TWENTY-FIVE CENTS

18 teachers on chopping block; budget squeeze seen next fall

By RICH PERLBERG

More than 18 Northville teachers will be laid off next fall as the school district attempts to adjust to declining revenues and enrollment.

The staff reduction matches the largest loss of teachers in Northville's history, equalling the 18.5 teachers dropped between the 1974-75 and 1975-76 school years.

Northville school administrators, who announced last month that an undetermined number of layoffs would be necessary, revealed the exact number Tuesday night (April 3) at a finance committee meeting.

The brunt of the layoffs will be felt in the elementary school level where 9½ classroom teachers are scheduled to lose their jobs.

Staff levels will be cut by five at the high school and 1½ at the junior high schools. The counseling staff will be reduced by 1.8 people and librarians by .6 person.

The president of the teachers' union said announcement of the layoffs had a "depressing" effect on teachers whom, she suggested, were carrying an unequal share of the budget-balancing load.

"My initial reaction is that there needs to be a study indicating that the same percentage decreases are taking place throughout the district," said Barbara LeBoeuf, president of the Northville Education Association.

"Fewer students should require less administrators, less secretaries, less Xeroxing, less everything."

Administrators recommended the layoffs as they presented a working draft of next year's budget which showed the district would be $200,000 out of balance even with the reduced staff level.

Superintendent Lawrence Nichols said the staffing level for next year was chosen to provide the pupil-teacher ratio sought by the board in preparing this year's budget.

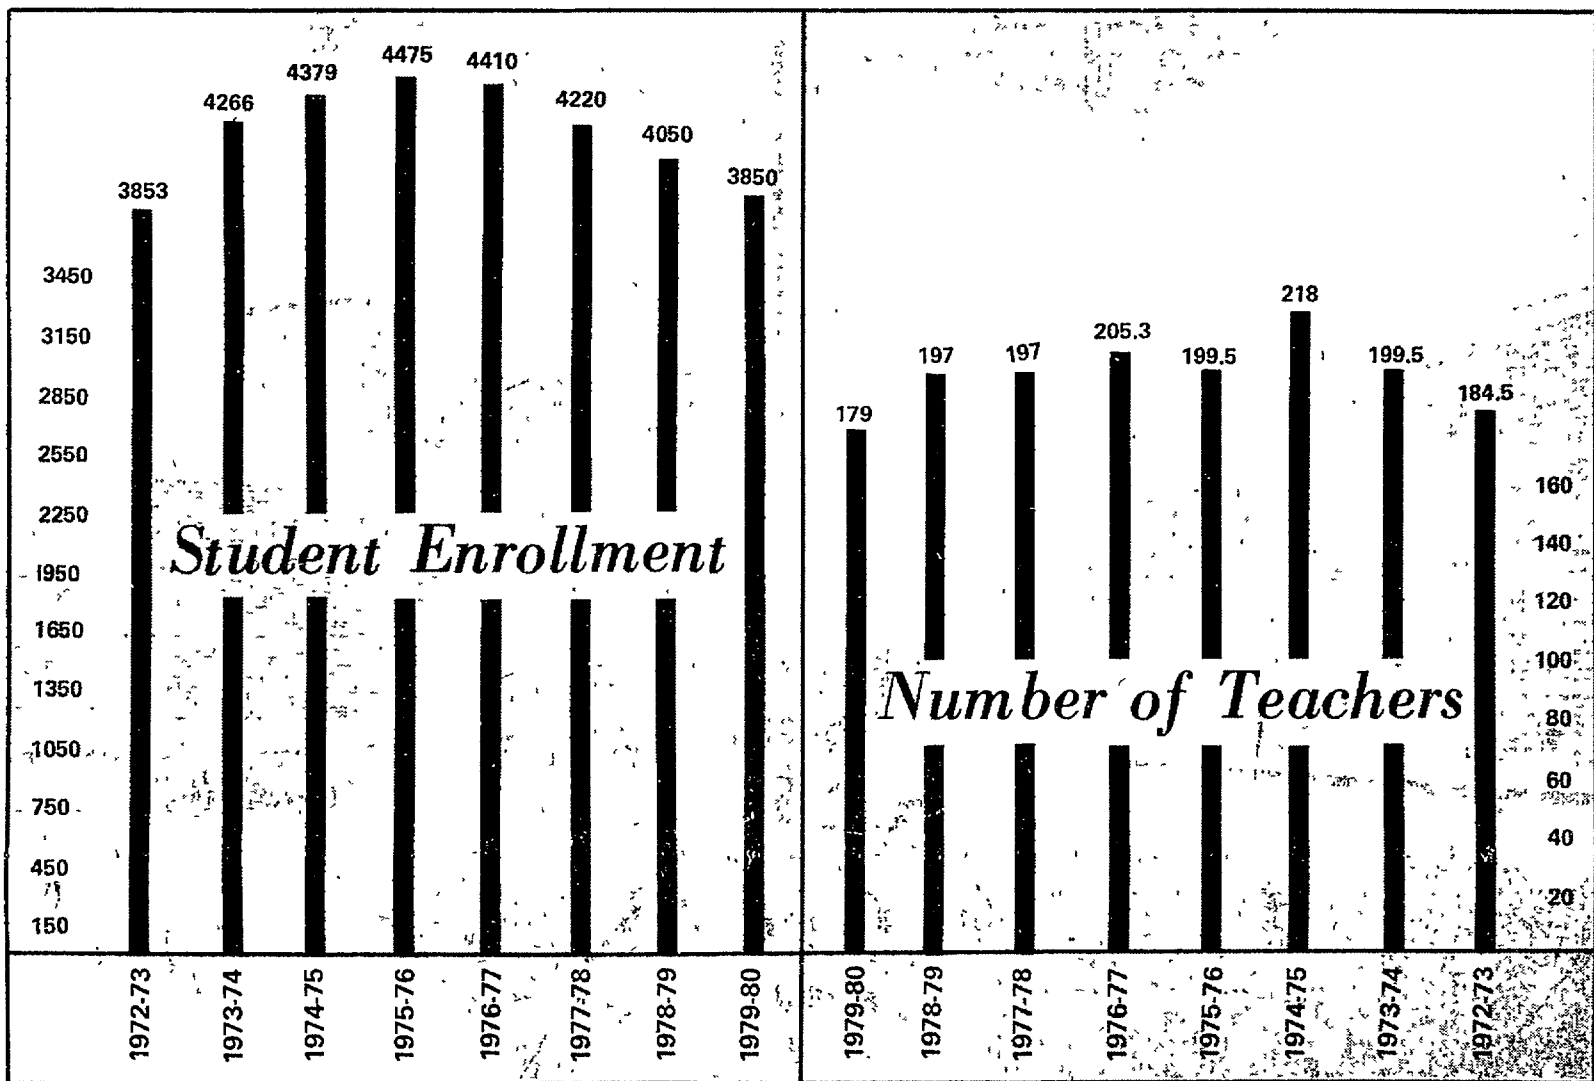

That ratio had improved in the teacher's favor because enrollment declined more this year than anticipated, he said.

Budget figures and projections prepared by Business Manager Harold Hines indicated that Northville's revenues will increase by only $100,000 next year.

Expenditures, even with the 18.4 teacher layoffs, were estimated at $8.66 million, a $300,000 increase from last year.

Those expenditures included the addition of boys' and girls' soccer as new varsity sports, a new junior varsity girls' softball team, the equivalent of a full time assistant junior high school principal and a bookkeeper.

By ELLEN SPONSELLER

At his arraignment in the 35th District Court Thursday, Johnny James Crumpton told the judge that he was innocent of the murder of Northville's Teckla Hamilton.

"But I didn't commit a crime," the handcuffed Crumpton told Judge James Garber as he was informed of the charges against him.

Crumpton is charged on three counts: first degree murder, felony murder, and breaking and entering with intent to commit larceny, all in the connection with last Wednesday's murder of Mrs. Hamilton, 81, who lived at 426 South Main.

Crumpton has an eight-year history of mental illness, but no previous criminal record. He is being held without bail in the Wayne County Jail pending an April 16 preliminary hearing.

Mrs. Hamilton, a small, spry Northville resident who insisted to friends and family that she would live alone "as long as I'm able," was stabbed in the back three times in her home Wednesday afternoon.

She was dead when the police arrived, the weapon apparently a four-inch long paring knife from her own kitchen.

Northville City Patrolman Jim Marks picked up Crumpton at 3:07 at the Good Time Party Store after responding to a call from a passerby who witnessed part of the incident.

Mrs. Hamilton's death left neighbors shocked and unnerved. She had lived in her small one-story house in "Bealtown" for 45 years, independently raking her leaves, shoveling her snow and tending her garden, neighbors said.

She had lived alone for many years after her husband Frank died. But she often forgot to lock her doors. She stubbornly refused to sell her property to the VFW hall next door. And she stubbornly declined to leave her home and move to Allen Terrace as her family suggested.

"I knew her practically all my life," said Marguerite Hartner, a neighbor two doors down. "She was a good and wonderful lady."

Mrs. Hamilton's house was a mile and a half from Northville State Hospital. It is the first residence that someone walking on the west side of South Main would come to.

Mrs. Hamilton's death is the first murder ever attributed to someone

Spring wind, ice pound Northville to its knees

Northville citizens stayed inside watching an eerie and spectacular display of fire and ice while the weather played tricks on Detroit Edison repair crews working to restore electrical power to 8,500 customers in northern Wayne County Sunday night.

The beautiful but deadly spring ice storm crept up early Sunday evening, coating wires and trees with thick ice. Electrical wires were snapped, trees cracked in half, transformers all along Seven Mile blew, and fires sprang up.

By Monday morning, an estimated 230,000 Detroit area customers were without power, said Peter Georges, director of customer services for Detroit Edison.

On Monday, Northville officials scrambled to collect data on the extent of the damage so the governor's office could declare the area an official disaster area.

But most Northville residents did not heed a governmental proclamation to realize the problems here.

Several hundred people in Northville were without power for more than 24 hours. With the temperature hovering below the freezing mark, many people were forced to flee to friends' homes for heat, light and warm food.

The weekend ice storm rapped Northville even before it could recover from an earlier storm — that one caused by shattering winds late Thursday and early Friday.

Schools were unaffected by the wind storm, but they were closed Monday because of the ice.

Several businesses in town were without power for several hours Monday, including Chatham's supermarket, Friendly Ice Cream Shop and Burger-Chef. Also hard hit was Hamlet Food Mart off Novi Road where the power failure threatened to damage the refrigeration system.

Trees bent and broke under the heavy ice, pulling down power lines and wrapping them around branches like spaghetti.

EMERGENCY telephone numbers for the city and township of Northville listed inside the front cover of Michigan Bell's new directory are garbled. The correct numbers are contained on page 313 inside the directory. In the township 911 is the emergency number for police or fire. In the city the number is 349-1234.

ID PHOTOGRAPHS of Northville senior citizens, taken as part of the Kiwanis Club's Golden Age Program, may be picked up at the Northville Post Office from Postmaster John Steimel, who serves as chairman of the club's Golden Age project.

NEITHER the Easter Bunny nor the Jaycees have forgotten the 21st annual Easter Egg Hunt slated Saturday. Sponsored by Northville Jaycees, the hunt will be held in the Cass Benton Woods section of Hines Park beginning at 9 a.m. sharp. Four age groups are invited to participate — preschoolers and kindergartners; first and second grades; third and fourth grades; and fifth and sixth grades. Special prizes will be given lucky hunters who find "magic eggs."

Should pass for grounds been given?

By RICH PERLBERG

There is divided opinion among high-level Northville State Hospital staff about whether a grounds pass should have been issued to a patient who is accused of walking away from the facility last week and killing a Northville widow in her home.

A source at the hospital says the records of Johnny J. Crumpton, 31, Detroit, reveal several incidents of unprovoked assaultive behavior at the hospital and at least one escape in the last month.

The source said some people assigned to review the case do not think the grounds pass should have been granted by Crumpton's doctor Wednesday.

NOT GOLDEN — They aren't talking now, but when they do the members of Northville High School's forensics team prove that silence isn't always golden. These students, coached by Carla Tibble, cominated district competition last week in Novi and advanced to the regionals.

Forensic mascot helps

Students' hard work pays off

Northville High School's successful forensics team gives a lot of its credit to Coney, a "Schnoodle" who has become the squad's mascot and good luck charm.

But teacher Carla Tibble said that hard work and effort — and not her six-year-old pet dog — are the reasons behind the young team's strong showing at last week's district competition at Novi High School.

Although only in its second year, the forensics team qualified a dozen students for the regionals later this month in Ann Arbor.

Northville students won six of the nine events and took four second places. All who finish first or second advance to the regionals.

"I was going crazy; it was really exciting," said Mrs. Tibble. "They were calling off the names (of the qualifiers) and I couldn't believe the number of times they said Northville. It almost got embarrassing."

Other schools in the competition were Novi, Ladywood and Stevenson, Franklin and Bentley high schools from Livonia.

Mrs. Tibble, who revived the defunct forensics team last year, said that unlike many schools, Northville has no fulltime class for the budding orators.

"It's all extra-curricular," she says. "We spend a lot of time at it after school from 3-6 or on Saturdays and Sundays whenever they have time to meet with me."

"For them (the students), it is at least the equivalent of another class. But they are neat kids — super — and you can underline that 18 times."

She said the students adopted her dog — part poodle and part schnauzer — as a mascot earlier this season. But after last week's districts, the team may have been adopted by a Northville bus driver.

"It's a long day, very tiring, and the kids have to speak three times in front of different judges," Mrs. Tibble explains.

"But the kids, on their own, went out and got the bus driver, bought her a soft drink, asked her if she could wait an additional half hour and all thanked her when they got off the bus."

"She (the bus driver) told me that this group really restored her belief in high school kids."

Northville students advancing to the regionals are:

—Serious interpretive reading: junior Kelly Schulz, first; and senior Lisa Willoughby, second.

—Humorous interpretive reading: sophomore Neal Young, first; and junior Lisa Lauber, second.

—Story telling: senior Terri Baker, first.

—Extemporaneous: senior Tony Han, first; junior Chris VanderWouw, second.

—Original Oratory: junior Earl Renaud, first.

—Dramatic duo: juniors Robin Georgoff and Nancy Joslin, first; juniors Sherry Wilkinson and Kay Manley, second.

2 Novi neighbors seek school seats

Two neighbors and an incumbent will vie for two school board terms next June.

As expected, Board President Douglas Whitaker filed nominating petitions for re-election by Monday's 4 p.m. deadline.

Also filing were David Llewellyn, 21748 Connemara Drive, and Gerald Munro, 21831 Connemara Drive.

Their homes, both located in Novi City, are only a few doors apart.

The two men were unaware of each other's candidacy and, in fact, had never met before this weekend, according to Mrs. Llewellyn.

Llewellyn, an engineer for Ford and an active Jaycee, has lived in the Northville school district for nearly eight years.

The couple have two sons who attend Moraine Elementary School.

Munro is manager of personnel services for Schoolcraft Community College. He has lived in the community for three years and has no children in the school system.

Llewellyn and Munro will join Whitaker on the June 11 ballot. The top two vote-getters will be elected to four-year terms.

Board Trustee John Hobart, whose term expires this year, announced earlier that he would not be a candidate for re-election.

Hobart, a former president, has served for six years which is longer than any other current board member.

BRIGHTON—School district children here may be required to have physical examinations, as well as immunizations, before entering kindergarten this fall.

BRIGHTON—An 11-year-old girl who nearly drowned at the new Brighton High School pool last week is reported in good condition. The pool director, Hal Henderson, administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation after another lifeguard had pulled the girl unconscious from the three-meter diving board area.

HARTLAND—In an extremely light turnout, voters here approved the renewal of 3.32 mills for operating purposes. A total of 857 voters — only 13 percent of the district's registered electors — trekked to the polls to approve the renewal levy.

GREEN OAK—A new fire hall or substation to serve the northern part of the township seems to be in Green Oak Township's future. By a unanimous vote, the township board voted to commit itself to constructing such a facility hopefully with work beginning sometime this year.

HAMBURG—It looks as though Hamburg will be zapped with a factor on 1979 assessments. The township's new assessor said Hamburg "will probably get some sort of factor" for the first time in two years. A multiplier was last applied to the 1977 tax roll.

NORTHFIELD—The second narrow defeat of the Northfield Township fire millage will signal drastic cutbacks in township services, including elimination of police patrol, township officials are saying. Meanwhile, Whitmore Lake School Superintendent Ed Heathcote said he will recommend that the board of education go back to the voters again in June for millage that was also defeated in the April 2 balloting.

LYON—Township electors here attending the annual meeting approved a proposed budget of $672,847, which is more than $100,000 higher than the proposed budget of a year ago.

NORTHFIELD—Residents here have advised the township board not to bother with chloride treatment for roads, not to allow summer collection of school taxes, not to apply a special assessment on street lights and not to save money for dial-a-ride service. Their position was made known at the annual township meeting.

SALEM—Some 25 Salem Township electors gave their approval to a $219,432 budget for the 1979-80 fiscal year at the township's annual meeting.

LYON—The township board and some 25 residents attending a special meeting here have been informed that becoming a charter township is not an irrevocable move. Robert Edwards, director of legislative affairs for the Michigan Township Association, said that if the township becomes charter by resolution in May as currently planned, it can reverse that designation after four years.

WALLED LAKE—Ben Bundo says he's not sure yet whether or not he will pick up his state liquor license for the Camelot Inn and go back to "topless on-ly" or continue to sell coffee and soft drinks at Oakland County's only bottomless — and liquorless — go-go bar "If I get the license back, we can only go topless," Bundo said. "but that's not where it's at. The people want nude entertainment."

WOLVERINE LAKE—Village President John McLellan, along with council incumbents Geri Matkowski and John Coxeter, were elected to new four-year terms in the village election, and Robert Woodrow won a two-year term in office.

WIXOM—Development of the North Wixom City Park could get underway as early as this spring in the wake of actions by the city council, which approved the master plan for park development and voted to advertise for bids for the first phase of the three-phase development plan.

NOVI—Residents of the Echo Valley Subdivision, who are tired of the late mail and confusion caused by the fact that they live in Novi but have a Northville mailing address, have petitioned the U.S. Postal Service to have their mailing address changed to Novi.

By $1.50 per credit hour

Schoolcraft tuition going up

Student tuition will go up $1.50 a credit hour at Schoolcraft College next fall.

The board of trustees gave 8-0 to a flat increase after expressing unhappiness with the state funding process.

President C Nelson Grote said a tuition increase is practically mandated by the State Appropriations Act, which assigns tuitions a "fair share" of overall funding. The "fair share" is deducted from the state appropriation, whether or not the college charges the full amount.

For the semester that begins in late August, residents of the Schoolcraft district will pay $17 per credit hour; non-residents, $27.50, and out-of-state residents, $40.50.

The last tuition increase occurred in 1976.

The tuition hike was made across-the-board, but trustees and administrators offered other ideas for future consideration.

Richard Hayward suggested a "sliding scale" — charging more per credit hour to a person who takes only a few hours and less per hour to one who takes a full 15-hour load. The purpose would be to encourage more full time registrations.

Mark McQuesten noted it's cheaper to educate liberal arts students than vocational-technical students and suggested tuition reflect that.

Grote said one solution would be to charge tuition by the "contact" hour rather than the credit hour. A student taking a four-hour English course has four contact hours, but a student taking a four-hour chemistry course has seven contact hours — four lecture and three laboratory.

Board Chairman Paul Y. Kadish had no qualms about raising tuition though he has long favored keeping it low. Although the college has nearly 10,000 students and the district 140,000 voters, only 3,000 yes votes were recorded in the recent tax hike election. "Our student body has spoken loud and clear," said Kadish.

For about five years, local property taxes have made up about 30 percent of Schoolcraft's revenue, tuition and fees 30 percent and state appropriations 40 percent.

In addition, a number of fees will be hiked in fall by administrative action.

A new "drop-add" fee, to be paid by persons dropping or adding a course during the late registration period, will be $2.

Commencement fee will be raised $5 to $15.

Private music lessons will be hiked $32 per semester to $96. Grote said this $4 a lesson charge hasn't been changed for about eight years. The increase is the first of two, he said, to bring the price closer to actual cost. Next year the fee would become $128 per semester.

Hourly rate at the child care center will be raised 20 cents to $1 an hour, but registration fees will remain unchanged.

Physical education uniform rentals will be increased 50 cents to $1.25 per semester.

McQuesten criticized the entire fee structure as "nickel and diming the students to death."

The board and administration acted under a deadline to publish the fall catalog. There was a consensus that the tuition and fee schedule should be revised — but no time this year to do it.

County challenges assessment pruning

Reduction of assessments in the Oakland section of the City of Northville has triggered a protest by the county's equalization division.

Herman W. Stephens, manager of the division, said last week that he was going to request the State Tax Commission to invalidate the city's 1979 assessment rolls.

It was unclear, however, if Stephens would make his request prior to hearings on the county's equalization slated for tomorrow.

Northville City Manager Steven Walters said the city would contest Stephens' request, which comes on the heels of assessment reductions ordered by the Northville Board of Review.

Noting that Oakland had raised assessments by an average of 14 percent throughout the northern section of the city, the board had pared those increases back to about nine percent.

The lower increases are closer to but still higher than assessments ordered by county officials in the Wayne section of the city.

Not only does Stephens object to the rollback of Oakland assessments, calling them "incorrect changes," he has taken Wayne County to task for failing to make uniform assessments in the Wayne section of Northville.

Walters, who said the city would attend hearings tomorrow in Pontiac to contest Stephens' request of the state tax commission, said Oakland's position appears to be softer than it could have been.

Instead of requesting the state to invalidate the local rolls, the county could have ordered an equalization factor for the northern section of Northville as a more direct way of counteracting the Northville Board of Review's cutbacks.

Beautiful but deadly: ice bends trees and power lines on Eight Mile

Area pounded by ice, wind

Detroit Edison repairmen worked 16 hour shifts around the clock to restore power to residences and businesses, Georges said.

He estimated that many people would remain without power until today.

The ice made the downed power lines more difficult to fix. Ice is an excellent electrical conductor, and on many downed lines, ice completed the electrical circuit causing "arcing" — spectacular, uneven and dangerous flashes of electricity, Georges said.

Sunday night, Six Mile became blocked temporarily by a fallen tree, township police reported.

All power went out at the township fire pumping station, forcing the department to use emergency backup generators in the seven calls they had Sunday night.

The township police department was without power Sunday night, where a new emergency electrical generator had not yet been installed. Luckily, an extra generator was available from the fire department, police said.

In town, downed wires along Rogers caused sparking and fires. City hall had no power on Monday. The city police department was operating on emergency power Parts of the city and township were without power from Sunday through Tuesday. And power was no sooner restored in some areas when it went out again.

Some restaurants, such as the Big Boy, were closed because of power failure, but other restaurants unhit by the electrical break were jammed with customers forced from their electrical-ly unserved homes.

Northville Estates, Edenderry and parts of adjacent subdivision were out most of Sunday and Monday, and some of them were still without power on Tuesday.

The Plymouth Hilton hotel reported a sharp increase in business as homeowners without power sought out temporary shelter.

Some city residents north of town who thought they had escaped the power failures were surprised when their electricity suddenly went off Monday night. Power for most was restored by late Monday or early Tuesday.

Northville city hall was without power from Sunday, but the special library election was held anyway — in the dark. A few doors away, the Main Street Elementary School building was still without power Tuesday, forcing the occupants, Plymouth Christian Academy, to be closed for the second day in a row.

The school board's administrative offices on the top floor of the building were open but everyone was working in the dark.

Northville Post Office workers struggled to keep up normal service Tuesday even though they had been without heat, light or telephones since Monday morning.

Clerks in their winter coats had to sort and put stamps on all mail by hand, because they were unable to use the electrically powered hoists or postage meters. They said mail service would not be interrupted.

"We're still trying to give the public service with a smile," a clerk said as her shivering fingers handed stamps over the counter in the dim cold room.

Northville Square shopping center on Main Street was completely locked and dark on Tuesday.

Green Ridge Nursery in Northville sent its high-ranger aerial ladder truck and cranes out Sunday and Monday to remove trees which had fallen on homes and businesses.

"Structural damage wasn't too bad, because unlike wind, the ice weights the trees down slowly and they bend down onto the roofs before they break," said Don Bouret, owner of the nursery.

His repairmen were also out cutting up fallen branches and taking potentially dangerous loose branches out of trees.

A siege mentality was maintained by Detroit Edison officials who were still reeling from last week's windstorms which blew down lines and trees to cut off power to 900 Northville customers.

Near hurricane-force winds Friday knocked three distribution circuits out of commission at the Edison sub-station here. Blackouts at some residences and businesses lasted more than 24 hours.

Edison repairmen were just getting last week's damage under control when the ice storm hit.

Library to show film

This month's featured film for senior citizens at the Northville Public Library is entitled "Moonwalk." The program will be held at 2 p.m., April 19. Refreshments are served and admission is free. The film will run for one and one-half hours.

Commissioned by NASA to capture the full scope of man's historic landing on the moon, this film merges poetry and science, as over 200 cameras move in to bring an unprecedented view of the action.

afternoon to melt the ice from the wires and cast a shimmer to the ice-covered landscape.

The power loss was not bad for everyone.

Elderly residents of Allen Terrace, the city's apartment complex for senior citizens, fared no better than other area families who lost their electric power in the weekend storm.

But they had the fun and comfort of being together.

Those who could navigate the stairs assembled in the community room before a roaring fireplace. Hot dogs were sent for and cooked over the blaze at lunch time Monday.

Margaret Nauman, secretary of First Presbyterian Church and a resident of Allen Terrace, brewed coffee in the 84-cup container at the church and city workers transported it to the building in time for lunch.

College director sees more help with liberalized student grants

There's good news for anyone needing financial aid to attend college this fall -- that's the word from Schoolcraft College's director of financial aid, John Tomey. "The federal government has just liberalized its Basic Educational Opportunity Grant (B.E.O.G.) program, effective this coming August," Tomey said. At Schoolcraft, he predicts, this could mean a doubling in both the number of students receiving basic grants and the total dollars they represent over the current year. "In a nutshell," the financial aid director continued, "the government will be requiring parents to contribute less of the cost of their children's college education than ever before under B.E.O.G."

Some of the factors involved are the size of the family, its annual income and net worth, and the number of children enrolled at least half-time in college. Tomey emphasized that families who might not have qualified for B.E.O.G. in the past might very well qualify this fall. He cited this example of a Schoolcraft student who did not qualify for a B.E.O.G. this school year, but will be eligible for a grant next fall: The student is from a family of four and both children are in college, one at Schoolcraft, the other at Michigan State. The family's annual income, all earned by the father, is $24,000. They have a net worth of $20,000 derived from $15,000 in home equity and $5,000 in savings. Based on these factors, Tomey projected the student attending Schoolcraft would receive a grant of $500. He indicated that the grant for the other would be determined by the actual cost of attending MSU, which would be considerably higher than Schoolcraft.

In the example, a family income of $24,000 is within the range of qualifying for aid. Tomey added, "regardless of family income, if you feel in need of aid to attend college, you should apply or at least inquire." John Tomey has 11 years experience in financial aid, the past five at Schoolcraft. As an indication of how things have changed over the years, he noted that when he first started a student whose family earned much over $7,000 wouldn't have qualified for B.E.O.G.

Applications are available in Tomey's office in the Student Affairs Trailer on campus. The form is a general instrument completed by all applicants regardless of the college they plan to attend.

Tomey said that the latest reasonable time for submitting an application for financial aid this fall is August 1.

"But as in most other situations," he said, "the earlier a student applies, the better it is for all concerned."

DNA expert spoke Monday

Frederick C. Neidhardt, chairman of the department of microbiology at the University of Michigan Medical School and world renowned expert on Recombinant DNA, spoke at Schoolcraft College on Monday. His appearance in the Waterman Campus Center was arranged through the Cultural & Public Affairs Series. Dr. Neidhardt received his doctorate in bacteriology and immunology at Harvard University in 1956 and spent one year as a postdoctorate research fellow with the American Cancer Society at the Institute Pasteur in Paris, France. He returned to teach at Harvard Medical School and Purdue University before joining the U of M staff in 1970. Dr. Neidhardt has written numerous articles for scientific journals, and continues to research the control processes in growth. His long range goal is an understanding of how bacterial cells regulate their metabolic affairs so as to achieve an orderly yet flexible coordination of the several thousand chemical reactions necessary for growth. A simple explanation of Recombinant DNA is the experimental recombining of DNA (a code name used for genes) in bacteria to produce new traits. The gene is a functional hereditary unit that occupies a fixed location on a chromosome (a DNA-containing linear body of the cell nuclei of plants and animals, responsible for the determination and transmission of hereditary characteristics). Thus, far, experiments are limited to bacteria. But with further research and development, this controversial scientific endeavor could be used to alter imperfections in the makeup of both animals and plants, virtually wiping out disease, he explained

College to ask for scaled down tax hike

By TIM RICHARD

Voters in the Schoolcraft College District will be asked June 11 to approve a scaled-down tax hike package following the March 26 defeat of a request for one mill for five years.

The new request, in two parts, will ask one mill ($1 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation) for a single year. The parts:

- A half-mill to raise about $1 million for a Culinary Arts Addition to the Waterman Campus Center. The college already has about $1.2 million in the bank for this expansion.

- A half-mill "for remodeling, equipping and re-equipping existing buildings, site improvements and major maintenance expenditures."

Both of those items were in the March 26 package. In effect, the new proposal drops an Applied Sciences addition and a new Learning Resources Center from the package.

The vote Wednesday on the board of trustees was 6-2 to put the package on the ballot. Dissent came from the two board members who are politically poles apart — Leonard Wozniak and Mark McQuesten.

Wozniak called the Culinary Arts addition "a mistake... too expensive." He added: "I'm convinced it's going to be defeated. Regardless of how great we (trustees) think this institution is, the question in voters' minds is not Schoolcraft College but taxes."

McQuesten said, "I'm not ready to work on it (millage campaign), and I can't ask others to work on it."

Referring to last month's special election where the 7,200 turnout (five percent of the electorate) was less than the college's enrollment, McQuesten turned his oral guns on the voters.

"The people are guilty of gross neglect of this college. They created an institution and refuse to support it. The students have shown themselves to be irresponsible. I can't be the student spokesman any longer," said McQuesten, the board's only former Schoolcraft student.

The majority, however, thought the college's physical plant is in bad enough shape that another request to voters is justified.

"My heart says what we did (in the March 26 proposal) was correct, but the realities are that we must prioritize," said vice-chairperson Harry Greenleaf. "The culinary addition is expensive, but it's not just for 60 students. It's 60 a year, from now until there's no need for the program. Maintenance and equipment are also a top priority," said Greenleaf, summing up the majority view.

The June 11 millage request will be on the same ballot as elections for K-12 school board members and Schoolcraft board members. Thus, the college's millage request could become a board election issue.

Three full six-year terms expire, but only two will be elected under a state law that pares the Schoolcraft board from eight members to seven. Incumbents Gerald Cox of Garden City and Nancie Blatt of Livonia are circulating nominating petitions. Board Chairman Paul Y. Kadish of Livonia said he will retire after eight years.

In addition, Trustee Richard Hayward of Livonia will have to face voters to serve out the remaining two years of the term to which he was appointed. He is circulating nominating petitions.

The culinary art addition would allow the community college to expand enrollment from 58 to about 120 and provide community facilities, as well.

The Michigan Legislature has appropriated $750,000 for the project, but the money will be lost in another year unless the college district can come up with its share. In addition, the college already has $500,000 in the bank for it.

Major maintenance and equipment plans are not spelled out on the ballot because many small projects are involved. An administrative memo lists these:

Road development, repairs to parking lots and drives, a new fire alarm system, new pipes for the pool, modification of the boiler piping for the liberal arts building, modification of heating, air-conditioning and ventilating systems for energy conservation, and equipment for the business division, student affairs division, administration, physical plant and athletics.

Each half-mill would yield about $1 million on the college district's valuation of $2 billion. The college district includes the K-12 districts of Clarenceville, Garden City, Livonia, Northville, Plymouth-Canton and a small portion of Novi.

Recent escape from Northville State Hospital has prompted new calls for fence to enclose the grounds on Seven Mile

Town's concern with walkaways goes way back

Whether or not Johnny James Crumpton killed Teckla Hamilton, her murder has brought into the outraged public eye the problem of walkaways from Northville State Hospital.

Crumpton had obtained a grounds pass readily from his doctor in the morning although he had walked off the grounds many times previously.

He easily walked out of the hospital through one of the maze of unlocked glass doors, getting by guards with his pals.

No guards observed as he slipped off the unfenced grounds. There are many back paths leading away from the hospital. But Crumpton apparently used the main drive and walked along Seven Mile toward town.

Three people said they spotted him on his trek. But a hospital security car which is supposed to patrol Seven Mile between the hospital and South Main, never picked him up.

Crumpton was one of 47 walkaways reported so far this year. He was one of 982 patients since 1975 to take an unauthorized leave from Northville State Hospital, according to township police figures Crumpton is the first patient ever to be charged with murder in the Northville hospital's 27 year history.

But patients do walk away every week. Most want to buy liquor or use the telephone, police say. Some just want to take a walk. Others never return from a weekend pass.

Under Michigan's 1974 liberal Mental Health Code, the mentally ill must be treated like hospital patients, not prisoners. Northville's facility is built as an "open" hospital, with many doors windows and no fence.

"Very few of the 13,000 people who are treated in Michigan's mental hospitals have a criminal record," said Joseph McCall, spokesman for the Department of Mental Health in Lansing.

"Mental patients on the whole are not criminals. Less than one percent are criminally inclined," he said.

Still, walkaways have frightened local people:

—Last Thursday morning, township police recovered a young man who was walking on Seven Mile and Ridge. The from the Northville State Hospital, police said.

She was last seen alive on Wednesday about 1 p.m. when a neighbor came to borrow a snow shovel. The neighbor reminded her she should lock her doors, but she said she usually forgot, police said.

The murderer apparently entered Mrs. Hamilton's home through the unlocked back door, said Sergeant Arthur Cox, Northville city police detective.

Mrs. Hamilton was stabbed three times in the back with a paring knife taken from her kitchen. Even after she was stabbed, she apparently ran out the front door and across the lawn, trying to get to a neighbor's, police said.

None of her neighbors were home to see as her assailant dragged her back like a rag doll across the front lawn and into the house. But two passersby in a pickup truck witnessed part of the scene and called police.

By the time police arrived, they found Mrs. Hamilton dead on her living room couch.

A few blocks away, Patrolman Marks arrested Crumpton at the Good Time Party Store.

Crumpton, 30, was first admitted in 1971 to Northville State Hospital, said John Reynolds, director of the hospital. He was in and out of the hospital until December 27 when he was once again committed, this time involuntarily, by his family, Reynolds said.

Crumpton was described by Reynolds as a young man who "thought people were after him" and who "didn't always know what was happening."

Crumpton had walked away from the hospital grounds before, and had had his grounds pass revoked for brief periods, Reynolds said.

But he was issued a grounds pass that morning by his doctor.

On Wednesday, Crumpton ate lunch and took his medicine as usual. At 2 p.m. he was sent back to his room to change from slippers to proper footwear, Reynolds said. He was not seen after that time.

Apparently, Crumpton used his grounds pass to slip off the property to Seven Mile. Various witnesses report seeing him between 2:30 and 3 p.m. walking toward town on Seven Mile.

Crumpton was seen outside the National Bank of Detroit office at 2:40, crossing the railroad tracks just before 3 p.m. and outside the Northville Record plant around 3 p.m.

One witness, Marge Ercoli, reported seeing a hospital security patrol car driving down Seven Mile toward South Main between 2:50 and 3 p.m. Yet Crumpton managed to walk nearly a half mile further down Seven Mile without being reported missing by the hospital security patrol. The car's regular patrol should have been down Seven Mile to South Main and back, Reynolds said.

By coincidence, a hospital security patrolman was in the Good Time Party Store making a purchase when Crumpton came in with Patrolman Marks on his heels.

At the murder scene, Northville City Police Captain Louis Westfall found a blood-stained knife outside under the bushes.

Crumpton will appear at his preliminary trial April 16 in Canton before Judge Garber. A forensic examination, to determine his sanity to stand and "aid counsel in his own defense" will probably be ordered, police said.

If found unable to stand trial because of insanity, Crumpton would be ordered to the maximum security forensic ward at either Ypsilanti State Hospital or Northville State, officials said, until such time as he was found fit to stand trial.

Laws and policy promotes freedom

Northville City Police say that Crumpton, while in possession of that grounds pass, slipped away from hospital that afternoon and walked 1½ miles to the city where he allegedly broke into a home and stabbed to death 81-year-old Teckla Hamilton.

Hospital Director John Reynolds said Tuesday that it would be a "breach of confidentiality" to discuss Crumpton's records.

He said anyone discussing Crumpton's file to unauthorized persons was subject to legal action. Reynolds would not discuss specific allegations made by the source.

Reynolds did say that Crumpton's pass had been approved by his physician Wednesday morning.

"In talking with the physician in charge, he had talked with the patient that morning," said Reynolds. "It was the decision of the doctor that the person could handle it."

Reynolds said that decision is being reviewed by the senior psychiatrist at the hospital.

"Everything is being reviewed — the activity card policy (grounds passes), the procedure for reporting escapes, all kinds of safeguards," said Reynolds.

He said his staff is considering a policy that would require a review by a secondary panel before a grounds pass could be restored to a patient who had escaped.

Grounds passes in general are a divisive issue within the mental health profession.

Although the clients at Northville State Hospital are technically "patients" and not "prisoners," the majority of them are involuntarily committed during civil court proceedings.

Since the hospital is for treatment and not incarceration, the state Mental Health Code requires that each patient be allowed to live in his "least restrictive environment."

For a patient who is committed to the hospital, this policy may be interpreted as encouraging grounds passes for all patients who do not show immediate symptoms that the pass would be abused.

This policy is strengthened by aggressive attorneys taking an advocacy position for the patient and by the emerging power of the Office of Recipient Rights, an independent arm of the Department of Mental Health that protects patient rights.

In Crumpton's case, a source said that his pass was not revoked after a recent escape.

Reynolds said a patient's pass is automatically revoked after an escape until it can be reviewed by his physician.

While not commenting on Crumpton other than to confirm that he had escaped in the past, Reynolds said it was conceivable that a patient who walked away from the grounds could have his pass restored the next day.

The amount of security that should be provided is a debatable issue within the field.

On one extreme are psychiatrists who believe that grounds passes should be granted only under strict guidelines and that recipient patients should be closely supervised at all times.

The other end of the spectrum supports liberal issuance of grounds passes to patients who would then be relatively unsupervised as a therapeutic step toward re-entering a more normal community setting.

Legal picture changes for insanity defense

By RICH PERLBERG

Johnny J. Crumpton, a 31-year-old patient at Northville State Hospital, has been charged with the stabbing death of an elderly widow who police say he surprised when he broke into her home last Wednesday.

Besides the normal issue of guilt or innocence, Crumpton's status as an involuntarily committed patient at a hospital for the mentally ill raises questions about his competency to stand trial and the role that mental illness could play in his defense.

Interviews with Harold Norris, a law professor at the Detroit College of Law, and James Newhart of the appellate legal defender's office, revealed the courses that the trial might take if the issue of Crumpton's sanity is introduced.

First, Crumpton's attorney may contend that his defendant is not mentally competent to stand trial.

To do this he would have to prove that Crumpton is 1) unable to understand the charges against him, or 2) unable to assist counsel with his defense.

If he is found unable to stand trial, Crumpton would be turned over to the Department of Mental Health which would be required to make periodic reports to the court about his competency to face charges.

If two years passed and he was still deemed incompetent to stand trial, the charges would be dropped and civil commitment proceedings would begin.

If and when Crumpton does face trial, there are four possible verdicts that can be returned by a judge or jury. They are: not guilty, not guilty by reason of insanity, guilty but mentally ill and guilty.

The implications of guilty and not guilty are generally understood. The verdicts in between are not.

The current definition of "legally insane" in Michigan is:

"A person is legally insane if, as a result of mental illness ..., or as a result of mental retardation ..., that person lacks substantial capacity either to appreciate the wrongfulness of his conduct or to conform his conduct to the requirements of law."

Through the early 1970s, a defendant who committed a crime but who was determined to be "legally insane" was found "not guilty by reason of insanity."

This meant that instead of a prison

Gas shortage

Although local service stations are reporting no major problems, their gas supplies have been pinched sufficiently in some cases to force gas purchase limits, as above at Asher 76, and curtailed hours — especially on weekends. Some of the closings, however, had nothing to do with the shortage of gasoline. The stations were simply experiencing the same power failures as other business places and homeowners experienced during the ice and wind storms.

Petitions available for college posts

Candidates for the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees in this June's election can get nominating petitions and full details at the President's office on campus. Deadline for filing is 4 p.m. Tuesday, April 24.

Although three six-year trustee terms expire this year, only two will be filled at the June 11 election. This is to comply with the act of the legislature reducing the Schoolcraft board from eight to seven total members.

In addition to the six-year terms, there will be one two-year position filled. This is the balance of the term of Ronald Cowden who resigned last August.

Trustees whose terms are expiring this year are Nancie Blatt and Paul Y. Kadish of Livonia, and Dr. Gerald Cox of Garden City. Richard J. Hayward of Livonia has been filling the Cowden position as a board appointee.

Candidates must be qualified and registered electors within the college district. This includes the K-12 districts of Clarenceville, Garden City, Livonia, Northville and Plymouth-Canton, and a portion of Novi.

For information, contact Mrs. Clara Rousseau at 591-6400, ext. 212. Schoolcraft is located at 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

News Briefs

SUNDAY'S ICE STORM, which knocked out power to most Northville school buildings, forced the postponement of Monday's board of education meeting. It has been rescheduled for 7:30 tonight (Wednesday) in the board offices located in the top floor of Main Street Elementary School.

PERMISSION has been granted to Down River Federal Savings and Loan Association to open a branch office in the city of Northville. A hearing was held last January in Indianapolis by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to consider the application after Detroit Federal Savings and Loan — with an office in Northville — had filed an objection to the Down River request. Down River has 18 branch facilities in the metropolitan area. Its headquarters are located in Taylor. Down River President Arthur J. Hayes has indicated the firm is interested in building a structure in the city to provide both drive-in and pedestrian service accommodations.

SINCE Novi has decided to postpone at least for a year the paving of Beck Road, the Northville council has decided to postpone making a decision on whether or not to assess adjacent city property owners for that portion of the roadway improvement in Northville.

A restaurant operated by Amerman Elementary School third graders opened for a successful one-day run Thursday. The students did it all — prepared the food, set the tables, took the orders and served the meal for appreciative parents and teachers. Third Grade Teachers Vaile Hall, Pat Lyons and Pam Grove said the lunch was the culminating activity of the class study into the culinary arts field. Below is John Howard, dessert chef. Earlier this year, the class served breakfast in similar style.

Marilyn Mason, U-M professor of music, was the featured speaker. A reception and tea was held for the honor students and their families.

A total of 3,829 students received class honors, recognizing academic records equal to at least half A's and half B's for two terms (one term for new students) during 1978.

In addition, 802 students were named James B. Angell Scholars for maintaining all A records for two or more consecutive terms as undergraduates.

Also, 292 members of the freshman class received the William J. Branstrom Prize, a book of their choice and a bookmark, for being ranked in the top five per cent of their class.

Some students won more than one type of honor.

County plans more layoffs

Another round of employee layoffs, this time involving 28 jobs, has been scheduled by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners in a further step to eliminate a $14 million deficit projected for this year.

Approved tentatively at a meeting of the board's ways and means committee on April 5, the new layoffs were designated just one day after a previous decision took effect which struck between 150 to 160 other positions from the payroll.

The new staff reductions apply to offices of the county general hospital, board of auditors, and sheriff. From the hospital 12 more positions were removed, six additional were dropped from the auditing department, and eight from the Sheriff.

Although all 27 commissioners sit on the ways and means committee, the cutbacks must still be approved in a meeting of the full Board. The layoffs would begin April 29.

According to board chairman, Richard E. Manning, the layoffs will provide about $379,000 for one-year funding of a labor relations contract under consideration with the county skilled trades union, along with 29 different positions in the sheriff's department that are either court-ordered or critical for handling jail prisoners.

"We are in a n ironic situation in more ways than one," said Manning. "We're forced into the position of laying off sheriff's deputies so that we can, in part, allow for salaries of other deputies that the court has ordered us to keep." Manning continued:

"Another complexity is that we must lay off county employees in general in order to fund pay raises won or being considered for fellow employees in recent contract negotiations."

Manning said he was relieved that the court did not interfere in the orderly process of reducing expenses regarding the earlier 150 to 160 jobs reductions ordered by the board in March. Following that decision, Council 25 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) filed suit to block the procedure.

Originally, the layoff decision was to be implemented on April 2, but a court restraining order from Circuit Court Judge Theodore R. Bohn delayed the move until April 4 to allow a hearing by visiting Judge Allan C. Miller from Tawas City.

Ruling against AFSCME charges that the board was illegal and discriminatory, Judge Miller did not extend the restraining order to impose the injunction the union asked for to permanently block the layoffs.

"As a result, it is now reasonably clear that both the responsibility and authority for balancing the budget is in the hands of the Board of Commissioners where it properly belongs," Manning declared.

Manning said that the layoffs ordered in March were to fund the approximately $2.2 million contract won by AFSCME for its remaining members, and that the job eliminations for April 29 are needed to pay for more than half the cost of the skilled trades agreement.

The coming layoffs will be considered by the full board, Thursday, April 12.

Governor pays center unannounced visit

Governor William G. Milliken last week made an unannounced visit to the Plymouth Center for Developmental Disabilities to examine improvements which have been made in staff and living conditions within the facility.

Milliken sat in on a training session for new direct care staff members who were completing a three-week course of study, toured several residential halls and met with administrative staff members to determine their views on conditions at Plymouth.

During his visit to Plymouth, the governor said he was "pleased and gratified" at the progress which has been made in complying with the order issued by U.S.

District Judge Charles Joiner.

"I am impressed and grateful at the progress which has been made and at the impact the new training programs have had," Milliken said. "It is clear from my conversations with the direct care staff and administrators that there have been improvements in the morale of the staff and in conditions on the halls where problems have existed in the past."

"There are clearly some very dedicated people here who are deeply interested in providing good quality care for the residents."

At the same time, Milliken said he has appointed a special task force to examine allegations which have been made to him concerning conditions at the Clinton Valley Center in Pontiac.

The five-member task force was directed to investigate allegations of abuse, inadequate care and other alleged instances of employee misconduct at both the administrative and staff levels.

It is headed by Kenneth Frankland, legal counsel to the governor. Other members of the task force are James Jordan, special assistant to the governor for mental health; Director of Social Services Jack Dempsey; acting director of mental health, Vernon Stehman, and State Police Director Gerald Hough.

The task force held its first meeting last week at the Clinton Valley Center. The members met with Facility Director Donald W. Martin and department of mental health Regional Director Donald Worden.

Congressmen can aid constituent visitors to Capitol

The Capitol, the White House, the Washington Monument, the Lincoln Memorial, Arlington Cemetery and its Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, are a few of the many familiar sights that tens of thousands of Americans go to Washington, D.C., to see every year.

Yet few are aware of the assistance they can get through their congressmen when they come to Washington, notes Congressman William S. Broomfield.

Besides the usual public tours, many of these familiar landmarks have special tours which can be arranged ahead of time through each congressman's office.

Visitors can visit the halls of congress by either the regular or the congressional tour. The congressional tour of the capitol building allows you to move in smaller groups, is more detailed in its explanations, and permits you to go into both the galleries of the House of Representatives and the Senate.

"If you would like to see the congress in session, passes for the visitors gallery can be obtained in my office. Congressional hearings, where much of the basic work of developing legislation is done, are generally open to the public," says Broomfield.

The White House is always one of the favorite stops on everyone's itinerary. Every president since the second president, John Adams, has lived in it, and it is truly part of the history of the nation. "When going through the formal rooms of the White House — which are still very much in use and not serving as a museum — you can see period pieces of furniture and art from our past, points out Broomfield.

Every congressman's office is allowed 10 White House passes a week. Congressional tours are usually smaller than the regular tour, are guided, and permit you to go through more rooms in this, the "House of the People."

Because of the popularity of this tour, requests for passes must be made well in advance. Usually the busiest weeks are Easter Week, the week preceding it, and the first week after school is out. "I started receiving requests for White House passes for Easter week and its preceding week last November, and, unfortunately, my passes for these two weeks are already exhausted," says Broomfield.

Another popular congressional tour is of the headquarters of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. As you go through this half-hour guided tour, you learn of the role of the FBI in the law enforcement. The tour covers some of the famous cases it cracked, their laboratories where they can do everything from identifying the make and model of a car from a paint chip to telling you the type of a gun from its discharged slug, and the making of an FBI agent.

Beyond these three congressional tours, arrangements can be made for congressional tours of the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, the Pentagon, the National Space and Aeronautic Administration's Goddard Space Flight Center, and the Department of State's formal reception rooms. Foreign policy briefings by the state department can also be arranged for Tuesday and Friday mornings for groups of ten or more.

One of the little known but certainly impressive ceremonies is the sunset ceremony of the Navy and the Marine Corps. With congressional reservations, the Marine Corps ceremony can be seen on Tuesday and Friday evenings, and the Navy goes on parade on Wednesday evening, between Memorial Day and Labor Day. These impressive ceremonies begin with a band concert and are followed by a parade and close order drill as our flag is lowered for the day.

"While the effects and cost of government on the lives of the people are certainly a matter of great concern today, Washington, as our Nation's Capital, is still a beautiful city to visit, and an important part of our history. If you plan on coming to Washington, I hope you will let me know so that I can be of assistance to you, and I certainly hope you will stop by my office to say 'hello'," adds the Oakland County Congressman.

CONGRESSIONAL Searchlight

by CONGRESSMAN

CARL PURSELL

Once again the crisis. And once again the crisis response. President Carter has sent us emergency standby legislation to deal with oil shortages, based on scenarios from a continuation of the Iranian shortage to more serious situations.

We are looking at proposals to ration gasoline to about two gallons per car per day, and conservation measures such as Sunday gas station closings, a ban on decorative lighting, and mandatory heating and cooling regulations for buildings.

The Iranian oil interruption is costing the U.S. about 5 percent of its usual oil imports. The gas rationing plan is designed to go into effect only in a much more serious squeeze in the neighborhood of a 20 percent shortage.

As these proposals come before us, the last oil tankers to leave Iran before the revolution have arrived at U.S. ports. We are not presently receiving oil from Iran, but the only shortages we've had up to this time have been anticipatory ones, with companies parceling out supplies in expectation of lean days ahead.

Our oil problems are not confined to the availability of oil. Perhaps even more serious is the spectre of another round of steep price increases, further threatening the U.S. and world economies.

The official OPEC price is now $13.34 per barrel of crude oil. Oil from various sources is already selling at higher levels, and spot sales between $20 and $25 per barrel have been recorded. Iran is seeking to sell to the highest bidder under its renewed production plan. The clear pattern is, at best, for another general price increase and, at worst, a uniform system of selling to the highest bidder. Any thought that the countries currently practicing oil extortion are going to take an altruistic interest in the economic plight of other countries is a myth.

Our own experience demonstrates the frightening magnitude of our virtually unchecked dependence on foreign oil supplies.

The cost of U.S. oil imports has gone from $4.7 billion in 1972 (before the embargo) to $42.3 billion in 1978. With the current upward pressure in prices, our import bill could top $50 billion this year.

That means that we'll probably be paying $1 or more per gallon for gasoline before long and be thankful it's available even at that price.

But none of this should be any real surprise. The writing has loomed huge on the wall for five years now. The real question is why the technical genius of this nation has not been focused in an all-out effort to eliminate our insanely dangerous dependence. Our startling failure to act is incompetent, unjustifiable and inexcusable.

It's frustrating to see the United States walking the tightrope over a multitude of disasters, with no coherent plan to rid us of this intolerable burden.

We have to assign highest priority to escaping this trap. But we haven't done it yet. And the clock is ticking.

State must face hospital problems

By BILL SLIGER

While it remains for the court system to consider the facts and render judgment, the allegations in the tragic murder of an elderly Northville woman suggest that the very worse fears of those who have criticized the security system at Northville State Hospital have evolved.

The issue of security at this or any other state hospital for the mentally ill cannot be resolved by a single, simple action.

But there are many who would argue that a tall fence surrounding the grounds would be a major step in controlling the whereabouts of patients.

Most authorities in the field of mental health will tell you that attorneys, not psychiatrists, run the system. And the law demands that a doctor must prove on any given day that a patient is dangerous to himself or others. If this cannot be attested to then the patient is entitled to his freedom.

Drugs can improve a patient's behavioral pattern in a matter of a few days; but if they are discontinued, psychotic signs are again evident.

Legal pressure to provide patients, nearly all of whom have been committed against their will, with freedom of movement is the most-frequently cited problem confronting administrators of state mental institutions.

But there are other, very real and significant issues at hand.

First, there's the question of whether or not grounds passes should be issued without surveillance. And in the Northville case a matter of judgment exists. Should the patient have been given ground privileges under any circumstances?

The fact that the patient walked away from the grounds may have been a minor violation in comparison to the decision to grant the pass.

And this introduces still another question.

There is strong reason to believe that serious problems within the professional staff exist at Northville State Hospital because of differences in backgrounds. A majority of the psychiatrists are foreign born and educated. Communications can become a problem; values and cultural beliefs vary; even attitudes towards rules of conduct can differ.

This is not a prejudicial observation; it is recognition of a condition that deserves attention. Simply understanding one another can be a most effective tool in any profession.

The total answer to the problem of patients hurting themselves or others at a state mental hospital cannot be answered by construction of a fence alone.

And certainly the solution isn't a couple more policemen. Already 75 officers and more than 30 patrol cars operate around the clock at the State Police Post next door to the hospital. Police may reduce the length of time a patient is missing by responding promptly to emergency calls, but they cannot be expected to prevent a crime from taking place.

The state of Michigan must decide it is determined to protect its citizens both inside and outside its institutions.

And to do so, it must muster up the courage to look at and discuss both the legal and practical operational functions of its state mental hospitals.

SPEAKING for The Record By BILL SLIGER

I took the "cook's tour" of Northville Downs last Thursday night and learned what some of the people do who help make the harness racing facility tick nightly.

For me it was a most interesting experience: the first time I had ever observed those responsible for judging, timing, televising, announcing, recording and reporting each race.

Most of them hang out high above the track where they have a bird's-eye view of the sulkies racing around the Downs' half-mile oval from their glass-enclosed booths.

There are a half-dozen booths containing a teletype operator, program department, the presiding judge and state racing stewards, the photo-finish department, official timer, announcer and television operator.

And out on the track a patrol judge rides in the starter's car to watch for any infractions by drivers.

These people are responsible for the presentation, conduct and completion of the race itself. They are not involved in the pari-mutuel operations or any of the other numerous functions connected with the activity that attracts more than 3,000 fans who wager nearly $500,000 nightly.

Their roles are orchestrated so that all the ingredients needed to produce a single race are neatly blended thereby giving the impression to the viewer that there's really nothing more to a race than getting eight horses together on a track.

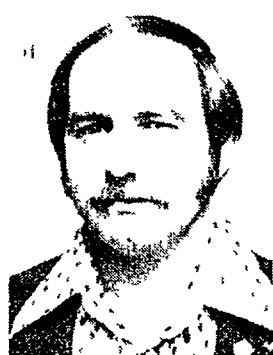

I visited each of the booths while the races were in progress. And I rode in the starter's car, an experience made more exciting by gusting winds of up to 50-miles-per-hour on a sloppy track.

The starter is in charge of the eight sulkies on the track and calls them into running position when it is time for the race to begin. While the starters are qualified by specialized training, the operation itself is a privately-owned enterprise which contracts to perform the service. Bob Braden is the dean of the team. His partner, Adam Brownlee, was at the helm when I rode in the car.

The starting vehicle is a custom Chrysler with bubble-top, wing-like starting gates that extend to within one foot of each side of the track, and a back-seat throttle. I sat in the front seat with the driver, 25-year-old Dennis DeClercq. In the Community Ed gone too far?

CLARA PORTER

YES

One of the major functions of Community Education is to serve the needs, wants and desires of the community to the extent possible. Several years ago some directors of Adult and Continuing Education became sidetracked from our main philosophy. We looked at the adults as "prospects for dollars" for the school district.

The adults came back to school for a second chance to earn a high school diploma. What did some of the directors of the program do to help? We over extended in many cases the already over-extended adults. We did it by asking the adults at the time of enrollment to sign up for four adult education credit classes each week; if they found it too demanding on their schedule, they could drop one or two classes.

You see if the adults were scheduled in four classes after mid-October the local school district could receive the full time membership in state aid legally.

The problem or injustice was that many of the over-extended adults didn't quit one or two classes they stopped attending completely, thereby becoming a drop out again and maybe this time forever!

How did it happen? The school districts throughout the state were hurting financially with declining enrollment in the K-12 day school programs.

The Adult Education departments were called upon to be the "knight in shining armor" to save the regular K-12 day programs by increasing the adult student enrollment to generate more state aid revenues.

The State Department of Education was forced to make some drastic changes, in the way you count a full time adult credit student, to save the state dollars. They did, and what seemed like the carpet being pulled out from underneath the Continuing Education Directors turned out to be a blessing in disguise, because it became the excuse to slow down.

Now, thank God the pressure has relaxed, and the adult credit students are now taking what they can really handle. We are also at the size where we can call the adults absent from class to let them know that we are concerned and missed them.

Community education programs serve an important need for the entire community. It is an extension of not only the educational program, but also provides the vehicle for promoting recreational and family activities.

The expanded use of school facilities is gaining in popularity. This can be attributed to the increased interest in community education programs, the accessibility of the school buildings, nominal cost to all taxpayers in using existing facilities, and the programs developed around community choice.

Community education as it exists in our community has not gone too far, but is only beginning to meet its potential. School facilities are still available on any given evening and most weekends. Citizen interest is high in our growing community. New residents are anxious to socialize, meet other families, and join together in identifying with their new location.

Community education programs evolve through a process of evaluating and identifying community needs. This aspect of community education concepts has to continue to expand in most communities. The potential coordination of community services should be a goal for future planning everywhere.

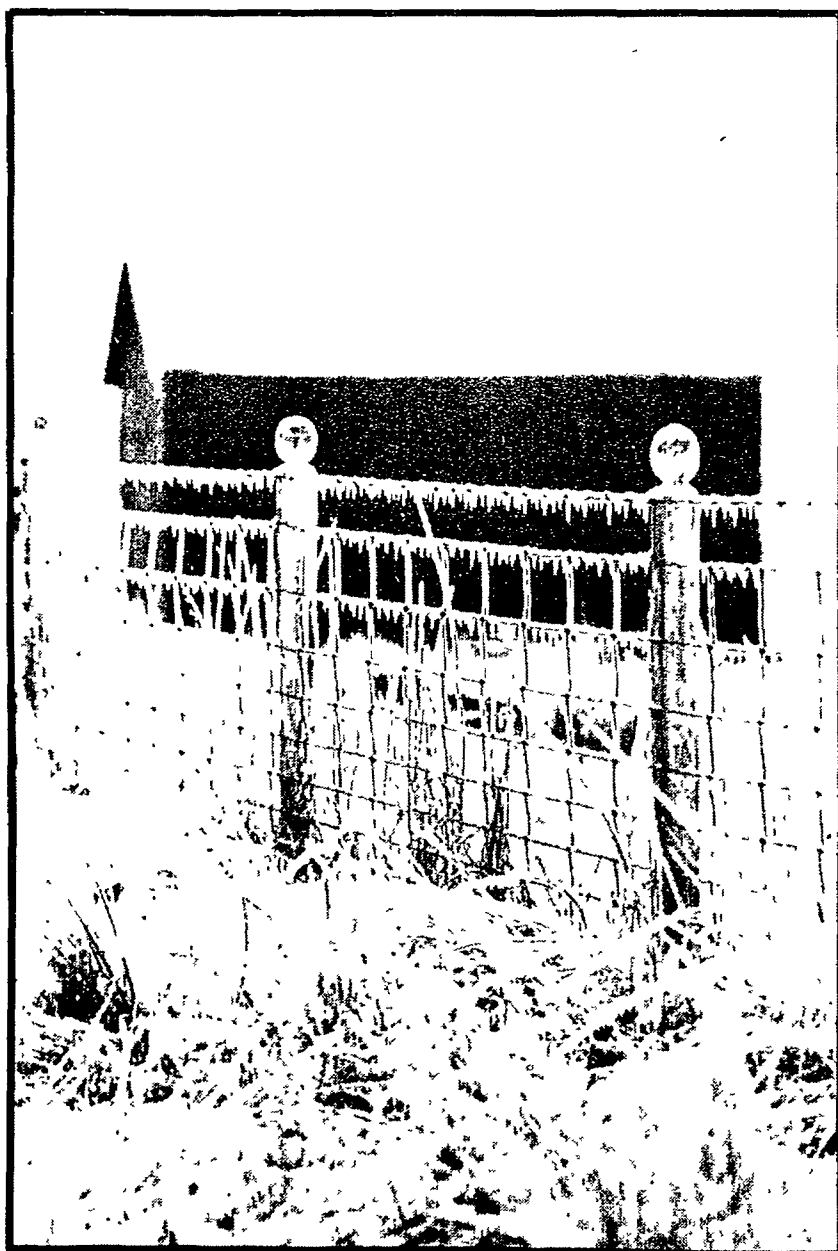

Although a good foundation is now established in most communities, further development of the community education concept is essential if the needs of everyone are to be considered. School buildings have been planned, constructed and financed by citizens. Expanded use is logical, practical, and important in integrating school-community-civic relationships.

Interest is high — the time is now. Community education should continue to expand and provide ways to better utilize all facilities and talents in every community.

JACK W. HOFFMAN'S COLUMN

The City of Northville has a couple of unusual things going for it.

It's one of the very few communities in Michigan that is located in two counties. But perhaps even more significantly, it is the only place in the state where a pair of neighbors have a golden opportunity to risk their freedom for me.

About half of Northville is in Wayne, the other half in Oakland. Eight Mile or Base Line is its dividing line.

This split down the middle has both advantages and disadvantages. Right now, though, it's a pain in my pocketbook.

While most taxpayers in Michigan can expect some measure of protection because of the tax-limiting Headlee amendment approved last November, those in Oakland section of Northville appear to have no such protection.

Unfortunately, when it comes to assessing, the two counties have different philosophies. The net result of this difference is an average 14 percent increase in Oakland, 7.5 percent in Wayne.

Under Headlee, millage rates must be reduced wherever higher assessment rates would produce a tax increase in excess of the previous year's national inflation rate (7.7). Everywhere that is except in the Oakland section of Northville. Here, despite Headlee, the state says the increase can exceed 7.7 percent.

Prevented by the state from establishing separate millage rates in the two sections of back seat facing to the rear were Brownlee and Patrol Judge George White. The car is in radio contact with the presiding judges' booth atop the stands. And Brownlee is barking out instructions over a loud speaker to the drivers ... "bring them in."

With DeClerq steering and braking, Brownlee controls the throttle until the car nears the starting wire. Then the driver takes over swinging the car to the right center of the track following the sulkies throughout the one-mile, twice-around-the-track race so that the patrol judge can watch for infractions.

Depending upon the quality of horses, the starting car drives at speeds of from 28 to 35 miles per hour.

Meanwhile up in the booths all the track action is being duly recorded. Premier Announcer Jack Riggs is calling the race. He's been at Northville Downs since 1955 and handles all the races at Wolverine, DRC and Hazel Park. Clerk of the Course Ann Butt along with Mary-Bellisario and Theresa Laichalk are charting the race in the program booth. They record the positions of every horse in the race at each eighth-mile. This information must be correctly documented and prepared for insertion in the next issue of the racing program. It's a part of the horse's racing record.

On this particular night Lee Davis was substituting for vacationing Pat O'Brien on the TV camera. KLA Laboratories handles the camera work and provides live and taped TV coverage in color transmitted on sets throughout the clubhouse.

Bill Lanam teletypes the race results to daily newspapers throughout the state, an assignment he has performed for over three decades. Bill sees and reports more than 3,000 horse races a year.

In the photo-finish booth Dan Herbert is operating a specially-designed camera which records pictures of each horse as its nose hits the finish line. In less than a few minutes Dan is flashing this picture through a hole in the wall of his booth onto a screen in the judges' booth.

In still another booth Timer Fred Kerr is recording the official time and temperature.

In the judges' booth the presiding judge runs the show. At this meet Dick Rudnicki is the presiding judge. Depending upon the meet, Rudnicki and White alternate as patrol and presiding judge.

Rudnicki (like George White, a longtime Northville resident) is an old friend of mine. He's a former newspaper publisher from Fowlerville and currently serves as drain commissioner for Livingston County.

Rudnicki is hired by Northville Downs. His operation, which largely is responsible for calling the results of the race, is closely observed by two state stewards, employees of the state of Michigan. Clayton Hulett and Frank Utter are the stewards.

As the horses hit the starting wire, Hulett presses a button which locks the pari-mutuel windows cutting off all betting.

The presiding judge calls the order of finish and it is relayed to the cashiers, who may start figuring out the pay-offs. But the results do not become official until the photo-finish prints are flashed upon the screen in the judges' booth.

Once confirmed, the results are again relayed to cashiers so they may pay the lucky winners.

My night at the races was an exciting one. And I didn't place a single bet. I was the guest of Dick Frederick, who has handled publicly for Northville Downs since harness racing was invented. And on this particular night Dick Morris, a longtime deputy commissioner for harness racing, was being honored upon his retirement by the Downs.

Among others at the pre-race dinner were Al Coffman, veteran racing writer for The Detroit News, and Jim Wright, a bright young man who is a member of the staff of Racing Commissioner F. F. Fauri. And at our table were Dorothy Janchick and Joyce Snook, Northville area residents long associated with the racing industry and employed at the Downs.

the city to achieve uniformity of taxes, city officials took their paring knives to Oakland County's big assessment increases. They cut 'em back to about nine percent.

County people didn't like Northville messing around with their assessments one bit. They went squealing to the state, demanding punishment.

All of this was weighing heavily on my mind and my wallet last week when Dick Headlee, the man for whom the tax-limiting amendment was named, came to town.

"Listen here, Headlee, how do you explain that my section of the city may be forced to pay more taxes than your amendment allows?" I demanded, pinning him to the wall.

"Don't worry," he said. "Your property taxes can't go up more than 7.7 percent."

"But the state and the county say"

"Forget what they say," he said. "The plain fact is that neither the state nor the county can make Northville do anything that would produce a tax increase greater than 7.7 percent.

"Mark my word."

I came away relieved.

But not so the mayor.

"That's easy for him to say," snapped the mayor. "He's not a lawyer, and he's not on the firing line."

The mayor of Northville is feeling a little testy these days because if city officials stick to their guns and refuse to tax Oakland residents more than allowed by Headlee they risk all manner of penalties — not the least of which might be some time in the slammer.

Having given the matter considerable study now, I'd like to offer my neighbors, the mayor and the city manager, this comforting bit of advice:

"Don't give up. Fight for me all the way to the jail. I'll look after your houses ... and your wives, and I'm reasonably sure this guy Headlee will visit you and tell the guards how splendidly you upheld his law."

Silvers Springs staff lauded

To the Editor:

As a citizen in the Northville school district, a mother of two children in the system, and as an individual who has spent time observing and helping at Silver Springs Elementary School, I have a concern.

I am concerned about the harassment some teachers and administrators are getting from a few irate and ill-informed parents. I guess there are those people who don't have anything better to do than go around bothering good, much dedicated, worthwhile people.

After having spent nearly three years helping in the classrooms, I am one mother who breathes easily about the kind of education my children are receiving at Silver Springs.

Education is a combination of home training, environment, other kinds of socialization, and the school. The schools cannot do it all! Parents often blame the schools for problems they themselves created. It is easy to make the schools the scapegoat.

More importantly than the academic training these kids receive, I am especially grateful for the care and genuine concern every child as an individual receives at this fine school.

I don't stand alone on this issue. There are many very happy and satisfied parents who would join me, I know, in saying "Thank you, Silver Springs!" We would like to be heard, too, and wish that you dissatisfied parents would settle your grievances as quickly as possible so our teachers can get back to concentrating on the teaching of all our children.

'Gasahol' receives Bob Geake's boost

Seeking to draw public attention statewide to the potential benefits of gasohol, State Senator R. Robert Geake (R-Northville) announced that he will co-sponsor a resolution in the Michigan Senate to declare a day in June "Michigan Gasohol Day" and will be a co-chairman of the day's activities.

The event was initiated by State Senator Dick Allen, a Gratiot County farmer who will serve as chairman of "Gasohol Day." Once appropriate national speakers and experts on gasohol have been arranged, the exact date of the event, featuring an all-day meeting in Lansing, will be announced.

Gasohol, a mixture of unleaded gasoline and ethyl alcohol made from agricultural products and by-products, is currently being marketed on a limited basis in Michigan and in several other states. Tests upon the alternative fuel have demonstrated that gasohol has a higher octane rating than gasoline and burns cleaner.

"Development of gasohol in Michigan could very well prove to be a major step toward solving our state's future energy and agricultural problems," Geake commented. "One of the major reasons why gasohol has not been developed any further than on a limited basis is because people are simply not aware of its potential benefits. We are hopeful that by holding an event designed specifically to promote the production and use of gasohol, we can spur its development ahead at a more rapid pace."

Geake cited four major benefits which he believes gasohol can provide: a reduction in dependence upon foreign oil; creation of a new market for agricultural by-products and excess production; protection of the international food supply for future generations; and greater reliance upon a cleaner and renewable resource.

Those interested in participating in the activities scheduled for "Gasohol Day" are urged by Geake to contact his office in the state capitol. He and Senator Allen will then coordinate attendance plans.

Should wetlands be protected?

By R. ROBERT GEAKE

Michigan State Senator

This week the senate began debate on one of the most controversial topics of the new legislative session.

On the surface, wetlands protection hardly seems to be the type of issue to inspire a fierce and prolonged legislative battle.

Who cares, you might ask, what happens to our state's swamps, marshes, and bogs?

The controversy, however, revolves precisely around the answer to this question. In reality, a lot of people care, and a lot of people have a lot of different ideas about the appropriate means to go about protecting our state's wetlands.

I believe some type of legislation is needed to preserve Michigan's wetlands.

Wetlands are defined as soggy areas with enough water to support vegetation and aquatic life. An estimated 3 million acres of Michigan land fall under this classification.

Most of us, of course, pay very little attention to the wetlands surrounding us. But, we all benefit from them.

Wetlands are not wastelands. In fact, they serve many purposes. Acre for acre, for example, they produce more wildlife in numbers and variety, and more plant growth, than any other habitat. In addition, wetlands serve as filters for silt-laden run-off water and as traps for phosphates and pesticides, thereby resulting in cleaner water entering lakes and streams in our state. They are also a strong deterrent to soil erosion.

Another major use of wetlands is flood control. Wetlands serve as temporary basins for excess rainfall, thereby diminishing the threat of flooding.

Since wetlands obviously are important from an environmental perspective, why the controversy surrounding their preservation?

Wetlands protection legislation currently before the Senate Environmental Affairs Committee has drawn serious objections from a number of groups, including some farmers, developers and real estate agents, foresters, utility companies and the Michigan Chamber of Commerce.

Specifically, the bill would allow hunting, fishing, trapping, swimming, boating, hiking, grazing, farming and lumbering in areas designated as wetlands. Permits would be required however, before anyone could dredge or fill a wetland, construct and maintain a development, or drain surface water.

Permits could be granted if the user could show that the proposed activity would not permanently disrupt the wetland, if the project would be of great economic benefit, and if it could not be performed elsewhere. Maximum penalties for first-time violations would be $10,000 a day and a year in jail.

At the heart of the argument in opposition to the bill is the constitutional premise that no government may deny people the right to use their property without just compensation. Since this bill would restrict the right of farmers and land developers to use their lands as they see fit, they assert that they should be compensated in return for forfeiting this prerogative.

I must admit that I, too, have some reservations about this bill. While I firmly believe our state needs to take some action to preserve our irreplaceable wetlands, I see validity in the argument raised by the bill's opponents. They have paid taxes on their wetlands throughout the years and would, under this bill, now be told they can't put it to use. And, of course, no one would want to buy it from them if it can't be developed.

I also recognize, however, that it would cost the taxpayers of our state a fortune to buy all the wetlands we are seeking to protect. Perhaps some financial support in terms of property taxes paid on wetlands would be more economically feasible.

The impact of wetlands protection upon the availability of agricultural land also needs to be considered. Farmland in our state is being rapidly gulped up by major land developers, thereby reducing the amount of land available for agricultural pursuits. Is it appropriate, therefore, to cut down on our state's supply of agricultural land even further by telling farmers they can't dredge certain areas of their property which may be considered protected wetland?

Yet another nagging question surrounding this issue is the uncertainty as to exactly how much land would end up being classified as wetlands. We are only guessing right now that there are approximately three million acres of wetlands in our state. We need to undertake an inventory of state wetlands to determine the exact figure and location of these areas. Since this process would be costly and lengthy, however, we must decide whether we can afford to spend the money and time doing so before acting on a wetlands bill.

I am confident that some type of wetlands legislation will be enacted by the Legislature this session. I want to see our state's wetland areas protected, but by the same token, I want to make sure that the law we pass is a fair and manageable one. I intend to work toward resolving the problems we are now facing so that we will be able to reach this goal.

More than 60 calls came into the Northville city police department between Friday and Monday about damage resulting from the wind and ice storms which swept through Northville over the weekend.

Most calls were concerned with downed wires. Township police fared little better, answering about 40 calls.

Both police departments assisted city and township fire departments on several runs as they fought tree and property fires caused by shorting wires.

Nothing was reported missing from a house on Bristol Court which was broken into Thursday evening, Northville city police said.

The owner returned home at 7 p.m. to find the door frame chipped away around the front door dead-bolt lock. The door was open, police said, but nothing was missing from the home. They could find no fingerprints.

A horseman's bookkeeping office was broken into last Thursday morning and $200 worth of property stolen, Northville city police said.

The bookkeeper locked the office, located at the Northville Downs, at 10:30 a.m. When she returned an hour later, the door was open and a Unicorn calculator was missing, police said.

Mustang tracksters lassoed

"A sprinter, a sprinter, my kingdom for a sprinter," or so Northville track Coach Ed Gabrys may have felt like saying, empathizing with Shakespeare's King Richard.

Gabrys' Mustangs traveled to Brighton for a meet with the Bulldogs and visiting Fordson High School. After the dust had cleared, Northville was a distant third, behind Fordson's 75.5 points and Brighton's 55.5. Northville tallied 36 points overall, thanks mainly to a strong showing by the distance contingent on the Mustang squad.

"We ran even with them in the distance events," Gabrys said. "But we got only six points in the sprints. Rob Marzonie came in second in the 120 high hurdles, recording a time of 15.8, which is .3 seconds off of his best, and from Doug Wright, who ran a 54.8 in the 440-yard dash. He came in second."

Pacing the Mustangs in the meet was Brian Turnbull, who ran a 4:30 in the mile run to take first. Harry Couyoumjian also added a first to the Northville cause by winning the half-mile run in a time of 2:01. Jim Bedford came in second in the two-mile event with a time of 9:55 to gain points in that event.

"These three runners have been running the same times for a while now," Gabrys said. "They're due to drop their times soon."

Taking a second for the Mustangs was their mile relay squad of Kevin Swayne, Turnbull, Couyoumjian, and Marzonie.

In the past, Northville field event attempts were typically weak aspects of their track attack. But this season could be different. Tim Ellis had a good showing, tossing the discus 119 feet and coming in third in the shot put competition.

Dave Ward had a good performance, clearing six-feet in the high jump. Ray Coram leaped 19.6 feet to come in second in the long jump.

On Saturday, April 7, the Mustangs traveled north to East Lansing to participate in the Spartan Relays.

The Northville distance medley squad improved their time in the event by six seconds, good for two places higher than where the team placed in the Huron Relays. The Mustangs finished sixth in the race at East Lansing.

The splits were Harry Couyoumjian, 2:02 in the half-mile, Ken Weber, :56 in the 440-yard dash; Joe Martin, 3:21 in the 1320-yard run; and Turnbull, who

Isshinryu Karate class is alive and kicking

By JIM HAYNES

It could happen anywhere, anytime. You could be walking to your car late one night and suddenly realize that you're being followed. You could be in a bar, minding your own business, when a bully decides that you are fair game. Or you could just be sitting at home watching television and hear the scrape of a jimmy prying open a window.

The point is, at sometime in each of our lives, it becomes necessary to defend ourselves. Unless you are a gun freak and carry a weapon with you at all times, all that most people have at hand in any given situation is the arsenal that we were born with. Our hands and our feet.

For the last 14 years, Bob White, the instructor for the Northville Community Recreation Isshinryu Karate class, has made a study of the use of this ready-made and very deadly arsenal.

"I used to play professional football," White said. "I started taking Japanese karate to stay in shape. When I moved to this area, I started studying Isshinryu."

White, a fourth degree Black Belt, has put his practice to action, recently winning awards in weapons division of championship karate meets. Before that, he won the Chicago Open Karate tournament, the state of Ohio Heavyweight Karate Championship, and the state of Michigan Heavyweight Karate Championship.

On a less formal level, White has had to use his skills only four times in the last 14 years to defend himself.

"One time was at a bar, and I couldn't get out of it. They guy was going to hit me with a chair," White said. The results may be a little surprising. "I ended up paying all of his hospital bills beyond what his insurance took care of. The law says that if you're a professional fighter, then you are responsible for damages in a situation like that. You're supposed to just block the chair and hit once."

White learned his lesson. Next time he knew better. Twice he has caught characters breaking into his car, and twice he has left (after making sure they were still alive, and that there was someone to call an ambulance) before they recovered, so he wouldn't get sued.

But don't get the wrong impression of karate or of White, from those isolated incidents.

Karate is more than Bruce Lee beating up 50 quip. To White, and to those who have devoted a good portion of time to its study, it is a way of life. And this is what he tries to teach his pupils in the rec class.

"I teach the overall aspects of martial arts," White said. "Self-defense and the complete philosophy. I take them through every phase. Weapons, philosophy, meditation and breathing, all of it. But they don't learn enough in any one eight week course, however, and that's why I want to make it a club."

"I emphasize in every class that they only use it to defend themselves or in a tournament or exhibition," White said.

Isshinryu is a form of karate that was developed in the Okinawan island of Ryukyu. Its emphasis is about 55 split between upper body movements and kicking. Korean karate, according to White, emphasizes the kicking aspect to a greater degree.

White's class has 18 students in it now. They range from the ages of six to 48. The students work for belts (symbols of rank earned from displays of prowess, not time), with white the basic, up through green, brown and then black.

A typical list of knowledge needed in order to earn a white belt according to White, is one kata (form), all basics, five self-defense moves, five one-step fighting moves, and the ability to demonstrate prowess in free sparring.

Most of White's students have earned belts of one color or another, even black.

"I learned a long time ago that if I was going to teach it (karate), then it would have to be for the art and not the money," White said. "With handball, or baseball, you need a partner to practice, but in martial arts, you only need yourself."

SIDELINES

By Jim Haynes

It hit me the other day that I am closing in on old age. Right now I am enjoying the peaceful bliss of middle age. I'm 25.

If I were a baseball player, more than likely I would have signed with a team out of high school at the age of 18. Then, a couple years in the minors, maybe five more with the big league club. The average player usually lasts until the age of 28 or 29. After that it's on to coaching or selling life insurance.

Out of college at the age of 22, and on into professional football, a running back has an average career of five years. That means retirement at the age of 27. The other positions last a bit longer, with quarterbacks having usually the longest life-span, retiring at around the age of 30-31, or if a superstar, maybe 35. George Blanda, the granddaddy of them all, retired a couple of years ago at the age of 45.

Basketball and hockey players usually go on to selling cars after the age of 30, as do professional soccer and tennis players. Golf and bowling pros have long lifespans athletically speaking, usually competing professionally into their 40's. Race car drivers never die, they just turn into knarled pistons.

The point is, today's society bases it's concept of youth and old age on the sporting world's, and it isn't fair. We read about Gordie Howe, who just keeps playing on and on forever, even to the age of 50. When people in their late 40's read about him, it is drilled into their heads what a great, albeit highly unusual feat it is for a person to be competing at that age. Immediately they accept the rationale that late 40's means old.

Football and basketball players who retire in their 30's set a standard for those of us in society who follow sports (a vast majority), in regards to self-concept of age.

When the dreadful age of 30 approaches, horror stricken with thoughts of youth lost, people don't think of the 50 or so years left to them, but only that Joe Namath was washed up at that age, and so was Gale Sayers and Joe Coleman. Thoughts of retirement and Florida retreats crowd out plans for summer outings and present day activities. Maybe this is changing, however.

There is a big upsurge in the health kick these days. More people are jogging, playing racquet ball, softball and water activities, than ever before. This may indicate a rejection of the "old-age" influence of professional sports.

We have to get back to the original concept of sports. Competition was created as a form of diversion and fun. After that it was used as a form of community pride, pitting the local best (against) a (neighboring) village's champion. I would like to see this original purity put back into sports. But that is impossible now.

Sports is no longer (friendly) competition between neighboring communities. It is the big business. Money is the goal, victory the means to some. By worshipping the athlete instead of the sport, healthy competition and the enjoyment of watching it are replaced by hero worship and envy.

It is only this way because we let it stay so. We pay the players' salaries by buying outrageously overpriced tickets. There is a trend now that seems encouraging. Professional basketball is coming in a poor second to collegiate ball on the tube, because the amateurs are still, for the most part, playing for victory, and not money.

Mutuel handle falls, too

Downs attendance record is set

Northville Downs closed its 36th season of harness racing Saturday night claiming the best gains for any harness racing track in the nation.

The 84-night meet was the best ever recorded by the local track.

Total mutuel handle was $39,758,688 for the current Downs' meet which began January 1. Average nightly handle was $473,318, a 16.1 percent increase over last year when nightly betting averaged $407,541.

Attendance showed a 9.5 percent increase this year with a total meet attendance of 281,556, an average of 3,352 nightly.

Downs' Recording Secretary Margaret Zayti noted that only the Pompano harness racing track in Florida has matched Northville's gains across the nation. "And they run 12 times with Sunday meets," Mrs. Zayti points out.

The betting mark established this year at Northville exceeds the previous high handle average, set when the Downs conducted summer meets. In a 54-night meet in the summer of 1970 betting averaged $417,584.

The horsemen also benefited from the increased business. Their purses hit a high mark of $2,505,750. Horsemen receive 49 percent of the track commission for purses. In addition, notes Mrs. Zayti, some $79,000 was paid in health and welfare insurance benefits for horsemen by the track.

The city of Northville also stands to collect its biggest slice of parimutuel rebates from the state of Michigan this year. From the Downs' meet the city will receive more than $325,000

Rec office closed Good Friday

Stop! Hold the presses! The Record sports staff made a mistake in last week's recreation news.

The Northville Community Recreation Department will not be closed during the week of Easter vacation for the school year as previously reported. Only the rec classes will be closed. The offices will remain open for business as usual.

There will be a trip to Canada for Northville senior citizens on Saturday, April 14. It begins at 11 a.m. The group will leave from the Kerr House, located behind the post office. Call the rec department to secure a reservation. The group will go for lunch and some shopping, returning around 5 p.m.

There will be a regular commission meeting on Wednesday, April 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the Recreation offices.

The recreation offices will be closed on Good Friday.

Brian Turnbull

Athlete of the week

Whether in the classroom or on the track, Northville's Brian Turnbull is a winner. Holder of a 3.6 grade point average, Turnbull displays the same excellence in his studies that he does setting new school records in track and cross country for the Mustangs.

Turnbull is a four year letter winner. He is the captain of the Mustangs for the second year in a row.

He has set three-mile school records in cross country and holds the school mile mark in track.

His coach, Ed Gabrys, indicated that six times within the last three weeks

Turnbull has run the mile race in competition in the low 3:40's, just a matter of seconds away from his school record.

In the meet against Brighton and Fordson High Schools that took place April 3, Turnbull paced the Mustangs with a good performance in the mile. He took first place in a time of 4:30. He also helped the mile relay squad take second at the meet.

"Brian displays good leadership capacities," Gabrys said. "We have a fine distance crew, and they look to Brian for leadership. He is always willing to run when necessary."

Checkmate holocaust

The People's Almanac reports that the very worst performance in chess was given by Joe Hayden, 17, who challenged 180 persons to play simultaneous games against him at a shopping center in Cardiff, New Jersey in August 1977.

Only 20 showed up, of whom 18 beat him, including Stowell Fulton, 7, who needed only a few moves. Hayden's two wins were against a man who grew tired of waiting between moves and withdrew; and Hayden's own mother.

Bob Boshover, Jim Behen and Mike Lauck are a well charged Mustang battery

Mustang diamondmen gear for action

Excuses are like bellybuttons, everyone has them. Except in the case of Northville baseball Coach Bob Kucher. His seem to be somewhat justified.

Going into the first game of last year's campaign, Kucher had only three "pitchers" on his squad, which was made up primarily of seniors who had never played varsity baseball before. Of the three pitchers, one was a converted outfielder and the other an infielder. The third had never pitched in a varsity contest before.

The Mustangs finished the season 6-12 overall and 2-8 in the league.

This year the squad boasts seven pitchers, all of whom have had some pitching experience.

"Last year was unusual for Northville," Kucher said. "We've been noted in the past for having outstanding pitching, with a few of our boys even going on into professional baseball. But last year was different. We didn't have much."

Of the seven pitchers this year, the most experienced is Mike Lauck, a senior who last year recorded a 2-4 mark, with an E.R.A. (earned run average) of 2.76. He also notched the second most innings of the mound staff.

"Lauck was a better pitcher than the stats indicated," Kucher said. "He lost two games to Plymouth-Canton by one run each, and both of those runs were unearned."

Dave Austin is another veteran hurler returning from last year's squad. He tied Lauck for the second most innings pitched. Austin was 2-3 last year, with a 3.31 E.R.A. Due to the depth of this year's squad, Kucher indicated that he may play Austin at shortstop or second base.

Pitching isn't the only area where the Mustangs display depth. Lining up the pitchers' sights this year will be a couple of young catchers that Kucher is high on.

Bob Boshoven, a junior, is up from the JV this season. He is an all-around athlete who, in the off season, plays goalie for a Northville hockey team.

Jim Behen, also a junior, was moved up to the varsity last year as a replacement for the Mustangs' injured receiver. He played a lot and is expected to provide solid backstop work this season.

"Both of them are excellent all-around athletes," Kucher said. "I'll probably alternate them behind the plate during double-headers. When one is behind the plate, the other will be in the outfield."

The leading hitter for this year's team is Jeff Norton, who whacked a solid .265 batting average last season.

There are six returning lettermen from last year's edition of the Mustangs, who along with the rest of the squad, have been working hard for the season.

"One of the few advantages to the nasty weather we've been getting," Kucher said, "is that you can spend a great deal of time inside working on fundamentals and pitching. We've been practicing every day from Monday to Friday. We started with 35 guys trying out for the varsity, and 20 for the JV."

Swimmers honored

The Northville High School varsity swim team had its annual awards banquet April 3 at Meads Mill Middle School.

Receiving the Sophomore High Point Trophy was Tony Nader. The recipient of the Junior High Point Trophy was Russ Gans, while Rick Bargert took the senior award.

Copping the Most Improved Swimmer award was Brady Kramer. Most Valuable Swimmer for the Mustangs was Bill Lockwood.

Lance Carter is Mustangs' no. 2 singles player

Diamondmen ready

This year the varsity will consist of 15 players, as will the JV. Two newcomers to the squad could lend much needed depth to the Mustangs this year. John Hale, a junior transfer from Catholic Central High School, is a pitcher-outfielder. Roland Tarrow, who pitches and also roams the outfield, is a senior transfer from South Lyon High School.

"The strength of the team has to be our defense," Kucher said. "We're strong in the infield and outfield, and if the pitching is solid, then our defense will really be tough."

"We've been outside only three days, so it's tough to say how our hitting will be," Kucher said. "But from watching these guys in summer ball and baseball last year here, we should be solid defensively."

Up from the JV and expected to help the Mustang cause are Jim Marcicki, a senior pitcher-third baseman, Rob Ade, Dan Goehmann and Rick Borthwick, all of whom were JV pitchers.

Kucher is realistic when sizing up the league race this year. "On paper, it would appear that Canton is the favorite. They have two of the top pitchers in the state in Brian James and Scott Dawson, and both will be back. But I believe that the quality of baseball in our league is such that any team can beat another, and anyone is capable of winning the championship."

Tennis team to defend league championship

Northville tennis Coach Bob Simpson doesn't want to sound pessimistic, but even he feels that it will be tough for his Mustangs to repeat as league champions.

Last year Northville was 16-1 over all and 10-0 in league play.

From that championship squad there are only three returnees.

"I don't like to think that we are in a rebuilding year," Simpson said. "I don't like that term. I think we will have a strong team this year.

"We have a tougher non-league schedule this year than last, but I'm more concerned with winning the league. That is our immediate goal. I think that Farmington Harrison will be a very strong team this year. They have eight people back this year. They should be tough."

The top returning letterman for this year's edition of the Mustangs is junior Barry Ouellette, the number one singles league champion last year.

"Barry is one of the top players in southeast Michigan this year. We're counting on him to do well."

Lance Carter is another of the championship returnees. He moves up from his position of regional league champion in doubles to the second singles slot on the Mustang roster.

Dave Herbel and Doug Horst will occupy the third and fourth singles positions for Northville, with the competition still open in regards to which player will get what seed.

Greg Bach returns to anchor the doubles phase of the Mustang tennis attack. He was the third flight doubles champion last year in the league. Andy Orlando and Ian Wild have a lock on another doubles slot.

Dave Fisher and Daryl Swayne, along with Jim Herbel and Russ Horst round out the doubles contingent for Northville.

Gitfiddler gets conditional okay for new shop

Can a building with a Western motif live comfortably in a town committed to a Victorian theme?

At least one member of the Northville City Planning Commission had doubts at the commission's April 3 meeting as Thomas Rice sought architectural and site plan approval for the renovation of a former gas station building at 302 East Main for his Gitfiddler music store.

Since appearing before the commission at its March 6 meeting, Rice had been to the zoning appeals board and the historical commission seeking parking variance and approvals. Stewart Kissinger, a commission member who also had attended the historical commission meeting, stated he has strong feelings that the building should be in harmony with those surrounding it.

"With Main Street '78 adopting a Victorian theme and a Greek Revival church across the street I feel something could be more sympathetic," he urged.

Rice replied that he did not want a Victorian theme.

"I want Western — to depict my music," he explained.

Kissinger told the applicant that he feels it would be the proposed guitar-shaped sign rather than the split rail fence or building that would advertise Rice's business.

Rice told the commission he had only 15 days remaining on the lease of his present studio on Center and said he was waiting to start on the building he has purchased.

Lesa Buckland, acting chairman, reported that the historical commission is charged to preserve buildings of historical significance but does not rule on later structures, such as the former gas station.

The commission agreed with the board of appeals in the granting of additional parking places on the side, saying that it felt it valid to have the seven spaces on the premises.

At the historical commission meeting Rice had agreed to replace a planned barn-like door with one he owns with cut glass windows and to eliminate a wagon wheel ornament as well as keep window sizes consistent in size.

Rice and his architect explained to the planners that the window variations had been caused by two levels of flooring inside the building.

While voting approval for Rice to proceed with interior work, the commissioners expressed concern that the city planning consultant had not viewed the revised plans. Kissinger abstained as approval was voted.

Rice was informed that separate approvals will have to be obtained for the fence and sign. He also was told that drainage, lighting and landscaping approvals still must be sought.

Bill McLaughlin opens Detroit commerce unit

State Commerce Director William F. McLaughlin of Northville has announced the Michigan Department of Commerce is establishing a full time office of the director in Detroit "to underscore our commitment" to urban revitalization.

In remarks prepared for the Booker T. Washington Business Association meeting, McLaughlin said:

"I envision this new office in an activist role — communicating with and assisting citizens in all walks of life, from the board room to the neighborhood grocery store."

"This office will be my personal direct liaison with Detroit and southeastern Michigan."

McLaughlin, whose headquarters are in Lansing, said he expects to spend at least several days a week working in the Detroit office.

The new office, in the State of Michigan Plaza Building, 1200 Sixth Street, will be headed by James U. DeFrancis, who served as special assistant to former U.S. Senator Robert P. Griffin, and managed Griffin's Detroit office for six years.

DeFrancis, a native Detroit, graduated from Albion College and also attended Wayne State University.

The new state commerce director's office will work with the Detroit offices of Governor William G. Milliken and the "Office of Economic Development/Michigan Department of Commerce," McLaughlin said.

McLaughlin said local and state leaders must look to themselves for the keys to urban redevelopment.

"There was a feeling at one time that the federal government could solve all of our nation's urban problems," he said. "The fate of our cities is in our hands, yours and mine. We must solve our problems because Uncle Sam alone cannot, and perhaps should not."

"I believe that the long-term answer to our urban problems lies not in make-work projects or federal subsidy programs, but in the revitalization of Detroit's business community," he said.

The new stress in Michigan on a state-local partnership to address urban problems "has given us a strong start toward an eventual local solution," McLaughlin said.

"The spirit of cooperation and the working partnership between Governor Milliken and Mayor Young is unprecedented in the history of our state," the state commerce director said. "Maybe, when you consider that they come from opposing political parties, it is unprecedented in the nation."

McLaughlin said an important element of urban revitalization is aid to small and minority business operators.

"The majority of business is small business and in Detroit a good percentage of small business is minority business," the state commerce director said. "A healthy business climate will mean jobs for Michigan working men and women."

"Convention business is big business in Detroit," McLaughlin said, adding that the Republican National Convention alone should bring $17 million in business to the Detroit area while the 1982 Super Bowl will account for $80 million more.

"We hope this effort will enable our minority businesses to become more competitive when it comes to convention business and our convention community to become more aware of the potential of our minority businessmen and women," McLaughlin said.

BOND AUTHORIZING RESOLUTION

RESOLUTION AUTHORIZING THE ISSUANCE AND SALE OF $868,000 CITY OF NOVI, MICHIGAN, LIMITED OBLIGATION INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT REVENUE BONDS (ALPHA INDUSTRIES, INC. PROJECT), SERIES A, TO FINANCE THE ACQUISITION AND CONSTRUCTION OF CERTAIN INDUSTRIAL FACILITIES FOR LEASE TO ALPHA INDUSTRIES, INC., AUTHORIZING THE EXECUTION AND DELIVERY OF THE CONTRACT, THE MORTGAGE AND INDENTURE OF TRUST SECURING THE BONDS, AND THE BOND PURCHASE AGREEMENT, ACKNOWLEDGING THE GUARANTEE OF THE BONDS BY ALPHA INDUSTRIES, INC., AND RESERVING THE RIGHT TO ISSUE ADDITIONAL PARITY BONDS, ALL IN CONNECTION WITH THE ISSUANCE AND SALE OF SAID SERIES A BONDS, AND AUTHORIZING AND DETERMINING OTHER MATTERS RELATIVE THERETO.

CITY OF NOVI
MICHIGAN

Premises

Alpha Industries, Inc. (the "Company") has previously proposed the acquisition and construction of an industrial building and the site therefor (hereinafter defined as the "Project"), within the jurisdiction of the City of Novi (the "Municipality"), and as an inducement for such construction the Company requested the Municipality to assist in the financing of the Project in the following general manner (as detailed in the Contract and the Indenture hereinafter defined): The Municipality would issue its limited obligation industrial development revenue bonds under Act No. 62 (hereinafter defined) and would use the proceeds of such bonds to acquire the Project from the Company as the Company causes the Project to be acquired and constructed. The Municipality would lease the Project back to the Company under the Contract. Under the terms of the Contract the Company would under any circumstances pay rentals sufficient to pay the principal and interest on the bonds, and would be responsible for paying any Project costs exceeding the amount of the bonds, maintaining and insuring the Project and paying all taxes and expenses relating to the Project. Upon full payment of the bonds or provision therefor, the Project would be reconveyed to the Company.

The only reason for the Municipality's participation in the financing of the Project and the purpose of Act No. 62 is to enable the Company to utilize applicable provisions of the United States Internal Revenue Code. Section 103 of the Code encourages the construction of certain industrial facilities and the public financing thereof through industrial development revenue bonds, by providing that the interest on such bonds, as contrasted with any bonds issued by the Company itself, will be exempt from Federal income tax. This tax exemption enables the bond purchaser to accept a lower rate of interest, and since the Company in effect pays the interest on the bonds, reduces the interest cost of the Project financing to the Company.

On the basis of representations of the Company and the advice of Bond Counsel (hereinafter defined) that the Municipality has the authority to issue the Bonds, acquire the Project and lease the Project to the Company and in order to induce construction of the Project, and thereby alleviate and prevent conditions of unemployment, assist and retain local industries, meet growing competition for new industries and strengthen and revitalize the economy of the Municipality in general, the Municipality has previously determined to issue the Series A Bonds (hereinafter defined) subject to the following conditions: principal and interest on the Series A Bonds and any other cost or liability relating to the Series A Bonds or the issuance or sale thereof, the Project, or the ownership or financing thereof and the performance of any obligation of the Municipality under the Contract, the Indenture or the Bond Purchase Agreement (hereinafter defined) shall never be payable from tax revenues or other general funds of the Municipality, but shall be payable only from the net revenues derived from the Project, as detailed in the Indenture, or the Guarantee of the Company.

The Company has estimated the cost of the Project, including expenses incidental thereto and to the issuance of the Series A Bonds, to be $868,000, and has tentatively arranged the financial terms and sale of Series A Bonds in that amount to the Purchaser (hereinafter defined). The Company and the Purchaser have proposed a Trustee for the Bonds. The Municipality, the Company, the Trustee and the Purchaser have completed negotiation and drafting of the Contract, the Indenture, the Guarantee and the Bond Purchase Agreement and have submitted these documents to this City Council for review and action. It is now appropriate for the City Council to act on these proposed documents and the proposed issuance and sale of the Series A Bonds.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED by the City Council of the Municipality:

1. The following words and terms as used in the Resolution and the preambles hereto shall have the following meanings unless the context or use clearly indicates another or different meaning or intent: "Acquisition Fund" or "City of Novi Industrial Development Acquisition Fund — Alpha Industries, Inc. Project" means the fund created by Section 9 hereof.

"Act No. 62" means Act No. 62, Michigan Public Acts, 1963, as amended.

"Additional Bonds" means the additional parity Bonds which the Municipality reserves the right to issue under Section 17 hereof and which are permitted to be issued in one or more series from time to time under Section 207 of the Indenture.

Moneys in the Surplus Fund may be used from time to time, so long as the Company is not in default under the Contract, as the Company may direct the Trustee in writing for (i) payment of part or all of the Cost of constructing Improvements to the Project (as defined in the Contract) or in the event of condemnation or destruction of the Project, restoring the Project, provided, however, that the Trustee shall be furnished with an opinion of Counsel (as defined in the Contract) that the expenditure of moneys for such Improvements or restoration is permitted by Act No. 62 and will not impair the exemption of interest on the Bonds from Federal income taxation; or

(ii) transfer to and deposit in the Bond Fund; provided, however, that any Surplus Bond Proceeds (i.e., amounts transferred from the Acquisition Fund to the Surplus Fund pursuant to Section 3.3 of the Contract) and the income and profit derived therefrom so transferred to the Bond Fund may be used to pay interest on the Bonds, but only interest accruing for up to and no more than six months after the Completion Date (as defined in the Contract).

The Guarantee shall be in the form approved with such changes as may be necessary or desirable, permitted by Act No. 62 and otherwise by law, and not materially adverse to the Municipality or the Bondholders.

21. The Series A Bonds shall be sold by the Municipality to the Purchaser at a purchase price of 100% of the principal amount thereof plus accrued interest thereon from March 1, 1979 to the date of delivery and payment for the Series A Bonds in accordance with the terms and conditions set forth in the Bond Purchase Agreement. Both principal of and interest on this Bond are payable in lawful money of the United States of America at the principal office of Michigan National Bank of Detroit, Detroit, Michigan, or its successor in trust (the "Trustee").

This Bond is one of an authorized series of bonds issued in the aggregate principal amount of $868,000 (the "Series A Bonds"), for the purpose of acquiring an industrial building and the site therefor, (collectively the "Project"), and leasing the same to Alpha Industries, Inc., a Michigan corporation (the "Company") pursuant to a Lease Contract dated as of March 1, 1979 (the "Contract"), and paying necessary expenses incidental thereto and to the issuance of the Series A Bonds so as to thereby alleviate unemployment, assist local industries, enterprises and revitalize the economy of the City of Novi, Michigan, in general.

The Series A Bonds are issuable in the form of coupon bonds, and are fully negotiable, but a Series A Bond may be registered as to principal on the registration books of the Issuer in the office of the Trustee as Bond Registrar, upon presentation thereof at such office and the notation of such registration endorsed thereon by the Trustee as Bond Registrar, and such Series A Bond may thereafter only be transferred on such Books by the registered owner in person or by duly authorized attorney, evidence of such transfer to be in like manner endorsed hereon. Such transfer may be to bearer, and thereby transferability by delivery shall be restored, subject, however, to successive registrations and transfers as before. The principal of a Series A Bond, if registered, unless registered to bearer, shall be payable only to the registered owner or his legal representative. Interest accruing on the Series A Bonds, will be paid only on presentation and surrender of the attached interest coupons as they respectively become due, and registration of a Series A Bond as to principal as aforesaid will not affect the transferability by delivery of such coupons; provided, that if upon registration of a Series A Bond, or at any time thereafter while a Series A Bond is registered in the name of the owner, the unpaid coupons attached evidencing interest to be thereafter paid hereon shall be surrendered to said Bond Registrar a statement to that effect will be endorsed hereon by the Bond Registrar and thereafter interest evidenced by such surrendered coupons will be paid by check or draft of the Bond Registrar at the times provided herein to the registered owner of such Series A Bond by mail to the address shown on the registration books. A Series A Bond when so converted into a Series A Bond registered as to both principal and interest may be reconverted into a coupon Bond at the written request of the registered owner and upon presentation at the office of said Bond Registrar in the manner and upon payment of the charges provided in the Indenture. Upon such reconversion the coupons representing the interest to become due thereafter to the date of maturity will again be attached to the Series A Bond and a statement will be endorsed hereon by the Bond Registrar in the registration blank on the back of the Series A Bond whether it is then registered as to principal alone or payable to bearer.

Optional Redemption

The Series A Bonds are also subject to redemption, in whole or in part, in inverse order of maturity, on any interest payment date on or after September 1, 1980, at 100% of the principal amount of the Series A Bonds redeemed plus accrued interest to the redemption date plus a premium of 2% of the par value of each Bond redeemed on or before September 1, 1984.

Notice of the call for any such redemption, which shall identify the bonds to be redeemed, shall be given by the Trustee by publication in a financial journal or newspaper of general circulation published in the City of New York, New York which carries as a part of its regular service notices of sale of municipal bonds, not less than 30 nor more than 45 days prior to the redemption date, and in the case of redemption of Bonds at the time registered as to principal (except to bearer) or both principal and interest, upon mailing by the Trustee, a copy of the redemption notice by first-class mail not less than 30 nor more than 45 days prior to the redemption date to the registered owner of each Bond to be redeemed at the address shown on the registration books; provided however, that failure to give such notice by mailing, or any defect therein, shall not affect the validity of any proceedings for the redemption of Bonds. If all of said Bonds to be redeemed are at that time registered as to principal (except to bearer), notice by first-class mail to the owner or owners thereof not less than 30 days nor more than 45 days prior to the redemption date shall be sufficient and published notice of the call for redemption need not be given. If because of the temporary or permanent suspension of the publication or general circulation of any newspaper or financial journal or for any other reason, it is impossible or impractical to publish such notice of call for redemption in the manner herein provided, then any publication in lieu thereof as shall be made with the approval of the Trustee shall constitute a sufficient publication of notice.

Neither this Bond nor the appurtenant coupons shall be valid or become obligatory for any purpose until the Trustee's Certificate of Authentication hereon shall have been executed by the Trustee.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the City of Novi, Michigan has caused this bond to be signed in its name by its Mayor and countersigned by its City Clerk, and its corporate seal to be affixed hereto, and has caused the appurtenant interest coupons to be executed by the facsimile signatures of its Mayor and City Clerk, all as of the first day of March, 1979.

Town's concern goes way back with walkaways

man complained that he had been shot in the head with a shotgun. But police found no blood or wound. While the man talked on incessantly, they returned him to the hospital.

Last April 13, a 26-year-old patient frightened a woman and her two teenage children who were at their home 100 yards off Seven Mile near the hospital. The man broke into their breezeway, pounded on the door, and asked to use the telephone. The woman did not let him in but called police, who came and apprehended the man.

A young woman told a man she had been raped and asked for a ride home to Detroit. He gave her the ride, and later found out she had walked away from the state hospital and had torn her own clothes so he would believe her story.

In the fall of 1975, a minister's wife and small daughter were frightened when they returned home and heard a man in the bedroom. They ran to a neighbor's and called police. The man, a walkaway, had been swimming in the backyard fish pond, had ransacked the bedroom and put on some of the woman's clothes, and had raided their kitchen cupboards.

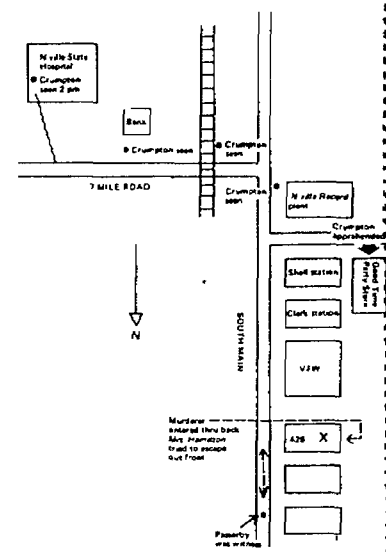

After the 1975 incident, a general public outcry resulted in beefed-up security patrols. But in the wake of last week's murder almost every city and township official charged that those patrols have been lax.

Northville State Hospital Director John Reynolds met with city and township officials Tuesday afternoon in his office to discuss what steps can be taken to curb the unauthorized leaves.

Reynolds also will appear before the Northville Township Board of Trustees Thursday night at the township hall.

A fence to be built around the perimeter of the Northville State Hospital grounds was urged by State Senator R. Robert Geake of Northville last Thursday. Mayor Paul Vernon and Supervisor Donald Thomson supported the fence proposal.

The Department of Mental Health will fight the proposal, because they think the facilities should have the atmosphere of campuses, not prisons," Geake said. But he vowed to pursue state appropriations for the fence.

Geake sits on the appropriations committee.

Reynolds said interviews are being held to hire 11 new security patrolmen so that the number of walkaways can be curtailed.

Meanwhile, Northville residents are half horrified, half philosophical about the walkaways and the murder. "Yes, this scares me," Marguerite Hartner of 416 South Main said of Mrs. Hamilton's death. "I've lived here a long time and it makes me want to move away." Mrs. Hartner lived two houses away from Mrs. Hamilton.

"Another murder might not happen again for a hundred years. Or it might happen again soon," she said.

"I have no beef with the patients," said John Steimel, Northville postmaster and a 32-year resident here. "These people need rehabilitating. But when they have a violent tendency, you don't let them out. Where's our security that lets them walk off the property?" he said.

Steimel said he plans to "rabble-rouse and get enough people riled up so the mayor and city council do something."

"If it takes more security and it takes more funds, let's get it, for the patient's protection and our protection," he said.

Legal picture changes for insanity defense

sentence, he would likely be committed to a hospital run by the Department of Mental Health.

Once "cured," he was free to leave because he had been found not guilty of the charge against him.

In 1974, a ruling by the Michigan Supreme Court erased the distinction between mental health patients committed by normal civil hearings and those committed by the courts.

If prosecutors wanted someone committed against his will, they would have to go through the same civil court proceedings as anyone else.

When prosecutors were unable to sustain the commitments of some defendants found "not guilty by reason of insanity" and when a few of those were charged with violent crimes following their release from hospitals, there was a public cry from prosecuting attorneys and legislators.

The result was a 1975 law which created a new verdict: guilty but mentally ill.

A defendant so judged is remanded to the custody of the Department of Corrections which is supposed to provide him with psychiatric care from either staff professionals or from the Department of Mental Health.

In this case, if the defendant is deemed "cured," he must still serve out the remaining time of any sentence imposed by the judge.

Newhart, who opposes the law which is being challenged in court, says "guilty but mentally ill" in effect creates a new slot between "guilty" and "not guilty by reason of insanity."

"It allows juries to say, 'You are not insane but you are not playing with a full deck,'" he says.

The law creates a hazy distinction between "mentally ill" and "legally insane" which is not recognized by the mental health profession, he says.

Most juries, rather than feel they are risking the chance of setting a guilty man free, will opt for the new verdict because they mistakenly feel they are providing mental health care that the defendant would not normally get, he says.

But he contends the Department of Corrections does not have the staff, facilities, or manpower to provide any more mental health care to inmates found "guilty but mentally ill" than is provided to ordinary prisoners.

That care, he said, is insufficient and a basis for the court challenge.

Friday at First Baptist Church by the choir under the direction of Richard Ruffner.

FIRST METHODIST

Throughout the community clergymen will be retelling the story of the Resurrection Sunday to Easter churchgoers

The Reverend Guenther C. Branstner of First United Methodist Church has chosen the title, "Strange Fruit," for his Easter message at 10 a.m. It comes, he says, from Paul's account of the Resurrection in I Corinthians

The Methodist minister also will be giving the sermon at the community Good Friday service at 1:30 p.m. Friday at First Presbyterian Church. His topic will be "Remember Me."

The following is a listing of Easter-season events and services in local churches.

FIRST BAPTIST

Sunrise service will be held at 6:30 a.m. Easter morning at the Edward Hines Park behind Northville Athletic Field. Breakfast will follow at the church. At 11 a.m. Sunday Dr. James Luther will be speaking from Psalm 22

Dr. Luther will be guest speaker at the Good Friday united service at First Baptist Church in Wixom.

"The Last Week," a cantata by John Peterson, will be presented at 7:30 p.m.

Members of First Methodist Church will share personal Easter experiences at the brief 7 a.m. Easter service which will be followed by a breakfast served by the Methodist Men at 7:30 a.m. No reservations are necessary. The 10 a.m. Easter service is to follow.

There will be two Maundy Thursday servings of communion at 7:30 and 8 p.m. Communion will be served at tables for 12 in the fellowship hall.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN

"Do Not Be Afraid" will be the Reverend Lloyd G. Brasure's sermon topic for the 9:30 and 11 a.m. Easter services at First Presbyterian Church. The minister said he is using the words of the angel in the resurrection story as his sermon theme.

Senior high youth of the church are presenting a drama with music, "Death Day-Life Day," at the 7 a.m. Easter sunrise service. The Reverend John Mishler, assistant minister of the church, explained that the sunrise pageant with dramatic readings is a contemporary reflection. An Easter breakfast will follow.

Women of the church are holding their traditional White Breakfast at 9 a.m. today. Maundy Thursday tenebrae service with communion will be at 8 p.m.

OUR LADY OF VICTORY CATHOLIC

Parishioners of Our Lady of Victory Catholic Church will have an opportunity to share a Seder Meal at 6 p.m. on Holy Thursday. Seder is a ritual meal celebrating the Passover.

At 7:30 p.m. Maundy Thursday members will gather for the "Meal of the New Covenant" known as the Mass of the Lord's Supper. At this gathering, the church liturgy commission explains, those participating will recall the meal Jesus gave when he was about the die, commanding that His followers celebrate "in Remembrance of Me."

After the mass there will be Benediction and Exposition of the Blessed Sacrament until midnight.

"Our Lord's Passion" will be celebrated Good Friday, beginning at 1 p.m. with readings from scripture on the suffering and death of Jesus Christ.

"Then," the committee states, "believing that we have in Jesus a high priest who intercedes for us, we make known our prayers and petitions. During Good Friday we have the liturgy of the cross. This is a sign of our understanding that it is through the cross that we are saved."

Distribution of the holy communion will close the Good Friday services.

On Holy Saturday there will be a blessing of food at noon. The Celebration of the Resurrection will begin at 7:30 p.m. with the Easter Vigil Service and Mass. This is the service of light, symbolizing passing from darkness into the light and life of the Risen Lord.

Easter celebration will continue at each of the masses Sunday. These are at 8, 9:30 and 11 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. The choir will sing at the Easter vigil and at the 11 a.m. service. A guitar mass also will be at 11 a.m. in the church social hall.

The Sacrament of Reconciliation is available at 3 p.m. Good Friday and from 10 a.m. until noon and from 3-4 p.m. Good Friday.

ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN

Good Friday service will be at 7:30 p.m.

Easter worship will be at 10 a.m. with holy communion. For this Sunday only, there will be no Sunday School classes.

A congregational brunch will follow the Easter service.

Cabbagetown sprouts strengthening goals

Cabbagetown residents, who have adopted a constitution and scheduled regular meetings, are sprouting plans to "further goals in strengthening welfare of the community."

The Cabbagetown Residents Association is composed of families, many of them young ones who have been refurbishing old homes, who live in the area from Center east to Griswold and from Main north to Eight Mile.

It was decided at the last meeting March 29 at the home of Al and Joanne Kanelli, 743 Horton, to rent booth space at the upcoming city garage sale May 19. Proceeds are to be used to help the association in its work for the welfare of the community.

Plans were made to meet regularly on the first Sunday of alternate months, beginning May 6, in the Mill Race Historical Village.

A slate of officers will be presented at the May meeting.

At its March meeting the association made Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Gazlay its first honorary members. The Gazlays recently moved to Grandview from Cabbagetown.

"We wish them every happiness in their new home . . . and hope they have some happy memories of Cabbagetown to take with them," the association stated as honorary membership was conferred.

Heather Fee, secretary, explains that the Gazlay family took an active part in the Cabbagetown float in the 1978 Fourth of July parade with the couple's daughters among the "cabbages" riding on it and the parents helping build and paint it.

Gazlay, she adds, had served as chairman of the Cabbagetown Political Action Committee.

"Although a young organization," Mrs. Fee's notice states, "we already had cemented some very good friendships, one of which was with Chris and Cheryl . . . they will be missed."

Association membership is open to residents of the area who are 18 years old or older.

Those interested are invited to the next general meeting May 6.

When residents organized last year to strengthen the pride in the old portion of Northville and to try to prevent change from its residential character, the name of Cabbagetown was adopted. Historically, the area was given that name in the early days of the community.

Cooke JH runs away with forensic tourney

Cooke Junior High School proved to be an in-hospitable place as Cooke talkers literally ran away with top honors at a forensics tournament there.

Students at the Northville junior high school took 17 honors including nine first places at the invitational tournament that included five schools.

The event was at Cooke on Saturday but it was hosted through the efforts of Northville's two junior high school forensics coaches, Mary Castillo at Cooke and Wilma Castillo at Meads Mill.

Winning first place honors for Cooke were:

Kaye Saurer, extemporaneous speaking; Amy Stuart, humorous interpretive; Maureen Sullivan, impromptu; Kurt Hoffmeister, informative; Elizabeth McMillan, serious interpretive; Kathleen Norman and Lori Winters, dramatic duo; Carolyn Dragon, story telling and Elizabeth Bohan, story telling.

Other schools at the tournament included Meads Mill, Southfield Lederle, Brighton St. Patrick's and Livonia Franklin.

The next stop for the Cooke team is the state tournament on April 28 at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

Mandated breakfasts in public schools around the corner

By PHILIP JEROME

The line starts to form around 7:15 in the morning.

Nope, it's not a line for opening day tickets at Tiger Stadium. "Ol' Blue Eyes" is not back in town. And the Rolling Stones haven't scheduled a concert, either.

It's a breakfast line and it's an everyday occurrence at Northville High School.

"The kids are hungry and they want something to eat," explains Marie Knapp, director of food services for Northville Public Schools.

"We try to provide an a la carte menu for them: milk, hot chocolate, donuts, and fruit. The students wander in and out all morning."

The situation is not unique to Northville.

Students of all ages and in all grade levels are going to school hungry throughout the nation. In fact, studies indicate that less than 20 percent of the children in the country have had an adequate breakfast before they go to school in the morning.

It's a statistic which has created much concern among both nutritionists and educators.

Those concerns have led the state department of education to mandate the establishment of breakfast programs in certain K-12 school districts next year.

The mandate breakfast program will be introduced gradually. The implementation plan has been designed to make school breakfasts available first in "low income" districts.

Beginning in October 1979, all K-12 school districts in the state must provide a breakfast for all full-time students in schools where 50 percent or more "free" or "reduced-price" lunches are served.

Student eligibility for "free" or "reduced-price" lunches is determined by family income levels.

In the 1980-81 school year, districts are required to provide breakfasts in schools where there are 30 percent or better "free" or "reduced price" lunches. And in 1981-82, a breakfast program will be required in schools where at least 20 percent of the lunches fall in the "free" or "reduced-price" category.

At this point, it appears that none of the school districts served by Sliger Home Newspapers will be required to have a breakfast program next year. In succeeding years — as the percentage decreases — it is possible that at least some of the schools in local districts will be required to have breakfast programs, however.

The possibility that breakfast programs will be required in the future meets with mixed emotions from the individuals responsible for operating the food service programs in the local districts.

Just about everyone agrees that the concept itself is valid.

The line between a good breakfast and performance was firmly established by the Iowa Breakfast Study over 10 years ago. The study revealed that children who skipped breakfast are inclined to be listless and apathetic. By mid-morning, the peak teaching hours, their attention spans and ability to work and concentrate are limited.

Subsequent studies show that children who skip breakfast may also suffer from hyperactivity or hyper-irritability.

Yvonne Stephens, director of food service for the Novi School District, notes that students often come to school without having had anything to eat since a snack at 9 p.m. the previous day.

"Their regular noon meal in the schools is 15 hours away," she notes. "Their glucose levels become quite low and they become fidgety. Their sitting and learning ability is impaired unless they get some nourishment."

"On that basis, a breakfast program is very important."

Barbara Henry, food services director for the South Lyon School District, expresses similar sentiments.

"Children need a breakfast in order to function properly," she said. "Unfortunately, they don't always get a breakfast at home before they come to school."

"In terms of the children's nutrition, breakfasts in the school are a good idea." Although breakfast programs are not mandatory at this point, three local school districts are attempting to provide some sort of snack for their students in the morning.

In addition to Northville High School, breakfast snacks are offered on an informal basis at South Lyon High School and the two high schools in Walled Lake.

"We attempt to make food available to the students on an informal basis," reports Mrs. Henry, the South Lyon food services director.

"We put out fruit, fruit juices, milk, hot chocolate, coffee, donuts and cereal so the students can come in and get it if they want to."

"We find that there are a lot of students who stop by the cafeteria to pick up something to eat before they go to school."

Wayne Daniels, food services director for the Walled Lake Schools, also has instituted a breakfast snack program.

"We saw a lot of students coming in and grabbing soft drinks and Twinkies in the morning," he said. "Our breakfast snack program was designed to replace Coke and Twinkies with orange juice and an apple."

"I think we've made a dent in the nutritional habits of our students."

Daniels says that an Egg McMuffin and a glass of juice is a good nutritional breakfast which meets many nutritional needs. As a result, one of the items offered at the high schools in Walled Lake is an "Egg McDaniels" which was patterned after the popular Egg McMuffin.

It's the type of project a creative food services director can implement to attract students to a nutritious breakfast program.

But while just about all local food service directors think the school breakfast program is a valid concept, they also have some concerns.

A school breakfast program may require some administrative adjustments in terms of bus schedules.

Mrs. Stephens reports that it may be necessary for buses to start at least 15 minutes earlier so students can get some breakfast before the start of classes. Additionally, it may be necessary to make some adjustments in the starting time for classes.

Another concern involves supervision. If the students come to school 15 to 30 minutes earlier, it may become necessary to have teachers in the schools earlier to make certain that there is proper supervision.

There seem to be few concerns on an administrative level, however. Daniels says the cost of the breakfast program will be offset by government subsidies and the fees charged for the food.

There will be virtually no need for additional equipment since virtually all schools are set up to provide lunch programs at the present time.

Daniels reports some philosophical concerns with the mandated breakfast program, however, even though he supports the concept as a professional nutritionist.

First of all, he questions if it is really the responsibility of the schools to make certain that students have a proper breakfast.

"I think there's a definite need for today's students to have a nutritious breakfast since national studies indicate they aren't getting one at home," he says.

"But I wonder if maybe the schools aren't getting into the area of another social service. The question goes back to the argument about the proper role of the schools."

"Is the function of schools to educate children or is it

Traffic signals can be liability

Traffic signals don't always prevent accidents. In many instances, the total number of accidents and severe injuries increase after they're installed.

Where signals are used unnecessarily, the most common results are a reduction in right-angle collisions but an increase in total accidents, especially the rear-end type collision. In addition, pedestrians are often lulled into a false sense of security.

In deciding if a traffic signal will be an asset and not a liability, traffic engineers consider the following:

- Does the number of vehicles on intersecting streets create confusion or congestion?
- Is traffic on the main street so heavy that drivers on the side street will try to cross when it's unsafe?
- Does the number of pedestrians trying to cross a busy main street

BETTY MILLS

BETTY MILLS of Northville has transferred from the Northville office to Century 21's Hartford West, Inc. office at 42875 Five Mile and Northville Road.

A long-time local resident, "Mrs. Mills is well-known for her willingness to go that extra mile for others," a spokesman for Century 21 said in announcing her affiliation with the new office.

She is a member of the United Northwest Realty Association, the Michigan Association of Realtors, the National Association of Realtors, and the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors.

Mrs. Mills closed nearly $2 million of real estate business in 1978.

DALEY HILL of Northville has qualified for Woodmen Accident and Life Company's top sales production club. Outstanding production performance from January 1, 1977 to December 31, 1978 in the sale of life, health and group insurance entitles Hill to membership in the President's Club. Hill was honored at the company's convention in Las Vegas, Nevada which he attended with his wife Susan.

GARY J. QUILL, a metallurgical engineer with the William Research Corporation in Walled Lake, has attended a four-day course in "Fracture Mechanics, Failure Analysis, and Product Liability" at Lehigh University in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania.

The course was designed for industrial and government engineers, academicians, advanced technicians, scientists, technical managers, and others with concern for the fracture of engineering components and the resulting legal consequences.

Experienced lecturers provided the 42 participants from across the United States and Canada with a working knowledge of fracture mechanics and failure analysis. They also touched on product liability litigation, the possible result of inadequate fracture control.

ROGER FENDT, president of Fendt Transit Mix in Novi, has been elected treasurer of the Michigan Ready Mixed Concrete Association at the organization's 28th annual convention in Cadillac.

The Michigan Ready Mixed Concrete Association is a trade organization composed of 101 ready mixed concrete producers and 37 associate members.

LOUIS GREKA of Case Power & Equipment was among the nine-member class of dealer service managers who completed a seminar training course at J.I. Case Company's Service Training School.

Greka, who resides in Novi, further developed his supervisory skills for managing his dealer's service shop during the participative type seminar.

The training sessions are conducted by professional instructors of the Case Construction Equipment Division. Service managers, representing Case dealerships throughout North America, receive experience during role playing and guided discussions aimed at increasing shop efficiency, the effectiveness of the shop operation, and scheduling to provide increasingly better customer service.

J.I. Case Company is an international manufacturer and marketer of construction and agricultural tractors and related equipment.

Recession here possible by '81

By WARREN M. HOYT

If Michigan's cyclical economy is on schedule, brace yourself for an economic slowdown and a high inflation rate for 1979.

Historically, the auto industry dominated state has had three or four years of high production followed by a year of slowdown, coupled with a high unemployment rate. If that pattern follows its normal course, we're due.

Governor William G. Milliken's recent economic forecast does nothing to dispel this fear. His economic experts predict 1979 will be a year of economic slowdown and a high inflation rate.

To the individual, that means no growth in household spending power, more unemployment, a larger strain on state services and, possibly, for the first time the necessary use of the economic and budget stabilization funds.

Dr. Gerald Miller, director of the state Department of Management and Budget, says he still sees no recession on the immediate horizon, but holds out the possibility of one in 1981.

Miller sees inflation as the key problem facing the state and the nation. He predicted there would be a worsening in 1979 — a boost in prices by 8.4 percent for the largest increase since the 8.55 percent rate in 1974.

"In 1979, the economy will not have bottomed out. A 1980 recession is still possible. If we run into a recession in fiscal year 1979-80, it will be one of the more difficult years we've faced," Miller said.

For the first time since its inception, the state may have to draw on the resources of the budget stabilization fund. The fund was created to set money aside during good economic years to use during not so good years.

Miller said the state might have to tap some money from the fund in the October-December quarter of 1979. Although the unemployment rate is 7.4 percent, he said it could top 8 percent during that quarter.

The stabilization fund law provides for money to be returned to the general fund from the earmarked fund when and if unemployment hits the 8 percent level.

Milliken said the state can deal with the slowing economy by slowing its rate of spending and increasing government efficiency. He said the Headlee tax limitation amendment and the budget stabilization fund will provide the discipline to help meet those goals.

One thing that continues to grow in an uncertain economy is the Michigan State Lottery which has topped $1.26 billion during its first six years of operation.

Michigan's lottery — the most successful in the nation — continues to pump funds into the state's general fund aiding the state to provide essential services to the people.

Estimates indicate the lottery has saved each taxpayer in the state around $44 per year as players continue to purchase weekly tickets, instant tickets and the daily numbers game.

Traffic signals can be liability

create confusion, congestion or hazardous conditions?

Does the number of school children crossing a street require special controls for their protection? If so, is a traffic signal the best solution?

Will the installation of a signal allow for continuous, uniform traffic flow with a minimum number of vehicle stops?

Does an intersection's accident history indicate that a signal will reduce the possibility of a collision?

Traffic engineers compare the existing conditions against nationally accepted minimum standards established after many years of studies throughout the country. At intersections where standards have been met, the signals generally operate effectively with good public compliance. Where not met, compliance is generally reduced resulting in additional hazards.

While a properly placed traffic signal improves the flow and decreases accidents, an unnecessary one can be a source of danger and annoyance to all who use an intersection — pedestrians, cyclists and drivers.

And Sometimes I Wonder

Am I someone special to you
Do you look at me and see
The beauty of the sea
The laughter of the waves
The feeling of freedom
Blowing in the breeze next to me
And I wonder
Am I a fool to believe
That you could love me

And sometimes I wonder
When I'm all alone
Looking out at the sea
I wonder what you feel
When you touch me
And what do you see
When you look at me

Mandated breakfast nears to meet their nutritional needs as well? Is this another instance in which the schools are picking up a responsibility which properly belongs to the parents?"

Daniels only poses the question. He does not attempt to answer it.

The food services director for the Walled Lake Schools also has questions about the proposal for implementing the breakfast program — making it mandatory first for low income families.

The problem with the guidelines, he says, is that poor nutrition is not necessarily related to income.

Students from families with a combined income in excess of $50,000 may be as nutritionally deprived as students from families defined as "low income" by federal guidelines.

Mrs. Stephens tends to agree. "We find that poor nutrition is not necessarily defined by income levels," she says.

Both Daniels and Mrs. Stephens note that changing social mores contribute to the problem. The number of families in which both parents work is definitely on the increase.

It is not unusual for both parents to leave home in a hurry to get to work without having adequately provided for the nutritional needs of their children.

Proof that nutritional deprivation cannot be defined by income levels is provided by the Northville School District which has no students who qualify for "free" or "reduced-price" lunches.

"We know at the students are hungry when they come to school," said Ms. Knapp. "There are probably 150-200 students who come through the breakfast line at the high school every day."

"We even had a student pass out from hunger in one of the elementary schools recently," she continued. "It's easy to see that the problem of proper nutrition applies to the entire population — not just the underprivileged areas."

"This problem of proper nutrition in the morning is not limited to children, either. How many adults leave home in the morning without having anything to eat?" she asks.

"They make up for it by grabbing a donut and some coffee when they get to work, but kids don't have that same opportunity in the schools unless some kind of breakfast snack is made available for them."

IN SPITE of his age — 19 years old — Bob Bahel has been a professional clown for two years. He is a graduate of an intensified 14-week course at a clown school in New Jersey operated by Richard Shapiro, the original Ronald McDonald clown. Shapiro has also worked with the Ringling Bros. Barnum & Bailey Circus.

Bahel, a native of New Jersey, entertains at Northville Charley's every Monday evening, 5 to 8:30 p.m., going from table to table doing comedy magic, making clever animals out of balloons and generally creating an air of fun. He works a lot of pantomime into his act, too.

Bahel's professional name came about through a partnership with Mike the Clown.

"We were trying to come up with a name for me, and my partner said I looked like a Spike because I'm tall and thin. We decided Mike & Spike was not bad. However, when I decided to work alone, I kept the name. I've grown rather fond of being Spike the Clown," Bahel says.

By day, Bahel works for Holiday Inn in Farmington Hills.

Spike the Clown is performing every Monday through September 3, 1979.

PHILLIP E. FRAKES, 10840 Reynard Drive, Brighton, was honored recently for completion of 25 years service with Citizens Insurance Company of America and the America Group.

Frakes first joined Citizens in 1952. He has been vice-president of underwriting at Citizens since 1971.

Prior to this he was vice-president of underwriting at Beacon Mutual Indemnity Company of Columbus, Ohio for two years. Beacon and Citizens are both part of the America Group of insurance companies.

ARTHUR J. BOGUE

ARTHUR J. BOGUE has been named manager of Automobile Club of Michigan's Livingston County office in Brighton. He succeeds James E. Campbell who was appointed Auto Club's Plymouth manager.

Bogue, who joined Auto Club in 1948 as a sales representative, had been manager of the Club's Birmingham office the last six years.

He also has served as manager of the 1.25-million-member organization's Pontiac and Royal Oak offices.

Born in Ontonagon, he attended St. Patrick's High School in Ottawa, Ontario.

Bogue has served as coach of the Detroit Red Wings Old Timers team the last two years and is a member of the Red Wings Alumni Association.

He and his wife, Barbara, live in Bloomfield Hills. They have eight children.

STARR ADVERTISING, formerly of 32483 Schoolcraft, Livonia, has moved to new offices at 18600 Northville Road, Northville.

According to Starr President Henry A. Starr, "The country-like setting of our new Northville offices offer a more relaxed creative atmosphere for our staff as well as expansion room for our fast growing agency."

Starr Advertising, recently gained national attention as the progressive advertising agency handling the Dallas based oil company, Spectra Industries.

R. J. EDWARDS of Northville (right) recently visited Snazelle Films' San Francisco studio where Actor Peter Graves was making two promotional films for the Ford dealers. Edwards, manager of Ford's service development department, helped develop Ford's new extended service plant, subject of the two films.

ROBERT K. PEDERSEN of Cesko Sales Company, Brighton, has been promoted to the position of senior sales engineer, as announced by Theodore E. Noutko, corporate president.

Pedersen's promotion comes after two years of service at Cesko and is prompted by their current expansion program. Cesko markets industrial electrical controls and components in eastern Michigan and projects an increase in both personnel and products to serve this dynamic growth market.

Pedersen earned a BS degree in electrical engineering technology from Bradley University in Peoria, Illinois. His sales experience includes over four years as a sales engineer for the General Electric Company, his last assignment being with GE in Southfield, Michigan.

"Bob's promotion reflects our appreciation for his tremendous contribution to our sales effort and the professionalism and expertise he has brought to Cesko Sales Company," said Noutko.

Brighton has been Pedersen's home since he came to Cesko in the spring of 1977.

Kids: blessing in disguise

By JANE FRANCOEUR

Children are a blessing in disguise. And they keep it so well disguised that we seldom realize it until they've reached the age of 30.

Since time began it has been Us versus Them. Kids must have fun on the playground on how to outwit their parents. Any new play is quickly passed around the neighborhood.

In self-defense I have formulated a list of rules (tricks) to live (survive) by, which I share with you now.

1. Don't let them know what's in it. Never admit that those are onions in the stew, or that you used up the sour milk in the cake. An older kid just might do the whole job by mistake if you don't delineate precisely how much you want done.

2. If you want it done right, do it yourself. This applies to washing your favorite wool sweater and counting the knives at a picnic, as well as seeing that the dog is out and the garden hose is off before leaving for grandma's.

3. Bribe them with treats. Tell them "When your room is clean you may have dinner."

4. Don't try to have nice things. Then you won't be upset when your son and three friends wash their bikes with your dish towels. Or when Baby Wee Wee does its thing on the piano bench.

5. Keep the good stuff hidden. Preferably behind a lock. That way, when Susie washes the poodle, he won't end up smelling of Chanel No. 5, and your genuine diamond ear studs won't get traded at school for a pocket comb.

6. Keep them guessing. Don't let them know your income, take-home or otherwise; then you can plead poverty, when you really intend to blow it on a night out. You'll also find that Mary will do the dishes all alone for three nights when she's not sure whether or not you have decided to let her go away for the weekend.

7. Spell things or use big words when you want to make sure they listen. "You know, Daddy, if Johnnie would just secure his dual-wheeled conveyance during the obscure hours, I'm sure it wouldn't be confiscated by unscrupulous jarcens." Then translate.

8. Store the cookies under Mary's bed. She'll never find them.

9. Change their bedtimes when your favorite TV shows conflict.

10. Impress them with the need for independence. When you can't figure out his homework, tell Johnnie that you won't be able to follow him around all his life to help him and that he really needs to know how to do his math by himself.

Marquis stage to light up soon for hit comedy

By JEAN DAY

The footlights will be on again at the Marquis Theatre as five performances of the Neil Simon comedy "Barefoot in the Park" will be given April 27-29. The play is the second to be presented live here by Premin-Henderson Productions.

Three evening performances at 8 p.m. and two matinees Saturday and Sunday at 2:30 p.m. are scheduled. Tickets are now on sale at $4, owner Inga Zayti announces. A special $3 price for senior citizens is available for the matinees. The comedy follows "Camelot," opening show at the renovated theater at 133 East Main

Other upcoming live events at the Marquis include the appearance of rising star Stella Partin May 18-19 and the return of the Four Freshmen and the Four Lads June 1-2.

Like to be a docent?

Sure indication that rising temperatures are ahead are the plans for hanging out the "open" sign again at Mill Race Historical Village. Spring meeting of the Mill Race Docents will be held from 1-2 p.m. Sunday, May 6, in the New School Church in the village. Karen Poulos, docent co-chairman, says the meeting will last only one hour. She hopes for a good turnout of the women who volunteer as guides for the historical village.

Anyone who has a minimum of two-to-three Sundays to volunteer during the warm-weather season and would like to become a docent is invited to attend the May 6 meeting. Mrs. Poulos may be contacted at 348-2474.

You can dance — or just listen

Northville Mothers' Club members are selling tickets to the club's annual spring dinner-dance to be held April 28 at Meadowbrook Country Club. This is the event given "just for fun" instead of being a fund-raiser. The $30 a couple ticket, confides Mrs. V. V. Boll, chairman, is very close to cost for the evening.

A special attraction will be the band, The People's Choice. "People who don't dance will be entertained by the fivesome. They all sing and play an instrument, giving a show," Mrs. Boll promises. She and Mrs. Paul Baetz, co-chairman, are taking reservations for tables for those who wish to attend in a group. Cocktails will be 6:30 p.m. with dinner at 7:30 p.m.

City garage sale's coming

Base Line Questers antiques chapter is one of the first groups to rent space at the city garage sale scheduled for Saturday, May 19, in downtown Northville. The antiquers are housecleaning early to find donations for the sale. They have earmarked proceeds to aid Mill Race restoration projects.

The sale will be similar to the annual sidewalk summer event held by downtown merchants, but it in no way replaces it, Scott Lapham, chairman, emphasizes. Groups and individuals may rent space on Main or Center streets, which will be roped off during the garage sale. "Anything and everything" is expected to be sold. Merchants will not have sidewalk sales on the garage sale day, Lapham says.

Alice Clarke married in Orchard Lake rites

A wedding trip to Nassau and Paradise Island in the Bahamas followed the marriage of Alice Whitson Clarke and James Nicholas Roe March 10 at Orchard Lake Community Church

The Reverend Robert Boyte officiated at the 7 p.m. service. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Clarke of 20087 Caldwell, was given in marriage by her father.

The bridegroom is the son of the Glen O. Roos of Ypsilanti

The bride wore an Empire-waist gown of chiffon fashioned with a high collar and deep yoke of English netting adorned with seed pearls and Alencon lace, which was repeated on the sleeves. Lace was used for the cap holding her waltz-length veil of illusion. She carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses, miniature blue carnations, stephanotis and ivy

Honor Maid Debbie Melton and Bridesmaids Janet Sieminski and Becky Hooth wore periwinkle-blue, halter-style gowns with floral capes. They carried bouquets of miniature carnations, iris and baby's-breath.

Terry Miller was best man. Ushers were Paul Geiger, Robert Clarke and Chris Brown.

An aunt and two cousins from Huntsville, Alabama, were among guests attending the ceremony and reception following at the Holiday Inn of Farmington Hills

The bride is a student at the University of Michigan. Her husband is manager of Bill Knapp's Restaurant in Bloomfield Hills. They are making their home in Union Lake

Sarah Ann Cochrane, chapter DAR, this week is the proud sponsor of the state winner in the annual DAR Good Citizen competition which honors high school seniors throughout Michigan.

Mrs. D. H. Baumhart, chapter Good Citizen chairman, reports that the chapter is in the unique position of having also sponsored the second runner-up, Melissa Faulkner of Novi.

Susan Rensch of Warren was state winner. Because there is no local DAR chapter in Warren, the Northville chapter had sponsored her.

Miss Rensch received a $150 bond at the state awards presentation in Lansing April 5 and will go on to national competition in Washington D. C.

The young women were among eight Good Citizens honored here in a program at King's Mill Clubhouse March 14. Twelve finalists chosen from almost 500 nominated by their high schools in Michigan attended the Lansing program at Kellogg Center.

Cookbook author creates edible Easter bonnets

By JEANDAY

Everybody knows the Easter Bunny really doesn't make those lovely, sugary panoramic eggs.

But friends of Helen Hopping in Northville are aware that she does.

This year Mrs. Hopping also used "some of my tricks" to fashion miniature edible Easter bonnets as decorations for the Sarah Ann Cochrane Chapter DAR benefit luncheon at Meadowbrook Country Club.

For example, the tiny brims and crowns cut from a sheet cake with a cookie cutter were frozen before being dipped in fondant.

"It works out better that way," observes the expert who has just incorporated more than 25 years' experience into her own cookbook, "Helen's Cookbook." The subtitle is "Home Cooking for Parties Large and Small."

At a time in life when most grandmothers think they should be slowing down, Mrs. Hopping is busier than ever with her home catering business and new cookbook.

"I really don't care if you say I'm 76," she consented "because I really don't feel that old."

Her spiral-back cookbook is a small volume, as cookbooks go, but it is filled with practical methods for giving teas, parties, brunches, weddings and other special events.

Mentioning that most women hesitate when they have to prepare little tea sandwiches, Mrs. Hopping says she thinks her directions for assembling them may be worth the investment alone.

She advises making the mayonnaise, but stresses that "mayonnaise is not easy to make, so be careful."

Her recipe, she writes, is thicker than commercial. "It is so good," she concludes as she tells how to make a pint of "very nice mayonnaise."

Part of the appeal of the cookbook is that it sounds just as though Mrs. Hopping is on hand talking as a recipe is followed.

The woman who thinks nothing of whipping up two dozen chicken crepes for some organization also may be making a shower repast and a couple of wedding cakes these days.

When she and her husband, Louis, moved to King's Mill shortly after the cooperatives opened, he retired, but Mrs. Hopping's reputation as a cook made her busier than ever.

Members of the DAR and Northville Women's Club, in which she became a member, soon found out who had made the mint patties and other special treats at meetings.

Her cookbook includes information on how to get started in the catering business.

"Don't count on making a lot of money or getting rich in the cake decorating business. You will work hard for little pay," she warns, adding in the chapter on pricing, "Making sandwiches is even harder work."

As many who have struggled with fancy hors d'oeuvres and finger sandwich recipes have told her, they are the areas of most concern.

Helen Hopping wrote her book with such comments in mind and was careful to give step-by-step instructions.

The picture of the cook in gingham-check apron on the cover and sketches inside all were done by Mrs. Hopping's daughter, Irene Johnson of Redford.

The books are on sale at Lorenz Drug Store in Northville and at Book World in Plymouth and are $8. Mrs. Hopping also may be contacted Why would someone work so hard to produce culinary masterpieces to be consumed?

In the conclusion, Mrs. Hopping explains, "Personally, I think the fun is in producing a food that is so good that people will tell you it is a work of art and the best thing they ever ate."

SPRING FARE—Helen Hopping, right, displays edible Easter bonnets with Julia Howser, who made the tiny hatboxes for a DAR luncheon at Meadowbrook Country Club.

In workshop

Join quilters to sew Log Cabin square

Grandmother attended quilting bees for companionship, for news about new coverlet patterns, and for help in finishing tiny stitches.

For the same reasons, area women are participating in the newly-organized Community Quilters. The group has been gathering on the third Wednesday of each month in First Presbyterian Church fellowship hall. Next Wednesday from 10 a.m. to noon Jamie Hove will conduct a workshop, giving instruction in making the Log Cabin pattern. Mrs. Hove, who has been quilting for several years, will demonstrate a newer method for sewing the classic design.

JAMIE HOVE

Eight light colors, eight dark colors and a red center square form the Log Cabin square. Those attending are asked to bring the 16 strips, each cut to the length and width of a yardstick, a red center square, needle and thread.

Traditionally, the red center of the Log Cabin pattern symbolizes smoke going up the chimney, reveals Lois Winters, organizer of the new quilting group.

Following the workshop there will be beginning and individual quilting from noon to 3 p.m. Mrs. Winters suggests that those planning on attending both sessions bring a brown bag lunch. Tea and coffee are furnished.

There is no charge to join the group. Mrs. Winters may be contacted at 349-3892 for information.

In the past, thrifty housewives may have become quilters to use up bits and pieces of material.

Northville's quilters are using colorful materials in quilt squares for coverlets, as their ancestors did, but they're also decorative accents. Mrs. Hove uses many squares for pillow tops throughout her home. She and fellow-quilter Jo Krause use tops as tablecloths, pointing out that they are pleasing accessories for antiques.

Quilters in the group meeting at the church include young women interested in learning basics and range to experts like 86-year-old Emma Parmenter, who says she has always quilted.

So popular has quilting become, Mrs. Winters reports, that a quilt exhibition has been scheduled at Michigan State University next month.

Beth and Jeffrey Gutcheon, authors of a quilting book, will present a lecture May 6 and conduct workshops May 7-9 in conjunction with the opening of the exhibit. Mrs. Hove and Mrs. Krause are planning to attend, as is Mrs. Winters.

The local quilters also are making plans to enter the Mountain Mist Quilt Square Contest which has for 1979 the theme of nursery rhymes. Information will be available at next week's meeting.

Wyandotte pastor to speak at dinner

Father George Fortuna, pastor of St. Elizabeth Catholic Church in Wyandotte, will be principal speaker at the 7 p.m. April 20 dinner meeting of the

FATHER GEORGE FORTUNA

Northville-Plymouth-Livonia Chapter of the Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship at the Plymouth Hilton Inn.

Known as a born-again, spirit-filled pastor, Father Fortuna says he has experienced a great change in his life as a priest following receiving the Baptism of the Holy Spirit in 1973.

"The Lord has freed me of fear about many problems of the church and parish and healed me of a stomach problem that had been diagnosed as a spasmodic colon, and had been the cause of diarrhea over a period of about 10 years.

"He also freed me of the smoking habit, and my preaching has changed so that people say it is the work of the Spirit. I just praise God every day for the Baptism in the Spirit," he states.

Father Fortuna will share experiences of the past six years as he testifies to the "dynamic power of God" moving in his life.

Dinner is $8 a person plus gratuity. The meeting follows at 8 p.m. Both are open to the public. Reservation checks should be a made payable to Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship and sent to Box 5332, Northville, by April 18.

For more information call 349-0006 or 421-2111.

These families welcome Michael, Nicholas, Sean

Their son's birth weight was seven pounds, 11 ounces.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tomasak of Dearborn and Mr.

and Mrs. Robert G. Ely of Northville.

The baby also has three great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Loye German of Mio and Mrs. Tracy K. Ely of Livonia.

From Gansevoort, New York, comes announcement of the birth of a son, Sean Stephen, to Stephen and Lucy Burt, former Northville residents.

He arrived March 23 and joins a little sister at home.

Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Willard F. Wilson while paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. William F. Burt. All are of Northville.

Methodist Men seeking 'oddments' for sale

Methodist Men of First United Methodist Church of Northville are seeking donations of "xysters, hussifs, heptateuchs and bowling balls from under average bowlers" for their 12th annual rummage sale to be held April 27-28 at the church, 777 West Eight Mile. The unusual items are among those itemized in a lighthearted announcement to church members which was written by Claren Jones. Mentioning that pictures are good-sellers at a rummage sale, Jones says, "Last year we asked for Renoirs and Rembrandts, this year we would like da Vincis and Durers."

Actually, he reports, the annual rummage sale by the men of the church has proved to be a good place to buy lawn mowers (10 were sold last year), garden tools, small hand tools, hunting and fishing gear, fans, desks and other furniture.

Women of the church will hold a bake sale during the rummage sale.

All proceeds go to the church, Jones points out, so that any items of value may be used as a tax deduction.

He asks that donations be brought to the church after April 23. Anyone with items to be picked up may call a men's club member or the church office at 349-1144.

Those xysters being sought are scraping tools, and heptateuchs are the first seven books of the Old Testament.

child's first steps into the world.

"These early years, which are filled with dramatic growth of mind and body, also are the years when parents have greatest influence," the cooperative emphasizes.

During the International Year of the Child, public hearings are being held across the country on nutritional, medical, nurturing and day-care needs of the children.

Forty-four families currently are participating in the Northville cooperative where 29 older, preschool children gather Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings and 15 younger ones come Tuesday and Thursday mornings.

Officers are delighted that there is a lively interest in enrollments for next fall, reporting that reservations already have been made for the 1979-80 year. It appears that The Year of the Child will stretch into the Age of the Child.

And that should lead to more happy, joyful children.

Slate weekend seminar for Christian Singles

"Faith for Successful Single Living," a weekend seminar, is planned by Singles, a Christian organization meeting at the Open Door Outreach Center in Northville.

Area single people are invited to participate in the outing May 4-6 at Camp Ohivesa, a YMCA camp located on a small lake north of Milford near Holly.

A full weekend with special teaching, music and fellowship is planned. Guest speaker will be Mark Freer and Barry Egeler, co-directors of the Open Door Outreach Center, and Michael Zawilanski and Michael Baldoni, active participants in the Downriver Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship.

Vicki and Barry Wood, known as accomplished vocalists, will be ministering in music. Teaching sessions will cover the meaning of faith; a prayer of faith; praise; steadfastness of faith; and faith's partner — patience.

Cost for the weekend is $40. For more information call Ann Jarvi, Singles president, 349-6604, or Gary LeDuc, vice-president, 348-3843. Ms Jarvi adds that active afternoon activities will include tennis, volleyball, canoeing, softball, jogging, hiking on nature trails and horseback riding, available at $4 an hour.

Antiques lure bargain hunters

Agnes Barnard of Plymouth displays doll

Bargain hunters swooped in first thing on the Northville Square Antique Show last month, buying up all the best-priced goods and leaving the less knowledgeable to wander around trying to figure out the difference between a credenza and a spittoon.

Among the tables of antiques brought by dealers from many states for well-heeled buyers were a few unusual items which proved that there was perhaps a bit of lightness in the dark-furniture days of the past.

Consider, for instance, the group of porcelain hands, circa 1920 to 1974, waving from the corner of a table owned by dealer Anne Powers of Dearborn. The stark white porcelain forms were used as molds for a rubber glove manufacturer, hung on an assembly line and dipped into liquid latex. Anyone wishing to buy a permanent wave could have one for only $28.

On another table a framed picture of the Three Musketeers at $4, and a pile of 1939 story books. Remember those "Little Books"? Gene Autry's was selling for $12.

For the more adventurous, an $85 peanut vending machine, wooden decoy ducks for $245, and an "Official 1933 Detroit Street Guide," "showing locations of all latest car lines," a true bargain at only $3.50.

Finally, other items for sale would make buffs cringe at the word "antique." Pieces of Al Jolson piano music selling for $8? Nineteen forty-five plates for $20 each? A 1963 porcelain hand at $28? "Dear Minnie" postcards from the 1935 Rhode Islands seashore at $10?

Ye Gads — Old Aunt Minnie is worth something after all. And better start saving those John Travolta posters quick.

GARDEN TREAT—Pat Nixon approves Mary Rose Smith's dip-in-a-cabbage at last week's meeting of Country Girls' Garden Branch of the National Farm and Garden Association.

Dr. James G. Wells, Cranbrook botanist, spoke and showed slides of Michigan wild flowers at the meeting at Mrs. Smith's home in Lexington Commons.

Here's dessert correction

Country Girls nibble new dip

The snacking was good and good-for-the-figure at the April meeting of Country Girls Branch of the National Farm and Garden Association at the home of Mrs. Terry Smith in Lexington Commons.

Mrs. Smith's table centerpiece was a carved-out red cabbage surrounded by pieces of nibble food — cauliflower, celery, carrots and broccoli.

The cabbage held Mary Rose Smith's bleu cheese dip. It's a family favorite that she keeps on hand in the refrigerator.

It is an easy-mix dip that should be chunky, she adds.

Best of all, it keeps in the refrigerator from three to six weeks.

BLEU CHEESE DIP

1 qt. Hellman's mayonnaise
¾ C buttermilk
6 oz bleu cheese
½ tsp garlic powder
½ tsp garlic salt
½ tsp Worcestershire sauce

Mix ingredients together by hand. Refrigerate.

We're sorry, but we goofed.

There is an error in the ingredients listed for Jeanne Hubbard's delicious dessert printed in The Northville Record March 21 issue.

The recipe should read two, not one, packages of chocolate pudding, 4½ ounce size. It is used for the third layer of the dessert which has a shortcake-like base with nuts.

Mrs. Hubbard had served it to her Quaker chapter and to newcomers.

She reported that it is a good recipe to have on hand as it can be made ahead of time and also may be frozen. She acquired it from her mother-in-law, who said it was a friend's recipe. It's named for the friend.

EDNA'S DESSERT

1 C flour
1 stick of margarine
½ C chopped nuts
1 med Cool Whip

2 pkgs. 4½ ounce instant chocolate pudding
2¾ C milk
18-oz. cream cheese
1 C powdered sugar

Crumble together flour, margarine, chopped nuts. Spread on bottom of oblong pan, 9x13 inches. Bake at 350 degrees until lightly browned, about 15 minutes. Place in freezer so that next mixture is easy to apply.

Beat together powdered sugar, 1 C Cool Whip, and large package cream cheese until smooth. Spread on baked layer.

Combine the instant chocolate pudding mixes with 2¾ C milk. Spread on white layer. Place in freezer 15 minutes.

Spread rest of Cool Whip on top of chocolate layer.

Cut in squares when serving. Will keep in refrigerator for several days. It also is possible to freeze. Serves 10-12.

Seek craftsmen for tent show

Applications are now being accepted from artists and crafts' people all over Michigan who wish to participate in the big tent show and sale June 2-3 at South Lyon's McHattie Park.

The show, which will include separate tents for arts and crafts, will be open from noon to 8 p.m. each day. It is planned to coincide with the Artrain's visit to South Lyon slated for May 31 through June 3.

Application forms may be picked up at The South

Lyon Herald, Letzring-Atchison Insurance Agency, Centennial Farms Market, Green Oak Mini Market and the State Savings Bank branch offices in both New Hudson and Salem.

Those living outside the South Lyon area may write to the Artrain Display Committee, 24300 Fairview Drive, South Lyon 48178.

Completed forms should be mailed to the Fairview address or dropped off at the Letz-ring office before May 9.

Only authentic handicrafts or original paintings will be accepted — no kits or number paintings. Screening for the tent show will take place from 6-9 p.m. Friday May 18, at the South Lyon Middle School cafeteria.

The fee for a six by eight-foot booth space will be $15.

For further information, contact Ethel Ferrell, 437-3804, for the craft tent. Sharon Rosenberg, 437-9766, is in charge of the art tent.

GOOD TIME FOR WINE

by Jim Roth

Everyone agrees that love cannot really be defined but that does not stop people from trying. The same thing applies to wines. The various tastes of wines cannot really be described, but a whole wine taste vocabulary has been developed. Following are a few of the common terms and what they are supposed to mean. Balance: a well balanced wine has all of its qualities in equilibrium with none dominating. Rounded: a mature wine in which all the elements are balanced. Soft: a wine in which the sweet and light taste dominates the sharp, acid taste.

If you will tell us the type of wine you prefer, we will do our best to help you make a choice from the complete selection we stock at GOOD TIME PARTY STORE, 567 Seven Mile Road, 349-1477. Don't forget to purchase a bottle for your Easter dinner. Hours: 9 a.m.-10 p.m. Mon. thru Sat., Noon-6 p.m. Sun. Easter Greetings from all of us.
