State prison plan public hearing Thursday

By JEAN DAY

Objections of local residents and officials to conversion of the nearly-abandoned Plymouth Center for Human Development in the south part of Northville Township to a medium-security prison by the state will be voiced at a public hearing expected to draw crowds at 7 p.m. Thursday at township hall, 41600 Six Mile.

The meeting was called by Supervisor John E. MacDonald after announcement last week Tuesday of the decision to seek the change from the plan under way to build a 500-bed multi-security regional prison a mile west at Beck and Five Mile.

State officials stated they would be on hand to explain the proposed change which, they announced, would cancel plans for the 500-bed regional prison on which $1 million already has been spent.

Both Senator R. Robert Geake (R-Northville) and Representative Gerald Law (R-Plymouth) have said they will be on hand at the hearing Thursday.

Township officials and local representatives in Lansing, who had no knowledge that the change was being studied for the past two months, say the move eastward to the location almost directly across from the proposed Cavanagh Elderly Village will kill that project.

They also question the statement of Douglas B. Roberts, acting director of the Michigan Department of Management and Budget, that conversion of the former mental health facility will "save the state's taxpayers about $20 million." Officials noted Monday that sewer and water facilities already have been installed at the Beck-Five Mile site.

Township Clerk Susan Heintz said Monday, "It makes no sense — the other location was accepted by the local community, and $120,000 in federal grant money has been spent on the senior village."

She added that the senior village was to be one of the largest of its kind anywhere, and that "we always have been told that a main concern of seniors is security — this could kill the village."

She said the township has been in contact with Robert FitzPatrick, head of the Wayne County Economic Development Committee, in charge of planning the senior facility. He indicated he was going to Lansing to oppose the prison site change immediately.

Heintz also had heard from Congressman Carl Pursell's Michigan office which had been aware of the federal grant expenditure. A representative of the congressman is expected to be present Thursday.

"While proponents say it is only a mile difference," Heintz continued, "that mile is an important mile."

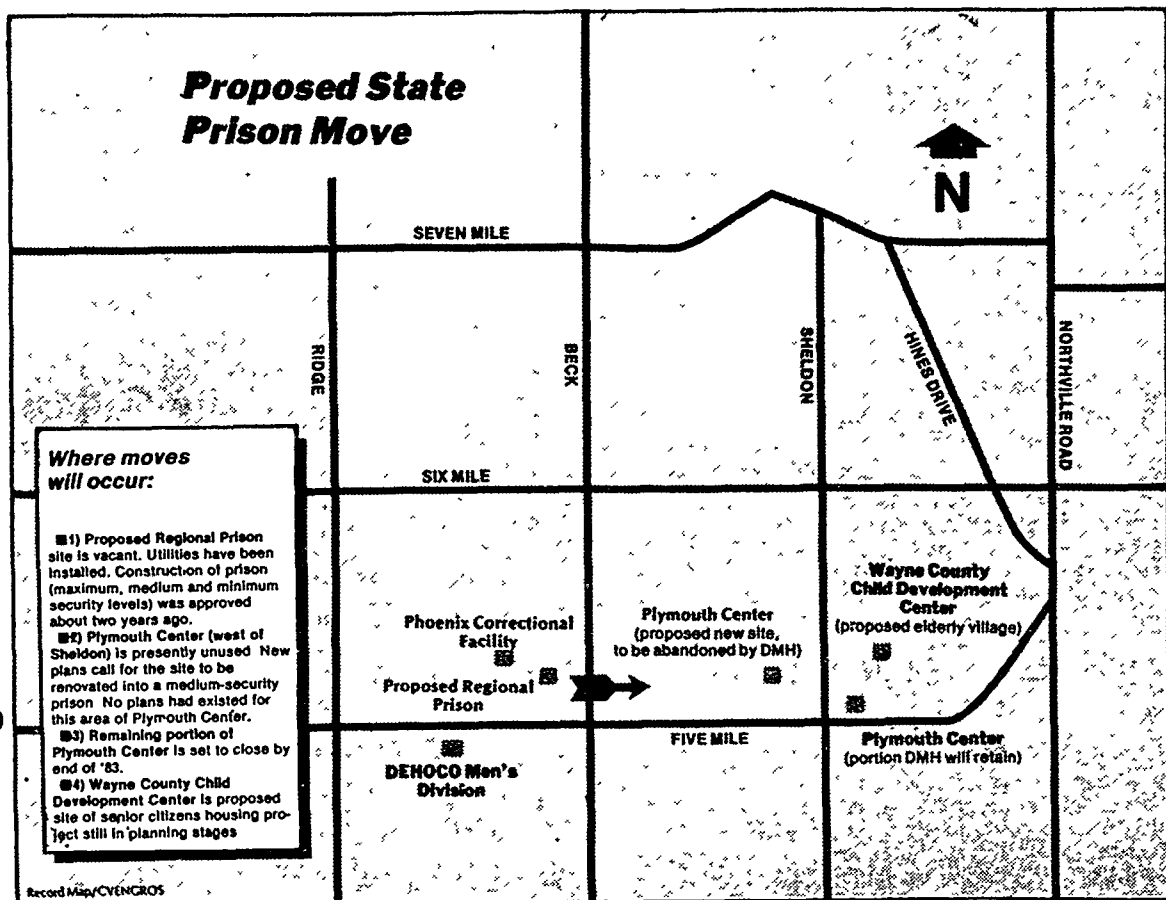

She also pointed out that part of the reason for accepting the planned regional facility previously was that it was "sold" as being a prototype with minimum, medium and maximum security inmates.

"Now they are saying prisoners at the planned conversion facility probably will not be so bad as those who would be at the regional prison — what does that mean?"

Township officials, told by the Department of Corrections officials that the change would only have to go through the capital outlays committee, said Monday that they are hoping it must go to the legislators as it is a new use and new account. The state already had approved $35 million for the regional facility.

LCC okays bar move, if council agrees

By KEVIN WILSON

The Winner's Circle Bar issue is in city council's hands now.

Transfer of James Rea's liquor license from the bar at 111-113 West Main to 135 North Center was approved by the Michigan Liquor Control Commission last week, conditional on "favorable recommendation of the Northville City Council." The LCC determination overrules the objections filed by the Open Door Church, on grounds that Rea's new establishment is "not likely to significantly impact on the operation of the church."

After reviewing the LCC's September 14 decision Monday night, council set a public hearing for October 10 "to give all those who want to be heard (on the issue) an opportunity to be heard" before it renders its decision.

Council had originally approved Rea's license transfer request on July 5, but rescinded its approval upon learning of the church objection, choosing to withhold judgement until after the LCC hearing on the objection.

State law provides that a license transfer be denied if the location is within 500 feet of church or school building, but the LCC is authorized to grant a waiver to this requirement after conducting a hearing on the matter. The Open Door Church is next door to Rea's proposed establishment.

The September 14 LCC statement of findings and order recounts the testimony given by Rea and Open Door pastor Mark Freer at the commission's September 1 hearing, focusing on Freer's testimony that Rea's establishment would result in disruption of school operations, parking conflicts and undesirable exposure of church members and children to patrons of the new business.

While much of the hearing was devoted to discussion of the church's alleged statement that it would not file an objection, the LCC statement "notes that the discussion and controversy over the original position of the church in this matter appears irrelevant to the issue... insofar as the Commission's deliberations are concerned the objection raised by the church was made in a timely and proper manner."

It adds in a footnote that similar discussions regarding whether or not the church plans to sell its building or regarding the structure's former status as a restaurant with liquor license are "also irrelevant, as all parties agree the church is bona fide and is a church within the statutory definition."

In granting the waiver on a September 7 vote, the commission states that "it appears... the area in question is already commercial in nature and that the addition of establishment proposed by the licensee is not likely to significantly impact on the operation of the church."

Regarding the parking problem cited by Freer, the commission determined "there is a large city-owned parking lot at the rear of the proposed location, and it would appear this lot is adequate for the needs of both the church and the proposed establishment."

Other conflicts between the church and establishment were also deemed insufficient to force denial of the transfer, according to the LCC statement.

"Concerning the potential problem of the members of the church congregation from exposure to patrons of the establishment," the statement reads, "the Commission is not convinced that this concern is sufficient to warrant denial of the licensee's request for waiver, since the primary hours of use

Interviews beginning for director candidates

By B.J. MARTIN

While Northville Recreation Commissioners are sticking to their promise to keep confidential the identities of applicants for the Recreation Department Director's position, a clearer picture of the job's eventual successor emerged following a report from screening committee members at last Wednesday's Recreation Commission meeting.

The screening committee reported that the field of 64 applicants for the position had been narrowed down to 10. Interviews with the 10 finalists are scheduled to be completed by the end of the month, at special sessions of the committee Wednesday, September 21, Thursday, September 22, and Wednesday, September 28.

Members of the screening committee are: Recreation Commission L.T.

Sylvestre, Gary Sixt, Carolann Ayers and Liz McCarville; former Commissioner John Swienkowski; Township Planning Commissioner and Schoolcraft College Athletic Director Marvin Gans, and youth athletics activists Wade Deal, Bob DeHoff and Cathy McNally.

Following the interviews, it is expected committee members will narrow the list of finalists to three or four candidates. At that point, recreation commissioners have suggested several options for further discriminating among the finalists. Suggestions include observing the finalists at their present jobs and conducting interviews with the three or four before the Recreation Commission.

Commissioners remarked that inter-

Sculptor Marshall Fredericks pauses by town clock

Northville may be site of Fredericks sculpture

"We're dreaming and exploring," Barbara O'Brien, chairman of the newly organized Northville Township Beautification Commission, explained of the visit paid to Northville last Thursday by internationally known Detroit sculptor Marshall Fredericks.

The new commission had been working with Norma Vernon, head of the city beautification commission, and its members as well as with the community's two garden branches ever since last spring to interest the creator of such monumental works as the giant Spirit of Detroit sculpture guarding the entrance to the City-County Building in coming to Northville.

Last Thursday the 75-year-old Fredericks, accompanied by his wife Rosalind, came as he had promised. He viewed Main Street and the community. Accompanied by Superintendent of Schools George Bell he toured the high school.

City and township officials escorted the visitors through Allen Terrace, Mill Race Historical Village and also the buildings of the Wayne County Child Development Center where an elderly village is planned.

Architect Don DiComo greeted Fredericks at Allen Terrace where he also was welcomed by Vance Masters, president of the residents' council.

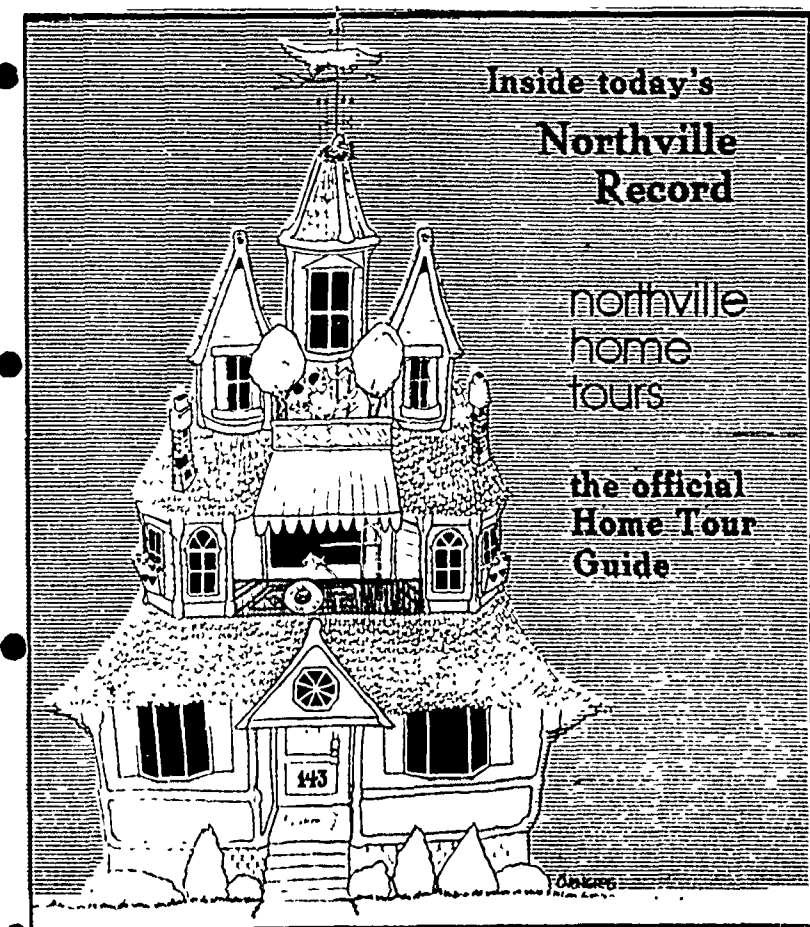

"He said what influenced him to make the visit was the unusual spirit of cooperation between the city and township beautification commissions as well as with garden and Girl Scout groups — all working together," explained O'Brien. She and Mrs. Vernon had visited the sculptor in his Royal Oak studio earlier.

She said she expects him to return by himself to study the community further.

He is one of fewer than a dozen monumental sculptor makers in the country today.

The man who gave the City of Detroit its official symbol also made the eagle on the Veterans Memorial Building and

Legislators vow to fight prison changes

By TIM RICHARD

Three western Wayne County legislators will fight a Blanchard administration proposal to shift a proposed state prison site a mile eastward in Northville Township, even if the change appears to save $25 million.

"From my standpoint it's worse," said State Senator R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, after the announcement last week, "because it moves the location to the center of the township and nearer a proposed senior citizen housing development — almost across the street."

"We went through the planning process once," said Representative Gerald Law, R-Plymouth. "This was public-hearinged to death five years ago. For the state to renege on its promise and proposal — it's unbelievably bad public relations."

"What bothers me," added Representative Jack Kirksey, R-Livonia, who represented Northville until last year's reapportionment, "is that this plan puts the prison in a more socially sensitive place."

Two Blanchard administration officials last week Tuesday said they will ask the Legislature to authorize the change in the site, recommending a $10 million remodeling project at the Plymouth Center for Human Development instead of $35 million in new construction.

Douglas Roberts, acting budget director, and Perry Johnson, director of the state Corrections Department, unveiled the plan to lawmakers an hour before mailing out a news release, Law said.

The plan for new construction — worked out with local officials five years ago by the Milliken administration — would have been at Five Mile and Beck roads. It would have been the first "regional" state facility, a prototype with maximum, medium and minimum security facilities. It would have housed 500 prisoners.

The location was to be between the present Detroit House of Correction and the Phoenix facility, the former women's division of DeHoCo. (Kirksey said placing three correctional facilities in close proximity amounted to "informal prison zoning.")

Law said $1 million already had been invested in site work and that $16.6 million has been appropriated for the first two phases of construction.

The new proposal calls for renovating the Plymouth Center for Human Development, a mental health facility for the retarded which is scheduled to be closed under federal court order.

Roberts said it would become a 500 to 600 bed medium-security facility. He added remodeling could start in spring. It would take a year less to complete compared to constructing a new facility.

The PCHD site is located at Five Mile and Sheldon roads, across the street and a short distance south of the former Wayne County Child Development Center.

County economic development director Robert FitzPatrick is pushing a senior citizens' village for the site. He, too, denounced the plan.

The PCHD has about 170 acres and four housing units, a recreation building, a maintenance building, food service facility and power plant. Roberts said a new fence would be built, but no new buildings are planned.

"I want to see an architect's study showing it's going to be $20 million cheaper to renovate," said Law.

The first-term legislator speculated if the renovation plan was "a stop-gap solution to alleviate a need for space" and if the Corrections Department might not ask for more costly renovations or construction later.

Geake, who dealt with the construction question in the Senate Appropriations Committee, said, "Many of us felt the first regional prison should be in Detroit since that's where most prisoners come from. It would be easier for relatives to visit them, and easier for prisoners to make contacts for job placement."

"Detroit objected, claiming it had no room, which I thought was ridiculous and said so at the time," Geake added.

Kirksey said, "What bothers me is the state's insistence on saturating that area (Northville Township) with institutions: State Police headquarters, Hawthorn Center, Northville State Hospital.

"The state hospital has the largest patient load in Michigan and the highest percentage of acute mentally ill — 80 percent are acute. It has three walkaways a day. People find them in their cars and houses. They've had one terrible murder out there (in Northville Township)."

Law agreed, noting that 30 percent of the township's land is government-owned. He said the administration hinted "vaguely" that the site it now wants to abandon could be made available for industrial development.

estimated by proponents to cost $10 million. They also stress that the facility could be converted and in operation in a much shorter time, probably next year.

Senator Geake and Representative Law told township officials they had been told of the plan by Perry M. Johnson, director of the Michigan Department of Corrections, only shortly before the public announcement September 13.

The announcement said that legislative authorization was being sought last week to convert a portion of the PCHD to a medium-security prison and that, in turn, the department of corrections was to cancel plans for the regional prison.

"Conversion of the former mental health facility into a 500 to 600-bed prison will save the state's taxpayers about $20 million," said Roberts. He said Legislative approval is needed before the project begins.

Officials in the Department of Management and Budget have estimated that remodeling the former mental health facility at Five Mile and Sheldon roads in Wayne County's Northville Township will cost the state about $10 million. Construction of a multi-security regional prison would have cost the state about $35 million, the announcement quoted Johnson.

"We want to assure the citizens of Northville Township that we do not intend to continue construction of the regional prison as well as convert the Plymouth facility. We have promised to operate only one prison in the area in addition to the nearby Phoenix Correctional Facility, and we intend to keep our promise," said Roberts.

Earlier this year, the release continued, the Department of Mental Health declared the Plymouth hospital complex to be surplus, except for the hospital's former administration building.

The Plymouth Center was ordered closed by a federal judge following reports of patient abuse.

The site consists of about 170 acres containing four housing units, a recreation building, a maintenance building, food service facility and power plant. There is a possibility that an additional building nearby also will be used for a prison industry, it also stated.

The remodeling costs involve conversion of the housing units into single room facilities. Single room occupancy is required by law for all new or converted state prisons.

A new fence is to be built at the center, but no new buildings are planned, said Roberts.

The corrections department originally had planned to build its first regional prison adjacent to the Phoenix Correctional Facility, formerly the Women's Division of the Detroit House of Correction. Site work had begun on the new prison prior to the decision to abandon the Plymouth facility, said Johnson.

"Even though we are anxious to complete a prototype prison of the type originally planned for the area, the state cannot overlook a cost savings of more than $20 million nor can it ignore the faster completion date for a remodeled facility," Johnson stated in the announcement.

He said the state is expected to receive 7,000 prisoners during 1983, nearly 600 more than last year and one of the highest number of prison commitments recorded in modern times.

He said the state continues to seek regional prison sites in Detroit and elsewhere.

If Legislative approval is granted, remodeling of the Plymouth Center could begin next spring, said Roberts.

Officials expressed the hope to township officials that the decision could be made in two weeks.

Last night a meeting of the Association of Homeowners' Associations representing all subdivision homeowners' associations in the township (about 4,000 to 5,000 residents) had slated a meeting at township hall.

"Five years ago these people fought having a prison on the former Wayne County Child Development Center property (now slated for the elderly village) and were assured the prison at the Five Mile-Beck site was 'the wave of the future,'" Heintz said Monday.

She said Plymouth Township officials also were concerned about the change to a less remote part of the township and would be at the meeting this Thursday.

In protesting the prison initially, Northville Township officials and residents had pointed to the great amount of non-taxable land in the township already — the Northville Regional State Hospital and Hawthorn Center, Northville State Police Post and the Phoenix Facility as well as Maybury State Park.

of the church and the proposed location of the licensee would be significantly different."

Waiver was granted conditional only on favorable recommendation by council and final inspection of the building to determine qualification after renovation is completed.

The approval included Rea's Class C and SDM liquor licenses with dance and Sunday sales permits.

Mayor Paul Vernon said at Monday's council session that he had received "numerous phone calls and personal contacts" with citizens voicing opinions of the license transfer issue and that he thought it "wise" to establish a public hearing before taking any council action on the matter.

Photo Harvest

Autumn is time for trips in the country and spectacular photos of the harvest. The bounty makes great studies in either black and white or color. Choose your favorite fine-grain film; the new Fuji HR and Kodak VR films are good choices. In slide film consider Fujichrome 100 or Kodachrome. Take along your polarizer, warming (1A or 81A, etc.) filter, and red or yellow No. 2 filter for black and white, a tripod for steadiness, and your favorite lenses.

Look for patterns in the harvest. Compose pictures that lead the eye into the scene, perhaps along rows of grain or trees. Look for heaps of produce for close-ups. Harvest hands and machinery are also good subjects. Check through your polarizer to see if it will improve the picture. You can leave on your warming filter for richer color, and add the polarizer or any black and white filters over it.

Harvest photos can provide a fine photo display for your home. Well-printed pictures in black and white or color will look equally well on your walls.

Directory's out

Northville Mothers' Club president Sue Anger, from right, examines the new 1983-84 Northville Community Directory with Carol Townsend, Judy Somershoe and Phyllis Kennedy, chairpersons for the project. The local telephone directory lists residents and businesses located within the Northville school district and has been distributed by the Northville Jaycees. It is published on alternate years by the Mothers' Club without charge. The cover sketch of the Yerkes House in Mill Race Historical Village is the work of Northville resident Phil Payne. In response to inquiries, however, President Anger reports additional copies may be available for a small charge. ## Autumnfest readied, street plan rejected

Northville's Autumnfest '83 will get off the ground this Saturday morning with a helium balloon launch at the town square park in anticipation of the September 30-October 1 event the following weekend.

While Northville youngsters invited to the launch at 10 a.m. Saturday may get a lift from it, a Merchant's Association bid to expand the area in which streets are closed for the Autumnfest fell flat Monday night.

Council rejected the request made by Kris Broderick of Northville Gallery of Flowers to close Main Street between Hutton and Dunlap.

Speaking for herself and other merchants whose establishments are east of Hutton, Broderick said "the biggest problem we have down there is when something happens downtown, people just don't come down there."

When streets are closed for special events downtown, the area involved usually runs from Wing to Hutton on Main and from Dunlap to Mary Alexander Court on Center. Autumnfest promoters had already secured council permission to close off that area at an earlier meeting.

The two-day festival is coordinated with such events as the Rotary Run and the historical society's Tivoli Fair. Scheduled are a beer fest, hayrides, free cider and donuts and many other events throughout the weekend.

Broderick advanced a proposal to close Main east to Griswold, routing inbound traffic off South Main onto Cady, east to Wing and north to Dunlap for access to the north side of town.

"What we're proposing is a trial run of this layout, if it doesn't work we can try something else," she said.

But council members unanimously recommended that merchants try "something else" first.

"The expectation is that it would be more than a trial run — it would be chaos," said Mayor Paul Vernon, explaining council's reaction.

Council members Burton DeRusha and Carolann Ayers both stressed the problems they foresaw if access to parking and streets were restricted. They noted that closing Main at Griswold makes Hutton inaccessible, thus cutting off the circular flow of traffic around the downtown area and making parking lots north of Main difficult to find for those from out of town.

Broderick argued that Autumnfest is in conjunction with Tivoli Fair at the Downs, and that much of the traffic would be coming from the south and parking at the Downs lots. Hay wagons would run shuttle service to Main Street from that area, she said.

Vernon and Ayers both said they believe such a street closing would discourage people from attending. "The natural thing to do (coming north on South Main) would be to turn right on Griswold and find yourself on Eight Mile — I think I would go home," Vernon said.

Although Broderick argued that signs could route people to parking and that people attend events such as the Ann Arbor Art Fair where parking is difficult to find, but council members rejected that argument as well. The general response from council was to note that Autumnfest is a new event and people would not expect to encounter problems parking.

"I understand the plight of businesses down there," Ayers said. "But I think what you are asking would inconvenience too many people for a handful of businesses."

"If people are inconvenienced," Vernon stated, "they aren't going to come back." Broderick countered that she "totally disagrees with that" and said she thinks people will put up with some inconvenience for an event they want to attend.

City manager Steven Walters suggested that merchants at the east end of Main concentrate on having attractions placed in front of their businesses and placing activities along Main Street east of Hutton to draw people from the closed-off area.

"If you could get something going on the porch of the Presbyterian Church and then had some kind of unusual event on the city property near Griswold and Main and it was visually done right, I think you'd get people," he said. "Right now, you have nothing there visually for people to see and react to."

When Vernon made it clear there would be no council approval of the Merchants Association proposal, Broderick told him "the people will be very unhappy about this decision."

Council members Paul Folino and DeRusha both suggested it might be possible to coordinate with the police department a one-lane or partial lane closing on the south side of East Main to allow the hay wagons to be routed along that end of the city, giving visitors a chance to see the businesses there.

STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

A Statute of Limitations is a law setting a time limit on the enforcement of a right.

In Michigan, the Statute of Limitations is two years for an action charging assault, battery, false imprisonment, malicious prosecution, or malpractice; one year for an action charging libel or slander; three years for an action to recover damages for a death or for an injury to a person or property; three years for a products liability action; generally none for workers' compensation actions; six years for breach of contract.

There are, however, many factors which affect these time periods and some may be tolled (delayed). If you do need advice to determine if you do, or do not have a case, call for an appointment. There is no charge for the initial consultation. Let's discuss your questions thoroughly and confidentially.

House misidentified

Information regarding the origin of the William Demray house at 371 East Main published in September 14 editions of The Record and again in a special home tour section this week is incorrect.

The house which was built for the daughter of James A. Dubuar when she wed is at 235 High Street and is presently the Daniel Anderson residence, according to Elizabeth Chapman, a descendant of the Dubuar family. The origin of Demray's house remains uncertain.

Since occupying the house, Dr. Demray has researched old records and pictures in an attempt to find the origins of his home. The Record also searched its files; any new information will be welcome.

NHS seniors

This sale is for the birds

Northville High School Class of '84 already has a full schedule of class projects under way.

In addition to continuing projects of previous classes, class president John Letarte reports, the seniors are adding such new ones as a pumpkin sale to be held two weekends in October.

Beginning next week senior class members will be going door-to-door selling mixed bird seed, a popular project begun by a previous class.

The sale is to continue for two weeks.

This Friday following the Mustang football game the seniors are sponsoring a Sadie Hawkins Day dance in the high school cafeteria.

The pumpkin sale will be October 15-16 and 22-23 at Parmenter's cider mill on old Baseline.

Robbie Clarke at Renaissance fest

For the third year, Northville resident Robbie Clarke is appearing as a court bard at the Michigan Renaissance Festival being held in Clarkston weekends through this month.

In medieval costume, he says he shares "the secrets of chivalry and courtly love" and relates how he arrived in the 20th century.

Clarke, who has used the pen name Raghudas for poetry he has written, is a 1972 graduate of Northville High School.

He has written a new book, "Romantic Poets Have Better Lines," for which he uses the name Sir Pretense Pastense.

It is to be on sale at the Bookstall on the Main, he reports.

Clarke's philosophies were related in the February, 1983, issue of Phenomenews, in an article entitled, "Of Chivalry and the Enchantments of Love," he adds.

Hospital escapee steals moped from Northville teen

Northville township police are seeking a warrant for the arrest of a 21-year-old Northville State Hospital patient in connection with a strong-arm robbery September 15.

According to police, a warrant is being sought for the arrest of the hospital escapee for allegedly stealing a moped from a 15-year-old township resident.

The incident occurred at approximately 3:30 p.m. September 15, when township police were dispatched to Christian Community Church on Six Mile on a report of two subjects — a white male and a black male — reportedly roaming the church and school property. According to the police report, the caller indicated the two subjects might be possible escapees from Northville State Hospital.

According to the police report, the subjects no longer were on the premises when police arrived. However, a citizen in the church parking lot told police he saw the two subjects walking southeast from the church toward the Northville Colony III subdivision.

The black male subject was described as wearing light gray slacks and no shirt. The white male subject was observed to have shoulder-length blond hair.

Upon searching the Winchester and Rayburn area, police were flagged down by the victim and a witness.

The victim told police that a black male subject had just stolen his moped. A description of the subject and stolen moped was called in by the officer at the scene and a "be on the lookout" alert was put out to other area police departments.

The township dispatcher advised the officer that Northville State Hospital was looking for a black male and white male escapee.

The white male subject was apprehended by township police at Rayburn and Winchester. According to the police report, the suspect identified himself as a patient from Northville State Hospital and stated he did not know the name of the black male subject. He told police he only knew the subject as "Michael Jackson," because he looked like the singer.

He further stated the two of them had escaped from the state hospital.

Police Blotters

Three injured in Six and Haggerty collision

From State Police...

A two-car collision at the intersection of Six Mile and Haggerty roads September 11 left both drivers and one passenger injured, according to state police.

Cited for failing to stop at a flashing red signal and for driving under the influence of alcohol was Mabel Louise Smart, 60, of Detroit. Smart suffered a head injury that left a lump on her temple, according to the police report, and was taken to Providence Hospital's Novi center by CEMS ambulance.

Seriously injured was Nancy Ann Binder, 46, of Gladwin who was a passenger in the other car, driven by Tyna Louise Binder, 23, of Rhodes, Michigan. Police said Nancy Binder suffered apparently severe injuries to the head and hand. Tyna Binder complained of back pain. Both were taken to St. Mary Hospital by CEMS.

None of the injured was wearing a seat belt when the accident occurred.

Police said they arrived at the scene of the 12:30 a.m. accident to find Smart still sitting behind the wheel of her burgundy two-door 1976 Chevrolet.

According to the report, Smart had been driving southbound on Haggerty and drove through the flashing red light at Six Mile. The Binder vehicle, a silver 1982 Ford, was westbound on Six Mile and struck Smart's car broadside.

Although Smart repeatedly told police she had a green light, both Binders and two witnesses related that the light was flashing red for Haggerty, yellow for Six Mile traffic.

When police asked Smart if she had been drinking she said she'd had three drinks. After she failed a sobriety test and registered .09 percent blood alcohol in a roadside breathalyzer, police requested a blood test at Providence. Smart was ticketed and released without bond.

State police are prepared to seek a warrant for the arrest of a Salem Township man who allegedly obtained a video-cassette recorder from a Northville business under false pretenses.

According to the police report, the Currie Road resident rented a Quasar VCR valued at $520 and two videotapes from Northville Video, 43197 Seven Mile, on August 13, leaving a $500 check as a security deposit on the one-day rental.

He did not return the machine the next day, but did bring in one tape, which the owners refused to accept as it had been damaged by the renter's dog. The following day, the man re-registered to rent the VCR and the shop retained his check.

When the man's account was not kept current, the owner of the establishment

At the time township police apprehended the white male subject, the Plymouth Police Department apprehended the black male subject, who was in possession of the moped.

The subject was transported to Northville Township Police Department where he told police in a written statement that he stole the moped because he wanted to go home. He was later transported back to the state hospital.

In a written statement taken at the longer in the car.

Stolen was a 10-by-14-inch blue plastic bag valued at $40 containing assorted tools valued at $400.

A 1983 Chevrolet Chevette valued at more than $5,000 was stolen from the parking lot of an apartment on Seven Mile Road September 10, according to Michigan State Police Northville Post reports.

The owner of the car, a Pinckney resident visiting at the apartments, walked to the post and told police he parked his car in the apartment lot at 11:30 p.m. September 9 and discovered it was missing at 10 a.m. September 10.

The missing vehicle, described as silver with a bicycle rack on the back, was locked and the owner had the keys, according to the report. He told police that he had lost a set of keys at his Romulus workplace roughly one week prior to the incident.

Police have no suspects in the theft.

A Northville man suffered minor injuries when his car hit a telephone pole at Seven Mile and Meadowbrook roads last week, state police reports indicate.

According to the report, Robert L. Laundroche was driving eastbound on Seven Mile in the right lane when a car driven by David Lee Stormont, 21, of Stoneleigh made a left turn from southbound Meadowbrook into the right lane of eastbound Seven Mile.

Laundroche was forced to take evasive action, the report stated, leaving the road and striking the pole. His car had to be towed from the scene. Laundroche sought his own medical attention, rejecting the option of calling an ambulance.

Stormont told police he never saw the other car, but heard the crash as he completed his turn. He was cited for making an improper left turn.

In the township...

Township police report an estimated $1,244 worth of items were stolen from an Eddington Place residence sometime between 11:30 p.m. September 13 and 2:45 a.m. September 14.

The complainant told police that unknown suspects entered the residence through a west side doorwall.

He further stated that subjects had entered the residence while he was upstairs sleeping. The complainant told police he did not see or hear anything at the time the incident occurred.

The complainant said he was notified of the theft by a witness who resides at the residence.

Trooper trained in crash studies

Michigan State Trooper Lawrence A. Robinson was one of nine advanced accident investigators who recently received additional training in traffic crash reconstruction.

Robinson, stationed at the Northville post, received three weeks of intensive classroom and practical training in subjects such as conservation of linear momentum, speed from skidding, falling or vaulting vehicles, and the derivation of formulas necessary to make those determinations.

Instruction was provided by MSP experts from the Traffic Services Division, in coordination with Sergeant Myron Lofgren (Ret.), Minnesota Highway Patrol.

The selection of the nine troopers who received the advanced training marks the final phase of an ambitious program started more than seven years ago which will eventually furnish every state police patrol officer with advanced investigation expertise.

The specialized accident reconstruction training will be supplemented by an intensive work-study period of several months duration.

Colonel Gerald L. Hough, MSP director, said the department foresees use of the new reconstructionists both for investigation of serious accidents and as a training resource to raise the ability of all department accident investigators.

Hough stressed that traffic accident investigation is a primary responsibility of the state police and that he expects these officers to increase the level of service the department offers.

Screening committee trims field of applicants

views before the commission would be almost certain, unless one candidate distinguished himself (or herself) remarkably during committee interviews.

All 10 of the finalists selected by the screening committee from the 64 applicants for the job come from Michigan.

Some of the finalists come from programs considerably bigger than that of Northville. Some are just out of college but still have impressive experience credentials.

All 10 of the finalists met at least five of the six criteria listed in the advertisements released for attracting applicants.

Those included: a bachelor's degree with major concentration in parks and recreation administration, three to five years' experience in recreation, or related field; ability to formulate and administer the programs, staff and budget; manage a community recreation center; be flexible for evening and weekend activities; at a salary range of between $19,000-$22,000 plus benefits.

Commissioner Sixt, who has been responsible for contacting the applicants, also said it would be a plus if the candidate could relocate to Northville.

Committee members reported being "surprised" that nearly one-third of the applicants were female. However, there is only one female among the 10 finalists.

By last Wednesday's meeting, Sixt had talked by phone to six of the candidates and reported the talks had gone "very well."

"I was impressed that some of the people knew very well they would be taking a pay cut for the job, and some definitely said they would like to discuss the salary restrictions if they are chosen," he said. "Some of them are the number two or number three person in some other programs and just want to try running a program."

"Some clearly think the Northville job is something they can use as a stepping stone — get a nice program run-ing here, and then see how they can advance themselves. And I think that's really not a bad thing for our kind of situation right now. We're looking for someone who can make a bad program a good one."

Sixt added he thought it was possible some of the candidates "would like to at least see if they would like to spend the rest of their career here."

"Some of the applicants met the criteria and looked good on paper but lacked much professional experience. Some were overqualified and overpriced — when I look at the qualifications of some of these people, sometimes I'd wonder why they want the job — but some have confirmed they're looking for the position and not necessarily the pay, although some are interested in the money, too."

The money may be one of the complicating factors in selecting a new director, since some of the applicants have already said they hope the top figure is negotiable. Sixt said, "we'll be willing to pay for what we want, within reason."

Commissioners hope to select their final choice in early October, possibly at a special meeting Wednesday, October 5, or their regular meeting October 12, then seek approval as quickly as possible from the council and township board.

Talbot's pay scale a puzzle

A strange development of the recreation director search has been the pay granted to interim director Pete Talbot. Until the resignation of former Director Ed Kricitz July 1, Talbot had been in a program supervisor for the department.

Talbot, the personnel committee of the commission agreed, would be paid at a rate two-thirds of the way between Kricitz' hourly salary and Talbot's.

Commissioner Gary Sixt had contacted Township Supervisor John MacDonald to find out what that rate had been. But, as Sixt told commissioners at last week's meeting, "I later found I was erroneously given Ed's pay rate. We wound up paying Pete more than we paid Ed. Our formula was right, but we had the wrong figure for Ed's pay scale."

Apparently, Talbot was completely unaware there was a formula used to determine his new wage scale, which was 48 cents per hour higher than it should have been. The mistake was found out in mid-August, and MacDonald, who was under the impression Talbot was aware of the formula, sent a letter to Talbot informing him of the error August 22.

Although Sixt and Sylvestre wanted to continue paying Talbot at the same rate, City Council and Township Board members objected, and Talbot's salary was cut back immediately, but not retroactively. "The pay rate is now less than it would be for an entry-level director," Sixt reported.

Sylvestre and Sixt explained the mistake to Recreation Commissioners at last week's meeting, and asked for retroactive approval of their action. "We had thought we didn't need Commission approval for determining Pete's pay rate, but we later found out we did," Sylvestre explained. Approval was unanimous.

Scrub down

Members of Northville High School's Junior Class found last Saturday that a little suds and a lot of elbow grease go a long way. Students in the Class of '85 sponsored a car wash Saturday in the parking lot of Detroit Federal Savings and Loan to help raise funds for the Junior Class treasury. Students working at the car wash reported that more than 80 cars had been washed by noon. Though most of the scrubbers were a little fatigued by the afternoon, everyone took part in washing the Porsche pictured above. Record photo by Steve Fecht.

the 18-ton crucifix at Indian River as well as the Boy and Bear at Northland shopping center and a full-length figure of Henry Ford I for the Centennial Library in Dearborn.

He also is known for his fountain figures, such as those in the Saints and Sinner Fountain at Oakland University.

O'Brien emphasized that the groups were "not talking costs" with the sculptor at this point. In some instances, grant monies is available for arts projects, City Manager Steven Walters commented at the luncheon at MacKinnon's.

He has a reputation, O'Brien explained, for taking commissions only because he is interested in them. As he has done with several civic sculptures, Fredericks is known to have waived his fee for Spirit which ended up costing the sculptor money. However, he has observed that it accomplished his goal of "tying the building to the ground."

In Northville, he commented to his hosts on the "fantastic" location of the high school atop the Eight Mile hill, expressing the hope that the renovations planned still would take advantage of the view. He also admired the architectural detail of the buildings of the former child development center and said he would like to pay a return visit to the Mill Race Village.

Stop signs opposed by trustee

Northville Township trustee Richard E. Allen disagrees strongly with the Wayne County Road Commission's decision to make the intersection of Main and Clement on the west side of the township a four-way stop — and wants to see what the township can do to void it.

"I was told it was a staff decision," he reported at the September 8 meeting of the board of trustees. "They gave the rationale the fact that vegetation hinders vision in the area."

Allen said his concern is that westbound vehicles on Main will not be able to stop when the weather is icy or slippery and gain traction to climb the hill.

He said that he told road commissioner T. R. Rushlow that a school bus will not be able to stop and make the grade up the hill on West Main.

"I was told it could make a rolling stop," Allen reported, noting that such a stop is "ridiculous" as it is illegal.

The board pointed out that the township has an ordinance to deal with obstructions to drivers' vision, and Supervisor John MacDonald agreed to check into the matter with the road commission. Allen said he understands Rushlow is a local resident.

At the special session September 15 Allen reported the road commission had been out and had "firmly implanted" new stop signs on Main.

He said he sees no reason the intersection could not be a three-way stop with the warning sign posted before the intersection.

Clerk Susan Heintz reported she has sent letters to residents in the area advising them of the county's action. She added she agrees with Allen that the intersection needs re-evaluation as it was pointed out that an eastbound vehicle coming down the hill in bad weather also could have difficulty coming to a stop.

A red-and-black 1970 Ford Mustang Mach 1 was reported stolen from the driveway of a home on old Novi Road between 10 p.m., Monday, September 12, and 2:30 a.m., Tuesday, September 13. The car was reportedly in good condition, had new tires, four-speed standard transmission, AM/FM radio, and was valued at $2800. The "M" in the car's design lettering was missing from the car at the time of its theft.

The breaking and entering of the garage of a home on Sherrie Lane between 7 p.m. Friday and 11 p.m. Saturday resulted in the theft of nearly $400 worth of tools.

Among items reported stolen were: a Craftsman vibrating sander, valued at $54; two two-piece toolboxes, one valued at $20, the other at $28; a 15-piece Billing socket set with ratchet valued at $90; two sets of sockets, together valued at $30; and assorted tools valued at $95.

Police report no suspects in connection with the incident.

A possible fire-bomb was discovered by a Michigan Bell employee near Bell offices, 1045 North Center Street at 4:34 p.m. Friday. Confiscated as evidence was a broken bottle with a hole in its cap apparently used for a fuse.

No suspects have been reported in connection with the incident.

...In the township

Items with an estimated value of $1,190 were stolen from a Portis residence sometime between 6:30 and 11:45 p.m. September 13, township police report.

The complainant told police that unknown suspects broke into the residence by climbing upon a central air conditioning unit and prying out a screen in a kitchen window.

According to the police report, the downstairs den area and the upstairs master bedroom were ransacked. A jewelry box was stolen from the master bedroom.

The complainant further stated that the family room doorwall doors were open and that a brown vinyl briefcase had been removed from the den and placed behind a bush just off the patio.

The officer at the scene confiscated a flash light from the top of the central air conditioning unit. The light still had a black sock pulled over the top of it.

Items stolen included a $250 Cannon A-1 camera, $75 Cannon lens, $70 solid wood and brass jewelry box, $150 Waltham silver watch, $250 pocket watch with gold chain, $100 in collar pins, $100 initial collar pin, $125 white gold and blue stone University of Michigan class ring and a $70 gold Notre Dame High School ring.

The complainant later told police he received a call from a Detroit resident who found several personal papers and credit cards in the complainant's name.

The Detroit resident indicated the items were found in the roadway at Pilgrim and Burgess in Detroit.

An estimated $1,700 in items were stolen from a Waterfall residence sometime between 11 a.m. September 15 and 7 p.m. September 17, township police report.

Police were contacted by the complainant who noted she had been watching the Waterfall residence while the owners were on vacation when the incident occurred.

The complainant said she did not know where the owners were or how to contact them. However, the complainant told police the owners would be returning September 18.

According to the police report, the residence was not among the homes on the vacation-check list with the township police department.

Police reported that unknown subjects entered the residence through a rear door. Signs of forced entry — pry marks possibly from a screwdriver — were noted on the door.

The complainant told police the home was secure at 11 a.m. September 15. She further stated that neither she nor her family saw or heard anything during the time the incident occurred.

Police at the scene found the main floor den and two upstairs bedrooms ransacked.

The complainant could not tell police if anything was stolen.

The owners of the residence were contacted by township police at 4 p.m. September 16. The owner told the officer that items stolen included a $569 Montgomery Ward video cassette recorder, $60 Omnicom cable TV hook-up, $200 video game, 15 cartridges valued at $375, a $50 Vivitar instamatic camera, $480 microwave oven and $100 in change removed from two cans in the upstairs bedrooms.

Neither the owner nor the complainant have suspects at this time.

Items with an estimated value of $1,350 were stolen from the vehicle of a Seven Mile apartment complex resident sometime between 9 p.m. September 13 and 7:45 a.m. September 14, township police report.

The complainant told police that unknown suspects gained entry to the vehicle by breaking the rear left window of his '79 Oldsmobile Cutlass. He further stated the vehicle was parked in the north-side parking lot of the apartment complex at the time the incident occurred.

The complainant told police he had packed the car the evening of September 13 in anticipation of going to Flint for a few days.

The complainant further stated that he neither saw nor heard anything at the time the incident occurred.

There are no witnesses or suspects at this time.

Our Opinion

Don't move prison site

In announcing the intention to move a planned state prison "only a mile east" in Northville Township from Beck and Five Mile to the Plymouth Center for Human Development property on Sheldon, state officials are ignoring the difference that mile would make to the community.

To shift the planned multi-security regional prison from the more remote site near the Phoenix correctional facility to the much more centrally located PCHD property violates the spirit of an agreement made five years ago with township officials and residents. They agreed to the new prison in that area rather than one at the abandoned Wayne County Child Development Center. That prison was to be the last in the township and a prototype of the new regional prison concept.

Since then, the Wayne County Child Development Center has been planned as the Cavanagh Elderly Village with some $120,000 in federal grants already spent to get it off the ground. It is designed to be one of the largest senior citizen projects anywhere.

If the prison is shifted to the Plymouth Center property, however, its entrance would be, as Senator R. Robert Geake pointed out, "almost across the street." Township Clerk Susan Heintz is right when she says, "the prison in that location would be the end of the elderly village" because security is one of the prime concerns of the elderly.

State Representative Gerald Law, recalling that both Northville and Plymouth held many public hearings about the prison five years ago before the planned prison was accepted, said rightly that the state would be reneging on its promise to the people of the community.

The state is saying the move with renovation of the center is proposed as a way to save $20 million over construction of the new prison, but Law and others point out that $1 million has been expended at the planned site. Township officials note that water and sewer facilities already are installed at the Beck-Five Mile site which state officials say would be abandoned.

Law is right in asking to see the architect's study showing the Plymouth center will be $20 million cheaper to renovate, but what if it is? Law also is on target with his concern that this could be a "stop-gap" measure sought to alleviate an immediate need for prison space. Douglas B. Roberts, acting director of the Michigan Department of Management and Budget, and Perry M. Johnson, director of the Michigan Department of Corrections, stated the need is increasing for prison space as they made the announcement last week that authorization for the change would be sought from the Legislature. With the proposed change the community would be getting a medium security facility rather than the regional prototype.

Johnson also said the state will continue to seek regional prison sites in Detroit and elsewhere. If this is the case, then there is absolutely no long term saving from renovating PCHD — it is actually an addition to the prison system and its costs should be stated as such. The southeast Michigan region that would have been served by the Five Mile and Beck prison will still need a regional facility at a later date — at a cost probably greater than that of carrying through on the project now.

We think the corrections department should allow the prototype regional prison to be built at Beck and Five Mile, as planned. Not to do so would be throwing away at least $1 million and probably a great deal more. If corrections officials can justify an additional prison, let it be constructed elsewhere. We agree with Senator Geake who has urged the state to seek a site in Detroit inasmuch as most prisoners come from there, and a Detroit location would place prisoners closer to their families, making visitation easier.

It is time that the state realize fully the burden the township already bears with 30 percent of its land not taxable. Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital on Seven Mile (Northville State Hospital), Hawthorn Center, Northville State Police Post, Maybury State Park, Hines Parkway and the vacant former Wayne County Child Development Center as well as the Plymouth Center for Human Development all are untaxed property.

Almost unnoticed in the hub-bub surrounding last week's announcement is the corrections department statement that it intends to operate the PCHD "in addition to" the Phoenix site. When the regional prison plan was put forward, township residents were told Phoenix would be closed eventually, perhaps within a few years of the regional system's implementation. Now we find that Phoenix, too, is to remain in place. That might be acceptable if the two prisons are contiguous, as they would be at Five and Beck. With the PCHD plan, however, the township would be burdened with prisons at separated sites rather than in a consolidated area.

Northville State Hospital alone poses problems to police and residents with at least one or two walkaway inmates daily. The state has not seen fit to build a security fence to assist with this problem — but apparently it has no concern about adding another potential one to it.

If the site is moved to the Plymouth Center, the community easily could lose the $20 million the state proposes to "save" by the demise of the Cavanagh Elderly Village. The project when completed would have added to the township's tax roll and provided a new economic base in the community.

We hope the Blanchard administration will consider the impact of such a move carefully and immediately. We also expect our state legislators to make every possible effort to fight the move. Although it appears innocuous on its surface, the latest corrections department plan should be opposed every bit as vigorously as was its proposed use of the child development center.

The tug of war: a sports editor's view

Anybody care about the opinion of the sports editor of a small Michigan newspaper about the Russian attack on the North Korean jetliner?

No.

Maybe that's why I'll stick my neck out.

I've been amazed by the incredible speed with which people have made up their minds about the incident — who's to blame, in particular. Anti-communists point to it as indisputable evidence that the Iron Curtain shrouds a teeming well of subhumans. The "justification" of Kremlin leaders reflects a similar assumption of American malevolence.

I asked my wise friend David what he thought of the incident. He paused for a moment and said, "They had every right to shoot the plane down. But they shouldn't have done it."

David purposefully simplified the issue, of course. What could be accomplished by two midwesterners discussing in detail only what's fed them in the Detroit dailies, network news and what they can suppose from their own experience of human nature?

Less than 24 hours after the tragedy, television news producers were figuring out how best to package the event with attention-grabbing, lurid graphics and artful videotape splicing. Here are President Reagan's generic phrases of outrage. Here are the families mourning. Here are multi-color time-frame computer maps tracing the route of the jetliner and fighter plane. TWO HUNDRED SIXTY-NINE DEAD. More after these words from McDonald's. I'm supposed to discern right and wrong, truth from this?

The senselessness of the deaths is indisputable. But the blame for it is no more one-sided than a prism. Mr. Andropov may be unaware of that. Mr. Reagan may be unaware of that. More likely they're afraid of the political losses they would sustain by acknowledging that publicly. It looks to me like they shot it down because they took very seriously the idea we were spying, and, no, as their subsequent remarks make clear, it appears they didn't brood very much about the possibility of their being wrong. It's just very sad the Soviets have come to mistrust us that much.

The most barbaric aspect of the whole mess is that we people, we Americans and Russians who produce the wealth, economic clout and weaponry of the world, can't install leaders in power who don't reflect the darkest aspects of our character. To reasonable men and women, the appropriate response to something like the tragedy would be for our nation's leaders to embrace and cry and promise something like this must never happen again, instead of fomenting even more bad blood in theatrical "wounded innocent" diplomatic exchanges.

But maybe you and I know that, and maybe it's nothing but that instinctive knowledge that keeps the worst from happening. And I'm certain that in the housing projects of suburban Moscow, other people know that and feel that, too.

David's simplification is useful, I think. They had every right to shoot it down, but they shouldn't have done it. Sometimes I wonder, what are leaders doing but seeking justifications for acts of hostility. Congress and Mr. Reagan's characteristic seizure of this opportunity to rush through a record-breaking new arms package seems to me as transparently opportunistic a marketing move as designer leotards. Sure they now have every right to do so, but whether we should is another thing entirely.

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

My lifemate and I discuss things besides cats, kittens and possums. Sometimes we discuss world problems.

Take last week, for instance. We were watching the Syrians bad-mouth the United States on Nightline when she suddenly announced her plan for getting back at Syria, Russia and all those other Commie nations.

"Look at that," she said, as the camera swept across the table while the Syrian leaders continued their diatribe.

"Every one of those characters has a can of Pepsi-Cola sitting in front of them. They're conducting an anti-American press conference while sucking on their good, old American Pepsi cans."

That's when it hit her — the plan for economic sanctions.

"I don't see why we pussy-foot around with grain embargoes when it doesn't seem to do any good anyway," she said, developing her policy while Ted Koppel prated on in the background.

"Let's hit 'em where it hurts," she continued. "Take away their Pepsi, cut off Coca-Cola, put an embargo on Kentucky Fried Chicken."

"Let's see those turkeys try to get along without Big Macs and Whoppers. There'll be rioting in the streets when those Russian and Syrian teenagers find out they can't get genuine American Levis anymore."

"We could even extend our embargoes to television re-runs," she continued. "Take Charlie's Angels off the air. People are going to get pretty upset when we cancel I Love Lucy and they have to listen to the Ayatollah's speeches instead."

"If they want to get tough, we should get tough right back ... really tough. Let's tell 'em that people who bad-mouth America can't listen to Beach Boy records. See what happens when we limit exports of John Travolta movies."

"Do you really think it will work?" I asked, impressed by the originality of her proposal.

"Of course it will work," she fired back. "Think about how upset you get when I cut off your Pepsi supply."

Residents voice support for bond issue

To the Editor:

Because of the foresight and commitment to the future, by the residents of Northville, we were members of the first class to graduate from the present high school.

That was 24 years ago. Since that time portions of the building and its equipment have become obsolete.

A very important bond issue will come before you on October 3. Its passage will provide money for major repairs and the purchase of new technical equipment so needed by our children to successfully compete in today's workplace.

Your city has proven, through its renovation and improvements downtown, that Northville has become a more attractive and desirable place to live.

Our high school is now in need of renovation and improvement to maintain the pride and fine reputation we have always enjoyed.

Sincerely,
N.C. and Diane Schrader

To the Editor:

I moved my family from California to Michigan in April of this year. Prior to making this move, my wife and I very carefully evaluated several communities before choosing Northville.

With children in both junior high school and senior high school, we visited both facilities and were justifiably pleased with the Meads Mill complex and their academic programs.

The high school campus showed obvious signs of wear and tear both inside and out, but promised an adequate academic program.

Questions prompted answers revealing hoped for renovations of the high school in 1984 to meet the quality educational needs of a growing Northville community.

On October 3, the people of Northville will have the opportunity to vote for renovation of Northville High School. This is an important project, one which is critical to the future of the Northville community. We need this renovation to provide for the academic needs of our children as we move into the age of high technology.

I would like to take this opportunity to urge the people of Northville to support the bond issue to insure continued academic excellence at Northville High School.

Sincerely,
Gary A. Strunk

Complaint unwarranted

To the Editor:

In response to an article which appeared in your paper September 7, "Ordinance revision would allow Downs trailer," I think Mr. Pauli's complaint is the only thing that stinks, — not the manure.

The "grounds keeper," as you call him, is a very fine and respected horse man. The trailer in which he lives has always been kept very clean and lovely.

Not only does he do a fine job of keeping things secure, he keeps the grounds in top shape.

Maybe Mr. Pauli should stop being petty about something so small. What would the city be without Northville Downs.

Sue O'Hare

City council endorses proposed bond issue

After hearing a presentation by Northville Public Schools Superintendent George Bell Monday night, city council unanimously endorsed a "yes" vote on the school board's proposed $7.75 million bond issue to finance high school renovation.

The bond issue goes to the voters October 3. Council's action constitutes a public statement supporting the bond issue and asking citizens to vote in favor of it.

Bell's presentation outlined the plans to renovate Northville High School, emphasizing the need for instructional and energy-saving purposes. He said the proposal, generated by a citizens' committee, is the next major step involved in a program of improving the school district.

Bell said he believes earlier measures such as closing the campus, naming a new high school principal, lengthening the school day and stiffening graduation requirements have had a positive effect on the school and community perceptions of it, but that the renovation is needed to better prepare students "for the high tech world" they will enter upon graduation.

Several council members, including Paul Folino and Mayor Paul Vernon had laudatory comments about improvements at the high school this year. Bell said he believes many of the problems that reflected on the school's image have been resolved and that now it is the physical plant that needs improvement.

In opening his presentation, Bell cited a recent incident as indicative of changes implemented at the high school this year.

"This morning, apparently because of the closed campus and stricter rules," he related, "we discovered a couple of students had painted the words 'Welcome to Alcatraz' on the school door."

"It was a very neat job — they used a stencil and spray paint," Bell continued. "We had those words painted over before the students arrived for school this morning, and the students involved were identified and apprehended by the second hour class period. They were suspended, and it is expected they will make restitution for the damages."

"That is the Northville High School is run now, and that's the way it runs from now on."

Later in his presentation, Bell said this incident proved "difficult" for all involved — the principal who had to suspend the students, the students and their parents. The measure was necessary, he said, to instill a sense of respect and discipline at the school.

"If you go up to Northville High School today, you will see it is a different place — maybe not so different from what it was 10 years ago, I can't say, I don't know. But it is different from what it was last year and the year before that, I guarantee you."

Bell said he believes the school bonding issue will receive community support once it is demonstrated that the "lack of organization and leadership" that were causing problems have been resolved.

After Bell described the basic plan to renovate and make additions to the high school, council member Burton DeRusha posed questions regarding the financing and staffing the project would require.

Bell noted that the maximum debt millage levy for state school districts is 7 mills — which Northville taxpayers already pay. "This won't increase taxes above the seven mills," he explained. "You'll pay seven mills for a longer time, but you won't pay any more than the seven mills you pay now."

Without the new debt, Bell added, there would be tax decrease "of a fractional mill" in 1985. If the high school bond issue is approved, the decrease will not come until 1989 or 1990, he said later, in response to questions. It will take 30 years to pay off the new debt, he added.

The $7.75 million figure is based upon the estimated $8 million construction cost, with the difference to be made up of interest earnings on the money received when bonds are issued.

There will be additional staff at the high school after renovation, Bell said, but only because the plan is to implement the middle school concept and move ninth graders up to the high school. "Overall, staffing will be the same. We will not exceed the 25 pupil (per teacher) ratio," he explained.

No additional maintenance staff will be required either, Bell said in response to another DeRusha question. Particular attention will be paid to using surfaces that require little maintenance during the restoration, he said, and designs for other parts of the building will reduce "the opportunity for vandalism."

DeRusha voted with the rest of council to endorse the bond issue, but stated some reservations. "There's always a hook in these things," he said. "You've changed my mind somewhat, but I keep thinking there's something else there and I just haven't asked the right question yet."

Bell also made the presentation of the bond issue proposal to the Northville Township Board of Trustees at a special meeting last Thursday.

Competency exams needed

Graduating high school students and new teachers alike would have to pass competency tests under a Republican education proposal setting tougher curriculum and certification standards for Michigan public schools, according to 35th District State Representative Gerald H. Law, who represents Northville Township and the Wayne County portion of the City of Northville.

The proposal also earmarks 1.5 percent of the revenue generated by the state individual income tax to "adequately fund K-12 education."

"By dedicating part of the income tax we not only pump an extra $420 million into the schools, but we clearly state that education is our number one priority," said Law.

"Over the past decade education funding has declined seriously. We can reverse that trend by reordering the budget, but money is only part of the solution," he continued.

"A comprehensive program that ensures that teachers are well-prepared to teach and that high school graduates have met specific educational standards is essential," Law said.

According to Law, Michigan's graduation requirements — a single class in civics — are the most lax in the nation. The state is one of only four without periodic teacher preparation program approval and one of only 12 that have taken no action in the area of teacher competency.

By R. ROBERT GEAKE
State Senator

Activity is picking up at the State Capitol as legislators return from their summer recess. With the start of the fall session, many constituents are wondering what will occupy the legislative agenda in the coming months.

It is clear that the tax and spend policies enacted by the Democrat-controlled Legislature in the first six months did nothing to address the chronic problems facing our state — economic instability and excessively high unemployment.

We must concentrate on a bipartisan effort to improve Michigan's economic climate so that there will be jobs for the unemployed men and women. As I see it, there are four major issues which will receive the Legislature's attention early on in the session: employing and training the state's welfare population, economic development, education and what to do with the budget surplus.

Employment and Training vs. Energy Assistance

Republicans have introduced a plan that would use most of the $43 million set aside in the Social Services budget for next year to require employable, able-bodied recipients of public assistance to participate in employment and training activities or lose their eligibility for welfare benefits.

Called the Michigan Opportunity and Skills Training (MOST) Act the legislation is designed to help persons dependent on the welfare system out of the web of poverty and into the world of work. Democrats want the money spent on increased home heating assistance for the poor. So with the winter season just around the corner, we can expect a heated debate over this issue.

Economic Development

Most of the debate over economic development issues will center on the Michigan Strategic Investment Fund, proposed by Governor Blanchard to make available $54 million in state money for capital ventures.

While this fund is well-intended, serious questions arise over the role of big government and other necessary business incentives. It does no good to finance hundreds of new small and medium-size businesses when state taxes and regulations make it difficult if not impossible for those businesses to make a profit.

Education

Republicans will be introducing a comprehensive education package which contains several proposed reforms, including stronger curriculum requirements, competency testing for students and new teachers, and a funding mechanism that will assure adequate state support for a quality education system.

Budget Surplus

Although I don't like to say "I told you so" the fact is that Republicans were right during the debate over Governor Blanchard's 38 percent tax increase. The Senate Fiscal Agency and other budget experts were predicting a surplus of around $150 million. Still others are projecting the surplus to be as high as $198 million.

New teaching positions approved by school board

For the first time in nearly a decade, the Northville Board of Education gave its unanimous approval to the administration's request for additional teaching staff due to an increase in student enrollment.

At its meeting Monday night, the board approved the administration's request for an additional 1.8 teaching positions. The new positions include a full time teacher at Moraine, a six-tenths teacher at Cooke and a two-tenths elementary physical education teacher.

School Superintendent George Bell told the board that the administration projected in June that student enrollment in the district would decline by approximately 144 students in the 1983-84 school year.

However, he noted that the new housing starts — particularly along Eight Mile and Taft Road — have caused a "bulge of student enrollments at Cooke and Moraine.

"As of the first Friday (September 9), we were down 40 students," Bell said. "We have 97 more students than anticipated."

The largest influx of new students is at Moraine where 29 additional students have enrolled. Cooke Junior High has 28 new students this year.

Other schools with increased enrollments are Amerman with 12 new students, Winchester with two new students, Meads Mill with one and the high school with 29. Silver Springs enrollment declined by only two students.

Bell noted at Monday's board meeting that "it's the first time in about seven years that enrollment hasn't declined about four percent."

While the board approved the hiring of additional teachers Monday night, Bell already had directed the administration to hire new teachers prior to the start of the school year in anticipation of the enrollment increase.

Bell said additional teachers were hired before the start of the 1983-84 school year so as "not to disrupt classes."

Director of Personnel Debra Wangrud noted that the district recalled all teachers eligible for designated positions before hiring new staff members.

Probationary contracts for five new teachers were approved by the board Monday night. New teachers in the district are Vicki Zidell, who will teach high school mathematics and biology; Patricia Baird, junior high typing; Lawrence Taylor, movement education-physical education at the elementary schools and Cooke; Dennis Timothy Bartlett, junior high vocal Heinrich, Cooke mathematics and music.

Gam Rad rides high tech to the big time

By TRISH COATES

"Make no small plans," Architect Daniel Burnham once said.

One Novi company has taken his advice to heart. Gam Rad, Inc., a supplier of medical instruments and water pollution control equipment, is a small company now, but has big plans for the future.

Its seven-year growth plan calls for pushing total sales volume over the $100 million mark from its current level of $1 million.

Summing up the long-term goal of the company, Founder and President James J. Shea said, "We want to be a big company."

Shea, however, is basing his projections on more than wishful thinking.

"We understand the industry and are positioned in a rapidly growing market," he said. "We're positioned to grow with the market as the market expands."

By almost doubling its sales during the past year, Gam Rad moved up to the 89th spot on The Detroit magazine's "Michigan 100," an annual ranking of the state's top public manufacturers. This year's list was published in the magazine's August issue.

Shea is justifiably proud of the firm and its success. In 1967 he bought the firm's name and charter for $600 and parlayed that investment into a $1 million dream come true.

Originally, Gam Rad sold one product, an X-ray testing lab which since has been phased out. The name Gam Rad, in fact, comes from the term gamma radiation. Next in line was a fluid analyzer, and the waste water control side of the business grew from there.

In the early days, pollution control was called process recycling, Shea said. The idea of decreasing pollution levels wasn't yet in vogue. In the late 1960s, many companies sought to capture waste products simply because valuable materials were being discarded.

The early pollution projects involving Gam Rad products recovered and cleaned waste for economic advantage, not environmental concerns, Shea said.

Latest Gam Rad venture is lasers —
Chuck Miller assembles components

Later, when environmentalism was at a peak, Gam Rad already had the momentum in the field to make the most of the situation.

As business picked up, Gam Rad expanded into the field of medical instrumentation with such products as tissue and blood analyzers. Shea called his products "the Cadillac of the industry."

President James Shea has big dreams for Gam Rad's future

The two product lines, medical instruments and pollution-control devices, are not as dissimilar as they at first appear.

"The commonality turned out to be manufacturing techniques and personnel," said Shea. "The marketing is diverse and different."

With its latest acquisition, the Laser Systems Corporation of Ann Arbor, the company expects to move to the forefront of the "high-tech" field. The products and technology gained from Laser Systems hold great potential, according to Shea.

"People get excited about our laser technology," he said. "We sell technology."

Gam Rad received tremendous technological capabilities in the deal with Laser Systems. Ten patents and "cabinets full of drawings" were part of the acquisition, Shea said. Much of the technology is new and won't be fully utilized for a few years, but by tapping into this technology now, Gam Rad is positioned to grow as the market grows, he said. "New technology will create new growth markets."

Several practical applications do exist now for laser products. A Gam Rad industrial laser is the central part of a device used by the New Jersey State Police to analyze such items as paint, hair and flesh. It's been determined that chemical composition is as unique as fingerprints, and the instrument is important in the crime lab.

Gam Rad also uses lasers to develop infrared security systems. These burglar alarms are especially helpful in patrolling large areas such as warehouses or land perimeters.

A Pennsylvania police department is experimenting with an infrared system to replace radar. Municipalities in that state cannot use radar, so a reliable infrared system could serve their needs.

In order to develop the potential in lasers and grow into a large manufacturer, Gam Rad will have to make further changes in its product line, Shea said. In addition to making new laser products, Shea wants to improve the medical mix and the offerings in the waste water area.

It takes a lot of money to develop new products, and the company's reserves currently are tied up. To improve its capital standings, Gam Rad will phase out its packaged laboratories section. This division is a high-volume, low-gross area which absorbs tremendous amounts of money, Shea said. Also, it's handling more like a wholesale operation, and he wants to concentrate on manufacturing. Freeing the resources from the labs division will provide needed capital.

Three more acquisitions are in the works, but not finalized. These will improve the medical supplies division and strengthen the company's competitive position.

Careful marketing strategy is only one reason Shea is confident his company will make the difficult transition from a small to large business. Providing a high-quality product and paying attention to customer needs are the others.

Shea believes his products are of a very high quality and are competitively priced. Most of the actual manufacturing is done in the company's California plant. The electrodes manufactured at the plant are made from scratch, even down to making glass for the instruments. This way, quality control remains in Gam Rad's hands.

In a major effort to bring the firm up to date, Shea installed an extensive IBM computer system which performs a wide range of functions. The computer prevents mistakes and alerts employees to problems. Personalized letters, shipping orders, inventory control, even phone communications are handled by the computer system.

Shea said the computerization was essential to the expansion plan. "This is what we had to do to break the shackles of being a small company," he said. "Even IBM is amazed by what a small company is doing. We can do just about anything a big company can do."

The Gam Rad president suggested that some small businesses are intimidated by the work and expense involved in moving forward. "Everyone wants the benefits; no one wants the work."

One good example of the effectiveness of the computer system is the bookkeeping department. The company has one bookkeeper. Her work load has more than doubled in six years, but her hours haven't increased. She not only does substantially more work, her job satisfaction is higher. Shea said that most other companies would have had to hire another employee.

Shipping times have been reduced through the use of the computer. All the day's orders can be sent via telephone from the computer in Novi to a computer in California in a matter of minutes.

Jobless benefit is cut

Extended federal unemployment benefits for some 70,400 jobless workers in Michigan are ending two weeks earlier due to a federal requirement, the Michigan Employment Security Commission reported in late August.

The cutback in the Federal Supplemental Compensation (FSC) program from 10 to eight weeks of benefits marks the third time since early June that unemployment benefits in Michigan have been cut due to a dropping claimload. Although the MESCC reports that the claimload decline is due largely to unemployed persons exhausting benefits rather than finding jobs, federal rules changes earlier this year link the FSC program to claimload, not the unemployment rate.

MESCC Director S. Martin Taylor explained that federal law requires the state to reduce the FSC benefit maximum by two weeks because of the continuing decline in the number receiving regular state unemployment benefits, which can last up to 26 weeks.

Some 17,000 unemployed workers were affected almost immediately as their benefits were cut off a week or two earlier than expected in the last two weeks of August.

Within the past several months jobless benefits have declined 31 weeks in Michigan, falling from a maximum 65 weeks for some to the new maximum of 34 weeks. These losses resulted from the change in FSC legislation and drops in Michigan's insured unemployment rate (the ratio of those claiming state benefits to those working in jobs covered by state unemployment insurance law).

The IUR differs significantly from the unemployment rate. The IUR fell to 3.93 percent in the week ending August 6 — the July unemployment rate was reported at 13.1 percent. When the IUR fell below four percent, it triggered the benefit reduction. Once a 14-week program, it has been reduced in two week increments as the IUR fell below first six, then five, then four percent.

Similarly, when the IUR fell below six percent in late May, the federal extended benefit program (EB), which had supplied 13 weeks of benefits, ended entirely.

State newsletter redesigned

The "Michigan Outlook," official publication of the Michigan Department of Commerce, has a new format and a new mission beginning with the August issue.

The 16-page bimonthly newsletter will serve as an information source for Michigan businesses and communities. It will focus on types of assistance the department can offer, programs being established and governmental initiatives.

Further, it will highlight some of the positive things happening throughout Michigan — new businesses that have located in the state, those that have expanded, communities that have received state grants, economic diversification efforts and high technology developments.

"One of the primary goals of Governor Blanchard and this department is to strengthen and diversify the state's economy," Gerson added. "The 'Michigan Outlook' is one means of achieving that goal by reaching as many businesses and communities as possible."

Michigan develops own 'Silicon Ridge'

By RONALD R. WATCHKE

California has its Silicon Valley. Boston has Route 128 and North Carolina the Research Triangle.

Not to be left out, Michigan has what some have come to call the Silicon Ridge.

Silicon Ridge runs from Troy in the east through Farmington Hills and west to Ann Arbor. Similar to other locales where high technology industries have clustered, the Silicon Ridge previously was farmland.

Orchards and vineyards once traversed the Silicon Valley. Potato and vegetable farms were located along Route 128, and rich tobacco fields were found in the metropolitan areas around Raleigh and Durham, South Carolina.

But it took more than the availability of rich farmland to cultivate high technology industries. All major concentrations of high technology industries have similar and important characteristics which aided their growth and expansion as well as their attraction to other high tech industries.

Each of the three developed around two or three major research universities. The Silicon Valley had the University of California at Berkeley and Stanford University at Palo Alto.

Route 128 had Harvard and Massachusetts Institute of Technology. And the Research Triangle had Duke, the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and North Carolina State at Raleigh.

Along with this education/research environment came a highly sophisticated and well-trained work force of PhDs, engineers and research scientists. The quality of life in these areas also aided in drawing new blood to add to the already highly skilled work force.

Each high tech cluster is located in close proximity to a major urban population center. This allowed for greater congressional representation, thus increasing the potential for more and larger government contracts.

Coupled with large endowments from the private sector, the universities were able to attract some of the most sought after scholars and scientists in the country and from abroad.

Looking at a map of the United States, one can readily see the Silicon Valley represents high technology in the West. Route 128 around Boston depicts the East, and the Research Triangle portrays high tech in the South.

Missing from the map is a high tech center geographically located in the Midwest. The two obvious metropolitan areas are Chicago and Greater Detroit.

I believe Detroit has the clear-cut advantage based upon its international reputation as the leading tool manufacturing and metal machining center. Metropolitan Detroit also scores high on the list of factors which made the other high tech centers successful.

The Detroit Metropolitan area has several major research universities. There is Wayne State, University of Michigan in Ann Arbor and Oakland University in Rochester. In addition, Michigan State University with its molecular biology research is less than 100 miles away.

The quality of life in southeastern Michigan is excellent with numerous cultural and recreational opportunities. All four major universities are well-respected and have a track record of receiving significant federal contracts as well as private gifts and grants.

Another factor in Metro Detroit's favor is substantial amounts of venture capital available for investment. Also, state government is committed verbally and financially to attract new and expand extant high technology industries.

It is not premature to refer to the area as Michigan's Silicon Ridge. Estimates indicate between 100 and 125 high technology industries are located on and around the Silicon Ridge.

Approximately 30 companies are in Troy alone, with an additional 20 in the Ann Arbor-Plymouth area. The remaining high tech industries are in Farmington Hills, Rochester, Southfield, Redford and Livonia.

Here are a few high technology industries and their locations on the Silicon Ridge.

ADP, Ann Arbor; Bernal Rotary Systems, Troy; Burroughs Corporation, Plymouth; Energy Conversion Devices, Troy; Ex-Cell-O, Troy.

Gelman Sciences, Ann Arbor; GMF Robotics, Troy; Honeywell, Southfield; IHI-Kemron, Farmington Hills; Inacom Computer Centers, Troy; Lucas Industries, Troy.

Success needs planning, confidence, says consultant

By PHILIP JEROME

Ron Ward is a subscriber to "the turtle theory" — the turtle only makes progress when it sticks its neck out. It's the type of "theory" which brings a smile to peoples' faces but also says a great deal about how to succeed in business.

Ward, who is president of Ward & Associates — a business consultant firm based in Novi, uses catchy stories like the turtle theory to illustrate his points when he is addressing various business groups.

Another of his favorite attention-getters is the Missouri weather rock. Holding a small rock aloft, Ward guarantees listeners that the rock is an infallible predictor of weather.

"Just hang it outside," he says. "If it's white, you know it's snowing. If it's wet, it's raining. If it's blowing back and forth, it's windy. And if it's dry, it's time to call Ward & Associates for a business consultation."

The point, he says, is that most businessmen wait until they're in a storm before they call a professional consultant to get advice on how to operate their businesses more efficiently and profitably.

Ward is the lone consultant in Ward & Associates, a firm he founded in 1982. He worked part-time in the consulting business the first year until deciding to make it his full-time profession in August of 1983.

"Everyone was doing well back in 1978 and '79 when the economy was booming, but then we hit the recession of the early '80s and everyone lost their confidence."

— Ron Ward
Business consultant

What type of credentials does he bring to the job of consulting other businessmen on how to operate their companies? Ward, now 45, was graduated from the University of Oklahoma with a major in mathematics and minors in business and economics.

His expertise, however, derives from 22 years of "hands-on" business experience. That experience includes 13 years as an executive with the Ford Motor Company. Additionally, he worked three years as general manager of a North American Area operation for Perkins Engines and four years as a vice president of sales with the Abex Corporation, a subsidiary of I.C. Industries.

"After 13 years of extensive training in market analysis, I feel that I have a Ph.D. in financial analysis," he said. "I can relate to a $4 billion corporation as well as I can to a $100,000 business. The basic philosophies are the same."

"I can go into a small business and within four hours tell the owner more about his business than he probably wants to know."

The problem with American business today, he says, is lack of confidence. "Everyone was doing well back in 1978 and '79 when the economy was booming, but then we hit the recession of the early '80s and everyone lost their confidence."

Governor names business execs to Corps

Charles S. Peltz of Northville and Joan Gorski-Panther of Milford agreed to serve in state government as members of the Governor's Executive Corps, Governor James Blanchard announced recently.

Peltz is Manager of Sales, International Operations for Federal Mogul and will be on loan from that position to work in the Office of International Development, Department of Commerce. He will receive $1 from the state and continue to receive his Federal Mogul salary.

Gorski-Panther, director of policy and benefits development for Detroit Edison will work under a similar arrangement with the Department of Management and Budget, Office of Health and Medical Affairs.

The two join five other Michigan executives working on a number of high priority projects related to the state economy, assisting state officials in analyzing and developing policy initiatives.

"I am pleased and gratified that so many of Michigan's major business concerns and some of their most talented and valuable employees have agreed to join in the effort to rebuild Michigan's economy," Blanchard said.

"A renewed spirit of cooperation between government and the private sector is necessary if Michigan is to remain competitive on a national and international basis. The Executive Corps will serve as a mechanism to further develop this relationship."

Commenting on his new position, Peltz said: "Since the days of fur trading, Michigan has been a part of the international business community."

"Based on Federal Mogul's international experience, it is my objective to assist the state's program to increase Michigan's role in international business through creating a greater awareness of export trade opportunities and facilitating Michigan business participation in overseas commerce."

Thomas F. Russell, chairman and chief executive officer of Federal Mogul added: "The Corps has the potential to provide state government with an infusion of ideas from experienced and talented representatives of the state business community, and it will also expose those business people to the governing institutions they often criticize. I think there is a real possibility that this interchange can promote greater understanding between the private and public sectors to the benefit of both bodies."

Peltz was treasurer and trustee of the Northville Board of Education from 1977-81 and also served on the Northville Community Recreation Commission.

Executive Corps members were chosen by a committee chaired by William E. LaMothe, chairman and chief executive officer of the Kellogg

Company of Battle Creek.

In addition to Peltz and Gorski-Panther, others who will serve are:

- Jean L. Frenais, Grosse Pointe Farms. Position: Vice President and General Manager, Americas Pacific Division, Burroughs. Executive Corps Placement: Department of Commerce, Office of International Development.
- Howard Ledbetter, Midland. Position: Manager, U.S. Area Tax Department, Dow. Executive Corps Placement: Department of Commerce, Office of Business and Tax Development.
- John Nequist, Battle Creek. Position: Director of Special Assignments, Kellogg. Executive Corps Placement: Cabinet Council on Jobs and Economic Development.
- David Peterson, Farmington Hills. Position: Manager, Information Systems, Detroit Edison. Executive Corps Placement: Department of Management and Budget, Data Systems Planning Division.
- James T. Riley, Birmingham. Position: Executive Assistant to Vice President and Group Executive for General Motors Truck and Bus Group, General Motors. Executive Corps Placement: Department of Commerce, Office of Strategy and Forecasting.

Programs feature Minority Business in October

October 1-7 has been proclaimed National Minority Business Week and Michigan Governor James Blanchard is to declare the entire month as Michigan's Minority Business Month.

In recognition of the month, the Southeastern Michigan Business Development Center (SMBDC) will sponsor several activities and programs to assist the growth and development of minority business.

Included are:

Seminars aid churches

National Bank of Detroit and the School for Ministry in Ann Arbor will sponsor a seminar October 20 to strengthen the financial planning skills of members of the religious community.

The seminar is the second of two called "Congregational Funding" which are the first of their kind in the Detroit area and are offered free of charge to financial leaders of Detroit area congregations.

"Religious leaders are frequently responsible for tending to the financial concerns of their congregations," said the Reverend Oscar L. Ice, director of the School for Ministry.

"The seminars grew out of suggestions made by local clergy members in discussion with NBD on how they might be better prepared for this role."

Topics covered are the establishment of personal trusts for planned donations by congregation members, investing congregational resources, and developing appropriate accounting, reporting and auditing standards.

The first seminar September 15 provided an overview of the three topics.

The October 20 seminar "Workshops for Congregational Financial Leaders" will consist of three concurrent study sessions exploring the topics in greater depth.

It is best suited for treasurers, members of financial committees, trustees and others with financial responsibilities.

Congregations may choose multiple registrations for this seminar at Marygrove College, 8425 W. McNichols in Detroit from 5:30 to 8:45 p.m. October 20.

- TCB (Taking Care of Business) at the Rooster-tail Friday, October 7 from 5-8 p.m. This reception with exhibits, refreshments and cash bar is to be a means for minority entrepreneurs to meet and do business together. Tickets, available from SMBDC, are $10. For further details, call 961-0903.
- Alternative Financing Strategies is a seminar slated Saturday October 8 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Wayne State University Student Center, Hilberry Lounge. Learn about UDAGs, the 503 program, limited partnerships, factoring of accounts receivable and securing venture capital in this free seminar. For reservations, phone SMBDC at the number above.
- Career Day October 8 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Wayne State University's Student Ballroom. This free business fair will allow high school students the opportunity to hear successful minority business owners discuss how to run a business. Featured speakers are motivational expert Ted Hunt and Barbara and Will Atkins, a successful husband and wife business team.

Scheduled participants include Joe Williams of Electronic Services Technologies who will bring a computer to give participants hands-on experience, wardrobe consultant Sherry Williams, a representative of Barden Cablevision and Charlie Grant, owner of Locker Room Sporting Goods Store. For reservations, call 961-0903.

Minority Business Development Agency (MBDA) Resource Seminar Tuesday, October 11 from 9 a.m. to noon at the Book Cadillac Hotel. The MBDA of the U.S. Department of Commerce is dedicated to helping minority business people establish or maintain successful enterprises. This free seminar will cover a variety of programs available through MBDA. William Erfourth from Alexander Grant, a consulting firm to MBDA which runs its import/export program, is a scheduled guest. For reservations, call SMBDC.

A complete calendar of activities during Minority Business Month is available from SMBDC or from the Michigan Department of Commerce, division of minority enterprise, (800) 292-9544.

The lack of confidence has been fuelled by declining economic growth. He notes that there have been more bankruptcies in 1980-82 than in any period in the history of the state.

Ward said the five biggest problems of business are cash flow, expense control, lack of sales, lack of marketing and inadequate strategic management.

As a consultant, he examines each of those areas and makes recommendations on how the business can be operated more efficiently.

"I look at the operating summary which provides an indication of whether the business is making any money," he explains. "I then look at expenses as a percentage of sales, which leads to a series of questions."

"If expenses as a percentage of sales are greater than the gross profit, the problem is expense control. The answer to most cash flow/expense problems is sales — profitable sales."

"How those sales are then projected via a growth plan generally determines the viability and vitality of a business."

Ward, who has consulted firms with annual sales ranging from $300,000 to $60 million, said he enjoys working with the smaller firms. "I get paid more for consulting a larger firm, but I get just as much satisfaction out of working with a smaller company," he says.

One of the keys to success, according to Ward, is obtaining professional advice. Referring again to the weather rock, he notes that most businesses don't seek professional advice until they're in a crisis situation.

"Most small businessmen are successful by luck, not by design," he says. "They just happen to be in the right place with the right product at the right time. I show people how to be successful by design."

Into that corner puddle
I will toss my thoughts.

The Unicorn

I chanced upon a unicorn,
a wondrous magical sight,
Sensed his unrelenting hope,
watched his dreams take flight.
I felt if only I could touch,
with open heart and eyes,
Without the ropes to tie him down,
without deceiving lies,
Then we could soar to untold lands remaining where we stood
And maybe, while we shared with each the moments that we could,
My hopes and dreams would be renewed,
his would grow much stronger
And from this form a rainbow love to last always or longer.

Words in Uncommon Usage

I don't care what you say
It doesn't matter too much nowadays
Of the songs that I sing
I know you don't hear a word that I say

Though you've known me for years
You think I've remained just the same
I'm sure you will take your notions of me
To your grave
I've done plenty of wrong
Though my intentions
Always were right
For my blundering moments
I humbly apologize

When I'm lost I hope that you'd
Give me the time of day
I'd do it for you
If it were the other way
Don't trust the gossip
That comes from unoccupied minds
It bends all the facts
And destroys all the reason with lies

There's little that's precious
And less that one can hold dear
And I hope that the ones that you love
Will always be near
If ever you need a shoulder upon which to cry
I hope that you know girl, that you can always use mine

PRC — tackling the arms race with peace

By KEVIN WILSON

In the face of rising tensions between the world's superpowers and open warfare in Central America and the Middle East, there is a small but growing group of area residents intent on working for peace.

Centered on a core of activists from the Nuclear Freeze movement, the group meets regularly at the recently-opened Peace Resource Center (PRC) at 17300 Haggerty Road.

The facility on the second floor of Newman House on the Schoolcraft College campus serves as headquarters for the Western Wayne Region Nuclear Freeze Campaign and as a gathering place for those interested in peace issues.

Among the Northville residents involved are Jim Steeber who acts as religious outreach coordinator for the PRC and Leona Riebling, who is a trained peace consultant (through the United Church of Christ) and whose affiliation with Fechter dates back to the petitioning to have the freeze issue put on the Michigan ballot last year (when it was approved by 57 percent of the voters statewide and by a slightly larger percentage in this area). Riebling is one of several speakers available through the PRC to groups who ask.

Establishment of the center was done to facilitate communication among the growing numbers of citizens taking an interest in the arms race and other peace-related issues, according to Johanne Fechter of Plymouth, a PRC advisory board member who often staffs the office.

"A lot of people are really anxious to find a group nearby to identify with," Fechter explains. "They are pleased to see there are people who feel the same way they do. Eisenhower once said 'people want peace so much that one of these days government had better get out of their way and let them have it.' I hope that's what's happening here."

The shared determination that something must be done to ease tensions in the nuclear age makes the group an active one, particularly through its affiliation with the Detroit area freeze campaign.

"Our most immediate concern is the planned deployment of the Pershing II missiles in Europe and the development of the MX missile," Fechter explains. The group is gathering petition signatures from the Second Congressional District opposing both these measures for presentation to Representative Carl Pursell in the near future.

Today (Wednesday) is a doubly active one as the PRC plays host to speaker Arthur Macy Cox at 4 p.m. at Newman House and works to raise funds through a 5 percent donation program at the A&P store on Seven Mile near Northville Road. Shoppers presenting a card available at the center will have five percent of their purchase price donated to the Detroit Area Nuclear Weapons Freeze campaign.

Cox is author of "Russian Roulette: The Superpower Game" of which Pulitzer Prize-winning historian Harrison Salisbury says "There is no more important book to the world. . . Cox presents a blueprint for survival and practical evidence that the Soviets will work with us to save humanity from the nuclear abyss."

Backing away from the abyss is the primary concern of PRC activists and Steeber says he sees his role as waking the "sleeping giant" of public opinion contained in the churches of America.

Noting that many denominations of American churches have made statements in synods favoring the freeze proposal (including the United Church of Christ, United Presbyterian Church and the Reformed Church in America), Steeber says "the churches' position doesn't make it to the grassroots congregations."

His work, Steeber says, involves educating and gathering support from church leaders in the suburban area. The Ford Motor Company parts analyst recently met with ministers from various denominations in the Wayne-Westland area, for instance.

"It (the threat of war in the nuclear era) is a big moral, ethical issue," Steeber says. "I don't have the detailed information the government has, but I expect to be able to deal with challenges logically."

"There is a lot of information available, and it does not take detailed information to see the absurdity in building up our forces until we can destroy the Soviet Union 32 times over if we can already destroy them 28 times," he adds.

Steeber has a long personal history of activism, he says, reaching back to the civil rights movement and opposition to the Vietnam war. He has also been involved through his church in various peace initiatives.

Riebling's activism is also connected with her church — the United Church of Christ. The church general synod voted two years ago, she says, to make peace a top priority and this year voted to become a peacemaking church.

Riebling is one of the church's four Michigan peace consultants, and says her role is to sensitize and educate church members. While she agrees with Steeber that national church positions do not readily filter down to local congregations, she says there is a growing awareness of peace-related issues as demonstrated when a synod committee she chaired received more than 25 resolutions on such matters as the nuclear weapons freeze, cruise missile and MX.

Fechter sums up the aim of peace activists in terms of "finding alternative mechanisms (to war) for resolving conflicts. There is always going to be conflict, there does not always have to be war."

Steeber offers as an example the concept of sharing resources in an organized fashion as an alternative to heightening conflict between nations wanting the same resources. "That's not something we tend to do very well, and it could go a long way."

Those involved in the peace movement would also like to "downtone the extremism" in public statements by leaders of the superpowers, Steeber says. Fechter adds that she finds the response of President Reagan to the shooting-down of a Korean airliner by the Soviets "too strident — it's unfortunate he has spoken in such a bellicose manner as to increase the level of hatred between our countries."

The airliner incident, Steeber and Fechter both say, points up the necessity for reducing the hazards entailed in nuclear weaponry. "The tension that has resulted really points out the necessity for finding other methods of resolving conflicts," Fechter says. "I am relieved there has not been a military response, but it's clear that in such situations the number of nuclear arms makes easier the possibility that someone will react to an incident like this by destroying the world."

Those interested in the PRC can visit or call 464-7766 during office hours Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 10

"... Eisenhower once said 'people want peace so much that one of these days government had better get out of their way and let them have it.' I hope that's what's happening here."

At the meeting following dinner at 8 p.m. announcement of the Citizen of the Year will be made by the selection committee headed by William Sliger, last year's recipient. Working with him are Lapham and Clancy Ely.

Guest speaker will be Northville resident William McLaughlin, president of the Detroit Tourist and Convention Association.

During the meeting four members will be elected to three-year terms and one to a two-year term on the council board of directors. Dinner reservations at $20 a person should be made by September 26 with the chamber office, 349-7640.

Historical society honors school benefactors

Invitations are in the mail from Northville Historical Society Board of Directors to those who have contributed to the restoration and furnishing of the Wash Oak School in Mill Race Village. An open house will be held from 2-4 p.m. Sunday, October 16, in the restored schoolhouse for individuals and groups that have contributed time, energy and money to the project.

Kay and Doug Otton and Harriet and Bob Welland who have served as curators in the renovation of the one-room schoolhouse report they have worked diligently to prepare the invitation list and hope that no one who should be honored has been omitted inadvertently. They would welcome calls on any oversight, they say, as many have contributed to moving the building from Currie Road to the village and to its complete renovation and furnishing.

Newcomers to have day out at Meadow Brook Hall

Resident from Norway aids Old World Market

Rigmor Cuolahan of Northville is a 16-year veteran of the four-day Original Old World Market at the International Institute of Metropolitan Detroit where she serves on the board of directors.

Cuolahan, who immigrated to the United States in 1953 from Norway, is on the planning committee for the Old World Market being held at the International Institute September 29 through October 2.

Only after volunteering, she recalls, did she learn about the social services and help provided to new immigrants by the International Institute.

New immigrants still are offered a chance to sell their old world crafts at the oldest ethnic festival in Detroit. The four-day international event features ethnic food, music and dancing, craft demonstrations, displays and sales with imported gifts while helping support social service programs.

Over the years the Northville volunteer has worked at the market in the children's booth that features inexpensive gifts for children to buy as well as at the ethnic food and gift booths with the Sons of Norway, the International Pastry Shop with more than 50 varieties of baked goods from around the world and on the market planning committees.

She also served on the institute's members' council and in 1980 was elected to the board of directors.

As a board member she has been on the planning committees for ethnic enrichment programs and fundraising activities. Her ongoing responsibilities include ordering inventory for the Tiny Shop, an import gift shop at the institute, and managing the shop one day a week.

She invites local residents to attend the 57th annual Original Old World Market at the institute located at 111 East Kirby at John R. It opens daily at 11 a.m. and closes at 9 p.m. except Sunday when it closes at 6 p.m. The institute may be called at 871-8600 for group rates. Individual admission is $2 for adults, $1 for senior citizens and 50 cents for children six to 12. Children under six are free.

Craft demonstrations for children and adults and entertainment will be featured all during the market.

RIGMOR CUOLAHAN

She also is supervisor of the international pastry shop, is in charge of ordering for the children's booth and will be commentator for the Presentation of Nationality Costumes at noon on Thursday, September 29, right after opening ceremonies which will be attended by Paula Blanchard, wife of the governor, and other dignitaries.

In 1967 Rigmor Cuolahan answered an advertisement calling for volunteers to help during the Old World Market.

ventions at 349-6383 or at 348-3993. The club's membership drive is still continuing and new residents are invited to contact membership chairman Alice Patterson, 349-5244, or president Joan Hursey.

Add former residents to list of visitors

J. Philip Anderson, who was active in the incorporation of the City of Novi and who served as its first mayor, was in town with his wife, the former Kay Hill, from Tarpon Spring, Florida, located 10 miles north of Clearwater. Mrs. Anderson reports she has been working as a volunteer teacher assistant in the second grade.

They attended the anniversary celebration of the William Allan Academy, the former Little Red Schoolhouse on Eight Mile, August 27, where he had gone to school. During their visit, they celebrated their 13th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Anderson also assisted her daughter Mary Henson with plans for her Northville High School Class of 1958 reunion, held September 10, by bringing mementoes she had saved from her daughter's high school years.

President Slattery, garden branches into fall

Phyllis Slattery, a past president of the Northville Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association and currently president of the Michigan Division, already is into an active fall schedule. Today she and other local branch members are in Romeo for the state divisions' International Tea '83, which is being served from noon to 4 p.m. at the Romeo United Methodist Church. Several homes and the Romeo historical museum will be open for the visitors.

On October 26 local branch members will be joining Mrs. Slattery at St. Clair Inn in St. Clair for the state fall council meeting of the garden branches. The national president, Mrs. Jack Herring of Findlay, Ohio, will be present.

Friends to hear anthropologist

Joseph Hines will discuss "Peru and Its Archaeology" at the Friends of the Northville Library meeting scheduled for 8 p.m. tomorrow in the council chambers at Northville City Hall.

A native of Northville, Hines will report on the prehistory in the Andes Mountains of South America. Last December he returned from a six-month field study in Peru where his work as archaeological media specialist included filmmaking, illustration and excavation.

He holds a degree in anthropology from University of Michigan and is a member of four archaeological projects, the most recent involving last year's work with high-altitude cave excavations and in ruins of the Inca Empire.

In his presentation tomorrow evening, Hines will offer views of the development of culture in the region.

The presentation is open to the public.

China Decorators meet in October

China decorators in the area are invited to attend a demonstration on painting bittersweet designs at a meeting of the Northville China Decorators at 10 a.m. Friday, October 7, at First Presbyterian Church.

Shirley Weible will give the demonstration.

The Northville China Decorators now meet on the first Thursday of each month, except in July and August, at 10 a.m. at the church. The day is being changed in October only for the bittersweet demonstration.

Plymouth Symphony Orchestra opens season

Johan van der Merwe returns for his fourth season as conductor of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra this fall with six regular Sunday concerts scheduled at the Plymouth Salem High School Auditorium.

Duo pianists Cameron Grant and James Winn will be the featured soloists at the season opener October 16 in a performance of Leslie Bassett's Concerto for Two Pianos and Orchestra.

Both Grant and Winn are natives of Denver, where they began performing together when eight years old. By the time they were 14, they had performed with the Denver Symphony.

Their European orchestral debut was made in 1977 with the Frankfurt Radio Orchestra. In 1980, Grant and Winn took top honors in the Munich International Two Piano Competition.

The concert also will feature a performance of The Fantastic Symphony by Hector Berlioz.

Violin virtuoso George Marsh will be the guest artist with the symphony November 20.

Marsh has studied with the Guarneri String Quartet and has taken master classes with Henryk Szeryng. Prior to his tenure as concertmaster with the Ann Arbor Symphony he performed with the Vaener String Trio throughout the United States.

Marsh will perform the Brahms Violin Concerto in D. The remainder of the concert will consist of music by Mozart and Prokofiev.

On December 11, the Northern Ballet Theater of Livonia will perform The Nutcracker Ballet by Tchaikovsky.

All students and children, regardless of age, must have a ticket in order to be admitted. There will be two performances at 2 and 5 p.m.

The first concert in 1984 will be an all orchestral scheduled for February 5.

The program will consist of three compositions: the Overture to Le Corsaire by Berlioz, Haydn's Symphony No. 104 "London" and Rimsky-Korsakov's Scheherazade.

On March 4, winners of the Young Artists Concerto Competition will be featured. Young Artist winners and program will be announced.

The regular season will conclude

April 15 with a performance of the Verdi Requiem. The orchestra will be joined by the Grosse Pointe Christ Church Chorale under the direction of Frederic DeHaven.

Soloists will include Beverley Rinaldi, soprano; Rosemary Russell, mezzo-soprano; Richard Mathey, tenor and Richard Anderson, bass.

In addition to the regular season, two special events are being offered. On March 17, the Young People's Concert will feature instruments of the orchestra in two performances. The annual Pops Concert is scheduled May 6.

Single concert tickets for regular season concerts are $6 for adults and $3.50 for senior citizens and full-time college students.

Tickets for all concerts will be available at the box office. Single and season concert ticket sales will be at Four Seasons in Northville, Beltner Jewelry in Plymouth, Arnold Williams Music in Canton and Liberty Music in Ann Arbor.

Free babysitting for preschoolers is available during the concert.

Information about Plymouth Symphony memberships may be obtained by calling the box office at 451-2112 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Netters' fifth straight win keeps Mustangs atop league

"We are really coming together," said beaming Northville tennis coach Uta Filkin, and Filkin indeed has a right to beam, as the Mustangs boosted their season record to 5-0 with lopsided wins over perennially strong WLAA opponents Livonia Stevenson and the marginally less impressive Walled Lake Western.

NORTHVILLE 6 LIVONIA STEVENSON 1
Only first singles stalwart Holly Hubbard was beaten for Northville. "That only proves what I've said before," Filkin declared, "That we're not really strong on top; we're just a well-balanced team." Hubbard lost 4-6, 2-6 to Stevenson's top player, Sylvia Kleer, but all other Mustang netters disposed of their rivals in two sets.

"They've always given us a very competitive match," Filkin said, "but that's probably the highest we've scored to beat them ever," she added proudly. "It was much closer last year."

Tankers second at relay tilt

With three meets opening week, the Northville varsity tankers had their work cut out for them. After faltering against Ypsilanti Tuesday, the Mustangs came out swimming as if there were sharks in the pool to blow away Redford Union Thursday and finish second at the WLAA relays Saturday.

Only four Mustangs picked up firsts in individuals — Kim Thompson managed firsts in the 100 butterfly and 200 individual medley; sister Shari in the 200 and 500 freestyle, Shawn Bales in the 100 backstroke and Erica Nelson in the 100 breast stroke. Those four teamed for a second place in he medley relay and Bales picked up a second in

The Mustangs will take on Hartland at Hartland Friday in a non-conference matchup recently added to the team schedule. Game time is 3:30 p.m.

NORTHVILLE 7 WALLED LAKE WESTERN 0

Straight sets were again the order of the day, as Hubbard led the team to an easy sweep. Hubbard took Laurie Kiffner 6-3, 6-2; Jackie Nicols topped Jen Sorrentino 6-4, 6-4; Vicki Robins bested Lisa McGovern 6-4, 6-2 and Denise Colovas walloped Christie Clifford 6-3, 6-0.

In doubles, Leslie Oliver and Jeanine Cook took Laurie McGovern and Deanna Mecham 6-2, 6-2; Jean DuSablón and Jennifer Trausch nipped Kari Bortham and Michelle Murdock 6-2, 7-5; and Amy Nieuwkoop and Lauren Oliver bounced back from a 4-6 stumble in their opening match to top Lisa McHugh and Linda Rosella 6-0, 7-5 in a wild third doubles match, the only three-set contest of the match.

Mustangs get good Deal, win 14-10

Todd Deal's last-minute TD dive sets stage for Harrison showdown

By B.J. MARTIN

The Mustangs are grunting a little louder in practice this week. They're lining up for extra shots at the tackling dummies.

The grading curve for classes with football players may plummet this week. The boys are thinking of something else. The High School band will be saving its breath for an all-time loud Mustang fight song. The cheerleaders are reinforcing their pompons. It's a big one Friday.

Farmington Harrison.
Never mind that the Mustangs knocked off tough Westland John Glenn last Friday, in a 14-10 last-minute thriller. The players looked elated on the field, but it probably lasted only until they got to the locker room. Then they started thinking about Friday.

Gotta beat the Hawks.
The winning play was a doozy last Friday. With 13 seconds to play, fullback Todd Deal plunged three yards for his second touchdown of the night, just after quarterback Dave Longridge and receiver Brian Jennings connected for an electrifying 29-yard pass completion on fourth and nine.

Deal's dive capped a dramatic 83-yard, 14-play march that began four minutes earlier. The drive was highlighted by some clutch gains by halfback John Quinn, who picked up 48 yards on eight carries during the Mustangs' final drive. Quinn notched his second straight game of more than 100 yards rushing, this time the speedy back picked up 143 yards on 21 carries.

Extra: Harrison favored to repeat as state champs.

Northville answered a first-quarter Rocket field goal with a second quarter touchdown, a two-yard carry by Deal. Again, a Longridge-to-Jennings pass set the play up, this one a 26-yard sideline pattern. Jennings, who finished the game with three receptions for 64 yards, made a spectacular over-the-head leaping grab of Longridge's pass.

Longridge completed only five of 14 passes, but yielded no interceptions. Meanwhile, the Northville defense came through when it had to. Cornerback Steve Smith picked off a misfired Rocket pass on the first play of the game and broke up two more key passes, at one point stripping a Rocket receiver of the ball in Mustang territory. Linebacker Doug Hartman recovered the fumble.

The only serious trouble for the Mustangs came in the second quarter, when Glenn quarterback Jeff Hawley capped a Rocket drive from midfield with a one-yard sneak.

"I thought the secondary looked very good," Colligan said. Indeed, the Mustangs allowed only two Rocket pass completions in 10 attempts, while intercepting twice. But Northville didn't shut off the running game as well as Colligan had hoped, permitting 163 yards rushing.

"We gave up too many ground yards," Colligan fretted.

Harrison running back John Miller gained 158 yards in last Friday's 21-0 win over Farmington.

Particularly ferocious on defense were big tackle Steve Schrader with seven first hits and seven assists, and Hartman with 10 first hits and five assists. Schrader and tackle Tim Jackson each posted quarterback sacks.

Hawks quarterback Scott Gilinski fumbled five center snaps against Farmington.

Beating John Glenn was as much a goal for Colligan as it is for Walter Mondale. "That was one of the goals we had established for this season," Colligan said, allowing a flicker of satisfaction at that accomplishment. "The second was to beat Harrison.

"The key to staying in the game against Harrison is to keep the ball. We're going to try to play a control offense. They have a very explosive offense, with, in my opinion, the best tailback in the state and outstanding receivers. There's not a defense around that can stop them.

"We can't allow any long runs. We have to stop Miller, got to keep him contained. In both games he's played this year, he's had touchdowns of over 50 yards.

"We'll play field position with them. I'd rather make them have to go 80 or 90 yards than let them get the ball in our end and pound it through.

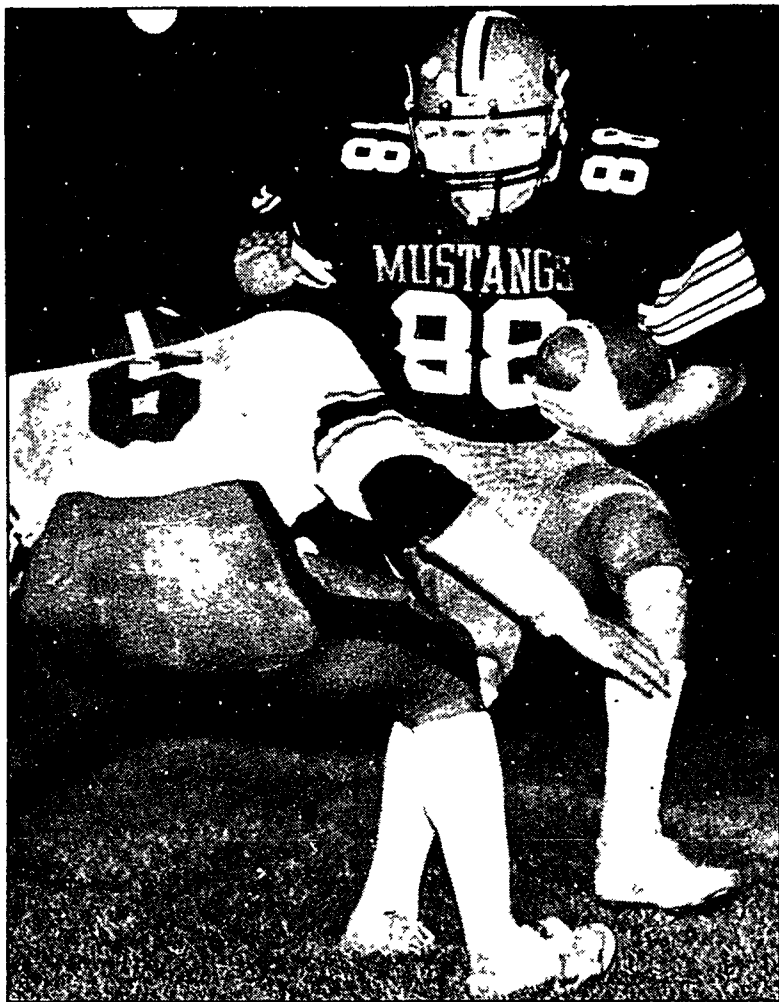

"We've got to put points on the board. And we can't afford close to as many penalties as we've had (Northville collected nine penalties for 92 yards against John Glenn).

"As well coached as they are, I don't know if they'll try to look past us, much as we'd like that. We have to go in as emotionally charged as we were in the last series against Glenn. We're definitely a two-to-three touchdown underdog."

The Mustangs will play host to the Hawks at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Mustang hoopsters still seeking first win

One quarter in each of Northville's two games last week led to the Mustangs' undoing, as the girls basketball squad fell to 0-4 with league losses to Plymouth Canton Tuesday and Livonia Stevenson Thursday.

"What happened in both games was that we ran into trouble when the other team changed defenses on us," said coach Rick Hurst. "But I'm happy with the way the defense is playing, and we're getting really steady play from our guards, Kathy Korowin and Julie Maliszewski."

Hurst believes the offense will come around, particularly as the games of Tricia Ducker and Denise Liddle get on track. "Tricia has just been a star," Hurst said of the freshman, whose assertive play has made her a valuable starter. "I think one thing that's a good sign is that she's getting fouled a lot. That shows she's not afraid to take the ball to the hoop."

As for forward Liddle, whose baseline game is an important cog in Northville's offense, Hurst said, "Her shot selection is really good right now, and she's starting to hit better and better."

PLYMOUTH CANTON 43 NORTHVILLE 34

It was a 15-6 third-quarter spurt by the Chiefs that pushed the game out of reach for the Mustangs. "When a team gets an eight to ten point lead on us, we run into some trouble," Hurst said. "We don't have the kind of offense that can score in big bunches. We're in kind of a scrapping situation right now."

In the third quarter, Canton went to a full-court press Northville had not seen much before. "We got the ball upcourt fine," Hurst said, "but then we'd miss a shot or layup and we'd get caught spread out all over the court and couldn't recover on defense. The floor just got too wide open."

The Mustangs played good defense, holding the Chiefs to 19 second-half points, but the Mustangs' balanced scoring attack (seven of eight players scored) fell short, as players missed several easy layups. Korowin had seven and Liddle six to pace Northville.

The Mustangs also had problems rebounding off the tight rims in Canton's gym, as the Chiefs took advantage of offensive rebounds for their scoring. "They'd just throw up a shot and chase it," Hurst said. "They took a lot more shots than we did."

Indeed, Northville's leading rebounder was 5'5" Korowin, not exactly an imposing inside player, who had six. "She'd just beat people to the loose ball," Hurst added.

Korowin also led scorers with seven points. Liddle added six.

LIVONIA STEVENSON 44 NORTHVILLE 28

One of the better teams in the league, the Spartans reeled off a 13-5 second quarter scoring edge to swamp the Mustangs, employing a midcourt trap defense that gave Northville fits.

A positive factor in the loss was Ducker's 11 points, her best scoring effort of the year, and the first time a Mustang player has been in double figures this year. "She's playing incredibly well," Hurst said. Ducker could have helped herself a bit at the line, where she hit only three of 10.

"Tricia's going to come around at the line," Hurst said. "In fact she was four-for-seven against Canton. She's just having some early freshman year jitters."

The 5'10" Ducker has led the Mustangs in scoring, rebounds and shots this season, collecting a season-high with 10 rebounds against Stevenson. Liddle added six points.

"We're starting to get used to the man-to-man defense now," Hurst said

Individual medly.

"Ypsilanti was a really good team," coach Bill Dicks had to concede. "We had good relay times in spite of the hard workouts we'd been having. I thought Julie Stock did a tremendous job diving for us. She took third, but would have been second if she hadn't missed one dive, and that wasn't her fault."

NORTHVILLE 126 REDFORD UNION 39

The best way to illustrate the mismatch in Thursday's meet is to point out that Northville took first in every event but one — the 100 breast stroke. Northville took second in that. Highlights of the meet included Dawn Blandi's leading a 1-2-3 sweep in the 50 freestyle by cracking 30 seconds for her first time in the event, and Nelson's dropping 19 seconds off her previous best in the 500 freestyle.

At the league meet Friday and Saturday at Plymouth Salem, Northville qualified for finals in all but one event. Capping the Mustang performance was the 4:32.8 first-place finish of the 400 individual medley team of Kim and Shari Thompson, Lisa Felicelli and Bales.

Taking second was the 200 medley team of Stephanie Warren, Nelson, Dawn Blandi and Jill Roth. The diving duo of Mandy Walts and Cathy Heitert missed first place by one point, finishing with a consistent 291 performance.

Also taking second was the 200 backstroke relay of Bales, Roth and the Thompsons, while the 200 butterfly relay of Dee and Sue LaChance, Kris Valade and Kim Brining finished third. Northville picked up fourths in the 200 breast stroke relay and the 400 medley relay and a fifth in the 400 freestyle relay.

Addendum: a copyfitting error in the Northville High School varsity swim team preview (September 7) resulted in some of the text being cut before printing. What follows is the remainder of that article.

A pleasant surprise for the Mustangs is that seniors CATHY HEITERT and MANDY WALTZ have been lured back to participate on an irregular basis for the team. Both had planned to concentrate on developing their gymnastics skills this season, but will compete in diving events for Northville.

Freshman JENNY STEINER will bolster the diving corps as well as swim breast stroke. Classmate JULIE STOCK will also compete in diving and breast stroke.

Friday. "We had been using the zone before and we were getting killed on the boards. But I think we'll try to stick with a man-to-man more often."

The Mustangs go up this week against one of the league powerhouses, Walled Lake Western, before challenging Dearborn tomorrow (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. and Plymouth Salem Tuesday.

"We'll be forced to use a completely different system against Western," Hurst said. "We'll try to mix it up and not let them walk it down on us."

Freshman KATHY KENNEDY exemplifies the motto on one of Talbot's t-shirts: "Thunder is all very nice, but it's lightning that gets the job done." "She's the lightning," Talbot says with a smile. "She's a very intense competitor, a future hopeful."

Another hard worker is classmate ERICA NELSON, who Dicks says, "loves to swim." A year-round competitor, Nelson likes distance events and works hard while having fun in the water. DEE LACHANCE will see work in the freestyle and butterfly. One of the team's strongest athletes, LaChance enjoys medley events and is, as Dicks says, "motivated to a point where her individual performance is secondary to the team effort. She'll swim for points where we need them as a team."

Rounding out the squad are two more freshmen, HEATHER CAPOTE and STEPHANIE WARREN. Capote, new to swimming, has a good attitude, Dicks says, and possesses much natural talent despite her need to start completely from scratch. Talbot calls Warren "a bomb waiting to explode," because of her talent and potential as a backstroke specialist. "The only question," Dicks adds to fuel the metaphor, "is the length of the fuse. From her past performances, her swimming year 'round, what I've seen her do, she'll be there all the way. She was better than she is now, she's having some knee problems currently, so we're working on her technique."

"The freshmen will help us a lot," Dicks claims. "There are some outstanding young swimmers there, and we really need them."

Northville golfers gain momentum

Paced by consistently fine rounds from senior captain Bob Pegrum, the Northville varsity golf team gathered momentum to unseat Novi and WLA rival Livonia Bentley after Livonia Churchill handed the Mustangs a loss on their pet course, Meadowbrook, Monday. A non-league match against South Lyon Friday was scratched due to rain.

LIVONIA CHURCHILL 216 NORTHVILLE 219

In their first-ever match at Meadowbrook Monday of last week, the Mustangs were plagued by inconsistency from the bottom end of their top five scorers. Pegrum's 38 led the field, and Bob Baird turned in an excellent 40, but Eric Morfe's 45, Bob Justus' 46 and Ron Lezowski's 50 left room for improvement. "We knew the course — we had one practice round up there," said Northville coach Joe Blake, "but Churchill was a little more consistent."

Contest winners

It was a big weekend for upsets, and MICKEY O'LEARY of Westland profited from it to the tune of $10 by winning this season's second Novi-Walled Lake News/Northville Record Football Contest. O'Leary predicted the winners of 10 of the 14 high school and college games in our contest last week. Next closest, and claiming a $5 second prize was ANN MARIE PETROSKI of Northville, who correctly predicted the outcome of nine of the 14 games. Missing "just" six games gave KAREN BRINING of Northville a $3 third prize.

Northville alum Coram wins West Bloomfield run

Listen up, Northville runners — the man to beat in this year's "Discover Northville Run" Saturday, October 1, has announced his intention to win this year.

He is John Coram, hot off a victory last week at the West Bloomfield 5K Cross Country Run. Coram smoked the field like a pack of dry Chesterfields, his time of 15:29 nearly a minute faster than second-place Bill Kennedy of Redford.

"I just took it out hard over the first mile," Coram said. "It was a fun race; the course was pretty nice." The 23-year-old has been in rigorous training, only now edging off distance work of 100 miles a week for a five-week stretch to emphasize speed conditioning.

Coram, who ran for Northville High before moving up to Ferris State University and the Etonic Racing Team in Livonia (he now trains on his own), has already set his sights on the 10K championship of the Northville Rotary-sponsored event.

"It would be nice to win that one, this being my hometown and all," he said.

Last year, Coram won the Livonia YMCA Race. He plans to run two more cross-country races on the heels of the Discover Northville Run, the next one sponsored

Welcome to Northville's Home Tours

Thursday five Northville-area homes will have markers by their walks identifying them as open on the 15th home tour.

Each doorway will be decorated with flowers and a bowed wreath that repeats the design on the tour marker.

This year's tour committee had 800 tickets printed, but advance sales (at $1 discount) indicate it could be a sellout. Tickets are being sold the day of the tour (Thursday) at $5 at First Presbyterian Church. Advance sale has been at Bookstall on the Main, IV Seasons, Gallery of Flowers, Donna and Lou's and Connie's Stitchery.

Most of the tour houses traditionally are of Victorian vintage, a factor that tour planners think may contribute to the outstanding success of the Northville tour that finds lines forming in front of homes featured well before the 10 a.m. opening.

Tour hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

This year's choices include a Main Street house that has been restored to function with dual usage — it is both a dentist's office and his home. A former fish hatchery director's residence and a late-Victorian brick home on tree-lined Dunlap Street also are staged.

The committee has incorporated variety with the inclusion of two homes filled with collections.

Tour committees over the years generally have been blessed with fair weather; however, it has on occasion rained. In 1975, rain continued all day, but tour-goers cooperated by taking off their shoes and placing them in plastic bags.

Sharon Valerance, this year's co-chair with Cheryl Gazlay, says tour visitors this year, too, should come prepared to remove shoes in event of rain. Visitors also will be asked not to smoke in homes. Children under six will not be allowed on the tour, she adds.

On the first tour on October 5, 1967, four of Northville's older homes were featured — the George Kohs home on Cady, Charles Ely home on West, E.A. Chapman home on High and the C. Harold Bloom home on West Main. Completing the list was the newer colonial home of H. F. Meyer which was a background for anti-

The initial home tour, called a Vintage Home Tour, was sponsored by the Women's Association of First Presbyterian Church. Later, the church women invited the Northville Historical Society to co-sponsor the event as it became an overwhelming success and more workers were needed. They have continued to co-sponsor the event with members of both groups working on all phases of the tour.

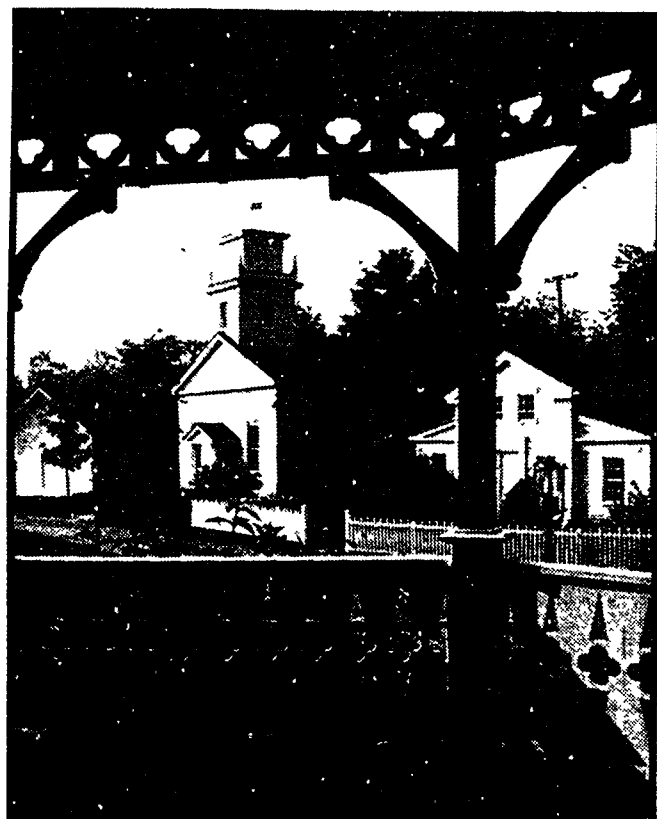

The idea for the home tour came from former resident Nan Fröelich. It was based on the famous Marshall home tour which was familiar to Fröelich as her mother, Mrs. Herman Beuker, lived in Marshall. The tour committee visited Marshall on its tour day to glean information for Northville's first tour the following month.

Sue Wright was the first tour chairman. In addition to a tour, the day included an antique sale, held at the Fröelich home, and a Country Kitchen bake sale at the First Presbyterian Church. From the beginning, St. Paul's Lutheran Church held a luncheon the day of the tour. First chairman was Jo Krause.

Mill Race Tours Guided tours of the Mill Race Historical Village on Griswold Street will be conducted by docents of the Northville Historical Society during the Northville Home Tour Thursday.

For an informative, enjoyable tour through the Mill Race's Hunter House and Wash Oak School buildings, join one of the tour guides, who will be dressed in period costume, at the New School Church between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m.

In the Neighborhood

Mill Race Tour participants may also want to visit an exhibit of Depression-era glassware from the collection of Carolyn Krugler. The showing will take place at the historic Yerkes House, which will also be on display for the Homes Tour.

Homes Tour tickets will be available from historical society docents throughout the day at the New School Church from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Craft Guild Shows The New School Church also will be the focal point for demonstrations and exhibits by local craftwork organizations.

Among them will be the Mill Race Basket-Weaving Guild's demonstration. Examples of reed and splint varieties of baskets will be on display throughout the day, while members of the guild, which meets monthly, will be on hand to demonstrate both of the basket-weaving techniques.

Additionally featured at the New School Church will be a exhibit by the Rug-hooking Guild, with displays of hand-crafted rugs and demonstrations of rug-hooking techniques.

Weavers' Show And Sale While visiting the Mill Race Historical Village, include a visit to the Weaver's Cottage. Members of the Mill Race Weavers Guild will offer a sale, exhibit and demonstrations of spinning and weaving techniques at the cottage, between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Available for sale and/or viewing will be many traditional and contemporary examples of woven and spun goods made of various fibers, all hand-made by members of the 25-member guild, which meets monthly. The guild also sponsors a special Christmas/holiday items sale each November.

Each one of the items at the cottage exhibit has been carefully judged for quality by guild weaving and spinning specialists to verify the quality and authenticity of its non-machine construction.

"High standards need to be met for approval, and we're fortunate to have some excellent weavers in our group," says Weavers Guild Publicity Chairperson Connie Wagenschutz. "And don't forget, it's not too early to begin Christmas shopping."

Quilting Demonstration Another example of local handicraft skills will be offered by the Northville Community Quilters at the Fellowship Hall of Northville's First Presbyterian Church, 200 East Main Street.

Among the quilting techniques members of the group will demonstrate are patchwork, applique and quilted stencil. Some quilted items, produced by active members of the organization, Lois Winters, Fran Mattison, Mary Ann West and Sybil Kerr, will be available for sale.

One of the exhibited items will be a teamwork quilt in progress, with demonstrations of needlework on the finishing touches (binding) at its edge.

The Northville Community Quilters group varies in size between seven and 15 members. It meets monthly at Fellowship Hall.

Tour guides will be available to show guests around interesting architectural and decorative features of First Presbyterian Church throughout the day.

Welcome

St. Paul's has continued to have a luncheon at the church on the day of the tour and has been joined by the Women of First United Methodist Church.

As the tour itself attracted greatest interest, the antique sale was dropped.

A Saturday tour was tried in 1979 as tour-goers indicated husbands would like to accompany their wives on the tours. However, it appeared that men would rather watch a fall football game, and the tour day since has remained a Thursday. The hours were extended from 4 to 6 p.m.; enabling those who work to participate.

Even with some homes open for a second time, it became increasingly difficult to obtain homes for the tour. After the 1979 tour, the committee recommended having the home tour only every second year. The suggestion was approved, and the next tour was in 1981.

Through the years homes on Dunlap and nearby streets that were built in the past century have held much interest. The studio home owned then by Kathleen Edgerton on Randolph was open in 1968. It now is the home of the D.L. Teeters.

The office-home of Dr. William Demray also was open in 1970 when it was owned by the John VanTines.

Mel Anderson, whose shop of antique and new clocks on Dunlap is another place for tour visitors to inspect, also opened his home on Dunlap in 1971.

Visitors this year may want to drive out west Main to view Victorian homes that now have contemporary neighbors. A landmark is the three-story home at 710 West Main. It was open on the first tour when owned by the Blooms. It later was on the tour again in 1976 when their daughter and her husband, the Richard Lyons, had become the occupants.

HOME 1

Mr. & Mrs. Robert Juhasz
41100 Croydon Court

Everyone in the Juhasz home is a collector — from Bob and Jan Juhasz to daughters Julie and Teresa.

Throughout the four-year-old home in Northville Colony III, collections of clocks, kerosene lamps, dolls, chicken-motif decorations, wine glasses, cruets, knife rests and rocking horses are displayed along with family heirlooms.

The colonial-style home with white picket fence in front has been individualized by the owners as background for the collections that reflect their interest in Victoriana. Bob has framed the entrances to the living and dining rooms with molding with bull's eye corners and fretwork detailing.

Visitors will notice at the entrance to the living room an old-fashioned doll buggy holding the doll Jan's grandmother received for Christmas in 1893. Nearby is a reproduction doll of the late 1800s that Jan recently received as a birthday present from her husband.

Reproductions, folk art and craft items are collected along with the antiques to provide decorative themes. In the kitchen-family room area chickens form the decor. Of wood, fabric and metal they decorate the soffit. Jan has used quilt-patterned wallpaper on the ceilings to complement the decorations and oak furniture.

Oak cupboards are used in the kitchen. In the dining bay the square oak table with claw feet boasts four self-storing leaves, Jan points out. The area overlooks a spacious outdoor deck Bob has built.

Runners decorating the table boast large stencils of chickens.

The oak sewing machine and clock on the family room fireplace mantel belonged to Jan's grandmother. Her great-grandmother's picture is over the mantel. The red-carpeted room also contains a thread box acquired at auction, a wooden ice box converted to a liquor cabinet, a metal-topped oak Hoosier kitchen cupboard and — as a main conversation piece — an oak wheel chair bought just a couple of weeks ago in Ohio.

"The children love it, and everyone has been having fun sitting in it and moving around," she observes.

Jan has incorporated much family sentiment in her decorating. Tiny cards that were graduation mementoes of her grandmother's are strung on ribbons. She points out that another ribboned postcard collection contains references to her grandmother's life — beginning with a card from her birthplace in Waters and another from Linkville where she lived in the thumb area.

Bob is the clock and kerosene lamp collector. His wife estimates he has about 70 lamps, many of them displayed in the family room.

She confides that, even though he works for Detroit Edison, he prefers not to have them electrified and recently bought a milk glass lamp already converted that he returned to its original condition.

As Jan shows visitors the first floor lavatory, she explains that her husband also is a muzzleloader, a member of the First Texas Volunteer Infantry. He has been a member of the Confederate unit for nine years, and his uniform and other trappings are on display here.

An eagle-topped mantel clock in the living room in Bob's collection is in original condition and dates to 1835.

Along with portraits of grandparents and great-uncles on the back wall of the living room is a framed valentine given Jan's grandmother by her grandfather in 1911.

In the adjoining dining room many of Jan's collections are on display. She mentions that the 26 different wine glasses displayed on an open shelf were her "first collection" begun about nine years ago. They were used at Christmastime when she entertained Mill Race Questers and their husbands. She currently is president of the antiques study group.

A cruet collection is on view along a high shelf on another wall of the dining room. Knife rests are the couple's newest interest, and several are on display. Jan says she began this collection at the suggestion of her husband.

Upstairs the bedroom of Teresa, a fourth grader at Winchester Elementary, reflects an interest in rocking horses. They are used in a border stencil, and others are used as wall decorations.

Teresa uses two chests that had belonged to her grandmother and an antique bed found in Ohio. Jan says this is her favorite piece of antique furniture.

Daughter Jennifer, a seventh grader, is a collector of miniature lamps and already has a wide variety displayed in her room. The two spool beds are covered with red-and-blue tie quilts made by her mother.

Mode Parisiennes and other yesteryear fashion prints decorate the walls of the upstairs sewing room where Jan has made all the pillows and wall pieces used throughout the home. In the upstairs hallway leading to the master bedroom are pictures of the immediate family, including the couple's wedding picture taken 15 years ago.

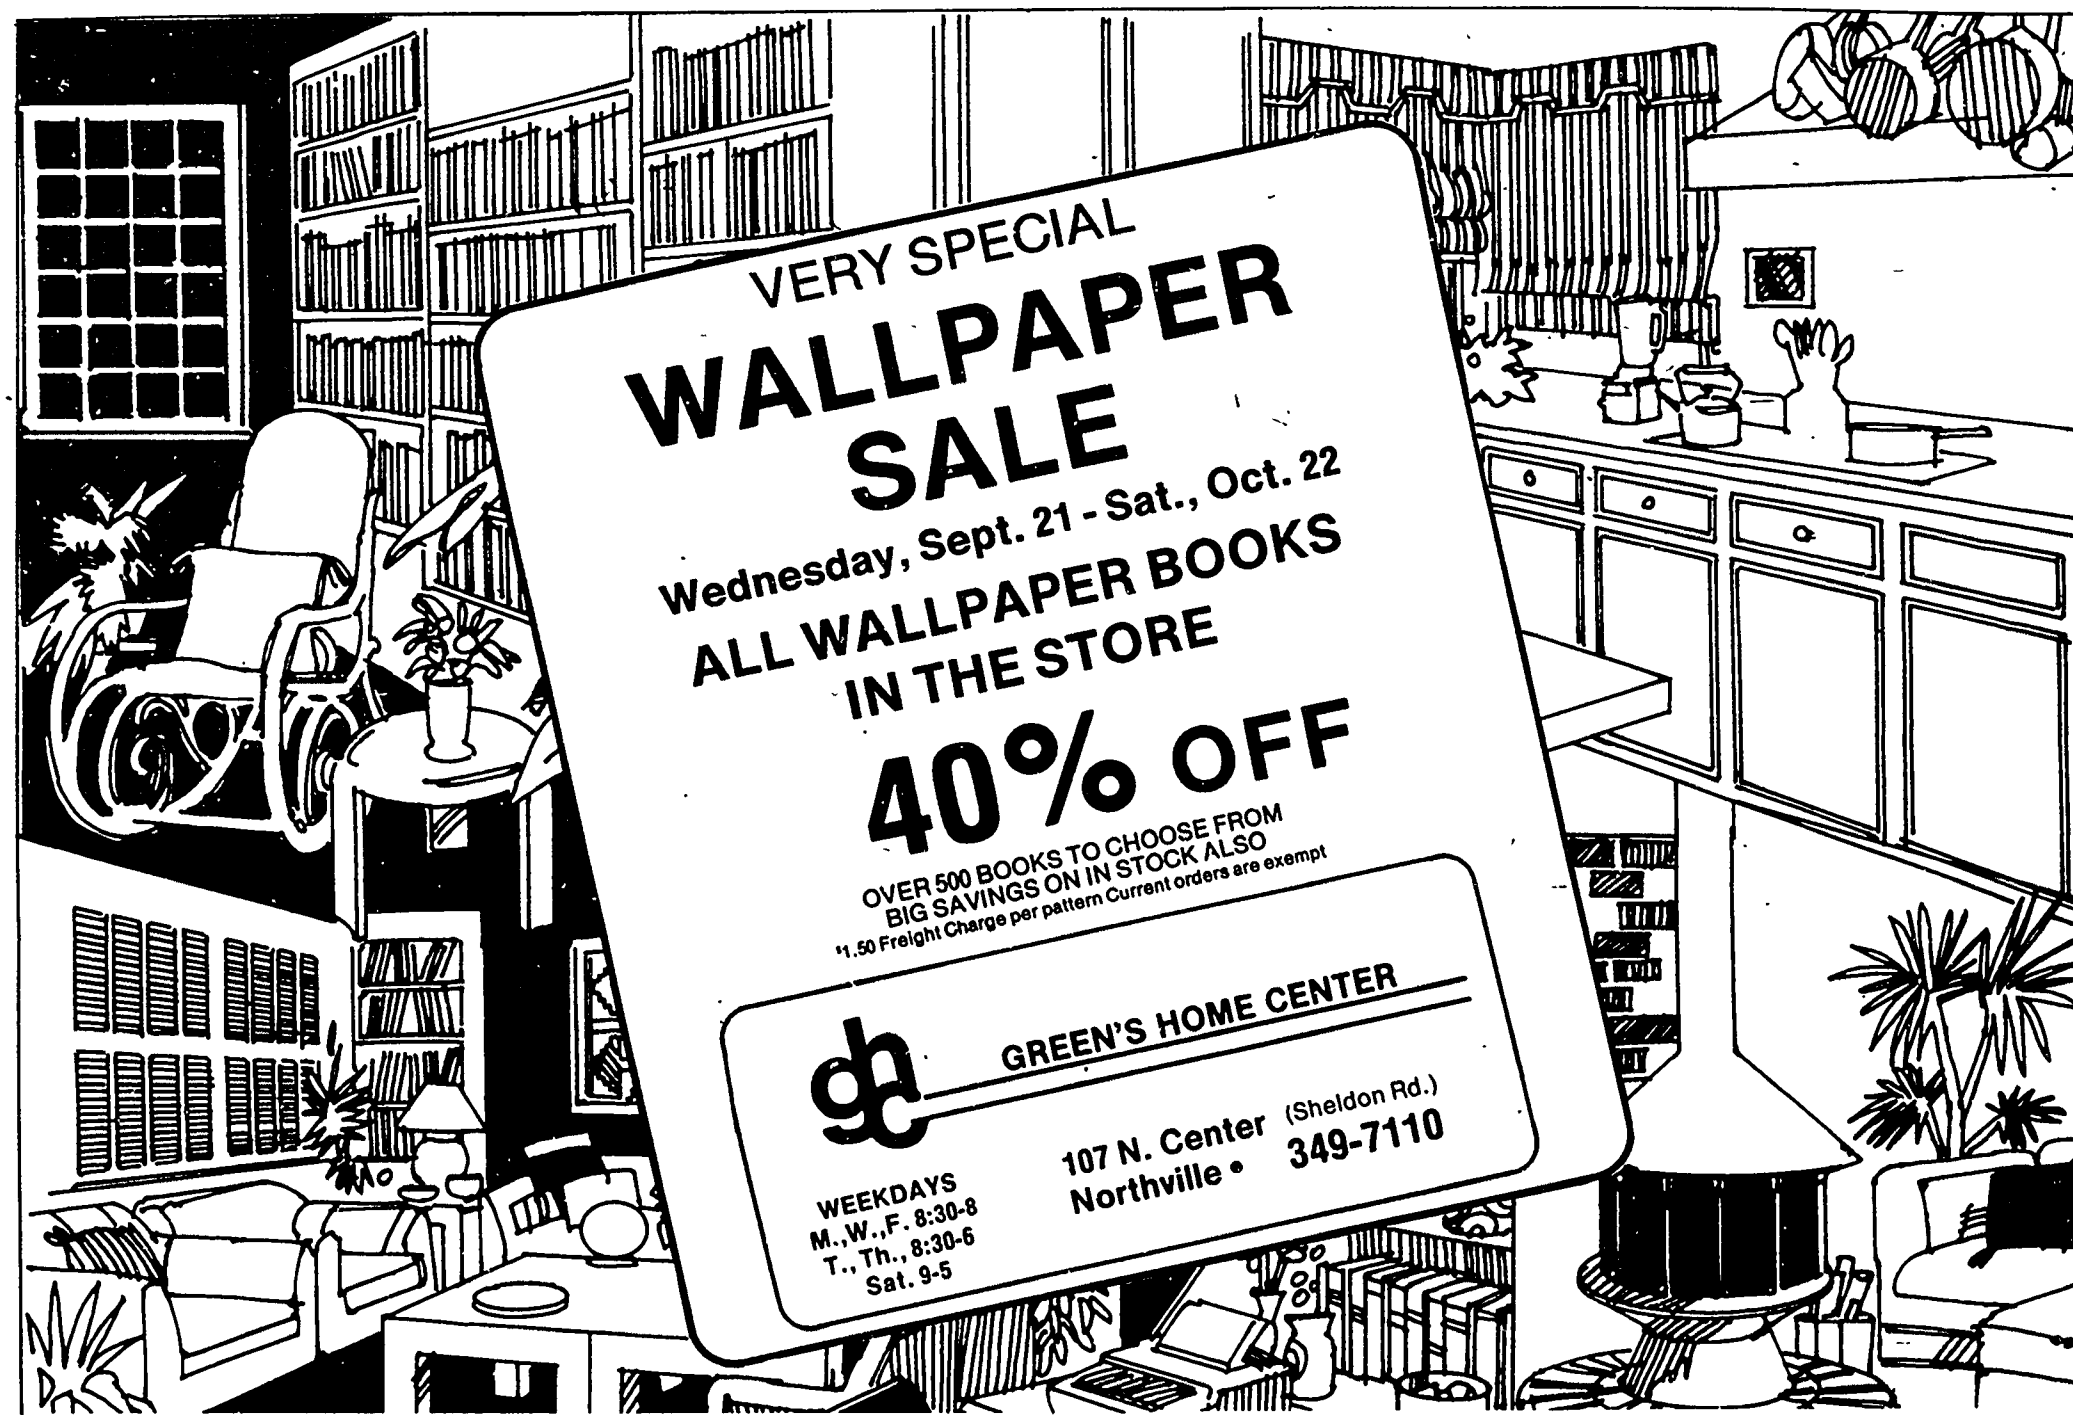

"I call this my Pennsylvania Dutch room," reports Jan leading the way to the master bedroom. She cross-stitched the coverlet on the bed which then was quilted by her mother, a former Farmington resident who has just moved to Florida.

HOME 2

Mr. & Mrs. Jon Jacobs
44450 Country Lane

The lush, wooded landscape of Country Lane poses the perfect setting for the Williamsburg-style home of psychologists Jon and Jolene Jacobs.

Though the house is relatively new (construction was completed two years ago), it is a virtual show place for the owners' fine European antiques and various collections.

Home tour participants heading towards the home along the brick walkway will note the expanse of the Jacob residence. The imposing structure, with its spacious living quarters, provides ample room for the couple's art, antiques and collectibles.

Many of the collections in the home are museum-quality pieces and are safeguarded by an elaborate alarm system.

Every room throughout the house is filled with one or more of the Jacobs' collections. Home tour participants will have an opportunity to view Jolene's collection of antique Russian and English lacquer boxes and Jon's icons as well as 18th century Staffordshire dishes, antique German baby plates, old music boxes, antique dolls, limited edition teddy bears and a pot lid collection which hangs on the bathroom wall.

Despite the numerous collections displayed throughout the home, Jolene Jacobs, a Northville Public Schools' psychologist, explains that she and her husband, Jon, only have been collecting since their marriage five years ago.

A collector of boxes, Jolene notes that among her favorite collectibles are the 18th century enamel patch boxes primarily used by European women. The boxes held small "patches" which women used as beauty marks or spots.

Jolene's patch box collection is displayed on a dresser in the master bedroom along with a 15-piece Victorian lady's dresser set and a gentleman's Victorian travel case.

Jolene notes that the silver lady's dresser set was purchased from a glass collector with little interest in the silver monogrammed dresser pieces. However, two of the bottles in the set are Libbey glass.

Jolene explains that most of the collections and antiques are European and were purchased on the couple's many trips to England. She mentions that they have traveled to England every summer since their marriage.

Among the most dominant art pieces in the home are four portraits by Sir Peter Le-ly, court painter for Charles II. The portraits date back to the 1650s and are displayed in the living room.

Jon's music boxes also are among the living room collections as well as Jolene's antique dolls. A toy Noah's Ark, complete with animals, also is on display. Jolene notes that arks were popular children's toys in the 1800s.

Among the Jacobs' American pieces are a collection of Shaker measures stacked near the living room fireplace, a cherry table bought in Saline, the kitchen's rag rugs purchased from a Massachusetts company and several heirloom quilts.

Home tour-goers will note a collection of Victorian present cups displayed on a shelf in the kitchen. Jolene explains that the cups — most of which were purchased in Saline — were used in the Victorian era in place of calling cards.

Jolene mentions that she and her husband designed the house with many of their collectibles in mind.

Though many of the furnishings are antique reproductions, the accent pieces and artwork used throughout the home are authentic.

Jolene points out that all the prints and paintings in the house are old. Among some of the earliest art pieces in the house is a Tibetan vase dated 5000 B.C., pre-Columbian artifacts and Jon's collection of Roman bottles.

An Egyptian prayer cloth dated 1510 is among the art pieces in Jon's office.

Other more unusual pieces include rare Egyptian artifacts, an 1820 pine chicken-coop hutch purchased in Wales, a collection of Staffordshire castles and an ornate Davenport desk.

Though most of the antiques are European, they blend well with the American design of the Jacobs' home.

The hardwood floors are covered with Oriental rugs and fireplaces grace the living room, master bedroom and basement den.

Jon's office is housed off the kitchen with a separate apartment on the second floor.

The wooded grounds surrounding the home provide a picturesque setting throughout the year. A bricked patio, which extends off the lower level den, offers ample gardening possibilities during the spring and summer months, Jolene explains.

Last year, the Jacobs planted 2,000 tulips in the bricked tiers surrounding the patio.

HOME 3

Mr. & Mrs. Marvin Sobodash
740 Fairbrook

Living 16 years in a small, three-bedroom ranch home in Westland hardly prepared Marvin and Mariane Sobodash for the task of remodeling an imposing 1896 Victorian structure.

However, after six years of labor, umpteen gallons of stripper and paint and many "vacations spent at home," the Sobodashes have brought a new elegance to the once state-owned home of the former Northville Fish Hatchery superintendent.

Situated on a two-acre parcel on Seven Mile, the home is partially hidden by a grove of trees. A small pond sits to the side of the imposing structure and a recently-built gazebo extends off the home's 150-foot porch.

From what Mariane Sobodash has learned from a previous owner, the house was built in 1896 at a cost of $3,000.

Mariane explains that there is little known about the history of the home. However, she says she's been told that the Smithsonian Institute may hold the records of the house.

Mariane notes that a former owner told her the Smithsonian acquired the house records when the fish hatchery burned. It was believed at the time that Northville's fish hatchery was the oldest remaining fish hatchery in the United States.

Mariane explains that she and her husband were not in the market for an older home when they purchased the house in 1977.

"We really just wanted the change," she says. "We tried golfing and other activities and really didn't like it."

With their two children away at college, the Sobodashes decided they needed a project.

"I was in a state of shock after we bought it," Mariane says of her landmark home. "I didn't know what to do with all this room."

However, the couple quickly began remodeling. Mariane explains that they did the majority of the work themselves — from replastering walls to handmaking the 319 spindles surrounding the porch.

She notes that "structurally the house was in excellent condition."

Though they replaced the plumbing and did some electrical work in the kitchen, the heating system has remained unchanged.

Mariane notes that the most extensive remodeling was done to the kitchen and porch area. A second stairway extending from the kitchen to the master bedroom was removed to allow for an eating area.

"That was a hard decision to make," Mariane says of removing the staircase. "We just didn't have any eating space and by taking out the stairs it afforded us a second bathroom off the master bedroom."

At the time they purchased the home, there was only one and a half bathrooms. Typical of many older homes, the house also lacked closet space. To compensate for no closets on the first floor, the couple built two matching armoires for their front hallway.

Mariane explains that once the staircase was removed in the kitchen, cupboards were built in the extra space.

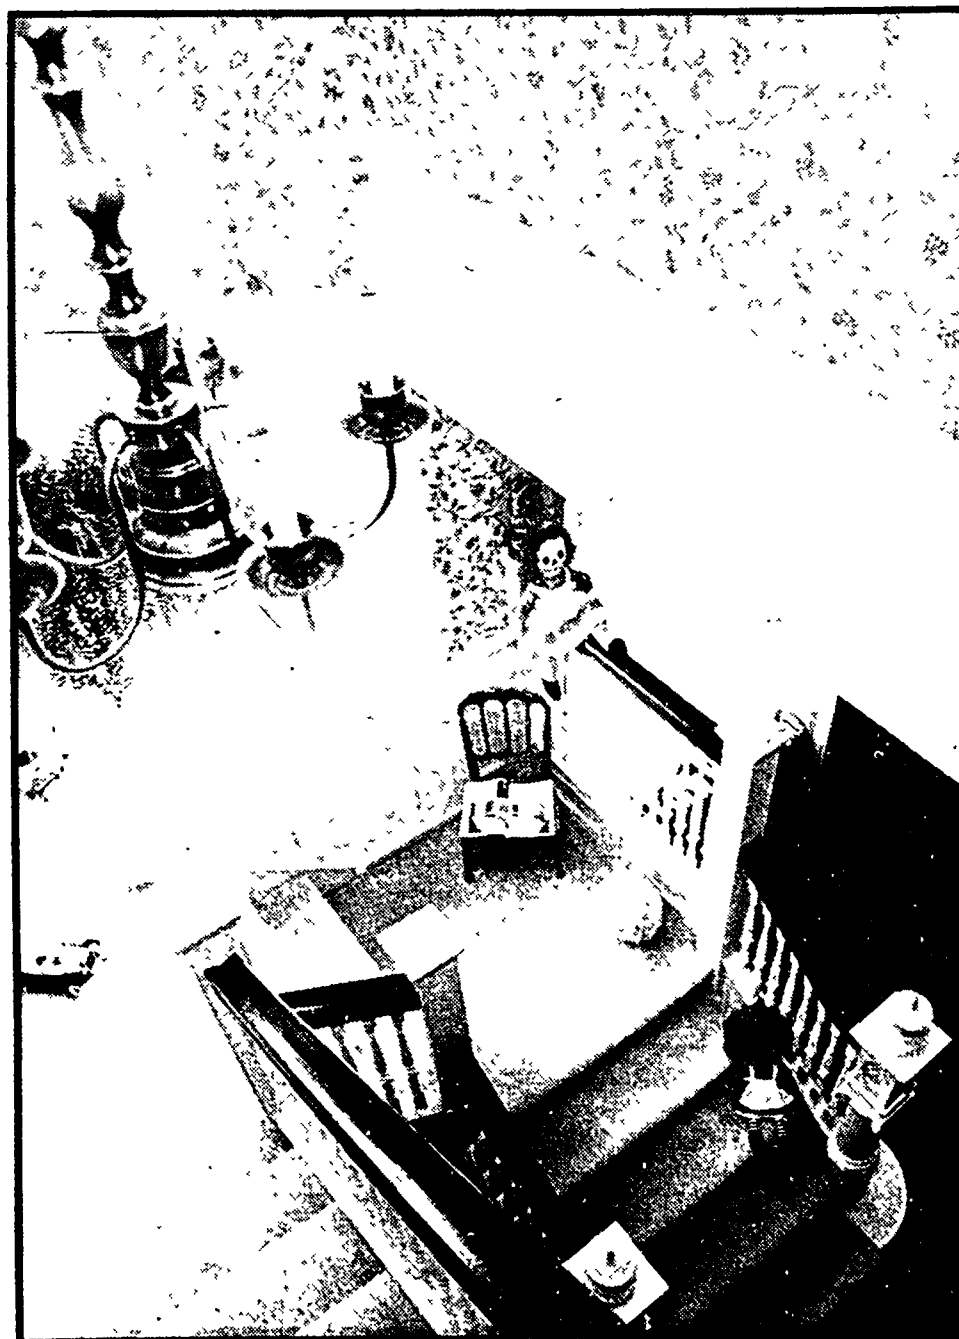

By tapping the talent of local carpenter Bob Garr, the couple was able to match the original wood cupboards. Among the interesting features to note in the kitchen is an original cupboard flour bin.

In addition to expanding the kitchen area, the couple also removed the linoleum from the floor to expose the original tongue and groove maple floor boards.

Mariane explains that the porch extending from the kitchen was closed off to allow for a laundry room.

Of the restoration work done in the past six years, Mariane says the most difficult was stripping the upper floor woodwork.

Sobodash Home

"I spent a whole week's vacation doing one window," she exclaims.

While the couple stripped the doors and moldings on the second floor, the first floor woodwork was painted to brighten the lower level rooms and the winding staircase.

Most of the home's 52 windows are covered with sheer lace curtains to enhance the window design and bring more light into the home.

In addition to the elaborate woodwork and bay windows, the house also boasts three fireplaces — all with original wood and tiles.

The house is furnished with antiques of several periods and a few family heirlooms.

Mariane's grandmother's collection of more than 300 elephants is displayed in the living room. She notes that all the "trunks are up" — meaning good luck.

Mariane says she calls the living room the "wedding room" because of the many family wedding pictures which grace the walls.

Mariane explains that before moving into the house she "never even thought about antiques."

"After we moved into the house, we found that all our traditional furniture looked terrible," she says.

"We realized that to do justice to the house we had to decorate with antiques."

Most of the furnishings in the home are Victorian, however, a few of the pieces have been made by the Sobodashes.

The home's fieldstone and mortar foundation is visible in the expansive basement which contains the original root cellar. Mariane still utilizes the cellar by storing her canned fruits and vegetables.

The Sobodashes two-acre setting provides them with ample gardening opportunities. In addition to Mariane's vegetable garden, there also are peach, apple and cherry trees as well as several berry bushes.

Mariane admits that remodeling the home has been extremely time-consuming — particularly with both working full-time.

"All of the work was done at night and on the weekends," she explains.

However, she notes that neither she nor her husband have any regrets about undertaking their remodeling project.

In fact, she says, "I don't think I could live in a newer house again."

HOME 4

Mr. & Mrs. Donald Coir
317 W. Dunlap

With six years of devoted work and more than 80 gallons of paint stripper, Donald and Alma Coir have restored their Victorian home at 317 Dunlap to its former elegance.

In the process, they have removed wallpaper from ceilings and layers of paint to expose fine woodwork, renovated the kitchen and completely gutted the main floor bath, among other projects.

The yellow-painted brick house on the southeast corner of Dunlap and West streets has received a fresh coat of paint and, with the exception of a single bedroom, has been completely redone by the couple who moved into the 1875-era home in July, 1977, at the enthusiastic urging of their children.

While many couples nearing retirement age would hesitate to buy an 11-room home that had stood empty for several months and needed extensive repairs, the Coirs say they had a feeling they were "meant to occupy the house," to which they moved from the west side of Detroit.

One reason: the couple already owned one of the famous Northville bells produced by the American Bell and Foundry Company of Northville that found their way to many parts of the world.

Today, it is in place on a post in their yard.

Visitors arriving at the front entrance on Dunlap will view first the living room with its high ceilings and windows with elaborate wood panels and moldings.

"Most of the woodwork is white oak, but walnut, maple, cherry and white pine also were used in the house," Don Coir notes.

Without his expertise in restoration and ability to build matching cupboards and cabinets, the Coirs agree, the house would have been an impossible project for them. He is a former methods research engineer with Burroughs — and a skilled worker in wood.

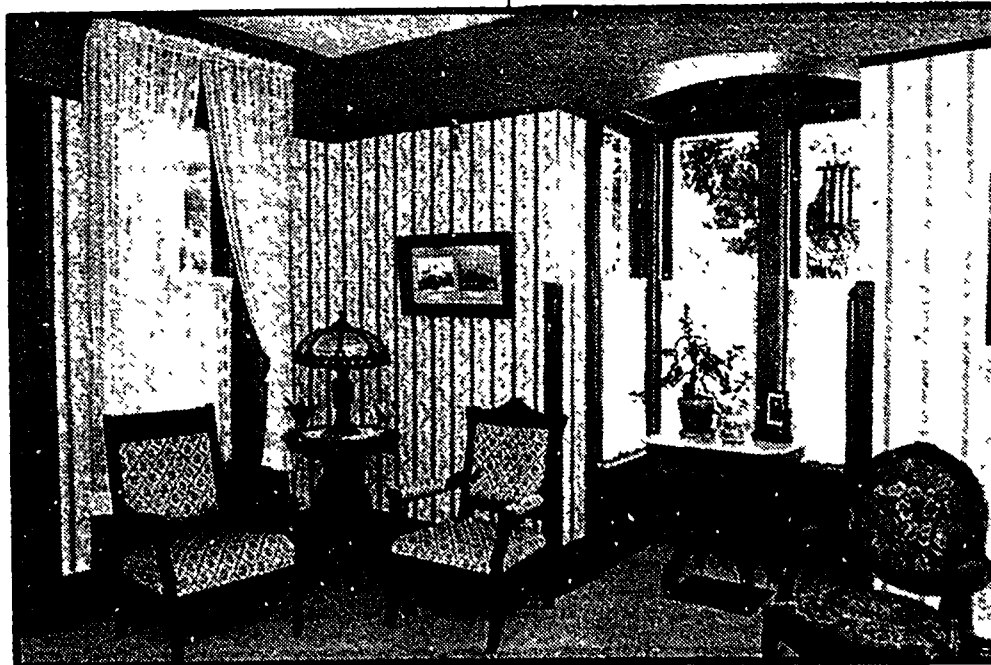

He points to the woodwork that extends to the floor in the square bay in the living room as an example of the high quality in the house.

"Every window in this house is different because they were built on the site," Coir observes.

Alma Coir has used white lace and eyelet curtains to admit as much light as possible and not cover the wood she spent hours stripping. She also has removed wallpaper and then repapered with papers appropriate to the house. Upstairs she painted the walls and used wide wallpaper borders.

"This is grandma's living room, and we don't sit here unless there's company."

Alma confides that this is her young grandson's view of the parlor with its Victorian furnishings, many of which are family pieces. The room even boasts an original ceiling lamp converted from gas.

GALLOWAY

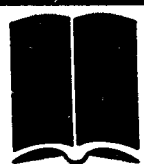

The living room's formality is no problem for it opens on the west to a comfortable television room. Behind it is a library complete with shelves made by Don in his basement workshop. And, at the rear of the house, there is a child-proof playroom with cabinets storing toys that also is the laundry room.

The Coirs point out that the rear portions were added later. A cornerstone adjacent to the porch on the west side of the house bears the date 1882. They think that was the date of an addition.

Originally, they say, the room now used as a dining room was the kitchen. Today, the kitchen has its own eating area across from the island sink. The cupboards were built by Don. At one end is a Welsh cupboard he constructed from an authentic pattern obtained at Greenfield Village.

Here the woodwork detail includes the typical bull's-eye corner design.

When the additions were constructed, the Coirs have determined, the stairway was moved. In the original location are spacious cupboards. The one in the passageway to the dining room has glass doors which the Coirs had etched with a design in keeping with the period of the house. On display is a set of gold-banded dishes Don brought his wife from Germany after World War II. PLEASE TURN THE PAGE

Coir Home

Alma mentions that she came to this country from Germany when she was two months old "on top of a basket filled with quilts." The basket sits in a bedroom upstairs. Alma also has on display the blue-decorated churn she remembers seeing her mother use to make butter. It sits near the kitchen next to her mother's sauerkraut bucket.

Both bathrooms are focal points in the home. The upstairs bath partially is wallpapered with adjoining cream-painted walls hand-stenciled by Don in a bird-floral motif that reproduces the paper's design. He now plans to stencil the bedroom still to be renovated.

The Coirs say they "completely gutted" the main floor bath, releasing the footed tub from a box added later. Old kindergarten tables from the Detroit Board of Education were used in construction of the basin counter and wall-hung old fashioned toilet.

The Coirs have made an addition of their own — a screen porch. He reproduced the original turnings on the posts.

Coir works in his shop in the basement which has wide, stone walls.

"It's really five separate basements," Don says, pointing out a 500-barrel cistern with lead top. He adds that they have the potential for a wine cellar with the cool, stone walls.

They have researched the house with the help of son Mark, one of their four children. He is working as an archivist at Cranbrook and has a master's degree in history. A daughter, Doris Hambacher, also is interested in history and studying archeology at Wayne State University.

Their research has unearthed the information that 6,000 bricks to construct the house were brought by ox cart from Ohio.

Their neighbor Charles Ely has told them he remembers delivering ice and hard coal to "the old Griswold place," as it was known for the family that occupied it longest.

The Coirs understand the house was built for John Harmon, an early Northville businessman who, their research found, built furnaces at his foundry. The Coirs think he was president of the foundry that made the bells.

"Northville — the First 100 Years," the history of the community by Jack W. Hoffman, states that a stone pottery on the fish hatchery site was owned and operated from 1845 to 1850 by Asa Harmon and his son John V. The first drain tile made in Michigan was produced in a yard adjacent to the pottery, by a tile machine invented by John V., and from choice clay taken from the opposite side of the road, the book notes.

It may have been one of the first houses in town to have running water, according to the Coirs' research. From the roof, which was tile originally, water flowed into retainers. When a plug was pulled, Coir explains, it flowed down by gravity.

Originally, the house had a three-door carriage house at the rear.

The Coirs note with satisfaction that the house is solid — "there has been no dry rot," says Coir. "It just needed a lot of restoration."

Now almost complete, that restoration has given them 3,000 square feet of comfortable living space.

HOME 5

Dr. William Demray
371 E. Main

Dr. William Demray's house at 371 East Main has played a prominent role in Northville history, both as a residence and in connection with several commercial operations, so it is appropriate that the dentist both lives and works there.

The house at the corner of Main and Griswold, next to the Ford Motor Company plant, has undergone a thorough exterior and interior renovation over the past eight years. Demray lives in a four-room apartment on the second floor where much of the home's original 100-year-old character is preserved.

His dental practice is housed on the first floor, where Demray says he has tried to retain a "homey," comfortable atmosphere for his patients while keeping professional needs in mind.

Demray says he bought the house in 1975 with the idea of eventually using part of it upon opening his own practice, which he did in the above-grade basement in 1977. Work on the living quarters began almost immediately upon his purchase of the house, Demray says, and the basement was renovated twice in one year — first as a gift shop, then as a one-chair dental office.

While operating his practice from the basement, Demray did most of the renovation himself, only hiring an outside contractor to complete the main floor dental offices when his practice outgrew the basement quarters faster than he could complete the work single-handedly.

Speaking of this period when he built his practice and worked on the house in his spare time, Demray says "that's why it took eight years."

Renovation began with new electrical, plumbing, heating and cooling systems, all designed to accommodate the necessities of both a dental office and residence. Demray split one first-floor bathroom in two, creating one restroom for the office and another with a window wall opening onto a greenhouse-like addition to the west that contains a hot tub with whirlpool.

On the first floor, a full-width enclosed front porch became the reception area while a receptionist's desk was installed behind what was once a bay window on the front of the house.

Several walls were moved on the main floor to create the three operating rooms and space for ancillary needs. What was once a large kitchen in the northeast corner was equipped as a laboratory and lunchroom.

For X-ray protection the main floor walls are sheathed with lead under the drywall for a height of six feet, beginning one foot above the floor.

The main operating room was placed in a portion of what was the living room where a large picture window faces southeast onto Main. Whenever possible, the decor is residential although only windows and trim pieces remain from the original home.

Both interior and exterior of the house are most original on the second floor. While the first-floor siding is new, both the cedar-shake siding and "gingerbread" trim items on the second story are retained from the original house.

When restoring the second floor, Demray removed a closet and moved a wall to create a large central kitchen. There is also a living room, one bedroom and a den/private office on the second floor. Demray uncovered an original open stairway to the stand-up attic which had been enclosed by one of the previous owners.

"I peeled 15 or more layers of wallpaper off the ceilings up here," he says, noting that the plaster walls were preserved on this floor. "You wouldn't believe how much lath came out of here" during the lower floor restoration, he adds.

While most of the work is done, including attractive plantings and landscaping that helped Demray earn a top city beautification award this year, there are additional plans.

The now-vacant basement will likely be used for additional clinic space, Demray explains, with access provided via a stairwell he built into the reception area early in the project.

The house was built, Demray's research shows, by James A. Dubuar, owner of the J.A. Dubuar Lumber Company that formerly occupied what is now the site of the Ford plant. It was constructed for Dubuar's daughter and son-in-law when they were married. Much of the lumber in the present-day house likely was produced at the water-powered sawmill that was one of early Northville's largest industries.

Demray says he recalls learning when he bought the house that it was built in 1875, but can date it with certainty only by reference to an 1887 photograph of the lumber company grounds in which the home's southeastern facade is clearly identifiable in the background.

When Dubuar died in 1919, the lumber company property, including the house, was sold to the Ford Motor Company and the house became home to the first valve plant manager, Harry Marburger. Marburger's daughter had show horses, which were quartered behind the house in the area of what is now a Ford parking lot. Ford made the largest addition to the building, extending it to the north to accommodate the kitchen that became the lunchroom.

Ford sold the house to Mike Allen in 1941. Northville's longest-serving mayor lived in the main part of the house and ran Allen Monuments out of the basement, which is at ground level on the east and north sides. The Allens extended the porch to the west and added a staircase to the second floor at the west end. The porch housed a gift and pottery shop.

According to Demray, Allen told him at one time the basement was home to a restaurant — the Kitchen Cellar. After Allen moved his business to South Main, he rented the house for a time, then sold it in 1966 to the McAllister family who ran a wallpaper and paint business out of the basement and front porch.

In 1969, the house was sold to John and Jeanne Van Tine, whose antique shop occupied the basement, front porch and second floor (accessible from the stairway Allen had built) for the six years preceding Demray's purchase.

Given this history, Demray says, it is difficult to determine which parts of the home are original and which added at a later date.

Certainly many of the 30 windows date from the approximate building period, as they contain the characteristic clear but somewhat wavy glass of the time. Eight windows in the original part of the house also feature leaded glass around the perimeters. At one point, Demray notes, the colored panes were blacked-out with paint.

Demray has preserved these elements and had additional colored glass inserts made for the windows to highlight them. The most prominent insert is at the top of the picture window in the main operating room and spells out "Dentist" in gold. Window decorations are the only indication that the house is anything more than an attractive residence.

There are seven outside entrances and five staircases in the house, some of each being original and others added at different stages.
