Board to ask 7 mills in July 28 balloting

A 7 mill renewal proposal will be put on the ballot July 28 as the board of education attempts to recoup some of the 9.5 mills lost in the April 4 election.

The board approved the 7 mill-three-year renewal proposal at a special meeting Monday night. The 7 mill proposal, the recommendation made to the board by the Citizen Advisory Committee, was approved by a vote of 5-1, with trustee Karen Wilkinson opposing the recommendation. Board secretary Gerald Munro was absent.

Despite her opposition, Wilkinson told board members she "had no problems with the 7 mills."

"I fully support the board's decision," she explained.

The board's approval of the committee's 7 mill-three year package came after considerable discussion of the reductions outlined in the proposal.

Contained within the proposal, a 2.5 mill decrease from the original 9.5 mill request defeated by Northville voters in April, are approximately $700,000 in reductions.

The reductions, outlined in the Citizen Advisory Committee's recommendation, will include cuts in transportation, staff, extra-curricular, capital outlay, fund equity and various instructional areas.

If the millage is approved by voters July 28, reductions in these areas will include the following:

- Teaching staff reductions — 9.5 teachers have been laid off due to next year's declining enrollment. The layoffs will amount to a $200,000 reduction in next year's budget.

- Transportation — a reduction of $50,000, possibly more, may be derived from a change in bus schedules and starting times. Superintendent Lawrence Nichols said he will present the board with further information on the reduction after more careful study.

- Reduction of one central office administrative position will amount to a savings of $20,000.

- Reduction of non-teaching staff personnel to accrue a savings of $65,000.

- 15 percent reduction in extra-curricular activities totaling $20,000.

- 15 percent reduction in instructional areas such as supplies, textbooks and others for a total of $60,000

In addition the board approved a reduction in capital outlay expenditures by $50,000 and a $75,000 cut in fund equity.

The increase in the SEV constituted an additional $100,000.

The reductions approved by the board total thus far $640,000 — $60,000 short of the needed $700,000 in cuts

The board discussed the possibility of adding an additional .2 mills to the 7

City Kerr house move protested by neighbors

A dozen residents of the Randolph-High street area appeared at Monday's city council meeting to object to the planned moving of Kerr House, former senior citizen headquarters, to a lot purchased by the city at the intersection two years ago.

They found a surprised, but receptive council that agreed to explore possibility of finding another lot for the house which must be moved by July 31 or demolished.

The lot had been purchased from former resident John Canterbury in June, 1979, for the purpose of moving the house to it, as the city then was aware the post office planned to expand. The post office extension will be on the Kerr House site on Cady west of the present building.

As part of the terms of purchase of the city-owned property, the house must be off the property by the end of July or the city will be penalized.

When the lot was purchased, a variance was granted by the city board of zoning appeals so that it could be located facing High rather than Randolph.

The Historic District Commission also approved the move. However, the post office project was delayed until early 1981, and the rear-yard variance had expired after one year.

When the city returned to activate the variance request this month, the board of appeals denied the request.

Twelve residents attended the board meeting and a petition signed by 55 residents was presented opposing granting the variance.

Among members of the council audience Monday night were Tom and Nelda Morrison who own and live in the house immediately adjacent to the lot in question on High. They had submitted a letter to council offering to buy the lot at the price the city had paid and to agree to keep it vacant.

Councilmember J. Burton DeRusha expressed surprise, as did other council members as he told the audience, "I guess I don't understand the opposition now regarding the placement," and questioned whether the opposition was to "this house — or any house on the property."

William Stockhausen, a resident of Dunlap in the Historic District, responded, explaining that previously the move seemed "remote." He said his objection was that the house did not seem to fit in the historic district.

The house is a ranch type with traditional architecture.

Another Dunlap resident, Laura Hixson, also stated she did not object to a home on the lot but felt this house "certainly was not in keeping with the Victorian ones in the area."

City Attorney Philip Ogilvie observed, "The city paid a good sum for the property from Canterbury," stating that it should be trying to realize as much as possible from the situation.

Mayor Paul Vernon noted that notification of the board of appeals hearing had brought out residents but said they had received the same notification when the first variance was obtained.

He said that if another location could be found for the house the city certainly would consider it and observed, "It is refreshing to see you defend our Historic District."

At 11:30 p.m. the council went into closed session to consider purchase of other property on which the house might be located. This is a permitted procedure under the Open Meetings Act, it was pointed out.

Before July 31, Vernon tallied, the city must take one of four actions. It can demolish the house; it can sell the house to be moved by someone else; it can find an alternate location for the house; or it can move it and face it on Randolph on the property without need for a variance.

Councilmember Stanley Johnston said he would not be in favor of demolishing the house. Carolann Ayers also questioned whether it would be right for the city to take such a loss, causing all taxpayers to subsidize it for Autumn launch for senior village?

Plans to locate a senior citizen housing development in Northville Township are alive and well, despite repeated disappointments on the financial front.

Robert Fitzpatrick, executive director of the Wayne County Economic Development Corporation (WCEDC), told the township board of trustees Thursday, June 11, that his organization is adjusting plans in light of the setbacks, and intends to proceed as swiftly as possible.

Demolition work at the Wayne County Child Development Center (CDC) property east of Sheldon between Five and Six Mile that is the proposed site for the "Senior Village" project could begin as soon as this fall, he said.

After a two year fight to get a lease to the property from the county, planners found federal funds counted upon to help the development were drying up. The state legislature approved a $100,000 allocation to back further study of the project, but Governor William Milliken executed his line-item veto authority over appropriations bills and deleted the funds from the state budget.

"Jerry Miller, of the governor's budget department, who I think didn't understand what this project means to the county and the township, suggested to the governor that he include the appropriation, which it took several weeks to get through the legislature, in his line-item veto package," Fitzpatrick said.

"I immediately sent a telegram to the governor, but it would take a two-thirds vote to override the veto and there is no way we could do that for such a relatively small item."

The dismal outlook for federal support, and loss of the state appropriation, forced several adjustments in the WCEDC plans, the director said.

Although the projections continue to include the 1,300 housing units, 200-bed convalescent center, recreation and

Downtown merchants dig in for Dusty Detour Days

"Dusty Detour Days" are here for bargain-hunters who will find it worth their while to drive around the block to avoid Mainstreet construction now in progress in the heart of the downtown.

Aware that it takes extra effort to enter their stores while major construction is under way, local merchants are offering an array of bargains this week — an unusual event just before Father's Day.

"We're planning the special sales and bargains to encourage people to venture into the midst of the renovation, and we're making it worth their time," explains Charles Lapham.

He calls the promotions planned by downtown merchants "unusual incentives" caused by the construction timetable.

During the next few weeks both Main and Center streets will be resurfaced with new curbing and sidewalks. City Manager Steven Walters said that there will be little interruption of traffic but parking will not be available on the streets.

The parking lot behind the theater on Main, however, is available. There also is parking in the city deck on Cady and behind stores on South Main.

Shoppers also will be able to "see what's happening" in the Downtown Development Association project, Lapham suggests.

Along Main and in the parking lots, bases have been installed and wired for new street lights which have been chosen to add to the Victorian atmosphere being created. Some already have been received and are stored in the DPW yard. They will be installed as sidewalk and curb construction is completed in an area.

For some time shoppers have been viewing workers with equipment that effectively "slices up" concrete and digs out old paving. They have seen tunnels constructed for conduits to hold wiring, Detroit Edison, telephone and cable wires have gone underground through the conduits in the initial part of the downtown beautification program.

Now, the surface construction is in progress with temporary detours necessary.

"Come, see what's around the corner — and benefit from Dusty Detour Days," invites Lapham and his fellow merchants.

Construction scenes like this are familiar in the downtown as streets are resurfaced in the Mainstreet project

Mittman appointed to council seat

Jerome J. Mittman of 997 Springfield Court was appointed unanimously by Northville City Council Monday to take the seat being vacated by the resignation of Councilmember and Mayor Protem Stanley Johnston.

He will serve until the November election when the unexpired four-year term will be voted upon. Johnston was reelected in November, 1979, but resigned earlier this month due to press of business.

Mittman and Paul Folino, a former councilman, were the only residents who had submitted resumes seeking the vacancy. Both had been candidates for the two, four-year posts on council in the 1979 election.

In that election Councilmember Carolann Ayers won her seat by 531 votes with Johnston second with 484. Former Councilmember Wallace Nichols did not run for reelection.

Unsuccessful candidates were Folino with 464, just 20 fewer than Johnston; Mittman with 292; Kevin Hartshorne, 133.

Mittman earlier this year was appointed to the city planning commission to take the unexpired term of William Tucker, who resigned. He also is alternate member of the zoning board of appeals.

JEROME J. MITTMAN

A graduate of Marquette University and University of Michigan, Mittman is employed with Ford Motor Company in

The city had set last Friday as the deadline for residents to submit resumes for the post. It had advertised the vacancy.

Mayor Paul Vernon commented that the post involves more than attending meetings on the first and third Monday nights of the month, noting that Johnston had been serving as council liaison with the recreation commission and with the 35th District Court attending meetings at 7:30 a.m. monthly.

Mittman who said he "looks forward to the opportunity to serve the city" stated he had discussed the post with officials of his firm and would be available for meetings.

The council noted Folino's long record of service but indicated it liked the idea of having a newer resident serve.

It was pointed out that Ayers was a 12-year resident of the city. J. Burton DeRusha and Mayor Vernon each had 15 years' residency; Dewey Gardner, 41; and Johnston, 30.

"Somebody who has not lived here so long may give us a more objective outlook," commented Johnston as he recommended Mittman.

In moving to appoint Mittman, DeRusha observed that Folino has served the city long and it is likely he will continue to contribute.

Mittman will be sworn in at the July 6 council meeting.

At the council session the council acted on recommendation of the city library board and the city-township library commission and appointed Valerie N. Worden to both groups.

She will fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Shirley Davis on both commissions.

A resident of the city since 1972 living at 21430 Summerside, Worden in applying for the vacancy stated she had worked in a university library and would enjoy this service to the city.

The term on the library board expires June 3, 1983, and on the city-township library commission, September 30, 1983.

Lois Winters was reappointed to a five-year term on the city library board. Her term expired June 3.

Three members of the city beautification commission were reappointed as all had indicated a willingness to serve again. They are Anne Brueck, Norma Vernon and Phyllis Ely.

Township approves expanded noise law

Noise controls for Northville Township are on the way.

The board of trustees unanimously passed a noise ordinance June 11 that will impose restrictions on both stationary noise sources, such as industrial plants, and annoying sounds.

Trustee Richard Allen first proposed the law in his role as a planning commissioner while revising the zoning ordinance.

Initially intended as a zoning restriction to protect residential areas from noise emitted by commercial or industrial concerns, by the time it passed last week the law had expanded to cover myriad sources of noise.

Allen got the relatively strict noise limits he had sought for months as one section of the ordinance.

It limits noise emitted by stationary sources (industrial operations, commercial refrigeration units and such) to 62 decibels measured on the A scale (dBA) when the adjoining lots are zoned for commercial or business use and 55 dBA when adjoining properties are residential. Noise sources emitting pure tones or impulsive (regular beat) sounds are restricted to 5 dBA stricter limits.

The A scale is one of several sound measurement scales and is said to be most similar to the way the human ear perceives sound. All sound measurements are to be conducted at the lot line between the noise source and the next property or within the adjoining lot.

Violation of this portion of the ordinance will carry a maximum $500 fine per incident. If ambient noise (all sound at a site not coming from the source in question) exceeds the limits (such as near a highway or other constant noise source) the source is in violation at 3 dBA above the ambient level.

Although Allen long contended that he was not in favor of imposing noise limits on traffic or lawn mowers or other sound sources, the final draft of the law includes such restrictions.

Trustees had argued that such annoyance sounds would be covered under "disturbing the peace" complaints. However, Allen said, that ordinance was found deficient when reviewed.

So another section was tacked onto the beginning of Allen's proposal. It is basically a stock "public nuisance" law. A public nuisance is defined as "Whatever annoys, injures or endangers the safety, health, comfort, or repose of the public..."

The ordinance then spells out certain sources of noise, most of which are restricted if the sound "disturbs the quiet, comfort or repose of persons in any office...dwelling...hotel...or of any persons in the vicinity."

Included are: horns and signal devices; radio and musical instruments at high volume, particularly between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m.; shouting and whistling, again particularly between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m.; hawking of goods, merchandise or papers; animal and bird noises (pets); whistles or sirens except for time or emergency sirens; engine exhausts; construction noises other than between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Also listed are: handling merchandise; devices to attract attention (drums, loudspeakers, amplifiers); noise or commotion in vehicles; sound trucks without permits.

Excluded are emergency vehicles and non-commercial loudspeakers used for public address. This latter provision may disappoint residents living near Phoenix Correctional Institution, as it excludes the prison's loudspeaker system from penalty.

During planning commission and board discussions of noise, several residents spoke to the prison issue, complaining of noise from that source.

A late addendum to the ordinance addressed complaints often heard of early morning and late night mowing of lawns.

Under "miscellaneous" the ordinance prohibits operation of "gasoline powered lawn maintenance equipment and chain saws" between 10 p.m. and 10 a.m.

Violators of the public nuisance provisions are subject to up to a $100 fine.

The ordinance becomes effective after publication in a newspaper of general circulation in the township. A waiting period after publication is provided in the regulations.

Maguire appointed

William G. Maguire of 44960 Thornapple Lane was appointed to the Northville Township Water and Sewer Commission June 11.

The township board of trustees voted unanimously Thursday to appoint Maguire to the vacancy left by Edward McNeely, who resigned in February when appointed township engineering consultant.

Maguire also is an engineer, having obtained his bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering from the State University of Iowa in 1958.

He served in the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, attaining the rank of captain. He is a licensed master plumber, and president of Maguire Mechanical Company, with offices, shop and industrial building on Six Mile Road near Napier in the township.

Maguire, with his wife and three children, has been a resident of the township nine years and is road chairman for the Thornapple Lane Association.

A member of the First United Methodist Church, he is vice-chairman of the trustees and was chairman of the sanctuary building committee.

In recommending Maguire to the board, Supervisor John MacDonald noted that his experience as an engineer and plumber, and recent completion of a course in water supply and sewage, should make him a valuable member of the commission.

Stuart Oil fire suspect is charged with arson

A Northville man was arrested last week under suspicion of setting a May 6 fire at the Stuart Oil Company plant, 175 Railroad, according to city police.

David Melton Huber, formerly of 625 Grace Street, was arraigned Friday in 35th District Court before Judge James Garber on charges of arson — burning of real property.

Bond was set at $25,000, or ten percent of that amount, and Huber was remanded to Wayne County Jail pending examination before Judge Garber at 9 a.m. Thursday, June 18 in Northville City Hall.

Huber has no current address, according to Force Five Captain Louis Westfall, also a city police lieutenant. Westfall has been leading the investigation of the fire.

Laboratory tests returned last week provided evidence that a fire accelerant (gasoline) had been spread at the plant at the source of the blaze.

Police were examining Huber at the city police station when he was arrested.

The arrest is the second secured locally through Force Five, an arson investigation team utilizing the resources of five local communities. The unit earlier provided evidence leading to the arrest of an Ypsilanti man charged with arson in a Christmas Day fire at Swan Harbour apartments on Seven Mile. That case goes to trial at the end of July.

Investigation at the Stuart Oil plant closed since last fall, began soon after the fire was brought under control.

Westfall said the best estimates to date place damages from the blaze at over $242,000, according to insurance adjusters in contact with police. The lieutenant said the estimate covers only the cost of rebuilding the gutted sections of the plant. It does not include the contents of the building lost in the fire.

The three-alarm blaze gutted a central section of the plant, including lower floor offices and second story laboratory facilities. The roof of this section caved in and investigators were forced to demolish a wall to get access to the apparent starting point of the fire, near a stairwell behind the offices.

A $1,000 reward for evidence leading to a conviction in the case was posted shortly after the fire, but Westfall said no one is eligible for the reward. The offering is made through a state arson investigation fund, and the lieutenant said he believes the offer remains open until there is a conviction.

Schools face 'bare bones' budgeting

BY MICHELE McELMURRY

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last in a two-part series examining the current financial crisis facing the Northville Public Schools in the wake of the April 4 millage defeat. This part focuses on the current reductions approved by the Northville Board of Education to stay within a 24.4 mill budget and an outline of the administration's proposed program for the 1981-82 school year.

For the past year, Northville Public Schools have been experiencing what some would term a "long awaited comeback."

School officials claim that this year the administration has given long overdue attention to many so-called problem areas which have included everything from curriculum to building maintenance.

Some areas where the most noticeable changes have occurred have been the renovation of Northville High School, the completion of Old Village School, the reinstitution of the junior high music program, the development and implementation of a text book calendar for future purchasing and an examination of future programming needs.

In addition to many of the program changes, the board of education adopted a philosophy of education policy to be used as a cornerstone for developing future programs.

School officials contend that much of the progress made this past school year was a result of the district's relatively sound financial situation and the fairly calm atmosphere which has prevailed in the district.

The tumultuous periods which the school district experienced a few years ago have been eased and with no major crisis to address, administrators put their energies into other areas such as program development and curriculum.

From all indications, it looked as though the financial situation of the Northville Public Schools would remain relatively sound this year in spite of bleak economic forecasts coming from the governor's office.

Administrators contended that the school's secure financial shape was a result of the continued support of local taxpayers — who finance approximately 95 percent of the school district's revenues — and some prudent investing which occurred in developing last year's budget.

Last summer, school administrators developed a budget with three separate reserves set aside for further executive order cutbacks, unencumbered fund equity and categorical aid. The reserves kept the district slightly above water when further cuts were announced.

Though the Northville schools were clearly not in a windfall situation, administrators predicted that this year's budget would most likely balance and that the district might even end the year with a small equity.

However, those predictions have drastically changed.

The administration's contention that the community's support has kept the school system on solid ground certainly bears considerable truth.

For the past 10 years, Northville voters have turned out at the polls to renew millage request after millage request — with little hesitation. Though millage increases have gone down to defeat at various times, renewal elections have been successful — that is up until April 4.

The defeat of the board of education's proposed 9.5 mill renewal request on April 4 has left the Northville Public Schools in what some consider the most desperate financial shape in its history.

It has also left the board in a state of budgetary limbo — pending the upcoming July 28 millage election.

The loss of the 9.5 mills, which represented about $3 million of the school district's budget, has forced the board of education and administration to make drastic across-the-board reductions to comply with state law which requires that school districts keep within a balanced budget.

For the past two months, the board of education and school administrators have been grappling with the problems of reducing the budget to a 24.4 mill level while trying to keep some semblance of the former program intact.

However, the result has been 30 percent across-the-board reductions in all areas with little of last year's program remaining.

Board members and administrators have admitted that the program they have developed with 24.4 mills leaves much to be desired but claim they have little choice due to the massive reductions which have to be made.

"When you're talking about 30 percent reductions, no area is going to be safe from the ax," Superintendent Lawrence Nichols said.

At its regular meeting May 26, board members approved budget reduction recommendations totaling almost $2.6 million which included everything from textbooks to administrative layoffs.

The budget reductions approved by the board were the result of weeks of data and information gathering by school administrators.

The board, which had received reduction recommendations as early as one week after the millage defeat, held off on its approval until all reductions could be compiled into one package.

Next year's proposed 24.4 mill budget has been termed "bare bones" and some contend that it is easier to describe what is left of the program than it is to explain what has been taken out.

The first reduction recommendations proposed to the board were made at its April 13 meeting.

Superintendent Lawrence Nichols, after meeting with administrators and staff members, presented to the board the first round of budget reduction recommendations.

The cost analysis reduction recommendations approved by the board from the report presented at the April 13 meeting included the total elimination of the bus program for K-12 students and the elimination of extra-curricular activities.

The total elimination of the school's transportation program will only result in an approximate $295,665 reduction in the school's budget.

The reduction of all extra-curricular programs includes athletics at all levels — elementary, junior and senior high school and all non-athletic extra-curricular activities such as music, art, drama, forensics, etc. These deletions will result in a budget reduction of $168,343.

Another area outlined in the analysis was the closing of one elementary and one junior high school.

There has been considerable discussion about school closings and rumors have already started to circulate about which schools the board will shut down next year. However, the board has not discussed which specific schools will be closed and has given no indication of when it intends to make that decision.

Yet, the closing of two schools has been approved by the board and estimated cost reduction amounts to approximately $124,814 for an elementary school building and about $131,747 for the closing of a secondary school.

The reductions are mostly the result of a decrease in support staff — administrators, secretaries, custodians, aides and teachers.

A estimated $36,311 also was reduced from the K-12 special education program, bringing the total cuts in the April 13 recommendations to $756,900 — about $2 million short of the needed $2.7 million reductions.

The second round of budget reduction recommendations were presented to the board at its May 11 meeting.

In a memorandum dated May 7 from Superintendent Nichols, another $408,146 in reductions were outlined with cuts coming in the following areas:

- elementary instruction — a 100 percent reduction was made in the areas of equipment contingency (emergency repairs and anticipated), textbook replacement reserve and textbook adoptions (new programs), 50 percent reduction in teaching supplies and a 53 percent reduction in textbooks and consumable items (replacement of existing books which wear out).

- junior high instruction — a 100 percent reduction in equipment contingency, textbook replacement cycle and textbook adoptions, 50 percent reduction in teaching supplies and 60 percent reduction in textbook and consumable items.

- high school instruction — a total reduction of $17,850 for the driver education program, total reduction in chairpersons salaries, 100 percent cut in equipment contingency, textbook replacement, and textbook adoptions, 50 percent reduction in teaching supplies and 60 percent reduction in textbooks and consumable items.

- special education — 66 percent reduction in contracted services (emergency exams, psychological screenings, etc.), and 50 percent reductions in travel and mileage and teaching supplies.

- PLUS Program — total elimination of program at a reduction of $30,715.

- attendance — total elimination at savings of $300.

- elementary curriculum development — 100 percent reduction in substitute teachers and travel and conference, 68 percent reduction in testing, 62 percent cut in elementary curriculum development.

- secondary curriculum development — 100 percent reduction in substitute teachers and travel and conference, 48 percent reduction in secondary testing and 60 percent reduction in secondary curriculum.

- library — 71 percent reduction in library books and supplies and a 54 percent reduction in library periodicals.

- audio-visual — 75 percent reduction.

- board of education — total reduction of travel and mileage.

- executive administration — 100 percent reduction in general expenditures and travel and conferences.

- maintenance and operations — 100 percent reductions in beautification project and capital outlay.

- research and development — total reduction of $3,000.

- food service program — 100 percent reduction in lunchroom supervision, equipment maintenance and fund equity encumbrance.

- data processing — 23 percent reduction. These reductions coupled with the previous cuts approved April 13 brought the total reductions to $1,165,046, which left the board $1.5 million of a balanced budget.

By the May 26 meeting, the only areas which had thus far been left untouched were staff size, the length of the school day and classroom size.

With little left in the budget, the board was faced with its most difficult — and most unpopular — decision.

With the state requiring school districts to offer 900 clock hours of instruction per year, the board has had little choice in deciding whether or not to reduce the number of classes offered per day.

Not having the funds to challenge the state board of education's mandate, the board has been placed in what many have described as a "Catch 22" situation — whereas the district is required to stay within budget to comply with state law but also must offer 900 hours of instruction per year — regardless of whether than can afford it.

Therefore, the board — though realiz-

Steimel memorial fund enriches Boys State program

Twelve young men leave this week from the Lloyd H. Green Northville American Legion Post No. 147 to attend Wolverine Boys State on the campus of Michigan State University.

This year the program is headed by Mayor Paul Vernon who assumed chairmanship of the project on the death of Northville Postmaster John Steimel in January.

A John Steimel Boys State Memorial Fund was established in memory of Mr. Steimel to recognize his many years of service as chairman of the project.

The fund this year is sponsoring Robert Sheehan, a former Northville resident now living in South Lyon, to Boys State. The fund, which so far has had 13 contributors, also supplemented the Ford Motor Company support for delegate Neil E. Fitzpatrick.

Contributions still are being accepted for the memorial fund which will be used to support the Boys State program and youth activities in memory of the unselfish efforts of John Steimel. Contributions may be sent to Mayor Vernon, 1080 Allen Drive.

Northville delegates, who will be high school seniors in the fall, are attending the program that emphasizes the importance of government. They have been sponsored by local organizations and businesses.

They include Matthew J. Abraham, 590 Morgan Circle, Lloyd H. Green Post 147, American Legion; Scott K. Dayton, 42085 Banbury, Northville Kiwanis; Steven L. Ouellette, 22350 North Hills

Court, Northville Rotary; Scott D. J. Faustyn, 46060 Pickford Court, William A. Wever, 21844 Connemara, both Northville Mothers' Club.

Others are Daniel Stephen Vogt, 45120 Galway, Multi Feed, Incorporated; Geln B. Wheatley, 44875 Thornapple, Casterline Funeral Home; Chris O. McCormick, 22024 Center, Northville Jaycees; Mike J. VanBuren, 44000 West Nine Mile, VFW Post 4012; Neil E. Fitzpatrick, 18157 Pinebrook, Ford Motor Company, Northville Valve Plant; and Stephen James Tsoucaris, 18745 Edenderry, Northville Lodge 186, Free and Accepted Masons.

Boys are selected for the program on the basis of leadership ability and awareness of government. Assisting Mayor Vernon and working with the high school and sponsors to select the delegates this year has been his wife Norma.

This is the 48th annual Boys State program sponsored by the American Legion. It begins today and continues through June 24.

As soon as the students reach campus they are assigned to a city and to one of two mythical political parties. A 51st state with mythical city and county political subdivisions will exist for seven days.

It will operate under the basic laws of the State of Michigan. Boys will run for office and carry out duties of government learning first-hand about its functions.

A 10-day circle tour of Michigan, including the Upper Peninsula to Lake Superior, is scheduled by the Plymouth-Northville Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons for this fall.

Area senior citizens who are not chapter members may join the group for the bus tour set for October 3-12, the chapter announces. Reservations are being accepted now.

Among the highlights will be stops at Agawa Canyon, Copper Harbor. Eight lunches, a brunch and a dinner are included in the $529 cost. Mrs. Bear may be called at 453-8262 for more information.

Here's news of collegians

Earl William Renaud of 43552 Galway has been named to the dean's list at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute for the spring semester.

To qualify for the dean's list, candidates must be full-time students and earn at least a 3.0 grade point average out of a possible 4.0 and have no grade lower than C.

Renaud is a freshman majoring in aeronautical engineering.

Kathleen Marie Fuerterges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Fuerterges of 1012 Grace Court, received a bachelor of science degree in home economics from the University of Dayton at its spring commencement exercises.

She was among the more than 1,300 students to receive degrees from the college.

Northville resident Chris Chio of 19224 Marilyn was among the 260 students named to the dean's list at Saginaw Valley State College during the winter semester.

Students named to the dean's list must have earned a grade point average between 3.4 and 3.99 while carrying a full course load of 12 or more credit hours during the semester.

Dr. Foulds co-recipient of patient study grant

D. Michael Foulds, M.D., a former Northville resident who was assistant professor in pediatrics at Wayne State University, now associate professor of pediatrics at University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio, will be exploring "patient-physician relationships."

He and Martin J. Hogan, Ph.D., associate professor of Wayne State University School of Medicine's division of educational services and research, are recipients of a grant from the National Fund for Medical Education to explore "the unique qualities of the relationship between physicians and their patients."

The two-year study, "A Contrastive Analysis of the Development of the Physician-Patient Alliance and Its Impact Upon Health Care," is sponsored by the Bristol-Myers Fund.

Since studies indicate that many Americans believe the quality of health care delivery fails to keep pace with constantly rising health care costs, the project will attempt to examine how these attitudes are developed.

Dr. Foulds received his M.D. from the University of Alberta in 1968 and was appointed assistant professor of pediatrics at WSU in 1975.

Planner objects to post office plans

Site plan for the addition to Northville post office, planned for the lot adjacent to the west on Cady, was to get its first viewing by Northville city planners at their meeting Tuesday night.

the end of July so that construction can begin.

City planning consultant Ronald Nino in the meantime is reviewing the post office plans for the addition. His major concern is lack of parking.

In a memorandum to the planners, he noted, "It is impossible to locate three tiers of parking within the area available (80 feet)."

Since the building is privately owned, he added, "the fact that the U.S. Government is the lessee is immaterial, and adherence to local zoning requirements is necessary."

"It would appear that a driveway off Cady Street, along the rear property line, would permit a one-way drive-through situation. This would then permit angular parking, which thereby would permit three tiers of parking."

Nino in his memo also expressed concern that the building addition does not comply with the minimum setback or rear yard requirements. Approval of the zoning board of appeals, he noted, will be necessary to locate the building in the manner proposed and to vary the configuration of the parking lot.

Alarm board to stay

The township alarm board lives. The board of trustees decided to reverse its earlier decision and allow the alarm board to remain in police dispatch offices.

Trustees voted unanimously to rescind their April order to have the board removed, following several meetings at which protests were lodged against the move.

The original order to remove the alarm system was made because board members said they believed allowing AAA Alarm Company to operate the single board in the township police headquarters was giving the company an unfair competitive advantage.

The alarm board is a monitoring device which signals police dispatchers when an alarm sounds at connected homes and businesses. The alternative to locating the board in the police station is to have the alarm company monitor the system and call police when needed.

That alternative is unsatisfactory in the views of several township residents and businessmen who purchased alarm systems to protect their homes and stores.

Police Chief Ronald Nisun told the board of trustees several times that he prefers to have the alarm system in the station, but wants only one alarm board in the office to prevent confusion. Having police monitor the board, he said, gives faster response time by several minutes, which could be critical in catching a thief.

The April order to Business Manager David Leiko to send a letter to Joe Alvarez, owner of AAA Alarm, was not executed until early May, when the board restated its order in spite of Nisun's argument.

At a special meeting May 28, however, several citizens and businessmen appeared to argue against the removal of the alarm system, stating they bought alarms specifically to have direct connections with police for better protection.

Leiko was asked at that time to investigate how the matter is handled in other communities and report to the trustees last week.

"I looked into the City of Plymouth activity," Leiko said, "and what they have done is removed all private boards and bought their own Livonia and Dearborn dropped them because they had so many hooked up that false alarms became a problem."

The Plymouth solution, Leiko said, was to have residents pay a one-time $150 hook-up fee that paid for the board. They have over 50 hooked up now, he said, and plan to purchase a second board. No trustees suggested a similar procedure for the township, however.

"In the past two weeks I had a conversation with a friend who owns a party store," said Trustee Thomas Cook, "and he told me that the alarm is hooked up so he can sound it if there is an armed robbery. He said if a guy has a gun pointed at him, even 15 seconds delay in police getting there is too long."

"I hadn't thought of robbery (when we voted to order removal)," he said. "I hereby withdraw my objections to the board."

A businessman in the audience noted that he also had smoke detector alarms hooked in to the township alarm board, giving fire protection as well.

Cook moved to keep the alarm board, and the board voted unanimously to do so.

Plan consultant boosts township hourly rate

A hefty increase in hourly fees by its planning consultant was not approved by the Northville Township Board of Trustees last week, but then again, it was not rejected either.

Payment to consultants has traditionally been according to fees authorized by board resolution; the agreement is not by contract.

But the board recently elected to request that it be billed on an hourly basis, rather than continuing to pay a $400 monthly retainer. When the board voted, planning consultant Claude Coates, of Villican-Leman Associates, was going for $35 per hour.

The consultant suggested at the time that it could maintain services to the township under the same retainer fee, but would soon be raising hourly rates. Coates also said billing by hourly rate creates more complicated bookkeeping procedures for the planners.

Monthly billings by hourly rate began June 1 and the township received a letter from the planning consultants May 28 stating that rates were going up — to $50/hour for Coates' services effective August 1.

The rate increase was on the board agenda June 11 for approval by resolution, but the board chose instead to simply receive and file the letter, taking no action.

"Suppose we don't approve this?" said Treasurer Richard Henningsen. "They can go ahead and bill us, that's fine, but we don't have to go on record as favoring that rate."

Supervisor John MacDonald indicated he thought the increase might be excessive.

"I know they haven't raised rates for quite some time, but how you can justify 42 percent I don't know," he said.

The planner's letter states the $35 per hour charge has been in effect since 1969. It states that the delay in effective date of the increase is to allow the township to increase its charges to developers in the township during the planning review process.

Coates is now a principal in the firm, no longer an associate. As an associate, his services were $45/hour in a 1979 contract with the City of Novi. In the fee structure presented in the letter to the board, associates are $40/hour.

Alma awards scholarships

Two Northville High School graduates have received scholarships to attend Alma College in the fall semester.

Les Neal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Neal of 16850 Old Bedford, and Kevin Swayne, son of Dr. and Mrs. Daniel Swayne of 18321 Laraugh, both have been awarded Presidential Scholarships.

The awards are made on the basis of outstanding scholarship, high national test scores and recommendations.

CMU honors two from here

Two Northville residents were among the 1,069 students named to the winter semester honors list at Central Michigan University.

Deon Edwards of 37727 Colfax, a CMU senior, received a straight A grade point average for the semester. Northville resident Tiffany Pierson also was named to the list for academic achievement.

Honors students were chosen from the top 10 percent of each academic class. In addition, to qualify for honors, a student had to have completed 12 or more letter graded hours of on-campus credit during the semester and have a grade point average of no lower than 3.5.

Police Blotter

No suspects cited in stolen car fire

A 1980 Buick valued at $12,338 was destroyed by fire June 6, township police report.

The car was parked on the C&O railroad service drive east of Napier and south of the tracks, police said. A witness at the scene notified Plymouth police, who in turn called in the township police.

Only the car's steel sheet metal, engine, rear end, frame and steel wheels remained after the blaze, police said. Many metal parts were melted due to the extreme heat of the blaze.

The owner of the car said it was stolen from Dearborn, police said.

There are no suspects.

Two incidents of stolen toolboxes were reported to township police last week.

A toolbox and its contents, valued at $345, were stolen from a garage of a Scenic Harbor residence between June 3 and 4, township police said.

The owner said the garage door was open at the time, but police said he told them he didn't hear anything.

Police have no suspects.

A toolbox and its contents, estimated value of $1,100, were stolen from a Rippling Lane residence between April 12 and June 6, township police report.

Unknown suspects took the toolbox from the owner's garage and there was no sign of forced entry, police said. The owner did say the garage had an automatic door opener.

There are no suspects.

Three Grand Prix "Mudders" tires were slashed on a 1978 Ford Bronco between June 5 and 6, township police report.

The owner said the tires were slashed with either a knife or some other sharp instrument, police said.

Police have no suspects.

Four wire wheel covers were stolen from a 1979 Delta 88 when it was parked in a lot on Seven Mile between 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. June 10, township police report.

The owner said she was inside a local business at the time and could not see the car, police said. She said she has no idea who took them.

There are no suspects.

A 30-foot Maple tree fell in the front yard of a Jeffrey Drive residence between 11:11:15 p.m. June 1, city police report.

A man walking his dog discovered the tree had fallen, but he didn't see any vehicle or hear any noises during the times, police said.

There was no evidence at the scene, police said. They found leaves and broken branches on the ground from other trees in the area.

Police have no suspects.

Two door windows of a 1981 AMC Spirit at a Morgan Circle residence were broken sometime June 6, city police report.

The owner said the car was parked in the driveway June 5 and when he returned June 6 he noticed the driver's and passenger's side door windows had been broken, police said.

Police couldn't find an object used. The owner's wife said she heard a noise outside the house at approximately 2 a.m. The car also had a rear windshield wiper bent, police said.

Two Fuji boys 10-speed bicycles were stolen from the garage of an Allen Drive residence between June 5 and 7, city police report.

The two bikes had a combined value of $370. The owners said they would attempt to locate the bikes. They added the garage door was open at the time of the theft, police said.

The rear plate glass door wall of a Reed Street residence was broken between noon and 12:10 p.m. June 9, city police report.

The owner said his son came home around 12:10 p.m., but didn't have his key and went to see if the rear door wall window was open, police said.

The son noticed the stationary side of the door wall window was broken toward the bottom, police said. The son entered through the unlocked window. He noticed nothing in the house was disturbed or any signs of entry, police said.

Neighbors behind the house heard a noise between noon and 12:30 p.m., police said.

There are no suspects.

A Northville woman was ticketed after a three-car accident June 2 on Northville Road at Six Mile, township police report.

Jolene Carol Matley, 21, 18605 Innbrook Apt. 1, was cited for disobeying a red signal. The police report shows Matley was southbound on Northville Road when she looked at the traffic signal for Six Mile and noticed it was red.

The report said Matley was unable to stop the car and struck the car of a Livonia man who was driving westbound on Six Mile. His vehicle swung around and hit a Northville woman's car on northbound Northville Road.

The report said the Livonia man complained of a bruised leg and back injury, but didn't seek treatment.

Four people reported bicycle thefts to city police last week.

Two bicycles were stolen from a parking lot on South Center Street the afternoon of June 4, city police said.

A Raleigh blue 24-inch boys 10-speed bike and a BMX red 20" boys off-road bicycle were stolen at about 1:10 p.m., police said. The Raleigh bike was valued at $150 and the BMX bike was valued at $100.

The bikes were stolen while parked next to the bowling alley. The area was checked to no avail, police said.

There are no suspects, police said.

A Northville high school student was cited for reckless driving and destruction of property at the high school May 30, city police said.

John Christopher Schemanske, 18, of 19540 Maxwell Street, was arrested after police observed his car sliding and completely turning around several times, police said.

The officer noticed deep cuts in the wet grass and damage amounted to $100, police said.

O'Keefe's sentence reduced

A Northville man was given a reduced sentence after appearing in 35th District Court last Thursday in connection with two separate bomb threat incidents which took place in May.

Daniel O'Keefe was found guilty of being a disorderly person. He was sentenced to 60 days at the Detroit House of Corrections.

O'Keefe was first arraigned May 28 for attempted bomb threats May 15 and 22. He then pleaded not guilty to "intimidation, or harassment, by device represented as a bomb or explosive device."

In the May 15 incident, police responded to call at the Main Street School about a possible bomb. Police found a shoe box at the southwest door at the rear of the school.

In the May 22 incident, police responded to call at a local bar and hotel about a possible bomb. Police found a shoe box at the rear entrance door with the words, "This is a bomb."

Both times the Michigan State Police Bomb Squad was called to the scenes. Each time a small charge pipe bomb was used to open the shoe box. All that was found in either shoe box were chicken and spare rib bones.

Seniors involved in cannon heist

Northville city police have been aware that it is graduation season.

The cannon that has become a landmark in front of the Lloyd H. Green American Legion Post home at 100 West Dunlap was recovered near Dunlap Street last week by police.

Chief Rodney Cannon told city council Monday that the cannon has been returned to the post — and nine tombstones from the pet cemetery in Milford are waiting to be picked up by Milford officials.

"When we read headstone inscriptions like, 'Muffy — eight years,' we realized what they were," Cannon related. A check confirmed the suspicions.

Report shows township among building leaders

Though suffering with the rest in last year's housing construction slump, Northville Township was still among the leaders in single family residence building, according to a report released June 11 by SEMCOG.

The city also put up a strong year, considering the slump, with almost as many multiple-family permits issued as the township posted in the single family area.

The 1980 report compiled by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG), a voluntary association of 136 governments in Livingston, Macomb, Monroe, Oakland, St. Clair, Washtenaw and Wayne Counties, gives a clear indication of what most suspected last year — the housing industry was in its worst slump in over a decade.

The 10,562 residential building permits issued in the seven counties last year was the lowest annual total recorded since 1968 when SEMCOG began compiling the statistics.

The previous low point was 1975, when 33 percent more permits were issued — 15,779 — than in 1980.

In Wayne County, Northville Township's 75 permits for single family home construction was second only to Livonia's 167. When multiple family units are included in the total, the township drops to third in the county, behind Livonia and Van Buren Township.

For the first time in three years, the township authorized no new multiple-family starts in 1980. Livonia had none either, but Van Buren Township had 100 new multiple units started to go with the 47 single family starts posted.

The City of Northville appears in the report in two parts — Wayne and Oakland Counties. In Wayne County, it ranks far down the list with only 10 permits, all for multiple family units, and one demolition, bringing the total to nine. The township also posted a demolition, and totaled 74 new homes.

The Oakland County portion of the city, however, registered a minor boom of 62 multiple family permits, ranking it seventh in Oakland County alone for total permit issuance.

The report states that 1980 totals represent a drop of 51 percent from 1979, when the decline was first noted. The 1979 total was itself 22 percent below 1978.

The decline in available housing in the seven-county area is most evident when net figures are studied (net total is the total building permits issued minus demolitions.)

The region posted a net gain of only 4,697 permits in 1980 compared to 15,847 in 1979, a drop of 70 percent in the annual growth rate.

Detroit, with 4,387 demolitions, accounted for 74 percent of the 5,685 demolitions total. The city also, however, ranked first in the region for total permits, issuing 13 single family permits and 915 multiple family permits. Detroit's 928 permits displace Farmington Hills as the leader.

Avon Township registered the greatest number of single family permits with 345.

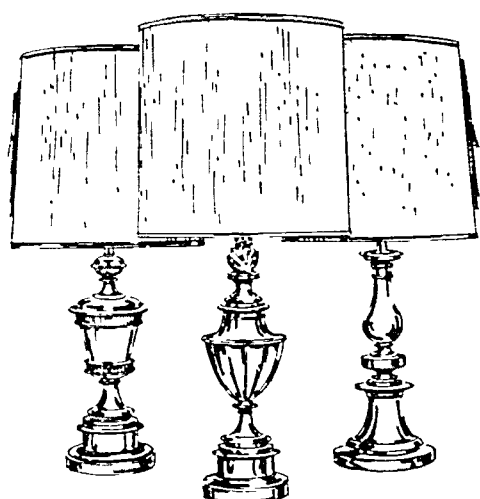

SEMCOG spokesmen attributed the decline in housing starts to "current regional economic conditions," citing high unemployment rates and high interest rates.

The report is available from SEMCOG, 800 Book Building, Detroit, 48226.

Building permit totals (indicated with S for single family, M for multiple family and T for totals after demolitions) in other communities near Northville were:

An analysis

Schools balance budget with 'bare bones' program

ing the negative impact of its option — approved a recommendation to reduce the class day to five hours, add 10 students to the staffing ratio and eliminate art, music and physical education.

This will reduce the budget by $1 million. It also will mean an average class of between 38 and 39 students, a reduction of an estimated 50-55 teachers and fewer course offerings for students.

The board approved the layoff of 129 teachers in both the K-12 and ISE Program at its May 26 meeting.

Twenty of the K-12 teachers were laid off due to declining enrollment and teachers returning from leave; 89 were laid off due to economic uncertainties.

With the board's approved program it is estimated that about 50 of the 89 teachers will be recalled.

Due to the scope of the teachers layoffs, many administrators have expressed concerns that teachers will leave the district due to the low moral and job uncertainty.

Others fear that teachers will leave in opposition to teaching classes of 39 students in overcrowded classrooms.

In any case, the board has been left with little choice.

In addition to teacher layoffs, the board approved the layoffs of three building administrators, seven central office administrators, seven custodians, three maintenance persons and three secretarial-clerical positions.

With the program that the board has proposed, many serious concerns have been addressed by administrators, teachers and parents.

In terms of the class size, administrators recognize that many of the classrooms cannot accommodate the large numbers of students which will have to be scheduled.

In addition, many have expressed concerns about the method of teaching which will be used with large classes, noting that little attention will be given to individualization.

"When you're faced with 40 or more kids, you'll be directing your teaching at students who are middle-of-the-road," said one administrator.

Many administrators recognize that this could cause problems for the student who may need extra-help or for those who would normally be placed in gifted and talented programs.

Also at stake is the high school's accreditation with the North Central. Though the high school would probably only receive a warning next year, it could stand to lose its accreditation the following year.

Translated, this means that a diploma from Northville High School would only be worth about as much as the paper it's written on.

Other problems have focused on the elimination of the capital outlay expenditure, which would result in no improvements or maintenance to buildings, the probability that further executive order cutbacks will be made and the fear that another tax revision proposal may be in the making, which may mean the same — or a greater — loss in revenues to the schools as the Tisch Amendment and Proposal A would have produced had the voters approved either plan.

In discussing the 24.4 mill program with the Citizen Advisory Committee, Superintendent Nichols said he believed the district was "in the midst of what I hope will be a temporary setback."

However, administrators and board members recognize that if July's millage is defeated and the district is forced to stay within a 24.4 mill budget, Northville Public Schools will face much more than a temporary setback.

The question which has yet to be answered is how much of a setback will a school district on a 24.4 mill budget cause the Northville community?

Milliken vetoes senior village bill

In a move that threatens to delay development of a senior citizen housing complex in the township, Michigan Governor William Milliken vetoed a $150,000 appropriation from the state intended to get the project off the ground.

Milliken executed his line item veto authority to eliminate the appropriation to the Wayne County Economic Development Corporation (WCEDC). The money was to be used to help begin conversion of the vacant Wayne County Child Development Center into a modern senior citizen's housing village.

The money found its way into the appropriation bill at the urging of Senator Robert Geake (R-Northville) after WCEDC obtained a deed to the property from the county recently.

Federal and state financing sources intended as support for early phases of the project had dried up during the two years between first proposal of the village and granting of a deed, however, and a search for other funds was begun.

"The funds we requested from the state," WCEDC Director Robert Fitzpatrick said, "were to be used to provide the short-term staff support we need to develop a competitive bid letter and specifications document, to supervise the initial phases of demolition and site clearance, and to begin working with other public service agencies for their help in developing some unique people-programs for the new village."

Fitzpatrick sent a letter to the governor Saturday, contending that the veto was "shortsighted and contrary to the interests of Wayne County and Michigan."

He repeated the oft-cited arguments that the property has cost over $750,000 in maintenance alone since it was closed in 1974; that the project would be good for the local economy; that it would produce much-needed housing for seniors; that it would produce jobs; and add to local, county and state tax revenues.

"It seems to me that a $150,000 investment on the state's part to bring all these benefits into being is one of the most cost-effective expenditures the state could possibly make right now."

Development of the site had been scheduled for autumn, but the veto threatens to delay the start-up until at least early next year, WCEDC estimates.

Milliken's veto was the second time in less than a year he has used his authority over the appropriations bill to the township's detriment. Last fall, when the delayed appropriations bill for the current fiscal year was finished, the governor removed all fire service reimbursement payments from the bill.

The township is among the leaders in communities that supply fire protection to state properties and, under law, are supposed to be reimbursed for that protection. The community joined a lawsuit filed by the city of Ann Arbor seeking payment of the vetoed reimbursement.

Both the fire revenues and the support to WCEDC received support for placement in appropriations bills by Senator R. Robert Geake (R-Northville).

WCEDC's proposal was one launched by township officials. It has received support from all quarters of township government.

The plan would provide 1,300 living units for elderly citizens, a 200-bed nursing home, shopping and recreation facilities, a clinic, food services, a library and free or low-cost office space for community agencies (Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid, the Veteran's Administration, Michigan Cancer Foundation, Visiting Nurse Association, U.S. Postal Service and others).

The terms of the lease agreement forbid the offering of tax reductions as an incentive to construction, virtually guaranteeing the applicable local governments (county, township and schools) additional annual tax revenues of over $1.5 million.

9 U-M Scholars here

Nine Northville High School students, admitted as freshmen at the University of Michigan this year, have been named by the university as Regents-Alumni Scholars.

Each year the University of Michigan selects Regents-Alumni Scholars for their "superior academic achievement and their potential contribution to the scholarly community of the University of Michigan." This year 1,457 outstanding Michigan high school students were named.

Of the 1,457 scholars, 303 will receive a $500 merit award if they enroll in U-M in September.

David Wilbur Booth of 46600 West Main was among the 303 scholars to receive a merit award. The award is given to first-year students residing in Michigan and is not renewable.

Other Northville students named Regents-Alumni Scholars are: Elizabeth Ann Denning of 20109 Silver Springs; Sabina J. Vanderwoof of 417 Larry; Cynthia Ann Phillips of 18313 Jamestown Circle; Gregory Scott May of 45765 Fermanagh; Jeffrey Ray Williams of 41849 Banbury; Stacy Kay Simpson of 42105 Scenic Lane; Thomas Andrew Rothermel of 42370 Norham; and Lora Brigid Higgins of 42945 Whitestone.

Regents-Alumni Scholars are designated by the U-M admissions office and U-M alumni play an active part in the selection procedure. The candidates, chosen from all Michigan resident applicants for freshman admission, are referred to U-M alumni for interviews and recommendations.

Correction

Recent Record stories covering cable installations by Omnicon of Michigan incorrectly stated that the firm holds an exclusive franchise to install cable television in Northville Township.

The firm does have a franchise, but it is non-exclusive, allowing other firms to solicit township business also. The Record regrets the error and any difficulties it may have caused readers.

Senior village plans advance despite setbacks shopping facilities and all other features included in original plans, WCEDC now intends to have the project built in phases, rather than all at once.

It is the first phase that might get under way soon, Fitzpatrick said.

As opposed to sending a letter to likely developers, asking for immediate development of the entire village, Fitzpatrick said, "we are using in-house people to undertake the initial planning stage and then proceed."

He explained that WCEDC personnel have already drafted an initial demolition and construction plan which would have 198 units built in the first phase.

He referred to problems with WCEDC's consultant for the project, Zuchelli-Hunter, Associates (ZHA), of Maryland, and said the firm has been late in providing documents requested. The firm is being dropped from the project, leaving some $300,000 in "excess" federal Community Block Grant funds for - Wayne County which may be available to WCEDC, Fitzpatrick said.

If those funds are reallocated to his organization, he said, 10 percent would be used to pay administrative costs with the balance going toward demolition of eight cottages at the CDC and site preparation (road improvements, sewer improvements and similar matters).

"At that point, once we get site plan approval (from the township) we can move on and seek a developer to build the housing," Fitzpatrick said. "There is a great deal of interest being expressed in this project by both national and local interests."

While the WCEDC's request for reallocation of block grant monies is processed through Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG), the regional administrator of the federal project, Fitzpatrick said the lease to the 101 acres approved by Wayne County has not been signed.

"We have not yet signed the lease, though it is approved by the county, because of a number of factors," Fitzpatrick said. "We wanted to insure that funds would be available and resolve the difficulties we have faced. Once we take title, for instance, we need insurance because we assume liability. We did not want to assume responsibility before we were sure we could handle it."

"The quicker we can move on this, the better. We definitely want to sign that lease before the state realizes it is in such a jam for jail space that is confiscates that property; I don't think they can once we transfer title to us."

Fitzpatrick showed the board topographic and planning maps designating the cottages to be demolished in the first phase. There was some concern by the board that one of the buildings may be ones in use by Novi Ambulance and the township fire department.

"We are definitely going to need a cooperative effort on this," Fitzpatrick said. "Some of those buildings are worth saving, like the fire hall, and we don't know which ones they are."

"Once we sign the lease, we will also probably be here trying to arrange some security for the site. Perhaps the township could run a police car through there once in-awhile. These are all things we will have to iron out once we are in a position to start moving."

The full development would add over $1 million in taxes to township, school and county revenues annually, provide hundreds of jobs during construction and after completion, and add much-needed housing for senior citizens in the area, the director said.

City plans to move house met with neighbor protests that area of High-Randolph.

"We should look for alternates," she agreed.

City Manager Steve Walters recalled for the council that the situation was different two years ago when the move first was planned. He stated the risk today of moving the house and trying to sell it is greater.

He stressed that the council "does not have the luxury of waiting."

Walters had prepared a table for the council on costs of the alternative actions available:

To demolish the house — $3,000 — to be subtracted from the sale to the post office ($41,000) — realizing $38,000.

To sell to someone to move the house — estimated at $1,500 with equal charge to remove basement — realizing $41,000.

To relocate on another lot at suggested purchase price of $24,000 at a total cost of $70,000 — and, hopefully, selling the house for more.

To relocate on Randolph lot facing Randolph — with relocation costs including new basement and utility charges estimated at $44,500 plus $1,500 for basement removal on Cady.

Vernon told the audience that the city is very aware of the shortage of vacant lots but that the council would explore the ones available that could accommodate Kerr House in the closed session.

The city had purchased the Kerr House for use as a senior citizens center until Allen Terrace was built. It previously explored moving the house to a location behind the scout-recreation building next door (now leased to McNeely & Lincoln engineers, who serve as city engineers.)

Walters said the Kerr House does not lend itself to public use as rooms are not large. Questioned about the lot the city owns west of Rogers, Mayor Vernon said the lot was landlocked and has severe drainage problems.

Houses torched for Force Five test

A cooperative arson investigative program that has been in effect in practice was recognized officially by Northville City Council May 26.

It approved the Force Five Mutual Aid Agreement with the City of Plymouth and the townships of Canton, Plymouth and Northville.

The pact already had been approved by Northville Township.

Through the agreement communities involved provide personnel, equipment and training for fire and police arson detection and investigation teams on a regional basis.

The newly organized team investigated the Swan Harbour Apartments fire in the township and, more recently, the Stuart Oil Company fire in Northville, determining both were arson cases.

May 29 and 30 Force Five "created" an investigation as two houses on Cady Street were set on fire by Belanger Manufacturing were set on fire. Force Five investigators then were to discover the sources of the blazes set by Fred Muller, Livingston County arson investigator with the Livingston County sheriff's department.

This phase of the training program was under the direction of Roy Hall, Plymouth fire department chief.

Participants discovered fire sources set throughout the houses, including oil soaked rags in tin cans, matches and cigarettes.

In the process the two houses near Griswold on Cady were completely burned. The Belanger firm now will complete the demolition clean-up.

Northville Police Chief Rodney Cannon told city council at the May meeting that after approval by all units of government participating, Force Five then may qualify for a federal grant.

The cooperative agreement stipulates that personnel and equipment of communities in the pact aid each other if not engaged in answering another investigation or in emergency response services.

A hall of time for Henry

Henry's Hall. Many Northville residents and groups have used the facility at O'Sheehan's-Little Caesars complex at 4333 Seven Mile for small parties and meetings in the past year without knowing why it was called Henry's Hall.

There should be no doubt after dedication ceremonies this month. Henry's Hall is named in honor of Henry L. Sheehan, father of Larry Sheehan, owner of the bar-restaurant complex. Dedication appropriately was shortly before Father's Day this coming Sunday.

Larry and his two sisters, Mary Barum and Joan Hutton, gave dad a surprise 73rd birthday party June 2. The hall was dedicated to Henry and a five-foot tall portrait taken from his high school graduation picture was presented, then given a permanent place of honor on the hall's north wall.

Henry and Inez Sheehan, Northville residents, also were celebrating their 51st anniversary June 2.

The Township of Northville shall annually contribute 100% of the premium arising under such life, health, hospitalization, medical and surgical service and expense, accident and income disability insurance contract for each person within the class of persons enumerated in Section No. 4 hereof. Such contributions shall be secured from the general fund of the Township.

SECTION NO. 6. ELIGIBILITY. Each individual as enumerated in Section No. 4 hereof who is employed as set forth therein on the effective date of this Ordinance shall be eligible for and covered as of such date. Every individual who becomes subsequently employed shall be eligible for and become covered as provided for in such contracts as are in existence at the date such individual becomes a covered employee.

SECTION NO. 7. EXCLUSION FROM COVERAGE. Any individual desiring not to be covered by the group insurance plans shall give written notice to the Northville Township Clerk of such desire not to be covered under the contract, such coverage shall not ensue. If the notice is received after the individual has become covered such coverage shall cease as provided for in said contract.

SECTION NO. 8. RATIFICATION OF PRIOR PLANS. The Township of Northville hereby ratifies and confirms the validity of any and all life, health, hospitalization, medical and surgical service and expense, accident and/or income disability insurance plans in existence on the effective date of this Ordinance.

SECTION NO. 9. CONFLICTING PROVISIONS REPEALED. Any previous ordinances, resolutions, or parts thereof, conflicting or inconsistent with this Ordinance, are to the extent of such conflict or inconsistency hereby repealed.

SECTION NO. 10. EFFECTIVE DATE. This Ordinance is hereby declared to take effect immediately upon its date of publication which is June 17, 1981.

This Ordinance was duly adopted by the Township Board of Trustees of the Township of Northville at its regular meeting, called and held on the 11th day of June, A.D., 1981, and was ordered to be given publication in the manner prescribed by law.

TOWNSHIP OF NORTHVILLE WAYNE COUNTY, MICHIGAN

ORDINANCE NO. 72

AN ORDINANCE ENACTED PURSUANT TO ACT NO. 27 OF THE PUBLIC ACTS OF 1960, AS AMENDED, FOR THE PURPOSE OF CREATING AND ESTABLISHING AN ANNUITY OR PENSION PLAN FOR THE OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES OF NORTHVILLE TOWNSHIP AND AUTHORIZING THE TOWNSHIP SUPERVISOR AND THE TOWNSHIP CLERK TO CONTRACT, IN THE NAME OF THE TOWNSHIP, FOR SUCH PLAN; AND TO DEFINE THOSE CLASSES OF OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES WHO SHALL BE COVERED BY SUCH ANNUITY OR PENSION PLAN, AND TO SET FORTH THE RESPECTIVE PER CENTUM SHARE WHICH NORTHVILLE TOWNSHIP AND THE OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES SHALL CONTRIBUTE TO THE PREMIUM OR CHARGES ARISING UNDER SUCH ANNUITY OR PENSION CONTRACT AND TO PROVIDE FOR THE DEDUCTION OF CONTRIBUTIONS FROM OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES' COMPENSATION; TO ESTABLISH THE TIME AT WHICH EXISTING AND FUTURE EMPLOYEES SHALL BECOME ELIGIBLE FOR SUCH PLAN AND TO FURTHER ESTABLISH THE NORMAL RETIREMENT DATE FOR ALL EMPLOYEES; TO PROVIDE A METHOD FOR NON COVERAGE OF AN OFFICER OR EMPLOYEE OF THE ANNUITY OR PENSION PLAN; TO SET FORTH A DATE WHEREIN SUCH PERSON COVERED UNDER THE ANNUITY OR PENSION PLAN SHALL HAVE A VESTED RIGHT OR INTEREST IN SUCH PLAN; TO RATIFY AND CONFIRM THE VALIDITY OF ANY ANNUITY OR PENSION PLAN IN EXISTENCE ON THE EFFECTIVE DATE OF THIS ORDINANCE; AND TO REPEAL ALL ORDINANCES OR PARTS OF ORDINANCES IN CONFLICT HERewith.

THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTHVILLE HEREBY ORDAINS:

SECTION NO. 1. SHORT TITLE. This Ordinance shall be known as the "Northville Township Pension Plan Ordinance."

SECTION NO. 2. PURPOSE. Pursuant to the provisions of Act No. 27 of the Public Acts of 1960, as amended, being Sections 41.901, et. seq., of the Compiled Laws of the State of Michigan, the Township of Northville, Wayne County, Michigan, by and through its Board of Trustees, enacts this Ordinance for the purpose of creating and establishing an annuity or pension plan for the officers and employees of Northville Township; to authorize the Township Supervisor and the Township Clerk to contract, in the name of the Township, for such plan; to define those classes of officers and employees who shall be covered by such annuity or pension plan; to set forth the respective per centum share which Northville Township and the officers and employees shall contribute to the premium or charges arising under such annuity or pension contract and to provide for the deduction of contributions from officers and employees' compensation; to establish the time at which existing and future employees shall become eligible for such plan and to further establish the normal retirement date for all employees; to provide a method for non coverage of an officer or employee of the annuity or pension plan; to set forth a date wherein such person covered under the annuity or pension plan shall have a vested right or interest in such plan; to ratify and confirm the validity of any annuity or pension plan in existence on the effective date of this Ordinance; and to repeal all ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict herewith.

SECTION NO. 3. PLAN CREATED. The Township of Northville hereby creates and establishes an annuity or pension plan and program for the pensioning of its officers and employees, and, for such purposes, it also authorizes the Northville Township Supervisor and the Northville Township Clerk to contract, in the name of the Township, subject to approval of the Township Board, with any company authorized to transact such business within the State of Michigan for annuities and pensions.

SECTION NO. 4. COVERAGE. The annuity or pension plans created, established and contracted for under this Ordinance shall cover each person within the following classes of officers and employees:

- (1) All Township building inspectors and their full-time assistants.
- (2) All Township fire chiefs.
- (3) The Township Police chief.
- (4) All Northville Township employees who are employed for more than 35 hours per week on a regular basis.
- (5) The Township Manager.
- (6) Supervisor, Clerk, and Treasurer.

SECTION NO. 5. CONTRIBUTION. The Township of Northville shall annually contribute an amount equal to 5% of a covered employee's gross year salary toward such annuity or pension contract for each person within a class enumerated in Section No. 4 hereof. Such contribution shall be secured from the general fund of the Township. Each covered individual shall likewise be responsible for contributing an amount equal to 5% of his or her gross yearly salary toward such annuity or pension contract and may voluntarily contribute an amount equal to an additional 10% of his or her gross yearly salary toward such annuity or pension contract if desired. The Township Treasurer is hereby authorized to deduct all mandatory and any voluntary contribution provided for hereunder from each person's pay, salary or compensation and to apply the same to such person's responsibility.

SECTION NO. 6. ELIGIBILITY. Each employee who is employed on the effective date of the annuity or pension plan shall be eligible for coverage on that day provided he or she then meets the following requirements, otherwise eligibility shall occur on the first policy anniversary on which he or she meets such requirements:

- A. He or she has completed at least one month of continuous employment.
- B. His or her age based on the nearest birthday is at least eighteen years and not more than seventy-five years.

Each employee who becomes subsequently employed shall be eligible on the first policy anniversary on which he or she meets the following requirements:

- A. He or she has completed at least one month of continuous employment.
- B. His or her age based on the nearest birthday is at least eighteen years and not more than seventy-five years.

An employee's normal retirement date shall be determined based upon his or her age at entry into the plan for such annuity or pension contract as set forth below:

AGE AT ENTRY	RETIREMENT DATE
18-55	65th birthday
55-75	After 10 years' participation or upon reaching his or her 75th birthday, if sooner.

SECTION NO. 7. EXCLUSION FROM COVERAGE. Any person desiring not to be covered by this annuity or pension contract shall give written notice to the Northville Township Clerk of such desire not to be covered, and if the notice is received before the person has become covered under the contract, such coverage shall not ensue. If the notice is received after the individual has become covered such coverage shall cease as provided for in said contract.

SECTION NO. 8. VESTING. Each individual covered under the annuity or pension contract established herein shall have a vested right or interest in such plan twenty four months from the date the plan becomes effective for such individual.

SECTION NO. 9. RATIFICATION OF PRIOR PLANS. The Township of Northville hereby ratifies and confirms the validity of any and all annuity or pension contracts or plans in existence on the effective date of this Ordinance.

SECTION NO. 10. CONFLICTING PROVISIONS REPEALED. Any previous ordinances, resolutions, or parts thereof, conflicting or inconsistent with this Ordinance, are to the extent of such conflict or inconsistency hereby repealed.

SECTION NO. 11. EFFECTIVE DATE. This Ordinance is hereby declared to take effect immediately upon its date of publication which is June 17, 1981.

This Ordinance was duly adopted by the Township Board of Trustees of the Township of Northville at its regular meeting, called and held on the 11th day of June, A.D., 1981, and was ordered to be given publication in the manner prescribed by law.

Our opinions

Trip to town worth detour

From now through the hot days of summer, those who work and those who shop in the downtown area — as well as those who pass through the heart of town — will be inconvenienced. Final construction of the Mainstreet '78 Downtown Development Authority beautification project is under way.

Every effort is being made to keep detours and delays to a minimum, but there will be some. However, there is no doubt in our minds that the end result will justify temporary rerouting and, yes, the dust and bother.

Parking undoubtedly will be the biggest problem for shoppers. Those who work in town already are accustomed to parking in more remote areas of the Main Street lots, or in the lower level of the parking deck where all-day parking is permitted. Shoppers, however, will find the lot behind the theater now is curbed and available. They also may rediscover the advantage of the covered parking deck accessible from Cady. There are stairways at both ends making it possible to reach the Main Street stores — with only a few steps extra.

Our concern, and that of local merchants, is that this effort will be made. The construction will result in a beautified downtown area in which we all can take pride. It would be unfortunate, however, if merchants have to pay a penalty in the meanwhile.

They are to be commended for taking the initiative in keeping customers by offering Dusty Downtown Days special promotions right now in the midst of the construction. Their message is clear: bargains are here and they're worth taking a few extra steps for savings. We believe the emerging new look of the downtown area also will be worth such inconvenience.

Planters, brick curbside accents and crosswalks, Victorian street lights with all wiring underground are coming — along with trees, flowers and a Town Square clock.

Parking, mailing need improving

City planners taking a first look at expansion plans for the Northville post office last Tuesday night will do well to heed the comments of city planner Ronald Nino. Nino is concerned about the proposed addition's lack of conformance to parking requirements.

He also notes that the proposed addition does not comply with minimum setback or rear yard requirements. The latter situation can be dealt with through the zoning board of appeals. We have little quarrel with that, especially since this is not a residence and the city owns the adjacent building, the former scout-recreation facility now used as engineering offices by the city engineering firm.

The matter of parking is a concern. Since the building is privately owned, the fact that the post office is the lessee is immaterial, says Nino. He is right in looking at parking that will be available.

At the present time, there is little space for a customer to park in the lot south of the post office on Wing as it is used for postal vehicles and employees' cars.

Most customers park in the lot behind Big Boy and M.A.G.S. When the Michigan Association of Gift Salesmen are meeting, however, there is a shortage of space.

Anyone who has had to find parking at the Christmas season, too, should have concern that there be adequate accommodation. We long have felt there should be more drive-drop boxes located so that they are accessible on the driver side.

Recently, at an Indiana post office, we found a near-ideal situation. Two boxes were positioned back-to-back in the midst of the parking lot so that drivers, or passengers, could deposit mail. This is a needed convenience. The box in front of the post office is inconvenient for a driver to deposit mail in now — and often is inaccessible because of a parked car.

We realize that space is at a premium but feel such suggestions as tiered parking and a drive-through access via Cady should be fully explored. Granted, it is a planning challenge — but one that will be appreciated in years to come by post office patrons.

After the fact

By PHIL JEROME

Lonna Pelton was in town last week. Now, that doesn't mean much to you, but it means something to me because Lonna and I went to Northville High School together years ago when high school students could be placed in one of two categories — frat or greaser.

Those were the days before Novi had its own high school, and all the Novi students came over to Northville after eighth grade.

Lonna was a Novi kid. In fact, her parents still live in Novi, in the Clarke Street subdivision.

Lonna was in town last week and we decided to get together for a cup of coffee before she had to return to her home in Colorado.

The thing I remember best about Lonna was how smart she was. She would have been valedictorian of our graduating class, except for the fact that she transferred in at the start of our senior year and didn't have enough credits at Northville High School to qualify for the honor which her grade point average said she should have had.

At any rate, Lonna has done a lot of things since those halcyon days of our rock 'n roll youth. She told me that she found the halls of higher learning to be rather confining, and therefore spent several years in the Peace Corps helping other people in places like Bolivia and Panama.

She finally earned enough credits to get her degree from Michigan State University — but she gave me the feeling that the whole process of academe was a real trial for her.

She preferred, she said, to be out in the real world, helping other people.

Lonna's married now, and she and her husband have three children. She's working in a job that falls somewhere between a doctor and a nurse. She's not legally qualified to deliver babies, but she can if she has to, and there have been times when she's had to.

Lonna and her husband are in charge of a group of three medical clinics about 220 miles from Denver. It's a very poor area down near New Mexico, populated with a lot of Hispanic Americans. She has learned to speak Spanish because it's the only language many of her patients can speak.

We got together for about an hour last Friday in a restaurant near Twelve Oaks.

She talked about how much Novi has changed since she was a girl. She wanted to know if Novi people had become more politically conservative as the community has grown bigger and richer.

And then she started talking about Ronald Reagan — about how many of his proposed cutbacks were threatening the existence of the small clinics which she and her husband operate in the valleys of the Rocky Mountains.

"We're all they have out there," she said. "If it weren't for our clinic, those people would have virtually no health care whatsoever. Many of the very simple and basic things which you have in Novi are almost unknown to people where we work."

She was particularly disturbed about the cutbacks in the federal government's free and reduced price meal program.

"We see a lot of people everyday who just aren't going to be able to eat if that program is taken away," she said.

"They're not lazy either. They work very hard, but there aren't many jobs and not much money available.

"Our world is not like here. Take away the hot lunch program and people here are still going to eat. But it's not like that everywhere — it's not like that where we are. I really don't know what some of our people are going to do if some of these cuts go through.

"People here see some of these programs which are abused or may be unnecessary in areas like this, and I can't blame them for being upset. But I want them to understand that it's not like that everywhere.

"I'm really worried. I'm really worried about what's going to happen to our people."

Our mid-morning coffee break came to an end all too soon. Lonna had other friends and relatives to visit while she's in town, and I had a column to write.

JACK W. HOFFMAN'S COLUMN

Generally, I don't like TV reruns, but one oldie is back that I do enjoy...and I'm celebrating its return with a redpop.

It's a commercial for a Michigan product, featuring Harold Peary (The Great Gildersleeve) leading a group of people in song on an excursion boat.

Faygo Beverages, which successfully returned another oldie — the Faygo Kid and Black Bart — in May, began rerunning "Remember When You Were A Kid" Monday. It was produced in 1973. Peary was its only professional. The others went along just for the boatride and the pop.

"Remember," incidentally, can be obtained on a 45 rpm record by sending a name, address and 50 cents to Faygo Beverages, Inc., 3579 Gratiot Avenue, Detroit, 48207.

The words:

Comic books and rubber bands/Climb in to the tree tops/
Falling down and holding hands/Tricycles and redpop/Pony rides and Sunday nights/
Rolly skates and Yo-yos/Fairy tales and snowball fights/Climb in through the window/Remember when you were a kid./Well part of you still is;/And that's why you remember..."

What with all of the waste in government, it's a treat now and then to see someone put the squeeze on costly bureaucratic nonsense. But given the size of this waste, which involves many millions of dollars in the CETA program alone, I have a little difficulty appreciating the fed's crackdown in Livingston County.

They've just fired a CETA employee for ripping off the government by accepting overtime pay. Government regulations prohibited overtime.

When they announced the axing for this fraudulent misuse of CETA monies, the employee claimed he wasn't even aware that his paycheck had included overtime pay. Which, given the circumstances, isn't all that surprising.

He's appealed, saying the government can keep the 17 cents in overtime but he'd like his job back.

Northville Senior Citizens donate for community

To the Editor:
The Northville Senior Citizens Club will be mailing a check for $100 to purchase a tree, in response to an request by the city for contributions.

Even though our treasury is somewhat limited, the members voted overwhelmingly in favor of the contribution — some members made a special effort.

I believe this tells us a story, briefly, that the senior citizens are well pleased with the city's plan to improve the downtown area. It also is an opportunity to express gratitude for the funding of our club and the splendid cooperation the city has always provided the club.

Historically, the merchants and citizens enjoyed a close friendly relationship and a small town atmosphere.

I believe the neighborhood approach should be the target for the merchants. This could be an important factor in our community.

It should be our desire to retain as much of the old spirit and friendliness as possible.

It is entirely possible that members of the Seniors Club are trying to convince the city that the Downtown Development is appropriate and proper.

Grave flowers robbed

To the Editor:
There seems to be no level to which some people will stoop. We are referring to grave robbers!

A few months ago our only little girl died and we now get comfort in being able to visit her gravesite and put flowers on it as our tribute of love. For Memorial Day, we prepared a small white planter of pink vining geranium and impatiens and set it on her grave. Several nearby graves of relatives had lovely plants also.

These planters are put on the graves to be shared visibly for the holiday, then taken home and enjoyed. These planters never returned home, however, because some warped personality stole them for their own. To steal from a grave is, to us, one of the lowest forms of existence and if we weren't so hurt and angry, we could possibly feel sorry for such a soul.

The other relatives have had their planters stolen before, but it is all new and shocking to us. Grave Robber, save your energy next year — there will be no more planters on these graves. And incidentally, there is a name written on the bottom of the white planter... "Lahr"!

Parents deserve credit

To the Editor:

As a parent I would like to respond to the letter written by a senior.

After spending 18 years raising a child, staying up with them all night when they're sick and giving them all the love and encouragement I could give, I don't expect to be told to butt out when they graduate.

I've waited too long to share this honor and experience with my child.

Come on seniors, give Mom and Dad a little credit for a job well done, too.

Sincerely,
A Proud Mother

Class thanks parents

To the Editor:

As recent graduates of Northville High School, we would like to thank everyone involved in this year's senior party.

The incredible decorations, delicious food, quality entertainment and friendly people made the evening a pleasure for everyone.

We want our parents to know how much we appreciated their efforts to put everything together for us to enjoy on our graduation night.

Thank you for a wonderful time!

Sincerely,
The Class of 1981

Jaycees offer thanks

To the Editor:

On behalf of Project Concern and our many patients throughout the world, I want to express warmest thanks to the 216 walkers and 2200 sponsors who contributed to the success of last week's Walk for Mankind.

I especially appreciate the months of hard work and dedication on the part of volunteer Walk Directors Bob Korr and Marty Barnum and their committee of Jaycees and Jayettes. They, along with the countless walkers, workers and sponsors, have done two important things:

First, they have provided us with tools with which to extend life saving care to countless people whose very future, in many cases, rests in our hands. Improved health care and basic medical-nutritional education were made available by us last year to over one million of the world's poorest people. This work will be greatly enhanced by the donations of your generous sponsors.

Secondly, the Walk for Mankind is a worthwhile, needed community event which confronts each of us with an opportunity to become personally involved in a positive, constructive effort to benefit others.

We're grateful for the support of your community, and salute your work to serve the needs of so many both at home and abroad.

Sincerely,

Geake votes against auto inspection

By R. ROBERT GEAKE
State Senator

We're putting the cart before the horse in the Senate these days, but we didn't like the load we were forced to haul in that ol' cart, anyway.

In anticipation of expected U.S. Congressional action on the rewriting of the Clean Air Act, the Michigan Legislature is considering legislation to repeal the state's auto emission inspection and maintenance program scheduled for implementation by 1982.

Passed last year during the Carter administration under what can only be described as "duress," the law, in effect, requires residents of Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties to have their cars' emission levels checked annually beginning in 1982 through an automotive exhaust inspection program set up by the state.

Those states with urban areas or communities that do not yet meet the Environmental Protection Agency's ambient air standards for carbon monoxide and ozone are subject to federal "sanctions." The EPA has the authority to deny federal highway funds and sewage treatment grants to such states, if they have not enacted legislation to set up an auto emission inspection and maintenance program.

The clincher for Michigan last year, however, and the prime mover for the law we passed to set up the costly program, was the hold-up of a federal air quality permit which delayed the planned construction of the General Motors plant in Oakland County.

Whether the program itself would impact enough on the air to clean it up to standard was never the issue. The EPA required compliance, regardless of outcome or cost, and we reluctantly passed the legislation, as did 27 of 29 other states so ordered under threat of EPA economically punishing sanctions.

Michigan's Department of State has determined that the Detroit area will reach the required pollution levels through simple vehicle changeover well before the EPA's current 1987 deadline WITHOUT an auto inspection program.

Automobiles now have built-in emission controls, and the operation of the older, more polluting cars is automatically reduced every year as these cars become no longer operable or desirable to their owners.

Secretary of State Richard Austin provided data last January revealing that the costly inspection/maintenance program, if implemented in 1982, would only mean a one year jump on meeting the pollution standards Detroit is expected to meet without the program.

No one wants the Detroit area to be allowed to suffocate itself under a blanket of smog, but clean air was never the issue with Public Acts 83 and 84 of 1980. Federal over-regulation, costing both the state and the area residents was the point, and the Reagan administration seems to be heading us out of that morass.

We are definitely jumping the gun a bit: the EPA's rules are still on the books until Congress finishes rewriting and reauthorizing the Clean Air Act. However, two factors caused me to vote for repeal of the law in Michigan ahead of the federal action.

The first reason is cost. For the state, the start-up costs to implement an inspection/program is estimated to be $1.5 million. Also, some 2,000 auto repair shops would be required to order by this summer at least two testing devices costing about $4,000 each. Such expenditures are totally unjustified in the light of the situation.

My second reason is that the threat of federal sanction is no longer so heavy under the Reagan administration. Multiple proposals are now being considered in Washington to revise the Carter administration's heavy-handed interpretation of the Clean Air Act.

The EPA, to its credit, has expressed an interest in allowing Michigan an extension of the schedule it required for an inspection/maintenance program, and it has been working with some of our state departments to secure justification for such an extension on their part.

I look forward to other indication

Geake hails decision

State Senator Robert Geake (R-Northville) on June 9 hailed Michigan Court of Appeals decision upholding the Hood-McNeely-Geake Malpractice Arbitration Act as "a victory for patients and physicians alike."

The act was adopted in 1975 as an alternative to lawsuits for solving malpractice suits.

Under the act, hospitals and doctors can ask patients to sign, in advance of treatment, a document committing them to arbitrate any malpractice claim rather than going to court.

"By providing for arbitration patients have been spared the lengthy and extremely costly process of taking a lawsuit through the crowded civil court docket," Geake explained.

"We proposed the legislation when malpractice suits filed against doctors in Michigan increased 61 percent in 1974," Geake said. "That drastic increase forced insurance companies to charge exorbitant rates or refuse to insure many of the state's doctors. Without that protection, many doctors, especially surgeons, were reluctant to provide medical care."

Between 1974 and 1978, the number of malpractice suits leveled off with a 10 percent decline in 1978. This resulted in a reduction of the malpractice insurance rates.

Senator Geake said some concern is being expressed over the recent increase in the number of malpractice suits being filed in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. Such suits were up 31 percent last year.

"Hopefully, the ruling by the Michigan Court of Appeals will eliminate any doubt by patients and lawyers alike of both the intent and constitutionality of the act," Geake said. "Arbitration is an equitable way of protecting patients against negligent doctors and also attempting to hold down the escalating cost of health care."

School board puts 7 mills on July 28 ballot

mill proposal but opted to make further reductions at a later date in light of the recent millage defeat and to stay in line with the Citizen Advisory Committee's recommendation.

The board has been examining the Citizen Advisory Committee's recommendation for the past two weeks. Approval of the recommendation Monday came just in time to meet the ballot deadline.

The Citizens' Advisory Committee — formed after the millage defeat in April — was put to the task of developing a millage package which committee members felt the community would support and which would offer a sound educational program.

The committee, under the direction of Northville residents Phil Phillips and Harry Cook, has worked on the proposal over the past two months.

Reduction recommendations were made in areas where committee members felt cuts could be made without directly harming the basic educational program.

However, administrators and board members in approving recommendations, emphasized that the proposed cuts will be implemented if the millage is passed.

While many have viewed the reductions as only one-year cuts, board members warned that what is taken out of the budget will most likely stay out. "Maybe I'm cynical," said board president Chris Johnson, "but we're not talking about a one-year shot."

"In the five years that I've sat on this board, we've only restored two programs in all the cuts we've made," he said.

"Once cuts are made they're simply not restored."

Superintendent Nichols added that the 7 mills "may generate considerably less revenue than anticipated."

With further executive order cut-backs expected as well as another tax revision proposal, Nichols said the board may have to look for further reductions down the road.

Yet, despite some cautions about the budget reductions, board members and administrators commended the Citizen Advisory Committee for the work it has done on the recommendation and said the next step will be selling the proposal to the community.

EAA's route to flying lets dreams come true

Sport aviation, like sailing, is a "dream activity," one many people say they would like to become involved with, but for cost, time or other factors that keep them away.

The Experimental Aircraft Association (EAA) is a national group with local chapters that, in its unique way, works to open the sport to all who are interested.

As a branch of sport aviation, the Experimental Aircraft Association (EAA) is growing in response to dissatisfaction with conventional airplanes and the rising costs of flying them. Many members enjoy building airplanes as much as they do flying them.

The Quickie described above, like the other homebuilts and restored antiques owned by EAA members, is classified as an "experimental" aircraft by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA). Bill Herzog explained that the category was created specifically to allow independent constructors to build planes.

Major manufacturers must meet a long list of tough regulations to license a plane for passenger use. Complying with those regulations alone would likely cost more than many of the planes owned by homebuilders, so the experimental class was born.

Which doesn't mean the FAA will let just anything fly in that category.

"They want to inspect it at several points along the way," Herzog explained. To make sure the airframe is constructed solidly, the FAA inspected Herzog's Quickie just before it was painted.

There are other requirements as well. A new aircraft must log 40 hours of flying time before it is allowed to carry passengers or fly outside a radius of 30 miles from its home airport.

Locally, this is even more stringent, as the homebuilder is not allowed in heavy air traffic areas or to fly over heavily populated areas "for obvious reasons" according to Herzog. That means most of Herzog's present flying is over farm and park lands near Salem Airport, 9751 Six Mile.

There is a sizeable segment of the EAA devoted to antique aircraft, both restoring them to original condition and flying them, Herzog said.

The average investment in the 11 planes shown at Twelve Oaks mall the first week in June was $10,000, but entry to the ranks of the flying set can come considerably cheaper — particularly if one is willing to do most work oneself.

By comparison, Herzog noted that his Vari-Eze was put together with many parts purchased from a supplier, while a friend has handmade virtually the entire plane, excluding wheels and engine. The difference in cost? Herzog's ran around $11,000, his friend's nearly done at $5,000. There are months, even years, between the times it takes to complete the craft, however.

Local EAA activity is concentrated at Salem, New Hudson (officially Oakland Southwest Airport, 57751 Pontiac Trail) and Plymouth's Mettetal Airport. The chapter sponsoring the show at Twelve Oaks is based in Brighton.

For those who might like to try their hands, the EAA is always looking for new members, Herzog said. Next on the schedule is a fly-in at Mettetal Airport, 8518 North Lilley, in Plymouth June 21 (yes, they know it's Father's Day, they just "sort of unluckily into that date"). In attendance will be many of the planes displayed at Twelve Oaks, free to fly once again, as well as a whole flock of others.

EAA members, Herzog said, are a friendly group with an almost missionary zeal to spread the word about sport flying. "The more the merrier," is the standard philosophy he said.

By Kevin Wilson

"As a kid, I always wished to fly. I never thought I could. I guess I was fairly typical. I built airplane models and read books about flying, that sort of thing."

That's about as far as it goes for many people. Some take the next step, actually learning to fly. Then they may split the cost of a small plane with friends, maybe join a club.

That was what Northville's Bill Herzog did, at first. But then he went a step farther out.

The freelance commercial artist decided he wanted a plane of his own, one that would fly faster, better and more economically (which translates into more flight for the bite) and, he believes, more safely than the factory-built "spam cans" most pilots settle for using.

So he built such a plane. In the garage of his Lexington Condo Home at 1033 Bristol Court. From a kit.

Until Herzog explains that the little white-with-blue trim one-seater cruises at around 115 miles per hour, has been clocked at 130 miles per hour top speed (not Herzog's; a prototype), while consuming a mere 1.3 gallons of 100 octane aviation gas per hour.

At a pleasant, comfortable cruise, that translates to roughly 90 miles per gallon. And brings the idea of owning and flying a plane down to the levels of economic reality for many.

By comparison, a Cessna 150, a popular plane among sport flyers, will eat 6.5 to 7 gallons of fuel each hour, at a slower speed.

How does a plane built in a garage outperform the factory craft? A lot of it is in the design, which also makes it look a little weird to the eye accustomed to factory planes.

"When you say kit, it creates an image that isn't quite right," Herzog explained. "It's a kit, but basically it includes the plans and the raw material. Which means it didn't bash together in a few evenings of wrench twirling. But for an investment of roughly $5,000 and 14 months worth of spare time and weekends, Herzog created for himself an aircraft called a "Quickie." He did most all the construction work himself, though he called on Northville Collision for paint. At the price, he even added a couple options and extra instruments.

And joined the ranks of the Experimental Aircraft Association (EAA). Standing beside his Quickie last week at Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi, where it was part of an EAA display in search of more members, Herzog explained the special features of his plane.

The Quickie was designed by Burt Rutan, an innovative and respected

The light aircraft is made with composites. A styrofoam core in the wings (cut from a block with hot wire) and polyurethane foam fuselage are covered with several layers of fiberglass.

Most sport aircraft are called light planes; the term takes on new meaning with craft like the Quickie. It weighs

Senior club plans 'Hobo' event

Hobos, those vagrants and tramps of the road who made the familiar red and blue bandanas famous as their "suitcases," will be appearing at 6 p.m. Tuesday at Northville First Presbyterian Church for the Northville Senior Citizen Club potluck.

Hobo-members will register at the door and produce an empty tomato can for their beverage. With a little luck, it is reported, there may even be Mulligan Stew.

Entertainment will be by The Offbeats, starring Maude — "Oh, Oh, Oh What a Gal."

Dorothy Cherne, 349-6433, may be called about the costume party for which club members are requested to come dressed in hobo fashion.

After the Hobo Party, President Clarence Harsch notes, there will be no meetings in July and August.

A business meeting at 7:30 p.m. September 8 at the church will open the fall season.

Annual picnic will be July 8 at Six Mile and Northville roads in the park. In event of rain, it will be moved to the church.

In Our Town

Over 300 miles—for a bridge game

By JEAN DAY

When Bob and Carolyn Middleton moved from their Edenderry home here to Geneva, Illinois, two years ago, they decided they would continue to play in their local bridge group and have been returning regularly. "They really never left us," says Mary Esther Fountain.

The first weekend in June, the Middletons hosted the play. The Charles Fountains and Jack Dohenys arrived early to have time also for golfing and shopping. The Leonard Kleins, who visited friends in Wheaton, Illinois, also were on hand. The Eugene Karrers, who moved to a lakeside retirement home they built near Holly, also have stayed in the bridge group. They antiqued all the way to Geneva. Only absentee members of the group were the Roger Pyetts, who had a conflict.

Bob Middleton had been transferred to Boeing's Chicago office but makes frequent trips to Seattle. He returned from a recent one with Seattle salmon frozen in water as a treat for the bridge guests — who declared it tasted just like freshly caught fish.

Carolyn Middleton's home in Geneva is as unusual as her Northville one — and also is filled with antiques, her friends report. The Middleton home on Arselot was on the 1976 Northville Home Tour. Now, Carolyn Middleton has agreed to be on the Geneva Home Tour this October.

Marburgers host Greater Whipple Open — maybe twice

As Gwen Marburger made plans to host the fifth annual Greater Whipple Golf Open, held the first Saturday in June for neighbors in the West Main subdivision, she confided that the object is "not to win" the tourney. The winning couple, she explained, receiving the traveling trophy, automatically will host the next year's outing.

She and Tom Dasher had won in 1980 and planned this year's play at Brooklane Golf Course and the party following at the Marburger home attended by 28 neighbors. They fared better than last year with "super" weather for both golf and party.

At the end of the play it appeared that the Marburgers will be hosting next year's fun, too. Gwen's husband Irvin and Marilyn Donovan were declared winners at the end of the nine holes. Runners up are Paul Baetz and Betty Condrick. Since the Donovan family is moving to California, the Marburgers may be doing a "party repeat."

Coffee's a farewell for Marilyn

Marilyn Donovan's Whipple subdivision neighbors Mary Whiteside and Barbara Sixt are giving a farewell coffee for the active resident this morning at the Whiteside home.

"We're having it now," Mrs. Whiteside explained, "before everyone leaves town for the summer."

A member of the Northville Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association, Mrs. Donovan was instrumental in arousing the group's interest in sponsoring a successful horticultural therapy program for students. In

Help for late bloomers

Garden and landscape planners who still haven't gotten around to planting begonias or pulling-up unwanted dandelions should head to Northville Public Library for a few pointers on where to start. Thanks to a $100 donation from the Country Girls Branch of the Women's National Farm and Garden Association, the library purchased eight books on everything from planning a flower garden to growing your own fruits and vegetables. Country Girls members Lois Winters, left, and Karon Frisbie, right, look over the new collection with librarian Anne Mannisto before they're put on the shelves. Record photo by Steve Fecht.

Courses offered for gifted students

Registration for talented and gifted students ages 7-14 will be held at Schoolcraft College from 3-8 p.m. July 1 in the Physical Education Building.

The college has five new courses among the 13 being offered this summer, including a writing course for teens, ages 13-17, entitled "Community Based Writing."

Other new courses are "Learning About Astronomy II," "Electronics," "Perspective Made Easy," and "Exploring the Sciences."

Classes also will be offered in art, astronomy, biology, computer programming, conversational French and German and math. A course for parents of gifted children also will be available.

Summer classes will be held July 6-30.

The program's coordinator Robert W. Burnside said certification of the child's status as talented and gifted is required for registration.

"We will accept the child's school principal's, coordinator's, teacher's or parent's signature," he said.

Tuition and fees for residents of the college district range from $41.50 to $46.50 depending on the course. Non-residents costs range from $52-$57.

Further information may be obtained by calling the Continuing Education Office at 591-6400, extension 404.

'Footin' around at Winchester

When it comes to feet, third graders at Winchester Elementary School know what they're talking about. One of the many year-end activities at the school was "Foot Day," where students spent the day "stomping" for feet. In addition to wearing their own shoe creations and studying the various functions of feet, students discarded their clodhoppers, dipped their toesies in a can of paint and made their own mural appropriately entitled "Foot Forest." And of course lunch was — you got it — foot-long hot dogs. Joey Orlandini, above, does a little fancy footwork on the mural. Photo by Steve Fecht.

Dental Dialogue

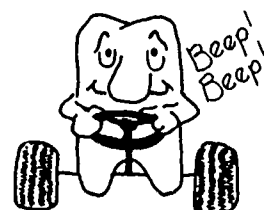

of A. Allen Tuchklaper, D.D.S.

TUNE UP YOUR TEETH

Q. I'm fifty-seven years old and have lost quite a few teeth over the years. Don't you think I'm too old to replace them?

for awhile, but in time your mouth will break down.

A. Absolutely not. Why take a chance for the next thirty or forty years. Compare your mouth to an automobile. Nature intended each tooth to be supportive, in alignment, well balanced and working smoothly, under clean conditions. After all an old 12 cylinder LaSalle can't run forever on 9 cylinders. You may get along 291 pounds dry. With fuel and pilot, it's rated for a little over 520 pounds flying weight.

Pilot flies high in homebuilt plane

Demonstrating how his new, larger propeller would require a little more care on landings and takeoffs, Herzog grabbed the tailwheel and, with little apparent effort, lifted the tail until the prop was about an inch from the floor.

The light weight gives Herzog, 54, some incentive to keep his weight down. Less pilot allows more fuel and more flying. He made "some sort of mistake" in building his plane, so the tank only holds 6.5 gallons instead of the design capacity of 8 gallons, and he would like to keep the tank full.

"I'm up to around 175 right now," he said. "I hope to lose some, maybe five, 10 pounds."

The design, despite its odd looks, offers both safety and better performance, Herzog explained.

The forward wing, nearly at the nose of the plane, is called a "canard" and at its ends are the faired-in wheels (Herzog installed optional large wheels, enabling his plane to land on grass fields). The top curve of the fuselage ends in the tail wheel, immediately below the vertical stabilizer and rudder.

There is no horizontal stabilizer wing beside the tail; the controls usually placed there are on the wings.

The light weight and design combine to allow good performance with little power. Since all the "normal" appendages are contained in the design, there are no wheel struts or antennas hanging out in the airstream, creating drag and consuming power.

Patricia Herzog, Bill's "very understanding wife," an art teacher in Detroit, with her eye for design, calls the Quicke's shape "quite futuristic."

So much so that an advertising agency was moved to use Herzog's plane as background for photos to be included in 1982 Dodge 024 brochures.

So Bill has what he wanted — a more performance-oriented, more-economical, safer airplane that he can fly more often, the way he likes to fly.

You don't know that about the worker in the factory.

"It really is up to you, as far as your own safety goes," Herzog explained. Prototypes of the Quicke design had flown safely in many flying hours of testing, he added.

"It's not very susceptible to a spin," he said, "because of the canards, it won't spin as easily as most aircraft. Any airplane, however, poorly treated, will crash."

Spins are one of the most common problems for sport pilots, however. The most common cause is a stall, in which admitted that it was "a little over my head" when he had only two hours on his $11,000 investment and crashed it.

It wasn't a big crash and burn scene. He was landing at Salem Airport, local base of many EAA pilots, and hit a snowbank. Bill came out of it without injury, but the plane was a mess.

"I sold the wreckage to another fellow and used the money to build the Quicke," he said, quick to absolve the flying hobby from blame. Just as one unused to a sports car might not be ready for its quick responses, he explained, he was not ready for those of his first homebuilt plane.

"It was my fault, not the plane's. A high performance plane will do what you tell it to, when you tell it to. You'd better make sure you know what you're telling it."

Bill has flown an average of 65 to 75 hours annually. With the relatively economical Quicke, he hopes to fly more and perhaps complete the 35 hours he needs to certify the plane (see sidebar) by August 1.

Then, it may be on to Oshkosh, Wisconsin for the EAA annual fly-in convention.

"Every homebuilder has two dreams. The first is to fly the plane he built with his own hands. The second is to fly it to Oshkosh."

He's been to Oshkosh five times, always driving there. Now, perhaps, he could fly to the seminars and meetings, talks and parties, air shows and contests.

Which brings to mind Patricia, and his daughter Lisa, 15, about to enter Northville High School this fall. The plane is only a single-seater. They might drive to Oshkosh, it's nice to have a car there, Bill said. And something else.

"I couldn't have done this without a very understanding wife," Herzog said. "It's so important, and it becomes a real problem for some of the guys. In fact, they even have seminars at Oshkosh where they tell these guys, look, pay your dues on the other side of the (airport) fence. You can't do it alone."

The male-dominated hobby is rapidly gaining more female participants, as well, Bill pointed out. But Pat has her own interests, away from flying, and isn't likely to start building her own plane soon.

Bill's plane is out of the mall now, so if you see a funny looking craft flying overhead, don't make any UFO reports, it's probably just Bill Herzog, out enjoying the fruits of his labor.

'It really is up to you, as far as your own safety goes'

Did he say safer? A plane built in a garage is safer?

"That's a big part of it," Herzog explained. "By the time you fly it, you know every inch of that airplane. You've touched every single piece, you've shaped some of them with your own hands. When you're tightening a bolt, you make sure to do it right, because you expect to be flying in it."

too steep a climb is attempted, or a normal one tried without enough airspeed, and the wings stop creating the lift that keeps the plane flying. The plane will often do a backflip, or start spinning, nose up.

But the Quicke's canard wings stall out before the main wing does, so the nose drops while there is still plenty of control, adding airspeed and correcting the oversteep climb.

"It works so well," Herzog said, "that they have taken prototypes and flown them slowly over a runway, with the stick all the way back and it just does this (indicating a porpoise-like motion with his hand)"

While the Quicke isn't as fast in a straight line as some designs, it is more responsive than a factory craft. Structurally, Herzog said, though the Quicke isn't designed for acrobatics, his plane can stand up to more stress than the average factory aircraft.

His love for high-performance aircraft got him into a little trouble with an earlier home-built airplane, Bill reluctantly admitted. The Vari-Eze, another very swoopy design with a delta wing, "pusher propeller," tandem seats for two and rear engine layout, was Herzog's first attempt.

A similar plane at Twelve Oaks was rated for 170 mile per hour speeds. Bill

Party giving

Both hostesses and guests obviously enjoy the third luncheon given for residents of Wishing Well Manor by the 15-member St. Joan Guild of Our Lady of Victory Church. The year-end party for 38 residents was a guild service project this month.

Guild members make special treats for the luncheon, such as the watermelon fruit basket and homemade pie.

the eight years the family has lived here, she also has been a participating member of the Michigan Association for Children with Learning Difficulties and of Our Lady of Victory Church. She's found time to play tennis and golf — as well as attend the movie matinees she loves — and work part-time at Rizzo's Northville Gallery of Homes.

Robert Donovan has been working in Santa Fe Springs, California, a suburb southeast of Los Angeles, since February. Marilyn, Bill and Nancy plan to join him as soon as a buyer is found for the Donovan home on East Whipple. Son Michael is working this summer in a law office in Denver but will return to the University of Michigan for his final year of law school.

"We have lived in California before and like it," Marilyn Donovan mentions, adding, "but it's hard to leave Northville."

Circus is coming Friday

More than 50 friends and family members gathered together May 31 to celebrate the 85th birthday of former longtime Northville resident Lucy George.

Those attending the party, held at the home of her son Charles of 16850 Meade, included her four children, 13 grandchildren, 15 great-grandchildren and many local and out-of-state friends

In addition to the surprise birthday celebration, Mrs. George also received a congratulatory message from President and Mrs. Reagan.

Mrs. George, a longtime member of the Northville United Methodist Church, now resides with her daughter in Beulah.

Girl Scouts plan abuse workshop

The Huron Valley Girl Scout Council, of which Northville is a member, will sponsor a Substance Abuse Awareness Presenters Workshop from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. July 1.

The Substance Abuse Awareness Program is designed to bring drug information to girls ages 6-

18 and their parents

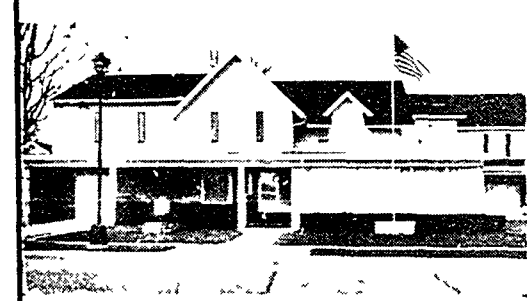

The presenters workshop is a training session for persons interested in being volunteer presenters.

The program utilizes a small group discussion format, facilitated by a volunteer presenter, and focuses on basic substance information and values clarification.

Those who wish to attend the session should RSVP by June 26. For more information contact program coordinators Susan Bairley or Annette Myles at 483-2370.

The workshop will be held at the council headquarters in Ypsilanti.

Bohns have graduations in Panama, Ann Arbor

Former residents Richard and Nancy Bohn were in Michigan the first week in May to attend daughter Marjorie's graduation from University of Michigan where she received a BA degree in journalism. She's hoping to work in the advertising field. During their brief stay, the Bohns were house guests of the Robert Daniels. Bob Daniel has just completed his service as president of the Northville Historical Society in which both families were active.

Nancy reports they had to hurry back to Panama where her husband is on assignment with Ford Motor Company because she was preparing for finals at Panama Canal College. She received her Associate in Science degree in business administration June 4.

She reports that they like to keep in touch with friends here and receive The Record. "We were particularly interested," she commented, "in an article about a Northville author Milan Stitt who wrote 'The Runner Stumbles' as we had seen this play presented by an amateur group in Panama. We were quite surprised to learn the author lives in Northville. It is an excellent play and we would highly recommend it to anyone."

They're moving to careers

Another May graduate, Charles Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Cook of 942 New Haven Court, received a master of business administration from University of Michigan. His bachelor's degree was from Harvard in 1976.

He now is on a three month training program with Smith, Barney, Harris and Upham, a Chicago brokerage firm dealing in public finance, including state and hospital bonds. He presently is at the home office in New York.

A moving van should be unloading about now at the Raleigh, North Carolina, apartment of Kim Marshall. Her parents, the Robert Marshalls, sent on furnishings last week after Kim found the apartment.

A graduate of Northwood Institute in marketing, Kim began work last month for A.C. Nielsen, the well-known company whose name is associated with television ratings. Kim, however, is in the food and drug section, checking on those sales. She already has found the Carolina beaches, her mother reports, and is anticipating a visit to Williamsburg.

The expanded enrollment and the reduction of staff could possibly make the center self-supporting in a relatively short time. It is possible that the transition from the Office of Student Affairs to the Office of Instruction could be accomplished as early as the 1981-82 fall semester.

Museums look at future, too

Michiganians can peer into the future at the Space Center in Jackson or review the past by visiting any of the state's other fine museums, reminds the Automobile Club of Michigan.

Located on the Jackson Community College campus, the Michigan Space Center is housed in a gold geodesic dome with a $7-million, 83-foot-long Redstone rocket outside.

Inside, an open, 83-foot orange and white parachute used to bring one of the Apollo spacecrafts safely down to sea forms a ceiling for the Astro-Theatre, where daily space movies describe the U.S. space program in detail.

The Michigan Historical Museum in Lansing features a "Walk Through Time" exhibit which traces the state's historic and prehistoric periods to the geological era which created Michigan's two peninsulas. The exhibit includes artifacts, photographs, maps and audiovisual materials.

Automobiles have played a major role in Michigan, and at least three museums in the state have excellent collections.

The Alfred P. Sloan Museum in Flint is named for a former president of General Motors Corporation. Its 30 famous vehicles of the past include a Flint Road Cart, 1886-1895; a 1900 Durant-Dort Bug; a 1914 Marr; 1917 Stanley Steamer, and C.S. Mott's Corvair.

The Gilmore Car Museum at Hickory Corners near Kalamazoo boasts a collection of more than 50 antique and classic cars, including a Hupmobile, Duesenberg, Stutz and Pierce Arrow.

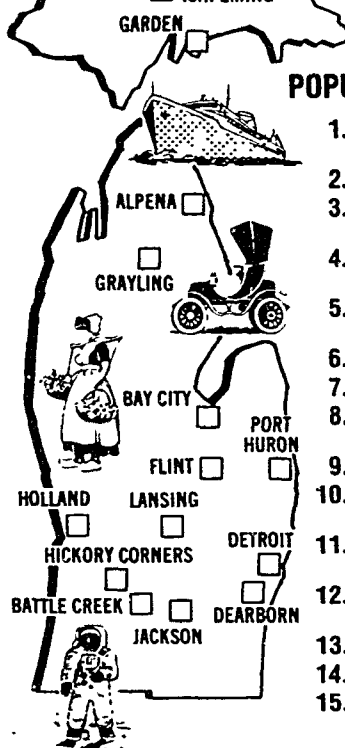

World-renowned Henry Ford Museum at Dearborn has a series of "Firsts" — America's first automobile offered for public sale, an 1896 Duryea motor wagon; Henry Ford's first vehicle, the 1896 Quadricycle, and Ford's first mass-produced car, the 1903 Model A.

The Dossin Museum's observation deck and window-paneled wall provide glimpses of giant freighters passing on the Detroit River. Below, a pilot house is equipped with a ship's steering wheel and warning whistle reconstructed from vessels that traveled the lakes in the early 1900s.

Two restorations in the Upper Peninsula — Fort Wilkins at Copper Harbor and Fayette Townsite near Garden — recall the days when copper and iron ore brought settlers from afar.

Strawberries

Post-harvest work a big aid

After-harvest renovation of strawberries is best performed with — of all things — a lawn mower.

Jim Hancock, Extension small fruits specialist at Michigan State University, advocates mowing off the foliage just above the crowns. Rake away leaves and burn them. Opening up the crowns in this way reduces disease and produces stronger, more vigorous plants, he explains.

The next step, if you grow your berries in the matted-row system, is to narrow the rows to 8 to 10 inches. The plants on the outer edges of the matted row are the most productive, he explains. Keeping the rows narrow gives you more outside plants.

Zinnia's a showpiece for street-side strip

Dusty Miller makes attractive silvery border

Flowers may be the answer for ugly street-side strip

What do you do with a narrow strip of lawn that separates the street from the sidewalk?

Most homeowners regard it as a necessary evil that puts distance between their living room and passing traffic. Such narrow strips of lawn are difficult to mow and must be replaced where salt-laden slush drenches the grass during the winter.

One gardener planted his parking strip in zinnias for everyone's enjoyment. The giant hybrids grew to table-top height and provided harvests of mixed-color blossoms for arrangements.

To plant flowers, the gardener scraped the rock mulch aside, set in transplants, and pulled the mulch up around them. This technique required cutting holes in the plastic so that seedlings could set in the base soil.

The holes permitted water to trickle down to roots when the rockfilled cavity was flooded. Fertilizer was dissolved in a pail of water and poured around the roots of the flowers.

The planting bed was prepared by removing three inches of surface soil, laying down a sheet of black plastic, and filling the cavity with lightweight volcanic redrock. The plastic kept persistent weed seeds from sprouting and coming up through the decorative rock.

Lightweight mulches are recommended, especially pumice-like rock or large chunks of pine bark. Heavy crushed stone or loose cobbles are not practical because children can throw them. Heavy pebbles, if kicked into the street, can be dangerous when run over and shot forcibly by automobile tires.

Pine bark is not used in areas prone to heavy rains. Flooding can cause the chunks to float away.

Besides zinnias, other flowers which work well in hot, dry parking strips are rose moss (portulaca, gazania, coreopsis, rudbeckia, Mexican zinna and Zinnia linearis.

Silver is a precious metal, but it's also a priceless color in a flower garden.

Only a few flowers offer the silver-gray foliage that cools down the hot competition between flower colors. An added bonus is the two-tone effect that is caused as the new growth comes in more silvery than the old.

Dusty miller (Centaurea) is widely used and generally available in seeds or plants. The leaves of dusty miller are "cut" deeply into decorative lobes. Branches arch gracefully to form s-m-

Thumbelina's a midget compared with giant zinnia metrical mounds.

A certain amount of confusion prevails among the silvery plants.

Lychnis coronaria, usually called rose campion or mullien pink, also is occasionally referred to as dusty miller. Of all the silvery plants, rose campion has the most beautiful flowers in shades of crimson or white and furry, silvery leaves.

Woodworm, or artemisia, has shrubby, silvery-gray plants that will live over except where winters are severe. English lavender and garden sage have silvery foliage, but the plants are upright and not as graceful as some of the mounded types.

One variety of pyrethrum has silvery-white leaves so finely cut they appear lace like. They could put Grandma's dollies to shame.

If you have large areas to plant in flowers you should consider growing plants of the silvery foiled species from seeds, for the sake of economy as well as the challenge and satisfaction. The more common types are available in seed displays, but the highly-bred dwarf types usually have to be ordered from catalogs.

Most of the silvery plants are what are called "Half-hardy Perennials." This means that the plants will live over reliably where winters are mild, but will freeze out elsewhere unless grown in a location with excellent drainage. They are deep rooted and drought resistant.

Seeds of the half-hardy perennials should be started indoors very early in the spring, preferably under fluorescent lights. It is possible to sprout seeds in a warm place such as a sunny windowsill with south or western exposure, but the seedlings tend to be spindlier than those grown under fluorescent lights.

In general, start the seeds of silvery plants two-to-four weeks ahead of other flowers. The seeds often sprout unevenly, and plants grow slowly at young stages.

If you start seeds very early, you will have good sized plants ready to set in the garden as soon as frost danger is past.

Perhaps the most endearing of the silvery-foiled flowers is Lambs ears, Stachys lanata. The long leaves are just like furry lambs' ears, and it is hard to resist petting them.

A FATHER'S DAY trip into the past is in store for dads (and moms and their children) Sunday when Guernsey Farms Dairy holds an open house celebration — featuring tours of the dairy facility, free ice cream cones (for dads only), reduced prices on chicken dinners, other treats and free rides around the premises in a genuine milk wagon. Proprietor Tom McGuire, aboard the wagon in the picture above, has obtained the wagon and horse for the day from Zina Bolgas, a former long-time dairyman himself. It's the kind of delivery wagon many dads will remember fondly from their own childhoods. Before the advent of milk trucks, horses and wagons and the "milkman" made daily rounds on city streets to deliver milk — the kind with the cream on the top — and other dairy products and, of course, to retrieve the empty milk bottles that waited on porches and steps. Guernsey Farms Dairy, one of only a few dairies in the metropolitan area, is located on Novi Road near Eight Mile on the border of Northville and Novi.

The two optometrists also lectured to interns at the Ferris College of Optometry. The topic at Ferris was "Orthokeratology" — a contact lens procedure which reshapes the eye to reduce or eliminate the need for glasses.

Both Dr. Swanson and Dr. Schipper are members of the Council on Sports Vision and the International Orthokeratology Section of the National Eye Research Foundation.

MANUFACTURERS BANK OF NOVI began a two-week long grand opening celebration of its new permanent headquarters building at 26222 Novi Road on Monday, June 15.

During the two-week celebration, visitors to the bank will receive a key and may try their luck at unlocking a treasure chest. If the key opens the treasure chest, the lucky winner will receive one of over 100 prizes.

All visitors also can enter a grand prize drawing for a handcrafted Viking grandfather clock made of solid oak. Free refreshments will be served daily.

A special new account incentive also will be offered during the grand opening celebration. Anyone who deposits $100 or more into a new personal checking account or a new or existing savings account will receive a free GOTT Tote 6 Mini Cooler, ideal for outdoor recreational activities.

If $5,000 or more is deposited into a qualifying account, either a men's or women's style Advance digital watch may be selected.

The bank's new headquarters building is 4,400 square feet in size with a brick exterior. It features special energy conservation components and has drive-up facilities, a night depository and a safe deposit vault.

The building was designed by Winebrenner and Ebejer, Architects, Inc., and built by Adair-Chaldecott Construction Company.

Manufacturers Bank of Novi was established in October of 1979 and previously had been operating in a temporary facility.

TRAVEL PLANS in Northville has moved a block west to 112 West Main, expanding into larger quarters. Owner Ed Jamieson says the move also has been made for customer convenience as the new location is adjacent to the municipal parking lot at Main and Wing in downtown Northville. The travel firm has been in business in Northville since 1962. It was purchased two years ago by Jamieson, who has worked in the travel field for 20 years.

Jamieson is pictured with agent Paula Massie, left, and wife Barbara as all check information in the computerized office. Jamieson reports he handles a great deal of corporate and commercial air travel as well as group and association conventions. Continuing education seminars are a specialty of the firm, he adds.

Before the travel agency moved into the former barber shop quarters, the interior was completely renovated. Travel posters now decorate the rough-plaster white walls with dark wood accents. Jamieson notes that Travel Plans is open Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and week days 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

JERRY A. McCABE of Union Lake has been appointed merchandising manager for the McCord Gasket Division, a subsidiary of Excell-O Corporation. He replaces Donald S. Desautels who was promoted recently to manager, international marketing.

McCabe has served in various sales and marketing positions since he joined the Gasket Division in 1976. Most recently he was the division's product manager.

He is a graduate of Eastern Michigan University with a bachelor's degree in business administration. He resides with his wife, Pamela, and a daughter in Union Lake.

The McCord Gasket Division manufactures and markets more than 6,000 different varieties of gaskets to all of the major automotive manufacturers, the automotive replacement market and various industrial firms.

DR. JOHN R. SWANSON of Walled Lake and Dr. William J. Schipper of Grand Rapids lectured on the topic of "Sports Vision" recently to the Michigan Society of Ophthalmic Dispensers in Saginaw.

The summer air,
Tree-tenant talk;
Until a black cloud—
A Fagan's cloak
Sweeps them up
In whirling, and Lightening's crack

Then drops them
Back to treetops—
To scold and reaffirm
Their ownership
Below pale blue roofs.*

Robins, Abraham lead NHS on all-area team

By JOHN MYERS

the second year in a row.

In just under 83 innings pitched Artley gave up 45 hits, fanned 29 batters and had an earned-run-average of 1.92. And this is only the beginning of her career.

PITCHER: CHERYL SHANKEL, NOVI— This hard-throwing junior could easily have been nicknamed "K" for strikeout. Reason being Shankel blew the ball by enemy batters for 139 strikeouts in 136 1/3 innings pitched. Her overall record was 12-8 with a 3.90 era.

What is more important, Shankel can handle the bat as well. She hit .370 for the year with four doubles, three triples and a homerun. She was selected to the first-team Kensington Valley Conference squad this season.

CATCHER: KATHY SIDOR, WALLED LAKE WESTERN— Another one of the fine Warrior members to make the first team. Only a junior, Sidor batted .340 for the season. She belted out 17 hits, drove in 12 runs and stole six bases.

INFIELDER: DENISE DREFFS, WHITMORE LAKE— The only member of the Trojan squad to be selected to the first or second team. However, she had the highest batting average of any player on the first team with a .488 mark.

This first-team Tri-County Conference pick hit an amazing .568 in league play. For the season she hit five doubles, scored 26 times and drove in 18 runs.

INFIELDER: KATHY WONGSTROM, SOUTH LYON— She almost caught Dreffs for the top batting honors on this squad of heavy hitters. Wongstrom belted out a .481 average to gain second-team honors in the KVC.

INFIELDER: KRIS MELLEMA, WALLED LAKE WESTERN— The first of two Warrior players to secure spots on the infield. This first-team W-Six honoree batted a hefty .429 while connecting for two homers.

INFIELDER: TRACY GRUBB, WALLED LAKE WESTERN— The other half of the infield combination for the Warriors. Grubb carried a big stick to the plate as her .448 batting average shows. She lashed out 24 hits which included six doubles.

OUTFIELDER: SHERI ROBINS, NORTHVILLE— This junior played a number of positions for the Mustangs, but her main duties were covering the territory in center-field. Robins was the team-leader in batting with her .378 average.

Don't be deceived. Although Walled Lake Western dominated the list, the Northville Mustangs girls softball team did place five members on the 1981 Sliger Home Newspapers all-area team.

Sheri Robins made the first team, while teammate Amy Abraham was honored on the second team. Those making the honorable mention list were pitcher Sue Keiser, short-stop Jill Matteucci and outfielder Judy Orr.

Walled Lake Western, which won the Western Six Conference and a district championship, placed seven members on either the first or second team. Add the honorable mention picks and the Warriors had 10 players in all selected.

Also taking a big chunk of the cake were Milford and Milford Lakeland. Combined, the two teams had seven members named to the squads and eight overall.

Therefore, three teams dominated the proceedings by having 14 players selected to the 22-member team.

The designated hitter was added to this week's all-area team due to the abundance of hitting talent and versatility of the players.

Comprising the eight-team coverage area along with Northville are Novi, Walled Lake Western, Walled Lake Central, Milford Lakeland, Milford, South Lyon and Whitmore Lake.

Here now are the top softball players for 1981:

FIRST TEAM

PITCHER: KATHY ARTLEY, WALLED LAKE WESTERN— It's easy to see why this sophomore made the first team. In helping lead the Warriors to a 16-6 overall record Artley won eight of those contests and lost five. Two of those losses might have been victories for Artley. She lost two 2-1 games to the W-Six's top-notch pitcher in Waterford Mott's Vicky Morrow. Artley was named to the second team of the Western Six Conference for

Northville wins trophy

"We won! Hey, Mom, we won!"

That was the shout as Northville physically and mentally handicapped children concluded the annual Holt-Northville Bowling Tournament at Novi Bowl Saturday.

It was a little premature since judges had not yet tallied the scores, but once the performances were formally recorded Northville did indeed win the fourth annual tournament sponsored by the Kiwanis clubs of Northville and Holt.

And the victory by the local children couldn't have been better timed, because this year, for the first time, the grand prize was the John Steimel Memorial Cup in memory of the late Kiwanian and Northville postmaster, John Steimel.

The traveling trophy had been commissioned by Northville Kiwanians following Mr. Steimel's death in January.

"Naturally, we had hoped our kids would be the first winner of the trophy," said Northville Kiwanis Club President John Genitti. "But the Holt kids, who seem to get stronger every year, won in 1980 and after our first round up at Holt two weeks ago it looked like they were headed for another tournament triumph. But Saturday our kids really bowled well — bettering their averages by big margins."

The annual tournament involves back-to-back competition, with the first round in one community, the second in the other. Holt Kiwanis Club hosted the first round, Northville the second this year.

Following Saturday's tournament action at Novi Bowl and lunch at Genitti's in downtown Northville, Kiwanian Hugh Lockhart of Holt, who formerly lived in Northville, announced the winner and presented the trophy to Leon T. Sylvestre who directs the Kiwanis bowling program for handicapped children here.

On hand for the presentation was Lorraine Steimel, widow of the late postmaster.

(Mrs. Steimel and Lockhart, now a professor at Michigan State University, were classmates at Northville High School).

As Northville kids cheered, Lockhart said, "I'm a little jealous in presenting this trophy to you because we (Holt) really wanted to be the first to win it. But all of you bowled beautifully today and, as much as I hate to admit it, you deserved to win."

"I must caution you, however, that Holt fully intends to win it next year," he added as the Holt youngsters shouted their agreement.

While a resident of Northville and a member of the local club, Lockhart and other Kiwanians launched the bowling program for handicapped children here almost a decade ago. Later, upon moving to Holt, he encouraged the Kiwanis club there to sponsor a similar program.

Today, both clubs conduct monthly or bi-weekly bowling programs for nearly 50 handicapped children throughout the year. Out of these programs came the annual tournament in 1978 that has produced a keen rivalry between the two communities.

"I think the smiles you see on the faces of the children of both communities today tell you how meaningful our programs have become," said Sylvestre. "Some of these kids could not even pick up a bowling ball when they began. Now they're tossing it like pros."

Besides presentation of the John Steimel Memorial Cup to the local team, individual trophies were awarded each of the winning Northville participants.

Parents of handicapped children not now in the bowling program are invited to contact Sylvestre, 349-6497. All expenses are paid by the club.

Club Secretary Mitchell Deeb urges men interested in becoming Kiwanians to call him at 349-1939 or to visit any of the weekly club meetings at Henry's Hall in O'Sheehan's restaurant on Seven Mile at the railroad tracks. The club meets at 6:30 p.m. Monday for a dinner program.

JOHN STEIMEL CUP—In memory of the late Kiwanian John Steimel, the Northville Kiwanis Club this year introduced a traveling trophy, the "John Steimel Memorial Cup," as grand prize for the winning team of physically and mentally handicapped children participating in the annual Northville-Holt Bowling Tournament. First winner of the cup Saturday was Northville. As Lorraine Steimel, widow of Mr. Steimel, looks on, Leon T. Sylvestre, left, accepts the trophy on behalf of the Northville children from Hugh Lockhart, former Northville resident now living in Holt. Sylvestre is chairman of the local club's bowling program, Lockhart is chairman of the program in Holt.

Ward plays with, battles against best cage talent

By JOHN MYERS

Dave Ward finally received his chance to play with, and against, some of the best high school cage talent in the state and Canada May 30-31 at Schoolcraft College's Fourth Annual International Basketball Classic.

As a member of the Michigan Amateur Athletic Union Junior Men's team, Ward played along with Michigan's Mr. Basketball Sam Vincent of Lansing Eastern, All-American Eric Turner of Flint Central and nine other high school all-stars.

Other members of the Michigan team were: Percy Cooper of Highland Park; Vince Giles of Detroit Henry Ford; Larry Polec of Sterling Heights; Keith Jackson of Willow Run; Don Petties of Ann Arbor Huron; Leslie Rockmore of Detroit Southwestern, Greg Washington of Detroit Western; Anthony Welch of Grand Rapids Creston; and Greg Wendt of Detroit Catholic Central.

The Michigan team faced the Quebec Provincial team of Canada in its opening game May 30 and then played the Metro AAU Junior Men's team May 31. "I never had the opportunity to play the class of basketball like these guys before," Ward said.

The class of basketball played both days was one of run-and-gun and razzle-dazzle for the fans in attendance.

The Michigan squad handily defeated Quebec, 118-104, and destroyed the Metro team, 127-95.

"I loved playing with these guys. It was a great opportunity," Ward said.

There were three teams selected to compete in the International Classic along with Quebec. The Michigan, Metro and Detroit squads.

The top-ranked Michigan club was comprised of players from throughout the state. The Metro squad had only metropolitan players and the Detroit team included only Detroit players.

...Robins, Abraham lead NHS

The second-team W-Six selection was a terror at the plate in conference action with her .389 mark. She belted out three doubles, two triples, two homeruns and drove in 12 runs. Robins was fast on her feet as she stole six bases.

OUTFIELDER: BETH WARD, MILFORD LAKE—The senior had a good year at the plate with a .382 batting average. She connected for 21 hits in 55 at-bats with an on-base percentage of .700.

OUTFIELDER: MARAGERT GRUBB, WALLED LAKE WESTERN—The fifth and final member to be placed on the all-area team. She also is the sister of Tracy. Like her sister, the senior batted over .400 with a .406 mark. She was a big run producer by knocking in 17 runs.

DESIGNATED HITTER: MARY WHITE, MILFORD LAKE—This senior also played in the outfield and pitched. She had a batting average .362 with 21 hits in 58 at-bats. She scored 13 times and drove in 14 runs.

SECOND TEAM

PITCHER: KATIE WINTER, MILFORD—This honorable mention pick in the Greater Oakland Activities League finished the season with an even 6-6 record. The senior's era was 4.83 by giving up 60 earned runs in 87 innings pitched.

PITCHER: TAMMY GRAVES,

WALLED LAKE WESTERN—One of two Warrior members to make the SHN second team. Graves had an excellent 6-1 overall record with an era of 2.54. She struckout 17 enemy batters and allowed only 32 hits in 47 1/3 innings pitched.

CATCHER: CAROL BAAKI, SOUTH LYON—This young backstop has a good future with the Lions. Baaki is the only freshman to make this season's all-area team and it is easy to see why. She batted a lofty .419 by connecting for 13 hits in 31 trips to the plate and scored 15 runs.

INFILDER: AMY ABRAHAM, NORTHVILLE—Not many people can boast they went errorless for the season at a certain position, but Abraham can. The senior firstsacker did just that for the Mustangs in 1981.

Abraham also was good with the bat as she batted .343 for the season and .379 in Western Six Conference play. She banged out 11 hits in 32 appearances to the plate with one double and seven RBI.

INFILDER: THERESA CAMERON, MILFORD LAKE—The junior secondsacker batted .400 for the season in gaining second team honors in the Inter-Lakes Conference. Cameron connected for 20 hits in 50 plate appearances.

INFILDER: TRACEY STRACHAN, MILFORD—This senior batted .348 for the season in racking up some impressive offensive statistics.

She had 16 hits in 46 trips to the plate, scored 24 times, knocked in nine runs, stole 12 bases and walked 18 times. Her fielding average was .906.

INFILDER: CAROLE CHAMPNEY, NOVI—The senior shortstop also was selected to the first team in the Kensington Valley Conference. Champney batted .306 for the Wildcats by collecting 19 hits in 62 at-bats.

Northville nipped 2-1

Northville No. 7 United fell to defeat to Farmington No. 2, 2-1, in an under-10 boys match-up in the West Suburban Soccer League. Ken Spigarelli scored the lone Northville goal on a penalty kick.

The game was scoreless at the half and was tied at 1-all in the third period before Farmington scored in the fourth to seal the victory.

Jamie Turner was cited for his defensive efforts. Mid-fielder Andy Frey was noted for his good play, while forwards Bobby Dudley and Tim Riha were cited for their efforts.

The coach was pleased with how the team has come together after three seasons. Saturday's contest marked the last regular-season league game for the squad.

Under-19 Girls

Northville No. 3 Stars 2, Lakes No. 11: The Stars clinched the league championship with their hard-fought triumph over Lakes. Sue Borthwick and Jill Anger tallied the Stars' goals. The Northville squad finished the season undefeated.

Under-14 Girls

Cougars 5, Lakes 1: Deana Akroush scored the first two goals of her career in the Cougars' victory. Suzi LaChance scored once and Tracy Kohl scored twice for the winners.

Foxes 6, Farmington No. 11: Julie Anger helped the Foxes dominate play with her three-goal hat trick. Margaret DeMattia, Sandy Stephens and Jenny Richardson all scored in the win.

Pink Panthers 6, Plymouth No. 20: Cathy Heitert notched her first career goal in the shutout win. Denise Colovas tallied twice for the Pink Panthers, while teammates Jill Jensen, Lori Housman and Carrie Lenaghan all scored once for the winners.

Under-10 Girls

Northville No. 1 Sunrise 3, Plymouth No. 41: In this hard-fought contest, Sunrise came up with three goals in the third period to seal the win and remain undefeated. The Division II co-leaders received two goals from Wendy Kohl on assists by Abby Edwards and an unassisted goal by Jennifer Lewis.

Julie Wright, Paula Schuerman and Susan Kisiel were cited for their efforts in keeping the squad undefeated.

Northville No. 1 Sunrise 1, Plymouth No. 41: Abby Edwards tallied the lone Sunrise goal on an assist from Adrienne Edwards. Heather Hobart, Jennifer Parkinson and Julie Howard kept Plymouth from scoring another goal aside from the penalty kick.

Plymouth No. 11, Northville No. 2 Pandas 0: Despite the defensive efforts of Kristen Abitz, Megan Graham and goalie Dana Roslinski, the Pandas couldn't crack the goose egg.

Plymouth No. 16, Northville No. 3 Forest 2: Jennifer Barber scored both of the Forest's goals. Jeanne Sullivan, Kristy Turner and Theresa Pacheco were cited for their defensive play.

Former Major League baseball star Bernie Carbo was in Northville recently to speak with a group of Pee Wee Reese players. Carbo's final season in professional baseball was last year when he briefly played with the Pittsburgh Pirates. His pro career started with the Cincinnati Reds in 1969 and he has played with several teams since that time. One of Carbo's most notable accomplishments was in the sixth game of the 1975 World Series against the Reds. He hit a homerun to tie the contest which was finally won by Boston in the 10th inning. Carbo currently is working for his own hairstyling salon called "We are Family" in Redford Township.

Astros record unblemished

The Astros still are the team to beat in the F-League baseball race as they have jumped to a perfect 9-0 record so far this season. The second-place Dodgers trail right behind at 7-1.

In two games during the past week, the Astros have blasted the Phillies, 14-0, and the Braves, 16-2. Against the Phillies, the Astros pounded out 14 hits. Led by Paul Haval's long homerun in the first inning, the Astros scored in every inning but one. Paul Stephens pitched a strong game by allowing the Phillies only three hits.

The Braves proved to be no match as Chris Hauser went the distance for the Astros. He also collected three hits, while teammate Haval added two more. For the Braves, Bob Bugar and Robby Kucharski each had two hits.

The Reds whipped the Angels 14-1 and were paced behind the the hitting of Mark Deal who collected two hits

Northville team drops first game

After racking up its first two wins of the young season, the Northville Sandy Koufax Blue team lost its first game of the baseball season last week Tuesday to Riverview, 13-5.

Riverview could only muster up seven hits in the contest, but was aided by six Northville errors.

Northville stormed to an early 3-0 lead in the first inning. The outburst was aided by a 330-foot two-run homerun by Mickey Newman. However, Riverview came right back with two runs of its own in the same stanza.

John Norton, who had two hits in the contest, drove in a run and Northville added a final run to increase its lead to 5-3 before disaster struck in the fourth inning.

Riverview tallied five runs on only one hit, which was a bases-loaded double, to surge ahead 8-5. As Riverview continued to increase its lead, Riverview brought in its ace pitcher to silence the Northville bats.

Tennis tourney set

Today is the last chance for local teenagers to enter the Northville Junior Tennis Classic to take place Saturday and Sunday at the Fish Hatchery Park. It is sponsored by the Northville Recreation Department and Racquet Connection.

The fee to enter the tournament is $8.

The next scheduled event is the Second Annual Northville Open Tennis Classic to take place June 27-28 at the Fish Hatchery Park.

Deadline for entry is Saturday with the fee being $10 per event.

Dave Ward holds his defensive position

...Ward

March. Ward said he knew he had a chance to make one of the teams.

"I had good practices. I wasn't really surprised I made the first team," he said.

In the Quebec contest, Ward scored only four points, grabbed a couple of rebounds and blocked five shots. However, he wasn't too pleased with his play that night.

"I need to get more aggressive," he said after Saturday's (May 30) game. "The game style was a little quicker and a little more elbowing going on out there."

Sunday (May 31) was a better day for Ward all-around. He scored six points against the Metro squad, including a slam dunk, and blocked two shots.

"The slam dunk made me feel better," he said.

"There was a loose ball, I picked it up, the lane was open and I stuck it."

Ward said he played more aggressively and was able to keep up with the running-style game. But, he said it was a bit of an adjustment for him.

"It's an adjustment to play with them. It's a different brand of game, but I like it more," he said.

The running-style game is very similar to San Diego State's where Ward will be playing his college basketball next winter.

"That's all they do out there. They are very fast," Ward said. "The coach (Dave Gains) said it's 'run-pass-shoot-dunk'. It's something like that."

While his offensive output was minimal, Ward thought he played strong defensively during the tournament.

Winemaster signs pact

Former Northville High School football standout Gary Winemaster recently signed a contract with the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League.

Winemaster, who said he didn't want to discuss his signing until after training camp, will report to the Cowboys July 12 in an effort to make the team.

Not selected in the April 28 pro football draft, the University of Pennsylvania defensive end decided to sign with the Cowboys after being contacted by eight different teams.

"I had been in Dallas in February and I really liked their organization and how it was run," he said. "I feel I have a very good opportunity down there."

He also attended a mini-camp for rookies in Dallas May 13.

That was about all Winemaster would elaborate on the matter. He said he wanted "to go about things his own way and wait until everything fell into place."

As for his final season, it was a lean one for Winemaster and his Penn teammates. They went 1-9 for the year in the Ivy League. However, he did make the all-league team for the second year in a row and was an honorable mention All-American pick for 1980. Winemaster also was named to the all-east team.

In high school, the 1975 Mustang graduate was selected to the Western Conference Six team two straight years at defensive end and also the Sliger Home Newspapers all-area team.

During his senior campaign, few opponents ran toward Winemaster's side of the field. He was in the running for the SHN Player-of-the-Year award.

NHS graduation: reflections on the past and future

By MICHELE McELMURRY

It's an end and a beginning — a time for reminiscing and for looking to the future

For the 355 students gathered on the Northville High School football field last Friday night, it was a time to reflect on 12 years of education and to take a final bow for a job well done

The Northville High School Class of 1981 received diplomas Friday in the usual pomp and circumstance of the 111 graduating classes which had come before them.

In addition to the commencement address delivered by School Superintendent Lawrence Nichols and the traditional granting of diplomas, graduates heard from the five class valedictorians Jane Field, Jeff Williams, Linda Schneider, Holli Raycraft, Lora Higgins and salutatorian Judy Joslin

For the parents, relatives, friends and guests jammed together in the bleachers to watch their graduate receive his or her diploma, the feelings of pride seemed to fill the air

For the graduates on the field, the final event of what seemed like a lifetime of learning brought to the surface a wide range of emotions.

Sitting among your peers, it's hard to believe that you've shared the majority of your life with many of them — having moved together from one school to another — being in umpteen classes with the same friends year after year.

Afterall, would you ever believe that this good looking guy sitting next to you in a tie and sports coat was once that stupid little creep who used to have "kooties." Or that your friend who was recently elected the senior with the "best personality" in the class mock elections called you "brace face" from the moment you had braces put on your teeth in fifth grade.

As you laugh at these silly memories, you realize just how far you've come and the changes which have taken place over your lifetime.

Granted, this vast knowledge which you now possess certainly was not self-attained. Over the years you've been taught, supported, scolded, loved, and cared for by parents, teachers, counselors, friends and family

No, you certainly haven't traveled this road alone.

As you turn your head away from the stage and look into the crowd, it's easy to spot those who have helped you in your travels

Actually, it's quite easy to find your family in the crowd — they seem to be taking up an entire block of the bleachers.

Though you have shunned the attention that your family has bestowed upon you this evening, deep down inside there is a tremendous feeling of pride and satisfaction that they're here to share this moment with you

You're even glad to see Aunt Gladys — the somewhat eccentric relative who wears her old college letter sweater to all family graduations (she says it symbolizes the importance of school spirit) You even managed to muster a smile when she pinned a corsage the size of a football on your new blouse.

As you hear your name called to receive your diploma, you pray that you won't trip as you cross the stage.

Approaching the principal, you remember the time he suspended you for putting a dissected frog in the card catalog file under "F." Though you've always intended to tell him to "take a hike," those words just won't come out.

Instead you take your diploma, shake his hand and blurt out something about "thanks for all the help."

As you listen to the names being called one-by-one, a lump forms in your throat as you realize that you may never see these people again.

Many graduates will be heading to college, others will be taking jobs — but all will be closing the door on Northville High School and opening another on the future.

As the final names were called Friday night, graduates seemed to squirm in their chairs. When the last name was read, the cheering began as these now former Northville High School students threw their caps in the air and began filing off the field.

However, as graduates walked through the gates to head to the all-night party, a few heads turned to take one last look at yesterday before moving on to tomorrow.

Her graduation ends family tradition

Among the 355 students receiving diplomas Friday night, there was one student whose graduation marked more than the end of a public education.

For Sherri Bongiovanni, 18, graduation from Northville High School symbolized the end of a family tradition.

Sherri, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bongiovanni of 232 South Center, was the last of a long line of Bongiovannis to graduate from NHS — the 23rd graduate to be exact.

Sherri's aunt, Catherine Holman, who now resides in Plymouth, was the first family member to receive her diploma from the high school in 1935.

Catherine, the daughter of Sherri's grandmother Mary Bongiovanni, 84, started in the Northville Public Schools in 1923.

Mary Bongiovanni, who still resides in Northville, came to the United States from Calabria, Italy.

Since 1935, 10 of Mary Bongiovanni's children and 13 grandchildren have received diplomas from NHS.

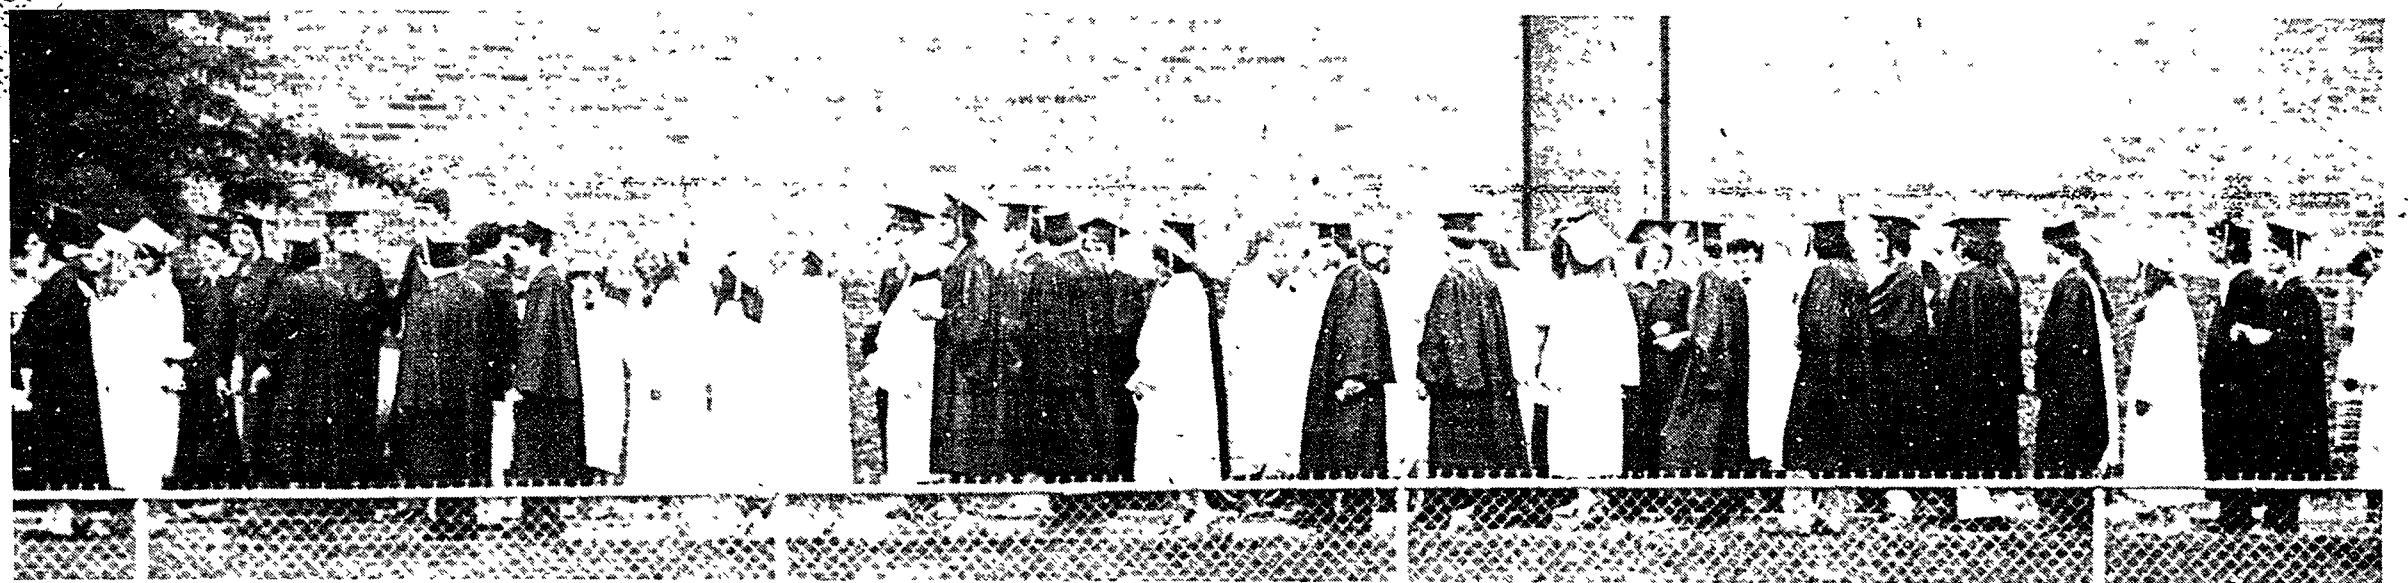

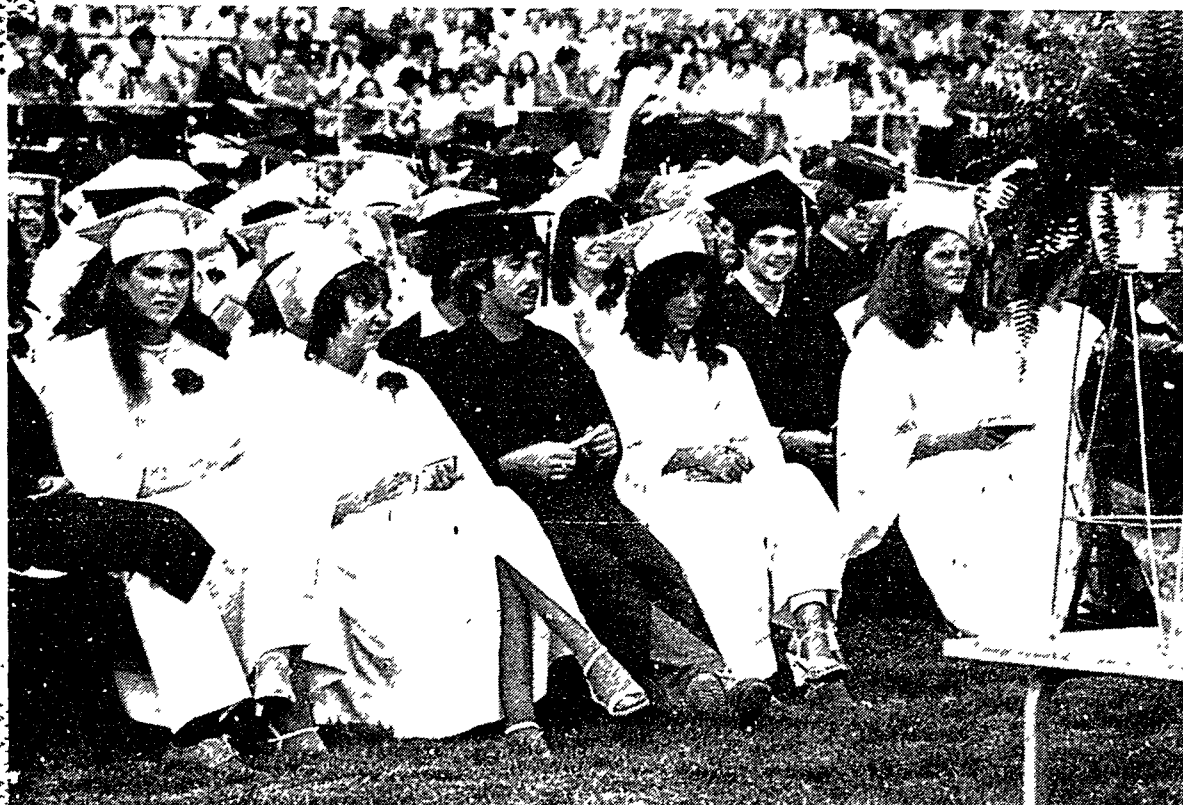

Though Sherri said she has aunts and uncles whose children may attend Northville Public Schools, she said she "is the last of the Bongiovannis" to graduate.

"I love going to Northville Charley's and looking at all the graduation composites on the walls," she said, "I can usually find most of my relatives in there."

Sherri's grandmother attended Friday's graduation to see the last of her family receive an NHS diploma.

Sherri, who will head to Lawrence Institute of Technology in the fall, said she is "kind of sad" to be the last of her family to graduate.

"It's really the end of a tradition," she reflected.

Moraine holds track and field meet

They didn't look like high school students, yet they were running on the Northville High School track June 4.

These students were the 50 fifth and sixth graders from Moraine Elementary School who voluntarily participated in the track meet.

Meet Director Karen Turner, Moraine physical education teacher, said the students were enthusiastic. She added the meet was well-attended by parents and classmates.

Several meet records were set, Turner said.

In the 50-yard dash for sixth-grade girls, Sheryl Skolarus established the record with a time of 6.7. She was followed by Mary Parkinson and Diane Eysbe.

Keith Shurmur broke the record in the softball throw for sixth-grade boys with his toss of 187-5. He was followed by Dave Kolzer and Dave Nadeau.

In the sixth-grade girls long jump, Amy Spaman established the record with a leap of 12-7-1. Laurie Hibbeln was second and Parkinson was third.

The last record set for the day was in the 440-yard relay for sixth grade. Susie Rahimi, Dave Kolzer, Heather Bogetta and Nick Norris ran it in a time of 1:02.5.

In the 440 relay for fifth grade Suzanne Perry, Mike Nuechterlein, Liz Young and Scott Paredes won with a 1:06.9 clocking.

In the running long jump for sixth-grade boys John Haupt won with a leap of 12-5-1/2. He was followed by Chris Sellen and Dave Kozler.

For fifth graders in the long jump, Liz Young won for the girls with a leap of 10-10-1/2. Chrissy Stille was second and Lisa Hyatt was third. For the boys, Brad Metz won with a distance of 12-2 and was followed by Karl Noffz and David Moore.

In the sixth-grade girls softball throw, Amy Spaman was first with a toss of 126-6. Mary Parkinson was second and Sheryl Skolarus was third.

For the fifth grade, Ron McDonald was victorious with a toss of 142-4 with Steve Paredes second and Scott Paredes next. Liz Young won for the girls with a toss of 97-11. She was followed by Leslie Wendel and Joelle Stephens.

Liz Young was victorious in a fourth event, the 50-yard dash for fifth-grade girls. She won with a 7.5 clocking. Chrissy Stille was second and Lisa Hyatt was third.

David Moore was first in the 50-yard dash for fifth-grade boys with a 7.0 time. James Burkowski was next and he was followed by Brad Metz.

Steve Winters grabbed first in the 50-yard dash for sixth-grade boys with 7.0 clocking. Tom Kieffuss placed second and Chris Sellen took third.

Dave Kolzer took first in the mile run for sixth-grade boys with a time of 6:22.7. John Haupt and Glenn Kilgore placed second and third, respectively.

For the girls, Amy Spaman was first with a 6:44.3 clocking. She was followed by Anne Griffith and Beth Parkinson.

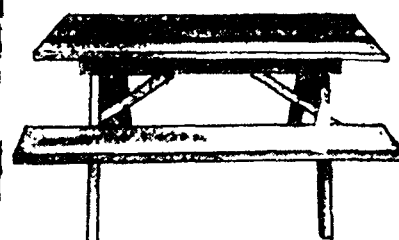

In the fifth grade mile run for girls, Joelle Stephens grabbed first.

MAKES A GREAT FATHER'S DAY GIFT

That's an important option to have when grass gets too tall or lush for mulching. When you add an expensive mulcherizer to your SNAPPER you convert it to a mulching mower. It then chews up cuttings so fine they become lawn food and you don't have to rake or bag. But, unlike one function mulching mowers, you can remove the mulcherizer and use your SNAPPER as a superior bagging mower. Built in a daily features on every SNAPPER mower includes full length solid steel axles, large rear wheels and easy cutting height adjustment.

SNAPPER mowers are worth more because they do more and their price is competitive with other quality mowers.

Soccer camp sign-ups scheduled Saturday

Schoolcraft College will be conducting a six-day soccer camp for boys and girls beginning Monday.

The program is designed to give participants ages seven to 16 an opportunity to learn and improve the basic skills of soccer and to compete with members of their own age and ability group, said Dr. Marvin Gans, director of physical education and athletics.

Emphasis will be on individual soccer skills and techniques as well as individual, group and team tactics. Daily activities include exercise and cross country run; ball control, dribbling, kicking and goalkeeping skills; group tactics and skill application; and competitive age-group games.

Registration is Monday between 8 and 9 a.m. Applications are available through the Schoolcraft physical education office and must include a $25 non-refundable deposit. The total tuition is $65 and the balance may be paid on or before registration.

The soccer program staff will include Schoolcraft coach Larry Christoff; former University of Michigan-Dearborn coach Van Dimitriou; Michigan State player John Gelmisi; Akron University goalkeeper John Starvos; and Livonia Stevenson High School coach Pete Scerri.

Others include Steven-son girls soccer coach Noreen Divens, Schoolcraft's top player and 1980 All-American Nick O'Shea.

Applications or further information may be obtained by calling the Schoolcraft physical education office at 591-6400, extension 480.
