Christmas in the White House

Smith among honored decorators

A Northville resident is one of the nation's florists responsible for transforming the White House in Washington, D.C., into a boliday-season wonderland. Jack H. Smith, owner of French's Flowers at 33641 West Five Mile in Livonia and a Northville township resident, has returned from spending five days decorating the presidential man-across the country. Smith, an active member in the American Institute of Floral Designers and a national trustee for the American Academy of Florists, has been in the industry for almost 25 years. He admits

He previously had been tapped to help decorate "A Victorian Ex-travaganza" at the Smithsonian in Washington, D.C., and in January worked on decorations for the Reagan inaugural.

Smith had been invited to work on the White House Christmas decorating — a top professional honor - three months ago, providing he received security clearance. He mentions that security was very tight. Whenever the President or Nancy Reagan was moving about in the mansion, be illustrates, the florists were required not to leave the rooms in which they were working and never could move through the grounds unescorted.

Mrs. Reagan came in twice to inspect their progress, Smith remembers, recalling that she was even more petite than expected. Smith says the First Lady "gives such a feeling of warmth and graciousness.

She had chosen the red-and-green col-or scheme accented with gold and white, Smith adds.

"Mrs. Reagan requested that everything on the official White House tree be handmade. Eight artists from the New York City Museum of Folk Art were commissioned to create the decorations of tin, fabric and wood.

Politicos split on apportionment

The Wayne County Apportionment Commission is pondering two reapportionment plans which would put the Northville community in radically different county board of commissioners

Deadline for a decision is January 13, according to Prosecutor William Cahalan. The five-member Apportionment group accepted the second plan for study Monday and set meetings for January 6 and 12

Suburban politicos themselves are divided.

The county board must be reapportioned because of the 1980 census, which showed a greater population loss in Detroit than in the suburbs, and Wayne County's new home rule charter, which reduces the board from 27 to 15 members.

The rival plans are: 'The so-called "staff plan," drawn up

Concession on fence granted so hospital can pursue hedge

By KEVIN WILSON

Local pressure to fence Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital will be relaxed if a perimeter hedge is planted, township officials and residents agreed in a meeting Saturday.

Responding to demands of the state departments of management and budget and mental health (DMB and DMH), residents who had orchestrated a renewed fence campaign agreed to recede" from their demands if a satisfactory, virtually impregnable perimeter hedge is planted.

According to state officials present at the meeting, the commitment made there is likely the last hurdle before the state goes forward with the hedge.

The concession was made after discussion with hospital director John Reynolds who explained state budget authorities' refusal to authorize a hedge without assurances that it would put to rest the longstanding fence debate.

Reynolds said state rules require budget department approval so the hospital can seek bids for the project. A policy decision at that level, he said, brought a halt to progress in having the Local authorities and residents have ng contended the number of mental patients leaving the facility without

Hospital here called unique within system

Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital is a unique facility in the state Department of Mental Health (DMH), state officials said here Saturday, and has different needs from those of other institutions in the system.

Not only is the population of the hospital the largest in the system, but it includes almost double the proportion of "acutely mentally ill" persons, Representative Jack Kirksey (R-35th District) related.

Hospital director John Reynolds confirmed that of the more than 1,000 patients in the hospital, roughly 80 percent fit in the category as opposed to levels between 40 and 50 percent at other

Due to the type of patient being treated, he added, the hospital also must deal with what has been called a revolving door" syndrome, in which patients are cycled through the hospital, out into the community and back to hospital regularly.

As an example, it was noted that while the population at any given time is around 1,000 patients, in a year the hospital deals with upward of 6,000 peo-

Kirksey said the "atypical" nature of the Northville facility was explained to Legislators recently in a briefing by DMH director Patrick Babcock.

Combined with the information that the total population in the Seven Mile Road institution is the highest in the state (with most state mental health facilities having between 400 and 600 patients), and the high concentration of state facilities in the township, Kirksey said resident's requests for a hedge to surround the institution are "entirely reasonable.

authority imposes an unfair burden of concern and expense in the community.

Reynolds had told a similar gathering three weeks earlier the hedge could be paid for out of hospital allocated funds and would not require a new appropriation. Instead of needing approval from the legislature and the governor, the hedge planting could be accomplished administratively.

But when he made the required steps of seeking approval from the DMH and the DMB, he hit an unexpected roadblock, he said.

"I was wrong," Reynolds said about his earlier assurance that the hedge could be accomplished swiftly. "You are right, I said it could be from our money, but they would not approve my request to take bids without a commitment from you.'

He said when he took the proposal, as required, to DMH director C. Patrick Babcock and the state budget office, the response was the demand for assurances the hedge would replace the

"I told them I couldn't give them that assurance because that is not what you said to me," Reynolds told the group of 50 residents gathered to hear a progress report on the issue. He noted that everal residents had pledged to continue to fight to have a fence built outside the hedge. I've tried to be straight with you about everything we've done," Reynolds said.

State Senator R. Robert Geake, (R-14th District) of Northville told those gathered he understood the state to be demanding "that if they give us the hedge we will forever give up the fence," but later discussion seemed to indicate the demand was for something with a little less finality.

Reynolds said that, to at least some degree, the concern in Lansing was with cost and budget allocations. He said he does not yet have the current fiscal year budget (which the hospital has been operating under since October 1) because it is still tied up in Lansing offices of DMH. It could be, and likely will be, further reduced if the state's revenue continues to fall short of pro-

Although the money is a concern, Reynolds, Geake and Representative Jack Kirksey (R-35th District) more often said the decision was one of policy at DMH and DMB.

Primary stumbling block to the fence proposal over the past decade has been Governor William Milliken. He once vetoed an appropriation for the fence Geake had pressed through the Legislature. Babcock served as an aide in the governor's office prior to appointment as DMH director, and it was the DMB under director Gerald Miller that recommended Milliken execute his line item veto authority on the fence funds. Both directors are appointed by the

As presented by Geake and Kirksey, the Republican governor is opposed to fencing the hospital on several grounds: that the impression of incarceration might impede patient recovery; that the patients pose little or no danger to the community; and that fencing the hospital here might be construed as a precedent to fencing all state mental institutions, few of which are comparable to Northville Regional. Township Supervisor John Mac-Donald suggested making a commitment to give the hedge a chance while avoiding an outright concession that the fence proposal become a dead issue. wouldn't say what they are dem ding is that you say 'never,'" Reynolds interjected, "only that there be some understanding of what is being done.' MacDonald, expressing some skepticism of the state's sincerity in the matter, offered an idea of what might be acceptable.

"Why don't we say at this time we will accept a hedge in lieu of a fence, MacDonald said. "Let's see if they are really serious about the hedge even.

Fran Walker, a township resident who sparked the renewed efforts to fence the hospital after an escapee from the institution was discovered in her house, said the hedge is "what they are offering" and suggested that it be accepted on the state's terms.

She also apologized for "inflammatory" remarks made at the earlier session which she said may have played a role in the unexpected delay. Brian Higgins, representing a

Unsewered lot size limits relaxed

By KEVIN WILSON

Within hours of hearing public comments deriding provisions of the pro-posed Northville Township zoning ordinance, the planning commission made a tactical retreat from those provisions, established as part of the proposal two years ago.

Residential building lots in unsewered areas of the township would have to be one acre in size after revision of the proposal, which was to have required lots of a 1.5 acre area. The one acre minimum applies under current regulations. Provisions adopted last week would retain the current area minimum but expand lot widths in two of three residential zoning categories. The 1.5 acre size requirement, planners explained, was adopted early in the process of revising the zoning law as a counter-incentive to building in unsewered areas. It was intended, Commissioner Bernard Baldwin explained, to promote sewer and water service installation.

But several persons attending a public hearing last Tuesday night contended the requirement would prove so effective a deterrent that it could bring a virtual halt to residential development without public utilities for many years to come.

And township trustee Richard Allen, the board representative to the planning commission, argued later that night that the increased lot sizes effectively would bar construction of custom-built homes outside subdivisions.

Lot width considerations will be changed in the new law, but not as extensively as first proposed. Proposed minimum of 200 foot wide lots reverts back to the 150 feet required of residential plats in the current law for R-1 (lowest density single family residential) class zonings.

But the 150-feet requirement also is extended to the other two residential classes, R-2 and R-3, where today's provisions are for 120 and 110 foot minimums respectively.

Zoning density is a measure of the number of homes, or rooms, allowed per acre. The three zoning classes allow for differing types of housing development with a range of costs.

Under the revised zoning law, as it was realigned last week, the differences between the three classes would exist only where there are both sewer and water services. In those areas where either is lacking, the requirements will be identical for all Alien's arguments were foreshadowed in statements by Frank Bauss, an Edenderry resident who spoke during the hearing.

Citing the current housing slump, Bauss said be thought the tighter requirements would extend the effects locally if and when the housing market

"If we ever do develop in those unsewered areas," he said, "I don't think you're going to find a lot of developers running in to develop on 200foot lots."

Noting that the township has many residents with homes on two-to-four acre lots who might wish to split those lots in the future, Bauss said the proposed sizes would do financial damage to those small landowners.

"I think you're doing this at the expense of the people that have over two acres of land in the township," Bauss said. "By expanding the lot sizes from what it has been, you're saying, 'I have a small lot, but I want everybody who builds here from now on to have to have a big lot to make the area look better for

Commission vice chairman William Bohan denied that was case. Noting the difficulties with marginal septic systems township-wide, planners acknowledged that one of their concerns was for the results of failures. •

"Certainly the tile field won't work any better no matter how large the lot is," said Baldwin, "but the larger, wider lots is at least partially to keep the results of failure from intruding on the people next door."

But Bauss was not convinced there was any validity to the argument.

"No matter how big you make the lots, if the ground won't perk, it won't perk," he said. "Admittedly, you've had problems, but the solution is stricter enforcement of septic regulations.'

Bauss stated repeatedly that he has already split lots which he owned, so had no personal stake in the outcome of

Also speaking out against the lot restrictions were representatives of the Elro Corporation and Bradner Associates, both developers of several housing complexes in the township.

because a similar prohibition is not made for multiple-family (apartment or condominium) parcels.

Arguing from the standpoint that custom-built housing is a "unique" aspect of the township that gives it "character" Allen told the commissioners he had "grave reservations" about expanding the lot sizes.

The difference in cost between a one acre parcel and and a 1.5 acre parcel is almost double, he said. Citing typical costs of $45,000 for one acre and "$70,000 and up" for the larger areas, Allen said the difference could be probibitive to those wishing to build in areas without public utilities.

"It's going to force those lots right out of reach," Allen said. "What you're going to do (with a larger lot size) is force the man to sell out to a (subdivision) developer. I feel very strongly you're forcing the private lots off the market."

Commissioner Kenneth Sewell was the first to make any indication Allen as not alone in his opinion.

"I would certainly be wilting to reconsider my position," said Sewell, adding that there seemed to be evidence presented that development without public utilities will be discouraged by the Wayne County Department of Health.

The one acre minimum, others pointed out, alone may be sufficient to deter excessive development before the establishment of utilities.

Commissioner Marvin Gans reluctantly agreed to maintaining the current lot size, making a point of stating that the "economic hardship" argument put forward by Bauss was not one he accepted, and implying that Allen's arguments about the loss of custom building were more persuasive.

All the commissioners agreed to the change in the proposed law.

Inspection law rejected on ideological grounds

By KEYIN WILSON

Citing "philosophical" objections, Northville township based of trustees isst week rejected proposals that houses be subject to anspection when put up for resale, removing the idea from future agendas.

Basically I am uncomfortable with at the home inspection law) because it introdes into a transaction between private parties," said township clerk Susan ileintz, echoing a conservative ideological approach voiced months earlier by Supervisor John MacDonald.

"It is somewhat amalagous to though the parallels are not exact - but the analogy can be drawn with the sale of a used car." MacDonald said at Thursday's board of trustees meeting. "If you don't know anything about cars you are likely to ask a friend about the

"Virtually everyone, I would think, knows someone who knows a little about plumbing or electricity, or something of that nature," he contimed. "I think we have to accept the idea that people have these avenues available rather than hire paid staff to do that (inspect homes)."

Later, the supervisor said "when you buy a $40,000 or $50,000 house you would expect something less than if you are paying $160,000. If you buy a used home, you run some degree of risk."

Heintz said it would be incumbent on the township to be more effective in publicizing the availability of an inspection service through the building department. Purely optional, the ser-vice is offered for $50 for any house in the township.

First proposed in connection with problems faced by homeowners in one portion of the township, the idea of mandating inspections at resale received support from township building official Troy Milligan and fire chief Robert Toms at a November meeting. Toms based his support on a clause to require smoke detector installation at Milligan noted at the board meeting Thursday night that the version he supports would merely require inspection of a house, not that flaws be fixed. Only imminent threats to safety would require repair under the proposal, he said, and the buyer and seller could waive repair of even serious items.

"The point is to make sure everyone understands what is happening," Milligan said.

He and Park Gardens homeowners' association representative Liz McCarville were the only ones to speak in favor of the proposal. Lined up against it were three real estate dealers and one other resident

When Milligan and McCarwille argued that the law is needed townshipwide to protect buyers frum any unscrupulous seller, MacDumild suggested litigation as the solution to such a problem.

Milligan showed no interest in the economic argument. He responded to Bruce Roy Realty owner Ann Roy's statement that inspections would prove too expensive for sellers and huyers alike, saying, "you mught have something to say if you are trying to sell a house that won't stand up to an in-spection, but I thought we had reputable people here."

He also rejected claims the real estate business is responding to con-cern about resales by noting "if you're selling a house that is marginal you're not about (to tell the buyer to have it inspected)."

This would be for information only." McCarville added. "It could be waived. It is only to allow the buyers to know what they are buying."

MacDonald returned to the argument from economics that the township could not afford to operate such a program presently, even if it were desirable. Although Milligan said in November that inspections would require no additional hiring, he did not contradict Mac-Donald Thursday when he claimed additional inspectors would be needed.

Milligan said the program, like the entire building department, would be self-supporting through fees. Mac-Donald and Heintz, however, said it "is not the right time" to impose another fee and regulation on business transac-

"That's always a good excuse, isn't it Mr. MacDonald," asked McCarville.

"It's not an excuse, it's fact," Mac-Donald and Treasurer Richard Henningsen responded, practically in unison. A unanimous vote removed the item from the board agenda.

Other ornaments on the tree are diamonds, stars and Mrs. Reagan's favorite design of strauberrries - all oragami made by volunteers of foil, Smith reports. Lace-trimmed foil cones filled with popcorn also adorn the tree along with foil paper chains

Explaining that each state is represented on this tree with two ornaments, Smith mentions that one of his honors was getting to place Michigan's on the tree.

The tree is illuminated with only clear, crystal lights.

There are six trees in the ma Broom, their bases circled with poinsettia plants, Smith tallies. In addition, the florist describes two trees in the cross hall of the foyer that are decorated with all-white hand crocheted ornaments and white clip-on

Two triple-tier banks of poinsettias mark the main entrance at the North Portico, Smith says, noting that Mrs. Reagan had requested live, naturallooking decorations to carry out a feeling of an old-fashioned Christmas.

We used pine cones, lotus pods, some fruit and garlands of evergreens," Smith says. The National Park Service supplied the materials and came in with "cherry pickers" to stall the roping and other decera-

Smith mentions that mantels of the many White House fireplaces received special attention, being decorated with swags, garlands and arrangements of evergreens and holly.

Smith, who formerly lived in Northville Commons, moved only last month to a new ranch home at 20130 Woodbend in North Beacon Woods on the west side of the township. The family's former home on Westmeath was open on the 1978 Northville Home Tour.

Implementation of a new computer system, which would permit the school district to do basic class scheduling and student change processing at the two junior highs and the high school, was apmously by the Northville Education at its meeting Monday night.

Partial cost for the new computer program will be paid for out of monies allocated from a 1978 Wayne County Intermediate School District bond Issue earmarked for the purpose of upgrading computer possibilities for ISD and school districts using its services.

The cost of the computer system is approximately $100,000 to $125,000 with $80,587 allocated for Northville from the County Bond Issue. The school district will pick-up the remaining cost - not to exceed $45,000 — from its unexpended fund equity.

With the new system, data processing equipment will be installed in both junior highs and the high

Last November, the ISD approached Northville about using is $80,000 bond issue allocation to implement the expanded computer program. Had Northville opted not to use its allocation, the monies would have gone back to the ISD to improve its data processing program — with little benefit to Northville schools due to the district's limited computer capabilities.

Prior to the start of the 1981-82 school year, the board and the administration had focused most of its efforts toward passage of the millage renewal.

Since that time, however, the administrative staff has worked toward developing objectives for the school district in the coming years. In the area of communications, the board of education and administration said they are looking to improve the school's publications including the Northville School News, the Encompasser, Board Highlights and other written communication.

The board also indicated it is hoping to improve relations with the Northville central business district and is planning to schedule at least four meetings in residents' homes with the School Superintendent and other administrators to make the staff and community. Administrators and the board said they also will be working with the two citizens' advisory committees - facilitites and program standards — to help determine the future needs of the district.

Improvement of budget analysis techniques, internal control system and a thorough examination of district programs for areas such as insurance coverage, pro-gram sharing and energy the administration will conservation are a few of the goals established by the board to help improve the district's financial controls.

Use of Beck site subject of debate

Will future residents of what is now undeveloped land near Northville Township's new Beck Road water holding tank and yard be offended by water and sewer department trucks coming and going?

That's a minor point of debate between administrative officers of the township and its planning commission.

Planners declined Tuesday evening to reword regulations governing municipal buildings so that the water and sewer department can build a shop, garage and other facilities on the small parcel of vacant land beside the tank.

By Thursday evening, however, department head Walter Holinoty was telling the board of trustees the planners' fears that the proposed storage facility would not be suitable for the area there are groundless.

The parcel on the west side of Beck south of Six Mile is currently zoned R-2, for single family residential use. The class is the middle one of three designated for single family homes, each with differing lot size requirements.

Under provisions of both the current zoning law and a revised version now nearing completion, municipal buildings are allowed in residential zones but vehicle storage yards are not.

Trustee and planning commissioner Richard Allen said Tuesday night the "ultimate program" for the parcel, recently purchased from Plymouth, is for a "water and sewer garage or vehicle storage

The difference of opinion between administrators and planners centers on the type of facility the township would put on the parcel.

When Allen cited the water department's intentions and suggested deleting that portion of the proposed ordinance revisions that might pose a problem last week Tuesday, planners voiced vehement objection.

"If anyone has to be careful about what we're doing, what we're building in residential areas, it's the township," said commissioner Marvin Gans. township can be as tyrannic of the other people we see here (for planning approval)," said commissioner Bernard Baldwin. "Perhaps you'll have to look elsewhere," Gans

Allen explained that current water and sewer facilities at the Wayne County Child Development Center are slated for demolition under senior citizen housing plans for the area and at least part of the township's intent in purchasing the Beck Road reservoir was to find another location for a shop and garage.

Commissioners expressed fears that allowing municipal vehicle storage in residential areas would put the township on tenuous ground if developers sought to build a car repair facility adjacent to such an area.

"The basic fear," Allen told the township board Thursday, "is that you'll get a garage first and then there'll be a situation where junked cars are sitting outside and such.'

Holinoty said those fears are groundless, and operations would be entirely enclosed at the proposed water and sewer yard.

Parson to Person...

From the Realms of Glory

Dr. James Luther

What love and condescension was shown when God left His habitation in the universe and took upon Himself the graveclothes of humanity. But why did the Lord do this? He came for one overriding purpose: He came

God did not become man only to teach men how to live! He did not die merely to show them how to die! The Lord did not come primarily to perform miracles! Giving sight to the blind and hearing to the deaf, sending strength coursing through withered limbs, and breaking up every funeral He attended by raising the dead—these things pointed dramatically to His deity, they were proofs of His power. But they were only flowers that blossomed in the footprints of His journey toward the cross.

Speaking of His death, Jesus said: "For this cause came I into the world." You see, no man can pay the penalty for the sin of others because no man is free from the condemnation of sin himself. But God, the sinless one, in the person of His own Son Jesus Christ, paid for the sins of mankind by His death. Forgiveness is offered, purity is possible, peace and joy are available for those who accept "God's unspeakable gift." I trust God's gift of salvation will be received into your heart this Christmas.

two more. On the basis of pure numbers, blacks are entitled to 5.3 seats, according to Killeen's staff.

Joyner, however, said he had canvassed the townships in his proposed new district and reported, "The growing townships feel they'd best be served by being in the same district. The Holley plan doesn't serve this."

Mrs. Dumas countered that the staff plan cut Republican Northville from her district, split Republican-leaning Livonia in half, with one half going into a new district with Democratic Redford and northwest Detroit and the other half into a district with Democratic Westland and Wayne.

But Robert Ficano, deputy county clerk and Democratic chairman of the 2nd District-Wayne, said in an interview that the Holley plan was even worse, chopping Westland and Dearborn Heights into three districts each.

Higgies' motion stated "if the state plants a perimeter living hedge of sufficient size and strength to prevent penetration by hospital patients that those (who have pressed for a fence recede from that position."

The hedge under discussion would be multi-floral rose roughly three feet igh and three feet wide, and would cost between $29,600 and $20,000 to surround the hospital. Two years ago, the three-sided fence was estimated to cost roughly $190,000.

Beynolds said he had hoped to have a nursery man attend the session and further explain the specific planting pro-posed. It grows rapidly, he said, and at-tains heights of up to 15 feet and widths of six feet or more when allowed to

The plant expert was also to explain a possible variation on the hedge that would grow in the wooded areas of the grounds where there is little sunlight, Reynolds said.

He was instructed, however, not to give specifics of the plans until state authorities had the assurances given Saturday, the director told residents. Therfore, the promised schematic diagrams and photos of typical plants were not presented.

COMMERCIAL REFUSE COL-LECTION BY PRIVATE CONTRACTOR: The City Manager explained the City could save a substantial amount of money by contracting out the commercial refuse collection. He mentioned the cost reduction is about the same as that experienced with the residential, however, this would not propose a person be laid-off by the DPW. This would enable a portion of a DPW man to be freed up for other work without additional cost, ie., in-creased maintenance needs of the downtown area.

To avert a blood shortage during the holiday season, local American Red Cross blood services will sponsor a special drive for the eighth consecutive year. Called "Save-A-Life Sundays," the December 27 and January 3 drives are needed, Red Cross officials said, because businesses, industries and schools, prime sources for blood collections, are closed for the holidays.

The Southeastern Michigan Region of the blood services supplies roughly 1,000 pints of blood per day to 75 hopsitals in the five county region.

For the holiday season, the 10 regional donor centers, including the nearby Livonia center, will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on both Sundays.

Our Opinions

City police officer Mike Stever sells a newspaper to Robert Baker

Thanks, Goodfellows

Thanks to the enthusiastic group of volunteers recruited by C.A. Smith to sell Goodfellow editions of The Northville Record last Satuday, there is no need for any child in the community to be without a Christmas this year.

Smith reported this week he truly is "flabbergasted" that donations total $1,567. He had feared there wuld be much less in the light of the tight economy. The total, he notes, is within $50 of last year's.

Smith, himself an octogenarian and long-time volunteer, praises city, township and state police departments for their assistance. "They were just like a bunch of kids — so enthusiastic," he says.

There is ample money now to care for everyone on Smith's list. Anyone who needs help with Christmas or who knows of a family in which there will be no Christmas is asked to call the city, township or state police departments — or Smith at 349-0854. Those who bought Goodfellow papers Saturday have been generous — and deserve thanks for helping the Goodfellow Santa.

Keep priorities straight

Township planners proved they know when to bend and when to take a stiff stand last week, choosing to back off from plans to increase the size of unsewered lots while rejecting pressure to relax standards simply because they get in the way of government's desires.

By backing off from their two-year-old decision to increase unsewered lot sizes to one and one-half acres the commission served notice it is aware of the effects of its laws.

By rejecting the township board member's request to relax standards for municipal uses of residential land, the commission also let it be known that it stands firmly behind the prinicples that gave rise to those regulations.

Curiously, township trustee Richard Allen was central to both decisions, winning his point on the first issue and losing it on the second.

Allen is to be congratulated for being assertive enough to ask a change in a portion of the proposed zoning ordinance that had been established long before he sat on the board. It is tough to tell colleagues that they may have made the wrong decision, but Allen had the courage of his convictions, and support from other board members, we are sure. He argued effectively to keep the unsewered lot size at one acre.

He thereby brought the commission into touch with the economic effects that govern the results of planning law. Although custom built housing is by no means predominant in the township, it plays a large role in determining the esthetic appearance and the general character of the community. To overburden the custom home builder by requiring outsize lots would be to sacrifice that type of development in exchange for providing incentive to build sewers. We believe, as Allen seems to, that an across-the-board one acre requirement for unsewered lots, as compared to the smaller lots allowed in sewered areas, will provide sufficient incentive for sewer construction.

But Allen was, perhaps without personal conviction, on the wrong side in the municipal structures debate. The interests of the township water and sewer department, and the township board, might contradict those usually considered by planners.

If the water and sewer department's proposed garage/shop can be kept from looking like most DPW-yards, it could be an acceptable development in the residential area. But that does not mean the planning commission should be subject to having its work and intent subverted simply to make things convenient for township government.

To have its representative seek a concession of the sort that would outrage elected officials if it came from a developer was poor judgement in the extreme. As planning commission Marvin Gans noted, the township's own operations should reflect the high standards expected of developers here. Anything less raises doubts about the sincerity behind the

A time for new traditions

Christmas is little more than a week away, and I'm sure most of you have or will be starting to make traditional plans for the holiday season. The traditions I'm talking about are ones where

The traditions I'm talking about are ones where you always go to grandparents' house for Christmas dinner, or spend Christmas Eve with the relatives, or head down to Florida to bask in the sunshine while the rest of us freeze.

I have nothing against sticking to old traditions during the holidays, mostly because they offer a chance to share in the festive holiday mood with close family relatives. However, it also is nice to throw in some variety once in a while.

My family is no different from any other when it comes to tradition. But this year we are trying something different. I can hear most of you now, "Geez, I don't care what his family is doing. What does that have to do with me?"

Maybe nothing, but I figured I would tell you what my family has planned, and possibly it would give some readers an idea of something new to try this holiday season.

What we have done is borrow an idea from a popular church function, the progressive dinner, and apply it to our family.

Instead of one family handling the entire affair, we have decided to spread the mess among all five families.

Each family is responsible for one part of the dinner. We are placing a one hour time limit at each home in order to allow for travel time since the starting point is Wixom and the final destination is East Detroit.

Luckily for Debbi and me, we have the easy part — serving the hors d'oeuvres, cheese and crackers. The clean up at our apartment should be minimal.

From there, it is on to Troy and my sister and brother-in-law's apartment for make-your-own-salad.

Next comes dinner time. Our travels will take us to Grosse Pointe Woods and my aunt and uncle's house.

Their abode can handle a group of 12 for the main course with little trouble, but they will probably have the biggest clean up. My dad and I aren't known for course the second of the second

Of course, no dinner is complete without dessert; so my cousin and her husband, who also live in Grosse Pointe Woods, will host this part of the progressive dinner.

To cap the evening, it is on to my parents house in a East Detroit for fun, games, snacks and lots of drinks—not necessarily in that order.

Everyone is excited about trying out this new idea, since it gives all a chance to have everybody visit each home on Christmas day.

Also, it keeps the tradition of everyone being together on Christmas day and sharing the holiday

There is one other aspect of this I like — the many jokes and quips which will be made along the way.

I can just imagine what my cousin Kent will say about the day-long event when everyone is ready to begin.

"Oh, goooood. I'm going to be in a car all day just so I can eat dinner. Who was the Sid that came up with this idea," he will say sarcastically.

"Come on Kent, just get in the car and let's have fun," his mother will retort.

One standing joke among Kent, his dad and myself about my dad Al is sure to crop up at some time during one of our pit stops.

"Hey Al," one of us will shout, "you remember when."

Happy Holidays everyone.

Santa who?

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

Organization is not one of my major attributes. I manage to get just about everything done — usually on time, even — but I'm sometimes amazed that I don't miss more deadlines than I do.

One of the exceptions to my lack of organizational skills is Christmas cards. When it comes to getting them done and in the mail, I have few peers.

Jack Hoffman, who formely occupied this space on the editorial page, used to get upset when my yearly "Holiday Greetings" arrived promptly on December 5.

to get your Christmas cards out early and I never seem to get ours done at all," he used to tell me.

"My wife wants to know how you manage

"You're getting me into a lot of trouble at nome."

Unfortunately, my organization with Christmas cards has certain impersonal aspects I am somewhat reluctant to admit. For example, I keep a list of everyone who sends me a card. I mark an "S" (for sent) beside the name of everyone I send cards to and an "R (for received) beside the name of everyone who sends one back.

Relatives and particularly good friends will receive cards for three years even if their name isn't marked with an "R." However, three straight years of failing to send me a card (duly noted on my list as "No Rx3") is almost certain banishment from future "S's."

For others, "No Rx1" will get their name removed from my list for the following year.

I know my system belies the sentiment contained inside the card, but it does have the advantage of keeping the Christmas card mailing budget within manageable proportions. Stamps don't cost 3 cents anymore; and 100 cards can cost a cool $20 in postage alone.

So for those of you whose names are marked with "No Rx1" or more, don't expect a card from the Jeromes this year. Look at it this way, we've both saved 20 cents and made the mailman's job a little easier.

Street lights are inappropriate in residential area

During the list mouth Detroit Edison has been installing new street lights along Cady Street, North and South Rogers. They are to explace the 1920 at hights which are imparable.

The new lights are abit 25 feet high and hang over the middle of the narrow

Although they may be needed on Cady in the commontal part of town, I beheve them to be most inappropriate in the residential areas. The new lights are closer together and will probably be much brighter than the previous ones. The overall result will be most offensive to residents whose homes will be only 25 feet from the road. The lights in fact resemble those along expressways and in shopping centers.

Local efficials stated that they have no control over what Edison does along its easement — so they feel powerless to demand what might be correct for a residential area. Edison said if they wanted anything else it would cost

. As a member of the historical commission whose jub it is to preserve the integrity of the community I take strong exception to the choices given the locality.

if the council feels sandbagged by Edison, it is up to those other residents who may soon get the same commercial feeling to contact Edison.

Library's Friends welcome participation

A recent editornal in The Record proexplied me to write a few things about The Friends of Northwille Library.

The group is an unusual comservice organization. We don't have regular meetings in fact, we have them only when the library staff has a list of favors they wish to ask of us. This occurs about three times a year. The meetings are always announced ahead of time in The Record and the public is always invited to join. We usually have six to nine people in attendance.

The rest of the year we work sporadically at sorting the used books which are donated to us by the citizens of Northville. The surting is taking place in the basement of city hall behind the police station in a dingy storage room. We are glad to have the space so close to the library where the books are received. The work is hard for we have to lift and hig boxes of books frm the library to the storage and sorting area.

This year we plan to sell some of the books in April during National Library Week. This sale will be in addition to our on-going paperback sale in the library and our armual used book sale in Francis P. Gazlay the summer. Anyone who isn't up to lif-

SAT prep-tests benefit students

To the Editor:

Enclosed please find a copy of my letter responding to Michele McElmnrry's column on Test Preparation courses.

To keep you up-to-date on research in the area of test-prep I have sent along a copy of the Slack and Porter article that appeared in the Harvard Educational Review in May, 1980. Essentially, S&P make the point that the SAT cannot be considered an aptitude exam because it can be prepared for. While the makers of the exam, ETS of Princeton, New Jersey, have been billing the exam as a true measure of a student's ability, researchers have been busy proving that such exams cannot measure, for example, a student's writing ability or even his/her math ability for several important reasons. First, most students suffer some test anxiety - many a chronic form of anxiety - and, therefore, have a very difficult time concentrating on the exam in front of them. These panicky students are often the best students who most want to perform well on the exam. As a result of a botched exam, these students are often kept out of schools that they are perfectly qualified to attend. A testpreparation course can alleviate much of the anxiety by teaching students how to approach these exams.

Another major cause of low scores, is, again, not lack of high school preparation or native intelligence, but simple inexperience with standardized tests. A good test prep class can show norse test-takens how to read directions, for example, and how to minuse time in a crunch situation

I have created a test preparation course at Cautiums modeled on the highly successful test preparation course offered through all the Califorria State Oulkness from Sim Prancuce to San Dueses on course that how now been taken by over $8,900 students.) I work closely with these test prep teachers to provide a liou-cost up-todate test-prep workshop for our Michigan-area students that will put them on a par with the students on the West and East coasts who take prep courses as a matter-of-course (so to speak) before every standardized test they take.

The real measure of a student's an titude can be determined by their performance in high school courses. The SAT and ACT serve primarily as yet another hurdle for prospective college students to leap before admittance to the college of their choice. It does not measure their aptitude for college work; but it very precisely measures their ability to take tests. In our workshops we show them how to do this. I want all students who want to go to college to have a crack at it. A low score caused by panic or misinformation can keep even the most able out of their first-choice school.

Commercial test prep courses specifically Kaplan's - charge over $300 for a comparable course. Our $65 charge is the lowest in the area, deliberately so; we want to make a service available to as many students who want to take it.

I hope I have answered some of your concerns about test preparation, Michele.

Letter writer gets response

To the Editor:

Thanks for printing the Serkaian letter, as I enjoyed it and it may belo promote him as a writer of comedy.

Bob Hope, Johnny Carson, etc., are looking for writers for their shows.

It's too bad he tries to be serious, as in (quote) I'm concerned for the safety of all citizens and when he writes that he is for (quote) God, country, motherhood and "cares for the merchants.

He should stick to comedy and make Armenia proud of him.

I hope you continue to look for humor in your paper — and still feel SOTTY for those who feel that things should be done "their way."

Respectfully yours, Richard T. Cooney

"Any legislators who were on the fence as to whether they would sup-port a pro-labor or promanagement package were affected in an adverse way to their (labor) objectives," Kirksey, whose district includes Northville, related.

Among the things that happened, Kirksey said in a short interview following a meeting in township hall Saturday morning, were various types of destruction to the capitol building itself. A portrait of a past governor was slashed, a brass handrail sawn through, and Christmas decorations were damaged.

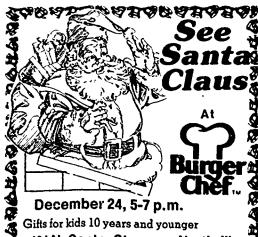

"They virtually chased out a high school glee club

Schoolcraft prepares a feast fit for a king

By MICHELE MCELMURRY

If won're fortunate enough to be among the guests at Schoolcraft College this weekend, there's a possibility you may be mingling with European with a court jester. You may even bemp into a Queen Elizabeth look-a-like or find yourself face to face with an elegantly-class English lord.

All this is likely to take place in between titles of roast prime rib and wice and sounds of anging minstreis and madrigal singers.

This weekend, Schwilgraft College will transform its Waterman Campus Center auto a 18th century English castie - complete with invishly costumed

When it comes to ringing in the holidays, Schoolcraft College seems to have found the winning recipe

More than 500 guests will be attending this weekerd's lavish event to commemorate the holidays in the traditional Renaissance style.

Schoolcraft's Madrigal Dinner is patterned after the festive 16th century English celebration where people entertained and feasted on a grand Trumpet fanfares, lavish costumes. toasts, madrigals, the wassail and a six-course dinner will be among the offerings at this Renaissance event.

Since its inception five years ago, the Madrigal Dinner has become one of Schoolcraft's most popular events. Tickets for this weekend's celebration have been sold out since mid-September, according to Special Events Coordinator Midge Ellis.

There are few who could argue with the $15 per person ticket price for this grand celebration — especially in light of the preparation which goes into making the event a success.

With the first of the two-evening Madrigal Dinner only days away, Schoolcraft chefs, musicians, food service personnel, choirs and hosts of others are putting the finishing touches on last minute details.

For the past few weeks Schoolcraft students, faculty members and department personnel have been sewing costumes, fine tuning harpsichords and polishing the wassial bowl in preparation for the Madrigal Dinner.

Schoolcraft rarely has to go outside the college boundries to find par-ticipants for its festive event, Ellis explained. Entertainment is provided by Schoolcraft's Madrigal Singers and The Jones Consort; dinner is prepared by the Schoolcraft chefs and the Culinary Arts Department and, to insure the historical authenticity of the event, the cultural and public affairs department researches 16th century customs. The decorations in the Waterman Center have been designed by Schoolcraft art student Garold Amadon.

When guests arrive at Waterman Center Friday evening, they will sit down to watch a 16-member English court celebrate the Christmas holidays in Renaissance style.

Schoolcraft's Madrigal Singers, dressed in period costumes, will be heralded into the Waterman Center by a trumpet fanfare — the first of five fanfares to be presented that evening.

The Madrigal Singers, under the direction of music instructor Bradley Bloom, are the major focus of the dinner celebration.

Bloom explained that the Madrigals, all students in the Schoolcraft choir, present from 12-15 songs throughout the evening with each one highlighting a particular aspect of the dinner.

In addition, The Jones Consort, under the direction of music instructor Bob Jones and consisting of Renaissance instruments such as recorders, harpsichords, violas and others, will play period music throughout the evening.

The feast officially gets under way with the second fanfare marking the presentation of the wassail - hot, spicWassail is served to the court and the essential and the courses have to be audience and a toast is made by the master reveler. However, it is the third fanfare — the presentation of the boar's head in fancy dress - which highlights the evening's festivities.

Benson and assistants Joe Less and Sue Zoma

After the third fanfare, the court and guests indulge on such delicacies as brandied fruit compote, prime rib and Yorkshire pudding, petit rasole potatoes, fresh brussel sprouts and Christmas bread with honey butter and marmalade.

Preparing a holiday dinner is never an easy task, but preparing a feast for 520 people can put even the most seasoned cook in a state of panic. Yet, for Schoolcraft Master Chef and Culinary Arts Assistant Dean Robert Breithaupt coordinating and preparing large dinners are no big deal. With approximately 20 assistants in begun preparations for this weekend's

By Saturday, the chef will have served about 35 prime ribs, 300 pounds of potatoes, 70 pounds of brussel sprouts and 20 cases of burgundy.

In preparing the menu for the feast, Breithaupt said they try to keep it as ready for presentation with the announcement of each fanfare.

To insure that no part of this weekend's feast should spoil, Breithaupt and his assistants have developed an easier way of making

Yorkshire pudding. "When you're preparing it for that many people it has a tendancy to fall before it's served," he said. "With this new method the pudding remains fresh. Following the main dinner is the fourth fanfare announcing the presentation of trays of flaming pudding - the traditional English holiday dessert. Throughout the feast, the audience is entertained by madrigal singers, strolling minstrels, the court jester, magicians and the Jones Consort. A fifth fanfare marks the conclusion of the the kitchen, Breithaupt already has feast and guests are treated to a concert by the Madrigal Singers.

Due to the popularity of the event, the demand for tickets far surpasses the number available, Ellis pointed out. For those unable to partake in this week's event, ticket sales for next year will be announced sometime in the fall.

•Newcomers share holiday recipes

Schoolcraft College Culinary Arts graduate James Valrance treated Northville Newcomers to a demonstration and sampling of holiday pastry recipes at the group's December 1 meeting at the home of Lorne and Chris Ebel.

Valrance, cousin of Ladies Day Co-Chairperson Shar Valrance, prepared a walnut pastry dough and Raspberry Hungarian Rhapsody with the assistance of Chris Ebel.

Thirty-five Newcomers attended the event and brought appetizers to sample and recipes to exchange.

Recipe books containing Newcomers' favorite bors d'oeuvres and Valrance's pastry and dessert selections - including a recipé for Chocolate Mousse were given to each participant at the conclusion of the meeting.

The following recipes were among the Newcomers' favorites and are recommended by them for holiday

Tinter chamber market's a success

Chamber of Commerce president Betty Allen reports that the indoor flea market being sponsored by the chamber on the second Saturday of the month in the Northville Plaza Mall on Seven Mile has been a "great success" the past two months. There were reservations for 44 booths last Saturday. Both this month and last the market attracted good crowds, she adds.

The winter market is an expansion of the summer flea market held in the parking lot of Northville Downs. Spaces may be reserved at $10 each with chamber executive director Kay Keegan at 349-7640. There is no admission charge, of course, for the mall shows.

SPINACH BALLS

2 10-ounce packages frozen, chopped spinach, thawed, drained and squeezed

drv 1 large onion, grated 1 cup grated Parmesan cheese 4 cup (1½ sticks) butter, room temperature

1 teaspoon poultry seasoning Salt and pepper

Preheat oven to 350. Beat eggs lightly in large bowl. Add remaining ingredients and blend well. Roll into walnutsize balls. Transfer to baking sheet. Bake until golden, about 20 minutes. Serve hot.

Spinach balls can be partially baked for 10 minutes, cooled and frozen. Reheat thawed spinach hors d' oeuvres in 350-degree oven for 10-15 minutes.

1 pound hot sausage 4 ounces cheddar cheese, shredded 21/2-3 cups Bisquick

Work ingredients together and forminto balls. Bake at 375 for 15 minutes. Can be frozen. Makes 90 hors d'oeuvres.

Dental Dialogue

of A. Allen Tuchklaper, D.D.S.

"INSTANT" DENTURES

Q. What are immediate den-

A. Immediate dentures are those that are inserted in a patient's mouth the same day the teeth are extracted. This allows you to never be without teeth, and even your friends need not know you had your teeth extracted. Immediate dentures also help prevent the distortion to your face and cheeks that can occur if you wait for regular dentures. However, they do tend to loosen and need to be refitted within a few months because of gum and bone shrinkage. Of course, any denture regardless of its quality or convenience, can never take the place of your natural teeth.

This column is presented in the interest of better dental health. From the office of

State Senator Doug Ross analyzed Michigan's economic problems for the Lakes Area Chamber of Commerce last week

'We never learned to hustle,' Ross assesses economy

By STEPHEN CVENGROS

State Senator Douglas Ross attempted to describe exactly how Michigan fell into the economic predicament it is now facing - high unemployment, businesses either moving to other states or refusing to locate in Michigan and the struggle of the auto industry to

Ironically, Ross' description and answers to questions regarding "how did we get here" and "how can we get out" were spelled out before a backdrop of good news. Behind him, as he addressed the Lakes Area Chamber of Commerce December 5, were gold and red metallic decorations signalling the coming Christmas season and cheer. "Much of Michigan's problems are from what it wanted," the Oak Park Democrat told approximately 55 business people during the luncheon at Laneson's in Commerce Township.

"Michigan was the most successful place during the last stage of the In-dustrial Revolution," Ross observed. He added that the state prospered well and acquired the attitude of a child born to a rich inheritance - the money was always there.

"We never learned to hustle...we were the rich kids and inherited everything."

But the automobile industry set the trends for the entire state, according to the senator.

"Those wages paid to auto workers set the precedent for wages paid to anybody in the state," he said, noting that higher paychecks became a standard that spilled into all areas of the Michigan workforce.

Ross added that the high pay and solid benefit packages were cause for a good economy that made money exchange between consumers and businesses — a given.

"But suddenly, the auto monopoly was broken by Japan. Suddenly because of what we were, we found ourselves in enormous difficulty," the senator said.

And now, he continued, "the auto industry will never employ again the people it used to."

The solution for putting Michigan back together again is instilling the belief that "we can control our destiny," according to Ross.

"If Michigan is going to rebound, which it must and can the job of the state is to try to eliminate those obstacles that...psychologically we, as people living in the state, can control our destiny - we can make things hap-

Part of the formula, according to the economic plans being undertaken by state legislators and officials, is to attract businesses to Michigan and retain not look at Michigan as a whole, but rather, view specific industrial parks or communities they might relocate in.

'When a business decides to move to Michigan it decides to move to a site," the senator said. It is acknowledgment of that thought which is leading Governor William Milliken to seek out and designate a high technology park area. Ross added that it should also serve as part of the impetus behind the proposed expansion of Wixom's Spencer Airport. The attitude of people to do business in Michigan will be shaped by people who do business in it now," the senator added.

In the auto industry, alone, there stands the possibility that in the near future 70-75 percent of the equipment now used will be obsolete, Ross said. Auto manufacturers can take their business anywhere they choose. And for Michigan, it's time to act, according to

"There has never been an aggressive attempt to get Michigan to keep them (the auto makers) here." the senator pointed out. Now, those efforts are being made and could determine the fate of Michigan, he continued.

Michigan now faces the image England had after its industrial surge. Ross said - that is, an area of drab factories and gray, smoke-filled skies. Selling the state as a reborn Minnesota or Washington state with clean water and outstanding services to offer is one of the jobs now facing those interested in Michigan's economy, he noted.

"We're prepared to take the decade of the '80s and make it a new economic

LEON ALTO SUPPLY at 1331 North Lafayette, South Lyon, is under new management. Judy Malincki, formerly of Bay City, took over October I from former owners Chuck Yaney and David Blake. Malecks has expanded the inventory to include foreign car parts as well as American-made parts and is affiliated with the Carquest franchise.

A complete radiator service-repairing and recoring-has also been added to the offerings at Lum Auto, Malecki said. Jeff Eckert ef South Lyon and Tim Lacreik of Highland assist Malecki at the store which is open 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturdays.

THE YELLOW BRICK BOAD did not end at the magical land of Oz but in the community of South Lyon. The Yellow Brick Road, an electronic game areade, is entering its fourth week of business in King Plaza, just south of South Laum on Pontiac Trail. The establishment has 32 electronic games where participants can fight off space invaders or try a more traditional round of pinball. A change machine is also available on the premises. Open to all ages, the YBR maintains the following hours: 11 a.m. to midnight Monday-Thursday; 11 a.m. to 1 a.m. Fridays: 10 a.m. to 1 a.m. Saturdays and 12:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. Sundays.

The new department will operate in addition to its real estate sales department.

Associate Broker Barbara Liewellyn said the company realized a need for this type of service "due to the ever-changing mature of the current real estate market.

"After receiving a number of calls from the public requesting this type of assistance, we feel it is time for us to diversify and expand."

Llewellyn also mentioned that Century 21 has become aware that a seller is occasionally transferred outside of Michigan with plans to return to their same home. Also, with the number of people investing in rental property, often the owner wants a professional to take care of securing tenants, negotiating leases, collecting payments and other aspects of the rental.

MAN BEHIND ROBOTS - Ed Jamieson, Northville resident and owner of Travel Plans Agency at 112 West Main, second from left, made travel arrangements for more than 100 delegates and guests from almost every state who attended the 11th International Symposium and Exhibition on Industrial Robots October 7-12 in Tokyo. Pictured with him are Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Sallot and daughter Ann, rear, of Farmington, and their Japanese hosts. Sallot is chairman of the Robot Institute of America. As managing director for the American delegates, Jamieson accompanied the group studying manufacturing by non-human hands. In Michigan, centers for Robotics study have been established at the University of Michigan : and Oakland University to deal with robot systems and their design.

The International Industrial Robot Symposium was sponsored by the Society of Biomechanisms and the Japan Industrial Robot Association and supported by the Japanese Ministry of International Trade and Industry. In addition to lectures on such topics as software and the agenda included an extensive schedule of visits to such factories as Nissan Motor Company to see automated welding and press lines.

Economics professor predicts turnaround for auto industry

The auto industry will have an excellent op-portunity during the second half of 1982 to boost itself and the State of Michigan out of the economic doldrums, according to a Michigan State University economics professor. Mordechai Kreinin, an authority on the domestic economy, says all signs point to national economic recovery after mid-1982. That recovery, combined with pent-up demand for new automobiles, should mean a strengthened Michigan economy, says

Kreinin. "Declining interest rates, the reduction in the rate of inflation during the current recession, and the 10 percent expected cut in personal income tax are among the factors that will pull the national and state economy out of the recession," he says.

At the same time, the U.S. auto industry will

How to Plan for a Richer Retirement

If you are self-employed, you may be eligible for a tax-qualified retirement plan that permits a tax deduction in excess of $15,000 this year, and up to $30,000 next year.

Such a plan has a formula which is used to determine a pension rather than an annual contribution so you can look forward to your retirement

Here's how much you may get based on your income, and your age when you first participate.

Current Age	Initial Annual Contribution	Maximum Monthly Pension
30	$20,470	$8,091
35	19,102	6,004
40	17,658	5,236
45	16,384	2,893
50	15,314	1,839
55	14,600	1,073
60	16,981	1,163
65	13,971	523

We've a job

Once a week, on Wednesdays, our community newspapers are home delivered by young people just like you (minimum age eleven years old). They're earning money every week and are eligible for our contests for prizes and vacations. More people are reading our newspaper in Pinckney, Howell, Hamburg, Hartland, Brighton, Milford and Highland and therefore, we need additional carriers. So if you live around here and aren't doing anything on Wednesday...

Call our Circulation Department TODAY and leave your name, address, phone number and age.

'Pappy' third brother placed in college Hall of Fame

By JOHN MYERS

Alvin "Al" Wistert was chuckling when he recalled a statement by a writer back then he was playing football at the University of Michigan during the late 1940s.
"Someone once wrote, 'Here comes Pappy and his kids'," the Seven Mile Road resident laughed with a smile.

To the writer, Wistert was "Pappy" and the rest of the Michigan team was "the kids". Reason being, Wistert was a young 30-year-old defensive end for the Wolverines when he began his college playing career at Michigan in the spring of 1946 and the rest of the players' ages ranged from 12 to 22.

Age was not a factor during his playing career, and his accomplishments speak for themselves. Wistert was a two-time All American at defensive end for the Wolverines and was part of a team which won the 1947 Rose Bowl, the 1948 national championship and went undefeated in each of his three seasons there.

For his achievements, Wistert was selected into the National Football Foundation's College Hall of Fame in February. Last week Tuesday at the Waldorf Astoria in New York City, Wistert was formally inducted, along with 10 others, into

The formal coshrinement of all 11 players will take place July 24 at Kings Island in Ohio where the Hall of Fame is located. Two other big names among those 11 are former Dallas Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach and defenseman Bob Lilly. Stauback played his college football for the U.S. Naval Academy from 1962-64 and Lilly played at Texas Christian University from 1958-60.

Wistert's induction into the Hall also made a unique bit of history. The Wisterts became the first family in America to have three brothers, all of whom wore number 11 at the U of M, elected into the College Football Hall of Fame. Alvin's brothers Francis (Whitey) and Albert (Ox) already have been enshired along with their retired jerseys.

"It may not ever happen again," Wistert observed.
Still, Wistert was thrilled to join his brothers in the Hall of Fame.

'It's a great honor, and I'm really flattered to be inducted," he said. "Of course, it was far from my wildest dreams to be inducted.

"As far as I'm concerned, all of this is nice. It is kind of a reward for a job welldone in sports to achieve excellence, perservance, great dedication, self-sacrifice. This is a delayed reward for excellence you might say," Wistert said.

The New York chapter of the National Football Foundation hosted the 24th Annual Awards Dinner December 8. Also, The New York Athletic Club conducted a luncheon December 7 at Club 21 for the players to talk with the media.

"We each gave a couple of minutes' talk on what it meant to us to be in the Hall of Fame," Wistert elaborated on the December 7 luncheon.

Prior to the luncheon and dinner, Wistert, his wife Nancy, his daughter Beverly, who now lives in Houston, Texas, and a cousin Susan Hushen, of Novi, spent a few days touring New York City.

'We saw some stage plays, visited museums, Wall Street, the Brokerage House, and we went to the top of the World Trade Center," he explained.

"Of course, I was told it (New York City) is a wonderful place to visit, but you better bring along three inches of lettuce (money).

"It's about right," added Wistert with a loud laugh.
What also was right was Wistert ending up at Michigan and being a key part of the success the Wolverines enjoyed during his three-year career.

However, his path to football prosperity is different from most others.

"In 1935, I was a high school dropout and went to work in industry and the (military) service," explained Wistert, who served six years in the Marine Corps in World War II. "In 1946, I decided to go back (to school) because I had my GI Bill available. I was working for Procter and Gamble in Quincy, Massachusetts, after being in the service when Boston University announced it was offering people a high school equivalency test.

"I took the test, passed, and was admitted to Boston for the fall of 1946," he recalled.

As a 30-year-old freshman, Wistert played varsity football for Boston. During that season, though, he wrote to Michigan about transferring. He made the transfer to Michigan in January of 1947 after completing his initial semester at Boston. Also, he played spring ball for the Wolverines and won the Norton Trophy as the Most Improved Freshman.

In his first full varsity season with Michigan in the fall of 1947, the squad went undefeated and whipped the University of Southern California, 49-0, in the Rose Bowl under the direction of coach Fritz Crisler.

Crisler retired after that game, became the U of M athletic director and hired Bennie Oosterbaan as coach.

Alvin "Al" Wistert (left) was honored at halftime of the University of Michigan/-Northwestern game this fall for his selection into the National Football Foundation's College Hall of Fame. At right is his brother Albert, who also is in the Hall

Townsley, Kucher retire; Heck hired Two coaches are out, and one is Northville gymnastics coach Jack Townsley and baseball coach Robert Kucher have decided to let someone else take over the coaching reins for their respective sports this year.

"There are several reasons," said Townsley of stepping down. "One of the them, although the team had phenomenal success compared to what it used it have, was my background was very

"We needed someobdy who knew more (about gymnastics) than I did," he added.

Townsley handled the coaching chores for three years. The Mustangs only won once his first season, but last year he guided the team to the Western Six Conference championship. It was the first time the conference had such a championship meet. The Mustangs made the regionals in his second season as coach.

"That was very exciting for me, the parents and the kids," Townsley said.

"It was a great enjoyment to me," said Townsley of his coaching tenure. "It's a terrific sport for the kids because of the ability, strength and competitiveness."

He also is proud of the way he turned the gymnastics program around at Northville

"I'll tell you one thing. It's in a lot better shape than when I picked it up," he boasted.

Replacing Townsley is Debbie Heck, who has been officiating gymnastics for the past six years.

"I want to give it (coaching) a she explained. "It's easy being an official because it is not as much work as a coach.'

Mustang grapplers win initial two mat contests

While the Northville wrestling team was racking up its initial two wins of the season, it also lost three more.

The Mustangs grappled against five opponents in two days and were only able to come out with one victory each Farmington handed Northville its first loss of the week, 52-25, last week Tuesday. However, the Mustangs turned right around the same day and downed Inkster Cherry Hill, 39-30.

Northville wrestled in the Novi Quadangular Saturday. The Mustangs were victorious over Livonia Bentley, 48-25, but fell to defeat against rival Novi, 48-21, and Monroe Jefferson, 42-

The week's 2-3 record put the Mustangs' overall mark at 2-5. Northville was involved in a triangular meet with Howell and South Lyon Tuesday. The Mustangs will be in action Thursday against Livonia Churchill and will travel to the Trenton Invitational Friday and Saturday.

At the Novi Quad, Vince Candela, John Naar, Dan Sackllah and Neil Fitzpatrick were the only big winners, but coach Gary Emerson said there were about three or four other Mustang wrestlers who might have been able to turn losses to victories.

"A lot of guys were close (to winning)," Emerson said. "(John) Naar lost (Jack) Wallace lost 2-0 and (Dan) Sackliah almost had his man pinned, but then ended up on his back," he add-Emerson said his young squad is starting to come along and added, "We're getting closer to what we want to do.

'We're winning two out of three matches with our better wrestlers," Emerson said.

At heavyweight, Candela won by pins over his Bentley and Novi opponents and he actually had a third win - a triumph against Monroe Jefferson, who did not have a heavyweight wrestler.

Naar, wrestling at 119 pounds, also won by pins over his Monroe and Novi opponents, but lost a tough 4-3 decision to his Bentley foe.

Fitzpatrick, wrestling for the first time since having stitches removed from his forehead, pinned all three of his opponents at the Novi Quad in the 185-pound division.

Wrestling at 167, Sackllah recorded pins over his Monroe and Bentley foes, but was pinned himself in the Novi

Other winners for the Mustangs include Wallace, at 138, with a pin over his Monroe opponent; Ernie Bock, at 145, with a 10-9 decision in his Novi match; and Steve Smith winning by a void against Bentley in the 155-pound weight class.

Only Candela and Collins were double winners on Tuesday. Candela record two pins, while Collins won a 4-2 decision over his Farmington opponent and pinned his Cherry Hill opponent.

Wallace won two matches - one by void against Farmington at 145 pounds and pinning his Cherry Hill foe. Mike Davis recorded his first win as sophomore with an 11-4 decision over his Cherry Hill opponent at 126 pounds. Both Bock, at 155, and Sackllah, at 167, were winners by pins in their Cherry Hill matches. Jim Assemany, at 98, won by default in his Cherry Hill match.

"It went pretty much as expected," said Emerson of the Farmington and Cherry Hill matches.

'The good kids are winning and the first year wrestlers are coming along," he added. "We're still trying to get a set line up and we got a little closer to that Saturday."

Scouts honored

Nine cub scouts of Pack 223 at Amerman Elementary School received their Bobcat badges. They were Donny Campbell, Dennis Grey, Dennis Laakso, John Snage, John St. Clair, Paul Warner, Stefan Filkin, Dino Poulos and Richard Walters.

The pack also was able to see an Indian performance by Chuck Guibea, who demonstrated some fire dances and wore Indian costumes.

The Mustangs played their fifth consecutive road game Tuesday night in Howell.

The first home contest is 6 p.m. Friday against conference rival Livonia Churchill.

Northwile notched its second win of the season against Farmington, 48-47, last

Trailing the Warriors 53-45 with just over four minutes left, the Mustangs started a furious scoring rally which netted them 10 points in a span of three minutes to pull within four, 59-55, with 57 seconds remaining

Senior forward Tim Wagner, who paced the Mustangs with 13 points, connected on a baseline jumper with eight seconds left to cut Western's lead to 59-57. And that's the way it remained.

Northville had battled valiantly late in the second half to get itself in the ballgame. Western came out like gangbusters in third quarter and quickly spurted to a 33-22 advantage with 6:40 remaining. It turned out to a lead the Mustangs could Northville had jumped out to a 13-10 lead after one period, but lost its shooting bouch late in the second quarter and trailed at halftime, 27-22.

Western used an effective three-quarter and half court press against Northville which Lates praised.

Mustang miscues in applying the pressure. "When you get behind, you have to start pressuring," Lutes explained. "Our gambling hurt us."

However, he was pleased by the comeback effort of the squad even though he cited the team was flat in the first half against Western.

Tim McLauhglin followed Wagner in the scoring department with 11 points. Bong Eaker sank nine points and Lang tossed in eight. Against Farmington, the Mustangs played strong in the first half in taking a 34-

23 lead at the intermission, but things fell apart in the third quarter, and Northville tiad to hang on for victory. McLaughlin was high scorer for Northville with 17 points and Eaker added

Settles 15th at state; wins team MVP award

The Northville girls' swim team season may have ended at the Western Six Conference meet November 18, but it went a little farther for one swimmer in par-

Senior Trish Settles participated in the state meet December 5 at Michigan State University in the only event for which she qualified - the 50-yard freestyle event. Although she did not qualify for the consolation finals or finals, she did manage to place 15th with her time of 25.52. It was one of her best times this season.

According to first-year coach Bill Dicks, Settles time would have placed her ahead of one girl who swam in the consolation heat for seventh through 12th places and ahead of two girls in the final heat for first through sixth places

As a junior, Settles qualified in the 500-yard freestyle event, but failed to place in

The enthusiastic coach also offered some additional information about the performance of his squad at the league championship meet. Plymouth Canton dethroned Northville by winning the meet with 266 points to the Mustangs' 259.

Every single girl swam her personal best (time) at the league meet." be said. Settles won two individual events and was part of a winning relay team. She was league champ in the 50- and 500-yard freestyle events and was part of the champion 200-yard medley relay team with along with Khris Korowin, Landa Shott and Kathy

Pive awards were handed out at the Northville girls swimming banquet last Settles was the team's Most Valuable Swimmer and High Point Junior; Kim Thompson was the squad's High Point Sophomore; Holly Sellen won the Most Team Spirit award; and Shott was the Mustangs' Most Improved Swimmer.

Members of the team this season were sophomores Cathy Swayer, Sue Shureb, Shott and Thompson and juniors Vickie Grice, Peggy Herald, Tish Johnson, Bainbridge, Korowin, Sellen and Settles.

That is hard to imagine when the closest an opposing team has come to beating Northville was 15 points, but Harrison said the scores really don't reflect how close the games have been. He says his team does not really pull away from anybody until the final few minutes of the contest.

The most recent win for Northville was a 58-43 thumping of Walled Lake Western in a W-Six match up Friday night. Harrison said the Warriors were within five at a point late in the game,

Individual Ketirement Accou And Receive A $10 Cash Gift

Under a new tax law, every working person can have an IRA account, beginning January, 1982, even though he/she participates in a qualified pension plan. And, to make it easy for you to have your IRA ready for use in January, you can pre-enroll during December.

Here's How You Do It.

Insurance Corporation.

• In December, stop in at any Security Bank office and pre-enroll in your IRA account that takes effect January 2, 1982.

A $200 opening balance effective January 2, 1982 is required to receive the gift.

 The $10 gift is yours in January when the account is officially opened. This new IRA eligibility means every wage earner can make annual tax-deductible contributions of $2,000 ($2,250 spousal) or 100% of income, whichever is less, to an IRA. Interest earned is tax-deferred until retirement when you should be in a lower tax bracket. And, at that time you pay taxes only on the funds as you withdraw them. What's more, your IRA deposits are insured to $100,000 by the Federal Deposit

At Security Bank you will earn a high interest rate when you deposit funds in our new 18-Month Certificate of Deposit. The rate is set periodically by the bank. Your initial contributions may be added to at any time without extending the 18-month maturity. The minimum deposit is $25. (Remember, opening balance of $200 is required to receive the cash gift.)

Besides this new investment instrument, there are several other certificates in which you can place your funds—including the 30-Month Money Market Certificate and the 26-Week Money Market Certificate.* For details on rates and maturities, ask at any Security Bank office.

Federal regulations provide certain limits on your annual IRA contributions, and also require substantial interest penalties and I.R.S. penalties for early withdrawal.

The undefeated 1948 squad wan the national championship and west undefeated again in 1949 under Ossterbaan's tutelage. In both years, the 6-foot-4, 248-pound Wistert was named All American

Being the elder statesman of the chb, Wistert said the players did look up to him for advice because of his age. "I was almost looked on as a player-coach," he said. But coaches Crisier and Oosterbaan just regarded him as just one of the players.

Despite being undefeated and champions of the Big Ten Conference to '48 and '49, the Wolverines did sat return to the Rose Bowl because of a league rule which prohibited a team from appearing again for at least two years from its last appearance.

Missing the chance to perform in three consecutive Rose Bowl's did not

"It was accepting the rules of life and the game," he said Though he may have appeared in only one Rose Bowl, Wistert relished the fact the Wolverines defeated the University of Missesota all three times he played against the Golden Gophers.

To me, those three games stack out most. They (Minnesota) were a big, strong, tough looking team," he related. "It pleased the hell out of me to beat them three years in a row.

'My kid brother (Albert) never beat Minnesota when he played," Wistert added. "I vowed 'no way will Minnesota ever beat me. Over my

For Kocher, relieving himself of the Mustang baseball duties marked the end of long 20-year cameer in the sport.

"I felt it was a good time to get out of it and pur-ue some other opportunities," be explained. One additional reason was his son Gary graduated from Northville this spring and Kucher thought the time was right to make the move. The one endeavor Kucher is concentrating on the most is football officiating. This past season he had a full state of Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association college games and a couple of Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference contests in addition to junior high and high school games.

Kocher said he has applied for officiating in the Mid-American Conference next year. He ultimately would like to become a Big Ten referee.

Even though it was a tough decision to ratire, Kucher also feels good about about what he ac-

We won three league championships when Northrille was in the Wayne/Oakland league and we won the school's first Western Six title," he said.

What made winnning the W-Six title special to the one-time St. Louis Cardinals' scout was he had returned to coaching after spending seven years as Northville's athletic director. Previous to that be had coached the team in the Wayne/Oakland con-

Even though today's meet against Hartland is only a scrimmage, first-year coach Debbie Heck sees the meet in a different light.

"It gives the team a goal to work for," she explained. "It also will help get the first meet jitters

The scrimmage signals the start of action for the Mustangs as they prepare to defend their Western Six Conference title. Heck has 13 gymnasts out for the squad, five of whom are returning

The top returnee is senior Paula Broderick, who has qualified for the state meet two straight years.

The all-around performer sustained a hand injury in last season's state meet while performing on the uneven bars. She also is the defending W-Six all-around champion.

Amy Aaron is the other returnee who Heck sees as an all-around performer. Aaron was fourth in the league last season in the vaulting competition.

Other returnees include Tish Johnson, Marian Rothermal and Laura Kiraly. The rest of the team is comprised of Wendy Woberman, Katie Sherman, Tia Rathburn, Christin Tomalty, Sue Barnes, Tina Alexandris, Lisa Whitmyer and Kim Meek. Barnes is being counted on as an all-around performer,

"We have a lot of potential," Heck said. The team has been practicing since November 15, and Heck is anxious to compete today since the Mustangs do not go at it again until January. "Even though it doesn't count, it helps put them in the mind (for competing) early," she said. Heck also views the scrimmage as a chance for the team to go through its routines and then be able to make some refinements afterwards.

Divine Child downs OLV cagers, 35-19

A tall Dearborn Divine Child squad proved to be too much for Northville's Our Lady of Victory to handle and OLV fell to defeat, 35-19, in a Catholic Youth Organization seventh and eighth grade basketball game.

OLV's tallest player stands at 5-foot-9. while Divine Child has an abundance of height with three players standing at 6-feet or taller.

The Northville squad played tough defense and held the Dearborn club scoreless from the floor until midway through the second period. Divine Child paraded to the foul line in building a 13-7 halftime lead. Both teams traded points in the third quarter and the Falcons pulled away from

OLV in the final stanza. Sean McLaughlin paced OLV with 12 points. Joe Brielmaier and Doug Martin each added two points and John Regan, Dan Kozlowski and Kevin Coty all
