A Citizens' Advisory Committee recalled in August to study the school district's demographics and facilities recommended to the Northville Board of Education Monday night that it consider closing one or more schools by the beginning of the next school year.

Gene Smith, spokesperson for the committee, told the board that after five weeks of studying enrollment trends, school capacity, community impact and the educational program, committee members reaffirmed their more than two-year-old recommendation to close one or more schools.

The committee, an offshoot of two committees brought together in 1981 to study the district's demographics and facilities, used the findings of the earlier study as the basis for its review. Smith told the board that the committee based its recommendation on three

Public hearings for community input on the recommendation to close one or more schools in the district are scheduled as follows:

• Monday, October 15, 7:30 p.m. --Cooke Junior High School, 21200 Taft Road:

• Wednesday, October 17, 7:30 p.m. — Silver Springs Elementary School, 19801 Silver Spring Drive;

key issues: better educational opportunities for students, better utilization of facilities and staff, and control of expenses in the school district.

Committee members emphasized to the board that the key issues behind consolidation of schools were improvement of the program and utilization of facilities.

The committee pointed out that since the district's peak enrollment period in 1976-77, the student population has decreased steadily.

It was noted for instance that in 1976-77, the district had 2,124 K-6th graders in its four elementary schools.

Unaudited Fourth Friday figures released by the administration Monday night showed this year's K-6 enrollment in all four elementary schools to be 1,365

With enrollment dropping by more than 20 percent in less than a decade, the district's school buildings are sitting partially empty with many classrooms unoccupied. The committee pointed out that control of the district's finances also was a consideration.

The committee suggested that the board could realize a net savings of at least $50,000 for closing an elementary school and $75,000 for closing a junior high.

Smith told board members that should they accept the recommendation, the committee advised closing schools at the beginning of the 1985-86 school year.

He said the committee suggested that time table to give the community a year to plan for the closing and noted that such action would coincide with the implementation of the middle school program and the completion of the high school renovation.

In addition, the committee recommended that should a school or schools be closed and the middle school be implemented, reasonable class size must be maintained.

The committee also recommended that bus schedules be carefully scrutinized so that students traveling the furthest will only ride the minimal distance

Along those same lines, the committee suggested that the school district boundaries be redesigned to provide an even distribution of the student popula-tion and no students be bused further than the closest school providing education for their particular class.

The committee also recommended that should the board decide to close two schools, "every effort be made to avoid closing both on the same side of the school district."

Smith told board members that they are not bound by the committee's recommendation to close schools on opposite sides of the district. However, he said the committee hoped the board would consider the suggestion before a decision is reached.

'The toughest issue is 'which' schools will be shut down," Smith noted. The committee did not specify schools for closure in its report. Instead, three public hearings have been scheduled next week to give parents and community members a chance to give input into the decision. (See inset for dates and times.)

Parents and residents will have a chance to meet with board of education members, the administration, the superintendent and members of the citizens' committee to discuss the possibility of school closings.

Also scheduled to attend the public hearings is Dr. Keith Goldhammer of the consultant firm of Austin, Goldhammer and Howard.

The school board approved the administration's recommendation Monday to hire the consultant firm as an advisory to the board and administration in its decision to close schools. The firm

State requests amendment of MacDonald's finances

By KEVIN WILSON

John MacDonald, candidate for 35th District Court judge and Northville Township supervisor, is amending his campaign finance statements to reflect nearly $3,200 "loaned" to the committee by the candidate. His action is in response to a request from the state office for campaign finance statement compliance.

The amended report will also show the value of three advertisements in a weekly newspaper charged against the paper's debt to the candidate's law practice, and clear up an error regarding who paid for signs erected throughout the district during the primary election campaign, Mac-

For the third time in a month, a Northville jewelry store was broken into display case inside the door. As in the and robbed of thousands in merchandise.

Shortly after 4 a.m. Sunday, a thief or thieves broke into Orin Jewlers at Main and Center streets downtown and made off with jewelry valued at $7,700.

The modus operandi was almost identical to a September 9 robbery at the same store in which items valued at nearly $35,000 were stolen, and to a ict at Micl on West Seven Mile Road in Northville Township. In that break-in, jewels also valued at approximately $35,000 were taken.

Donald said Monday. The request from the state - which is the limit of its authority to enforce the law regarding campaign finance reporting - was received by MacDonald October 4 and resulted from a complaint filed September $5 by Canton Township resident Dale Smith.

MacDonald claims Smith is an integral part of his opponent's campaign effort and that the filing of the complaint is an effort to discredit him.

MacDonald's opponent in the judicial race - Robert Greenstein of Canton Township - denied any involvement either in the disclosure of irregularities in MacDonald's statements or in the filing of the complaint.

ing of the complaint. "I've never made any allegations about John's finances and I had nothing to do with the complaint," Greenstein said.

For his part, MacDonald said the issue arose at the instigation of Smith, a UAW Local 900 official. The union local has endorsed Greenstein and contributed money to his campaign. Greenstein said he heard from a UAW member who was upset about Mac-Donald's finance statements, but that he advised the man to contact Mac-Donald himself because "I don't want to be involved in this kind of thing. I barely know Dale Smith — he's not part of my campaign staff."

According to a city police report, the department received a call from the Guardian Alarm Company at 4:06 a.m. Sunday. One minute later, police arrived at the scene. As in the previous two thefts, the culprit(s) was gone, this time with 15 rings varying in price from $829 to $225.

The "smash and grab" thefts last month had many similarities to last Sunday's: all took place in earlymorning hours, all involved breaking the tops of display cases to get to the stolen goods, and the cloth display case

Board names NHS administrator

The appointment of a Westwood School District administrator to replace former high school assistant principal Barbara Campbell was unanimously approved by the board of education at its meeting Monday.

William A. Hamilton, assistant principal at Robichaud High School in Westwood, was selected for the post from a field of 67 candidates.

Hamilton, who holds a master's degree in education from Wayne State University and has worked in vocational education in both Livonia and Westwood prior to his assistant principalship, will begin his tenure in the district on October 22.

"We are exceptionally lucky to find this type of quality candidate at this time of year," Superintendent George Bell told the board.

Hamilton replaces former high school assistant principal Barbara Campbell who ended her more than 10year tenure in the district in August to accept the principal's post at Riverview High School.

Prior to approving Hamilton's appointment, school board trustee Karen

Wilkinson voiced concern about three males holding the top administrative positions at the high school. (Hamilton will join principal David Bolitho and assistant principal Ralph Redmond.)

Bell, who made the final decision on selecting the candidate for the post, said he "went into the project hoping I could find a woman."

However, he said he felt he selected the "best candidate for the job."

Bell also noted that two of the three members of the high school counseling staff are women.

Residents protest school's busing policy

By MICHELE MCELMURRY

The Northville Board of Education's adherence to the State of Michigan's busing guidelines is receiving considerable criticism from parents of students who fall within the mile and one-half walking requirement. For the second time since the start of the 1984-85 school year, parents and students alike turned out at the board of education meeting last week to protest the district's busing policy.

In accordance with State guidelines, the district buses only students who live . one and one-half miles or more from their assigned schools.

The one and one-half mile requirement was implemented by the local district in August, 1981, following a millage renewal defeat. Prior to that time, the district bused students who lived one and one-quarter miles from their respective schools.

Though the current busing policy has been in effect for three years, school officials admit the district has been lenient in its adherence to the one and one-half mile requirement.

"There has been a history of drivers picking up kids who live within the one and one-half mile range - even though the district is penalized," Superintendent George Bell told parents protesting the board's policy at its September 10 meeting.

The district's transportation costs are paid in part by categorical state aid. Though state support has dwindled considerably in recent years, the district still is reimbursed by the state for mileage beyond one and one-half miles. Mileage is disallowed for pick-ups within the one and one-half mile requirement.

Board members and administrators contend that in light of the district's current deficit, strict adherence to the state guidelines was mandated prior to the start of the school year to assure state reimbursement.

Parents at last week's meeting argued that students who have been picked up at stops for the last three or

Dense traffic spurs work on Randolph

"The old logging trail has become a major thoroughfare."

That's how one city council member summed up the results of a traffic study conducted by the police department on Randolph Street.

The report, presented to council October 1, shows that 4,625 vehicles traveled Randolph between Eight Mile Road and the bridge over Randolph Drain in one 24 hour period. Maximum volume came between 5 and 6 p.m. when 260 vehicles were counted on that stretch.

There was even higher volume between Center and Wing on Randolph — 425 vehicles between 5 and 6 p.m., but a smaller total count of 2,960 during the full 24-hour period.

The traffic counts show Randolph is a major conduit between the business district and Eight Mile Road, and that it carries a large volume of commuter traffic from residents on roads easily reached from Randolph, which slices diagonally through an area bound by Eight Mile, Main, Center and Taft.

The police department report concludes that Wing Street acts as a major connector with the business district from Randolph, with Linden, High and West carrying progressively lesser volumes south from Randolph.

More than 2,500 cars travel Wing southbound from Randolph in 24 hours, according to the report, with a maximum of 224 in one hour between 5 and 6 p.m. The respective figures for Linden are 1,391 and 136; for High, 610 and 52; and for West, 148 and five.

High Street's maximum volume was the only one to occur outside the 4-5 or 5-6 p.m. periods, with the 52 vehicle count recorded both between 9 and 10 a.m. and between 11 a.m. and noon.

Accidents on Randolph are not a problem, except at its intersections with Eight Mile and with Center, police chief Rodney Cannon told council.

"The accident ratio (a count of accidents compared to traffic volume) is relatively low, except at Eight Mile and at Center, where it's fairly high," he said. "Those intersections are difficult because of the street layout."

The number of accidents on Randolph in the past four years totals 62, the report shows. Twenty-eight of those were at Eight Mile, 20 at Center and only 10 at Linden, West and High streets combined.

The accidents were mostly caused by driver error, Cannon said, and not by speed. In fact, based on the study results he recommended the speed limit be raised to 30 miles per hour. The study showed a mean speed of 28 miles per hour along Randolph's entire length.

length. Standard traffic control procedures call for setting the speed limit in relation to the "85th percentile" speed — a weighted average that reflects the speed at which most drivers travel on the road, presumably at what they believe a prudent speed. For Randolph, the 85th percentile fell at 31 mph between Eight Mile and the bridge and at 33 mph between Center and High. Highest speed recorded on the northern stretch was 42 mph, and 46 mph was observed once on the southern portion. Council was not receptive to the idea of raising the speed limit, however. "I'm deeply concerned over the situation we have," said Mayor Paul Vernon. "I think 30 miles per hour is too fast in that area. I'm also concerned with the traffic volume — there are too many cars traveling Randolph."

many cars traveling Randolph." Council member J. Burton DeRusha said he also felt raising the speed limit would be the wrong step. "If you put it up to 30, then people start going 35," he said. Cannon protested that studies show people adhere to a speed limit that it is in line with the speed they feel comfortable driving at, but did not push the matter.

Council did accept two recommendations arising from the study — that an oversized yield sign replace the current standard size one at the Eight Mile exit to Randolph and that a second sign stating "Commercial vehicles excluded" be posted further east than is the current one, which Cannon said is not seen by westbound Eight Mile traffic turning left onto Randolph.

Vernon suggested prohibiting left turns onto Randolph in an effort to forcibly reduce the traffic volume, but Cannon advised against such a move until at least after both Eight Mile and Center are widened.

"I'm afraid not allowing a left on Randolph would just double us up on Center," Cannon said. "If you add even 1,000 units on Center — boy, it's a mess now. We are at about the maximum on Center. At the lights, the traffic really backs up a long way between 3 and 6 p.m."

Schoolcraft Choir auditions set for new season

The Schoolcraft Community Choir is holding auditions prior to rehearsals for the fall-winter season on Tuesday evenings.

Director Robert Ballard is requesting that anyone who enjoys singing challenging choral music, has previous choir experience and can dedicate Tuesday evenings to making music, attend the 7 p.m. auditions in Room F310 of the Forum Building on campus. Rehearsal begins at 7:30 p.m.

The choir, beginning its 20th year, represents many communities in the metropolitan area and consists of a wide range of ages and musical backgrounds. Major works planned for the upcoming season include "Gloria" by Antonio Vivaldi, Motets of Brahms and Hassler as well as works by Bach and Holst, and arrangements of traditional Christmas music by Robert Shaw, Edwin Fissinger and Norman Luboff.

The choir's weekly rehearsals are from 7:30-10 p.m. and consist of vocal warm-ups, voice training and music theory, sight reading, practice of concert music and mid-evening refreshment and social break.

Robert Ballard is beginning his third year as conductor of the choir. He is choral director at Livonia Franklin High School and was voted the Michigan School Vocal Association's "Teacher of the Year." He has conducted Michigan high school honors choirs and serves as an adjudicator for choral festivals throughout the state.

Offered through Community Services, the Community Choir is a creditfree course available for a fee of $30 per semester. For further information, call Community Services at 591-6400, extension 409 or choir president Sally Moag at 591-6489.

MacDonald to amend campaign finance statement report will include the expenses paid by MacDonald as a debt to the candidate from the committee, he said.

'Some of this stuff doesn't fall within the reporting period (ending August 27)," MacDonald said. "We were going to total it all and put it on our next statement (due October 26) but with the complaint and the request from Lansing, we'll amend the previous report." MacDonald said he did not report his own contributions to the campaign at the advice of CPA and campaign treasurer Lawrence West. "We thought it was all right to do it this way, but apparently the state wants us to amend the earlier report."

Another $2,025 will be reported as a separate loan from MacDonald. The amount is the value of three half-page advertisements published in the Canton Eagle, one of several papers owned by Associated Newspapers. MacDonald has served as the newspaper group's attorney for several years and the value my practice and as a loan to the comof the $675 advertisements was written off against Associated's debt to the practice, he said.

Greenstein said that he doesn't believe it proper for an attorney such as MacDonald to refer to his CPA regarding what is or is not a legal way of reporting the arrangement. "It's absolutely against the law not to report that arrangement," Greenstein said. "John should know that."

A third element of Smith's complaint was not acted upon by the state, but MacDonald said he intends to clarify it anyway. Smith charged that campaign signs posted on primary election day carried a line saying they were paid for by "someone other than his committee or himself." Since Smith could not recall the name of the person he suspected was a contributor not reflected in the statement, the state did not follow-up on this element of the complaint.

MacDonald explained Monday that the problem arose from a printer's error. "The signs said they were paid for by Larry West rather than by the com-mittee to elect," MacDonald said. "It was the printer's mistake -- and I don't know how it happened. Anyway, we'll include a copy of the check (used to pay "A lot of students in the Winchester for the signs) that was drawn on the

> He said the signs will be used again in the current campaign, but that the line crediting West will be pasted over with one showing that the committee paid for them.

MacDonald denied any intent, to violate the campaign finance reporting law and said he does not think the attention drawn by the complaint will harm his chances for election.

"When you run a campaign like this, I think it's typical for something or other to go wrong. You can't do everything perfectly all the time," he said. "I think the public understands. I haven't hidden anything. If anything, maybe I've been a little too open - I've acknowledged everything."

He said that, despite Greenstein's protests to the contrary, he is convinced the complaint was prompted by his opponent's campaign. "I think it's typical of his campaigns," MacDonald said.

Greenstein, while maintaining he had no part in the complaint, charged that MacDonald's claims that the issue is politically-motivated are an effort to divert attention from the violations.

"I had nothing to do with it, but even if I did, even if I had filed the complaint, what difference would that make?" Greenstein said. "Anyone has a right to file a complaint, it's in the law. The real issue here is John's failure to report income to his campaign and it doesn't matter who brought it up."

"dangerous roads." Kent McPhail of Mayo Drive told board members that residents of North Connemara Hills and Dunbarton Pines petitioned Assistant Superintendent Burton Knighton about busing students in that area to the high school.

"Our concern is that students have to walk on dangerous roads without sidewalks," McPhail pointed out, noting specifically Nine Mile and Taft roads.

"It's a long way to go and students have to go to school in the dark," he said.

McPhail told the board that residents of the area "feel we deserve a bus service.

"The stop we want made has stopped for four years," he noted. "We're not asking the bus to change its regular route McPhail mentioned to board members that students were picked up in that area last year and were picked up the first two or three days of the new school year before being told they would have to walk.

The same complaint was made earlier last month by parents in the Silver Springs area.

Residents of Swan Harbor told the board at its September 10 meeting that their children have been bused to school for the last two years and were bused the first day of the present school year before being notified that they no longer were eligible for bus service.

Knighton told parents and students at last week's meeting that "it appears drivers have been making unauthorized stops." He also pointed out that it usually takes a week or two for the district to iron out bus schedule problems at the start of a new school year.

In addition to concerns about safety, parents and students also argued that buses passing their former pick-up stops are not filled.

The board noted busing capacity is

Scoliosis screening slated

Public Schools will be conducting a screening program to identify students with possible curvature of the spine (Scoliosis).

Students to be screened include fifth and sixth grade girls and seventh and eighth grade boys and girls.

Schools to be screened October 18 are Amerman, Cooke and Moraine. On October 25, Meads Mill, Silver Springs and Winchester students will be examined. Scoliosis occurs in 7 to 10 children in every 100 with one in three requiring treatment. With early detection, severe spinal deformities can be prevented. The screening will be done by the physical education teachers, accompanied by the school nurse. Only female teachers may screen the girls;

Within the next month, the Northville boys may be screened by male or female teachers and the nurse.

> Boys and girls will be screened separately in an enclosed room to ensure their privacy. Students will be asked to remove their shirts or blouses so their back is clearly visible. The teacher and nurse will look at the student's back as he/she stands and bends forward. Parents of any students needing further follow-up will be notified.

> Parental permission is required for the screening. Letters and permission slips will be sent home with students in the next few weeks. Parents seeking further information about the Scoliosis screening should contact their child's school principal.

One such area excluded from the walking requirement is Lakes of Northville. The subdivision was excluded from reductions in 1981 due to the safety hazard which could result fom students crossing Six Mile Road.

Board trustee Karen Wilkinson told parents from the Connemara and Dunbarton Pines area that "there is a routing through subdivisions" which would keep students off the main roads. Jean Hansen, board president, noted that "the problem is where do we draw the line?

was hired by the district at a cost not to exceed $4,000. Bell told the board he recommended hiring the firm to "lend credibility to the decision regarding which, if any, buildings to close."

He also noted that an outside consultant with no vested interest in the district can help give the community and school officials an unbiased, objective opinion on the issue.

The three principals in the firm include Dr. Harry Howard, former superintendent of Ann Arbor schools and president of Cleary College; Dr. William Austin, former superintendent of Muskegon Schools; and Goldhammer. Dean Emeritus of the Michigan State University College of Education.

Bell explained that Goldhammer will be serving as the contact person for the district and noted that he will serve as moderator at the public hearings.

Board trustee Chris Johnson, the only school board member to attend Northville schools, said he felt that hiring the consultant firm will be "money well

"I think it's the kind of issue which really deserves somebody from the outside," Johnson said. In addition to scheduling the public hearings, a tentative timeline has been established for board action on the decision.

The board has tentatively scheduled a study session for November 5 to discuss the consultants' report and is scheduled to take formal action on the selection of a building or buildings to be closed on November 12.

The Citizens' Advisory Committee recommended to the board that should it decide to close schools, a letter must be sent to all parents affected by the decision no later than December 1.

Pat Coyne, a Pierson resident and former member of the Citizens Advisory Committee for the High School Renovation Feasability Study, ques-tioned the board's haste in deciding whether to close schools.

"We've been haggling about this for two years," Coyne noted. "It seems hasty to make a decision in three weeks.'

Coyne, who has been defeated twice in his race for a seat on the board of education, also questioned the board's hiring of a consultant as well as the decision to consider closing schools.

Superintendent Bell noted that 'school closings are nothing new to the Northville community" and said the study of population trends with regard to school facilities was among the goals of the long range plan established in 1982

He noted that the district put the demographics and facilities study on hold for two years in order to get the high school renovation under way and put the middle school program in place. Gene Smith of the citizens's committee echoed Bell's remarks and noted that the recommendation to close schools was made by a citizens' committee more than two years ago.

"I know there will be many people out there who will be saying, what did you wait for?"' Smith noted.

Coyne, who has advocated shutting down schools for more than two years, told the board he no longer supported the idea.

'I find it awfully hard to support closing schools when you've given teachers a half million dollar salary increase," he told the board.

He said the savings from summer tax collections also offset the net savings derived from shutting down schools.

Margie Sievert, a member of the Citizens Advisory Committee, told Coyne that the "financial savings was really not the issue.

"Our main concern is programming." she explained.

Smith told the board that the $50,000 and $75,000 net savings cited by the committee are "very low targets to start with."

School Superintendent George Bell also noted that the figures quoted by the committee were those used by the earlier citizens' group.

"It will take some research to decide how much will be saved," Bell noted. "It's possible there will be more savings once the building is closed.

Getty describes methane recovery

Salem Township coffers could be enriched by $40,000 to $80,000 a year once methane gas recovery is in full production at the giant Holloway Landfill located at Six Mile and Napler The focated at Six Mile and rapper roads, according to a representative of Getty Synthetic Fuels of California. - However, it will probably be another 12 to 18 months before Getty will be in full production of high BTU methane, explained John Birkenbine, midwest regional marketing manager for Getty. Speaking at the October 2 meeting of the township board, Birkenbine said Getty is still in the testing process and that permits from the Michigan Depart--ment of Natural Resources are needed before full gas production goes into effect. The high BTU gas, or refined methane, is expected to be sold to Consumers Power under a contract now being finalized, according to Birkenbine.

· Currently, an experimental methane plant is in place next to the landfill and is providing some fuel on an experimental basis to the Holloway Asphalt plant located just west of the landfill. Charles McGee, secretary of Holloway Sand and Gravel, said his company is now getting about one-third of its fuel from the methane recovery project and has to supplement its fuel supply with other sources to provide the heat required to run the asphalt plant.

Landfill gas, which is generated by the decomposition of trash in a landfill, is typically 55 percent methane, 40 percent carbon dioxide, 4 percent water and one percent trace components, according to Getty. Industrial users, such as an asphait plant, can burn the gas as it is recovered from the landfill. However, it must be refined by removing the carbon dioxide and other elements before it can be sold to a utility such as Consumers Power or lichigan Consolidated Gas.

Holloway is constructing a ski slope of trash and earth at Napier and Six Mile which will be turned over to Salem Township on completion. Under an earlier agreement, the township will share the one-eighth (12½ percent) royalties from the methane recovery project with Holloway on a 50-50 basis. The township now owns 77 acres of completed landfill at the Napier-Six Mile site, while Holloway holds another 88 acres in escrow on which the ski slope is being constructed.

Birkinbine said once the ski slope is completed and the property is turned over to the township, the township would then receive the full one-eighth royalties.

Brian Holbert, midwest marketing representative for Getty who ac-companied Birkinbine at the October 2 presentation, said his guess at a ballpark figure on how much full methane production at the landfill could generate in royalties would be $80,000 to $160,000 a year. That amount would be split between the township and Holloway until ski slope construction is complete.

Birkinbine stressed that landfill gas has the potential to rise to the surface of the landfill and emit into the atmosphere. This contributes to odor and pollution problems as well as producing an associated environmental effect of damaging vegetation on the landfill and adjacent properties. Birkinbine pointed out that methane recovery, developed by Getty, benefits the community by minimizing air pollution, controling odor problems and helping to reestablish natural landscaping.

The Getty representatives said the recovery program, which involves inserting polyethlene pipes into the landfill, will not cause any problems for its eventual use as a ski slope.

Birkinbine also tried to reassure area residents who were concerned about the noise factor involved in the recovery program. He agreed that the experimental program at the landfill last summer had created noise but said that it was due to the test procedures, adding that regular production would produce a minimal poise factor.

Holbert estimated that methane recovery may continue from 17 to 23 years after the landfill is closed. The methane plant will be built on skids so that it can be easily removed, according to the Getty representatives. They added that local people will be employed for construction of the plant and that 5-7 persons will probably be employed full-time at the plant once production begins.

Birkinbine said his company is negotiating with Holloway to extend methane recovery to the expanded landfill which is planned adjacent on the west to the current landfill

Investing series begins tonight at library

"Goal Oriented Investing," the first of three seminars covering investments, tax shelters and financial planning will be held at 7:30 p.m. tonight at Northville Public Library.

Tonight's session will cover investing with particular attention given to investments that can be used to meet college costs, retirement and purchase of a new home.

The series will be presented by Ronald Emrick, representing Manley, Bennett, McDonald, a division of Thomson McKinnon Securities. Each week's seminar will be held from 7:30-9 p.m. followed by a question and answer period.

The next session, to be held October 17, will deal with ways to take advantage of federal tax laws to increase after-tax income.

Personalized financial planning aimed at developing a sound investment strategy and portfolio will be the topic of the final seminar to be held October

To register for tonight's session or the other sessions in the seminar series, call the library at 349-3020.

Spreen, Murphy debate issues in county executive race

By TIM RICHARD

To incumbent Daniel T. Murphy, being Oakland County executive means bringing new industry here while holding down service costs and taxes.

To challenger Johannes Spreen, being county executive means pumping more funds into the sheriff's department which he has headed for 12 years.

We've done well by the sheriff," said Republican Murphy, 60, in the first of three debates with Spreen. "When the sheriff's needs have been documented, he has received the money.'

"If there has been sufficient funding, I'm not aware of it," said Democrat Spreen, 65, who is leaving the sheriff's office to take on Murphy. "Without a safe county, you can't have economic development," he added, visualizing an Oakland County losing population and business because people fear for their safety.

Throughout the debate, Murphy continually emphasized his Economic Development Division's long-term recruitment of high-tech industry, Spreen answered nearly every question in terms of funding for law enforcement and both candidates claimed to be the better manager of the taxpayer's dollar.

Murphy, in office 10 years and seeking a new four-year term, said that "despite one of the worst economic recessions the area had seen in 40 years, we have been able to balance the budget every year, reduce the number of county employees and still provide some of the finest services in the nation.

"Our county has won 35 national awards for having model programs for job training, emergency medical service, health care, recreation and many others," he said.

Murphy, the first county executive in Michigan, said the sheriff's budget grew from $3 million in 1972 when Spreen became sheriff to the current $19 million. He placed the cost of Spreen's unmet demands at $30 million and said Spreen's is te only county department which consistently exceeds its budget.

Spreen said, "We need a new county executive who will improve law enforcement. Public safety has been ignored at best, undermined at worst. The money is there for law enforcemnt and crime prevention."

He visualized the sheriff providing an "umbrella" of services for 42 local police departments. But for the rest of county services, Spreen said, "We need less government, not more."

The sheriff complained that his 60 onthe road deputies had been reduced to 25. two helicopters reduced to zero, one crime prevention person reduced to sero and jail space is insufficient.

Asked how eight jail prisoners managed to escape, Spreen said only one got away — "We caught the others." And he blamed Murphy for failing to fix a skylight.

Murphy shot back: "I thought he was running for county executive, but he's been up here running for sheriff all day. We ought to be discussing the total picture.... There are 36 other departments and just so much money. You must look at the county as a total agency, and that's how I look at it."

Here is how the candidates fielded questions from a panel of reporters:

What image do you think the voters have of you?

Spreen: "Creativity. Innovative. A man of courage. Murphy is closeted in his office and doesn't meet the people. I've asked several times for an audience with you, Dan, and have been refused."

"A manager of county Murphy: government who has kept taxes down, who has been tight with their money, who has never asked for a tax increase, doesn't intent to and never will An open door.'

Why did the county building food service require a tax subsidy of $285,000? Murphy: "Any cafeteria which serves only lunches is going to be a loser. It now is a soup-and-sandwich operation, and now it's in the black. It's not operating as a cafeteria.'

Spreen: "That's what I'd like to know. The state police wouldn't investigate, although they investigated me. I would place the food service in the capable hands of private entrepreneurs."

What need is there for the Economic Development Division?

Spreen: "Without a safe county, you can't have economic development. This (Murphy's Economic Development the south end of the county?

Although that original design would have avoided several problems commissioners cited in rejecting the plans at last week's meeting, it would have necessitated building beneath a Detroit Edison power line.

Gregory Drake told planners he had proposed to Detroit Edison the idea of relocating the power wires over the property at his own expense, but that Edison's counter-proposal was unsatisfactory.

Since a large-scale project to move the wires would benefit neighboring industrial development as well as Drake's project, Township Planning Commission Chair Richard Duwel agreed to help Drake try to persuade power company executives to permit the relocation.

Duwel and Township Engineer Edward J. McNeely are expected to contact representatives of Edison as soon as this week. But as of yesterday, project plans had not been put on the commission's October 30 agenda.

Courts to decide fate of sewer funding

NOVI - Although indications are that money for a regional sewer in western Wayne and Oakland counties is gone, the fight to keep those funds from being spent by other communities continues.

Wayne County Assistant Corporation Counsel John Breen said Monday that despite an initial setback in its suit against the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) the county will pursue the case.

Wayne County filed suit in U.S. District Court last week to keep the EPA from giving $21 million earmarked for the first phase of the North Huron Valley-Rouge Valley wastewater pro-ject, known as 'Son of Super Sewer,' to lower priority projects.

A related lawsuit first was filed in Wayne County Circuit Court by Plymouth and Canton townships. In that case, Judge Sharon Finch granted an order October 1 restraining the distribution of the funds. Wayne County went on to file suit in U.S. District Court since the circuit court has no jurisdiction in the matter, Breen explained. But at the federal court level the request for a temporary restraining order was denied by Judge Phillip Pratt.

"The money is not gone," Breen insisted. He explained the funds are offered to communities and they have 15 days to accept them. "That process has not been completed," Breen said. "If the court issued an order (restraining the EPA) this whole process would back up," Breen said. Although the temporary restraining order was denied, Breen said it was only the first step in legal remedies the county is seeking.

The next step will be a show-cause hearing to find "why the DNR and the EPA should not be stopped from implementing their by-pass procedure," Breen said. The by-pass procedure is the official name for passing over a higher priority project to fund a lower one. In this case the 'Son of Super Sewer' is being by-passed for projects in Monroe County and the cities of Brighton, Sturgis, Richmond and Hudson

So far none of the 17 communities affected by the EPA decision to reject the super sewer proposal have joined Wayne County in its lawsuit, Breen take the lead. They are welcome to join us if they wish to join us."

the project's environmental impact

Because the plans were not approved before October 1, the end of the federal fiscal year, the project no longer was eligible for 75 percent federal funding. The project still may receive 55 percent federal funding, but at that level the cost to local communities could increase by $24 million. Items stolen from trailer at Meijer construction site

In the Township ...

"An estimated $400 worth of tools was stolen from a trailer at the construction site of Meijer Thrifty Acres on Haggerty Road sometime between 4 p.m. September 28 and 7:40 a.m. October 1, township police report.

The complainant told police unknown subject(s) pried open the rear door to gain entry to the equipment trailer.

The complainant further stated the subject(s) stole an electric drive impact wrench valued at $200, three sets of sockets with a combined value of $150, open end wrenches estimated at $50 and a $20 yellow tool box. The complainant told police he locked the door himself September 28 and noted that when he returned to the trailer October 1, the rear door was closed and locked. He added, however, that the security seal was open.

The complainant further stated that there are security guards on the construction site. He noted the guards come on duty around 4:30 p.m. and leave when workers arrive at the site in the morning.

Prior to the break-in at the construction site, unknown subject(s) shot out

Commission to study county prison needs

Wayne County Executive William Lucas last week appointed a 30member commission to study the need for additional prisons in the county.

Lucas asked the group to: · · · · Determine the economic impact of crime in the area;

*• Evaluate having correctional 'facilities in various communities; Establish considerations for choosing prison sites. In announcing the study commission's formation, and the appointment of Judge Patrick Duggan of Livonia to head it, Lucas said that if people want more criminals in prison, there will have to be more prisons and people must stop crying "anyplace but my community.

He said community leaders must "develop grass roots support for the solution

Lucas said inadequate prison space leads to escapes and "early release into the community of criminals who have not been rehabilitated."

Other key members of the Commission to Study Prison Needs are Recorder's Court Judge Samuel Gardner; Tom Turner, president of the Metropolitan Detroit AFL-CIO; Larry Truntiner, area manager of Sears, Roebuck; and Realtor John Lambrecht.

County commissioner Mary Dumas, R-Livonia, praised the plan and said that the Northville and Plymouth areas she represents "has absorbed its share of correctional facilities."

Plymouth Township is the site of the Detroit House of Corrections (DeHoCo) and Northville Township contains the Phoenix Correctional Facility (a renovated portion of DeHoCo used by the state). A new state regional prison is under construction in Northville Township at Five Mile and Beck.

Despite the new regional prison, Dumas said additional state facilities are needed "because the state cuts 90 days off prisoners' sentences if the prisons are overcrowded. So the circuit judges place short-term prisoners in DeHoCo, where they are assured of serving at least one year, but the county has to pay for it."

Lucas asked his group's various committees to study the number and type of beds required, the number of jobs created by building and operation of prisons, and funding sources for prison onstruction.

He also also charged it with a study of site considerations such as design, impact on neighborhoods and the amount of acreage required."

Lucas said he expects the study to be completed by January 1985 and that he had received encouragement in the project from Michigan Corrections Director Robert Brown and leaders in Oakland and Macomb counties.

the rear window of a front loader parked on the site sometime between 4:30 p.m. September 21 and 7:30 a.m. September 24, police report.

The complainant told police someone shot out the window with a pellet gun. Damage was estimated at $200.

Unknown subject(s) stole a 1982 black Pontiac Trans Am from a car port on Silver Springs Drive sometime between 6 p.m. October 1 and 8:30 a.m. October 2, police report.

The complainant told police the vehicle was parked and locked in the car port directly in front of her residence at the time the incident occurred.

The estimated value was listed at $13,000.

Northville Township Police recovered a stolen Cadillac Seville parked in front of a Silver Springs residence around 10:45 p.m. October 4. A township officer dispatched to the area found the vehicle with both the driver's door window and steering col umn broken. The officer ran a license plate check on the vehicle and found it was stolen out of Novi on October 2. Police confirmed the vehicle as stolen with a dispatcher from the Novi Police Department.

The officer attempted to speak with the complainant about the incident but could not find anyone by that name living at the given address on Silver Springs.

The owner of the vehicle was notified by Northville Police that she would be contacted when the car was ready for pick-up.

Items valued at $450 were stolen from two vehicles parked on Innsbrook Drive sometime between 11:30 p.m. October 1 and 8:30 a.m. October 4, township police report.

The complainant told police unknown suspects broke the left front window of a 1983 Datsun and a 1983 Cadillac Eldorado and stole a camera and radar detector.

A 35mm Canon camera valued at $200 was stolen from the Datsun and a $250 radar detector was taken from the Cadillac.

The complainant told police she heard noises in the parking lot of her apartment complex around 4:30 a.m. October 4, but did not investigate.

A boy's mongoose bicycle valued at $200 was stolen from the lawn of a Jamestown Circle residence somtime between 7:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. October 5, township police report.

The complainant told police the bicycle was not locked at the time the incident occurred. There are no suspects or witnesses

Violations bureau proposed; hearing set

Those guilty of violating city ordinances on parking, noxious weeds, stray dogs, littering, false alarms, and sidewalk snow removal may soon be able to pay their penalties at city hall instead of trekking to the district court in Plymouth.

A proposed ordinance establishing a city violations bureau under the control of the city treasurer (who is also the city manager) was presented to city council October 1. A public hearing on the new law is scheduled November 5.

The city once had a violations bureau, where virtually all citations could be paid, when the 35th District Court used to rotate throughout the communities it serves. The old violations bureau, however, operated differently than will the new one. When the court moved into its new building two years ago, the local violations bureaus were eliminated.

That was an unpopular move among city officials, who noted that having fines paid at the court building lengthened the amount of time before the money was turned over to the city. The delays caused concern that the fine schedules would no longer be reflective of the city's costs for enforcing the ordinances

Placing all such cases on the court docket also expanded the apparent proportion of the city's use of the court in relation to other communities - the agency for the city fines.

City manager Steven Walters said, in presenting a draft of the new law to council, that it had been worked out in association with the court.

Uncontested citations would never show up on the court docket. A date for a court hearing would only be established if the party receiving the citation opted to contest it. The new violations bureau would handle uncontested violations of minor local ordinances - contested cases or those involving more severe violations will still be placed on the court docket. 'I'm certainly pleased to see this," said Mayor Paul Vernon. "This is the culmination of many, many years of ef-

Walters said he would have a proposed fine schedule available at the public hearing November 5. He noted that a new false alarm ordinance is presently being considered and that violations of that ordinance would be handled in the new bureau.

Under terms of the ordinance creating the Parking and Miscellaneous Ordinance Violations Bureau, the schedule of fines is provide one fine for payment within 10 days, and a higher fine if paid between 10 and 30 days after the notice. No response to citation within 30 days would leave the violator open to prosecution.

Detroit Symphony to play at Novi H.S.

For the second consecutive year, area residents will have an opportunity to hear the Detroit Symphony Orchestra (DSO) in concert at Novi High School's Fuerst Auditorium.

Instrumental Music Director Craig Strain reported that Novi has been scheduled to host an appearance of the DSO on Saturday, November 3, at 8 p.m.

·Tickets cost $5 and will be issued on a irst come, first served basis. Tickets are available only by calling Strain at Novi High School, 349-5155.

The appearance of the DSO at Fuerst Auditorium is made possible by a grant from the J.L. Hudson Company. In ad-dition to Novi, the sixth annual Hudson-Detroit Symphony Metro Tour will include concerts in Woodhaven, Ferndale, Mt. Clemens, Livonia and Dearborn Heights.

"It's really an honor to host the symphony a second consecutive year," commented Strain. "Organizers of the tour generally select different locations each year so as many people as possible can hear the symphony in their own communities.

"They received such a warm response from the Novi audience last year, however, that they decided to include us on the 1984 tour as well," he said.

Leading the DSO concert in Novi will be Detroit Symphony Resident Conductor Kenneth Jean. The concert will consist of music of broad audience appeal, featuring light classics and pops selections.

Strain reported that a special feature will be the appearance with the symphony of Cathy Cho, a 14-year-old Korean-American violinist from Ann Arbor. A pupil of Ruggiero Ricci at the University of Michigan, Cho has per-formed as a soloist with orchestras in Sweden and Denmark. She will play the Violin Concerto No. 5 in A Minor, Opus 37, by the 19th century composer Henry Vieuxtemps.

Local choirs meet at Mercy

Area music lovers will be in for a treat of gala proportions when singers from five local communities assemble for the third annual "Recreation Sings" concert this Sunday, October 14, at our Lady of Mercy High School in Farmington Hills at 3 p.m.

The Novi Choralaires will join community choral groups from Farmington Hills, Plymouth, Livonia and Dearborn to form a combined chorus of 400 voices

A $3 donation will be accepted at the door only. Our Lady of Mercy High School is located at the corner of Middlebelt and Eleven Mile.

The concert will highlight performances from each of the participating groups and be climaxed by two combined numbers, "Gonna Spread a Little Light" by Lani Smith and Barry Manilow's powerful "One Voice.' The concept of "Recreation Sings" began in 1982 as a result of the desire of area choruses to share together musically and socially. Each of the groups is an adult chorus sponsored by their local Parks and Recreation Department. The Farmington Hills Parks and Recreation Department is hosting this year's event. The responsibility for presenting the concert is passed from community to community. Next year's location will be announced at the October 14 concert.

MUNICIPAL BONDS

If you have funds to invest, you'll want to take full advantage of the tax-saving oppor-tunities under the new tax law. One investment you may want to consider is municipal bonds. The word "municipal" suggests cities, but these bonds are also issued by states, counties, villages, territories and U.S. possessions. They can also come from many other sources, including state hospitals, universities, transportation and housing authorities. Whatever the source, municipal bonds essentially are I.O.U.'s. They promise to pay a certain rate of interest to you for a specific period of time as well as repay the amount you have invested. Municipal bonds are not only a sound investment, the interest income they pay is tax-free. If you happen to reside in the area from which the bonds are issued (town, county or state), the interest income may also be free from state and local: taxes.

There are many other tax savings possible under the new tax; law. For a full review of the op-portunities it offers, why not call us for an appointment?

10-A-THE NORTHVILLE RECORD-Wednesday, October 10, 1984

The Northville Record

Our Opinions Bus guidelines must be observed

Complaints about the school district's transportation system have become an annual rite of the back-to-school season during the past several years. Without exception, the one issue which seems to garner more parental concern atschool board meetings is transportation — whether it be present busing conditions or the dangers posed to students walking to and from school.

During the last two board of education meetings, parents from both the Silver Springs area and the North Connemara/Dunbarton Pines subdivisions have voiced objections to the school district's policy of busing only those students who live more than a mile and a half from their assigned schools.

. For the parents in these two areas, concerns about their children's safety en route to school are new worries. Students in the aforementioned areas have been bused to school for the past several years. In fact, most were bused the first few days of the new school year before being told they would have to walk.

While we're sensitive to the safety concerns of these parents, we can't help but wonder why these students were bused in the first place. None of the students in question live outside the one and onehalf mile requirement approved by the board of education three years ago.

It should be pointed out that the school board changed its transportation policy in August, 1981, to try and cut some of its expendutures in light of a leaner budget. After losing some $700,000 in a reduced millage election in 1981, the school board cut corners by changing its former busing policy (which bused children outside a mile and a quarter) to the present mile and a half which conforms to the state's school transportation guidelines. By reducing its transportation services to stay within budget, the district eliminated a number of bus runs and retired several buses from its fleet. Despite considerable criticism by residents — specifically Colony III parents who protested junior high students walking to Meads Mill — the school board stood firm in its refusal to make exceptions to its new busing policy.

It's unfortunate that the district has not played by its own rules since that time. Administrators admit that the district has been lenient in enforcing the policy and that many students within the mile and a half requirement have been transported to and from school — regardless of whether they were eligible. Such is the case of those students in Connemara, Dunbarton Pines and the Silver Springs areas.

In light of the school district's current financial situation, we're glad to see the district finally enforcing its policy. It's unfortunate the policy was not more strictly adhered to three years ago. Had the policy been enforced in 1981, the district would have saved itself much-needed transportation monies as well as the present wrath of angry parents.

Many would argue that transporting children to and from school is a costly service which provides no educational value to students of the district. While such an argument is valid, there is no doubt that bus service is needed in many areas to assure the safe arrival of students to and from school.

With a new crop of students walking to school, we hope drivers will be cautious of youngsters traveling along roadways and subdivisions. Neighbors also should be alert to young students in need of help. It is everyone's responsibility to assure that all students have a safe trip to the classroom.

Off the record

By Kevin Wilson

This has been one of those weeks reporters simulataneously dread and live for — one that prompts soul-searching yet demands you reach way back to pull out your best stuff. When you meet the challenge, it gives you a real boost, but when the challenge is one compounded by your own foul-ups, it makes you humble.

I started this week, in which I'm serving as editor in Jean Day's absence, by fielding a call from an angry merchant who, in the course of the conversation, accused me of being "smug." As much as that impression of journalists gets around, and I understand how it happens, this wasn't a week I was feeling particularly smug. I wasn't even feeling particularly competent at the time.

For we had botched a big story — the one involving the MacDonald-Greenstein campaign and allegations MacDonald had filed improper finance reports. Compounding the error was that coverage of this campaign was already the subject of concern that we were providing biased coverage favoring Mac-Donald. Our editorial pages certainly favored the township supervisor, but the accusation involved the news coverage, where objectivity should rule.

What happened is not so significant in detail — basically, I wrote an outline version of the story after talking to MacDonald and completely revised it after hearing from Greenstein late on Tuesday, the day last week's paper was going to press. In the crush of deadline pressure with a short staff, we goofed and the first version was published. Greenstein's side wasn't included and it looked as though we were willing to accept MacDonald's version of events as gospel.

This week's version of the story should be complete, accurate and fair. But fixing something that's already been in circulation for a week isn't easy. Some would say it's impossible. And there will be some who favor Greenstein who will never believe it wasn't deliberate — though to his credit the candidate himself took it well and seemed to understand.

About Town

By Steve Fecht

In this kind of interplay between candidates, it's difficult for a reporter to offer readers anything that approaches a middle ground — all you can do, basically, is pass along what verifiable facts there are and let both sides have their say. Readers are going to have to figure out for themselves who they believe. Are the violations in MacDonald's finance report a serious indication of wrong-doing, or merely a result of a misunderstanding of the law? Is the issue one blown out of proportion by the Greenstein campaign, as MacDonald claims, or one brought up indepedently, as Greenstein asserts? And in the end, is it significant who first made the complaint if it was found accurate?

These are questions I'm mulling over myself. What I can speak to is Greenstein's claim this newspaper is favoring Mac-Donald in news coverage. With the exception of last week's foulup, I find the charge hard to credit but understandable. Mac-Donald is the supervisor of Northville Township, one of only two local governments we cover. Greenstein is a Canton figure, one we have had no contact with prior to this campaign, and no reason to write about except in connection with the campaign.

So, in the course of both the primary and general election campaigns, MacDonald's name has been connected with far more stories in The Record than has Greenstein's. The Cantonite says this is an intentional effort to "push" MacDonald's candidacy. I'd suggest it is perhaps the unfortunate result of MacDonald being a leading figure in this community and one involved in many legitimate news stories that do not have anything to do with the campaign.

Greenstein's complaints bring up legitimate questions about how news decisions are made. MacDonald is a typical Northville candidate in that much of his "campaigning" is conducted socially rather than from a soapbox. That means he shows up at community events and often plays a leading role in them. But because of the way he gathers support, it is difficult to separate when he is involved in something newsworthy in and of itself and when he is simply seeking exposure for himself and his campaign. That's where you come in — for try as we might, it always comes down to doing the best we can and trusting our readers to bring their own insight to the stories.

Terry Kennedy hit the ball on a line toward the leftfield corner, but Gary Matthews was off at the crack of the bat.

At the last second, he lunged, reached across his body and made a nice diving catch

Time for action to widen Center

Two recent traffic studies in the city provide strong arguments for the widening of both Eight Mile and Center Street. Both traffic studies were initiated at the request of residents — one group from Horton Street petitioned the council to do something about the traffic in their neighborhood, while another approached the mayor and got a similar study of Randolph Street.

Both studies show relatively high traffic volumes for streets not originally designed as major thoroughfares. We believe the volumes observed in both studies are the result of the present bottleneck at Eight Mile and Center. Motorists familiar with the area soon learn to find their way in and out of town on Randolph or Horton rather than sit in long lines of traffic at Eight Mile and Center.

The city had hoped to have Center widened in conjunction with the Eight Mile Road widening (now expected next building season) but found it was not financially feasible to tackle the project immediately. We hope the latest evidence supplied in these traffic studies leads to action in the near future — altering signage and the like are only stop-gap measures. The real answer to the heavy traffic flow through residential areas is to widen Center.

just as the ball was about to hit the turf.

"What a catch," she roared. "Did you see that catch? What a great catch."

"It was a very good catch," I admitted. "But a great catch? I don't think so. A good catch — yes; but a great catch — no. Major league outfielders are supposed to make those catches. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred I'd expect that ball to be caught."

"All you ex-jocks who got cut from your high school baseball team talk like that," she responded sarcastically. "It was a great catch, and I don't know why you won't admit it."

"Actually, my dear, it was a very respectable catch. But it was hardly a great catch. There were probably more than a thousand catches this year that were every bit as good: as that, but you didn't see them because you don't watch every game.

"Truly great catches are as much a result of circumstance as anything else," I continued. "Truly great catches have to come at some absolutely critical time — like during the seventh game of the World Series.

"Do you remember the greatest catch ever made? When Willie Mays turned his back to the plate and ran down that ball hit by Vic Wertz in dead centerfield of the Polo Grounds. Caught it over his head without ever turning around. Then whipped around and threw somebody out at the plate.

"Now that was a truly great catch. But the thing that made it truly great is that it. came at a critical time during the World Series when the entire world was watching and the outcome hinged on the balance."

"Every catch is important in the World Series," she said simply.

At Jack Murphy Stadium in San Diego, the Padres had taken a 6-3 lead. But at home the score was knotted 1-1.

Fence or hedge to corral ducks urged

To the Editor:

While driving into town on Saturday night, I saw two ducks that had been run over by cars. Unfortunately, this has become a familiar sight. I'm sure most people in Northville enjoy the ducks and would support a solution to this problem. Perhaps there could be some type of fund-raiser or a drive for a hedge or fence to protect the ducks. I feel some type of action should be taken

Northville Run chief credits local boosters

To the Editor: On behalf of the Northville Rotary Club, I wish to extend our appreciation to a number of local businesses and governmental agencies for their support and cooperation in the Fifth Discover Northville Run. This year's event was a great success. The presence of 562 runners assured me the Run is here to stay.

Besides being a financial success for the Rotary Foundation's contribution to worthwhile causes, it gave us an opportunity to make people aware of Northville's beauty and hospitality.

We had representatives from over 75 communities and as far away as Oregon, Wisconsin, Battle Creek, Marine City, Clinton, Albion, Lansing, Holt and Flint, just to name a few.

Families were also represented, such as the five entries from the Dick Brown's of Northville and four from Orin Newton's of Northville. It was a thrill to all watching the youngsters run the one-mile event which included a number of youngsters just four years old.

To the supporters and workers a sincere thanks from the Northville Rotary Club. These supporters include Sheehan's Little Caesar's, Good Time Party Store, Novi Ambulance, Speedy Printing Center of Northville, the Pizza Cutter, Pizza Pantry, Accountant Com-puter Service, Hamlet Food Market, Total Runner, Physical Therapy and Sports Medicine Clinic, The Northville Record, C&O Railroad, Northville City and Township Police Departments, Northville State Police, Green Ridge Tree Service and Northville Public Works.

Beautification project still needs benefactors To the Editor:

Last spring the Northville Beautification Commission asked for donations to help with the expense of our annual plantings, maintenance of the downtown flower gardens and beautification of the South Main Street meridian with a sprinkling system, flowers, trees and shrubs.

The response was very positive and the comments enclosed with donations were heartwarming.

We deeply appreciate the support of so many generous contributors with pride in their community. It makes all the hard work done by so many people even more enjoyable.

Following is a listing of contibutors who responded to our request for help: Mr. and Mrs. G. Michael Abbot, Allen Terrace Resident Council, Amerman PTA, Dr. and Mrs. George Bell, Bookstall On The Main, Bright Bar Steel Company, Cabbagetown Residents Association, Mrs. Isma Chmiel, Mr. and Mrs. John Conder, Jr.;

Country Girls Branch, Women's National Farm and Garden Association, Inc.; Ora M. Daview, Dr. William S. Demray, Jack Doheny Supplies, Inc.; Mr. and Mrs. Elroy Ellison; Ely Fuel. Inc.; Mrs. Louise Frid:

Mill Race will benefit from volunteers' work To the Editor:

The Northville Historical Society's Tivoli Fair was a success again this year. We estimate attendance to have been over 5,600 and a profit of $16,500 which will be used to construct the blacksmith shop and museum at the Mill Race Village.

Our industrious chairmen this year were Jan Clancy, Val Cook, Jan Juhasz, Cheryl Cassady, Barbara Furmanski Carol Butske, Jim Harris and Martha Nield. All of them performed their duties tirelessly and deserve a big thank you.

In addition, over 70 women and 14 teens from Mrs. Lauber's class at Northville High School worked as hostesses and at the snack bar for the two days. The Historical Society is grateful to all of them.

We also thank the Northville Driving Club and the Northville Downs Race Track for permission and use of the race track facility with its ample parking and space for the 152 exhibitors.

A thanks also to the Historical Society board members who were there when we needed them most and the support of the spouses of the chairmen.

Again, the Northville merchants contamination, showed their helpfulness even with their extra efforts needed for the Autumnfest. Without John Genitti from Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall the fair couldn't provide food or drink. In addition, Parmenter's Cider Mill and McDonald's donated items for the cafe. Once again. Northville showed its support to benefit the Mill Race Village. Gratefully, Carol Kiraly Sandra Kemp

Civic Concern member thanks gift givers

To the Editor:

We wish to thank The Northville Record and all residents of the Northville area who donated so wonderfully clothes and food for needy families. We were delighted to receive clothes of all kinds and especially for the large man who was burned out completely. He also wishes to thank you sincerely.

We are always delighted to receive clothes for ladies or men and cash contributions are more than welcome and either can be taken to Ann Roy at 150 North Center, or 43643 Nine Mile Road or call 349-0854. Thank you most sincerely.

Geake commends efforts to control drunk driving

By R. ROBERT GEAKE State Senator

When the new drunk driving laws of 1982 were passed by the Michigan Legislature, people thought that there would be an immediate and phenomenal impact on the 'drinkers and drivers'' in Michigan. Unfortunately, this has not turned out to be the case.

While other aspects of highway safety have improved, drunken drivers remain just as deadly as ever. A report put out by the State Police shows that although drunkdriving arrests are up 10 percent, there has been no reduction in the percentage of drunk drivers involved n fatal accidents. In 1983, 53 percent of the fatal accidents in Michigan were alcohol-related, claiming 708 lives and injuring over 30,000 motorists.

Obviously it is going to take more than stiffer laws to cut down on alcohol-related deaths on our highways. Several proposals coming before the Legislature following November's election are specifically targeted to back up Michigan's tougher laws.

Most recently, the Liquor Control Commission unanimously approved a proposed ban on 2-for-1 happy hour specials and drive-through liquor windows. This notion is strongly supported by the Michigan Beverage Association, and now must be passed by the Michigan Legislature. Such specials are banned in Massachussetts, and similar bans are being considered in several other states Another idea before the Legislature is the controversial sobriety checklane proposal. Under this plan, state police would set up specific checkpoints where officers would be authorized to stop all vehicles coming through, which proponents claim would last an average of 11 seconds per car.

Drivers showing signs of drinking would be asked to undergo coordination tests and a Breathalyzer test. Opponents believe the checklanes don't discourage drinking - they simply force the drunk driver to take an alternate route.

A bill pending in the state House aims to crack down on teen drinking and driving, and would suspect a teen's license for 90 days if alcoholic beverages are found in the car. A second offense would bring a sixmonth suspension, and a third offense would suspend licensure until the person's 21st birthday.

Realizing the influential role bar and restaurant owners play, the Michigan Licensed Beverage Association and the Michigan Restaurant Association are training their members to discourage excessive drinking and are providing seminars to recognize and deal with the effects of drunkenness.

Drunk drivers are never going to go away completely - but armed with stricter, enforced laws and more education and cooperation on the part of those serving the drinks, we are at least headed in the right direction.

Law urges anti-pollution measures

By GERALD H. LAW State Representative

A program to combat groundwater contamination was recently announced by the Blanchard administration, and the urgency of the issue is evident by the fact that the state has as many as 50,000 potential sources of groundwater

The potential sources include: 1,500 landfills and dumps; 3,000 facilities that discharge waste water into the ground; 2,500 facilities that store and handle hazardous materials; 1,400 manufacturing plants that produce toxic substances; 800 transportation spills in 1978 alone; 4,000 rustproofing, waste haulting and salt storage facilities, 20,000 abandoned oil and gas wells; and 15,000 producing oil and gas wells.

DNR officials say that the state now lists 997 known or suspected groundwater contamination sites. But the list is already growing by an average of five sites a month and could accelerate if an exhaustive list was compiled under the governor's proposal.

The administration says it would cost $2.9 billion for the state to clean up its groundwater contamination. The 39step plan calls for:

 legislation that would ban underground storage of some toxic chemicals; • establishing rules to underground chemical tanks;

 regulation of petroleum storage. I applaud the governor for submitting this impressive set of proposals. We must work quickly to clean up our. groundwater contamination and prevent further pollution. These plans still need work, but they are an important first step in preserving our water resources.

Northville Record staff takes five MPA honors

The Northville Record last week received five awards of excellence from the Michigan Press Association in the MPA's 1984 Newspaper Contest.

This year's MPA entries were judged by members of the Illinois Press Association and released in conjunction with National Newspaper Week (October 7-13).

The Record was awarded Second Place in the category of Local News Reporting for its series of articles pertaining to community efforts to prevent the state from opening a medium-security prison in Northville Township.

A Third Place in Lifestyle/Family Section was awarded to The Record's Our Town section, edited by Michele McElmurry. The three sections submitted to the MPA included feature articles on phobias, political participation and the aftermath of the defeat of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Photographer Steve Fecht's March 14 cover photograph of Northville High School gymnast Cathy Heitert received Third Place in MPA's Sports Picture category.

Kevin Wilson received Honorable Mention Sports Writing honors for an article he wrote last August on local race car driver Tim Evans.

The Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Quali-fying Test (PSAT/NMSQT) will be ad-ministered at 10 a.m. October 20 at Nor-thville High School. All juniors are en-couraged to take the test.

By taking the test, students will find out how they compare with a nationwide group of students on the verbal and mathematics reasoning abilities measured by the test. PSAT/NMSQT scores are an impartial evaluation of ability to do college work and may be helpful in planning a future education and choice of college. The PSAT/NMSQT scores can be used to estimate performance on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT), which is required for admission to many colleges. (The PSAT/NMSQT is a shortened version of the SAT and its score scale of 20 to 80 is equivalent to the SAT scale of 200 to 800. Also, practice, under similar conditions, on questions like those on the SAT may give greater confidence in taking the SAT.

The PSAT/NMSQT is the route of en-try to the National Merit Scholarship Program and the National Achievement Scholarship Program for Outstanding Negro Students.

Juniors will be provided with a miniworkshop to prepare for the PSAT. This workshop will be presented during the Algebra 2 classes and will include test taking strategies and a complete sample test. Students who are not enrolled in Algebra 2 should see counselor Alta Olson to arrange for a workshop time.

A computerized program will be available for practice sessions in the counseling office from 6:45 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. Students must reserve time with newspaper on your way to the sports? Do you know about the value of the dollar on foreign markets? When you see the Dow Jones report on the nightly news do you take it as a cue to raid the kitchen?

'Biz-talk': sorting the common terms

Terms such as the Dow Jones Index, Consumer Price Index, prime interest rate and federal trade deficit are thrown at us each day through all media. However, many may just tune out these reports because they do not understand what all the financial mumbo-jumbo means.

To help shed some light on these commonly-used business terms, this newspaper contacted Professor Thomas Kinnear of the University of Michigan Graduate School of Business for a crash course in economics. And Kinnear was good enough to offer the following layperson's definitions to some very complex terms:

Dow Jones Index — This is an index of the value of stocks of major companies, said Kinnear. The index reflects the value of these stocks. It does not measure all stocks on the market, he said, just the stocks of selected major companies, such as General Motors. Interest rates can affect the market, he added, because high rates will tighten the money supply needed for business expansion.

Prime Interest Rate — This is the rate set by the major banks to their best customers, like GM, said Kinnear. This is not the rate John Doe pays on a car loan. The average consumer loan rate is two to three points above the prime, he added. The government can in-fluence the prime rate through borrowing — the more government borrowing, the higher the rate.

Federal Reserve Board - Appointed by the President with Senate confirmation. Kinnear said the board has two

Are you the type of person who tosses which banks borrow money, and it dic-aside the business section of the daily tates how much money is available in tates how much money is available in the money supply, largely by buying and selling securities. To illustrate the board's power, Kinnear said it could shut down the U.S. economy any day by cutting off the money supply.

> Consumer Price Index - Published by the U.S. Department of Commerce, the CPI is a comparison of the cost of a certain bundle of goods at present and at a certain time in the past. For exam-ple, Kinnear said, if the bundle cost $100 on January 1, 1970, the CPI would measure how much that cost differed from the standard as time progressed. Through the CPI, the nation gets its inflation rate. Kinnear stressed that inflation is not caused by the CPI; the index merely measures inflation. The department also publishes a Wholesale Price Index, similar to the CPI, but measuring wholesale prices.

Trade Deficit — This is the difference between what the country exports and what it imports from other countries, said Kinnear. If the U.S. exports more than it imports then it's a trade surplus. If the U.S. imports more than it exports then it's a trade deficit. The strength of the dollar plays a role — a strong dollar makes U.S. goods expensive and foreign goods cheap. The dollar's strength on the foreign market is af-fected a little by psychological factors, said Kinnear, but mostly by interest rates.

Stock Market Reports - Kinnear said these reports list the day's high price, low price, bid and ask. The last two terms refer to what people are willing to pay for the stock, and how much owners are willing to accept for it. Most report readers look at the highs and lows as well as the volume. A high price in a high-volume market is better than a high price in a low-volume market, he added.

Kinnear stressed that the above definitions are simple answers to some

DEBBIE MARSHALL

HILTON HOTELS CORPORATION and Orchard Hill Place have announced the appointment of Gerhard Seibert to General Manager and Debbie Marshall to Director of Sales for the new Novi Hilton.

Seibert has been with the Hilton Hotel Corporation in management positions for 11 years, including the Northfield Hilton in Troy, the Fontainebleau Hilton in Miami Beach and the Dallas Hilton. His most recent assignment was at the Hilton of Philadelphia on the University of Pennsylvania campus.

A Purdue University graduate, Seibert is a Rotarian and a member of the American Hotel and Motel Association Committee on International Tourism. A native of West Germany, he became a U.S. citizen in 1972 and served in the U.S. Army from 1969-72, including one year with a helicopter unit in Viet Nam.

Seibert and his wife Kathryn and son, Matthew and Jonathon, will reside in Novi.

Marshall is a Detroit native and previously served on the staff of the company's Detroit National Sales Office. She joined Hilton in the Sales Office of the Northfield Hilton in 1976. The following year she joined the Hilton Personnel Development Program and upon completion was appointed Sales Representative for the same hotel.

Marshall in 1979 was promoted to Assistant Sales Manager of the Northfield Hilton, later progressing to the positions of Sales Manager and Director of Sales, where she stayed until being assigned to the National Sales Office. She attended Michigan State University.

The Novi Hilton, currently under construction on Haggerty Road at Eight Mile, is scheduled to open in June 1985. It will feature 240 guest rooms and suites, two restaurants, a lobby bar and an entertainment lounge as well as extensive meeting facilities to include a 9,000 square foot ballroom and a 100-seat amphitheater.

JOHN J. O'BRIEN, owner of the O'Brien Chapel of the Ted C. Sullivan Funeral Homes, Inc., attended the fall conference of the Michigan Funeral Directors Association at Boyne Mountain. The conference program concerned "pre-need," the planning of arrangements and funding for funerals before death occurs.

The future of funeral service is definitely in pre-need," said O'Brien. "The information gathered from pre-need topics discussed at the conference will greatly enhance our ability to serve the public.'

Pre-need involves both the pre-arranging and pre-funding of funerals and has grown rapidly in popularity and acceptance by the public in recent years. "Forward-looking individuals view it as one more aspect of prudent estate planning," said O'Brien.

O'Brien cautioned that many people are selling pre-need funerals who are not entirely ethical. "The conference made it clear to me, more than I previously had realized, how unscurpulous some people can be in selling funeral or burial goods and services," he said. "The wise consumer should be careful in knowing just who he is dealing with. Most funeral homes will be happy to supply information to any interested person."

HARTLAND AREA DENTISTS, Drs. Ken McDaniel and John Cabell, and staff invite the public to view their office from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Saturday at its new location, Hartland Professional Center, 11499 Highland Road (M-59), Hartland.

Refreshments will be served and many of the recent advances in dentistry will be demonstrated-including cosmetic bonding, sealants, interceptive orthodontics, x-rays and more.

For the children, there will be prizes and a Charlie Brown film on tooth care.

The new building, Dr. Cabell said, is larger and more versatile with 3,500 square feet. The interior is bright and open and the exterior is distinctive with its brown fieldstone and cedar roofing and siding.

Hours are 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 8 a.m.-9 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday. For more information, call 632-5533.

TWO NORTHVILLE RESIDENTS are among the seven new members Governor James Blanchard recently named to his Governor's Executive Corps for the 1984-85 fiscal year. Heinz B. Topol and Thomas N. Small business tax altered

Small businesses will dicover that the The new law makes the IRS position of-1984 Deficit Redution Act plugs ficial. Startup expenses must now be loopholes and requires better record capitalized and can then be deducted in keeping, while also granting certain tax breaks, says the Michigan Association of CPAs.

A business owner who decides to buy either a new or used building to house the business will have to settle for smaller deductions over a longer period of time

Another deduction for owners of business property may take some of the sting out of losing depreciation dollars: You can obtain up to $35,000 in deductions for expenses incurred removing architectrual and transportational barriers that hinder the elderly and handicapped. Under the old law, that deduction was eliminated in 1983 and it had a ceiling of $25,000. The new law provides for the larger deduction both this year and next.

Another tax break for businesses that was extended in 1985 - comes from the Targeted Jobs Credit, which gives employers a tax credit for employing hard-to-hire persons, such as economically disadvantaged Vietnam veterans.

Those who are thinking about setting up a business should examine those provisions of the new law concerning startup expenses and a series of new tax advantages granted employee-owned businesses. Expenses businesses incur before they actually open their doors to the public, such as advertising for a grand opening, have been a source of confusion among taxpayers.

Business owners felt these expenses should be deducted as a current year operating expense. But the IRS maintained that since no business exists at the time these expenses are incurred, and deducted over a five-year period.

amortized portions over a five-year period.

Another provision that affects starting a business allows special tax consideration in financing deals for Employee Stock Ownership Plans (ESOPs). To encourage growth of this corporate form, companies will in many instances be able to claim a tax deduction for dividends paid on stock in ESOPs. In addition, lending institutions may exclude from income half of the interest they earn by financing ESOPs. Another provision to foster the development of ESOPs as well as certain worker-owned cooperatives gives businss owners who sell out to such groups a tax deferral on any gain derived from selling to employee-owners. The combined effect of these provisions makes ESOPs and worker-owned cooperatives a more attractive alternative to workers interested in buying out their bosses

Perhaps the greatest impact the new tax law will have on small business is in its record-keeping provisions, which have become far more stringent. For instance, a business that receives more than $10,000 in cash in one transaction or in two or more related transactions must report it to the IRS. Failure to report it risks a $50 penalty for each unreported transaction.

Another new record keeping provision requires tht business-related deductions for traveling expenses, entertainment costs, business gifts and property with mixed business/personal use be logged.

Previously, a taxpayer could substantiate these deductions through startup expenses should be capitalized, corroborating evidence where proper records did not exist.

Consumers in Eyes and Ears Program

Local officials of the Utility Workers' Union of America, AFL-CIO, Local 105 and Consumers Power Company announced plans to launch the Eyes and Ears Program. The announcement was made on September 19 in Northville. The Eyes and Ears program is a joint effort by which Consumers utility employees assist local law enforcement agencies by using their radio-equipped vehicles to report emergencies or other incidents

A special logo denoting participation in the program will soon be seen on all Consumers Power Company radioequipped vehicles operating out of the Northville headquarters.

The signs, officials explained, may which act as warnings to criminals that their areas.

The Metropolitan Growth and Development Corporation is cooperating in the implementation of a new private sector service to assist metropolitan area companies in developing or expanding marketing programs for sales to the federal government.

The new service, executive director Robert FitzPatrick explained, is provided by Procurement Technology International, Inc. The firm is operating initially through the offices of the Metropolitan Growth and Development Corporation at One Parklane actions will be reported and as an assurance to neighborhood children that they have a safe haven in an Because the utility business is a seven-day-a-week operation, it is wellsuited to a program of this type, Consumers officials said.

Much of the work utilities perform is in residential areas and the Eyes and Ears program will help offer an added measure of security in the neighborhoods served.

The employees of Consumer Power Company's Northville Headquarters and its radio-equipped vehicles are the latest to be added to the program, which has proven its success in other

The Northville Record

Extended family finds strength in numbers

By JEAN MACINTOSH

Children who visit the home of Joyce and John Eskra stay for dinner, the weekend, and sometimes, forever. During the two years they have lived in Northville, the Eskras have cared for six foster children, ranging in age from seven to 18. The most recent member joined the family just a few weeks ago.

According to her mother, Jane Francis, Joyce has a history of bringing home "extra" people. "It started back when she was a little girl," Francis said, "Joyce was always bringing somebody to the house."

That habit followed her into adulthood, said Joyce, who claimed she "got married on a Saturday, honeymooned on Sunday, and picked up my first foster child on Monday."

In the years since she brought home that first little boy, Joyce has raised six boys of her own and has taken 47 others under her wing.

"There was a time when I was cooking, cleaning and caring for 15 people at once," she said.

'I've had foster kids, handicapped kids, state mental patients, ex-cons, and people from every nation and ethnic group imaginable."

Before moving to this area the Eskras, who have been married for only seven years, lived in Plymouth, where they cared for retarded and handicapped kids.

'It was a new experience for John," said Joyce, "because he'd never been involved in anything like that before, as I had."

Eventually, however, the children they had opened their home to were ready to move on, and the Eskras left the area, partly because of Joyce's health.

"I was burned out," she explained. "I felt like I'd had no rest for four solid years."

The Eskras and her sons Matthew, Scott and Barron moved to a country-style home with a large yard, just off Eight Mile.

We chose this house because it was removed from the city," said Joyce, who suffers enviromental allergies. "We were away from the chemicals in the water and a lot of the other things which my system can't tolerate.'

In addition, she said, the house was a perfect place to raise children, especially with the big yard.

After completing major repairs needed on their home, which they named "Rainbow Acres", the Eskras began to fill the house with kids again.

The first to arrive were Alex, 11, Billy, 10, and Tony (who no longer lives with the family.)

The Eskras ran into problems, however, when they asked permission to extend their foster home license to include more children.

Neighbors were sent letters informing them of the Eskra's application — a normal legal proceedure in this type of situation.

Many in the community misunderstood the Eskras' intentions, thinking they were applying for a group home license for housing of the handicapped or mentally ill, neither of which apply to any of the Eskra's foster children.

"Some people just became incensed," said Joyce, "they signed a petition to stop our license and generally became quite worked up over the issue."

As a result, many residents attended the public hearing

One resident who spoke at the meeting claimed the Eskras already had "enough children", while another said the septic tank on the property wasn't large enough to accomodate that many people in the house (an accusation nixed by building official Troy Milligan.) Overall, however, when residents learned the Eskras only wanted to be allowed more foster kids, they accepted the idea and many wondered why there had been a hearing in the first place.

"The thing that bothered me," said Joyce, "is that nobody ever came up to us to ask what this thing was all about, what kind of kids we were going to have here. They just made an assumption and signed the petition."

he moves in that his real personality gets out," she explained.

"That's when they find out that the honeymoon is over and this is not going to be a big vacation. This is a family, and everyone contributes.

One of the hardest parts in raising foster children, said Joyce, is breaking acquired bad habits.

"It's a long, hard struggle to get them to conserve, to take care of things, to pick up after themselves," explained Joyce. "A lot of times the kids have never been taught the correct way to do things."

So, along with the love the Eskra's foster children receive, they also get a good dose of discipline. Joyce has a set of rules posted on a corkboard, and next to the rule is the punishment (cleaning the bathrooms, for example) that can be expected if the rule is broken.

Usually, it takes more time to break the bad habits of the younger kids than it does the older ones.

"They are so young, and in addition to adjusting to a new home they're also trying to catch up in school. It's just harder for them," said Joyce.

"We were also very lucky in that we got two good older boys," she continued. "They remember things more easily and they help out with the kids."

Her own son, Matthew, 17, still lives at home, and is a big help as well, noted Joyce.

"He was raised strictly and knows to respect things, and he demands the same things of his foster brothers and sister that he knows would be expected of him," she said. Joyce, who has Master's degrees in gerontology, education, and special education, is working on her degree in social work. Her field work at the Huron Valley Women's facility has helped her to gain some practical experience and insight into the emotional and behavioral problems that her kids sometimes exhibit.

"It's interesting for me because I am working with the type of women whose children I am raising," Joyce said, noting the experience has been of benefit to her.

"I wanted to really know and understand what goes on inside a parent who abuses or mistreats a child, because I'm on the receiving end of it and I know what the kids go through," she explained.

"I've also realized I was being extremely judgmental of those women, and my attitude has since changed," Joyce said. "I can understand their position better, and it helps me in dealing with my kids."

Joyce believes that outside activities, in addition to family support, are important to the development of the children she takes in, and she tries to promote the talents of each child.

"Billy is a beautiful gymnast, and Richard has a wonderful voice," she explained, "and we have tried to give the kids lessons so they can develop their talents."

Unfortunately, the cost of these individual activities has made them practically unaffordable in the Eskra home, she said. She hopes that the children might be able to get involved in extracurricular activities in their schools.

"We'd like to be able to afford lessons for each child, but right now we're more concerned with keeping clothes on their backs," she explained.

The Bushnell Congregational Church, said Joyce, has helped out immensely in that area.

"They are possibly the best thing that has ever happened to this family," she explained.

"They accepted our family right away, when we really hadn't felt welcome before."

In addition to mental support, the church has helped provide clothing and toys for the Eskra children.

Despite the support the family has gotten from some areas said Joyce, there are others that don't seem to want to accept them into the community. "We still get some harrassment," Joyce explained.

"The phone will ring late at night, and when we answer whoever it is will hang up, that sort of thing," she said.

They have also been turned in by an anonymous party for false sewage and electrical violations. The most disturbing incident, said Joyce, occured recently when someone ripped their rainbow sign from the post outside their house.

"Now, that rainbow might not mean anything to anyone else," said Joyce, "but it means something to our kids that sign symbolizes their home."

Year-round garden

The English-style gardens of Burton and Doris Stover of Pickford have been selected the "Garden of the Month" by the Country Girls Branch of the Women's National Farm and Garden Association. Garden club co-chairs Pat Eden and Marie Cooper selected the garden for its yearround beauty. Among the flower varieties in the Stover's garden are bleeding heart, bachelor buttons, blue balloon flowers, begonias, loosestrife, salmon colored geraniums and roses along with evergreens and burning bush and parsley and chives. A stream behind the Pickford home has a 100year-old dam and Burton Stover tends to the nearly three acres of lawn. Doris Stover credits her neighbor, Norm Shelley, with providing mulch to keep her flowers in bloom through the autumn season. At left is the stream behind the Stover's home. "One of the little ones once said 'my pot of gold is having a mommy and daddy', and that, to us summed up the whole feeling of our family."

The Eskras hope that once the community realizes they are just a family, with problems and joys like all other families, they will be accepted. "We don't want to be snubbed," said

Joyce. "As a matter of fact, it would be wonderful if someone would just come up to our front door, introduce themselves and meet us."

She added that if anyone is interested in becoming a foster parent, she would be happy to supply information regar-ding the program in this area.

Fast Weight Loss No Dieting - Eat All You Want Pill Does All the Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA. (Special)—An amazing new "super" grapefruit pill has recently been developed and perfected that re-portedly "guarantees" that you will éasily lose at least 10 pounds in 10 days. Best of all, it allows you to 'eat as much as you want of your favorite foods and still lose a pound a day or more starting from the very first day until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire.

This "super" grapefruit pill is a dramatically improved version of the world famous grapefruit diet. It is far more effective than the original and eliminates "the mess, fuss, and high cost of eating half a fresh grapefruit at every meal."

"Pill Does All the Work"

According to the manufacturer, "the pill itself does all the work while you quickly lose weight with NO starvation "diet menus" to follow, NO calorie counting, NO exercise, and NO hunger pangs." It is 100% safe. You simply take the pill with a glass of water before each meal and the amazing combination of powerful ingredients are so effective they take over and you start losing weight immediately.

Pill Has ALL Daily Vitamins

The powerful and unique combination of ingredients are what make this a "super-pill". It con-tains highly potent grapefruit con-centrate and a diuretic to help eliminate bloat and puffiness. No need to take any vitamins to maintain your good health and energy. The pill is fortified with ALL (100%) of the U.S. Government daily vitamin requirements.

Contains Japanese 'Glucomannan' Each pill also contains an amazingly effective amount of "gluco-mannan", the remarkable natural dietary fiber discovery from Japan (used successfully for over 1500 years) that expands in your stomach and gives you a full and satisfied feeling all day long.

The super-pill is already sweeping the country with glowing refrom formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Now Available to Public You can order your supply of these highly successful "super" grapefruit pills (now available directly from the manufacturer by mail order only) by sending $12 for a 14-day supply (or $20 for a 30-day supply, or $35 for a 60-day supply) cash, check, or money order to: Citrus Industries, 9903 Santa Monica Bl., Dept. Hawks rip Mustangs 42-0

By B.J. MARTIN

You've heard them say every team's players put their pants on one leg at a time? What they didn't tell you is that some teams' players use thumbtacks to hold those pants up.

Farmington Harrison has that sort of team this year. Last Friday the undefeated Hawks sent 4-0 Northville back home with a 42-0 loss. The game could have been closer. It also could have been less close

"Nobody's going to touch them the rest of their regular season," said Northville Coach Dennis Colligan. "And it's going to take one heck of a team to beat them in the state playoffs, I can tell you that." Before the game, Colligan noted the way to stop

Harrison was to stop All-Everything running back John Miller. Northville did no worse than anyone else this year, but Miller ground out 100 yards on 16 carries and scored three touchdowns.

When Northville keyed on Miller, Hawk quarterback Vince Enright took to the air and shredded the Mustang secondary like coleslaw. Enright completed 12 of 19 passes for 178 yards and two touchdowns Harrison's 408 yards total offense might have been more if the Hawks had farther to travel. But nine of the Hawks' 10 possessions Friday started in Northville territory. Northville never started a drive outside their 30.

The Mustangs shut down Harrison on the Hawks' first possession of the game, but couldn't manage the feat again until the third quarter.

If the Mustangs are looking for a bright spot in Friday's game, they could look at the third quarter. Harrison was trying its best to add to its lead, using the first-string unit and mixing plays to try to move the ball - and Northville did a respectable job of holding them scoreless for the 12-minute duration. But by then, Northville was down 29-0.

Playing catch-up didn't suit Northville well, either - quarterback Dave Denhof couldn't find an open receiver all afternoon. He completed none of his 10 passes and was intercepted three times. Until Friday, he had been intercepted just once all year.

Rick Van Buren gained 46 of Northville's 53 yards rushing to sum up the Mustang offense. Doug Hart-man and Tim Millen played strong games on defense, each registering seven first hits.

Asked if he can get his troops to regain their former momentum against Churchill in Friday night's Homecoming battle, Colligan said, "I think

"To beat them," he added, "we must improve our pass defense and get our offense rolling early. I'm expecting a high-scoring, exciting game.

Churchill's big threat is quarterback John Stoitsiadis, who may be the best the Western Lakes Activities Association has this year. "He's an exceptional scrambler and throws well on the run," Col-ligan noted. "Their 1-4 record is very deceptive they average more than 21 poins per game.' Kickoff time for the Churchill game is at 7:30 p.m.

Doug Hartman couldn't budge the Hawks' defense

Three wins give netters league-leading record

As usual this time of year, Northville's tennis team has the school's best record

Now 8-1 in the WLAA, 11-2 overall, the Mustang netters defeated arch-rival Farmington Harrison 4-3 last Wednesday to retain at least a share of the Western Lakes Activities Association title — even though Plymouth Canton so far leads Northville in the Western Division by having beaten all its divi-sion opponents, including Northville.

The Mustangs also netted a 5-2 win over Lakes Division contender Walled Lake Central Monday and a 7-0 win over Farmington on Friday.

Vicki Robins lost her match at first singles to the Hawks' outstanding netter, Kelly Davidson, 3-6, 2-6. At second singles, Denise Colovas fell to an old rival, Jill Bursa, 4-6, 6-4, 3-6.

Bursa had defeated Colovas at fourth singles in 1983 in a match that turned out to decide the Western Division title. Colovas gained revenge soon afterwards, defeating Bursa in the 1983 Western Division playoffs in 1983.

"I'm just hoping Denise can pull off a repeat of last year," said Northville Coach Uta Filkin.

Lynn Frellick was a two-set winner at third singles, while Dorothy Zielger fell at fourth singles. But a sweep of Harrison's doubles teams gave Northville the victory.

The doubles teams of Jennifer who topped Ziegler 6-3, 0-6 at fourth Millgard and Lori Housman, Leslie Oliver and Shari Feydenko, and Diane Lindquist and Sue Lane all won easy straight-set victories. In fact, the second-doubles tandem of Oliver and Fevdenko never lost a game while Lindquist and Lane only lost one.

But that's not surprising — both those doubles teams are unbeaten in dualmatch play this year.

Filkin said she had expected a tough match against Central Monday, since the Vikings earlier had beaten Harrison 4-3. But the only Central players to post wins against Northville were first singles player Karen Brown, who beat Robins 6-2, 6-3, and Michelle Kaznecki. singles.

Colovas defeated Cindy Zienert at second singles 6-1, 6-1 and Frellick edged Chrissy Kovach 6-4, 6-3 at third. In doubles, Trausch and Millgard tripped Julie Allgaier and Kelly Waymire 6-3, 6-4; Feydeko and Oliver routed Rene Urbas and Erin Cherfoli 6-2, 6-0: and Lindquist and Oliver defeated Tracy Sieveright and Theresa Slicker 6-1, 6-0.

In junior varsity doubles, Lindquist and Lane won 8-3, Wendy Weeker and Sue Duncan won 8-1, and Jill Stiles and Shannon Cousins lost 2-8. Filkin called the Mustangs' sweep of season. No match went three sets. The closest of the afternoon were Robins' 6-4. 6-3 win over Leslie Lawrence at first singles and Housman and Millgard's 6-3, 6-4 victory at first doubles.

Finals of the WLAA Conference meet will take place today at the Plymouth Canton-Salem complex. Friday, Northville faces one of the state's strongest Class A Regional fields at Ann Arbor Pioneer and Huron.

The distant regional location irks Filkin. "We have to be in downtown Ann Arbor at 8 a.m. Friday," she pointed out. "Meanwhile, Walled Lake Central is talking about having a good chance to finish strong at the Schoolcraft College Regional right next to Northville.'

Cagers tame Lions 37-30, for win No. 2

By B.J. MARTIN

Using balanced scoring to complement their usual tough defense, the Northville cagers bagged the Lions of South Lyon 37-30 Tuesday of last week. Guards Sue Terwin and Kathy Korowin and forwards Michele Siemasz and Tricia Ducker each scored eight points to lead one of Northville's best cage outings this season.

The Mustangs stunned the 6-2 Lions by dominating them from start to finish, especially on defense. Siemasz led the team with nine rebounds and made three steals. Meanwhile, Terwin continued her recent hot shooting. "In her last three games, Sue has been 6-of-11, 4-of-8 and 1-of-2 shooting," noted Mustang Coach Ed Kritch.

Kritch added he was pleased about his team's ability to control the ball during the game's final moments. With a seven-point lead, Northville hung on to the ball for the final two and one-half minutes of the game without stopping the clock.

The defense was again strong two nights later, but Northville fell 41-26 to talented Plymouth Salem, then 5-1 and steaming over an upset by Farmington two nights before.

Free throws proved to be Northville's downfall. In the first half, the Mustangs missed 12 of 13 from the line.

"It's hard to come back on a team like Salem when you put yourself at a disadvantage like that," Kritch said. The Mustangs did come back, though over the final two quarters, Northville outscored Salem 23-17.

Leading the way was Ducker, who finished the game with 11 points and nine rebounds. Siemasz contributed seven rebounds.

Now 2-6 on the season and 1-5 in the WLAA, Northville next gets into action tomorrow night against winless Harrison. Tuesday, Northville will travel to Livonia Churchill, like Harrison - a Western Division opponent.

Soccer team wins twice, guns for division crown

By B.J. MARTIN

Ó

Senior striker Joe Mackle scored twice to provide the winning margin in Northville's 3-1 conquest of Farmington Harrison last Thursday. The victory was the Mustangs' third straight, and nudged them back into the running for at least a divisional title.

Now 5-2-1 in the Western Lakes Soccer League, Northville still trails Western Division leader Plymouth Canton. But the Mustangs could heat that race up even more tomorrow when they travel to the Chiefs' home camp for a 4 p.m. game.

By all rights, Northville should have had Thursday's game pocketed by halftime. Doug May set up several good scoring opportunities in the first half. But only Mackle's goal — a loose ball he whacked inside the upper left corner from point-blank range with 12:27 remaining - kept the game from being scoreless at the midway point.

Both of Northville's second-half goals came on loose balls in the Hawk penalty area

The first came 14:20 into the second half. Descending on a loose ball right in front of the Hawks' left goalpost, Mackle appeared to be in the way of a clean shot by a teammate. Then Mackle twisted around like Billy Sims spinning off a hit and banged a low liner inside the near post. Freshman Chris Anderson got the other goal on a mixup that followed a rebound of a shot by Mackle. Harrison finally got on the board with 1:30 remaining, long after the Mustangs had substituted almost the entire starting lineup. The Mustangs got fine play throughout the game from backs Dan Magdich, Bob Guldberg and the rest of the defense. Also playing key roles in the win were Matt Peltz at midfield, and B.R. Bohan and Fred Cahill on the line. Two nights before. Northville nipped Livonia Churchill 1-0 to take over second place in the division. Despite the low score of the game, the Mustangs had control for the better part of the match. Only some superior goaltending by the Chargers' Sam Matovski kept Northville from rolling to a bigger lead.

Nick Morris tallied the game's lone goal near the midpoint of the second half by capitalizing on a mixup caused by one of Peltz's somersault throw-ins deep into Charger territory.

Negotiations were under way Monday to arrange the Mustangs' schedule this week. The tentative schedule pegged Northville's first-round regional match against Milford for Saturday but that, and other games this week were subject to change.

The Mustangs are scheduled to host Livonia Franklin next Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Matt Peltz takes control against Harrison

Harrison hands tank team third loss of season

Of the three dual swim meets Nor--thville has lost this season, last Thursday's got Coach Bill Dicks the ornerie

"At the worst we should be 3-1, and maybe 4-0 right now," Dicks stewed following the Mustangs' 51-32 tumble to Farmington Harrison. Now 1-3 overall and 0-3 in the WLAA, Northville's con-tending status in the Western Division is pretty much evaporated.

"Our front-line swimmers are out here working hard," he said. "But the people we're counting on to give us the seconds, thirds and fourths we need to win aren't coming through. They need to put out more in order for us to score points."

"We've had some sickness and some injuries," Dicks said. "But I see other teams making the sacrifices we aren't."

Shari Thompson - definitely in Northville's "front line" - edged closer to state qualification times in the 200 and 500 freestyle, clocking a 2:01.4 to win the 200 and a 5:25.26 in an exciting second-place finish to Harrison's Melissa Joy. Joy passed Thompson with six laps to go but Thompson fought back to finish less than a yard behind the Hawk ace.

Thompson needs to trim less than a second off her 200 time and about three seconds off her 500 time to qualify for state in those events. "According to her 100 splits and her I.M. times, she might be able to qualify in those, too," Dicks pointed out.

Other firsts for Northville were Erika Nelson's 1:17.7 in the 100 breast stroke and the 200 medley relay team of Stephanie Warren, Nelson, Kim Wilds and Dee LaChance, who teamed for a 2:13.5 timing.

Nelson placed second in the 200 I.M., Karen Brining in the 100 butterfly, Warren in the 100 backstroke, and Dawn Biondi in the 100 breast stoke. The 400 freestyle relay team of Thompson, Karen Petersen, Brining and Kim 100 free, and Brining in diving.

Lake Western tomorrow, away, and return home Tuesday for a 7 p.m. meet against Walled Lake Central.

Valade also placed second. Picking up thirds were the medley relay team, Dee LaChance in the 50 and

Wrestling coach resigns

After 16 years at the helm of Nor-hville's varsity wrestling team, Coach ary Emerson will not return this ing what it's like having the winter off." thville's varsity wrestling team, Coach Gary Emerson will not return this season, Northville High School Athletic Director Ralph Redmond announced last week

"It's time to do a little different kind of coaching," Emerson joked Monday, referring to his plans for his newly adopted baby boy, Andrew. He and wife Marilyn have been trying for years to adopt a child, and Emerson plans to make the most of it.

He started by resigning his longtime wrestlers this year, especially seniors and sophomores, "

Emerson, who has guided the Mustangs to one conference title, doesn't rule out an eventual return to coaching. "I'll see how it goes," he said simply.

All in all, it has been a busy year for Redmond. By this winter, the A.D. will have named new coaches in women's and men's basketball, baseball, cheerleading, pom-pon squad, men's coaching post last week. Men's cross-country team wins two

Northville locked up at least a tie for second in Western Division men's cross-country last week with sound victories over division rivals Livonia Churchill Tuesday and Farmington Harrison Thursday. Rich Naszradi led a 1-2-3 Mustang sweep that insured Tuesday's 23-32 win over Churchill at Cass Benton. Naszradi kicked to the finish in 17:59 with Alan Griffith and Kevin Haas right at his heels for second in 18:05 and Haas third in 18:06.

Brett Netke ied a second Northville pack that placed sixth, seventh and eighth. Netke streaked to the finish in 18:24, followed by Matt Winquist in 18:26 and Irven Meadows in 18:30. Matt McDonough ran a strong tenth-place race, finishing in 18:45.

Nine junior varsity runners bettered 20 minutes over the Cass Benton course to keep the reserves' division record undefeated. Mike Siefken finished 12th overall, with Scott Wiley, Kevin Legel, Kirk Kabel, John Huston, Tim Munsell, David Balok, John Kissinger and Kevin Hoose all breaking the 20-minute barrier - freshman Kissinger with a personal best 19:46.

Thursday's meet ran nearly as smoothly, as the Mustang varsity upped its record to 3-1 with a 22-34 win over the Hawks. Over the extremely quick Harrison campus course, Naszradi's 16:30 led a Mustang sweep of second through fifth places. Winquist placed third a second behind Naszradi, and Haas and Griffith finished together

Rounding out the Mustang field were Meadows, eighth in 16:43; Huston, 11th in 16:55; and Wiley, 12th in 17:08. With the exception of 13th, 17th, 20th and 25th, Northville swept the next 11 spots.

Now 3-1 in division meets, the Mustangs trail unbeaten division leader Walled Lake Western — the only division mate to defeat the Mustangs.

Northville's next opponent will be a non-conference meet at one of the state's powerhouse cross-rountry teams, Brighton, next Tuesuay. The men's squad is 4-4 overall, reserves 6-2.

YOUTH BASKETBALL

Northville Community Recreation is offering a Youth Basket-ball Program for boys and girls in third through ninth grades. Games will be played weekends at the Community Center, with third-fourth grade teams playing at 8 a.m., fifth-sixth graders at 9 a.m. and seventh-ninth graders at 10 a.m. Coaches are needed — all interested adults should attend a meeting Monday, October 22 at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Center.
