Launch opens school year for St. Paul's

St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran School began its new school year Monday — festively and with a message. At 11 a.m., just before the end of the half-day session, students celebrated opening day with a balloon launch outside the building at 210 Elm.

Wayne Loontjer, who has assumed the principal's duties, explained that students were participating in "the great commitment" as part of the Year of the Christian Teacher being celebrated in all Lutheran schools.

Tags were attached to the balloons bearing the Scripture from Matthew 28: verse 19, "Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

Loontjer said there is an award program to aid in getting the messages returned to the school with prizes for the one going the greatest distance and for the first returned.

Loontjer, who is beginning his 16th year with the Northville Lutheran school, was tapped as principal when Kenneth Lehl and his wife Christine moved to Chicago last June. Mrs. Lehl had been preschool director at St. Paul's.

Loontjer had been serving as assistant principal and athletic director while also teaching sixth grade. He is a 1969 graduate of Concordia College in Seward, Nebraska.

New preschool director is Beverly Schultz who expects to receive her master's degree in preschool education from Eastern Michigan University next winter.

Denise Noffse, who teaches eighth grade, is assuming the athletic director's responsibilities.

Hilary Dundek, who has been on leave from St. Paul's for two years, is returning to teach third grade, Loontjer said.

This fall, he announced, St. Paul's will be offering computer classes in grades six, seven and eight and a computer lab for kindergarten through fifth grades. Staff computer coordinator is Robert Kuebls.

Doors open Tuesday for new school year

Summer vacation will come to a close for Northville students after the Labor Day holiday as they head back to the classroom next Tuesday.

The official opening of the 1984-85 school year is expected to go smoothly with maintenance work near completion on all facilities.

Assistant Superintendent Burton Knighton reported to the board of education Monday night that the custodial staff has done "an outstanding job" in preparing buildings for the start of the new year.

He noted that the district's custodial staff was assisted by Michigan Youth Corps workers who helped with both inside and on grounds' work.

"The grounds are in as good a condition as can be expected due to the drought," Knighton noted.

Work on the construction of new foundations and footings for the high school also is under way, and Knighton told the board a construction fence will be installed around the area before the start of school.

He also noted that construction on the high school pool has been completed and that it will be ready for use tomorrow.

Nancy Soper, assistant superintendent for instructional services, said losses and gains in enrollment are balancing out for the new school year in all seven of the district's buildings.

However, she noted kindergarten enrollment at Moraine was up "quite a bit from last year" with first grade enrollment lower than projected. To handle the enrollment fluctuation at Moraine, staff created a kindergarten/first grade split.

Due to an increase in kindergarten enrollment at Silver Springs, an additional half day session will be offered for kindergartners this fall.

Soper said staff members will meet at 8:15 a.m. tomorrow at the high school for a general district-wide meeting. New teachers to the district include Carol Schloner, who will be teaching elementary art, and Carol Brockhouse, the new elementary physical education teacher. Both appointments were approved by the board of education Monday night.

Knighton told the board that staff members finished screening applicants Monday for the administrative assistant for curriculum post vacated by Barbara Campbell.

Scarr, former Silver Springs Elementary School principal and director of curriculum during the 1983-84 school year, left the district to take the principal's post at Maple Elementary School in Walled Lake.

In addition to the central office post, the district also will be seeking applicants for the assistant high school principal post vacated by Barbara Campbell.

Campbell, who has been assistant principal at Northville High School for more than a decade, was offered the principal's post at Riverview High School Monday night.

School Superintendent George Bell said the district will be posting the position today and hopes to fill it as soon as possible.

The PTA/PTSA Community Handbook and junior and senior high student handbooks are expected to be available this week.

Campbell leaves NHS

Northville High School Assistant Principal Barbara Campbell has ended her more than 10-year tenure in the district to accept the principal's post at Riverview High School.

BARBARA CAMPBELL

The appointment was approved by the Riverview Board of Education Monday night.

School Superintendent George Bell said Campbell will be leaving the district this week. He noted that the job vacancy at the high school will be posted today.

Campbell was hired to the newly-created post of high school assistant principal on September 6, 1973 by former superintendent Raymond Spear at a salary of $18,000.

She came to the Northville school district from Detroit Kettering High School where she was a counselor. Prior to that time she was a teacher for nine years.

A graduate of Wayne State University, Campbell received a BA in English and Speech in 1963 and an MA in guidance and counseling.

She received her specialist degree from Wayne during her tenure in Northville.

Board okays price hike

To offset expected cost increases in this year's cafeteria budget, the Northville Board of Education last Monday approved a five cent increase in elementary lunches.

The five cent increase will bring the cost of elementary lunches to $1.25 per lunch. The price of a weekly lunch ticket will remain at $6 ($1.20 per lunch).

According to John Street, director of business and finance, the incremental increase will help balance the cafeteria fund for the upcoming school year.

"It looks like this year the fund will make $30,000," Street told the board, noting that this year's gain should offset last year's $25,000 loss.

He also noted that milk sales "are about double this year."

Township clerk shares GOP convention notes

By KEVIN WILSON

Take it from a political junkie who, after years of rapt attention to TV coverage, just attended her first one:

"You don't get the real sense of the convention on television. Unless you're there on the floor, you don't feel the excitement and the energy."

Township clerk Susan Heintz just returned from Dallas where she was an alternate delegate to the Republican National Convention last week. She was having a hard time getting any work done Monday for all the well-wishers telling her they saw her on TV or the photograph of her in the newspaper.

That photo by the Associated Press and published in both the Detroit Free Press and News, USA Today and the Ann Arbor News led to one of Heintz's convention highlights — former Michigan Governor William Milliken approached her to congratulate her on the photo, which showed the clerk reading the party platform.

For a moderate Republican like Heintz, having Milliken notice you is something akin to nirvana and likely enough to make one forget that the platform was hardly the stuff of dreams for moderates. The conservative wing of the party dominated the platform committee and the convention as a whole, but Heintz, alternate to 2nd Congressional District delegate Mike Legg of Livonia, found it plenty rewarding anyway.

"There's plenty of room in the Republican party for a lot of diversity of opinion," Heintz explains. "Look at the Democrats, they've had an incredible mix of ideas for years and years. We should be able to handle a range of viewpoints."

She notes that a Market Opinion Research speaker before the Michigan caucus suggested that political philosophies run in cycles of 30 to 50 years. "His opinion is that we are beginning a new era of political philosophy, moving away from ideas established in the 1930s. We're going to government as protector and away from government as provider," she said.

"And that explains why the people on the platform committee were so adamant about not making compromises — they believe they're setting the political agenda for the next 50 years."

That theme emerged throughout the convention, as one speaker after another touted the GOP as "the party of the future" and suggested that dissatisfied Democrats will soon join the Republican ranks in large numbers.

The latter point was given a boost on the very first night of the convention when conservative Democrat Jeanne Kirkpatrick, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, was a featured speaker.

"Jeanne Kirkpatrick came over very well," Heintz says. "Hers was probably one of the best speeches of the week." The ambassador slammed what she depicted as a Democratic foreign policy

Charley's makes it 'None for the Road' for Labor Day holiday

We're near the State Police post — and I don't want our customers to be in trouble."

This is one of the reasons Debbie Nelson, dining room manager at Northville Charley's, 41122 Seven Mile in Northville Township, gives for the restaurant's None for the Road promotion she conceived and began a few weeks ago.

"It's going good, real good," she reports, adding that she hopes it will be in full swing for the upcoming Labor Day holiday weekend.

Nelson explains that when a group comes into the restaurant, if one member is willing to become the "designated driver," he or she is given a specially designed button "to proudly wear and any and all the non-alcoholic drinks the driver wishes are on the house."

The button has a picture of a cocktail glass with a "forbidden" red line through it.

Debbie Nelson doesn't take credit for the idea, which, she said had been described to her by someone who knew of it in Colorado. But she can take credit for instituting it in Northville and for its being adopted at Fairlane Charley's.

Furthermore, she personally assembles the buttons each night at her apartment in Swan Harbor.

"I'm developing muscles," she laughs as she tells how she cranks out about 20 a night on a hand press with the aid of a friend, John Lenere, who manages the Fairlane Charley's restaurant and has instituted the None for the Road program there.

Customers are made aware of the None for the Road offer by bright yellow notices placed on the tables that bear the bar-lined cocktail glass and explain that upon request the designated driver will be Northville Charley's guest for all non-alcoholic beverages.

This weekend, she hopes the number of participants will increase — with the None for the Road offer helping provide a safe holiday for Charley's customers.

Doors open Tuesday for students at OLV

The 287 students enrolled at Our Lady of Victory Catholic School in grades 1-8 will be opening books and getting acquainted with new computers next week.

Principal Charlene Thompson reported that a full day of classes is scheduled Tuesday for students in grades 2-8 at the school located at 133 Orchard. The OLV students are returning the same day as students in the Northville public schools.

First graders, however, will begin classes in a half-day session Thursday. Parents are invited to attend this orientation day with their children.

Four micro-computers and two large ones have been added this fall, the principal said, with computer instruction being taught in all grades, beginning with first.

New principal at St. Paul's

Classes through eighth grades began Monday with preschool classes to start today. For four year olds the school offers a Monday, Wednesday, Friday program with half-day sessions in both the morning and afternoon. Kindergarten is offered three full days a week. Loontjer said that preschool for three year olds was dropped with the Lehl's leaving but that it is expected to be reinstated. He suggested that interested parents put their children's names on a list at the school.

The school currently has an enrollment of 180 students in preschool through eighth grade. Loontjer said there are some openings in each grade.

She also announced that this fall foreign language (French) is being expanded to fifth and sixth grades. It previously was taught in seventh and eighth grades only.

The curriculum specialist program, tailored to individual needs, also is being expanded this fall, she said.

"Our entire teaching staff is returning, giving continuity to our programs," Principal Thompson noted.

She said the enrollment of 287 filled all classes and that there is a waiting list of between 50-80 per grade. She encouraged parents to place their children's names on the list, however, explaining that the community's population has proved to be "very transient" and that there usually are class vacancies occurring during the school year.

William Allan boasts new library facility

With less than a week before the start of the new school year, staff members at William Allan Academy are readying for the arrival of its Kindergarten through sixth grade students.

Academy Director Valerie Hambleton said a new offering at the school this year will be a working library made possible through the fundraising efforts of the academy's parent group.

Hambleton said plans already are under way to open the library on a daily basis.

An official library opening and dedication is planned for 8 p.m. September 27 during the school's annual open house which will be held from 7-9 p.m.

In addition to the school's regular program which is patterned after the European style of teaching and includes reading, writing, math, social studies, music, art, gym, Spanish, computer science and science, Hambleton said the emphasis this fall is on ecology.

She noted that students will be studying animals, animal communities, oceans and ocean life and regional contrasts in terrain as part of their ecology unit. Field trips will include trips to the Detroit Zoo, Belle Isle Aquarium, the Cranbrook Institute of Science and Kensington Park.

According to Hambleton, other fall units will include a study of Indians by first and second grade classes, a global study of countries, continents and their locations by third and fourth grade classes and a study of health and first aid by fifth and sixth graders.

She also noted that the school will continue with its "Reading Olympics" program started last year.

William Allan Academy enrolls approximately 100 students with 75-80 percent coming from the Northville area.

Persons requesting further information should call 349-1830 or 349-5020.

Flea markets canceled

Due to lack of response, the outdoor flea markets held twice monthly on Saturdays at Northville Downs parking lot under sponsorship of the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce have been canceled for the rest of the season.

The action was taken by the chamber board unanimously at its meeting last Thursday. Members noted that an outdoor market, originally scheduled for last Saturday, would have conflicted with the duck festival the chamber was sponsoring at the community building.

A review of the previous markets showed a lack of dealers and led to cancellation of all remaining ones.

In other action at the meeting the board voted to send a donation in memory of Walter Ellis in recognition of his many volunteer services to the chamber.

Dallas: 'one neat city'

There's more to attending a national party convention, of course, than the main business at hand on the floor. To those whose interests aren't directed to politics, in fact, some of the other things Susan Heintz saw during her week in Dallas may be more interesting.

"Dallas is one neat city," she reports. "Everything is new and shiny, there's construction going on everywhere, and it's so clean."

Government in Texas' premier city is also much more along the lines of Republican philosophy than was the case at the 1980 convention in Detroit, she adds.

"They have a really excellent system," she says. "They're not dependent on the federal government so much as we are in the Detroit area. For instance, you know about how Detroit is going about building the people-mover with federal grants."

"Well, in Dallas they decided they wanted a rapid transit system, too," Heintz continues. "But instead of going to the government and asking for money, they had a referendum vote and they're building it themselves. They're accepting nothing from the government."

The downside of Dallas is one familiar to anyone who paid attention to the media coverage last week — it's hot. Temperatures were in the neighborhood of 100 to 110 degrees all week long.

"Everything is air-conditioned, it has to be," Heintz notes. "The day it reached 110 was the day the 2nd District delegation decided to go to the Book Depository building."

The visit to the building from which Lee Harvey Oswald fired the shots that killed President John F. Kennedy — now used a memorial — "really affected me," Heintz says. "I didn't think it would. You know they still keep that window open? We ended up standing there and talking to the museum people for more than an hour."

"Seeing it and seeing where it happened and everything really makes you wonder how it happened," she says.

GOP convention notes

of weakness and supported Republican emphasis on a strong defense.

"We had a big demonstration for her in the Michigan delegation," Heintz explains. "The Michigan delegation sent in the request that she be invited as a speaker and we went all out to welcome her." Heintz carried a sign that said "Jeanne is Keen" during the well-orchestrated "spontaneous" demonstration.

Another speaker who impressed the Michigan delegation and inspired a large demonstration was a more predictable one. Former President Gerald Ford, Michigan native and former Grand Rapids congressman, delivered what Heintz considers the best speech of his career.

"I've never seen him so good," she says. "Even when he was president, I don't think he ever spoke so well. Everyone in the delegation was talking about it."

Other highlights of Heintz's adventure included meeting Mary S. Coleman, former Michigan Supreme Court justice. "Now she can participate in the party and go to conventions — when she was a justice it was too political, it wouldn't have looked right." The clerk, and unopposed candidate for supervisor this fall, also had a reunion with Philip Ruppe. Heintz worked on Ruppe's campaign two years ago when he ran unsuccessfully for U.S. Senate.

Her role at the convention as an alternate meant Heintz cast votes only on minor items like committee reports, but she reported that Legg was very accommodating in giving up his seat on the main floor when Heintz was particularly interested in a speaker or issue.

The weeklong stay in Dallas generated a lot of memories for Heintz, likely summed up in her typical enthusiastic fashion when she says, "It was just so much fun."

Going in

Construction workers install sewer pipe near Hines Drive and Northville Road Monday as part of the North Arm Relief project. At right in white shirt is contractor Richard Mancini with superintendent Al Pung supervising the scene. The relief sewer is the one portion of what was formerly known as the "super sewer" project north of Van Buren Township to receive funding for this year. Once operating, the new sewer will solve a capacity shortage in the present main interceptor between Seven Mile Road at the city limit and Wilcox Road in Plymouth. Communities between Canton and Commerce Townships, including Northville, Plymouth and Novi, recently signed a contract that they hope will provide federal funding for sewer improvements between Wilcox and the Detroit sewage treatment plant. Approval of the contract before the August 17 deadline makes the larger project eligible for 75 percent federal payment rather than the 55 percent available after that date. ## Mahler gets Alaska post Howard "Eugene" Mahler, a member of the Northville Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, has been appointed Chief of Police in Fairbanks, Alaska. Mahler, 45, assumed his new post August 1.

Mahler retired from the U.S. Army with the rank of Major after 20 years' military service, including stints in Vietnam between 1966-70 and in Korea and Germany.

His father, the late William J. Mahler, had been a member of the Northville VFW, and his brother James, his mother Mrs. Allana McCollum and his stepfather Everett McCollum all currently are members of the post.

Fowl festival

An all-day crowd of wildlife fanciers and local residents viewed Northville's first Duck Festival at the community building Saturday. Above, Prudy Vannier with children Chris, 9, Ryan and Jaime, both 10, examine colorful decoys. In addition to displays of wildlife art and decoys, the event sponsored by the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce featured buffalo sandwiches and farci of duck from MacKinnon's and beer and wine from the Party Store under the direction of Mike Zuby. Kay Keegan, executive director of the chamber, said the chamber plans to make the festival an annual one with more artists and carvers next year. During the festival the Northville Community Band presented an outdoor afternoon concert. Record photo by Steve Fecht.

Longtime local residents die

JOHN I. LITSENBERGER

John I. Litsenberger, who moved to Northville as a youngster in 1911 and later served as Northville Township clerk and as treasurer of Northville Village, died August 26 at Annapolis Hospital at the age of 80.

Funeral service will be held at 8 p.m. today at Ross B. Northrop and Son Funeral Home with Northville Lodge No. 186, F&AM officiating. Mr. Litsenberger was past master of the lodge and a life member and past high priest of Union Chapter No. 55 Royal Arch Masons and a life member and past patron of Orient Chapter No. 77 OES.

Mr. Litsenberger was born September 3, 1903, in Fennville, Michigan, to Sidney and Carrie (Parker) Litsenberger. He married his wife Iris in 1927. She died in 1977.

A 1921 graduate of Northville High School, Mr. Litsenberger at one time was owner-operator of a service station. After many years as cashier at Northville Downs, Hazel Park and Wolverine raceways, he retired in 1973.

He leaves daughters Mrs. Harold (Joan) Dayton of South Lyon and Mrs. Robert (Mary Lou) Barry of Ann Arbor, sisters Virginia Smith and Catherine Sibley, both of Northville, a brother Joe in Arizona, six grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

IRENE ELIZABETH EBERT

A memorial service for Irene Elizabeth Ebert of 401 High Street was held at 1 p.m. Monday at St. John's Episcopal Church in Plymouth where she was a member. The Reverend Robert S. Shank Jr. officiated.

An area resident for 37 years, Mrs. Ebert died August 24 at Northwest Grace Hospital after a long illness. She was 76.

A retired clerk for Manufacturers National Bank of Northville, she had been an active community resident. She was a life member of Northville Mothers' Club and a member of Mizpah Circle of King's Daughters and Sons.

She was born June 9, 1908, in Michigan to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kerr. Her mother's maiden name was Campbell. She was preceded in death by her husband Ernest W. Ebert Jr. in 1980.

She was the mother of Mary Howe of Alma, Robert L. of Walled Lake and the late Ernest W. of Rhode Island. She also was the sister of Earl Kerr of Port Huron and the grandmother of six.

The family suggests that memorial tributes may be made to her church. Funeral arrangements were by Ross B. Northrop and Son Funeral Home in Northville.

GRADA A. BULTEN

Funeral service for Grada Antonia Bulten, 94, was held at 11 a.m. Saturday at First Baptist Church of Northville where she had been an active member. Dr. James H. Luther officiated.

Miss Bulten, who had been ill for three years, died August 22 at Hendry Convalescent Home in Plymouth.

A resident of the community since 1945, Miss Bulten until her recent illness had remained active and had maintained her own home. When she became 90, Mayor Paul Vernon proclaimed October 3, 1979, Grada Bulten Day in her honor.

She was born on that date in 1889 in Overisel in the Netherlands to Girrat and Wilhelmina (Bilderbeek) Bulten.

After coming to the United States with a family from the Netherlands, she had worked at Grace Hospital in Detroit and at Maybury Sanatorium in Northville.

Miss Bulten, who never married, had no survivors.

Memorial tributes are suggested to her church.

Funeral arrangements and visitation were at Casterline Funeral Home. Burial was in Rural Hill Cemetery.

She was born August 31, 1918, in Northville to William J. and Edith (Gale) Elkington and married John F. Stubenvoll August 17, 1946.

In addition to her husband she leaves two daughters Jane Stubenvoll of Grand Rapids and Mrs. Kyle Redente in Colorado, a sister Mary Elizabeth Eichen in Florida and one granddaughter Elizabeth.

The Reverend William Frayer of First United Methodist Church of Northville is officiating at the service. Mrs. Stubenvoll was a member of First United Methodist Church here. Burial is to be in Rural Hill Cemetery.

The family suggests that memorial tributes may be made to First United Methodist Church or to the American Diabetes Association.

WALTER C. ARMSTRONG

A memorial service for Walter C. Armstrong, 27, will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday at St. John's Episcopal Church in Plymouth where he was a member. The Reverend Father Robert S. Shank Jr. is to officiate.

Police Blotters

Saturday night UFO report enlivens trooper's shift

From State Police...

Police often receive strange reports, particularly on Saturday nights, so it was a skeptical state trooper who went to investigate a report August 24 that "something fell from the sky" in downtown Northville.

The story was told by a passing motorist at about 9 p.m., according to the report. The trooper was busy at a traffic stop, but upon clearing that scene went immediately to Center and Seven Mile, where the motorist said he had seen something attached to a parachute land in the Northville Downs parking lot.

And sure enough, there was something there and it had fallen from the sky. What the motorist had mistaken for a parachute in the waning twilight was actually the remains of a helium balloon, police found. Attached to the deflated balloon was a white box bearing the seal of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

A note on the box explained that it contained a National Weather Service radiosonde launched in Flint that morning to take readings in the upper atmosphere. It also asked anyone finding the device to mail it, using the enclosed postage-paid package, to a Kansas City, Missouri, rehabilitation station.

Which is just what the trooper did, almost certainly pleased that a report of things falling from the sky was more than another wild goose chase.

State troopers issued four citations August 22 of a type of increasing concern to area police agencies — trespassing on state property.

The four persons ticketed were occupants of a Jeep police spotted as it entered the open gates at the Wayne County Youth Home soccer field. The vehicle was driven across the field and was crossing onto land on the north, currently used as a senior citizens' garden plot, when police stopped the 23-year-old Dearborn Heights resident driver.

The gates are posted "No Trespassing," but police often find evidence of persons entering the abandoned state facility and the adjacent Wayne County Child Development Center properties. With Plymouth Center for Human Development (across Sheldon from the property involved in the most recent trespassing case) shut down, there is yet another area to patrol. Security staff from Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital are currently assigned duties at Plymouth Center as well, since the land is still under the ownership of the state department of mental health.

...In the City...

An 18-year-old Northville woman and three of her friends were threatened — and one was assaulted — shortly after midnight Sunday in an incident that left her with $200 damage to her car.

According to a city police report, Kim Campbell was driving on southbound Main Street at 12:20 a.m. Sunday when a red Ford Granada passed her and cut in front of her near Seven Mile Road. Passengers in the Ford, by her account, began throwing the contents of beer bottles onto her windshield and finally one threw his bottle at her car, putting a crack in the windshield.

When she drove around their car to evade them they followed her into the Highland Lakes shopping center, where three of her acquaintances driving another car just in front of her were headed.

When she stopped her car in the shopping center parking lot, she said the three men got out of the Ford and approached her car while shouting at her abusively. But Campbell's friends — Phillip Prystash, Michael Shalski and Andrew Cocagne — got out of Shalski's car to protect her, she reported.

According to reports filed by Campbell and friends, two of the men retrieved baseball bats and forced Prystash, Shalski and Cocagne back into their car. Prystash was kicked twice while retreating back to the car.

The assailant and his companions got back inside the Ford and drove off, and Shalski obtained their license plate number as they departed. Campbell, Prystash, Shalski and Cocagne then drove to the Northville City Police Station to report the incident.

The incident is under investigation by township police, who have jurisdiction for the assault, and by city police, who have jurisdiction for the damage to Campbell's car.

...In the Township

Items valued at an estimated $3,100 were stolen from a Six Mile residence sometime between 10:55 and 11:55 a.m. August 22, township police report.

The complainant told police that unknown suspects pried open the front door to gain entrance to the residence. He further stated that his wife was sleeping in a bedroom on the east side of the home at the time the incident occurred.

Thieves stole items valued at an estimated $650 from the garage of a Maplebrook residence sometime between 7 p.m. August 3 and 8 p.m. August 18, police report.

Township police are investigating the suicide of a 27-year-old Steepleview resident who was found Sunday in the garage of his home.

According to police, Walter C. Armstrong died from asphyxiation from motor vehicle exhaust.

Police Captain Philip Presnell said township police were notified by a neighbor who found the victim in the garage.

Our Opinions

Reconsideration a good idea

Some city council members evidently have allowed their personal feelings regarding the consumption of alcohol and the presence of bars in this community to cloud their better judgment or create blind spots in their vision regarding the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce's recent request to use a city park.

Council rejected the chamber's request for reasons we find inconsistent with routine city practice. Ostensibly, the rejection was based on two concerns. One was that the event, a get-together barbecue for community figures, would allow the consumption of alcohol in a city park and create liability problems for the city. The second was that controlling the alcohol consumption would require fencing off the park, thereby depriving other citizens from access to it.

This sounds reasonable on its surface. But let's take a closer look at what was actually involved. Firstly, the park in question is a small area next door to Getzie's Pub — while an attractive element of the downtown landscape, it is hardly a major recreational facility nor would its closing on a Wednesday evening really deprive anyone of something not available across the street or down the block. Secondly, restricting access to city facilities is not unheard of — events at Ford Field or the Mill Race, for instance, are sometimes limited to those who belong to a group or purchase tickets. Access to and use of the community center building is often restricted to private groups or those who pay for the privilege.

As for the more serious concern regarding the consumption of alcohol on public property, there is ample precedent to suggest it should pose few problems. Drinking is occasionally permitted at the community center (most recently last weekend at the duck festival) and special arrangements have been made for other community organizations such as the Jaycees at other public venues. The chamber proposed similar procedures — acquisition of one-day permit from the liquor control commission, approval by the police department, an assurance that participants would be well-informed about their responsibility to limit drinking to a restricted area and obtaining special liability insurance.

The chamber proposal restricted access to those who purchased tickets in advance — no sales at the door and the next best thing to a by-invitation-only guest list. The kind of remarks made by council members regarding the supposed dangers of this party — destructive behavior that might damage plants, for instance, and the potential for people handing drinks over the fence to minors — are an insult to the character of the chamber, its members and those who would gather with them. The proposal was hardly for a large scale drinking spree but rather for a simple cocktail party of the sort conducted responsibly on what is virtually a daily basis all over this community.

What is different about the chamber's proposal is only that it would use a downtown "park" rather than an outlying facility and that it would be conducted in affiliation with a bar. We can understand why that combination might offend some council members' sensibilities more than do similar activities at the Mill Race or community building, but they are not substantive differences that warrant rejection of the chamber's request.

Those who led the argument against the chamber request — council member Burton DeRusha and Mayor Paul Vernon — will likely respond that they are being consistent with council's recent vote against Northville Charley's request to use city streets for a repeat of last year's Gastronomic Gallop contest. We agree that council has every right to reject such requests, particularly when presented with evidence that there were problems in the past. But this is not the case with the chamber. Comparing a situation where some people violated city ordinances and drank openly on the streets during an event not licensed for the practice to the chamber's proposal is unfair in the extreme. It paints with a broad brush anyone whose beliefs regarding the consumption of alcohol do not coincide with one's own.

We think the vote against the chamber's request was made with good intentions, but suggest that some members' antipathy toward alcohol consumption combined with genuine concern for the uses of downtown property led them to take arguments against the proposal much more seriously than was warranted. For that reason alone, we would like to see council reconsider the suggestion for what appears a worthwhile community activity.

Paul Simon an oldie? Say it ain't so!

I had one of those "You know you're not as young as you used to be when..." evenings a couple weeks ago. A few friends and I decided at the last minute to drive out to Pine Knob to see the Paul Simon concert. We used to do such spontaneous things a lot more than we do now.

We were a little surprised to learn there were still tickets available when we called in. At my urging, we flew out as fast as we could to ensure snagging a vacant space on the lawn. About the time we parked the car maybe two rows from the entrance, I began to wonder whether we had the right night. When I walked to the ticket window without waiting in line, I felt even more odd.

We walked in and stretched out on the lawn. About 15 minutes after the show was scheduled to start (something about musicians seems to make them compulsively unpunctual) the Pine Knob ushers said, "Come on down," meaning all of us on the lawn were welcome to sit as close as halfway to the stage in the pavilion.

The pavilion filled up two-thirds of the way back, and that was it. I considered plenty of plausible explanations for the paucity of concertgoers. There were no advance full-page ads showing Paul Simon's rippling chest muscles as there had been for Julio Iglesias. Tito Jackson and his brothers were playing the Silverdome the next night. Maybe everyone going to that show didn't have the money to go to another concert for a couple years.

As a special exclusive to readers of The Northville Record, I'll provide a mini-review of the show. You certainly didn't read about it anywhere else.

The diminutive native New Yorker walked onstage in a Detroit Tigers cap and blue jeans. Neil Diamond and the Jacksons must've snatched up all the sequin outfits in town.

Simon's light show consisted of a white spotlight that stayed on him. His flashy stage moves consisted of playing the guitar either standing up or sitting down. Between songs, he'd talk amiably and self-mockingly — he indulged none of the vanity due him for his considerable contributions to popular American music.

There was just his guitar and that reedy, intimate voice of his, so familiar from the string of hits he'd written over the years and performed modestly that night: Me And Julio Down By The Schoolyard, Kodachrome, Mother and Child Reunion, The Boxer, Still Crazy After All These Years, Bridge Over Troubled Water, Duncan... He showcased some new songs that equalled the quality of his classics, and he sang a few of my favorite obscure old ones.

He good-naturedly performed the song America so the crowd could go crazy when he sings that line: "Michigan seems like a dream to me now/It took me four days to hitchhike from Saginaw..."

A wonderful concert, what can I say? But I felt a bit like someone 10 years older than I must have felt showing up at a Tony Bennett concert around 1974: "Hey, where is everybody? Don't they know this guy is a living legend?"

You can imagine how strange I thought it was when I read in the paper a few days later Neil Diamond fans were complaining there was no room for them on the lawn at his Pine Knob concert.

To prove to myself I wasn't such an old-timer I went to see the Elvis Costello concert last Friday at Meadowbrook. But this weekend's the one I've been waiting for. Joe Cool is ready to head downtown to take in the Montreux-Detroit Jazz Festival. I hope to catch the legendary Modern Jazz Quartet. They've been playing together nearly 30 years, and may be the world's most respected small musical ensemble.

They haven't topped the charts lately, however. So when I thought about rushing down and buying tickets to make sure I'd be able to see them, something told me not to worry — there'd be a few seats available.

Call it a hunch.

PHILIP JEROME

"The woman obviously had had too much to drink," she said as we left the restaurant. She said it matter-of-factly, as if she really didn't care.

"I don't understand why you're so upset," I responded coolly. "The pretty blonde lady thought I looked a little like John DeLorean and was kind enough to come over and say so."

"It was a natural mistake. After all, the man's roots are in Michigan. It's only natural that people wouldn't be surprised to see him in a local restaurant."

"But she said she thought you were John DeLorean," she said. "That doesn't make any sense. You look as much like John DeLorean as I look like Farrah Fawcett."

"I know you may not be able to see it, but there is a certain similarity between Old John and myself," I said, tilting the rearview mirror to check out the resemblance.

"Tall. Salt-and-pepper hair. Sort of distinguished looking. When you stop to think about it, John DeLorean and I have a lot in common, physically."

"Dream on, Duke Bullet," she said, finally letting a little irritation slip out. "The only similarity is you both have grey hair. You look as much like John DeLorean as I look like Cheryl Ladd."

"Ahh, my angel. That's it. I think you've hit on what made the woman think for a fleeting moment I might be John DeLorean."

"Admittedly, you look nothing like Farrah Fawcett or Cheryl Ladd. But there is a striking similarity between yourself and Christine Ferrare."

"The poor woman probably glanced at our table, saw a man with grey hair sitting with Christine Ferrare and only naturally assumed it must be John DeLorean. It's the only logical explanation."

She brightened suddenly. "You really think so?"

"No doubt in my mind," I replied.

"Yes, I think I can see it now," she said, peering into the rearview mirror. "Your know what?" she asked finally. "If I squint my eyes just a bit, I can see where she'd think you might be John DeLorean."

Fix-up efforts dragging, says neighbor

To the Editor:

As a home owner on High Street, I and several other home owners attended the zoning board meetings this past winter to consider the expansion of the bump shop business at High and Main streets, across from city hall. We objected to the expansion of commercial use of the property by the bump shop for a paint shop.

The property is directly across from the city hall and adjacent to residential property in the historic section. It had been used as a laundromat. The board allowed the bump shop expansion but accepted a landscape drawing to shield the residents from the added commercial use.

When the zoning board presented the recommendation for the expanded commercial use to the city council, the landscape drawings were again shown with a promise to implement them this season. The same group of citizens objected to the expansion but were voted down again.

Armed with the promise of the landscape plan, the homeowners went home to wait. When Mr. Miller, proprietor of the bump shop, had not begun any landscaping by June, I was asked to visit the city manager's office. Together Mr.

Walters and I looked up the meetings' actions through their minutes, and Mr. Walters offered to write a letter to Mr. Miller, and to send me a copy.

You can imagine the dismay of the neighbors when no letter arrived and the Northville City sweeper was observed sweeping Mr. Miller's property. A second visit was made to the city manager, and I was advised that no letter was necessary as Mr. Miller had phoned the next day and was reminded of his landscaping pledge. As for the sweeper's use, Mr. Walters was surprised.

All summer many volunteers planted, weeded and watered the beautiful flowers throughout the city, while right across the street from the city hall, the promised landscape was ignored.

We homeowners on High and Dunlap streets have tried the regular channels to correct this eyesore and blatant disregard of the city council's orders. We are grateful to The Northville Record for its letters to the editor column when citizens can no longer fight city hall alone.

Respectfully offered,
Patricia T. Delany

Team backers thanked

To the Editor:

This summer, 18 women from Northville and Livonia have represented Northville in the Great Lakes Women's Soccer League. The Northville Angels have competed against teams from Birmingham, Livonia, Ann Arbor and Rochester. The team has three games remaining, and, although their record doesn't reflect it, the team has played some outstanding games this season.

Several standouts from this year's state championship team and several former Northville players were on the team, including Julie Anger, Julie Nowka and Marge Muller. Women from Mercy High School and Livonia also contributed to the team's success.

Coaches Doug Lyon, Jim Nowka and Travis Nixon would like to express their gratitude to all the area businesses which helped the team's success.

Several Northville businesses contributed money to help defray the cost of uniforms, balls, referees and travel. In particular, the coaches wished to recognize Genitti's Hole in the Wall, Marquis Theatre, C. Harold Bloom Agency, Cindy's Coney Island, Pizza Saloon, Schrader's Home Furnishings, Casterline Funeral Home, Town and Country Cyclery, Phil's 76 Service, Cal's Sunoco, Northville Camera and Hobby Shop, Northville Locksmith, Northville Travel and Les Bowden and Associates.

Without their help, this season would have never been.

Thanks Again,
The Northville Angels

Millage stories praised

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission, we wish to extend a most grateful thank you for your news coverage of the parks millage renewal.

Although the voter turnout was low and the approval margin of 53 percent was close, we believe the people of Oakland County have shown their approval and support of the parks system.

We wish to thank you for your special efforts and the ongoing editorial coverage your newspaper has given the Oakland County Parks.

Sincerely,
Lewis E. Wint,
Chairman,

Report answers North Central concerns

In accordance with provisions established after its March, 1981, North Central accreditation visit, Schoolcraft College officials have put together a 230-page progress report addressing concerns raised by the visitation team three years ago.

In presenting the report to the board of trustees at its meeting Wednesday, Louis Reibling, Schoolcraft's dean of instruction, told the board that in order to address the concerns raised by the North Central team, staff members working on the progress report needed to "put down their findings in a formalized fashion."

Noting that the report contained "a lot of documentation," Reibling said the committee working on the report was "told by North Central to list concerns and what the college has done about them."

In addition, Reibling said the committee "decided to have each concern responded to by area vice presidents."

During its 1981 visit, the North Central team raised 33 areas of concern covering all aspects of the college's operations — from specific academic programs to the school's mission.

Reibling noted that at the time of the accreditation visit, college officials felt that a number of the concerns were raised by the North Central team because of a lack of sufficient information.

As a result, Schoolcraft appealed its initial seven-year accreditation by responding to 11 of the initial 33 concerns.

North Central accepted Schoolcraft's responses and granted a 10-year evaluation period. However, as a caveat, the college was required to submit a progress report dealing with the remaining 22 concerns by September 1, 1984.

Reibling told the board that in addressing the 22 remaining concerns in the progress report, the committee found that the problem areas focused on three major issues — a concern for planning, for the college's future financial stability and for retention and attrition.

It was noted that the college has focused much of this year's efforts on those specific concerns.

Responding to the committee's recommendations in dealing with specific concerns, Schoolcraft President Richard McDowell told the board that "a lot of things we've said here are options and not etched in concrete."

In other action Wednesday, the board of trustees:

- Approved full-time probationary contracts to Roseanne S. Morche, coordinator/instructor in the Medical Laboratory Technology Program; David Ruokalainen, computer information

- Approved a $18,993 purchase order to Red Holman Pontiac/GMC/Toyota, Inc. of Westland for the purchase of a 1984 GMC truck.
- Designated trustees Mary Breen and Harry Greenleaf as delegates to the Annual Convention of the Association of Community College Trustees October 10-13 in San Antonio, Texas. Breen was appointed as official representative to the convention with Greenleaf to serve as alternate. Cost of the three-day convention is estimated at $1,042 per person.

- Approved a $43,830 contract to Firebaugh & Reynolds Roofing Company of Novi for reroofing the Bradner Library and Liberal Arts Building.

Cagers will surprise, says new coach

By B.J. MARTIN

Come back to the gym, folks. It looks like Northville's going to have a real basketball team this fall.

No offense meant, but cheering for the Northville women's basketball team these last couple years has been an act of charity. But put that in the past — it's possible it may take the Mustangs one week to record as many wins as they did all last year (two).

After several years of coaching younger basketball teams, assisting Northville's JV team last season, Our Lady of Victory's seventh and eighth grade teams before that, and Community Recreation squads prior to that, Ed Kritch will take the reins of Northville's varsity team.

Over those years, Kritch has built up familiarity and respect between him and the players on his roster this year. Already there's evident improvement in attitude and skills on this year's team.

"It's been a good camp and I'm expecting a good season," Kritch says. "We're going to surprise people in the league and in the community after a couple of frustrating years for the program. There's a chance we can win a few of our first few ballgames and if we can get a snowball effect going, get the girls to believe in themselves, we have a chance at becoming a really respectable team."

There are three seniors, three juniors and six sophomores on this year's varsity. That balance should keep the program on a more even keel for the next few years.

KATHY KOROWIN returns to quarterback the squad at guard. The team's best fundamental player and its most court-savvy, the 5-5 senior will as last year act as an extension of the coach on the court. "I can give her a direction and she can communicate it out there," Kritch says. "She's really the ideal point guard."

Toughened up with a stint on the varsity volleyball team, 5-11 senior center ERIN RYAN lends experience as a returning starter. Ryan has improved her offensive skills to the point where she is now an effective inside scoring threat, and her added strength should help her rebounding.

Back in the fold after a frustrating and inconsistent junior year is SUE TERWIN. Always a tough player with fine leaping ability, Terwin plays taller than her 5-7 frame would indicate — and Kritch notes she is now playing with improved self-control. "We're looking to Sue to get us some scoring punch," he notes. "She'll surprise a few people. She can do a lot of things — the type who's not afraid to dive for loose balls."

That kind of scrappiness characterizes a lot of the Mustangs. Last season, the team was a little on the lightweight side and took a beating from bigger, stronger teams in the league. This time around, it looks like Northville will be able to dish it out as well as take it.

Case in point is junior MARY HOWLEY, 5-6. The team's quickest player, Howley is the type of player who can "make things happen" with her defensive ability. Able to make the big steal, snap up the occasional loose ball, Howley has also developed into a respectable shooter.

CHRIS MCGOWAN, a 5-3 junior, will bolster the guard corps after joining Northville's varsity late last season. The team's best foul shooter, the guard will also come in handy as a perimeter shooter to break tight zone defenses.

Expected to contribute right away is MICHELE SIEMASZ, a transfer from Walled Lake Western. She played JV as a sophomore last year in that estimable program, and at 5-9 has strength, an aggressive approach, and good perimeter shooting and passing skills.

Kritch is expecting Northville's All-Western Division forward, 5-10 TRICIA DUCKER to pick up where she left off last year. "We're planning to move Tricia away from inside so she can play facing the basket and so it'll make it easier to get her the ball," Kritch says. "The more we get the ball to her, the better off we'll be. She can do everything."

Up from the junior varsity is a quintet of sophomores who started on that squad. SUE SCHRADER, 5-10, has developed into a menacing rebounder and a strong, aggressive defensive player. "She's been the most surprising player at camp," Kritch says. "She could wind up a starter for us."

ANNE GRIFFITH at 5-8 and JOANNE HINDS at 5-10 lend Northville depth up front. Both are sound fundamental players, hard-working and willing to learn, and should make their imprint more as they gain in strength and experience.

ROXANNE SERKAIAN will play a valuable role for Northville. The 5-8 guard-forward is the team's best outside shooter, hitting for good percentage even from 15-18 feet — that gives Northville's offense a dimension it lacked last season. In fact, the Mustangs' overall shooting ability has improved to the point where Kritch now claims "we don't have one inferior shooter on the team."

Rounding out the roster is 5-5 JULIE ANGER, a fine, quick athlete, a good passer and hard-nosed defender ("not intimidated by anyone," Kritch notes) who will likely see a good deal of time in the Mustang backcourt.

With quickness, depth and aggressiveness to spare, Kritch hopes to get Northville running as much as possible to catch defenses off-guard. Other new wrinkles will include frequent use of a full-court press.

Maybe Class A Regional champion and divisional rival Walled Lake Western isn't too worried about the Mustangs this time around. But time is on Northville's side.

North Suburban schools considered for WLAA

By B.J. MARTIN

Ever since the announcement Livonia Bentley High School would close its doors following this school year, administrators of schools in the Western Lakes Activities Association of new constituents.

Well, it's getting near checkout time.

The 10-team athletic conference is divided into two five-team divisions. Northville belongs to the Western Division, along with Farmington Harrison, Walled Lake Western, Plymouth Canton and Livonia Churchill. In the Lakes Division, the current lineup is Bentley, Plymouth Salem, Livonia Stevenson, Farmington and Walled Lake Central.

An announcement had been expected in August about where the new alignments would fall for the 1984-85 season. Thus far, there's been no official word. There are some unofficial words, however.

"The one I've heard is that when Bentley goes, Westland John Glenn and North Farmington will join the Lakes Division and Livonia Franklin will join the Western Division," Northville Head Football Coach Dennis Colligan said Sunday.

But Northville Athletic Director Ralph Redmond doesn't think that arrangement is set in cement.

"There's been a lot of speculation," Redmond said Monday. "Here's what we can say: all the schools in the Northwest Suburban League with the exception of Garden City and Redford Union are being considered."

Redmond explained those two schools were crossed off the list because they are Class B schools, with smaller enrollments than any of the present WLAA constituents, which are all Class A. Redmond added that the NSL's Redford Thurston has also been eliminated from consideration, as Thurston administrators are reportedly interested in joining another league.

ADULT LEAGUES:

Upsets galore in AL, NL playoff battles

LONG'S MECHANICAL 6, WINNER'S CIRCLE 8: A 6-3 lead after five innings barely held up for the Mechanics in playoff action last week. After Winner's Circle's Roland Tarrow and George Scholes hit back-to-back singles, Bill Gears slashed a triple to score both — but Gears was gunned down at the plate trying to leg it home for the tying run. Rick Bingley, John Long, Ron Tini and John Sinclair each had two hits for Long's. Dave Austin, Roland Tarrow and Dave McLean did likewise for Winner's Circle.

BELANGER'S 3, ST. PAUL'S 2: Ron Vince singled home Paul Fallert in the fifth with what proved to be the winning run, as a two-run St. Paul's rally in the seventh fell short. Fallert's 2-for-3 outing included a first-inning two-run homer. Leadoff hitter Craig Lee singled twice and scored for Belanger's.

NOVI BOWL 4, COMMUNICATION SERVICE 3: John Collins hit a two-run homer and scored the winning run after tripling in the sixth. Communications rallied for two runs in the seventh on an error, a walk and Scott Shapero's two-out single — but Shapero was got no farther than first base. Leadoff hitter Rick Stratton had a pair of singles and scored once for Novi Bowl, while his Communications counterpart Rick Kovary did the same.

O'SHEEHAN'S ON THE GREEN 12, DALES GRAPHIC 8: What a comeback — down 8-4 going into the seventh, O'Sheehan's sent the game into extra innings by scoring four times on a single, a double, a walk and three Dales errors. Then in the ninth, O'Sheehan's again racked up four runs, this time on a walk and four singles. Dales had appeared to lock up the game with its five-run rally in the fifth, but could not score thereafter. Rick Berryman singled twice and scored four runs for the winners, while teammates Rich Dotson collected a single, double and triple, and Scott Devitt went 3-for-5. Tom Hahn had three hits, and Andy Behecz, Jamie Matthews and Rick Marron two for Dales.

GETZIE'S SOFTBALL CLUB 9, ED'S SPORTS 3: Dan Taylor went 3-for-3 and scored three runs for Getzie's, who struck an early lead and made it stick. Dave Jensen, Don Riffenburg and Jeff Menyhart each had two hits for Getzie's. Dan Sullivan and John Moore delivered two singles each for Ed's.

GETZIE'S 11, JAYCEES 9: Tex Trumbell scored four runs and went 4-for-4. Mark Lawosok, Rob McGuire and back-in-town Pete Talbot ripped home runs and Getzie's contributed errorless ball to outpower Northville Party Shop/Jaycees. Several Jaycee players had big days at the plate as well — Bill Howe had four singles in four trips, scoring once. Jim Rhodes had three hits and Carl Lang homered.

JAYCEES 19, O'SHEEHAN'S ON THE GREEN 5: Umpires were the only ones who could stop the Jaycees and Marty Rapson. Rapson drilled three home runs — two in an 11-run second inning — to lead a 20-hit shell- ing the ump's halted after five innings. Marty Craig was 3-for-3 with a homer and scored four runs, and Carl Lang doubled, tripled and scored three. O'Sheehan's scored all its runs in the first in a rally capped by John Maffesoli's home run.

NOVI BOWL 7, GETZIE'S SOFTBALL CLUB 1: Jeff Moon's two-run homer got the Bowlers rolling in the first frame, and the winners scored twice again in the second and again in the third. Gary Batzloff singled twice and scored once for Novi Bowl. John Adams had a pair of singles for Getzie's.

NOVI BOWL 15, BELANGER'S 12: Novi Bowl needed just two runs, but got four as cleanup hitter John Collins socked a grand slam homer in the bottom of the sixth — and final — inning for the win. Collins' blast capped a seven-run come-from-behind rally in that frame. Novi Bowl's Jeff Moran had a two-run homer, as did Belanger's Mark Vivyan. Nick Langlos had three singles for Belanger's. Steve O'Hare, Norm Kubitsky and Rick Stratton two apiece for the winners.

O'SHEEHAN'S ON THE GREEN 10, LONG'S MECHANICAL 5: Green bats got red hot late in the game, busting open a 3-3 tie with five singles and a triple in the bottom two post five runs. Scott Dewitt, John Maffesoli, Nick Herman and Bill Philili had two hits apiece for the winners, and Rich Dodson three. Rick Bingley and Jim Sadler each had three hits and one run for Long's.

GETZIE'S 15, WINNER'S CIRCLE 11: A 10-run fourth inning did the trick for Getzie's, as the home team racked up 10 singles and a grand slam round-tripper by Bob Gerlach in that frame alone. Mark Lisowski went 3-for-4 with a two-run homer for Getzie's, and Craig Forham collected three singles. Jim LaPlante had two hits and three runs, and Tex Trumbell, Gary Losowski, Dave Zima and Pete Talbot also each singled twice. Winner's Circle was led by Kevin Cavanaugh who hit a three-run homer, and by Alan Kahler, Don Rodriguez, Dave McLean and Rick Tarrow, who each had two hits.

LONG'S MECHANICAL 12, WAGON WHEEL 11: A four-run Wagon Wheel rally in the bottom of the seventh came one run short of upsetting Long's. Ron Tini rapped two singles, a double and a triple for the winners. Rick Bingley singled three times and scored two runs and Jim Long singled twice and scored three. Larry Michalak and Doug Wojay each singled twice and scored twice for Long's, and Jim Behen led Wagon Wheel by going 3-for-3 and scoring one run.

JAYCEES 8, DALES 3: The Jaycees used a balanced hitting attack and scored in every inning but the fourth to trip Dales. Marty Craig, Marshall Spinner and Bill Howe each had two hits and one run for the winners. Mike Eves, Don Dales and Chris Miller each singled twice for Dales.

Young Mustang soccer squad has tough act to follow

MUSTANGS' MIDFIELDER — Northville midfielder Doug May is expected to lend the young Mustang soccer squad much-needed leadership and experience with fellow senior co-captains Joe Mackle and Bob Guldberg. Record photo by John Galloway.

With 31 names, Northville's varsity soccer roster runs longer than the rosters of many football teams.

"To be realistic, we know we're not going to get everybody into every game," explains Marvin Gans, who returns with Dr. Dan Swayne as co-coach for the '84 Mustangs. "But this does give 31 guys the chance to play ball on a daily basis, even if they don't get to see a lot of game action."

The loss of several key players from last year's team leaves this year's squad short on experience and vulnerable in at least two key areas — scoring and goalkeeping.

"There are a lot of questions right now," Dr. Swayne admits. "We really don't know what to expect... We may start a freshman and two sophomores."

"We'll emphasize team play, because we have no really outstanding individuals," Gans says. "We'll have to make up for our lack of experience and finesse with desire and conditioning. We don't have that big scoring machine we had last year, and we'll just have to play with aggressiveness and try to score goals any way we can."

"We'll know better (how the team will fare) after the (Detroit) Country Day Tournament this weekend," Gans adds.

The coaches said that last year, too. But actually there were several outstanding players, including one of the state's best goalkeepers, Jeff Metz, one of the best midfielders, Steve Starcevic, and one of the best defenders, Scott Gala.

This year, a trio of seasoned seniors is expected to "provide the backbone" of the squad — tri-captains DOUG MAY, JOE MACKLE and BOB GULDBERG. May is a midfielder, Mackle a forward and Guldberg a back. "They're three fine players, very mature," Dr. Swayne notes.

Midfielder SCOTT KUBIT, wing-back JERRY O'BRIEN, midfielder/back JOHN GOODE and winger B.R. BOHAN return from last year's varsity after seeing limited playing time.

They'll be joined by five seniors new to the varsity. JOHN ANDERSON, SCOTT GREINER and MATT LOTARSKI will bolster the forward line. DON GRAHAM and CRAIG CARPENTER, a transfer student whose family recently moved to Northville from Centerville, Ohio, will be seen in midfield. And KURT SETTINO has emerged as one of the leading candidates for the starting goaltender job.

From the junior class, hopes are high for returning striker FRED CAHILL to become a valuable goal producer. MATT PELTZ a forward/midfielder returns from last year's squad. New faces include back MARK GUARD, midfielder CHRIS ST. JOHN, forward GARRETT STOLLBERG and SCOTT VANDERMOLEN, a talented player who could appear almost anywhere on the field.

Leading the six sophomores — and carrying much of the responsibility for the team's success — is DAN MAGDICH, a returning starter who will replace graduated Scott Gala at center back. Utility player NICK MORRIS returns from last year's varsity, as well.

Backs SCOTT WOLFE and KEN KOSSACK, midfielder STEWART KISSINGER and goalkeeper RICK GIRD round out the sophomore contingent.

Northville may bank its goalkeeping hopes on freshman ERIC HALVERSON. Classmates CHRIS ANDERSON and CHRIS GOODE (John's brother) will figure in Northville's future midfield plans, while winger BRAD METZ and strikers DAVID MOORE and PAUL STOECKLIN will add depth on the forward line.

Following the Detroit Country Day Tournament (Northville lost in the tourney final last year), the Mustangs will open their league schedule against

There will be an overall trophy to first place in the Men and Women's Division of the 10-K run. Trophies will go to the first three positions, medals through fifth in both the 10-K and 5-K. Ribbons go to all entries in the Kids' One-Mile Run.

Kroger reopens stores under new pact today

Kroger grocery stores in Milford, Novi, Howell, Brighton and Waterford are among the 29 stores the company is reopening today under terms of a new labor contract.

Kroger management closed all 70 of the grocery chain's Michigan outlets last month after employees rejected a concessions contract. The Ohio-based firm decided to reopen 45 stores after employees accepted a similar contract that reinstated senior rights but reduced wages 13 percent.

Selection of the stores to be reopened — 16 last Wednesday including one in Union Lake, and the remainder today — was made after corporate officers examined several factors, according to spokesman Paul Bernish.

"We conducted an evaluation of all our stores in Michigan and, based on a number of variables, including recent success — we had to choose between those that would reopen," Bernish said.

He said it is unlikely any new job openings will develop after existing employees exercise their seniority rights. Rehiring the laid-off workers included allowing employees to transfer if they wished to, granting severance pay to some, retirement to others and placing some on a recall list, he said.

The new wage and benefit package will drop starting pay for new hires from $5.25 per hour to $4.56. Employees with more than 30 months seniority took a wage cut from $10.37 down to $9.41 per hour, according to a spokesperson for the United Food and Commercial Workers Union Local 876, which represents Kroger employees in Michigan.

The pact adopted on a nearly 3:1

Plans: Get them right the first time

By B.J. MARTIN

A developer looking to build offices in one local community recently submitted his site plans to the planning commission for approval.

The commissioners said they liked the project. They said it would be good for the community. A good financial move. An attractive development. Then they turned it down.

Mostly it was because of technicalities. He'd have to resubmit the plans. If he didn't want to wait until the next meeting to get approval, he'd have to pay for a special meeting — and he'd have no guarantee the commission would approve his amended plans then.

A headache? The builder identified the pain as being somewhat lower and more airt.

It was also avoidable. There are ways a developer in a hurry to get his project going can streamline the process of getting approval.

"Commissioners don't always know the problems developers have," says Janice Rom, planning clerk for the City of Novi.

Rom might add, they don't have to know. "By the time the board considers the plans, all the smaller details (should) have been worked out," she says.

That's why a planning commission can bog down even a worthwhile, mutually-profitable project over what appear to be small considerations — the type of tree plantings, the height of a berm, the size of a sign.

Since planners act as public officials, they are expected to adhere strictly to the community's planning ordinance. To do otherwise would compromise their responsibilities and possibly open the door for lawsuits.

There are three basic obstacles in the approval process: site plan approval, engineering review approval and building department approval.

Whether an architect, engineer or surveyor is drawing up a site plan, he or she is generally well-acquainted with building and engineering trade codes, applicable to all building projects and reviewed by a community's building inspector and engineer.

By contrast, zoning regulations affecting the decision to approve a site plan can vary widely from community to community.

"No site plan ever sails through without any changes," says Tod Kilroy, planning consultant to several west Oakland communities, including Walled Lake.

"But one of the biggest problems comes when the person submitting the plan doesn't read the ordinance," he adds. "They'll turn in the plans and expect our review to tell them what they need to do. Approval would take a lot less time if they make the site plans as complete as possible. Usually the delays are products of an incomplete site plan."

For a builder, it's easier to find an architect (or engineer or surveyor) who will fit the planners' way of thinking than to find planners who will fit an architect's.

Before contacting an architect, a developer should be satisfied the architect is familiar with the zoning regulations where the project is to be located.

Any builder would be wise to consult a community's planning officials for a recommendation. Most communities, Kilroy notes, are happy to provide a list of architects familiar with the local zoning ordinance, local officials' preferences and the overall interests of the community.

There are some frequent problems with site plans a developer needn't have an engineering and/or architectural background to identify. Almost all communities provide a checklist of items that must be included with a site plan submittal for review. A developer should review the list and discuss any questions he has about them before submitting the plans to a planning commission.

When reviewing the checklist, a small-scale builder may find it wise to keep an eye out for site plan mistakes such as:

- failure to note the zoning of surrounding property;

- failure to include a site plan specifying the property's topographical contours;

- failure to include required information on the property's existing use and structures;

- non-compliance with ordinance requirements for dimensions, building height and setbacks; and

- failure to comply with parking requirements.

Different communities provide different ways for a business to consult planning and engineering officials about a project. Most building projects are reviewed under a flat fee which covers the cost of review by the community's planning consultant and engineer.

But in the case of some larger projects, it sometimes pays to retain the

THE HERBERT NEWMAN family of Brighton has won a new home in the Michigan Manufactured Housing Institute's (MMHI) Home Giveaway Program. The winning entry was deposited at Darling Mobile Homes in Novi.

Steven Zamiara, executive director of the Michigan Mobile Home Commission, drew the winner from more than 25,000 entries which had been filled in at the business locations of the 51 MMHI members who participated in the program.

Newman, his wife Betty and their two sons plan to locate the multi-sectional Friendship home on a 10-acre parcel of land in Brighton Township.

Newman, a self-employed excavator, said he preferred a manufactured home to other forms of housing because "they are better constructed than a large percentage of site-built homes."

The Home Giveaway Program is part of MMHI's on-going effort to acquaint Michigan citizens with the advantages of manufactured housing. MMHI is a state trade association which represents manufacturers, retailers, park owners, suppliers and others in the Michigan industry.

margin leaves intact the previous health and benefit package, the union source added. "We gave up some sick and personal days, and some vacation time, but were successful in retaining all rights and benefits in the contract—we gave up only monetary benefits," he asserted.

Workers have been diligently preparing for the reopenings, with managers who have been let go mopping floors, washing windows, cleaning and stocking shelves to meet the reopening deadlines.

"We are delighted to be able to maintain a retailing presence in the Michigan, where we have operated food stores since 1917," said Joel Greenisen, vice president of Kroger's Michigan marketing area.

"The past few weeks have been difficult for all of us, and now we are eager to open our stores as quickly as possible and get back to business."

Stores reopened last week were in Ann Arbor, Canton, Dearborn, Grosse Pointe, Monroe, Mount Clemens, Port Huron, Rochester, Union Lake and Ypsilanti.

Slated to reopen today, in addition to those already listed, are stores in Auburn Heights, Bay City, Birmingham, Dearborn, Essexville, Farmington, Grosse Ile, Grosse Pointe, Inkster, Lapeer, Midland, New Baltimore, Orchard Lake, Richmond, Roseville, Royal Oak, St. Clair Shores, Sterling Heights, Troy, Warren, Wayne, Westland and Woodhaven.

Debts can be restructured

No matter how well families manage their personal finances, hard times can intervene; a job could be lost and debts become impossible to pay.

According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, families in financial distress have several options, such as credit counseling and even bankruptcy. And you should know your rights as a debtor.

The 1978 Fair Debt Collection Practices Act doesn't erase your debts, but it does protect you from harassment by debt collectors. It prohibits collectors from contacting you before 8 a.m. and after 9 p.m., or from contacting you at work if your employer disapproves. A debt collector may not use a false name to gain access to you. You can contact the local office of the Federal Trade Commission for more information about fair debt collection. But before it comes to that, consider these points.

A debt collection agency is hired by a creditor, such as a department store, when your account has been delinquent for an extended period — usually 90 days. Since the collection agency is paid a percentage of what it collects from you, it is less willing to negotiate your debt.

So if your bills pile up and you simply don't have the money to pay, you should contact a non-profit credit counseling service or a CPA. They can negotiate with your creditors and help you work out a budget before your account is turned over to a debt collector. Negotiations can result in a workable payment schedule, and in some cases a creditor may agree to reduce the amount you owe.

Creditors are motivated to reduce debts before a debtor resorts to bankruptcy. That could mean a creditor would never receive any of the amounts originally promised. Almost 290,000 petitions for bankruptcy were filed in 1983, according to the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts in Washington, D.C. That's a 62 percent increase since 1978 when Congress eased some aspects of personal bankruptcy.

Under current law, you can choose between wiping your slate clean by the sale of certain assets you own, or repaying debts over a period as long as five years. In either case, a court appointed trustee works out a repayment agreement with your creditors.

Under Chapter Seven, your assets can be sold to pay off your debts. But according to Robert Johnson, director of the Credit Research Center at Purdue University, "In practical terms, you can keep almost all that you own." Though state bankruptcy laws vary, Johnson says, "It is the exceptional case where the courts order a home to be sold."

In cases where a home, car or other property is not protected from sale to satisfy debts, you can file for protection under Chapter 13. This allows a debtor to renegotiate amounts owed and pay it back over an extended period. In some instances debtors need only pay back 20 cents or less on each dollar they owe when filing under Chapter 13.

Filing for bankruptcy, however, will not erase debts for alimony, child support, student loans or taxes. In addition, when you apply for a bank loan or credit card, the declaration of bankruptcy appears on your credit history for seven to 10 years; another reason for seeking every alternative to pay debts and regain your credit standing.

According to a Credit Research Center report, 20 percent of those who file for bankruptcy can pay their debts back within a three-year period. Given five years, one half of those who file could pay their creditors. Seek help before you get into deep trouble. Having a CPA or representative from a credit counseling service contact your creditors gives a clear sign that you are having difficulty with bill payments but mean to repay what you owe.

For help in organizing a budget and working out a debt repayment schedule, contact your CPA or the National Foundation for Consumer Credit in Silver Springs, Maryland, which has offices in 48 states.

State tourism having best year since '78

Michigan's summer tourism season began slowly because of cool weather, but activity has heated up and a busy Labor Day holiday could help push the state to a four percent tourism increase over last year, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Warm, dry weather this Labor Day weekend should help propel Michigan to its best tourism year since 1978," according to James Drury, the Auto Club's travel operations director. "However, when adjustments for inflation and other factors are considered, 1978 will remain as the record tourism year."

Summer tourism spending in Michigan could approach a record $3.4 billion — by comparison, $2.5 billion was spent in Michigan for the same period in 1978.

The Michigan Department of Transportation forecasts 765 million miles of motor travel this 78-hour holiday weekend, a two percent increase over last year. So far this year, the number of miles traveled in Michigan is up from 3 to 3.5 percent.

"Requests for Auto Club TourBooks and routings to Michigan destinations are up nearly 5 percent for the first seven months of this year, compared to the same period last year, with a 10 percent increase in July," Drury said.

All four of the state's regional tourist bureaus are reporting summer travel increases as high as five percent. Other barometers showing an upward trend include Greenfield Village attendance (up 12 percent) and visits to the Grand Traverse Bay region — up 20 percent.

Twenty tourist attractions monitored by the Michigan Travel Bureau show a 6.5 percent average attendance increase through July. Mackinac Bridge crossings are up 0.9 percent, visitors to the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island number 6 percent more than in 1983 and attendance at Boblo Island is up 10 percent.

Camping is on a par with last year, the Auto Club said. Preliminary figures from the Michigan Association of Private Campground Owners indicate overall camping by summer's end could be up by as much as 5 percent over 1983, while camping at state parks is down 4.2 percent through mid-July.

Gasoline prices at self-serve stations have dropped an average 4 cents per gallon on state highways since Memorial Day, Drury said. Statewide self-serve no-lead averages $1.236 per gallon.

The holiday officially begins at 6 p.m. Friday and ends at midnight Monday. Last year, 17 persons died in Labor Day traffic in the state, including five motorcyclists and three pedestrians. None of those killed in cars was wearing a safety belt, 11 of the 15 at-fault drivers were drinking.

The club's "Brind 'Em Back Alive" holiday news service will complete its 20th year of service by providing information on traffic conditions and tourism for hourly broadcasts to more than 160 radio stations from 3 to 11 p.m. Friday, 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday and Monday and 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Sunday.

Bill to open federal procurement to small firms

A procurement system reform bill approved by the U.S. Senate August 7 could provide a direct benefit to as many as 4,500 small businesses in Michigan, according to the National Federation of Independent Business.

John Motley, chief lobbyist for NFIB, lauded the Senate action as "a victory — not just for small-business owners in Michigan and throughout the nation, but for every taxpayer who is sick of reading about the government paying hundreds of dollars for a dime-store wrench."

The Senate bill would overhaul the way all federal agencies buy goods and services. One provision would greatly restrict agencies' ability to place "pre-qualification requirements" and other conditions on bid requests. This practice effectively restricts the bidding to only a few large companies within a given field, NFIB said.

In the past, NFIB alleged, such requirements have been used to "wire" contracts by making small firms ineligible to compete against companies favored by procurement officers.

The bill also requires agencies to write design and production contracts to accommodate later competitive bidding on "downstream" needs such as spare parts and maintenance contracts. Additionally, it would require prime contractors to list their subcontractors and suppliers and identify the actual manufacturers of parts. Agencies now seldom know who actually produces parts for contracted equipment, NFIB charged, making it impossible to buy replacements direct, at cheaper rates.

Motley credits Senator Carl M. Levin (D-Michigan) as a "prime mover" who championed the bill. The Senate form of the bill calls for more extensive reforms than did a version passed by the House earlier this year.

The Senate version was drafted by the small business committee, then approved by the armed services committee (which concentrated on defense department procurement reforms). Levin is a member of both committees, Motley noted, and offered numerous amendments to the military measure and extended its scope to make the two committee bills identical.

'Aero-look' Fords pace sales boost

Ford Motor Company's half-year sales gain of 28 percent over 1983 was led by large year-to-year increases in sales of the aerodynamically-styled Tempo and Thunderbird models, division sales manager Phillip Novell said recently.

The gains pushed the Dearborn automaker's total new-market share up to 12.1 percent, compared with 11.3 percent at mid-year 1983. With Tempo accounting for 2.3 percent of all new car sales and 11.6 percent of compact-sized sales in the U.S., the company has vindicated its decision to go with the radical shift to aerodynamic styling in a single leap rather than in small steps.

Tempo was introduced last spring as a 1984 model. It was the second of the "aero-look" Fords. The soft, rounded styling theme was introduced on the Thunderbird, which has received greater and greater acceptance in the current sales boom. T-bird sales were up 52 percent from a year ago at mid-year, Novell reported, with 81,060 sold in six months. The top-line Ford accounts for fully 1.5 percent of the total

U.S. new car sales thus far in 1984.

As a baseline for comparison, consider Ford's Crown Victoria and LTD models, which have more common sales increases of 29 and 28 percent respectively (nearly identical to the company's overall gain). The LTD, particularly, represents something of a mid-way step toward aerodynamic styling. The "Crown Vic" is one of several

U.S. large car lines enjoying a revival in this latest sales boom, in which gas prices and fuel economy have played a much smaller role in consumer decision-making than in the recent price.

Ford truck sales, Novell said, bid strong to repeat as the national leader in 1984, with deliveries up 25 percent over last year.

Think ahead to insure site plan approval

community's planning consultant and engineer at the builder's expense when drawing up site plans prior to the official submission.

For example, when Meijer, Inc., developers decided they wanted to proceed with plans to build a large store in Northville Township, the corporation asked the township planning commission for approval to retain the township planning consultant and engineer to advise site plan designers.

The results were a condensed timetable for approvals and plans which not only met township requirements but also incorporated the township's preferences for site design.

This kind of communication — prior to the time plans are set before a governing body, can enhance not only the speed of the approval process, but also a business' stature in the community as a good neighbor.

For example, Rom points out, an aspect of the final plan — "maybe something located right next to a residential area or taking trees down or some kind of wall" — may meet zoning standards but not the preferences of individuals in the neighborhood.

The more closely developers work with officials prior to submitting site plans, the more likely such differences can be resolved without confrontation at a meeting. "We all prefer to work things out smoothly," she says.

By JEFFREY LAPINSKI

You've probably seen the television commercial: Mom and Dad are at the station giving Junior a tearful but proud send-off as he boards the train that will take him to College. In the next scene, we see the sad-looking Junior, a College dropout, stepping off the same train. As Mom and Dad take their son home, the narrator tells us that Junior failed because he didn't have a home computer. End of commercial.

Is it a fair representation of the importance of computers in education? Or is just some advertising hype designed to get Mom and Dad to buy a computer in order to alleviate any feelings of guilt?

While all of the educators interviewed here felt that the commercial was heavy on the hype, they seemed to all share the belief that computers are not simply an educational fad. Rather, computers are here to stay. They are infiltrating almost every field and educators need to give their students at least an understanding of this marvelous electronic machine.

In addition, computer education is not something for the last semester in one's senior year at high school. The sooner, the better for computer education and many schools are following that adage by exposing children at the elementary school level or below.

Leslie Kimmell, a pre-school educator in South Lyon, feels that if educators do not do something about computers, "find out what it's all about," then they would be "remiss" as educators.

With the working world becoming more and more dependent on computers, students are going to need at least an awareness of computers, Kimmell added.

Following that belief, Kimmell, a teacher at the South Lyon Co-op Nursery School, will be using a computer this year with her pre-schoolers. The two main goals in the use of computers, said Kimmell, is exposure and awareness. To prepare themselves, Kimmell and five other co-op workers attended classes in the use of computers in early childhood.

Dr. Walter Herrala is the principal at South Lyon Elementary School, where computers and students have worked together for several years. He shared the belief that computers will soon change everything, becoming a part of everyone's work environment. Therefore, a minimal familiarity with computers is one of the educational "essentials," he said, adding that people must become comfortable with this machine.

The computer will become standard equipment in education, explained Herrala. "It (the computer) assists us in the major task of the information age... the primary job is managing information," he added.

Bill Brown, computer coordinator for Brighton schools, and Jim Kirker, computer science instructor at South Lyon High School, also concur that a familiarity with computers is a desired goal because children today are bound to interact with computers somewhere down the road.

Brown called for a "floor" of computer literacy at school. Currently, a student's exposure to computers at school may depend on the teacher's interest in computers. In addition, since many school computers are purchased by parent-teacher groups, the number of computers at a particular school may depend on the fundraising activities of that school's PTA.

While schools in the past adopted a "laissez faire attitude" towards computers, said Brown, school districts in the future will need to develop computer education programs with a minimum level of computer literacy.

Beyond the high school level, Helene Abrams, coordinator of the instructional support center at Eastern Michigan University, said college students are not at the stage yet where all school work is done on computers but more classes are requiring computer work and it is an "advantage" to be familiar with them. She agreed that every field will require some exposure to computers.

The degree of familiarity, said Brown, depends on where you are heading. You don't need to be a computer whiz to grill burgers at the local drive-in but if you plan to attend MIT you'd better know your computer ABCs. He added that many professions are using the computer on an everyday basis, such as computer-aided architecture and drafting.

So, if computers are going to be so pervasive, should I as a parent run out and buy a home computer for my son or daughter?

While there seem to be many answers, a good first step in deciding that question lies with the local school district. Does your child receive computer exposure at school? If he/she does, that may be enough.

Herrala said a home computer may not be needed if the child works with a computer at school. Kirker said it would be "helpful" to have a home computer and Brown explained that it was important to have a home computer to get children accustomed to it. Brown indicated that a home computer will give the child greater accessibility to the computer. Without it, a student could only use the computer when school was open and, even then, he/she may have to wait until other students are done with it.

Computers: Not just a passing fancy

All of the educators stressed that if you're thinking about buying a home computer, you should assess your needs first. Ask yourself these questions: How do I want to use it? How versatile do I want it? Will I use it for my home records or will it be used just by the children? Looking at what you want can help you decide what type of computer to purchase.

In the November 1983 issue of Family Computing magazine, Pat Dickson, an associate professor of family studies at the University of Wisconsin, said parents should not buy a microcomputer simply for the sake of their preschooler. "The computer should have other uses in the family and not just be an expensive toy," he stated.

Another point stressed by the educators and aimed at potential computer buyers is compatibility with the schools. It would be a good idea, they said, to buy a machine that is compatible with the equipment used by the local school district. This would allow the transfer of skills and software between the home and the school.

Software is very important to the success of computer education. Brown likened the relationship between software and the computer to the relationship between gasoline and a car. Kimmell warned against "inappropriate software" which emphasizes rote learning. Education, she said, means creative, independent thinkers, not robots.

Family Computing magazine advised parents to do their homework with software. Look for what the program does. "When evaluating any piece of software as a learning tool, parents must ask: Is the use of the computer an improvement over traditional ways of learning the same thing?" stated the magazine.

In addition, the software should be stimulating, dynamic and fun to use, said Family Computing. A program should match the child's age and interests. Try to get a demonstration of the program, stated the magazine, and vary your selection of software.

Now that you have a computer and software, computer education does not mean plopping your child down in front of the keyboard and leaving him/her there all alone, hoping that the computer will magically transform the youngster into another Einstein. Along with 'high tech' comes 'high touch', said Herrala, borrowing a phrase from the book "Megatrends".

The big sham with computers, said Herrala, is that they do not take care of the motivational part of learning. An interest in computers is just not enough to stimulate and sustain the learning process, he explained. Without instruction, children will follow "the path of least resistance" and play games on the computer, said Herrala.

Computers are good at drill-and-practice techniques, which is still the major method used to teach basic skills, said Herrala. For example, children simply must know that two plus two equals four and drill-and-practice is the best way to teach that.

However, there must be a balance between drill-and-practice and interpersonal learning, explained Herrala. Students should not feel "victimized" by the machine, he said. The human element is needed.

One of Kimmell's biggest fears with computers in education is the lack of personal touch and having the student control the computer, not vice versa. "It (the computer) can't be the end all," she said, adding that the computer is just one of many learning resources.

Kimmell feels that educators should take the time to look at computers in education rather than "grabbing" onto the machines and "popping" them into classes. There is a need to examine how computers fit into the overall purpose of education, she added.

Kimmell is also concerned about computers replacing teachers. She relates a fictional scenario where 100 children each with their own computer are instructed by one teacher. Even with this computer revolution, she said, the most important fixture in the classroom is still the teacher, the human aspect of learning.

Rather than isolating children from each other or their parents, the computer could become "an exciting catalyst," said Kimmell, by encouraging interaction between children and between parents and children. It may not be a substitute for a nature walk but a computer could bring the parent and child together in a problem-solving adventure, she added.

Dickson, of the University of Wisconsin, said in Family Computing magazine that a child's social and interactive skills are fostered by the computer because "they (the children) talk to one another, ask more questions, ask for advice, and give each other feedback" about the computer. Interactions between adults and children can also be helped by the computer, he added.

But Dickson stressed that if a preschooler is spending more than one hour per day on the computer, "you probably should ask, 'What else is this child missing?'"

EMU's Abrams likened the computer to a tool which eases the difficulty of a particular task. It is nothing to fear nor is it the "wonder drug" of education. The computer is just one aspect of learning, said Kirker of South Lyon, and there are all kinds of interpersonal action that cannot be replaced, including interaction with parents and teachers.

Quoting two computer education experts, Family Computing stated, "Experiences with a computer should never replace their (the children's) experiences with real events and objects. Children need to play, to touch things, and to have hands-on experience before they move on to the computer."

"And remember," said Dickson in Family Computing, "some kids just don't take to it (computers) — and not all of them should. Childhood is childhood."

Exploring the Amazon jungle — in the tradition of 'Indiana Jones'

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dwight Sieggreen, a sixth grade teacher at Silver Springs Elementary School, has spent the past few summers scouring the jungles of the Amazon in search of adventure. An avid photographer, Sieggreen has chronicled his jungle expeditions on film with images of river tribesmen, venomous snakes, rainforest foliage and rare species. His quest for adventure is not without danger, however, and preparations for a two-week trip are quite extensive. If one has an hankering for living like Indiana Jones, it's a great way to spend a summer vacation.

By DWIGHT SIEGGREEN

Taxiing down the runway at Detroit airport on this August 9th, one thinks of the adventures that await. Bill McMillan and I are off to the Amazon Jungle. It is a return trip for me as I made a similar one last year with Bob Higbee and Bill Mills. The memories are vivid of wildlife and an environment which once was alien to me but is becoming more familiar each year.

The rainforest harbors so much potential excitement that it becomes a laborious task waiting for the aircraft to arrive in Miami for the first leg of the long trip to Peru. The Amazon River, called "Rio Amazonas" locally, is one of the last true wilderness areas in the world and snakes (the Fer de Lance and Bushmaster) are serious threats to the photographer in the jungle.

Mothers' Club bridge tournament needs players for daytime groups

Diane Larsen, chairperson of the Northville Mothers' Club benefit marathon bridge tournament, announces that four openings remain for couples to play in the ladies daytime groups. She may be contacted at 348-4149.

Proceeds from the tournament are used for projects in the Northville Public Schools. Play begins in September and continues through May. Cost is $10 per person with players meeting monthly at their choice of time to play with others in their group. Prizes are awarded in each group at the end of the year.

Rainbow terrace

With 20 varieties of annuals and 10 of perennials, the terraced backyard garden of Dave and Karen Couser at 42725 Steepleview is the Country Girls' Garden Branch choice for Garden of the Month for August. "It's a rainbow of color" reported Pat Eden and Marie Cooper, project chairpersons, as they made the award. They added that it is a fine example of "what can be done with a difficult, sloping site." It's a new garden, only two years old in Whisper Woods subdivision off Bradner. It was nominated for the honor by neighbor Joan Hershey, who donated some of her own "Kiss Me Over the Garden Gate" bulbs to it. Dave Couser, at left, is given credit for being the gardener by his wife. He says he ordered garden catalog varieties—snapdragons, cosmos, petunias, five kinds of zinnas, amaranthus, summer poinsettias, miniature daisies and clematis. There's also a tier of vegetables. Potted plants and hanging baskets complete the picture on the patio. Record photos by Steve Fecht.

Mill Race Village fall craft classes announced

A new series of arts and crafts classes sponsored by the Northville Historical Society will be held in Mill Race Historical Village this fall.

Classes and workshops range from magic to antiques, from stenciling to stichery with registration to begin in September.

New program craft directors Barbara Louie, Sally Henriksen and Linda Clark report they are "very excited" about some unique offerings in the 19th century village.

Classes for adults include: •Stitchery Kaleidoscope, taught by Debbie Ayres of Novi, in the Wash Oak School, will feature beginning classes in four types of early American needlework: candlewicking, which was done by early American pioneers who substituted candlewick thread and muslin because of lack of access to fan-cier materials; spiderlace, also known as Amish embroidery, depression lace or tick-tac-toe embroidery, brought to America during the days of colonization; and ribbon embroidery, first popular in England during the reign of Queen Anne, combining delicate ribbons with embroidery stitches and beads. Basic quilting techniques also will be taught.

•Magic, as old as the Pyramids with a timeless fascination will be presented by local magician Ming ("the Magnificent") Louis in a series of four classes for beginners, ages 12 to adult. The course will include basic sleight-of-hand routines using coins, cards and rope.

•Quilted Clothing, taught by Linda Den Haan, will enable students to make a vest or jacket using easy strip piecing.

•Primitive Dolls, also taught by Linda Den Haan, will be made in the manner of cloth dolls made by children 100 years ago. No sewing experience is necessary for this course.

•Wheat Weaving, with Elva Asquini instructing, will teach students to make four Christmas ornaments from wheat and cut straw.

•Mill Race Antique Forum, presented by Lynn and Doris Ehrle of Plymouth, a three part lecture series, will be held in the New School Church and includes discussion on the art of buying antiques, American country furniture, restoring your special find, redware, stoneware and American historical flasks.

•Basket Making, taught by Helen Maki in an all day workshop at the New School Church, will feature basic techniques in basketry. Students will be able to take home their own handmade carrying basket.

Classes primarily for children include:

•Apple Day with Fran Gazlay and Wanda Lou Huber teaching how the early settlers used apples planted by Johnny Appleseed, making cider and other useful crafts made with apples at the Mill Race Weavers' cottage.

•Prairie Dolls will be made to resemble cloth dolls used by children on the Kansas prairies in the 1800s.

Registration forms will be available at Northville City Hall, IV Seasons Flowers, Northville Community Chamber of Commerce and at the Tivoli Fair.

Additional information about the classes or the village may be obtained by calling Henriksen at 349-4607, Clark at 349-6945, or Louie at 348-7244.

In Our Town

Newcomers schedule membership coffee

By JEAN DAY

Sure signs that summer ends with Labor Day and the start of school are the calls about autumn events in our town.

For those new to the community, the Northville Newcomers' annual membership coffee is a good way to get acquainted. It's set for Thursday, September 6, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at First United Methodist Church at Eight Mile near Taft.

Newcomers' president Judy Amatangelo invites anyone living in the Northville School District five years or less to attend. Board members will be present to explain about the club's various programs, including monthly Ladies Day and couple events.

Newcomers, she adds, has a total of 30 interest groups ranging from crafts and a recipe exchange to book reviews and quilting. Annual dues of $10 include participation in these as well as a monthly newsletter. Membership chairperson Marlene Bentham may be called at 348-6318 or President Amatangelo may be called at 348-3746. They ask anyone who would like a ride to the coffee to call them.

September couples' event is a trip to take in the Detroit Tigers and Toronto Blue Jays baseball game September 14. "Even the trip to the stadium will be fun as Newcomers snack on quiche and wine and socialize on a scenic double decker bus," promises President Amatangelo. Cost is $25 per couple with reservations now being taken by Lois Lindquist at 420-2933.

Future couples' events include a hayride and barn dance and a Night at the Races. A Ladies Day trip is planned to the Detroit Institute of Arts and a progressive luncheon is on the schedule.

Alumnae of Newcomers meet for tea

For those who no longer may be active Newcomers, there is the "alum" organization. The alumnae membership tea will be held at 9:30 a.m. September 6 at the home of Gerrie Dent, 20006 Rippling Lane. It's for new and returning alums. Reservations now are being taken by Alice Patterson at 349-5244.

The Newcomer Alumni organization's yearly dues are $5 per couple including a monthly newsletter. Those who cannot attend the tea next week are asked to send their dues checks to Karen Winowiecki, 42590 Ravina Lane.

Tivoli Fair features juried crafts exhibitors

For the first time, exhibitors at the Tivoli Fair sponsored by Northville Historical Society have had their work juried by a five-member panel before the annual crafts show. It is being held this year on September 28-29 at Northville Downs. Officials explain the show is being juried to ensure quality crafts at the popular event which is a major fund raiser for Northville Historical Society projects in Mill Race Historical Village.

Co-chairpersons Carol Kiraly and Sandy Kemp report that they have "very nice exhibitors" lined up under the direction of Jan Clancy, who also has a waiting list for spaces. Admission, Kiraly announces, will be the same as last year — $1.50 for adults and 50 cents for students and senior citizens.

Autumnfest '84 promises events for all ages

Autumnfest, sponsored by the Northville Downtown Merchants' Association, this year will have events involving the entire community. It is the same weekend as the Tivoli Fair — September 28-29 — and again includes the pumpkin decorating contest sponsored by Northville Kiwanis.

Many events still are in the planning stages, report chairpersons Kris Broderick, Tom Rice and Dee Richardson. They expect to have clown face painting, volleyball, bowling and golf tournaments, pony rides, chicken barbecue, an antique car display, hay rides, a balloon launch and a clown band — for starters.

'Growth Ministry' set

Dr. Kent R. Hunter, senior pastor of Zion Lutheran Church, Corunna, Indiana, and director of the Church Growth Center, also located near Corunna, will lead "The Church Growth Ministry" workshop November 5-7 at the Yokefellow Institute in Richmond, Indiana. He is a native of Northville and a 1965 graduate of Northville High School.

Dr. Hunter is the son of Dolores Hunter Licorish of Northville and the late Robert W. Hunter.

The goal of the "Church Growth Ministry" workshop is to equip church workers to reach the full potential of their effectiveness "as God's chosen leaders among those who are challenged to fulfill the Great Commission," he explained.

He has served churches in Australia, Florida and Michigan and is the author of numerous books and articles. Dr. Hunter serves as an advisor to denominational boards and committees and is a church consultant and an experienced workshop leader.

Cost for the workshop is $100 a person. Deadline for registration is three weeks prior to the workshop. Additional details may be obtained from the Yokefellow Institute, 920 Earlam Drive, Richmond, Indiana, 47374.

Salem Bible Church needs help for mission

Northville area residents who have clothes, toys or household items that are unneeded are being asked by Salem Bible Church to donate them to its mission project.

The church is delivering donations to the Detroit Rescue Mission year-round.

To have items picked up, call 349-7564. Donation receipts are available, according to the church spokesperson.

Former resident to wed

Former Northville residents Mr. and Mrs. Douglas A. Shaw of Carolina Beach, North Carolina, announce the engagement of their daughter, Janet Christina, to William E. Herring Jr. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Herring of Goldsboro, North Carolina.

An October 20 wedding is planned at Pine Valley United Methodist Church in Wilmington, North Carolina.

Scott arrives — on schedule

Tom and Rita Rice of 9166 Woodside announce the birth of their son, Scott Douglas.

He was born August 23 at Providence Hospital and weighed nine pounds.

The new arrival joins brothers Justin, 4, and Danny, 3.

Paternal grandparents are Fred and Ann Rice of Novi. John and Pat McGuire of Northville are maternal grandparents.

The newborn's father said he predicted three months ago that Scott would arrive at 7 a.m. August 23. Dad was off by only three minutes as Scott made his arrival at 6:57 a.m.

District uses computer as learning tool

By MICHELE McELMURRY

Though it still may be regarded as a modern contraption by those who were schooled with fountain pens and composition books, the computer is becoming as integral a tool to today's student as the slide rule was to previous generations.

According to Nancy Soper, Northville Public Schools assistant superintendent for curriculum, the advent of computers in the classroom has posed an ongoing challenge for educators.

She noted that the evolution of computers within the district's curriculum was not initiated until the 1979-80 school year when a computer program planning committee was formed.

Like many school districts throughout the state, Northville found itself with a gap in its computer curriculum offerings at a time when technological advances deemed such training mandatory.

Information from high school graduate follow-up surveys conducted during the late 1970s and early '80s more clearly pointed to the district's need for computer learning.

Whether headed to the college campus or the workplace, former students responding to the graduate surveys indicated that one of the greatest weaknesses in their high school curriculum was in the area of computer programming.

With the initiation of the computer planning committee, the district began to address its needs.

Soper pointed out that one of the most important aspects of the committee's work has been training staff members in computer literacy.

"The key has been the appropriate inservicing of staff so we don't have to redo or reteach," she said.

"Our thrust in on using the computer as a tool for learning — to enhance the teaching and learning process."

— Nancy Soper

Soper pointed out that during the 1981-82 school year, the district was allocated federal funds under Chapter II to use in training staff members in computer instruction.

She noted that during the last two years, staff members have participated in local workshops, computer conferences and college classes conducted both in and out of the district for basic computer training.

"We're at the point where a large percentage of our teaching staff has had basic computer and advanced classes," she said.

In addition to computer skills, Soper said staff members also have been trained in other media forms such as video taping which now is available in all schools.

She noted that, while it is not necessary for every teacher to teach a computer class, every teacher should be computer literate.

"It's important that students have proper instruction of what is a computer," Soper said.

"Our goal is that each student will have knowledge of what a computer is, what they can do with it and what it can do for them as a tool," she added.

"Our thrust is on using the computer as a tool for learning — to enhance the teaching and learning process."

Soper said she felt the "concept of computer literacy will go by the wayside" as students and teachers become more familiar with the computer as a tool.

"We want our students by the time they get to high school to be able to use computers to enhance other subjects," she noted.

"We don't see the program as an addition to curriculum, but as a way to enhance and improve teaching and learning."

However, that is not to say that the district has disregarded advanced computer programming courses.

Soper noted that as in any other subject, students will have an option to take more advanced computer courses.

However, she said, "we cannot expect all of our students to be that proficient."

Soper noted that the district implemented its computer program from the top down — beginning with the high school and working down into the elementary grades.

She said that while the district has made tremendous strides since forming its initial planning committee in 1979, a total K-12 curriculum program — including keyboard skills, word processing and basic language — will not be implemented until September, 1985.

The middle school grade structure, expected to go into place in September, 1985, also will impact the program as current equipment will be moved from the junior high to the elementary and from the high school to the middle school.

Soper said that while the district has a total of 73 pieces of computer equipment in its seven school buildings, plans are being made to phase in other purchases as the total curriculum plan is developed.

She noted that, while computer equipment is "very expensive," there has been a considerable decrease in price during the last three years.

"When we started pursuing our computer curriculum five years ago, we found the price of equipment prohibitive," she recalled.

"Four years ago we only were able to buy two computers at the high school."

However, she said that despite the cost, the district obtained a majority of its equipment through the fundraising efforts of the Northville Mothers' Club and PTA. Both groups have purchased computer and video equipment for the schools in accordance with their needs.

The assistant superintendent pointed out that by September, 1985, the district hopes to have full computer labs available at the middle school and senior high level with computer banks available at all levels including the elementary schools.

"We want every school to have a bank of computers just like it would have a shelf of encyclopedias," she explained.

Introducing another "useless gimmick" for business. Like the computer.

Every few years, something comes along that revolutionizes the way business does business.

Such a product is the new Ameritech® cellular car telephone from Ameritech Mobile Communications Sales.

Like the computer, it will eventually be employed by millions of U.S. executives as a necessary business tool.

But like the computer, it will take some time for most executives to realize the advantages of having Bell-quality phones in their cars. Which presents an immense opportunity for executives with the foresight to act now.

Ameritech brings you the first car phone as good as your office phone.

Bell Labs spent 20 years and over $200 million to stage this revolution in business communications. And Ameritech Mobile Communications, sister company of Michigan Bell, is investing another $12 million to build Detroit's new cellular network.

As a result, cellular telephones will be the first mobile phones as private as your office phone.

The first to offer direct dialing to anywhere in the world.

The first to give instant access to a line.

The first that are virtually static-free.

And the first available to anyone who wants one.

Which means, for the first time in history, millions of executives won't have to decide between sitting at their desks to answer the phone—or heading out in their cars to take care of business.

520 extra working hours every year

Now you'll be able to turn each and every minute of driving time into productive working time.

And that can add up to a lot of extra minutes in the typical work day.

If you spend even two hours a day in your car, that adds up to 520 hours a year—the equivalent of thirteen 40-hour weeks, or one entire business quarter.

So the sooner you equip your car with an Ameritech cellular telephone, the sooner you can start using those hours to call more customers. Expedite more orders. Phone more prospects. Check more inventory. And do more business.

Reserve your Ameritech cellular phone now.

When Ameritech Mobile Communications introduced cellular telephone service in Chicago last October, the response was overwhelming.

We expect similar demand when Ameritech service starts in Detroit. But if you act now, you can reserve an Ameritech cellular phone today, before the rush.

Simply call 1-800-662-4531, toll-free. Or return the coupon. But hurry.

This is your chance to be among the first to take advantage of another "useless gimmick" for business.

Before everybody else finds out just how useful it is.

Central America trip dispels teacher's perceptions

By KEN VOYLES

Central America is a complex region — even to such political luminaries as Alexander Haig and Henry Kissinger.

As Haig, Kissinger and many others before her have done, Northville Township resident Shirley Klokkena says she literally "was forced by her conscious and a need to know" to pack up one day and travel through the region. It was far from your usual "vacation trip" for the Northville teacher.

It turned out to be the only way she could come to grips with the flood of information coming out of the area and be able to maintain a balanced sense of vision about the United States' involvement in in such neo-political endeavors as covert counter-insurgency, military aid to countries that seem more fascist than democratic and economic support to prop up shaky democracies.

An English instructor with the Northville Public Schools, Klokkena made stops in Mexico, Honduras and Nicaragua during a three-week swing through the troubled hotspot. Her companions included five clergy of the Lutheran Church, four women, including a retiree and one journalist.

Since her return in April, Klokkena says she has not been able to clear her mind of what she saw of those countries — especially in Honduras and Nicaragua.

"My mind boggles with everything," she says after a barrage of questions left her searching for an order to describe what she experienced.

"How do I release this 'want' to let people know?" she asks in reply. "By writing in church newsletters, by meeting with people who have traveled there since and by speaking from my church's pulpit."

She is also deeply involved with a Hunger Task Force established by her church — the Sword of Spirit Church in Livonia — and has spoken at Madonna College.

Two weeks ago Klokkena gave her second talk from the pulpit of the church and what she told her fellow members is a story that sounds, at times, beyond believable.

"We started in Mexico," Klokkena says. "We visited squatter settlements, rural villages, talked with labor leaders and many, many refugees from the other warring countries in the region."

Compared to Honduras, Mexico seemed like a paradise, she says. "As soon as we arrived (in Honduras) we knew we were being watched and followed. By whom we didn't know at first. It added an unpleasant atmosphere to our four days."

The group's time in Honduras included visits with village peasants, human rights activists, U.S. and Honduran officials and active Christian organizations.

"We felt more threatened in Honduras than in Mexico or even Nicaragua," Klokkena says as she recalls a nightmarish story about an unexpected (and unexplained) visit by an "unofficial" member of the Honduran security police. Or so that's what Klokkena believed.

"It's hard to tell who's who and what's what there," she says. "We get a picture through our media that may not be distorted, but it's sterilized and cold."

"When we were in Nicaragua as compared with Honduras, we talked with the people, we ate with them and we cried with them. We cried over the moment of sharing we experienced and the flash of understanding that sometimes happens between people of distant connection."

The travel group found Honduras oppressive with daily lineups around local

"The poverty and reality of the area was exposed to us over and over."

— Shirley Klokkena

prisons and strange jeep-driving, pistol-toting men following them everywhere, even to a private meeting with human rights activists in the country.

One member of the group had his film confiscated and Klokkena's hotel room was broken into one night while she and her roommate slept, providing her enough negative memories of Honduras to find Nicaragua cordial.

"We looked at most facets of each society in the limited time available," says the mother of two and member of the Sanctuary movement which helps bring refugees to this country. "The poverty and reality of the area was exposed to us over and over."

In Nicaragua the visitors spoke with Sandinista officials, a member of the F.D.N. opposition, "contras" in Nicaraguan prisons, and members of the business community.

"Everywhere we went we discovered contradictory things about the country. In the U.S. you hear one thing, there you see another," Klokkena says. "I just can't help speaking out about what I saw and heard. This is a personal thing I can do. Call it a one-person crusade. So be it."

"We looked at all aspects of Nicaragua. Yes, it was political, and, yes, it was military. But the real reexamination comes in seeing and talking to the people. That's the way."

Dwight Sieggreen with some of his newfound friends

Adventure bounding in the Amazon jungle

We enjoyed the natives of the small villages as much as they enjoyed us. We were a curiosity to them with our constant snapping of pictures and interest in finding spiders and bugs. The children attached themselves to us whenever we arrived in a village, and they would continue to parade behind us until we returned to the river.

Local food is very different from our North American variety. Manioc mangos and piranhas make up a daily diet. A climb to the top of a palm tree was necessary to give us a palm heart salad. After the first day, I didn't watch the preparation of the food. Since there is no refrigeration, fresh food has to be obtained daily and the cleaning is done with water from the river — the same river used for so many other things. I found out quickly that the food was much better if I tasted only the product and resisted observing the process.

Since the trip this year would take us hours away from any medical care, it was necessary to be prepared in the event one of us should get bit by a snake. Special arrangements were made to obtain — and learn to administer — the antivenom which would be lifesaving if we should need it. It is hoped that we will not need the antivenom; however, an experience from last year precipitated this extra preparation.

A 13-foot boa constrictor was so well camouflaged that no one — including our Indian guide — noticed its presence on the trail we were following. Suddenly the guide jumped in front of me and after a brief struggle the snake was ours to take back to base camp to photograph. While in our little boat, the snake caused only a slight stir when he slithered out of the bag and had to be put back — very carefully.

Life in the jungle is hard, and survival is difficult. In addition to the danger the reptiles present to natives, there also are the risks of typhoid and yellow fever, Malaria and leprosy. Many of the illnesses still are treated by "medicine men" and "witch doctors."

The trip this year is deeper into the jungle. We are meeting people who have seen no one but their own tribesmen. We hope to bring back pictures from areas where no cameras have been, and to keep Indiana Jones alive in Northville.

AutoWorld: Where the car is king

By BUDDY MOOREHOUSE

Through the years, there have been songs about it, films about it, books about it and many, many dreams about it.

The automobile. Now there's an amusement park about it.

It's called Six Flags AutoWorld, and it just opened to the public July 4. AutoWorld, a $70 million theme park billed as the world's largest indoor entertainment complex, is located in downtown Flint.

The people at Six Flags couldn't have picked a better location. No industry has meant more to Flint than the automobile industry, with the entire community going up and down with it. As the auto industry goes, so goes Flint.

So it seems only right to reward Flint with AutoWorld, one of a new breed of year-round, indoor amusement parks. The bright new facility has employed a good many Flint-area residents, providing a much-needed economic shot in the arm.

Everyone can reap the benefits of AutoWorld, though, just by visiting it. As you would expect, most all of the exhibits concern the automobile.

Upon entering AutoWorld, one of the first things you'll see is a three-story model of a V-8 engine—working in slow motion so that you can see how an engine works.

The huge motor is located in a part of the park called "Automotive Wonders." Another main attraction in that area of the park is an animated presentation on how a car is designed. You can learn all of the things an engineer considers when designing a car.

If that presentation has inspired you to design your own car, you can. A video terminal located nearby lets a would-be engineer choose from a variety of body styles to design a car—with the emphasis on aerodynamics. After the car has been designed, the computer rates it for aerodynamic efficiency.

Designing a car isn't the only hands-on exhibit, though. Other video terminals let the AutoWorld visitor be tested for reaction time behind the wheel, while another terminal shows how hard it is to drive when drunk.

One of the highlights of AutoWorld is a visit to the Imax Theater to see "Speed," shown on a six-story-high screen with state-of-the-art stereo sound. The beautifully made, 23-minute film chronicles the history of speed.

You'll lose your stomach as the camera takes you around a mountain pass at high speed and down a roller-coaster. You truly become part of the movie.

The other movie offered at AutoWorld isn't as thrilling, but it is as entertaining. It's called "The Car of Your Dreams" and it's a 15-minute collection of some memorable television commercials for autos.

You can see Dinah Shore enthusiastically imploring everyone to "See the U.S.A. in your Chevrolet." The film also gives a good sample of all the celebrities who have hawked cars on TV—from Groucho Marx to Ed Sullivan to Ricardo Montalban.

It's also interesting to note the different ways cars have been pitched through the years. One ad has an engineer type saying, "Soon, every car in America will have holes in its side."

There aren't many rides at AutoWorld, with the exception of bumper cars and a merry-go-round. There are two ride-through exhibits—"The Great Race" and "The Humorous History of Automobility."

"The Great Race" takes riders through a mock Grand Prix course, letting you see snippets of some great race locations, such as Monaco and Pike's Peak. "The Humorous History of Automobility" shows animated characters telling about autos.

Taking a walk through "A Love Affair on Wheels" is a delight for any car buff, as you can view 22 vintage-model cars from every era of automobility. The '57 T-Bird will take your breath away.

If you get tired of looking at and hearing about cars, there are several other attractions at AutoWorld. Under a huge dome at the park's entrance are two reconstructed historic Flint streets, with shops and traveling performers lining the route, and a river flowing throughout.

A complete visit to AutoWorld takes about five hours. To get there, take I-75 north to downtown Flint. The park is open every day from 10 a.m.-10 p.m. Tickets are $8.95 per person. Children ages three and under are admitted free. After 5 p.m., tickets are $6.95 each.

Pepino's: Amazing change

out

KOVACS

Anyone who ever frequented the old Town Pump, a friendly but decidedly unpretentious tavern at the corner of West Walled Lake Drive and Pontiac Trail in Walled Lake, would be surprised to pay a return visit.

The Town Pump passed briefly through a period as another tavern named "Someplace Else" and now has been transformed into Pepino's, an eating establishment with considerably more appeal to those interested in matters of the palate.

Pepino's is owned by Joseph and Helma Bernardi, who bring many years' experience to the art of fine food. Joseph learned to cook from his father, who was a chef in Switzerland, and has worked as a professional chef for some 40 years.

In addition to serving as executive chef for the Ford Motor Company, he has worked at numerous area clubs, including the Detroit Athletic Club.

The Bernardis opened their own restaurant, The Old Town Cafe in Clarkston, approximately four years ago with their son and daughter-in-law, Bob and Cheryl Bernardi.

Their children now own and operate Bernardi's in Applegate Square on Northwestern Highway in West Bloomfield, while Joseph and Helma are holding forth at Pepino's in Walled Lake.

The transformation of the old Town Pump to Pepino's is just short of amazing. What was once a beer and burger bar with pinball machines in the corner is now a quietly comfortable restaurant. The beautiful old bar has been retained and polished up, while the rest of the restaurant has been decorated in shades of wine and salmon.

Brass ceiling fans turn slowly overhead, and a small marble fireplace adds a touch of elegance on a far wall. Unlike some restaurants which attempt to crowd as many tables as possible into the dining room, there's plenty of space between tables at Pepino's and the aisles between the booths on one side of the main dining area are wide, engendering a feeling of comfort and spaciousness.

Bret Rush and Pepino's Lamb chop special

Despite its name, Pepino's is not an Italian restaurant — Helma describes the fare as a combination of American and Mediterranean.

The word "eclectic" also seems appropriate, as the bill of fare ranges from light soups and sandwiches to decidedly more sophisticated cuisine.

For example, the menu includes hamburgers ($1.95) and cheeseburgers ($2.25), grilled reubens ($3.50) and hot corned beef ($2.95). But you can also order such appetizers as marinated herring ($2.95) and escargots in mushroom caps ($4.25) and then have veal scallopini picanti ($8.95) or fettucini ($6.95) for your entree.

There's also Pepino's antipasto salad and spaghetti ala Pepino for those who enjoy a "Mediterranean" flair to their dining.

Recent excursions to Pepino's, which has been open just four months, proved quite enjoyable. Meals are accompanied by a bread basket, a light, crisp dinner salad, and choice of potato or rice.

On our first visit, my companion raved over the orange roughy, a light and tender fish; while I praised the Veal Pepino ($8.95), tender slices of veal served with green peppers, onions and mushrooms covered with gruyere cheese, to such an extent my companion ordered it on our second trip.

I opted for the veal scallopini picanti the second time around and found it equally as tasty.

The same "eclectic" quality also is seen on the dessert menu. While there is such traditional fare as cheesecake and sundaes, the dessert menu also features homemade cannoloes and a wonderfully rich creation called triple chocolate cheesecake.

Pepino's is a first-rate addition to Walled Lake, giving the city a pleasant restaurant where diners can be cautious and traditional or delve into more sophisticated fare.

Pepino's, 118 West Walled Lake Drive, Walled Lake. Open Monday through Thursday from 11:30 a.m. to 10 p.m., Friday from 11:30 a.m. to 11 p.m. and Saturday from 5-11 p.m. Closed Sunday. Liquor license. Visa and MasterCard. 624-0133

(Lists compiled by Philip Jerome and Michele McElmurry)

With her interests ranging from icon collecting to cross country skiing, Nancy Soper, Northville Public Schools assistant superintendent for instruction, had a hard time selecting only a few of the things she enjoys doing in her spare time. However, here are some favorites from her list:

1. OLD INNS. She and her husband, John Hoban, Superintendent of Plymouth Schools, have found favorite inn spots worldwide — from Spain to Scotland. However, one of their favorites is only three hours away in Ontario. The Flora, formerly an old mill, is described as "very relaxing, with a quaint little village." A large Mennonite community 10 miles out of town provides open markets and splendid scenery for visiting travelers.
2. ST. CLAIR INN. A trip to the inn for brunch or an early dinner — and a view of the freighters — caps a lazy Sunday afternoon.
3. EASTERN MARKET. At least one Saturday a month for fresh fruit and vegetables. Lunch at an off-the-beaten path Detroit restaurant also is in order.
4. WEEKENDS IN CHICAGO. Favorite hotel is the small, restored Barclay. As art collectors, they enjoy the galleries in the city as well as the museum.

The Novi Hilton is rapidly taking shape at Eight Mile and Haggerty Road

STEVE FECHT

Everything seems to be falling into place for the City of Novi.

"In the coming year we're going to recognize the potential we've been aiming for all along," Novi City Manager Edward Kriewall says.

Kriewall points to construction of the city's second hotel, the Novi Hilton, and continued negotiations for a convention center as evidence the city is meeting its "great expectations."

By the end of 1984 Novi expects to announce the initiation of additional projects that will support the city's convention theme.

Convention business provides an anchor for future development, Kriewall says. He contends office, commercial and residential development will all "spin off" from the anchor the city is encouraging.

"Our strong hand seems to be convention potential with the hotels and restaurants that go with it," Kriewall says. "Novi is going to become the place to do business in southeastern Michigan."

Creating convention trade in Novi did not happen accidentally; it has been fostered by the city for many years. "A lot of our success is realizing where we ought to be going," says Kriewall. "We talked about it, stated it as a goal for two to three years, prepared for it and created our own kind of fever in terms of pushing for it."

"Timing has been critical in getting the Sheraton and the Hilton — the catalyst needed to establish a hostelry environment. Our advantage is our uniqueness. No other communities are gearing for this the way we are."

Although the city has been seeking development in specific areas, uncertainty regarding the city's ability to provide sewer service previously prohibited such a move. This year, for the first time, the city has been able to begin recruiting development. Sewer problems that have clouded the city's development picture for several years appear to have been resolved. Within five years the city will be able to provide as much sewer service as needed. In the short term sewer service is being provided through an agreement with Wayne County.

Novi can now begin "selling" its assets — its location on the expressways and its proximity to both Detroit and Lansing. The city is traversed by I-96, which connects with I-696 and I-275. Rail transportation is provided by the C&O railroad.

The enthusiasm for convention and office trade has been transmitted from city officials to developers, Kriewall maintains.

"When developers come into town we reinforce the feeling that we have this kind of potential and this is the place to be," Kriewall says.

One of the developers who recognized Novi's potential has built the city's first high-tech office park, Orchard Hill Place. The $100 million plaza will consist of more than 500,000 square feet of office space plus a Hilton Hotel, which is now under construction. Buildings for three companies — Hewlett-Packard, Digital Equipment Corporation and Norris Industries, already are complete. Two of the first tenants in the office park are Fortune 500 companies.

Through development of Orchard Hill Place at Eight Mile and Haggerty Road, Novi has developed a "sound high-tech base," Kriewall says. "We would like to see development in that area spill over into other parts of the city. It would fit in with our high-tech office/- convention theme."

Novi hopes to transfer the same type of enthusiasm to the heart of the community. The city is currently investigating development of a town center in the original downtown area.

The need for additional hotel space in Novi was pointed out in a study of the town center's potential by Zuchelli, Hunter and Associates. "Hopefully this will be integrated with the kind of pedestrian areas everyone seems to want to see," Kriewall says.

Plans for developing city-owned property on Walled Lake are another aspect of the city's growth that excites local officials. "We see the potential for physical construction by the spring of 1985," Kriewall says.

In both the town center and around the lake, Novi is looking for development to complement the existing commercial base.

Commercial development consists of two major shopping centers located near the center of the city and two small convenience-oriented shopping areas: one at Novi and Grand River, the other at Ten Mile and Meadowbrook.

The city's major commercial development is Twelve Oaks Mall, which encompasses 103 acres and has four major retailers: J.L. Hudson's, Sears, Roebuck & Company, JCPenney and Lord & Taylor. The mall provides tenant space for 154 retailers, specialty shops and restaurants arranged on two levels. Also included is a cinema complex with five theaters and seating capacity of 1,650.

The demand for multiples is high in Novi

Each of the major retailers has developed its own marketing study indicating the marketing area encompasses the highest per capita income area in Michigan and one of the highest in the United States.

In the same area is the West Oaks Shopping Center, a plaza occupied by major retailers such as K mart, Kroger, Service Merchandise and Perry Drugs. The center has eight additional businesses — banks, restaurants and specialty shops.

In the midst of the commercial area across from Twelve Oaks is the Sheraton Oaks Hotel. The hotel, with more than 220 rooms, restaurants, banquet facilities and a lounge, is one step toward Novi's goal of becoming a convention-oriented community.

Novi's commercial community is supported by a strong residential base.

There are 8,705 housing units in Novi. More than 50 percent are single family homes, while 34 percent are multi-family and 15 percent are mobile homes. Single family homes range in price from $40,000 to more than $100,000.

"Novi continues to show very strong signs in the single family housing market," Kriewall says. "We've been criticized for certain ordinances and restrictions, but statistics show an increased demand for homes. This is a natural place for the growth of single family housing."

At the same time, Novi is experiencing a resurgence in multiple family development. Approximately 1,200 multiple units are expected to receive site plan approval in the near future.

Novi also has a small, but strong, industrial tax base. Major industries are Michigan Tractor & Machinery Company, Guardian Industries, Weltronic and Mohawk Liquors.

Further employment opportunities will be generated by the convention industry, Kriewall expects. "There will be a lot of service jobs. We will have a place in the travel sector the state is trying to foster. It will create a base for our residents; graduating students won't have to leave to find jobs."

PATIENTS RECEIVE PERSONAL COUNSELING—

While Doctor Bernard Greenberg and his associate, Dr. Jay Berman, have been in the practice of obstetrics and gynecology together for three years, they only recently have moved their office to 24101 Novi Road.

Both stress that they offer a personal relationship with their patients and are among the few doctors who "allow and encourage patients to have natural childbirth after previously having had a Caesarean section birth."

Both physicians are certified to perform laser surgery. They are also board certified by the American Board of Obstetrics & Gynecology.

While appointments are required, the physicians report that usually it is possible to get one quickly as they also have a Southfield office on Northwestern near Twelve Mile. Their Novi office previously was located at Twelve Mile and Novi Road.

Counseling service and all other options are available to patients who have unwanted pregnancies to deal with, they note. The physicians also treat infertility and offer artificial insemination.

Doctors Greenberg and Berman became associated in the practice of obstetrics and gynecology on completion of their residencies in their specialization at Sinai Hospital following graduation from Wayne State University School of Medicine.

Dr. Greenberg received his BS degree from University of Michigan. He is married and the father of sons Mark and Michael. The family lives in Farmington Hills.

Dr. Berman received his B.S. degree from Queens College in New York. He and his wife have one son Jeremy and live in Southfield.

"We allow and encourage patients to have natural childbirth after previously having had a caesarean section birth."

They share their office hours: Dr. Greenberg is in the Novi office Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday and in the Southfield office Monday and Friday. Dr. Berman is in the Novi office Tuesday, Thursday and Friday and in Southfield Tuesday and Thursday. Saturday hours are rotated.

Appointments may be made at the Novi office by calling 348-2400; the Southfield office telephone number is 333-9460.

TIME ON OUR SIDE

It's not surprising that such national and international corporations as the Ford Motor Company, Korex, Pyles Industries, Mac Valve, Walter Toebe Company, Grinders for Industry, National Liquid Blasting Corporation and many more have decided to locate in Wixom. Time is critical in business. . . and when time's important, Wixom has lots of advantages.

1. Immediate access to I-96, a major east-west interstate highway.
2. Immediate access to rail service via the C&O and Grand Trunk Railroads, and air service via Spencer Airport.
3. Five minutes from Twelve Oaks Mall, a regional shopping center.
4. Five minutes from Sheraton Oaks, a brand new hotel with complete tele-conferencing facilities.
5. Five minutes from Proud Lake Recreation Area.
6. Ten minutes from Kensington Metropark.
7. Thirty minutes from international research and educational facilities at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.
8. Thirty minutes from Detroit and its research, business, educational and cultural resources.
9. Thirty-five minutes from Detroit Metropolitan Airport.
10. Thirty-five minutes from Detroit International Port Authority.
11. Forty minutes from international research and educational facilities at Michigan State University in East Lansing.
12. Forty-five minutes from the state capital in Lansing.

In Wixom, we understand the importance of time. But we'd also like to tell you about our low tax rates, the relatively inexpensive cost of land, sewer and water services, tax incentives, high-tech industrial park, schools, neighborhoods and a lot more.

To find out why more and more companies are finding Wixom a good place to do business, Contact the mayor's office at 624-4557.

WIXOM

"CITY OF OPPORTUNITY"

LAKES AREA

Lakes area communities were riding the wave of economic recovery last year with renewed industrial growth and commercial development.

Officials in Walled Lake, Wixom and Commerce Township exploited the rejuvenated market, forwarding incentives such as tax abatements to encourage local commercial and industrial operations to relocate or expand in the area.

The one threat to continued industrial growth — Grand Trunk Western Railroad's abandonment of its Wixom to Keego Harbor line — faded away when Franklin resident Laurence Coe purchased a portion of the line, maintaining the rail service option for existing and future business and industry.

When Grand Trunk announced plans to abandon the Wixom to Keego Harbor line, several local businesses and industrial operations feared the impact would be crippling. Haggerty Lumber, a Commerce Township wholesale lumber dealer, reported the changeover to trucking would cost an estimated $300,000 and would threaten to eliminate them from the market. Marco Brothers, a wholesaler of building products in Walled Lake, said abandonment of the line would force them to relocate. Armaly Sponge and Gay Toys, both in Walled Lake, also protested the abandonment.

But a day after the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) approved the abandonment, it approved Coe's purchase of 5.7 miles of the line. The purchase, orchestrated by Coe over the period of a year, preserved the economic viability of existing rail customers. In addition, Coe hopes the local rail service, which will connect with the Chesapeake and Ohio (C&O) in Wixom, will keep the door open for new industry in the area.

Industry is the backbone of employment and revenue in the lakes area, with many of the area's biggest employers having operated in the area for 20 years or more.

Commerce Township, now with three industrial districts, experienced a jump in construction of both new facilities and additions to existing facilities in the past year. Gay Toys, which straddles the Walled Lake/Commerce Township border, recently completed a 60,000-square-foot warehouse addition on the township side. The new warehouse capacity enabled the company to increase production, and approximately 25 new jobs were created. The township encouraged the project by granting tax abatement on the $450,000 addition. The City of Walled Lake cooperated by granting a city water line extension for the addition.

The township board also approved tax abatement to encourage C&T Glass Corporation to build a $650,000 factory in the township. Supervisor Robert Long said it was important for the township to grant the tax abatements because both Gay Toys and C&T could easily have gone to other areas to expand.

Other construction activity in the township includes a $165,000 professional office building on Commerce Road, a $75,000 remodeling project at Baldy Lounge on Cooley Lake Road (now Diamond Jim Brady's), a $38,000 addition to Walled Lake Collision on Maple Road and a $60,000 addition to Imperial Molding on Oakley Park Road.

"The development that's going in is very sophisticated," Building Inspector William Mitchell noted. With attractive exteriors and landscaping, the new commercial and industrial projects "would be an asset in any community," he added.

Williams International, a firm involved in the research and development of jet engines and gas turbines, remains one of the township's largest employers.

Other than the Commerce Village area, the township does not have a "downtown" to speak of. But the township is involved in the Union Lake action plan, which outlines improvements for the Union Lake business corridor along Cooley Lake and Union Lake roads. The Union Lake business area winds along the borders of four townships — Waterford, West Bloomfield, White Lake and Commerce. Commerce soon will consider amendments to its zoning ordinance to create uniformity and promote increased business activity in the area.

Walled Lake, which has the only downtown in Oakland County located on a lakefront, is moving ahead with plans to revitalize the downtown area. City Manager J. Michael Dorman noted the city ranked ninth out of 90 communities that submitted applications for participation in the Michigan Main Street Program. Although only the top seven were chosen to receive the free planning and design services from the state, the council went ahead and formed a "Main Street Committee" to study goals for the downtown area. The committee will work with local developers and property owners to promote desirable development in the city.

Prior to formation of the Main Street Committee, the council already was taking strides to encourage desirable development in the city by granting Commercial Redevelopment District (CRD) status. The CRD allows business owners to apply for tax abatement for remodeling and expansion.

Walled Lake's first CRD, the Penny Lake Grocery, received recognition from the city's Beautification Committee in February. The second CRD business, the Pontiac Trail Big Boy Restaurant, also received an award from the committee.

Big Boy owners Donald and Georgine Hayes were granted a six-year tax abatement on a $60,000 atrium-like addition to the restaurant. In addition to adding 70 seats, the project included extensive landscaping and parking lot improvements.

Meanwhile, the "Someplace Else" restaurant at Pontiac Trail and Walled Lake Drive changed ownership and became someplace quite different. New owners Joseph and Helma Bernardi remodeled and redecorated the restaurant, making "Pepino's" Walled Lake's first dining establishment with a license to serve alcoholic beverages.

Much activity took place along Maple Road in the past year, City Manager Dorman noted. The Casey Ambrose law offices recently opened across the street from the 52nd District Court. "The Maple Road corridor could become an office corridor associated with the court," Dorman suggested.

Also on Maple Road, the D&C Department Store closed after 30 years in Walled Lake. D&C's departure from Maple Plaza made room for the Ace Hardware Store across the street to move into the shopping plaza. The old department store was remodeled and enlarged to make room for the hardware store, which soon will reopen as ACO Hardware.

While there has been much activity in the business community, industrial operations in Walled Lake have remained much the same in the past year. Ex-Cell-O Corporation, which employs more than 250 people, remains the city's largest employer and largest taxpayer.

Like their neighbors in Commerce and Walled Lake, Wixom officials have tried to encourage business and industrial growth in the city. Wixom's largest employer is still the giant Ford Motor Company where Lincoln luxury automobiles are produced. But other industrial operations are expanding. Wixom granted tax abatement to the Korex Company for a 22,440-square-foot addition — the largest industrial construction project in Wixom last year. The addition was valued at nearly $600,000.

Wixom has continued work in its downtown area, completing sidewalks and other street landscaping.

SOUTH LYON

Residential construction is again on the rise in the South Lyon area

STEVE FECHT

Opportunities for development abound in the South Lyon area. And access to this tri-county area should be made easier by the impending construction of I-696, which will facilitate the east-west flow of traffic.

Nestled on Pontiac Trail between I-96 and US-23, the City of South Lyon stands ready to greet commercial, industrial or residential newcomers. Located unobtrusively in the treaty dary between Oakland and Livingston counties is South Lyon. There is plenty of unused capacity for development.

The 1980 census shows South Lyon is achieving that goal. The city council recently voted 82 acres for use as multiple residential land and another 20 acres for general commercial development. Located at the northeast corner of Pontiac Trail and Eleven Mile, the parcel was master planned light industrial and represented the city's largest vacant acreage for industrial purposes.

A major area developer, James Pelky, said he plans to build some 800 one- and two-bedroom condominium units there. He also plans to phase in the commercial development over the next decade.

In addition, Pelky is responsible for much of the city's current residential development. He built the senior citizen's co-operative Colonial Acres, which has added 36 new units already this year. A list of South Lyon's top 10 taxpayers issued in June by the city assessor places Colonial Acres in the number one slot. According to the recent census, 12 percent of the city's population is 65 years old or older.

Care Centers of Michigan, a Farmington-based corporation, is attempting to secure a certificate of need from the Michigan Department of Public Health to construct a 151-bed nursing home on the South Lyon/Lyon Township border. If successful, South Lyon's 2 1/2-miles would expand by some 23 acres through voluntary annexation. The reason for seceding from Lyon Township? A Care Centers of Michigan spokesperson said the facility needs South Lyon's sanitary sewer and water facilities.

South Lyon's major industry is Michigan Seamless Tube (MST), a division of Quanex Corporation. If South Lyon has a success story, MST is it. From humble beginnings in this small town, the company now has six other custom and fabricated metal products divisions and five subsidiaries in four states.

Another large industry in the Mill Street industrial park is Sun Steel Treating, which also was lured to South Lyon by its water and sewer availability.

Rapid growth is not new to South Lyon. Between 1970 and 1980, the population grew at a rate of 94.9 percent, making it the sixth fastest growing area in Oakland County. Things have slowed since then. So far this year, South Lyon has issued 36 building permits for Colonial Acres expansion, one permit for a single-family home, one permit for a public building and eight permits to construct garages.

South Lyon has about 1,999 households, 27 percent of which have one person 60 years of age or older. Twenty-nine years old is the median age of a city resident, the census states. About 66 percent of the city's 2,144 homes are owner-occupied, and 63 percent of the homes are valued between $50,000 and $79,999. The average family income in South Lyon is $23,782.

City residents pay 10.5 mills operating tax, seven mills for water and wastewater debt retirement and 1 mill for the public library. Including county and school taxes, city residents pay 20.83 mills.

throughways are Grand River, Milford Road and I-96.

Plenty of land is available for light industrial development. A new Armstrong and a Detroit Edison the northeastern sector is under construction on Grand River and Milford Road in the unincorporated village of New Hudson. G. Willicker's restaurant will employ 25 people and use one of the township's five Class C liquor licenses.

New Hudson is the seat of township government, hosting the township hall and one of two fire stations.

There is rail access through Lyon Township and South Lyon, via the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad. Earlier this year, Grand Trunk Western Railroad successfully abandoned its tracks through both municipalities.

Lyon Township is largely rural in nature, and many homesites are country estates of five acres or more. One big advantage Lyon Township enjoys is a low millage rate. In 1983, the township levied 3.90 mills for operating expenses and to provide police protection, according to Treasurer Evelyn Herald. The township lies in two school districts, South Lyon and Northville. Assuming the township tax levy remains the same, residents of the South Lyon School District will pay 41.10 mills in 1984. Those in the Northville district will pay at least 48.28 mills, plus a tax for the Wayne County Intermediate School District.

Single-family residences account for the majority of Lyon Township's growth this year. Building Clerk Jean Piper said 27 building permits for single family homes had been issued as of early August. Thirteen permits for apartment units were approved, four building permits for commercial concerns were issued and eight garages, decks or pools were started.

The median value of a home in Lyon Township is $69,590, according to the census, and 44 percent of the homes are valued between $50,000 and $79,999.

Eight-four percent of Lyon Township homes are owner-occupied, according to the federal government, while 2,049 are rented. Thirty-one percent of the homes are two-person households.

There are about 1,909 families in Lyon Township and the average family income was $27,222 in 1980.

About 1,846 people in the township are between the ages of 21 and 34, and the median age is 29. Eight percent of the population is 65 or older, and 28 percent is 17 or under. Fifty-one percent of Lyon's population is female, the census states.

A drive south on Pontiac Trail leads to Northfield and Salem townships in Washtenaw County. Northfield Township is largely an agricultural area, peppered with industrial developments around the US-23 corridor and North Territorial Road.

Governed by a five-member township board, Northfield also includes the senic Whitmore Lake area, an unincorporated village. Whitmore Lake's downtown area provides convenient shopping and socialization opportunities for Northfield residents.

Major industries in Northfield Township include Hoover International, Rhe-Tech and Carter Lumber.

Township Assessor Charlene Grendze said six building permits have been issued this year for new residential units, one for a single-family apartment, seven for pole barns or garages and five for additions to homes.

According to the 1980 census, Northfield's population is 4,672. There are 1,628 housing units in the township, 46 of which are seasonal dwellings. The majority of the homes (1,142) are owner-occupied. About 375 are rented.

There are 1,517 male residents and 718 females living in Northfield Township, according to the census. The average family income is $23,782.

of the residences house three or four people.

Thirty-three percent of the homes are valued between $50,000 and $79,999, with the median value being $51,890, according to the federal government.

Northfield Township lies in four school districts, which causes the tax rate to vary widely. The township levies a millage of 1.13 for operating expenses and fire needs. Residents in the Ann Arbor school district pay 50.03 mills. Those in the South Lyon district pay 46.63 mills. Persons living in the Whitmore Lake school district pay 53.17 mills and those in Dexter schools pay 46.15 mills.

Salem Township lies east of Northfield and is largely rural. The township is crossed by the C&O railroad in the northern corner. M-14 cuts through the southeastern portion.

The hamlet of Salem is attempting to secure government aid to construct a sewage treatment facility. The five-member township board has been pursuing the project for several years.

General Motors Proving Ground.... Milford, Michigan

why a proving ground? Through the efforts and foresight of Mr. Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., then President of General Motors, the Milford Proving Ground came into being in 1924 to develop General Motors vehicles that satisfy the needs of its customers and the requirements of the society in which we all live. This still stands true today, 60 years later.

where the phrase "People helping people" came from.....

The Proving Ground people test GM cars, trucks and components, 24 hours a day 7 days a week, under carefully controlled conditions to provide accurate, substantiated results to the 21 divisions and staffs located at the facility. Various laboratories dedicated to safety research, noise and vibration control, fuel economy, emissions testing, tire and wheel design and development, effect of electromagnetics and many other related automotive disciplines.

what it takes to be a proving ground.....

The GM Proving Ground has over 4000 acres with 128 miles of test roads ranging from super highways to dirt roads, from banked, high-speed test tracks to punishing Belgian blocks, from powder sand to soup mud, from hairpin curves to seemingly impossible grades...just about any condition that can be found in North America. Over 100,000 test miles are driven every day on these roads.

making cars & trucks even better .....

Conditions & customer expectations keep changing. Cars and trucks are driven more...driven longer...driven in all kinds of weather and over different kinds of road surfaces. The Proving Ground keeps abreast of these changes by adjusting its miniature "world" to match.

NORTHVILLE

JOHN GALLOWAY

Northville's Ford Plant is one of Henry Ford's original "village industries"

Best known for its innovative downtown renovation project, Northville is experiencing a boom in development arising from recent economic recovery. Plans stored in mothballs through the recession are finally making headway, while officials lay the groundwork for further expansion.

While the Victorian-era downtown attracts most of the attention from a business perspective, the community includes both a 2.7 square mile city and a 17 square mile township bounding it on three sides. Both are situated in the northwest corner of Wayne County, with a portion of the city extending north of Eight Mile Road into Oakland County.

Much of the current growth is taking place in the township, primarily a bedroom community of mid- to high-priced homes with an official population recently updated to 13,005. Under construction at Eight Mile and Haggerty, the far northeast corner of the community, is a Meijer Thrifty Acre store.

Accompanying that development is a planned sewer interceptor to stretch from Eighth Mile south into Plymouth Township, solving a major sewage disposal worry and opening the door for additional office, commercial and residential development on the township's east side.

A September groundbreaking is planned for a large scale (1,300 unit) housing complex on Sheldon Road between Five and Six Mile. The complex, which will include both elderly and market rate housing, will return 101 acres of county-owned land to the tax rolls and reduce the heavy load of non-taxable property in the township (more than a third of its land area is owned by non-taxable state and county entities).

The primary concern in the township has been a lack of sewer capacity that threatened to stall growth indefinitely — the current construction project expanding capacity through the Middle Rouge parkway, together with a larger scale county-wide project, has addressed that problem.

Housing construction starts in the township have returned to pre-recession levels, though not to the record pace of the late 1970s. Ultimate population in the next century is projected at more than 40,000 by SEMCOG, which does not anticipate full development of many government owned properties.

Sales of existing homes are also holding up well with a 19 percent gain reported through mid-84 compared with the previous year.

Given the residential concentration, it should be no surprise that the business scene in Northville is dominated by retail and service concerns, led by the downtown shopping district with its many fine restaurants and supplemented by moderately sized shopping centers in outlying areas. Office uses are common in the city, and the township is beginning to see development in this area.

Major development in the township runs along the Seven Mile and Six Mile corridors from Northville Road east to Haggerty, with most of the commercial uses on Seven Mile. Housing construction in the primarily rural areas west of Northville Road is expected in the coming decade.

Industry is primarily light and concentrated in the city. An industrial park at the eastern edge of the city and running into the township includes several small businesses. On Main Street are others, such as a Ford Motor Company plant that is hardly the image of large-scale manufacturing. The plant employs fewer than 100 at present making fuel tanks, and, as one of the last of Henry Ford's village industries facilities, sports a waterwheel and duck pond that makes it a favorite gathering place for residents.

Just outside the township's eastern boundary is I-275, while less than a mile to the south is M-14 leading to Ann Arbor and I-96 to Detroit. To the north, I-96 is but a few minutes away from the city.

The Chesapeake & Ohio railroad passes the depth of the community, traversing it north-south from Plymouth en route to Wixom and communities farther north. No Northville stops are presently made by the railroad, though discussions have taken place that could lead to service being provided businesses in the community.

The C&O also cuts across the southwest corner of the township (near Five Mile and Napier), and the land in this area is designated by township planners for light industrial development.

City population of roughly 5,700 represents nearly saturated development of its residential areas, though some remains exploitable in the Oakland County portion north of Eight Mile. Efforts to encourage growth have stressed the business community, and primarily the downtown.

Under an innovative tax increment tax financing plan, the downtown area was "dressed up" in a project completed more than two years ago. Active merchants have made the most of the attractive new surroundings, running numerous promotions to bring potential customers into town.

Businesses have made capital improvements and relocated within the town, but major new developments have not come in as rapidly as was hoped. Several major changes are expected soon near the Main and Center Street intersection.

Meanwhile, public sector improvements continue. Northville High School, the only one in what is considered one of the better school districts in the region, is undergoing renovation and expansion to meet long-term future needs.

The Northville Community Recreation Department is housed in a former school building that is undergoing less extensive updating to accommodate a rapidly expanding program (the director projected doubling the number participating from last fall to this).

Road improvements are ready to go forward on Eight Mile, which will be widened through much of the city, and on Beck Road, being paved from Novi south to Eight Mile. Wayne County is likely to find in this completed project the impetus to pave and perhaps widen Beck south to M-14.

The Dinser brothers, Mike, Tom & Billie, with poinsettias in different stages of development. The initial cuttings are propagated under a mist system.

Dinser's...four generations of flowers and plants

With their showy red and white flowers, poinsettias are perennial favorites in shopping malls, offices and homes during the holiday season.

But few people realize the time and effort involved in producing the plants, according to Mike Dinser of Dinser's Greenhouse in Novi.

Dinser is one of four generations in the family-owned and operated business which specializes in potted and cut flowers such as mums, Easter lilies and poinsettias.

"Because we are basically a holiday-oriented business, most of our production takes place between the holidays. We start our poinsettias right after Easter," Dinser explained.

Each spring, Dinser orders about 3,000 "stock plants" from a California breeder. Those stock poinsettias are allowed to grow to promote their growth in order to produce multiple cuttings. Our stock plants yield about 100,00 cuttings per crop.

The cuttings continue to grow until mid-July when they are put into pots. This process usually results in about 20,000 pots, or 250,000 flowers. By the end of September, each plant is potted and grows until Christmas.

"It's important to have the plants potted by September because that's when we start having shorter days," Dinser explained. "At that point poinsettias need about 11 hours of darkness a day to initiate a bud."

To meet early holiday orders from malls, Dinser uses artificial means to simulate the "short day" effect so the plants can be ready sooner.

Although much of their business is wholesale — they supply over 200 area flower shops, the Dinsers also sell to the public directly from the greenhouse.

"The public is more than welcome to come in and buy plants; a lot of people still don't realize we're here," said Dinser.

"Buying directly from us gets rid of the middle man so it's really a great value, especially for people who buy plants as gifts," he continued. "In addition to saving money, they also get a better selection."

"Of course, they aren't real fancy with trim and bows," he laughed.

Dinser suggested customers come in to look at the plants around Thanksgiving when the endless sea of flowers is truly beautiful and the selection is at its largest.

Poinsettias purchased at Thanksgiving will stay in bloom well beyond.

The poinsettias are available in red, white, pink and a red-white combination, and come in approximately six sizes. The largest potted plants have between 35 and 45 blooms; the smallest have just a few. One of Dinser's favorites is a large, 10-inch hanging plant that has 60-70 blooms.

"It's indescribable," he said. "If you set it on the ground, it takes up a good portion of the floor."

One of last year's best sellers was a 7½-inch pot with 18-25 blooms, which sold for only $14 — about half what it would cost in a store.

"Buying directly from us gets rid of the middle man"

Although Dinser's business is to sell plants, he reminds people they can save money by reviving last year's poinsettia.

To get the poinsettia to bloom, Dinser suggests that in early August the plant be pinched back so only four or five sets of leaves remain below the original pinch point on the stem.

The plants should then have plenty of light and water, and be fertilized once a week. By the 15th of September they should be put into a short day.

During this time, Dinser suggests putting the plant in a closet 11 hours per day. He warns that darkness is critical. ~~any added brightness including house lights now turn down or even stop the plant's development.~~

At this stage, smaller shoots on the plant may have to be pruned. The poinsettia can last another full holiday season, if directions are followed carefully. If not, would-be home gardeners know where to go to get the best bargain on a new plant.

TRANS-MAT SYSTEMS, Inc.

Trans-Mat Systems provides manufacturers with versatile material handling systems that help slash production costs.

Without sacrificing quality, Trans-mat designs, manufactures and installs production-boosting products and systems for the automotive, agricultural, nuclear, food and appliance industries.

The company, located at 4475 Lawson Road in Howell, is equipped to handle the production bottlenecks of large and small assembly plants.

Ford, General Motors and Chrysler have all purchased the services of Trans-Mat to make their assembly lines more efficient.

"We have the design and manufacturing capabilities to do all the work from our own plant," said Trans-Mat President Thomas Hayman.

"We are unique in that respect. Having these capabilities ensures that we have direct control over the quality of the product. We also have contact with the customer as well."

Hayman said that the cost of installing a complete materials handling system varies. "It may cost millions of dollars or it may cost as little as $10,000 for an individual machine. The key is to make the system as versatile as possible."

Two of the systems designed by Trans-Mat are the telescoping belt conveyor and the over/under gondola handler.

The telescoping belt conveyor is an extremely flexible, portable unit that is ideal for jobs where parts must be moved between points of varying distance and elevation.

One advantage of the system is that it greatly reduces press set-up time since connecting a series of presses with varying bolster heights and varying spacing can be accomplished quickly.

A second advantage is that conveyors of specific length are not needed because of the flexibility of telescoping belt conveyors.

Nearly 400 of the new conveyors have been installed in the automotive industry, Hayman said.

Trans-Mat's over/under gondola handler was designed especially for assembly plants.

The unit provides more efficient, cost effective handling of full and empty gondolas. It also minimizes fork truck handling, saves handling time, makes maximum use of plant air space and increases worker safety.

"Our customers realize we have a good grasp on the capabilities of our systems and that reassures them," Hayman said.

Formerly called Schram's of Lansing, Trans-Mat is a division of Trans-Industries of Waterford.

Although the company employs only 25 people, Hayman expects that number to double by next year.

"This industry is really growing," he explained. "The demand for new technology coupled with intense competition between manufacturers has accentuated the need for more efficient production methods."

The company employs three engineers who have experience in mechanical and electrical engineering.

"One of the main goals of any engineer in this field is to make sure that the systems that are designed will do what we want it to do. Otherwise, we haven't met our goal," he said.

Since Trans-Mat does business throughout the country, the company's salespeople do a lot of traveling, Hayman said.

"We have two direct salesmen who deal directly with the customer and then we have two representatives for the company who try to stir up business."

Hayman is proud of the expediency with which his company can design, manufacture and install a materials handling system. Said Hayman: "If a manufacturing plant has a problem with its production methods we offer the solution, guaranteed."

This telescoping belt conveyor is completely portable and is ideal for moving parts between points of varying distance and elevation.

The gondola handler provides more efficient, cost effective handling of full and empty gondolas, minimizing fork truck handling.

Orin Jewelers Happy To Be In Northville

"Fantastic!"

That's how Orin Mazzoni, Jr. of Orin Jewelers, Inc., described the store's first year of business in its Northville location.

"People have been very receptive and helpful. It's been a really nice association," said Mazzoni of the reaction to the new branch of the 30-year-old, family-run jewelry store.

Mazzoni, who co-owns the store with his brother, Michael, is very pleased with the response Orin Jewelers has received, especially after being part of the downtown area for such a short time.

The store, located in a two-story building at the corner of Main and Center Streets, opened last July after a complete overhaul and renovation. It is the only branch of the original store, which was started by Mazzoni's father and is located in Garden City.

Despite the new interior and exterior, Mazzoni had hesitations about the community's reaction to the new business.

"I was a bit afraid that people weren't going to trust another jewelry store right away," he explained. A great community response quickly erased Mazzoni's hesitation, however.

One of the main reasons for Orin Jewelers' popularity is the comfortable atmosphere generated by the staff. They are highly trained and have a good knowledge of stones and quality. In addition, they are enthusiastic and helpful, but never overbearing — customers do not hesitate to come in just to look or say hello.

"People enjoy coming into the store, and customer rapport is an important part of this business," explained Mazzoni. "We provide individualized service, and people appreciate that kind of thing because it's hard to find today."

Mazzoni is dedicated to providing his customers the best possible quality for what they want to spend. He also stresses the importance of buyer-education.

"We'll spend time with the customer and point out things he should look for or expect for the money he is spending," Mazzoni explained. "We don't give snow jobs. When a customer leaves this store, he knows exactly what he is buying."

"This type of service promotes customer trust, which is important in maintaining long-term community service," said Mazzoni. "And service is the backbone of our business."

The desire for excellence to its customer is evident in Mazzoni's professional credentials, as well as those of his staff.

"It's nice to be in an area where people are so supportive..."

He is a certified gemologist, one of the highest titles given by the American Gem Society, and his staff includes registered jewelers who are studying to become certified gemologists. Store Manager David Beyer, who started as a floor sweeper in Garden City, is one of those studying for certification, which takes three to five years. There are only 20 certified gemologists in the state.

"Anyone can set up a store and call himself a gemologist," Mazzoni explained, "but by taking the time and effort to go through the educational process and become certified, you provide your customers with a degree of professionalism not many stores can offer."

Orin Jewelers deals in diamonds and fine jewelry, watches and precious gems, and also provides a large number of watch and jewelry services. These include custom design and re-mounting, and redesigning antique jewelry. They also specialize in repair work.

Mazzoni's sister, Joyce Pappas, provides bridal consulting for the business. Mazzoni is very enthusiastic about the future of Orin Jewelers and about being part of the Northville community.

"We're very community-oriented. It's nice to be in an area like this where people are so supportive of the downtown area; it's a nice attribute," he said.

"We are looking forward to serving the Northville area for many years."

Community Federal Credit Union:

"People Serving People"

Community Federal Credit Union in Northville is a unique savings and lending organization. It is a non-profit financial institution established to assist people in sound management of their financial affairs.

"We are not a conglomerate — we're people serving people," explained Manager Jackie Harris.

Members of the credit union are not merely customers, they are owners who share in the credit union's earnings through dividends on savings and competitive rates on loans.

By depositing money in a credit union, people are able to keep their money inside the community, said Harris.

The Northville office was established in 1977 as a full service branch of Community Federal in Plymouth, which began in 1959.

According to Harris, the branch serves many Northville residents and their relatives. Community Federal now has a Canton office and four Branches — one in Lewiston, Atlanta, Gaylord and Hillman servicing members in Otsego and Montmorency Counties in northern Michigan. This expansion and new membership resulted in $3.6 million in dividends being paid to shareholders.

Membership in the credit union is $5 per share and entitles members to all of its services.

These services include interest-paying checking accounts, daily interest savings accounts, Money Market accounts, line-of-credit instant cash advances, Individual Retirement Accounts and savings certificates.

Members with established Community Federal accounts are offered low-cost loans for home improvements, Equity loans, automobiles, recreational vehicles, mortgages and recreational purposes.

A new service this year is Net Check, in which any member who deposits his entire Social Security, Railroad, Government Employment or payroll check in the checking account is entitled to special services. These include free check printing, free money orders and Travelers Cheques and no monthly service charge.

In addition to serving individuals, the credit union also services local business, Harris explained.

Commercial loans and MasterCard/Visa charge services also are among services arranged for area merchants.

Involvement in this area began with payroll deduction plans for local school and government employees, and, said Harris, "payroll deduction plans are still a very important part of our service."

According to Harris, the purpose of Community Federal is to "do the best we can to service the membership."

In order to meet this goal, the credit union — located on the northwest corner of Main and Center Streets — is open Monday through Thursday from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday hours are 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Northville announces plans to extend downtown project

The City of Northville has become well-known in the past few years for the quality of its downtown development project. In the coming year, it plans to follow up with a second phase.

Given the success of the renovation along Main Street and on North Center, the second phase is likely to be more of the same along remaining areas of the district, plus some other items intended to round out the project.

The city's Downtown Development Authority likely will begin meeting and making specific plans for the second phase development this September, reported city manager Steven Walters. Given proper conditions, the first steps in construction could begin next spring.

Federal block grant funding has been secured to pay for the planning, part of which was already done with the first phase. Walters said the DDA will examine methods of financing construction of the second phase development, including the innovative tax increment plan used to pay for the work already done.

The first phase concentrated on Main and Center streets and included a revised street layout with widened sidewalks, brick crosswalks, a town clock on Main, small parks, tree plantings, sidewalk benches and Victorian street lights. The theme will be carried into other streets within the DDA (which might be expanded) during the second phase, which will also focus on such functional items as expanded parking areas, Walters said.

According to planners in Oakland County and the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG), the population figures obtained during the 1980 census are still about the same for the Milford-Highland area.

Why then has the Huron Valley School District, which covers those two townships, closed three elementary schools in the four years since the census was taken? Doesn't it mean the population is dropping?

Gordon Lambert, planner for Oakland County, explained the seeming discrepancy this way. "Family-size has decreased dramatically. There is a stable population, but there has been a great increase in the number of people over the age of 60 years.

"A little over 10 percent of the Milford Village population was over 60 years of age in 1970. In 1980 the census showed a 36 percent increase in the population of this age group in the village. In the township the story was the same. Here, the census indicated a 75 percent increase in the number of people over the age of 60," Lambert advised.

Authorities at Huron Valley Schools concur with his assessment. "We estimate that 72 percent of the people in our district do not have children in school," said Sally Horchler, former school board president. "Even though this includes young married couples as well as senior citizens, it is a far cry from the 1970s when almost everyone had a school-aged child."

Lambert explained that many factors affect population. "During depressed times the birth rate decreases. Also, as years of education increase for the population as a whole, the birthrate decreases. Both of these factors are operating in Oakland County and affect Milford Township."

"On the other hand," Lambert cautioned, "the post World War II baby-boom babies are having babies. There is a small increase in the birth rate now which will last from three to 10 years. It is nothing like the post World War II increase, however."

Despite Lambert's prediction that there is a slight and temporary rise in the birth rate, Jim Faust, director of pupil personnel services at Huron Valley Schools, expects the enrollment of Huron Valley to continue to decrease at least until the 1988-89 school year.

"Since 1980, kindergarten through 12th grade enrollment in the Huron Valley Schools has decreased by 1,442 pupils. Some 1,457 students will be lost between 1984 and 1989, resulting in a total decline of some 2,899 pupils over 10 years," Faust predicted.

What will be the effects of an aging population and a declining birthrate?

"Children born today will have better opportunities in jobs and lifestyles," Lambert suggests, "but they will have to care for a larger group of older citizens."

In the future several factors could have a marked influence on growth in Oakland County in general and Milford in particular. The resurrection of M-275 and the improvement of the economy as a whole could all affect population growth.

On the other hand, the population in all of Oakland County is influenced by the prosperity and growth of the automobile industry. "No one predicts employment in the auto industry will ever increase to the pre-recession heights," Lambert cautions. "Population increases, especially increases caused by migration, will reflect this decrease in employment opportunities."

Milford Township already has begun to reflect the changes in population described by Lambert. The village and township have joined together in a senior citizen housing study. Baker School, which was recently closed, has been investigated as a probable senior citizens' center, and the resurrection of the M-275 construction is more than a rumble.

Bell Telephone program helps retain business

Michigan communities caught in the squeeze of loss of revenues due to businesses and industries moving their operations to the sunbelt may be interested in a new service offered by Michigan Bell.

Under the Industrial Business Retention and Expansion Program presented by the telephone company, communities will be able to obtain a survey of local business needs free of charge and, perhaps, discover ways to help retain a viable business community.

The program is designed to generate information on the concerns of local business which communities can use in developing action plans to retain and expand their business and industrial base, according to John Currie, manager of economic development at Michigan Bell.

"Sometimes something like a traffic pattern in a downtown business district may cause a struggling business to decide to close or move away," the manager added. "In that case, perhaps a simple change in traffic flow could influence a business owner to stay."

Steve Balasia, Bell staff manager assigned to economic development in Michigan, said the program has been very successful in Wisconsin for the past year but has only recently been offered in this area. Balasia is currently serving as coordinator for a survey in Ionia County, the first one undertaken in Michigan under the new Michigan Bell program.

"We will work with any community in which government officials, civic leaders and businesses show an interest in the economic development program," Balasia commented, adding that discussion of initiating a survey in some downriver communities is currently underway.

Balasia explained that the program operates with local volunteers and must have a true community commitment in order to generate necessary information. Michigan Bell will make a presentation for any community that shows interest, he added. "Once we have a commitment, we need volunteers from the community. Usually a community project manager is enlisted through the aid of the city or the Chamber of Commerce to work with the Michigan Bell team."

Volunteers also are needed to carry out the interview process with businesses and industries in the community. Balasia said that usually one volunteer is recruited for every three companies to be interviewed.

The training session presented by Michigan Bell is 2-3 hours in length during which the volunteers are familiarized with the survey questionnaire. Balasia explained that the volunteers' interviews have a two-part thrust of gaining information and giving information.

"The first part is to receive knowledge of the problems and strengths of the business community," Balasia said. "The second part of the interview process is designed to help business and industry owners learn what is available to them, such as help that the Small Business Administration and the State of Michigan offer on the local level."

"It is a two-way process," Balasia added. "On a one-to-one basis we solicit information and we also provide it. It may be the first time anyone has sat down with the owners to try to determine their problems."

Currie, who heads the three-member economic development group, said, "The first priority if you're going to have business and industrial development is knowing what it will take to keep what you have now.

"We'll ask business people to be as candid as they can about sales and labor conditions, community and governmental relations, and what could be done to improve them."

Both Currie and Balasia stressed that all survey data is confidential. From the information gleaned, Michigan Bell prepares industrial profiles which communities can use to develop specific business retention and expansion programs.

"We run the data through the computer and then make a formal presentation to the community without breaching the confidentiality of the survey in any way," Balasia explained.

"In Wisconsin, we have communities coming to us now to ask for help," the staff manager added. "We have completed at least five studies there and have found the communities to be extremely happy with the results."

Balasia said the entire process from community commitment to presentation of results takes approximately six months. "We're really excited about it because we feel it is really well structured and offers real assistance in retention and development of Michigan communities," he said.

"We (Michigan Bell) are committed to being a good corporate member of the communities we service and we have a big interest in seeing that Michigan has a viable economy," Balasia concluded.

"We want to do all we can to assure continued economic growth and good jobs in Michigan because a healthy business climate benefits everybody — workers, communities and businesses, including Michigan Bell," Currie added.

Businessmen must be aware of popular scams

There are probably as many dishonest ways to part a business from its money as honest ones.

Business scams come in all forms, but three frequently used are office supply sales, advertising sales and charity pleas. By arming themselves with information, knowing the right questions to ask and following up on suspicious requests, business owners can outwit the con men.

Information on protection against scams is available from the Better Business Bureau, while the Charitable Trust Division of the Attorney General's office offers information on charity pleas.

Business people can protect themselves by following a few common-sense rules, advises Ann Slawnik of the Better Business Bureau. "If it sounds too good to be true it probably is," she says. "If they use an aggressive pitch — asking you to make an immediate decision, be wary."

Businesses frequently fall prey to "paper pirates." These solicitors sell office supplies to companies that have not ordered them, misrepresent themselves as affiliates of major office suppliers and do fraudulent repair work.

"They hit everyone. But the medium-size business probably has the most to lose," Slawnik says. "Big business has a good tracking system for its invoices. Smaller business has invoices handled by one person. But in the medium business they can be handled by more than one person, and they may not know what the others are doing."

To protect themselves businesses should never make a commitment to someone they don't know, Slawnik advises. They also must control their accounting procedures.

Slawnik explained a typical office supply scam: "A person in your company will order four bottles of copy machine toner. A person will call saying they are the supplier for your supplier and they have received your order for 16 bottles. In a lot of cases they will talk to the wrong person, or the person they talk to won't think fast enough to dispute the order.

Slawnik: 'If it sounds too good to be true it probably is. If they use an aggressive pitch — asking you to make an immediate decision, be wary.'

When the order arrives, the person who receives it may believe it is correct and you end up with something you didn't order."

Businesses also are frequently taken in by solicitors offering "a great shipment of office equipment" from a stock liquidation sale. "They say you're getting it at bargain prices, but when it arrives it's just junk. And you've paid for it."

Solicitations which look almost exactly like invoices have been used by some "paper pirates." They have a very tiny line at the bottom which say they are solicitations. "If a business does not have detailed bookkeeping, the 'invoice' might just be paid."

One thing that makes many of these pitches convincing is the person making solicitations knows the names of key people in the organization. Sometimes these names are learned through a call from a person saying they are conducting a survey. "This way they learn the name of the CEO, the treasurer or members of the board. When they call back, they drop a few names to persuade you their pitch is legitimate."

"They've learned if they can get a name, they can get in the door," Slawnik says.

And if they can't get in the front door, some will go to the back door. Slawnik says people posing as repairmen will go to the back door of a shop and offer free inspections or repairs. Sometimes they say they have been called to service a typewriter or copy machine. The machines are either taken for service and never seen again, or the 'repair person' will switch machines, leaving an inferior one behind, Slawnik warns.

Businesses trying to advertise their products and services often are taken in a "directory dodge," Slawnik says. The dodge usually works this way: A telephone solicitor will offer an advertisement booklet similar to the Yellow Pages. They often are aimed at a specific geographical area or directed to a specific business, such as a guide for all plumbers in Michigan. The guides go by names such as the Gold Pages or the Phone Book. Advertisers pay for space in the booklet, but it's never published.

"In one case, we recently became aware that a lot of businesses were taken in by this kind of scam. The pitch was for businesses already in the Yellow Pages. They were told if they took half the money they spent in the Yellow Pages and put it in the second guide, they would get two advertisements for the price of one. They paid between $150 to $300 and the booklet was never published. The promoter is now in Florida — in jail," says Slawnik.

Businesses should always ask to see a copy of the publication, Slawnik says. They should beware of first-time directories, she adds.

Slawnik says there are two primary types of charity pleas. One sounds like it is connected with a law enforcement organization. The second plays on a person's sympathetic feeling for the handicapped.

"There are telephone solicitors selling tickets or seeking donations. They tell you things like: 'the orphans will attend.' Often it turns out the majority of the money donated goes toward putting on the show, not to charity. Those playing on people's sympathy sell things like light bulbs made by the handicapped. They're usually for-profit corporations and the percentage of handicapped employees is very small."

Business people are bombarded by charity pleas. The number of requests for money have made some business owners cynical. As one local businessman said: "We get requests from all kinds of Benevolent Orders of Sisters to send the needy children of Franklin Village to camp. You just have to learn to say no."

For some business people there is an alternative. The attorney general's office recommends getting as much information about the organization as possible before making a decision to donate.

"When an individual calls for contributions the most important thing to do is get information," says Helen Bartlett, Charitable Trust supervisor for the attorney general. "Find out where the charity is located, what services it provides in your area and how long it has been in business. Don't rush into anything, allow time."

Bartlett suggests learning whether the charity is licensed by the attorney general's office. Learn how much money raised goes to services compared to how much goes to administration of the charity. (The attorney general's office believes 75 cents of each dollar should go toward providing services.)

Ask if the solicitor is a volunteer or paid employee. If the solicitor is a professional, find out if he is licensed by the attorney general's office.

Bartlett says: "Whether they're selling tickets, ads or seeking donations don't commit yourself during the first call. Don't ever deal with anyone who wants to come and pick up money."

"Always pay by check," Bartlett says. "If you find out later the organization is fraudulent, you can stop payment. Beware of demands for cash-only and high-pressure telephone solicitation followed by runners coming to pick up money. Most legitimate charities allow you to write a check."

PROGRESSIVE MACHINERY

In the competitive hi-tech market, Progressive Machinery Corporation stands out as a company that has survived and prospered.

As a producer of special automated manufacturing systems, Progressive celebrated its 50th anniversary recently by moving its operations to Howell.

Located at 2280 West Grand River, Progressive increases their manufacturing capacity to serve large corporations such as General Dynamics, Rockwell International, Chrysler, Ford and General Motors.

"We have close to 700 clients that include some of the biggest industrial corporations today," said David Nacy, president and general manager of Progressive.

"We excell in business because people in industry know we've been producing quality work for a long time," he said. "Customers feel reassured with us."

Progressive designs and builds systems for the automotive, appliance, and metal furniture industries. The corporation also does work for the U.S. Defense Department and the aerospace industry. Much of the work done is accomplished in the company plant, which measures 100,000 square feet.

Nacy said it is not unusual for a job to cost millions of dollars. "These systems are elaborate and represent the latest technology and state of the art. We are an extremely diversified manufacturer."

In recent years, robotics have played a key role in Progressive's production efforts. Nacy said robotics offer several manufacturing advantages.

"Robots are more flexible in the sense that they can work in an environment that might be considered a health hazard for humans."

"Also, robots can help by doing the redundant, boring jobs on the assembly lines that were once done by humans."

A subsidiary of the Lansing based Maxco Corporation, Progressive Machinery has been involved in the use of robotics since 1959.

"We were one of the first company's to recognize the importance of robotics," he said. "A lot of the components that go into the robots have created new jobs for people."

Currently, Progressive employs 100 people. Nacy predicts that number will rise to 125 within the next year.

He said the response to the corporation locating in Howell has been positive. "We came to Howell because we wanted to work in the community to develop jobs. We are a very people oriented corporation."

On staff at Progressive is a group of application engineers who design manufacturing systems. The corporation is equipped with its own test staff and facilities

The corporation is recognized nationwide. "We have 17 sales representative firms set up all over the country to assist our clients," Nacy said. "In southeastern Michigan we have five sales representatives."

He speaks highly of the staff members that he works with and is convinced some of them are the best in the business.

"We have a high level of skilled people in this company that communicate well together. We hold periodic staff meetings to ensure the operation is running smoothly, this would include production and quality control."

Making a profit in the manufacturing systems marketplace while meeting customer demands is the corporation's biggest challenge according to Nacy.

"We've succeeded where others have failed because we've been able to build the best product available, outbid the competitors and still make a profit," he said.

"This business is a high-risk business, if you have the best people in the business with the right attitude you can't lose."

DENTAL SPECIALISTS PROVIDE UNIQUE CARE FOR AREA RESIDENTS

Drs. Steve Bernier and Tom Danos are prosthodontists, dental specialists trained to provide a wide range of treatment related to the head and neck. Prosthodontics, by definition, is "the science and art of replacing one or more missing teeth and their associated parts in order that impaired function, appearance, comfort and health of the patient may be restored." The replacement of lost teeth can be accomplished with the use of removable prostheses, either complete or partial dentures, or with fixed (not removable) prostheses, of which the fixed bridge is most common.

In order to be licensed by the State of Michigan to limit a dental practice to prosthodontics, the practitioner must complete an additional two year course of study beyond the graduate level and successfully complete a board examination. Dr. Bernier currently teaches denture prosthodontics at the University of Michigan Dental School. The fundamentals of good denture construction that he teaches at the University are carried over to the patients he serves in private practice. Dr. Danos received his graduate degree in fixed prosthodontics from the University of Michigan. Through both the removable and fixed approaches to treatment, Dr. Bernier and Dr. Danos strive to achieve the goals essential for any successful dental treatment: FUNCTION, APPEARANCE, COMFORT, HEALTH.

Doctors Bernier and Danos are optimistic about their new partnership

There are times when the neglected patient presents to the dentist conditions that pose a difficult challenge to attaining these goals. "These are the patients we expect to see," explains Dr. Bernier. "Our presence in the community is meant to assist the other dentists in their attempts to provide the best possible care for their patients. This area is fortunate to have many fine practitioners and we hope to be able to combine our skills with theirs in an effort to provide the kind of comprehensive care that larger metropolitan areas tend to have."

Dr. Danos has gained additional training in maxillofacial prosthetics from UCLA, receiving a certificate in this sub-specialty, which involves the fabrication of extraoral prostheses to replace missing parts of the head and face. In this capacity, Dr. Danos is available to other medical disciplines such as Head and Neck Surgery, Oral Surgery, Radiation Oncology, Neurosurgery and Plastic Surgery for pre-operative planning and post-operative prosthetic treatment for patients with acquired or congenital defects.

"Combined, we have the wherewithal to offer our services to a broad spectrum of clinicians and patient needs so that people in the community need not travel long distances or even out of the state for appropriate care."

"The notion that specialty care costs more is one we would like to dispel," says Dr. Bernier. "We maintain a laboratory on the premises in order to keep patient costs down and allow prostheses to be delivered sooner."

Treatment hours at Livingston Prosthodontics are made convenient for the patients, with evening hours available. Both doctors agree, "We're here for the people."
