Hook, line and sinker

To celebrate the end of the winter blahs and the first day of spring vacation, Mike Caldwell, 13, at left, and buddies Kay Myers, 9, and Ricky Myers, 11, grabbed their fishing poles and tackle and headed down to the Fish Hatchery pond to test the waters. From the looks of things, it appears as though Ricky lost the day's catch. Record photo by Steve Fecht.

Council seeks budget cuts after newest rebate slash

Faced with a deficit projected at $325,222 for the current 1981-82 budget year, Northville City Council met in special session Monday night to adopt a new resolution to issue a tax anticipation note in the amount of $344,500 to meet obligations between now and September tax collections.

Council members also looked at ways to slash expenditures further and made the decision not to hold the annual employee banquet already scheduled for April 22.

It also considered limiting its contribution to the Jaycees' July 4 celebration to $1,000, canceling all conferences and meetings not related to immediate city business, reducing fire capital outlay and volunteer wages and city hall maintenance.

City Manager Steven Walters told council that the city will have to consider laying off five employees to realize any major saving.

Latest blow to city finances came last week with Governor William Milliken's executive order making further cuts in the state budget, including a $200,000 cut in race track rebates.

Walters said he had not received the exact figure of the latest cut but anticipated Northville's share would be between $46,000 and $50,000.

Added to the previous projected deficit of $275,222 that the council faced just a week ago at the April 5 session, the sum rose to $325,222.

In all, the city, Walters tallied, has lost a total of $263,424 in racing revenues this year. Reduced attendance caused by weather and economic conditions resulted in the loss to the city of $135,541. The previous cut in revenues by the state in November resulted in the loss of $77,883.

Projected shortage in all other city revenues was listed at $14,813 while excess in expenditures was at $46,985, making up the total general fund deficit of $325,222. To this amount the city has to add $17,778 for delay in receiving the Wayne Revolving Fund receipts and expenses of $1,500 incurred by the sale of the tax note.

Walters estimated that budget reductions amounting to $30,500 can be realized with the slashes suggested. Laying off five employees, he said, would realize the major savings of $22,600 (two months' wages plus fringe benefits that are estimated now at one third of salary).

Walters, as he made the recommendations, stated the city simply has "no leeway left." He said that overtime already has been eliminated and that essentially no supplies are being ordered except necessary automotive ones. He noted that he presently is discussing COLA with employee groups.

As the council reluctantly voted to cancel the annual dinner at which employees and members of boards and commissions and their spouses are

Five candidates seek school board posts

Five residents have filed petitions for the two Northville Board of Education seats to be filled in the June 14 election.

Seeking reelection to the board are Karen Wilkinson, currently serving as board president, and trustee Glenna Davis.

Other petitions have been filed by Andrew M. Sambrone of 113 West Main, a 25-year-old mechanic at Cal's Gulf Service; Russell L. Dore of 409 Larry, manager of training and education at Fruehauf Corporation and Patrick A. Coyne, 48, of 19651 Pierson, owner of an alarm business in Dearborn.

Deadline for turning in petitions was 4 p.m. Monday. Candidates have until 4 p.m. Thursday, April 15, to withdraw. Both board seats to be filled in the June election carry four-year terms.

Wilkinson, who will be seeking her third term, was first elected to the board in 1974. She was elected to her second term in 1978.

She served as board president during the 1979-80 school year and was elected to the post a second time last July. In addition to serving on the Northville Board of Education, she also is a member of the board of directors of the Michigan Association of School Boards, a post she has held since 1979.

Davis was elected to the board last June to complete the term of former trustee Richard Barron who resigned from the post.

Davis is a member of the Silver Springs PTA, vice president of Northwest Wayne NOW and president of the Homemakers Equal Rights Association of Michigan.

Workers withdraw from union

By a 13 to 9 vote, city employees last Wednesday voted to withdraw from their American Federation of State and County Municipal Employees (AFSCME) union.

The decertification vote was taken at a special election in city council chambers under auspices of the state's Michigan Employees' Relations Commission (MERC).

Because unfair labor practices charges and a petition by clerical workers to withdraw from the union had been withdrawn last month, the election was able to be scheduled.

The city's 12 clerical employees (an additional employee is on sick leave) and 10 Department of Public Works employees had been members of the same AFSCME union of Michigan Council 25, Local No. 2720.

Controller Betty Lennox, who with Alice Ritchie had represented the clerical workers, said she expected to have a majority of clerical workers signing the cards to form an independent Northville Clerical Association before next Monday's council meeting. Clerical workers had scheduled a meeting Tuesday night to make plans.

The AFSCME union had included all clerks, library aides, assistant librarian, deputy city clerk, deputy treasurer, building department clerk, controller, laborers, sanitation operators, equipment operators, working foremen, senior equipment operators and mechanics. Only confidential and supervisory employees were excluded from the union.

The dissatisfaction with the local on the part of the clerical workers began last year when the city laid off DPW workers as it began to contract for rubbish collection. The union local then claimed seniority-wide seniority should apply with clerical workers to be bumped by DPW workers with more seniority.

Clerical workers objected to seniority provisions regardless of position and sought to have the union limit seniority to the job. Claiming the local refused to listen to their case, the clerical workers sought the decertification. The local then filed an unfair labor practices charge against the city, charging the city was instituting the decertification. Both charges were dropped in order to schedule last Wednesday's election.

In anticipation of the election, the city council at its March 22 meeting unanimously adopted a resolution stating its awareness of the election called to allow members of the AFSCME Local No. 2720 to decide whether to retain the present union.

If the local is not retained, the resolution read, there will be a transition period between the election and the reorganization by employees into separate DPW and clerical groups; for that period, the city agreed with the local to continue to operate under the terms of the 1980-81 labor agreement while the next contract was being negotiated.

"The city has no desire or intention of taking advantage of this transition period, and wants the employees to have a free choice at the election," the resolution stated, continuing, "and sufficient time during the transition period to examine their options and make the

City garage sale to stay on Main Street

A May 15 date has been set for Northville's fourth annual John Q. Public Garage Sale which will be held on Northville's renovated Main Street.

Because of opposition from some merchants and others who felt the new design of Main Street would not lend itself to holding the popular sale there, Charles Lapham, co-chairman with his son Scott, asked city council Monday night for permission to hold the event in the parking lot behind the M.A.G.S. building (Northville Square).

The request to move to the parking lot met with opposition and concern, however. The council was meeting in a special budgetary session and the matter was not officially on the agenda, but was discussed as Lapham needed approval to begin selling spaces.

"I would take the clutter and crowds — you can't have more fun than being shoulder-to-shoulder," declared council member J. Burton DeRusha as the request was made to use the parking lot.

G. Dewey Gardner, mayor pro tem, who had brought the matter to the council, said he, speaking as a businessman, also felt it was better to keep the sale in the downtown area.

He explained that the Laphams, who are chairmen of the event sponsored by the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce, had met opposition from some merchants who did not feel the sale is an asset to their businesses. Fewer spaces on Main Street with the new design also were cited as a reason. Lapham has contacted the Downs and obtained permission to use the parking lot without charge.

Downs parking will be available for spaceholders and visitors to the sale traditionally held the Saturday before Michigan Week begins.

Lapham had decided Monday to move the event after receiving a petition signed by 33 members of the Merchants' Association of Northville opposing having it on Main Street.

Moving to the parking lot location, Lapham said, would have doubled the number of spaces available and made it possible to hold an auction in conjunction with the garage sale.

"The auction is a feature I wanted to add before," Lapham said, explaining that residents would be able to price items and set a time at which they will be up for auction if not purchased beforehand at the stated price. He still plans to hold it as an added feature this year.

He said Ron Barrow of Auction Arena in Hartland, a bonded auctioneer, has agreed to be auctioneer. Lapham said details and location still are being worked out and will be announced.

Lapham recalled Tuesday that the John Q. Public Garage Sale had been conceived as a "day for residents" and that he had no objection to holding it on Main Street and was bowing to council's reluctance to approve the parking lot location.

Council members expressed concern about crowds crossing Center from the Downs parking lot to the garage sale and the suggestion was made that it would be better to hold the sale at the Downs lot.

However, the council said it definitely preferred having the sale on Main Street.

DeRusha suggested that it would be possible to extend the spaces downtown into the new park areas as a solution to the smaller area available on Main.

Ford still exploring possibilities

By KEVIN WILSON

United Auto Workers union vice president Donald Ephlin was slated to appear at a membership meeting of local 896, representing Northville Ford plant workers, yesterday afternoon in the VFW Hall.

Norm Fultz, local president, said Ephlin, head of the union's Ford department, would be coming straight from a regular quarterly meeting of union and company officials in Dearborn.

Ford is still studying possible uses of the Northville facility, which it said last month would eventually reopen though probably not in its former role as supplier of engine valves.

Fultz said two laid-off workers have been called back to work to "check valves" Ford purchased from an outside concern. He said other meetings in the course of Ford's study are scheduled in the next week or two and that announcement of what might produced at the plant could come soon thereafter. He said he was hoping Ephlin might have some idea of the course the study is taking after yesterday's meeting in Dearborn.

Special automotive fasteners, small tractor forgings, engine control sensing components and small service parts are possibilities being examined, according to a metalworking industry publication.

American Metal Market/Metalworking News printed a story March 22 in which reporter Al Wrigley cited unnamed Ford sources as stating the company is unlikely to embark on extensive retooling of the Northville Plant but might move in machinery from other plants.

The plant contains extensive forging and grinding equipment. Fultz said some of the equipment which was shipped out to other plants after valve production halted November 20, 1981 may soon be returned to Northville.

The plant employed about 250 workers when Ford began to phase it out because reduced demand for valves due to smaller engines mitigated against economic operation. Some of those employees have since retired, but company and union officials have said they hope to make the facility productive enough to call back those still on layoff.

There are presently only 10 employees, both salaried and hourly, working on the premises.

Police activity similar to 1980

Township police activity in 1981 was about equal to that in 1980 despite operation during much of the year with two fewer officers on the road.

In his annual report to the board of trustees March 29, police chief Kenneth Hardesty noted that there was one murder and one forcible rape recorded in 1981 — there were one and two such incidents, respectively, reported in 1980. There was one armed robbery and two attempted rapes in 1981. Neither crime was reported the year before.

Most township police activity, however, is involved with crimes against property or traffic matters. The number of burglaries, larcenies, auto thefts and malicious destruction cases in 1981 was on a par with 1980 figures, he reported, but the value of the property loss more than doubled in that year.

In 1980, his report shows, breaking and entering accounted for the loss of $115,424 worth of goods. In 1981 the figure was $253,465. Moreover, in 1980 police recovered $88,523 worth of stolen goods, leaving a balance of $26,901 lost to burglars.

In 1981, only $57,685 worth of property was recovered, so losses totaled $195,800.

Auto theft losses were reduced by nearly half, however. Figures from 1981 show a loss of $84,763 and recovery of $25,720. In 1980, cars totaling $129,375 were stolen and $16,540 was recovered.

Losses to malicious destruction also were reduced in 1981, with reports of damage totaling $37,374 as compared to 1980's $43,964.

The reduction in police staffing in the last half of last year did not result in any fewer traffic citations being issued. Drivers collected 1,647 traffic tickets in 1981 in the township, as opposed to 1,604 in 1980.

Total physical arrests (which can include most any crime from minors being in possession of alcohol up to murder) totaled 450 in 1981, 443 in 1980.

Significant rises were recorded in the number of thefts of auto parts and accessories (from 67 in 1980 to 89 in 1981), indecent exposure (which more than doubled, from five to 13 reports, in one year), liquor law violations (up 12) firecrackers (doubled from 9 to 18), and encounters with escapees from the state hospital (from 51 in 1980 to 74 in 1981).

There was a doubling in the number of reported runaway juveniles (all other juvenile complaints were reduced). Live animal pick-ups by the police department increased from 72 to 119. Open alarms (generally false) accounted for 491 police runs in 1981 as opposed to 347 the previous year — an increase of 144 calls. The total represents an average of more than one such call per day.

Assistance to citizens accounted for 441 runs, as opposed to 404 the previous year.

Reductions from previous year activity included complaints of assault with a gun (from six in 1980 to none last year), minors in possession of alcohol (from 18 in 1980 to 10 last year), disturbing the peace (143 complaints from 187), trespassing, and several categories of traffic complaints (road hazards, abandoned cars, miscellaneous, injury accidents).

Hardesty told the board that with his force up to full strength he would expect to see more recoveries of stolen goods and stricter enforcement of other laws.

He noted the department has acquired a breathalyzer system and security cameras for the jail area in the past year and that prisoners on work-release from Phoenix Correctional Facility painted the department quarters.

During budget sessions Hardesty said the only traffic regulation observers might see more heavily enforced in the township in the next year would be drunk driving laws, despite the implication by some board members that the department is newly responsible to pay for the 35th District Court building.

The township is among area communities proportionately sharing costs of the 35th District Court building operation in Plymouth.

Township cops plan changes in department

Organizational changes and a minor uniform alteration are in store for the township police department, Chief Kenneth Hardesty reported to the board of trustees Thursday.

The chief obtained board permission to create the position of "captain" as a second-in-command officer. The post will be filled after testing of eligible officers, he said.

The captain rank is a new one for the department. Prior to being named chief (on the departure of Ronald Nism) Hardesty was the department's lieutenant.

During budget hearings last month, Hardesty told the board he wanted to retain the lieutenant's position and established a salary for it, although there are no police personnel ranked between the chief and three sergeants on the force.

Also during those hearings, he said he would not fill the lieutenant's position until next year, when a 0.7 mill property tax increase for the department goes into effect.

But he told the board last week he had "figured out a way" to fill the second-in-command slot within the department budget. He said calling the rank captain instead of lieutenant "gives the man a little more prestige."

The change in designation also removes the employee from the Command Officers Association (COA), a collective bargaining organization whose contract gives it representation for all sergeants and lieutenants.

Hardesty also reported that his officers would be wearing a different uniform with the switch to summer attire.

Current two-tone blue shirts, he said, were designed for constables and are becoming harder to obtain and more expensive. He said all members of the department had agreed to purchase a different style shirt that is all white, and to use the short-sleeve versions when the department makes the switch to summer uniforms in May.

All members of the department receive a clothing allowance to defray the costs of uniform purchases and maintenance.

Waterford Pond dam deemed safe by WCRC

A state engineer's claim that many Michigan dams are hazardous, including the one on the Middle Rouge at Northville Road and Six Mile, are unfounded according to the Wayne County Road Commission.

Road commission officials denied there is any hazard. The commission operates the Waterford Pond dam and four others on the Rouge which were given high hazard rankings in a 1978 survey done by state engineer Gary Croskey.

Concerns arose following the recent collapse of a dam in Hell, Michigan and Croskey's claim that many dams are unsafe.

Croskey noted there was no immediate danger from the Waterford dam or those at Phoenix Lake, Wilcox Road, Newburgh Road and the Nankin Mills park area.

The high hazard rating, he explained, is based on the dam's location and what is located downstream from it. The study did not rate dams dependent on condition.

Croskey did recommend that trees be removed from the earth embankment at Waterford dam and that a structural analysis be conducted due to concern about the dam's stability.

Tom Voyles of the road commission's bridge department said the county thinks the dams "are in good condition. There's no reason to be worried."

According to Croskey, the hazard is that a dam failure in the middle Rouge could cause a life-threatening situation for those using the park and a chain reaction downstream. The road commission disputes this argument, noting that a dam failure would likely occur during a heavy rain when few people are using the park.

Hines Parkway was designed as a flood plain for the river and high water frequently covers the park after heavy rainfalls.

"I would highly dispute there is any imminent danger to picnickers in the middle Rouge Parkway and there are no houses in the flood plain," said Lou Sugo, a road commission spokesman.

Croskey contends a dam failure would not necessarily occur during a heavy rainfall; it might happen at any time and his hazard rating is based on that possibility.

Sugo said it is doubtful the road commission will follow up on the recommendations of the survey.

"It might be nice to have someone go and cut branches here and there if you have a lot of money. We don't have the money to go and do things like that," he said.

Croskey also recommended the dams be checked by registered professional engineers every two to five years.

Voyles said the road commission visually checks the dams every two years but declined to detail the inspection process.

Croskey said such inspections are questionable unless done by a qualified engineer.

"This could just be a road crew going out and looking at the dam. We don't get the road commission reports here (in Lansing)," he said.

Another recommendation of the report was for dam operators to develop a warning plan in the event of a dam failure. The road commission has no such plan, Sugo said.

"Do you mean do we have somebody go down and yell 'Look out, the dam broke?'" he said.

The state has been unable to follow up on the recommendations Croskey said.

Four state police officers promoted

Four Michigan State Police officers, involved at the Northville post, have been promoted by the department, an MSP spokesman announced.

First Lieutenant Robert J. Bellaire, an assistant commander of the second district at Northville, was promoted to captain and commander of the fifth district at Paw Paw. He is succeeding Captain William Chandler, who is retiring April 24.

Lieutenant Kenneth T. Casperson has been promoted from commander of the Coldwater post to first lieutenant VII and assistant district commander at Northville. Lieutenant Allen L. Byam has been promoted from community services for the second district at Northville to lieutenant V and commander of the Niles post.

The former Shell gas station is being transformed into The Electric Light Room

Arcade site plans rejected, again

Basically using a motion restating its original stipulations, the city planning commission rejected a modified site and landscape plan for the proposed Electric Light Room, 575 South Main, at its meeting last week Wednesday.

Owner Richard Marzak, who intends to use the former Shell gasoline station as a family entertainment center, will appear at Tuesday's meeting with another modified plan.

Planners voted 5-2 to reject Marzak's latest site and landscape plan on virtually the same motion used to condi-tionally approve his initial plan. Commissioner Jay Wendt's motion asked to deny the modified plan and to clarify the safety of bicyclists, to eliminate two driveways, to remedy the lack of a 10-foot green belt and insure the safety of persons entering and leaving the building.

Commissioners Wendt, James Culter, Fred Joels, Luke Durst and Charles Freydl all voted yes. Chairperson Lesa Buckland and Commissioner Thomas Wheaton voted no. Commissioners Bruce Turnbull and Stewart Kissingner were absent.

Commissioners at the March 16 meeting voted 5-2 to approve the initial plan, but with the following conditions: eliminating one driveway on Seven Mile and one on South Main, improving traffic circulation and pedestrian arrival land points and incorporating bike racks out of the parking area.

Three different plans were discussed by Marzak, but he only submitted one for the approval of the commission.

The plan submitted had bike racks located along the east side of the building near the trash bins, eliminated two driveways by placing planter boxes and railroad ties across entrances, divided the parking lot into two half lots and updated all existing green belt areas located on the property.

However, Marzak intends to go before the Zoning Board of Appeals May 5 to ask for a variance on the required 10-foot green belt between the parking lot and the street right-of-way. He stated to the commissioners it was not "practical" for him to establish the 10-foot green belt.

"I think I have met the demands of yours," Marzak said. "I think I give everything but the 10-foot green belt and I'm going to ask for a waiver for it."

Planning consultant Ronald Nino believed the planter boxes still left the appearance of a driveway, thus not eliminating it. He felt the driveway could be curbed off, with a green belt put in place of the asphalt.

One of Wendt's major concerns was safety of patrons, which he felt was not met. He noted the bike rack could be placed on a wider sidewalk near the handicapped parking spaces, which he believed would ensure better safety for the children visiting the establishment.

Marzak has plans for an outside service window where persons can place and pick up orders without going inside. "It will be like a Dairy Queen where we'll serve hot dogs, ice cream and pop," he explained.

However, Wendt felt the three-foot walkway persons would use was not enough because he believed people would line up into the parking lot.

Wendt made his motion moments later which, after passing, had Marzak pumping questions at the commissioners as to what they actually wanted. He said he felt he already had met their conditions outlined in the original motion.

Wheaton believed Marzak had met the criteria of the original motion, adding "maybe we should have spelled it out better."

The difference in interpreting what personal safety and driveway elimination meant to the two sides was noted by Marzak. "It's a personal thing. You have one idea, and I have one idea," he said. "How many times will we go around with this?"

Culter repeatedly told Marzak to discuss his plan with the commission's site plan review committee before the next meeting so both sides could clear up any questions either may have about the plan. Also, the committee will be better able to come with a recommendation to the commission about the plan at the meeting, he explained.

The approximately 30-minute discussion ended when Marzak queried the commission if it would approve a plan whereby he curbed and landscaped the two driveways, made a patio for the bike racks and received the variance on the 10-foot green belt.

The response by the commission fell short of a definite "yes," but Marzak was left with the impression the plan might be approved.

Family Service, County offer divorce workshop

Family service of Detroit and Wayne County through the Learning for Living Center is offering an eight-week series of educational groups in divorce adjustment.

The groups will be held Thursday evenings from 6:30-8:30 p.m. and tentatively are scheduled to begin April 22 at the Livonia District Office located at 16755 Mid-

City auditors reappointed

The auditing firm of Plante and Moran unanimously was reappointed city auditor at the March 22 Northville City Council meeting.

Kenneth Kunkel, a member of the firm working on the city audit, had presented a proposal to City Manager Steven Walters that could save the city $500 if the audit could be done in September as the earlier time would eliminate overtime. Walters agreed that a September audit would be no problem.

Kunkel assured the council that the cost of the audit would not exceed $11,725.

Sitting pretty

Ornamental benches were set in place along downtown streets and in city parks Monday as one of the final steps in the completion of Mainstreet '78 project. The benches bear plaques identifying donors who have purchased them in the beautifica-

Schools propose $11 million budget for 1982

A proposed $11 million budget for the 1982-83 school year was submitted by the Northville Public Schools to the Wayne County Tax Allocation Board after approval by the Northville school board April 5.

The proposed budget, an approximate $770,000 increase over the 1981-82 budget, represents the administration's projected expenditures for the upcoming school year.

The administration has projected increases in almost all budget areas from instruction to pupil services. However, an estimated $8,000 reduction is expected in the general administration area due to the cutbacks in central office personnel.

The largest expenditure in the budget is in the instruction area where approximately $6.2 million is allocated for teachers' salaries, benefits, services, supplies and materials.

The 1982-83 salary schedule for teachers in the Northville Public Schools with bachelor's degrees is a minimum of $15,538 and a maximum of $26,774. The salary range for teachers with master's degrees is a minimum of $17,004 and a maximum of $31,815.

1981-82 salary schedules ranged from $14,553 to $25,239 for teachers with bachelor's degrees and $16,030 to $29,991 for those with master's degrees.

The second largest budget expenditure is in the area of business services which includes fiscal, school plant planning, operation and maintenance, pupil transportation, food services and other business services. An estimated $2.8 million has been allocated for business services.

An estimated $310,000 has been projected for general administration costs — a decrease over last year's $318,000 expenditure. The reduction in general administration costs is due to the cutbacks made in the central office after a $1 million proposal was approved in July.

Slight increases have been projected in the areas of pupil services which include attendance, guidance, health, social work, etc.; instructional services which includes support services, library, audiovisual, computer-assisted instruction, etc.; school administration which includes principals and other support administration; and supporting services which includes athletics, endowment activities and bookstore.

In other business at the August 5 meeting, the board:

— unanimously approved the awarding of a lighting contract to Gillis Electric to upgrade the gym lighting at Cooke Junior High. The project, not to exceed $6,785, will be funded out of the 1978 $1 million bond issue.

— unanimously approved a $10,899 bid to the Robert L. Lussenden Company to refurbish the Transportation Office.

— unanimously approved the administration's recommendation to grant tenure status to junior high teacher Carol Snyder and high school teacher Nancy Arnold, effective September, 1982.

pretation; Matt Meyer, second place in radio broadcasting; and Evelyn Smith, second place in storytelling.

These students will compete in the Regionals Tournament to be held April 24 at Walled Lake Western High School.

Alternates for the forensics match were Tom Ducker in impromptu speaking, Rick House in extemporaneous speaking, Kurt Hoffmeister and Craig Zollars in duo interpretation.

Chamber of Commerce gets six new members

Six new members have joined the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce since the first of the year, Kay Keegan, executive director, announces.

They are Robert Ahern, Northville Collision, 700 Silver Springs; Allie Chirri, Chirri and Sons Insulation Company, 101 East Main;

Tom McKinnon, Mackinnon's Restaurant, 126-130 East Main;

Joseph D. Vetraric, Silverjet Travel, Incorporated, 42317 West Seven Mile.

The chamber's annual golf outing is set for June 25 at Fox Hills.

The chamber also is continuing to sponsor flea markets in the Downs parking lot on the second Saturday of the month and in Northville Plaza Mall on the third Saturday. For May only the outdoor flea market at the Downs will be on the fourth Saturday to participate in the Dedication: Our Town Downtown.

Northville Farmers' Market is planned to open Thursday, June 10, but there will be a special market May 22 as part of the dedication ceremonies.

Township construction among area's highest

While a record slump in the housing market is keeping totals low, Northville Township is still among the top 10 locations for residential construction activity.

According to a report released last week by Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG), the township was the ninth most-active community in 1981 residential construction. The township was fifth in the number of authorized multiple family units. The city issued no residential building permits last year in either Wayne or Oakland County.

The 1981 total was the second record low in as many years. Only 5,648 permits were issued in the seven county region. The 1980 figure was 10,562. By contrast, in 1977 there were 27,252 permits.

The township statistic placed it second in residential building in Wayne County, behind Detroit's 1,372 building permits issued. Detroit, however, demolished 6,002 dwelling units (about 1,300 of them in the Poletown area), leaving a net loss of more than 4,500 units. The township registered no demolitions.

Multiple housing — apartments, condominiums and the like — is nearly the only kind of housing still being built in Southeast Michigan, the report indicates.

Of the top 10 building areas, seven attained that ranking primarily with multiple family units and appeared on the top ten multiple family list also. Detroit led the way with 1,372 permits issued, of which 1,365 were multiple family.

Sterling Heights had 342 total and 261 were multi-family. Clinton Township was third on both lists with 288 total and 174 multiple. Fourth in the totals was Avon Township in Oakland County where only four of 199 units were of the multiple family type. Avon, Clinton and West Bloomfield Townships were the only communities in seven counties (Wayne, Washtenaw, Macomb, St. Clair, Livingston, Oakland and Monroe) to post more than 100 single family building permits.

Southfield was fifth on the totals list at 193 and fourth in multiple family at 168.

West Bloomfield Township was sixth with a total 159 permits issued. With fewer than 30 multiple family units, this community did not make that top ten category.

Northville Township was fifth in multiple-family structures with 80, in a tie with St. Clair Township. The township had a total 107 new residential building permits issued in 1982. St. Clair Township had only nine single-family starts and did not make the top ten list.

Seventh on the total activity list was Bloomfield Township with 126 units, 47 of them in multiple family complexes, placing it 10th in that category.

Promoting poetry

Jerod Swallow, 15, at left, and Jim Totten, 13, display their winning posters designed to help promote the April 27 poetry festival at Northville Public Library. The festival is the culmination of the Poetry Life Project recently completed by Cooke Junior High students and teachers. With the help of poet Faye Kicknaw, Northville English teachers have been trained to become more effective teachers of poetry while students have gained a better understanding of poetry. The April 27 festival is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. and is open to the public.

In zoning ordinance

Planners recommend change

Unanimously agreeing "it is a neat idea" that restaurants are thinking about starting outdoor cafes, city planners approved a recommendation to city council for a zoning ordinance amendment to exempt outdoor cafes from requiring additional off-street parking.

Council at its March 22 meeting asked for the commission's recommendation on the matter before the scheduled public hearing slated for Monday.

Mackinnon's, 126-130 East Main, explained at the March 22 council meeting it already has applied to the Michigan Liquor Control Commission for a courtyard cafe at the back entrance of the restaurant. In a memorandum from City Manager Steven Walters, he said other restaurants are considering outdoor cafes.

However, Walters noted there was a zoning ordinance question in relation to outdoor cafe areas. The parking space provisions seem to require one parking space per 100 square feet of outdoor cafe area, he said.

Since this would be an expensive burden for such a seasonal use, Walters recommended the ordinance be changed to exclude specifically limited outdoor cafe areas when operated in conjunction with an indoor restaurant.

All planners agreed with this proposal.

"We should do all we can to help them," commissioner Fred Joels said.

Also receiving unanimous approval from the commission was landscape plans (building only) at the new

Chamber of Commerce building located on South Main near the well.

The Abby Knoll Estates Subdivision, located on the north side of Eight Mile west of Lexington Condominiums, received a one year extension of time on preliminary plat approval, which includes construction of sanitary sewers and water mains.

Four hospitalized in single-car accident

In the township...

A single-car accident on Sheldon Road April 3 sent four people to the hospital, one of whom was listed in critical condition as much as a week later.

According to township police reports, a 1981 Dodge Omni driven by Mark Allen Collins, 24, of Livonia left the road at about 3:45 a.m. Saturday while northbound on Sheldon south of Seven Mile, colliding with a guard rail on the east side of the road.

The car continued another 114 feet, to gap in the rail which it passed through. The left side of the car hit a second section of rail and the car continued another 368 feet, coming to a stop in the stream (Johnson Drain) in the city.

Collins and his three passengers (ages 14-18, all from Plymouth and Canton) were transported to Botsford Hospital for treatment of severe injuries. All stayed in the hospital for a period of days and at least one still is in the hospital.

Police chief Kenneth Hardesty said a temporary wheel/tire combination (space-saver type) was mounted to the car. A traffic violation will be issued the driver, he said, when the conditions of all three passengers is known. The report states the driver was known to have been drinking. Tests to show the level of blood alcohol are not yet complete.

The police chief said he believes the car likely was exceeding the 35 miles per hour posted speed limit on the road.

Minor injuries were suffered by one driver in a two car collision at Eight Mile and Haggerty roads last Wednesday evening.

Police reports of the incident state both drivers entered the intersection, one eastbound on Eight Mile and the other northbound on Haggerty, believing the traffic signal showed green for their directions of travel. Passengers in both vehicles supporting their drivers' claims, so fault could not be determined, the report states.

One driver had a visible injury but declined police offers to call an ambulance and said she would seek medical attention from her own doctor. No citation was issued.

More than $150 worth of cigarettes was reported stolen from the A&P store at a Seven Mile Road mall last Tuesday evening.

A clerk at the store called police after a customer informed her a woman had just walked off with a full case (25 cartons) of assorted brands of cigarettes.

The clerk stepped outside and saw a man and a woman entering a light-colored car, then saw the man enter the T, G & Y store. Police picked the man up in the store. The clerk said the man apparently had been trying to distract her attention while the woman left with the merchandise. There were no arrests, the man was released at the scene after police ascertained his identity.

...In the city

Approximately $40 cash was stolen and damage of $125 resulted when unknown persons broke into two different rooms at the United Methodist Church between April 10 and 11, city police report.

The money was taken from a cigar box, which was found on the floor in one of the rooms, and from a collection jar being used to collect donations for the hungry, which was located in the other room.

According to the report, the suspects broke the glass in the door leading to the pastor's office, reached inside and opened it.

A 59-year-old Northville man said he came to the church at 7:15 a.m. April 11 to pick up the bulletin for the next church service when he saw the office door open and the glass on the floor. He then called police, the report stated.

Officers found in one room a screwdriver which they believe the suspects used to remove the wood molding from around the door glass window, which was not broken, the report said.

A gray file cabinet was found open with items thrown on the floor. Police believe the suspects may have hidden in the church since there was a wedding April 10 and no other signs of forced entry were found, the report said.

Approximately $160 was stolen from a Gardner residence sometime April 6, police report.

Unknown persons found a key to the house in the electrical box and entered the rear door. The suspects went through numerous envelopes until one with money was found, the report said.

The investigating officer questioned a neighbor who said he had not seen anyone, the report stated.

Three separate incidents of stolen hubcaps were reported to police last week.

Unknown suspects stole four wire wheel covers, valued at $240, from a 1982 Ford Granada while it was parked at a High Street lot between April 10 and 11, police said.

Unknown suspects stole four wire wheel covers, valued at $240, from a 1982 American Motors Concord while it was parked in a Fairbrook Street lot between April 7 and 8, police report.

Unknown suspects stole four hubcaps, valued at $100, from a 1981 Chevrolet Citation while it was parked in an East Dunlap lot sometime April 8, police said.

A $164 jog cart was stolen from outside a barn at Northville Downs between 4 p.m. April 2 and 9 a.m. April 3, police said. The complainant said the axles, nuts and washers to the cart were left on the ground, the police said.

A $100 amplifier was stolen from the band room at Northville High School sometime April 2, police said.

According to the report, a student had borrowed the amplifier from the student/owner and placed it in the room. When he returned, it was missing, police said.

Coming along

Generous donations of skill and supplies by individual residents and businesses have kept construction of the new Northville Community Chamber of Commerce building on South Main on schedule. Signs in the windows now explain to passers-by what's happening. Chamber president Betty Allen says she expects the chamber will be occupying the building in the near future. Record photo by Steve Fecht.

City garage sale to stay on Main Street

It was pointed out that there is "more sidewalk and less street" now in the center of town and that this sale is held on the street.

Gardner explained that planners also had considered having part of the sale in the parking deck but realized egress and ingress would create massive traffic congestion.

The sale of 8-by-20 foot spaces to individuals and organizations selling all kinds of primarily used merchandise has been a popular local attraction. Many residents, Lapham said Monday, annually sell their unwanted at the sale.

"We're encouraging people to clean out their garages and basements by taking spaces," Lapham said.

He noted that this has not been an antiques-type sale but "odds and ends and junk."

"It's to our advantage to bring people into downtown," observed council member Carolann Ayers. "I am in favor of keeping the events on the downtown streets to attract people," she reassured.

Mayor Paul Vernon, saying he was "honestly disappointed" also, agreed to communicate with the garage sale planners, relating the council's feelings.

Lapham will begin taking reservations for spaces at 9 a.m. Thursday at 349-3677. They will be the same $15 price as last year.

Both Lapham and Kay Keegan, executive director of the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce, reported that they have been receiving many calls from people who wish to know the date of the garage sale and to reserve spaces.

The garage sale has attracted greater numbers of shoppers each year who throng downtown streets on the Saturday in May just before Michigan Week.

"The Big Garage Sale has been a success from the beginning," Lapham said, admitting he has been pleased with the response to the sale which had been his idea. Both father and son have taken responsibility for reservations and assigning spaces.

The petition opposing continuing the sale in town stated, "We are not opposed to the garage sale in itself but against the flea market being held in the streets of Northville."

"Our reasons have been proven over the past years. The type of shoppers that are drawn by the sale are not regular shopping customers of Northville. We support the chamber's efforts to attract out-of-town shoppers to our city but in the case of the garage sale, our streets will be blocked off and our parking spaces consumed by scores of shoppers who are not looking to spend but a few dollars at a flea market."

"Our retailers could offer their wares at the lowest possible prices but could still not compete with the flea market; so in turn, no monies are earned by our downtown merchants."

The merchants at their March 17 meeting voted to have the sale taken off the downtown streets to "allow free traffic flow and access to our store fronts for our regular customers. We suggest the flea market (garage sale) be held in the parking lot behind Schrader's Furniture Store on Wing Street between Main and Dunlap."

Concert slated at Schoolcraft

A varied program including the performance of a nationally recognized accordionist will highlight the concert of the Schoolcraft College Wind Ensemble at 8 p.m. tonight in the Waterman Campus Center.

Conducted by Dr. Richard Saunders, the Ensemble will perform the Andante and March from Symphony No. 6 by Tchaikovsky, Morton Guild's Cowboy Rhapsody and American Salute and selections from the musical "Oliver."

Featured as soloist is Karen Moody, a nationally recognized accordionist who attends Schoolcraft on a music scholarship. A 1981 graduate of Garden City East High School, she was the U.S. Accordion Champion from age nine through 13, the 1979 Michigan Virtuoso Accor-dian Champion and the 1979 U.S. Senior Accordion Champion.

In all, Ms. Moody has received more than 100 national and state awards for her playing. She will play the Liszt-Concerto No. 1 in E Flat Major and the popular "Here's That Rainy Day Again."

Admission charges for the program are $2 general admission and $1 for students. Tickets will be available at the door.

Idle Ford factory produces few taxes

Both the city and the school district will have financial reasons to be glad when Ford Motor Company does resume operations at the Northville plant.

As a result of a successful appeal to the state tax tribunal, a refund of $6,235 was made through the city to Ford in March. It represents an adjustment on real (land and building) property plus $41 in interest charges on the city portion of the bill.

Of the sum, the city lost $1,367 while the county, the local school district, Wayne County intermediate district and Schoolcraft College lost the remainder, except for a decrease of $24 to the Huron Metropolitan Park system and $125 for the Randolph Drain assessment.

Total taxes on real property had been computed at $36,754, county and schools, and $10,469, city, for a total of $47,163. The reduction takes the total down to $40,928.

There are other losses to the city incurred by the closing of the plant. Based on past projections, the city had anticipated receiving $55,800 in water billings which now actually are projected at $8,260. Comptroller Betty Lennox notes, however, that the amount of water purchased from the City of Detroit will be reduced, reflecting in a lower bill.

It is in the area of personal taxes (on equipment) that there is an additional loss. In 1981 personal property at the plant was assessed at $1,814,310 with the city receiving $25,726 in personal taxes and the county and schools realizing $90,842.

This year, the current assessment is $869,590. City assessor Harold Penn explains the figure is down because much of the machinery and equipment has been removed and other equipment in the plant presently is idle. He says Ford submitted its calculations to the city, and they were accepted after being reviewed.

The actual amounts going to the city, county and schools will not be available until millage rates are firm in July or August, Penn added.

It's McDonald's

Thomas Joseph "Joe" McDonald poses in front of the former John Mach Ford dealership as he took over ownership Monday. It's now officially McDonald's Ford in Northville. McDonald, formerly a Ford dealer at Seven Mile and the Lodge expressway is moving his new and used car operation here while continuing his truck and car rental operation and body shop in the Detroit location. As he announced the sale and his retirement last week, Northville resident John Mach said he was pleased with the sale to McDonald as he felt "we have saved a business for Northville." guests of the city, members acknowledged with Mayor Paul Vernon, "I don't think we have a choice."

Council member J. Burton DeRusha suggested that consideration be given to holding the dinner at a later date with those attending paying their own way. "At least," he said, "let's offer this option. I don't think the attraction was a free dinner. I think it was a good time for all attending."

It was agreed that before next Monday's council meeting the Jaycees would be contacted regarding their funding for the July 4 festivities. Council members also asked if this year the township would be supporting the event. Last year the council doubled its planned $1,000 donation when it received an appeal from the Jaycees. At that time the township did not have any funds in its budget to support the celebration.

At its April 5 meeting the council had voted to issue a tax anticipation note but had thought it would be in the amount of $294,500.

The note technically is repaid from the first collections of the 1982-83 fiscal year, Walters said. The motion to do so included the necessary application to the state finance commission.

Walters said that by June 30 of this year all the city's funds are projected to have non-deficit balances except the general fund, estimated before the latest race track reduction to be $275,222; water and sewer fund deficit of $93,674 owed to the Downtown Development Association project and county excess flow charges; and Allen Terrace Operating Fund deficit of $60,000. The Public Improvement Fund has $212,100 but the sum is loaned out.

decision which is best for them without being under any pressure or uncertainty.

The resolution also spelled out the intention of the city to complete negotiations for a new contract if the employees voted to retain the union.

In the event that the employees did not retain the union, the resolution directed the city manager, in order to insure a reasonable transition period in which to reorganize, to comply with the following provisions:

All applicable provisions of the 1980-81 labor contract, including wages, fringe benefits and seniority shall be complied with;

Volunteer Week declared

April 18-24 has been recognized as Volunteer Week by the Northville Township Board of Trustees.

The board passed a resolution declaring the week "as a means of appreciation to all our volunteers."

Constable James Schrot addressed the board to note that the police reserve force aids the department 365 days a year on a volunteer basis.

Also mentioned in board discussion were those who volunteered to serve on a insurance review committee, as a labor relations consultant, and in other roles in the township.

"If we try to name everyone," Supervisor John MacDonald said, "we're bound to forget someone because we have been blessed with a great many public-minded citizens willing to donate their time." The resolution said the township was "fortunate to have many residents willing to donate of their time and abilities," that they "assisted the Township of Northville in meeting various emergency deadlines" and that the need for "volunteers are (sic) becoming ever more critical as the availability of public funds to support services decrease."

Q. My teeth are so sensitive to anything cold, when I eat ice cream I can't enjoy it. What can I do?
A. You aren't alone in your plight. An estimated 23 million people suffer from a similar type sensitivity. Luckily there are remedies. Check your toothbrush, does it have soft bristles? Are you brushing up and down, and not horizontally? The latter motions wears the teeth and exposes the underlying dentin. A gentle approach to brushing and a desensitizing toothpaste can further alleviate your susceptibility to cold.

Long elected state association president

Glenn Long, owner of Long Plumbing Company at 190 East Main in Northville, has been elected president of the Michigan Plumbing Mechanical Contractors Association.

Long was elected at the group's recent annual meeting in Grand Rapids.

He and his wife Lois started the Northville business in 1949 and have been active members of the community ever since.

Both are working members of the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce with Glenn Long serving as president in 1972.

Through their firm, the Longs have just made a major contribution to the new chamber building on South Main by the well. They have donated the plumbing and fixtures for the new chamber headquarters. The work already has been done, paving the way for installation of dry wall and furnace.

"This is a major gift in great part responsible for making the building a reality," commented chamber president Betty Allen as she announced the Longs' gift.

"It is this sort of generosity on the part of so many local businessmen that it making the building possible," she said, anticipating that it will be ready for occupancy in late spring.

In 1953 the Longs constructed a building for their business on Seven Mile. At this time the company primarily was engaged in new home construction and home repairs. In 1964 they moved into a new building on Dunlap, and in 1974 the business was expanded to its present Main Street location.

It includes the corporation offices and the Bath Shop which is managed by Virginia Long. The Longs' son Jim is a partner in the business.

Their work includes commercial, industrial and institutional repairing. They have worked on a new high school in Fowlerville and a new church in Tucson, Arizona, completed in 1981.

They opened an office in Tampa, Florida, in November, 1981; it currently is negotiating projects for General Electric in St. Petersburg and a waste water treatment plant for the Navy in Pensacola.

Glenn and Lois Long are active members in the Methodist Church here. He is a member of the board of trustees and she sings in the choir.

Glenn Long has been an active member of the Downtown Development Association while his wife has served on Schoolcraft College committees.

Local artists participate in Mercy show

Two Northville artists will display their work at the Our Lady of Mercy Spring Arts and Crafts Festival to be held from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and noon to 6 p.m. Sunday at the high school.

Northville resident Susan Cutting will display her antique reproductions of metal cutouts and Elaine Wolfe will show her wood folk art and tole paintings.

The arts and crafts committee is expecting approximately 75 to 100 tables of juried crafts. Admission to the show is $1.

Proceeds from the Arts and Crafts Festival will be placed in the general development fund for the school.

Area chambers think positive at luncheon

A membership luncheon is scheduled for May 26 by the West Suburban Area Council of Chambers, which includes the Northville and Novi chambers of commerce.

It will be held at the Mayflower Hotel Meeting Place in Plymouth with lunch at 12:15 p.m. being preceded by a cash bar at 11:45 a.m.

Ralph Nichols of the Ralph Nichols Corporation, Dale Carnegie Courses, will be speaking on "Recession—How Not to Participate."

Local chamber members interested in attending may make reservations with the chamber office, 349-7640.

It's magic — resident plans first local show

"Ming's Magnificent World of Magic," a family show featuring such acts as a woman "floating in the air," features two Northville residents who have been presenting their magic throughout the Hawaiian Islands and from the west coast to New England and Canada.

Ming Louie and his wife and assistant Barbara, who live in Innsbrook, will be giving the first local performance of their feats of magic at 8 p.m. May 8 at the Northville Community Center.

Ming the Magnificent and Company is a magical variety troupe starring Louie who recently arrived from Hawaii.

He has been performing magic since the age of 12, he says, recalling that he learned his first sleight-of-hand from his grandfather, who was a professional magician in China.

Ming says he then went on to develop his own original style, leaning heavily on his Oriental background as the theme for many of his illusions. The act of "Ming the Magnificent" was born when he teamed up with Barbara who now is his wife. Together they have traveled extensively, appearing in shows across the country.

Their act recreates many ancient mysteries which, they say, "have amazed audiences for hundreds of years, as well as later illusions created by such magicians as Houdini and Blackstone."

The show they will be presenting here includes a Chinese play, clowns and folk singing.

"It is designed for the whole family to enjoy," they say.

Tickets at $1 a person will be sold at the door.

Offer aid in buying car seats

The leading cause of death of children ages 1 to 15 is not cancer, Reyes Syndrome or any other disease.

It is the automobile accident that claims most lives in this age group, according to Pam Ashworth, Registered Nurse and coordinator for community health education at Providence Hospital in Southfield.

State law effective April 1 was designed to lower those statistics by requiring use of approved restraints for infants under one year of age and toddlers up to four years.

Ashworth has scheduled two classes called "Don't Risk Your Child's Life" to inform parents and others who transport children in motor vehicles about the new law. She will show a film which details the use and misuse of restraint systems. The film also gives safety tips for car travel and shows what can happen to unrestrained children during a crash. Brochures and other literature will be distributed.

The classes are slated from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Thursday April 19 and Wednesday, May 12, in the community education classroom of Providence Hospital's Novi Ambulatory Care Center, 3550 West 10 Mile Road, Novi.

There is no charge, but enrollment is limited. Call 424-3068 for information and registration.

As a nurse, I have seen the tragic consequences to children in car accidents — the needless deaths, the injuries, epilepsies, paralysis, crippling — most of it preventable," Ashworth said. "This new law will help, but only if we adults recognize our responsibilities and protect our precious cargo."

"Rejoice Always!"
Dr. James H. Luther
This is Easter week. Last Sunday individuals all over the world celebrated. But what does it all mean? For the true believer it means joy and happiness.
Did you know that Christians are commanded to rejoice? Yet, this is one command that can be easy to obey. Our two great enemies, sin and death, have been defeated. Christ died to take away our sin. He arose to conquer death. He lives, and we can live. When you know Christ as personal Savior, you receive forgiveness of sins, eternal life, power to resist temptation, and daily guidance. Isn't that something to rejoice about? Yet, without the Lord, you have none of these things.
Easter is about life and laughter. Joseph Bayly said it best: "Let's celebrate Easter with the rite of laughter. Christ died and rose and lives. I laugh like a woman who holds her first baby. Our enemy death will soon be destroyed. Laugh like a man who finds he doesn't have cancer or he does but now there's a cure. Christ opened wide the door of heaven. Laugh like children at Disneyland's gates. This world is owned by God and he'll return to rule... Laugh as if the whole world were invited to a picnic and then invite them."
Jesus said: "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly" (John 10:10). Have a happy Easter year.

Motion Carried Unanimously.
POLICE REPORT: The January, 1982 Monthly Report was reviewed and discussed. Councilman Folino referred to his question of March 1 re the parking situation at Dunlap and Linden.

Chief Cannon advised five corners were posted as ordered. He explained the Police Department is doing a traffic count and if the accident report shows an increase, the order can be recalled.

OUTDOOR LIQUOR LICENSE APPLICATION — MACKINNON: Application from the Liquor Control Commission re Goodman-Mackinnon-Wades Enterprises, Inc. 126-130 East Main for outdoor service of alcoholic beverages.

Mayor Vernon referred this to the Police Department for their investigation and recommendation.

Councilwoman Aylers asked whether or not the "No Parking Signs" had been on the north side of Elm Street and noted the report did not show cars parking there.

Chief Cannon advised the signs have been up for some time.

Councilwoman Aylers noted that quite frequently people park their cars there and continue parking up the Allen Terrace Drive. She complimented the Police Department on an excellent report.

Chief Cannon commented that the Pastor of the Church has requested the congregation to refrain from parking in the Allen Terrace Drive. He explained the Police Department also tested the accessibility of the streets to emergency vehicles by driving the big fire truck through the area. He had also discussed the parking with Fran Yoakam, Director of Allen Terrace.

Jim Allen, Chief of the Fire Department, stated he has also been checking on the Allen Terrace Drive.

Mayor Vernon advised that with the assurances of both the Police and Fire Department that there did not appear to be a parking problem at present, corrective action would be taken if necessary.

COMMUNICATIONS FROM CITIZENS: Mr. Colin Duncan, 521 W. Main, offered corrections on the City Council Minutes of February 15, 1982 meeting. He stated it was he and not Mrs. Dunlap who made the statement "I should be emphatically stated that the City does have the choice of what lights go where, not Edison."

AGENDA REVISIONS: These were none.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO TITLE 4, CHAPTER 1, FIRE PREVENTION: Inspector AJ Matthews, City of Plymouth, noted they were, in essence, adopting the BOCA Basic Fire Code which several communities have already adopted. He mentioned the City Manager, City Attorney, City Clerk and the met and reviewed the proposed changes.

In answer to Councilman DeRusha's question, Inspector Matthews advised that the City of Plymouth adopted a similar fire code two weeks ago.

Councilman Folino asked an apparent question between Sec. 4-305(a) and Sec. 308. It was noted that a change in the original copy had not been made to Council's copies in Sec. 4-305(a).

Motion by Councilman Gardner supported by Councilwoman Aylers to publish for Public Hearing, Monday, April 5, 1982 at 8:00 p.m., proposed amendments to Title 4, Chapter 3, Fire Prevention.

Motion Carried Unanimously.
PROPOSED AMENDMENT, OUTDOOR CAFE PARKING REQUIREMENTS: Mayor Vernon mentioned that consideration from the City Manager re Outdoor Restaurant Operations. In his communication, the City Manager stated outdoor cafe operations at restaurants in our downtown are becoming a real possibility. MacKinnon's is presently developing plans for such a facility and others are considering them. This raises a zoning ordinance question in relation to outdoor cafe areas. The parking space provisions would seem to require one parking space provided per 100 sq. ft. of outdoor cafe area which would be an expensive burden for such a seasonal use. It was recommended that his communication, that the zoning ordinance parking regulations be amended to specifically exclude limited outdoor cafe areas when operated in conjunction with an indoor restaurant. A proposed ordinance amendment was attached.

Mayor Vernon explained the proposed outdoor cafe area for MacKinnon's would be behind their property.

Discussion followed and it was decided to call a Public Hearing for April 19 to give the Planning Commission time to review the proposed amendment to the Zoning Ordinance and give their recommendations to Council before the hearing.

Motion by Councilwoman Aylers supported by Councilman Gardner to publish for public hearing, Monday, April 19, 1982 at 8:00 p.m., and refer the proposed amendment to the Planning Commission for their review and recommendations.

Motion Carried Unanimously.
Mayor Vernon discussed with Council a resolution which would allow businesses to display their wares on the sidewalk. He advised that the City Manager has stated this could be done by simple resolution to issue permits to do such things as display fruit, flowers, etc., that does not interfere with pedestrian traffic. The City Manager and his staff could be granted authority to permit such use during a certain time period on an experimental basis, provided that the City Manager has authority to cancel such permit if he deems it a public nuisance.

Councilman DeRusha suggested a need for something more specific since the resolution.

Mayor Vernon's opinion that as long as the audit meets the legal requirements the City should take advantage of the savings. He asked if the $11,725 were a firm figure for the audit.

Mr. Kunkel answered yes, that the audit would not exceed that figure.

Motion by Councilman DeRusha supported by Councilman Gardner to reappoint Plante and Moran as auditors for the City of Northville.

Motion Carried Unanimously.
A. American Legion — Memorial Day Parade, Monday, May 31, 1982: Request from the American Legion to hold their annual Memorial Day Parade, Monday, May 31, 1982 at 10:00 a.m. A copy of the parade route was attached.

Motion by Councilman Folino supported by Councilwoman Aylers to approve the request of the American Legion to hold their annual Memorial Day Parade, Monday, May 31, 1982 at 10:00 a.m. as per the route as shown, subject to the supervision of the City Manager and Police Department.

Motion Carried Unanimously.
B. American Legion — Inviting Participation in Parade: Mayor Vernon and Councilman DeRusha indicated they would participate in the activities.

Councilman DeRusha noted that July 4 fell on Sunday and he thought it should be celebrated on July 5, Monday. It was his hope that Council would encourage activity on a different day.

Mayor Vernon thought it would be good to communicate Council's feelings and preference to the Jaycees and neighboring communities and see if they would cooperate. He mentioned, however, that we are not insisting they have it on Monday.

The City Manager would follow through on this.

C. Knights of Columbus — Tootsie Roll Drive — April 2, 3 & 4, 1982: The Northville Council of Knights of Columbus requested permission to solicit donations within the City limits on April 2, 3 and 4, 1982. Tootsie Rolls would be offered for donations.

Motion by Councilman DeRusha supported by Councilman Gardner to approve the request of the Northville Council of Knights of Columbus to solicit donations by offering Tootsie Rolls within the City limits on April 2, 3 and 4, 1982 under supervision of the City Manager and the Police Department.

Motion Carried Unanimously.

Post office accepting carrier applications through April 16

Applications for rural carriers for the Ann Arbor Area Post Office must be received or bear a postmark not later than April 16, Detroit MSC Manager-Postmaster Gene Cole announces.

Applications are being accepted from April 12-16.

The register of those eligible, established through a written test, will be used to fill approximately 20 vacancies within the next two years in the offices served. Northville is among the 13 communities included.

Others are Brighton, Chelsea, Dexter, Gregory, Manchester, New Hudson, Pinckney, Saline, South Lyon, Whitmore Lake, Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor.

Those selected for appointment must have a valid state driver's license and a safe driving record, and must pass the Postal Service road test to show ability to drive safely a vehicle of the type used on the job.

The openings are for delivery of mail in rural areas, and all rural carriers must furnish and maintain at their own expense vehicle equipment necessary for the prompt handling of mails, but are given an equipment allowance based on the daily mileage scheduled, or a minimum allowance per day, whichever is greater, Cole states.

Applicants must be at least 18 on the filing date of the application. The limit does not apply to persons entitled to veteran preference. There is no maximum age limit.

Starting salaries range from $5,276 to $22,778 annually (including COLA) depending on the length and character of the route.

Application cards, PS Form 2479AB, should be filled out and returned to the Ann Arbor postmaster during regular business hours at the U.S. Postal Service, 2075 Stadium West, Ann Arbor.

Applicants will be considered for employment without regard to race, color, national origin, sex, political affiliations or any other non-merit factor, Cole states.

Read Jean Day to find out what's happening In Our Town

He noted the race track revenues probably be $10,000 to $120,000 short. He stated the City would have received $72,000 more if the State had not held 11.2% back. He also mentioned the August income tax and September SBT payments would be about $18,000 short.

Information re revenues to local units from income tax and single business tax funds and request for dues for Michigan Alliance of Small Communities.

Thanks and acknowledgment from Delta County Board of Commissioners for check received.

Communication re overruns in construction and start-up costs for the 35th District Court.

The City Manager noted two things were of significance, the furnishings were now back in the Building Authority which causes it to be shared in subsequent years and the City will be looking at paying $45,000. This will still be a problem to the City and we will not be able to consider it until July. He thought the steering committee should have some concern with the auditors as to why it happened as an operating expense.

Discussion on this and the list of building expenses followed.

Councilman DeRusha mentioned he had not heard anything back from Mr. Wiland re the reopening of the local violations bureau.

Letter to Northville Recreation Commission from City Manager re school district rates for use of recreation building.

MISCELLANEOUS: Councilman Folino mentioned the flooding that occurred last summer and fall and that Novi was on top of it which would help the City of Northville.

He asked about the change in the minutes brought up by Mr. Dunlap. It was mentioned the change was reflected in Mr. Dunlap's statement earlier this evening.

Councilman DeRusha asked about the BOCA Appeals Board. The City Manager stated it would meet the next week.

Councilwoman Aylers reported the joint services budget was going quite smoothly and the final meeting would be March 29. She asked about the plans for the DDA dedication.

The City Manager stated within a week to a calendar of events would be sent out and he briefly outlined the program.

Mayor Vernon mentioned that Mr. Wm. Slinger is the Chairman of the Steering Committee for the DDA dedication.

Councilwoman Aylers asked about the Allen Terrace Budget. The City Manager stated that had not been finalized as yet and explained why.

Resolution re: Convert Downtown Traffic Signals from Overhead Power to Underground Power: Motion by Councilman DeRusha supported by Councilman Gardner to adopt a resolution urgently requesting the Wayne County Road Commission to convert the downtown traffic signals at Main and Hutton, Main and Center, and Center and Dunlap from Overhead power to underground power as rapidly as possible to allow the Detroit Edison Company to proceed.

Motion Carried Unanimously.
Wally Nichols Memorial Fund: Enough monies had been collected to purchase a tree and tree guard in former Councilman Wally Nichols' memory.

Mrs. Nichols would come in and pick out the site for the tree and the wording for the plaque.

Ford Plant: Mayor Vernon explained they still do not know what the plant would be used for nor the impact on the City of Northville.

Communications sent to Representative Jacobelli opposing H9540 and Senator Geake opposing SB480 from the Clerk on behalf of Council.

Our Opinions Right — in town

The decision to keep the annual John Q. Public Garage Sale in downtown Northville is a good one. We agree with city council member J. Burton DeRusha that the shoulder-to-shoulder crowds are part of the fun.

To move the once-a-year event to a parking lot changes its complexion. It becomes another flea market. We also concur with concerned city council members that to hold it in the M.A.G.S. parking lot with shoppers parking in the Downs lot across the street could create a traffic hazard on Sheldon.

The philosophy under which the chamber-sponsored garage sale was conceived still pertains. It was to be — and is — a day the streets are turned over to residents for a massive sale of unwanted. It was intended to be what it is — a fun day for browsers.

If, as city council suggested, the spaces are sold throughout downtown's new parks as well as on Main Street, there should be as much room as in previous years. Charles Lapham this week unwillingly was in the middle of the location controversy. His original plan was to continue downtown until he received the petition signed by 33 merchants objecting. This caused him to seek council's approval for the parking lot site.

Lapham now is caught in a "you can't please everybody" situation. He has made the best decision for the city and should be commended for his willingness to take on chairmanship with son Scott of the garage sale as well as the merchant's annual sidewalk sale. He takes reservations, chalks out and assigns spaces with expertise of many years as a volunteer promoter of downtown.

There's little doubt that, as the merchants' petition stated, the shoppers are not "regular shopping customers of Northville." Others, who did not sign the petition, however, have stated that they feel such visitors may later return to the attractive downtown to shop, as have restaurant visitors.

With Mainstreet '78 project ready to burst into bloom, this is the wrong time to consider moving any event out of town. Indeed, it's time to show off our renovation.

We're sprouting

Crocuses, already creating bright spots of purple, orange and white in local yards, are the forerunner of a special spring that's starting to sprout here. Observant gardeners are reporting that green shoots are pushing their way upward through the cold ground in many garden beds throughout the downtown.

With the 30,000 thousand, color-coordinated tulip bulbs planted by volunteers last fall expected to be in full bloom in May in downtown plots in parking lots, along curbs and in parks, this spring heralds completion of Mainstreet '78 — and a new awakening for our downtown.

Restaurants like MacKinnon's

(recently cited as one of the best new ones in metropolitan Detroit), Elizabeth's and Geniti's are bringing visitors. While the Ford-union negotiations and the plight of the local duck population helped focus national attention on the waterwheel plant and Northville, others always have known there was harness racing and a vanilla factory here (Northville laboratories sends its flavors across the country.)

As the renovated downtown is dedicated with appropriate fanfare during Michigan Week in May, we all can enjoy the good, prideful feeling of living in our town. We're definitely on the map.

Snow turns fever to pneumonia

Spring fever had hit me just as hard as anyone else around here a couple of weeks ago. In fact, I had a lot of the basic symptoms of the "fever" our staff had described for readers in this slot then.

It seemed a most appropriate column idea, then, because from the first official day of spring (March 20) until the time the column was written, the area was experiencing perfect spring-like weather. Temperatures ranged from 40 to as high as 60 degrees and most of the snow from one of the worst winters in history had melted.

Because of that gorgeous weather, my biggest spring fever symptom was the desire to play golf. I eagerly was awaiting the first day I would be able to get onto the golf course. Every day on my way to work I pass Bob-O-Link golf course, and I kept looking for the pin flags on the greens — a sure-tell sign the course is open for business. However, Bob-O-Link had not done so yet, but I knew it could only be a matter of time before it would open because of the weather.

Boy, was I wrong. My case of spring fever and long-awaited first golf outing took a severe jolt the following Monday, which probably held true for many others. Old Man Winter had to make one last stand before finally giving way to spring.

Late Monday afternoon (April 5), winter was back in vogue dumping more snow on the area. Six more inches of the white powder would fall, making this the second highest snowfall total (72.7) since 78 inches fell during the winter of 1927-28.

It seemed like early February all over again. Remember? Or are you like me and trying to forget when the area was besieged by two giant snowstorms just a couple of days apart. The infamous April 5 storm made driving treacherous as evident by persons leaving their cars on the side of the road; kids received an unexpected day off from school; and road crews were out salting and plowing the roads.

I kept looking at the calendar to make sure it was April. I was prepared for the warm temperatures to dip back around the freezing mark some more this month, but I was not ready for the big dump of snow which was quickly turning my spring fever to winter pneumonia.

Since the weatherman had said another snow storm was expected that Thursday, I decided to take a positive outlook on the situation. Because the storm might drop enough of the white stuff to break the previous record, I decided I wanted to be part of the action in the sense I could someday tell my own kids (which is in the far future) that "I lived in Michigan when the state had its worst winter in history."

But, the storm never materialized; so it looks as if we're left being part of the second-worst winter in Michigan history. Believe me, I am not too disappointed with that prospect.

I just want the weather to get back to pre-storm temperatures so I can get out on the golf course instead of just thinking about it. "Fore".

By PHILIP JEROME

I'm hooked. An addict. A disgrace to my profession, my generation and the human race.

It happened innocently enough. We had wrapped things up early at the office and someone suggested we go out to grab a bite of pizza. That's when it happened.

"Phil, want to play some Pac-Man?" asked one of my co-workers.

Now, I'm an adult-type person who likes to believe he is making a contribution to society and the communities in which he lives and works. I may not go to church every Sunday, but I like to believe that I live a respectable life and am kind to animals and fellow human beings alike. I'm not at all the type of unsavory character who whiles away his leisure hours by indulging in such frivolous pursuits as Pac-Man and other mechanical amusement devices.

In fact, I have always had a certain aversion to mechanical amusement devices.

But the occasion was innocent enough and so was the invitation, so I accepted.

Three hours — and I don't know how many quarters later — I was still at it. Whipping that little yellow Pac-Man around the maze, gobbling up power dots and chasing down Inky, Pinky, Blinky, Winky, Doc, Sleepy, Grumpy and anything else that turned blue.

And it's been that way for about a week now. I go to the drug store and can't help stopping off at the arcade next door to get in one more game. I sneak over to the watering hole across the street during my lunch break. Just to play one more game of Pac-Man.

My eyes are bloodshot, my thumb is calloused and I've sprained my shoulder — all from manuevering that little yellow fellow with the big mouth over innumerable dots. I need help. There must be someone or some agency I can call. Pac-Man fever has claimed another victim.

How can you help? Just don't listen if you see me in an arcade someday, somewhere, begging for another game. "Brother, can you spare a quarter?"

News from Lansing

By R. ROBERT GEAKE
State Senator

Boys and girls caught in that never-never land of "waiting to be adopted" can take some encouragement from legislation passed by the Senate last week.

Adults wishing to open their homes to youngsters who have difficulties getting placed also can take heart.

After three years on the project, proponents of the effort to speed up the heartbreaking delays that occur regularly in the present adoption process had the gratification of seeing their bill pass unanimously in the Senate.

I was highly supportive of these bills. After day in and day out of meetings on the state's latest fiscal crisis, it was gratifying to me also to be able to add my vote to two pieces of legislation that will help the law work for people, especially children in need of a permanent loving home.

The special Adoption Advisory Committee composed of representatives from child placement agencies, the Department of Social Services, Probate Court, the State Bar and other interested parties, had three problems it wanted resolved in statute:

1) Children were having to spend too much time in foster care placement awaiting resolution of court proceedings.

2) There were no guidelines for the Probate Court in adoption procedures.

3) There was a need to establish judicial deadlines and to set priorities for adoption cases.

It looks as though these problems have been resolved by the new amendments to the Adoption Code passed by the Legislature.

A newly written General Purpose statement emphasizes to the courts or anyone concerned that the primary purpose of the code is to provide services and procedures serving the best interests of the child. In a conflict of interest situation, the rights of the adoptee have the highest priority.

Also, the purpose statement clearly emphasizes the intent of the Legislature to expedite adoption proceedings and to decrease barriers to adoption.

The "best interests" of the child, previously a hazy area undefined for the courts, are now stated clearly by a list of criteria. Included, among other factors, are the love and affection between the adopting persons and the adoptee, the ability of the adopting persons to provide physically and emotionally for the child, the permanence of the proposed adoptive family home, the reasonable preference of the child if less than 14 years of age, and the disposition of the adoptive persons to foster the religion, racial identity and culture of the adoptee.

Adoption proceedings will have priority on the court docket under the new bills. Adjournments or continuances will not be granted without a showing of good cause. Also, courts are now required to state on the record, or in writing, reasons for any petition or motion denials in adoption cases.

House Bills 4576 and 4577 have passed both houses and await the Governor's signature to become law.

Kirksey proposes increase in state alcohol tax

A plan to generate $58.9 million in additional taxes on alcoholic beverages to partially offset the state's budget deficit was introduced April 4 in the Michigan House of Representatives.

Sponsored by Livonia Republican Jack Kirksey, whose district includes Northville, the bill would increase the tax on distilled spirits 10 cents per bottle; increase the tax on a bottle of beer from two cents to four cents; and raise the tax on most wines by 6.5 cents per liter. The one cent tax on Michigan wine would remain the same.

"This proposal is an effort to reduce the state's $600 million budget deficit without imposing an income tax," Kirksey said. "No one likes a tax increase of any kind, but I think a nuisance tax on a non-essential commodity is preferable to a personal income tax that everyone must shoulder."

"It wouldn't place an unreasonable hardship on the consumer, but it would generate significant revenue at a time when the state is desperately seeking ways to balance its budget. Although the producers of alcoholic beverages, distributors and retailers may not be enthusiastic about this increase, it is my personal feeling that there will be no appreciable impact on any segment of the industry."

The present $6.30 Michigan tax on each barrel of beer is equivalent to 1.92 cents per 12-ounce bottle. The bill would increase the tax to $12.60 per barrel, or less than four cents per 12-ounce bottle.

This would double the 1981 revenue figures of $44 million to $88 million. The increase on wine per liter would generally be six to eight cents, depending on alcohol content, for a estimated revenue increase of almost $5 million.

There are currently a variety of excise, special and sales taxes on distilled spirits. The Kirksey proposal would add 10 cents per bottle tax regardless of the size or volume or alcoholic content for $10.7 million in additional revenue. "I believe the advantage of the plan is obvious," Kirksey concluded. "It spreads the tax burden on a broad base of citizens without targeting specific groups or taxing those who are least able to pay, and it provides some badly needed money at a critical time."

Air Force trains one, honors another from Northville

One Northville resident has completed Air Force basic training, while another was named to an honor's list at an Air Force academy.

Airman Thomas H. Deaton has completed Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base in Texas.

The airman, who is remaining at Lackland for specialized training in the security police field, studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

Completion of this training earned him credits towards an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force. He is a 1979 graduate of South Lyon

High School and is the son of Stella M. Finley, 7610 West Six Mile and Henderson Deaton of Campton, Kentucky.

Cadet Fourthclass Phillip J. Beaudoin has been named to the Superintendent's List for outstanding military and academic performance at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado.

To qualify for the Superintendent's

List, cadets must have a grade point average of 3.0 or above in both military and academic subjects.

Beaudoin is scheduled to graduate in 1985 from the four-year military institution which produces career officers for the United States Air Force.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James O. Beaudoin.

Japan's success must be judged in proper context

The impact of Japanese prowess in a variety of businesses, including the automotive industry, should be judged in its proper context without rushing to conclusions.

That's the counsel of Drew Novak, a Novi resident and a partner in the Detroit office of Arthur Andersen & Company, who spent the past 3½ years as a consultant to Japanese companies while working in Arthur Andersen's Tokyo office.

Novak said he enjoyed the 3½ years he spent in Japan with his wife and two children, but is happy to be back in their Novi home. He has worked for Arthur Andersen for 14 years and now will work as a consultant in the firm's Detroit office.

"I don't want to take anything away from the Japanese because they have come a long way in a short time to dramatically improve their position in manufacturing," Novak said.

"But there is a great deal of sentiment here to imitate the Japanese based on their success in quality control, labor-management relations and worker involvement in decision-making.

"Much of their success stems from extenuating factors in the Japanese systems that have caused misconceptions and premature judgments in this country," he said.

Novak, a member of the consulting division of the international accounting and consulting firm, went to the Tokyo office as part of Arthur Andersen's executive interchange of personnel. He arrived in Tokyo at a time when many Japanese companies were catching up to and overtaking their U.S. and European counterparts. He returned to Detroit recently to discover tremendous enthusiasm for the "Japanese style of management."

There are still many facets of business in which the U.S. is superior to the Japanese," said the Novi resident, "any many areas where the Japanese have refined or improved on practices originating in the U.S."

In Japan, Novak worked as a consultant on the use of computer-based information processing systems, one of Arthur Andersen's leading areas of specialized expertise. His clients there, similar to his work in Detroit, included consulting to manufacturing, construction, leasing and wholesale distribution firms.

"The Japanese are probably five to 10 years behind the U.S. in information

Japan still has much to learn from U.S. industrial system processing technology, an important new element in business proficiency and productivity," Novak said. "Consequently, the demand for the benefits from the new western information processing technology is particularly strong."

To illustrate, Novak notes the growth in the consulting division in the Tokyo office of Arthur Andersen & Company, which has gone from a staff of 35 four years ago to 85 at present and is likely to total 100 by June.

"The Japanese have been very successful at taking a practice or concept and improving it," Novak said. "They have done that with quality control techniques, which originated in this country. They just made them an integral part of their system, effectively capitalizing on a system started in this country."

Worker involvement with decision-making and labor management relations in Japan are two areas that Novak believes are frequently misconstrued in the U.S.

"You hear a lot about bottom-up decision making where the workers have a lot of say in practices," he said, "but if you look at most of the large, successful Japanese firms, they all have very strong and powerful men in charge who make most of the strategic decisions."

"The story of their success is more in their communication channels where workers are informed effectively about the decisions, but rarely are they involved in major decision making."

"In addition, the labor-management relations have been very good during the post-war prosperity," Novak said, "but what happens if their growth stops? They have never been tested in a down economy or had to go through any crisis."

"The unions showed signs of increasing unrest in Japan when I left and it will be interesting to see how long the post-war unity lasts during adversity."

Much of Japan's economic success is due to its unity, Novak added, stating that government and industry also work hand-in-hand on many projects, such as government-funded research and development that the testing company will then share with other companies to keep costs down.

In addition, Japanese consumers tend to buy only Japanese goods and view U.S. made goods — well, the way Japanese goods used to be viewed in this country.

"It's really come full circle," said Novak. "But part of the problem is U.S. marketing, where you find products with packaging in English language and with pictures of Americans on the labels."

"Can you imagine how well Japanese goods would sell in this country if all the products were labeled in Japanese?" he asked.

But a greater impediment to U.S. sales in Japan, Novak said, are the stringent tariff laws making it very difficult to compete with domestic goods. In addition, there are scores of so-called "non-tariff" barriers that unofficially discourage foreign trade in Japan.

"But basically Japan has been successful because the people have worked together very conscientiously and productively for their common good," Novak concluded. "They have put a great deal of time and sacrifice into planning and investing for the future and it has paid off."

Ex-Cell-O reports earnings increase

An increase in first quarter earnings has been announced by E. Paul Casey, president and chief executive officer of Ex-Cell-O Corporation.

For the three-month period ended February 28, 1982, net earnings were $12.5 million compared to $12.4 million. Net earnings per share were $.83, four percent above the $.80 earned for the same quarter a year ago.

Sales amounted to $265.4 million, a decrease of three percent below sales for $273.1 million for the first quarter of 1981.

Casey said sales in Ex-Cell-O's Ordnance segment increased substantially compared to the same quarter a year ago. Sales in the Aerospace segment also increased, but sales in the Industrial Equipment, Automotive Components and Specialty Products segments fell below year ago levels.

First quarter operating results of the Ordnance segment improved significantly due to increased shipments of wheeled armored vehicles compared to the same quarter a year ago, Casey said. Operating results also improved in the Aerospace segment, and reduced product start-up costs favorably affected the Specialty Products segment.

Industrial Equipment sales were adversely affected by lower shipments related to reduced order intake which began during fiscal 1981 and is continuing. The exceptionally low level of North American car production penalized the Automotive Components segment.

Looking ahead, Casey said he expects operating results in the Ordnance and Aerospace segments to remain strong for the rest of the fiscal year. He also anticipates continued improvement in the Specialty Products segment.

Women officials receive honors

More than 200 women serving in elective offices throughout the state turned out this month to pay tribute to Jeanette Rankin, the first woman ever elected to the U.S. Congress, and to honor several Michigan women officials.

Helen Milliken, national co-chair of ERAmerica, presented the elected officials with certificates for their service and for "accepting the challenge of political office." Among the women honored at the April 1 reception at the Livonia Holiday Inn West was Northville Township Clerk Susan J. Heintz.

The reception, which attracted women officials from throughout Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Washtenaw, Monroe and Ingham counties, was sponsored by the Michigan Women's Political Caucus 2nd District in cooperation with the League of Women Voters and the American Association of University Women.

The spirit of Jeanette Rankin was rekindled as the crowd of women officials united to share campaign experiences and to encourage more women to enter the political arena.

Rankin was a pioneer among women politicians having served two terms in the Congress — one beginning in 1917 and the other in 1940. She began her first term before women had the right to vote.

During her two terms, Rankin cast votes opposing the United States' entrance into war. Later, when opposition to the Vietnam War escalated and the women's movement began anew, Rankin, at 87, rejoined the struggle for peace and equal rights.

Capturing the spirit of the evening and the crowd's pleasure was Mary Lou Lively of the Livonia League of Women Voters, who appeared dressed as the tenacious Montana Congresswoman and urged women to gain office and use their "unity and problem solving skills beyond June 30, 1982" — deadline for passage of the Equal Rights Amendment. Outfitted in an authentic costume of the period, Lively's monologue retold the story of the politically adventurous Rankin, who at age 91 was named to the Susan B. Anthony Hall of Fame.

During the awards presentation, Helen Milliken received a rousing applause when she told the audience: "I cannot help but know if there were more women in the legislature of this country, we would have an ERA."

Milliken was lauded by Melinda Remer, Republican co-chair of the Michigan Women's Political Caucus, for being "a woman willing to lend support to what she believes in."

Prior to the reception, approximately 50 pickets carrying anti-abortion signs, protested Milliken's appearance outside the Holiday Inn. The protestors charged that Milliken was using her husband's political career as a forum for her pro-choice beliefs.

Wrapping up the three-hour program was a panel discussion entitled "What Makes Women Run," which featured Jackie Currie, a Wayne County Commissioner from Detroit; state Representative Shirley Johnson, R-Royal Oak, and Marjorie Lansing, author, university professor and former political candidate.

Lansing, who twice ran unsuccessfully for office, urged women to "run for an office you can win and run in a vintage year."

"Although 1980 was a poor year for women," she said, "the outlook is good. Women's issues are supported and highly favored by both men and women."

Lansing told potential women candidates to "make a commitment to that office — don't try to do too many things, and don't be an amateur."

Lansing said her slogan is, "women are different and better."

She added, "I believe in altruism of women. We'd be better off with more women in politics."

Everything's daisies

Ardis McLeod, left, chairman of Northville Mothers' Club's spring benefit, and her co-chairman Carol Richardson approvingly inspect a fresh daisy arrangement at IV Seasons that will set the theme for the dinner dance May 1 at Meadowbrook Country Club. The yellow-and-white daisy motif has been chosen for the dinner featuring London broil, and People's Choice, popular group playing for last year's event, has been signed to return. Tickets at $35 a couple are available from club members or the chairmen, who are encouraging groups to make plans to fill tables together.

Historical Society auction slated

By JEANDAY

A white elephant donation is being requested as admission to the annual auction of Northville Historical Society to be held at the April meeting at 8 p.m. next Thursday, April 22, in New School Church in Mill Race Historical Village.

Members are asked to bring an unwanted item for the fund-raiser. By definition, a white elephant is a possession that is of value but a problem to its owner. Bob Daniel, auction chairman, suggests that donors be prepared to tell what the item is and something of its history — which could add to the auction price. Guests are welcome to come with their white elephants.

Docents prepare for new season

The "open" sign will be out for the first time this year at Mill Race Historical Village on Sunday afternoon, May 2, as docents will be on duty again to take visitors through the historic buildings. The village will continue to be open Sunday afternoons through fall.

An organizational meeting of the Docent volunteer guides will be held Saturday, May 1, in the village. It is to be a potluck salad luncheon at 12:30 p.m., Alice Pooley and Marion Roller report. They are sisters and co-chairmen of the Docent organization for the upcoming year. The meeting will include a training session at 10:30 a.m. for new Docents. The chairmen may be contacted for information about joining.

Several special attractions are scheduled for the Docents this coming season, including a joint program with Greenmeade, a box social luncheon July 14, a tour of the Cobblestone House in Ann Arbor and a potluck luncheon to end the season October 21.

The volunteer guide organization has grown greatly during the past year with more than 50 Docents serving in the village. The volunteers wear costumes of floral skirts and shawls for identification as they take groups through the buildings or are on duty in a specific house on Sundays. Histories of the buildings and their furnishings have been researched by members of the Northville Historical Society and these are used for the background information.

Lonns' 40th was a double celebration

Vic and Betty Lonn of Oppolo Road first celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary while vacationing at Gulf Shores, Alabama, on February 28.

After they returned, they were invited to dinner to celebrate with their son Vic Lonn Jr. and his fiancée Lynne Pauley. When they arrived at Topinka's Country House on Seven Mile March 21, to their surprise, they were joined by their other children, Robert and Judy Annett of Livonia, Barton and Pat Harper of Monroe and Kirk and Libby Williams of Northville. They report it was "a wonderful time" celebrating 40 years together.

LWV annual meet set

The Northville-Plymouth-Canton-Novi League of Women Voters will hold its 13th Annual Meeting beginning at 7 p.m. April 22 in the Novi Public Library meeting room.

Included on the agenda is the adoption of the local program and budget for 1982-83.

A social hour and dessert will be held at 7 p.m. with the business meeting scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. Registration fee is $2.

Local artists display works in April 23 show and sale

Two area artists are among approximately 60 professional artists who are being featured in a show and sale sponsored by the Creative Council of the non-profit organization of Michigan women artists.

Caroline Dunphy of Northville, owner of Painter's Place on Center, will display watercolor, gouache and ink drawings.

Eleanor Ford of Novi will exhibit her sculpture relief work.

The show will be held in St. James Episcopal Church, 355 West Maple in downtown Birmingham. The church carillon will "ring in spring" as the two-day show opens April 23.

From 7-10 p.m. next Friday evening there will be a wine and cheese reception for the artists with special musical selections from the carillon. There will be a $2 donation for the reception.

The show will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, April 24, with free admission.

Among the artists exhibiting will be 25 members of the Creative Council.

Works will include acrylic, collage, oil and watercolor paintings, pottery and sculpture, works in glass and metal, as well as drawings, prints, portraits, fiber arts, jewelry, basketry and photography.

The Creative Council was formed in 1968 by a group of artists and craftsmen who felt the need for an association which would offer creative people more than just the standard art show exposure.

It has grown from 16 artists to more than 60 today, and its members are represented in galleries and shops throughout Michigan. The artists sponsor several shows a year, including a summer exhibit at Meadow Brook Hall and a bi-annual exhibit at Somerset Mall.

Schoolcraft offers health program

Schoolcraft College has a new program designed to help healthy — yet sedentary — adults improve their health.

According to Bob Gould, who has been directing a pilot program called "Community Health/Fitness" at Schoolcraft since February, the plan is to help people improve the quality of adult lives through exercise and lifestyle changes.

More than 80 adults have signed up for one aspect of the new service called the Member Use Program. For a small fee, participants have access to the extensive facilities at Schoolcraft including gyms, the swimming pool, weight training equipment and saunas.

Members also receive a locker, lock and free towels.

In addition to the Schoolcraft facilities, the college offers exercise prescriptions, stress testing, diet and nutrition education, weight management, smoking, alcohol and drug cessation programs.

Persons requesting further information should call Bob Gould at 591-6400, extension 485.

Record orders accepted

Northville Town Hall Chairman Reggie Hodson reports that persons interested in receiving a copy of Dennis Day's record album, which sold out at his Town Hall lecture, should write to the entertainer for a copy. Persons interested in receiving the record should send $8 plus postage to Dennis Day, 2401 Mandeville Canyon, Los Angeles, California, 90049.

Sex equity in athletics is topic of NOW lecture

Northville High School physical education teacher Pat Babel will discuss sex equity in athletics at the April 21 meeting of the Northwest Wayne County Chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW).

Babel will focus her discussion on the implementation of the provisions of Title IX including the obstacles posed by the Michigan High School Athletic Association.

This topic recently has gained attention as a result of a sex discrimination suit filed jointly against the MHSAA, the State Department of Education and five local school districts by a coalition of the MEA Women's Caucus, an Ann Arbor based League of Parents, the Coalition for Non-Sexist Education and the National Organization for Women.

Babel, who has been involved in girls' sports since 1956, has been a physical education teacher for 27 years, filling many positions as coach of various women's sports. She is a charter member of the Girls' Athletic Association and currently is serving as a member of the Advisory Board to the Michigan High School Athletic Association.

The general membership meeting is scheduled to begin at 8:15 p.m. at Hoover Elementary School in Livonia. Announcement of a slate of officers to be elected for the coming year will be made during the business meeting which precedes the program.

Parents, students, school board members and the public are invited to attend.

Anyone needing further information or transportation should call Northwest Wayne NOW president Janet Evans at 476-3352 or Betty Kelly at 981-6117.

Soccer team nets 26 goals

The probable makeup date would be during the month of May. In which case both teams would be playing their fourth game during whatever week the contest was rescheduled.

Therefore, Meteyer sees that as an advantage to the Mustangs because they have better overall bench strength.

Northville has scrimmages tentatively set for 2 p.m. Thursday against Redford Bishop Borgess, 10 a.m. Friday against Livonia Churchill and Monday against Troy — all weather permitting, according to Meteyer.

It is hoped, but unlikely, one of three opponents will provide better competition for the Mustangs in preparation for their season than did either North Farmington or Southfield.

Meteyer would like nothing more than to have his team in a close contest, preferably in one of the scrimmages, to see how the team will react.

The North Farmington Trojans came into the April 1 scrimmage with a young and inexperienced squad, which Meteyer added, meant most of the players on the squad had no previous soccer experience.

"They're hurting in that respect," he explained.

However, Southfield was supposedly to provide a better indication of how good Northville really is because Meteyer said the Southfield coach believed his squad would be a contender in its league this season.

Apparently, that did not bother the Mustangs as they scored five times in the first 40 minutes to coast to victory. "I don't think anybody could have beaten us in the first half. We were really doing well...everything was clicking," Meteyer observed.

In the 90-minute contest, which was 10 more than in actual contests, Meteyer explained the Blue Jays only were able to get three shots on the Mustang goal, which "were easily taken care of by the goalie."

Southfield tried to use some trick plays in setting up some kind of an offensive attack, but Meteyer said his club handled the situation well.

Diamond sports

Both the Northville boys' baseball and girls' softball teams play their contests on a field sometimes better known as a diamond. If the weatherman will cooperate, both teams hope to get their seasons underway Tuesday. The baseball squad hopes to repeat many a happy scene at the plate (above) this season, while Sheri Robins (lower right) was a key figure for the softball team last season. For previews on each squad, read next Wednesday's sports pages.

Fun Run scheduled

All joggers, runners and walkers are being summoned by the Northville Trotters' Running Club and the recreation department to participate in the Northville Downtown Dedication Run to take place at 10 a.m. Saturday, May 22.

There will be a one-mile fun run and five- and 10-kilometer runs which are open to everyone. Medals will be awarded to the first and second place male and female finishers in each age division in the five- and 10-kilometer runs. Certificates will be awarded to all finishers.

Registration fee for anyone 12 years old and under is $3.50, for 13 years old and older, $6. Cost is $5 for Club members. T-Shirts will be given to all entrants registered by May 17. Late registration fee is $8 the day of the race from 8:30-9:30 a.m. However, T-Shirts are not guaranteed for late registrants.

Send or bring completed entry blank to Northville Recreation, 303 West Main Street. Checks should be made payable to Northville Recreation.

For further information, call the recreation department at 349-0203.

Dance fit offered

Dance Fit, an aerobic exercise program, is coming to Northville. Through the use of music and easy-to-learn dance routines, participants receive the chance to express themselves physically and become fit at the same time. For further information, call Barbara Albanese at 349-4664.

Kensington Metropark offers programs

Four different family programs are being offered by the Nature and Farm Centers at the Kensington Metropark near Milford.

The first is called "Down Memory Lane — Three Decades of Nature Programs," which will explore the past 30 years of programs offered at the park's Nature Center. It will take place at the Nature Center at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, April 18.

This special slide program, which reviews many of the programs, exhibits, labels and work of former park naturalists, will kick off the Nature Program's 30th Anniversary Celebration.

This celebration, which will be observed throughout the rest of 1982, will feature many special programs and exhibits.

Another program to take place 2 p.m. Sunday, April 18, is called "Bird Eggs of Farm and Forest" at the Farm Center.

Park Naturalist Bob Hotaling and Farm Manager Dave Molan will present a one-and-a-half hour program to help persons explore the nesting process of birds in comparison with wild and domestic species.

Nesting, egg-laying, incubation, hatching and the care of the young will be examined and, hopefully, there may be some baby chicks hatching.

"Farm Stories" will take place at 10 a.m. Tuesday, April 20, at the Farm Center. Mothers are encouraged to bring their preschoolers to the Farm Center.

Farm Interpreter Ann Wiersma will read stories relating to farming, then give the children a chance to visit the farm and some of its animals. All mothers and their children should meet in the middle level of the barn.

"Nature's Night Life," an indoor/outdoor program, will take place at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 21, at the Nature Center.

Park Naturalist Mark Szabo will help participants explore the night life along the woodland trails. Participants should wear boots and meet at the Nature Center. Szabo pointed out walking at night helps sharpen the senses. For instance, eyes grow accustomed to the dark, noses detect scents which may elude them during the day, and persons are more aware of feeling as feet hit the ground.

All of the above programs are free, but require advanced registration. Call 685-1561 for the programs titled "Nature's Night Life" and "Down Memory Lane". Call the Farm Center at 685-9165 for the other programs. If no answer, call 685-1561.

A vehicle entry is required. The cost is $7 annual or $2 for senior citizens and daily.

OLS cagers capture title

Northville's Our Lady of Sorrows seventh and eighth grade girls' basketball team claimed its second consecutive Catholic Youth Organization Metropolitan city championship in mid-March with a 31-19 verdict over Queen of Peace.

Collen Kirwan, Jenny Nadeau and Mary Kay McClorey all started the game for OLS. Two-year starter Mary Ann Konczal saw limited action because of a leg injury sustained during the playoffs.

Another Northville member of the team, Suzy Barnes, a seventh grader, helped the team earn 24 victories without a loss.

Running Club seeks joggers

The rec department needs only one more women's team to complete a league for this summer, and it has an unusual situation to complete its task. There are a couple of sponsors interested, but neither has a team to sponsor. Please call 349-0203 if anyone is interested in forming a team for any of the sponsors.

count on local races, gym time for indoor workouts during the winter and meeting time and place for persons interested in running together.

Open swim hours at the high school now through May 1 are Mondays and Wednesdays only from 8:30-9:30 p.m. Cost is 50 cents.

The last day of open gym will be today at the community building from 3-5 p.m. and 9-11 p.m. Cost is $1.

Registration for spring classes will take place April 26 through 30.

Anyone interested in joining the Northville Trotters' Running Club should call the rec department at 349-0203. The cost is $10 with members getting a Club T-Shirt, discount.

Golf season is lurking just around the corner, and the Ninth Annual C.S. Mott Golf Classic is not far behind.

The golf benefit for The University of Michigan's C.S. Mott Children's Hospital does not take place until May 22 and 23, but registration soon will begin for the regional event at the U of M golf courses. Registrations will be limited.

Part of the $67 entry fee is tax deductible. Entry forms are available at the Financial Development Office, 300 North Ingalls Building, U of M Hospitals, Ann Arbor, 48109.

Stopper takes fourth in Mr. Michigan contest

Northville's Matt Stopper took fourth place in the 1982 Junior Mr. Michigan contest sponsored by the Great American Physique Production Company at the Redford Theatre March 13.

The 6-foot, 210-pound Stopper also claimed second place in the Novice Mr. Michigan contest in February. The 25-year-old native trains at the Silvers Gym in Plymouth, and is a student at Oakland Community College.

Runners' clinic scheduled

There will be a runners' clinic from 7-9 p.m. Saturday, May 1, at Novi's Providence Hospital Ambulatory Care Center in connection with the Providence Hospital Novi run May 2.

There is no charge to attend the clinic, but reservations are requested through the Providence Hospital community health education department at 424-3068.

Information on the race itself can be obtained from the Novi Parks and Recreation department at 349-1976 or the Providence Hospital community relations department at 552-9000.

A central deck can feature built-in storage for barbecue equipment, gardening tools and workshop projects. Though very functional, it is a beautiful place for entertaining.

Decks are economical addition

Need more living space but can't afford a room addition right now?

Or do you need a new place for the children to play since the spare bedroom isn't spare anymore?

Decks can be an economical way to have the space you need. Separate decks can perform specific functions, while at the same time fit into an eye-pleasing plan.

There's a central 12-by-14 foot deck for barbecue equipment and gardening tools, with plenty of floor space for guests, a trellis deck, a deck just for sunbathing, and a children's deck that you can clean up quickly and use for extra entertaining space.

Features in these decks may spark ideas you'd like to suggest to the professional remodeler you select to do the construction.

Here's some tips to keep your project in budget:

- Have one deck built per year, instead of an entire system. Or build into one deck the features that best suit your needs.

- Designs that make use of stock lumber can cut your costs. Your professional remodeler won't waste time cutting, and scrap lumber will be minimal.

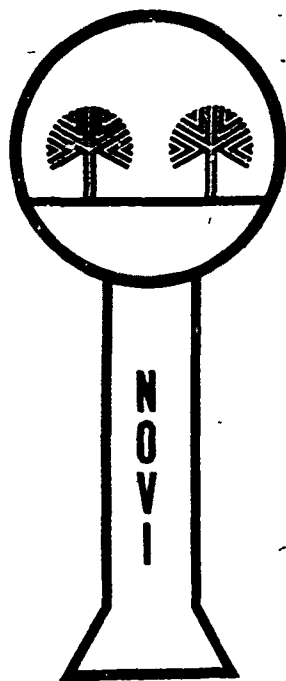

- Check local ordinances for restrictions on decks — it could save you money on alterations in the future if you should sell your house.

One key to success is choosing a well-qualified professional remodeler. You can find the names of professional remodelers in the Household Buyers and Service Directory in Sliger/Livingston Publications' Green Sheet.

A professional remodeler who uses pneumatic tools can probably finish the job much faster than one who doesn't. The reason is that a heavy-duty gun can drive 2 to 3 1/4 nails at the touch of a trig-

Insulate your home for summer

Why does a home need thick insulation in its walls, floor and attic when it's 80 degrees outside or hotter?

Many homeowners might say it doesn't at all.

People often think of insulation strictly as a cold weather product.

That, however, can be a costly misconception given today's soaring electrical rates that make it more expensive for some homeowners to air condition their homes than to heat them.

The basis for the misconception is confusion about the way a home loses and gains heat, and the way insulation works to help cut these losses and gains.

Regardless of outside or inside temperatures, there is only one form of energy — heat. When there is a temperature difference inside and outside, there will be a heat flow.

Consequently, when it's 80 degrees outside, for example, and the temperature inside your home is lower — say 70 degrees — heat from outside will enter your home.

Not only does this make the home less comfortable, it also triggers the air conditioning thermostat.

INSULATION can help. If you already have the proper amount of insulation in your home, relax.

Fiber glass insulation comprises millions of glass fibers that create tiny pockets to trap air and slow down the transfer of heat — into or out of the home.

Thus, insulation which helps keep heat inside your home in winter, also helps keep heat from entering your home in summer.

Since your air conditioner runs less, you use less electricity and pay lower energy bills.

If on the other hand, your home is uninsulated or under-insulated, you may want to correct this deficiency.

Your local utility or building supply dealer can tell you exactly how much insulation your home should have.

With this information, you're only a weekend away from a more comfortable, energy-efficient house.

WHERE AND HOW to insulate. What specific areas of the home need insulation in the summer?

The attic is usually the best place to start.

If you have an unfinished attic or an unfinished floored attic, you can "do it yourself" and save money. If the area under the attic floor is not accessible, call a local contractor.

Other areas of the home that do-it-yourselfers should insulate for summer protection are underneath the home such as crawl space walls, basement walls and the underside of the floors.

Generally, if insulation has not been installed in these areas, and they are accessible to work in, they can be treated by the do-it-yourself homeowner.

HOW IS IT done? Here are some basic guidelines:

The only tools required are a sharp knife, a straight-edge, a ruler, a pair of work gloves and safety glasses. Installation is simply a matter of measuring the area to be insulated, cutting the material to fit and laying it in place.

Check with the dealer or utility about what R-value to buy to bring your home up to the levels recommended by the Federal Housing Administration (R-value indicates insulation's thermal efficiency. Savings vary — higher R-values mean greater insulating power).

Measure to determine how much insulation to buy, and find out whether you will need a vapor barrier.

Make any necessary repairs in the area to be insulated (roof, floors, etc.).

Lay batts or blankets in the attic right on the unfinished floor. A new layer of insulation should be laid perpendicular to the existing layer.

In the basement, insulate the space between where the basement ends and the floor above begins (called the "band joist") by cutting strips of unfaced insulation and tucking them snugly into place.

As in the winter, homeowners should also caulk and weatherstrip around windows and doors for even greater summer energy efficiency.

Chimney Cleaning Time is Here

Warm weather is returning, but you shouldn't forget about your chimney, not yet. If you are one of the increasing numbers of people using woodstoves and fireplaces, now is the time to clean and safety inspect your chimney.

ger. Also, the gun drives nails consistently, and its narrow nose fits easily into tight spots where it's difficult to swing a hammer.

If you're a serious do-it-yourselfer with other home improvement projects behind you, you may want to build the deck yourself. Pneumatic tools could be a good investment for this and other jobs as well.

Asking the professional remodeler questions before the project is started can save you headaches afterward:

- Who are previous customers you can contact to ask about his work?
- What kind of guarantee does he give, verbal or written, and for how long?
- Does he provide a written estimate before work is started?

Another tip: Using pressure-treated lumber or redwood gives your deck a professional finish that lasts and saves valuable time from weatherproofing raw lumber. Also, hot-dip galvanized nails won't leave ugly rust stains.

Chainsaws can be valuable home tool

The chainsaw was once a tool used only by professionals in the logging industry, but today chainsaws are found in suburban garages and tool sheds all across the country.

The chainsaw is a great tool for cutting firewood, bucking up scrap wood (cutting it into usable lengths) and pruning trees. It can perform all these tasks in far less time than it would take to do them manually.

Like many products of advanced technology designed to save time, the chainsaw is a super tool when well-built and used properly, and a hazard if poorly designed and used recklessly.

Choosing a good, safe chainsaw that is right for you is not an easy task, especially if you have never bought one before.

Essentially, chainsaws fall into two categories: electric and gas-engine. Both have their pros and cons.

The main advantages of electric chainsaws are that they are much cheaper than gas-engine chainsaws, much easier to start and maintain, and a lot quieter.

A disadvantage is that, with guide bar sizes of eight to 16 inches, electric chainsaws must be limited to light work around the house. Also, mobility is restricted by the length of the power cord, which can become tangled or get in the way of cutting.

Gas-engine chainsaws can be taken anywhere and used to cut logs of almost any size. "Production chainsaws," for example, have bars as large as 60 inches for bucking huge logs.

For the homeowner, however, gas-engine chainsaws range in size from 12 to 25 inches, with 14 to 20 inches being appropriate for most tasks.

The drawbacks of gas-engine chainsaws are that they are more expensive, take more work to maintain and are a whole lot noisier than electric chainsaws. Regardless of which you choose, there are some features available on modern chainsaws that you should have.

In general order of priority, they are:

- Solid-state ignition. An increasing number of chainsaws have solid-state ignition. With solid-state ignition, there is no periodic changing of the breaker points and condenser, which takes time and effort.

- Chain brake. A chain brake must be cocked in order to work, but when properly set the brake will stop the chain if the bar hits an obstruction and flies up toward your face and chest.

- Tip guard. The tip guard is located at the end of the bar. It encloses the nose and prevents kick-back.

- Antivibration device. Antivibration devices are rubber shock absorbers located at strategic points along the handle. They absorb some of the chainsaw's vibration.

- Automatic oiler. A good chainsaw needs oil constantly. The faster it runs, the more oil it needs to reduce friction. Consequently, many chainsaws are equipped with automatic oilers, but look for one that also has a manual override because many times the chainsaw needs a little more oil than the automatic oiler gives.

- Nose sprocket. A chainsaw creates a lot of friction at the nose. A sprocket at the nose greatly reduces friction.

- Compression release. When you pull the starter rope on a gas-engine chainsaw, compression builds up in the engine which makes the chainsaw harder to start, especially if it is one of the larger ones. A compression release button eliminates this problem.

Once you have selected a chainsaw with the above features that is appropriate for the size and nature of your wood cutting needs, you're half-way home.

The second, and perhaps more important, half is knowing exactly how to use the tool and taking all the required safety precautions.

When you buy a chainsaw, demand a complete instruction book with safety tips. Then keep up to date on the mechanism of your saw and cutting methods.

You should be fully aware of information on cutting, cleaning, storing, maintaining the chain and guide bar, sharpening the chain and adjusting chain tension as well as all appropriate safety tips.

Caulking those gaps will save energy costs

Most homeowners know that caulking is an effective winterizing project, but may not realize that caulking is important in any type of weather — including the long, hot summer.

Air infiltration is a problem throughout the year. Though we're more likely to feel cold drafts in the house, warm drafts in the summer also are energy wasters.

If you've got central air conditioning, it will be much less effective if the unit must work overtime cooling and recooling because the house is full of air leaks.

Since an air conditioner typically consumes more than half of all electricity used in the summer, now is the time to double-check joints and seams and caulk where necessary.

Experts at Geocel Corporation, a major manufacturer of elastomeric caulks, estimate that four places account for nearly three-quarters of the heat loss in a home.

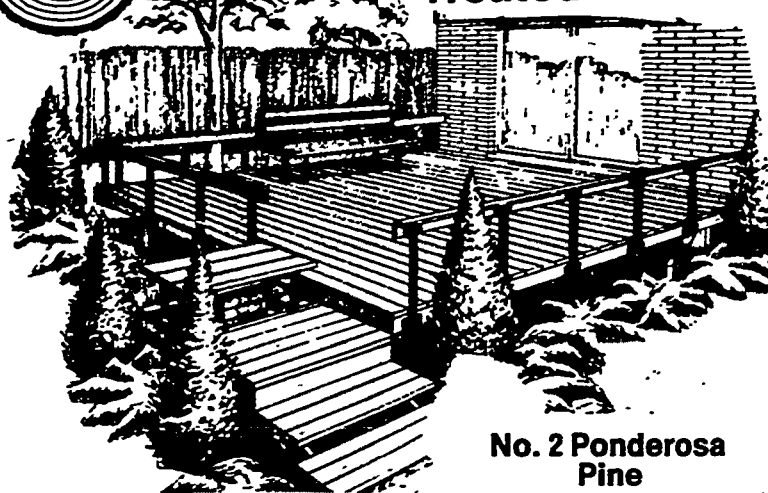

These include between the foundation and sole plate, at wall outlets, in the duct system and around windows. If these places aren't sealed properly, as much as 30 percent of the coolness generated by a central air conditioning unit is wasted.

After carefully examining your house for air leaks, take time to caulk.

A small investment in a quality caulking material can give you years of protection. The savings in your fuel bills will offset the cost a hundred times over.

Ceiling fan will keep home cool

Many homeowners have found a simple way to save money and conserve energy during the summer months — they're shutting off their air conditioners.

But they're not sacrificing anything when it comes to cooling comfort.

These homeowners have discovered the whole-house fan and its capabilities for providing a cool, comfortable indoor environment at a fraction of the cost of operating an air conditioner.

The whole-house fan uses as little as one-tenth of the energy required to operate an air conditioner, which means homeowners can realize substantial cost savings by using the fan instead of the air conditioner.

Since the fan effectively cools home occupants at temperatures of up to 85 degrees, it can be used to supplement the air conditioner in any climate and can actually replace the air conditioner in many climates.

Centrally located in the home, either mounted horizontally over a ceiling opening or vertically at the gable end of a house, the fan draws air through open, screened windows and doors, exhausting it outside of the house.

This keeps the indoor air fresh and the moving currents of air create a cooling sensation which can make the temperature seem anywhere from two to eight degrees cooler than it actually is.

In addition to creating cooling breezes, the fan can be operated when the temperature begins to fall during the evening hours. This draws the cool air into the home. If the home is then closed up, the house will hold the cooler air even as the temperature begins to rise the following day.

Besides ventilating the whole house, the fan can be used to create higher air velocities and generate greater cooling comfort in only the occupied portions of the house. This is accomplished by opening windows and doors in the occupied rooms and closing the doors of unoccupied areas.

Whole-house fans are designed for easy installation in existing homes and come with detailed installation instructions. The fans are equipped with attractive louvre shutters which open when the fan is in operation and close when it is shut off.

The ventilator can also be equipped with a control switch, providing infinite fan speeds, and an automatic timer, making it possible for the fan to be turned on and shut off at pre-selected times.

The Home Ventilating Institute (HVI), a voluntary organization of manufacturers of home ventilating equipment which sets standards for the industry and certified product performance, rates members' fans on the basis of cubic feet per minute (CFM) of air moved.

These ratings, along with a simple formula, give homeowners a sound basis for selecting the correct ventilator to effectively cool a home. The product of the total floor area of the house multiplied by three yields the correct CFM rating of the fan needed to cool the house.

The CFM rating appears on the HVI label which is displayed on the products of all member firms. The label assures the consumer that the product has been tested and meets the proper performance standards.

Wicker is wonderful

Wicker is a wonderful way to decorate, whether it be filling the empty corner of that windowsill with a basket or furnishing an entire room in a comfortable, carefree fashion.

Wicker furniture is economical, yet sturdy, and a complete set from sofa to chairs to table may be purchased at a fraction of the price of a traditional furniture set.

It is also versatile, its natural shade blending with almost any color scheme. And, it is easily painted, so as to blend with or accent the decor of your choice.

With all this going for it, why not add a piece of wicker to your home environment for a light, easy touch?

Pressurized sprayer has variety of uses

A pressure sprayer is so nice to have around the house because it not only applies insecticides, herbicides and fertilizers to help keep your yard beautiful, it can do many other household chores as well.

New sprayers are light-weight and truly portable. Because you can fill them with warm (never hot) sudsy water, some jobs go faster and better than with a hose and cold water.

Here are some examples:

- Wash your car, van, camper or boat. A 360 degree nozzle lets you suds the tops, sides and hard-to-reach places comfortably.

- Wash windows and siding. Use a sudsy jet stream to remove heavy dirt, then rinse with clear water from a garden hose.

- Get rid of spiders, mildew and other basement infestations by washing down walls. The pressure steam will steer the debris down the floor drain.

- Spring is the time to get rid of wasps. Fill the sprayer with an appropriate solution and spray behind shutters and under eaves.

Buying a quality pressure sprayer that's safe pays off. Look for one that will spray a steam over 30 feet, a safety valve that automatically vents excess air to prevent over-pressurization, a lock that prevents accidental spraying, a funnel top for easy filling and no overflow, a built-in measuring spoon, and an extra long hose.

A swingaway handle is another good feature; so is a removable cartridge filter that screens out impurities to prevent clogging the nozzle.

So, if you have an old, rusty pressure sprayer that never seems to work right, it may leak and be unsafe. Take a look at what new technology offers you today.

Pressure sprayers have become a good year-round, all-around-the-house investment.

Leaky garden hose will raise water bills

Do you realize that a leaky garden hose may cost you more in higher water bills than the price of repairing the hose?

Most repairs are easy and inexpensive. But to help prevent leaks, buy hoses made of high-grade rubber and laminated filament. A five-eighths inch-diameter hose is usually sufficient for medium-sized lawn areas.

Drive heavy wooden stakes into lawns near flower beds to protect tender plants from damage caused by hoses pulled tight to reach distant parts of your lawn or garden.

Homes need 'exterior' decorator

Have you ever thought of the exterior of your home in the same terms as the interior — as something that can be changed through the application of creative design?

Making your home's exterior more beautiful can be a matter of a few simple changes easily done when you are doing an improvement such as adding new siding.

Siding can be applied in a variety of ways, and combined with design ideas to make your home more pleasing in appearance without a major remodeling.

"A Guide to Designing Your Home's Exterior: Before, After and What Might Have Been," is a new publication by Mastic Corporation that gives homeowners lots of design ideas to use when they are re-siding their home or building a new one.

The booklet shows before-and-after photos of a variety of house styles where new siding has brought the home to life with its bright, low-maintenance appeal. It then illustrates "what might have been" if creative design ideas had been used to make a beautiful new siding job into a really dramatic exterior design.

For example, a story-and-a-half home is turned into a charming Cape Cod by the following minor additions:

- The living room picture window is replaced with two colonial windows.
- Trim boards are added above the windows (covered to complete the overall low-maintenance plus that vinyl siding gives). Low-maintenance Vintage shutters are added to every window.

Some 'exterior design' ingenuity will make home a showplace

- The front door is painted to match the shutters, and fluted pilasters on either side of the door to enhance the colonial look. This gives the entrance more importance, making the front door appear more balanced. Both the pilaster trim and the shutters are low-maintenance so that you can enjoy handsome trim without the chore of painting it.
- Porch changes include replacing the concrete stoop with brick to match the foundation and replacing the wrought iron support with a more massive wood post and a railing with balusters.

- Double-four-inch siding is chosen for a colonial look. And Mastic's wide corner post trim is used to complement the door trim with balancing touches of white.
- The black light fixture by the door is replaced with a larger brass one.

Besides showing a variety of home styles and their transformations. "A Guide to Designing Your Home's Exterior" offers tips on how to use the design ideas, whether for remodeling or new construction, and features a siding selection guide and a full page of color-coded color-scheme recommendations.

A copy of the booklet is available from Mastic siding dealers by sending $1 to Mastic Information Center; Department NS; Post Office Box F; Berrien Springs, Michigan 49103.

Paint will liven aluminum siding

Many homeowners are facing springtime with aging aluminum siding that they would like to make fresh and new-looking again.

You can repaint aluminum siding yourself with beautiful, money-saving results. You can even give it a new color scheme. Here are some suggestions for repainting aluminum siding.

make sure the color you choose is resistant to fading. Then look at the "unchangeable" factors, such as the color of your roof and the neighboring houses.

Light colors will make a house appear larger. Contrasting color for trim is eye-catching, but "cluttered" features should be painted the same the house, particularly, are dirt collectors. Rinse the surface thoroughly.

If the surface is in good condition (no chalking), and you are using a high-quality latex paint, priming may not be necessary. To check for chalking, wipe your hand over the surface. If little or no chalk appears, the surface can be painted.

If you notice a fine powder, apply an eight-inch strip of masking tape to the surface. Peel it off and reapply it. If the tape barely sticks or doesn't stick at all, the surface must be thoroughly brushed to remove the chalk.

Where metal is showing through the original finish, the surface must be cleaned and primed with latex metal primer. Allow the primer to dry thoroughly, usually overnight. If rust shows through, reprime those rusty areas.

Then, it's just like painting any other house. Use the right tools, be careful, take your time and soon you'll be admiring the most attractive house on the block — yours.

The days of traditional white houses are long gone, and the sky's the limit with the beautiful array of paint colors available.

First, be sure you're using the paint that is best suited to the job. One paint manufacturer, Fuller-O'Brien, has developed a 100-percent latex paint called Weather King, particularly good for aluminum siding. Latex paint coats and protects your siding without a heavy, smothering film.

To figure the amount of paint you'll need, measure the distance around your house and multiply by the average height. Subtract about 10 percent for windows and doors. That's the approximate number of square feet to be painted. Divide this figure by the square-foot coverage shown on the paint can label to get the number of gallons you'll need.

The most enjoyable part of painting is choosing your new paint colors. First, color as the siding. Very bright colors should be reserved for small accents, such as window boxes, shutters and the main entrance.

The days of traditional white houses are long gone, and the sky's the limit with the beautiful array of paint colors available.

Good surface preparation is vital. When homeowners get unsatisfactory results from their paint jobs, the fault is rarely with the paint, but with improperly prepared surfaces.

After years of exposure, aluminum siding usually has a desposit of dirt and chalk. Scrub the surface well with a detergent and water solution, paying special attention to protected areas under overhangs, since these parts of

Focus on Fashion

Look what's back? The dress returns

"After a season of cumbersome layers and smothering shawls, those no-nonsense dresses seen in 1982 spring collections look refreshing simple," reports Women's Wear Daily (WWD).

Considered "the Bible" of the fashion industry, WWD is astute in its appraisals. Its recent conclusion about today's dresses hits the mark. As we head from the current "resort" season into spring, fashion is becoming simpler, more pared down.

Dresses — about as pared down as fashion can get — are becoming more popular than they've been for over a decade, since the concept of sportswear separates dressing took off.

Newest in lengths that graze or expose the knee, dresses are interpreted in shapes ranging from slim button-front shirtdresses to supple chemises to snappy blousons to saucy schoolgirl dresses to long casual T's.

Jack Mulqueen turns nautical stripes into a three-piece silk dress with matching skirt, shirt and camisole. Zandra Rhodes treats printed silk jacquard to kimono sleeves and a wide V belt. Joe Garguilo does delicate navy and white floral crepe in an upbeat French schoolgirl dress. John Anthony wraps sheer peach wool gauze with a jade green suede belt in an off-the-shoulder treatment.

This year dresses go farther than just to lunch or meetings. They can be casual as long sweatshirts; glamorous as short, sexy cocktail dresses; elegant as long, flowing gowns.

Belts lend dash and definition. They may be wide straps of supple suede or pearlized leather, or bowed cotton sashes, or patent leather corselets or ornamented leather ropes of wood and beads.

And the legs — a new focal point — take sheer tinted hose with high-heeled sandals or pumps. (Tip: the shorter the hemline, the higher the heel).

At this time of year, dresses often experience a comeback. The extent to which American and European designers are showing dresses this year, and the degree to which they represent the controlled, uncluttered direction of current fashion indicate the importance of the comeback this year.

Energize that spring wardrobe

SHED THOSE winter blues. It's time to come out from under your layered clothing and down-filled coats, open your warm-weather valves, so you're ready for a season of exuberance.

It's going to be a high-voltage spring, where individuality prevails. Fashion designers offer options for every type of lifestyle, taste, figure and pocketbook.

If you have great legs, there are plenty of powerful short outfits in bright colors to accent your assets.

If lanky legs aren't your style, you'll find skirt, skort, dress and pant lengths stretching from mid-thigh to mid-calf.

No matter what your figure dictates, there is a large array of styles from which to choose. Spring is a time for kinetic dressing, so if you only buy one or two new articles, make them bright and bold so you're guaranteed to kill winter recessionary doldrums.

THE BIG attractions this season reflect deliberate lack of balance of proportion and dissonance of color combinations. Architectural, dramatic and sculptural best describe this season's clothing designs.

There is a large, loose pouf of the blouson over the skimp skirt. And in contrast is the close-fitting bodice over a long flounced skirt.

Petticoats, lace insertions, corselet waistbands and hip wraps take the 1980's free woman back to heroines of days gone by. Skirts are full, ruffled, sometime tiered.

In pants there are ballerina shorts to Bermudas, knickers, bloomers, clam diggers and enormously full cropped pants. To achieve these electric looks, pants should be full and rounded, not tight.

NATURAL FIBERS of silk, linen, cotton and cotton poplin are prominent. There is also an easy mixture of texture, such as a silk dress wrapped at the hip in suede or a smooth silk skirt topped with a nubby linen jacket.

Suede is the newest spring fabric. Soft, supple and featherweight — suede is showing up in bold colors such as ink blue, emerald green and coral.

Colors are brilliant and rich, natural and white. Pale, pale pastels are set against white and off-white. Turquoise emerges as the new neutral; black and white, in stripes, in tandem, or each alone, are a must. Red is a sensational new color to go with everything.

Patterns are paired, combining stripes and dots.

HIGH HEELS return for fancy footwear, while flats remain the staple for daytime. Pearlized leather has replaced metallic. Thongs and sophisticated moccasins are the newest additions to be worn with the varied length pants.

Dresses are popping off the back burners and returning as a statement for warm weather dressing. They will be shorter and softer; in knits, woven cottons and silk. When topped with jackets, the newest look is the very long double breasted or copped waist-length jacket.

Spring dressing reflects the contemporary multi-faceted individual of the 80s. With a season full of options, there's sure to be a style or two that will catch your fancy.

Active wear plays roll in fashion

There was a time when you could tell a dancer from a jogger and a jogger from a tennis player and each of them from the person who did nothing to stay physically fit.

The giveaway was in the clothing. But not any more.

Active wear, designed for a power-packed life, has been popularized, and any one who wishes can look like he's pumping iron even if he's not.

"There's a whole thing happening, a way of feeling healthy, looking good and of looking good while you work to look better," said Margo Katz of Studio Dancewear in Birmingham.

Studio Dancewear provides dancers or would-be hoofers a unique selection of clothes to wear during workouts. Parachute fabric turns up in jumpsuits, pants and camisoles, so easy to wear they're showing up everywhere. Leotards with asymmetrical necklines and patterned fabrics are coming out of the studio and onto the street for everyday wear.

If running is your kick, you have a multitude of choices, most of them colorful and simple. Looking terrific as you move is easy in a pair of slinky nylon shorts in bright pink or brilliant green. The shorts can be matched to sleeveless tops or teamed with hooded sweatshirts in complementary pastels.

A rainsuit is a must to have on hand for spring running. The suit should consist of water-repellent pants and pullover hooded jackets. They will keep you dry when it's wet and warm when it's cold.

For those who choose to ride rather than sun, the selection of clothing must be made for comfort, not looks. Cycling shorts come equipped with chamois or terry-cloth crotches for extra padding and protection against chafing.

There are also touring shorts available in blue, brown and burgundy, but the basic bicycling short is black. Although the shorts and jerseys have been basically the same for years, there recently has been a new turn in cycling clothes with the introduction of lycra on the racing scene. The lycra suits fit like a second skin from neck to mid-thigh, the theory being that the close fit helps in the aerodynamics of riding.

Spring way ahead with great makeup

It's all in the detail.....

Fresh new makeup will add glow to spring and summer faces if it's clean and blended. There won't be any lines of demarcation between makeup colors. The pop of makeup is on the lips.

For the best look, opt for a monotone face with shades of one color on eyes, lips and cheeks. Foundations should be sheer or give the illusion of sheerness.

The new emphasis on the eyebrows shows shimmering golds and bronzes placed on the lids then brought up and worked into the brows.

For the eyes, use new pale-out watery colors or dark, muted smokey colors in shadows and liners... always blended and blurred to a pale, pale softness.

Pale color making a splash this season are pearly grey, pale shrimp, pale gold, the palest okra, the most faded aqua blue... worn with a natural shadow or liner like brown or grey.

If dark colors are your fancy, use brown, blue, green or purple.

For day, it's soft, sand-colored eyes. At night, add shimmer with silvers and deeper, more intense colors blended well.

Lips are the season's focal point and they boast richer depth of color with shimmer added. Forget lip liners; instead, achieve a depth of color from blending several shades of one color.

Hottest lip colors are richer golds, orangey tones to terra cotta, as well as apricots with hibiscus colors.

FOR THOSE who prefer to keep their energy on tap, they can simply slip into a sweatsuit and wear it outside of the gym. Styles vary from knickers to shorts to long T-shirts.

People can wear active wear for many, many occasions. It's the look. You get a nice sweatsuit, for not a lot of money, and you can really get a lot of wear out of it.

Sweatsuits have grown up and grown shapelier. The basic crewneck sweat is stretched and transformed into a soft and snazzy dress, oftentimes with raglan sleeves.

Wide belts are being used to cinch the looks. Calvin Klein has joined Norma Kamali in making the suits in rainbow colors and styles galore.

The hemline revolution has hit the sweatsuits as well. They range from full sweeping circle skirts to swingy tunic dresses.

Added touches

Any new accessory is sure to give your wardrobe a radiant lift.

Big earrings, big bracelets in copper, wood and silver are big news again. But remember, only wear one or two bold pieces at a time so you don't look excessive.

Belts are strong too, worn as showpieces and slung at the hips. Obi wraps continue, worn lower now, and many belts are made specifically to be slouched around the hip. The belt of the moment is concha — a string of leather laced with silver circles.

The hottest item is an inexpensive chamois, the kind you use to wash your car, but it's neatly trimmed and worn at the neckline or across the hips. It's a fun fad that won't set you back a bundle but will update your wardrobe.

April's busy month for gardener

The month of April showers is here, and that means it's time for outdoor gardeners to break out of hibernation.

Michigan State University extension specialists suggest the following activities are timely:

- Remove old, dry grass blades as soon as the grass is dry enough to mow. Set the mower blade to crop the blades to one inch in length. Begin mowing on a regular basis when the grass turns green and begins to grow again.

- If your lawn had crabgrass problems last year, apply a pre-emergent herbicide for crabgrass control before forsythia finishes blooming. As with any lawn or garden chemical, follow label directions carefully.

- Roll severely frost-heaved turf after the frost is out of the soil but before the lawn dries out completely.

- Do not fertilize established bluegrass lawns until May or even early June. Research at MSU has shown that early spring fertilization promotes top growth at the expense of root development and increases the chance that susceptible bluegrass varieties will develop Fusarium blight, a serious turf disease. Plan on applying nitrogen in late fall. This encourages root development.

- Ignore ads for zoysia grass. It is not recommended for Michigan lawns.

- If you had bluegrass billbug problems in your lawn last year, late April is the time to apply granular diazinon to control them.

- As soon as the soil is dry enough to work, prepare the vegetable garden and flower beds for planting. Add fertilizer, organic matter and lime according to soil test recommendations.

- Plant asparagus and rhubarb.
- Sow seeds of cool-weather crops outdoors. These include peas, early potatoes, radishes, onions, carrots, beets, turnips, chard, spinach, leaf lettuce and salsify. Set out transplants of the cabbage family crops—broccoli, cabbage, cauliflower, Brussels sprouts and kohlrabi.

- Six to eight weeks before the average date of the last frost in your area, sow seeds of warm-weather crops indoors. These include tomatoes, peppers, eggplant, melons and cucumbers. Grow melons in individual peat pots or blocks to minimize disturbance of their roots at planting time.

- Elm leaf beetles, box elder bugs, cluster flies and ladybird beetles will soon become active and may invade living areas. None will do any damage indoors, but they can be a nuisance. Try to gather up ladybird beetles and release them outdoors. They're on your side in the battle against aphids and other garden pests. If the other insects are troublesome, vacuum or swat them or spot-treat with a household insecticide containing pyrethrin.

- Head off swarming winged ants nesting in or near basement walls by spraying the foundation and nests with diazinon.

- Prune winter-damaged trees and shrubs. Unless it's necessary, hold off pruning forsythia, lilac, crabapple, magnolia, rhododendron and other spring-flowering ornamentals. The buds for this year's flowers were formed last year, and pruning now would remove them.

Summer-flowering trees and shrubs—those that bloom after June 30—can be pruned now because their flower buds are yet to form.

- Oaks and maples whose leaves turned yellow between green veins last year can be treated now to correct the nutritional deficiencies that caused the problem. Chlorotic oaks need iron; maples need manganese. Check with your local nurseryman, arborist or garden center to find out what to use and how to use it.

- Plant landscape trees, shrubs and ground covers. Be sure to allow trees room to reach their mature size. Avoid planting tall trees under eaves or power lines and trees or shrubs over septic tanks, sewer lines or water pipes.

- Control spruce gall aphids on spruce trees by spraying at or before bud break with lindane, malathion or diazinon. You can also prune off and destroy the green, pineapple-shaped swellings at the branch tips in late June. Brown galls contain no insects, so the only reason to remove them is to improve the tree's appearance.

- Eliminate some of this year's bagworm crop by removing and destroying bagworm cases on landscape plants. Each bag contains hundreds of eggs.

- Use dormant oil sprays to control severe scale infestations and reduce this year's mite or aphid problems on landscape ornaments. Read the product label closely and follow directions carefully to avoid injuring sensitive plants.

- Get lawn and garden equipment ready for the new growing season.

- Fertilize perennial flowers.
- Begin planting gladioli weekly from late April through June for a continuous supply of cut flowers through the summer.

- As soon as the soil is workable, sow seeds of browallia, calendula, California poppy, cynoglossum, cosmos, flowering tobacco, portulaca, petunia, bachelor button, larkspur, anchusa and sweet alyssum outdoors.

- Plant lily bulbs and dormant roses.
- Indoors, plant seeds of cockscomb, zinnia, calendula, cosmos, bachelor button and African marigold before April 15.

- Save Easter lilies to plant outdoors after the likelihood of frost is past.

- Remove part of the mulch from strawberries, bulbs, perennials and roses. Take off the rest in early May, or as early as necessary to avoid smothering new growth.

- Plant fruit trees, raspberries, grapes and strawberries.

- Fertilize brambles, currants and gooseberries. Hold off on strawberries until they have fruited.

- Apply weed control materials in raspberries.

- Begin a regular disease and insect control program on fruit trees, including ornamental crabapples, as soon as growth begins.

Ingenuity can save landscaping costs

If new plans for landscaping are among the non-essentials lopped from your budget by inflation, it is time to substitute a little ingenuity for money and become your own nurseryman.

Joe Cox, landscaping architecture specialist at Michigan State University, suggests multiplying existing plants if finances for nursery-grown types are limited.

The easiest way to increase the number of plants is to take advantage of volunteer seedlings, root shoots or cuttings of favorite trees, shrubs or flowers, according to Cox. Oak, hickory and walnut trees, for example, may grow from acorns and nuts stashed by squirrels.

Maple seeds will germinate almost anywhere, from flower boxes to windowboxes to eavestroughs. For shade trees, move volunteer hard and sugar maple trees to a corner of the yard where they can grow undisturbed and out of the way until they are big enough to transplant.

Plant seedling walnuts where you want the mature trees to grow. Walnuts have deep taproots and are difficult to transplant after the first year.

Often, a seedling's first leaves look little or nothing like the leaves of the parent plant, Cox said. Patience and waiting until several sets of leaves have appeared are required prior to identifying the volunteer.

Even when the parentage is known, it may not be possible to predict the plant's performance, said Cox. Seedlings may vary in flower production, height, form, width, presence or absence of fruit and growth rate.

This variability in offspring can lend an air of suspense to the business of multiplying plants from seeds. It also makes propagating plants a little more risky than purchasing nursery-grown stock.

More dependable results may be obtained by propagating plants from the stem cuttings or other vegetative plant parts. The resulting plants will be just like the parent.

This backyard resource may be used to replace mature or declining landscape plants, to make a barrier for wind and noise, to block off view, to shade a west window or to beautify a portion of the landscape. In short, it is possible to use home-grown plants just as the larger, fancier plants from local nursery and garden centers.

Another valuable landscaping resource is tree leaves, grass clippings and other plant debris. These materials may be recycled in a compost pile to produce a wealth of organic material to improve and enrich the soil.

Compost can be used in the vegetable garden as a mulch to discourage weed growth and retard loss of moisture from the soil, then plowed into the soil to add organic matter, improve drainage and water-holding capacity and add small amounts of plant nutrients.

Zinnias make colorful 'cutables'

If you desire an abundance of cut flowers in almost all colors of the rainbow — whether you have a little or a large flower garden — don't leave the zinnia off your seed list.

They come in many shades of red (from pink to scarlet), orange, yellow, plum, white and even green. There also are many bi-colors, such as Whirligig and Old Mexico, along with a truly old-fashioned variety called Chippendale.

Heights can vary from the four-inch Thumbelina and the eight-inch lemon-striped Linearis up to the 2½-3 foot Mammoth Dahlia and Big Top Hybrids.

For a uniform 2½-foot hedge, consider the 3½-inch fully-doubled flower of the Ruffles zinnia.

New varieties coming on the scene this year are the Small World Deep Cherry that exhibits extra large flowers on a 16-inch compact plant and starts to bloom when only four inches tall; Dasher Hybrid Scarlet blooms 10 days earlier than other varieties; and Fantastic Light Pink with soft strawberry pink blooms that hold their color in summer heat.

Zinnias will provide you with a solid blanket of color all summer long and look just as beautiful alone in patio flower pots as they do planted en masse.

They are extremely easy to grow, even for the most novice of gardeners. To get the earliest of blooms, start indoors six to eight weeks before the outside planting date. Be sure to use sterilized potting soil to avoid the risk of damp-ff or other fungus diseases.

Plant, using shallow containers, and cover seeds two to three times their thickness. Keep surface moist at all times during the germination period, which is only five days, and then transplant into individual containers when they have two to four true leaves.

Don't forget to lightly fertilize during this growing period, as this will help to promote strong and vigorous growth. Keep in your sunniest window or under fluorescent lights until almost ready for outside planting, and then gradually harden them off to outside temperatures.

You will be amply rewarded for your efforts with brilliant color outside and in arrangements inside. An excellent variety of zinnia seeds is available from Park Seed Company and W. Atlee Burpee Company.

Don't overwater lawn

When the grass doesn't "bounce" or it's turning bluish-green, it's lawn-watering time.

In times past, we would set the sprinkler and let it run because water was cheap and plentiful.

Now, water is a precious commodity and even where there's plenty of it, it's becoming expensive. Those are good reasons to conserve water, and there's one more — overwatering can invite fungus and rot into your beautiful lawn.

Of course, you don't intend to overwater, but you do. You set the sprinkler and forget it. Then, hours later, you find puddles in the lawn. Or, you water in the early morning to avoid excessive evaporation, but everyone in the family must go to work. Who's going to turn off the sprinkler?

Now there's a solution to these problems. A lawn sprinkler called Time-A-Matic shuts off automatically when the correct amount of water is delivered.

How you set it depends on the kind of soil you have. Clay soil needs more water because it is more dense and water penetrates slowly. Sandy soil needs less water because it is porous.

If you want to water a lawn with heavy clay content in the soil, you'll set the Time-A-Matic to deliver one-half inch of water. It will penetrate six inches to reach the roots. If your soil is sandy, set the sprinkler for only one-quarter inch of water.

Plant a living bouquet this year

The Victorians, bless them, were lavish with flowers.

They planted large formal bedding gardens for viewing and for cutting, grew quantities of flowers which they arranged in huge bouquets of many varieties, all tumbled together in artful disarray.

Small wonder then, that many gardeners are copying the Victorians by planting flower baskets with living plants, a container gardening revolution that mixes many plants in one planting container for a full summer of floral abundance.

Flowers of different shapes, sizes and forms are needed. Choose some plants that grow tall, surrounded by less stately plants, filled out with some varieties to tumble over the side of the hanging basket or planting container. Flowers growing like this create their own sense of compatibility and usually grow well together.

Leaf textures and colors can also be important. There's the silver-white foliage of dusty miller cut into intricate patterns, the feathery threads of lotus vine floating downward from the mass above.

Leaf colors can be deep greens and chartreuse or the widely varied foliage of coleus. The "Wizard" series from Pan-American Seed Company is a good example. Coleus also provides solid leaves, round leaves and long strap-shaped leaves, many deeply notched and cut.

The Victorian bouquet works well in hanging baskets but grow varieties that spill downward over the container's edge. Because they're seen at eyelevel or from below, they should look good from all angles when grown out.

Planting tubs, half-barrels and rectangular redwood planters are good planting containers but let your imagination go. You can plant any container that includes plenty of soil volume for growth and still combines eye appeal. Since deck and patio planters are viewed at ground level or from above, you can combine flowers for height, spread and sprawl. The only reservation is to plant flowers that don't need staking. The beauty of these container plantings is in the way they grow together, informally blending with each other.

Color choices are unlimited but most people prefer the compatibility of flowers within the same color range. One example is shades of purple, lavender, blue, pink and rose tones, perhaps highlighted with white. Or it might well be hot colors, such as "Red Hot Sally," the new salvia from Ball Seed Company, combined with vibrant oranges and crisp yellows.

All-white plantings are stunning when different sizes and shapes of flowers combine with the green of foliage to make these containers truly an eye-catching sight.

An all-American theme might combine red, white and blue flowers, such as "Smash High Red" geraniums from Denholm Seeds, "White Cascade" petunias from Pan-American Seed and blue browallia. The addition of "Showtime" verbena, new this year from Denholm Seeds, gives a wide range

Short on space — try bag garden

Improbable as it may sound, many Americans are starting to garden in bags, plastic bags filled with soil mix.

With millions of acres of vacant land available, this may seem like an extravagance, but it's partly based on a shortage of land where people live.

Gardeners without backyards want to grow things too. Some 39 million American households, over 50 percent, are expected to plant vegetable gardens in 1982. It's only natural that everyone, no matter where he lives, wants his own tomatoes or marigolds, especially if he's moved into an apartment or condominium.

Part of the reason for growing in these new-fangled containers is an appeal to economy, considering inflation, and producing at least a portion of the family's food at home. Much of the appeal is based on fresh flavor, the best there is when it's produced at home.

The flavor and freshness is certainly valid, but very few people would credit container gardening as a way to beat the high price of produce in the summer and is almost sure not to be a way to produce a major harvest for freezing, canning or drying.

Convenience, yes, because the containers allow the garden to come to the gardener, rather than vice versa. Even dedicated gardeners with large plots are growing at least some of their vegetables this way for that very reason. That's why already packaged growing containers such as Jiffy-Mix from Carefree Garden Products have such appeal.

The soil mix, self-contained in a plastic bag, can also be a planter. It goes anywhere.

Planted all by itself, it becomes a flower garden that can be fully covered with blossoms from spring until fall. Portable too, it can follow the sun. It can be moved to deck or patio for its color to be shown off at parties or enjoyed as the sun goes down.

Jiffy-Mix comes in three different sizes, containing four quarts, eight quarts or 16 quarts of lightweight soil mix. Even the largest size, planted and fully moistened weighs only about 35 pounds.

The lightweight soil mix is a blend of vermiculite and peat, high in absorption so it soaks up large amounts of water. It also has high air exchange that allows roots to breathe freely.

Widely used in Europe where large numbers of soil bags are used by commercial growers, the idea is only now beginning to catch on here. The successful use by Europeans bodes well for the adoption of the practice here; even more avid gardeners than Americans, a practice adopted there means it can work well here.

Coat of paint will help enliven concrete patio

If you and your family spend a lot of time on your patio, maybe you'd like to make it a more attractive part of your home.

A plain concrete-slab patio is dull and uninteresting. It's easy and inexpensive to make your patio a cohesive extension of your family room or dining room.

Just by painting the concrete and by coordinating the colors of your inside and outside furniture and accessories, you'll make your patio an important part of your home's decor.

The most important part of your patio painting is the preparation of the surface. Concrete must first be clean and free of hardening agents. To remove dirt, grease and oil, scrub the concrete with a strong detergent and hot water solution. Rinse thoroughly with clean water. It's a good idea to leave the surface unpainted for several days after scrubbing and to scrub again if dirt rises to the surface.

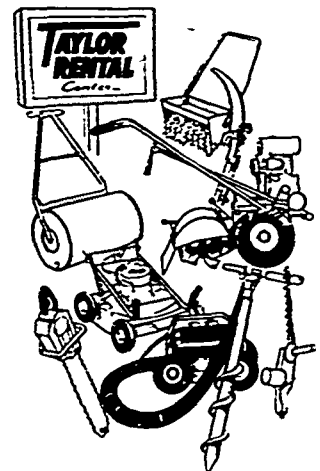

Once the patio is clean, mop on a 10-percent solution of muriatic acid. Allow the solution to remain on the surface for 10 to 15 minutes until all bubbling ceases. This action is neutralizing the alkalinity of the surface and at the same time getting rid of particles from the curing process and opening the pores in the concrete to permit good bonding between the paint and the patio surface.

Ground covers make life easier

The most common groundcover plants are, of course, the grasses but when we use the term, groundcover, it is generally understood to mean a plant that grows densely and keeps a uniform height without mowing.

The one advantage grass plants have over most other groundcovers is the ability to withstand a considerable amount of foot traffic. There are many areas, however, where alternatives to grasses may be more attractive and less trouble to maintain.

Consider such places as densely-shaded areas, poor dry soils, steep slopes which are hard or dangerous to mow and small areas between buildings, walks and fences where it is difficult to mow. Low-growing groundcovers can be used as a living mulch in tree and shrub plantings.

There are hundreds of varieties of plants recommended for use as groundcovers. The best ones are more or less evergreen and not vining plants. These are some I've found useful:

Ajuga—A quickly spreading plant which will grow in almost any soil or light condition; cannot withstand drought in sunny places.

Asarum (Wild Ginger)—Grows well in deep shade.

Cerastium (Snow-in-summer)—Will tolerate poor dry soils and has silver colored foliage. Mowing after flowering improves its looks.

Convallaria (Lily-of-the-valley)—Useful in small shady areas.

Fraises (Strawberries)—Don't expect to get any quality fruit from strawberries grown as groundcover, but they spread rapidly in sun or partial shade.

Geranium (Cranesbill)—There are many varieties of perennial geraniums that do well in sun or partial shade. Small flowers are produced most of the summer.

Lamium—Will grow most anywhere except dry soil. It blooms most of summer with white or purple flowers.

Lysimachia (Moneywort or Creeping Jenny)—Spreads rapidly in any condition and will tolerate a lot of moisture.

Pachysandra—A beautiful plant especially in shade. It spreads underground so must be contained to keep out of adjoining grass.

Phlox subulata (Mountain Phlox)—Plants are completely covered with small flowers in the spring. They do best in a sunny location.

Sedums—Many species of sedums make fairly good groundcover. They look neater if sheared after flowering. Most like sun.

Vinca (Myrtle, Periwinkle)—Will grow in any soil and light conditions. It would be my favorite groundcover if it weren't susceptible to a fungus disease than can ruin its looks in hot weather.

Viola (Violets)—Useful in a shady area. Keep away from lawns where it can become a weed.

The cost of purchasing enough groundcover to serve your purposes may be prohibitive. This can be overcome by a little advanced planning.

Purchase a few plants and provide them with the best possible growing conditions. Enrich the soil with compost and manures before you plant, and they will multiply at an amazing speed. Within a season or two, they can be dug and divided, and you will have enough to plant a large area.

Groundcovers will have to be hand-weeded when first planted, but they will soon spread and smother most weed growth. A light organic mulch around plants helps restrain weed growth until plants fill in.

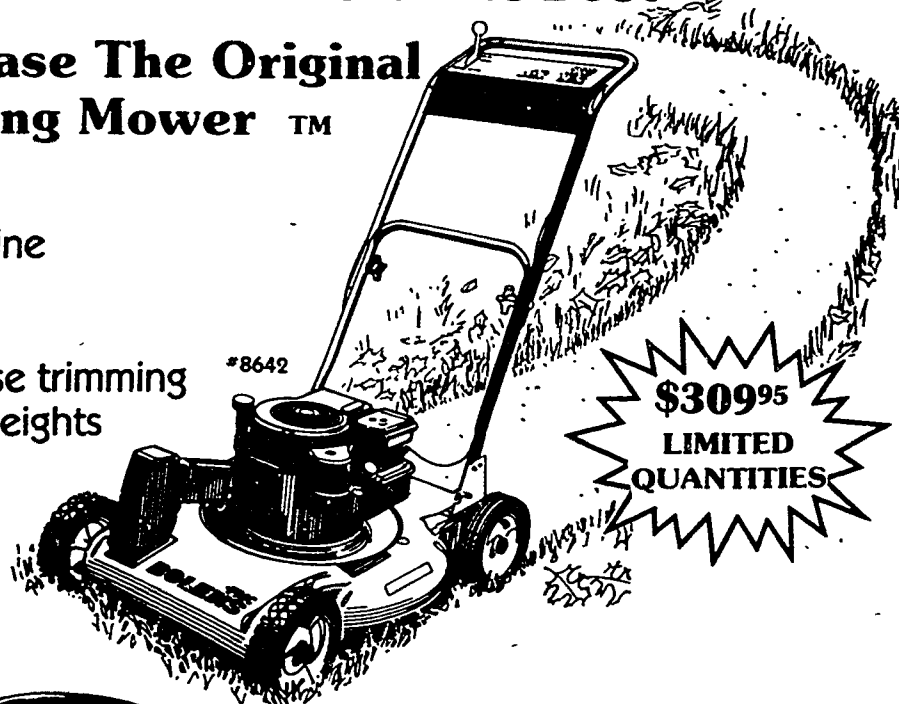

If you have areas of your property that receive very little foot traffic, and you are tired of constant mowing, maybe you should plant other groundcovers instead of grass.

Go Victorian this year, grow a floral bouquet

of colors from white to red to blue with a nice trailing quality.

To grow the bouquets, choose a container with ample volume for supporting the growth of 10-12 plants of four or five varieties at a minimum. To keep the plants growing vigorously, you need to provide plenty of water (containers may need daily watering in hot windy weather) and fertilize.

An easy way to feed is to mix a slow-release fertilizer at the manufacturer's recommended level into the planting mix. Or you can use a soluble fertilizer as you water.

You can use plants you've started from seed or you can buy them already started from a garden center. Have plenty: It's better to overplant than underplant because the secret is in the riotous combination of plants.

Arrange the plants on top of the soil mix in the position you want. Tall ones should be in the center of the container if it will be seen from all sides, at the rear if the tub will back up to a wall.

Plant the medium sized plants outward from the center with the smallest and trailing varieties at the perimeter of the container.

If you buy large plants already in bloom, you can have instant color and at planting get a good feeling for the finished look. But if you start with small plants, you'll slowly watch the bouquet come into flower as first one and then another plant starts to bloom.

Plant at the same level as the plants were growing in their containers.

Good plants to include in your Victorian bouquet might be:

- Pansies: the blue, purple and white shades of the new heat-tolerant "Universal" series.

- Browallia: blue and white.
- Felecia amelloides: known as Blue Marguerite, which has blue flowers with a yellow eye in both trailing and upright forms.

- Verbena: such as the new "Showtime Mix."

- Lobelia: in blue, white or soft red.
- Dianthus: such as "Scarlet Luminette."

- Zinnias: such as the "Pulcino" series.

- Begonias: the new "Jet" series with bronze leaves is a good one.

- Ageratum: such as "Blue Puffs."
- Marigolds: "Encore," "Torch" and "Bonanza Yellow."

- Vinca: "Pink Carousel" with a spreading growth.

- Or snapdragon, torenia, petunia, impatiens, coleus or cinerarias.

- For height, choose from such winning plants as snapdragons, geraniums, Shasta daisies or the taller varieties of African marigolds.

Bag gardens are ideal when space is limited

The smallest bag of Jiffy-Mix holds four quarts of soil, just large enough for two pepper plants or a half-dozen small marigolds. The eight or 16 quart sizes provide enough soil volume with good fertilizing and watering to grow almost any kind of flower or summer vegetable to perfection.

The patio pack can fit into window boxes and can be used in planter boxes and other containers, as well as serving as a self-contained unit.

To plant, simply cut crosses on top of the bag where you want to place plants. Two hours before planting, moisten the soil thoroughly. Punch small holes in the side for drainage. Add fertilizer.

Many gardeners use a slow-release fertilizer such as MagAmp and supplement with a soluble fertilizer according to the manufacturer's recommendations.

Compact plants will grow well with no support but taller plants like some tomatoes will need staking or caging to keep them from sprawling. Some of the compact tomato varieties are especially apt for growing this way.

The new "Explorer" potato, the first potato for home gardeners from true seed, introduced this year by Pan-American Seed Company, grows easily in a container. Plant six plants in two groups of three at each end of the 16-quart size bag of Jiffy-Mix. It's easy to rob the hills of potatoes 80-100 days after planting by gently dislodging the potatoes from the underground stems without disturbing the plant roots.

Water is critical to container growing, particularly with vegetables and flowers with lush foliage whose moisture is high and especially on hot, windy days. Daily or even more frequent watering may be in order on the hottest days of the summer.

It may be possible to use the same bag of soil for two seasons of growth. In case ultraviolet light from the sun causes the plastic to crack after one season, the soil mix is still usable in pots or other containers.

The Plain-Jane bag with no claim to beauty becomes totally covered with foliage in most cases within weeks after planting, forming an invisible container, a veritable mound of flowers and vegetables.
