TWENTY-FIVE CENTS

Property owners protest assessment hike

By KEVIN WILSON

With recent state legislative changes lighting the fuse, the all but dormant issue of property taxation has exploded into furious new activity this week in Northville Township and may do the same in the city next week.

More than 300 township property owners are expected to appeal assessment increases averaging near eight percent before the board of review which began meeting yesterday. Extra days and hours have been added to the board schedule to accommodate the demand and a Sunday session is being considered. The township supervisor is planning an appearance on behalf of all property holders (see related story) and school board representatives may be stationed as observers of the tumult.

"God, what inefficiency," said township treasurer Richard Henningsen of the legal changes. "People should be writing their legislators. It (new law) creates more work for township government and doesn't help people with their real problem."

Anticipating the furor resulting from recent state legislation that required notices of assessment increases to every property owner, the township is this year for the first time requiring appointments be made to appear before the board.

As of Monday night, 236 persons had made appointments and Clerk Susan Heintz said there were another 67 names on a waiting list to be notified of cancellations, extended hours or an added day. Residents stood five and six deep at the treasurer's office waiting to review the new tax roll.

The board of review, which was to meet March 2-3 and March 8-9 in six-hour sessions is now scheduled to meet March 4, 5 and 6 as well, and some days will hear appeals of assessed valuations for as long as 12 hours on 15 minute intervals (lunch and dinner breaks are scheduled). Henningsen said a Sunday, March 7, session also is being considered.

Although appointments have been accepted for the past several weeks, the rush came in the past week as township property owners received assessment increase notices. City property owners in the Wayne County portion should receive similar notices by the end of this week.

Henningsen said roughly 75 assessment notices have been returned to township hall as undeliverable. Those property owners who have not yet received one should call the township to check if it is among those, he said.

The treasurer said he has contacted board of education president Karen Wilkinson and "invited them to assign school board members to attend all sessions of the board of review and see just what goes on at the township level on property taxes. She said that, yes, she'd have some people here for some of the sessions."

The school district millage comprises more than 70 percent of township property taxes, but the issue being focused upon this week is property valuations as reflected in notices recently received by all township property owners or purchasers.

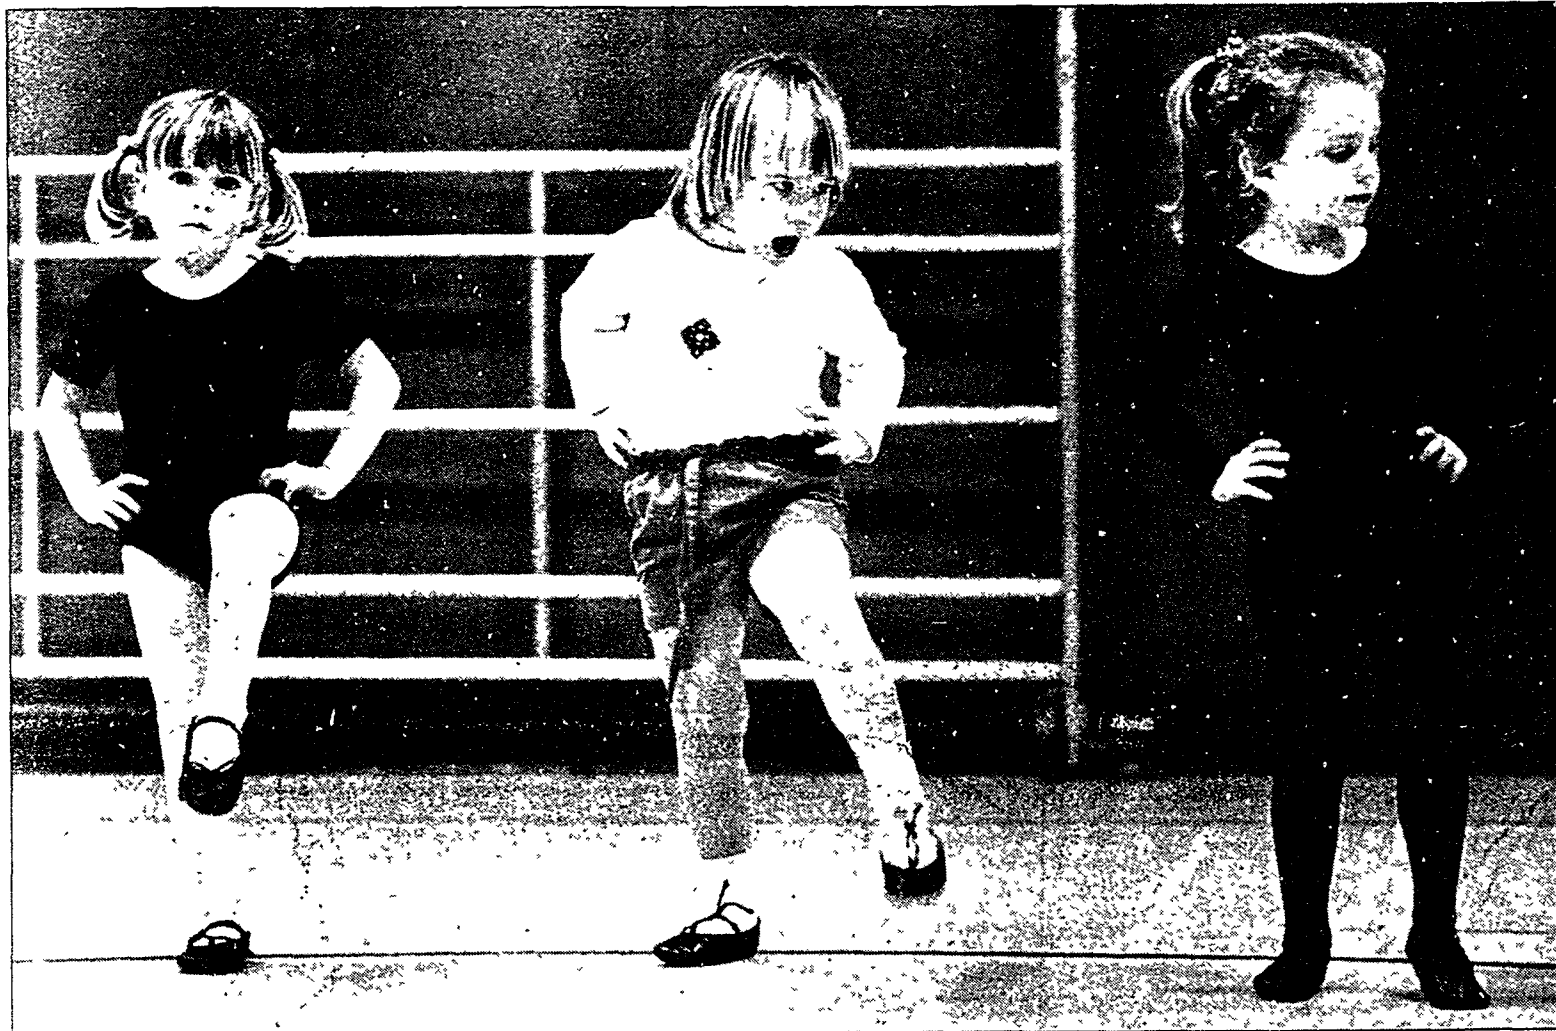

Under new truth-in-assessment legislation, there is, in effect, no state equalization factor in use. Instead, assessments have been increased in accordance with the factor indications and the factor has been set at 1.0.

Assessed valuations (AVs) therefore, are the same as the State Equalized Value (SEV). On its own, an AV should reflect nearly 50 percent of the property's market value.

While it creates no increase or decrease in actual tax levels, the new law also required notification of the valuation increase to all property holders, rather than to only the percentage whose property is new or has been improved as was past practice.

There is suspicion among some township residents that the new AV, created as it was from a system of estimations based on 10-year-old evaluations of property values and from sales figures compiled in the past 30 months, cannot accurately reflect

MacDonald appeals township increase

Residential property owners in Northville Township could see elimination of the recently revealed eight percent rise in assessments for 1982 tax purposes if Supervisor John MacDonald can accomplish his aims.

MacDonald said Saturday he is prepared to appeal the increase to the Michigan Tax Tribunal and as chief assessor will appear before the township board of review March 9 to begin the process.

If the appeal fails, township board members indicated they would favor a millage rollback to accomplish roughly the same aim.

MacDonald's appeal—essentially would request a reduction in the multiplier factor used to compute taxable property values, even though the factor is no longer operable. The valuation increase applied by county assessors is the equivalent of the difference between the 1981 factor of 2.64 and the preliminary 1982 figure of 2.84.

The latter figure will not appear on tax bills or assessment notices, however, since new truth-in-assessment legislation led county officials to apply the increase directly to assessed valuations rather than to a factor—which this year is established as 1.0 as a result.

There is no difference in the dollar amounts of tax bills to be paid under the new computation method.

MacDonald's appeal will be grounded on the assumption county sales records do not accurately reflect home values in the midst of a slump in the market. The assessment rise is based on 30-month (1979-81) records of home sales. Less than 50 such sales were recorded in the last year.

The small number of sales and the predominance of seller-financing methods, it has been argued, skew those figures to show housing values higher than actual, market conditions allow.

Treasurer Richard Henningsen noted that the increase most property owners will appeal is the one MacDonald is also fighting.

"Few of the people who want to appear at the board of review have serious errors or omissions to reveal (the primary purpose of the hearings is to unveil these)," he said. "Most seem to just be angry about the constant increases, and I can't blame them."

He pointed out that state law requires the board of review hear all individual protests, even though he would like those aimed at the 1982 assessment increase to be stated in letters that would support MacDonald's argument rather than restated repeatedly before the board of review.

NEWS BRIEFS

EXTRA SESSIONS of the township board of review have been scheduled to accommodate the large numbers of homeowners wishing to appeal property tax assessments. Sessions are now slated every day March 2-6 and also March 8-9. Appointments should be made at township hall, 41600 Six Mile Road, 348-9000. There are no May sessions of the board; May dates cited in a Record story last week were in error.

NORTHVILLE BOARD of Education will conduct an evaluation of School Superintendent Lawrence Nichols at 9 a.m. Saturday in the board conference room at Main Street Elementary School. The meeting is open to the public.

NORTHVILLE GIRLS' GYMNASIICS team qualified 12 members for regional competition March 13, while heavyweight wrestler Vince Candela advanced to the state meet Saturday. For more details, see page 6-C.

A SCAVENGER hunt through the community by cast and crew of the Northville High production of "Grease" will be held Saturday. Participants wearing "Grease" T-shirts will be seeking play props while selling tickets to the production being given March 19-20, 26-27, at the high school. They are $3 for adults, $2.50 for students.

GIRL SCOUT WEEK, March 7-13, officially was recognized by proclamation of Mayor Paul Vernon and city council after 10 uniformed Brownie and Junior Scouts and their leaders opened Monday's council meeting with a flag salute and the pledge of allegiance. "All residents are encouraged to pay tribute to this commendable organization in celebration of 70 years of scouting," reads the tribute.

Low track revenues spell tighter budget

Disappointing racetrack returns is one of the reasons that will make further budget tightening revisions necessary, city council learned Monday night.

City Manager Steven Walters said track revenues were down by $74,814 from the expected $277,322 for January and February.

Walters attributed the lower actual return of $202,508 to the severe cold and loss of two of the 24 nights of racing in February to the weather.

"I'll be watching the March returns night-by-night," he promised council as he said that a budget discussion would be needed at the next council session.

School facilities studied

A possible change in the Northville Public Schools' current grade structure and an examination of closing one of the district's seven schools will be reviewed by the Northville Board of Education at its meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Old Village School.

A citizens' advisory committee, which has been studying the district's future facility needs since last October, will be reporting their findings to the board at its meeting Monday night.

The committee, consisting of 20 citizen volunteers, will give three separate reports and recommendations to the board. Reports will include demographics, grade structure and facilities.

One of the committee's reports will examine a possible change in the district's grade structure from the current system to a middle school concept with grades K-5 at the elementary level, grades 6-8 at the middle school level and grades 9-12 at the senior high level.

The possibility of closing one of the district's schools also will be examined in light of the enrollment decline which has plagued the district for the past seven years.

The citizens' committee on future facility needs was established to review the cost efficiency of the district's school buildings.

For the past five months, the committee, which divided itself into three subcommittees, has been gathering data and information in order to compile a comprehensive report for the board of education's review.

The committee visited all the district's facilities, gathered population data and growth projections, reviewed articles and enrollment statistics and consulted with resource persons in and around the Northville school district.

He said he and comptroller Betty Lennox would have adjustments ready for the council to look at then.

The second March session was postponed to the fourth Monday, March 22, at 8 p.m., in order for the council to attend an information hearing on the Oakland County Solid Waste Plan at the Novi city council on March 15.

Walters called January's racetrack performance "dismal" as he noted that February results showed some improvement but suffered from two nights lost.

He contrasted the city's share of $116,776 in January of this year to last year's $163,923. This February's return was $111,263 in contrast to last February's of $139,364. In addition, the state this year is holding back 11.2 percent of the track revenues to help its own budget.

Further, Walters warned, the estimate that the returns will be short by $74,814 is based on the assumption that March and April of this year will produce the same level return as last year.

Even if extra racing dates are scheduled to make up for those canceled by weather, the council noted, it would be impossible to recoup.

Councilmember Carolann Ayers reported that the next revenue sharing payment due will be delayed by the state until March 22.

Walters also stated that both the police officers and the department of public works employees' unions have indicated that they are not interested in concessions.

He said the council will have to be looking at personnel reductions in the budget revision.

At Monday's session the council adopted a resolution designating Manufacturers National Bank as the depository for police department funds. The action was taken after the city received notification from the 35th District Court that it will not accept cash transactions for appearance bonds.

Councilmember J. Burton DeRusha, council liaison to the district court, reported he had received notification from George R. Wiland, court administrator, advising that the city is responsible for a portion of "start-up" costs for the court, not included in the bonding.

DeRusha said the city's share was quoted at $81,126. Both he and Walters disputed the percentage figure used as the court costs are divided with Northville and Plymouth townships, the cities of Plymouth and Canton.

In question was the percentage split based on initial use. Northville's was about 29 percent, Plymouth's 28 and Canton's 30 with the remainder divided between the two townships.

DeRusha said he would seek a detailed explanation of the percentage split and the actual costs, noting that a meeting with Wiland has been set up for this Thursday.

Downtown celebration slated Michigan Week

It's still more than two months away, but Northville's 1982 observance of Michigan Week will be a special celebration as it is to climax with a three-day salute centered around the dedication of the city's new downtown renovation project.

Titled Our Town Downtown, the festivities focusing on the dedication of the city's innovative self-help project will be in addition to the traditional Michigan Week activities.

The salute will feature two formal luncheons, probably a visit by Governor William Milliken, concerts, and a day of family festivity, according to publicity co-chairmen Ted Strasser and Jack Hoffman.

Our Town Downtown takes place Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 20-23. Michigan Week itself starts four days earlier, on Sunday, May 16. The traditional Exchange Day program brings to town officials of Lapeer on Monday, May 17.

As part of the Our Town Downtown salute, The Record will produce a commemorative newspaper section tracing the history of the downtown self-help project that has captured national attention. This section will portray the Mainstreet '78 project, in words and pictures, from start to finish.

Other dedication-related activities are being planned by civic organizations, school groups and service clubs.

The formal dedication will take place in the town square opposite the theater.

Township police expect to use fewer general funds

Township police operations are expected to take a slightly smaller bite out of the community's general fund revenues in the coming year. According to police chief Kenneth Hardesty, the proposed budget he submitted to the township board in a hearing will require $2,000 support from the general fund. The 15 mill property tax levy allocated to the department for the year beginning April 1 generates $1,000 while expenditures are expected to hit $482,397 in the year. That presents an increase of about 12 percent over 1980-81 spending levels.

what we want to do, that is move toward making that department as self-supporting as possible," according to supervisor John MacDonald. That effort will be given a boost in the next fiscal year, beginning in 1983, when revenue from the 0.7 mill police levy approved by voters last year finally comes on line. For now, though, MacDonald said he was pleased there was no increase in the amount of general funding needed by the department.

Most attention was directed to income and expenditure expectations for participation with the 35th District Court operation.

Hardesty's projections show revenues from that source of $132,000 next year, an average of $11,000 per month. Treasurer Richard Henningsen was concerned that revenues have not been at that level in the past year.

"What you have to remember, though," Hardesty said, "is that I was running the department short-handed a lot of the time with injuries and, for awhile there, a laid off patrolman. When my men are all on the road, they generate that much. When we had everybody on the road, we posted $13,000 and $14,000 in a month."

Henningsen pointed out there were other months as low as $4,000 and he was uneasy about committing to a revenue projection such as the one presented. Township court payments are expected to be $131,840 — leaving a margin of less than $200 he noted.

MacDonald pointed out, however, that the bill includes swift payback of the construction costs for the Canton court building, and in the long-term revenue retained by the township could be much larger.

Henningsen said the financial aspects of the activity "really says you've tied in the police to pay for that building, you've got to keep them on the road."

Hardesty said Monday, however, that he does not view the situation in that light.

"We are not worried about that, those revenue projections are based on what I legitimately expect from normal enforcement. You won't see a big push to generate income, and there are no quotas," he said. "If there is an increase, it will be in prosecution of drunk drivers, and that's an enforcement issue. They are dangerous and we intend to get as many of them off the road as we can. As for paying for that building, I don't see that as our responsibility."

Colony basin malfunctions

Greenspan Development Corporation will be required to grade and fence the area surrounding a retention pond on the southern portion of Northville Colony III subdivision before the township will issue any more building permits or certificates of occupancy for the development.

The current terrain, building official Troy Milligan and consulting engineer Edward McNeely assert, routes drainage into the Park Gardens subdivision to the south.

Speaking before the township planning commission last week, Milligan said the builder deposited mounds of earth for use in the Colony Estates IV final grading in such a way that it impedes operation of the retention pond and routes drainage onto Park Gardens property, where the water table is already high and septic failures frequent.

"We've let this happen," Milligan said. "I didn't know it was back there until Mrs. (Liz) McCarville (of Fry) showed it to me. The roads are blocked off from Colony III, I hadn't been back there."

The building inspector said he recommends that the planning commission, in future reviews, require that if a retention pond is part of the drainage plan it be built first and graded properly so as not to affect adjoining properties.

The discussion was related to proposed bonding and escrow requirements for drainage systems introduced for discussion by McNeely.

Milligan said the township "has always had a good relationship with Fred Greenspan" and laid a portion of the blame for the problem with the township. Now, he said, he hopes to have the problem cleared up in early spring.

"I'm trying to find out if we ever returned his bond money on that,"

Milligan said, "because if we did we have essentially agreed to accept it the way it is."

When McCarville asked what the township could do to obtain swift resolution, Milligan said he hoped the order banning permits and certificates of occupancy would do the trick.

"We're hitting him right in the pocketbook," Milligan said. "It's all we can do. He has six or eight models to sell, and without a certificate he can't do that, even if he's not building this year. I'm not going to harass the man now, if he shows good faith effort I'm going to let him work."

Commission chairman Kenneth McLarty said he thought the pond in its present state might qualify as a "legal nuisance" and told McCarville the township "knows we have to clean up the retention pond one way or another."

Zone law sent to board of trustees

After more than a year of work revising Northville Township's zoning ordinance the planning commission has recommended it to the board of trustees for final disposal.

Following unanimously February 23, the commission sent the final draft document recently okayed by the state mobile home commission, to the board of the Wayne County Planning Commission concurrently.

The board will likely state a public hearing before adoption of the ordinance, which has been revised from the ground up.

One unique feature of the revision came at the end, as the state mobile home commission authorized a zoning restriction that prohibits mobile home parks adjacent to single family housing regions. Planning consultant Claude Coates said he believes the township is the first community in the state to justify such a restriction in terms of the mobile home authorities find acceptable.

Other provisions of the revision include enlarged lot sizes and lower densities in single family housing regions, creation of a new "convenience shopping" zoning class that would limit such centers to 10 acres maximum size, and inclusion in the main text of the amended zoning class for multiple housing for elderly persons.

The map to be published with the document also includes some changes of zoning from those currently in place.

Dumas, Sherman declare for Republican nomination

An incumbent and relative newcomer will face off for Republican nomination to the 10th District seat on the pared-down Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

Mary E. Dumas, who presently represents the 19th District (Livonia, Northville and Northville Township) will face Livonia police officer Barry M. Sherman in the Republican primary August 3.

Both are seeking the nomination for the newly-created 10th District (the former 19th District plus Plymouth, Plymouth Township and one Westland precinct).

Dumas is among the crowd of county commissioners trying to ensure that they are not among the dozen who will lose their jobs under the new home-rule charter — a document Dumas herself helped draft. A county executive will take office and 15 commissioners will replace the current 27 after the election.

Sherman, past president and current member of the Clarenceville Board of Education, declared for the 10th District seat a week before Dumas made her announcement. Sherman said he is seeking the office out of "a sincere desire to represent the people of the 10th District under the newly adopted charter." Dumas, who is running for her seventh term as a county commissioner, said her reelection bid is motivated by a desire to participate in the new county government she had a hand in shaping.

She was the only commissioner who worked on the charter ballot proposal committee for an elected executive. While projecting herself as a leader in county reform, Dumas suggested a total housecleaning might be short-sighted.

"Even though we will have a new administrative head," she said, "you still will need a few experienced people who can recognize the pitfalls of the old bureaucracy, much of which will still be there, and those few ought to be individuals who have fought for the reforms and want to help them succeed."

Sherman, elected to the Clarenceville board in 1977 and tapped again in '79, is also a past-treasurer of the board. The 30-year-old is married and has a 6-year-old son and 4 year-old daughter. He earned his bachelor of arts degree from Madonna College in 1974 following an associate of arts from Schoolcraft earned in 1972. He is a 1969 Clarenceville High graduate.

Supervisor Pat Modos exits plant

Ford plant review begins, supervisors moved

By KEVIN WILSON

Ford Motor Company has begun its review of the announced closing of its Northville Valve Plant, as agreed to as part of the national contract signed Monday in Dearborn.

Virtually all chances for a reopening here hinged on the new national agreement approved 3-1 by the UAW rank-and-file last week. Northville Plant workers were the first to approve the contract that expires September 14, 1984 and replaces one that would have ended September 14 this year.

Attention now turns to implementation and negotiation of local agreements, including one that could encourage reopening of the facility. Under the new contract, UAW locals are permitted more independence from the international union in forming such agreements and local 836 president Norm Fultz said he believes this could augment efforts to have the plant reopened.

Fultz, who as a member of the bargaining team signed the contract Monday, is still optimistic about chances for reopening, despite Ford's transfer of several salaried employees of the plant to other facilities.

According to local union representatives, seven salaried employees were transferred Monday with most going to the Dearborn Engine Plant to which the Northville one is ancillary, and there are only three salaried employees left at the plant.

That does not include central Ford administrative employees working on the review however. Union sources said valve plant labor relations representative George Antoine is one those remaining.

When the supervisory workers left at the end of the work day Friday, the plant whistle was blown several extra times to bid farewell, though no one has ruled out a possible return of those employees to the valve plant. Approached as they left the plant Wednesday, the salaried workers indicated they could make no comment.

Signing of the contract brings at least one certain benefit to the members of local 836 — restoration of supplemental unemployment benefits cut off or reduced in January. Part of the new agreement calls for a $70 million credit to the fund from which SUB is drawn.

One other bit of good news for those laid off early in the closing process here was the announcement by Michigan Employment Security Commission authorities that the extended benefit program (EB) has been restored in the state.

Triggered by high unemployment levels, the program switched off in late November, ending eligibility for 13 weeks of extended unemployment benefits after exhaustion of the regular benefits.

Some 34,000 potential claimants in the state supposedly missed out on EB when the employment level barely exceeded the trigger level. In addition, MESC officials estimated another 50,000 Michigan jobless have exhausted benefits since.

City receives fewer BG funds

As its approved application for city projects for 1982 Community Development Block Grant funds from Wayne and Oakland counties at Monday night's council session, the city learned that the Oakland grant will be $10,000 this year, not the anticipated $15,000.

The figure was received the end of last week with the notification that Oakland County's allocation from the federal government was $4,655,000, a 11.4 percent reduction from last year's $5,256,000.

The city expects to receive about $80,000 from the Wayne County grant although City Manager Steven Walters told the council he has not received official word.

The council voted unanimously to approve the retirement of the library addition bond issue and additional Downtown Development District improvements, as discussed in public hearings, for the Wayne County funds.

It also unanimously approved earmarking Oakland County funds for improvements to Ford Field and for public shelter improvements at city hall.

Third priority was given as improving sidewalks to meet barrier-free standards.

As it approved priorities for the Oakland County grant funds, the council discussed the still unsettled future of Ford Field in the light of the valve plant closing, stating that funds would be held until disposition was known.

Walters said the barrier-free sidewalk improvements might be accomplished with funds remaining from the lower-than-anticipated bids for bringing toilet facilities at city hall up to the standard.

He noted that the generator to make city hall a disaster shelter area had a price tag alone of about $10,000.

All proposed projects comply with grant goals, Walters said. The Wayne County application improves the central downtown and provides needed public facilities while the Oakland application is geared to the goal of improving public facilities also.

Marking 90

Rotarian C. A. Smith was the surprised recipient of a birthday cake, tributes and good wishes when he attended Northville Rotary Club's February 23 luncheon meeting at First Presbyterian Church. President Dewey Gardner, left, looks on as the birthday honoree receives the cake marking 90 active years. Smith still heads the Goodfellows' Christmas season paper sale and already is planning the annual Law Day program for youth that the club sponsors in May.

Tax law changes pressure township review board current value. The assessment legislation has brought more attention to the effects of property value increases on the total bill and is drawing more protest. Add to that the conviction of many at the recent housing market slump is not being accurately reflected in property valuation assessments and there is the makings of the widespread rush on the board of review.

In addition to the appeal route being pursued by individuals and the township supervisor, however, there is also new truth in taxation legislation that will bring the millage-setting system into the spotlight as well (see related story).

Henningsen is angered by assessment rules changes in particular, noting added costs to the township for conduct of board of review sessions that are not related to errors or omissions, the customary reasons for appeals.

The township will have to hire or find an extra typist to process the added workload of follow-up notices after the board is done, he related.

The new legislation has been viewed by officials of local governments statewide as an attempt by state legislators to remove pressures for property tax reform from Lansing and place it on local governments. The state receives no property tax revenues, but local officials claim reductions in state revenue sharing constitute an effort to balance the state budget by forcing local government to pay for state-mandated programs with local tax dollars.

Meanwhile, the city is gearing up for the beginning of its board of review sessions next Tuesday. The situation is somewhat different from that in township, however, in part because the community is split between Wayne and Oakland Counties.

In the past year, the city has had reappraisals done of residential property values in the Wayne County portion, following a rapid rise last year due to equalization by class institution. Even without truth in assessment, the city factor would have been close to 1.0.

"In general," a city press release states, "assessments on older residences will increase. This increase is based on 1981 sales in the city, of which there were 30."

Of the 30, 13 were in the last six months, the release states, and on average all were underassessed at time of sale (the assessed values were less than 50 percent of the sales price).

In Oakland County, however, the board of assessors is attempting to keep valuations as they were except for new construction and improved properties, or where a Board of Review adjustment was made last year.

However, the release notes, the State Tax Commission is arguing that property values have increased and is leaning on the county to apply a factored increase between five and eight percent.

A valid protest, both city and township officials note, should show comparable sales in the area or a recent sales agreement (within the 'tax year) on the property in question.

Comparison with similar homes is not considered adequate, since no two homes are exactly alike. Differences in living area, number of bathrooms, porches, finished basements, garages, air-conditioning and other improvements affect valuations, the city release notes.

The city board sits March 9 from 1 to 4 and 7 to 10 p.m.; March 18 from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m.; March 23 from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. Additional dates and times may be scheduled as required.

Millage rollback could offset increase

New truth in taxation legislation will provide a better opportunity to affect property taxes even if protests of valuations now underway do not bear fruit.

Later in the year, after valuations have been determined, each taxing body will be required to roll back its millage so it collects no more in dollars than it did in 1981, plus whatever new taxes are to be collected on new construction or physical improvement to existing property. In order to capitalize on the township eight percent increase in AVs, the legislation would require a series of notices, public hearings and a vote by the governing body.

Clerk Susan Heintz presented an example Saturday at a township board budget session. "Our one mill operating levy," she said, "will roll back to something like .97 this year under Headlee. If you take the required rollback (under the new law), it comes to maybe .91 mill. Then, we will have to choose a figure between those two."

If the board of trustees elected to accept the rollback, it would not be required to take action. If it chose to levy any higher figure, however, it would have to publish notices, hold hearings and take a roll call vote.

It would have to act similarly for the 1.5 mill police tax, and the 0.5 mill fire tax as well. A new levy of 0.7 mill authorized by township voters last year for application on 1982 tax bills (mailed December 1982) also would require another board authorization.

"In our discussions," said Heintz, "we are leaning toward taking the rollback on millage (excepting the new voted seven-tenths) if (Supervisor) John's (MacDonald) appeal doesn't work."

That rollback of eight percent applied to the three mills levied by the township would not have much effect, however, she noted, on the total property tax bill based on something over 50 mills.

"The thing is," she said, "we can promote that, but people aren't helped unless all the taxing bodies take the rollback — the school board, the county, the community college, the parks."

She reported that county commissioner Mary Dumas told Heintz she has launched an effort to have the county commit to a millage rollback of some degree.

"The terrible thing about it," Heintz said, "is people have no way of knowing. They have to work on the assessments now because there is no guarantee the millages will roll back later, particularly in the schools, where most of the tax dollars go."

May ask Park Gardens relief

When Northville Township Supervisor John MacDonald appears before the township board of review to appeal tax assessment increases March 9 he may also ask for a blanket reduction in assessments for Park Gardens homeowners.

Based on dropping home values due to severe septic failure problems, the appeal would be treated as a separate item from his general request to reduce assessments in the township, MacDonald said.

How much of a reduction he will request for Park Gardens homes is not yet decided, the supervisor said Saturday. "I'm looking at somewhere from 5 to 20 percent, but I'm still looking into it," he said.

State Senator R. Robert Geake has suggested the reduction in public on at least two occasions and MacDonald said the senator contacted him again recently to urge the blanket cut on the basis that Park Gardens home values have eroded seriously as a result of recent measures preventing septic field construction and surrounding publicity.

Many Park Gardens homeowners also have filed independently to plead their cases before the board of review in the next week.

At least one house in the Park Lane, Fry, Marilyn and Maxwell blocks north of Five Mile has been condemned by county health authorities and documented health threats shown in county health department and Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) studies do not bode well for market values of Park Gardens homes.

Third generation business to move one door eastward

Spagy's, a 100-year old business at 111 East Main, begun as an ice cream parlor, then changed to a grocery and now a liquor store, is moving one door east to expand under third generation manager Jim Spagnuolo.

City council Monday night voted unanimously to approve the transfer license request. Although city permission is not required for the action, the state liquor control commission routinely makes the request.

Joseph Spagnuolo, who carried on the business of his father Joe Spagnuolo, explained Tuesday that the move is being made to get space to expand the store inventory.

The business will switch locations with Gifts by Marison at 115 East Main. Both buildings are owned by the Spagnulos, who plan an addition for storage at the 115 E. Main location.

Joe Spagnuolo credited his son Jim with the desire to expand.

"It was over 100 years ago that the grocery was begun by Frank Carcarelli," Spagnuolo recalled. His father, who died in April, 1981, at the age of 94, bought the business about 1918.

"Carcarelli, who was my godfather, sold the business to Dad for $200, which he paid at the rate of $2.50 a month," he remembered.

The business at the time featured ice cream sodas and homemade candy. Joe Spagnuolo took over the family operation in 1947 and converted the shop to a grocery store. Groceries and snacks still are stocked, but package liquor and beer and wine are the main emphasis.

Before city council approval was given for the transfer, building inspector Kenneth West certified that the building was approved for the transfer. He noted that plans will be coming for the addition after the transfer is completed.

Tax assistance offered seniors

Assistance for senior citizens in preparing state and federal tax forms will be offered by trained volunteers from 1:30-5 p.m. Monday at Northville Public Library.

Members of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) with training from the IRS will conduct the tax seminar.

Persons wishing to attend the session should come prepared with the amount of interest received in 1981, dividends and social security received in 1981 and the amount of real estate taxes or rent paid in 1981 and to whom.

A copy of the 1980 tax return also is helpful. All assistance offered remains confidential. For more information about the service, contact the library at 349-3020.

David Jerome talks on divorce, wills

Local attorney advises women on their legal rights

By JEAN DAY

ticked off some misapprehensions:

"Divorce is the most misunderstood of all legal proceedings — and members of my sex do mislead you," attorney David Jerome told a group of about 100 women gathered at First Presbyterian Church in February.

"But once you make the decision to divorce — go for it, it's strictly economics. Try to get the emotions out first, though," he advised.

A member of the Sullivan and Leavitt law firm in Novi, Jerome focused on how to choose a lawyer to win your case, divorce law and estate planning as he spoke to members and guests of Northville Woman's Club.

A Northville High School graduate, Jerome, his wife Kathi and son Jimmy are Northville residents. He was graduated from Wooster College in Ohio and received his law degree from University of Michigan Law School.

"My most frequent caller wants to know her rights," Jerome said as he

No, it's not true that if you slept with him after separating you have to start the six-month waiting period over.

Yes, you will receive money for temporary living needs when the divorce complaint is filed. This usually is not a formal procedure, but if there is a problem, we can be in court within a week to have temporary alimony and child support set.

Yes, usually he continues to carry the family's health insurance.

Yes, your lawyer can get an injunction to prevent his disappearing with assets.

But, the attorney warned, the statement, "I'm going to take you for all you have" isn't true either. The usual settlement, he said, is a 50-50 division of the assets of the marriage.

"Very, very few divorces end in trials," the attorney related as he detailed the steps leading to the judgment of divorce.

He stressed that the role of the lawyer is not that of a counselor.

"The emotional decision (to get a divorce) is the decision that no lawyer is going to make for you. He shouldn't. If you are not sure, see a marriage counselor, a minister or a priest."

"The lawyer's function is to handle the economic settlement. It is the division of the assets of the marriage that is his business."

Everything is taken into consideration, Jerome continued. He cited such factors as the earning power of the husband and whether the wife helped put him through college.

"She's entitled to part of his degree then as long as he works," Jerome said of the degree decree.

Alimony, payment from one spouse to the other, is usually because the wife does not have earning power. Today, the woman between 25-30 years old has only a five to 10 percent chance of getting alimony, the attorney said, explaining that it is common to have alimony awarded for a limit of four to five years to give time for the woman to receive training to enable her to go out and get a job.

With an almost 50 percent divorce rate, he said, women are encouraged to work.

"The State of Michigan doesn't like divorce," the attorney commented, citing the time limits set by the state of two months' wait if there are no minor children and six months with children.

"Custody of the children always has been the province of the mother, but this may be changing," the attorney observed as he spoke of new concepts like joint decision making on the children's future and even joint custody.

"If you can't decide between you who is most suitable for the children, the court will, getting recommendations from the Friend of the Court," Jerome said.

"If a wife thinks her husband is hiding assets, the lawyer should ask if all the assets of the marriage have been disclosed."

Jerome stressed that he was "speaking in generalities" as he reviewed women's concerns with the law.

"We all should be involved in passing on our assets," he continued.

He warned that one of the most dangerous assumptions is that of those who refuse to make a will because they associate it with dying.

"I guarantee that making a will will not advance your death by one day," he promised.

"It's far better to make a will while you are in good health," he warned, "for lawyers do make mistakes when they are in a hurry."

Noting that there has been much publicity on ways to avoid probate, Jerome advised the women, "don't jump to avoid probate — you may not be ready to make a permanent decision."

"Think of it as the orderly procedure for passing on your assets."

He also advised everyone to be sure their assets can be found when they die, suggesting that the lawyer have a copy as well as an executor.

"Banks can be very good executors," he commented, but added there are reasons both for using or not using them. He recalled that he had changed from having a bank be his executor as his wife, who now is his executor, "can do everything that needs to be done."

He emphasized that wills need to change as situations change. When children arrive, he said, there can be provision for their education. Jerome illustrated how a family's planning can change by hypothetically using his own life.

"At age 26, all would go to my wife; at 32, with a child included, probably all should go to her as the guardian; but at 40 we may have to consider taxes and establish a trust for 10-year-old Jimmy; at 50 with the son now 18 we should stagger the inheritance so that it is received when he becomes 25 and 30 and we may consider a charitable gift — it may be advantageous to give money away then; and at 70 we may consider an irrevocable trust."

"The IRAs (Individual Retirement Accounts) are a big break for all of us," he said.

In the case of simultaneous death of a couple, the IRS probably will choose as the one dying first the one most advantageous to it; so you should make a designation in your will, he told the women.

Can a wife direct what a husband puts in his will? Jerome reported this cannot be done.

He suggested that, instead of including "items you feel strongly about in a will," make a list and have it signed by two witnesses.

"How do you pick a lawyer when there are 16 or 17 practicing in Northville?"

After posing the question, Jerome suggested "the real sources should be your friends, people who have used lawyers in the past."

"Ask," he suggested, "What did he do for you with your case? Did he do a good job? Are you happy with the result? What was the cost?"

Ministers, priests or bankers are other sources for recommendations, Jerome listed.

"Then," he advised, "interview two or three. You are the shopper. Find out what he can do for you."

Jerome said a good lawyer shouldn't talk to a prospective client on the telephone as he won't know the facts.

Ask for a 15-minute or half-hour consultation and the charge. Jerome said he does not charge for this call.

"Then go prepared. Know what you are going to say and what you are going to do. Ask if the lawyer has handled this type of case before."

"Certain lawyers know certain areas of the law. You shouldn't use a generalist who is going to learn on you. Give the case to someone who knows what he is talking about."

He also emphasized that the customer should be direct about fees, learning if they are on a contingency basis or an hourly one. Hourly rates range from $50 to $250 with about $75 to $100 average in this area, he revealed.

"But the better lawyer will have better results."

Parson to Person...
What Is Love?
Dr. James H. Luther

"Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not love, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal." I Cor. 13:1.

Love is the basic essential in our lives. But there are many misconceptions about love. Love is not an itchy feeling you cannot scratch. It is not some emotional high. We live in a world ruled by sin and imperfection. Thus, a realistic definition of love is: an unconditional commitment to an imperfect person!

Such love is quick to forgive. It is slow to anger. If we have such love, we will be careful of our words. We will want to share our blessings. We will seek opportunities to benefit the loved one. Jesus said: "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." John 13:35. This is sometimes difficult.

To live above with saints in love will be eternal glory; To live below with saints I know now that's another story!

However, when we remember God's great love for us, it is easier to love others. You see, all love is based on God's love for us! Love is the heart of the gospel. "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John 3:16.

Have you experienced the life-changing power of the Love of God?

Green Ridge Nursery wins state award for design

Like many other businesses in the state, the landscaping industry is down, Green Ridge Nursery's landscape designer Will Gertz reports. Sports and those of the firm have suffered.

At the annual convention of The National Association of Nurserymen in Grand Rapids, Green Ridge was honored with an honorary plaque for winning residential design in the over 7500 category created in Northville.

Gertz was the designer of landscaping for the home of Jack and Jean Meeker, 41420 Stonecroft, in the Quail Ridge Subdivision in Northville.

The Meeker design was one of his most challenging projects, Gertz said, because of the amount of slopes there.

One of the more important aspects of the project was the Meekers' desire to have the natural landscaping blend with the architectural design of the home, Gertz said.

Also, the project used the services of many engineers and craftsmen who used different installation techniques to achieve the owners' desired affect, Gertz said.

The design consisted of decks built outside the breakfast nook and living room; two decks combined with a small arched catwalk; large native boulders used as a retaining walls as well as pre-stained and pre-treated wood timbers; a front courtyard which can be entered from one of two garden paths or by a stairway from the circular drive.

Raised planters boxes, sunken gardens and wall gardens each containing a different ground cover are incorporated in the design; the front courtyard features floating wood steps, raised planter boxes, ground cover and a Japanese Red Maple tree.

According to Gertz, the project received 217 of a possible 250 points in the project.

It is these types of projects, and extensive work in subdivisions, which have decreased in demand, Gertz said.

"But, we've picked up in service, maintenance and re-landscaping," he added.

Another area which has picked up is people doing their own landscape work, Gertz said.

"Small project items like planting trees or replacing some shrubs," he explained.

Also, Green Ridge helps people with their gardening hobbies and with larger landscape projects they intend to do themselves.

"People can come in and get advice, and we can sell them the merchandise to get started on a project," he said.

Gertz stressed one of the biggest mistakes a do-it-yourselfer makes in large landscape projects is to make improper engineering designs which will create future problems.

An example he cited was for a person having to make grades in the land around the home to facilitate proper drainage, pointing out a mistake may be made which could cause future flooding problems.

A person who is going to work on large landscape projects should consult with a landscape engineer in order to eliminate any future problems, Gertz said.

The nursery now is located on Rushton Road in South Lyon after originally starting the business in Northville in 1941. The company moved to its present 61-acre nursery in February of 1981 to consolidate its operations and better serve the surrounding communities.

Green Ridge grows a wide variety of shade trees, shrubs and evergreens.

Proposed foster care home license hits another obstacle

By KATHY JENNINGS

Another obstacle has been placed in the path of individuals seeking a license for a proposed foster care home at the corner of Llewellyn and Meadowbrook Road.

The City of Novi has filed a complaint with the director of the Michigan Department of Social Services, which prohibits the licensing of the home until the state responds to the complaint, according to the city attorney's office. The state has 45 days to respond.

The city's complaint states that the decision to grant a license for the Llewellyn facility "is in error and must be reversed."

The letter from City Attorney David Fried, detailing the city's formal objections to the proposed licensing of the Llewellyn facility, also says: "The application for licensure by Humanistic Services for the Developmentally Disabled must be denied."

The formal complaint has been filed with John T. Dempsey, director of the Michigan Department of Social Services, regarding the state's action reversing its denial of a licensing application for a foster care home for six developmentally disabled and emotionally disturbed adults.

Novi objects to the licensing of the home on the grounds that:

- there is an existing foster care facility within 1,500 feet of the proposed home and to license another home would result in an excessive number of facilities within the city; and,
- mentally ill persons would be placed in the home and the state does not permit placement of mentally ill persons in a residential area.

Joan DiGregorio, a co-director of the proposed home, disputed the city's claims and said the directors view the complaint as "one more stalling tactic."

She said the proposed residents of the home would be primarily developmentally disabled and emotionally disturbed rather than mentally ill.

Questions regarding the licensing of the home arose when license applications for two adult foster care homes within 1,500 feet of each other were filed with the state.

One application is for a "group home" for six emotionally disturbed and developmentally disabled adults currently residing in Clinton Valley. The group home is proposed at 41386 Llewellyn.

An adult foster care license application also has been filed for a "family home" at 41720 Eight Mile where one mentally retarded man is being cared for.

The state originally denied the license application for the Llewellyn home on the grounds that it would violate regulations which prohibit the licensing of an adult foster care home if there is an existing facility within 1,500 feet.

But the state subsequently notified the city it had reversed its denial of the license application for the Llewellyn home when it learned the application for the group home was filed two months before the application for the family home.

In its complaint to Dempsey, the city responds: "The sequence of filing applications for a license has no bearing on whether or not the grant of a particular license will result in too close a placement of facilities."

The letter also states that according to state law a home may be recognized as an adult foster care facility even if it is not licensed.

"The existing facility long pre-dated the passage (of state laws regulating adult foster care homes)," the letter states. "The present facility maintains all the functions for a person requiring maintenance in a residential facility. For the Department not to recognize the existing home...would be contrary to the statutory scheme of preventing excess concentrations of these facilities."

Brookland Farms to end annexation

By KATHY JENNINGS

Residents of Brookland Farms Subdivision, the property that may be the sole remaining piece of Novi Township, have asked township officials to pull out of annexation proceedings and bring an end to the 12-year-old dispute.

Petitions asking that the township drop further legal action in the case, signed by 85 of the township's 100 registered voters, were presented in a surprise move at a public hearing before the Michigan Boundary Commission Thursday.

Previously, township officials have taken the position that annexation of Brookland Township should be considered with seven other township parcels.

The Boundary Commission met in Novi last week to hear arguments on whether Brookland Farms should be included when the commission considers the annexation request for the third time.

Boundary commissioners have approved the annexation of seven of the eight township parcels twice before. The city took jurisdiction over the parcels in 1979, but continuing legal action has kept the question alive.

Arguments before the commission bordered on the bizarre Thursday as both city and township attorneys argued that Brookland Farms should not be part of the annexation petition. However, reasoning behind those arguments was poles apart.

Township representatives argued that to include Brookland Farms would mean the annexation question would be put to a vote and the results could mean Novi Township would cease to exist, even though the subdivision has been functioning successfully as an independent governmental unit for three years.

City officials said that if Brookland Farms were included and the question came to a vote it is likely the annexation would be defeated, all seven parcels would continue to exist as a township, and orderly development in the city would be obstructed.

Meanwhile, one township resident argued the matter simply ought to be allowed to die.

R. Boyd Armstrong, 44217 Wyngate, presented the petitions circulated by the Brookland Farms Homeowners Association. He told the commission that residents of Brookland Farms want the issue to be resolved.

He said after the hearing that township residents primarily are concerned that the matter they thought was settled in 1979 is still going on.

"When this started in 1971 we were against the gerrymandering of township boundaries," Armstrong said.

"We felt certain citizens were being deprived of their constitutional rights and authorized the township attorney to proceed with legal action," Armstrong said.

"We went to Ingham County Circuit Court and the court said the 15 people in the seven parcels outside Brookland Farms had not been treated fairly," Armstrong continued. "The Appeals Court upheld that decision, so the city appealed to the Michigan Supreme Court. The Supreme Court joined the case with annexation questions in Brighton and Midland and the court decided that the annexation was not unconstitutional or unreasonable."

"That was the decision," Armstrong explained. "That was all we were interested in. The Supreme Court ruled that there was no violation of the equal protection clause."

"But they remanded the matter back to the boundary commission," Armstrong continued. "They said the commission had the right to adjust boundaries in a request, which the commission originally did not believe it could do. The commission had a hearing. One member moved to include Brookland Farms in the annexation petition. The motion died for lack of support and the meeting was adjourned. The boundary commission later ordered the annexation of seven parcels of Novi Township to take effect."

"Novi township turned over all records pertaining to taxation and voting registration, and as far as everyone was concerned at that time the city took over," Armstrong said.

"They collected taxes, people in the seven parcels started voting in the city and the whole matter was settled. We were the township and the seven other parcels were in the city."

Armstrong said that Brookland Farms residents were surprised to find the law suit was continuing on the grounds the boundary commission had not followed proper procedures when it considered the matter the second time.

"When we discussed this with the Homeowners Association I found everyone thought it was taken care of in 1979 when everything was turned over to the city. When people found out this was coming up for a hearing they wanted to know what was going on and why the township was still pursuing this matter."

He indicated that he first became aware that the matter had not been resolved when asked to address the boundary commission on behalf of the township supervisor in October.

"When we heard about it we wanted to know what was happening. The chairman of the homeowners association and other members got together and had a meeting. In turn there were satellite meetings. People returned and then we called on the members of the township board and told them this had to stop. We told them we are the registered voters of the township and we wanted them to drop this. We settled our differences with the city three years ago. We have been operating as a township and now this comes up. We were amazed."

Subsequently, a petition was drafted requesting the township withdraw its request to be included in the annexation.

Although it was intimated at the boundary commission hearing that the petitions were passed because of the possibility Chateau Estates residents living in one of the disputed township parcels would decide the annexation question for all eight township parcels if the matter went to a referendum, and the mobile home park residents may decide to remain in the city, Armstrong said the primary concern was that "this was settled years ago. We wanted to let the dead horse die and bury it."

At Thursday's hearing, Township Supervisor Leo Kalota told the commission that the township plans to withdraw from the case.

Kalota noted "the majority of the people in the community of Brookland Farms want to remain in Novi Township and it is not our request to be part of the petition to be annexed."

He said the township board had not formally acted on the petition, but "if that is the will of the people, it is what we will abide by. The people want us to withdraw from the annexation petition and remain as Novi Township. There is no need to continue the suit."

Additional volunteers are needed in the Northwest Region of the American Red Cross Southeastern Michigan Chapter, the Northwest Region Chairperson announced.

"We especially need volunteers who can give their time in a wide variety of services," said Chairperson Norma Smith. "March 7 through March 13 is Volunteer Recruitment Week, a period when we make an all-out effort to recruit additional volunteers."

Among the many ways volunteers can assist the Red Cross, Smith explained, are as members of a bloodmobile team. Volunteers serve as escorts, help register donors, label blood bags before they are filled and serve refreshments in the post-donation canteen.

Additionally, volunteers serve in hospitals, at the Veterans Hospital in Allen Park, in neighborhood schools, as special blood needs callers, as drivers using Red Cross vehicles or as members of Disaster Action Teams.

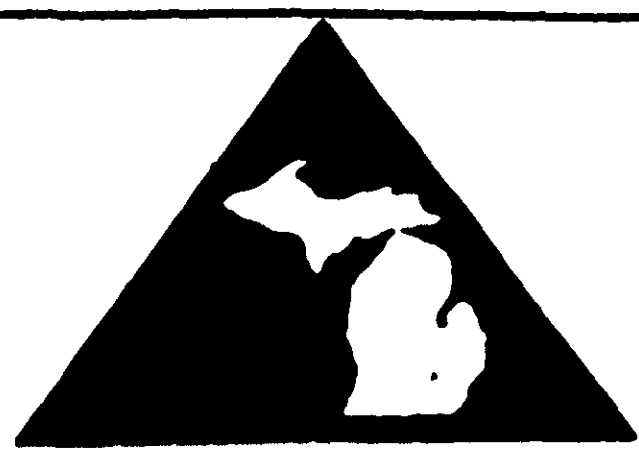

For more information, call the Northwest Region at 422-2920.

Recent property tax legislation has changed the rules of the game without addressing the main issue as seen by taxpayers — the bottom line on their tax bills. The new methods do focus more attention on local taxing authorities, however, which is to the good.

We are not so sure the methodology is the best way things could be done, however. It smacks of election year politics, of legislators anxious to pass the buck on the property tax issue they have been sitting on for so long. While it is proper that all taxpayers be notified every time the value of their property is said to increase for tax purposes, that aim did not require the present confusion.

By attempting to force expensive and time consuming reassessments, the legislature has managed instead to create a sham wherein new assessments have been made without so much as a glance at the property being appraised, while adding new costs to local government operations. The assessment process definitely needs revision, but the present situation is the exact opposite of responsible reform.

Now that they have accomplished their aim of making sure voters know just who the taxing authorities are, the legislature should reevaluate the truth-in-assessment law with an eye toward an honest and constructive change. One aspect we would consider in need of change is the way the new law hides equalization by class. By eliminating multiplication factors, it makes differences in assessing practices for industrial, agricultural, commercial and residential properties all but invisible before the citizenry has even had a chance to be accustomed to them.

Township Supervisor John MacDonald is to be commended for committing himself to an appeal of the assessment increase calculated by the county. As an aside, we also commend his change in position to consider a break for the Park Gardens area where special conditions warrant special consideration.

His chances before the Michigan Tax Tribunal, however, do not look overwhelmingly good at this point. An honest appraisal of the situation in which other state tax authorities are trying to force a five-to-eight percent rise on Oakland County assessors who are trying to hold the line demonstrates this.

That means attention turns to the truth in taxation law, the real end of the whole scheme. By forcing announcements and public hearings any time a taxing unit expects to increase revenues beyond those founded in real growth, this law is the one that puts the pressure on local officials. Should Oakland County be allowed to hold assessments level, its municipalities would be largely exempted from this phase of the shift, which is not a situation state officials will likely allow.

Again, the law contains nothing new, it just forces local governments to take the heat. Taxing units have always had the authority to hold millages back. Now they must take public action if they are not going to do so.

We find the general effects all to the good — by forcing local governments to acknowledge their roles in the tax system, and make sure it is well publicized, the new laws keep taxpayers better informed and, although confusing this year, in the longer term will likely prevent the ugly surprises that have sometimes been faced when the bill comes in the mail.

We cannot endorse, however, either the methodology or the political sidestepping that gave rise to the legislation. Yes, local taxing units are responsible to one degree or another for property tax rates, but it is the state that is responsible for the entire system by which we finance education, government and other services. Mixed in with the new legislation is a lot of window dressing that disguises the issue Lansing alone can deal with — how to reform the tangled and ailing system by which we support legitimate public activities.

Candidates needed

At the last board of education meeting, members Karen Wilkinson and Glenna Davis indicated they likely will seek reelection when their terms expire June 14. We laud the members for their continued interest in serving the community. However, we hope they are not the only contenders when ballots are posted next June.

Looking at the disappointingly few candidates petitioning for school board seats in recent elections, one would believe Northville residents were indifferent to the type of education their children receive.

But this is not the case. In Northville, residents long have prided themselves on maintaining a quality school system.

The quality of a school system, however, begins and ends with the local board of education. In other words, the buck stops with the board. It is this body of local officials that ultimately decides whether or not to add computer programming to your child's curriculum or charge an extra two-cents for a carton of milk.

We were dismayed at the apathy which prevailed in the last school board election. Only three candidates vied for two seats — two opposing each other, leaving one candidate running unopposed. The fact that only three residents showed any interest in running was in itself appalling. However, we were even more disappointed by the fact that the school board election was held only three months after the 9.5 millage renewal defeat — when so many turned out to criticize the board.

Should Karen Wilkinson, who currently is serving as board president — for the second time — run for reelection, she will be seeking her third term. She now is serving her seventh year on the board. Davis, on the other hand, is one of the two newest trustees on Northville's Board of Education. Her election last year was to finish the term vacated by Richard Barron, who resigned his post.

The filing deadlines for candidate petitions is 4 p.m. April 12 at the board office. Signatures of 20 registered voters are required.

Off the record

By Kevin Wilson

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM FROM A REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK:

Despite protests that all political races are in the air pending reapportionment, which is likely to take until the April 15 deadline, things are beginning to take shape.

A certain one, not dependent on apportionment, is the county executive race. Livonia Mayor Ed MacNamara has set the date for his announcement on the race while Wayne County Economic Development Corporation Executive Director Robert Fitzpatrick (cast as the underdog by some) lies ready and waiting. This is a big money race, and there's not a Republican in sight at this juncture. A key factor could be the rule that voters in the August primary confine themselves to one party. With Republicans locked out of the decision (assuming they wish to have a voice in the GOP gubernatorial nomination) the Livonia mayor cannot count on his stronger bipartisan support to carry him through the primary. Hmmmmmmm.

Also, there is a growing opinion, particularly among Republicans, that the state house race here is going to feature two new faces. The expectation is that Representative Jack Kirksey will be reapportioned out of Northville and the seat representing this area will be wide open.

The consensus says the new district will include most of Northville, Northville Township, the two Plymouths and Canton with scraps of elsewhere thrown in for interest. Kirksey resides in Livonia. I'm sure all the folks who just attended a Kirksey fundraiser here would be a little disappointed if that happens.

Oh, you're wondering about the contenders? Looks like it could be Wayne County Commissioner R. William Joyner (Democrat of Plymouth) to face Plymouth Township Trustee Jerry Law (Republican). All predictions, as usual, subject to the usual long list of ifs, ands and buts, including own-party opposition in the primary.

Joyner officially is awaiting reapportionment to declare, but gives every evidence of running hard for something. Law, whose brother is a wheel in the Milliken administration and former representative, hasn't exactly gone publicity hunting yet but Northville Township Supervisor John MacDonald introduced him to the board of trustees before a recent budget meeting and stated the intention.

Joyner, who has stated his non-intentions toward the 15 county commission seats remaining under the new charter (he was virtually districted out of contention) has an organized and announced campaign team. He says he's shooting for either the state House or Senate. If there is no incumbent in the House race, however, that would seem the likely choice, since Robert Geake is expected to return to the Senate fray. He lives here, so no matter what happens, his district includes Northville.

It's no surprise that Joyner is not a favorite within local Republican circles. I'd wager (without naming names) he was mentioned as an item of conversation among Republicans attending Saturday breakfast in a Livonia Denny's at which U.S. Representative Carl Pursell was the main attraction. This was another pre-budget session activity of the township board. Who called leader-of-the-pack John MacDonald a politician?

On another front, diligent research and common sense reveals there is no truth to the rumor that the Northville Valve Plant will be utilized to build hood ornaments shaped like ducks in conjunction with a "Take a gander at this" advertising campaign by Ford. Same goes for the supposed breakthrough in powering cars by waterwheel. Chances for reopening at all? Some insiders say 90 percent, outsiders are inclined toward 50-50, both based on the presumption that Ford will decide to produce something in addition to valves at the facility. Keep your fingers crossed.

Next time you're in township hall, ask building official Troy Milligan about the restaurant. You won't have to ask, really, he'll probably chase you down to show it off. Right now it's a dream embodied in a building trades magazine photo spread of a converted mill, but Milligan would like to see it placed in the power plant at the Wayne County Child Development Center, assuming development of a senior citizens housing project there, and is bending every ear he can find. More power to him if he can find someone able to do something about it other than nod and say "That's nice Troy."

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

Didja ever read those columnists in the Detroit papers who are always mentioning names of local restaurants or theaters or whatever?

And didja ever notice that whenever they mention the name of some local restaurant or business, they always put the names in BOLD FACE CAPS?

And didja ever wonder if maybe, just maybe, they're doing it to get free meals or free tickets or something else for free?

Well I have. Now I'm not making any accusations, mind you. Certainly there's no proof whatsoever that all those names in BOLD FACE CAPS result in the distribution of any freebies to starving journalists.

Maybe they only do it to give the businesses a little boost. That's entirely possible, you know, and if that's why they do it, it's fine by me. Lord knows, there's plenty of businesses in these times who could use a little boost.

And so, to give our local businesses a little boost (and do a little discreet research on freebies) I've decided to write a BOLD FACE CAPS kind of column this week.

The new Mustangs at JOHN MACH FORD in Northville are about the spiffiest-looking new cars I've seen in a long time.

When it comes to Oahu, the best tour going is offered by the friendly folks at TRAVEL PLANS on Main Street in Northville.

For my money, the most sophisticated dining in town is found at MACKINNON'S, across from the MARQUIS THEATER on Main Street.

If you're looking for garden tractors, the most-powerful, closest-cutting tractors around can be obtained from MARK'S SMALL ENGINES on Northville Road.

There, that should handle it for awhile. The next time you see me, I'll probably be tanned, wearing a lei, and driving my new Mustang out to dinner. I may even take in a show afterwards.

Meanwhile, my wife should find it a whole lot easier when she has to mow the lawn.

Income tax law changes proposed

By R. ROBERT GEAKE
State Senator

A person's marital status shouldn't affect the amount of income tax he or she pays. So said the U.S. Congress in a section of the 1981 Economic Recovery Act.

Beginning with the 1982 tax year, married couples with two wage earners will have a brand new tax deduction to make up for an inequity that has become known as the "federal marriage penalty."

Because the federal income tax includes special tax rate brackets and other features for married taxpayers that assume only one spouse has income, a "marriage penalty" is inadvertently created when both spouses have wage and salary income.

In combining income to file a joint return, married couples with two wage earners have been pushed into a higher tax bracket, paying a higher percenttage of their wages into taxes, than if they had both been single and filed separately.

To offset this "marriage penalty" the new federal income tax permits married couples with two wage earners to deduct up to five percent of the income of the lower wage earner, up to $1,500. This deduction increases to 10 percent with limit $3,000 for the 1983 tax year.

Michigan's income tax, however, has never had a marriage penalty. Rather than a graduated tax system which makes people pay more taxes the more money they make, the state income tax system simply taxes every wage earner at a flat rate, 4.6 percent of their income.

Michigan's flat rate income tax system, without the tax bracket "creep" of the federal system, has always been simple, equitable, and the same for married as well as single people.

If the state legislature does not respond to the new deduction in the federal law, however, the state's income tax will no longer be so equitable. In fact, without legislative action a new state income tax penalty will be created, penalizing both unmarried taxpayers and married taxpayers in households with only one wage earner.

The state flat rate income tax is applied to a person's base income deemed taxable by the federal system after all deductions have been made. The new federal deduction subtracts from the base upon which a person's state taxes are computed.

Married households with two wage earners will thus have their state taxes lowered simultaneously with the federal deduction while taxpayers who are single, as well as married households with only one wage earner, will not have a similar deduction or subtraction from their taxable income base.

Since the state system was already equitable and applicable across-the-board prior to the 1982 tax year, the new federal deduction makes Michigan's state income tax now unequally applied, unless legislative action is taken.

Legislation is being prepared in the House of Representatives to preserve the state's equitable flat rate treatment of all state income taxpayers, and to eliminate what would be inadvertent preferential treatment. One bill, House Bill 5212, is presently before the House.

Protest taxes

To the Editor:

We are writing to express our support to Township Supervisor John MacDonald and the Northville Township board, relative to their objection to the property tax assessment increase.

This most recent blow to our individual financial burden, at this time of depressed economic health, is perplexing!

Have our homes truly increased in value as reflected in the 7-8 percent increased assessed valuations? Have we been lulled into the belief — the hope — that tax relief is possible?

After years of social/economic engineering, the financial taxation fibers which knit our American life are so tangled that none can be unraveled without snarl-ing others.

What are we to do? How do we register our concerns?

We must reassess the financial support we are asked to make, checking the surging expansion that seems without end. We ask other concerned Northville Township residents to support Mr. MacDonald and the Board in their effort to reverse this unfair burden.

Getting down to brass tacks

BY DOUGLAS WHITAKER
BOARD SECRETARY

In September of 1981, the board of education invited interested citizens to participate in a citizens' committee study of the future facility needs of the Northville School District.

The charge to the committee was as follows:

(1). Review the state of the district's facilities and the level at which they are being used.

(2). Review the present grade level distribution and other distributions that would be feasible.

(3). Review demographic and planning data and project the likely need for facilities in the present decade.

(4). Following these reviews, recommend to the board alternate plans to assure that the district's facilities are adequate to the needs of students and that they are being utilized in a cost effective way.

Twenty citizens volunteered. They began their work in October by organizing into three subcommittees: Demographics, chaired by Mrs. Lee Bauman; Grade Structure, chaired by Mrs. Sylvia Gucken; and Facilities, chaired by Eugene Smith.

Since then the committee has reviewed building plans and specifications, visited all of the district's facilities, visited schools in other districts, gathered population data and growth projections, reviewed articles and enrollment statistics and consulted with resource persons with experience that related to the committee's tasks.

After five months of diligent work, the Citizens' Committee on Future Facility Needs has concluded its information gathering phase and written its report and recommendations to the board of education. That report will be presented at the March 8th board meeting to be held at Old Village School at 7:30 p.m. That meeting, like all board of education meetings, is open to the public.

After receiving and studying the citizens' committee report, the board of education will hold public hearings on recommendations before acting on them.

Come out Monday, March 8th at 7:30 p.m. to hear what fellow citizens have to say about the future facility needs of the Northville School District.

Harness gear stolen

in the city...

Separate thefts of equipment were reported from Northville Downs last week, city police said. Sets of harness gear, valued at $600, were stolen from a barn at the Downs February 22, police reported.

The complainant said a white male, approximately 22 years of age with short black hair, was running out of a barn with three sets of harness equipment on his shoulders, police report. The theft occurred at 1 a.m.

The witness saw the subject run into another barn at the west end. The witness said she chased the subject into the barn, but lost him. The witness did not find the harness equipment, the report said.

Police obtained consent from the barn owner to search for the equipment, but to no avail. The owner said he saw the witness remove two sets of harness equipment and was walking out when he entered at her and she then dropped the equipment, police said. The owner said he was not going to sign a complaint.

A harness, bridle and hobbles, total value of $542, were stolen from a barn at the Downs between February 24 and 25, police said.

The owner said he placed the items in the barn at 6 p.m. February 24 and noticed them missing at 12:29 a.m. February 25, police stated.

The owner believes the items could have been stolen while he was driving at the track. Also, the barn was unlocked, the report said.

A $450, color television, a $200 AM/FM stereo cassette player and a $40 vacuum cleaner were stolen from a Novi Road residence sometime February 23, police report.

Police saw the front door knob had been knocked off and the door forced open. The complainant said the apartment was not ransacked, but only those three items were taken.

A neighbor said at 2:30 p.m. she heard at loud noise in the hallway and saw a large truck outside. Another person said she saw the broken door knob, knocked on the door and yelled, but no one answered, police said.

Someone broke into a South Rogers residence and stole more than $1,400 worth of jewelry February 24, police report.

Taken were diamond earrings, valued at $100, two gold necklaces, total value of $775, a diamond ring, valued at $100, a gold chain, valued at $250, and a ladies' watch, valued at $270, police said.

The complainant said a window frame was broken to gain entry. One bedroom was ransacked and clothes were strewn about, police said.

Police could not find any sign of forced entry or footprints.

More than $250 worth of jewelry was stolen from a Fairbrook residence February 19, police said.

Taken were a $58 necklace, a $120 wedding band, two charms worth $42, three rings valued at $40, and $30 in U.S. currency, police said.

Police said they have a suspect in the case.

Two dry chemical extinguishers, worth $60, were stolen from the Northville Board of Education offices between February 20 and 21, police said. Damages of $175 were also reported.

The complainant showed police the second floor offices, where there was an obscene word written with black pen on the front counter. Cords to the telephone and typewriter were cut, police said.

The culprits also pried open the pop machine door and removed the change. Police could not find a point of entry, and believe a door either was found unlocked or left open.

...In the township

A new snow thrower valued at more than $350 was reported stolen February 24 from a Robinwood garage, township police reports show.

The owner told police the snow thrower, purchased in late December, was seen in the garage at 3 p.m. February 23 and discovered missing at 7:45 a.m. the day of the report. The garage door was left open and unlocked between 7 and 8 p.m., the owner said.

Another snowblower valued at $250 was reported stolen from a Winchester garage February 24. The owner told police the garage door was left closed but unlocked.

Cassette tape recordings worth more than $250 were reported stolen from an automobile stranded in snow on Hines Drive overnight February 25.

The owner told police the car was stranded near baseball diamond 2 and left locked overnight. Upon his return, he said, he found the right front door open and the cassettes and the box they were stored in gone.

He suggested the culprit(s) may have had a four-wheel-drive vehicle.

An ice auger was stolen from the interior of a pick-up motor home parked on Fry north of Five Mile February, according to police reports.

The auger, valued at $160, was reportedly taken from the truck bed after the perpetrators forcibly pried open the tail door of the motor home cap. The incident occurred between 6 p.m. February 22 and 10 a.m. February 24, the owner told police.

Doris Lucile Gorman, 68, of Detroit, was ticketed for driving left of center after being involved in a head-on collision on Eight Mile Road near the Baseline turnoff February 22.

Gorman told police she was attempting to enter Baseline from westbound Eight Mile and did not see an eastbound vehicle until they hit head-on.

Both drivers, the other of Farmington Hills, were injured in the accident and transported to Providence Hospital by Novi Ambulance for treatment.

Tornado warning system meeting scheduled Monday

Wayne County's Office of Emergency Preparedness begins preparations next week for this year's tornado season with a meeting Monday for all HAM radio operators and members of the Radio Amateur Communications Emergency Service (RACES).

The HAMS and RACES, all volunteers who form a major part of the county alert and warning system for tornadoes, will meet at 8:30 p.m. in Building A at the Wayne County Complex in Westland at Michigan Avenue and Merriman Road.

Director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness Mitchell B. Kozak said the group will rehearse for a tornado communications test March 18 between 1-2 p.m. as part of the Michigan Tornado Safety Week designated for March 14-20 by Governor William G. Milliken. Kozak is soliciting new members for RACES and wants all interested HAMS to attend.

"We need new members to supplement our established cadre, and we want them regardless of whether or not they have had past experience with emergency circumstances. It's an opportunity for them to apply their skills toward a valuable public service," Kozak emphasized.

"Some of our greatest heroes are amateurs, and nothing is more valuable than information in an emergency," he added.

The seasonal peak of tornado activity in Michigan, Kozak explained, extends from April through July and an average of 17 tornadoes occur in the state each year. Since 1950, 522 tornadoes have hit the state, killing 227 people, he said.

"In recent years we've had some severe damage from tornadoes in southeast Michigan, and we can never feel exempt from the possibility in Wayne County," Kozak said. "We need as much preparation as possible."

Call 422-0149 during blood drive hours for an appointment. Also, bloodmobiles will be located at Rosedale Gardens United Presbyterian Church, 9601 Hubbard, Livonia, from 2-8 p.m. Friday, March 26. Call 422-0494 during blood drive hours for an appointment.

Musical set at St. Paul's

Northville resident Liz Kalota is among the cast members in the Adventures in Theatre production "Sing America" to be presented at 10 a.m. Monday, March 8, at St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

Formerly with the Greenfield Village Players, she will join cast members Greg Jbara, Robert Douglas, Sherry Council and Ray Wohl in presenting the musical revue of our country's first hundred years.

The musical focuses on two characters from the past who meet three contemporary young people and show them, in humorous and dramatic episodes, that history is livelier than the pages of a book and has meaning in their everyday lives.

A public performance of "Sing America" also will be presented at 2 p.m. March 21 at the Wayne State Community Arts Auditorium. Tickets are $12.50 for adults and free for children ages five to 15.

Welcome To South Lyon

South Lyon's Quanex rolls out steel, profits

By JEFFREY LAPINSKI

Seattle soars on the aircraft industry. Detroit sputters with the automobile companies. Houston grows with every new oil well. And South Lyon dances to the clang and roar of Michigan Seamless Tube (MST).

What Boeing is to Seattle and General Motors is to Detroit, MST is to South Lyon. Lying just north of Ann Arbor, at the crossroads of the C&O and Grand Trunk railroads, South Lyon draws much of its strength from MST. The company, which manufactures seamless tubing, occupies a vital position within this community of approximately 5,200.

But while the economy has weakened the industrial cores of other cities, especially in Michigan, MST and South Lyon remain relatively healthy. The fiscal year ending October 31 was an excellent one for Quanex, MST's Houston-based parent company. Nets sales for the year increased 59 percent to a new high of $416.8 million, according to Carl E. Pfeiffer, president and chief executive officer of Quanex.

Richard E. Russell, general manager of MST since 1974, attributed MST's health and the health of Quanex as a whole, to three factors—diversification, a 'componentalized' organization and an opportunistic attitude.

Those three factors are reflected in Quanex's corporate philosophy:

- To concentrate on customized products for demanding applications in selective sizes where the cost of technical expertise and custom-designed equipment discourages new market entrants.

- To position the company to take advantage of strengths in particular markets while maintaining an overall balance in "end-use" markets.

- To maintain manufacturing flexibility through facilities which serve multiple end-use markets.

- To act quickly when attractive business opportunities are identified.

Quanex's philosophy is further delineated through its stated goals and objectives—diversifying within the company's metal fabricating skill base; exceeding a 15 percent minimum return (after taxes) on investments and exceeding a 10 percent minimum growth rate in real annual sales.

"Those aren't just words," stressed Russell, pointing to Quanex's goals. "We live by them."

Apparently, living by those words has paid off for MST and Quanex. MST started in South Lyon in 1927, founded by William McMunn for the purpose of manufacturing cold-drawn seamless tube from old used boiler tubes.

McMunn kept MST alive as the country struggled through the Great Depression. In 1931, MST added a piercing mill, which allowed the still-young company to manufacture tubes from raw bar stock.

McMunn died in 1941 and William A. McHattie was elected president of the company by the board of directors. McHattie joined MST in 1933 and in his nearly 40 years with the organization saw the company grow from one plant with $2 million in sales to seven plants with $69 million in sales.

According to Russell, one of the key acquisitions made by McHattie occurred in 1956, when MST announced the construction of the Gulf States Tube Corporation in Texas. This move was important because it diversified MST's base and put the company into the oil industry, said Russell.

In 1965, MST acquired the Standard Tube Company of Detroit, giving the company the capability to manufacture welded tube. Another big step came in 1973 when MST built Mac Steel Company in Jackson. "That was the case of backward integration," said Russell, adding that Mac Steel gave MST the ability to go from scrap metal to finished tubing.

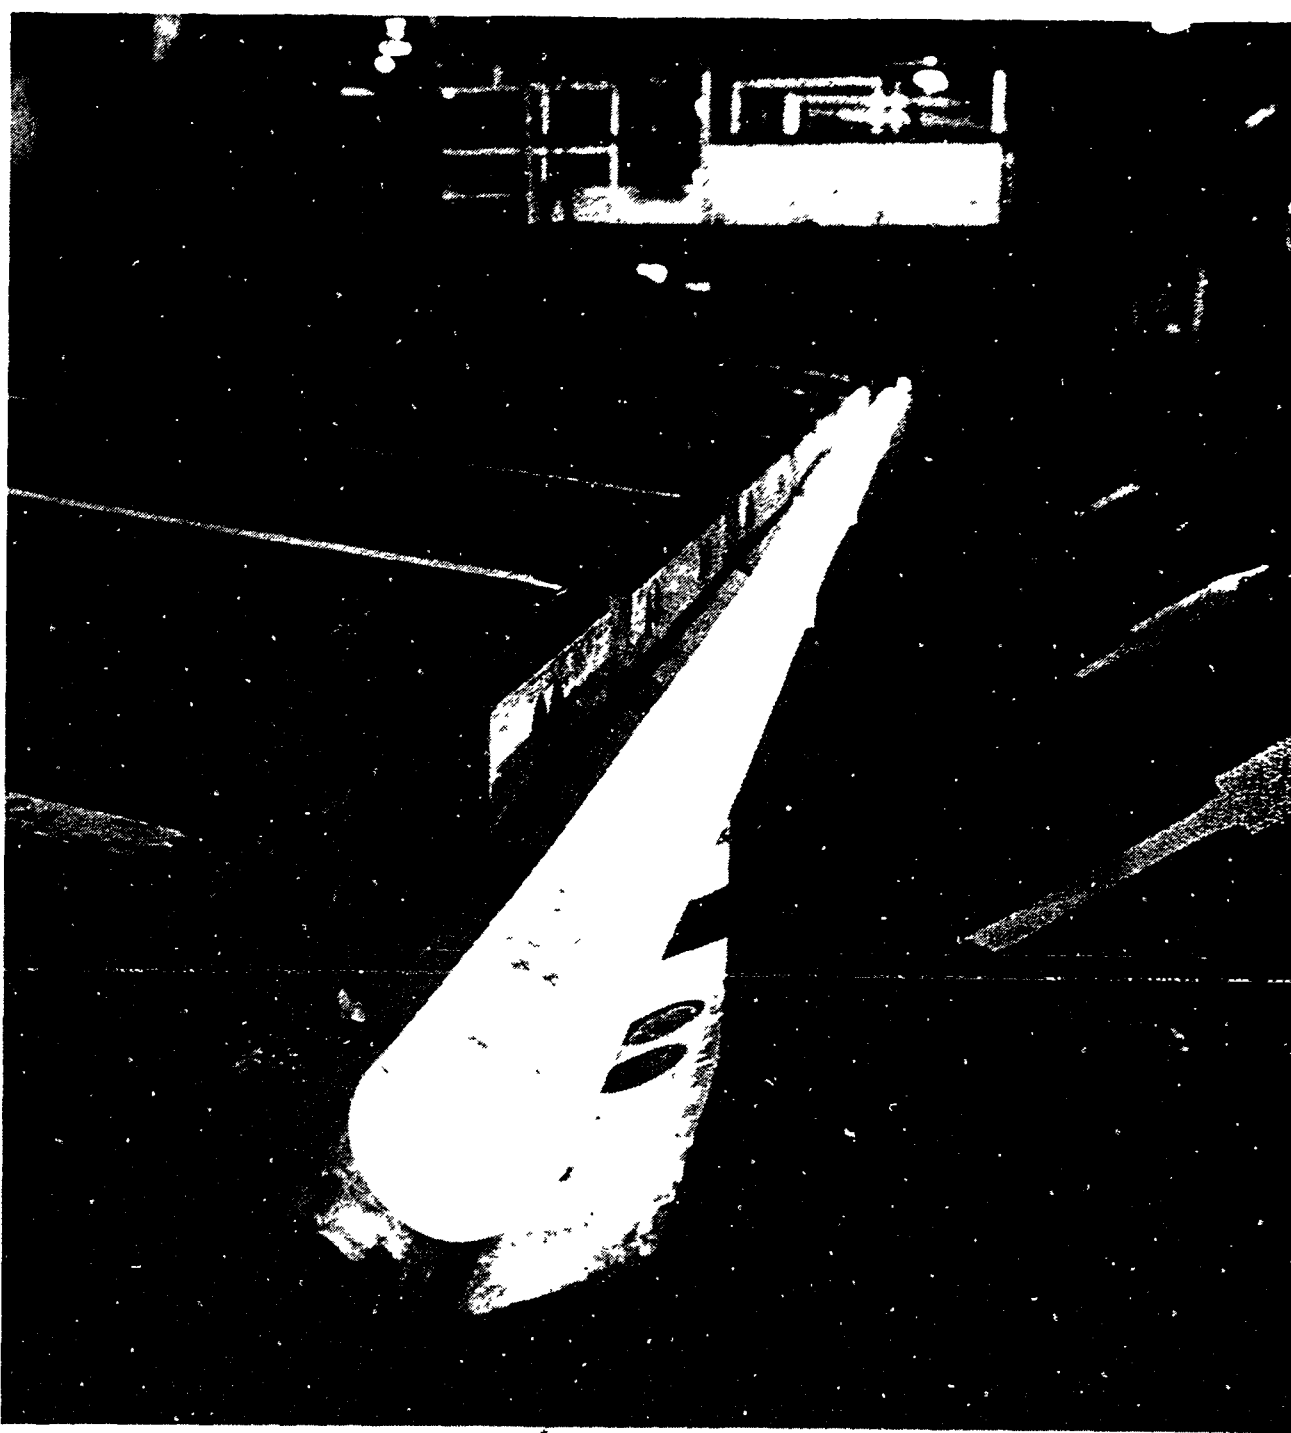

McHattie, who was elected to the position of chairman of the board, died in 1972. Pfeiffer, who joined MST in 1953 and was elected president in 1971, gained the additional responsibility of chief executive officer in 1973.

Reflecting its geographic and product growth, MST moved its headquarters in 1977 out of South Lyon and located in Houston, Texas under a new name, Quanex. Although the MST plant still operated in South Lyon and no change of ownership occurred in the switch, the move to Houston was an indication of MST's growth and diversification.

"We were no longer just in Michigan," said Russell, explaining the reasoning behind the name change and move. "We no longer just made seamless tube."

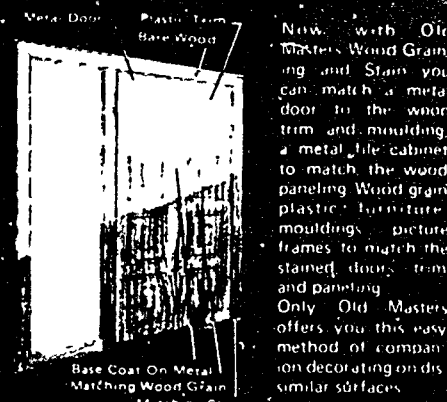

According to Russell, the new name was born

Diversification has kept Quanex rolling

from a marriage of two words associated with MST—quality and nexus. The latter word is defined as "a means of connection or link" and is meant to reflect the company's involvement with tubing.

In addition to the name change, the company has added other divisions and subsidiaries. At present, Quanex has seven divisions and three subsidiaries in seven states.

While MST grew and bloomed into Quanex, the company has not forgotten its beginnings and the mother plant still maintains good relations with its hometown, according to Russell. He describes MST's relationship with South Lyon as one of mutual benefit—MST receives satisfied employees and public services while the city receives tax revenues to supply those services.

In addition, Russell said MST places a premium on community involvement. "I come from the viewpoint that the town where your business is is your home," he explained. "We draw upon the town for resources and the town draws upon us for resources."

"It's like being part of the family. It's home."

The importance of MST to South Lyon is reflected all over the city. On the city limits, signs welcome visitors to "South Lyon, Home of Michigan Seamless Tube Division, Quanex." The city's only park was donated by MST and is named after William McHattie McMunn, MST's founder, is memorialized by McMunn Street, which runs in front of the MST plant.

The formula that gave MST its success is still working for its parent company. Diversification, componentization and an opportunistic attitude are evident in the present day Quanex.

The company's diversified base is illustrated by the wide range of products it manufactures and the markets served. Starting out in the tube business, MST and Quanex have expanded into specialty tubing, heat-treated tubing, exhaust systems, joints and accessories, forgings, extruded products and steel bars and billets.

Russell pointed out, however, that even as Quanex diversified it ventured into related markets. He added that the company draws strength from such related investments.

The interdependence of Quanex's divisions and subsidiaries is mapped in a flow chart of the company's manufacturing processes. For example, Mac Steel supplies raw bar stock to MST which then manufactures seamless tube hollows. Some of those hollows may then go to the Heat Treating Division in Indiana.

But while Quanex is composed of several connected divisions, it is also organized into components, along the adage of 'not putting all of the eggs in one basket.' Quanex may be a multi-million dollar operation but Russell said it is small by component. Rather than having one 2,000-man plant, Quanex has several smaller operations. In that manner, if something crippled MST, for example, the whole of Quanex would not be severely hurt, Russell added.

The third Quanex trait—opportunism—is illustrated in the company's push in the oil industry. With domestic oil and gas exploration booming, Quanex has mobilized to take advantage of the market. The company increased its participation in the energy market by acquiring Pipe Specialties, Incorporated of Texas in 1978 and constructing the Bellville Tube Division, also in Texas, in 1980. Last year, Quanex started a $13 million project in Wyoming called the Cheyenne Oil Country Division to take advantage of oil industry exploration in that area of the country.

In fact, the energy market has grown to become Quanex's major source of income, according to the company's annual report. In 1979, the energy exploration and production market accounted for just 22 percent ($51.8 million) of Quanex's sales. Last year, the share more than doubled to 46.1 percent or $192.2 million. The total energy market accounted for 61.9 percent ($258.1 million) of the company's sales in 1981.

But while the energy market was growing, Quanex's other two markets—machinery and transportation—shrank. In 1979, the machinery market accounted for 31 percent ($73.3 million) of sales. Last year, it fell to 19 percent ($79.3 million).

The same is true for the transportation industry. In 1979, transportation drew 26.1 percent ($61 million) of Quanex's sales. In 1981, that dropped to 18.3 percent ($75.9 million).

Although the energy market has proved fruitful to Quanex, it has resulted in a disproportionate amount of sales in this market, according to the company's annual report. "It is our intention to again achieve a balance among our three major markets through renewed emphasis on other areas with attractive future prospects," the report added.

Lower interest rates and a general economic upswing, along with new tax and depreciation laws, are seen by Quanex as pluses for the machinery market. New sales in the marine, rail and defense areas are also being eyed by the company to bolster its position in the transportation market.

Looking ahead, Russell is optimistic about the future of MST and Quanex. In a personal observation, Russell sees tight terms for the next 90 days but a gradual improvement and back to "full steam" by the end of the year.

For MST specifically, Russell said the challenge ahead will be to take advantage of the plant's multi-million dollar rehabilitation and expansion project, which was completed last year.

"That (the rehabilitation) gave us a new lease on life," said Russell, adding that the project upped the plant's production capacity 40 percent and "rounded out" the plant's processing capabilities. "The challenge is to effectively put it to work for us for the long-term future."

With a commitment from the MST employees in the form of a six-year labor contract, Russell said MST has solidified its ability to put the revived plant to work and develop new markets.

"We are well respected but we are not number one today," explained Russell. "Our goal is to be perceived by our customers as the number one industry."

TECH AUTO SERVICE opened at 21001 Pontiac Trail, South Lyon, February 15. Owner/manager Bob Wood offers complete repairs for domestic and foreign autos, specializing in engine work. He also carries B.F. Goodrich, Michelin and National tires. Wood said the shop opens at 8 a.m. and stays until the jobs are done most days. "I try to get the work out the same day as much as possible," he added.

A 10-year resident of South Lyon and a certified mechanic, Wood has a degree in chemistry from Central Michigan University and is working on a master's in engineering at Wayne State University. He was employed as an engineer for five years with Ford Motor Company and six years with American Motors.

Tim Nabozny of Milford, a state and national certified master mechanic, assists Wood. Nabozny graduated from Ferris State and is a member of the National Institute of Automotive Service.

FIVE EMPLOYEES of Huron Valley Hardware and the Melvin Fitzgerald Home Center in Highland recently attended management meetings conducted by Hardware Wholesalers, Incorporated in Southfield.

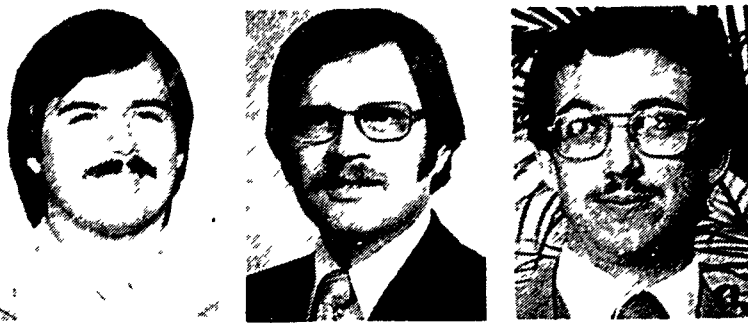

Pam Danks, Leslie Benjamin, Missy Melvin, Ed Mullin and Helen Ryan attended the seminar to improve their knowledge in the practical aspects of operating a retail store. Detailed discussions of employee productivity, advertising, merchandising and margin and inventory control were held.

Seminars were conducted in 36 cities.

C.A. HULL of Walled Lake and Owens & Stroiman in a joint venture were the lowest of six bidders at $2,612,672 on a project to construct another 3.1 miles of the new M-21 freeway in St. Clair County, according to the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT).

The project begins east of Capac Road and extends east to north of Burt Road. It includes construction of three bridges.

All low bids must be approved by the State Transportation Commission and the State Administrative Board before contracts are awarded.

GARY COLLINS WAYNE VICKLUND NEIL NICHOLS

GARY COLLINS of Novi has joined J.C. Frederick Company, Inc., International Electrical Contractors, in Southfield as an Engineer Project Manager.

A 1973 graduate of Novi High School, Collins attended Lawrence Institute of Technology where he earned a degree in construction engineering.

Prior to joining J.C. Frederick Company, he was employed by Sonk Associates, Inc., and DiClemente-Siegel Engineering, Inc.

WAYNE E. VICKLUND has been named a Senior Associate (stockholder) at Albert Kahn Associates, Inc. The announcement was made by Daniel Shahan, president.

Vicklund, a registered electrical engineer, graduated from Michigan Technological University in 1967 and joined Albert Kahn Associates (AKA) in 1968 as a member of the electrical engineering department. In 1974 he was named an associate of the firm.

He is a former Warden at Holy Cross Episcopal Church in Novi. Action by the AKA Board of Directors in promoting Vicklund is in accordance with the firm's policy of recognizing professionals whose qualifications and competence meet AKA's high standards.

NEIL A. NICHOLS, an Associate Broker with Nichols Realty, Inc., in Northville, has successfully completed the necessary requirements to graduate from the Jim Graham School of Auctioneering in North Palm Beach, Florida.

Nichols will specialize in real estate auctions, but will handle every type. Jim Graham, a national auction authority, states that auctions will increase 400 percent in the next two years.

"Many sellers are turning to the auction method because it is becoming more important for sellers to name an exact date their property will be sold," Graham said, "and auctions often bring more than the conventional method because of open, competitive bidding."

Graham also claimed auctions are the fastest way to convert any type property into immediate cash.

Nichols said an auction isn't magic or mysterious. When a seller sells, he has three choices: sell it himself, list it or consign it with someone or sell it by auction.

"An auction is just another method, but it means that the seller has one more avenue available to him when marketing his real estate or personal property," Nichols said.

TOTAL DIMENSION, at 570 Highland Avenue in Milford, the only full-service beauty salon in western Oakland County, is soon to celebrate its first anniversary.

The salon offers hairstyling, manicures, pedicures, facials, skin care, tanning, body wrapping, electrolysis, make-up, perms, hair coloring and analysis and other hair and skin care services.

Total Dimension carries a variety of beauty aids and cosmetics for hair and skin care, said owner Kathleen J. Riedel. The entire staff of the salon traveled recently to Chicago for additional education, reported Riedel, who stated that a second Total Dimension is soon to open in South Lyon. The salon is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Sunday from noon to 4 p.m.

PAM FERRIS is the newest addition at David's Head Start Salon, 125 West Lake, South Lyon. A newcomer to South Lyon, Ferris has been a hairdresser for three years and has been specially trained to style men's hair as well as women's.

PAM FERRIS

She has also previously specialized in make-up at Hudson's Westland. David says he feels sure patrons will enjoy her expertise.

Michigan Bell to introduce new service

Michigan Bell has announced a new service for area users that will make placing long distance calls by credit card as easy as pushing buttons.

Termed Calling Card Service (CCS), this new system allows telephone credit card users in the portions of the 313 area code served by Michigan Bell to input their credit card numbers directly by telephone, without operator assistance.

The service, also available now in portions of Jackson and Hillsdale, will be provided statewide by 1983.

With the introduction of CCS, Michigan Bell credit cards will be known as "calling cards." All existing card numbers will remain the same.

Effective February 16, customers making calls from specially-designated Touch-Tone public phones in the area as well as residential and business telephones with Touch-Tone service will be able to use CCS.

There will be no additional charge for CCS. According to Haze Wilson, Michigan Bell community relations manager, the new service is a time saver for customers as well as a deterrent to unauthorized use of calling cards.

"Instead of giving their calling card numbers to telephone operators verbally, customers simply tap out their numbers on the phone," he explained. "This reduces the chance of numbers being overheard and used without permission."

With CCS, callers still will enter zero plus the number being called. Instead of an operator coming on the line, however, they will hear a recorded announcement telling them how to enter their calling card numbers. Billing will be handled automatically.

A special feature of Calling Card Service — Sequence Calling — allows customers to make consecutive calling card calls without entering the card number each time. Telephone company equipment "remembers" the card number as long as the instructions for Sequence Calling are followed.

Calling Card Service is being introduced by the Bell System in major cities across the country this year. The service is expected to be available nationwide by mid-1983.

Michigan customers interested in obtaining calling cards may call toll free 1-800-482-6665.

Family auto provides loads of tax deductions

Michigan residents who purchased new cars last year may be able to claim $1,380 in 1981 federal income tax deductions, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan.

The $1,380 deduction is for a person who bought a new car for $9,000 at the beginning of last year and financed $7,000 of the purchase price for 48 months at a 16 percent annual interest rate.

"The tax savings includes a $360 deduction for Michigan's four percent sales tax and a $1,020 deduction for the first year's interest," said Stan O'Connor, Auto Club's tax manager.

The family automobile provided an approximate $542 deduction on federal income tax forms in 1977 when sticker prices and interest rates were significantly lower.

Sales tax and loan interest are among the deductions for taxpayers who use their cars for business or pleasure and itemize on their returns.

Taxpayers who itemize, or use the "long form," may deduct nine cents per mile for medical or charitable travel and certain moving expenses. Casualty or theft losses not covered by insurance are allowable, though the first $100 must be subtracted.

Taxpayers who operate a vehicle for business also may deduct actual expenses for:

- Insurance premiums, license and title fees and Auto Club dues.
- Gas, oil, lubrication, washing, parking tolls and repair costs.
- Depreciation, using the Accelerated Cost Recovery System (ACRS) to compute the depreciation portion for autos placed in service during 1981.
- Monthly car lease payments, including additional operating costs. (Rental costs are in lieu of depreciation).

Instead of itemizing actual expenses, taxpayers may use the standard mileage allowance of 20 cents per mile for the first 15,000 miles driven and 11 cents per mile thereafter, plus parking fees and tolls.

Auto Club reminds taxpayers that regardless of which method is chosen, recordkeeping is essential.

For additional information regarding auto-related deductions, call the Internal Revenue Service's toll-free number listed in the telephone directory.

Sunset Bound

6:28 Blues

My greatest hopes
Will never die
Dreams of many
Just fill the sky
For good, I'm sure
Wonderlessly one
Together we were
Hand clasped paths
Of which we walked
Cluttered with laughter
Of love we talked
Wooden spoked wheels
Turned round and round
Horse and carriage
Sunset bound
Dark shadows entwined
Creating one
Pushing westward
Copper road to the sun
Our love filtered light
A crystal memory in my mind
I longed the need
But left the want behind
Now traveling alone
I'm stronger this day
In knowing myself
I'll be fine this way
The moon and the stars
Have a story to tell
They say you can fall
Yet they never fell
You must shine brightly
Sending off your glow
Stand and stop falling
You sparkle you know
Smile with radiance
Golden Path to the sky
A galaxy of dreams
My greatest hopes will never die.

Pounding My Hood
On A Freezing
Evening
(A Frost-y Reflection of Winter)

Whose fault this is I'd like to know!
My car is mired in the snow.
But who will see me stooping here
To kick these blasted tires below?

The passers-by must think it weird,
And stop to wonder how I steered
Between the mailbox and the road
And wedged it while in second gear!

I pound the hood! Then, blow my nose,
And trudge on off to have it towed;
For though I'm in a sorry state,
I'm heading for some WARM abode!

And so much for my dinner date:
At least now she won't have to wait!
But why was this to be my fate?
But why was THIS to be my fate?

For Patty
"Yesterday"

On a lazy, sunny, summer day
When other youngsters were at play
I'd sit and dream, wondering if I would Grow to that stage called "womanhood"
Sitting dreaming of what all it comprises
Each new dream full of lovely surprises
Then to reality I soon became Hearing a voice calling my name
"Come in out of that hot sun. You have some work yet to be done."
Dreams were put aside for that day
Until another lazy, sunny, summer day

"Today"

I've reached womanhood with eyes all agleam
Stemming from that childhood dream
Wonderful things have passed my way
Since that lazy, sunny day.
So miss not a chance to sit and ponder
As you gaze into the wild blue yonder
God is there to help you plan
So dream, dream on of that wonderful man.

"Tomorrow"

One day, your children, will be looking at that sky
And tears, no doubt, will cloud your eye.
For then you'll remember
Was it June or July when your dream had its start
Silently you thank God with a full understanding heart
As you smile and quietly walk away
Leaving them to dream on their lazy, sunny day.

History Lessons

Like an early morning mirror
To gaze into awoken, naive eyes
To focus on history but
To see ourselves squarely and coldly
Without the softened afternoon light
Without the warmth of nostalgia
Show us your truth and errors
We can learn as attentive sons.

Like a whistled tune
You keep pressed to your lips
Heard before like echoes
From shadows of your fathers
Sounds that remind us all.

Marshall Mesaros (Dedicated to William Reimer, one of my fathers)

Dad

Dad, we sure do miss you,
You've left an empty space.
In our lives there'll never be Someone to fill your place.

Our hearts are gripped with grief
And the days seem oh, so long,
But warm and loving memories of you
Help us to carry on.

The furniture you finished,
The garden that you grew,
Everything you touched now glows,
Reminding us of you.

Gently gruff, sometimes tough,
You could never hide,
The caring and the love you felt
For us way deep inside.

It's only been a month, Dad,
Since you slipped away.
It feels like an eternity
Since that awful day.

But look at what a precious jewel
That your life has been,
Five beautiful children and
Two grandsons, Andrew and Ben.

Cynthia Ashby

Swift Early

Fingers crowd the jar,
lunch money
On pole laces, birds sit, treacherous—sharply alert.
An illuminated porch globe,
is caught up to;
brilliantly equal.
Morning had flung
out of the closet,
once feared,
boogie men
hid.

Budding ballerinas keep on their toes

By MICHELE McELMURRY

They're not exactly the Rockettes. But when you're three or four years old, fame is of little consequence. In fact, just keeping the elastic on your shoes from pinching your ankles is tough enough.

In pink tights, leotards and pint-size ballet slippers, the 16 little twinkle toes traipsing around the Winchester Elementary School gym are hardly ready for the big time.

With their Pixie haircuts, rosey cheeks and button noses, they pose a sharp contrast to the slender, delicate ballerinas who grace the stage.

Yet, these tiny dancers, who range in age from three to six, are just beginning to learn the art of dance as well as coordination, balance and grace — not always an easy feat for a little tyke.

On Tuesday afternoons at Winchester — long after the dismissal bell rings — the faint sounds of piano music echo through the hallways.

In the gym, a flurry of little bodies take their position under the watchful eye of instructor Nancy Thomas.

"Okay now — one, two, three — point your toes," says Mrs. Thomas as tiny feet gently tap the wood floor.

For these budding ballerinas in the Northville Community Recreation's beginning ballet class, this half-hour lesson is a test of determination and fortitude.

While a piano etude plays on the record player in the corner, these little tykes follow Mrs. Thomas as she leads them through the ballet positions.

"First position — feet turned out," she says, as knees start to buckle and bodies sway off balance.

Giggles come easily to this troupe. However, Mrs. Thomas makes certain her little charges stay in line.

"I want everybody to dance when they come to dance class," she calls out to a lone wanderer tiptoeing across the gym.

There's an awful lot to remember in ballet. In addition to keeping your toes pointed, your chin up and your hair out of your face, you have to keep time with the music, keep your balance and make sure your leotard doesn't fall to your knees.

It isn't always easy making pudgy little fingers hold a graceful pose or pulling in tiny tummies after you've just eaten Twinkies.

Among the circle of dancers there are many furrowed brows and determined gazes while these tiny tots attempt to coordinate arms and legs without getting too tangled or keep their balance without flopping to the floor.

However, for these Northville ballerinas it's all in a day's workout. Besides, it pays off in the end when Mrs. Thomas passes out stars to her group of budding Pavlovas and Fonteyns.

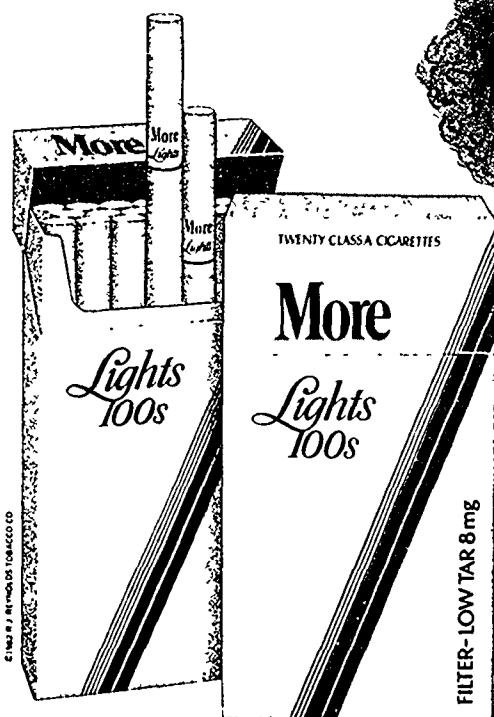

The Northville Community Recreation offers ballet, tap and jazz for both children ages three and older and adults. The ten-week classes are $20 per participant. The Spring schedule of classes will be available next month.

Progressive Dinner plans underway, invitations sent

By JEAN DAY

While the focus will be on legislation when members of the Northville Branch of the American Association of University Women meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Amerman Elementary library, the speaker herself will be of interest. It is Denise Radtke, a small bundle of energy and enthusiasm whose title is field representative for Congressman Carl Pursell in the district office serving Northville, Plymouth and Livonia.

Long a community volunteer and political activist, she began her professional career after raising a family, attending Schoolcraft Community College where she served on the women's resource committee. She received her degree in political science from University of Michigan.

Close to the legislative concerns of the district, she is considered a "vital link" in forwarding them to Washington. Her topic is "Legislation: Personal Lobbying Does Make a Difference."

Refreshments and a brief business meeting will precede the talk, announces program facilitator for the evening, Ellie Williams, legislative program chairman of the branch. For information about branch membership call Jean Hansen, 348-6096, or Jay Ward, 349-3456.

Dinner invitations are in the mail

Invitations to the progressive dinner to be held March 27 in homes in Northville's historic district are in the mail. Reservations are being taken by Jewel Luckett, 349-1046, until March 12, reports Sonja Lang, who is heading the 10th anniversary event of the Northville Historical Society.

The evening is to begin at 7:30 p.m. with those participating gathering first in Mill Race Village for Bawle, a champagne punch, and hors d'oeuvres. Diners then will move to homes for dinner. The menu, reveals Mrs. Lang, will have a southern flavor, featuring plantation chicken fondue. Final stops will be at the West Main homes of Mary Ann Stewart and Barbara Glover for dessert. This, promises Mrs. Lang, will be the piece de resistance — a charlotte russe wheel.

The event is planned to replace the dinner dance of former years and is open to anyone in the community. At $20 a couple it is a bargain evening, says Mrs. Lang, adding that it also should be a great way to get to know neighbors as diners break into smaller groups for dinner.

Northville's in national news

Carl Johnson, who long has operated his real estate office on East Main, didn't read it in The Record, but he did send on a copy of the Mesa (Arizona) Tribune for February 22 which carried a story that the Northville valve plant workers "got the ball rolling" by voting 126-5 in favor of the union's revised contract with Ford.

Engagement announced

MARY SUSAN CRAWFORD

The engagement of Mary Susan Crawford, daughter of Mrs. Robert Crawford of 436 North Center, to David A. Petke is announced. She also is the daughter of the late Robert Crawford.

Her fiancé is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Petke of East Detroit.

The bride-elect is a Northville High School graduate and was graduated from Grand Rapids Bible College. She currently is employed at Mechanical Heat and Cold of Farmington Hills.

Her fiancé is a Lawrence Institute of Technology graduate and is employed with UPS in Detroit.

NOW sets March 10 meet

"Women and Mental Health" is the topic of the March 10 meeting of the Northwest Wayne County Chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) to be held at Hoover Elementary School in Livonia.

A panel of experts will discuss therapy for women from the three perspectives of psychiatry, psychology and social work.

Among the panelists is Lore Hirsch, M.D., who has been in private practice in Dearborn since the 1950s. She was a professor of psychiatry at Wayne State Medical School and earned her medical training in Heidelberg, Germany, and her psychiatry specialty in New York.

Other panelists include Christine Jensen, Ph.D., of Jensen Counseling Associates, a mental health clinic, and Bernadette Davis, ACSW (Academy of Certified Social Workers), owner and director of the Davis Counseling Center in Farmington Hills.

The program is offered as a public service with all interested persons invited to attend. There is no charge to hear the panel's presentation which is scheduled to begin at 8:15 p.m. following a brief business meeting.

Persons requesting further information or transportation should contact Jan Evans at 476-3352 or Betty Kelley at 981-6117.

Johnson returned last week from a 10-day visit with family in Arizona.

Do you remember them?

Here's news of active former Northville residents: Deborah Guido-O'Grady, a 1972 graduate of Northville High and the daughter of former residents Eugene and Dorothy Guido, now of Highland, has been chosen from a field of 217 applicants to be community relations officer for Monroe County Community College. Now 27, she will have the responsibility for planning and directing the public, media and community relations' programs for the two-year college. She also will supervise its graphic arts department and develop a program of individual and corporate giving.

She joins MCCC after serving as director of public information at Madonna College. She earned her MA in communication from the University of Michigan and a BA from Eastern. Last year she was the Monroe BPW club Young Career Woman of the Year. She and her husband Dan live near Ida, Michigan.

From Tyler, Texas, where former Northville residents Art and Rosa Lee Hempe now live, comes news that their son Bob is involved in the TV cable business in San Francisco where he also has started a drivers' school for traffic violators. The Hempes' younger sons Steve and Scott were graduated last year from the University of Texas at Austin in business administration. Mrs. Hempe served as one of the first presidents of Northville Newcomers after the family moved to Fonner Court.

ROBERT L. GREEN

Fashion expert Robert Green is Town Hall guest

Robert L. Green, third speaker in Northville Town Hall's twenty-first season, will appear at 11 a.m. March 11 at the Plymouth Hilton Inn.

Green has established a reputation for commentary on fashion, entertainment and home design in hundreds of appearances on television talk shows.

A former star of the CBS Radio "Mystery Theatre" shows with Orson Welles, Mercedes McCambridge, Julie Harris and Helen Hayes, Green has been commenting on matters of style, taste and fashion (which he indicates are not synonyms) for 30 years.

After 18 years as fashion editor of Playboy magazine, Green will soon produce his own designer lines of jewelry, watches, accessories and men's and women's fashions.

He was the featured speaker for the American Society of Interior Designers lecture series, a member of the Institute for Advanced Studies in the Theatre Arts, and lectures annually at the Royal College of Art.

Green also serves as chairman of the Menswear Development Program at New York's Fashion Institute of Technology. He is a Knight in the Order of Merit by the Italian government, and has been recognized and decorated by the French and Swedish governments for his contributions to the menswear industry. He is currently writing a cookbook for McMillan Publishing Company.

He produces annually the Goodwill Celebrity Auction, Goodwill Industries' only national fund-raiser, and the Playboy Creative Menswear International Designer Collection, which is shown in New York and in an eight-city international tour.

He has appeared on more than 85 television programs this year alone, including Dinah, The Merv Griffin Show, The Mike Douglas Show and Tonight with Johnny Carson.

Green's speaking programs focus on fashion and its relation to style and taste. Each is liberally sprinkled with tongue-in-cheek anecdotes from the social world in which he travels.

As is customary, a luncheon will follow the program at the Hilton. Only one other speaker remains in the current Town Hall series — entertainer Dennis Day who will appear April 1.

Retired

Northville resident Harriet Welland retired at the end of January as the director of the Allied Health Division at Henry Ford Community College after 15 years of service there. Though her retirement will mark the end of lifetime career in the medical profession, she still intends to keep active in Questers, the Northville Business and Professional Women's Club and the First United Methodist Church. She also will remain on the board of directors of the Michigan League of Nursing and will continue to chair the Council on Nursing Education. She is shown above in her office at Henry Ford Community College next to a painting done by her husband Robert and an artwork given to her by students.

Local musicians perform

Michigan Youth Symphony and Novi Suzuki Institute will present a free concert at Novi High School's Fuest Auditorium on Sunday, March 7, at 3 p.m. The concert is sponsored by the Novi Foundation for the Performing Arts.

Northville students performing with the Suzuki Institute are Lissa and Lynette Arpi, Kathleen Adams, Ricky King, Kitty Krueger, Kim Kurzawa, Annie and Tommie Sheppard and Heidi Zimmerman.

Selections will include "The Great Russian Easter Overture" by Rimsky-Korsakov as well as selections from "The Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra" by Britten.

Dr. Robert Culver, well-known violinist and string professor at the University of Michigan, is the conductor and music director of the symphony, which is sponsored by U-M's school of music.

The 33-year-old orchestra presently has some 80 members ranging in age from 11-17 who travel throughout Michigan and Canada for weekend rehearsals and concerts. The philosophy of the orchestra is to provide young musicians a glimpse into the professional world of music through literature and performances not available in public schools.

The Talent Education Association of Novi, better known as the Novi Suzuki Institute, is comprised of students three to 15 years old. They receive two lessons per week — one private and one group — under instructors Alex Ross and Joyce Butler.

Parents are required to attend lessons until students reach the fourth grade. Lessons and weekly solo recitals are held in the Novi Methodist Church and students' homes.

In Sunday's concert, Suzuki Institute members will perform "Concerto for Four Violins" by Vivaldi and Gavotte from "The Orchestral Suite No. 4 in D Major" by Bach.

Additional information about the concert is available at 349-0036.

World Day of Prayer set

Dr. Lawrence Chamberlain will be the principal speaker at the World Day of Prayer service at 10 a.m. Friday at Northville's First Presbyterian Church.

World Day of Prayer is an international celebration sponsored by Church Women United joining millions of people throughout the world in a day-long prayer service.

The theme of this year's service is "The People of God: Gathered for Worship, Scattered for Service." The text of the service was prepared by women of the Republic of Ireland and Northern Ireland. The women worked ecumenically at a Christian renewal center near the border of the two Irish states.

World Day of Prayer provides women in the United States with an occasion to participate in a nationwide offering which goes into Intercontinental Grants, the process by which Church Women United carries out its stewardship through grants to a wide variety of programs.

Refreshments at this Friday's service will be provided by the Women's Association. Babysitting will be available.

NHS gymnasts go to wire in qualifying for regionals

By JOHN MYERS

It was a little tense for awhile, but Northville girls' gymnastics coach Debbie Heck summed up the feelings of the squad after it had downed Walled Lake Western, 112-105.2, last Thursday to qualify the team for regional competition March 13 in Adrian. What made everything tense was Thursday's match was the last time Northville would be able to attain its fourth score of 112 points or better to qualify everyone for regional competition. All qualifying marks had to be attained before the end of February. The Mustangs hit their third score last week Wednesday in a 118.55-113.85 defeat to Dearborn. Northville now has a 7-3 overall record. The Mustangs battled North Farmington Tuesday and return there for the league meet Saturday. The Western Six Conference will conduct its meet concurrently with the North Suburban League meet. Action begins at noon. Some clutch performances in the night's final event, the floor exercise, helped the Mustangs get over the top against Western and into the regionals as a team.

'It was a little tense for awhile, but we did it'

— Debbie Heck, gymnastics coach

Heck noted the team was down going into the floor exercise because it had not performed well in the uneven bars competition.

Senior Paula Broderick led the way in the floor exercise with an 8.5 and Amy Aaron followed with an 8.07. Wendy Wobermin tallied a 7.5 and Tish Johnson a 6.35, which was enough to get Northville the 112 points it needed.

"Everybody is kind of relieved now," Heck said. "It makes everyone feel a lot better (that the team qualified)."

Marian Rothermel (5.95) and Kim Ketke (4.3) also competed in the floor exercise event.

The Mustangs did not perform up to their capabilities in the uneven bars event. Broderick scored a 7.25 to lead the way, while Aaron tallied a 6.8. Wobermin had a 5.4, Johnson a 4.35 and Lisa Whitmyer scored a 2.45.

In vaulting, Broderick scored an 8.6 and Aaron an 8.25 to pace the Mustangs. Johnson tallied a 6.5, Wobermin a 6.15 and Katie Sherman a 4.5 to round out the scoring.

In the balance beam, Wobermin led the Mustangs with a 7.35, followed by Broderick with a 7.3, Johnson a 7.1, Aaron a 6.6, Laura Kiraly a 5.85 and Tia Rathburn with a 2.9.

"They all knew what they had to do," explained Heck, who noted having both meets at home was a benefit.

Also, the first-year coach noted the girls displayed a team attitude throughout the season which helped in their drive.

"If they didn't, I don't think we would have made it," Heck added.

One example she cited was Johnson, who only last year competed in the floor exercise but advanced to an all around performer in the past few meets.

Candela headed to state meet

"We're headed for East Lansing." That is what an ecstatic Northville wrestling coach Gary Emerson had to say Monday after heavyweight Vince Candela took second place at the Ann Arbor Huron regional Saturday to advance to the state Class A meet in East Lansing Saturday.

"I think he wrestled extremely well. He was in control all day," Emerson said.

Waterford Kettering's Steve King nipped Candela in the finals, 1-0, when he pulled an escape move in the last minute of the match.

This was the second time this season the two wrestlers have met with King, who now owns a 31-1 record, winning an earlier 6-5 decision at the Rochester Invitational.

Seeded third, Candela won his first match of the day against Flint Southwestern's John Hart, 5-0. Candela then defeated the number-one seed, Belleville's Guy Wood, 8-3. It was Wood who won the district title at Temperance-Bedford last week where Candela placed third.

Candela was not able to wrestle against an old nemesis, Plymouth Salem's Marty Piper, who beat him

1-0 last week at Temperance. Piper was disqualified from further tournament action because he defaulted his title match last week when he and his mother were involved in a car accident.

Tournament rules state a wrestler can only default a match if he has sustained an injury in his previous match. In Piper's case, tournament officials would not bend the rules.

Candela currently sports a 34-7 record, and one more win would break the Northville single season record for most wins which he established last year.

Emerson believes Candela has a good chance to finish in the top six places at the state meet, since he has seen most of the Class A wrestlers in the state.

"It just depends on who you match up against," Emerson explained.

Storm breaks records

Former Northville girls' swimming standout Kim Storm continues her assault on the Northern Michigan University women's swim team records.

The freshman tanker set team records in the 100-yard freestyle (53.58) and helped established a record in the 400-yard medley relay.

Cagers tumble to third in W-Six

By JOHN MYERS

It was all there for the taking, but the Northville boys' basketball team let everything slip right through its grasp. Livonia Churchill put the finishing touches on Northville's sudden slide from the top of the Western Six Conference to a final third-place tie with the Chargers, who scored a hard earned 59-55 triumph February 23.

What makes the loss even tougher to swallow for Northville was that Walled Lake Western pulled off a major upset Friday by nipping Farmington Harrison, 56-54.

Therefore, Western and Harrison tied for the W-Six co-championship with 5-3 records. If Northville had defeated Churchill, the Mustangs would have forced a tri-championship.

Also, Northville's late season slump continued with its loss to non-league opponent Waterford Township, 72-52, Friday. Northville finishes its regular season 8 p.m. Friday against non-league foe Walled Lake Central.

Northville finished league play at 4-4, in which all of the losses were on the road, and currently stands at 10-9 overall.

Some of the factors contributing to Northville's recent string of losses have been missed opportunities, lost confidence, opposing zone defenses and a lack of strong play from the top eight players.

"We are the type of team that doesn't have any one outstanding player," Mustang coach Tim Lutes explained. "We need to be hitting on all cylinders, so to speak."

"When one or two of our (eight) kids are not playing well, we don't win. We need everyone playing well to win," he added.

The Mustangs, who have lost three straight and four of their past five, have not been able to solve opponents' zone defenses, Lutes said.

Therefore, Northville's inside game has suffered because it has not been able to connect on its outside shots. "Primarily, nobody has been hitting from outside. At the start of the season I thought one of our strengths would be our outside shooting. Rather, it has been one of our glaring weaknesses,"

Lutes said.

"The kids are down emotionally," he added. "The kids are putting a little pressure on themselves."

Missing opportunities was the key failure in the Churchill contest, and it was never more evident than in the last 30 seconds of the game.

Northville was trailing by two with under 30 seconds left to play when Carl Lang stole an inbound pass, drove to basket and was fouled. However, the shot would not fall and Lang made only one of two free throws.

"We haven't been able to get the breaks," Lutes said.

Lang paced the Mustangs with 19 points, while Dave Mallowski added nine and John Foley eight. Steve Schrader and Steve Handley each had five, while Tim McLaughlin had four.

Northville's junior varsity basketball team split a pair of games last week against Western Six Conference foe Livonia Churchill and non-league opponent Waterford Township.

The Mustangs topped Churchill in their final league contest, 56-44, as Matt Meyer led Northville with 11 points off the bench.

Doug Doyle added nine, Dave Longridge eight and Mike Weber tossed in seven for Northville.

Waterford avenged an earlier loss to Northville with a 53-44 victory over the Mustangs, who had beaten the Skippers in overtime earlier in the year.

"I figured they would be looking for us," coach Omar Harrison said. "They are a pretty good ballclub."

Bob Pegrum was the top Northville scorer with 14 points and Longridge added nine.

Northville currently stands at 15-4 overall with its final game 6 p.m. Friday against Walled Lake Central. The Mustangs finished the W-Six with a 6-2 mark.

NHS tankers prepare for Western Six meet

Northville boys' swim team will be seeking to garner a second-place finish at the Western Six Conference meet which begins tonight at Farmington Harrison. The preliminary heats will take place tonight and the finals will take place 7 p.m. Thursday at Harrison.

Mustang coach Pete Talbot believes Plymouth Canton will successfully defend its conference crown, and therefore leave Livonia Churchill, Northville and Harrison fighting it out for the runner-up spot.

"We always seem to swim well in league meets," said Talbot, adding he hopes the same holds true this season.

To finish ahead of Churchill, which downed Northville 98-67 last Thursday in the final dual meet of the season, Talbot said the team needs everyone to perform well and score points.

The loss to Churchill put Northville's final dual meet record at 3-11 and 2-4 in league meets.

Tim Walker was the only Mustang to take a first in the meet as he claimed the top spot in the 100-yard backstroke with a time of 1:07.1.

The Mustangs took 10 second-place finishes with Adam Swallow showing the most improvement in time. He shaved eight seconds off his previous best times in the 200-yard freestyle and 500-yard freestyle.

Northville also competed in the Brighton Invitational Friday and Saturday as the Mustangs placed eighth out of eight squads.

The 200-yard medley relay team of Gary Lauber, Chris Behen, Jon Burchard and Dave Copp and Burchard in the 50-yard freestyle each took ninth-place finishes.

Kucher to be honored at hoop game

Former Northville baseball coach Bob Kucher will be honored at halftime of the Mustangs' non-league basketball clash against Walled Lake Central Friday. Athletic Director Ralph Redmond announced.

The special halftime presentation will be part of the Senior Night activities at the contest.

Also, the parents of this year's senior Mustang players will be honored before the varsity contest begins.

NHS spikers drop three dual matches

Losses just keep mounting for the Northville girls' volleyball team as it dropped three more dual meet contests last week, but coach Steve McDonald still saw some improvement.

The Mustangs lost 15-6 and 15-12 to Western Six Conference rival Livonia Churchill, 15-7 and 15-13 to non-league foe Livonia Stevenson; and 15-0 and 15-11 to W Six champion Walled Lake Western last week. The losses put Northville's overall mark at 3-10 and 2-6 in league play.

However, Steve McDonald said the team has been improving, despite the losses, and with a predominately junior and sophomore line up, things look good for the future.

We had a new group of people come in (the line up) the last two weeks and their willing to work and improve on the mistakes their making," McDonald noted.

The last two weeks have been more enjoyable for me even though we're not winning. I think we'll be okay in the long run," he added.

The Mustangs finish their regular season at home 5:30 p.m. Thursday against Livonia Ladywood before entering district competition Saturday in Howell.

McDonald believes his squad can down Ladywood, but notes the district competition is going to be tough.

The Mustangs will meet the winner of the Brighton/Waterford Mott contest 11:30 a.m. Saturday in Howell. Brighton tied Howell for the Kensington Valley Conference crown this year. Also, the Bulldogs beat a number-one rated Howell squad earlier in the year.

"I think Brighton, Howell and Western are the three best teams in our district," McDonald assessed.

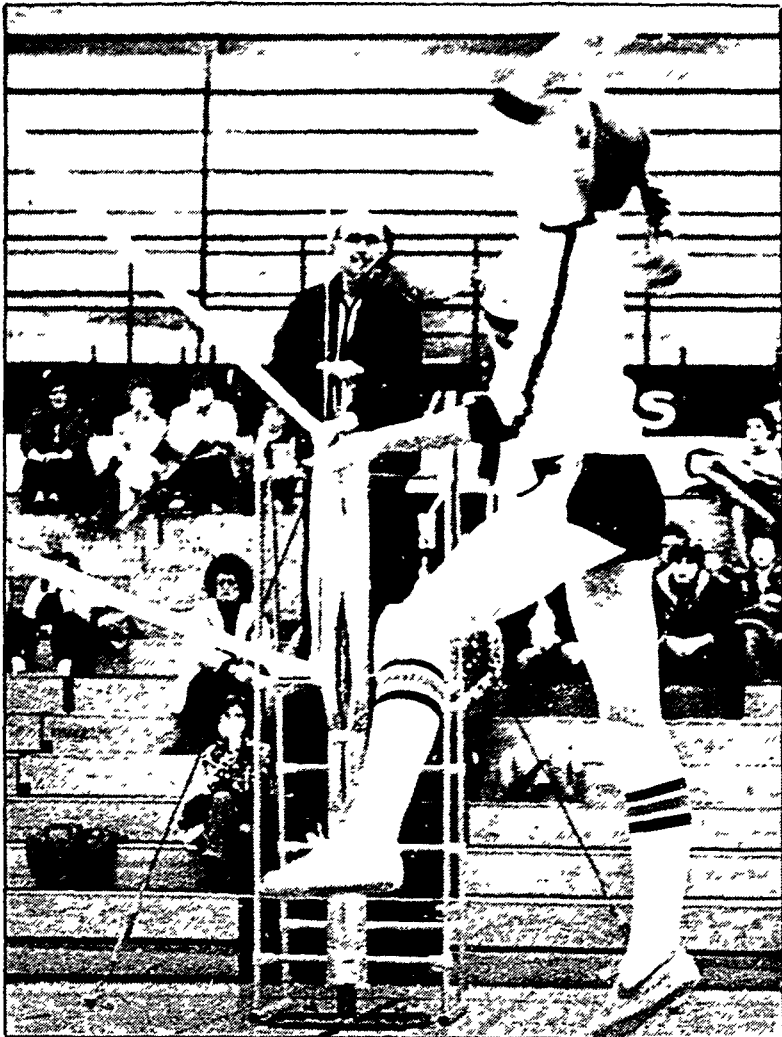

With the three losses last week, McDonald saw the team falling into a pattern that was somewhat familiar at the start of the season: Northville would lose badly in its first game before rebounding to play a tough second game.

At the start of the season, Northville would win its first game before losing its next two games and the match.

"In virtually all of the matches, we played well in one game and not in the other," McDonald said. "We always seemed to play bad in the first game."

McDonald said he has tried different things — like meditating as a team before a match or a strong pregame workout — to get the team ready for its first game. However, he noted he has not found the right method.

Also, mental mistakes hurt the team in all three losses. McDonald said the team made more mistakes in the first game than the second.

Eagles, Central tabbed district cage favorites

Lakeland and Walled Lake Central look like the favorites to capture the "conference champion dominated" Class A District 23 cage championship at Milford beginning next Monday.

Champions of three conferences, Lakeland (KVC), Central (Inter-Lakes) and Walled Lake Western (Western Six) are in the five-team field, along with Northville and Milford.

Milford will play host to Lakeland Monday, while Northville and Western battle each other Tuesday. Central will play the winner of the Milford/Lakeland contest Wednesday. The championship contest is slated for Friday. All games begin at 7 p.m.

The coaches of the five teams competing believe Central and Lakeland have the guns to be district champs, with Northville, Western and Milford as longshots.

Northville is the defending district champ, having won the title at home last year. Carl Lang is the squad's leading scorer at 13 points a contest.

Lakeland has been rolling right along this season. It posted a 17-2 overall mark and easily won the Kensington Valley Conference title.

Coach Steve Emert led Central to its first Inter-Lakes Conference title in 10 years. The Vikings are currently 11-7 overall.

Western might be a factor in the tournament despite its 6-12 overall record. Coach Ted Felegy guided the Warriors to their first Western Six Conference championship this season.
