TWENTY-FIVE CENTS

Voters approve millage renewal 2 to 1

Open house

It could have happened to anyone, really. Grace Griffith, 79, accidentally stepped on the accelerator instead of the brake and drove her Pontiac Catalina into the front of her condominium at 18496 Jamestown Circle, King's Mill on Wednesday morning. Her car jumped from its parking place in front of the house, knocked off parts of the right front fender of a Pontiac Bonneville which had been left to her by a deceased niece, and continued up the path to her front door. The car cruised up the front steps, bashing into the wall and embedding itself in the front door. The picture window broke, the wall buckled and bricks fell onto the car roof, causing extensive damage. Luckily, Mrs. Griffith was unhurt and insurance will pay for the damage to the vehicles and her house, police explained. "Parking places are sure at a premium these days," one neighbor was heard to say.

Results 'gratifying' but cuts still likely

An easy renewal of three mills Saturday assures the Northville school district of a solid, if not expansive, foundation for the 1979-80 school year.

Faced with a renewal issue only for the first time in five years, Northville voters approved the two-year extension of the three-mill levy by better than a 2-1 margin.

Not quite 16 percent of the district's 12,587 voters passed the issue, 1,357-605.

The results were similar to those of March 16, 1974, the last time a renewal millage was the only question on the ballot. Then, the same three mills were also passed by a 2-1 margin with 15.5 percent of the voters casting ballots.

The renewal passed easily throughout the district although it got its strongest support — nearly 3-1 in favor — from the Winchester and Amerman elementary school areas and the southwest quadrant of the school district which votes at the community building on Main Street.

Silver Springs and Moraine elementary school areas gave 2-1 support. Northville city residents who live south of Eight Mile voted 55 percent in favor.

Superintendent Lawrence Nichols said the results were "very gratifying." Renewals are not shoo-ins anymore.

"We had to have it. Now we've got a base that we can operate from."

The three mills will produce about $600,000 next year. Whether that base is sufficient to duplicate this year's program remains to be seen. Much depends on the final revenue picture which won't be known until district-wide property values are known, said Nichols.

"We're trying to maintain the program that we have," he said. "We would like expansion in some areas and additions, but with the revenue problem the main thrust is trying to hang on to what we've got."

The school district has already issued layoff notices to all 23 of Northville's probationary teachers. These reductions, according to school officials, will reflect the declining student enrollment.

However, Nichols told the board three weeks ago that further staff reductions may be required even if the three mills were renewed.

A second wave of layoffs would most certainly cut into program offerings, school officials said then.

Nichols said Monday that he and his staff were still a couple of weeks away from having a firm enough revenue picture to recommend staffing levels for next year.

The Northville Education Association has protested the probationary teacher layoffs because it claims that procedures spelled out in contract language were not followed.

The NEA says the district is required to first determine staffing needs and thereby identify areas of staff surplus before issuing layoff notices.

Northville school officials say the probationary teachers were laid off in order to protect the district's options when final staff needs are known.

Saturday's millage victory was the second in a row for the district and the first in Northville for first-year Superintendent Nichols.

Last June, a 2.6-mill increase was approved during the same election that a separate 2.9-mill increase was defeated.

Earlier that year, the two increases had been lumped together in a single package and soundly defeated.

Here are the results by precinct:

— Precinct 1 (community building for city voters) voted in favor by 168-133 or 55 percent.

— Precinct 2 (Silver Springs) voted in favor by 152-83 or 64 percent.

— Precinct 3 (Winchester) voted in favor by 259-69 or 78 percent.

— Precinct 4 (Amerman) voted in favor by 370-145 or 71 percent.

— Precinct 5 (southwest quadrant of school district that votes in community building) voted in favor by 158-50 or 76 percent.

— Precinct 6 (Moraine) voted in favor by 250-125 or 66 percent.

Total vote was 1,357-605 or 68 percent in favor. There were 26 invalid votes and a total of 1,988 votes cast.

Council studies proposal

Eyes $1.8 million budget

If the proposed new City of Northville budget remains intact, taxes here will be going up.

As city council members go into their third consecutive night of budget study tonight (Wednesday), the total proposed general fund outlay is pegged at $1,878,052 — up from the anticipated $1,806,687 expenditure in this year's budget.

The budget proposal, which probably will be trimmed before it goes to public hearing later this month, presently suggests property tax collection of $863,202. And that tax collection reflects a millage rate of 14.7, up from the current 14.4 tax rate.

Even if the 14.4 mill tax rate is maintained for the 1979-80 fiscal year (beginning in July), it appears residents of the Oakland County section of the city are in for a hefty tax increase.

Northville officials were notified by Oakland County by telephone this week that it will be given an equalization factor of 1.06, which would completely wipe out the assessment rollbacks ordered by the Northville Board of Review last month.

Originally, Oakland County had proposed an average assessment increase of 14 percent in the northern half of the city.

City officials viewed this assessment increase as unfair, particularly in light of the tax limiting Headlee Amendment approved by voters in November. The board of review subsequently reduced the assessments so that the average increase approximated nine percent.

The rollback angered the county, which threatened confiscation of the local tax rolls by the State Tax Tribunal. Instead, it now has stated it will order the 1.06 multiplier.

County and state officials argue that if the city wants to keep city tax increases within the guidelines of Headlee, it need only cut its millage rate. Headlee, they argue, is concerned only with millage rates, not assessment rates.

The city, however, points out that state law forbids Northville from levying a lower millage rate in the Oakland section of the city than in the Wayne section. Northville may levy only one millage rate for the entire city, the state has said.

Thus, if the city backs the rate in the Oakland section to stay within the Headlee guideline, the Wayne section's tax levy will be reduced by an equal amount even though its rate already is under the Headlee limit. And such a reduction in both halves of the city would be a budget disaster, officials contend.

Besides the proposed general fund budget of $1,878,052, council is considering a public improvement budget pegged at $957,670.

The latter fund derives its money primarily from the race track. In addition, it receives monies from federal grants.

Public improvement monies are used principally for public works projects, much of which by law must benefit the race track since large amounts of monies are given the city by the state because of the track's location here.

It is estimated that Northville will receive $762,600 in race track monies this year. This amount does not include monies from taxes on the property.

Forum backs tax hike

The Faculty Forum, almost entirely inactive in the March 26 Schoolcraft College millage election, will strongly support a June-11 tax proposal.

"The June 11 election is crucial," said William G. Nickels, retiring president of the faculty union. "The Faculty Forum Senate (27 members) has acted unanimously in approving it."

The two-year community college is seeking a one mill increase in the property tax for one year. Half will be used for major maintenance and equipment purchases. The other half will be used to complete funding for a Culinary Arts Addition to the Waterman Campus Center.

Nickels admitted the Forum "wasn't very active" during the March 26 campaign, when the college sought one mill for five years for capital purposes.

"There's a lot of dirty laundry, and I just don't want to air it," Nickels said in an interview. All he would reveal is that faculty members questioned the need for a new learning resources center when they consider the present library as seriously under-funded.

"The buildings are in need of maintenance. Electrical systems need to be re-done. Steel doors are rusting."

"There has been no major new automotive technology equipment since the building was built. They're using

Ex-chief Joe Denton succumbs at age 91

Joseph Denton, Northville's colorful former police chief, died Monday night at the age of 91.

Funeral arrangements were still incomplete Tuesday morning, but family members said a service probably would be held at Casterline Funeral Home on Thursday.

The exact date and time may be obtained by calling the funeral home at 349-0611.

Mr. Denton was hospitalized Sunday afternoon, and Sunday night he underwent surgery for blood clots in his leg.

Except for crippling arthritis, Mr. Denton had been in good health. He remained alert and cheerful.

Last January, upon marking his 91st birthday, he told the publisher of The Record, "I've never been sick a day in my life and I was only laid up when I was gassed in World War I. Never missed a day of work. People worry themselves into sickness. I never meet trouble halfway by worrying about things. If I'm going to die tomorrow, so be it."

Mr. Denton served as Northville's police chief for a dozen years from 1946 until his retirement in 1959. He had joined the department — then a three-man force — as a patrolman after having served 20 years, from 1921 to 1941, as superintendent of the late Phil Grennan's Farm Crest Farms and trainer of Grennan's polo ponies.

The farms were located on Six Mile near Bradner, now under development as huge residential subdivisions.

His home in Northville was at the corner of Randolph and Linden.

Born in 1888 at Saint Ives, England, he served in the British Army as a bugler boy. Discharged at the age of 16, he was awarded for his service a free trip anywhere in the British Commonwealth. He chose Western Canada.

He soon was buying and selling horses and breaking broncos. It was a tough, no-holds-barred existence in a part of the West so often fictionalized today.

He remembered traveling to Montana and Wyoming from Manitoba to hire cowhands in 1906. "I got into a card game in Butte. I shouldn't have. I noticed one of the men picked up a card from his lap. I said something. He shot a bullet through the palm of my hand and someone else hit me over the head. I woke up in a livery stable, happy to be alive."

Mr. Denton returned to England in 1914 to visit relatives. World War I broke out and he joined the third day of the war. He was a cavalry scout in the British Army until 1919 when he returned to Canada.

By now an accomplished rider, he

BIG TALK — State junior high school forensics champions Steve Ouellette and Carolyn Dragon sit in front of other team-

Two Cooke students top speakers in state

If you ever need someone who can tell a good story, Carolyn Dragon is the person to see.

But if you are looking for good, solid information, then you ought to contact Steve Ouellette.

These two Cooke Junior High School students were the best in the state in their categories in the forensics finals conducted Saturday in Ann Arbor.

They led the Cooke team which won 10 of the 54 awards given during the contest which, with more than 400 participants, was the largest forensics state finals in Michigan history.

"It was a remarkable achievement," said Coach Mary Freydl. "We knew they were good, but with so many entries we didn't know how good."

"I never coached anyone who took first place before so, needless to say, I'm very excited."

Besides Carolyn's first in story telling and Steve's in informative speaking, the Cooke team took three seconds, three fourths, a fifth and a sixth.

The other dozen members of the contingent earned certificates of excellence "so no one came home without anything," said Mrs. Freydl.

Taking second were Kurt Hoffmeister, informative speaking; Heidi Schulz, serious interpretive reading; and Lori Winters and Kathleen Norman, dramatic duo.

Fourth place honors went to Diane Hinman, informative speaking; Kaye Saurer, extempore speaking; and Mike Pinkelman and Tom Yanoschik, dramatic duo.

Martha Alspaugh won fifth place in extempore speaking and Maureen Sullivan was sixth in impromptu speaking.

Certificates of excellence indicate scores of 85 percent or above on all three rounds of competition.

They were won by:

Teresa Butler and Elizabeth McMillan, serious interpretive reading; Amy Stuart, Brian Pinkelman and Beth Wendt, humorous interpretive reading; Elizabeth Bohan, Tisha Johnson and Kathy Montgomery, story telling; Karen Longridge and Jim Phillips, impromptu speaking; and Stacy Stuart and Natalie Dichtiar, extempore speech.

One of the finest areas for growing grapes in the United States is the Napa Valley of California. Napa is an Indian word for plenty, and the Napa Valley does have an abundance of grapes. Vignerons of the Napa are constantly at work trying to match grapes with climate and soil so as to bring out the best in the grapes. They are followed for generations in experimenting and tasting, but have the advantage of the knowledge already gathered by the European growers.

Students may switch to different schools

The Northville school board adopted a policy Monday night that will allow students to transfer from the attendance zone where they live to another school within the district.

The policy was approved unanimously pending legal opinion about whether the district can charge parents for transportation costs resulting from such transfers.

Christina Pettit, a Northville parent who has been critical of the elementary school her children have had to attend, said after Monday's meeting that the school district should pick up the busing costs for transfers.

"Why penalize me for two minutes?" she asked. That's how long it would take to drop off her son at a school other than Silver Springs which serves his attendance area, she said.

Mrs. Pettit objects to the multi-grade classrooms used in Silver Springs. In these settings, students from several grade levels are grouped together.

The practice is unique in the school district to Silver Springs. When Mrs. Pettit tried to have her son transferred to another elementary school within the district, she was rebuffed by school officials.

She has since enrolled her boy in a private school and she said Monday that she did not plan to move him back to the Northville school system.

Mrs. Pettit's complaint prompted a board study into its attendance policy. Last fall, a Colorado educator recommended that an open attendance policy with well-defined guidelines be implemented by all school districts.

Under the new policy, parents can request a transfer by contacting the building principal who is required to review the written request.

The transfer will be granted based upon:

—The recommendation of the principals at both the student's current school and the school where he or she seeks admittance.
—Available space in the receiving school and class.

—Transportation costs covered by parent or guardian and not by the school district.

—The understanding that the student may not transfer back to his or her original school during the year of transfer.

—A conference between the parents and the two principals.

In most years, transfer requests must be made by April 15. Because the policy was passed at a late date this year, the deadline has been pushed back to June 1.

For blood drive

Roll up those sleeves tomorrow

Organizers of tomorrow's Northville community blood drive are optimistic that they will reach their modest goal of 100 pints of blood.

Although that doesn't seem like a lot from a community of 20,000 people, it would be a 50 percent increase from the 65-70 pints that the drive has averaged for the last three years.

The annual Red Cross blood drive is from 2-8 p.m. Thursday at the First Presbyterian Church of Northville, 200 East Main.

Reservations are encouraged but are not necessary, according to Janice Dyke who heads the local Red Cross volunteers.

Better results are expected this year because the Northville American Legion Post and the Northville Jaycettes Auxiliary has promised both moral and physical support.

Representatives of those organizations, Post Commander Donald Hartley and Jaycette Joyce Bousquet, are recruiting potential donors.

Many people from 18 to 66 (17 with written permission from a parent or guardian) can give blood up to five times a year.

However, Red Cross spokespeople say that only three percent of the public donates most of the nearly 1,000 pints a day needed in southeastern Michigan.

Giving blood usually takes 45 minutes to an hour. Of that, only about five to seven minutes actually involves giving blood.

The rest of the time is for a brief health history, information and a rest period after donating blood.

A team of experienced nurses will be on hand to administer the procedure. Volunteers will serve orange juice and cookies.

Under the new community coverage plan, blood is available to anyone at no charge although hospitals will charge fees for administration.

But, Red Cross officials point out, the blood is not available unless people donate it.

Millage is passed, but money woes won't go

By RICH PERLBERG

The most telling characteristic of present day school financing problems may very well be that some school people were pleasantly surprised by the large margin of victory in Saturday's renewal of three mills.

Nobody was actually predicting defeat, of course. But the concerns of a close election seemed to go beyond the prudent pessimism that precedes most school elections.

Basically, there seemed to be a large amount of uncertainty about the attitude of Northville voters who last month defeated a Schoolcraft millage request for the first time in history.

Actually, there was nothing in Northville's past to support anything less than confidence in Saturday's election. Although requests for large chunks of additional millage have met with spotty success in the last five years, renewal millage has never been jeopardized.

In April 1976, within a half-year of two additional millage defeats, voters renewed 17 mills by almost a 4-1 margin. In March 1974, the last time a renewal was on the ballot by itself, the issue passed 2-1.

But times have changed, especially for a school district such as Northville which feels the vise of a state aid formula that has not adapted to current trends.

The state aid formula for several years has been most advantageous to growing districts. Northville, in fact, benefited greatly during the early 1970s.

But something new happened. The district continued to grow in terms of homes and property values. But beginning in 1975, the student enrollment has steadily dropped.

The changing face of the district can be seen by this example:

In the last five years, the number of registered voters in Northville has increased by 50 percent. In that same time, the school district's enrollment has decreased by 300 students.

Despite school critics' claims to the contrary, the enrollment decline apparently has precious little to do with dissatisfaction with the school district.

Although there certainly are instances where parents have enrolled their youngsters in private schools that better suit their needs, the amount of state aid lost by these defections is comparatively insignificant.

The facts indicate that, despite the growth in the school district, the number of school-aged children going to any school has drastically dropped.

For instance, when Northville Superintendent Lawrence Nichols was in Livonia in the 1960s, school officials there could count on 3.2 students per dwelling.

This year, Northville officials are expecting less than one school-aged student per dwelling from Whisper Woods, Northville Colony and Highland Lakes, the school district's three subdivisions with the most new housing activity.

Thus, the district's tax base from new construction and increased assessments is going up. But the amount of state aid based on enrollment is going down.

In other words, a homeowner in Oakland County may find that even though his school tax is increased by 14 percent because of a higher assessment, the district itself will only realize a fraction of that amount.

This is why school officials say that, even with the same tax rate, it is having trouble keeping pace with inflation. Monday, Nichols readily conceded that in two years the current tax levy will probably not be enough to support the current program "unless there is some major change in the state formula."

He doubts such a change will be soon forthcoming. Two proposals now in the legislature are based on the current formula and would have little effect on Northville, he said.

It is likely, he said, that either this year or next the school board will have to choose between program cuts or seeking additional millage.

Sugar maple's first

A sturdy sugar maple, one of the state's native trees, was scooped up with special tree-moving equipment and moved to a location in front of the Yerkes House in the Mill Race Historical Village Friday. Donated by John Brugeman from his property on Nine Mile, the tree represents the first implementation of a master landscape plan for the village developed by Brugeman and his brother Tim. Tim Brugeman, a landscape architect in Findlay, Ohio, became interested in the village and designed the plan which will feature vegetable and flower gardens, an herb bed, grape arbor and fruit trees appropriate to the era of the gazebo now under construction. Checking with the master plan are Carol Butske, John Brugeman, his children, Beth and Daniel, Jay Cross, Virginia Hayward and Jackie Daniel. Mrs. Butske, Mrs. Hayward and Mrs. Daniel are historical society board members.

LIBRARY PLANNING — A special room will be constructed at Allen Terrace senior citizens apartments by the Northville Kiwanis Club to house books and periodicals. The library room will be financed by monies raised during the club's annual horse show later this month. Taking measurements here (1 to r) are Kiwanians Ray Casterline, David Ryan and John Genitti.

Kiwanis Club to build library

Northville Kiwanians began preparations this week for construction of library facilities in Allen Terrace senior citizens apartment complex.

Club members have pledged to develop the library facility with funds raised from the annual Kiwanis-ASHAM horse show scheduled May 25-27 at Northville Downs.

According to Ray Casterline, Kiwanian in charge of the library project, "the club is really excited about this project. We plan to do much of the construction work ourselves, since some of our members are involved directly or indirectly in construction and/or wood-working."

Casterline, who also serves on the Northville Housing Commission responsible for development of Allen Terrace, was slated to meet with Allen Terrace residents this week to outline the club's plan and to invite senior citizens participation in the horse show activities.

Some senior citizens already have volunteered to serve as ticket takers and as assistants in the horse show concession stand.

The club also has announced that senior citizen participants in the Kiwanis Golden Age discount program and that handicapped children involved in the club's regular bowling program will be guests of the club at the horse show.

This year's horse show, according to Kiwanian David Ryan, should be more exciting than ever. Another locally popular breed, Morgans, will be entered for the first time, he said.

Horses will be coming from throughout Michigan and adjacent midwestern states.

As an extra special feature this year during the three-day show, the Kiwanis club will provide pony rides for children and it is making arrangements for a performance by mounted county sheriffs.

During the horse competition, to be held on the Downs' race track, in front of the grandstands, the club also will sponsor an antique-boutique show and sale inside the lower level of the grandstand area.

Seniors need help for party

The Eiffel Tower in Northville High School? Why not? Ask the members of the decorating committee who are helping to plan the annual all-night party for seniors on graduation night.

At a meeting Monday night of all the committee chairmen, Decorating Chairwoman Ann Lindemier displayed drawings for the cafeteria windows that were prepared by Bill Dayton, a member of the committee.

She also said decorating plans called for the construction of the Eiffel Tower on the school patio.

The all-night fling will be at the high school on June 12 following commencement exercises.

The party is sponsored by the parents of graduating seniors. Families with seniors are asked to send their $12 contribution as soon as possible to:

Barbara Willoughby, 790 Springfield Drive, Northville.

Seniors will be getting an invitation to the party through the mail about a week prior to graduation.

The rock band "Network" will play at the party. Co-chairmen of the entertainment committee, Tom Marzoni and Tim Lemon, played a tape of the band at Monday's meeting.

The meeting was hosted by Jean Boll.

Hospital fence price may climb

Cost of a fence? Hospital, senator disagree

If it is built, a fence around three sides of the Northville State Hospital property on Seven Mile may cost four times as much as the original estimate made by Senator Robert Geake.

Geake said a three-sided, six foot-high fence would cost about $44,000, according to figures he obtained from the Office of Management and Budget.

But the hospital's chief engineer's figures were substantially higher than Geake's estimate. The engineer estimated that a six-foot-high fence would cost $160,000 if built around three sides, or $203,000 if built around four sides.

If a 10-foot high fence were built, he estimated that it would cost $175,000 for a three-sided fence, or $224,000 for a four-sided fence, Hospital Director John Reynolds said.

"We were skeptical of the original figures given to us," Reynolds said. "We thought they were substantially low."

The hospital turned its price quotations over to the State Department of Mental Health's Director Dr. V. A. Stehman upon Stehman's request.

No one should have given a construction estimate from his office, said Larry Benner, head of the construction division at the Office of Management and Budget in Lansing. "If we made an estimate, it would be more like a guess," Benner said. Benner is new in the division, and did not know who gave Geake the $44,000 estimate. "It could be 100 percent wrong," he said.

However, Wayne Fence and Supply in Livonia said $44,000 may indeed be enough to build a six-foot-high cyclone fence around the hospital's 7,275 foot three-sided perimeter.

"If it were a straight six-foot plain cyclone fence, with six 3 1/2-foot wide gates and three terminal posts, you could build it for under $50,000," a company spokesman said.

Whether a six-foot high fence would do the required job at the hospital is another area sure to be disputed, Benner said.

"If you are trying to keep people in or out, then no six-foot-high cyclone fence is going to do it," Benner said. "No matter how high you build the fence, if you don't bury it, it is easy for a patient to go underneath. We would probably recommend you bury it four feet underground, and put Concertina wire like a curtain over the holes in the fence," he said.

Benner said the cost would be substantially higher if the fence were buried or if other security measures were added. "It depends on what your purpose is in building the fence," he said. "You have to have a clear purpose in mind before you can decide what kind of fence you want. Would you want barbed wire? I cannot believe that wire would stop a mentally-ill patient from getting over the top if he really wanted to get out," he said.

The higher estimates may be one weapon the State Department of Mental Health may use in a battle which is shaping up in Lansing over appropriations for the fence.

In a letter to many township residents, Senator Geake asked that they write the governor in support of the fence, and include personal experiences they may have had with walkaways.

"The director of the Department of Mental Health in Lansing, and his boss, Governor Milliken, have not yet agreed" the letter said.

A Department of Mental Health spokesman said the fence may violate the spirit, if not the law of the 1974 Mental health code.

But Geake, who sits on the powerful senate appropriations committee, is trying to obtain the funds for the fence, or get them taken out of the Department of Mental Health's budget.

In the letter, Geake also asked writers to "mention the senseless murder of our 82-year-old neighbor, Mrs. (Teckla) Hamilton, by an escapee a few days ago."

Mrs. Hamilton was murdered April 4. The suspect, Johnny Crumpton, was a walkaway from Northville State Hospital. Crumpton has not been convicted, or even brought to preliminary hearing. He has been sent to Ypsilanti State Hospital for tests to determine whether he is competent to stand trial.

Reached Monday, the Assistant Wayne County Prosecutor Chuck Seller said he doubts whether Crumpton could even be convicted of the murder.

"I am not overly optimistic about getting a conviction, even if the case were to go to trial, considering the facts of the case," Seller said.

Meanwhile, Reynolds and the hospital staff had its first meeting with the law enforcement community Friday to discuss security at Northville State Hospital.

It is the first of several meetings which will be held twice a week between security staff and police to discuss changes in security at the hospital.

"This meeting was very, very positive," Reynolds said. "It was an education for us both, and for them to learn some of the difficulties and problems we have with security at the hospital."

The hospital is in the process of hiring 14 new security guards and has ordered two new security cars to patrol Seven Mile, in the only steps taken so far to beef up security at the hospital.

Ironically, the latest community upset was not caused by a walkaway patient from the hospital, but by a 17-year-old boy who lives at the Northville Residential Training Center, a home for the retarded which happens to be on the grounds of the state hospital.

A boy, 17, ran away from the group of eight patients and two counselors he was with in Cass Benton park on April 19, said John Hunt, director of the center. The boy, whom Hunt describes as "severely and profoundly retarded," ran through the woods into Jamestown Circle in King's Mill. While the group frantically looked for him, the boy apparently stripped off his clothes, township police said.

Police found him, convinced him to put his shorts back on, and returned him to the center to his relieved counselors, leaving some highly upset King's Mill residents, police said.

"Speaking for our residents, we would not like to have a fence," Hunt said. "I understand the situation, of course, and what has occurred. We strive for normalization here. We would like life for the residents to be as normal as possible. But I guess people do have fences around their property, so it is not that far removed from a normal situation," he said.

Type writer's taken

An IBM Selectric 2 Typewriter and two upholstered chairs were taken from the Northville State Hospital last week, Michigan State Police report. The typewriter and chairs were stolen from the Activities and Administration building during the afternoon of April 23, police said. The IBM typewriter was replaced with an old Smith Corona typewriter not belonging to the hospital, police said. They have no suspects.

Three patients walked away from Northville State Hospital, last week, state police report. Two patients did not return from day passes. Daniel Coldwell, 22, failed to return from a weekend pass. Ronald Johnson, 18, did not return from a day pass. Coldwell, from Detroit, was described as "dangerous if provoked," while Johnson, from California, was described as "not dangerous, with an English accent." Both men left the hospital last Friday. Neither has been recovered. Larry Jones, 23, also walked away from the hospital April 23 but was picked up by state police and returned to the hospital, the report said.

A seven year old boy was the victim of an attempted kidnapping last week, said Northville Township police. The boy was playing in his driveway at 41788 Ladywood the evening of April 24. He told police that a brown two-door car drove up and a man wearing a baseball cap and a pullover asked him if he wanted candy and if he wanted a ride home. The boy ran into his house and his mother called the police. The boy described the man as young, white, with no glasses or facial hair.

Northville man in college race

A Northville man has pitched his hat into Schoolcraft College's political ring. Seeking election to the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees, along with five other candidates, is Thomas Moore of 42035 Sutters Lane in Northville Commons subdivision. Moore, who had been a candidate for appointment earlier, will battle incumbent Richard Hayward of Livonia for a two-year board seat. The four other candidates to file by last week's deadline are seeking two six-year terms. They are: Incumbents Nancie Blatt of Livonia and Dr. Gerald Cox of Garden City, attorney Robert Ficano of Livonia, and Michael Burley of Canton township. The election will be held June 11. Moore is an engineering supervisor for the Ford Motor Company. Hayward, appointed to the board last year to replace Ron Cowden who moved to Manistee, is an executive vice-president of a structural steel firm. An interest in community colleges dating back to the years when he and his wife attended junior college in Texas is in part responsible for Moore's decision to seek the trustee post. His interest in and knowledge about Schoolcraft first developed a few years ago when he was teaching part-time at the two-year college. The 38-year-old Moore holds both a BA and an MA degree from Texas Tech, and he presently is working on an MBA at Michigan State University. A resident of Michigan for 13½ years, he has lived in Northville for the past six years. Married with two children, ages 12 and 9, he will receive his MBA degree just two days before the June 11 election. Mrs. Moore is a former Texas librarian.

History of school millage

In the last five years, Northville voters have faced 10 millage requests for operational purposes in eight elections. Twice, April 1976 and June 1978, two issues were on the same ballot. The requests have been split down the middle, five approvals and five defeats. Three of those requests have been for renewal millage and all have passed by 2-1 margins or better. Only two of the seven additional millage requests have passed. But in four of the five defeats, the millage sought has eventually been approved. The 2.6 mills sought twice in the fall of 1975 were approved in a 3.9 mill package in April 1976. The extra mills sought in July 1977 and as part of a larger package in April 1978 were approved in June 1978.

By BILL SLIGER

Defeated plan still a good idea

Mainstreet 78 revisited.

It has been a little more than two months since voters rejected Northville's downtown improvement project. And there has been time to reflect.

Nothing has happened to dampen the conviction that the plan itself is sound. In my opinion it is the key to revitalization of the community's central business district. And if we do not succeed in the central core, the prospects for business activity in periphery locations is significantly reduced.

As the 578 who voted (318 No to 260 Yes) and the 3,400 who didn't may recall, Mainstreet 78 introduced the concept of increment financing to pay for $1.6 million worth of improvements in the downtown parking lots, streets and sidewalks.

The beautification project called for the bonds to be retired with revenues generated from added tax base caused either by improvements in existing business places or from the establishment of new business. No increase in the city's tax levy was anticipated.

But the key to achievement was the supporting vote of the people. First it was essential as a community guarantee that the bonds would be paid regardless of the success of the project. This made the bonds saleable at a reasonable interest rate. For those closest to the project the risk was minuscule; the rewards in the form of community solidity and tax base foundation were substantial.

But in its zeal to perfect a plan, the committee majority failed to look around itself. Some honest differences of opinion within the committee boiled over into the business community. And suddenly the Mainstreet 78 plan found resistance from those it was designed to help most.

While last-minute modifications seemed to resolve these problems, the community itself had not become as enthused as the committee that had lived with the plan for months. And when the members sat back to admire their handy work, a scattering of voters went to the polls and defeated it.

In my opinion it is more important to gain public support of Mainstreet 78 because of what it represents to the community than simply as a legal recognition of an obligation that provides lower interest rates for the financing.

Taxpayers must be convinced that Mainstreet 78 is not a boondoggle dreamed up by politicians and business interests to have the public pick up the tab for merchants and property owners in the business district.

It is, instead, a legitimate proposal designed to comply exactly with the relatively new state act which seeks to encourage improvements through the capturing of added tax base that would not otherwise be realized unless extraordinary effort were extended.

Northville's plan is one of the best ever devised in Michigan. And the proof that it works is the fact that several merchants have pledged themselves to substantial improvements based upon the encouraging signs of Mainstreet 78.

And Mainstreet 78 is almost exclusively responsible for the decision by Down River Federal Savings and Loan Association to locate a new branch facility in the city.

Although the aggressive financial institution has experienced some roadblocks in gaining permission and finding a location, its president confirmed again this week that a new structure will be built in the city this year.

Committee members were aware of the business activity being created by the Mainstreet 78 plan. Therefore, they were certain that new tax base would be readily available to provide adequate finances under the tax increment act.

They have not given up on Mainstreet 78. It will rise again. And this time the committee should not find itself bogged down in details of creating and completing details for public consideration.

Hopefully, by concentrating on informing the public and getting out a larger vote it can convince all residents that Mainstreet 78 will indeed benefit the total community.

Perhaps by 1980 Northville's downtown will blossom forth with Mainstreet 78.

So long, Joe

The stout heart of an old soldier and beloved citizen of the community halted its cadence this week.

Joe Denton is best remembered as the gentle police chief of the Northville of the late forties and fifties. Never forgotten either will be his habit of saying in his English accent, "by golly" when he was surprised or upset.

Mild language, indeed, from an ex-infantryman and cowhand of the old west. But tough, old Joe on gimpy legs always had a smile and kind word for his many friends.

By golly, he will be missed.

YES . . .

The environment is now regulated by the Land Sales Act, the Inland Lakes Act, the Great Lakes Waterways Act, the Real Property Act, Soil Erosion Act, National Rivers Act, Rivers and Harbors Act, Water Pollution Act, the Interstate Fuel Disclosure Act, Endangered Species Act, the Historical Act, the Solid Waste Disposal Act, the Zoning Act, the Building Code Act, the Subdivision Control Act, and a dozen others.

Now comes the Wetlands Preservation Act, Senate Bill 3, and HB 4049. It would seem absurd that any group of people could approach the Michigan Legislature and call for an absolute moratorium on development, conversion and use of millions of acres of land without making any effort whatsoever to determine exactly what is being done.

Proponents of the current Wetlands legislation want to strictly curtail the ability of millions of citizens to use and develop their property without any idea as to what property and what people they will effect. The inequity

NO . . .

Twenty-five years ago, I lived on what seemed the edge of civilization. Woods and a river bordered a new housing development. It was northwest Detroit near Telegraph Road. Small pockets of development lay beyond, but the area north and west was largely untouched.

Today, the metropolis is a megalopolis and spreads to include a seven-county area. It pleases me that those woods and river survive. Someone looked ahead. There have been too few to envision the future.

The anxious age of industrialization has borrowed from tomorrow to provide for today. The results are rich and spectacular. There is, however, this nagging thought at the back of the mind that says, "Enough! Slow down, think, plan." We have run willy-nilly through the century plopping down our freeways, power plants, parking lots and hamburger stands with no of the pending legislation is greatest on the person who owns a small parcel of land.

If the property owner happens to misunderstand the vague definition of wetlands, and decides incorrectly and innocently goes ahead with the building of a garage or the expansion of a garden or whatever activity which would involve the draining, dredging, filling, or otherwise altering a "Wetland", that person is subject to immediate criminal sanctions with up to a year in jail or a minimum of $2500 per day of violation.

That is an absolute statutory minimum penalty, there is no judicial discretion for lesser penalties. There is no reasonableness in the "Wetlands" bill as proposed. It stands ready to trample on constitutionally guaranteed rights to own and use property.

thought as to their effect.

Orderly, planned growth must save for tomorrow. The fragile systems that make up our environment must be given attention and consideration. Once damaged, they are irreparable. Once lost, they are irreplaceable. Only the human creatures have polluted the water, fouled the air and trashed the land.

Let us leave some of the loveliness and magnificence. The throw-away society of humans has had little regard for the other creatures and their habitat. We have all lost. Our children deserve more from us than another hamburger-heaven parking lot.

Excessive concern for the environment? There's no such thing.

Reflections of a jam

JACK W. HOFFMAN'S COLUMN

Kingsley S. Bingham is one of my favorite personalities from the pages of area history.

His story is packed with pioneering, adventure, political intrigue, success and tragedy.

Buried in the little cemetery overlooking the millpond at Brighton, Bingham is best known as one of Michigan's early governors (1855-58). He served in other state and national posts as well.

Bingham, whose handsome Greek Revival home still stands northwest of South Lyon, wasn't just an ordinary Michigan governor. He had the distinction of being the first Republican governor in the United States, having been instrumental in forming the party at Jackson and in campaigning for the election of Abraham Lincoln.

(Incidentally, two of Bingham's children attended school in Northville).

A gentleman farmer who was not content with just looking after his farm, Bingham's activities carried him into business as well as politics. His attempt at banking, however, was a disaster.

In the tiny, now nonexistent town of Kensington, or "Kent" as it was popularly called, a "wildcat" bank was established in 1838. Although he was not one of the bank's originators, Bingham was one of its first financial backers. The town and bank, located less than a mile from Bingham's house, is now the site of Kensington Metropark.

Based on a fraudulent certificate of deposit, crisp new bank notes were issued, and two of the bank originators took off for Milwaukee carrying a pile of the notes, buying up everything they could get their hands on "from a farm or village lot to a pinchbeck time-piece or a suckling calf."

'Despite criticism, Silver Springs does a good job'

To the Editor:
No citizen in the community is trying to deny recent (writers of letters to the editor) their free exercise claims. Obviously, their freedom of speech is not being denied as the letters have been printed again and again.
There are two sides to the Silver Springs testing issue. Both sides are worthy of freedom of expression.
If Silver Springs is to be evaluated it cannot be done fairly by accentuating a few negatives but by looking at the overall picture. That includes its numerous successes. The negative should be looked at and dealt with but not at the expense of overall philosophy. Everyone is entitled to their opinion including teachers in and out of the system. I am merely expressing my opinion, as a parent, from my own experience and observations at S.S.

Parents choose to send their children to private schools. They are not forced to do so.
I commend those who spend their time volunteering their services to the school, as I have, but this is not a contest of who gives more where. If it were, we would have to mention the time and money and extra effort many teachers at Silver Springs put in above and beyond requirements.

With humility in the fact of its goodness, I personally will continue to defend the philosophy at Silver Springs.
In a recent Supreme Court decision, Justice Douglas had this to say about public schools:
"The state is not concerned with the maintenance of an educational system as an end in itself, it is rather attempting to nurture and develop the human potential of its children ... to expand their knowledge, broaden their sensibilities, foster a spirit of free inquiry, and increase their human understanding and tolerance." S.S. follows this philosophy.

If we merely stick to the "true primary purpose" of education, reading, writing and arithmetic, as one writer suggests, we can get rid of music, phys ed, art, science fairs and field trips. We could rid ourselves of audio visual aids and playground equipment. We could easily get rid of special education, media centers, fun runs, mother's teas and even the PTA. That would reduce costs to the taxpayers. Sound good?

We can just get out the rod, lump our children together in the high school gymnasium and teach them basics. Would that prepare them for the complexities of life in the 20th Century or better prepare them for 19th Century agrarian society?

If you judge people or institutions only by the mistakes they make, whether or not they could be helped, and deny their total philosophy because of it, you are not helping them to correct their errors but equating problems with their total worth.
Be concerned about problems. Advise, question and help, but help.

News from Lansing

Fostering a favorable job climate should rank, in my opinion, among the Michigan Legislature's top priorities.

I say "should" because I think the legislature has failed to seriously work toward achieving this goal.
In essence, I think the legislature has let both the employers and employees of our state down.

My basis for making this judgment is the lack of responsible action by the legislature to reform our state's workers' and unemployment compensation laws.

Both of these systems are riddled with abuses which cost job-providers in our state millions of dollars each year and which stand in the way of improving benefit levels for employees who truly deserve these benefits.

As a result, it is becoming increasingly difficult to encourage expansion of present businesses and industries or to attract new ones to our state. And, logic tells us that if we can't expand our employer market, we can't expand our job market either.

One of the more glaring abuses I am talking about is allowing people who voluntarily quit their jobs to collect unemployment compensation.

Estimates vary as to how many voluntary quitters in our state are currently drawing jobless pay, but some sources have placed the figure as high as 190,000.

As you are no doubt aware, unemployment compensation was originally established to assist those who find themselves out of a job through no fault of their own, such as when a business cuts back on its work force or shuts down completely.

Voluntary quitters certainly do not fall into this category, yet they are still allowed by law here in Michigan to draw unemployment compensation benefits. People such as those who are fired for misconduct or intoxication on the job, or who voluntarily retire from their jobs, need only wait 13 weeks before they are allowed to draw jobless pay for a total of 26 weeks thereafter.

Is it any wonder why, when surrounding states prohibit this practice, our state is having a difficult time convincing businesses and industries to expand or locate here?

The total cost of funding our state's unemployment compensation system is paid by employers. Our job-providers now pay the second highest unemployment compensation rates in the nation.

Over the long haul, of course, we all end up paying these costs because our employers have no alternative but to pass this burden on to consumers in increased prices for their products.

Two major pieces of unemployment compensation-related legislation have been introduced in the legislature since the beginning of this year. One would address the voluntary quitters problem, while the other would increase unemployment benefits by 25 percent.

I would like to see both of these bills enacted into law, but I cannot support the latter without first passing the former.

Due largely to the abuse of voluntary quitters and our state's see-saw-like economy, Michigan employers already owe the federal government $624 million for a federal bail-out which occurred when our unemployment insurance fund couldn't handle the vast benefits to the many jobless during the economic recession of the mid-'70s. How can we ask our state's employers to face another cost boost, of perhaps more than $125 million a year, without first tackling the voluntary quitters issue? We simply cannot, in my opinion.

Granted, it is not an easy task to define exactly when voluntary quitters

The two were eventually arrested, and within a year after it came into existence, the Kensington bank folded and Bingham was appointed the receiver.

Like the town itself, which at one time was larger than Milford or New Hudson, the red brick bank building on the shore of the Huron River eventually disappeared. Only a cemetery and the name remain.

So many people had been slickered out of their money, including Bingham, that by the time he became governor a term had been coined to describe a loss to a bamboozler: "The goods have gone to Kent."

Station runs out of unleaded gas

There were no gas lines in Northville as April came to a close this weekend, but area service stations are certainly conscious of the monthly fuel allocations and its possible consequences for this summer.

One station, Cal's Gulf Service at 202 West Main, ran short of unleaded gasoline. Others had sufficient gas but some said their allocations forced or influenced them to shorten working hours.

the same equipment that was here when I came in 1968.

"The culinary arts program could expand its enrollment. The registrar's office would get some space in the move. The registrar has been in a 'temporary' building since the 1960s."

The Forum won't join the millage steering committee, headed by the chairperson and vice-chairperson of the board of trustees — Paul Kadish and Harry Greenleaf.

Instead, Nickels said, the Forum will send a mailing to 2,500 members of the Michigan Education Association who live in the Schoolcraft College district, informing them of its endorsements of the millage and board of trustees candidates. Faculty members will also work at the polls, he said.

The Forum, an MEA affiliate union, has about 160 full-time members and about the same number of part-time instructors.

The college district includes the K-12 districts of Clarenceville, Garden City, Livonia, Northville and Plymouth-Canton.

Officers of the Forum, all unopposed in last week's voting, will be:

- Delavan Sipes, an electronics instructor since 1965, president. He has long been active in the union, though not recently as an officer.
- Lowell Cook, instructor-coordinator in business, vice-president.
- Sandra Florek, a counselor, treasurer, a post she has held several years.
- Nickels, a chemistry instructor, secretary.

Nickels had been president one year, during which he presented the board of trustees a number of "position papers" on college problems and led the faculty through an eight-day strike.

"The strain was starting to affect my teaching," he said of his year's presidency. "Several students asked, 'Are you angry?' But I want to remain part of the leadership."

worked in rodeos and as a bronc buster. "I never rode those Brahma bulls. You could get hurt."

He enjoyed talking about his early years in the West, recalling a meeting with Buffalo Bill and remembering how a man armed with a branding iron left a permanent scar on his neck.

Eventually Grennan learned of Mr. Denton's talents as a horseman and hired him to train his horses and manage his farm.

Despite the rough and tough early years, Mr. Denton is remembered as a gentle but firm police chief, who garnered the respect of the community's criminal and non-criminal citizenry alike.

Perhaps most indicative of the man was his formation of a junior police, a volunteer organization of young people in town. It taught respect of law, while providing youngsters with recreational activities.

Mr. Denton's wife, Florence, died in 1968. They had met in England and were married in 1911.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Carl Stephens of Northville; two sons, Carl of Pottstown, Pennsylvania and Raymond of Sarasota, Florida; four grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

In token of its appreciation for his service to the community, Northville named the little neighborhood park at Fairbrook and Eaton in his honor.

In lieu of flowers, memorials may be made to the First Presbyterian Church, family members said.

She stars in NMU play

Cindy Todd of Northville performed recently in the Tony Award-winning musical "A Little Night Music" at Northern Michigan University in Marquette.

Ms. Todd played the role of Mrs. Segstrom who was part of a singing quintet that "commented melodically on the action of the play," said Director James Panowski.

She incorporated her singing skills with her theatre skills during her freshman year in her role in "The Man From LaMancha." Since then she has taken a number of vocal and acting parts in NMU plays.

When she's not acting or singing or going to classes, she works part time in the theatre box office as student supervisor. During NMU's recent Playwriting Award contest Todd put in many hours helping to organize it.

"Cindy was single-handedly responsible for the logistics of the playwriting contest and she did a superb job," said Panowski. "She's the most reliable and dependable student we have working in the box office."

Because she is a music major, Ms. Todd also has become actively involved in music. At Northville High School she was a member of the chorus.

ran dry on Friday, according to Manager Andy Sambrook.

"We've got 80 gallons in the tank and that's out," he said.

Cal's has plenty of regular gas and delivery of its May allocation of unleaded was expected yesterday.

Sambrook said Cal's April allocation was no different than last year's. This year's demand was shorter, he said, because of power shortages that temporarily shut down other Northville stations.

Unlike other parts of the country, Michigan motorists had few problems getting gas this weekend. Long gas lines were reported in Connecticut and California although officials there blamed panic buying.

Sambrook predicted similar scares in Michigan this summer as some stations may restrict sales because of their allocations.

No other station contacted Monday by the Record reported that their tanks had run dry.

"We've lasted through the month," said a spokesman at Asher's 76 Station, 357 South Rogers. Earlier this month, Asher had put a $10 limit on gas purchases.

At Northville Shell, 575 Seven Mile, Mike Green said he always had enough gas to serve customers but added that he had limited his hours because of his allocation.

"I could have pumped more if I could have gotten more," he said.

Phil's 76 Service, 130 West Main, had "sufficient" gas and faced no problems at the end of the month, according to Phil Rosselle.

He said decision to cut hours was influenced by gas allocations.

"We started closing on Sunday except for emergency repairs," he said.

Was this because of the allocation? "Kind of yes and no," he answered. "It does affect your thinking."

An attendant at Lyn's Super 100, 510 South Main, said there had been enough Clark gas to pump.

"Our price for regular has even gone down a penny or two," he said. "You can't beat that."

should be allowed to collect jobless pay and when they shouldn't. Some people must quit their jobs to fulfill legitimate family or personal obligations or because working conditions are intolerable. It appears quite obvious, however, that others who simply don't want to work should be disqualified.

The voluntary quitters bill, currently lodged in the Senate Labor Committee, offers a viable solution to this problem. It would require those who quit their jobs for no legitimate reason, or who are fired for misconduct or intoxication, to hold a new job for a minimum of 13 weeks before they could draw future unemployment compensation benefits.

I intend to work toward passage of this bill during this legislative session for I believe resolution of the problem of voluntary quitters is long overdue.

Although the legislature may claim it is trying to improve our state's job climate, very little can really be accomplished until the abuses of our state's workers and unemployment compensation systems are addressed. Our citizens deserve no less.

Mustangs drop on 8-2 "chiller" to Mott managed to get around on a Hunter fast ball and drop a single over first base.

By JIM HAYNES

The wind howled, the air froze, the Mott batters boomed and the Hunter collected his game. Translated, the Northville High varsity baseball team got whipped by the weather and Waterford Mott Monday afternoon, 8-2.

In the fifth inning, Paul Luiki pulled the trigger on another Hunter fast ball. It landed 20 feet beyond the leftfield fence for the Mustangs' first run and second hit.

In the next inning, Dan Borthwick bounced a grounder up the middle, then went to second on the bad throw. Austin then smashed a double up the alley in left-centerfield, scoring Borthwick. Jeff Norton singled in the seventh, but by then the Mustangs were so numb from the cold and shell shock that the game was long over.

Jim Hunter, the Waterford pitcher, was throwing so much heat that even the near-arctic wind that plagued the Mustang team had no effect on him. Hunter was overpowering as he fanned 15 Northville batters. He had a perfect game going into the fourth inning. Then, with one out, Dave Austin

Rick Borthwick was the starting pitcher for Northville, but lasted only until the fifth inning. The Mott team rocked him for eight runs and 10 hits. Jim Marcicki relieved him in the sixth and went the next two innings without yielding a run.

"Hunter is a real good pitcher and Rick is pitching good too, but it's just too darn cold to play ball," coach Bob Kucher said, as he blew into his hands, trying to keep them warm from the wind that whipped into the dugout.

The weather has been particularly unkind to Kucher's Mustangs, forcing them to cancel two scheduled games earlier in the week. They were to play Farmington Harrison Wednesday, April 25, and Plymouth Salem on Thursday, April 26.

Title IX means equality

I gained many things from college besides a formal education. I learned a whole new set of values and attitudes that I place on an equal footing, if not more important, than the "book learning" I absorbed for four years.

Perhaps the most important attitude I developed and the one I hold the most value in, is the controversial subject of equality for women.

That very phrase just makes me laugh. How ridiculous it sounds. Equality for women. It's like a phrase from some Victorian time period. In this day and age, when the blacks and the Indians have at least gained legal equality, that women should have to fight for the same equality under the law is hilarious. And universally, unequivocally sad.

The discrimination issue for women is coming to a head on two fronts these days. One is the ERA/Schlafly battle. I have opinions on that, but they don't belong on the sports page. The other is the matter of Title IX and equality for women in sports.

Title IX, that oft heard about but little understood document that was originally conceived and handed forth by HEW (Department of Health, Education and Welfare) in 1972, was basically a great long piece of legislation that granted equality as a whole to women in society.

And buried way down deep inside the legal mumbo-jumbo was one small paragraph that has, at least in the sporting world, opened up a great big can of worms as far as the way men's sports are set up today.

Section 86.41 of the Title IX regulations states that "... No person shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, be treated differently from another person or otherwise be discriminated against in any interscholastic, intercollegiate, club or intramural athletics offered by recipient (of federal funds for education), and no recipient shall provide any such athletics separately on such basis."

Further on it defines a bit more clearly the various areas that equal opportunity is to be emphasized. Aspects such as a) whether the selection of sports and levels of competition effectively accommodate the interests and abilities of members of both sexes; b) the provision of equipment and supplies; c) scheduling of games and practice times; d) travel and per diem allowance; e) opportunity to receive coaching and academic tutoring; f) assignment and compensation of coaches and tutors; g) provision of locker rooms, practice and competitive facilities; h) provision of medical and training facilities and services; i) provision of housing and dining facilities and services; and j) publicity.

Schools at all levels were required to complete an evaluation of their programs to see whether they complied with these vague HEW guidelines. Schools that were deemed to have not met these guidelines were given dates by which to comply, or risk losing their federal funds. The compliance plans had to be put into effect by July 21, 1976 for elementary schools, and July 21, 1978 for secondary and collegiate institutions.

The deadlines have come and gone, and while many institutions have at least made noble efforts to comply with the regulations, others are waiting while making only token changes, to see just how firm a stance HEW will take with those who choose to buck the law.

The law buckers, big schools like the University of Michigan and Ohio State and U.C.L.A., while publicly stating that they support the intentions of Title IX, feel that to comply with the ruling would ruin their already existing mammoth mens' programs, such as football at the U of M.

Once the deadline passed and law suits were brought forth by women against the violating universities, HEW decided that it needed to re-clarify the regulations. It released this winter some tentative guidelines that would base the amount of money per athlete on all existing sports, including football and basketball.

Here the cries really arose. Football programs spend a vast amount of money on their gladiators. This money is to be put into the pot of money spent on all mens' programs, divided by the total number of men on the teams. Then this amount per athlete will be spent on each female athlete. Most schools won't be able to afford to comply. Which means either dropping the large money sports like football, or breaking the law. Many schools say they will break the law. And HEW responds that it will simply cut off all federal funding to each institute that doesn't comply. Federal funds make up a large proportion of universities' income.

How does all of this relate to Northville? As for the school and its athletic programs, I'm not sure. I am used to the infighting and political struggles at the university level and feel best qualified to comment on that aspect. But I plan to investigate the programs in Northville, and to see if they are in compliance with Title IX. The final guidelines from HEW will be handed down shortly, and that's when the proverbial mud will hit the fan.

Lady Mustangs triumph in triangular track meet

Northville High girls' track coach Bob Prom has to be a happy man. After just his first track meet of the new season Prom's charges have surpassed the victory total his team set last season.

Last Tuesday, April 24, the Mustangs won a triangular meet against Waterford Mott and Farmington. Scores were Northville 80, Waterford 42, and Farmington 35.

Last season, the Northville squad failed to win a meet.

Lisa Carter and Ann Dayton led the Mustang attack, with Carter garnering three individual first place finishes and sharing in another. Dayton captured two individual first places and also shared a first.

Carter took firsts in the long jump, with a leap of 15'7"; 110-yard low hurdles, clocking in at 17:3; and in the 220-yard low hurdles, finishing in :35.2.

She was also a member of the first place Northville 440-yard relay team, which broke the tape at :56.6. Leslie Dilts, Sheila Harrison and Chris Spigarelli were also on the relay team.

Dayton captured first in the 440-yard dash, burning in at :63.5 and in the 220-yard dash, crossing the finish line at :28.6. Dayton finished second to Carter in the 220-yard low hurdles, with a time of :36.0 while anchoring the winning Northville mile relay team, which clocked in at 4:31.1, a new school record. Michelle Hayes, Tammy Selfridge, and Kathy McMillan rounded out the relay squad.

Also chalking up firsts for the Mustang cause were Anita Sledz, who beat the pack in the two-mile run, finishing in 13:56.0. Carol Bargert finished second for the Northville squad, crossing the finish line in a time of 14:27.0.

Spigarelli took a first in the 100-yard dash, bursting the tape in a time of :12.6, while Dilts followed right behind in a :13.3.

Hayes took a second in the 880-yard run, finishing in 2:42.0, while Selfridge captured fourth place, running a time of 2:56.0. Audrey Rigner took a fourth place finish when she leaped to a height of 4'10" in the high jump.

In the mile run, Hayes set a new school record when she crossed the finish line in a time of 5:48.0. Sledz was behind her for a third place, finishing in 6:03.9. Sue Stilson took a third place in the discus for the Mustangs, tossing it 52'3".

Dilts took a fourth in the 110-yard low hurdles with a time of :18.9, while Kay Wolf crossed the finish line in the 220-yard hurdles in a time of 41.6. Carter, who took the event, established a new school record.

Northville's 880-yard relay team took the last first for the Mustangs, clocking in at 2:00.9. Harrison, Wolf, Mary Westervelt and Spigarelli made up the relay squad.

The next track action for the lady Mustangs will be Thursday, May 3, when they travel to Waterford Mott for a rematch. Meet time is slotted for 4 p.m.

Mustang runners conquer Boston Marathon

By JIM HAYNES

While most Northville High students spent the recent Eastern vacation either gracing the population-swollen Florida beaches, or braving the rain and cold of springtime in Michigan, two Mustang juniors decided to do something a little more original with their time than their peers did.

Steven Bourne and Dan Whitaker packed their running shoes, road maps, spare change and tooth brushes into a family car and headed east to run in what is rapidly becoming the most prestigious of American trademarks, the Boston Marathon.

Bourne and Whitaker, along with Steve Stewart, started talking about the trip a long time ago. "We started talking about it after cross country season," Whitaker said. "We ran all winter, took some long runs, and we wanted to run in a marathon. We thought of Boston and said why not."

Stewart injured his ankle while they were training, so he decided to go to Florida instead. But Bourne and Whitaker kept their dream alive all through the harsh winter.

Their parents were hesitant at first to let them go alone. But finally they relented. "They would rather there were three of us going," Bourne said of his parents, "but we convinced them that we would be all right."

"They wanted to go alone," Harold Bourne, Steve's father said. "It was their adventure and we didn't want to spoil it for them."

Bourne and Whitaker, both on the track and cross country team at Northville, trained for the event by supplementing their regular track practice with occasional long runs to build their endurance. But it wasn't enough to really help them.

"I would tell someone to train a lot more than we did," Bourne said, giving his advice to any aspirants to next year's race. "Put in a lot of miles because that run will wear you down."

"Take it easy, go out slow," Whitaker advised. "Our goals were to go under four hours, which we did, but we ended up walking at 17 miles." Bourne finished the race with a time of 3:53:0, while Whitaker was right behind him, finishing in 3:53:21.

The Boston Marathon has grown from the almost unknown event that it was just a few years ago, to one of fadish proportions, with thousands of spectators crowding the streets to watch, and just as many actually in the race. "It was weird," Bourne said. "It was like a dream. I didn't seem like we were running at all."

"It was unbelievable," Whitaker added. "I looked behind me and up in front of me all I could see were runners."

Once the race was actually run, the vast number of starters thinned down to the relatively few who were serious about running the race. Bourne and Whitaker were two of them. They had to be to put up with the pain and fatigue of running 26 miles and 800 yards, which is the distance of the course.

"At about 16 miles I started to get tired," Whitaker said. "My legs felt rubbery. But I had to finish. We were 10 miles out of town and I didn't want to walk that far."

Both the runners stuck together for most of the race, helping each other and getting encouragement from the crowd which lined the sides of the road offering drinks and uplifting words.

"We stuck together most of the race," Bourne said. "But at about 17 miles, Dan started getting cramps and wanted to quit. I told him that we didn't come 800 miles to quit. So he kept going, and soon, he passed me. But when we got a few miles out of town, we decided that we had come together, so we'd finish together."

"The crowds were fantastic," Bourne added. "They were all along the side of the road to watch, and they'd cheer us on and tell us that it wasn't much further to go and to keep going."

"We're definitely thinking about going back again next year," Whitaker said. "Some other people here are talking about going, too."

"I'll always remember from this trip," Bourne said, "that there were many who felt that it was just a dream of ours to run and finish the race. I'll always remember that the main reason we finished is that in spite of the others, we made it."

Northville runners lose heartbreaker to Harrison

The Northville varsity track team lost a heartbreaker Saturday afternoon, as the Mustangs were upset by Farmington Harrison. Plagued by sickness and by absences of some key people, coach Ed Gabrys' charges fought valiantly to pull the meet out of the fire.

Three points behind with only the mile relay event left (worth five points to the winner), the race began. Northville shot out to a commanding lead, only to have the baton go outside of the legal zone of the track during an exchange. That disqualified the team and won the meet for Harrison.

"Like I told my kids," Gabrys said, "There were other places where we could have won it. Some of our times were off, and we were missing key people. It was an upset. Harrison ran better than I expected and they just upset us."

Among those who gave it their all were Tim Ellis and Dave Ward, who took second and third respectively in the 100-yard dash. Ellis threw it 124.7, while Ward's toss was 116.6. Ellis heaved the shot 43.4, good for another second, while Ward took first in the high jump with a leap of 5-8. Doug Blanch topped 5-6 to take second in that event.

Ray Coram went 19-1/2 in the long jump, good for a first place finish, and Ray Craft cleared nine feet in the high jump.

In the 120-yard high hurdles, Ray Marzoni took first with a time of 16.7. Kevin Swain, running the 100-yard dash in the place of ailing Miles Couyoumjan, captured second place in 10.7.

Brian Turnbull came in second in the mile run, crossing the finish line in a time of 4:40.8 while Joe Martin finished third at 4:54.3. The 880-yard relay squad of Coram, Swain, Ken Weber and Doug Wright took first with a time of 1:36.6.

Harry Couyoumjan broke the tape in the 440-yard dash, capturing first in 54.2.

In the 330-yard low hurdles, Weber came in second, recording a time of 1:10.7.

"We thought that at full strength, we would have beaten Harrison," Gabrys said. "But we were upset by them. They were surprisingly strong ... at full strength, it would have been closer."

That set the stage for the fateful relay run.

Last Tuesday, April 24, the Mustangs trounced Redford Thurston High School, 98-34. It was all Northville as towards the end Gabrys was pulling his stronger performers and replacing them with younger athletes, in order to provide them with experience.

Soccer in second week of action

Pele watch out! Eric Smolenski is on the loose. Smolenski kicked four goals leading the Cosmos to a 5-0 white-washing of the Livonia 8 team in 10 and under soccer play this weekend. Smolenski now has seven goals on the season. Don Potts added the other goal for the Cosmos.

Doug Ayers was the goalie of record. His shutout was aided by some sparkling defense by Dave Orlandini.

United also shut out its opponent Saturday, beating the Livonia Express 1-0. With two minutes to go in the game, Doug Martin smashed a rifle shot past the startled Express goalie on a penalty shot to give United the win. Dante Lamanna had 17 defensive saves to seal the shutout.

The Hot Spurs, down 2-0 at the half, came thundering back to score four goals in the second half to win against the Livonia T-Birds, 4-2. Rich Smith and Ken Kossack each had two goals to lead the Hot Spurs.

Baserunning for buffs

The People's Almanac reports that the very worst exhibition of baserunning in a baseball game was given by the 1926 Brooklyn Dodgers. They were also known as the Brooklyn Bums. The Dodgers had loaded the bases with one out against the Boston Braves. The batter, Babe Herman, drove an extra-base hit to right field, and the man on third scored easily. Dazzy Vance took off from second, but for some reason decided to return to third after rounding the bag.

Meanwhile, Chick Fewster was going for third from first. And Herman, who was watching the ball rather than the bases, took off and slid head first into third. The third baseman took the throw from the cutoff man and tagged the three occupants. Vance was awarded the base, but Herman and Fewster were called out to end the inning.

The rain and an 8-3 loss do little to cheer these Mustangs

Softball team loses to Harrison and rain

The rain that kept sprinkling throughout the entire game made the playing field almost as soggy as the Northville defense last Wednesday. Committing five errors, the Mustangs folded under a steady attack from Farmington Harrison, 8-3.

Of the eight Harrison runs, six were unearned. That did little to comfort starting pitcher Julie Abraham, who yielded just six hits while walking just one. She also notched one strike-out.

Northville scored in the third when Judy Orr led off with a double. Kim Kurzawa followed with another two-bagger to score Orr. After two outs, Sue Heinzman hit yet a third triple to knock in Kurzawa with the second Northville run. That made the score 2-2.

In the fifth, Harrison scored four unearned runs to take the lead, 6-2. It was a lead they never relinquished. In the sixth, Kathy Phillips walked, went to second on a balk, and came home when Sue Kinnaird slapped a single up the middle.

Farmington added a run in their half of the seventh to make it 8-3, and that was all she wrote for the Mustangs.

"We made a lot of mistakes that are due mainly to inexperience," coach Tim Lutes said. "We haven't been able to establish a consistent attack yet. It's little things that kill us. Like bunting. They didn't have to bunt once last year so it's new to them."

"We have a strong defense but our hitting will take some time."

Hurler leads JV's to victory

If Bob Thomson was a professional athlete, he could make a strong argument for the old adage, "send me to the majors or trade me." Thomson turned in one of the finest performances to date by a Mustang pitcher, varsity or JV. He may demand to be sent to the varsity.

Thomson led his JV teammates to a 6-0 white-washing of Farmington Harrison last week. Thomson went the distance, striking out 18 of the 25 batters he faced. He gave up but one hit, walked four and tattooed two more batters by bouncing baseballs off their persons.

Northville, on the other hand, did some tattooing of their own as they rapped out nine hits off Harrison pitching. Leading the attack for the Mustangs were Steve Wynn, Thomson and Steve Denhof, each with two hits apiece. Northville collected nine hits total, with Steve Cornallino, Gavin Wolfe and Mark Denhof each getting tallies.

Northville scored in the first when Thomson singled, went to third on a single by Wolfe and then scored when the pitcher balked him home.

In the third, the Mustangs struck twice. Singles by Wynn, Thomson and a double by Cornallino accounted for the two Northville runs.

In the fifth inning, Craig Wisbiski and Wolfe walked, Mark Denhof laid down a bunt, which loaded the bases and set the scene for Steve Denhof's double. Two more Mustang runs came across the plate to make the score 5-0. The last run came 'n an infield out which scored Mark Denhof.

Tom Davis and Jeff Metz each scored a pair.

On Sunday, the Arsenal came back to tangle with the Farm Flames. After the dust had cleared, the two teams finished locked in a 3-3 tie. Dirk Nowka had two goals for the team, while Jeff Metz chipped in a tally.

United, behind the united efforts of goalies John Daly and Chris Sixt, shut out the Westland Razorbacks 7-0. Chris Koenig and Omar Anisaglu each had two goals apiece, followed by single scores from Ken Rosselot, John Moran and Clay Walters.

The Hot Spurs tied the Livonia 12 team 3-3 when Chuck Kellar notched the tying goal with 10 seconds left in the match. Scott Gala, who had eight goals last week, added his ninth of the season early in the third period. Mike Ross drew blood first for the Hot Spurs.

The Rowdies were stomped by the Livonia 3 team, 6-1, with Ray Greene tallying for the lone score.

In 16 and under action, The Arsenal took on United of Northville and came out in a 2-2 tie. Steve Gribble, who played goalie in the first half, moved out to halfback in the second half and scored for the Arsenal, as did Ken Winters. Char Ramsey notched both United goals.

United then played the Livonia 3 team and lost 2-1. Steve Ross scored for United.

Arsenal then took on the Livonia 2 team and got smeared 6-2. Dave DeMattas and Ken Winters garnered the lone Arsenal tallies.

For the girls' 10 and under division, all of the Northville teams were shut out. The Stars lost to the Livonia Stingers, 5-0; the Foxes were skinned by the Plymouth Red Devils 12-0 and the Aztecs lost to the Plymouth Blue Strikers 3-0.

The Pink Panthers of the 12 and under division shut out the Farm Furries 2-0 behind the dead-eye foot of Kathy Korowin, who notched two goals.

The Aztecs shut out their opponents by the same score, 2-0. They beat the Plymouth Sunshine Girls behind the goal tending of Kim McRae. Mandy Olgren was all the offense McRae needed, as she scored both goals for the Aztecs.

The Stars, the Foxes, and the Cougars all were shut out. The Stars fell to the Livonia Bobcats 7-0, while the Foxes fell victim to the Rowdies of Livonia, 4-0. The Plymouth Vipers fanged the Cougars 2-0.

The Pink Panthers of the 14 and under division carried on the tradition established by their little sisters, shutting out the Livonia 4 squad, 4-0 Sunday. Karen Berlin was the heroine in the nets as she made six super saves to preserve the victory. Sharon Campbell, Khri Korowin, Angie Butterfield and Kelly Coutts each tallied for the Panthers.

The Fillies kicked the Livonia Gold-diggers 7-3 Sunday, behind the five goals by Ann Schwartz. Kathy Kirwin and Krista Kibby, who scored her first goal, each tallied a score.

The Stars' Lisa Bacigalupi stopped a penalty kick with 15 minutes to go in the contest to preserve a 1-1 tie with the Plymouth Demons. Chrissy Kreutzberg notched the only Star goal.

The Aztecs got two goals from Lisa Cahill and another from Holly Hubbard to tie the Farm Celtics 3-3.

In 19 and under action, Sara Nowka, Nancy Pinkelman (3) and Cindy Martin (2), led the team to a 6-1 victory over the Farm Fillies. Zoi Valassis was the goalie for the Stars.

The Plymouth Buccaneers made the Aztecs walk the plank Saturday shutting them out 3-0.

Orchard Ridge gaslights to go

Long strings of gaslights, a controversial landmark of the Orchard Ridge campus of Oakland Community College, are coming out

The OCC board is advertising for bids for an estimated $375,000 conversion to electricity. Target completion date is October 5.

When the campus was opened in 1967, the gaslights were considered charmingly atmospheric and small townish. With the environmental movement of the early 1970s and the energy pinch of the mid-'70s, however, Orchard Ridge's gaslights became the target of derisive criticism.

Orchard Ridge is south of the I-696 freeway, between Orchard Lake and Farmington roads, in Farmington Hills.

OCC officials said operating costs for electric lights would be about $1,500 a year. Operating costs for the gaslights — including gas, maintenance and a vehicle — are about $52,000.

When the $375,000 conversion cost is added in and amortized over a 20-year period, the cost of electricity is still only one-third the cost of gas, according to Orchard Ridge Provost Richard T. Thompson.

The conversion is being designed by the architect-engineering firm of Hoyem-Basso Associates, Inc., Bloomfield Hills

Honorable mention

Raymond J. Bayerl, 16-year-old Northville High School senior, won honorable mention in the 22nd annual Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition. He received the award at a banquet on the campus of Eastern Michigan University. Winners were determined through a two-part testing program. More than 24,000 students took the initial examination last October. The top 1,175 students were re-examined in December and the final 106 students were determined from the second test and invited to the awards banquet. Dr. Andrew Demster, associate professor of mathematics at Eastern, served as director of the competition. The Northville senior is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Bayerl of 43646 Westridge.

State policeman takes retirement

State Police Trooper James T. Sherman, 38, of the Northville post, took a deferred retirement Saturday, April 28, after more than 12 years of service.

Sherman joined the State Police in January, 1966, serving first at the Erie post before getting a transfer in 1968 to Tekonsha.

He resigned from the department in mid-1972 but then returned to the State Police in April, 1973, with reinstatement as a trooper at the Ypsilanti post. He next served with the detective division at Detroit beginning in January, 1975, until his transfer in January, 1978, to Northville.

His department credits include a citation for meritorious service. This was for his part as an undercover officer in a drug case in the Ann Arbor-Westland area in 1975. Despite some degree of personal risk, the case led without injury to anyone to the arrest of eight subjects and the seizures of 400 pounds of marijuana, $24,000 in cash and a handgun.

Schoolcraft schedules another honey of a school

The 41st Annual Bee School will be held at Schoolcraft on Saturday, May 5. Presented by the Southeastern Michigan

Ficano supports research center

Robert A. Ficano, Livonia attorney and candidate for Schoolcraft Community College trustee, has indicated his support for a research center to assist with employment placement for students at the college.

The candidate also noted the need for improving transferability of credit earned at Schoolcraft, for students entering major universities. "I believe that the college is not utilizing its full potential in helping the serious transfer students and associate graduates," Ficano said.

In discussions with graduate and current students at Schoolcraft, dissatisfaction at their inability to transfer some credits to universities has been mentioned, Ficano noted.

In calling for the addition of a research center at Schoolcraft, Ficano mentioned the success of a similar department at Macomb Community College, which assists students in career choices.

The Macomb Research Center conducts surveys of its students and gets feedback about the success of the school's programs," Ficano explained. "I'd like to know how Schoolcraft graduates do in the job market, and develop programs to enhance their employment opportunities.

"Another useful function of a research center would be to anticipate fields of employment that are opening or closing, and communicate that information to students," Ficano continued.

For example, in 1978 the following communities in the Schoolcraft District reported the following regarding employment of police officers:

Livonia — seven cadets promoted to patrolmen; no officers hired;

Northville — three cadets promoted; no additional promotions this year;

Westland — four police officers hired;

Plymouth — two officers hired;

Canton — twenty officers hired; and Garden City — six officers hired.

Beekeepers Association in cooperation with Schoolcraft College, the day-long bee school is designed for amateurs with one or two colonies, individuals who are planning to acquire their first hive as well as the professional apiarist.

Registration for the school begins at 8:30. President Ralph Alloway of Canton will begin the program at 9. Program presenters and topics include: Merritt Marshall, Honey Plant slides; W. A. Stephen, Spending the Winter with Langstroth;

Kirt Hoesterman, Inside the Observation Hive slides; Roger Hoopengartner, Bee Research in Michigan; Robert Kimball, equipment building costs; and Beth Stephen, exhibiting honey.

Following a picnic style

potluck lunch, afternoon programs include: Al Tennenhouse, installing packages; John Buchanan, Killer Bees-Fact or Fantasy?; Gerald Draheim from the Wayne County Extension Service, Something New and Exciting; Dan Guthrie, Making Splits and Requeening; and Dick Gerathy, Swarm Prevention and Swarm Gathering. A question and answer panel discussion will conclude the program.

General registration for non-members is $1. The program is without charge for participants who have individual or family memberships. Ten new hive tools will be given away as door prizes and $1 raffle tickets may be purchased for a package of bees.

Further information may be obtained by calling Alloway at 453-2532 or Schoolcraft biology instructor Roger Sutherland at 591-6400, extension 508. Schoolcraft College is located at 18600 Haggerty Road in Livonia.

Correct college vote of board was 7-1

A recent news account contained an incorrect report on a Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees vote April 4, on hiring procedures for vice-presidential openings.

The board reserved the right of two more trustees to schedule interviews with the candidates for appointment.

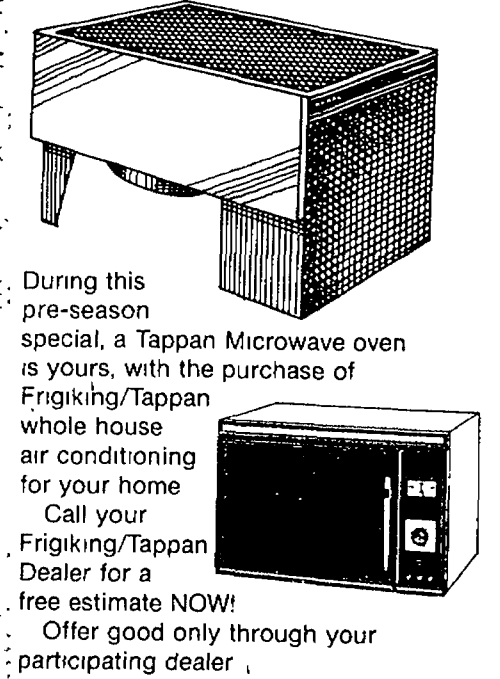

The correct vote was 7-1. The motion was supported by trustees Nancie Blatt, Gerald Cox, Harry Greenleaf, Richard Hayward, Paul Kadish, Mark McQuesten and Rosina Raymond. It was opposed by Len Wozniak.

In a separate vote, the board ruled the president may terminate any contractual employee, and the employee may ask for a board of review.

That section of the policy passed 6-1 with one abstention. McQuesten opposed it. Mrs. Raymond abstained, asking for clarification by legal counsel.

INVEST YOUR WORK, TIME AND MONEY IN A HABITANT FENCE THAT WILL LAST & LAST & LAST

Many fences sold locally are made from spruce and other woods which have a very limited lifetime outdoors — even when painted or stained. Habitant fences are manufactured from northern white cedar — a wood which has a natural resistance to rot and decay, much like pressure treated wood. It will last 5 to 6 times as long as spruce or other untreated white woods. It costs a little more but ITS WORTH IT!!!

Water mystery

"Let's make a fountain in the lobby," someone suggested recently when water burst through the floor of the stairwell at Allen Terrace senior citizens apartments. At first officials believe the water might be coming from a broken drainage tile, but the water was too clean — "crystal clear and drinkable" — to be from a drain. Others have suggested it might be underground seepage from the city's nearby reservoir or possibly an artesian well that has been suddenly activated. While the search for the source goes on, an emergency septic tank has been installed to remove the water. The large tile in the hole was installed to keep the water from eroding the soil around the hole.

College learns

Preferential treatment is legal

It's apparently legal for a community college to give preference to residents of the college district in programs for which there is a waiting list.

That opinion was given to the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees by Wolfgang Hoppe of the legal firm of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone.

Schoolcraft gives preference to residents in such programs as medical records technology and culinary arts. A policy revised this year says:

"Preference will be given to resident students for admission to those programs with waiting lists. Non-residents will be admitted to such programs when openings exist."

Hoppe said case law was thin on the topic, but the policy appeared within the law.

"As you are undoubtedly aware, different treatment of different classes of persons is generally prohibited by the equal protection clauses of the United States and Michigan constitutions unless it can be established that the distinctions being made bear a rational relationship to a legitimate objective of the governmental body making the distinction," he wrote.

"We have been unable to find any cases dealing with the kind of policy involved here. We are, nevertheless, of the opinion that the policy would probably be upheld if challenged in court."

"Our opinion is based, in part, on a U.S. Supreme Court holding that a state has a 'legitimate interest in protecting and preserving the quality of its colleges and universities and the right of its own bona fide residents to attend such institutions on a preferential tuition basis.

"By analogy, we believe that a court would probably find that Schoolcraft College has a legitimate objective to first serve the students residing within the community college district."

Hoppe closed with this advice:

"If the policy continues in existence, we suggest that it be well publicized so that entering non-resident students will be aware of the policy at the outset."

One angler's favorite is another's wipe-out

Where's the best area fishing waters?

Kent Lake may be the best all-around fishing lake in Southeastern Michigan

For all-around good fishing in this area there probably is no better nor more popular fishing lake than Kent in Kensington Metropark.

Some say it is the best in Southeastern Michigan.

There's little doubt that "it's number one" in pan fish and it's good for a variety of other fish, including bass and some good size walleye, says Ron Spittler and Bill Deephouse, district biologists for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

Many local area anglers will agree, although some prefer their own favorites such as Union, in Oakland County, Whitmore in Washtenaw and Big Crooked in Livingston.

A good fishing lake for one person may be a bad one for another. Oftentimes, the key is knowing the lake.

In Livingston County there are a reported 600 lakes, many of them tiny, shallow bodies of water. Knowing the lake bottom and how to fish them is important, the experts point out.

"The peculiar thing about this business (fish biology) is that the fish we find most in our nets are not always the fish the anglers are getting," says Deephouse.

"Take Lake Chemung, in Livingston, for example. Two years ago we ran into a pile of big bluegill while making some tests. I mean those babies were big, and there were all kinds of them.

"You'd think it would be excellent fishing. But sure as the dickens if I said it was a hot lake for bluegill the people who fish it regularly probably will disagree. What I'm saying is that the fish we discover in our nets doesn't necessarily indicate good fishing."

Chemung doesn't even show up in DNR's list of the best fishing lakes.

Even a lake with lots of big fish might not be a good fishing lake, the biologists emphasize.

"Cass Lake, for example, is a damn good lake. It's got all kinds of interesting fishing. Bass, pike, good smallmouth bass. But Cass is 'jet boat city.' A guy puts his line on the line trying to fish it while the 'jets' are streaking at him," says Deephouse.

Here's the best fishing lakes in the area of Sliger Home Newspapers, taken from data compiled by the DNR.

For planet watchers

May sky's a treat

For amateur sky watchers, the month of May begins with views of two planets high in the evening sky after dark and three planets low in the morning sky before sunrise, notes University of Michigan astronomer Richard G. Teske.

Jupiter will appear like "a bright beacon high in the western sky" and Saturn, the giant planet in the constellation Leo, will be nearly overhead. "Both planets will continue to be fine evening objects for viewing all month," says Professor Teske.

"About a half-hour before the sun rises during the first week of May," he says, "Mercury, Venus and Mars can be seen glowing above the eastern horizon to the right of the coming sun."

"Mercury, the innermost planet, will quickly move behind the sun and by mid-month will be seen no more."

"On the morning of May 23," he continues, "Venus, Mars and the waning crescent of the 27-day-old moon will form a group in the east before sunrise."

Another astronomical sight visible to the unaided eye in early May is the Eta Aquarid meteor shower. These meteors are named for "the star in the water-jar of Aquarius from which they seem to radiate," Professor Teske notes.

"They will be best seen in the second half of the nights of the 5th and 6th."

The U-M astronomer also points out the Milky Way, "a band of light across the night sky made up of the combined brightnesses of billions of faint and distant stars that are members of our own galaxy." He says the total distance across this collection of stars is thought to be 100,000 light years.

"When the Milky Way is high in the sky on early May mornings," he says, "we can easily see a

Chinese cabbage

Here's ideal salad green

Next to lettuce, Chinese cabbage is the best green salad ingredient. Its leaves can be used whole to line salad bowls or heads can be cross cut into ringlets for tossed salads.

If you or your family are fond of salads, you really should grow Chinese cabbage as a change of pace.

Chinese cabbage, if you are not familiar with it, tastes not at all like regular cabbage. Its pleasant piquant taste and texture, are actually better suited to salads than to cooking, even though lightly steamed and buttered Chinese cabbage is a delicacy.

Some gardeners have been disappointed with growing their own Chinese cabbage even though it is one of the easiest vegetables to produce.

The secret is in the date of planting. Chinese cabbage needs several weeks of cool weather to form those big, tightly wrapped heads.

The best planting time for Chinese cabbage throughout the Midwest and South is after July 1; plants will mature when days are becoming progressively shorter and cooler. Plants will head rather than shooting up flowers.

Spring planted crops of Chinese cabbage are "chancey" anywhere, even if you get seeds in the ground extremely early.

One way to assure a good spring crop of Chinese cabbage is to plant seeds under a tunnel made of clear plastic sheeting or an arch of corrugated clear fiberglass.

Red maple makes a fall spectacular

A landscape tree with spectacular fall color is as near as your local nursery. For striking yellows, oranges and shades of red, plant the red maple (Acer rubrum).

According to Nancy Butler, Washtenaw County Horticultural Assistant, the red maple is a fairly fast growing shade tree with relatively few disease or insect problems. An upright tree with upswept branches, it is an especially good choice for wet areas or clay soils in the landscape where many other trees will not thrive.

Under ideal conditions, the red maple will reach 60 to 70 feet in height and one to two feet in diameter, but in the landscape 40 to 50 feet in height and 12 to 18 inches is average. It matures in 70 to 80 years.

The leaves of the red maple usually have three distinct lobes — though five sometimes occur — and coarsely toothed margins. Red when they first open in the spring, the leaves become bright green above and pale green below as they reach their mature size of two to six inches long. Twigs and leaf stems remain red all summer, giving rise to its common name.

The small, red flowers that appear before the leaves herald the arrival of spring. The small winged seeds mature in May or June.

BELLS of IRELAND

Green Bells chime warm garden joy

Little green persons from Mars would love these little green flowers. "Bells of Ireland" they are called. Technically, the green bells are bracts; they cradle the small but interesting flower parts.

Flower arrangers use bundles of long-lasting Bells of Ireland spikes, fresh or dried. The spikes curve appealingly when they arise from basal sprouts.

Bells of Ireland requires very warm soil to sprout. Flower arrangers who need a steady supply of spikes start seeds under "tunnels" of clear plastic sheeting. The tunnels trap the spring sunlight and reduce heat loss to radiation. Sprout seeds where plants are to remain; seedlings are touchy about being transplanted.

Where summers are warm, Bells of Ireland seeds are often planted in late summer for fall harvest. The warm soil hastens the germination of seeds which may require three weeks or more.

Nature's darker side

The darker side of the natural world will be explored during a night walk at the Nature Center of Kensington Metropark near New Hudson on Thursday, May 10 at 7:30 p.m.

Frogs and salamanders will be the topics of a family nature program at the Nature Center of Kensington Metropark near New Hudson on Saturday, May 5 at 9 a.m.

With the arrival of spring, small ponds fill with frogs and salamanders who are ready to begin their age-old mating rituals. It is at this time that we can readily catch and identify the common varieties found in this area," says Naturalist Steve Horn, who will conduct this 1½ hour long program.

Advance registration is required. Vehicle entry permits are required (Annual: regular-$7, senior citizen-$2 or daily-$2).

Picking a lawnmower: what's best, rotary or reel?

Reel-type mowers, rotary mowers — push models and self-propelled — riding mowers, lawn and garden tractors, garden tractors — they'll all cut the grass. But which one's for you?

Washtenaw County horticultural personnel say the choice boils down to: how much are you willing to pay, and how much walking do you want to do?

"You can spend five dollars on a reel-type mower at a garage sale — or upwards of $2,000 for a garden tractor with a mowing deck and other attachments. Somewhere in that range is the equipment that's right for you."

The size of the area you want to mow is one consideration. For a fairly weed-free, postage-stamp-sized city lot, a reel-type mower may be just the thing.

You probably wouldn't want to tackle a suburban half-acre of dandelions and weedy grasses with that equipment, however. Chances are you'd want at least a power rotary mower, perhaps self-propelled, or maybe some type of riding equipment.

The county extension service says investment in a lawn and garden tractor generally makes sense only if you can use it for more than cutting grass: for mowing snow, and working the garden soil, hauling garden supplies around the grounds and performing other such chores. It adds, however, that adding a lot of accessories can drive the purchase price up in a hurry.

"And we've never yet seen a lawn so well designed for a riding mower that you could do without some type of small mower for trimming," it notes. "If you can't use the mower you're retiring, you'd have to buy a walking mower in addition to the riding lawn mowing equipment."

The options and accessories available for lawn and garden tractors are numerous. Like some power mowers, these machines often have battery-powered starters — just turn the key to start.

In garden tractors you'll find a wide range in horsepower, variable numbers of gears and some models with hydrostatic — hydraulic — drive, the tractor equivalent of automatic transmission. Some have electric or hydraulic lifts of PTO (power take off) to run accessories or attachments.

Optional mowing decks, rotary tillers — powered by the tractor or by auxiliary engines — snow blowers or blades, plows, disc harrows and headlights are common accessories or optional extras. Some accessories call for others to be added.

"For instance, if you're planning on using your garden tractor to plow, you'll need wheel weights and chains or agricultural tread tires," the extension service advises. "These are necessary for proper weight transfer and traction. You may also need a machine with higher horsepower — plowing is hard work, especially in heavy clay soils."

If you're planning to use your garden tractor as a snow plow, consider how much snow you usually have to deal with and where you have to put it.

If you frequently get more than six inches of heavy, wet snow, or if you don't have anywhere you can push snow to get it out of the way, a snowblower might be a better choice than a blade. A snowblower can handle deep snow better and throw it up and over high banks that a blade could not budge.

Snow-moving equipment isn't complete without a set of tire chains for good traction. Chains are especially important with a blade-equipped machine, though they can be useful with a lawn and garden tractor-snowblower combination, too.

For safety's sake, buy only equipment with the triangular seal of the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute, the extension service advises. Look for this seal the same way you'd look for the Underwriter's Laboratory seal on electric appliances. It indicates that the manufacturer meets at least minimum safety standards for guarding, equipment features and operator safety.

Another safety consideration is how noisy the machine is when it's operating. Exposure to high levels of noise over long periods of time can be very stressful. It can even lead to permanent hearing loss.

Safety switches and other special safety features are worth looking for, too. Some riding equipment has a weight detection switch on the seat that disengages the mower blades.

"A lot of people lose toes and injure feet when using mowing equipment because they slip or stick their feet under the mowing deck and into the twirling blades," the extension service says. "If the equipment you're looking at doesn't have some way to disengage the mower blades or some kind of safety switch, see if you can get on and off without putting a foot near the mowing deck. If you can't, keep shopping."

Versatile giant

Like porkers, from which everything is used but the squeal, sunflowers are efficient, adaptable and infinitely useful to gardeners. The huge, golden, sunlight-seeking blossoms are beautiful, more than compensating for sunflower's tall, coarse leaves, often used for screening. Seeds form quickly, their weight making sunflower heads nod. After the seed heads are harvested the sturdy, fibrous stalks can be dried and saved for use as rustic tripods to support vining vegetables or flowers. If you want to plant giant sunflowers, be sure to select a variety bearing the name "Giant" or "Mammoth." Plant breeders have developed all sorts of shorter, smaller-flowered sunflowers in their quest for more decorative garden plants. These new varieties are beautiful but they don't have giant flowers.

Burlap bag helps seeds to sprout

A burlap bag makes an excellent security blanket for rows of vegetable seeds.

"They'll sprout like hair on a dog's back because of the warm, moist environment under the porous burlap cover," say the experts.

Sprouting seeds under burlap is one of the old ways of gardening that works as well or better than modern techniques.

Burlap admits water readily but prevents seeds from being washed about, exposed or buried deeply by spray from the hose.

"Just don't treat a burlap cover like a cake in the oven," gardeners are advised. "do raise the cover often and peek under."

Remove the burlap as soon as the first sprouts show. If you leave it on even a day or two too long, seedlings will stretch and grow leggy.

Burlap covers work especially well for slow sprouting seeds such as parsley, onions and beets.

Bubble Gum (or Sticky Situations)

I've done kind of silly things,
Some were just plain dumb.
But the stupidest thing I ever did
Was forget I was chewing gum.

When Grandma came to see us,
She left here in a huff,
'Cause when she tried to kiss me,
She got a mouthful of the stuff.

And in my hair a bubble popped,
Before I could even shout.
It took me nearly an hour,
To get the darn stuff out.

And then my former boyfriend,
Took me to the races.
And when he tried to kiss me,
He got it in his braces.

But please don't be discouraged,
And cease your gum to chew,
Gum can be very helpful,
In everything you do.

To hang up posters,
Or patch up walls.
To feed to pets,
Or fix beach balls.

If someone has hurt you,
And just didn't care.
Don't hate them or hit them,
STICK GUM IN THEIR HAIR!

And although chewing gum,
Can result in a detention.
I still think that gum,
Is man's greatest invention.

Brenda Johnson

Humankind

"What in the world do they see in him?
We heard someone complain;
'He just sits there or he comes and goes —
His life seems so inane."

Another spoke: "Well, this I know —
He gives to those with needs;
He may not be an orator
But he acts his words in deeds.

We'll never know how many
He has helped from day to day,
But their load is always lightened
By his hand, along the way.

He'll make no mark in history books
For the good that he has done,
But our everlasting gratitude
He long ago, has won."

Charles E. Hutton

Sweet Dreams

A dream is a beginning
Of what one's life can be
It grows from a seed
Into a reality

When given a lot of thought
And handled with care
It can last for a life time
Even an eternity

It's as fragile as glass
It's easily smashed
If not handled gently
It just won't last
And all too soon one's dreams
Become a nightmare

If We Could Take a Minute

If we could take a minute, just to stop and say you're really a beautiful person, and I hope you stay that way.

If we could take a minute, to write the ones we love so much, to spend a few lost minutes, just to keep in touch.

If we could take a minute, to sit back and look at life, we wouldn't have to worry about little pains and strife.

If we could take a minute, to really try to care, our lives wouldn't be so worrisome as the game of truth or dare.

If we could take a minute, to notice the ones we love, we would notice the beautiful people
God sent us from above.

If we could take a minute, to say "Hey look, it's me," we wouldn't have hate, and crime, and ugly poverty.

If we could take a minute, to do these very few things, we could realize the love and joy, that this good old world brings.

Elaine Cote

Discreetly Indiscreet

Sometimes it was a small hotel on a French seacoast

Where she would dine and wine with him
Their rendezvous was subject to Each other's varying whim.

He was dark and trim and very slim
And he laughed in a carefree way.
He was the epitome of a woman's dreams
And he was hers for the day.

When they were apart — (and they often were)
She slipped into her middle-aged mold
Her mad romance would become a blur
And she'd worry about growing old.

It was then that her husband,
tired but kind,
Would come in from out of her life.
She'd realize in quiet resign
That she was just a normal housewife.

Harry G. Champe

Jeweler with gifts for anniversary party

A THIRD ANNIVERSARY promotion is planned by Michel's Jewelry, "the diamond center" located in Northville Plaza, 42273 West Seven Mile Road.

"We are extremely pleased with the reception we've had in Northville, and to demonstrate our pleasure we're inviting the public to a third anniversary party on Friday and Saturday, June 1 and 2," said owner Michael Abraham Ansara.

Refreshments are planned, he said, and gifts will be given away to the first visitors to the store on the dates of the party. In addition, special sales are planned.

According to Ansara, the jewelry store "is the fastest growing" of the seven jewelry stores owned by Ansara and his relatives in the metropolitan area.

It has done so well, he said, that it persuaded him to launch another jewelry store last year — in Chatham Village at Five Mile and Newburgh. He continues to own and manage it.

DALE'S FURNITURE has become Brighton Interiors.

Howard Spooner (r) and his partner Jay Fine (l), who purchased Dale's Furniture last October, have now renamed the familiar furniture store at 209 West Main in downtown Brighton.

The change, according to Spooner, reflects the association with the local community as well as change in products being sold.

"It will offer a better grade of furniture," Spooner said, "carrying mostly early American, colonial, and traditional with some contemporary."

Brighton Interiors offers bedroom, dining and dinette furniture, as well as wall accessories, lamps and bedding. Among the brand names will be Flexsteel, Sealy, Schwieger, Berkline, Chromecraft and River-side.

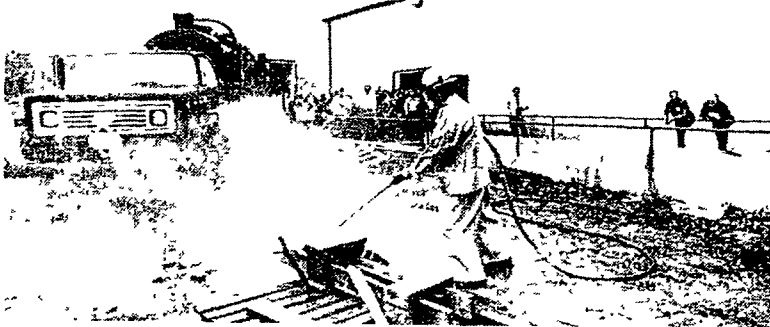

Spooner also said that service will be a big priority in the store.

"I've been in the furniture business for 25 years," said Spooner. "I think service is one of the most important aspects of the business."

Among the services will be quick and free delivery and responsiveness to customer requests.

"I think customer satisfaction is the key," said Spooner who, with Fine, have a total of 45 years in the furniture business. Both are longtime Brighton area residents.

Brighton Interiors is open on Monday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., and on Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Apply for 'security number

Getting summer job?

Students who plan to get a summer job should apply now for a social security number if they don't have one, according to social security officials.

The general guideline is to apply for the number several weeks before it is needed for a job covered by social security. Frequently employers require a new employee to have a social security number before beginning work.

Officials say it takes several weeks for an application to be processed since it must be screened against central files to make sure a second number isn't issued to the same person.

More than nine out of 10 jobs are covered by social security.

A social security number is assigned to one person and remains the same for life. Officials say since retirement, disability, survivors, and Medicare protection is credited to the social security number, it is important the employer copies the name and number correctly from the social security card to employee records.

Information about applying for a social security number is available by calling, writing, or visiting any social security office. Persons applying for a social security number for the first time will be asked to prove their age, identity and citizenship.

A lost social security card can be replaced by contacting any social security office.

Persons 18 or older who are applying for a number for the first time must apply in person. Applicants for a duplicate card are now required to submit evidence of identity.

The best evidence of age and citizenship is a birth certificate recorded shortly after birth.

Evidence of identity should include material showing the person's picture, signature, date of birth or age, or other identifying information.

Persons not born in the United States should provide evidence of their U.S. citizenship or their immigration documents showing they were lawfully admitted to the U.S.

Officials say although these new procedures make it more difficult to get a social security number, they are intended to help protect the person's social security record and to prevent anyone else from misusing the person's social security number.

All documents submitted as evidence may be verified with the agency which issued them to assure they are valid.

A free leaflet, "Apply for a Social Security Number," lists the various kinds of evidence which can be used. Copies can be obtained at any social security office. The address and telephone numbers of the nearest social security office can be found in the telephone directory under "Social Security Administration."

great path of obscuring dust dividing the Milky Way into two parts stretching from the constellation Cygnus southward into Aquila and beyond."

Between the stars lie great clouds of gas and dust, he notes.

The gas, composed mainly of hydrogen and helium, makes up as much as ten percent of the total amount of material in our galaxy, he says.

In some regions of space, the gas atoms are mixed with dust grains, which are "thought to be made of some complicated recipe of carbon, iron and ice."

"Astronomers long ago discovered that the gas and dust clouds along the Milky Way are organized into a pattern which gives to some galaxies their distinctive spiral arms — and so they are sure that the Milky Way system is also a spiral galaxy," explains Professor Teske.

"Light from distant stars in our own Milky Way, and light from galaxies beyond it, is dimmed by the dust clouds in space just as clouds in our earth's atmosphere dim the sunlight, making the day dark," he notes.

Title IX today:

'Schools cannot keep a girl off an all-male team solely on the basis of sex'

By ELLEN SPONSELLER

Equal athletic opportunities for men and women under Title IX may ultimately end much of the "game playing" between the sexes, said Marcia Federbush, author of some of the first federal regulations concerning sex equity in sports.

Ms. Federbush's remarks were made in a speech given to members of the Northwest Wayne County Chapter of the National Organization of Women in Livonia last Wednesday night.

"If the athletic provisions under Title IX are taken seriously, it should make life better for all students," she said. "It means that all students will have the maximum of opportunity to benefit from a spectrum of athletic programs without regard to sex."

Title IX is the most famous passage in the 1972 Federal Education Act. It prohibits sex discrimination in schools, with penalty of losing federal funds if a school does not comply. Title IX specifically includes athletics. It states that equal opportunities, accommodating the interests and abilities of both sexes, must be given in all intramural, interscholastic and intercollegiate athletic programs.

Many schools have not yet complied, Ms. Federbush said, while some have made half-hearted attempts in a general confusion over interpretation of the regulations. New guidelines on athletics are due from the department of Health Education and Welfare (HEW) in May. But Ms. Federbush said the intention of the athletic regulations under Title IX is clear.

"Title IX means that a school system or the state should not presume that a sport is acceptable for one or the other sex only," she said.

"Under Title IX, schools cannot keep a girl out of an all-male team solely on the basis of sex, and the courts may soon rule that you can't keep a boy out of predominantly female sports solely because of sex either," she said.

Under Title IX, schools must provide two teams for contact sports, such as football, ice hockey or wrestling if there is a need for them, she said. But Ms. Federbush encourages a mix of sexes on teams which do not involve body contact.

"Sex discrimination has been caused by a separation of the sexes in all phases of life," she said. "The school system has maintained traditional sex roles. Boys run the projectors and clap erasers, while girls take the milk money and work in the office. Schools instilled in girls a fear of competition. 'But girls, how are you going to keep a man if you can't keep an oven clean?' was their attitude," Ms. Federbush said.

"They argued that girls could not play contact sports because their internal organs were so delicate and might be hurt. Did they even give a thought to boys' delicate external organs?" she said.

Ms. Federbush threw out the traditional argument that female sports don't deserve the same financial backing as male sports because they don't bring in revenue.

It has been proven in many cases, such as tennis, golf, gymnastics, skiing, and increasingly, basketball, that women's sports will draw crowds, she said. "But the expectation of failure has kept many girls from even trying a sport," she said. "Schools have not spent time or money on teaching women to play sports, then they turn around and blame women for not bringing in revenue."

Female athletic programs, poorly funded and meagerly supported, have traditionally centered around competing against oneself, the enjoyment of playing, cooperation and humaneness, Ms. Federbush said. "But they have been short on things like goals, drive, or the determination to push themselves as far as they can go," she said.

Boys, meanwhile, have placed a premium on the drive toward goals, winning aggressiveness and discipline, while coming up short on experiencing the sport for its own pleasure, Ms. Federbush added.

In the initial compliance with Title

IX, many systems will go with a "separate but equal" policy, she said. "But why not let both male and female teams go as one team?" she asked the audience. "They can travel together and represent the school together."

"Let both teams go. If both boys' and girls' track teams go together, they will have equal support, share in the school spotlight, and receive the same cheering — and that's important," she said.

"The news media would cover both teams, building community support.

The teams would have the same number of games. The caliber of training would be equal for both. They could share prime-time facilities. The teams

Students try out their French from Paris to Nice

By JEAN DAY

Twenty-nine students are back in classes at Northville High School, but in their memories forever will be an April-in-Paris vacation.

They were the third group of Northville students that Elaine Prestel, high school French teacher, has taken on a spring trip to France. They went through the American Institute for Foreign Study program and were accompanied by her husband, David, and six other adults.

In addition to seeing the expected attractions — the Arc de Triomphe, Place de la Concorde, Montmartre and the Eiffel Tower (they stayed in the Foyer des Lyceenes near it), the group had the opportunity to experience Easter mass at Notre Dame and to hear an organ concert.

They also toured the gardens of Versailles, but as tourists before them have found, the building was closed because of a strike. Such strikes seem part of the European scene.

Going on by bus to Beaune, the students inspected a French wine cellar, and continued on to Geneva, where they toured the United Nations, viewed the impressive Reformation monument and took a walking tour of the old section of the city.

From there they took the tunnel under Mont Blanc and the expressway into Nice. The famous Fragonard perfume factory was a stop, as was Monte Carlo. Side trips included the medieval walled city of St. Paul de Vence and Antibes.

In their 10 days, the travelers sampled France, Italy, Switzerland, Monaco and had a surprise return stop in Shannon, Ireland, for $1,000 each (including spending money).

Greenhouse coming

Proceeds from fund-raising projects of Northville Mothers' Club have been earmarked for construction of a greenhouse at Northville High School, reports Sue Wright, retiring president.

Luanne McCurdy was elected president for 1979-80 at the April 23 meeting. Other new officers are Marge Longridge, vice-president; Connie Coder, treasurer; Diane Schrader, recording secretary; and Mary Whiteside, corresponding secretary. They will be installed at an annual picnic May 21 at the home of Barbara VanBuren.

Mrs. Wright and her husband, Keith, are back from an April vacation in Florida. In the Sarasota area they got together with the David Longridges and Patrick Montaganos of Northville and the Robert Mandells, former Northville residents now living in Farmington.

AAUW book sellers offer service

As more than 20,000 books, magazines and records go on sale this Thursday through Saturday at the 24th annual used book sale of the Plymouth branch of the American Association of University Women being held in the east court of Westland Shopping Center, Cheryl Holmberg of Northville mentions an added service of the branch.

Mrs. Holmberg, who has been in charge of evening marking sessions, points out that all books are handled at least twice, once to sort for category and then to price. During the process workers will search for special requests. "We offer the service all year long as we search," she explains, saying that requests are listed on a board. As soon as a book requested is found, the person seeking it is called and may purchase it at whatever price it has been marked. There's no charge for the personalized service.

The book sale has become one that book collectors won't miss. Its scope is amazing contrasted with the first sale two dozen years ago when two card tables and a bookcase held the books in a Kroger store then located in downtown Plymouth. Workers were amazed and delighted with the $75 profit — and a tradition was born.

Interestingly, in those first years cookbooks were a non-selling item. Today they represent one of the most in-demand categories.

Lesley Koenig anticipates reunion

When Lesley Koenig, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Koenig of Shadbrook, boards a plane July 18 that will take her to Los Angeles and then Tokyo, she will be completing a Japanese-American exchange that began in 1977.

She will be flying to visit Kaoru Miyaoaka in Osaka, who was the Koenig family's exchange student in 1977-78. Their reunion visit will begin on Kaoru's 20th birthday.

Kaoru came here on a Japanese International Cultural Exchange (JICE) program and enthusiastically delved into Northville High School activities

She is remembered as the dark-haired girl bouncing down the football field in the marching band flag corps.

She now is a student at the National University for Language in Osaka.

"She's very bright," says Mrs. Koenig of her former guest, reporting that she had to pass tough tests to be admitted to the university program. She also had to qualify by tests to come to the United States on the exchange. The Koenigs obtained their student after the Gordon Snyders hosted Masako Kono in the same program in 1976.

Lesley will be going to the Orient through JICE. Her parents are responsible for her plane fare, but the program is arranging that she stay with a host family in Japan for two weeks.

Then Kaoru will be finished with her studies and free for the visit. Her father, is a high school teacher. Lesley's is a professor of engineering at Wayne State University.

Lesley, a 10th grader at Northville High, also will be visiting another Japanese student, Suzumi Mishimatsu, who stayed here with the John Hinman family. Suzumi lives in Osaka. The Northville student then will return September 1.

Her mother mentions that the JICE program would like to place more Japanese students in Michigan homes. Their experience was so rewarding, she adds, that they are considering hosting a second Japanese student.

Mrs. Koenig invites any families interested to contact her or Miss Michiko Saito at 66 Cleary, No. 902, San Francisco. JICE, Diana Koenig explains, now has the San Francisco office. The Koenigs had to contact the cultural exchange program directly in Japan.

When Kaoru arrived to visit the Koenigs, it was the day before Lesley's 14th birthday. Lesley's anticipated arrival in Osaka on Kaoru's birthday seems to complete this exchange in a most auspicious fashion, the families feel.

Model home tour on tap

A tour of decorated model homes in Canton is the upcoming event for Northville Newcomers ladies group. Participants will leave by car pool from Northville Square at 10 a.m. May 11 to view recently completed model homes decorated by Interior Designer Linda Hudson of Random House Interiors.

Ms. Hudson will be the tour guide, pointing out various techniques used in the decorating. A plan for total home coordination, including flooring, tiles, counters and fixtures — a "master plan" — will be presented for the models.

Luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth will follow at noon and will feature a main course of chicken crepes.

Reservations may be made for the outing with Karen Hooper, 349-9107. Checks for $6 made payable to Northville Newcomers confirm the reservations. Mrs. Hooper announces that this last ladies event of the club year is open to Newcomers, its alumnae and friends.

Nurseryman John Miller gets 'many happy returns'

It was a birthday party — and a whole lot more.
The celebration for Northville nurseryman John Martin Miller on his 68th birthday last Thursday at Meadowbrook Country Club brought tributes from friends, business associates and civic leaders.
Some 147 gathered for the dinner dance program that officially marked Miller's retirement from Green Ridge Tree Service and Green Ridge Nursery, firms he founded and now has turned over to his employees.
For the "green heritage" that Miller has given his community he was lauded by Northville Mayor Paul Vernon.
"The city is blessed with many trees that are the envy of other communities because John Miller never took trees for granted," he said, expressing the city's thanks.

In addition to planting trees, such as those now towering on Dunlap that were ordered by the city in 1950, Miller has donated landscaping for Mill Race Historical Village.
He also was thanked by former Mayor A. M. Allen.
Toastmistress Gladys Weiss, who went to work for Green Ridge 19 years ago, said Miller "has been not only my boss, but my friend."
At the head table with Miller and his wife, Elva, were their daughter Carolyn Goodrich who flew in from Sonoma, California, and their son John and his wife, Debbie, of Central Lake.

Speaking for the family, Ms. Goodrich expressed her "deep respect as well as affection" for her father, saying she learned early how to tell a seedling from a seedling.
She also remembered how "other kids — what luck! — got to stay home when they missed the school bus, but Dad and I always chased that bus in a Green Ridge Nursery truck."
Representative Jack Kirksey presented a citation from the state legislature while State Senator R. Robert Geake read a letter from Governor William Milliken.
Others expressing appreciation for Miller's help and support included Dr. Harold Davidson of Michigan State University department of horticulture, and Richard Ahtri, Jr., executive secretary of the Michigan Association of Nurserymen of which Miller is past president.

Gurdon Dennis of the Wayne County Extension Office said Miller "has planted a lot of living memorials."
H. O. Evans, speaking as "one of your satisfied customers," pointed out that Miller through the years had employed many young men of the community, giving them a start.
Wilmer Gertz, present chairman of the board of the nursery corporation, Donald Bouret, now president of Green Ridge Tree Service Company, and Milo Hunt, now president of Green Ridge Nursery Corporation, honored their former boss, who in 1965 began the program that eventually resulted in his turning the business over to them.

Finally, it was Miller's turn to express his appreciation for the tributes and to others in the community who had aided him.
Hunt, on behalf of those attending, presented the Millers with a travel certificate for a trip of their choosing.

Miller said that one of his most pleasant memories had been the association with "literally hundreds of young men" who had worked for his firms.
It was an evening of "many happy returns."

NOW speaker explains Title IX

could be transported together.

"And they would get to travel the same distances," she said, adding that women's teams have traditionally not been allowed to play outside of a district, while men's teams have permission and funds to play across the country.

"In the long run, boys and girls will set up teams based on who is best, not based on sex. All the kids will have a chance," she said.

Under Title IX, intramural sports may grow for both men and women, Ms. Federbush said. Last year, touch football became more popular at college. NCAA figures counted 360,075 men engaging in the sport, while 58,000 women played, she said.

In the future, sports activities may be grouped in a cluster approach, Ms. Federbush said. "There will be different teams, according to factors such as height, weight, physical fitness," she said. "But each of the teams would receive the same money, facilities and prime-time practice spots," she said.

Finally, Ms. Federbush stressed that athletics give more than just physical benefits.

"The skills learned in competitive interscholastic sports have important psychological consequences," Ms. Federbush said.

"She cited recent studies at U-M which determined that sports-minded students show higher morale, ambition and give a better performance in school than non-athletic students.

"Other U-M studies show that around the world, in societies where women have no heroes, no share in power, and no strength, there are many more violent crimes," she said.

There is a strong belief that women have not functioned as well in the male business world because they "don't know the rules," and they "can't play the game," she said. "They never learned to work on a team," she said.

She gave the example of football as a sport which gives both excellent and perhaps harmful preparation to boys for later life.

"I don't like what football has become," she said. "The extreme expectations of coaches and parents, the immense pressure put upon the boys, the adulation heaped upon a 'chosen few,' the excessive monetary support can lead to letdowns and disillusionment for some boys," she said.

"At the same time, football teaches things like planning, following strategy, working together as a team, mutual dependence, the drive to work just a bit harder to reach a goal.

"Football teaches boys discipline, how to live by rules, how to play a sport with great expertise, and to experience power on the field."

Wider mixing in the sports arena between the sexes would tone down some of both extremes, while reinforcing the best values of playing sports, Ms. Federbush said.

"Learning to compete, for instance, is necessary in the business world, and most women feel guilty about competing — especially with men," Ms. Federbush said.

"Women have traditionally only competed against themselves," Mrs. Federbush said. "If you are afraid to compete under any circumstances, that makes you practically unfit to go out of the house."

When girls participate in sports, their skills and confidence increase she said.

"They can learn to do their best, press themselves to the limit, to succeed," Ms. Federbush said. "They'll learn to have goals, to have self-esteem, to get respect."

"Most of all, they'll learn how to compete without guilt."

Boys, too, will benefit from Title IX, she said, and stop getting the intense pressure at young ages to succeed no matter what the cost.

"Maybe they'll even learn to share disappointments and failures more easily," Ms. Federbush said.

"Hopefully, Title IX will allow kids at an impressionable age to engage in whatever sport they choose and have it be fully acceptable," Ms. Federbush said.

"A sport's a sport. It should not be laughed at, whatever a person chooses to do."

Susan Dayton exchanges vows in OLV ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Guzdial Jr. honeymooned at Antigua in the Caribbean following their marriage on March 31 at Our Lady of Victory Church in Northville.

Susan A. Dayton became Mrs. Guzdial in a double ring ceremony witnessed by Father John O'Callaghan.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Dayton, 425 Chester, South Lyon, formerly of Northville.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Guzdial Sr. of Mt. Clemens are the bridegroom's parents.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white polyester crepe trimmed with lace. She carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Debbie George attended her sister as matron of honor. She chose a deep blue polyester crepe gown and carried an arrangement of daisies, carnations, tipped in blue, and baby's breath.

Bridesmaids, dressed identically in baby blue polyester floor-length gowns, were Linda Bacher, Nicole Guzdial, Karen Guzdial, both sisters of the bridegroom, and Sara Geise.

Brian Seeloff served as best man.

Ushers were Jim Dayton, brother of the bride, Brent Dreyer, Bob Van Saun and Larry Stoneberg.

Wedding music was sung by Roger Jackson.

The VFW Hall in South Lyon was the setting for a reception for 140 guests including several from Florida.

A graduate of Northern Michigan University, the new Mrs. Guzdial was a teacher at South Lyon Centennial School.

Her husband, an electrical engineer for IBM in New York, is a graduate of MSU.

The couple resides in Johnson City, New York.

Expert to explain

Labels on grocery items to tell even more soon

What goes into the grocery basket becomes more important on each shopping trip as housewives watch to get the most for their dollars.

They've had a big assist from food labeling laws enforced by the Food and Drug Administration, a Public Health Service of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

New help is coming July 1 when the calorie labeling law setting regulations for "low calorie" or "reduced calorie" and diabetic foods must be in force.

This new labeling, as well as other labeling enforced by the FDA, will be explained at a public meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday by Diane Place, consumer affairs officer of the Detroit FDA office.

The meeting will be in the Cooke Junior High cafeteria in Northville and is being opened to all interested area residents by the Northville Branch of the American Association of University Women.

Ms. Place's talk on food labeling will be preceded by a coffee session at 7:30 p.m.

The speaker has agreed to answer questions on such topics as imitation and substitute foods, food fortification and safe or suitable ingredients, Nancy Olgren, program facilitator for the meeting, announces.

She is to explain what is meant by open date labeling, giving the difference between the pack date, pull date, quality assurance date and expiration date.

She also will tell how to read the label. How ingredients are listed and product names used will be covered.

AAUW board members have been saving empty cans, boxes and jars to provide examples of various types of nutritional labeling to illustrate the talk.

Ms. Place's function with the Detroit FDA office is to serve consumers and industry through educational programs which encourage wise economic and health decisions and responsible industry practices.

She has received many citations for her work. In 1975 she was made an honorary member of the Detroit Dietetic Association and honored by the Detroit mayor and common council for her contribution to consumer education.

She participated in the regional consumer interest conference of the president's assistant for consumer affairs. In 1969, she received the regional director's citation for contributions to consumer education in Region V of HEW. In 1971 she was named one of the Top 10 Working Women in Metropolitan Detroit, and was recognized for service to the community by the Food Industry Council.

Jaycees tap Ron Barnum

Ron Barnum, who became 23rd president of the Northville Jaycees at the organization's April meeting last Wednesday, has assigned himself a major project.

As he takes over the young men's service group this month, he has pledged to try to find a headquarters for the Northville Club.

Ideally, he says, he would like to find a suitable location to relocate a vacant house on Cady on Northville Downs property. Barnum reports that John Carlo, executive manager of the track, has offered the house free and even will move it if a lot can be found.

Barnum would be delighted to hear from anyone with property available. He can be contacted at 349-8027.

Barnum and other new officers will be installed in ceremonies at a banquet June 8 at the Plymouth Hilton Inn.

Other new officers are Glenn Fogle, administrative vice-president; George Buelow, chapter activity vice-president; Greg Dawson, community action vice-president; Pete Winter, secretary; and Jim Luterek, treasurer.

Directors at large will be Jim Abbey, Alan Kinnely, Dave Weiner, Scott Leikett and Bill Hartmann.

Retiring President John Stilson becomes chairman of the board.

The Jaycees are making plans to participate in the community garage sale in downtown Northville May 19. Donations are welcome. Barnum may be contacted about them.

The Jaycees are sponsoring the annual Walk for Mankind June 2 and already are at work on plans for the July 4 celebration, including the parade and Mill Race Village events.

The organization, Barnum declares, welcomes interested young men. Meetings are held at 8 p.m. the fourth Wednesday of the month at the Wagon Wheel Restaurant. Board meetings are on the second Wednesday in officers' homes.
