·Voters return Johnson, Llewellyn to boa

Northville voters Monday returned school board president Christopher Johnson and former trustee David Liewellyn to four-year terms on the Northville Board of Education.

Johnson and Llewellyn defeated firsttime challenger Larry VanderMolen by a fairly sizeable margin in a light vote. Returns were tallied by 9 p.m. Monday and announced by Superintendent George Bell prior to the conclusion of the school board's regular meeting. Johnson was the top vote-getter with 624 votes. Llewellyn followed with 471 votes and VanderMolen trailed with Voter turnout was light in all six of the district's precincts. An estimated six percent or 731 of the district's 12,130 registered voters cast ballots in Mon-

Last year approximately seven percent or 722 of the district's then 10.941 registered voters turned out at the polls.

Largest voter turnout was in Precinct 4 (Amerman area) where 355 residents cast ballots. Precinct 5 (Edenderry and Shadbrook subdivisions and King's Mill cooperatives) had the lowest voter turnout with only 107 voters going to the Johnson garnered the most votes in all six of the district's precincts. Llewellyn defeated VanderMolen in all precincts except Precinct 2 where the new challenger won by only one vote.

The official tally following the Board of Canvassars meeting Tuesday morning is as follows:

• Precinct 1 (downtown city area):

Johnson (107), Llewellyn (66), Vander-Molen (63):

• Precinct 2 (Silver Springs and Highland Lakes area): Johnson (63), Llewellyn (44), VanderMolen (45);

 Precinct 3 (Winchester area):
 Johnson (109), Llewellyn (92), Vander-Molen (51);

• Precinct 4 (Amerman area): Johnson (169), Llewellyn (137), Vander-Molen (49);

• Precinct 5 (Edenderry and Shadbrook subdivisions and King's Mill cooperatives): Johnson (51), Llewellyn (45), VanderMolen (11);

• Precinct 6 (Moraine area): Johnson (125), Llewellyn (87), VanderMolen

One write-in vote was cast for John Genitti.

Winning election to his third fouryear term, Johnson is among the most tenured members of the board along with Karen Wilkinson and Doug

First elected in 1976 at the age of 21, he currently is serying his second term as board president.

An attorney with Cummings, Mc-Clorey, Davis and Acho in Livonia, he is a graduate of University of Michigan and Detroit College of Law.

Llewellyn, who served on the board from 1979-83, won the seat being vacated by trustee Gerald Munro.

Llewellyn, who opted not to seek reelection following completion of his first term due to other time commitments, announced in March his intent to seek another term.

Lucas 'fires' MacDonald, court order halts dismissal

By KEVIN WILSON

The ever-widening whirlpool centered on a power struggle at the top of Wayne County government has reached out and sucked township supervisor John MacDonald into the center.

MacDonald, appointed two years ago to a six-year term as a director of the Wayne County Economic Development Corporation (EDC), was fired last Thursday by county executive William Lucas, who cited MacDonald's support of EDC director Robert FitzPatrick as

MacDonald and three other directors ·Lucas wants dismissed obtained a restraining order from circuit court judge Henry Szymanski Friday preventing their dismissal, and so remain on the EDC board for at least one more meeting.

The EDC board meets Wednesday for consideration of the latest proposal for development of the Wayne County Child Development Center as an elderly housing project. At the core of the legal action is whether the county executive or the board of commissioners has appointive power over EDC directors. The state act authorizing creation of EDCs states that appointments are made by the legislative body, not the administra-

"The Northville project is really the reason I'm on the board in the first place," MacDonald said. "This is not a paid position - I don't really need this aggravation. But you've got to do what you think is right.'

MacDonald and his fellow board members have a difference of opinion with Lucas as to the proper course of action regarding FitzPatrick's position. Some EDC members, who MacDonald suggests are Lucas cronies, have raised questions involving FitzPatrick's financial management of the EDC.

. "It's a power struggle, pure and simple," MacDonald said. "Lucas wants to put his own man in, so they started looking for something wrong with the way FitzPatrick operates."

FitzPatrick ran against Lucas in the 1982 general election in the contest to be

Property taxes in the city will increase by one mill this year, but city council chose not to levy another .25 mill that would have been earmarked to buy an emergency generator for city

The 1984-85 budget as approved by council June 5 includes the one mill increase for accelerated retirement of the 1983-84 year-end deficit of roughly $250,000. The added tax will increase revenues to the city by $80,000 - the city's total property tax levy rises to 16.68 mills. Another 1.7 mills is charged property owners for the Randolph Drain project (1.2 mills) and the South Main paving program (0.5 mill).

Although the .25 mill assigned to the generator purchase was not approved, council maintained the $20,000 expenditure item in the budget. The reduced revenue projection from deleting the .25 mill levy was accompanied by a smaller projection for the expenditure offsetting the general fund deficit.

85 budget as approved includes only $162,000 for that purpose. But city manager Steven Walters was instructed to find $20,000 elsewhere in the budget to restore the deficit reserve.

Walters said he would propose such amendments at the next council session June 18. That would allow the budget to be altered before fiscal year spending

Mayor Paul Vernon said that restoring the deficit reduction figure to $182,000 is essential. "I think we owe it to the people to allot the full mill (increase) to deficit reduction, rather than having one-quarter of it go to the generator and only three-quarters to the deficit.'

Walters had suggested one alternative that would cut both the .25 mill and the generator purchase. But council expressed a preference for the plan adopted. Council member Paul Folino specifically urged that the generator be

Bailey replaces Hood as operations chief

The director of physical plant and public safety for Mercy College will take over the operations department of Northville Public Schools following the board of education's unanimous approval of his appointment Monday

Tom Bailey, who has headed Mercy's physical plant and public safety operations since the spring of 1983, will replace William Hood, who has been administrative assistant for operations.

Bailey, a 1957 Northville High School graduate and supervisor of maintenance and transportation for the Northville Public Schools during the 1982-83 school year, will take over his new post June 18.

The board of education granted Bailey an administrative contract for a period from June 18 to June 30, 1985, at a salary of $32,355.

In recommending Bailey's appointment to the board, assistant superintendent Burton Knighton noted that the new administrator holds a First Class Stationary Engineer's license (the highest type of licensure for all types of heating units) and is a certified Senior Engineering Technician. Bailey retired from the U.S. Navy as a Chief Petty Officer in 1978 after 20 years of service and served as maintenance supervisor and assistant chief engineer for the University of Michigan-Flint from 1978-82. Knighton noted that following Hood's termination, the administration posted the opening within the Northville school district and districts in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. Applications were screened and three applicants were interviewed by a panel of administrators and staff May 22. He noted that Bailey was the interview

The initial investigation of EDC operations by the county auditors found "nothing wrong," MacDonald said.
"Then they started questioning his personal expense account."

FitzPatrick was suspended while the investigations took place. An independent audit report of FitzPatrick's expense account, performed by Plante & Moran showed no evidence of wrongdoing, MacDonald said. A subsequent vote on FitzPatrick's reinstatement supported the director 5-3. Of the five who backed FitzPatrick, four received letters from Lucas last week 'firing' them and charging that they had "excused mismanagement.'

The letter, delivered "as if it were a subpoena" to MacDonald's law offices in Plymouth, also cites "embarassment to the people of Wayne County" due to the "problems associated with the Economic Development Corporation." Citing "power vested in me by the Wayne County Charter," Lucas wrote he was terminating the appointment for reasons of acknowledged lack of leader-included in the spending plan.

"I think that generator is really important," Folino, who had suggested the earmarked millage, said. "I'd agree with dropping the quarter mill as long as the generator is still in there."

Folino made the motion adopting the one mill increase, which was seconded by J. Burton DeRusha. The vote was unanimous, as Vernon and mayor pro tem G. Dewey Gardner added their support. Council member Carolann Ayers was not present. She had stated her opposition to the earmarked millage at the previous council meeting. Approval of the $2.48 million general fund budget also included authorization of budgets for the (separate) library fund, senior citizens service fund, public improvements fund, Allen Terrace operating fund, the recreation fund, equipment fund the major and streets funds. Together, the various operations (some of which are shared with the township) total some $10 million.

The operating fund, the only one to receive property tax revenues directly, anticipates $1.32 million revenue from that source. State shared revenues account for $331,000 of city income, according to the budget document, while inter-fund reimbursements total

The latter item consists primarily of parimutuel tax revenues from the state, paid into the public improvement fund, which in turn reimburses the general fund for such racetrack-related costs as police operations and administration.

Barring unforeseen setbacks, the deficit reduction package included as part of the budget would cut the city's red ink to less than $100,000 by this time next year. At one time, the figure approached $500,000. If Walters brings back the amendments requested by council, by June 1985 the deficit would be less than $80,000.

The city manager said after the meeting last week that preliminary indications are that city revenues from the state may be higher than projected in the budget. If so, he suggested, the deficit reduction plan could be supplemented without recourse to slashing expenditures.

Local driver prepares for Detroit Grand Prix action

By KEVIN WILSON

The countdown is on.

Ten days from today, Tim Evans hopes to give his career as a race car driver a real boost with a strong performance in the Trans Am supporting race to the Detroit Grand Prix III.

Area resident Evans has twice acted as the pace car driver for the Formula One world championship Grand Prix event, and will do so again this year.

But this is the first time he'll drive the downtown street circuit as a competitor. This is the first year the Trans Am series — one of the most popular road racing series in the country - will come to Detroit. Evans has driven in several races of the series in each of the past two seasons.

The Brookland Farms resident knows the competition will be tough, and that most have a lot more financial backing than does the Buist-Syfert Racing Team Pontiac Firebird he drives. But he has high hopes for a good showing against Trans Am regulars like 1983 series champion David Hobbs in the DeAtley Budweiser Corvette and Paul Newman (yes, that one) in the Sharp Racing Nissan 300 ZX Turbo.

"I think I'll have some advantage from knowing the course during the first day - the rest will be still be learning the track when qualifying starts Friday," Evans explained, sitting near the car during a testing session at Waterford Hills road course last weekend.

Noting that the other drivers will have only 45 minutes practice time before the first qualifying session June 22. and that the first five starting positions will be locked in during that session, Evans said he thinks he has a good shot at one of those five spots.

"My advantage will start going away in the second session (Saturday morning)," Evans noted. "The other guys will start to get a handle on the course

So a lot rides on that first qualifying

Tim Evans Trans Am driver

session. If he makes the top five, however, Evans expects to put up a good showing on the tight Detroit

"Once you get near the front, it's simply going to be a matter of staying out of trouble and keeping the car together," Evans projected. "It's not easy to pass in Detroit, and you can't make any mistakes or you start hitting those concrete walls."

He expects at least part of the race will be run under the yellow caution flag due to a crash that leaves a disabled car on the road - a fairly safe bet since the series has gone two years with a yellow flag in every race, even on far more open circuits than Detroit's.

The 100 mile event, sponsored by Pontiac, calls for 45 laps of the 2.5 mile track. The series is dominated by American sporting cars such as Evans' Firebird, Camaros, Corvettes, Mustangs and Capris.

In the first three races of the season, the victors were Darin Brassfield (Hobbs' teammate) in a Corvette, Bob Lobenberg in a Firebird and Greg Pickett in a Ford-sponsored Capri. Newman's Datsun and the occasional Porsche are the only import com-

Evans recalled that he used to race frequently against Lobenberg in Formula Ford racing several years ago. The Detroit track may favor drivers with training in these open-wheeled cars as it demands a precise style to avoid clouting the barriers lining the

Evans demonstrated just such a smooth and precise driving technique during his Waterford Hills "testing seswhich was actually an amateur race weekend where there were no cars in a class with the Buist-Syfert Firebird. But, as a professional racing instructor and former national champion in both Formula Ford and in under two-liter engined Can Am cars, Evans has a good idea of how his car and talents stack up against the rest of the

The team chose Waterford as a testing ground first of all because it was relatively inexpensive to run there during a race session. "The big money guys rent a track for a week and do all kinds of things," Evans said. "We can afford this. Plus, Waterford is similar to Detroit in that it's a tight circuit. The straightaway is about the same length, it requires similar gear ratios."

Running a 500 horsepower engine he said was too weak for actual Trans Am competition, Evans ran respectably fast lap times and won two "class races." In each, he ran away from the pack for two laps, then, with a comfortable lead and no traffic around, began testing the car for anticipated Detroit conditions.

The car is to receive a new 540 horsepower engine by this weekend not a match for the 560 horsepower of the big-money runners, but Evans thinks it will do the job of keeping him in contention.

What could help would be a bit more sponsorship, he says. It will take roughly $10,000 to run one Trans Am race this season, Evans said. The team currently has a sponsor putting up about one-fourth the cost for Detroit only, and is seeking others. "We (team members) are taking it out of our pocket," Evans explained. "We're pocket," Evans explained.

spending money we don't really have to throw around. We don't really care if we have four sponsors or 1,000. We need someone to help with expenses.

The team opted out of a Sunday feature race after the tires began to show the effects of wear in the hot weather. "This engine is already sold and we've found out what we need to know," Evans explained. "There's no sense in risking the engine or the car we don't have anything to prove here. We're ready to put the new engine in, slap on some new tires, and go."

Candidates line up for August primary

By KEVIN WILSON

Regional political races finally took shape last week as candidates met a 4 p.m. June 5 filing deadline for inclusion on the August 7 primary election ballot.

After the presidential and U.S. Senate elections, the highest office local voters will cast ballots for is U.S. Congress, where Republican Second District Representative Carl Pursell of Plymouth is unopposed in the primary. Come November, he will face the victor of a two-way Democratic primary contest between Mike McCauley of Plymouth and Don Grimes of Ann Ar-

State representative Gerald H. Law (R-Plymouth Township) is completing his first term in office and, like Pursell, is uncontested for his party's nomination to the 36th District seat.

He will face Gienn R. Betts of Novi this November. Betts is the only Democrat filing for the 36th State. House district primary. Betts comes from an area added on to Law's district last year in a realignment of districts.

One of the livelier contests in this area has be among the clump of western Wayne County attorneys with their eyes on the 35th District Court judgeship being left open by Dunbar candidates are Northville Township Supervisor John MacDonald, Robert Greenstein of Canton, Jacqueline George of Northville, Bruce Patterson of Canton, Stephen Foley of Canton, Alan Davis of Canton and Brian Stacey of Plymouth.

The court district includes the cities of Northville and Plymouth plus Plymouth, Northville and Canton

At the county level, Wayne commissioner Mary Dumas of Livonia faces three challengers to her position as the county's only Republican commissioner. Primary opponents bidding for the GOP nod to the 10th District seat, all from Livonia, are Elaine Tuttle, H. Patrick O'Neill and Matthew Kirksey. Kirksey is the son of former state representative Jack Kirksey, who represented Northville until two years

Victor of the four-way Republican primary will face Democrat Laura Toy, also a Livonian, who is unopposed in the primary.

County-wide contests do not include county executive William Lucas, who was tapped for a four-year term in 1982.

In other county positions, incumbent prosecutor John O'Hair of Detroit is unopposed and sheriff Robert Ficano faces Democratic primary opposition from Thaddeus Opalinski of Livonia seat, two of whom will be selected in and Republican challenger Robert reelection.

There are at least four candidates in each contest for county clerk, treasurer and register of deeds (all incumbents are Democrats, all filed for reelection) and no less than seven Democrats and one Republican seeking to unseat incumbent drain commissioner Charles Youngblood.

Local election candidates were given in last week's Record, but here is a quick listing of township candidates.

The election is all but over for supervisor, clerk and treasurer. Susan Heintz, Georgina Goss and Richard Henningsen, respectively, were the only candidates to file for those three

There are eight candidates vying for the four remaining board seats. Bidding for reelection are James Nowka, Thomas Cook and Richard Allen. Seeking election to the seat he was appointed to last month is Donald B. Williams.

Others filing were Michele Demers (the sole Democrat on the list), Gregory Dawson, Myron Kasey and Marilyn Little.

Township voters will also see three local questions on the August ballot two seeking approval of land purchases (on Beck south of Six Mile for a park and on Seven Mile west of Beck for a fire hall) and one asking renewal of the 0.5 mill property tax levy that funds fire department operations.

Fairfax Court repaying considered

It may be cheaper, after all, to tear out the present cracked and tilted concrete along Fairfax Court than it would be to make repairs, city council learned Consulting engineer Edward J.

McNeely told council he recommended a short wait before council decides whether to repair or replace so that fur-ther investigation of the alternatives can be completed.

"I'd like to hold off on any kind of action until cost figures are a little more firm," McNeely said. "We should do more investigation. If the costs of repaving are close or a little bit higher than the cost to repair the street, we might be better off putting in a new

McNeely earlier recommended that the street, where the subsurface has been washed away by stormwater, be repaired — assuming that repaving would be too expensive.

Repairs would include injecting material beneath the street to fill the voids and prevent further pavement settling, followed by asphalt patching of major depressions. Then, McNeely explained, the decision would have to be made whether or not to put a cap layer of asphalt over the entire street.

City manager Steve Walters noted that bids on the filling project are on a cubic-foot-of-material basis and thus open-ended.

"No one's going to bid a flat rate," Walters said. "There's no way of knowing beforehand how big those holes are and how much work it will take to fill

He noted further that any attempt to fill beneath the roads could prove costly if the material flowed into "say a cracked storm or waste sewer line." Then, he noted, the city could find itself paying for fill material not needed for the road plus repair of any damaged utilties.

Even without such problems, "the repair cost could very easily double," if the voids are larger than anticipated, Walters said.

McNeely said he heard an unofficial estimate for paving that is "very close" to the first two bids on the repair project. He and Walters declined to reveal bid costs as other bidders had not yet submitted estimates.

McNeely also said he had done further investigation into the causes of drainage problems in the area and found that the water flowing under Fairfax comes not only from the Northville Estates commons area but also from the yards of homes on an adjacent Attention paid to drainage patterns and insuring that all drains are open and free-flowing may substantially address the problem, he said.

McNeely said it might be possible to extend a storm drain line up Fairfax if the total repaying route is taken. At present, water entering the north end of the street flows over the surface to a drain structure in the south end. Residents had requested consideration of a north end drain inlet.

McNeely was asked to provide further information at the council session of June 18.

Noting a May 21 letter from Fairfax resident John Regan, which outlined the residents' position that the drainage problem is the city's responsibility and that residents should pay none of the cost for repairing it, Mayor Paul Ver-non suggested that Walters contact the city attorney to ascertain his opinion of the limits of city responsibility.

The city council had earlier agreed to undertake temporary repairs at city expense immediately while leaving the question of charges to Fairfax residents for a later date.

Seven Mile group home proposed

The proposed establishment of a small group home for mentally retarded persons at 49744 Seven Mile Road is on the board of trustees agenda for its regular meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday.

The home would be operated by Our Lady of Providence Center. Clerk

Susan Heintz said the long-established Beck Road facility has been adjudged an "institution" by the state department of mental health, requiring that OLP begin a community placement program similar to those underway to remove retarded persons from state in-stitutions.

Mail registration accepted

Schoolcraft College will be accepting mail registrations for its summer session through this Friday.

Classes for the six-week session begin July 9 with walk-in registrations taken by appointment June 27-28. Appointments will be available from the Registrar's Office starting June 18.

The college is offering more than 60 summer classes in accounting, art, biology, business, chemistry, communications, economics, English, history, mathematics, physical education, political science, psychology and sociology. In addition, there are two classes in how to study effectively.

For further information or a free copy of the schedule, call 591-6400, ex-

OLP only recently built and opened on its campus several small cottages in which retarded youngsters live in an apartment-like environment and are taught independent living skills. Total population of each of these buildings, however, exceeds the maximum size allowed for group homes.

The board has virtually no control over the establishment of group homes. The state department of social services asks for one of three responses — that the proposed home is more than 1,500 feet away from a similar facility, that it is less than 1,500 feet away but that approval is recommended anyway, or that it is within 1,500 feet of a similar facility and that the board opposes issuance of a license for that reason.

No other group homes are within 1,500 feet of the proposed West Seven Mile location.

Last day voter registration hours shortened at city hall

City hall will no longer be open late ours on the final day to register to vote get to the clerk's office during regular hours on the final day to register to vote prior to an election.

Clerk Joan McAllister advised city council May 29 that amended state law deletes a former requirement that the clerk's office be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. on the final day to register. She suggested the city adopt regular office hours for that day.

"We don't get very many people any more after 5 p.m.," McAllister said. "Since they started registering at the secretary of state's office, we don't get as much of that as we used to do."

She noted further that persons hours for any reason can call the office and make arrangements to register at some other time.

"We can work it out," she said, noting that, on request, she visits some people at their homes in order to register them to vote.

Council members noted occasions when McAllister has arrived at city hall early prior to a council or planning commission session in order to meet a resident who wished to register after regular hours.

Reunion planners sought

A fifth year reunion is in the planning for Northville High School Class of 1979 for this summer, report Karen Boll and Sheryl Wissman. Date and place are being arranged and will be announced.

A 43rd year reunion seems to be a strange anniversary celebration, says Angle Baetz of Northville as she explains that a group of "near Social Security recipients decided not to wait too long" for a reunion of Detroit Western High School Class of 1941.

It has taken a few hard core, stubborn Western High Cowboys and Cowgirls two years to locate and organize their forthcoming reunion event with more than 200 graduates of the classes contacted throughout the country, she relates, noting that in those days there were January and June graduating

Alums, she says, will be returning from as far away as Oregon and California, Florida and New York. The event will be at Bonnie Brook Country Club, Telegraph and Eight Mile, beginning at 6 p.m. September 22. Any former graduates of 1941 wishing additional information may call Florence Trombley Mocock, 685-2345, or Rita Bruckner Notebaert, 453-6186.

U.S. Representative Carl D. Pursell officially has announced that he'll seek a fifth term representing Michigan's 2nd District, which includes Northville Township and the portion of the city in Wayne County.

The Republican Congressman said his campaign will stress "experience, independent leadership," and his extensive work for diversified business and job opportunities. Pursell also will emphasize his growing leadership role in Congress, his belief in limiting taxes and spending, and continued "excellent service" to constituents.

Representative Pursell is a member of the influential House Appropriations Committee, and a key spokesman for the Midwest in congressional and administration policy deliberations. A former state senator and county commissioner, Pursell vas first elected to Congress in 1976, and has been returned to office by wide margins in the past three elections.

"Experience, plus ability, e vals leadership. I'll outline my record in those terms during the campaign,' Pursell said.

"I believe I can make a strong case that I've represented the 2nd District effectively, and will be even more effective in coming years. My broad experience in state and county government has been a distinct asset in working effectively in Congress.

'I enter the campaign with confidence that our hard work on behalf of the district will lead to success at the

The 2nd Congressinal District includes major portions of Washtenaw, Jackson and Lenawee counties, the Northwest corner of Wayne County, all of Hillsdale County and two townships in Branch County.

Pursell to seek fifth term to Congress

In regard to his accomplishments and priorities, the 51-year old Pursell states: "During the past two years I've entered the Republican leadership group in the House, and independently supported those policies I felt would put our country back on a positive course.

"As the leader of a Northeast-Midwest Coalition Task Force, I've launched a major new initiative to modernize the St. Lawrence Seaway to help diversify business and job opportunities. In addition, I've devoted countless personal and staff hours to helping businesses retain or compete for federal supply contracts. These efforts are designed to broaden Michigan's economic base.

"Small businesses are a prime hope for future job creation. So I'll continue working as a catalyst to meld our universities and private sector in efforts to nurture small businesses and high technology companies.

'Economic development has been, and remains, my top priority," Pursell emphasized.

On education, Pursell said he plans in his role as a member of the Education Appropriations Subcommittee to extend his work for cost-effective excellence at all education levels. Included will be further support for college student financial aid, programs to develop the gifts and talents of all students, and advanced nursing research.

On tax and budget restraint, he states, "I continue to believe that we can't tax Michigan or the nation to prosperity. I think higher taxes have the opposite effect and I'll persist in opposing broad tax increases. The large budget deficits must be eliminated. The best way to do it, for the nation's longterm economic health, is through budget restraint and economic develop-

He noted "our 2nd District boundaries were extensively revised two years ago. Working in this 'new' district has been an enjoyable challenge. I believe we've provided the new areas with an extra measure of representation; the kind of extra effort the older sections of the district have come to expect. The sincerity of our effort has been reflected in a very positive response from people throughout the district.

"If we are successful in November. the 2nd District can be assured that this level of service and strong representa-tion will be maintained," Pursell stated.

The Pursell family lives in the 2nd District in Plymouth and has continued to do so throughout the Congressman's seven-plus years in office. Peggy Pursell has continued her career in teaching. Their daughter and two sons all are in college, two at Eastern Michigan and one at University of Michigan. Pursell returns home every weekend for direct meetings with constituents.

"Extensive time and work in the district form the foundation of my approach to representation," Pursell said. "Close contact with people and problems of the district remain indispensable. If reelected, I'll continue to give equal importance to my responsibilities at home and in Washington,' he concluded.

If you have a sucessful business and are considering setting up a second business, for your son, for example, be sure to take advantage of all the tax-saving opportunities under the new tax law. ### 'People' ice cream judges rate Guernsey butter pecan top 10

By KATHY JENNINGS

The man who makes the Butter Pecan ice cream for Guernsey Dairies isn't surprised People Magazine thinks it's one of the best in the country.

Marty McGuire uses the basic recipe his father developed 40 years ago — with a few changes to suit his own taste. The result is the ice cream which tied for fifth place in a competition among ice creams from across the country.

"We feel we have one of the more superior ice creams," admitted McGuire.

When asked to compete in the national taste test, the dairy entered the ice cream that is a favorite of customers, and a favorite of the ice cream makers.

"Butter pecan is one of my favorites and it's one of our most popular ice creams," McGuire said.

To qualify for the national competition Guernsey's Butter Pecan Ice Cream first had to make it through a state taste-off. Two flavors entered in the Michigan contest — chocolate and fudge whipped coconut — both placed third. But when Guernsey's butter pecan took first place in the state, it qualified for competition in New York.

Guernsey's Butter Pecan competed against 889 flavors. The field was narrowed to 87, then cut to 30. The 30 flavors were divided into three categories - regular, chocolate and exotics. The local entry competed against ice creams in the "regular" category.

A panel of 10 judges taste-tested the ice creams, rating each of the entries for flavor, body and texture and looks. The results were weighted — flavor accounting for 60 percent of each entry's final rating, body and texture 30 percent and 10 percent for appearance.

Judges agreed with local ice cream connoisseurs who find the salty pecans, balanced by the sweetness of the ice cream irresistable.

McGuire explained a lot of work and tradition go into making Guersey's ice cream a "superior" one.

"I grew up around ice creams. My Dad taught me how to make the ice cream. We're still using the recipe he used 40 years ago. I worked from what he had and haven't change the basic mix. The flavoring is to my taste," McGuire explained.

Many of the ingredients are among the most expensive available, while others are simply those that taste best to McGuire.

'We get our pecans from one of the top nut companies in the country," McGuire explained. "We try to use the best ingredients. That's not always the most expensive.''

McGuire doesn't expect the notoriety will change the way things are done at Guernsey's or push them into expanding their operations.

We'd like to stay about the size we are now," McGuire said. "We want to make a living, but remain a family business. We don't want to get bigger than we can handle. When you're small you have to be good to stay in business.'

But there already has been interest ' generated by the article in the June 4 edition of People Magazine, according to McGuire. "We've heard from quite a few people who have called to ask about the ice cream, some are new customers," he said.

Interested people can see for themselves how Guernsey makes its nationally-acclaimed ice cream when the dairy conducts an open house at the plant on Novi Road just north of Eight Mile, June 17. The Father's Day festivities from 1-5 p.m. will include free rides for the children and offer a tour of the plant to see where the ice cream is made.

Guersey ice cream is available in many ice cream parlors and other outlets throughout the Detroit metropolitan area, including Genitti's in downtown Northville.

Clark asks waiver

City stands pat on self-serve gas

By KEVIN WILSON

A bid to install self-serve gasoline pumps at all three islands of the Clark station at 510 South Main was foiled by city council last week when it denied a request for modification of city regulations requiring such stations have at least one island where an attendant

Harold Kasten, district sales manager for Clark Oil & Refining Corporation, appeared before council to argue against the requirement for attendant-served pumps, saying the regulation negates the labor costsavings of self-service.

He noted that the station competes with a nearby self-service Gas-N-Go station just across the border in the township.

'Our intention is to reduce total payroll hours by 25 percent" by installing electronic self-serve pumps and an office control monitor, Kasten explained. "Right now, we have a station down there that is 23 years old, with lighting and equipment of a similar age. It's not economical to invest in those electronic pumps if we're not going to see any labor savings.'

But council members objected that the city requirement for at least one attended island was adopted after due consideration.

"We adopted this ordinance two years ago fully aware that it prohibited totally self-serve stations," said council member J. Burton DeRusha.

Mayor Paul Vernon said he had several times been at self-serve stations where he felt there was a lack of concern about safety.

"I'm not prepared to sacrifice safety and risk a serious fire in a residential area for the sake of saving an oil company a few employee-hours," Vernon said. "We deliberately included the requirement for full-serve to insure that there is an attendant out there who is aware - not just someone sitting in a booth counting money and totally oblivious to what's going on out at the Vernon and council members Paul Folino and G. Dewey Gardner both cited personal experiences of watching motorists at self-serve stations who were smoking while pumping gas, and others who left their engines running.

"If I could be assured that safety would be more strictly enforced, then maybe I'd change my mind," Vernon said. "I see nothing in your proposal that gives me that assurance.'

Vernon also noted that, although Kasten cited competition with the selfserve station down the street, "it has been my experience that you have a very busy station there, is that not cor-

Kasten acknowledged that the Clark station does a "good business" but argued that switching to self-serve would "maybe lose us some customers, but probably gain us others." He said the ones who would be lost are those who refuse to pump their own gas. He was soon to learn that at least three of the four council members present count themselves among that number.

Council declined to take any action on Kasten's request that the requirement be waived or modified.

"I think not, but I don't want to say," Tucker replied.

As he moved to approve the concept, Nowka said he feels "confident that is a first class development."

Arbor Drugs pharmacist catches forged prescription

In the City ...

A Livonia woman has been arrested for and charged with fraud in connection with her May 26 attempt to fill a counterfeited prescription at Arbor Drugs downtown.

Carol Jeanne Gaynor, 35, stood mute to fraud charges at 35th District Court Tuesday of last week where she was arraigned before Judge Dunbar Davis. She was released on $5,000 personal bond, and is to appear in court for a preliminary exam tomorrow at 10:30

According to a police account of the May 26 incident, Gaynor presented a forged prescription for a 50-pack of Percodan (a narcotic pain reliever) to a pharmacist at Arbor Drugs, 133 East Dunlap. The "prescription" was made out to a Dennis Bordlois and contained a forged signature of Dr. Edward J. Slowiak of the McNichols Health Care Clinic in Detroit.

The pharmacist on duty at Arbor Drugs called the clinic to confirm the validity of the prescription. He was informed the forged prescription was for more than twice Dr. Slowiak's customary dosage.

The pharmacist then contacted city police, who questioned Gaynor and confiscated the forged prescription, since it could not be verified. When police reached Dr. Slowiak the next day, Dr. Slowiak said he did not make out the prescription or know a patient named Bordlois. A check on clinic records revealed neither Bordlois, Gaynor, nor a Livonia man (still under investigation) who reportedly aided Gaynor in the forgery had ever been a patient at The clinic had been broken into May 20, and a report was filed at Detroit Police Department's 16th Precinct. Police are continuing to investigate a possible connection.

Four incidents of vandalism were reported in the city last week. The most costly occurred when two large office Products building, 637 Baseline, were broken by thrown rocks. The damage reportedly took place between 6:30 p.m. Friday and 6:30 a.m. Saturday, when it was first discovered. Total damage value was set at $625. Police are continuing to investigate.

A two-door Buick parked on Reed Street between 8:15-10:30 p.m. last Wednesday sustained $200 damage when the driver's side was spraypainted red. No suspects are reported in connection with the damage.

Two cars awaiting repair at Bump Shop Charlie's, 21061 Old Novi Road, sustained vandalism damage between 3 and 4 p.m. Thursday. The windshields of a 1978 Lincoln and a 1979 Pontiac were shattered by thrown rocks from the nearby railroad track, according to a police report. Damage to each vehicle vas set at $120.

One recently broken screenreinforced window at Cooke Junior High School was discovered by a worker at 12:31 a.m. Sunday. Apparently. several beer bottles were thrown at the window until it was broken by one.

According to township police, officers were called to a Pierson Drive residence by the child's mother at about 1:30 p.m. June 8.

The complainant told police her daughter was missing and that she was last seen playing in the second-floor family room of the residence.

The complainant further stated she had thoroughly checked the residence but could not locate her daughter.

Hearing set for condo plan

City planners last week set a Tuesday, June 26, date for a public hearing on a request to rezone a large Taft Road parcel to permit building 50 condominiums instead of single-family residential houses. The property is located west of Taft north of Eight Mile.

The zoning change would be to multiple-family residential (R-3) from the present single-family residential (R-1a). According to developer Patricia Hann, the proposed con-dominium complex would be similar to those she has developed in Plymouth at York Street in the Old Village. The sale value of those units ranges from $99,000 to $125,000.

The City Planning Commission's June 19 meeting date has been pushed back a week to accommodate the public hearing. Time of the meeting and hearing will be 8 p.m. June 26.

Planners approved the hearing date unanimously at their meeting Tuesday of last week.

Our Opinions

Deleting .25 mill was proper course

While any tax increase is hard to swallow, we were glad to see city council at least reduce its proposed 1.25 mill increase for the coming year to 1.0 mill. While we agree that the emergency generator purchase that would have been funded by the extra quarter-mill is a necessary item, levying additional taxes specifically for such a general fund expense is bad policy.

As it turned out, it appears the city has found a way to have its cake and eat it, too. The generator remains in the budget yet the earmarked millage was dropped. The only concern is that the deficit reduction plan, at least on paper, was slowed by some $20,000. That should be fixed at the next meeting when the administration makes its proposed budget amendments.

As for the one mill levy, we know it will be an unpopular position to take, but we believe the increase was justified by the pressure of that deficit looming over the city. Eliminating that deficit is the one top priority facing the city — so long as the red ink flows, other activities suffer. Street maintenance is the most visible one. The deficit has also, so far, slowed progress on the planned second phase of downtown development. Ask anyone in any department of city government, and you will hear of projects and ideas both large and small that are stalled for lack of funding.

Alternatives to the millage are few - excepting the unpleasant acceptance of a city stalled in its progress for the next several years. Most any person could examine the city books and find some program or activity that might be deleted to save money to put toward the deficit, but the city has pared itself down sufficiently that all such moves mean a reduction in services - without reducing the tax burden any.

With luck, the latest increase can be eliminated next year. Even if things turn out worse than expected, that mill can disappear in two or three years. If it doesn't, you can believe we'll be opposing any city council member who votes to continue it beyond the point where the deficit is eliminated. When considering the alternatives, it would be good to keep in mind that city employees have cooperated by accepting a wage freeze and that staffing has been reduced in the DPW and at city hall. It's not as though the city was riding high while carrying the deficit, and the new millage isn't going to do much except put Northville back on the road to recovery.

Community gains by NAC's efforts

Since its inception in late November, the Northville Action Council has proved a local force to be reckoned with in dealing with substance abuse among area

Its grassroots beginnings with only a handful of concerned parents and school administrators have spawned a much larger coalition of community members working toward the common goal of fighting substance abuse.

Initially an outgrowth of The Chemical People program, a nationwide campaign to combat substance abuse among the country's youth, the Northville Action Council has established itself as a local bulwark in the struggle against drug and alcohol abuse.

Its efforts have included educating parents about the consequences of substance abuse, encouraging businesses to enforce the age identification process thereby eliminating the sale of alcohol and drug paraphernalia to minors, and planning drug and alcohol free ac-

We are pleased to see that the group's efforts are gaining community interest. Last month, some 60 residents turned out to hear a panel discussion on a host of topics from legal responsibilities of parents who host parties where drugs and alcohol are used to student responsibilities.

With graduation only days away, the N.A.C. and high school administrators are urging students, parents and the community to enforce drug and alcohol free activities.

We hope residents cooperate with the group's request and understand that indifference to the problem may only encourage more widespread abuse.

Off the record

Being a dad gives perspective to son

My second Father's Day is fast approaching, and it's a sobering experience. As one of two sons and, thus far, father of one boy, I keep looking at this annual June rite and wondering what it's all about.

As father to a not-quite-two year old, I haven't done all that much to earn a day. Not to be tacky, but becoming a dad isn't difficult. Kind of fun, actually. It's turning babies into children and children into adults that offers the challenge.

Yet here's this day set aside for fathers - no need to submit a resume, prove that you're doing the job adequately or even that you care one whit about it. You're a dad — here's a day. Just like little kids. They'll pour love all over you even if you're a miserable wretch to be around, just 'cause you're dad. I remember losing my temper and just screaming at the kid for something that didn't even merit a mild rebuke. And within 30 seconds, there he was, tears running down his cheeks, holding his blanket and asking for comfort. From me — the one who terrorized him in the first place. After that, I need a day?

I saw my own dad for the first time in some while last weekend. We took in the sports car races at Waterford Hills where I was covering Tim Evans as he warmed up for the Grand Prix (didn't think I'd let that event pass without mention, did you?). And there we were - my dad, myself and my son. All getting excited over the race cars. And I remembered being, oh, eight or 10, and dad taking me to Waterford the first time. He's the one who gave me this mania for high horsepower, wide tires and serpentine roads.

You've got to understand something — my dad, like most, was nothing like ideal. For the first year of my life, one I found tied me close to my boy, he was stationed overseas in the Army. Once I figured out I had a father, he wasn't around much. He had a job he loved — except for a few years as a route driver for first a bakery, then a uniform rental outfit, he's been in the bowling business most of my life. You may recall that bowling lanes are open late at night, weekends and holidays. Managers are there more often than at home.

The friction between my folks was evident for a long time before the separation and divorce. My dad had a mother who could have been typecast as a Freudian's version of "how to ruin your youngest son." He never has shown me an ability to feel comfortable around strong women the way I do much of the time. His own father died when my dad was but six, so he didn't have much to pattern himself after as a father. Between those two handicaps, I think now, dad found it a lot easier to relate to people on a business or social basis than he did within his fami-

So when I hit my teens, I began to think he must not love us. He spent no time with us, and mom was beginning to act disgusted about his reasons for being away. I know better now. He was awkward around us when we were little boys. But as we grew to where he could see something adult-like, he reached out the best way he knows how — as a friend. He spoke to me of cars and to my brother of music, tailoring his message to the bits of himself he saw developing in us.

Now we have those things to talk about when all we want to do is be together. Oh, he taught me other things, mostly practical. Like how to fit and drill a bowling ball and sell it honestly. To this day, I'm convinced he is the best in the state at that job, and I get angry at a world where rip-off artists get rich while dad's lifelong dream-made-real — his own pro shop — limps along on little more than sheer willpower.

He taught me by example that you can be sensitive and male - that being crude isn't necessary to be a man. He's quick with a quip, and his love of wordplay is as much a part of my being a writer as is my mother's fascination with books. I could go on. But all I have to say is I've come full circle. I understand him enough now to return to that wonderful childlike state — it doesn't matter what he's done lately or what mistakes he may have made, he's dad, and I love him.

About Town

By Steve Fecht

Hot on the trail

After By PHILIP JEROME

Molly the Receptionist has me worried.

Why? Because I wrote a column several weeks ago about "fat pants." It was the column about how Fecht the Photographer: observed I had been wearing two pair of pants almost exclusively, and when I explained it was because I'm a little overweight right now and they were the only pants that fit, he responded knowingly, "Ah, fat pants."

At any rate, it was the Thursday after : that column appeared that Molly stopped me: as I was coming in one morning.

'My husband read your column and said 🦫 you must be about 40 years old," she reported.

"Close, " I responded. "I'm sneaking up on 40. I have a close friend who's 40, and one of these years I'll be celebrating the big Four-Oh as well."

What struck me as curious, however, was how her husband could tell my approximate age just by reading my column. So I asked

"Because you only have 'fat pants," she : 🌘 replied. "He says you have 'fat pants' when you're 40, 'fat shirts' when you're 45 and 'fat suits' when you hit 50. You only mentioned 'fat pants' in your column so he figures you haven't learned about 'fat shirts and suits'. vet. That's why he says you're only 40."

I thanked her for her husband's insights and proceeded to my office ... where I sat depressed the rest of the day.

The problem is that I already have "fat shirts.'

My wife was going through the closet last week and discovered three shirts she bought me for Christmas ... still wrapped up in their cellophane packages.

I changed the subject when she asked why I wasn't wearing them. Embarrassed to tell her I'm not into the tapered look right

I don't have any "fat suits," but the problem is I could use a couple. All my suits are "thin suits" — and neither one of them fits right now.

I know I should try to lose some weight, but Molly's husband has got me so worried I tend to overeat to compensate for my depression. This "getting older" process is tricky business.

Report from Lansing

HB 4177 supported

By GERALD H. LAW State Representative

Legislation designed to extend greater protection to abused children was approved recently and as a supporter of the bill I think it will clarify the procedures for investigating reports of suspected child neglect.

House Bill 4177 would require schools and physicins to cooperate more fully with the Department of Social Services (DSS) in investigations of suspected abuse, and for the first time would require people licensed to provide emergency medical care, psychologists and family therapists to report suspected cases of abuse and neglect.

County DSS offices would also be required to transfer records of unsubstantiated reports of abuse and neglect that are under investigation to another county DSS office if a child moves.

This provision would insure that a child who is a suspected victim of abuse is kept under the watchful eye of people charged to protect him when his parents don't. Often, the local social services office has almost documented a strong case of abuse when a child and his or her family moves on. It may take vears for the new county to become aware of the abuse because the previous file is closed.

The legislation also requires schools and other institutions to cooperate fully with the DSS during an investigation. That means that a school or hospital would have to allow access to the child if further investigation is needed or if officials mve to prevent any further abuse or neglect of the child.

One of the most significant features of the bill is that it establishes conditions under which the DSS must involve law enforcement officials in the investigation of abuse cases.

Law enforcement officials must be involved when a child dies as a result of abuse, when the child is sexually abused or exploited, when the abuse results in physical injury or hospitalization and when the alleged perpetrator is not the child's parent or guardian.

Child abuse is an extremely serious problem, and we must continually update our laws to effectively deal with it. While we must continue to search for the root causes of child abuse, our primary concern must be the safety of children. This legisltion tightens the safeguards and I hope it is swiftly passed in the Senate.

Strawberry farms ready for the rush

The stage is set. The production crew is waiting. The curtain is about to rise. And the star is . . . the strawberry.

Some time in the next week, the pickit-yourself strawberry farms that dot the area will be opening their doors to crowds of berry lovers who will descend on the fields for two to four weeks of picking pleasure.

While everything is dependent on the weather, the strawberry picking season is due to open around June 18, according to local farm operators. After that, if the weather cooperates, pickers will have about a month to fill their baskets. Hot weather will shorten the picking season and cool, wet weather will lengthen it.

To many berry pickers, the monthlong season will prove too short. And others may wonder why they spend money for the privilege of getting dirty, bending over and picking their own berries. After all, the strawberries pretty much grow by themselves. Right? All they need is a little patch of ground, some sun and a few sprinkles. Right?

Well, it is true that strawberries need soil, sun and water, but a successful

One such farm is the Park-U-Pick Strawberry Farm at 8779 Dixboro, just south of Seven Mile, near South Lyon, It is operated by Russell and Delores

The Parks got into the strawberry business in 1964 when Delores was encouraged by Russell's father to plant a few strawberry plants to see how they would grow. Delores took the encouragement to heart, ordering 5,000 plants and planting them on her hands and knees.

For many years, while Russell worked for Republic Die and Tool, much of the farm work was handled by Delores. Russell retired from Republic in 1982 and devotes all of his time to the farm.

Today, 20 years after that first planting, the Parks have a 30-acre farm that is designed for the customer's convenience, Russell explained. Clients are not just turned loose on fields of strawberries but they are directed to the areas that will offer the greatest quantity of ripe berries in the shortest amount of picking time, he said.

preparation for that short picking fers adequate parking facilities located near the fields. That day's picking area is marked with a giant strawberry mounted on a truck. As the picking area moves, the truck moves. In addition, pickers are assigned rows, so that each row is picked every three days. This allows the berries to ripen properly, Russell said.

> Russell also divides the farm into five sections. One section is destroyed and replanted every year, he explained, adding that one planting will be picked for four seasons before it is replaced.

For 11 months out of the year, Russell and Delores operate the farm by themselves but during the busy picking season, they hire 15-20 temporary helpers. Help also comes from Russell's mother-in-law, Marie Brittain, and Marie's sister, Pauline Stewart.

The Parks do have some permanent helpers on the farm - a flock of 30 geese. Their job is to weed the fields. Russell said the geese love to eat dandelions and quakgrass, two big enemies to the strawberry farmer. The geese work in the fields up until the blooms come out on the plants, Russell said, adding that the geese will pick the blooms off the plants if they can.

Money Management

Prepared by the Michigan Association of CPAs.

In northeast Philadelphia, 40 employees of an AP supermarket bought the store after the business failed and in the process saved their jobs. It's been a year and a half since the workers bought the supermarket and they now expect to turn a profit for the first time with sales up by more than 30 percent.

In Decatur, Illinois, the owner of Simmons Construction Company sold his successful firm to seven of his employees in 1982 because none of his heirs wanted to run the business. Employees now own this thriving business which has sales of four to five million dollars annually.

These enterprises are worker-cooperatives. They are spearheading a structure for business ownership that is gaining acceptance in this country. If you are interested in this form of "worker capitalism," the Michigan Association of CPAs says you should know about the way cooperatives are structured, how much money you'll need to invest, the risks involved in being a worker-owner and the peculiar tax rules that make cooperatives attractive to workers.

An estimated 200 companies with less than 50 employees are cooperative, according to Joseph Blasi, a Harvard University professor reseathing the subject. He says that companies with 50 employees or less are "just right" for this type of structure because they are not too big for employees to manage themselves.

Under the cooperative arrangement, employees have ultimate control over the company, according to the Industrial Cooperative Association in Somerville, MA. This control by the workers is what distinguishes a cooperative from its distant cousin, an employee stock ownership plan (ESOP). Eastern Airlines and People Express are examples of ESOPs, where workers own a percentage of the company, but their hand in managing the affairs of the firm is restricted because they do not control a majority on the board of directors.

In a small cooperative firm with eight or 10 employee-owners, everyone participates in the day-to-day management of the company. In larger companies a board of directors is elected to represent all the worker-owners. The board sets policy for the company and hires managers to run the day-to-day affairs of the firm. On critical issues, all worker-owners vote.

The structure for many American worker-cooperatives is modeled after those in Mondragon, Spain, where entire industries have been operating successfully this way since 1956 and about 100 such enterprises employ an estimated 20,000

In most American cooperatives, workers put up about 10 percent of the money needed to buy the company. But the way a worker-owner profits on that investment differentiates cooperatives from conventional corporations. In a workercooperative, half of the company's profit is reinvested in the company and this portion of the profit is taxed the same as a conventional corporation's profit. The remaining half of the cooperative's profit, however, is divided up evenly among the employee-owners and set aside as separate bank accounts. The principal and interest in these accounts can be withdrawn after a set period of time or when the worker-owner pulls out of the cooperative. In the meantime, the cooperative can reinvest that portion of the profit and not pay the corporate tax on it.

But cooperatives do not provide a magic formula for success. Workers who are not familiar with the accounting, operational and managerial problems of running a business can be overwhelmed. And if a business is not profitable, even the inherent advantages of a cooperative cannot overcome all the business' problems. If the business fails, a worker-owner loses not only his job, but also the profits held in the capital account and his initial investment.

A nationwide network of organizations, however, may make it easier for cooperatives to overcome these obstacles. To tap that network, contact the National Center for Employe Ownership in Arlington, Virginia.

Bumper strawberry crop anticipated

For their work, the geese are rewarded with a half-pound of corn each day.

The critical time for the strawberry farmer is late April through May, when frost threatens the emerging plants, Russell said. During that period, the Parks set up a frost alarm that alerts them when the ground level temperature drops to 33 degrees. Much like a hungry baby crying for a bottle, that can happen at anytime after sundown.

Frost damage can occur, said Russell, with the temperature between 311/2 and 29 degrees. To protect the plants, the Parks irrigate the fields at rate of one-tenth of an inch of water per hour when the temperature reaches 311/2 degrees. At that rate, enough heat is emitted by the water to maintain that 31½-degree temperature.
Russell added that it is important to keep the water draining off the fields. This means walking in the mud and shoveling ditches, he said.

Other seasonal chores for the Parks include preparing the planting beds in early spring; planting, also as early as practical to give the longest growing season; cutting the blossoms to force an adequate number of 'daughter' plants and mulching the fields with six tons of straw in late November. The mulching protects the plants from severe winter temperatures and provides clean berries during the picking season, said

Of course, there are all the other chores related to any farm — repairing equipment and buildings, mending fences, managing the finances, planning next year's crop and so forth. Eleven months of work for that one month of picking.

For those interested in picking when the season arrives, the Parks strongly advised them to phone ahead to check the conditions. The Parks operate a recorded phone service at 437-1394 or 437-5394. Other farms offer similar advice (see related story).

The farm opens at 8 a.m. and picking can last until 8 p.m., depending on the number of pickers, weather and the field conditions.

Strawberry plants bloomed earlier, now the berries are ripen ing in time for mid-to late-June harvesting

Berry farms prepared for pickers

Starting next week, strawberry fans will kick off their favorite season at the various pick-it-yourself farms that dot the area.

Strawberry growers are expecting a terrific season this year. Most farm operators advise pickers to call ahead to check on picking conditions. Here's a list of the farms in the area, along with phone numbers:

BERRIHILL FARM — 21165 Chubb, just north of Eight Mile, west of Northville. They have 91/2 acres of strawberries and senior citizens receive a 10 percent discount. The season is expected to open on June 13 and last 3-4 weeks. Opens at 8 a.m. seven days a week. Call ahead at 349-5457.

DH STRAWBERRIES - Grand River and Napier, next to Brainer's Greenhouse, near Wixom. They have seven acres of berries and expect to open the season on June 18. Open seven days a week. Call ahead at 349-9070.

MEYER BERRY FARM - 48080 West Eight Mile, west of Sheldon, near Northville. An expected season opener between June 15 and 20. Call ahead at 349-0289.

PARK-U-PICK STRAWBERRY FARM — 8779 Dixboro, south of Seven Mile, near South Lyon. Thirty acres of berries with an expected season opener of June 20. Call ahead at 437-1394 or 437-5394.

THE STRAWBERRY PATCH - 2375 Wixom Road, between Burns and Duck Lake roads, east of Milford. Expected season opener of June 15, depending on the weather. Eight acres of berries. Open at 8 a.m. seven days a week. For more information, 'call 685-1393.

ROYCE LONG - 2050 Ford, north of East Commerce, near Milford. Retail and pick-your-own sales. Sixteen acres of berries. Expected season opener around June 18. Open 7:30 a.m. every day. Call ahead at 887-4937.

Jewelry maker moves to larger quarters

By JEAN DAY

Using knowledge gained from the time he was 10 years old observing his jeweler father in Jerusalem, Michael Ansara designs, casts and finishes jewelry sold in eight of his own stores and to 95 other jewelers around the country at his new headquarters in NorThis month he is celebrating the grand opening of the expanded Michel's Jewelers at 43119 Seven Mile in Highland Lakes Shopping Center.

"What we sell is what we make," Ansara emphasizes, noting that his firm is known for one of a kind mountings created for specific customers. He notes that most of the jewelry sold features diamonds, sapphires, pearls and rubles.

It definitely is a family business, one that his father was in 40 years ago in Jerusalem that involved Ansara, his brothers and uncles. Ansara, who has been in this country 10 years, had two stores in Jordan before the war caused a transfer of the family operation.

Eight years ago he opened a Northville store in Northville Plaza Mall. 'We did well in that location," he says, "but we moved to have the larger location and more exposure.'

His new store has direct access from the parking lot and utilizes a security buzzer opener, "It is a protection for us and also for our customers as we handle their valuable items," he explains but says he has never had a problem here.

The new store interior was designed by Jon Greenberg, an executive designer for mall shops. It features an all-mauve background against which cases of jewelry are displayed effec-tively. At the rear is the manufacturing area visible through a picture window.

Here, Ansara points out, he employs 12 full-time manufacturing jewelers who do their own castings. There also is a stonecutter and a watch repairman.

"Customers can watch while the work is being done — this is especially important when you're dealing with a large, valuable stone," says Ansara. He points out that many repairs and remountings are done while the customer waits.

"Due to everything being under one roof with no middle man, we pass the savings on to our Northville customers," Ansara says, noting that this is "slightly over the wholesale" prices that his two sales representatives charge on the road. They sell to retail jewelers in California, Texas, Ohio, Indiana and to 25 Michigan

"Gold chains and charms which we make here," Ansara illustrates, 'usually are 50 to 60 percent of retail." He says most of his local sales are in the $200 to $1,000 price range.

Ansara says he chose Northville for his headquarters as he likes the small community, country atmosphere. He points out that his business is "personalized, not like a production line — I like that." He and his wife, Hilda, and their four young children live in Northville Commons.

"I think it is right to have my business (headquarters) where I live,' he adds, detailing that about 80 percent of the customers in his Northville store are from Northville and most of the remaining 20 percent from surrounding communities. He notes proudly that many, many are repeat customers. "When they move away, they send for pieces." Ansara says he is pleased he presently has 53 former residents who still are customers living in Florida, Indiana and Illinois. Mauve-painted file cabinets in the back of the store contain 975 molds that are exclusively Michel's, the jeweler points out. Last Friday his shop manager was watching carefully the color of a container of gold rings as they cooled after being cast, removing them from the mold at the right moment. The rings are cast weekly. Ansara sells some of his jewelry at I-Natural Cosmetics stores for which he holds the franchise in Michigan. They are located at Twelve Oaks, Briarwood in Ann Arbor, Livonia Mall and the Lansing Mall. This is a good affiliation, he explains, "because women who have nice nails like to show them off with jewelry." Ansara has eight salespersons in his expanded quarters and a total of 95 employees in the business.

"This is my final expansion," he declares, explaining that it is all he wishes to oversee.

Asked if his business is affected by other jewelry firms opening in the area, Ansara gives his philosophy that "good competition always is good. It keeps the quality up and prices down."

The business ventures he oversees also include a strictly wholesale manufacturing jewelry operation, "Gold Gems, Inc." in Livonia.

Ansara also reveals he had invested in another business venture - a real estate one in Arizona. Of it, he says with a smile, "For every five things you do you're allowed one error."

In Northville, he says, he "loves riding" and has horses as well as "a lab and a shepherd" and that he also is a

Originally, he recalls, he intended to be a pilot and went to school in Jordan to become one.

"I chose the (jewelry) business instead because I started to help my dad and he wanted it.

"Now my children (ranging in age from one to 10) try to be helpful - they say in school at Winchester they want to become jewelers," Ansara reports with quiet satisfaction.

It appears that yet another generation will learn the family's skills with gold and precious gems.

Did You Ever Meet A Boy Scout?"

Did you ever meet a Boy Scout
Twenty years ago?
The boy who stood tall and proud,
Promised love to country and God,
Was well mannered and eager to explore.
Perhaps he was your brother, uncle, cousin— Or — the boy who lived next door. He was the boy who caught your eye, As he helped those in need, As he studied — And earned badge after badge, Steadily growing ... Steadily going ... Up the ladder ... Soon to be a man.

Did you ever meet a Boy Scout from Troop 1 - 7 -

The year is 19 - 8 and 4, The boy stands tall and proud. He has promised love to country and to God, Is well mannered and eager to explore. He may be the boy down your street
Or maybe right next door.
He's learning respect for fellow man,
For soil, air and water,
For all the gifts of his Great Father.
He's learning to listen—
To the sounds of nature,
To his Soutmaster, pagent toggher. To his Scoutmaster, parent, teacher, For the laws of conservation, For the laws of men. He's hiking, camping, swimming, fishing, Making rope, carving wood, planting trees, Learning photography, computer technology, He's growing strong of body and mind, Growing daily — soon to be a man.

Did you ever meet a Boy Scout? Is he your son, your nephew or brother? He's standing tall and proud before you, He is today's youth — Tomorrow's world. He is our hopes and dreams unfurled. I thank the Lord for Boy Scouts — and Troop 1 - 7 Marjorie LaPointe

County Commissioners Lament

Lord pity us, County Commissioners, Beseiged by countless petitioners. Demands from divisions for serious decisions On fixtures and new air conditioners.

Annexations, confrontations, water lines and Inundations, condemnations, absence of riches; Floating logs, barking dogs, highways with Swimming pools, blasted fools, wobbly bridges.

Rubbish dumps, water pumps, County taxation, Serial bonds, filthy ponds, hell and damnation. Sewage disposal plants, prisons and jails, Public housing, welfare and puppy dogs tails.

Hospitals, indigents, payments in stages, Food stamps, poorhouses, raises in wages. Satisfactions demanded by angry parishioners, Lord pity us, County Commissioners.

Flay us with switches—Plague us with bitches, Score us with false propaganda; Lay on the lashes—On our pictures draw mustaches. Wrong us with libel and slanda.

Sticks and stones may break our bones, But names will not make us dejected. We'll pool all our coins—Gird up our loins, And fight to be re-elected.

Harry Friberg

Proposed Boredom

Boredom is the key to a hidden fantasy. Through the door, you travel into perpetual hap-

The happiness of your own making, That which can't be taken away. Everything is right and all comes true For those who can believe in their dreams. Brooke Domeracki

Arms Of Winter

On each of her hibernating branches Slivers of ice glitter in the winter sun. Molehills of sticking snow are caught by her

But before those flakes comfortably settle An unfortunate frigid gale blows them to eternity, Joining other flakes who float down down down

her stiff spine.

Far below her frozen skin, Lays her expectant dreams of spring. The time when all the ice trickles down her anx-And the frozen wind becomes a breath of life.

Brooke Domeracki

The Raven

As the star ascends -From the misty Heavens, the Raven emerges; Swooping down -Destroying all serenity. Shrieking! — Shrieking! the requiem. And he whose ear it falls upon is victim!

As the star descends — From the graying Heavens, the Raven Disappears Followed by His newly formed Flock — Another day past.

Dale LeFevre

Days

Its been a very strenuous day, You know the kind, where nothing goes wrong. You feel quite fit, and ever so strong. Its been a very strenuous day, The kids were so quiet and cleaned all their rooms. The dog became toilet-trained not a minute too But it's been a very strenuous day.

I wish the rest of the world could have days Like these to stay, But I guess not everyone can have a strenuous

A Friend

A friend is someone who cares how you feel, so-meone who knows that your friendship is A friend is a person who hurts when you hurt, not someone who treats you like dirt. A friend is there through thick and through thin, without all the tension that can be popped with a pin. A friend won't expect you to act a certain way. A friend is a friend until the last day. Stephanie Ryan

Holes In The Road OrPaean To The Pothole (Sung to the tune of "King of the Road")

Sailin' around the bend, Boom! I done hit my head: Aw crap, aw drat, 'n' rats, I think I just wet my pants; Ah, but now I have spied the proof, I know why I go thru the roof — I'm a fan of Spring but it brings ... Holes in the Road.

My last car split in half, And I swear — I heard the pothole laugh! Old worn out tires and shocks, I don't have no extra bucks; I pray all of the time I drive That the holes will let me stay alive — I'm a fan of Spring but it brings ... Holes in the Road.

(Chorus) I've hit every pothole in every state, Some of 'em shallow, but others that a Seems every Spring they return from the dead, Cuz every time I look there's another ahead!

I said, sailin' around the bend, Boom! I still hit my head: Aw crap, aw drat 'n' rats, I think I just wet my pants; Ah, but now I have spied the proof, Yes, it's why I go thru the roof -I'm a fan of Spring but it brings ... Holes in the Road.

(Repeat last verse and pray for protection) Raghudas

Shrouds of Beauty

1,000cold winds sweep the earth ... chilling all. Winters face is vast and white reigning over the seasons time, throwing white blankets like shrouds of beauty to clothe the earth.

Patricia Keith

Love

Love toasts life in beauty ... rich wine overflowing. It is gentle with romantic moods enhancing new days ... new tomorrows.

It is understanding of every depth of mind and character ... forgiving,

Love is the richness

some do not find or a light to shine

even know unless they themselves give it first. Loves gift ... a beauty through all the seasons ...

leading to every new dawn.

Patricia Keith

The Chief Pontiac Trail

Crisp breezes, Red, orange, and golden leaves, Warm, dry socks, Visored caps, Young hearts by the hundreds.

The Elder in Native dress, Ojibwa ringing thru the air, A song of nature, Of sight and sound, Reminding of respect all 'round.

Hush ... Hear the squirrel, Hear the geese, Hear the raindrops, as onto leaves they fall ...

Listen closer ... Do you hear Civil War? Do you hear the feet of slaves seeking freedom?

Up hill and down. Trails growing muddy ... Slippery as Leaders and Youth pass In cadence to a distant drum.

Eleven miles of countryside ...

Looking closer ... Seeking another time, Hearing the voice of pioneer ... Or fur trader, hunter, warrior ... Hum of arrow swiftly seeking fox or deer, See the canoe in cattails hid?

A world once lost, Now relived.

Marjorie LaPointe

The Battle's End

Silence runs rampant through the air. It is a strange new sound; It is a strange new sound;
Hauntingly eerie.
The bloodshed has subsided.
The battle won —
But along the way
The casualties were many.
The stench of Death
Reaches as high as the Heavens —
Hoary — Smoldering.
Brave, courageous men
Have died for their country.
Few are heroes Few are heroes And many will be forgotten — Until next time.

Goodbye

I sit here waiting For the end to come near When the tears will fall -Emotions overflow, And we'll have to say goodbye Going our separate ways — Never to see each other again. But the Love we've shared And the memories we've created Will never die No matter where we are Or what we do -Our lives are permanently entwined.

The Laughing God

The bugles sound, as guns are loaded and men prepare themselves to live or die. Two armies in a war, two sides of a chessboad, black prepares to attack white and the carrion birds fly overhead, anticipating a great feast.

As the dawn breaks, orders are given men and machines move. toward each other, growling like two dogs over a bone. Flags are unfurled, drums are beaten, and like a wave against the shore, the two armies break against each other.

Sword grates on bone bullet meets living flesh and bombs flash in the night. Men struggle to stay alive, but the slaughter goes on. with blood and bone spilled and broken on the ground, and eventually the hatred dies but only when all is lost.

The sun shines on a unmoving mass of blood, flesh, bone, and burnt metal. The carrion birds feast as the screams of the living mingle with the stench of the dead. One side won, but whether it was black or white, it matters not to the feasting death birds.

Are we forever doomed to fight against our fellow man?
To be consumed by the fires of hate? As the brave man who should be a father. but is instead a soldier dies on the cold unfeeling ground, his blood mingling with the earth's juices, Mars on his golden throne laughs.

GM's Japan strategy suffers from quota

By KEVIN WILSON

How does a truly tiny car that registers more than 60 miles per gallon in EPA fuel economy tests and sells for less than $5,000 grab you? What if it bore an American nameplate and could be serviced by one of the largest dealer networks in the world?

Impossible, you say? Well, yes and no. There is such a car. Chevrolet began selling it recently. But you can't get one here.

That's because the Chevy Sprint, manufactured in Japan by Suzuki for sale by Chevrolet, is available only in nine western states. And that's due to Japan's voluntary import restraints, which granted Suzuki the right to send only 17,000 cars to America through March, 1985.

The smallest car sold in America, the Sprint is powered by a 3-cylinder engine. Targeted to the first-time new car buyer at a base price of $4,949 the Sprint is being marketed as a 1985 model.

The car's debut is marred by two factors General Motors had no control over one was extension of the import restraints to a fourth year.

"Obviously, we had expected (restraints) would expire after the third year and we based our planning on that," explained Chevrolet's Tom McDaniel, director of international programs, in a press statement.

Our Japanese source for the Sprint is new to the U.S market and received an allocation much smaller than we would have liked - and felt we deserved. With such limited volume, we had to tailor our distribution to anticipated demand on a regional basis.

As restraints are lifted or Suzuki is granted a larger share, GM says it will sell Sprint in other parts of the country. Meanwhile, Chevrolet is touting the late-fall debut of another Japanese small car in 16 eastern states. The Isuzu-built Spectrum will bow in November. After that, the small car built in California in the GM-Toyota joint venture will be available nationwide in early 1985.

A second unanticipated problem faced by the Sprint is one few consumers will notice, and will straighten itself out after the fall introductions of other 1985 models. The problem is that Sprint's official EPA mileage figures are lower than that of some 1984 models, even though it is the undisputed mileage

But EPA changed the mileage reporting requirements for 1985 models, cutting the figures some 10 percent for city values and 22 percent for highway mileage. Under 1984 rules, Sprint tests out at 53 mpg city and 68 mpg highway. But as a 1985 model, the Sprint carries EPA numbers of 47 mpg city and 53 mpg highway — still attractive figures but only comparable to the best on the 1984 list.

The mileage advantage is due to Sprint being the first "liter-class" car sold in America. That is, the engine, at 993 cubic centimeter displacement, is some 20 percent smaller than the smallest engines offered in other car

The engine is no racer to be sure, but generates a respectable 48 horsepower. With the engine's small mass (with all accessories it tips the scales at less than 150 pounds) a contributing factor, the Sprint weighs in at a mere 1,483.1 pounds — some 540 pounds lighter than a subcompact Chevette. The relationship of power to weight allows Chevrolet to market the car as "fun to drive.

The three-door hatchback seats four, comes with a standard five-speed transmission and rack-and-pinion steering. It is some 20 inches shorter than Chevette, previously the smallest Chevrolet. At 141 inches, it is 4 inches shorter than any other car now sold

For now, anyone wanting one of the handful of Sprints will have to buy it from one of 506 Chevy dealers in Alaska, Arizona, California, Hawaii, Washington, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon or

The situation with Spectrum won't be much better, even though Isuzu had some record as a U.S. importer prior to this year — less than 30,000 units will be available through next March. Despite having Japanese partners construct small cars for sale by GM,

McDaniels said Chevrolet is not surrendering the small car end of the business to Japan. "This is not the first time GM has sold an imported vehicle," he noted. "We brought in LUV trucks from Isuzu for several years until demand for small trucks was established." The company's current crop of small cars was preceded by the Opel line from GM's German subsidiary. McDaniels envisioned a similar strategy leading to a small domestic front-drive car.

Development of such a car for domestic production is tagged as GM's Project Saturn, which McDaniel claims will include "new innovations in integrated design, engineering, manufacturing, assembly, materials management and human relations.

Mountain bike sales are speeding uphill, as the latest trend in bicycles shoots for the sky. By KEVIN WILSON icycling, which hit a popularity boom in the late '60s when virtually everyone who could, it seemed, rode a 10-speed is undergoing another explosion spurred by a new type of equipment—the mountain bike.

The Northville Record

"They're really becoming popular," explains Paul Riebling of the Town and Country Bike Shop at 148 North Center. "The mountain bike is taking a larger and larger share of the market." He concurred with a published estimate that mountain bikes will account for over one-third of the sales this year, compared to a minuscule few percentage points only two years ago.

Originally devised for outdoorsy types who found them more suited for long-distance camping trips into rough terrain than the somewhat fragile 10-speed racer/touring bike, the mountain bike has exploded in popularity among those who find the new cycles also appropriate for urban and casual use.

"It really gives you the best of both worlds — the average mountain bike weighs the same as the average 10-speed, but it gives a more comfortable ride," Riebling explained.

Dubbed "all terrain bicycles" by the industry, the mountain bike sacrifices a little in speed capacity to gain comfort, durability and rough road maneuverability. Don't get the idea these are like the simple 'tank' bikes popular among newspaper carriers, however. The mountain bike is every bit as sophisticated as a multi-speed racer — it's just designed with different goals in mind.

Imagine the lightweight frame, handbrakes, and high-quality geartrain of a racer but substitute a wider padded seat for the narrow hard leather of the racer, flat padded handlebars for the ramhorn taped bars; and balloon tires (up to 2.25 inches wide) for the skinny tires and you begin to approximate a mountain bike.

Then, because the original designers wanted to climb steep terrain while carrying a heavy load of gear and needed them, add several low ratio gears to the normal assortment. All-terrain bikes boast from 12 to 18 speeds, providing the rider with a gear for most every eventuality, from steep rocky mountain passes with a loaded bike to flat-out running unladen on the open road.

All of which makes mountain bikes especially popular in the Northville area, according to Riebling, because of the number of hills in the area. Thanks to the padded seat and handlebars and the balloon tires, the ride of a mountain bike is more comfortable as well — likely viewed as an asset by aging baby-boomers who learned to enjoy cycling as recreation when racing bikes became popular, but find the lack of comfort for casual short-distance riding a hinderance today.

The more upright seating position helps, as does a more convenient arrangement for the gear and brake lever, which are nearer the hand when riding upright. Most casual riding is done upright, not in the racer's crouch for which the curved handlebar of a 10-speed is designed.

"One real advantage for around-town is that because of the tire, you can jump curbs or hit a pothole without damaging the rim," Riebling noted.

The popularity of the mountain bike for urban use has prompted still another variation — there are all-terrain bikes with tires that have treads with big lugs on them for traction on dirt or mud, and less bulky balloon tires with a tread designed for pavement use.

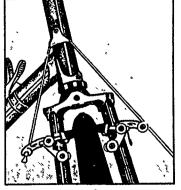

Prices for mountain bikes, Riebling says, are similar to those for any other quality bicycle.

"You can probably buy a cheap bike that claims to be a mountain bike for about $80, but for a quality bike you should expect to start around $150," he says. "From there, you go up to $700 and even more for a custombuilt model.

Riebling's shop is full of variations on the mountain bike theme by several manufacturers in several price ranges. He also carries the bags and tie-downs that convert a mountain bike into a virtual two-wheeled camping truck for those who want to take the name seriously.

Fix it yourself

By Kevin Wilson

Whether the aim is a short ride around town after supper or pedaling determinedly cross-country, come June the bikes start rolling out of their winter hide-aways in garage or basement. Before you go weaving through city traffic or wander off into isolated areas, however, you ought to be able to trust your mount.

Taking the bicycle in for a spring tune-up at the local bike shop is a good idea, and many riders will leave it at that. But the bicycle is among the simplest of machines to understand and maintain. The ability to do basic repairs and tuning can save a few dollars. Perhaps more importantly (since bike repairs are usually reasonably priced), knowing how the bike works and how to repair it can give confidence to take advantage of the modern bicycle's ability to carry you virtually anywhere without fear that a breakdown would leave you stranded.

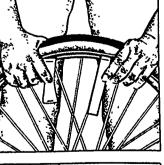

With that in mind, we asked some advice from Paul Riebling, owner of the Town and Country Bike Shop at 148 North Center, added some information gathered from the numerous bicycling books and publications available and put together the following basic guide to the care and feeding of a bicycle.

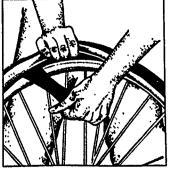

The advice is aimed at the newcomer or casual rider who doesn't yet have a good grasp of bicycle mechanics, but may serve to freshen the memory of more advanced cyclists. Most of the information can be applied to virtually anything from a child's tricycle to the most-sophisticated racing machine.

BRAKES

Brakes are the first thing you want to look after when preparing a bicycle for even the shortest jaunts. They are the primary safety device available to the rider and keeping them in prime working order is the best way to avoid mechanically-caused accidents.

Pedal-operated coaster brakes can be tested in your driveway. These rarely fail, but if anything seems out-of-order the average owner is probably better off taking it into a shop than attempting home repairs. But most modern bicycles feature hand-operated brakes that are easily looked after by even the most humble mechanic.

The first item to check, Riebling says, is that the brake pads are not worn out — visual inspection can tell you a lot about how the brakes are working. The pad should hit the rim squarely and have plenty of material left between the pad surface and the metal pad holder.

Other signs of trouble: Squealing brakes (old, hardened pads) and grabbing or juddery operation (usually a cable adjustment at the handle end).

Brake pads slide in and out of their holders, though older ones are often more easily removed by prying with a pliers. Slide the new ones in — dish soap in the grooves may help.

There are two-types of cableoperated brake arrangements — center pull and side pull (see drawing). Both have a central mounting nut that can be loosened to allow crude equalization side-to-side adjustment. Make sure there is an equal distance between the pad and rim on both sides.

To adjust clearance, you simply turn an adjusting barrel at the end of the cable. On center pull brakes, this is at the juncture of the Y-arrangement of cables. On sidepull brakes, the adjustment is made where the cable attaches to the brake mechanism proper. Get the pads as close to the rim as possible without rubbing.

Real brake trouble can come from frayed or rusted cables. Minor problems can be fixed with a nail file and a bit of oil. Otherwise, replace the cable. Many come with instructions. If not, ask the bike shop salesperson, they'll be happy to explain the simple replacement.

WHEELS

For best rolling characteristics, rims must be true and round. An untrue wheel will make proper brake adjustment impossible and put undue load on the bearings, causing premature wear.

To turn the blke upside down. Spin the wheel on its axle, eyeballing it first by looking down on the tire tread. If it seems to wobble side-to-side, the wheel is not true.

Then spin the wheel again and watch from the side. For reference, hold a pencil or other straight object steady about one-quarter inch from the tire tread. If the wheel looks to be

Travelers to Britain report on former residents

In addition to renting a car and roaming through more than 1,000 miles of British countryside friends Ruth Klein and Doris Stover last month rented a flat in London for a week. An enthusiastic Doris Stover reports it is the way to spend time in London — "We were in Knightbridge, close enough to the Victoria and Albert Museum and Harrod's (London's famous department store) to walk to both." She adds that the flat was "beautifully decorated" with living room, closet kitchen and bedroom. They had learned of it through London, Ontario,

While in London the travelers were visited by former resident Kathy Hughes. Her husband Paul has been on overseas assignment for many years with Ford, first in England, then in Paris and again in England. This last assignment has been for eight years. On his retirement, planned for February, 1985, the couple intends to live in Charlotte, North Carolina, and open a shop with antiques they have been purchasing while overseas. Mrs. Hughes told the visitors she has been interested in early molded jugs and is writing a book on them. While in Northville, she was a partner in an art gallery which was located above the Marquis Theater. She also was one of the first collectors here of brass rubbings.

Hints for keeping bike wheels spinning

bouncing up and down, or if the tire nears the reference point once in each revolution, the wheel is out-of-round.

Spoke tension is the crucial adjustable element of wheel construction all spokes must be tightened to the same degree. To test, pluck each spoke lightly as though it were a guitar string — they should all produce the same sound. A loose spoke will give a dull thud, a too-tight one will be highpitched. Uneven spoke tension, depending on the distribution, can produce either an untrue or an out-of-round rim.

One or two loose spokes can be tightened by the bike owner. More serious problems should be referred to the professionals. A broken spoke is often a sign that something is very wrong with the rim - have the bike shop check it.

"One of the worst mistakes I can make is to sell a kid a set of wheeltuning tools," Riebling said. "They're virtually always back within a week with a wheel that's worse than it was when they started. Truing a wheel properly is something that takes years to learn to do right. The average rider would only do it once-in-awhile and doesn't get the practice it takes."

Check that the wheel bearings are snug, but not too tight, Riebling advises. They must roll freely, but if too loose will cause wheel wobble and premature bearing wear.

DERAILLEURS AND GEARS

Most modern bicycles have several gear ratios available that allow the rider to adust effort in varying terrain. Anything from 3 to 20 speeds is available, but for discussion purposes we'll talk about the 'standard' 10-speed.

A 10-speed has two gears on the crank (the shaft to which the pedals mount) and five mounted to the rear axle. The drive chain rides over one gear at each end at any given time, providing the ten alternative gearings.

Shifting the chain from one gear to "One of the worst mistakes I can make is to sell a kid a set of wheel-truing tools."

> - Paul Riebling, Town and Country Bike Shop

another is accomplished by the cableoperated derailleur mechanism, one for each set of gears. The front derailleur remains in one position and moves only slightly to shift the chain (routed through a 'cage') from one gear to the other. The rear derailleur is a bit more complex, since its' range of motion is wider and the mechanism moves sideto-side with the chain.

If things are going well, the average owner need pay no attention to the derailleurs save to see that they are operly lubricated with light oil (see LUBRICATION). Most problems are evidenced by the chain throwing itself into either the stays (the frame tube the wheel mounts to) or the wheel spokes. If things are too far out of adjustment. the rider will be unable to select one of the gears at either end of the travel.

There are two adjustment screws on each derailleur, marked 'L' and 'H.'
They adjust the inward and outward limits of chain travel. The goal is to have the chain ride parallel with all the little gears and wheels it travels over. Turning one screw at a time a small amount and testing can usually lead to a proper adjustment, if things aren't too far out of whack. If you get lost, don't fret too badly. The bike shop is used to repairing amateur mechanic's mistakes, and a knowing hand can put things aright in little time and, usually, at small expense.

LUBRICATION

Many bike problems can be prevented by proper care and lubrication. Give highest priority to the chain and geartrain, which tend to accumulate a lot of grit and grime even in the best of conditions.

Clean derailleurs with a toothbrush and a solvent such as kerosene. If the chain is particularly gritty, remove it (you'll need to pop the master link and replace it with a new one) and soak it in solvent overnight.

Derailleurs should be treated with light oil, as should the chain. Bike shops sell special chain lube. "Don't overdo it, use just a fine coat," Riebling stresses. Too much oil, or a heavy lubricant like motor oil, grease or household oil will attract grime.

While lubricating, put a touch of WD-40 or other such light lube on the cable ends where they protrude from their covering and enter the various mechanisms (levers, brakes and derailleurs).

TIRES

Just as with automobiles, the best thing you can do for a bike tire is keep it properly inflated.

Beyond that, knowing how to fix a flat is a necessary bit of information if you intend to travel very far from home. If you intend to ride anywhere that a flat would require a long walk home, it would be a good idea to carry a tire pump, a set of tire irons and maybe a spare inner tube.

Fixing the flat is fairly simple in concept — remove the tire, pull out the tube, find the puncture, repair it, remove the cause of the puncture and put it all back together.

The part most newcomers mess up is getting the tire off the rim. You want to lift one tire bead over the rim, not both, just to get access to the tube. Doing so often requires that you use a tool to get under the bead and lift it. Use as few tools as possible as infrequently as possible to avoid a common failing causing more punctures to the tube while lifting the tire.

Big dull screwdrivers will work bike tire irons are better as they are designed to prevent additional punctures. Slide one tool under the rim and pry it up, then repeat with the other tool a few inches away. Then squeeze the bead inward with your fingers and work your way around the tire.

Slide the tube out from under the tire, taking care to push the valve stem inside so as not to tear it. Once the tube is out, the puncture is often obvious. If so, repair it following the directions on your patch kit. If not, inflate the tube and listen, or wet it (with spit in the field, in a tub of water at home) and watch for bubbles.

Before putting the works back together, run your fingers along the inside of the tire to make sure the cause of the puncture is no longer embedded in the tread. When putting the tube in make sure not to twist it, and while slipping the tire bead back on insure that no bits of tube are stuck under it. To avoid the latter problem, a small amount of air pumped into the tube will keep it from flopping around while you concentrate on squeezing the bead over the

All-Area East softball squad a red-hot gang

Sound the alarm and man the fire trucks — the 1984 Sliger-Livingston East All-Area softball team is smokin'.

Our red-hot squad features topnotch players from all eight area high schools: Lakeland, Milford, Northville, Novi, South Lyon, Walled Lake Western and Central, and Whitmore Lake.

Talent? The 20 girls who comprise this year's first and second team have more talent than a Dalmatian has spots. They were singled out by the sports editors of The Milford Times, South Lyon Herald, Northville Record and Novi/ Walled Lake News.

The All-Area team's hottest hitter this season was also one of its youngest, Northville sophomore CHRIS McGOWAN. The Mustang catcher hit .580 this season (29 hits in 50 at bats). McGowan, called her team's "spark plug" by Coach Sue Heinzman, also had 19 walks, 10 RBI and stole 16 bases. She was named to the All-Western Lakes Activities Association first team this Three players on the 1984 edition of the All-Area team are repeat selections from last year's first-team unit.

South Lyon's CAROL BAAKI switched from catcher to first base for the 1984 campaign but that didn't slow her up one bit. The senior was hot at the plate all season, batting .489 with eight triples, four home runs and 27 runs batted in. She also scored 33 times for the Lions and stole 23 bases.

"There's not enough I could say about enthused South Lyon coach Jeff Gale. "She was really looked up to by our underclassmen."

DONNA GEMIGNANI is also a repeat selection to the All-Area first team. A first baseman, the Lakeland tri-captain batted .463 and scored 27 runs for the Kensington Valley Conference champion Eagles. Gemignani stole 12 bases, had 16 RBI, and a .993

GROSS. Long one of Western's finest athletes in softball, volleyball and basketball, the senior batted .373 and walked 15 times.

"Betty was in every game for us," Graves said. "She has such a strong arm it's unbelieveable."

Novi's KAREN BRADLEY batted .370 and had a .930 fielding percentage in the outfield for the Wildcats. Despite tough competition for All-Kensington Valley Conference post-season honors, the Wildcats' power-hitting mainstay was picked second-team All-KVC.

Two other players selected to the first team were responsible for putting out the fire of the opposition. When the hitters weren't doing the trick, it was time for these two pitchers to come to the Lakeland's third player selected to the first team, MO KAPANOWSKI was the pitcher of record in every one of the Eagles' games this season. The senior compiled a 17-7 record (12-2 in the KVC). Another All-KVC first-team selection, she had an earned run average of 2.1 with 65 strikeouts and only 47 walks.

"Mo's a very intelligent pitcher," stated Lakeland's Griffiths. "You need a pitcher that doesn't walk people. Mo really came through for us.

The first team's other pitcher is sophomore ANDREA KOZARIAN of South Lyon. The right-hander had a 12-8 record for the Lions and a 2.54 ERA.

"Towards the end of the season, she just got tougher and tougher," said Gale, Kozarian's coach. "She can look at a batter's weakness and then hit that spot again and again."

The All-Area second team burned just as hot as the first team this season. With the abundance of outstanding first baseman in the area, it is only fitting that we start the second team with another one, Walled Lake Western's VAL HALL. Best known for her basketball prowess, "Too-Tall Hall" batted

.442 and collected 17 walks while being an outstanding fielder.

Western has another player on the second squad in pitcher Kari Boardman. A senior, the right-hander had a 9-2 record, and sported a remarkable 7-0 (1.80) ERA record in WLAA play.

The second pitcher chosen to the second team is LISA PALKA of Novi. The senior had a 5-12 record, but always pitched under control. She struck out 28 hitters this season, and allowed just 23 walks for the rebuilding Wildcats.

Leading a strong contingent of outfielders on the second team is Whitmore Lake's DIANE DREFFS. The junior led her team with 19 runs, three home runs, and 16 RBI. She finished with a .308 batting average. Lakeland had another outstanding performer in the outfield in CHERYL SCHIHL. A center fielder, the senior batted .310 with 15 RBI and a .964 fielding percentage.

PAT WAZNY is the other outfielder on the second squad. The Northville senior batted .364 and was a team leader according to her coach, Sue Heinzman. She was named All-Western Division in the WLAA. The catcher on the second team is Milford's JULIE IRISH. A junior, Irish batted .303 with 15 RBI and had a strong arm behind the plate. JENNY KREUTZER is only a freshman, but the Walled Lake Central third baseman was selected for the All-Area second team because she batted .308 with 10 runs scored and eight RBI in her team's 13 WLAA games.

Another third baseman voted onto the second team infield is LYNN DUDLEY of Northville. Another All-Division pick for the Mustangs, the senior batted .333 with one home run, and led the Mustangs in RBI with 18.

South Lyon's LINDA GARRETT scored 24 times for the Lions this season. A senior, Garrett also had 11 RBI and stole 16 bases.

Blue sweeps two

It was two for the Blue, as Northville's Mickey Mantle League Blue team took games last week against Dearborn Heights and North Farmington.

Chris Willerer pitched a two-hitter and struck out 15 to lead Northville's Blue Mickey Mantle team to a 7-1 victory over Dearborn Heights on Thursday. Mark Olsen's two hits led a balanced offense, capped by a four-run fifth inning that blew the game open. Brett Loomis' two-run single was the big blow

In Northville's 5-4 win over North Farmington Scott Peterson socked a three-run homer and Rob Cannon picked up two hits and an RBI to provide the winning margin for starter Chris Dominique.

Dominique battled Saturday's torrid temperatures for six innings, allowing six hits and striking out seven. Reliver Brett Loomis got the save with a seventh-inning appearance.

Blue is scheduled to play at Redford tomorrow, and will return home for a 2 p.m. game against Union Lake at Northville High School on Sunday.

Boys 9th at league track meet

The Northville varsity boys' track team capped its season May 30 with a ninth-place showing at the Western Lakes Activities Association Track Meet.

The Mustangs picked up only one place at the meet, although a couple of tough breaks kept them from scoring more. The 440 relay team of Tom Broderick, Tim Millen, John Briningstool and Joel Vogt surprised many by turning in a 47.9

to take sixth place at the meet. Vogt, not expected to compete because of a painful ankle injury, turned in a gutsy showing to bolster the team's finish.

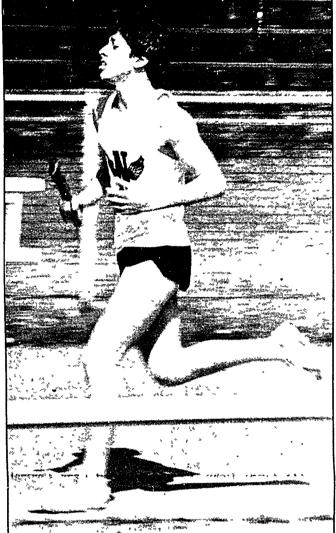

Although Northville's two-mile relay team posted a good time of 8:27.9, that was just six seconds from placing. Brett Netke, John Klokkenga, Jeff Harp and Irven Meadows all turned in splits under 2:08 in the event.

Klokkenga was a near-miss in the 120 high hurdles. His 15.9 in semis was better than some times that eventually placed, but he needed to finish third in his heat to get to the finals - he was

Alan Griffith, like sister Ann at the women's meet, turned a few heads in distance events. The junior clocked a personal-best 10:26.3 to take seventh — he was about six seconds off the sixthplace pace.

Underclassmen Irven Meadows and Jeff Harp finished ninth and tenth in the event.

At the team's awards banquet Monday of last week, the following awards were given: Team MVP — Briningstool; Most Improved — Harp; Most Points — Vogt; Best Attendance Record — Netke: and Scholar-Athlete -Scott Lazzara.
