

Summer sailing adventure makes novice an old salt

Sister travels to Israel while brother is at sea

By KEVIN WILSON

No grass grew under the feet of a Northville brother and sister this summer.

The air of adventure still lingers in the home of Dr. and Mrs. John Romanik, 20000 Beck Road, though son Matthew, 19, and daughter Elizabeth, 17, are finally home after summer trips that took one to Ireland and the other to Israel.

Matthew succumbed to the lure of the sea, crewing aboard a sailboat making the Atlantic crossing from Ireland to a dock at the Roostertail in Detroit.

Elizabeth, meanwhile, took to the friendly skies for a tour of Israel with the Civil Air Patrol, after a language study trip to Germany.

Matthew returned August 17, Elizabeth August 8. Each returned with enough memories to fill out many a conversation. Last Thursday, these were the stories they had to tell:

Matthew's sailing adventure began last fall. He was working for a Redford juke-box vending company owned by John Conrick of Northville when Lloyd Rowland, of East Detroit, the former owner of the company, came by for a visit.

Rowland had sailed his 1970 Morgan single-handed to Ireland in 1978 and left it there. When he came by the shop, he was talking about going back to get it and sail it home.

"I think he was trying to sell it over there but hadn't gotten any good offers in two years, it seems the Irish government wanted to tax it for being there or something," Matthew said.

"He was talking about going to get it and my cousin, who was working there, too, and I sort of jokingly asked if he'd take us. And he said he would!"

Matthew quit attending classes at Schoolcraft College to work full time to earn enough for the trip. Neither he nor his cousin, from Redford, had had much sailing experience.

"I had done a little in small boats, Sunfish at Kensington, like that," Matthew said. "He (Rowland) was willing to take us and teach us. We figured he was the guy to look for to teach sailing. He had a lot of experience, of course, he'd had his Morgan since 1970, and before that he was in the Navy and worked on lake freighters for a long time."

Matthew, his cousin, Rowland and another young man working at the

Body found—execution style killing

The mutilated body of a 27-year-old Detroit man was found Saturday morning in the trash dumpster at Choo-Choo Car Wash on Northville Road just west of Seven Mile.

Township police said patrons of the car wash noticed the body of Ronnie Earl Brown at approximately 10:30 a.m. while using the vacuum cleaners at the car wash.

The man had been shot in the head and leg, his throat had been slit, he had been stabbed several times in the back and his back and arms had been burned, police said.

The man's hands and feet were tied together and one handcuff was found attached to a hand.

"This obviously was an execution-style murder," Township Police Sergeant Phillip Presnell said. "He may have been killed somewhere else and dumped here or he may have been tortured and killed in Northville."

"At this point we don't have a motive."

A youth who lives near the car wash said he was awakened at approximately 3 a.m. Saturday when his dogs started barking uncontrollably.

He said he didn't see anyone in the area, however.

Brown, unemployed according to relatives, was last seen at approximately 3 p.m. Friday near his home.

Any persons having information which may assist police in their investigation are asked to call Sergeant Presnell at 349-9400.

Unique apartment design utilizes flood plain land

A developer received unusual praise at last week's meeting of the city planning commission as site plan approval was given unanimously for "The Sanctuary," a proposed apartment complex.

Benecke and Krue Development Corporation presented plans for 32 one-bedroom units to be built on the northwest corner of Novi and Eight Mile.

City Planning Consultant Ronald Nino commented that the site, lying partly in a flood plain, was a very difficult one with which to work. He lauded the design as being most appropriate utilization of the land.

The two westerly units will be elevated because of the potential and existing flood plain conditions. Open parking will be underneath the buildings.

As they presented the plan, John R. Benecke and Donald Martin, firm vice presidents, pointed out that they had carried unusual design into the interiors also. There are to be loft apartments on the ends of the two main building units with bedrooms above the living rooms. Two types of interior layout will be used, one entering from the kitchen area and the other from the living room. All apartments will have balconies or patios.

A one-floor barrier-free unit will be part of the complex, Martin said, as required by law for a project of this size.

The developers told the commission that they would be taking their plans to the Department of Natural Resources and that approval was expected. They have been in contact with the DNR in planning the design, they said. The plan also has to be viewed and approved by the city board of zoning appeals as the developers are seeking a reduction of 16 parking spaces to permit more landscaping.

As all units are one-bedroom ones, Nino said he supports the application for the reduction.

The developers agreed with commission members that the entrance to the project on Novi was a busy one but unavoidable. Oakland County Road Commission, they stated, had determined the passing and deceleration lanes. The developers said they had sought approval to enter the project through the drive of the adjoining apartments but had been rejected by the owner.

The city was familiar with the property in question as the land lying immediately east of the stream is part of the flood control pattern. Benecke and Krue agreed not to develop this portion and turned it over to the city for park and recreation use.

Benecke and Martin told the commission they had met the night before with residents of Allen Drive who will be neighbors to the apartments and shown them the proposal.

The exterior, they said, also is to be different. They are using a white stucco-like plastic exterior developed in Europe. Martin said it "is more costly

150 fewer pupils expected for fall—elementary loses

By MICHELE McELMURRY

As a somewhat soggy summer comes to a close, Northville teachers, administrators, staff and students, are getting ready to head back to school.

Approximately 3,700 K-12 students are expected in classrooms September 4—a decline of almost 150 students from last year's enrollment.

Enrollment figures from September 20, 1979, the fourth Friday of the 1979-80 school year, show that 3,849 students were enrolled in Northville's K-12 program at that time.

The largest enrollment decline this year is in the elementary schools, according to Nancy Soper, assistant superintendent for instructional services.

Amerman, Moraine, Winchester, and Silver Springs Elementary Schools all show a decline in student enrollment figures since last year.

"Moraine has lost one whole classroom of students," Soper said. She added that the enrollment decline is mostly due to the fact that "there just aren't younger children in those areas."

However, despite a drop in student numbers at the elementary level, enrollment in the junior high schools will remain the same and school administrators are projecting a slightly higher student enrollment at Northville High School.

In addition to the K-12 students, approximately 413 ISEP and special education students also are expected to return to classrooms.

When Northville schools open their doors next week, students will be stepping into hallways and classrooms with freshly painted walls, clean floors, and new furniture.

For the past three months, all seven Northville public schools have been undergoing renovations, which include everything from replacing exterior doors at Amerman Elementary to replacing hot water heaters at Winchester and Silver Springs.

Approximately $150,000 has been spent on renovations, according to William Hood, director of operations.

Exterior painting currently is being done at Northville High School and Amerman Elementary. The painting work at the high school is being done by the youth participants of Growth Works, Inc.

Concrete walks have been installed at the football stadium, at the administration building and along the frontage of Moraine property on Eight Mile. A concrete walk at Meads Mill is expected to be completed by September.

Cars are downsized—should spaces shrink?

As smaller Fiestas, Toyotas, Reliants and Citations replace Continentals, Cougars, Imperials and Coupes de Ville in city parking lots, shouldn't parking spaces shrink too?

Northville City Council is taking a hard look at its zoning ordinance's generous provisions of 10 by 20 foot spaces with an eye to reductions.

Because part of the Downtown Development Authority project will be the redesigning and re-striping of parking areas throughout the downtown, City Manager Steven Walters told council at its August 1 meeting that this would be an appropriate time to amend the ordinance.

He provided comparisons with standards of neighboring communities showing that Farmington, Farmington Hills, Novi, Southfield and Plymouth have been operating for some time with nine-foot spacings.

The council referred the proposal to city planning commission for its consideration at its meeting August 19 and indicated it will hold a public hearing soon, probably at its September 22 meeting.

Not everyone was in agreement, however. After the initial reaction that the reduction probably would provide more spaces, commission member James Cutler spoke for those who still opt for big cars, saying he feels there should be a mix of sizes.

"I'm willing to have the big spaces at the back of the lots," he declared, "and would be willing to walk to protect the doors of the car. Otherwise, people will be using two spaces."

The zoning ordinance now provides for the 10 by 20 standard for 90 degree parking and 9½ by 20 for angle parking of 74 degrees or less.

County planners okay elderly zoning class

Wayne County Planning Commissioners have given their blessing to the proposed elderly village development on Child Development Center lands by approving a special zoning district for the project.

County planners approved the RME zoning amendment to the township ordinance at its August meeting. It was sent them by the township planning commission, which created the class to accommodate the proposed development.

Preliminary plans call for multiple housing units six stories in height surrounded by cluster townhouses. The complex, on land east of Sheldon between Five and Six Mile Roads, would also include a nursing home, clinic and recreational facilities for elderly residents.

The high dwelling unit density and six story buildings could not be approved under any zoning district currently in use.

Approval by county planners sends the zoning amendment to the township board of trustees for approval September 11. Once approved by the board, township planners will call a public hearing to consider applying the new classification to the land in question.

In related developments, Wayne County Commissioners have yet to consider deeding the land to the county economic development corporation (EDC), which would then be able to begin searching for a developer for the project. EDC officials have said they would prefer to make the deed request after zoning regulations have been settled.

Elizabeth Romanik Local teen tours Israel

Four years of active membership in the Civil Air Patrol paid off for Elizabeth, 17, with a two week tour of Israel.

The time she spent as a CAP member earned her sufficient rank (captain) and accomplishment to qualify for summer trips attended by 176 CAP members nation-wide and five from Michigan.

Few people know about the Civil Air Patrol, Elizabeth says. It is a branch of the Air Force whose members work voluntarily on search and rescue missions when planes crash, civil defense measures and on natural emergency relief efforts.

The nearest branch is in Plymouth, though Elizabeth's unit is based in Redford.

The summer trips are intended "to promote understanding between nations. It's sort of a young ambassador program," Elizabeth says.

Travel is sponsored world-wide, with applicants giving a priority list of three destinations. Israel was Elizabeth's first choice.

"We had just had a Model United Nations meeting at school (Our Lady of Mercy) and I had represented Israel in that," Elizabeth explains. "That aroused my interest and it was only a short time after that I filed my application and I gave Israel as my first choice. I was really surprised when I got it, because I didn't even think I'd qualify."

There were 10 travelers in the group in Israel plus two American escorts. Representation was truly international.

"They came from Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, Germany, Holland, France, Belgium, England, Scotland and Canada," Elizabeth said.

"Canada, Britain and Germany have organizations close to the Civil Air Patrol idea. In many other countries they sent people from an aero club, or kids who were taking pilot's lessons."

The trip was custom made to interest young people with an interest in flight. The group stayed with families in Ramad-Gan, a suburb of Tel Aviv and took excursions to air bases throughout the country.

"Most of the trip, the government took us around," Elizabeth explains. "We were supposed to meet with the president, but he was busy so we met with some of his secretaries, like his cabinet."

One of the most interesting parts of the tour, Elizabeth said, was that in the few weeks spent there the group saw every border of the nation.

"It's such a tiny thing," she says. "Almost the whole time we were there was a history lesson about Israel so we could understand more about the country."

Air bases contained a lot of American equipment CAP members had already seen at home, but the Israelis kept much of it covered and hidden.

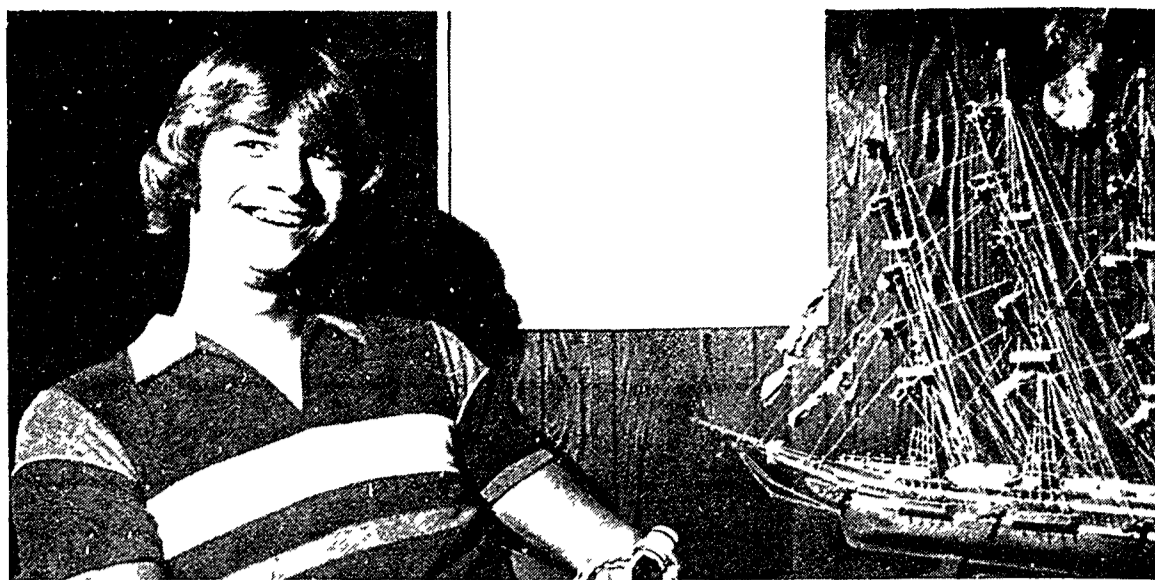

"I was surprised at how secretive they were," she says. "I suppose they were hiding it from people from other countries. They're so small; I can see why they'd want to maintain some secrecy for security."

There were slightly over two weeks in Israel and one week traveling each way. On the way over, the group stopped in Washington for a briefing and on the way back stops were made in Germany and Washington.

For Elizabeth, the stop in Germany was the second of the summer. She qualified for a foreign language exchange program and had only returned from Germany two weeks before leaving for Israel.

Selection for the CAP trips is based on time in the organization, rank, pilot's experience and foreign languages spoken. Though Elizabeth has no pilot's experience, her proficiency in German and Russian boosted her standings for selection.

She graduated from Our Lady of Mercy this year. In the fall, she begins studies at Michigan State University. Her courses will include some pre-med work, a previous career preference, but Elizabeth plans to measure in political science and, what else? — foreign affairs.

Home seems luxurious now to ocean sailor Matthew Romanik

Novice sailor crosses sea

vending shop set out for Ireland April 29. There they met "Equity," a 42-foot Morgan sloop-rigged sailboat whose name bears obvious significance.

"We spent a month preparing the boat for sea, it hadn't had much maintenance in two years," Matthew recalls. "We stocked up on canned goods — all the cans had to be painted so they wouldn't rust at sea."

In Matthew's opinion, Ireland was cold and wet the whole time. "The Irish didn't think so, though. When the sun came out, no matter what the temperature was, they were out there in their short sleeve shirts like it was hot. It was just the sun, it was still really cold."

They left Cork, Ireland, June 4 and set sail for Madeira, a Portuguese island about 400 miles west of Morocco. This first leg of the journey gave Matthew and crew their first lessons in ocean sailing.

"He (Rowland) had met this Irish guy in 1978 and we took him and his son to the Canaries," he said. "Boy, it was crowded on that boat with six people aboard. There's not much room when there's four people, but it was really crowded with six and that's when we had our worst weather."

Two storms cropped up during their 15-day trip to Madeira, one of which pulled a mast support cable from the spreaders.

"That was really close, the mast bent way over and nearly broke or fell over," Matthew recalls. They flipped the cable back in place and tied the spreaders close, in the rough sea.

"It was cold and wet all the time. You were always wet, there's water everywhere, you can't escape, there's no place to dry out on the sailboat."

This quick baptism in stormy seas was followed by four days in Madeira "with our legs on dry land again," and the hop over to the Canary Islands to drop off their Irish passengers.

"We spent about three days in the Canaries reprovisioning," for the crossing of the Atlantic. They also checked out the repaired mast, which held through the rest of the voyage.

"We had real language barrier problem there," Matthew notes. "The captain sent us down to the market. You should have seen these 18, 19 and 20 year-old guys trying to buy in that market, trying to communicate with these Spanish speaking merchants, getting peaches and oranges and stuff." Matthew shakes his tanned face and sun-bleached blond hair at the memory.

A relatively calm 23-day sail brought Equity to Bermuda. Matthew was surprised at the amount of traffic encountered in the open sea.

"You figure with all that room out there in the ocean you'd hardly ever see another vessel," Matthew explains. "But it's really close, a lot of traffic. We saw a lot of freighters and tankers so close that you begin to wonder if maybe you shouldn't change course a little."

If it was crowded at sea, five days out of Bermuda the approach to New York harbor was elbow to elbow.

"We ended up just off the light in the fog," Matthew recalls. "All you could hear were fog horns and engines." They finally worked their way into the harbor at 2 a.m., almost 24 hours after first sighting land.

Favorable weather on the Atlantic had them 10 days ahead of schedule. They took Equity up the Hudson River to Albany, New York with the mast unstepped, thence to Oswego, New York onto Lake Ontario and through the canals to Lake Erie. They were "marooned in Buffalo" for four days, which Matthew said is surprisingly not as bad as it may sound.

"Buffalo turned out to be kind of a nice little city," he says.

Although there was a lot of shipping traffic in the Great Lakes, it caused few problems for the sailing crew, which stayed out of the main shipping channel.

Matthew called his parents shortly before midnight August 17 from under the Ambassador Bridge, telling them Equity would arrive at the Roostertail in about two hours. They were met by television and newspaper crews, as well as family and friends.

"I've been home a short enough time that couches and showers and home are still real luxuries," he said Thursday.

He'll return to classes at Schoolcraft in September, taking a general curriculum while choosing a field of study. He is not planning any more sailing adventures in the near future.

"I'm not going to go anywhere for awhile," Matthew said. "I'll become a weekend sailor. If anything, maybe I'll be going out to Kensington."

Within the school buildings carpeting is being installed at the Northville High School media center and the Cooke Junior High media center.

Other carpeting replacements or repairs are being made at Moraine, Silver Springs, and Winchester.

Cafeteria furniture is on order for Cooke Junior High School and a study to determine the feasibility of solar energy for domestic water needs at the high school is being prepared by the school district architectural firm.

In addition to renovations at the elementary schools, junior highs and high school, the most noticeable renovation has taken place at the Old Village School.

After numerous delays due to electrical strikes, carpenter strikes and the State Fire Marshall's objection rule, it looks as though students will be returning to the building September 4.

Leonard Rezmierski, director of special education, indicated in a memo to School Superintendent Lawrence Nichols, that "by all accounts indicated, all necessary work for reentry should be completed by September 2."

"If all work is finished by September 2, we will then call for final inspection from the local Fire Marshall's office, that being the final hurdle, and a letter from his office would then permit us to reenter with students in September," the memo stated.

The staff is expected to move into the building September 2, and is currently in the process of boxing and tagging items which will be moved into the renovated building.

So, as summer comes to a silent close and the ringing of school bells begins, students will have to start packing away their beach towels and hunting around for their dusty lunch boxes.

Beginning September 4, it will be back to the books when the 1980-81 school year officially gets underway.

Less space for cars

In a large lot, Walters had computed, the reductions could amount to 11 percent more parking spaces.

The commission asked city planning consultant Ronald Nino to study the proposal and report at its September meeting.

At the meeting Nino said he felt the smaller spaces are adequate today and suggested that the city also consider reducing the length, scaling down to as small as eight by 16.

Walters also is recommending that striping standards used by Southfield be implemented for the city. Except for parallel parking, spaces are striped with double lines 24 inches apart. He says this greatly "facilitates the orderly alignment of cars."

Landscaped islands are placed intermittently in the lots and at ends of parking rows.

As the DDA project will include resurfacing most of the parking lots this year, Walters says, the design should be one "that seems realistic for the next several years."

It appears that the dinosaurs are gone — and that the Eagles take less space.

Auditions set

Schoolcraft College's Wind and Jazz ensemble will hold auditions for new members beginning September 3.

According to Dr. Richard Saunders, assistant dean for fine arts and sciences, 44 musicians will be selected for the Wind Ensemble at the September 3 and 10 auditions.

Players will be selected for the Jazz Ensemble at auditions September 8 and 15.

Auditions will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. in Room 310 of the Forum Building on campus.

Persons requesting further information, can contact 591-6400, extension 510.

Musicians needed for band

Northville Community Band is looking for musicians who want to play for enjoyment.

membership drive is being held during August and September.

Practices are held at 7:30 p.m. every Wednesday, beginning again September 2 at Cooke Junior High, 21200 Taft north of Eight Mile.

Anyone from the metropolitan area is invited, reports Jane Francouer, 349-8242, adding that there are no auditions and no fees.

Fish hatchery site vandalized

A Northville DPW tractor parked at the newly constructed shed at the Fish Hatchery on Seven Mile was vandalized sometime during the early morning hours of August 19, city police reported.

Damage to the 1976 Ford tractor included broken head lights, a bent throttle, damaged electrical wiring, a flat left front tire, missing air cleaner, glass instrument faces broken, seat cover removed and thrown in pond, sand in fuel tank and muffler broken off, police said.

Estimated cost of damage has not been determined.

The battery was tampered with and also may be damaged, police said.

Currently, there are no suspects.

Unknown persons August 21 kicked out the glass of an east side door at Northville Lanes, 132 South Center, city police reported.

Damage is estimated at $125.

A black and white Sony television valued at $100 was taken from a Beal residence sometime between August 5 and August 15, city police reported.

Several scraps of clothe in a bag also were found missing.

The burglars apparently entered the residence by prying open a basement window, police said.

A 12-year-old Dearborn bicyclist was hurt August 16 when he was struck by a car at the intersection of Seven Mile and South Main, city police reported.

The cyclist, Paul Davies, riding his bike toward downtown Northville on the southbound shoulder of South Main, told police he stopped at Seven Mile and waited for the car, which was making a right turn onto southbound Main, to stop, then proceeded.

The driver, Joseph O'Brien of Livonia, said he did not see the bike until it was directly in front of his vehicle.

Davies suffered minor cuts and bruises on his chest.

A 23-channel CB radio and a plastic cooler were reported stolen from a 1977 Chevy van parked in the driveway of an Eaton Drive residence August 21, police said.

The stolen property is valued at $100.

Police do have a suspect in the case.

Thirty eight-track tapes, a hunting knife and a Kodak Super 8 camera were reported taken from a 1975 Pontiac parked in the driveway of a Fairbrook residence August 21, police said.

The stolen items are valued at more than $300.

A console and cassette stereo were reported stolen from a 1977 Datsun parked in the city lot across from the Winner's Circle Bar on Main sometime between August 14 and August 19, police said.

One car door was left unlocked, police said.

Stolen property is valued at $185.

A parking meter located just east of 168 East Main was broken off at the bottom and hauled away August 19, city police reported.

The meter is valued at approximately $185, police said.

Seven windows — four wired and three clear glass — were broken out at Silver Springs School, 19801 Silver Spring Drive, sometime between August 15 and August 18, township police reported.

The damage to the windows, which are located on the west and northwest sides of the building, is valued at $600.

A 1973 men's 10-speed bicycle was taken from the back porch of a Fonner

Court residence sometime between August 13 and August 16, township police reported.

The bike is valued at $150.

A storage building on the grounds of the former Wayne County Child Development Center, 16300 Sheldon, apparently was broken into, township police reported.

While on patrol police found two doors on the east side of the storehouse open.

The doors had either been kicked or pried open, police said.

It is not known if anything is missing.

The canvas cover of a 1978 Cadillac Eldorado was taken August 16 while the vehicle was parked in front of a Windsor Court residence, township police reported.

The cover, which fits only Eldorados, is valued at $100.

Firefighting was hard

Fire buffs are invited to come to the Plymouth Historical Museum, located at 155 South Main in Plymouth, and "ring the alarm!"

An 1850 muffin-type bell carried by fire wardens or patrols is part of the museum's large collection of fire-fighting memorabilia.

On hearing the muffin bell alarm, church bells or any large bell was rung in a community to give a fire alert.

Also in the current exhibit are lanterns carried on fire trucks from 1890 to 1921; leather fire chief helmet from the 1880s to 1930; an 1835 leather fire bucket; an 1890 Roman-style parade helmet; a helmet from an English fire brigade; and many toy fire trucks.

There also are many items associated with the Plymouth Fire Department.

The museum is open Thursday, Saturday and Sunday from 1-4 p.m.

Admission is $1 for adults; 50 cents for youth 12-17; and 25 cents for children 5-11.

Special educational tours may be arranged in advance by calling the museum, 455-8940.

but we want to try it."

The 32 units under the city code formula count for two rooms each, or a density of 64, which is one less room than the maximum permitted for the amount of land. In computing the density the land lying west of the Rouge was included.

The zoning ordinance presently requires two and a half parking spaces per unit. Both Nino and the developer stated they felt this is more than necessary for a one-bedroom complex. Martin said their studies show that only 20-30 percent will have two occupants with the rest having a single renter.

It is expected that rents will start about $300 to $325 with the higher price apartments being the ones facing the Rouge stream.

Each unit will have its own forced air furnace and air conditioning. Occupants will pay their own gas and electric utility bills.

The Wheel Keeps Turning

Preserving atmosphere

The water wheel adjacent to Ford's Northville Valve Plant continues to turn these days, but it does not provide the electricity that it once did.

Back in the early days of the present valve plant, (about 1936 or so), the Fitz Overshot water wheel generated power for production.

"I don't know if it powered the whole plant, but it powered a goodly portion of it," says John Lisko, a professor at Schoolcraft College.

Water from the Mill Pond would leave through an underground raceway until it reached the top of the wheel. There, it would run over the top of the wheel, setting the gears in motion. The turning wheel would drive a 30 horsepower electric generator which supplied the power.

Eventually the generator's use was discontinued and the generator was shipped to a Mexican subsidiary, according to Lisko.

Lisko did some intensive research on the water wheel in 1977 when he taught a Low Energy course at the college. He intended to use the water wheel as a class project.

Remains from the generator still can be found in a small glass enclosing above the wheel. Water from the Mill Race still turns the wheel today, but its only purpose is to provide enjoyment for the community, preserving the "village industries" atmosphere.

In a glass-walled enclosing above the water wheel lie the remains of a 30 horsepower generator which once supplied power to the valve plant. (Far left) Plant Superintendent Albert J. Hellow stands among these dusty remnants which include the old hand wrenches originally used to operate the generator (left).

Choir audition date set for fall

Schoolcraft College Community Choir will hold auditions for the 1980-81 season September 9.

Director Marilyn Jones has scheduled auditions at 6:30 p.m. and tenors and basses at 7 p.m. in Room 310 of the Forum Building. Interested sopranos may place their names on a waiting list by calling choir president Shari Clason at 349-8175.

Choir officers will be available September 9 to talk with prospective members and answer questions about the group. Rehearsal will begin that night at 7:30 p.m.

The choir is a credit-free class available at a $20 semester fee regardless of residence. Participants may register at the choir's

September 23 rehearsal.

The 65-member choir, designed for those with previous singing experience, represents 17 metropolitan area communities and a wide range of ages and musical backgrounds. Rehearsals combine sight reading, voice training, music theory, practice of concert music and a social "coffee break."

Choir Director Marilyn

Jones also is music director at Renaissance High School in Detroit. She holds a Ph.D. in music education from the University of Michigan and has been a member of the music faculty at both Wayne State University and Schoolcraft College.

Persons requesting further information may contact the community services office at 591-6400.

A perfect fit

When it comes to back-to-school fashions, most young people will agree that the most popular apparel is the old standby — jeans. Dave Babich (left) and Tony Nader (right), two members of Northville High School's 1980 Student Congress, found that perfect bluejean fit at Brader's Department Store.

Youth loses brave battle with cancer

Sunday night Blair Rossiter Robinson lost a four-year battle to cancer. Fifteen days after his 23rd birthday the young man died at St. Mary Hospital.

A 1975 graduate of Northville High School and active in sports, he was regional long jump champion in 1975. His problems with cancer started in his senior year, his stepfather C. Thomas Sechler recalled Monday.

"He fought until it was merciless and got two more years than expected," Sechler said, adding that he had been home from Harper Hospital only three times since January. "At this point it is a blessing," Sechler said.

A gifted musician and composer, he had been a music major at Schoolcraft College and had often played and composed for his mother Judith Sechler.

The family lives at 18153 Edenderry. It was about eight months after Blair became ill that the problem was diagnosed as cancer at University of Michigan Hospital. When it became necessary to have long-term hospital care, the family preferred Harper's facilities, Sechler said, relating how the staff had come to know and care for the young man.

"He had been saved many times, for he had such a strong will to live," he recalled. Finally, when it was hopeless, he had come home. Sechler reported he died going to St. Mary.

Survivors also include his father, Paul S. Robinson of Davisburg; a sister Melissa; brother Mark and grandparents Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Robinson and Mrs. Bernice P. Wilson.

The Reverend Lloyd G. Brasure, retired pastor of First Presbyterian Church where Blair was a member, will officiate at the service at 11 a.m. today at Ross B. Northrop and Son Funeral Home.

Burial will be in Rural Hill Cemetery.

MARIE L. McKENNA

Funeral service for Marie L. McKenna was held at 10 a.m. Monday at Our Lady of Victory Church where she was a member. Father Ron Thurner officiated. Burial followed in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery in Southfield.

Mrs. McKenna, who lived at 30885 Six Mile, had been an area resident since 1934. She died August 21 at Mary Crest Manor in Livonia after an illness which had lasted several years. She was 85.

Rosary was recited at 8 p.m. Sunday at Casterline Funeral Home. Prayer service was held there at 9:45 a.m. Monday.

Mrs. McKenna also was a member of the Third Order of Duns Scotus.

She was born January 25, 1895, in Bay City to Ignatius K. and Apollonia (Cwick) Schultz and married Gerald T. McKenna who died in 1934.

She leaves sons John of Livonia and Robert of Maryland, a daughter Geraldine Davis of Virginia, 10 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

FRANK L. GABRIEL, SR.

Memorial services for Frank L. Gabriel, Sr., 71, were held August 21 at Lee Chapel in Muskegon Heights. The Reverend Marc Bohland officiated.

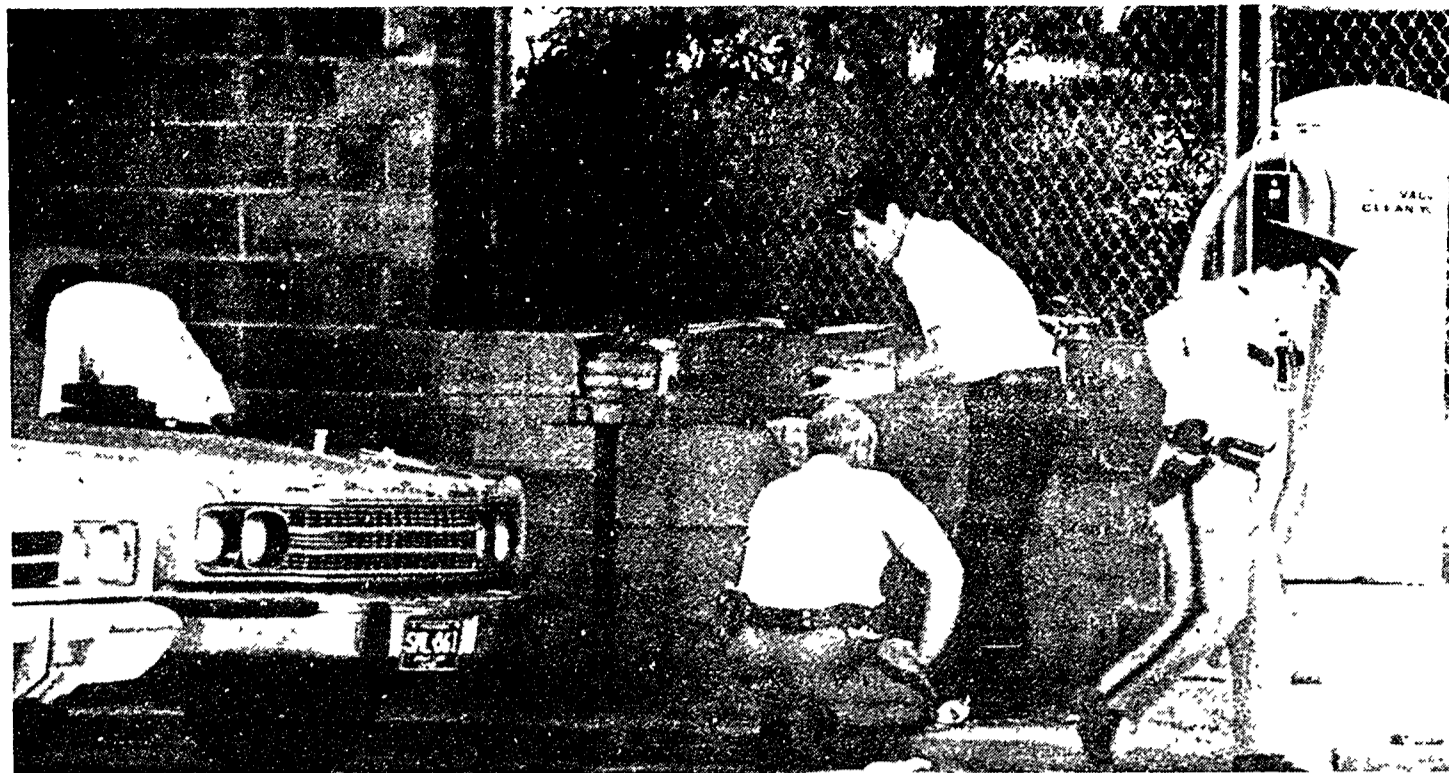

Mr. Gabriel, a former Northville resident, died at his home in Fruitport, Michigan, August 18 after a long illness.

Mr. Gabriel was born in Detroit March 23, 1909. He was preceded in death by his wife Gladys, who died in 1976.

He is survived by his two sons Frank Larry Gabriel of Rochester and Ronald Gabriel of Mt. Clemens, and his daughter Diane Rourke of Inkster.

Other survivors are his five grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Before moving from Northville four years ago, Mr. Gabriel was an employee with Northville Sand and Gravel.

Search site

When township police where notified of the body in a dumpster at Choo Choo Car Wash Saturday, they responded and immediately searched the area for possible clues. Here, Sergeant Phillip Presnell (kneeling) and Lieutenant Kenneth Hardesty check the vacuum cleaning area of the car wash. Police have identified the body as 27-year-old Ronnie Brown of Detroit. No motive for the execution-type murder has been found, police said. It is not known whether Brown was killed in the Northville area.

County opposes rezoning

Wayne County planners are recommending that the Northville Township Board of Trustees deny a commercial rezoning request at Six Mile and Haggerty Roads.

The requested rezoning, county planners determined, is too large for the proposed convenience shopping center use.

McQuade Corporation, owners of the land, requested the rezoning from R-3 to B-2 of the full 19 acre parcel. Three acres are used by Detroit Edison. McQuade proposed a convenience center for the remaining 16 acres.

County planners said they were not objecting to convenience commercial zoning at the site, only to the size of the particular application.

Township planners recommended approval of the rezoning, despite fears expressed by engineering consultant William Mosher that approval of the project could set back sewer development in the township "by a generation."

Later, the township planners discussed the issue again and noted that if McQuade attempted to connect sewers to Livonia's system, it might be better for the township board to deny the request.

County action sends the rezoning petition to the township for final decision September 11.

Begins this fall

Fitness program for school staff

By MICHELE McELMURRY

On the woes of Northville school personnel coming out of summer hibernation.

The three months of summertime bliss are quickly coming to an end and for many school staff members the "summer resolutions" which they made in June never materialized.

Summertime for most of us, especially school personnel, seems like the ideal time to get back into shape — we plan diets, join a health spa, and invest in a $100 jogging suit.

However, our projected goals usually fall short or are permanently "put on hold" due to circumstances beyond our control.

For instance, the jogging routine which we vowed to begin last May, was interrupted by unusually heavy rains causing us to have permanently soggy sneakers.

And though we decided to stop smoking "cold turkey," the prospect of painting the house made us so nervous that we opted for a pack a day rather than tearing our hair out.

These excuses are familiar to most of us, but for Northville Public School staff members who are heading back to books and blackboards next week, the pressures of returning to work in addition to being out of shape can become a health hazard.

Therefore, in the hopes of alleviating health hazards among staff workers, Northville Public Schools will be offering a Cardiovascular Health/Physical Fitness Program for all of its staff beginning this fall.

The program, which was supported by the board of education at its August 14 regular meeting, will be conducted in conjunction with the Livonia Family YMCA — which currently operates fitness programs for employees of the Livonia Public Schools and Plymouth Canton Community Schools.

The program which has been proposed, has an initial phase of fitness screening which covers four major risk areas: smoking history, blood pressure, weight (body fat content), and cholesterol count.

Each employee participating in the program will be required to go through the screening process to check these four risk areas which are related to coronary heart disease.

Upon meeting the requirements of the screening program, participants partake in the "Y's Way to Physical Fitness Evaluation." This is a test administered to measure fitness levels. The purpose of the test is to evaluate an individual's starting point of fitness, progress made, and to develop a fitness plan.

Once fitness levels have been designated, a group exercise program is formulated.

The format of the exercise program is broken down into three parts, warm-up, cardiovascular endurance and cool-down. Exercises are geared towards strength, flexibility and endurance.

The Cardiovascular Health/Fitness Program began in the Livonia school district four years ago.

It was during that time, that five staff members in a Livonia high school suffered fatal heart attacks within a period of 18 months.

Since the initial program began in Livonia, a number of other school districts have offered fitness programs. Superintendent Lawrence Nichols and Movement Education Project Director Linda Kowalczyk began working on the program in June, and Nichols recommended it to the board of education August 14.

The board supported Nichols' recommendation and also agreed to underwrite 50 percent of the cost of the initial screening.

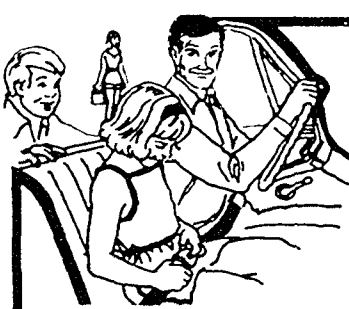

The initial screening cost for staff members interested in participating in the program is $25. Participants also pay $25 for two semesters of exercise classes.

Staff members will learn more about the fitness program at the Northville Public School staff meeting September 3.

The time, date and location of the exercise classes will be determined by the participants in the program.

However, classes are scheduled three times a week for 45 minutes each.

So Northville school staffers who may have tossed in the towel on physical fitness this summer, can now start gathering up their sweat suits and tennis shoes — fall may just be the time to get back into shape.

Downtown development underway

Savings and loan launches branch

Downtown development is begun

One of the first downtown renovation projects came to fruition Monday with the branch office opening of Downriver Federal Savings and Loan at Main and Hutton Streets.

The new financial institution is the first step in the Downtown Development Authority's plans for the former automobile dealer site. The structure is set back from Main Street and the remaining land, presently stripped bare, will become a city park.

Grand opening ceremonies for the new business began Monday and will continue through September 5. Branch manager Mike Cameron noted that the savings and loan branch is tailoring itself to the historic nature of the downtown area.

The new building was designed in colonial style to blend with surrounding structures and even the promotional campaign bears historic overtones.

Advertising notes that the site was that of the Exchange Hotel in the late 1800s and gifts to new customers, daily drawing prizes and a grand prize all evoke past eras.

"We sent a mailing out last week to most people in the area with a coupon people can drop here," Cameron said. "Daily drawing winners will get a hurricane lamp, and then all the coupons go into a grand prize drawing at the end of the eight days and the winner will get a grandfather clock."

In addition to Taylor resident Cameron, Downriver Federal employs three tellers at the branch. The new business is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday-Thursday and 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Fridays.

Close Grandview Acres streets?

Grandview Acres residents are seeing light at the end of the tunnel in their long struggle to have three streets in the subdivision permanently vacated.

Although the township board of trustees tabled its decision on the matter for the third straight month August 14, it offered a clear indication that it is leaning toward favoring the residents in September.

Oppolo, Stoneleigh and Phillips are designated east-west roads through the subdivision, although none of the three has ever been developed. All homes in the subdivision front on north-south roads.

Vacating the streets, which exist only as right-of-way easements, would preclude ever opening the streets. Land occupied by the rights-of-way would be added to adjacent lots.

The gain in property is not the primary concern of residents urging vacation of the streets, however. Opening the streets would provide a route of access from the adjacent Northridge housing complexes through the subdivision and south to Seven Mile Road.

Grandview Acres residents, worried that such access would increase traffic unbearably near their homes, went to court to block Northridge developers from connecting to Oppolo, Stoneleigh and Phillips and the developers agreed, under court order, that no access would be sought from the multiple-family housing complex.

The Wayne County Road Commission approved vacation of the streets, so long as easements were retained for public utilities. Township engineering consultant William Mosher told the board it should deny the requested vacations because sewer and water lines are run through the streets and easements would not be sufficient to guarantee unhampered access if the land was turned over to homeowners.

Residents argued, however, that they knew how to treat property with easements and the board appeared to accept the easement provisions as adequate if properly stated.

Northridge developers are now arguing, however, that one and perhaps two of the streets will be needed when the R-3 (high density single-family housing) zoned property north of the multiple complex is developed.

Township officials, faced with argument from James Littel and George Zinn, legal counsel to the developers, that vacating the streets would landlock the R-3 parcel, have juggled with the matter since June.

"I'm perfectly willing to vacate those streets," Supervisor Donald Thomson said. "As soon as I know that R-3 property is not going to be landlocked."

Another access route to the R-3 parcel might be through the multiple development to the south, but Zinn told the board the county road commission told him it would not approve plans containing access routed through a multiple to single family.

Township counsel Donald Morgan reported in a letter to board members, however, that the reverse is true. Access to a multiple development is not allowed through single-family zones.

Correspondence with the road commission followed the July trustee meeting, but Trustee James Nowka said the board still has not received the information it needs.

The matter was tabled until September when road commission and legal consultants are to be present to answer the board's questions.

The residents asked that the board request dedication of a road through the multiple housing complex in the meantime to resolve the question of whether the road commission would approve it.

Board approves bid for aid loan

A 1980-81 State Aid Loan bid from Manufacturers National Bank in the amount of $3,400,000 at an annual interest rate of 7.75 percent was accepted by unanimous resolution of the Northville Board of Education Monday.

The bid, which was accepted after the board received borrowing approval from the State Department of Education, will pay for current operating expenses.

The bid from Manufacturers National Bank was the only bid received from eight requests made by the board.

An evaluation of the Northville 1980 Summer School Program also was reviewed by the board at Monday's meeting.

Nancy Soper, assistant superintendent for instructional services, indicated that the summer school program had been "very successful" this year.

In the program, students had an opportunity to participate in four programs at the elementary level and 12 programs at the secondary level.

In the elementary program, 38 students were enrolled this summer — a decrease of 16 since last year.

However, at the secondary level the enrollment increased from 119 students in 1979 to 160 students this summer.

Soper said that part of the success of this year's summer school program was due to the fact that "over half of the summer school teachers were from the Northville schools."

In the past, she said, teachers in the summer school program have been from different districts.

The board also approved a schedule for its second monthly meetings for the 1980-81 school year. The following is a listing of dates and locations for the second monthly meetings of the Northville Board of Education:

— October 27, 1980 — Amerman
— November 24, 1980 — High School
— January 26, 1981 — Winchester
— February 23, 1981 — Meads Mill
— March 23, 1981 — Cooke
— April 27, 1981 — Silver Springs
— May 26, 1981 — Moraine

In other action, the board accepted a bid from Melody Farms Dairy for furnishing milk to the Northville Public Schools for the 1980-81 school year, and it also accepted a bid from Schaefer Bakeries, Inc. for furnishing bread to the Northville Public Schools for the 1980-81 school year.

Geakes cited in 'Who's Who'

State Senator R. Robert Geake (R-Northville) is among only a few Michigan legislators included in the new 1980-81 edition of "Who's Who in the Midwest."

"I am certainly honored to be a part of this major reference work," Geake said. "I understand it contains over 18,000 biographical sketches of federal, state and local officials. Of those, the index indicates that only 17 current members of the senate are included."

"Who's Who in the Midwest" also chronicles leaders in the areas of education, culture, science and religion. Among them is Senator Geake's wife, Carol, a practicing and consulting veterinarian in Northville.

While not unheard of, both a husband and wife being reviewed in a "Who's Who" is unusual.

"Who's Who in Government" is a leading reference work," according to James Michelsen, head of the reference division of the Michigan Public Library Unit. Michelsen said the book is unlike some of the "vanity" publications in which people simply pay to be listed. It is published by the respected Marquis Company, which published the original "Who's Who" back around the turn of the century.

"The Marquis Company now produces over a dozen different reference works profiling prominent people in America and around the world," Michelsen said. "You can't buy your way in. You have to be asked."

Geake first was elected to the Michigan House of Representatives in 1972, representing the 35th District which includes Northville and much of Livonia. He was reelected in 1974 and 1976. In a special election in March of 1977, he was elected to the State Senate to fill a vacancy in the 14th District, which covers an area that includes all of Livonia, Redford, the city and township of Northville, the city and township of Plymouth, and part of Westland.

Since his election to the legislature, Geake has devoted full time to his duties as a public official. He seldom has been absent from a session and has maintained a better than 99 percent record on answering roll call votes.

"I am most pleased to have been included in the book," Geake commented. "I hope my work in the senate during this coming year will serve to further justify this honor."

Geake serves on the powerful Senate Appropriations Committee. During 1976 and 1977, he served as vice chairman of the National Advisory Committee on Mental Health and Illness of the Elderly for the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Our opinions

Wasted money still unplugged

A split tax collection procedure to assist the financially strapped Walled Lake School District is being considered in Commerce Township.

As has been demonstrated in Novi, split tax collection is an effective way to eliminate wasted school tax dollars. Other school districts in Michigan, which have split collections, agree that the procedure not only works but appears to please taxpayers.

Ironically, the Northville school board was one of the first in Michigan to propose the procedure but it is no closer to split tax collection today than in 1976 when the Northville board unanimously endorsed it. Meanwhile, the procedure gains steady acceptance elsewhere while Northville continues to pour tax money down the drain.

That tax dollars continue to be wasted here rests squarely on the shoulders of city and township officials, not school board members. The school board has been sounding the alarm for years. It is the city and township governments, collectors of school taxes, which have stubbornly refused to help the school plug the drain.

Each time the school board or this newspaper brings up the subject, city and township officials trot out a new roadblock. The last one, as we recall, was that the city would go along with split collection if the township did, too. In other words, the argument was to shift the blame for inaction.

Some of the other roadblocks here over the years have been: it would be too costly for the collecting municipalities, mortgage companies will not cooperate, split tax collection would penalize senior citizens. None of these arguments is valid, and city and township officials know it.

Relative to the cost, for example, the Northville School Board has stated the school will gladly pick up any additional cost involved with providing the dual collection. In other words, city and township worries about how they can afford to provide dual collection are groundless. What's more, Novi reports that the "extra" cost has proved to be minimal in that community where split collection has been occurring for several years.

The real hangup in Northville, in our opinion, is that the city and township governments insist on looking at split collection this way: "What's in it for us?" And since neither government benefits directly, they procrastinate or think up new reasons to oppose it.

Split tax collection may not add revenues to city and township treasuries, but it certainly maximizes use of school tax dollars...and school taxes are paid by the same people who pay city and township taxes. Thus, anything city and township officials can do to stop school tax waste directly benefits their city and township constituents.

The Walled Lake school district is anxious to see the split tax collection procedure adopted in Commerce Township to save $250,000 of interest it must pay on $6.55 million of borrowed money.

Although the annual savings in Northville would be less than in Walled Lake, it nevertheless represents many thousands of dollars. Where Walled Lake this year has to pay interest on $6.55 million, Northville this year may have to pay interest on $3.4 million. Altogether, it has been estimated that in the past nine years, Northville has paid out more than a half million dollars in taxpayers' money that, had split tax collection been in effect, would have been saved for local school operation.

Why must school districts in Michigan borrow money?

Simply speaking, it's because school district expenses occur before school revenues are received during the July through June fiscal year — a fiscal year mandated by state law.

Compounding the problem is that less and less of a school district's revenues come from the state, thus placing an increasing reliance on local school taxes which are not levied until December and not fully received until the middle of February. In other words, the school year is more than half over by the time the district receives the lion's share of its operating revenues.

Because school tax revenues do not start arriving until December, school districts are forced borrow money in advance of this anticipated income to pay their bills. And as any homeowner knows, borrowing money in expectation of promised future income is not cheap; it's costly and wasteful.

That's what split tax collection is all about. If half of the school taxes were collected in July, sufficient income would be on hand with the opening of school in September to pay bills and avoid the necessity of borrowing money. The remaining half of the school taxes would be collected in January and February to pay remaining bills.

Unfortunately, school districts do not collect their own taxes; school taxes are collected, under the law, by cities and townships. Thus, if a change is to be made in the collecting process it must be made by the city and township in which a school district exists. That's where we stand today...waiting since 1976 for the city and township to adopt the split tax collection procedure.

Splitting school tax collection, half in July and the other half in January, is nothing more than common sense. To hold the plug while taxpayers' money slips down the drain year after year is nothing less than irresponsibility.

Can the Bird make it in majors?

JOHN HORWATH

YES

Of course the Bird will make it in the majors. He's done it before and he has begun to do it again. Sure, the Bird hasn't won a game, but has he unleashed his blazing fastball or uncoiled his baffling curve?

The Bird really doesn't need these pitches to win. He's won a bigger ball game by coping and never giving up with correcting the arm problem he sustained. There are players who don't fit into the mold and still have that "extra 10 percent" to give. The Bird has matured in the minors but hasn't lost that "extra 10 percent."

The Bird is no longer a naive rookie. He's survived a crisis that would have stopped the careers of other players. So, I believe "The Bird is the Word" and he's here to stay!

NO

It has been four years since Mark Fidrych bounded out of a box of corn flakes and entertained baseball and circus fans everywhere with his Emmet Kelley antics. It was a summer when diversions were needed: Bicentennial propaganda blitzed the air waves for eight grueling months; homerun king Henry Aaron threw in the towel; and the nation prepared itself to elect James Earl Carter the 39th President of the United States. Little wonder Jim Campbell decided to team up with Ringling Brothers and present Mark "The Bird" Fidrych, uncaged and unplucking-believable.

Now, here it is, 1980, and Jimmy and Mark are both back, both with their careers in jeopardy. Carter faces stiff opposition in November and Fidrych receives stiff treatment from everyone but the tiger fans.

After dabbling in religion, hypnosis and other treatments, Mark was finally convinced that the trouble was mostly in his fuzzy little head. But after his first two outings, the only thing soaring is the Bird's E.R.A. (6.39). Even the clowning has subsided, and one tends to wonder if we shouldn't trade Mark to NBC for B.J.'s Bear. The entertainment would be stepped up and it's doubtful the pitching would lack.

Let's face it Bird. It's time to migrate. If you can't pump the fastball, fly back to beantown and pump the gas.

JACK W. HOFFMAN'S COLUMN

Without half trying, I could cut out a lot of frilly nonsense in schools, save some big bucks and a whole lot of registration confusion, and create a speller in the process.

But that's because I'm not an educator and because, as a non-understanding parent, I cannot appreciate the difference between yesterday's need and today's need...so says my wife, who takes me to task whenever I've been arguing with my brother, an educator.

"He doesn't tell you how to operate your newspapers so don't try telling him how to educate," she scolds.

"Ah, but that's where you're wrong. He and an army of others relish telling us what's we're doing wrong. We expect it, need it. So, right or wrong, I'm not bashful when I tell Principal Hoffman there's a difference between common sense and nonsense."

If I were calling the shots for education (and luckily I'm not) I'd cut out half or more of the subjects offered in today's schools. Right off, with no ifs, ands or buts, I'd lop off upbeat poetry, pottery glazing, tapestry, adult living, women's lib, and other such drivel.

Instead of offering students a wallpaper list of subjects from which to choose, I'd give them no options. I'd mandate everything. Several subjects would be repeated. For example, students would get classes of spelling not only at the elementary level but in grades 9, 10, 11 and 12 as well.

There'd be no special courses for bright students; they'd have the opportunity to take classes with students at higher grade levels.

Only intramural competitive and non-competitive sports would be provided.

No one would have "free" hours, and nobody would be able to leave the school during the school day, including teachers. Students would be unable to drive cars to school, and buses would be used only to transport handicapped children.

I'd arbitrarily axe 50 percent of the administrators and counselors.

Law to cut harassment

To the Editor:

An important piece of legislation which received final approval prior to the legislative recess did not, unfortunately, receive the public attention it merits.

That bill, H.B. 4407, sponsored by Representative Barbara-Rose Collins (D-Detroit), makes a clear statement regarding state policy on sexual harassment. The bill defines and prohibits sexual harassment in the areas of employment, public accommodations or public services, education and housing.

Persons, primarily women, who otherwise have been forced to suffer the torment and humiliation of sexual harassment in silence are provided with a greater avenue of protection. Affected persons may file complaints with either their employer, the Michigan Security Commission, the Michigan Department of Civil Rights or the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

In addition, H.B. 4407 amends the state's Civil Rights Act and broadens its coverage to offer protection to a greater number of Michigan citizens.

The passage of this legislation represents a significant victory for all the groups, particularly the women's groups and organized labor, which were committed to the effort and assisted in passage of the bill. Public recognition must go to the statewide Michigan Task Force on Sexual Harassment in the Work Place, a group which was established for the sole purpose of bringing focus and attention to the pervasive problem.

By its action, the legislature has issued a decisive response to a problem which has been ignored for far too long. Michigan citizens no longer will have to tolerate sexual harassment in their living and work environment.

Sincerely,
William Faust
Senate Majority Leader

Intersection concerns

To the Editor:

I'm gratified to find The Northville Record editorially in pursuit of a solution to the Taft-Randolph-Eight Mile Road multi-intersection.

Anyone who is in any way familiar with that intersection can see a desperate need for some sort of vehicle control. Please continue to keep events of progress and those responsible for such progress in focus for all of us.

We all share a feeling of hurt with the recent tragic accident, and must maintain a serious commitment to seek to prevent another such tragedy.

Congratulations are in order to Chatham for getting rid of weeds in front of the store and also to the Open Door Outreach Center for beautifying its front curb area.

I had mentioned to Chatham about the looks of the front, and they took heed. It looks lovely now.

News from Lansing

By R. ROBERT GEAKE
State Senator

This is the second in a series of reports to you on the property tax proposals which will appear on the November general election ballot.

Last week I outlined the provisions of Proposal C, the Legislative or "Coalition" Property Tax Proposal. This week, let's take a look at the provisions of the Smith/Bullard Property Tax Proposal. Both plans were written in an attempt to offer the people an alternative to the Tisch Plan, which will be discussed next week.

Proposal A, another constitutional amendment plan, was sponsored by State Representatives Roy Smith, a Republican from Ypsilanti whose district includes Plymouth, and Perry Bullard, a Democrat from Ann Arbor.

The major thrust of this proposal requires the legislature to establish a program of general taxation to ensure equal per-pupil state financial support. It establishes a fund for this purpose and earmarks state revenues raised for educational purposes for this fund.

The educational program proposal, to be phased in over a four-year period, requires each school district to receive at least the current level of per-pupil financial support, less a seven mill enrichment option, during the phase-in period. After the 1986-87 fiscal year, the per-pupil amount from the state would have to be equal for all school districts, and could not be less than the highest amount received during the phase-in.

The major impact of the proposal would be to reduce homestead property taxes and cause the legislature to raise the personal income tax by another 1½ to 2 percent to make up the loss.

Property taxes would be reduced by:

- Providing a 13 mill limitation for allocated millages (formerly 15 mills). However, it would permit extra-voted millage to increase the limit by 2.5 mills.
- Allowing a $25,000 state equalized valuation exemption, indexed for inflation, to homesteads of retired persons 65 and older.

However, other taxes would be raised by:

- Allowing the legislature to impose an additional 30.5 mills on business and industrial property other than homestead and family-owned and operated farms.
- Requiring the legislature to establish a local income tax of 1 percent to be imposed at the discretion of the local unit of government.
- Increasing the state income tax, Single Business Tax, or some other tax program (left up to the legislature).

The amendment guarantees "local control" of school districts politically, provides tax relief for renters, and as I mentioned, an exemption for senior citizens.

The Smith/Bullard Property Tax Proposal exempts revenues in fiscal year 1986, and all years thereafter, used to fund local school operational purposes from the state spending limitations and exempts such funds and reimbursements to local units of government for the $25,000 equalized valuation exemption for senior citizens from the state spending requirements to local units of government.

Under this proposal, property taxes will be reduced. However, figures released by the Michigan Department of Management and Budget (DMB) indicate that the overall tax burden for many middles and upper income voters may well increase due to the required establishment of a general taxation program to ensure the equal per-pupil state financial support.

The DMB estimates that with a 1.9 percent income tax increase for example, homeowners who do not now receive property tax credits would pay more if they earn in excess of $30,000 and homeowners who do receive property tax credits would pay higher taxes if they earn more than $15,000.

There you have a summation of the Smith/Bullard Property Tax Proposal. Next week — the Tisch Property Tax Proposal.

Flea market first

First flea market sponsored by the Northville Chamber of Commerce last Saturday in the Downs parking lot lured dealers with gramophones, such as the one inspected by Lorraine Groves, at top, and even a handsome brass eagle offered by Jeanne Rodger, above. At right, David Danes browses at a book booth. Chamber secretary Kay Keegan says a repeat sale will be held September 13 with a rain date of September 14. She hopes to have more dealers — and more buyers — if the market becomes a monthly event. Special rates are being set for the next market. Mrs. Keegan may be called at 349-7640 to reserve space.

Jack's Column

Remaining administrators and all teachers would be graded, and the grading would be based on regular student test performance. Public tests would be administered by parents. If too many students flunk, the teacher goes; if too many teachers flunk, the principal goes; if a principal's replacement fails, good-bye superintendent.

Student codes would be enforced by teachers and administrators. Punishment for violators would not be suspension or expulsion, but janitorial service in schools. And parents would be unable to appeal reprimands given their kids in school.

Like my educator brother and my wife, most parents probably would agree that my idea of a public school "is a prison allowing no valuable freedom of choice."

Perhaps, but, oh my, the inmates would know how to spell diploma upon parole.

Township contemplating weed control ordinance

Northville Township is considering institution of a weed control ordinance suggested by citizens living near Highland Lakes.

Meanwhile, the township also is trying to help the residents in their search for a solution to the particular problem that led to the request for the law.

At its August 14 meeting the board of trustees took a first look at a draft ordinance prepared by township attorney Donald Morgan. Modeled after Plymouth Township and City of Northville ordinances, the draft is titled the "Northville Township Noxious Weed and Refuse Ordinance."

It's stated purpose is to control and eradicate "certain noxious weeds" and accumulations of debris or refuse. Land owners would be compelled to cut and destroy certain weeds — including ragweed, thistles, poison ivy and sumac — before they grow to seed.

Owners would also be responsible for cutting any growths exceeding 12 inches in height. Small grain crops are excluded from regulation.

Should the landowner fail to control weeds and refuse he would receive notice from a "commissioner of noxious weeds" — a duty not assigned in the draft ordinance — that he must either comply with the law or have the commissioner do the work for the township and bill the property owner.

The draft ordinance gives the government authority to either gain a mechanic's lien on the land or add the cost of weed-cutting to the tax bill if the owner fails to pay.

One problem the ordinance might cause was pointed out by Supervisor Donald Thomson.

"How are we going to enforce it?" he asked. When an audience member responded that enforcement efforts could be minimal, involving only a mailed notice to the landowner, Thomson drove home his concern.

"I understand that," he said. "But, we don't even have enough manpower to send someone out there to check how high the weeds are."

Proponents of the ordinance argue that they do not wish to have it enforced in the more rural areas of the township, however. An effort is made within the ordinance to limit its scope to developed areas by applying the law only in subdivided regions where more than 60 percent of the lots have buildings.

Most trustees, however, viewed this provision as inadequate in light of some long-occupied multi-acre parcels more recently surrounded by development.

Homeowners with addresses on Rippling Lane and Scenic Harbor stated that their primary concern is an area adjacent to Swan Harbor Lake where the Highland Lakes Homeowner's Association has declined to cut the weeds.

Scenic Harbor residents noted that they had paid extra for lots with a view of the lake but could no longer see it over the weeds. The area in question, they said, is also designated as recreation area but is unusable for their children, who must walk more than a mile to reach usable play area, or play in the streets.

They claimed the Highland Lakes

Association willingly cut weeds in other open spaces, but that some Lakes residents contended the weeded lot supplies a home to birds they wish to continue seeing.

On a motion by Trustee James Nowka, the board tabled the ordinance until its September meeting, when a new draft addressing the problems observed at the August meeting will be presented.

Nowka also suggested that the township notify the Highland Lakes Association that it is considering a weed ordinance and request that the area in question be cut.

Schoolcraft College offers secretary course

Schoolcraft College will offer a revised two-part series of courses for secretaries who want to prepare for the Certified Professional Secretary (CPS) examination scheduled at Schoolcraft each May.

The series, entitled Professional Development for Secretaries, will meet Saturdays from 1 to 3:30 p.m. and will cover the six subject areas included in the CPS examination.

Part I includes the first three courses — Business Law, Accounting and Behavioral Science.

Business Law will be taught by attorneys from the Southfield law firm of Bassey, Selesko, Couzens & Murphy on September 13, 20, 27 and October 4.

Schoolcraft accounting instructor, Candis Martin will teach accounting on October 11, 18, 25 and November 1 and 8.

Behavioral Science in Business will be taught by Gail Berkove, a Ph.D. and psychologist in private practice, on November 15, 22, December 6 and 13.

A mini-exam on Part I is scheduled for December 13.

Part II is scheduled during the winter semester and will cover Office Procedures and Administration, Economics and Management, and Secretarial Skills and Decision Making. A mini-exam is scheduled for April 11.

There will be two separate sessions on Electronic Data Processing and Word Processing.

Two institutional credits will be awarded upon successful completion of each part and a Certificate of Completion will be given to those who finish both parts with a minimum of two absences and a satisfactory grade.

Resident tuition for each part is $37 and non-residents pay $58. A $3 registration fee also is required. Walk-in registration is scheduled for September 10 and 11 and late registration is scheduled September 16.

Registration brochures and further information may be obtained by calling the continuing education office at 591-6400, extension 404.

Council fills vacancies on city boards

New faces are appearing at commission and board meetings in the city as a result of appointments made at the August 18 city council meeting to fill vacancies.

Paul R. Dawson was named to the library commission to fill the unexpired term of Carolann Ayres, who resigned as she now serves as a city council member.

Two alternates were appointed to the zoning board of appeals. Charles Yerkes was named to a three-year term, and Jerome Mittman to a two-year term, both effective July 1, 1980.

Ed Jamieson and Tom Rice were appointed to fill vacancies caused by the resignations of N.C. Schrader and Dan Collins from the Downtown Development Authority. They will serve for one year.

It was reported that applications still are being received from residents to serve on the recreation commission; so vacancies caused by resignations of Marcie Colling and Dr. John Swienkowski (township) have not been filled.

Last week the city planning commission welcomed new appointee Frederick Joels who replaces Donald Fee. Fee resigned from the commission because of time pressures but agreed to continue serving on the historic district commission.

A Civilized Account of My Trip to Mackinac Island

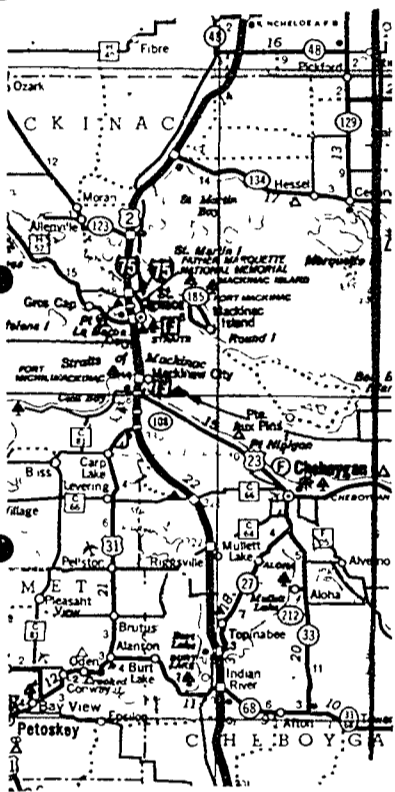

By PATRICK BEEMER

Age 10

On Tuesday, August 12, 1980, my family and I went to Mackinac Island.

From there we took a ferry called the Wyandot across Lake Huron to Mackinac Island. The ferry had two decks, and we sat on the top one! The ride was very smooth, kind of like a hydrofoil except in places where the ferry hit the waves hard.

When we landed we called for a drey (dra) to come pick us up.

The driver's name was Scottie. "The horses' names are Mike and Bell," he told us. As we passed the Governor's palace, Scottie said, "If you climbed over that picket fence, guards would be all over you."

We stayed by the scout barracks in a room where there was a kitchen and an upstairs room where my brother Matt and I slept. When my brother Timothy saw the kitchen, he said, "Mom are you going to cook some food?" Mom said, "No, because I'm on vacation!"

It was late when we got to our room so we went down to the village to eat, but on the way we stopped to look at an Indian bark chapel where Father Claude Dablon preached to the Indians.

Then we went on into the village and we ate at Ye Olde Pickle Barrel. We did some grocery shopping, bought three frisbees and looked the town over. It was a nice but busy little village.

On the way back we came by way of the Governor's palace and saw Governor Milliken in his study.

The roses along the picket fence were donated in honor of Mrs. Milliken's support for a garden club.

The next morning we ate breakfast and played frisbee for a while when the state park manager's son, Corey, came over. We played with him for awhile.

We ate at the fort tea room for lunch. It had a balcony and it was raining but we ate on the balcony anyway. There was a huge green umbrella over us, but it didn't help much so we tilted it a little. The food and view were terrific!

We then went souvenir shopping and I bought a tom-tom, a peace pipe, a tomahawk, and a knife.

When we wanted to go through the fort, it was raining and, since we were behind already, I told mother that, since she had no jacket, she could make a poncho out of a garbage bag.

We went through the fort and saw different kinds of cannon, and we saw some guns they used. My brother, Timothy, didn't like the cannon and refused to get his picture by one.

We saw some wax figures in the jail and hospital. They made you think you were there with the correct lighting.

Did you know that the doctors used hacksaws for cutting bones when they had to replace somebody's leg with a peg leg?

Did you know that in the fort there is an underground jail room? We ate at the Lamplighter. We had pizza. It was so-so.

Then we went to a store and bought some groceries. We met a clerk who had spent some time in Northville.

As the rain continued we then went to our room, read a little about the island, cleaned up a little, and planned the next day's events.

The next day after breakfast we rented bikes and did some riding. On the trip we saw Arch Rock, Lookout Point, Sugar Loaf and Skull Cave — but there was no cave and there were no bones. There were a lot of hills.

On the way we biked by some of the commissioner's houses.

Afterwards we turned in our bikes and bought several post cards.

We went to the park and filled out our post cards and mailed them at the post office.

We then went to our room and had a snack of Triscuits and Granola bars.

Soon after we packed and a drey took us into the village. It stayed right there until the ferry came. The ferry was The Hope and the captain made a funny speech. He said he was taking us back to civilization.

When we were back on the mainland, we got our car and went across the Mackinac Bridge. Then we turned around and went back across.

We saw a marine park, waded into Lake Huron, and saw an ore carrier and a dredge on Lake Michigan.

All good things must end and this was a good thing. So I am saying "so long" from my home.

Once in a Life-Time

By MANDY OLGREN

Age 12

The idea all started around Christmas time I was wearing my cowboy hat around the house when dad said to me, "Hey, Mandy, how about going out to a dude ranch this summer for our vacation?" I said, "Yee, Haw!"

It didn't take me very long to write to eleven of the dude ranches out west. We had a little difficulty picking out a ranch that all agreed on, but finally decided on one and then it was settled.

My dad, mom, Mark (my brother) and I were going on our way to Lost Creek Ranch in Jackson Hole, (well, actually Moose) Wyoming. Mike, my oldest brother, did not go because of a very important job he was trying to get and actually did get while we were away.

We started out on June 30 the usual way . . . late. It never fails. We always get half-way down the street and remember that we forgot something. This time it was the map.

It was decided that we would visit my gramma for a couple of days on the way there. We took the route through the upper peninsula since my gramma lives in a little tiny town called Ironwood at the very tip of Michigan. It was a very long eleven hours in the car that day. It seemed like it would never end. (Why didn't we take a plane?)

The Pioneer People

By SUSAN PETRO

Age 15

The trumpeter's cry broke the dawn across the western sky. Life begins to emerge from the tiny makeshift canvas homes that dotted the countryside. One by one a reluctant pair of feet could be seen greeting the eager morning with its dew covered carpet and brilliant sunrise that burned the eyes of all those who sought its beauty.

The Fort Seaward wagon train, rated one of the top 10 more unusual vacations in the U.S., was a ticket to reliving your history book. The entire adventure discovers 110 miles of North Dakota's rolling hills, plains, rivers and valleys.

Seven days of covered wagons, horses, leather, sweat, cowboy hats and jeans — guaranteed to bring out the pioneer in everybody.

"Grab a dish," "Don't forget your fork." "Let's go — keep the line moving." These were all familiar phrases heard at the favorite part of my morning ritual, working in the chow line. It was great if you could eat and serve at the same time. Each wagon train member was assigned a specific task daily, be it cooking, serving, chopping wood, or feeding the horses.

After breakfast all was loaded and thus we began our day.

In Our Town

Society sewing bee's for Tivoli Fair

In times gone by, fall brought country fairs overflowing with the harvest yield. Appropriately, Northville Historical Society's Tivoli Fair being given October 3-4 at Northville Downs will offer the yield of many busy hands working through the summer.

The Country Store booth at the fair has become known for its patchwork and quilted items. Last Wednesday historical society workers gathered at the home of Martha Nield to stitch napkin and placemat sets, door stoppers, tea cozies and pillows. Another quilting bee will be held September 4 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the home of Lynn Voslin, 44866 Byrne, with anyone interested in helping the historical society invited to come. Donations of jams, jellies and baked goods also are being sought for the Country Store. Anyone willing to work at the fair is asked to call Pat Meyers, 348-1456.

All proceeds from the fair are used for restoration work at Mill Race Village. In addition to the Country Store booth of the society there are booths rented by craftspeople filled with handmade items. The fair is known for the quality of the handcrafts.

You now can be a Newcomer for five years

Northville Newcomers are making plans for the annual membership coffee to be held at 7:30 p.m. September 11 at First United Methodist Church on Eight Mile. A major change in by-laws affecting membership has been made.

Because many women have been working and did not affiliate with Newcomers when they moved to town, they later found the two-year limitation did not permit their joining. Therefore, membership is being extended to five years. The active organization offers both couple and women's events that range from bridge and tennis to dinners, dances, outings to Greenfield Village and Toronto and evenings at the Downs. Chris Williams is new president of Newcomers, succeeding Prudy Vannier.

Mizpah Circle's beginning 86th year

"The rain didn't dampen anybody's spirit," reports Marge Bolton, president of Mizpah Circle of King's Daughters, as she recalls that the circle was ready on the first rained-out day of the sidewalk sale with 100 pies and many, many loaves of bread. "We couldn't freeze all that baked goods — so we stayed and sold in the rain," she says. "It gave us a good chance to tell what we're here for," she adds, noting that the rainy day sale brought in $600 for the charity work of the circle. "We were one booth that couldn't come back for the following Saturday's rain date."

Mrs. Bolton now is inviting anyone who would like to participate in the Christian charity work of the circle to call her at 349-3518.

The circle will begin its 86th year of working for King's Daughters Home and such other projects as the Mott Children's Hospital in Ann Arbor at an annual fall potluck spread at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday, September 2, at Northville United Methodist Church. A business session at 11:30 a.m. will precede the luncheon. The budget will be presented and plans for the upcoming year discussed.

Dude ranching's treat

At my grandma's we took our annual trip to Black River Harbor and fished, though we didn't catch anything. After a few days we left grandma's very early one morning and started our long trip cross-country.

It seemed like we had been driving for hours when we finally decided to stop for lunch. We got out and started to eat what little lunch we had. All of a sudden a man that looked like a town bum rode up on a bike and said he was riding cross-country. He went on talking and then finally asked for what he wanted. "Lunch," he said. "No," so he got on his bike and rode away. We got back in the car and started driving.

By now we were in North Dakota, driving through very flat, barren, farm land. This was the worst part of the trip. The towns were at least 50 miles apart and there wasn't a gas station. We could drive down the road (I mean road, there were no highways) and not see a car for hours. When we did see a car we would honk our horn and wave for as long as we could.

Some towns we drove through had signs saying "Population: 5," then we would see all five people sitting in front of the General Store. Oh, how I longed to see a pair of those golden arches (McDonald's)!

We were driving along in North Dakota when we had to stop for gas. It was a lonely gas station in the middle of nowhere. We stopped and who should come and serve us but Bo Duke of the "Dukes of Hazzard!" Well, at least it looked like him.

We finally reached Montana. It was a happy change of scenery. We finally saw some real, true mountains. We had decided to go through Glacier National Park to see some mountains. Well not only did we see them, we went up in them, around them, and through them! I admit it was fun, but how would you like to drive on a little tiny road on the side of the mountain when the drop-off was over 500 feet? As we were going through the mountains there were places you could stop and admire the scenery. When we stopped at one of these places there were animals that looked like a cross between a beaver and a woodchuck. I got out of the car to take a picture of one when it started running (actually dodging) towards me! Well at this point my brother had gotten out to take a picture too. The animal started chasing Mark but Mark got smart and jumped on the hood of the car. The animal got up on his hind legs and started showing his teeth. At the first opportunity we got, Mark and I jumped back in the car. It ended up that this animal was what they called a hoary marmot.

Well, the day had finally arrived. We were on our way to Lost Creek Ranch. When we got there the place was deserted. We found out that everybody had gone up in the mountains for a all-day ride. The only person that was there was the manager, Wanda. She showed us around then took us to our cabin. It was a very nice cabin. It had a big living room with a fireplace and two bedrooms with separate bathrooms. Lost Creek was certainly not a working dude ranch. It was a very luxurious place where the people who worked there went out of their way to be nice to us. For example when we got there they brought us fresh fruit and flowers. At night when we came back from dinner our bed sheets would be turned back and a chocolate mint would be sitting on our pillows. They also gave us fresh towels twice a day and changed our sheets every other day! (If you don't call that luxury, I don't know what is!) To top it off you could sign up the night before and have hot chocolate or coffee delivered to your cabin the time you ask for it there.

The days could be pretty well taken up by activities if we wanted to participate in them. This is how a usual day went by. We would get up and be at breakfast by 8:30. After breakfast we would go down to the stables and go out on the morning ride from 9:30 to 11:30. After lunch if we still felt like riding (and were not saddle sore yet, which I never was) the afternoon ride went out from 1:00 to 4:00. When we came back we could either go for a swim, play tennis, go up to the lodge, or just go back to our cabin and rest our buns. Our nights were very filled too. One night we had an Indian dancer who had an assortment of costumes. He had everything from a moose head to live snakes. We were also taken to the Jackson Hole Rodeo where they had a special spot for us to sit in the grandstands. We met many new people on our stay, some a little strange, but all were very nice. We had two families of foreigners one from England and the other from Switzerland. There was a lady who had grown up in Bulgaria, who had lived in the States for 26 years and who still had a very thick accent. One of her famous sayings was that she was simply "petrified" (with the rolling R's) of the horses. Although there were eight other families there we got to know them just like family. The horse rides were quite an experience. One ride was a total disaster. There were seventeen people on that ride. Well anyway, we were going down this rather steep hill in a forest and some boys were goofing off and one pushed a dead tree over which nicked the horse in front of him. That was the only bad ride there was though. There was another ride that I'll never forget. We had a very small group of five counting our wrangler, Dave. We were riding along the side of the Snake River. Dave told us everytime he rode down that way he always felt like taking a swim. It was a nice day so my friend Megan said, "Hey, you wanna take a swim?" And that's how it started. We tied our horses up and took our boots off and jumped in. The river had a current so that we could go down stream as far as we wanted. That was the best ride I had ever been on. It was also my last ride at the ranch. And that's how my trip ended. Like they say, the days are long but the week goes by before you know it. It was sad leaving. I said good-bye to all my friends, we packed our bags and left. There was nothing more to look forward to, just the long and exasperating trip home. It was the best vacation I had ever had, I'll never forget it.

19 Young writers tell experiences

Northville youngsters have had a great summer. Twenty young people took time to tell The Record about trips to camp, to Cedar Point, Toronto, the West and Mackinac Island as well as to such different areas as the Amish country in Indiana.

They typed, printed or carefully wrote enthusiastic accounts of their adventures for the contest announced in the July 30 issue which carried a story written by a 12-year-old girl of "A Trolley Lake Trip."

Glady's Morse wrote vividly of a 1993 outing to Northville on the interurban trolley, which she took with her sister and parents from Detroit.

Because The Record staff thought it would be interesting to read what young people in the same age group are doing today, the contest was held. Young writers between 10 and 15 years old were invited to compete for the $25 prize and have their stories published in the newspaper.

Judging proved more difficult than expected because of the age span. At all age levels there were excellent essays. But Patrick Beemer's "A Civilized Account of My Trip to Mackinac Island" was judged most readable — criteria established for the contest — considering the age factor.

Patrick who is 10 hand-wrote the story of the visit he paid to Mackinac Island with his parents, John and Norma Beemer, and brothers Matthew, 7, and Timothy, 3½.

Choosing a top entry, however, was not easy. Two other accounts — "My Once in a Life-Time Trip" and "The Pioneer People" — also were judged outstanding. It was decided, therefore, also to publish these as they represent different ages entered.

Mandy Olgren, who is 12, printed a delightful account of her family's vacation on a dude ranch in "My Once-in-a-Life-Time Trip." Susan Petro, 15, vividly described the sights and sounds of her unusual vacation on a Fort Seaward wagon train in "The Pioneer People."

Like Patrick's essay, these indicated special effort and thought, as did so many entries.

Patrick's mother recalled that "he worked all day on it, first listing the sequence of events and then going back to tell about experiences he most enjoyed."

The family lives on the exhibit farm at Maybury State Park and had combined vacation with business as John Beemer had visited Mackinac Island to see how the park operates its hayrides. Similar rides have been instituted here on a trial basis.

While on the island the Beemers lived in the state park barracks.

The Record staff found that local young people are having fun and can write. Six of the entrants were 10 years old (two cooperated in one essay); one was 11; four, 12; two, 13; none, 14; and four, 15.

First essay submitted was about a day trip to Cedar Point. It was written by David Frayne, 10. He told of riding one of the six roller coasters as "you feel like you're going to flip over into the water."

In a combined effort Christine Stille and Stacy Lapham, both 10, told of seeing a lot of wild animals and sleeping in platform tents at Camp Dearborn.

Marianne Rothermel, 15, wrote a neat account of a family's weekend outing to Toronto that included getting stuck in her seatbelt — mentioning that belts are required wearing in Canada.

In "Firsts" Joyce Fraser, 12, related how she saw her first volcanic craters and visited her first nightclub on a trip to Hawaii.

Alan Griffith, 13, recounted in diary form the canoe trip Boy Scout Troop 755 took last month on the Steel River in Western Ontario, which had been two months in the planning and preparing stages.

Alan's sister Anne, age 10, related her first camping experience at Camp Sara Grindley which included experiencing a severe thunderstorm and falling over a stump and fracturing a finger. Even so, she wrote, she had a great time.

Kelly Parker, who is going into 9th grade this fall at Cooke Junior High, typed a descriptive account of her Girl Scout trip to Colorado.

Kristy Spade, 10, in "An Afternoon in 1880" recalled an appealing visit with an Amish family in Berne, Indiana, arranged by her grandfather. She asked about the unusual way the curtains were pulled back and learned that "when the curtains are pulled back people are welcome to visit, but when the curtains are drawn, you would not be welcome."

Mark Olsen, 12, in "Home of Baseball" described a trip to the National Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, New York.

"Le Train Vacation 1980" by Leah

Higgins, 15, is a well-done account of a train journey from Toronto to Vancouver. She described the train accommodations and people she met as well as the spectacular scenery.

Laura Hepler, 11, in "Dinosaur National Monument" told of camping by the monument and then rafting on the Green River.

"Ouch" by Laura Chamberlain, 12, is the story of her attendance at Girls Sport Camp at Purdue University — a strenuous schedule.

Susan MacDonald, 15, in "My Wilderness Adventure" called her trip in the Blue Ridge Mountains of North Carolina "the most challenging and rewarding I'd ever taken in my life so far." She went on to describe its many challenges and proved her conclusion that it was "physically stretching."

Kellie Pence flew to Denver to begin "My Trip to Colorado" which was a family visit.

Molly Woodruff, 14, wrote of a visit to downtown Detroit that included a trip to Windsor across the Ambassador Bridge and a return via the tunnel with a tour of Renaissance Center.

Priya Sriraman explained that she is "almost 10" as she mailed in her story of "My Trip to India." Last December she and her sister and parents visited family and took a trip to Golkonda fort "where people mine diamonds." While technically the account didn't qualify by age it was welcome reading.

All 19 essays proved good summer reading and displayed considerable writing talent. The Record commends all who submitted their stories.

New trends in recreation

Local parks report attendance up, recreation industry gearing for changes as energy crunch forces people to fill increased leisure time close to home

By KATHY JENNINGS

Once upon a time gasoline was plentiful and cheap. A family consisted of a father who worked, a mother who didn't and two or more children. And the American dream was owning a home with a backyard big enough for a swimming pool.

Recreation for that good old-fashioned family was its annual vacation "up north."

But the American scene is changing. Gasoline prices seem to increase weekly. The size of the average household is decreasing, while the number of one-parent households is increasing. Fewer families can afford a new home.

People are healthier, living longer and retiring earlier.

Today these people are staying closer to home, but they have not given up recreational pursuits. In fact, more people than ever are participating in recreational activities outside the home, especially in outdoor recreation.

Figures from the 1977 Nationwide Outdoor Recreation Survey show recreation is important to most Americans, with 86 percent of those surveyed indicating recreation is one of their most important interests. Surveys also show that approximately 90 million adult Americans regularly engage in recreational activities, according to a recent article in Parks and Recreation magazine — the official publication of the National Recreation and Parks Association.

Locally, figures from Oakland County, Wayne County and Huron Clinton Metropark correlate with national trends.

"Despite the energy situation and unemployment, people are not curtailing their leisure activities. They simply seem to be lessening the range they will travel for it," commented Jan Pung of the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Department.

She noted that since 1973 the county park system has seen a 147 percent increase in participation. In 1980 the department expects that more than one million people will use the county parks. That is an estimated increase over and above the approximately 912,500 persons who visited recreation facilities around the county in 1979.

Wayne County Parks and Forestry division, which maintains Edward Hines Park in Northville, reports that participation at its parks has increased 25 percent over the past four years.

"We don't take head counts at the individual parks, but we have noticed over the past several years that use of the parks has been up approximately 25 percent," said Irma Clark, assistant director or publicity for the Wayne County Road Commission.

She attributed the increase to the "energy crunch and increased energy prices."

The Huron-Clinton Metropark Authority reported the same type of increases that Oakland and Wayne counties are experiencing, although this year some individual parks have shown decreases due to weather conditions. The metroparks all are 1,000 acres or more in size. They are designed for day use — no overnight camping — and can accommodate 35,000 or more people on peak use days.

"We have been serving just over two million people, but this year we've seen 1.4 million or 12 percent less than last year at this time," reported Dick Shafer, administrative assistant of Kensington Metropark located just outside of Milford.

"Rotten weather" which eliminated all winter sports and made spring merely "mediocre" for the park, has resulted in decreased attendance figures for 1980, according to Shafer. He went on to say that use of the park has mirrored national recreation trends.

"We're experiencing a shift in those visiting Kensington. The lower income people are not making it to the park as they have in the past. We're seeing a shift with more middle class people using the park," Shafer said.

Nationally, changes in those using recreational facilities have a higher standard of living and expanded leisure time, according to Parks and Recreation magazine.

Various social trends can be expected to influence the shape of recreation programs in the future, the recreation authorities go on to say.

Recreation experts agree that the sharpest changes in recreation participation will come as a reflection of the nation's steadily aging population. With estimates projecting that the 65-year old age group will exceed 25.5 million individuals in the next 10 years, the recreation market for the elderly is expected to sharply increase in coming years.

Other factors include the fact that two-paycheck families will have more disposable income to fuel the booming leisure industry.

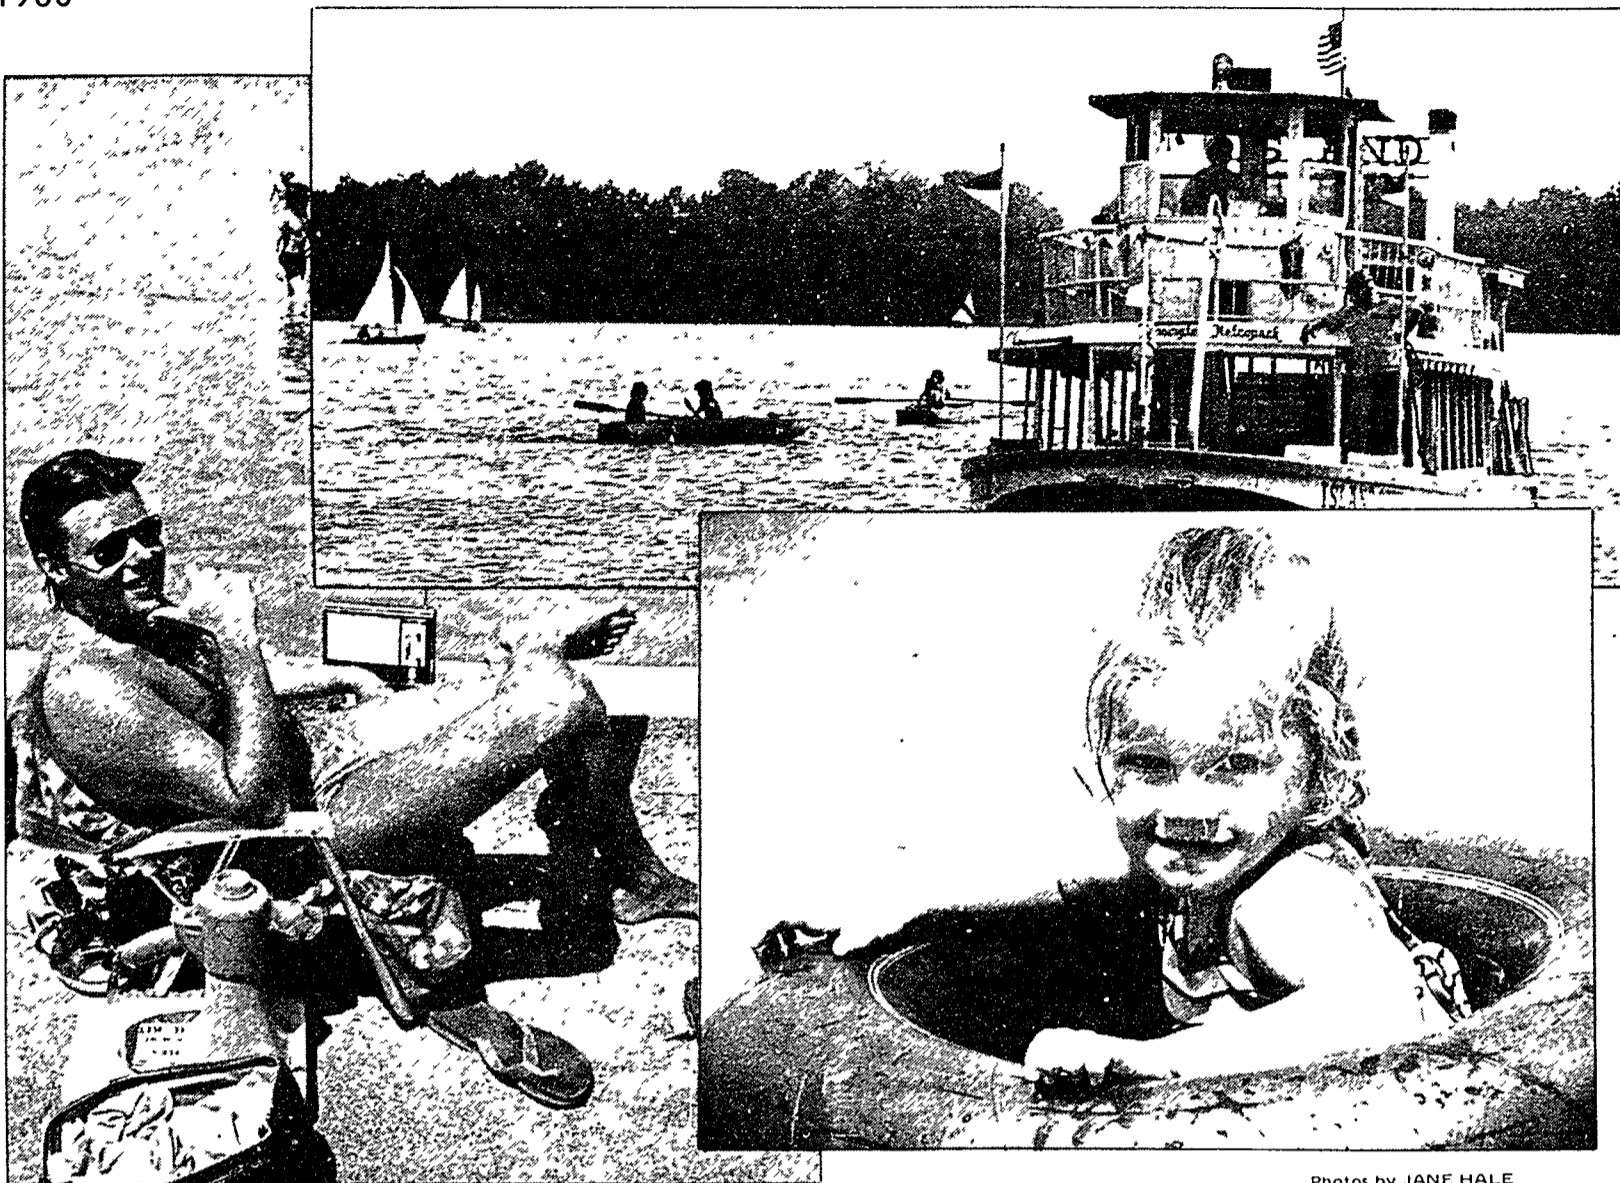

Simpler recreation pursuits could evolve from the "self-help era" in which people are increasing the number of activities they do for themselves including home and automobile repair, gardening and similar activities, proposes the Parks and Recreation magazine.

In addition, according to Parks and Recreation magazine, Americans are better educated and have more leisure time than ever before — two factors which have a direct correlation with recreation participation.

Changes in traditional recreational activities also could be realized as the public re-evaluates the role of government. Traditional sources of financing — the public tax dollar — are being reduced through tax-cutting measures.

Taking these various trends into account, recreation of the future could mean recreation which zeros in on public needs and provides for the various segments of a changing society.

Tic-Toc

I missed you
Yesterday
Always miss you when You're away makes me
Feel lonely
And blue
No one here
But the rain
And the clock ticking
On the shelf
It's no fun
When you're gone and
I'm here alone
Myself

Oh Daniel

Where are your feelings?
Have they melted
Like the snow?
Have you forgotten how
To love?
Or are you afraid
To try,
And to want Again?

I am not like you
Yet I am with you
And want to be so
I'm lost in your world
But I'm in it Falling against the current
That you encourage

Oh it hurts
My love for you
Hurts like rain
I want to run in it
But it's cold
And wet
I have no umbrella
And the sun is hiding
Behind the clouds

Oh Daniel
Where are your feelings?
Have they melted
Like the snow?
Have you forgotten how
To love?
Should I wait
For the sun
Or will it always Rain?

New heroes emerge in softball playoffs

Super Bowl claims women's playoffs...

By KEN KOVACS

Three thrilling final-inning rallies produced a trio of one-run victories for Super Bowl Saturday leaving Winner's Circle a tired, frustrated runner-up in the Northville Recreation Softball Women's League playoffs.

Super Bowl players thought they had seen the last of Winner's Circle when they squeaked out a 17-16 win the first time the two teams met.

Katherine O'Connell blasted a home run, a single and a double for the winners and Debra Junk also collected three hits.

But Winner's Circle, following a 13-7 lackluster performance of Sheehan's and the loss to Super Bowl, bounced back to down Sheehan's a second time, 7-3 and earn an opportunity to face Super Bowl in the finals.

Super Bowl, which also knocked off EDM Specialties, 4-3 — breaking a 3-3 tie in the seventh — on the way to the final contest, was down 12-8 going into the final frame of the championship game.

Not to be denied, Super Bowl banged out five base hits and, with the aid of one Winner's Circle miscue, scored five runs to take a 13-12 triumph and secure the championship.

Debra Cesare ripped two triples and scored four times for the champs. Normajean Higelmire collected a triple and two singles and scored twice.

Claudia Archambeau had three hits and scored as many times for Winner's Circle. Deborah Kemp and Sandy Myers collected two hits apiece.

Only four teams participated in the women's playoffs this year.

Two teams forfeited out of the league prior to the season's end.

Doc's Jocks and Little Joe's said they couldn't come up with enough players to compete, while league-champ Alumni participated in a weekend tournament in Howell — the Northville women's league champs won two games prior to being knocked out.

...while Jaycees, Joe's vie for National, American league titles

By KEN KOVACS

The Northville Recreation Softball American League playoff champ will be determined tonight and the National League winner tomorrow, barring further rain delays.

The Northville Jaycees last Friday trounced Little Joe's, 18-10, then got by Action Drywall, 11-7, in a game played two hours later.

Jame Hepler paced the Jaycees, cracking a triple and three singles in the win over Action Drywall.

The winners will meet Our Lady of Victory (OLV) in National League semi-final action today at 6:30 p.m.

OLV drew a bye in the first round and downed L and H Players 14-5 in its only contest Friday.

Ron Renault led OLV with a single and a two-run homer.

Meanwhile, in American League action, Joe's Little Bar and Winner's Circle advanced to semi-final play.

Joe's drew a bye in the first round, then trounced Long-Zayti 15-5.

Keith Trumbull smacked four hits in as many times at bat for Joe's, including a home run and a pair of doubles. Mark Lisowski and Bob Gerlach each added a round-tripper for the winners.

Mark Tini cranked a two-run blast for Long-Zayti.

Winner's Circle, which also drew a bye in the first round, outdistanced Sheehan's, 16-13, in its second-round contest to earn the right to face Joe's.

Jeff Moon lifted two out of the park for the winners before being ejected from the game.

Mike Kantor and Greg Pochmara collected three hits apiece for Winner's Circle.

John Kroll of Sheehan's led all hitters, cracking four safeties in as many plate appearances.

Listed below are highlights of the final regular season National League games played last week.

Methodist 9, Jaycees 7

Methodist scored six runs in its half of the second inning on three hits and a number of Jaycees' errors to break a 2-2 tie and never trailed again. Gary Beason cracked a triple and a single for the winners, while Brian Turnbull smacked a pair of doubles. Tom Rapson, Don Stolla, Ron Barnum and Jim Moran collected two hits apiece for the Jaycees.

OLV 3, Methodist 0

Neither team could get much going at the plate in one of the lowest-scoring games of the season. OLV's runs were scored in the second and third innings — two in the second, one in the third. OLV got five of its 10 hits in the second and one more in the third. A Methodist miscue aided OLV in scoring its final run. Gary Tuz and John Crotteau had two hits apiece for the winners. Dave Fisher banged out two base hits for the Methodists.

Action Drywall 8, Michel's 0

Action's one run in the second inning would have been enough to capture the win as Michel's couldn't push a single run across the plate. Michel's managed only two hits the entire game — a triple by Dennis Belleperche and a single by Gary Callender. Meanwhile, Action banged out nine hits — two each by Ted Gores, Joe Staknis and Tom Mallow — scoring one run in the second and seven

Benefit game set

Employees of the Northville State Police Crime Lab will take on the staff of Detroit television station WDIV in a game of softball August 28 at Massey Field in Plymouth at 7:30 p.m.

The event, the third annual contest between the two groups, is being held to help raise funds to support the fight against muscular dystrophy.

Detroit Tiger-autographed baseballs and a bicycle will be given away as part of the evening's activities.

The benefit game netted more than $18,000 last year and participants are hoping to raise between $25,000 and $50,000 this year.

Tickets are priced at $1 for adults and 50 cents for children and can be purchased the night of the game.

Tennis tourney postponed

Northville tennis enthusiasts have been granted additional time to sharpen their skills.

Because of a very poor turnout, the Northville Rotary Tennis Tournament, scheduled for August 23 and 24 has been postponed until September 20.

Registration is now open through September 18.

Entry fee for the two-round elimination tourney, which will be played at the Fish Hatchery and high school courts, is $5.

The tourney is open to all ages. Players must furnish tennis balls.

Further information is available by calling Don VanIngen at 349-8358 or Wes Henrikson at 349-4607.

Go Mustangs

Recent success at a summer cheerleading camp has given Northville cheerleaders plenty to smile about. From front to back are Erin McGowen, Kay Wolf, Laurie Hartman, Kris Sullivan, Cathy Ciskowski, Carol Wissman and Patty Dye.

Three cheers for the cheerers

Northville High School football fans will be in for a real treat this year when they come out to watch the Mustangs.

A talented group of cheerleaders which recently leaped and cheered its way to a third place finish — out of 18 squads — at a Michigan State University cheerleading camp will be on hand to strut its stuff.

During the competition August 16-20, the girls were required to perform a dance routine, one of their own cheers, a cheer learned during the camp and a number of jumps and mounts.

The groups were judged on execution, precision, poise, appearance and originality.

According to Coach Judy Wissman, the squad was especially honored when the MSU cheerleaders asked the girls to teach them how to perform a Northville maneuver.

Another highlight of the camp was Karen Longridge's performance in the individual cheering competition.

The Northville cheerleader finish third among 28 girls.

The junior varsity cheerleaders, who attended an International Cheerleading Foundation summer camp at the University of Michigan July 7-11, also were quite successful.

The sophomore squad captured the Grand Championship trophy, awarded for best performance of a camp cheer.

The squad also picked up six ribbons along the way.

Runners get ready

Area runners continue to prepare for 'Discover Northville', a 10,000-meter run set for October 12.

The event, sponsored by the Northville Rotary Club, will begin at Northville Downs at 11 a.m.

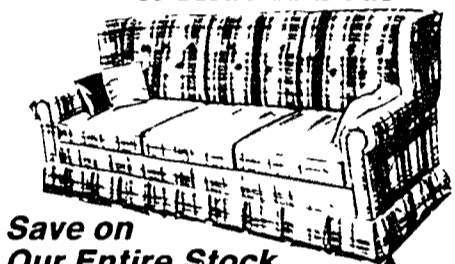

The route, which is not yet determined, will take runners through and around Northville.

Pre-registration is $6, while those registering late will have to pay $7.

Interested persons are urged to call 348-1509 or 420-2777.

A special registration form together with details about the run appears in this sports section.

Playoffs provide excitement

Softball fans got a real treat last week as men's and women's playoff game provided a great deal of excitement. Above, Steve Holman of Little Joe's beats the tag by Jaycees' Steve Barnes, even though the ump seems to be signaling 'out'. Below, Jaycee's Allen Tuchklaper holds at third, while Little Joe's Bob Norton yells for a throw to the plate. Jaycees won the contest, 18-10 then beat Action Drywall to advance to the National League semi-finals.

Softball's 2nd season underway

more in the third. Action cashed in on three walks and a Michel's miscue and ripped four hits in its big inning.

Caesar's 19, Andy's 0

The league champs had an easy time of it, scoring more than enough runs — 10 — to win the first time they came to the plate. Jim Overbey smacked three hits for Caesar's, while teammates John Osborne and Mark Miller each ripped a triple. Dave White collected the only hits Andy's could muster all night — a pair of singles.

His photos tell

Who will be the winner?

Ed Erdos stops the action nightly at Saginaw Valley Downs, Michigan's newest harness racing facility.

As the head of the photo-finish camera room at Saginaw Valley Downs, Erdos, of 5201 West Nine Mile, snaps high-speed, photo-finish pictures of 10 races each night.

Through his photos, judges determine the official order of finish for each horse in each race.

In a very close race, his photos are critical in determining the results.

"It's a pressure-packed job, with no room for error," the 22-year-old Erdos explained. "After each picture is taken I have approximately 30 seconds in which to develop the film, fix it and mount it in a glass holder for viewing by the judges."

Erdos, who will be a senior at the University of Michigan this fall, uses a fixed-mount Jone Precision camera and high-speed 35 mm black and white film.

He also has a back-up camera photographing each race in case of a malfunction of the primary camera.

When the horses are approximately 30 lengths from the finish line, Erdos flips two switches to activate the cameras. Both expose a sequence of photos until every horse has passed.

He then preheats the film development chemicals to hasten the process. The developing process is done by memory, in total darkness.

The film comes out of the camera and immediately is put into the fixer solution, which hardens the film.

The film then is placed into a frame and shown to the judges.

Erdos' position at SVD is his second photo-finish job. He held the same position last spring at the Jackson Harness Raceway.

His interest in photography goes back several years, starting with a high school photography course in Northville.

Erdos' first paying photography job came last spring when a close friend, Eric Lampela, chief timer at the Jackson Raceway, recommended Erdos for the photo-finish job there.

Despite the success he has enjoyed, Erdos does not plan to make photo-finish photography his career.

Currently, he is majoring in psychology and is seeking a teaching certificate in social sciences.

Ferris footballer

Doug Harding, a 1978 graduate of Northville High School, this fall will start at linebacker for Coach Nick Coso and the 1980 Ferris State College football team. Harding earned his starting stripes after performing spot duty the past two seasons. He came to Ferris after gaining prep all-conference football and basketball recognition. Harding, the son of Louis and Janet Harding, 42363 Beacon Tree, played his high school football under Coach Chuck Shonta. Ferris State opens its season September 6 at home against St. Joseph's College. (Ferris State College sports photo)

Family bicycle motocross today

Families, start your bicycles.

The first father/son and mother/daughter bike motocross family race will be held at Waterford Oaks County Park BMX track today, August 27 at 5 p.m.

The race will be decided by the fastest father/son or mother/daughter team's combined time. Each team member will race individually by the child's age group.

A $1 registration fee per team is required. The fee will be used to award trophies and plaques to the teams with the fastest times in each age group and the fastest parent's time in each age group.

Age group divisions will be divided into categories of 7- and 8-year-olds; 9 and 10, 11 and 12, 13, 14, 15 and over.

Parents can race once for each child entered in the contest. Mandatory safety equipment for the race includes a long-sleeve shirt, long pants and a helmet.

Students return to St. Paul's

Students will be heading back to St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran School September 3 for a full day of classes.

Approximately 250 preschool through eighth grade students will be attending St. Paul's this year, according to Principal Kenneth Lehl.

Returning students will find a spruced up math and reading series, Lehl said.

Seventh and eighth graders also will be introduced to an updated science program.

Though enrollment is closed in the upper grades, Lehl said there are some openings in the preschool through second grades.

Parents interested in enrolling children in St. Paul's, should contact the school office at 349-3140.

Registration open at OCC

Registration for the fall semester at Oakland Community College will be held from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. September 2-4 according to an alphabetical schedule.

Classes are scheduled to begin at 8 a.m. September 5.

OCC has campus locations throughout Oakland County including Auburn Hills campus in Auburn Heights, Highland Lakes campus in Union Lake, Orchard Ridge in Farmington Hills, and the southeast campus system in Royal Oak and Southfield.

Applications for the fall semester still are being accepted. Interested persons should contact the campus they wish to attend for information on admission procedures.

Schoolcraft offers new photo class

Potential Avedon's and Scavullo's will have an opportunity to learn how to photograph nonprofessional models for professional results in a new course this fall at Schoolcraft College.

Photographers-Model Usage, a 12-week course, will be offered on Monday nights from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Garden City Center beginning September 15.

According to instructor Linda Chuhnan, the course is designed to help photographers get model subjects to overcome camera shyness and handle various problems that occur during shooting sessions.

Although geared to model applications and camera techniques, the course is also designed for photographers who shoot wedding receptions, portraits and candid pictures.

Persons interested in further information may call 591-6400, ext. 404.

day of classes.

Principal Sharalene Thompson said approximately 305 students are enrolled this year in grades one through eight.

She said enrollment is almost completely closed except for "a very few openings in the second and third grades."

Our Lady of Victory students will find more services available to them when they return to school next week.

Thompson said the school has implemented an open library schedule, which will permit students to use the school's library facilities five days a week.

She said the school also is continuing its instrumental music program in grades three through eight.

Students also will see two new faces this fall. Tim Mixon has joined the OLV staff and will be teaching the fifth grade and Marion Wilson will be teaching the first grade on a temporary basis.

Thompson said an all-school mass will be held on the first day to "celebrate a new beginning and hopefully a very successful year for students and teachers."

Parents interested in enrolling children in Our Lady of Victory or in putting their child's name on a waiting list, should contact the school office weekdays between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

The school, located at 133 Orchard, can be reached by calling 349-3610.

An Important Message From Dr. Miller

'Nerves'

"Your trouble is nerves, just nerves, that's all," many have been told. But your nerves are too important to your body to be dismissed so easily.

Nerves make possible every function of your body. Your nerves transmit all sensation to and from the brain. Your nerves make possible sight, smell, taste and hearing. Nerves maintain your balance and keep your body temperature at 98.6 degrees. Nerves control your blood pressure, stomach action, blood flow, speech and breathing. Nerves make your bowels move. Nerves make it possible to swallow. In fact, every function taking place in your body is under the control of the nerve system.

Perhaps you have never been blessed with natural health ...natural health that comes only when you have a perfect, unblocked nerve system. I'm talking about the solid "yours-for-life" kind of health that gives you boundless strength and energy for the day's work ...builds firm tissue and muscles all over your body ...fights off the usual deterioration of "middle age" ...brushes aside sickness, shrugs off ordinary aches and pains ...rewards you continuously with that "isn't-it-great-to-be-alive" ...feeling...day after glorious day.

Yes, that's the kind of health I mean. Not one person in a hundred in the U.S. has it today, but chances are you can enjoy health like that ...if you are willing to open your mind to a new look at life and health.

All healing of lasting value comes from within the body. You were born to be healthy, and health is within you now. But good health depends on good nerve function.

Nerves are the electrical system of the human body, and the spinal column is the switchboard controlling health.

The nerve chart clearly shows how the nerves to all parts of the body start in the brain, pass down inside the spine, exit through narrow openings between the vertebrae, and extend outward to the various organs and limbs.

Any pinching of these nerves as they leave the spine can cause trouble in the organs or limbs serviced by these nerves.

A simple, painless and inexpensive spine and nerve test can quickly reveal if you are a Chiropractic case. You owe it to yourself and your family to have your nerve system tested and find out for sure. Every health problem has a cause and the cause must be found and corrected before you can get well.

Think This Over

The average new patient of the average doctor of chiropractic is one who has gone the "rounds" of everything else, sought everything else, tried everything else and as a "last resort" tries chiropractic. This makes it double hard for the chiropractor in many ways.

First, he is trying to convey a "strange" philosophy to a person who finds the simplicity of chiropractic so baffling!

Second, the "average" new patient under chiropractic care has always depended upon a tangible substance, or what we commonly call, a miracle wonder! The very idea of a simple adjustment, or adjustments, being able to produce a renewed life! For almost ninety years, men, women and children have found favor, worth and merit in these simple adjustments. We say simple, though they are the most profound and highly technical things in all the world. Indeed, knowing WHERE is so important, but knowing HOW is equally important.

Your doctor of chiropractic deals with the fundamental laws of nature and as he first seeks to know the CAUSE, it is then that he sets out to correct the cause and having done this, normal health returns. It is too bad this large group of people wait until the "last resort" to give chiropractic its proper trail. If more would seek to know the truth about health and disease and know that the NERVE SYSTEM controls all functions of the body and that the doctor of chiropractic is a specialist in this field, there would be less prolonged sickness, less time lost from work, less money spent and more abundant living would be theirs.

If chiropractic is new to you, don't expect a miracle to be performed. Give your competent chiropractor a chance and do as he suggests and chiropractic will become a "household" word with you and your words of appreciation, it will certainly lead others to the path that leads to health — Chiropractic!

Your Body Has a Defense Mechanism

Health research has been carried on for many years — and continues relentlessly, in the quest for better public health.

One discovery tells us that our bodies are designed and built to protect themselves — each human body having its own built-in defense mechanism. This mechanism might be called resistance — and, of course, we do know that the body in good robust health is highly resistant to disease. When body tissues are healthy, bacteria and germs are virtually harmless — in fact, investigations have shown the bacteria of several diseases inactive, in the tissues of healthy bodies.

As long as body resistance is maintained high, through consistent robust health, disease finds it difficult to gain a foothold. However — when body resistance is allowed to drop, bacteria seizes the opportunity to grow rapidly, and to manufacture harmful toxins within the body. Reaction to this development is indicated with fever, and other changes fighting to destroy the growth of bacteria. This process is a signal that the body defense mechanism is at work — fighting the invasion of bacteria — bringing about certain changes in the blood — increasing the production of leucocytes and all other anti-bodies.

When the flow of energy over the nerve system is reduced, or interrupted — the health of body tissue — or the normal function of a body organ is affected. When this occurs bacteria has an opportunity to invade — take hold and grow.

Doctors of Chiropractic are well trained in the mechanics of the body — with special emphasis on the spine and nerve system. These Doctors have unique abilities in helping your body maintain its own built-in defense mechanism — and, in turn, your body draws upon its own natural ability to sustain radiant health.

Your Doctor of Chiropractic is a highly trained specialist in locating these misaligned vertebrae in the spine — and correcting them with a spinal adjustment. When the pressure has been removed from the nerve line, the supply of nerve energy is restored — and body health begins to restore itself promptly.

What everyone should know about...

HEALTH Thru Chiropractic

Hay Fever

Hay fever, as a general rule, is an acute inflammation of the mucous membranes lining the nasal passages. In some cases the inflammation extends down as far as the bronchi.

It is characterized by thin, watery discharge from the nose, and the mucous membranes lining the nasal passage are so swollen making respiration very difficult.

It is commonly supposed to be "caused" by the irritation produced by the pollen of flowers or weeds or effluvia from some plants, weeds or flowers. This "cause" varies in sections from the so-called ragweed to the effluvia from the rose to the dust from freshly cut hay or weeds.

The pronounced stage of this condition begins with sneezing, the same as with an ordinary cold.

Eyes become easily irritated; tears flow easily and continuously; eyeballs become inflamed, and the tissues around the eyeballs and eyelids become congested and reddened.

There is an almost continuous watery discharge from the nose and sleep becomes very difficult. The patient is restless and irritable during the sleeping hours.

Chiropractically, the cause of this incoordination is a vertebral subluxation. The nerves going to the affected portion of the upper air passages of the respiratory track emit from the spine. When an impingement on these nerves occurs, it is necessary to release such interference by chiropractic care, allowing normal transmission of nerve force between the brain and the affected organs of the body.

Ask Dr. Kotila

HOW SOON SHOULD I HAVE MY CHILDREN'S SPINE CHECKED?

At once! To insure proper alignment it is a must to have each and every child's spine checked by a doctor of chiropractic. Many times, future ill health and disease may be prevented by an early detection of a spinal problem. It takes only a short period of time and can pay great dividends in your child's future health. "As the twig is bent..."

MY LITTLE GIRL HAS ASTHMA AND ALLERGIES. CAN CHIROPRACTIC HELP?

Yes. Asthma and allergies respond beautifully under chiropractic care. When spinal nerves are "pinched" due to falls, etc. vital energy is missing and "symptoms" appear. Gentle spinal adjustments restore vital life to the body by unblocking essential nerves and allowing it to come back to health. This question is my favorite, as it is what brought me into chiropractic when I was young and restored my health.

CAN CHIROPRACTIC RELIEVE HEADACHES THAT MY WIFE HAS SUFFERED FROM FOR YEARS?

Headaches are usually caused from pressure directly upon spinal nerves or the spinal cord in the neck. Prompt chiropractic care in correcting these misaligned vertebrae in the spine can result in marked improvement and fast and permanent relief from headaches. Covering the pain with medication only will delay her from correcting the real cause — pressure on the nerves.

MY PHYSICIAN SAYS MY CONDITION IS "JUST NERVES." CAN A CHIROPRACTOR HELP NERVES?

Yes. Many people are suffering needlessly from thousands of different conditions. It is popular to label conditions that do not respond to medication as "just nerves." It's shameful to deny people relief through chiropractic care because of deliberate prejudice. Everyone should receive regular chiropractic check-ups to stay healthy.

MY MOTHER HAS RHEUMATOID ARTHRITIS. CAN CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTMENTS HELP HER CONDITION?

There are many thousands of people who thought they were doomed to the wheel chair who now live normal happy lives because of the modern advances of scientific chiropractic care. There is hope even in the more serious cases of rheumatoid arthritis for the joints to function normally unless damage is beyond the body's ability to heal. I suggest you take your mother to a chiropractor for spinal analysis. He will be specific as to the results that can be expected.

Spinal Misalignment May Not Cause Immediate Symptoms

Not all subluxations (misaligned vertebrae) actually cause immediate symptoms. Many of them constitute only a predisposing factor to disease, according to Dr. H. Gillet, chiropractic researcher of Brussels, Belgium. Gillet says that in these cases, the subluxated vertebra pre-irritates the nerve in such a way that, as soon as a supplementary, or additional, outside irritation comes along, both irritations add up to produce symptoms of disease.

This explains why patients may have spinal lesions for months, even years, without noticeable symptoms, until another irritating factor such as injury, chemical, environmental, or emotional reaction triggers off the pre-existing disease-causing nerve irritation.

Chiropractic Can Head Off..... .....Your Next Headache

What's the most common complaint that people bring to our Chiropractic Life Center?

More than half of the people who visit our office complain about headaches.

It has been estimated that there are over 200 different causes of headaches. Head pain can be a dull throb, a severe ache, a sharp, constant pounding or any variation in between. They may be classified as mechanical, functional, toxic and reflex. These are the most common types and they are caused by one common factor: nerve pressure.

When tension builds up in the neck muscles it causes tremendous pressure on the nerves. And that pressure is responsible for the headache.

Based upon scientific studies, every organ, gland, muscle and tissue of the body must be supplied with its quota of vital nerve energy. This energy, which originates in the brain, passes through the spinal column and branches out to every organ in the body. If these delicate nerves are subject to pressure, a distressing condition develops.

The Doctor of Chiropractic will correct this nerve interference and release the pent-up pressure that causes tension and headaches. Upon locating the misaligned segments of the spine your chiropractor will make an adjustment to restore the misaligned vertebra and remove the pressure on the delicate nerve trunks.

When this pressure is relieved, the vital nerve energy will flow unchecked and tension that builds in the muscles is relaxed. All glands, muscles and body parts will begin working together. Headaches are very rare in the human body under these conditions.

If you're plagued with headaches let your chiropractor help. He'll relieve the pressure, relax the tension, relieve the pain, and restore your good health.

X-RAYS...AND YOU

The x-ray provides a map for the doctor to correct the cause of patient disorders. Sometimes though, patients do not fully understand the purpose of x-rays, so the following will hopefully clarify the role x-rays play in assisting the chiropractor.

There are two major reasons why a chiropractor uses x-rays. One is pathological and the other reason is analytical. First we'll elaborate on the pathological reason and then cover the analytical.

The Doctor of Chiropractic's responsibility is to be certain there are no complications that might prevent or delay recovery. The x-ray provides the doctor with a means to "look inside" and observe the conditions of the parts of the body so that it can be determined if there are any dislocations, fractures, bone disease, malformations, etc.

A condition that may only appear as a simple symptom on the surface, may be the start of something that could be prevented with chiropractic care. For example, a patient that might come into the office with a "crick-in-the-neck" may not fully realize that the pain is only a symptom of something needing direct attention. It is here that the analytical purpose of the x-rays comes into play.

The Doctor's goal is to find and correct the cause of the problem. The analysis of the x-rays supply the information needed to determine the cause of the condition, whether it is correctable and what needs to be done to correct it.

The x-ray is as important to you in finding and maintaining maximum good health as the blueprint is to the builder ... the pattern to the seamstress ... or the recipe to the chef.

INSURANCE

Q. Does my health insurance (Blue Cross-Blue Shield, Teamster, John Hancock, Aetna, etc.) pay for chiropractic care?

A. Yes.

Q. Does my health insurance pay for chiropractic X-Rays and any other examination?

A. Yes.

Q. Does my health insurance pay for regular chiropractic office calls?

A. Yes. Many major insurance companies, including Teamsters, Blue Cross-Blue Shield Master Medical Program (General Motors salaried employees; Ford Motor Company salaried employees, Great Lakes Steel, etc.). Aetna Insurance, Metropolitan, Prudential, and Travellers pay a portion if not all regular chiropractic office calls.

Q. If I receive injuries due to an automobile accident, does my no-fault auto insurance cover any chiropractic care that I may need?

Questions & Answers

Protect Your Heart

Despite its great importance in the maintenance of life, the HEART is the great muscular pump whose sole job is to propel blood throughout the body.

The HEART when normal, beats from 65 to 80 beats per minute, pumping a total of 500 gallons of blood a day. During a lifetime, the heart beats 2,500,000,000 times and pumps a total of nearly 15,000,000 gallons.

The HEART must function continually and consistently 24 hours a day in order for the body to enjoy the maximum of health. Of all the organs in the body, the heart does the most actual physical work. It is the great pump of the circulatory system that forces the blood to the smallest parts of the body where oxygen and life-giving food are delivered to every cell and tissue of every organ so that they may function properly.

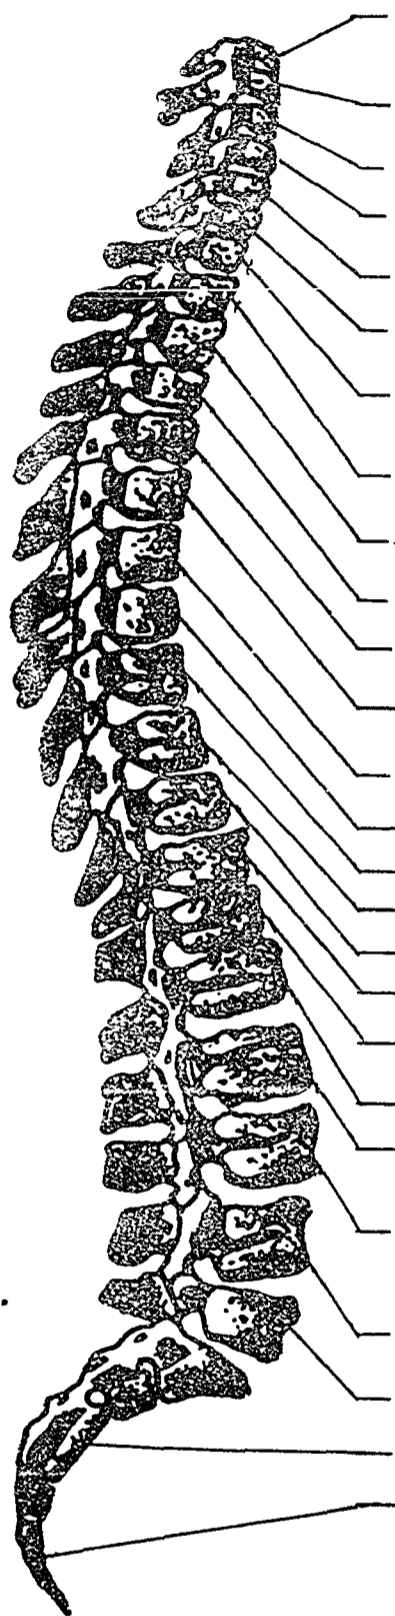

The brain power sends this vital nerve energy through the spinal column to the organ-creating movement. The same process is also true of the heart. Though we are not aware of its existence, the brain power and nerve energy must precede the contraction of the heart muscles. Deprived of this vital nerve energy from the brain to the heart by pressure or impingements to the nerve fiber in the spinal cord, the muscular action is reduced and the heart suffers.

Not only the action of the heart, but its condition is dependent upon the ability of the nervous system to carry it the proper supply of nerve energy from the brain. Whether the abnormality be enlargement of the heart, leakage, irregularity in the heart action, it is all produced by the same common cause. Only by restoring brain power and nerve energy to the heart can it function properly and thereby render 100 percent efficient circulation to all parts of the body.

Thousands of individuals embracing various types of "heart conditions" have regained vigorous health by receiving gentle chiropractic adjustments from competent chiropractors. Give yourself a chance to unlock the door to health and happiness — see your chiropractor today.

Today millions of people are turning to chiropractic care. They are recognizing the scientific principles of nature that have made spinal adjustments effective in returning the body to its normal functions.

The lateral view of the spinal column indicates the names of the spinal nerves as they branch from the spinal cord and emit through vertebrae openings.

In the section marked "B" all tissues, glands and organs supplied with life energy by these nerves are listed. While section "C" describes a partial list of the conditions and symptoms that can result.

Spinal nerve involvement does cause many conditions - conditions that can be remedied with chiropractic care. The spinal chart shown here is especially directed to those who have tried to regain their health through methods other than chiropractic care and have failed. This failure should lead to greater determination to discover the fundamental cause of the disease.

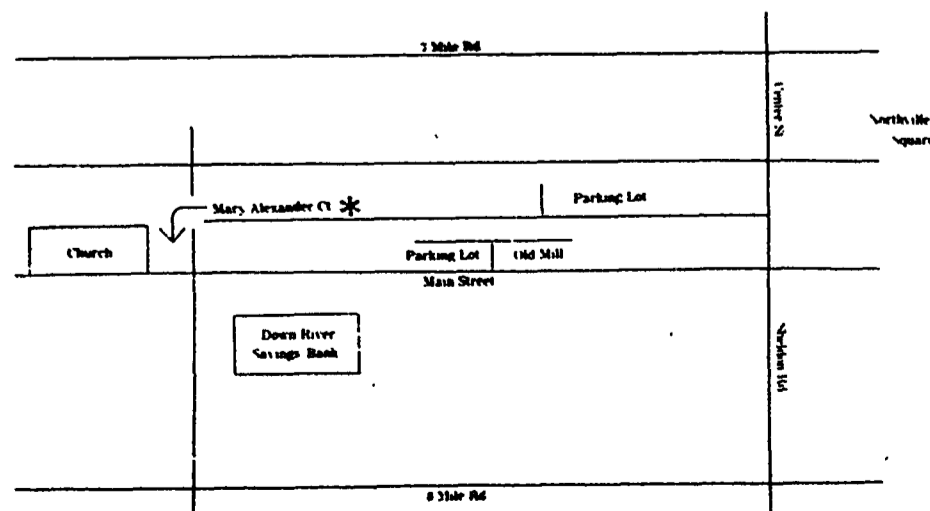

Chiropractic care offers the patient the opportunity to overcome his lowered resistance by correcting the nerve impingement. This correction involves adjustment of the misaligned vertebrae and restores normal nerve supply to the body tissues, organs and systems.

Since the discovery of chiropractic, no one must feel that he is destined to be sick all his life. "Where there is life there is hope, and he who has hope has everything."
