Fire millage, buying land put on ballot

At least three and possibly four township questions will appear on the August 7 primary election ballot this

The township board last week approved three questions for the ballot: renewal of the 0.5 mill property tax which funds the fire department; ac-quisition of Beck Road property for park land; and acquistion of a parcel of property on Seven Mile Road west of Beck for eventual construction of an additional fire hall.

The five-year millage renewal may be accompanied by a second question seeking a smaller additional millage to expand the fire department's ability to finance capital improvements without support from the general fund. Fire chief Robert Toms and treasurer Richard Henningsen were assigned to examine possible millage increase requests for this purpose.

The millage was originally voted in 1980 for a three-year term. Revenue realized from the one-half mill is sufficient to pay operating costs of the department, treasurer Henningsen told the board during budget hearings this year, but does not cover the cost of renovating equipment or making other capital improvements such as expanding, improving or adding fire halls or purchasing new equipment. Such expenses have been covered out of the 1.0 mill collected for the general fund and the state revenue sharing monies also directed to the general fund.

The park land acquisiton question asks residents to approve the $1 expenditure to complete the transfer of the Beck Road property from the state to the township. The property was declared surplus by the state department of corrections and subsequently given to the township for recreational purposes, contingent on the electorate approving the $1 cost. The state is prohibited from giving away property without cost.

The parcel is 38.8 acres and fronts on the west side of Beck between Five and Six Mile roads, just north of the site of the multi-security regional prison beginning construction this spring. The proposed location of a fire station is on the north side of Seven Mile, west of Beck. Totaling little more than 2.6 acres, the cost of the property is set at - less than the previously $9,100 reported $11,000 because a portion of ped parcel has been deleted. Address of the proposed site is 48399 Seven Mile Road.

Discriminati charged by Hood in open hearing

By MICHELE MCELMURRY

At an open meeting with the board of education held at his request Monday night, William Hood, administrative assistant for operations, charged the district with age discrimination and harassment in his termination from the administrative post he has held since January, 1980.

Hood was given pre-notification of his contract termination upon the board of education's approval March 26. The administration recommended nonrenewal of his contract based on unsatisfactory job performance as reflected in his March 1983, and March, 1984 evaluations.

"I believe I've been discriminated against on account of my age," the 61-year-old administrator told the board at the onset of Monday's meeting.

He noted that "before the spring of 1982, I had a good relationship with my supervisor.

However, he added that during the 'spring of 1982 I was asked my age, and I believe this is the time the deterioration of the relationship began.

James Armstrong resigns as trustee

Northville Township Trustee C. James Armstrong has resigned his position on the board after moving his residence from the township and into the city last week.

Armstrong submitted his resignation letter Monday, according to Supervisor John MacDonald.

Armstrong said Monday he "hated to do it" (resign) as he had planned to finish out his term but not to run again. However, he explained, it "just worked out that the house sold and a condo (in Lexington Condos in the city) was available" and he didn't feel he could wait until the end of his term in November.

Aware that the resignation was approaching, the board of trustees decid-ed April 12 to seek applications from township residents interested in being appointed to serve out the rem satisfactory evaluation of his job performance, Hood said he "has been carrying on over 18 months under very negative pressure.

'No one can accomplish such multifaceted responsibilities under such negative pressure," Hood said, noting that he has been victim to verbal abuse by his supervisor over the past two years.

"I've been told I have not tried to improve myself," Hood stated. "I was told nothing was being done by me."

Hood said he has been unable to accomplish many of his tasks due to the number of staff meetings scheduled.

'For a long time in 1982-83, two, three and four meetings were scheduled a day," he said. "I've lost count of the days I had to forego lunch because of meetings that go to 2 or 3 p.m." Hood said he has not resigned from his post because he feels he's been unjustly terminated.

"If I save one employee the humiliation and aggravation I've been subjected to then I've accomplished something," Hood said of his refusal to resign.

Hood's request for an open meeting with the board allowed him the option's charge of unsatisfactory job per-formance. However, the hearing also made public the administration's review of Hood's job performance and Under Michigan law, general law townships such as Northville are not allowed to purchase land without a vote of the people.

Easter week observances scheduled at area churches

Easter — the Day of Resurrection — will be celebrated by Christians at special services this Sunday in local churches.

Before the "mountain top" celebration, however, during this Holy Week of denial, desertion and déath, Dr. Lawrence Chamberlain, senior pastor of First Presbyterian Church of Northville, points out, "it is necessary to have been in a valley.

"Hence," he says, "Holy Week is exactly that — a week-long progressive experience beginning with the palms and progressing through Maundy Thursday and Good Friday."

The tradition of an ecumenical Good Friday service is being continued here with Presbyterian and Methodist congregations this year combining with Bushnell Congregational for a service at its new church at 21355 Meadowbrook Road north of Eight Mile at 1:30 p.m. The Reverend Robin Meyers of the

Chocolate bunny's prize for top Easter egg hunter

Grand prize in the annual Easter egg hunt being sponsored by the Northville Jaycees this Saturday in Cass Benton Park will be an 18-inch high solid chocolate Easter bunny.

It will go to the lucky youngster in the five-to-eight year old age group in the competition that will begin at 10 a.m., according to Kevin Hartshorne, Jaycee chairman for the hunt.

Youngsters will compete in the following age groupings - two years and under, two to five years old, five to eight years old, eight to 11 years old and 12 and over," Hartshorne said, adding that prizes will be awarded in each age competition. The bunny, which weighs about:

10 pounds, was donated by Brad and Rita Derlington of Sweets 'n Treats at 124 North Center as the top prize.

A gross of real eggs was donated by Guernsey Farms Dairy, Hartshorne said. This week they are being colored by senior citizens at Allen Terrace under the chairmanship of Ann Vendal. They will be specially marked by the Jaycees. Finders of lucky numbers will receive prizes.

Jaycees will hide the eggs in the area of Cass Benton Park that is near the toboggan runs. Hartshorne, who participated in the Easter egg³ hunts here as a youngster, said he anticipates it will take not much more than half an hour to hold the hunt. > host church announces that the Reverend Eric Hammar of First United Methodist Church will be giving the sermon.

Other Holy Week observances at local churches include:

BUSHNELL CONGREGATIONAL

Maundy Thursday Communion will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the chapel of the Detroit church. Easter services will be held at 9:30 a.m. at Bushnell Meadowbrook and at 11:15 a.m. at Bushnell Detroit. The Reverend Robin Meyers will deliver sermons at both services and special music is planned under the direction of Ray Ferguson.

UNITED METHODIST

An hour-long Maundy Thursday service of "Shadows" will be introduced to the congregation at 7:30 p.m. in the church sanctuary. Tenebrae, meaning shadows, is a many-century old service used to illustrate dramatically the calling and the falling away of disciples, explains the Reverend Eric Hammar. Assisting the pastor are Ves Spindler, associate lay leader, and Tom Munsell, chairman of worship work.

Twelve men are being asked to represent the 12 disciples. As the name of each is read at the service, one will light a candle at the altar. At the conclusion, a service of Holy Communion will be held with the candles to be extinguished afterward, symbolizing the betrayal, denial and desertion of the disciples. The service will conclude with the extinguishing of the Christ candle representing the death of Christ. The congregation will exit from the totally dark sanctuary.

A sunrise Easter service will be at 7:30 a.m. with a breakfast served by the Methodist Men's Club following at 8:15 a.m. Pastor Hammar will give the Easter sermon at the 10 a.m. service. For this day children will remain in church for the service, but a baby nursery will be provided.

A "second Sunday of Easter" will be celebrated at the church as part of the special 150th year-long anniversary at the church.

PRESBYTERIAN

Maundy Thursday Communion Service will be held in the sanctuary at 8 p.m.

An Easter sunrise service at 7 a.m. will be followed by a breakfast. Dr. Chamberlain will deliver the Easter sermon at 9:30 and 11 a.m. Church members will continue the tradition of donating Easter lilies to decorate the sanctuary. The service will be on Omnicon Channel 15.

ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN

Maundy Thursday Communion will be held at 7:30 p.m. with the adult choir singing several anthems. The sermon for Maundy Thursday is titled, "The Nails.'

Good Friday worship will be at 1 p.m. The Day School Cantata Choir will be featured.

An Easter sunrise service with Communion and music by the adult choir will be held at 6:30 a.m. A contemporary Easter worship service is scheduled for 8:30 a.m. with music provided by the adult choir. A traditional Easter Communion service will be held at 11 a.m. featuring the School Cantata Choir. The Easter sermon at all three services is titled "An Open Tomb." Easter Brunch will be served by the St. Paul's Women's Guild from 7-10 a.m. in the gymnasium.

CHRISTIAN COMMUNITY

Good Friday services will be conducted jointly with the United Assembly of God from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. in the Christian Community Church sanctuary. Reverend Jack Williamson of the United Assembly of God will present the sermon.

The Sanctuary Choir will offer "Hosannah, an Easter Cantata" at 7:30 p.m. Good Friday evening.

Easter will be marked by a 6:30 a.m. sunrise service and a repeat of the choir cantata at 11 a.m. Pastor Larry Frick evaluations during the past two years - and its reasons for recommending termination.

Assistant Superintendent Burton Knighton reviewed Hood's 1983 and 1984 performance evalutions with the board and cited unsatisfactory performance in several areas.

Knighton noted in particular that during the 1982-83 school year there was "significant deterioration in the relationship between Hood and staff members.

'Communication between Hood and subordinates has been a one-way street," Knighton noted. "Mr. Hood lacks greatly the ability to listen to other members of his staff.

"The staff has given up trying to talk to him," Knighton noted. "His workers avoid him - they don't get response; they don't get respect."

Knighton told the board that public relations has been "at an all-time low since the spring of 1982 when Mr. Hood walked out of a Booster Club meeting" over a difference of opinion with members of the organization.

Hood's lack of planning and follow through were also cited by Knighton as areas of concern.

He noted for instance that a blackboard at Moraine Elementary was broken in June and not replaced until Christmas and that grass on school property had not been cut for weeks last summer. He also noted that "cleaning of the high school in the summer of 1982 was a disaster.

"There was no scheduled planning in terms of work being done or completed," Knighton said.

'There has been a great deal of difficulty in terms of direction of the work force," he noted.

'Without my presence and followup." Knighton said, "things are not getting done."

He cited the maintenance of the high school football field as a case in point. "It takes planning to do that kind of job," he noted. "When I ask for the field to be taken care of and nothing happens, I take care of it myself."

Knighton told the board that he placed Hood on probation for a year during his evaluation last May. He noted that on July 11, "I told him I could not recommend continuation of his employment."

On July 14, Knighton said he told Hood he was recommending his contract be terminated.

Hood told the board that on July 14 he was told "to quit or be fired" and made an appointment July 18 with Superintendent George Bell to discuss the possible termination.

He told board members that on July 19, he was told there had been an improvement in his work and that he would be kept on. However, he noted that he was told he would not get the raise given to other administrators.

Hood further stated that last month was told "there had been improvement in my performance since the 1983 evaluation."

However, he added, "at 4 p.m. that afternoon I was told I would not be kept on past June 30.

"I was told my resume (given to the district) for the position I hold now had been sent to the architects working on the renovation project," Hood said.

"I think that's a violation of my civil rights," Hood explained, noting that the school district was not authorized to give his resume to the architectural firm.

Knighton addressed that issue by noting that "Mr. Hood's greatest strength is working on architectural plans and specifications.

"We looked at the possibility of Mr. Hood working with the architects on the renovation," Knighton noted. However, nothing ever came of it." Hood told the board he objected to

In concluding his remarks, Knighton said he felt "Mr. Hood has been trying to operate in a vacuum.

"Planning and scheduling have been a weakness with Mr. Hood," he noted. "In most cases when plans have been made, they have not been followed through."

Knighton said he found Hood's "general lack of concern about giving this district the kind of quality it deserves" warranted his dismissal.

"It's not enough to get the job done," Knighton said. "It has to be done right."

"1. <code>``llow him to stay," Knighton added, "h Juld result in the deterioration</code> of the department."

There was no one in attendance at the hour-long public meeting and little was said by board members following the presentations made by Hood and Knighton.

The board has scheduled a special call meeting April 30 for final consideration on Hood's termination.

he said it was "only exploration - having his resume sent to the architects without his permission.

Council still has car allowance questions

Citing a "breach of trust" between city council and the housing commission, council decided Monday to pursue the issue of a $180 monthly car allowance the commission voted for the housing director. Payment began effective in January Council directed mayor pro tem

Dewey Gardner to express council "concern" to commission chairman Ray Casterline II and request additional information about how the commission reached its decision.

After examining a letter from Casterline explaining the rationale behind the car allowance (which council requested after the last session), council members J. Burton DeRusha and Carolann Ayers both said they needed more specific information before they could be satisfied with the decision.

Ayers said she had two major problems with the decision: that in her eyes the stipend represents "a raise in the housing director's salary, period" in a year in which all other city employees have been asked to accept a pay freeze; and that the commission's decision was done without the review of the annual budget procedure.

On the latter point, she noted particularly that the car allowance becomes a continuing expense in future years rather than a single annual diversion of resources of the type the housing commission is expected to be responsible for on its own authority.

DeRusha also said he interpreted the allowance as a raise and said he felt there had been a "breach of trust" because the commission had been specifically requested by council to forego salary increases.

"They had a raise for the director in their budget, and we specifically asked them to delete it." DeRusha said. "We talked about no raises this year because of the deficit. What really bothers me about this is that they seemingly chose to ignore something we talked to them about."

At one point in the council discussion Ayers moved that the city ask the monthly payments be halted until the issue could be reviewed in this year's budget process.

The motion died for lack of support after a wide-ranging council discussion that centered on the relationship between the housing commission and city council.

City manager Steven Walters told council members they might "regret" taking an action that "says you're going to be making line-item decisions for the commission. You have the authority to do that if you want, but the practical problem is that they operate a major facility with a budget in excess of $400.000.

"I think you have to ask whether you're asking them to make responsible monetary decisions for that operation, because if you start revoking line item determinations you're likely to find they'll eventually start referring all major decisions to you," he continued. "Isn't the real issue whether it was merited or not, and not just that they made a budget decision? You expect them to manage their own budget." DeRusha said he had "no desire to override their authority or approve their line items. I simply feel there has been a breach of trust here and that we have to communicate between ourselves about it. I don't want to damage the relationship between the housing commission and council."

Ayers said she tended to agree, though she maintained that the housing commission "did not make just any budget decision, but a pay increase budget decision that will continue.

"I just thought the budget process would be the best way to handle this particular item," she concluded.

DeRusha said he did not wish the discussion to reflect poorly on either housing commission members or the director, but that he was concerned about the decision and needed more information before he could analyze its merits.

Ayers noted that the commission minutes of the February meeting at which the car allowance was granted "do not reflect any options they may have considered. The minutes do not reflect any discussion at all of what I assume would be the lengthy process that would be required to come to this decision."

She said she was concerned that it might be difficult to delete or reduce the stipend in next year's budget if six months' payments have already been made by that time as the reason for her desire to freeze payments.

Walters said "you can put a freeze on it - there's no problem there except your future relationship with the housing commission."

Ayers said that the lines of authority and responsibility between the council, the commission, the city administration and the housing administration are 'too vague. It's not a tight enough situation for me when you consider the size of the operation and its budget. I think we have to define, to some greater degree, the lines of authority.

But she conceded to DeRusha's suggestion that Gardner be asked to approach Casterline "to discuss our concerns one-to-one. I think there be concern on their part that they violated, in some small way, the trust that exists between us.

"I want to do it in the friendliest way possible, but I think something has to be said."

Gardner agreed to communicate the major points of the council discussion to the housing commission.

At one point in the meeting, Walters noted that had it desired to do so, council could not have closed the meeting to the public and press "because what we're discussing here is the relationship between the council and the commission - it's not really a personnel matter" which the Open Meetings Act allows to occur behind closed doors.

Absent from Monday's meeting were mayor Paul Vernon, who was ill, and council member Paul Folino, who was out of town. Both absences were excused.

It could be all wet, but this idea may fly yet

By KEVIN WILSON

Lovers of ducks and wildlife art should mark off May 12 on their calendars - maybe, possibly, perhaps.

That was the message brought to city council by Scott Lapham Monday night. He reported "tentative" plans to conduct a "Duck Festival and Wildlife Art Festival" in the downtown area the Saturday of the Mother's Day weekend.

Lapham didn't quite have all his ducks in a row, however, and could not say with certainty that the event would occur, nor what organization might sponsor it.

Council members reacted enthusiastically anyway and granted Lapham tentative approval to use city sidewalks and street signs if he succeeds in having the chamber of commerce, merchants' association or arts commission sponsor the event.

Lapham said he came up with the idea in discussion with Tom McKinnon and Dr. Leonard Wade. Some of Dr. Wade's art depicting wildfowl is displayed in McKinnon's restaurant. Wildlife artists would be invited to display their wares at the community center, along sidewalks and in city parks if the event comes off, Lapham explained. Expected exhibitors would number in the hundreds, he suggested.

He approached council for permission to close off Main between Center and Phil's Union 76 station, explaining that he needed approval for a location before he could proceed with planning.

But through discussion with council, it was decided that idea wasn't all it was "quacked up" to be and no street closings would be necessary. Featured at the festival would be

"top artists in the field from Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and possibly as far away as the Carolinas," Lapham told council.

Interior space at the community center would be needed to display the most expensive works, which the artists would not wish to expose to the vagaries of weather, Lapham said.

Council approved the use of city sidewalks and parks on condition Lapham gets one of the three mentioned groups to act as sponsor for the event. It also later approved the use of city entrance signs to promote the festival from May 2 through 12 on the same conditions. Council noted it would have a May 7 meeting at which final approvals could be granted.

Gladys C. Bush, 82, died unexpectedly April 13 at her home at 629 Fairbrook.

A memorial service was held at 1 p.m. Monday at Casterline Funeral Home. Cremation was at Evergreen Crematory.

Mrs. Bush was a retired school teacher who had taught in South Lyon and Salem.

She was born September 17, 1901, in Michigan to James and Cora (Welcher) Black. She was preceded in death by her husband Ross Clifford Bush, who died November 22, 1982. Two brothers and two sisters also preceded her in death.

She is survived by a niece Eva Jane Baughn.

FLORENCE E. HARRIS

Florence E. Harris of Novi, who for 30 years owned Rosewood Fine Foods restaurant at 46077 Grand River in Novi, died unexpectedly April 12 at Providence Hospital at age 75.

She had been an organizing member of the Novi Chamber of Commerce and Novi Historical Society.

Funeral service was held at 2 p.m. Sunday at Novi United Methodist Church where she was a member. The Reverend Richard Griffith and the Reverend Karl Zeiger officiated. Burial was in Evergreen Cemetery in Detroit.

Mrs. Harris also was a member of Novi Rebekah Lodge 482. A Rebekah memorial service was held at 7 p.m. Saturday.

A Novi resident since about 1948, Mrs. Harris was born November 3, 1908, in Michigan to Edward and Harriet (Czar) Beech. She married James Woodrow Harris who preceded her in death in January, 1958.

Arrangements and visitation were at Casterline Funeral Home in Northville. Memorial tributes are suggested to the Novi United Methodist Church.

Easter bonnet contest will repeat

The sun didn't shine on the Easter bonnet parade sponsored by the Northville Merchants' Association last Saturday. Nevertheless, the event was enjoyed by participants, spectators and sponsors.

"Everyone was in the right frame of mind," reported planner Louise Whittington of IV Seasons. The 50 participants, instead of parading before the judges in the town square park, strolled inside Del's Shoes on Main Street and had their decorated straw hats judged by Del Black, Catherine Mock and Norma Vernon.

Winners in the mother-daughter category were: first prize - Linda and Jennifer McMillan; second — Susan and Adrienne Gardner; third — Catherine Tarrow and her three Freedom.

The judges awarded a third prize in this competition to honor the mother and her three daughters in special costumes, it was explained. Winners in the grandmother-grandchild category were: first prize — Babe and Laura Genitti; second — Wilma Cushing and Dana Warren. Winners in the child and pet category were: first prize — Carrie Dalziel and her cat Cupcake; second — James Herren and his dog Katie.

No entries showed in the garden clubbers category.

Winners in the merchants' category were: first prize - Genittis; second - daughters Heather, Barbara and Union; and fourth - One Ten West Salon.

Spokesperson Whittington said that many comments of "Let's do it again" were made. She said a repeat is planned for next year, adding that she feels those who worked on the parade featuring straw hats decorated by partipants have learned from the initial venture.

She explained that many participants had not pre-registered causing delays as they had to fill out forms after they arrived. She added that the sponsors also had not anticipated there would be so many spectators, creating, she said, "wall to wall people" - a problem only because the parade had to be held in-

"Next year it will be smoother; we learned a lot," she summed up.

The answer is much more heartening, Edison officials explain. It means the Michigan utility company has started a partnership with county and municipal law enforcement departments to prevent crime and assist citizens needing emergency help. "Where you see a sign, you've found a friend.'

Detroit Edison employees have been trained by the Oakland County Sheriff's Department to keep an eye out for neighborhood crime, identify suspicious situations, remember descriptions of a car or a suspect, report suspected crimes, and to help citizens in trouble by communicating with police.

The employee can use the radio equipment inside each of the trucks to contact Edison's dispatch office, and in turn, local law enforcement agencies.

The program was begun in Detroit in response to the violent crime wave in some of the city's localities last fall. While Edison representatives don't claim Eyes And Ears is completely responsible for the downturn in Detroit's crime wave since the program started last winter, local police departments have enthusiastically endorsed the project.

lot of people are unsure, even apologetic, about whether they should contact us or anyone about something fective way for us to find out about a crime.

"The employees aren't going to act like law enforcement officers, but they will be our eyes and ears in the community to alert us to all kinds of incidents and emergencies."

Western Wayne County communities including Northville are expected to adopt the program within the next Northville High School.

"three or four weeks," according to Edison's Governmental Affairs Representative Paul W. Potter of Northville.

"Basically, it was the utility's response to the violent crimes in Detroit," Potter says. "It was part of a grass-roots community movement that has been very effective in Detroit. It was next taken up in Oakland County, and now there are even some communities where the DPW has joined the program.

'If we had all the utilities and government people watching out for each other we'd have a much better situation than we have now.'

Municipal authorities are currently discussing extensions to the Eyes and Ears program with other utility employees, including Michigan Bell Telephone and Consumers Power.

Grocery store shoplifter confesses, assault charged

From State Police...

A Detroit man who police charge was caught in the act of shoplifting at the Seven Mile Road A&P store April 4 has been charged with felonious assault and larceny from a building.

Patrick Anthony Tietze, 29, of Detroit reportedly squirted dog-repellent mace into the eyes of store employees who attempted to detain him for police after seeing Tietze stuff cartons of cigarettes under his shirt.

According to the Michigan State Police report, Tietze confessed to entering the store with the intent of stealing cigarettes and to spraying HALT!brand repellent mace into the eyes of an assistant manager and a produce department employee at the store.

He was arraigned in 35th District Court before Judge Dunbar Davis April 5 and entered a guilty plea. He waived the preliminary examination April 16 and the case was remanded to Wayne County Circuit Court. He was released on $3,000 personal bond.

The police report states Tietze entered the store at around 10 a.m. April 4, carrying in his pocket a "shopping list" of 26 cartons of various brands of cigarettes. Police surmised from this list that Tietze intended to sell the cartons for $5 apiece, turning a $130 profit. It appeared he may have taken orders for the cigarettes.

counter to city interest

But when he entered the store, the manager recognized him as a man suspected of shoplifting at another A&P store and had him watched. According to the report, Tietze displayed behavior consistent with an intent to shoplift prior to being seen taking four cartons of cigarettes and stuffing them into his shirt.

A chase through the store followed, with the manager and assistant manager eventually tackling Tietze near the front of the store, knocking down a clerk who suffered bruises and abrasions.

Tietze is alleged to have struggled loose several times, laying quietly in between these attempts at escape. At one point, he is charged with reaching into a jacket pocket and coming out with the mace, which he sprayed into the assistant manager's eyes.

The assistant manager was treated and released from Providence Hospital's Novi center. He suffered eye and skin irritation and a mild abrasion of the cornea. The mace also was sprayed at a produce department employee, the report states. The chemical irritant struck this second employee in the temple, and when he later rubbed the irritated area he got some into his eye. This employee sought his own medical care, as did the clerk who was knocked down.

After hearing his Miranda rights, Tietze told police he had entered the store with an accomplice, whom he said left prior to the alleged theft and subsequent assault.

He said he was moved to thievery because he was out of work and felt guilty that his wife had to support the family and also take care of their baby.

A $9,000 car was reported stolen from the Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital parking lot April 14, state police said.

A hospital employee told police he parked his black 1982 Pontiac Firebird in the parking lot when reporting for work at 3 p.m. It was missing, he said, when he returned at 6:45 p.m. to go to lunch. The owner told police he had left the car locked and that it held a quarter tank of gasoline.

The car was described as being in pristine condition, sporting custom mag wheels and a raccoon tail on the antenna.

... In the City

Five break-ins of city residences have been reported since April 7, the most recent and the most costly

That crime took place between 8 a.m. last Wednesday and 1:23 p.m. Monday while the East Cady Street home was unoccupied. Stolen were a washer and dryer together valued at $810 and window blinds valued at $230 altogether.

A neighbor noticed the window blinds missing on Monday. Investigation in-dicated entry to the home apparently was gained through a 2-foot by 3-foot storm window on the northeast side of the house. The padlock of the door leading to the washroom, where the washer and dryer were located, was also discovered broken and removed.

The first report in the recent rash of break-ins came from the owner/resident of a house on Grace Street, who returned to his home after being away between 7:45 and 9:45 p.m. Saturday. April 7. He discovered a back door window had been shattered, apparently with an umbrella.

Two witnesses said they saw two boys running away from the house during that time, but they were unable to give detailed descriptions.

The following day, the owner reported three items had been stolen: an eight-track tape player valued at $100, a portable AM/FM cassette radio valued at $300, and an FM cassette recorder valued at $150. Still later, the owner reported a file box, valued at $20, containing envelopes, was also missing. Police are continuing their investigation of the break-in brook Street was broken into while temporarily vacant between 2:20-2:40 p.m. A wallet containing $350.in cash was taken. A semi-automatic .32 caliber handgun also was reported missing from a desk drawer inside, but later was found next to the door of the residence. There are no suspects in connection with the incident.

A Hill Street home was broken into between 3:50-4:30 p.m. last Wednesday. No damage was reported to the home, but an AM/FM clock radio valued at $50 was taken from the house's master bedroom, and a $50 stereo cassette player also was stolen. So far there have been no suspects reported in connection with the theft.

Unknown persons broke into the garage of a home on South Ely Street between 10 a.m. Saturday, April 7, and 2 p.m. last Saturday. About $350 worth of miscellaneous hand tools and hardware was reported stolen. Police report no leads in connection with the theft.

... In the Township

A 1981 Pontiac Safari, valued at $8,000, was stolen from a parking lot on Silver Springs sometime between 2 and 6 a.m. April 12, township police report. The complainant told police the car was parked in the lot to the west of the residence at the time the incident occurred.

The officer at the scene observed that the window on the left side of the vehi cle must have been broken in order for the suspects to gain entry as there was glass on the ground.

The complainant described the vehicle as silver with woodgrain sides and a maroon interior. A luggage rack was on the top.

The vehicle was entered into the Law Enforcement Information Network.

Unknown suspects stole a lower drive unit off the rear of a boat parked at a Ridge Road residence sometime between October 15 and April 15, police report.

The complainant told police the boat had been parked in the driveway of the residence at the time the incident occurred.

When the officer at the scence checked the boat with the complainant, other items were found to be missing.

In addition to the drive unit valued a $1,500, items missing included a 12 volt battery estimated at $80, a $500 ship-toshore radio, a $150 depth sounder and a $200 tool box.

Unknown suspects caused an estimated $800 damage to a new home under construction on Steepleview sometime between 1:30 p.m. April 12 and 11 p.m. April 13, township police report.

The complainant told police suspects gained entry to the residence through an unknown door and destroyed the drywall in nearly every room.

Though that is a direct quote from the law (Public Act 327 of 1980), Kelley maintains it represents an unconstitutional "continuing appropriation." Northville resident STACEY A. HARRINGTON has been named to the dean's list for the winter term at GIETZEN-STEWART, 19476 Fry, Northwood Institute in Midland.

To achieve dean's list recognition, students must earn a 3.0 grade point average on a 4.0 scale.

Twenty-seven Northville residents were among the more than 3,300 University of Michigan students on the Ann Arbor campus recognized at the University's annual Honors Convocation April 1.

Frank Rhodes, president of Cor-nell University, was the featured speaker.

Of those honored, 446 students were named James B. Angell Scholars. They have maintained an all-A record for two or more consecutive terms as undergraduates.

Also, 225 members of the freshman class received the William J. Branstrom Prize, a book of their choice and a bookmark. The recipients ranked in the top five percent of their class.

Northville residents honored in-clude KATHLEEN BAINBRIDGE, Cude KATHLEEN BAINBRINGE, 16548 Winchester; LISA BROWNELL, 45333 Galway; JAMES CAMPBELL, JR., 18197 Pinebrook; ANTONIA CARETTO, 1248 Charleston Court; MARGARET DERMODY, 38675 Rhonswood; CAROLYN DRAGON, 21864 Bed-ford Brancher Different Different Different ford, Branstrom Prize; DREW FARKAS, 15898 Winchester; LESLIE FARKAS, 15898 Win-chester; JILL FOLEY, 42257 Scenic Lane.

Arts Commission tour to see Pearlstein show

By B.J. MARTIN

The best-known exponent of what has been called Contemporary Realism in painting is American Philip Pearlstein, subject of a special exhibit continuing at the Toledo Museum of Art next week, and also the reason for the Northville Arts Commission's April 28 trip to this fine museum.

Pearlstein's work bucked many of the non-representational trends at the vanguard of art in the 20th century, but his works are far from photographic, literal representations of reality, unlike those of many of his successors.

Instead, what Pearlstein brings to the canvas is a unique compositional approach, particularly with his studies of human figures. Unusual viewing angles, abruptly cropped edges and an eerie manipulation in rendering textures of the human figures and their surroundings, usually interiors with various still-life objects, set Pearls-tein's style apart from less original, more literal realists.

Many tickets at $35 apiece are still available for the Arts Commission's trip, which also features lunch and a glass-blowing lecture/demonstration. Here is the itinerary for the tour:

9 a.m. Prompt departure from Nor-thville by charter bus. ria.m. Arrival at the Toledo Museum of Art. 10:15 to 11:15 a.m. Guilded tour of the exhibit "Philip Pearlstein: A Retrospective." 11:15 a.m. to noon Time to revisit the exhibit or to browse the museum's other galleries, including the famous Glass Galery, the Cloisters and the Collector's Corner (works for sale by wellknown local artists).

12:05 p.m. Prompt bus departure at Grove Street exit for trip to Waterville. 12:30 p.m. to 1:45 p.m. Lunch, with wine, at the Columbian House, built in 1828 and filled with American memorabilia.

2 p.m. to 3 p.m. Lecture/-demonstartion on the art of blowing glass in the private studio of artist Brian Lonsway. 3:05 p.m. Board bus for Northville.

Larry VanderMolen explains he's only school candidate

Drop Larry VanderMolen's name from the list of those seeking elected office in Northville Township this year. VanderMolen had drawn nominating petitions and collected some signatures toward an intended run for township trustee, he said last week, but opted instead to run for school board.

The Schoolcraft College instructor said his decision was based on comments heard while collecting signatures for the trustee post. "I didn't mean to confuse anyone," he said. "While I was gathering signatures, people kept asking me why I didn't run for the school board — they seemed to think that's where we really need someone. So I thought it over and township nominating petitions not only for himself but for "a group of people" yet to make their candidacies public. He said he would be supporting those particular candidates in the township board elections.

Law seeks accountability

By GERALD H. LAW State Representative

To improve efficiency and accountability in state government, all departments would be required to report the implementation of auditor general recommendations to the legislature under a series of amendments to budget bills adopted by the Michigan House of Representatives last week.

The amendments were offered and adopted on every budget bill for a department which is audited.

Recent audits have shown poor accountability, inefficiency and wasteful management policies in a number of state departments. The cost to the taxpayer has been more than $1 million in each of two recently-audited departments, and the losses in the others could add up to millions more.

The audits have been largely ignored by both the departments and the gislature, but this legislation will require a report on how each department plans to implement the recommendations in the audits, as well as reasons why some are not implemented.

This is the best way we can demand accountability and methods to check improvement in efficiency. These amendments represent a practical way to safeguard our taxpayers' money.

8-A-THE NORTHVILLE RECORD-Wednesday, April 18, 1984

The Northville Record

Our Opinions Township needs trustee applicants

The resignation last week of Northville Township Trustee James Armstrong as he moved into a city condo leaves an immediate need for another good person to serve the township.

Armstrong's input as a trustee and his service to the recreation department and planning commission have been valuable during the last four years. It should be a satisfaction to him that he is leaving the township government in healthy condition. As part of the present administration that has established a fiscally sound, responsible township government Armstrong has made a definite contribution.

Supervisor John MacDonald has announced that he and the board will welcome applications from township residents interested in serving the township by filling out Armstrong's term. It expires in November. Armstrong has stated he did not intend to run for another term then. However, we feel that whoever fills the vacancy for the five or so months should consider becoming a candidate for a full four-year term beginning this November.

This is an important consideration because the deadline for filing for a township post is June 5. There are township residents who have been serving on other boards, com-missions and committees and who now should consider making this contribution.

Residents may recall that a resignation in 1980 allowed the appointment of Richard Allen as a trustee. Allen had already been the leading vote-getter in that year's primary election; so the selection was simplified. The unfortunate timing of Armstrong's resignation does not allow for that sort of citizen input. But it might also be recalled that township clerk Susan Heintz was another board member who was appointed to fill a vacancy (as a trustee) before winning election. We believe the appointments of both Allen and Heintz were sound ones, and hope persons of similar caliber will put themselves forward to fill the township's current need.

Sprouting daffodils and dandelions

Off the record

By JEAN DAY

While some organizations give annual "Orchid and Onion," or similarly named, awards, I'm calling my springtime observations "Daffodil and Dandelion" citations.

For starters I like the way the side window has opened up Getzie's Pub. It offers a view of happenings along East Main and of the park in front of Downriver Federal Savings and Loan office which soon will be alive with colorful blooms. To those who remember Joe's Little Bar, the replacement establishment is a welcome addition to downtown. Groups are using it as an informal meeting place, and such organizations as the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce are discussing ar-rangements to slate get-togethers utilizing the outdoor park area as well as the pub when weather permits. Definitely a "Daffodil."

The Northville Historical Society won't appreciate this — but it's just my feeling. Watching the concrete blocks go up for the blacksmith shop-museum buildilng, I can't help wishing an old structure could have been located for the purpose since all other buildings in the Mill Race Historical Village are vintage ones. I'm sure, however, it is more economical to construct a new building that to renovate a shell, as was done with Wash-Oak Schoolhouse. While this looks like a "Dandelion," the village itself has become one of the community's real assets with many organizations using the New School Church.

Homeowners and owners of many local store buildings and professional offices deserve a "Daffodil." Homes throughout the community are well maintained. One especially worthwhile renovation that has been ongo-ing for some time is the gray-painted home at 401 Dunlap. Narrow aluminum siding was removed and the Victorian details preserved. A brick walk now leads to the door. Attorney David Jerome has upgraded another Center Street home for his office. Everything doesn't have to be tradi-tional to be an asset — the new office building being completed by DeMattia construction company on Griswold is an example of appropriate construction for the site.

It may be a rite of spring, as hard to deter as a dandelion, but I wish those who think destroying mailboxes is fun could be caught and made to rebuild and repaint the holders and posts. There were two down in my neighborhood in the past week. Since it seems to be a nighttime "lark," it's almost impossible to catch the culprits.

From many admirers, we've had comments in the past couple of weeks drawing attention to the downtown store windows festively decorated for the Easter season. We've come to expect elaborate window decorations at Christmastime. The windows featuring bunnies, hats and flowers have their own special appeal. Definitely a "Daf-fodil."

New events worthy

While each is different, during the past couple of weeks the Nor-thville Community has seen some "first" projects instituted — one to raise funds for the library, another to recognize public safety servants, and a third to serve as a pre-Easter downtown promotion. All have merit.

"A Day in the Life of a Vic-torian Lady," the benefit spon-sored by the Friends of Northville sored by the Friends of Northville Library last Thursday afternoon at the Marquis Theatre, was an unusual fashion show of antique clothing worn by Northville volunteer models and followed by a "tea and sweets." Those attending reported it was a delightful after-noon It is especially appropriate that it was inaugurated this year and that the initial plaque to recognize a city fire fighter was inscribed with the name of William Gearns. Recipients were chosen by their superior officers, and Fire Chief James Allen explained that Gearns was the unanimous choice of the department. He noted that Gearns, ill with cancer, had made a special effort to attend. Gearns received a standing ovation from those attending.

V.F.W. members planned the event well and included the heads of the departments being honored as well as local officials and

If you should happen to see a tall, handsome fellow with a magnificent tan walking around town, it's me.

Chairperson Val Cook and her committee spent much time organizing this new benefit. She well could have been discouraged as she reported that they "counted receipts for just over 95 tickets." Since the receipts covered expenses, she said, she feels the benefit was worth while and will consider repeating it. We admire her attitude and agree that it sometimes takes a year or so to have a new event "catch on." However, perhaps the evaluation should consider moving the time to evening as many women who might have attended work.

representatives. Irving Spencer, state V.F.W. commander, also attended. Post Commander James Hornshaw and his officers deserve to be commended for their pro-gram designed "to make the com-munity aware of the protection we have" and also for the recognition it brought the honorees.

Last Saturday the Merchants' Association competition to decorate straw hats to wear in an Easter parade in the town square park at noon was thrown a hitch by whittington and other planners moved the "parade" and judging inside Del's and IV Seasons — and the show went on.

With 50 paticipants and "wall to wall" spectators, we agree it is well worth repeating next year. May the sun shine on this parade in 1985

And, as a result, you're going to have to endure at least one column about the pleasures and pitfalls of a Mexican vacation.

Actually, the pleasures are almost too numerous to mention. But I should warn you that one of those pleasures has the potential to become a pitfall if proper precautions are not taken ahead of time.

What I'm talking about is the Mexican economy. The peso, you see, is in a lot of trouble. If you think you get a good exchange rate by going to Canada, wait till you go to Mexico.

Basically, it works like this. The good old American dollar is worth approximately 172 pesos. Turn in a $1 bill and you get 172 pesos in return.

The result is that your purchasing power is boosted considerably. Now that probably sounds more like a pleasure than a pitfall, unless someone you know - your esposa, for example - has trouble grasping the concept.

I finally got her to understand that you can figure out the American cost of Mexican merchandise by dividing the number of pesos by approximately three-fifths. A dress that costs 4,000 pesos actually costs about $24 in American money.

The trouble came after she figured out my simplified system.

"This is fun," she announced one day after returning to the hotel room with four new dresses. "These pesos aren't real money, are they? It's kind of like playing Monopoly.

"I think I'll buy Boardwalk. Give me the Reading Railroad. How about Pacific Avenue?"

I still don't know exactly how much my Mexican vacation cost, but my wife tells me not to worry about those MasterCard receipts. "Don't worry," she said. "They're only pesos."

Wayne County officials seek end to elected post

To the Editor:

This is in reply to Shirley Matthews' letter from last week regarding fencing around Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital.

She indicated that she had secondhand information that a similar hospital in Indiana has a hign fence around it which made the run-away problem worse. There are 60 or more run-aways per month, and I find it hard to believe that a fence could make the problem any worse.

True, the hospital has been there for many years, and people who bought homes around the hospital should have known the hospital was there. However, the people who bought homes had every right to believe that the patients would be retained on the hospital grounds.

News from Lansing

If the grounds were insufficient to house the number of patients, the state should purchase more ground, rather than allow the patients to run away to private property.

What has been repeatedly proposed is six-foot high fence on two sides and the back of the hospital property. Of course, this leaves the front open, but it also allows hospital personnel to concentrate their watch on Seven Mile Road run-aways.

As Ms. Matthews indicates, there are sick people at Northville Hospital, but I feel the existence of the fence would in no way indicate our lack of sympathy for the patients. The request for the fence indicates a strong desire for the safety of the residents of Northville Township and City who live within the proximity of the hospital.

The planting of thorny bushes was the waste of money. There have been many incidents and one murder - the fence is long overdue.

Very truly yours, E. Thomas Lee

Merchants thanked for Easter parade aid

To the Editor:

Fence at psychiatric hospital 'overdue'

We ordered a sunny day in the park for Northville's first Easter Bonnet Parade, but the weather refused to cooperate. Thanks to Del Black and Dewey

Gardner, the Easter Bonnet contestants were able to parade in the comfort of Del's Shoes and IV Seasons, crowded but dry. The hats were beautiful and the contestants super. My sincere thanks go to all who took the time to participate, to the judges who had hard decisions to make and to the five ladies from the Country Girls Garden Club who helped line up the parade.

A thank you also goes to Copy Boy printer for the entry blanks and to the merchants who handed them out and promoted the parade.

It was a small beginning, but hopefully a step toward a really big event for Northville in the future.

Sincerely, Louise Whittington of IV Seasons Flowers

Geake urges delayed jobless benefit payments

By R. ROBERT GEAKE State Senator

Today, some 39 states require newlyunemployed workers to wait a week before receiving their unemployment benefits. Not surprisingly, Michigan is not one of them. This state's powerful labor lobby has, to date, been able to forestall this requirement, which could save Michigan businesses more than $170 million over the next two years.

With new Republican control, the state senate is now more likely to approve this controversial measure. The Labor Committee has already approved the bill and sent it to the floor of the chamber for debate. A vote is expected next week.

Adopting the waiting week would provide a significant cost-savings to Michigan employers without imposing unnecessary hardship on employees. The long-term unemployed worker would still receive the entire amount of unemployment benefits due, but the extra payment would come in the last week rather than the first presumably at a time when it would be needed more.

Those who are laid off temporarily. or have a greater ability to find a job, would be more likely to help save the system money. They would also have a greater incentive to get back to work sooner.

It is important to reiterate that the waiting week does not reduce the amount of benefits for the long-term unemployed - it simply delays payment for a week.

Over the past decade, Michigan has provided workers over $300 million in first-week benefits. The state has also lost important federal reimbursements because of this costly practice.

Imposition of the waiting week is needed in Michigan for two reasons: one, it will save the state's employers money without hurting those workers who really need the benefit; and two, it will send the message to potential businesses that Michigan is indeed a good place to locate.

It is significant to note that almost all of the major manufacturing states have joined the ranks of those who require a waiting week. According to the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce, Illinois, Ohio and Pennsylvania decided last year to implement waiting weeks as part of the unemployment compensation system. Interestingly, Michigan had a waiting week requirement until it was eliminated through intensive labor pressure in 1975.

Though Michigan worked hard to reform our own system in 1982, and negotiated many important agreements between management and labor, the one important facet that ultimately remained unsettled was the employee alike - and perhaps the most controversial waiting week issue. Now, important factor in Michigan's when the state's business climate is so economic recovery - it deserves very important to employer and another look.

The proposal was referred to the commission's general government committee where Dumas hopes it will be aired in public hearings, she said. "I feel it is very important for the people of this county to be able to express their views regarding the activity of this office," she emphasized.

With the Dumas proposal, three moves are under way to abolish the drain commission office. In addition to the two by Lucas and Dumas under consideration by the general government committee, Lucas also is seeking petition signatures to place the question on the ballot.

All charter amendments require voter approval, and must be placed on the ballot either by the county commission or the required number of signatures of registered voters. Lucas also is seeking four other amendments to the charter.

Lawsuit decision expected

By KEVIN WILSON

Under what conditions are police and firefighters justified in denying a citizen access to his home? That is a central issue in a $1 million lawsuit against Northville Township stemming from the Christmas Day, 1980, arson fire at Swan Harbor apartments.

The suit, in which Robert Lee Diefenderfer charges township police violated his constitutional rights when they refused him access to his apartment and subsequently arrested him, is being heard in federal circuit court in Detroit.

Testimony was presented beginning April 5 and continued through last week. Summation arguments and instructions to the jury were Monday at 4 p.m. A decision was expected Tuesday or Wednesday. At last report, township liability had been reduced to the area of $150,000 in the charge to the jury, but that was unconfirmed as of noon Tues-day. The suit was being heard before U.S. Circuit Court Judge Ralph Guy. At issue is whether police were within their authorized powers when they ar-rested Diefenderfer instead of allowing him to enter his apartment, which he stated during court testimony he wished to do in order to turn off Christmas tree lights.

The township contends power to the building had already been shut off, that Diefenderfer was drunk at the time and refused to identify himself fully, and that he was obstructing officers in the performance of their duties to investigate the crime scene.

The fire on December 25, 1980, was determined to have been set by Michael Collins, who subsequently was convicted of arson and sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment.

The fire gutted eight of 16 units in the apartment structure, including Diefenderfer's, and was estimated to have caused more than $300,000 damages.

According to news reports at the time, the fire had been extinguished, but police and fire personnel had only just begun their investigation the morning of December 26 when Diefenderfer sought to re-enter his apartment. At the time, it was said he wished to examine the extent of the damage. Police said he also identified himself only as Robert Lee, refusing to state his last name.

Police would not allow him access to the property, and he was arrested when he allegedly became belligerent and tried to push his way past thenlieutenant Kenneth Hardesty, who is now chief of the department. Diefenderfer was charged with resisting arrest and obstruction of police officers in the performance of their duties.

Diefenderfer's suit names as defendants the township, Hardesty, former chief Ronald Nisun, and former auxiliary police officers John Feldman and Steve Bowman. Nisun was flown in from his Florida home to testify. The suit charges that Diefenderfer was beaten up by police. The township response is that reasonable force was used to subdue a resisting subject.

When arrested, police said, Diefenderfer kicked the window out of a township holding cell and damaged the cell door. Charges of malicious destruc- \oplus burned building was shut off, and tion of police property were later drop- Diefenderfer's drinking habits. ped, as were the other felony charges.

The five-count suit alleges Diefenderfer was first beaten, then denied medical attention until released the following day, after being arraigned in 35th District Court. The resulting injuries, the suit states, caused pain and suffering and will continue to do so. It further states that Diefenderfer suffered "traumatic neurosis" as a result and will require psychiatric treatment. The second count of the suit alleges false arrest and imprisonment, the third negligence, the fourth gross negligence, and the fifth the violation of Diefenderfer's rights to liberty and due process of law.

A second suit is attached to the first and names as plaintiff Diefenderfer's wife Judy. It charges she suffered the loss of the care, comfort and compensation of her husband as well as suffering her own mental anguish.

Total damages sought in the suit exceed $1 million. According to township clerk Susan Heintz, some of the counts have been dropped and some defendants have been excluded from the remaining counts, reducing substantially the amount the jury could award if it finds in the plaintiff's favor. The jury was charged at 4 p.m. Mon-day. As of noon Tuesday, no decision had been rendered had been rendered.

Township officials said testimony has included, in addition to specifics sur-rounding the incident, such items as the quantity and quality of police training, the necessity of closing off the crime scene several hours after the fire was extinguished, the reasons for Nisun's dismissal from his job as police chief, when and for how long power to the Township officials and police personnel have been called to testify and many spent up to a week of working time at the court.

The Northville Record

Space career gave thrills, chills to last his lifetime

By KEVIN WILSON

Fourteen years ago Tuesday James A. Lovell, Jr. was the focus of world attention as he nursed the crippled Apollo 13 spacecraft back to a safe splashdown, concluding what has to rank as one of the most dramatic space iourneys in history.

Last week he relived the experience and many others from his career as a U.S. astronaut for a Northville Town Hall audience that hung on his every word, much as people everywhere did from April 11-17, 1970.

Lovell was commander of the illfated moon mission. The command module oxygen tanks ruptured and all its power failed, forcing the Navy captain and his two companions to use the funar landing craft as a lifeboat to circle the moon and make a dash for home.

"We were 90 hours from home, 200,000 miles out and heading in the wrong direction — toward the moon," when the oxygen tanks ruptured, he said. "I had just finished taking some television pictures in the lunar landing module and was coming out of the tunnel (connecting the command and lunar modules) when I heard a bang."

At first, Lovell said, he thought it was fellow astronaut Fred Haise playing a game in which he'd throw the switch on an oxygen valve and startle his companions. But Haise was asleep. "I looked over at Jack Swigart and his eyes were as big as saucers, he's saying to himself 'Why am I here?'"

Swigart was sent at the last minute to replace Ken Mattingly, who had been posed to measles. Doctors feared Mattingly might come down with the disease during the flight and grounded him (he never did contract measles). For that matter, Lovell wasn't supposed to be on Apollo 13 either - he and Alan Shepherd (Apollo 14) were switched because Shepherd had only recently recovered from ear surgery and NASA officials wanted to give him more training before sending him to the moon.

"Apollo 13 left the pad on April 11 at 13:13 standard time," Lovell recalls.

We were 90 hours from home, 200,000 miles out and heading in the wrong direction — toward the moon. . .when I heard a bang.'

—James Lovell former astronaut

"I'm not a suspicious man, but I knew something was going to happen."

The former astronaut, now an executive with a Houston-based telecommunications firm, concluded his speech by narrating a NASA film of the voyage, explaining that they had been forced to jury-rig the craft with tape, plastic and cardboard simply to reach earth with an adequate breathing supply. With the command module's oxygen leaked into space they had to rely on the lunar lander's oxygen - designed to serve two men for a couple of days instead of three for a week.

Despite the serious situation, Loyell noted some lighter moments. As the spacecraft neared lunar orbit and a period of communications blackout, he noted, NASA officials warned the crew they would have only one chance to fire the landing unit's engine in order to return to earth. As they radioed the proper procedures, Lovell said, he intently began writing them down.

"I looked up at my companions, and they're not writing. They're both looking at cameras, setting f/stops and shutter speeds," Lovell said. "I asked why they weren't writing this down and they said 'We want to take some pictures, Jim. You do it. You've been here before. we haven't. We want to get some photos.

"I told them 'if we don't get home, you're not going to get them developed."

Apollo 13 was the last flight in a career that at one time made Lovell holder of the world's record for most time spent in outer space and included another memorable ride atop the massive Saturn V rocket the Christmas-week Apollo 8 trip that marked the first time humans left earth orbit and traveled to the moon.

The latter mission he described as his "most awe-inspiring flight."

Speaking only hours after the crew of space shuttle Columbia snatched a broken-down satellite from earth orbit to make repairs, Lovell noted that among the tasks originally assigned to his first space trip — the two-week duration Gemini 7 — was to be testing of the backpack manuvering unit that allows astronauts to "walk" in space untethered.

"The test was canceled when they figured out we didn't have enough fuel to effect a rescue if something went wrong," Lovell explained. "It wasn't until late last year — 18 years after my flight — that the manuvering unit was first used."

That Gemini 7 mission of 1965 marked the longest flight ever*at the time and Lovell was second to Frank Borman, now Eastern Airlines president, on the mission.

He was also commander of the Gemini 12 flight - last in the series. Designed as a two-day flight, it was stretched to four days in order to add experiments, thus giving Lovell some experience in making do with short sup-

"I remember we had run out of drinking water and looking down from the pacecraft at the Pacific Ocean and all that water," Lovell noted.

The drama of Apollo 13 and the records set by Gemini 7 may be secon-dary to Lovell's memories of the Apollo 8 mission.

He said he counts himself lucky to have been among the first to cast his eyes on the back side of the moon from less than 60 miles away. Apollo 8 was originally to have been an earth orbital

James Lovell recalls what other astronauts were doing while he plotted return to earth

One with 'right stuff' faults film

Those who saw the movie "The Right Stuff" will recall a sequence during which astronaut candidates go through an outrageous battery of medical tests.

Doctors insert electrodes into candidates' hands and induce spasms with electric current that have the young test pilots' hands clenching and opening at incredible speeds; they are given enemas and made to ride an elevator and walk long hallways through public areas before getting to a lavatory; they compete with each other to see how long they can hold a ping pong ball aloft by blowing into a tube.

A clear case of filmmakers expanding on reality to generate a few laughs, right? Wrong. In fact, that sequence is one of the few segments of the film astronaut James Lovell said is dead accurate.

"Absolutely true," he told those attending the luncheon after his Northville Town Hall lecture April 10. Lovell was among the 36 candidates from which the original seven astronauts were drawn, and was selected in the second group; so he was present for many of the events por-trayed in both Tom Wolfe's book and the movie.

He said of the testing: "Some of the tests they put us through at Lovelace Clinic were unknown to medical science. It looks exaggerated, but it's not.

"You know the scene where they put needles in the guy's hand and make it move with electricity? I was the guinea pig for that one. I was the first one they did that to, and they blew a circuit and had to send out for other parts.

"And the bit with the enemas? Exactly, I'll never forget it." Overall, however, Lovell said the movie "didn't live up to the book" and was compressed to the point of inaccuracy. For instance, a large portion of the book dealt with Navy test pilots at Patuxent River, Maryland, but the movie transfers all test flight activity to Edwards Air Force Base, something the former Navy test pilot could hardly be expected to overlook.

"The movie exaggerates the book, which is already exaggerated," Lovell explained. "I particularly didn't like the caricature of Lyndon Johnson. And the movie is unkind to the German scientists - there's that scene where the astronauts are gathered together arguing to get a window put in the Mercury capsule. "That's really unfair to the German scientists - they were actually very sympathetic with us," Lovell said. There was basis in fact for the inci-mission --- and Lovell replaced Michael Collins, who had undergone surgery for a leg damaged in a bailout from a jet many years earlier. Collins later flew on the first lunar landing mission, Apollo 11.

But Lovell got Apollo 8, somewhat disrupting family plans to take a Christmas vacation in Mexico. It lifted off on December 21, 1968, and orbited the moon on Christmas Eve.

As they left earth orbit, Lovell, Frank Borman and William Anders were the first to see the earth shrink behind them. "I guess the closest thing you can compare it to is driving through a long tunnel and looking out the back window to watch the tunnel entrance shrink - there's all this black velvet and the earth is all you can see, and it's getting smaller and smaller."

The orientation of the spacecraft denied the astronauts any view of the , moon growing as they approached, Lovell explained, making their first sighting of it astounding. "The ground people told us we would be out of communication for a while. .We fired the engines for insertion to , lunar orbit and the lights on the panel confirmed we were orbiting the moon, but we still couldn't see it."

"Then we rotated the spacecraft and suddenly, we were looking right down on it from 60 miles up, the other side of the moon, the side you can't see from earth.

"We were like three kids in a candy store, and we were out of touch with the earth," Lovell said. "We were looking down and trying to identify things. Then we saw the earthrise. The earth was the only color you could see - the moon is a dead planet. It's all grey. Whatever impression you may have gotten from color photographs, it's solid grey. Color film just can't accept that it's just grey. "Anyway, Frank (Borman) and I saw this and said 'We have to take a pic-ture of this.'" But Anders, in charge of photography on the mission and busy taking photos of the lunar surface, told them they couldn't "waste film" taking pretty pictures, that they had to document the moon's surface. "Then he looked up and saw the ear-thrise and said 'We have to take a picture of this.""

The result is one of the most famous photographs of the space age and has been reproduced thousands of times the earth like a multi-colored gem laid on velvet cloth above the stark lunar dust.

"If you talk to Frank Borman, he'll say 'I was captain of that flight - I took that picture. Talk to Anders and he'll say, 'I was in charge of photography on that mission and I took that picture.' Ladies and gentleman, I took that picture," said Lovell, adding while the crowd laughed, "Actually, we don't know. I think my window was dirty."

During the luncheon after his presentation, Lovell noted that one of the biggest disappointments of his career was that he never got to land on the moon. Apollo 13 was to have been his chance, and its failure denied him that ultimate

"Here's my story about "The Right Stuff:' About five years before the book came out my wife said to me that an author had asked for an interview about the early days of the space program and would I speak to him?" Lovell related.

"I said sure. So Tom Wolfe came over, and I talked with him for about five hours. Now, as he's leaving he says, 'Here, I want you to have this, it's my latest book,' and he autographs it. I looked down at the book and it's called "The Electric Kool-Aid Acid Test."" "I thought to myself, 'Oh, my gosh, I

Dinner dance, tour end Newcomers' year

By JEAN DAY

As Joan Hursey, who is completing her year as president of Northville Newcomers, and other Newcomer officers turn over their files to the newly elected slate, they are making plans to close out their 1984 social year with an annual dinner dance.

The date is set — May 19. The popular event will be at Meadowbrook Country Club with reservations now being taken for tickets, which are $35 a couple. Pat Ganfield is taking the reservations for members, alums and guests until the May 4 deadline at 349-6154. The evening will include dinner and music by the Marshall Korby Band.

The ladies group of Newcomers will end the year with the mini home tour that is becoming a tradition. Members, alumna and guests will tour three area homes May 3. While they are not Linda Clark, 349-6945, is taking reservations, which are limited and must be in by April 26. The day includes lunch at the Magic Pan restaurant in Novi.

Tickets are on sale for chamber party

If "hot pink" - the color of the tickets for the "Men of Northville" event being sponsored by the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce May 9 — is any indication, it should be a fun evening for those attending, as chamber president Sherry Spaman says it's intended to be. It is being held at Meadowbrook Country Club beginning at 6 p.m. on the Wednesday evening. A hot appetizer buffet will be served at 7 p.m. with the Men of Northville fashion show beginning at 8 p.m.

Among the business and professional men who have accepted Spaman's invitation to participate in the show are Judge Dunbar Davis, attorney David Jerome, Superintendent of schools George Bell, City Police Chief Rodney Cannon, Township Supervisor John MacDonald, State Police Post director William Tomczyk, businessmen Joe Lineman, Lee Holland and Chuck Lapham and Dr. Lawrence Chamberlain, senior pastor at First Presbyterian Church. Fashions will be from Lapham's Men's Store with women's wear from the Marquis complementing them.

The event is open to the community. Tickets are $15 each and are available from chamber board members or at the chamber building from executive director Kay Keegan. The evening is a "first such event" for the chamber and is part of Prexy Spaman's plans to increase the number of general membership, social get-togethers of the chamber.

'Flying down to Rio' was a reality for Petriccas

Nobody has to tell Julie Petricca that she's lucky. After becoming one of 15 winners in radio station Magic 95's song contest, she won the grand drawing for a trip for two to Rio de Janeiro. Initially, as the ninth caller to the station, she won $95 and the chance to compete for the trip.

She and her husband Don took the eight-day trip last month and report it was fall in the city in Southeast Brazil. "It was gorgeous weather," says Julie Petricca who relates they stayed in the Rio Palace Hotel, "probably the nicest in Rio." The lucky travelers also were given $1,000 in spending money for the jaunt. It was well worth dialing the station, Julie agrees, saying, "When they started playing the song, I started dialing.

Doyle no-hits Falcons

Three straight! Mustangs on a roll 🏾

Clobbering the ball at a .330 clip and getting superb pitching performances, shamed Novi, South Lyon and Farm-ington to open its '84 season with three straight runaway victories.

High point of the week was senior southpaw Doug Doyle's no-hit 12-2 win Wednesday over Farmington, the only Western Lakes league team Northville faced.

Doyle's first decision looked like anything but a gem in the first inning. He gave up three walks, and the Falcons brought two runners home on three Mustang errors and two stolen bases

But after the first, Doyle was untouchable. He struck out 13 hitters and issued nine walks in seven innings of work. "Doug just wasn't giving 'em anything to hit," observed Northville Coach Fred Holdsworth.

Meanwhile, Mustang hitters slugged in more than 10 runs for the third straight game, tagging Falcon pitchers for 17 hits — all singles. Northville scored in every inning but the second. Shortstop Dave Longridge collected three hits, and Jay Bartling, Doug Hartman, Bob Pegrum and Steve Frellick had two each. Mickey Newman and Steve Schrader led the RBI attack with two apiece.

NORTHVILLE 11 NOVI 1

Here's what Novi Coach Bob Weinburger had to say about Northville after both teams' season opener Monday:

"They've got some big guys and a lot of speed. Their first seven hitters all look like they can hit the ball well. No question, they've got some good talent this year.'

The Mustangs jumped all over Weinburger's last-minute starting choice Len Stachowski with seven first-inning runs on three walks, an error, back-toback singles by Newman and Schrader and Dan Nielsen's three-run double.

'Northville's got some very good talent this year.⁹

> - Bob Weinburger Novi Baseball Coach

Nielsen picked up the win. The big righthander had his low fastball right on target, allowing just one run, two hits and no walks in five innings of work. He struck out five.

Doyle came on to work the last two innings and blanked the Wildcats on two strikeouts and a walk.

Four Mustangs picked up two hits apiece — catcher Bartling, Longridge, second baseman Newman and first baseman Schrader.

NORTHVILLE 10 SOUTH LYON 5

"It wasn't any classic," Holdsworth said of Northville's second win. The Lions and Mustangs split 10 errors for the game, and Holdsworth was none too happy with the Mustangs' defensive lapses (Northville also had five errors against Farmington).

"I'm really impressed with this ballclub," he said. "But we'd better tighten up our defense, especially the infield. We won't be able to make that many mistakes against teams in our division."

Chris Willerer made an impressive debut to earn the third spot in Northville's pitching rotation. The junior

Cahill explodes with nine goals in three soccer wins

By B.J. MARTIN

Northville's varsity soccer team opened its season last week with three straight Western Lakes Activities Association victories, capped by Friday night's dramatic 4-2 win over resurgent Plymouth Canton.

The Chiefs were 2-0 and sky-high going into the contest, complete with war paint. But Northville's offensive buzzsaw. Lisa Cahill, was right in the Cahill scored all four Mustang goals against Canton, demonstrating unstop-pable offensive moves as she did in the two previous games. Cahill has nine goals in just three games, and it looks like nothing short of a machine gun will keep the senior from shattering her own season-scoring mark and asserting her place as Northville's best-ever offensive player Her left-footed volley cracked the ice, and then a breakaway staked Nor-thville to a 2-0 lead. But Canton didn't fold, and struck back with a goal just before the half. Cahill made it 3-1 early in the second period on another solo effort.

Then came trouble. Defender/midfielder Kathy Korowin pulled up ith a sprained ankle, leaving Northville's defense confused and vulnerable until her return late in the game. (Korowin should be OK for this eek's action.)

Canton came back with another goal, but Cahill countered with the last goal of the game, a drive from the right side. Northville Coach Stan Smalec credited Tricia Ducker, Northville's freshman goalie, with the play that preserved the win, however.

As Canton swarmed around the Nor-thville net late in the game, Canton striker broke in on Ducker and fired a shot to her right. Ducker made a diving save, then scrambled after the loose ball and fell on it.

"I think if Tricia didn't make that play, we would have been in trouble," Smalec said. "The Chiefs were pretty keyed up at that point and looked like they were really going to take it to us in the last few minutes if they scored."

NORTHVILLE 10 HARRISON 0

It didn't take long for Northville to get over its first-game jitters Monday of last week. The Mustangs fired 39 shots on goal against struggling Farmington Harrison. Everybody on both teams' rosters saw plenty of game time Cahill saw enough to score four goals.

Sue Borthwick added two, Korowin two (including a penalty shot), Dianne Dragon and Julie Anger one each.

"That was a great game for us," Smalec said later. "We have a lot of new faces on the team this year, and we weren't too sure about ourselves. Things were really quiet on the bus going over there. But by the time we were headed back, we felt like a team."

> NORTHVILLE 3 FARMINGTON 0

Northville faced a slightly tougher foe two days later, and the score was deadlocked for 20 minutes. Then Smalec went to his ace in the hole, Roxanne Serkaian, a versatile, strong freshman. Serkaian was in the game just two minutes when she got Northville's first goal by slamming home a loose ball in the penalty area from the left wing.

Cahill got another goal with what Smalec called "another one of her ballhandling gems," and left winger Jill Bemer also tallied for the Mustangs.

Smalec said his lineup arrangement has worked well so far. He usually starts with Bemer, Cahill and Borthwick on the line, with Linda Townsend linking that trio to midfielders Anger, Korowin and Kim Flading. Over the course of a game, he fine tunes those players and those from the bench to the demands of the game.

On the back line, Julie Nowka, Cheryl

Spaman and Jill Jensen have been ironing out Smalec's tricky sweeper-back system. If they catch on, Northville may be able to counter effectively the loss of last year's Michigan soccer MVP, Martina Millen.

"We might have some trouble early on, but we should be rolling by late in the year," Smalec predicted. "We'll learn this week if we're going to get Kim Petit back with us regularly, and that will help our defense a lot."

Northville will have problems with some games scheduled during the high school's spring break. It may be difficult for shorthanded Northville to overcome the Livonia Bentley Patriots tomorrow, and to defend their '83 Schoolcraft Tournament championship Friday and Saturday of next week.

Track team places ninth at relay meet

Northville's boys' track team took ninth in the rain-drenched Langerman Relays last Saturday, finishing with 15 points, well back of meet champion Lakeland with 84.

Belleville placed second with 76 points and Benedictine third with 57. The tourney hosts, Walled Lake Western, had the best finish of the four Western Lakes Activities Association squads competing. The Warriors accumulated 421/2 points for fourth place.

Northville's top performance came from Mark Knoth, who had the secondbest time in the open 120 high hurdles, 15.3. Only one Mustang relay team placed as high as fourth at the meet: the pole vault relay duo of Tom Broderick and Rich Naszradi, who each cleared 8'6"

There was one fifth place finish: in the mile relay, John Klokkenga, Mike Hilfinger, Tom Broderick and John Meadows ran a 3:53.2. Northville took sixth in the distance medley, with Irven Meadows running an 880, Joel Vogt a 440, Klokkenga a 1,320 (three-quarters of a mile) and Jim Riney running a mile. The time was 11:35.2.

Knoth, Klokkenga, Tim Millen and John Briningstool added a sixth with a shuttle relay time of 1:07.4. In the long jump relay, Joel Vogt, Broderick and Hilfinger combined for a 52'2" effort, good for sixth.

Northville was held back by disqualifications in both the 880 relay and the 440 relay for improper handoffs. Coach Brian Murphy attributed the lapses to inexperience, but said he was encouraged by the half-mile relay's unofficial time of 1:38.0.

Vogt, who suffered a groin muscle injury that makes his status iffy for the indefinite future, popped a long jump of 19'10", but he fouled, settling for an 18'2" on a subsequent leap.

Beach takes 3rd at gymnastics tilt

Northville's Wendy Beach, 13, turned in a superb performance at the Division IV state gymnastics championships in Port Huron Sunday. A first-year gymnast, Beach placed third overall in the Juniors' bracket (ages 12-15).

Beach was state champion in uneven parallel bars, took fourth in balance beam and fifth in floor exercise at the prestigious meet. She trains and competes with the Farmington Gymnastics Club.

Senior outfielder Pat Wazny delivered two clutch hits in the contest, driving in Denise Liddle with a thirdinning single and singling to lead off the fifth. After reaching base the second time, Wazny stole second, moved to third on a wild pitch and scampered home on Julie Kaestner's RBI single. Northville's other big blow came when Ann Brisbey and Chris McGowan walked to open the second inning and Lori Housman socked a two-run single to score both.

NORTHVILLE 3 SOUTH LYON 12

The Lions were hot off a doubleheader sweep of defending state cham-pion Belleville, and showed Northville no mercy, scratching out runs in all but one inning. Again Henderson (0-2) took the loss, while McGowan didwell after coming on in the fourth.

Northville was blanked until the fifth inning, when the Kaestner doubled in Wazny, who had singled. Northville picked up two more runs in the seventh after a single by Wazny and walks to Brisbey and Vicki Robins loaded the bases. A walk to Kaestner brought Wazny home, and Brisbey flew home on a wild pitch.

NORTHVILLE 5 FARMINGTON 7

McGowan finally got to start a game and it made a big difference. The Mustangs were in the contest all the way, forcing extra innings when Robins delivered a run-scoring double to tie the game at 5-5.

The score stayed that way until the top of the eighth, when the tiring McGowan, still shaking off a long bout with mono, walked in a run. A single by Julie Walterman gave the Falcons a two-run cushion.

Northville rallied in the bottom of the eighth when walks to Jackie Mateucci and Kaestner plus two steals put the pair on second and third with one down. Mateucci failed to tag up and run home on Chris McGowan's fly to left, but Robins' grounder to second ended the game anyway. Northville made some baserunning errors late in the game that might have cost the game. But the team looked aggressive and talented defensively, demonstrating decent speed and excellent infield glovework. Northville travels to Walled Lake

Western for a 4 p.m. game today, then will be idle for spring break until May 2.

Northville's DeMattos named to All-State team

Northville's Steve DeMattos, a senior at Redford Catholic Central, was named recently to the Class A All-State hockey team by a state hockey coaches.

DeMattos, a 5'11" 170-pound senior defenseman, had six goals and six assists for the Shamrocks. But it was his consistent defensive skills that earned him praise from Metro League coaches.

DeMattos skated in the Northville Hockey Association before it folded, then had standout seasons for AAA Pee Wee and Bantam AAA clubs. DeMattos also was an All-State soccer player for the Shamrocks last fall.

In addition to playing soccer and hockey for Catholic Central, DeMattos has also played youth league baseball and soccer on area teams during off-seasons.

righthander threw five scoreless innings, striking out five and walking five.

Sophomore reliever Chris Dominique struggled a bit in the final two innings, allowing three earned runs on two hits and three walks, but held on for the save. For the season, Northville's pit-ching staff has a nifty ERA of 1.33.

A six-run fourth inning gave Northville all the margin it would need. After Frellick and Bartling singled, Steve Schrader smashed the season's first homer, a three-run blast over the right field fence.

Three more runs scored on a double by Hartman and singles by Ruffing, Newman and Schrader again. Frellick, Schrader and Hartman led the hitting attack for the day with two hits each.

Northville faces its toughest test yet in today's 4 p.m. home game against Western Division rival Walled Lake Western. The up-and-down Warriors lost two games after junior pitching sensation Dan Gabriele hurled a dazzl-ing no-hit shutout in their season opener. After today's game, Northville closes up shop for spring break until May 2, when the Mustangs take on Plymouth Salem.

Mustang tennis squad slams first three opponents

By B.J. MARTIN

Picking up right where they left off last year, the Northville varsity tennis team blasted Novi, Farmington and Ypsilanti in its first three matches last week.

The defending league champion Mustangs took an improved Novi squad 5-2 to open the season Monday. Arvind Sreedharan swamped Wildcat first singles player Rusty Benoit 6-0, 6-0 to set the tone, then Brant Nicholas turned back Hasnaim Punja in second singles 6-4, 6-3, Novi senior Doug Palmer gave Northville's Mark Reitenga all he could handle, though, dropping the freshman Mustang 2-6, 6-3, 3-6. In fourth singles, John Huston topped Novi's Akira Yoshada 6-4, 6-4.

Northville's first doubles pair, Dirk Nowka and Tim Campbell, topped Novi's Kurt Kreuger and Tim Hanes in two easy sets. Don Norton and David Merrifield were shaken by the Wildcat pair of Mark Boksha and Steve Truedell in the first set, losing 5-7, but the pair bounced back to win 6-2, 6-4 in the next two sets.

Northville Coach Dick Norton identified his third doubles lineup as a headscratcher until he can get Dave Kaminski healthy again after a two-week bout with the flu. Monday, Norton called on Bill Harmon and Kirk Morrison, who fell 1-6, 3-6 to Novi's Bruce Hardy and Eric Polinski.

NORTHVILLE 6 FARMINGTON 1

The only close match was the first singles showdown between Sreedharan and the Falcons' ace, Drew Chuba. Chuba won the first 2-6, but Sreedharan battled from a 3-5 deficit in the second set to force a tiebreaker at 7-6. Sreedharan topped the demoralized Chuba 7-4 in the tiebreaker, then smashed Chuba 6-0 in the final set for the win.

Nicholas fell to Mark Dupree in se-cond singles, but Northville took all the remaining matches in straight sets except for second and third doubles. Farmington's Jim Lyle and Mark Richardson fell to Norton and Merrifield in three sets, and Northville took the first and third set against Tim Mienke and Scott Mazy with a third doubles team of Steve Peltz and Mike Reitenga.

Expert explains computer decisions

By JEAN DAY

While computers affect grocery shopping, utility billings and almost every other aspect of everyday living, children are likely to be more comfortable with a computer than are their parents in small businesses.

Today, however, computers are becoming increasingly important to small businesses, and there are an array of products available at more af-fordable prices, Gilbert Spaman, vice president of Accountants' Computer Services, told members of the Northville Community Chamber of Com-merce at a breakfast meeting April 11.

Spaman, whose background in computers includes several years in time sharing where he was product develop ment specialist for a variety of general purpose user software packages, advised business owners first to assess their own situation and then to look at options available in the computer industry.

He detailed the advantages and disadvantages of (1.) having others provide computer service for a business, (2.) using time sharing or (3.) purchasing or leasing a computer system.

The decision to do your own computer work or to hire others to do it, he told those attending the monthly breakfast session at Northville First Presbyterian, Church, should be looked at on the basis of whether it will increase profits, give better customer service or provide an edge over the competition.

Computers are good at doing repetitive tasks at great speed, or producing high volumes of work, he continued

Those who opt to have others provide the computer service usually will have consulting service available. Spaman said this is especially important for the first-time user who needs more assistance computer. This, warned the speaker, can be expensive. Under time sharing the client is billed for logged time on the computer. A business with extensive inventory, Spaman illustrated, can create a master file with a time sharing system, tracking items on line. Invoices can be sent out earlier, he said. Time sharing advantages were listed as flexibility, increasing or decreasing use, low processing costs since payment is only for time used, and a fast response for quicker decision-making. In addition, trained personnel are not required, and the equipment is the responsibility of the service. Disadvantages, Spaman cited, may be the basic reliability of the system and the fact that at peak-load times response time may be slower. The security of the data also is a question here.

Having an in-house system located on the premises gives the business owner complete control, but much depends on the competency of the staff, Spaman said.

"Management must know precisely what it wants," he warned. An advantage, Spaman pointed out, is

The $7 class May 9 runs from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and includes color analysis and demonstrations to answer questions about the uses and application of color analysis in fashion, makeup, interior design and business. Registration for the class is at the board of education building, 501 West Main, Northville.

A licensed cosmetologist and graduate of Virginia Farrell Beauty Schools, Burkowski regularly offers individual and group color consultations, analysis and instruction programs for fashion, beauty and interior design. She also offers a curriculum for certification as a color consultant, individualized wardrobe planning and shopping assistance and a complete make-over service including wardrobe, make-up and hair.

CORRECTION - A business brief in the April 4 Green Sheet should have said Dr. Kenneth Poss has offices at 41630 West Ten Mile in Novi, 331 North Center in Northville and at 30931 Seven Mile Road in Livonia.

Growth agency is planned

By Dan Vecchioni

Federal dollars could come pouring into the coffers of small businesses in Western Wayne and Oakland counties should a proposal being developed by members of the Canton Township and Livonia chambers of commerce be approved.

The proposal is for a community growth agency made up of local governments, economic development organizations, higher education, private industry and labor from a 26community area stretching from Huron Township to Milford.

The agency created under the auspices of the state department of commerce's Community Growth Agency Program is designed to assist small businesses in obtaining federal contracts, said Daniel Redstone, chairman of the Livonia chamber. He is a member of the chamber's committee assigned to develop the proposal. "The whole idea started (with the state) with getting federal contracts," said Redstone. "There's hundreds and hundreds of federal contracts that Michigan businesses are not aware of. The idea is to get (federal) dollars back into Michigan.

"It's part of (Governor James) Blanchard's business plan for the state," said Robert Malek, a member of the Canton chamber who is involved with

Women business owners confer

Women business owners will attend a conference April 27-28 at the Northfield Hilton in Troy. Designed as a forum to address concerns of women business owners, the program includes workshops in marketing, management, finance and presentations from nationally-known speakers.

The cost is $85 including two-day admis-

the same committee. "He's pushing it aggressively."

The agency will help small businesses by providing the services and skills needed to deal with the governmental bidding process. The agency is also expected to provide such other services as export assistance, employee retraining and job placement.

Although it's still in the application process, Malek said the agency probably will have a staff of two full-time employees, be headquartered in Livonia and operate with a budget of up to $150,000. A board and executive council would be elected from among the agency's members.

Funding, Malek said, will come from both membership fees and other donations — cash or in-kind — which will be matched by the state.

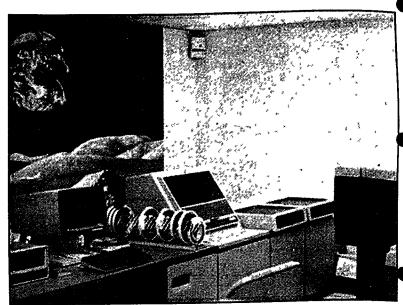

Plans also call for the agency to be established as a non-profit corporation managed by businessmen "because we don't want (politicians and governmen-tal officials) ruining it," Malek said.

Redstone said the timetable calls for potential members to be contacted in May, application filing in June and the agency to open in October.

Besides Canton and Livonia, the communities being considered as part of the agency include, from The Green Sheet circulation area; Milford, South Lyon, Novi, Walled Lake, Wixom and Lyon Township.

sion, workshops, exhibits, marketplace, luncheons and reception. For further information and a brochure, contact Wayne State University non-credit programs at 577-4710. Program highlights include a pro-curement briefing by state and federal government officials; an awards luncheon at noon Friday and one-on-one interviews.

need clean areas with reliable electrical power.

Also, he continued, they may require additional personnel.

"Systems become obsolete as the industry is progressing so fast," he mentioned, noting that while the initial hardware purchase may not be too costly, the needed software can be expensive.

He told the chamber members there must be a back-up system to ensure the information is safe and warned that a disk easily can be de-magnitized and lose its data. Theft in the corporation can also be a factor.

He suggested that a business owner shop for computer software that will perform all tasks. Since programming is expensive to develop, he told his audience that a business would be wise "to look at the software first and then find a computer on which it will run." As an example of incompatibility, he noted that the PET system will not run on the APPLE. "Each manufacturer has a specific format," he explained, adding that a $300 computer may not seem expensive until it requires $75 an hour to customize it. Instructional time also must be provided for.

"You should make a financial analysis, using the same criteria as for any other equipment," Spaman said, "making sure the rate of return is the best you can get whether through lease or purchase.

"It pays to stick with the leaders in the field. There are few bargains," he stressed.

Spaman told his audience that dollar volume of a business is no longer a criteria for purchase of a computer.

the fairy godmother's secret is out!

Don't let that "magic wand" fool you! She's tried to make us believe that with a wave of that wand, she can turn pumpkins into carriages, mice into white horses and rags into white gowns. But we know she's just like the rest of us! When we want to turn a baby crib into cash ... an older car into a new one... or change from sales clerk to doctor's receptionist... the only magic wand we hold in our hand is a telephone receiver and the only thing we wave is our index finger as we dial the Classified Department of our newspaper! It's like magic the way good things come true for us with the help of Want Ads. And besides, we have a strong feeling that's the way the fairy godmother makes all her magic, too!

McNeeleys tackle their own landscaping

By SUE LOWE

The average homeowner's second largest investment usually is the land upon which he builds his house. The care with which he treats this investment can increase the value of the house, and add to the utility of the land.

There are two basic philosophies to landscaping, or improving land. Some homeowners choose to do it all themselves, while others would rather turn the whole job over to a professional or landscape architect.

A great variety of plants and architectual structures are available to both types of homeowner; however, only the do-it-yourselfer must study and learn about the materials on his own. He also faces long hours of backbreaking work.

Fortunately, many "city" farmers have a sense of adventure and enjoy both the study and the work.

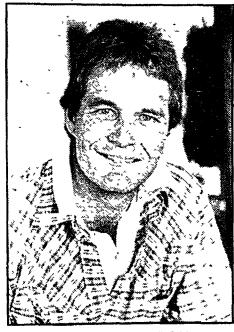

The Red Barn Nursery, on Duck Lake Road south of Commerce Road in Commerce Township, caters to do-ityourselfers who want to save money by digging their own plants, Marcia Johnson now owns the nursery which her father, Brock Peters, began in 1931. The Red Barn has three acres of bushes and trees which were grown right on the place (only the fruit trees are not home-grown).

Johnson says that most of the people who come to her nursery know what they want, but many ask her advice. "I tell them what type of plant grows well in shade and sun or in clay soil or sandy soil," she continues.

"Most people don't plunge in and do the whole job at once, but do as much as they can afford each year. I tell them they should have a plan or an idea of what they want before they begin buying plants."

Kevin Danielson, partner in the land

KEVIN DANIELSON

Since the McNeeleys built their own house from the ground up, it was only natural that they would want to tackle the landscaping job in the same manner.

in front of the house which faces west, the couple planted pyramidal and globe yews and some accent plants. They have also built a circular arrangement of rocks and chrysanthemums.

The McNeeleys' lot is three quarters of an acre. Around the deck they have planted flowering shrubs such as quince, flowering almond and Persian lilac. At various accent points in the yard, they have added five birch trees, a maple tree, and an apple tree.

James McNeeley explains that burning bushes grow best in semi-sun; so he planted a row of these bushes on the north side of the house. "We planted the tilacs in the sun because they need sun, and we put a pussy willow under the eaves to prevent it from getting too much scape architectual firm of Danielson-Ryan and Associates of Beachway Drive in Milford, agrees with Johnson on this point.

"Planning is important," Danielson insists. "Landscaping is an investment and poor planning can result in loss of investment five years down the line. Many amateurs don't know how plants are going to look when they are grown. When they buy the plants they are small, but many plants grow way out of proportion to the whole scheme in five years."

An example of do-it-yourselfers who went to the trouble to read and study landscaping on their own are the James McNeeleys who live just down the road from the Red Barn Nursery on Duck Lake Road.

South States and the states and sun."

"Pussy willows grow fast in sun," McNeeley continues. "Mrs. Johnson told us that we should plant a pussy willow and then jump back because it would explode in growth."

Johnson says she advised the McNeeleys to put yews along the front of the house. "It is a somewhat shady area, and yews grow well in shade. Japanese yews are also easy to keep down in size, and the McNeeleys needed something that would not grow out of proportion to their house."

McNeeley says he was surprised at how cheaply he landscaped his lot. "We did the whole job for under $1,000, and that included seeding the lawn and buying the plants, stones and edging.'

He says he bought additional topsoil to put around the planting. "I learned how to plant our trees and bushes by reading Better Homes and Gardens landscaping book and the various Sunset books on gardening. We only lost one tree out of all we planted."

Both Johnson, a grower, and Danielson, a landscape architect, advise Michigan homeowners to buy plants which are native to the area. "These plants are hardy for our zone and have already adapted defenses against disease and insects in the area," Danielson explains.

Danielson mentions two examples which he prefers: the Hawthorn and the redtwig dogwood. "Berries from the Hawthorn draw birds and the thorny-type Hawthorn encourages birds to nest. The redtwig dogwood is as beautiful in the winter without leaves as it is in the summer with them. The red branches are a striking picture when the bush is surrounded by snow.'

Danielson's firm recently completed work on a lawn owned by Bud and Sharon Stefanko of Lake Sherwood. The Stefankos' lakeside area is very steep and had already been terraced. Several large boulders remained from former attempts at landscaping.

Danielson says his job was to unify the various elements in the lawn and he did this by softening the effects of the stark boulders. "We planted materials of various heights, color and texture to hide the effects of the rocks."

Around the deck, Danielson planted a type of viburnum because of its fragrance. Throughout the lawn he made use of subterranean lighting. "It gives a little more sexy effect to have the lights shining up into the trees rather than have them glaring into your eyes," he explains.

Subterranean lighting allows the architect to produce the effect of light without revealing the source, a common trick of indoor decorators who design hidden lighting techniques.

Another problem the Stefankos encountered when they began to landscape their property was a utility box in the front yard. Former attempts to hide the box by planting bushes around it had just drawn attention to the box.

Danielson advised the couple to plant ground covers around the bushes and establish an attractive bed so that attention was drawn to the plants rather than the box.

Identifying strong points as well as objectional views is part of the initial planting," Danielson explains.

In his final argument for advance planning, Danielson delivers the clincher.

"I am especially careful to design landscapes which are low in maintenance," he says. "We work too hard five days a week to come home and be a slave to our grounds on the weekends."

JAMES GALBRAITH

By KATHY LAVEY

What do you do when you get your furniture moved into your new condominium and suddenly realize it's just like every other condominium in the complex?

It might be a good idea to follow the example of Burghard and Kathy Linn. Their condominium in Brighton's Hamilton Farms proves that some not-too-toughto-add touches can transform a few plain old rooms into something special.

Over the eight years the Linn family it also includes son Damian, 10, and daughter Marisa, 5 — has lived in the three-bedroom condo, many improvements have been made.

During the week Burghard is a General Motors engineer, but on the weekends he becomes whatever plans for the condominium require him to be — tile layer, floor-replacer, bathroom-remodeler or furniture-builder.

One of the first improvements made to the condominium, Kathy said, was ceramic tile Burghard put on the kitchen wall and floor and in front of the living room fireplace. He also added ceramic tile to the condominium's bathrooms.

The downstairs half-bath reflects the European influence brought to the condominium's decorating by Burghard, a native of Germany. The lower half of the wall, cupboard doors, medicine chest and dropped ceiling are done in natural pine, while the upper half of the walls are done in burlap. There are red enamel hooks on the wall and cupboard door handles are also red enamel. The floor is, off-white rectangular ceramic tiles.

"This bathroom is one of my favorite rooms," said Kathy with a laugh. "In Europe you see lots of bathrooms done with wood." The bathroom decor is completed by a clay wall-hanging made by Damian and a colorful soft-sculpture hanging that Kathy made.

The pale wood of which the Linns are fond is found throughout the house in the narrow oak flooring Burghard laid in the condominium's entryway, hall and dining area. One wall area upstairs and the wall around the fireplace are also decorated with the oak flooring, put up in a diagonal pattern and beveled at the edges.

Adding the oak to fireplace, upstairs wall, some woodwork and stair railings took Burghard, about, five, months working weekends and some evenings, Kathy said — but the results are well worth it.

"When we moved in everything was white in here," she explained. "The (fireplace wall) was just a white wall, really nondescript."

The Linns also followed European examples in using a variety of cabinets, cupboards and shelves to make the best use of space in their home. The family's computer occupies a corner of the stairway landing, neatly ensconced in a deskcabinet combination Burghard made especially to house it.

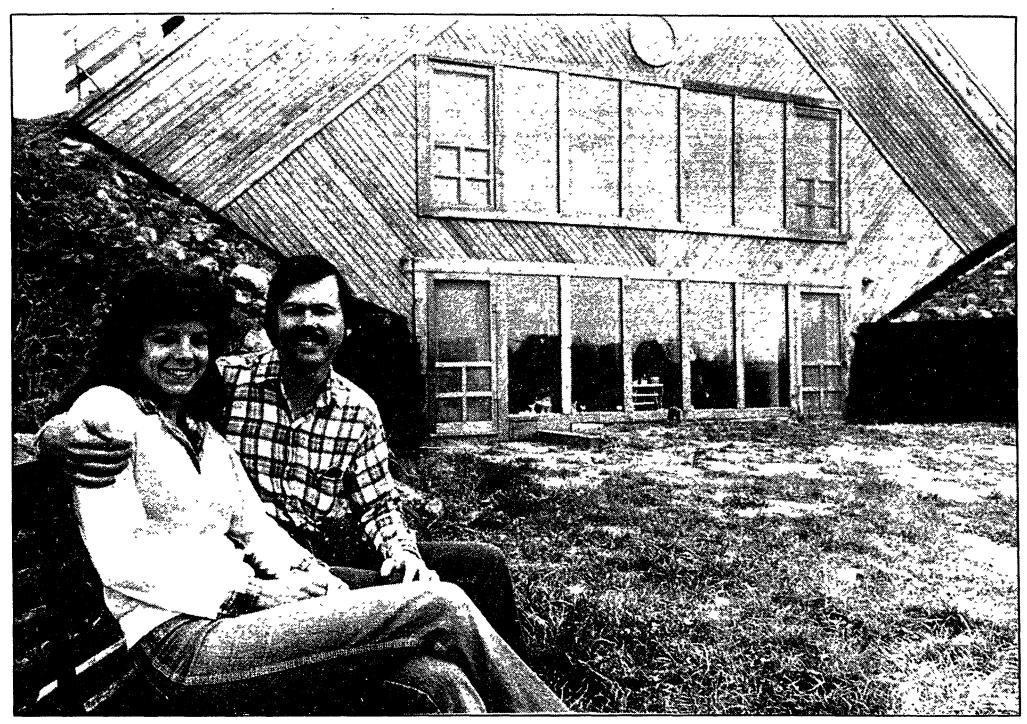

Upstairs, each child's bedroom includes a combination of cupboard and closet — again built by Berghard — on one wall. The finishing touch to the attractive, space-saving storage unit is a

Mclvers' ome passes energy-efficient

By MARILYN HERALD

The winter of 1983-84 may have been one of the coldest on record for southern Michigan, but for John and Mary Mclver it was a winter of contentment and warmth in their new energy- efficient house near South Lyon.

The Mclvers moved into their earth sheltered home in July, 1983; so the past few months were their first real test of the dome-shaped home's solar heating capabilities. Although John admits that electric bills for the home ran a little higher than he had hoped (an average of $60 per month rather than $50 as estimated), Mary says she is "happier every day (with their new house).'

Except for its solar qualities, the house is totally electric, and the McIvers have a special rate for their electricity through Detroit Edison.

"It is definitely a good investment." Mary says. "The only utility bill that I have that is higher since we moved is my telephone bill because I am farther from my family and friends. It seems like every number I dial here begins with a 1."

The McIvers' 20-foot-diameter dome home from Earth Systems in Colorado has two six-foot extensions and a southern exposure with a wide two-story expanse of windows that provides maximum use of the sun in heating. In addition, the "great room" of the home has a "Trophy Fireplace," a woodburning stove with glass doors which is equipped with coils for hot water during the winter months. The water is thus about 90 degrees when it reaches the hot water tank where the electric element takes over. Two solar collectors on the roof take care of summer hot water needs.

"The woodburner is called a zeroclearance fireplace because it does not need heavy brick or masonry to set it," Mary explains. John says he has burned three cords of soft wood this winter, all taken from scrap on their two-acre lot. The fireplace is designed to use outside air for combustion so that air is taken out of the house.

the Mclvers' home is In addition, ed with a vast openness that the McIvers enjoy, but it does not allow for shutting off the upstairs in the winter. Mary says, however, that they only heat the master bedroom at night when they are sleeping. This is done by the thermostaticallycontrolled electric heater.

"We also leave a few logs in the fireplace at night, and there is a little fan that blows to move the air," Mary adds.

Besides the great room and master bedroom and bath, the lower level has a central kitchen, open to the living area so that anyone working at the sink can enjoy the outddor view provided by the south windows. The laundry room, which also serves as a sort of hallway, is located behind the kitchen, close to the back door and the attached earthsheltered garage.

Mary notes that having the garage earth-sheltered is a real plus because, even during the past winter's extremely cold days, they never had a problem with their cars starting. "It was even guite warm in the garage just because it is set into the hill," Mary explains.

BARGAINS

The upper level of the 20-foot-high dome, reached by an open stairway, includes a family room, a bedroom and a den, all with southern exposures, and a smaller bathroom. An eight-foot sliding oak door between the family room and den gives a feeling of spaciousness when opened and of privacy when closed.

The steel structure of the dome is attractively plastered in a textured pattern blending into the walls above the wainscoting. John and Mary are very pleased with the work of the plasterer, Chuck Heath of Ypsilanti, who "almost finger-painted the ceiling" to produce the textured effect they wanted.

Air intakes for cooling the house are on the roof. Seven tubes, each six inches in diameter and 85 feet long make up the air collectors. Each tube is buried 10-15 feet below ground so that when the 80-90 degree outdoor air is drawn in by a reversed attic fan, it is blown through the cooling earth and comes into the house at 65-70 degrees. There are seven registers throughout the house for circulating the cool air in summer.

equipped with four electric heaters, two in the living room, and one each in the master bedroom and bath. "One of those in the living room has a fan, and we usually use that to raise the temperature in the house fast when we come home from work on a cold day. Then we turn it off."

Mary adds that the lowest temperature they have had inside was 60 degrees. She notes also that, when the sun shines, the house easily reaches 65-70 degrees due to the solar rays. "And we don't yet have the insulation over the windows (which are quad-paned with an R-4 insulating rating) at night. (A motoroperated bifold door for covering the windows is planned). We were away three days this winter with no heat put into the house at all, and it never got below 60 degrees," Mary notes with pleasure.

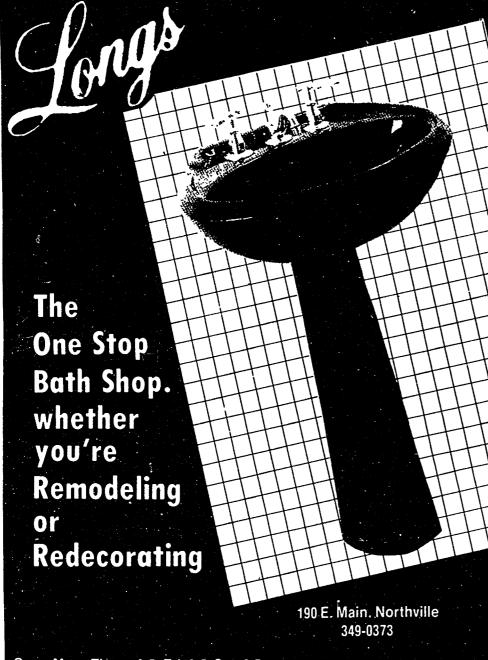

The 2,000-square-foot home is design-Wednesday, April 18, 1984

John said last summer that if he had it to do again, he would have twice as many tubes for cooling.

"Mostly, we are very satisfied though," Mary observed recently. "Ninety percent of it we would do the same way. There are just a few changes we'd trv."

For true "green-thumbers" like Mary, the double tier of windows facing south is a real boon to planting growing. "My plants are going wild and all my African violets are in total bloom," Mary adds. "I'm even starting a rose. When it gets warmer, I'll put that outside."

This spring and summer the McIvers plan to landscape their residence as a final touch to their unusual home. "We're hoping to hold an open house this summer so that people can go through the house and see how it is designed," Mary concludes.

Porters ^{renovate} 100-year-old farmhouse

By ANN L. FOUTY

Jim and Maggie Porter of Cullen Road, Howell, did it themselves.

They bought a farmhouse over 100 years old and remodeled it, subcontracting the electric, plastering and plumbing.

It took five years to complete the twostory renovation, but Maggie is proud of the outcome and of all the work that went into making this house their home.

The Porters gutted the house and restructured the rooms, and put an 18 by 24-foot addition on the back of the house, which became the kitchen.

The remaining exterior walls were kept.

"It's a typical country kitchen," Maggie says.

The first floor of the house has the large kitchen, a laundry room, a bathroom and a large living area. The second floor has five small bedrooms and a bath.

The kitchen has been paneled with the wood from the barn on the property. The St. Charles kitchen cabinets are textured steel, and there are built-in appliances.

She recommends that anyone using old barn siding as paneling should paint the walls black first so that the previous color will not show through the knot holes.

The living room, which the Porters are still working with, has an inviting look to it.

They have included both new pieces and antiques in the first-floor decor. "We have an old chest as a table," Maggie Porter notes. "We do have a leather couch."

For the downstairs bathroom, Maggie says she found some brass fixtures at a rummage sale and polished them up. The rust and cream colored wallpaper and quarry tile make up the wall and floor coverings there.

The Porters, both originally from Wyandotte, used woodwork and moldings around the floors and windows in keeping with the traditional farmhouse look. No window coverings are used, because Anderson windows were installed.

Maggie feals these windows are attractive enough to stand by themselves, as well as letting in as much sunlight as possible.

"We are pleased," Maggie says of the finished product, "because we did it ourselves. This is the first and the last time we'll do it.'

Ideas for remodeling the house came from both Maggie and Jim. She looked through magazines and sketched her ideas for her husband to look, ever.

Wednesday, April 18, 1984

The exterior of the house as been stained a dark brown and the new roof also is brown.

Maggie admits there is one more thing she would like to try and that is returning the porch to its original style --- a threequarter wrap-around. It is now only a fulllength front porch.

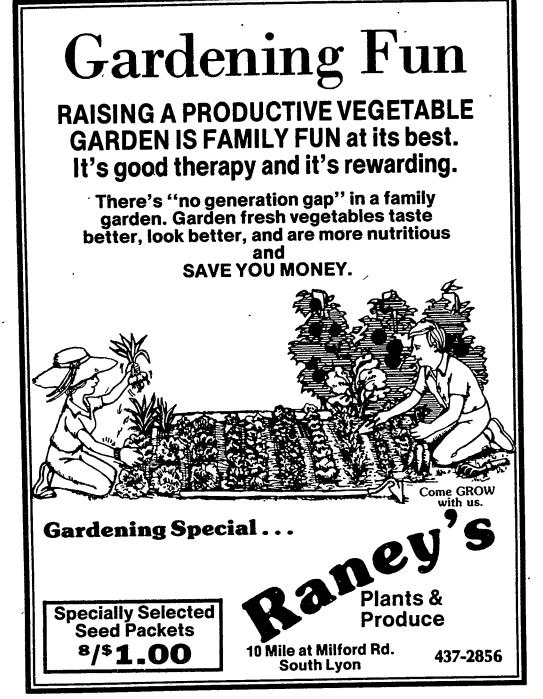

Generally, people like the Porters who remodel older homes start with the roof, says Tim Bay of Fowlerville Lumber. "You don't want it leaking on something you've just done."

The foundation is another area that needs to be addressed when remodeling. Due to the aging process, foundations begin to crumble.

Replacing windows, Bay says, is also a top priorty because "old windows weren't made for this century for what the cost of heating is."

The older home is definitely worth saving, even though it takes a considerable amount of money and may take years, if fold-down table. Damian's wooden bed is actually two flat beds, stacked one on top of the other, to be separated in case he has a guest for the night.

Two walls of the master bedroom are covered about halfway up with cupboards and shelving of various sizes and shapes, which also form the headboard of the bed. Burghard also constructed that.

"This style was just becoming popular when we left Germany," said Kathy. "They were just starting to have low cupboards like this when before they had the taller ones."

The whole cupboard and shelving unit is separate from the wall and can be taken apart and moved when the Linns move to the new home they plan to construct as carly as next year in Mystic Creek subdivision, west of Brighton.

"We do plan on building a house but this condominium has been great," said Kathy.

NEED ALTERNATION OF STREET STR

Michigan homeowners can beat the summer heat without "burning up" over utility bills for air conditioning by turning a covered patio, carport or breezeway into a cool summer living room with the simple addition of screening.

Wooden beams (2 by 4-inches and 4 by 4-inches), a saw, hammer and nails, metal framing angles, utility knife, staple gund and screening are the supplies needed.

Area building supply stores and lumber yards carry supplies mentioned and corrosion-resistant aluminum and fiber glass screening - the two most popular and inexpensive types recommended.

Both come in many widths to accommodate various porch panel sizes and can be cut with tin snips or a sharp utility knife.

If the porch is to be built on masonry, an electric drill with a masonry bit and non-rusting screws in lead sleeves will be needed to secure the wood frame.

To build three screen walls around a roofed patio, the following steps are recommended:

Each screen wall can be "prefabricated" as a unit, then secured. Begin by mounting 2 by 4-inch wood base strips along the patio floor and main wall of the house, drilling through masonry if necessary. Measure the space within the rectangles formed. Build a screen wall for each rectangle and attach screening to frames.

Apply wood stain or other finish before the screening is installed.

Build frames using vertical beams spaced evenly on 24, 36 or 48-inch centers - all are typical screen widths. A horizontal "rub rail" at chair back height, about 30 inches above the floor, will add stability.

Use metal framing angles on corners where the vertical and horizontal beams are joined.

To provide an outside exit, use two 4 by 4-inch studs to frame a door opening in one wall. A pre-made door easily can be installed.

Once the frames are finished, raise them into position and nail to the floor and ceiling base strips, then nail corners together.

Now add the screening by unrollng from top down in each vertical section and stapling into place. The staples may be covered with wood strips. Add the door, and enjoy outdoor living.

TAMMIE GRAVES

Growing for gold

"Oh, my love is lilke a red, red rose that's newly sprung in June," wrote the poet Robert Burns nearly 200 years ago. There is no record of what rose Burns had in mind when he penned that sonnet. But if he were alive today, there is no doubt he would have been referring to "Olympiad" — which has achieved "the reddist of any red of any rose."

Since its introduction by Armstrong Nurseries last year Olympiad has proven to be a winner with rosarians and the general public alike.

It has been named the official rose ofthe 1984 Summer Olympics that will take place in Los Angeles in July, and it is a 1984 All-America Rose Selection of the American Rose Society, the first hybrid tea to win the coveted award in 19 years.

And now the prize-winning Olympiad is available for planting in home gardens this spring. Robert Stack, Rock Hudson, Eva Gabor and Fred MacMurray were among the first to add the rose to their garden landscapes.

"Unmistakingly brilliant, flawlessly clear, the reddest red of any rose — a standout color that defies description!" Those are the words the judging committee used to characterize Olympiad.

"It starts ou red, stays red, and finishes red" the judges added. The last comment points up the fact that red hybrid tea roses generally turn a bluish purple as the blossoms begin to fade.

Among the Olympiad's other outstanding characteristics are its resistance to disease and its adaptability to climatic changes.

Its tightly packed buds are classically urn-shaped. As each bud unfurls, it reveals 30 to 35 broad, crisply-curled petals. In full bloom, the rose measures four to five inches in diameter.

The Olympiad plant grows to medium height and is bushy and well-branched. The plant stems are long and strong, and the semi-glossy foliage is thick and dark green.

the owner is doing the work himself.

"They are built solid," Bay says, "and made from Michigan hardwood lumber - oak, as opposed to spruce, which is a softwood.'

The oak is generally so hard that a hole must be pre-drilled before a nail can be hammered in, Bay adds.

Interior designer Sharon Nussle of Creative Kitchens, Baths and Boutiques of Howell advises the would-be remodeler to first consult with someone in the business.

in older homes, she says, there may be a major design problem that needs to be changed. Remodeling may have to take into account vents, steam pipes and windows in odd places.

'We will design the kind of look they want, the kind of decor they want and stay with what they want," she states.

The first step in remodeling is to get an idea what the person is looking for and then measure the room.

Maybe there is some piece of furniture or fixture the home owner wants to keep.

For example, she says, an older home may have a pantry unit in the kitchen, which can be incorporated in the total plan and made to blend in, Nussle says. The bathroom is the same way preserve something to make it look as if it belongs there - a crawfoot bathtub or a pedestal sink.

Remodelers should try to keep with the gender of the house. For example, years ago a lot of ceramic tile was used. The thoughts of Grandma using a toothbrush to clean the tiles are not pleasant ones. Today the tiles are easier to keep clean. They have a better glaze on them, the grouts are easier to keep clean and are harder, Nussle explains.

Q,

In defiance of those dangerously high heels and rib-pinching waistlines of yesteryear, today's women are stepping out in a new style — men's-wear. This spring's fashion are loose, comfortable and most definetly "men" tailored. The little blue suit has been replaced with oversized tailored jackets and men's-wear blazers. Cuffed trousers, jodhpur-style pants and long lean skirts are making bold entrances from fashion runways to the work place and board room. The black and gray pin-striped suit is matched with a black blouse courtesy of Casual Corner at Twelve Oaks Mall. Black pumps from Latham's Shoes in Howell. The off-white, double-breasted men's-wear suit courtesy of Sturwold's of Brighton is complete with matching blouse and pumps from Mays of Michigan at Twelve Oaks. The men's look

18/Spring Filing

A span and a sec

After decades of dictates by fashion designers — hemline lengths, shoe heel heights and color schemes - a new individualized approach to clothes has come to the forefront of women's fashions. Whether men's-wear tailoring complete with neckties, Oxford shirts and double-breasted jackets or the romantic elegance of a high-throated Victorian lace blouse with a dirndl skirt, this year's emphasis is diversity. And just about anything goes. Without a doubt, one of the most noted contrasts in this spring's fashion look is the hemline. At one time considered an absolute for any fashion season, today's hemlines run the gamut from mini to mid-calf. Above, a sporty, yet tailored look is shown with the men's-wear jacket in a black, metallic and cream pin stripe coupled with a coordinating skirt and black cotton T from Mays of Michigan at Twelve Oaks Mall. Hat from Sturwold/-Brighton. The long, belted white wrap coat adds an elegant touch to black slacks and camisole from Sturwold's/Brighton. Hat from Mays of Michigan/Twelve Oaks and black pumps by Latham's Shoes&Howell.

While men's-wear tailoring may be the dominant look for fashion separates, dresses are making a comeback in a host of different directions. For comfort and ease, full tent dresses in handkerchief-weight linen are the newest trend in dress design. Even shifts have a new look — straight, lean and tailored. Naturally, the men's-wear influence has made its mark on the dress in the form of the dress coat — a tailored classic. At left is the classic double-breasted dress coat with sailor collar courtesy of Mays of Michigan at Twelve Oaks. The striped cotton dress with weave belt from W.D. Adams/Howell features a flanged bodice line.

Dresses are taking on a new look this spring. New textures, shapes and colors are adding a refreshing flair to dress designs. Lace and ruffles, once mandates for romantic elegance, are being replaced by soft, flowing fabrics in a myriad of designs — still in keeping with a completely feminine look. While bright silk prints will always remain a dress staple, this year's textured fabrics in natural and earth tones are giving new direction to dress dressing. Above, the natural sand hues of this soft fabric dress are the perfect compliment to its shawl collar design with a drop back courtesy of Casual Corner at Twelve Oaks Mall. Inset, front view of the shawl collar bodice and free-flowing sashed waist skirt.

The perfect finish to this spring's fashions may well be one of the most overlooked garments in your wardrobe — the coat. For the first time in years, coats are taking on new looks to compliment today's diverse fashion trends — from slick raingear to the classic trench. Among the new offerings featured for spring is the "duster." Long and light with an oversized ease, the duster's classically-tailored style is a perfect match for this spring's men's-wear look. The classic trench coat — one of the earliest men's-wear styles adopted by women — has withstood decades of fashion revolution to remain a staple of both men's and women's wardrobes. Functional and seasonless, the trench coat is one of the few fashions never to go out of style. Shown above is the classic trench for men — belted or without — by Lapham's of Northville. The military trimmed trench for women courtesy of Fashion Bug of West Oaks. Lightweight women's raincoat gathered at the neck and wrists from W.D. Adams of Howell.

Straw hats have survived the test of time. They've come a long way since they served the functional purpose of keeping the sun out of the eyes of farmers and elegant 19th century women. Labeled a punctuation point of fashion by famous designer Calvin Klein, straw hats, whether they be floppy and wide-brimmed or neat and simple like a derby, are dressing store windows this spring. Wear them anywhere, in any color, plain or with a feather or decorative scarf - the choice is yours. Featured at left is a wide-brimmed straw hat in white with a bold brown stripe and bow courtesy of Sturwold's in Brighton, black hat with ribbon from Mays of Michigan/Twelve Oaks and a white netted hat tied with flowers courtesy of W.D. Adams of Howell.

Shoes

STEVE FECHI

Stepping out this spring is a host of new shoe styles in everything from ankle-strapped high heels and lace-like pumps to flats, sandals and sneakers. Open toe or closed, flat heeled or high, strapped or laced, this spring's shoes boast a myriad of looks. The footwear emphasis for spring is color - and plenty of it. While those black pumps always are reliable standbys when looking for that neutral tone, the new shades in footwear will put your old reliables to shame. Lilac, white, pink, turquoise, grey and red, red, red all are making fancy footwork on the spring fashion scene. Below, a different approach to the classic pump is shown at left courtesy of Latham's Shoes of Howell, the little lace pump in the middle adds a touch of elegance from Mays of Michigan at Twelve Oaks and at right the open-toed sandle with ankle strap from Del's Shoes of Northville is the perfect addition to this spring's long, lean look.

The diversity of this spring's fashions not only is evident in sophisticated separates and suits. Sportswear also is making a bold splash with a host of new looks in itsy-bitsy miniskirts, long culottes, knee pants, baggy pants and midriff tops. American designers appear to be making casual clothes more fun. Bold stripes, safari prints and bright colors may just abolish "preppy" from the fashion scene. At left, midriff top and knee pants in bold stripes by Casual Corner at Twelve Oaks Mall, cotton mini-dress with flared skirt from Fashion Bug at West Oaks, white pin striped slacks with cotton T from Joan Carols of Howell.
