Mainstreet completion: City success

Observant visitors to downtown Northville the end of December saw yet another renovation in the Mainstreet program: the overhang sign of Manufacturers Bank at 129 East Main has been removed.

One of the beautification goals of the Mainstreet '78 project was to eliminate overhanging signs in favor of more period-type face signs on buildings to complement the 1900-era street lights and benches. Manufacturers' officer in charge James Donnan, Jr., said this week the sign will be replaced with letters on the building.

An agreement had been made with the city, according to city manager Steven Walters, to permit a Manuway sign at the branch drive-in at Dunlap and Hutton in exchange for removing the Main Street sign.

Other signs the city hopes will be replaced eventually with flat ones include those of Northville Drugs and Winners Circle Bar.

In a first-of-the-year assessment of city events, Walters said that, if only measured in time consumed, the completion of Mainstreet '78 had to be the city's major activity in 1982.

It had required supervision by Walters, DPW head Ted Mapes, council and DDA members and the city engineer.

The dedication of the downtown renovation during Michigan Week in May brought state-wide attention to what has been done, Walters noted.

Store personnel, he related, have noted that some customers shopping here come from a fair distance away.

Until cold weather, he added, he has had two-to-three delegations a month visiting the city and asking about the "captured tax" process to finance the project. Visitors, he said, have come from a wide range of cities — from Rochester and Marshall to Howell and Burton.

Walters had gone to Ypsilanti, Dearborn, Wayne and Garden City to present the story of Mainstreet.

As Walters talked about the positive reactions to Mainstreet, it was recalled that in his New Year 1982 "state of the city" conversation he was saying that major improvements like underground lighting and new sewers had been accomplished and that the spring would bring the beautification. It did, it was agreed, with plantings, decorative benches and thousands of tulips in bloom.

Store renovations, such as Spagy's expanding into the Liquor Shoppe and, earlier, Joe's Little Bar being torn down and replaced by Getzie's Pub, have accompanied the Mainstreet project, said Walters.

His concern, however, has been that there has not been the construction of one or two new buildings, as anticipated. $155,000 in taxes is needed for retiring the debt, and currently $140,000 is being raised.

"The amount is not far from making it," Walters noted, emphasizing that the sluggish economy was not counted on originally. The amount is up, he added, from $130,000, and "very possibly in 1983 it will be at the required figure."

In hindsight, he continued, "construction occurred at a time when bid prices were very, very good, with better terms obtained than original estimates. Walters also pointed to the very favorable 6.6 percent interest rate for the bonds as a "plus."

Development of any one of several sites pinpointed for expansion, Walters said, "very likely" would take taxes over the debt amount. Many projects, he added, are partially drawn up and just waiting for the economy to improve and interest rates to drop.

The bowling alley property at Main and Center, he cited, is considered a property with major potential. The bowling alley property also includes a piece of land directly across the street as well as the parking area north to the corner of Main. Walters also pointed out the two houses adjacent to Long's Plumbing and an already-projected row of shops by the unfinished furniture store at Main and Hutton as possibilities. He said Larry Sheehan is "looking at" an addition to the rear of Mainstreet Barber Shop.

As soon as the economy picks up, Walters indicated he expects the Downtown Development Authority to begin holding hearings and planning for expansions to Griswold and along Cady. See related story on outlook for the city in 1983.

More of the same in 1983 for township

Several projects now in progress and a couple of new efforts are among the goals being set by Northville Township officials as they enter 1983, their third year in office.

Completion of the Park Gardens sewer project, progress toward construction of the senior citizens village project, institution of new property valuations for tax purposes, and making full use of the new computer system installed in 1982 are among the carry-over items.

New efforts include expansion of the police department (see related story), probably summer tax collection for the school district and selection of an ambulance provider.

Barely begun at year end were efforts to revamp the township pension fund, examine operations of the recreation department and institute a federally-funded housing rehabilitation program in Park Gardens.

While the sewer project is so far along that Supervisor John MacDonald said, beyond possible expansion, completion is "almost automatic," the other major project — the senior village — will take some doing.

There are signs the project will be moved off dead-center, where it has been stalled for several months, he said, with a January 15 deadline for two proposals from potential contractors. As a member of the Wayne County Economic Development Corporation, which is in charge of the program, MacDonald will have input on any selection.

"Who knows, if the economy starts to rebound we should be able to get something going, presumably within the year," the supervisor said.

Clerk Susan Heintz and treasurer Richard Henningsen said last week they also hope to find a way to replace the vote-counting machines used in the punch-card system. While no regular elections are scheduled in 1983, Heintz said she expects at least one special election in Wayne County, based on county executive William Lucas' public statements regarding a desire to bring

Snow removal trial set for sidewalks

Northville City Council Monday night pleased some Lexington Commons residents as it agreed to remove snow on a trial basis in areas where "dual" sidewalks exist.

Residents whose homes back up to Taft and who have both front and back sidewalks had sought to have the city clear the back walks used by students attending Cooke Junior High.

Lexington Condo owners who also had asked to have adjacent sidewalks on Taft cleared were not happy that the action did not include them. They had argued that the sidewalks did them no good and were not used by residents inasmuch as they were separated from the condos by a berm.

The motion approved clearing of sidewalks on the west side of Taft north property line of the Commons (condo) area to the city limits, on the east side of Taft from Cooke to the city limits and along the west side of Eight Mile from Lexington entrance to the city limit by Moraine school.

The city had asked its attorney for an opinion on whether it could clean sidewalks voluntarily along Taft without being obligated to clean those of all citizens and had his opinion that it could.

Attorney James Kohl in his opinion pointed out that the city would be doing so in the interests of the city, not for the benefit of a private homeowner, since the walks were primarily for students going to school.

Condo resident Pam Joels objected to the fact that the condo owners had asked for the same type of snow removal behind the units north of Eight Mile along Taft and noted the city had done so in the past.

She pointed out that the request for the snow removal along Taft had been for both the condos and the homes. Council members indicated that they were willing to have the city service the dual sidewalks as homeowners derived no benefit from them, but that the condo owners had one walk and this was kept clear by the condo association.

DPW superintendent Ted Mapes indicated that the snow removal could be time consuming for city workers as he is reluctant to use the snow loader in the area.

Council member J. Burton DeRusha asked Mapes if the areas approved for snow removal "are unique to the city" and Mapes replied they were the only ones of which he is aware.

DeRusha and council member G. Dewey Gardner indicated they had met with area residents on Labor Day to resolve the snow removal problem and had considered the situation seriously before voting to begin the removal on a trial basis.

The action followed comments from the audience of about 11 persons attending to hear the discussion.

Gil Nelson, telling council his home backs up to Taft across from Cooke school, stated, "I am eminently qualified therefore to tell you that virtually no one uses the Taft sidewalk — there is the three-foot grilling to go over to get to it."

In seconding DeRusha's motion council member Carolann Ayers noted it is a trial — "and maybe we won't have any snow, anyway."

Bank robbery suspect kills self before arrest

By KEVIN WILSON

Township investigators supplied information that assisted FBI and Detroit police in locating a suspected bank robber who shot a Detroit officer, barricaded himself in a house with a five-year-old and committed suicide when confronted last week, police chief Kenneth Hardesty said.

Eugene Donald (Dutch) Frith, who killed himself in Detroit the morning of December 28 after exchanging gunfire with FBI and Detroit officers attempting to arrest him, was a prime suspect in an August 20 robbery at the Michigan National Bank branch at Haggerty and Five Mile Roads, Hardesty said.

Information gathered by township police was turned over to the FBI as part of what was supposed to be a "collateral investigation" according to Hardesty, who said he was angered by the federal investigators' failure to notify the township when they obtained an arrest warrant and went after Frith.

"As of right now," Hardesty said the morning of December 29, "we still have not heard from the feds. We had to read in the papers that they went after our suspect and that he's dead." More than 24 hours after Frith was declared dead, Hardesty said he had still not received any notice from the FBI.

A phone call notifying township police came the afternoon of December 29 and, Hardesty said Monday, when "(Captain) Phil (Presnell) asked them about a collateral investigation and why we weren't notified, the guy just laughed at him."

Federal officers obtained a warrant for Frith's arrest on the basis of their investigation of a Monday, December 27 armored car robbery in Oakland County. In addition to the local bank and armored car cases, Frith was sought in two other states for bank robbery and had previously been convicted and served time on similar charges.

Hardesty said township police supplied the FBI with evidence identifying Frith as a prime suspect in the August bank theft, gathered through a witness who followed the van used as leaving the scene.

FBI investigators consulted with the township officers "a few days after the incident," Hardesty said, and then "about two or three times since — and not just to pass information but to receive some, too."

Though disturbed by the failure to notify the township of an imminent arrest, Hardesty said, "This is really very common when you're dealing with the feds — I think you'll find a lot of smaller police departments have the same complaint."

Church construction progressing rapidly

Northville's family of churches will gain a new member early this year as completion of a new home for the Metropolitan Seventh Day Adventist congregation is slated for completion in mid-February.

The new building on Haggerty just north of Five Mile is taking shape rapidly under the leadership of Ray Budd, construction supervisor with Denominational Building Services of Lincoln, Nebraska, a firm which acts as the general contractor for all SDA churches nationwide.

Also nearly ready for occupancy are three school buildings for the approximately 25 students now attending classes in space rented from Epiphany Lutheran Church in Livonia. Budd said he believes classes will start in the modular units this week.

Target date for completion of the church building is February 16, and, barring unforeseen delays, church services will begin that month, he said. Landscaping and other exterior chores will remain, but the building proper will be ready for use.

NEWS BRIEFS

A PUBLIC hearing will be held at 8 p.m. next Monday in city council chambers as the final step in the city's sewer evaluation study made by Finkbeiner, Pettis and Strout, Limited, consulting engineers in environmental engineering and sewerage, of Toledo. At last Monday's council meeting, representatives of the firm reported the city will be receiving a 44 percent increase in excess flow charges from the county. Township charges increased 500 percent.

SUMMER TAX collection will be discussed at a meeting at 7:30 p.m. next Wednesday in the conference room at the Board of Education offices at 501 West Main by school officials and representatives of the city and township. City council delegate J. Burton DeRusha said Monday that he hopes taxpayers will attend to give input. By legislative action, schools may collect part or all of the school tax in the summer.

THE WEEK of January 22-28 was proclaimed Junior Achievement of Southeastern Michigan Week Monday by Mayor Paul Vernon with approval of city council in recognition of the program for young people.

BID DEADLINE for Advanced Life Support and Transportation Service (ambulance) for the cities of Farmington, Novi, Northville and the township of Northville is January 27 at the Farmington city clerk's office. Bid applications are available there now. A mandatory pre-bid conference is set for 2 p.m. January 20.

Board examines ordinance

Much interest is being shown in township consideration of an ordinance to ban or regulate trapping within its borders, police chief Kenneth Hardesty said.

The matter will be taken up by the board of trustees at its January 13 meeting, Clerk Susan Heintz said, with the intention of determining whether or not to ask the township attorney to draw up such a law.

Hardesty issued a plea for community input on the issue two weeks ago and said he intends to present the board with a draft ordinance based upon similar ones in other communities. Comments both favoring and opposing a trapping ban have been made, Hardesty and Heintz said.

Action was prompted by complaints from citizens worried about their children playing in areas where animal traps had been set, particularly in the area of Whisper Woods subdivision.

"Permitting (trapping) township-wide made sense before the township grew so much," Heintz said. "Now, there are some fairly densely populated areas where, maybe we ought to consider prohibiting it."

"We did that with firearms hunting when we started getting so many subdivisions," she continued. "At some time, you reach a point when the danger to people living in the area becomes too high."

Restriction of trapping to certain areas is among the options being considered, Heintz and Hardesty said, in recognition of the still-rural character of vast areas in the western half of the township.

Heintz said the intensity of interest was somewhat surprising, but added that similar issues have also drawn many people to township board meetings in the past.

Township officials examine '83 goals

the county road commission under his supervision.

Heintz said the counting machines purchased when the township adopted the punch card ballot system are unreliable and unnecessarily delayed elections of the past two years, particularly the most recent in November, 1982.

"When they fail, we have to hand count the ballots, and that takes a lot of extra time," Heintz said. The extra time translates directly into higher election costs, since election workers are paid by the hour.

"I'm hoping we can come up with a way to have (ballots) counted on our new Nixdorf (computer equipment)," Henningsen said. "That would be cheaper than paying what they want for new counting machines, and would probably be faster, too."

The computer has, in the past two weeks, begun seeing regular service and making full use of the system by year end is among the goals all elected officials interviewed mentioned.

MacDonald, whose role puts him on the water and sewer commission as well, said he hopes progress is made in that department toward "methods of reducing our water rates — though it probably will take more than one year."

Most likely to cut water costs are two potential storage sites that would allow the township to receive water from Detroit during off-peak hours, presumably at a lower price. Stored water would be used during peak daylight hours.

Both potential sites require restorative work before they become useable, and in the end would more likely forestall future increases rather than reducing costs from the present level.

Much depends, said MacDonald, on how the township fares as a member of a 13-community coalition in western Wayne County that is considering establishing itself as a separate unit for administration of federal grant monies.

While the group, led by Livonia Mayor Edward McNamara, is cast opposite new county executive William Lucas, who wishes to retain the present county administration method, MacDonald said he does not think it is an anti-Lucas organization.

"If he could show me where he's convinced Coleman Young to bring Detroit into the county (administration of grant funds)," MacDonald said, "I could see it. But the downriver communities are almost certain to go their own way, and that leaves us (13) and the five communities south of Van Born."

Detroit has never been considered a part of the county for federal grant purposes, instead standing on its own with a separate program.

If a July school tax collection is instituted, it would likely be the first billing to property owners using valuations established in a recent reassessment.

The reassessment, which on average is said to reduce total property valuations, is virtually complete with February notice expected to all those who own property whose valuation has changed as a result.

Decision on the school tax issue is expected within the first two months of the year, and treasurer Henningsen said July collection is virtually certain. Still to be decided are detail items, such as how much the school district is willing to cover costs of city and township and whether the summer bill will be for one-half or all of the school taxes.

On the "minor" front, MacDonald noted a desire to expand parking facilities at township hall, which are often inadequate, particularly when ball games are being played on the grounds when a township meeting or some kind is scheduled.

The supervisor is also keeping in mind the idea of "putting up signs at some of the entrances to the township — something nicer than those little metal things that say 'no dumping.' I don't want to spend too much, and we can't put them at all the entrances, but we could pick out a few." He said he would be looking for "attractive wood signs."

While January may mark the beginning of the calendar year, it is really the calm before the storm for township officials, who are just now entering their budget cycle. Adoption of a budget for the fiscal year beginning April 1 will be based on work being done now.

Already scheduled are three special Saturday budget work sessions beginning in February and extending into March. MacDonald cautioned that budgets are "only for planning purposes," and said reductions in state or federal revenue sharing is "always possible and really changes things around."

More police service is township priority

High among the priorities for Northville Township in 1983 is expansion of police services in accordance with the electorate's wishes as demonstrated when added millage was approved in 1981.

Police chief Kenneth Hardesty said he intends to "go slow" in planning how to expend the added revenue from 0.7 mill of new tax being collected on 1982 bills. The added funds become available with the new fiscal year April 1 and total nearly $130,000.

"I don't want to go ahead and spend the full amount right away, because we won't be able to maintain that level for the five years (the millage is applicable)," he explained. "If I hire all the people I could afford this year, there wouldn't be anything left later to cover rising costs."

In other words, Hardesty is not planning with the idea of constantly increasing property values or constant development that has in the past made each point of millage more valuable.

Clerk Susan Heintz said similar constraints will likely apply township-wide, since the assessors have already reported that the reassessment now in progress is likely to reduce valuations rather than increase them, meaning each mill of tax will be worth fewer dollars collected from 1983 bills (used to fund 1984 operations).

Hardesty said he expects to add one patrol officer in April, another in fall and, if analysis shows it feasible, a third late in 1983. "I don't have all the figures in yet on how that (third new hire) would affect us in 1984, when I'd have all of them collecting a full year's salary."

Each added patrol officer, Hardesty said, costs more than just the additional salary and benefits. Extra patrol cars (plus insurance, maintenance and related costs), office supplies and equipment and other needs must also be accounted for when planning the expansion.

The chief said he intends to make good on the pledge to voters that approval of the millage would mean the presence of two patrol cars on the road around the clock. At present, there are periods when only one car can be fielded because there are not always enough patrol officers to cover for those who are sick or on vacation.

He said he plans to budget more overtime for the officers now on the force, which he said is a more efficient use of money than would be the hiring of added patrolmen who would not always be needed.

The police department budget may not increase by the full $130,000 value of the millage, Hardesty said, explaining that a large portion of the 1982 budget came from the township general fund.

He said he expects there will be some reduction in the percentage of general fund support to the police department, if for no other reason than because costs in other township departments are also rising and there is no new millage to support general operations.

This year's tax collections are to exceed last year's, however, so while a smaller proportion of the general fund may be applied toward the police department, the actual dollar amount will be the same or slightly larger than last year's total.

All discussions of police department budgeting are tenuous at this early date, Hardesty cautioned. The budget will not be adopted until late March, by which time further study may change plans.

Resident sues city over children's deaths

Because the city is among those being sued by Gloria J. Collins as a result of an accident in which two of her children were killed, the firm of Tyler and Canham located in Renaissance Center has been retained in the city's interest.

City manager Steven Walters told city council Monday that this is a firm recommended by city attorney James Kohl for this type of suit. The city's insurance carrier will be paying the firm, he said.

Plaintiffs in the suit, according to a letter to the city from Tyler and Canham, contend that the City of Northville, along with the Oakland County Road Commission, was negligent in the design of Eight Mile Road and Randolph, negligent in the maintenance of Eight Mile Road and Randolph, negligently failing to install adequate traffic control devices at Eight Mile Road and Randolph and Taft, and negligently posting on Eight Mile Road a speed limit which is unsafe at the point where it intersects Randolph and Taft.

In August, 1980, Mrs. Collins' children Marcia, 17, and Brad, 15, were killed when a garbage truck traveling eastbound on Eight Mile broadsided their Granada.

According to police reports and witnesses at the scene at the time of the accident, Marcia Collins, the driver of the car, apparently had looked beyond the truck at the intersection of Eight Mile and Randolph and proceeded into oncoming traffic.

Walters reported that the firm is trying to have the city removed from the suit on the basis that the south side of Eight Mile at Randolph at Taft is owned by Wayne County and the north half of the road is owned by Oakland County with maintenance responsibility shared.

The firm indicated it would like to file a motion indicating the city has no responsibility for maintenance of Eight Mile.

Council agreed and instructed Walters to inform the attorney.

Correction

A page 4-A story in the December 29 issues of The Record was incorrect in stating that a public hearing regarding the Wayne County Solid Waste Plan will be conducted this morning.

Discussion of the plan, which is not yet complete, is slated for the 9:30 a.m. regular session, which is open to the public. The committee drafting the plan will schedule a public hearing after it is completed.

The story also incorrectly implied that there are organized efforts to develop an alternative plan. Similar state-mandated plans drafted in other counties have proven to be controversial and similar debate is expected in Wayne County, but there is no announced, organized group drafting alternative plans.

Promotion announced

Replacement of a police officer who left the force and promotion of another was announced this week by township Chief Kenneth Hardesty.

Hired to replace Kevin Eves, who left police work to enter private enterprise, is William Carlton, a long-time dispatcher with the department, Hardesty said.

"Bill's father and his grandfather were both police officers with the city of Detroit," the chief said. "Both are retired. So he's a third generation police officer."

Patrol officer Martin Patyna was promoted to the rank of sergeant effective January 1, Hardesty said, filling out a need for command officers authorized to make policy decisions. Patyna will continue patrol duties, as do all sergeants in the department, and becomes eligible for managerial training in preparation for likely expansion of the force this year.

City faces another tight budget year

The City of Northville probably will be looking at a "mirror image" of the present fiscal year in July of 1983, city manager Steven Walters said last week when asked what he feels is ahead for the year.

"We'll be striving to survive," he observed as he reviewed cuts in race track returns from the state that caused the city to operate with a budget deficit. Walters foresaw another year of carrying over a $483,000 deficit.

The major city project for the city this year will be installation of the new computer, he said, adding that the goal is to have the computer in full operation by June. The Data General system now is being programmed. It was purchased on a five-year payoff at a cost of $73,000 for hardware and $17,000 for software.

"Hopefully, it will serve the public better also," Walters said as he explained the first computerized water billings will be processed the end of February to go out the first of March and will be more informational. The bills, he explained, like present utility ones, will give comparisons with last year's usage.

Since water bills are sent on alternate months, some customers will receive their first computer-printed ones the first week in April.

Walters expects the payroll will be computer processed in February and notes that, with word processing included, the computer will be able to record contracts, reports and minutes.

Walters cited renovation of the water tower as another major project for 1983 that "seems most pressing."

"Some kind of resolution to water charges is going to have to be found," Walters added, saying he feels the group approach of the suburbs through the courts, and perhaps even through legislation, is the right track.

Expansion of the Downtown Develop-

'While it was the first time in 20 years that this happened, "it is unnerving because, once it's done, it can happen again.'

City Manager Steven Walters on race track return cuts

ment Authority plans could begin during the year, Walters said. Much of the design work for the planned expansion to Griswold and incorporating Cady Street on the south has been done, he noted.

Hearings could be held and the plan amended, he said, and, if the economy picks up, a second phase could be implemented that would extend renovation to Griswold, encouraging development in that area. By widening Cady about 10 feet on each side, Walters explained, there could be more commercial expansion.

He added that there has been discussion previously about "softening the slope" of the hill on Center south of Main. It has not been done to date, he said, as the DDA had wanted to wait until there was development of the bowling alley property on the west side of Center.

"What happens during 1983 at the Ford plant," Walters continued, "is a concern." Reopening the plant, he said, was "not a charity gesture" on the company's part and there "still is a concern to find something" to make the operation profitable. He added that the loss of the valve machinery was a $2 million tax base reduction for the city, making the race track now the largest taxpayer.

He added that preliminary indications from Oakland County are that assessments will be going down several percents, based on sales in the previous 30 months. He assumed a similar situation exists in Wayne County but had had no word.

In an overview, Walters commented, there are some good signs. Changes in the city's union structure last year, he explained, with contract concessions benefit the city. Voting out AFSME (association of Federal, State, Municipal Employees) made possible a local contract with clerical workers. The new contract broadened the rights of supervisors to work, he noted.

When DPW workers rejoined the union, a new contract was negotiated that also is "more flexible," Walters said. The DPW now has eight union employees and a foreman and supervisor. In September, 1981, there were 13 union members. Three were released when the city went to contractual rubbish collection and two were laid off in budget cutbacks.

"The most important concessions," Walters stressed, "were procedural ones that permit supervisors to work, too."

Essentially, he observed, the department is doing the same amount of work with two fewer employees as it did before the layoffs. He praised the attitude of the employees, pointing out that DPW employees often make their breaks flexible to get work in progress done.

"You look back and see how the (contract) concessions began," he recalled, "as it was easier to give a holiday than have a disruption."

Walters said the concessions "never could have happened" had the economy not gone bad. "Had the federal government funded with the old programs, the city would never have had this force. With CETA jobs, it would have been business as usual."

The budget uncertainty for the city has been caused by the state, seeking funds itself, not complying with the statute in returning track funds.

"While it was the first time in 20 years that this happened," Walters commented, "it is unnerving because, once it's done, it can happen again."

The current budget was drawn up, he said, to pay back substantially $317,000. Without the cuts in track returns, it would have done so, said Walters.

By statute, cities with race tracks in their boundaries receive back 20 percent of the six percent of the betting that goes to the state. In return the cities are responsible for police and fire protection for the tracks. When the city received $483,000 instead of an anticipated $825,000 or $850,000 the budget had to carry over the deficit.

Hopefully, said Walters, the "state will stop dipping into the race track funds and honor its commitment."

He said Northville's new representative Gerald Law had been in a couple of times since the election and seems aware of the impact on the city. With former representative Jack Kirksey active on behalf of race track cities (he still represents Livonia), Walters said he was hopeful.

He added, however, that "Blanchard has the ability to come in and make more drastic changes."

City planner approves use

Northville's city planning consultant Ronald Nino in a report to be studied by the planning commission last night presented an opinion in favor of allowing residential units above professional office space (PBO district).

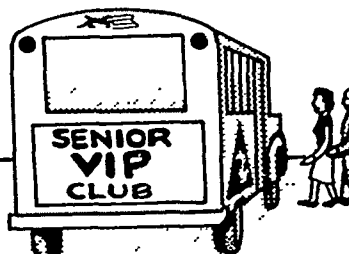

"Several noted planning authorities encourage multi-use buildings. They say this avoids the problem of absence of activity in the evenings around commercial structures," he stated, noting that residential use can be a deterrent to criminal activity.

Nino added that residential units in conjunction with commercial uses also are considered to enhance the market base of the commercial uses.

"The only significant problem," he noted, "would appear to be one of providing a suitable environment for people to live in, which in my opinion would suggest the provision of outside leisure space; if there are children (there should be) some play space, and assurance that the area will not be too noisy for appropriate living conditions."

Proposed zoning text amendments were to be discussed at the meeting and an election of officers held.

Six nominated for Citizen of Year title

Judges for the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce Citizen of the Year Award were to meet yesterday to select from among six nominations for the honor.

Chamber president Betty Allen, G. Dewey Gardner and Jack Hoffman, last year's recipient of the award, are judging.

Traditionally, the name of the reci-ipient is kept a secret until the presentation at the annual chamber of commerce dinner. This year it is set for Saturday, January 22, at the Sheraton Oaks in Novi.

Deadline for nominating a candidate for the award was December 31.

To be nominated a candidate must be a resident of either the city or township, have participated in civic, professional, church or city or township organizations. The person or group making the nomination states why the candidate would be worthy of receiving the award.

Begun in 1976, the first Citizen of the Year Award went to Jan Reef, owner of Reef Manufacturing and an active contributor and worker at Schoolcraft College, First Presbyterian Church and civic causes.

A.M. Allen, owner of Allen Monuments and long-time mayor of the city, was the 1977 choice. The late John Steimel, who was postmaster at the time of his death, was the 1978 recipient. He was active in Boys State, legion activities and work with young people.

Essie Nirider, former executive director of the chamber, was the 1979 Citizen of the Year. He has since retired, and Kay Keegan is executive director.

In 1980, Philip Ogilvie, who was village and then city attorney until last year, was honored for his activities on behalf of the city and church work.

Chamber president Betty Allen announces that it is not necessary to be a member of the chamber to attend the dinner. Reservations at $20 a person may be made at the chamber office.

Sherry Spaman has been named a director of the chamber to replace Dale Merrifield, who has been transferred. He previously was manager of the Northville branch of Manufacturers bank.

Spaman and Jan Stevenson are co-chairpersons of arrangements for the dinner.

The new slate of officers will be presented to the membership at the annual meeting, and the election and installation are to follow.

Terms of Clancy Ely, Terry Fraser and Merrifield are expiring.

Chamber in new home — without a mortgage

Not many organizations today are able to build and move into a mortgage-free building, but that's what the Northville Chamber of Commerce did in 1982.

The 18-year-old chamber officially occupied the building adjacent to the Northville well on Main in May, celebrating the event with an open house.

The building became a reality under chamber president Betty Allen. After the chamber received a right-of-way lease from the C & O railroad, donations were sought for both labor and materials. Chamber member Paul Folino served as general contractor for the construction.

Total cost of the building was about $12,000, Allen recalled last week, mentioning there were funds "in the bank" when construction began.

Allen added that she would like to have the chamber build up a bank account again.

To date, she said, the chamber is able to meet maintenance expenses through dues and fund-raisers.

One of the most successful fund-raisers, she noted, has been the car plates for front license plate holders inscribed "Northville" and bearing a drawing of the Northville well. They are available at the chamber office or at the business places of some directors for $3.

They sold well for Christmas gifts, Allen reported, and seem to be popular with residents going to Florida for the winter.

Betty Allen's term as president is ending. She indicated that she was not interested in a second term, but said being president had been a personally satisfying experience as her father, Dr. L.W. Snow, had been one of the first directors of the chamber. A resident of the community since 1921, Dr. Snow, who died in 1978 at the age of 82, was honored by the chamber with its community service award in 1976.

First president of the chamber in 1964 was Dempsey Ebert.

Others and the years they served were Nirider, 1965; Bob Weber, 1966; Ebert, 1967; Weber, 1968; Gerald Stone, 1969; Arthur Jahn, 1970, 1971; Glenn Long, 1972; N.C. Schrader, 1973; Les Bowden, 1974; Marge Cinader, 1975; Dick Lyon, 1976; Ann Roy, 1977; Cinader and Roy, 1978; Folino, 1979, 1980.

Among chamber-sponsored events are the farmer's market, annual garage sale, flea markets at Northville Downs parking lot in summer and in the Seven Mile shopping center.

The chamber reported that the response to the indoor flea markets had been exceptionally good in November and December, and that it planned to continue them.

Former resident John Harper dies after Arkansas accident

Former Northville resident John G. Harper died December 8 in Midway, Arkansas, where he and his wife Ruth moved in May, 1981, to establish a museum of collectible plates, bells and paperweights.

Mr. Harper, who was 70, suffered a fatal heart attack just following a three-vehicle collision, Arkansas state police reported.

The accident occurred a mile west of Midway on a state highway. Mr. Harper had left his Chevrolet van which began to roll, according to the reports, and he suffered an apparent heart attack as he ran after it.

Also hospitalized was his wife Ruth and her mother Viola Noble, 89. Mrs.

Harper was treated and released. Mrs. Noble was reported in satisfactory condition.

In addition to his wife, Mr. Harper is survived by his daughter Margo of Wiesbaden, Germany, sons Barton of Monroe, Michigan, and Gary of Northville, and grandson Rodney Harper also of Monroe.

A resident of Northville for about 15 years, Mr. Harper had been employed by Schrader's Furniture store in Northville during the mid- and late 1960s. In the early 1970s he opened a drapery workroom for Ray Interiors of Farmington.

While a resident of Northville he was

Funeral services and burial were in Arkansas.

WILMA SCOTT CLARK

Memorial services were held Monday in Texas for Wilma Scott Clark, a former long-time resident of Northville, who died of a heart attack December 21 at Valley Medical Center in Harlingen, Texas.

Mrs. Clark and her husband George L., who served as Northville Township supervisor from 1959 to 1963, had spent the last 12 winters in Harlingen where they had built a home.

Mrs. Clark was born in Pontiac and was head of the loan department of Community National Bank of Pontiac for 25 years. She was very active in banking and finance work for many years.

After moving to Northville, the Clarks owned and operated Clark Hardware and then a real estate business until their retirement.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Clark leaves a sister Mrs. Jessie Durkee of Clarkston, a brother Collis Scott of Stuart, Florida, and two nieces.

Memorial services were held at Buck Ascraft Funeral Home in Harlingen with burial following there.

The Clarks became permanent residents of Harlingen last October.

LUELLA MAE WILSON

Funeral service for lifetime Northville resident Luella Mae Wilson was held at 1 p.m. December 30 at Casterline Funeral Home. Pastor Richard Denig of Salem Bible Church officiated. Burial was at Glen Eden Memorial Park in Livonia.

A resident of 10489 West Seven Mile, Mrs. Wilson died December 28 at Hendry Convalescent Center in Plymouth after a two-year illness. She was 89.

Born in Frains Lake, September 16, 1893, to Frank and Emma (Minehart) Galpin, she was a homemaker and a member of the Farm Club, Sunshine Club and the Farm Bureau.

She is survived by her husband Ralph and sons Wilford and Willard of Northville.

Other survivors include seven grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

No soft porn for Omnicom

Elizabeth Seeley, general manager for Omnicom cable television, assured city council members Monday that the cable company has no plans right now to add the "soft porn" some cable networks are carrying.

"In 1983," she said, "we have no immediate plans to put on anything like that, but," she observed, "those who are, are doing very well."

Council member J. Burton DeRusha commented that he hopes such programming "never will come here."

"Frankly," Seeley told the council, "we get requests for two things — Escapades (soft porn) and Praise the Lord (religious)."

She noted that the soft porn programming is doing very well in Buffalo.

A joint venture with a security firm to use a channel for home surveillance, she said, is being explored.

A weather channel will be replacing CBS cable, which folded, she said.

Upcoming programs were outlined for council, which was told that Bo Hall of Northville has agreed to do a weekly "Neighbors" show and that township clerk Susan Heintz has suggested programs on how to vote.

Senator R. Robert Geake is planning a weekly report, she added.

In the future, she advised, governmental bodies that wish to have their sessions televised. There also will be televised events, such as parades, it was promised.

to decay and gum disease.

Q. I smoke and drink a lot of coffee. What can I do about the resulting stain on my teeth?

A. Smoking, coffee, tea, and some fruits really do have a way of staining the teeth. Luckily the stains are superficial and can be removed. Tooth "whiteners" sold over the counter are not really recommended because they are extremely abrasive and can with prolonged use wear down the enamel. The best way to remove stain and brighten your teeth is with a visit to your dentist for a professional cleaning. Besides removing the stain, regular cleaning removes plaque and tartar that can lead

New Seventh Day Adventist Church nearly ready

The membership of about 150 persons formerly met in Detroit, and financing of the new structure is partially funded by the sale of the old building. In the interim, services are conducted a few miles east of the new site—in Livonia on Middlebelt between Five and Six Mile.

Last week Budd, two Denominational Building Service employees and an assortment of local sub-contractors were busily back at work after a Christmas break. By the end of this week, Budd projected all drywall would be hung and painting would be 60 percent complete.

Other than the large chapel, much of the building is nearing completion already last Wednesday, with final touches being applied to plasterboard and the heating plant already installed and operating.

While the above-normal temperatures of December disappointed some by preventing a white Christmas, Budd said he was grateful for the good weather that allowed rapid progress on the church exterior.

Budd, himself an SDA member, said Denominational Building Services has eight churches in progress nationwide. The one being built in Northville is of average size, he said. In just over two years working for the firm, he has supervised or assisted in the construction of churches in Washington (state), Texas, Maryland, New Jersey, Philadelphia and Florida. In 12 years of existence, the firm has constructed 50 churches across the nation.

Ray Budd stands in main chapel of new church where he supervises construction

After completion of the building here, Budd said he is looking forward to what he hopes will be assignment to Boise, Idaho, closer to his Washington home.

With eight building teams concentrating on churches, DBS has the process down to "more or less a system" and Budd said the firm can do the job for 30 to 40 percent less money than would be needed when hiring general contractors at each site.

"We're not contractors, we simply oversee construction for the congregation," he explained. "When I go into a place, I start shopping for what I need until I find the right price."

The firm includes its own architectural and planning office, and while it likes to use "a lot of voluntary labor" through church members, "we don't try to take all the work away from the local people."

In Northville, for instance, Budd has only two DBS workers on site and ran his own crew of carpenters, but much of the work was subcontracted to local persons like mason Athos Valentini, a township resident who said "it's nice to have work so close to home."

At night, the lighted construction site has engendered questions from passers-by, but there should soon be no doubt about what the building is to become. Upon completion, a 20-foot lighted spire will top the structure.

Exterior details include some areas shown as stucco on the plans, and large colored faceted glass windows atop the dome-like central chapel.

Items with a total value placed at more than $500 were reported stolen from a South Rogers residence December 28, city police said.

Residents told police the home was unoccupied from 3:30 p.m. December 27 to 2:35 p.m. December 28, and thieves apparently entered during that period by prying open a rear door with a screwdriver or similar tool.

The home was ransacked, with evidence the culprits had searched every room. Missing were a $100 gold wedding band, two watches, a digital clock, a wide assortment of costume jewelry, $8 in rolled coins, and a $50 round travel case.

Damage to the door was estimated at $25. Police are continuing their investigation.

Several cases of theft from parked cars were reported to city police in the past week. Similar cases were reported in the township (see below).

At one North Ely Drive residence thieves removed $401 worth of items from the interior of a 1970 Ford parked in the driveway between December 31 and January 2. Taken were a $158 floor-mounted AM-FM radio, 8-track tape-player, $63 worth of tapes in an $11 case, a $116 pair of prescription sunglasses, a $27 travel alarm clock, a tire gauge and compass. Also taken was a garage door opener.

Sometime between 7 p.m. New Year's Eve and 3 p.m. January 1, a $100 stereo equalizer-booster unit was stolen from a 1975 Oldsmobile parked in the driveway of a Welch residence.

Nearby on Welch, two unlocked cars parked in a driveway were entered and the contents of their gloveboxes strewn on the front seats. The owner noticed nothing missing from either the 1981 Ford Escort or 1975 Chevy Nova. Both cars were found with drivers' doors ajar January 1.

Also January 1, a Maplewood resident reported two cars, both left unlocked in the driveway, had been entered in a similar manner. Missing was a pair of sunglasses.

The radiator was stolen from a car parked in the lot of a Novi Road apartment complex December 28, city police reported.

The owner told police the car was parked in the apartment complex lot at 7:20 p.m. December 27. Upon returning to the 1977 Chevrolet the next day at 8:30 p.m. the owner discovered the hood raised and the $280 radiator missing.

A Sherrie Lane resident scared off burglars in her home by throwing an alarm clock down the stairs the morning of January 1, according to police reports.

The burglars apparently fled immediately, leaving 22 liquor bottles they had gathered into a tote sack and wastebasket in the kitchen and evidence they had entered several other parts of the house.

Police theorize entry to the home was made when thieves took a garage door opener from an unlocked van in the driveway, used it to open the large garage door and then went into the house from there. Hearing noise downstairs shortly after 4 a.m., the woman threw the alarm clock down and heard the burglars flee hastily.

Burglars who evidently entered through an unlockable glass doorwall ransacked an Allen Drive residence and stole several bicycles, according to police reports.

Although a pipe was inserted in the doorwall track as a lock, the burglars gained entry and vandalized much of the home, smearing sauces on the walls, removing items from refrigerator and freezer and knocking a decorated Christmas tree over, damaging the ornamentation.

Stolen were a jar full of loose coins and three bicycles from the garage. Two of the bicycles, one valued at over $450, were discovered later, damaged, in a ditch beside Novi Road. A $100 ten-speed men's bicycle was not recovered.

Police are still investigating.

Police made several drunk driving arrests during the week between the holidays in both city and township, some involving accidents.

Michael P. McNulty, 22, of Jeffrey was arrested and charged with driving drunk at the scene of a personal injury accident shortly after 2 a.m. Friday, December 31.

According to the police report, McNulty's car left the roadway on North Ely Drive east of Jeffrey, striking a mailbox and a parked car. The driver appeared to be having difficulty breathing when police arrived, and was transported to Providence Hospital by Novi Ambulance.

After treatment, he was returned to the police who charged him with driving while intoxicated.

City police made another drunk driving arrest the evening of December 31, on Sheldon just south of Seven Mile, after observing the driver's behavior within city limits. According to the police report, this driver caused a near-head-on collision by driving on the wrong side of the roadway near the crest of the hill and was carrying a three-month-old and one-year-old in the car, both unrestrained.

... In the Township

A Birmingham man was charged with drunk driving and of leaving the scene of an accident without identifying himself December 30, according to township police reports.

Frederick J. Reno, 35, of Birmingham was arrested at 1:10 a.m. that day just west of Meadowbrook Country Club on Eight Mile, after an accident at Eight Mile and Silver Spring.

According to the police report, Reno was west-bound on Eight Mile Road and turned left at Silver Spring immediately in front of an eastbound car driven by a Livonia man.

The second driver and his passenger told police the light was green for Eight Mile Road traffic when Reno turned his car directly in front of theirs. No one was injured in the collision. Reno's car spun and he allegedly continued driving eastbound on Eight Mile without stopping.

The Livonia driver followed Reno's car until it stopped, with a flat tire, three-quarters of a mile east of the accident scene, according to the report.

When police arrived, they noted an odor of alcohol emanating from the Birmingham man, who told them he'd had five drinks and was headed home. After failing field sobriety tests, and telling

Police Blotter

Drunk drivers arrested

 police he thought he was at Eight Mile and Newburgh Roads, he was arrested and taken to the station where a breathalyzer test showed a blood alcohol level of .20 percent, the arresting officer reported.

Reno was cited for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicants and of failing to stop and identify himself at the scene of a property damage accident.

A Northville woman was charged with drunk driving at the scene of an injury accident December 28, according to police reports.

Phyllis R. Grava of Malvern Court was arrested after the 12:30 p.m. accident on Sheldon Road at a Wayne County Child Development Center driveway.

According to the report, Grava was driving southbound on Sheldon and made a left turn into the drive directly in front of a northbound car driven by a Seven Mile resident, which struck her car broadside despite an evident effort to stop.

Both drivers and Grava's two 11-year-old passengers suffered minor injuries, according to police.

Grava failed field sobriety tests at the accident scene, the arresting officer reported. Because she suffered a mouth injury, a breathalyzer test was not possible, so blood samples were taken at Providence Hospital, where all four injured persons were treated.

Police are still awaiting results of the test. Grava was released on personal bond and a court date set.

Police also arrested a Livonia man December 31 on charges of drunk driving after his car ended up in a ditch on West Main, west of Clement.

The man told police he thought he was on Hines Drive but found himself on a West Main driveway. When he attempted to back out and turn around, his car knocked over two trees and landed in the ditch. When police arrived at about 8:45 p.m. the man was unhurt and said he was sitting in the car waiting for someone to get him. Arrest came after police noticed slurred speech and an open can of beer in the car.

A business dispute ended in a report to police that a $900 cotton candy machine had been stolen. According to police reports, a Five Mile Road resident loaned the machine to another businessman October 13; the second man refused to return it until the owner paid a debt. The owner acknowledged the debt, but said the machine was not an item put up as collateral in any way.

Police were attempting to contact the man holding the machine Monday.

A $300 snowblower was reported stolen from the garage of a Ladywood residence December 30.

The owner told police the snowblower was last seen at 1 a.m. December 30 and was gone five hours later.

The one-year-old machine had been stored in an unlocked garage, according to the police report.

Roughly $200 was reported stolen from a safe at Sheehan's Lounge on Seven Mile over the Christmas weekend, according to township police reports.

According to operators of the lounge, who reported the crime, cash totaling more than $150 was locked away at 11 p.m. Christmas Eve and was not there December 27 at 10:30 a.m. The padlock that secured the cash storage was also missing.

The business was closed all weekend, the owner told police, and only family and employees had keys to gain entry. Police found no signs of forced entry.

Township police filed a second report of tampering with the U.S. mails in as many weeks last week. Tampering with mail is both a state and federal offense.

A Sutters Lane resident reported a letter containing a check which he had placed in his mailbox was missing later when he tried to retrieve it to take to the post office. The postal delivery person had not been to the residence yet.

The week before, police filed a report when a resident found opened letters lying in the street in the same area of the township. The earlier mail was given to the postmaster, who said it would be forwarded to the rightful recipients with a note of explanation.

Police theorized that someone is removing mail from boxes and searching through it for valuables.

Street lights approved

Street lighting for the entrance to the Lexington Condominiums on Eight Mile often is missed at night by those not familiar with the area. They also said residents walking their dogs in the area had nearly been hit by incoming cars.

Cannon pointed out that Lexington Commons south of Eight Mile has the same type entrance and exit design and is equipped with two boulevard lights. He recommended a duplication of that light group.

After receiving a request for lighting at the entrance from condo owners, the city asked for a report from Cannon.

Cannon stated a check of the area showed the request is justified. Residents had said the entrance off the north side of Eight Mile often is missed at night by those not familiar with the area. They also said residents walking their dogs in the area had nearly been hit by incoming cars.

Our Opinions

Evaluation time

Traditionally this is a time of looking forward, re-evaluating our goals and adjusting them or establishing new ones as seems most appropriate.

It is no different for governments, regardless of fiscal years starting in spring, summer or fall, for governments are made up of people who are just as prone to the influence of hanging a new calendar as are the rest of us.

For Northville Township, there is very little in the wind that could be called dramatic, but there are items requiring attention. High atop that list should be aggressive pursuit of a developer for the proposed senior citizens village project.

While it is hoped the complex would be primarily a private enterprise, government interest in seeing it come about should be, and is, high. A development of the size projected could go a long way to insure proper financial support to the school district, county and township without resort to increasing the tax burden on those already living here. Moreover, it would provide some much-needed housing for seniors and jobs for the region.

While all this has been said before, it bears repeating now when priorities are being established in minds, if not on paper.

This is also a good time to review the township's decision of two years ago to adopt four-year terms of office for the board of trustees under a business manager form of government. Under the old system, there would be likely be at least some new faces coming into office now. Since there are not, we hope the board members take full advantage of their experience and the absence of political pressures to continue their two-year effort to put the township house in order.

Steps have been taken that should have a stabilizing effect on township government in the long term. If similar progress can be made in the next two years, the community should be in good shape to face the challenge of the next decade or more, barring the election of near-total incompetents in ensuing years.

While activity has been generally positive, we think the current organizational structure should be examined thoroughly with an eye toward fine-tuning. Acknowledging the problems of understaffing resulting from the tight fiscal situation, township government still is extraordinarily slow at times in getting things completed. While the boom years of the 1970s may never return, population growth in the future will likely increase the load of citizen demands on township government. If not prepared for now, the added load could overwhelm the present system.

We have no specific suggestions in this vein now, but believe as a matter of good government the board would do well to review the mid-term situation now so any potential adjustments could be implemented before the political pressures of 1984 begin to mount.

Tight year ahead

We agree with City Manager Steven Walters that the next fiscal year is not going to be much different from the present for the city. It has no choice but to continue budget-tightening measures to balance the budget in a two-year period after race track slashes. Hopefully, our new legislator Gerald Ford will join with representative Jack Kirksey in trying to avoid further inroads into funds promised — and heretofore always received.

Given the state's depressed economy, however, it is entirely possible there will be future inroads. We agree that the city has little choice in the next budget. It must indicate it expects the returns due from having a race track in its midst. In the future, however, the city should think about going back to its previous method of earmarking the race track returns for public improvements, not for operating funds.

It was with those funds that Griswold was cut through to Seven Mile, that off-street parking was added and improvements made to Bealtown streets near the downs.

On the bright side, we agree that Mainstreet, despite the economy, is a success. The low 6.6 percent interest rate and favorable bids, those in the field say, are likely never to be so low again. The city, indeed, has a downtown in which to take pride. Coming to town is fun — and good business.

Joke's on us

We are well and truly embarrassed to admit it, but must acknowledge that we are not infallible. Our Year In Review section published in the last issue carries a flaw that, in some eyes, may destroy its validity as a historic document to be saved for descendants yet unborn.

In attempting to have a little fun on the "People" pages of that noble effort, we instead found the joke was on us. Township police chief Ken Hardesty was the intended target, as we gave a heretofore unpublished accounting of his slip of the tongue in asking trustees' permission to solicit bids for purchase of a four-wheel-drive vehicle.

While Hardesty may have blushed a little at the thought that posterity will forever know he crossed-up the names of the Chevy Blazer and Ford Bronco, we are now red-faced to admit we can't tell them apart either. It seems we've left future generations with the idea Hardesty bought a Blazer, when the flanks of the big blue off-road machine out behind the station clearly read "Ford Bronco." And after all the attention given Ford Motor Company in these pages in 1982, too. While the slip is inexcusable in such a document-for-the-ages, bear in mind please (particularly you Ford-employed trustees) what old Henry Ford had to say of history.

Editorial opinions of The Record are developed and written by Editor Jean Day and staff members Kevin Wilson, Michele McElmurry and John Myers.

Off the record

By Kevin Wilson

Gathering brings bittersweet memory

New Year's Eve was marked by a bit more looking backward than is usual around the Wilson household, as some of my oldest friends moved back to the area and hosted a celebration that looked more like a 15th junior high class reunion.

That friendships forged that long ago, and all but neglected (except for irregular correspondence) for 10 years, still hold enough interest to attract virtually everyone invited on the busiest party night of the year is ample testimony to the intensity of the adolescent experience, and the persistence of memories from those years.

Our hostess was my first steady girlfriend (I gave her a ring my best friend found in a mud puddle on the school grounds — all the budget of a 14-year-old could handle and still a source of jokes about my Scottish ancestry). Lynn is now married, with two children age four and one. I remember when she "hated" people under age 12 or so and vowed never to bear a "rug rat." She is now a full-time mom and loving it.

She remembers when I thought her love of baseball "stupid," her family's penchant for killing innocent deer every fall disgusting, and a period when I told elaborate lies as truth instead of sitting down at a typewriter and calling them the "next Great American novel."

In the crowd was the girl to whom I gave "toilet water" at her 12th birthday party, and who still recalls the new white purse I besmirched with ballpoint ink while idly doodling in the classroom. We just missed Carol, who dumped me as a steady for reasons she would not reveal until after she was married, thereby leaving me carrying a torch long beyond reason.

Most of us shared a battle with the French language and the junior high teacher thereof, memories of teenage romances and tragic break-ups and all the rest of the great events that seem exceptionally minor in retrospect, despite their often-obvious influences on who and what we have become.

Though we did not speak of it, part of the glue that binds us, beyond those precious tales of adolescence, is the memory of a genuine tragedy — the suicide of one who was of our "gang," yet a little outside. He was the same friend who gave me Lynn's ring (which he had been saving to give to this girl he had his eye on — I didn't know until afterward it was the same girl), introduced me to the musical wonder that was the early Elton John (long since lost to the wastes of commercial pap), taught me of humor's ability to ward off pain (or, perhaps, only to conceal it).

Those who remind me of Doug reminded me, too, that of those present I was most affected by him. Long after his death, his influence on me carried me into this profession. He was the high school newspaper editor, and of those concerned that this lonely child would triumph over the frail appearance and emotional vulnerability that marked him as a teenage outcast, most saw his writing ability as the outlet we hoped would do the job.

It was not to be. It was December of our senior year in high school when we lost him — most of the junior high gang had drifted apart, our differing interests and the still-fresh wounds of the inevitable hurts we inflicted on each other having forced some distance between us. We came together again in the face of what for many of us was the first genuine, adult-scale tragedy faced in the world outside our homes.

My outlet for the pain of loss was to write — it was all I could think of to do. It's taken me 10 years to realize who taught me that writing had soothing powers — the lesson carried me through some rough times, and eventually led me to this space in your newspaper.

Most of us make a lot of mistakes as we grow up; it is how we learn: But Doug made the worst mistake of all — he thought no one would miss him.

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

I'm too tight with my money to be fashionable. Sure, I'd like to dress like those guys in Gentleman's Quarterly, but the fact of the matter is I'm too cheap to spend my money on "the latest fashions."

For example, I still have a sports coat which I bought for $10 from a factory outlet store when I was in college several decades ago. It's still in good shape, thank you. I haven't put on that much weight since college and I'm oblivious to comments about the size of the lapels.

The same is true about my trench coat, another acquisition from that factory outlet store.

At least it was true until recently. In response to complaints from my housemate about the quality of my clothing, I was persuaded to head down to a local men's store recently to buy a new trench coat.

Actually, the incentive for buying a new trench coat was provided by Frank Furillo — Captain Frank Furillo, head honcho of the Hill Street outpost on Hill Street Blues.

Furillo's a semi-hero of mine right now. He always speaks in those slow, measured tones regardless of how much turmoil is going on around him and he always wears that great-looking trench coat. Besides, in addition to being a darn good cop, he also won an Emmy last year. It's not often you see a cop who's also a good actor.

At any rate, it's amazing how much I look like Frank Furillo in my new trench coat, particularly when I speak in those same slow, measured tones. All I need now is Joyce Davenport and the image will be complete.

At least I thought I looked like Frank Furillo until I got my comeuppance recently when I wandered into the management office at Twelve Oaks with my hands thrust in my pockets just like my favorite television precinct captain.

"You probably think I look a lot like Frank Furillo in my new trench coat, don't you?" I asked, noting the look of admiration on the face of the receptionist behind the desk.

Well, no," she finally responded. "I was thinking more along the lines of Columbo."

Over Fidge firing

Road commission fight continues

By GARY CATES

County Executive William Lucas is expected to fight the recent firing of a Wayne County Road Commission employee who refused to join a management union.

Thomas Fidge, 52, of Plymouth Township was fired Thursday after he refused to join a union designed to protect the jobs of top-level road commission personnel and their aides.

The three-member road commission board fired Fidge at the request of the union, according to Lou Sugo, a road commission spokesman and union member.

Fidge, the assistant director of administration for real estate acquisition, was one of two employees who refused to join the 73-member Association of County Road Administrators Local 695. The other person, an administrative secretary, was expected to retire Saturday.

Reportedly, Fidge's initial refusal to join the union centered on his position as the labor contract negotiator for the road commission. Since that time he was transferred to the real estate acquisition office.

When the union was formed, it was reported, Fidge was advised by a Michigan Employment Security Commission referee to not become a member of a bargaining unit.

Reports that Fidge had helped keep Lucas informed about the unionization effort aren't true, according to Bill Johnson, a Lucas spokesman.

Second district GOP meets here

Northville Republicans won't have to travel far to attend the Wayne Second Congressional District Convention for the election of delegates and alternates to the state convention this February. The district GOP will convene January 19 at 8 p.m. in the Northville High School auditorium.

The local convention is called for election of a chairman of the Wayne Second Congressional District Republican Executive Committee, vice-chairman of the committee, secretary of the committee, treasurer of the committee and 15 members of the committee.

Delegates to the spring convention will be those elected at the August, 1982 primary in each precinct, plus the Republican state senators and representatives in the district.

The state GOP convention will be February 19.

"That's a misrepresentation," Johnson said. "We were aware of Mr. Fidge's position, but he didn't keep us informed of the union's activities."

Fidge was given notice on December 16 to join the union or authorize deductions. The notice, from two road commissioners, gave him a December 27 deadline.

"The Road Commission acted in response to the union's request. Fidge had ample time to join and wouldn't. They were following past practices in regards to unions," Sugo said last week.

The union was formed last spring and Fidge could have joined or signed a card for payroll union due deductions since that time, Sugo said.

"In a union city, a union county and even a union state, you join a union," the spokesman said.

However, Lucas is expected to fight the firing and formation of the management union.

"Mr. Fidge has no reason to be concerned," said Johnson.

"There is a question of whether the union itself is legitimate at all. How can he have any concerns about being fired for not joining a union which is illegitimate?" Johnson said. Fidge, who couldn't be reached for comment, has until January 19 to join the union or authorize union deductions from his paycheck.

"He has a several-week period to change his mind, while the paperwork is being processed," Sugo said.

According to Johnson, Lucas plans to take advantage of the time lapse.

Johnson speculated last week that after Lucas took office (January 1), he would appoint three new road commissioners.

The same board that eliminated Fidge won't be sitting by January 19, he said.

However, Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Thomas Roumell will hear arguments January 7 on Lucas' ability to replace road commissioners who are in place.

The arguments are part of a show-cause hearing for a temporary restraining order, granted two weeks ago, prohibiting the road commission from negotiating labor contracts.

While the road commissioners fired Fidge, it isn't expected to fill his vacancy, according to Sugo.

"There was absolutely no mention of replacement," Sugo said.

Skrel returns to Pursell staff as Washington advisor

With the coming of the new year, former state representative Sylvia Skrel returns to the staff of U.S. Congressman Carl Pursell (R-Second District).

Skrel has accepted a position as legislative advisor in Pursell's Washington, D.C. offices. The appointment marks a reunion of sorts. Skrel served a constituent service representative and senior citizen coordinator for Pursell's western Wayne County office from January 1977 to March 1980, when she won a special election to the then-36th State House district.

Skrel went on to win a full term in the House that November, but reappointment placed her in a unfavorable district in 1982, where she nearly won election against heavy odds.

The appointment to Pursell's staff was effective January 1, the day after Skrel's term as representative ended.

"I was looking at many options," she said. "This opportunity seemed the most challenging and exciting."

"I'm very fortunate that Sylvia Skrel has chosen to return to the Congressional staff," Pursell said. "She's a real professional. Her experience in the state legislature adds a new dimension to her abilities, and makes her even more valuable to our Second District constituents. She's well qualified for the expanded responsibility of this new job."

Skrel will be responsible for a variety of special legislative and research projects. Her initial assignment will be to assist Pursell in his role as a leading member of Governor James Blanchard's bipartisan Fiscal Crisis Council.

Pursell is chairman of the expenditures subcommittee, one of only three subcommittees drafting recommendations on Michigan's budget problems. Skrel will draw on her experience in state government to help Pursell (former state senator) seek ways to make further reductions in state spending.

Helping ostomates cope with their lives

BY SHIRLEE IDEN

In the movie "E.T.", the starring character is a cute little guy from out of this world. The ETs you find in hospitals are quite down to earth.

Northville resident Rosemary Van Ingen and her assistant, Barbara Maria, work out of a little space at Providence Hospital called the Stoma Center. They are Enterostomal Therapists (ETs), who deal with patients with a surgically created stoma.

"A stoma is a man-made opening into the body, a new exit point," Van Ingen said. "Individuals who have a stoma have undergone surgery to create an abdominal opening for the involuntary elimination of body wastes."

Ostomy surgeries are colostomies, ileostomies or ileal conduits. They are performed to correct or bypass a disease process and are sometimes temporary, sometimes permanent.

"What we do is help people adjust to their stoma," Van Ingen said. "We help them want to go on living."

Being matter-of-fact about living with a stoma comes naturally to Van Ingen. She's been there and lives it every day of her life.

Born and raised in Wyandotte, she has taught in both Northville and Clarkston and is married to Moraine Elementary School Principal Donald Van Ingen.

"I came down with Krohn's disease. It was 22 years ago, I was 30 years old with two children. My disease stopped me from teaching.

"Thirty is unusually old to be stricken with Krohn's. There's no history of it in my family and also, it's hard to diagnose, that's the kicker of Krohn's."

"They operated on me for acute appendicitis and found a diseased bowel. I've had 13 surgeries since then and ended up with a stoma. It works just fine, but no one taught me how to live with it.

"I sat up for six months in a chair to prevent accidents and retain my dignity."

"Doctors don't know how to manage an ostomy," she said. "They teach you nothing."

"I didn't even know where to buy equipment or what to ask for. That was over 11 years ago, but we've come a long way. I simply became so angry I was determined to do something about it."

Today, Van Ingen is the only enterostomal therapist at Providence Hospital, but with Maria as a full-time assistant, she's running one of the busiest outpatient clinics of any kind. Many major hospitals don't have the services of an enterostomal therapist.

"The profession is really very new and started to get rolling in 1964," Van Ingen got her training at the Roswell Park Memorial Hospital in Buffalo, New York.

"I lived there six weeks in the middle of winter with an open incision in my abdomen. I remember it snowed for 11 days straight."

Van Ingen became involved in her new calling after her own surgery. Even then she was a matter-of-fact person with a talent to speak forthrightly.

"The doctors kept saying 'Rose, talk to this patient for me' and I would. Other doctors heard about this funny lady who talked to people about their ostomies and living with a stoma. I even talked at an ostomates meeting."

"There's such a horrendous need and when I said I want to do this work, I was scooted into the medical director's office here at Providence the next day."

"He shook his head 'yes' all during our meeting and told me Providence would send me for the training."

Since only four ETs are trained at one time, it took a year for Van Ingen to complete her training, but the wait didn't deter her desire to help.

"It's really a one-to-one service we give, and I'm like a doctor on the staff here now. I report to the chief-of-staff and we go out and teach staff."

Cancer patients may have extensive pelvic surgery and be left with an opening for urine and one for stool. But until a few years ago, surgeons might operate without having prepared equipment for the patient's recovery.

"Now doctors contact us ideally before the patient is even hospitalized. I work with them for a day, maybe two or three days. I demonstrate how their bowel or urinary tract will be diverted and clarify what the doctor says."

"You end up being a plumber and a mechanic, but you must have empathy. You're dealing in other people's stool and urine all day long, so you must be motivated. Most people don't even want to talk about it."

"One obstetrician I went to said when he saw my appliance 'Don't take that thing off.' I changed doctors."

Doctors think of this as the worst surgery you can perform, and they aren't good at giving patients a positive approach to life after surgery, Maria said.

"Patients have to live with their stoma and care for it for the rest of their lives. Rosemary and I go right into surgery and mark the abdomen for the stoma site."

"We have to avoid previous scars, stay away from the hipbone, avoid the waistline and bellybutton and be sure the opening is not too low."

"Patients must be able to see their stoma or they can't take care of it and you've created a disability."

Maria, a licensed practical nurse, has always taken care of colostomy patients "because the nurses didn't like to do it," she said.

The ETs at Providence put the appliance on their patients right as the stoma is being constructed. "I've yelled at doctors many times to change something about the stoma during the surgery," Van Ingen said.

"Afterward, the patient has to accept his new self, but not in the hospital, it takes time."

Patients get lifetime support from Van Ingen and Maria, in addition to therapy at the time of surgery, Maria said.

A native Detroit resident who attended the Shapiro School of Nursing, Maria said her relatives don't know what she does. "I've gotten up in the middle of the night when a patient needs me. It is very rewarding."

Van Ingen said, "My husband used to get bent out of shape when I got calls at midnight or early morning, but then his father had surgery and they had to divert bile out of his side."

When the family couldn't properly care for the patient, her husband read with her to come out and help, which she did, demonstrating how to care for the opening and for the surrounding skin.

"My husband had a great realization then about my job. He told me he would never complain again, no matter what. And he never has."

Part of Van Ingen's job is telling people how to have sexual relations after their surgery, she said. "I tell them it's all right to express your love in many ways. My own sex life is far better now than before surgery."

"One 17-year-old ostomate we take care of water skis and attends college," Van Ingen said. "Another young man who had surgery three years ago has a full social life and started a business."

"What's important is to show them there's hope and help them want to live the rest of their lives."

Additional information on all YWCA programs is available by calling 537-8500. Registration hours are between 9 a.m. and 7 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays. Early registration is advisable.

SEMTA services will be retained

The SEMTA board has set aside the proposed service-reduction plan scheduled to take effect January 1.

SEMTA, which serves the suburbs around Detroit, will continue operating all its bus and train services, according to board resolution.

The board also instructed staff to prepare a service plan and revised operating budget for the remainder of the current fiscal year for later board action, general manager Gary Krause said.

Fare increases, which the board approved two weeks ago, went into effect January 1.

The board was able to take this action because SEMTA's operating funds were clarified last week when the Michigan Court of Appeals handed down a favorable decision regarding the challenged taxes ($19 million) which had been held in a escrowed account, and the Michigan Legislature approved the state transportation package.

The vote for a federal gasoline tax increase by the U.S. Senate appears to clear SEMTA's last hurdle, Krause said.

Transportation package hikes car taxes

By WARREN M. HOYT

Just as some people said it would be impossible in a lame-duck legislative session, the finishing touches were put on a transportation package that will raise $575 million over the next three years.

The action was taken during the waning hours of the final days of the 81st legislature.

The additional revenue would be raised through an increase in the gasoline tax and a value registration fee for new car purchases coupled with an increase in the current weight tax on presently registered vehicles.

The gasoline tax provides for two years of gas tax hikes tied to the rise in the federal highway maintenance index.

Increases would be capped at two cents per gallon per year, meaning a maximum gas tax of 15 cents a gallon by 1984 compared to the current state excise tax of 11 cents per gallon.

The gas tax, effective January 1, will itself raise an estimated $373 million over three years.

Passenger vehicle registrations will increase 15 percent on February 1 while commercial vehicles will see an immediate increase of 30 percent as of January 1.

For new vehicles, purchased on or after October 1, 1983, registration would be computed on a value formula.

The tax would be .4 percent on the purchase price of the vehicle with the registration fee being reduced by 10 percent each year for three years.

After the third year, the fee would be frozen at that amount.

As older vehicles are taken out of service, the weight tax would ultimately be phased out, but until then, the weight tax will be indexed to increase in the state personal income until 1985.

The registration adjustment is expected to raise some $193.4 million over the three year period.

To aid public transportation systems, changes were made in the allocation of the auto-related sales tax revenues and the amount going from the highway fund to comprehensive transportation.

Increases of the current 8.3 percent allocation of highway fund money to comprehensive transportation is 10 percent. The increased allocation would raise $232.2 million for comprehensive transportation over three years.

The comprehensive transportation fund would also receive an increased allocation from the auto-related sales tax that goes to the general fund.

Currently, the fund received 27.9 percent of the tax revenue. This would be increased to 53 percent in 1983, 46 percent in 1984, and 57 percent in 1985.

Any loss to the state's general fund as a result of the shift is expected to be replaced by federal funds under a congressional rewrite of the federal gasoline tax package.

The package was drastically reduced from the original recommendation of Governor William Milliken who originally proposed a program that would have raised approximately $2 billion over the same three-year period.

That plan was compromised when it became impossible to gain legislative approval for new taxes on some services and amusements.

The $575 million package will provide immediate money for the state to make necessary road and bridge repair and provide state matching money for federal funds for similar uses and public transportation systems around the state.

WANDA KISH of South Lyon was all smiles as she selected $200 worth of gifts recently at Sentry Drugs in Brookdale Square, South Lyon. Mitchell White, store manager, congratulated Kish and assisted her on the shopping spree. Kish was one of four winners in drawings which included entries from all 15 Sentry stores, White said.

GUARDIAN INDUSTRIES of Novi recently announced its plans to further expand its reflective glass program by installing a new coating production line in Texas.

The new coating line will be housed within the company's existing float glass manufacturing facility at Corsicana, Texas, located about 60 miles south of Dallas. The coater will be a vacuum sputtering design incorporating the latest state-of-the-art technology.

The productive capacity of the new line will be approximately twice that of the company's existing coating facility in Michigan and will broaden the company's line of reflective products domestically to include low emissivity glass. Low emissivity coated glass has energy saving features that are uniquely effective in northern climates due to heat retaining properties.

Work on the project will start immediately with initial production scheduled for September, 1983. Total project cost will be about $10 million.

Guardian Industries is a leading manufacturer and fabricator of flat glass products used in construction and automotive applications. Guardian also has a nationwide network of 12 photo processing facilities, including one on Nine Mile in Novi.

Food prices decrease

Declines in food prices are reported for November on the U.S. Government price index out last week.

'Waiting for the Apples'

Book features young writers

By MICHELE McELMURRY

For Northville poet Kathleen Leo and three other Michigan writers, much of the past six months was spent wading through reams of paper.

The four writers — Leo, Lorene Erickson, Martin Grossman and Will Brenner — currently are putting the finishing touches on a collection of prose and poetry written by Michigan students throughout the last 10 years.

The anthology, entitled "Waiting for the Apples," is the first collection of students' writings compiled in Michigan. A national anthology was written in 1966.

The collection of poetry and prose is a compilation of students' writings in grades K-12 from school districts throughout the state.

The collection, which is being published by Leo's company Sylvan Publishing, will be available sometime late this month with the first edition being sent to the 530 school districts throughout Michigan and to sponsors such as Central Michigan University. A second printing also is scheduled for persons interested in obtaining a copy. Among the more than 100 contributors to the anthology are several Northville students including former Cooke Junior High student Patrick Calhoun. Calhoun's poem, "Build Your Vocabulary," was among the favorites cited by Erickson and Leo.

To build your vocabulary, Follow these rules.

First, Recite the alphabet, Then....

Eat your words.

Slosh them around

In your mouth,

Mixing them slowly.

Don't talk!

Not only is it impolite,

But you will lose your thoughts.

Now swallow the letters.

Don't gulp.

Savor them.

Feel the O

Roll down your throat,

While the X

scratches and pokes.

After Z
Zig-zags its way down,
Swallow twenty six hooks
To help keep the
Letters together

Stand on your head.
Let the words flow
To your brain
Via the Spinal Express,
Wait
Let the words age
And ripen to perfection.
Stand up and rattle your brains,
Plug your ears to help
Keep the words in.

Now sit down
In front of a piece
Of lined paper.
Blink your eyes,
And let the Words
Flow forth and form
Into Your Own
Private Dictionary.

"I think the advantage of 'Waiting for the Apples' is it's so original," observed Erickson, an instructor at Washtenaw Community College and former Livonia Churchill High School teacher.

"It's interesting how frank and open kids are about writing things they really care about," she added. Erickson noted several entries in the anthology deal with pain and adolescence.

Erickson said most of the writings — particularly in grades 9-12 — were gathered from writing competitions and that many selections are prize-winning pieces of poetry and prose. For example, among the selections is a short story which won the National Scholastic Writing Award in 1982.

However, she emphasized that the anthology includes writings at all academic levels from remedial to gifted and talented.

For Erickson and Leo, the project has been a labor of love. The two writers applied for a grant with the Michigan

'Gaslight Memories' will be Woman's Club program

By JEAN DAY

Leon Price will be presiding as new president of Northville Senior Citizens' Club at the first meeting of the new year at 6 p.m. next Tuesday at First Presbyterian Church. He heads a new slate of officers elected at the December 14 meeting. At the December meeting the decision was made to meet only once a month instead of twice. The meeting will be a potluck dinner on the second Tuesday of each month. Other officers are Melvin Mitchell, first vice-president; Robert Walls, second vice-president; Madel Price, secretary; and Frances Collins, treasurer. The club, which is open to city and township residents over 60, was organized in the mid-1960s. It at present has about 190 members. Senior citizens interested in the club are welcome to come to the meeting, Lena Hammond, publicity chairperson, reports.

musical comedy program was selected as light entertainment for the evening.

Glad and Tad Evans returned last weekend after visiting the William Davises at their condominium at Isle of Palms near Charleston, South Carolina. The two couples celebrated New Year's Eve there.

Jamiesons saw Rose Bowl game from 30-yard line

It was a fast trip west for Ed and Barb Jamieson who left December 30 and returned January 2. In spite of the final score, the Jamiesons, who own Travel Plans here, report having a great time. They went with friends from the media — Jim Brandstetter of WWJ-TV, Tom DeLisle of the Detroit News and Tom Ryan of CKLW.

It was not until Christmas Day that Barb Jamieson learned the trip, complete with front row seats for the Rose Bowl parade and 30-yard line ones for the game, was her present from her husband. Everything but the score came up roses.

Country Girls planning March fashion benefit

Members of Country Girls Garden Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association were instructed to come to their first meeting of the year Tuesday bringing "something of interest." The 12:30 p.m. meeting was hosted by Lois Winters at her home on Bristol Court.

Plans were made for the group's one fund-raising event of the year, a fashion show to be held in March. Flo Morris and Judy Montgomery are in charge of arrangements.

Gas lights go on Friday for Woman's Club

One of Northville Woman's Club's most carefully chosen programs of the year is that for Men's Night this coming Friday at 7 p.m. Traditionally, this is the evening members invite their husbands (and friends) for dinner and an evening of entertainment. Planned as a catered event this year, reservations have been at capacity for almost a month — with a waiting list.

The program, "Gaslight Memories," will relive the days of vaudeville and feature the music of such showmen as George M. Cohan.

The presentation is by Crossroads Productions, Ltd., a professional company that has played to more than 26,500 people in the southern Michigan area since incorporation in 1979. Friday's musical revue will cover songs of the late 1800s and early 1900s. Glad Evans, who has been working with program chairman Margie Davis on this year's musical events for the club, will introduce the "Gaslight" cast. She mentions that the honor Kim Gallagher.

Gerald Parrelly of Dearborn was best man.

The handmade silk flowers carried by the bride and maid of honor and worn by other guests was a gift from a friend of the bride.

Following a reception for 60 guests at the bride's parents' home, the couple left for a wedding trip to Chicago.

in one of Erickson's writing classes. She said the poem is among her favorite works and is a good example of the caliber of writing included in the anthology.

You tilted the table to impossible proportions polishing the lush green apples with sunlight you had saved in an empty tube of paint.

Over the French field you brushed your own reality real as the red roofs of l'Estaque solid as Mont Sainte Victoire

You tilted the table And now a century later in an American museum I stand with my mouth open amazed waiting for the apples to roll off the edge

"I think David's going to make a mark as an American writer," Erickson remarked, noting that he won several Hopwood Awards while attending the University of Michigan.

The poem will appear on the back

'It's interesting how frank and open kids are about writing things they really care about.'

The Northville Record

Wednesday, January 5, 1983

This week five years ago, Northville's boys' swim squad under the direction of Coach Ron Meteyer thrashed Walled Lake Western, 110-63.

Meteyer called Tom Cahill, Jamie Pitak and Lauren Demrose's 1-2-5 finish in the 500-yard freestyle, "the most exciting race in the meet."

Gymnasts are 'all-around' balanced

Under the guidance of rookie coach Debbie Heck last year, the Northville girls' gymnastics team enjoyed one of its best seasons ever.

The Mustangs compiled a 7-4 overall mark with a second-place finish in the final Western Six Conference meet. Also, Northville qualified for regionals as a team for the first time in its history. Additionally, the Mustangs sent two gymnasts to the state meet for the first time.

This year, the second-year coach expects even better results from her young, but talented squad.

"I think we're real strong," she boasted.

"We're stronger with the ninth graders on the team. Hopefully, they will make the team stronger," Heck added.

Another reason for the team's greater strength is diversification. The 1983 Northville gymnastics 12-member squad features seven all-around gymnasts. Last year, Heck only had four all-around gymnasts.

Leading the pack of all-around gymnasts is senior Amy Aaron, who last year qualified for the state meet in the vault competition.

"She should be a lot stronger this year. She is working on a new vault move, and a new move on the uneven bars," Heck noted. "They're (moves) more advanced."

Senior Tisha Johnson will be another all-around performer, who is getting stronger in her moves, according to Heck.

The other senior on the squad is Marianne Rothermel, who will compete in the floor exercise and balance beam. Rothermel only competed in the floor exercise last year.

The only two juniors on the squad are Kathy Heitert and Wendy Wobermin, both of whom will be all-around performers. "(Heitert) should be contending for the state meet," Heck predicted.

Two of the three sophomores will be all-around performers, while the other will compete in two of the four events.

Diane Hale and Debbie Banniestraio will be all-around gymnasts, while Mary Beth Morrissey will compete in the floor exercise and balance beam events. Hale also is projected to be a contender for the state meet by Heck.

Freshman Kim Wobermin will be another all-around performer, while freshman Julie Cass will compete in the vault, floor exercise and balance beam. Heck confirmed she will have Cass doing the uneven bars before long to make her an all-around performer.

Both Sandy Lunberg and Kersten Lutz will be competing in the floor exercise and balance beam events.

Heck believes that the team's not being dominated by one class group makes it stronger.

"The ninth graders can possibly be on the team for four years," she noted.

Also, the junior, sophomore and freshmen gymnasts can add or improve their routines as they progress to their senior season, Heck added.

"It's a good team. We'll only lose a couple of gymnasts at a time," Heck declared.

One problem plaguing the Mustangs now is ankle injuries. Heck attributes that to the mat being used in practice. She said she has been trying to get a new regulation mat, but her efforts thus far have been unsuccessful.

There were four injuries in practice one day last week, Heck said, and they all happened on the mat.

However, Heck still foresees good things to come out the team despite battling the injuries.

The Mustangs will be competing in the new Western Lakes Activities Association, and Heck thinks her team has a good shot at winning the divisional title as well as the league crown.

Northville competes in the Western Division with Plymouth Canton, Livonia Churchill, Walled Lake Western and Farmington Harrison.

The Mustangs also went down to the last dual meet in qualifying the squad for regionals a year ago. However, she doesn't think it will take that long this year.

"There shouldn't be a problem," Heck said.

The Mustangs get their first taste of competition tonight when they travel to Coach Debbie Heck (left) lends senior Amy Aaron, a state qualifier in '82, a hand as she kicks up her heels working on her mount in the balance beam. One of seven all-around performers, junior Wendy Wobermin (above) toes the line as she practices her balance beam routine.

Livonia Clarenceville for a non-league meet.

Northville will have had over one month's practice before the meet, and Heck likes the way the team has been pulling together.

"That's hard to do before competition starts," she noted. "Once they start, they will really pull together more."

This week in sports...

The Mustangs roar out of the gate this week as Northville High School's winter sports schedule goes into full swing. Boys' swimming, basketball and wrestling resume play, while volleyball and gymnastics open their seasons.

The Mustang grapplers take their 1-3 dual meet record up against league opponent Livonia Bentley tomorrow night in a 6:30 p.m. match-up at home. Saturday, Northville takes to the mats in the Brighton Invitational beginning at 8 a.m.

Tim Lutes' cagers take to the hardwoods again this Friday in a Western Lakes contest hosted by Walled Lake Western at 6 p.m. The Mustang basketball squad will try to improve on its 2-1 conference record and raise its overall 2-3 record above the 500 mark. Next Tuesday, Northville hosts Redford Union in a non-league match-up at 6 p.m.

The Northville tankers put their 1-0 dual meet record on the line last night against the Brighton Bulldogs in a home swim contest. Results of the meet were unavailable at press time. The swimmers face rival Novi in an away contest next Tuesday at 7 p.m.

The Mustang gymnasts vault into action this evening in a dual-meet at Clarenceville High School.

Downs a winner in 40th opener

Who knows what kind of New Year's resolution the people attending opening night at Northville Downs were trying to stick to?

Whatever those in attendance promised themselves — it was music to the pocketbook for the Downs as the horses came out of the gate for the 40th season.

The racetrack set opening day records for both attendance and total arimutuel handle, according to publicity director Gordon Waterstone. Some 3,664 people flocked to the Downs and bet $530,086 on Saturday.

A special Rose Bowl promotion contributed to the big attendance along with mild weather, Waterstone added.

"January 1 is a tough night to open because there are so many other things going on," the publicity director explained.

"It helped that it was a Saturday and the promotion — an early bird Rose Bowl promotion — helped to bring in more people."

The Rose Bowl promotion offered people arriving at the track before 5:30 p.m. admission to the track and clubhouse, parking, a program and a buffet dinner for $5.

In addition, Old Man Winter aided the Downs.

"We were lucky to be opening on a Saturday. And we also were lucky to get good weather," Waterstone said. "If it's cold and snowy, people won't come out no matter what type of promotion you offer."

Waterstone said he believed that a sufficient number of those in attendance Saturday were "first timers, who never had been to the track before."

He added, "It's good to get new people coming out to the track because they'll get interested in harness racing and come back again."

Our Lady of Victory preys on rivals for tourney wins

Our Lady of Victory lived up to its namesake turning in winning performances in a holiday tournament.

The Cougars' fifth and sixth grade boys' basketball team captured a second-place trophy in Detroit Catholic Central High School's annual Christmas tournament last week.

OLV downed St. Bernadine's and St. Christopher's on their way to the championship game against Orchard Lake Our Lady of Refuge. But in the finals, the Cougars came from behind to force the title contest into overtime before falling, 36-35. Greg Paler led the Cougars in tournament scoring with 37 points. OLV's Mark Mastroianni tossed in 26 and teammate Steve Pade scored 20. Key defensive performances were turned in by Donnie Thomas and Mastroianni.

OLV's fifth and sixth graders put their 2-1 record on the line against St. Robert Bellarmine Sunday at the Northville Community Center. They are coached by Lee Paler, Cesare Mastroianni and Ron Pade.

Our Lady of Victory's seventh and eighth grade boys' basketball team took home the third-place trophy in its bracket at the Catholic Central tournament by beating Westland St. Bernadine 39-26 last Thursday.

The Cougars opened the tourney by defeating Redford's Our Lady of Loretto, 32-26, but lost to eventual-champions Orchard Lake Our Lady of Refuge 30-29 in a semifinal game.

Coach John Brady's squad was paced by Sean McLaughlin, who was the tournament's high scorer, with 56 points in three games. Tom Orłowski pulled down 34 rebounds during the tourney to lead all players in that department.

Kucher flagged down to referee strike games

By JOHN MYERS

Everytime Bob Kucher settles down in front of the television set on Sunday to watch National Football League contests, he can't help but remember an experience he had in early October.

A physical education teacher at Meads Mill Junior High, Kucher was one of seven officials selected to work two National Football League Players Association All-Star games one weekend during the eight-week strike.

"When I watch the (Los Angeles) Raiders in the Coliseum or the (Washington) Redskins in RFK Stadium in Washington, I think to myself 'I was there,'" Kucher said.

"I can appreciate it more (what the officials do) because I know what it's like to be down on the field."

"It takes on more meaning."

It was not the basic course of events which lead Kucher and his six partners to the NFLPA All-Star games. Kucher works with the other six officials in either Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association or Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference college games. The entire crew also officiates University of Michigan and Eastern Michigan University football scrimmages.

One of his partners was contacted about the possibility of the group doing the games, Kucher said.

Milan Athletic Director Phil Barnes, who has done Big Ten and college football bowl games, was contacted by part-promoter Brigg Owens to see if the crew were interested.

Because the All-Star games were not definite at that point, Kucher said, Barnes only told crew referee John Hibner they may do the games so he could properly prepare for the task.

"The referee is the most important member of the crew," he added.

The plans were finalized by the Friday morning before the Sunday contest in Washington, Kucher explained.

"It was 2 p.m. when the call came and I was out on the football field doing a flag football game for seventh and eighth graders at Meads Mill," he continued.

"I thought it was a joke," Kucher added. "(Dan Kett) asked me 'How would you like to go to Washington?' I said, 'Why would I want to go to Washington?'"

"Then he told me to do the NFLPA All-Star games. I told him 'You have to be kidding,'" Kucher related.

Even after 10 minutes, Kucher still thought it was all a joke because Kett is somewhat of a practical joker. He said he was finally going to take Kett's word, but not before Kett said they would do the game in the Los Angeles Coliseum as well.

"Then, I wasn't really too sure. He told me they (promoters) wanted one set of officials to give the games continuity. I called Hibner and he confirmed the call," he said.

"I went back out on the field and said 'Why me?' Here I am standing in Northville on the Meads Mill field and come Sunday I'll be in RFK Stadium and come Monday I'll be in the LA Coliseum," Kucher added. "It didn't seem possible."

It all was possible as the promoters of the games paid the crew's expenses.

As for the games themselves, Kucher said there was a low-keyed approach with the players who were not really taking the games as seriously as if they were playing for their own teams.

"Everything went fine. I thought the calls I made were pretty clear cut. I didn't find it more difficult than high school or college," he explained.

"The players were joking around a lot, but we tried to keep a professional image," Kucher added. "There were a couple of times the players would be yelling at us (from the sidelines). We'd turn around and they'd be smiling. They thought it was fun," he continued.

'Here I am standing...on the Meads Mill field and come Sunday I'll be in RFK Stadium.'

— Bob Kucher, Meads Mill teacher

He said he found it to be true that most of the players are completely different from what the media makes them out to be on the field.

"I think the media sometimes makes them out to be animals when really they're not. Take Bill Gay (Lions' defenseman) for instance. Off the field, he is a mild-mannered, articulate man," he offered.

All of that travelling in one weekend did not make Kucher tired until he got home the following Tuesday afternoon.

"The adrenalin was flowing," Kucher said. "It was a great experience to get on a plane to go to Washington, then get a new set of clothes and get on another plane to go to Los Angeles the next day," he related. "Everything happened so fast."

The group was able to tour Washington D.C. but there was not time for a tour of Los Angeles.

"We arrived in Los Angeles at noon (Monday) and had to get ready for the game as soon as we got to the hotel because the contest started at 6 p.m. which is 9 p.m. our time."

By Wednesday afternoon, Kucher was back on the field at Novi Junior High for a seventh and eighth grade game. One thing Kucher noticed right away was the size difference in the players he was officiating.

"Everybody was so much smaller," he cracked.

Despite his experience officiating professional players, Kucher admitted he is content to continue to do college and high school games.

However, he said he would listen if the opportunity ever arose for him to become a professional football official.

"The problem, though, is you're not allowed to work high school or college games. I don't know. I'm just content to stay in high school and college officiating," Kucher offered.

THE TRIFLES OF TEMPER

Dr. James Luther

If we thought about it, most of us would be ashamed of the trifles that touch off our tempers. J. Hudson Taylor wrote: "It is not so much the greatness of our troubles, as the smallness of our spirit, which makes us complain."

You don't have to be a theologian to discover that the early Christians were characterized by JOY. They were triumphant even under the toughest of circumstances. When in prison, they sang praises to God!

The disturbing thought in all this is the growing impression that most present-day Christians would cave in if real persecution came to us. If we are edgy and discontented in affluence, what would we be like under oppression? (Read Jeremiah 12:5).

We need to deal with this problem, for we do not know what the future holds. At any rate, there will be great profit for our hearts and homes if we stop EXPLODING to gain our "rights," and start YIELDING to the Holy Spirit in all things. How's your attitude?

Join us next Sunday as we continue our series on the life of David with the message: "Mephibosheth - Kindness for a Cripple."

FIND OUT MORE ABOUT YOURSELF

We all have very special talents. They're called aptitudes and they determine what we can do best. You probably know people who play music without training or who repair an engine without formal education. These people have high aptitudes in areas of music and mechanics. Unfortunately, many people never learn to use their aptitudes. Many never find out where their talents lie.

The Armed Services have a special battery of tests which can determine your aptitude. It's called the Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery — or ASVAB for short. The test is given in many schools — voluntarily and without charge. If you have an opportunity to take the test, it will tell you a lot about your abilities. About your aptitudes in Mechanical, Administrative, General and Electronic areas. The test can tell you if your aptitude qualifies you mentally for Air Force service and an area in which you may want to train and work.

Together with your high school diploma, the test results can mean a brighter future for you as an Air Force specialist — trained and experienced to perform important Air Force skills.

If you haven't taken the test, your high school counselor can tell you about it. Or if you're already out of school, an Air Force recruiter can tell you where you take the test. Do it for your country. Do it for yourself.

The ASVAB test can tell you a lot about yourself — facts you need to know regardless of your plans for the future. Maybe the Air Force could be part of that future. If you qualify.

Sports talk

by Stephen Cvengros

How 'bout them 'Tangs?

Maybe that's a battle cry that should be taken up and sold to the win-starved sports fanatics of suburban Northville.

No need for a promoter. Someone got the colors right along the way — orange, of course. What other color would you expect the Tangs to be?

Speaking of names...I was always suspicious of Our Lady of Victory when I was a sixth grader playing for St. Clement's. Pre-game tradition was to get in a huddle, say a team prayer and yell, "Let's go!" Problem was — I always figured they were at an unfair advantage with Our Lady of Victory on their side.

Not to worry, we finished 33-3 and won a couple of tourneys along the way.

This past weekend has demonstrated to little and big leaguers all around the country that the adage: It's not whether you win or lose etc. is a reality. Take the Detroit Lions (please).

How would the National Football League explain its annual offering of the gods if it ended up with the Lyin's and Breveland Clowns in the Super Bowl? Together, they have a combined record of 8-10 — that's not even good enough to make the top five in the state high school computer football rankings for Class D.

So, it's not whether you play the game, it's how you win or lose. See what I mean?

One more example for the books. In the Sugar Bowl, "them Dawgs" got beat by Paterno's Powerful Pussycats. (Say that fast a couple of times, especially on New Year's Eve). Meanwhile, back at the ranch...the Tangs of Southern Methodist went on to the only undefeated record in the country.

By now, you know the story — Pennsylvania State is the nation's top Dawg.

Maybe it was that the SMU Tangs didn't have an orange. Maybe it was because they were trying to be too much like "America's Team" wearing red, white and blue and all. Who can blame 'em? It just comes with the territory when you're from Dallas.

No. 1?

That's who I'd pick as the best team in the nation — "No one."

Since we haven't been able to lure Mr. T's wife Carol away from a major metropolitan newspaper in suburban Northville (she and her husband E. refuse to call home), I thought it best that I leak some juicy sports gossip — just for the record.

Yes, it's true that there was a battle for the right to be named Time's Machine of the Year. And yes, it's true that Tom Landry and the Dallas Cowboys canceled each other's votes out. Remember, you read it here first.

And finally, Michigan gets my vote for team most likely to...

You remember the Wolverines. Sure, they always get into a bowl game. And sure, they always play their "little cotton pickin' maize and blue hearts out." But when are they going to learn how to perform on game day?

Let's face it. No one can be proud of losing to a bunch of guys in preppy maize and blue. Those aren't even real football colors. Heck, Terry Donahue probably even feeds them quiche on game day for breakfast.

They pass the ball! That's not football. I mean there's just a plethora of things that are unorthodox about the Bruins(?) (What's wrong with the "Bears?"). And the topser is that pretty faced Terry admits right there before God, Metro Goldwyn and everybody that he's trying to run a more exciting football program because he's from tinseltown.

As they say, "When in Rome, do as the Romans."

You know what I say to that?

Lights, camera, action...

Gators competitive

Four of Bill Dicks and Pete Talbot's Northville Gators took to the water at the Grosse Pointe "A" meet December 11-12. In the 10 and under group, Debbie Buell was third in the 100 backstroke (1:21.5) and was fourth in the 100 breaststroke (1:29.2), 50 backstroke (38.0) and 50 breaststroke (40.0). She also swam in the 100 individual medley (1:20.5), the 200 freestyle (2:41.0) and 100 freestyle (1:14.2).

Andy Wayne competed in the 50 butterfly (39.3), the 50 breaststroke (45.2), the 100 freestyle (1:17.3), the 100 individual medley (1:29.2), the 100 breaststroke (1:35.5) and the 200 freestyle (2:52.5).

In the 13-18 year old group, Doug Buell was fourth in the 100 breaststroke (1:10.8) and sixth in the 200 breaststroke (2:36.2). He also swam in the 50 freestyle (25.5), the 100 butterfly (1:03.5) and the 200-yard individual medley (2:20.9). Dave Wayne swam 26.2 in the 50 freestyle.

Sign up dates set et for spring programs

*The first snow has yet to stick, but already plans are under way for spring recreational activities.

According to Northville Recreation Director Edward Kricitz, registration for both junior baseball and junior soccer will take place Saturday, January 29, and Saturday, February 5, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The sign-up will occur at the community building, 303 West Main.

Junior soccer leagues begin at eight and under, and run all the way up to a 19-year-old bracket. The baseball program is for youngsters 18 and under with the youngest age group not yet determined.

Registrants should have a birth certificate with them, if they have not previously played the youth leagues. Parental approval will also be required and an as-yet-undetermined fee will also be mandatory. For more information on the registration, watch for updates in The Record or contact Kricitz at 349-0203.

*Schoolcraft College will conduct winter soccer clinics in January, February and March for all interested players.

The clinics are divided into two sessions. The first session is from 9:30-10:30 a.m. for boys and girls ages 11-13 years old. The second session is from 10:45 a.m. until 12:15 p.m. for boys and girls ages 14 years and older. Clinic dates are January 15-16; February 5, 12 and 26; and March 5 and 12.

There also is a special goalie session which will meet every Thursday beginning tomorrow and running through February 25 from 4:30-5:30 p.m.

The cost for any session is $25. Heading the clinic will be Schoolcraft soccer coach Van Dimitriou and his assistants. For more information, call 591-6400.

*Volunteers are needed to assist in a cross country skiing program for the blind this winter at Glen Oaks Golf Course in Farmington Hills.

Some 30 skiers of at least intermediate ability, age 18 years or older, will be used to assist the blind skiers on a one-to-one basis.

A training session will take place January 8 from 10:45 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. at Glen Oaks on Thirteen Mile between Orchard Lake and Middlebelt in Farmington Hills. The program takes place January 15 and 29 and February 5 at Glen Oaks.

A good home.

The family is more important than the family room.

The love is more important than the loveseat.

At Ethan Allen, we believe that the quality of family life surrounding our furniture is far more important than the furniture itself. For home is the nurturing ground for the wholesome values and attitudes that made our country strong.

It's the stage where the drama of life is played. Where children learn right from wrong. Where old-fashioned ideals like courage and honesty, respect for oneself and others are passed down from one generation to the next.

We are concerned about the erosion of these values that should be taught at home. We see the growing problems of society — broken homes, crime, drugs, and juvenile delinquency — and are shocked by the trauma they inflict on families, especially children.

Our over-burdened schools can no longer solve these problems confronting our society. There is only one place where we can regain the values and integrity lost in these ills. We must turn to the home — our piece of the world — the place where it all begins.

For fifty years, Ethan Allen has been dedicated to helping Americans create beautiful environments for their homes.
But we know it takes more than fine quality furnishings to make a good home.
It takes love, respect and understanding — those who share it together.

A Good Home Starts at Ethan Allen

The advertisements above will appear in many leading magazines. They express our belief in the vital need to reaffirm and reinforce the importance of home for our families.

What Ever Happened To "Home Sweet Home"?

The never-ending stream of news stories about divorce, drugs, rape, juvenile delinquency, murder and muggings has us aroused. You, too, must be deeply concerned about the impact of all this on our children and about the erosion of the wholesome values and attitudes that have made us a great country. For generations, these values and attitudes were learned at home. Old-fashioned ideals like "courage, honesty, respect for hard work, patience, love and regard for family and others" were taught by loving parents and passed down for generations.

Our homes ... the fiber that holds our society together ... are in dire jeopardy because we've become such a fast-moving high-tech society, losing touch with our families and human values. The growing number of broken homes today and the traumatic impact on the children in those homes should shock us into action ... yet we see countless people taking neither the time nor the effort to keep their homes together.

Have You Thought Seriously About The Importance Of Your Home?

Your Home Is Your Nest

— where babies are conceived, diapers changed, scraped knees bandaged and children's tears dried ... where stories are told and histories unfold ... where your young ones thrive on parental love and learn the real values of life ... where love and respect between husband and wife are nurtured.

Your Home Is A Classroom

— where you must show your children the ways of the world and teach them right from wrong, because our over-burdened schools can no longer do it ... where they learn the old-fashioned virtues of beauty, truth and cleanliness.

Your Home Is Your Piece Of The World

— the most important investment you'll ever make in your life ... one that says "this is ours" while it provides the warm inspiring environment you want for your loved ones.

Your Home Is A Retreat

— from the elements, the frustrations of daily life ... where you can shut out the world and its traumas. It's a haven your children can run to, not run away from ... where worries are calmed and weary hearts and minds renew their strength and courage.

Your Home Is A Stage

— where the drama of your life is played ... where a warm environment and beautiful furnishings can provide a rich fulfilling setting, but the true story comes from the love and inner spirit of you and your family.

For 50 years Ethan Allen has helped Americans create beautiful homes. But we know it takes more than fine quality, beautiful furnishings to make a good home. It takes the love, respect and understanding that can only come from the people who share it together.

CLASSIC ELEGANCE ... 18TH CENTURY DESIGNS ... GEORGIAN COURT

Back in the 18th Century, master cabinetmakers like Chippendale, Hepplewhite and Duncan Phyfe were creating the furniture destined to become today's cherished antiques. Then, as now, it was painstaking attention to detail that separated the good from the great in creating exquisite home furnishings. Here, Ethan Allen's Georgian Court collection, expressed in the finest solid Cherry and selected veneers, recalls these timeless furniture designs.

All drapery fabrics, made-to-measure draperies, custom bedspreads, decorative pillows, oriental design rugs, broadloom carpets, area rugs, lamps and decorative accessories illustrated are from the Ethan Allen collection.

YOUR HOME With Ethan Allen

COUNTRY CRAFTSMAN TOMORROW'S ANTIQUES, ON SALE TODAY!

Life for America's early settlers was not easy. Their tireless labor carved a proud young nation out of wilderness. And their simple homes and furnishings were often their most important possessions. Ethan Allen's Country Craftsman collection recalls this heritage of dedication and pride and pays tribute to the craftsmanship of the rural cabinetmaker's art. Handsomely expressed in solid Pine and matching veneers, the furnishings shown here recreate the same graceful proportions and authentic details found in original country American antiques. And the deep warm finish harkens back a time when daily life brought to furniture a hand-rubbed softness and rich patina. Come in during our Winter Sale for a great way to bring a touch of American history right into your home.

This Country Craftsman dining room has all the quiet charm of rural colonial life. From the classic buffet and china hutch to the chaste and practical extension table. Adaptations of historic Tavern chairs add homespun warmth to this inviting room.
