School board approves bond application

By MICHELE McELMURRY

Northville Public Schools system is one step closer to holding its October 3 bond issue election for renovation of Northville High School following the board of education's unanimous approval Monday to adopt a preliminary application for bonds.

The preliminary application, reviewed July 29 by Richard Kelly of the School Bond Loan Section of the Michigan Department of Education. is expected to be recommended to State School Superintendent Phillip Runkel for his approval sometime this week.

School Superintendent George Bell said Tuesday that the application already is in the mail and that the administration is hoping for Runkel's decision sometime before August 22.

Upon Bell's recommendation, special call meeting of the board was approved for 7:30 p.m. August 22.

Should Runkel approve the district's request for qualification of $7.7 million in bonds, the school board will need to adopt a bond election resolution at its August 22 special meeting.

The board of education agreed at its July 25 study session to place the bond issue proposal on the ballot in early Oc-election and is expected to request approval for that election date from the county clerk — pending Runkel's approval of the district's bond applica-

Opinion asked on track funds

By KEVIN WILSON

Restoration of parimutuel tax sharing payments to the city is unlikely in the near future, state representative Gerald Law told city council last week, despite a recent request for a state attorney general opinion regarding the legality of reducing the payments as has been done for three years.

Instead, Law said, the $500,100 appropriation made this year may be seen as the maximum for at least the next few years. "I wouldn't count on returning to the $800,000 level in the near future," he said. "In fact, we may have to fight to keep from getting cut fur-

Law described legislative debate surrounding the payments while reporting he June 29 request by state representative: Wilfred Webb, (D-Hazel Park) that the attorney general's office render an opinion on the legality of the recent cuts.

Webb's request notes Public Act 168 of 1982 appears to require that 20 percent of the parimutuel tax receipts be placed not in the general fund, but in a fund under the control of the department of agriculture for return to the cities in which tracks are located.

Webb specifically asks if the legislature must appropriate payments annually, despite the presence of a statute setting the level at 20 percent of gross receipts and if the legislature has jurisdiction to reduce the amount (percentage) without amending the act.

Law said he does not expect the opinion to result in a restoration of payments, saying the attorney general has in other opinions stated the view that all state payments must be authorized by legislative appropriation.

It may help clarify the process by which the state has cut payments to cities recently, he said. The decision to request an opinion of the attorney general was agreed to by most legislators representing racetrack cities, Law said, and was routed through Webb "because he's in the right (political) party to get a faster

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following analysis is the first of a two-part series by Kevin Wilson, whose beat includes covering the city council, backgrounding the city's present financial problems that have resulted from reduction in racetrack returns from the state.

By KEVIN WILSON

An examination of city budget documents of the past 10 years shows a heavy reliance upon parimutuel tax receipts to fund both long-term projects and dayreductions in these revenues are largely responsible for the current deficit.

As the city struggles to deal with its deficit, one of the most frequently discussed issues is that of racetrack monies, yet 10 the average citizen the impact of this revenue source on the city is only a vague concept at bes

While the shorthand "racetrack funds" reference may imply something else, the money being discussed is actually the city's share of a state tax on parimutuel betting. The state receives a percentage every dollar bet at the Downs. # She's company commander

By JEAN DAY

"Fantastic" is the term a local U.S. Army spokesperson uses to describe the recognition given Captain Sherrie L. Balko by Secretary of the Army John D. Marsh, Jr. Captain Balko currently is serving as a company commander based near Frankfurt, Germany.
The daughter of the Elmer Balkos of 744 Horton, she has received the First Oak Leaf Cluster Army Commendation Medal for outstanding service as battalion Communications/Electronics staff officer, 81st field artillery (Pershing) in Europe.

She left on an overseas assignment to Neu Ulm, Germany, in July, 1980, and has just signed for another year.

Presently, as commander of a tactical Army Signal Company with 180 service personnel, she is responsible for the management of $7.5 million worth of property and an annual company budget of $225,000.

Her commendation notes that "her services were instrumental in the accomplishment of of numerous difficut missions within the brigade."

It also cites her "marked professionalism and dedication."

The Army calls her "a totally outstanding commander who has handled one of the toughtest line companies with superb results" and notes that she "is an extremely strong commander who leads by example."

Her Oak Leaf Cluster is given, the Army spokesman explained, only to those who have done above and beyond what is expected. He added that it is not given often in peacetime.

More exceptional, perhaps, is the fact that this award has been made to a young woman not yet 30 years old.

When Sherrie Balko was graduated from Northville High School in 1972, her career sights were set on becoming an occupational therapist. However, by her senior year at Eastern Michigan University she had decided she had made a mistake - she did not want to spend her life as a therapist, and on the Saturday of her commencement she went on active duty with the Army reserve. She already had signed with the Signal Corps.

After training at Fort McClellan, Alabama, Fort Benning, Georgia, Fort Bragg, North Carolina and Fort Gordon, Georgia, Balko was sent overseas. Her training by her choice included becoming a paratrooper and a trained computer programmer.

Elementary level enrollments are expected to remain at current levels, while middle school enrollment is expected to drop by 30 percent and high school enrollment by 19 percent.

While the enrollment trend appears grim, educators point out that several factors may change that picture. Based on demographic studies provided by SEMCOG, the population growth potential, primarily in the township, could impact an increased enrollment from

Though local government officials and realtors have projected little increase in new home construction over the next five years, improvement in the economic climate may help spur new development.

The school administration also is looking at the continued growth of its community education program. While K-12 enrollment in Northville Public School has experienced a rapid decline since its peak year in 1975-76, community education enrollment has dramatically increased.

This past year alone, community education enrollment increased more than 300 percent from the previous vear.

To accomodate the continued growth of the program, the board and administration agreed to provide space at the high school for community education classes in the renovation of the facility.

Though a final proposal of the renovated high school project has not yet been reviewed by the board of education, half of the renovation proposed will be new or additional space for the facility. The remainder will be rehabilited.

How city uses racing money

For 24 years, this is precisely what happened, with steady growth in activity at Northville Downs and periodic amendments of the legislation to raise the cap allowing the city to tackle a much wider range of projects than is common for communities of its size without elevating property taxes anywhere near the charter limit of 20 mills.

But now that era may be coming to an end. Itself starved for money, the state is increasingly reluctant to share the wealth generated by the parimutuel tax, despite the costs local communities incur providing police and other services to tracks within their borders.

For the third consecutive year, expectations that $800,000 or more would be channeled into city coffers have proven false. City revenues from this source in the 1983-84 fiscal year have been limited to $500,100 by the state legislature, which set that amount as the appropriation last month. It represents an average of the past two years' payments, or a shortfall of $900,000 in expected revenues over three years.

That the city's deficit is "only" $460,000 is viewed as an accomplishment by officials trying to manage the resulting problems.

With an eye to past uses made of the racetrack funds it is possible to outline the major problems facing the city as it adjusts to what appears to be, at the least, a long-term reduction in revenues.

City budgets show the track revenue as income to its public improvement fund (PIF) and, over the past 10 years, roughly half the money received has gone toward such projects as parking lot acquisition and construction, road improvements and senior citizen housing.

The other half of the parimutuel receipts has been routed into the general fund to pay for police and other services to the track. Until the first year of reductions (1981-82), racetrack revenue paid for between 20 and 25 percent of the city's general fund expenses.

The specific amounts involved vary as the total revenues increase during the period. The decision as to how much of the racetrack money would be allocated to the general fund and how much to the PIF was made annually according to the city's needs at the time.

"Generally, we just looked at what we had done the year before and put enough in (to the general fund) so that we wouldn't have to raise taxes," city manager Steven Walters explained recently. "It wasn't a critical question, really, as long as the money was coming in."

And it was coming in, regularly and in steadily rising amounts. In 1973-74 the city took in $542,122 from the track. By 1976-77 it was up to $679,000, rose to $774,998 in the 1979-80 budget year and hit its peak of $800,000 in the 1980-81

"We always made the comment at budget time that we didn't want to rely too heavily on that money for operating purposes," Walters said. "But we were counting on it. The alternative was raising taxes, and we managed to keep the tax rate down around 10 or 12 mills for a long time. We expected that what the state had done for 24 years it would continue to do."

The proportion sent to the general fund remained relatively steady, ranging between 45 percent and 56 percent of the total received, thereby making up a fairly steady 22-24 percent share of the total general fund.

"What we want to avoid, if possible, is having the racing act revised and amended, or rewritten, because it would probably come through with a lower percentage or a lower cap," Law said. "If we could get the racetrack money earmarked for agriculture, which looks to be a difficult thing to do, e could work out the payments among ourselves. But in the two years before the cuts began, the city took on some hefty expenses that kicked the proportion sent to the general fund up to 60 percent of the racetrack revenues while eliminating the surplus reserve in the PIF and committing itself to debts that would take several years to repay.

Together, these expenses and commitments made it more difficult for the city to accommodate the revenue reductions that began with an executive order by former Governor William Milliken in November of 1981.

In the 1979-80 budget period the general fund received $340,000 from the PIF; the next year the contribution jumped by $190,000 to $530,000 although racetrack revenues rose only $25,000. The 1979-80 year also saw a $115,000 investment in repairs to the city parking deck.

Among the 1981-82 spending increases was the first payment on a fire department ladder truck, which accounted for nearly $50,000 of the contribution from the PIF to the general fund. Without this expense, the proportion would have been about 55 percent of the racetrack revenue. Similar payments on the ladder truck have been required in each of the succeeding years on a five year loan.

> Just when we went to the high dive, they drained the pool.

> > - Steve Walters City manager

Racetrack money also had been committed to pay part of the South Main paving bonds ($20,000 or more annually), continued support of Allen Terrace ($143,000 in 1979-80; $81,577 in 1980-81, much less today), the loan that built the library addition to city hall (over $50,000 annually since 1979) and purchase of a computer system and other equipment.

Audit accounts of city funds show the PIF with a $180,000 asset unavailable to offset the deficit, having been loaned to the Downtown Development Authority. The DDA receipts from captured taxes will not allow repayment for "three, four, maybe five years down the road yet" the city manager said.

These expenses came atop the commitments already made for PIF funds, including the parking deck building authority lease (nearly $60,000 a year) and regularly subsidizing the major and local street funds and financing the beautification commission's small budget.

To accommodate its spending during this period, the city let slide its unwritten policy of maintaining a $130,000 cushion in the PIF to cover the possibility of a shift back to summer racing dates at the Downs, which could have resulted in a one-year drop of revenue. Although not intended for that use, the money would have come in handy when the state began cutting the payments in late 1981.

The expanded reliance on anticipated increases in racetrack revenue left little surplus in the PIF as the city entered the crucial period. "Just when we went to the high dive," Walters said, "they drained the pool."

Next week the results of the cuts and the present budget situation will be examined in this analysis of the city's financial picture.

The Rejected

An old legend from the time of the construction of Solomon's Temple concerns an odd shaped stone sent from the quarries for the building. Since no place could be found for it, they cast it into a valley full of debris. As construction neared completion, word was sent to the quarry foreman to send the corner stone to complete the building for the coming dedication ceremony. When informed it had been sent weeks before, they realized their mistake and laboriously retrieved the stone to place it as the chief ornamentation of the temple.

I do not know if there is truth in the story, but it does illustrate Luke 20:17: "The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner." The Lord Jesus Christ has the chief place in the plan of the ages.

Yet, the world seeks human concord and perfect civilization without Him. Since He has been rejected, the house of civilization will continue to be incomplete. He was rejected and nailed to a cross. Yet, He rose from the grave and now occupies the chief place of worship in heaven. Soon He will return. Until then, what place does He have in your heart?

Township supports sewer system split

Convinced that a super sewer as has been studied to solve area wastewater problems "simply won't happen," Northville township board of trustees voted in support of action to split the Huron Valley Wastewater System at a special meeting last Wednesday.

"Super sewer won't happen as once envisioned," declared Supervisor John E. MacDonald, because "the Mayor of Detroit does not want it and has used as his vehicle the DNR (Department of Natural Resources) to say that the application has defects.

Apparently, MacDonald told the board, different political factions - the mayor's office, the DNR and the governor's office reached a compromise position approving the split system that would put Northville and Canton into the Rouge Valley and Detroit system.

MacDonald said he, business manager David Lelko and engineer Jack McNeely have attended meetings for two months and have studied plans for a Huron Valley system that would extend south to Brownstown instead of connecting with the Detroit system.

At a meeting of 11 Western Wayne communities that afternoon, Mac-Donald said, it had been left up to each community to make its decision whether to adopt a resolution resulting in a split of the Huron Valley system into a North Service Area and a South Service Area or to adopt another resolution endorsing the present plan for a unified system and pursuing legal action to gain funding.

MacDonald pointed out that the DNR had indicated it will not find objections to a split system, reversing an earlier

"We had been led to believe the super sewer was the best system," Mac-Donald recapped at the special session, but, he told board members, it simply isn't going to happen that way - "it's an argument of frustration."

He told the board that the township had two choices - either to enter into a lawsuit against the City of Detroit or to participate in a split system which has a chance of being approved for funding.

Noting that some communities, such as Plymouth township, were reportedly not going to take any action, he said he could not see doing nothing and, therefore, recommended approving the split "which has a chance of being approved for funding."

Wayne County commissioner Mary Dumas, who attended the session, said she has concerns and questioned whether the county has sufficient right of way to build a parallel system to protect against further overflowing of the Rouge River.

The split would result in a parallel

Dumas also noted that the North Arm of a split system was being given sixth priority and said assurances were being sought from the DNR or the EPA

'As a county commissioner," she explained, "I have to look at if it will be cost effective if the southern communities go it alone."

Township trustee James L. Nowka observed that it is a situation of "no sewer, no growth" but noted that there are no assurances with any action open to the township.

Engineer McNeely concurred with MacDonald that the problem is a political one, not an engineering one. "The only thing sure," he told the ty Road arm ever will be certified, saying this arm to serve Novi and Northville Township may not be fundable. It would have to be demonstrated, he said, that taking wastewater to it would eliminate a problem.

Northville years ago had committed to take its sewage through the Detroit system with agreements that capacity would be available. Detroit has maintained it has the capacity.

As the motion was made to endorse the split system, board members voiced concern about how long the 75 pecent federal funding would be available and reiterated they are aware "there are no

School board approves maximum millage levy

Northville Board of Education gave imum 39.9 mills, the board of education its final stamp of approval to the establishment of the 39.9 millage rate for the 1983-84 school year at its regular meeting Monday night.

The 39.9 mills - 32.9 for operatingand 7 for debt retirement - is the maximum authorized rate and one mill more than the district levied during the 1982-83 school year.

The administration had recommended in June that the board levy the maximum authorized millage for the 82-83 school year to help offset a 4.4 percent decrease in the district's State Equalized Valuation

The decline in the district's SEV is a reduction of approximately $439,000. Business and Finance Director John Street told board members that, even by levying the maximum authorized millage, the district still will have $145,000 fewer dollars than in 1982-83.

He attributed the reduction to the decline in property values and the township reassessment.

Despite the approval of the maxwill use approximately $780,000 of the district's present $1.4 million fund equity to balance next year's budget.

The $11.2 million budget approved by the board in June calls for appropria-tions of revenue of $10.4 million, fund equity of $783,000 and expenditures of $11.2 million.

Last year, the board-of education levied one mill less than the maximum authorized millage due to a fund equity of more than $1 million. That reduction amounted to approximately $315,000.

The board opted to use part of its fund equity this year to help balance the budget rather than cut programs. Though the board approved its preliminary budget in June, as required by state law, a final budget will be adopted sometime this fall when staffing and enrollment levels are more

Street told board members that the district did not need to apply factors of the Headlee and truth in taxation reductions this year due to the drop in the State Equalized Valuation.

for city nomination

Eugene 'Bud' Kunz of 875 West Main is the thus far the only declared candidate for city office in this November's elections.

Kunz (whose identity was confused with a Langfield resident named Kunst in last week's edition of The Record) has taken out nominating petitions for the position of mayor. Incumbent mayor Paul Vernon's term expires this year.

City clerk Joan McAllister said no other candidates had yet drawn petitions, as of Monday, for either the mayoral or the two council terms which expire this year. The council seats are occupied by Carolann Ayers and Paul Folino.

Kunz is a 13-year resident of Northville and has been in business 10 years in the city with B.E.M.S., an energy consulting/engineering firm. Although most people know him as "Bud" he said his campaign will be conducted under his legal name of Eugene L. Kunz.

He is a member of the city housing commission and sits on the zoning board of appeals. Kunz said Monday he decided to run for mayor because he is "very happy with the City of Northville" and wishes to be in a more influential position "to assist both residents and businessmen in the community."

Fiddlers, pickers and singers volunteer talents in fund-raising to fight Huntington's Disease

An estimated 1,000 people attended the folk and bluegrass festival last weekend, enjoying "good weather, good music and a good time," according to organizer Tom Rice.

Rice, owner of the Gitfiddler Music Shop, said the turnout was "decent, about the same as last year."

The music festival ran for eight hours both Saturday and Sunday and raised approximately $3,000 for the Huntington's Disease Foundation after covering its costs. Rice said.

Performances of note occurred throughout the event, with the early afternoon Saturday crowd responding to fiddler Gary Ritter and Sunday evening's audience treated to Peter "Mad Cat" Ruth's talents.

In between, the festival benefited from the clear, warm weather that encouraged picnickers to spend a few hours on the grounds of Ford Field, enjoying a variety of musicians on stage.

Automobile show, swap meet bring car lovers to Northville

While monied car collectors were gathering their Cadillacs, Duesenbergs and Packards on the lawn of Meadow Brook Hall last weekend, Northville was playing host to its own antique and special interest car show at the Downs.

While the featured cars here were less prestigous early Fords, Mercurys, Plymouths and Studebakers, their owners were no less proud of their vehicles and perhaps moreso, most of them having done the restoration work themselves in stolen hours spent on cold garage floors.

The show was geared to these dedicated car lovers, most of the Downs parking lot being given over to a swap meet where one might find chrome bits for a 1957 Ford or fenders for a '46 Hud-

Car Club, the annual event drew hundreds of old car collectors from the region to hunt for parts and view the handiwork of the estimated 60 cars on display Sunday morning.

Visitors cast ballots for their favorites in 10 categories, inluding both unmodified and modified models. The latter were primarily "street rods" such as Wendell Profitt's black chopped and channeled '51 Mercury that won the poll in the 1950-60 modified class.

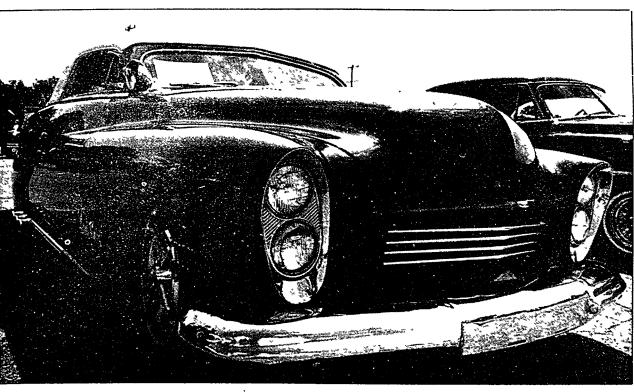

Unmodified cars, such as the 1957 Ford Retractable that took top honors for owner Frank Johnson or the supercharged 1963 Studebaker Avanti that was voted best special interest entry, looked as though they had rolled off assembly lines only yesterday rather than 20 years ago or more.

Doheny office building gets okay

Construction of an office building on the shores of Lake Success got the green light from city officials last week. with the council approving an ordinance revision to allow the structure on Monday night and the planning commission giving its okay to final site plans Tuesday evening.

Planners had recommended rezoning of industrial property owned by Jack Doheny to create an office zone at Griswold near the gravel pit. But council took the alternate route and amended the city zoning ordinance to allow office uses in the industrial zone. Doheny said he wishes to construct a two-story building to house medical or other professional offices. The chosen parcel sits at the shoreline of the gravel pit at a spot frequented by swimmers. who trespass on the property to gain ac-

The owner said he hopes the construction will not only provide an attractive location for offices but discourage the swimmers, who are occasionally injured in the treacherous pit.

The planning commission made its approval of the site plan contingent upon city council instituting a second amendment to the zoning ordinance to require PBO setback and yard requirements be met when an office building is constructed in a PR-1 zone.

The revision approved by council last week allows office uses, but not the incidental uses such as restaurants or shops allowed under PBO, into the the R-1 district...

But a memo from city manager Steven Walters pointed out to council that the approved amendment did not require PBO-type setback and yard requirements.

Thus an office building could have been built in PR-1 under the requirements of that zoning class, which are looser in several respects. Maximum building height for a PBO structure is 30 feet or three stories, but in PR-1 it is 45 feet with no limit on the number of stories. There is a floor area ratio requirement for PBO, none for PR-1; offices require 10 percent of the lot be landscaped, industrial has no such requirement.

Setbacks, which are generally in proportion to building height, are shorter for the lower PBO-type structures. Where a PR-1 development would require 50-feet of front yard, the PBO class needs only 20 feet.

The city council will consider an amendment to the PR-1 zoning requirements that would make the PBO requirements apply to offices built in the industrial zone at next Monday's and-one-half-year-old Bruce Sharp Jr.'s chances for survival without a liver transplant.

Although a liver transplant donor has not yet become available for Brucie, as he is called by family and friends, Novi and surrounding communities have organized a major fund raiser benefit for this weekend so his family will have the money it needs when the time does

Brucie has biliary atresia, a condition that destroys or inhibits the main bile ducts which carry bile from the liver to the instestine. Most children with the condition don't live to see their second

On October 26, Bruce will turn three.

Fund raiser organizers are hoping the West Bloomfield resident's third birthday will be his best.

The event, the largest benefit yet staged for Bruce, will take place this Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Soft Shine Auto Wash and locations around the Novi Road-Grand River Avenue intersection.

In Northville the event is receiving additional publicity and encouragement from Bud Belanger whose firm, Belanger, Incorporated, manufacturers equipment used by Soft Shine Soft Shine manager Rod Ferguson has been the benefit organizer. He recalls that he initially saw a sign for a car wash to aid the youngster and noted and we could do 80 to 90" - so he proceeded to set up the Novi benefit.

The benefit goal this weekend is a whopping $200,000, the estimated amount needed to cover the costs of a liver transplant and post-transplant care at Pittsburgh's Children's Hospital.

"I tell you I'm just thankful everyone is so involved in this. When they told us about the benefit we never thought it would end up like this," said Bruce's father Bruce Sharp Sr. "They told me they'd try and get it all so that when we get a donor we'll be all set to go.

"I'm really surprised at all the effort being put into this benefit. There are a lot of very good people in this world. I thank God for that," he continued. Bruce's father, a native of Walled Lake, added that the family would attend the event each day for a little while at least.

As for Bruce, his father said he has been doing as well as could be expected. "He's had high temperatures for the last couple of weeks - as high as 105 but he's doing all right," Sharp said. "We still haven't had any word from Pittsburgh." "A lot of people are praying for Brucie," said Brother Howard Haar of the Sharp family church, the pentecostal Walled Lake Church of sored by Novi merchants in cooperation with WMJC and WHND and Soft Shine Auto Wash. Some 30,000 $5 donation tickets have been printed for a raffle drawing involving a host of prizes, including a 1983 Chevrolet from Dick Morris in Walled Lake.

Bruce will be on hand during the weekend benefit. He will participate in the raffle ticket drawings on Sunday, August 14, starting at 3 p.m. along with his father, his mother Shirley Sharp and sisters Lisa and Suzanne Sharp.

Nearly all WMJC (95 FM) and WHND (56 AM) public service time will be devoted to promoting the three-day This weekend's benefit is being sponevent which begins at noon Friday.

Highlighting the weekend-long series of events will be live radio broadcasts, hot air balloon rides, personal ap-pearances by the Detroit Tigers, Detroit Red Wings, Detroit Pistons and the USFL champion Michigan Panthers as well as Chuck E. Cheese. Novi merchants are selling $5 raffledonation tickets all this week. The raffle program is being sponsored by the Southfield-Lathrup Optimists' Club backers of the new Novi Optimist club. Raffle tickets also are available from

City benefited from track revenue

Permanent reduction of the revenue traditionally pumped into the city from harness race betting taxes, as representative Gerald Law suggests is possible, would not be the end of the world but would certainly spell the end of a prosperous era for the city and require some adjustments by its residents.

However one may quibble with the specific items, it would be hard to argue that the city has not made good use of the money it received under the 20 percent formula that governed the amount sent back to the city from the track until only two years ago.

The money has touched virtually everything the city has done in the past 20 years — including a great many projects cities of similar size could not have matched without soaking their taxpayers for extra millage. Racing money was a major factor in the city's acquisition and development of municipal parking lots throughout the downtown area. It financed some major road improvement projects including those that rearranged the streets downtown, was routed into park development and even provided seed money for the downtown developments.

Other recent projects that receive or have received considerable funding from this source include the Allen Terrace senior citizen apartments, South Main paving, the purchase and moving of the Kerr House to allow the post office expansion, sidewalk construction and the parking deck.

While city officials have long spoken of "not relying too heavily" on the track money for operating expenses, they have also been fairly consistent in the proportion of general fund revenue derived from the betting taxes. In this way, the city has maintained a year-round police force providing services far beyond what other small cities can offer, for just one example. Some may argue that the current deficit demonstrates an over-reliance on the racetrack funds, but the $460,000 hole the city finds itself in has more to do with taking some risks and getting caught out than in any consistent pattern of squandering money.

With 20-20 hindsight, one might wish the city had not stretched its resources quite so thinly as it did in the 1980-81 fiscal year. Capital expenditures (primarily the purchase of the fire department's ladder truck) pushed the proportion of racetrack money required for the general fund to its highest point in 10 years. At the same time, the city promised citizens half of the South Main paving bonds would be paid from racetrack funds, and let slide its policy of retaining a $130,000 or greater surplus in the public improvement fund.

The latter was meant as a cushion against a return to summer racing dates at the Downs, but would have come in handy when the governor and legislature, in their turns, took to slashing the rebates in order to save the state's own fiscal neck. Together with the $180,000 loaned the DDA (money which could have been obtained by other means or by a minor scaling down of the project) retaining the surplus would have offset most of the deficit.

It is easy to second-guess such decisions, but as city officials have often stated, there was there no reason to believe the end was near. In fact, it appeared the city's revenues from the track would soon be receiving an increase with a boost of the "cap" on returns from $800,000 up to $900,000. It certainly looked as though there was enough coming to handle the expenses and cover the long-term debts entered into in that period. Confident that the state would act as it had for 24 years, the city went out on a limb. Desperately grasping for assistance from its own mess, the state broke that limb off.

If Law is correct in his assessment, the city may never see the $900,000 level. Austerity has a way of focusing attention on expenditures that were perfectly acceptable in more prosperous times and labeling them excessive. As a matter of public policy, it makes sense to argue that the improvements made by the city make for better attendance at the Downs, which in turn boosts state revenues; it's just an argument no one wants to hear while fighting over every dime.

The question is, what can the city do now? If there is no return to the full funding level, how is the deficit eliminated? It appears the city is going to have to bail itself out of this one, though it is hardly to blame for the problem. The long term deficit reduction plan being prepared by city manager Steve Walters is likely to contain a proposal to raise property taxes by some fixed amount for a certain number of years.

City taxpayers could find themselves paying more without seeing any improvement in services. It could go down more easily if the tax is purely temporary to offset the deficit, with a pledge to eliminate it if racetrack funds are restored. Assuming funding does not rise again for some time, city residents will have to learn to expect less of the government. Certainly fewer large projects can be undertaken until the deficit is gone and revenues restored. Service reductions may be inevitable.

Those prospects, and the present difficulties, prompt some to suggest the city may be better off without the racetrack in its midst. Perhaps some day that will be true, but a look around at the city improvements made with the money generated from bettors at the Downs makes it difficult to support at present.

Trials of a fairweather sports fan

At a recent school board session, I overheard a certain administrator relating to board members about attending her first professional baseball game. From the sound of things, I don't think she ranks baseball up there as the greatest of American pastimes.

For starters, the game was well into the first inning when she leaned over and asked her husband when it was going to begin. She said she thought all the running around was warmup. A little later she turned to him and asked when half-time would start.

While I'm sure sports fans are shaking their heads with dismay over such ignorance, I found her story hitting close to home. While I'm not quite so bad as all that, I confess that I have little understanding or interest in RBIs, free throws and first downs.

When it comes to sports, my tastes run more along the lines of equestrian dressage, polo, fencing and sailing - none of which I have the time or money to pursue. As the daughter of a professional golfer, I spent my younger years traipsing around the golf course and have actually developed a sincere liking for that game. Of course that's as a spectator. Playing the game is a completely different matter.

I also confess that I enjoyed football when I was at Michigan State — even though my favorite part of the game was watching the band at half-time. However, the only boxing match I've ever seen was between Rocky Balboa and "Mr. T."

I actually went to a hockey game last year — the first since my dad took my brother and me when we were kids. I admit that it wasn't as bad as I thought - although it was somewhat frustrating. My companion, realizing my limited knowledge, frequently would ask me if I understood what was happening.

"Understand?" I shouted, "How can I understand when I can't even see the puck?

I suppose part of my problem is that I've never had that competitive edge, that burning desire to win a plastic trophy with my name engraved on the bottom. During my school days I excelled in such things as gymnastics and the 100-yard dash. I also spent a decade with my feet crammed in toe shoes - but then ballet is considered an art, not a sport. Tell that to my feet.

To say I don't like sports is too much of a generalizaton. It's team sports that don't appeal to me. The closest I ever came to having "team spirit" was a two-year stint as a cheerleader in high school. During my second year on the squad, the varsity football team won one game all season. It's hard to muster enthusiasm for a bunch of guys who smash their helmets into the side of the bus after every game.

Despite my overall chagrin of the sports world, I have given many sports a try. Unfortunately, a bum shoulder ruined my tennis game and terror has kept me off the racquet ball court. I also am a failed jogger due to cramps which seem to develop after every half mile (of course, that's the same excuse I used to give my junior high swimming teacher).

While I've often thought my disinterest in sports stemmed from a lack of Title IX enforcement when I was a kid and the general rule of thumb that "little girls" were allergic to pigskin, I now realize that's not the reason. Afterall, though I may not have roughed it up on the soccer field, I certainly wasn't a sissy.

I did have other traditionally non-female interests. Just ask my brother. Every Sunday morning we would make a fort out of cushions on the living room sofa and watch "Combat" while eating the marshmallows out of the Lucky Charms and reading "Sergeant Rock" comic books. Now that was a real team effort.

There. I've done it — exercised the power of the press to try to find good homes for five

I know what you're thinking - pretty shady to use my column to unload some kittens. But I really didn't have much choice. The order came directly from my wife.

"If we don't find homes for them soon," she said. "I'm going to get attached to them and not want to let them go."

Actually, they're not our kittens. They just live at our house - in the dog house on the front porch, where they were born. Those of you who have been paying attention may recall that we were adopted last year by a pair of yellow-and-white kittens, which we named Bonnie and Clyde.

Well, Bonnie and Clyde have been regular visitors ever since, showing up nightly for the best food that money can buy. This spring, however, the Golden Boys brought along a friend, who we subsequently named Audrey (in honor of Audrey Hepburn) for her long, thin neck and delicate features.

It didn't take us long to discover that Audrey was "with child," as they say. Or, in her case, "with kitten(s)."

To make a long story short, Audrey had her kittens July 11 (that's 7-11 for those of you who are superstitious). We don't know what time she gave birth, but we do know it was just before or just after battling a skunk on the porch. See, these kittens are courageous as well as lucky.

The skunk odor has gone now and the kittens are just about ready for adoption. They're still a little wobbly in the walking department, but they ought to be ready in a week or so.

Frankly, I suspect my wife would just as soon keep them herself. And, I have to admit that they are cute in addition to being lucky and courageous.

It's just that we're already feeding four cats and five more is a little much. Don't. forget those numbers, folks — 349-1700 or 624-8100. And hurry.

Most parents cannot imagine, especially this far into a summer vacation, why anyone would kidnap a child. especially their own. Yet it does occur, and with increasing frequency.

It is estimated that here in Michigan, each year, between 1,000 and 4,000 children are "kidnapped" by divorced parents who ended up on the short end of a court-ordered child custody decree.

The situation is a traumatic one especially for the youngster.

Yet, until the Legislature took action during this past session, child snatching has not been regarded as a crime in Michigan. But that will change on December 1 of this year.

A new law makes parental kidnapping a crime. It will be a misdemeanor, punishable by up to 45 days in jail and/or a $500 for a kidnapper parent to hold a child within the state. However, if the parent takes the child out of Michigan on an approved visitation, but keeps the youngster more than 24 hours after the expiration of the lawful visitation, the crime becomes a felony punishable by up to one year in jail and/or a $2,000

However, if proof can be given by the parent who took the youngster that the child had been abused or was in threat of immediate harm, then the kidnapping charges would not hold.

It was difficult to vote for a bill that will punish parents, usually the child's father, who most usually commit the child snatching act out of love and loneliness. However, the pain suffered by the other parent and the trauma which the child usually undergoes must be of utmost consideration. And above all, the court's decision in granting custody of the child must be enforced.

The new law will not put an end to all parental child abductions, but it should deter some. And it will certainly provide the law enforcement officials with the necessary tools to retrieve innocent children from parents who decided to thumb their noses at the decision of the

Survey renders upbeat auto industry view

By TIM RICHARD

Auto manufacturers have a more enlightened approach to long-range market changes than their suppliers, according to one industry consultant.

"Manufacturers are planning to take more overt action than parts suppliers," said Peter Van Hull, director of the automotive industry management information consulting practice of Arthur Andersen & Company.

'Manufacturers are very serious about changes for the first time. Suppliers are not so sure. They are in a wait-and-see mode," said Van Hull.

Automakers more optimistic than are parts suppliers

Van Hull recently unveiled a survey of manufacturers and suppliers that generally was more upbeat about the U.S. auto industry's share of the market, prices and quality than 1979 and 1981 surveys. He said the industry expects even greater changes than past surveys indicated.

The new survey — called Delphi III after the ancient Greek oracle - is being sold by Arthur Andersen to industrial customers.

Van Hull tried to avoid criticism of suppliers' attitudes but repeatedly noted differences in their outlooks. Sample findings from the survey:

• Suppliers see less benefit to them from "just-in-time" delivery of parts to manufacturers, in which manufacturers stockpile no more than about one day's supply. Manufacturers predict a 12 percent potential reduction in the cost of a car by 1992 through "just-intime" deliveries. But suppliers see the system as forcing them to be more competitive and a way for manufacturers to push inventory problems back on sup-

• "There is a general understanding of robotics and factory automation by vehicle manufacturers, but little understanding in supplier companies."

 Manufacturers see inventories turning over 20 times a year by 1992, but suppliers see only eight turnovers a amount of working capital tied up in · Two-thirds of manufacturers identify improved strategic planning as their highest priority to improve their competitiveness.

The survey was based on lengthy forms sent to 105 manufacturing ex- percent for the next 10 years. Ford is ecutives and 190 supplier executives, according to Van Hull's associate, Warren Watkins. That was double the number answering the 1981 survey and

"a good cross-section," he said. Other findings from the survey:

· "U.S. passenger car volume is year. A higher turnover reduces the forecast to increase to 8.9 million units in 1983 to 10 million by 1985 and 10.5 million in 1990." Van Hull said these projections are down two million from the 1981 survey, indicating one note of pessimism.

 "General Motors' U.S. market share is forecast to remain roughly 45 expected to remain at approximately 16 percent and Chrysler's share is

Anyone who thought Twelve Oaks Mall was a pleasant place to go shopping might be surprised to learn that it now is designing playground equipment as well.

Working in conjunction with Guffrey Products of Brighton, the Twelve Oaks staff has developed a new piece of playground equipment that will be on display in Center Court through August

Sheila Armstrong, director of sales promotions and public relations at Twelve Oaks, said the inspiration for the new piece of equipment came from the old Mickey Rooney/Judy Garland movies of the '40s.

"Today's kids like to perform and create shows as much as kids did 30 years ago," observed Armstrong, "so we decided to develop a piece of playground equipment that we could use as the backdrop for our back-toschool fashion shows.

Incorporating the traditional swings and slides, the new play structure also provides children with a theatrical stage for creative play presentations.

Robert Piwko, superintendent of the Novi Schools, was asked by Twelve Oaks to evaluate the child-related aspects of the new design and was favorably impressed.

"The structure not only expands the physical development of a youngster, but also expands the mind with creative play opportunities," said Piwko.

To demonstrate the creative theatrical aspects of the new piece of playground equipment, it will be used as the stage when the Twelve Oaks' Fashion Panel presents its back-tocampus fashion shows this Friday and Saturday. Shows will be presented Friday at 2 and 7 p.m. and Saturday at 1 and 3 p.m.

Armstrong noted that the design of the playground structure has openended opportunities for expansion by schools and public park facilities for formalized theaterical presentations as well as improptu performances.

"We're always trying to develop new concepts in our displays that also have educational value," said Armstrong, noting that Twelve Oaks' "Computerized Christmas" display last December introduced many adults and children to the world of computers.

"We think we've accomplished the same thing with our playground equipment," she added. "It's an ideal backdrop for back-to-school and backto-campus fashion shows; and it's also a very practical, realistic design that has many practical applications on the playground.

'It enables children to develop their motor skills, while encouraging creativity at the same time."

Move across road enhances business

By DIC DOUMANIAN

Milford Auto Supply's new location is not too far from the old one. The store 334 North Main Street-across Main Street.

'We made the move to secure our future." stated owner Charles Hutton. The large auto parts store is the way this business is headed right now."

Milford Auto Supply is a retail and

The new store is over twice as big as the old one. It features Gates, Monroe, Moog, AP Exhausts and foreign car parts. Hutton explained that the people who work in the store have over 40 years experience in the auto repair business.

Hutton added that two big reasons Milford Auto Supply moved was to be moved from 353 North Main Street to able to display more products and have a larger inventory.

We wanted to give the service and coverage that people who work on their own car need today," Hutton said. What we have today is a lot of people working on their own car. They are able to walk into the store, see the items on the shelf, and see what it is they need.

'Our personnel has the experience and the expertise to help the average car owner with minor and major repair problems," he added. Along with moving, Milford Auto Supply added four new members to its staff.

According to Hutton, moving across the street is no easy task.

He explained that for two months leading up to the big day, items were moved across the street. If something had been moved, and a customer was looking for that item, someone had to make a quick trip across the street.

Then on moving day, after the store closed at 5 p.m. on Sunday, everything that was left at the old location was moved across the street.

'We finished up at about 6 a.m. Monday, and opened at 8," Hutton continued, "we resumed business in a somewhat orderly fashion.'

The new store will also give Milford Auto Supply an opportunity to increase its sales volume, keep prices competitve and increase its inventory, according to Hutton.

"We will match, meet or beat anyone else's price," stated Hutton.

"We want people to know we appreciate their support," said Hutton. If you don't have support from local residents, you can't make it.'

To show off the new store and to show his appreciation, Hutton and Milford Auto Supply held a three-day Grand Opening.

There were 1,000 instant door prizes. Each winner's name was then entered into the grand drawing for six prizes. The prizes included the grand prize-a three and one-half horsepower engined duplicate of a dragster-and five other

So after 15 years, Milford Auto Supply has a new location.

"I can't express how much it means to us, the support the people in this area have given us," said Hutton.

Milford Auto Supply is open seven days a week: Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.; Saturday, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Sunday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

It sings its beautiful baritone and tears the sheets of sleep "I'm coming! I'm coming!" and the mice shake. Silver tracks throb vessels of the heart

"It's gone! It's gone!" The song bewails the imperial ivory dome aswarm with mothers fathers sons daughters brothers sisters wives grandpa gramdma aunt and uncle in and out leaving greeting laughting weeping

Time

Time is gold when you are old and speeding fast away. The months race by and years just fly; as only one more day.

Each day is gold when you are old; so barter while you may exchange lovefor love untold, while you have gold to pay.

Fine food, country setting wins Elizabeth's acclaim

By MICHELE McELMURRY

When Doug and Elizabeth Campbell opened their quaint 36-seat dining room in Northville's Ware's Square four years ago, neither expected the immediate notoriety the culinary critics bestowed upon their tiny establish-

In the four years since Elizabeth's opened its doors, the restaurant has won wide acclaim for its exquisite gourmet offerings and picturesque set-

Nestled along the bend at 227 Hutton, the small brown clapboard restaurant - once a 19th century farmhouse - appears simple and unpretentious. However, the meals prepared inside Elizabeth's kitchen hardly compare to its unassuming facade.

Among the offerings which have gained Elizabeth's a following from miles around are specialities such as duck liver pate, White Peking duck, raspberry puree with creme fraiche, truffles and Alliance of Mousse, a white chocolate mousse topped with fresh strawberry puree and a chocolate mousse topped with coffee zabaglione. Sitting in the restaurant's dining room on a rainy morning — the tables already set for the evening's dinner crowd — Doug Campbell explains that Elizabeth's is a longtime ambition come true for the couple.

A former food photographer, Doug says he and his wife had contemplated buying a restaurant long ago but had planned to wait until their three children were grown.

However, in 1979, former owners Yvonne Gill and her husband Mark Davis decided to sell the Northville restaurant, then known as Crichton House. Noting that it "seemed like the perfect location" the Campbells bought the restaurant. By June 1, 1979, after considerable redecorating, Elizabeth's opened for business.

In renovating the restaurant, the Campbells retained many of the features of the 19th century farmhouse, such as the elaborate wood moldings surrounding the doors and the uncovered hardwood plank floors. The walls of Elizabeth's three dining rooms are papered with French country floral prints, and art posters are placed throughout. Each table is adorned with a linen tablecloth and German

The casual elegance of Elizabeth's dining rooms is well suited for the array of dishes placed upon its tables. Elizabeth explains that as a former food photographer, Doug has a flair for making the food look as good as it

Though Elizabeth's is the couple's first restaurant venture, Elizabeth Campbell brought to the business a certain degree of culinary expertise.

In addition to working with Yvonne Gill in her catering business, Elizabeth also was day chef to Duglass during his tenure at the Great Dane.

However, she explains that both she and her husband do the cooking at Elizabeth's.

'We've always liked to cook," she notes, adding that they enjoy experimenting with different recipes. As cookbook collectors - some of which date back to the 16th century - the Campbells say they have many resource materials available for

The Campbells mention they also keep-up with culinary trends on their vearly trips abroad.

"We try to go to Europe at least once a year," Doug notes.

He explains that in the great European restaurants, the owners are the chefs and there is one chef for every five people in the dining room.

While Elizabeth's isn't necessarily patterned after the great European restaurants, its French and Provincial cuisine offers patrons a taste of gourmet European dining.

In assessing the clientele at Elizabeth's, Doug estimates that approximately 60 percent of their customers come from Ann Arbor.

With just two chefs in the kitchen, Elizabeth's only serves dinner - with one sitting during-the week-and two on the weekend. Part of the menu is chang-

'We served lunch for a year when we first opened," Doug explains, "but the lunch business was too good ... we didn't have time to cook dinner.'

In addition, a year ago last January, the Campbells went to a prix fixed menu offering five course dinners with a selection of two or three entrees per evening.

For the Campbells, preparing fivecourse dinners for 36 or more diners often is more than a full-time job.

"It's a lot more work than either one of us thought," Doug admits.

The Campbells normally begin each day at 8 a.m. with Doug at the markets and Elizabeth preparing desserts in the kitchen. Elizabeth notes that Doug does all the buying, handpicking produce from area markets.

"All the ingredients are fresh," Doug says, "nothing is frozen. We fly a lot of foods in from France."

He notes that during the winter months produce and fish are shipped in from France. However, whenever possible, much of their food is bought at area markets. In fact, the Campbells were the first wholesale buyers at Paul's Farm Fresh Produce.

Doug explains that the actual dinner preparation gets under way around 4:30 p.m. Dinner on weekdays is served no earlier than 6:30 p.m. with weekend dinners at 6 p.m.

Construction begins on blacksmith shop in village

By JEAN DAY

Stakes were pounded into the ground last week as the foundation was laid out for a blacksmith shop in Mill Race Historical Village. It will be the first reproduction building in the village and is to be located adjacent to the Wash Oak Schoolhouse.

Fran Gazlay, past president of Northville Historical Society, is chairman of the building project. He reports the blacksmith shop will be a re-creation of one operated on Main Street around the turn of the century by John Hirsch. It was located on the site of the present Northville Farmer's Market at Main and Hutton.

In the photograph being used as a basis for design of the building street car tracks are visible along Main. They were used for the interurban that ran from Detroit to Northville. This, says Gazlay, dates the time of the shop pictured between 1898 and 1914.

"We're asking everyone to save stones," Gazlay adds. When buildings were moved to the village, they were placed on recessed foundations to be fronted with cobblestones. Girl Scouts and others volunteered for this project. To date the foundations of the New School Church, Hunter house and the Mill Race Weavers' cottage have been fronted with cobblestone. "We're going to be doing the Yerkes House and the schoolhouse," Gazlay reports. It's going to require a vast suppschoolhouse," ly of stones as the entire blacksmith shop is to be fronted with the cobblestones also.

Working with Gazlay on plans for the 16-by-40 foot shop are Ken Harrison, Donald Fee, Jim Harris and John Brugeman, new president of the historical society. Donald DiComo drew up the plans for the foundation as his donation to the project, Gazlay notes, explaining that all funding to date has been from the historical society treasury. Such projects as the Northville Home Tour and the Tivoli Fair are major fundraisers for the

When completed, the blacksmith shop is to be the museum for the village. The Mill Race Village marked its 10th anniversary last year. It began with the intent of preserving the New School Church which was moved from Wing Street the same year as the Hunter House was saved when it was moved from Main (where Griswold now extends to Seven Mile). The Yerkes house was donated by Northville Downs when it acquired property on Cady for parking expansion. Paul Folino donated the weavers' cottage, his former office, which was moved to the village and then restored by the weavers' guild. The schoolhouse was moved to the village eight years ago from Currie Road with restoration completed this year. It is planned that it be used by local teachers as an experience in learning about

The only other reconstruction in the village is the gazebo which was erected in 1979 under Harrison's direction. It was a project of students in his class at John Glenn High School. The bridge was a donation of the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce.

Beckers loan art for tribute exhibit

The Wilfred Beckers are loaning a watercolor done by Wayne L. Claxton for an exhibition of the late artist's paintings and prints to be on view through August 25 in the Community Arts Gallery of Wayne State University from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. week days.

The exhibit is a tribute to the educator who was chairman of the university's department of art and history from 1936-59. He is credited with building the university's studio art program into one of the finest in the nation. "I was one of his students, and he hired me when I completed my masters," Bill Becker, a professor at Wayne State, relates, speaking of their close

Becker recalled last week that two years ago at Thanksgiving, at the urging of his wife Audrey, they flew to Arizona to visit Claxton in retirement and, in view of his unexpected death in Tuscon July 2, are especially thankful they did. The exhibit, which had its opening Monday, contains works of Claxton owned by the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The artist worked primarily in watercolor, Becker explains, noting that the exhibit contains a few oils and prints also. Most of Claxton's works are in walnut frames designed by the artist and made by Becker.

Entrees, which are cooked to order, are planned about a week in advance, Doug notes. The remainder of the dinner is planned that morning.

Though the Campbells own a home in downtown Farmington, they more recently have moved into the upper floor of the restaurant.

Doug explains that with stocks on the stove all night, they feel more comfortable close to the restaurant.

In addition to Doug and Elizabeth in the kitchen, the staff at Elizabeth's includes two waiters, two waitresses and two dishwashers. Elizabeth notes that most of the staff at the restaurant are students at Northville High School - including daughter Kimberly, a senior at NHS, who works in the kitchen. The couple's son Christopher is a waiter at the restuarant and their youngest daughter Sally, 13, helps prep in the kit-

Doug mentions that among the advantages of owning the restaurant is that he feels closer to his family.

"With the type of photography I did," he says, "I was gone 10 months a year." Having spent the past four years working at his home — more or less — Doug says he has no regrets about leaving the photography business.

"We really enjoy what we do," he says, noting that the couple's 12-15 hour days in the kitchen are in many ways a

Cindy hurdles the heptathlon

By B.J. MARTIN

Cindy Panowicz's mother was in the other room on the telephone answering a call from the Detroit Free Press. She told the caller politely Cindy was in the middle of an interview right now, and would call back when she had the time.

With such attention from Big Media, it isn't puffery anymore to say that Cindy is someone extraordinary. The record speaks for itself — a second place in the national Junior Olympics heptathlon last month, in what she considered a lackluster performance. On what she considers her best day, she won four events at the Western Lakes Activities Association league meet in May - as a sophomore.

Maybe she's not a star outside her hometown yet, but at the rate she's going, Cindy may just make an imprint.

She's now 15. She'll be 16 next month, about the age exceptional athletes have to decide how far they want to go and how willing they are to work to their limit to get there. For Cindy, the goal — at least the one she admits to — is an athletic scholarship to an NCAA college Cindy's genes have served her well, giving her a slender but strong stature already about 5'11" in height. Her long legs are ideally suited for the hurdles and long jump, her best events.

"When I was 11, I entered the long jump at a recreation track meet, and I'd never tried it efore. I got first place, and that's what started it," Cindy explained quietly.

Mets edged in E League tournament final

A talented Fraser team rallied for three runs in the bottom of the seventh (final) inning to wrest the Class E (age 14-16) district baseball championship from the Northville league champion Mets last Thursday, 5-4.

The Mets had sealed the Northville pennant and qualified for the district playoff with a 13-1 romp over the Reds the previous Tuesday, a game highlighted by Mets starter Eric Kapelanski's three-hit pitching performance.

In the district final Thursday, Northville got the jump on Fraser behind the tough pitching of Chris Hauser and timely RBI singles in the second inning by outfielder David Hall and second baseman John Taschner, and by Taschner again in the fourth.

Northville got one more run in the seventh after first baseman and cleanup hitter Paul Newitt reached base on a fielder's choice, then advanced home on three straight walks. In five innings, Hauser permitted only two runs, one unearned, struck out four and scattered just three hits. But Mets ace Daraban, summoned from third base to work the last two innings, ran into trouble. Fraser took advantage of two walks, a single and an error in the final inning to overtake Northville's 4-2 lead, the winning run coming in on a two-out RBI single.

Newitt paced the Mets' offense, reaching base four times, including a single and a double.

There was plenty on the line in the Mets-Reds game two days earlier — had the Mets lost, it would have been the Phillies representing Northville at the district playoffs instead — but a rollicking Mets offense and Kapelanski's pitching sealed the league title easily.

Kapelanski went all seven innings, striking out four, while the Mets backed him up with nearly perfect defense, committing just one error. In particular, shortstop Fred Cahill looked particularly sharp, handling eight putouts without a miscue.

Kapelanski wielded a hot club on offense, too, singling three times and knocking in four runs.

The Mets offense exploded in the middle innings, batting around the order in the fourth and fifth inn-

College is Cindy's plan

"So some of it is natural, like this is the first summer I did the high jump, and I did 5'3" at the Junior Olympics. But when I was jumping at the next height, 5'4½", they told me if I didn't catch my legs (the last part of her body over the bar in the "flop" jumping technique) on the bar I would have been a couple inches over - so I need to work on my form. So at first there's some natural ability. But now, at this stage, it's more training that's important."

And training is something Cindy will get plenty of. She will compete for the first time on the varsity cross-country team at Northville High School this fall usually she swims competitively that time of year. She will participate in indoor track this winter, and will compete in a variety of events with the Nor-thville track team next spring. "Running cross country is the big step," she says. "I'd been in swimming, and competed in AAU meets year 'round. I really like basketball, too. But I'm definitely better at track and field, so I'm going to stick to that."

What really has Cindy hooked is the heptathlon, which she just started taking up this summer. By now, her second-place in the nationals in the seven-event heptathlon is well known.

What exactly is the heptathlon? It's the female equivalent of the decathlon, a series of track and field events held over two days, and considered by many to be the ultimate test of an athlete's

The explanation for why men participate in a 10-event test and women only seven is not really well clarified. Cindy is interested in developments in track and field and said, "They're thinking of expanding the heptathlon into more events. But they've got to find some event other than the pole vault."

(Male and female athletes alike have acknowledged the pole vault is an extremely difficult event for men, and for women, as they are constituted, next to impossible. Pole vaulting requires, in addition to great sprint speed, extremely powerful upper body strength.)

The seven events in the heptathlon are: 100 meter hurdles, 200 meters, 800 meters, high jump, long jump, shot put and javelin.

Cindy's abilities seem to be perfectly suited for the heptathlon, as she is a versatile athlete, good at several sports skills. While she did not put together strings of personal bests at the national meet this summer, coming near her personal bests in each event would easily have given her first place.

Kids

In the long jump, Cindy has done 17'81/2." High jump, 5'33/4". 800 meters, 2:25.4. 200 meters, 25.8. 100 meter hurdles, 14.4. 300 meter hurdles, 43.9. Cindy has the Northville High School record in each of those events except the high jump and 800 meters, which she didn't run last spring. Both marks would be school records, also.

"I like the longer-distance hurdles," she says when asked her favorite event. "A lot of people have the speed but when you have to keep going that far at sprint speed, that's a real challenge."

She took third in the nation in the 400 meter hurdles two days after the national heptathlon competition in her second try at the event. "It kind of surprised me," she said of the event, which is slightly longer than the 300 meters she is accustomed to. "After 300 meters I was way ahead but I'd die on the last, couple of hurdles."

She also excels at the long jump where her leg power, agility and speed pay off. "Ann is going to try and teach me the hitch-kick (a long jump technique involving taking three running strides in mid-air) next season, which should improve my distance," she said.

Where Cindy runs into slower ground is the javelin and shot, although her performances in each are respectable. She has hurled the javelin 66 feet (20.40 meters) and put 26 feet even. 'I'm planning to get a javelin or arrange to have one to practice with, although I'm going to have to work on that one on my own a lot." Cindy said. 'I think Kim Campbell (the Mustangs' top shotputter last spring) can help me get another couple of feet, and there's a nice girl from Central Michigan, Gail Kornegger, who said she'd help me with the shot and javelin whenever she could. She's done the heptathlon for three years at college.'

Training for the other events is a little more conventional. "Running cross country will get me in better shape, and I'll try to do the high jump indoors. I'll try to do some pentathlon indoors, to. The others I'll concentrate on in the spr-

Her daily regimen usually consists of about six miles of roadwork, in addition to her field event practices. Impending meets, of course, can alter her training approach.

Before attempting the half mileequivalent 800 meters in regional AAU competition, Dayton would put Cindy through "repeat 880s," in which she would repeat the event over and over in practice to the point of exhaustion.

Sting somehow 'boots' tournaments without losing

Things must be getting a little frustrating for the Northyille Bonanza Express Soccer League Sting (Under 18 Girls). In the squad's last three tournaments, the Sting has lost only one playoff game - and made the finals in only one.

The most recent was last week's eight-team Bluewater Tournament, Sarnia, Ontario. The Sting won two and tied one in tournament action, but so did Scarborough, the squad the Sting tied, in the four-team division.

Scarborough, however, scored more goals throughout the tournament, qualifying the team to represent the division in, the final under tournament tiebreaker rules.

"Well, I'm really proud of the way the girls have been playing," observed coach Skip Petit. "You really can't fault them at all."

Petit has some outstanding players on his team, no question — leading scorer Kim Petit, his daughter, Kim's teammate on the Northville Mustangs, midfielder Kathy Korowin, and allstater Jane Moylan from Livonia Ladywood, for example. But Skip credits all the Sting's successes to team efforts. "Everybody has been playing to their potenital," he said last week after the tilt.

Eight of the team's players come from Northville — aside from Kim, Korowin, and Moylan are April Karl, and Cathy Young. There are four players from Livonia — including Dorene Dudek, a superb playmaker three from Southfield and two from Canton.

In the Bluewater Tourney, Dudek and Kim Petit were particularly dazzling. Kim scored in all three tournament games, including five goals against St. Catharine's in the second round. But according to Skip, it was Dudek's playmaking skills that led to many of Kim's goals.

In the tournament opener, the Sting tied Scarborough 1-1 after leading most of the game on a goal by Kim. Late in the second half, the referee whistled direct free kick, the next two direct free that game," he added with a smile.

On the third, goalkeeper Bethany Kamin of Southfield made a spectacular save on a hard, high shot, pinning the ball against the crossbar. But the ball bounced out in front of the goal as she fell back to earth after the diving save, and a Scarborough striker slammed home the rebound.

In the second round, the Sting walloped St. Catharine's 7-0. "We score at least a little bit," Skip said, "because of the tie-breaker rule - it Kim tallied in the win.

Aside from Kim's five-goal effort, a team record, Moylan and Sarah Wallman of Canton also posted goals, while Dudek collected an armload of

In the Sting's 2-1 win over Oshawa, the team was just as dominant, but were thwarted repeatedly by Oshawa's fine goalkeeper. "She kept them in the game," Skip remarked. "I'd say the ball was in our half of the field maybe thought we might need to run up the three times, and their goalie must have made at least 20 saves." Dudak and

Idle spell leaves Reds a little rusty

The Reds of Northville "F" League had about two weeks to celebrate their winning the league championship last month — and that proved a little too long, as the Mets fell to Livonia 15-3 in the final of the district playoffs held in Northville last week.

Reds pitchers, who had lost only one game during the regular season, suddenly developed control trouble, issuing 15 walks. And the usually steadfast defense looked rusty in the loss.

Catcher Donn Hubbard batted in two runs with a first-inning single to lead the Mets' offense.

In all, it was a sad ending to a fine season. The Reds had gone 17-1 during the regular season, paced by the hitting and pitching of Eric Shurian, Jay Moore and Brett Belliston, the offensive punch of Hubbard, Adam Behen, Jay Moore, Eddie Walsh and Chris Drew - all of whom hit over .400 - and the steady play of outfielders Scot Howard, John Becker, John Rosselot and Ron Sanders and infielder/pitcher Rick Cazan.

Northville's Newton takes first in butterfly

Northville's Eric Newton, 10, took first in the 50 meter butterfly at the Long Course State Championship Swim Meet in Southfield last weekend, stroking out a 35.17 for the state title in his age category.

The championships, held at the Long Course Swim Club, drew participants from all over the state, including the Clarenceville Swim Club, of which Eric is a member.

Besides his strong showing in the butterfly, Eric, a student at Silver Springs Elementary, also took four third places - in the 100 meter freestyle (1:12.14); the 200 meter individual medley, consisting of 50 meters butterfly, 50 meter backstroke, 50 meters breast stroke and 50 meter freestyle (3:04.11); the 100 butterfly (1:24.78); and the 200 meter freestyle (2:40.60).

Eric also placed sixth in the 100 meter backstroke (1:31.69) and placed fifth in the 50 meter freestyle (33.41).

Cindy lauds coaches

"One of the great things about having Ann for a coach," Cindy said, "is that she's not the kind of track coach who just goes out and blows a whistle and watches her stopwatch. She ran some 880s with me to push me harder, she'll do six miles with me to keep pushing me hard, although it's really hard for her. That's something a lot of coaches won't - or can't -

She definitely wants to coach eventually, she said, particularly having had a good experience with Dayton and Turnbull, and former coach John Monagle.

"Brian (a Northville High School graduate who was a steeplechase runner in college) works really hard and on this one day off he had, he called up and asked if I wanted to work on the high jump with him. He really helped me a lot."

Besides track and field (and swimming) Cindy is interested in skiing (her sister Julie, a freshman at University of Georgia this fali, is a downhill ski instuctor) and basketball. although she likes basketball, the demands on preparing herself for track season preclude being able to play.

She credits her parents with being supportive but not pushy. "I don't always want them at my meets, even though they always want to go. But it's good having them there. A lot of kids on the team, their parents never go at all."

She says being with a team provides her the best competitive environment. "When we have the whole team together, we'd maybe have parties the night before a meet and all eat pasta. I like having the team out there supporting me. With individual competition, it's up to you to get yourself ready.

"I think it's good that they've moved freshmen up to high school sports this year," she added. "There are a lot of freshmen who doing real well, and it would've helped having them.'

She said the idea of coaching appeals to her. "I'd like to coach, maybe at the high school level," she added. "Maybe at Northville — I could take over when Ann quits!"
