Township seeks answers on prison, state hospital

By KEN KOVACS

Fed up with prison-hospital "promises and more promises," Nor-thville Township officials last week traveled to Lansing to get some

Answers to questions they had voiced to state officials time after time in letters, on the telephone and at meetings. Answers to questions they had been asking for months and even years without getting any solid responses, officials said

The two main concerns that the fourmember group had dealt with the erection of a fence around three sides of the Northville State Hospital to help control the number of walkaways and the new regional prison which is to be built in the township -- its security and how the community will be affected.

Township officials who made the trip were Donald Thomson, township supervisor; Clarice Sass, township clerk; Trustee Bill Zapke; and Edward Krictz, recreation director.

The first of two meetings arranged by State Senator A. Robert Geake was with Department of Corrections officials and other state agencies involved in the regional prison program.

"Our people are very leary of another prison coming to Northville," said Mrs. Sass "There are a lot of concerns.

When the DeHoCo Women's prison was in operation it was unbelievable the problems that they had. "The were many times when escapes

Plan disclosed to financially aid program

The Northville High School Marching Band rescue plan is in formation and an angel may be hovering nearby.

Band Boosters President Bonnie Wagner told the Northville Board of Education Monday night how she and her seven-member committee propose to get new uniforms, stock the music library and fix the instruments for the band.

"We have proposed to the (Conrad) Langfield Trust Fund that we be given $18,000 for the purchase of 90 uniforms for the high school marching band," Wagner said.

'Meanwhile, we have had word of an angel in the community. He wishes to remain anonymous, but through his attorney Phil Ogilvie, he has proposed that he might match whatever funds we raise."

Limits to the amount of money the benefactor might match or any condi-tions for the donation are still being discussed, she said.

In addition, she told the board that the committee has a plan to conduct a huge fund-raiser, possibly during the month of October.

Wagner said her committee estimated that they would need $53,281 for uniforms, music, instrument repair and replacement.

Mile widening appears closer

City officials have their fingers crossed in hopes that the traffic bottleneck at Eight Mile and Center may be eliminated in the foreseeable future.

Buoyed by a new plan developed by the traffic and safety division of the dayne County Road commission, officials here see it as a possible signal that the county is willing to go along with a modified improvement that is more financially acceptable to the city.

Nevertheless, City Manager Steven Walters pointed out that a proposal by the traffic and safety division doesn't necessarily mean approval by the commission itself.

"I think we'd better be prepared for a its own staff recommendation," he cautioned.

A solution for the traffic bottleneck at " the intersection, compounded by a potentially dangerous pedestrian crossing, has been kicked around for years. Originally, the city hoped to have the intersection widened on Eight and on Center to allow for passing. That plan drew support from Oakland County, which indicated its willingness to participate financially (sharing half of the cost with Wayne County, while the city would share 50-percent of the total cost).

Wayne County, however, balked. It

New principal named for Silver Springs

Silver Springs Elementary school gained a new principal as Marcia F. Wiss' appointment was approved by the Northville Board of Education Monday night.

Wiss was selected from a field of more than 40 applicants. She has 18 years experience as both teacher and administrator with Livonia Public Schools.

"She is very well qualified and brings a wealth of experience to this job," said -Iorthville Schools Personnel Director Burton Knighton. "She has a good foun-dation in curriculum and instruction, experience with open space and multiage grouping.'

Wiss was selected after a long process of screening and interviews, Knighton said. A parent-advisory committee from Silver Springs met with school administrators this summer to decide what type of principal they rejection by the parent organization of insisted the project be enlarged considerably - widening of Eight Mile from Center all the way to Novi Road. It did so without committing itself financially.

Since the City of Northville reportedly will be responsible for half the cost of the project, city officials found the larger improvement proposal financially prohibitive. Thus, while the city has been pressing for an improvement but at a cost it can bear, Wayne County has been saying it was willing to approve only the larger project.

Following a meeting with county officials on August 2, however, Russell E. Harrison, engineer of traffic and safe-ty, developed a plan for widening of the north side of Eight Mile, between Carpenter and a proposed new school driveway west of Center.

"The 12-foot widening will permit provision of a 'center lane for left-turns only' on the eastbound and Baseline (Eight Mile) Road approaches to Center Street," he wrote Mayor Paul Vernon. "Pavement approaches to Center Street, marking paint, roadside signs, and an illuminated 'Left Turn Lane' sign on the traffic signal spanwire at the intersection ... would be used to designate the left-turn lane.'

School officials, at the suggestion of the city, have applied for county permission to develop a new drive to the Amerman parking lot at a point on Eight Mile 250 feet west of Center.

Purpose of the additional parking lot drive, officials explained, is to permit egress only or ingress only of school buses, thus eliminating the traffic flow interruption presently caused by buses turning onto or off of Center.

Preliminary cost estimate of the Eight Mile widening was pegged at $50,000 by the county. Based on this cost and the proposed sharing formula, the city's share would be $25,000, while Wayne and Oakland counties would each share half of the remaining $25.000.

ly financed by the school, city officials said.

Because Eight Mile is the dividing line between Wayne and Oakland County, the two counties have agreed to maintain different sections of the roadway instead of one maintaining one half the road and the other the remainder.

Thus, Wayne County is responsible for Eight Mile east of Taft through Northville, while Oakland County is responsible for Eight Mile from Taft west to the county line.

In his letter to Mayor Vernon, Harrison suggested the city arrange a meeting "with parties of interest to consider funding of a road widening project."

Walters predicted the meeting probably will occur in September.

Instead, she envisions a community drive, supported by local groups, newspapers, the city and the township, to garner funds to complete the plan. She met last week with Superintendent Larry Nichols, Ogilvie, Northville Record Publisher Bill Sliger and trust fund advisor A. Malcom Allen to talk about publicity.

Still, the Langfield Fund and the "angel" are the committee's best hopes.

The eight-member committee, made up of NHS Principal George Aune, band director Michael Rumbell, three parents and three students, met with the committee that guards the $54,000 Conrad Langfield Trust Fund on August

They asked for $18,000 for band uniforms, $1,000 for garment bags and storage racks, and $2,000 every three years to refurbish uniforms.

She's a marrying, painting gem

If she isn't up to her neck in delicate china painting, she's lecturing or updating America's most comprehensive Hummel print collections.

And if that's not enough to keep a 79-year-old woman busy, Elizabeth Etz may be delivering a funeral memorial, christening a baby, or marrying a couple.

Elizabeth Etz, you see, is a minister.

And a retired school teacher to boot.

But she's a whole lot more. She's a woman constantly on the move who never can say, "I've caught up on all my work." Like most busy, involved people, there's always something else to do when one task is done.

An ordained protestant minister (Universalist), she has shared a home for most of the past half century with a devout Catholic widow - her former long-time boss.

"In all those years I don't think we've ever had an argument over religion," says Miss Etz. "She (Mrs. Marcella E. Douglas) respects my religion and I hers."

Besides sharing the ownership and the house with a Catholic, there is another bit of religious irony about this protestant minister. Her nationally acclaimed hobby, the study and collection of Hummel works, has its roots in a Catholic nun.

Next month marks the 50th anniversary of Miss Etz' arrival in Michigan the start of her lasting friendship with Mrs. Douglas.

Looking back over her career, Miss Etz says she has but one regret: "That I was not married and did not raise a family

SOUTH LYON-The Oakland County Planning Division hopes to conduct a follow-up study on South Lyon's downtown renovation project. Oakland planners completed South Lyon's downtown facade study in 1978, creating a turn-of-the-century theme for the central business district.

NOVI-Novi city officials were expected to meet soon with Oakland County officials to discuss plans for the construction of a new 52nd District Court facility.

NOVI--Novi city officials have been formally notified of residents' intent to pass petitions that request amendments to the city charter as it applies to special assessments for road improvements. Donald Young of Nine Mile proposes the city charter be changed so that the city would be pro-hibited from making special assessments for road improvements to property owners adjacent to mile roads or other major roads as well as roads within subdivisions which are maintained by the city.

came close to marriage only to have a "beautiful courtship," later ended in tragedy.

She was engaged to be married to a young man, "who had a beautiful voice and sang in the choir." They had met, following graduation from high school while working in a chemistry laboratory in Akron.

Even now, many years later, the memory brings a smile to her lips and a whisper of a tear to her eye.

At the age of 21, after courting Elizabeth for three ears, the young man unexpectedly died of pneumonia and other complications brought on by a seizure of hiccups. An unusual malady, it nevertheless also had claimed the life of one of her uncles.

It was a heartbreaking loss for Elizabeth, who was persuaded by her parents to "go East" to college in hopes the absence from home would help her forget. She never forgot, of course, but she did learn to accept her loss.

Although she had a wish to go to Tufts, as had her brother, Miss Etz entered the Boston University, graduating in 1926 with a bachelor in religious education.

Her attraction to the field of religion was inspired by a brother, "who I simply worshiped." He also was a minister, a doctor of divinity.

She financed her way through college by working for her brother.

Following receipt of her degree, she went to Concord, New Hampshire where she served as a pastor's assistant and as manager of a nursery school. At that time she had no intention of becoming a minister, although she had done work on a master's degree.

The job in Concord lasted two years.

Then, probably because they knew she wanted to be nearer to her Ohio home, school officials recommended she go to Detroit to take a job in a small private school run by a young widowed mother. That woman, whose only daugher has since died, was Marcella Douglas.

For the next five yéars, through a very trying financial period, the two women provided school for children of families from Detroit. But without any major subsidies by rich benefactors, the ingredient of most successful private schools, Mrs. Douglas was forced to close her school and the two women went to Grosse Pointe to operate a nursery school for several wealthy women - including Mrs. Edsel Ford. By the time they arrived, young Bill Ford had • graduated from the school which was located on the Sheldon Estate.

Marcella and Elizabeth, who both obtained their master's degrees, remained at Grosse Pointe for 10 years.

Then, in 1938, Mrs. Douglas took the principal's job at the Wayne County Training School, the now vacant Northville township facility, and Elizabeth went to Kalamazoo to manage four nursery schools operated by the Depression era WPA.

Elizabeth Etz remained in Kalamazoo for two years and then, at the request of Mrs. Douglas, she came to Northville to take a teaching job then vacant at the training school. Dr. Robert H. Haskell was superintendent at the time

The two women lived on the grounds.

Elizabeth taught the youngest boys initially, later teaching the newest and often the most unruly boys. She refused to permit the boys to make her use physical discipline. Instead, she showered them with love and forced them to like her with her kindnesses

'It worked, too, because I never had to use force,'' she recalls. "In fact the boys themselves demanded discipline for me. They saw to it that nobody gave me a tough time."

Concerning student enforcement, she recalls a 16 year-old boy who, because of his man-like size, was ripe to become her biggest problem in the class. His initial behavior, however, suddenly improved.

"He was a beautiful reader but was just awful in arithmatic. One day he came to me to say, 'You sure have a lot of friends here, don't you Miss Etz.' I agreed, and he continued: 'Well, I want you to know I could clobber them one at a time, but I can't take the whole cottage at once.' It was his way of telling me I'd be in trouble if it wasn't for the others. We became good friends.

young lady he was going to marry and to counsel them." Religious help was provided to the boys at the training school by protestant, Lutheran, Catholic and Jewish clergymen. One day, perhaps three years after she arrived at the training school, Dr. Haskell came to her to ask if she would temporarily fill the vacant protestant cleryman's post. He noted that she had a religious education background.

Thus, began the ministering that would last not two weeks but 25 years.

Not only did she accept a minister's role before her ordination, she took on the biggest of all the clergy's tasks. The Catholic priest had 250 boys, the Lutheran minister 40, and the rabbi seven to eight boys. Miss Etz ministered to 400 boys

And this was in addition to her teaching work.

For the first several years her ministering went unpaid. Later, however, she was paid for both.

Meanwhile, Miss Etz worried that her job was being done by a person who was not yet officially a minister. She went to her church (the Universalist church has since merged with the Unitarian) and it was agreed that Miss Etz should be ordained. Thus, following probationary study and prayer for a year and upon satisfactory completion of an examination, she was ordained.

'Now," she smiles, it was official. I was a minister and I felt better about doing the work of a minister."

Although a female in the ministry was unusual in those days, it was not rare in the Universalist church where women have long played important roles. Generally, outside her own church, her male peers have treated her with equal respect. Only occasionally has a male clergyman "looked down his nose" at her.

Frankly speaking, Miss Etz says she is not especially enamored by the feminist movement. Nevertheless, she appreciates the reasons that gave rise to it.

"Let's face it," she says. "It has been a male dominated world. I've seen it; you've seen it. But I don't agree with all the things the feminists are saying and championing. Sometimes I think they go too far afield."

Similarly, Miss Etz has been deeply disappointed by much of the liberalization of her church and others. "It has become too unstructured, leaving a member with very little to hang on to. I just can't abide all this liberalization. We all need a nut in the middle of the shell we can bite into. We can't and shouldn't make our own religion fit us; we must fit it."

Perhaps because of the distance to her church in Farmington or perhaps because of its liberalization, Miss Etz says she feels "just as comfortable" in attending services at the Presbyterian church here.

Miss Etz retired from the training school in 1964 two years after the retirement of her principal, Mrs. Douglas. Together, they purchased the house on Rogers and have lived there together since leaving the training school.

The two women have their own, distinctly different interests, but they and their activities are very compatible. Neither has any family remaining, and each has been a crutch for the other.

A few years ago when Miss Etz was severely ill, Mrs. Douglas helped nurse her back to health. That illness also cemented a lasting friendship with her physician, Dr. John Brown. "Without him I would not be here."

Her health, however, has been generally good. Her eyes are not the best, but a plastic implant following surgery for a cataract saved and actually improved her eyesight. "It was a real miracle," she says of the surgery. Age has slowed her "only slightly."

Although she has become inactive in some of the organizations with which she has been involved over the years, she continues to attend meetings of some and to work for others.

For example, she retired last year after serving 15 years as chaplain with the Sarah Ann Cochrane Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution but she remains active in the Northville Woman's Club. Although she seldom is called on for a formal church service, Miss Etz frequently performs for special fune-

Smarting from the flak it is receiving in the face of an economic crisis, the Wayne County Board of Commissioners is trying to defuse some of the flak with a just released facts sheet.

The sheet was put out by the commissioners' public information office. It reads:

Inaccurate information - although perhaps well-intentioned — has led readers to believe that Governor (William) Milliken is withholding funds from Wayne County because it has not complied with his demand for a reorganization program which would include an elected county executive to take responsibility for county actions.

The facts are: Governor Milliken has never officially requested a county. reorganization. Informal chats between county officials and his office and media releases indicated his desire but as of August 24, 1979 there has been no request in writing from Governor Milliken's office.

However: anticipating his desires, the Wayne County Board of Commissioners did pass a resolution June 12, 1979 complying with his unofficial, demands.

A second demand (still unofficial) requested it include an elected county executive.

Fact: The full resolution...deals with Home Rule Act 293. That act, under Section 14 Subtitle a. includes an elected county executive and, unless amende becomes part of the requirements of Wayne County reform. County commissioners were fully aware Act 293 provides for an elected county executive and took pains not to have it deleted or amended.

Usually you would have to tie up your savings for years to get a dividend that begins to compete with inflation. And it seems it would take years to save the amount needed for one of those fancy $10,000 Money Market certificates.

Until now you've had to content yourself with choosing between long-term savings accounts or low dividends. But if you consider yourself a serious saver, you'll welcome this news from your credit union.

NOW YOU CAN EARN THE SAME DIVIDEND RATE IN 3 YEARS AT YOUR CREDIT UNION THAT BANKS AND S & Ls PAY IN 4.

Look at the charts above and compare with a Community Federal 3-Year Certificate you can earn the same or HIGHER DIVIDEND for LESS TIME. Now you have greater flexibility to plan your savings and to save for the things you want to buy. And before you know it, you've saved the amount needed for a 'fancy' money market certificate.

The maximum rate on Certificates is determined monthly by the U.S. Department of the Treasury. The rate you are quoted the month you purchase is paid for the term of your 3-Year Certificate. Dividends are compounded quarterly and the term and minimum balance, like most credit union savings certificates, are designed for the serious saver who isn't rich.

new, more sophisticated telephone system has been ordered by the City of Northvile at a cost of $57,883.36.

Upon recommendation of the city manager and city controller, who made a cost analysis of quotations from three different phone equipment suppllers, the city council last week voted to waive sealed bids and to award a purchase contract to ITT.

A downpayment on the system is to be made this year, with the balance of the cost to be paid over the next four years, it was decided.

The purchase is to be financed through a loan with the bank. In her report to the city manager

Controller Betty Lennox reported that the present system serves 28 city employees (nine administrative and clerical, 19 police). It was installed with the construction of the city hall in 1963. School. She was requested to do so by his family, which was impressed with her memorial service upon the earlier death of Mrs. Shaw.

Her hobby of collecting and lecturing on Hummel works is a very time consuming one but it, too, like so many of her other activities, has generated new and lasting friendships.

Not only does Miss Etz have a complete collection more than 500 - of Hummel prints - the largest and most complete collection in American - she has three priceless originals and yet unfinished sketches by the late Sister Hummel of Germany, whose artistic talent gave birth to the industries producing her works today.

Collecting and displaying is not enough, however. Perhaps equally important is that Miss Etz has studied Sister Hummel's life and is a living encyclopedia on her works.

Still another time consuming hobby is her china painting.

While she considers herself a rank amateur, her works are in great demand and she seldom has filled the last order. Currently, a stack of partially finished plates - all bearing the soft floral paintings that have become her trademark - rests on her table next to her basement kiln.

"I just got to get these done," she sighs, recalling that someone is anxious to get them.

There just doesn't seem to be enough hours in the day for the next wedding or the next dish...

.. A typical dilemma of people in their 70s and 80s who are still going like 60 and liking every minute of it.

Mediator joins talks

New principal named for Silver Springs

A state mediator has arrived in Northville to help teachers and the district come to a contract settlement before school starts.

The Northville Education Association and Northville Board of Education ågreed last week that they disagreed on almost all the issues in the contract. They decided jointly to call in the negotiators.

In our three sessions since August 13 the 16, 20 and 22 - both sides have presented counter-proposals, and there has been some progress and a slight speeding up of the talks," Personnel Director Burton Knighton said. "But on the 22nd, we jointly decided to request inediation and get assistance on teaching a final agreement."

State Mediator Harry Reinfelder arraived from Lansing Monday morning and spent all day Monday negotiating. Reinfelder will also aid in negotiations today and Friday.

Reinfelder, as a state mediator, will use "powers of persuasion" to get the sides to see eye-to-eye sufficiently to sign a contract, said Faith Bishop. director of the office of Teacher Tenure Negotiations and Retirement, of the Michigan Department of Education.

"When negotiations break down, either party may call in an impartial mediator. When two sides reach an impasse, they probably should," she said. Mediators come from a pool run by Department of Labor and the Michigan Continued on 7-A

'Dream' kitchen costs $27,000

By ELLEN SPONSELLER

It's enough to make Suzie Homemaker turn green.

When the Northville Board of Education wanted to buy dishes for Bryant school's special education program, did they go to K-Mart? No. Did they register at Hudson's? No. Did they go to Canton China? You betcha.

Canton China and Equipment of Detroit, a commercial china company, came in with the lowest bid on the board's kitchen dream list.

Approved by the board, the $27,000 kitchen is guaranteed to make Betty Crocker choke with envy on her EZ-Bake oven

For starters, you buy 40-dozen forks, knives, spoons for only $342. The 40dozen matching dinner plates, salad plates, soup bowls and fruit dishes will run you $1,592, which is not bad considering how much it would cost to put food onto all those plates.

You'll need 4 dozen bun pans for $348. You'll shell out $50 for a portion-control scale No. 66H-12, a No. 317 chuck knife, a No. 13HBF tenderloin knife and a 6 X 3-inch hamburger turner.

You'll need french knives, serrated knives, sandwich spreaders, SG 200 graters and shredders, slotted spoons, perforated spoons and regular spoons for dishing out peas and carrots. The 12-dozen 24 cupcake pans will cost — get this — $4,788; not to mention the indispensable electric automatic Hobart 1712R slicer for $1.975 each. Tuna-noodle casseroles will be baked in pans, preferably the 6-inch deep pans with covers for $25.85 each.

Approval given

Stuart Oil plans

Johnny Marzetti-casseroles can be baked in all the other pans, stock pots, saucepans and double boilers which run about $3,200.

Also essential is the turkey-roaster ("with straps" it says, which must prevent the bird from inconsiderately running away) for $224.

Your kitchen is still not complete without those little hot carts to wheel around at $835 apiece. And you know those 40 dozen plastic trays the students throw around? Buy the lot for $1,140.

The little stands that hold. the silverware and trays cost $73.60 each. The "dishers" that the food sits in while it's on the line sell for $200.

Add assorted ladles, scoops, pastry brushes, strainers, french whips (wisks, they must mean), mixing bowls, "Handy Tongs," scrapers, peelers, pitchers, dredgers and a potato cutter.

Then next time the Board of Education asks you, "How do you like them apples?" you can specify chopped, dredged, salted, run over with a hot cart or bashed with a slotted spoon. For $27,000, Bryant school can serve 'em any way you like.

JOHN E. KINVILLE

A Northville man has been named the county highway engineer by the Board of Wayne County Road Commissioners. He is John E. Kinville, 51, who succeeds Walter "Pat" Meyers, who recently retired after 31 years with the commission - the last 11 years a county highway engineer.

The board also has promoted Robert E. Murphy, 41, to its top legal position general counsel - following the recent retirement of Clayton Floor.

"The board is fortunate that our organization has the depth to fill major staff positions from within," said Board Chairman Joseph M. Herron, an intent supported by his fellow commissioners, Freddie G. Burton and Michael Berry. Kinville joined the road commission in June 1957. A registered professional engineer, he graduated from the University of Detroit. Presently, he resides in Northville with his wife, Elaine, and their three sons.

D. A. Stuart Oil Company, located at 175 Ronald Nino advised the Railroad in the city's industrial section east of Northville Road, sought and received approval for a new warehouse and office addition.

Unanimous approval for site, architectural and landscape planning for the 6,500 foot L-shape structure adjacent to the existing building was voted by the Northville track.

Employment Relations Commission. Highly skilled in negotiations, these 18 mediators travel the state aiding in contract disputes. This time of year, 235 school districts in Michigan still do not have contracts. Currently 31 districts are using mediators, including Detroit and Dearborn city, she said. Happily, state statistics show that 90 percent of state-mediated negotiations end in settlements without strikes, she said.

Though mediators employ a wide variety of tactics to get two sides together, usually the mediator will split the teams and talk to each one separately, Bishop explained.

He finds out each side's position and determines where there are soft spots or potentials for compromise.

"It may include quite forceful discussion with one side or another," she said. The mediator may then sit in on negotiations and suggest compromises but does not hand down any decisions. It is up to the teams themselves to settle the contract.

If an impasse still exists after mediation, the Michigan Employment Relations Commission may call for factfinding, Bishop said. They hold a hearing and give a settlement recommendation, with which the partners are free to agree or disagree. Or they may go to binding arbitration, where both sides agree to abide by the commission's decision.

What happens when the Northville teacher's contract expires on Saturday? "Life does go on even when a contract expires," Bishop said. My understanding of the teacher's union is that no contract is better than a poor contract. And where there is potential for a settlement, there is time.'

Teachers move on to other school districts

Several teachers will not be returning to the Northville school district this fall. Meads Mill Junior High band teacher John Mason resigned to take a position with Saline Public Schools. Other teachers who will not be returning include: David Pevovar, Northville High School math teacher; Mary Philip, math and science teacher at NHS; and Silver Springs third and fourth-grade teacher Lynne Sherman? Robert Simpson, social studies teacher at Cooke Junior High, also resigned.

First-grade teacher at Moraine Elementary Louise Dlugokinski resigned recently. In a letter to the Northville Board of Education she cited one of her reasons for leaving as a prohibitive class size.

She said 32 first-graders "makes it extremely difficult, if not impossible, to give the individual attention that each student deserves."

Special Education teachers who will not be returning include Cheryl Rohelier, Carol A. Van Slembrouck and dietician Mary Jaskowski. Special Education nurse Beverly Matheson and occupational therapist Linda Flowers also resigned.

Janet Brachel turned in her resignation as well.

Cooke Junior High math teacher Cindy Scherf has taken a leave of absence this year to pursue studies at Oakland University.

Earlier this summer, Food Services Director Marie Knapp retired, Transportation Supervisor Robert Sieting resigned, and Silver Springs Elementary Principal Nancy Fieldman left to become principal of a school in Traverse City. The Northville Board of Education has selected Marsha Wiss as new principal for Silver Springs (see related story).

The district's first-choice candidate for a new Meads Mill band director declined the position so another candidate will be selected shortly, Personnel Director Burton Knighton said Monday. The board is still in the process of selecting a replacement for Sieting.

A personnel office spokesperson said Monday that the district has heard of at least two more K-12 teachers who will resign before school begins.

Last spring 38 K-12 teachers and 24 ISEP teachers were informed they would be laid off due to declining enrollment and insufficient funds.

Since then, most of the ISEP and some of the K-12 teachers have been recalled. Still, the district will be operating with fewer teachers all together this year.

 Relocation of the district court from the city hall to the scoutrecreation building. Development of barrier-free access at the front of the city hall. Also mentioned by council members were projects such as improvements on South Main and development of downtown public restrooms.

Concerning the former, City Manager Steven Walters reminded council that a similar request for use of previous funds had been denied by block grant-officials. Concerning the restrooms, Walters said such facilities are still possible under the downtown development program.

Pollution claims metropark lake

By HOWARD RONTAL

Phosphorus pollution is claiming another victim.

Phosphorus, a plant nutrient, has contaminated the waters of Kensington Metro Park to the point where the quality of the water in the park's lakes is "poor" in comparison to other lakes in the state.

So says the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR), in a just released study of water quality in Kent Lake, the principal body of water in Kensington Metro Park.

for the cities of Wixom, and Milford, and the Ford Motor Company. The DNR cites the sewage treatment facilities of the two cities and the automakers Wixom Assembly Plant as the source of 60 percent of the phosphorus entering Kent Lake.

Both cities are planning expansion of their waste treatment facilities, said Jim Grant, of the DNR's Water Quality Division. The study could mean major changes in future or current facilities and could require more money to fund improved phosphorus treatment, Grant said.

The study is particularly bad news last 12 months, the DNR has said that

The DNR calls Kent Lake "an extremely valuable recreational resource." The 1,000-acre lake is publicly owned and receives approximately 2.3 million visitors annually, making it the most intensively used recreational lake in the state, the report says. It also is the most heavily fished lake in South Michigan.

Phosphorus, found primarily in In previous studies released over the cleaning solutions used in home and industry, is a plant nutrient which speeds up the growth of aquatic plants. Dense aquatic plant growth is an indication of an "aged lake," a lake subject to fish kills, oxygen depletion, murkiness, and algae blooms.

Kent Lake, the study says, has suffered from all of these problems.

The DNR claims that Kent Lake is verging on becoming a rapidly aging lake, or "hypereutrophic." Currently the lake's water quality is at the upper limits of the "eutrophic," or moderate aging state.

The DNR classified the lake on the basis of the amount of phosphorus in a given unit of water. A phosphorus concentration of five parts per million is considered hypereautrophic. The phosphorus concentration in Kent Lake is 4.4 parts per million, the study says.

Kent Lake is currently receiving 12,355 pounds of phosphorus per year from all sources, about 2.5 times the level required to put the lake in the eutrophic category. Sixty percent of the phosphorus or 7,371 pounds per year is coming from the treatment facilities of the two cities and the Ford factory.

Forty percent enters the lake from water which runs off the surface of the land.

The DNR warned that future expansion of the municipal facilities could increase phosphorus levels to 4.5 times the acceptable level, to 21,565 pounds per year.

The DNR is recommending that phosphorus input to the lake from the treatment plants be limited to 4,000 pounds per year.

Such a figure could be difficult for the facilities to achieve, Grant conceded. The three facilities already are pouring out a total of more than 7,000 pounds per year and are using the most costeffective phosphorus removal technology available, he said.

Treatment improvements, either disposing of the treated sewage on land, or upgraded treatment of effluent before it leaves the plant, are very expensive, Grant said.

Both cities currently are applying for funds to expand the treatment capacities, he said.

The study rules out cutting the phosphorus contribution from land runoff because it-would require "drastic alterations" in the use of the land in Kensington Metro Park.

The DNR also ruled out septic fields

To control the growth and spread of aquatic plants, the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority, which runs the park, applies 26,000 pounds of weed killer at a cost of $30,000 per year.

The DNR notes, however, that the weed control program is only "relatively" effective.

The department goes on to note that the effects of the phosphorus are felt downstream from Kent Lake as well. Approximately 11,000 pounds of phosphorus flows through the lake, into the Huron River, and then into Strawberry and Baseline lakes in Livingston County.

Kent Lake is part of the Huron River watershed. The Huron River flows through much of Oakland County, through Ann Arbor, and finally empties into Lake Erie.

The City of Wixom and the Ford factory empty their treated waste into Norton Creek, east of Kent Lake. Milford pours its treated waste directly into the Huron River, also east of Kent Lake.

C.A.R.E. really works.

The coordinator for Opera--tion C.A.R.E. in Michigan is Sergeant Weldon Greiger of the traffic services division at the Northville State Police Post. It is a safety program designed to reduce traffic accidents by increasing the number of state froopers patrolling the highways during peak motoring hours.

C.A.R.E. also gets its point across through public awareness campaigning and "safety break" stations at rest stops where community volunteers serve up coffee and soft drinks to weary motorists.

As an example of the effectiveness of the C.A.R.E program, Sergeant Greiger points out that over the Memorial Day holiday in 1977 - a year before C.A.R.E. was organized but four years after the 55 mph speed limit was enforced there were 31 highway fatalities in Michigan.

In 1978 the number was reduced to 25; this year it was 15.

C.A.R.E. will try even harder over the Labor Day week end to eliminate traffic accidents. Officially, the holiday begins at 6 p.m. Friday and ends at midnight next Monday.

In addition to watching for police cars in their rear view mirrors Michigan motorists will have to look skyward, too, if they are tempted to press the accelerator a few miles per hour above the 55 mph limit.

Colonel Gerald Hough, director of the department of Michigan State Police, has announced that a helicopter will Sergeant Greiger says it's possible a ticket could be written for three miles per hour over the 55 mph limit if sufficient reason exists to determine the motorist was not driving safely.

So if you are driving somewhere over the holiday, be forewarned.

State Troopers will be all over (and above) the highways. They expect you to observe traffic laws, wear your safety belt and not to mix alcohol and driving.

It's their job to save your life.

The city of Northville has joined a number of other suburban communities and Wayne county organizations in opposing what amounts to some very bad proposed legislation.

Involved is proposed reorganization of the Wayne County court system. Presumably, an objective of the reorganization is to spread out the workload so that cases may be handled more readily.

It would appear that only Wayne Circuit Judge John H. Hausner considers it important that an elected judge be accountable to the people over whom he exercises jurisdiction.

For example, one bill proposed by Senator Basil Brown would combine the 23 Recorder's Court judges of the city of Detroit with the 35 Wayne County Circuit judges. It would make Recorder's judges full circuit judges with countywide powers, but it would divide the county into two election divisions with an equal number of judges being elected in Detroit and from the rest of Wayne county.

Speaking for Myself

Public transit

for small towns?

YES

Public transportation, like education, police protection and other public services, is not something that is needed and used only by residents of large urban areas.

It is an alternative form of mobility for those who have automobiles, and it is the only form of mobility for those who have no autos or are incapable of driving, such as many senior citizens or the handicapped. Such individuals reside in small towns as well as in large cities.

Lunch programs, rehabilitation programs and other services for senior citizens and handicapped persons would not work without effective transportation. There are people in any area who will never use public transportation, but even those individuals will benefit from the positive aspects of a balanced system, such as reduced energy consumption.

There are differences between geographical areas, such as population density. And for that reason, the method of transit differs. The curb-to-curb small bus service, such as that provided by OCART and LETS for many residents of Novi, Northville, Walled Lake and Brighton, would be unworkable by itself in larger cities.

The regular route service with large SEMTA buses works well in larger areas, but would be impractical in rural areas.

Anyone who questions the practicality and need for transit in small cities, should question those who depend daily on such service.

> Bob Zolkowski SEMTA's Small Bus Area Manager

NO

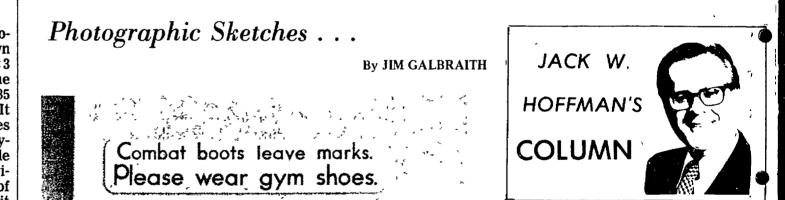

Quoting from a 1974 publication by Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA): "The embargo of oil from the Middle East signalled the need of a change in our present concept of low cost personal transportation ... It is imperative that we develop ... an alternate means of meeting the transportation needs of the 4.6 million people who live in the cities, villages and townships of Southeastern Michigan."

A more factual statement probably has never been made at a more timely and urgent period in the lives of every American. But the question that needs answering is "Does the present mass transit plan meet the transportation needs of our outlying communities, or will it be an unused, non-cost effective service that will be an additional burden on our increasing tax dollar?"

A quick analysis of some of the concerns with various public transit plans raises some interesting thoughts when considering the proposed benefits in convenience, speed and dependability. The supposedly convenient service will not help the housewife do her weekly shopping, the faster commuting does not reflect the travel time to the bus stop nor does it consider the time, lost on those days the bus fails to arrive.

In my opinion, public transportation to small towns must be designed to provide conveniences that are equal to and available to the high density metropolitan areas or its necessity to serve small towns is questionable.

monitor Labor Day traffic.

"The helicopter will be involved with air speed timing of motorists, as well as responding to any emergencies," the colonel noted.

It's the first time in many years Michigan State Police have patrolled from the air.

What's more, some 875 additional state police will be on the road over Labor Day and they expect to make contact with more than 42,000 motorists and issue over 7,200 speeding violation tickets.

And if that isn't enough to cut down on highway speeding, the colonel and Michigan Governor William Milliken have introduced another warning.

Beginning this Friday state troopers have been instructed to ticket motorists exceeding 60 mph and to stop and warn those driving between 55 and 60.

But every circuit judge, not withstanding the division in which they were elected, would have county-wide jurisdiction.

Judge Hausner calls this objectionable because it deprives citizens of 42 suburban communities of their right to vote for half of the judges in the circuit court who will exercise jurisdiction over them, and vice-versa as far as Detroiters are concerned.

There are two or three other legislative bills, objectionable for the same reasons. And the so-called Judges Plan, supported by the Governor, is also opposed by Judge Hausner because it would place at least 23 judges on the bench with power over people and communities outside their election district.

I've just finished reading a daily journal covering the 10-year period from 1852 to 1862 — recommended by John Richter as "one of the best early accounts of prices and things hereabouts."

It was loaned to me by Grant D. Howard of Novi. It was written by his great grandfather, T.P. Howard, who died two years after it was completed.

The Howards were early pioneers of the Farmington-Novi region. T.P. Howard's wife was the daughter of Caleb Lamb, one of the earliest Baptist ministers in Oakland County and reportedly a "good doctor, too." They also are related through marriage to the Severances — including H.O. Severance, who wrote the Walled Lake history, "The Story of a Village Community," based on his 19th Century boyhood recollections.

Incidentally, that history originally published in 1931, was republished in 1976 by the Commerce Township Area Historical Society.

To set the stage for the period covered by the journal, here's Howard's succinct entry, for November 6, 1860: "Election - Abrahan Lincoln President."

Now for some at random examples that bear out John's observations:

Offers .garden help

To the Editor:

More than one in three American families had a vegetable garden last year, and interest in all areas of gardening continues to grow. One of the best sources of information for home gardening has always been the Cooperative Extension Service, the educational arm of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and a free service for farmers and urbanites. But in recent years county agents have had trouble keeping up with all the pleas for help. It was to meet this need that the "Master Gardener" project was created.

Under the program, the extension service trains volunteers from the com-munity, who are experienced but amateur gardeners, to give advice to their fellow citizens during the growing season.

County agents look for people who have some free time - housewives, students and the retired are ideal - and already know a good deal about growing things. These prospective master gardeners take 10 weeks of classes, including weed control, soils, trees and shrubs, annual and prennials, fruits and vegetables and pesticide safety. Classes are taught by county agents and Michigan State University staff members, and take place early in spr-ing so that the master gardeners, who must pass an examination, will be ready to answer questions during the growing season.

Once trained, the volunteers contribute 20 hours helping neighbors with gardening problems, answering questions at Flower Day at the Eastern Market in May or, right now through September 3, staffing an information booth at the Michigan State Fairgrounds. If you aren't attending the fair this year and have any questions about plants, contact Master Gardener Karen Strong at 348-9834.

Teachers attending an Environmental Education Workshop at Michigan State University got a firsthand look at government, labor and industry's side of the environmental issue coin.

Betty Meredith of Northville, a teacher at Cen-tral Middle School in Plymouth, was one of 12 Michigan elementary and high school teachers chosen from a field of 70 to attend the workshop, sponsored by the American Society for Environmental Education and the MSU Science and Mathematics Teaching Center.

Teachers spent the 11day workshop listening to representatives from Michigan industries, government agencies and labor unions and engaging them in lively debates on the environmental effects of the bottle bill, air quality, pesticide use and other issues.

The teachers then discussed how the information presented could be put to use in the classroom.

The state recently bought some 160 acres of land surrounding the former DeHoco buildings, which have been vacant since 1977, and is planning to build a regional prison to house some 550 "medium security" prisoners in three to five years.

The state also plans to spend some $2.9 million to renovate the DeHoco facility and use it at least temporarily as a prison.

Township officials are concerned about security and if the prison may be forced to house more than 550 inmates because of prison over crowding.

"You people should tell us now if you are going to have more than 550 inmates," said Thomson. "Tell us before the prison is built not after.'

State Representative Jack Kirksey and Geake, who also were in atten-dance, told state officials they would support whatever position the township residents and officials took regarding the prison.

"If you can't give these people some guarantees and assurances and they choose to fight the prison I will do whatever I can to help them," said Kirksey. "There have to be some kind of guarantees before you can expect the township to be a willful partner in this project.

State department spokesmen said they can give no absolute guarantees, but indicated that it is likely that the prison will have only 500 inmates and certainly will have no more than 550.

Township officials would like to obtain a portion of the land that the state purchased from Detroit but will not be using for the prison. They told state of-ment spokesman. "It is up to the legislature to sell or give state land." State officials did, however, agree to support - or at least not fight - the proposal to deed the land to the township.

Township officials also voiced their concerns about the security problem at Northville State Hospital, but saved most of their comments on this subject for a meeting later in the day with Governor William Milliken's legal advisor, Kenneth Frankland.

Kirksey and Geake joined township officials in telling Frankland exactly what they thought of the state's inaction.

'The state hospital is a sieve,'' Geake stated. "Escapees have been a problem for years and we have been telling you about it for years. "Mental health officials told the governor that everything was okay, that the patients who walked into the community were not dangerous," Geake continued. "Then an 82-year-old woman got killed.'

The security at the hospital has been increased since the April murder, but township officials say that it is still bad and that a fence would be a great help in curbing the number of walkaways. Kirksey reinforced Geake's comments that added security is needed, but disagreed about the effectiveness of a fence.

"I don't think a fence would really change the problem," he said. "It is a whole security program package that is needed. That facility can be 75 to 80 percent more secure than it is now."

Frankland told township officials that he and the governor's office were aware of the problems and that there will be some action taken "I think it is time for the legislature to look at the mental health code and see if it is what the citizens want," he said. "Whether or not a fence should be put up is a philosophical issue. "I can give you a commitment that we will look into the problem," he assured officials. "I do think it is time to sit down and look at how our hospitals are run and if some changes are needed." Though township officials did not get any guarantees, they did get some answers to questions that they had. They also got some support from state officials in their bid for obtaining some of the state lands surrounding DeHoco.

Downtown loses water as water line bursts

Downtown East Main Street businesses were without water much of the day Monday when a 60-year-old cast iron water main burst.

The break occurred on the north side of Main, at the drive to the Palace Restaurant, about 9 a.m., said Charles Nichols of the Department of Public Works.

So great was the flow of water from the break, some seven feet below the surface of the roadbed, that the cascading water washed out a driveway on the opposite side of the road

The flow of water finally was stopped when workmen shut off the valves serving the downtown area west of Center.

"If it had been a break cross-ways, he said "we would have been able to fix it pretty fast. But this break was lengthways and those kind of breaks can't just be patched."

DPW crews had to cut off the pipe cleanly on either side of the break and insert a connecting sleeve between the two ends.

Nichols estimated the pipe was some 60 years of age. What caused it to break is unknown, he said.

ficials what they would like.

"The prison is a bitter pill that we have to swallow," Zapke said. "But we need any property that the state is not going to use. There are very few fire hydrants in that section of town and we need a place to house some fire fighting equipment so we can give adequate fire protection to the residents' home and new prison.'

The DeHoco facility is located on the northwest corner of the 160 acres and the new prison likely will be built on 40 acres in the southeast corner. Township officials told the state that they would like the remaining land.

"The Department of Corrections is not in a position to give land to anybody," said William Kime, depart-

Jaycette sees 'Walk for Mankind' aid in Mexico

By JEAN DAY

Rose Zapke, past president of the Northville Jaycee Auxiliary and this year chairman of its board, is back from Tijuana, Mexico, where she paid her second visit to Project Concern's three-year-old Flores Magon program, now selfsustained and receiving only administrative assistance from Project Concern headquarters in San Diego.

New Michigan State Chairman for Project Concern, Mrs. Zapke also is volunteering on the staff of Project Concern's regional office in Farmington.

"When I go and see children and babies like a two-monthold, six pound infant I held, I can see the need for Project Con-'eern and what it can do to help," explains Rose Zapke, recalling that her own son weighed more than eight pounds when he was born.

476-3395

Project Concern is the program for which the Northville Jaycees annually sponsor Walk for Mankind.

During their visit to Mexico the U.S. Jayceettes (as the na-tional organization is called) visited 47 families living in Pan Americano, Project Concern's newest health care program site. They visited, too, a maternity hospital and school for the poor.

The non-profit health care training and development organization is funded primarily by the nationwide walk that raises funds for programs at home and abroad.

Want to sing?

As practice begins for its ninth year, Plymouth Community Chorus invites Northville residents and others from surrounding areas to join in the singing. Practice starts September 18at East Middle School off Mill Street and continues every Tuesday from 8-10 p.m.

'No auditions are required. Just come if you like to sing," invites Joe Hopersberger, a Northville post office employee. "You can hear us at the Plymouth Fall Festival as we'll be. singing in the park bandshell from 8-9 p.m. Friday, September 7, and from 1:25:-1:55 p.m. Sunday.³

Last season the chorus specialized in show tunes, singing without charge for charitable and civic groups. You may call Hopersberger at 464-1372 or President Mckey Kivell at 459-9894. Altos, tenors and bases will receive a special welcome.

New local directory delivery begins

New 1979-80 edition of the Northville Community Telephone Directory is being delivered this week without charge to residents listed in it. The directory, compiled every other year by Northville Mothers'

Club, is to be distributed by The Northville Record carriers this Friday throughout the community. In rural areas not serviced by carrier delivery began Monday and will continue for several days.

Anyone living in the City of Northville, Northville Towns or Novi subdivisions of Brookland Farms, North Hills, Westridge Downs and Connemara who does not receive a copy within the next 10 to 15 days is asked to call the Northville Record circulation office at 437-1662.

The new directory is the same size as the 1977-78 edition, $8\frac{1}{2} \times 11$ inches, but boasts a white cover with bold black lettering.

It is decorated with a barn sketch done by Jeff Veselenak when he was nine years old. His father John Veselenak, husband of Mothers' Club member Martha Veselenak, again designed the cover for the club. "It's no particular barn but one typical of Michigan," explains Sue Wright, club immediate past president and chairperson of the book with Sarah Deal. She adds that anyone wishing additional copies of the local directory which includes a classified index of local businesses and services as well as a civic directory may call her or Mrs. Deal. They are being sold at a nominal fee although the copies being delivered to homes are free.

The club, Mrs. Wright announces, will realize a profit of $4.281 from advertising for which Martha Lyon and Shirley Horwath were responsible. All club proceeds are earmarked for projects in the Northville Public Schools.

This year's profit, Mrs. Wright, states, is highest since the club began the local directory 10 years ago. Members compile it from the West-Northwest Directory of Michigan Bell Telephone Company.

Suzanne Kaley displays Teddy, Roosevelt and paper mache dolls

Gibson Girl star in doll collection

By JEAN DAY

- -----

Suzanne Kaley loves dolls, especially the beautiful character dolls of the past. She also loves to sew for them, dressing them in appropriate costumes and providing her doll family with accessories from yesteryear.

Perhaps it's because she is the mother of four boys that Mrs. Kaley has gathered an outstanding collection of dolls from Germany, France and this country. She began collecting seven years ago when the family was living in St. Louis.

Star of her collection in a featured place in a living room display cabinet is the Gibson Girl doll, dating to 1910.

A German doll, she looks remarkably ke the girls drawn by Charles Dana Gibson. A straw hat tops the doll's upswept hairdo. Her beige suit is cut in the fashionable style of the day and accessorized with a fur piece.

"To get my Gibson Girl I had to part with so many others," Mrs. Kaley comments, explaining that most serious collectors also become traders in order to upgrade their collections.

She points out that part of the joy of acquiring fashion dolls, baby dolls or character dolls is learning more about them. Then a collector begins to weed out some as others more choice are found.

"The first thing you should do if you want to collect dolls is read," she emphasizes. She recommends as a basic text Coleman's "The Collector's Encyclopedia of Dolls."

"My fondness is for character dolls," Mrs. Kaley says.

She adds that what used to be "closet collecting" by those embarrassed to adthan 12,000 members in the United mit to loving the dolls of childhood has Around a child's record player from the 1920s that still plays is a group of beautifully costumed character dolls. "Most dolls used to be made in Germany. It wasn't until after World War II that people wanted American dolls," observes the collector.

"All dolls," she continues, "were made to play with: Baby dolls appeared after the turn of the century, about 1909-10."

All dolls, she emphasizes, are collectible.

"You can buy a bisque for $25 at some shows, or perhaps find one at a garage sale for a few dollars," the collector ontinues

Some dolls have been passed on to her by original owners who want someone to cherish them. Suzanne Kaley definitely does.

She points out that dolls reflect the times in which they were made. The fashionable dolls of the Gibson era even had their own calling cards. Baby dolls came with carriages, replicas of fullsize ones.

Mrs. Kaley's collection includes an early colored doll.

MR. AND MRS. BRIAN FOUNTAIN

MRS. KENNETH SEXTON

In Brighton

Forster-Sexton vows read

St. Patrick's Catholic Church of Brighton was the setting for the wedding of Susan M. Forster and Kenneth E. Sexton on Saturday, August 4.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Reverend Father Robert McKeon, uncle of the bride.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Leo McKeon of 5245 Daniel Drive, Brighton, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth S. Sexton of 42916 Pond Court, Northville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a silk organza gown trimmed with lace appliques. Her fingertip veil was also trimmed with matching lace and she carried a bouquet of white daisies, carnations and yellow roses.

Laura Stevens, friend of the bride," was maid of honor. She wore a yellow

Unity candle lit in Polzin-Fountain service

Cheryl Ann Polzin carried a lucky sixpence and followed the tradition of "something old, something new" as she became the bride of Brian Franklin Fountain in a 3 p.m. ceremony August 11 at First Presbyterian Church here. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard A. Polzin of Westland. Her bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs.

Charles W. Fountain of 46119 Pickford. The bride's sixpence was given her by Mrs. Roger Pyett, a family friend of the Fountains.

-The Reverend Lloyd G. Brasure officiated at the double ring service which included the lighting of a unity candle. A floral centerpiece decorated the altar.

"Because" and "Ave Maria" were sung by the bride's father. Music also included the theme song from "Romeo and Juliet."

As she was given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white chiffon gown with a crystal pleated cape. The pleating also formed a hemline border on the gown that extended into a cathedral train. Floral lace appliques with pearls adorned the gown and picture hat.

The bride carried a cascade arrangement of yellow roses and daisies with baby's-breath.

Jennifer Barton was honor maid. Bridesmaids were Esther Ann Fountain, sister of the bridegroom, and Liz Walker

They wore yellow, A-line gowns with chiffon blouson tops with spaghetti straps. Their short capes were of matching fabric. They carried yellow carnations, daisies and baby's-breath.

Anna Marie and Tristan Guevara were flower girl and ring bearer. She wore a white gown with yellow sash and baby's-breath in her hair.

A. Eric Johnson was best man. Seating guests were Donald W. Fountain and Kevan A. Polzin, brothers of the bridegroom and bride respectively. A garden reception followed immediately at the home of the bridegroom's parents in Shadbrook. The newlyweds went to Windsor, Ontario, an then to Portland, Oregon, and Seattle, Washington, where they visited

He is a graduate of Northville High School and Ferris College and presently is employed as an optician with Dr. Martin Levin and Dr. Jerome McDowell in Northville. They will be making their home here.

The new Mrs. Fountain was honored at bridal showers given by Mrs. Pyett and Mrs. Doheny here, by Mrs. David Cramer of Westland and by Mrs. Frank Nerwman of Farmington.

Verna Biddle wed to Raymond Nabozny

Verna Biddle wore a long-sleeved gown of white chiffon for her marriage to Raymond Nabozny at St. Mary's Church of Wayne.

Father John Sullivan officiated at the double-ring service at 5:30 p.m. June 29. The bride, the daughter of Vernon and Dorothy Biddle to 47000 Nine Mile, was given in marriage by her father.

The bridegroom is the son of Edward and Geneieve Nabozny, Sr., of Inkster. Lace and pearls decorated the bodice of the bride's high-neck gown. Lace also trimmed her fingertip veil. She carried white carnations with yellow sweetheart roses in a cascade arrangement. Marti Auer was honor attendant.

Bridesmaids were Shirley Runyan, Mary Biddle, both from California, Sandy Lusk and Linda Drake, all cousins of the bride, and Judy Nabozny, sister-inlaw of the bridegroom.

They wore matching gowns of yellow knit styled with blouson tops of chiffon embroidered with flowers. They carried baskets of white daisies, yellow mums and orange sweetheart roses.

Going . . going . . gone at Yerkes' estate auction!

By JEAN DAY

For five days the lifetime accumulations of the late Edmund P. Yerkes were sold to local antiquers, friends and neighbors of the attorney and to dealers as the auctioneer's gavel awarded top bidders furniture, china, art, books and coins.

As expected, the auction which began a week ago Friday night with books, ran past the weekend through Monday and Tuesday, August 20-21, in a tent outside the Dunlap Street residence.

Kighlights of the auction conducted by the Birmingham firm of Stalker and Boos, Incorporated, included the sale of the Victorian sofa reputed to have belonged to Michigan Territorial Governor Lewis Cass. The hammer fell at $650.

Northville Historical Society President Robert Daniel successfully bid on some of the furniture to be placed in the Yerkes House in Mill Race Village. The Yerkes family was a ploneer Northville-Novi one, settling here from New York State.

One of Daniel's purchases was a corner what-not bought at $100 with Quester funds.

A two-section desk went at auction for $500; a cherry drop-leaf table, $250; a walnut drop-leaf, $150; a Victorian washstand, $135; a late Empire dresser, $175.

But a mahogany teacart, not an antique but probably from the 1920s, brought $210.

An English tea caddy with inlaid shell detail sold for $50; five turn-of-thecentury children's toys sold for $130 while a turn-of-the-century pottery tobacco jar in the form of a head of an Arab knocked down for $20.

It was apparent that collectors and dealers were in the audience when Yerkes' collection of Rookwood art pottery came up for bids on the Sunday. While several pieces went for $32.50 each, a vase bearing the maker's mark of Sallie E. Coyne was bid up to $102.50, but the peak bid of $500 was for a narrow-neck vase with foliage decoration bearing the Rookwood maker's mark of Kotions Shinomendow mark of Katiaro Shirayamadani. By contrast the Durand signed vase that sold for $200 was a bargain. Kenneth Wilson of the Henry Ford Museum staff said later that such a vase in good condition was worth at least $100 more. There was a brisk business in collec-

This new account offers a high interest rate ne before possible on a deposit of $100 or more. The interest rate on this account is based on a U.S. Treasury Securities index and is established monthly. However, the rate in effect when your certificate is issued is guaranteed for the full four-year term. August's rate for this account is 7.950% annual interest, compounded continuously for an effective annual yield of 8.394%.

Reduced certificate account minimum deposits.

Until recently, you needed $1,000 to invest in most First Federal certificate savings accounts. Now the minimum for certificates issued after July 1, 1979, has been reduced to $100 or more on all of our certificate savings plans (except our popular 182-Day Money Market Certificate which pays even higher rates on deposits of $10,000 or more).

Modified early withdrawal penalties.

The interest penalty for early withdrawal on certificate accounts issued after July 1, 1979, has been modified for savers who may need to withdraw their funds before maturity. On our One-Year Certificate and our 182-Day Money Market Certificate, the penalty is no more than 90 days' interest. On longer term certificates, the maximum penalty is 180 days' interest.

Four more reasons why it's better than ever to save at First Federal.

Leslie Grover of Northville was runner-up for the best of class trophy in the Open-12-Year-Old Class with a first place medal and two second place medals in the Scottish Highland Dances. She also won a first place and a second place medal in her national dances - the Irish Jig and the English Hornpipe.

Elizabeth Grover was a runner-up for a best of class trophy as she won second place in four seperate dances in the Open-17-And-Over Class. This class receives cash awards instead of medals for their individual achievements.

Jeri Brundage of New Hudson took first place medals in the Highland Fling and the Sword Dance before she was forced to withdraw from further competition due to an injury to her left knee.

Yerkes' estate sale

tor plates with one lot of five plates bringing $775.

'That's because the first Hummel plate from 1971 was in the group," explained auctioneer Frank Boos. One dealer who bought a lot of five for $475 returned to the auction the next day saying that she already had sold two for $400 each.

By its very nature, an auction gives rise to stories and rumors. As the house s emptied of books, coin and stamp collections, Japanese-dime store pieces along with Spode, auction goers heard that additional items had been brought in, a not-unusual practice at some auctions

Questioned, Auctioneer Boos shook his head. As he denied the rumor, he looked at a collection of sea shells and asked, "Who would bring this in?"

Yerkes' son Charles also denied the rumor, declaring, "The only things that re imported were the chairs, tables, boxes and staff to conduct the auction.' .The Yerkes' sons Charles and William decided to dispose of their father's collections that filled the house from basement to attic by auction. He had been preceded in death by his wife but had continued to collect whatever interested him until his death May 16 of this year at age 72.

: It was the scope of his accumulations at fascinated those who knew him. A Amed antique miniature Persian painting of two warriors doing battle brought $110 while a framed Persian watercolor of a warrior slaying a dragon sold for $140.

The successful bidder of both afterward declared "They would bring $100 more each in Ann Arbor."

Yerkes' son Charles observed. however, that his father had acquired most things at "very reasonable prices." Dad didn't trust the stock market," he said, "having lived through the crash."

By collecting such items as stamps and coins, he may have done better. A 20-item lot of stamps from 1971-78 including Bicentennial souvenirs brought $145

New to many auction-goers was the auction firm's buyer's premium of 10

It meant that a buyer of a $100 item knew he actually was paying $100 plus $10 premium and $4 sales tax, unless exempted.

"We're the first in the area to do this," admitted Boos, saying, "It's a matter of survival." In this way the cost of the auction is divided between seller and buyer. The practice was started earlier in the East by the famous firm of Park Bernet.

It did not seem to deter buyers here. Buyers found they were acquiring such things as an Avon bottle or rocks along with the wanted-Cloisonne dish as they bid on boxes whose complete contents sometimes were not on view.

As boxes of pottery went on the block tax. on the Sunday night, Marie Bonamici, owner of the Sunflower Shop in downtown Northville, and an artistcraftsperson, saw one of her own vases in a collection. "I made it!" she exclaimed, successfully bidding $40 for . the lot.

Most bidders felt they had acquired box bargains. Emily Miller found a choice paperweight in a box buy.

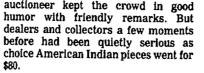

Some of the boxes were viewed beforehand, and dealers were aware of contents. An RCA dog figurine in one brought the bidding briskly to $102. A box of reproduction art glass brought only $30. Five miniature music boxes sold for $40.

Most friends of Edmund Yerkes were aware of his interest in local history and knew he had such items as a framed 19th century lithograph of the residence of A. S. Brooks, Novi Township, that brought $30 at auction. They were surprised that it was for sale.

The item immediately preceding it in the catalog, an oriental pottery garden seat in the shape of an elephant, was withdrawn from sale as it had been a gift from son Bill who wanted to keep it. While Yerkes' collection of erotica surprised some, it did not in every case bring a high yield. A comical pottery tea pot, cream and sugar was sold for $17:50. A box of busts of "important people," as Boos called them, sold for $10 as the

As the auction progressed, strangers and friends of Ed Yerkes marveled at the universality of his collection.

A good example was a box bought by the writer because it contained two Brumm nature pieces. I also acquired six Robin ornaments, including a German Goebel and a Japanese dime store version; polished and unpolished Petoskey stones; three Avon bottles still filled; two yo-yos; jade from Oakland County with appropriate clippings on its finding; a shadow box; and a book of radio speeches from the 1940s by famous men - all for $10 plus $1 and

To borrow from Robert Browning, Edmund P. Yerkes liked what'er he looked upon - and his looks went everywhere.

More park land sought the Northville City Council took steps this past week to expand the city's park lands still more, near Eight Mile and Novi roads.

Formalization of a purchase by the city of the 1.5 acres from Denis Roux for $11,400 was expected soon.

Meanwhile, at the suggestion of Mayor Paul Vernon, council directed the city attorney to investigate whether or not the owner of Northville Park Apartments would consider giving the city the unbuildable pie-shaped land on the west side of the stream behind the apartments.

The land abuts the property being purchased from Roux and is adjacent to land already used by the city for open space and non-developed park purposes.

The apartment owner used the unbuildable land in computing the density of the apartments. Since the apartments are now a reality, the undeveloped, unbuildable land is no longer technically needed, Vernon noted However, since conceivably the owner would need the land for future recomputations in the event the apartment complex were destroyed by fire, as pointed out by Councilman J. Burton DeRusha, it was suggested that a legal agreement could be reached between the owner and the city whereby permanent permission be given the owner for the present apartment density.

If the latter becomes a reality, the cion the west side of the stream, adjacent proposed for the land.

With purchase of 1.5 acres of addi-tional park land already in the works, homes. Council intends that it remain undeveloped for park open space.

The undeveloped land south of the apartments on the Novi Road curve remains privately owned. The land near Eight Mile and Novi street, where the ciy recently planted trees financed by the city and by contributions (including the $313 assets of the disbanded Northville Civic Association), is owned by the county and used as unbuildable utility easement.

The Roux land originally was part of a larger tract, part of which was used for the development of the little shopping center at Novi Road and Allen Drive.

Two other city land transactions are, in the offing.

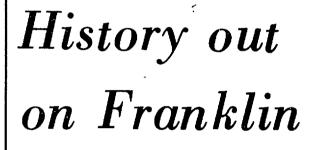

Council has offered to sell the Kerr-House land on Cady to the U.S. Postal Service for expansion of the post office at a price of $38,000 - part of which includes the expense of moving the house to the corner of Randolph and High.

If this land sale becomes a reality, the city hall will move the house and then sell it. The post office, on the other hand, will be expanded westward.

Council also is considering the sale of the former ambulance service land on Fairbrook near Rogers. The large lot, where the building was destroyed by fire, is located adjacent to the Northville Laboratory and the Fairbrook Apartments.

The lot presently is zoned R-3.

Council may make the sale conditionty or county will own much of the land ed upon the kind of development that is annual Labor Day round-up celebration on the Village Green. The book funded by the Franklin Historical Society (FHS), relates the founding and development of the quaint Oakland County Village that was registered a historic district with the United States Department of Interior in 1969.

Many village residents are directly responsible for the book. The author, Bettie Waddell Cannon of West Bloomfield, a former Franklin resident, was assisted in research by several FHS members. Mrs. Cannon is a published poet, freelance writer and past president of Detroit Women Writers.

Raymond Spear has new job in Lansing

Former Northville school superinten- what charge the board had prepared dent Raymond Spear, who resigned as superintendent of DeWitt school district following his suspension recently, is now employed with an educational management company, George R. Scott Associates of Lansing.

He reportedly is earning more money than he did as superintendent.

Spear and the board of education in DeWitt have been embroiled in a controversy.

Although Spear said the only reason the board fired him is because he had an affair with another administrator, the board hinted this was not the only reason.

"We're not going to talk about it ... not for a long time," Board President Kenneth Stevens was quoted by The Lansing State Journal. He wouldn't say against Spear because of the terms of the settlement with Spear and because of the board attorney's advice.

As part of the agreement, Stevens says he wrote a letter of recommendation for Spear. "I've never questioned Ray's competence. There's no question in my mind he's very competent."

The Journal quoted Stevens as saying Spear had "brought a lot of good ideas and made a lot of improvements. Staff morale is better the district's finances are more open. But a situation developed that may have minimized these things."

Spear, who went to DeWitt after 16 years in the Northivlle school system, reportedly settled with DeWitt for two months of his $35,000 salary and a $21,450 lump sum.

College-bound may find packing a formidable job

You are about to leave for that all- that he or she also will arrive with an a little bit nervous, terribly excited and totally confused about what to take along and what to leave behind.

'Choosing from among so many favorite possessions is a formidable task that cannot be put off any longer.

Certainly you have a problem; but by no means is it insurmountable. The trick is to approach your packing with the same sense of purpose you will soon use when selecting your classes and professors.

But, about your packing. Rule number one is to determine where you are headed. Dorm rooms are small. Upper class students and dorm advisors usually grab the best rooms before you ever see them; leaving the bewildered freshmen with the undesirables. It's a tough situation, but you might as well make the best of it.

Another fact of life is that most rooms come with at least one roommate Whether this person is your life-long friend or a total stranger, remember important first year at college. You are 18-year accumulation of personal belongings. Look at your own collection and double its size and amount -- you'll know what you and your roommate will have to cram into that one tiny room.

It helps if you check with your aboutto-be roommate sometime during August. Take stock of what each of you will be bringing to school. You really won't need two stereo sets for one little 10-by-12 room. You will probably be able to share a lot of other things too an iron, popcorn popper and a hair drver.

Another good topic is the decor of the room you will be sharing. Dormitory accommodations vary according to tastes, areas of the country and the era during which they were built. They can range from grim institutional to extremely elaborate. However, no matter how grim the environment, there has never been a room that didn't benefit from being spruced up with plants and posters.

Just in case you are tempted to deck out your room in the school colors, try to resist the urge. Most students begin collecting assorted alumni mementos funny hats, wastebaskets, stadium blankets — at an early age. This can usually be attributed to proud parents, frequently alumni themselves, who bestow such gifts with the slightest provocation.

Accept these treasures gracefully, then stash them in a dark closet where they are likely to remain undetected. Living in a maize-and-blue technicolor may sound like fun, but loyalty to the old alma mater is likely to wane when finals week rolls around. You may find vourself climbing the walls and it helps if those walls are a less glaring, more comforting color.

When you begin collecting what you think you ought to take, start with the essentials. An alarm clock should be at the head or near the top of your list. You may be blessed with early morning classes, and don't count on your roommate to wake you up.

Also, a typewriter, pillow, towels, sheets, blankets, a desk lamp (essential for late-night studying) and a plate and cutlery for snacking. And don't forget the hangers - the dorm, a strictly noclass operation, never seems to provide such things.

On the subject of food, you may want to consider renting a small refrigerator for your room. You will find them advertised left and right around campus and in the town papers. And they're handy, especially if your school doesn't serve breakfast. Whether it does or doesn't (a good point for you to check up on), the presence of sustenance during an all-night cram session is always welcome. The smallest size (two cubic feet) rents for about $50 for an entire school year in Ann Arbor, which includes a deposit of about $10.

Although a lot of dorms provide vacuums for collective use by the residents, they aren't obligated to supply each room with a rug. Any rug that you are able to scrounge up from home will be useful on those cold winter mornings.

If you're the adventurous type and are making the move directly from your parents' home to an apartment, you will need many of the items already suggested, plus some others.

You can forget the refrigerator because most apartments come with such basics as stove, oven, refrigerator, and sometimes even a dishwasher that isn't the human varie-

However, if you plan to lift your menu above the peanut butter and jelly level, you will definitely need a reasonably complete set of kitchen ware - pots and pans, utensils, dishes, glasses and freezer containers.

Although many apartments are furnished, should you consider one that isn't, you ought to consider what basic pieces are available at garage sales. The Salvation Army or local furniture center can also provide you with a selection of sturdy second-hand items which are not only useful but downright attractive with a little imaginative redecoration.

For an apartment you also need your own cleaning supplies. Start your list with mop and pail, broom and dust pan, dustcloth, scrub brush and sponges. You also will need a carpet sweeper or vacuum cleaner, although the former tend to be a good deal less expensive.

Make up your mind that one of the first items of business between you and your roommate will be to establish a regular cleaning schedule.

However, if all this sounds like a bit much, take heart. Living away at school, you will soon realize what you really do and don't need to set up your life away from home. The big consolation is that you can always take home the "turkeys" during Thanksgiving vacation.

Incidentally, that will be an excellent opportunity for you to collect all those other possessions that you will know you should have taken with you in the first place.

Angry township resident refuses to pay lot split fees

By KEN KOVACS

A feisty feud which may lead to a dent and Northville Township officials.

The fight is over who should pay the exorbitant consulting fees incurred in an unusual request for a 5.3 acre lot in Meadowbrook Estates to be split into three parcels.

The township billed Miriam Peterson for some $694 in fees — including planning and engineering costs — in addition to the $610 she has already paid. And she has been told that legal fees will be an additional $250.

The angry woman says she will not pay the fees.

The township board of trustees has passed a resolution stating that the split will not be granted until they are paid.

"This is downright blackmail," she said. "If it was just a nominal fee I would pay it. But this is outrageous.

"It is really a simple lot split and I think they (township) had a lot of unnecessary work done which they want me to pay for," she charged. "Just because the land is platted I don't think I should be stuck paying the extra counsulting costs.'

Township officials, however, say that one of the main reasons that the fees are so extensive is that the request is on platted subdivision land.

"We have never experienced a lot split of this type before," Donald Thomson, township supervisor said. "Most lot split requests are for unplatted subdivision lots. We don't have specific provisions set up for platted lands.'

In 1976 the township adopted a resolution for dividing platted lands. It said that anyone seeking such a lot split must pay a $50 filing fee and any consulting costs.

However, for a lot split request on unplatted lands, there are specific requirements outlined in a township ordinance

The individual requesting the split township board members for the easemust pay $300 when submitting the preliminary site plan, plus $40 per site, and $25 per acre.

When the final site plan is submitted, he must pay $150 plus $20 per site and $20 per acre. This holds true if each step is approved at the first request.

If the request is rejected, the applicant must come back with another plan and pay the fees again.

In addition to the unusual request, township officials say the changes which have had to be made in the plan have also added to the consulting costs.

Board consultants reviewed the request and the board approved it. But when Ms. Peterson took the document to Wayne County offices to be recorded. she made a minor change in the wording.

Because of the changes made, the attorney may have to review the document again, township officials said.

"There was more time spent on this After the planning commission ap- than any other lot split that I can deputy clerk for the township for many

Ms. Peterson contends that she is being singled out to pay these costs and that it is unfair.

"I have been a taxpaver in this township for over 20 years and I think I deserve some services," she said. "They (the township) took a lot of liberties that they didn't have the authority to. It is a perfectly legal split and everything is in order. I would like to know how many other township residents had to pay this amount to get a lot split."

The angry resident says she is considering legal action to force the township to pay the fees.

THOMAS A. SNIDER of Brighton has been appointed to the position of vice-president of material management by Holley Carburetor Division of Colt Industries.

In making the announcement, the Warren Michigan-based fuel systems manufacturer indicated that Mr. Snider will have overall division responsibilities for purchasing, traffic, inventory management, customer order entry and production scheduling. He reports to Albert J. Booth, division president.

Mr. Snider previously served as director of inventory management. He joined Holley in 1978 after four years as manufacturing control manager with Burroughs Corp. He also served in inventory and production control management positions with Champion International, LTV Aerospace and Ford Motor Co.

A native of Dearborn, Michigan, he holds a BS degree in foreign trade from the University of Detroit. He is a member of the American Production and Inventory Control Society.

THOMAS SNIDER

Mr. Snider is married and resides with his wife, Barbara, and their two children in Brighton.

THE THIRD and final drawing for a $100 shopping spree in Northville Plaza Mall was held Friday, August 17 in the mall corridor.

On hand to select the winning entry was Northville Township Clerk Clarice Sass. In appreciation for her participation, the merchants in the mall presented Sass with a carnation corsage. Throughout the contest period, Northville city and township personnel have been most cooperative in attending the prize drawings, merchants said. From the dryer outside the Northville Vacuum and Appliance store

Ms. Sass pulled the name of Nancy King, a resident of Redford Township. Ms. King immediately found a spot for her Spree in Michel's Jewelry.

Mrs. Wingert began her real estate career with the Detroit (Grand River-Meyers Road) office of John L. Sullivan as a sales associate. She soon proved her aptitude in sales and customer relations and went on to become a broker in 1957. During this same year she purchased the Sullivan business and in 1959 bought her own building on West McNichols Road in Old Redford.

Having vacationed in the Buck Lake area for many years, she recognized the population move to Livingston County and opened her Hamburg Office in the fail of 1971, one of the area's first real estate offices. Her offices, highlighted by antiques and large school bell in front, were remodeled from an old-time area party store. Mrs. Wingert lives on Tamarack Lake Drive, Pinckney, has three daughters and 11 grandchildren. After 25 years she still loves real estate.

'Working with people and helping them solve their housing needs has been a fulfilling career," she says.

BETTY BAKEWELL of Novi has achieved one of her life's ambitions with the opening recently of Betty's Busy B's at 115 East Lake in South Lyon. She loves needlework and with her three daughters married now, she's decided to try her first business venture. One daughter, Chris Foley of Canton, will assist her mother part time in the shop which features a wide variety of 100 percent Persian yarn for needle point. Mrs. Bakewell also carries kits for needlepoint, crewel, embroidery and latch hook items. Penquin yarn for knitting and crocheting, custom framing, needlecraft instruction books and lessons are all available at the shop which is open Mondays through Thursday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Fridays, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mrs. Bakewell will give lessons in all type of needlework as well as offering the supplies. Information may be obtained by calling 437-9966.

> DOREEN JAYKO, realtor associate with Rymal Symes Realtors Novi office, has reached another milestone in her career.

As of August 1, she has surpassed the million dollar sales mark for 1979 and was named Rymal Symes Realtor Associate of the Month of July.

In announcing her achievement, Craig Lewis, Rymal Symes vice president, indicated that fewer than 15 percent of all real estate salespeople ever accomplish a million dollars in sales during a whole year, and Jayko has done so in just seven months.

Lewis also said that Jayko's success can be attributed primarily to her genuine desire to render a real service to her many loyal clients. and her tenacity in seeing every sale through to the end personally.

"G. "Hank" Brumley recently was promoted to production control manager. He joined Paragon in February, 1978.

H. Dean Morrow recently joined Paragon as manager of employee realtions. Morrow previously had been employed as director of employee relations for the Heat Transfer Division of McCord Corporation.

ALLEN MOSS of Walled Lake was among the technical representatives of 25 major printing ink manufacturers in various parts of the United States and Canada who have completed Lehigh University's 13th summer course in Printing Ink Technology.

The course is sponsored by the National Association of Printing Ink Manufacturers, Inc. Technical Institute.

Jacqueline Fetsko, assistant research director of the National Printing Ink Research Institute at Lehigh University, was technical administrator of the week-long program. She was assisted by a staff of technicians, chemists and technical advisors.

The intensive lecture and laboratory course covered printing intensive raw materials, dispersion processes and end use requirements.

GARY REUTENIK of Novi has been elected treasurer of the Mail Marketing Club of Detroit for 1979-80.

Reutenik is employed by the R.L. Polk and Company.

The club meets regularly to promote the business of direct marketing among professionals working in Southeastern Michigan.

Tourism industry sees Labor Day helping recovery•

Michigan's tourist operators expect Labor Day weekend to continue an upward business swing which began in July, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Michigan tourism made a strong comeback in July, cutting a year-long deficit from nine to six percent," said Joseph Ratke, Auto Club's touring manager. "A good Labor Day followed by an Indian summer could cut that deficit to four percent."

Motorists are expected to travel 680 million miles during the traditional "last fling" of summer, a two percent drop from 1978's record Labor Day holiday, said Ratke. Tourism, Michigan's number two industry, generated a record $8.3 billion last year.

Next to unfounded fears of gasoline shortages and record high prices at the pump, Ratke says cool weather has been the biggest tourism deterrent this summer.

The National Weather Service in Detroit reports only one 90-degree day (August 7) so far this year. The last time Detroit went that long without a 90-degree reading was in 1915.

ecutive Vice-President James H. Hall said if August is as successful as July, the year's deficit will be cut in half, West Michigan tourism is down five percent overall, but up five percent in the southern half of the region because of its proximity to adjacent states.

An Auto Club spot check of businesse south of a line from Bay City to Muskegon, compared with 1978 levels, follows:

Detroit Zoo, even; Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum, down 3.5 percent because of declining attendance by out-of-state tourists; Bob-Lo Boat rides, up six percent overall despite being down 16 percent in June; Stage Coach Stop at Irish Hills, up 5 to 10 percent; Crossroads Village and Huckleber Railroad near Flint, up 50 percent, Zehnder's and Bavarian Inn at Frankenmuth, down five percent because northern weekend travel is iown, and Dow Gardens at Midland, up 10 to 15 percent.

A check of businesses north of that line shows the following:

Deer Acres at Pinconning, down 10 percent; Call-of-the-Wild Museum at Gavlord, down 18 percent; K Fudge Shop sales on Mackinac Isla down 15 percent; Grand Hotel' on Mackinac Island, up 10 percent; Fort Michilimackinac at Mackinaw Çity, down 18 percent, and Soo Locks Boat Rides at Sault Ste. Marie, down 20 percent. Ratke added that an initial Auto Club "fuel gauge" survey of 300 major brand stations along main tourist routes for the 78-hour holiday period shows 100 percent open Friday, 98 percent Saturday, 69 percent Sunday and 82 perc Monday. In the Detroit-area, a check of 100 stations shows 99 percent open Friday, 93 percent Saturday, 59 percent Sunday and 69 percent Monday. An Auto Club check of state park campgrounds shows 55 of 73 expecting capacity crowds Labor Day.; All facilities in West and Southeast Michigan expect turnaway crowds, Departure from the normal mean temperature since January 1 has totaled minus 688 degrees, meaning every day has been almost three degrees below normal in Detroit. Southeast Michigan tourism, benefitting from near-home travel, is up three percent from last year, the only region in the state ahead of last year's pace. Detroit's riverfront ethnic festivals on weekends, for instance, have been drawing crowds three times larger than 1978's record 4.2 million persons.

The Upper Peninsula continues to be the hardest hit area for tourism with business down 20 to 22 percent, and crossings at the Mackinac Bridge off 10 percent from last year's level.

The tourist business in East Michigan, although down about 15 percent for the year to date, enjoyed its best July in history, according to the East Michigan Tourist Association. Ex-

Anna and Flander: A lifetime shared

Church...

Worshipping at church

EDITOR'S NOTE: Church, Family and Friends is the theme of this second part of a three-part photo essay by Staffer David Turnley. Next week's concluding part will deal with their leisure time together and the affection that Anna and Flander Hamlin have for each other.

By DAVID TURNLEY

During my many visits with Flander and Anna, I have been deeply impressed by their strong commitment to their religion and by the love they have for their family and friends.

Their's is a close knit family, even though their grown children live elsewhere in the northwest metropolitan area. When a member of the family needs help, another is there to lend assistance. It is an unspoken bond.

The annual putting up of the hay is a good example. Flander monitors the hay and when it is ready to cut, bale, and put into the barn, his sons and grandsons are there almost immediately. It is not a sense of obligation but a love that brings them home to the farm.

Flander and Anna's relationship with their friends is much the same.

Religion is an integral part of their daily lives; it is important to the entire family. They attend a weekly prayer meeting, attend church on Sunday, and in the quiet of their home they read the Bible together nightly before going to sleep.

Many of their social activities revolve around the church, and their daily lives are a constant reflection of their religious devotion.

The Charge of The Bite Brigade

or "You Bite Up My Life"

(In Memoriam to the late Lord Tennyson) I

Half a leg, half an arm, Half an ear onward, Into the belly and flesh Drove the Six Hundred. "Downward the Bite Brigade, Charge for his buns!" they said. Into the quivering flesh Drove the Seven Hundred.

Π

"Downward the Bite Brigade!" Where was that can of Raid? Somewhere, the victim knew: Dumbly he wondered. His not to curse or cry, His not to scratch his thigh, His but to itch and die. Into the shuddering flesh Drove the Eight Hundred.

Ш

Dronings to left of him, Dronings to right of him, Dronings in front as they Buzz-bombed and plundered. Armed with hypodermic sting, Vampire on tiny wing, Into the welted flesh, Into nearly everything Drove the Nine Hundred.

IV

Slashed they his clothing bare, Slashed all his limbs and hair, Savoring the juices there, Strafing the victim, who Knew he had blundered. Heedless of their sabor-stroke Right through the swarm he broke, Streaking! Running! Rushing! Knowing if he fell he'd croak, Vastly outnumbered. Ah, but they were fooled not; no, Not the Ten Hundred!

V

Dronings to left of him, Dronings to the right; so many They have to line up for a bite! Alas for our hero! His Hours are numbered. Armed with hypodermic sting, Alas! Alas! They fed on him. He who'd been unwilling bait And fought so well, has met his fate. Into the cringing, cowering flesh, All that was left of him, Drove the Eleven Hundred.

VI

And the lesson of this little tale? Stay away from wooded vale! Your bloodline they'll sunder. Wander not through forest cage! Honor the vicious Bite Brigade, Terrible Twelve Hundred.

Workers' comp reform runs into political snag

By WARREN M. HOYT

Partisan politics spelled doom to a proposed week long series of meetings designed to rewrite cost premiums and benefit levels of the state's workers' compensation liability program.

No matter how hard both sides try, there are basic differences between labor and business when considering proposed reforms for the workers' compensation laws.

A task force on workers' compensation got off to a fast start in the opening sessions of a week-long series but partisan haggling put a halt to any progress.

The scheduled concentrated hearings were unable to be completed as both sides agreed there was nothing to gain by continuing them at the present rate. They were postponed for at least 30 days to allow both sides to cool.

Labor was successful with the adoption of a principle that maximum benefits should be 100 percent of the average weekly wage beginning January, 1980.

Business opposed the decision, warning that establishing a 100 percent maximum on benefits could increase benefit costs for employers from 18 to 25 percent. Additionally, they suggested workers' compensation insurance premiums could also increase by as much as 10 percent.

Twenty-one states have already adopted 100 percent of the average wage as the maximum benefits and some states have even higher maximums

Labor, however getting 100 maximum, wanted to set the maximum at 133 percent of the 1980 average wage by 1982 and at 200 percent by 1986

During the second day of discussions, mended that minimum benefits for disabled workers be abolished.

Business argued for the elimination of minimum benefits saying it would prevent the occasional situation where a worker gets more under workers compensation than he did while still working.

Labor advisors warned, however, that elimination of minimum benefits could also mean workers with debilitating injuries would be left with benefits as low as $10 to $15 per week. Currently the state requires benefits of two-thirds the average weekly wage ' available in the near future. for death and total disability.

Upon the elimination of the minimum benefit level, task force chairman Senator David Plawecki (D-Dearborn Heights), who is also chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, said he was afraid the group was falling into a partisan split on the labor issues, but continuing bipartisan support on business issues.

During the third meeting of the group, which was to make recommendations to the Legislature on workers' compensation, partisanship was in the open and the total process was beginning to break down.

The group was beginning to consider inflation protection and coordination of benefits.

A stalemate over major issues developed by Thursday and the task force adjourned for 30 days, thus spelling doom for reform for the remainder of the current calendar year.

The workers' compensation question is always listed as a top priority item for every convening Legislature. Additionally, it is always left unresolved when the final pieces fall into place.

Even with the art of compromise, the group reversed itself and recom- such items as workers' compensation and unemployment compensation cannot be solved when both business and labor feels so strongly about the issue and are willing to go to the mat for their benefits.

In Michigan, where labor is constantly challenging business, it is all that much more important for business to at least hold its ground.

For these reasons, workers' compensation and unemployment compensation will continue to be listed as top? priority items for each subsequent? Legislature with a resolution not

The environment and economics, have clashed again, this time over a possible extension of year-round shipping on the Great Lakes.

Business and industry in the northern lower and upper peninsulas have been pushing for extension of the navigation, season to get raw materials in and iron' ore and finished products out during the winter months.

Meanwhile, environmentalists question an expanded navigation year and say they cannot be sure what effects the extension would have on the environment of the lakes and shoreline.

A modest extension of the Great, Lakes shipping is reasonable, ac-; cording to a recent report issued by: Governor William G. Milliken, but a proposal for year-round activity was reiected.

He said he could not support the yearround proposal because of a lack of study of alternatives and of environmental and economic impacts. The shipping season normally ends in mid-December

Lady hoopsters strive for five

By JIM HAYNES

"We've had a problem with numbers," Dave Schoopp, varsity coach of the Mustang girls' basketball program said. He was referring to the small number of athletes that have attended practice so far. "We have enough girls right now for eight aplece on both the varsity and J.V. squads."

Another set of numbers Schoopp has d a problem with are the figures that appear in the won/lost column at the end of each season. Four years ago the girl Mustangs lost every game. The same thing happened three years ago. Then Schoopp took over the reins of the program and the team won once two years ago and once last year. That's two wins in four years. And it is also the past, which is something Schoopp is trying to forget.

I'm convinced the program is going to get better. It has to with the junior high programs, rec leagues and summer camps," he said. "I can tell the difference with the girls we have out now. We may not have many girls out but I can tell you this, the people that we do have out, the ones that take part in the practices regularly, are probably the most talented, skillful group of sophomores anywhere.

"The key to our season will be in-juries. We just can't afford anyone out with an injury. With only 16-18 people for two teams, an injury could really hurt us.

The 1979 Mustangs are a young team. Schoopp has two seniors coming back, six juniors and nine sophomores out for the two teams. The varsity will be comprised of all the upper classmen and two sophomores.

Sue Townsend and Kim Kurzawa are the only returnees from the varsity team last year. "Townsend is a leader," Schoopp said. "She has been hurt in that she was late coming to practice because of camps and vacaion. Kurzawa is a natural athlete but she was hurt playing summer softball and she too has missed some practices due to the other sport."

The juniors that Schoopp will work with are Kim McGuire, Julie Hunko,

Detroit teams on the rise

This is going to be fun for me because I love to spout about the professional teams in Detroit. Trades that should be made, trades that shouldn't have been made, managers' faults and players' virtues, I have an opinion on everything. Not because I'm a SPORTSWRITER, but because above all else, I'm a fan.

Let's start with the Tigers, I think that in their case, the old axiom of 'wait until next year' seems to hold true. I think that next year the pitching staff will be the strongest part of the team. Manager Sparky Anderson will have Dan Petry, Bruce Robbins, Pat Underwood, Mike Chris and Jack Morris for a starting five. Not an over-the-hill arm among them. That's why either Jack Billingham or Milt Wilcox will be traded. One but not both. I think that Billingham will be the one to stay because he is consigned to pitching in long relief. Wilcox is a starter and wouldn't be content to pitch in relief. Billingham has savvy and can work with the young pitchers, calm them down in a crisis.

I think that Dave Rosema will be gone next year. He doesn't have that good a selection of pitches and with the youngsters the Tigers have now, there will be no room for him. If Fidrych comes back, the Tigers will make room for him because he is a gate draw. If he fails next season to come around, he also will be gone. John Hiller is having a rough year and I don't know whether he will retire at the end of the year or not. If he can develop a slider and a sinker over the course of the winter, he could once again be the mainstay of the bull pen. Dave Tobik has a cannon-arm but once the batters around the league found but he could only throw a fast ball. they started clobbering him. He also needs to work on another pitch or two over the winter and I'd wager that he will be one of the players Anderson ships out to an instructional league over the winter just for that purpsoe. Aurelio Lopes will need the winter to recover from the work he is getting this season. But those three; Hiller, Tobik and Lopez could make a very fine relief corps. Now that end of the season is coming close, I think that the third baseman that plays the most, either Aurelio Rodriguez or Phil Mankowski, will be gone next year. Tom Brookins will have the starting job next season because of his bat. The player that Anderson uses the most in the last month of the season, either Rodriguez or Mankowski, will be used mainly to show off their abilities, to raise their market value. The one that plays the most will be the one that is traded. I'd say it will be Rodriguez because a contender could use his glove as insurance next year. Mankowski, while good in the field, is average at the plate, and any team that can afford to buy Rodriguez' glove can afford to have his candy bat in the lineup. Trammel and Whitaker are fixtures in the lineup. They'll be there as long as they can walk, run and turn-two. Jason Thompson is expendable. If the Tigers can get quality for him, he's gone. Even though the Tigers have what I think will be a good pitching staff next year, if Detroit could get a solid starting pitcher for Thompson, I think Jim Campbell would do it. For one thing, John Wockenfuss can play first base and anyone that can hit 15 home runs in spot duty should be given the chance to play every day. I think the same logic that would justify a trade of Thompson can be used to justify a trade of Ron LeFlore. He is playing out his option and 'knowing Campbell's reputation for stinginess, would more than likely Jeave to go to the highest bidder anyway. So the Tigers may trade him just so they won't come up empty-handed. Steve Kemp may never have another year like the one he is having this season, but even so, he is fixed in leftfield. Champ Summers seems to be set in rightfield too. With Lynn Jones the heir apparent to 'LeFlore's centerfield spot (Jones has speed and the best arm in the outfield), look for Detroit to bring up some of its bonus babies next year, either Kirk Gibson or Rick Leach, to groom them slowly for the major leagues. I'd say that Jerry Morales will be kept as insurance, ; but he may be part of a package deal in a trade. . So that means that Milt Wilcox, Dave Rozema, Aurelio Rodriguez, Jason Thompson and Ron LeFlore are likely to depart for other pastures this winter. It will be interesting to see who Detroit gets in return The Detroit Lions will win their division merely because no one else is good enough. Green Bay and Minnesota don't have quarterback and Chicago doesn't have a defense. The Lions are adequate in both ofrense and defense and this year adequacy will be enough to win.

team poses for its team picture. The squad has nowhere to go but up as it won only one of 19 contests last season. Coach Dave Schoopp is certain that his team will do much better this year. Team members are (top row, clockwise) Kim McGuire, Jaque ed to challenge the British superiority of the game. Now teams from Germany, Italy, France, Belgium, Romania and Yugoslavia are considered world class.

Nixon, Luan Tuttle, Lori Mitchell, Janet Hudolin, Margi Muller, Melinda House, Sandra Flannigan, Gene Wagner (J.V. coach), Heidi Wagner, Karen Sledz, Sabina Vanderwow and Julie Hunko.

The United States has been slow to embrace soccer as a sport. But that situation is changing with the advent of professional soccer in America. Now vouth leagues are springing up all around the states.

In Northville, there are hundreds of families involved with the recreation department's soccer program each spring and fall. And this fall will mark the debut of the Northville High School varsity soccer team.

For those who aren't familiar with soccer, here are some basic terms and a bit of game strategy that will help you to understand the game. But no amount of reading will enable you to enjoy the sport as much as if you actually go watch a match. In soccer there are two teams who battle against each other to put a round white ball into the opposing team's net. For each goal, one point is given. The players, with the exception of the goalies, are forbidden to touch the ball with their hands or arms. That means the only way of player can control the ball is with his feet, head, torso or legs.

The positions for members of a team are at forward (the attacking player who positions closest to the opposing team's net, a goal scorer); at midfield (this man is the first line of defense and after he steals the ball from the opposing team, passes to

Win American League title

Blues finish 17-0

The regular softball season has come to an end and it's playoff-time next. The Blues remained the only undefeated team in the league as the squad closed out the regular season with a 17-0 mark. Winner's Cirlce edged Long-Zayti out of second place and Sheehan's Little Caesar tied for first in the National League race with Custard Time/Cutler Realty. The winner of that league title will be settled in a playoff game after the regular post-season playoffs are complete.

Winner's Circle deposed second-place Long-Zayti with a convincing 20-3 triumph last week. Zayti opened the game with three quick runs in the first inning, but Winner's Circle shut the faucet after that frame. Circle scored 11 runs in the second inning, two in the third, four in the fourth and three in the fifth. Jeff Moon belted two home runs and walked to score four times. He knocked in four runs. Joey Bishop smacked a double and three singles, Mike Kantor and Norm Kubitsky each hit three singles and Greg Pochmara hit a double and triple for the winners.

O.L.V. 3, SHEEHAN'S LITTLE CAESARS 0

O.L.V. scored one run in the second and two in the sixth inning to beat firstplace Sheehan's 3-0. Sheehan's managed just six hits off of the offering of shutout artist Ed Naszradi. Jim Overby hit a triple and a double for the losing team. Bill Brielmaier hit two singles and scored the first O.L.V. run. Bill Fitzpatrick and Tom Freiwald scored the other two runs. Freiwald hit a single and a triple. Fitzpatrick hit a single and a walk. Dick Ryba had an RBI-single for the winners.

SHEEHAN'S ON THE GREEN 17, SPICER TOOL 17

Sheehan's came up with nine lastinning runs to salvage a tie with Spicer Tool. Bill Pucket hit a home run, a single and a double for Spicer's. Craig Barrowcliff hit a triple and two singles and Roland Tarrow smacked a triple, a single and two doubles. Sheehan's got home runs from Don McDonald, Don Dales and Greg Armstrong. McDonald had two singles to go with his roundtripper, as did Armstrong.

They're off and pacing at the recently opened Jackson Harness Raceway. The raceway opened on August 17 and offers a 47 night standardbred racing meet schedule this season.

Wednesday night racing will be added to the format which was so successful during Jackson's spring meet and Sunday racing, pioneered this year, will continue with an emphasis on family fun and an early 6 p.m. Post Time. Wednesday through Saturday nights, Post Time is 7:30 p.m.

Favorite Jackson stables like those of Glen Quick, Terry Tomlin, Ray Fuller, Dan and Pete O'Hare, and C.J. Osborn — whose horses have earned more than $100,000 during the 1979 fair racing cir-

They're off and pacing at the recently cuit stakes — will be on hand as well as pened Jackson Harness Raceway. The stables from Ohio and Illinois.

This meet Exacta wagering will be offered in the second race giving handicappers the nightly double and nine chances to pick their favorites in order of finish in addition to straight win place and show wagering on all ten races nightly.

The mid-west leg of the National Junior Driving Championship will be highlighted on August 30 as young drivers 14-19 compete for $5,000 in money or scholarships. Last year's defending champion, John Zawistowksi from Chicago, will be competing against young drivers from Michigan and Ohio.

CUSTARD TIME/ CUTLER REALTY 19, JAYCEES 9

Al Cox, Gary Callender and John Hubert each hit three singles in leader -CT/CR to a 19-9 win over the Northville Jaycees. Fred Yankee hit a single and a double and Dennis Belleperche did the same for the winners. George Buelow the win. Roland Tarrow hit two doubles, a triple and a single. Andy Walters hit a double and two singles. Ted Gores hit four singles and scored twice for State Farm. Tom Mallon hit two singles and scored two runs in a losing cause. NORTHVILLE PLAYERS 10, EAGLES 9

The Eagles scored three runs in the seventh inning to take a 9-8 lead over the Players but the last-at-bats often prove fatal and that was the case for the Eagles as the Players scored two runs in the last of the frame to win 10-9. Steve Harmon hit three singles and a seventh-

Hartland arena is open

The Livingston Community Ice Arena, which is located in the Hartland Plaza at M-59 and US-23 will open September 5, 6, and 7 for hockey travel team tryouts at all levels. Registration for the L.C.H.A. program will take place September 14 (6-9 p.m.) and September 15 (9-1 p.m.) at the arena.

Tryouts for the house league will take place September 24, 25, 26 and 27 with the actual player draft to be held on September 27. Players will be notified of their team assignments the next day. The program will begin on September 29.

The L.C.H.A. hockey program has grown over the years in both the number of skaters and in reputation statewide for producing winning teams. Last year, the Squirt travel team, composed of 9 and 10-year olds, finished second in the Adray playoffs, first in district playoffs and fourth in the state playoff competition. The Peewee travel team, 11 and 12-year olds, also had an outstanding year. The Boilermakers were second in their conference, second in the Adray playoffs, first in the district competition and first in the State Playoffs.

to few by birth. Most have to work to develop soccer skills. The Northville Mustangs new soccer squad is no exception. Here (right) Pat Dougher practices keeping the ball in the air using just his feet. This will help develop dexterity and quick pedal reflexes. Above, three members of the team engage in a conditioning exercise known as 'bicycle pedals'. It is estimated that a soccer player runs an average of five miles in a game so conditioning is of prime importance.

Will play softball at EMU Heinzman signs

Suzanne Heinzman, a standout softball player at Northville High School, has become one of the first players to accept a scholarship to play on the newly formed Eastern Michigan University women's softball team. Softball was added this spring as an intercollegiate varsity sport.

The 5-foot-5 Heinzman played shortstop on the Northville team for the past four seasons. As a senior she was thirdteam All-League, third-team All-Area and was named female "Athlete of the Year" at Northville. She was captain of her softball team the past two seasons. As a freshman she was honorable mention All-State in softball and as a junior she was an All-League selection.

Suzanne is the daughter of David and Kitty Heinzman, 552 Fairbrook, Northville.

Northville High School has added soccer as a new varsity sport. The boys team will compete in the fall while the girls team will play in the spring. Do you think that soccer can compete with football as an exciting fall sport?

"We have no real big girls," Schoopp said. "We are going to have to rely on quickness, desire and ability.'

Hunko was a member of the J.V. last year and Wagner is a transfer student from Mercy. It is her first year of organized basketball. Vanderwow was also a member of the J.V. last season.

"Sandra Flannigan is a good athlete," Schoopp said. "She didn't play last year but we plan to get a lot of play out of her this season. Lori Mitchell played a lot last year, worked hard over the summer and will probably be our number one guard. She needs some work on shooting because she's weak there but she is a leader and a real stabalizing influence on the team."

Schoopp will bring two sophomores up to the varsity this season. One is Jacque Nixon and the other, in a need for height, Schoopp will select from one of two: Melinda House or Luan Tuttle.

"I've always told my girls that I would only bring someone up to the varsity if I felt that they had the ability to play at the level of quality of the seventh person on the team," Schoopp said. "But with our height problem I'm forced to bring up someone that will give us some size."

"Nixon is the best player in the program," Schoopp said. "I'm sure that she'll be the leading scorer on the team and will probably be selected to the allleague team, at least in my opinion. She played at Cook, on rec programs and at camps. She really works hard."

Because of the size of his team, Schoopp will be forced to use a motion offense. "I want to use a man-to-man offense, with no set forwards. It's basically a motion offense," he said. 'We'll use a fast break. In fact, we've been working a great deal on it. Our defense will be man-to-man with some traps and zone-presses, although I don't really like to press. We'll use it when it's required.'

What kind of goals can a team that went 1-18 have? The sky is the limit. "I want to make a situation where we get more people involved," Schoopp said. perience.

"This year is the best in terms of the players having a basketball sense about them. We do get some rookies that don't know anything about the game but the level of quality around the state in girls' basketball has improved a great deal. A lot of people would be surprised. Our second goal is to win five games. That would be more games in one season than the teams have won combined for the last four years."

Cheer Coach Needed

By JIM HAYNES

¹² Fifteen Northville girls have done just about all they can do by themselves. Now they want some help. The seven members of the \hat{M} us tang J.V. cheerleading squad and the eight members of the varsity squad are in need for and want a coach.

Laurie Hartman, Patty Dye, Kris Sullivan, Carol W i s s m a n, C a t h y Ciskowski, Renee Miller, Kay Wolf, and Mary Westerveit of the varsity squad, and Laurie Camp-Dell, Elizabeth Bohan, Jeanne Stoddard, Karen Congridge, Kelly Morcison, Erin McGowan and Leslie Bennett of the J.V. Squad have all done as Deams just about all any Seam can do without

The varsity team just returned from the University of Michigan where on July 22-25 they competed in the biggest session of the United States Cheerleading Association's history, Over 380 girls were in at-Lendance. Of all those teams Northville's was one of three to have its hotebook chosen for national competition. The inotebook is a woodcovered, team-decorated history and pot pourri of a little bit from each fnember.

The J.V. squad traveled to Michigan State University and took secondplace honors as a team for their efforts. Karen Longridge was chosen as ' O u t s t a n d i n g Cheerleader'' during the competition.

The football team isn't the only squad that had to but long, hard hours in during the summer. The cheerleaders did the same. In fact, they did more by way of perfecting their craft than any of the other Mustang teams.

The team put in two Spractices a day, two hours a practice, every day since school let out in June. As for the routines the teams use, the girls thought them up themselves. They vote on everything from what pose to do for photographers to what order they do their cheers at games. The varsity squad managed to learn over, 40 new cheers at the U of M camp. So why do they want a coach when they seem to have done very well on their own? If a coach teaches discipline, gives encouragement, and organizes madness into method, then this group of young women doesn't need any guidance at all. In fact, they could probably teach some coaches a few things about these qualities.

8 receive WS degrees

Eight Northville students received degrees from Wayne State University in graduation ceremonies June 19, at Cobo Hall in Detroit.

Holly Branstner, 43444. Galway, received a bachelor of fine arts degree. Doris E. Coir, 317 Dunlap, received a bachelor of arts degree. Billie E. Lampinen, 38649 Southfarm Lane, received a master of science in metallurgical engineering.

Menka P. Prezekop, 19475 Eddington Place, received a master of arts degree. Cheryl L. Seymour, 17024 Bradner, received a bachelor of science in medical technology.

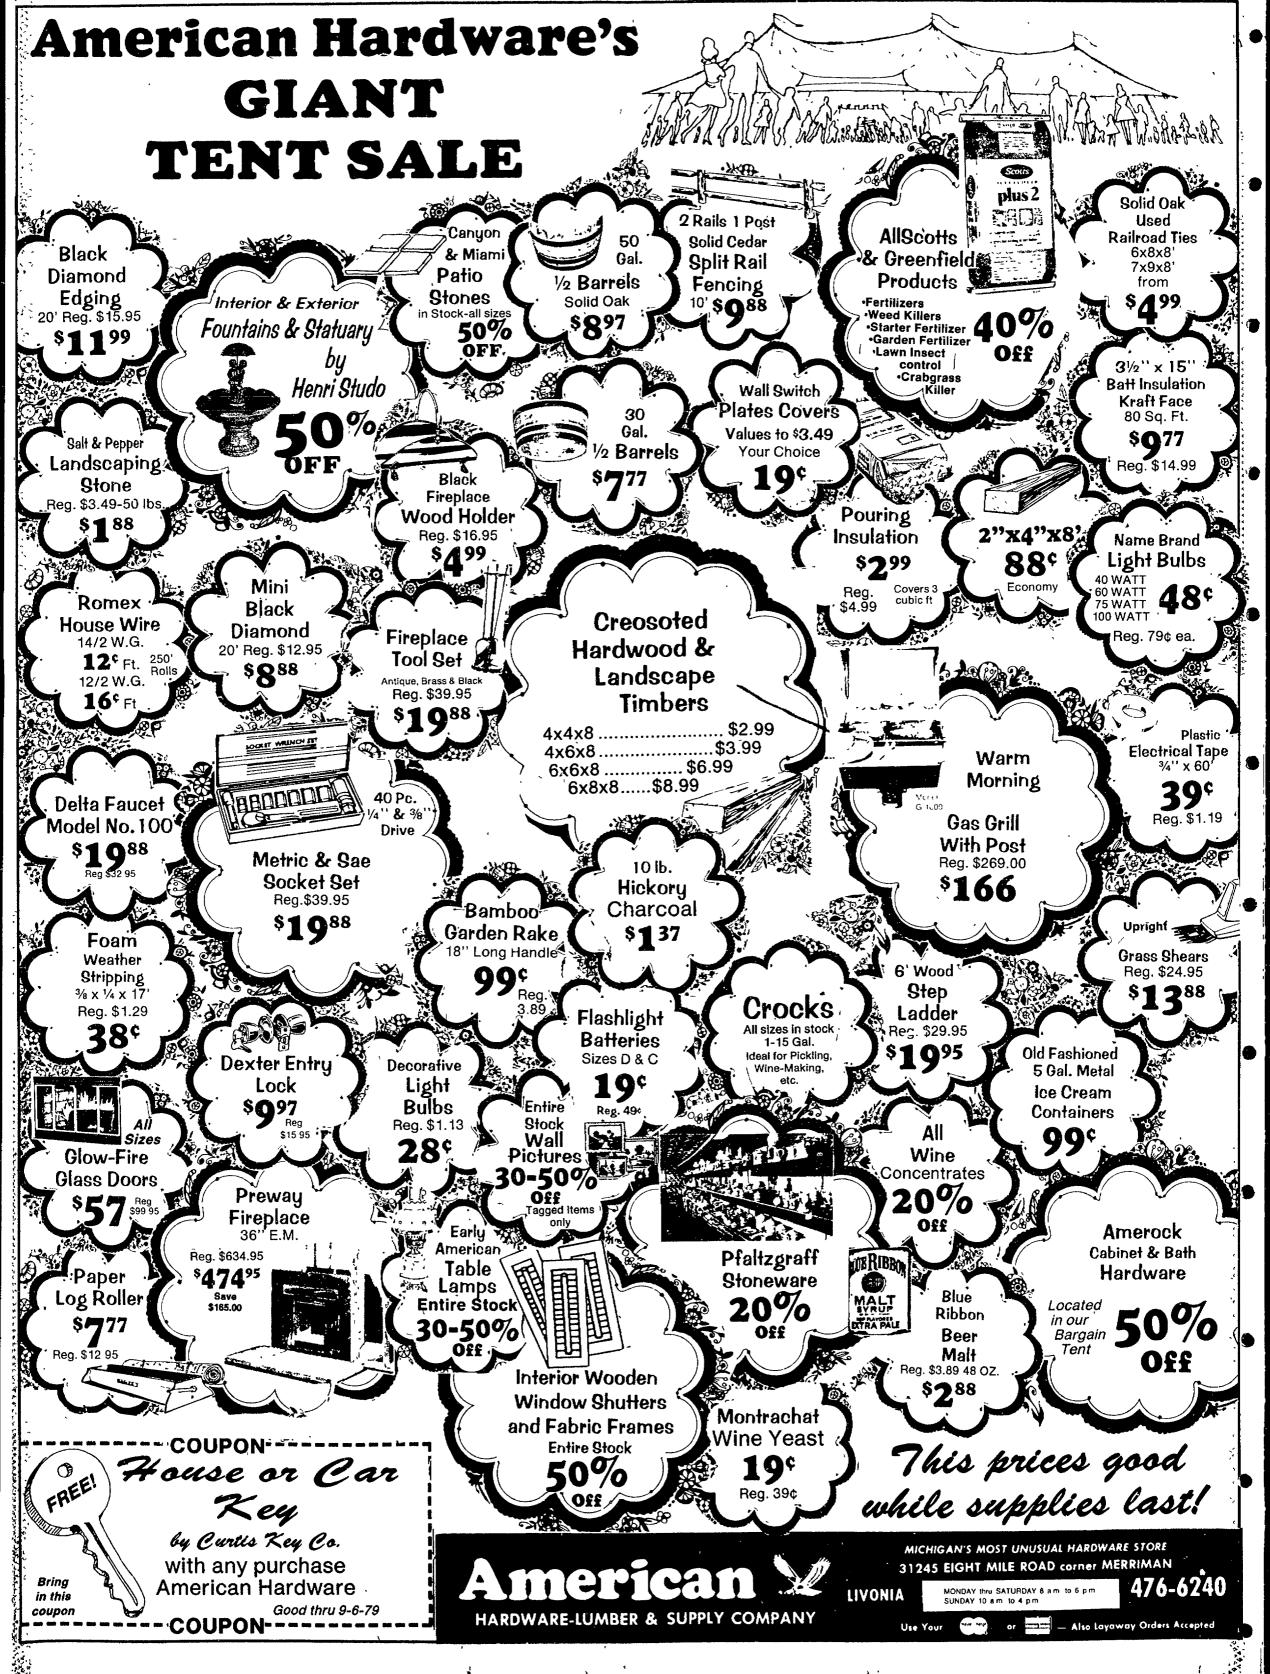

Dolan A. Sievert, 677 Dunlap, received a master of science degree in library science. John C. Wake, 19632 Crystal Lake Drive, and Pamela J. Welland, 331 Ely Drive, both received bachelor of science degrees in business administration.

LEADERLESS CHEERLEADERS—These 15 girls make up the varsity (left) and the J.V. (right) cheerleading squads at Northville High School. The two teams have been without a coach all year and feel that it is about time they get one. Any qualified person interested should call Ralph Redmond at the high school. Members of the squads are (varsity, top row, left to right, clockwise) Laurie Hartman, Patty Dye, Kris Sullivan, Carol Wissman, Cathy Ciskowski, Mary Westervelt, Kay Wold and Renee Miller. The J.V., (top row, clockwise) are Laurie Campbell, Elizabeth Bohan, Jeanne Stoddard, Karen Longridge, Leslie Bennett, Erin McGowan, and Kelly Morrison.
