County to challenge sewer fund rejection

By KEVIN WILSON

Wayne County is expected to seek an injunction this week preventing the federal EPA and state DNR from dispersing federal funds formerly earmarked for the "Son of Supersewer" project to other parts of the state.

The county executive office and DPW are prepared to sue in an effort to preserve the project's eligibility for 75 percent federal funding. The EPA rejected funding for the system, which would serve Northville Township and 16 other communities in Wayne and Oakland counties on September 14, citing insufficient information regarding flood plain pollution concerns and whether there was sufficient capacity in the Detroit wastewater treatment plant to handle added flows.

If not approved before September 30, the end of the current federal fiscal year, the $120 million project will be eligible for only 55 percent federal funding, increasing the cost to local communities by $24 million and possibly forcing some of them to withdraw from participation. If approved this year, it would receive 75 percent funding in 1985 and that funding level would be "grandfathered" into future years as construction continues.

As it currently stands, the $21 million of 75 percent federal funding allocated to Michigan for sewer construction in 1985 will go to the cities of Monroe in Monroe County, Montrose in Genesee County, Richmond in Macomb County, Sturgis in St. Joseph County and Brighton in Livingston County.

County commissioner Mary Dumas this week announced her intention to introduce a resolution before the county commission this Thursday recommending that it join in legal action against the EPA. Dumas intended to join a suit in U.S. Circuit Court by Plymouth and Canton Townships, which last week sought a similar injunction to the one Wayne County is to file for in U.S. District Court.

The judge postponed the Plymouth-Canton hearing until October 5 and the townships announced their intention to drop their action and rely on the county, which was the formal applicant for the funds, to pursue the legal avenues.

Northville Township Clerk Susan Heintz said Tuesday that the township is taking a "wait and see" attitude on the program but is not overly concerned. The township's major concern regarding sewer capacity, she noted, is addressed to some extent by the on-going construction of the North Arm Relief Sewer through the township.

"Duane Egeland (county DPW director) said he's concerned because we're building this North Arm Relief project and it looks as though it might be wasted," she noted. The project through the township (responsible for the closing of Northville Road) adds capacity to an overloaded interceptor that carries sewage from the township

Autumnfest celebration in town this weekend

Apple dunking contests, a hayride taxi service, pumpkin decorating, band music and "Mom's apple pie" are among the ingredients for this weekend's downtown Autumnfest — Northville's annual celebration of the fall season.

This year's festivities promise two days of family fun, according to Kris Broderick of Northville Gallery of Flowers and the Northville Merchants' Association, sponsor of the annual event.

Autumnfest events for both young and old are planned Friday and Saturday in conjunction with the Tivoli Arts and Crafts Fair which opens at 10 a.m. Friday at Northville Downs.

The official kick-off of Autumnfest '84 is scheduled at 4 p.m. Friday when local students will launch scores of balloons in the town square park.

Broderick noted that Autumnfest planners have been working with the school district to coordinate children's events and include students in many festival festivities.

For instance, those participating in the Merchants' Association's Treasure Hunt this weekend will receive clues written by high school creative writing students.

Broderick pointed out that some 30-35 merchants and business owners are participating in the treasure hunt which will be held throughout the Autumnfest.

Those participating will begin their hunt by picking up the first clue at the Northville Mother's Club's "Mom's Apple Pie Booth" in the Town Square Park.

Once the clue has been deciphered, the participant will visit the shop and receive a discount coupon or free gift.

Participants who finish the hunt will be eligible for the grand prize drawing to be held at the conclusion of Saturday's festivities.

Broderick emphasized that this year's Autumnfest celebration — the second sponsored by the merchants' group — is "a real community affair."

She noted that in addition to the Northville Historical Society — sponsor of the Tivoli Fair — other group's hosting events include the Jaycees, Kiwanis Club, the Northville Arts Commission and the township and city fire departments.

New to the Autumnfest this fall will be a fashion show and luncheon sponsored by the Jaycees.

First sip

What is there to compare with that first taste of fall in the form of a glass of cider? How about your first-ever taste of apple cider? That's what Steven Michael Chambers got Monday at Parmenter's — we're not sure if his facial expression is shock or simple contemplation of the effect on his palate, but it's evident that his parents Steven and Patsy Chambers are finding young Steven's reaction amusing. The tot made this first visit to the cider mill before his second birthday, which is in November. At least he's still on the wagon. Record photo by Steve Fecht

Road will open by Nov. 23

Motorists can expect the closed section of Northville Road just south of Seven Mile Road in Northville Township to be back in service by late November.

Construction of the North Arm Relief interceptor, designed to lessen pressure on the existing interceptor, has forced north-south traffic between King's Mill Street and the Hines Park entrance just south of Seven Mile to be re-routed to Center Street or Haggerty.

Wayne County Road Commission officials set a target date of November 23 to resume normal traffic flow.

"We think it's going to be open before then," said Township Clerk Susan Heintz. "Usually the county comes up with a date just so we have something to tell people."

Emergency service to areas most accessible through the closed routes will continue, said Township Fire Chief Robert Toms. "There will be a channel left for emergency vehicles to get through," Toms explained. "But we're trying to discourage people from putting through there, because they won't move those bulldozers and mounds of dirt for anybody."

Dolly McMaster at central administrative post

New administrator guides middle schools

By MICHELE McELMURRY

Though the surroundings are new, the subject matter for the school district's new administrative assistant for curriculum is more than familiar.

After nearly 20 years as a teacher, team leader, consultant and assistant principal at the middle and senior high level, Margaret (Dolly) McMaster has settled into a central administrative post to share her expertise in one of today's most prevalent trends in education.

A recognized authority on middle schools in Michigan, McMaster's appointment to the post vacated by former curriculum director Marcia Scarr last August hardly could come at a more crucial time for the Northville school district.

Sitting in her new headquarters at the Board of Education Building, McMaster shares her enthusiasm about her new post and the district's plans to implement the middle school program in September, 1985.

Having only left her assistant principal post in Brighton two weeks ago, McMaster says she's still adjusting to "cultural shock."

She notes that during a recent tour of the school buildings with Assistant Superintendent Nancy Soper, she found herself hedging when it came to sitting down for lunch in the high school cafeteria.

"For the last six years I've had to eat standing up because I've been on lunch duty," she laughs, noting that she's grown accustomed to students running her over en route to the lunch line and refereeing food fights.

She adds that her quiet office in the administration building is a far cry

'We see the middle school program enhancing what we may be seeing at the high school level.'

— Dolly McMaster

from the chaos she was used to as an assistant principal.

McMaster, who came to Northville following three years as assistant principal at Maitly Middle School in Brighton, says she was "ready to make a change" after nearly 20 years as a teacher and school building administrator.

"I realized that I wanted to get into an upper level curriculum position," she notes. "I felt I had something to offer on a broader scale."

Having worked as a consultant for dozens of Michigan school districts over the past several years, McMaster has distinguished herself as a statewide authority on middle schools.

She notes that her first exposure to the middle school curriculum came at the beginning of her more than 12-year tenure as a teacher at West Middle School in Plymouth during the late 1960s and 70's.

She points out that she got involved in the middle school planning committee in Plymouth at the urging of West Principal Bob Smith, who spearheaded the middle school program in the Plymouth school system.

Her involvement at the local level eventually led to her membership in the Michigan Association of Middle School Educators and her presidency of that organization.

She also serves on the board of directors of the National Middle School Association.

She notes that the middle school concept, which separates grade division into K-5, 6-8 and 9-12, got its early beginnings in the early 1960s.

"In Michigan, middle schools actually got started in Saginaw," McMaster notes.

She points out that during the last 20 years, the middle school philosophy has become the accepted grade structure alignment for most school districts.

She notes that about 80 to 90 percent of school districts across the nation have implemented middle schools in the last two decades. She adds that the percentage holds true in Michigan, where the majority of state districts have realigned their grade structures from the junior high mode.

McMaster explains that the difference between the junior high and middle school concepts is the focus on student and subject.

McMaster takes curriculum post

"A typical junior high is modeled after a high school in terms of its focus," she points out. "The emphasis is on subject content — not the child. At the middle school, the focus is on the student," she notes.

McMaster says she feels the middle school philosophy more adequately meets the needs of the pre-adolescent student.

"Unless you understand the developmental stage of children in that age group you can't focus on curriculum content," she notes.

"It's been said that the emotional, physical, psychological and social changes which occur in the 10 to 14 age span are greater than at any other time in a student's life," McMaster points out.

"Those changes are cataclysmic... curriculum and program have to be geared to handle it."

McMaster notes that from what she has seen in the district thus far, there already "are a lot of middle school kinds of things happening in Northville."

However, she notes that once the program is implemented, the district will undergo "dramatic changes in exploratory enrichment opportunities" for students.

She points out that a great deal more will be offered to students in subjects such as art, physical education and foreign language at a much earlier age than at present.

Subsequently, she says she sees an eventual expansion of programs at the senior high level.

"We see the middle school program enhancing what we may be seeing at the high school level," she notes.

With the Northville Board of Education making middle school planning its major thrust for this school year, McMaster undoubtedly will have her hands full.

She notes that her consulting services have been pushed on the back burner until Northville's middle school concept is ready to go on line.

In addition to the grade structure realignment planned for next year, McMaster also is busy writing grants and planning an expansion of the district's gifted program.

She notes that as "Girl Friday" for Nancy Soper, she will be involved in much of the district's curriculum planning.

Removed from a school building for the first time in 20 years, McMaster notes that she "misses the kids."

"I'm going to enjoy getting out to the schools," she adds.

McMaster says she also looks forward to working with staff members — particularly during the next year's transition.

She points out that 20 years of experience as a teacher and building administrator has given her a "sensitivity to what it's like on the front line."

When she's not writing grants or inservicing staff, McMaster says she enjoys spending time with her husband on their 10-acre home in Salem Township.

She also notes she has a doctoral dissertation which she was hoping to complete by January 1.

"I have a feeling that may be extendible," she says.

County to sue over sewer and communities north (including the city and Novi). It was designed to tie-in with the larger project recently rejected by the EPA.

Heintz noted that even if the project is eventually funded at only the 55 percent level, Northville Township will likely be able to participate. The water and sewer department has slowly been accumulating a special fund intended primarily to pay the township's share of whatever large sewer system is constructed.

Plymouth and Canton Townships both have suits outstanding against the DNR, which forced the northern tier communities of the former super sewer project to join in a plan routing sewage to Detroit rather than to a new treatment plant in Brownstown Township. Plymouth Township supervisor Maurice Breen said the cost of receiving only 55 percent federal funding to this community is $400,000 — over and above the $1.9 million already allocated under the 75 percent formula.

Meanwhile, the DNR was collecting more criticism for its handling of the project and the application to the EPA. Dumas laid out a scathing analysis of the perceived DNR failures in the press release announcing her hopes to have the county commission join in the legal actions.

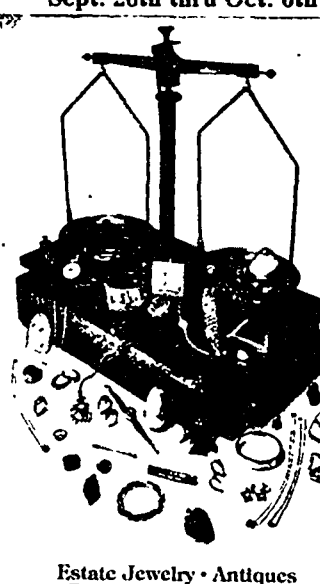

"We discussed the potential of flood plain pollution with the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) a year ago," she noted, "and officials from Western Wayne County communities were assured that a parallel system would be constructed to solve that problem."

"Now we discover that the EPA rejected the project because it did not include provisions to control flood-plain pollution. The DNR plan didn't include their highly-touted 'parallel system' at all," Dumas charged.

Horton stop sign is changed

Drivers who frequently cross through the intersection of Horton and Lake Streets will notice something a little different this week — now it is Horton Street traffic that is required to stop.

Formerly, cars traveling Lake encountered the stop sign at the intersection, but Cabbagetown residents fearing for the safety of children sought and won the alteration before city council September 17.

A survey of Horton Street traffic was conducted during August at the residents' request. A petition stated concerns that traffic was moving at high speeds both north and southbound on Horton, which is one major route between downtown and Eight Mile Road.

The survey showed a heavy traffic volume but little or no problems with high speeds. Residents questioned the survey results, however, and worked out the amended stop sign pattern with police chief Rodney Cannon.

The request to have the stop sign changed from the former stop of east-west traffic on Lake to stopping north-south traffic on Horton was done by mid-week.

Thomas Mitchell, of 519 Horton, said that the residents' concern is safety of children as the Cabbagetown neighborhood has had "quite a few families with kids moving in."

Residents attending the council meeting questioned traffic survey data prepared by Chief Cannon and Patrolman William Harrison, noting that "Saturday is the day most children are out playing." They alleged that no vehicle counts were taken on a Saturday, but Cannon pointed out that such a count was taken on August 11, showing 528 southbound vehicles south of Eight Mile and 571 northbound vehicles south of Eight Mile. The report also listed 440 vehicles southbound south of Baseline.

When residents stated they saw traffic counters only on one side of the street, the council asked them to meet with Cannon and go over the report and their concerns.

Mitchell said later in the week they had done so and were appreciative of the prompt change in the stop sign.

He said he feels the "biggest problem is northbound from the mill pond."

He said residents have been asking for "anything that will slow traffic down" and have suggested a cul-de-sac at the mill pond, installation of speed bumps and making Horton a one way street.

Of the survey, he said Horton residents "think it's a lot of cars for a residential street."

The police report states that "the volume count does show a heavy traffic flow and the times vary according to the days."

Heaviest traffic flow was recorded from 3-4 p.m. Tuesday, August 14, when 148 vehicles were counted on Horton northbound south of Baseline.

The survey conclusion states: "the survey indicates a large traffic flow on Horton, north and southbound, generated by Northville area residents. Speed survey shows that speed is not a problem with just nine accidents in three years, speed not being a factor in any of them."

Cannon concluded, "in reviewing and evaluating the traffic study as well as the citizen petition requests, I feel that no changes in traffic control are warranted at this time."

According to the survey, vehicle counts were taken on August 10, 11, 13, 14 and 16.

Governments to review county solid waste plan

By KEVIN WILSON

The focus is on garbage this week as Northville's township and city governments review a Wayne County plan for the management of solid waste disposal over the next 20 years.

The Township Board of Trustees will meet in special session Wednesday night at 8 p.m. to review the plan, which will be presented by County Planning Commission Director Maurice Roach. City Council will review the plan at its regular meeting Monday.

The governments must decide whether to recommend approval or rejection of the county plan, which was mandated by Michigan Public Act 641 of 1979. If 29 of the 43 local governments within the county approve the plan, it will be forwarded to the state DNR for final approval. If passed through that stage, the 102-page document becomes the primary planning policy for solid waste disposal in the county.

As of last week, 26 communities had given approval. County officials hope to exceed the two-thirds majority required for final approval.

The plan generally lays out a program for the management of solid waste county-wide on both a five-year and 20-year schedule, with consideration given longer-term solutions to the disposal of the estimated 2.6 pounds of such waste generated by each person in one day, plus the non-hazardous industrial solid waste products. Hazardous wastes are handled under a different state law.

Major elements of the plan as it regards Northville are:

- It does not call for construction of any new landfills in Northville Township. Location of a landfill on property owned by the county or the City of Detroit in the township was considered during the studies that led to the plan, but was not included in the document as proposed.

- Under the plan, Wayne County will continue to rely on the Holloway landfill in Salem Township, including the expanded capacity on 170 acres recently approved for construction.

- Reliance on landfills is to be phased out gradually over the next 20 years, with the county moving heavily toward a system whereby wastes are first reduced by incineration and the ashes deposited in landfills. According to the plan, 88.5 percent of the solid waste generated within Wayne County today is deposited in landfills. That proportion would be reduced to 50 percent in five years and to 30 percent in 20 years, according to the plan.

Incineration, which today accounts for only 1.5 percent of the waste disposal in the county, would expand to handle 35 percent in five years and 45 percent in 20 years. Composting, reuse, recycling and source reduction would also be expanded.

Winter ready

Among the first items installed at the high school as part of the renovation project were two new boilers. The Northville Board of Education awarded a contract to Long Plumbing of Northville to install the new boilers at a cost not to exceed $138,800. The new equipment replaces the school's original boilers installed more than 25 years ago. Record photo by Steve Fecht.

Autumnfest takes over downtown sored by Our Lady of Victory and First Presbyterian Church Women.

A salad bar luncheon will be served from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Friday at the Presbyterian church with local celebrity models showing fall fashions from area shops. Among the fashions featured in Friday's show will be furs by Onyx Furs, which soon will open on Main Street.

There will be plenty to eat at this weekend's festivities for those who come hungry. Several outdoor cafes will be set up throughout the downtown area offering everything from cider and doughnuts to ribs and chicken.

Among those offering good things to eat are Crawford's, Parmenter's Cider Mill, Getzie's Pub, Northville Charley's, Foreman Orchards Cider Mill, Northville Cloverdale and MacKinnon's.

Entertainment offerings at the autumn celebration run the gamut from breakdancers and rock n' roll to square dancers and the Big Band sound. The musicians will hold forth at the bandshell directly south of the Main Street clock.

There also will be games and contests galore for both children and adults.

Though most everyone participating in this year's Autumnfest is bound to head home with some sort of memento from the weekend's festivities, those purchasing raffle tickets from downtown merchants may find themselves on cloud nine — literally.

The winner of the merchant's raffle will receive a champagne flight for two in a hot air balloon.

PTA-PTSA News

Schools mark new school year with open houses

EDITOR'S NOTE: The monthly Northville PTA-PTSA column which appears the last Wednesday of each month September through June is compiled by volunteer Linda Handyside. She coordinates material from the publicity persons in each elementary and junior high and the high school. In addition, Cindy Nuttall writes about upcoming activities at Our Lady of Victory and Nancy Lawrence updates events at William Allan Academy.

AMERMAN

New parents to the Amerman community were introduced to Superintendent George Bell, Principal William Craft, Amerman teachers and PTA members at the annual New Parent Coffee September 11.

Judy Beyersdorf, PTA President, discussed PTA activities and Susan Couzens talked about classes available through Northville's Community Education Program.

Amerman's first PTA meeting of the 1984-85 school year was held September 17. Goals for the school year and fundraising activities were the main topics of the discussion at this meeting.

There still is time for anyone in the community to buy a space for the Amerman-Garage Sale to be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, September 29.

Anyone wishing to sell items for profit can buy a 10-foot space for $15 and should contact Judy Beyersdorf at 349-0637 or Mary Carrington at 348-6259. Donated items for the PTA booth can be brought to Amerman School the day of the sale. Everyone is welcome to come to the garage sale to buy bargains. In case of rain, the sale will be held October 6.

Amerman's fourth graders will be taking the Michigan Assessment Test this month.

Amerman's Annual Open House will be held from 7-9 p.m. October 4. Children will be introducing their parents to their teachers and classroom. PTA officers will be installed, chairpersons introduced and a slide presentation of Amerman School activities will be shown. All parents and staff are invited to sign up for PTA membership at the open house.

The next Amerman PTA meeting is October 15 at 1 p.m. in the Amerman library. Ginny Baumgartner, a district social worker, will discuss the Latch Key Program in the Northville School District. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Amerman students are invited to bring in books for the Book Swap to be held October 16 and 17. Children will be given coupons for books to be traded and also for purchase.

Students who have not been fingerprinted will be done on October 25. The fingerprints will be available for parents to keep.

Congratulations to the following Amerman students who read at least 10 books this summer and earned certificates in the Northville Public Library Summer Reading Program:

MORAINE

Moraine school opened its doors this year with 50 new students in grades 1-6 and 61 in kindergarten.

There also are four new faces on the teaching staff — Diane Vanston, who taught at Winchester; Val Hall from Amerman, Carole Brockhouse and Jan Peammon, who is in the special education classroom.

Open house at Moraine is today and tomorrow. Students and parents both are invited to attend.

A button and badge day was held September 19. Students and staff were encouraged to wear as many buttons and badges as they could. It was a great success. Students and staff were adorned with a total of 2,186 buttons and badges.

SILVER SPRINGS

Silver Springs began the new school year with activities already in full swing. A New Parent Orientation was held August 30 to help new families learn about the school, how it operates and where everything can be found.

Principal Ken Pawlowski, PTA President Linda McMillan and Chairperson Kathy Reavy conducted tours with 44 persons attending.

The School Spirit sweatshirt sale is under way, with sweatshirts available in three styles — sizes toddler to adult. The sweatshirts are navy blue with the Silver Springs logo in white. All orders, with payment included, must be received by Friday, September 28.

Open House for the upper elementary classes was held September 20. Lower elementary open house will be tomorrow, September 27. Open house this year begins at 7 p.m. with coffee and dessert in the gym. From 7:30-8 p.m., parents will visit their children's classrooms to meet teachers and hear plans for the school year. There will be a film for the children at 7:45 p.m. in the Rondelle. Coffee will be available after the classroom sessions with time for visiting and getting acquainted.

School pictures will be taken October 19. Students should wear their favorite outfits to school. Pictures will be taken for permanent school records regardless of whether students purchase prints.

Silver Springs explorers, Dwight Sieggreen and Bill McMillan, will share their adventures in the Amazon at 7 p.m. October 23. They will present a program of sound movies and slides of their trip this past summer. The community is invited to attend.

Silver Springs Annual Cheese and Sausage Sale will begin in late October. This is an excellent way to do some early Christmas shopping and help your school at the same time. Students will be taking home brochures and order forms when the sale begins.

Work already has begun on the annual Holiday Shop. This year students will be able to choose from both handmade and ready-made items. Workshops are being planned to make some of the gift items that will be sold in the shop. This is a good way for students to do their Christmas shopping for all the members of their family. Information about different workshops, times and places will be sent home with students.

PTA officers for the 1984-85 school year are Linda McMillan, president; Ellen Van Noord, vice president; Marge Julien, secretary and Deedre Sherb, treasurer. PTA meetings are held at 9:30 a.m. the third Tuesday of each month. All interested persons are invited to attend. Membership information will be available at the open house.

WINCHESTER

"Our New Stack of Kindergartners" showcased 52 bright youngsters comprising Carole Schaal's two new classes. Along with them we welcome three new teachers: Marion Yockey, second grade; Carol Schloner, art and Larry Taylor, physical education. We also welcome Joe Blake as our new social worker.

Our new year's PTA board is: Debbie Gesdorf, president; Pat Howe, vice president; Karen Wesley, secretary; Sandy Barbara, treasurer and a virtual army of enthusiastic volunteers staffing more than 27 committees. We look forward to accomplishing a great deal.

Last year's fundraisers purchased, among other things, a Pet Commodore computer with software, bringing the total computer count to seven. One is utilized in the reading lab and ISEP classroom and two are available in the library. PTA also provided other software, filmstrips, volleyball poles and nets, three benches and helped pay for a Xerox machine and an electric stapler.

October 19 is the date set for our second annual Fun Fair and we look forward to another rousing fair replete with clowns, games, raffles and a moon walk. Volunteers still are welcome and can call co-chairpersons Joanne Brummet at 348-1268 or Sherry Anderson at 420-0989. Student pictures are scheduled for October 29.

One new project on the docket is accumulation of equipment for a cooking cart, headed by Lisa Carney. This will then be transportable from class to class for cooking projects.

Any and all are welcome to attend PTA meetings at 9:30 a.m. the first Wednesday of each month.

COOKE

Cooke Junior High opened its doors this year to 446 students. Principal Dave Longridge stated it was a very smooth first day. A new IBM computer was attributed with efficiently completing 95 percent of all schedule changes by the end of the first week of school.

On September 19, Cooke conducted a very successful Open House for parents. There was a short information meeting after which parents were able to go through their student's schedule of classes.

Autumn festivities highlight opening of new school year

At the Open House, parents had their first opportunity to join the Cooke PTO. A family membership costs $2. This money goes directly back into the school for targeted projects, equipment or other school needs.

Parent-Teacher Conferences will be held at Cooke on October 9 from noon to 2:30 p.m. and 5-7:30 p.m. and on October 11 from 3-5:30 p.m. There will be an opportunity to join the PTO at these conferences.

School pictures will be taken September 28. Information should already have come home with specific details.

Cooke's major fund raiser once again will be the sale of oranges and grapefruits. Tentative dates have been set for October 20 through November 9. Delivery will be during the early part of December — in plenty of time for Christmas gift giving.

The Cooke PTO once again will "treat" all students on Halloween with cider and donuts at the close of the school day.

Save those Campbell Soup Labels! Cooke has received many fine materials and equipment from this program. The program also accepts Franco-American labels, Swanson Frozen Food proof of purchase seals, V-8 juice labels or anything with Campbells on it.

During the summer, Cooke PTO made some purchases for the school. One acquisition was an Apple II-E computer with a monitor, disk drive and 80 column card. This computer already has seen much use and will be used in the future for career searches and career orientation. Also purchased was a Dukane Projector for the library.

MEADS MILL

The hallways at Meads Mill were alive with activity on September 4. More than 460 students again tackled the task of learning schedules and locker combinations, finding homerooms, and re-establishing friendships.

Meads Mill Open House for the parents of all students will be held during the day tomorrow. This open house is hosted by the PTSA and affords parents the opportunity to see their children during a normal school day.

A seventh grade parent open house will be held at 7 p.m. tomorrow in the Media Center. Seventh grade teachers will be available to discuss curriculum.

A second sign that the school year has begun is the scheduling of school pictures. Mark your calendar for Friday.

The PTSA began the year with its first meeting on September 12. The meeting was chaired by president Ann Guldberg. Other officers are vice president, Nancy Trabin; secretary, Linda Handyside and treasurer Marilyn Harmon.

The PTSA meetings are held the second Tuesday of each month at 9:30 a.m. at Meads Mill. The PTSA extends an open invitation to all parents to join the PTSA organization, attend meetings, and whenever possible to participate in their functions.

The PTSA and Meads Mill staff are looking forward to a positive and productive school year.

NORTHVILLE HIGH SCHOOL

New friends, new clothes and new beginnings mark the start of another school season. An estimated 990 students were greeted by the high school staff on September 4. Principal David Bolitho reported that the new computer scheduling program passed its first test with flying colors, thanks in part to the careful pre-selection of courses by students in March. By September 14 all student requests for changes had been accomplished.

The high school renovation is well under way. The pool area was completed during the summer, footings for other areas are being poured and boiler replacement is near completion.

Homecoming Week begins October 7 and culminates with a parade, varsity football game and dance on October 12. Preparations are under way. Pep Club presidents, Carolyn McDermaid and Holly Pope have been designated as co-chairpersons for this year's festivities.

Sue Rahimi will act as parade chairperson and Kevin Murray as hospitality chairperson. Publicity will be handled by Wendy Harsch, Jeneed Jalled, Karen Petersen, Tytti Barnett, Amy Gassar and Karen Stinson.

Decoration responsibilities for the stadium and dance will be handled by Kim McCrae, Lisa Lutz, Lori Osborn and Karen Legner. Mina Rahimi is investigating the possibility of having a student flip-card section at the football game.

The parade theme will be "The Silver Screen" with daily dress features to be announced later. Float construction arrangements will be different this year, therefore, students should keep posted by listening to daily announcements. If students miss announcements, they may check the bulletin board in the office for information. The public is invited to the special Spirit Week lunch-time activities where costume judging and other fun things will take place. Lunch periods are from 10:30-11:05 a.m. and from 11:35 a.m. to 12:05 p.m.

Auditions for the fall play "1984" were held during the week of September 10. The play is an adaptation of George Orwell's book. All parts have been filled and student leaders have been chosen for backstage crews. Students still interested in joining any of these crews may contact teacher-director Kurt Kinde. Play dates are October 17, 19 and 20. Tickets will go on sale in October.

High school parent/teacher conferences will be held from 3-6 p.m. October 16 and from 5-8 p.m. October 18.

OUR LADY OF VICTORY

The theme for the 1984-85 school year at Our Lady of Victory is "Sharing Vision, Teaching Values." The theme will be reflected throughout the school environment. This year has brought many new students to OLV. Both new and returning students were surprised by the improvements in the school's interior. With monies raised last year, the PTO was able to carpet the first and second grade classrooms, purchase new blinds and two beautiful murals were painted in the school's hallway.

On Wednesday, October 3, from 7-10 p.m. in the social hall, the PTO will host its annual Parents Night and first general meeting. Parents will have an opportunity to visit the school and also meet the new officers of the PTO board. New board members are: president, Carol Litzelman; vice presidents, Glen and Pat Bott; secretary, Cindy Nuttall and treasurer, Kathy Plien.

The first fundraiser of the year is the upcoming paper drive October 20 and 21. Save your papers and bring them to the church parking lot.

The Second Annual Fall Arts and Crafts Show and Bake Sale will be hosted by the PTO from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, October 27 in the social hall. Shirley Pelczar, chairperson, says the overwhelming success of last year's show indicates that this year should be even better, with a wide range of handmade items from a select group of participants.

The expansion of programs available at OLV continues with the addition of French to fifth and sixth graders. This foreign language, taught by Mrs. Joanne Dalziel, was first offered to the seventh and eighth grades last year.

September events included the First Grade Filing and New Family Meeting. The PTO sponsors this event each year to welcome the new first graders and their parents and also provides an opportunity for all the new families in the school to meet each other along with teachers.

WILLIAM ALLAN ACADEMY

What a wonderful start to this new school year! The start of school at the Academy went so smoothly, with eager new students and staff welcomed by the director. Kindergartners were presented at the Academy's special morning assembly.

Our first/second graders are well into the routine of math, reading, computers, science and language. They already are off on a special study and report project of "Apples — Product of Michigan." The grand finale will be a field trip to the Cider Mill in Franklin.

The third/fourth graders are bubbling with the new history, social studies and geography studies. Along with the fifth and sixth graders, their science studies took them to Kensington for a nature study of "Life in a Pond."

The William Allan Academy is proud of its newly-established formal library. Funds for the library — which totaled $3,000 — were raised by the Academy Parent Group.

Our fall open house, scheduled at 7 p.m. tomorrow, will include a special library dedication.

Stolen township auto recovered by Detroit police

In the Township...

A 1984 Chevrolet Camaro Z-28 stolen from a Northridge Drive parking lot sometime between 10:30 p.m. September 19 and 6:15 a.m. September 20 was recovered by Detroit police in the Sixteenth Precinct area this past weekend, township police report.

According to police, the vehicle — valued at $14,000 — was found completely stripped and severely damaged. Police estimated damage at $10,000. It also was noted that the vehicle only had 4,000 miles on it at the time it was recovered.

The complainant told police the vehicle was locked and parked under a carport in front of his residence at the time the incident occurred.

The complainant said he did not see or hear anything unusual the night the vehicle was stolen.

The car was impounded by township police pending further investigation.

Northville township police report two incidents of mail tampering in the Sunnyside area September 21 and 22.

A Sunnyside resident told police that at 7 a.m. September 22 she went to her mailbox to find her mail had been scattered all over her lawn.

She further stated that other residents on her street also were picking up mail from their lawns.

The complainant said she found the wrapper of a magazine in her mailbox but noted that the magazine was missing.

Another resident told police she found her mail removed from her mailbox and noted that two envelopes containing payroll checks were ripped open.

Township police notified the Northville postmaster about the incidents.

Items valued at more than $500 were reported stolen from the basement of an Edenderry residence sometime between August 1 and 15, according to township police.

The complainant told police unknown suspects stole a Toro snowblower valued at $449 and an $89 electric chain-saw from the basement of his home.

The complainant further stated the basement doorwall was unlocked at the time the incident occurred. He noted the house is under construction and workers used the doorwall as access to the house.

Unknown subjects stole a $389 Quasar VCR readout from a Seven Mile video store around 8 p.m. September 20, police report.

The complainant told police two white male suspects entered the store, looked around and then grabbed the video recorder and ran out the door.

The complainant further stated the suspects got into a maroon vehicle occupied by a white male with blond hair and a white female. He noted the vehicle's license plate was covered with paper.

The vehicle was last seen eastbound on Seven Mile, police report.

The complainant described the first suspect as a white male, approximately 25 to 27-years-old, 5 foot 10 inches tall and wearing a blue baseball hat, black T shirt and dirty jeans.

He noted the second subject was approximately 18 to 20-years-old with blond hair.

Unknown suspects caused an estimated $400 damage to a 1982 Honda Prelude parked in the driveway of a Westmeath residence sometime between 12:30 and 7:45 a.m. September 22, township police report.

The complainant told police unknown suspects smashed the sunroof of the auto and scratched the body.

The complainant gave the officer a map to a residence in Livonia which had been found next to the vehicle. Police seeking suspect in armed robbery of store

Northville Township Police are searching for a white male suspect in connection with an armed robbery at Quik Pik Food Store on Five Mile shortly after midnight Thursday.

According to police, the suspect is described as being about 5 feet 10 inches tall, 180 pounds with brown curly hair and a reddish brown mustache.

The suspect was wearing blue jeans, a black baseball jacket with yellow stripes on the sleeves and a black and white baseball cap at the time the incident occurred.

The complainant told police she was putting groceries away at the rear of the store at about 12:20 a.m. Thursday when the suspect entered and headed to the front cash register counter.

Stabbing investigated

The Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department is investigating the September 23 stabbing and attempted murder in Salem Township of a 21-year-old Redford resident.

At about 6:25 a.m. Sunday, the victim was assaulted and left in a ditch in the 6300 block of Weed Road in Salem, police said. He was able to crawl 70 yards and seek assistance from an area resident, a sheriff's department spokesman said.

Police are withholding the name of the victim pending further investigation.

Responding officers were met at the scene by the Salem Township Fire Department and South Lyon Ambulance Division, according to reports filed by those departments. The victim was transported to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Superior Township, where he underwent surgery Sunday, police explained. As of late Monday afternoon, the victim was listed in guarded critical condition, police said.

Preliminary investigation of the incident indicates that the victim was abducted from a Wayne County bar by two unknown males, the sheriff's spokesman said.

Further information on the incident was not available.

TAX TIPS

LEE E. HOLLAND, C.P.A.

GIVING TO CHARITIES

If your income qualified you for one of the higher tax brackets, you may want to put some of that otherwise taxable income to good use by contributing to favorite charities. The higher your income the lower the actual cost of giving, because you are reducing your taxable income.

According to the Internal Revenue Service, you are allowed charitable deductions amounting up to 50 percent of your adjusted gross income. Gifts of certain long-term gain property can be deducted at 30 percent of your adjusted gross income. In exercising a generous impulse, however, you should make sure your gift is going to a qualified charity, one that's on the IRS-approved list. For example, the list does not include foreign charities unless the contribution is made to an American organization that does charitable work abroad.

For a review of regulations in giving to charities as well as many other tax-savings advantages under the new tax law, why not call us for an appointment?

Best of all, it allows you to "eat as much as you want of your favorite foods and still lose a pound a day or more starting from the very first day until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire."

This "super" grapefruit pill is a dramatically improved version of the world famous grapefruit diet. It is far more effective than the original and eliminates "the mess, fuss, and high cost of eating half a fresh grapefruit at every meal."

It is 100% safe. No need to take any vitamins to maintain your good health and energy. The pill is fortified with ALL (100%) of the U.S. Government daily vitamin requirements. Contains Japanese "Glucosaminan"

Each pill also contains an amazingly effective amount of "glucosaminan", the remarkable natural dietary fiber discovery from Japan (used successfully for over 1500 years) that expands in your stomach and gives you a full and satisfied feeling all day long.

The super-pill is already sweeping the country with glowing reports of easy and fast weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Getty Oil to address Salem board

A film presentation by Getty Synthetic Fuels on how methane gas is extracted from landfills and how that affects Salem Township is expected to head the agenda for the October 2 meeting of the Salem Township board. The public meeting begins at 8 p.m. in the township hall at 9600 Six Mile.

John L. Birkinbine Jr., midwest regional marketing manager for Getty, and Thomas A. Shuput, midwest marketing representative, will make the presentation in response to a request from Township Supervisor Richard Sackett. Sackett said he asked that a Getty representative attend the meeting to answer questions on the methane recovery program which is now underway at the Holloway Landfill at Napier and Six Mile.

Township Clerk Nancy Geiger said a question and answer period will follow the Getty film.

Although the entire agenda for Tuesday's meeting had not been established prior to this newspaper's deadline, Geiger said there would be a further report concerning special assessment notices for drain cleaning received recently from the Washtenaw County Drain Commissioner's office. This is in response to taxpayers' questions raised at the September 4 board meeting, the clerk noted.

Geiger added that David Murray, Washtenaw County drain commissioner, has been invited to attend the November 6 board meeting to answer questions personally.

Sackett is also expected to present further information on the suggested widening of Six Mile at the entrance to the Holloway Asphalt plant in order to provide a passing lane for through traffic when trucks are turning.

Geiger said a court date in late October has been set up for appearance of the township in response to the restoration suit filed by Citizens of S.A.L.E.M. (Salem Area Local Environmental Management).

The citizens group said it is seeking to force the township to enforce its zoning ordinance as it pertains to reclamation of Holloway Company land at the northwest corner of Six Mile and Napier. The multi-count suit also pertains to the asphalt plant operation and other areas involving the landfill. The suit also asks that the township be ordered to pay attorney fees of the citizens group involved with the suit.

For sesquicentennial

Omnicom hosts Canton auction

Omnicom, the cable television franchise in Northville, Plymouth and Canton, will telecast the Canton 150 Auction, marking that township's sesquicentennial, this Friday and Saturday from 7-11 p.m.

The auction on channel 8 is a first in this area, according to auction chair Suzanne Skubick. Items have been collected from all the above communities, Westland, Southfield and Detroit for subscribers to bid on. There are several "big board" items of interest.

"We are happy to be bringing this auction to our subscribers and hope they will tune in on both nights for lots of good buys," said Skubick, Omnicom's program director. "We are particularly pleased with our 'big board' items."

The merchandise and services on the big board are a three hour hand performance by the "New Ditties," a $500 discount on the Mayflower Meeting House Room rental for the first three months of 1985 for a newly booked wedding; a cedar glider that seats four plus one chair from Bart's Nursery and Rustic Furniture and a three-hour communications seminar for a business with 10 to 40 employees offered by professional consultant John Czuba & Company.

In addition to these items donated for the auction, Skubick said there are also several underwriters deserving credit for helping stage the Canton 150 Auction.

Underwriters provide the auction either with necessary services such as printing and signmaking or cash to have their names placed on a board. They include the following:

Cale's Big Red Q Quickprint of Plymouth, Value Signs by Design of Canton, Robert Greenstein for District Judge, John MacDonald for District Judge, The Roman Forum of Canton, Omnicom Cablevision of Michigan, Showtime Pay Cable Service.

According to Skubick, much of the activity will center on bidding on the regular items offered during the 7-10 p.m. auction hours. "Some of the items are multiples so folks will have several opportunities to obtain the desired merchandise/service," said Skubick. Of the larger multiples available are 12 sets of sheepskin car seat covers for bucket seats offered by a BMW dealer in Southfield; 10 birthday parties from Big Boy's of Canton; 19 gift certificate for a set of four all-day ride passes from Wade Shows of Mason.

Other items viewers can bid on include:

A cutlery set, dinner for two, a plane ride, an aerobic fitness class for six weeks, an emergency vehicle light, tutoring services, oil change and tire rotation, a limited edition print, a painting, a strip-o-gram, a Write 'T Me club membership, one hour of personal computing time, a pair of roller skates, one month of free horse boarding, a blood pressure kit;

Also a birthday party at a fast-food restaurant, a sewing basket with quilting supplies, a kaleidoscope, a camera coupon savings book, a Smile Hi Club membership, a comforter for baby, a gift certificate for a dress, auto parts, pizzas with pop, dance lessons, nutritional counseling, a skin care set, maternity dresses, a haircut and styling, a gas furnace cleaning and inspection, a strawberry whip cream torte, a videotaping of a wedding, a men's dress shirt, a sun tan salon subscription, a wreath, a floral hat and ribbon fan, a maternity gift certificate, car washes for a year, gift certificates for chicken dinners, dry carpet cleaning, a leather-bound letter pad, neutering for pets, psychological counseling, a China Doll, men's clothing, a deli party tray, a multi-function bike computer, bowling games, a day with the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, brass candlesticks, sesquicentennial books and plates, 10 pairs of VHS tapes for home VCRs and much, much more.

Auctioneers include the following celebrities: Tom Dean of WCLS-FM radio and John Fuller, a producer with Channel 7, WXYZ-TV news, are both area residents. Also acting as auctioneers are TV personalities Dave Gilbert of Channel 7 news, and Ted Textor, weekend weatherman for Channel 2 WJBK-TV.

Six telephones will be staffed by candidates for office — volunteers from the candidates' campaigns will work as board captain and bid runners.

Madonna course addresses chemical dependency

A five-day accredited program entitled "Chemical Dependency and Youth" will be held this fall to meet the needs of educators, counselors and other professionals who work with young victims of alcohol or drug abuse.

The program is being sponsored by Fairlane Health Services Corporation in cooperation with Madonna College. The series will begin October 3 and continue for five consecutive Wednesdays at Madonna College in Livonia.

Program participants will get a working knowledge of how to develop a school-based program that deals with early recognition of youthful drug abusers and how to intervene on students' and their families so treatment can begin.

The program also covers problems of youngsters whose parents are dependent on drugs.

The fee for the five-day program — which covers tuition, course materials and texts — is $195.

The faculty includes recognized treatment and education professionals from Maple Grove, Henry Ford Hospital's treatment center for chemical dependency.

Three credit hours or 4.5 continuing education units will be awarded upon successful completion of the course.

For more information, call Elaine Hughes at 271-6550.

Cultural group seeks to rezone Haggerty parcel

A house on Haggerty Road in Northville Township will become the national headquarters of the American Ramallah Federation if directors of the organization can persuade township officials to permit a rezoning allowing the change of use.

In a letter he sent to Township Supervisor John MacDonald earlier this year, ARF President Isa Hasan described his group as a 25-year-old national organization of individuals who trace their origin to the town of Ramallah (10 miles north of Jerusalem) in the Occupied West Bank.

"We are an educational, charitable and humanitarian organization," Hasan wrote. "The focus of our activities is on our scholarship program, which aims to help needy students in the United States and overseas."

The organization would seek to remodel the home to house the ARF office, which would be staffed by a full-time secretary. Also, several board of directors meetings per year would be held at the building. The group currently meets at St. Mary's Church on Meriman Road in Livonia.

Representatives of the ARF attended last week's Township Planning Commission meeting in anticipation of the commission's scheduling a public hearing date. However, commissioners noted the ARF needed to resubmit certain elements of the group's application — in particular, an impact assessment (documentation of effects of the change of use on traffic, area appearance, future use, surrounding property).

It's expected the ARF will have resubmitted their application for consideration at the October 30 Planning Commission meeting.

Schoolcraft sponsors College Night program

High school students and their parents will be able to get first hand information from representatives of nearly 50 colleges at the College Night to be held October 9 on the Schoolcraft College campus.

In addition to public and private Michigan colleges and universities, representatives of the service academies and a number of out-of-state schools will be present.

Participants should arrive on campus by 6:15 p.m. to learn about room assignments and locations. Parking will be available in both general lots and guides will be on duty at each building to provide directions.

Three 35-minute sessions will be conducted during the evening at 6:30, 7:15 and 8 p.m. This will enable students to learn about more than one college. In addition, there will be three sessions devoted to information about financial aid — who qualifies, how to apply, what is available.

Schoolcraft College has canceled all campus classes after 5 p.m. for that evening. Classes which meet in Garden City and Plymouth will be held as scheduled.

The College Night program is chaired by John Tomey, Schoolcraft's director of admissions and financial aids, in cooperation with high school counselors.

For further information, students should consult with their high school counselor.

Last day to register to vote this November is October 9

Although election day is more than a month away, leaving plenty of time to decide how to vote, the deadline for deciding whether or not to vote is fast approaching.

To be eligible to vote in the November presidential election, you must be registered by October 9. Those not already registered have until that date to do so at the office of the city or township clerk where they live or at any one of 180 statewide Secretary of State branch offices.

Our Opinions

Downs directors merit a chance

The Michigan Racing Commission has been wrestling with the issue of how to distribute a limited number of thoroughbred and harness racing dates in the metropolitan Detroit area this fall. With so much at stake in our community, it's hard not to sympathize with the efforts of Northville Downs operators to increase their share of those dates.

For 10 years, Northville Downs has been granted the least preferred time of the year to race — right through the heart of winter — and fewer than three months to do it. In spite of a general downturn in Michigan's horse racing industry since the mid-seventies, the Downs' mutual handle has bucked that trend and increased more or less steadily over that time period.

And while attorneys are busy disputing whether the divestiture efforts of the owners of DRC and Hazel Park satisfy legal requirements, it's safe to say the feeble efforts of managers of those tracks to comply with the anti-trust spirit of the law have been an embarrassment to a sport that doesn't need unnecessary embarrassment right now.

Add in Northville Downs' good reputation for devotion to the industry of horse racing and to continuing efforts to improve the track and its facilities, and it becomes plain there's a principle involved in Downs track owners' request as well as desire to increase the track's intake.

The most persuasive argument against a summer meet or expanded dates for the Downs rests on the track's size and the smaller number of jobs it provides compared to either DRC or Hazel Park. But the long-range future and reputation of the industry appear to be at stake, and it might be a good idea to shake up the competitive edge of those two larger tracks by granting Northville Downs a longer schedule for at least one year.

If awarding the dates to Northville Downs causes management of DRC and Hazel Park to make the facilities improvements horsemen and racing commissioners have gone on record as saying are key to the industry's survival, then great. Give the big guns back their dates in 1986. If not, let's at least keep the future of the industry in the hands of people with its long-term interests at heart.

Autumnfest plans wisely considered

This weekend's return of the Autumnfest downtown promotion initiated last year marks what we hope will be the long-term addition of another event to the annual calendar of activities that bring the community together and draw visitors.

It is perfectly situated during a lag in downtown activity between the summer rush of events and the Christmas Walk, is thematically in tune with the time of year when visitors are drawn to the community by the cider mills, and adds a little something extra for those attending the Tivoli Fair at the Downs. The schedule of activities exemplifies the efforts made in organizing all the downtown events to provide attractions for the entire family and we urge everyone who can to take part.

So we are enthusiastic about Autumnfest. As for the proposal to close the streets late Friday afternoon for the event, however, we have trouble mustering much excitement. Extending the period when the streets are closed appears on the surface to be a good idea, but actually doing so at the time proposed would be a logistical nightmare. We were glad to see the idea dropped. We do not think Autumnfest actually requires that the streets be closed as early as 3 p.m. Friday. We have observed in past events that large crowds generally do not gather downtown that early on the first day of any but the longest-standing promotions.

That is not to say that a two-day street closing would always be undesirable, only that not enough time was not allowed for planning such an extensive effort for this event. We think two-day closings might be more appropriate for some of the events that have a longer tradition behind them, but only if some arrangement can be made that would prevent the inevitable problems that arise if access is allowed through most of the business day and then the streets are suddenly closed off.

Local people who are made aware of the street closing several weeks in advance and reminded from time to time could likely avoid being inconvenienced. But we must not forget that one of the major reasons for conducting such events, and allowing the streets to be closed for them, is to attract visitors to the city and the business community. Shutting down streets at an awkward hour would only serve, we think, to alienate rather than attract outsiders.

Even Real Men need furniture

Mom and Pop were asking me what I'd like for my recent birthday, and I told them I supposed I could use some furniture.

"What kind?" Mom asked. "A chair? A sofa? A bookshelf? A lamp? A coffee table?"

After thinking about it for a moment, I realized the only correct answer would be "all of the above." Although I have lived there a year, my roomy apartment still has the coziness of a defunct tool and dye parts warehouse. Noting my living room's hardwood floor, critics have suggested I install a couple of basketball hoops and rent it to the Recreation Department.

Dad, however, is not one of this ilk. "You already have a table, right?" he asked. "You have a chair? A bed? A dresser?"

"Yeah," I answered. "I have each of those."

Pop seemed puzzled, as if he couldn't figure out why I wasn't asking for something more practical, like a socket wrench set or a pair of snowshoes. "Let me get this straight," he said. "You have a place to eat, someplace to sit, someplace to sleep and a place to put your clothes." He looked at me warily. "You're not getting interested in interior decorating are you?"

"Dad, you've never had to decide where to put what kind of furniture," I said. "You had five roommates in college and married Mom before you ever lived alone. And she always told you what to buy."

It was true. In the house where he'd lived with Mom for 20 years, there wasn't one thing Dad hadn't installed, hung, moved or rearranged without artistic direction from Mom. Expressions of his aesthetic sensibility had been confined to the garage, where his bold use of design elements like pegboard and tool hooks was granted complete freedom. (He once thumbtacked up an Indy car calendar in 1977, but took it down last year.)

I think he was about to ask why I didn't just get a wife to decorate for me when I cut in, "Dad, my friends are making fun of the echo in my apartment. They come over and yodel. I know you think you could be content with a chair, a table, a bed and a TV. But after a while, I'll bet you'd start flipping through House and Garden on your way to buying Sports Illustrated."

"Bah," he scoffed. "Next thing you'll tell me is that you're growing plants."

"Those are the only pets my landlord allows," I said.

He turned to Mom. "I knew I shouldn't have let you name him Bruce. I have no son." (I thought this was a little overdramatic, since I have two brothers.)

Thinking fast, I explained, "Well, Pop, I need a bookshelf to store all my old Hemingway and Jack London books, plus my old issues of Field and Stream and Playboy."

Mom winced, but Dad began to brighten up as I went on: "Yeah, and I need a good lamp so I can read the footnotes in those boxing rule books. I need another chair so one of my buddies can come over and watch Hawaiian Heat. And I need a sofa, because, you know, if I'm bringing some chick up to the apartment..."

Dad looked over at Mom, who pretended she didn't hear us.

"Of course," I added, "I'll have to get rid of some of this stuff when I get around to building that pool table." I think that one did the trick. Dad got up and left the room. He came back with his checkbook and two bottles of the worst-tasting beer I've ever had.

"Three ninety-nine a case," Pop said. "Can you believe it?"

I could. "Pretty good deal," I grunted. Pretty soon we hopped in the van and headed out to Meijer Thrifty Acres to buy a bookshelf. Where'd you think we'd go? Ethan Allen?

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

My tip speed is in bad shape.

What's really embarrassing is that I didn't know it until Saturday when Sandy, Lisa and her daughter stopped by as I was working on the yard. Lisa sells riding lawnmowers. And as soon as she arrived, she began eyeing my mower with disdain.

"So, you've got one of those old belt-driven models," she said finally. And then she knelt down and ran her hand over the grass I had just mowed.

"I thought so," she said sadly. "See how this grass is matted down? It's because of the front-mount engine. It ought to be in back so the grass doesn't get matted down before the blades get to it."

"And look at the uneven cut. When I brush the grass back up, it's all different lengths. It's because of your tip speed. You're not getting enough tip speed with the belt-driven engine."

She said all that before she even said "hi." Walked in and began ripping my mower apart without even taking time for a friendly old "Hi, Phil. How're tricks?"

Unfortunately, she hit me in a weak spot. I don't have one of those nice, sodded subdivision lawns. But for an old-fashioned, real-grass lawn, it's pretty decent.

Didn't get that way by accident, either. Lots of work has gone into making that lawn look as good as it does. And for somebody to come along and say your "tip speed" is too slow.... Well, anyone who takes his lawn seriously will know it can be pretty traumatic.

"What can I do?" I asked. "I don't want to upset my neighbors because my tip speed is too slow."

"I just happen to have a new 'finish' model mower," she responded. "I'll bring it by tomorrow and show you the difference."

"But I can't afford a new lawnmower right now," I moaned.

"Hey, it's your lawn and if you don't care about your tip speed, why should I?" she asked disdainfully. "Actually, Phil, it looks okay... until you get within 400 yards."

IRS clarifies fringe benefits

Executive dining rooms, tuition assistance and retirement benefits are just a few of the things affected by the 1984 Deficit Reduction Act (or Tax Reform Act).

According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, the new law clarifies the tax status of employee fringe benefits. Since 1975, the IRS has maintained that the burgeoning array of fringe benefits granted employees represents income and should be taxable. Congress imposed a moratorium on IRS efforts to tax these benefits, but left the issue dangling until now. The new law says that most fringe benefits received by employees remain non-taxable. But, at the same time, the law provides guidelines to resolve some thorny questions of their tax status.

For instance, the new rules say that for a fringe benefit to be excluded from gross income, it must not be discriminatory, it cannot be offered exclusively to a select group of officers, owners or highly-compensated employees. Under these rules, executive dining rooms must be opened up to all employees or the reduced cost of dining would be considered part of an employee's income at tax time.

The new law also says that employees may receive discounts on their company products; the discounted amounts would not be treated as income. However, discounted amounts that are below cost would be taxable income. In addition, employee discounts for services offered by companies may not be discounted at more than 20 percent of the regular selling price. Amounts above 20 percent are taxable income.

Among the fringe benefits that are not taxable under the Act are: working condition fringes, such as a company car, employee travel and periodicals related to work; no additional cost services, such as free stand-by flights to airline employees or free telephone service to phone company employees and de-minimis fringes, which are modest holiday gifts, or coffee and doughnuts, or other benefits so minimal that accounting for them would be an administrative nightmare.

By granting certain fringes a non-taxable status, the law in effect codifies what has become customary practice.

Tuition assistance, one of the basic benefits, has undergone some important changes. Until now, if an employer paid for an employee's education, the amount of assistance was not added to the employee's income. Surprisingly, Congress elected to put an end to this; all employer-funded financial assistance for education is now figured in as an employee's gross income. An important exception to this new rule: tuition assistance for courses in your current line of work will not be added to income and taxed.

The new law also defines which benefits can be included in so-called cafeteria plans — packages that allow an employee to choose from a list of benefits or cash payments. The benefits that employees may choose from have been narrowed to include group term life insurance, group legal services, health insurance, dependent care and vacation time. In stemming the tide of a growing list of fringes being added to cafeteria plans, the law prevents employers from sheltering compensation from taxes. Car pooling and athletic clubs, for instance, can no longer be offered as part of these plans. Transitional rules, however, allow employers whose plans suddenly are unqualified time to amend their packages.

Another provision of the law provides relief for the troubled Medicare program by changing rules for workers age 65 or older. The old law provided that such a worker enrolled in a company health insurance plan had to make a penalty payment of 10 percent a year for each year beyond the age of 65 that he or she was not enrolled in Medicare. Besides that, there was an enrollment delay of about six months when switching from the private plan to Medicare.

The new law eliminates the penalty; regulations are expected that would do away with enrollment delays.

Riffle's of Northville debuts with new menu

Riffle's — new restaurant in Northville Township — was inspected by local business people and officials at a buffet hosted by owner Robert Riffel and his staff earlier this month.

Riffel says it was not a "grand opening" but an invitation to local people whom he hopes will want to become regular diners.

The restaurant at 18730 Northville Road south of Seven Mile boasts an elegant antique bar that is the focal point of a room sectioned into several eating areas and including comfortable booths. The decor has a country Victorian feeling, complementing the bar.

Riffel and his staff have introduced a varied and reasonable menu that ranges from Chicken Francaise at $6.96 to 12-ounce New York strip steak at $12.95. Price includes breads, salad and vegetable. In addition, there is a daily fish special.

Both barbecue pork and spare ribs are on the menu at $8.95 each.

At the introductory buffet, the French pastry tray drew rave notices with Kiwi fruit and custard pie, Kahlua and chocolate cheesecakes as well as miniature pastries.

The wine list of both white and red wines includes such popular selections as chablis at $1.50 a glass, or $4.25 a half carafe. A French Beaujolais Village wine, Georges du Boeuf 1982 is listed at $9 a bottle while a German white wine, Piesporter Goldtröpfchen 1979, is $9.50 a bottle.

Owner Riffel's currently is offering a two for one happy hour from 4-7 p.m. in the bar area only with free hors d'oeuvres.

He also is welcoming senior citizens with a 20 percent discount on Monday through Thursday between 2-6 p.m. in the dining area only.

The restaurant has been open for some time with Riffel experimenting with the menu before settling on the American one now offered. Telephone is 348-3490.

Dental academy honors Dr. Nicole Obregon

Nicole G. Obregon, DDS, of Northville, who studied dentistry in her native France and later was graduated from the University of Michigan School of Dentistry, is the recipient of a prestigious award from the Academy of General Dentistry.

The Fellowship Award was presented during a special ceremony at the academy's annual meeting, Golden Gate to Learning, July 27-August 1 in San Francisco.

The Academy of General Dentistry is the second-largest dental organization in North America and is composed of 25,000 dentists in the U.S. and Canada who are "dedicated to continued education in general practice." To earn a Fellowship Award, AGD members must complete more than 500 hours of continuing education within 10 years.

Dr. Obregon was graduated from the U-M School of Dentistry in 1973 and has maintained a general practice in Livonia since that year. The native of Paris, France, also attended dental school at the University of Paris.

She was the first woman president of the Western Dental Society.

She was recipient of the Louis Schultz Award for oral rehabilitation from the University of Michigan in 1973. She is a member of the Association of Women Dentists, the American Dental Association and the Michigan Dental Association, among other groups.

Dr. Obregon also is active in the Livonia Family YMCA and Our Lady of Victory Church in Northville.

Business Briefs

FINDERS KEEPERS of South Lyon, which opened in October 1982, will live on through a new name and new owners. Joan Jones, Elaine von Berge and Janis Sparks, former owners of Finders Keepers, listened to their customers and decided to sell their business rather than close its doors.

The new owners, Susan O'Dea and Eleanor Ingles, will continue to operate the business under the name Little House Collectibles. The store will still be located in Sparks Plaza on Pontiac Trail, just south of Ten Mile. The business will continue to sell handmade items, crafts, antiques and collectibles. Jones emphasized that Finders Keepers enjoyed success in South Lyon but the store did not meet the owners' expansion needs. Jones expressed gratitude and appreciation to Finders Keepers' customers.

STEPHEN PAUL STOCKER, ACSW, director of Psychotherapy & Counseling Services in Northville, was invited to present a paper at an international clinical conference in Calgary, Alberta, Canada.

The paper, entitled, "A Psychotherapeutic Approach to the Treatment of the Chronic Physical Pain Patient," was presented August 27.

Stocker also was invited by Dr. Sonya Friedman to be a guest on her WXYZ radio show. His appearance on July 20 focused on his work with chronic pain patients, including the use of clinical hypnosis to assist patients in coping more effectively with severe physical pain.

In addition, Stocker also presented a paper, entitled, "Chronic Physical Pain in the Elderly," at the Levine Institute on Aging in Detroit. The institute director, Dr. Richard Douglass, called Stocker's work "a critical addition to the field of clinical gerontology."

OAKLAND COUNTY EXECUTIVE Daniel Murphy recently announced the appointment of several members to the Oakland County Private Industry Council.

The 38-member council now includes three area residents — Dr. Sami Alam of Brighton, Thomas DeLuca of Walled Lake and Paul Potter of Northville.

The council is comprised of local business executives, labor leaders and training professionals who advise the county executive on the expenditure of funds through the Job Training Partnership Act.

The act provides funds which are used to train workers for specific jobs in specific industries. The program focuses on three groups: economically disadvantaged youths between the ages of 14 and 25, welfare recipients and displaced workers.

The training is provided either by employers under on-the-job training contracts or under contract with vocational and other skill-training schools.

All of the terms on the council became effective July 1 and will run for one, two or three years.

YES MICHIGAN

Name reflects evolution of hotel/motel business

The nation's largest and oldest established group of hotel and motel brokers recently completed arrangements to change its name from the Motel Brokers Association of America (MBAA) to the American Hotel and Motel Brokers (AHMB).

The most notable change in the new name is the addition of the word "hotel," which reflects the changes that have occurred in the hotel and motel brokering business. In contrast to 25 years ago when the association was first established, hotels are now an increasingly significant portion of AHMB's business.

AHMB members in Michigan are Barrett Broad of Chapen-Broad & Upton on Grand River in Novi.

AHMB President Del Andersen notes the change in the association by pointing out that the organization has always marketed hotel properties and in recent years this segment of the market has become more important.

"AHMB, as it is now known, has always been the leader in the buying and selling of hotel and motel property nationally," said Andersen, "but it became clear to us that our name didn't accurately reflect our real business to all segments of the market."

In the past, motel sales were by far the top performer for AHMB members, Andersen said. But that trend began changing many years ago as SHMN members deal more and more with larger properties and began advising more sophisticated investors.

The changes in the industry noted by AHMB are include:

- Even though the smaller motel is still an important segment of the market, the demand for smaller properties is decreasing.

- Demand for larger properties is increasing because of new investment trends, both for individual investors and the larger investment syndicates.

- Fewer smaller properties are being built. Economics have begun to dictate greater construction efficiencies, which means larger properties. In addition, smaller properties are being torn down and replaced by larger ones.

- Consumers now demand more amenities from lodgings that larger hotels and motels can offer. Efficiency motels have been overshadowed by larger hotels and motels which offer restaurants, swimming pools and entertainment.

AHMB, which reported sales of over $700 million over the last five years, outranked other hotel and motel brokerage organizations by a wide margin, according to Andersen. AHMB has 38 member offices nationwide, including an affiliate office in London.

"Our members have always been extremely knowledgeable about the industry," said Andersen. "It has been the organization's commitment from the beginning to always be the industry leader."

Bradys like new 'home'

Decorated in shades of green, rust and khaki with brass accents, Diamond Jim Brady's/Union Lake features an all oak-bar plus oak trim on the doors and windows.

"We got the oak from Campus Treasures on the Wayne State campus," reported Matt. "The wood trim used to be in Wayne State buildings that have been torn down or remodeled."

A special conversation point are the 20,304 1984 pennies encased in a clear plastic coating on the top of the bar, all but one of them "face up." The trick, of course, is to find the one that isn't.

The menu has been carried over from the Diamond Jim Brady's on Seven Mile ... the same menu which once led famed food critic James Beard to write about the place as a shining example of the survival of the American saloon. Mainstays are steaks, king crab and shrimp salads, two soups daily and a hearty chili plus the well-known Diamond Jim Brady's hamburgers.

"Diamond Jim Brady's is unique," said Matt. "There's a special ambience here that makes it a nice place for somebody looking for a sophisticated cocktail lounge or someone looking for an inexpensive place to take his family out to dinner."

"We're a family tavern," he adds. "We want to do for Union Lake what Norm LePage and Nifty Norman's has done for Walled Lake."

NEW QUARTERS — The staff of the Leemon Oil Company in Novi recently held an open house to celebrate its move into larger quarters. Leemon Oil, a wholesaler and retailer of petroleum products, has moved into office facilities at the former Gulf Bulk Storage Plant at 40550 Grand River. The move was necessitated by expansion and the need for addi-

Guild showcases baskets at upcoming Tivoli debut

By MICHELE McELMURRY

Like most of her fellow weavers in the Mill Race Basket Guild, Janet Urbahns got hooked on the craft after taking one of Helen Maki's basket weaving workshops offered through the Northville Historical Society.

"I've always admired baskets," Urbahns explains amidst bundles of reed and baskets piled throughout her converted work room — formerly the family basement.

However, she notes it wasn't until taking Maki's class four years ago that she caught the weaving bug.

The basement/workshop of her Nine Mile home is evidence of her dedication to this rediscovered country craft. Baskets in all shapes, sizes and design fill the corner of her comfortable work area.

"No one plays Ping Pong anymore," she laughs, glancing toward the game table piled high with weaving materials.

Many of the baskets now filling the Urbahns basement will be on display at the Tivoli Fair this Friday and Saturday in the Mill Race Basket Guild's booth on the concourse at Northville Downs.

Urbahns, along with the 18 other Basket Guild members, will be displaying their crafts for the first time at Northville's popular fair.

She notes that members will be selling a variety of baskets — from small hanging types to the more detailed handled buttocks baskets.

If Urbahns' creations are any indication, basket enthusiasts are bound to find something to their liking at the guild's booth.

She notes that while most weaving is done with commercial reed available at craft stores, any kind of vines can be used — from honeysuckle and grapes to pine cones.

Basket colors also vary in accordance with the type of dyes used.

"Most of my dye is made from walnuts," Urbahns points out. However, she notes that just about anything can be used such as marigolds, grapes or mulberries.

Urbahns explains that the degree of detail on the basket — from its design to dye color — often depends on the experience of the weaver.

She notes that most of the guild members have been weaving anywhere from three to five years with most participating in crafts shows or selling their work at area shops.

Urbahns, who just completed a show in Ohio, says she brings about 50 to 60 baskets to each show.

With the average basket taking anywhere from 5 to 10 hours to make, "not too many days go by that we don't weave," she says.

The Mill Race Basket Guild began in October, 1982, with a group of nine women meeting in Helen Maki's basement.

Since that time, the guild's membership has expanded to nearly 20 participants and monthly meetings now are held at New School Church in Mill Race Village.

Urbahns explains that guild members or guests teach new weaving techniques to the group at its monthly gatherings.

While the guild's membership is limited to experienced weavers, Urbahns points out that members — such as herself — have started teaching their own classes.

She currently has four students taking classes one day a week.

Urbahns notes that the interest in handmade crafts has "mushroomed" during the past several years as more people learn skills such as weaving, stenciling, caning, needlework and the like.

She points out that the popularity of basket weaving led to the formation of a statewide basket guild last Christmas. The state group will be holding a convention in Flint next week with more than 400 basket enthusiasts attending.

"I think one of the reasons people get into weaving is because of the expense of the old baskets," Urbahns says, noting that the price of antique baskets has almost made them unaffordable to the average collector.

However, she notes that there also is a tremendous degree of satisfaction in weaving your own basket.

Urbahns has passed along her skill to her four children who all know how to weave.

She also notes that her weaving project has become more or less a family affair over the years. She says her eldest son has become "quite good" at gathering vines and certain kinds of grasses for her to use in weaving and that her daughter does the woodburning designs and stencils her name on the bottom of each basket.

Even her husband helps out with the marketing by designing cards to be placed on the many baskets headed for shows.

With such a variety of talent at her disposal, Urbahns says she can assure buyers they are getting a truly unique basket.

"No two are exactly alike," she adds.

Crocheted cloths featured by local artisan at weekend fair

Diane Bezanilla with pineapple pattern tablecloth

Because Diane Bezanilla couldn't find a tablecloth she liked to fit her round table, she picked up her crochet needle and made one.

"Everyone who came over liked it, and two girls I work with ordered them," she recalls, relating how her craft hobby was born.

For the past year she has been working on six cloths, four white and two off-white, which will be exhibited in her booth at the Tivoli Fair this Friday at Northville Downs.

When you hear that the cloths are crocheted in one continuous piece in the striking pineapple pattern, it isn't surprising that the Northville resident's work was chosen by the Tivoli Fair jurors of Northville Historical Society for the popular show.

Bezanilla says she doesn't make her tablecloths in crocheted pieces and join them together because "I don't trust that well — they can come apart." She admits the cloths become heavy to work on in one large piece.

The tablecloth she made first for her own table after moving here 2½ years ago has been in place ever since in the Bezanillas' log cabin home on River Street. She has noticed that "it does stretch" but goes back into shape after washing.

Bezanilla, who works for Northville Downs during the racing season, recalls that she actually started crocheting when her five children, now grown, were small. She made dollies, afghans and ponchos, jumpsuits and sweaters.

Right now she's sticking to the tablecloths, all of which are made in the pineapple pattern.

"It was my grandmother's favorite," she recalls, relating how her grandmother had come from Czechoslovakia to Detroit.

She passed away not long after, Diane Bezanilla says, but not until her granddaughter had mastered the lovely pineapple pattern.

Openings available for Mill Race classes

There still are openings available in the stitchery, antiques and children's classes offered this fall by the Northville Historical Society at Mill Race Village.

On Tuesday evenings at 7 p.m., beginning October 2 for four consecutive weeks, a class in Quilted Clothing will be taught at the Wash-Oak Schoolhouse by Linda Den Haan.

She will teach students to make original works of art they can wear. The class is well-suited to those familiar with quilting techniques, as well as those just beginning.

Children in Needlepoint Ornaments for Christmas tree decorations, offered Saturday at 10 a.m. December 1.

"Mill Race Antique Forum" is a three-part series led by Plymouth antique experts Lynn and Doris Ehrle.

Beginning October 25, the three-week lecture series will feature: the art of buying antiques, American Country Furniture, restoring your special find, Redware and Stoneware, and American historical flasks. Classes will be held in New School Church for the $10 series.

Registration forms may be obtained at the Northville and Plymouth city halls and public libraries and the Northville Chamber of Commerce.

Those attending the Tivoli Arts and Crafts Fair held from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. September 28 and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. September 29 may register in person at the Northville Historical Society booth.

For further information, contact one of the craft program directors: Sally Henrikson, 349-4607; Barbara Louie, 348-7244 or Linda Clark, 349-6945.

Historical society sale features baked goods

In addition to the crafts that make the annual Tivoli Fair a major area attraction, the bake sale booth of the Northville Historical Society is known for the quality of its goodies.

The historical society, which sponsors the two day fair being held from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday in the Northville Downs clubhouse, will hold the bake sale inside — just beyond the entry stands.

Val Cook reports that every year all that is donated is sold. Last year the society realized $385 from the bake sale. This year the goal is to approach the $500 mark.

Coffee cakes, sweet and yeast breads, rolls, pies, cookies and iced cakes are popular selections.

Chairperson Cook is asking society members and friends who wish to contribute to bring their donations anytime between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. both days.

To inspire society cooks, she is sharing a basic recipe from Boston's famous Durgin Park Restaurant. "It's simple but delicious," she says.

TEA CAKE, CORN BREAD BLUEBERRY CAKE

For tea cake:
¾ C. sugar
2 eggs
¾ teaspoon salt
3 C. flour
1 Tbsp. baking powder
1 Tbsp. melted butter
1½ C. milk

Mix sugar with beaten eggs. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Add melted butter and milk. Beat up quickly and bake in a large buttered pan in a very hot oven (425-450 degrees). This makes one large pan which cuts into 20-22 squares.

For Blueberry Cake, add one cup blueberries last.

For Corn Bread, substitute one cup yellow corn meal for one of the three cups of flour.

Students will not only learn various stitches, but will bring home four completed samplers, suitable for sachets, doll pillows, hanging ornaments of other gifts.

Horsemanship highlights library's Saturday events

Special Saturday activities at Northville Public Library, ranging from horsemanship and break dancing demonstrations to Halloween make-up, begin this weekend with a presentation by the Morgan Horse Association at 1 p.m. Saturday in the park behind the library.

The horses and their owners will demonstrate horsemanship and the versatility of Morgan horses for riding and driving. The hour long program includes time for questions and visiting with the horses. All horse lovers are welcome to attend.

School-aged children can learn Halloween make-up tricks from theatrical pros Deb and Kurt Kinde at 11 a.m. October 27. The workshop will teach children how they can create their own spooky, creepy, clown or fairy princess faces from make-up and special effects for dramatic trick-or-treating. Registration for this workshop begins Monday, October 15.

Kids can learn the moves for several steps at the break dancing workshop at 2 p.m. November 10. Young dancers from Piazza Dance Studio in Highland Lakes Shopping Center will demonstrate break dancing and on your feet steps of this popular dance form. Registration for the break dancing workshop begins October 29.

Registration for all programs can be taken at the library, 215 West Main, or by calling 349-3020.

Progressive dinner welcomes residents

By JEAN DAY

Earlier this year Bruce and Carol Butske moved from a home on North Center where they had lived for 15 years to a salt box colonial built in a former orchard on West Nine Mile.

Last Sunday their new neighbors along Nine Mile officially welcomed them and two other families new to West Nine Mile with a progressive dinner. Dean and Mary Molde and Tom and Laura Steiner also were dinner honorees. "While we don't live too close together, we're a friendly neighborhood," explained organizer Carole Litzelman of the party to "meet and greet neighbors." She and her husband John were responsible for the final stop for dessert and coffee.

Pat Thompson was hors d'oeuvres hostess with the 25-30 invited guests continuing to the home of Susan and Jack Couzens for soup. Richard and Carolyn Starkweather were main course hosts.

It's a two generation apple pie sale

At the apple pie sale of Northville Mothers' Club and its Life Member group downtown during the Northville Merchants' Autumnfest this weekend, there may be some pies baked with the same recipe. Members of both groups are being asked to bake two pies each for the sale. Since there are three mother-daughter members in the two groups, some favorite recipes have been handed down.

Life member Ruth Mary Atchison's daughter Roxanne Casterline is a member of the Mothers' Club as is life member Virginia Pauli's daughter Carolyn Nieuwkoop. Member Sarah Deal has both her mother, Betty Schrader, and mother-in-law, Betty Deal, in the life group. To become a life member, it is necessary to have been in the Mothers' Club for at least 10 years. The club, organized in the depression days of the 1930s to supply milk for students who could not afford it, still works exclusively for youth projects.

Members donate of their varied talents

The list of "talent" donations for the Talent Auction last Sunday evening at First Presbyterian Church included a hot air balloon ride and a five course gourmet dinner for eight to be prepared by Lynda Heaton, Carol Richardson, Norma Peltz and Joan Sellen.

Members bid on donations ranging from baked goods, legal advice, a tennis lesson, a bridal veil, a day of nursing service — and a posture evaluation — to a weekend at a cottage with the owners.

The most visible results of the auction, the church reports, will be recovering of the sanctuary pews to match the new carpet. Other proceeds are to go to the women's association mission fund.

State convention held here

The 56th annual convention of the Michigan Branch of the International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons will be held at the First United Methodist Church in Northville next Monday and Tuesday.

It is being hosted by the Wayne County Branch of the King's Daughters and Sons. Convention plans have been made by the Wayne County circles under the chairmanship of Mrs. Douglas Bolton of Northville, who is Wayne County president.

Theme of the convention is "In as Much — of Service." Guest speaker at the noon luncheon Tuesday will be Dr. E.J. McClendon, professor of health education at University of Michigan. He will be speaking about American Indians.

Northville Mizpah Circle, in which Mrs. Bolton also serves as president, will be in charge of the 8 a.m. coffee hour on October 2 with registration beginning at that time.

The Reverend Eric Hammar, pastor of First United Methodist Church, will lead members and guests in Holy Communion at 9 a.m. A memorial service will be given by Mrs. Winston Churchill.

Michigan Branch President Mrs. Andrew Watson of Midland will call the meeting to order at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

The executive board will meet at 2 p.m. Monday with the board dinner being served at 6:30 p.m.

The United Methodist Women of the Northville Methodist Church will be serving all meals for the convention.

Childbirth classes slated

Preparation for childbirth classes are being offered at Northville High School through the Community Education Program.

The next series begins Wednesday, October 10, and runs through November 14.

The classes provide a thorough explanation of pregnancy, labor, delivery, instruction in relaxation, breathing techniques, body toning exercises and information on medication, procedures and hospital practices.

The father or support person is helped to coach and supply physical and emotional support to the mother.

For further information or registration, call the Northville Community Education office at 349-3400 or instructor Nancy VanDerworp at 348-1361.

LIGHTNING: AN 87TH PRECINCT NOVEL by Ed McBain. The cases bedeviling the 87th Precinct are bizarre but well-motivated in this police procedural by a master.

THE CONVIVIAL CODFISH by Charlotte MacLeod. Sarah Kelling searches for a murderer, a threat to her uncle, who is the leader of a convivial group.

TIP ON A DEAD CRAB by William Murray. Incurable gambler Shifty Anderson meets the stunning but tricky Marina and her stable of curiously undependable racehorses.

THE HANGING DOLL MURDER by Roger Ormerod. Detective Patton realizes that he is coming to love a woman who had strange dealings with a rapist-murderer.

Cagers lose two close ones in league play

Northville hung close for most of both games, but had to chalk up losses to league rivals Farmington and Plymouth Canton in varsity basketball action last week.

Now 1-3 overall (1-2 WLAA), the Mustangs must gird for the toughest week of the season yet. Tomorrow, they travel to play big, bad, state-ranked, unbeaten Walled Lake Western at 7:30 p.m., then come back home to face South Lyon, one of the strongest teams in the Kensington Valley Conference this year.

"This week will give an indication of where we stand and where we have to go," observed Mustang Coach Ed Kritch. "It should be interesting."

The Mustangs' 37-35 loss to Farmington on Tuesday, September 18, certainly qualified as interesting. The game was up for grabs right until the final buzzer.

The Mustangs trailed by three when forward Tricia Ducker grabbed an offensive rebound and canned an inside jumper. The Falcons managed to inbound the ball and Northville fouled for possession.

Farmington converted the first free throw, but the Mustangs were unable to get the ball upcourt after rebounding the second and before the final buzzer.

"We lost that game in the first half," Kritch said later. "We were four of 14 from the line in the first half and that came back to haunt us."

Ducker and Kathy Korowin each scored eight points and Erin Ryan seven to lead the Mustangs. "Erin had her best game ever," Kritch beamed. "She had seven rebounds, played good defense and went three-for-eight from the field.

Ducker led all rebounders with 12, her career high. "I'm really happy with the effort we made," said Kritch. "We had a number of missed opportunities. We had a few mental lapses, but those are the kinds of things we can work on."

In Thursday's 40-29 loss to Canton, Northville mounted a fourth-quarter scoring flurry to pull within three points with three minutes to play.

The score was 29-26 Canton with three minutes left. Then Canton, as Kritch put it, "played the best basketball we've seen this year." The Chiefs worked a stall to perfection, picked up backdoor baskets on the Mustangs' man-to-man pressure defense, forced Northville to foul, and sank every one of their free throws.

"They did everything you could want a team to do," Kritch admitted. "I think we let them get away from us in the third quarter. We're looking forward to playing them again."

Ducker led the Mustangs with eight points and 13 rebounds to top her output Tuesday. Sue Terwin played effectively, scoring seven points and playing tenacious defense. And Chris McGowan picked up the Mustangs with some good play at guard coming off the bench.

"I feel good about our effort and attitude," Kritch said. "We're getting close to winning. We just need to clear up some small mental mistakes."

Northville's game against Walled Lake Western tomorrow will be played at Walled Lake Central High School while the Western gym is being remodeled.

Frustration

Call it racers' luck. Local driver Tim Evans was running well September 16 at Michigan International Speedway's IMSA GT weekend marking first use of a new road circuit. Qualified sixth in GTO class, Evans and co-driver/car owner Bill Wink ran into early transmission trouble in the 500 km race. Their Camaro blew its engine at lap 68 and was classified 22nd overall and eighth in class. Evans and Wink were in good company — only 13 drivers in the field were running at the checkered flag. Warriors trip harriers

No sooner had cross-country runners Cindy Panowicz and Wendy Nuechterlein started regaining the dominating form they displayed last season than disaster struck.

The pair ran 1-2 to lead Northville to a 20-37 victory over league rival Farmington Tuesday of last week. But in that meet, Nuechterlein developed a stress fracture leaving her prospects for the rest of the season uncertain.

"It started hurting her around the second mile," said Coach Ed Gabrys. "Just in case, we had it x-rayed and next thing I know she's on crutches. I guess we'll have a better idea what her prospects are for returning in another couple of weeks."

Panowicz clocked a swift 21:05 on the Oakland Community College Course and Nuechterlein finished second, 28 seconds behind. Their teammates weren't far behind. Pam Cavanaugh took fourth in 22:14, Jennifer Goshorn fifth in 22:18 and Sue Blanchard eighth in 23:32.

"I'm happy to win, but we can't stand too many more victories like that," Gabrys said. "We're thin as it is, and now without Wendy..."

Two days later, the Mustangs got a good look at Life Without Wendy and Life Without Jennifer as well. Goshorn came down with the flu bug and Northville was forced to forfeit to Walled Lake Western.

Even had Northville fielded a full team, Western would have been hard to beat. At Willis Park, where the Warriors' home meets are run, they ran for show against the Mustangs. Panowicz was the unofficial winner, running a 22:06 over the hilly course. Cavanaugh was fourth in 23:02, Dawn Schweim eighth in 25:20 and Blanchard ninth in 25:32.

The Mustangs' first dual-meet loss left the team with a 2-1 overall record (1-1 WLAA). Tomorrow, the Mustangs are scheduled to take on Western Division WLAA rival Plymouth Canton at 4 p.m. at Cass-Benton. Saturday, Northville will compete at the Walled Lake Western Invitational.

Harrison gets coaching post

Omar Harrison, Northville High School's boys junior varsity basketball coach for 16 years, was selected last week to replace Tim Lutes as head coach of the Mustang varsity basketball team beginning this summer.

"We're glad to have someone who has spent a lot of time with our program, as Omar has, taking over," said Northville High School Athletic Director Ralph Redmond.

Harrison, also a junior varsity football coach at the high school, is a graduate of University of Kentucky

(and a student when legendary coach Adolph Rupp coached his last national championship team), and teaches science at Meads Mill Junior High.

Lutes announced this summer he would not return as basketball coach so that he could have more time to pursue graduate studies and to spend more time with his family.

Official word is still being awaited on who will take Harrison's junior varsity coaching job, but it is expected the post will be offered to Darrel Schumacher, a longtime friend of Harrison.

Vicki Robins picked up a big win Friday

Netters waste no time getting back on track

Northville's tennis team got right back on the winning track last week, easily turning away Livonia Churchill, Bentley and Ypsilanti to boost the squad's record to 8-1 for the season. The Mustangs are now a healthy 5-0 in league play.

Although the Mustangs disposed of Churchill 6-1 on Monday, Mustang Coach Uta Filkin reported the Chargers were much improved over previous seasons. "That was the best I'd ever seen them," she said.

Vicki Robins suffered Northville's only loss, falling 3-6, 2-6 to Sue Pachera, one of the Western Lakes Activities Association's top singles players.

Denise Colovas was an easy two-set winner at second singles, but Lynn Frelick barely edged Betsy Pole 7-6, 7-5 at third and Dorothy Ziegler needed three sets to top Brenda Carman, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 at fourth singles. Jennifer Trausch and Lori Housman won their first doubles match 6-0, 4-6, 6-3.

"They really can be a fabulous team," Filkin said of the duo, "but they never seem to be able to hold together for two sets. They had a little bit of a slump, but I think they're starting to come out of it."

Leslie Oliver and Sherry Feydenko at second doubles and Diane Lindquist and Lauren Oliver were easy two-set winners.

Wednesday, the Mustangs defeated Bentley 5-2, with everyone but Robins and Frelick posting victories. Robins lost 2-6, 4-6 to another estimable opponent, Lisanne Montforton. Frelick ran out of gas in a marathon battle with Jennifer Olshenkeski 6-7 (with a 7-9 tiebreaker), 2-6.

Ziegler played the only match of the day that went three sets, prevailing 6-4, 2-6, 6-2.

Friday, Northville made non-league opponent Ypsilanti another easy victim 6-1. Robins fought from a three-game deficit in her first set to break out of her slump 6-3, 6-0.

Frelick lost her third singles match 3-6, 3-6, but all of Northville's other wins came in two sets.

Soccer team loses to Spartans, ties Pats

Northville's varsity soccer team suffered its first winless week of the season last week, absorbing a hard-fought 2-1 loss to Livonia Stevenson Tuesday and a disappointing 3-3 tie with Livonia Franklin two nights later.

Jerry O'Brien's late-game goal stirred a Mustang flurry in the Stevenson game, but the Spartans' earlier two-goal margin proved insurmountable.

The Spartans scored on a header off a corner kick in the first half and went up 2-0 early in the second half on a scramble in front of the Mustang net. And although the Mustangs had more chances, they were unable to convert any for goals except O'Brien's.

The senior winger had to work for his first goal of the season. With minutes remaining, picked up a loose ball, fired a shot that caromed off a Spartan defender, chased the rebound and drill-

'We'll need a better team effort to make up for the skills and speed we'll be missing.'

—Marvin Gans
Northville Soccer Coach

ed a chest-high liner just inside the near post.

Northville was doing without the services of midfielder Bob Guldberg and the lineup shuffling left the squad with a few weak points. "We needed a little more speed in our backfield against a team like Stevenson," admitted Coach

Marvin Gans.

On Thursday, Northville led Franklin 3-2 and appeared to be in control when the Patriots picked up a freak goal — a Franklin throw-in struck a Patriot player in the back and bounced into Northville's net with a minute to play.

"They considered it a win, and I have to say, we considered it a loss," Gans said later. May, Joe Mackie and Don Graham scored for Northville.

The Mustangs, now 4-3-1 overall, 2-2-1 in the WLA will next take on Plymouth Salem, tomorrow at 7 p.m. at home. Then the Mustangs must come right back for another tough game Tuesday at division rival Livonia Churchill.

With forward Fred Cahill and midfielder Bob Guldberg fighting off injuries, the Mustangs may find the going rough getting back on the winning track. "We'll need a better team effort to make up for the skills and speed we'll be missing," Gans said. "Hopefully, we'll be conditioned well enough to do that sort of thing."

Deja vu — Bentley edges Mustang tankers

This is getting positively weird. For the third year in a row, Livonia Bentley's women's swim team defeated Northville by a margin one event provided.

Last Thursday, in Northville's pool, the Bulldogs took the Mustangs right down to the final event, the 400 freestyle relay, and then blew them out of the water for a 43-40 win.

Dawn Biondi, Jill Roth, Kristin VanderBok and Karen Petersen were nearly half a minute off Bentley's winning pace. Sort of anticlimactic.

"We had a couple of bad breaks," admitted Northville Coach Bill Dicks. That's an understatement. Julie Stock pulled up with an leg injury before the meet and will likely miss at least another couple of weeks.

"Karen Brining showed a lot of team spirit by trying to learn those dives so she could pick up a place for us," Dicks pointed out. Brining did a dandy job, too — her score of 88.05 was no Micki King number, but it was good for third and not far from second.

Brining's efforts typified the team spirit, Dicks said. "The girls are working really hard and getting a touch of the physical problems they had last year. The difference is, last year they were saying, 'Coach, my shoulder hurts, can I skip this event?' and this year they're saying, 'Coach, my shoulder hurts, but I'm going to swim anyway.' Their attitude's a lot better this year."

Erika Nelson was Northville's only double winner, taking firsts in the 200 freestyle and the breast stroke. Shari Thompson won the 500 free and Roth the backstroke for the Mustangs' only other firsts.

Seconds were turned in by Brining in breast stroke, Biondi in the 100 free, Roth in butterfly, Petersen in the 50 free and Thompson in the 200 I.M. Northville's medley relay team also placed second.

Taking thirds for the Mustangs were Kim Wilds in 200 free, Stephanie Warren in 200 I.M. and backstroke, Biondi in the 50 free, Kim Brining in butterfly, VanderBok in the 100 free.

Northville's next meet is against division rival Livonia Churchill, beginning at 7 p.m. at Churchill.

Ailing Mustang harrier squad loses big to Falcons, Warriors

Whew — just try and stop Farmington this year. The Falcon men's cross-country team swept not just the top five, but the top six spots in last Tuesday's dual meet against Northville at Oakland Community College last week, blowing away the Mustangs 15-45.

"We could've run better," said Mustang Coach Ed Gabrys. "Our packing wasn't that good. We went out a little too quickly."

It's not too likely correcting those mistakes would have changed the outcome much. Rich Naszradi ran a very swift 17:51, but that was only good for seventh against Farmington, favorites to win the Western Lakes league title.

Battling the flu, Matt Winquist turned in a strong showing, running eighth in 18:36. Alan Griffith was at his shoulder for ninth in 18:37. Meadows took tenth in 18:38 and John Huston 11th in 19:41.

Two days later, the league's Western Division favorite, Walled Lake Western, dealt an injury-hampered Mustang unit another league loss, 23-32.

Brett Netke and Naszradi threatened to make it closer by sticking with the Warriors' lead pack as long as they could. But Netke aggravated an ankle injury after two miles and had to drop out, while Naszradi — usually Northville's quickest finisher — strained muscles while doing hills and wound up in seventh place, behind two teammates. Winquist couldn't run at all.

Griffith was Northville's first finisher, taking third place in 18:39. John Huston was fifth in 18:48 and Naszradi seventh in 19:15. Irvn Meadows ran 19:18 to finish eighth and Kevin Haas 19:19 to finish ninth.

Also running for Northville were Mike Siefken (19:41) and Kirk Kable (19:47).

"I was kind of glad to see that Alan (Griffith) and John (Huston) had the presence of mind to take over the leadership of the pack when they saw Rich start to tie up," Gabrys noted later. "That's a good sign of maturity, of running a smart race."

Northville's next scheduled meet is against division rival Plymouth Canton at Cass-Benton Park at 4 p.m. tomorrow. Gabrys is expecting a close meet. The team is scheduled to compete at the Walled Lake Western Invitational this Saturday.

Viers, Ayers run 1-2 in contest

Dave Viers of Novi beat out Carolann Ayers of Northville to win top honors in the Northville Record/Novi-Walled Lake News' weekly football contest. Robert Fedosky of Northville was third.

Viers and Ayers each missed one game, but Viers won the $10 first prize on the basis of the tiebreaker. Viers guessed Ohio State and Iowa would score a total of 41 points — far off the actual total of 71, but one better than Ayers' prediction of 40 total points.

The tiebreaker also was invoked to determine third place as Fedosky and Jill Bartling each missed two games. Fedosky predicted the Buckeyes and Hawkeyes would run up a total of 47 points, while Bartling overestimated the defenses, predicting only 24 points would be scored.

As a result, Viers takes home $10 for first place, Ayers receives $5 for second place and Fedosky receives third place money of $3.

Most-frequently missed game this week was Florida State's win over Miami of Florida as 78 percent of the entrants picked Miami. Everybody correctly picked Notre Dame to beat Colorado and only one entrant failed to call Purdue's win over Minnesota.

Several entrants are still failing to pick the winner of the tiebreaker. In addition to listing the total number of points scored, entrants also must indicate which team will win. Failing to pick a winner is counted as an incorrect answer.

1985: What's new. What's not.

By KEVIN WILSON

Barring the effects of a prolonged UAW strike, new car shoppers will find much of interest in dealer showrooms this fall. They'll just have to look a little closer.

That's because big changes are few and far between, but detail improvements are spread among virtually every make and model.

This year may prove the watershed in the demise of the long-ballyhooed fall model year introductions. Instead of trumpeting dozens of "all new" models (many of which were little more than facelifts of tired old models), Detroit has in the past few years introduced new products whenever the time was right rather than waiting (or rushing) for fall.

That means some of the newest of the new 1985s won't arrive until a few months later in the model year. Schedules call for a November introduction of GM's Astro small van, for instance. Ford's competitor in this market, the Aerostar, isn't due until next spring, making the Dearborn automaker the last to join the small van craze, Chrysler having introduced the Dodge Caravan/Plymouth Voyager last winter.

In alphabetical order, then, here's what to watch for in dealer showrooms:

AMC/Renault — The Alliance and Encore answer critics who claim the French-designed, Kenosha-built cousins are underpowered with a new 1.7 liter engine replacing the old standard 1.4 liter four-cylinder. Aside from that, the big news is that the Alliance comes in a drop-top version this year, giving "Franco-American Motors" an entry in the convertible sweepstakes.

Buick — The 'N-car' is dubbed the Somerset Regal and this is as good a place as any to define the genre: one step up from the little 'J-car' and one below the A-body, the N-body cars in Buick, Pontiac and Oldsmobile versions hold fast to the formal roofline look that has proven so successful in GM's larger models. Softer corners and details point to some attention being given aerodynamics.

The Somerset Regal has the most traditional looks, Pontiac's Grand Am the sportiest and Oldsmobile's Calais something in between. All boast a 92-horsepower 2.5 liter fuel-injected four-cylinder engine driving the front wheels. The Buick-built 120-horsepower 3.0 liter V-6 is an option.

Wheelbase is just over 103.4 inches, length just short of 177 inches.

Other Buick news? Not much. These GM big car divisions are just about the last refuge of the facelift-every-year tradition and making much of it will only encourage them.

With styling features of the Camaros chosen for the International Race of Champions, Chevrolet's 1985 Camaro IROC-Z proves high-performance vehicles are still Detroit's meat and potatoes.

Cadillac — If it ain't broke, don't fix it. About all that was broke at Cadillac was the J-body Cimarron, which gets another front-end restyling after last year's failed to bring buyers flocking to the small Cadillac.

Elsewhere, Caddy continues with the DeVille, Fleetwood, Fleetwood Brougham (the older rear-drive one Cadillac buyers won't drop for the slick new front-drive version), Eldorado and Seville.

Chevrolet — Without an N-car to call its own, Chevy is playing three cards this year: the Astro van, three Japanese-designed small cars and an emphasis on the high-performance image.

The Astro is expected to compete with the Caravan/Voyager, the Japanese minis and Ford's upcoming Aerostar. Chevy and Ford will actually go head-to-head in a sub-category: rear-wheel-drive minivans (Chrysler and the Japanese use front-drive).

Look for Chevy's entry before the end of the year (unless the union says otherwise).

Chevrolet might do well to create a "Rising Sun Division" encompassing three economical cars, all with a Japanese connection. The division started marketing the tiny Sprint in western states at mid-year, making the econo-leader GM's first 1985 model. Only 17,000 are available through next March, when GM clearly hopes restraints on Japanese imports will relax sufficiently to allow wider-distribution of the Suzuki-built three-cylinder entry-level auto.

Detail is the name of the game, as auto producers concentrate on fine-tuning the major technological advances of the last few years.

The next Chevy to boast a Japanese connection is the Isuzu-built Spectrum, similarly limited in marketing area due to the import restraints. Chevy has targeted 16 eastern seaboard states for the Spectrum. It's roughly the size of the division's own aging Chevette (the latter being held over as a 1984 model through December, in order to take advantage of its high-mileage numbers in computing the company's federally mandated Corporate Average Fuel Economy). The Spectrum, though, is a modern front-drive small car with more interior room than you could get in a Chevette-based model if you cut off the roof.

Come January 1, Chevy dealers are to be selling the new joint venture Toyota-Chevrolet car manufactured in California. Similar to Toyota's own Corolla, the new hybrid will suffer no import restraints and ought to make a big mid-year splash.

On the performance front, Chevrolet has nothing totally new but three cars to brag about. One is the Corvette, of course, which gets more power (230 instead of 205) and a softer ride in one fell swoop.

Newer is the Camaro IROC-Z, commemorating Chevy's participation in the International Race of Champions. Drop in 190 horses, racier-than-ever bodywork and fat tires a la Corvette, and you have escalation of the pony-car wars. Targets? Mustang and Firebird, neither of which is sitting still waiting for the IROC-Z.

Finally, America's best-selling car, the little Cavalier is being hot-rodded. Dubbed Z-24, the new addition boasts the standard loud graphics backed up with a port-injected V-6 option. Once America's wimpiest, the GM J-body is finally sporting some flash.

Chrysler/Plymouth — Here the news is the LeBaron GTS, a five-passenger front-drive (what else from Lee Iacocca's gang?) introduction to the market that carries a hatchback but doesn't let on too much. Lots of sporty options to target the upscale buyers who visit the European import showrooms.

The base car has the now-ubiquitous

Oldsmobile's 1985 Firenza models include coupe, sedan and wagon series, plus specialty cars Firenza GT and Firenza ES.

Chrysler 2.2 liter injected four-cylinder and a five-speed with upgraded shifting mechanism from the rest of the Pentastar line. Add the turbocharged engine from the Laser, last year's big splash, and the LeBaron starts acting like a sports car for the family.

Elsewhere, the Chrysler news is subdued. The Laser gets detail improvements and a Shelby version mid-model year. The E Class New Yorker is dropped but reappears as the Plymouth Caravelle SE with a bit less fancy trim.

A youth-oriented variation on the Turismo line brings the Duster name back to the Plymouth line-up, while Highland Park's last rear-drive models — the Chrysler New Yorker and Plymouth Gran Fury — soldier on for as long as people will buy them.

Dodge — Echo the Chrysler comments, but substitute Lancer (another name from the past) for LeBaron GTS and you've got the picture. Add some excitement by dropping the Daytona Turbo Z engine in the Shelby Charger, threatening to turbocharge the Rabbit GTI-eating Omni GLH later in the year and giving all Daytonas the swooper of last year's two spoiler options. Stir in the continued survival of the Dodge Diplomat rear-drive tank and that's about it. Maybe it's the police orders keeping these ChryCo big cars on the market? Or is it nostalgia for 5.2 liters of gasoline-chugging V-8? Whatever, Chrysler will take the money.

Ford — More detail refinements. The mini-van will bow as an early '86 model rather than a late '85 so we'll ignore it for now.

Chevy's entry in the mini-van sweepstakes is the Astro — despite its tiny exterior appearance, it offers the back-seat maneuverability (and removeability) of the traditional Chevy Van.

Tempo gets lots of touch-ups after one year on the market, picking up horsepower both in the base 2.3 liter engine and in an optional 101-horsepower version. Detail improvements inside and out and a performance package (standard part of the mix anymore, even for the most mundane family sedans).

Speaking of performance, the Mustangs all start looking like last year's SVO version with slick hoods and small grills to go with up to 210 horsepower and bigger tires. The turbo four-cylinder is dropped as a Mustang GT engine, but gets even more power in the already-muscular SVO.

Details, details. Thunderbird carries over with similar drivetrain packages, identical exterior skin but a redesigned inside. Will car buffs soon start looking at dashboards rather than grilles to determine what model year a car was built in?

Lincoln/Mercury — If upscale American shoppers want German-built luxury sporting sedans, well, by golly, is Dearborn going to say 'no?' Of course not, not when Ford's own German arm is cranking out a strong competitor in that segment in Europe.

Europe's Ford Sierra comes across the pond as the Merkur XR4Ti (careful, it's German for Mercury and is pronounced Mare-Coor, it says here in the press release). As every good burgher knows, a little 'i' like that in the name means fuel-injected. Which is what the Germans do to the old V-6 last seen here some a few years back when last Ford imported a European car — the Capri.

But Americans get their fuel injected into Ford's 2.3 liter four-cylinder mit turbocharger (you knew the '4' and 'T' in the name stood for something, didn't you?). Styling is controversial, though it may get a better reception in the states than overseas, since we've had one year of the Mustang SVO's biplane rear spoiler to look at first before casting our eyes on the radical aerostyling of the Merkur. Ante up just over $16,000 and you can own something more exclusive than those BMW 320i's that seem to proliferate like rabbits (or Rabbits) wherever the well-off congregate.

Not to be outdone by their high-tech German cousins, Lincoln itself introduces the nation's first domestically-produced four-wheel anti-lock brake system. The designer-model Continentals and Mark VIIs are first to get the systems. As for the Town Car, well, haven't we said "detail" often enough?

On the Mercury side, watch for the Topaz to boast the same fine-tuning improvements granted the Tempo, the Capri to share in Mustang's riches, and the Cougar to follow the T-Bird. And no one is beating Mercury to the big-car money, CAFE or not. The Marquis and Grand Marquis live on. More police orders?

Oldsmobile — Guess what? The Omega has breathed its last. For those who have trouble with the alphabet soup, that's the Olds X-car. Ex-ed-right out of the line-up it was.

Never fear, though. Olds shares in the 'N-body' bonanza with the Calais. See the Buick list for detail, older Oldsmobiles for styling cues.

Olds is back in the performance game, adding a Firenza GT option to its littlest car and giving the Cutlass Supreme (the rear-drive one) a return of the 442 package. The latter gets a 307 cubic inch V-8, with the dual exhaust and four-speed (automatic) transmission that gave the car its name back in the heyday of performance.

The Cutlass Ciera (that's the front-drive Cutlass, and the one that prevented Ford from calling the Merkur a Sierra) gets a GT option to fight the Euro-car wars, and the rest of the line continues as before.

Pontiac — The Grand Am is the 'N' as in 'new' car here. Enthusiast-oriented with two suspension upgrades available and the fancy trim to go with them, it can't help but fall short of generating the excitement of last year's new sporty Pontiac, the Fiero.

Not only are domestic car producers importing ideas of foreign designers — they're importing the designers themselves. The result has been more competitive attention to style and detail by American auto firms.

If the Fiero sold like hotcakes in '84 with its long-on-looks-but-short-on-oomph configuration, how are Pontiac dealers going to keep in stock this year? The sleek, low nose-piece from last year's Indy-pace-car Fiero trumpets the arrival of a real engine out back in the new GT version. We're talking 2.8 liter V-6 with port fuel-injection standard in the GT and optional on the SE and Sport models. Only the base car need suffer along with the 2.5 liter four-cylinder from last year.

By way of compensation, maybe, the little-engined Fiero gets five speeds and the V-6 only four.

Firebird isn't sitting back and taking this upstart nonsense lightly, though. New aerodynamics on all Firebird models are supported by more powerful engines in all options (the V-8 is up to 210-horsepower in its fuel-injected guise).

Speaking of birds, the Phoenix has flown the Pontiac nest. This X-car will not rise from the ashes, other than in name only.

Elsewhere in the Pontiac lineup, its more detail. Lose a diesel engine option in Bonneville, drop the 2000 from the Sunbird's name, change styling a little on the 6000, watch the venerable 1000 plug along. You know the story by now.

Volkswagen — No more cute references to Pennsylvania bunnies. When Volkswagen of America starts pumping its new car into showrooms this fall, it won't be called a Rabbit anymore. How's Golf grab you? That's what the Rabbit's always been called in Europe and now we get to speak grown-up, too. Whatever its name, the new people's car looks very similar to the old one despite a complete redesign.

Sadly for the dealers, the hot-selling GTI version won't arrive until early next year. Golfs will be made here in the U.S., Golfs-mit-trunks (aka Jettas) in Europe and shipped across.

ALL ABOUT CARS

MECHANICS

By B.J. MARTIN

The average car mechanic is no more mercenary than the average doctor or lawyer — maybe less. But each of their professions can be mysterious to the uninitiated.

Like the latter two professionals, the mechanic has his own domain of knowledge: the 15,000 parts (5,000 moving) of the modern-day automobile. And from time to time even the staunch do-it-yourselfer has to yield to the guy who does it for a living.

But how to tell Mr. Goodwrench from Mr. Badwrench? First of all, be aware there are organizations whose job it is to tell you just that.

As of 1981, state law requires repair shops employ a state-certified mechanic for all auto repairs more complicated than an oil change. That certification is granted through the Michigan Bureau of Automobile Regulation, which administers a battery of multiple-choice tests.

The intent of the state certification is not to guarantee professionalism, but to prevent incompetent "mechanics" from servicing your car before they get at least minimal training.

But if you don't like putting your car's fate in the hands of somebody whose expertise consists of picking correct test answers on a multiple-choice exam, there's another certification that carries a lot more weight.

The National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (NIASE) conducts a series of stringent tests on the various automotive systems. Additionally, the institute encourages hands-on programs to train mechanics and keeps abreast of ever-changing new technology in automobiles. To keep up with this increasing complexity, NIASE mechanics must periodically recertify.

Shops which employ them generally display metal signs advertising institute certification. Also, NIASE mechanics often wear a shoulder patch demonstrating what areas of expertise they have acquired for certification: automatic transmission, manual transmission, engine repair, front end, brakes, electrical system, heating-air conditioning, and tune-up.

For best results, get a mechanic who has both state and NIASE certification.

But even the NIASE can't guarantee a good mechanic. If you're still uncertain, check with someone knowledgeable whom you trust. An equally effective method is to check with the local Better Business Bureau or Chamber of Commerce to see if any complaints have been registered against the shop. When you're looking at work that can run several hundred dollars, one or two phone calls can be a wise investment.

A look around the repair shop may provide some clues as to the operations inside. While no car repair joint resembles Nancy Reagan's dining room, it should not be haphazardly strewn with tools and parts, and there should be evidence of efficiency and organization.

It's also a good idea to know your rights: an accurate estimate detailing exactly what parts and work are required, a look at any replaced parts (unless they are to be returned to the manufacturer or a specialist for rebuilding). When visible, you should take a look at their replacements in place on your car. Don't sign a blank order.

Make sure the planned work and parts replacement are described to you in language you understand. When a costly repair is at stake, there's no such thing as a dumb question.

Once you've found your mechanic, there's an important way you can help him or her: describing exactly what's wrong. Many times, a motorist will bring in the car and tell the mechanic what he thinks is wrong. Remember, it's more important to describe symptoms than to attempt an uncertain diagnosis. It's a mechanic's job to figure out what is wrong, and a lay person deprives himself of that expertise by making a less-educated diagnosis.

You can help by describing the symptoms as precisely as possible. Describe any strange vibration, leaking or noise, and tell the mechanic when it happens — hot or cold, moving or idling, with passengers, without. The more the mechanic knows, the less time it will take him to figure out the problem — and the less the labor charge will be.

Don't neglect a test drive immediately after the repair — if something's going to go wrong, it's best to have it handled immediately. And make sure you hang on to that receipt.

Mechspeak: a guide

Don't know your carb from your compressor? You're not alone. When it comes to familiarity with our everyday four-wheeled companion, a lot of us are still foreigners. But you don't have to let mechanics intimidate you with their lingo. For your better understanding of your mechanic and your car, we'll explain some of their terminology:

ALTERNATOR: Produces all the electricity required by the car, including the battery. Powered by the engine.

BALL JOINT: Connects the front wheel to the suspension with allowing the wheels rotary movement in all directions.

BRAKE CALIPER: Holds the brake pad (see below).

BRAKE DRUM: The metal cylinder to which the brake shoes are applied.

BRAKE LINING: High-friction, replaceable material attached to the brake shoes (see below).

BRAKE PAD: High-friction material forced against the sides of the rotor (see below) in a disc brake.

BRAKE SHOES: Either hydraulically or by cable, machine parts in a brake drum that put pressure on the drum.

CAM: Attached to plunger of piston, causes wheels to turn.

CARBURETOR: Mixes the gas with air to create the air/fuel combustion mixture in the cylinders.

CATALYTIC CONVERTER: Controls emissions with precious metals that cause "afterburning" of exhaust.

CHOKE: Used for cold-weather starting, a plate in the carburetor that permits a greater proportion of gasoline in the air/fuel combustion mixture.

CLUTCH: Operated by the foot, engages and disengages the transmission while shifting gears.

COMBUSTION CHAMBER: Area in the cylinder where the spark plug ignites the gas/air to drive down the piston.

CONDENSER: Stores electricity to promote the durability of the points.

CRANKSHAFT: Shaft transferring pistons' motion to rotary motion to turn axles.

DISTRIBUTOR: Device for distributing electric current to the spark plugs so that they fire in proper order.

DIFFERENTIAL: Gears transferring power from the drive shaft allowing wheels to turn at different speeds.

DISC BRAKE: Type of brake containing a rotor compressed by brake pads.

DISPLACEMENT: Volume of air moved by piston. Engine displacement refers to all the air moved by pistons in the engine.

DRIVE SHAFT: Moves power from the transmission to the differential.

DWELL: Distance the distributor turns while the points are closed.

ENGINE BLOCK: Iron casting housing cylinders and their related parts — the heaviest and largest part in the engine.

FLYWHEEL: Regulates moving parts of the crankshaft for smooth transfer.

FUEL INJECTION: In some gas engines and all diesels supplies fuel to engine instead of a carburetor.

IGNITION COIL: Raises battery voltage to voltage needed to spark ignition.

IGNITION TIMING: Timing the spark from a sparkplug to the uppermost position of the piston in the cylinder.

MASTER CYLINDER: When brake or clutch is applied, starts the flow of fluid and applies force to the mechanical parts.

PCV VALVE: Positive crankcase ventilation valve. Controls emissions by allowing gases from the crankcase to be introduced into the intake.

ROTARY ENGINE: Internal-combustion engine that has one large combustion chamber instead of multiple cylinders.

SOLENOID: Energizes the starter motor.

TACHOMETER: Measures crankshaft R.P.M.

U-JOINT: Universal joint — located at end of end of drive shafts or axles, it transfers rotary motion from one shaft to another not in line with it.

VOLTAGE REGULATOR: (often referred to as simply "regulator"), limits the amount of electricity the battery receives from the alternator.

TIRES

Maybe those inflated rubber tubes wrapped around your wheels never particularly commanded your attention. It's a tire, right? You inflate it every so often, it wears down after a while, you buy another. The kind with deep crevasses is best in snow, the smoother type with finer grooves is better in summer.

What else is there to know?

Actually, there is quite a bit to know. About one car out of four has at least one seriously underinflated tire, and the problems that can cause are many: it puts strain on the engine, requires more gas to operate, reduces tire life (a tire underinflated four pounds loses 10 percent of its treadlife during that time) and increases the chances of tire separation and blow out.

Has it been more than a month since you checked your tires? Too long. Air pressure should be checked at least every 30 days and preferably weekly — and most frequently of all when you feel least like doing it. Winter (good time to check out the full-service stations).

Keep the wheels balanced and aligned (a shimmy or pull in the steering column is usually a tipoff of poor alignment), and they'll hold off replacement longer.

Most of all, take it easy on them. Avoid jackrabbit starts and sudden stops, slow down before coming to a corner or curve or on rough roads. Don't ride the edge of the pavement. Avoid curbs and chuckholes and don't speed. Got that? If so, you'll not only save your tires, gas and nerves, but maybe someone's life.

What consumers are most interested in when buying tires, of course, are two things: price and tread wear. When considering both, keep in mind the relative life expectancy of the type of tire to be bought. Bias-ply tires, the least expensive type, tend to average about 75 percent as long as a bias-belted tire, and only 25 percent as long as a steel-belted radial.

That's why, next time you're ready to buy tires, it might be a good idea to bring your calculator and reading glasses. Thanks to a rating system devised by the National Highway Traffic Safety Association, it's possible to get a good idea of the quality of the tire simply from reading information on its sidewall (see accompanying story).

The information most important to a consumer involves the Uniform Tire Quality Grading (UTQG) system. This rating by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administrations gives a numerical treadwear rating. With variations according to climatic and road conditions (keep in mind, Michigan has one of the country's worst climates for tires and cars in general) a UTQG quotient of 100 roughly translates into 30,000 miles of wear (according to sales promotion claims). Thus a 200 quotient roughly translates into 60,000 miles.

Brake questions answered

For motorists who have brake jobs for their cars on their lists of automotive needs, Car Care Council offers these questions to help determine if they're getting the best job possible.

1. Will the rotors or drums need turning or replacing?

Brake linings press against disc rotors in the front, drums in the rear, to slow the car. If drums or discs become pitted or scored, they must be resurfaced on a brake lathe.

If discs or drums already have had too much resurfacing and are too thin for further use, they must be replaced. This will substantially increase the cost of the brake job.

2. Will the wheel cylinders or calipers be rebuilt or replaced?

Wheel cylinders, activated by brake fluid pressure, press brake shoes against the drums in the rear; calipers push the pads against rotors in the front.

Damage from contaminated brake fluid, road corrosives, dirt and grime plus normal wear require cylinders or calipers to be overhauled or replaced.

3. What kind of linings should be installed?

Most late model front wheel drive cars carry more weight in the front than older cars and the brakes tend to operate at a higher temperature. Semi-metallic brakes, standard equipment on many new cars, draw heat away from the friction surface. Replacement linings, whether semi-metallic or the more familiar organic material, should be of a quality to meet or exceed manufacturer's requirements.

4. Will the brake fluid be completely drained, flushed and replaced?

Brake fluid attracts water which, after many thousands of miles, can corrode brake components. Fresh brake fluid or flushing compound should be used to remove any dirt, rust or other damaging material from the system. All air must be removed from the system after the brake work is completed.

5. What about the wheel bearings and seals?

The wheels spin on bearings that should be checked for wear and proper lubrication. Wheel bearing grease is formulated to withstand high temperatures and survive long wear. The seals are designed to keep grease in and dirt out.

Any brake repair means replacing worn or damaged parts with components equal to, or exceeding, the car's original equipment. As with any automotive repair work, the technician should provide a written estimate detailing the work to be done.

A quality brake job may have a higher price tag than "bargain" brake work, says Car Care Council, but in the long run it's likely to be the real bargain in terms of safety, long life and satisfaction.

For the price of a stamped, self-addressed envelope, Car Care Council offers a copy of "How to Keep your Brakes from Letting you Down." An informative illustrated pamphlet that includes a variety of tips on the braking system. Send your request to: CCC, Department B, 600 Renaissance Center, Detroit, 48243.

SAFETY:

By KEVIN WILSON

Take one heavy snowfall. Blend liberally under car tires until it reaches the consistency of slurry. Add one deep freeze to create ice and spin tires over the whole mess for a fine glaze.

That's a recipe for misery that many a Michigan driver faces in the next few months. But take it from a man who makes his living behind the wheel, professional race driver Tim Evans: driving in bad weather demands concentration and skill, but it can be done safely.

"The main thing to keep in mind in slippery conditions is the driver has to be a lot gentler with the controls," says Novi resident Evans. "You want to be as smooth as possible — don't do anything suddenly — feed in the throttle, brake or steering gradually."

Evans, an instructor for the professional Skip Barber School of Motor Racing and chief instructor at the Waterford Hills amateur road racing track in Oakland County, compares driving a street car on snow to the challenge he faces racing in the rain in high-powered machines.

A good racer has the ability to concentrate continually on the task at hand — when the street driver faces the challenge of driving on snow or ice, he or she would do well to follow that example. Look farther ahead to anticipate conditions, avoid distractions and think about what you're doing before it's too late.

Even the most careful driver is going to have to face it sooner or later, though — the dreaded skid. For many a driver, that's the end. Unaware of how to control it, scared by the feeling of a car verging on loss of stability and not anticipating it, they freeze as stiff as the ice-encrusted trees at roadside.

That's one sure way to hit those trees. The first thing not to do is panic. A vast majority of winter skids and slides are controllable, so long as the driver doesn't abandon the helm.

"They're always saying 'turn in the direction of the skid.' That way of putting it always confused me when I was learning," Evans says. Noting that most skids involve the back wheels losing traction and slipping sideways, Evans advises that an easy rule to remember is that "you always turn in the direction the rear end is heading — if the rear end goes to the right, steer to the right."

Many drivers who have mastered that point still get into trouble when they don't anticipate what often comes next — a skid to the opposite side. As soon as you feel the car coming back toward the direction you want to go, bring the steering wheel back to the straight-ahead position. Often the rear end will simply fall back in line.

And if you don't think you can handle a skid at all and drive terrified through the winter months, Evans has some advice: "Stay home. You're only a hazard to yourself and others if you can't control the car — wait it out or get a ride."

If you are going to drive, you should know there's a difference between the traditional rear-drive car and one of the proliferating front-drivers. With no power going to the rear, the back end of a front-wheel drive car is less likely to skid. And with the engine's weight over the driven wheels, you get a minor traction gain (lessened under acceleration or going up hills due to rearward weight transfer).

The downside is that the driver of a front-wheel drive car had better keep the front tires from losing traction — they do almost all the work in laying down power, turning and braking. Lose traction in front and you've lost almost all control.

"The most important thing with front-wheel drive is not to get into a turn too fast — do all your slowing down before you turn the wheel," Evans advises. "If you go in too fast, you have fewer things to do that will get you out of it. The front end will start to slide. If you let up on the gas fast, the front wheels likely as not will lock up (just as if you'd hit the brakes hard)."

Hard as it may be to convince yourself, the best thing to do when you start understeering (front wheels sliding) in a front-drive car is to drive it out — "keep a steady-state throttle condition while turning or ease off just a little," Evans suggests. "The main thing is you don't want to over-react to the situation." Turn a little tighter into the turn and you may scrub off speed without as great a risk of front-wheel lockup as in lifting off the throttle.

Open the throttle in a turn with front drive and the same thing happens: the front tires are asked to do too much and lose traction. Adding throttle often will help if a front-drive car oversteers (rear end breaks loose) — teaching drivers accustomed to rear-drive to hit the gas when the back is loose on their new front-drive car takes some doing, however.

Turning, of course, is not the only situation that can cause a skid. Braking or accelerating too hard can break traction, too, with results just as bad. Hit the brakes hard in any car and likely as not the front wheels will stop rotating — if they aren't rotating, you've lost all steering control. If you feel this happen, let off the brake. It's the only thing that will restore steering.

For many years, drivers have been advised to "pump" the brakes in bad weather: hitting them hard then letting off and hitting them again in rapid succession. Evans says such advice may be outdated.

Evans can hear the drivers with 4-wheel-drive vehicles chortling about how they don't need all this advice, and he agrees — to an extent.

"There is something different about 4-wheel drive in icy or slippery conditions," he says. "It's real nice coming off a stoplight when you have all that traction, going around turns with lots of traction, having plenty of straight-line traction. But what you tend to forget is that a 4-wheel drive car is a car and every car in the world has 4-wheel brakes. The problem is getting going too fast and not being able to stop. You may be able to drive faster in the 4-wheel drive, but you can't stop any faster."

Evans, who grew up in hilly Pittsburgh, has one last bit of advice particularly appropriate in this area of Michigan — about driving on hills.

"I see people slowing down as they go down a hill, reaching the bottom and they're practically at a stop — of course, they can't get up again," Evans says. "The key is to look far enough ahead and plan what you're going to do. If you don't feel comfortable going down the hill fast enough to make it up the other side, don't go down the hill."

For those who can learn how, winter driving can be safe. Once you've gained confidence behind the wheel, you may even find it an enjoyable challenge.

Tethering your tot for safety

Michigan motorists who like to grumble about seat belts, air bags and other government intrusions of their right to drive unsafely generally keep pretty quiet on the subject of child passenger safety seats.

For good reason. The 1982 state law requiring "child restraints" has proved at least as wise as annoying. Already the increased use of child restraints in Michigan has resulted in a sharp drop in injuries to infants and children.

In 1981, prior to Michigan's adoption of the law, there were 2,218 injuries to children reported. In 1983, that number fell to 1,767.

In those same years, Oakland County injuries to infants under age one declined from 34 to 16, and injuries to children age 1-3 fell from 208 to 166. Statistics from Livingston and Wayne counties demonstrated similar rates of decline.

Consider that those statistics reflect only partial compliance with the law. In 1981, 25 percent of children under age one were being kept in car seats and 14 percent of children age 1-3. In 1983 those figures improved to 50 percent for children under age one and 46 percent age 1-3.

Here's the law: Children under one year of age must be fastened into a safety seat, regardless of whether they ride in the front or back of the vehicle. Children between ages one and four must ride in a safe child car seat if they are front seat passengers. In the back seat, use of the vehicle seat belt alone is permitted.

"There's no question in our mind that car seats are effective, and that children buckled up safely have the best chance to survive," said Bob Nelson, spokesman for the Michigan Office of Highway Safety Planning.

"It's possible the law has been an influence on older brothers and sisters, and on parents, too," Nelson said. "In 1981 about 11-12 percent of parents were using safety belts. Since the law took effect, that figure's up to 20 percent."

SECURITY:

*Protecting
your investment*

Being the automobile state has its downside — in the last two years more than 100,000 vehicles were stolen in Michigan, putting our state among the top five nationally.

Think you're secure? Wrong. There's no such thing as a "theft-proof" car. In fact, your pockets are already being picked by increased insurance premiums needed to cover the value of nearly $120 million in Michigan vehicle thefts.

If you want to miss more bad news, skip the rest of this paragraph. Statistics show the recovery rate of stolen cars has dropped from 83 percent in 1970 to about 50 percent now. And odds are good that if you do see your car again, you won't recognize it, as the number of cars being stripped for parts is on the rise.

Had enough? There are ways you can fight back:

- Park in a lighted spot. Thieves much prefer to work in the dark.
- Lock the door and take the keys. You say everybody knows that? Someone doesn't — according to police officers and insurance agents, 80 percent of cars stolen last year were unlocked — and 40 percent had the keys still in the ignition. And don't "hide" a spare pair on the car. Thieves know where to look.

- Buy anti-theft devices — Headless door locking devices, push button hood locks (automatically disabling the ignition), electronic alarm systems, gas line cutoff switch.

- If you're going to be away for a while, a no-cost theft protection method is to remove the ignition wire and rotor cap. Without them, your car can't be "hot wired" unless the thief has an identical set handy.

- Don't leave the car running even if you're just dashing into a mini-mart for coffee and milk. Places where people make quick stops and leave the car running are prime crime spots.

- Be extra alert when driving out of state. Plates from another state almost guarantee a trunk full of luggage, packages and purses. Every chance you get, unload the car.

- Take the cheap car when it's wise. The more expensive, luxurious cars continue to be thieves' main target. Most common targets: Lincoln Continentals, Cadillacs, Corvettes, Thunderbirds and imported sports cars.

Keeping a lock on the opportunity for theft is the key to deterring it, advises the Automotive Information Council.

How to do it yourself

The rise in do-it-yourself car care, spurred on by the proliferation of self-service gas stations, has created a whole new market for auto parts suppliers, according to Starr Advertising's executive vice president for marketing services Frank Lipford.

"Lipford notes that while automobiles are becoming more reliable and requiring fewer replacement parts (ignition points, for instance, are nearly a thing of the past), the move toward do-it-yourself maintenance and repair opens up a broader range of potential customers.

"There used to be a five or six-tier distribution system for auto and truck parts," Lipford explains. "Today, he notes, it's more and more a two-tier system."

Cutting out the "middle men," a more common scenario today is for a manufacturer to sell to a retailer who sells to the end-user, the customer.

"You've cut out several profit margins and that's where the retailer has a price advantage — and he's spending some of that in marketing," Lipford explains.

He notes there are more retail parts stores and more space in outlets like K-Marts or department stores given over to auto parts.

The situation exists partly because because consumers got wise to the savings available if they took on simple tasks like changing oil, spark plugs and air filters themselves.

According to the Automotive Information Council, a survey by A station owner with both self-serve and full-serve islands showed a lot of cars being neglected. He checked the cars of 100 customers who pumped their own gas. Of these, 56 were at least one quart low on oil, 34 needed radiator coolant, 33 had at least one tire far below recommended pressure, 29 needed power steering fluid, and 27 needed battery water.

Checking and maintaining these items is simple and can be learned by even the most "non-mechanical" person. In fact, failure to maintain these critical items can be expensive. Engines may run with as much as four quarts of oil missing, but they don't survive very long if habitually mistreated this way.

Winterizing? Start now!

Any mechanic up to his armpits in slush-covered cars towed into his shop that winter morning could tell you it doesn't have to be this way.

All it takes to prevent much of the bother of winter car care is to do it before winter. Have your snow tires mounted before it snows, for instance.

Check the battery today. Inspect to see that the terminals are clean, the fluid up to the proper level, the alternator belt tight and in good condition, the battery clamps snug on the posts. If you have any doubts, have a mechanic give it a lookover while the snow tires are going on the rims.

Make sure the engine cooling system is up to snuff now, too. Add anti-freeze if needed. If it's more than a couple of years old, have it replaced and the radiator cleaned out. Check for leaks in all hoses, with particular attention to heater hoses. You've not been using the heater all summer and any new leaks could prove surprising on the first cold morning.

Make sure the brake fluid is at its proper level, check the oil, and change it with the filter if needed. While you're checking fluids, keep an eye on power steering and automatic transmission oils. Especially don't forget windshield washer fluid. Stock up if you're running low, for nothing can make a driver feel so foolish as hitting something he should have seen. For the same reason, inspect the wiper blades for cracks or wear. If there are any streaks or the blade chatters across the windshield, replace the blades.

Check all the tires, including the spare, for proper inflation and depth of tread. Have someone turn on all the lights while you watch to insure they all work.

Give the exhaust pipe a yank or two (not with the car running — it gets hot) to see that it is securely attached. If not, have it fixed before corrosion and the accumulated weight of ice tears the good parts off with the bad.

Finally, if the car is running at all roughly now, have it seen after. It likely needs at least a new set of spark plugs and it wouldn't hurt to have the timing and carburetion checked before the extra strain of cold starting shows up the deficiencies.

Engine bays get wet in wintertime, and electricity and water don't mix. If your car is aging, replacing the spark plug wires and/distributor cap can save you a lot of trouble. Old plug wires and caps often allow water inside, preventing ignition. A good test for this is to run the engine in a darkened garage (do it at night so you can leave the doors open to prevent asphyxiation). Bad plug wires will be seen shooting little blue arcs, like miniature lightning bolts, all over the engine bay.

Do as much work as you feel comfortable doing by yourself, but don't hesitate to consult the professionals if you're baffled or even the least bit unsure about a critical system. Like the man in the ad says, you can pay him now, or pay him later.
