"The American Family" will be taking a bow in Northville Saturday as floats in the annual Fourth of July parade depict this theme, chosen, as a symbol of strength and stability in these times of economic and social uncertainty, Jaycee sponsors explain..

The parade route will take a two-block detour to avoid Mainstreet renovations.

With Mayor Paul Vernon serving as grand marshal, the parade leaves the northwest entrance of the Downs park-and progresses west on Main to Rogers, turning south to Cady, then back on Wing to Fairbrook and the Downs.

The parade will feature clowns and costumed marchers as well as six bands, horses, bicyclists, 20 antique cars, 10

Nisun ousted for his role in bogus gun transaction

By KEVIN WILSON

Meeting in special session Thursday, June 25, the Northville Township Board of Trustees accepted a request from 10year police chief Ronald Nisun that he be relieved of his position immediately and assigned duties as a patrolman.

It also named Lieutenant Kenneth Hardesty, second-ranking officer in the department, acting chief for an indeterminate time.

Nisun, 51, submitted his request for demotion without reference to the incident, which was revealed after the meeting by township Supervisor John MacDonald and Clerk Susan Heintz, who had discovered the misuse of township stationery in the preceding

The exchange was under investigation by the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, but MacDonald said he does not believe the former chief should be implicated in criminal activity.

"I don't think he intended to do anything criminal," the supervisor said. "He (Nisun) has acknowledged that it was an indiscreet act that shouldn't have happened. It is simply an example of very poor judgment on

He also said Nisun was not acting for personal gain or profit.

Nisun allegedly released a sheet of township police letterhead stationery, with two carbon backing sheets, to a family member of Robert Pattison, a senior plumbing inspector for the city of Livonia who also operates a firearms dealership called Shooters Service at 29419 West Six Mile Road at Middlebelt in Livonia.

Township officials said Pattison, or a person in his employ, wrote a letter dated June 3 "confirming" an order for 84 Smith and Wesson handguns of assorted types, put Nisun's signature on the missive, and placed the order through the John A. Biewer Company of Marysville, Michigan. Marysville is a small port community immediately south of Port Huron.

Pattison, they said, also forged an excise tax exemption form that was the primary concern of federal investigators. Firearms are subject to a 10 percent tax that is waived for sales to Work on Mainstreet is beating time frame

Center and Main in the heart of downtown is right on schedule this week as giant equipment has been clawing out old concrete and asphalt, emptying the huge chunks into tandem haulers for removal.

Other equipment has followed immediately to smooth the way for new road bed construction.

Mainstreet construction crews were targeting to have asphalt on the Main Street blocks between Hutton and Wing by tonight.

Traffic last week was detoured around the block on Center from Dunlap to Main. This week the northsouth route was open, but east-west through traffic was detoured around Main from Hutton to Wing. Main is due to be open again by the weekend.

letter and forms to this newspaper. Pattison denied that Nisun's signature was forged to the documents, saying they were signed with the former chief's "permission, much like you'd have a letter signed by a secretary."

The bottom of the letter bears the initials RLN/jp. The officials said they believe "jp" to be the initials of one of Pattison's relatives employed at Shooters Service. The tax exemption certificate bears no initials to signify that the letter was signed by anyone other than Nisun.

The signature on the order clearly does not match the one Nisun signed to his letter last week. Additionally, the typist's initials at the bottom of the letter do not match those of anyone in township hall.

According to township officials, Pattison approached Nisun seeking to have an order placed through the department. The gun dealer was, they said, attempting to impress the company with high demand for weapons in the area because he was seeking to become a distributor for the company. rather than routing his orders through other distributors.

In their understanding, they said, the order was a ploy to get the company's attention and was to be canceled after Smith and Wesson contacted Shooters Service

But the order for 84 guns exceeded Nisuh's understanding of what was to be done, and also was not canceled before township officials learned of the order, they said. When Smith and Wesson requested a purchase order number from township hall, the events were uncovered.

MacDonald and Heintz said that when they saw the order Thursday, June 18, they knew immediately that the signature on the letter and excise tax exemption form was not Nisun's.

Not knowing who might be involved in the bogus order, MacDonald and Heintz said they contacted a federal authority, who referred them to a local investigator for the Department of Treasury's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

The investigator spoke to Nisun and Pattison Monday, June 22 and discovered the arrangement. Agent Dewey Wickman declined comment for publication, except to say that paperwork on the investigation is not yet completely processed and that he considers the case an open one.

The clerk and supervisor said they were told further investigation is unlikely because the order was never shipped, but that discovery of other evidence might lead to more study of the case

The order has since been canceled, since the township's 10-man force has no need for 84 handguns.

The board was told Pattison's attempt to gain a distributorship had been hampered by ill health and a subsequent operation with complications that required further surgery and hamper his ability to work to this day.

He and Nisun said they were acquaintances off and on for more than 15 years. Both are Livonia residents.

RONALD NISUN

Nisun is a member of the city's zoning board of appeals, Pattison a former plumbing inspector. He has not worked for the city since September 1980 and said Monday he is seeking a medical retirement.

Nisun, a former Livonia constable and court officer, worked part time for the township from 1966-69 enforcing local ordinances. He was appointed to full-time duties as the township's only police officer in 1969 and later was named chief.

Nisun appeared for the 9 p.m. meeting with his wife Betty but, after seeing township attorney Nels Carlson present, declined to enter until his own lawyer, Thomas Brady, arrived at around 9:30 p.m.

Pattison also was present. The Nisuns and Brady entered first, and Pattison was asked in 30 minutes later. Another 45 minutes elapsed before the party exited the closed meeting room. They were called back for another 15 minute conference, then sent out of the room again.

Thirty minutes later the Nisuns and Brady met with MacDonald, himself an attorney, and Carlson in the kitchen beside the meeting room.

his accrued vacation time.

He made no comment on the reasons for his request. His comments after the meeting did not touch on the incident either.

"I believe what I just did was best for myself, my family and the township," he said. "I've served as police chief 10 years now — I always thought I did a good job."

Pattison declined all comment beyond saying he had the stationery with Nisun's permission and that it was signed with his knowledge. Contacted Monday, he offered to call back, but was not present when a call was placed to Shooters Service Tuesday

Clerk Heintz moved to accept the chief's letter and its contents, and the motion was seconded by 'Freasurer Richard Henningsen. The board, with all members present, voted unanimously in favor.

MacDonald said after the meeting that all members of the board agreed that Nisun should no longer be chief of the department, but that the board had considered "the full gamut of penalties, from a fine or loss of vacation time or some such all the way to termination." Although Nisun requested the demo-that the decision was the board's.

"It's important to protect the integrity of the township police department," he said. "You've got to respect the man for what he has done here, but you also have to guard the reputation of the department."

MacDonald said the decision to have Nisun become a patrolman was governed, to some extent, by perceptions about how the department would operate after the demotion.

"We (the board) didn't feel at this point in time that he should be placed in a command position (lieutenant or sergeant)," MacDonald said. "My primary concern was maintaining the integrity of the department."

Both the clerk and supervisor noted there might be some difficulty nonetheless, as the township is currently negotiating with its police unions and Nisun was included in tactical sessions for the negotiations. As a patrolman, he will join the union.

Heintz noted that there were no other members of the department involved and emphasized the gravity of the incident in the board's eyes.

"We're dealing with guns here," she said. "He was man in a public position, and we had to do something to say that was wrong."

> Dr. James Luther

Some people have trouble accepting the miraculous and the supernatural. But actually the acceptance of the miraculous merely depends on your point of view. If I were to tell you that an entire city block was being excavated for a large sky scraper and the job was being done by a three year old boy with his toy pail and shovel, you would not believe me. However, if you heard that the same task had been done by a man with a steam shovel, you would have no reason to doubt the statement. So it is with the miraculous. If your conception of God dwarfs him into a puny creature as weak as yourself, you will naturally "stumble" over the miraculous. Yet, if the omnipotent God of Scripture is believed, you have no trouble accepting the miraculous of Cod's Word and Cod's Word!

Novi Ambulance operation queried

By KATHY JENNINGS

Novi Ambulance Company owner John Early has until July 31 to explain o Oakland County which of his ambulances will be used for running advanced life support service and which are for basic calls.

Early's firm is contracted to serve both the city and township of Northville, in addition to many other Wayne and Oakland County communities.

.Questions over whether Early was sending the wrong vehicles on emergency calls resulted in the temporary suspension of his privileges to perform advanced life support service over the weekend.

The issue was presented Monday in a hearing before the medical control board — a group of doctors and hospital administrators which oversees medical care issues and reviews alleged violations of procedures for emergency medicine in the county.

While Early was not allowed to run advanced service, he said back-up was provided by Fleet Ambulance Company. Fleet's nearest base is in Commerce Township, but Early said he was promised a floater would be stationed in Walled Lake, response time was not ing used on advanced life support runs normally handled by "Novi Ambulance" vehicles. Oakland County health officials questioned whether Early had received proper approvals to use "Alert" ambulances in this area.

On advanced life support calls trained paramedics attempt to stabilize the victim at the scene, treating the injured much as they would be handled in a hospital emergency room, while basic life support is primarily first aid and transportation to a hospital.

Additionally, constant changes in the vehicles which were providing advanced life support service created confusion at the hospital regarding the status of different ambulances and prompted the action, according to Dr. Paul Pomeroy.

As Oakland County project medical control director, Pomeroy was asked by Botsford to look into the matter. He subsequently issued a temporary suspension of Novi Ambulance's privilege to perform advanced life sup-

Early explained to the board he had in fact obtained proper approvals to use Alert" ambulances on advanced life support calls. Early said one of his rigs was having engine repairs and painting and the "Alert" vehicle was being used as a back-up.

"All my vehicles have been inspected by the MDPH as life support units,' Early said. "We had one vehicle temporarily out of service for repair. We have complied with the proper notification to the state. We have never been told we could not use Alert vehicles as a backup when we have vehicles out of Pomeroy pointed out "Alert" is not a recognized entity" in Oakland County. He produced information that showed Early was licensed to run ambulances under the name "Novi Ambulance," and "Novi-Farmington Ambulance."

Panel member Dr. Robert Aranosian, of Pontiac Osteopathic, said that he had contacted the state licensing division and found Alert ambulances were licensed as basic life support vehicles and were to operate in Wayne

"The state says you must identify the vehicle, it is identified on the front as Novi Ambulance," Early objected. 'Alert was for Garden City and was purchased solely to run basic service in Garden City. But I told the state I was running low on vehicles and received authorization to run Alert. I never knew I was running under any type of viola-

After hearing Early's remarks and approximately 90 minutes of deliberaion the panel reported it intended to lift the temporary suspension of Early's privileges to perform ALS.

He was asked to provide a letter clarifying the structure of Novi Ambulance and the advanced life support operation. He further was told there should be clarification noted on the vehicle regarding its connection with Novi Ambulance. For example if "Alert" is a subsidiary that information should be on the ambulance.

Pomeroy explained after the hearing the committee felt there was no proof that Early had intended to defraud anvone.

"Technically he may have been wrong in terms of improper notification to the county. But this wasn't an issue that would have an impact on patient care," Pomeroy said.

The City of Novi has planned a meeting with Early and hospital officials to discuss services there.

In the past week Early has been accused of overcharging those he transports. Novi City Manager Edward Kriewall said those accusations have prompted a lot of "telephone activity."

Northville Township Business Manager David Lelko said he has not received any calls in regard to Early's service or charges, but that a story in a major metropolitan daily newspaper is being included in board of trustees' agenda packets for a July 16 meeting.

"I think we'll be looking into it," he said. "Since we do have a contract with them, and questions have been raised, we'll be keeping an eye on the situa-

Council closes meeting twice in one evening

Two closed sessions during Monday night's city council meeting kept council members at city hall until half an hour past midnight Monday.

As permitted by the Open Meeting Act, the first closed session was held at the request of two patrolmen whose grievances were being appealed by their union.

When the council ended the hearing at 10:20 p.m., no public action was taken on the grievances. City Clerk Joan McAllister who took the minutes at the session stated afterward that one action was upheld and the other penalty was lessened by council.

It was understood that the grievances were two, separate instances of infractions for which disciplinary action was taken by Cannon.

By union procedure the patrolmen had protested to the union, who carried the grievance through the channels. After taking it to Cannon, it was review ed by the city manager. When it still was upheld, the session with council was requested. In the action that upheld the chief's decision it now is possible for the union to take the case to arbitration, but the representatives made no decision on whether to do so Monday night. Chief Cannon said Tuesday he has not been notified if this action is to be Patrolmen Hugh Jordan and Dave Fendelet were the officers involved. Union representatives were William Birdseye and Gerald Radovic.

Council adjourned the regular meeting at 11:45 p.m. to go into closed session to discuss possible property purchases. As a result of opposition by residents of the Randolph-High street areas the council has delayed decision to move Kerr House to the property it owns and purchased for this purpose at the southeast corner of the intersection.

Other property in the city to which the house could be moved was discussed in the closed session. By terms of the agreement with the postal service, the house must be moved by the end of the month to permit construction of an addition to the present post office.

If a site is not located, the city manager and council could decide to have the house demolished.

The matter is to be on the agenda for the next council meeting July 6.

Inability to sell house behind zoning request

Difficulty in selling residential properties opposite Northville State Hospital on Seven Mile lies behind a request to rezone three lots from R-1 (low density single family residential use) to OS-1 (office services), petitioner Joseph Petro told the township planning commission last week.

Petro's petition was the subject of a public hearing June 23 which drew a handful of residents of adjoining properties to speak against the change.

The planning commission was to make its decision regarding the petition at its regular meeting last night (Tuesday, June 30), after The Record went to press.

Petro, of 149 Fry, told the commission at the hearing that he is seeking the rezoning after trying, and failing, for the past three years to make use of the land as residential property.

"I built a house, on the biggest lot, at the (northwest) corner of Fry, as far north (set back from Seven Mile) as possible," Petro said.

"I gave it a Fry address, and a driveway back on Fry rather than on Seven Mile," he continued, "I've had it up for sale two years now, and only six people have even looked at it.

"Of those six, four were only interested in the property for it's possibilities for rezoning," he said. 'They all walked away from it. No one ever contacted me again after seeing the place. No one ever said anything bad about the building."

He said it is his belief that publicity surrounding an escapee problem at the hospital, averaging one per day for the past several years, deters potential view across the street, and they just seem to cool to the idea right away.'

Potro entered a purchase agreement for the three lots (numbers 51, 52 and 53 of Grandview Acres subdivision; lot 53 is where he built the house) three years ago with Wayne Claypool, after fighting Claypool's request to have the parcel rezoned for commercial uses. Some of his allies in that earlier protest were present last week to argue against Petro's own peti-

Most cited a perception that traffic problems are growing on Seven Mile Road, expressing sympathy for Petro's plight, but citing a general slump in the housing market as the more likely source of his dif-

But the petitioner said he had tried to make residential use feasible, and noted that his petition for office zoning would not allow the same uses of the land he protested when Claypool requested commercial zoning.

"I really believed in the residential use of the property north of Seven Mile Road when I purchased this land," he said. "I've given it all I've got, and I think now, this (office zoning) is the best use of the land realistically possible.'

Petro said that, to some degree, other developments along Seven Mile Road also make it necessary to change the zoning.

"The whole area has changed completely in the past three years," he said. "The apartments at Swan Harbour weren't there yet, the Northridge development was only in the early stages. A lot has changed along Seven Mile."

Those changes, however, were also the reason other residents opposed any change in zoning.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Smith and Ella H. Briggs, residents of the area unable to attend the hearing, sent letters objecting on the ground that other developments have created a traffic problem in that segment of Seven Mile, with many rear-end collisions as drivers attempt left turns.

John and Ellen Lewis, who live on Smock, also objected, claiming that non-residential development on Seven Mile has proceeded as far eastward as it should be allowed to expand.

"I think we've compromised enough on Seven Mile," Mr. Lewis said. "I feel bad about his (Petro's) particular situation, but I'd really like to ask the board to turn this (petition) down.

Those opposed to the rezoning cited the housing slump of the past two years as a more likely explanation for Petro's problems than the hospital.

"This leads me to believe," said Ellen Lewis, "that if I can't sell my house that I come in and ask for a zoning change.

But Petro's wife, Loraine, offered another view.

"If Joe had intended to zone OS-1 the whole time, he wouldn't have built the residence on the largest parcel, as far back as possible," she said. "The obection to rezoning three years ago was an objection to commercial zoning. Residential would have been wonderful on Seven Mile, we fought for that.

"Now, we are compromising with reality. The reason we opposed commercial was because of some of the allowable uses - with commercial they could have put a MacDonald's in there, and then you'd see a traffic problem," she continued.

"We believe OS-1 would not pose the traffic pro-blem a business zoning would create," she said. "Offices close so there are no night operations, no cars turning into driveways at night. And that's when the problem has been, not during the daylight hours an office would be open."

She characterized the office zoning as a "transitional" one, between B-2 properties to the west (Nichols Realty and Northville Charlies) and residential to the east.

Township planning consultant Claude W. Coates. in a letter to the commission for consideration in last night's meeting, both agreed and disagreed with that assessment of the situation.

"A change in use to office would have to be considered in the broadest sense," he wrote, "that is, if the parcel in question is better used as office, than that is true for other parcels in similar circumstances.

"If the Seven Mile Road traffic and Northville State Hospital are reasons that single-family residential use is unreasonable for the parcel in question, then it is also true for other parcels in the

This could extend all the way to Haggerty Road, Coates implied.

Coates proposed, however, a change in the request that would create a "transitional zoning." He suggested making the corner lot at Maxwell and Seven Mile Road OS-1, which would accommodate Nichols Realty on the site, plus lots 51 and 52, which

His proposal would retain R-1 zoning on lot 53, where the house stands. The house would have a rear lot relationship to the OS-1 and it would stand as a barrier to strip zoning extending across Fry to the northeast corner.

It was not clear at press time, but such a change in the proposal might require submission of a revised petition and another hearing.

Downtown construction's on schedule

Downtown merchants have been the main curbside observers of progress but have been joined by customers lured by special sale inducements. "It's been surprising that so many are coming into town," Charles Lapham observed this week.

Because construction of the Mainstreet renovation is going so well, he added, it appears that it will be possible to sell 20 percent more spaces than he had anticipated for the annual sidewalk sale August 1. Earlier Lapham had reduced the number of spaces because it was anticipated there still would be construction problems. Reservations for spaces are being taken at Lapham's store.

Last week road crews unearthed remains of what first appeared to be a wooden sidewalk or street and later were identified as streetcar lines. The excavation was near Del's Shoe Store but did not continue west on Main, leading city officials to speculate that the rest of the line already had been removed in earlier construction.

Griffin said that throughout the renovation project which last fall included installation of utility and cable television conduits workers have discovered old bottles.

Otherwise, he said, there have been no big findings.

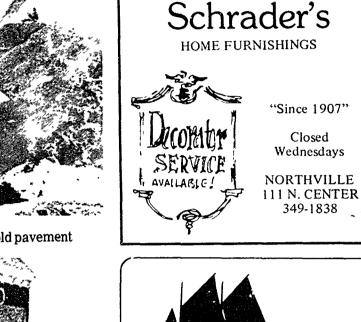

By mid-September the Mainstreet timetable calls for the completion of street and alley resurfacing and curb and gutter installations.

At that point, City Manager Steven Walters says, the community will see the beautification part of the project as trees and flower beds are planted as displayed on the Mainstreet model. This, he explains, will wait until after the August hot weather is past to give the plantings best chance for survival.

The parade is to include a Northville Mall Caravan, Maybury Park units of the Michigan Constable Association, Northville city and township police and fire departments and Michigan State Parade entries will be judged as they pass the reviewing stand.

Jaycees announced this week that donations still are being accepted to help defray costs. Anyone donating $200, and thus sponsoring a band, will have a banner of acknowledgement in the parade.

Car owners and groups wishing to participate still may register with general chairman Doug Boor, 349-2710. John Danules is parade chairman while Mike Batzka is in charge of parade awards and Jim Steel is handling publicity.

Dan Giesler and Greg Dawson head Jaycee arrangement for the popular chicken barbeque served at the Mill Race Village after the parade. Jaycees also are planning a dunk tank under the direction of Don Lucas; lumberjack contests and a tobacco spit (a new event) headed by Boor; watermelon eating contest headed by John Hewitt and Ken Van Dam; and a baby contest arranged by Jaycette Chris Abbey. Volunteer help will be welcomed for all activities listed.

There will be no fee to enter the watermelon eating contest, which will be divided into heats by age groups - 4-5, 6-7, 8-9, 10-11, 12 and up. Three trophies and 30 awards are to be given.

Northville Historical Society is planning many events for the holiday in the Mill Race, including an art and craft show, ice cream and lemonade social, a demonstration and sale by the Northville Handweavers Guild in the handweavers' cottage, and tours of the New School Church, Hunter and Yerkes houses with Docent guides on duty. Northwest Territorial Militia again will have its encampment by the mill stream, giving demonstrations of early-day life.

At 12:30 p.m. the Northville Community Band will be playing in the gazebo.

A white elephant auction is slated for 1 p.m. Proceeds will be used to help complete work on the Wash Oak Schoolhouse.

Northville Jaycettes again are sponsoring a decorated bike contest. Prizes are planned for winners in each of the four categories - under five, 6-7, 8-9, 10-12 year olds. In addition to first, second and third place awards in each, there will be honorable mention ribbons for all participants.

Chairman Marion Wilcox asks that all entrants bring their decorated bicycles to the Northville Downs parking lot by 9 a.m. for the judging.

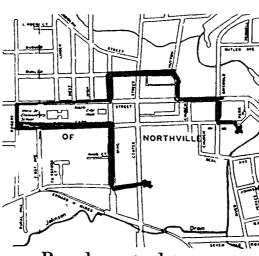

Participants afterward will ride them in the

Ms. Wilcox emphasizes that parents should plan to accompany small children during the judging and on the parade route as there is no supervision by the Jaycettes and they assume no responsibility for any entrant.

"Biggest and best ever" is the promise for the fireworks display under the direction of Jaycee Keith Mannisto.

To help defray the high costs involved with this annual attraction, the Jaycees have received permission from the school board to collect a $1 donation at the high school and Amerman elementary parking lots.

Each car parked in the lots is to receive a guide explaining what is happening during the display. The fireworks will begin at dusk.

Understanding fireworks

Everyone knows how to enjoy fireworks. Take a blanket, spread it on the grass, and look up. Right? Well, yes, you can enjoy fireworks that way. But what if you really understood what was happening, up there in the

To the average person, one display can look pretty much like another. But fireworks experts know better.

Keith Mannisto, who has organized Northville's annual Fourth of July display for several years and is now considering entering the business, is one of the experts.

While declining to give away the specifics of what he has in store for this year's show, he did offer a pamphlet full of hints about what the experts do and watch for when judging the quality of a show.

Don't stand too close is the first rule of fireworks watching. Not only is there a slight degree of danger involved in standing too close, but to absorb the full effects of aerial shells it is best to be several hundred feet away.

He suggests 500 feet or more as an appropriate distance.

Color quality is an important criteria to use in appreciating a display. Blue is Good clean whites also are difficult to create. A crisp white sparkle might look simple to the casual observer, but it reflects a lot of work in eliminating traces of color.

Count the number of breaks - individual explosions — in each shell. The fanciest display shells are multi-breaks that produce first one, then a second, and perhaps third, fourth and fifth ef-

Effects consist of either a burst of color made by many individual pellets called stars, or a thunder-like explosion and puff of smoke produced by powder filled cylinders called salutes.

Knowing the difference between an oriental shell and an American shell can help the watcher know what to expect. Oriental shells are spherical and layered to produce symmetrical effects, while American shells are cylindrical and create a random pattern of color for a longer duration.

Oriental shells create the spreading while oriental and American more brilliant flashes of color. fireworks are the most common, there are shells imported from other countries as well.

Experts say each has national characteristics. George Plimpton (once New York City's Fireworks Commissioner) claims the French are famous for precise colors and dazzling effects from multi-break shells.

Brazilian shells, on the other hand, are sharp and made to change color several times before extinguishing.

The Spanish are said to prefer oldfashioned rockets, the Italians a lot of noise. German fireworks often employ parachutes.

Effects are determined by the way a shell is packed. Oriental shells must have the stars arranged symmetrically in layers, sometimes with several layers per shell. How a shell is fused and the relationship of where stars and salutes are located in relation to black powder determines where in the sky the color goes and when the sound will be

The pyrotechnician must decide what he wants the shell to do, then apply what he knows about chemical compatability, physics and color aesthetics to make it work.

To appreciate the display, watch the shooters' work. After firing the first round of aerial shells, they will sometimes light ground fireworks (set pieces consisting of several small flaretype tubes - called lances - arranged n a pattern on a wooden frame).

The ground display will entertain spectators while the shooter reloads the mortars (tubes from which the shells are fired). A good shooter will keep something going on almost all the time. Experts also offer a safety tip. When designing fireworks, one of the aims is maximum public safety. They ask spectator assistance in staying in the designated watching area (the view is probably better there anyway).

They also suggest resisting the temptation to take home souvenirs of unexpended fireworks. Rarely, one part of a multi-break shell will fail to ignite and fall to earth.

These contain a quantity of pyrotechnic compounds that can be dangerous handled by an untrained person. Such findings should be reported to local police or fire officials

Fair shake

Personnel matters in a small community police force are among the most difficult of issues facing any administration. In its handling of allegations of misconduct on the part of its police chief, the Northville Township Board of Trustees has proven capable of meeting the task.

There is a temptation to second-guess such decisions, particularly since the evidence used by the board in making its judgment was presented behind clesed doors, but it should be resisted.

We normally oppose the conduct of public business behind closed doors, but in this instance we can see little that might have been gained by an open session and much that could have been lost. The drafters of Michigan's Open Meetings Act were wise to allow such sessions at the request of the employee.

On the surface, Ronald Nisun's release of a few sheets of letterhead stationery might seem a petty offense to warrant the board's request that he step down. Had the township not discovered the abuse when it did, however, the potential for involvement with serious criminal conduct was great. The possible ramifications of having a police agency associated with less-thanhonorable dealings in any field let alone handgun sales — are grave. A man with 10 years experience as a police chief should be expected to know better.

Those 10 years of service, and another five years before that time, are good reason to avoid the other extreme — outright firing. While Nisun may have exhibited poor judgment, he was most certainly not an evil-doer in the classic sense. He stood to gain nothing from the incident that forced his request to step down, and released the stationery in an apparent effort to help an acquaintance or friend facing difficulties.

His service and lovalty to the township were sincere at all times, which justifies the board's decision to retain him on the force as a patrolman.

Once the extremes — from a wrist-slapping fine to termination - re eliminated, demotion seems the only alternative. The degree of that demotion is a matter best decided by the board with the information it has at hand. The structure of a small police force obviously does not allow the flexibility a larger department presents, and the decision must have been a difficult one to make.

The procedures of the hearing, and the length of time spent in deliberation by the board with concerned parties out of the room, appears to reflect careful consideration of the move. The township is to be congratulated on the swiftness of its response to the discovery of Nisun's error while maintaining a reasonable level of equity in its treatment of the matter.

It's glorious

As longtime residents are aware, staying home to celebrate the Fourth can be more exciting than vacationing out of town on the holiday. Northville Jaycees are to be commended for going all-out to make Saturday a fun-Fourth highlighted by a grand parade at 10 a.m. followed by a day of activity in Mill Race Historical Village and concluding with a spectacular fireworks display from the high school hill at dusk.

A dozen floats, cars filled with local, state and national officials, horses and riders, 20 antique cars, bicyclists and marchers all will parade by, accompanied by music of half-a-dozen bands. This year the parade route will detour along Hutton to Dunlap and then back to Main on Wing to avoid the Mainstreet construction.

Supplying a spectacular day is not inexpensive. The Jaycees spend thousands of dollars to obtain attractions like the Colonial Fife and Drum Corps and the extensive fireworks. They also donate thousands of volunteer hours to plan the day's events, to become clowns in the parade, to supervise and to serve the chicken dinners at the Mill Race, and to clean up after the fun ends.

Members of Northville Historical Society also dedicate themselves to Mill Race activities. Buildings are open and staffed with Docent volunteer guides. There's to be an auction to help with funds to complete restoration of the Wash-Oak Schoolhouse, scheduled to be opened this year.

The Masonic Temple will be open from 6:30 a.m. until parade time for the annual pancake and sausage breakfast served by Union Chapter No. 55, Royal Arch Masons, at which everyone is welcome. After the parade, the Jaycees will be serving their annual barbecue throughout the day in Mill Race Village. Baby contests and games will continue through the day. Local fire departments will be joined by Plymouth and Canton departments for a water ball fight near the Ford Plant after the parade, about 2 p.m.

The climax to a Glorious Fourth comes with nightfall. Fireworks light up the sky with sprays of stars and exploding bursts of color. This attraction brings hundreds of cars to fill school parking lots and line Eight Mile for miles. This year the school district has given the Jaycees permission to ask a $1 donation to park on school property - it's a small way to help the Jaycees with the heavy expenses.

It's an old-fashioned celebration for all the family to enjoy — a great way to celebrate our nation's Independence Day.

Speaking . . .

of Sports

by John Myers

During the past few weeks the newspaper has received a few letters to the editor and a number of phone calls from parents in the Northville area about The Record sports section.

Some have been favorable, but others have questioned my ability to cover the youth soccer league in Nor-

All of which suggests some explanation about our sports section, for which I am totally responsible, is

First, to those of you who have sent letters or called the office I commend you. Your comments reinforce our belief that Northville readers are indeed concerned about what is being printed in the sports section, and I value your criticisms or commendations.

Now for some explanation.

Fact number one: space is at a premium. Just like most businesses around the state, the newspaper industry has been affected by economic conditions. We depend on advertising. The more ads the paper can sell, the more pages and space it has. Fewer ads mean tighter pages, which in turn requires more concise writing and greater attention to sports news balance.

Fact number two: there are more sports in Northville than youth soccer and each deserves coverage. I learned rapidly how big youth soccer is to the people of Northville. Most of the complaints I have been receiving about my coverage of the sport is the lack of

It should be noted, however, that there are 36 teams from Northville in the West Suburban Soccer League. If I were to write just one inch of copy on each team, plus run their standings, it would require a 76-inch story. That approximates two or three sports pages.

Fact number three: I believe the sports section should contain at least one feature story each week.

Many things have been happening to the teams and people representing Northville. Features about them help liven the section, providing variety instead of a constant barrage of weekly game wrap-up stories.

If you haven't noticed lately this form has been holding up much of the time since I joined The Record, and for past two weeks at least two features stories have appeared in the section (including today's).

These features show how active people and teams of Northville are and what they have been accomplishing. Their efforts should not go unrecognized.

Fact number four: Pictures tell a thousand words. I'm sure you have heard or read this at one time or another. I like to have as many pictures in the section as possible to show you some type of action from the event being covered or person or team being featured.

But because pictures also take up a lot of space in the paper it is sometimes necessary to cut a story in order to have the photo appear.

I just hope I have made myself clear as to what I'm Remember, there are other sports in Northville besides the one you are associated with and be considerate of them.

Getting Down to Brass Tacks

By CHRIS JOHNSON School Board President

The decision of the board of education to keep all seven schools open if the seven mill renewal proposal passes has comments. This is because the board did not accept this recommendation of the Citizens Advisory Committee. There are several factors which influenced this decision.

The most important factor facing the board is the lack of time to make a careful decision as to which school to close and to successfully plan a smooth transition. One item that should be remembered is that the criteria for closing an unneeded or unused school is different from the criteria the board established for closing schools during an economic disaster.

The intent of closing a school when it is no longer needed must be delivering a sound educational program at the most efficient cost. This will require that a number of factors be evaluated and considered before the decision is made to close a school. While capacity and student population is important, the board also would require a report on all building use. This includes lease arrangements, special classrooms such as art rooms and shops, and recreational use. The board would also want to consider whether or not one of the Institution Special Education Program Schools could be closed and have some of those student placed in the K-2 schools. The board also would want to examine its policy on renting schools and the costs charged to rent that space.

Other items such as moving ninth grade to the high school and sixth grade to the junior high schools should also be the possibility of whether the smaller sized Main Street Elementary School could hold enough students to close more than one school.

Clearly, the possibilities and the options are endless. For this very reason, the board has chosen not to make a quick decision which is not educationally sound.

The board is not burying its head in the sand on this issue because it does recognize the operational problem of underusing the facilities. For this reason, the board has directed the administration to carefully examine building use and to consider all of the factors I've already mentioned. In addition to the study of building use, the board will involve a committee of people from all of the various attendance areas and schools to be affected.

For those of you who were around and can remember, there was a fairly recent occasion of closing schools without proper planning. That was the disaster which occurred at Meads Mill in the 1975-76 school year. There the decision was based on the absolute requirement to balance a budget rather than provide sound education in an efficient manner. The students and the staff of Meads Mill in 1975-76 will always remember that nearly an entire school year was lost in the resulting confusion.

The same situation will once again result if the seven mill renewal fails.

COLUMN After traveling hundreds of miles to Virginia, into the heart of early history, we tramped from one made-to-lookold store to another as three ladies of our house excitedly shopped for things that sell . for 25 percent less in our own community.

"But a book store," I protested, "why onearth must we go into a book store. We've got great book stores at home."

"Because this is Williamsburg; it's exciting," they replied.

Well you can have "exciting?" Williamsburg. I didn't like it and I wouldn't. recommend it to anyone. Greenfield Village: is far more fascinating, much closer and a whole lot less expensive.

Most of the homes in the Williamsburg historical village are not open to the public; : they're privately occupied. Several "public": buildings are closed for one reason or: another. And many others are not originals, either having been extensively remodeled or : completely rebuilt.

Williamsburg village is a historical: queue; you fight traffic getting into a parking: lot, wait in line for an hour to buy $50 worth of tickets, wait in line for buses, wait in line to: tour houses, wait in line to eat, wait in line to use the restrooms, and then wait in lines to get out of the place.

Of all the fabulous places to visit in. Virginia, it befuddles the mind why people by the droves choose Williamsburg as the "exciting place to go." Wiser visitors will opt for a walk about Winchester and scores of other: Virginia towns, where countless charming homes and stores evoke real history...a: leisurely, informative chat on the porch of a stranger at the edge of a veterans cemetery...a quiet, contemplative morning: or evening on any one of many Revolutionary or Civil War battlefields...or a breathtaking drive through the 100-mile long Blue Ridge. Mountains Park.

Virginia exciting? You bet...everywhere: except Williamsburg and the state's other tourist trap, Virginia Beach.

School millage backed, opposed

The Northville School Board and school administration have hit a new low to force their three-year seven mill increase on the people. Use of scare tactics apparently has replaced logic. That of course assumes there is any logic at all to a tax increase Threats to cut all bus transportation, all extra-curricular activities (athletics, band, yearbook, etc.), closed schools, massive teacher layoff, increased classroom size have been presented to the public on a total package of absolute cuts instead of recommendations as possible areas of reductions. Anyway, consider this for a moment (suppose the board is right and all of the proposed cuts would take place if the seven mill tax increase is defeated), if seven mills will finance all of the services they propose to cut then the board must be wasting the other 25.5 mills they already have sacked.

Incidentally, without our intrepid school board facing this "money have you ever heard where they are considering any cuts in their own staff or pay? Also, doesn't it seem logical that with declining student enrollment teacher staff should be reduced? A few years ago the school board was asking for millage increase because of increasing student enrollment. Now here they are asking for more tax increases when student enrollment is declining. Of course the school board doesn't want such issues raised...it's much more simple to reach a little deeper into our our pocketbooks and continue to satisfy he board's very large appetite for money.

Just remember, all of the "facts" you hear from the Northville School Board are being brought to you by the same people who voted themselves a substantial pay increase before last April's millage increase election.

A "no" vote July 27th is not a vote against quality education but a vote to require the school board to run their operation in a more responsible manner. Then we will have a true quality education system with al of the extracurricular activities included.

To the Editor:

I received an unsigned letter from an obviously concerned Northville Township citizen on June 22, 1981, concerning the tentatively approved noise ordinance.

apparent restriction of lawn mowing before 10 a.m., when in fact the ordinance specifies that the lawn maintenance using gasoline powered equipment shall not be conducted between the hours of 10 p.m. and 7 a.m. While 7 a.m. may seem very early to some people, it is realistic, as that is the current starting time for Wayne County Park mowing crew.

A second concern was a fear that it would not be legal to use a lawn and gerden tractor for snow removal. It was not the intent of the Township Board of Trustees to apply any restrictions to snow removal, and the township attorney has assured me that the final approved version will not contain any restriction. The purpose of the noise ordinance was to preserve the noise quality of the township and not place any new restriction on anyone unless you mow your lawn at night.

I am sorry the letter writer could not see fit to sign his letter so that his fears could be resolved on a personal basis rather than through the press.

good school system?"

As a long time friend of John and Toni Genitti and as one who has admired their efforts over the last few years to upgrade the quality and scope of their business to the credit of our city, I was shocked at your recent remarks.

Over the past many years we have all shared concerns and thoughts over maintaining and increasing business in Northville, and to those people like Genittis, who have invested their time, talent and money into our community to improve our business climate must go our thanks and applause.

You, however, in your capacity as a planning commissioner, for reasons which may best be known only to yourself, have seen fit to embarass the Genittis in their efforts and hold them up to the community for public embarassment and ridicule. I specifically refer to your remarks at the last planning commission meeting; quoted verbatim at page 11-A of The Northville Record edition of June 24, 1981.

While the knowledge upon which you based your remarks may be arguable, what is not arguable is that the city has not appointed you as the roving fire code inspector, but rather, has seen fit to leave this responsibility to others more knowledgeable in the area than you. If you feel yourself more qualified than those presently serving the city in this capacity, we would sugget that you apply for that position, but if, as we know, you are not so qualified, you should restrain yourself on the issue.

To you, your remarks may have seemed off the cuff and spontaneous, but to the thousands of readers of The Record, who may believe that public officials think and study before they speak, your remarks may unfortunately have carried some credence, and may have a very damaging and far reaching effect on the Genittis. All public officers, from the dog catcher to the President, have a responsibility to familiarize themselves with a subject before commenting upon it, and we believe that you, sir, have by your remarks very seriously violated this responsiblility.

As such a public official, speaking out on a topic of some local interest, we would have hoped that you would have exercised a little more discretion before publicly addressing yourself to a topic about which you obviously knew

As you we were aghast at something about which you knew nothing, we are aghast at your unfounded and unfortunate remarks. As the attorney for the Genittis, I recognize that you will probably not suffer too much one way or the other over this matter, but we would ask that you please publicly retract your remarks so that those who have been made to suffer by your remarks will be able to have the record corrected and see an end to the embarassment and suffering that you have

In making this request, we are not unmindful of the laws governing slander in this state, and we would hope that if to retract your remarks, knowing them to be erroneous, I assure you that the Genittis would be willing to overlook this entire incident.

Sincerely yours, Charles N. Simkins

Fights Detroit tax plan

To the Editor:

I helped organize a group of state legislators (Legislators Against Tax Increases) for the sole purpose of offering information in opposition to the recent Detroit city income tax election

We were opposed to increasing the taxes of residents and non-residents since we strongly believe that an increase of this type is counter productive. Although we recognize the need you are possessed of sufficient integrity for increased revenues for Detroit, to further tax individuals who are already heavily taxed will only add to the exodus of residents and non-residents from the city. With fewer people paying taxes and a smaller tax base fewer dollars will result in the long run.

Our efforts failed when an unusual coalition of Detroit and outstate legislators with different purposes united to approve the election. Now that the electorate has approved the increase in Detroit I feel it is important that officials from both the state and Detroit continue to work together to guarantee that the needs of suburban communities are heard and acted upon.

Police Blotter

A high-speed chase ended in a twocar collision at Seven Mile Road and Haggerty Friday night, state police

The car driven by Mark Andrew Zeigler, 19, of Canton, collided with a car driven by Charles William Coslet, 59, of Livonia

According to Sergeant Andy Baker, the chase began on northbound I-275 near Five Mile Road when Trooper Donald Laymond spotted the car driven by Zeigler traveling at a high-rate of Laymond watched the Zeigler car in his rear view mirror, Baker said, and noticed it tailgating and moving from lane-to-lane without using turn signals.

Laymond then pulled up next to the car, but Zeigler increased his speed and began weaving in and out of traffic, Baker said. The speed of travel, Baker said, at times reached over 100 milesper-hour.

When Zeigler would not pull over, Laymond reduced the speed of his car and tried to maintain visual contact, Baker said. Zeigler's car went from I-275 onto the Seven Mile Road East exit where he lost control of his car at the top of the ramp and skidded over the concrete medium.

At this point Laymond again caught up with Zeigler's car and tried to get Zeigler to pull his car over to the side of the road, but Zeigler sped away on westbound Seven Mile, Baker said.

As Zeigler approached Haggerty he moved his car into the eastbound lanes and ran the light that had just turned red. Baker said.

The car driven by Coslet was in the right-hand lane on southbound Haggerty. His vision of traffic was blocked by a van in the left-hand lane, he proceeded into the intersection where the car was struck broadside by the Zeigler car, Baker said. The entire chase didn't last more than four minutes, he added.

Zeigler was ticketed for reckless driving. Zeigler suffered cuts and head injuries, while Coslet sustained cuts and complained of chest pains. Both were taken to St. Mary Hospital.

Jewerly worth $5,525 was stolen from a Baintree Circle residence between

The garage door on the east side of the residence was opened by a small screwdriver-type object at the frame. The inside door leading into the house had been left unlocked by the owner,

Stoneware stations dedicated in memory of former resident

In celebration of their 25th wedding anniversary last August, Northville residents John and Sue Martin took a trip to San Francisco.

The first few days were like a second honeymoon for the couple who had been high school sweethearts back in Columbus, Ohio. They spent their time visiting elatives, sightseeing and generally just enjoying themselves. However, Sue suddenly became ill. Weak and feverish, she was taken to a hospital where doctors diagnosed her illness as a bad virus.

Yet, a few days later she was much worse. Realizing the severity of her condition, John brought Sue back to Michigan where she was rushed to Henry Ford

Two days later on August 7, Sue Martin, he vivacious, 46-year-old wife, mother and teacher died. The cause of death was toxic shock syndrome

"It all happened so fast," recalled John Martin almost a year after his wife's death. "By the time the disease had been diagnosed - it was too late.'

Sue's death, from one of the earliest diagnosed cases of toxic shock syndrome, was a tremendous personal loss to her husband, three sons and many others who knew her.

"She was a very excellent teacher and a fantastic mother," John said in describing his late wife

SUE MARTIN

"She was a very alive and caring person," he said. "She was always giving of herself."

For the last five years of her life, Sue had been a learning resource teacher at Lowrey Junior High School in Dearborn, working with learning disabled students.

In addition to her teaching, she raised three sons — Christopher, 23, a senior the University of Michigan; Matthew, 21, who will be a junior at Michigan State Univeristy and Andrew, 17, who will be a senior at Northville High School next year.

The family moved to Northville four years ago from Livonia -- where they had lived for 17 years.

John said they moved to Northville because "we liked the area and found a nouse we really wanted."

Sue and her husband enjoyed the theater and the symphony and were active at St. John's Episcopal Church in Plymouth, where Sue sang in the choir and was a member of the Liturgical Arts Committee.

The Liturgical Arts Committee is responsible for all art work which goes into St. John's. Before her death, Sue was working with the committee on commissioning a set of Stations of the Cross for the

The Stations of the Cross, which depict the last journey of Christ from Pilate's house to his entombment, were a project in which Sue was particularly interested.

Yet, her death came before she could see the plans for the stations become reality.

However, on June 20 more than 250 people gathered at St. John's Episcopal Church for the blessing of nine ceramic pieces depicting the Stations of the Cross commissioned as a memorial to Sue

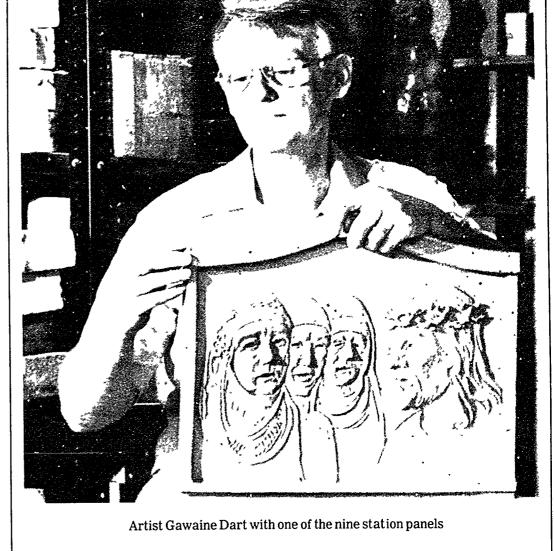

The stations, designed by Canton Township sculptor Gawaine Dart, were dedicated in Sue Martin's honor for her many contributions to the parish.

The Stations of the Cross — the series of 17 x 20-inch ceramic reliefs commissioned for St. John's Episcopal Church — were John Martin's tribute to the memory of his late wife Sue.

For Gawaine Dart, the Canton Township artist who designed and sculpted the pieces, the work not only was a part of his craft but also a tribute to a friend — Sue Martin.

Dart was a personal friend of Sue's and is both a friend and colleague of John Martin's.

An instructor of ceramics and watercolors at Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn, Dart also is a member of the Michigan Potters Association and was founder of the Michigan Craftsmen's Council.

Examples of Dart's work are in many area churches, and his commissioned stoneware functional pieces are in many private collec-

Jane. Mrs. Dart, also a potter, is retired from teaching art at Eastern Michigan University. Both have been working on large commissions simultaneously.

"I began making sketches for the stations last fall, but it has been slower than expected because we just moved into a new art building at Henry Ford, and that has involved a lot of work," Dart explained.

"I'm primarily a functional potter and painter and have never undertaken a project of this dimension before," he said.

Dart paints in watercolors in a realistic style, but he hasn't exhibited any paintings in recent

You're getting an invitation to join

By JEAN DAY

Anyone who has wondered how to become a member of the Northville Historical Society will have the answer this week. In the first big membership campaign since 1975, the society is mailing invitations to all homes in the community. It is the society that was responsible for conceiving the idea for the Mill Race Historical Village — and then in large measure for making it a real to the society that was responsible for conceiving the idea for the Mill Race Historical Village — and then in large measure for making it a result of the society that was respected to the society that we have the society that the society that we have the society that the

Last Thursday a group of 20 volunteers gathered at the Pickford home of Martha Nield to fold and label the society mailing. The lone man on hand to offer encouragement was Francis Gazlay who has just taken over as society president.

Members explained that renewals as well as new memberships will be welcome. "Even if the only support you can give when you join is your interest, you're invited," members note. The society has created an inactive status for those who wish to offer only financial support. Otherwise, those joining who want to be active can indicate areas of interest, ranging from research to painting and sanding.

Individual memberships are $8; couples $12; senior citizens and students, $1; docents $5; contributing $35; sustaining, $100; annual patron, $500; patron, $1,000 or more.

Society members receive the Mill Race Quarterly — a publication that many save as a reference. Issues contain histories of the community, architectural descriptions of local buildings and information about the village. The society also has monthly meetings with speakers, Saturday work sessions in the village and a festive Christmas party there. It is responsible for many of the Mill Race Fourth of July events detailed in a story on Page One of this week's Record.

Confusion on Walnut

Women's Association of First Presbyterian Church of the Northville Home Tour. It uses the funds from the tours for restoration work in the village.

Announcement of homes to be open on the 1981 tour last week included the Meyers' home on Walnut. However, it is the home of John and Pat Meyers at 146 Walnut, not the home formerly occupied by the Charles Meyers across the street, as photographed last week at 145 Walnut. Since the two families are not related, the confusion has been a plague, says Pat Meyers. She adds that she is aware how it can exist as both houses are painted red and are on opposite sides of the street. Since the other Meyers family recently moved, she adds that the problem should be solved soon.

Pat and her husband have been restoring lovingly the hillside home and presently are renovating the kitchen. Pat Meyers adds that she is concerned now that it may not be finished in time for this year's tour.

Students rate experiences 'fantastic'

Diane Perpich and her brother Dave are comparing notes this week on their recent study experiences. They are back home with their parents, the Edward Perpiches of Old Bedford, after Diane, a junior at University of Michigan, completed a six-week self-awareness study in New England and Dave returned last Friday from a visit to Germany

Dave, who will be co-president of his Northville High School senior class in September, went on the German class trip with fellow students Tom Hanson, Sue Meredith and Windy Cikanek.

Diane was one of 35 students on her outing with seven advisors. "Fantastic" is the way she describes the program in which she studied New England authors, climbed Mount Washington and camped and backbacked. She also received credits toward her English minor.

She's graduated to programmer

Deborah Maguire, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William aguire of Thornapple Lane, now has former student status. Since the end of May she has been living and working in Kansas City, Missouri.

After receiving her BS degree from Central Michigan University May 9, she accepted the position of programmer-analyst with Kansas City Power and Light Company.

Griffins went student Elderhosteling

Garnet and Mary Griffin, Northville residents of Dearborn Court, last week were among 40 senior citizens attending classes, living in a campus residence hall and eating in a student dining hall at Western Michigan University as part of Elderhostel, a week-long educational program for persons 60 and older. It was a first-time experience for the Griffins.

The courses offered included Introduction to Human Behavior, Michigan geography, current events and "Poetry and You." Elderhostelers also were offered such extracurricular activites as a class in aerobic dancing, a trip to the Kalamazoo planetarium and a sing-along. Participants enrolled from Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Missouri, Ohio and Florida as well as from 17 Michigan cities.

A MATTER OF TASTE

Q. Since I had a new partial made I've noticed a metallic taste in my mouth. Can the partial be causing this?

A. Not likely. Chances are your problem isn't dental. Millions of people wear partials made with metal and don't have your complaint. Most partial frameworks are gold or chrome-cobalt alloys materials that have no taste. A metallic taste can be caused by stress, certain medications, or your physician will probably solve your metallic mystery.

her," said the Reverend Robert Shank, rector of St John's. "She was a very intense Christian. She was very loving and giving in all her relationships '

The June 20 memorial service featured a performance of "Oh Son of the Living God" by J.S. Bach with guest organist Robert Clark of the University of Michigan and the Handbell Choir. A luncheon was served afterward.

"We really had a beautiful day for the service," John Martin explained. "We also had a great turn-out."

The crowd, gathered at St. John's a week ago last Saturday, came not only to bless Dart's beautifully sculpted stations but to honor the memory of the woman for which they were dedicated.

In addition to her involvement with the church, Sue Martin was active in a variety of other things, explained her

John, a ceramics teacher at Fordson High School in Dearborn and a drawing instructor at Henry Ford Community College, said he and his wife had dated in high school and both attended Ohio State University, where Sue earned her bachelor's degree in education.

She taught elementary school in Columbus and Madison Heights prior to teaching junior high school in Dear-

She later attended Madonna College and earned a certificate to teach learning disabled children.

"One of the people Sue worked with came up to me at the service and told me what an exceptional person she was in her work," John Martin said.

Dart said he was not sure he wanted to think of his Stations of the Cross even

"They are focal points of personal devotion If they turn out to be art, that's for someone else to decide, not me," he said Mrs Dart said her husband's realistic narrative reliefs were "not designed primarily to show the cleverness of the artist as so much modern art is. The Darts' large, rustic living room is decorated with their own art works. On

"I was involved in the design and St. John's roof. decoration of the Church of Good Shepherd in Dearborn Heights, and I was commissioned to do a baptismal font for the Church of St. Blaise," he said. "I enjoy being able to manufacture things for ceremonial use.'

Mrs. Dart took issue with his use of the word "manufacture." She said, 'that's really not the word; it's create.

Her husband explained his term -'It's hard for someone who's involved with pots to think in terms of the creation of a single object. We tend to think of series. The Stations of the Cross are a series. I had to keep all nine panels wet and in an adjustable state to keep the style the same."

The stateions were designed in close coordination with their architectural environment at St. John's.

"I was a little anxious about inflicting anything on that absolutely blank space," Dart said. He studied the lighting in the church to take advantage of the angles of shadow in his relief designs. He even designed the framing of the panels to conform to the curves of

Dart also investigated how other artists have handled the subject matter throughout history. He said he was particularly influenced by the free pen and ink drawings of Rembrandt. "I started with one of the panels strongly derived from a Rembrandt piece. I also looked at the drawings of Albrecht Durer, but I found the works of the North Europeans too gruesome in depicting the wounds.

"I could not remain objective," Dart said. "I became emotionally involved with the subject matter. I was reading the Bible like I haven't read it in years I read and re-read all the scriptural references to see where the artists started from. In the last scene — the entombment — I wasn't pleased with any of the illustrative material.

"The painters all dealt with architectural details. I wanted to get close enough to the figures to make it possible for the viewers to get close to them The problem was to pick the most poignant moment for the viewer.

"The scriptures said this without visual clues. I decided the hardest time for Mary must have been the last time she would see Christ's face. So I depicted her drawing the shroud over his face as though she were wrapping a

For example, the panel depicting Christ nailed to the cross concentrates on the head, torso and outstretched arms. The nailed hands are not in the boundaries of the picture, but the suffering is conveyed in the face and tautness of the muscles.

Little patriots

The Amerman second graders in Ann Holloway's class ended the school year with a surge of patriotic fervor. The students paved tribute to America's founding fathers - and mothers — with their spring play entitled "A Salute to the USA." Students portrayed various historical characters including everyone from George and Martha Washington to Thomas Edison and Susan B.

Anthony. Dressed in period costumes, students told their classmates a little about the character they portrayed. They also viewed a slide presentation entitled "America, the Beautiful." Schoolcraft requests review reconsideration

Although generally pleased with the report of a recent North Central examination visit, Schoolcraft College administrators have requested a reconsideration of the review committee's recommendation to conduct a comprehensive evaluation in seven years.

The administration contends Schoolcraft is qualified to have its accreditation reaffirmed for a period of 10 years and is prepared to file supplemental materials to support its con-

The review committee is scheduled to consider the request on September 26. It is expected that Edward V. McNally, as interim president, and Dr. C. Nelson Grote, who by that time will be in his new post in Washington, will represent Schoolcraft at the meeting.

McNally headed the college's selfstudy, which was the major effort in preparing for the on-site visit by the examination team this past March. The self-study covered from December 1, 1970 to December 1, 1980, the 10 years since the college's accreditation was last reaffirmed.

Dr. Grote said the report was very complimentary in a host of areas and also contained a number of suggestions which, when addressed, would help Schoolcraft improve its programs and

Acapulco divers perform at Boblo

Plunging 80-feet into a 10-foot pool is just one of the breath-taking exploits now performed daily at Boblo Island by the Acapulco High Divers.

A cast of six divers is featured in the 25-minute show as seen on ABC-TV's Wide World of Sports. Included are the National High Diving Champion and the world's youngest professional high

The performance includes four spectacular acts, opening with a fast-paced sequence of acrobatic dives. A highspirited comedy routine which extends into the audience follows, after which five divers will skillfully executive a series of "clown dives," while a sixth team member prepares for the deathdefying human torch dive.

In this 60-foot dive, the diver sets himself ablaze before plunging into a tank of water. The show culminates in the famous 80-foot Acapulco Cliff Dive.

Richard Langlais, chief executive officer of Boblo Island, caled the Acapulco High Divers "by far the most unusual act we've ever had here.

There will be three performances on weekdays and four on weekends through Labor Day.

The Acapulco High Divers have toured America from New Orleans to San Francisco, and its members have performed in Japan, Canada, Europe and South America. This year will mark the group's 25th season, having performed before more than 22 million Americans.

Other special events slated at Boblo Island this season include "A Salute of Broadway" by a cast of young entertainers in the Carousel Theatre, and the Maxivision cinema where parkgoers experience real-life sensations in a sight and sound simulator.

Younger visitors will be thrilled by "Old MacDonald's Farm," an opportunity to meet and pet their favorite farm animals.

A rare and unique exhibition of wild birds, "The Birds of Prev," is also scheduled to open at Boblo Island in Ju-Stunt flying, gliding, aerial ballet and aircraft in military formation are just a few of the highlights of the 8th annual Detroit City Airport Air Show on Saturday and Sunday, July 11-12.

The theme of this year's show is "Wings and Wheels." In addition to the spectacular aerial circus acts, visitors also will be treated to on-the-ground exhibits of antique, classic and vintage aircraft and automobiles.

Airport gates open at 10 a.m. for visitors to explore these displays as well as famous "warbirds" of World War II fame. There also will be music, racio-controlled model aircraft in aerobatic demonstrations and other entertainment.

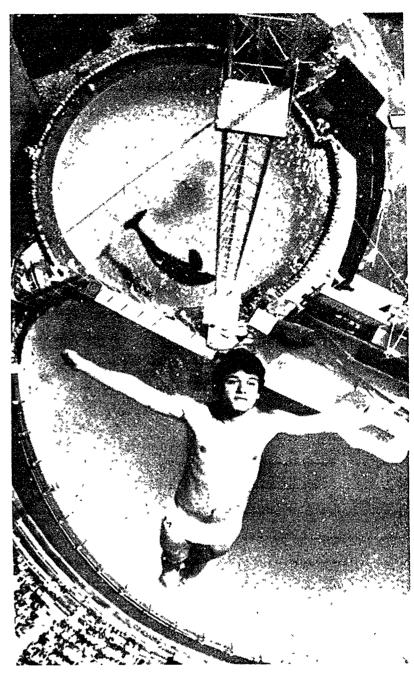

One of the most startling performances in the show will be given by the Marine Corps "Harrier." The AV-

8A Harriet Jet is almost an unbelievable aircraft. Not only can it fly at near supersonic speeds, it can also aerodynamically break to a midair halt in seconds, hover, fly backwards and maneuver sideways.

All this action will be demonstrated both days at the Air Show.

War Birds are a featured part of the show this year. The World War II aircraft participating in the show will include the Mitchell B-25, P-51, P-40, T-28, TBM, Douglas Skyraider, AT-6 and others. They will perform in the air, and the public will also have an opportunity to see them close up in the ground displays.

The show-in-the-air begins at 12 noon both days and features championship acts and performers from throughout the world

Oakland Chamber announces stand against the 'Industrial Hostage' Bill

The Board of Directors of the Oakland County Chamber of Commerce has taken a strong position in opposition to House Bill 4330, referred to as the Industrial Hostage Bill, sponsored by State Representative Perry Bullard (D-Ann Arbor).

According to the chamber, House Bill · Would deter many new businesses from locating in Michigan; Discourages existing businesses in Michigan to expand; In some cases, will be "the straw that broke the camels back" and force Michigan businesses to move out of the

 By requiring that they give a prior notice of one year before going out of business, could put them at a competitive disadvantage with similar businesses outside the state,

 Does not take into consideration such factors as economic conditions that are beyond the control of the business; and · Will cost additional jobs by the mere fact that the future of any business cannot be predicted. Most importan chamber, it infringes on the basic rights of an employer to relocate, shut down or reduce operations as he/she sees necessary to operate his/her own business.

Earl A. Kreps, president of the Oakland County Chamber, charged that the individuals who sponsor and support this type of legislation have not yet recognized the very serious situation in which this state's economy and business conditions are indeed in.

"With the high rate of unemployment and job deterioration, the high insurance rates for unemployment compensation and workmen's compensation, and having to pay taxes through the Single Business Tax Act, even though the year's end statement of a firm may show a huge loss, creates a very depressing atmosphere for both large and small business to operate and function," said Krebs.

Krebs charged further that House Bill 4330 dampens the creativeness the small entrepreneur has always provided for this country: the incentive to expand and create larger and more profitable incomes which historically have provided for better and higher paying

"This insane type of legislation is an unnecessary cost to the taxpayers of Michigan who have to foot the bill for the cost of staff writing, printing and distribution of the paper it is printed on," continued the chamber president.
"Also to pay the salaries of our legislators who have to hold hearings and waste their time debating an issue that obviously will bring detrimental results for both the workers and owners of business in Michigan. "We urge the fast and expedient defeat by the responsible legislators that still remain in Lansing," Krebs continued, "and if fortune does not provide us with that, then we ask for the veto by the governor.' Krebs also urged all citizens who now have jobs to write or call their state representatives and ask for their vote in defeating "this monstrous bill."

In addition to opposing House Bill 4330, the Board of Directors of the Oakland County Chamber also adopted and supported the 15 top recommenda-Small Business that emerged from the Governors Conference on Small

It's a family affair for the Horsts

This definitely was a family affair tournament.

Although no local residents won any titles in the Northville Open Tennis Classic during the weekend, the only persons who came close were the members of the Horst family.

Mother Lenna Horst came the closest to winning a title when she teammed with Northville girls tennis coach Uta Filkin for a runner-up finish in the women's doubles category.

Doug Horst, Sr. and son Doug, Jr. made the semifinals of the men's doubles division before losing.

11 was a family affair tournament," said Kerry Hlady, the tournament's director, about the Horsts family showing.

Horst and Filkin lost to Tammy Makiwen and Kathy Gronowick, both of Brighton, 6-1 and 6-3, in the championship match of the women's doubles divi-

To reach the finals, Horst and Filken beat Carol Hathaway and Lisa Maggio, both of Plymouth, 6-2, 4-6 and 7-6 in what Hlady called one of the better matches in women's doubles competition.

The father-son Horst team lost to eventual champions Dave Haak of Pinckney and Jeff Miller of Brighton, 7-5, 3-6 and 7-5.

"This was by far the best match in doubles," Hlady said.

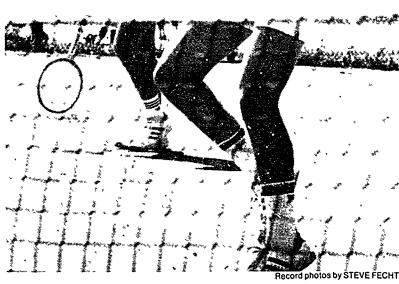

For the championship Hlady said it was the young guys against the older guys with the younger set prevailing. Haak and Miller defeated Bob Hinshon and Greg Young, both of Livonia, in two sets 7-5 and 6-0. Dearborn's Alan Amici was victorious over Allan Park's Chris Sitek in straight 6-1 sets to claim the men's singles championship. Amici is the number-one singles player for Henry Ford Community College while Sitek is the number-three singles player for Henry Ford.

Local youth plays soccer in England

By JOHN MYERS

Steve Starcevich, 14, had an experience earlier this year that many teenagers may never enjoy.

The Northville youth was part of a national soccer team, comprised of players from southeastern Michigan, that went to England to compete for the Anglo-American Challenge Trophy.

The trophy is represented by a four-foot Wilkinson Sword symbolic of international competition in athletics. According to Steve's father, John Starcevich, the sword in England is synonymous with quality and swords.

The Queen of England, he explained, commissioned about 300 of these swords in various events of Anglo-American competition, one of which was earmarked for soccer in this age group.

The team traveled to Kent, England during the Easter holiday in an attempt to regain the trophy and was successful in a 4-3 triumph.

A few days later the same team captured the Longfield Cup trophy by downing the Longfield, England boys championship team. In all, Starcevich said Steve's reaction to being in England was that everybody there was extremely hospitable and was interested in what was happening in America.

As for the level of soccer, Starcevich said it is played much the same as in America.

The players stayed in the homes of the host Kent team and had the opportunity to experience English life. Among the activities enjoyed by the Michigan contingent were watching the Arsenal First Division professional soccer team play and visiting London.

"It was not only a benefit from the sports experience, but the social experience as well, Starcevich said.

Steve was named to the team by the Michigan State youth soccer coach, Guido Reggelbugge, who based his selections for team memembers on personal observations of the players over the past few years, Starcevich said.

The team began conditioning for the trip in mid winter at an indoor soccer facility in Mount Plans are in the early beginning stages to bring the English team to Michigan next year to battle once again for the Anglo American Challenge Trophy. The team may play in Nothville, but Starcevich said that depends on which national team is selected. Currently, Steve is playing for the Arsenal Bonanza-Express soccer team with other local youths Jeff Metz, Scott Gala and Greg Marshall. It is comprised of players from Northville, Plymouth and Livonia. The team has made the finals for the Michigan State Cup soccer championship.

Gronowick did what she had done all through the women's division by downing Livonia's Marsha Lukomski in straight 6-0 sets.

High jumper Burns leaps way to WMU

By JOHN MYERS

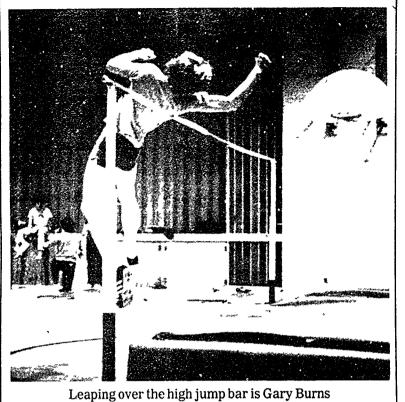

Gary Burns will be jumping to higher levels next fall after distinguishing himself as a top high school track and field

The Northville resident, who attended Birmingham Brother Rice High School, will be a member of the Western Michigan University track team in the fall as possibly the Broncos' top indoor high jump artist.

"I know Westen Michigan has a program," Burns said. "The Western coach said if I came here for the indoor season I might be the team's best

"Tennis anyone?" That phrase will be a thing of the past for the Schoolcraft College tennis team since it was axed from the list of varsity sports offered by the athletic depart-

After the school's board of trustess had a first look at the proposed $15.1 million 1981-82 budget two weeks ago, administrators recommended to the board tennis be dropped as a school

This was one of many cuts made by the board after a special public hearing was conducted last Wednesday. Final approval of all the cutbacks was given at the meeting. Athletic Director Marvin Gans said tennis would not be a sport in order that the school still may send its other teams to regional and national competition.

There were a number of reasons for tennis being dropped, Gans said, instead of another sport.

Tennis has not been successful for us like some of our other sports. That was one of the deciding factors. Also, it didn't involve a great number of people. It wouldn't hurt that many people," he explained.

"We didn't have much choice," Gans added.

With tennis being eliminated Schoolcraft now offers eight varsity sports to its students.

In the fall there are men's and women's cross country, women's volleyball and men's soccer. During the winter there are men's and women's basketball and men's gymnastics. The spring will have only golf.

Koufax squad drops two, wins

It wasn't a successful week for the Northville boys Sandy Koufax blue baseball team as it dropped two games and won only one in travel league

In its only win of the week, the team downed Brighton 9-2 behind the strong pitching of Mickey Newman. He went five innings only allowing two hits, no runs and striking out eight batsmen.

Big hitters in the game for Northville were Mark Deal and John Norton as each had three hits and two runs-batted-in. Newman and Rick Van Buren each contributed two hits, while Fred Cook and Tom Avolio each had a hit and an rbi.

Last week Tuesday, things were not so good for Northville as it dropped a close 2-1 contest to Plymouth A strong Canton team downed the Northville contingent, 9-2, last week Saturday. After three scoreless innings Canton erupted for six runs in the fourth inning and that proved to be enough.

Northville could only manage five hits with Newman picking up two of them.

"I would like to go there (MSU). I might transfer there after next year," he explained.

Also making an impact on his decision was the caliber of competition he would be facing in the Mid-American Conference (Western's league) and the Big Ten

The MAC is a little easier than the Big Ten. That is because of the smaller schools (in the MAC)," Burns said.

The University of Michigan, he said, has the fourth best high jumper in the nation and to compete against those type of people early in his career would

In the MAC, the competition is not quite as stiff, he acknowledged, pointing out that he will be better able to refine his techniques for a possible move to MSU and Big Ten competition.

If his high school accomplishments are of any indication, Burns should have little trouble making his mark on the college scene.

He was named to the high school allstate third team for track. He was placed on the all-Catholic, all-regional and all-league teams as well.

He also set the school record in the high jump with a height of 6-8 and was named the Most Outstanding Athlete at Brother Rice for track.

Among his accomplishments were qualifying for the state high school track meet in Flint and placing seventh in the state for Class A competition.

However, he almost didn't make the state meet if it wasn't for a little "encouragement" from his coach.

"I missed the first two jumps at the opening height of 6-1. I made the third jump after my coach had yelled at me,' Burns explained.

After the slow start Burns qualified for the state meet with a height of 6-51/2. In state competition, he placed seventh with a jump of 6-6. He was two inches short of the winning jump.

"I was surprised that (6-8) won it," Burns said. I thought it would be a little higher. I thought 6-10 would win it," he

A number of little things took place that day, he said, which contributed to the low height.

"Nothing happened to me, but the competition started at 10 in the morning and we were still jumping at 6 p.m. Everybody was getting hungry because you couldn't go anywhere since you had to wait in line for your name to be called for your next jump," he said.

"It was more nerve-wrecking," Burns added.

Burns was not too disappointed with his performance since the state's top high jumper from Benton Harbor tied for seventh with him.

Better training and a possible problem with peaking too soon might have hinder his chances to do better for the
