Schools to seek 9.5 mills in April election

By MICHELE McELMURRY

Northville voters will be asked to restore the 2.5 operating mills lost by the school district in its 1981 renewal defeat following the board of education's approval Monday night to place 9.5 mills on the ballot April 9.

Upon the recommendation of the Blue Ribbon Citizens' Committee, a seven-member committee studying the district's finances since January, the board approved a 9.5 millage rate which includes a renewal of 7 mills plus an additional 2.5 mills for operating revenue for two years.

The board approved the millage rate by a vote of 6-0. Trustee Gerald Munro was absent from Monday's meeting.

"If you look to April, 1981, we are asking a renewal of that millage," Superintendent George Bell said in reference to the 9.5 mill renewal soundly defeated by voters three years ago.

Though voters approved a reduced 7 mill renewal in July, 1981, the loss of 2.5 mills cut district operating expenses by $700,000.

In presenting the committee's report to the board, management consultant Richard Ambler, chairperson of the committee, said based on the school district's projected $1 million shortfall for the coming school year, an additional 3.75 mills would be needed to fully fund existing programs and provide "desirable" reserves.

However, he said the committee was recommending 2.5 mills — 1.25 mills or $375,000 below the desired funding — just to "preserve the status quo of the district."

"We felt the 2.5 mills was the limit the community would support," Ambler told the board. "We hope they understand the need to go that high."

In addition to Ambler, other members of the Blue Ribbon committee attending Monday's meeting were J. Patrick McCormick, director of Forward Program Management, and Harriet Sawyer, an educator and state president of the American Association of University Women.

Other committee members, who were unable to attend the board meeting, included Dewey Gardner, local businessman and member of the Northville City Council; James Armstrong, a manufacturer's representative and Northville Township trustee; Lee Holland, accountant, and N.C. Schrader, local businessman.

McCormick told the board the committee's proposal was a "unanimous decision."

It also was noted that the members of the committee "had no pre-conceived notions of the school needs when they agreed to the assignment."

In its report to the board, the committee noted that the district is "facing some rather difficult times ahead financially."

The committee expressed serious concern over the district's dwindling fund equity. The district's fund equity has dropped from a year end balance of $1,459,211 in June, 1982, to a projected year end deficit of $737,751 for June, 1985.

Coupled with the decrease in fund equity, the committee outlined several other factors leading to a projected $1 million shortfall. The four areas contributing to that deficit as outlined by the board included:

- Reduction in State Equalized Value, resulting in a $440,000 loss in 1982-83;
- Increases in fixed costs. Considering energy and utility costs alone, the increase has been 45 percent since 1980-81;

- State aid in categoricals has decreased more than $600,000 between 1981-82 and the projected amounts for 1984-85. Categorical aid in 1980-81 was $745,000. In 1984-85 it is expected to be less than $125,000. As an "out of formula" district, Northville does not receive state aid for instruction;
- Total utility costs (electricity, gas, telephone, and water) totaled $598,208 in 1980-81 and $870,320 in 1983-84.

In his presentation, Ambler pointed out that "approval of the 9.5 mills will return the school district to the operating millage level that existed in 1978-79 before state aid was virtually withdrawn, before SEV was cut back

"We felt 2.5 mills was the limit the community would support — we hope they understand the need to go that high."

— Richard Ambler

committee chairman

and before energy costs went wild." However, he noted that while the additional 2.5 mills will allow the district to maintain its current program, it will "eat up" all reserves, leaving the district with virtually no fund equity.

Ambler told the board it will have to "try every way possible to fund all programs and build back part of the needed reserves with the proposed 9.5 mills."

The committee further recommended that "task forces be established at all operating levels to assist in examining all possible cost-savings opportunities."

"You could fund all basic programs within 2.5 mills," Ambler noted, "but you're cutting all reserves."

McCormick added that the committee "is putting the challenge of building fund reserves back with the board and administration."

Tax multiplier set at 1.0 for township

The property tax equalization factor applied to Northville Township residential and agricultural parcels will be 1.0 for the second consecutive year, treasurer Richard Henningsen said, predicting that the factor will rise in 1985.

The factor is employed to amend property valuations for tax purposes in accordance with changing market conditions. It is assigned by county assessors based on sales studies of the area. The previous year's assessed valuation is then multiplied by the factor to obtain the current year valuation. The township had conducted a new assessment of residential properties prior to the 1983 tax year; so the factor was 1.0 that year.

With the factor again at 1.0 for 1984, valuations will remain the same except where there has been a significant improvement to the property over the past year (an addition or new garage are examples).

Tax bills will thus include no inflation factor on valuations. Any increase in the tax due will come from increased millages or improved properties.

"Looking at the preliminary statistics, I'd say we won't be so lucky next year," Henningsen said. "We had the county use a two-year sales study to compute the factor. If we had used a one year study, we'd have had an increase in the factor because prices have started rolling up again."

The township will have a factor assigned to commercial properties of 1.0236, representing a 2.36 percent value increase calculated in the sales study.

Assessed valuations are determined initially by actual study of the property. The valuation is set at 50 percent of the true market value. Factors are applied in succeeding years to adjust the valuation in accordance with changing market conditions.

Through the past 20 years, factors have generally resulted in increased assessed valuations and hence rising tax bills. Faced with growing dissatisfaction among taxpayers, the state two-years-ago passed a "truth-in-taxation" law that requires local governments and school districts to roll back millages by the same percentage by which the factor rises. If they determine to levy a higher millage than would be determined by this method, the taxing authorities must conduct public hearings and vote to "increase" the millage to a specified level at or below the total millage authorized by voters.

One percent fee stays

Faced with a likely loss of interest income due to one-half of the school district's property tax being collected in the summer, Northville Township trustees opted February 9 to continue to add a one percent "administrative fee" on property tax bills.

Income from the one percent fee is barely sufficient to cover township costs of preparing and collecting tax bills, treasurer Richard Henningsen told the board.

He cited the following costs to be incurred by his department, in addition to staff time: $4,000 to Wayne County for preparation of the tax roll, $1,000 for postage, and probably $2,000 prior to the posting of winter bills for the purchase of a computer program.

Other than the computer program, Henningsen said, these costs only cover the summer collection. Similar amounts will be required come winter.

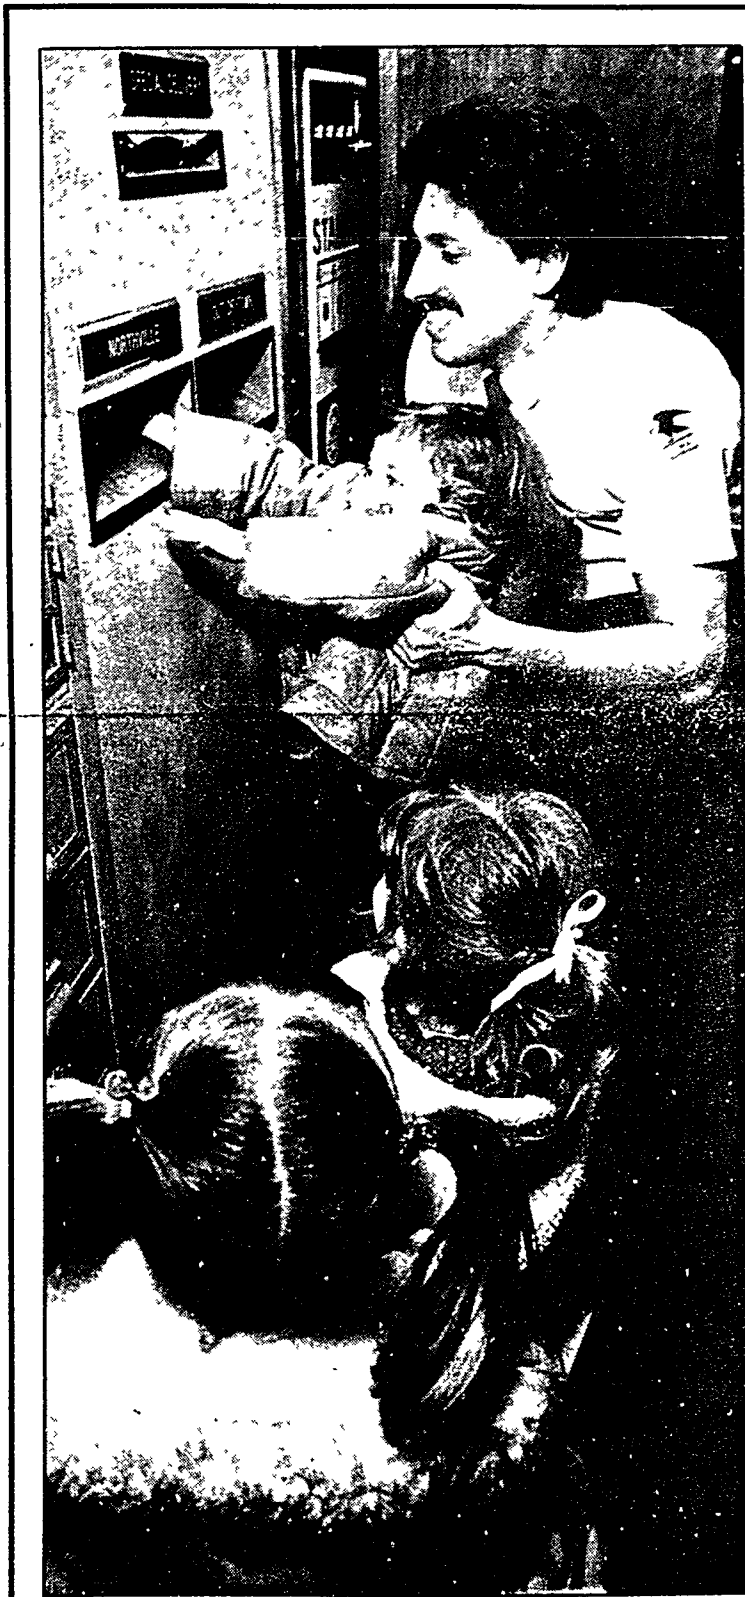

"We can cover the cost with it," Henningsen said of the administrative fee. "What we won't cover is the lost interest I used to be able to earn for the township" on school taxes.

Under the old system of billing all school taxes in December, Henningsen explained, taxpayers often paid before the end of the year in order to claim an income tax deduction. The township did not have to disburse the money collected for the school district until after the deadline — generally the last day of February.

Investing the money for the intervening 60 days resulted in significant income to the township treasury. But with summer bills due in mid-September, Henningsen continued, there is no incentive for early payment.

"I thoroughly expect most people will make that payment in the last week, even the last day," he said. "I think I'll make nothing in interest. People aren't dumb here, they'll keep the interest for themselves."

On Henningsen's recommendation, the township board voted 5-1 to charge the fee. Opposing was trustee Thomas Cook, who has voted against the fee every year since being elected to the board in 1980. Trustee James Nowka was absent.

Valentine messenger

With a boost from Joe Spiteri, little Alissa DeMattos had no trouble sending her handmade Valentine to her parents — via the Northville Post Office. A student in Kids' Kreative Korner, a licensed preschool under the auspices of Northville Public Schools Community Education Program, Alissa was among the preschoolers touring the post office last Thursday. In addition to a guided tour, students also mailed their Valentine messages. Record photo by Steve Fecht.

Geake assigned key posts after GOP take over

To the victors go the spoils, and when the Republican party took control of the state senate last week, senator R. Robert Geake (R-Northville) collected an armload.

Republicans officially gained a senate majority February 6 when two GOP senators were sworn in to replace two recalled Democrats. With the Republicans now outnumbering Democrats 20-18, John Engler of Mt. Pleasant became majority instead of minority leader. Firmly in control of the Senate for the first time in 10 years Republicans made committee reassignments in caucus February 7. And Geake came up with some plums.

Long a member of the influential senate appropriations committee, Geake was handed a more influential position on state spending as vice chairman of that committee. The chairmanship went to Harry Gast, Jr. of St. Joseph.

Geake was also named chairman of the appropriations subcommittees on mental health and on social services. He was previously the only minority member of the two three-member subcommittees.

Geake has been on the mental health subcommittee since election to the Senate in 1977. The social services subcommittee chairmanship was seen as a more influential one, in that it oversees a portion of the state budget in excess of 35 percent.

The Northville resident senator also was named a member of the appropriations subcommittees on corrections and higher education and a member of the legislative council (which assigns proposed legislation to committees). Geake also maintains his previous committee assignment on the legislative retirement committee and picked up a seat on the standing senior citizens and social services committee.

Finally, Geake was assigned as a new member of the joint capital outlay committee — the combined panel of house and senate members that must approve spending on state buildings.

And, not to be forgotten, as second in seniority in the Senate behind Harry DeMaso of Battle Creek, Geake is high on the list to pick a new personal office space in the Capitol building, presumably one of the those previously assigned to Democratic leaders.

Township officials said they hope the senator's more influential positions will aid them in some long-standing efforts — particularly in opposition to a department of management and budget proposed alteration of the location of a state prison here and in having the Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital fenced.

Committee recommendation approved

Schools will seek 9.5 mills in election set for April

The prospect of having no fund equity in reserve will pose new challenges for the board. Despite the $700,000 loss of revenue in 1981, the district was spared from slashing programs over the past two years by dipping into a more than $1 million fund equity.

During the 1982-83 school year, the board went as far as to approve a 31.9 mill levy — one less than the maximum authorized millage — due to a fund equity of more than five percent of its total budget.

However, last year's levying of one less mill coupled with this school year's 4.4 percent decrease in the district's SEV — a reduction of approximately $439,000 — has forced the board to use almost $800,000 of its fund equity to maintain programs.

Though he voiced support for the committee's recommendation,

Superintendent Bell told the board that he felt uneasy about running the school district with no reserves.

"If a boiler goes out, I want to know I have the funds to fix it," he said.

"I personally would prefer to ask the community for no more than the citizens' committee is asking for," Bell noted. But added that the 2.5 mill increase is like "living on your salary and savings account."

School board members voiced similar concerns about the lack of reserves.

"Idealistically I think we need the 3.75 (additional) mills," trustee Karen Wilkinson said. "I don't think we should run the district without a cushion."

Board President Chris Johnson echoed the same concerns saying he did not feel comfortable "running on empty."

However, citing the "anti-tax climate" prevailing in the state, the

"I personally would prefer to ask the community for no more than the citizens' committee asked for."

— Superintendent George Bell

committee and board concurred that asking for an additional 2.5 mills from local voters will be challenge enough — though the desired 3.25 mills would leave the district with comfortable reserves.

The recommended 9.5 mills would bring the district's current 32.9 operating millage levy back to the 1978-79 school year level of 35.4.

The additional millage also would rank the district 18th in operating mills for the 36 school districts in Wayne County. The district currently ranks 23rd.

The committee recommended the board levy the 9.5 mills for no more than two years in order to assess the population trends of the district over the next few years.

It also was noted that the high school renovation project is expected to be completed within that time and will allow the board to examine facility needs in the district.

The committee also pointed out that there will be increased tax revenue when planned commercial and business development is operational in Northville Township and that, if the senior citizens complex is developed at the former Wayne County Training School, it will add to the tax base without increasing enrollment.

While the committee recommended a millage amount and the duration of the levy, it left the board of education to decide how to present the package to voters.

After some discussion, the board opted to go for the 9.5 mills in one package rather than splitting the renewal and additional 2.5 mills in separate elections.

In supporting the full 9.5 mill election in April, Chris Johnson noted that "doing anything less will give the impression to the community that we can do without the additional millage."

In summarizing the committee's findings, Ambler said members agreed that the education programs of the district had been "dramatically improved," discipline had been reintroduced in the schools, test scores remained among the highest in the state and well above the averages reported at state and national levels.

The committee also pointed out the improved efficiency in operating the school district.

In conclusion, Amber apologized to the board for not finding "a magical formula to operate the school district without recommending the restoration of 2.5 mills."

However, he noted that "there is no way to run a quality school program without the necessary millage and if we fail to provide the required revenues, the lack of finances will be destructive to a program that has been turned around."

NEXT WEEK: An in-depth look at the Blue Ribbon School Finance Committee's findings and where schools spend local tax dollars.

Preliminary recreation budget approved

Northville Recreation officials last week revealed their preliminary 1984-85 Recreation Department budget figures — and it appears both expenditures and revenues of the joint city-township department are on the rise.

According to the proposal, expenditures are targeted at $338,000, an increase of about 18 percent from the 1983-84 fiscal year. But a similar increase should come in revenues, estimated for next year at $338,000 compared with this year's $286,556.

According to Recreation Director Jeff Farland, those figures are a little misleading, since next year's accounting system includes additional revenue sources and expenditures in programs that before had operated outside the department's fiscal control.

An example of how such accounting items changed is the Ski Club. Last year, the club was to be a cooperative venture with the department, budgeted at $14,500. Under Farland, however, the department has taken control of all revenues and outlays for ski club outings. Doing so increased department expenditures to about $41,000, but also increased revenues by the same amount.

"The actual increase comes in at right about nine percent," Farland explained last week. That figure more accurately reflects the actual increase in program costs and overall revenue.

There has been a minor change in how the city and township will split the cost of the department budget, due to variations in state equalized valuations in each community. In 1983-84, the township paid 60.12 percent of the budget, the city 39.88. This year, the township will pay 59.66 percent to the city's 40.34 percent.

The preliminary budget was approved unanimously by the Recreation Commission at its February 8 meeting. Since an ad hoc "blue ribbon" committee formed to study the proposed budget in January had included three members of the commission, there was no conflict in the commission's adoption of the preliminary figures.

About the January 25 study session at which the proposed budget was reviewed, Commissioner Jim Armstrong said, "That's the first meeting in many years it's gone that smoothly."

Commission Chair L.T. Sylvestre added the cooperation and progress of the meeting was "very encouraging."

The preliminary budget will now be submitted for approval by the Township Board of Trustees and the City Council at their next meetings. If approved, Farland will use the preliminary budget as a guide for drawing up his final budget, which in turn requires approval by the commission, council and township board.

TAX TIPS

LEE E. HOLLAND, C.P.A.

PENALTIES FOR OVER VALUATION

If you have property that you use to claim deductions on your income tax, you should make sure that the figure you list is not overvalued, otherwise you may be penalized. For example, suppose you claim a deduction for depreciation on a particular piece of property. The property has not been appraised recently. Not checking into its actual depreciable basis, you make a generous estimate. Beware—you may be penalized if the overstatement exceeds 150 percent of the correct valuation or if it results in an underpayment of taxes of at least $1,000. The amount of penalty will be equal to a percentage of the tax underpayment, ranging from 10 percent to 30 percent.

Monroe stars in film

By B.J. MARTIN

As much as any other film, "The Seven Year Itch," which appears at the Marquis Theater this weekend, displays the ingredients of Marilyn Monroe's legend.

She's not the main character in the 1955 motion picture adaptation of George Axelrod's Broadway play by the same name. That's Tom Ewell as Richard Sherman, and Ewell's theatrical, yet often subtle, performance is completely convincing.

It's ironic Monroe exudes so much unearthly glamour in a role where she is cast as, literally, The Girl Next Door. But her presence on the screen has a lighter-than-air quality that's glamorous yet not at all glitzy.

She seems to float from scene to scene as if she's a character in a dream. Her breathy voice reinforces the sense of gauziness, and one suspects intriguingly that she achieves this effect consciously, simply because in a dramatic sense, it is so appropriate to Sherman's fantasizing perception of her.

One of the reasons Ewell is comfortable in the part is because he was able to hone its nuances in the Broadway stage production. And his offbeat looks and self-deprecating style give him a unique perspective of his character — he's neither a suave playboy like Clark Gable, nor the riddled-with-self-doubt Woody Allen character of "Play It Again, Sam."

For that reason, it's easy for men to vicariously identify with his character. Ewell plays an Everyman whose soliloquies and asides tenderly expose and represent the fantasies that — admit it, now — creep up in all men from time to time.

Billy Wilder, best known for his directing Monroe's best-known vehicle, "Some Like It Hot," remains somewhat true to the stage play, emphasizing simplicity and directness, which serves the material well. Highly recommended.

Playing Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 p.m. with Sunday matinee at 2:30 p.m.

Township signs contract for annual road treatment

Calcium chloride will be spread on gravel roads in the township once during the coming summer season, the board of trustees determined February 9.

The board authorized a contract with the Wayne County Road Commission calling for the dust-abative treatment at a price to be determined following the bid procedure.

Each year the township is asked early in the year to state its intentions to have the road commission purchase the chemical treatment in bulk. The work is done by a private contractor under road commission supervision. This first contract authorizes the road commission to take bids on behalf of the township, together with other participating communities.

After a price is set through the bid process, the township will again be asked to enter into a contract for performance of the work.

Until recent years, the treatments were applied twice per year. Lately, only one treatment has been made and that is what the board authorized last week. The contract applies only to what the road commission defines as "local county roads." Major roads, such as the mile roads, are the responsibility of the road commission and dust treatments are paid for by that agency, which also determines the number of times calcium chloride is applied.

She wrote the book on treating brain damage

As Northville resident and speech pathologist Pamela Crowe Miller worked with brain-injured patients suffering with communication handicaps, she began to realize there was not a great deal of published material on the subject.

She started collecting information on the special problems of patients who suffered right hemisphere head injuries, usually as a result of strokes or head accidents, and teamed up with fellow co-worker and speech pathologist Kathleen Anderson at Chelsea Community Hospital to write a six-part workbook which will be published this spring.

It is designed for use by family members as well as for professionals.

Miller is a former staff member at Plymouth Center for Human Development; she also had worked at the Veterans' Administration Medical Center in Allen Park.

She and Anderson, who is director of the speech pathology department at Chelsea, have gained national attention for their work with brain-injured adults who suffer from communication handicaps as co-authors of "Recovery from Right Hemisphere Brain Damage."

The series of workbooks is designed to help brain-injured adults retrieve everyday skills and is being published by C.C. Publications, Inc., of Tigard, Oregon.

More than 10 years of combined experience with brain-damaged adults led the women to compile hundreds of therapy exercises for their book.

At Chelsea Community Hospital they regularly treat patients whose injuries have resulted in diminished reading and writing skills, impaired memory and weakened abstract reasoning.

Anderson and Miller note that they took special pains to include exercises that address the practical problems of brain-injured adults. These, they list as such activities as writing checks,

'Patients have trouble organizing, communication and visual perception are involved.'

— Pamela Crowe Miller
speech pathologist

reading maps and, eventually, exploring personal values and morals.

"This is a new area, real new, probably not 10 years old," Miller explains as she tells how such stroke patients can be helped to compensate. She reports it is important to begin training right away.

The workbook treats right hemisphere problems.

"Patients have trouble organizing, communicating and visual perception are involved," Miller explains, citing as a typical problem not seeing the left side of a page when reading.

Memory Retraining is one of the workbook topics. Another is Problem Solving as such patients, Miller says, tend to see a part instead of the whole problem. The material also deals with Self Perception.

"I saw that the patients were in need of therapy, but the appropriate materials were not available," Anderson adds. "I had had to modify materials from a variety of sources as well as create my own in order to provide appropriate therapy for those patients."

Miller and her husband, Dr. Bruce Miller, have lived in an Innsbrook apartment for eight months. He is a resident at Sinai Hospital in Detroit.

Pamela Crowe Miller, who grew up in Livonia, did her undergraduate studies at Central Michigan University and received her master's degree from Eastern Michigan University.

Anderson, who received her master's degree in speech pathology from the University of Michigan, also formerly worked for the Plymouth State Home and Training School. She served on the faculty of Marygrove College Speech and Language Pathology Program and was the clinical supervisor for the Residential Aphasia Program at the University of Michigan.

She and her husband, Thomas Baines, a research engineer with the Environmental Protection Agency, live with their son in Ann Arbor.

After the women had begun collecting material for the work, Miller remembers, she sent a sample to publishers from whom she had ordered materials. C.C. Publications was chosen as it seemed most interested, she adds.

The workbook won't make the speech pathologists rich, however, for it will sell for $5.95 in bookstores or through speech pathologists. That wasn't why it was written, anyway. "It's something I use every single day," Miller sums up.

Jaws fund to township

Northville Jaycees last week presented the township with a check for $5,075 to be applied toward the recent purchase of a "Jaws of Life" tool for use by the fire department. Actual cost of the tool was $8,260.

The amount donated represents the entire proceeds from the Jaycees fund-raising drive to buy the hydraulic device used to extract victims from motor vehicles involved in severe accidents. Long a stated goal of the organization, the drive really got under way last summer.

Township officials stated appreciation for the donation and noted it arrived in time to be applied directly toward payment on the purchase. The extraction tool was delivered to the township fire department a week earlier, and had been ordered after the board's January session.

Jaycees initially had stated they would like to purchase the first tool, placed with the township fire department, for use community-wide, later stating that a second would be purchased to be stationed with city fire crews.

The city fire department has since started its own fund-raising effort. According to Jaycees president Greg Dawson, the organization is prepared to assist the city fund drive for the purchase of a second tool.

Jaycees had earlier discussed splitting the existing fund between city and township, estimating the amount would reach $6,000 by the end of March.

But a membership meeting last week voted to continue with the organization's original plans to proceed with an immediate purchase and begin raising funds for the second tool.

Hospital patient reports robbery at knifepoint

From State Police...

A Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital patient reported that he was robbed by two other patients, one of whom held a knife to his throat, according to state police reports.

The patient told investigating officers that two male patients approached him while he was in bed and told him they were going to rob him. One of the suspects then drew a small knife from his pocket and held it to the victim's throat while the other removed $6 from the victim's pockets.

The victim, a 21-year-old Lincoln Park man, reported the incident to the nurse's station, which contacted hospital security forces who in turn contacted state police.

According to the report, the two suspects are contending that the assault was not a robbery but a collection on a gambling debt.

An inmate at the Detroit House of Correction attempted suicide by hanging himself with his shirt while in an isolation cell February 10, according to state police reports.

Police were contacted by St. Mary Hospital in Livonia just before 8 a.m. with the information that Robert Shihobster, 37, of Detroit had been admitted for treatment there.

According to the report, Shihobster, sent to DeHoCo January 6 to serve a 1-2 year sentence on conviction of receiving and concealing stolen property and attempted larceny, had recently escaped from the institution and been returned.

He was found by DeHoCo security guards in his cell in a sitting position, his shirt tied around his neck and the cell bars. Guards administered cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) and called an ambulance. Police said the victim survived the attempted suicide and at last report remained in the hospital.

Three Livonia residents were cited for transporting open intoxicants in a motor vehicle February 7, state police reported.

The three, a 29-year-old man and two women aged 21 and 22 were stopped near the Phoenix Lake area of Hines Park. Police found three open beer bottles on the vehicle floor. The beer was poured out at the scene and the three given citations to appear in the 35th District Court. Police also found that one of the women was the subject of an arrest warrant for failure to appear in court on an earlier citation. She was required to post bond before being released.

A Livonia man reported that persons unknown had damaged his car while it was parked in a Seven Mile Road parking lot February 9. The man told police he was a restaurant at about 9:30 a.m. when he saw someone looking at the right rear quarter of his 1983 car. The man said he thought nothing of the scene, since people frequently look over his new model car.

But upon returning to work, he reported, he found the car had been damaged in the right rear quarter panel, apparently by a car backing into it. There was no estimate placed on the damage.

State police responded to nearly 90 incidents in Northville during January, nearly half of them involving escapes from state-owned facilities.

Of the 88 incidents reported written by troopers assigned cases in Northville, 41 came under the classification of unauthorized leave from a state facility, primarily Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital. At least one assault complaint and a few other reports also involved state property.

Troopers arrested five drunk drivers in Northville, investigated nine accidents and three reported assaults, and arrested two persons on fugitive warrants. Police responded to one burglar alarm and conducted one tour of the post for a local group during January. The remaining 26 reports were classified under "other" and included assistance to local police agencies, vehicle inspections, burglaries and several other crime classes.

...In the Township...

An unknown suspect(s) driving a Ford vehicle was seen running over mailboxes on Greenridge Drive around midnight February 11, township police report.

The officer at the scene observed 18 mailboxes and support posts damaged in the area, which is south of Eight Mile Road.

According to police, evidence at the scene revealed tire tracks in the snow which were left by the suspect vehicle.

Police at the scene observed that most of the mailboxes are located along the west side curb of Greenridge and are mounted on support posts.

The complainant, who also was witness to the incident, told police he observed the suspect vehicle to back into the mailboxes intentionally and then flee the scene with headlights off, traveling west on North Valley.

The complainant further stated that he believed the vehicle to be a Ford pick-up truck or Bronco.

Four tires and rims estimated at $800 were stolen from a 1982 Mercury parked in the driveway of a Ladywood residence sometime between 12:30 and 6 a.m. February 10, police report.

Upon arrival at the scene, the officer observed the vehicle to be sitting on its frame in the driveway in front of the garage, with tires and rims missing. The owner of the vehicle, who said she was staying with a friend at the Ladywood residence, told police she had parked the car in the driveway at 12:30 a.m. and at 6 a.m. noticed both the tires and rims gone.

A $275 Toro snowblower was stolen from the garage of a Sutters Lane residence sometime between January 1 and January 21, police report.

The complainant told police he was not sure whether the garage door was locked at the time the incident occurred.

The complainant further stated there were no signs of forced entry.

A Redford Township man found dead last Saturday on Six Mile Road near the Detroit House of Corrections property apparently shot himself in the head, township police said.

The victim, Cyril Francis Hallett, 43, was found at about 5:45 p.m. February 10 in a field near his parked car, according to information supplied by state and township police.

Captain Philip Pressnell of the township force reported Monday that the county medical examiner's office had determined the gunshot wound was self-inflicted in close contact with the man's head.

"I can tell you it definitely wasn't a murder," Pressnell said, noting that all suspicious deaths are investigated under the initial presumption that they might be homicides.

The man's body and car were found near the property line between DeHoCo and an adjacent private farm near Beck Road. Pressnell said the body was found near a gate in the farm fence and the car roughly upon the property line, about 150 feet away from Six Mile.

The police captain said investigation continues into possible motivations for the suicide, stating there "are a number of theories as to why, but they're not for release to the public."

City planners okay addition

City planners last week gave conditional preliminary approval to a request to add a 2½-car garage to McAllister's House of Decorating, 324 East Main Street, plus an addition.

The only issue requiring resolution for final site plan approval is the location of the garage. Owners of the business advised commissioners they would seek a variance from the City Board of Zoning Appeals.

If You Lost Your Hearing Tomorrow, Would You Do Something About It?

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of one of the smallest Beltone aids of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

It's yours for the asking, so send for it now. It is not a real hearing aid, but it will show you how tiny hearing help can be. The actual aid weighs less than a fourth of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. All hearing problems are not alike and some cannot be helped by a hearing aid but many can. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 45847, Beltone Electronics Corporation, 4201 W. Victoria St., Chicago, IL 60646.

The last thing you need now is a problem paying for more car insurance.

A family can have many drivers. And many drivers can mean many cars. There may be a problem with finding a full gas tank or the right keys. So you don't need a problem with car insurance.

You deserve a discount. And, that's exactly what Auto-Owners gives families with two or more automobiles. A nice one too.

Your independent Auto-Owners agent prides himself on the substantial savings he can give multiple car families. And with a name like Auto-Owners—he's won fame with his claims service. Find out from your "no problem" Auto-Owners agent just what the one advantage could be of having many cars and many drivers in your family. It's no problem!

Seek second Eight Mile reduction

Close on the heels of the city's success in having speed limits reduced on Eight Mile Road, the township board last week decided to request that the limit be reduced during school hours at William Allan Academy.

Academy director Valerie Hambleton presented the board with a petition signed by 69 parents of students at the school requesting that the speed limit be reduced from the present 50 miles per hour.

"The safety of my students and parents has been of growing concern to me," Hambleton wrote, "and I truly believe a reduced speed limit in the immediate school facility will greatly increase personal safety."

The school, which is on Eight Mile near Napier, operates from 9 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. The board request to the Wayne County Road Commission asks that the limit be reduced between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m.

The road commission sets speed limits on Eight Mile and recently approved a reduction on some portions of the road through the city, particularly near the Taft and Randolph intersections.

Although the present limit is 50 mph, Hambleton said "speeds greatly exceed that along that stretch. I don't want there to be some sort of fatality before it's corrected."

She was advised that the road commission will most likely undertake a traffic study to determine, by its standards, whether the limit should be reduced. Township board members noted there was more likelihood of having the limit reduced if the lower speeds would apply only during school hours.

Three injured in car crash

...In the City

A westbound car containing two Pontiac men and one from Royal Oak spun out of control into eastbound lanes, then collided with two large snowdrifts located on the south side of Eight Mile Road just west of Taft at 5:58 a.m. Wednesday of last week. The driver, Dennis Wayne Williams, 20, of Pontiac, was taken by ambulance to Providence-Novi Hospital. Michael Pavelka, 17, also of Pontiac was taken by ambulance to Botsford Hospital and Larry Roach, 22, of Royal Oak, later drove himself to Royal Oak's Beaumont Hospital. All were treated and released the same day.

City police subsequently issued Williams a ticket for driving too fast for existing conditions.

A Livonia man under investigation last week for a possible tie to a February 9, 1983, assault on a Northville sales clerk has turned out to not be the assailant.

When asked for a photo identification, the female sales clerk told city police Friday the man apprehended January 31 for disorderly conduct was not the person who had attacked her with a blunt object last year.

A white envelope containing $120 in cash was stolen from a jacket pocket of a 38-year-old Northville woman while she was working out at the Northville Community Center gym last Wednesday between 6:30 and 7:30 p.m. The woman had left her coat hanging on the gym wall. Another dollar in the coat but not in the envelope also was taken.

One T-top valued at $850 was stolen from a 1981 Ford Mustang parked at the Yorktown Court parking lot of Lexington Condominiums between 9:15 and 10:15 p.m.

Park Gardens project is half completed

Progress on construction of the Park Gardens subdivision sewer system is right on target for a May 30 completion date, consulting engineer Jack McNeely reported to the township board last week.

Barring an excessively wet spring or other weather problems, he predicted, the project will be completed on schedule.

The project is at about the half completed stage, McNeely said, adding that the first operable portion of the system will be the collector line serving houses on Marilyn Avenue. This portion of the system, McNeely explained, routes flows directly into an existing pumping station in the area of Northville Forest apartments and can be placed in operation as soon as the line is constructed and connections made.

The remainder of the project will not be operable until shortly after construction is completed, McNeely added, since all other flows are to be routed through a new pumping station to be installed near the southeast corner of the subdivision and thence through a high-pressure sewage line to the Northville Forest station.

The new pumping station installation is one of the last stages in construction of the system, which will serve more than 170 parcels. Funded in large part by federal grants combined with some township water and sewer funds and a special assessment against property owners, total cost of the project, including last year's revisions to the Northville Forest station, approaches $1 million.

McNeely said the completion target date represents not only sewer installation but also the restoration of roads and property with completed landscaping and planting. Following completion, he noted, the system must undergo extensive testing before it is operated.

Clerk Susan Heintz said this week that the engineer is preparing bid documents for the construction of service lines to the homes of property owners qualified under a low income standard to have the township pay the installation cost. Other property owners will be charged individually to have service lines connected between the houses and the collector lines installed in the streets.

The township expects to begin advertising for bids on the service line construction in two to three weeks, she said.

Addition OK'd

A 432-square-foot addition to Connie's Stitchery, Ware's Square, located at 219 Hutton, was approved by the City Planning Commission Tuesday of last week.

The final site plans submitted reflected what City Planning Consultant Ron Nino called a "minor site plan adjustment." Following discussion among commissioners and Nino, who told them he thought the Wares should be "commended for coordinating the architecture of the structure," approval of final site plans was granted unanimously.

Heintz added that the completion of the sewer project will likely spur development of the remaining vacant parcels in the area. "We have a number of people waiting to build who have been denied permits because of the moratorium."

The township placed a moratorium on all new construction in the area until sewer lines are installed. The moratorium was deemed necessary because of a continuing and growing problem with ground pollution due to failing septic systems.

Our Opinions

It's their week

Whenever special events in Northville are listed, the annual Fourth of July festivities rate at the top. Christmas programs, including Visits from Santa and Toys for Tots, are cited also, as well as a children's Easter egg hunt.

None would be possible without the volunteer work of the Northville Jaycees and Northville Jaycee Women. It seems appropriate that the efforts of these groups be recognized at this time of year. Five days of this week, February 13-17, have been designated as Jaycee Women Week to give awareness to the efforts of the Jaycee auxiliary organization.

The Northville chapter was chartered in May, 1961, to assist the Jaycees in their projects and also to be a community service organization. Until late last year, the group was known officially as the Northville Jaycee Auxiliary, and unofficially as the Northville Jayettes. The new name was adopted, it was explained at the December meeting, to give the women their own identity.

Members, who —like the Jaycees are young — between the ages of 18 and 35, volunteer their time to support the Cystic Fibrosis "Kiss Your Baby" campaign. They offer babysitting clinics for junior high age students. It is the Jaycee Women who made reservations for those Santa visits at Christmas time. In the past, they have provided carseats for babies, visited nursing homes, assisted with the Northville Junior Miss Competition.

The women organized about six months after the Northville

Jaycee Chapter came into being October 20, 1960. Jaycee Week was observed nationally last month from January 15-21.

It is the Northville Jaycees who have made the annual Fourth of July parade outstanding. They have worked to raise funds for special bands and attractions and also to stage spectacular fireworks. They now have some financial assistance from the city council and township board of trustees, but the planning is done by the Jaycees, assisted by the auxiliary.

To accomplish this community service, it often is necessary for both Jaycee men and women volunteers to juggle schedules of young families. They are making their contribution to a better community with some real effort.

Recently, the Jaycees have been caught in a vise as strong as the Jaws of Life project they began in the community. They have done their best under unexpected circumstances, donating the sum of $5,000 to the township for its Jaws last week, and promising now to raise funds for a like city unit since a shared unit is not acceptable to either the city or township fire chief.

Throughout the controversy, the Jaycees have made it clear they are a civic, community group with members living in both the city and township. Their desire — and the desire of the Jaycee Women — is to make the community a better place in which to live through their efforts. It is time to realize this and to commend both the Jaycees and the Jaycee Women for their service.

Full participants

It came as a pleasant surprise to realize when we had completed the feature stories about getting involved in politics published in this week's Our Town section that all the quoted sources were women.

There is some distance yet to be traveled before women can be said to be truly equally represented in government with men (men still fill most high level positions), but the degree to which women are involved in politics in this area is encouraging news to those looking forward to that day. There is sufficient activity to ensure that women can no longer be totally ignored in the political process.

Township clerk Susan Heintz may have said it best in a statement not quoted in our stories. "Politics is the least biased activity I know of," she said. "If you can do the work, if you can get elected on your own merits, you'll find that there's virtually no discrimination within political circles. If you're good, they'll support you regardless of your sex."

Attaining full equality for women has been hindered by a lack of political clout in the past. We are pleased to see that situation being corrected, with hopes that changes on the political scene will carry over into the rest of society.

Good spreading

The fact that the typical January thaw didn't arrive until mid-February isn't surprising in view of the winter weather we've been enduring. For the first time since early December residents can venture out without boots onto clear walks and roads.

We must admit that getting around town has not been a problem, thanks to the efforts of the DPW. The blue salt (made so with an anti-coagulant) appeared after each snowstorm on main streets. DPW Superintendent Ted Mapes scheduled his crews so that arteries stayed open. While there were a few rumblings from residents who wished parking lots might be given the same top priority, we think the scheduling was on target.

To date this year the DPW has spread 948 tons of salt, but has been able to replenish its supply as used, Mapes reports. In an average year the city spreads about 1,000 tons of salt. For those who like statistics — last year, Mapes contrasts, by this time the city had used only 481 tons of salt on the roads, just about half of this year's consumption. We know it's a hard winter. Weather forecasters already have told us the thaw isn't going to last, but let's enjoy the few sunny days we have.

Like Ben, we aim to be local

When Bostonian Benjamin Harris published the first newspaper in this country, Publick Occurrences Both Foreign and Domestic, in his hometown 294 years ago, he was considered by authorities to have committed a crime. But every copy of the four-page paper was snatched up — because it was interesting.

It provided local news — news of a smallpox epidemic in Boston, of labor shortages and difficulty in harvesting crops, of a fire that destroyed 20 homes and the human interest story of a depressed old man who committed suicide after losing his wife. The publisher was summoned before authorities because he published without a license. The license would have made it necessary to clear beforehand with those authorities what was to be in the paper. He published no more issues, and it was not, history relates, until 1721 that James Franklin (Ben's brother) published another paper.

There are those who still would like to "view beforehand" what a newspaper publishes. And, I am aware, others who would like only favorable news (to them) printed. Those of us involved in putting out this weekly newspaper have an easier time than Benjamin Harris, but we, like him, value being an "unfettered press."

Like Harris, our goal is to publish an interesting paper filled with local news. The word local is the key aspect. We do not presume to know or be able to analyze foreign, national or state events. We aim to write about and interpret for our readers the happenings within our community. Reporters are present at every open meeting of the city council, township board of trustees and school board session. They cover these bodies regularly and know and report the background of their actions.

We also report just as regularly and uniformly police activities of the city, township and state police. We report news of business, of the chamber of commerce and the economic development groups in the city and township. This is the "hard news" a reader living in the community should expect.

More than this, however, we publish the news of living and of dying. Births, engagements and weddings as well as news obituaries are part of The Record. This is the news about people, your neighbors. While the metro papers have been discovering some of our community's special attractions, they cannot report about them regularly. We can and do.

We also, like Benjamin Harris, work to produce an interesting newspaper. That's why we sought out persons who "feed the birds" in a recent issue. That's why we interviewed couples who were Valentines last week. Not all news originates in a meeting room.

The reporters who write the city, township, school, sports and other news of the community all are professionals. Every writer on the staff has a degree and experience. School reporter Michele McElmurry came from Michigan State University's journalism department four years ago this spring. Government reporter Kevin Wilson came from Eastern Michigan University at almost the same time four years ago. Both are most familiar with their beats and sources. Wilson this winter researched through 10 years of city budget records to ascertain and explain to readers how the city had used its racetrack revenues and why it found itself in a financial bind when returns from the state were reduced.

Bruce J. Martin not only reports sports but also planning commission activities, both city and township. He is a journalism graduate of the University of Missouri and has been a city resident since he joined the staff last spring. I was graduated from the University of Michigan school of journalism — much earlier than the rest of the staff — and have been a township resident almost 22 years.

Our goal is a uniform one — to produce the best newspaper we can each week to let our readers know what is happening in our community interestingly and accurately. I hope you find it so.

Be my valentine

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

"Does it occur to you that the pairs competition isn't that spectacular this year," I asked as we watched Peter and Kitty Caruthers claim their silver medals.

"I think you're right," she responded. "Pairs just hasn't been the same since the Protopopov's turned professional."

That's when it hit me. So I blurted it out.

"With a little practice, I'll bet we could do that," I said. "I never bought all that 'years of practice' hype in the first place."

"No wonder they have to practice so many years. They're little kids when they start. It would be different with adults. I'll bet we could pick it up fairly quickly."

She looked at me suspiciously ... one of those looks that says she knows she can't stop me, so why even try.

"I was going to take up downhill skiing, but frankly it appears that you've got to live somewhere near the Alps to even have a chance. Besides, those downhill skiers are at the mercy of the weather. Why take up something you have to do outside in the cold when there are other sports you can do inside on a nice warm rink?"

"I'll bet we'd be terrific," I continued, visions of gold dancing in my head. "You've got all that dance training from aerobics, and Lord knows I'm strong enough to throw you around."

"Those triple jumps aren't tough at all as long as you get enough altitude. We could even shoot for a quadruple."

"I can see it now. There we are at the Winter Olympics. The lights dim, we begin our routine and suddenly I throw you into the air ... one, two, three, four times you twirl around before floating back to the ice. The crowd is aghast."

"A quadruple," yells Dick Buttons. "Look at those lines. Look at those deep edges. That clinches the gold for the Jeromes."

"Are you done now?" she interrupted finally.

"I guess so," I replied. "It was just a thought."

Readers Speak

Reader takes The Record to task on news coverage

To the Editor:
This newspaper continues to reflect the ominous characteristics of the suburban political culture, including conformity, deference, materialism, going along with the trends, and the corporate ethic.

Your editorial writers waste an enormous amount of space describing conversations in a bar, trips to the shopping center, fantasies about vacations, pats on the proper parts of the anatomy for politicians who play by the team rules, and awards for the same group of followers who love to wallow in their own self-gratification.

Clearly this approach is based upon your desire to memorize the minds of the readers, through an emphasis upon the entertainment syndrome, which further reinforces the trend toward complacency in our society. Consequently, people tolerate this endeavor into fantasyland, but their analytical abilities remain unchallenged.

Not surprisingly, politicians love this situation, because it provides a void within which they can shuffle the deck without paying the piper.

As we have seen, they postpone problems, avoid controversial issues, downplay deficits, add multipliers to increase assessments, amend budgets to cover mistakes, award huge contracts for minimum services, hire consultants, travel to worthless conferences, and campaign for higher positions.

On an aggregate level, political clones are purposely ineffective, while they attempt to sell the imagery of effectiveness to the public. They tinker with the machinery of government without making waves, when the ship of state requires leadership to serve the needs of the people.

Rather than your writers continuing to pander to the fuzzy television ethic and computer instant-gratification appetite of the American public, why not provide in-depth analysis of county, township, city, and state issues?

Newspapers play an important role in the education process. We deserve a higher level of excellence in the Northville community.

Civic Concern group needs food, donations

To the Editor:
Civic Concern Committee needs (the community's) help now.

This committee has been organized one year for the purpose of giving assistance to those in need. During the year we have provided food for more than 40 families, some weekly.

We have never failed to give assistance to any who have called for help. We have been very fortunate in receiving food, but today we are very low and in need of food. We will greatly appreciate food from any source.

It should be delivered to 43643 Nine Mile, or call 349-0854 and we will arrange for pick up.

We have also given assistance to several families for utilities to prevent shut off of electric (power) or gas. In the past 10 days we have paid utilities for four families to prevent shut off.

January 27 a young lady called asking for food, and we asked where she lives — the answer was "in a car." Actually, she had lived in her car two days and nights. She came to my home to discuss her situation, and we were able to secure a room and provide her food for several days. She was fortunate to secure work and is now on her own.

This is our purpose and desire, and we can do it only with your assistance. We are now in need of food and finances to continue this assistance to many families in need.

Cash contributions should be sent in care of Ann Roy, a Civic Concern Committee member, 150 North Center, Northville, 48167.

We thank you.

Belascos are thanked for pool table donation

To the Editor:
Dr. and Mrs. Walter Belasco have gifted the Northville Senior Citizens' Advisory Council with a $2,500 pool table for the activity center. The center is located at 501 West Main in the Board of Education building.

Dr. and Mrs. Belasco are lifetime residents of Northville and are quite well known from his practice and their gifts to society. They were glad to help in the advancement of the social activities for the Northville seniors.

Holloway commended for extraordinary deed

To the Editor:
I had a refreshingly old fashion experience via one of your town's fine merchants the other day I thought I'd pass on.

After failing an initial attempt to have a box of candy delivered to a friend who works in Northville in a timely manner (Western Union Candymen are mailed), the Northville Chamber of Commerce suggested I call to see if Holloway's Bakery would deliver.

Mr. Rich Holloway told me he doesn't ordinarily deliver candy, but, after I explained to him the medicinal use to which I hope to apply his home-made goodies he concluded, "You sound like a nice guy," and said he'd do it — one pound delivered before 5 p.m. that day for one-third what a Candygram would cost.

Well, before 5 he called to inform me he had made the delivery. About a half-hour later his report was confirmed when I received a garbled "thank you" from a chomping cand-o-phile, who also reported, to my surprise, that her name had been written on one of the candies.

To say the least, this experience made my day, which was otherwise, like most others, pretty tooth-and-nail. Northvillagers are really lucky to have a merchant like Rich Holloway in their town.

Sincerely,
Bob Gordon,
Detroit

Jaycee woman described

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following letter was submitted to The Northville Record to bring attention humorously to Jaycee Women Week February 13-17. Formerly known as the Jaycee Auxiliary or as Jaycettes, the organization officially adopted the new name last year.

To the Editor:
(Here's) how to recognize a Jaycee Woman.

It's hard to tell a Jaycee Woman just by looking at her. They come in all shapes and sizes. However, I've compiled some guidelines by which a Jaycee Woman can be spotted, even in a crowd.

First of all, she walks kind of sideways, one shoulder lower than the other. This is because of the tremendous amount of papers she carries; pamphlets, booklets, reports, PRF sheets, newspaper clippings, last week's grocery list, an unfinished letter to her mother, a birthday card from her 29th birthday — yellowed with age — and junior's first grade report card, even though junior is now 10 years old.

Secondly, her left hand is usually hovering somewhere around her left ear. This is not a sign of hearing difficulties; it's simply due to the fact that she does so much telephoning, it's rather a comfortable position for her arm. This condition may be accompanied by a permanently rigid right index finger, thus positioned to speed dialing.

The next telltale sign is her fingernails. Look closely. Do you see vestiges of red paint from the bloodmobile signs? Has the baking powder from making hundreds of cakes and cookies caused the cuticles to rise? Does her nail polish look quite familiar to the Elmer's glue on the felt puppets for the bazaar? If so, she's a Jaycee Woman.

Her general appearance sometimes gives you a clue to her affiliation. Do you see that lady with the bubblegum in her hair? Kool-aid stained blouse? Half of an all-day sucker stuck to her leg? She's the Jaycee Woman in charge of the children's picnic. See that woman with the pink hair? Pink Hair! Oh, no, that's just cotton candy.

And she's got a pink sucker stuck to her leg, too. See that on over there in the snowcone booth with the frozen purple fingers and that matching purple sucker stuck to her leg? They are both Jaycee Women, working on the food booth during the Fourth of July carnival.

But there's also the Jaycee Woman who models in the fashion show. Tall and slender, she slinks onto the stage, her perfect make-up, a milk coat ($2,058.49 at Hudson's) to reveal an elegant ruby brooch — and a half-eaten sucker stuck to her leg.

There are other clues to spotting a Jaycee Woman. She's the lady who wore the headphones at the eye and ear screening. Now mumbling in her sleep, "Show me, cowboy, do you see the fire truck? Where is the snowman?"

She's drenched, the loyal wife standing in a downpour, cheering the Jaycee softball team on to victory, or pneumonia, whichever comes first.

She's the one people say "is not quite all there." No, let me rephrase that. She's the one who gives so much of herself to others, you'd think she couldn't possibly have anything left. Yet, you turn around and here she is: Community blood drives, Easter egg hunt, Wishing Well Manor, saying, "I'll do it."

It's not really difficult to recognize a Jaycee Woman. She's the woman who, in the hustle bustle, hurry, scurry, and worry of this world has stopped and taken the time to love her neighbor as herself.

Now, if you will excuse me, I must go and take the sucker off my leg.

Respectfully submitted,
Northville Jaycee Woman
Elizabeth McCarville

NHS football coach Dennis Colligan, Steve Schrader and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Schrader at signing last week.

Northville senior accepts full football scholarship

Northville High School senior Steve Schrader put Northville High School on the football recruiting map last week when he was signed to a four-year football scholarship at University of Miami, Ohio last Wednesday.

Schrader, the son of Nelson and Diane Schrader of Northville, is currently the starting center and leading scorer for the Mustang varsity basketball team. Last fall, he was selected to All-Western Lakes Activities Association and Sliger-Livingston Newspapers All-Area Football Teams as a lineman in his third year as a starter for the Mustangs.

A powerful 6'6", 220 pounds, Steve was second on the 6-3 Mustang squad in tackles on defense and was an excellent pass protector and blocker as an offensive tackle. He also played first base for the Mustang varsity baseball team last spring.

According to his parents, Steve is still deciding on a college major — possibly business or a science or math-related field are among his most likely choices.

Parents set 'The Big Apple' as senior class party theme

"The Big Apple" is the theme chosen for the Class of '84 Northville High School senior class party.

The party traditionally follows commencement exercises and is given for graduates by their parents.

Plans are running smoothly for the June 15 party, general chairperson Glenda Buist reports.

She says she is working with an "enthusiastic group of parents of seniors" to coordinate ideas for decorations, entertainment and food.

In the spring letters of invitation will be going out to seniors detailing particulars of the event.

Committees and chairpersons still needing help include decorations under Lee Keller, 349-7833; checkroom, Marge Longridge, 349-0551; and cleanup, Dave Longridge, 349-5963.

A $15 donation per family of graduating seniors is asked. It is to be sent to Mrs. Carolyn Nieuwkoop, 815 Scott, Northville. The committee asks that checks be made payable to Northville Senior Class Party — 1984.

Dinner checks due Monday

Those who have made reservations for the Northville Historical Society's progressive dinner in historic local homes March 10 are reminded by dinner chairperson JoAnn Daiziel that checks to secure the reservations are due shortly.

All checks must be received by reservations chairperson Val Cook by February 20.

Reservations not secured with a check by next Monday's deadline, Mrs. Daiziel states, will be offered to those on the waiting list. She reports there are 24 names on the waiting list for the popular event.

Firm paves the 'whey' to healthful eating

By JEFFREY LAPINSKI

To the night owl, happiness is an extra hour of sleep. To the jogger, happiness is that final 100 yards. To the baseball player, happiness is a grand slam. But to Donna Pearson, happiness is the whey.

That's right — whey.

"Happiness is the Whey" is actually the name of Pearson's company. The name is not only a clever play on words but it also describes a way of life for Pearson, who has resided in Green Oak Township for the last four years and plans to relocate in Livonia soon.

Most people have heard of whey through that familiar nursery rhyme: Little Miss Muffet sat on her tuffet, eating her curds and whey.

However, while people may have heard of whey, few may know what it actually is. According to the dictionary, whey is "the watery part of milk that separates from the curds, as in the process of making cheese."

Pearson explained that in every 100 pounds of milk, there are 10 pounds of cheese and 90 pounds of whey.

Whey and soybean are the basis of Pearson's growing business. Happiness is the Whey distributes whey and soybean food products manufactured by the Royal American Food Company of Kansas City, Missouri.

Using the basic building blocks of whey and soybean and a commitment to healthier living through smarter foods, Royal American distributes a whole array of food products, from whey beverages to soy protein-based dinners to tofu mousse to baked goods.

Because the Royal American foods are based on whey and soybean, they are inexpensive, low in calories and high in nutrition, according to Pearson.

And these foods are not bad in taste.

"People will automatically think: 'Whey, yeech,'" said Pearson. To offset that 'yeech' feeling, Royal American adds ingredients into its powdered whey beverages to improve their taste and currently distributes such flavors as regular, cocoa, orange and high-protein.

The eight different dinners — from Mexican to Italian — are made without meat but even a meat-and-potato eater may not know it unless specifically told. The dinners are made with textured vegetable protein, or TVP, and are high in protein but low in calories and cholesterol, according to Pearson.

Tofu, which is soybean curd, is also distributed by Royal American, said Pearson. Tofu by itself is rather bland, she said, but it absorbs the tastes of other foods. Royal American sells a tofu mousse that, like the other food products, tastes good and is low in calories and cholesterol and rich in protein.

To round out a person's diet, Royal American has Royal Nutrition, a powdered vitamin and mineral supplement.

The bakery line of products is an exception in the calorie department. Pearson said the breads and other baked goods are not low in calories but they are free of chemicals and preservatives. "We believe we can treat ourselves now and then," she added.

On top of the nutritional advantages and taste, the foods store well and are convenient to make. "Just add water" is all it takes for all of the food products, said Pearson, with a little yeast needed for the bread.

Pearson added that Royal American employs five food scientists to develop products. In addition, the company listens to its people in the field and often meets requests for new products, she said.

While the health aspect is important to the Royal American foods, Pearson stressed that Royal American is not a 'health food' company. "We are not trying to tell them (the customers) we're a health food, we are healthier," she explained.

"What 'Happiness is the Whey' wishes is that people can have a healthier life," said Pearson, adding that those concerned with nutrition and cost would be interested in Royal American foods.

"We are what we eat," said Pearson, repeating that often-heard adage. And more people are paying attention to it by reading food package labels and watching what they consume, Pearson agreed. Royal American fits into that rekindled awareness of health with its food products, she indicated.

Royal American foods are distributed through a "network marketing" technique, explained Pearson. Each distributor is self-employed, she said, adding that new people are sponsored into the business by those already involved. She stressed that she is honest and up-front with her dealers and she helps them achieve whatever level they want in the company.

Builders predict move to smaller houses

A new kind of house buyer, with a pent-up demand, will force builders to put up smaller houses, many of them in "cluster" developments.

That forecast was put forth by leaders of the Builders' Association of Southeastern Michigan (BASM), who cheerfully predict building twice as many units as in 1983 although only half as many as in the peak year of 1978.

"New people demand a different kind of housing," said Paul Robertson Jr. of Robertson Brothers, headquartered in Bloomfield Township. "It's a matter of demographics. We have a new profile couple."

"In 1950 something like 63 percent were traditional 'Leave It to Beaver' families — father working, mother taking care of the kids."

"In 1984 only 16 percent are traditional families. The other 84 percent are different," said Robertson, who is first vice president of BASM. He finds more working couples and fewer children.

"Buyers don't need the four-bedroom, 2½ bath house with a den."

"The five-bedroom house is almost unmarketable," added Dennis Dickstein of Ralph Manuel Associates of Birmingham.

Builders agree that the three-bedroom house will be most in demand and that the two-bedroom unit, once considered unmarketable, will be a safe buy.

A major complaint of past years — tight building restrictions, was voiced more softly this year.

BASM President Richard Roeser said the association would "continue to place increased emphasis on working with state and local legislative bodies to modify the various ordinances and statutes ... which are restrictive and unreasonable and result in adding costs which do not make for better housing — only more expensive housing."

But when asked if they had made any progress in the last year, Robertson reported "a dramatic change" in the attitude of local governments. "Our company is in four different municipalities — Beverly Hills, Birmingham, Bloomfield Hills and Bloomfield Township. They have adopted cluster ordinances which allow higher densities.

"There has been an easing of zoning ordinances for single-family detached dwellings on 80, 90 or 100 foot lots."

Other predictions and observations by BASM officers:

• Most popular price ranges will be "low" ($60,000 to $80,000) and high ($150,000 and up). Prices have been stable in the last year, although some drywall shortages could result in increases for that material.

• Many of the older, more skilled building tradesmen stayed in the tri-county region through the recession. "We see more personal and direct responsibility on the part of the worker. The general worker today cares," said Robert R. Jones of Robert R. Jones Associates.

• Hot market spots will be Troy, Novi, Avon Township, Bloomfield Township and Sterling Heights in Oakland County; Livonia in Wayne County.

• Nearly 10,000 building permits will be issued in the metropolitan area, double the nearly 5,000 in 1983 and far more than the bottom 1,742 permits in 1982. But they are "a long way from what is normal production," said Roeser, defining normal as the 20,000 units started during 1978.

• Consumer confidence is high. Many young couples have been doubling up with parents and want their own home. Apartment owners have low vacancy rates, a sign that many who have been renting will want to move to a house. The 40,000 "Homerama" show visitors have been visibly enthusiastic.

• Brick will continue to be costly. Buyers will see blends of masonry, wood and other materials.

• Although no numbers were available, Roeser said a "surprising number of builders survived (the four-year recession) — a lot more than any of us anticipated." Added Irvin

Yackness, BASM's general counsel: "Many builders diversified into small offices, commercial buildings, remodeling and rehabilitation."

The cloud hanging over the building industry, Roeser said, is the high interest rates caused by the nearly $200 billion federal deficit, which soaks up credit that could otherwise go into housing mortgages.

Roeser predicted that unless Congress and the Reagan administration reduce the deficit, the prime interest rate again could soar to more than 20 percent.

"Unfortunately, during an election year, nobody in political office likes to talk about cutting spending or increasing taxes," Roeser said.

Economists seem split on whether interest rates will rise or fall during 1984, but Roeser said, "Personally, I think we have reached a plateau and that there will be no significant movement either up or down during 1984."

Home prices stayed stable last year, Realtors report

Metro MLS, multi-listing arm of the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors (WWOCBR) reported 12,367 home resales by its members in 1983 at an average price of $58,076.

Analysis of the figures, however, shows that about 60 percent of sales were under the average price, including nearly one in five that went for less than $30,000. In fact, the 2,217 that sold at this low end of the spectrum topped the 1,640 in the $90,000 and above price range.

"The figures demonstrate that this remains a good market for homes in every price range," said David N. Jensen, Metro MLS president. "Only about one of every 10 buyers are in the $100,000 and up range, while another three of 10 tend to look for something below this figure but above the average."

Jensen noted that Detroit, where prices ranged from below $18,000 up to $38,500, accounted to approximately 18 percent of member sales. Along the freeway corridors, Southfield, Farmington and Farmington Hills accounted for another 12 percent while the Novi-

Northville area added five percent. Livonia continued as one of the single best-selling areas in the board's 1,600 square mile territory with 10 percent of the total. This figure was nearly matched by the Inkster-Wayne-Garden City grouping of western suburbs and, farther west, by the Canton-Plymouth area combination.

Looking more to the north, Royal Oak and Birmingham provided members with 522 sales, or 4.2 percent, while the West Bloomfield-Orchard Lake area added 600, or 4.8 percent.

With mortgage interest rates sharply reduced from previous record highs, 1983 methods of financing showed strong changes from previous years. Conventional mortgages, used in only 16 percent of 1982 sales, rose to account for 44 percent last year.

Use of land contracts fell from 45 to 23 percent, and assumptions from 28 to 17 percent. FHA and VA government-insured mortgages showed some greater attraction to reach 10 percent usage versus seven percent in 1982. Cash buyers almost doubled from 3.3 to 6 percent.

Realtor predicts continued improvement

Factors leading to a 46 percent gain in area existing home sales last year should lead to continued improvement in 1984.

That's the outlook of the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors, one of the largest in the state, as described in a Detroit news conference January 10 by 1984 president David N. Jensen.

Jensen predicted the board, which covers a 1,600 square mile territory of urban, suburban and rural properties, would achieve sales of more than 15,000 units, or an increase of nearly 25 percent over last year when the board's 3,000 members completed sales on 12,367 homes. That was up from 8,468 in 1982.

He said the climb would be shared among all communities covered by WWOBR, with the present 'most popular' suburbs posting the highest gains.

Prices, which climbed only 2.4 percent in 1983 to an average $58,076, will continue to rise and pass the $60,000 mark, Jensen predicted.

He noted, however, that a recent survey showed Detroit had the most affordable homes of 31 metropolitan areas in the U.S. He said prices within the board's territory range from under $20,000 to about $135,000.

Jensen reported that despite high unemployment locally sales gains by his members in 1983 will top the national average of 38 percent.

He said the local sales last year exceeded year-ago predictions and cited a decline in mortgage interest rates early in the year as the major contributing factor.

"When rates for conventional mortgages dropped from 16 percent to the 12.75 percent level, sales started climbing," Hensen said. "In the first six months, they went up nearly 65 percent.

But, a full percentage point was added to rates then and sales began to soften."

Nationally, he said, a one percentage increase in mortgage rates froze 1.3 million potential buyers out of the market. HE pointed out that a one percentage point jump adds $480 to annual principal and interest payments on a $50,000 mortgage, nearly equal to an extra monthly payment.

Jensen said interest rates can be expected to remain near present levels through the first half of this year and ease back fractionally in the last two quarters. He added that the level of possible saving would be largely offset by price increases and delays in buying would offer minimum advantage to buyers.

He blamed high interest rates on federal government borrowing fueled by record budget deficits that preempt virtually all money saved by individuals. Citing a national authority, he said that under the shadow of continued high budget deficits interest rates may be four percentage points higher than they could be.

He said Congress is being urged to adopt a Realtor program to achieve a balanced budget in five years to end the repetitive cycle of tight money and high interest rates.

As healthy signs for the 1984 home market, Jensen said employment gains should accelerate as a ripple effect of increased automotive production. Traffic at home showings indicates increased consumer confidence in economic recovery as new home starts in the area are scheduled to go up.

He also observed that lenders are encountering growing acceptance of new types of mortgage instruments, such as those with adjustable rates. Floating interest rates for FHA insured mortgages, recently approved by Congress, also should have a positive effect on home sales, Jensen said.

Nominees sought for governor's travel awards

mission Ambassador Awards Committee and leaders in the Michigan travel industry.

Eligibility for Ambassador awards is to any resident excepting members of the Michigan Travel Bureau or Travel Commission staffs. Embassy awards go to any Michigan firm or organization for outstanding service to tourism through promotion in advertising or unusual support for the industry. Such activities might include improvement of facilities or encouraging visitations by state or out-of-state residents. Firms need not be in the travel industry to be eligible.

Communities or businesses which have developed festivals, projects or structures brining favorable status to Michigan as a vacation state are also Michigan Travel Commission chairperson Robert Helwig announced recently that nominations are being accepted for the Ambassador and Embassy Awards candidates for the 1983 Governor's Awards Program.

Ambassador awards are presented annually to individuals and Embassy awards to organizations judged to have significantly assisted in the promotion of Michigan as a convention and vacation destination.

The 11th annual awards program will be in Flint on May 25 in conjunction with the Governor's tourism conference, according to Diane Smusz, chairperson of the Michigan Travel Commission Awards Committee.

The award recipients will be selected by a judging committee comprised of members of the Michigan Travel Commissible.

Nomination forms and copies of rules detailing nominee qualifications are available from the Travel Bureau, Michigan Department of Commerce,

PO Box 30226, Lansing, 48909. Forms and rules are also available by calling toll-free, 1-800/292-2520.

Deadline for the receipt of nominations is April 9.

Direct sales methods used for soybean foods

Pearson explained that Royal American was established in 1982 and recorded $12 million in wholesale business in its first year. Involved in the company for about a year herself, Pearson opened the first Royal American warehouse in southeast Michigan and has worked her way up to the level of qualified ambassador in the organization, with about 150 people below her in the organizational line.

"It's a fantastic company," said Pearson, adding that many people have checked out Royal American and found no complaints.

A call to the Detroit office of the Better Business Bureau confirmed this. The BBB representative, reading a report from the bureau's Kansas City office, said Royal American was established as a Missouri corporation in February 1982. It uses a multi-level selling plan and meets the BBB's consumer reporting guidelines, the representative said, adding that the office has received no complaints or derogatory information on Royal American to date.

According to company literature, Royal American was formed by a group of 25 insurance executives, food scientists, attorneys, financial consultants, analysts and marketing experts.

The company's compensation plan includes five types of income: retail profit; rebate, override, bonuses and upper level bonuses. These are based on a distributor's personal sales and, in some cases, the sales of those dealers directly sponsored by the distributor.

Pearson also added that Royal American is a member of the Direct Selling Association.

Furniture rental eased

A consumer information service has been established by the Furniture Rental Association of America to assist those in the mobile population that rent furniture for temporary use. Dial 1-800-FOR RENT to find out where rental furniture is available coast-to-coast and in Canada.

By calling the toll-free number, consumers can find sources for rental furniture in communities where they plan to relocate. Local furniture rental showrooms, in addition to supplying instant furnishings, can also direct newcomers to housing and community services.

Renting furniture is becoming a popular phenomenon with corporate employees or government and military personnel whose jobs carry them away from home for extended periods and who are increasingly shunning motel and hotel accommodations. It is also popular among retirees who maintain part-time residences in other climates, yet don't want to invest in permanent, duplicate furnishings and with students who furnish campus apartments during the school year.

By connecting with a local rental furniture showroom in advance, all details of the furniture choice, financing and delivery can be arranged before the transferee leaves home. Or the newcomer can contact the FRAA-member showrooms on arrival and be guaranteed delivery of furniture within 48 hours.

The phone call will deliver a listing of some 450 showrooms. Calls can be made from all the United States excepting Alaska, Hawaii and Ohio. Consumers in those states can call the FRAA office number collect (614) 895-1273 for the listing.

The FRAA listing of showrooms incorporating some answers to frequently asked questions is also available by writing FRAA, 444 N. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, 60611.

Chamber starts new effort

The Merchants Action Committee, a newly-formed arm of the Novi Chamber of Commerce, conducted its first monthly meeting January 27 at Silverman's Restaurant.

Purpose of the committee is to improve communication between business people and the community at large and to distribution information about the services and purpose of the chamber. Among the ideas put forward at the first session were participation in the annual Memorial Day parade, purchase of Christmas decorations for the city, and a city-wide special sale conducted by local merchants.

Members attending the first session were chairman Thomas Marcus, Nancy Bonfield, Charles Foote, Gary Kelber, Carol Mason and Andy Zangkas. Any merchant or business interested in becoming involved in the action committee may contact Lydia at the chamber offices, 349-3743.

Accountants to hear Edison officer

John Lobbia, vice president of financial services for Detroit Edison will offer "A Look at the Michigan Financial Crisis Task Force" at a joint meeting of the Detroit and Western Wayne County Chapters of the National Association of Accountants this week.

Stress topic of seminar for COSE

James Schmidt, Ph.D. will present "Stress Management for Health and Wellness" for the Oakland County Chamber of Commerce Council on Small Enterprise (COSE) seminar February 21.

The 8 a.m. seminar at Roma's of Bloomfield, including a continental breakfast, costs $5 for members of the Oakland chamber, $10 for non-members. For reservations, call 335-6148 or 644-3683 during regular business hours.

Schmidt is a licensed psychologist practicing at Oakwoods Psychological Center and counseling professor at Oakland University.

He will demonstrate relaxation techniques and encourages audience participation.

Getting involved

This being a presidential election year, citizens are soon to be regaled with exhortations to register to vote, complete with calls to do your "civic duty" and pleas from candidates for your money and "active support."

But forget, for the moment, all those boring lectures you sat through in American Government classes and those tedious pedants on the editorial pages of newspapers bewailing public apathy and low voter turnouts.

Consider this instead: "It's fun. It's very enjoyable work, and very rewarding to be involved in politics."

Those are the words of township clerk Susan Heintz, but they convey an almost universal attitude among local people involved in politics and government — they're having a good time.

"The people involved are really fascinating," Heintz continued. "I've worked for private industry and for government, and I think the people involved in politics are very interesting. They're creative, intelligent, dedicated and a lot of fun to be around."

"I get a lot of satisfaction out of my involvement," explained Liz McCarville, a township resident and one of few declared Democrats active here. "For me, public service means being comfortable within the community and meeting a lot of people doing very interesting things."

Despite the aura of electronic hype and the intensity with which we tend to "keep score" among candidates, democracy isn't really designed as a spectator sport — it's meant to involve virtually anyone with enough interest to make the effort.

And taking part in the electoral process really isn't difficult. Interested? There are hundreds of ways to get involved, which can bewilder a newcomer, but local political participants willingly offer advice to guide the neophyte through the thickets.

To no one's surprise, there's a consensus that the first step in getting involved is to register to vote. For many that, along with voting, is enough. For those who wish to put a bit more into it, though, it remains a crucial step. Being a registered voter is a requirement for many political activities — circulating or signing petitions, serving as a precinct delegate to regional political conventions, working the polls on election day and a host of others.

Which isn't to say there aren't activities for those who can't register for some reason (alien residents, for instance, or convicted felons). We'll get to those.

Registration in Michigan is easy. So easy that secretary of state Richard Austin recently reported that the state has one of the highest per capita proportions of registered voters to general population in the nation.

To join the ranks, visit the local clerk's office (in your city or township) and ask to register or do it at the secretary of state's office any time. If you've been registered but haven't voted in quite a while, your registration may have lapsed. If in doubt, check with the local clerk's office and

Non-partisan participation

Standing clear of the mudslingers

Perhaps the mire of the routine political process just isn't your cup of tea, but you'd like to participate in some aspect of democratic government. To capsize, you want to keep your hands clean.

There is a place for such gentility even in the rough-and-tumble of the political arena. We've elected to call these jobs non-partisan, though in actuality some require that you declare a party affiliation. Usually that's all you have to do as far as party activity goes, if you don't find the rest enticing.

Appointive positions can be considered as non-partisan jobs, though practically speaking it's good to keep in mind that appointments are done by political authorities. The method of gaining such appointments is described in the story (above right) regarding running for office yourself.

But many who serve on such boards and commissions would object to being categorized as politicians. They've simply taken an interest in some aspect of government or quasi-governmental activity and gotten involved in that way.

Whether it's as a planning commissioner, recreation commissioner, sitting on the city's historic district commission or stepping in for a brief period on one of the school district's ad hoc citizens committees, they've found a level of activity that satisfies the personal urge to contribute something to their community.

Rarely is such a person pressured to move into the elected positions, and rarer still are they directly involved in the glad-handing, I'll-scratch-your-back-if-you'll-scratch-mine aspects of politics that repulse some people.

If you take on such a position, however, be prepared to have the politicians dabble in what you consider your business. There's a practically-ingrained tradition of friction between planners and the elected officials who appoint them, for instance.

To retain more distance, consider organizations such as the League of Women Voters. The local chapter covers Novi, Northville, Plymouth and Canton. LWV has proven a starting point for many women involved in other political activities. City councilmember Carolann Ayers credits the League with creating an atmosphere locally that makes it easier for women to enter the ranks, and Ayers herself gained some credibility for her 1980 election through LWV involvement. Township planning commission secretary Pat Wright also began with the League.

Wright noted the local LWV is a busy one as it keeps track of six local governments in addition to its regular activities. These include voter education, taking positions on issues after study, promoting public involvement in government and sponsoring candidate's forums. "The things they do are very worthwhile," Wright said. "It's definitely a good way to get started."

State LWV president Bev McAninch of Plymouth noted that the League is intent on providing objective information to voters about candidates and issues. Voter service information is compiled by a separate group from the one that prepares the LWV's own positions, for instance, so that the issues outlined can objectively depict both pros and cons, as argued by those actively debating the matters under consideration.

"There's a very wide range of activities," McAninch said. "The candidate's forums run from

Taking on the field

So you think you could do better than some of those politicians who supposedly represent your interests, do you? Maybe you can. And maybe you could become one of those elected officials yourself, if you set your mind to it, devote the enormous amount of time it requires and are willing to start near the bottom of the political hierarchy.

Technically, all that's required to become a candidate is that you be a registered voter and meet residency and age (if any) requirements for the office. If you expect to get elected, however, there's a lot more to do.

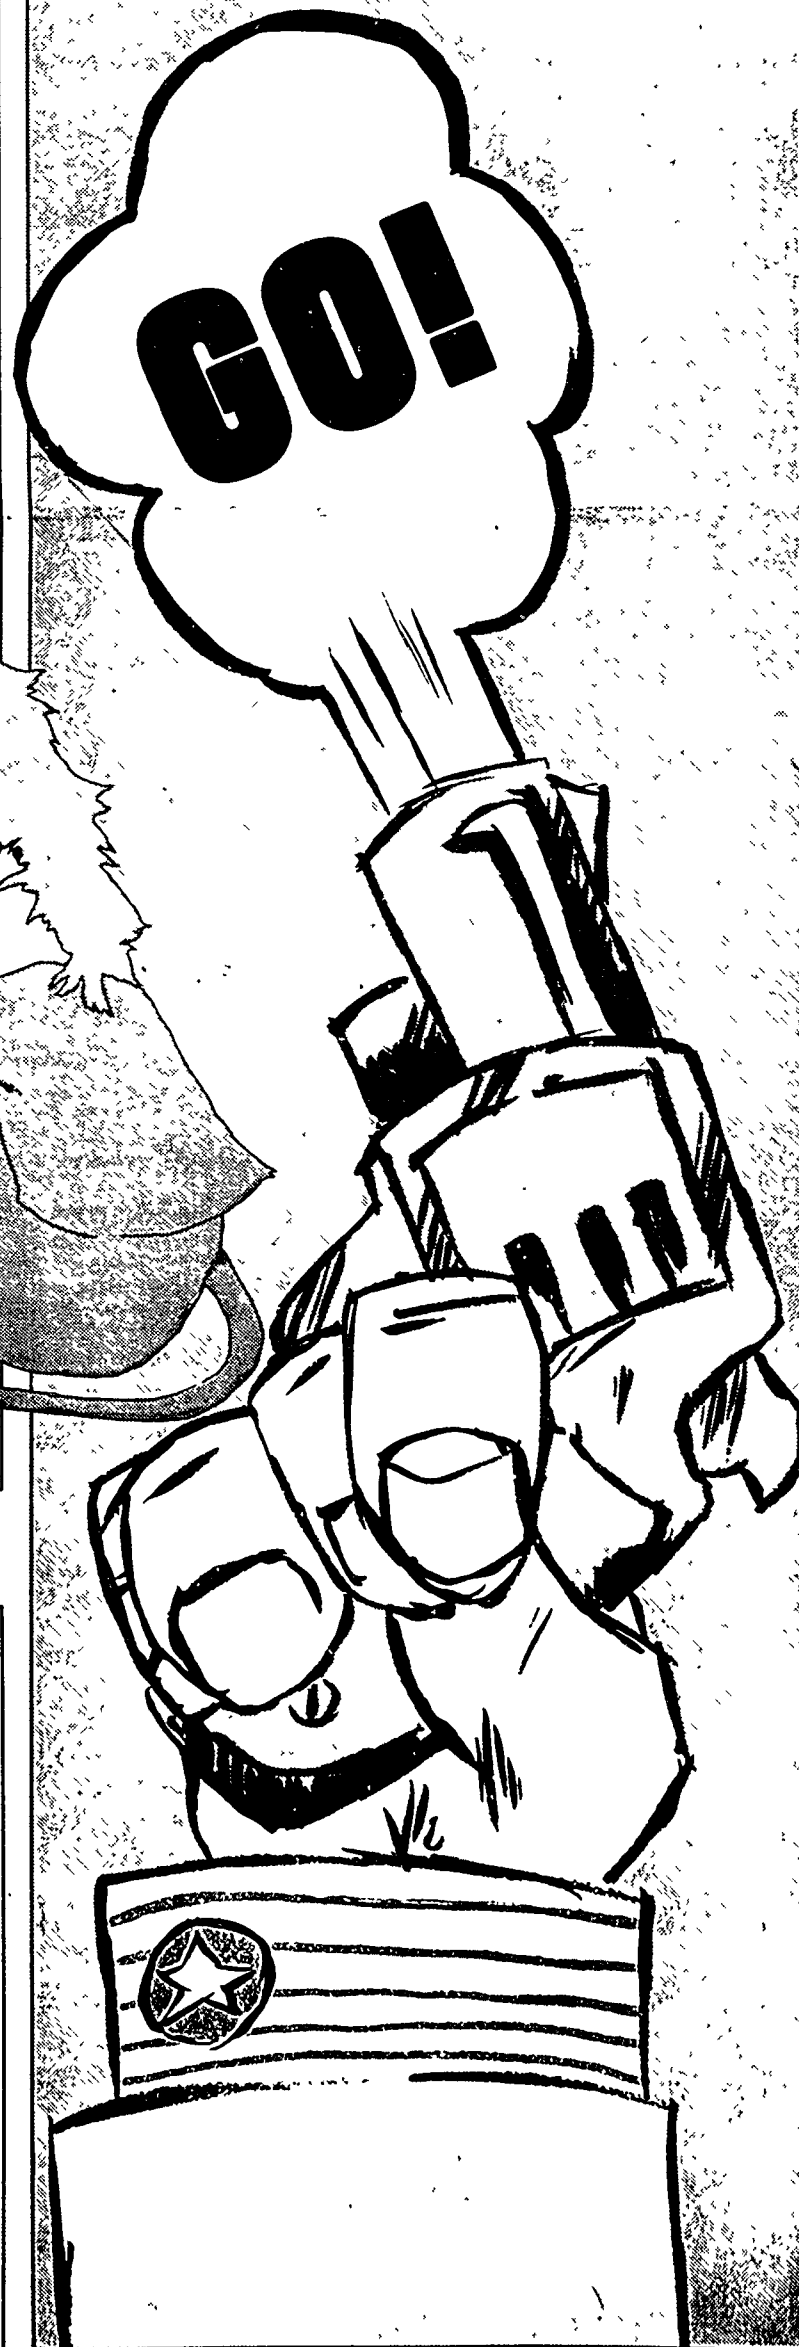

If you're contemplating a run for office, the state League of Women Voters advises that you need five basics — a program; a supportive family, inner security and stamina; an assessment of who might support your candidacy; a dedicated campaign committee and manager; and last but not least, potential financial backing.

Political activists and observers in this area agree that anyone seeking elective office should start small — attend meetings, maybe participate in party activities, and identify some entry point suited to your interests and temperament.

Few are the elected officials in the Northville area who have not served some time in an appointed position on one or more of the numerous commissions, boards and committees. Prior to that service, many started in homeowners associations, service clubs or as workers in political campaigns.

"One of the best ways to get started is just to attend meetings," said township clerk Susan Heintz, whose local activity began with the Highland Lakes Homeowners Association.

Getting elected to office takes time, study, planning

"If you're in an association and attending (governmental) meetings to report back to those people, and you express an interest, there's a good chance you'll be picked when there's an appointment to be made or asked to run for one of the lower offices," Heintz noted.

Illustrative of that procedure is the recent history of township resident Liz McCarville. She now serves as a recreation commissioner and on the township's housing rehabilitation committee. She first appeared on the political scene as an organizer of the Park Gardens homeowners association and is now rumored to be a likely candidate for township office this year (she says she hasn't made up her mind yet).

"There's really almost an organization for every interest," Heintz noted. "If you're interested in tax stuff, then there's the board of review, for instance. There's a library commission, arts, beautification, recreation, the planning commission draws a lot of people."

There are township and city economic development corporations intent on expanding local business, the city's downtown development organizations, and special committees appointed to examine particular issues (many formed by the school district). Once you've targeted an interest, attend the meetings, ask questions if you don't understand what's happening and make it clear you're interested. Those who make the appointments will take note.

"When the time came to appoint a recreation commissioner, let's be honest, I'd been around making my views known for a while," McCarville said. "They almost had to give me something. On the rehab board, basically, I asked for the position. Suzie (Heintz) contacted me to see if I knew anyone who might be appropriate, and I put myself forward."

Township planning commission secretary Pat Wright sat in on commission meetings for years as an observer for the League (of Women Voters) before I was appointed."

Elective posts are sometimes won by people who haven't followed this path, though the victors usually have some prominent background. The "easiest" seats to win are generally the seemingly non-descript ones of township trustee, city councilmember, school board member or college trustee. Mayors, supervisors and county or state elected officials generally have more experience in government.

From such beginnings it's possible to proceed a long way up the political ladder. State Senator Robert Geake, now second in seniority in that body and recently placed in some fairly powerful committee roles with the ascendancy of the Republican party to the senate majority, was once a trustee on the Schoolcraft College board, then a state representative.

Representative Gerald Law was a Plymouth Township trustee, and prior to that a planning commissioner.

Which is not to say that everyone who expresses an interest is appointed, or that all those appointed or elected really aspire to something bigger. Only that it's possible to learn the ropes this way. Sometimes people start with no higher ambition than to change something in their own neighborhood (speed limits or zoning, for instance) and find it interesting enough to maintain involvement.

"It's really a matter of how high you want to take it," explained Heintz. "Many people get an appointed position and that's as far as they want to go, but others are really intent on going farther."

A similar ladder exists in the city, and virtually everywhere. None of the present council members won election without first serving in some capacity that brought them to the attention of the people, the press, and the local political figures. "Expressing an interest at meetings is a good way to start," city clerk Joan McAllister explained.

Elective office in the city is, at least nominally, on a non-partisan basis, and it remains possible to win election without major party backing. The same has, for some time, pertained in the township despite its partisan division on the ballot — victory in the Republican primary has been a virtual guarantee of office. Democrats have run, and may soon be in position to win the odd election, though. How much direct party support would be needed, however, is still in question.

Still, activity within a party (see story on getting involved, page 1-C) has to be judged an asset for anyone with higher aspirations, and perhaps locally as well. Township trustee Richard Allen served on no local appointive bodies, but was active in GOP political organizing in this area for some time before winning election in 1980.

When you feel positioned to make your own run for office (if you're doing a really hot job, someone may actually ask that you run), the Michigan League of Women Voters has some recommendations about how to organize your campaign, delineated in a long-range planning calendar format in a publication entitled "Green Grass Roots" and subtitled "A political notebook for people who want to participate."

The advice, geared toward those who have never before been involved in politics, starts 12 weeks before the primary election date, when LWV suggests you start attending meetings to identify and learn about local issues.

At this point, you'll also need to select a campaign committee, define jobs and prepare strategy. This is when you begin seeking funds, compiling mailing lists, and circulating nomination petitions. LWV advises that you start early to gather information for media and prepare advertising.

Eight weeks before election, the outline continues, is time to have the campaign treasurer open a bank account in the name of the election committee, order printed materials, start sending news releases and begin making public appearances with your committee. The latter would include luncheons, speaking engagements, candidates nights and neighborhood coffees. Keep soliciting funds.

Four weeks before election is "the crucial time for obtaining votes" and time to begin full public exposure, LWV advises. Distribute all your promotional material except handout flyers, keep making appearances and keep the committee active.

Two weeks before election, the candidate should start door-to-door visits at shopping centers, in super-markets and at homes, kick off the newspaper advertising campaign and mail or hand out flyers. The week before, maintain all previous activities, make sure your ad campaign includes an endorsement advertisement and begin radio and television spot ads if planned.

A candidate's speech, the LWV adds, should tell who you are, why you're running and what sets you apart from other candidates. Keep your speeches and sentences short and to the point, avoid long philosophical statements, strike a positive tone, be willing to admit you don't have all the answers while speaking with conviction.

Finally, if you lose, LWV advises that you try again. The second time around you have experience and voters will recognize your name.

Recognize, too, that even losing candidates have more influence in the workings of government afterward, if they choose to keep attending meetings and making their views known. Assuming you've gained some knowledge about the system and knowing you're a potential challenger, those who won the election are more likely to give your input more consideration.

And in the end, that's the original goal of virtually everyone who pursues a political ambition — the opportunity to have a say in how your government runs.

Political involvement can be rewarding

renew if necessary.

Now what? Let's say you want to work for a candidate for office — Democrat or Republican, the answer's the same: contact the party headquarters. Both major parties are listed in the phone book (it may say something about the difference between them that you'll generally find the Democrats listed in the white pages, the Republicans under "Political Organizations" in the yellow pages).

The parties are organized by congressional district and by county. Since Northville lies primarily in Wayne County and in the 2nd Congressional District, those are the groups you want to contact first. For Oakland County residents, it's the 18th Congressional District organizations.

"They'll refer you to the campaign committees, if that's what you want, or there's plenty of work to be done for the party in general," advises Heintz, whose party involvement will take her to the Republican national convention in Dallas this year as an alternate delegate.

This August's primary provides a great, often overlooked, opportunity to take an active role in party politics — running for precinct delegate. Both major parties will elect delegates to county conventions from each voting precinct (check your voter registration card for the number; you have to live in the precinct to run there). These positions, and the opportunity to vote in party conventions, often go begging.

"We seldom have candidates for Democratic precinct delegates," Heintz said. Even in this GOP-dominated area, a precinct delegate slot or two for that party is often wide open to newcomers. A portion of Northville Commons, for instance, had no precinct delegate elected in 1982. And beating delegates elected two years ago, if they run again, isn't out of the question.

To become a candidate for precinct delegate requires that you file a nominating petition with the county clerk. The local clerks can advise how many signatures are required and provide petition forms.

The parties also need workers to perform all kinds of tasks involved in an election. The GOP, for instance, runs a bank of telephones from a base in Plymouth, and people are always needed to give a few hours to call voters.

Literature drops also involve large numbers of people, who circulate campaign literature either by hand or by stuffing envelopes and preparing mailing lists. These are jobs that can be done by those who haven't registered to vote.

So is one big item — donating money. "Money's always welcome," Heintz said, laughing. "For some people, that's all the involvement they want is to make a donation. And believe me, it's appreciated."

And that's one item about which the parties rarely disagree. "There's really two kinds of support you can give a candidate," said McCarville. "There's financial support and legwork support. Both are crucial."

When you approach the party with an offer to work, try to define your own skills and where you might do the most good. As a beginner, you're obviously not going to be campaign manager. But perhaps you write well or have good people skills. Public and press relations workers are always in demand because even the most qualified candidate stands not a chance without sharp people in these critical roles."

Even if you aren't interested in partisan activities (most Michigan voters don't even declare a political affiliation — an independent bunch) you may want to get involved with a particular issue.

Single issue campaign committees seemingly form every day in Michigan and usually make themselves very accessible to potential supporters. The anti-tax crowd is particularly active this year, and no one asks your party affiliation if you agree with their views. A similar situation exists with most ballot questions.

The work to be done here is similar to that for candidates — phone banks, mailings, circulating leaflets, talking to people, preparing press releases, scheduling speaking engagements and encouraging voter turnout.

"Even if you don't intend to join a party, they can be good sources of information," Heintz noted. "They can usually refer you to the committees working on single issues."

Even if all you want to do is make an informed vote on the candidates and issues defined by the people taking more active roles, there's more to do than just visiting the polls on election day.

The local League of Women Voters sponsors candidate nights to give the public the opportunity to question candidates directly. These are not always well attended, but serve better than any newspaper report or television broadcast to give voters a basis for a personal opinion of the candidates. They also provide a splendid opportunity to meet some of those people Heintz finds so "fascinating."

Room for clean hands in the election process

local school board candidates all the way up to the Reagan-Carter debate, for instance."

The League has been taking positions on issues since 1921, she noted, when it was one of the first to advocate child labor laws. Members vote to select issues for study, she said, and then meet and discuss the issues until they can reach consensus opinion that becomes the LWV stand.

Other members prepare the regular voters guides which present candidates in their own words, and still others act as observers at local government meetings. Wright, who served one year as observer committee chairperson, noted that the local chapter needs a great many people simply to keep track of the city and township government activities.

"I thought it was a difficult job, because we're a rather unique chapter in having so many governments to keep track of," Wright said. That means as well, though, that there's plenty of room for new members and a lot of work to involve them.

The local LWV chapter meets the second Thursday of each month at 7:30 p.m., usually at Plymouth City Hall. Meetings may be at alternate locations. The Record's community calendar usually lists meetings, or there is an occasional short item previewing upcoming sessions.

Also high on the list of people who grease the wheels of the annual election process are the precinct poll workers. At least nominally affiliated with one party or the other (with the goal being to provide a balance of biases among those entrusted to count the votes) the precinct workers are the ones who check the registration book for your name when you arrive at the polling place, instruct you on the use of the machines, and are generally charged with seeing that no shenanigans occur on election day.

Under the direction of the local clerk (an appointive post in the city, elected in the township), there is also an election board which actually counts the votes. In addition, the township maintains its own board of canvassers for local elections (two Republicans and two Democrats), who double-check the work done by the counters (the city recently dropped its canvassing board, as Oakland County will perform that function). County boards of canvassers review results, which are again reviewed ed by state canvassers.

This entire string of watchers watching the watchers requires an army of personnel. Where do they come from? At the local level, election workers are hired by the clerks.

"We're always looking for people," city clerk Joan McAllister explained. "It's probably easier to get in if you're a Democrat, because there are fewer people wanting those slots, but we'll take applications from anyone interested."

Township clerk Susan Heintz similarly reports a dearth of volunteers to staff the polling places but adds that, with ten precincts to be overseen, there are generally openings for a Republican or two every election as well.

"When you find good people, you try to keep them," McAllister said. "Once in a while though, someone doesn't work out, or somebody you've relied on moves out of town so we need new people."

Election workers are trained by the clerks in provisions of election law and generally must pass an exam every year or two thereafter to maintain eligibility. Pay is minimal, the day long and an obstinate challenger who insists on violating the strict rules involving their activity can be a real pain, but generally election workers return year after year.

"The toughest positions to fill are for the board counting absentee ballots," McAllister noted. "They don't get much contact with people and the job is pretty tedious, opening envelopes and filling out forms."

But those absentee ballots have been known, on more than one occasion, to prove the difference in an election. Pains-taking attention to detail is a valued trait.

The law requires balanced boards at each polling place "if possible." In practice, this has meant lopsided Republican representation among precinct workers when too few Democrats apply or qualify.

Whatever route you choose to becoming involved in government and politics, these "non-partisan" activities serve as good ways to learn the system. They also make handy references to your devotion to public service if you ever choose to take off the white gloves and take the dive into the political arena as a candidate.

In January 10 rites

Myers-Wegener vows recited

Darlene Wegener of Farmington Hills became the bride of David C. Myers of Northville in a double ring service at First Presbyterian Church of Northville January 10.

Dr. Lawrence Chamberlain, senior pastor of the church, officiated at the 10:30 a.m. private ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Woznick of Livonia.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cloyce A. Myers of 18143 Jamestown Circle.

Kathy Buoncompagno of Southfield and Gregg

Wood of Canton were the couple's attendants.

After dining at the French Colony Restaurant in the Holiday Inn of Livonia, the couple left on a wedding trip to Orlando and Daytona Beach, Florida. While there, they visited Epcot.

The bride, a 1977 graduate of Clarenceville High School, is employed with the League Services Corporation in Southfield. Her husband, a 1978 graduate of Northville High School, is employed with Delta Airlines at Metropolitan Airport. They are making their home in Farmington Hills.

'Kissing' baby can help detect Cystic Fibrosis

"Kiss your baby — it could be the most important kiss of your life," Northville Jaycee Women are urging during Valentine's week.

The suggestion is made as part of the chapter's community service project in cooperation with the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation Metropolitan Detroit Chapter.

The Jaycee Women and the foundation are publicizing the fact that one of the signs of Cystic Fibrosis is a salty taste to the skin. "When you kiss your baby, if you taste salt, contact your physician," they advise.

Prompt diagnosis and early treatment are necessary to the well-being of small children.

The Jaycee Women have distributed pamphlets throughout the downtown explaining the importance of such a kiss. They feature a heart-shaped picture of the honorary chairperson of the Cystic Fibrosis campaign Jennifer Moore and her son Michael Jr.

A toll-free number, 1-800-292-7169, is given for anyone needing more information.

Other signs of Cystic Fibrosis listed in the pamphlet include recurrent wheezing, persistent coughing with excessive mucus, pneumonia more than once, excessive appetite with poor weight gain, enlargement of fingertips, perspiration which leaves salty residue on the skin, persistent, bulky and foul-smelling stools and nasal polyps.

Area pediatric clinics that treat the disease include Mott Hospital at the University of Michigan and Children's Hospital of Michigan in Detroit.

Couple plans June wedding

The engagement of Carolyn R. Schrot to Jeffrey Jensen of Lansing is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Schrot of 47900 West Seven Mile.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Jensen of 15718 Portis.

Both the bride-elect and her fiancé are graduates of Northville High School. He also is a graduate of Western Michigan University where the bride-elect presently is a student.

They have set a June 15 wedding date.

Communication is course topic

Area residents interested in learning effective techniques for job hunting may want to look into the Schoolcraft College Job Club.

Upcoming parties can banish those winter doldrums

By JEAN DAY

Local organizations are continuing to brighten "the second half" of winter with activities for those who can't get away from cold weather.

Two special social events are on the Schoolcraft College schedule. The Schoolcraft College Foundation says it is planning to bring "a bit of Hawaiian warmth" to the Waterman Center with a Hawaiian dinner dance beginning at 6:30 p.m. this Saturday.

Torches and island music will help those attending brave the cold walk from the parking lot to the center. The gourmet Hawaiian dinner, prepared by the widely known culinary arts department, will be followed by music for dancing and a floor show by the Tugabs Polynesian Revue. Some lucky person will be awarded a trip for two to Hawaii (including air fare and hotel) during the evening. Many other prizes are planned as part of the fundraiser. Each woman guest will receive a genuine lei flown in from Hawaii. To top off the decorations there will be a "little grass hut" adorned with living flowers.

Proceeds from the annual foundation dinner are to be used to provide student scholarships. By last weekend a few reservations still were available at $30 (a tax-deductible donation.)

The Schoolcraft Board of Trustees is sponsoring a St. Patrick's Day party March 16 at the Waterman Center. Tickets for this event are $12.50. Reservations for either gala may be made with the President's office, 591-6400, extension 213.

Mothers' Club sets spring dance date

Northville Mothers' Club has reserved the first Saturday in April for its annual spring dinner dance to be held at Meadowbrook Country Club. President Sue Anger reports that "The People's Choice" has been signed to play for dancing, as it has for the past several years. She adds that the April 7 event no longer is a money-raiser but is being continued as a fun evening. Tickets, she explains, have been kept as reasonable as possible and will be $37.50 a couple.

Governor Bagley's picture among needed items

While donations for the Wash Oak Schoolhouse in Mill Race Historical Village have been coming in, there still are items of the 1873-era needed. Harriet Welland, co-curator with her husband Bob and Doug and Kay Otton, reports that response has been good on reading and spelling books but that math and geographies still are needed.

Pictures of Lincoln and Washington have been donated, but does anybody have a picture of Governor John J. Bagley, who served from 1873-76? "That's going to be difficult," admits Mrs. Welland. She lists the following still-needed items to make the schoolroom authentic: wood box, water bucket and dipper, bench for bucket, dunce stool, shoe scraper and early lunch pails. All gifts, she notes, are tax deductible if the donor has an appraisal.

Home protection is workshop topic

The Women's Resource Center at Schoolcraft College is presenting a workshop entitled "Protecting Your Home and Family" at 9 a.m. February 25 in Room B100 of the Liberal Arts Building.

Designed to provide practical information on simple methods of safeguarding your home and family in a variety of situations, this workshop is offered as part of the Single Parent Instructional Network (SPIN).

Speakers are John Tatar of the Livonia Career Center who will discuss "Home Maintenance Skills," Trooper Robert Garcia of the Northville State Police discussing "Home Security Methods" and Colleen Carrizales, R.N., of Garden City Hospital discussing "Dealing With Home Health Emergencies."

Advance registration is required. Fee is $20, and participants should bring a bag lunch.

Tuition assistance and child care are available to Wayne County residents who qualify.

For further information, call 591-6400, extension 430.

SPIN is funded by the Michigan Department of Education and Vocational Technical Education Services.

Genealogists host upcoming session

The Huron Valley Genealogical Society is hosting a seminar from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. February 25 at Highland House, 2630 East Highland in Highland.

The Reverend Carl A. Gunderson, director of the Family Counseling and Mediation Division of the Friend of the Court, will present a workshop on "How do I Get Them to Talk?"

Jack Gillow, Milford Postmaster, will discuss "Everybody Has to be Somewhere." After years of service as postmaster, Gillow will share his experience in working his way around the lists and rolls.

Speaker John Eckersley, a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints, has done research in England, Portugal and Germany and will talk about English research.

Eckersley, who speaks English, French, Portuguese and Spanish, will translate should the need arise.

A workshop on "How Do I Organize This Mess in My Notebook?" will be conducted by Darlene Kern, a genealogical teacher and organizer.

Marjorie Burns, a lifelong resident of Milford and a genealogist in all facets of research will close the seminar with "Persevere to the Beginning."

The fee is $5 for individuals or $8 per couple which includes coffee all day. Luncheon is available off the menu.

Persons interested in the workshop should make their reservations today by calling 685-9380 or 887-9408.

Women's caucus meets

The Southeast Michigan Women's Political Caucus will hold its annual dinner meeting February 21 at Bossio's Restaurant, 30325 West Six Mile in Livonia.

Cocktails will precede dinner at 6 p.m. with dinner being served at 6:30 p.m. The program will get under way at 7 p.m.

Candidates for political office or a representative are invited to attend to briefly discuss positions on key issues and to provide members and other interested persons an opportunity to sign up to work for the candidates of their choice in the 1984 elections.

A brief business meeting will follow for members. For more information, call 421-3149 or 477-6174.

CPR class slated

The signs and signals of heart attack, heart disease risk factors, healthy heart living and one-person rescue will be taught in a three-hour "Heartsaver CPR" class at Providence Hospital's South Lyon Family Health Center from 7-10 p.m. February 20 at 210 N. Lafayette in South Lyon.

Successful completion results in certification by the American Heart Association. A $3 fee is charged.

The Northville Record

NHS to get new coaches this spring

Coaches for Northville High School's varsity and junior varsity softball teams, plus an assistant coach for the girls' track team were filled last week following interviews with Athletic Director Ralph Redmond.

Susan Heinzman, who coached the junior varsity softball team for the last two years, will inherit the varsity post from Mary Minor, who resigned last year.

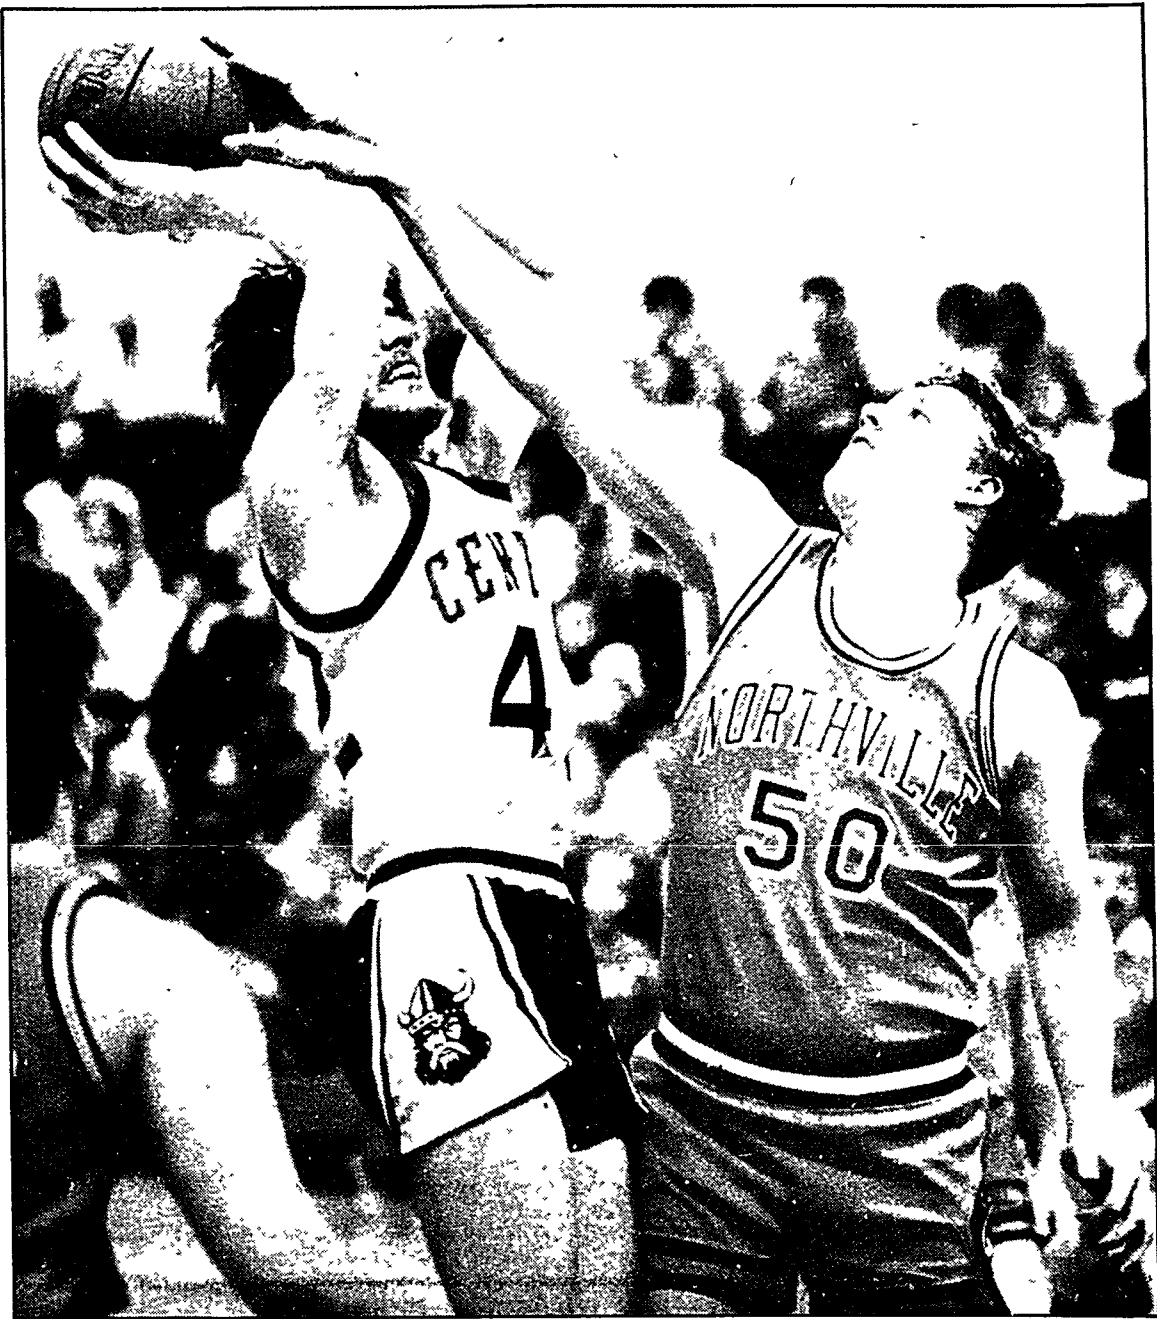

Heinzman is a senior physical education major at Eastern Michigan University, where she has played on the varsity softball team. Formerly an athletic trainer at Eastern, she has also worked for the Northville Community Recreation Department. "Susan knows our program well, and I'm sure she'll do a good job for us," Redmond said Friday.

Jenny Townsley, a friend of Heinzman who also attends Eastern, will take over as JV coach. Townsley was a standout catcher for Ann Arbor Pioneer, and belongs to the National Athletic Trainers Association.

Hired to assist girls' track head coach Ann Dayton, Mary Anne Wzinsky will also join the NHS athletic staff. Wzinsky is a graduate of Novi High School and has a physical education degree from Sam Houston State University. She is a substitute teacher for Northville, Novi and Plymouth schools.

Redmond conducted interviews last week with applicants for the boys' varsity track head coaching spot, and said he would likely announce who would be hired for the position by the end of next week. "Then we'll shop for a varsity basketball coach," he added, referring to the remaining vacancy on the staff, created by the resignation of girls' coach Rick Hurst.

By B.J. MARTIN

Ice and snow aren't the only things thawing out this month.

With three straight victories and five wins in its last six games, the 10-5 Mustang basketball team is also starting to heat up. An 88-51 non-conference breeze over Livonia Franklin and a 63-58 win over tough WLA nemesis Walled Lake Central last Friday kept Northville's February record perfect.

"We're just getting a real good balanced effort from everybody on the team," said Coach Tim Lutes. "It's just a matter of patience and confidence. Our goal has been to hold teams to around 50 points on defense, and we're doing that consistently. And now we're starting to get the scoring."

Against Franklin Tuesday of last week, that was something of an understatement. "We couldn't seem to do anything wrong," said Lutes. Indeed, even after all his regulars were confined to the bench in the fourth quarter, the Mustangs still sunk 10 of 11 shots from the floor to score 27 points — their biggest quarter of the season.

Leading the way Tuesday were Steve Frellick with 19 points and Schrader with 16. Frellick connected on seven of eight free throws, nabbed six rebounds and had two steals.

Right behind in the scoring column were Bob Pegrum, who stuck in 14 points, and had three rebounds, four steals and five assists besides — and Scott Gala with 12 points, seven rebounds and three assists.

And Gala didn't even start.

"Scott's been much better coming off the bench than he's been as a starter," Lutes noted. That may be true of Dave Longridge too. The 5'10" senior had three steals and five assists against the Patriots. John Storm, Northville's backup center, nabbed nine rebounds and sunk two of two from the floor.

But it was the whole team that was hot — the Mustangs hit 49 percent from the floor and canned 60 percent of their free throws. Everybody played, and everybody scored.

But it was generally agreed, Central was the big one. By flukes of scheduling, Northville had not faced the Vikings on Central's home court in five years.

"It felt good to come in and beat Central, especially there," Lutes noted. "They'd beaten Livonia Stevenson and were 11-3 when we played them."

Mostly, it was Northville's ability to crack Central's notoriously tough defense with good inside and outside shooting — plus some clutch baskets and free throws late in the game — that made the difference.

The Mustangs jumped ahead fast, snagging a 14-8 first-quarter advantage. A snappy tip-in by senior forward Mike Weber just before the first-half buzzer gave Northville a 12-point halftime lead.

"That was a real psychological boost, and it helped when Central made a little run on us in the last quarter," said Lutes.

Central made another run late in the contest, cutting the lead to three points with four straight free throws by Tom Cummings, who was 11 of 11 from the line for the night. Then Pegrum connected with a jumper and a free throw of his own to boost the lead to six.

"It was just a matter of maintaining that eight-to-ten point lead," Lutes declared. "I think we handled their pressure well, kept our poise when they started fouling."

Schrader had his way in the lane on offense and defense, canning nine of ten shots from the floor for 18 points and hauling in eight rebounds. Storm came in when Schrader got into foul trouble and continued the Mustang domination inside with three key rebounds and a basket.

"Steve's been moving real well without the ball, getting open a lot better than he was earlier," Lutes pointed out. "He's shooting those baby jumpers off the glass real well. It's just a matter of getting the ball into him, because he's taking it up a little stronger. He's an experienced player, and I expect him to keep it up."

Indeed, in his last three ballgames the big senior has averaged 19.3 points per game.

Scoring balance again boosted the Mustangs Friday — nine Northville players scored compared to only

Heitert, Hale spark Northville gymnasts

By B.J. MARTIN

A rejuvenated Mustang gymnastics squad notched its first league win Monday of last week by turning back Walled Lake Central 124.85 to 112.5 — the Mustangs' score a dramatic improvement over the previous week's 100.

Much of that can be attributed to the return from club competition of Cathy Heitert, who took firsts in vault, balance beam and floor exercise with superior scores — but there's no question the team as a whole has improved tremendously also.

The Central meet was Northville's first team qualifying score that renders the Mustangs eligible for regional competition. The squad needs two more scores in that vicinity to send the whole team to regionals.

"Our routines have changed a bit," said Northville Coach Debbie Heck. "Now we're adding more difficult, and we'll be adding even more this week."

It was as if Heitert was never gone — the senior scored an 8.65 in vault, an 8.4 in floor exercise and an 8.5 in balance beam.

Diane Hale completed the Mustangs' slam of firsts in all four events by edging Heitert in uneven bars 8.35 to 8.25. Wendy Wobermin made the event a 1-2-3 Mustang sweep by scoring 7.8.

Hale added seconds in vault with a 7.7, beam with an 8.1, and floor with an 8.3. Also placing for Northville were Wendy Wobermin in floor exercise (7.45, fourth) and vault (7.35, fourth), and Tonia Hickman in beam (7.4, also fourth).

Rounding out Northville's scores in vault were: Alicia Hickman, 7.15; Kim Wobermin, 7.05 and Julie Cass, 6.6. In uneven bars were: Kim Wobermin, 6.85, Alicia Hickman, 6.35 and Dena Shackelford, 5.8. In beam were: Kim Wobermin, 7.3; Wendy Wobermin, 6.9; and Alicia Hickman, 6.75. And in floor exercise were: Hickman, 7.3; Tonia Hickman, 6.7 and Terri Forte, 6.1.

At Hartland the following Wednesday, the Mustangs mustered their second team qualifying score with a 120.25, but trailed Hartland with 128.25. Also competing was Perry High School, which scored 108.4.

Heitert again was the talk of the meet, registering firsts in vault (9.35), beam (8.7), floor (8.25) and second in uneven bars (8.2).

But it was new routines that threw Northville into the fast lane. Hale has added a full-difficulty vault to her repertoire — a half-twist to the block and a full-twist off the block. And her score of 8.35 Wednesday established the junior as a potent scoring force in all four events for Northville.

Hale scored 8.1 in floor (third), 8.0 in beam (fourth) and an out-of-the-money 6.55 in bars ("our soft spot," explained Heck).

Wendy Wobermin took a 7.7 in vault and sister Kim added a 6.85. Jenny Steiner in her final appearance as a Mustang registered her best vault score ever, 6.05. Alicia Hickman added a 6.6 in the event.

In uneven bars, Wendy Wobermin turned in a 6.35, Kim Wobermin a 5.1, Tonia Hickman a 4.9 and Shackelford a 4.0. In beam, first-year soph Stacey Lauer earned a respectable 4.45, while Wendy Wobermin scored 7.05 and Kim 7.0. Tonia Hickman came next with 6.75.

In floor exercise, Terri Forte registered a personal best of 7.1 by adding a back tuck to her routine. The trick aided Alicia Hickman as well, giving Alicia a 7.55. Tonia Hickman scored 6.6 and Wendy Wobermin 7.2.

Tonight, the Mustangs (now 2-4 in dual meets) will host Belleville, whom Heck called "an unknown," in a non-conference matchup. Monday, the Mustangs will host their last home meet, against North Farmington. Wednesday, February 22, the team will take on Ypsilanti away.

five for Central. And again the report card on the Mustangs' two newest starters continues to be favorable. Friday night, Nielsen had eight points, four rebounds and five assists, while Wendell added seven rebounds and four assists.

"I'm real satisfied with the job they're doing," Lutes said. Gala continued to come off the bench strong, canning four of six shots and picking up five rebounds and two assists against the Vikings. Longridge added six points, along with Freilick's six and Pegrum's eight.

Northville will take on Farmington Harrison at home Friday night, and a week later start Western Lakes Activities Association playoffs, with assignments to be determined following Friday night's results.

Mustang matmen sixth at league tourney

Well, it didn't go perfectly. Last week, Northville wrestling coach Gary Emerson predicted that if his squad did everything right Saturday, it stood at least a chance of snagging a league title.

A few fewer mistakes and a few more breaks and he would have been right. Northville wound up sixth.

Plymouth Salem, last year's league winner, again took top honors with 174 points. Plymouth Canton was second with 168, while tourney hosts Western tallied 149 points. Following were Livonia Bentley (133), Walled Lake Central (130½) and then Northville with 123.

Farmington, Livonia's Churchill and Stevenson and Farmington Harrison rounded out the final meet standings. But going into the finals, it appeared Northville would be in the driver's seat for at least third place.

After all, Brian Burgett, unbeaten in the WLAA, Norm Estigoy, Ernie Bock and Joel Vogt all made it to the finals. There had to be some points lurking there.

There weren't. Bock put on the tournament's classiest show. The 155-pounder was in obvious pain from the opening moments of his first-round match against Harrison's Patrick McFadden, who had been an easy victim only two days before. You could say Bock had guts, but it was his gut that let him down — his torn stomach muscles made each movement an ordeal.

Bock made it to the finals, dropping Salem's Bruce Zack 4-3 on what Emerson called "one arm and a prayer." But Western's Matt Turner was too much — a good even-up match for Bock at 100 percent, but not Saturday. He pinned Bock at 3:28. That match will be Bock's last, as the senior will not compete in this Saturday's districts due to his re-aggravating his injury.

"It just hurt to watch him," Emerson said, and indeed, Bock's face, scrunched up in pain, clearly reflected his agony.

Heavyweight Burgett, up until being pinned in the final by Western's Chris Thompson, looked to be the easiest winner in the finals. He pinned Stevenson's Tom Recinella and Salem's Marc Cygan in 15 seconds each, and looked as if he could have done both in one match. But he made two critical mistakes from being overly aggressive against Thompson, and Thompson made the most of them to revenge a defeat earlier in the year, putting Burgett on his back in 2:38.

Bentley's Mark Zenas topped Vogt in the 185-pound final 8-1 after Vogt won a 9-5 decision over Western's Brian Hannan in semifinal action. Again a five-point mistake may have made the difference in the match.

Estigoy turned in a fine performance, making it to the final before his tough friend from Bentley, Abe Yaffai, ground out a 6-2 decision to beat him for the 126-pound title. En route, Estigoy topped Canton's John Allmand on overtime criteria (he took Allmand down first) and then beat Farmington's Darrel Tharnish 9-7 in the semifinal. All four wrestlers earned credit for a division championship in their weight class.

Northville lost two heartbreakers in consolation finals, as Steve Smith (167) and Dino Candella (198) each were dropped by 4-2 scores. And in neither match was Emerson convinced the officiating was correct.

Mike Davis wrestled well after Plymouth Salem's Bill Morley landed him on a pin at 5:29 of their first-round match. Davis then beat Churchill's Jim Brown on a 35-second pin and Brian Dwyer of Livonia Bentley on a pin at 4:30 for fifth place at 133 pounds.

Mike Leavitt topped Dave Jennings of Bentley 12-9 to reach the semifinals at 145, but then was bounced by defending league champ Larry Janiga in a good 5-0 match, and by Western's Ty Trudeau 18-0 in the fifth-place bracket.

Adding a first-round pin was Toby Balai at 98 pounds (his first varsity win), who stuck Bentley's Harold Barusso at 1:55.

Jim Assemany (105) managed a good showing in one of the toughest weight classes. Central's Lynn Tison decisioned him 4-2 in the first round, but Assemany came back to pin division rival Todd Smith of Harrison in 1:55. But Churchill's Mike Krause topped Assemany 16-2 for fifth.

The same fate met 132-pound John Letarte, who lost his first-round match in overtime, then beat Canton's Jim Parks with a solid 5-0 decision. This time it was Churchill's Mark Crotty who toppled Letarte 15-1 to take fifth. Only first-year grapplers Don Graham (112) and Pat Storm (145) could not manage a win.

Two nights before, Northville concluded its WLAA dual meet season by whipping Harrison 60-12.

July 4 set for Field Day
Wednesday, July 4, has been set as the date of this year's Field Day, which for the second time is being sponsored by the Northville Recreation Department.
At last Wednesday's Northville Recreation Commission meeting, two changes from last year's Field Day plans were discussed:
One was moving the site of the races and events from Northville High School to Ford Field, which is located closer to other Fourth of July activities. "There was a problem trying to be six places at once, and if we can do it, that'll consolidate (July 4 activities)," said Recreation Director Jeff Farland.
The other change was de-emphasizing the fund-raising aspect of Field Day events in favor of a "community get-together" approach. Last year, the events were at least in part conceived as a fund-raiser to retire the Recreation Department debt.

Spikers snap losing streak

By B.J. MARTIN

"Well, the monkey's off our back," said Northville volleyball coach Steve McDonald. "Hopefully now we can start turning things around."

McDonald was talking about the Mustangs' first league victory since January 9. Northville's 15-9, 15-11 win over Plymouth Canton last Wednesday snapped a long losing streak that looked its bleakest just two nights before at Livonia Churchill.

The Chargers, undefeated — in fact, hardly challenged — in league play, walloped Northville in two, 15-1, 15-3. "That was really the first time all season we really got our butts kicked, where we weren't really in a game," McDonald said.

Although nobody really played at her best, Bev Henderson, Cheryl Spaman and Cheryl Berryman each had four good serves for the night. But setters Chris McGowan and Berryman weren't very busy. McGowan had only eight sets for the whole night and Berryman just nine.

Henderson connected on six hits, all good and Frellick had four of six good hits.

"They're a pretty good team," McDonald admitted. "They don't have any real superstars, they just play good volleyball. They're definitely the class of our division."

But the match against Canton got the Mustangs back on track.

"We had a real tough practice on Tuesday, and the girls seemed to be more prepared mentally," McDonald noted. "I don't think we played any better than we had been doing the last few weeks."

"But we were hustling, we were doing some good things as a team like talking and moving our feet. We have to continue to improve, though."

Nicki LaRoque and Erin Ryan turned in strong games at the net. LaRoque socked six good hits and four good dinks and added nine good serves. Ryan showed an ability to dominate net play that could help the team a good deal next year — Ryan slammed home 17 hits, 15 good and added one good dink at a critical moment in the first game.

Another junior, Cheryl Spaman, played strong up front also, collecting nine good hits and eight good serves. Henderson added nine hits — none bad — and nine good serves.

Berryman accumulated her best night of setting for the season with 38, only two bad. She had 11 good serves for the night, also. "She just looked very solid out there," McDonald said. Tracy Martin also looked sharp with 19 good sets.

"I liked the way we moved the ball — we looked like a different team than the ones who were out there Monday," McDonald added. "We can do a lot with our offense when we get the ball and set up."

Northville, now 3-9 (2-8 in the WLAA), will participate in the 30-team Schoolcraft Invitational Saturday, then travel to Walled Lake Central Monday night. On Wednesday, February 22, the Mustangs will host Novi in a non-league contest.

Tankers' WLAA standings take a dip

Two tank teams waterlogged with talent rolled over Northville like a pair of tidal waves last week.

First it was Redford Catholic Central, who clipped the Mustangs 57-26 at Northville, Tuesday, February 7. The Mustangs could manage only two first places throughout the entire meet — those were Jeff Metz in diving and Jeff Bainbridge in the 100 yard backstroke.

But by the time of Bainbridge's victory, the water was all under the bridge. With three events to go, Catholic Central held an insurmountable 41-18 lead.

Times were held back somewhat by tougher practices in preparation for the Western Lakes Activities Association swim meet in early March. Northville's 200 medley relay team of Jeff Bainbridge, Doug Buell, John Gass and Chris Johnston clocked merely a 1:52.1 to take second — nearly three seconds slower than the same four had swum against Churchill the previous Thursday, and less than two seconds slower than Catholic Central.

Taking seconds for Northville were Buell, who swam a 2:16.0 in individual medley and a 58.13 in the 100 butterfly. Vince Shimp picked up a second in the 50 free with a 24.24 clocking. Also placing were Tom Valade, Darius Mikalonis, Dave Wayne, Chris Sellen and Randy Holloway.

The following Thursday's 97-75 loss to WLAA conference rival Salem wasn't much closer. The Mustangs stayed within four points up until the 100 free, but then the Rocks exploded with a first, second and fifth, and it was never closer than a 10 points thereafter.

Taking firsts for Northville were Metz in diving (190.70), Buell in the 200 I.M. (2:12.58), and Bainbridge in the 100 back (59.97). Taking seconds were Adam Swallow in the 500 free, Gass in the 100 breast stroke, Mikalonis in the 100 back, Johnston in the 50 free and Greg Grasley in diving.
