 in dual meet action this season. The Mustangs are seeking their fifth straight Western Six swimming crown.

Last year they finished 47 points ahead of second-place Canton in the season-ending league meet after splitting two dual meets with the Chiefs during the regular season.

The local wrestlers will be out for vengeance, too, when they take on Walled Lake Western's traditionally strong crew tomorrow night. The Warriors, who won each of the first six Western Six titles before Farmington Harrison took over the crown in 1977, feature good wrestlers throughout their lineup.

Andy Wurst and Neil Fenzel are top-notch lightweights, brothers John and Mark McCormick are strong at the middle weights, and Keith Colgan (191) and Rich Richardson (heavyweight), a freshman, are the teams' big boys.

Northville has never beaten Western in 10 years of competition between the two, but Coach Gary Emerson doesn't forget the day two years ago when his team went right down to the final two periods of the final match before losing a dual meet to the Warriors, 32-28.

Both schools again have strong teams this year after experiencing bad seasons in 1978, and Emerson says it may well go down to the final match again. The Mustangs are 11-7-1 in dual meet competition this season, 2-1 in the Western Six, while Western is 8-3 overall and 3-0 in the league. The Warriors won each of their first six dual meets this season before losing.

As if those three showdowns aren't enough for Northville fans, the local girls will travel to Livonia tomorrow night to battle the defending league champs from Churchill.

While the Chargers are heavy favorites, don't count the Mustangs out. Last year Northville's spikers handed Churchill its only Western Six loss of the season.

2 cage teams still unbeaten

The Badgers and Titans kept their perfect records intact in fifth-sixth grade youth basketball league action last weekend, but another previously unbeaten squad met its match.

The Spartans, who opened their season with victories over the Bobcats and Bulldogs, suffered their first loss of the year in a 27-16 defeat at the hands of the Sun Devils. The Sun Devils, now 2-1, broke out to a 14-8 halftime advantage and never looked back.

Tom Ross paced the winners with 11 points, six of them in the third quarter, while Scott MacLean chipped in seven. Dave Denhof and Greg Ryba had six each for the Spartans.

The Badgers, meanwhile, won their third straight game with a 28-16 triumph over the Bulldogs while the Titans knocked off the Wolverines, 27-13.

After battling to a 12-12 tie at halftime, the Badgers went on a 12-2 scoring spree in the third quarter for their victory. Scott Gray had 12 points and Mark Deal six for the winners, while Kirk Morrison netted 10 for the Bulldogs.

The Titans coasted all the way for their win after racing out to leads of 12-3 and 18-5 in the first two quarters. Bob Goldberg notched nine points and Joel Vogt eight to lead the way, while Rob Cannon had five for the Wolverines.

The fifth-sixth grade league's other two contests were anything but runaways, however.

The Rockets, led by Chris Hauser, rallied from a 21-19 deficit in the last quarter for a 24-23 squeaker over the Mustangs while the Trojans overcame a 17-16 deficit in the final stanza for a 26-21 triumph over the Bobcats.

Hauser had 15 points, eight of them in the first quarter, to lead the Rockets. Todd Thomas, who scored 14 of his game-high 19 points in the middle two quarters, topped the Mustangs.

Doug May with 12 points and Doug Hartman with eight paced the Trojans' victory, while Benji Evans scored 10 points and Paul Newitt nine for the Bobcats.

In other youth basketball action around Northville last Saturday the Hawks climbed into a first-place tie in the seventh-eighth grade circuit with a 28-18 win over the Bullets while the Knicks upset the Badgers, 34-25.

The Hawks, thanks to eight first-half points by Ernie Bock, raced out to leads of 6-0 and 16-7 in the first two quarters in their victory. Bock wound up as the game's leading scorer with 13 points while teammate Chris Koenig added eight.

Scott Gala paced the Knicks' triumph, their first in three games, with 17 points while John Quinn added eight. Bob Pode had six for the Badgers, who fell into a first-place tie with the Hawks at 2-1 following the defeat.

In third-fourth grade action the Cougars remained unbeaten with a 20-2 romp over the Warriors, the Falcons breezed past the Wolverines, 23-4, and the Vikings knocked off the Spartans, 26-8.

Cager Inch scores big

Howard Inch exploded for 32 points, 18 of them in the first half, to lead Goat Farm to a 66-52 victory over Little Caesar's in men's recreation basketball action last Thursday.

The win lifted Goat Farm's record 2-1, while Caesar's dropped to 1-2. All 18 of Inch's first-half points came on field goals, sparking his team to a 30-16 advantage at intermission. He added four more field goals and hit six of eight free throws in the last half.

Mark Lisowski tossed in 18 points and Russ Olsen 10 for the winners, while Todd Eis and Bill MacDonald had nine each to pace Little Caesar's.

In Thursday's other game Wack Pack remained unbeaten after three games with a 56-43 triumph over winless Long Plumbing.

Mark Kleimola netted 16 points for the winners while Doug Rooney chipped in 12 and Ed McGowen 10. John Pantalone with 11 points and Jerry Wood with nine topped the losers.

Little Caesar's play Wack Pack at 7:30 and Goat Farm meets Long Plumbing at 8:30 in tomorrow night's action at Meads Mill Junior High.

Big meets ahead for grapplers

Northville's wrestlers continued to look strong with a pair of impressive performances in a dual meet and at a tournament last week, but just how far they'll go this season may well be determined in the next few days.

Following a 53-3 dual meet victory at Livonia Churchill last Thursday the Mustangs are 2-1 in the Western Six and 11-7-1 overall this winter. But they have as yet to meet one of their toughest league opponents, Walled Lake Western. They'll host the Warriors in a key dual meet tomorrow night beginning at 6:30, then will compete in an extremely tough invitational at Rochester Adams on Saturday.

Northville won 11 of 12 matches against Churchill (both teams voided at 98 pounds), five of them on pins, in recording their biggest dual meet victory of the year.

Steve Morgan (138 pounds), Rob Savaneau (155), Scott Morgan (178), Matt Baker (191) and Jack Lancaster (heavyweight) all won their matches on pins while Steve Platte (14-3 at 112 pounds), Paul Rackowski (4-2 at 119), Mike Lurvey (5-1 at 126) and Don Lucas (13-5 at 165) won decisions. Bill Blanchard (105) and Brian Faustyn (145) were awarded victories on forfeits.

Two days later the Mustangs ran into some of their stiffest competition of the season at the Holly Invitational, and wound up finishing a respectable fifth out of 13 schools. Flint Bentley won the meet with 175 points while Swartz Creek finished second, Holly third, Novi fourth, Northville (with 94½ points) fifth, and Flint Bendle sixth.

The meet was a warm-up for the competitive 24-school Rochester Adams Invitational this weekend.

Coach Gary Emerson figured his team had a shot at vying for the Holly tournament crown, but hadn't counted on three late entries — Flint Bentley, Swartz Creek and Flint Bendle. All three are state-ranked teams.

"It probably would've been a close meet like I expected if those two (Bentley and Swartz Creek) hadn't been there," the Northville mentor said. "Swartz Creek really did us in."

Swartz Creek, in fact, was responsible for knocking almost half of the Mustangs' entrants out of competition.

Seven of Northville's 12 entrants won their first matches, but none captured an individual championship and only four of them placed.

Part of the reason was that, unlike most tournaments, wrestlers suffering early defeats had to depend on their opponents to see whether or not they could advance. If defeated in either of the first two rounds, a wrestler wasn't able to advance unless the man he lost to won his next match as well.

"Overall we did very well the first time around," Emerson observed. "But one of the things that hurt us most was that it wasn't a double elimination tourney."

Lurvey and Baker were Northville's top two finishers. Both placed second.

Lurvey, seeded fourth, upset top-seeded and previously unbeaten Steve Ratkowiak of Oxford in his second match at 126 pounds, 1-0, before losing to Rick Burns of Swartz Creek in the finals, 7-3.

Baker, meanwhile, won two straight matches on pins and decided his third-round opponent, 2-0, before dropping a 6-2 decision to Flint Kearsley's Greg Wright in the 191-pound finals.

The only other Mustangs to place were Lucas, who placed third at 165 pounds after decisioning Flint Ather-ton's Ray Lockhart 5-2 in the consolation finals, and Lancaster, who finished fourth at heavyweight after losing an 8-3 decision in the consolation finals.

Northville's next Western Six meet after tomorrow takes place next Thursday, when the Mustangs host Plymouth Canton in their final league dual meet of the year.

Icers close in on title

Northville-Nowi exploded for three goals in the last nine minutes of the game, giving the local Midget AA squad a crucial 3-1 victory over Flint in Adray Community Hockey League action at Flint last Monday night.

The win hiked the local icers' league record to 15-4-4, but more importantly it gave them a three-point lead over second-place Flint in the chase for this year's Red Division championship. Only four games remain in the Adray season.

A Flint victory would have put the hosts in sole possession of first place, and for more than two periods it looked as if that might happen. Flint led 1-0 going into the final 15 minutes on the strength of a goal midway through the second period.

Mike Shingler finally broke the ice for Northville-Nowi, though, scoring with 8:31 left in the third period on assists from Doug Horst and Bill Knauer.

Just 1:18 later Horst connected for what proved the game-winning goal, on assists from Knauer and Shingler. The same trio hooked up again, with just 21 seconds left in the game, when Shingler scored a power play goal on assists from the other two to sew things up.

Six days later Coach Doug Pattison's club upped its Adray record to 16-4-4 with a 4-1 victory over Farmington in a game played at Novi Ice Arena.

The winners jumped out to a 3-1 lead in the first period on a pair of power play goals by Horst and another by Rich Pattison. Don Lucas, Bob Boshoven, Kevin Travers, Knauer and Horst were all credited with assists.

Todd Vincent closed the scoring with a second-period goal on assists from Don Rose and Bobby Darrow.

Northville-Nowi is now 23-11-7 overall this season. The local icers are seeking their third Red Division championship in four years.

Jayvees fall to Harrison

A last-quarter letdown sent Northville's junior varsity cagers to their second Western Six defeat of the season last Friday, 50-41 against Farmington Harrison.

The Mustangs led throughout most of the first half, and took a 29-25 lead into the locker room at intermission. Harrison fought back to knot things up at 35-35 after three quarters, though, then broke another deadlock midway through the final stanza and never trailed again.

"I think one big difference in the game was that they shot 18 of 26 from the free throw line, while we were only seven of 11," Coach Omar Harrison commented afterwards. "Another difference was that we scored only 12 points in the second half, whereas we normally get 15 to 20 points a quarter.

"It was a disappointing loss because it was a league loss, but our kids will just have to forget this one and bounce back."

Dave Greer, playing regularly for the first time since injuring his foot over a month ago, came off the bench to score 12 points and topped the Mustangs' scoring attack. Duke DuSablón added 10 points and 12 rebounds.

Three nights earlier the local cagers had jumped out to a 31-22 halftime lead on their way to a 71-45 non-league victory over Livonia Clarenceville. Northville put the game away with a 20-8 scoring spurge in the third quarter.

The Jayvees are now 7-3 overall this season, 2-2 in the Western Six.

Athletes of week

TONY NADER
Tony Nader is one of an outstanding group of sophomores on Northville's swimming team this year, and he's so far making the best of his talents. Nader won two individual events and helped out on the winning medley relay team in sparking the Mustangs to a 186-109 victory at Livonia Churchill last Thursday. He had a 1:07.4 clocking in the breaststroke, matching his best time of the season, and a 1:06.2 clocking in his first attempt at the butterfly, both winning times.

DIANE PERPICH
Diane Perpich is starting the 1979 volleyball season the way she left off in 1978, when she was a third team All-Western Six selection. The senior co-captain had an outstanding all-around game against Waterford Mott last week, leading the Mustangs to a 15-12, 5-15, 15-4 victory. In addition to her impressive play on serves and receptions, Perpich had 16 spikes — seven of them good for points — and added five good serves. She also helped out with some fine setting and foreplay

OLV beats Sorrows

Cougars roar into first place

Last weekend was a big, big one for Our Lady Victory's fifth-sixth grade and seventh-eighth grade basketball teams.

The two West Suburban CYO league powerhouses both posted key victories over their counterparts from Farmington Our Lady of Sorrows on Saturday, giving them first place in their respective divisions.

Coach Gene Wagner's seventh-eighth grade cagers took a major step toward successfully defending their 1978 West Suburban crown with a hard-fought 37-31 win over their arch-rivals, while Bernie McClorey's fifth-sixth graders coasted to a 40-24 triumph. Both games took place at Cooke Junior High.

The old Cougars, sparked by Terry Nadeau's hot shooting, roared to a 13-4 lead in the first quarter and were never headed, although Sorrows stormed back to make it close.

Down by 14 points at the half, Farmington caught fire behind Bob Elwell and rallied to within four (33-29) late in the fourth quarter. OLV's Chris Wagner hit a final goal and two free throws in the final minute of the game, though, to wrap it up.

Elwell scored 14 of his game-high 16 points in the second half. Dave Bach was OLV's big man, grabbing 14 rebounds and adding eight points while holding Sorrows' top shooter, Paul Rosowski, scoreless.

Wagner chipped in 12 points for the winners while Rick Paler had 10 points and eight rebounds and Nadeau seven points.

The Cougars' victory was their fifth in six league games this season while Sorrows, which had also lost earlier in the week, slipped to 4-2.

Earlier in the day the fifth-sixth grade crew had upped its league record to 6-0 with a 40-24 victory, giving the Cougars a two-game bulge over second-place Sorrows.

Mickey McGrath and Pat Wagner were deadly from the outside in the early going and helped OLV pile up a 26-8 halftime margin.

McGrath led all scorers with 12 points while Wagner notched 11. Greg Wendel seven, Fred Cook four, and Mike Dewan, Sean McLaughlin and Jerry Stuart two apiece. McGrath also grabbed nine rebounds.

The seventh-eighth grade squad is now 8-4 overall while the fifth-sixth graders are 7-1 this season. The Cougars next see action this Saturday night, when they host Dearborn Divine Child at Cooke.

Spikers post 1st league triumph

Led by Diane Perpich, Kim Kratz and Susie Heinzman, Northville's volleyball squad recovered from a loss to Farmington Harrison the week before with a 15-12, 5-15, 15-4 victory over Waterford Mott last Tuesday.

The win leveled the Mustangs' Western Six record at 1-1 this season and gave them a 2-1 overall mark.

"Our girls could've played a little better," Coach Steve McDonald observed afterwards, "but we're happy with the victory."

"We played better than we did last Saturday, that's for sure," he added, referring to Northville's poor showing in the Schoolcraft Invitational on January 13. "We played with more intensity, and more as a unit. I think the kids are starting to realize they have to play that way if they're going to stay competitive."

Perpich had 16 good spikes in the three-setter against Mott, and seven of them went for points. She also had five good serves.

Kratz was, by far the team's leading server. She had 17 good serves in 18 attempts, and added seven spikes.

Heinzman contributed five good serves and helped out with some strong foreplay.

The Mustangs' next game takes place tomorrow night, when they travel to Livonia for a contest with defending league champ Churchill.

Laws support women seeking credit

More and more women are seeking to establish credit under their own names and apparently with greater success than ever before since the enactment of state and federal legislation in 1974 and 1975, assuring equal credit opportunity.

"Women are learning, and we're told credit experts that it's just good business sense for a woman to establish her own credit," said Linda Joy, head of the Michigan Consumers Council in Lansing.

Ms. Joy said that establishing credit can be extremely important for a woman.

"It's a matter of values," she said. "Some women may establish credit because they intend to use it regularly."

"Establishing credit can be a good insurance policy" for a married woman, who suddenly is left on her own. All the credit may have been in her husband's name, and she might face problems trying to establish her own credit. If she already has her own credit, she could make immediate purchases in emergency situations.

Or a woman may not want to use credit at all, but the point is, Ms. Joy emphasized, women have the option of establishing credit.

What the federal Equal Credit Opportunity Act of 1975 and similar legislation enacted in Michigan in 1974 do is prohibit a creditor from discriminating on the basis of sex or marital status.

In other words, just because you're a woman, married or single, a creditor can't turn you down for a loan.

But the Equal Credit Opportunity Act doesn't give anyone an automatic right to credit. It does require that creditors apply the same standards of "creditworthiness" equally to all applicants.

According to a pamphlet on the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, "creditworthiness" applies to a person's ability and willingness to repay debt.

To determine "creditworthiness," creditors may look at a person's financial status — earnings, savings, other sources of income; signs of reliability — occupation, how long you've had your job, how long you've lived at the same address; and your credit record — how much you own, how often you've borrowed and how you've repaid past debts.

But a creditor is limited in other areas, according to the pamphlet. A creditor can't:

—Refuse to consider your income because you are a married woman, even if your income is from part-time employment.

—Ask about your birth control practices or your plans to have children. A creditor may not assume that you will have children or that your income will be interrupted to do so.

—Refuse to consider reliable alimony, child support or separate maintenance payments.

—Consider whether you have a telephone listing in your own name, because this would discriminate against married women.

—Consider sex as a factor in deciding whether you are a good credit risk and use your marital status to discriminate against you.

However, some closely related questions are permitted.

According to the pamphlet, to estimate expenses, "a creditor may ask how many children you have, their ages and the cost of caring for them, as well as about your obligations to pay alimony, child support or maintenance."

"A creditor may ask how regularly you receive your alimony payments, or whether they are made under court order, in order to determine whether these payments are a dependable source of income. You may be asked whether there is a telephone in your home."

Also, if a woman's marital status changes, a creditor can't refuse to open or maintain an account in your first name and maiden name, or your first name and your husband's surname, or a combined surname.

A creditor, according to the law, can't ask for information about your husband or ex-husband unless you're relying on his income; unless he'll use the account or be liable for it; or unless you're relying on income from alimony or on community property to support your application.

A creditor can't require a co-signer or the signature of your spouse just because you are a woman or married,

It's important for women to establish their own credit history, experts say with certain exceptions when property rights are involved.

"If your marital status changes," the pamphlet says, "a creditor may not require you to reapply for credit, change the terms of your account, or close your account, unless there is some indication that you are no longer willing or able to repay your debt."

"A creditor may ask you to reapply if your ex-husband's income was counted to support your credit."

The Equal Credit Opportunity Act has some bite to it. If a woman thinks she's been discriminated against, she can sue for actual damages plus a penalty if the violation was intentional.

But, if you are denied credit, it is advised you first find out why. "Try to solve the problem with the creditor, and show you know about your right to equal credit opportunity," the pamphlet advises.

Despite the state and federal regulations, cases of discrimination still pop up from time to time, although Ms. Joy said her office hasn't heard of that many cases recently.

"I think women have become more sophisticated in solving their problems in getting credit," she said. "Women are more conscious of their rights. And I think merchants have become more sophisticated, too. They recognize that it's good business to give women credit, and that women have a good record of paying their debts back."

Margaret Cooke of the Michigan Women's Commission said she finds the biggest problem is that women "are being taken advantage of because they don't know the law" regarding equal credit opportunity.

Many women don't know, for example, that a creditor can't require a co-signer or signature of a husband for them to receive credit, she said.

"Or some creditors will ask about the husband's employment and earnings," Ms. Cooke said. "It's too bad, but there hasn't been automatic compliance to the act."

She said the Michigan Women's Commission isn't an enforcement agency, and that her office tries to advise women about the Equal Credit Opportunity Act or direct them to the proper agency when it receives credit-related complaints.

THE LIGHT TOUCH

BY: ANN L. ROY

A mother discovered her little daughter fighting with the boy next door. After parting them, she lectured her daughter. "Next time," she said, "don't want you hitting Johnny back. Remember you're a lady. Out-talk him!"

"Would you like to see her?" asked the nurse. "I've seen lots of babies, so I don't care," said the boy. "But if it's okay, I'd sure like to see the stork!"

EDDY'S TIN FU Chinese Restaurant was the site of a grand opening dinner recently. Hosted by Eddy Tse and his wife Winnie, the guests included mayors from Plymouth and Farmington along with Northville Mayor Paul Vernon, ex-Mayor A. M. Allen, and Northville Township Supervisor Donald Thomson.

Tse's new Chinese restaurant is located in Northville Township, west of I-275, on Seven Mile Road in the Highland Lakes Shopping Center.

The Chinese and American staff is headed by Tse as chef and his wife as hostess and manager. Tse immigrated from Hong Kong six years ago with his wife and their son Patrick, who is now 10 years old.

In Hong Kong, Tse trained first under his father, a renowned chef of that area. The elder Tse was the chief planning chef for British tour ships out of Hong Kong for more than 25 years.

Eddy Tse was trained in international and continental cooking and is specializing in Mandarin, Cantonese, Szechuen and American cuisine here in Northville.

Winnie Tse is the daughter of Peter Hong, one of the brothers operating Stanley's Mannia Cafe in Detroit since 1940.

To prepare for opening their own restaurant, Mr. and Mrs. Tse worked at Stanley's in Detroit, Yee Gardens in Toledo; Chow Gardens, Columbus; Peking House, Toledo; Kim's Gardens, Troy; and the Pagoda in Birmingham.

Assisting Tse with the cuisine are Chefs Lan from New York and Kim Fon from Hong Kong.

Tse explained that the yellow and red exterior of the new restaurant building represents sunshine and goodness and that the interior decorations are all original artwork from China.

Eddy's Tin Fu is open seven days a week, and it offers businessmen's luncheons, dinners, catering and carry-out services, along with banquet and party facilities.

A special celebration for the Chinese New Year is planned for January 28 at the restaurant.

Heat loss

House floors are a cause

By HOWARD RONTAL

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third and last article on how to calculate your home's heat loss.

It won't be long now. A little bit more measuring, a little more calculating and you can find out how much heat your home is losing, and how large a percentage of your heat bill you can save by weatherizing your home.

First you need to determine the heat loss from the one area of your house not covered in previous articles — your floors. As with walls, windows and ceilings, floors lose heat via a process known as "conduction."

In just the same way as heat will escape from a pan of boiling water into the cooler atmosphere, heat will pass out of a heated building into the cold outdoors. Insulating those surfaces through which heat can pass slows down this process and saves you money.

Figuring heat loss through floors is slightly more complicated than through the other areas of the house because you have to take into consideration the "floor exposure factor."

But never fear, the Ohio Department of Energy, as it has with the rest of the calculations, has provided a chart with numerical values assigned to the various exposure factors.

The chart is self explanatory. All you have to do once you've determined the appropriate factor, is plug the number into the formula included here.

You must also figure the area of your floor, find the district heating factor, and the total "R value" of the materials already between you and the cold.

The heating district for this part of Michigan is 1.75. By way of comparison northern Minnesota has a heating factor of 2.50 and Miami, Florida has a heating factor of .25.

R values are listed on a table included with this article. The R value shown in the right-hand column indicates the effectiveness, or "resistance" value of the material. The higher the resistance value, the better the insulating quality. When building sections are made of several materials the resistance value of each must be added together to obtain the overall total resistance value.

Once you know the overall R value you can plug it into the heat loss formula.

To find out how much conduction and infiltration are costing you, simply follow the sample provided. This sample too, is self-explanatory.

The information, charts, tables, sample heat loss calculations were provided courtesy of the Ohio Energy Department. The department is interested in finding out what you think of the program.

Please address your comments to Chuck Morris, Ohio Department of Energy, c/o The South Lyon Herald, 101 North Lafayette, South Lyon, Michigan 48178.

Floors can sometimes be insulated to reduce heat loss but this is often difficult, where water pipes are below the floor, freezing problems may occur during very cold spells. However, every floor should be protected from drafts, so that it has a floor exposure factor of 0.5. With this exposure factor for this building, the heat loss through the floor would be

Fire safety's year round job

Clean up time should not be limited to the traditional spring or fall cleaning. Making clean-up a year-round family activity can prevent a disastrous fire in your home.

The Insurance Information Institute suggests that you pay particular attention to basement, attic, closets, workshops, garage and yard.

• Look for over-storing and accumulations of trash.

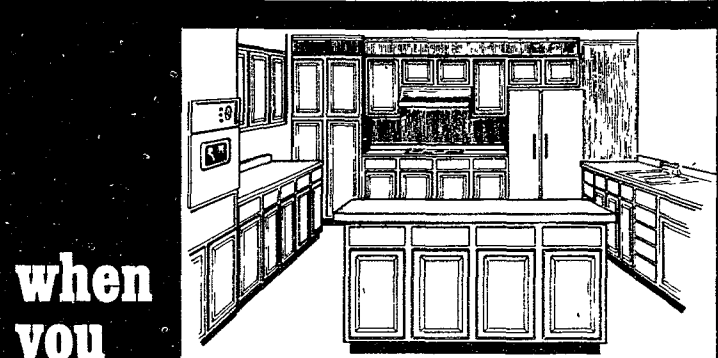

Keep trash in covered containers and dispose of it regularly.

• If you're a do-it-yourselfer, allow time to clean up—paint, sawdust or whatever—after each work session.

• Store paints, paint thinners and solvents in a safe place—such as the basement, garage or workshop. Keep them in their original containers (closed), away from fire sources.

• Accumulations of leaves, twigs and trash on the lawn also are candidates for accidental burning.

Her baskets from past are prime collectables

By JEANDAY

Holly, the Donald Baxter family cat, destroyed one of her owner's best baskets when she was nesting late last year.

But Mary Beth Baxter isn't too distraught. She has approximately 75 others decorating her historic home on Sheldon Road just past the race track. In addition to holding the litter of long-hair kittens, they have been containers for dried flower arrangements, books and magazines.

Many hang from rafters high in the blue-and-white kitchen. Mrs. Baxter also displays her collection on top of the hutch in the entry and by the living room fireplace.

Mrs. Baxter has tried to collect all handmade baskets. For clues, she says, they are made without nails and of natural fibers.

"Baskets," she told visitors last week, "make very perishable antiques. That's why I don't mind buying a basket with a few breaks, but I don't buy any with big holes."

That's why Holly is still a beloved pet of the family even after chewing an old basket that used to be Donald Baxter's Easter one as a child. Holly, whose complete name is Holiday Adventure, bestowed by the Baxter daughters, finally chose a tall basket by the fireplace for giving birth to her kittens.

The deep basket, Mrs. Baxter pointed out to the Base Line Quilters antiques club and, the following day, a Newcomers group, had only one handle. In the South, she explained, such baskets were attached to the belts of cotton-pickers. The Indians, she said, also used them as gathering baskets.

"Workmanship of old baskets commands respect," she declares. Old baskets, she continues, were used to carry goods and were an important part of the Indian culture.

The Indians shared their knowledge of crafts with settlers, she relates, with Dantown, Connecticut, becoming the basket-making center. Baskets, Mrs. Baxter reveals, even were legal tender.

"Baskets actually are considered a form of textile art," the collector says, explaining that the "fiber" is splints from the healthy young tree. Splints are made on a "shaving bench" where the worker draws a knife along the wood to make the thin splint.

"Splint baskets are the most common kind, then willow and, third, twining," Mrs. Baxter explains. Splint baskets in her collection are made with wider strips of flat wood.

She displays a wickerwork basket of woven round rods. Willow baskets, she mentions, were used in times past to carry meat at the Chicago market.

"Each section of grass was braided and then twined to form a twine basket," Mrs. Baxter shows.

A fourth type of basket, coil, is not necessarily woven, she says, calling them the hardest to make.

Woven rib-type baskets are created with the joining of two hoops, one vertical and one horizontal, from which woven ribs radiate from the handles. These, the speaker notes, also are called bun baskets, or "rear-end baskets" by the Pennsylvania Dutch.

Names of the baskets in Mrs. Baxter's collection often describe well the baskets. The "spider web" is a design that radiates from the center and is seen in old egg baskets. "Checker board" baskets fold up splints used to form the bottom and go crosswise to make the sides.

Basketmakers made their baskets for specific purposes, the speaker told Quilters and Newcomers. The bottom of a Michigan apple basket had the bottom punched in with the maker's fist when still damp. Then apples placed in it were evenly distributed and not crushed.

As a rare and expensive type, Mrs. Baxter described Nantucket lightship baskets, which tradition says were made by those stationed on lightships. They have rattan sides, wood bases and swinging handles. They cost upward of $250, according to Mrs. Baxter, who doubts that they are worth this sum.

She warns, however, that it has become very popular to collect baskets.

"Thirty-two dollars used to be a popular price for an old basket, but prices have doubled and tripled at shows in the last couple of years," she declares, attributing the increase to their discovery by decorators.

"Experience is the best way to tell an old basket," Mary Beth Baxter tells anyone thinking of collecting. "Baskets are very difficult to date because their makers didn't sign them."

"Things to watch for in buying old baskets are poor repairs — wire rims or string holding the rim together."

She cautions that "you won't see the old sweet grass baskets except in museums, but you will find handmade ones made before the machine age brought the first patented basketmaking machines in the early 1900s."

Even the early machine-made baskets in Mrs. Baxter's collection are attractive. Wide-plaited with lids and handles, she surmises they were used for picnics or carrying a lunch to work.

Unlike many collectables, baskets aren't too often passed off as old when they are new, the speaker comments, because cost of making the new basket usually is higher than the antique commands. "The new are as expensive as the old," she observes.

An art major, Mrs. Baxter received her BS degree from Pennsylvania State University and taught art to elementary students in Pennsylvania before moving to Ohio.

When her daughters were little, she began to paint on wood and tin at home. The hilltop home in which the Baxters now live has an adjacent studio where she paints. Her work always is a sellout at Tivoli Fair and other area shows.

Since her family still lives in the East, Mrs. Baxter explains, most of her basket hunting has been in Upper New York State, although she has had "finds" at the Saline, Michigan, shows.

In the Baxter home, the basket motif spills over onto such decorative items as a pillow and bride's box painted by her sister.

When decorating a home, it is just fine to be uninhibited. Express yourself and have fun. Remember that it is your home. Fabric or walls, carpets or ceilings, expensive and budget furnishings mixed, rooms that look like sculpture, sculptures that look like light fixtures, furniture landscapes and environments, color running rampant, all these are part of the "new" decorating. Unfortunately, decorating is an art that few of us can afford to learn from experience. The bride who burns her first meal can throw it out and start over again, but when furnishing a home, you must live with your mistakes. It makes sense to get good decorating advice and assistance.

You can get good advice right here at GREEN'S CREATIVE HOME CENTER, 107 N. Center St., 349-7110. We feature a fine decorating consulting service at no charge. Date for the annual Northville Historical Society dinner-dance was set for Saturday, March 3, at last week's board meeting. There's also the good news that it will be held at Meadowbrook Country Club. Planners report that Dick Murphy's Big Band Sound again has been signed to play for dancing. Tickets will be going on sale at $32 a couple for the event, which has been supported well by the community ever since its inception in 1973.

Proceeds have been used for restoration of buildings in Mill Race Village. This year is no exception, but an early sellout is expected as Meadowbrook can accommodate only about 250.

Mothers' Club reserves April 28

Northville Mothers' Club has scheduled its annual dinner-dance for April 28 at Meadowbrook Country Club. President Sue Wright announces that this is the club event "just for fun — not a school money-raiser like all other projects." Jean Boll, dance chairman, echoes that it is intended "as a reward for the year's work."

People's Choice, a five-piece band has been signed. It's new for the dance, says Mrs. Boll, explaining that it was chosen because the musicians entertain so well. "Those persons who don't like to dance will enjoy it, too," she says. Each band member has a solo role. Mrs. Boll and her co-chairman, Angie Baetz, want to sell all 250 tickets "so that we break even" with 125 couples paying $30-a-couple. They plan to begin the ticket sale the first of April.

Jaycees are celebrating 18

Wives, state officials and regional directors are being invited to help the Northville Jaycees celebrate their 18th anniversary at a banquet beginning at 7 p.m. Saturday, February 3, at the new oriental restaurant, Eddy's Tin Fu, on Seven Mile. Chairman James Abbey says about 70 are expected for the evening which will begin with cocktails and hors d'oeuvres.

Abbey mentions that the event is scheduled to follow National Jaycee Week. The Northville Jaycees organized in 1960 under the direction of the Walled Lake group, electing Robert Prom their first president that October. Walt Ribant, Al Laux and Charles Ely were other new officers. In 1961 the Jaycees staged their first big Fourth of July parade, which has become a tradition of the holiday here. Ely, whose wife was elected president of the newly organized auxiliary, was in charge.

Traditional wedding 'in'

By JEANDAY

The days of Flower Children are gone.

If there was any doubt that altar-bound young women today have turned away from barefoot-in-the-park ceremonies to more traditional weddings, it was dispelled last Sunday afternoon when more than 500 brides-elect, some mothers and few fiancés attended Albright Photography Studio's Fashion '79 Bridal Show at the Plymouth Hilton Inn.

Billed as the first annual presentation by David and Mindy Albright, young owners of the photography studio in Northville, the show included fashions by Ray's Bridal and Fashion Shop of Livonia and Valente's Men's Formal Wear of Plymouth.

Models carried bouquets of silk and dried flowers as well as real ones from IV Season florist in Northville.

Other cooperating businesses with displays throughout the ballroom were Able Rental, Wayne; Bed 'n' Stead, Plymouth; Deroy Ringsmiths, Dearborn; Laurel Hill Gifts, Northville; Engraving Connection, Plymouth; Don Massey Cadillac, Plymouth; Starr Kiss Music, Northville; H & B Carpet, Mary Kay Cosmetics, Northville; The Cricket Box, Plymouth; and the Plymouth Hilton Inn.

As Master of Ceremonies Don Lark from Channel 7 introduced about 20 wedding groups; however, it was apparent that the traditional concept today is different from the traditional weddings in which mothers of brides of 1979 were wed.

The wedding day still belongs to the bride, but her bridegroom has become a much more colorful part of the wedding party with his wear matching or complementing colors worn by bridal attendants.

Two big trends for weddings in 1979 were seen as gowns were modeled: The bridal attendants will be wearing soft pastels, especially shades of apricot and greens from "sea spray" to turquoise, and those flattering, big-brim picture hats will be favored by both brides and their attendants.

Typical of the styling in bridal attendant dresses was the first bridesmaid gown worn by Tammy Patten of Northville. It was a green and white check gingham with softly-draped blouson top. In another sequence she modeled a soft blue bridesmaid gown with blouson bodice and draped cap sleeves. Sheer capelets often topped spaghetti-bodice bridesmaid dresses that easily could be worn later for dancing.

Holly Johnson of Novi modeled a trend-setting bridesmaid dress of sea spray green with smocking detail and a stole cover-up. Designed for a summer wedding it was accessorized with a floppy-brimmed hat. The yellow bridesmaid bouquet was of daffodils and mimosa. Silk flowers used by IV Seasons make it possible to have all flowers in all seasons.

Dena Irwin of Northville, who was runner-up in the Northville Junior Miss Pageant in November, modeled an apricot chiffon bridesmaid gown with capelet bodice and matching hat and bouquet.

In this modeling sequence the "mother of the bridegroom" was wearing a coordinated apricot gown of Celesta knit with jewel trim.

As a summer bride Terri Tromans of Northville modeled a sleeveless gown with Queen Anne neckline, an open cut that seems to be replacing the popular high-collar neckline with illusion bib.

As part of the early eighteenth century styling in bridal gowns, the Bishop sleeves have become new. Full sleeves are gathered in wrist cuffs.

Miss Tromans also modeled a bridal gown in "contemporary" style with blouson top in silky Venice lace with Queen Anne neckline and cap sleeves. With it she carried silk gardenias.

In this wedding party Dena Irwin as honor maid wore a voile print in rose-to-brown tones, fashioned with an easy-fitting skirt and accessorized with big hat and bouquet of pink roses and brown fern. This was especially well received by the audience.

In a romantic mood was a gown worn by Miss Patten. Of chiffon and pleating, it featured a fitted bodice with lace trim. She carried a cascade of orchids with pussy willows.

The bridegroom's white tuxedo of silk shantung featured black trim.

Off-shoulder and ruffled necklines were shown in gowns designed for garden ceremonies. One "model bride" carried a trend-setting fan with an orchid and silk foliage.

For an informal ceremony Miss Irwin modeled a satin organza gown with Cluny lace tiers and satin sash. A ruffle edged the drop neckline. She carried ivory silk roses and smiled at her "bridegroom" who was wearing brown and white with doeskin vest.

In another scene Miss Patten was the bridesmaid in a bright pink poly-knit with ruffled shoulder line and picture hat. The bridegroom wore a burgundy ensemble with pink shirt.

Albright explained that he had invited high school girls to be models. They also included Joan Heath of Plymouth and his sister, Kathie Albright of South Lyon. His mother Anne Albright of South Lyon and Nan Hunt of Birmingham wore the mother-of-the-bride and mother-of-the-bridegroom dresses.

Concluding the show was a bridal gown worn by Miss Irwin described as "an heirloom" in ivory chiffon with fine pleating and embroidery detail. With it she wore a picture hat with triple-layer brim.

As Lark read in his commentary, what was shown was the latest look — with romantic touches from the past.

A drawing for gift certificates and other prizes from participating merchants followed the show. Winners came from Northville, Plymouth, Redford, Dearborn, Livonia, Garden City, Detroit and Westland.

The brides-elect of 1979 indicated they were as much interested in the gleaming white Cadillac in the rear of the room as they were in the bridal fashions. A lucky winner from Westland will be using it for her wedding weekend. That prize drew applause from the audience and tears from the winner. Tears of joy.

Kitchen rafters and cupboards are display area for Baxter baskets

Baxter baskets are collectables

"As you become a collector," Mrs. Baxter suggests, "look for decorated baskets also. Cherokee Indians used roots, walnuts, juices and barks to dye.

"Milk paints were used in dark green, blues, reds and pumpkin. Sometimes a cork or potato was utilized to make a stamp decoration."

Mrs. Baxter has a small basket she thinks a child may have woven as a "learning basket" that has stamp marks.

Mrs. Baxter leaves no doubt that part of the fun of collecting baskets is using them in decorating.

As an added hint for anyone who has baskets, she warns that they need an occasional watering to return the natural fiber moisture.

"Wash them off with detergent — or when it's raining, just put them out in the rain," she urges.

"But don't ever shellac or varnish them — they won't be able to breathe." For anyone thinking about starting a basket collection today she suggests sewing baskets.

"They're still common on the market and relatively inexpensive, usually under $7."

Plymouth Symphony to play family concert

Plymouth Symphony Orchestra will present its popular family concert at 8 p.m. Sunday, January 28, in Plymouth-Salem

High School auditorium on Joy west of Canton Center.

Guest artist will be Carla Upton, a pianist now working on her master's degree in piano performance at the University of Michigan. She hopes to receive it this year. She received her BA degree from U-M in 1978.

A 1974 graduate of Plymouth High School, she is pianist at Geneva United Presbyterian Church in Canton.

Her appearance Sunday will be her second with the symphony. In 1962 she played the role of the youngest child in the production of "Sound of Music" for which the orchestra played.

Tickets will be available at the door. They are $3.50 for adults, $1.75 for senior citizens. Students in grades kindergarten through 12 will be admitted free.

Baby-sitting is provided for preschoolers by Girl Scouts.

This program is made possible through a grant from the State of Michigan and the Michigan Council for the Arts and the Plymouth Symphony League.

College will train volunteers

The Women's Resource Center of Schoolcraft College will offer peer counseling training beginning Monday, February 19.

Designed for those with a genuine interest in helping women discover their potential, the seven week session will meet from 9 a.m. until 12 noon on Mondays and Wednesdays.

Participants will learn and develop empathy listening skills and problem-solving techniques. Upon successful completion of the intensive training sessions, they are requested to serve as volunteer peer counselors three hours each week for a minimum of four months.

No previous training is necessary. Volunteers are asked, however, to phone the Women's Resource Center by January 26 at 591-6400, Ext 431, between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. weekdays to arrange an appointment for a group interview. Interviews will be held 9:30-10:30 a.m. or 1-2 p.m. on January 30 and 9:30-10:30 a.m. on February 1.

Serving the Northville, Novi and Wixom area for 3 generations

Ayers appeals for leader

Man who likes boys can save Troop 721

"You don't have to have a son in scouting to be a volunteer Boy Scout leader," Charles Ayers, assistant district commissioner for Gemini District which includes Northville, stresses in appealing for a leader to save Troop 721.

"We'd welcome a young man interested in camping or outdoor activities — or a retired person," says Ayers, mentioning that in the past the troop has had a ranger at Maybury State Park as leader.

Chartered for almost 24 years under sponsorship of the Northville VFW, the troop temporarily has been consolidated into the other Boy Scout troop in Northville, Troop 755 meeting at First Presbyterian Church. That troop recently lost leadership in the death of Henry Fisher and has been taken over again by Warren Stoddard, Ayers reports.

He adds that financing and meeting facilities are not a problem.

"There's all kinds of help available," he encourages anyone interested, inviting calls at 349-1710. He stresses that there are great satisfactions in working in camping and outdoor programs to help build youth leadership and character.

Interestingly, he states, the future of scouting looks good locally as three active Cub Scout packs are meeting here. Rick Kirsch heads Pack 721 at Moraine; Terry Wayne heads 755 of Amerman students meeting at the First Presbyterian Church, and John Hill's chairman for Pack 903 at Winchester.

Ayers is hoping to save Northville's troop 721 if someone will come forward to "do his thing" in scouting.

Scottish lassies dance at Burns Night dinner

Seven area Scottish dancers will be featured in the entertainment at the annual Robert Burns dinner Saturday, January 27 at the St. Andrew Society Hall on Congress Street in Detroit.

The dinner, honoring Scotland's famous 18th century poet, will showcase the Highland Dancers from Bill Weaver's School of Scottish Dance in Northville.

Jerri Brundage of New Hudson, formerly of Northville, Mary Ross of Northville and Chris Townsend of Plymouth will dance the graceful Scottish Lilt and the Flora McDonald's Fancy.

Leslie and Elizabeth Grover of Northville will perform a lively Irish jig. Sharon Alsbaugh and Beth Ross, also of Northville, will illustrate the English sailors of old going about their chores in the Sailor's Hornpipe Dance.

These latter four will combine their talents in the difficult and beautiful Broadsword Dance.

The dancers will be accompanied on the traditional Scottish bagpipe played by their teacher, Bill Weaver.

The dinner and entertainment are open to the public. Ticket information may be obtained by calling David Martin at 464-0468.

Calligraphy — YMCA will teach popular writing skill

There's still time to sign up for the winter program of activities offered by Canton, Northville, Plymouth Family YMCA, Janet Luce, program director announces.

Because of the growing interest in calligraphy, the art of beautiful handwriting in italic lettering, three six-week classes are being offered.

"You learn to write in italics using broad-edge pens," explains Mrs. Luce. She points out that poems, cards and special announcements can be created through hand-lettering. Materials can be purchased from the instructor, Dee Schulte. They will be approximately $2.

The classes are scheduled from noon to 1 p.m. Thursdays upstairs in the Chamber of Commerce building in Plymouth. Session I begins January 25 and runs through March 1; session II, March 8 through April 12; and session III April 26 through May 31.

Fee is $16.50 for Y members and $21.50 for non-members. Those signing up are asked to provide their own writing board by putting two layers of corrugated cardboard together to make a writing surface 16 by 18 inches.

A first-time offering for adults is a series of one-time seminars on basket collecting taught by Marion Sober in her studio at 48760 North Territorial in Plymouth.

They are held from 9 a.m. to noon Thursdays beginning January 25 and running through February 15. The $10 fee includes an evaluation of baskets brought by participants.

Mrs. Sober will discuss how baskets are made, what to look for when buying them, their history and lore. Registration may be made by telephone one week prior to class for this seminar, Mrs. Luce announces. Call the Y office at 453-2904.

The brochure of winter offerings also is available by calling the office.

One course, slim and trim for adults, will continue to be taught in Northville on Tuesday and Friday mornings from 10 to 11 a.m. at First Presbyterian Church.

Three six-week sessions are slated with the first starting this week. One day a week participating fee is $10.50 for members and $13.50 for non-members for the six weeks; for two days it is $13.50 for members and $16.50 for non-members.

Peg Kozler is the teacher. Baby-sitting is available for two-year-olds and older at 50 cents a child or 75 cents for two or more children.

Other winter courses for adults include racquetball, men's fitness, folk dance, ethnic gourmet cooking, chair caning, basics of interior design workshop, corn husk doll making, rug hooking and dried flower arranging.

Youth activities include beginning magic class, baton, tumbling, floor hockey, basketball skills, guitar and beginning group piano. Kreative's continue for pre-schoolers.

Dance sessions are scheduled for creative movement, pre-ballet, ballet, tap dancing, disco, modern dance (adults), jazz dancing (all ages) and trim class.

In the area of counseling courses offered are The Force in Your Life, Emerging Woman, Coping with Older Parents Effectively, Awareness and Parapsychology.

League poses questions on 'Urban Crisis'

"Urban Crisis" will be the topic of discussion at the League of Women Voters general meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, January 31, in Meads Mill School, Six Mile and Bradner.

Women from Novi, Canton, Northville and Plymouth will be led in a discussion on the problems confronting urban communities by Lore Watt, Urban Crisis chairperson. Ms. Watt has attended many workshops and seminars on the plight of cities.

League members will be reaching a consensus of opinion on fiscal policies in regard to the urban crisis in March.

They will be answering such questions as:

Should general revenue sharing be continued?

Should the league support a formula that targets more sharply on distressed cities?

Should there be expanding community development programs?

Should middle income housing in distressed cities be expanded?

Should the federal government use incentives to encourage states to take an active role in promoting the fiscal viability of their cities?

The public is welcome and encouraged to attend.
