College life—more than boola boola

By ELLEN SPONSELLER

Ah, college life. In days of old, students packed their steamer trunks, pasted college stickers on the side, donned their raccoon coats and went to dwell in cracker-box dormitory rooms.

Today, university students still live in cracker-box rooms. But, like one college sophomore says, if you've got to live in a cracker-box, it might as well be a comfortable cracker-box.

College students have probably not changed much. They still study. It's just that now the books are under the loft, next to the waterbed, below the stereo, laying on the carpet behind the plants, dimmer switch and frisbees.

They used to bring ukeleles to college. Today students haul popcorn poppers, electronic backgammon games, racquetball equipment, huge stereos, tape decks, guitars, extra telephones and refrigerators with them to co-ed dormitories. They bring things to combat the discomfort and quiet of the lecture hall during exam week. Decorating your room, students say, is a small way to scream individuality in a place where you're really pretty much like every other student.

Here a few of the more vital items for college life:

PLANTS give a touch of homeliness to an otherwise dreary room. The color and the variety brings joy to green-thumbs who spend free time giving names to each plant and love and care to tiny leaves. "It's someone else living in your room," one student says.

Plants make great pets for students because they don't make noise, don't need a litter box and can be cut down in size if your room starts looking like Tarzan's jungle. Unfortunately, mortality rates among student plants are high because plants hate traveling home for Christmas, spring break and summer vacation.

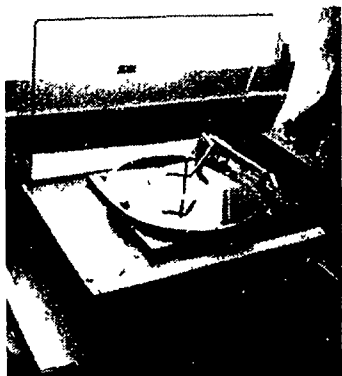

Claudia Rigner and friends

LOFTS are a wonderful space-saving and generally safe invention. Their origination is in dispute. Some say they began appearing at U-M's Bursley Hall in the 1960s. Others say Michigan State's Hubbard Hall was the Michigan birthplace for lofts. Whatever their origin, most college campuses in which there are dormitories with high ceilings have at least one room which has been turned into a two-story complex.

The loft, for those who have been away from it all, is a wood-and-bolt affair which uses four or so two-by-fours to hold up a platform where students can sleep. They come in many varieties, sell for about $50 to $100, and are passed down from one tenant of a room to another.

Why a loft? It has various advantages, including the space it leaves underneath for a study or "living" space. Also, you never have to make your bed.

Brian Rigner's stereo refuge

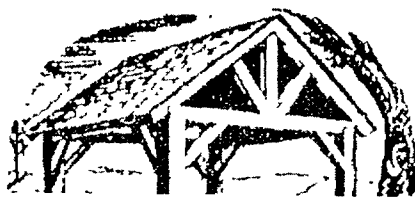

Laurie Day and MSU loft

STEREOS are one of the most vital of student possessions. For some reason, many students are investing half of their college tuition in Advent speakers and the other half in records. Almost every student room sports at least one stereo, whether it is a scratchy hand-me-down or a flashy quadrophonic setup.

Stereo watts per channel are extremely important to those students who wish to play the game where you blast each other out of your rooms or when you want to provide the music out of your fifth-floor window for a hundred disco dancers on the lawn. Of course, some people still just have radios, or guitars, or they learn how to whistle. But you've got to have music. Woofers, tweeters and university life go together as much as, well, true love and marriage used to.

Schools ready for opening

But teachers don't have a contract

By ELLEN SPONSELLER

School will begin Thursday, September 6, for all kindergarten through twelfth grade students if teachers and the Northville school district settle on a new three-year contract.

These last weeks before school doors open are hectic, both at the school board offices and at each of Northville's seven schools.

Northville teachers do not yet have a contract (see related story). This year, the system will have 18 fewer teachers, about 3,850 K-12 students, less state aid and a tighter budget. The district will be operating with 35.4 mills, but the state equalized value of Northville property was assessed so high this year (at $202,709,719) that Northville will be getting only about $36,000 this year in state aid.

This is the first school opening in Northville for Superintendent of Schools Lawrence Nichols who came from Livonia last fall.

The district is selecting a principal for Silver Springs Elementary to replace Nancy Fieldman, who has accepted a new job in Traverse City. Northville also has a new food services director, Yvonne Stephens.

School board offices at the Main Street Elementary School are being remodeled this week. Secretaries and administrators are working in the lounge or in offices filled with falling plaster as a new drop ceiling is installed. Principals have all arrived back in their buildings. Teachers are due for workshops soon. Administrators, teachers and students are grabbing last-minute vacations. Only teacher negotiations are in full swing.

Over the summer, the Northville Board of Education has been making some important decisions.

In June, Trustee John Hobart retired and David Llewellyn was elected to replace him. Trustee Douglas Whitaker was re-elected. The board selected new officers, so Karen Wilkinson is now president, Marjorie Sliger is vice-president, Richard Barron is secretary and Charles Peltz is treasurer.

The board heard the Northville High School marching band tell them in June that they would not march this fall due to the poor condition of uniforms, instruments and the music library. A committee of parents, teachers and administrators met to seek solutions to these problems. Recently, they have learned they may get dollars for improvements through the Langfield marching band fund or a private donor.

This week the board also ruled on an involuntary transfer of NHS band teacher Robert Williams to Cooke Junior High. Monday night, the board voted to deny the teacher's grievance, trade Williams, and make junior high band teacher Michael Rumbell high school band teacher. (see related story).

This summer, a new student code of conduct was adopted by the board. They also voted to spend $121,000 to repair the high school roof and floors, and to do asphalt work at many of the schools. They are remodeling the Annex, next to the Main Street Elementary school, for the Instruction Special Education Program.

The board voted to allow Superintendent Nichols to change and consolidate the administrative organizational chart. Board members agreed that the changes will provide better communications and clearer lines of responsibility.

The board voted to lease the Northville community building to the Northville Recreation Commission at the pre-inflationary rent rate of one dollar for 25 years.

The board settled a contract with the local union of custodians, office and kitchen workers in July.

The board is looking at a plan city police have to hire a community service officer, who would hold programs at the Northville schools as part of his or her job.

Finally, the board re-affirmed this summer that it did not wish to be paid

Negotiators' task

Let's make a deal

Negotiations between the Northville Education Association and the Northville Board of Education are speeding up as the contract expiration date of September 1 approaches.

The two sides have agreed on two issues, board rights and responsibilities, negotiation procedures. They are edging closer on a question of leaves of absence for Instruction Special Education Teachers. But the two sides have many issues to still settle.

Here are the basic positions of both sides on all the issues:

Article III deals with teacher rights and responsibilities. Teachers: eliminate clause requiring teachers to annually file a professional growth report. Board says: maintain language requiring teachers to file annual professional growth report.

Teachers: no disciplinary action against a teacher without "just cause." Board: no proposal.

Board: add language stating teachers are responsible for and expected to meet with students, parents and community groups upon request; attend school community functions; participate in in-service programs; attend staff, educational conferences and or classes as directed; prepare classroom status reports as requested; supply data and reports as requested; perform other duties as assigned; follow board policies; administrative regulations and building principal direction.

The board also says teachers should: evaluate employees they supervise, assume responsibilities outside the classroom, insure student safety and the visual appeal of the student environment, disseminate and enforce student codes and regulations. Teachers: no proposal.

Article VI concerns compensation. Teachers: increased health insurance benefits; board: maintain present health insurance with a cap on the maximum premium the district will pay.

Teachers: add dental insurance, vision insurance and options for those not taking health insurance. Board: no proposal.

Teachers: make extra-curricular assignments tenured positions. Board: maintain non-tenured status for extra-curricular positions.

Teachers: increase extra-curricular stipends by 10 percent plus cost-of-living. Board: increase extra-curricular stipend ranges by two percent with placement within the ranges based on merit.

Teachers: increase tuition reimbursement from $575 to $800. Board: eliminate reimbursement.

Teachers: double pay for hours earned beyond the BA and MA degrees. Board: eliminate extra credit pay.

Teachers: double retirement pay. Board: maintain present payment.

Teachers: increase term life insurance from $20,000 to $50,000 per teacher. Board: maintain present term life insurance.

Teachers: increase summer school hourly rate to $10 per hour. Board: Continued on 11-A

Williams transfer rationale disclosed

The Northville Board of Education formally denied the grievance of Northville High School band teacher Robert Williams and Superintendent Larry Nichols explained the rationale behind Williams' transfer at a special meeting Monday night.

The board's decision was based on a recommendation by its personnel subcommittee. The decision came as a result of a formal hearing Thursday night in which Williams and Barbara LeBoeuf, Northville Education Association president, protested Williams' involuntary transfer to Cooke Junior High.

Williams was not at Monday night's meeting since he was out of town. LeBoeuf said after the meeting that she would check with other NEA directors to decide whether to take the grievance to binding arbitration.

In denying the grievance, the board found that Williams' contract had not been violated since an administrator, acting as the board's agent, does have the power to determine staff placement according to what he thinks will provide the best programs for the school district.

The board also found that the school district complied with a part in the contract which specifies the teacher must be notified in advance of a transfer.

Personnel Director Burton Knighton spoke to Williams June 29, and the transfer does not actually take place until September.

After the grievance was settled, the board turned to the real issue — why Williams had been transferred.

"Due to public interest, the reasons behind the decision will be discussed," Vice-President Marjorie Sliger told the 35 people in the audience. "However, it is not our intent to eliminate the discretionary rights of the superintendent."

Superintendent Larry Nichols then outlined the rationale behind his decision to transfer Williams.

"I was concerned that Bob may have become too frustrated or even bitter about what he very honestly feels were defeats and lack of support at critical moments in the past," Nichols said. "I questioned: is it possible that Bob can deal with the frustrations to come and still provide positive leadership needed

JOHN C. BURKMAN, vice chairman of Northville Historic District Commission and longtime, active resident, is in intensive care at St. Mary Hospital following a heart attack Friday. He has a temporary pacemaker while doctors wait to see if his heart will take over. He is expected to be hospitalized for at least three weeks.

Amerman: A dynamo long after others quit

Like the superintendent of schools who took a "temporary" job for 32 years, this former twin farmboy continues to ignore the bell.

He keeps going like 60 — long after most people at age 79 would call it quits.

Russell H. Amerman would have friends believe he's a country bumpkin who just doesn't know it's recess time. But he knows social security begins at 65, all right. It's just that inactivity frightens him.

"I'd be miserable if retirement meant I'd have to relax in the shade the rest of my life," says this man who is happiest when he is busiest.

And then he adds, with a puckish twinkle in his eye and a smile on his lips, "Some would say I'm pretty miserable anyway."

Service always has been his trademark.

Philosophically, a recent observation by his son, Dave, who suffered a paralyzing stroke and a broken leg, pretty much characterizes the feelings of Russell Amerman.

Despite an illness that cut short his brilliant career in education, David Amerman said from his hospital bed, "You know, dad, when I see the people around me and the problems they have, I know I'm a very fortunate man."

"Yes, indeed, I am a very fortunate man, too," is the postscript of David's father, who adds, "If I had it to do over, I wouldn't change anything."

But there were times, especially back during the Depression, when the world seemed to be ganging up on him.

Born a twin in Ypsilanti, Amerman and his brother lost their mother as infants. The two boys were raised on their grandparents' farm that stood where the Rawsonville Ford Plant is now located. Besides the twins, there is an older brother.

Going like 60

Amerman attended a one-room country school, later moving to Belleville where he was graduated from high school in 1918.

Arthur J. Helfrich, superintendent of the Belleville system, persuaded Amerman to enter the Student Army Training Program at Hillsdale College. He was three months into the military program when the war ended, so Amerman continued on at Hillsdale eventually earning a degree in science and qualifying himself for teaching.

His goal was to become a scientist, perhaps in the chemistry field. But upon graduation he took a job at Montpelier, Ohio teaching math. He wasn't happy with the job.

Within three months after graduating from college, Amerman married Ethel Florentine Comstock. He had met her in high school.

After a year in Ohio, Amerman landed a much more desired teaching position at Mineral Point, Wisconsin. He was teaching science and "was very happy there."

Two years after Amerman took the job at Mineral Point, the high school principal and the superintendent of schools resigned.

Although he had no administrative experience and little teaching experience, the board of education persuaded Amerman to take the job of principal. Thus, for the balance of his four years at Mineral Point, he served as both principal and teacher of chemistry and physics.

Sometime during this period, Amerman's former

Belleville school superintendent, Helfrich, wrote to say Northville — where Helfrich was then superintendent — was in need of a good science teacher. Amerman was interested but wasn't really sure he wanted to give up his principalship even though he wanted to return to Michigan and would have liked to work for Helfrich.

Meanwhile, Helfrich gave up the superintendency in Northville.

Then one day the late Ed Langfield, a member of the Northville school board, called to tell Amerman that in going through the former superintendent's papers the board had come across his communications with Amerman together with some recommendations concerning him.

"He said they needed a principal and asked me to take the job. I couldn't resist."

Thus, in August of 1927 the Amermans returned to Michigan — taking up residence in Northville for the first time.

"Northville was celebrating its centennial that summer so when we came into town here was all this celebrating going on. It was almost as if the town was celebrating our arrival," he laughs in recollection of the event.

William H. Gorton was superintendent of school at the time. Three years later, however, Gorton left. Some members of the board suggested that Amerman be named his replacement, but eventually the board chose a Northville native, Thad Johnson Knapp, to fill the superintendency.

"He was the nicest man you could work for. I really admired him," says Amerman of Knapp. "He was just a peach of a fellow. So from July of 1930 to April of 1933 he was my superintendent."

It was during these early years the Northville school system was hit with its greatest financial crisis. But it wasn't just the school. The whole town, the state and the nation spluttered in the face of the nation's greatest depression.

"You can't imagine how awful it was," says Amerman. Teachers and principals took a 27 percent cut in pay and considered themselves fortunate to still have jobs. The financial squeeze tightened, however, and it soon became apparent that still another cut in salary would be necessary.

"It was a Thursday afternoon when Mr. Knapp came to me to say he had called a faculty meeting the next day to map out some kind of plan of action. That night he died, a heart attack, and the next morning the board (school) came to me and said 'you've got to become our superintendent.' It was just a matter of being modest, I honestly didn't think I was qualified. I was too young, I thought. But they insisted. So I told them I would take it on one condition — that I would serve only until they had found a replacement."

And then, breaking out in laughter, Amerman says, "They searched, too, for the next 32 years before naming a replacement."

The task Amerman inherited was a monumental one.

He took his problem to the faculty and they agreed to take still another cut in salary. Meanwhile, the new, young superintendent pursued an idea first suggested to him by Mr. Knapp — to issue script in lieu of money. He discussed it with the superintendent of the Plymouth district and, together, the two districts began issuing the substitute money.

"It looked a little like money. We had it printed at The Record office. It guaranteed payment upon receipt of school taxes," explains Amerman, who also was paid in script. Not all merchants would accept it, he points out. "I still have some of it."

Amerman found the going rough. Bob Willoughby of Plymouth would accept his script for purchase of shoes, but he couldn't find any grocery stores willing to accept it. Chain stores simply refused. Finally, unable to feed his family, Amerman took his problem to Ed Bogart of EMB Market, a fellow Rotarian who also had been hit hard by the Depression.

Bogart (whose store is now owned by John Genitti) agreed to "help me with groceries. His only question was, 'Are you going to leave me holding the bag?' So all during the Depression he carried me, and my family was fed. I shall always be grateful."

It was during this period, on "a bitter cold morning when the wind was blowing awfully hard" that Amerman received a 5 a.m. phone call. The elementary school was on fire.

The janitor, recalls Amerman, had just left the elementary school that morning after stoking the furnace and had gone to the high school next door to do the same. Sparks coming out of the chimney apparently were blown to the small, lone patch of wood shingling on the otherwise asphalt roof, he says.

"It went up like tissue paper in that wind. Fortunately, there was no one in the building." By 8 a.m. the building, which had been earmarked for an addition of four rooms (WPA construction equipment was already on the premises when fire broke out), was destroyed.

Townpeople rallied to offer assistance, says Amerman. Storekeepers, American Legionnaires, churches — "all came forward to offer us temporary quarters. So within six days we were back in business, with classes held in buildings all over town."

Meanwhile, plans were made to use the WPA and federal monies, together with a local $27,000 bond issue, to build a new elementary school at a cost of $99,000. The school, Main Street Elementary, was completed in February of 1937.

The new school building was but one of several that Amerman would oversee before his retirement in 1965. Amerman Elementary, named in his honor, and the present high school were conceived and built during his long tenure.

"I remember walking up there when it was a gravel pit and thinking it (high school site) would make a beautiful spot for a school."

Before Amerman would superintend these bond issues and building programs, however, he and his district would move through another national crisis — World War II.

During any war, school systems are among those most directly affected. Northville during that major war was no different. The high school graduated many into the ranks of the military, and the school system together with the remainder of the community shared patriotic responsibilities.

Northville schools, under Amerman's direction, pioneered and sponsored a national defense training program. Evening classes were held, providing academic and vocational training needed to work in defense plants. "Most of our graduates from this program went to the bomber plant at Willow Run," says Amerman.

Following the war, with the help of Publisher William Cansfield and the American Legion, Amerman directed a counseling service for returning veterans. The job was a voluntary one, outside of his regular work as a school superintendent.

The Depression, the War years, the building programs and the consolidation period are the major chapters in Amerman's career. Recalling the latter, Amerman emphasizes that "never once did we coerce a country school district into joining us. They came to us voluntarily." More than a half-dozen such districts joined the system, substantially enlarging the district so that today it stretches into three counties.

Given the fact that superintendents rarely last long in one district, Amerman himself wonders sometimes why he survived so long in Northville. He had been told upon arriving here in 1927 that Northville was a graveyard for administrators.

"That question has been asked me several times. Once I said it is because I had no place to go and the board couldn't get rid of me. But truthfully, I really don't know why. Maybe, though, part of it was that I worked awfully hard making the other guy think my ideas were his."

GOOD TIME FOR WINE
by Jim Roth

Much knowledge about grape growing and wine making is passed down from generation to generation in wine growing families. But, increasingly, people are studying about wine making (enology) in more formal academic settings. The University of California at Davis has a wine research center, as does Geisenheim in Germany, and Montpellier in France. Working in laboratories and with experimental vineyards, students and professors look for the finest, hardest grapes to give us the tastiest wines.

When looking for wines, for all occasions, be sure to visit with us at GOOD TIME PARTY STORE, 567 Seven Mile Road, 349-1477. If you are planning a party for the Labor Day weekend be sure to order your keg beer from us. We have all the equipment you need and a fine selection of brands. "I always tried to be as honest as possible with the people, and I was purposefully a little conservative. I asked for less than was needed, built a solid case for it, and sometimes got more than I requested."

Besides his career, Amerman had plenty to keep him busy. He and Ethel raised a family (a son and a daughter), he was very active in the Baptist church during his early years in Northville and later became even more active in the Methodist Church (chairing its building committees), has been a Rotarian here for many years (once served as district governor of Rotary in addition to serving as president of the local club), served on the state health curriculum committee, served 16 years on the board of directors of the Wayne County Crippled Children organization, and he was involved with numerous other activities in and out of school before retirement.

Since retirement, except for his school work, he continues to be just as active in the community.

"I don't know how to say 'no'," admits this man who has served as chairman of the city's building authority since its creation almost a decade ago, who has been a member of the recreation commission, who continues as a member of the Citizens Advisory Committee at Northville State Hospital, and whose church work continues unabated.

In his spare time he enjoys lapidary.

But his real joy is his wife. "She's the one who permits me to involve myself. She's my encouragement, my everything."

Baby in coma following auto crash

A seven-month-old baby remains in critical condition at Children's Hospital in Detroit as the result of injuries sustained in a three car accident on Seven Mile in Northville Township August 14.

Vincent Estes, the infant son of Rhonda Estes, 28, of Canton has been in a coma since the accident. He has severe head injuries, the hospital reported.

Police reported a Ford Pinto driven by Mrs. Estes was in the left lane westbound on Seven Mile, waiting to turn in to the drive of Northville State Hospital when her car was struck from behind by a car driven by John Miller, 68, of 18900 Valencia.

The Pinto was knocked across the center line, according to witnesses, and into the path of an eastbound vehicle driven by Bernice Newhouse, 53, of Livonia.

The eastbound vehicle hit the Pinto broadside, striking the door on the passenger's side, where the baby was reportedly strapped in a baby seat, police said.

The drivers received minor injuries. No citations were issued and the accident is under investigation by township police.

While police were attempting to clear the roadway of vehicles involved in the accident, another traffic mishap occurred near the same location.

A vehicle drive by William Rantala, 22, of Hancock, was cut off and forced into eastbound lanes, witnesses said, by a vehicle driven by Gladys Evans, 56, of 20311 Woodhill.

The car driven by Rantala was allegedly forced into a head-on collision with an east bound vehicle driven by David Stanger, 31, of Farmington Hills.

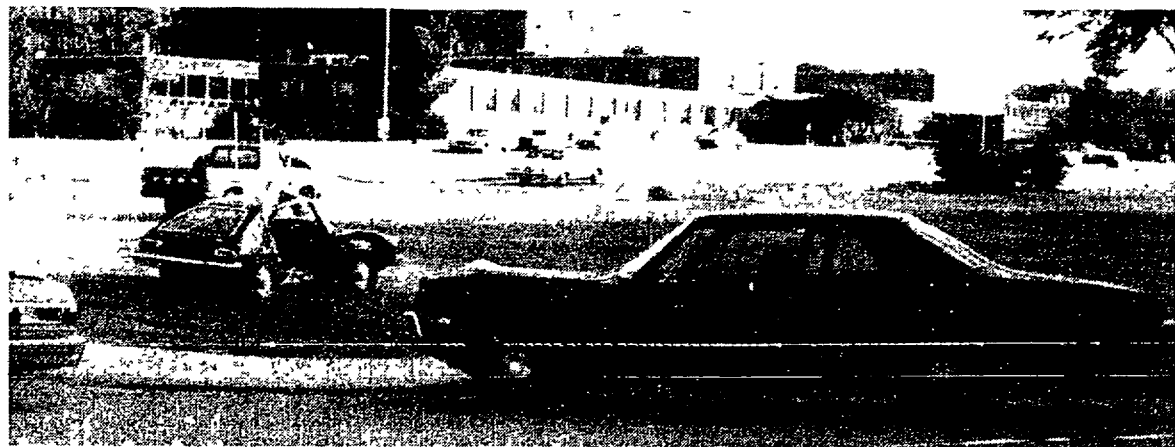

Though there was substantial damage to the vehicles, only minor injuries were suffered by the drivers.

No citations were issued, pending further investigation by police.

Young Vincent Estes was riding in the front seat of this Ford Pinto last Wednesday when it was struck by the vehicle shown below. Seven-month-old Vincent remains in critical condition at Children's Hospital in Detroit. He has been in a coma ever since the accident. The drivers of both vehicles received only minor injuries. The other car was only slightly damaged.

In parking deck repairs

Second low bidder gets job

In an unusual move, a low bidder by several thousand dollars on a city project came up empty handed Monday.

Northville City Council, which has a history of picking low bidders, ignored the bid of Schultz Company of Northville and picked instead a $133,600 bid of Water Tight Concrete of Wixom to repair the municipal parking deck.

Schultz, original builder of the city structure on Cady, had bid the repair work at $115,025 or $18,575 under Water Tight's second low bid.

Three other bids ranged upwards to $224,300.

City Manager Steven Walters, noting the deterioration of the deck resulting from questionable original construction work, strongly recommended awarding of the bid to Schultz.

Furthermore, he pointed out that Schultz had indicated it could not meet the specified completion date of October 1. Its schedule called for the work to continue well into the fall racing meet at Northville Downs. Many patrons of the Downs use the parking deck.

Although deterioration of the deck is extensive, Uday Kirtikar of Carl Walker & Associates, who has inspected it, said the deck remains safe but unsightly and hazardous.

"Our observations indicate that each of the two problems with the deck, leakage and structural, have contributed toward worsening the other," he reported earlier. "The most severe structural problem is spalling and cracking of column corbels along the south side of the structure, and is evident in varying degrees in most of the column corbels. In addition, minor patching work is required on several interior and exterior columns."

Kirtikar's detailed report covered three pages.

The city was unable to obtain design documents from either the architect or the builder to indicate whether or not drawings had been followed.

Within 36 months Township residents to get cable television

Cable television will be available to township residents within three years.

The Northville Township Board of Trustees recently approved an ordinance which grants a non-exclusive, 15-year franchise to Omnicom of Michigan.

Company spokesmen say the system will be installed and in operation within 36 months and that construction will start within a year.

Omnicom also is seeking a franchise from the City of Northville and has secured agreements from the City of Plymouth and Canton Township. The firm also plans to seek franchises in Novi, Livonia and Farmington, company representatives recently told the Northville City Council.

Its goal is to develop a cable TV system for the entire western Wayne County area.

Omnicom consists of Hoarty and Raines Associates, Inc., of Toledo and the Black Hawk Broadcasting Company of Waterloo, Iowa. Black Hawk is said to be the financial investor in the venture.

Omnicom will pay the township three percent of its gross revenues as a fee for the franchise. The township board will have the right to review rates charged customers by the company.

Company officials said it will offer a variety of services — including all sports, news and religious channels via satellite; local services such as governmental and education channels; and auxiliary services such as fire and burglar alarms.

Optional entertainment services, such as full-length first-run movies also will be available. The basic TV service with converter will run about $7.95 per month.

Some 36 channels from Detroit, Lansing and Toledo — as well as imported signals from New York, Boston, San Francisco, Chicago and Atlanta — will be provided, company officials said.

'It's foolish, unfair'

Resident must sue to recover money

"If I had failed to pay my taxes I'd probably be in jail."

But three years after overpaying taxes, Salim Abraham, owner of Hamlet Food Mart, is being told the only way he can recover is to sue the county or city.

"It's unfair," he told the newspaper.

"As a resident and businessman in the City of Northville, I think it is foolish to have to resort to the courts in order to resolve this matter," he added in a letter to council.

His 1976 taxes overpaid by $3,058.52, Abraham appeared before city council Monday to plead his case.

City Attorney Phillip Ogilvie confirmed that the court may be the only legal way he can recover his money. Having spoken with county officials, Ogilvie said the suit could be started at either the circuit court or district court level.

Ogilvie recommended the latter because it would not result in any great cost to Abraham or further delay.

The problem is complicated because, officials pointed out, not only are city taxes involved. The largest percentage of the overpayment went to county and schools.

Abraham said he has been told that if he doesn't get his money soon, the statute of limitation may run out and permanently end his chance of recovery.

The city, said Abraham, has been "very cooperative" and has tried to help. Oakland County, on the other hand, has "given me a runaround. No one has been able to tell me just how I can get my money back. You (Ogilvie) found out more from the county in a week than I've been able to get in years."

City Manager Steven Walters, commenting on Ogilvie's advice to seek a consent order through the district court here, noted that this legal process does not involve appearance in the courtroom but rather is more like and "out of court settlement."

With a district court order in hand, said the city attorney, the county will be legally empowered to return the taxes.

The overpayment occurred because of a change in state law, which exempted payment of taxes on inventory. That change occurred, however, at a time when Abraham was concentrating his attention in buying out his partner in the business. It wasn't until after the payment had been made that his accountant discovered the error, Abraham said.

CSO to help curb juvenile crime

By KEN KOVACS

Juvenile crime and drug abuse are a problem today in most communities. And Northville is no exception.

The occurrence of vandalism, theft and drug dealing is frequent at both the junior high schools and Northville High, particularly at the high school.

A committee consisting of Northville police and school officials and administrators has developed a program which members feel will help curb this type of activity and at the same time improve communication between students, the public and police.

Under the proposed program, which was approved by the city council Monday and will go before the school board next week, the position of Community Service Officer (CSO) would be reactivated in the Northville Police Department.

City council members at their meeting Monday praised the plan but suggested another attempt at encouraging the township to participate be made.

Councilman Wallace Nichols, when told the earlier estimate of the township's share of the program was pegged at approximately $5,000, observed, "They've (township) got more than $5,000 worth of kids in the high school."

School Director of Personnel Burton Knighton and High School Principal George Aune were present at Monday's council meeting and both school administrators lauded the proposed program.

The CSO program is part of a total department reorganization program proposed by Northville Police Chief Rodney Cannon.

Other changes included in the reorganization plan include the elimination of the rank of captain and two corporals from the current rank structure. They would be replaced by an executive lieutenant and two service lieutenants.

The objective of the reorganization is to develop more management personnel through training and delegation of authority and responsibility, Chief Cannon said.

The CSO would be a juvenile officer, youth officer and liaison officer all in one, with additional police training.

The CSO's work schedule would be divided between in-house service with the Northville Public Schools and service with the police department.

Committee members say they envision the CSO as someone who represents the existence of law and order and its due process, but more importantly someone who offers a means of understanding its reasoning and effects.

The committee members — Police Chief Rodney Cannon, Captain Louis Westfall, Corporal, Gerald Ryan, Dr. George Aune, high school principal and Dr. Burton Knighton, director of personnel for the school district — have met several times since September.

The committee has made many changes in the program proposal, which originally involved Northville township police as well and called for a police liaison officer to be placed in the schools.

The township has since pulled out of the program because of limited monies and the program's approach has been changed considerably.

Council concluded that the city will go ahead with the program with or without the township's participation. (That participation, it was noted, could be in the form of shared police personnel).

Some committee members felt that the liaison officer, who would be a full-fledged patrolman, would be the wrong approach to the problem and that a younger, less forceful figure would be more appropriate.

The cost for a liaison officer program would also be substantially more than the funds needed for a CSO program.

For these and other reasons the committee decided on the CSO.

The CSO would be between the ages of 21 and 25 and would be promoted from the police department's cadet program. The program would cost the city some $14,000 initially while the school district would pay about $4,500.

The liaison officer program originally proposed would have cost the city, the township and the school district over $11,000 each.

When not working for the schools, the CSO would perform duties resembling those of an "ordinance officer" for the police department.

His (or her) duties would involve areas of citizen assistance, parking enforcement, city ordinance violations including snow removal, junk vehicles, animal complaints, as well as safety and public relations programs.

The programs conducted by the CSO would not be limited to the public schools. They would be offered to private schools, area organizations and any group interested in crime prevention, safety and health.

The proposed CSO program has been reviewed by the school board, which deferred action to see what action the city council would take.

The proposal will be on the school board agenda August 27.

City council okays police reorganization

Reorganization of the city police department, which calls for the elimination of the captain's rank and two corporals from the current rank structure, is in the works.

Police Chief Rodney A. Cannon recommended the changes to City Manager Steven Walters, who passed them on to the council. Although the reorganization could be ordered by the manager without council approval, council members indicated their support of the proposal Monday.

Under the chief's plan, the eliminated ranks will be replaced by an executive lieutenant and by two service lieutenants.

Filling of these posts, said the chief, will be done through written and oral examination.

The current captain, Louis Westfall, said Cannon will be "guaranteed" a lieutenant rank with no loss of pay. Until the appointment of Cannon earlier this year, Westfall was the chief officer in the department.

School board approves new code of conduct

A new student code of conduct was unanimously approved by the Northville Board of Education last week.

The code outlines student responsibilities, rules of conduct and penalties for breaking the rules.

It also outlines a new hearing procedure of which the penalized student may take advantage.

Briefly, the code of conduct includes a philosophy of student behavior, prohibited acts, procedures for penalties, and hearing procedures.

Prohibited acts include disruption of school by occupying buildings, blocking entrances, setting fire to school property, use or display of firearms, blocking classes, driveways, or making disruptions in class.

Other prohibited acts include destruction of school property, private property on school grounds, assault, criminal acts, use of drugs, alcohol or marijuana, swearing or verbal abuse, and failure to comply with directions of school personnel.

All of the penalties for these acts range from a few days' suspension to permanent expulsion from the school system.

If a student is suspended for less than three days then the principal's decision is final. If a student is suspended for more than three but less than seven days, he or she can appeal to the Director of Instruction.

If a student is suspended for more than seven days or faces expulsion, the student and his or her parents are notified and the case is heard by an impartial hearing officer.

This comprehensive code of conduct applies to all schools in the Northville school district and is effective beginning this school.

School handbooks already printed, will not contain the new code but it will be printed quickly for distribution, Superintendent Larry Nichols told the board.

"We have supported this unanimously. Now it requires the support of this board, students, parents and teachers," said Trustee Charles Peitz.

Trustee Chris Johnson agreed. "It is one thing to make rules. It is another to stick with them. We must be firm and fair in the code's adoption," he said.

Township board adopts reimbursement policy

A detailed policy for expense reimbursement was recently adopted by the Northville Township Board of Trustees.

Prompted by the "strong recommendation" of the township auditors, the board voted August 9 to adopt a modified version of a policy drawn up by the auditors.

The policy establishes strict guidelines and procedures for attendance by township officials and employees at conventions, conferences and training programs.

The board briefly discussed the policy at a previous meeting, but deferred action until Township Treasurer Lee Holland reviewed the document.

Holland told the board August 9 that he supported the recommended policy with a few exceptions.

Holland suggested changing two areas in the proposed policy.

"I think the suggested 17 cents per mile for gasoline is unrealistic," he told board members. "Twenty cents a mile seems fair."

"And I also think we should limit to two the number of out-of-state meetings officials and employees can attend," Holland added.

Under the policy, officials and employees may only attend a convention, conference or training program if provisions for the trip have been made in the annual budget.

Employees must itemize travel expenses in a travel and business expense report, which must be approved by the Usually you would have to tie up your savings for years to get a dividend that begins to compete with inflation. And it seems it would take years to save the amount needed for one of those fancy $10,000 Money Market certificates. Until now you've had to content yourself with choosing between long-term savings accounts or low dividends. But if you consider yourself a serious saver, you'll welcome this news from your credit union.

NOW YOU CAN EARN THE SAME DIVIDEND RATE IN 3 YEARS AT YOUR CREDIT UNION THAT BANKS AND S & Ls PAY IN 4.

Look at the charts above and compare: with a Community Federal 3-Year Certificate you can earn the same or HIGHER DIVIDEND for LESS TIME. Now you have greater flexibility to plan your savings and to save for the things you want to buy. And before you know it, you've saved the amount needed for a 'fancy' money market certificate. The maximum rate on Certificates is determined monthly by the U.S. Department of the Treasury. The rate you are quoted the month you purchase is paid for the term of your 3-Year Certificate. Dividends are compounded quarterly and the term and minimum balance, like most credit union savings certificates, are designed for the serious saver who isn't rich. So if you've got money that's "just sitting" in a bank or savings and loan, bring it to your credit union. Our 3-Year Certificate is just one of many savings programs that can help you beat inflation.

MSU discloses

More aid for college bound this fall

More families are eligible for financial aid in the coming school year than last year thanks to federal regulations recently passed, says Henry Dykema, Michigan State University financial aids director.

A year ago, a family of four making $18,000 a year would have been ineligible for the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant (BEOG) program. Today that same family could receive $700-$800 in aid to defray college costs.

Dykema notes that applications have doubled since last year with 9,000 applying for the BEOG for 1979-80.

In addition to the increase in the amount of federal dollars going to the BEOG grant program, the ceiling on parents' income eligibility on the Guaranteed Student Loan program (GSL) has increased.

"There is no financial need analysis conducted on parents' income for the GSL program," Dykema says. "Anyone is eligible for these low interest loans."

Under the loan program, students pay no interest on the loans as long as they are enrolled in school. Repayment at a low rate of interest does not begin until nine months after they leave school.

"At seven percent interest, it's the best deal around," Dykema says.

Every student who applies for financial aid at Michigan State University can expect some form of assistance, Dykema says.

The Financial Aids Office puts together a financial aid package consisting of grants, scholarships, loans and work-study.

The federal BEOG serves as the building block for any financial aid package. Depending upon the student's eligibility level, the student may be awarded from $200 to $1,600 for a school year. Eligibility is based on parent's income, student's contribution and number of family members.

Some students come to MSU with scholarships from local service clubs or Social Security and Veteran's Administration benefits. These resources are added into the financial aid package.

Once these sources are tapped and the student still needs additional aid, the student can get it from MSU.

Michigan students can apply for a student aid grant for half of the remaining balance or half of the fees, whichever is less, Dykema explains.

The student can also apply for a "self-help" program that includes work-study, a loan or both.

College work-study, financed by the U.S.

Bikers hit the road for school

"Motorists must learn to share the road with an increasing number of bicycles," says Dr. Robert O. Nolan, director of Michigan State University's Highway Traffic Safety Center.

"Too many motorists are unwilling to allow the cyclist his fair share of the highway — an area not much different from that for a car," he continues. "The bicyclist must ride with traffic and must observe all rules of the road, but many's the driver who, unwittingly, cuts in on the cyclist's space."

"To protect themselves and each other, the cyclist and the motorist must be alert to each other's presence ... the bicyclist must learn to think like a motorist, and the motorist like a cyclist ... each must anticipate the other's next move," Nolan says.

"The coming school openings will put an increased number of inexperienced cyclists and drivers on the highway," he warns.

"The cyclist, too, must learn to share the road," Nolan advises.

Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), places students in jobs on and off campus. The government pays 80 percent of the student's wages and the rest is paid by the campus department or off-campus organization.

Students may also apply for the National Direct Student Loan (NDSL) or the GSL programs.

Police reorganization gets green light

The tests will be open to all officers with ranks of corporal and up.

"The highest scoring finalist would be made the executive lieutenant and on down," the chief explained. "An example would be if a sergeant was the highest scorer he would be promoted to executive lieutenant and his rank would be filled by promoting a corporal."

"The current captain (Westfall) does have the option to write. If he scores the highest he would receive the executive lieutenant rank."

The chief said the salaries of the lieutenants have not been worked out because of the contracts currently being negotiated. He anticipated a five percent increase in the wages of the sergeant.

The reorganization also provides for a community service officer (see related story).

The new chain of command will move upward from the entrance level of cadet to community service officer, patrolman, corporal, sergeant lieutenant, executive lieutenant and finally to the chief.

Mayor Paul Vernon praised the chief for the reorganization plan, calling it "an excellent report and recommendation."

Other council members concurred, although Councilman Wallace Nichols said he thought the community service officer was placed too far down in the chain of command given his duties and qualifications for the job.

You've come along way ISEP

By KEN KOVACS

"We have come a long way and we have a long way to go." These words, uttered last week by Leonard Rezmierski, director of special education for the Northville Public Schools describe the current state of the Institution Special Education Program.

Rezmierski, speaking at the graduation of 15 students from Brainard School in Dearborn Heights, said of the ISE Program, "who would have dreamt that we would be graduating students from our program."

"It is both a sad and happy occasion," he continued. "Sad because we have only begun to teach these people and yet we must let them go. Happy because of the great progress we have made in providing them with education."

The graduation ceremonies last Friday were the last that will be held at Brainard, one of six buildings used by the ISE program to educate handicapped individuals (not including K-12 buildings in the Northville School district).

Some 90 students from Brainard and about 100 from Parkway School, also in Dearborn Heights, are being moved to Bryant Junior High in Livonia.

The building is closer to the two institutions from which students are bused — the Plymouth Center for Human Development and the Northville Residential Training Center — and therefore the move will save the district some money on fuel expenses, officials have noted.

The Brainard graduation marked the completion of the fourth year that Northville schools have provided education for handicapped persons.

In August of 1975, the Northville schools agreed to assume the responsibility for conducting the educational program for all eligible institutionalized children residing at the Plymouth Center and the Residential Training Center.

Under Michigan Public Act 198, the mandatory special education act, an educational program must be provided for all individuals under age 26 who are identified as being handicapped.

Until the fall of 1975, however, significant numbers of such individuals were not receiving individual services.

The Brainard graduates are leaving the program because they have reached the age of 26.

Some 672 handicapped individuals received educational instruction under the program during the 1978-79 school year — which runs from September 5 through mid-August — and though the numbers are not yet solid, ISEP officials estimate some 540 will be involved in the program this year.

"We lost some 100 students to community placements this year," Rezmierski said. "But we are not sure how many we will get from other communities."

"With the students from Brainard and Parkway community placements will probably give us over 200 students at Bryant," he said.

The other ISEP buildings will probably have about the same number of students this year, Rezmierski said, with the exception of three minor changes.

Two of four classes which were taught in the A-building at Plymouth Center will be moved to the Annex building on Main Street, which is currently undergoing renovation. The work should be completed by spring.

This means that about 46 multiply-handicapped students will be added to the 60 currently bused to the Annex. Some 21 will remain in classes at the Plymouth Center.

Fourteen of the 22 handicapped students who were at Moraine Elementary School and Cooke Junior High will be moved to Meads Mill Junior High while the remainder will remain at Moraine.

Some 105 students in the ISE program will attend Taft School in Livonia and an estimated 145 will again take classes at Burger School in Garden City.

Burger students, as well as those at some other ISEP locations, have been involved in vocational education programs over the past year or two.

One of the most interesting and most successful programs, according to school officials, has been the "Top of the Burger" program at Burger.

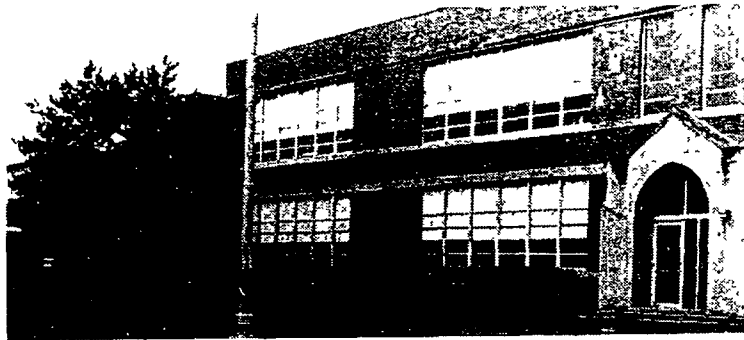

Students work as waiters, cashiers and cooks and, for the most part, run a restaurant at the school which is open to the public.

"I really like their breakfasts," Rezmierski said.

Burger and the other schools have also been involved in light industry vocational programs and this year will be starting maintenance programs.

The goal of these programs is to prepare students for job opportunities when they turn 26 and are forced to leave the ISE program, Rezmierski said.

The Northville ISE program has done a great deal to help educate the handicapped, but as Rezmierski said at the Brainard graduation, "the future depends on all of us and there is a lot of work to be done."

ISEP students have left Brainard

City approves rezoning of six lots to residential

A rezoning recommendation of the planning commission was trimmed Monday as the city council approved changes for six lots instead of seven.

Rezoned from LCD (Local Commercial District) to R-2 (Second Density Residential) were lots 118 through 122 on the south side of Gardner.

Exempted from the change was the corner lot 117 owned by Mrs. Ilo Schwab of 515 River.

Although she was not present at the hearing before council, she protested the proposed rezoning earlier at a public hearing of the city council.

Initially, the rezoning request, made by Frank Pauli, 508 Gardner, who asked only that the next door lot near the east end of the street be rezoned so that he could build a house on it.

The planning commission, on its own initiative enlarged the petition to include all of the lots west to River. The planning commission vote on the recommendation was 4-2.

Council's vote to rezone six lots was 4-0, with Council member Dewey Gardner being absent.

Council's reasons for exempting Mrs. Schwab's lot included the fact that it is directly across River from the Northville Downs barns, which makes it less attractive for new residential construction, and because it is adjacent to a commercial piece of property at Seven Mile.

Rezoning back to a residential designation appears to signal a change in Bealtown's future. Where at one time officials were viewing this section of the community for commercial or track related use, some officials now appear to favor strengthening of the residential character of the neighborhood.

In his recommendation to change the zoning to residential, Planning Consultant Ronald Nino pointed out that the quality of housing has been upgraded in the area and that residents in a household survey had indicated a desire to remain residential. He recommended rezoning for all lots on the block with the possible exception of Mrs. Schwab's lot.

Nino suggested also that the master plan deserves to be considered for adjustment. Subsequently, the planning commission set a public hearing for September 18 to study Bealtown area.

City okays ladder truck purchase

Satisfied that the bid of a new ladder truck for the fire department is fair, Northville City Council Monday approved its purchase.

The $166,077 rig, probably won't be delivered until next year at this time, according to Fire Chief James Allen.

the only rig of this kind that would fit inside the city's existing fire station.

Upon reviewing comparative prices (on the basic unit), DeRusha and other council members said Monday that they are satisfied that the bid is a fair one.

What makes this vehicle so ideal, the chief has explained, is that even though it has a reaching height of 75 feet, it is only 32 feet long and can be housed in the middle bay of the fire station adjacent to the city hall.

Purchase of any other rig, it was pointed out, would have necessitated the enlargement of the fire station.

New state law

High school will register 18-year-olds to vote

Since 18-year-old students didn't beat a path to city hall, city hall will go to the students.

Under a bill signed into law by Governor William Milliken last week, cities and townships must appoint at least one person at every high school to register students to vote.

The legislation — Senate Bill 95, sponsored by Senator Jackie Vaughn III of Detroit — mandates such appointments. The law is effective immediately.

Most lawmakers in this area supported the bill. One of those who opposed it was State Representative Jack Kirksey, himself a former school administrator in Livonia.

"I just saw it as an unnecessary law since municipal clerks already had the power to deputize people at the high school. At least under the old law, it took some initiative by the municipality and the school system to set up the registration process.

"Beyond that, I was a little concerned that this new law might increase the potential exploitation of young people by a variety of political groups. I don't see any clandestine movement, but a lot of groups will be focusing their attention on the high schools and at an age group that may be more easily influenced — particularly if the student is registered but uninterested and uninformed."

Kirksey's counterpart in the senate, State Senator R. Robert Geake of Northville, takes quite a different position:

"I voted for the bill because I believe that the legislature should do everything possible to encourage young people to take an active part in government, particularly by voting.

"Government is a required course for all high school students and it seems probable that they are likely to be informed voters as they reach age 18 in school — possibly more informed than after they have been out of school for a while. If they can develop the habit of studying the backgrounds and qualifications of the candidates and of voting while they are still in school, the habit may last a lifetime."

Here's how area legislators voted on the bill on final passage:

SENATE — R. Robert Geake (R) Northville, yes; Kerry Kammer (D) Pontiac, yes; Edward Pierce (D) Ann Arbor, yes; and Doug Ross (D) Oak Park, yes.

HOUSE — Frederick Dillingham (R) Fowlerville, no; Richard D. Fessler (R) West Bloomfield, excused; Jack Kirksey (R) Livonia, no; and Roy Smith (R) Ypsilanti, yes.

The final vote in the senate was 21-14, in the house the final vote was 64-32.

In debating the bill, legislators pointed out that participation of students in the political process has been disappointing since 18-year-olds were given the right to vote.

But, Senator Vaughn, emphasized in his discussion of the bill with this newspaper, that student neglect "is no

'If we find someone denying students their rights under this law you can be sure they will be publicly spotlighted' greater than that of other age groups in our society. People unfortunately just don't seem to exercise their right to vote."

Vaughn sees his statute as a means of stimulating more young persons to exercise their citizenship and to express their fresh and creative ideas which enhance the democratic system of government.

Proponents also argued that the bill will enable schools to register voters and to encourage their participation in elections beneficial to schools and students, such as millage elections.

Vaughn warns those who see an "escape clause" in the bill. While some interpret the new law as allowing school districts not to participate in voter registration if they choose, Vaughn said "that's unfounded." He noted that the attorney general already has stated that only those private school systems which find the law contrary to their religious beliefs may be exempted.

Furthermore, to safeguard against those schools or municipalities who may delay implementation, a special committee is to be established this week to monitor the statute. "If we find someone denying students their rights under this law you can be sure they will be publicly spotlighted."

Among the arguments in the legislature against the bill were these:

—It is unnecessary since local clerks already are authorized to deputize citizens to act as voter registration assistants in the schools or elsewhere.

—It could result in administrative problems to both clerks and school officials since many school districts contain several townships, cities or villages within their boundaries. It is conceivable that school officials could improperly register a person.

—The state may have to compensate school districts for the additional cost due to the increased responsibilities to school personnel registering student voters.

Vaughn calls the latter argument "nonsense." Government in high schools is a state requirement and registration is simply an extension of the teacher's normal classroom function. "Registration, under this law, becomes a great teaching tool — one that I'm sure teachers and administrators will want to incorporate in their curriculums."

Nevertheless, even the senate's fiscal agency indicated it is impossible to determine the fiscal implications of the bill "because some districts may choose to supplement a person's salary for the added responsibility of registering voters, while others may not."

It remains to be seen how teacher unions will view the registration responsibility.

Generally, reaction of area municipal and school officials contacted ranged from enthusiastic support to guarded acceptance.

Novi Superintendent Gerald Kratz welcomed the new law, pointing out that it is a good adjunct to the election process.

In Novi, little change is expected to occur because of the new law since the Novi school system already has been enjoying an even more comprehensive registration process.

"Every top secretary in every one of our schools already is deputized to register 18-year-olds as well as anyone else who comes into the school," noted Dr. Kratz. "Our city clerk has been very cooperative, enabling us to register new residents coming into our schools to enroll their children. It has worked beautifully."

Novi City Clerk Geraldine Stipp agreed with Kratz, pointing out that no major problems have occurred because of the present registration set-up.

Although registration through the schools has increased local voter registration, the Novi clerk indicated that the greatest increase has resulted from the registrations occurring now at the secretary of state branch offices.

Her chief concern about the new law is that the deputized person be responsible. "If they didn't follow through and forward their list of registrants to our office we could end up with some angry people at election time."

Northville City Clerk Joan McAllister expressed a different concern:

"Although I feel it (new law) may encourage registration by 18-year-olds, I'm a little afraid of the mechanics. In districts, such as ours, it could mean different people registering students from different municipalities. It

Man caught in jewelry theft

City police early Tuesday morning apprehended a 20-year-old Westland man in connection with a burglary at H R Noder's Jewelry, 101 East Main a few hours before.

A warrant for his arrest was expected yesterday.

Police report that some $300 to $400 worth of jewelry, including a pocket watch and chain, were taken from the display case on Main.

The thief apparently smashed the window of the display case with his hand, which was cut, according to the store owner, and reached in and took the merchandise.

Police responded to an alarm at approximately 2:15 a.m. and apprehended the suspect near the vicinity of the burglary about 90 minutes later, they said.

A teacher at the school told police that a man fitting the above description entered the building at about 2 p.m., grabbed her purse, which was sitting on a television set nearby and fled the building.

The purse reportedly contained about $40 in cash and a number of credit cards and other miscellaneous items worth about $300, police said.

The suspect was seen driving away in a fairly new, green full-size car, the teacher told police.

The mailbox was taken sometime between the hours of noon and 8:30 p.m., police said.

Two golf carts from the Dun Rovin Golf Course, 16377 Haggerty, were damaged by unknown persons August 17, township police reported.

Between the hours of 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. someone drove a Melex golf cart into the pond north of the clubhouse and damaged the front wheel assembly and left side of another cart.

The total damage is estimated at $600, $300 for each cart, police said.

could result in some registration errors. I would hope the same persons in our high school could be deputized to represent all municipalities."

Janice Morrow, clerk of the City of Brighton, agreed. "Our school represents several different townships as well as Brighton. If you've got different people doing the registering it could be a problem."

From Northville School Superintendent Lawrence Nichols came this comment:

"I think it is a great thing. I was trying to work out something like this with the city clerk when I was in Livonia before I came here. Up until the passage of this bill I understand it was up to the city clerk to determine whether to deputize someone to register voters. Since they came in with the 18 year old vote I thought instructions to vote should be a part of civics instruction. I favor this bill highly."

The new law is patterned after a legislative procedure that is currently used in Georgia, where school officials are authorized to act as registration assistants.

Specifically, Senator Vaughn's measure amends state law to require the clerk of each township, city and village within a school district to appoint, with the approval of the top administrator of each school, a person to assist in the registration of voters in a public or private high school or vocational school that chooses to participate.

The assistant would be a high school staff person or a social studies instructor in the school. A clerk could limit the authority of registration assistants to apply only to the registration of students and employees of the school district in which the assistant is employed.

A survey made by the legislature indicated that some 15 of the state's school districts were already voluntarily participating in deputizing staffers to register students. In most of these districts, the job is done by the civics teacher without compensation.

For the purpose of the act, a school has been defined as those public, private and vocational institutions which offer instructions between grades 9 through 12.

In Michigan, where there are approximately 825 high schools — including public and private — and 235 trade schools, the new law is expected to substantially increase the number of registered voters, said Vaughn, who indicated the overwhelming response to the bill has been favorable. "I'd say 80 to 85 percent of state's schools support it," he said.

City police are looking for a white male, about 17 or 18 years old, with

Poll favors stiff penalties

The final results of State Senator Robert Geake's (R-Northville) district survey found 59 percent of the respondents opposed to reducing the penalties for possession and use of small amounts of marijuana.

A bill which passed the state senate this past session and Senator Geake opposed, will reduce the penalties for possession and use of small amounts of marijuana. This bill is now before the House for consideration.

In other crime related questions, respondents overwhelmingly agreed that the death penalty should be reinstated in Michigan. In Senator Geake's annual poll last year 86.8 percent of the respondents wanted to have the opportunity to vote on the issue. This year, 70 percent felt that capital punishment should simply be reinstated and soon.

"My constituents in Northwestern Wayne County have shown me again this year, that they want a hard line taken against criminals," commented Geake. "Fortunately the crime rate finally seems to be decreasing in the Detroit area, and my constituents want to see that trend continue."

Seventy percent of the respondents also felt that the needs of juveniles who are runaways or school truants, would be better handled by social service agencies instead of the courts.

Decisions on what constitutes pornography should be made by local units of government, according to 63 percent of the respondents.

The final area of the questionnaire concentrated on education in Michigan. Two questions on the survey suggested that state board of education and university governing board positions be appointed by the governor instead of elected. Both questions faced a rather even split among respondents. While 41 percent favored the state board of education's appointment, 55 percent were opposed. The same percentage (41) favored the appointment of university governing boards, while 54 percent opposed it.

In another area last year, 89.6 percent of the respondents favored requiring competency tests for high school students, compared to this year's higher figure of 91 percent.

"There is more and more evidence and concern that some of our students are lacking the basic skills," explained Geake. "And we all know how vital it is to provide students with training that will help them in the 'real world' whether they plan to go on to college or are trying to find a job."

The final question in the survey elicited opposition from 62 percent of the respondents on whether students should be allowed to graduate from high school early if they pass accelerated tests in reading, writing and math.

If you have missed any of the printed results of Senator Geake's 1979 annual district survey, please feel free to contact his office for a copy.

"We are a school with a well balanced academic and social program," she explains. "It is an alternate kindergarten to the traditional concept as we teach reading, writing and math at kindergarten level."

There is a ratio of one teacher to eight youngsters in the school which actually is located in a red schoolhouse at 48875 West Eight Mile.

The school is open from 9 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. with two half-day sessions each day.

significantly reduce gasoline consumption without disturbing its lifestyle or cutting vacation travel by making a few simple adjustments in driving habits," stated Auto Club President Richard R Dann.

A performance driving test conducted by Auto Club July 17 in Dearborn showed that conservative versus jackrabbit driving over a 10,000-mile year can result in a savings of 352 gallons of gasoline and a reduction of $352 in fuel costs for each state motorist.

The driving test consisted of two drivers traveling the identical 8.7-mile-long freeway and city street course in a 1978 Buick LeSabre equipped with an Autocomputer to measure miles per gallon and gasoline consumed. The test was supervised by Detroit Testing Laboratory, with the Autocomputer, furnished by the Raymond Company of Brighton.

The poorly driven car obtained 11.9 miles per gallon and finished the course in 17 minutes, or less than two minutes before the other vehicle which achieved 10.1 miles per gallon.

Gas-wasting techniques used in the test included jackrabbit starts, abrupt stops, weaving in and out of traffic and following vehicles closely and applying brakes frequently. Gas-conserving techniques included driving at a steady pace and with the flow of traffic.

By driving safely and sensibly, motorists not only can conserve fuel but help reduce the chances of long lines at Michigan gas stations, fuel shortages or rationing, according to Auto Club.

(7) "Gross Subscriber Revenues" shall mean those revenues derived by the Company from regular subscriber services, namely carriage of broadcast signals and required nonbroadcast services.

SECTION 3. Qualifications of Grantee and Grant of Authority. Having conducted an open public proceeding concerning the Company's application for the franchise herein granted covering the legal character, financial, technical and other qualifications of the Company and the adequacy and feasibility of its arrangements for the construction of a Cable Television System in the Township, the Board hereby finds that construction arrangements are adequate and feasible; pursuant to such findings, the Board hereby grants the Company a non-exclusive franchise, right and privilege to construct, erect, operate, modify and maintain, in, upon, along, across, above, over, and under highways, streets, alleys, sidewalks, public ways, and places now laid out or dedicated and all extensions thereof, and additions thereto, in the Township, all poles, wires, cables, underground conduits, manholes and other television conductors and fixtures necessary for the maintenance and operation of a Cable Television System for the purpose of distributing to the public television and radio signals, other electronic impulses in order to furnish television and radio programs and various communications and other electronic services.

Said regulations shall expressly include a rule prohibiting the use of Township streets or alleys for the installation of additional utility poles or where the utilities are presently underground, prohibit the use of additional conduit, to be used solely by the CATV Company. Also, in the event that the utilities go underground in the future, the CATV System shall be reinstalled underground. In the event the CATV System has not been installed, it shall be installed underground.

SECTION 5. Term. Subject to the provisions herein, the rights and privileges of the Grantee shall continue for a period of (15) fifteen years from the date of adoption of this Ordinance, which shall be deemed to constitute a contract between the Township and said Grantee. Further, said Grantee shall have the right of first refusal in re-negotiations.

SECTION 6. Renewal. No renewal hereof shall be granted unless authorized by the Township following appropriate public proceedings involving public notice and an opportunity for the interested parties to participate, during which proceedings the Company's past performance, the adequacy of the franchise's provisions, and the consistency of those provisions with applicable FCC rules shall be considered.

SECTION 7. Territory Involved. The franchise extends throughout the present territorial limits of the Township and to any other area heretofore annexed to or otherwise added to said Township during the terms of this franchise and service rendered by the Grantee shall be made available to all inhabitants of the Township that may desire service where a density of not less than seventy (70) homes per mile exists continuous of existing plant.

Grantee shall at all times maintain a comprehensive general liability insurance policy with a single occurrence limit amount of $1 Million ($1,000,000.00) covering liability arising out of its construction and operation of the cable television system. The Township shall be named as an additional insured under said policy. All of said insurance coverage shall provide a thirty (30) day notice of cancellation.

SECTION 10. Prohibition of Discriminatory or Preferential Practice. The Company shall not, as to rates, charges, service facilities, rules, regulations, or in any other respect, make or grant preference or advantages to any person, or subject any person to any prejudices or disadvantage provided, however, that nothing in this chapter shall be deemed to prohibit the establishment of service without charge to public or private educational institutions, and such public buildings or facilities as shall from time to time be designated by the Township. This provision shall not be deemed to prohibit promotional campaigns to stimulate individuals to connect to the CATV service.

SECTION 11. Notice of Interruption for Repairs. Whenever it is necessary to shut off or interrupt service for the purpose of making repairs, adjustments or installations, the Company shall do so at such time as will cause the least amount of inconvenience to its customers. The subscriber rate schedule shall be implemented if found to be fair and reasonable and no higher than necessary to meet all costs of service (assuming efficient and economical management), including a fair return on the cost, plus depreciation, of the properties devoted to such services (with regard to any subsequent sale or transfer price or cost of such properties).

SECTION 16. Necessity of Franchise. No person shall own or operate a community antenna television system in the Township except by franchise issued by the Township granting such power to any such grantee. In the event litigation is required to enforce the provisions of said Ordinance, grantee shall pay legal expenses incurred by the Township.

SECTION 17. Revocation of Franchise. Any violation by Grantee of the provisions of this Ordinance or the failure to properly perform any of the conditions or terms hereof, and not remedy such breach within sixty (60) days after having received written notice from the Township to do so, shall be cause for the revocation of this franchise and all rights thereunder. The Township Clerk shall report such known non-compliance in writing to the Township and, upon due notice to the Grantee and opportunity to be heard on the charge of non-compliance, the Township may revoke such franchise.

SECTION 18. Limitation of Services. Services performed pursuant to this franchise issued hereunder shall not include the performance of repairing, servicing, or selling television sets or television antennas, nor shall the Grantee recommend service by any other person except for such items as may be directly related to the cable installation and/or connection.

SECTION 19. The Grantee shall comply fully with the rules and standards for the cable television operations as adopted by the FCC.

SECTION 20. Emergency Use of Facilities. In the case of any emergency or disaster, the Company shall, upon request of the Township, make available its facilities for emergency use during the duration of such emergency or disaster.

SECTION 22. Channel Capacity. The cable television system to be installed shall have a thirty-five (35) channel capability and the technical capacity for return or two-way communications. Company will install and maintain a cable television system in keeping with latest state-of-the-art technology including the capability for satellite reception. The CATV System will be equipped with a backup for electrical failure with standby power supplies.

SECTION 23. Modification of FCC Rules. Consistent with the requirements of FCC Rule 76.31, any modification or amendment thereof by the FCC shall, to the extent applicable, be considered to be part of this franchise as of the effective date of such amendment, and shall be incorporated herein by specific amendment hereto within one (1) year from the effective date of the FCC's amendment or at the time of renewal of this franchise, whichever occurs first.

SECTION 24. New Developments. It shall be the policy of the Township to liberally amend this franchise, upon the application of the Grantee, whenever necessary to enable the Grantee to take advantage of any developments in the field of transmission of television or radio signals which will afford it an opportunity to more effectively, efficiently, or economically serve its customers.

SECTION 25. Performance Bond. During the life of the franchise Grantee shall give a bond to the Township satisfactory in form and substance to the Board in the amount of $10 Thousand ($10,000.00) to insure the faithful performance of all undertakings of Grantee as represented under this Ordinance. The bond shall remain in effect during the life of the franchise.

SECTION 26. Construction Timetable. Grantee shall promptly and as soon as possible after the granting of the franchise described in this Ordinance apply to the FCC for all permission and authority necessary for the lawful operation of a CATV System. Grantee shall exercise all reasonable efforts to complete in a workmanlike manner and in conformity with all applicable State, Federal, and City rules and regulations all construction of a CATV System within the Township within thirty-six (36) months from the date upon which it receives a Certificate of Compliance from the FCC. The Grantee shall not be responsible for any delays in the progress of work due to labor disputes, fire, acts of God, unusual delay in transportation, unavoidable casualties, failure of other persons to meet properly their respective commitments, including, by way of example and not limitation, suppliers of essential services or goods, or any and all other causes beyond the Grantee's control.

SECTION 27. Local Origination Services. The Grantee, upon reaching a market saturation of thirty-five (35) percent of the homes passed (the number of homes with cable compared with number of homes where cable is available) will maintain and operate a fully equipped studio which will be capable of operation at remote locations.

SECTION 28. Other Services. The Grantee will provide service to the Township Hall, Fire Department, Police Department, and Public Schools. This service is without charge to a single point of entry. Any additional and/or extensive wiring required, such as in a school building, should be on a cost basis only. In addition, the Grantee will provide a Community Bulletin Board, weather information, cable guide listing various services, and an alpha-numeric display for the benefit of the impaired hearing residents.

SECTION 29. Severability. If any clause, sentence, section, paragraph, or part of the Ordinance, or the application thereof to any person, persons, firm, partnership, association or corporation, legal entity or circumstance, shall be for any reason adjudged by a Court of competent jurisdiction to be unconstitutional or in error, said judgment shall not affect, impair or invalidate the remainder of this Ordinance and the application of such provision to other persons, firms, partnerships, associations or corporations, legal entities or circumstances, but said judgment shall be confined in its operation to the clause, sentence, section, paragraph, or part of this Ordinance hereby directly involved in the case in controversy in which said judgment shall have been rendered, and to the person, persons, firms, partnerships, association, corporation, legal entity or circumstance then and there involved. It is hereby declared to be the legislative intent of this body that this Ordinance would have been adopted had such invalid or unconstitutional provision not been included in the Ordinance.

SECTION 30. Ordinance Repealed. All prior ordinances or parts hereof in conflict with the provisions of this Ordinance are hereby repealed.

SECTION 31. Effective Date. This Ordinance is declared effective on September 21, 1979. This Ordinance was duly adopted by the Township Board of Trustees of the Township of Northville at its regular meeting, called and held on the 8th day of August A.D., 1979, and was ordered to be given publication in the manner prescribed by law.

Township adopts policy department head and the treasurer. Receipts for transportation, hotel bills and registration are mandatory.

Hotel bills will be reimbursed on the basis of actual expense. Allowance per meal will be on actual cost but will not exceed three dollars for breakfast (including tip); five dollars for lunch and 12 dollars for dinner.

A guest expense is allowed only where "directly related" to township business or following a substantial business discussion (including business meetings at conventions or otherwise) associated with the township's business.

Though the policy is restrictive in some areas, the last section of the document gives the board ultimate control. It reads:

"Under unusual circumstances or conditions, exceptions to the provisions of this regulation may be approved by the township board."

State law requires immunizations

Be forewarned.

If your child doesn't have the proper immunization, he may encounter some difficulty when he tries to enter school on the first day this fall.

Youngsters entering a Michigan school district from out of state and kindergartners won't be admitted to classes unless they have been immunized as required by state law.

Students in other grades will have a grace period of about three or four months to secure the necessary shots.

That applies to all Michigan school districts. But some school districts, such as Brighton, won't be admitting any students this fall unless they have the proper shots.

Furthermore, kindergartners in the Brighton district will have to have physical examinations or they won't be admitted to school for the opening half-day session on September 5.

Brighton has chosen to exceed the state requirements, and accordingly has adopted policies requiring immunization for all students before entering school this fall and requiring physical examinations before kindergartners will be admitted.

"Brighton took the position it is necessary for health," said Dr. Ray Keech, superintendent of schools. "We decided if we're going to do it, let's do it and not pussy-foot around. The issues we face the first week, the rest might face four months down the road."

Three notices have been sent out thus far to parents whose children have not met the district's health requirements, Dr. Keech said. Another notice will be in the mail before school starts warning those who have not secured the required shots.

"I am having our nursing staff and the building principals review records to determine who has not gotten shots," Keech said.

At the beginning of summer, 960 of the district's 5,500 students had not been properly immunized.

"I would anticipate a couple hundred kids won't have their records up to date and will not take notice until we tell them the first day that they can't attend school," Keech said. "After that, I would expect 99 percent will meet the requirements within a few days."

"Only a very small percentage have not had physicals," Keech said in reference to kindergartners. "Parents don't seem to object. I don't anticipate a problem. Generally speaking, the program has been well accepted."

The reason Keech expects immunization to be more of a problem is that there simply are more required to be immunized. The Brighton physical examination program only applies to kindergartners, whereas immunization applies to all students.

"In view of the fact that it has been five months since our policies were adopted, I think it's reasonable to expect all will comply," Keech observed. "We want to have a healthy atmosphere for students from the beginning."

The district's policies and state law permit waivers of immunization and the physical examination for religious, moral or medical reasons.

Youngsters transferring from one district to another in Michigan will have some relief. They will have a three-week grace period to permit the transfer of transcripts.

So what is likely to happen when a student shows up without meeting the health requirements?

"Teachers will refuse to let them in class," Keech said. "They will be sent to the principal's office and the parents will be called to pick them up."

If the parents aren't home, it's likely the students will be kept in the principal's office until school lets out that day. Notices will be sent home with those students, advising the parents that their children will not be admitted until they meet the requirements.

Keech expects the problem will be most serious at the high school. High school policy states that if a student has six absences in one class, he loses credit for that class.

"I'm sure that's going to be an issue," he said.

Waxing philosophical, Keech observed, "I feel if you teach responsibility — and you should — then you do it by holding the students responsible. In the work world, they don't pay people who don't show up."

If parents are expecting building principals to go soft by admitting their children without shots, the parents should consider this. State law provides that the building principal is responsible for enforcement of the state health requirements. The building principal could be fined $100 for each student admitted to school without proper immunization.

Crisis center relocated, renamed

Our House Crisis Center, formerly located at 185 South Harvey Street, has been renamed Turned Point Crisis Center and relocated at 271 South Main in Plymouth.

The crisis center's hours and programming will remain the same.

Renovations to 271 South Main, the same building that houses Growth Works Youth Services, have made it possible to consolidate Growth Works' program into one building. The crisis center will occupy the second floor of the building, the youth service the second floor.

Turning Point Crisis Center provides telephone and walk-in counseling and on-going group and individual counseling. Its hours of operation are 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Turning Point is now interviewing individuals for its September volunteer training program. Interested persons should contact Sheila Shives at 455-4902.

SPEAKING for The Record

By BILL SLIGER

Perhaps by October the Northville Township planning commission will hold a public hearing on its proposed master plan of land use.

Planners have been working on the document for the past year. As should be expected, its development into present form evoked some differences of opinion among planners. And certainly there are specifics within the proposed plan that will draw criticism from citizens when it is given a public airing.

It is important, I believe, to understand that under present state law governing township procedures master plans for land use are approved by the planning commission — not the elected board of trustees. Normally, the role of planners is strictly advisory. So the public hearing conducted by planners becomes the forum for considering any changes in the broad master plan concept.

The zoning map itself, however, is the second step in the overall master plan revision and its approval rests with the township board. This contains the fine details, such as specific lot sizes, that are applied to the master plan. These designations are recommended by planners to the board.

According to George Vilican, township planning consultant, a zoning map public hearing before the township board will not take place before the first part of next year.

In its deliberations on master plan revisions planners have attempted to respond to public input.

Planner Bernard Baldwin estimates that under the proposed master plan the built-up density of Northville township, population-wise, may have been reduced by as much as 6,000 to 7,000 residents. This would be accomplished with larger lot sizes for residential development.

Consultant Vilican points to the fact that the revised master plan contains more than twice as much industrial zoning, an important consideration in terms of community taxbase.

With the exception of the Gerald Avenue area all of the township's industrial zoning is located in the extreme southwest section. It includes all township land from Five to Six Mile between Napier and Ridge. Additionally, large portions of land north of Five Mile extending easterly from Ridge well beyond Beck have been designated "research and development", which is a more restrictive form of industrial zoning and provides for industrial parks.

This encompasses more than 1,000 acres most of which, however, is owned either by the state or Wayne county.

Whenever and whatever development takes place in the township's sparsely populated western section will most probably be determined by the availability of sewer capacity. And Township Engineer William Mosher sees this as a long range problem.

While township planners and their consultant may agree in concept on the master plan, there are some sharp differences of opinion on specifics.

And one deals with the matter of new shopping center locations in the township.

I talked to planning member Marvin Gans as well as Baldwin and Vilican. And they all agree that commercial zoning in the ownership should be provided as a convenience for neighboring residents, not to reach the major proportions of comparative shopping centers.

Such a center would occupy perhaps 16 acres with buildings covering 20 percent of the area and the rest reserved for parking and landscaping. Township planning philosophy would not propose to compete with the city's central business district.

But at its last meeting members voted 3-2 (with one abstention) to move a proposed commercial site from Beck and Six Mile roads to Sheldon and Six Mile.

Baldwin opposes the change because of the proximity of the site to the city's downtown district. He believes it would serve as more of a "convenience" to development when it occurs further west.

Gans, William Bohan and Kenneth McLarty voted for the Sheldon-Six Mile site. James Nowka was absent and Craig Bowlby declined to vote, an inaction which really amounted to a "yes" vote. In my opinion members of bodies representing the public should never abstain unless conflict of interest is involved. In this instance, for example, it results in an action being approved by less than a majority of the body's membership — three out of seven.

But much more important in my view is the implication that the board changed the commercial site to satisfy a developer, Graham Orley.

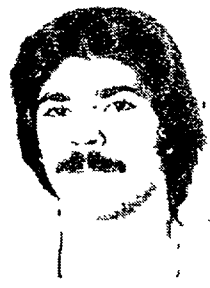

He owns a commercial parcel at Winchester and Six Mile, across from Northville Commons subdivision. Residents of the area vehemently oppose commercial development there, beyond the existing bank. Orley also owns property at Six Mile and Sheldon, which he plans to develop. There was the distinct impression that if commercial development is permitted at Sheldon and Six it will be by-passed at Winchester.

Gans points out he would favor buying the Winchester commercial site for township use, perhaps a community building.

Whatever the rationale, a trade-off to remove the heat at one site is not sufficient reason for zoning at another site.

Personally, I agree with the stance taken by Baldwin. Commercial zoning at Sheldon casts the die for more such zoning in the future, probably at Beck or Ridge at Six Mile. And I do not believe the western area will be improved by commercial islands.

What's more, it's difficult for me to understand how planners can open Sheldon and Six for commercial traffic when just a few short months ago they declined to permit the owner of Brooklane Golf Course to add racquetball courts to a commercial recreation enterprise already in operation at the same intersection.

Speaking for Myself

Live together before marriage?

SHERRIE SPAMAN

YES

Living together before marriage can be a positive factor in the development of a couple's relationship if the arrangement is used to test and refine an already mature relationship.

Living together prior to marriage allows the couple to freely introduce themselves on an intimate level. It gives the couple a chance to visualize their problems and work through their weak areas in a "no strings attached" atmosphere. If the two personalities cannot mesh, the means are provided for the couple to end the relationship, if necessary, without involving the hassles of a legal suit and complicated emotional trauma.

Today's changing lifestyle is making the institution of marriage more complicated to maintain than ever before. Marriage has become the victim of a free and independent society where the women's movement, lenient divorce laws and a career-motivated culture are eating away at its foundations.

NO

To address oneself to the issue of why non-married couples should not live together is not a popular position to take. It is an issue that has touched all our lives at some time, either in our own families, families of our friends or our children's friends. One cannot neglect the effect such living arrangements have on those individuals close to the couple, who find the couple's lifestyle in direct conflict with their own code of ethics. The strain is bound to spill over on the couple involved, especially if there was once a close bond between all the parties involved.

My personal feeling is that marriage is a commitment between two people. Two people who live together without benefit of marriage are in essence saying they are either unwilling or afraid to make that commitment.

Your letters welcome

This newspaper welcomes Letters to the Editor. We ask, however, that they be limited to 500 words and that they contain the signature, address and telephone number of the writer. Deadline for submission is noon Monday. Names will be withheld upon request. We reserve the right to edit letters for brevity, clarity and libel.

Thus, for a marriage to survive today, couples must have a deep sense of commitment both before and after the wedding ceremony. Living together can provide the opportunity for a couple to fully understand and adjust to the commitment of marriage.

Nevertheless, living together is not for everyone, as with marriage. The idea of just "living together" is regarded by many as a cop-out to commitment. For people who want a no-commitment relationship to keep safely uninvolved, living together would be a cop-out.

However, for couples who plan to marry, living together can develop in an open but intimate arrangement where the only real commitment is to each other, a basis for a strong and lasting relationship or prove that marriage is not their answer.

JACK W.
HOFFMAN'S COLUMN

While two Northville representatives on the Wayne County Board of Commissioners push a county executive form of government as a means of "straightening out" Wayne County, a state representative would create a whole new county to resolve the problems.

Thomas H. Brown, state representative from Westland, wants to make two counties out of Wayne. And he's serious about it.

If the bill he has introduced (it got nowhere the last session) becomes law, the people of Wayne would be able to vote on the two-county proposal.

Specifically, Brown would divide the county along the west boundary of the City of Detroit. Thus, Detroit and all Wayne municipalities east of this boundary would be part of one county, while the western suburban communities would be part of the other.

Brown says there is plenty of precedence for dividing a county, pointing out that Wayne County used to be a great deal larger than it is now.

But, of course, he's referring to a time when there were more Indian tribes in Michigan than lawmakers.

Last time a new county was organized in Michigan was back in 1887 when Cyrus Luce was sworn into office as the 22nd governor of Michigan. Not surprisingly the newly organized Upper Peninsula county was named Luce.

Presently Brown's bill is holed up in the house towns and counties committee, which Brown chairs. His chairmanship, however, does not necessarily mean the bill will ever get onto the house floor.

Three public hearings on it have been scheduled for September in Westland, the city-county building, and the Woodhaven City hall.

Brown blames Detroit for fomenting the two-county proposal. Its failure to respond to the suburbs' demand for crowd control in

Bill proposes competency tests

By R. ROBERT GEAKE
State Senator

What would happen if high school students were required to pass competency tests before being allowed to receive a high school diploma in Michigan?

Well — no one really knows for sure, but what we do know is that this issue is both controversial and one we will be hearing a lot more about in the near future.

In the past few years we have discovered that not only do some college students read, write and spell at a third grade level, but, as recent law board exams demonstrated, even some law students have problems with these basic fundamentals.

In order to lower the illiteracy rate in the United States, almost 25 states now require students to pass competency tests before graduating. Currently a bill introduced in the State House suggests the same requirements for students in Michigan.

Supporters of this bill say that we have continuously graduated students from high school who do not function well in society because they cannot read, write or spell. Either they can't pass their classes in college or they can't obtain jobs other than low paying, slow advancing ones because they lack basic skills. If these students with deficiencies are found through testing before they graduate into the "real world", it could possibly mean a year of required remedial courses to perfect their skills.

Opponents feel that competency tests are not true examples of the students' capabilities. Many students "freeze" during objective testing (multiple choice, true/false, matching, etc.). Other students often know the material but when working under a time limit are unable to answer questions properly. And some who question the validity of these tests, also question how much they would cost, how often they would have to be given, and who would administer them.

However, one of the major concerns surrounding the testing is what to do with students who do fail, and possibly more than once? As we noted, even law students have problems spelling, reading and writing. Some students, although basically bright individuals, must always carry a dictionary and work at a slower pace to comprehend their material. For them the competency tests may be a disaster.

High school diplomas are now necessary to find more and more jobs. For those students who might repeatedly fail the test, (and studies show that figure could be very high), they could form a frustrated society made up of high school drop-outs who could add to the unemployment figures, putting a continued strain on our economy.

No one can deny that something needs to be done. We can't continue to enroll our young adults into colleges when they are unable to handle their scholastic requirements. Nor can we prohibit hundreds of students from graduating, which would create a serious cost increase to education in the long run.

So where do we turn?

Some say that colleges should require their own entrance examinations besides SAT or ACT testing. Others say that competency tests should indeed be given, but much sooner than several months before young adults have prepared for their graduations.

Tests administered in the ninth and tenth grades would give educators the chance to catch those students with poor reading, writing and spelling skills before they graduate and allow them to sharpen their skills during their last two years of high school. Others say that this is even too late in the game, and that students should be tested in the fourth grade to see how well they have grasped the fundamentals, before bad habits can be formed.

The legislature will undoubtedly be debating this in the coming year. It is a very important issue and will affect many individuals. I am interested in the views of my constituents and would appreciate hearing from you on this matter. You may contact me at: P.O. Box 30036, Capitol Building, Lansing, Michigan 48909.

School district bosses don't stay too long

School superintendents average between three and five years on the job in one school district, estimates Don Currie of the Michigan Association of School Superintendents.

But, Currie warns that statistic can be misleading and "grossly unfair to school boards as well as school superintendents."

A superintendent's position is not as tenuous as it appears because in many cases a superintendent moves on his own accord either through upward mobility to another, better school system, or retirement or a number of other reasons.

Still, there is a significant turnover in the sensitive top school job. About 12 percent of the school districts in Michigan will hire a new superintendent this year, according to Carl Brautigam, assistant director of placement at Michigan State University, and that, he says, is the typical yearly rate.

And about 25 percent of those vacancies, Brautigam says, were board instigated.

The reason? "Loss of credibility with the board of education," says Brautigam.

Of those who don't leave under pressure about half retire and the other half is "musical chairs," says Brautigam, meaning superintendents will simply leave one superintendent's job for another.

Actually, says Brautigam, the turnover rate has not changed very much over the years even though the role of the superintendent has altered dramatically. "It's much more of a political office than it used to be," says Brautigam, explaining that a superintendent has to have more skills in different areas such as public relations and can't be just a good teacher.

Also, Brautigam explains, the superintendent's function has changed. "He's a manager instead of an educator."

A major reason for this change in function is the changing function of schools themselves, Brautigam says. "The school has become an agency for social reform, an agency of desegregation, the last vestige of community control."

Currie agrees. Collective bargaining and the complexities of school financing have made the skills requisite for a superintendent "identical for running any big corporation."

Not surprisingly, superintendents are somewhat more educated than they used to be, says Brautigam, explaining that a doctorate is much more common. The amount of experience a superintendent has before he assumes the position has not changed a great deal.

Legislators push for reform plan

"Even though a special panel working to reform the state's archaic workers injury compensation system has temporarily recessed without reaching final agreement, two House Republicans say they are 'mildly optimistic' a reform plan can be worked out this year."

State Representatives Jack Kirksey, R-Livonia, and Paul Hillegonds, R-Holland, who represent house Republicans on the special task force working to reform the 1912 law, said that they will use the time "as a working recess."

The pair noted that beleaguered Chrysler Corporation, which earlier this month asked for $1 billion in federal aid, would be hit with an $8 million payment for increased worker benefits if a proposal pending at the time of the recess is adopted.

"Republicans are not philosophically opposed to any employee benefit," they elaborated. "In this case, we all ought to be concerned about doing anything which will further threaten the thousands of Michigan jobs Chrysler provides," Kirksey and Hillegonds said in a joint statement.

The pair were referring to a complex proposal presented by task force chairman, Senator David A. Plawecki, D-Dearborn, to make benefits keep pace with inflation.

The Plawecki offering calls for employers to pay into a special state fund 15 to 24 percent of the costs each incurs for workers compensation awards. The result seven years later would be a $1 billion next which would award a maximum of six percent in benefits each year.

Following the recommendations of the house Republicans' own workers' compensation task force, which took testimony in Michigan cities, Republicans support a counter proposal.

The Republican plan would set up retroactive payments up to five percent a year. Financing for this plan, however, would come out of the state general fund.

At the recess, the issue of which plan would be adopted had not been resolved.

"Clearly, business representatives are opposed to the concept of cost of living increases at this point," Hillegonds and Kirksey said. "Yet, there must be some realization that those permanently out of work due to a work-inflicted injury should receive some inflation protection," they stated.

Under current law, no cost-of-living increases are permitted. Thus, if an injured worker was awarded $10 weekly in 1970, the amount received in 1979 stays the same.

Readers Speak

May God bless you

To the Editor:

This is an open letter to a hit and run driver. If you were driving west on Eight Mile, Thursday, August 2, 1979, at 9:36 p.m. and drove a silver Cadillac (1977), please read this letter in its entirety.

You must be suffering from a great deal of guilt, fear and shame right about now knowing you hit a bronze Gremelin at a judged speed (by impact and damage done) of approximately 80 or so miles per hour, knocking the car some 200 yards out of control. I am sure you panicked and ran before my car came to a stop.

I had no seat belt and my car being old has doors that don't shut tight. My seat was bent backwards from the impact. My half-full gas tank was hit and ended up in the vicinity of my shock absorbers.

My car died. I didn't. I walked away from the car with only minor bruises and soreness. As my car was knocked some 200 yards, I immediately called upon my Heavenly Father to save me. I am alive and writing this letter because his words promise that "He shall give his angels charge over me to keep me in all ways."

This is the second time in 30 days and the sixth time in 11 years I have walked away from death after a car wreck.

You must be a miserable man or woman to need to drown your troubles in a bottle. You had to be drinking to be able to survive the damage done to your car and be able to drive away from the accident.

Immediately upon coming home, my husband and I thanked the Lord for preserving my life and then we prayed that through this encounter with my car, you might find the love of God to be real in your life.

Despite your apparent wealth, life is empty for you. I would like to share the love of Jesus with you. I completely forgive you and will not press charges even if you are discovered.

Our Lord says, "Whosoever's sins ye remit, are remitted!" As far as I am concerned, you are relieved of all responsibility involving me.

Though I lost my transportation for work. I am praying that the car, valued at about $1,000, will be replaced. If you magnanimously want to reimburse me for the damage done, please deposit the money in our checking account at the State Savings Bank of South Lyon, account number 03-3642-0. We are really in need.

Meanwhile, please call the 700 Club, Detroit for counseling. You need to forgive yourself for what you could have done. I have a seven-year-old son that I almost took with me to where I was going. With that kind of impact, he would have possibly been killed. You really need help.

May God bless you. "This poor man cried and the Lord heard him and saved him out of all his troubles. The angels of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear Him and delivereth them." Psalm 34, 26, and 37.

Hines park and its arbitrary and punitive water and sewer charges are examples of its unwillingness to work cooperatively with the out-county area, he says.

Also, Brown says the county's population is simply too large for a single county governmental structure. "Many areas of the state can't understand why we have so many problems because they just don't realize how large we are."

One of the most populated counties in the United States, Brown emphasizes that Wayne's population is one-third the size of the population of the entire state — upper and lower combined.

If indeed Brown's bill becomes law and if indeed the people of the county vote to divide themselves into two counties, it will create the ironic situation of having Michigan's oldest county become its newest county.

First county in Michigan, Wayne was organized in 1815. It was named after General Anthony Wayne. Oakland County, on the other hand, was organized in 1820. It drew its name from the prevalence of oak trees in the area.

School this year will see changes

for attending school board meetings.

This year will see small, but not unimportant changes in the schools.

Enrollment at Northville High School is expected to stay about at the same level as last year, about 1,054, although there will be 6.3 fewer teachers. First year language programs in French and German will be cut from the high school, but a new health-education program, mandated by a new Michigan law, will begin this fall in Northville schools to teach reproductive health, including family planning.

Varsity soccer, for both girls and boys, will be introduced this fall at the high school. NHS also has a new football coach, Dennis Colligan.

Bus schedules for all k-12 students will be published in the Northville Record next week.

A new parking program at the high school will require students to pay $15 per semester to park their cars. Co-op students will have first priority, then seniors with jobs, class and club officers who are juniors or seniors, seniors, juniors with jobs, and juniors and seniors in extra-curricular activities. The fees will be used to pay a parking lot attendant.

School starting times will be similar to last year. High school will start at 7:35 a.m. and run to 2:49 p.m. Cooke Junior High will start at 8 a.m. and finish at 2:35 p.m. Mead's Mill Junior High will run from 7:50 a.m. to 2:25 p.m.

Amerman and Winchester Elementary will run from 9:05 a.m. to 3:35 p.m. Silver Springs and Moraine Elementary will start at 9:10 a.m. and end at 3:40 p.m.

Vacations, conference dates and the rest of the school-year calendar have not yet been established by teacher and board negotiators.

Junior High and High school students will receive student handbooks on the first day of school which outline time schedules, policies for absence, dressing, graduation requirements, and the student code of conduct.

A PTA/PTSA information booklet will be sent to every student household. It outlines all PTA information and details the new student code of conduct hearing procedures.

In the back of each student handbook, parents will be asked to sign a note if they wish to allow their child to leave school for lunch.

They will also be asked to sign a sheet which states that they have seen the new code of conduct and have received an information booklet for 1979-80.

For the first time this year, all students will be able to buy insurance, $3 for school-time or $14 for 24-hour coverage. If students purchase this insurance, it covers accident costs up to $10,000. They can also purchase dental coverage if they wish, the board voted August 13.

Students playing tackle football are not covered under the $3 insurance plan, and insurance for them will be available through the athletic departments of the schools.

School board denies Williams' grievance

for a forward movement at the high school?"

After consulting colleagues and thinking deeply, Nichols said he reached his decision.

"I concluded that in the district's best interest a change was in order. I recognized that the matter would be controversial. It had to do with my perception of his ability to withstand further frustration and still provide positive leadership."

His conclusion was based on a series of meetings and developments, he told the board and audience. He said during meetings with Williams and band booster leaders Anne Youngquist and Bonnie Wagner, he found that while they talked about proposals and improvements for the band program, "I found a feeling of a great degree of frustration on the part of the instructor. I found a feeling from him that this had been done many times before."

Later in that meeting, Nichols said Williams said he would not become marching band instructor again this year unless conditions improved.

At another meeting Nichols said that when suggestions were made about the band's improvement "The suggestions being made were not met with a positive response (by Williams). I said at the time that going over the past would not have any beneficial results for tomorrow," Nichols said.

After Williams decided he would not take the marching band "I had no choice but to accept his decision," Nichols said. But I had then to consider next year's staff decisions."

School board members spoke in support of Nichols' decision but Trustee Chris Johnson said he thought it was unfortunate that Nichols had not told Williams the rationale for his decision before, and that Williams had chosen to follow a grievance procedure when what he really wanted to know was the rationale for the transfer.

"It is unfortunate the attention was diverted from the real issue," Johnson said.

Many members of the audience spoke in defense of Williams.

John Rennels, Michigan Education

Association representative, said that the question the board should answer was not whether the superintendent has the right to make a decision, but whether the decision itself was right.

"Can Bob provide positive leadership? After 25 years and all the support from parents and students, it seems inconceivable that the answer would be no. Frustration? We all have frustration. And that doesn't mean he's not up to the challenge. If he were too frustrated to do the job, Bob would say so," Rennels said.

"Positive leadership? Ultimately, it is the superintendent's opinion. Each of you board members must ask yourself that same question now," he said.

"Maybe you are in a position now where it is difficult to change your mind," LeBoeuf told the board. "You just have to reverse the decision."

Kurt Kinde, drama teacher at the high school, said that the reason Williams dropped marching band was because he wants to force change in the program, not because he was giving up.

"When the red tape gets so high, then you pull a straw — the only tool we ever seem to have is finally saying, I'm not going to do it. He's not acting out of frustration. Frustration is when you just say, fine, I'll do anything. When you care you don't say fine. You care. You fight, and argue and get mad," Kinde said.

Anne Youngquist told the board she was sorry if she ever said anything to cause the superintendent to move Williams. "I believe Mr. Nichols wants to do the best job he can. But to take a man who has devoted 25 years of his life — when you're wrong, you're wrong."

Board members, however, supported Nichols. "A change is in order," Treasurer Charles Peltz said. "Let's let it operate before making a decision or judgment."

"It was a hard administrative decision to make," Sliger said. "It could not be done any other way. We now must wait and see and hope that this is a good change."

"We have to deal with our own best judgment," President Karen Wilkinson said, "Maybe we will be proven wrong. I don't know. You might not agree. But we're trying to do the best we can."

Northville's Glenna Davis tells why she's heading Michigan Homemakers for ERA

'ERA opposition forces don't speak for me'

By JEAN DAY

Why would a busy mother of three young children who had been directing her energies toward a degree from Eastern Michigan University take time out to head the new Michigan Homemakers for ERA?

Glenna Davis of Northville who has just accepted the state presidency of the Michigan HERA (Homemakers for Equal Rights Amendment) explains:

"I wanted a vehicle for myself in which I could do for ERA. The opposition forces always claim to speak for homemakers, but they're not speaking for me and my friends."

"I had never heard of the organization for homemakers until two years ago when I read about it in the New York Times. It seemed pertinent to me and I felt comfortable with what it is trying to do."

Mrs. Davis and her husband John, an engineer with Detroit Edison, and their three children Christie, 11, Rachel, 7, and Adam, 4, moved to 19405 Fry last October from Taylor, Michigan.

She became involved after meeting Laura Callow of Livonia, co-chairman of ERAmerica, at a National Organization for Women (NOW) meeting. Mrs. Callow was speaking on ERA and Mrs. Davis had heard Anne Pollis, national president of Homemakers for ERA Association speak impressively on the Phil Donahue television show.

"It's easy to scare people who feel vulnerable," observes Mrs. Davis, who is soft spoken but articulate.

"I think it's deplorable to scare women from something that would improve their status. I love the fact that none of the scary things (anti-ERA forces predicted) have happened."

"In many states it's now written into law that a woman's contribution is part of the marriage."

Mrs. Davis mentions that the HERA abbreviation for Homemakers Equal Rights Association seems appropriate as HERA was known in history as an ancient goddess of home and hearth. The organization formerly was called Housewives for ERA but adopted the new title at the national convention

June 2 in Wichita, Kansas, which Mrs. Davis attended with Mrs. Callow.

It was there that Mrs. Davis first met National President Pollis and committed herself to heading the Michigan organization.

"We have 2,000 members nationally," she points out, "including Judy Carter."

Mrs. Davis talked to women from other states at the convention and knows that one of the problems of homemakers unifying is difficulty in getting together.

"A phone chain is being considered."

Old, new mingle in Heaton home

By JEAN DAY

The black metal cockatoo perched on the porch newel post at the home of Terence and Lynda Heaton at 16115 Portis in Northville Commons gives a first hint that this is a home with innovative decorating.

"Oliver," says Lynda Heaton referring to the parrot-like bird statue, "is an antique picked up in Bermuda."

Northville Home Tour visitors September 29 will view the bird as they approach on the hand-laid brick path. A little statue stands in the doorstep garden and an old-fashioned swing hangs from hooks in the porch roof of the colonial-style home.

The bird motif is echoed in the metallic wallpaper with bird print in the hallway, giving the first hint that the home is decorated with a mix of contemporary and antique.

An antique hall tree with mirror and seat dominates the entrance, keeping company with a grandfather clock built by Mrs. Heaton's father Floyd Rees, who is coming from Gallipolis, Ohio; to build a divider between living and dining areas before the tour.

Mrs. Heaton already has created an entry divider with glass shelves to close off the living room area. She's blended wicker furniture with a very contemporary sofa upholstered in a Tahitian cotton in the living room.

An oak dining table and chairs as well as a Tiffany-type hanging lamp in the dining area came from Terence Heaton's great-grandparents' home in West Virginia.

Mrs. Heaton has just assembled an eclectic collection of antique and new for a dining room picture wall. A Top golfers find rain's crystal

By JEAN DAY

The pieces of Waterford crystal awarded to top women golfers at the annual invitational at Meadowbrook Country Club last Friday forever should remind their winning owners that they earned them playing through raindrops.

Joy Holloway of Northville was chairman for the two-day event that included luncheon both days and concluded with a Friday night dinner dance. One of her committee members was Sharon Lineman of Northville who attended to clubhouse details during the outing for members and their guests playing 18 holes.

"They're soaked," she reported Friday, as she told how the women gamely returned to the golf course to complete play before a delayed luncheon. The Waterford decanters for first place winners and martini jugs for second must have provided incentive. Cream and sugars and marmalade jars went to third and fourth placers.

About 150 women participated.

Happy to be coming home

Expected home September 6 from an 18-month stay in England are Joseph and Marie Macura of West Main Street. "They enjoyed their experience, but she is so happy to be coming back to Northville," says Carol Beier. Mrs. Beier and her husband Ronald with their sons visited the Macuras this summer. The Macuras were on an overseas assignment with Ford Motor Company.

The visit was noteworthy because it gave the Macuras a chance to see their godchild, Robert Beier, who was only five months old. "He must have been one of the youngest American visitors in the Eiffel Tower," his mother mentions. With their older son Ronald, 13, they spent two weeks in England visiting the Macuras who lived in Hornchurch about 30 miles from London, and then toured the continent for two weeks.

In Saturday candlelight rites

Susan Forrer continues tradition

When Susan Ellen Forrer became the bride of Randal E. Busscher in a 6 p.m. ceremony at First Presbyterian Church Saturday, she continued a tradition begun by her mother and followed by her sister.

Her all-white bouquet of daisies, stephanotis and baby's-breath contained ivy, as had her mother's when she was married to Dr. Gordon Forrer.

Mrs. Forrer's mother, Mrs. Charles Hanke of Milwaukee, rooted some of the English ivy in the original bouquet and brought it with her when she and her husband came for the wedding.

The bride's sister, Jane, now Mrs. Scott Wilson of St. Louis, Missouri, followed the sentimental tradition when she was married in July, 1976. She was her sister's matron of honor Saturday.

The Reverend Lloyd G. Brasure officiated as Dr. Forrer gave his daughter in marriage.

The church was decorated with ivy and daisies.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Becker provided music with the bride's brother John singing "The Wedding Song."

The bride's gown of organza was adorned with Venice lace applique. The bodice featured tiny cap sleeves, a Queen Anne neckline and high rise waist. The scallop-hemline of the skirt extended into a sweep. Lace edged her fingertip illusion veil.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Busscher of Hamilton, Michigan.

His sister Mary was a bridesmaid with Mrs. Dan Carlson, the former Gretchen Johnson of Otsego; Mrs. Lester Richardson, a sorority sister of the bride of Centerville, Ohio; and Mrs. Douglas Wehrmeyer of Holland, Michigan.

The bridal attendants all wore long dresses of green and white print voile with ruffle-edged scarves forming little jackets. They carried bouquets of daisies, ivy and baby's-breath tied with green and white satin ribbons.

Gary Busscher of Muskegon was best man for his brother.

Ushers were Robert Busscher of Holland, Michael Busscher of Hamilton, Robert Moss of Mears, Michigan, and the bride's brother John. A reception for 200 guests followed at the Mayflower Meeting House in Plymouth.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Larry Angove from Iowa, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bogart from Charlevoix, the bride's maternal grandparents from Milwaukee, children of the William Davis family, Bill and Patty from Massachusetts, Gary and Trish from Ohio, Ann and Bob McLaren from Marquette, and the Busscher family and friends from the Holland area.

After a wedding trip to Ontario, the newlyweds will live in Holland where they have purchased a home.

The new Mrs. Busscher is a graduate of Northville High School and Western Michigan University.

Her husband is a graduate of Central College in Pella, Iowa.

Ella Schuchard's birthday marked by city proclamation

Special congratulations, including a proclamation from the City of Northville and letters from Governor William Milliken and President Jimmy Carter, helped make the 90th birthday of Mrs. Ella Schuchard a special celebration.

The milestone was celebrated at a party attended by 136 relatives and friends from Lansing and Flint, Arizona and Florida as well as from area communities. The event was an open house at Allen Terrace from 2-5 p.m. July 29.

The party was given by Mrs. Schuchard's daughters, Anna Helmsmeier and Clara Janetzke, assisted by their husbands and some of the grandchildren.

Four of Mrs. Schuchard's seven grandchildren and six of her 11 great-grandchildren attended, as did nieces and nephews.

Pastor Charles Boerger of St. Paul's Lutheran Church and Mrs. Boerger were guests. Mrs. Schuchard has been a member of St. Paul's church and the women's guild for more than 50 years. She also is a member of the Northville Senior Citizens Club.

She was born in Germany July 28, 1889, and came to Detroit as an infant with her parents. She was married to George Schuchard for 50 years. They first lived near Southfield and later moved to a farm near New Hudson in 1914.

She moved to Northville in 1962, living on Grace Street until Allen Terrace apartments for senior citizens were completed.

At the celebration Mayor and Mrs. Paul Vernon presented a framed proclamation from the city and delivered a congratulatory letter from State Representative Jack Kirksey.

Later that evening 36 relatives gathered at the Janetzke home on North Rogers for a buffet supper.

Doll collector's in show

Northville doll collector Suzanne Kaley will be among the participants in the Livonia Mall doll, toy and miniature show to be held there Saturday and Sunday during regular mall hours.

While Mrs. Kaley focuses on older bisque and china dolls, many newer collectibles, such as composition and vinyl dolls, will be shown.

Even reproductions of such popular baby dolls as the Bye-lo babies will be on view.

Admission and parking are free.

Mrs. Kaley calls such show-sales an excellent way to learn more about dolls of the past. All dolls today are collectible, she says.

Jennifer Hughes arrives

From Pasco, Washington, comes announcement of the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Alan Hughes on August 6. Mrs. Hughes is the former Patricia Higgins of Northville.

Jennifer Suzanne is the name of the couple's first child. She weighed eight pounds, four ounces at birth.

Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. William Higgins of Northville. Paternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Alan Hughes who lived in Yakima, Washington.

Antiques blend with new in tour home miniature carpenter's tool chest holds her own blue willow doll dishes she played with as a child.

Then there's a 1971 Edward J. Dowling boat picture, a limited edition print, and another limited edition, a Ray Harm bird print. An early photograph of "an instant ancestor" and an old mantelpiece with mermaid-like carving catch the eye.

Over the kitchen sink is hung a stained-glass depicting golden cornucopias. Plants and a little child's desk are in the adjacent eating area.

Anyone with window walls that need shielding from the sun will appreciate the Heaton's originality in the family room. Shutters with cane insertions cover the windows and fold back to regulate the light.

At one side is a drum-top desk. The base was refinished by Mrs. Heaton's father and the top was fabricated by him. He also was the craftsman who converted a drop-leaf kitchen table to a coffee table for the room. A choice antique in the room is a Currier and Ives' children print.

The window wall leads to a sun deck and patio formed of a sweeping circle of bricks. A wooden sunscreen is practical and provides privacy.

Lynda Heaton is a former curator at Detroit Historical Museum. After receiving her bachelor's degree from Marietta College in Ohio, she went on for her MA in early American History at William and Mary College in Virginia.

Her decorating, however, is not traditionalist. She has combined past and present to create an appealing home reflecting the family's interests.

At the top of the stairway to the bedroom area is displayed a collection of old-fashioned checkerboards.

In the former nursery are Mrs. Heaton's collection of doll furniture and children's toys. An antique iron bassinet holds dolls while a choice china-head doll sits nearby.

The Heaton sons, R.C., 8, and Christopher, 5, share a bedroom. The Heaton's room has a bed that appears to be brass, but Mrs. Heaton confides that it is new of gold leaf on wood.

The guest bedroom is the eye-catcher with bed, dresser and wash stand dating to 1889. Rather than the usual walnut, it is a glowing cherry.

"It's my pride and joy," admits Lynda Heaton of the coverlet, an extremely fine example of an Amish log cabin quilt of barn-raising variation pattern. Small design floral wallpaper and old knobs and doorplates add to the effect.

Mrs. Heaton is the first to point out that the decorating combines old and new. New are the dressers in the master bedroom with drawers "that don't stick and don't smell."

Visitors on the 13th annual Northville Home Tour co-sponsored by the Women's Association of First Presbyterian Church and Northville Historical Society will find many ideas in this home that the Heaton's have made their own since 1971.

The tour also will include another home of today's vintage as well as three older ones.

The restored Marquis Theatre and Mill Race Historical Village will be open during the tour from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The $3.50 charge will aid in the village restoration and contribute to the work of the church.

Jane, Mary Gaitskill at writers' conference

Jane Ann and Mary Michigan and daughters Lawrence Gaitskill, of Mr. and Mrs. students at University of Lawrence Gaitskill of 690

Thayer, were among participants in the 13th invitational Cranbrook Writers' Conference.

It was held August 2-5 at Kingswood School, Cranbrook, in Bloomfield Hills.

Conference director Janice Lauer, professor of English at Marygrove College in Detroit, and her staff picked conferees for the scholarships by manuscript competition in categories of prose, poetry, drama and feature writing.

The conference is held to inspire promising Michigan writers enrolled in college. It stresses excellence.

Both Mary and Jane Gaitskill submitted writings that were accepted.

Jane Gaitskill is majoring in English and will be graduating from U-M at the end of the current semester. Her sister is a senior there, majoring in journalism.

Four nationally prominent writers, including three born and raised in Michigan, served as faculty for the conference.

They were Philip Levine, poet, now of Fresno, California;

Edmund G. Love, author — fiction, history, screen and television plays, Grand Blanc;

Myra MacPherson, writer for the Washington Post and author of "The Power Lovers";

Sheila Roberts, novelist, of Michigan State University.

Forty-five men and women from 25 Michigan colleges and universities were selected to participate in the four-day workshop geared for the advancement and inspiration of students.

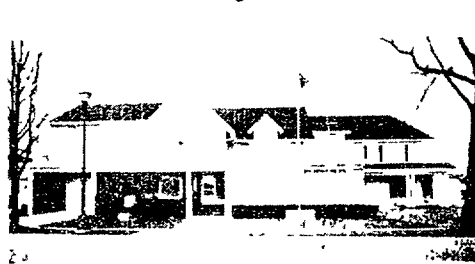

78, a founder of the writers' conference in 1966, who served as director for nine years, was honored with the Cranbrook Writers' Guild literary medal of honor at ceremonies concluding the workshop-conference.

He was head of English at Cranbrook School from 1930 until retirement in 1966.

Others who personally accepted the bronze medal included Bruce Catton, historian; Harriette S. Arnow, novelist; John O'Brien, journalist.

Theodore Roethke, poet from Saginaw, was honored posthumously.

Colorful scenes work of local stockbroker

Cuyler W. McCutchan of 19763 Hayes Court is a stockbroker with the Southfield office of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, Incorporated.

He's also an expert water colorist, depicting woodland scenes in all seasons. Twelve such views are on display this month and next at the Northville-Community Federal Credit Union at 101 North Center.

Particularly colorful is a fall lake scene which, the artist notes, is a lake on Fourteen Mile near Meadowbrook.

For this and some other scenes, he worked from photographs. Shade contrast is more important than color in the photographs, he explains, as he enjoys creating color variations.

Also on view is a Montana rural scene, a Vermont barn as well as a weathered gray barn painted from a barn on Meadowbrook.

The artist especially enjoys the autumn colors and several paintings show trees changing color.

The dozen paintings covering walls of the credit union all are water colors, but McCutchan says he occasionally works in acrylic.

He is a past president of Three Cities Art Club and a member of the Visual Arts Association of Livonia.

His wife Fifi also is an artist, presently working in oils. They have been Northville residents for eight years.

McCutchan recalls taking lessons "years ago" but says he is largely self-taught. He also frames his own work.

He teaches water color painting in the Canton High School adult evening classes sponsored by the Plymouth Community Schools.

He is the first local artist to have a repeat show by request at the credit union. The paintings are for sale.

Cuyler McCutchan arranges exhibit at Community Credit Union that will be on view through September

ERA opponents don't speak for Mrs. Davis

she says, expecting that much of her work will be done on the telephone.

Cathy Olivero of Westland has agreed to be treasurer of the state organization and Cathy Wade of Livonia also is in the nucleus group.

"ERA is our main focus, but other areas (of women's needs) will be of interest," Mrs. Davis envisions, adding that she feels the Homemakers for ERA can be important to women who are not full-time homemakers, including teachers who also are making homes.

She anticipates the Michigan organization will serve as a way of providing information to women.

"It's hard to find out when ERA is up for voting in different states," she illustrates, saying that when women are aware of voting they can write legislators in the states affected.

"Mail does matter," she stresses.

She has been asked why have a Michigan Homemakers for ERA when this is a ratified state. Her response is that in a mobile society it is possible to be transferred to a state like Louisiana.

"I tell women, 'If it doesn't affect you, it may affect your daughter.'"

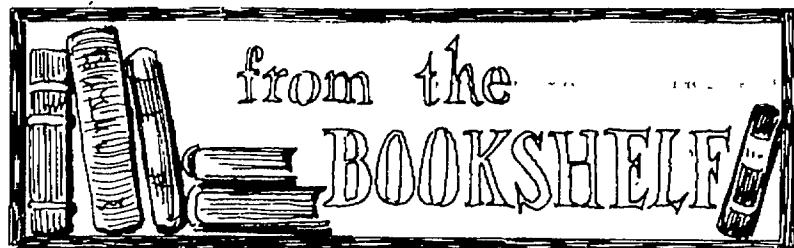

"In some southern states a woman can't sue if deprived of her husband's services, but a man can if he is of his wife's."

Mrs. Davis who met her husband while he was a student at University of Michigan had returned to school as an English major in education. She now is a senior at EMU with a 4.0 record.

"In our history," she points out, "if we had ancestors who worked for women's suffrage, we are proud of them. At this point in our history today, I want my children and grandchildren to say I did all I could. It is a critical point in history for women, and men, too."

"For this year, this is the most important thing I can do at home."

For starters, other homemakers who feel as Mrs. Davis does can contact her at 348-0216 and send in their dues of $8 (covering national and state fees) to President Anne Follis, RR 3, Urbana, Illinois, 61801.

Now open for business in the former community building on West Main west of city hall, the Northville Public Library has a variety of new adult fiction ready to be checked out.

The library moved the beginning of August to the present temporary quarters until the new library under construction behind city hall is completed. This is expected to be the end of the year.

"The Lizard's Tail" by Marc Brandel; a famous cartoonist loses his hand in an auto accident, but the severed hand takes on a life of its own.

Five neighborhood children in the Grace Court area found "playing cards" with 30 decks the answer for "What do you do when you have nothing to do on a summer day" last week Tuesday as they constructed a card tunnel in the living room of the Thomas Beyersdorfs' home. Nutrition program endangered

Cuts may force 'brown bag' boost

Wayne Daniels is all for the fight against inflation.

But not at the expense of the school nutrition program.

Daniels is legislative chairman of the Michigan School Food Service Association as well as Food Services Director for the Walled Lake School District.

And he presently is deeply concerned about a proposal to cut over $528 million of a federal child nutrition programs.

"As an association we support responsible efforts to increase the efficient use of program funds and reduce costs where possible," commented Daniels recently from his office in Walled Lake Western High School.

"But we vigorously oppose action which will damage the fundamental purpose of the child nutrition program which is to provide high quality, nutritious meals to the nation's school children as an important element of the educational process."

Daniels is particularly concerned about a recommendation from the U.S. House Budget Committee for an 11-cent per lunch reduction in reimbursements for lunches served to the paying child. If enacted, the 11-cent reduction would result in a cut of some $304 million from present federal funding levels.

"These recommended reductions would bring about an increase in the cost of school meals," stated Daniels. "The money has to come from somewhere, and if it doesn't come from the federal government it will have to be absorbed locally."

In all probability, what that means is the cost of school lunches will increase by the amount the reimbursement decreases.

For example, in Walled Lake where some 50,000 "paying child" lunches are served each month there would be a loss of approximately $55,000 per year in federal reimbursements.

"With school lunch increases on top of every other inflationary increase parents are faced with, we can foresee a return to the sack lunch program," observed Daniels.

"Parents with two or more children in the school lunch program simply won't be able to justify another reshuffling of their budgets to accommodate the increased price of a school lunch."

Daniels said he is particularly concerned about the proposal because it appears aimed at middle income families — families whose incomes are just above the maximum reduced price guidelines.

"The middle income family pays taxes for the school lunch program and essentially will be paying them again in the form of making up the difference for what the government chooses not to subsidize," he explained.

It's the right of every child to have a well-balanced meal while at school," he continued. "If the government makes it cost-prohibitive, we will see a great percentage of school children dropping out of the program."

Another aspect of the proposed cut which does not rest well with the Walled Lake Food Services Director is the fact that it comes from an administration which previously has pledged support for school nutrition programs.

"Jimmy Carter has turned away completely from the pledges he made in support of the Child Nutrition Program during the 1976 campaign," stated Daniels. "Now we have his assistant secretary for food and consumer services asking school nutrition people to be the leaders in the fight against inflation."

"It bothers me very much when we're asked to take a $528 million cut for feeding children when the Congress turns right around and pours another $53 million into the Hart Senate Office Building."

"The school nutrition people aren't asking for more money," he continued. "We're only asking to keep what we've already got."

In addition to the cuts in the "paying child" lunch reimbursements, the administration has proposed reductions in other areas of the child nutrition program. These recommendations include:

—Eligibility requirements for free and reduced price meals could be tightened, resulting in an estimate that 1.4 million children would be dropped from the free lunch program and close to 400,000 would be moved out of reduced price eligibility.

—Nutrition education and training funds would be cut by $7 million, nearly 25 percent of current levels.

—The Special Milk Program, offered in schools that have neither a lunch or breakfast program, would be cut from $142 million to $32 million.

—Child Care Food Program revenues face a $9 million cut, and $47 million is proposed to be cut in the summer feeding program.

—The School Breakfast Program would feel the tightening of requirements for recipients of free or reduced price morning meals by $12 million.

—USDA estimates that decreases in participation in child feeding programs means fewer meals served with the result that there would be a lower requirement of commodity support, namely $27.8 million.

Daniels and the American School Food Services Association are attempting to combat the proposed cutbacks. Daniels, for example, has persuaded both the Walled Lake school board and the Commerce Township board to adopt resolutions which oppose the reduction in federal school lunch reimbursements for the paying child.

Similar efforts are going on throughout the state and the country.

"We're encouraging people to write their representatives in Washington to let them know just how they feel about these proposals," he said.

"Our goal is to have the legislators run into a wall of opposition when they return to session in the fall.

"People have said that the day will come when the school lunch program will price itself right out of business," he continued. "If these proposed cuts are enacted, that day will be pushed forward a little bit quicker."

St. Paul's Lutheran set to open September 5

Students of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran school will begin classes Tuesday, September 5 for a full day of classes.

Grades one through eight will attend a full day; preschool and kindergarten students will attend half-days.

Principal Ken Lehl said St. Paul's is expecting 225 students this year, the same enrollment as for 1978-79.

There is a waiting list for enrollment for all grades except kindergarten.

Parents wishing to enter a child's name on the waiting list should contact the school office, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and make an appointment, Lehl said.

The science program at St. Paul's is being spruced up this year, with a new sixth grade science curriculum and new science tables, Lehl said.

As part of its elementary school program, St. Paul's Lutheran Church operates a preschool for children 3-5 years old. About 27 are expected in the program this fall.

Two sessions are held daily from 9-11:30 a.m. and from 12:30-3 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday sessions are geared to older children while the younger preschoolers attend Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Mrs. Christine Lehl, wife of the school principal, is the preschool teacher.

Fees are $3 for members per session and $4 for non-members. The church may be contacted at 349-3140 for information.

OLV sees 310 students

Our Lady of Victory school students start classes Wednesday, September 5. All first through eighth graders will attend a half-day of classes at the school, located at 133 Orchard.

Second through eighth graders will attend a full day of classes beginning Thursday, September 6.

First grade students will continue on half-days September 6 and 7 and start full days beginning September 10.

Our Lady of Victory expects about 310 students to enroll this year, approximately the same number as last year. The school has a waiting list for children, administrators said.

Principal of the school is Sheralene Thompson. Sister Betty is assistant principal.

For parents interested in placing a child's name on the school's waiting list, the school office will be open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. weekdays beginning August 27.

'Telethon' gets boost

September 2 and 3 has been officially proclaimed "Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon Weekend" in Northville Township.

Members of the board of trustees passed a proclamation August 9 in accordance with a request from the mayor of Las Vegas, Nevada urging citizens to help support the fight against muscular dystrophy.

For the seventh consecutive year, Las Vegas will be the host for the Jerry Lewis Telethon for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Montessori plans its fall curriculum

Northville Montessori Center, affiliated with the American and Michigan Montessori societies, will have an elementary primary class of grades 1-3 as well as preschool this fall.

Approximately 60 children are expected for the program that follows the method developed by Dr. Maria Montessori. Called "prepared environment", it encourages children to develop at their own speed in a non-competitive atmosphere during their first school years.

Directress Lynn Gall stresses that, although the school is located within a Northville Public School, it is state licensed as a private school offering an alternative in preschool and elementary educational programs.

Tuition is $750 for the academic year on a half-day program; $1,500 for a full day and $750 for limited day care.

The school was established here in 1976 with a curriculum that consists of activities in practical living (self-help), sensorial experiences, language, math, science, geography and social studies.

Now included are French, music, motor perception development and cooking.

More information is available by calling the center at 348-2940.

Day-care center boom still booming

By DAVID RAY

Ten years ago, when women's lib was among the vanguard of social activism causes, children's day-care centers spurted up in many communities, often in church buildings or community centers. Women wanted an opportunity to return to the job market during the economic boom of the 1960s as many careers once thought to be the domain of men only opened their doors.

And the boom is still on — for day-care centers.

Women are still opening doors in traditionally male occupations, experts say, but the increasing popularity of pre-school facilities also can be linked to a climbing divorce rate and double-digit inflation, both of which are sending more young mothers back into the job market. The "me generation" of the 1970s is a factor, too, some experts say, as many young mothers opt for a limited day-care program for their children; sometimes to give the child a chance to learn and play with other kids of his or her age and sometimes to give mom a chance to take a class at college or play golf or tennis.

The day-care center business, in fact, appears to be destined to become "big business".

In the last six years, the number of day-care centers licensed by the Michigan Department of Social Services (DSS) has almost doubled, from 1,152 in February 1973 to 2,218 this year. The total capacity for enrollment in the schools has climbed from 48,428 to 73,971, according to David Lowe of the DSS's Child Care Center Licensing Division.

Kinder-Care Learning Center, Incorporated, of Alabama — the acknowledged McDonald's of the day-care field — has more than 350 schools across the country, including five in the Detroit metropolitan area with plans for 25 centers in the Metro region. The firm also plans to launch a line of products ranging from clothing to educational toys to life insurance.

The day-care "industry" is estimated at a value of $25- to $30-billion.

Uncle Sam offers a tax break on child care expenses.

And the programs offered by day-care centers have graduated from the stage of glorified baby-sitting service to true educational environments, providing what Lowe describes as a wide variety of methods. Some centers emphasize child development, others provide cognitive programs; a few schools deal in behavior modification, others lean toward music, art or outdoor activities.

While some experts fear that day-care may become too big of a business dominated by the nation-wide chains, Lowe sees Kinder-Care and its counterparts as "part of the scene."

"I don't see a trend away from church and community centers," he said, "because there's a wide variety of programs and that's what parents want. They want a more diverse orientation of philosophy and, for that reason, I don't see a big chain replacing smaller, private centers."

One small private center is the Children's Hour Day Care Center in Walled Lake. Opened eight years ago, Children's Hour has been under the direction of Susan Frey and Judy Pariseau for the last two years. The center is licensed to serve children aged 2½ to 6 years old and offers kindergarten and nursery school programs as well as day care, according to Mrs. Frey.

The center is open from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. five days a week. Many of the students are there all day because their parents are working, according to Mrs. Frey. In the day care setting, she added, the child is with other children of his or her own age and the parents don't have to worry about a babysitter who is late or can't keep an appointment.

Children in the nursery program receive two mornings of more concentrated educational experience with other kids, Mrs. Frey said, and usually is chosen by the parents in order to better prepare the child for kindergarten.

Children's Hour works closely with the Walled Lake Community Schools to coordinate its kindergarten program for students who will enter the public school system for first grade, she added. Mrs. Frey and Mrs. Pariseau both are certified teachers who taught in public schools before joining Children's Hour in 1977.

The Children's Hour staff also includes four teachers, one of whom has a degree in speech pathology; four aides; and a number of co-op students from the two Walled Lake high schools. The co-op students are seniors who have completed a child development course, the co-director added.

In addition, another certified teacher has worked at the center this summer to tutor school-age children — "our giants" — who are enrolled in the summer program, she said. Children's Hour also has a cook on its staff to prepare hot lunches and nutritional snacks for the youngsters, according to Mrs. Frey. State regulations only require the centers to provide a place for students to eat their lunches.

All-day students also have a two-hour nap time each afternoon. While the younger children take advantage of that time to sleep, the older children listen to music or hear their teacher read them a story while they rest.

Field trips, outdoor time and toys also are part of the day-care center routine.

Most centers offer the day-care service, Mrs. Frey said, and many provide nursery or kindergarten programs. Children's Hour started its nursery program when officials at another local school reported a backlog of applicants, Mrs. Frey said.

One service that is rather rare in local day-care centers is a program for toddlers, children under 2½ years of age.

The Kinder-Care center in Northville was one of the first in Michigan to offer a toddler program, according to director Val Wiggins, but the service was dropped in March when corporate officials determined "it just wasn't profitable."

Northville Kinder-Care offers all other services, though, ranging from day care and nursery to a summer camp and kindergarten, according to Mrs. Wiggins. About a quarter of the school's enrollment is for the part-time learning and social experience, she said.

Many of the children are enrolled in all-day programs by single parents. Mrs. Frey and Mrs. Wiggins also noted a trend toward more fathers as the single parent, but they added that a lot of mothers are returning to work "just to make ends meet."

One Novi woman, a divorcee with three children, enrolled her youngest child in a day-care center for the "social experience of being with other children."

"I wanted her in a school atmosphere, someplace where she could learn to sit and listen and how to handle herself for kindergarten," the mother said.

Her daughter has learned the alphabet and colors in addition to the social experience of being with other children. She has gone on field trips and attended birthday parties as part of the process of social interaction, the mother said, and she also has learned an important lesson in our changing society — that mothers, as well as fathers, work.

Her mother feels this lesson is valuable in terms of learning to think about a career since "it's not uncommon or unusual for mothers to work, too. It's natural."

THE GITFIDDLER Music Store opened for business in new expanded quarters at 302 East Main in Northville August 6. Posing with owner Tom Rice and his wife Rita, center, are Tim Chartier, left, and Ken Griwicki who worked on the renovation of the former gas station with Rice. A western motif with wagon wheel chandelier has been used in the building. THE STATE SAVINGS BANK of South Lyon has ordered a new telephone system through the General Telephone and Automatic Electronic Business Communications system. The equipment is a GTD-120 digital electronic PABX switchboard.

Each telephone will be equipped with push-button dialing. President E. Everett Perkins said the GTD-120 PABX offers the most advanced business communications system technology in time-sharing, path-switching to assure high traffic capability, stored program control and electronic operations, high reliability and easy expansion capability.

THE AUTOMATIC TELLER MACHINE will be the latest addition to The State Savings Bank's staff. President E. Everett Perkins reported that delivery of the equipment is expected in August and that the machine will be located in the bank's lobby for three to four weeks prior to its permanent placement in the drive-up area at the main office.

The machine will offer customers 24-hour access to their checking and savings accounts. Users will be able to insert a plastic card in the machine and deposit or withdraw funds. They will also be deposit to either account or transfer funds from one to another.

Bank customers will be able to make payments on some loans through the machine also. A receipt will be issued by the equipment which will indicate the transaction, the time and the date.

When permanently installed the automatic teller will be enclosed so that customers are not exposed to the weather while making their transactions.

Customers who use the machine will first come into the bank and request a plastic card and a personal identification number. The bank will send monthly statements of transactions to users.

Perkins invites customers to come in and test the machine while it is in the lobby where play money will be interspersed with real money. Those testing the machine will be allowed to keep the real money, Perkins said.

LESLIE THOMPSON

NATIONAL BANK of Detroit has announced the appointment of Leslie B. Thompson of Northville Township as assistant banking officer in its regional banking division.

As branch manager in the bank's main office branch, Thompson supervises the teller operations of the branch and staff floor banking facility. In her 11 years with NBD, she has held a number of managerial positions in the bank's branch system.

Thompson holds a BFA degree in ceramics and weaving from Wayne State University.

M & B CONTRACTING CORP. of Novi was the lowest of six bidders, at $3,079,195, for relocation and reconstruction of six miles of M-66 in Kalkaska and Missaukee counties, the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) announced.

It was one of 51 highway and airport construction and maintenance project on which bids were taken August 8 in Lansing.

The M-66 project extends from Phelps Road in Missaukee County, north to six-tenths of a mile north of the Manistee River in Kalkaska County. It includes construction of a two-span prestressed concrete I-beam bridge over the Manistee River.

WHO WAS THAT MAN with the funny red hair and big, bright smile.

Approximately 150 youngsters who showed up at the Twelve Oaks McDonald's restaurant recently had no trouble identifying the famous clown.

Ronald McDonald himself presented his "Miles of Smiles" show for the benefit of the youngsters and then met each of the children personally.

Ronald also took time to award prizes to the winners of the Ronald McDonald coloring contest. The winners, pictured with Ronald in the photo above, were Jeannette School (center) of Novi and Hugo Vazquez (right) of Farmington Hills.

The Twelve Oaks McDonald's restaurant is owned by Joseph Katz who also owns McDonald's franchises in Walled Lake, Ecorse, Lincoln Park and Oak Park.

HAROLD HYLAND, FIC, of 23320 West LeBost St., Novi, a Lutheran Brotherhood district representative, attended the fraternal benefit society's western regional sales conference August 1-5 at the Tan-Tar-A Lodge, Osage Beach, Missouri.

Freedom

I doubt that I'll ever really understand Why every move's restricted in this great freedom land:

*As I can see there's nothing wrong with a good

What I resent most of all is permission from the state.*

*I'll see your license, says the brass, as you venture cross a line.
And one would never know it was there if it just

*Rules on this and laws on that — it's freedom so

Each state and county has its own — they can

*And now it seems on top of all we must change

So brace yourself and step in time — it's freedom, so they say.*

*Freedom from what, I'd like to know, 'cause I'll never understand
If freedom means only to fly a flag, what good is it to man?*

*I've said it before, and I'll say it once more, I don't know where it began.
But freedom is not spread out over the land, it's something you hold within.*

Anna and Flander: A lifetime shared

Breaking ice to water horses

Flander and Anna Hamlin

By DAVID TURNLEY

Back in November of 1978, I was driving to work on a cold fall day, a Saturday. Not having driven this route very often, I was particularly interested in the scenery along the way. Between Northville and South Lyon, while passing a farmhouse, something caught my attention.

An elderly couple was in the barnyard, cutting logs with a saw blade powered by a tractor. Their age, their working together and the work itself fascinated me. I wanted a closer look.

As I drove up the driveway leading to the barnyard, the old man looked up and said, "Hi, what can we do for you?" Although both of them doubted a picture of them and their work would be of any interest to anyone, I persuaded them to let me take some pictures. I took several, promising to return to let them see the results.

That was my first meeting of Anna and Flander Hamlin. It was the start of a beautiful friendship that I will always cherish. I have been stopping by to see them two or three times a week ever since.

Flander, 80, and Anna, 77, have been married 55 years. They have four children, and they have lived on a farm almost all of their lives.

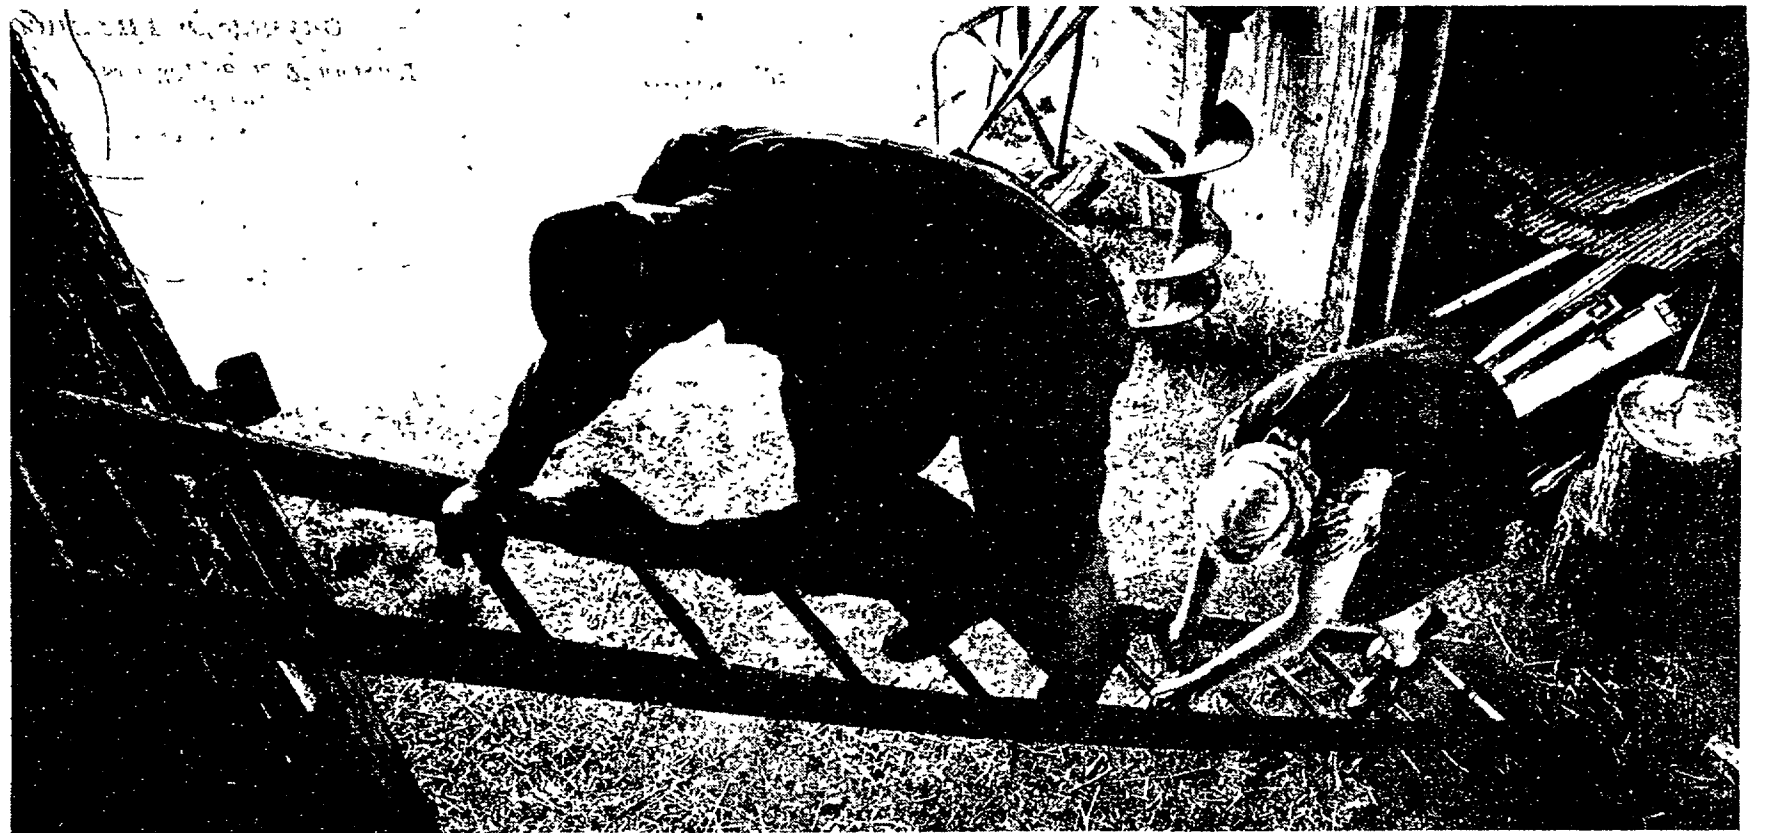

In all of my visits I have been inspired by the love that Anna and Flander share for each other; by their active but tranquil lifestyle together on the farm, and the sincere warmth and hospitality they have shown me

Working together . . .

Working together on the farm is the theme of this first part of a three-part series by Staffer David Turnley. The second part of this series will portray the couple's strong commitment to religion and their love for their family and friends, while the concluding part will deal with their leisure time together and the affection that Anna and Flander Hamlin have for each other.

Hyland earned the right to attend by qualifying for one of the Minneapolis-based society's top sales clubs in 1978. He is a member of the Karl Mueller Agency, headquartered in Rochester.

Featured speakers at the conference included Benjamin N. Woodson, CLU (Houston, Texas), retired chairman and chief executive officer of American General Insurance Co.; T.O. Jack Hall, CLU (Louisville, Kentucky), Provident Mutual Life of Philadelphia and several Lutheran Brotherhood home office employees and field force representatives.

GETULIO J. PERELLI, vice president of Major Gauge and Tool Company, Livonia, received the "Distinguished Service to Powder Metallurgy" award by the Metal Powder Industries Federation. The award is presented to individuals who have worked in the powder metallurgy field for at least 25 years.

Perelli joined Major Gauge & Tool Company in 1958 as a designer, later becoming general manager, then vice president. Prior to that, he worked for Ford Motor Company's Rawsonville Plant as a P/M supervisor.

Actively involved in the industry through the federation, Perelli has served on the board of directors of the Powder Metallurgy Equipment Association. He is also a member of the American Powder Metallurgy Institute.

Perelli lives in Hartland with his wife and children.

JOHN WINTERS, P.E., of 1046 Bristol Court, has been elected president of Professional Engineers in Industry Practice Division for the 1979-80 administrative year.

Winters' election was certified by the Tellers' report to the board of directors, according to James H. Krick, secretary of the Michigan Society of Professional Engineers.

JOHN WINTERS

GARY R. SCHOETTLEY, of Northville, formerly plant manager of the division's Ypsilanti plant, has been named plant manager of the Rawsonville plant. He succeeds John T. McRae, appointed staff director of manufacturing and supply of Ford's Latin American Automotive Operations.

Robert J. Womac, previously manufacturing manager at the Ypsilanti plant, replaces Schoettley as plant manager.

Schoettley had been plant manager at Ypsilanti since April, 1978. Before that, he was plant manager of the Sheldon Road plant, a facility of Ford's Climate Control Division.

In assuming the Ypsilanti position, Schoettley had returned to the plant where he began his Ford career in 1962 as a production trainee foreman.

Following completion of training, he carried out a series of production assignments at Ypsilanti and was appointed production manager in 1967. He served briefly as manufacturing engineering manager in 1968 before resuming the position of production manager.

Schoettley was named advanced manufacturing engineering and development manager of the former General Parts Division in 1971, manufacturing engineering manager at the Rawsonville Plant in 1973 and, later that year, manufacturing manager of the Sandusky (Ohio) Plant. He held the Sandusky position until being appointed plant manager at Sheldon Road in late 1975.

A native of Detroit, Schoettley studied architecture at the University of Michigan and received the B.S. degree in business administration from Wayne State University. He lives in Northville with his wife and two children.

"THE BEST ADVICE we can continue to offer potential homeowners is to get into the market as soon as possible," says John Cole, president of the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors (WWOCBR).

"Home prices remain on a steady pattern of escalation. The national median price of an existing home, in which half of the buyers paid more and half less, was just over $20,000 in 1968. By the end of last year, this figure had more than doubled to over $48,000.

"The annual increase has been very close to 10 percent. Using this same base, the median price for an existing home will be $95,000 by 1985.

"However, there is really no reason to hope that values will increase at this lower rate," he added. "They are much more likely to climb at a higher rate which could push median prices beyond $100,000 as early as 1983 or 1984."

The WWOCBR president pointed out that both median and average prices have remained generally lower in this region of the country than other areas but are beginning to close the gap.

"At the end of last year the national average price of an existing home, the number of units sold divided into total dollar volume, was $55,500," he said. "In the WWOCBR market area covering parts of Wayne, Oakland and Livingston Counties and including some areas of Detroit, the average price last December was nearly $5,000 lower at $48,762. However, in the first six months of 1979, this figure rose to $53,722, some 23 percent more than a year earlier."

Cole said that, while current home mortgage interest rates are at record highs, buyers who delay longer than necessary could end up paying more even if interest declines.

As an example, he cited the average-priced existing home sold by WWOCBR members in June at $52,704. With a 20 percent down payment of $10,540 and an 11½ percent conventional mortgage, the monthly payment for principal and interest would be $417.55.

"At the present rate of price growth, the same home will sell for more than $58,000 by year's end," he said. "The buyer then would require another $1,100 down payment and the mortgage would be nearly $4,500 higher.

"Even if interest rates were to drop a full percent, and there are no sign that they will, the monthly payment would be $9 higher. Over the life of the mortgage, this would add some $3,300 to costs."

Cole noted that, while median family incomes are rising at a much lower rate than home prices, they also will continue to grow.

County headaches worry state

By WARREN M. HOYT

Two recent moves on the state level indicate there is a growing concern over the unwieldy county government in Wayne County.

Wayne County, or the Detroit area in general, serves about 30 percent of the state's population, however, that unit of local government has been unable to get the reins on spending or cost containment.

The two most recent moves hit the local government where it hurts — in the pocketbook.

The first was a line item veto by Governor William G. Milliken in the amount of $5.5 million for the state to take over probation services in Wayne County.

Milliken, in his veto message, called Wayne County government "unsophisticated and extremely difficult to administer."

He said he will continue to veto any measure that comes across his desk providing additional funding to Wayne County until there is legislation to simplify the establishment of a charter revision commission which, among other things, would reduce the number of elected officials and which assures the proposed charter will include an elected county executive.

He said it would be unproductive and unfair to the citizens of the state to do no more than pour increasing amounts of tax dollars into a deteriorating situation.

The governor cited the complexity and the great number of boards and commissions in the county as one of the major reasons there is no accountability to the people.

The county has been suffering a budget deficit since 1975 which has continued to increase from $2.2 million that year to a projected deficit of $19.5 million for the current fiscal year.

The governor charged that even in light of their current fiscal problems the county board of commissioners have continued to approve salary increases which have exceeded levels of comparable positions in the private sector or in other levels of government.

In a second, more recent action, the state announced it would be taking over the direct control of the administration of state-funded alcohol and other drug services in Wayne County.

Mustang soccer debuts in fall

By JIM HAYNES

Most first year teams, no matter what the sport, professional or amateur, plead for a couple of years to develop into a winning operation. Not so the Mustangs' newest varsity team. Northville's high school soccer team is going into its debut season with thoughts of winning every match. What gives this boast more substance than hot air is that the team is made up of players who could very well carry it out.

During the spring many Northville kids play soccer in the Western Suburban Soccer League. There is only one boys 19-and-under team, called the Arsenal. This team went undefeated last season. What is remarkable about that fact is that the team had no competition within the WSSL, so instead of playing other rec league teams, the Arsenal had to go up against soccer clubs and private school teams.

For example, Arsenal played Lahser, a top Detroit-area team that was undefeated when the two teams met. Arsenal beat them 3-1. Andover High was the defending high school champion when Arsenal met them. Andover lost 1-0. Many of the same boys who played for the Arsenal team are now on the new Mustang soccer team.

"To be very honest, I don't know what to do with all of the wealth," coach Ron Meteyer said. "I could make two teams. I think that we are going to be very hard to beat. We have hardly any seniors which is a good sign for the future. We've had good attendance, good attitude. The boys' skills are pretty good. They need some conditioning yet. Some of our seniors are already taking leadership roles."

Meteyer has a team of 27 players who have all played soccer before. Only one, Craig Wisbiski, has limited experience. But he has played basketball and baseball and Meteyer likes what he sees. "The team has a lot of experience. Everyone has played before. Craig Wisbiski may be in goal for us. He is a basketball and baseball player and that indicates that he knows how to use his hands. He is learning the moves in goal for us. I have others who have played goal before but they are good field players and I would rather use them out there than in goal."

Some of the players that Meteyer will look to are John Davis, Russ Gans, Ken Koppin, Barry Ouellette, Mark and Kevin Swayne, and Dean Gaurd.

"Davis is big and tall, the kind of player you can build a defense around. Russ Gans played football the last two years and has played soccer for the last

Gridders at camp for week

A wise man once said that the family that plays together stays together and in an effort to create a family unit out of a football team, Northville High School head football coach Dennis Colligan has led his charges to the westwoods of Climax, Michigan, outside of Battle Creek.

There, amongst the towering pines of Camp Tall Timbers, on the shores of Lake Potter, the Northville Mustangs and their coaching staff are currently spending a week practicing football away from the distractions of family, friends, work and women.

"We're going to keep them busy," Colligan said last week. "They'll be on their own, they'll have to learn to depend on each other, on the coaches and on themselves. If a guy has a problem, instead of taking it to their parents, they'll have to take it to a buddy, a captain or a coach.

"I feel strongly that it will be a time for the team to learn about the coaches, the coaches to get to know the kids and the kids to get to know each other. It's important especially for the sophomores to learn from the seniors. The seniors have been there before and will be able to help the younger kids. I think our team will really grow closer."

The team was to have left last Sunday at 4 p.m. and return Friday, August 24 at 3 p.m. The cost of the five-day camp was $60 per athlete. Each athlete paid his own way. One athlete couldn't afford to pay the fee so Colligan found

Football memories linger

Hooray, football is back and softball is on the way out. After writing what seems like 999 softball stories over the past few months, I am definitely ready for a change of sport. Maybe it's just the unseasonably cool weather we had last week or perhaps it's some inner alarm clock that goes off when the first subtle hints of fall arrive? I'm not certain. All I know is summer has had its stay now let it make way for rainbow trees and frosty air. And football.

Violent, vicious, neolithic, our first step to a "rollerball" future, all of the nasty and perhaps true adjectives used to describe the game can't turn my interest away.

Football is a test. Not necessarily of manhood, but of character in a stress situation. It's not a test of manhood because, even though brute strength and speed are great assets in a football player, what really makes or breaks a person is the mental capacity to react to situations, to decide on a course of action and then to put this plan into action. It's not manhood because women are experiencing the same character testing situations in other sports. The difference is that they don't get squashed by a 300-pound defensive lineman if they make the wrong choice of action. Instead, they get zapped by a volleyball spike, stuffed over by a basketball or thrown out at the plate in a softball game.

What makes football so appealing to me is the fact that these situations of instant action come up every play in football whereas in softball or baseball, most of the time the action drags. Which also means that I enjoy other sports that are action-packed just as much as I do football.

At high schools around the country, teams are beginning to practice in preparation for the upcoming gridiron schedule. Laws prohibit teams from starting contact drills with pads before August 20. So most schools begin practicing the week before that by going through conditioning workouts and learning plays.

Northville opened its grid season last week with two-a-days on the outfield of the baseball diamond. Running, stretching, running some more and then going through the basics of the offense and defense was the agenda. The junior varsity and varsity practiced as a whole this first week. Normally, if a team opts to go to a football camp of some sort during the summer, it's usually during this week.

The Mustangs tried to schedule a camp for this week but the place they had in mind, Camp Tall Timbers in Climax, Michigan, was booked for this time period. So the team signed up to go to camp for this, the first week of pads and contact drills. At this very instant, amongst the timber and the trout of a westwood Walden, two Mustangs are probably savagely thrashing each other in preparation for the upcoming gridiron battles that will take place in the name of good old Northville High.

If I sound sarcastic or cutting, I don't mean to be. I honestly think it's great that these kids can get off with the coaches, away from family and friends and other distractions, and just concentrate on football. It is a remarkable opportunity and the team will really get a lot out of the trip.

If you can ready anything into this other than admiration for the program coach Dennis Colligan is putting together, then it would have to be envy. You see, like war stories and past-job tales, nothing makes an old-timer want to tell you about the "good old days" more than sports. For instance, when I was in high school, we never heard of such thing as a football camp. We used the playground behind the elementary school as a practice field until they built the "new football facility" at Whitmore and then we practiced on a field outside the fenced-in game field. Camp would have been as foreign a concept as practicing on the moon.

One of the problems with his team that Colligan mentioned was one of depth. He hasn't got as many kids out for the program as the other schools in the Western Six have. He has at least 35, on my own estimate. In the good old days, when I was playing football, we had 17 guys out and no junior varsity. That was a luxury the school added in my senior year. The starters never came off the field unless they were

Men's softball slate nearing end

With just the rain-out make-up portion of the schedule left to play, the chances of the Blues in the American League and Sheehan's Little Caesars in the National League being dethroned are slight ... but you never know what will happen. Both teams held leads going into the rainout phase of the schedule. Most of the jockeying will be done in the middle of the playoffs.

THE BLUES 33, JOHN MACH FORD 4

Bill McDonald hit three home runs and knocked in 10 runs in leading the Blues to a 33-4 win over John Mach Ford. Jim O'Brien hit two home runs for the Blues. Greg Phillips, Tom Eis and Mike Theison each hit roundtrips for the winners. Pete Wright hit four singles while John Folino hit two doubles and two singles and scored four runs. All four of the Ford runners came in the second inning. Brent Kennedy, Jeff Zank, Jerry Jones and Bernard Riegner scored the runs for the losing team.

SPICER TOOL 22, LITTLE CAESAR'S 10

Craig Barrowcliff hit a home run and a triple, Jim Manderville hit a home run and a double, Roland Tarrow hit a triple, a double and a single and Andy Walters hit three singles and scored three runs in leading Spicer Tool to a 22-10 win over Little Caesars. Dennis Rons hit a three-run home run for Caesars in the first inning and added a two-run double in the sixth. Mike Leahy hit a triple and a single and Chuck Casaker hit a double and a single to score three times in a losing effort.

WINNER'S CIRCLE 10, STATE FARM 8

State Farm blew out to a five-run first-inning lead but failed to hold it as Winner's Circle scored twice in the second inning, six times in the third and two more times in the fourth. Farm added three runs in the fourth inning. Jeff Moon hit a triple, a home run and a single for Circle. Joe Bishop hit a two-run home run and Mike Kantor hit a two-run blast. Bishop and Moon both scored three runs apiece. Stan Nirider hit two doubles and a triple for the winners. He knocked in four runs. For State Farm Paul Werner hit a double and two singles. Rick Roman, Tom Mallon and Ted Gores each scored twice for the losing team.

RIZZO REAL ESTATE 21, BELANGER'S 5

Charles Johnson blasted two home runs and a single to knock in six runs in leading Rizzo to a victory over Belanger's. Keith Trumbull hit a home run, a double and a single and knocked in four runs for the winners. Mark Lisowski hit two doubles and a single for Rizzo. Pete Talbot hit a home run and two singles. Mike Belanger hit two singles and a home run. He scored two runs. Doug Calvin had two hits for Belanger's.

NORTHVILLE JAYCEES 10, ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN 7

The Jaycees held off a hearty rally by St. Paul's that saw the Lutherans score four runs in the seventh inning to make the game close. The Jaycees had scored once in the first inning, four times in third, once in the fourth and the fifth and three times in the sixth. St. Paul's picked up runs in each of the second, third and fourth frames. Edward McIntosh and Ernest Edick each had two hits for St. Paul's.

CUSTARD TIME CUTLER REALTY 16, NORTHVILLE PLAYERS 10

CT/CR scored six runs in the sixth inning to break a 10-10 tie and beat the Northville Players. Chuck Callender hit a triple, double and two singles to lead CT/CR. Gary Callender hit two singles and a double. Callender knocked in four runs while Gary accounted for three. They each scored three runs. The Players, who had scored six runs in the first inning, were led by Don Barrett. He had four singles in five trips to the plate. Bill Turner had three singles. He scored twice.

ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN 17, JIM STORM 11

St. Paul's scored six runs in the first inning, three in the second, once in the fifth, four times in the sixth and three in the seventh to win Jim Storm 17-11. Storm scored once in the third, three times in both the fourth and fifth and four times in the seventh. Ed Mass hit a single and a double for the winners. Ron Maas hit two singles and scored three runs. John Fullford hit two singles and a home run for the Storm. He scored four times.

O.L.V. 8, GREEN'S YANKEE CARPENTERS 5

O.L.V. scored twice in the first inning, four times in the fourth and twice in the sixth and then held on to beat the Carpenters 8-5. The Carpenters scored two runs in the first inning, once in the fifth and twice in the seventh. William Johnston hit a double and two singles for O.L.V. Jerry Snap hit a single and a triple and knocked in two runs. He scored twice as did Johnston. Bob Macione hit a single and a triple for Green's. He scored twice. Jim Irvin hit three singles and scored twice in a losing effort.

Stingers take second

The Northville Stingers wrapped up their post-season tournament play much as they finished the regular season campaign, in second place. And to the same team.

South Farmington finished first in the Girls Inter-Lakes Traveling Slo-Pitch Softball League and Northville finished second with a 16-6 tally. Northville then came in second to the same team last weekend in the Inter-Lakes Shag Invitational Softball Tournament at Walled Lake. South Farmington went undefeated while the Stingers dropped two contests, 10-4 to Howell and 3-1 to South Farmington.

The tournament was postponed on Friday due to rain so the action began on Saturday. The Stingers beat Kane's Klassie Lassies 7-4 to open tournament play and then dropped the contest to Howell. Northville came back in the third game Saturday to beat Jake's Harley Davidson 7-2.

On Sunday Northville reaped revenge on Howell as the Stingers beat them 6-1. The Redford Ringers, a team that Stinger coach Roger Stasak thought would be the team to beat in the tourney, dropped a 4-3 contest to Northville. The Stingers then disposed of the Klassie Lassies for the second straight time, 9-1. This set the stage for the showdown.

If Northville could beat its next opponent, South Farmington, that would force a second contest between the two and the chance for tournament honors for the Stingers. If they lost then South Farmington would take the tourney and Northville would get second seat. Northville lost.

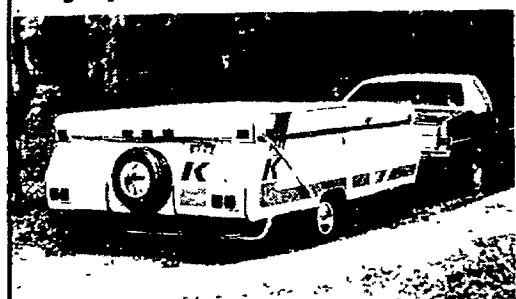

South Farmington scored all of its runs in the first four innings. In the first frame they threatened as a leadoff hitter tripled. But the next three batters were easy outs for the Stingers. In the second inning South Farmington drew blood as they scored twice. In the fourth inning they scored a third run.

Northville added its lone run in the fifth inning as Jana Baringer singled with one out and went to third on Kim Kurzawa's base hit. Julie Abraham then came through with a single that drove Baringer home with the lone Northville run.

Northville finished the season with a 16-6 regular season tally, and a 9-2 tournament mark. Earlier in the month Northville took the Novi Softball Tournament in four straight games while they finished with a 5-2 mark at the Shag Tournament.

"I'm gratified and pleased with the season," coach Roger Stasak said. "This is the furthest a Northville team has gone in the Walled Lake tournament. It's been a great season."

The dogfish takes part of the credit for training doctors. It is studied in pre-medical courses of comparative vertebrate anatomy.

A peppy little fish to start your hobby with is the guppy, which gets its name from a British fish collector, Robert J. L. Guppy.

Guppies are bothered by few diseases, do not fight, need only a small fish tank, and are not fussy about food.

Aside from farm products, fish is the most important food source in the world for human beings.

Doc's Jocks take first; playoffs next

Doc's Jocks survived a whipping at the bats of the Northville Lab to come out on top in the league with a 14-2-2 mark at the end of regular season play. The Lab finished second with a tally of 13-4-1. Post-season playoff action gets under way this weekend with the women going at it Saturday and Sunday, August 25 and 26 at Thomson Field. Games will start early and go all weekend.

eight. He's a big strong fellow." Gans and Davis both played with the Arsenal team.

"Ken Koppin has played soccer for nine years at Detroit County Day School. He's very, very fast. Barry Ouellette is Northville's tennis ace but he and his brother Steven both played soccer a lot in New Hampshire. Mark Swayne, a senior, has taken a position of leadership in offense and defense, and off the field as well as on," Meteyer said.

"Dean Gaurd hasn't played for a couple of years but he is agile and has good hands. He may be in goal for us. There is such a fine line between the really good players and the others that I'm going to keep them all on the team," Meteyer said. "I don't want to make cuts unless I have to. For the future, you want to develop athletes to take over when you lose people to graduation or injury. I think though that 30 will be the maximum on the team." Meteyer had 26 players until Monday night when Jan Van Der Wouw joined the team. He is from Holland and his family just moved to Northville. He has played soccer for six years in Europe.

One of the highlights to the new soccer program will be guest appearances by Detroit Express players at the games, and clinics that the Express players will put on in Northville. "Right now I have half a dozen players at soccer schools and camps," Meteyer said. "I want to wait with the clinics until school starts."

hurt. Offense, defense, kick-off team, punt team, and on and on. For four quarters straight. And we played schools all much larger than our own Class D designation. Those reasons combined were probably why we only won about four games the entire four years I played at Whitmore.

All of these thoughts and more were going through my head as I sat on top of the hill at Northville High School and watched the Mustangs go through their conditioning drills. If only I could do it all over again, which is the lament of all ex-high school jocks. Just one more game, why I'd show these kids how football used to be played.

But in reality, kids today are much more sophisticated than when I was in school. Nowadays kids are on weight programs during the off-season, and thus are much larger than when I played. Also, their mental sophistication is greater. I think this is due to television and the sports-worshipping society we are in. Kids live and breath sports now. It's football five nights a week in the fall; high school, college and professional games to go to; much more coaching-oriented literature available to them and the result is a high school senior who can probably out X and O any coach from my time period.

Why, I didn't even watch football until I was a freshman and about to go out for the team because that was the tradition at Whitmore. A little seven-year old can now get a battery-operated hand-held computer football game that would stump Tom Landry. That kid will one day be buzzing passes to a Mustang receiver with the same authority that Johnny Unitas once had. Far-fetched? Maybe. But that's the risk you have to take when reminiscences about the good old days shadow over reality.

Judy Orr hit a three-run fourth-inning home run to lead the Record past the Tees. Lori Stanford hit a double and a single and Mary Minor hit three singles. Barb Bushey hit a triple and a single for the winners. Annae Belton and Cindy Scannel scored the two Tee runs.

DAVE'S TRIM SHOP 8, NORTHVILLE LAB 7

Dave's picked up two runs in the seventh inning to beat the Lab 8-7. Connie Soncrant led off the inning with a triple and came home on Gayle Richardson's base hit. That tied the game at 7-7. Leslie Riecks then singled and Wendy D'Haene walked to load the bases. That set the stage for Anne Raney who hit a single to drive Richardson home with the winning run. Raney had three hits on the night. Denise MacDermald hit a home run for the Lab as did Eve Williams and Kimm Adams. Adams had two singles also and scored two runs. Pat Brown had three hits and scored two runs for Lab.

SHEEHAN'S ON THE GREEN 24, JOE'S LITTLE BAR 1

Barb Reber hit two singles, walked, belted a home run, scored four runs and knocked in five to lead Sheehan's past

Joe's 24-1. Nancy Schlachter hit a triple, was safe on an error, hit a home run and a single, knocked in four runs and scored four times for the winners. Pam Metz hit a double, two singles and a triple and scored four times. For Joe's, Sharon Phillips scored the lone run. Connie Osborne hit her in.

SOFTBALL ACTION—The Northville Women's Softball League offers exciting softball for spectators as well as players. The league has eight teams and will be in post-season playoff action this coming weekend at Thomason Field. From top to bottom: Sue Bello of the Northville Record awaits the pitch to Sheehan's Pam Metz. Alisa Krinsky of the Doc's Jocks lets loose a pitch. Jean Greis of EDM Special Tees slides safely into second during action with the Choo'Choo Water Wheelers. Laura Burke of the Northville Lab slides into third base but the ball gets away from Doc's Jocks Kathy Phillips and Burke continues on to score.

him a job to finance the trip. This marks the seventh time in the last eight years that the Mustangs have gone to camp.

"We usually go during the first week of our summer training schedule," Colligan said, "but the camp still had summer activities going on so we had to schedule it for our second week, when we will be in pads." The Mustangs have practiced a week now without pads, going twice daily for conditioning and learning the basic offensive and defensive assignments.

"The boys get three meals a day with a snack at night," Colligan said. "There are nine kids to a cabin, a lake for swimming, tennis courts and other recreational facilities. I don't know how much they will use these because we'll keep them fairly busy."

Here's a typical daily routine for those who want to know what the Mustang gladiators are going through: 7 a.m. — wake up, 8-8:30 a.m. — breakfast, 8:30-9:30 a.m. — an hour off, 9:30-11:30 a.m. — first workout of the day, 11:30-noon — a half hour off, noon-

12:30 p.m. — lunch, 12:30-2 p.m. — time off (the lake and other recreational activities are available.)

2-3:45 p.m. — second workout, 3:45-5 p.m. — time off, 5-6:30 p.m. — dinner and team meeting, 6:30-7:30 p.m. — time off until morning.

"We won't have a lights-out policy or a bed check," Colligan said. "If the guys want to stay up and play cards all night that's okay with me. But they will regret it the next day at practice if they don't get any rest."

"I'm looking to my captians to play a big roll at camp. They'll be leaders. If we have a discipline problem come up, I'll call the captians in to help the coaches decide punishment."

"It's a real feeling of responsibility," Bob Crisan, one of the four Mustang captians said. "Camp really brings you together. For one thing, you can't miss a practice. Everybody develops as a team."

Family members and other visitors are welcome to visit the camp, Colligan said. The phone number there is 1-616-746-4112.

Mustang Mentor

The Northville Mustangs have a new football coach this season. Dennis Colligan takes over the reigns from Chuck Shonta. Here he instructs the defense (top) and the offense (bottom) during the first week of summer drills. This week Colligan took his squad to camp for the first week of practice in pads. The camp, Camp Tall Timbers in Climax, Michigan, should afford the team some privacy so they can concentrate on the upcoming fall gridiron battles.

EWA-MARINE

Flexible Underwater and All-Weather Camera Housing

'EWA-Marine' underwater camera housings are the most frequently used underwater housing in the world. At a very economical price they offer the filmmaker or photographer a great variety of possibilities under or above water. Built-in plate glass discs in front of the lens and viewfinder guarantee perfect shot quality, and the camera cases can be used without any problem up to a depth of about 10 metres. They are extremely lightweight and so flexible they can be folded up and packed away in practically any travelling bag. Anyone who uses them for filming or photography will discover how simple and fascinating it is to dive safely with your own camera. Please ask for the special brochure on EWA-Marine Housings.

Why shoot ILFORD HP5?
Because it gives you crisper, richer negatives... even when pushed to 800, 1600, 3200 or 6400.
