Approval of Meijer plans expected soon

By B.J. MARTIN

Northville Township planners are expected to grant approval next week to final site plans for a Meijer Thrifty Acres shopping center to be built on a 34-acre land parcel at the southwest corner of Eight Mile and Haggerty roads.

Final site plans which reflected few alterations to the Meijer firm's preliminary site plans were submitted to township officials last week.

Those preliminary plans received the conditional approval of the township planning commission November 29. Commissioners, however, noted several areas that needed clarification for final approval: in particular, satisfactory landscaping, satisfactory sewage disposal plans, and satisfactory traffic flow plans.

The final plans included details of how berms and plantings would be built, but varied little from the preliminary plans except in degree of detail.

As to traffic flow, Meijer representatives plan to widen Haggerty to provide a right-turn deceleration lane for southbound Haggerty, a middle-left turn lane for Northbound Haggerty for all three Meijer entrances off Haggerty, plus five lanes between the northernmost Haggerty entrance up to Eight Mile Road.

That widening has already received the approval of the Wayne County Road Commission, but commissioners said last November the WCRC's approval would not automatically lead to township approval.

There will be two Eight Mile Road entrances to the shopping center.

A potential problem surfaced last week when township planning consultant Claude Coates noted that Meijer representatives had not submitted floor plans for the 186,000 square foot store.

Apparently, the failure to submit floor plans stemmed from a misunderstanding.

"I had been under the impression floor plans were only required for residences," said John Stephenson, vice-president of real estate for the corporation. "But Mr. Coates informed me that wasn't so, so there will be site plans included in our presentation next week."

The real estate division of the discount department store chain has planned to develop the site since acquiring the land in 1973.

Report details local impacts if prison built

A township-prepared report detailing potential adverse affects of the state department of management and budget's proposal to renovate a portion of Plymouth Center for Human Development as a prison was sent to the department of corrections last week.

The January 18 report, over the signature of supervisor John MacDonald, details the perceived loss of public benefits that would occur if a prison were located on the property west of Sheldon near Five Mile. It is intended for use by the corrections department in preparation of an environmental impact statement.

The statement, expected by mid-February, will be a key factor in the state decision whether or not to proceed with the proposed renovation.

In a three-page letter with 18 appendices attached the township report cites a "severe economic impact on the townships of Northville and Plymouth and the City of Plymouth." It further details potential losses to the Northville and Plymouth school districts, Wayne County and the state of Michigan.

Major adverse affects of the prison relocation foreseen in the report are abandonment or depleted property values of two projects near the proposed site — a senior citizens' housing complex on the east side of Sheldon just north of the site and an industrial park in Plymouth Township on Five Mile immediately south of the site.

Total public benefits in revenue and taxes from the senior housing complex alone are estimated at $6 million in the first two years. Attached to the township analysis is a letter from Singh Development Company, Ltd. of Southfield, which holds an option on the 101 acre property, stating that it would likely drop its plans for a $70 million development if the prison were located nearby.

"In all probability, we would have to abandon the project," states the letter signed by Gurmale Singh Germal, of the developing company. "Construction of a prison adjacent to our site will seriously jeopardize our ability to obtain any financing whatsoever..."

A potential developer in the Metro West Industrial Park has also expressed "grave concerns" about the prison

Jaycees soon to allocate remaining 'Jaws' funds

Northville Jaycees will meet Wednesday evening to decide what to do with an estimated $3,000 remaining in its Jaws of Life Fund, president Greg Dawson told city council Monday.

Whatever happens, it appears certain that there will be two units purchased, one for use by each fire department at auto accident scenes. The Jaws of Life is a Hurst-made tool used to pry and cut metal to ease removal of victims from crushed cars.

Jaycees will either add the $3,000 to a similar amount already allocated to the township purchase of the extraction tool, making its total donation to that venture about $6,000, or follow through with earlier proposals to split the money evenly between township and city, Dawson explained.

If the money is directed toward the township purchase, he added, the Jaycees would like to assist in the city's fundraising drive to purchase a second device. City fire chief Jim Allen reported the fund has reached $2,850 to date, including $2,200 from the sale of obsolete papers to St. James Township, $500 raised in a car wash last weekend and $150 in individual donations.

Doug Boor, Jaycee program chairman for the Jaws of Life fundraising effort, told council the organization will have to "figure out our priority needs." He noted the Jaycees original hope was to take the $6,000 and have the city and township split the difference to make up the purchase price of roughly $8,400 for the first unit "for use by the community."

But that alternative has apparently fallen through, leaving the Jaycees "between a rock and a hard place," according to Dawson. "Our membership is about evenly divided between city and township residents," he added. "We don't have any particular bias one way or the other."

After Boor and Dawson explained their position, mayor Paul Vernon made it clear the city would welcome a Jaycees donation toward what he called "our Jaws of Life" if the organization chose to take that route. "The city has always been supportive of the Jaws of Life," he said. "I'm not aware that anytime the Jaycees made council aware, or made our fire chief aware, that they intended to buy two."

"It seems to me there is some disorganization within the Jaycees," he

Board approves district-wide energy audit

By MICHELE McELMURRY

With close to $1 million, almost 10 percent of its annual budget, going to energy costs, the Northville Board of Education Monday night approved the administration's recommendation to implement a district-wide energy audit.

Upon the recommendation of Burton Knighton, assistant superintendent for administrative services, the board granted authorization for the administration to work with the architectural firm of Coquillard, Dundon, Peterson and Argenta (the firm contracted for the high school renovation) in developing specifications for a district energy audit.

The board also approved the administration's request to secure bids for the district-wide energy audit based on the specifications developed.

In outlining his recommendation to the board, Knighton noted that due to the lack of any significant funds for dramatic improvements in energy measures, the district has been looking into Public Act 431 to finance the project.

Public Act 431, approved by the state legislature in December, 1982, enables school districts to borrow money for a period of 10 years for the purpose of financing energy improvement in schools.

In accordance with the state act, school districts are allowed to sell bonds in an amount up to 1.25 percent of the State Equalized Valuation of the district.

Knighton noted that the sale of the bonds does not require a vote of the electorate and the debt is repaid through general fund monies saved because of the utility cost avoidance achieved through the completed energy measures.

Knighton also noted that once the bonds are paid off, the savings resulting from the energy conservation measures would be available for other programs in the district or result in a lower general fund expenditure or a possible reduction in local taxes.

He told the board that the advantages of Public Act 431 have been discussed with architect John Argenta and Dr. Raymond Kehoe, who served as consultant on the high school feasibility study project, since last summer.

Knighton estimated that with such conservation measures in place, the district "could save a good 30 to 40 percent in energy costs."

"In a few years we could save half to three-quarters of a million dollars," he added.

Knighton told the board that while the district has undertaken some energy conservation measures, funds have not been available for a comprehensive energy program.

Many of the energy conservation measures implemented by the school district in the last five years have been financed through monies from the 1978 $1 million bond issue. However, Knighton noted that at the time, energy conservation was not considered a high priority item in light of other, more pressing needs.

Some of the projects completed with the bond issue monies included the relamping of the high school and Cooke gymnasiums, updating of some temperature controls, exterior lights and time controls at Silver Springs, Winchester and Meads Mill along with some weatherstripping of doors, caulking of windows and the use of watt-miser lamps as replacements.

Other energy-saving measures were made possible through a matching grant from the U.S. Department of Energy.

In the spring of 1982, the district qualified for a matching grant of $7,750 to conduct a comprehensive energy survey of Northville High School.

The survey ultimately assisted the board and citizens' committee in the evaluation of the high school's energy needs and the decision to renovate the building, effecting energy savings measures in the process.

In the spring of 1983, the district applied for a Michigan Department of Commerce matching grant in the amount of $13,916 for implementing energy conservation measures at the high school. The monies to be matched by the district will be taken from the high school bond issue.

Knighton told the board that the first step in conducting an energy audit will be to examine energy consumption in each of the district's buildings. The audit would also detail energy measures that would result in the most significant payback.

Second hearing set on license move

By KEVIN WILSON

One of the city's most debated issues of 1983 is set for a return engagement next month — call it the Winner's Circle liquor license, part II.

City council voted 3-1 Monday to establish a public hearing February 20 on the matter of transferring the liquor license, owned by James Rea, from the Winner's Circle at 110-111 West Main to a proposed new "restaurant" at 135 North Center.

The vote was not yet for reconsideration, which was requested by Rea in a November 30 letter to council.

Rea's transfer request was first approved by council last July, then the approval was revoked when the Open Door Church, immediately north of the proposed location, filed an objection with the state liquor control commission.

Although the LCC overruled the church objection and approved the transfer, council voted 5-1 against it, with most members citing Rea's refusal to give up the dance permit attached to the license as a condition of approval.

Rea's request for reconsideration of the issue followed private discussion with mayor Paul Vernon and the bar owner's agreement, stated in the November letter, to "the possibility or necessity to place mutually agreed upon restrictions upon the dance permit."

Council has, in the past six weeks, drafted and adopted a revision to its ordinance tightening restrictions on activity at "dance facilities."

Noting that council is not legally required to conduct a public hearing on the issue, Vernon said Monday that "I think we should do so."

Making reference to an October hearing at which Open Door church members testified to the "evils of drink" and read extensively from Scripture, Vernon advised council that he intends at the February 20 hearing to "restrict testimony to those matters directly related to the transfer of this particular liquor license."

Voting to set a new hearing date were Vernon and councilmembers Paul Folino and Carolann Ayers. Ayers was

Schoolcraft develops blueprint for long-range plans

By MICHELE McELMURRY

Though it's gained a reputation as one of the leading two-year educational institutions in the state in slightly more than 20 years of operation, Schoolcraft College is beginning to re-evaluate its "mission" as a community college.

Like other higher education institutions, Schoolcraft appears to be in the throes of transition as it heads into its third decade.

"As plans have come to fruition we find ourselves in a different kind of era," Schoolcraft President Richard McDowell told the board of trustees at a work session on long-range planning last Wednesday evening.

"We have to look at what we wish the college to become."

Last Wednesday's work session marked the beginning of the college's efforts to plan future goals and objectives.

Noting Schoolcraft's considerable "growth from a two-year transfer college" during the last 20 years, McDowell said the administration devised a planning structure to coincide with the administrative structure of the college, i.e. the departments of instruction, student services and business services.

In outlining future objectives for the college, board members heard reports from the three vice presidents — Conway Jeffress, vice president for instruction; Barbara Geil, vice president for student services, and Kenneth Lindner, vice president for business services.

McDowell noted the objectives outlined by the administration were to be used by the board as a "framework for reference" when looking at future recommendations.

He stressed that the key element in strategic planning is putting the planning process "in touch with the real world."

In establishing objectives for the college, McDowell said the board and administration will need to look at such factors as the economy, unemployment rate, state levels of funding for education, voter attitudes toward tax increases and loss of legislators due to recall.

In outlining the goals of his department, Conway Jeffress noted that an Academic Master Plan has been developed to address future objectives in the Office of Instruction.

"I think we have to break out of the notion that we're a two-year community college."

— Dr. Conway Jeffress,
Vice President for Instruction

Comprised of eight components, the master plan focuses on a wide range of subjects from human resource planning to facilities and program development.

Jeffress said the department is receiving input from the 29 community colleges in Michigan as well as some other 70 colleges across the country.

Jeffress said during his two-year tenure as vice president for instruction, most improvement has been made in the area of faculty development.

Noting that one third of Schoolcraft's faculty will be retiring within the next decade, Jeffress stressed the need for even greater faculty development.

"We have to look at where we need new people," he said.

posure to the staff and college."

Jeffress also said he would like to "encourage the staff to copyright and patent" in order to bring "more excitement" to the department will be "examining the scope of learning assistance centers."

"Over the next several years, students will be less well-equipped," he said. "The quantity of knowledge necessary for students has greatly increased."

Jeffress also stressed the need for more broad-based education. "We have to look at an associate's degree taking longer than 24 months," he said. "I think we have to break out of the notion that we're a two-year community college."

In regard to campus facilities, Jeffress said he sees a need for a computer applications lab and an auditorium for public performances.

Barbara Geil, vice president for student services, said among the goals for her department is the development of special outreach programs and services for the community.

She noted that the Women's Resource Center, which currently services some 4,500 to 5,000 women each year, will need to be expanded into other areas such as Plymouth, Canton and Garden City.

Noting that only a secretary is employed full-time at the WRC, she recommended that the part-time coordinator position be made a full-time post to accommodate the growing demands of the center.

Geil added that some 30 to 40 volunteers currently help run the Women's Resource Center.

In addition to expansion of the WRC, Geil said her department is "looking at developing an alumni group" as well as a comprehensive orientation program for students new to the college.

Other goals outlined in her report to the board include initiating programs for student development such as a student program audit, career development and leadership development programs.

Geil said the student affairs department also hopes to initiate effective employee relations and development programs in the areas of office personnel, training and use of paraprofessional personnel, special training programs and release time for special projects and program development.

She noted that technical improvements in telephone registration, on-line transcript, graduate audit and the interactive word processing system also would improve operations in the department.

Kenneth Lindner said the business services department also is looking at development of a new phone system and expansion of computer services as well as energy conservation, preventative maintenance and consolidation of the business function to a single location.

Lindner mentioned that in addition to being far behind in equipment replacement, there is limited space at the col-

Jeffress aims for 'academic excellence'

By TIM RICHARD

In the 1960s, Schoolcraft College was dubbed "Haggerty High" and known as a good place to beat the Vietnam era draft.

In the 1970s, the community college acquired regional fame for its culinary arts and vocational-technical programs.

"Academic excellence" is the goal of the '80s for Dr. Conway Jeffress, vice president for instruction for the past two years.

In a lengthy interview, Jeffress said the administration has gone about it in two ways: seeking to improve faculty and course quality, and spreading the word about the quality already on campus at 18600 Haggerty, Livonia, and at the Garden City Center.

Jeffress came from the same Pittsburgh-area community college system that produced Schoolcraft President Richard McDowell. In fact, he had held McDowell's old vice presidency for six months when the new president lured him to northwestern Wayne County.

He has some of McDowell's "hit-the-deck-running" style of administration but lacks some of the humor by which McDowell avoids ruffling feathers. At times, Jeffress finds himself "impatient but not displeased."

He found himself with a tiger by the tail when he cast covetous eyes on part of the spacious gymnasium as a location for a computer lab and classrooms. Athletic Director Marvin Gans publicly mobilized his constituency of students and townspeople against the plan.

Meanwhile, the administration has come up with a plan for modular construction ($35-40 per square foot) which is only slightly more expensive than major renovations required to change the gym ($30-35). It's on Jeffress' desk for approval.

Whatever method of providing space is chosen, Jeffress insists there must be adequate data processing space, both for instruction in the world of robotics and for the college's internal uses.

"My principal ambition," said Jeffress, "is to have our faculty be known and influential."

"Our faculty are top-of-the-scale people who are starting to look to retirement. Many are people who previously taught at high schools."

"We've done more in faculty development than in the last 10 years," Jeffress said, despite Michigan's sour economy and tight state aid.

Among the strides made in faculty development are:

- More sabbatical leaves — Faculty is asked, "What are you going to do with the time and how will it serve the student?" Instead of one or two a year, the college board now grants two to four sabbaticals a year. Instead of favoring vocational programs, the last four all were in liberal arts.

- Released time for faculty to work in industry — Three instructors are working in Ford Motor Company's robotics center in Dearborn, where they are both teaching and being trained. One is at General Motors working on CAD (computer aided design). Jeffress expects this to result in a major upgrading of Schoolcraft's curriculum.

- Faculty travel allowances — These have been improved.

- Publishing — Faculty is encouraged to publish, which Jeffress confesses is "a departure from traditional community college thinking." A psychologist, he himself publishes to set an example. He is also seeking resources whereby the college can do its own publishing.

- Early retirement — Where departments have only one or two faculty members who are nearing retirement, the Faculty Forum contract provides for early retirement. At this point, Jeffress' office will study whether the program can be dropped.

Where Schoolcraft had been easing some program requirements — for example, turning two-year associate degree technical programs into one-year certificate programs — Jeffress talks of "broad based education."

He shares state Superintendent of Public Instruction Philip Runkel's enthusiasm for foreign language instruction. Runkel wants to require a two-year proficiency for all college graduates.

The college has put a four-year moratorium on new programs and has dropped the legal secretary and civil technology programs, adding only robotics.

Despite his emphasis on more quality, Jeffress also wants the world to appreciate the quality the 20-year-old college already has.

David Heinzman, college relations director, has been involved with a faculty-student marketing committee which proposes a slogan of "quality, caring, creativity." The committee was enthusiastic during a November appearance before the board of trustees, and trustees are impressed by the notion of a comprehensive marketing plan.

"Schoolcraft has many fine programs, only one of which is well known — culinary arts," Jeffress said.

"There's nothing wrong with that. But we've not devoted attention to several other programs equally splendid."

Among them:

- Nursing — Schoolcraft's graduates have the highest scores on state licensure exams of any college in Michigan. One Schoolcraft graduate even wrote a perfect test.

- Music — Plans are in the works for vocal instructor Bradley Bloom to take a choral group on a tour of the state later this year. Schoolcraft achieved a kind of left-handed distinction when the previous fine arts director, Richard Saunders, was hired away by Northwestern Michigan College to be vice president.

- The futures conference — The two-day exposition last November brought regional attention to Schoolcraft when Alvin Toffler, author of "Future Shock" and "The Third Wave," and astronaut Robert Springer spoke on campus.

Downtown businesses moving, building

The first month of 1984 has begun with a spurt of business activity in the city.

While one Northville firm, Insurance Exchange Agency, has moved into expanded new quarters, another, Cloverdale's, closed in bankruptcy.

In addition, this month saw the reopening of an eatery at the southeast corner of Center and Dunlap, most recently known as Herbie's Ham Emporium as well as the grand opening of the Donut Scene January 21 at 314 North Center next to Snow Hardware.

Monday night city council set a public hearing for February 20 on the application of James Rea to move the Winner's Circle liquor license to the building he owns at 135 North Center in the block between Main and Dunlap. He has stated he wishes to change the bar into a restaurant operation.

Prison report forecasts loss location proposal. The interested party was described by R.A. DeMattia, a developer of the park, as a "foreign firm interested in building a high technology manufacturing facility."

The report notes that present facilities in the park are owned by Rock Tool Company, a machine tool manufacturer; White and White, a warehousing concern; and Mitutoyo Tool and Instruments (MIT), a Japanese firm said to be the world's largest manufacturer of precision measuring tools.

In addition to DeMattia, a major investor in the park is Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Company.

Potential for ultimate development of the park was placed at $2-300 million in new business including 5,000 jobs. The report states unequivocally that "with the potential of the prison in such close proximity to the park, development has been impeded."

The information from the report is to be included in the corrections department statement, which must be approved within the administration, then submitted to a state review board before making its way to the legislature's joint capital outlay committee. Legislators may not see the statement in its final form until as late as April.

Still two 'Jaws' fund drives

continued. "The city council has taken a position that we support the city fire department's drive for funds. If the Jaycees want to contribute to that drive, they are free to do so, and it would be appreciated."

Dawson attributed the failure of any city or township officials to recall Jaycee statements regarding the purchase of two Jaws of Life rather than one to a "communications problem." In mid-summer of 1983, he said, the program was outlined for both fire chiefs, or their representatives.

Regardless, he said, the intent now is clearly to purchase two and the only matter to be decided Wednesday is how best to allocate the present $6,000 toward the purchases, which together will cost nearly $19,000.

Liquor license hearing set the only member to vote in favor of the transfer last fall. Opposed was member Burton DeRusha, who has repeatedly stated his position opposing location of a liquor license adjacent to a church. Mayor pro tem G. Dewey Gardner was out of town Monday, his absence from the council meeting excused.

Vernon noted that he would be out of town when council next meets February 6, and both the mayor and Folino stated that the council should have all members present if it is to consider the issue again.

Although the second regularly-scheduled February session falls on the legal holiday of George Washington's birthday, council members decided to retain the February 20 date.

There has been indication of interest reported by owners of the unfinished furniture business in the present location of the Winner's Circle at 110 West Main. The firm lost its lease and quarters on Main Street when the building was sold to James Blaegens and Associates, manufacturers of prosthetics.

Blaegens was scheduled to come before the historic district commission Tuesday night with plans for remodeling the exterior of the building.

Bruce McAllister of McAllister's decorating is on the agenda of the city planning commission meeting of February 7 when he is expected to present plans for an addition to the house that is headquarters for the business and for a garage. He is seeking space for four businesses.

Also in January Genitti's Hole in the Wall Restaurant expanded the Italian restaurant business into the area that formerly was a gift and sweets shop.

Last month, Sweets 'n' Treats shop at 124 North Center gained new owners, James and Shirley Cowie, who had moved the business from Main Street to Center in late fall, sold it to Brad and Rita Derington who indicated they intended to continue the same type of operation.

The Insurance Agency Exchange, formerly at 160 East Main, last week became the first firm to move into North Shores, a new office building at 670 Griswald south of Eight Mile.

The new quarters, agent John Maloney said, with 1800 square feet about doubles the firm's former space. Other agents in the exchange are Harry Millanow, Ron Barnum and Jim Zickel.

Maloney said a group of attorneys is expected to move into the new building the beginning of March.

Phyllis Bell, in the city building department, said Cloverdale's owner Michael St. Clair had filed for reorganization in December of 1982 under Chapter 11. She said Cloverdale's water bill still is "on the books" and unpaid for that period.

The restaurant at 134 North Center closed in bankruptcy in December. St. Clair reportedly had been trying to find a buyer for the business. He had extensively remodeled the interior and expanded the restaurant's menu after purchasing the business two years ago.

The Ham Emporium has reopened with a new owner, Hyman Simon, who is naming the former fast food eatery Paul's Lucky Home Stretch. Simon also operates two video machines at Northville Downs, city clerk Joan McAllister said.

It appears there is a possibility of the city getting another restaurant. Bell said she had received an inquiry about six weeks ago regarding the vacated Main Street building formerly occupied by the Insurance Exchange Agency. The inquirer said he was interested in using it for a restaurant like the Cozy Cafe in Plymouth but to date has not pursued it with the city.

The Donut Scene has been open in the new building that is an addition to Snow Hardware on the south side of the building but celebrated a grand opening with specials last Saturday.

Owner Gene Andreozzi also operates a donut shop in Canton.

The shop is open daily from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. with a walk-up window open from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m.

DMH to use Plymouth for geriatric patients

Plymouth Center for Human Development's 'A' building on the east side of Sheldon Road near Five Mile will be renovated for use as a geriatric-psychiatric center at a cost to the state of $650,000.

The joint legislative capital outlay committee approved the expenditure early January 20 to match federal grant dollars for financing the renovation at a total estimated cost of $1.3 million.

The 'A' building is the largest on the center grounds and presently is in use only for administrative offices. It includes living quarters that would be renovated for placement of older mental patients who are sometimes victimized by fellow patients in the state's other mental hospitals.

State representative Gerald Law said he believes the investment in the mental health department project may assist efforts against a department of management and budget proposal to renovate the west side of Sheldon for use as a prison.

Plymouth Center, which houses mentally retarded youths, is scheduled to close in accordance with a court order in June of this year. That date has been twice-delayed due to difficulties the department has had in placing the remaining patients, who are severely or profoundly retarded, into community placement centers.

"This could help (our fight against the prison proposal) because mental health is now discovering it does have a use for that property even after it supposedly abandoned it," Law said last week.

There was no local objection lodged against the proposal, which had been spoken of during a public hearing on the prison issue. The proposed use for geriatric patients is consistent with the property's history as a state institution.

Township clerk Susan Heintz said early last week that the township might have cause to argue that, with the state able to expend such a sum on an institution in Northville, it ought to be able to fence Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital and said she had thus informed the township's lobbyist and legislators.

Schoolcraft looks at future

lege for new programs such as robotics, word processing and office automation.

Lindner said that among the elements adversely affecting the financial planning of the college is the constantly growing part-time student population, which makes up the majority of Schoolcraft's more than 9,000 students.

"The more part-time students, the higher the operating costs," Lindner noted.

He also noted the "importance of the five percent syndrome."

"In order to continue the same operation we have to have at least a five percent growth each year," Lindner noted.

"In absence of that growth," he said, "we either have to increase revenue or cutback."

While noting that 34.6 percent of the college budget comes from local tax dollars, Lindner also mentioned that in the last 16 years there has been no millage increase for Schoolcraft.

Citing taxes, state appropriations and tuition as the only sources for increased funding, Lindner said he didn't "know how much more you can milk those systems for."

Though he noted that the implementation of summer tax collection and insurance on workman's compensation has helped the college increase its investment earnings by some 10-15 percent, he said Schoolcraft is not quite where it should be in some areas of development.

Using the 1970 Master Plan of the college as a reference, Lindner noted that projections at that time were that the college would have some 9,900 students enrolled during the '80s. While Schoolcraft's enrollment is not too far behind that projection, Lindner said the college currently is "two buildings and one major addition shy of what was called for in the 1970 Master Plan."

He also noted that the total budget for the college has increased almost $10 million over the last decade. The total budget in 1974 was $6.9 million in comparison to this year's $16.4 million.

At the conclusion of the presentations, McDowell stressed to the board that the long-range objectives outlined by the vice presidents be used as a framework in development of the college.

He noted that the administration will be establishing a timetable to use in planning future goals for the college.

Center Street widening proposal gets council support

By this time next year, drivers may not recognize the intersection of Eight Mile and Center.

Under a proposal given approval by city council Monday night, Center would be widened north and south of Eight Mile when that road is widened next year. Council committed up to $20,000 toward the project in hopes of securing federal funding to cover 90 percent of the cost.

Preliminary drawings presented by consulting engineer Jack McNeely Monday night indicated the widening would be accomplished by moving the curb line 20 feet or more to the west while retaining the present east side curb.

Added would be a deceleration lane for the high school driveway, a left turn lane for southbound traffic north of Eight Mile, and improved traffic patterns around both the high school and Amerman elementary, McNeely explained.

In discussion with school superintendent George Bell, McNeely added, two topics of concern were raised. First is a blind spot for drivers exiting the high school drive, caused by the rise in the road. Drivers leaving the drive are unable to see, momentarily, southbound traffic due to a four-foot difference in elevation between the bottom of the drive and the crest of the hill.

Second is the narrow space between curb and sidewalk along that stretch. With the sidewalk so close to the roadway, and a steep rise to the west, McNeely said, there is a potential safety hazard there.

A change in road or driveway elevation during construction could solve the blind spot problem, McNeely said, while relocation of the sidewalk farther west would also be easily accomplished. The present sidewalk would be removed to accommodate the road-widening in any event, he explained.

School officials are willing to contribute the land for right-of-way for the road-widening, he reported.

McNeely said he had discussed the matter with Wayne County Road Commission officials, who indicated a willingness to add the project to the Eight Mile one and accomplish both under a single construction bid if the city would pick up the 10 percent matching fund requirement to obtain the federal money.

The Eight Mile project, already approved and expected next construction season, will create four lanes from east of Novi Road past Amerman.

Based on an accident report submitted to the road commission, a letter from city manager Steven Walters stated, it is expected that the Center Street project would qualify for federal aid on the basis of safety improvements.

McNeely explained that, with such a grant, the city would be required to pay 100 percent of the design cost and 10 percent of the construction cost for the project. Offering an "educated guess" that the widening would cost about $100,000, and cautioning that it was "pure guesswork," he said the city's cost would amount to a little less than $20,000.

The road commission, according to Walters' letter, required a resolution of council authorizing the commission to include the project in the Eight Mile project and to apply for the federal funding.

Walters was not present Monday, as he had scheduled a speaking engagement last spring, before council changed its January meeting dates. He presented a program on the city's downtown development project for the Ostego Chamber of Commerce annual meeting.

• OBITUARIES •

CORNELIA S. FOULKROD

Funeral service for Cornelia S. Foulkrod, 81, of 402 South Main, is being held at 11 a.m. today at Casterline Funeral Home. Her son-in-law, the Reverend Glen R. Schwarz of Springfield, Massachusetts, is officiating.

Burial will be in Rural Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Foulkrod died January 22 at Hendry Convalescent Center in Plymouth after an illness of three months. She was a homemaker and a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

She was born July 1, 1902, in Scotch Plains, New Jersey, to Fredrick and Victoria (Hand) Smith and married Raymond Foulkrod Sr. who died in 1970.

She leaves a daughter Nancy Ann Schwarz of Springfield, a son Raymond Jr. of Northville, a sister Mrs. Ann Smith of Tampa, Florida, six grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

MARTHA L. ROBERTSON

A memorial service for Martha L. Robertson, a township resident of 18800 Valencia, will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday at First Presbyterian Church where she was a member.

Mrs. Robertson, a homemaker and township resident for 30 years, died January 22 at the age of 85 at Garden City Osteopathic Hospital after a long illness.

Dr. Lawrence Chamberlain, senior pastor of First Presbyterian Church, will officiate at the service.

Mrs. Robertson was born May 7, 1898, in Evansville, Indiana, to Otto and Laura Karn. She married her husband Carl who survives.

She also leaves one daughter Shirley Beason of Northville, two sisters Olga Kleitz and Amanda Haag; five grandchildren Robert Beason stationed in Okinawa, William Beason of Sterling Heights, Gary and Ronald Beason of Northville and Mrs. John (Diane) Forsythe of Garden City; and six great-grandchildren.

Cremation and funeral arrangements were by Thayer-Rock Funeral Home of Farmington. The family has requested that memorial tributes be made to Hospice of Southeast Michigan.

JOHN DUBINICK

John Dubinick, a retired supervisor for Chrysler Motor Company who lived at 15633 Northville Forest Drive in Northville Township, died January 18 at Bedford Villa Convalescent Home in Southfield after a long illness. He was 84.

Funeral service was held at 1 p.m. Friday at Ross B. Northrop and Son Funeral Home with Elder Walter Howell of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints officiating. Entombment was in Grand Lawn Cemetery.

Mr. Dubinick was born September 7, 1899, in Mt. Carmel, Pennsylvania, to Constantine and Mary Dubinick. He was preceded in death by his wife Eva in 1980.

He was the brother of Mrs. Adele Vanznellis of New Britain, Connecticut, and the dear friend of Ralph H. Heaviland of Northville Township.

Rouge council taps officers

The newly elected officers of the Rouge River Watershed Council's executive committee officially have begun their 1984 terms this month.

Susan J. Heintz, Northville Township clerk, is secretary.

Chairperson is Esther Huising, Plymouth Township clerk.

Sidney Blitz, director of community development for Redford Township is vice chairman, and Robert Shaw, director of public services for the City of Novi, is treasurer.

Members-at-large are Peter McInerney, director of community improvement, City of Dearborn; Charles Gray, engineer of water systems, City of Detroit; and Fred Korzon, Bloomfield Township supervisor.

The new officers were elected at the council's annual general membership meeting in October by community delegates.

Lee Fidge is executive director of the watershed council composed of area communities cooperating for improved water resources.

'Chapter Two' is light fun, well done

By B.J. MARTIN

The Northville Marquis has a modest winner once again with "Chapter Two," Neil Simon's two-act play about divorce, mid-life crises, living through the death of a spouse and modern mores.

Sounds like wonderful material for a comedy, doesn't it? Don't worry — under Simon's light touch, love, romance and human foibles always are the counterweights to tragedy.

Sentimentality threads together even Simon's best comedies, and "Chapter Two" is no exception. Under experienced director Gael Barr, the approach in the Marquis show is distinctly warm-hearted serving the material well and making for an amusing two hours of entertainment.

The two male characters — brothers George and Leo Schneider, played by Tom O'Brien and Sal DeMercurio — bear most of the responsibility for the first act's success, while Camille Barr and Trudy Burnash, as old friends Jennie Malone and Fay Medwick, step forward in the second.

George is a widower who adored his late wife throughout a long, happy marriage and is still reeling from anguish after her death. Leo, as George's unwillingly cynical brother, tries to aid George by fixing him up with various women. Finally one — Jennie — turns out better than George felt he had a right to hope. And therein lies his — and Jennie's — problem.

Meanwhile, Leo's sour marriage reflects the more negative side of the institution, and leads to his fling with Fay — a bit of comic relief, actually.

As George, O'Brien brings above all else, solidity to his role (If pressed to name an actor with a similar style, I'd probably say Hal Linden). O'Brien is as mobile onstage as a big piece of architecture — at one point in the play, Jennie complains that one of her former dates had been a 6-foot-7 giant. Next to the petite Barr, O'Brien is no Mickey Rooney himself.

O'Brien has appeared in "Chapter Two" before — with the Huron Valley Civic Theater, where he is on the board of directors. He is a veteran of several musical and serious drama productions.

Next to O'Brien's immovable object is DeMercurio's active, gabby Leo — the irresistible force. Despite Leo's womanizing, brash and cynical character, DeMercurio makes him likable and understandable. Leo may get no sympathy, but he doesn't ask for it, either. At last Sunday's matinee, DeMercurio's intelligent, witty performance was most satisfying.

DeMercurio has acted in "Deathtrap" and "Nuts" at the Grosse Pointe Theatre. He has directed the musicals "Hello Dolly!" and "Oliver," and has worked with handicapped youth in speech and drama.

Leo's "irresistible force" finds a much more "moveable object" in Fay. Burnash's seasoning in 18 different Detroit-area productions brings a studied charm to Fay's Great American Neurotic Woman. By turns flippant, sexy, petulant and sympathetic, Burnash swings gracefully from mood to mood.

Whether Barr intended it that way or whether the nature of Simon's autobiographical writing style forced it is hard to say, but there's more than a smidgen of Marsha Mason in Barr's portrayal of Jennie. A short, pretty brunette, Barr even resembles Mason.

Simon's Jennie is not one of his best-drawn characters — her subservience to the self-centered George is hard to understand, especially for a character who is supposed to "sparkle," be "full of life."

Also — and this is Simon's fault, too — Jennie and George seem as stiff with each other after they've fallen in love as they did in their first encounter.

Maybe the chemistry between O'Brien and Barr will loosen up those two by this weekend's shows.

Within those limitations, Barr does an admirable job of keeping Fay from being self-pitying or whiny, and in her first-act telephone scene with George, Barr shows a good flair for comic acting. It is her and O'Brien's best moment, and is handled with real subtlety and cleverness. Applause.

As for acting mechanics, all the actors and actresses were right on the money Sunday — no muffed cues or lines, very precise and obviously well-rehearsed.

A few words on the overall production: throughout the play, the stage is divided into interiors of two apartments on different sides of New York City — so lighting, mechanical and design details were important to the success of the production. I am pleased to report these were painstakingly professional in every way.

The entr'acte music by producer Andrew Henderson is pleasant and unobtrusive without being saccharine. A nice touch.

"Chapter Two" continues this weekend with performances Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 p.m., with a Sunday matinee at 2:30 p.m. For ticket information, phone the Marquis Theater at 349-8110.

PTA-PTSA News

Elementary publishing centers open

EDITOR'S NOTE: The monthly Northville PTA-PTSA column which appears the last Wednesday of each month September through June is compiled by volunteer Linda Handyside. She coordinates material from the publicity persons in each of the elementary and junior high schools.

In addition, Jerry and Tina Delaney compile information about Our Lady of Victory School's activities and Nancy Lawrence writes about upcoming events at William Allan Academy.

Also, Carol Whittenburg and Sharon Pilat have joined with news about Christian Community School.

AMERMAN

Amerman now has another PET computer, a cassette player, a RCA color track television set and more computer software recently purchased with PTA funds.

A science program entitled "Our Amazing World of Light" was presented January 11 and was the first in a series of the Junior Entertainment Series provided through joint contributions of Coordinating Council and the local PTA.

Upper elementary students were entertained with a concert by the Cooke Glee Club January 18.

Fun was had by young and old alike at the first roller skating party at Bonaventure Roller Rink the evening of January 18. Two more parties are scheduled for March 1 and June 11. Mark your calendars for future family fun.

Amerman students will be involved during February with winter nature study activities. On February 9, the Huron Clinton Metropolitan Authority will present "From Nature's Nursery" for the lower elementary and "Cold Blooded Critters" for the upper elementary group. The upper elementary classes will be having an all day field trip to the Indian Springs Nature Center to observe winter wildlife and participate in winter activities.

Upper elementary students are busy organizing projects for the annual science fair.

The next Amerman PTA meeting is at 9:30 a.m. February 20 at the Amerman library. A program entitled, "How do our children become exposed to drugs and alcohol?" will be held at 7:30 p.m. February 22 in the Amerman library.

The Christmas Boutique was a huge success thanks to the many Amerman parents who donated crafts and to members of Girl Scout Troop 379 who volunteered free gift wrapping service.

The "Christmas in Other Lands" program was an enlightening experience for the Amerman children. The following volunteers are to be commended for their explanations of the customs, traditions, gifts and food of their native lands: Mr. and Mrs. Wen — China; Mrs. Filkin — Germany; Marko Kaasineau — Finland; Mrs. Elyn Peters — Poland and Mrs. Molly Berkaw — England.

Mrs. Virginia Kricit's kindergarten classes culminated their Indian unit with a field trip to the Plymouth Historical Museum where they heard about the culture of the early Indians, tasted Indian food and touched Indian artifacts.

Third graders are studying and comparing Indian Tribes and will be going on a field trip to the Ann Arbor Museum.

MORaine

At 7 p.m. February 6, Moraine's PTA will sponsor a talk by David Tigertt, who will discuss the topic, "Family Stress." Anyone in the community is welcome to attend.

To kick-off the opening of the Publishing Center at Moraine, a group of storytellers was on hand January 23. Norma Beemer is in charge of this project and reports that completed student books will be available for viewing in the library.

With the extremely cold winter weather, Moraine students frequently have the option of remaining inside at noon recess under the supervision of parent volunteers. Donations of toys, quiet games, coloring books, puzzles and the like are being sought for use at these indoor recess times. Bring any donations to Moraine's office and they will be put to use.

There presently are 148 paid members of Moraine's PTA, according to Chris Maloney, membership chairman. Mrs. Patricia Keeler's class has the honor of having the most parent memberships. The next regular meeting of the PTA will be at 9:30 a.m. February 6 in Moraine's library.

Moraine students have been reaping the benefits of the talented older students in the district. On January 17, our students enjoyed the singing of the Cooke Junior High School Choir. First and second graders were delighted by a high school drama group's version of "Cinderella" presented January 20. Report cards go home February 1.

SILVER SPRINGS

January was highlighted with a special presentation by Detroit Edison Company for the upper elementary. Chevis Spratt presented a program on "high wire" safety. Many thanks to Ray Balutowicz for his interest to request J.E.S. to provide this program for our students.

J.E.S. also sponsored a special American Indian program from Port Huron for our fifth and sixth graders January 20.

January also featured the Annual Family Night Pizza Supper and Bake Sale. This annual event, sponsored by the Silver Springs PTA was a terrific success, giving many parents and students a chance to meet and enjoy a fun evening.

Look out! Here comes the Young Authors Center. Janet Freed and Merne Hines again are offering their skills along with PTA Chairperson Sharon Rossow to publish the "works" of the many Silver Springs' authors. PTA members help to make books, edit our students' literary works and type and paste the books. Students illustrate their own works. The books are retained in the library and students are encouraged to share their literary efforts with a variety of Silver Springs visitors and students. If you are interested in helping this effort, leave your name with Mrs. Freed or Sharon Rossow.

The CRT desks purchased with monies generated in our fundraisers this fall now are in use in the school. The Commodore PET computers will arrive late this month.

February will start out with a bang. To celebrate the PTA is sponsoring a Family Roller Skating Night February 2. Chairperson Kathy White will be selling advance tickets through the office for those who do not want to wait in line. Plan now to enjoy an evening with your children and the teaching staff at the Plymouth Skatin' station from 6:30-8:30 p.m. February 2.

To honor the dedication and work of the Silver Springs Safeties, safety sponsors Phil Demski and Janet Rigney have planned an outing February 3 to the Detroit Pistons game at the Pontiac Silverdome.

Silver Springs students will compete in the annual Spelling Bee February 3. The winner of this event will receive a thesaurus and go on to compete in area-wide competition in the spring.

Sue Kupsky

WINCHESTER

Chairman Linda Wesley invites all Winchester students and their families to attend the first roller skating party of the year at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Skatin' Station. Admission is $1 per person plus skate rental. Tickets may be purchased at the door, or at school tomorrow morning.

Also tomorrow, Winchester will be visited by professional storytellers who will set the scene for the opening of the Publishing Center January 31 under the direction of Karen Brown, Roxanne Koche and Judy Whiteley.

The fifth and sixth grade students in the Gifted Program will be visiting Amerman School in the afternoon January 31 to share their completed projects which were a follow-up to their Cranbrook visitation. They also will have the opportunity to attend two adult-led workshops of their choice. Parents are invited to view the students' projects from 7-8 p.m. that evening.

The Campbell Soup drive is in its final weeks, as the competition between classes ends February 6. Prizes will be awarded to the first and second place classes in the lower and upper elementary.

Junior Enrichment Series chairmen

Margo Smith and Cheryl Walro have arranged for the Michigan Opera Theatre to teach us "All About Our Voices" with an audience participation program February 17. Physical Education teacher Mary Minor will host Winchester's own Winter Olympics in mid-February, with students competing in outdoor athletic events. Kindergarten is a three-ring-circus this month as Carole Schaal's students prepare to entertain their parents by performing their own circus acts at the end of February.

Dr. Virginia Rezmierski will expand on her Parent Education program of last year when she returns at 7 p.m. February 28 to discuss Stress Management. The fourth, fifth and sixth graders are "watching their p's and q's" as they prepare for the Second Annual Spelling Bee beginning February 29. The Parent-Teacher Library continues to grow with the addition of "The One Minute Mother" and "The One Minute Father" which were purchased with Book Fair profits.

The focus was on health during January as the sixth graders were screened for Scoliosis and kindergartners, first, third and fifth graders had their vision tested. An informative program was presented by a naturalist from the Metropark January 6. New faces were noticed in the building January 13 as many parents took advantage of the opportunity to visit their children's classroom during parent visitation day.

Congratulations to Laura Williams, the new PTA secretary; Dan Brining, Pam Spigarelli and Kara Kordt, Outstanding Service Club members for November and December, and to the Winchester PTA for being honored in the state PTA booklet for its 137 percent membership increase.

COOKE

A fantastic Career Day program has been scheduled for the morning of February 23. Men and women from a wide variety of professions, many of them Cooke parents, will be on hand to talk about their chosen fields. We'll have a helicopter with a woman pilot landing in back of the school, weatherman Chuck Gaidica from Channel 2 and an FBI agent — to name a few. Students will be able to attend three 35-minute mini sessions.

This Friday, January 27, marks the end of last semester. There will be no school that day so teachers can complete report card marking.

Make-up day for those students who were absent when school pictures were taken in September is scheduled for tomorrow. Yearbooks in which these pictures will appear are on sale and must be ordered now for spring delivery.

In cooperation with the Children's Book Mark at Twelve Oaks, the PTO is planning a Book Fair for February 14-15. The first day classes will preview the books and purchases can be made February 15. The PTO will receive 20 percent on the proceeds. Parents are invited to attend the fair which will remain open during school hours only.

Mrs. Mary Fredyl's Vidio Production 1 classes will be performing their semester play projects for parents today. The classes will be doing satires of television programs.

The choir, under the direction of Tim Bartlett, is traveling to elementary schools this month to perform musical selections learned this year. It will be at Amerman today.

At 7:30 p.m. February 15, the Massey Tapes will be shown to interested parents in the Media Center. The excellent, motivational film discusses how value judgments change from generation to generation.

The seventh and eighth grade swim team, coached by Bill Dicks, took first place in a five-school relay meet held January 14 at the high school.

The PTO made more than $1,200 on the orange and grapefruit sale conducted last fall. The money will be used for enrichment activities or materials for the students at Cooke.

MEADS MILL

The Meads Mill student body ended the 1983 year with a school dance December 14 sponsored by the PTSA. The month of December also saw the end to girls' intramural basketball which was a big success. Before school was dismissed for the Christmas break, the boys had basketball tryouts with many practices to prepare for January games.

The first event of the new year was a bake sale January 12 sponsored by the PTSA. It was so successful that it is being followed with another tomorrow.

Our choir has been busy practicing as it performed January 16 for Silver Springs Elementary School and January 19 for Winchester Elementary School. It is directed by Timothy Bartlett and is made up of 7th, 8th and 9th grade boys and girls.

The cheerleaders have been busy getting cheers together so they can lead the all-school pep rally which will introduce the boys on the basketball team. So far both the 7th-8th and 9th grade teams have a winning season. Keep up the good work boys. The school will have a pep assembly February 2 to support our teams when they play Cooke.

On January 18, the first meeting for students interested in membership in the forensic team was held under the direction of Mrs. Wilma Castillo. The students will be working hard to get ready for some competition plus learning the skills needed for being a member of the forensic team.

The other activities for students are the co-educational swim team which has started practice and meets at the high school pool under the direction of Mark Redford. Also Girls' Intramural Volleyball began January 23. Robert Kucher is directing this program after school.

The yearbook committee has been busy selling yearbooks and compiling pictures for this year's edition. Student Council is back to work after its Christmas break and is planning an all-school Valentine's Dance.

Sandra McRae

CHRISTIAN COMMUNITY SCHOOL

Basketball season is upon us. The basketball coach is working hard with the 4th-7th grade boys in developing their basketball skills. Our next game is Monday, January 30, at 4:30 p.m. at Fairlane Christian. Hope to see you there.

On February 16 and 17, our 6th and 7th grade boys and girls are going to an overnight winter retreat. They will be going to the Pine Hills Camp in Brighton. In addition to nature trails and the science emphasis, students will enjoy horseback riding and tobogganing.

The wheels will be rolling January 31. The entire school, including several brave teachers, will be skating at Riverside Arena in Livonia. Skating will begin at 5:30 p.m. and go until 8 p.m.

February 20-22 will be a busy time with our Second Annual Science Fair. The boys and girls are working hard at home preparing their science projects.

Storytime

To kick-off the opening of the Publishing Center at Moraine Elementary School, students were treated to an afternoon of storytelling by members of the Detroit Story League. While the adventures of The North Wind (at left), as told by Barbara Schutz of Ann Arbor, certainly were the highlight of the afternoon, students also had an opportunity to read books compiled by their classmates. Books, written and illustrated by students, are available in the library for viewing.

Free workshop offered to seniors

Northville Public Schools is hosting a workshop for senior citizens to discuss "What's Happening with your Telephone" from 1-3 p.m. February 3 at Allen Terrace. The workshop is free to all area senior citizens and is being conducted by Jan Wilhelm, who teaches community education classes for senior citizens through the Northville Community Education program. Registration information is available by calling 349-3400, extension 214.

Nature walk scheduled at Metropark

"Snow Tracking," a 1½-hour nature walk, will be held at the Nature Center of Kensington Metropark near Milford Saturday, February 4 at 10:30 a.m.

Participants should dress for the weather as they search along the trails for animal signs.

This program is free; however, advance registration and a vehicle entry permit (annual — $7, daily — $2) are required. For information or to register, contact the Nature Center at Kensington Metropark, phone 1-800-552-6772 (toll-free).

Our Lady of Victory sets February open house

The projects will be on display for three days. Parents are invited to view the projects during school hours.

Spanish class has always been an elective offered to all C.C.S. students. Now French is being taught to 4th-7th graders.

Materials are now being prepared for fall enrollment for preschool, as well as kindergarten through 8th grade. Direct all inquiries after January 31 to the school office at 348-9030.

OUR LADY OF VICTORY

"Education: the Beacon of Hope" will be the theme of this year's National Catholic School Week beginning February 6. An open house will be held February 9 at Our Lady of Victory School. From 10-11 a.m., visitors are invited to view classes in session. Coffee and donuts will be served from 11-11:30 a.m. Mrs. Sharlene Thompson, school principal, will be available to answer questions.

Early in February, OLV planned something special in the form of "The St. Jude Math-a-Thon." Proceeds will be donated directly to St. Jude's Children's Hospital in Texas, where childhood diseases are treated free of charge.

Joann Dalziel's 7th and 8th grade French classes have been expanding their involvement in the language and the country. Several students applied to the United Nations League of Friendship for Pen Pals. At this time, the children have received names, ages and addresses of their correspondents as far away as Paris and Marseilles.

In December, the students took part in a French picnic featuring French cheeses, fruit, French bread and eclairs — even red checked tablecloths. Chris King, an 8th grader, made a traditional "Buche de Noel" (Christmas Log) which he shared with his class.

Jane Martin and Linda Emery are busy organizing the Art Appreciation Program which will run from January to April. Picture Ladies (volunteer moms) will introduce the children to a variety of prints from the Renaissance to the modern.

Another special even planned for February is the annual Science Fair February 22 and 23.

WILLIAM ALLAN ACADEMY

It's been an exciting New Year for students at William Allan Academy. All students, kindergarten through 6th grade, were given extended praise from parents and members of the community for their Christmas production, "Little Red Schoolhouse Remembered," staged at the Marquis Theater.

The first and second graders have been busy finishing their winter stories. The next step in the process is to put them on the computer for printing.

The third and fourth graders continue to do their newspaper "Newsflashes" with oral presentations. They also are doing continent weather studies and state reports.

Our fifth and sixth graders at the Academy are having fun with the life science center. Their two rabbits are well cared for and loved. The third and fourth graders await their set-up of the new aquarium.

All students at the Academy have something special to rave about — our very own ice sculptures. Each year, the children make sculptures in art class. This project also took children to see Plymouth's ice creations and sculptures.

College hosts poetry reading

The Schoolcraft Creative Arts Journal will sponsor a College Poetry Reading at 8 p.m. March 26 in Room B-200 of the Liberal Arts Building.

Arthur Lindenberg invites everyone who has written poetry to apply to read by sending three to five typewritten poems to him at Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty Road, Livonia, 48152.

Applicants may also deliver poems to B-431 in the Liberal Arts Building. The deadline is February 4. Each poem should include the author's name, address and telephone number.

A faculty committee will choose six to eight applicants to read from their work. In addition, all poems submitted will be considered for publication in the new Creative Arts Journal.

For more information, call Lindenberg at 591-6400, extension 449 or 440.

Madonna slates O. Henry comedy

"The Ransom of Red Chief," a play based on the classic O. Henry story of two bungling kidnappers made miserable by the "brat" they've abducted, will be presented at 3 p.m. Sunday at Madonna College in Livonia.

The comedy will be performed by the professional acting company, "Crossroads."

Admission is $2 per person. A special ticket price of $1 is being offered for this performance to Indian Guides. Groups may call in advance for ticket information at 591-5197.

Police Blotters

Two deer-car collisions reported on Sheldon Road

In the Township . . .

Drivers on Sheldon should be wary of deer crossing their path.

Township police reported two incidents last week where deer were hit by cars on Sheldon near Six Mile.

The first accident occurred at 6:30 p.m. January 16, when a deer ran east in front of a vehicle heading north on Sheldon.

The driver of the vehicle told police that while his car struck the deer, the animal appeared only injured.

The officer at the scene observed animal hair in the front bumper.

A similar incident occurred at 6:50 p.m. January 17, when a deer ran in front of a northbound vehicle from the west side of the roadway.

The driver told police he swerved and braked in an attempt to miss the animal. However, it was to no avail.

A police chase through Highland Lakes at approximately 11 p.m. January 16 resulted in township police recovering a stolen 1976 Ford pickup truck.

According to police, the patrol officer responsible for recovering the stolen vehicle heard the Northville City Police dispatcher advise that a red Ford pickup truck had been stolen near Randolph and Eight Mile and that its whereabouts were unknown.

The dispatcher noted that the vehicle had a plow attachment on the front and gave the license plate number.

The township officer proceeded to Eight Mile and Griswold to check the alert. No sooner had the officer arrived, when a red Ford pickup with plow lights activated was observed to be eastbound on Eight Mile.

The officer pulled out onto Eight Mile and caught up with the vehicle. Noticing the license plate matched the description given by the city police dispatcher, the officer activated the patrol car's overhead emergency lights and sirens.

According to the police report, the suspect driver turned to look at the officer and then increased in speed and turned south on Silver Springs.

The suspect then drove over the median onto northbound Silver Springs and continued southbound. The driver turned south onto Rippling Lane, traveling 45-50 miles per hour, and ran the stop sign at southbound Rippling and Scenic.

About halfway down Rippling Lane, a white Mercury was observed northbound. According to the report, the driver of the Mercury drove his vehicle off the road as much as possible to avoid a collision with the truck.

Upon approaching a Scenic Harbor residence, the truck was driven across the sideyard and into the backyard.

Only about 100 feet behind the suspect, the officer observed the driver flee from the truck and head north along the east shore of Silver Springs Lake.

The officer followed the suspect's path in the snow as far as possible. However, he was unable to catch the driver.

Upon returning to the stolen vehicle, the officer observed the ignition had been punched.

The vehicle was returned to the owner at about 11:45 p.m. No property damage was reported.

. . . In the City . . .

Nearly $1,270 worth of items were stolen from a home on Concord Court between 10:30 a.m. and 1:10 p.m. Monday, city police reported yesterday. According to the report, a thief or thieves broke into the home by kicking in its north door and made off with a stereo with speakers, a silver wristwatch, a color television and console and a waist-length coat. Police are investigating.

Evidence of another break-in was discovered Sunday morning at a home on North Center Street. Nothing was found to be stolen from the home, but the front door window was found broken (damage was estimated at $15) and the door was ajar. The break-in is believed to have taken place between 2 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. Sunday.

Not so lucky was the Monroe owner of a two-door 1982 Olds Toronado parked at Northville Downs Monday night. While she and her husband were visiting the track between 7:25 and 10:20 p.m., the brown automobile was stolen, despite its being locked. The car was valued at $4,500.

A Downs visitor from Trenton was the victim of an attack and attempted robbery Monday, January 16. At 7:35 p.m. he was exiting his car, parked at City Lot No. 4 (behind the M.A.G.S. building), when he was assaulted from behind by a man he described as a 5'8" black male, about 170 pounds, wearing a green jacket, blue jeans and "a black toboggan hat." After struggling with the attacker, who attempted to steal his wallet from his back pocket, the Trenton man escaped and ran toward the track.

The same night, at about 10:55 p.m., the owner of a 1983 Ford reported the white camper top and one new tire were stolen from his car while it was parked in City Lot No. 2. (across from the Winner's Circle on Main Street). The stolen items were valued at $675.

City police reported five drunk driving arrests last week, two during shifts on the Oakland County Alcohol Enforcement Team.

One of those AET arrests, according to police reports, required the use of force to subdue the prisoner. Police took a 26-year-old Livonia man into custody after he failed road sobriety tests. While being transported in a squad car to the city police building, the drunk man reportedly began loudly cursing, then hitting, butting and kicking both the officer in the back seat of the squad car next to him, and also the driver, causing him to swerve violently behind the wheel. Reinforcements were called to control the man, described as being 5'8", 250 pounds. He was imprisoned and released on bail later.

. . . From State Police

Charges are pending against a 17-year-old Plymouth girl found engaged in sexual relations with a 55-year-old male mental hospital patient last week, according to state police reports.

According to the report, a Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital nurse discovered the visitor and patient in the patient's room shortly before noon August 17. Since the patient is mentally ill, he is described as the victim in the report.

The visitor, who had signed-in stating she was the patient's granddaughter, stated she and the patient had lived together for more than two years prior to his being committed to the hospital. She said she was not related to the patient. According to the report, this was confirmed by the patient's former roommate, a Plymouth man. The roommate said he knew the two to be intimate prior to the patient's commitment to the hospital.

Official addresses for both the suspect and the victim are identical with that of the roommate, though the girl reportedly has moved to another man's home.

Police have forwarded details of the incident to the county prosecutor for a determination of whether or not prosecution will be made.

A city resident reported she was sexually assaulted in a van on Seven Mile Road the night of January 8, according to police reports.

The 27-year-old woman told police she went with a male friend to Jamie's on 7, a Livonia bar on Seven Mile, where she met and danced with another man. According to the report, she told the man she went with that the second man would give her a ride home.

When she got in the man's van, she told police, the man, identified only by first name, sat and waited for about 10 minutes, saying he was waiting for "a friend." Eventually, seven other men entered the van and the group drove to a small house.

The complainant told police she entered the home with the eight men, where they pushed and fondled her. Eventually, the complainant said, she consented to perform sexual acts with two of the group if they would drive her home.

When the van reached Seven Mile, she said, she was forced to perform a sex act with one man in the back of the van and, as a play, offered to do so with the driver. When the driver pulled over, the complainant bolted out the passenger side door and ran a block and one-half home, according to the report.

The woman told police she "didn't realize" she'd been assaulted until the next day when she contacted a rape crisis center. She could not offer much information to help identify the men, noting she was intoxicated at the time of the incident, the report states.

She made the report in the company of a friend, who when contacted last week informed police that the complainant had left the state, saying she would contact police regarding her willingness to prosecute. The case remains open, pending contact from the complainant.

Drugs, alcohol are topics of VFW talk January 31

A free drug and alcohol abuse talk will be given by Lieutenant John Fonger of the Michigan State Police under sponsorship of the Northville Veterans of Foreign Wars at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, January 31.

The program will be held at Northville Post 4012, 438 South Main.

Marijuana, alcohol and other drugs will be discussed by Lieutenant Fonger.

All area parents and children are invited to attend the informative presentation. Refreshments will be available.

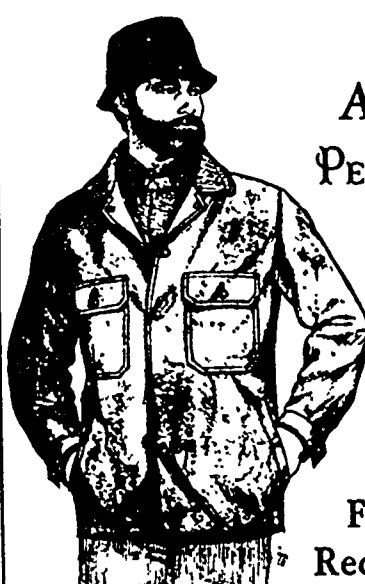

For additional information call Sara or Bob Schmidt, 349-8448, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays.

Correction

A story and accompanying graphic in last week's Record outlining the Northville Public Schools' graduation requirements in comparison to recently recommended state Board of Education requirements should have specified that the state board's requirements are based on a four-year high school (grades 9-12), whereas Nor-thville's graduation requirements are based on a three-year high school.

The Northville Public Schools will be realigning the present grade structure to a middle school concept in 1985. The administration and board of education may be looking at another change in graduation requirements prior to the grade level realignment.

Community education classes scheduled

The Northville Community Education Department has reported a correction in its winter term brochure.

Persons interested in the Country Painting class should note the course is designed to provide step-by-step techniques for painting with acrylics on wood.

Various projects will include painting daisies, strawberries and a peasant girl on a stick. The class is designed for beginners as well as those with some experience. A materials list is available at the first class.

Registration is under way for several other new classes being offered this winter for both children and adults.

Among the new arts and crafts classes are ceramics, china painting and country crafts.

Courses taught by Northville residents include: Calligraphy with Judith Hanson; Drawing with C. Phelps

Hines; Crochet with Denise MacLean and Folk Art with Karen Hooper.

In response to requests from the community, bridge classes for beginners and intermediate players are offered. Bridge, available for junior high students to adults, is taught by Northville resident Lu Wagner. Wagner also is offering workshops focusing on beginning a business and preparing for retirement.

To meet community interest in the financial area, several financial planning courses are available. Of special interest is Financial Planning for Women and Retirement Financing.

You and Aging is a workshop for participation by both children and adults. Led by Fran Yoakam, the class explores the chronological, physical, mental and social aspects of the aging process.

One of the most popular areas of the community education program is the after-school specials for students. Nature Notes and Science Search, taught by Norma Beemer, are two new classes. Other classes include Woodworking, Teen Modeling, Yoga and Drawing. The Stringed Instrument program offers classes for beginners and experienced players.

"Kids' Kreative Korner," Northville Community Education's licensed preschool, once again is being offered under the direction of Carolyn Belliston and Carol Van Soest. Parent and Tot class is being taught by Debbie Kinde, who also is teaching two kindergarten readiness classes, Learning Letters and Nifty Numbers.

Music for Moppets, an opportunity to introduce preschoolers to music, is new to the community education schedule this winter. Northville resident Ruthellen Singer teaches the course.

Northville Community Education also provides courses for high school completion. Business, English, social studies and science classes are available as well as G.E.D. preparation.

To meet the demands of the computer age, Northville Community Education offers multi-level computer classes for all ages.

Physical Fitness also has expanded to include Dynamic Energy, Yoga I and II as well as Aerobics and Slimnastics. Slim-Robics, one of the winter's new fitness classes, consists of stretch and tone routines and cardio-vascular exercises.

Brochures for winter term offerings are available in the Community Education Office in the Board of Education Building, 501 West Main. For further information, call 349-3400, extension 217.

TAX TIPS

LEE E. HOLLAND, C.P.A.

SELLING YOUR HOME

If you are 55 or older and are thinking of selling your home, under today's law you are permitted to exclude up to $125,000 of any gain made on the sale. This is a once-in-a-lifetime exclusion, but think of the benefits!

It doesn't have to be a house, either, in order for you to benefit from this provision in the new tax law. It can be a condominium, a co-op apartment or a yacht, as long as you've owned and used it as your principal residence for at least three years out of the five-year period preceding the sale. If the property is owned jointly with your spouse and you file joint returns, the law only requires one of you to meet the 55 age, use, and holding period requirement.

If you are not 55 you can exclude the gain if you purchase or construct a residence within 2 years before or after the sale and invest the proceeds. Again, a yacht, etc. used as your residence would qualify as reinvestment property. So retire on a yacht or house boat! Call us regarding this and other plans that you might have. We do personal financial and estate planning.

PDAP acquires funds, hires program director

The Palmer Drug Abuse Program of Southeast Michigan headquartered in Milford has reached its 1983 budget goal, enabling the Board of Trustees to hire a program director last Saturday.

A total of $92,361 has been raised, including recent contributions of $1,000 from Community National Bank and a $4,000 pledge from Parke-Davis.

Odell Booker, 44, a PDAP program director presently in Saint Louis, will begin his duties in Milford around March 1, announced Richard Wilson, chairperson of the board.

Booker was hired by the board following a recommendation of the interviewing committee chaired by the Reverend Henry Stenner.

Committee member Jim Lawrence called Booker "people-sensitive," while Bob Lesner referred to the candidate as an "ideal person for the job."

Another called Booker "an assertive, no-nonsense person, who is quiet but tough and one who will get the job done."

According to Stenner, Booker became involved with PDAP as a parent in 1978 when he was undergoing substance abuse problems with his sons.

He worked in adult probations for PDAP in 1979 and went through PDAP training to become a counselor with the persons in the 17-25 age group. He has been a program director in Saint Louis for the past year.

Booker said Saturday he anticipates arriving in Milford about March 1 to begin his duties. He will then hire two substance-abuse counselors who will also work out of the PDAP office at the Milford Presbyterian Church.

Because all PDAP directors and counselors must be former abusers, Booker noted his past seven years of sobriety.

"I am really excited about coming to Milford. I have been impressed by the warmth of the people. I feel really at home," he said.

Booker said he and his fiancée Joanne would probably be married prior to his arrival in Milford. She serves as a substance abuse counselor for Anheuser-Busch and will join Booker later.

Members of the PDAP board met Saturday at the home of Dick and Nora Wilson to meet Booker during the afternoon luncheon meeting.

Oakway sets concert date

Concert IV of Oakway Symphony's current season features duo pianists Flavio Varani and Joyce Weintraub-Adelson in concert at 3 p.m. January 29 at Southfield-Lathrup High School.

Featured in the program will be Mikhail Glinka's Overture to Russian and Ludmilla; Antonin Dvorak's Symphony No. 9 in E. Minor; and Francis Poulenc's Concerto for Two Pianos.

The symphony, under the direction of conductor Francesco Di Blasi, will support the duo piano program.

Performing on the stage since the age of seven, Flavio Varani's first public performance was in Sao Paulo, Brazil. A Juillard student of Rosina Lhevinne, Varani received his B.A. and M.A. degrees in music from the Manhattan School of Music.

Varani has appeared internationally and has performed frequently on all major networks. Appearing with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, he performed the world premiere of Stanley Hollingsworth's "Concerto for Piano and Orchestra." Varani has taught music studies at Oakland University since 1972.

Specializing in duo piano since her early teens, Joyce Weintraub-Adelson studied at Eastman School of Music and Cleveland Institute. With her sister, Joanne, she has appeared throughout the United States in duo piano performances including appearances with Arthur Fiedler and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

A professor of music at Oakland University, Weintraub-Adelson lectures and presents workshops on duopianism.

Tickets for the January 29 concert are $6; senior citizens and students $3. Tickets may be purchased at Hammel Music in Livonia, Madonna College in Livonia, Executive Office Supplies in Farmington or at the concert.

Our Opinion

One too many

Every time it appears that Northville is making genuine strides toward abolishing the city-township split, something trivial comes along to heat up the old rivalry again. This go-around, it's the Jaws of Life campaign, and the Jaycees got caught in the middle.

Officials of both city and township, with the Jaycees, have simply accepted as fact the proposition that Northville needs two of these devices. Why? As best as we can tell, because there are separate fire departments. Surely if one is sufficient to serve Novi, where there is a higher traffic volume, larger area and more high-speed travel, one would be sufficient for Northville.

If Northville had a single fire department, going to both city and township in search of funding, we're certain the proposal to buy two Jaws of Life to serve this area would be subject to intense scrutiny by both governing bodies. But since both fire chiefs assert that their departments "need" to have it available on a moment's notice, two there will be.

In fact, so convinced is everyone that two are needed that there was discussion Monday indicating that a third would be "needed" eventually. So we'd all best resign ourselves to having two Jaws of Life around. We must acknowledge that's not all bad — a little extra security is hard to argue against. But we are disappointed. Not because we regard the money spent as wasted, but because we had hoped for better utilization of funds and some mature cooperation.

Off the record

By Kevin Wilson

Victim of a Capri-cious car

God is testing me. I know it. How else to explain why a fellow with such a fascination — nay, love — for automobiles can have such rotten luck with them over such a short period of time?

It all began with a glowing red light. It being Thanksgiving night (bitter cold, you may recall), on the way home from Ypsilanti, with the 17-month-old out back, I was justly concerned about what it might mean. Problem was that it glowed on the dash of a car we hadn't owned all that long, was unlabeled, and we had no owner's manual to tell us what it was trying to say. What's more, despite the little Ford insignia on the doorills this wasn't a common Dearborn product but an "orphaned" 1976 Capri II — German-built and no longer imported to the U.S.

Turns out it was an alternator light, disguised by location next to the temp gauge, halfway across the dash from the ammeter, which itself indicated nothing out of line. My feeble home garage diagnosis was that we had a rotten battery, and Sears got 'em on sale. So we diligently packed up the kid when mom got home, exhausted, after a midnight-shift at the hospital and drove off to our friendly neighborhood Sears.

Where the key came out of the ignition but refused to go back in. Seeing it was bent, I tried to straighten it and SNAP! there went our only key to the car. This is where you learn that no matter how many signs advertise experts in key-making, no one has the right blank to cut a new key for a 1976 Capri II. What's more, some will phfully use the wrong blank (for a Ford Fiesta, another orphaned German product) and swear it will work while others find the blank but won't cut a new key off your broken one.

Meanwhile, Fairlane security is getting antsy about this black car sitting in their parking lot. To shorten an impossibly long story, after seven efforts to have keys made, I found the Northville Locksmith (highly recommended, on Seven Mile across from McDonald Ford) who made the right key. Which went in the ignition only hours before the car was to be towed away. After nearly a week, the car was in Sears' garage.

Where they determined it wasn't the battery, but the alternator. Which they could obtain, rebuilt, in about 10 days, in exchange for my first-born son. So, back with mom and the kid to jump the car and find, in a snowstorm, that the friendly security guards had broken the driver's side windshield wiper when they attached the obnoxious "tow-away warning." Window open, ice scraper in hand, we got away about two car-lengths ahead of the Dearborn police tow truck.

Home again, I employed a frost-bitten left arm to dial the phone about four million times to find an alternator for a "mere" $85. This is a $50 saving over the Sears' price, I accomplish the switch in a mere hour of labor (plus 90 minutes at the parts joint while we strip off the pulley and other wee bits not included in the rebuilt), and I'm feeling pretty good. Even replaced both wiper arms. That's Friday. Saturday morning Toni goes out to the car, and the key won't go in the switch again. No way, no how, it won't happen.

Sunday I rip the ignition switch from the column (just like the locksmith said — a center punch, a hammer, a broken thumb and 20 minutes later I have it). But this evil device won't even yield to the practiced hands of the smith. Across to McDonald Ford, where they are friendly and sincere in their efforts to help, but somewhat bewildered by the parts number puzzle. If I can get a new one, it'll cost a lot and take a week or more. And may not fit.

Off to the scrap yards, where I obtain a switch of dubious history. And pay too much for it, because, like all such parts "it's the only one we have in stock — I coulda sold it three times today but held it for you." It comes with only one key. I have another made before I put the switch in the car — I learn slowly, but I learn.

That was last month. This month I've lost two exhaust pipes (one each car), collected an equipment violation because the brake and tail-lights in the Capri gave up without telling me about it, and started seeing a little red light go on in the other car — brakes. And the right rear window fell out of the hatchback when I closed the door last week (never a Japanese car again, I swear). Then there's the oil drain plug I couldn't break loose, the lug nuts on the Capri wheel with the flat tire (ditto), and the frozen gas-cap door lock on the Champ. There are certain days when, if I realized my childhood dream of meeting Henry Ford, the man who put America on wheels, I'd hit him with a bent jack handle.

About Town

By Steve Fecht

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

People around here don't know Marilyn Herald. Marilyn is a columnist for our South Lyon paper and I worked with her for three years when I was stationed out there from 1974-77.

At any rate, I was thinking about Marilyn last week because of a column she wrote back in '75. Marilyn claimed she could tell when a man hit his 40th birthday simply by his behavior.

Marilyn claimed that strange changes began to occur on or about a man's 40th birthday. According to her column, the brand new 40-year-old male suddenly decides to go on a diet. Starts dressing in clothes designed for someone half his age, maybe even unbuttoning the top two buttons on his shirt. And trades in the family station wagon for a nifty little sports car.

I thought about that column because a close personal friend of mine recently hit the big Four-Oh. Don't try to guess who it is. Just say he's an individual for whom I have the utmost personal respect.

I've been watching this individual closely since his birthday ... to see if he exhibits any of the unusual behavior cited by Marilyn in that column she wrote eight years ago.

Of course, it's a little hard to tell if he's acting differently because he always was something of a sporty guy to begin with. I mean this friend of mine always was somebody who looked like he belonged in a sports car.

Good looking fellow. Stylish dresser. And handsome in sort of an offbeat, rugged kind of way.

And I'm happy to report that this friend of mine has not only survived the emotional trauma of turning 40, but actually seems to be relishing his newly-acquired "mature" look. With my help, of course.

"Lots of people are 40," I told him. "Look at Robert Redford. Look at Paul McCartney. They're over 40 and nobody accuses them of being old."

"Don't listen to those snide comments from your staff," I told this friend of mine. "They're just jealous. They want to be 40, too."

"Besides, if they write any smart-aleck columns about somebody they know who just turned 40, you can just edit it the heck out of there."

Lansing Report

Use state tax credits

By GERALD H. LAW
State Representative

A new toll free state number has been established to help Michigan taxpayers take full advantage of Michigan's personal income tax credits. This year Michigan citizens should receive more than $600 million in property tax relief through the so-called "circuit breaker" which works to limit the amount of property taxes paid by state taxpayers.
Taxpayer assistance personnel will be on call from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday until March 30. They will handle questions relating to specific state tax credits as well as provide general state tax information.
Any taxpayer who requires more detailed assistance than can be provided over the phone will be directed to the closest State Department of Treasury office where they can obtain tax forms and free preparation assistance. If the taxpayer needs additional assistance and cannot visit a treasury branch office, a qualified State Treasury employee will return the call.

Persons needing assistance can call 1-800-292-1983.
Besides the $600 million "circuit breaker" property tax credit, the state also provides other tax credits. They include the home heating credit which provides $31.3 million in relief to 300,000 taxpayers annually, the college and public broadcasting credit which provides $8 million to 150,000 annually, and the city income tax credit which provides $24 million annually to a million Michigan taxpayers.
I am concerned that many Michigan citizens who are legally entitled to personal tax credits do not always know how to claim them. I hope any of my constituents who have questions about their tax forms will not hesitate to seek this free assistance.

Commission reinstates County General again

With members citing need to assure adequate medical facilities for the indigent, the Wayne County Commission again has adopted an ordinance preserving the County General Hospital in Westland, and again is preparing for an expected veto by County Executive William Lucas.
In a near repeat of a similar action months ago, the commission last week voted 13-2 to maintain the hospital under county jurisdiction. Ten votes, a three-fourths majority of the commission, is required to override the veto.
Before adopting the ordinance the commission also approved an amendment introduced by Mary E. Dumas, Livonia, which added two more members to the hospital board of institutions that governs the facility.
Both are to be chosen from the business and finance community, one appointed independently by Lucas and one he would choose from a list submitted by the commission.
Water Dumas stressed that the two "must be capable in finance and money management, because the cost containment factors were the most important to me supporting this issue."
She said, "It took a lot of deliberation to get that included before I was ready to lend my support." Dumas said the opening of the hospital to practice by private physicians also was a chief consideration in her decision.

Austin advocates mandatory belts

Michigan Secretary of State Richard Austin last week asked the federal government to accept passage of a state safety belt law as an alternative to air bags.
Austin told Diane K. Steed, National Highway Traffic Safety Administrator, he is confident that Michigan would adopt a mandatory safety belt law if this would be acceptable as a substitute for air bags.
Austin said adoption of air bags now would cost thousands of jobs in Michigan and the life-saving effect would not be felt for many years.
Austin said safety belts now are available in more than 95 percent of the nation's 105 million passenger vehicles. Their use could cut serious injuries by 50 percent and deaths by at least 20 percent. The challenge is to get motorists to use them.

A mandatory safety belt law would accomplish this without the added economic burden of air bags, Austin stated.
It is estimated by the University of Michigan Transportation Research Institute that requiring air bags would result in the loss of a minimum of 60,000 jobs in the auto industry because of the impact of increased costs on sales. Austin said if Michigan were to be a demonstration state, the hard evidence would be developed to convince ather states to adopt mandatory belt laws.
"If mandatory safety belt laws don't work, then we can turn to air bags as the only remaining viable alternative," he added.

"I am asking the Department of Transportation to give the Michigan Legislature until June to adopt the pending safety belt bill," he reported.
Austin told a meeting of the Transportation Research Board of the National Research Council about Michigan's efforts to enact a mandatory safety belt law.
A bill to mandate safety belt use is pending before the Michigan Legislature and action on it is scheduled for later this month.
Austin said acceptance by the federal government of a state safety belt law as a substitute for air bags would provide a major boost in efforts to obtain enactment of a mandatory safety belt law for Michigan.

Highway death toll falls

Preliminary figures indicate Michigan recorded 1,297 traffic accident fatalities in 1983 — the lowest annual loss since 1961.
While the present tally will increase slightly due to delayed reporting, state police department director Col. Gerald L. Hough said the continuing decrease in traffic fatalities is encouraging.
The preliminary figure shows 1983 fatalities some 8 percent lower than in 1982, which had been hailed as another low-traffic death year. The state's highest recorded total was 2,487 deaths in 1969.
Increased use and availability of seatbelts and child safety restraints, together with increased enforcement of drunk driving laws, were credited as contributing factors in the fatality reduction.

Hough stressed the importance of seat belt usage, noting that 94.6 percent of the 1983 victims who had belts available were not using them when killed in traffic accidents.
With 1983 distance traveled expected to be a little above 61.32 billion vehicle miles, the death rate per 100 million miles of travel is expected to also reflect a decrease from the 2.31 rate recorded in 1982, itself the lowest on the state's record.
Oakland County Traffic Improvement Association sources indicated fatalities due to drunk driving were down some 60 percent over two years ago, when the county began vigorous enforcement of laws prohibiting driving while under the influence of liquor.

Hartners win prize—and maybe trip

They haven't boarded the Orient Express yet, but Herman Hartner and his wife Marguerite of Northville are one big step closer to being passengers on the famous European train.

As the local winners of The Great Orient Express Sweepstakes sponsored by Orin Jewelers with stores in Garden City and Northville, their odds of winning have dropped from 12,000-to-one to three or four hundred-to-one.

Herman Hartner's name was pulled in the random drawing in the Northville store January 5, giving the Hartners a chance at the grand prize of a first class trip through Europe.

Prize in the local drawing, in addition to a chance at the sweepstakes, was a 14-K gold necklace with diamond pendant.

Herman Hartner's name was signed on the coupon included in a holiday-season promotion booklet mailed to local residents. The coupons had to be returned to the store by December 23.

Now, names of winners at participating jewelers are being sent to New York where a random drawing will be held February 5 for the grand prize.

The Christmas booklet, "Mystery on the Orient Express," was a colorful, slick promotion of fine jewelry and watches. The thread of a fanciful tale wove a trip aboard the Orient Express into the jewelry promotion.

The Grand Prize of a week's vacation for two is a dream tour with all expenses paid with the winners flying from New York to Rome first class on Pan Am. After first class hotels in Rome and Venice, with sightseeing, the grand prize winners will board the Orient Express to be transported to Milan.

"The grand prize is first class all the way with champagne and caviar ... a gourmet dinner prepared by master chefs of the Hotel Cipriani in the dining car ... a work of art from the 1920s complete with Lalique style crystal and elegant place settings," the brochure promises the winner.

"You'll retire to the crisp white linens of your own private sleeping compartment where you'll be lulled to sleep by the gentle 'clack-clack' of your train passing through the Swiss Alps," it continues.

The train trip ends in Paris, and it's on to London where the winners receive a personal tour of DeBeers, the diamond headquarters of the world.

Orin Mazzoni Jr., an owner of the Northville store at 101 East Main, said the firm felt the response to the holiday promotion was "excellent," especially in view of the short time the store in Northville had been open.

The jewelry firm is one of between three and four-hundred throughout the country participating in the contest. Orin Jewelers sent out 12,000 brochures to a mailing list of customers and residents in the Northville, Garden City and Livonia area.

The final odds for local winners, such as the Hartners, Mazzoni pointed out, "really are good."

He explained that the firm had been asked to participate in the promotion by one of the manufacturers from which it purchases jewelry.

He said this is the third time it has used "the trip concept" as a prize in its contests and noted that it is particularly pleased with the quality of the promotion catalog. Mazzoni added that photographing fine jewelry is considered difficult and said he felt the manufacturer and the Travis-Adelaar promotion company had done a fine job. He said he was pleased with the numbers responding and mentioned those names would be on the mailing list next Christmas season.

Like the Hartners, he said, Orin Jewelers will be waiting to see if they are the lucky winners at the chance of about 400 to one.

WINNERS — While it really was Herman Hartner's name on the winning coupon drawn in "The Great Orient Express Sweepstakes" sponsored during the Christmas season by Orin Jewelers, it is his wife Marguerite who is getting the gold and diamond necklace from owner Orin Mazzoni Jr. as Hartner and store manager Dave Beyer, at left, watch.

Local residents direct, act in 'Bad Seed'

Plymouth Theatre Guild will present "Bad Seed," a drama about an eight-year-old child, as its first performance in 1984. Opening night curtain will be at 8 p.m. this Friday in the Central Middle School auditorium in Plymouth.

"Bad Seed" is directed by Patricia Bray-LaFramboise, a longtime Northville resident and member of the theater guild. She has been involved in all aspects of the theater, acting and directing, and is on the guild's board of directors.

Peter Couse of Northville is appearing in his second Plymouth Theatre Guild production as Reginald Tasker, a self-made criminologist. A graduate of Michigan State University, he directed, wrote and designed the set for "Three Penny Happening" on campus. He played the male lead last year in Schoolcraft College production, "Night Watch."

"Bad Seed" concerns the effects of environment as compared to heredity on the personality of Rhoda Penmark, played by Melanie Farrow, 9, of Plymouth. The young actress is a student at Bird Elementary in Plymouth and is interested in gymnastics, reading and collecting stickers.

Cynthia Szczesny is Rhoda's mother, Christine Penmark. She lives in Detroit, works for Kelly Services Inc. and has appeared with the Players Guild of Dearborn.

Jack Farrow is returning to the stage after an absence of 20 years as Mr. Daigle. It is a special treat for him as he appears on stage with his daughter Melanie in the lead role.

Clemie Cyburt returns to the guild stage as the drunken Mrs. Daigle. A life member of the guild, she directs, produces and works backstage as well as on stage. She is a Westland resident.

Gerard L'Heureux of Canton Township is Leroy the janitor who has a fiery relationship with Rhoda. He plans to attend Eastern Michigan University in the fall to major in theater.

Effie Kuisel, a charter member of the guild and a Plymouth resident, is Miss Fern, the school teacher.

Chuck Miller of Canton portrays Richard Bravo, an ex-criminologist turned writer. Sue Haukkala of Ypsilanti plays the nosy landlady, Monica Breedlove, who sees herself as an amateur psychiatrist. Robert Myrtle of Plymouth is Colonel Kenneth Penmark in his second guild appearance. Gary Burton of Garden City is Emory Wages.

Lisa Risko, assistant director, also has the role of messenger in the show. Patti O'Rourke and Ann Shaffer are co-producers; Joe Marsh is ticket chairman. He may be called for information at 348-1136.

After the Friday opening, the play will continue Saturday, January 28, and the following weekend February 3 and 4. Admission at the door is $4 for adults and $3 for senior citizens and students under 16.

Free parking is available behind Central Middle School located on Main at Church in Plymouth.

It's YOUR Money

CHOOSING AN ACCOUNTANT

Who'll prepare your tax return this year? It's time to start choosing a professional, and to undertake the planning that may help you shelter some of your income from taxes.

If your income is fairly straightforward and deductible expenses minimal, you might satisfactorily use a short-form return and do it yourself or with the help of a tax preparer. But with more income, and more deductions, as the return becomes more complicated, you're going to want a tax professional.

Why? Because it's worth the difference to put your tax return in the hands of someone with the knowledge to find every likely loophole, and the experience to know which are acceptable. And as you reach the higher brackets, you'll get the advice you need on sheltering some income from taxes.

Some free help is available from the IRS. Revenue employees will answer your questions (but the tax court has challenged some of their answers) and prepare the simplest returns. There are also independent and chain tax preparers who pop up at tax season. Their workers may not be experienced enough to catch all legal deductions.

A certified public accountant can handle most complex returns and are familiar with shelters and investing. His or her tax know-how can save you more than the fee.

How do you choose a professional? Recommendations from satisfied clientele are one way, as are referrals from lawyers. Once a relationship is entered, the client will find his accountant helpful in making financial decisions all year round.

INCOME TAX

We're a local organization. Even though we served more than 3,000 clients last year we haven't forgotten that every client is an individual and that each individual deserves the best service we can provide.

When we sign a tax return that we've prepared, we're proud of having done the best possible job for you. When you see our signature on your tax return you can be sure that

1. The counselor who prepared your return was competent and thoroughly experienced in tax matters
2. You have received the maximum legal deductions and the minimum legal tax
3. Your tax return has received all the time and attention that was necessary to do a proper job
4. Your tax return has been double-checked for both accuracy and tax saving possibilities
5. Your return has been handled in a confidential manner

By late this year, everyone who has telephone service will be asked to make some specific choices about that service.

Most residents or businesses, even if they have not done anything to date, already are making a decision to lease or buy the telephone instrument itself — and whether to buy it from AT&T or another source.

Another decision that will have to be made, probably by fall, will be selection of a long distance service — AT&T or competitors such as Sprint or MCI.

These choices have arisen because "the greatest corporate restructuring in history came about January 1," Marcia Buhl, corporate affairs manager for Michigan Bell, explained to the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce January 18.

At the meeting Michael Broome, account executive in the Plymouth office of Merrill Lynch, detailed how divestiture will affect AT & T stockholders. Judging by audience questions, however, most of the interest was focused on telephone service.

"In the past all telephone services were handled by Michigan Bell. Now several companies are involved," Buhl said, explaining that Michigan Bell now is part of Ameritech, one of the companies formed from the old AT&T, with headquarters in Chicago.

Customers, Buhl said, will become more aware of the changes when they receive their bills as charges for local service, long distance and equipment are listed on individual pages.

• The top page is "the bottom line," the amount due. It also shows the previous bill and payment received.

• The second page lists current charges for monthly service and directory assistance as well as any charges and credits itemized on following pages.

• Third page is from AT&T information systems and is the charge for equipment.

• The next page lists Michigan Bell charges and credits; credits will include times when equipment is out of service.

• Following page lists AT&T information systems charges and credits.

• For long distance users, the next page lists long distance calls within the area code as Michigan Bell itemized calls.

• Next page itemizes calls made on AT&T lines to locations out of the area code or out of state.

January bills, Buhl noted, include a one-time $3.55 refund per phone line, ordered by the Michigan Public Service Commission. It results from a reimbursement Michigan Bell received from AT&T for development costs associated with various products and services.

Buhl explained that Michigan Bell has a contract with AT&T to do its billing for three years. She added that she anticipates Bell in the future may do billing for other long distance firms.

How much is this separation going to cost the user? Buhl said it is anticipated the average increase will be 10 percent for residential users. "If your average bill is about $35 with a private line," she said, "it probably will go to $38.50."

For many years long distance had been subsidizing basic service. This, Buhl emphasized, no longer will be the case. It is hoped, she said, that long distance rates will be going down with competition.

Customers who wish to purchase the telephones they are using, or new ones, should get in touch with AT&T. The toll-free information number, she said, is 1-800-555-8111. Telephones now must be returned to AT&T offices.

In addition, Michigan Bell offices are open Saturdays during January to allow customers to reach representatives.

...its stockholders

"The divestiture of American Telephone and Telegraph is going to be treated like a stock dividend," Michael Broome, investment counselor in the Plymouth office of Merrill Lynch, explained to members of the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce last week.

When the court-ordered break-up of the giant corporation came on January 1, plans were announced for a mid-January distribution of stock.

"The 'old' AT&T," Broome said, "had been trading around $65 to $75. The new stock is worth about $18. Distribution formulas have been announced."

AT&T shareholders who own under 10 shares now will own 10 "new" AT&T shares and will receive the difference in value in cash.

Stockholders who own more than 10 shares up to 500 will be receiving an option card to allow the shareholder to buy and sell shares received in

Buhl replaces Wilson

Marcia M. Buhl of Plymouth has been named Michigan Bell's corporate affairs manager for the Western Wayne County area and Ann Arbor.

She succeeds Hazen J. Wilson, who retired recently after a 43-year career with the telephone company.

Buhl joined Michigan Bell in 1960 as a service representative in Flint.

She was promoted to business office supervisor in 1965 and to staff manager in 1975. Since then, she has held a number of supervisory positions with Michigan Bell.

As corporate affairs manager, Buhl will be responsible for Michigan Bell's public affairs and community relations programs in Ann Arbor, Livonia, Northville, Plymouth, Westland and other western suburban communities near Detroit.

Her work includes addressing groups, such as her appearance last week before the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce (see story above) to explain Bell services following the divestiture of AT&T.

Wilson joined Michigan Bell in 1940 as an installer and was transferred to the company's commercial department in 1943.

Over the next several years, he served as manager in several Western Wayne County communities and in Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti and Detroit.

In 1973 he transferred to Livonia and served as community relations and corporate affairs manager in the western suburbs for the next 10 years.

A native of Detroit, Wilson attended Copley High School and Lawrence Institute of Technology.

If you won't read these 7 signals of cancer... You probably have the 8th.

1. Change in bowel or bladder habits
2. A sore that does not heal
3. Unusual bleeding or discharge
4. Thickening or lump in breast or elsewhere
5. Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing
6. Obvious change in wart or mole
7. Nagging cough or hoarseness

8. A fear of cancer that can prevent you from detecting cancer at an early stage. A stage when it is highly curable. Everyone's afraid of cancer, but don't let it scare you to death.

Cancer is often curable.

PAULINE SABAROFF won $5,000 worth of equipment, including a Digital Rainbow 100 Computer, in a drawing at Inacomp Computer Center of Novi. Mrs. Sabaroff is shown here with David Gonynor, Jr., store owner and manager.

Her name was one of several thousand entered in the "Grand, Grand Opening Sweepstakes" offered during the opening of seven Inacomp Computer Centers in the Detroit area. Her prize also included a monitor, printer, software and work station. Sabaroff, 62, of West Bloomfield, said the computer system will help in the retail store design and construction management business she runs with husband Arnold.

Stock split offers choice

the divestiture. This group makes up about 75 percent of the AT&T stockholders.

A stockholder with 500 of the "old" AT&T stock, Broome illustrated, will now own 500 shares of the new AT&T and, for every 10 shares of AT&T owned, will receive certificates representing one new share in each of the regional holding companies (in this case, 50 of each). Instead of one annual report, the stockholder will receive annual reports from each and dividend payments from each.

For odd numbered shares, there will be cash payout based on fractional shares in the new companies. For instance, if you owned 47 shares of "old" AT&T you would hang onto those shares in the "new" AT&T, receive four shares in each of the seven regional companies plus a check for the value of seven-tenths of a share in each regional (computed on their values as of February 24, the date they are to be issued). That's assuming you do nothing.

Stockholders, Broome continued, do have options. Holders of between 10 and 499 old shares may buy and sell shares in the regional holding companies through AT&T at 25 cents a share bought or sold to consolidate their holdings. Broome pointed out that shareholders also can place their stock in a brokerage "phone fund" and let the broker take care of it.

Of course, he added, there is a charge for such convenience.

Is the new AT&T a good investment?

Broome related that in the past AT&T has been known as the "widows and orphans fund" because of its dividends and growth. It isn't a growth stock any more, he stated, as it is expected to be paying about 6 percent. The regional holding companies are expected to yield up to 9 1/2 percent.

"Obviously," Broome warned, "it (AT&T) is not the stock it was."

He said that some regional holding companies are considered more desirable than others.

Ameritech, the regional holding company in Chicago that includes Michigan Bell in the midwest, is considered one of the better ones, he said, citing the industrial cities it services and the wealth and income of the region.

Other regional companies are Bell Atlantic, BellSouth, NYNEX, Pacific Telesis, Southwestern Bell and US West.

Business Briefs

BASIC RUBBER & PLASTIC COMPANY of Walled Lake has been nominated for a Michigan Defense Contractors Excellence Award.

The awards program is a project of the Metropolitan Detroit Council, Navy League of the United States and is co-sponsored by Senator Carl Levin and Congressmen Dennis Hertel, Carl Pursell and Bob Davis.

Robert Rosenfeld, chairman of the Navy League's corporate development committee, said the Michigan Defense Contractors Excellence Awards were established to recognize the outstanding work being done in the state by both large and small contractors. Special awards will be given to recognize achievements in attitude, innovation, quality and delivery, he said.

Basic Rubber & Plastic Company was nominated for outstanding achievement in attitude.

THE DOUGH DEPOT, 509 South Lafayette in South Lyon, offers popular brand baked goods at discount prices. Owned by Jan Schoenherr, a South Lyon resident for 15 years, the store carries name-brand rolls, breads, cakes, cookies, fresh pies, crackers, chips, pretzels and corn chips.

Schoenherr said the store handles what is termed "day-old" breads, but offers substantial savings on the goods. Prices vary from three loaves for $1.29 to three loaves for $1.59, she said. The Dough Depot also stocks natural grain breads.

The Dough Depot is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. Saturday. It is closed Sunday. The telephone number is 437-9523.

GUARDIAN INDUSTRIES, Corporation announced late last month that John P. Ory has been promoted to the position of group vice president — automotive products group.

Ory, 42, joined Guardian in 1973 as a project manager on the engineering staff. Before joining Guardian, Ory was affiliated with P.P.G. Industries in Fresno, California as a manufacturing engineer.

He has both an undergraduate and a graduate degree in industrial engineering from the Pennsylvania State University and currently resides in Tiffin, Ohio.

STAR PAK SOLAR SYSTEMS Corporation of Novi has made Inc. Magazine's 1983 list of the 500 fastest growing companies in America. Star Pak is a manufacturer of liquid solar collectors.

The Inc. 500 ranks companies according to the percentage sales increase from 1978 through 1982. Overall, listed companies achieved growth rates ranging from 397 percent to 20,214 percent during the period. Star Pak, the only solar manufacturer on the list, ranked 387th with a growth rate of 504 percent.

A total of 13 Michigan companies made the list. Calling his company "very action oriented," Star Pak President Reynold Hendrickson attributed Star Pak's success to "a conservation, solar, heat recovery approach to utility savings."

ACCOUNTANTS' COMPUTER SERVICES of Plymouth celebrated the 10th anniversary of its incorporation this month. The company provides businesses in the southeast Michigan region with a variety of computer services including time sharing, payroll processing, accounts receivable, accounts payable, inventory management and specialty processing.

ACS is now 10 times the size it was when incorporated. During the first year, only batch payroll and batch accounts receivable operations were done for 15 companies. After 10 years of 30 percent growth or better, ACS services 150 companies including payroll services for firms ranging in size from two employees to more than 900.

During its 10th year, ACS moved its headquarters to a larger and more accessible office on Joy Road, added new and more sophisticated hardware (including a Hewlett-Packard laser printer) and added 44 percent client volume, marking the highest growth in the company's history.

"Our business not only survives but shows real growth in times of economic distress, a fact clearly demonstrated by change in the size of our operation over the last few years," said Gilbert Spaman, vice president of ACS.

Northville's Donna Tinberg

She brought 'Sleeping Beauty' to life at the Marquis

By B.J. MARTIN

DONNA TINBERG

Not every director can claim his or her first production drew a packed, cheering house that held over. But that's exactly the case with Donna Tinberg, director of "Sleeping Beauty," which recently concluded its run at the Marquis Theater.

"It was a riot," says the 27-year-old Northville resident, breaking into a radiant smile. "At the end, the kids were screaming out to the Prince, 'Kiss her! Kiss her!' to wake her up."

The reaction of the children to "Sleeping Beauty" and to other children's plays put on by the junior high school theater club she advises confirmed an opinion Tinberg had held for a long time — that children need theater.

"There are some things in Detroit for kids, particularly at the Detroit Institute of Arts," she says, "but a lot of neighborhood suburban theaters aren't comfortable with children's programs. And in the west suburban area, there's just kind of a vacuum."

"I think it's good for children to listen and react to live performers, as opposed to watching television, which is such a passive thing to do," she adds. "With TV, they're spoon-fed, but with theater they have to listen. They have to use their imagination."

Tinberg is a special education instructor for junior high school students in Clarenceville Public Schools, and inherited the job of advisor to the junior high theater club during her first full year of teaching, 1978-79. Since then, the school program and Tinberg's participation in area theater groups have both come a long way.

"When I took (the program) over, we had one show a year and 13 kids," she says, "and last year we had 70 kids in our spring production, 50 on stage and 20 in the crew. We also offered a traveling show and what we call a 'Junior High Chorus Line,' with junior high students doing dance routines, top-hat-and-cane kind of things."

local elementary schools — in fact, as Tinberg says, "Anywhere we could find a stage." Recently her company wowed about 200 onlookers with presentations of "Rumpelstiltskin" at Lynn Henderson Dance Studio during the Northville "Christmas Walk."

Her interest in theater began while she was a student at St. Joseph High School in the early 1970s. St. Joseph featured a flourishing theater program at the time under drama director Dennis Bowen and music director Betty Theisen. Over the course of a typical school year, the school would produce at least five major shows.

At Eastern Michigan University, Tinberg majored in special education and minored in drama for the young. She hoped to find a way to combine her skills for maximum effectiveness with special education students, but found the going rough.

"I came out of college with all these great hopes, but given the time constraints and the day-to-day realities of the job, I found a lot of them didn't work in the classroom," she says.

After getting the Clarenceville post, "Back when we could pick and choose teaching jobs," she notes, Tinberg moved to Northville.

"A friend and I were driving through Northville while I was still living in Ypsilanti, and I thought, 'Gee, what a great place to live' — but I didn't think I could afford it. And my friend said she knew of a duplex for rent, and it's worked out wonderfully."

Away from class, Tinberg appeared here and there in various local theater shows. Her first was at the Marquis, when she played Meg in the musical

"Brigadoon," despite her lack of singing experience.

Tinberg's appearance in "Brigadoon" began her learning relationship with musical director Andrew Henderson, a familiar name to regular Marquis patrons. Henderson is currently producing Neil Simon's "Chapter Two," which continues this weekend.

"I've learned so much from Andrew," Tinberg declares. "He's an excellent musician and I've learned a lot from him as far as teaching music."

"There's a difference between a singer and an actor who sings," she says. "I'm definitely an actress who sings. But I've learned you really don't have to sing all those notes perfectly. A lot of people figure they have to sing every note, and getting people to break through that fear is sometimes hard. But you can even talk a song effectively."

Already able to play organ and piano, Tinberg began four years ago to develop yet another skill — ballet. "I became friends with Lynn Henderson and started taking ballet lessons under her," she says. "It was something I'd always wanted to do. It's been very good as a physical discipline and exercise."

"We have a really good time in her class. It's also helped me learn how to choreograph, and I feel I have a little more confidence moving on stage." Henderson also designed and made dazzling medieval-style costumes for "Sleeping Beauty."

After "Brigadoon," Tinberg played Tzeitel, the oldest daughter, in "Fiddler on the Roof," at the Marquis. She then took featured roles in Garden City Civic Theatre productions, reprising her "Fiddler" role, and playing Faye in "Chapter Two."

She then appeared in her first serious drama since graduating from Eastern, Lillian Hellman's "The Children's Hour," as a schoolteacher tragically victimized by scandal.

"Broadway Melodies," the Northville Marquis' first presentation of its fall season, was Tinberg's first show with directing responsibilities. "Andrew Henderson was very kind to give me an associate director position," Tinberg says. "He knew I was interested in directing, and he knew the title would help me get other directing jobs."

For his part, Henderson is also gracious in describing his sometime co-worker: "Donna was a very nice complement to me in that show. I like working with her a great deal. She very naturally can handle a lot of small details, while I have my hands tied up in so many things in a production — I really needed someone to tidy up after me."

"She's a very gifted actress and appears to be very gifted as a director, also. I was very pleased with what she did in 'Sleeping Beauty.'"

Despite her satisfaction with the experience of "The Children's Hour," Tinberg says she prefers working on musicals to serious plays — and in particular, she enjoys the challenge of directing children's plays.

She is particularly encouraged by the cooperation of her cast in "Sleeping Beauty."

"They (the cast members) were terrific to work with," she says. "It's funny, but in 'Broadway Melodies,' it seemed the actors who were really stars — the ones who are best known — were much more cooperative and less egotistical than some of the newer people."

As for special children's productions, she adds, "I'm looking for something, but children's scripts are hard to come by. People tend to write down to children — possibly because of a lack of understanding what kids can really do."

Questers taken on 'architectural tour' of community

By JEAN DAY

On one of the coldest nights of this winter, Kathleen Endress took a dozen members of Base Line Questers on a tour of historic houses in the community. It was an armchair tour via color slides last Thursday evening as Mrs. Endress, a teacher and member of Bell Foundry chapter of Questers, confided that — while most Questers are collectors of antiques — her collection is of "pictures of old houses."

She related to the antiques study club that her interest in Northville architecture was a result of a class in architecture and architectural history of the United States at Michigan State University.

At the time she was told, "The Victorian era was so ugly, we will skip over it." Yet, she observed, the United States "grew up" in this era and it was the period in which Northville was settled.

Noting that Michigan did not become a state until 1837 and that it mostly was settled by pioneers from New York State, she showed similarities between a house in that state and a Federal style house on Cady that she dates about 1841 and says is the oldest style in Northville. She pointed out that the white frame house still retains the small-pane windows on one side of the front.

The Hunter House, now in Mill Race Historical Village but formerly located on Main where Griswold is extended to Seven Mile, was cited as an "excellent example" of the Greek Revival style with double wings that is unique to Michigan. Greek Revival with columns and pilasters became popular, the speaker related, as people became interested in Greece in the 1840s.

Wings were built to these houses to give more room, she added, showing other houses of the type in Northville — On Fairbrook near Center, at 50085 West Seven Mile and a vintage home on Butler behind apartments on Griswold. Greenmead on Eight Mile, she continued, is another Greek Revival example. Educating the "architectural eyes" of her audience, she pointed out Greenmead's small "eyebrow" windows under the eaves and many stone foundations that were laid to include a herringbone patterning.

She encouraged viewers to become aware of the outstanding examples of the fancy scrollwork inside the gables of many local Victorian homes. Termed bargeboard or carpenter's lace, it is especially noteworthy, she said, on the Wing Street side of the house that is Mel Anderson's clock shop on Dunlap. "The Yerkes house in Mill Race Village," she cited, "is a beautiful example as is another Yerkes house, that of the John Burkmans, on Baseline."

Another Victorian style, Mrs. Endress pointed out, is the Italian Villa, exemplified in a home at 404 West Main. She mentioned that previous owners had reopened the cupola which had been sealed and used it as a bedroom for one child.

Mansard-roofed houses in the community are examples of French Second Empire. Slides were shown of a house on Rogers near Main. Another on Fairbrook near Sheldon is "high Victorian Second Empire with a tall bell tower," the Questers learned. "The last Victorian period was Queen Anne — you can tell it by the layering of shingles and towers," Mrs. Endress showed slides of a Dunlap Street example and noted that Dr. William Demray's office-home at 371 East Main is Queen Anne design. A period known as Victorian "stick style" featuring straight lines is exemplified in a house at 418 West Main occupied by the James Harrises, the speaker said.

She concluded the Victorian architectural tour with a mention of such designs as "the Lincoln house" (copies of Lincoln's home in Springfield) and noting there are two in the area, one being the Robert Bretz home on West Nine Mile.

Base Line Questers donate to historic projects

At their meeting Thursday at the home of Lynn Paquette the Base Line Questers voted to donate $100 to the Northville Historical Society to assist with the construction of a blacksmith shop in Mill Race Historical Village. The donation brings the total given by the chapter to restoration projects in the Mill Race to about $1300. The chapter also voted to send $400 to the fund to renovate the Questers national headquarters building at 210 Quince in Philadelphia. The national Questers announced last week the decision to keep the historic house and proceed with renovation rather than seek new headquarters.

Newcomers list volleyball, lectures for February

A program on "Personality Profiles" by Marilyn J. Semonick designed for better self-understanding is the Northville Newcomers Ladies Event for February. It will be an evening meeting February 8 at Plymouth Landing — with "lots of interesting discussion along with dessert and coffee" promised by President Joan Hursey. The speaker is a well-known consultant in the area of management and behavioral seminars, she adds. Reservations ($5.50) should be made by February 1 with Prudy Chaffin, 348-5380.

Newcomer couples will be off to Farmington for a "Racquet and Wally Ball" party February 18. Similar to volleyball, the game of wally ball is played on the racquetball courts.

Schoolcraft beginning peer counseling session

Women interested in participating in the peer counseling training at Schoolcraft College Women's Resource Center are invited to contact the Center at 591-6400, extension 432, to arrange for an appointment.

Group interviews will be held at 10 a.m. January 31 and February 1. The eight-week empathy training course will meet from noon to 3 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays beginning February 13.

Designed for those with an interest in helping women discover their potential, participants will study to develop empathy listening skills and problem-solving techniques. Upon successful completion of the intensive training sessions, participants are requested to serve as volunteer peer counselors three hours a week for a minimum of four months.

Individuals pay for 2.5 institutional credits of instruction. For further information, call or visit the Center located in the second house south of the Schoolcraft campus on Haggerty Road in Livonia between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Monday through Friday and 7-9 p.m. Wednesday evenings.

Chorus to give scholarships

The Plymouth Community Chorus has established voice scholarships to assist worthy and promising local students to train for a career in the field of professional vocal music, an applied vocational career in the study of voice for the purpose of organized recreational or community singing.

The three scholarships awarded include $500 to be awarded to a high school graduating senior and two scholarships of $250 each (one which will be known as the William C. Grimm Award) to be awarded to students in grades 6-11.

Applicants are required to fill out applications, write a brief autobiography, secure recommendations and submit to a personal interview. However, no auditions will be held.

Deadline for applications is March 15. Winners will be announced at the Plymouth Community Chorus Spring Concert on May 19 and 20.

For an application and additional information, write or call Plymouth Community Chorus, P.O. Box 217, Plymouth, 48170 or call 455-4080. Chairman Barbara Frank may also be called for information at 348-7131.

Casey is guest organist in Plymouth recital

The Annual Concert Series presented by the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth will feature an organ recital by Dr. Catherine Casey at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

Dr. Casey received her bachelor's degree from Furman University, where she studied under Dr. Lindsay Smith. She received her master's degree in organ performance from University of Michigan as well as her doctorate, studying under Robert Glasgow.

Her performance Sunday will include Buxtehude's Toccata on a theme of Clement Jannequin, Bach's Partita on "O Gott, du frommer Gott," Tournemire's

Improvisation sur le "Te Deum." She also will perform her own arrangement, "Reflections on a Revival" (gospel music) and Durufle's Choral varie sur le theme du "Veni Creator."

The organ used in Sunday's performance was built by W. Zimmer & Sons and includes three divisions, 20 stops, 27 ranks and 1,449 pipes. A brunch will be served at 12:30 p.m. in Fellowship Hall.

Cost is $3 for adults, $1.75 for children 6-12 and $1 for children 6 and younger. Those planning to attend should make reservations in the church office by Friday. To make reservations call 453-5480.

Sekela is Witness guest

Vasil Sekela, a traveling circuit minister from the Watchtower Society of New York, will be visiting the Plymouth/Northville area this week.

The visit is part of an advanced training program for Jehovah's Witnesses. The activity scheduled also is designed to encourage more Bible understanding by people of all faiths in the community.

The visit began yesterday and will continue through Sunday. The congregation will meet at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow for a Bible Study and program led by Sekela.

Highlight of the week will be at 10 a.m. Sunday when Sekela addresses the congregation at the Kingdom Hall, 774 North Sheldon in Plymouth. A congregational Bible study follows.

Health series at Providence

If helping yourself to better health is part of your plan for 1984, the Providence Hospital community health education department has classes to support you in keeping your resolutions.

"Take Charge of Your Health" is a four-week series introducing concepts and practices which enhance health. Informative discussions, activities and a variety of films and slides will be presented.

The introduction, blood pressure screening and goal setting session is scheduled from 7-9 p.m. March 6 in the DePaul Center, seventh floor, 16001 West Nine Mile in Southfield.

Exercise will be emphasized on March 13; dealing with stress on March 20; nutrition on March 27.

More information on "Take Charge of Your Health" and other classes is available by calling the department at 552-9041.

Also on the winter schedule beginning in February are classes on unstressing your life, managing stress, weight control, how to stop smoking, heart-saver CPR and basic cardiac life support.

Some classes will be given in the Providence Hospital Novi Center and the South Lyon Providence Family Health Center as well as the Southfield Providence campus.

Pre-registration is required.

The Northville Record

185-pound Joel Vogt pins Allen Park's Pat Baier at Saturday's meet

Injuries, illness thin Mustang mat ranks

By B.J. MARTIN

Don't tell anyone, but the Northville varsity wrestling team plans to pop a secret weapon on opponents this week: It's going to show up.

There were more Northville wrestlers in sick bay last week than U.S.S. Enterprise personnel after a Kingston attack. Walled Lake Central made the favored Mustangs look like a snap. And what promised to be an interesting, close match against KVC powerhouse Novi in the Novi quadrangular turned out to be an embarrassing 55-9 rout.

Fortunately, everyone but 155-pounder Ernie Bock is expected to return to action this week.

Wednesday's 39-21 loss to Central resembled many early-season matches in that Northville's lower weights took a beating. The difference was, this time the ranks were too thin in the middle to bail the Mustangs out.

The 5-2 Viking matmen are no pushovers, to be sure. But even ruthlessly of jective Northville coach Gary Emerson didn't figure Central would pick up 30 points before the Mustangs got out of the starting gate. But Central won every weight class between 98 and 155.

"We lost a couple tough ones. The guys we had did as well as could be expected, considering their inexperience," Emerson said. But without Norm Estigoy (pneumonia), Don Graham (sore ribs), and Bock (pulled stomach muscles), the Mustangs simply weren't the Mustangs.

Steve Smith put Northville on the board with a 6-1 decision at 167, then as expected, Joel Vogt notched a 11-4 win at 185. Candella won a forfeit at 198 and heavyweight Brian Burgett pinned a man at 2:39.

Notching junior varsity wins were Mike Bates, Ken Kehoe, Dana Letarte and Jason Lazar.

At the Novi quad Saturday, the situation turned really bleak. Jay Anderson developed a sore shoulder and Smith was too sick to show up (even if he did, a leg bruise would have hampered his performance). Northville fell to Allen Park and to Novi — only Flint Beecher was in worse shape, with only two wrestlers attending.

In the Allen Park matchup, Jim Assemany managed an 8-1 decision at 105, and Mike Davis picked up a 5-1 decision. But even Assemany and Davis fared poorly against Novi.

The only Mustangs to make a big impression at the tourney were Vogt, Burgett and Candella, all of whom won their matches against Allen Park easily.

Vogt faced Novi's fine 185-pounder Brent Canup, and after the usual Wildcat junior snagged Vogt for a first period takedown, Vogt gained momentum throughout the match until by the third period, he clearly dominated, scoring a 10-2 decision.

Girls soccer coach named

Northville resident Stan Smalec has been selected to coach the Northville High School varsity girls' soccer team this spring, NHS Athletic Director Ralph Redmond announced Monday.

Ron Meteyer, coach of the squad in '83, announced last fall he would not return this year due to personal commitments.

Smalec has coached the WSSL Northville Wildcats Under 14 girls' team for two years. Prior to that, he coached boys' and girls'

WSSL teams in Livonia for eight years.

"We feel very fortunate to get Stan," Redmond said. "A lot of the girls know and respect him, and we feel very encouraged about this season."

Redmond must also fill two other varsity coaching positions this spring: replacements have not yet been found for boys' track coach Gary Polley or softball coach Mary Minor.

"We're still doing some shopping," Redmond said.

That's more like it — Mustang cagers hit stride, win two

By B.J. MARTIN

Northville turned a two-point deficit into a 57-47 victory in the final eight minutes of a WLA Western Division showdown with 7-2 Livonia Churchill Tuesday of last week.

A consistent 45-40 win over Farmington Harrison the following Friday gave the Mustangs their fourth straight well-played ballgame and their third win in their last four games. Northville now stands 6-4 for the season (3-4 in WLA play).

Keying Tuesday night's win were some late-game heroics by senior guards Bob Pegrum and backup center Greg Wendell. Pegrum scored seven points and Wendell five in Northville's 19-7 fourth-quarter surge, while the Mustangs' team defense held Churchill to just three field goals in the final stanza.

"We still didn't do some things very well," said coach Tim Lutes. "Their pressure defense gave us some trouble and we didn't shoot well either from the floor or the line."

Indeed, the Mustangs hit only 35 percent of their field goal attempts, while

'(Bentley) has a 6-8 center and two forwards as tall as our center. It should be a good battle.'

— Tim Lutes
NHS Basketball Coach

connecting on just 15 of 29 free throws. Fortunately, a 44-24 rebounding edge led by Dan Perlich's season-high 13 gave Northville plenty of chances.

Perlich, at first inserted into the starting lineup for injured power forward Mike Weber, has been a strong inside player for the Mustangs. "He's been our best rebounder over the last four or five games and doing a real good job for us," Lutes noted, adding Perlich would continue to see plenty of action even though Weber is now back to full strength.

Pegrum led Northville with 15 points, Steve Schrader picked up 10, and Perlich and Frellick added eight each.

Three nights later, Northville traveled to Harrison, the only school to beat the Mustangs in pre-season scrimmages. This time, the Mustangs looked shaky late in the first half as a four-point Mustang lead was wiped out in the second quarter by a 10-5 Hawk scoring advantage.

"We just stopped playing team ball," Lutes explained. "We made a lot of unforced errors and just fell into the pattern of not working the ball inside. We still were playing OK defense, though."

In the final two quarters, Steve Frellick and Schrader took charge on offense, despite a late-game scare. After falling behind five points in the third quarter, Harrison picked up four straight turnovers off its press to cut Northville's lead to two points with three minutes to play.

Then Frellick, who also played well in the final moments of Tuesday's game, hit two fast-break layups and three of four free throws to ice the win.

Schrader finished the game with 18 points and eight rebounds. A decent free-throw performance would have made him even more effective. But the 6-6 senior could sink only two of ten from the line.

"We were shooting free throws like gangbusters the first couple games," Lutes pointed out. "Then we had a couple bad outings and we just kind of got psyched out. But I know the guys are capable of shooting better, so I'm not too concerned right now."

Pegrum had his best floor game of the season, picking up seven assists and making few turnovers — a problem for the guard early in the year. He scored eight points and added three steals.

Northville is scheduled to host Livonia Bentley this Friday night, then tough Plymouth Canton Tuesday. The Bentley Bulldogs are playing below .500 ball this season — not surprising in the WLA's tough Lakes Division — but they are the biggest team in the league.

"They've got a center who goes 6-8 and two forwards as tall as our center," Lutes said. "It should be a good battle."

Nicki LaRoque sets up a smash

Brighton, Western edge Mustang spikers

Northville's varsity volleyball squad was edged twice last week, as the Mustangs fell to WLA Western Division rival Walled Lake Western 15-11, 15-13, and then to Brighton from the Kensington Valley Conference 15-11, 15-11.

"We've been playing well in spots," said coach Steve McDonald, "but we need to develop some consistency. When we play consistently, we're going to be very good."

Against Western, the action was nip-and-tuck all the way. The Lady Warriors jumped out to early leads in both games, but each time Northville mounted long rallies to get back in the thick of the match.

Playing well in both games against Western Monday was sophomore Nicki LaRoque, who, McDonald said, is playing "very solid volleyball."

Nicki's been very reliable since she's been starting more and I'm very encouraged," he added. Also looking sharp was Cheryl Berryman. According to McDonald, the senior setter is "starting to show the leadership on the floor I expected of her." Berryman had 21 perfect sets against Western, none bad.

Up front, Bev Henderson played a strong game, with six blocks, four good hits and two dinks (returns just over block attempts). Meanwhile in the back row, Mandy Olgren and Chris McGowan continued their dependable play, registering between them 19 good sets and four bad.

Brighton benefited from several missed opportunities by Northville in Wednesday's game — and McDonald's crew knew it. "The girls had a good attitude about the game," he reported. "They thought we could have beaten them — they were pretty positive about it. They know what it takes to win and they will."

McGowan had one of her best nights ever, with 20 good sets and just one bad. She also had seven good serves. Berryman played her usual steady game, playing 18 of 19 sets perfectly and socking four good serves.

But the real service standout against the Bulldogs was Henderson. She hit 13 good serves, only two bad, with five aces — an almost unheard-of total.

"She varied her speeds well and just had a real good night," McDonald said.

Junior hitter Erin Ryan turned in a tremendous game at the net. "Erin's play Wednesday night was by far her best effort ever," McDonald noted. "She played the most intensely she has all year. As she continues, she and Bev are going to help us a lot up front. Jane Cassidy's back row play was also strong, he added.

The two losses leveled Northville's WLA Western Division mark at 1-1 and left the Mustangs at 4-7 overall.

It's up-and-down week for Northville tankers

By B.J. MARTIN

The Mustang varsity tankers saved their good performances for when they needed 'em — after non-league rival Inkster Cherry Hill blew lackluster Northville out of the Spartans' pool on Tuesday, Northville rebounded with a 58-25 romp over Farmington Harrison in home waters two days later.

The only bright spot in the 102-72 loss to Cherry Hill was a personal best time of 100:24 in the 100 back, recorded by Darius Mikalonis.

Talbot called Thursday's splashdown a "relief" for the team after grueling meets against Cherry Hill, Ypsilanti and Livonia Bentley. "We kind of had fun, and I switched some of the guys' events around, more to give them something different than to really experiment. I'm pretty well set as far as knowing what our toughest lineup is," he added.

Northville took firsts in all but three events against the Hawks, including both relays. Leading point-getters included:

• Doug Buell, who turned in excellent times in the 100 and 200 free — unusual events for Buell. Buell won the 100 in

51.70 and clocked the 200 in 1:56.39;

• Vince Shimp, who posted a first in the 50 free in 23.39, and took second in the 100 free in 53.84;

• Jeff Metz, whose 206.1 score in diving was one of his best efforts ever (Joel Grasley was close behind with a second-place 197.3);

• Darius Mikalonis, whose fine time of 5:14.83 in the 500 free was good for second and whose 2:16.15 in individual medley led the field, and;

• Jeff Wayne, who took the 100 fly in 1:22.44 and finished second in I.M. in 2:02.11;

Talbot said he was pleased most of the times showed improvement over last year's. "I'm very satisfied, but we've got much tougher meets coming, and we'll need to do better up and down the line."

The biggest one is Farmington, one of the WLA's toughest squads. "If we can neutralize their big guns and be smart about who we enter in what event, we've got a chance to knock 'em off," Talbot said. The Mustangs will swim at the Falcons' pool, then return home for the first Novi-Northville faceoff, this one at Novi Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Which would you prefer... a higher stated interest rate or more money?

Michigan National compounds interest monthly to pay you more money for your money

Higher stated interest rates on Individual Retirement Accounts (IRA) may sound good initially. But, if you're interested in earning more money for your money, consider the effects of Michigan National's monthly compounding of interest versus other banks' simple interest method of payment.

Earn interest on your interest

A minimum deposit of only $50 at Michigan National earns interest each month. So, month by month, year after year you continually earn interest on your interest.

Most other banks, however, pay interest on a simple basis.
No compounding.
No payment of interest on your interest.

That's why other banks can quote a higher rate, and yet, pay less interest over the lifetime of your investment.

Don't be fooled by high interest IRA claims.

Invest your retirement savings with Michigan National where your IRA will earn more money for your money with monthly compounding.

Need a loan to fund your IRA?

Borrow up to your annual IRA contribution limit at preferred rates to take advantage of 1983 or 1984 tax deductions. Then write off interest payments for an additional tax savings. Ask for details on the advantages of an IRA loan at any branch office.

Gymnastics squad posts first win, but needs a break

By B.J. MARTIN

Usually when a gymnastics team's scores go steadily down from its first meet, it's bad news. In the case of Northville's varsity gymnasts, it's not exactly good news, but it's understandable.

"We've had four meets in the last seven days, and we actually haven't even had time to practice," said coach Debbie Heck. "The girls are really tired. At least we'll get some time off this week. We'll be able to go to work on our problems."

The Mustangs, however, were still able to salvage a victory — their first of the season — out of the grind. Northville snagged firsts in all four events to down Livonia Clarenceville 101.35 to 95.2 Monday of last week.

Diane Hale took firsts in three — vault (7.5), balance beam (7.75) and floor exercise (7.8). Both her beam and floor routines were good enough to register as regional qualifying scores. In the uneven bars, Wendy Wobermin snagged first with a 6.9.

Wobermin took seconds in vault (6.55) and floor exercise (7.4), while sister Kim Wobermin took fourth in vault (6.2) and second in uneven bars (5.65).

Two nights later, Plymouth Canton trounced Northville 115.35 to 100.75, taking advantage of plenty of pre-season

'We've had four meets in the last seven days . . . the girls are really tired.'

— Debbie Heck
NHS Gymnastics Coach

preparation. "Canton runs a year-round program and it's just hard for us to keep up with them," Heck noted. "I'm hoping to be able to start a year-round program with the Community Recreation Department this year, though."

No one placed for Northville except Hale and Wendy Wobermin. Hale's 7.45 in vault and 7.85 in floor exercise were both good for thirds, and her beam routine was second with 7.05. Wendy added a fourth in uneven bars (6.75) and a third in beam (6.75).

At the Dearborn Invitational, Northville finished well back in the 14-team pack, alongside schools without year-round programs. The Mustangs accumulated only 99.5 points — way behind tourney winner — and an inside bet for state champion — Troy.

"We had a real bad time on vault and uneven bars — our strength is in beam and floor exercise," Hale said. Both Hale and Wobermin turned in weary performances, Hale falling three times in balance beam. Had she not fallen at all — something more practice time would have helped — her score of 7.15 would have been at least 8.6 and might have won the event.

Hale turned in a 7.6 in floor routine — just one-tenth of a point from registering her fourth and final regional qualifying score in the event.

Wendy added a 7.2 in beam and a 7.3 in floor exercise.

Heck said the team received a boost from some of the first-year participants — in particular, Alicia Hickman. "Alicia's done a very good job for us considering she'd never worked out in gym before," Heck noted. The sophomore turned in floor exercise scores of 6.9 Monday, 7.5 Wednesday and 6.25 in the tournament.

Northville's dual record stands at 1-2 following the week's activity. The Mustangs return to action Saturday at the Saline Invitational, then travel to Walled Lake Western Tuesday (January 31) for a 7 p.m. match against the WLAA rival Lady Warriors.

Mat team ailing

Burgett notched Northville's only other points against the Wildcats, posting a pin over Tim Horstman at 4:42. Although Candella had wrestled better, he gave Novi's 28-3 198-pounder Ed Marek all he could handle.

Other highlights of the four-way included first varsity wins posted by Toby Balai at 98 pounds and Jason Lazar at 167 pounds.

Northville's record dropped to 4-2 in the WLAA (6-4 overall) following the week's activity.

The Mustang matmen travel to WLAA rival Plymouth Salem tomorrow, then will participate Saturday in the eight-team Milan Invitational — an important meet that will influence seeds in regional and state tournaments. Perennial wrestling powerhouse Clio will also attend the meet.

OLV cagers split

The OLV Cougars CYO boys' basketball teams came up with their second straight big weekend, with the seventh-eighth grade boys topping Farmington Our Lady of Sorrows 41-35 with "a total team effort."

The fifth and sixth grade boys rallied to an 18-14 win behind offensive punch by David Best and Mike Padden's steady defense.

The Cougar girls' teams had a little more trouble. The seventh-eighth grade squad fell 45-5 despite good efforts by Colleen McNeely and Katie Fitzpatrick. The fifth-sixth grade girls lost 24-9.

The Cougars will host Dearborn Divine Child this Sunday at the Northville Community Center, with games beginning at 12:30 p.m.

Fun cage show set

The Northville High School Class of 1984 will host a "Donkey Basketball Game" Saturday, February 4, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gym.

Perched on the uncooperative beasts, representatives of the senior class will take on the juniors in a benefit for the senior class.

Tickets will go on sale at all Northville Public Schools beginning Monday, January 30, through Friday, February 3. The price of admission is $2 in advance and $3 at the door. All ages are invited to come and join the fun.

RECREATION BRIEFS

SPRING REGISTRATION

Don't forget that this Saturday and Sunday, February 4 and 5 are the two dates Northville residents are to register players for all youth baseball and softball league teams run by the Northville Recreation Department. Registration forms will be taken at the Northville Community Center from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on those two dates. New participants must bring a birth certificate to register. On February 4, WSSL youth soccer league registration will be held during the same hours at the same location.

DADDY-DAUGHTER DANCE

Dads — don't miss the social event of the season, the "Daddy-Daughter Valentine Dance" at the Northville Community Center Friday, February 17, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Along with the hokey-pokey and square dances, punch and cookies will be served, and also a photo memento of the evening for dad and his girl(s). Fee is $3 per "couple," plus $1 for each additional daughter. Register at the Community Center.
