To the hunt . . .

The Jaycee Easter Egg Hunt, that is. Carloads of Northville youngsters descended on Cass Benton Park Saturday to reap what the Easter Bunny had sown — eggs colored by senior citizens at Allen Terrace, and specially marked and scattered by Jaycee

McAllister's addition to house new stores ing spaces.

By B.J. MARTIN

City planners last week approved a major downtown expansion of the existing McAllister's House of Decorating building to accommodate space for about eight new businesses, including a restaurant. There are still a couple of hurdles remaining for David and Dawn Buda, owners and residents of the building at 324 East Main (near Church Street). They must obtain approval from the City Historic District Commission, which meets this week to discuss their plans.

The Budas also must find more parking spaces than would exist on the site.

Watch it, motorists that's a stop light now

City police are advising travelers on Eight Mile and Taft roads that the traffic light at that intersection now is fully operative.

The light had previously been a flashing yellow to Eight Mile traffic and a flashing red for those on Taft. Now. traffic in both directions will stop and go on signal.

The stop/go light was put on a 24-hour schedule last week, and has prompted some some complaints — particularly regarding the light's late-hours' opera-drivers who weren't expecting that change," said City Police Captain James Petres. "We haven't heard of any accidents resulting from it, but people should be aware of (the change)."

City Manager Steven Walters suggested Tuesday that residents using the intersection should "watch the operation and react to the police depart-

Jobs at stak in use request

By B.J. MARTIN

Thirteen Northville Ford Plant jobs are on the line in a request for a temporary use permit allowing storage containers to be stacked as high as 21 feet, and possibly higher, on a Ford parking lot located in the city.

At a City Planning Commission meeting Tuesday of last week, commissioners considered whether to recommend denial or approval of the Ford plant management's one-year tem-porary use permit to the city's Board of Zoning Appeals in June.
Plant management recently was cited for stacking storage bins contain-ing production material up to 21 feet high, in violation of zoning regulations. Among the complainants was Mayor Paul Vernon, who said he considered the stacked bins unsightly.

City Planning Consultant Ron Nino suggested to commissioners that, although he thought "this temporary use will have no detrimental effect on adjacent properties," some measures could be instituted to screen visually the parking lot as a way to soften its ap-

"Pedestrian traffic along Griswold is not very significant," Nino reported. "Nevertheless, some argument may be made for a visual screen along Griswold Street."

But at odds with correcting the problem is the possibility that Ford management will cut or move 13 job posts instead of taking on the financial burden of making cosmetic improvements to the lot.

The parking lot in question is located on the west side of Griswold Street just north of Main - opposite Griswold from the plant. According to plant management, there is no room on plant

Suit of township ends out of court

A $1 million lawsuit filed by Robert Lee Diefenderfer against Northville Township stemming from the Christmas Day, 1980, arson fire at Swan Harbor Apartments was settled out of court last week by his attorney and the attorney for the insurance company insuring the township at the time.

Diefenderfer charged the township police violated his constitutional rights when they refused him access to his apartment and subsequently arrested him in the suit in federal circuit court in

Acting for Celina Mutual Insurance Company, the attorney negotiated a $50,0000 settlement in the suit in which the issue was whether police were within their authorized powers when they arrested Diefenderfer instead of allowing him to enter his apartment, as he stated in court he wished to do in order to turn off Christmas tree lights.

The township contended the power to the building already had been shut off, that Diefenderfer was drunk at the time and refused to identify himself fully, and that he was obstructing officers in the performance of their duties to investigate the crime scene.

"We were not really consulted," said Township Supervisor John MacDonald Monday as he emphasized that the payment was being made by the insurance firm, which is no longer the township in-

The suit named as defendants the township, Kenneth Hardesty (then a lieutenant, now police chief), former chief Ron Nisun and former auxiliary officers John Feldman and Steve Bowman.

Nisun was flown from his Florida home to testify with the expense being borne by the insurance company.

MacDonald said the only cost to the township was time lost in going to court and having its attorney Nels Carlson at the court.

Township officials and police personnel have been called upon to testify and some spent up to a week of working time in court. Because of a clause in the insurance contract with the township, it was not necessary for the insurance firm to have the township's concurrence in the settlement, MacDonald ex-

Testimony was presented beginning April 5 and continued into last week. The jury had been deliberating from 4 p.m. Monday and still was out when the insurance company settled last

When the summation arguments were made and instructions given to the jury April 16, township liability reportedly had been reduced to the area of $150,000 in the charge to the jury. The suit was heard by U.S. Circuit Court Judge Ralph Guy.

Because the settlement was made prior to a jury decision, the jury did not have to be polled.

The fire on December 25, 1980, was determined to have been set by Michael Collins, who subsequently was convicted of arson and sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment. The fire gutted eight of the 16 units in the building, including Diefenderfer's and was estimated to have caused more than $300,000 damages.

According to news reports at the time, the fire had been extinguished. but police and fire personnel had just begun their investigation the morning of December 26 when Diefenderfer sought to re-enter his apartment.

At the time, it was said he wished to examine the damage. Police said he only identified himself as Robert Lee,

Michigan Week exchange set

Howell officials will be guests

Northville will be host to community leaders from Howell on this year's mayor exchange day during Michigan Week which is May 19-26.

City Manager Steve Walters said Monday that Northville and Howell, located approximately 30 miles west off the I-96, will trade mayors during the traditional mayor exchange May 21.

Howell mayor Jim Young and other officials will be guests of the city while Northville Mayor Paul Vernon and his wife Norma will travel to Howell, famed as "the meion festival city," located approximately mid way between Northville and Lansing.

The Vernons will be joined by council member Carolann Ayers, DPW chief Ted Mapes and recreation director Jef Farland.

Walters noted that other Northville officials will join the Northville and Howell officials in Howell that evening for a banquet.

Mrs. Vernon said the exchange came at the request of Howell because of its interest in Northville's Mainstreet Beautification program. Howell beautification representatives have toured Northville and expressed an interest in having a similar program in Howell, she said.

With approximately 5,200 residents, Howeli is similar in size to Northville. It is a city with handsome Victorian homes similar to those in Northville's historic district. Focal point of downtown Howell is the restored courthouse on Grand River.

Last year, Northville hosted Rochester mayor Tom Werth and other officials from that city.

Ann Brueck again will chair Michigan Week festivities in Northville. A schedule of upcoming Michigan Week activities is expected to be announced within the next few weeks. It will include recognition of local projects beautifying the city as well as participation by school groups in programs downtown.

As has become a tradition, Northville Rotary Club will move its meeting day from Tuesday to Monday to host local officials and the visitors from Howell at its luncheon, club president William Tomczyk said Monday.

"Here's the bottom line," Ford spokesperson Arthur Basse told city planners: "There are 13 jobs associated with the operation to repair racks. Those jobs will be lost if it is denied. We've got to have the use of that (parking lot) property to continue that opera-

Commissioners told Basse even minimal screening efforts would go a long way toward offsetting the appearance of the property. But when commissioners pressed Basse to say whether Ford management would be receptive to at least partially screening the the lot, Basse was pessimistic.

"I wish we had a big budget, but I wouldn't want to say our company will do whatever is possible," Basse said. "I Ford employee.

don't want to be put in the position of saying we'll do it . . . The whole thing is on very uncertain grounds."

The issue will not appear before the City Board of Zoning Appeals until June; so commissioners agreed to delay consideration of recommending approval or denial until their next meeting. Talks regarding to what extent — if any — Ford will accept responsibility for aesthetic improvement to the area are expected to continue.

But it is unlikely the commission will jeopardize the 13 jobs by recommending strict demands on screening or beautification.

"If it's possible to get some kind of screening, fine. But I don't think there's one person here who doesn't want to see the Ford Plant thrive," said Commission Chair Lesa Buckland.

The commission voted unanimously to table the issue, with Commissioner John Hardin abstaining because he is a

Collector's big-league artifacts shown at Novi Library

Collector Ted Clay sports White Sox uniform

By B.J. MARTIN

Some people don't understand why grownups would want to pay good money for a Joe Sparma baseball card. Or Wilbur Wood's old White Sox jersey. Or Jason Thompson's old cleats. Or a 36-year-old cloth cover from a seat at Cleveland Stadium. What little they know.

One of the area's most avid collectors of historical major-league paraphernalia is generously exhibiting his artifacts through the end of April at the Novi Public Library, Ten Mile Road just east of Taft. If you think this stuff is no big deal, try taking a baseball fan for free viewing of this miniature Cooperstown. Salvation guaranteed.

The collector's name is Ted Clay. By trade, he is head mechanic for the Novi Police Department. But in his spare time since his days as just another kid collector, he has amassed a collection valued as high as $40,000 (as if money were a true measure of such sacred objets d'art).

Before you start thinking Novi pays its police staff too much, you should be aware Clay spent no more than $5,000 amassing his collection over a 10-year period. He's just a smart shopper.

'I'm in the hobby for fun," the Novi resident explains. "But it's part of the fun of the hobby to find the real bargain. It's kind of stimulating."

So what's among the goodies on display? Above all else, there are baseball cards, about 125,000 of them, including almost the entire Topps, Inc. collection from 1954 to the present. Clay is slowly working the collection back to 1951, which would put him in an elite corps of maybe 50 people in the U.S. with the complete set.

But those early-50's Topps (which Clay calls "the Cadillac of baseball cards") sets can run into a lot of money. A 1952 set alone might run about $10,000, or about $15 to $20 per card, on the open market. Clay isn't quite in that spending bracket yet.

"I've been buying up things as a financial sideline," Clay says. "Like a lot of Rod Carew and Tim Seaver rookie cards. Next year I hope to start going into selling, probably with a table at the Plymouth Sheraton's annual collector's convention.'

He advises traders on both sides of the table at such conventions (this year's Hilton convention will be held the last weekend in July) to watch themselves and their goods, however. "Hardly a convention goes by where something really valuable doesn't get stolen in the rush.'

But the most impressive part of Clay's collection is an array of jerseys once worn by major leaguers. For Detroiters, the one that may generate the biggest smile is the jersey worn by Detroit Tiger Manager Sparky Anderson when he managed the World Champion Cincinnati Reds.

Clay also has a White Sox jersey worn by Chicago's Wilbur Wood in 1976 — the year Chicago came out with its bicentennial old-style jerseys. Another rare catch was Baltimore Oriole star Don Baylor's jersey from the Oakland A's. Athletics management, presided over by the notorious Charlie O. Finley, did not let such property get away easi-

"They were very picky about their jerseys, and didn't let any of them go until they released them last year,

Clay also owns a mint-condition jersey once owned by catcher John Lowenstein when he played for the Cleveland Indians, a San Fransisco Giant parka once worn by Willie Mays and Willie McCovey and a jacket worn by Baltimore Oriole pitching coach George Bamberger.

There are some 600 major-league autographs, almost all acquired simply by sending self-addressed stamped envelopes asking for the autographs to various major leaguers.

"The ballplayers would almost always be pretty helpful," Clay reports. "Ernie Banks once sent me an 8x10 glossy photo with his autograph. And I wrote to Billy Rogell (now a Detroit city council member) asking for an autograph, and he sent me an autographed picture from his playing days, plus a nice letter." Among other interests he is still exploring, Clay wants to branch out into a collection of autographed Louisville Slugger baseball bats. He owns only one now, signed by Larry Herndon during Herndon's tenure on the Giants. He plans to add more to his collection the hard way — by simply hanging around the players' locker room door after home games.

Why does a grown man do this sort of

"It may seem a little ridiculous," he concedes. "But so many decent pieces of memorabilia have been destroyed or lost. I'm trying to see if I can help hold trading for a bunch of Detroit Tiger onto these things. Especially since collectors seldom are willing to put their stuff on display."

Not that exhibiting at the Novi Public Library is all rosy. "I'm kind of nervous about all that stuff being there," he admits. "Also, it kind of makes me feel kind of old. Kids come in and see the name Thurman Munson (the late All-Star Yankee catcher), and they go, Thurman Munson? Who's that?"

He says collecting baseball memorabilia, especially cards, provides any baseball fan an interesting hobby with a budget proportional to one's interest. "Some of the best buys you can find are in local ruminage sales or street sales," he notes. It's an understatement to say Clay enjoys his hobby. "I have the cashvalue favorites and I have the sentimental favorites," he says. "For example, I own both Hank Aaron's and Al Kaline's rookie cards. Now if I could only keep one, it would be Kaline's, although Aaron's is probably three times as valuable."

The longtime Tiger fan explains, "Kaline's probably my favorite ever. There may have been guys who could hit better and guys who could field better, but there hasn't been anyone who tried as hard.

"But there's no room for sentimentality when you're doing serious trading," Clay adds. "If you go to one of those conventions with the idea of cards, what you'll wind up giving up them in star player cards will be worth much, much more."

Toward that end, Clay will give a twohour talk to would-be traders at the Novi Public Library in mid-July in preparation for the convention. Stay

Michigan Week events set

PTSA column which appears the last Wednesday of each month September through June is compiled by volunteer Linda Handyside. She coordinates material from publicity persons in each of the elementary, junior highs and high school. Jerry and Tina Delaney compile information on Our Lady of Victory School activities. Nancy Lawrence writes about events at William Allan Academy. Carol Whittenburg and Sharon Pilat write news of Christian Community School.

AMERMAN

The kindergarten class enjoyed a pleasant introduction to spring on their field trip to Kensington Park Nature Center April 12.

During Teacher Appreciation Week, the PTA honored Amerman teachers with balloons and a singing telegram at a morning coffee.

PTA officers were elected at the April 16 meeting. Congratulations to the following elected officers: Judy Beyersdorf and Mary Carrington, copresidents; Laurie Slagter, vice president; Sue Smith, secretary, and Sherry Duff, treasurer.

Lower elementary children enjoyed finding messages in plastic eggs as theylooked for eggs in an outdoor egg hunt on the last day of school before spring

Amerman's annual plant sale will begin April 19. Vegetable plants such as cucumbers, bell peppers, summer squash, zucchini and tomatoes, as well as flowering plants like petunias, geraniums, marigolds, snap dragons, allysum, begonias, shasta daisies and mums can be ordered. Support the Amerman PTA and get orders in before May 2 — and enjoy a colorful spring garden. Orders may be picked up May

The Kindergarten Round-Up will be held Wednesday, May 2, and Thursday, May 3, in the atternoon. Any child who will be five years old before December l is welcome to attend.

The next PTA Junior Entertainment Series will be a program on Robotics at 1:30 p.m. May 9.

The public is invited to a band concert presented by fifth and sixth graders from Amerman and Moraine at 7:30 p.m. May 10 in the Amerman gym.

Many Amerman students will be peforming in music and physical education at the Fine Arts Festival in

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Northville PTA- downtown Northville on May 19. Art followed by an afternoon of games, works also will be displayed.

Many activities are being planned for dichigan Week, May 21-25, including the traditional staff luncheon for Mr. and Mrs. Russell Amerman and a talent show scheduled May 23.

The next PTA meeting will be at 9:30 a.m. May 21 in the library. Sue Nix will give a demonstration of the Art Appreciation Program that volunteer parents have been presenting to Amerman students.

MORAINE

Calling all five year olds! Moraine School will host next fall's kindergartners and parents for its annual Kindergarten Round-Up May 3, 4, 7 and 8. Anyone who knows of a child who will be five by December 1 who has not been notified of the round-up, please call the school office. Present kindergartners will enjoy the round-up days, as they will have the opportunity to spend a day in the first grade centrum trying out the all-day schedule they'll have next fall.

Speaking of next fall, Moraine's PTA has a new set of officers to begin planning for the 1984-85 school year. Newlyelected officers are Barb Erickson, president; Lynn Elsessor, vice president; Joyce Dunkerly, recording secretary; Joan Kolassa, corresponding secretary, and Kathy Crossman, treasurer. PTA meetings are the first Monday morning of each month school is in session. It's not too late to get involved. Babysitting is available on a coop basis for those parents attending the meetings.

Moraine students are starting to think about science projects. Kay Kepner, co-ordinator of this year's Science Fair, suggests students begin work on their projects right away. Projects will be displayed at school on May 9 and 10. Flyers with all details went home with students before Easter.

Congratulations to everyone who participated in the all-school musical program, "If I Were President," on April 5. The performers were talented and well prepared. Music teacher Sandra Craig obviously put much work into directing this production.

Moraine's annual Spring Carnival took place April 19, just before the start of Easter vacation. Since this year's theme was "Space," a monster drawing contest preceded the carnival. Footlong hot dogs were sold at lunch time, prizes, clowns and snacks. Enjoy your vacation. Classes resume Monday Sue Shepard

SILVER SPRINGS

April showers have given us May flowers! The flower sale continues to May 3. Delivery will be from 1-5 p.m. May 22 and pick-up will be in the school. custodial room (next to the gym).

During the morning she works in the kitchen . . . during the lunch hour she can be seen in the cafeteria . . . but on May 4 Gloria Bisdorf will be entertaining the lower elementary students in a special assembly! Gloria's talents with the guitar and banjo will be the focus of a special assembly as she takes her "one person" show on the road to the Silver Springs Rondelle.

Kindergarten Round-Up will be held the afternoons of May 7 and 9. All Silver Springs community children having their fifth birthday before December 1 are invited to join the kindergarten teaching staff for an afternoon in the classroom. This is a special opportunity for teachers to meet next year's students and parents, conduct basic testing for school readiness and allow the children to become familiar with the school setting. Contact the school office for information.

May 15 is the date for the Fine Arts Festival at Silver Springs. Representative art has been selected from each child in the school by art instructor Shirley Talmadge for the viewing pleasure of the Fine Arts Festival patrons. In addition, Jan Henderson and Jan Rigney have organized the Annual Science Fair which features the theme, "Think Science." Students have been allowed to choose from a broad spectrum of science-related topics providing Festival patrons with a special.
viewing of student science displays.

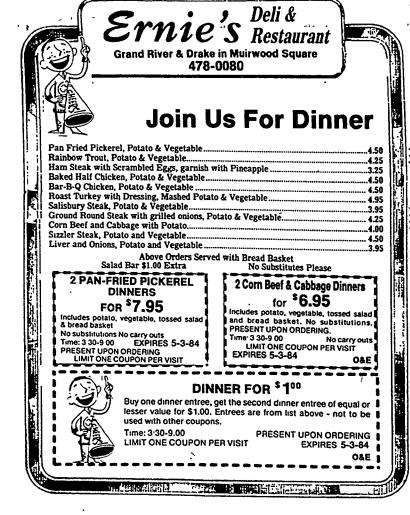

The Festival evening will be highlighted with a presentation of the Silver Springs Band. 1984 represents only the second year since the forma-: tion of the Silver Springs Band, and this is its first recital.

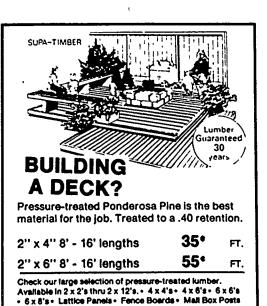

To cap this evening, Principal Ken: Pawlowski will announce and display. new artistic additions to the Art Gallery: for the 1983-84 school year. Silver Springs also will donate two framed works to the board of education for display in the board offices.

Mellow, springtime sounds filled the ears of those who attended the Spring Choir Concert on April 11. Choir Director Mary Kaye Pryce led her choral groups in songs which included, "Ain't She Sweet" by the Male Chorus, "In the Mood" by the Girls' Ensemble and "Elijah Rock" by the Mixed Ensemble. "Java Jive" by the Barbershop Quartet was an audience favorite. Student conductor, Vince Ventura, led the mixed choir in several pieces including "Candle on the Water." The audience was especially impressed with Dave Dore and Ken Zeitler who performed their own piece titled "Old Times." Dave composed the music and Ken wrote the

The combined choirs sang the theme from "Ice Castles" and followed with "Trickle, Trickle" — another audience favorite. This number, arranged by Mary Pryce, included accompaniment by Randy Chisnell on bass guitar, John Racskowski on drums and Dave Brandon on tenor sax. Jeff Knurek sang a solo part while eight members of the choir performed a jitterbug routine. As a finale, Mrs. Pryce invited alumni and her junior high students to join the high school choir in singing "Flying Free." Kevin Murray accompanied on flute and Pat Dorrian Sandbothe on piano.

Bookworms are alive and well at Nor-Sharon Lang thville High School. They even have their own book club. Under the guidance of Lorraine Stanton, school librarian, they meet twice a month to discuss the books they have read and occasionally watch a movie classic. First and second graders have just completed a very thorough science unit on "Our Five Senses." What a study movies, experiments in taste, sound and touch, biographical stories, making of a Touch Box and writing a book with magazine collage illustrations were all part of the study. Now, the students plan ahead for their space study with a field trip to the planetarium.

The third through sixth graders have been involved in a six-week historical unit which took them to Wash Oak School in Northville's Mill Race Village. The children learned calligraphy, studied food, dress and textiles, crafts and games and morals. They really felt a part of history as they recited from their handmade hornbooks, used their handmade leather marks, participated in a spelling bee, made their own "natural" lunch and learned candlewicking and wood whittling - making their own toy.

CHRISTIAN COMMUNITY

Fourth and fifth graders surprised their teacher, Mrs. Debbie Ward, with a baby shower last week. Cake and punch was enjoyed by all. Debbie is expecting her first baby in May and will be leaving us soon.

Our April 14th Walk-a-thon was rained out to the disappointment of all the children. However, plans are now being made to reschedule it for the end of May or beginning of June. We still are planning to walk the bike trails on I-275 and have lunch at McDonald's on Five

Everyone is getting excited as the time draws nearer to May 11. That's our second annual Fun Fair. This year it will be better than ever. In addition to games, prizes, antique cars and food. we are adding more horses, a moon walk and a dunk tank. Tickets go on sale May 7. They will be five tickets for $1 pre-sale or four for $1 the night of the fair. The fair is open to everyone.

May 24 is the date set for the spring musical, "Get on Board." The children are busy practicing their parts under the supervision of Rocky Barra.

The next parent-teacher meeting is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. May 14. The school and school administrator, Helen Belz, will be in attendance and available to answer questions.

May is going to be a busy month for our 100 preschool children. On May 7, dads prepare yourselves for Father's night at preschool. A mini-preschool session will be hosted for children and their dads, including an exciting game of Duck-Duck-Goose.

May 24 preschool will meet at 10 a.m. at Al Jaques' Farm on Napier Road. Students will learn about animals and life on the farm. If the weather permits, they are planning a picnic lunch after the farm tour. May 31 and June 1 are the Final Night Recognition programs. On this night, children have a chance to sing songs and do their finger plays in the main auditorium. After the program, they will receive their diplomas and enjoy punch and cookies downstairs in Fellowship Hall with their families. The last day of preschool is June 1.

The last day of school for children in grades K-7 is June 14.

Police apprehend sleeping suspect at scene of crime

In The City ...

City police didn't have to look far for a suspect in a break-in at Green's Home Center, 107 North Center, Saturday.

One had passed out in the building. Police arrested Jerry Dean Vanderhoof, 22, of Northville after he was found asleep at the bottom of a stairway leading from Green's to Judy's Country Curtains, located downstairs in the same building.

Vanderhoof was charged with breaking and entering. He pleaded innocent before Judge George Mihaiu at outcounty circuit court Saturday.

According to police reports, Vanderhoof had been drinking heavily and told police after waiving his Miranda rights that he had no recollection of breaking into the stores or falling

According to the police report, entry to the building was gained by smashing open a rear door window. When he was discovered by police, Vanderhoof was bleeding from his foot. A floor mat from the store marred by blood stains has been confiscated as evidence.

Solid horse-racing year ends 10-year sag

In his annual report for 1983 to the governor, Racing Commissioner William S. Ballenger related that total attendance and wagering at both thoroughbred and harness race meets at Michigan tracks in 1983 were up for the first time in four years and noted that attendance at harness racing was up for the first time since 1975, reversing nearly a decade-long decline.

Northville Downs official Margaret Zayti, recording secretary, pointed out that it was the Northville Downs' results that reversed the decline.

The report, issued the end of March, stated that wagering on harness racing in 1983 totaled more than $215 million, an increase of more than $5.3 million, or 2.6 percent, over 1982. Harness racing attendance for 1983 totaled 1,573,900 up slightly from 1982.

Wagering on thoroughbred racing in 1983 totaled nearly $140 million - up more than $2° million, or almost 2 percent over 1982. Attendance at thoroughbred tracks increased from 968,659 in 1982 to 970,939 in 1983.

Ballenger attributed the increases to three factors: steadily improving state economy, absence of labor strife, and the "Say Yes to Michigan Horse Racing" promotional campaign.

From January 1 through April 2, 1983, the Northville Downs raced 78 of the allotted 80 days, losing only two racing days instead of the four the previous year. Attendance totaled 265,254, up from 219,168 in 1982. Daily 1983 average was 3,401. Wagering totaled $40,896,958, up from $31,978,680 in 1982.

Daily average in 1983 was $524,320. Net purse in 1983 was $2,710,700 up from Secretary Zayti noted that the mild winter of 1983 resulted in the improved figures. The 1984 season that ended April 1, she reported, resulted in parimutuel figures staying at the same level, but attendance went down four percent, due largely to the severe winter weather just past.

In contrast to the 1983 Northville Downs season, the report states, the Jackson Trotting Association's 1983 race meeting at Northville Downs suffered comparative declines in total attendance and wagering from the highly successful 1982 meet.

Attendance total wss 176,553 in cotnrast to 1982 attendance of 212,957. Wagering was $27,980,954 as opposed to $32,133,606 in 1982

In the tabulation of state distribution of pari-mutuel wagering revenues to cities or townships, both Hazel Park and Northville showed expenditures over rebates. Northville wagering revenue to the state in 1983 was $4,302,211.29 with a rebate made of $424,226.36 with expenditures reported for services of $478,040.

In his report to the governor, Ballenger recommended that both Governor Blanchard and the legislature "should explore ways to reduce the state's exorbitant betting tax rate, at 6.23 percent by far the highest in the country." Ballenger concluded by saying, "the year 1984, or at the latest, the next year could prove to be a watershed for Michigan in terms of the resolution of such major issues as off-track betting

Our Opinion

Problem exists on Griswold behind landmark plant

Ford should get temporary permit

City planners have an issue on their hands that doesn't need to be an issue at all. The Ford Motor Company plant at Griswold and Main is asking for a temporary use permit (of one year) in order to continue stacking containers full of parts and material in the company's parking lot west of Anyone familiar with the precarious status of the Northville plant knows it is a marginal operation. Ford representative Arthur Basse put it baldly when he told planning commissioners last week Ford couldn't guarantee the preservation of 13 jobs involved with the operation necessitating the permit should it be denied by the city's Board of Zoning Appeals. The City Planning Commission is expected to vote on a recommendation to the board next month.

Everybody likes a pretty street, but 13 jobs is a pretty stiff price tag. And coming from a corporation that has done so much for the community with its property along Griswold, a temporary use permit is hardly a back-breaking request.

On the other hand, commissioners think some effort to spruce up the parking lot area isn't much to ask, either. Temporary or not. 20-foot stacks of machine part containers aren't what neighboring city dwellers have in mind for a view. It seems some minimal cosmetic improvement by Ford short of complete screening — perhaps even with voluneer time and labor – is reasonable.

The worst that could happen is that Ford could ax the jobs with the rationale that any beautifying expense is more than it considers worth its time and money, however little. It's unlikely commissioners would sacrifice even one job for the aesthetic inconvenience, let alone 13, and it's imperative that sentiment is communicated to Ford brass without red tape getting in

An inspection of the site which long has been an employees' parking lot — this week reveals that the containers are stacked at the back of the lot and are partly obstructed by trailers which haul the plant output. It is important to remember that the plant existed before present zoning restructions were in force.

Looking at the scene, visual evidence is there that the company has been a "good citizen" in the community. Ford Field exists on company property, and the site of Mill Race Historical Village located to the north on the same side of Griswold was donated by Ford Motor Company. And there's one additional promising "plus" to note: spring bursting out and the bushes along the fence at the front of the property soon should provide some natural screening.

Faithful readers know I tend to say Nice Things about Detroit, in spite of the fact a lot of my readers are here in Northville because they couldn't find that many Nice Things to say. Well, on a recent trip to the Motor City, I had an experience that put a crack in my rose-colored glasses.

Four friends and I piled into my 10-year-old heap and tooled on down to the Masonic Auditorium to see Stevie Wonder and band perform for Mr. Wonder's hometown fans. Parking was a dream. I found a free parking place across a park from the auditorium.

I'm sure many of you have been down to the Masonic sometime. It's not situated in the prettiest part of the city, but the building itself is magnificent inside and out. And in the vicinity of the building, it seemed most of Detroit's Finest were keeping a sharp eye out for trouble. I can honestly say none of us felt the least bit concerned Stevie Wonder put on simply the best musical performance I've ever had the pleasure to see. He sang his heart out on his best-loved ballads and uptempo stuff alike until almost one in the morning. He wore us out.

In every way, the show lived up to its advance billing as a homecoming for the artist — I think everyone there came away with the feeling we were part of something special. (You don't have to take my word for it — the show was taped for a cable station special that should come out sometime this year.)

Off the record

By B. J. Martin

Motown has its ups and downs

So where's the downer? Well, when we got back to my car, the passenger door window was on the seat, the floor, the roof and the pavement, all in little crumbly pieces. Inside, the glove compartment was left open (nothing there, so nothing taken) and a very bald spare tire in the back was now nowhere to be found.

> If the guy got $15 for that tire, he'd be doing well. I couldn't help wishing he would have given me the chance to negotiate. Maybe he could have said something like, "Give me $15 or I'll break your passenger door window and maybe your head with this baseball bat and steal your spare tire."

> I'm a reasonable guy. Those terms might have been acceptable to me.

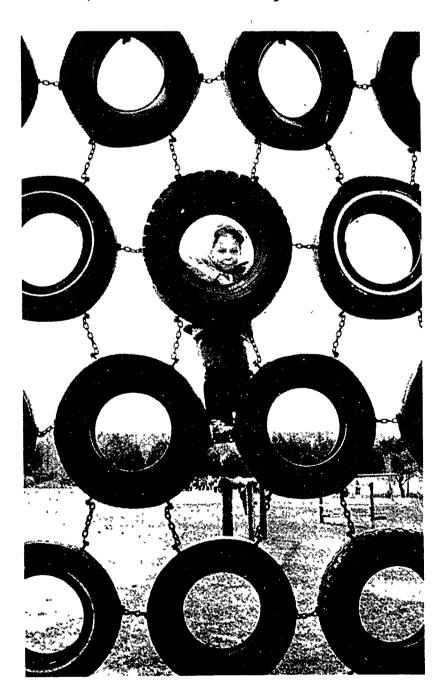

> What's really most irritating is that I can no longer say as I have many times that despite the hundreds of times I've been to Detroit nothing bad has ever happened to me there.

> Now the Isolationist Suburbanite can say, "I told you so." I might ask said I.S. when Stevie Wonder last played in Bloomfield Hills or whatever. But it wouldn't make me feel better.

> I'll probably go on trying to find free on-street parking at Tiger games instead of paying for supervised lots. I'll probably still go downtown for music and dancing. I guess I'll just try to talk someone else into doing the driving now and then.

Editorial opinions of The Record are developed and written by Editor Jean Day and staff members Michele McElmurry, B.J. Martin, and Kevin Wilson.

Philip Jerome recently returned from a two-week vacation in Mexico. The following is the second part of his fascinating travelogue about life south of the border.

Twelve years ago, Cancun was nothing but a jungle. Oh, there were a few Mayan ruins. But for the most part it was vacant land until the Mexican government decided to create a world-class resort to encourage tourism.

Today, Cancun is well on its way to becoming the tourist attraction the Mexican gover-: ment had envisioned with many top hotel: chains represented along the sparkling-: beaches of the Caribbean.

The irony of the situation is that Cancun. once was a thriving metropolis - a center of the Mayan civilization prevalent in Mexico: until its sudden and as-of-yet unexplained disappearance approximately 1200 A.D.

Pretty interesting stuff, eh? I learned it while taking a trip out to Chichen-Itza, the capital of the Mayan civilization which lies about three hours west of Cancun via bus.

Frankly, I could have skipped the threehour bus ride there and back in favor of retaining my regular seat at the Bikini Bar in the pool at the hotel.

The trip did have its good points, however. Mainly getting to meet the three banditos who led the tour - Mario, Pancho and Roberto, "the finest bus driver in all of Mexico."

From what I understand, we were lucky. The word among the touristas was that one out of four buses breaks down somewhere in the jungle between Cancun and Chichen-Itza.

Pancho assured me we had nothing to worry about because Roberto, in addition to being a fine driver, was also a fine mechanic.

"We only broke down once," said Pancho. "Roberto had to hitch-hike into town, get the parts, hitch-hike back and repair the bus.

"The only bad part was when some of the tourists spotted the boa constrictor crossing the road," he added. "It was a big one, too. It's body was all the way across the road with its head on one side and its tail on the other."

"There are boa constrictors in this jungle?" I asked hesitantly.

"St," he responded. "But you don't see them very often. It's the poisonous snakes you have to worry about."

Local police lauded for motorist assistance

To the Editor:

I would like to express a special thank you to the Northville city and township police departments for aid in getting me back into my car after being locked out with the engine running.

The Plymouth police were called and

I was told "we will send someone out." After waiting for an hour I called Plymouth back and was told, "We don't do that kind of thing." So I called Northville City, and they in return called Northville Township Police who had a car out to me and me back into my car after 20 minutes.

A very special thank you to Sergeant (John) Sherman on the Northville Township Police Department. Also to the very helpful man and his son.

Again thank you, Jennifer E. DeVenny

Tax rollback, budget tackled in State Senate

By R. ROBERT GEAKE State Senator

In a flurry of pre-Easter activity, the State Senate tackled three major, controversial issues. A brief overview of those three items should give you a closer look into the politics behind such weighty legislative matters.

TAX ROLLBACK - The Republicancontrolled Senate and the Democratcontrolled House cannot agree on the amount or effective date for an income tax rollback. Republicans insist that more can be given sooner, and the Democrats are balking. The final outcome now rests with a joint House-Senate Conference Committee.

Twice, the Senate, with bipartisan support, sponsored an accelerated tax cut that would roll back the tax from its current 6.1 percent to 5.35 percent on July 1 of this year; to 4.6 percent by January 1, 1986; and to 3.9 percent if the unemployment rate hits 3.9 percent.

Twice, the Democrats in the House rejected the Senate version, adopting instead a bill that would drop the income tax rate to 5.35 percent October 1 - period. The Senate-passed version would save the taxpayers more than one-half billion dollars over the next three years, while the House version would result in a tax savings of only $130 million. House and Senate conference committee members are Senators Norm Shinkle, Dick Posthumus and John Kelly, and Representatives Lynn Johndahl, Virgil Smith and Bill Bryant.

UNEMPLOYMENT "WAITING WEEK" - The Senate, on a straight 20-17 party line vote, with only Republican support, has passed "waiting week" unemployment recipients to wait one week before becoming eligible for. benefits. However, for the long-term unemployed, the full complement of benefits would be paid. Business interests contend that reinstating the "waiting week" requirement, which was removed in 1975, would save them up to $170 million over the next three years. Labor unions, who oppose the legislation, say it will hurt labor relations in the state. Today, 39 states have 'waiting week'' requirements.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION ON BALANCED BUDGET — The Senate passed, after long debate, a joint resolution urging Congress to call a constitutional convention for the purpose of amending the U.S. Constitution to require a balanced federal budget. Thirty-four states are needed before: Congress is forced to convene a convention. Michigan would be 33rd if the state House passes the resolution. However, Democrat control of that chamber makes the prospect more unlikely.

There is a sharp division in the Legislature over this issue. Opponents argue that a constitutional convention will result in opening up discussion on issues far beyond the realm of a balanced budget. Those supporting the measure believe there are plenty of safeguards against that happening.

The federal budget has been balanced; only once in 22 years. Efforts to rein; spending and reduce the national debt, have been unsuccessful. A constitutional convention resolution would: mandate that Congress and the U.S. Senate pull out all th stops and head off a major recession with a balanced

Haggerty sewer project gets Plymouth Township's okay

One major hurdle in the township's plan to construct a large interceptor sewer along Haggerty Road was passed this month when Plymouth Township's board of trustees voted unanimously to allow the necessary work there.

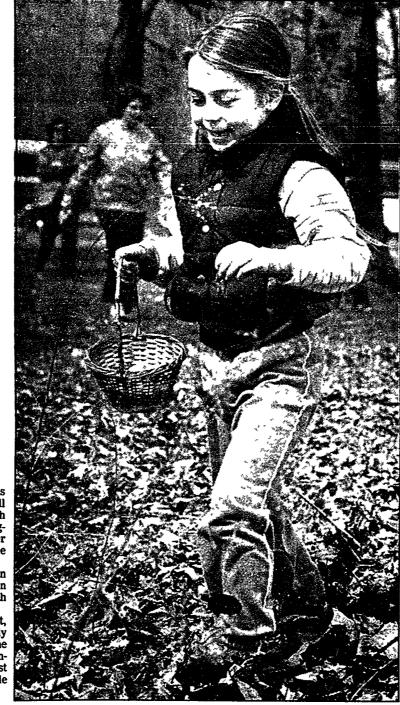

Supervisor John MacDonald reported the news to the Northville Township board April 12. He said he and consulting engineer Jack McNeely had attended the Plymouth Township board meeting and presented Northville Township's proposal.

Under the plan, the interceptor will collect sewage flows from more than 1,000 acres of east side township land and carry it to a Rouge Valley sewer, connecting at M-14 and Haggerty roads.

In return for Plymouth Township's permission, Northville Township will allow certain properties in Plymouth Township to be connected to the Haggerty Road sewer. Cost of the sewer construction will be paid by Northville

That portion of the sewer between Five Mile Road and the M-14 connection would become part of the Plymouth Township sewer system.

MacDonald described the project, which would eliminate several costly sewage pumping stations from the township system along its eastern boundary, as "one of the single biggest things that will happen to Northville Township in the next 10 years."

Landscape firms assist homeowners

By MARILYN HERALD

Despite some intervals of wintry weather, spring fever has hit local homeowners with a vengence, sending them into their yards looking for green sprouts and into area nurseries and landscape stores looking for what's new to make their own corner of the world more attractive.

Three New Hudson area businesses are working hard to supply that need and, according to reports, residents are taking advantage of their services to spruce up the old (or the new) homestead.

Relatively new to the home beautification scene is Fletcher and Rickard Landscape Supplies, 54001 Grand River, New Hudson, which opened its doors almost a year ago. While the Fletcher and Rickard name may be new in landscape materials, it is wellknown as far as providing peat, top soil and excavating is concerned. Dallas Fletcher of New Hudson and Clayton Rickard of South Lyon have been "in dirt" since 1938. They formed the Fletcher and Rickard Excavating business in 1943 and, over the years, the two men have expanded their enterprises to include the popular Haas Lake Travel Trailer Park near New Hudson and now the landscape supply business.

Mark New, manager of the landscape store and son-in-law of Fletcher, said this year he has a much more complete stock of materials and supplies. "We're trying to carry the things people ask for and, I think, we cover a pretty wide range, from dirt to large rocks, tools, Ortho products and patio materials." One of the specialities at Fletcher and Rickard's is personal service in large or small quantites, New explained. "Customers can come in and get a full yard or a half a yard of dirt if they have a pick-up truck or they can just buy a bag or two which I'll load into the car trunk for them." And, it's not just one kind of dirt, but a whole variety of bins to choose from

New added that nearly everything that can be "bagged" is available that way at his store. Lava rock, wood chips, cedar bark, coal, dirt and softening salt. Home deliveries are also part of the service-oriented center.

'Customers can get a full yard of dirt or they can just buy a bag or two.'

> -Mark New Landscape store manager

One of the newer, popular items in do-it-yourself landscaping is interlocking paving stones by Decor. The colorful blocks fit together and can be used for creating a patio or a sidewalk, instead of pouring cement, New pointed out.

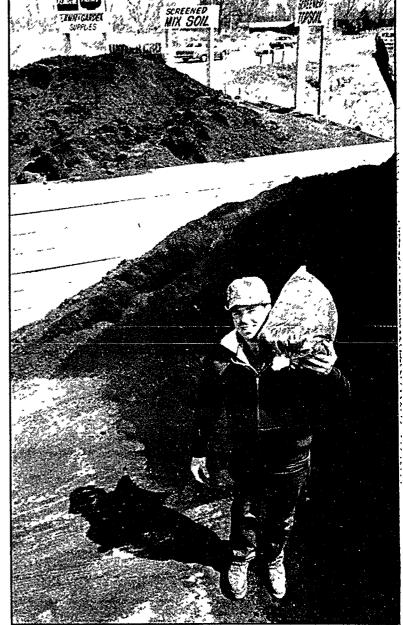

New also does a brisk business in Kentucky cannel coal for fireplaces and LP gas for patio grills. Staying open seven days a week is also part of the service offered. "Sometimes people come in on Sunday to get more gas for the grill because they were in the midst of a barbecue and ran out or they need some more blocks to finish the patio," New added.

Of course, shrubs and flowers are an important part of the landscape scene after you fill the beds with top soil and add decorative lava rock, wood chips or cedar bark. Although Fletcher and Rickard carry some small shrubs in the. summer, the business works closely with Milarch Nursery and Brainer's Greenhouse. Brainer's, at Grand River and Napier roads, carries a wide variety of flowering and bedding plants.

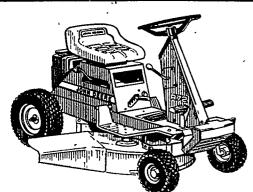

Milarch's Nursery is located just around the corner from Fletcher and Rickard at 28500 Haas Road.

Roger and Sharon Milarch, owners of the nursery, said their business is turning more and more toward the retail customer these days and the rush to y ornamental trees and shrubs is just Reginning for this year.

New Hudson landscapers aid 'dwarf planting' trend

"We buy by the truckload and sell by the piece," Roger explained, adding that they are "baby sitters for plants, shrubs and trees" that are containerized, balled or burlapped.

Milarch Nursery was started in the 1950s in Livonia by Roger's father. Roger and his wife purchased the business in 1972 and needing more mace, purchased the 29 acres on Haas God where they do a flourishing business.

Dwarf fruit trees and compact shrubs, such as the burning bush, are very popular with many homeowners doing their own plantings, Roger noted. He added that the gold-tip pfitzer in many variations is a good choice for those who want color in their landscape year-round.

"And everyone wants flowering wab," the nursery man added. "The purple leaf plum that is available in tree or bush form and the variegated red-twig dogwood are also very popular.

Although many people lean toward the beautiful azaleas and rhododendrons that grow so well and blossom so prolificly in warmer climates, the Milarchs warn that they need special care here. "They can be grown here but they need to be in a somewhat protected wea," Roger explained, adding that these shrubs do not do well in wide-open spaces in northern climates.

Of growing interest to home landscappers is the emerald gaiety and emerald gold euonymus, a variegatedleafed type of ground cover that is colorful all year, Roger added.

While Fletcher and Rickard and similar landscape supply stores provide plenty of material for the do-itwirself landscaper, just a little way nown Grand River to the west is a business that provides everything for the person who wants an attractive yard without getting his hands dirty. Shrubs 'n Stuff at 54990 Grand River, New Hudson is a landscape architecture design firm owned by Mike Anusbigian of Northville.

Anusbigian's right-hand man is Fred Miller of Cohoctah. Both men not only design landscaping for residential and commercial customers, they do the work of setting shrubs and trees, building decorative steps, retaining takes to carry out the design.

"A typical call from a prospective customer," Anusbigian said, "begins with, 'we just purchased a home and the shrubbery is so overgrown that it reaches to the eaves.' That's a challenge and often times we do have to go in and take out old shrubs and sometimes trees. We try to save as many as we can.'

The two men strive for a natural look with "carefree, flowing" lines but they also seek to match the landscape design to the character of the home. In addition, they get input from homeowners walls, patios, decks and whatever it as to what type of yard the person wants.

"If they are real gardners, then we give them more of the type of shrubs and flowers that require more care. We design the landscape so that they can put in their own flowering annuals if they want," Anusbigian said. "We try to keep maintenance as low as possible in all our designs. We pride ourselves on trying to have color in the yards from early spring to after the first frost. This may be done with flowers, flowering shrubs and a variety of foliage in 10 or 12 different shades of green. Miller, who described himself as an

"Alpine gardner" at his own country home, especially enjoys creating Japanese gardens and rock gardens and doing things with wildflowers and wooded areas.

Much of the designers' work creates illusions a varied terrains even on a small, flat lot. Although they are sometimes asked to produce the traditional row of shrubs in front of a home. most of their designs take on a special character that adds subtly to the overall attractive effect.

"We are using a lot of dwarf and semi-dwarf trees and shrubs now," Miller explained in answer to a question on what's new in landscaping. "We strive for longevity in the landscaping. The dwarf and exotic plants that are now more available are easier for the homeowner to care for and they last longer because they don't outgrow the

Cancer 4 Myth

Everything causes

Today many people will tell you that "Everything causes cancer "That's a myth It's not true Actually, only a few causes of cancer in humans are known. even though a number of other causes are suspected. Scientists continue trying to identify all cancer causes. In the meantime, it's wise to avoid the known cause: rather than believing that "everything causes" cancer" Find out what does cause cancer and how to protect yourself In Michigan Call

Antique and rare books — more than good reading

"Most book collectors do not start out as such but become interested in a subject or author and, after acquiring a few volumes, begin to feel the need to work toward completion of the coverage," Ruth Klein told fellow members of Base Line Questers antiques study group last Thursday.

Speaking on the topic, Appreciating Old Books, she said the term "book collector" is applied to individuals with wide-ranging interests and objectives.

Serious collectors have interests in acquiring important first editions, works of a particular author or group of authors, publications on a certain subject or covering a certain period — or even works in attractive or unusual bindings.

"When I was growing up in Chicago," she told the Questers meeting at the Northville Estates home of Ruth Whitmyer, my mother entertained me by taking me to the Field Museum of Natural History, where every Saturday morning we would attend an adventure program geared to young people.

"I visited fascinating places in Africa with Frank Buck and traveled the world over with Burton Holmes. On my 12th birthday my parents surprised me with a complete set of travel books, 14 volumes, written and illustrated with photographs taken by Burton Holmes.

photographs taken by Burton Holmes. "These books were printed in Battle Creek, Michigan, in 1915."

The speaker observed that, while many assume big cities like New York are where books are published, it isn't always true. Many old books, she said, were published at local printers.

The Golden Treasure or a World of Knowledge by John Walters Childebert, she noted, was published at Hillsdale, Michigan, in 1886.

"It was a popular book form and was 'everyman's' answer to the encyclopedias we use for reference to-day," she explained, noting that it was divided into two parts: historical and subjects of practical importance. It supplied a volume of information needed in the affairs of everyday life."

Travel books were very popular, the speaker said, and hundreds of authors and artists were involved in publishing these books. Generally, she explained, such publications were the result of teamwork between an artist and a writer although some artists performed both functions.

"The introduction to 'England, Picturesque and Descriptive' by Joel Cook," she illustrated, "published in Philadelphia in 1882 leads me to believe ble to read," she warned.

"Most book collectors do not start out as such but become interested in a subject or author..."

- Ruth Klein

that Mr. Cook performed both these

Ruth Klein said her book collecting really began with a "find" on a centennial farm in Antrim County where her husband's stepfather, Henry Kaiser, grew up. His parents had been Swiss immigrants and had brought with them a number of books that — to her — were very beautiful books. They were picture books of the 19th century.

"Printed before the development of modern technology, they were illustrated with lithographs, etchings, woodcuts or wood engravings," she told the Questers.

Some of the etchings were hand colored, she pointed out, displaying examples in her World Flower Book printed in Lausanne, Switzerland, in 1854.

"Another book discovered in that old house," she continued, "is 'Les Alpes,' an illustrated description of the nature of the country and of the animals found there. It was printed in Strasbourg for the Berne library in 1859.

the Berne library in 1859.

"Illustrated books of the 19th century were generally provided with attractive, durable covers and were printed on paper. of the highest quality. Thousands of these beautiful old volumes still are to be found on the shelves of dealers."

Ruth Klein said she had brought her books for the Questers to examine and pointed out their handdipped end papers, wood cut plates and quality paper that still remained white.

"Notice the beautiful cover on the flower book and the handmade papers in the animal book and in the Book of Knowledge—and bear in mind that only about 20 percent of the books now printed in this country are made on alkaline paper, which will last indefinitely. Other papers may turn so brown that in time they will be impossible to read," she warned.

The Questers were shown some of the Heritage Books printed on rag paper in the collection of hostess Whitmyer. Pages were paper thin in the books which included a publisher's note that they were "thin and tough and with an assured life of two centuries."

Other books examined by the Questers and speaker included Laird and Lee's Webster's New Standard Dictionary with a 1906 copyright.

Dictionaries, unless they are early ones and contain engraved or hand-colored plates, seldom are valuable, the Questers were told, because they, like Bibles, were widely printed and were seldom discarded.

Another book, "Black Beauty" by Anna Sewell, examined by the group had no publication date but was published by Grosset and Dunlap as a Good Value Edition at 50 cents per volume.

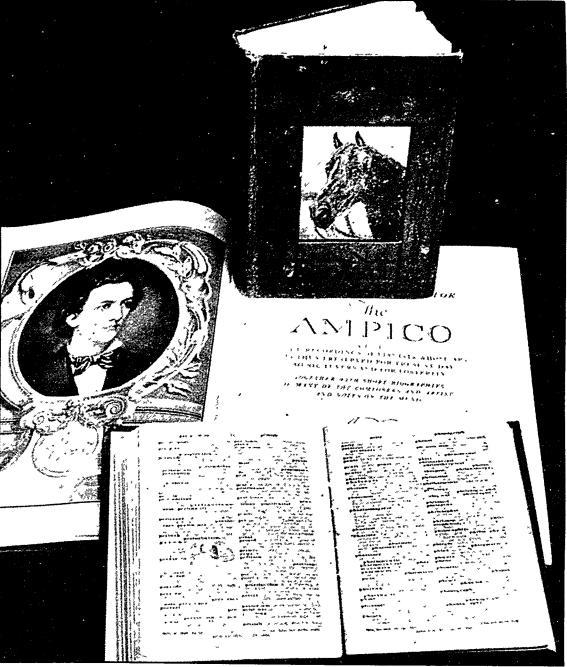

"Many picture books were published as annuals, with a new volume appearing each year," the speaker said. "Typical of these in Le Magasin Pittoresque, published in Paris in 1850.

"Assisted by several engravers, copies of masterpieces were assembled, accompanied with a paragraph or two describing each work. These publications featured a discussion of subjects of current interest."

As she displayed her book containing handcolored plates of wild flowers from 1854, Ruth Klein recalled that she was tempted when decorating her home to remove and frame the exceptional plates.

She said she is grateful that a friend dissuaded her as the book is in fine condition and its value would have been destroyed by so doing.

"Treasure old books — they reflect a beautiful world," she urged the Questers.

Frankenmuth's site for WNFGA state luncheon

Historic Zehnder's Inn in Frankenmuth will be the scene of the annual meeting and awards luncheon of the Michigan State Division of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association headed for the past two years by Phyllis Slattery of Northville.

The meeting on May 23 will be the 58th spring council of the state division with the Saginaw branch serving as hostess will be presented at both the morning business session and following luncheon in order to allow time to visit the city of Frankenmuth during the afternoon.

Molly Manley, president of the Northville Branch, and Elizabeth Joslin, president of Country Girls, and other members and officers of both local branches are making plans to attend the event to honor Mrs. Slattery as she completes her term.

Mrs. Slattery also will be attending the National Farm and Garden Meeting in Columbus, Ohio, May 6-10. She will hold a state board meeting May 17. The Michigan Division International Tea has been scheduled for September 26.

Mrs. Slattery had served as president of the Northville Branch from 1966-68 and later was editor of the WNFGA newsletter. While living in England, she was active with the British Country Women of the World.

In Frankenmuth President Stattery will open the annual meeting with an inspirational message. Mrs. Lawrence W. Smith, president of the Saginaw branch, will welcome those attending.

After the meeting, awards presentations and luncheon visitors will have an opportunity to see Frankenmuth's attractions, including a 239 foot replica of a 19th century wooden covered bridge, weaving, arts and carving shops, Michigan's only woolen mill, School Haus Square of 16 specialty shops and Bronner's Christmas decorations.

President Slattery points out that all attractions are within walking distance of Zehnder's, which had its beginnings in 1856.

She said she thought Monaghan had just bought the helicopter. He had dined at Elizabeth's before, she mentioned, reporting that the Monaghans were joined at the restaurant by staffers of People Magazine who, she thinks, "just wanted a quiet place to interview him."

Carl Johnson's watching a rising star

Jeff Daniels' role as husband in "Terms of Endearment" is giving him star status, and nobody's happier than Carl Johnson. The Northville realtor reported he is a good friend of Daniels' parents who live in Chelsea, Michigan, and has known the young actor for years. The family, he added, owns the Chelsea Lumber Company.

Daniels now is opening on Broadway in "Golden Age" which stars Mia Farrow, he said, predicting more would be heard of the actor who previously worked with Woody Allen in "Purple Rose of Cairo."

Manchester (Michigan), Shipshewana's on itinerary

When Base Line Questers antiques study group decided to postpone a planned excursion to the Amish market at Shipshewana until June 12, finding a May replacement outing proved no problem last week.

The antiquers are going to visit Manchester, Michigan, in the Irish Hills on May 17, meeting for car pools at the parking lot behind the M.A.G.S. building at 9 a.m.

Mary Ellen Gibbons was installed as president at the meeting at the home of Ruth Whitmyer Thursday, succeeding Gerry McCrumb. Continuing in office are Eileen Sonk, vice president; Ruth Klein, second vice president and trip chairperson; Carol Romanik, treasurer; and Doris Stover, recording secretary. Eileen Hlohinec is new recording secretary.

For '68 Tigers fan, it's one Long dream

By B.J. MARTIN

Admit it. For a lot of us, our memories of major-league baseball Tigers went All The Way.

Sure it's a bit like a time warp. But it's a pretty good time to be warped in. Ask Jim Long of Northville, on the guest list of the ultimate trip down memory lane: "Tiger Sports Fantasy."

Those of you who tuned in to reports of Tiger spring training might recall the premise behind the sports fantasy. Simply put, anyone with some extra cash and some free time between January 30 and February 5 could spend a week in "training camp" with the stars of '68.

Participants would play beside their heroes and learn tips on the game by day, and by night socialize at either the organized functions (like a Willie Horton-hosted barbecue) or various nearby watering-holes.

"I've always been a big fan of that team in particuar," Long says. "I graduated from Northville in 1967, so I was just at the right age to be really fascinated by them.

"The Chicago Cubs had the original idea (for a fantasy trip) and I said to myself then that if the Tigers ever did something like that I'd be first in line. And then they did!'

Long is president of Long Plumbing, which has a branch operation in Tampa Florida — not too far from Lakeland, where the '68 and the '84 Tigers hold camp. It was easy for Long to accommodate the camp with his work with: "Pat Dobson, Mickey Stanley, Willie Horton, Don Wert, Jim Northrup, Dick McAuliffe, Al Kaline, Mickey Lolich, Jim Price . . .

Price, former team representative of the Tigers as well as Freehan's backup behind the plate, was the main organizer of the package. Price ran practices and organized intra-squad scrimmages with the Tiger alumni including two later pitchers for Detroit, Joe Niekro and Mark Fidrych — plus the assortment of 60-odd rabid fans age 21 to 75.

"They had two sessions, morring and afternoon. I was fortunate to be in the afternoon session," Long says. "So I could stay up all night and have a couple beers with these guys, and they were just fabulous. They'd be there telling these really funny stories."

Long was given a complete, authentic Tiger home uniform with his name and number on it, along with a Louisville Slugger baseball bat with his name engraved on it. And every day, after a box lunch, he would get out and shag flies with Willie and Mickey, take hit-ting tips from the Gator and Al and talk pitching with Pat and the Bird.

"I mostly played center field," Long says, "like I do when I'm playing soft-ball. I stay in shape playing softball and mostly tennis ... But there's a dif-

HOMETOWN TIGER -Didn't think Sparky allowed beards? Meet Jim Long, Tiger for a week at the 'Tiger Sports Fantasy' camp last winter. For a week, the Northville resident rubbed shoulders — and bent elbows — with the '68 World Champions in Lakeland, Florida.

New coaches in store for cage squads

Replacements for two departing Northville High School basketball coaches have been named by NHS Athletic Director Ralph Redmond.

Coaching the varsity girls' team will be a familiar face, Ed Kritch. Kritch assisted Fred Holdsworth in coaching the junior varsity cagers last season, and he has at least two enthusiastic backers in Redmond and departing varsity coach Rick Hurst.

"We're looking forward to having Ed with us," Redmond remarked last week. "I think he'll go a long way to helping us stabilize our program."

Hurst, who will be moving from the area, has worked closely with Kritch before, and said he thought Kritch will do a good job with the team.

Assisting Kritch and coaching the JV girls will be Mary Anne Wisinsky, now assisting Ann Turnbull in coaching women's track at Northville. Wisinsky's qualifications also drew praise from Redmond.

The JV coaching post was open because Holdsworth will retire following this school year.

The coaching pair of Wisinsky and Kritch have a difficult job ahead of them in rebuilding a respectable basketball program. The Mustang varsity has won only three games over the last two seasons.

Last season's JV cagers compiled a respectable winning record, but many of those young players would have seen intermittent playing time on the varsity instead of playing on the JV.

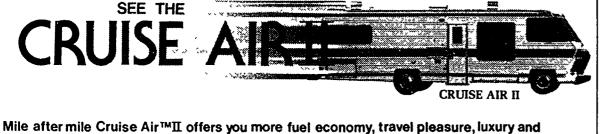

At least one step in the right direction is expected — Kritch reportedly intends to involve his prospective players more extensively in summer basketball programs, as do rival coaches.

Tiger Fantasy a Long dream

ference between hitting a grapefruit (softball) coming at you at five miles an hour and a Mark

Indeed, Long is in pretty good shape, maybe just as good as when he was Northville's top singles player on some very good years in the mid-60's (his brother Tom was a nationally-ranked amateur). But the excellent physical condition of many of the former Tigers was surprising to him.

"Willie Horton was one of the hardest-working people there," Long says. "He'd be out chasing flies full-tilt. And just watching Kaline swing the bat was fantastic."

"Mark Fidrych was pitching for us, and he's still a really good pitcher, but Gates Brown, Horton and Kaline were just jerking the ball on him. After all the years they'd been away from the game, they were still so talented."

While Long took batting practice with many of the ex-Tigers hurling, he only faced one pitcher in a game situation. It was the final day of the camp, and fantasy trippers drew straws to see who would bat and field in a nine-inning game against the former Tigers.

Long recalls: "I was out having a couple drinks the night before the game, and Pat Dobson — who was pitching next day — told me if he got home early he'd be OK the next day. That was at 10 p.m.
Well, two hours later he was still there. He was one of the craziest.

Crazy, maybe, but a whale of a pitcher. In the sixth inning the next day, Long faced Dobson with two men on and the game on the line. "He started out throwing me a curve that looked like it fell off the table. Strike one. Then he threw three balls, and I thought, come on, I'm not going to walk."

Long went fishing for an outside fastball, and then Dobson got him on a roundhouse curve. The '68 Tigers went on to win 15-13 on a two-run homer

Maybe it was an anticlimatic experience for Long, but the highs, he says, were unbeatable. "They've talked about doing this again, but it seems like something that spontaneous would be hard to re-create. You could tell a lot of (the former Tigers) were really enjoying themselves."

Long considers the week one of the best in his life. "Just getting up in the morning and putting on a baseball uniform was a great feeling," he says. "You know playing pro ball is what nine out of 10 boys want to do, and for a week I got to do that. It was pretty special."

All about Willie, Mick and Al

Here are impressions Long had of some of the former Tiger greats he met at the Tiger Sports Fan-

JIM NORTHRUP: "I asked Jim about whether he thought players are worth what they're being paid these days, and he said, 'Absolutely. No one says anything when an actor wants $4 million to do one movie.' He and Mickey Stanley were two of my favorites there, like they were in '68."

DICK MCAULIFFE: "They called him 'Mad Dog,' because the Tigers got in so many fights and he was always the reason why."

WILLIE HORTON: "They were telling me this story about how Willie had been thrown out of a game, and he was inside the locker room behind the dugout listening to it on the radio when he heard a fight was breaking out on the field. Willie just charged out of there wearing nothing but his street pants and all of a sudden everybody on the other team suddenly stopped fighting. He said, 'Just wanted to show everybody my new pants.'

AL KALINE: "He and Willie were talking about how they'd stare at a pitcher when they walked up to the batter's box. And Al said this one time when Willie was up, he stared out at this big relief pitcher for Boston, a rookie who must've been 6'7". And he was staring right back at Willie. Willie struck out. And every time he faced Willie, he got the better of him, and the Sox knew it."

MICKEY LOLICH: "That guys a real genius. There's something about the way he tells a story. He was probably the best storyteller of the bunch of

Stevenson humbles hurting kickers

Old nemesis Livonia Stevenson emerged on top in the battle of the soccer unbeatens last week, topping Northville 60 on a very Stormy Monday.

thville 6-0 on a very Stormy Monday.
You can believe Northville Coach
Stan Smalec when he says the contest between both 3-0 teams was a lot closer than that. In fact, he blamed himself for the loss

"I went too long with my starters instead of working in my bench people," he said. "It was a coaching mistake. We'll get'em later, they're beatable."

Stevenson held a 1-0 lead for 65 minutes of the 80-minute match, but finally the unrelieved Mustang regulars began to fade.

"Our defense, especially Kathy Korowin, Cheryl Spaman and Kim Flading did a really good job," Smalec reported. "They just got tired." Add the absence of Northville's leading scorer,

Lisa Cahill, due to tonsillitis, and it's easy to see how Stevenson was able to give Northville more than it could handle late in the game.

Smalec said Mustang goalie Tricia Ducker did a superb job of keeping the score close throughout most of the game with some dazzling saves. He added he was pleased with midfielder Julie Nowka's play and on-field leadersip as well.

NORTHVILLE 5 LIVONIA FRANKLIN 0

It took less than two minutes for Northville to put the Patriots behind in a non-league contest last Thursday. Roxanne Serkaian, again in a reserve role, tallied the Mustangs' first goal when she fired in the rebound of a shot from midfield by Spaman.

Spaman's kick from 50 yards out smacked the Franklin crossbar and Serkaian was in the right spot at the right time to make it 1-0.

Jill Bemer followed with a goal at the 20 minute mark on assists by Nowka and Serkaian and the score stood 2-0 at the half. Kathy Korowin broke the ice seven minutes into the second half by converting a penalty shot for tripping.

"The game was getting pretty rough toward the end," Smalec said. "A few girls from both teams had to be taken off the field."

Diane Dragon and Jill Kilner each scored on nearly identical well-placed crosses from right wing Jenny Kuffner. "We got another outstanding game from our defense, especially Kim Flading," Smalec declared.

Northville, now 4-1 overall (1-1 in the WLAA), will try to defend its championship of the Schoolcraft College Invitational on Friday and Saturday.

"Because of vacations and the senior trips, we'll only have 14 girls suiting up," said Smalec. "Hopefully, our defense will do the job and we can hope for a breakaway or a penalty shot situation to win."

With back-to-back games Friday at 4 and 6 p.m., Northville's being shorthanded is not going to help. "We've got a lot of conditioning to do up till then," Smalec agreed. Northville will host Plymouth Salem next Wednesday at 7 p.m.

There is some good news on the horizon. Senior Kim Petit, recovering from a knee injury, soon will rejoin the team for practices and possibly will play interscholastic soccer before the and of the season.

Nielsen's bat, arm too much for Spartans

By B.J. MARTIN

"We're off to a flying start," said Northville Baseball Coach Fred

To say the least. The Mustangs notched their fourth straight victory last week by shutting down league rival Livonia Stevenson 5-1 on a superb two-way effort by Dan Nielsen.

The big senior righthander won his second game of the season by scattering four hits and striking out 10 Spartan batters. But that was just half the story. Nielsen socked a two-out three-run double in the first inning to give him all the cushion he'd need.

Right fielder Doug Hartman opened the scoring by driving in catcher Jay Bartling with a first inning single. Hartman added another RBI single in the fifth after second baseman Mickey Newman doubled. Bartling had two hits in the game to boost his batting average to .467 for the season.

While the season is young, and high school records can be deceiving, Nielsen has looked like a college — maybe even big-league — prospect in his pitching appearances this year.

But then, so has everyone who has taken a turn on the mound for Nor-

"Our pitching has been outstanding," Holdsworth agreed. "And we've been getting good hitting. You put those two together and you can see we're going to

"What I like about Dan is his ability to throw strikes. I keep track of his pitches and he throws about a three-to-one ratio of strikes to balls. (Against Stevenson, 65 of Nielsen's 98 pitches were strikes.) That's just fantastic.

"Danny's also been getting the first man out a lot," Holdsworth added. "In six of his seven innings last week he got the first batter. That makes it hard on a team to come back at you."

Holdsworth attributes Nielsen's extra effectiveness to the pitcher's hard

"His arm's in good shape, but so is he," Holdsworth says. "Dan would sometimes run out of gas last year, but this season he's been running a lot and I'm expecting him to finish more ballgames. Also, Doug Doyle is pitching well, and you can't underestimate Chris Willerer, either. Chris has looked very ood also."

Northville's pitching staff has allowed just five earned runs in four games for a nifty 1.25 ERA. As for offense, the Mustangs' team batting average is a meaty .306.

"Everybody's hitting, well," Holdsworth enthused. "And it could be our defense is starting to come around.
We had just one error against Stevenson."

Due to spring break, Northville is idle until next Wednesday. Then the Mustangs (2-0 in WLAA play) will take on two teams still undefeated in WLAA—Plymouth Salem and division rival Livonia Churchill. Northville plays the Rocks away at 4 p.m. Wednesday, then hosts the Chargers the following Friday at 4 p.m.
