Jac 492 Lucas backs state pris proposal for DeHoCo site

By KEVIN WILSON

A Monday recommendation by Wayne County Executive William Lucas that the state purchase the Detroit House of Correction for use as a temporary state prison and for eventual construction of a permanent regional prison was issued contrary to the wishes, and without the knowledge, of western Wayne county members of Lucas' Commission to Study Prison Needs, township supervisor Susan Heintz said Tuesday.

It is also not reflective of the commission's final position, according to its chairman, and what affect it might have on the state legislature is questionable.

Citing a "preliminary report" by the commission, Lucas supported a proposal that the state begin using DeHoCo, on the south side of Five Mile in Plymouth Township, as temporary quarters for 1,000 prisoners. The report also recommends that the DeHoCo grounds be used for construction of one of two permanant regional 550-bed prisons that would replace the temporary quarters - the second regional prison would be located in the city of Detroit.

The report, which has not yet been approved by the commission, also recommends other steps to address the state's prison overcrowding problem, including use of the Eloise complex in Westland both as temporary and eventual permanent prison space. and possible retention of some county prisoners at DeHoCo until the county jail downtown is fully modified for double bunking of prisoners. Local officials in both Plymouth and Northville have opposed the proposed use of DeHoCo as a state prison, citing the existence of the Phoenix Correc tional Facility and an adjacent regional prison in Northville Township to be completed in 1985 as evidence "this area has done its share" in regard to housing prisoners.

Third Judicial Circuit Court Judge Patrick Duggan, chairman of the Lucas Commission to Study Prison Needs, said the report was drafted as a "working report for consideration of the committee members" and was not intended as the last word on the subject. He said he called the chairmen of the commission's subcommittees together with staff to draft the "working report."

"I did that because I got wind from a number of sources that the legislature may consider this before the end of the current session," Duggan said. "If that happens, however unlikely that may be,

Students retain high MEAP rating

By MICHELE M. FECHT

Northville students in grades four, seven and 10 once again have made the grade according to Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) results.

Results returned to the district earlier this month indicate that students in the three grades have continued a 15-year tradition of "exceptional achievement" in the areas of math and reading, Dolly McMaster, administrative assistant for curriculum, told the board of education Monday night.

McMaster told board members that "Northville falls within the top five or six schools in both Wayne and Oakland counties" in accordance with MEAP results.

A district analysis of grades four. seven and 10 in the area of mathematics reflects that 77.8 to 91.8 percent of the students accomplished 75 percent or more of all the objectives.

In the area of reading, 89.2 to 95.6 percent of the students accomplished 75 percent or more of all the reading obectives.

In comparison to last year's results, improvements were evidenced at all levels except seventh grade mathematics which dipped from 81.2 percent to 77.8.

It was noted that test objectives and

While the first snowfall of the season earlier this month has not been followed by many more snowflakes, Northville appears to have had little trouble getting into the Christmas spirit.

Shoppers who have been snatching up an array of holiday decorations from downtown shops during the past few weeks now can purchase the focal point of most Christmas celebrations - the family Christmas tree - and help a local cause at the same time.

The Northville-Novi Junior Football

Colts organization once again will be selling trees in the lot next to Arbor Drugs to help raise money for the recreational football program.

More than 700 trees arrived Sunday evening, according to Rick Starkweather, who is co-chairing the fifth annual tree sale with Gary Forte. Starkweather noted that last year some 600 trees were ordered and sold out two weeks before Christmas as residents seemed to welcome the abundant, fresh variety.

Sale hours are 3-9 p.m. weekdays and 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. weekends.

Starkweather pointed out that selling Christmas trees is the major fundraising activiting for the Colts.

The football program offers youths ages 9-14 an opportunity to participate in a well-supervised football league designed to teach fundamental skills and develop team work.

Greatest improvement was at the fourth grade level in the area of mathematics where 91.8 percent of the students mastered 75 percent or more of the objectives - an improvement of 4.3 percent in comparison to last year's 87.5 percent.

Carla Tibble wins teaching award

By MICHELE M. FECHT

Despite her early efforts to enter a profession other than home economics, Northville High School teacher Carla Tibble is the first to admit her niche is teaching everything from Food and Nutrition to Parenting Preschoolers.

"My grandmother was a member of one of Michigan State University's first home economics graduating classes," she notes, adding that "my mother also was a home economist from MSU.

"I decided I wasn't going to go into home ec and went to Albion," she explains. However, despite a major in speech and drama. Tibble says she couldn't stay away from home economics and ended up minoring in it. Her minor eventually landed her a teaching job - thus making her a third generation home economist.

"I really love what I do," says the 35year-old Tibble who joined the high school staff in 1978 following a stint as home economist for Wisconsin Electric. During her six-year tenure with the Northville Public Schools, Tibble has distinguished herself by giving new direction to the home economics department. She is regarded as the bulwark behind the parenting and parenting preschooler classes now a major componenet of the home economics curriculum. Most recently she has been working with junior high teacher Laurie Convery in revamping the ninth grade home ec classes for the opening of school next September.

'We're undergoing big curricular changes with the middle school," Tibble explains. "We're thinking about an integrated program for freshmen," she says, noting that the basic ideas of the program will stay the same.

While Tibble's enthusiasm has earned her kudos from both staff and students, she recently received some added recognition from her own peers.

Plans approved for grocery at Five Mile and Marilyn

A developer's efforts to build a small one-building shopping center on the portheast corner of Marilyn and Five Mile Road got a boost recently, as Nor-Unville Township planners gave their conditional okay to preliminary site plans for the one-acre parcel.

Should final site plans be approved as expected, a Grocery Bag Market would go up on property owned by the P.N.P. Leasing Company, which submitted the plan.

What is proposed is a 14-foot high store with a parking lot for 62 cars. Landscaping would provide for nine trees on the site and plantings around the perimeter.

In addition to final site plan approval by the planning commission, developers must also secure from the county a permit for the building's connection to the Wayne County Road Commission storm sewer.

Library slates puppet show

A special Christmas puppet show will be presented at the Northville Public Library at 2 p.m. December 8. The show will feature "Rapunzel" and will be performed by the Dick Waskin Puppets.

The performance, sponsored by the Friends of the Library, also will include holiday skits using hand and rod puppets.

There also will be Christmas treats for all children who attend. The show will last about 45 minutes.

For more information about the puppet show, call the library at 349-3020.

In October, Tibble was recognized as Outstanding Home Economics teacher by the Michigan Home Economics Educators Association - a first for the Northville teacher. In addition, she also was nominated for the Michigan Home Economics Teacher of the Year award.

Tibble, who has tried to remain somewhat low key since receiving her award, admits she's honored, but adds without hesitation that "the kids made that award possible.

'If it weren't for the kids," she notes, "there wouldn't be an award."

Tibble, who teaches co-ed foods, clothing, foods and nutrition and the parenting classes, says she has seen some "really good changes" in both the home economics program and throughout the district during her sixyear tenure.

In trying to dispel the image of home economics as a "sew and stir" curriculum, Tibble says she "does a lot of things with a consumer bend.

"I try to get away from sexism," she relates, noting that in her clothes class, students make tote bags rather than flowered aprons.

Tibble says she is not alone in her approach to home economics, noting that many educators are moving away from the traditionally all-female format.

"I think most of home ec was really centered on the home," she says of past programs. "It was a very femaleoriented area and ended up with a name that was very sexist."

She notes that the "bachelor's anonymous" classes of the past have gone to the wayside as male and female students now are learning basic skills without a "gender" focus.

She explains that her current foods class is comprised of approximately one third males with a handful of male students currently enrolled in her parenting class.

"Home economics today is management," she notes. "It's management of our resources."

She points out, for instance, that in her foods classes the "emphasis is on foods that are nutritious and easy to prepare."

Tibble explains that her major :ocus is on "life skills that students can take home with them."

However, she says she also believes that in a society where "high tech" is taking a predominant role, there still is a need for "high touch."

"I feel there is another side to us other than computers," she notes. "I think that is one of the missions of home

Higher Education Financial aid can ease tuition burden By MICHELE M. FECHT

Unlike their predecessors of 10 years ago. Northville High School seniors heading for college campuses next September will most likely find affordability to be a key factor in deciding where they will be spend their next four years.

Though higher education has long been an expensive investment, the increasing cost of attending college today is pricing many students out of the academic marketplace.

In Michigan, where college education costs are higher than most states in the nation, more and more students - and parents - are seeking alternative sources of funding.

John Tomey, director of admissions and financial aids at Schoolcraft College. said the number of Schoolcraft students receiving some sort of finan-cial aid has "gone up dramatically in recent years." He noted that the sharpest increase occurred after passage of the Middle Income Student Assistance Act in 1978, which raised the income level of eligibility for students seeking assistance. Tomey, who has been director of admissions at Schoolcraft for 10 years, pointed out that "roughly 20 to 22 percent" of students currently attending the community college are receiving some form of financial assistance. He noted that the current percentage has doubled in the last 10 years. The growing number of students requesting aid is not surprising in light of the cost of a college education, according to Northville High School counselor Gladys Cohen.

She noted that spending $25-30,000 on a four-year degree is not out of line in Michigan. Considering this year's estimated college costs, that figure almost seems conservative.

For instance, estimated costs for the 1984-85 academic year at University of Michigan at Ann Arbor are $6,922 for in-state students. That cost in-cludes $2,326 in tuition and fees. $3,322 room and board, $1,124 for books and personal expenses and $150 in travel expenditures.

For a private school such as Kalamazoo College.

which currently enrolls several Northville High School graduates, this year's costs totaled approx-imately $10,866. Tuition and fees alone are more than $7,300 at Kalamazoo.

At Schoolcraft College, which attracts the majority of college-bound NHS graduates, costs are approximately $2,600. That figure does not include room and board ($1,100) as most Northville students commute to Schoolcraft from home.

Cohen noted that for many college-bound graduates, financial aid may be the only answer to meeting skyrocketing higher education costs.

However, she added that one of the problems currently facing high school counselors is deciphering the plethora of financial aid information available and getting that information out to students.

She pointed out that financial aid is available in four major forms - scholarships. grants. loans and work/study. Sources for financial aid may range from federal grants to local stipends.

Criteria for aid also varies in accordance with need, academic standing, race, color, religion, hobbies, talents, etc.

Cohen said this year she compiled a scholarship information application for college and vocational schools intended to match eligible students with available forms of aid.

She explained that only 30-40 of the applications. sent out to all seniors in a class newsletter last month, were returned to the counseling office However, she added that the forms will be distributed during a class period within the next few weeks to insure a better return rate.

While the scholarship information applications are intended to help counselors match students with a variety of financial aid sources. Cohen encouraged students and their parents also to do their own solicitation.

She noted, for instance, that common fringe benefits among many corporations and organizations are college scholarship programs for children of employees. She listed Michigan Bell and the United Auto Workers as among those with such programs and noted that "in Northville, the NEA (Nor-thville Education Association) provides scholarships for children of members of NEA.

She also cited several local organizations which annually offer scholarships to high school seniors Past contributors have included such groups as the American Association of University Women, the Northville Mothers' Club, Northville Woman's Club and chapters of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association.

Cohen said this year the high school counseling department is sending letters to local organizations requesting eligibility for their scholarship pro-grams in order to pass the information on to students in a timely fashion.

While she admitted that high school counselors have a difficult time getting financial aid information to students, Cohen said she discourages students from using commercial companies that directly solicit students. She noted that such companies will do computer checks for students at-a cost of $30 or $40 and send them a printout of available financial aid.

'The falacy is that there is all this money out there that people aren't applying for." Cohen noted While funding for financial aid "has grown significantly over the last 10 years." according to Tomey, demand for assistance also has increased making many scholarships extremely competitive.

For instance, eligibility for the University of Michigan Rackham Scholarship, a $1,000 renewable award, includes top class ranking, grade point average of usually 4.0, SAT and ACT scores usually in the top two to three percentile and extra curricular activities.

Cohen pointed out that many college-bound Nor-thville students receive financial assistance from the school of their choice based upon scholarship and top academic ranking.

However, she noted that problems often arise when the school they plan to attend does not have a sufficient endowment to pay their extra costs.

Christmas is a time for lovers of all ages. Winter magic surrounds everyone. Christmas trees. Candles and twinkling lights. Crisp white snow. Cuddling before a crackling wood fire in the hearth. And some consumer expert reminding us that the heat from our hearth is heading up the chimney along with lots of warm air from our home. Wasteful magic? The edge goes off the pleasure. The crackling fire is extinguished ... along with the fire in our hearts. At least, in homes where the dream of warmth and coziness has to die to economic reality.

But now a genuine breakthrough in wood heat technology makes it possible to give your special someone a Christmas to remember forever This breakthrough is called a "catalytic combustor". As a leader in wood heat technology, Blaze King has enhanced the performance of catalytic stoves and fireplace inserts. The stove burns the wood. The combustor burns the smoke. Causes more heat. Maximizes heat extraction from the wood. Puts the heat into the home, not-up the chimney. What goes up the chimney is cleaner. Means fewer and less frequent chimney cleanings

With a Blaze King catalytic more hours (24 to 30) pass from the time you or your special someone load the stove until you have to load it again. Extends cuddle time. With such a large and deep firebox, ash cleanup also is done less often. This means less mess, UL Label means safety for your home. Financial aid eases college tuition load

She further pointed out that many students with top class ranking may receive extremely generous scholar-ship monies to smaller, local colleges rather than the more competitive schools they hope to attend.

Sohen explained that three of the largest financial aid sources - the Federal Pell Grant Program and the Michigan Competitive and Michigan Tuition Grant programs are based on beed.

She noted that while "many, many · Northville students meet the academic criteria," for these three programs, very few qualify on the basis of financial need.

Cohen said Northville generally is considered a "high rent district" and that most students are disgualified on the basis of their family's ability to pay.

She noted most Northville students are: turned down because of their parents' assets and the current market value of their family home - not the purchase price.

However, Cohen pointed out that the Differential Grant Program provides a small award to undergraduates attending a private college. She also noted that funding is available through the Guaranteed Student Loan Program for eligible students.

For students funding their own college education, the problems can be considerable, Cohen explained.

She noted that to be eligible for state of federal financial aid monies, a student must be independent for two years to receive funding.

She pointed out that a high school senior hoping to get funding for his or her sophomore year in college would have to stop living at home no later than February 15, 1985, to be eligible.

"I don't know many high school seniors ready to leave home." she noted.

While such prospects seem dim for some, Cohen explained that "as costly as it is, people who want to go to school, go to school."

Tomey echoed Cohen's remark but cautioned students against selecting a school solely on the basis of the financial aid package it has to offer.

"That is not academically sound." Tomey stated, adding that students who chart such a course will only deprive themselves in the long run.

As one who has spent 17 years in the financial aid arena, Tomey admitted that one of the program's biggest problems is that it has become "too confusing. "We spend a large portion of our time trying to explain the financial aid pro-cess," Tomey said. "Many people equate filling out a financial aid application to filling out their income tax," he added.

Formerly financial aids director at University of Detroit, Tomey, along with assistant Donna Ryktarsyk, spends part of his time speaking to high school students and parents in the Schoolcraft jurisdiction about the financial aid process. (He is scheduled to address Northville High School students and their parents January 16.)

"The programs are confusing to both parents and students," he said. Congress has to look at simplifying the program."

He related that for the first time this year, Schoolcraft simplified its applicaout only the Pell Grant and college appackage it into a financial aid package which might include a grant, work/-study and some form of a loan."

He added that under the Federal Direct Student Loan program, students can borrow up to $1,500 a year as undergraduates at an interest rate of five percent. The borrowed sum is not to exceed $6,000.

He said that in his 10 years at Schoolcraft, the college has "never had to renege on a financial aid commitment" and attributed it to the fact that most funding is provided a year in advance.

"For every student that demonstrated some sort of financial need, it is granted," Tomey explained. "There is no valid reason why a truly needy student who wants to attend Schoolcraft can't," he added. For seniors currently in the throes of mapping out their college course, Tomey advised that they check with the school they plan to attend about application deadlines.

He noted Schoolcraft begins accepting applications sometime in January with a priority return date at the end of March.

"We encourage students to select a school they plan to attend," he said.

WILLIAM ALLAN ACADEMY

It's hard to believe Thanksgiving has come and gone. The academy students have been busy in a number of ways.

Each Halloween brings art's "Great Pumpkin Award," which this year went to third grader Lisa Morrison and fifth grader Brian Morrison — a super brother-sister team. Great job!

Equally as prestigious were our current winners, Debbie Solomon, Katy Johnson, Jennifer Buczek, Jeremy Lawrence, Tony Gelardi and Lauren Smith. They were commended and given a $15 gift certificiate.

Our kindergartners found November to be filled with science experiments in plant growth, continuation of letter, sound and word studies, and new math skills.

The academy's first and second graders have really enjoyed their study of North American Indians. Not only did this include map studies, tribe distinction, sign language, Indian culture, art dioramas, but written reports, too. Lots of work but lots of fun.

WE HAVE CHRISTMAS SILVER BARS We Will Buy Your Old Coins and Jewelry

The third-fourth graders have devoted much of their time to presidential study, with research, charts and reports. They, however, are all bubbing with enthusiasm over their own bake sale this Thursday to raise money for camp. Seems to be good timing for pre-Christmas goodles.

Our academy's fifth-sixth graders met with some very interesting highlights to this month's studies. All prepared election folders, not only studying the electoral process but candidates, political parties, platforms, voting and news media (television and newspaper) coverage.

The mock election they set up for the school was very successful, exemplifying democracy in the works. They learned a lot about the "right" to vote, its importance, and decision making.

Again, we find Christmas just around the corner and with it the thrill of our school's annual musical. This year it is "HMS Pinafore" to be presented December 20 from 7:30-9 p.m. It's sure to be a delight.

OUR LADY OF VICTORY

Nancy Lawrence

Our Lady of Victory School is participating in a world-wide effort to ask world leaders to strive for peace. The OLV students are extending their hands in friendship to other youngsters in nations everywhere.

It is a symbolic gesture to young, old or in-between that people can indeed strive to get along. To that end, the Get Along Gang, a new group of "characters" designed to help children learn to get along, is asking students to spread the message of good will by signing a petition, urging children everywhere to set the example by getting along with each other and leading the way to world friendship.

The signed petitions will be presented to representatives of other countries as a demonstration of the desire for students attending OLV school for everyone to get along together in friendship.

The OLV Junior High Chorus, newly formed this fall, will be caroling for senior citizens throughout the community. Through their voices, they will be sharing the joy and blessings of Christmas with the elderly at Allen Ter-race, Whitehall Manor, Wishing Well Manor and OLV Senior Citizens' Group.

The school music program for Christmas will be held December 12 at OLV Church. Students in grades one through six will be singing in the con-cert, entitled, "The Best Gift of All." The Junior High Chorus also will be part of the program.

The school newspaper, "The Cougar Chronicle," presently is being put together. The first issue, coming soon, will be full of all the interesting activities and events going on at OLV school.

First graders are busily preparing for the first grade play, "Love Was Born," to be presented December 20.

The sixth grade class has made Thanksgiving silhouettes of themselves which are on display in their room. Theme for this project is, "Thanks, God, for Making Me.'

The first graders presented an All Saints Day program for their parents November 1. Mrs. Phyliss Lenaghan came to the class November 8 and read her story, "Benjamin Beaver." She presented each first grader with a copy.

The third graders have entered Detroit Edison's 18th annual safety poster contest and the fourth graders are participating in a National Homonym Contest. Creativity abounds at OLV.

Lucas backs state prison use at DeHoCo

I want this commission's views to be relayed to the legislature. To expedite matters, I've asked the members to review this report and, if something happens, to be prepared to meet on short notice.

As far as the commission is concerned, Duggan said, "that's as far as it got. The commission may accept it, it may reject it, it may accept parts and reject other parts. Susan Heintz is absolutely right, she was not consulted and did not know about the report. That's the way it was supposed to be.

Duggan said Lucas' recommendation was independent of the commission's process. "I think what happened was the chief executive was aware of what the subcommittee chairmen and staff were recommending - and he liked it. I think he felt he wanted to have some influence on whatever the legislature may decide to do, and said something about it."

According to Mike Conway, a spokesman in Lucas' public information department, the commission was not intended to complete its work until mid-January. He said the preliminary report was issued Monday in hopes of influencing the state legislature to take action before December 1, when county prisoners are due to be transferred to the new county jail in downtown Detroit.

The urgency, Conway said, is to generate more state prison space in order to halt the early release of prisoners under the state's prison overcrowding laws. Some convicted felons have had their prison terms reduced by more than two years due to repeated implementation of the early release provision

"Mr. Lucas's position is that a lot more people are hurt because of people being released early than will ever be hurt by people escaping from prison,' Conway said. "It's an emergency."

Emergency or not, township supervisor Heintz said she was astonished at the recommendation. Lucas appointed Heintz a member of the commission to serve on one of its four subcommittees - that charged with site selection criteria.

"Our subcommittee met last Monday (November 19) and when we left that meeting my understanding was that we would recommend no specific sites, Heintz said. "The DeHoCo issue did come up, but I told them I thought it would unacceptable to western Wayne County and the decision was not to recommend any specif's sites, except to urge that Detroit find locations vithin its boundaries."

brecht Realty and chairman of the sub-committee of which Heintz is a member, said Tuesday that "things have moved at a faster pace than we had anticipated" and that as a result communication with commission members "was perhaps less" than desired. He said he expects to be meeting again this week before a final Heintz said it was her understanding that subcommittee chairmen met late last week to draft the preliminary report. Asked if that was correct, Lam-brecht said only that "we've been meeting right along" and "have already gathered quite a lot of input" on the issue.

Conway said he witnessed a meeting last Friday attended by Duggan, Lambrecht, Lucas, Lucas aide Dennis Nystrom and others. He said his understanding is that the preliminary report was drafted at that meeting.

It was apparently leaked to the De roit News, which published a story detailing a 10-point plan in its Sunday editions, Conway said. Conway noted that the report issued Monday offers only a seven-point plan "so there were obviously some changes between whatever was leaked to the News and what was included in the report.'

Duggan said he decided to send a letter to all commission members, along with the working report, after seeing the Sunday article. "That's an inac-curate article — that's not what the commission is recommending," Duggan said. He said the article's statement he was unavailable for comment was not correct and that he had spoken with Free Press reporters. "That's probably why they haven't printed anything like that," he said.

Heintz said the Sunday newspaper article was the first she had heard about any commission action. "To my knowledge, we had no report. Our subcommittee hasn't even put together a report. The first I knew about a report was Sunday when I read my morning paper --- it was the first I'd heard about anything about either DeHoCo or Eloise.

Heintz claimed the proposed use of DeHoCo not only as temporary housing for prisoners but also as a long-term regional prison site flies in the face of the state department of corrections' supposed criteria for selecting prison

Noting that the regional prison plan calls for "prisoners to be housed in the community where they live," she said 'we could have that prison open for 50 years and it would never be filled with Plymouth, Northville and Canton prisoners. I'm sorry, but most of those prisoners are coming from Detroit. This plan calls for 1,000 beds, and another 1,000 beds in regional prisons out here. It calls for only 550 beds in Detroit.

county jail is not ready to house all the prisoners expected to be transferred from DeHoCo.

One provision of a preliminary report issued by county executive William Lucas' Commission on Prison Needs (see related story) calls for the county to transfer DeHoCo prisoners convicted of misdemeanors to Detroit December 1, but leaves felony convicts at the Plymouth Township facility.

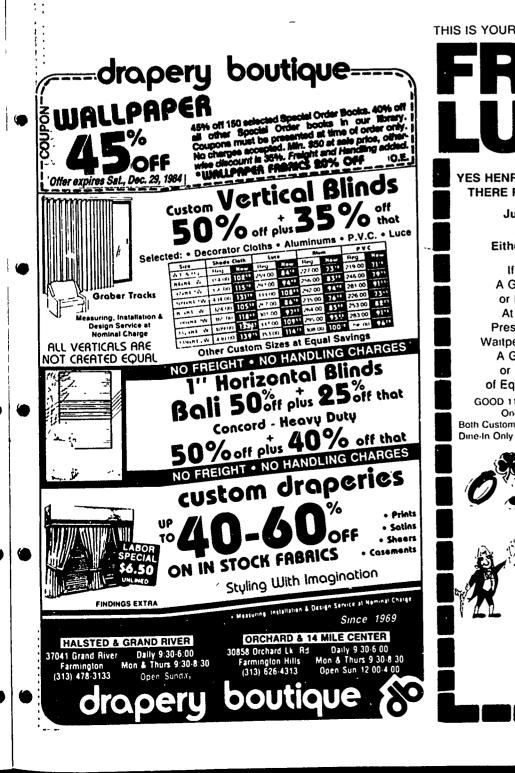

If the state opts to purchase the DeHoCo property, the county felony convicts and state prisoners would oc-cupy the prison simultaneously until such time as the county's Detroit jail is completed.

If the state does not purchase DeHoCo immediately, control of DeHoCo remains in county hands and the December 1 transfer is likely to be only partial.

The Southeastern Michigan Chapter of the American Red Cross is accepting contributions for African Famine Relief. More than $21,500 in unsolicited contributions had been received by the local chapter by mid-November with the figure rising to $37,100 by the end of last week.

Chapter chairman Anthonty J. Vinci announced that the Executive Committee of the board of directors has approved a campaign to raise a minimum of $120,000 from the citizens of the Detroit metropolitan area.

Checks should be made payable to American Red Cross, earmarked African Relief and mailed to: Executive Office, American Red Cross, Southeastern Michigan Chapter, P.O. Box 351, Detroit, MI 48232. Contributed funds will be channeled directly to the League of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies, which is coordinating a worldwide African Relief campaign.

"Helping people in need at home and abroad is a Red Cross tradition," said Vinci. "But, perhaps no disaster has ever posed a greater challenge to Red Cross than the famine in Africa. Literally thousands of men, women and children are starving to death every day. In some places in Africa, it has not rained for two years."

The League has issued a worldwide appeal for $37 million in emergency relief. The American Red Cross has promised to raise a minimum of $5 million to help the relief effort in 12 of the most severely affected countries. The Southeastern Michigan Chapter goal of $120,000 is part of the national Red Cross effort.

The countries that will receive Red Cross aid are Chad, Djibouti, Ethiopia, Kenya, Mali, Mauritania, Mozambique, Sao Tome, Senegal, Zambia, Zimbabwe and Tanzania.

Several Red Cross teams will travel to Africa at the end of November to obtain first-hand information on famine conditions and relief operations. The teams will be headed by American Red Cross president Richard F. Schubert, and will be accompanied by actor Charlton Heston.

Although the official American Red cross fund campaign will not begin until January, the Southeastern Michigan Chapter is accepting donations which will be forwarded to the national Red Cross on a weekly basis for transmis-sion to the League of Red Cross Societies in Geneva, Switzerland.

Super sewer alternatives being proposed plan rejected earlier this fall by the Environmental Protection Agency, and pursuit of the same plan with less federal funding, are now being discuss-

Oakland County officials recently asked Novi, Wixom and Commerce Township if they were still interested in participating in the regional sewer pro-ject although it will receive 55 pecent, rather than 75 percent, federal funding.

Novi City Manager Edward Kriewall reported that local officials agreed at the meeting it would be cost effective to continue pursuit of the regional sewer.

To coordinate the continued pursuit of a regional sewer, Richard Hinshon, chief of the Municipal Facilities Administration Section of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (M-DNR), is taking a leave of absence from the M-DNR and working full time on obtaining approval for the regional sewer, Kriewall said.

"I think the state feels bad the plan was turned down, so with the governor's blessing, Hinshon is putting the Alternatives to the regional sewer project back together," Kriewall said. At the same time, alternatives for providing sewer service for the area are being studied.

Kriewall reported city engineering consultants are investigating the possibility of a regional treatment plant to serve Northville Township and the Oakland County communities which originally would have connected to the regional sewer.

It is likely the Detroit Water Board would oppose the regional treatment plant, since it would take sewage out of the Detroit sewer system, Kriewall noted. "There are environmental issues connected with an independent treatment plant that could stop us," he add-

A third plan, which Kriewall describes as "feasible on paper," would be to construct a sewer line directly to Detroit and force the sewage through to the Detroit sewage treatment plant. In yet another plan, Novi is attempting to obtain unused sewage capacity from communities such as Livonia. Kriewall explained some communities have sewage capacity for parts of their cities which are unlikely to develop. By plugging leaks in the existing system the usused sewage capacity could be recaptured and used by communities with limited sewage capacity, such as Novi.

Resolution of the sewage capacity problem is critical to Novi if the city is to continue to grow, Kriewall explained.

"We thought earlier this year that the sewage treatment capacity problem was resolved," Kriewall told an assembled group of city planners, council members and Economic Development Corporation board members.

"Then the super sewer grant was submitted to the Enviromental Protection Agency and rejected. Since then people have been scurrying around, trying to pick up the pieces. Oakland County and Wayne County are trying to resurrect the plan. And in the past few months everybody's been suing everybody else. The dust is settling now and we're investigating our alternatives.'

Kriewall said that the city will have only limited sewage capacity until the question is resolved. One problem in obtaining capacity is that the city has () been ordered to be part of a regional planning and funding process, Kriewall said

"Right now we're caught up in the politics of that regional planning process," said the city manager. "It's very difficult for us to control our own destiny."

The city is hoping that discussions over the next several months will lead to the resolution of the problem.

"In the meantime, we cannot garuarantee that the DNR will not come down and say you're all done. They could tell a developer, after he's put hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of utilites and roads in the ground, that sewer capacity is not available and he cannot connect his sewers," Kriewall said.

He indicated the city continues its policy of alerting all residential developers that the city has limited sewer capacity and the developer is proceeding at his own risk with the understanding the DNR could invoke a building ban at any time.

Thieves target cars and trucks in township reports

In the Township...

A 1979 Lincoln was stolen from the south parking lot of a Seven Mile cocktail lounge sometime between 7:30 and 8:45 p.m. November 21, township police report.

The complainant told police the car was locked at the time the incident occorred.

o The owner further stated that he noticed the car missing at approximately 8:45 p.m. However, he noted it may have been stolen earlier as a friend came to look for him at 8 p.m. and did not come into the bar because he did not see the complainant's car in the parking lot.

The vehicle was valued at approximately $8,000. An alert was sent out to other area police departments.

Unknown subject(s) stole a rear differential from a 1975 dump truck parked at a Seven Mile landscaping company sometime between 6 p.m. November 19 and 7:30 a.m. November 20, police report.

The complainant told police unknown person(s) gained entry to the vehicle through a fenced parking lot on the company grounds. 7 The complainant noted that the lot is completely fenced in with two locked gates at both the west and south ends.

He further stated that both gates were secure when he closed the lot November 19 and were intact when he opened it the following morning.

An officer at the scene checked the area and found a large hole in the fence on the east side of the lot. The officer located a smaller hole in the fence on the west side of the lot.

The complainant told police the holes in the fence had been there for several weeks

He further stated that it would have taken two men at least 30 minutes to remove the rear differential from the truck.

The two-speed differential is valued at approximately $800.

A $250 radar detector was stolen from a 1984 Thunderbird parked in the driveway of a Franklin residence sometime between 6:30 and 7:10 p.m. November 19, according to police.

The complainant told police unknown subject(s) broke the right door glass with a rock to steal the radar detector from the right sun visor of the vehicle. Police found a five-inch rock inside the vehicle. Nothing else was noticed missing or damaged.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $150.

Items valued at approximately $200 were stolen from a Gerald Avenue residence sometime between 9 a.m. November 19 and noon November 20, police report.

The complainant came to the township police station to report that unknown subject(s) broke into his shed, breaking the lock and damaging the latch.

Items stolen included a tire mounted on a mag-type rim and a motorcraft battery taken from a 1982 Ford pick-up truck.

The complainant further noted that the subject(s) pulled a tailgate out of the shed and a second tire which was found on the ground near the shed.

Damage was estimated at approximately $120.

Unknown subject(s) caused an estimated $500 damage to the front lawn of a Pickford residence sometime between 9 a.m. November 17 and 8 a.m. November 18, police report.

The complainant told police unknown subject(s) drove a vehicle over approximately 300-feet of his front lawn. He further stated he was not sure if his sprinkler system was damaged.

Unknown subject(s) caused an estimated $460 damage to windows of a Fry Road residence sometime between 7 and 8 p.m. November 16, according to township police.

The complainant told police unknown subject(s) shot out his doorwall windows in his dining room and a window in the front of his residence.

There are no suspects at this time.

...In the City

As a result of an indecent exposure incident reported at Northville High School last week, principal David Bolitho has told city police that the practice of letting students work alone without supervision at night was to end last Friday.

He reported to police that three girls were working in room E-74 about 6 p.m.

heard a tap on the window. They said they saw nothing, but the third time they heard tapping they reported they looked out to see a man exposing himself and masturbating. Because the shade was half-down, they said they only saw the person from the waist down.

City police have received reports of two stolen vehicles during the past week.

A Lansing resident reported the theft of his 1985 Chevrolet Camero from city lot No. 4 November 24. He stated the car was locked and valued it at $12,000. There are no suspects. A Walled Lake resident reported the theft of a 1979 yellow Olds Cutlass from the east end of the main parking lot a Northville Downs November 20. He valued the vehicle at $4,000 and stated if was locked when he left it. There are no suspects at this time.

A Northville resident reported -a malicious destruction of property incident to police November 23. She stated she was driving eastbound on Main when the subject in a westbound car leaned out the window and threw a bottie at her vehicle, a 1983 Ford. It smashed the windshield, causing an estimated $100 damage

Police said the complainant could not identify the subject or the vehicle.

Our Opinions

We can help

The ecumenical service of Thanksgiving last Wednesday evening at First United Methodist Church was a reminder to those who filled the pews about twothirds full that we live in a land with a bountiful harvest. The Thanksgiving prayer led by the Réverend Eric Hammar of the host church and spoken in unison pointed out that "our ability to produce food and fiber for humankind and beast gives us a sense of achievement and adds meaning to our lives."

But the minister's sermon, "Thanksgiving: More Than a Nod to God," was not intended to send those attending home complacent. Referring to the hunger in Ethiopia that shocked the everyone when it finally gained the world's attention this month, the Reverend Hammar declared that a "band aid" approach to help has been applied.

"I'm not trying to lay a guilt trip on you," he said, "but there are children with not enough energy left to cry — and the United States ranks 14th of 16 nations in amount of help given in relation to the gross national product of these nations."

Anyone seeing on television the lines of men, women and children who walked as many as 168 miles to get the relief food or who viewed children with skin barely covering their bones will have a difficult time forgetting these images.

•••• Everyone seems to realize the need for food is immediate, but how can an individual respond?

The mail to The Record this week gives suggestions from churches and from the Red Cross. It reports that metropolitan area residents already have given enough through the Red Cross to feed more than 770 starving Africans. In a period of approx-imately three weeks the Southeastern Michigan Chapter has received contributions totaling more than $37,100 101 Famine Relief. According to the Red Cross, it takes only $4 per month or $48 per year to keep one starving African alive. The League of the Red Cross and the Red Crescent estimates, however, that 40,000 persons per month are starving in Africa. The Southeastern Michigan Chapter's African Famine Relief Campaign goal is a minimum of $120,000.

Noting that the Salvation Army has no official work in Ethiopia, the Salvation Army in Detroit says that offers of salvationist personnel from within Africa have been made to relief agencies, but that they have not yet needed to accept the offer. The Salvation Army's relief work in famine-ravaged areas includes a program in Northern Kenya on the Ethiopian border. The possibility of extending the program into Ethiopia is being studied carefully, the Army reports, but notes that th situation is complex. The Salvation Army is sending food and conributions received for assistance in Ethiopia to that country through relief agencies working there. These include Oxfam, World Vision and Save the Children Federation.

First Presbyterian Church of Northville is reporting to its members that more than six million people in Ethiopia are estimated to be affected by food shortage. Twelve of the country's 14 regions are suffering from drought; death by starvation is occurring in six regions. The number of people arriving at feeding centers far exceeds supplies of available food. The church notes that the Presbyterian World Relief, Emergency and Resettlement Service Program has made an initial contribution of $100,000 from One Great Hour of Sharing funds.

The church adds, however, that almost no food aid has been pledged by the world community beyond next month and that only 100,000 tons of relief food is scheduled to arrive by year end and that a minimum of 500,000 tons of emergency aid will be needed before the next main harvests in November, 1985. Anyone interested may send contributions designated "Ethiopian Famine Relief" through the church with 100 percent going to the project. Driving home from closing my mother's cottage in East Tawas last weekend, it was apparent that not everyone was a successful deer hunter but that many who had gone to hunt had better success with an ax or saw. windows than were deer. A few even had managed to tie

Thank goodness for the Colts⁻

When one reads the AAA publicity that "prices begin at $3 for Scotch pines," the temptation to grab a saw is understandable. (It stresses taking your own hand saw axes are banned.)

But before you do, consider the "hidden" costs. I'm still working on the mud stains on my boots from tramping through tree farms last December. The "choice" trees, of course, are not located near the road (usually dirt) leading into the cutting area. To get a "specimen" it's necessary to straddle the ruts made by equipment to get close-up views of the offerings.

Just when what appeared to be the perfect tree to decorate was spotted, it became obvious that it had a double trunk, branches on only one side or irregularly spaced. Another that looked promising had a trunk with an "s" curve; so on to another farm listed in the classifieds. I really should be honest enough to admit that waiting until the week before Christmas isn't going to leave much choice. Even the Auto Club states, "Persons who are looking for trees after December 15 are advised to call ahead to check availability."

My knuckles were turning blue as we tramped through yet another farm where the owner wanted to cut only the trees on the far side. I was ready to settle for a three-foot tree, mentioning that it would seem taller in the stand. No. I wish I had had the Auto Club's information that Norway, white and black spruce and Balsam fir trees should be cut at temperatures above 40 degrees to help them hold their needles (at colder temperatures, those varieties drop needles more easily than pines and Douglas firs.)

As I looked at all those trees tied to southbound vehicles last weekend, I felt they might, at that, be as welcome a trophy from the north as a deer in many households. I do wonder, though, how they clear out the needles. My car trunk still contains brownish ones that were deposited from the wreaths I bought last year.

I am pleased to recall, however, that the Christmas tree I finally decorated last year was a beauty — full, straight of trunk and well-rounded. There were branches aplenty on which to hang the ornaments that have been collected over many years. This prize black fir finally was chosen from a wide assortment available — at the Northville-Novi Colts Junior Football Association's tree sale next to Arbor Drug Store. Helpful father salesmen even tied it on the car.

No wonder I'm delighted that the Colts called this week to report their shipment of trees had arrived Sunday. I wonder if they have one exactly like last year's.

I shouldn't have saved it. In fact, I had forgotten about it until I found it in a box of old papers last weekend.

But there it was. A letter from an old riend of the female variety, written on the

Sign's good idea

Last week The Record published a letter from a resident saying that he and many others feel Northville High School's State Champion Girls' Soccer Team should receive recognition for this feat in a fast-growing sport. He suggested that a sign or signs be erected at the entrances to our community.

We agree that this is a significant honor, and that many communities we've passed through do erect such signs on the highways near the city's marker. It's interesting reading as one travels to note that a community is the home of top cheerleaders, marching bands and teams. How to do so here — and still preserve the looks of the carefully chosen signs of both the city and township — however, could pose a problem. This is especially true in the city where the signs regularly are covered with others announcing upcoming civic events.

One solution that comes to mind is the sign on Northville Road near the well which bears the insignia of local service clubs. Here an appropriate plaque certainly would be read — and be an acknowledgement of "something well done," as the writer stated.

City manager Steve Walters agrees that the state honor is worthy of recognition — and feels it even would be possible to attach matching wood signs to the existing ones as well as metal ones to city entrance signs. The problem is not of installation, however, but the economics of paying for the signs (he estimates they cost about $50 each). He feels sure the council would approve their installation if some group — perhaps the Boosters — would provide them.

Northville certainly is proud to be the home of the 1984 High School State Champion Girls' Soccer Team. A sign — or signs — would declare so.

occasion of my graduation from college many years ago.

Anne Cooper was her name. And she was quite a girl. We weren't boyfriend/girlfriend or anything like that. Just very good friends. And we spent so much time together just having fun that people knew if Jerome wasn't around he was with Cooper ... and vice versa.

At any rate, I found this lovely letter that Cooper had written me and was reading it when guess who walked in and wanted to know what I was doing.

"Just a letter that Anne Cooper wrote me a long time ago," I admitted.

"Anne Cooper," she responded. "Isn't that the girl you spent so much time with in college? The girl you used to walk around campus with every Saturday from noon until , curfew?"

And before I had a chance to admit that it was, she was on me like Eliot Ness on the Purple Gang.

"So you still have her old letters lying around, eh? Hidden away in that box of junk so you can pull them out and read them whenever you want.

"Well, I don't have the letters from my old boyfriends lying around. No sir, I got rid of them when we got married. I could have saved them. But, noooo. Not me. I got rid of them.

"But you save your old love letters. Keep them around so you can read them when you think I'm busy somewhere else."

Her tirade caught me by surprise. hadn't expected it. And she had a point.

But Cooper and I had a special relation: ship that had nothing to do with being boyfriends and girlfriends. And the letter I had saved was a lovely letter. It really was.

I thought for a moment about trying to explain all that to her, but abandoned the idea. She wouldn't understand.

Besides, I figured I should be thankful, she hadn't caught me reading one of my old... letters from Martha Bess. Now Martha Bess could really write letters.

To the Editor:

As a member of the Northville Javcees, I would like to express my disappointment at the decision of the Northville Chamber of Commerce to disallow any community service organizations from setting up booths and sellng items during the annual Christmas Walk, beginning next year. (We were allowed to have booths this year only because no advance notice was given to the yearly booth holders that the decision had been made to discontinue the practice.) The reasons I was given for this decision were that our booths interferred with pedestrian traffic and detracted from the merchants' sales.

Election gains aid

By GERALD LAW State Representative

Republicans are in a much stronger position to influence public policy thanks to gains in the Michigan House, the state Supreme Court and several educational boards.

In the Michigan House, Republicans picked up five new seats and won a special election in Oakland County while retaining 46 incumbents. The victories leave the 110 member house in a 52-58 split. The six seat gain was a major victory, which has set the stage for a political and philosophical realignment of the house. In the next legislative session, Republicans can create a "working majority" with conservative house Democrats on certain issues.

Republican gains on the Supreme Court and on state educational boards will also help us shape public policy. Justice James Brickley was over-whelmingly re-elected and Republican Dorothy Comstock Riley defeated longtime member Thomas Giles Kavanagh. (Note: supreme court justices are nominated at party conventions but run on a non-partisan ballot the editor.)

GOP candidates swept the races for the State Board of Education and the governing boards at the University of Michigan and Michigan State University

The victories bring Republicans a winning coalition for the future. With key issues such as education, economic development, health care cost containment, workers' compensation and additional tax reform needing action, it is vital for Republicans to be serving on educational boards and in the legislative and judicial branches of government where the decisions will be made.

I pledge to work enthusiastically for public policy that will enact the reforms we need. By working with my Republican colleagues in both the Michigan House and Senate, and elsewhere in state and local government, we can bring about the fiscal responsibility and economic health Michigan citizens desire. Thanks to your votes we have a mandate for that change.

the walk we experienced minor in-conveniences, such as lines so long to get into some of the stores that people were being allowed in only as others exited, parking problems, and large crowds, but we expected all of these problems.

The walk is a long-standing, wellknown event and naturally draws people from all over the area; anyone attending an event of this type should an-ticipate these types of problems. However, from my observations, none of these inconveniences was caused by the booths being in anyone's way. And I find it hard to believe that for five hours on one Sunday during the year that the baked goods, wreaths, gingerbread people, etc., that were being sold in any way took away from merchant sales.

I'm hoping that the merchants reconsider their decision and perhaps by next year we could work something out that would allow the local organizations to continue their Christmas Walk sales, which, for the Jaycees, and I'm sure other booth holders, is an excellent money maker - enablng us to finance many community services throughout the year.

Erin reciprocity

When Northville Jaycees' president Bob Cummings, left, vacationed in England and Ireland earlier this year, he met and was entertained by Paddy McDermott, right, and other Irish Jaycees. Last week, Cummings had an opportunity to reciprocate as McDermott made an overnight stop here after attending the Jaycees' International Congress in Montreal. Cummings and Doug Boor of the Northville Jaycees also at-tended the Montreal meet. Cummings reports that 80 countries were represented with both the United States and France sending 300 delegates each. Record photo by John Galloway.

Unusual gifts to be found around town

Not all Christmas gifts come from stores — with a little imagination a family present or a stocking stuffer gift can be purchased from such local sources as Maybury State Park, the post office or the Girl Scouts. Consider these ideas:

•A great Christmas gift idea that has delighted many an outdoor enthusiast, giving year round enjoyment, is the an-nual State Park Motor Vehicle Permit, reports the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. The 1985 permits go on sale December 1 and cost the same as last year, $10.

DNR director Ronald O. Skoog points out that the revenue from the permit supports Michigan's recreational heritage by providing funding to main-tain state park facilities and manage natural, historic and scenic areas within the state park system.

With the permit, which is good from January 1 through December 31, permitholders can enjoy winter skiing, snowmobiling, ice fishing, sledding, snowshoeing and camps as well as unlimited spring, summer and fall activities.

Maybury State Park manager Anthony P. Klain reports that the park office and park rangers will have the permits for sale. Park office hours on Beck Road are Monday, Tuesday and Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Requests may be made by mail by sending a check or money order for $10 payable to State of Michigan to the park office at 20145 Beck, Northville, 48167. The office may be called at 349-8390.

•Northville Post Office reports it has an assortment of kits, beginner and others, on sale for $2. Mint sets of stamps as well as such bookiets as "Stamps in Stories" are available at prices that range from about $3.50 to

 The Huron Valley Girl Scout Council (to which Northville Girl Scout troops belong) announces that it is possible to send Girl Scout cookies to friends.

Men's basketball preview New faces on cage team

By B.J. MARTIN

With only three players - and only one starter - returning from last year's varsity, folks might need a scorecard to recognize this winter's men's varsity basketball team.

Only senior co-captains John Storm and Greg Wendel, plus Gary Strunk, return from the team that went 12-10 last season.

Storm at 6'6" and Wendel at 6'3" are the players new varsity coach Omar Harrison is relying on for Northville's inside-game credibility. They were selected co-captains of the team last week.

Currently, Storm is battling stretched knee ligaments, and his status for next week's season opener against South Lyon is uncertain. "He's coming around gradually," says Harrison. "I'm really not sure when he'll be able to play full-time."

Storm did a good job as a backup to All-Division center Steve Schrader last season, and appears to have improved his offensive game somewhat.

Wendel has always helped Northville on the boards and with his intense, but controlled, demeanor on court, "Now if only I can get some offense from him," Harrison says. Indeed, Wendel's unselfish play on offense fit in perfectly last season with gunners like Bob Pegrum outside and Schrader inside. This year, Wendel will need to go to the hoop more.

worked hard in the off-season and may even play a role in the backcourt as a press-cracker.

Other seniors on the team include two Dougs - Hartman and May.

Hartman, though inexperienced, is a coach's dream as far as intensity and natural athletic talent. "I know if I need someone to get a rebound for me, he's not afraid to mix it up," Harrison notes. Doug May, a 5'9" point guard, brings good defensive ability and steadiness to the team. "Hopefully he'll be a leader for us," says Harrison.

There are nine juniors on the squad: • Don Norton, a 6'2" guard/forward, could emerge as one of the team's leading scorers. "He's a good defensive ballplayer, and he's aggressive He can put the ball in the hole, and we're looking to him for some offense," Harrison says • Mike Hilfinger, a 6'1" guard, possesses a good outside shot and plays tough, aggressive defense.

· Eric Gala, a 6'2" forward, led last year's JV in scoring and has a reputation for smarts under the boards. "For his height, he gets a lot of rebounds," says Harrison.

Gary Harper, a 6'2" forward, "is the kind of player everyone wants on his team," Harrison says. "He'll do anything he's asked to do."

Paul Newitt, a 5'10" guard, is one of the team's best defensive players. Harrison calls Newitt "a gutsy type, the kind who'll do anything to get the ball."

back up Wendel and Storm, shoring up Northville's front line height when necessary

· Fred Cahill, a 5'9" guard, is capable of getting a hot hand and possesses good quick moves.

• Kyle Boring, a 6'0" guard/forward, gives the Mustangs some good scoring ability, although his defense needs some work.

• Kirk Morrison, a 5'11" guard will see plenty of court time "if he plays to his potential," Harrison says. "He's very capable of scoring and he's a very smart ballplayer. His main asset is a lot of basketball sense.'

Harrison is more unable than reluctant to predict the type of team he will field this season. "We won't make too many changes on defense, but we're going to run different kinds of offenses depending on what works for us.

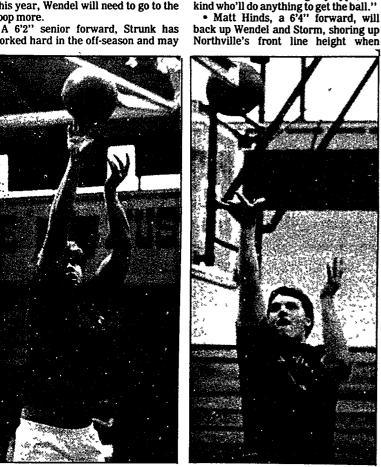

Livonia Stevenson and Plymouth Salem. Harrison thinks, will again be the league's top teams.

But all those teams are in the Lakes Division, and it could be the Western Division title will be within reach of the Mustangs, despite their inexperience. 'I think we're pretty much balanced on our side. I think anybody can beat anybody else," Harrison says. Darrel Schumacher, an old friend and coaching ally of Harrison, will handle the JV team and play an important part in handling the varsity.

Northville's Tricia Ducker and Sue Terwin were honored last week by Western Lakes Activities Association's coaches, who met last week to pick All-Conference, All-Division and honorable mention league players.

Ducker, an honorable mention selection last year, was named to the All-Division team this season. The 5'11" forward led the Mustang varsity with .8.7 points and seven rebounds per game for the Mustang varsity this season. Novi nips Mustangs in OT thriller

By B.J. MARTIN

It's probably not much consolation to the Mustangs, but Novi's wild 36-35 overtime win over Northville last week was a classic from opening tipoff to final buzzer. Put simply, the two teams' regular-season finale had everything most of all, great individual and team efforts.

After being benched with three fouls for most of the second quarter, Novi's Sue Rasinske rampaged for 20 secondhalf points to finish with 23 for the night, and also ripped down 19 rebounds.

"She's the best all-around player we've seen this year. But we definitely saw the game as one we blew rather than one they won. It was heartbreaking. We would have liked to be 10-10."

Northville twice appeared to have the Wildcats on the ropes. But Rasin-ske's last-second heroics twice saved Novi from a certain loss.

With time running out in the fourth quarter, Northville had the ball and a 33-31 lead. Just as the Wildcats were scrambling to foul for possession, Rasinske made a leaping steal at midcourt and drove the lane.

Northville guard Kathy Korowin fouled her to prevent a certain two points, but Rasinske swished both free throws, tying the score with 12 seconds to play. In those last 12 seconds, the Wildcats played tough, smart team defense and prevented Northville from scoring.

With 30 seconds left in overtime, Northville held a 35-34 lead and the ball when Novi committed an intentional foul for possession. But neither foul shot fell, and Novi got the ball back. Again Rasinske went to work. With 10 seconds remaining, she spun to the baseline and fired up a 12foot jumper that touched nothing but net. The Mustangs hurried the ball upcourt on a fast break, but once again couldn't get off a good shot. They fell to 9-11 on the year with the non-conference

For the Mustangs it was the second tion for what she's done in her senior overtime loss in their last three games. "That's where the season our girls had last year hurt us. A lot of our players just weren't used to being in close games.

"No way do I think Novi has a better team than ours," Kritch said of the 17-3 Wildcats. "I sure wish we were playing in the KVC this year."

Northville could point to several "ifs" in the loss:

throughout the game. It may have hurt Novi more than Northville, but the Mustangs could have benefited from several missed calls. Ducker picked up her fourth foul midway through the third quarter.

Sue Terwin played a solid, consistent game, popping in 10 points, grabbing eight rebounds and making six steals. Sue Schrader played her best game ever, coming off the bench and scoring eight points. Six came in the second quarter, when Northville stretched its lead from 7-5 to 19-13. Ducker added

ABWA aids women's progress in business

By PHILIP JEROME

Things are getting better for women in business. That's the firm conviction of Bettie Johnson, a Novi resident and an avow-ed advocate of the American Business Women's Association (ABWA), an organization dedicated to furthering the advancement of women in the workplace.

'We're seeing a whole new generation of women entering the work force," said Johnson, who is retired after working approximately 30 years for Michigan Bell Telephone.

"There's a new crop of educated women coming up who are much better informed about the opportunities available to them and what they can do.

"Today's women are finding out a lot of fields are open to them that women of my generation never even dreamed about," she continued. "Every time I received a promotion from Michigan Bell it was always something of a surprise because I never really believed a woman would be considered for that type of responsibility."

Johnson also believes today's women have a distinct advantage over men because they're willing to work harder.

As an example, she cites the case of a woman who was promoted over two male applicants for the same position.

"When the men asked why they had been passed over, the supervisor reminded them that they had said they were unwilling to work nights and weekends. The woman who received the promotion had responded she would be willing to do whatever was necessary to accomplish the job, including work on nights and weekends," she said.

Johnson's interest in women in the workplace stems directly from her own experience. After graduating from high school, she took a job as an operator with Michigan Bell in its Pontiac office. When World War II broke out, she and four other operators quite their jobs to join the WAVES, the female branch of the U.S. Navy.

"There was a real shortage of people in those days and Michigan Bell was not at all happy that we were leaving," she recalled. "When they lost five people, it was five people they desperately needed. "When we left, they told us we were back to our old jobs after getting out of the service. But fortunately, legislation was passed while we were in the Navy that required companies to take us back after the war was over.

'Joining ABWA put me in a network of working women from all sorts of jobs store clerks, secretaries and presidents of their own companies. ABWA doesn't limit its membership to professional women; it accepts working women from all types of jobs.'

Despite that episode, Johnson has nothing but kind things to say about Michigan Bell. After serving with the WAVES as a communications officer in Brooklyn during the war, Johnson returned to Michigan Bell's Pontiac office and launched a highly successful career, a career that was filled with numerous promotions.

"I started out as an operator and end-ed up as Staff Manager of the Michigan Bell Operators Department for the State of Michigan, supervising 175 people," she said.

"Several of my supervisors won "Boss of the Year" `awards for their willingness to promote women in jobs of responsibility," she added. "Michigan Bell was very good to me and good to women in general."

Johnson admits to being something of a "workaholic." In fact, it was her capacity for work that led her to join the Waterford chapter of ABWA some 17 years ago.

At that time I needed some involvement outside of my job and my home,' she recalled. "I was devoting a lot of time to work, and my world was becoming too small.

"Joining ABWA put me in a network of working women from all sorts of jobs - store clerks, secretaries and presidents of their own companies. AB-WA doesn't limit its membership to professional women; it accepts working women from all types of jobs.'

Since retiring from Michigan Bell in 1967, Johnson has remained active in ABWA. In fact, she was general chairman of the ABWA's national convention held in Detroit earlier this fall.

"I ran for the job five years ago and worked on it for the past three years,' she said. "It's a big job. Conventions in northern cities don't 'sell' as well as conventions in southern cities, so we had to go out and promote attendance at our convention.

BETTIE JOHNSON

"I took a staff of 120 members to the 1983 national convention in Las Vegas to drum up support for the Detroit convention.'

The ABWA is a non-union, nonpartisan, non-sectarian and non-profit organization. Its objective is to promote the professional, education, cultural and social advancement of business women.'

The group was started in 1949 by Hilary Bufton Jr., a Kansas City businesman who recognized the need for an organization to advance women in business through development of individual skills and leadership abilities, knowledge of diversified business techniques and improved business relationships.

Today the ABWA has some 112,000 members in 2,162 chapters across the United States.

Johnson notes that as a non-partisan organization the ABWA does not get involved in legislation to promote equality for women in the work place.

The major emphasis, she said, is educational. ABWA last year awarded more than $2.527 million in scholarships and grants to women needing additional education to attain higher positions in business.

Local chapters do not permit members to limit participation to atten-; ding dinner meetings. "You're required to be involved," she said. "You're required to serve on committees and stand up at meetings and give reports. There are many ways in which women; are required to become more profi-

The ABWA also publishes a bi-monthly magazine filled with articles on time management, writing resumes; and women who have been successful inbusiness

The topics of periodic seminars range from managing work-home conflicts to starting your own business to strategies; for obtaining government contracts.

"Women are making more and more progress in the field of business," noted Johnson. "Many factors are involved, but one of them is organizations like ABWA which make women aware of their potential and encourage them to improve themselves so they can get those promotions."

RV show moves to Cobo, adds features

Chef Tom MacKinnon of MacKinnon's restaurant in Northville will demonstrate gourmet cooking — on a two-burner Coleman camp stove — during the 18th Detroit Camper and Travel Trailer show beginning Friday at Cobo Hall.

MacKinnon's appearance at 3 p.m. December 5 is but one element that has Michigan's recreational vehicle industry optimistic about this year's show - the first at Cobo after 17 years at the West Eight Mile Armory. The dates of the show are also earlier than usual - late fall instead of mid-winter. Billed as the largest indoor display of recreational vehicles in America, the show is expected to draw 150,000 visitors in its 10-day run ending

December 9, show director David S. Pickering said. RV sales are up 13.4 percent

September 30, said Pickering, prompting the optimism with which the Michigan Association of Recreational Vehicles "and Campgrounds" (MAR= VAC) approaches the annual show.

'We think this will be our finest show yet," he said, "with everyone being in a holiday mood, out looking for entertainment and with enough confidence in the economy to buy that RV they've been wanting for years."

More than 400 RVs will be on display. Two LColeman folding Aspen camper trailers will be given away as door prizes - one December 4 at 6 p.m. and the second on the last day of the show at 8 p.m.

Other features of the show include Detroit Tigers Kirk Gibson, Milt Wilcox and Dave Rozeman signing free photographs, distinguished camper of the day honorees and Santa's holiday trailer, complete with reindeer.

Three radio stations - WJR, WCXI-AM and WHND will broadcast live from the show December 3 to 7. In addition to trailers, moor homes and van conversions, displays include RV accessories and camping equipment and booths of-fering information on campgrounds, resorts, camping and hiking. "With our early December dates for the show this year, buyers can pick out their RV, get financing and have it delivered in time for spring camping," said Howard Monson, show chairman and a former RV dealer.

The show is sponsored by MARVAC, a division of the Michigan Moile Home and Recreational Vehicle Institute. Both organizations operate out of Livonia under executive director Timothy DeWitt.

Show hours are 2 to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday (excepting opening day, which begins at 4 p.m.), noon to 10 p.m. Saturdays and noon to 8 p.m. Sundays. Admission is $4 for adults and $2 for children age 6 to 12 and for senior citizens age 62 or over. Children age five and under are admitted free with an adult.

Advance tickets, good for any day, are available at at First Federal Savings locatons. Discount tickets good December 3-7 are available at Elias Brothers Restaurants, Great Scott Supermarkets, Murray's Discount Auto Stores and participating RV dealers, The show is also listed in the Entertainment Passbook.

Parking is available for RVs as well as cars in the 12,000 spaces within one block of Cobo Hall, including the Cobo

Investors' year-end tax tips

.This is the best time of year for investors to examine their holdings and figure out the tax impact on their investments. Tax experts stress that tax planning of investments should be a year-round project, but since investors often neglect to follow a year-round strategy, planning at the year's end is the next best thing, says the Michigan Association of CPAs.

To calculate the tax on gains realized from investments, subtract long-term losses from long-term gains. Then subtract short-term losses from short-term gains. Finally, offset the two results to determine if the net result is a gain or loss and whether it is short-term or long-term.

· The best tax result on an investment comes from realizing long-term gains or short-term losses. That's because 60 percent of the gain on a long-term investment is excluded from taxation. The remaining 40 percent of a longterm gain is simply added to your in-come and taxed at your tax bracket rate.

A short-term loss is more desirable than a long-term loss because it is fully deductible from your income. Each dollar of a long-term loss, however, is worth only 50 cents off your icome. That's why it is wise at year-end to examine all your investment to see if you can take a loss on a short-term investment before it becomes a long-term holding

Keep in mind that federal tax law allows you to deduct from income a maximum of $3,000 in net short-term losses a year, or $6,000 in net long-term losses. Any losses above those limits should be carried over to succeeding years

When calculating net losses and gains, remember that the long-term capital gain (and loss) holding period was shortened from one year and a day to six months and a day by the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984. Now, all investments made after June 22, 1984 qualify as long-term if they are held for more than six months. All investments made before that date still come under the old capital gains rules which mandate that only investments held for more than a year qualify for the more favorable long-term gains tax treat-ment. The net effect of the new law is that investments made after June 22 will have to be sold after December 22 to qualify for long-term capital gains treatment.

One useful wrinkle in the rules affecting investors allows you to choose in which year a gain will be included — 1984 or 1985 - when it is realized in the last five business days of 1984. So if you sell a stock for a gain after December 24 this year, you have the option of including the gain in your 1984 or 1985 income tax return. That's because you can choose the trade date or the date you receive the proceeds as the effective IRS bookkeeping date. Figure out what gives you the best tax advantage. Your CPA can help you with this kind of transaction.

Another year-end move can help investors in municipal bonds and mutual funds. A short-term loss on one of these investments may be worth realizing, especially before it becomes a less powerful long-term loss. You can sell the investment, get the tax deduction and buy a similar (but not the same) bond or fund. The new investment will qualify as a long-term gain in six months and a day under the new holding rule. This way you can reap the same benefits if the security appreciates in value that you would have gotten by holding onto the the losing investment.

The rules involving capital gains and losses are complicated, so consult your tax advisor for more information.

DECORATING with energy savings in mind has become a necessity for homeowners. More and more homeowners are seeking to create more comfortable and versatile living environments that can be easily and inexpensively altered to complement both the winter and summer seasons.

The Interior Place in Milford has just such an item. Called Window Showcase, this product saves energy, provides comfort and looks beautiful by layering together without permanent attachment, two completely different materials - one insulating, the other decorative.

Appropriate Technology Corporation, makers of Window Quilt, the nation's leading insulating window shade, have introduced the new product that not only effectively eliminates cold drafty windows and hot summer sun rays but also provides homeowners with a window shade that can be easily and inexpensivley changed to match any room decor.

Incorporated in Window Showcase is an flexible design capability that allows homeowners to repeatedly replace the shade's front surface with any color or pattern fabric.

Says Sherry Westmoreland, owner of the Interior Place. "Draperies and other window coverings work to dictate the atmosphere of a room. Window Showcase, by providing a base insulating product with an interchangeable cover fabric, allows the consumer to alter the entire look of a room as often as desired - at a nominal expense.

Hidden behind the smooth designer fabric of the Window Showcase is the Window Quilt. For energy savings and improved comfort, Window Showcase uses the same sandwich of five insulating materials, two layers of polyester batting, and outer layers of a washable polyester-rayon blend.

"I'm in the business of telling jokes, but sometimes jokes are not enough...

SPECIALLY for families in crises, the unemployed, the alcoholic, the homeless, the elderly and others facing difficult times Millions of these people will receive a helping hand from The Salvation Army this Christmas season.

Shut-ms in nursing homes and hospitals will be visited by its League of Mercy Those who have no family celebration to attend will have holiday meals at Salvation Army centers Families in need will receive baskets of food, clothing and toys for the children. Prison inmates will be able to send gifts to their children with the help of the Army's special Toy Lift Programs

And throughout the year. The Salvation Army will meet the day-to-day needs of many with its corps community centers, day care centers, senior citizens residences, feeding programs, shelters, rehabilitation centers and other facilities which number more than 11,000 nationwide

This wonderful ministry needs your support in order to flourish. Won't you help these Christian soldiers in their work by tossing a generous contribution into a Salvation Army kettle or sending a check to your local Salvation Army? Your gift to The Salvation Army will keep the Christmas spirit of sharing alive throughout the new year.

Too Late

She's tried to make us believe that with a wave of that wand, she can turn pumpkins into carriages, mice into white horses and rags into white gowns. But we know she's just like the rest of us! When we want to turn a baby crib into cash ... an older car into a new one ... or change from sales clerk to doctor's receptionist ... the only magic wand we hold in our hand is a telephone receiver and the only thing we wave is our index finger as we dial the Classified Department of our newspaper! It's like magic the way good things come true for us with the help of Want Ads. And besides, we have a strong feeling that's the way the fairy godmother makes all her magic, too!

The bride, escorted down the aisle by her father, wore a white floor-length gown of sheer chiffon over taffeta. The fitted bodice was designed with a traditional neckline, accented with imported tiny seed pearls. The chantilly lace bishop sleeves were trimmed with white satin bows at the elbow and a ruffle cuff. The full skirt featured ruffled panniers and flowed into a chapellength train. A matching carriage-style hat with a fingertip veil accented with tiny seed pearls and two soft pink gardenias on the brim completed her attire. She carried a colonial bouquet of white gardenias and stephanotis, accented with purple statice.

Carie Bailey of Jacksonville, Florida, attended as matron of honor. She wore a floor-length gown of light blue lace over taffeta and carried a colonial bouquet similar to the bride's.

Angie Mutzfeld, Cindy Pickren and Diana Rolph served as bridesmaids. Their dresses and bouquets were fashioned after the matron of honor's. Carly Packer attended her sister as flower girl, wearing a blue dress and carrying a bouquet like the bridesmaids'.

JOLLY HOLLY ESTORE A

By SUE SCHELLENBERG

It all began with a small road in downtown Holly known as "Martha Street.'

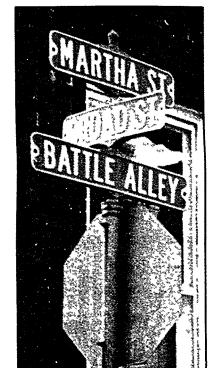

In the 1880s Holly was a lumbering boom town and railroad center, with more than 25 trains passing through daily. The town was the stopping place for the workmen of these businesses and also the winter home for a circus troupe.

With all this prospective business, it wasn't long before a row of saloons was built along Martha Street, and that's

The railroaders and teamsters, along with the locals, spent their evenings at the bars, and fights among the groups became a common sight.

One evening a brawl between the circus people and the townsmen became so intense that most of the participants were injured or landed in jail. As a result, the townspeople nicknamed the street Battle Alley - a name which has stuck to this day.

Holly's reputation reached the ears of Miss Carry Nation, the well-known temperance leader, and she paid a visit in 1908. Ms. Nation lectured at the Opera House and smashed up the

A starring attraction of Battle Alley which draws people from far and wide is the Holly Hotel, located at the corner of Battle Alley and Broad Street (Milford Road). The hotel, now owned by Dr. Les Sher and Jim Hilty, burned in 1978 and has been restored. using as much of the original brick, wood, tile and glass as could be salvaged. The Department of State, Michigan History Division, named Battle Alley as a State Historic Site in 1978. The hotel was accepted for registration by the Heritage Conservation and Recreation Service, Department of the Interior. in 1980.

Several years ago the merchants of Battle Alley met together and came up with a plan for bringing shoppers to the community and at the same time pro-vide them with the opportunity to relive history. And so "An Olde Fashioned Christmas" was born.

The celebration started out on a small scale involving the arcade, and grew each year until the entire town became involved. Eventually the theme of Charles Dickens novel. Carol" was adopted. Now during the weekends between Thanksgiving and Christmas. Holly is host to the characters of Scrooge, Bob Cratchit, Tiny Tim and the ghosts of Christmas past, present and yet-tocome. They are portrayed by local actors who walk among the shoppers and re-enact scenes from the well-known story. To add to the atmosphere, the street is lit by candelight, and filled with cockney vendors selling their wares. Dressed in rags and with dirty faces. they offer roasted chestnuts, hot baked potatoes, meat pies, hot cider and other items that were found in 19th Century London. The festival also features costumed shopkeepers. craftsmen, carollers, bell choirs and other entertainment. Last year the festival was featured in Better Homes and Gardens and People Magazine and was televised on Good Morning America, Good Afternoon Detroit and P.M. Magazine. Over 80,000 people visited Holly during the fiveweek period. This year the festival kicked off with Hospitality Weekend, November 23 and 24. A Christmas Walk was held with free taste treats offered by most of the shops. Treats include cookies, cakes, sausages, bread pudding, and punch. This year a Town Crier will be present each weekend, walking among the shoppers and passing out gift certificates at random which have been donated by shops on Battle Alley. Also present each weekend will be Evan Price, a young musician who plays several instruments, Bob Hubbard, who will entertain on the dulcimer, and the Battle Alley Singers. a group of children, who will perform Christmas carols. December 1 and 2 is Wassail Weekend. This second weekend is centered around the traditional English Wassail, the custom of gathering around a large bowl of spiced punch and singing Christmas carols.

saloons in her fight of the "demon rum" - all with little success.

In 1973, a semi-retired veterinarian, Dr. Henry Raskin, purchased the old casket factory, which was at one time connected to the hotel next door and served as a saloon and brothel. Raskin restored the building in a true 19th century style, using authentic wood, windows, lighting, and more. The materials were found mostly in Michigan, but also came from Ohio, Illinois and Canada.

The building, renamed the Battle Alley Arcade, now houses the reproduction of a village street lined with specialty shops such as The Crafty Foxe, The Daily Grind, the Victoria Sweet Shoppe, and 10 others.

Raskin's efforts became the example for the rest of the street. The buildings

The shops will provide punch bowls of wassail to the shoppers, and pass out cards telling of the history of wassail, plus recipes for the punch.

Father Christmas weekend will be held December 8 and 9, featuring an Olde English Santa Claus who will walk among the shoppers and pass out small gifts that have been donated by the merchants.

December 15 and 16 will be Nativity Weekend, a first for the festival. A live ¥37 ٠., nativity scene will be on display in a large, open air building which resembles a stable.

The last weekend of the celebration will be Photography Weekend, December 22 and 23. Amateur photographers are encouraged to take photos of the activities held during the festival. Judging will be held this final weekend with $50 as first prize for black and white, and color shots.

Kits offer help to new hobbyists

"We do a lot of one-to-one classes." according to Carlene Atchison of Artcraft in South Lyon. Their classes include candlewicking, cross stitch. crocheting, knitting, macrame, basket weaving, sewing and lace net darning, she noted.

At these two- and four-hour classes, students "make and take" designs that are stencilled on cloth that are held into hoops and pushed out with fiberfill, Comb said.

Judy Misslitz of Artcraft added that the classes not only get a person started in the making of crafts, but they also are sources of hints and shortcuts that may not appear in booklets and kits.

"A lot of it is less expensive than buying something," Atchison added. Classes also are offered at the Put Up-on Shoppe in Plymouth, which specializes in stencilling, according to salesperson Mary Jo Comb.

"We've done this for a few years, and we know some shortcuts that may not be in the booklets," Misslitz explained.

Another way to get started in crafts is to explain to a salesperson what kind of project you are interested in, and then let them direct them to the different parts of that craft.

That approach has been successful at the Hobby Center in Howell, according the store manager Cindy Gehringer.

"It would depend on the person, what their capabilities are," Gehringer observed.

Crafts put together this way (and created rather inexpensively) include: • Refrigerator magnets ($1-1.50), which can be put together with craft fur, small dried flowers, magnets, felt, chenille stems (like a pipe cleaner but colored and longer).

• Necklaces ($3-8), which can be constructed from cord, clasps, wooden and plastic beads, and pieces of jewelry. • Styrofoam Christmas ornaments ($1-3), which can be shaped into balls, cones, and trees and decorated with sequins and glitter.

Persons comfortable with a needle and thread and variations could relatively easily tackle such things as slippers, hats, scarves, mittons, and afghans, according to D'Arcie Glaesmer, manager of Yarn Crafters at the Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi.

Area craftspeople noted a wide array of booklets and kits that are helpful to beginners.

The crafts department at Frank's Nursery Sales in Farmington has 500 booklet titles, noted department manager Mary Ellen East.

All these craftspeople had one suggestion for beginning crafts workers: Ask, and who knows what worlds will be opened to you.

Mosser has loved antiques all her life but has always found it difficult to find attractive accent lamps to complement her decor. She and her daughter liked the idea of some Victorian style cut and pierced shades they saw in a magazine. but the workmanship looked poor and they decided to make their own.

Her husband Garvin wired the bases for them. He is a retired railway worker and enjoys doing things with his hands.

Barbara Keiser's husband, Lee, a fork lift driver, was put to work on the designs for the shades. He found he had artistic talents he had never before utilized.

The four recall they were so pleased with their results that they decided to try their luck in a local crafts show.

'We were overwhelmed," said Masser. "We couldn't even unpack that day people were mobbing us for our lamps.

Since that first show about a year ago they have had trouble keeping up with reguests.

The women said they enjoy shopping antique stores for the bases and have used everything from antique blowlamps to fine Dresden china, tea pots and country crocks. Keiser has increased his range of shade designs to include strawberry designs, covered bridges, pine cones, log cabins and many others. He chooses designs appropriate for the base.

A Novi couple. Jeff and Ruth Bones. have found that their niche in the crafts field is in making and decorating wood products that meet the present trend to 'country'' looks in the home.

They became particularly interested in the Shaker designs and have visited several restored Shaker settlements to research their products.

As well as the Shaker peg racks which he makes exactly to Shaker specifications, Jeff Bones makes small pieces, such as welcome signs, small rocking horses, candle sticks, children's decorated blocks and pencil holders.

Ruth Bones decorates them with paint, stain or stencil designs. They, oo, sell their products at craft shows.

Though Jeff is still working full time and taking college classes to learn computer repair, the craft work is sufficiently important to make time for, the couple added.

'It's something we enjoy doing together and our boys help too. It gives them the idea of helping and a sense of accomplishment," they said.

"We did it for ourselves before we got into doing it for other people - it just kind of evolved," Ruth Bones said.

A visit to Iceland to see her daughter was the start of a knitting business for Helen Smith of Howell. She recalled that she fell in love with the Icelandic wools and sweaters and began by knitting sweaters for her daughters. But then their friends wanted them, and the orders started coming.

Since then she has designed other items for the wool and is even considering mail ordering the wool itself. Her weaters were a popular item at Northville Historical Society's Tivoli arts and crafts fair this year.

Since there is a limit to the number of sweaters Smith can knit alone and the demand is so great, she feels she soon will be able to keep other qualified knitters busy.

The demand for homemade items is so great that Janet Clancy reports she has three other women helping to make bears. Mosser is considering hiring high school students to help produce more lamps.

One thing all the crafts people agree on is that they themselves want to do the finishing and assembling. They say they are certain that it is the high quality and personal touch that makes craft products so appealing.

Arts and crafts shows are becoming so popular that companies organize show circuits to put on shows in various parts of the country. Exhibitors sign up for specific circuits. The work is usually juried to keep up high standards.

There even are publications for crafts people which announce and rate such shows according to types of crafts. usual crowd size, sales generated and other significant information.

An indication of the growth in popularity in crafts for the home is the Tivoli Fair in Northville. It has grown from about 50 exhibitors a few years ago to 146. John Brugeman, president of the sponsoring Northville Historical Society, feels that the growth in quality which has happened over the years is even more significant than the growth in size.

"People are recognizing the quality in hand crafted articles that last longer." he said.

Marge Mosser summed up the appeal of crafts to their makers: "It's nice to know that you can do something you enjoy doing, even make some money off it, and have the whole family involv-

Betsy Tagami's hooked on smocking

ANN CHOWDHURY

Talk to Betsy Tagami of Northville about her grandchildren or smocking and her dark eyes will twinkle with enthusiasm.

"I was Christmas shopping for my little granddaughter last year," she says, "and saw a hand-smocked dress. "It was so expensive I thought, 'I'm going to learn to do that."" Tagami, who originally is from Hawaii, signed up for a smocking class through Farmington Hills adult education classes and admits, "I got absolutely hooked." Her interest coincided with a revival of the old form of needlework across the country. It has received as warm a reception in the Northville-Novi area as anywhere with enthusiasts joining the newly formed Southeastern Smocking Chapter of Michigan which meets monthly at the Novi Public Library. "I think this area is the perfect atmosphere for crafts. Northville is the kind of town that promotes the old ways," Tagami says.

Smocking is a form of needlework that was used centuries ago in England to shape the tunics of workmen. The simple garments were shaped by evenly gathering the yokes and cuffs to con-trol the fullness of fabric. The gathers

> She joined the Southeastern Smock-ing Chapter of Michigan which has grown from 15 to 40 members in the past year. Members range in age from young mothers to senior citizens. The organization puts out a newsletter; members display their latest smocked projects and have classes to learn new techniques and improve the standard of smocking.

> Tagami finds the most attractive thing about smocking is its versatility. You can use it for children's clothes, things for the home, purses, pillows or art objects," she says.

She also likes the fact that the smocked part of an object usually is a small inset that she can carry around with her to work on whenever she is waiting for an appointment, visiting a friend, or watching television.

According to Tagami, the results of smocking are very satisfying compared to the effort involved. Recently in-vented pleated machines ease and speed up the otherwise tedious, timeconsuming gathering process, leaving the smocker free to spend her time on the decorative stitches, the most creative part of the work.

The machines are available for just over $100 and are the only substantial investment involved. They are not ab-solutely necessary, and a pleating ser-vice is available for a small sum for anyone who only smocks occasionally or who just wants to try out the craft.

"I'm not a nick-nack person," notes Tagami, glancing around her spacious uncluttered living room, "so I like what I make to be useful." She had not been able to resist placing a dainty smocked Easter basket full of smocked eggs and a few brightly colored smocked Christmas ornaments on a side table, however.

She also shows with pride an array of children's garments she has made in the past year. The little dresses, tiny toddler outfits and romper suits all are smocked with pictorial motifs to please the wearers.

"I hardly ever stick to a pattern," she claims, "as it's so easy to be creative and change the designs to suit myself.'

Much as she loves her new hobby, Tagami owns up to one problem, "I hate to tell you, but I have six or seven garments smocked and waiting to be put together. It's so easy to get carried away with the decorative part I sometimes delay the construction!" That does not stop her from planning more projects, though, an she presently is dreaming up a design for some smocked kitchen curtains.

"People enjoy_homemade things," Tagami observes, "and I would like to think that smocking has helped to bring people together in fellowship with a common interest. In this pressure-filled world it is good to find something so relaxing, so enjoyable and so productive."

The Southeastern Smocking Chapter is planning to make smocked caps for chemo-therapy patients to wear when they lose their hair, and smocked tote bags for them to take home from the hospital. They will be donated through the American Cancer Society.

"It's something a bit cheerful for them," explains Tagami, adding, explains Tagami, adding, 'there are millions of tote bags around, but ours will have a little bit of love in them. too.'

Modern-day Christmas prepara-tions go something like this, give or take the idiosyncrasies of a given family:

Poll family members on what they want for Christmas. Make a list, check it three or four times. Dash to stores between work and chores. Fight for a parking spot. Weave your way through the crowds at malls. Search store by store to find the listed present. Wait in lines. Panic that you'll never have enough time to wrap them. Buy the tree, after fighting for a parking space, through the crowds and the traffic . . . and the rush goes on.

And all that effort expended doesn't even take into consideration the television commercialism, the floods of advertising, the chintzy glitter, the crass "gimme-gimme' attitudes. When the yuletide becomes more of a rat race than a beautiful holi-day, it may be time to bring in some of the slower, simpler, more joyful aspects of an old-fashioned Christmas.

· An old-fashioned yule could in-clude such bygone delicacies as plum pudding, homemade cookies decorated by the neighborhood children, popcorn strings, candlelit evergreens, homemade gifts that were planned and worked on for months, caroling, sleighrides, mincemeat pies . . . The quintessential old-fashioned Christmas is no doubt celebrated and displayed at two of Michigan's finest old-time institutions-Greenfield Village and the Henry Ford Museum, located in Dearborn. .At the village and museum, the Christmas season lasts from December 1-31, excepting Christmas Day, of course, said Ross Callaway, spokesperson for the institutions.

This year, they will focus on "A Changing American Christmas" in an effort to give some history to the old wavs.

There, visitors can meet the Saint Nicholas of the Victorian era. "He's a skinny Saint Nick, not the short, fat job that we're used to," Callaway said.

It seems that cartoonist Thomas Nast created the image of the modern Santa Claus. The original Saint Nick will pass out Nast's cartoons and will explain how his image changed.

-The museum will be exhibiting Christmas trees from 1850 that will visitors can even fashion their own. "We try to have visitors take part" so that it's not just a static thing.'

At the village, visitors can see more than a dozen historic houses all prepared for a Christmas past." Included will be an unadorned house from the 1750s when Christmas was purely a religious observance, as parents' house with homemade ornaments on the tree and the Wright brothers' house of 1910 with historic storebought ornaments.

"We're showing the progression of tree ornaments so you'get a cross section of it all," he said. There also will be glassblowers exhibiting their craft, a tintype photo studio and a chance to buy distinctive antique gifts.

You must pay admission to both the museum and the village. For adults ages 12-61, the cost is $8; senior citizens, age 62 and older, $7: children ages 6-12, $4: children under 6 are free.

To get to the institutions, take I-96 east, go south on Southfield Freeway. Take the Michigan Avenue exit, but follow the service drive to Village Road. Then follow

300 Dorothy Street, in South Lyon, annually displays an old-fashioned Christmas tree-with homemade ornaments, paper rings made by local children. 21 ÷

The tree will be up by the first week of December, said Theda Lyke, treasurer of the South Lyon Historic Society, and it will be surrounded by antique toys and gifts.

In Northville, Karen Hooper, of 481 Morgan Circle, traditionally makes an old-fashioned fruit cone. In Williamsburg, where the custom may have started, wooden cone-shaped frames with nails sticking out of them are sold."

Hooper uses some modern conveniences - a styrofoam ' cone and toothpicks. but the idea is the same. Apples, oranges or lemons are impaled on the toothpicks and it is topped with a small pineapple.

The fruits can be studded with cloves for an added delight to the senses, and greens can be stuck in between them to make an oldfashioned decoration.

'The reason the pineapple was used in Williamsburg is because it was a special treat and it symbolized hospitality," Hooper said. In Hartland, Kathleen Keegan readies for the holiday more than a month in advance, buying bayberryjuniper greens to make garlands and boughs.

Already she has made her traditional fruitcakes, made at home and only with pineapples, cherries, pecans and white raisins, which will be brandied until the holidays. She also has been known to make a smashing plum pudding.

In Nancy Haviland's case, the Livingston County register of deeds can only reminisce about when she had the time for, an old-fashioned Christmas.

"I made people sweaters. I would sew or knit or crochet and usually some gifts were made from the kit-"Haviland said. "But there's chen. usually not enough hours in the, day anymore to do that,"

Holly Hotel: Worth the trip

dining out DIANE KOVACS

Village of Holly should get around to giving George Kutlenios some sort of medal. Kutlenios is the enterprising young man who purchased and completely restored the historic Holly Hotel

One of these days the after it was consumed by fire in the late Seventies. Converting it into a restaurant which is earning justifiable notices as one of the state's finest new dining establishments.

The Holly Hotel's claim to being "historic" has more to it than just the age of the original edifice. Its primary claim to fame occurred when Carrie Nations took an ax to the place during the height of the temperance movement in the early part of the century.

The "Historic Holly Hotel," as Kutlenios likes to call it, is located on a short street named Battle Alley. And with the hotel as an anchor, several delightful little shops have come to life up and down the alley, making the trip to Holly potentially more than just an enjoyable dining experience.

But life revolves around the hotel. And Kutlenios has exhibited real flare for promotion by staging a variety of interesting and unusal events - an "evening with the occult" on Halloween eve, a wild game dinner in early November, Thanksgiving feasts and an "olde fashioned Christmas celebration" to name a few.

He's also brought in entertainment on Friday and Saturday nights, employing a troupe of talented young performers who stage an "Olde Fashioned Holiday Revue.'

The opportunity to see the hotel itself is worth the trip. Although most of the original furnishings were destroyed in the fire, the restoration has been completed carefully with an eye for detail.

The restaurant is relatively small, seating only 106 diners at any given time — most of them in the main dining room. The rest are accommodated in two adjoining rooms - the Pullman Room (so named because it resembles one of the famous railway cars) and the Depot Room.

The Holly Hotel, one of the state's finest

Ah, but this is supposed to be a restaurant review. And it would be wrong to linger too long on Battle Alley or the hotel itself when Kutlenios has in addition to everything else developed a very fine restaurant.

After selecting a wine from the extensive wine list, my companion and I began our meal with a tasty appetizer of mushroom caps stuffed with shrimp and covered with a cheese sauce ($4.25).

Dinners are served with soup (mushroom during our visit) and an exceptionally good dinner salad that included fresh tomatoes, large slices of mushrooms and alfalfa sprouts. The bread basket that also precedes the entrees also rated high marks with hearty chunks of homemade rye and black breads, served piping hot.

The preliminaries were apt precursors of things to come. My companion ordered the Roast Lingonberry Duck ($14.95) served in a light, sweet sauce and gave it rave reviews from the first bite.

I opted for one of the evening's specialties -Poulet Farci en Phyllo, boneless breast of chicken filled with cream cheese and a crab meat stuffing, wrapped in lightly-browned phyllo pastry and covered with a Bernaise sauce ($15.50). Truly outstanding

Although the evening's dinner had been oute ample, we found ourselves unable to pass the presentation of dessert pastries without making a selection.

My companion ordered a rich walnut cake covered with a thin raspberry topping, while I selected a marble cheesecake covered with a hot chocolate kahlua sauce. Both were excellent. And through the graciousness of our waiter and the fact that it was late in the evening when we finally got around to dessert, we also sampled a triple chocolate cake with layers of pistachio as well as a light and creamy sauvignon. The trip to Holly takes roughly an hour from my home (in Northville). And once you get off US-23, you find yourself traveling along winding country roads. It is, however, a trip well worth taking for a most enjoyable dining experience.

The Historic Holly Hotel, 110 Battle Alley, Holly. 634-5208. Open seven days per week for lunch and dinner. Liquor license. All major credit cards accepted. Reservations recommended.
