Large crowds participate in Fourth of July events

After lining curbsides to watch Northville's Independence Day parade march by complete with floats, music, gleaming antique cars and dignitaries, the large crowd moved to the Mill Race Historical Village to eat barbecued chicken, listen to bands and bid at the schoolhouse auction.

LWV schedules millage forum

With the Northville Public School's millage election less than three weeks away, board of education members, school officials and administrators are out in full force stomping for voter support.

To help Northville voters understand better the upcoming school election, the League of Women Voters is sponsoring a Millage Forum Night at 7:30 p.m. July 16 in the Northville High School cafeteria.

The public is invited to attend the event which will include presentations by School Superintendent Lawrence Nichols, board of education members Douglas Whitaker and Karen Wilkinson and Citizens Advisory Committee Co-chairman Phil Phillips.

Following the presentations, the audience will have an opportunity to submit written questions to specific panelists.

As a national non-partisan organization, the League of Women Voters promotes political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government.

The League of Women Voters is sponsoring the Millage Forum Night in hopes of helping the voting citizens of the Northville school district to reach a decision on the millage request being put before the community in the special school election July 28.

Jaycee chairman for the July 4 festivities Douglas Boor reported he and the other Jaycees who worked for months on the events were pleased with the turnout and response. He said about 700 dinners were served, the largest number in recent years.

The rains that had been predicted did not pour down here. Even the detour from Hutton to Wing along Dunlap to avoid Mainstreet construction did not pose any problem.

An added event to this year's program was the Citizen of the Year presentation just prior to parade time in the reviewing stand by city hall.

Elroy Ellison, a past president of Northville Rotary and a retired school administrator, was tapped for the Claude Ely Award, named for the first mayor of the community. Ellison is a past business manager and administrator in the Northville School System.

Mayor Paul Vernon made the surprise presentation and then served as parade marshal.

Judges for the parade were City Clerk Joan McAllister, Donald DiComo and Jack Hoffman.

Plymouth Salem Rockettes captured first place among marching groups that were judged on precision, appearance and overall appeal. Alhambra Drill Team was second, and Northville Karate Team, third.

Northville Beautification Commission won first place with its imaginative float featuring an animated trash can "eating" litter. Northville, Canton, Plymouth YMCA came in second, and Northville Community Recreation, third.

Plymouth's colorful life and drum corps won top band honors, followed in order by First Michigan Colonial Fife and Drum Corps, St. Andrew's Pipe Band and Tri-Club Lions Youth Band.

The judges awarded first place among antique cars to a 1933 Plymouth, with a 1936 Ford coming in second and a 1929 Ford pick-up, third.

Special interest car taking first honors was a 1963 T-bird with a 1975 Brickland second and a 1923 roadster, third.

Parade winners who did not receive their awards the day of the parade may pick them up at city hall between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Council installs Mittman; Gardner's mayor pro-tem

By JEAN DAY

An unusual audience of seven young children in addition to eight adults greeted city council Monday night. The youngsters were on hand to watch the father of Cheryl, 8, Michael, 6, and Kathryn, 3, be sworn in as councilman.

As Jerome Mittman took the oath of office administered by City Clerk Joan McAllister, he said he was proud and pleased to be chosen to fill Stanley Johnston's unexpired term until the next election in November.

Mittman added that the day was a double celebration as it also was Kathryn's third birthday. She and the party guests had left their cake and ice cream to attend the swearing in with their mother, Terry Mittman. They listened seriously and had joined the council as the pledge of allegiance to the flag was recited to start the meeting, as is council custom.

Mittman previously had served for six weeks as a member of the planning commission and was a member of the zoning board of appeals, a post he now has resigned.

During the meeting the council also filled committee posts vacated by Johnston's resignation.

G. Dewey Gardner accepted the post of mayor pro tem, saying he was proud to serve.

During the discussion it appeared that the city had two choices for the post. Mayor Paul Vernon first suggested J. Burton DeRusha for the post, with the motion being seconded by Gardner.

DeRusha, also indicating he appreciated the honor, in turn nominated Gardner. He explained he would accept the honor "reluctantly" as he had concerns about his daytime availability due to his work. He pointed out that

Honor returned

Monday night Elroy Ellison, who was the surprised and obviously honored recipient of the Claude Ely Memorial Citizen of the Year Award in Fourth of July ceremonies, proved the selection committee had chosen a man who cares greatly for his community.

Ellison and his wife attended the city council meeting to return the check for $500 that accompanied the award, adding to it a $100 bill.

They told council that earlier in the day they had selected two trees on the beautification commission downtown plan that they would like to designate as their gift to the city.

"I knew Pete Ely," Ellison commented, "and never in my fondest hopes would I have thought to be presented with this award."

Township and builder still at odds over hall

More than two years after the building was occupied, Northville Township and its major contractor are still wrangling over the construction of Northville Township Hall.

The structure off Six Mile east of Bradner has been housing the government since late 1978 but Hillyer Construction, a Birmingham-based general contractor in the grant-sponsored project, has yet to be paid its final installment and a tangled web of litigation has grown in the interim.

Proprietor James Hillyer may appear before the township board of trustees July 16 to once again state his case for payment of more than $24,000 he alleges is being held without reason. He said he fears that his bonding company might file suit against his company and, he said, that poses a threat to his home and personal belongings.

Although he requested to appear before the township board at the July meeting, Hillyer now says he may not attend.

"On advice of my counsel I don't think I'm going to appear out there," he said Monday. "I don't think it would do any good. We've been in litigation for years now, and I went out there once before, spent $95 on my attorney and all we did was educate (township attorney) Donald Morgan about what happened out there."

The hall was constructed in 1977 and 1978 with funds provided by federal Economic Development Action grants (EDA).

The township withheld the final payment on two grounds, according to township attorney Nels Carlson. The contract included a timely completion clause providing a penalty for not finishing the work within 330 days. Construction did not meet the deadline.

Carlson also said some of the work was not done properly. The township cites a brick paved stairway in front of the hall that is breaking up and failure to complete grading as examples.

The grading problem recently drew a citation from Wayne County environmental authorities for a soil erosion situation in the area surrounding the hall.

Hillyer claims it was not his fault that construction was not completed on time — it was delayed by a work stoppage resulting from use of non-union workers by Long's Plumbing in the late summer of 1978. Long's was contracted independently by the township, so Hillyer argues he is not liable for the delay.

"I told them not to use non-union people, and they went ahead and did it anyway," Hillyer said. "I told them the guys would walk out."

Five Mile sewer activity increasing

By KEVIN WILSON

Sewer service to Park Gardens subdivision is drawing renewed attention both from residents and township hall.

While the township is beginning to purchase and install equipment for the sewers, residents are organizing to press for swift completion, spurred on by reports that emphasize the 40-year-old subdivision's plight.

Septic fields in the development have been failing since the earliest construction. The subdivision in the southeast corner of the township (Marilyn, Maxwell, Fry and Parklane immediately north of Five Mile) is suffering a septic field failure rate estimated at 75 to 90 percent.

The result is raw sewage floating to the surface, slow house drains, a prevailing odor of sewage, contamination of a stream running through the area and a judgment in some quarters that the situation poses a threat to health.

The township has been aware of the problem for many years, and in the mid-1970s applied for federal grants to build a sewer in Five Mile Road.

Since that time, approximately 50 percent of the needed funds have been gathered, according to Walter Holinoty, superintendent of the township's water and sewer department. With that money, the township is taking the first steps to install the sewer.

"We have in our possession the first of two pumping stations needed," he said Monday. "We will be taking bids to have it installed in the near future, and we are preparing to purchase the second pumping station."

Soil samples have been taken in the area to provide information needed to install sewers, he explained, and the township is continuing to press for more financial backing for the project.

"All the politicians who could help know about this," he said, "from the county to Lansing, and in Washington."

He said he is hopeful that funds will be forthcoming now that the township has begun to work on the project.

Meanwhile, a few pages regarding Park Gardens in a preliminary report done for the township in connection with its participation in the Huron Valley Wastewater Treatment Plan (better known as Super Sewer) has raised concerns in the subdivision.

Homeowners have reserved the township hall meeting room this evening (Wednesday, July 8) for an organizational meeting and plan to attend the water and sewer commission meeting at 7:30 p.m. July 15.

The report, published by Finkbeiner, Pettis and Strout, consulting engineers from Toledo, includes data from a stream sample test and cites the increased contamination between the point where the stream enters the subdivision and where it exits as "gross pollution."

Knowing of this report, Mrs. Sandy Basse of 15820 Parklane contacted local health and environmental officials, all of whom, she said, told her they believe it is unsafe to allow children to play in the area.

Linda McWatt of 15815 Parklane wrote a letter to township supervisor John MacDonald referring to the report and conversations with the Wayne County Department of Health (which cooperated in the research) and calling for an "official investigation."

"If the problem is found to be as dangerous as we believe," she wrote in the letter included in agenda packets for the township board of trustees meeting July 16, "and apparently as the consulting firm believes, an emergency state should be declared and a solution demanded immediately."

Basse said last week that her conversations with health department officials lead her to believe it is unsafe for children to play in the area and that the ground contamination may reach Tanger School playground.

"Gone is the time that our children can play in puddles and make mud pies," McWatt wrote. "Our children will be playing in contaminated pools mixed with human waste."

Many Park Gardens residents, most of those involved agree, have either given up hope for sewers or decline to face the problem.

Most township sources agree that a survey included in the preliminary facilities report underestimates the problem because residents are either embarrassed at its extent, do not take it seriously (Holinoty called it "sporadic" because it is most evident during heavy rain), or fear that they will have to foot the bill for sewer installations.

If the entire sewer installation were to be paid for by the residents, earlier

Qualified

Northville Township firefighters recently completed over 240 hours of training qualifying them to serve as full-time firefighters anywhere in the state. Certificates of accomplishment were presented June 13 by the Michigan State Fire Training Council. Chief Robert Toms (above with Supervisor John MacDonald) said he is proud to have virtually his entire paid-volunteer force qualified as full-time firefighters and that the department is one of only a handful in Southeast Michigan so qualified. The men, he said, needed nearly two years to complete the course. At right are (bottom row, left to right) Jaymie Schrot, Ron Lane, Bert Sass, William Gaul, Ricke Rosselle, Roger Borg, (top row, left to right) Marty Goss, Ronald Rosselle, Randy Okopny, and Brent Ashby. Another seven members of the force who qualified were unable to attend the photo session.

New zoning law draft with lawyer

Northville Township's revised zoning ordinance, which planners had hoped to have in place by fall, is lagging behind schedule. Progress stalled after completion of the draft ordinance because township attorney Donald Morgan has not had an opportunity to review the proposal during the past several months. The planning commission had high hopes to see Morgan's response at its June 30 meeting, but was disappointed for the third straight month. The attorney has been buried in work, the commission was told. It did, however, receive a response to one of its more specific requests for legal information. Planners intend to publish an up-to-date zoning map with the ordinance and will seek to rezone several parcels to bring them into compliance with the master plan for land use before the map is published. Some concern was expressed regarding current zoning at Six Mile and Ridge Roads, subject of a consent judgment against the township in 1973. The current status of the parcel was in doubt and the commission also wondered if it has authority to rezone the site in light of the court decree.

The parcel, with nearly 2,500 feet of frontage on the south side of Six Mile and more than 2,500 feet on the west side of Ridge, was to become a mobile home park (in an industrial zoning), but terms of the judgment held that preliminary site plans had to be submitted within 12 months or the area would revert to single-family residential zoning. Township zoning maps are in error because they do not reflect that no site plan was submitted and the zoning reverted, Morgan told the township. The area is actually divided into three parcels. At the corner, it is zoned for business (800 feet on Six Mile and 800 feet on Ridge) while the remaining strip west of the business area is zoned RM — multiple family housing (1680 feet on Six Mile, 800 feet deep). Those two portions did not revert and have those zonings to this day, the attorney told planners. The now-residential zone (since January 1975) is subject to an earlier zoning ordinance than the one now in use, so allows smaller lots, particularly without public utilities than would be permitted under the current law and the one proposed. Morgan concluded that the earlier court decision has no bearing on the township's decision to rezone any portion of the parcel. It will be included among several other rezonings being considered in public hearing when the rest of the zoning ordinance reaches that stage. Once the attorney has reviewed the ordinance, it will be roughly six months before it can become law, since it must clear public hearings and be reviewed by several public bodies.

Mental patient release adjudged malpractice

A former Northville State Hospital doctor has been found guilty of psychiatric malpractice in the 1975 release of a hospital patient whose mother was later shot to death. The hospital was absolved from damages. A Wayne County Circuit Court jury June 18 awarded a $500,000 judgement to the family of Mollie Barnes — a Detroit woman shot to death during what is thought to have been a suicide attempt by her son after he was released from the institution in 1975. Dr. Yang-Oh Lhim, who recently resigned his staff position at Northville State Hospital to take a position at another non-state hospital, is thus the first state Department of Mental Health (DMH) doctor held liable for negligence in the discharge of a patient, according to attorneys on both sides of the case. Similar negligence charges filed against the hospital were heard at the same time before Wayne County Circuit Judge Lucille Watts, but judgement was against the doctor alone. The son, John Patterson, had been admitted to mental hospitals six times between 1972 and 1975, according to the family's attorney and DMH records. Shortly after his release in 1975, his mother was shot and died while apparently attempting to stop Patterson's attempt at suicide in Kentucky. Lhim was defended by an assistant state attorney general, who said he has not yet decided whether to appeal the decision. DMH officials said Lhim's resignation and switch of jobs had been planned long before the court verdict, and the timing of his resignation with the decision was unrelated coincidence.

Office zoning recommended on two Seven Mile lots

By KEVIN WILSON

If, as is said, "two out of three ain't bad" then Joseph Petro ought to be a happy man.

He didn't seem to be at the conclusion of last week's meeting of the Northville Township Planning Commission meeting, however, despite the commission's recommendation to approve Petro's rezoning request for two of the three lots included in his petition.

The commission, following the advice of its planning consultant, voted unanimously to recommend that the township board of trustees change lots 51 and 52 of Grandview Acres subdivision from residential to office zoning.

But it also recommended that lot 53, where Petro built a house he has been unable to sell for more than two years and included in his rezoning petition, remain zoned for residential use.

The house faces Fry and has a side yard on Seven Mile Road, immediately across the street from the main driveway to Northville State Hospital.

Lots 51 and 52 are vacant and face Seven Mile between the house and Nichols Realty at the corner of Maxwell.

He said the only offers received on the house were predicated on the possibility of securing office or business zoning on the site, leading to his decision to seek the rezoning on all three lots.

But planners also were concerned that granting the full request might open the door to strip zoning on Seven Mile, lining the north side of the road with offices and businesses.

Granting office zoning on the house site, they were told by consultant Claude Coates, would allow such a strip. Coates advised rezoning not only lots 51 and 52 but the Nichols Realty site as well, the three to function as a transitional zoning between Northville Charley's (general business) and the residential parcel.

Petro's house faces Fry and would have a rear yard relationship to any offices built on the other two lots, Coates explained, and would provide a logical barrier to continued rezoning eastward on Seven Mile, a concern of several Grandview Acres residents.

The commission decided it would not be necessary to rezone the Nichols Realty site to create a transition zoning with the other two lots, but voted unanimously to recommend that the board of trustees zone lots 51 and 52 OS-1, office services.

Petro said he could not see the logic to the zoning, as the house immediately across Fry from his own also faces east.

He suggested that with the road and the other house to the east, lot 53 could be rezoned office and accomplish the same thing planners were attempting.

"I think you've really set up the conditions for another rezoning petition on lot 53," he said. "The same case could be made for that rezoning as for the one you've approved."

Some commissioners acknowledged that it was a possibility.

The board of trustees will review the rezoning recommendation at its July 16 meeting.

Sewer progress seen

estimates placed the cost at $50-60,000 per home. But the major expense of the connector sewer in Five Mile is the one being pursued by the township.

Homeowners may end up having to pay for lateral lines along the four streets, and hook-up charges, but township officials are seeking funding for those portions, aware that the residents are primarily of low or lower-middle income.

If no funding is found, the area would be designated a Special Assessment District (SAD) and homeowners would be allowed to pay the township water and sewer department over a period of many years.

Unfortunately, Holinoty pointed out, service to the area must be provided by one of the most expensive alternatives. This has caused some of the delay in finding sufficient funding.

"I've been here eight years," Holinoty said, "and in that time there has not been one supervisor who has not tried to tackle this problem."

"There were contacts with Livonia and Plymouth Township, and they were enthusiastic about helping with the situation, but due to technical difficulties it didn't work out."

Livonia's nearest sewer line is too small to carry the extra load of the subdivision, he said, and, although Plymouth Township's line is large enough, a Wayne County sewer downstream creates "a bottleneck."

The only alternative left is to connect to the nearest Wayne County interceptor (regional) sewer, he said.

"And that's strictly uphill, and fluid won't flow uphill on its own," Holinoty explained. "There is one lift station outside the apartments down there, but it's too small, we need a second lift station to run a forced main line to the interceptor."

The small pumping station is the one to be replaced soon by one with sufficient capacity to handle the added flow, he said, and the department is working with engineers to get specifications for the second station so it can be ordered.

Holinoty said the township hopes bids for installation of the pumping stations will be low due to economic conditions that have reduced the amount of sewer work available in new housing areas.

Plans for the sewer installation are prepared, he noted, and his department intends to follow those plans "until the money runs out" while seeking added funding.

Park Gardens homeowners may be pushing for allocation of funds from some other part of the township budget, especially in light of the report that "conditions that do not promote the public health and welfare" are extant.

Organizational efforts may be somewhat hampered by timing — Basse noted the problem is most prevalent in fall and spring, while the current dry season means most yards are dry.

That is little compensation, she said, when one hears that conditions pose a risk of hepatitis, typhus and dysentery to one's three small children.

Another concern among homeowners is that the township continues to allow building in the area and allegedly fails to communicate the hazards to residents.

Basse said her family received a permit for large addition to their home two years ago, when they were unaware of the extent of the problem.

Holinoty said the township has little legal reason to deny requests for building permits, particularly since many of the lots pass septic percolation tests at certain times.

But Basse and other homeowners contend that better communication from township officials could forestall new building.

"At least if they'd explained it to me," Basse said, "I would have understood that I shouldn't have built there."

$15.6 million

Schoolcraft budget set

Schoolcraft College trustees Wednesday gave unanimous formal approval to a $15.6 million, "status quo" 1981-82 budget.

Included in the budget are elimination for three teaching positions and two non-teaching posts.

The final budget restores regional and national travel for athletic teams involved in tournaments, but still includes the elimination of tennis as a college sport.

Kenneth Lindner, vice president for business affairs, said the budget as approved is better than it was projected a month ago.

"When we started out, it was a very pessimistic kind of thing," Lindner told the board. "That condition has improved since that time. It has been by no means eliminated."

The biggest good-side change for the college was voters' rejection of the May 21 Proposal A tax reform measure, Lindner said. College officials feared passage, which would have made the school more dependent on the state for money resulting in revenue reductions.

The budget projects revenue for the coming school year at $15.2 million, up from last year's $13.9 million. The money goes mainly — about 80 percent — to salaries of faculty and staff, and Lindner said the figure may rise following new labor contracts.

The revenue comes from three main sources: about $6.1 million in local property taxes; about $3.7 million in student tuition and fees and about $5 million in state aid.

In percentage terms, taxes will provide 40 percent of the budget, tuition and fees about 24 percent and state aid about 32 percent.

Lindner emphasized the budget had passed through several internal reviews before coming to the trustees for approval.

"It might not be a perfect budget in some eyes, but I will guarantee it represents a true compromise of many people's feelings," Lindner said.

"Primarily, this is a status quo budget."

In detail, the budget provides nearly $20,000 in the recruiting and screening effort to seek a replacement for outgoing President C. Nelson Grote; $150,000 reserve fund in anticipation of orders by Governor William Milliken slicing state aid; $38,000 for parking lot improvements and $24,000 for new computer programs.

A flaw in the budget, Lindner said, is possibly inadequate provisions for increased utility bills. The college buys natural gas from Consumers Power Company, which recently announced price increases resulting from its deal to buy imported, Algerian natural gas.

"About Salvation"

Dr. James Luther

Recently a lady was overheard to say: "Don't use that word 'saved' when you talk to me." It is strange that such a good word has fallen into disrepute. Yet, when used spiritually it is really a proper term. Let me illustrate.

When Louis Agassiz, the Swiss Naturalist, was a boy, his mother sent him across a frozen lake to deliver a message to his father. His little brother went along. After they started, the mother noticed from the hillside a large crack in the ice. Knowing that Louis could jump it but his younger brother could never make it, she could only watch helplessly and pray. As the boys neared the fissure, she noticed Louis weighing in his mind his brother's ability to leap across. Having decided his brother could never make it, he spoke earnestly to him and then threw himself over the crack, and his small brother stepped across on his body. Louis then pulled himself across.

What a wonderful example of what Christ does for men. We poor human creatures are unable to leap the deep chasm of sin. But on the cross, Jesus Christ bore our sins, paid our penalty, and thus, bridged the chasm to make a way to heaven. Jesus said: "I am the way, the truth, and the life; no man cometh unto the Father but by me" (John 14:6). Christ is "the Door" to heaven; there is no other way. This is what it means to be saved!

An old man testified that it took 40 years for him to learn three things: he could do nothing to save himself, God didn't expect him to, and Christ had already done it all.

Let's face it! The Saviour came to save. Has He saved you?

Zwiller named chief park ranger

A Northville resident who is a 25-year veteran of the City of Detroit Police Department has been named chief park ranger at Lower Huron Metropark near Belleville — which also serves Willow, Oakwoods and Lake Erie Metroparks.

John R. Zwiller succeeds Steve A. Shaffer, who had been chief park ranger at Lower Huron Metropark from January, 1963, to 1981.

Zwiller started as a patrolman in July, 1956, and held the rank of inspector when he retired May 8, 1981, from the Detroit Police Department. He served with the United States Navy in Little Creek, Virginia, from July, 1951, to August, 1955.

Zwiller was graduated from Mercy College in Detroit with a bachelor of arts degree in social science and law enforcement and later took graduate courses in criminal justice at University of Detroit. He also took special courses at the National Academy of Investigation and other colleges and universities.

A native Detroit, he was graduated from MacKenzie High School. He and his family, former residents of northwest Detroit, have moved to Northville.

C. Nelson Grote bids farewell to Schoolcraft

BY TIM RICHARD

He looks dignified and presidential in his paneled office at Schoolcraft College. At 53, he is a little greyer but not much jowlier than when he arrived 10 years and two months ago. The three-piece suit is reserved without being imposing.

But C. Nelson Grote talks like a kid about the job he starts August 1 in the state of Washington.

"It would be easy to stay here the rest of my career. I have the support of the board. But after 54 or 55, your mobility is almost lost," the community college president said.

"So I made a two-part decision: It was not good for Schoolcraft to have a president for 22 years (which is how long he would serve if he stayed until retirement); and it was not good for Nelson Grote.

"I intend to burn out, not rust out. "I didn't feel as fulfilled in the job. There was a sense of deja vu. I was finding satisfaction in doing other things.

"So in June of 1980, during my review, I told the board I would look for another job. But I would be very selective because there are not many jobs better than what I have."

Grote is making an economic sacrifice to take the presidency of Washington Community College District No. 17, based in Spokane.

The $60,000 salary may be little if any better than he would have made here next year, and the fringes aren't quite as good. Housing costs are 25 percent higher in Spokane than Livonia, and the interest rate on his new mortgage will be four percent higher.

"But I'm excited about the new job. It's worth it. The things I do reasonably well are the things they want," he said.

The day in March when two trustees from Washington came to the Schoolcraft campus to check him out was the day Grote had to be in Lansing to pry money out of the Joint Capital Outlay committee of the Michigan Legislature for Schoolcraft's Culinary Arts addition.

He got the money. The visiting trustees were highly impressed.

"They wanted someone who can work effectively with the legislature — they haven't been successful," he said.

"They were looking for a person with strengths in organization management, a good fiscal manager, because their resources are less plentiful. Washington has some of the same problems we do with more money going in to social services and corrections.

"Little has been done in the way of articulation" — that's an educator's word for integrating the skills taught at the high school, community college and four-year college levels. Grote has a major record of making articulation agreements with high schools and four-year colleges.

"They wanted someone who would be active in the community because they liked what (retiring president) Max Snyder had done."

Already Grote has a committee job in the Spokane Chamber of Commerce, a seat on the Economic Development Commission and a role in the United Way campaign.

"They have a foundation that has struggled and not been terribly successful," Grote said. "While I haven't been extremely successful, we at Schoolcraft are one of the few community colleges around with a foundation."

His new district has 27,000 students, second in size only to the Rose Bowl-Losing University of Washington. It has two campuses, and Grote will operate from a separate headquarters between the two, much like the physically separate administration building of Oakland Community College.

Spokane is about the size of Flint or Grand Rapids, but its population, financial institutions, hospitals and businesses dominate an "Inland Empire" which consists of Washington east of the Cascade Mountains, the northern finger of Idaho, and Montana west of the Continental Divide.

"It's a media center," said Grote, whose appointment was covered by four television stations, a public TV station, two newspapers and a couple of radio stations.

Schoolcraft got little attention from the Detroit metropolitan media. In fact, at election time it even got little attention from its own 8,000-10,000 students.

One of the great frustrations of Grote's career here was the college's inability to get voter approval for new operating and capital money. No property tax increase request got more than 42 percent support.

"The highest number of 'no' votes we ever had was 7,200. We had 10,000 enrolled in credit courses that year. Had our own student body vote yes, we could have passed every one. Another 30,000 persons attend banquets, athletic events, concerts or cultural events here. That's a total of 40,000 a year," Grote said.

Yet he is sure he is leaving Schoolcraft in sound shape.

The one-time farm boy from the wrong side of the railroad tracks in southern Illinois had moved up the ranks from high school industrial arts teacher in big and small schools to a state post in Kentucky and then to dean of the school of applied sciences and technology at Morehead State University, surrounded by the hills of Kentucky, when Schoolcraft hired him in 1971.

His specialties were vocational-technical education, which the Schoolcraft board had wanted to emphasize, and continuing education for adults.

In Schoolcraft's second decade, "the Grote years," the college doubled the proportion of students in voc-tech programs and made immense efforts in community and continuing education offerings.

He summed it up: "I sense a lot more pride now that Schoolcraft College is part of the community. We are doing what the community wants us to do. We have been responsive."

"There may be areas — target populations, specific interest groups — where more is needed. But if you look at the age profile, the sex profile, the socio-economic mix of northwestern Wayne County, we're almost identical to it."

"This isn't an ivory tower. It's not a University of Michigan. But it's no longer 'Haggerty High.' It's a mature, solid, quality institution of post-secondary education."

In Washington state, Grote will be on ground he has at least heard about.

His mother was raised in his new, 12,000 square mile college district and taught there before she married. Her four children all became teachers, earning three masters and two doctoral degrees in total.

The Grotes' daughter Carol and her husband Sonny Jones recently moved from Spokane to Seattle. Carol was the one who first told her dad about Max Snyder's pending retirement.

Daughter Jan Potts is moving from Texas to Seattle to work for a graphics firm.

Wife Wilma and son Mark, who will be a high school senior, are satisfied they have good cello and piano teachers lined up for him.

Jack LaRue, a Schoolcraft trustee when Grote was hired, is retired in Seattle and having a terrific time.

Ron Upton, the former Livonia superintendent with the endless supply of "blue" jokes, lives on an island near Seattle and does consulting work when he feels like it.

And in a shrinking world, it turns out that the Grotes' next-door neighbor in Spokane will be a woman from Livonia.

Ambulance fee complaints to go to attorney general

Complaints regarding fees charged by the Novi Ambulance Company should be forwarded to the consumer protection division of the Michigan Attorney General's office, Novi City Council members decided Monday.

Residents who have filed complaints with the city also will be individually encouraged to contact the Attorney General's office, the council said.

Council members decided to handle the complaints in that fashion after learning the city has no local control over ambulance rates.

Novi has been looking into charges that John Early, owner of Novi Ambulance, has been charging the higher advanced life support rates when simple transportation would have been adequate, as well complaints that he generally overcharges customers.

The city has recieved a total of 13 complaints regarding Early's charges: six were forwarded to the city manager and seven were handled by the police chief.

City Manager Edward Kriewall said he still is gathering information regarding the situation and, if he finds justification for such action, the complaints will be forwarded to the state.

Kriewall said that it appears as if those bills which are believed "excessive" by ambulance customers have averaged around $220-$230.

Meanwhile, as complaints are being taken by the city, further information regarding ambulance rates charged in surrounding communities will be gathered.

Kriewall said he and Farmington officials will conduct a survey of area ambulance companies. Early also will be asked to provide the city with his rate schedule.

"We'll be conducting an analysis of what is being charged," Kriewall said. "We really can't tell the magnitude of the problem until we compare."

Kriewall already has obtained information from Am-Care Ambulance. A company official met with Kriewall Monday to express an interest in offering service to the community.

Kriewall said Greg Beauchemin, Am-Care secretary-treasurer, had offered his company's services to the community.

"He met with us to tell us he could offer ambulance service at a lower cost," Kriewall said.

Last week Kriewall met with Early, his attorney, and officials from both Providence Hospital and Farmington in an "information gathering session."

In that meeting Early explained charges related to specific complaints which have been aired publicly. He presented records of the incidents and said the hospital had advised his paramedics to proceed with advanced life support service, Kriewall related.

Early said that in his meeting with city officials he "proved we had not ripped anyone off."

"We have provided live support when it is requested by the police and when the doctors order us to go to the hospital using advanced life procedures," Early said. "These were not excessive charges — life support was needed. We laid it all out for the city, the council members and the officials from Farmington."

However, it is actually is up to the ambulance company to decide when an ambulance licensed for advanced life support runs is sent to the scene, according to emergency medicine regulatory officials.

On advance life support calls trained paramedics attempt to stabilize the victim at the scene, treating the victim much as he would be handled in a hospital emergency room. Basic life service consists primarily of first aid and transportation to a hospital.

Under standard procedures an ambulance company receives a request from a police department to send a vehicle to the scene of an emergency, health officials explain. The police dispatcher will give the ambulance company all the available information. The company's dispatcher decides whether an advanced or a basic ambulance will be sent to the scene.

At the scene the highest rated medical technician is to decide whether to contact the hospital regarding the use of advanced life support procedures.

As a related issue, when an ALS rig is sent to the scene, but ALS procedures are not used, it is up to the ambulance company to decide whether or not to charge extra for transportation in an ALS vehicle.

Dr. Paul Pomeroy, Oakland County project medical director, said the question is an ethical one.

"Just to have an advance life vehicle there in case it's needed is not necessarily a valid issue for charging. In an emergency room all types of equipment is available in case it's needed, but the patient is charged only for what is utilized. If people are charged whether the advanced life equipment is used or not, it becomes a matter of public concern," Pomeroy said.

POLICE REPORT The April, 1981 Monthly Report was presented.

Councilwoman Ayers commented on an article she had read re a problem with the security alarms ringing directly into the Township Police Department.

Chief Cannon explained the City has had a system for years. He also explained the board and procedure used.

Mr. Al Qualman, 343 High asked if the burglary and fire systems the cable TV company indicated they had would be offered to the City.

Mayor Vernon noted it is a service listed in the franchise but he did not know if it would be offered in the initial program.

Mayor Vernon thanked Chief Cannon.

COMMUNICATIONS FROM CITIZENS There were none.

AGENDA REVISIONS Mrs. Laura Hixson, 30 Dunlap, asked to have agenda item No. 11, Kerr House Relocation, moved up.

There were no objections.

KERR HOUSE RELOCATION Mayor Vernon noted the communication from the City Manager re the problems relocating the Kerr House. He mentioned the ZBA did deny the extension of the side-yard variance to relocate the house facing High Street on the City owned lot. The house could be located on the lot facing Randolph Street without a variance.

Mayor Vernon suggested that in light of the opposition from the residents, the City should find other alternatives.

Councilman DeRusha thought moving the house to the lot at High and Randolph seemed like a good idea a few years ago and could not understand the opposition. He asked to know more about the opposition's reasoning.

Mr. Bill Stockhausen, 218 W. Dunlap, speaking for a lot of home owners appreciated the fact that the City would like to relocate the house and save the City some money. The people in the neighborhood would not like to see any house on that site. They did not think that house would fit into that area due to the historical nature of the area and the topography of the site.

Councilman DeRusha stated that the area was not a homogeneous neighborhood and he noted some strong sentiments.

Mrs. Laura Hixson did not object to the house going on the lot except it would be different since it was built in the 50's and the other homes are older. She mentioned the DDA and the downtown taking on a Victorian look. She suggested the Historical Commission might not allow that type house to be placed in that neighborhood.

Mayor Vernon explained the Historical Commission's function and that they could not dictate the type of home to be built.

The City Attorney mentioned the City could sell the lot and anybody could build a house on that lot.

Mayor Vernon commented on the change of attitudes since the first variance approval. He mentioned also that if the City did decide to sell the lot, they would have to go out for bids, and the lot would go to the highest bidder. Someone buying it would buy with the intention of building.

Alfred Qualman, 343 High, discussed a letter he submitted to the ZBA in which he mentioned the topography of the lot would be difficult to do something with. He felt they would have water problems. He also noted the amount of traffic and felt whoever lived there would have parking problems.

Mr. Qualman mentioned people were renovating their homes and restoring the older homes and felt this home was of no historical value and would ruin the continuity of the neighborhood.

Mayor Vernon mentioned that particular house was already located in the Historic District.

Discussion of various lots which might be available followed.

Mr. Morrison, 320 High Street, in answer to the City Attorney, would like to buy the lot which bordered his property and have a deed restriction that no house would be built on it.

Mayor Vernon mentioned the City Council does not have the ability to sell the lot, they have to go out for bids on it.

Councilwoman Ayers thought they should look for possible alternatives and felt it was unfair to the City to take a dramatic loss to sell it as an adjacent part of their property.

Mrs. Morrison mentioned they were willing to pay the City a fair price.

Councilwoman Ayers wondered if all the taxpayers should subsidize the loss for a private ownership of a lot.

Mayor Vernon mentioned the Council has the authority to make the decision. He stated Council does not have the ability to overrule the ZBA, their denial of the variance stands. He listed the four choices Council has as follows:

- 1) relocate the house on the lot facing Randolph, since there is room and it would not require a variance;
- 2) sell the house to a mover to move to another site in or out of the City;
- 3) demolish the Kerr House (the City would lose the value of the house);
- 4) relocate the house to another lot.

He mentioned the deadline which had to be met to remove the Kerr House from its present lot.

More discussion followed re the considerable amount of previous publicity given to this, the cost of the house and other possible lot sites.

Mr. John Carter, 349 High, asked what the City intended to do with the property adjacent to the Allen Terrace.

He was told that was privately owned.

Mayor Vernon stated the Council was not there as adversaries, that they share the people's concern and are sympathetic to their problem. He mentioned Council also had a problem of a deadline in which to move the house. He mentioned they may have to move that house to the lot, however, they would prefer to find another location for it. He noted that for the Open Meetings Act, the City Council is permitted to hold closed sessions on the acquisition of property. They intended to do so at the end of this meeting. He commented Council would do all they could do to try to find another location for that house.

City Council supported him on that.

JUDICIAL SALARIES AND JUDICIAL SALARY STANDARDIZATION PAYMENTS: The City Attorney would ascertain what this would actually mean to the City of Northville and would present it at the next meeting.

NORTHVILLE JAYCEES 4th OF JULY PARADE: Communication from the Northville Jaycees requesting approval for the 4th of July parade route as follows:

10 a.m. leave Northville Downs northwest entrance, E. on Cady, N. on Griswold, W. on Main, N. on Hutton, W. on Dunlap, S. on Wing to Main, W. on Main, S. on Rodgers, E. on Cady, S. on Wing, E. on Fairbrook to the west entrance of the Downs.

They also planned to charge for parking at the high school to view the fireworks and would sell pop along the parade route.

The City Manager mentioned they would have to have the School's permission to charge for parking.

James Killing representing the Jaycees discussed possible changes in the parade route.

After discussion, it was decided to leave the route as noted above.

Mr. Killing also asked for permission to use the City's signs to advertise the 4th activities.

The City Manager asked for a clarification of what they intended to do.

Mr. Killing stated they would be selling pop in paper cups.

The City Manager suggested there might be a litter problem.

It was mentioned that the Jaycees would be responsible for the cleanup.

Motion by Councilwoman Ayers supported by Councilman Johnston to approve the 4th of July parade route as specified in the communication of May 31; grant permission to sell pop along the parade route with the understanding the Jaycees will clean up the litter. This motion does not include permission to charge for parking on publicly owned property and all activities are subject to the supervision of the City Manager and Police Dept. Motion Carried Unanimously.

Motion by Councilman DeRusha supported by Councilman Gardner to authorize the Jaycees to use the City Signs to advertise the 4th of July activities from June 26 through July 5, 1981 subject to the supervision of the DPW Superintendent.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

FIRE INSPECTION SERVICE AGREEMENT: Plymouth has approved the Fire Inspection Service Agreement at their first meeting in June, 1981.

Motion by Councilman Gardner supported by Councilwoman Ayers to authorize the Mayor and City Clerk to sign the Fire Inspection Service Agreement with the City of Plymouth.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

PARKING SPACE CREDIT POLICY: The parking space credit is presently $2,400 and is up for review for July 1, 1981.

It was recommended that the rate be lowered to $1,800 per parking space through December 31, 1981, for assessment agreements signed prior to that date, with the rate to expire on that date.

A concern is the present interest rate situation which might discourage some commercial developments to proceed within the Downtown Development District.

Motion by Councilman Gardner supported by Councilman DeRusha to lower the parking space credit to $1,800 from $2,400 to be reviewed on or before December 31, 1981.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

MICHIGAN MUNICIPAL LIABILITY POOL - VEEGER & CO: Information on the Michigan Municipal Liability Pool was on the table.

County charter deserves support

Although it has shortcomings, resulting from compromises and existing state law, the proposed Wayne County charter garners our support for passage.

Provided the governor gives the 35-page document his stamp of approval, the new home rule charter is likely to be placed on the November ballot and, if approved by voters, take effect January 1, 1983.

We share the conclusion of the charter commission president, George Ward, when he calls the completed document "an efficient new framework of government for Wayne County that, while not perfect, represents a vast improvement over the existing structure that Wayne County has endured for years."

Especially pleasing to us is that the commission resisted heavy pressures and last-minute maneuvers to change the proposed pared size of the county board of commission. Thus, still intact, is the charter provision reducing the number of county commissioners from 27 to 15. That one provision alone should substantially streamline county government. It, together with other charter safeguards, effectively reduces the commission to a part-time body stripped of its present administrative functions.

Administration of the county falls, instead, to a chief executive officer who, depending on the decision of the voters, will be either elected or appointed. The reduction in size of the board of commissioners softens some of our objections to an appointed CEO. The smaller commission, we believe, makes an appointment — should that be the decision of voters — less likely to come under the influence of a commission bloc. Removal of commission-appointed CEO would require a two-thirds vote of the commission.

Election of the CEO would be at large on a partisan basis.

The CEO serves a four-year-term, whether he or she is appointed or elected. The CEO must be an elector of Wayne County at the time of election or appointment.

In the case of appointment, the charter wisely provides that a county commissioner or a former commissioner whose service on the county commission did not end more than two years previously may not be appointed the CEO.

This and other sections of the charter protect the public against the kind of shennigans engaged in shamelessly by past commissioners — namely creating nest-eggs for themselves at the expense of taxpayers. Thus, we applaud, for example, the charter's restrictions on appointments and employment:

"An elected county officer may not be hired or appointed to a compensated county position until at least one year has passed after completion of the term of office..."

"A member of an appointed board or commission may not be appointed or hired to a compensated position created by the board of commissioners until at least one year has passed after the completion of term of office."

The fact that the charter does not affect elected officials prior to the effective date of the charter suggests taxpayers should maintain vigilant surveillance of present officials. Some of them, we fear, will be maneuvering for county jobs as their balliwicks come tumbling down.

While the charter does not curtail the number of bureaucratic enclaves within county government to the extent that we would have preferred, it does give the CEO extraordinary control over all agencies except those headed by other elected county officials. Under the charter, for example, the CEO coordinates activities of the drain commissioner, road commission, and public works which affect county roads.

Concerning roads, the controversial road commission remains intact but the commission, under the new charter, will find it less easy to play an independent role. Also, the charter provides that the three member commission, whose members serve four-year terms, must include one member from the most populous city in the county, one from another city within the county, and a third from a township within the county.

The charter also:

Replaces the old auditing system with both an annual internal audit and an independent external audit of county financial affairs; provides for a tighter system of administrative and legislative checks and balances; and it eliminates the present three-member board of county auditors.

The charter outlines strict budgeting procedures in all departments with a comprehensive county budget prepared by the CEO. In short, it prohibits all departments from spending beyond their authorized budgets.

Still to be elected, to partisan four-year-terms, are the sheriff, prosecuting attorney, county clerk, treasurer, register of deeds, and drain commissioner.

The first persons elected to these positions, under the charter, are to serve two years beginning January 1, 1985 and ending December 31, 1986. Thereafter, their successors are to be elected for four-year-terms.

Terms of county commissioners remain at two years, being elected in even numbered years on partisan basis.

The commission must hold at least two regular meetings per month. No fewer than eight meetings must be held annually in communities of the county; at least four of these meetings are to be held outside the county seat and at least four shall be held at the county seat but at locations other than the regular meeting place.

A majority or eight of the 15 commissioners would constitute a quorum.

The commission approves or rejects appointments by the CEO of the deputy CEO, department heads, their deputy directors, and members of boards and commissions.

The commission may override a veto of the CEO but only by a two-thirds majority of commissioners serving.

Importantly, within 90 days after taking office, the CEO must submit a proposed executive branch reorganization plan to the commission. The plan may provide for the creation or elimination of any department, agency, division or officer not expressly exempted by the charter. The plan may assign all the powers, duties and functions of the county among the agencies or departments not prohibited by charter.

County commissioners, on the other hand, may approve or reject the proposed plan or proposed amendment.

Off the record

By Kevin Wilson

Take out pencil and paper, this is a journalism test. You have 30 seconds:

Q: The following sentence contains three errors journalists find abhorrent; determine what they are and explain what is wrong.

Action was taken in a closed meeting held on July 15.

Ready? First we'll discuss the two easiest errors to spot, as explained in Journalism 101: Better Writing for the Cub Reporter.

As a reporter, there are certain things up with which I will not put. Ending a sentence in a preposition is not one of those things, but the word "on" preceding a date is. What does "The meeting was on July 15" mean? Is July 15 a table, a meeting placed upon it? One point for eliminating the word "on."

"Held" is another pet peeve. Do you hold meetings? They are usually much larger than my hand, so I don't bother, but then I've never covered a convention of fleas either. Score another point if you caught "held."

Now we're down to "Action was taken at a closed meeting July 15."

Five points to the first person who knows that all of the sentence is wrong except the date. "Action was taken at a closed meeting" ought to sound alarms for journalists and citizens alike.

I get very picky about Michigan's Open Meetings Act of 1976. It is a tool of my profession, a protection of my rights as a citizen, and I think of it as a friend.

As I write this, no fewer than three closed sessions have been conducted by the city council and township board in a matter of five days. Not to mention on-going labor negotiations, also conducted behind closed doors.

Each of these sessions appears to meet the letter of the law, but then the law's limits are not yet clearly defined.

Which upsets me more than legitimately closed meetings do. Michigan has a long history of "sunshine" legislation — that is, law meant to insure that the public's business is conducted in public view.

Unfortunately, the state also has a history of public apathy regarding that legislation.

The Open Meetings Act, with its symbiotic twin, the Freedom of Information Act, has had nowhere near the predicted influence on the conduct of government because enforcement is so sporadic there aren't enough court precedents to solve differences of interpretation.

Our test question points to a violation regardless of what the board was meeting to do. The Open Meetings Act contains clauses providing for closed sessions for several purposes. As I read it, every single one of those clauses is made subordinate to the one that states "all actions of a public body must be conducted in open session."

So the township board and city council can close the doors on citizens and reporters alike for discussions about buying land, disciplining employees (at the employee's request), and labor negotiations, but once the talk is done, they have to vote in public.

While there may be reason for an occasional government secret, these laws hold that public bodies must prove secrecy is necessary while citizens don't have to prove a need for information — it's a given.

So the law provides that any citizen may go to court to have an action negated if the conduct of a public body violates these laws, and it also imposes criminal penalties for those who knowingly violate the law.

This is why reporters should be real sticklers about its provisions. If more reporters, prosecutors and citizens paid attention to these laws, there would be case books a mile thick defining, exactly, through the eyes of courts, what is and is not legal. And we'd all be better off for it.

Now, if we could get "held on" banned . . .

Thanks, Stan

Stan Johnston's years of service to the community in which he has made his home for 30 years were recognized at his final meeting as council member and mayor pro tem the end of June. On behalf of the council and city Mayor Paul Vernon presented him with a plaque noting his "generous work and lifetime dedication to his community."

We, too, recognize his commitments — first to education as he served two terms on the Northville school board — and then to his city. He was in the midst of his second term on council when a change of occupation and the resulting business pressures forced him to resign.

Since November, 1977, Johnston has held the post of mayor pro tem. He also has served as council liaison in bargaining with city employee unions, as council representative on the 35th District Court committee, as council member on the recreation commission and as a member of the Downtown Development Association. He has asked to continue with the DDA association.

As Mayor Vernon pointed out, there is much more to being a councilman than occupying a council seat at meetings, which recently have been more than twice monthly. Being the kind of councilman Stan has been since 1975 has meant being available when the interest of the city needed him — and he has been. Now, when he cannot fulfill such demands he has stepped down.

Thanks, Stan, for the hundreds of hours you have given for community betterment.

JACK W. HOFFMAN'S COLUMN

"I don't think I've ever seen you in a grocery store before," our married daughter said as we looked over the watermelons.

She may have been right. When I shop, it's alone. Long ago, before she grew out of diapers, experience taught me that tandem shopping produces a hundred mad dentists all drilling on me at once. And even a laboratory rat can take just so much pain before it learns its lesson.

Frankly, there were two compelling reasons for my presence this time. It was 33 degrees cooler inside the store than in the car, and I wanted to be sure the melon was sweet.

And, surprisingly, as I carefully placed the melon in our cart there was no hint of pain.

"That looks like a good, tasty one," she said before we tooled away to look for her mother.

Mother superior was in cereals.

"What's that?" she asked, frowning as she saw our melon.

Something foreboding, like the first rasp of a sore throat, signalled danger.

"I think they call it a watermelon, dear," I said. "You know, green on the outside and red inside."

"Too big," she said.

This time, it was more familiar. A little like stepping on a tack or slipping while crawling over a strand of barbed wire... sharp, piercing. Pain.

"Too big? Why, my dear, I could consume a good half of it in one sitting. It's sweet. Just look at that red."

"Darn," she said ignoring the invitation and snatching the controls of the cart, "the good bread's gone." And then she was off, speeding an irregular path while plucking the shelves and negating anything I touched.

Suddenly, we were back at produce and a thousand drummers began beating messages on my head.

Back went my sweet melon — the one a daughter earlier agreed was a prize — and then the two of them squeezed, smelled, eyed and hefted everything in sight before finally settling on the scrawniest of the lot. An obvious lemon...pocketsize and sour.

"But..."

"But nothing. Mom's right. That melon of yours was too big and overripe," said the daughter as the herd of buffalo thundered across my chest and splattered my face with crimson gore.

As I fled the store and the excruciating pain, a voice mocked, "You dummy, she's a clone of her mother; why do you think her husband's not here?"

Readers Speak

School millage: necessary renewal or shifty increase?

To the Editor:

To set W. J. Kaley straight. There is a difference between a millage "renewal" and a millage "increase." Kaley should not attempt to confuse the readers. The Northville School Board asks for a renewal which at this point is 2.5 mills less than the district had a year ago!

Moreover, if Kaley believes scarce tactics are at work to threaten voters, perhaps he should know cuts have occurred. Has the writer observed the absence of Northville Drivers Education cars on the streets? Approximately 50 sets of parents in the district are paying out of their pockets from $105 to $135 for private driving lessons, which students of prior years received free. (This is) almost two mills.)

If Kaley read The Record, he would know 20 teachers were permanently laid off due to the declining enrollment. In addition, the 100 pinked slipped teachers will not be called back in September unless the seven mill renewal is approved.

Those who concur with Kaley should vote "no" on July 27 as suggested. I believe a "yes" vote on July 28 makes better sense.

"Yes Voter"

To the Editor:

The Northville Record's logic in printing totally inaccurate letters on such a crucial subject as the school millage renewal, is astounding.

In the July 1st letters to the editor, the school board of Northville was accused of seeking an increased millage. The fact is very clear, that in actuality, they are requesting a decreased renewal, which will reduce the tax dollars available from previous millage levels.

The school board also was accused of giving itself pay increases, when in actuality, the elected board donates its time and efforts. This fact is common knowledge and most certainly should be known to the editor of The Northville Record.

The failure of the millage would mean at least a $1.1 million cut in the money available to run the school system and that is without considering the loss due to the inflation rates.

Also, it is fact that teacher staffs have been reduced annually for at least the past three years commensurate with reduced student population.

It is prudent that The Northville Record not distort the facts by printing ambiguous letters without an editor's comment which clarifies the inaccuracies.

Most certainly the school millage should be a subject which is clearly understood for the sake of those involved citizens, homeowners, students and parents.

Let's keep it factual!!

Nisun story slanted?

To the Editor:

As a resident and taxpayer of Northville Township, I wish to comment on the "resignation" of (Police) Chief Ronald Nisun.

I feel we not only received a one-sided report of that situation, but in addition, have received our first alert toward another push for annexation of the township to the City of Northville.

I believe that Ronald Nisun should remain our township chief of police. He has done a commendable job in the past that should not be overlooked in favor of the current action by the board.

Sincerely,
John J. Schauer

Jaycees thank backers

To the Editor:

One hundred bottles of beer on the wall... one hundred bottles of beer...

Retailers across the state have been diligently sorting and stacking bottles and cans since the Deposit Law initiated by voters in 1976 became effective two years ago.

Clearly, the Deposit Law has been embraced wholeheartedly by Michigan citizens, who have achieved its anti-littering purpose by their active participation in the deposit and return system.

A sanitation problem has occurred, however, as the language of the law requires retailers to accept "a returnable container of any kind, size and brand sold by that dealer" unconditionally.

Bottles and cans have been frequently returned containing items such as cigarette butts, broken glass, gasoline, cockroaches, ants and other insects attracted by the residue in the containers, and even small rodents.

Although I'm highly supportive of the Deposit Law, I don't like the idea of my local grocer having to accept and store unreturned containers holding putrid foreign matter.

The Michigan Department of Agriculture, responsible for monitoring sanitation compliance by food retailers and manufacturers, reported "serious, widespread cockroach, and rodent problems in stores, directly related to the return of beverage containers that contained foreign matter" in the summer of 1980.

Retailers already have managed to deal with some tremendous labor and space problems involved in accepting and storing large quantities of used containers in their stores, and always at their own considerable expense.

However, I don't feel the voters in 1976 intended that food retailers be burdened with an increasingly difficult and costly sanitation problem caused by the law's demand they accept all returnable bottles and cans, regardless of what's been put, grown or crept into them.

According to the department, the only "fail safe" method for dealing with the problem is to permit dealers to reject unsanitary containers holding noxious substances before they can cause infestation in the stores.

I agree. A dead (or live) rat in my grocer's bottle storage area does not appeal to me when I think about buying some lettuce. It really isn't fair to expect our food retailers to continue to bite the bullet because some citizens behave unthoughtfully.

According to the Department of Agriculture, increased pest control costs to Michigan stores amounted to $2.7 million more since implementation of the Deposit Law. Increased costs due to food product destruction amounted to an additional estimated $5 million. Such waste is a disservice to the public, as well as the retailers.

The intent and achievement of the Deposit Law will not be lessened by the common sense approach the senate recently took to deal fairly with this problem.

Senate Bill 62, passed by three-fourths of the members of the chamber, would amend the law so that "a dealer may refuse to, but is not required to, accept from a person, a returnable container that contains a dead or living insect or rodent or any filthy, decomposed or putrid substance that may be poisonous or deleterious to health."

The bill further amends the law to protect against double redemption which might occur among retailers in trying to dispose of the unwanted non-refillable containers which do not get originally or finally refunded by bottlers or brewers.

Distributors acting as customers could collect a refund from retailers not serviced by the distributor on non-refillables that have already been refunded but not disposed of. The amendment would prevent a distributor from unloading unwanted containers of unsuspecting retailers who had not been involved in the original sale and deposit transaction.

The Deposit Law was a good idea and it is a good law. These amendments will simply make it better. Senate Bill 62 has passed the senate and has been referred to the House of Representatives Committee on Consumers.

Getting Down to Brass Tacks

By CHRIS JOHNSON
School Board President

In the past few years my taxes have more than doubled, so what has the school board done with all that money? This question has been asked by many people and it deserves a full answer.

Basically, there are three major reasons why the school district has not had a windfall in these past years. They are: (1) the same inflation that everyone feels, (2) reduction of state support to the Northville Public Schools, and (3) the complicated manner in which the school budget is affected by the Headlee Amendment.

The first item has affected everyone in the area, but many items which schools depend upon have soared higher than the inflation rate. Books, paper and oils have greatly exceeded the inflation rate.

The second item has hit Northville in a much more direct manner. The percentage of the school district's budget funded from state sources has dropped from 37 percent in 1977-78 to an expected level of three percent in 1981-82. The board is not actually expecting any dollars from the state in 1981-82 if the state's poor economy continues at the present rate.

The decline in state funding has been due to two factors. The first is that Northville lost its per pupil state aid in the last school year. The formula designed in Lansing seeks to equalize the number of dollars behind each student in the state. This has resulted in a very large number of districts (including Northville) which no longer qualify for per pupil state aid. While overall expenditures for education at the state level have risen, the number of district's receiving that kind of aid has fallen.

The second factor which affects the state funding is the decline in the reimbursement of state funded activities. Especially harmful to Northville have been cutbacks in transportation and special education funding. These kinds of reimbursements were the only areas our school district received funds for last year.

The largest item in explaining why the schools have not had a windfall in the past few years is the method of taxation used by the state and the way in which the Headlee Amendment works. While an individual taxpayer may be assessed an increase higher than the inflation rate, the school district is bound by the Headlee Amendment not to collect more than that rate.

The Headlee Amendment restricts the district itself from ever collecting more in tax dollars than the consumer price index for Michigan. This means that while an individual may have paid a higher increase, the entire assessed property of the district balances out that increase.

Next week, I will discuss the method in which the school district levies its taxes, the method in which the Headlee rollback factor is calculated and show how that calculation affects the revenues of the school district.

HARTLAND — Five proposals are to be placed on an August ballot here by the school district. They include: 11.5 mill renewal; 1.84 mills for restoring some teaching positions at the secondary level; 1.84 mills to restore media specialists, elementary education and instrumental music; 3 mills to restore cuts made prior to 1980-81; and 4 mills for the Cromaine Library. Sylvia Skrel named to committee

State Representative Sylvia Skrel (R-Livonia, Northville) has been named to a special committee on aging by the Speaker of the House.

The 12 House and Senate members on the committee will meet until December 31, 1982, and make recommendations to the Legislature on issues affecting senior citizens.

"The 1970 census determined that there are more than one million people in Michigan who are 60 years or older, and that this segment of our population is growing faster than any other," Representative Skrel said.

"Senior citizens have many needs and limited resources and we in state government have a responsibility to provide the most efficient and effective services possible to the aging."

"I think with all the life experiences and talent of our senior citizens it is not an exaggeration to say they are one of Michigan's most valuable resources."

The committee will monitor the functions of the Office of Services to the Aging and review the aging network, will monitor department programs related to seniors and will monitor and promote the legislative recommendations outlined in the Joint Committee on Aging Report of 1978.

City officials, taking note of the Northville Historical Society's current membership campaign, give their checks to Mayor Paul Vernon, center, at the last June meeting to join or renew memberships together. From left, attorney Philip Ogilvie, councilmembers Carolann Ayers and J. Burton DeRusha, City Clerk Joan McAllister (seated). To Vernon's right, councilmember G. Dewey Gardner, City Manager Steven Walters and retiring councilmember Stanley Johnston.

Gardner, as a local businessman, has made himself available to the city.

Vernon said that Gardner's heavy commitments were the reason he had nominated DeRusha. Gardner is a member of the Downtown Development Authority, beautification commission, historic district commission and has just become president of the Northville Rotary Club.

Vernon then withdrew the original motion and asked if he could nominate Gardner. The election was unanimous.

Mittman accepted appointments to the recreation commission and as councilmember on the 35th District Court advisory committee.

DeRusha accepted the appointment as liaison from council in union negotiations with employees.

It was agreed that Johnston, who had resigned his council seat in June to be effective with this meeting, would continue on the Downtown Development Authority as he was not serving as a councilman.

The council also voted to grant Mittman authority to vote on behalf of the city at the 35th District Court Advisory Committee meetings.

The council had received a communication dated July 1 from George R. Wiland, court administrator, noting that effective June 1 the judges of the court had their judicial salary supplements increased to the maximum established by the state supreme court, $19,965, with approval of the court advisory board.

He cited House Bill 4132 dealing with judicial salary standardization which will increase the supplements again in September and next January. The council observed that it will be "passing on" to the court about half of the monies the city receives from the state for courts.

The request of Greenpeace Great Lakes to solicit funds door-to-door was denied by a 2-3 vote with Mayor Vernon and councilmember Carolann Ayers voting yes, DeRusha, Gardner and Mittman, no.

The non-profit environmental organization works to save seals and whales from extinction and also works on local environmental problems, including toxic wastes. The letter of request noted that it is licensed by the attorney general to solicit as a charitable organization but that any local required permits also must be obtained.

Ironically, it was comments by the mayor questioning whether the city has a right to ask about soliciting organizations and their goals that apparently led to the split vote. He said that a friend had been solicited by the Greenpeace in another community and had questioned the canvasser on whether Greenpeace is against all hunting, as he had read in a recent publication.

The response was negative, but it left doubts.

The letter to council from the Ann Arbor-based office noted that this is the second year of the canvass, which is the major way Greenpeace raises funds.

The meeting went into closed session at 11:40 p.m. to continue discussion of property acquisition. A site is being sought for Kerr House which must be moved from Cady by the end of the month for the post office expansion.

A prolonged discussion was held during the meeting on a proposed handicap parking ordinance with no action taken. DeRusha cautioned the council not to pass any ordinance hastily even though it was under pressure of a general lawsuit brought against 30 cities and 10 townships. Northville Township also is among those cited.

An ordinance drafted by the city attorney was criticized by the council as not being specific enough for the city. It requested a review of present provisions for handicap parking in both municipal and private lots before taking action.

Builder sues township

The contractor also said he warned township officials at the time of deficiencies in the design of the brick walkway.

"They used the silly brick pavements," he said, "and we told them, we told the architect that it wouldn't hold up. We built it exactly the way they told us to."

Hillyer was most concerned because he was led to believe the township is insolvent, since that would mean the bonding company would have no other recourse than a suit against his firm.

Township treasurer Richard Henningsen and Business Manager David Leiko denied that the township is insolvent, and noted that the board of trustees set aside enough money to pay Hillyer when making up the 1981-82 budget. Henningsen said it is in the budget as a legislative expense and makes up part of the line item covering legal fees.

"We are not financially embarrassed," the treasurer said. "We are, like many other communities, financially tight, but we are not insolvent."

He and Leiko both said the money to pay Hillyer's last bill is in the budget, though it may prove a hardship if extensive damages are assessed in addition to the amount owed.

According to Carlson, the township withheld the last payment due to the problems cited, and Hillyer filed suit first. Cook Construction and Skylite Painting, both subcontractors hired by Hillyer, then filed suits for payment against Hillyer.

Hillyer said his bonding company has paid some subcontractors, and he is liable to the bonding firm if no monies are received from the township.

Carlson said he has heard nothing about Traveler's Indemnity (the bonding firm) paying off the subcontractors. That would only have to happen, he said, if the township wins the case and Hillyer is unable to pay, although he acknowledged it is possible.

For its side, Carlson said, the township holds that if anyone is liable to Hillyer it is Long's Plumbing, because that firm's action is what caused the delay.

As for Hillyer's charge that he is not liable for the failures because he foresaw them and warned the township, Carlson said that is not sufficient reason to be absolved from blame.

"He entered into a written contract," Carlson said. "If he was really aware of these things, then he should not have entered into the agreement."

"If these problems cropped up after the agreement was signed, he should have negotiated with the township for either more time or more money, and he would have been able to live up to the contract," the attorney said.

"If these problems crop up after the agreement is complete, then they're his problems," Carlson concluded. "That's why you hire a general contractor rather than doing it yourself."

From Hillyer's point of view, however, he was not a full general contractor, because he was not allowed to choose subcontractors for plumbing and electrical work.

"The largest part of the problem, as I see it," Hillyer said, "is Northville Township violated all the rules."

The problems with completion of the hall, he charged, had to do with actions his firm had no control over.

"We don't own the subcontractors," he said. "One of the rules of the road is that if you hire the mechanical subcontractor separately then you are liable for the problems."

"They should have told me they were going to use non-union labor and I would never have bid on the job," he continued. "The township was trying to save money by hiring three separate contractors for architectural, mechanical and electric (and having the architectural contractor (Hillyer) take over general administration.)"

He claims he has been in dispute with the township's operation of the project since the summer of 1978 and does not believe he is responsible.

"They can't will the problem to me," Hillyer concluded. "They hired the non-union help, I didn't. I would never hire a non-union contractor, I do a lot of automotive work, I can't risk making the UAW mad because I've got the AFL-CIO on my back."

Carlson said the case will go to mediation October 21 and, if a resolution agreeable to both parties is not found then, a tentative trial date of January 20, 1982 has been set.

Women for Sobriety extends helping hand

BY MICHELE McELMURRY

The five women sitting in the living room of Schoolcraft College's Newman House last week were listening intently to a story they knew all too well.

Their attention was focused on Mary, a woman in her mid-30s, whose casual manner and expression seemed to ease the harshness of what she was saying.

For Mary, life hit rock-bottom three years ago.

A faltering marriage, insecurity and low self-esteem had made her life unbearable.

Starting each day with a drink didn't help much either.

After getting the kids off to school and her husband off to work, Mary would start in on her first fifth of Scotch or her first case of beer — whatever was available.

"I had to have it just to get through the day — all the PTA meetings, the doctor appointments, the dinner parties — everything," she recalls.

"I'd start to iron a shirt at 9 in the morning — sometimes I'd finish it that night, sometimes I'd just leave it. It would be the only thing I would do all day — except get drunk.

"I needed about 20 beers to get me through the day," she says.

This had been Mary's normal routine for almost 10 years, and it wasn't until three years ago, in an act of desperation, that she realized she needed help.

The women listening to Mary's story nodded their heads. Yes, they have been there, too — they understand.

For Carol, Joan, Inez, Helen and Jane, the past which Mary has described is similar to their own — a past tainted by alcoholism.

For these women, coming to grips with their drinking problem has been a tough battle. However, with the help of Women for Sobriety, an organization whose purpose is to help women alcoholics through the discovery of self, gained by sharing with women in similar circumstances — they haven't had to fight the battle alone.

"I couldn't express these feelings to anyone one else," Inez explains to the group. "This is the only place where I feel people really understand me."

The women meeting at the Newman House were of different backgrounds, age groups and careers. Many of them had never met before, while others were close friends. Some hadn't been to a meeting in a week, others were attending their third in five days.

Another variance was that some had been sober for three years while others were getting through their third week without a drink.

However, regardless of these differences, these women were gathered together to support each other in the fight to overcome alcoholism.

As Inez explains, "women have different problems than men and drink for different reasons. We need to help one another — to support each other."

Women for Sobriety, founded in 1975 by Dr. Jean Kirkpatrick, currently has more than 300 groups in the United States, Canada and Europe. There are about 13 groups meeting regularly in the Detroit area.

Groups usually number from six to 10 women with a moderator (who is a recovered alcoholic of several years) conducting the session. Meetings are held at least once a week for about an hour and a half.

Confidentiality is strictly adhered to in Women for Sobriety. It is up to the discretion of each member whether or not she wants to break her own anonymity.

The purpose of Women for Sobriety is to help women recover from problem drinking through the discovery of self — gained by sharing experiences, hopes and encouragement with other women with the same problems.

The WFS program is comprised of 13 acceptance statements used as a basis for providing women with a new way of thinking.

Groups often begin their weekly meetings by focusing on one of the statements — usually to get the conversation going.

The women meeting at Newman House last week began their session by examining emotional and spiritual growth.

Inez was moderator of the group and began the session by explaining the effect alcohol has on emotional and spiritual growth.

"When you're drinking, you stop emotional growth," she explains. "You use booze as a substitute. You use it to escape from those things you don't want to deal with."

She went on to say that "while drinking a lot of people separate themselves from any kind of church activity. Sobriety is the other way around — there is a renaissance of belief — a renaissance of the need."

Mary told the group that she "had spent 10 years not growing" — spiritually or emotionally. Mary, who has been off the bottle for three years, says it was not until she had "pulled herself back together," that she started "to experience emotions that had been blurred by the booze."

She went on to say that discovering these emotions was a terrifying experience.

"When you stop drinking, it's very frightening," she says. "We started drinking so young that our emotional growth was cut-off before it was really developed."

"We had so many fears, yet we never had to deal with fear so we never had to overcome it. We would just go on year after year blocking out all emotions."

"After I got sober I started facing things. I've come to realize there is really nothing you can't face."

Jane, who also has been sober for many years, said she experienced the same emotions as Mary and added that "during the first months of sobriety I would just take things one day at a time."

Jane started drinking when she was 26 and stopped when she was 35.

Jo's story: lonely widow

By JEAN DAY

Some are hooked on beer. It doesn't make any difference. Alcohol is alcohol. I was hooked on wine for awhile but it didn't do it; there isn't much alcohol, about 18 percent, in wine. So then I got into hard liquor — half or three quarters of a bottle before I went to bed.

The next morning I asked myself why and said 'It's not worth it,' but the next night the monkey's on your back again.

The speaker is an attractive, blonde older woman. Wearing a becoming pants suit with floral jacket, she had come to tell of the events in her life that led to her joining Women for Sobriety.

Jo had agreed to do so in gratitude for the help she has received from the six-year-old organization and, in this way, inform other women in a similar situation that the group exists to help them.

A Northville resident, Jo had moved to a condominium here after becoming a widow and having to sell the home she loved in Detroit. She has been attending meetings at Schoolcraft College and in other Detroit area locations.

Because, as she explains, there still is a social stigma associated with a woman who drinks as opposed to a man who does, Jo identified herself only by a first name and asked that we use "Jo" in print, rather than her own name.

This anonymity is part of the organization's rules. Members are on a first name basis only.

It obviously is an effort for Jo to force herself to recall the circumstances that led to her need for association with Women for Sobriety.

"I'll always need help," she acknowledges softly.

Jo had admitted herself to Brighton Hospital last February and has not drunk since then, but this was her second effort toward rehabilitation.

When I moved here, I couldn't function. It was traumatic to do alone (move). I drank as an excuse to sleep.

Different noises bothered me. There was no one who cared — I didn't have to hide it (liquor) in a different bottle as some women do — I was alone.

Jo tells of events leading to her first hospitalization.

I was widowed and alone. There was nothing I had to do. I became immobilized. I could no longer function. I couldn't drive. Finally, I called my son who lives in another state and begged for help. He said, 'Okay, get on a plane.' When I got there he had arranged for me to go to a hospital for treatment.

When I came back here I continued through Providence (Hospital). I still was not truly convinced I had a disease...but I have found out now that one is not enough. Sometimes you even dream that you're pouring yourself a drink.

It's (having a drink) a way of life. Television and magazine ads are so col-

She wiggled into graduation party

By JEAN DAY

What can you give a high school graduate that's really different? How about a belly dancer?

Eighteen-year-old Michael J. Hollis was the recipient of just such a surprise gift from his uncle, Earl Leavenworth, who came from Florence, Kentucky for the graduation festivities. He presented his six-foot-two nephew with a petite belly dancer at the graduation party James and Lois Hollis of Northville Road gave for their son to celebrate his graduation from Northville High School.

Not only did Pamela K. Dorton of Trenton perform for Mike and the 300 party guests, but she also instructed them in the art. "She really wiggled," laughed Mike's mother of the talented dancer who was a "Belly Dance Gram" sent from Trenton-based Variety Singing Messengers. One of the most delighted spectators was the honoree's 15-year-old sister Jill. Mike warned her that he has three years to come up with an appropriate "surprise" for her graduation.

Chef Benson's busy with different parties

Chef Richard Benson, a member of the culinary arts staff at Schoolcraft College and also owner of B & B Catering Company, has been serving imaginative food at everything from an electric car preview to a wedding. For Connie and Donald Nowka of Thornapple Lane on June 20 he duplicated the successful Chamber of Commerce country western dinner held this spring at the community building.

The Nowkas were honoring their son and his bride with the ox roast barbecue. They had been married earlier in the day at First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth.

Benson has been arranging cookouts in parks for such firms as Tulsa Oil Company, as well as serving the refreshments at the opening of a solar energy home in Troy.

Daniels work on house and gardens

Robert and Jackie Daniel invited 45 friends in Northville Historical Society who had helped during Bob's presidency to a buffet supper June 28 at their home on Five Mile. Among the guests were Fran and Biz Gazlay. He has taken over the presidency — for the second time. At the gathering, Fran was remembering the early days of the society when he first assumed office. Meetings were held in the basement of the Edison building on Center at Dunlap, he recalled.

The Daniels' guests received a preview tour of the home that will be open on the Northville Home Tour September 24. They viewed the great amount of work the couple has accomplished since the historic house was moved from its location at Haggerty and Seven Mile on Schoolcraft College property.

There's a new kitchen, formal living and dining rooms and study downstairs. Upstairs Jackie Daniel has a Victorian room — furnished with antiques she collected while living in the Gothic cottage on Dunlap.

The guests who first gathered outside also exclaimed over the gardens Bob Daniel has created. In addition to formal flower beds there's a flourishing vegetable garden. The grounds give the impression that the house long has been on the site.

She's making Mill Race church reservations

Eula Plunkett has taken over the post of calendar chairman for Mill Race Historical Village reservations. Sandy Miller, who most recently has been scheduling weddings and meetings in New School Church and the gazebo, moved this past week to South Lyon and turned the job over to her former neighbor. The Plunkett number is 349-6258.

The post was created to lessen the work of the historical society president as the president and his wife get many calls anyway. Jackie Daniel has noticed that "the phone is so quiet" and Biz Gazlay already has a list of historical society-related telephone numbers at hand.

Anyone wishing to reserve the church for a wedding or meeting can get the information directly from Ms. Plunkett. She and Helen Maki, Docent chairman who arranges for groups to tour the Mill Race buildings, coordinate such activities. The Docents (volunteer guides) are on duty from 1-4 p.m. Sundays to inform visitors about the buildings. They also are willing to give tours to interest groups.

Webster, Lisowski, Thomas reunion Down Under

When Douglas Webster and Mark Lisowski still were students at Northville High School (Class of 1976), they were planning their trip to Australia and a visit with former Northville resident "Chip" Bruce Thomas who had moved there with his family.

Now home after the reunion and 7,000 miles of touring the east coast of Australia, Doug says the trip exceeded expectations and was well worth the years of saving and planning. The two flew to Sydney where they bought backpacks and tents. "Then we had to rent a car because we found it's against the law to hitchhike," explains Doug.

While it was winter Down Under, the travelers also found the country tropical as they visited its rain forest. Although the Bruce Thomas family had been transferred back to Michigan, son Chip stayed in Adelaide. He is married to a professional dancer. Doug comments on the great friendliness of the people he and Mark met.

Doug says he's spending the summer doing construction work to recoup his finances. A history, political science-education major at University of Michigan, Doug expects to receive his degree this year. Mark, a graduate of Schoolcraft culinary arts program, now is seeking a chef's job. He previously worked at the Mayflower in Plymouth.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Schoultz of 426 East Street.

The double-ring ceremony took place at 2 p.m. in Westwood Presbyterian Church with the Reverend Judy Beyer officiating.

A cousin of the bride played a cello concerto by J.S. Bach during the service.

The bride wore a Victorian-style gown which she had made herself of cream-color eyelet.

She carried a bouquet of multicolored roses, daisies and carnations.

The bride's sister Christine Kotter served as maid of honor and her two other sisters Peggy and Lucinda Kotter were bridesmaids.

The attendants wore white background, floral print gowns and carried bouquets matching the bride's.

Jeremy Smith was best man, and ushers were Richard Kotter and Dennis Clancy.

Approximately 90 guests attended an afternoon reception at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony.

The couple met while attending Ohio State University.

The bride holds a bachelor's degree in biology from the College of Idaho and received her master's degree in zoology this year from Ohio State University.

Jo's story

Northville woman tells how drink eased loneliness

orful and beautiful with their bottles... Loneliness is harder for a woman. A man can stop at the nearest bar, sit on a stool and talk. The first time right after my husband died about 10 years ago I just was not quite sold. You feel one day you'll be able to drink socially. I had to experience the bitter second lesson. It was expensive because I had no insurance.

Jo recalls that it was while she was at Brighton Hospital she mentioned to her roommate while the woman's husband was visiting that she really would like to be in a woman's group. She remembered reading about Women for Sobriety and had even clipped the article but had lost it. The husband, too, had saved the article and brought it to the hospital. After being released from the hospital, Jo did attend meetings of the group in Redford. For Jo, Women for Sobriety has been an answer, a helping hand. The women in the groups, she explains slowly, thinking of how W-S helps, are willing to talk. Phone numbers are given out and someone always is available.

It's still the mind. There's the self-pity of 'Why me?' Truly, there is no one who can do something for you until you do it for yourself. A woman's system just can't take alcohol. You have to know you have to abstain completely. I can't speak for anyone but myself, but many of us were cross-addicted with drugs. It's like a cancer — one demands the other. This was my situation. There were tranquilizers for sleep. Some say, 'I can't sleep' and the doctors prescribe tranquilizers. Never do they ask you, 'Do you drink? How much do you drink?'

Jo adds that today she tries to avoid places she used to go where drinks are served. How to cope with drinking situations is discussed in Women for Sobriety meetings. Jo suggests that women can say directly they are allergic or on medication. She does not wish to be too specific about her office job, but mentions that it was through contacts in Women for Sobriety that she learned of it. She also is careful to explain her personal feelings about AA.

I go reluctantly because I have a need. When there are men there, I cannot open up and speak. I feel more at ease, though, with Women for Sobriety.

There is more of a stigma to a woman who has a drinking problem. I'm like Dr. (Jean) Kirkpatrick who started this in Pennsylvania in 1975. AA wasn't what she needed. Most women do go to both (AA and Women for Sobriety). Some go with their husbands.

But I really look forward to our women's meetings. We're closer knit, a group that favors women's problems. There is a meeting somewhere every night. Each individual goes as she feels the need. In the groups we have different discussions. 'What is it that bothers us today?' 'How are we going to cope?' It's the coping that drove us to drinking. There is a central group of women that comes all the time. New ones come and go.

Jo explains that the women listen, relate to and encourage each other. She also feels her recovery has been made possible through contact with the Women for Sobriety groups. There is the one that meets at Schoolcraft College Newman House at 1 p.m. Tuesdays. She also feels a Monday night meeting at Redford Counseling Center on Seven Mile has a "nice group." In gratitude for the help she has received, Jo has been willing to be interviewed, a sometimes painful experience.

When you believe in something and realize how much good it can do for women crying out who don't know where to go, you want to help. Everybody needs somebody — they're your friends. I'm grateful and want to help somebody else. I can see it all now; so I'd love to help anybody I can.

Women for Sobriety provides group aid

"For the first five years of drinking, I got drunk everytime I went out. I was the big socializer — I could drink anybody under the table," she explains. "I soon found it (alcohol) made everything easier — it helped me function. I even went to the doctor drunk." After years of black-outs, lies and sickness, Jane quit drinking. "I used to function so beautifully in a black-out," she explains. "I got to the point where I would write things down so I would remember what happened the day after." Mary also suffered black-outs and both women admitted they would "cover their tracks" when people reminded them of something. "You become so good at lying," Mary explains, "you could work your way around anything." Not all the women in the group experienced black-outs, including Inez who explains, "Black-outs weren't my problem — the next day was my problem. I didn't like the person I got up with." The women agreed the first year of sobriety is often the most difficult and depressing. "Women think that when they stop

Alcohol made everything easier — it helped me function I even went to the doctor drunk drinking they are going to feel better and instead they experience fear, anxiety and sleepless nights," Jane says. However, as Inez explains "the first time you get through Christmas or through a vacation sober, it's such a great feeling that you just keep going." Joan, who has been sober for almost a month, told the group she had just made it through her first party without alcohol. "I drank ginger ale all night and I really had a good time — without the booze," she explains. Joan, who is trying to overcome her drinking problem for the second time, has found herself most comfortable with Women for Sobriety. Though she also regularly attends Alcoholics Anonymous, she said she likes the closeness of Women for Sobriety. "It has really worked for me," she explains. Many of the women in the group attend AA in addition to WFS — though the two organizations are not affiliated. Inez explains that women traditionally have come to WFS through hospital programs or court referrals — but that in recent years many women are joining on their own. She went on to say that the only membership requirement in WFS is a desire to stop drinking and a willingness to start a new life. "The hardest thing to admit is that you have a drinking problem," she says. "Any good red-blooded alcoholic will lie about their problem. Alcoholics always defend themselves. They look at other people and say, 'You're an alcoholic, I'm not.' "Everybody tried to help me," she continues, "but I had to do it on my own." Mary reiterated Inez's feelings and added "the only way to deal with the problem is to deal with the problem." "I used to say I'll deal with my problems tomorrow," she explains, "only when tomorrow came I'd be drunk." For these women, helping one another overcome their drinking problems has given them a new lease on life. By giving each other support and encouragement they have picked up the pieces and started life over again. Many contend the weekly sessions have kept them "on track" and the encouragement from others has helped them stay off the bottle. Though they have all had the will power and determination to stay sober — will power sometimes isn't enough. As Carol told the group, "I don't think anybody's will power is stronger than alcohol. If I believed my will power was keeping me sober I'd drink again — I would think I could control it." These women are living the present and looking to the future — sober.

Sealarks plan picnic

In place of the regular Sunday brunch, Sealarks will hold a potluck picnic at 5:30 p.m. July 14 at the home of Dorothea Shafer. Members are asked to bring a table service and a dish to pass. The monthly social evening of gards and games will be July 18 at First Presbyterian Church.

Sisterly love

For little Erin Beebe, 6, having a big sister means more than just swapping clothes, telling secrets and being a gopher to your sister's every whim. During the last week of school, Erin came to realize that a big sister is among all other things — a lifesaver. While walking home from Amerman, the little kindergartner, who has diabetes, suffered an insulin reaction. Realizing that she would never make it home, her quick-thinking older sister Yvonne, 10, found the nearest safety squad members and told them to get help. With the assistance of two Amerman safeties, Erin was carried back to school while two other safeties rushed ahead to notify the school of what had happened. When Erin arrived back at Amerman, her mother and staff members were waiting to make sure she was out of danger. Pictured above is Erin, front left, and her sister Yvonne, right, with Amerman safeties, from left Dee LaChance, Robin Wiseley, Joanne Poulos and Shelley Skinner. At right — a happy Erin. Dental Dialogue of A. Allen Tuchklaper, D.D.S.

KITCHEN SINK HINDERS SPEECH

Q. Why does my dentist always ask questions when I have everything but the kitchen sink in my mouth, and expects me to answer?

A. He doesn't really expect an answer, at least not a lengthy one. Most dentists like to communicate with their patients during the course of treatment. Explanations of procedures and sometimes the instruments being used can help ease a patient's anxiety. By asking questions, the dentist keeps things on a more personal level. If all else fails, try old fashioned sign language, you'll find your dentist is an expert interpreter.

This column is presented in the interest of better dental health. From the office of

A mass balloon ascent Friday evening kicks of three days of high adventure in Plymouth.

More than 15 colorful, hot air balloons will participate in three days of competition in the Mayflower Hotel festival through Sunday.

The balloons will be launched from the Central Middle School soccer field adjacent to the cultural center in downtown Plymouth.

Highlight of the competition will be the "Pick-Em-Up-Key Contest," with balloonists attempting to pick up keys from the top of a pole to win the use of a 1982 Buick Regal for one year. It is sponsored by Dick Scott Buick.

Each balloon will be sponsored by a business, many of whom will be offering balloon rides. Persons wishing rides may pick up entry blanks at balloon sponsors' business places during the festival.

A sunrise flight, with sponsors aboard, begins the second day of festival activities including an Early Bird Brunch at the Mayflower, special sales in Plymouth shops, display of new car models in Kellogg Park, movies, and a balloon ball.

The Saturday evening balloon ascent begins at 6 p.m.

Following the launch, the ball will take place at the Mayflower Meeting House, featuring the 17-piece big band sound of the Ambassadors, hors d'oeuvres and a cash bar. Admission to the ball is $5.

Special attraction will be the balloon crown walk, with balloonist Gordon Boring walking on top of an inflated balloon during the ball.

The Sunday morning flight will begin at sunrise, with the destination to be determined by the wind currents of the day. It will be followed by another brunch, and that evening, weather permitting, a final launch will cap off the weekend.

Additional information about the festival may be obtained by calling R. Scott Lorenz, 453-1620.

MANUFACTURERS BANK of Novi dedicated its new headquarters building recently with a ribbon cutting ceremony at which Novi Mayor Romaine Roethel performed the honors with the bank's president Charles E. Wood assisting. Also on hand to celebrate and enjoy watching the ribbon blow away in the breeze were Gary J. Cortner, second vice president and cashier of the bank; Evelyn Natzel, assistant treasurer of Novi; Edward F. Kriewall, Novi city manager; and Mary Lou Arnoldy, the bank's operation officer. Manufacturers Bank of Novi was established in October 1979 and previously had been operating in a temporary facility adjacent to its new location at 26222 Novi Road.

Barbara Moline and owner Roger Heiple at Michigan Art Supply

MICHIGAN ARTIST SUPPLIES INCORPORATED opened recently at 317 North Lafayette, South Lyon, under the joint ownership of Judith Wright and Roger Heiple. The retail store carries art materials for professional artists, students and hobbyists. Hours are 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Tuesdays through Saturdays.

Plans are underway for a school sales division to be launched at Michigan Art Education Association this fall, according to Wright.

A major department of the store is devoted to picture framing with a large selection of stock frames. Custom frames will also be available. Focus will be on design, creative matting techniques and individualized molding manufacture. Framing will be done on the premises and difficult framing jobs are a welcome challenge for the owners.

During the month of July all brushes, stock frames and other selected items will be on sale as well as all sectional metal and wood frames.

A limited amount of original art by outstanding American artists is on display in the gallery. This includes graphics by Leon and Baskin, Remington, Couchlin and Dal.

Heiple, formerly assistant manager of Lewis Artist Supply and general manager of Artist's Supply Center, brings considerable experience to the new company. As a five-year resident of South Lyon, he is enthusiastic about the growing need in this area for artist supplies and framing.

Wright, former owner of an art gallery, is also a commercial real estate broker.

They are members of Professional Picture Frames Association and the National Art Materials Association.

Family canoeing fun available at Eco Sports Livery

A calm afternoon of river canoeing awaits visitors to the Eco Sports Livery, 275 West Liberty in Milford.

New owner Marlene Majeske and her husband Art operate their business out of the former Ford Motor Company electrification plant on the Huron River, which is located just west of Central Park in Milford.

Open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. on weekdays and from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on weekends, the business offers canoe trips along the Huron River daily or overnight, with pick-up and drop-off services available for paddlers who wish to travel in one direction.

Marlene Majeske noted several areas that canoers seem to enjoy. Many paddle into Kensington Metropolitan Park, or the Proud Lake Recreation Area, she said. Another nice section is between Kensington Road and US-23, she added.

Observant canoers can spot wildlife along the river, which is calm its entire length. Family groups have no trouble negotiating the slow-moving current.

Group rates are available if arranged in advance. Reservations are not necessary, but are recommended, particularly on sunny weekend days. Often all canoes are rented when the weather is nice on a weekend, according to Mrs. Majeske.

HAROLD HYLAND of Novi has completed all the requirements to be certified as a qualifying member of the 1981 Million Dollar Round Table (MDRT). Hyland is a district representative for Lutheran Brotherhood, a fraternal insurance society headquartered in Minneapolis.

The Million Dollar Round Table is an independent association of more than 15,000 life insurance agents, each of whom must meet strict ethical and production requirements in order to qualify.

Only three percent of the world's life insurance agents are certified each year through high-level client service and production. Membership reflects a commitment to continuing advanced education to better serve the financial security needs of families, individuals and businesses.

Hyland joined Lutheran Brotherhood in 1975. He is associated with Lutheran Brotherhood's Karl Mueller Agency, headquartered in Rochester.

THE 1981 COFFEE DAY CAMPAIGN in Oakland County netted more than $6,300 for physical and occupational therapy for handicapped children and adults.

The Top Restaurant was the Diggers in Farmington which brought in $463. Second runner-up in the Top Restaurant category was the Union Lake Big Boy which raised $411.

Novi restaurants which participated in the fund-raising effort were the Novi Road Big Boy, Twelve Oaks Big Boy, Michael's, Mr. Naturals and the Saratoga Trunk.

Walled Lake restaurants participating in the campaign were the Big Boy and the Nugget.

Restaurants in Union Lake which participated in the effort were ALLAN F. SITTNICK, a Northville resident on Roscommon Drive, has been elected a vice-president of Johnson and Higgins (Michigan), a regional division of the international insurance firm. Announcement of Sittnick's promotion was made by Robert L. Hannon, Jr., chairman and chief executive officer of Johnson and Higgins (Michigan) at the June meeting of the board of directors in New York. Sittnick will continue to specialize in surety bonds and related insurance services for the building construction industry.

Prior to joining the firm as assistant vice president in 1979 he was bond manager at Aetna Life and Casualty Company for which he worked since 1956 in Chicago, Cleveland, Columbus and Detroit. Sittnick qualified as a chartered property and casualty underwriter (CPCU) in 1963.

A native of Oak Park, Illinois, Sittnick earned a BBA degree from the University of Wisconsin, where he was affiliated with Delta Tau Delta fraternity. A member of Meadowbrook Country Club, Sittnick and his wife Carolyn have two sons, Peter and Philip.

BACH ENGINEERING AND ASSOCIATES, consulting engineers in energy management, have moved to larger offices at 113 East Dunlap in Northville. Bach stated the move was necessitated by the increased demand for energy saving products caused by the recent hike in energy costs. The Energizer, a heat reclaimer which recovers 50 percent of the waste heat escaping up the chimney flue, he explained, and energy saving air circulating fans are two of the many devices available.

NANCY ORDOWSKI of Dundalk Court, Northville, received a 14-K gold ring studded with diamonds in recognition of her outstanding achievement in competition with more than 15,000 independent consultants in direct sales country-wide who sell Princess House products.

The presentation honoring her and the independent contractors who work with her for their success in total sales and introduction of new consultants in 1980 was made before an audience of 1,000 attending Princess House national awards ceremony in Toronto. She received her gift and congratulations from Richard C. Brown, president, and Robert J. Haig, vice president of marketing and sales.

Princess House, a Colgate-Palmolive Company, is a leading national, direct sales company specializing in fine, handcrafted crystal and home decorating accessories. All of its products are sold through in-home demonstrations by a nationwide network of independent consultants.

Winner Ordowski found direct sales to be a profitable way to supplement the family income in a time of inflation, as have two million women and men actively involved in sales, the firm states. It adds that individual earnings ranged in 1980 from a few dollars a week to $500,000 a year.

Local AD says WLC set to open in the fall

By REID CREAGER

Despite gloomy economic forecasts in many Michigan school districts, the impending Western Lakes Conference plans to open in the fall of next year with all of the 10 schools that it originally included last winter, according to Northville Athletic Director Ralph Redmond.

Redmond, acknowledging the fact that Walled Lake Western and Central — as well as his Northville High — have had or are currently experiencing critical millage votes, nonetheless said Monday that the conference's schools are ready to offer strong athletic programs. That statement comes despite the fact that the Walled Lake School District would have had to eliminate sports if its recent millage renewal hadn't passed, and that Northville will be voting on a seven-mill renewal request July 28.

"One of the advantages of the league is that its schools have strong programs, and look like they'll maintain strong programs," Redmond said. "Most offer good programs on the junior varsity level as well."

Even in the unlikely event that a school in the conference would have to drop sports, the Northville A.D. said that contingency options are available. "We're open to the fact that we might have teams who will want to enter (the league) down the line," Redmond said, declining to name those schools. "That would especially be beneficial in the event that we lose a school, and Northville could be one of those if we don't get the millage passed July 28."

"One of the advantages of the league is that its schools have strong programs, and look like they'll maintain strong programs."

— Northville Athletic Director Ralph Redmond

Scheduling for football and basketball in the first year of the conference's operation have been okayed, according to Redmond. He said that the principals of the respective schools would finalize all plans for the conference in September, and that the football and basketball schedules will be released soon.

A unique feature of the football schedule will be a "mystery" eighth game of the season, Redmond said. In that game, the first-place team from the West Division will oppose the first-place team from the Lakes Division to unofficially determine the best team in the league (the other teams will play their opposite divisional teams according to their rank in the standings at that time). Each team will have one other inter-divisional game. In basketball, conference playoffs will be held to determine the Western Lakes League champion.

Redmond added that he thought the imminent conference would be beneficial to other extracurricular activities — such as forensics, debate and band — in those schools. "With a new league, you establish new rivalries," he said.

The West Division of the new league will include current Western Six Conference schools Western, Northville, Plymouth Canton, Farmington Harrison and Livonia Churchill. The other W-6 entry, Waterford Mott, will not be included in the new conference.

Meanwhile, Lakes Division clubs will include current Inter-Lakes Conference teams Walled Lake Central, Livonia Stevenson and Farmington along with Suburban Eight League clubs Plymouth Salem and Livonia Bentley.

Transportation costs, scheduling and accommodating schools with financial difficulties were three prominent factors in the re-shuffling.

Adult softball races tight

Long Mechanical continues to roll along the unbeaten trail in adult recreation softball as it currently leads the American League standings with a perfect 11-0 mark.

Winner's Circle Bar (8-1) and Sheehan's on the Green (9-2) remain close behind the leader in the standings.

In the National League, Action Dry Wall is the pacesetter at 8-1, but only holds a slim half game lead over Sheehan's Little Caesars, which stands at 7-1.

J&S Steel Products also remains in the hunt with a 7-2 record.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Long Mechanical 17, Canterbury Flowers 4: Despite falling behind 4-0 after the first inning of play, Long Mechanical showed why it is in first place in the American League by storming back for the win.

Mechanical exploded for six runs in the second inning and never looked back. Mechanical added a run in the third, three in the fourth and seven in the fifth.

Rick Bingley and John Sinclair had three hits apiece in pacing the Long Mechanical hitting attack. Bill Sinclair, Rex Balko and John Bates each added two hits for the winners.

Ken Rothski led the Canterbury attack with two hits in two trips to the plate. Dave Sherman, Jerry Rothermel and Jim Wilson each had singles for Canterbury.

Winner's Circle Bar 13, Baber Roofing 9: Winner's Circle had to come up with six runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to steal the victory from Baber and remain close to Long Mechanical.

A triple by Mark Lisowski and a homerun by Rob McGuire were the big hits in the high-scoring seventh inning for Winner's Circle.

Baber surged ahead with six runs of its own in the top of the seventh inning with a triple off the bat of Jerry Sherwood.

Tex Trumbull collected three hits for the winners with teammates Dan Christy, Gary Lisowski, Mark Lisowski, McGuire and Bill Harrigan each adding two apiece.

Dave Austin picked up three hits for Baber with Sherwood adding two hits of his own.

Sheehan's on the Green 7, Northville Gallery of Flowers 6: A homer by Tim Doyle and a triple by Greg Phillips in the top of the seventh inning pulled out the victory for Sheehan's.

Phillips was the main hitter for Sheehan's with two triples and a single and scoring three runs to help keep Sheehan's in the title hunt.

Gallery of Flowers scored six runs on only eight hits with Pat

Two teams tie for league title

There is not one, but two champions in the H-League division this season.

The Pirates and the Mets have tied for the top spot with identical 11-3 records. What is even more ironic is both teams defeated each other once during the regular season.

The Mets won the first encounter, 5-3, but the Pirates stormed back in the next meeting, 14-5.

In F-League action the Astros have a firm grip on first place with a 15-1 record. The Dodgers remain persistent with a 9-5 mark followed by the Padres at 8-5.

In the final week of action in the H-League division, the Mets barely squeezed by the Padres, 1-0, to clinch a share of the title.

A tripled by Ken Spigarelli and a ground out by Siegfried Shyu produced the game's only run. David Buckland, Brian DeSiro and Todd Riviera collected hits for the losers.

The Pirates, at the same time, were whipping the Cubs, 10-2, to clinch its share of the crown.

Todd Daniels went two-for-two with three runs-batted-in and Robert Richcreek went three-for-three and drove in two runs to lead the Pirates.

Nick Salas belted a two-run homerun.

Jeff Briellmaier and Dan Brugeman scored the Cubs' runs.

Coach Tony Ventura described the Mets as a heavy-hitting club with better-than-average pitching. The team, he said, scored 10 runs or more in six of the 14 games played while allowing the opposition to touch the plate an average of four times per contest.

Ray Jacques led the Mets in hitting with a .667 average followed by Ken Spigarelli at .522 and Steve Ventura at an even .500. David Raczkowski, Siegfried Shyu and Jon Wasserman each batted over .400 for the season.

The team used five different pitchers during the course of the season, Ventura said, and that the team played well together.

Pirate coach Tony Pump was pleased with how his team performed and noted the club was strong in defense and pitching.

In the pitching department Robert Richcreek and Steve Nigro combined to form an awesome one-two punch on the mound for the Pirates.

Together they struckout 195 batters in 14 games. Richcreek was credited with 103 strikeouts and Nigro whiffed 92 batsmen. They averaged 14 strikeouts per six inning game, Pump said.

Jim Strom was the top batsman for the Pirates at .588 followed by Richcreek at an even .500.

Members of the Mets are: Brian Frellick, Jacques, Richard Lesperance, Philip Lickman, Michael Parkinson, Raczkowski, Siegfried Shyu, Sigmund Shyu, Spigarelli, Bryan Tews, John Totten, Steve Ventura and Wasserman.

Members of the Pirates are: Richcreek, Nigro, Roger Kimery, Eddy Ruiz, Jim Strom, Mark Mastrianni, Ricky Abramovich, Todd Daniels, Pat Fagan, Chris House, Steve Salas, Nick Salas, Jonathan Kontuly, Jeff Kooistra and John Pump, who missed the last 12 weeks of the season due to a broken arm.

In two other games played during the week, the Giants edged the Expos, 7-6, on Todd Ebersole's double which drove in Brian Walker with the winning run in the last inning.

The Braves slipped past the Reds, 5-2, to avenge an earlier loss this season. The Braves' received a strong pitching performance from Steve Pote and Greg Paler.

Taking a big cut at the ball is Dave Griffin

Phillies hold slim lead over Liberties

In the Primary Division of the girls recreation softball league the Liberties and the Phillies are in a fierce battle for the first-place position.

The Phillies still hold a slim one game lead over the Liberties despite losing a 12-10 contest last week. The Phillies sport a 10-2 overall record while the Liberties are at 9-3.

The Phillies also defeated the Travelers last week, 10-6, while the Liberties were tasting defeat at the hands of the Gems, 8-4. It was the Gems' second win of the season against 10 losses.

In the only other game played last week, the Falcons slipped past the Travelers, 7-5.

In action two weeks ago, the Phillies downed the Gems, 10-7, while the Liberties had two close ballgames. The Liberties downed the Travelers, 7-5, and lost to the Falcons, 12-11, as the lead changed hands four times in the latter contest.

The Falcons Megan Abraham had three hits and Karen McCulloch was on base three times in helping the team to victory. In the triumph over the Travelers, the Liberties' Julie Gatti knocked in the tying run and Theresa Gatti homered in extra innings to seal the win.

In other games the Falcons edged the Gems, 7-6, while the Gems edged the Falcons earlier, 9-8, for their first win of the season.

The Liberties in the Intermediate Division keep cruising along with an unblemished 12-0 record followed by the Travelers at 10-3.

The Liberties whipped the Falcons, 25-8, and edged the Aztecs, 12-11, for their only wins of the week. The Travelers sneaked past the Gems, 8-7, but lost to the Sunbirds, 9-1.

The Aztecs outslugged the Phillies, 23-15, for their second win of the season, but were whipped by the Sunbirds, 22-5. The Falcons downed the Phillies, 14-7, for its second win of the year, but were defeated by the Phillies later, 28-11.

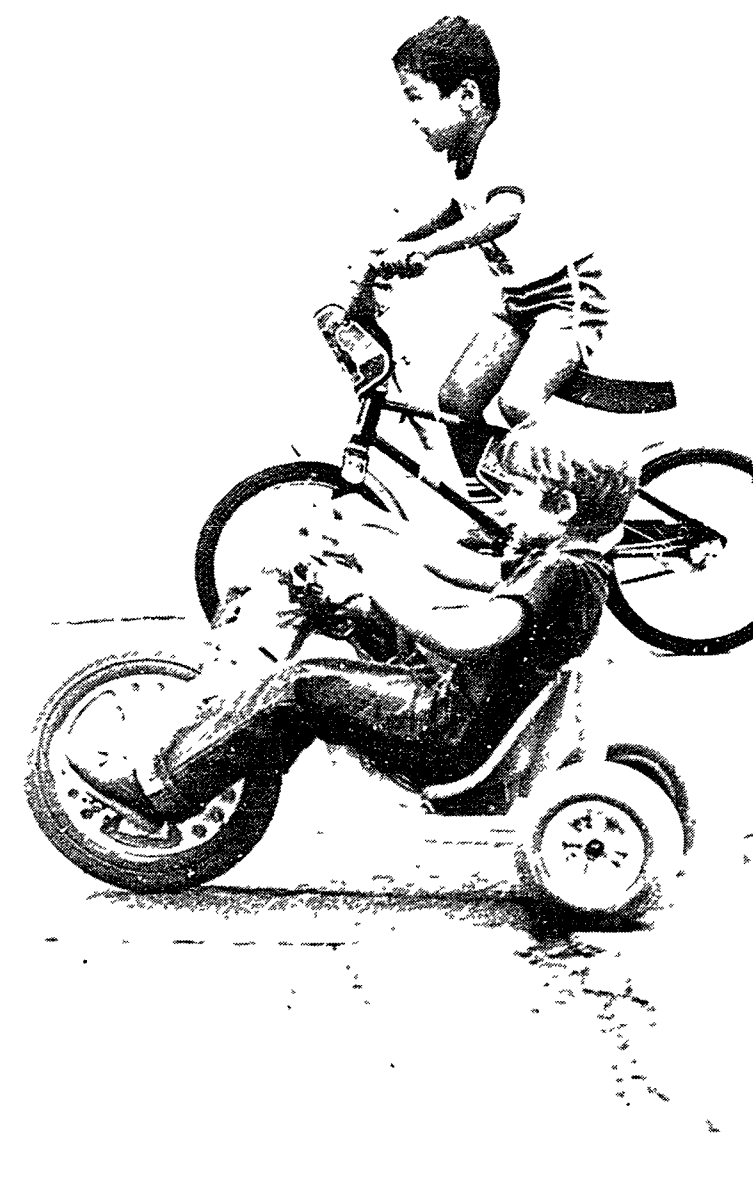

In action two weeks ago, the Liberties had no trouble with the Aztecs, 28-11, in their only game. The Travelers downed the Falcons, 19-6, in their only contest.

The Falcons had no better luck against the Gems losing 17-10 and against the Sunbirds, losing 18-9. In all, the Falcons dropped three games during the week.

Wildcats second in tournament

Participating in the Wolverine Soccer Tournament during the July 4 weekend, the Northville Wildcats were runners-up in the under-12 girls division to the Livonia Falcons.

The final score was 3-1 in favor of Livonia in the championship game. It was a scoreless tie at the half before Livonia tallied at the start of the second half. The Wildcats bounced right back with a goal by Kris Sigarelli to tie the contest.

The Falcons, though, were determined and pressed for two more goals to win the title.

In reaching the finals, the Wildcats downed a strong Farmington Fillies squad 1-0. Nikki Grasley scored the game's only goal with 20 seconds left in regulation play.

The Wildcats also defeated the Farmington Furries, 3-0. Amy Spaman scored with assists by Jenny Nieuwkoop and Amy Van Ooteghan. Sue Swienkowski tallied on assists by Mite Morgano and Kim Flading and Michelle Cross scored as Rebecca Hobart and Jill Gallagher drew assists.

The fine defense of Tiff Rivera, Jodi Smalec, Carrie Settino and Denise Akroush helped Trica Ducker record two more shutouts in goal, which brought her season total to eight.

The Wildcat entry in the tournament was coached by Stan Smalec who was assisted by Chuck Settino. Each girl received a trophy and a runner-up patch for their efforts.

In all, more than 138 teams participated in the three-day tournament which began last Friday and ended Sunday. Teams from the United States and Europe competed in divisions for boys and girls ages 10 to 19.

The games were played at either Schoolcraft College or Livonia's Bicentennial Field.

Davis scores big with MSU soccer squad

By JOHN MYERS

Matt Davis has not scored a goal during his three-year soccer career at Michigan State University, but the Northville native has scored big in other ways.

One of the biggest compliments Davis received this past spring was being named captain of the Spartan soccer team for this fall, his senior campaign.

He said it was quite an honor to be named captain of the team and he is ready to finish his college soccer career with a bang.

"It's the last time around for me and I want to go out with a bang," Davis said. "I can't believe it's almost over, but I'm really excited about it (last season)."

The fullback has only one assist to show for his scoring record, but he more than makes up for it defensively as he is usually assigned to cover the opposition's best defensive player.

"I would love to do it (score a goal), but it's no big deal if I don't," he said. One of the main reasons Davis is not found putting the ball in the net is his switch from center-forward to fullback in college. It was during his sophomore campaign Davis made the move from offense to defense.

"I moved to the middle (defensively) and started for two-thirds of the season. Before that, I wasn't playing too much and the coach (Joe Baum) asked me if I wanted to play and I said 'Yeah,'" Davis explained.

Reese squad wins seventh

After losing its first three ballgames of the season the Northville Pee Wee Reese baseball team has strung together seven consecutive victories to gain a tie for first place in the league.

The latest victory was a 7-5 triumph over Dearborn Heights Fairlane Sunday. Mike Abaczynski was the starting pitcher for the first time this season and received credit for the win. He went six innings, allowing three runs on four hits and striking out nine batters.

Northville coach Nick Trapani said Abaczynski received the chance to start when John Lobbba, who has won three games this year, sprained his ankle recently.

Eric Gala started the game off with a triple and scored on a single by Brian Baldrice in the first inning. George Daraban, who missed the first three games of the season due to a broken arm, singled home two runs in the second and Joey Briellmaier did the same in the third inning.

Northville scored its final run in the sixth when Baldrice walked, stole second and third and scored on groundout.

Trapani said the winning streak was sparked by the return of Daraban to the lineup. Daraban has been the winning pitcher in three games this year, he added.

Other key performers include Bala, who Trapani says is the lead-off hitter and is playing well in centerfield. Also, he said Baldrice is the team's spark plug with his good hitting and fielding at shortstop.

In the seven victories Trapani said the most gratifying has been the 13-2 thrashing of last year's state champion Dearborn Heights Crestwood June 27. Lobbba was the winning pitcher in the contest with relief help from Daraban.

Koufax squad tops Dearborn

Two homeruns by Paul Havalala and another homer by John Norton powered the Northville Sandy Koufax blue team to 17-7 baseball triumph over Plymouth Salem.

The win was the second consecutive for the club and raised its record to 5-4 for the season.

Havalala also was the winning pitcher as he went five innings by allowing only two hits, four runs and striking out five batters. His homers drove in three runs for the Northville contingent.

Mike Wissmann had a big day at the plate with three hits and three runs-batted-in. Rob Cannon had three hits which included two doubles, while Rick Van Buren had two hits and three rbi.

Both Jay Bartling and Norton had two hits for the winners. Norton's homer cleared the fence.

In the exhibition game played last Saturday, the blue team downed the gold squad, 6-1, in a nine inning contest.

The blue managed seven hits, including a long homerun by Newman, a two-run double by Wissman and a two-run single by Bartling.

Chris Dominique scored the gold team's only run on a successful squeeze play.

Sullivan plays golf at PGA Academy

Northville's Dan Sullivan was among a select group of youngsters attending the Professional Golf Association's National Academy of Golf in Boca Raton, Florida this month.

Three-time PGA tour winner and one of the game's most consistent performers, Lon Hinkle demonstrated his shotmaking expertise during a clinic and discussed the difficulties and problems of tour life during a question and answer session with the academy youngsters.

Among Hinkle's accomplishments is the 1979 World Series of Golf title.

Students, aged 12 to 18, benefited from a full week of instruction at Boca West, an Arvida resort community with three championship golf courses, under a faculty of blue ribbon PGA golf professionals. Their subjects ranged from golf swing analysis to the history and lore of the game of golf.

The latest in video and electronic teaching techniques were employed, including the Swing Analyzer, Putting Computer, Polavision color video-tape and the Mitchell sequence camera.

Lecture periods were conducted at nearby St. Andrews School where the students were housed for the week.

Other top-name guest instructors scheduled during the four one-week sessions were tour stars Hubert Green and Larry Nelson.

Trick Shot Artist Dennis Walters, who was paralyzed in a golf car accident six years ago, displayed his talents.

This was one of four sessions at the Fifth Annual PGA National Academy of Golf conducted by the PGA of America under the guidance of PGA Academy Director Gary Wiren.

Unbeaten Phillies win WSSL divisional crown

The undefeated Northville Phillies, a girls under-12 soccer team in the West Suburban Soccer League, had its awards banquet last week Wednesday.

The team received its trophies for finishing first in its division and medals from the coaches. The team went 7-0 in Division III action.

"This was a well-rounded team," Phillies coach Harry Hartshore said.

The team was one of four Northville teams to win divisional titles in the WSSL. However, the Phillies lost in the first round of the playoffs for the league championship.

The team scored 46 goals for the season and allowed only four goals.

Hartshore said Karen Stinson, who scored seven goals in one game this season, Julia Stock and Jennifer Schuermann were the leading goal scorers for the team with three-year player Anne Griffith being the Most Valuable Player.

Other team members include Laura Abrahamovich, Suzanne Austin, Anne Coseo, Lisa DeAlexandris, Diana Eusebi, Katie Fitzpatrick, Kristen George, Joanne Heinds, Kristie Pyden, Christine Stipe and Robin Wiseley. The co-coach along with Hartshore was Julius Sabo.

Ocelots sign volleyball recruits

Schoolcraft College has signed six volleyball recruits for the fall freshman season, but Northville girls were not among the group.

Signed were Karen Kelley and Amy lang of Livonia; Stevenson; Micki Truchan of Livonia; Bentley; Jill Stellberger from Clarencville; Nancy Hughes of North Farmington; and Deanne Leverenz of state champion

Wayne Memorial.

"I am hopeful these athletes will help carry on the fine volleyball tradition that has been established over the past six years," Schoolcraft Coach Mike O'Toole said.

Those interested in playing volleyball should contact O'Toole through the Schoolcraft physical education office at 591-6400, ext. 480.

It was then Baum told Davis he wanted him to play fullback because he was strong and aggressive out on the field and would be a good defender on the team.

"I got the message," Davis added.

At first Davis was in dark about how to play the position, he said, but he quickly learned.

His experience as an offensive player has helped him with his defense by being able to anticipate opponent's moves.

"The big thing was I had to learn to be patient (defensively)," he said.

"When I goof up it's just the goalie and the forward. It's a pressure spot, but I like it," Davis said.

Michigan State finished the season at 9-6-2 with a defense that allowed only 17 goals in 16 games. During his junior campaign the defense allowed more goals than any other Spartan team in history, but finished the season at 10-6-1.

With the improvement made in the victory column, Davis said the team has set a goal of trying to break the Spartan record of 12 wins in a single season.

"We should really put out on offense and the defense will be strong in the middle. We are going for 13 wins. That's one of our main goals," Davis explained.

One of the bigger games for the Spartan club during the fall season will be the encounter with Notre Dame in South Bend. The game even has more significance to Davis since it will be on cable television Entertainment and Sports Programming Network.

"In the Notre Dame game last year we won 4-1. The game will be down at Notre Dame this year and it should be a blood-bath," he said.

Looking forward to playing on cable television, Davis is hoping he plays well.

Playing well in front of the cameras should be no trouble for him because he's been playing soccer since 1970.

His first taste of soccer came when his family moved to England in 1970 because of his father's job with the Ford Motor Company.

MATT DAVIS

It was in an English prep school where he first learned soccer. "It was mainly to play soccer," he said.

From there it was on to the American School where soccer was as important as school, eating and sleeping.

"I picked up the game fast. We played all the time...before school, during breaks and after school," Davis explained.

After spending three and a half years in England, the Davis family returned to Northville in August of 1973. The problem for Matt was there was no soccer league in Northville and no high school team at the time.

It was a friend, Scott Evans, who played football at MSU, who helped persuade Davis to attend State for soccer.

Baseball meeting scheduled

A meeting of the Junior Baseball Association is slated this Sunday at 8 p.m. at the community building, 303 West Main Street. Also, new officers will be elected.

Canterbury Cleaners' Robin Shoner tries to slide under the tag of McNeely & Lincoln catcher John Griffin

League races close

Duffy getting the only extra base with a double in the fourth inning which drove in two runs.

Baber Roofing 16, Court Time Racquet Club 6: Baber had little trouble in downing Court Time as it scored at least one run in every inning.

Jim and Joe Watson, Dave Austin and Mike Cairns all rapped three hits in pacing the Baber hitting attack. Baber's big inning was in the fifth when it scored five times with the only extra base hit coming off the bat of Joe Watson (double).

Big hitters for Court Time were John Dwyer and Kevin Maley with three hits each. Big inning for Court Time was the fourth when it scored three times highlighted by Steve Orr's double.

Canterbury Cleaners 8, McNeely & Lincoln 7: It was a tight battle all the way, but Canterbury staved off a two-run seventh inning rally by McNeely & Lincoln to win the contest.

Canterbury scored three times in the first inning, two runs in each the second and fourth innings and its final run in the fifth. McNeely scored three in the first, one each in the second and third innings and two in the bottom of the seventh.

Dave White had a good night at the plate for Canterbury with three hits while teammates Russ Gans, Mike Long and Bob Chapman each contributed two hits.

McNeely was led by Reid Creager, Price McCallister and Bob Koehler all with three hits apiece and Mike Dwyer with two hits.

Recycled Raiders 13, Northville Lab 12: In this slugfest the Recycled Raiders recorded only its second win of the campaign. To do it, the Raiders had to score three times in the bottom of the seventh inning to seal the triumph.

In a strong hitting performance, the Raiders were paced by Steve Cauzillo and John Hale as each banged out four hits with Bob Powell and Mike Kramer each adding three hits to the cause.

Bill Potter collected three hits to lead Northville Lab. He was aided by Keith Spigarelli, Mark Reinwand, Bill Nowland, Bob Potter, Dave Brewer and Bill Hopping, each of whom contributed two hits. One of Reinwand's hits was a homerun in the seventh inning.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Action Dry Wall 5, Belanger, Inc. 3: In this low-scoring affair, Action Dry Wall scored all of its runs in the first and third innings and then held on in the late innings to win.

Only Ted Gores had two hits for Action, a run-scoring double in the first and a single in the fifth. Gary Globish had a two-run double for the winners with Mike Nave and Steve Harris each knocking in runs. The win kept Action Dry Wall in first place.

Belanger was paced by the two-run homer by Mike Edgerton and a run-scoring single by Chris McCosky.

Sheehan's Little Caesars 9, First United Methodist Church 8: Little Caesars survived a five-run seventh inning rally by First United to win the game and stay close to Action Dry Wall.

The 16-hit attack by Little Caesars was paced by three hits from Don Phillippi and two hits each from John Osborne and Paul Steckley.

Even though First United out-hit Little Caesars, 18-16, it still came out on the short end of the score. In the five-run seventh, the big blow for First United was a triple by Allan Benedict.

The big sticks for Little Caesars were Gary Beason and John Monigal with three hits each and Al Burling with two hits.

J&S Steel 16, Our Lady of Victory 3: two five-run innings by J&S Steel were the difference in this lopsided affair.

Helping pace the 18-hit J&S Steel onslaught were Allan Cox with four hits, Gary Callender with three hits and Dennis Bellpich, Ron White, Ed Bolinger and John Muir with two hits each. One of Muir's hits was a homer in the seventh inning.

O.L.V. connected for 13 hits, but could only push three runs across the plate.
