City housing budget includes AT rent rise

By KEVIN WILSON

Budget recommendations including a 3.7 percent rent increase at Allen Terrace were accepted from the city housing commission by city council Monday night.

Council approved the line item authorizing the rent increase, which was presented as a utility increase, in order to allow time for the required 30-day notice to Allen Terrace tenants. Approval of the rest of the budget will be done with the rest of the city budget May 29.

Rapidly rising utility costs were cited as the sole reason for the rent increase. The housing commission noted that the rent increase will cover only $13,000 of the expected $23,000 expenditure increase included in the budget for utilities.

The other $10,000 will come from other areas of the budget — primarily reducing the amount returned to the city in repayment of the debt accumulated during the six years in which the senior citizens' housing complex required an operating subsidy from the city. The commission is ending its first year in which it required no direct city funding for operations, though city manager Steven Walters noted the operation is still subsidized, in effect, through free services and because the city does not demand a payment-in-lieu-of-taxes from the facility.

Projections for the current year show utility costs at more than $106,000 — well over the $91,500 budgeted for 1983-84. The budget overrun, housing director Fran Yoakam told council, was not evident until receipt of the January gas bill. It resulted, she said, from a combination of colder-than-anticipated weather and unexpected rate increases.

The budget projection for utilities in the coming year is $115,000.

Council and the housing commission engaged in several discussions focusing

Board favors NRPH fence

Township homeowners may be in doubt about whether they want the state to put a fence around Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital, but the board of trustees is standing firm in favor of the project.

Area legislators have been working to have money appropriated to fence three sides of the hospital, leaving the Seven Mile Road frontage unfenced but planted with a hedgerow. The fence is intended to reduce the number of patients who "walk away" from the hospital grounds.

The average number of mental patients leaving the grounds has been as high as two per day, according to township figures. Hospital administrators contend the problem is less severe than those figures might indicate.

The homeowners' association has been surveying its members and studying the issue in response to suggestions that the money would be better invested in other security measures (electronic scanning, additional guards) and better patient care.

"We can't take a stand until we know what the membership thinks," association president Kitty Rhoades explained when the survey was drafted. Last week, homeowners heard department of mental health director Patrick Babcock argue against the fence while state senator Robert Geake (R-Northville) and representative Gerald Law (R-Plymouth Township) advocated it.

Supervisor John MacDonald told the board of trustees May 10 he had accidentally come across the meeting in township hall — no township officials had been invited.

"I don't know what was said, I just know they heard from Babcock and he still opposes it," MacDonald said. "As far as I'm concerned, I believe there probably should be a fence around the hospital."

"We hear a few people, we're not sure who they represent, are saying they don't want it," MacDonald continued. "I don't know who they are — I haven't heard directly from any of them."

Trustee James Nowka noted the board has "pursued a fence at the hospital since 1974 — I don't understand why anyone would oppose it now."

Clerk Susan Heintz, perhaps the board member most frequently available at township hall, said she has "not heard to date from anyone who opposes a fence" but noted that at previous hearings on hospital issues some residents of Grandview Acres have stated they disliked the idea of a fence. These persons have generally argued that despite their proximity to the hospital, they have not found walkaways a problem and that they bought homes in the area partially in mind of the view of well-kept hospital grounds.

MacDonald said that "unless anyone has an objection, I've told the senator, and Jerry Law, and Karoub (lobbyist representing the township in Lansing) that we want a fence."

Virtually every board member made some comment that MacDonald's action was correct. "Then we've a consensus that we want the fence, right?" MacDonald said. "Okay then. We'll continue to pursue it."

Trustee to fill vacancy to be named Thursday

Faced with a disappointingly small group of three applicants, none of whom could be present at last week's meeting, township board members delayed appointment of a trustee to fill the seat vacated by C. James Armstrong.

The board formally accepted Armstrong's resignation at the May 10 session. He has moved to Lexington Condominiums, in the city, and therefore is no longer eligible to be a trustee.

Supervisor John MacDonald said he had hoped to fill the vacancy last week, but felt board members should have the opportunity of briefly interviewing the three applicants before choosing among them. The three were asked to attend a special meeting of the board this Thursday night, when it is expected the appointment will be made.

"We're going to miss you," MacDonald told Armstrong, presenting him with a plaque honoring his years on the board.

"As far as I'm concerned (replacing Armstrong) is a serious responsibility," MacDonald said. "I would like to

Four receive honorary degrees Saturday

By MICHELE McELMURRY

Some 860 Schoolcraft College students were awarded degrees and certificates Saturday in the school's 19th commencement.

In his introduction, Schoolcraft President Richard McDowell noted that 37 of the 859 graduates were receiving two degrees. He added that four graduates participating in Saturday's commencement earned three degrees.

In his introduction of keynote speaker Philip Power, a recipient of an honorary associate in arts degree, McDowell noted that the founder and chairman of the board of Suburban Communications Corporation is the first person invited back to speak at a commencement ceremony. Power addressed the graduating class of 1969.

McDowell also pointed out that among the nearly 860 graduates were 117 Phi Theta Kappa students. The honorary is the two-year equivalent to Phi Beta Kappa.

This year's graduates brings the number of students who have graduated from the college since the first class in 1966 to 11,019.

In his introduction of the four honorary degree recipients, McDowell noted the college has awarded 52 honorary degrees since 1971. The names of those receiving honorary degrees traditionally is not announced until the commencement ceremony.

Honorary degree recipients for 1984 included keynote speaker Power; Samuel Hudson, author of "Reaching Out . . . The History of Schoolcraft College," the first book written on the college's history; Ralph Lorenz, Plymouth community leader and owner of the Mayflower Hotel, and former Northville resident George Clark, a former Northville Township Supervisor and charter member of Schoolcraft's President's Council.

Clark, now living in Texas, was the only one of the four recipients unable to attend Saturday's ceremony.

In acknowledging Clark's contributions to Schoolcraft, President McDowell noted that the former hardware and real estate business owner is credited with founding the Schoolcraft College Foundation in 1966 along with his late wife, Wilma Scott Clark.

He also established the Wilma S. Clark Memorial Fund Scholarship in his wife's honor. The fund provides financial assistance to students in vocational studies such as robotics and electronics.

In citing the contributions of Plymouth business leader Ralph Lorenz, Schoolcraft trustee Mary Breen noted that he is among those credited in proposing a culinary arts program for Schoolcraft and played a key role in bringing Chef Herman Breithaupt to the college as consultant for the program.

Samuel Hudson, long active in the Plymouth community, was acknowledged for his "long standing relationship with Schoolcraft College" including serving on its original citizens' committees, serving as a trustee and serving on the college's parttime faculty.

A graduate of University of Michigan and University College at Oxford, England, Power worked as a journalist in Alaska and England before founding the Observer Newspapers. In addition to serving as chairman of the board of Suburban Communications Corporation, he also is a director of the World Press Freedom Committee.

In his second keynote address before Schoolcraft graduates, the founder of the Observer Newspapers stressed the need for retraining Michigan's work force to face the state's changing economy.

"It used to be good enough just to have a high school education," Power noted. "However, times have changed. Jobs in the auto plants aren't there anymore."

"The day of counting on a good job without some form of post high school education is over," he noted.

"If we can't depend on the automobile industry to provide more jobs, what can we look to?"

Long active in state Democratic Party activities, Power currently serves as chairman of the Michigan Job Training Coordinating Council.

He told his audience that the Blanchard administration "has made a commitment to let workers acquire training and skills for the future."

Power noted that in looking to the 21st century, Michigan will need to "move away from the assembly line automation of the 20th century.

He pointed out that the state already is emerging as a world leader in the manufacturing of some robotics.

Power stressed, however, that to fuel Michigan's economy for the 21st century, it will be necessary to "provide workers today with the opportunity to acquire skills needed for a changing economy."

He noted that 19 different job retraining programs already have been set-up throughout the state to help workers acquire new skills. As an example of the types of retraining programs under way, Power noted that Perry Drugs currently is training out-of-work auto mechanics to work in its auto centers.

"Our state is emerging from a terrible period," Power noted.

"The governor's retraining program is the first step toward finding a way to help Michigan's economic future."

Power, who also serves as a member of the Governor's Commission on the Future of Higher Education, said it will be necessary for government, business and education to work together to bring the state's economy into the 21st century.

"Michigan can again become an arsenal for this nation," he concluded.

see the person appointed run for election this year rather than just serving out the five months left in Jim's term."

He also noted that he had hoped for a larger pool of applicants, cautioning that his disappointment in the number of candidates should not be interpreted to "cast reflections on anyone who has filed."

Those who filed applications prior to the May 7 deadline are Donald Williams, Myron Kasey and Michelle Demers.

Williams and Kasey both notified the clerk's office they would be unable to attend last week's meeting due to earlier commitments. It seemed Demers was not present either.

Williams, of Sunnydale Lane, is an electrical contractor. His past involvement in township affairs has focused on police and fire issues; he has taken out nominating petitions to run for election to the township board this year.

Kasey, a Jamestown Circle resident, is a mechanical engineer who has also filed for election to the board. Previous political activity has included service as a precinct delegate in the Republican party.

Demers, of Dundalk Court, is also a mechanical engineer. Employed by Ford Motor Company, she states in her application that she is working as a consulting engineer while on maternity leave from Ford.

Candidates for this year's board election have until June 5 to file nominating petitions with the clerk's office for inclusion on the August primary election ballot.

Alcohol, drug-free parties topic of N.A.C. meeting

Graduation and prom parties for high school seniors will be the subject of a panel discussion sponsored by the Northville Action Council at 7:30 p.m. May 23 in the Northville High School Auditorium.

Appropriate activities and parent and student responsibilities will be addressed by students, parents and professionals involved with Northville students.

Representing the students will be Karen Thompson, Dan Perpich, Brian Jennings and Matt Meyers. Parents contributing to the discussion include John Quinn and Robert Willerer, chairperson of the Northville Action Council.

Attorney David Jerome will address legal responsibilities. Captain Phillip Presnell of the Northville Township Police and John Farrar of the Livonia Commission on Drug Abuse will speak to their areas of expertise.

William Wright of Northville Pharmacy also will attend to explain his involvement with Pharmacists Against Drug Abuse (PADA), a nationwide effort on the part of pharmacists to educate the public about the effects of drugs.

David Bolitho, Northville High School Principal, will serve as moderator for the evening.

A film titled "Until I Get Caught," will be viewed by the panel and audience to provide common ground for discussion.

The panel discussion is the second of a series offered by the Northville Action Council in its efforts to increase the community's awareness of the ramifications of substance abuse in youth and their families as well as the school and social setting.

The public is invited to attend. Students especially are encouraged to participate.

After a tour of the M.A.G.S. facility they will be guests of Northville Rotary Club for lunch at First Presbyterian Church. Rotary is changing its meeting day from Tuesday to host the luncheon at which beautification awards will be presented. Mayor Young will be the luncheon speaker.

A tour of Mill Race Historical Village will follow with Mill Race docents on duty to answer the visitors' questions. A tour of Northville Laboratories is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. with a visit to Allen Terrace concluding the afternoon. The resident council at the senior citizen facility will serve tea to the guests.

Council member Carolann Ayers, DPW superintendent Ted Mapes and recreation director Jeff Farland are expected to be in Howell with the Vernons.

This Saturday officially is the first day of Michigan Week and has been designated as Home Town Day by the Greater Michigan Foundation, a non-profit organization of business, labor, agriculture, education and government representatives which sponsors Michigan Week. Michigan Week 1984 will be the 31st observance.

In Northville from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday Main Street from Hutton to the M.A.G.S. building will be closed to traffic as will Center from Main to Dunlap for the City Garage Sale sponsored by the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce.

Chairman Scott Lapham reported

Monday that all but two of the 175 spaces had been sold. Residents and organizations have taken spaces at $20 each to sell unused and unwanted items.

Eight "theme days" mark this year's Michigan Week observance, the foundation states. May 20 is Heritage Day to celebrate history and the arts.

May 21 is Government Day with officials participating in exchanges in many cities. May 22 is Agriculture Day highlighting Michigan-grown products. Commerce Day May 23 salutes Michigan business. Education Day May 24 recognizes outstanding students and teachers. Travel/Tourism Day May 25 plays up the state's recreational opportunities and natural resources. Concluding the theme days is Family Day, May 26.

Adding that Michigan Week is an umbrella for many events, the Greater Michigan Foundation notes that the Michigan Bicycling Federation is sponsoring a series of cycling races, culminating in a 200-mile marathon on Belle Isle May 21.

Schools host Festival of the Arts events

As part of this year's Michigan Week festivities, Northville Public Schools have scheduled a host of events to coincide with its fifth annual Festival of the Arts.

Beginning this Friday, student artwork will be displayed in merchants' windows throughout downtown Northville.

The Northville Schools Student Art Show, under the direction of art instructors Shirley Talmadge, Edie Pegrum, Gail Raben and Roy Pedersen and industrial arts instructor Richard Crossman, will continue through May 25.

On Saturday, May 19, Northville schools will present A Music and Physical Education Review.

Various groups representing Northville schools' instrumental music, vocal music and physical education departments will entertain throughout the day in Town Square.

Kicking off the day-long festivities will be the 10 a.m. program of the combined bands from Moraine, Amersman, Silver Springs and Winchester, under the direction of conductors Beverly Schellhase and Gary Gandolfi.

At 10:30 a.m., Silver Springs and Winchester fourth graders will present "Timber" with play and singing directed by Ann Jarvi.

"Dancin' and Singin'" will be presented at 11 a.m. by Moraine and Amersman schools under the direction of Sandy Craig.

AAUW scholarships given

Northville Branch of the American Association of University Women is honoring the two recipients of its fourth annual Janice E. Hobart Memorial Scholarship at a dinner at 7 p.m. Thursday at Meadowbrook Country Club.

Joel Visnyak and Anne M. Wertheimer, both seniors at Northville High School who plan to attend Michigan State University, and their mothers have been invited to be guests of the branch, Jean Harrison, chairman of the scholarship committee and the educational foundations committee of the branch, announced.

Dinner arrangements are being made by the educational foundations committee.

Visnyak plans to major in agriculture, and Wertheimer will study micro-biology with a major interest in genetics.

They will receive their scholarship checks of $500 each at the honors awards convocation June 6 at the high school.

Funds from the AAUW used book sale and sale of the Game of Northville help fund the branch scholarships.

Progress toward establishment of a special assessment district for construction of the township's massive Haggerty Road sewer project took two steps forward last week as the township board accepted its engineer's preliminary definition of district boundaries and established a May 30 public hearing date.

The district would be the largest ever created in the township, stretching along its east side from Eight Mile down to Five Mile, from the eastern boundary with Livonia west as far as the state hospital.

As described by consulting engineer Jack McNeely last week, the district would extend west on Eight Mile to the eastern edge of Meadowbrook Country Club. On the north side of Seven Mile it would run west to Smock and pick up unsewered properties in that region.

On the south side of Seven Mile the district would include 160 acres of state hospital property in order to service Hawthorn Center and a few cottages where sewer lines feed into a pumping station there. The area included is a quarter section, one-half mile west from Haggerty Road and one-half mile south of Seven Mile.

At Six Mile, the district would run from the eastern boundary of the Maple Hills subdivision (platted but not yet built just east of township hall on the north side of Six Mile) to Haggerty Road, McNeely continued.

Between Six and Five Mile roads, the district would include all properties east of Northville Colony Estates 3 and 4 and east of Park Gardens. This area runs to the eastern edge of the township (near I-275), rather than just to Haggerty, and so includes the McDonald's Restaurant, Oasis Golf Course, the car wash and other properties east of Haggerty and north of Five Mile.

Sewers would be extended along the mile roads and into residential areas as required to route flows to the Haggerty interceptor.

Other properties serviced by the massive project will likely include the corner of Novi at Eight Mile and Haggerty (where a Sheraton Hotel is planned) and portions of Plymouth Township along Haggerty north of M-14.

McNeely is preparing cost estimates for public presentation. Financing methods will likely include contributions from the township and Novi in addition to the assessment against property owners in the district.

Supervisor John MacDonald noted that the planned construction of a Meijer store at Eight Mile and Haggerty "is, no question about it, a major spur to doing this now." If the sewer is constructed in time, the assessment against the large Meijer parcel would cover a large part of the cost.

The Haggerty road interceptor has long been a major element in the township's long-range sewer plan. It had been included as a portion of the now-defunct super sewer plan and would have been eligible for federal and state financing.

But it was dropped from the substitute plan for sewer service in this region, so the township decided to pursue it on its own.

TAX TIPS

LEE E. HOLLAND, C.P.A.

REDUCING INCOME TO SAVE TAXES

If you're a businessman with a large income, you may be looking for ways to reduce some of your income so you can save on taxes. One way to do this to benefit yourself and your family is to take advantage of the current gift tax provisions. The latest tax law allows you to give up to $10,000 a year to any individual free of tax. If your spouse joins you in making the gift, the limit doubles to $20,000.

The tax law also allows you to make investments for your dependents in savings accounts, savings bonds, stock, bonds, and real estate. For example, if you own your own corporation you can give shares of stock. The dividends or capital gains on the sale of stock will be credited to their accounts and not your own.

This is just one of many tax-saving opportunities under the new tax law that businessmen can take advantage of. Why not call us for an appointment to discuss them?

Bids taken for NHS pool renovation

By MICHELE McELMURRY

Though the construction document phase of the high school renovation is about a month behind schedule, the Northville Board of Education gave its approval Monday night for the district to begin accepting bids for work on the NHS pool and replacement of the school's boilers.

Assistant Superintendent Burton Knighton told the board that while the construction document phase of the project is not expected to be completed in its entirety until the end of June, work on three portions of the renovation project are ready to begin before the close of the current school year.

The school board approved the construction documents for the pool at Monday's meeting and authorized the administration to begin receiving bids on the pool portion of the project and replacement of the school's two boilers.

The board also scheduled a special call meeting for 7:30 p.m. June 4 to consider approval for receiving bids on footings for the new construction portions of the high school renovation project.

Architect John Argenta told the board he currently is finalizing plans and specifications for the required footings and will have the construction documents ready for the board's review at the June 4 special call meeting.

Knighton noted that work on the pool portion of the project could commence prior to the close of the school year without interfering with the athletic program.

In his review of the renovation work pegged for the pool area, Argenta told the board that while architects originally thought the entire pool would have to be repiped, they now believe the vast majority of it is salvagable.

However, he noted that all piping will have to be chemically cleaned and that all main valves will need to be replaced.

He pointed out that one of the key areas of renovation in the pool is the deteriorated lay-in ceiling which will be replaced with a new ceramic-coated high humidity type ceiling.

Other work to be conducted in the pool area includes lighting replacement, cleaning and painting existing plaster ceiling in the pool area, removing hollow metal framing at offices, removing caulking in walls and re-sealing with silicone, refinishing bleachers, grouting entire tile shell of pool, patching broken tile in pool deck and locker rooms, replacing toilet partitions in toilet rooms and providing concrete locker benches in locker rooms.

In addition to work on the pool, Knighton told the board that Monday's approval to begin receiving bids on new boilers would assure a timely delivery. He noted that because the boilers will have to be built to the district's specifications, delivery will take from three to four months.

He noted that while the administration had hoped to save one or both boilers, the district's intention to convert from steam to hot water operation most likely would cause added stress on the already aged boilers.

Argenta told the board that conversion from steam to hot water would cost the district approximately $3,000 per boiler, excluding any ancillary piping. In recommending purchase of new boilers, Argenta noted that the existing boilers are approximately 25 years old and that 25 years is considered the economic life expectancy for the equipment.

He also noted that the boilers were manufactured by Continental Boiler Company which is no longer in existence.

Should the board approve the construction documents proposed for the new footings at its June 4 special meeting, the district will be able to receive bids and proceed with the excavating and setting of footings for all additions to the high school by the first part of July.

In other action Monday, the board:

- Acknowledged recent graduates Rise Burke and Heidi Romberg, who earned their Northville High School diplomas through Northville Public Schools Community Education Program.

- Approved $36,120 in new elementary and high school textbooks for the 1984-85 school year in accordance with the district's textbook calendar which provides a timeline for book purchase.

'Duck fest' in city proposed

A decoy carving contest as well as an exhibit of wildlife paintings was envisioned by Tom MacKinnon for a possible summer duck festival last Thursday as he met with members of the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce.

MacKinnon said he was representing his restaurant partner, Dr. Leonard Wade, a wildlife painter, who could not attend the meeting.

"It's a natural for Northville," he assured the chamber, explaining that a decoy contest with a substantial prize would attract many carvers. In such contests, he said, the object is to carve a decoy which will float.

In addition, he continued, there could be paintings on display and for sale in store windows and elsewhere. MacKinnon said decoy enthusiasts have been generous in supporting such events, especially if they are for a good cause. When the idea first was brought to the chamber by member Scott Lapham, it was suggested that the Northville Arts Commission be a participant. Initially, after talking with Wade and MacKinnon, Lapham had taken the idea to city council, where it was endorsed if Lapham gained sponsorship.

"It would capitalize on the duck sanctuary that Northville already is well known for," MacKinnon told the chamber enthusiastically. "It's a natural," he repeated.

MacKinnon said he felt the duck festival should be held about August 25 to avoid conflict with other similar events elsewhere and to give planning time.

The chamber is to continue discussion of the project at its next meeting May 24.

In other business, the date for the one-day circus being sponsored by the chamber was confirmed for July 6.

'Big Apple' is the theme of grads' all-night party

One lucky senior in the Northville High School Class of '84 will win a trip for two to Chicago at the "gambling casino" which is to be one of the attractions at the annual all-night party for seniors following graduation June 15.

Theme for this year's party is "The Big Apple." The party is open to all graduating seniors who will be receiving admission tickets in the mail shortly, the committee of parents of seniors reports. It is headed by Glenda Buist.

"Everyone goes," the committee adds of the popular party. Parents of all graduating seniors are asked to send in their donations of $15 to cover party expenses now.

Since funds are needed now for such party items as decorations, the committee is asking that check. be sent to Carolyn Nieuwkoop, 815 Scott, Northville, 48167, as soon as possible. They will ensure that the graduate receives the admission ticket.

In addition to the evening buffet and breakfast, the committee reports there will be a live band.

"While the main prize at the casino is the trip for two to Chicago, there are lots of other nifty prizes," Diane Schrader, a member of the committee, adds.

The parties for graduates only have been held at the high school following commencement exercises for many years. They have been attended by an average of 80 percent of the class in past years.

Parents create the decorations and work throughout the night to supply the buffet and the concluding breakfast.

'Popcorn Man' debuts June 24

Film student David Zarembo's movie "Popcorn Man" is completed and will premiere June 24 at the Redford Theater, Mayor Paul Vernon told city council Monday night.

Shot on location in Northville, the film will make its debut at the Redford site because the Northville Marquis was deemed too small for the anticipated crowd, Vernon continued. He said he was told the movie will be shown at the Marquis at some point, but that space demands for the premiere presentation required the larger Redford facility.

The movie, which deals with a retarded man working at a popcorn stand and his developing friendship with a small-town boy, was shot last August and September.

Zarembo had anticipated a December debut but that was delayed due to his new college study workload and editing requirements.

It will be screened for the first time (excepting a press preview) at 3 p.m., Saturday, June 24.

Zarembo is slated to appear at city council's May 29 meeting to give additional details about the showing.

Relief, at last

Wayne County executive William Lucas (center) zipped out to Northville Township Hall last week to sign the construction contract for the North Arm Relief sewer — first stage of the immense 'son of supersewer' project. Present were left to right, bottom row, Supervisor John MacDonald, Lucas, county commissioner Mary Dumas and; top row, Ted Biehl of Hubbell, Roth & Clark, Inc., design engineers for the project, Wayne County DPW director Duane Egeland, contractor Anthony Mancini of Richard Mancini Equipment Company, and township engineer Edward J. McNeely. The 3.42 mile interceptor running through the Middle Rouge Parkway will expand capacity along the presently undersized interceptor line at a total cost of $3.48 million. Funding is 70 percent federal. Northville Township contributes $309,400 and the city of Novi $548,100. Construction begins next Monday with completion expected by August, 1985. A story detailing the project will appear in next week's paper. Record photo by Kevin Wilson.

Township examines fire department ballot proposals

By KEVIN WILSON

If faced with four separate ballot questions involving fire department funding this August, would township voters continue to provide the support they have in the past, or would they be inclined to reject the whole batch?

That is the question being contemplated in township hall this week as officials try to decide which questions will be placed on the August ballot and which, if any, will be delayed for the November election. At the board's May 10 meeting, trustees opted to study the matter for another week and take it up this Thursday during a special meeting (called for a public hearing on EDC funding of the Meijer project).

Under consideration are:

- Renewal of the 0.5 mill levied since 1981 and earmarked for fire department operations. This is viewed as the most crucial item and is virtually certain of appearing on the August ballot. In its new form, it would be extended for five more years.

- The purchase of property on Seven Mile west of Beck for future construction of a second fire hall. This second fire hall is needed, Chief Robert Toms contends, in order to insure rapid response to fires on the west side of the township, which officials believe will be further developed in the next decade.

- Additional millage. Toms and township treasurer Richard Henningsen have both noted that the present one-half mill provides sufficient money for regular operating costs, but that capital improvements costs have been financed through the general fund. Exact amount of the increase? Definitely less than one-half mill, perhaps one-quarter mill.

- Some method of financing construction of the new fire hall. Officials had thought this might be done by issuing bonds, but recently discovered that the likely cost (last estimate: less than $250,000) is too small to bond. So, this looks like something that needs millage also.

What trustees are worrying about is what to ask for, when.

Given those four choices, it seems likely the township will pursue at least three this year — the renewal, the land, and money to build the new station. On which ballot these questions appear will be decided Thursday.

Trustee Richard Allen said he had discussed the matter with several people, asking how they would vote if presented with these issues. Allen said he came away believing that the land purchase and firehall construction millage should be presented together.

"The guy who's going to vote to buy the land will vote to build the fire station — probably," Allen suggested. "If he's in favor of buying the land, he'll be willing to spend the money to build the station."

Allen proposed putting those three issues on the August ballot — the

'That's the limit of what you can ask for. You go for any more and you're dead.'

— Richard Allen
Township trustee

renewal, the land purchase and the construction millage — while arguing against seeking other millage for equipment costs.

"That's the limit of what you can ask for," he said. "You go for any more and you're dead."

But other board members suggested including only the renewal and the land purchase in August, holding off the construction millage question for November.

"We don't want to ask for too much at once," said clerk Susan Heintz. "We want to protect that renewal."

When some trustees suggested that voters, presented with the three issues proposed by Allen, would likely reject the added millage, he responded that "that's fine — if you have the land you can go back later and ask for the millage."

But he was clearly opposed to splitting the issues for their first ballot appearance. "If you get the renewal and the land in August and then go back in November," Allen said, "the guy in the booth is going to stand there and say 'I just gave the fire department money.' He won't remember what it was for, just that he voted for millage. So he'll say 'no' in November. Those two really should stay together."

Beyond those questions is one Henningsen raised — "Do you want to take the fire department off the general fund entirely?"

The current millage brings in about $88,000 per year, he said. The department's budget has been in the neighborhood of $100,000 lately, with the difference largely being the cost of refurbishing aging fire trucks and adding new equipment.

Henningsen seemed to favor a small tax increase to cover those capital costs, but did not argue forcefully for yet a third millage question this year. Just two months ago, it seemed clear the township would be seeking the millage for capital expenses, but that was before it was learned the fire station construction would not qualify for bonding.

If the three immediate items were approved by the voters in August, township officials are not yet indicating whether they would return with the capital improvements millage in November, put it off until next year, or leave the question open until the fire station millage expired.

Housing commission operations topic of debate on the commission's role as it relates to the city. Rising out of some council members' concerns regarding a car allowance the commission voted for Yoakam, the wide-ranging discussion was sometimes heated but clarified several questions.

One central concern was council member Carolann Ayers' question of what rules and bylaws govern housing commission operations. A search at city hall, she said, turned up only an ordinance creating the commission and stating appointments would be by the city manager.

But housing commission chairman Ray J. Casterline II said that the group does have a set of bylaws and is presently revising it. The basic description of the commission's role is found in Michigan Public Act 18, he explained, which sets forth its duties. The act describes an entity specifically intended to operate as much as possible like a private business, thus the commission has fairly wide authority.

Ayers questioned whether Yoakam's job does not involve several activities not directly related to the housing operation, to which Yoakam and the commission responded that the extra duties are ones assigned by council. Casterline suggested that the amount of driving required by those extra duties was a major reason for the commission decision to grant the car allowance.

Council member J. Burton DeRusha repeated his earlier statement that he felt the allowance as a "small violation of trust" that exists between the commission and council. He suggested it had been granted despite council's specific instruction that there be no raises in the current year.

Casterline responded that he was "very hurt" by DeRusha's phrase. "There is no violation of trust here," he said. "We studied this for a long time, though it may not show up in our minutes. We chose this method because buying a car for the housing department would cost twice as much. We studied what other commissions do."

Casterline said the commission felt a duty to reimburse Yoakam for the rising cost of operating her personal car on city business. He noted that a mileage allowance of 30 cents per mile is insufficient to cover fixed costs of insurance and depreciation because of the short distances involved.

DeRusha said he "understands now" how the decision was reached. Folino noted that the city budget includes the purchase of a car for police business (as opposed to patrol) uses, that the city manager gets a car allowance and that a city car is provided the DPW chief.

"It's not as though Fran were getting something other department heads don't get," Folino said. "I don't think it can really be seen as a raise."

Late in the session, Ayers and Yoakam exchanged some sharp words when Yoakam interpreted the council member's continued questions regarding the spending levels in the housing department as an attack on the commission's work.

Ayers said she did not mean to denigrate the operation in any way but was trying to explain why she had been "uneasy" about the Allen Terrace budget for her entire six years on council.

"I'm telling you it's my fault," Ayers said. "I don't yet understand it — I guess I'm going to have to get a copy of the act. Right now, I just can't tell whether the budget is proper or not."

Other council members made conciliatory statements, praising the commission and its work and, in Folino's words, relating their "pride in Allen Terrace."

At the end of the meeting, well after Yoakam and the housing commission members left, Ayers said she wanted to "apologize if my comments have damaged the relationship between council and housing commission or its director in any way."

Mayor Paul Vernon said she did "not have to apologize — you were doing your job, trying to understand something you're being asked to make a decision about."

"If it has affected relations, well, that's unfortunate," Vernon continued. "I don't think that will be the case, however. The commissioners and the director are good people who will understand what happened."

Questers chapters donate funds to Wash Oak project

Both the No. VI Station chapter of Questers and the two-year old Waterford Bend chapter have been giving major assistance to the Wash Oak School project in Mill Race Historical Village.

School curator Harriet Welland was presented with a check from the Waterford Bend Chapter No. 1013 for work at Wash Oak School at the annual luncheon meeting of the antiques study group May 7 in Mill Race Historical Village.

At the meeting Kathy Lynch was installed as president. Other officers installed for two-year terms were Orla Hamilton, first vice-president; Marian Roller, second vice-president; Alice Pooley, recording secretary; Gloria Collins, corresponding secretary; and Doris Craig, treasurer.

Outgoing officers who took office when the chapter was chartered in 1982 are Shirley Sharp, president; Lynch, first vice-president; Ruth Jacobs, second vice-president; Claudine Kinnaird, recording secretary; Helen Hoppling, corresponding secretary; and Fran Mattison, treasurer.

In recognition for her contribution to the chapter retiring president Sharp was presented with a Quester president's pin.

During both years that the chapter has been chartered it donated $100 checks to Northville Historical Society for the school. The 1982-83 gift was for reproduced McGuffey Readers.

These Questers also have made a gift of $50 to the Plymouth Historical Museum to buy children's clothing for manikens. Another $50 has been sent by the chapter to the Questers National Headquarters in Philadelphia for its preservation and restoration.

Waterford Bend Questers also have given two books to area libraries. "American Heritage, Three Centuries of American Antiques" was donated to the Novi Library. "Collecting American Country Antiques" by Emmerling was donated to the Northville Library this past month.

Four Waterford Bend Questers — Fran Mattison, Gloria Collins, Claudine Kinnaird and LaRita Roder — sewed 16 vests for use by the children's classes at the Wash Oak School. They had been cut out by Mary Ann West, a local quilter, and were presented to curator Welland.

Pinafores cut out and made by No. VI Station Questers and the vests will be ready for the fall term at Wash Oak.

The No. VI Station Questers plan to close the year with an annual "create a salad" luncheon June 6. Each member will bring several ingredients to contribute to a large chef salad. Preparation will be at the home of Helen McKee in Shadbrook.

Marilyn Norgrove will be retiring as the 1983-84 president of the chapter.

Successful programs during her term, Norma Peltz reports, included a workshop on making "Cape Cod Berry Baskets" and informative speakers on

"Herb Potpourri," "Shaker Living," "Williamsburg Furniture Reproductions," "English and American Samplers" and "Rockingham Pottery."

The membership, she adds, has especially enjoyed making the calico pinafores for the Wash Oak School as a community service project.

Alhambra show a success

Grand Commander Chuck Hopkins of Manresa Caravan No. 217 of Northville welcomed 650 guests, most of whom were retarded, to the second annual Alhambra Performing Arts Talent Show held Sunday, May 6, at Mercy High School auditorium in Farmington Hills.

Participants were 31 mentally retarded persons. Commander Hopkins explained the purpose of the show was to give recognition to retarded persons for talented performances and perhaps to motivate them to improve on their abilities.

Secondly, he said, it is intended to provide incentive to some in the audience to become involved themselves and possibly become performers in future shows.

Sir Noble Tom Diskin of the Manresa Caravan was master of ceremonies, announcing the 21 competing acts, including seven from Ontario.

Talent show judges were Mary Beth McElroy, Jack Bressler, Reggie Hodson, Brad Tollinski, Art Wysocki, Vicki Symond and Ed Zoarski.

They selected winners for best of show — male and female — male and female vocal soloists and piano and dance soloists. Among the winners who came from a wide metropolitan area and Ontario were David Slow of Plymouth, third place male soloist, and Amy Somerville of Walled Lake, second place, piano soloist.

Metro Vision of Farmington, Farmington Hills, and Novi video taped the show which will be aired on Public Access Channel No. 12 in the near future. Sponsors suggest that those living in other areas can request that the talent show be shown on their public access channel.

Show sponsors report that teachers and parents assisted in producing the show as did Beverly Thomas of the Oakland A.R.C.

Park Gardens project nearly done

Completion of the Park Gardens sewer system is near, though there will be a short delay beyond the end-of-May target date for putting the system into operation.

The long-awaited system will serve more than 170 parcels in the southeast corner of the township — west of Haggerty and north of Five Mile — alleviating the subdivision's problems with failing septic fields.

Township engineer Edward (Jack) McNeely told the board of trustees May 10 that late alterations to the design in the southeast corner of the Park Gardens area will push the operational date back into June.

The changes, which McNeely said his firm had just completed drawing, were made to facilitate the system's connection to the proposed Haggerty Road interceptor (see related story).

"All the sewers are in the streets," McNeely reported. "Those residences on Marilyn can have connections made immediately, but it will probably be the end of June before we can connect the houses on Parklane, Maxwell and Fry streets."

The latter three streets are tributary to a pumping station at the southeast corner of the project. The design changes affect that pumping station. Marilyn is downstream from the pumping station and tributary to another lift station at the Northville Forest apartment complex, so houses on that street can be serviced immediately.

McNeely reported that the sewer on Marilyn has been inspected both under air pressure and by television camera. The other sewers have been air-tested, and engineers will be running TV cameras through them in the next week or two, he added.

Supervisor John MacDonald asked about road conditions and the contractor's willingness to repair damages done during the course of the sewer installation, stating that he had heard some complaints.

"Because of the weather and because of the heavy construction equipment on the gravel roads, we do have trouble with the roads," McNeely said. "The latest, I think, was on Parklane. The contractor has been responsive to our requests for repairs — we have to keep after him about it a little, but as contractors go he's responsive and generally gets the repairs made in short order."

Township clerk Susan Heintz added that a township-organized program of offering assistance to low- and moderate-income families in having the connections made from their homes to the sewer connections in the streets is nearly completed.

"We'll be going out for bids soon on the assistance group," Heintz said. The work connecting those homes receiving assistance will be bid as a group in the expectation that the volume of work will lower costs.

Pinewood Derby Champs

Jeff Cass (standing, left) of Northville Cub Scout Pack 721 captured first-place honors at the District Pinewood Derby Championships Saturday, May 5, in Redford. Jeff won the 10-Year-Old Class Championship with his miniature dragster, carved according to Pinewood Derby rules, out of a seven-inch block of wood with plastic wheels. Above, Jeff showcases his winning car with other prize winners (left to right, standing) Doug Cadaret (2nd), Thomas Sweden (3rd) and Robert

Johnson (5th) of Livonia, and Brandon Gable of Redford (6th). Kneeling is Plymouth's Scott Wygant (4th). Three other Northville Cubs were prize-winners — 8-year-old Chad Martin placed second in 8-year-old class, Scott Brehm placed sixth in 8-year-old class and Jason Miller placed fourth in 9-year-old class. Jeff, Jason and Chad all qualified to compete in the Detroit area-wide Pinewood Derby Race at the Renaissance Center June 9.

McCarville out of race

By KEVIN WILSON

Don't look for Liz McCarville's name on the township election ballot this August — it won't be there.

McCarville, who was expected to bid for the clerkship being vacated by Susan Heintz (who is running for supervisor), actually started her campaigning and began gathering signatures on nominating petitions.

But, the Park Gardens Homeowner's Association co-founder and community recreation commissioner said last week, she has dropped out of the race to pursue new business interests.

"It was a tough decision," McCarville explained. "I agonized about it for some time and decided I couldn't give enough time to both of them."

So she dropped the political campaign and accepted a partnership in an expedition outfitters firm. She left her Fry Road home Monday for a stay in the wilds of Manitoba, Canada, where she will take part in one the company's expeditions and examine a lodge it hopes to purchase.

Her departure from the township political race is likely to lessen the intensity of the contest this fall. The lone proclaimed Democrat stating an interest in a board seat, she was expected to produce a lively campaign. If nothing else, her party affiliation would have insured at least one contest come November. Last, voters of the Republican primary this August may be assured of election.

McCarville's past activities on behalf of the Park Gardens' association, the recreation department, the township homeowners' association and the Jaycee Women have all drawn attention for their large scope and the enormous amount of energy involved.

She cautioned that her decision not to seek elective office does not mean she'll disappear from the Northville scene. McCarville said she'd continue to serve on the recreation commission and maintain her membership and interests in the homeowners' associations and Jaycee Women group.

Our Opinions

Board is right: Fence is needed

We were happy to see the township board clarify its position in favor of fencing Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital. The present atmosphere in Lansing likely presents the best opportunity available in years to have this long-sought item funded.

We've repeated the arguments in favor of a fence so often that it's become almost boring, but the matter is important and bears at least a cursory reminder:

The fence is the least costly, long-term answer to the walkaway problem. Once constructed it will require only minimal maintenance, will never ask for a raise in pay and cannot be laid off when the state's fiscal position slides down the slopes of cyclical auto industry downturns. The present proposal of a three-sided, 6-foot fence can hardly be considered imprisoning the patients, but it would deter those who are merely "confused" (i.e. drugged or mentally ill to the point that they don't recognize that they've left the grounds). It would also slow down those intent on escape, raising the odds that hospital security forces or area police can apprehend them.

Most of the patients at Northville are harmless — but all it takes is one of those who are inclined toward violence to others or themselves to escape to have the makings of tragedy. We've witnessed one murder and several suicides committed by patients who managed to leave behind the supervisory care they were committed to the hospital to receive.

With all that in its favor, we expect area legislators will be able to appropriate money to fence the hospital this year or next. But there is opposition which could prevail if the handful of local people who dislike the fencing idea can make it seem that they represent all residents. Until recently, the township has presented a united front in favor of a fence. It has been a 10-year battle that is not yet won.

So we were saddened to hear that the homeowners' association conducted a meeting at township hall, attended by mental health director Patrick Babcock, but with no township officials invited. Supervisor John MacDonald says he was told the deletion of township government representation was an oversight, and we hope that's true.

Because, for whatever reason this happened, it undermined the township's position in favor of a fence. In the absence of township government representation, it must have seemed to Babcock that if he could convince the homeowners' association that the fence was a bad idea, he could win the battle. We favor the concept of the homeowners' group as a means of efficient communication between government and residents, but expect that when it comes time for the township's interests to be communicated to Lansing, it will be the township government that does the talking. The lack of an invitation to township officials to attend the Babcock-meeting muddies the waters on this issue.

We believe the damage is containable, and that the first steps in this process are the ones MacDonald told the board he has already taken — communicating to Lansing that the board of trustees, elected by all the residents of Northville Township, still strongly favors a fence. The next step is the association's: it must make certain no such "oversights" occur in the next few months of debate on this matter.

Off the record

By Kevin Wilson

"T" is for tot who talks a lot

There's been an explosion at my house in the past month — a vocabulary explosion. Young Sean has discovered language, something I was naively anxious to have him learn. If you've been there, you'll recognize the following. If you haven't, consider this fair warning.

I mean, I was proud when he first said "Dada, ont book," but when dinner's done and I hear for the 30th time in one day 'bunny book, now,' it starts to get a little thin. If you've ever read 'Bunny Goes to Market' until you could recite it from memory, you either have a munchkin or your reading tastes are even more eclectic than my own. It's coming time for me to begin my biennial re-reading of 'Moby Dick' (it cleanses my mind), but I've got the spooky feeling Sean won't stand for it — right now he prefers his cheap bunny shopping story to the deluxe edition of Beatrix Potter grandma gave him at Easter.

Books aside, the kid won't shut up. And he doesn't stop using the words he cut his teeth on (groan here) when he picks up new ones. Sean adds an average two words a day to his vocabulary lately, but that doesn't lessen the frequency with which I hear his months-old favorite: "Turn wadio on now" followed quickly by "turn wadio ahf, turn teedio on, now." The teedio is the television. He likes to watch berd and uhnee on Sesame Street. He also has berd and uhnee slippers (soos and/or boos). With the coming of spring, we at last can offer 'owsigh' activities, like picking 'fowies' which are soon 'boke fowies.' These are then offered to the passing 'pee-pool' (he means people, but it sure sounds like the puddle he leaves at bath time).

Driving with Sean is a whole new experience. Where once we cruised quietly, mom and dad chatting in the front while baby stared in amazement, we now get to hear such sterling conversational items as 'tuck, car, tuck, tuck. Da-Da, tuck.' If I don't say 'yes, that's right, that's a truck' or 'no, that's a car, a station wagon, not a truck,' there's the devil to pay. And we've learned that, yes, even 2-year-olds are confused about whether a Dodge Caravan is a car or a truck.

The most unnerving part of this is that you find yourself talking like Sean, long after he's gone to bed or off to grandma's for the day. Toni works in a hospital and told a nurse lately that an incontinent patient was 'poopster.' I offered my mother an ocky on mother's day, and asked my wife if she wanted to go 'nigh-nigh.' The last straw came when I was buying something at the drug store last week. The bill came to $16.26, so I coughed up a $20 bill, a quarter and asked the clerk to "Wait, I think I have a paw-knee in my pocka." It was a little embarrassing — Sean was nowhere around. The solution may be at hand, though.

I've been told of my own days as a tyke when I learned to speak with a Scottish accent, since it was all I heard. First grade speech classes cured me of it so well, I can't even do a passable imitation of even my mother's slight burr anymore. Anyway, my younger brother was slow to speak intelligibly, because he always had me around to interpret for him. Until this past month, I could never understand why my parents didn't insist on him communicating without my aid. Now I know. So I've devised my self-defense plan. We're going to let Sean teach the baby (due in November) to talk. If nothing else, it'll give him a dose of his own medicine. Maybe he'll have to read 'Bunny Goes to Market.' If not, it'll be an heirloom for his firstborn.

Strong teeth

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

She didn't look like much. Just a kid, maybe 12-14 years old.

So I gladly stepped aside with a certain air of charity when she asked if she could play a game of Ms. Pac-Man after I had ripped off a game of 120,000-plus points.

"Play much?" I asked as she eased herself down on the stool, wielding the lever with one hand and non-chalantly helping herself to a bag of potato chips with the other.

"I've played before," she answered politely.

I could see she was telling the truth. She moved adroitly through the first two boards, racking up a perfect score of 29,600. Not bad, but then anyone who's halfway decent will score 29,600 on the first two boards.

It was during the second set of three boards that I began to take notice. The kid was smooth, alright. She handled herself well.

It wasn't until the third set of three boards that I began to get nervous. The kid was making moves I had never seen before. I'm good enough to get all the blue ghosts on the first two sets, but after that I just try to get through as many boards as I can — to heck with the ghosts.

But the kid was getting them all. Luring the ghosts down into the corner with a wriggle of her wrist, tapping the power dot and nailing the blues in quick order ... one, two, three, four — 200, 400, 800, 1,600.

By this time she had picked up 100,000 points. She hadn't lost a man. And she was still eating those potato chips with her free hand.

Realizing that something special was happening, I summoned the regulars — Big Joe, Ponch, Peaches, Mary Margaret. Word spread fast. By the time she finished, there were maybe 20 of us gathered around the Ms. Pac-Man machine. She seemed disappointed that she had only scored 160,000 points.

"Nice game, kid," I said in admiration as she moved away from the stool. "Don't forget your potato chips."

It was two weeks before any of us had the courage to play Ms. Pac-Man again. Kids can do that to you.

We do welcome letters on various subjects and concerns. We ask that they be issue oriented and confined to 500 words or less. We reserve the right to edit for clarity, brevity and libel.

Deadline for letters to appear in the current week's newspaper is 3:30 p.m. Monday. Letters must be signed by the writer and contain address and telephone number. Names will be withheld on request with a brief explanation of why it is being made.

City will make repairs to Fairfax Court

By KEVIN WILSON

Storm drainage and pavement repairs will be made to Fairfax Court as swiftly as possible in response to a safety hazard, city council determined Monday night.

After a wide-ranging, more than an hour-long discussion with residents of the street, the council instructed the city manager and engineer to pursue immediate repairs, but left open the question of who would pay for them.

Engineer Edward J. McNeely told council the pavement is buckling because of storm water under the road that has washed away the roadbed. He recommended temporary repairs at an estimated cost of $20,000 to shore up the road and attempt to deal with the drainage problem.

Permanent repairs would be done after the drainage situation is addressed satisfactorily, he suggested, at a cost ranging from $30,000 to $40,000.

The temporary repair would allow a test of the proposed solution — diversion of stormwater flowing from the Lexington Commons commons area, between houses at the end of the cul-de-sac, under driveways and the roadbed.

McNeely said he examined the area during recent heavy rains and found more water flowing into the storm sewer from under the paving than from on top. There is a gap of roughly two inches, he explained, between the top of the sewer structure and the bottom of the paving.

The gap was created, he suggested, by water that was trapped under the roadway. Through several freeze-thaw cycles, McNeely explained, the pavement was lifted.

Asked what danger exists of the road totally collapsing, McNeely said "we were just talking about that today; wondering whether it would collapse when a garbage truck rolled over it or whether it would be the first car after the garbage truck."

Immediate repairs will entail filling the voids beneath the pavement (at a roughly estimated cost of $12,000 — extremely variable since the size of the void is unknown); building up the top of the storm drain structure to meet the road; building some sort of water-routing structure to divert the water flow from the commons on top of the road instead of underneath; and sealing the top of the street so water cannot seep under between cracks.

This is likely the least costly alternative, if it works, McNeely said. The aim is to route heavy storm water drainage from the south end of the court, along the street surface, to the nearest storm drain at the bottom of the hill at the north end of the street.

Pursuit of the least costly solution, city manager Steven Walters suggested, will be in the interests of both the city and residents. The city, Walters said, does not have sufficient funds to make the type of repair most residents seemed to favor — construction of a storm sewer opening at the south end of the street and complete removal and replacement of the cement roadway.

Council member Carolann Ayers told residents attending Monday's meeting that one mill of property tax levied city-wide brings only $30,000. The "cheap" repair being suggested would ultimately cost $60,000 and any further expansion of the project would mean increasing taxes by at least the one mill city-wide.

"What you're asking us to do," Mayor Paul Vernon told Fairfax residents, "is to ask people living in other parts of town to give us their tax money to do something to benefit you."

Leaving the matter open, for now, council seemed to be leaning toward creation of some form of special assessment district to fund the repairs. The immediate street repairs, council members Burton DeRusha and Paul Follino suggested, should be paid for by the city.

Vernon said he agreed that the city has some responsibility to pay for repairs, but said he was not yet convinced the total cost should be borne by the city. As an example, he cited the proposed construction of diversion devices on private property.

Residents of the area argued that they had no control over the problem. Storm water runoff follows routes determined by topography, they argued, and the runoff from the commons area was designed to enter their street.

Since city officials reviewed the plans for the subdivision, residents contended, the ultimate responsibility is the city's if those drainage patterns cause damage.

Ayers and Follino asked McNeely to survey the commons area to see if there are not other potential methods to reduce the amount of water running off onto Fairfax Court. DeRusha suggested that a series of dry wells might retain the water long enough to lessen the problem; Ayers said that any form of water detention device might be a feasible solution.

Follino asked that any survey of the commons topography be compared with the specifications on the plan, suggesting that developer Thomson-Brown may not have met those specifications.

Vernon swiftly said Follino's remarks might be interpreted as "an insinuation that this was done deliberately by Thomson-Brown. Even if the area does not match the plans, I don't believe that is the case."

Riffle's: Owners' dreams come true?

When budding entrepreneurs start dreaming of their own businesses, one of the more frequently voiced ambitions is to own a restaurant.

In fact, dining places rank high on the list of new ventures launched each year. They are also, unfortunately for their owners, high in the ranks among business failures every year.

In part that's because there is a lot more to launching a new restaurant than meets the eye. For evidence, ask John Luke and Robert J. Riffel, owners of Riffle's Restaurant, a new Northville dining place.

It's now two months since Luke and Riffel opened the doors at 18730 Northville Road, some five months after their target date, and the partners think they're just about ready to establish the definitive menu and business hours.

Diners may remember the location from its days as The Glass Crutch and then as Aberdeen's, but once they get inside it's clear this is an altogether different place.

Completely remodeled and featuring an upscale menu of what Riffel calls "a new tradition in American dining," the restaurant now approaches what Luke had in mind in 1980 when he bought the Glass Crutch and turned it into Aberdeen's.

"This is what I wanted to do from day one," Luke said. Aberdeen's was little changed from The Glass Crutch, but was intended to remain that way only until Luke could gather the funds to make it into what it has now become — a fine dining place featuring good food at reasonable prices.

"I learned a lot with Aberdeen's," says Luke, whose partners in that venture included his father, Bill. The elder Luke retains a 25 percent share in Riffle's. "You learn about the hidden costs — about how start-up costs are tremendous until you start drawing the business... insurance, advertising."

The first year wasn't too bad, Luke reports, but he just couldn't seem to get enough cash out of the operation to make the improvements he wanted to make. For one thing, there were five break-ins in the first four months, costing the new restaurateur some $50-60,000. Not enough to put him out, but enough to prevent him from borrowing to remodel and refurbish.

After the first year, the economic slump kept business down and Luke wasn't getting any nearer his dream. He began looking around for a new partner, and found Riffel.

"John went to school with my cousin, they were friends," Riffel explained. In addition to sufficient capital to buy out Luke's old partner, Riffel had another great asset for what was to come — he had earned his money with a construction business.

Owner of B&K Electric and R.J. Riffel Company, Robert Riffel had also long hoped to create a "comfortable dining place offering good food at reasonable prices." Experienced in remodeling, additions and new residential construction, Riffel carried a 15 year passion for cooking.

When he saw Aberdeen's, he said, he liked the location, knew what Luke had in mind and "took the chance when it came along." In his first tour of the facility, he also saw what would become the centerpiece of Riffle's — an antique oak bar they believe was built around 1900.

So they closed Aberdeen's and planned their remodeling — a simple matter of raising the floor and relocating the bar, plus extensive cosmetic alterations.

Luke said he and Riffel "decided to let the designer go" and the two took on the redecorating project themselves. The bar was refinished and made the central focus of the room, backed with decorated mirrors, oak shelves and pillars.

The restaurant surrounding the bar has dark, rouge-colored walls with hemlock green ceiling beams. Dining tables along the walls offer privacy in secluded areas set off by leaded glass windows. Sitting in the open are rich, wooden bar tables.

Brick, dark woods and leaded glass motifs are prominent, as are plants and attractive main window treatments.

The rich, quiet motif took more work

Workshops will help launch export efforts

A series of workshops for the first-time exporter and small business person interested in exploring world markets for company products and services will be offered May 17, 31 and June 14 at the McGregor Center, Wayne State University, Detroit.

The three half-day workshops will examine in-depth concerns such as how to develop a foreign market plan, selling, shipping and getting paid, government assistance and negotiating techniques with suppliers and foreign buyers to gain an edge over your foreign competition.

"The size of your company or your lack of export experience is not an obstacle," said Aaron Drucker, an export consultant who will conduct the workshops.

Mr. Drucker has more than 25 years experience working and travelling overseas. Beginning as an import/export sales manager in New York, he later founded an import sales agency in South America. More recently, as president of a Detroit area manufacturer he developed an export/import sales program for the company.

The program is sponsored by the Small Business Development Center, Wayne State University, the U.S. Small Business Administration and the U.S. International Trade Administration.

To receive a program brochure, contact Sharon O'Brien, Small Business Development Center, Wayne State, at 577-4851.

State jobless rate declines

Strong seasonal hiring cut Michigan's April unemployment rate 1.5 percentage points to 11 percent, according to estimates released May 4 by the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

MESC Director S. Martin Taylor reported that 60,000 fewer Michigan workers were unemployed in April, as the jobless total dropped to 479,000 from 539,000 in March. The March unemployment rate was 12.5 percent. A year ago in April the state unemployment rate was 15.5 percent with 668,000 out of work.

Although the drop in unemployment last month was large, Taylor noted it was inconsistent with past March to April rate declines. For instance, in both 1982 and 1983, the March rate was 17 percent and dropped to 15.5 percent in April.

As unemployment declined, total employment in the state grew by 95,000, reaching 3.85 million — highest since August, 1981.

Taylor said construction, retail trade and service industries all reported seasonal job gains. Overall manufacturing employment showed little change during the month.

The 11 percent rate is Michigan's lowest since August, 1981 when it was also 11 percent. April marks the third straight month of unemployment declines and job gains in the state.

The seasonally-adjusted labor force estimates also showed unemployment declining, the rate falling to 10.6 percent from March's 11.3 percent. The number of jobs, on a seasonally-adjusted basis, fell to 466,000 — or 23,000 fewer than in March.

Nationally, the adjusted unemployment rate for the civilian labor force remained unchanged at 7.8 percent. The number out of work grew slightly to 8.84 million, an increase of 71,000.

Starting a restaurant isn't easy

than either Luke or Riffel expected — expecting to accomplish the remodeling in 60 days or less, they instead found themselves at work for six months.

"Everytime we started to do one thing we found we had to back up two steps behind," Riffel explained. Standard building materials and construction techniques made the existing structure virtually unusable — they stripped the interior to the bare walls and started over.

Examples of the ordeal: A main beam was found to be too small for the load it carried; when the paneling was stripped off, the support structure underneath was falling apart; almost all mechanical systems were replaced (new heating plant, new electrical systems and plumbing).

Riffel said a big factor in their favor was a building inspector who worked with them — not allowing them to violate any building codes, but also understanding their need for flexibility as they found the project expanding.

"(Northville Township Building Official) Troy Milligan was very helpful," Riffel said. "He didn't let us get away with anything, but he didn't just follow the book and hold us to the letter of procedures."

For instance, Riffel said, the location of fire exit signs was left until the redesign was finished so that lines of sight could be established in the final configuration. "Troy could have made us change our drawings every time we had a problem, but he just offered advice and worked with us, understanding that we'd do the right thing in the end."

Another complication of the remodeling was that Riffel often had to do work himself or bring in his own crews to tackle jobs that would have been done faster and more easily by others — contractors the partners could not afford.

"The expense really ran up on us," Riffel explained. "The building slump helped a little, because it made my people available so we didn't have to pay contractors."

With the decor and staff of 25 in place, Luke and Riffel are now concentrating on the menu and marketing plan. In the past 60 days, Luke said, the menu has been altered three times, and now goes into its fourth revision.

"We're trying to find out what's right for our local area," he explained. Using feedback from customers who are finding the restaurant without any advertising, the menu and market position are being fine-tuned and soon should be finalized.

Riffel's chef Roy England is from the prestigious Culinary Institute of Arts in New York. Early versions of the menu have featured expensive veal, chicken and fish dishes and other culinary works of art, but Luke said the new menu will feature slightly less extravagant entrees.

"We've been hitting that magic $10-$11 barrier," Luke explained. "People are not accustomed to paying more than that on a regular basis. Our new menu will feature more dishes in the $8, $9, $10 range. Otherwise, our customers in this area will only come in maybe once every two or three months — for some people maybe once a year."

Riffel added that he doesn't think of the new menu as a downgrading of the old, but only as a shift in emphasis. "We'll stress a nice, simple menu, at $8 or $9 for most dishes. I want to bring in ribs at the top of the menu for about $10.95. We're talking less expensive — not so fancy, not so complicated as some of the things we've tried, but still very good food. I think we'll try to establish ourselves as 'a new tradition in American dining.'"

The new menu should be set in a week or two, with final decisions on hours to be reached "after we see what happens Mother's Day," Luke said. If business was good enough last Sunday, he explained, he wants to open Sundays with a buffet. If Mother's Day falls below expectations, Riffel's may be closed Sundays for a month or two before the buffet is launched.

The current menu, much of which may be retained, includes two types of salad and soup, a large assortment of sandwiches, four fish entrees, chicken teriyaki and beef tips Bordelaise. There are also two egg dishes — one is "impulse omelette" with ingredients announced daily. The other is Eggs in Cocotte: baked eggs and ratatouille with hollandaise sauce.

Desserts include homemade ice cream, the flavor changing every few days.

Once the menu is defined and the hours established, the work will still be far from over for Luke and Riffel. Given sufficient cash flow, Luke said the pair is considering remodeling the basement. Whether that space will be used to expand the dining area or to offer entertainment will depend on the feedback they get in the next few months.

Given the careful planning and dedication they've brought to the business, Luke and Riffel hope and expect that they'll fall among that minority of new restaurant owners — the ones that survive and thrive.

Leaders admire JTPA success

Private and public sector leaders from Livingston and Washtenaw counties gathered Friday, April 27 to celebrate the results of their partnership in developing a two-year action plan to help unemployed persons find work in the private sector.

The celebration was held at the Barnstormer Restaurant in Whitmore Lake.

Over the past years, leaders from the business community, education, economic development, human services and labor, in partnership with local elected and appointed officials, have been working together to carry out the provisions of the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA).

The JTPA is a federal government commitment to prepare unemployed persons to be productive members of the labor force. The legislation that created the JTPA was designed to create a sharing of program design and responsibility at the local level between the private sector and local elected officials.

The JTPA program is administered by the Washtenaw-Ann Arbor-Livingston Training and Employment Center (WALTEC). The Livingston-Washtenaw Private Industry Council, Incorporated, with a majority membership from the business community, has become the established vehicle for the private sector input.

"Over the past year Washtenaw and Livingston counties have been fortunate in that the private and public sectors have come together and formed a truly exceptional, productive and cooperative relationship," said Daniel E. Tenny, chairman of the Private Industry Council and divisional manager of personnel for Bechtel Power Corporation.

"We are already seeing positive results from our partnership," added Tenny. "Unemployed youth and adults are obtaining jobs in the private sector and JTPA is playing a key role in our area's economic growth."

Bell Communications to sell phones

Michigan Bell Communications, Inc. — a subsidiary formed to market telecommunications equipment after the breakup of the Bell System — has begun selling a new line of telephones for residence and small business customers, Michigan Bell announced last week.

William P. Vittoe, Michigan Bell president, said Michigan Bell Communications is now marketing a variety of single-line telephones and customer accessories, including phone cords and plug-in conversion kits. Previously, the company handled only advanced business telecommunications systems.

"Now residence and small business customers who contact Michigan Bell for new telephone service also can order phones from Michigan Bell Communication with the same call," Vittoe said. "Of course, customers also can obtain their equipment from any number of suppliers in the marketplace."

Michigan Bell Communications President Richard Barron said that the market for residential and small business telephone equipment is "fiercely competitive" but that "we think the equipment we're offering is some of the best on the market and comes with one of the best warranties around."

The initial product line includes desk and wall model telephones in a variety of colors with either Touch-Tone or rotary dial. Made by Comdial, Inc. of Charlottesville, Virginia, the phones carry a two-year manufacturer's limited warranty.

Ranging in price from $36.75 for a basic desk phone to $81.55 for the decorator "Genie" model, the phones can be ordered when establishing new service with Michigan Bell or by calling Michigan Bell Communications toll-free at 1-800-453-1300 between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays.

Barron said shipment is made in most cases the next day. Payment can be by Visa, MasterCard, check or money order, but purchases cannot be charged to the customer's phone bill.

Barron said the company plans an expanded product line in the near future, including additional decorator phones, telephone answering machines, cordless phones and a variety of functional sets.

Evidence of Things Unseen

We cannot see the winds that blow,
We can only see their power
In trees that bend,
In waves that flow,
Or clouds that whirl and tower.

We cannot see the power that flings
A leaf away on high,
Or that on which the eagle soars;
While upward still, a man with wings
Climbs higher in the sky.

We cannot see the force that moves
The earth on which we stand.
How great its strength
On land and sea;
We only know it proves

That faith is but the evidence
Of things unseen or known,
Like the harvest of a mystery seed
That floats to earth alone.

We aren't aware that time has passed
Until the sun has set;
The years go by
Until at last
Our life's decree is met.

Charles E. Hutton

The Katy-Dids

It's in the early Spring,
When Katy-Dids awake,
They yawn and stretch
And blink their eyes,
Then raise their voices to the skies.
Little children hear them sing,
Then help them with their songs,
Until the shadows deepen,
and the Sandman comes along.
They bow their tiny heads in sleep,
While Katy-Dids sing on,
and dream about their little friends,
Who watch over them, and keep.

Alta Lynch

Dear Mom

I thought I ought to tell you
Altho, I guess you know,
How much I really love you
And want to tell you so.

Sometimes I don't exactly do
The things you want me to.

Like,
I forgot to make my bed
And didn't feed my dog.
I spilled my milk
And tore my pants.
Fact is; quarreled with little John.

Well,
You made my bed
And fed my dog,
Just like you always do.
I feel bad, I really do.

Because,
I love you Mom.

Alta Lynch

Memories Of My Mother

I remember my Mother kindly,
Like sunshine sprinkled with rain.
She bore her burdens courageously,
And never complained of the pain.

She cared not for life's great riches,
Or glamour that came there-in.
Prayed that God would protect us,
And keep us safe in a world of sin.

She had no envy of neighbors or relatives,
And their gain.
Looked at the fields and their harvest,
Hoping they would feed us again.

I can't remember a hardship or hunger,
Through all those years.
Only remember the sunshine,
She tried to spare us the tears.

I know she found riches in heaven;
Money could never buy.
For God, in his infinite wisdom,
Has never let her die.

Alta Lynch

Touched Two

With a lover's questing hands;
Soothing and warming,

I Wish

I wish I was a bee,
Or a butterfly or nymph.
But, instead I am merely human.
I wish I could be special.

I wish I had some incredible talent
I wish that I could be someone
Quite different from the ordinary self
I see reflected in the mirror.

Anne Seebaldt

Faulty Design?

Seeking truth, we find,
by strange quirk of mind;
that like rats in a maze,
we're caught in a box
named paradox.

Life's instincts are strong.
Perspectives deceitful—
make right seem wrong
and wrong appear right,
while fear of death
blocks the life giving sun
of our collective future.

For humanity stumbles
toward self imposed night
'cause private obsession
with outside intercession
to save our "souls"
from damnation, obscures
our pressing need to renounce unspeakable greed and — exorcise demonic fears from our imaginations.

So now what I'd most like to know: Can thinking really offer hope, or will emotion's mighty surge down sweet reason's gentle voice by one last mighty booming dirge?

R. F. Burlingame

Where Is It?

"Where's the beef?" is a popular saying,
But I've got one of my own.
Where's the Spring,
That's what I want to know,
How come it's still not shown?

Snow on the ground still,
Winds that freeze,
Heaven knows when I will Plant my peas.

Buds should be a-popping,
Bulbs a-sprouting,
Grass a-growing,
Birds sitting sunning.

But listen ...
A familiar noise in my ear,
Oh, it's definite,
Spring is here,
Our sump pumps' started running!

Kit Henderson

Dear Friend

It seems like only yesterday
when we were 3 feet tall.
We had our great adventures with slides and swing and ball.

And then the years began to roll
each faster than the other
We loved and then we married
then someone called us mother

Oh, how the years go racing on where did our youth time go?
To stop and think about it would make us feel so low

We take a path and trod awhile,
and then we take another.
My life just took another turn
My name is now "GRANDMOTHER."

When I felt my world come crashing down,
I looked for you; but you weren't to be found.
I needed you to be here at my side.

Small business owners favor pared legislature

Small-business owners favor a move to reduce Michigan's full-time legislature to one that meets only four months per year, a new survey by the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB) shows.

NFIB polled some 24,000 Michigan small-business owners, 85 percent of whom favored a part-time legislature.

"Small-business people perceive a part-time legislature as a way of reducing the size of state government — through responsible lawmaking and budget prioritizing — and improving the way Michigan operates by putting it under more sound business practices than it has used in the past," NFIB/Michigan spokesman Roger Haynes said.

"Small-business owners throughout Michigan have commented that a part-time legislature would also encourage more business people to run for office."

If a petition drive spearheaded by state representative Vic Krause is successful, voters in November will decide the fate on a constitutional amendment to reduce legislative session to four months and cut legislative pay by nearly half. Michigan is one of six states with a 12-month legislature; others limit legislative sessions anywhere from 30 days to nine and one-half months.

The surveyed business owners also have some advice for those concerned about the state's tax climate: 89 percent of those polled favor a constitutional amendment limiting the state's taxing powers.

Under the proposed amendment, new taxes could be imposed only with the approval of a majority of Michigan voters or the support of four-fifths of the state legislature. The petition drive to put this issue before the voters must meet a July 8 deadline.

A third issue presented to NFIB members on the 1984 survey won't be decided by referendum. Legislators are considering two bills that would establish right-to-know legislation — giving employees the right to specific information about hazardous substances that may be found in the work place.

"Even though a third opposed it, 56 percent of the small-business owners responding to the poll do favor the concept of right-to-know legislation," Haynes said. Such legislation usually requires employers to notify employees of potential hazards, provide information on safe handling and emergency response for specific chemicals and create employee education and training programs on reducing the risks of working with hazardous substances.

Haynes cautioned lawmakers to consider ways of easing the paperwork burden and recordkeeping requirements when they vote on the issue.

"It's important that whatever law Michigan passes be consistent with federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) requirements," he said.

Recently, OSHA issued a final right-to-know rule: starting November 25, 1985, chemical manufacturers, chemical importers and distributors must assess the hazards of the chemicals at their work sites and provide information to their employees concerning hazardous materials through labels, material safety data sheets, training and access to written records.

Eleven men star in chamber show

Public images of the 11 male participants in the Men of Northville buffet-fashion show sponsored by the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce changed last Wednesday evening as they lightheartedly strolled down the runway at Meadowbrook Country Club.

Lieutenant William Tomczyk, commander of the Northville post, Michigan State Police and most familiar in uniform, drew applause as he donned shorts and t-shirt for a game of tennis—but carried a soccer ball.

"Here comes da judge," chairman Sherry Spaman announced as Judge Dunbar Davis appeared in a casual outfit with black stripe shirt. He returned later in business suit with familiar red bow tie.

One of the most admired ensembles from Lapham's which supplied the men's and many of the women's fashions was a pair of patchwork madras slacks and complementary shirt modeled by Joseph Lineman of Bright Bar Steel Company and J & Steel Products. His wife Sharon said she was going to make them a Father's Day gift.

Dr. Lawrence A. Chamberlain, senior pastor of First Presbyterian Church of Northville, however, was the hit of the show in custom tailored knickers, argyle sweater and socks. He observed that he was going to keep them for golfing.

Others taking their turns on the runway were city Police Chief Rodney Cannon, school superintendent George Bell, WJR news reporter Gene Fogel, Lee Holland, C.P.A. with Holland, Newton and Associates, Charles P. Lapham, whose store furnished the fashions, township supervisor and attorney John E. MacDonald and James Staschke, Northville branch manager, Detroit Federal Savings and Loan.

Accompanying them and displaying fashions from Del's and Lapham's were Margaret Mahoney, a Livonia office Social Security supervisor; Rita Miller, senior coordinator for Xerox Corporation's Detroit branch; Barbara Nelson, of Detroit Federal Savings and Loan; Jeanne Stempien, an attorney in Livonia; and Pamela Welland, a certified public accountant. All are members of the Northville Business and Professional Women's Club.

Commentators were Ms. Spaman who changed from royal blue pajamas to a 1920's vintage black flapper dress for the show and Scott Lapham who wore a fire engine red suit. He reported the cotton blend jacket and slacks were separates.

Scott and Susan Lapham's son Ryan, 2½, opened the show with friend Brooke Albright—they were on hand as "security guards."

Susan's following in mom's footsteps

JEAN DAY

When Susan MacDonald steps off the gangplank of the Mackinac Island ferry early next month, she plans to scan carefully those who may be at the dock.

The tall, blond daughter of the John MacDonalds of Edenderry Drive has just completed her freshman year at University of Michigan and has landed a summer job at the Iroquois Hotel on Mackinac Island. In doing so, she is following in her parents' footsteps. While a student at Michigan State University, Anne MacDonald, who was Anne Woodruff of Owosso at the time, took a summer job at the Carriage Lantern on the island. "The very first person I saw when I stepped off the boat was John," she remembers. "He was working at the Grand and already had called home to tell his father in Detroit that it was 'dullsville' and that he probably would not stay." After meeting Anne, John MacDonald made another call home to say he had changed his mind as "things were looking up."

Things turned out so satisfactorily, in fact, that John, who was a student at University of Michigan, and Anne returned to their respective jobs for another summer. Anne mentions that the Carriage Lantern, however, no longer exists. Her attorney husband is completing a four-year term as township supervisor and is a candidate for 35th District judge to replace retiring Judge Dunbar Davis.

Both men were featured in the "Men of Northville" fashion show sponsored by the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce last Wednesday evening at Meadowbrook Country Club. Anne MacDonald was the accompanying pianist for the fundraiser.

Susan attended to watch her father model. She also has done some modeling and was featured on four pages of the Michigan Daily campus newspaper's 1984 fashion preview, "Have a Spring Fling," on March 30. She also has modeled for Lord & Taylor. However, this career had to be somewhat curtailed, her mother says, because of studies. Susan was honored at the U-M Honors Convocation last month for having attained a 3.7 grade point average during her freshman year.

Betty Nowka's plans include Botsford show

While many residents are planning to open cottages or get away from it all on Memorial Day weekend, others have plans that will keep them in town. Betty Nowka of Northville will be taking her baskets, folk art and country items to the Botsford Inn to exhibit at the inn's spring antique show May 28. The one-day show of collectibles will be open from noon to 7 p.m.

Metropolitan Youth Symphony sets auditions

Metropolitan Youth Symphony will be holding auditions for the 1984-85 season June 2.

Students in grades 5 through 12 who are looking for additional orchestral experience in a youth organization may reserve an audition time by calling 591-1408.

Membership is based on auditions held in the spring and fall of each concert season.

Three orchestras catering to three levels of accomplishment are specifically designed to complement a student's school music program.

Metropolitan Youth Symphony offers a String Orchestra (grades 5 and up), a Full Concert Orchestra (grades 8 and up) and a Full Symphony Orchestra (grades 10 through 12).

The MYS offers young musicians an opportunity to broaden their symphonic repertoire, sectional work, three formal concerts, participation in community events such as National Music Week, etc., a mid-year scholarship competition and nominal tuition fees.

All instrumentation is invited to audition including oboes, string basses, English horns, drums, tubas, clarinets, bassoons, violas, violins, flutes, etc.

Three conductors chosen for their expertise in working with young people handle baton duties.

The three orchestras rehearse Saturday mornings from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. September through May at Southfield Lathrup High School.

This season, the organization was composed of more than 200 musicians gathered from more than 40 area communities. The students perform with their school orchestras as well as study privately. Many attend the National Music Camp Interlochen or Blue Lake Music Camp.

Metropolitan Youth Symphony was represented by its members in many local community music competitions as well as state-wide events.

The Metropolitan Youth Symphony is a member of the American Symphony Orchestra League, Michigan Orchestra Association and Michigan State Band and Orchestra Association.

A Jack-in-the-pulpit

The wildflower garden which graces the woods

'Natural' woods cited

Neighbors share wildflower gardening

When Country Girls branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association went hunting for its May "Garden of the Month," the combined backyards of Judy Beyersdorf and Nancy Malloure proved among the most outstanding.

According to Nancy Malloure, a North Center resident whose backyard adjoins with Judy Beyersdorf's Grace Court home, the two women have been "naturalizing" their woods for about five years.

The combined woods holds a plethora of wildflowers from forget-me-not to squirrel corn.

Judy's wildflower garden contains Adder's Tongue, anemone, black-eyed susan, bleeding hearts, bloodroot, columbine, coral bells, daisies, day lilies, Dutchmen's breeches, dogtooth violets, ferns, wild geraniums, geum, wild ginger, hepatica, iris, jack-in-the-pulpit, may apple, moss, phlox, snow trillium, spring beauty, Star of Bethlehem, trout lily, tulips and violets.

Other flowers include daffodils, tulips, grape hyacinths, Snow of the Mountain, myrtle, ivy, lilacs, forsythia, wild cherry and primrose.

Nancy's garden is complete with yellow lady slippers (wild orchids), red and white trillium, nodding trillium (purple and red), jack-in-the-pulpit, four varieties of ferns, assorted violets in hues of red, white, purple and yellow, spring beauties, bloodroot, dogtooth violets in yellow and pink, marsh marigolds, wild dwarf iris, squirrel corn, hepatica in white, pink and blue, yellow Canadian primrose, Virginia bluebells and wild phlox.

Nancy also has the Michigan lily, which is an endangered species, and red columbine which she notes "attracts hummingbirds in late spring and early summer."

Noting that she and Judy have "spent many fun hours trading, dividing and discussing wildflowers," Nancy explains they have put together a wildflower slide presentation which they show to local groups.

Judy wrote the script for the slide presentation, and Nancy photographed their many wildflower species.

Grimm tale told Saturday

"The Musicians of Bremen," a musical story of four friends who band together to save their future, will be presented by the Northville Arts Commission at 2 p.m. May 20 at the Northville Recreation Building.

In his musical, Michigan composer Al Balkin will retell the Grimm Brothers' fairy tale, "The Brementown Musicians."

In the story, four animals — a donkey, a dog, a cat and a rooster — have all been told by their masters that they are too old to continue doing the jobs they used to do. Fearing for their lives, the four animals run away from home and become freinds.

They decide to go to a wonderful, perfect city called Bremen. They have heard that in Bremen, loyalty and years of service are respected and people can live to their fullest potential.

Happily, they all discover that they can play musical instruments. The animals meet some new friends in a surprising adventure, and they all decide to form a new band — "The Musicians of Bremen."

The musical will be presented by the Michigan Opera Theatre. Tickets are $2 and may be purchased at the Northville Recreation Building or by calling Cheryl Gazlay at 349-5748.

The Northville Record

Chiefs 'double trouble' for tennis squad

By B.J. MARTIN

Northville's varsity tennis team is fighting an uphill battle for a repeat divisional championship. And the uphill incline just got a lot steeper.

While division-leading Farmington Harrison continued its season-long win streak last week, the Mustangs were jolted 4-3 by surprisingly doubles-strong Plymouth Canton Friday.

The loss knocked Northville down to a 6-2 season mark (3-2 WLAA) with only four league matches — including Harrison — remaining. The next seven days will be the team's most important.

First singles player Arvind Sreedharan remained undefeated in Northville's matches against Brighton and Canton last week. Sreedharan's 8-0 season mark earned him a third seed for the Class A Regional Tennis Tournament at Schoolcraft College this Saturday.

Redford Catholic Central's Tom Spaede, who lives in Northville, earned a second-seed ranking. Birmingham Brother Rice's Dan Waisa is seeded first.

The Mustang third doubles team of Mike Reitenga and Dave Merrifield were seeded fourth for the tourney.

First-round matches are scheduled for 9 a.m. Saturday at Schoolcraft.

Against Canton Friday, Sreedharan breezed to a 6-1, 7-6 (8-6 tie-breaker) over Mike Minton. At second singles, Brant Nicholas won the first set against Tom Roggenbach 6-4 and took a 4-2 lead in the second set. But Roggenbach fought back to a 7-5 second-set win and beat Nicholas in the third set 6-2.

Mark Reitenga and John Huston were easy two-set winners at third and fourth singles, respectively. But Canton eked out three three-set victories in doubles to earn the decision.

Undefeated at first singles, Arvind Sreedharan draws a bead on the ball

NORTHVILLE 6 BRIGHTON 1

In the previous day's non-league 6-1 win over Brighton, only the Bulldogs' first-doubles tandem of Antho Kim and John Long managed a win. Nowka and Campbell won the first set 6-0, then slowly ran out of gas, falling 6-7 (5-7 tie-breaker), 2-6.

Sreedharan, Nicholas, Mark Reitenga and Huston all won two-set victories in singles. In doubles, Norton-Kaminski defeated Kurt VonHagen and Don Evenson 7-6 (7-5 tie-breaker), 6-4; and Merrifield-Mike Reitenga won their third-doubles match in straight sets.

The Mustangs will travel to Walled Lake Central today for a 4 p.m. WLAA match against the 3-5 Vikings. Tomorrow, Northville hosts another Lakes Division tennis team, Livonia Bentley, at 4 p.m.

Monday of next week, the Mustangs have their biggest dual match of the season against Farmington Harrison at home at 4 p.m. The following day, Walled Lake Western will visit Northville for a 4 p.m. season finale, barring rescheduled rain dates.

Mustang soccer team wins 3-2 cliffhanger

Sue Borthwick scored midway through the second half to give the Northville varsity soccer team a critical 3-2 win over Plymouth Canton in a hard-fought pre-regional qualifying battle Monday night.

The victory gave Northville a chance to play tough Plymouth Salem in the first round of the MHSAA Regional Soccer Playoffs. Northville will play at Salem Friday at 4 p.m.

Friday's game winner will play the winner of the same day's Farmington Our Lady of Mercy-North Farmington game in the Regional's second round next week at a time to be announced.

A Mercy-Northville battle would be an interesting one. Several girls from Northville are members of the Marlin varsity, and were on hand to cheer on the Mustangs Monday night.

Northville jumped ahead 2-0 with first-half goals by Kathy Korowin at 5:33 and Lisa Cahill at 12:30. Both goals were hard shots from the outer edge of the Canton penalty area.

Canton tied the score with two screen-shot goals early in the second half, but then the Northville defense shut firmly, permitting no more close calls.

Finally, with 28 minutes remaining, Jill Berner broke down the right wing and laid a perfect cross before the Canton goal mouth.

The pass eluded center forward Cahill, but left wing Sue Borthwick alertly broke in and slammed in the winner as a good-sized Northville crowd roared.

Korowin and Kim Flading were thorns in the Chiefs' sides all night, and continually thwarted Chief scoring drives for the remainder of the game. Korowin especially seemed to be all over the field. Northville's fullback line of Cheryl Spaman, Jill Jensen and Julie Nowka held firm when it was needed, as well.

Only three nights before, the Chiefs avenged an early-season 4-2 defeat by Northville with a strong 2-0 victory over the Mustangs at Canton.

A "goal drought" that had plagued the Mustangs in their previous game against Livonia Bentley continued against the Chiefs Friday. Cahill played ferociously in the final moments of the game, getting off three hard shots in the last five minutes, but failed to capitalize.

"It happens to everybody," Northville Coach Stan Smalec said of Northville's sudden inability to score. "It's a coach's nightmare. And it just happened at an inopportune time."

Spaman and Jensen were sidelined by injury for the match and Smalec acknowledged their absence hurt.

"I elected not to play them," he said. "So I made a lot of changes, including a 3-3-3 with Kathy (Korowin) at sweeper."

"Without Kathy, it would've been a different story. It wouldn't have been close."

Smalec's decision not to play the defenders turned out to be the right one — Spaman favored her knee and Jensen her back, but both players were undeniably effective in the more important Monday night game.

The Mustangs, now 11-5-3 overall, will wrap up their regular season at home next Wednesday against Livonia Churchill unless that game is rescheduled for a regional playoff match.

Nielsen's tough, but needs help with pitching chores

The Mustangs galloped from favorite to long-shot in the Western Lakes Western Division sweepstakes last week, with one win and two losses to division rivals.

"(The division title) is up for grabs yet," said Northville Coach Fred Holdsworth. His 5-3 squad is currently trailing 6-1 Livonia Churchill and 5-2 Canton, and needs a boost in two areas to stay in contention: pitching and luck.

"It would help if Churchill and Canton split their doubleheader (today), and hopefully, Harrison will have trouble with Stevenson," Holdsworth said. "But we've got to find a second pitcher."

Friday's doubleheader against Canton proved that statement. Ace righthander Dan Nielsen (4-1) pitched a gutsy seven innings for a 9-3 win in the opener. But the Chiefs pounced on Northville with a five-run first inning to win the nightcap 7-1.

"Danny carried us on his back," said Holdsworth, who was reluctant to go to his bullpen in such a critical game. "He threw 154 pitches, but we really needed him."

Jay Bartling went 2-for-2 with two RBI in the opener. Deal added two run-scoring singles, and Longridge singled and doubled. Jerry Pawlowski had an RBI single in a three-run fourth.

Weakened by mono, Doug Doyle started the second game, but could only retire one hitter before walking the next three and exhausting himself in the process. Chris Willerer and Tim Ruffing were shaky in relief, and finally Holdsworth sent in Chris Dominique to mop up the last three innings.

Dominique was effective, striking out six and walking three while allowing one earned run. But Holdsworth isn't certain the sophomore is the stopper he needs. "I'm planning to call up (junior righthander) Brett Loomis from the JV and give him a look, probably against Hartland (tomorrow)," Holdsworth said.

The Hawks jumped on two first-inning Mustang errors to score four times in the first inning — that was all the margin they would need to hand Nielsen his first loss of the year.

Nielsen allowed just three earned runs, struck out five and issued no bases on balls in five innings. Bob Pegrum pitched one inning of shutout relief.

Longridge's two singles led the team. The senior shortstop and first baseman Steve Schrader each had an RBI single in the game.

Both earned run averages and batting averages bloated up in Wednesday's league contest. Northville outthit the Bulldogs 16-10 and fought off six errors to hang on to the win.

Winning pitcher in relief was Pegrum, who succeeded starter Willerer. Steve Frelick led the Mustang offensive attack with a 4-for-4 outing and two RBI. Bartling had two hits and 3 RBI, and Hartman and Longridge each had two hits and two RBI.

Pawlowski powered a solo homer in the sixth, Newman contributed a single and two RBI and Schrader two hits in the slugfest.

After 10 games, Schrader leads the Mustangs in hitting with a .448 average and 12 RBI. Longridge is hitting at a .424 clip, Bartling is hitting .382, Frelick .345, and Doug Hartman and Mickey Newman .321. As a team, Northville is hitting a very respectable .281.

After tomorrow's non-league doubleheader at Hartland, the Mustangs will play at Walled Lake Central Friday and at Churchill on Monday. Northville's last home game will be a week from today against Harrison.

The 4 p.m. Central game is a crucial one — the tough Vikings are Northville's district qualifier opponent as well as a league rival.

In a rock 'em sock 'em, come-from-behind contest, the Sunbirds defeated the Gems 14-10 last Thursday in both teams' season opener. Down 18-4, the Sunbirds rallied for five runs in the fourth and five in the fifth to give pitcher Karen Caranough the win.

Michelle McKay and Mandy Boritzki each went 4-for-4 for the winners, and Mari Kieselger socked a home run. Jenny Koppy was a perfect 3-for-3 at the plate for the Gems, while teammates Kristin Meehan and Elizabeth Lamp teamed up for an outstanding double play in the third.

Northville softball nine rip Chiefs in doubleheader

The crowd was quietly sizing up Northville's varsity baseball game against Canton Friday when suddenly a busload of screaming girls wheeled up the NHS driveway to interrupt the silence.

The girls had good reason to whoop it up — they had just played the best afternoon of softball Northville has served up in quite some time.

"I have a hard time getting them pumped up for games consistently," said Coach Sue Heinzman. "But when they're really up, they're going to win."

The Mustangs were really up Friday. They put together timely hitting, excellent pitching and most of all, brilliant defense to topple the Canton Chiefs in both games of a doubleheader. In the first game, Bev Henderson allowed just four hits and striking out six en route to a 6-4 win. In the nightcap, freshman Sue Schrader relied on her accuracy — in seven innings she gave up exactly zero bases on balls and took credit for her first varsity win, 5-3.

Meanwhile, Chris McGowan muscled her way into the Mustang record books with a 5-for-5 hitting effort Friday. Combined with her 3-for-3 outing against Bentley the day before, McGowan rapped out eight consecutive hits last week.

Paced by McGowan's three hits, Pat Wazny's two doubles and Lori Housman's single and two-run double, the Mustangs held a 6-3 lead going into the seventh.

Canton put the tying run at the plate with one on and one out in the seventh. But Henderson fanned the next batter and got the final out on a grounder to Lynn Dudley at third.

Two innings before, Canton threatened with a runner at third and one out. The next batter smacked a deep fly that seemed sure to bring the runner home. But center fielder Kim Richcreek fired a perfect strike to catcher McGowan, who made a diving tag to kill the rally.

Housman collected two RBI with her fourth-inning double, while Dudley, Richcreek, Henderson and McGowan each picked up one RBI.

In the second game, Schrader pitched five straight scoreless innings, buoyed by a four-run Mustang rally in the first inning. Schrader gave up 12 hits while striking out two, but the freshman got the aid of the Northville defense when she needed it.

Led by shortstop Jackie Mateucci, Northville's defense has come on strong lately, with only one error in the Mustangs' last three games.

In the second game, Dudley handled five chances at third, shortstop Mateucci three at short, Wazny five in left (including one spectacular diving grab of a liner) and Richcreek in center put out three.

Dudley's two-run single was the big blow in the first inning. The power-hitting infielder added a third-inning double and sent the Canton left fielder to the fence with a long clout in the fifth. Schrader and Housman had RBI singles and Mateucci a run-scoring sacrifice fly in the victory.

Earlier in the week, Northville lost to league rivals Farmington Harrison 16-5 and to Livonia Bentley 9-2.

Northville (now 3-1 in Western Division play and 3-9 overall) will play a non-league doubleheader at Hartland tomorrow.

Next week, the Mustangs have two important divisional games, home against Churchill Monday and at Farmington Harrison next Wednesday.

Cage article

A sports article last week has been justifiably criticized for several inaccuracies. In it, the new batting cage at Northville High School, funded by the Northville Booster Club, was jokingly referred to as a "boondoggle." In the opinion of athletes, officials and myself, it is not. Also, the article referred to the recently-passed school millage as "proposed." Lastly, NHS Principal David Bolitho was identified as Ron Bolitho, chief of the Commerce Township Fire Department (a previous beat for this reporter). My apologies for any misunderstanding.

Mustangs top Bentley for first victory, 78-59

Registering its best dual-meet performance of the season, Northville's boys' track squad nabbed its first league victory Thursday with a 78-59 win over Livonia Bentley.

The Bulldogs managed firsts in only four events against the Mustangs, now 1-2 in Western Lakes Activities Association dual meets.

Leading the way was junior Joel Vogt, who came two inches from placing four firsts at the meet. Vogt's 18-foot long jump was second to teammate John Klokenga — but nobody came near Vogt in the sprints.

He ran a season-best 10.5 in the 100-yard dash, and remained undefeated by league opponents in the 220 and 440 with times of 23.8 and 53.5, respectively.

"Joel might have gotten a first in long jump, too, but he only jumped in preliminaries," Coach Brian Murphy said. "We figured we'd take the first two places with or without him jumping again."

Mustang senior Mark Knott remained undefeated in league competition in both the high and low hurdles. Knott knocked off clockings of 15.7 in the 120 high and 42.2 in the 330 lows.

Jim Riney demonstrated some versatility by winning the two-mile in a season-best 10:15.0 and adding a third-place high-jump leap of 5'6". Riney was second in the mile (4:51.0) and anchored the two-mile relay team, which breezed to first in 8:51.0. John McRae, Irven Meadows and Brett Netke ran the first three legs.

Dave Smith's shot put of 39'4" was his first first-place finish of the season. "He keeps inching his way up there," Murphy said of Smith. Smith also lunged the discus 119 feet for a second place, while Netke registered his first throw over 100 feet with a 101'11", good for third.

John Klokenga took second in high hurdles (16.1) and the 440 (55.2). Northville's only other second-place finisher was Meadows, second in the 880 with a time of 2:11.7. Netke was at his shoulder for third in 2:12.7.

Senior John Briningstool clocked a third-place 24.9 in the 220, his best time of the year. "If I can get John to start using his arms better and improve his stride, we can get him in the 23s and maybe push Joel a bit," Murphy said. Another lanky senior, Tim Millen, took third in the 330 lows in 45.1.

Northville won three of the four relays — the Mustang's 880 relay team lost on a controversial re-running of the race.

"What happened," Murphy explained, "is that (Northville Assistant Coach) Ed Gabrys disqualified Bentley for an improper handoff. Ed was appointed a judge for the meet, but the Bentley coach didn't think it was fair for him to make that decision."

So the two teams ran the race over. Murphy thought that would work in Northville's favor, but he was proven wrong. "I thought our guys were in better shape, but Bentley won easily."

Bentley didn't contest an obvious DQ call in the 440 relay. But Northville iced its first win with a fine effort in the mile relay. Bentley led after legs by Tom Broderick, Meadows and Netke, but Klokenga kicked past the Bulldog anchor with a 54.2 split in the final quarter.

Saturday, Northville took part in the

Dave Smith recorded his first first-place shot put highly-competitive Jackson Northwest Relays and finished 13th of the 16 teams there. Lansing Sexton with 86 points nipped Ypsilanti (82) and Ypsilanti Lincoln (74) for top honors at the meet.

Hampered by two AWOL runners, the Mustangs managed only one place — sixth in the middle distance relay. Netke (800 meters), Harp and Vogt (400) and Meadows (800) teamed for Northville's best time all year — in fact, an unofficial team record — 6:12.2.

This week is the season's most important thus far for Northville. Following a dual meet at league-leading Livonia Churchill today at 4 p.m., the Mustangs will travel to Brighton Friday for the Class A Regional championships.

Churchill's battery of hurdlers will provide Knott with his first taste of real competition in his specialty events since early in the year — that can only help his Regional performance.

Knott and Vogt are Northville's best shots at earning a trip to the June 2 state finals if they can perform well at the Regional.

Seventeen teams will attend the meet, which will begin at 2 p.m. and run until late Friday night.

"It should be an interesting meet," Murphy said. "Some teams going there are strong in distance, others in sprints, others in hurdles... it'll be interesting to see how they square off."

Jumpers, relay teams excel in girls' win over Bulldogs

While few people even came near Cindy Panowicz's long jump distances last year, the Northville junior has been getting some serious competition this season.

Fortunately, it's from her teammates.

In the Mustang girls' track team's 72-55 victory over Livonia Bentley Wednesday, Robin Strunk and junior Mary Howley jumped personal bests of 15'9" and 15'3½" inches — both better than Panowicz's 15½" effort — to complete a 1-2-3 sweep in the event.

Freshman Strunk continued to be a valuable point-scorer. In Thursday's meet, she took first in the high jump (4'10"), and added seconds in the 100 meter hurdles (17.19) and the 300 lows (53.47).

Panowicz took easy wins in those last two events, and added a victory in the 400 meters with a time of 63.07.

Laura Chamberlain won her first race ever with a swift 29.23 clocking in the 200 meters. The junior was second in the 100 in 13.93.

Hard-fought individual seconds and thirds, plus strong relay performances helped provide the winning margin.

With Wendy Nuechterlein and Griffith fighting illness, Shari Thompson and Dawn Schweim led the Mustangs in distance events. Thompson placed third in the 1,600 meters with a time of 6:35.09 and Schweim added seconds in the 800 and 3,200 with respective times of 2:45.54 and 14:04.0.

Kim Campbell and Margie Wojcik took second and third in the shot with distances of 28'4" and 24'3". Cross broke up a Bentley sweep in discus with a heave of 69'1" for third place. Cross also picked up a third in the 200 meters, clocking a 30.46.

Northville won the 400 meter relay in 55.14 with Michelle Cross, Becky Baumann, Chamberlain and Mary Howley. In the 1,600 relay, the young quartet of sophomores Pam Cavanaugh and Sally Klenk and freshmen Diane Eusebi and Kris George won in 4:36.2.

The Mustangs' 800 relay team of Campbell, Baumann, George and Howley took first in 1:55.32. And although the 3,200 meter relay team of Schweim, Erika Nelson, Thompson and Griffith improved their season-best time by 18 seconds, their 11:14.8 still finished second.

Saturday, Northville competed in the Redford Union Relays, but was handcuffed by the team's academic ability — several key athletes were at the Michigan Forensics Championships.

The Mustangs pulled together 28 points with a first place 44-foot combined distance in the long jump relay (Panowicz, Strunk and Howley) and Panowicz's 15.1-second first in the open 100 hurdles. Northville added a second place in shuttle hurdles.

Northville will tune up for the Class A Regionals at Brighton Friday with a home meet against Livonia Churchill today at 4 p.m. Mustang Coach Ann Turnbull said hurdler Panowicz and perhaps a relay team or two are the Mustangs' best bets to qualify at Brighton for state finals.
