Fight continues over plans to use space at DeHoCo

By KEVIN WILSON

State legislators will receive conflicting opinions this week from Wayne County and from Northville and Plymouth townships regarding what should be done with the Detroit House of Correction.

County executive William Lucas is forwarding the final report of his Commission to Study Prison Needs, adopted January 17, recommending that DeHoCo be used as temporary housing for 1,000 state prisoners almost immediately and that it be renovated for permanent use as a medium security prison.

But Northville and Plymouth township boards of trustees were meeting Tuesday night to adopt a joint resolution stating that they are "inalterably opposed to the siting of any additional prison, penal institution or correctional facility of any type within their territorial limits."

The township resolutions continue to state that "in the event such additional institutional land use is imposed upon the populace" certain concerns must be addressed by the state.

These include:

- Allowing no temporary housing on the site;
- That only a regional prison patterned after the prototype under construction in Northville be considered at DeHoCo;
- That any institution on the site be owned and maintained only by the state;
- That a cap of 1,375 be placed on the number of prisoners housed in the

City advises industry to request annexation

City officials will invite Normac Incorporated of 720 Baseline Road, a manufacturer of machinery used in processing drill bits, to petition the state boundary commission for annexation to the city.

The firm, located just east of the cider mill, is within the township boundaries, and supervisor Susan Heintz said the township will oppose any move to annex the property to the city. City manager Steven Walters stressed that the city action, approved by council Monday night, is not an aggressive one in which the city itself seeks the annexation, but simply a notification to Normac that "we would be pleased to have them annexed to the City of Northville."

The issue arose when the firm announced plans to expand and asked the township to extend water service to its facility. Due to the geography of the area, the township water department found it impractical to do so and requested that the city extend service from its line in Baseline Road.

Walters recommended that the request be denied, however, and Normac was advised that it could obtain water if it were annexed to the city.

"Normac is located in a hollow below a bank which Griswold Road runs along," Walters stated in his recommendation to council. "There is no practical way the township could provide water or sewer service in the future. Access to Normac is on a city street maintained and plowed by the city. The city police department patrols this area and routinely passes Normac in its daily operation. In contrast, the township police department would have no cause to patrol this area, which is outside of its jurisdiction. The township fire department is also remote to this location."

"As a result, Normac receives city services by default and should logically be incorporated into the City of Northville," he concluded.

Heintz said she only learned of the issue Monday and has not yet explored whether township services could be ex-

Ward Presbyterian plans use of acreage

By KEVIN WILSON

Ward Evangelical Presbyterian Church has purchased nearly 140 acres of land at the northwest corner of Six Mile and Haggerty roads to serve the expanding needs of the fast-growing congregation.

The church has 4,500 members, and the purchase of the property in Northville Township was the result of a search for ways to relieve its crowded facilities at Farmington and Six Mile in Livonia, said David Tyrapak, chairman of the committee that selected the new site.

"The property was purchased with the intention that it will serve the congregation into the next century," said Tyrapak. "No specific plans have been made."

Possible developments for the site include new administrative buildings, a new sanctuary, Christian education facilities, athletic fields, a school or a retirement village, Tyrapak said. He cautioned that the process of determining what uses will be made of the property is just beginning and that no timetable exists for construction.

Phenomenal growth of the church congregation may be restrained due to the crowded conditions at the present facility, Tyrapak said.

"There are 4,500 members, but the numbers don't tell the whole story," he said. "If we had more space now, I imagine we'd have 5,000, maybe 5,500 in the congregation. The church is crowded, and there are totally inadequate parking facilities. Despite that problem, we average 150 first-time, new visitors every Sunday — people who have never been there before."

The site selection committee he headed explored three options, Tyrapak said: continued expansion at the present site, purchase of an existing facility (such as a vacant junior high school in Livonia) and purchase of open land.

"Although we still need immediate relief, the decision was to purchase raw land in order to be more flexible in addressing the need for more space," he

Park toboggan run starts to climb back

By B.J. MARTIN

The toboggan was waxed and ready to shoot down the well-lit, newly-refurbished toboggan run at Cass Benton Park last Wednesday. The tobogganers tucked in their arms and legs and began lurching around to make the thing take off. No use — it wouldn't budge.

Finally a chilly Wayne County Parks and Recreation worker trudged over and gave the group the push needed to careen downhill.

"Your tax dollars at work," he said, laughing. Then after a pause he added, "It's about time."

He was right about that. It had been six years since Wayne County last operated an active winter sports program at Cass Benton Park. In the meantime, buildings had deteriorated through lack of use. Workers to supervise use of facilities had been laid off.

Slowly, the park began to acquire a reputation for shoddy upkeep and — even in Northville — as a site for crime.

While nobody is claiming the park has returned to its former level of operational quality, it's apparent the county intends to get serious about rebuilding it.

"We received a $2.5 million appropriation to fund the parks for '84-'85," said Eric Reikel, the new director of Wayne County Parks and Recreation. "That's $500,000 less than we had asked for. But before last year, the appropriation was for about $1 million a year. For a 4,000-acre park system, that doesn't scratch the surface. There had to be an increase in appropriation."

Northville's share of the budget has so far been most visible at the toboggan run on the east side of Cass Benton Drive between Six Mile and Seven Mile roads. The lights for the run can be seen plainly by drivers. There are rest room and warming shelter facilities available for public use, and there is a recreation facilities supervisor on hand between 10 a.m. and 10 p.m. daily.

"Those runs are just for tobogganing," Reikel pointed out. "People can sled anywhere else there's a hill, but it won't be supervised. They'll be sled-ding at their own risk."

In communities southeast of Northville, there are more shelter stations, supervised skating, tobogganing and sledding facilities, and cross-country ski trails — again, for the first time in years.

"A lot of the improvements we've made are cosmetic," Reikel said. "But last August, when we had to start planning our winter activities, we embarked on a very ambitious winter recreation program."

"We had to get waivers from the workers' union so we could hire people seasonally," he added. "We fixed up the buildings we'd left go for a long time. When the weather improves, we're going to remove some trees, clear out underbrush and fix up picnic tables."

"The idea — the key to the whole system — is to get the parks back to an acceptable standard for people to begin using them again. Our goal is to upgrade them completely, but that's going to be a gradual process — $2.5 million may sound like a lot of money to you and me. But to operate as much park territory as we have, it's barely enough."

For years, Reikel was director of the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Department. He was hired by Wayne County when the parks and recreation department split off from control by the Road Commission last August.

"We think that by increasing activity at the parks and by increasing supervision, people will feel more secure in using the parks. If we can address their desires better, we can take more positive action."

Northville battles the deep freeze

For most local residents, last weekend's sub-zero temperatures meant frozen pipes and automobiles that wouldn't start. For some, however, the cold meant more business than they could handle.

City DPW workers clocked an 11-hour day Saturday as streets were scrapped and given extra salting.

Monday, reported DPW clerk Becky Dozier, several calls reporting frozen pipes were received. Some, like Our Lady of Victory School and the recreation building, had not previously had problems, she said. The city has about 55 water billings that are called "running water accounts" because in freezing conditions they are asked to keep water running to avoid freezing.

More than 350 calls were received Sunday and Monday for AAA service, reported Phil Rosselle of Phil's 76 Service at 130 West Main. Most came Monday morning although the station still was getting many Monday night. Most, he said, were "won't starts" with many needing tows because of that. Rosselle estimated that the station's load was 70 percent above usual Monday.

"We're six hours behind on calls," reported an employee of the Eight Mile and Taft Gas-n-Go service station operated by James Davis Monday afternoon. Batteries, other breakdowns as well as those whose cars were stuck were major reasons callers gave in seeking help.

The Super Bowl game also was credited with adding to the Monday emergency calls. "I don't think anyone went out Sunday — so all the calls came after 7 a.m. Monday," the telephone answerer reported at the station. She estimated 20-25 calls were logged then.

Station attendants, bundled up in warm gear and covering their faces with scarves, were advising motorists

Northville's Schulz anchors newscasts on Alpena station

Northville High School graduate Kelly Schulz, '80, has become a familiar face to television viewers around Alpena.

For the last three months, the daughter of West Main residents William and Betty Schulz has anchored the WBKB Channel 11 (CBS affiliate) 6 p.m. and 11 p.m. news broadcasts.

Aside from her anchor duties, Schulz produces the newscasts, rewrites copy, reports, operates video and audio equipment and edits her own video packages.

"It certainly is a high-pressure job, and it's a lot of work," she says. "But I love it. I find it very challenging."

Schulz got her foot in the door in broadcasting during her senior year at University of Michigan. During her last summer vacation at the university, Schulz was granted an internship as a reporter at ABC affiliate WGTU/WGTQ TV 29 in Traverse City.

At U-M, Schulz performed in musicals, and worked on the student radio station while maintaining a 3.4 grade point average. She graduated last year with a bachelor's degree in music and communications.

At Northville High School, Schulz was a member of the National Honor Society, a state finalist in forensics for four straight years, and performed in the band.

Schulz attributes her success to being lucky, trying hard and being persistent. As for advice for fellow future broadcasters, she says she is prepared to pound pavements, take rejection, and start out earning very little money.

Schulz's eventual career plans are to become an anchor in a major television market, such as Detroit.

AARP offers tax aid at center and library

The Plymouth-Northville American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) tax aide counselors will be assisting senior citizens and low income residents in preparation of their tax returns at no cost.

Counselors will be at the senior citizen drop in center in Northville, 501 West Main, room 216, every Tuesday from February 5 through April 9. Hours will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Sessions also are being scheduled at the Northville Public Library, 215 West Main, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. February 6, February 20, March 6 and March 20.

Those taking advantage of the free service are reminded to bring last year's return and any W-2 statements of interest, dividend or pension as well as SSA-1099.

Anyone planning to itemize deductions should bring statement of hospitalization, other than Medicare, and any related expenses such as mileage, prescription drug costs, hearing aid, denture and glasses bills.

Homeowners should bring property tax statements for 1984; renters should have the amount of rent paid and to whom as well as heating bills for November and December, 1983, and the first 10 months of 1984, states Marion Elton, tax coordinator for Plymouth and Northville.

A free Michigan Taxpayers' Guide is available to area residents. It contains information on property taxes, the property tax credit, Michigan income tax, single business tax and other tax-related subjects.

"This year's guide will assist anyone in filling out tax forms," commented State Representative Willis Bullard, Jr. (R-Oakland County), noting that "because tax laws change so often many people find it difficult to complete their own forms. This publication provides citizens with information in understandable language on the many Michigan tax laws."

The free booklet is available at local city and township offices and at many banks.

Any residents of the 60th district — the Oakland County portion of the city of Northville — can write to him at the State Capitol, Lansing, 48909, or call him at 887-8045 (his district office) to obtain a copy, Bullard said.

Denby High slates May reunion

Area residents who were members of Denby High School combined classes of 1949 and 1950 are being sought for a 35 year reunion to be held May 11.

Members of the Class of '49 should contact Dawn Ballou Krolikowski, 778-3541, while Class of '50 members should contact Sally Mann Gamble, 469-3170.

Henderson finishes basic training

Airman Charles H. G. Henderson, son of Henry B. and Beryl K. Henderson of 49016 Ridge Court, has completed Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

The airman, who is remaining at Lackland for specialized instruction in the education and training field, studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

Completion of this training earned him credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

Airman Henderson is a 1983 graduate of Northville High School.

Impact study requirement delays township rezoning

By KEVIN WILSON

Those attending could practically hear the brakes squeal when Northville Township planners were reminded of their own requirement that petitions seeking rezoning to office, commercial or industrial uses on parcels larger than five acres be accompanied by an environmental impact assessment.

What had been a race to rezone more than 200 acres of state-owned land at Plymouth Center before it is sold came to a screeching halt January 8 when Gordon Ruttan of the Wayne County Planning Commission raised the question of an impact study.

"Have you followed your own procedures to do an impact study because it's over five acres?" Ruttan asked, sending planners scrambling to review their own ordinance and its requirements. They had to admit no impact study had been ordered.

The township initiated the rezoning request on its own, at the request of Supervisor Susan Heintz. As the petitioner, the township is itself responsible for providing the impact study. While the board of trustees has authority to waive the requirement, Heintz said "this administration has taken the view that we are following our own procedures — we're not going to make exceptions for ourselves."

Planners were meeting January 8 in hopes of making a recommendation for board of trustees action at its regular meeting two days later. Heintz had hoped to have the documentation of the rezoning in hand last week as she visited Lansing to lobby for sale of the land, which the state department of mental health has declared surplus.

Heintz said she hopes legislators will push through a bill putting the land on the market in the next few weeks. Since the planning consultant has to prepare the impact study, it will be January 29 before the planning commission can make a recommendation to the board, and it will likely be February before rezoning can be accomplished.

"I was not aware of the requirement for an impact study," Heintz said. "I remembered it when Gordon asked about it, but we hadn't discussed doing one at all."

Planning consultant Claude Coates examined the township ordinance and told commissioners the township board has authority to waive the requirement, though the ordinance is set up for private petitioners and is not specific about board-initiated petitions.

"Just like the state," Coates said, "the township doesn't have to hold to its own procedures," prompting laughter in the meeting hall. Ruttan shook his head at the remark.

"We should do it," Heintz said. "We required that of the state when they had other intentions for that land — we should follow our own requirements."

Coates said at the hearing that the township's interest in rezoning the land, which is presently classified for single family housing, is keyed to the impending sale.

"We're doing the zoning change now so that if the land comes on the market, the zoning is what the township feels it should be," Coates said. While any purchaser of the property could seek a rezoning, and still could request a change despite the township action, Coates said the rezoning action would send a message to potential purchasers regarding the township's intent for the property.

Heintz noted that a potential buyer who saw the residential zoning and examined the township master plan to determine what other zonings might be acceptable would find that the master plan shows the property as "institutional/governmental use."

"We're not trying to zone out a prison — the state can do what it wants with eminent domain regardless of our zoning," Heintz said. "What we want to do is make the property attractive to developers who would put it back on the tax rolls if it is put on the market."

The proposal being considered would make that portion of Plymouth Center west of Sheldon industrial, excepting the Sheldon Road frontage, which would be zoned for office uses. The area to be zoned for office would include not only the state's Plymouth Center property, but also a portion of the Wayne County Child Development Center immediately north of the state property.

Farther east, behind the present Plymouth Center main building which will remain in the mental health system, Coates suggested an RM (multiple family residential) zoning.

Township board members authorized the order for an impact study at their January 10 meeting after Heintz explained the situation. Cost for the study was estimated at $1,100.

Tax abatements possible

Industrial development district formed

By KEVIN WILSON

An industrial development district of 8.98 acres was established by the township board of trustees January 10, clearing the way for land owner Jack Doheny to seek tax abatements for new construction on the land.

Designation of the district between Doheny Drive and Lake Success makes development within it eligible for a 50 percent abatement of property taxes for up to 12 years. The board of trustees must approve any reduction in taxes, which apply only to the improvements, not the land itself. A public hearing on Doheny's request for tax abatement is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. February 14.

"We're quite happy Mr. Doheny has chosen this route," said township supervisor Susan Heintz. "We want to keep him here in Northville."

Board members were unanimous in approving designation of the district, noting that even at the 50 percent level, property tax revenues from the development would far exceed that derived from the vacant land.

"I've been on record as being generally opposed to tax abatements," said trustee Richard Allen. "In this case, I don't have any problem with it. Mr. Doheny has a record of exceptional developments; his operations being located here have been an asset."

Doheny told board members he plans to construct a 30,000 square foot building as new quarters for Jack Doheny Supplies, Inc., including 3,000 square feet of office space and 27,000 square feet of shop, assembly area and warehouse. The firm manufactures sewer cleaning machinery and needs room to expand, he said.

Investment in the new building just north of the firm's present site on Doheny Drive was estimated at $750,000 and Doheny said he hopes to move in by June. Over the next two years, he estimates expanded operations would add five permanent jobs at the company, which presently employs eight persons. Relocation of Doheny Supplies, he said, may allow Belanger, Inc., which leases part of the present building, to expand without relocating.

Two more structures of similar size could be built on the parcel, which includes more than two acres of Lake Success surface area. Additional buildings would also be eligible for abatement, but each would be reviewed separately by the township before tax reductions are approved.

Doheny said his plans call for the new industrial park buildings to be designed as a complement to offices on the opposite shore of the lake in the city. He also owns that property and one of the two buildings.

Attorney Michael Lewis of Kerr, Russell and Weber, representing Doheny at the board meeting, said in a letter to members that Doheny is considering financing "all or part of its project through the issuance of tax-exempt Northville Township Economic Development Corporation (EDC) bonds, and National Bank of Detroit has expressed strong interest in purchasing such a bond issue."

An early draft of Doheny's request for tax abatement states that improvements to the land for the first building would cost $26,000; the building would cost $600,000; machinery and equipment including a paint booth, overhead crane, hoist, computer and heavy duty air compressor $111,000 and miscellaneous office equipment $5,000.

IRS holding refunds

Several Michigan taxpayers listed as living or having lived in the Northville-Nowi area are among 1,479 whose refund checks worth more than $673,000 were returned by the postal service as undeliverable.

The Internal Revenue Service is trying to locate these taxpayers who are still due tax refunds from the 1983 federal income tax returns.

Charles A. Parks, IRS, district director for Michigan, said the refund checks range in amounts from $1 to $19,227 and average $455.

Internal Revenue Service believes most of these taxpayers moved or changed their last names during the year, and failed to notify the postal service or IRS.

When a refund is returned by the postal service, the IRS attempts to locate the taxpayer by follow-up mail. "But there are always a small number who cannot be found," Parks said. Anyone due for a refund from the 1983 federal tax return who has not yet received it should contact the IRS.

Taxpayers may call 1-800-424-1040 for information.

Listed as local residents with undelivered refunds are:

From Northville — Kevin M. Cavanaugh, Patricia Hartt, Lynda Hennings, Patricia Lutosky, Stanley L. Polzin and Harriett Clum (also with a Farmington Hills address).

From Novi — Brad Stevens, Ernest and Marilyn Stockwell.

February memorial service planned for Crispin Hammond

Memorial services for former Northville resident Crispin Nellis Hammond are scheduled here and in Florida where he had been living. Mr. Hammond, 41, of Coral Gables, Florida, drowned while on a backpacking trip in Kauai, Hawaii, November 26.

He was born January 27, 1943, in Detroit to former Northville residents Crispin and Eleanor Hammond who now live in Cheboygan.

In 1952, he and his family came to Northville where he was graduated from Northville High School with highest honors as a National Merit Scholarship winner.

He received his engineering degree from the University of Michigan and has been working for nine years for the water and sewer department in Miami-Dade, Florida. For the last 18 months he held the position of chief engineer in the department.

In addition to his parents, he leaves a daughter Lori, 22, and a son Michael, 20, both of Miami; sisters Julia Enright of Arlington, Texas, and Peggy Meyer of Northville; brothers James Hammond of Appleton, Wisconsin, Lieutenant Colonel Gordon Hammond of Honolulu, Hawaii, and Edgar Hammond of Walled Lake.

A memorial service will be held at Christ the King Lutheran Church at 12:30 p.m. this Sunday. Mr. Hammond was a member of the church choir and had just been voted to serve on the church council.

A memorial service also is scheduled for 1 p.m. Saturday, February 2, at Faith Community Presbyterian Church at 4440 Ten Mile in Novi with the Reverend Richard Henderson officiating.

The family suggests that memorial tributes may be sent to the Fellowship and Education Wing Fund of the Christ the King Lutheran Church, 11295 Southwest 57th Avenue, Miami, 33156.

IAN M.C. ALLAN

Funeral service for Ian M.C. Allan, 67, of 18860 Jamestown Circle, was held at 11 a.m. Monday at Ross B. Northrop and Son Funeral Home with the Reverend Wallace Hostetter officiating.

Cremation followed at Grand Lawn Cemetery.

Mr. Allan died January 18 at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia.

Self employed, he operated Allan Tools in Redford Township. He was a member of the Northville Masonic Lodge.

Mr. Allan was born in Michigan July 19, 1917.

He was the father of James of Northville, Shirley Jean Butt of Brighton, Beth and Chris of Fort Lauderdale, Florida. He also leaves brothers Bill of Brighton and Ross in California as well as five grandchildren and one great grandchild.

ROSE ADAMS

Rose Adams, mother of Jack Hinman of Northville, died January 20 at Byer Hospital in Ypsilanti at age 78.

A homemaker, she was born June 14, 1906, in Massachusetts to John and Louise (Merkel) Gehring. She married Peter Adams who preceded her in death in October, 1984. She also was preceded in death by a sister and brother.

Survivors in addition to her son include two grandchildren, Elaine and Dianne.

Mrs. Adams was a member of the First Congregational Church of Westfield, Massachusetts.

A private funeral service was held with burial to be in Massachusetts. Arrangements were by Casterline Funeral Home. The family suggests that memorial tributes may be made to the Michigan Heart Foundation.

LLOYD M. PROSISE

Funeral service for Lloyd M. Prosize, 76, father of Mrs. George Merwin of Detroit, a former longtime Northville resident, was held at 2 p.m. Tuesday at Casterline Funeral Home. Father Leslie Harding, pastor of Church of the Holy Cross in Novi, officiated.

Burial was in Michigan Memorial Park in Flat Rock, Michigan.

Mr. Prosize, who had lived in Genoa Township in Livingston County, died

January 19 at Greenbriar Care Center in Howell after a year's illness.

Mr. Prosize, who was retired from Ford Motor Company, had moved to the area in 1930.

He was born February 20, 1908, in Salem, South Dakota, to Samuel and Sarah (Massie) Prosize.

In addition to his daughter, Mr. Pro-size leaves his wife Minnie (Newkirk), two sisters Ethel and Virginia, four brothers Charles, Homer, Henry and Clifford, three grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

The family suggests that memorial tributes may be made to the Leader Dog Society.

Postal rates increase Getting ready to mail 100 wedding invitations or club announcements?

Anyone planning to send any quantity of first class mail can save two cents on each piece by mailing by the middle of February.

Northville Postmaster Wallace Cates reminds patrons that first class letter rate of 22 cents will go into effect at 12:01 a.m. February 17. A 14 cent rate for post cards also will be charged.

Cates points out the rate increase is the result of recommendations from the Postal Rate Commission approved by the board of governors of the Postal Service to change rates and fees for various services.

He notes that it has been more than three years since first class rates were last raised and nearly four years for adjustments in most other rates. This increase, he explains, was necessary to offset rising costs that threaten the Postal Services' mandate under the Postal Reorganization Act to operate as nearly as possible on a break even basis.

The rate package also includes an 18 cent rate for regular presorted first class mail and 17 cents for carrier route presorted first class mail and a rate increase of 13.8 percent for third class regular bulk mail.

Stamps for the new first class rate and the new postcard rate are scheduled to go on sale at the Northville post office February 2.

It may look strange, but for winter fun, curling is the thing

By B.J. MARTIN

If some wandering extraterrestrial from an advanced civilization ever beamed down to Earth and materialized at a curling match, he'd probably decide our planet was ripe for an easy takeover.

Beginning next Wednesday, Novi Community Education will offer area residents a chance to learn the arcane skills of the old Scottish game, surely one of the weirdest-looking activities mankind has yet devised.

The Scots are renowned for their bizarre ideas for fun and games, of course. They gave us post throwing, hurling (an unbelievably savage cross between field hockey and lacrosse), golf, and of course, curling.

Maybe you've seen a curling match while flipping channels past Canadian TV broadcasts. Some guy with a broom in one hand and in his other hand something resembling a brake drum with a handle sends the latter object skidding down a narrow stretch of ice toward a bull's eye-shaped target.

While the rock, as they call it, glides along, two sweater-clad individuals frantically broom the ice in front of it while someone off-camera yells unintelligibly.

Sound like fun? Course instructor Linda Schneider, a local resident, thinks it is. "It's a very laid-back kind of sport," she says. "It's not dangerous, it isn't real physical — you're not hitting people."

"It's a team sport, yet you're kind of competing against yourself. You want to improve your skill."

Schneider will teach participants the basics of curling in a five-week session at the Detroit Curling Club, located on Drake Road in West Bloomfield. "We'll be teaching them rules, how to deliver the rock, how to sweep, and a little strategy — not a lot. It takes some time to learn."

"We'll also watch matches, see a couple of films on the sport, and we'll play a few games," she adds.

Schneider has been trained as an instructor by Curl Canada, an instruction certification agency. She and her husband, Dallas Schneider, are long-standing members of the Detroit Curling Club.

She grew interested in the sport through her husband. "He's been curling for 15 years, and I've been doing it for 10," she says. Very well, too, Mrs. Schneider might add. The couple once competed together at the national mixed curling finals in Colorado. "We didn't get too far," she laughs.

This March, the DCC will host the national mixed bonspiel (invitational) for the first time. It's an appropriate time, since the club is celebrating its centennial this year.

Directing the bonspiel will be a Northville resident, Linda Handyside. Like Schneider, Handyside is a longtime DCC member who followed her husband into the sport.

"Tom loved it," Handyside says of her spouse. "He's been hooked on it ever since a friend took him to see a match, back when we were living in Bowling Green (Ohio). He really enjoyed the strategy of the game, and I got interested in it as well."

Before it moved its home base to West Bloomfield in 1979, the DCC had been based at Ford and Forest streets in Detroit for nearly 80 years. Members volunteered their elbow grease to convert what once was a roomy indoor riding stable into the top-notch curling facility, which features a cozy dining room and bar overlooking the ice.

"It's very much a family kind of atmosphere," Schneider says. "We have people from age 10 to 80 in the club. It's not unusual on a Friday night to see a kid playing with his grandparents, everybody enjoying themselves together."

"We get members from the whole metro area. It's very nice because members have contacts and friends from all over. We're kind of a melting pot."

Schneider's course runs through March 7. There are two sessions each Thursday. The first runs from 10 a.m. to noon and the second from 7 to 9 p.m.

For more information on any Novi Community Education program, phone 348-1200. For more information about the Detroit Curling Club, phone 661-2890.

What are they doing? Here's the explanation

Curling is the national sport of Scotland, where it has been played for more than 300 years. It enjoys a popular following in Canada, and a small-but-steady cult-like circle of devotees in the U.S. Here is a brief guide to how it is played:

THE ICE: Two goals are imprinted in the ice with their center points 38 yards apart. Concentric circles surround the center point, called the tee. Between each tee and the middle line, a line called the hog line is placed.

THE STONE: Each team has eight stones. Each is squat, circular and made of granite, with a concave bottom and an iron ring on top for gripping it. They weigh nearly 40 pounds each.

THE TEAMS: Each team has four players. The skip directs his teammates from near the tee by showing them where he wants the stone placed. The vice of each team takes turns "throwing" a stone by sliding it toward the other end. The stone must be released by the thrower before he crosses the hog line nearest his end. The stone must cross the far hog line or it is removed from play. The lead and second sweep the ice before the stone according to the orders of their skip. Sweeping increases the distance the stone will travel and also affects the spin, or curl placed on it. Usually the skip throws the last two stones for his team. The last stone thrown is known as the hammer.

SCORING: If a stone touches or lies within the largest circle surrounding the tee, it may be counted as a point if there is no opponent's stone closer to the tee. When all 16 stones are thrown, an end is completed, and the teams then take turns throwing stones at the opposite tee. Usually, a match consists of eight ends, with the team accumulating the most points winning.

Canton youth seriously injured in toboggan accident

In the Township...

A 17-year-old Canton resident was listed in guarded condition Tuesday morning in St. Mary Hospital's intensive care unit following an injury sustained while tobogganing on Cass Benton Hill last Thursday.

According to township police, the incident occurred during the early morning hours January 17.

The township officer called to the scene was met by a witness who directed him to the victim.

The officer observed the victim on the ground at the bottom of the hill on the north side of Cass Benton.

The victim was on his back between two trees and was being attended by another witness. The officer noted in his report that the victim was conscious and alert but complained of pains in his back and chest area.

Community Emergency Medical Service arrived on the scene at the same time as police and care was turned over to CEMS personnel. The victim was transported to St. Mary Hospital.

A witness at the accident scene told the officer the victim ran into a tree head first while tobogganing down the side of the hill.

The township dispatcher notified the Wayne County Sheriff of the incident.

A bomb scare left on the telephone answering machine at a Seven Mile business forced township police to evacuate the building last Thursday morning.

According to the police report, the bomb scare was called into the business at approximately 4:19 p.m. January 16. A supervisor heard the recorded message the following morning and contacted police.

Captain Phil Presnell was on the scene to evacuate employees and check the interior and exterior of the building as well as the roof.

Police found nothing in their investigation.

A cash register valued at $1,000 and some $150 in cash and change was stolen from a Northville Road restaurant sometime between 8:30 p.m. January 16 and 5:30 a.m. January 17, township police report.

The complainant told police unknown subject(s) smashed the rear entrance of the business and stole the cash register from the front counter. The cash and change were inside the cash register.

...From State Police

Snow and ice on the roadways were blamed for several accidents in which drivers were injured in the past two weeks, state police said. Most injuries were minor, but in a few instances severe injuries were reported. No fatalities were reported in the Northville/Novi areas patrolled by the Northville Post troopers.

John M. Sock, 24, of Redford Township was seriously injured when he lost control of his car on westbound I-96 early the morning of January 10, striking a parked Oakland County salt truck.

Sock told police he was travelling at about 50 miles per hour during the snowfall at 1:10 a.m. when he lost control of the car near Meadowbrook Road. His car hit the salt truck, which was unoccupied and parked nearly six feet away from the concrete barrier wall between the eastbound and westbound freeway lanes.

Police said the right front quarter of Sock's car hit the right rear of the salt truck and the car separated at the firewall, leaving the hood, front wheels and engine at that point while the passenger portion continued to spin and hit the truck again near the right front fender. The second impact ruptured the fuel tank, police reported. There was no fire, but the Novi fire department was called in to wash down the scene.

Sock was transported to Botsford Hospital by Novi Ambulance. He was admitted to the hospital with serious injuries and released five days later. He was cited for careless driving.

Police are seeking a warrant for the arrest of a Brighton area resident on charges of indecent exposure. The January 11 incident occurred at a Grand River Road manufacturing facility in Novi.

The complainant, a woman who worked in the office area of the plant, told police she had to cross through the tool room to get towels. While doing so, she said, an unidentified worker called her over. One man was holding a piece of cardboard in front of another, she said. As she approached, the cardboard was moved, revealing that the second man had his clothing pulled down to his knees.

The woman reported that the suspect laughed at her, then ran away, still exposed. During their investigation, police found the man had been fired January 15 and that co-workers had told him it was due to alcoholism and sexual harassment.

State and Northville Township police worked together to arrest a 27-year-old Redford Township man on charges he had attempted to steal 53 cartons of cigarettes from the A&P grocery store on Seven Mile Road.

According to the state police report, an A&P employee was approached by the suspect, who asked for boxes. After the employee directed the man to a supply of empty boxes, he saw him putting cartons of cigarettes into one. When the suspect started toward the doorway, bypassing the cash registers, the employee followed.

When the suspect saw he was being followed, the report states, he dropped the box and ran toward the door. The employee reached for the suspect and grabbed his jacket. The man removed his jacket and continued out the door, heading for a Ford Grenada parked in the lot.

Police said the suspect evidently realized his car keys were in the jacket pocket and veered away toward Seven Mile Road. When police arrived, the suspect was not in sight.

During a search of area businesses, a township officer entered the front door of Riffle's restaurant. The suspect ran out the back, into the waiting arms of the state trooper.

Police said the suspect was cooperative after his arrest and admitted to his intent to steal the cigarettes, valued at $487.07.

Civic Concern hopes to aid family with medical bills

Although December was the busiest month since it was formed early in 1983 and severely depleted its treasury, the Northville area's emergency help organization, Civic Concern, now is rallying to help a young family with a major medical problem.

At its January board meeting last Wednesday, the Civic Concern board heard an appeal for assistance from a friend of the family.

The day after Christmas, the board of the area emergency help organization headed by C.A. Smith learned, the mother, who is 38 years old, was diagnosed as having liver cancer. Nine years ago, after the birth of her first son, she had her first mastectomy; she had the second after the birth of her second son a year and a half ago.

Because the father is self-employed and did not have insurance, the family still owes hospital bills from the surgery in 1983, which have been turned over to a collection agency by Providence Hospital, the friend told Civic Concern board. "She was doing well on treatment, but there wasn't enough money and she stopped," she said.

"Now," she said, "she is hoping that an experimental treatment being tried in California will help her. Her family has arranged loans to provide the trip, but right now there isn't money for food or utility payments."

Last week Civic Concern made a cash donation toward the utility bills and gave food help.

Explaining that was all Civic Concern could do at the moment, treasurer Ann

Roy said Monday that she "wrote one check after another" in December to give help to those unable to pay utility bills.

"Our kitty's down," she said, noting that Civic Concern also was called upon several times last year to assist Northville/Novi area families who were burned out of their homes without insurance for furniture or clothing.

The emergency help organization receives cooperation of FISH, King's Daughters and area churches. Directors include Pastor Austin Denney of Meadowbrook Christian Church, 21900 Meadowbrook Road in Novi, and his wife Nancy.

It was formed after Goodfellows, headed by Smith, continued to receive requests for help after the 1982 Christmas season. Since Goodfellows are organized to assist at Christmas only, it was suggested that Smith form a new, area organization to answer requests for help.

Roy said Monday that Civic Concern is chartered as a non-profit organization and that donations are tax deductible. It receives surplus food allocations and welcomes assistance from groups and individuals.

"We have two or three individuals who give monthly," Roy related, saying more funding would be most welcome now.

Anyone wishing to assist the family for whom help was being sought last week may send donations to Civic Concern in care of Ann Roy, Bruce Roy Realty, 105 North Center.

Our Opinions

Prison study failed on renovation issue

Political expediency rather than conveniently left some vital considerations out of the report of the Wayne County Commission to Study Prison Needs, leading to ill-advised recommendations regarding state use of the Detroit House of Correction and a county-owned building in Westland.

This purportedly far-reaching document was, from the day it was given its charge by county executive William Lucas, directed toward certain conclusions regardless of the evidence. As a consequence, it never sought out evidence in conflict with those conclusions.

A major problem with the commission report is that it fails to meet one of its charges: "Determination of a reasonable criteria for design and site selection and the impact on neighborhoods of site selection." The commission simply adopted the state department of corrections' own standards for site selection, which are part of a regional prison planning document which the legislature has never ratified. Left unexamined were criteria for prison design, an absolutely crucial element of any discussion regarding renovation of existing buildings for use as prisons.

During last year's abortive attempt by the department of corrections to have Plymouth Center for Human Development renovated for prison use, state representative Gerald Law turned up some interesting information regarding the cost of operating renovated prison space as opposed to the cost of running a newly-constructed prison. The renovated spaces, he found, are more costly to run due to energy efficiencies and, more importantly, because they require more guards to provide the same level of security. Any short-term cost savings realized by renovating buildings, then, is eaten up over the long term by added operating costs.

No discussion of this issue can be found in the Lucas commission's report. And the final recommendation list suggests renovating DeHoCo as a medium security prison. This does not fit in with the regional prison concept supported in another segment of the report. Also suggested as a renovation project is the N Building at Eloise in Westland. This county-owned structure may be available, and the county may want to find a use for it, but that doesn't support the conclusion that it should be used as a prison.

No one should be fooled by the commission's recommendations into thinking that the renovation of DeHoCo and Eloise has been studied and found to be a reasonable response to the state's critical need for additional prison space. Detroit wants to rid itself of DeHoCo and Wayne County wants to find some use for its white elephant in Westland, so these sites have been offered to the state.

The state is desperately searching for a way to get around admitting responsibility for its failure to hasten construction of prisons. The legislature has failed to support the regional prison planning document, construction of the Scott Regional facility has been delayed, and many of the leaders now screaming for prison space were nowhere to be seen years ago when a ballot proposal seeking funding for prison construction was defeated by the voters. Detroit, Wayne County and Lansing can cut as many deals among themselves as they choose, but please spare us the contrived documentation purporting to prove that they're doing anything more than scratching each others' backs.

School boundaries overdue for change

Northville Board of Education's decision last week to approve an administrative recommendation for realigning the district's attendance boundaries is both appropriate and timely. While the closing of Moraine and Cooke schools mandated redistricting, there is no doubt that such action has been long overdue.

Information provided at the January 9 public hearing and the board's last meeting clearly illustrates the need for change. Without a doubt, one of the problem areas in the district is in the former Main Street Elementary attendance area where students have an option of attending either Moraine or Amerman.

The option available to these students resulted from the closing of Main Street in 1975. To calm the public furor over closing a neighborhood school, the board of education agreed to offer the option and to bus students in the Main Street area regardless of the fact that many live within a mile and a half of their respective school.

The administration admitted last week that transporting central city students within the mile and half mark is a violation of school district policy. Such an exception to the rule not only has been an added burden to the district's transportation operation but to its pocketbook as well.

It came as no surprise that some central city residents voiced anger over the board's action. After all, they will be the most affected by the decision. However, we were somewhat alarmed at the animosity displayed at the public hearing.

At some point or another, the schism between city and township has been evident at nearly all levels. However, there has never been a distinction between Northville's city and township schools. As one resident pointed out at the public hearing, Northville is a community school district — there is no separation between city and township.

We hope negative comments made by some city residents were unintentional. Northville's reputation as a quality school district has been maintained through the support of the entire community. This support needs to continue — especially during this time of considerable change.

The school board's decision to maintain the district's open attendance policy best exemplifies the district's confidence in its total program. Parents who believe their child will receive a better education in a city school rather than a township school — or vice versa — will be sadly disappointed.

Listening to readers

by Kevin Wilson

One thing a writer learns fairly quickly in this business is that there's no rational means of predicting, prior to publication, how readers will react to a particular piece.

Tell them, on the front page, that the state expects to build a prison next door or print an editorial suggesting that Coleman Young is less than the two-headed monster most suburbanites believe he is, and no one says a word. But tell the story of a lost cat or toss off a cheap one-liner in a column and you can't turn around without someone offering a comment about it. It was the latter deed that reminded me of this fact of journalistic life in the past two weeks.

On January 9 in this column I tossed out a few off-the-cuff remarks in the form of "lists" in what were intended as a light-hearted departure from my more usual pontificating. That piece of fluff has drawn more reaction than anything I've written for the paper in maybe six months. You'll look in vain for letters to the editor dealing with that column, but trust me, people responded. I've been unable to go anywhere in town without someone saying something about it, and one thoughtful reader directed a letter to me personally politely taking me to task for its shortcomings.

And there were shortcomings. The lists were basically an accumulation of column ideas that fell short. For example, there was mention of sighting a deer on the bike path adjacent to I-275. I tried but failed to make a full column out of that. The sighting raised dozens of questions in my mind: Did anyone else see it? What was a deer doing there? Did it find its way back to safer environs unharmed? Judging by its speed, it must have been terrified. What does that say about us and what we are doing to what had been, prior to the past decade, a largely rural area? How do we reconcile our desire for open space with our insistence on convenient vehicular travel?

Frankly, I had more questions than answers and couldn't make a column that made sense out of it. So I tossed the simple fact out and figured I'd let readers think about it for themselves. Many came up with the same questions I did, and asked why I had treated the incident so lightly.

More commented about the last item in the column — a jesting suggestion that churches put statues of famous Americans on their lawns for July 4 to see if the ACLU would react. Many thought that was an amusing comment on the organization's suit against the City of Dearborn seeking removal of a Nativity scene from the lawn in front of city hall. When folks commented about it, I merely nodded acknowledgement. Those who spoke with me directly said it was funny. But I could sense there were others who didn't take it so lightly, though they didn't say anything. And I was uneasy about it from the moment I wrote it.

That little sentence was the big finish to the column — the kind of zinger that I expected would go over well. Problem was, it didn't really reflect my own opinion of the ACLU action. It pandered to what I knew from conversation around town was a prevailing local attitude toward the ACLU and anyone else who saw a threat in the popular expression of Christian faith on the part of a city government.

It was a lopsided summation of another failed column idea. That column would have made clear that I thought the ACLU had the right idea but is often needlessly confrontational and self-righteous. It would have asked if having colored lights on Northville's township and city halls, or in dozens of downtown areas including Northville's, were not as serious an issue as a Nativity scene. It would have wondered if a display of Christmas nostalgia at a government-funded library or museum comes under the same umbrella. It would have suggested government-funding either be offered to all faiths or to none, and contemplated the idea of making public space available to all applicants.

The letter writer, who made clear his intentions to remain anonymous, basically suggested I put more thought into these things before I print them. Usually, I do. I only wish that doing so would bring the same sort of reader response we get when we goof.

"Why don't you ever write about sex in your column?"

We were watching television when she asked the question, and my attention was divided between "Miami Vice" and the crossword puzzle.

"What?" I asked, not sure I had heard correctly.

"I mean it," she responded. "Why don't you ever write about sex in your column?"

"Haven't you heard what's being going on this week? Somebody wrote a letter to Ann Landers, saying she would prefer just to be hugged and could skip the act entirely.

"So Ann Landers polled her readers, and 72 percent of them agreed with the lady who wrote the letter. They said they'd like to be hugged and could do without the act very nicely, thank you.

"I'm surprised you haven't heard about it. It was front page news in all the papers, and every columnist in America is writing about it. Mike Royko is even starting his own poll of men, asking what they think. So why don't you ever write about sex in your column?"

"We've got a family newspaper," I responded finally. "When people pick up our newspaper, they can be assured that they won't be subjected to all that lurid type of sexy stuff which the metro dailies use to lure readers.

"Haven't you noticed how often the dailies put that sex stuff on the front page? Editorial integrity is a joke to anyone who pays attention. Let Vanessa Williams pose nude in Penthouse and you can bet the dailies will run the story above the fold on Page One.

"If one of those brothels in Nevada goes up for sale, you can just about bet the dailies will run an in-depth analysis somewhere on the front page.

"I may be wrong, but I still have confidence that legitimate news is enough to sell newspapers, and it's not necessary to resort to all that sexy sensationalism to attract readers."

I finished my little speech and looked over to see her reaction.

"That's what I like about you," she smiled. "A man of principle. Why don't you give me a little hug?"

Confessions of an LP junkie

by B.J. Martin

What shoes are to women, records are to me.

No, I don't wear them on my feet. I'll explain. You know that sheepish look a woman gets when she's asked how many pairs of shoes she owns? You don't? Well, ask one. I'll wait here.

There. See what I mean?

I confess it. I'm no different. Only instead of bonded strips of leather to shield my feet, I get cravings for grooved black plastic disks with holes in the middle. I can't resist them. I don't understand how people can.

I know people who think nothing of spending a thousand bucks on a stereo system, but won't spend ten dollars on something worthwhile to play on it. To me, this is something like buying specially-imported Danish crystal and serving your guests Boone's Farm Apple Red. I've got nothing against Boone's Farm, mind you. I just use my Yogi Bear mugs to serve it in, that's all.

How does a hopeless record junkie describe the rapture of ripping the vinyl plastic covering from a shiny new cardboard record jacket? Of listening to the static particles crackle as the gleaming black petroleum product is eased from its sleeve? Of gingerly lowering the disc onto the turntable as if it were the last card in a card-castle? Of watching the needle descend auspiciously and waiting, waiting for that soft "pop" as the needle clicks neatly into the groove. And then, all at once...

... There it is. The sound human beings produced in another time and place, all there for your very own listening pleasure. Who? Where? When? There it is — right there on the jacket! You trace the credits with your trembling finger. A string quartet in Stuttgart in 1978! The Beatles in London, 1969! Elvis Presley in the Memphis Sun studios, 1955! Hank Williams in Nashville, 1945! Louis Armstrong and King Oliver just before Black Friday, 1929!

For 20 minutes per side, you can close your eyes and completely re-create the time, place, the musicians' frame of mind, even what was going through the composer/songwriter's head.

I've gotten to the point where I don't even care what type of music is on, as long as it has that sonic impact. I get the same chills from a scratchy monaural 45 rpm single by a crack rhythm section locking into a groove as I get from the opening bars of a good piano concert.

to recorded on a quadrophonic graphic-equalized Dolby digital half-speed master laser disc.

Wait a minute, that's not quite right — I don't get the same chills, I get the same amount of chills. Good country music makes my ears buzz, my throat dry and my eyes wet. Good classical music makes my diaphragm tremble and my shoulders get goosebumps. Good jazz makes my cranium vibrate like a La-Z-Boy and my hands twitch. Good rock music does all of this at once and I can only listen to it in moderation.

As you no doubt surmise, I'm a real barrel of laughs once you get me near a stereo. Or a record store. More than once, I've had to ignore the dimmed lights and the drumming fingers of sales clerks as I pored through the half-price bargain bins trying to decide between Bach's Toccata and Fugue in D Minor and Debby Boone Sings Prince.

In that spirit, I would like to make a modest proposal: that we canonize Thomas Alva Edison and make him the patron saint of music. He's done more for it than any other human being. I'll even forgive him for the unspeakable damage his greatest invention has done to my checking account.

To the Editor:

The residents of Allen Terrace want the community to know that, no matter how low the temperature was last weekend, there's no deep freeze in Allen Terrace.

Caring and sharing is very much alive and well at Allen Terrace.

Due to several of our residents — masterminded by Kay Lee, (we) held a spontaneous get together in the Activities Room on Sunday afternoon. Coffee, cake, crackers and cheese, several goodies brought by residents to share, lots of good conversation and hilarity, good music in the background and a fire in the fireplace.

On Monday, due to no nutrition program, our dear friends and neighbors put together a luncheon which was served for those who cared to join — this at no cost.

Thank you, dear ones, for caring and sharing.

County GOP to meet

Wayne County Republicans who were elected and appointed precinct delegates in and following last year's August 7 election will meet in this Tuesday's (January 29) Wayne County Convention to elect delegates and alternates to the Republican State Convention.

Twenty-nine delegates and 29 alternates to the state convention will be elected, in accordance with the Michigan Election Law, at the County Convention, which will take place at 7:30 p.m. at Plymouth Township Hall, 42340 East Ann Arbor Road.

The state delegates will be chosen from specially-created districts. Delegates to the County Convention will caucus in the following jurisdictional areas and shall elect the following total number of state delegates and alternates, according to the districts specified:

Northville Township — three, City of Northville — one, City of Plymouth — three, Plymouth Township — seven, Livonia — 15.

Vacancies from any state delegate district may be filled by a nomination made by other county delegates from within the appropriate jurisdictional area and confirmed by a vote of the entire County Convention. Any vacancies not so filled shall be filled on an at-large basis by a vote of the entire County Convention.

Vacancies for any county delegate may be filled with Republicans from those units who are registered electors, but only by action of the entire convention.

The Republican State Convention, which will take place February 16-18, is held for the purpose of electing the state party officers: chairman, first vice-chairman (who will be of the opposite sex of the chairman), second vice-chairman, third vice-chairman (who when elected shall not have attained the age of 25), fourth vice-chairman, fifth vice-chairman (who when elected shall have attained the age of 60) and sixth vice-chairman.

Guitar concert slated at Madonna

A Classical Guitar Concert will be held at Madonna College at 3 p.m. Sunday featuring Madonna instructor Helene Jablonski and guest Michael Casher.

Having performed in the Detroit area for the past five years, Jablonski and Casher combine their talents to provide a program with a wide history of musical expression including works by Bach, Sor, Scheidler and Granados.

In addition to instructing at Madonna,

Jablonski teaches guitar at the Herb David Guitar Studio in Ann Arbor. She's studied with Joe Fava, Matthew Mischakoff and Manuel Lopez Ramos. Casher, who teaches private lessons in his home, has studied with Matthew Mischakoff, Manuel Lopez Ramos and Robert Guthrie.

The concert will be held in Kresge Hall on the Madonna campus. There is a $1 fee.

Battle over DeHoCo use opens a Lansing front

area; and a legislative ban be placed on additional institutional uses of any kind in the two townships.

Northville Township supervisor Susan Heintz said the joint resolution was prompted by meetings in Lansing last week between local leaders and state legislators. Heintz and Plymouth Township supervisor Maurice Breen met with state Senator Harry Gast Jr. (R-St. Joseph), the new chairman of the joint capital outlay committee. That committee must approve expenditures on new prisons.

"Senator Gast asked us to adopt a concurrent resolution stating, if in fact we have objections and what exactly those objections are," said Heintz.

She and Breen, she said, also met with Senate majority leader John Engler (R-Mt. Pleasant) and representative J. Michael Busch (R-Saginaw), the house minority leader to present their case against state use of DeHoCo.

The townships are up against some heavyweight opposition, though, including the chief executive of their own county. In its final form, Lucas' commission recommendations were altered to meet the desires of the state department of corrections, according to county commissioner Mary Dumas (R-Livonia).

Heintz and Dumas drafted a minority report which is appended to the commission document, objecting to the commission recommendations to use DeHoCo on a temporary basis and eventually construct a new regional prison on the site.

The latter recommendation, however, was changed at the last minute in response to a request from Bill Kime of the state department of corrections, said Dumas.

"What they did was amend the section when corrections said they didn't want to build a new prison there, but that they would rather renovate DeHoCo as a medium security prison," she said. "It would mean they would reconstruct or rehabilitate the existing buildings rather than build a regional prison. Naturally, I dissented as did David Lelko (township manager, who was representing Heintz while she was in Lansing.)"

Dumas said she and Lelko stated that they agreed with 90 percent of the commission report but had to dissent from the recommendations regarding DeHoCo on the basis that the Northville/Plymouth area is already saturated with state institutions and that the use of DeHoCo would violate the state's own planning documents by placing nearly 1,400 prisoners within one square mile.

"But (the report) is going up in that form, going to the governor and the legislature, recommending rehab of DeHoCo," Dumas said.

While the battle over long-term use of DeHoCo rages on, Heintz noted there is a more immediate concern regarding the proposal to house prisoners temporarily on the site. Discussion has included having Detroit continue to operate the facility and lease space to the state until legislative approval is given for an outright purchase.

"Plymouth Township has a real problem with that," Heintz said. "There has been a terrible walkaway problem with the way it's being run now, and then they start talking about continuing the same way but with state felony inmates."

"Some people in the department of corrections seem to think they can transfer the operation from Detroit to the state without legislative review or approval," she said. "Maurice Breen and I don't think that they can, and we're getting our legislators to make sure it doesn't happen that way."

City suggests annexation

tended to the area in question.

"There's two sides, of course, to any story," said Heintz. "They haven't filed the papers yet. The township position will be that we're going to be against it — we'd be against any removal of territory from the township. Now, we're going to take a closer look at it to see what can be done about servicing that area."

Council voted unanimously to have Walters notify both the township and Normac that water service would be offered the firm only if it were annexed to the city. Mayor Paul Vernon said he had instructed Walters to notify Heintz prior to the meeting of his recommendation.

"The recommendation of the city manager is well-intended," said Vernon. "I understand there will probably be some resistance from the township. In a similar situation, we would probably feel the same way."

If Normac follows the manager's suggestion and petitions for annexation to the city, the petition would go to the state boundary commission. Public hearings would be conducted where the petitioner, township and city would state their cases before the commission, which would then make the final decision.

to add a can of dry gas to their tanks as they filled up Monday.

The telephone was ringing steadily at Long's Plumbing. Lois Long reported close to 50 calls Monday from residents with frozen or broken pipes.

"They're still coming in, and I expect we'll hear more from those whose frozen pipes break," she said. "We repair the broken pipes as best we can," she added.

The firm, she said, uses heat guns and electric thawing devices, on frozen pipes. She said she was advising callers with frozen pipes to apply heat to them and to open doors under vanities.

If pipes are not in the walls, she said, heat tapes can be effective. When heat is applied to frozen pipes, she cautioned, it is important to have the water tap open.

Northville was one of many school districts in the tri-county area closed Monday due to the severe cold temperatures.

Superintendent George Bell said he made the decision to close schools around 9:30 p.m. Sunday in light of the sub-zero temperature readings.

The superintendent noted that while transportation employees started buses over the weekend, temperatures proved too cold for students standing at bus stops and those walking to and from school.

No delivery problems were reported by the Northville post office Monday. Mail carriers were getting through their routes. However, the post office said more than the usual number of calls as residents wanted to know if there would be delivery. Martin Luther King Jr. day, the office said, will not be a postal holiday until next year.

But there was one group of citizens that actually enjoyed the situation created by the frigid weather: Northville senior citizens at Allen Terrace got together both Sunday and Monday to share food and friendliness — and even wrote The Record to tell how great it was (see letter to the editor.)

said. "At present there are no plans to dispose of the present facility," Tyrpak stressed, noting that priorities for development of the new property are not yet established.

"Some would say let's build a sanctuary first," Tyrpak said. "Others say we have a greater need for more administrative space. I would imagine that a sanctuary would be near the top of a priority list, but there is no ordering of priorities as yet."

With purchase of the land in December, the site search committee was dissolved and replaced with a site development committee, Tyrpak said. He is a co-chairman of that committee, which may be designated a site development council to coordinate the work of seven committees with roughly 50 members who are studying issues related to use of the Northville Township property.

"We have retained the services of rather prominent site planners — Johnson, Johnson and Roy of Ann Arbor," Tyrpak said. The firm does site planning work for the University of Michigan and other large institutions worldwide, he explained. A meeting to launch the site planning process took place last week, he said, with church leaders discussing their needs.

Two major developments — a Christian school offering K-12 or high school education, and a retirement village — are definite possibilities under discussion, Tyrpak said.

"In terms of how to use 140 acres, which is a very large parcel of land, a retirement village is a definite possibility," Tyrpak said. "When I speak of Christian education facilities, I'm speaking of ongoing classes for church members on Wednesday evenings and Sunday mornings. And we do need more space for that."

"However, it is possible to expand to K-8 or K-12, to someday have a Christian school on the site," he continued. "As far as a high school goes, there are several other Christian elementary schools in the immediate area."

Local Girl Scouts begin cookie sales Friday

Dieters beware. Beginning this Friday, local Girl Scouts will be taking cookie orders for such delectables as Thin Mints, Peanut Butter Patties, Caramel deLites and Shortbreads.

Heading this year's sale locally is Sharon Leannais of 43411 Galway, one of 37 area cookie chairmen.

Nearly 9,000 Brownie, Junior, Cadette and Senior Girl Scouts in the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council (of which Northville is part) will be taking cookie orders January 25 through February 15.

Deliveries will be made March 4-16. Cookie prices have remained firm at $1.75 per box. Each box of cookies sold provides a 98-cent contribution to Girl Scouting.

In addition to Pecan Chocolate Chips, Peanut Butter Sandwich, Thin Mints, Peanut Butter Patties, Shortbread, and Caramel deLites, a new variety has been added to this year's list of cookie favorites.

Lemon Pastry Cremes, a delicate pastry cake filled with lemon creme and frosted with a pastry glaze, is new this year.

Packaging also is a new feature with pull tabs on each side of the box.

A nutritional information guide is provided on the side of the box for those who wish to know. It even includes a calorie count.

Need a maid?

Business is brisk for local house-cleaners

By SHARON ROSE

Hate housework? You're not alone. According to a variety of cleaning services consulted locally, business is brisk.

And whether you prefer a team of anonymous cleaners to whisk through your happy home in something under an hour, or an individual cleaner to spend two to four hours making the homestead shine, you won't have any trouble finding someone to oblige you.

An old-fashioned maid like grandmother had, who polished the silver, cleaned out cupboards and even finished up the ironing, is a tad harder to find, if not altogether extinct.

For many people, a home is their most expensive possession, and common sense dictates the necessity of good maintenance if only for the purpose of resale value.

By its very nature, housework is pretty tedious stuff, no matter what those daytime TV ads promise. In order to be effective and efficient, a homemaker must do routine cleaning at least weekly, depending upon traffic and use. A badly neglected bathroom or kitchen (please pass the gas mask) is not only a discouraging sight, but can take two or three times longer to spruce up than one which is regularly maintained.

A number of options are available to the homeowner who wants help, and the best bet is to check out want ads, look through the Yellow Pages or consult acquaintances for recommendations. Don't expect The Brady Bunch's Alice to show up on your front porch.

Mini Maid is a franchised cleaning business based in Georgia and owned in Oakland County by Gilma and Dave Truesdell and his brother Tom Truesdell. Owners are required to participate in a week of training in Georgia to learn the standardized, waterless cleaning method. They employ teams of four cleaners, each of whom has a specific responsibility, and can visit seven or eight homes in a day.

"It's an interesting, challenging business," said Gilma. "I think that with the organizational method we have, we can do a better job. My cleaners do the same thing all the time; they don't change jobs. They spend one hour in a home, then have a break between homes so their energy levels stay high."

Gilma cited an instance when a gentleman had his home cleaned as a surprise anniversary gift for his wife, and another occasion in which a woman had her sister's home done just before some out-of-town relatives arrived for a visit to attend a family wedding.

Daisy Maids is a fully incorporated Michigan business based in Novi. Owner Joyce Chmel said she always had friends who cleaned "and everyone was booked solid."

"I was interested in running a business," she continued. "One week I was baking cookies ... the next I was calling lawyers and accountants. I began on October 1 and by mid-December I had a waiting list of customers."

Chmel says her biggest problem is finding help. "It's good part-time work. If I could find 10 homemakers who have nothing to do a couple of mornings a week..." she sighed.

Deborah Choche is an independent cleaner. When she lost her auto-related job five years ago, she decided to go into something with more flexible hours so she could return to school and work on a degree.

"I was working 50 to 60 hours a week and paying my sister to clean for me. I loved to come home on those days," Choche said. She and her sister formed a partnership, designed a flyer and called themselves, "Clean-a-Holics."

"We haven't used that name for awhile, though. My sister has gone on to a nursing career, and for the last two years I haven't advertised at all. Once I got started, I operated on referrals."

Choche likes to meet and interview her customers before she begins a job so she can find out what their expectations are. She has a list of do's and don'ts that closely match other cleaning services, but if a customer wants something special, it can be negotiated.

"All my customers are extremely considerate. They're nice people and appreciative of what you do," she explained. "With a maid service, you'd never know who was coming. I think people feel better about knowing the same person is cleaning all the time. It's a little more personal."

How much can you expect to pay to delegate the household chores to a maid? Prices quoted recently ran from $25 (generally for a small apartment) to $50 (large colonial), and were based on size of the home, expectations of the owner, and sometimes even the decorating scheme (early American curves, ruffles and knick-knacks are much more time consuming to clean than modern straight edges, chrome and glass). Some services charge slightly more for the first visit.

With some variation, this is what a homeowner can expect a cleaning service or maid to do — dust and vacuum all rooms, sweep and wash tile floors, completely clean bathrooms, scour sinks, clean doorwalls and outsides of appliances, change linen and possibly polish furniture.

Most workers bring their own equipment and some prefer to use their own cleaners. For the most part, they will not move heavy furniture, do laundry, or care for pets, plants or children. No one washes windows.

Services will not substitute jobs, with good reason. Their estimates are based on time, and any new or out-of-the-ordinary chore is bound to throw off the schedule. Cleaners are trained to start at one end of the house and keep going till they walk out the door.

They have all their equipment at their fingertips, and there is no backtracking, answering phones, smoking or eating. No wonder they can accomplish what you do in half the time.

If you want your maid to polish the silver and skip the dusting, or clean the oven (good luck!) instead of a bedroom, your best bet is to find an independent cleaning person. A maid you pay directly and with whom you develop a more personal relationship may be more willing to bargain or do extra chores for a bonus.

One resident confessed that her treasured cleaning lady would do almost anything. Yes, even windows. Needless to say, she refused to divulge the dear woman's identity.

What are the pitfalls of cleaning for a living? Aching backs, dishpan hands and an occasional run-in with a cranky pet.

One maid described the time a customer's pet iguana leaped out of its terrarium and ran across the room she was vacuuming. The 1½-foot lizard sat in a corner hissing as she left.

Mini Maid can be reached at 349-7490. Daisy Maids' phone is 349-8960. Deborah Choche says she's booked solid, but will take names for a waiting list — 397-0704.

THE INDUSTRIAL COTTAGE DRAPERY SHOP, Gallery, Boutique opened recently at 115 East Lake in South Lyon under the ownership of Nelson and Rachael Turnage of Detroit. Draperies have been a family business with Nelson Turnage's family since his grandfather, Luther W. Turnage, opened a shop in Detroit in 1928.

The South Lyon store, managed by Rachael Turnage, features custom-made draperies, curtains, bedspreads, dusters, pillowshams, decorator pillows, tablecovers, Austrian, Roman and balloon shades. In addition, the shop accepts art works, crafts and antiques on a consignment basis. Trims, workroom supplies, drapery hardware and "hard-to-find" parts as well as custom fabricating of bay and curved rods are also part of the offering at the new shop.

"We believe your window treatments should provide beauty, style, long life, easy care, thermal insulation, privacy and light control at a good price and we guarantee our workmanship for five years," Rachael Turnage commented. "We do sales, service and installation. Our motto is, 'We sell the best and repair the rest.'"

MICHIGAN ARTIST SUPPLY at 317 North Lafayette in South Lyon is offering picture framing classes from 7:30-9:30 p.m. starting January 22 for six Tuesdays.

Instruction will be given in professional framing techniques, mat cutting, mounting, glass cutting, assembly, needlepoint framing, and wood and metal frame cutting.

A special-extended discount for students will be allowed during the classes. Rates for classes are $30 for one person and $50 for couples. For more information or to register call 437-5404.

J.J. ZAYTI TRUCKING, INC., of Northville was low bidder on a project in southern Florida. The announcement was made by James J. Zayti, president.

The firm submitted the low bid on Raiderville Improvement Area — Phase II in Palm Beach County, Florida.

The company, a local firm since 1947, is an interstate contract carrier. Its asphalt division was established in Okeechobee, Florida in 1983.

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY has announced the appointment of South Lyon native Richard T. Bourns as manager of the Electronic Media Manufacturing Division, Mass Memory Division.

Bourns joined Eastman Kodak Company in 1958 and his most recent position with the company was manager of Electronic Media Products.

Bourns has a master's degree in chemical engineering from Michigan State University. He is a member of the Society of Professional Scientists and Engineers and the American Institute of Chemical Engineers.

He currently resides in Spencerport, New York.

BERNIECE M. PETERSON of Peterson Realty Company in Northville has been elected to a one-year term on the board of directors of the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors and its multiple listing arm, MLS.

Jerome A. Delaney of Weir Manuel, Snyder and Ranke in Plymouth will serve as 1985 secretary of the two organizations.

THE NOVI HIGH SCHOOL Marching Band performed at the 1985 Detroit Auto Show which was held at Cobo Hall in Detroit last week. The band also participated in the 1984 show.

Drumming up excitement for the show (above) are members of the band with Marty Feldman of Marty Feldman Chevrolet in Novi.

The 1985 Auto Show featured more than 500 new cars and trucks, the most ever according to auto show officials.

LAMPE COMMUNICATIONS, Inc., a public relations agency specializing in business-to-business marketing communications, has relocated from Orchard Lake to the Riker Building in Pontiac.

President Seth Lampe said the move was made to be "where the action is."

"Most impartial observers can see the strong signs of growth and investment in Pontiac, and we are excited about getting in on the ground floor," said Lampe. "We also want to project our image of independence and creativity by the offices we occupy."

Lampe added that the refurbished high-rise also offers very high quality offices at a cost effective price and, most importantly, is different. "After looking at lots of buildings, we decided that we did not want to move into just another two- or three-story office cracker box spaced at regular intervals along a main road," Lampe said.

Realtors' group reports 12.9 percent sales gain

Year-end statistics from the Metro MLS showed its 3,062 Realtor and Realtor Associate members increased sales by 1,600 units in 1984 over 1983 figures.

Representing a 12.9 percent gain, the 13,967 units sold gave the multiple listing service its best sales year since 1979 and a 65 percent gain over the 1982 recession year.

Metro MLS found listings declining some two percent last year with the percentage sold showing a healthy 6.8 percent jump, indicating that the average home was remaining on the market for a shorter period than in 1983.

Average sales price during the year was $58,081, just $5 more than the average in 1983. The highest monthly average came in December at $60,256 — a possible signal that home prices will show more substantial increases in 1985.

The peak sales month for the year was May when 1,492 homes were sold at an average price of $59,478.

Conventional mortgages, including strong use of those with adjustable rates, were restored as the most popular method of financing. The peak was reached in March with 60.2 percent of sales involving conventional mortgages. Use of land contracts, which were employed for 29.5 percent of sales in July, dipped to 22.5 percent in December.

The sales increase by Metro MLS members in 1984 was well spread throughout its 1,600 square mile territory covering Northwest Detroit and major portions of Wayne and Oakland counties.

The greatest improvement was found in Livonia where 154 added sales brought the 1984 total to 1,403. Other communities showing strong gains were Westland (up 144 units), Southfield (an increase of 123 units), Farmington/Farmington Hills (up 115 units), West Bloomfield Township/Orchard Lake (up 84 units), Plymouth/Plymouth Township (up 58 units) and Royal Oak (up 52 units).

With Dearborn Realtors joining Metro MLS, sales in Dearborn and Dearborn Heights were reported at 1,404 for the year. Sales in Detroit showed a slight decline but ended the year at 2,151.

Social Security System requires status reports

As the new year begins, Social Security officials are issuing a reminder that you must report if:

- You move.
- You start or stop working or the amount of your earnings changes.
- Any beneficiary dies or becomes unable to handle benefits.

• You are confined to a jail, prison, penal institution or correctional facility for conviction of a felony.

• A person for whom you are filing or who is in your care dies, leaves your care or custody, or changes addresses.

• Your marital status changes — by marriage, divorce or annulment of marriage.

• You have cash, bank accounts, bonds, property other than your home, or other belongings totaling $1,600 or more ($2,400 or more if you are married and living with your spouse), beginning January 1, 1985.

To report these changes and any other changes that affect your SSI payment, contact your local Social Security office. You can report by phone, mail, or in person. Phone numbers and addresses are listed in the telephone book under Social Security Administration.

Social Security officials state that changes should be reported as soon as they happen. If they are not reported within 10 days after the month they happen, a penalty may be assessed.

We helped the Torturos when fire destroyed their home. Who can you turn to?

The Torturos weren't covered by any insurance. Red Cross found them a place to stay. We gave them food, warm jackets and winter boots.

Most people think it takes a major disaster like a flood, a hurricane or an earthquake for the Red Cross to respond. But Michael and Phyllis Torturo know differently. Their Red Cross disaster relief didn't stop with just food, clothing and shelter. We helped them re-establish their source of income.

Then showed them how to use those funds to obtain a trailer home for their family.

What if the next fire in town destroys your home? Who can you count on to lend a helping hand? You can count on us.

We'll Help. Will You?

Car heaven

Car-crazy reporter Kevin Wilson leans on the new Volkswagen Jetta (above). He confesses that the picture at right inspires lust in his heart — not for the model, but for Chrysler's new LeBaron GTS. When even Buick displays race cars again, it must be okay to love cars again. Photos by Steve Fecht

First-timer gets an eyeful in guided auto show tour

By MICHELE M. FECHT

Had I known my first trip to the Detroit Auto Show would result in this brief and unenlightened expose, I'm not so sure I would have gone along for the ride.

Actually, I enjoyed the auto show (much to my surprise) — thanks to the guided tour I received from Kevin Wilson, our resident auto authority.

Going to the auto show with Kevin is like touring Antietam with Bruce Catton (or would have been as the award-winning Civil War author passed away several years ago).

As long as I've worked at The Record, Kevin's desk has been cluttered with seeds of auto magazines. He's the only writer I know who hordes the latest press releases from car companies.

However, one does not realize the extent of a car buff's enthusiasm until placed in an entire room full of chrome, glass and rubber.

Upon entering the show at Cobo Hall, I had the feeling I should be wearing sunglasses. The glare off the shiny new cars only is equalled by the shimmering evening gowns worn by countless mannequin-like models.

Without even glancing at his press kit or one of the brochures put out by the auto manufacturers, Kevin begins rattling off vital statistics.

Before I know it he's describing the intricacies of turbo engines and is explaining things like aerodynamics. About the only response I could muster was "Oh, really."

I confess to knowing virtually nothing about cars. In fact, I don't even drive them December through the end of March (believe me, cars and snow don't mix).

Separating the automobile idiots from those who really know cars is a simple task — particularly at an auto show.

While Kevin is checking out engines and the other stuff under the hood, I'm looking at how many gadgets there are on the dashboard and the upholstery design on the seats.

I can't understand why Kevin rolled his eyes everytime I mentioned that a car was "cute."

I don't mean to make this a sexist thing. There are many women out there who make it their business to know about cars. Just as there are many men who leave the car know-how to mechanics.

However, I am not among the enlightened. Hey, don't sell me too short. I pump my own gas — once or twice a year.

I did find one thing that almost anyone can understand — the sticker price.

As we toured Ford's luxury cars, I exclaimed, "Hey, this car talks to you." For $26,000 it ought to.

It's depressing when a so-called "mid-priced" car exceeds your annual income. And that's only the base price. If you're interested in a rear view mirror, steering wheel and hubcaps you'll have to take out a bigger loan.

Having attended my first Detroit Auto Show, I can honestly say I thoroughly enjoyed myself. Just being able to sit behind the wheel of a Saab Turbo is worth the admission price. "Drool on the seats, Michele, and they'll make you buy it." Cute, Kevin, real cute.

For those who are bored, bored, bored with cars — fear not. There also is authentic Mackinac Island fudge for sale.

How appropriate.

Reflections BEJECTIONS

on the Auto Show

By KEVIN WILSON

There was ritual to be followed here.

Dad took me to my first Detroit Auto Show before I'd ever been to school. Vivid memories survive from when I was age 6 or 7 and already stealing his copies of Road & Track or Sports Cars Illustrated before he could finish reading them. Corvairs and the original Mustang on pedestals in Cobo Hall are the first images that come to mind when January rolls around.

You always park on the Cobo Hall roof. Never mind that you always go on the day of the first big snow of the new year. Never mind that the wind whips off the river at 25 bone-chilling miles per hour. You've gotta drive that spiral ramp, stare at the lighted buildings and test the severity of winter by how much ice is on the river.

In the past 15 years, I've missed only two of these things — once I was at college in the Upper Peninsula, the other time the doctors wouldn't let me out of the hospital before it was over. Neither year ever felt quite right.

Start with the Fords. Originally, this was because Dad never liked Fords and wanted to get it over with first. (Fix Or Repair Daily, he used to say). Later, it was because Ford had race cars — LeMans-winning Ford GT Mark VII's, Indianapolis racers, dragsters — and the kid had an all-consuming passion for racing.

Besides, that's the way the show is always laid out — Ford, Chevy and Dodge right near the entrance, imports near the exit where tired visitors may decide to go home rather than bear another static electricity shock upon touching a door handle. This isn't the Detroit Auto Show for nothing — Importers get display space, but the visitor gets an eyeful of domestic iron first.

This was okay with dad and me many moons ago — Ford was the outside of the Oreo, the imported sports cars the creamy inside we saved for last.

The man in the press room told us that he didn't understand why, but the show got more press attention this year than at any time in the recent past. I had my suspicions, confirmed after a tour of the main exhibit hall.

That Ford had race cars on display again was the first clue. That even Buick and Oldsmobile had race cars in their exhibits was proof positive.

It's okay to like cars again. And there are cars worthy of passion. The American Love Affair with the Automobile lives.

There was a time, not so long ago, when the annual trek to Cobo took on overtones of duty rather than celebration. I loved cars, but from 1975 to about 1980 it seemed that no one else did. Sometimes the stuff on display in the mid-'70s made one wonder if the manufacturers even liked the things. Only true believers could maintain interest, and even we had a tough time mustering enthusiasm.

Let the sociologists worry about whether the revival of passion for cars was prompted by the oil glut, improved economy or bottled-up demand. All I know is there are one whale of a lot of good cars on the market, and somebody (not me) has the money to buy them.

The good, bland and the ugly

Part of going to the auto show is forming opinions about cars you've never driven and likely never will. These are highly personal and subjective reactions that probably say more about the person than the cars.

My own biases are toward anything that smells of high performance, looks a little different from the mass of three-box sedans and bears an undefinable quality I call "character." There are lingering influences from being raised in a Chrysler household, a "little knowledge is a dangerous thing" admiration for exceptional engineering, and a cosmopolitan outlook probably inspired by an immigrant parent who never took U.S. citizenship.

With those caveats in mind, I offer my own list of the Good, the Bland and the Ugly as viewed at last week's Detroit Auto Show.

Show cars used to be a major attraction. Memory cites the Astrovette, a three-wheeled jet-powered contraption that looked like nothing so much as a jet fighter, and the Chrysler turbine car as standouts.

This kind of show car doesn't exist anymore. What we get are "concept" vehicles. Marketing experts caused this. Where the show once was reason enough for the manufacturers to produce something that showed off the engineering might of the corporation, the marketing folk now use the shows for research. That means today's concept car is a pragmatic mix of daydreaming and current production technology.

There were dozens of concept cars this year, but only two real design studies. One was Ford's Ghia-designed aerodynamic four-wheel drive wagon on a Tempo platform. Attractive, but not exciting.

The other was Chrysler's Stealth two-seater. Yuck styling. If they ever use the name Stealth, I hope they treat it seriously. Such a car should be invisible to police radar. Do that, and there'll be one in my garage overnight.

New Merkur nameplate: too large

Good concept car: Ford's Special Vehicle Operations group was let loose on the T-Bird. Low, black and sleek. Make these.

Bad concept car: Chevy Camaro GTZ. Pearl. Yellow paint, more gee-gaws and junk than a self-respecting high school kid would pile on a car. The Camaro and its sister Pontiac Firebird are the best-styled cars in American production. No one notices because there are so many. If the nameplate said Porsche or Ferrari and production was limited to maybe 10,000 a year, these things would sell for $40,000, no questions asked. Why Chevy asked a 15-year-old to draw up a "design study vehicle" and then put it on the auto show floor is a mystery.

Chevrolet's Cavalier was the best-selling car in America last year. It leaves me cold. It's the McDonald's Quarter Pounder, the processed cheese spread of American cars. Wide appeal, no bad traits, but no excitement either. Baseball, hot dogs and apple pie. Decent stuff. No adrenaline.

Big anticipation for me was for a firsthand look at the new Merkur XR4Ti at Lincoln/Mercury. It's an import from Ford of Germany. The car still excites me, though the styling is not for everyone. Primary Yuppies, they say. High disposable income and a thirst for quality material goods created the demand that prompted these cars. I know that virtually the entire product line-up is not only different, but better, than it was a decade ago.

The Japanese always get the credit for forcing Detroit into a more competitive posture. That may be so, but the new products out of Detroit aren't primarily Germany's. To the car buff, there is good and bad news in this.

BMW's and Mercedes are as thick on the ground as blades of grass in certain parts of Oakland County. They used to be the car buff's secret, and we liked it that way. But the popularity of understated German sedans with performance to outrun anything short of the Concorde prompted Detroit to build cars aimed at that market.

This year's Auto Show was so full of understated, high performance Euro-style sedans from America that an old oxcart like the Chevrolet looked totally lost. The infection has even spread to the econobox. There were turbocharged hatchbacks sporting wide tires and spoilers for less than $10,000 everywhere you turned. Any one of them is a better overall performer than a sports car of 10 years ago.

There were also nifty new products like minivans and low-cost mid-engine sports cars. Chevrolet's Astro van was the star of that exhibit, people were crawling all over the Plymouth Voyager and Dodge Caravan and Ford's preview of the Aerostar pulled more people into the truck exhibit than I've seen in years.

No wonder people are excited about cars again. The downside is that individuality is a little thin. There were more than 500 cars on exhibit on the Cobo floor. Those that stood out from the crowd were far fewer — when nearly every car has its charms, it takes something really outstanding to catch the eye. Understatement is so dominant a trait that one needs to pay attention to pick out the gems — they don't jump off the floor and yell at the visitor anymore.

Thankfully, the talking cars of last year were gone. Having cars nag you about fuel level or endlessly repeat the nonsense that "the door is ajar" didn't go over. Instead, there were displays of useful electronics. Chrysler's satellite navigation system display wins my award as best idea of the 1985 show.

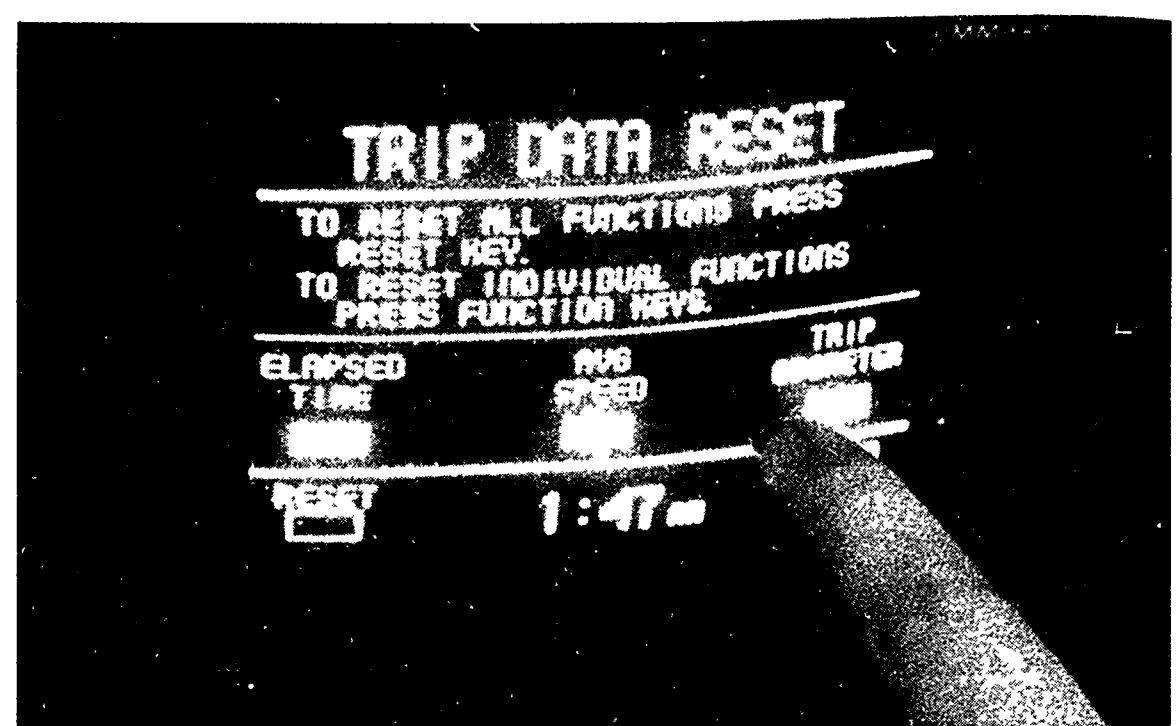

Maps and travel information at the touch of a finger, with a moving Chrysler pentastar to show the car's location. Too bad you can't get one yet. The sooner the better.

Next door there is a Buick Riviera with a less elaborate but no less useful "Graphic Control Center." This a trip monitor, radio and climate control with a CRT screen control.

Bad news was that foreign sports cars, once the cream in the Oreos, are hidden. Britain doesn't send us cheap sports cars anymore, and the expensive ones were corralled behind the van conversions in another hall. For some reason, Porsche managed to put a $53,000 928S on the main floor — how a car that can beat the national speed limit by a clean 100 miles per hour, sells in low volumes and costs the same as the average metro area house avoided being cast into the "exotic cars" exhibit beats me.

I drooled over it anyway. The new four-valves-per-cylinder V-8 engine was on display. Teutonic art. I pointed out the magnesium intake manifold to the photographer and lost myself in dreams of the autobahn.

There were, after all, rituals to be attended to here.

influences seemed to be a melted one-pound block of butter and the Sopwith Camel. Call it eclectic.

But there was disappointment. I'll try to make this short, so bear with me. There was this girl I was involved with in college. Her dad was a Ford engineer, doing a stint designing trim. At the time, a redesigned German-import Capri II was due to arrive on these shores. I loved the styling. The trim guys in Dearborn destroyed it with a three-inch wide rub strip on the side made of chrome plastic and pebble-grained vinyl. What was an attractive car suddenly looked like it belonged on a carnival ride. The dad thought it was great. This was the turning point — I got out of engineering and into liberal arts. The girl and I didn't last too much longer either.

Someone in Dearborn still doesn't understand. I thought maybe they did when the T-Bird front end was made available this year with a body-colored grill instead of a chrome waffle iron on the nose. The literature distributed for the new Merkur XR4Ti notes that it "has a smooth, uncluttered front end benefit of traditional brightwork." It's a major styling element.

Some silly goose put untraditional brightwork on the nose. The new Merkur nameplate is an enormous saucer-sized blimp on the front end. The SVO Mustang got a nice simple blue oval to break up the blank spot on a similar nose. But the upscale Merkur gets this chrome doo-hickey. Dear Ford, if you must put this large an ugly thing on an attractive car, at least use some of the space as a pronunciation guide. "(Mare-Koo)" would fit very nicely under the Merkur and give owners an authoritative response to the people who want to call it a "merker."

The guys who made up the brochure knew — they used a silver car and the new nameplate doesn't look too bad. On charcoal gray or black, however, it's hideous. Enough ranting.

Still like Chrysler's LeBaron GTS. America's own Saab Turbo. Not as quirky. Not as expensive either, and no hassles from the "Buy American" crowd.

Toyota enters the Fiero market with the MR2. I've been calling my son Mister Two since his second birthday last August. Why do I never copyright these things. Anyway, Toyota's Mister Two is not as attractive as the Fiero. It does, however, have more storage space and a serious engine in its first year.

TAX TIPS
LEE E. HOLLAND, C.P.A.
LOANING MONEY TO CHILDREN
If you've been loaning money to children without providing interest, this can still provide tax savings and other advantages under current tax laws. By doing this you can let the child invest the funds. Whatever earnings are realized would build up in the child's name. Because the child has a lower income than you do (or no taxable income, depending on the circumstances), the tax liability would either be minimal or nonexistent. You also have the option of calling in the loan and getting your principal back.
This tax advantage allows you to shift a part of your income into the child's low bracket and still retain control over your money. Under current tax laws you are able to do this for loans that are under $10,000 and which earn less than $1,000 a year. If the amounts are larger, for tax purposes the IRS will assume that the child is paying you annual interest at Treasury rates.
For more information about how to use loans to children and other tax strategies to your advantage, call us for an appointment.

Society ball's returning

By JEAN DAY

Northville Historical Society is inviting everyone in the community to go dancing again for a cause. The successful dinner dance benefits begun in 1972 and held annually until four years ago are being revived.

The event this year is being called the Historical Society Candlelight Ball. The Mayflower Meeting House in Plymouth has been reserved for March 23.

Nancy Bohn is chairing the dinner and ball. Assisting her on the committee are Judith Sechler, Sonja Lane and Cheryl Cassidy. Mrs. Sechler, who chaired the last dinner dance given by the society, is hosting an evening coffee January 30 for workers. The committee would welcome ticket seller volunteers. Mrs. Bohn says she is hoping to have sellers in all areas of the community. Tickets will be $18 a person, $36 a couple. There will be a limit of 300 sold. Volunteers who would like to work on the benefit should call Mrs. Bohn at 348-5096.

The committee already has signed the Hytymes to play for the dancing.

In announcing the ball plans, Mrs. Bohn points out that the event is replacing the progressive dinner this year — the fund raiser substituted for the dinner dances. All proceeds are used for work in the Mill Race Historical Village. Newest project is completion of the blacksmith shop adjacent to the Wash Oak School. Under the direction of Fran Gazlay, the stone building exterior and roof were constructed before winter.

Newcomers schedule two brand-new events

Northville Newcomers President Judi Amatangelo reports that both the February Ladies event and the February Couples' party will be new activities for the club.

Northville Newcomers Ladies will be meeting for a unique evening of handwriting analysis at Mill Race Historical Village from 7:30-9:30 p.m. February 7.

Mini-pastries and coffee will be served and a mystery master of the art of handwriting analysis will be doing individual mini-readings on each participant. Reservations are being taken now through January 31 by Lynn Ader at 420-2798. Limited to 40, the event costs $4.50 a person.

Newcomer couples will meet at the Northville Community Center February 23 for a Games People Play party. The evening will begin at 8 p.m. with each person signing up for the games and times of his or her choice — everyone will play four different ones during the evening — with Trivial Pursuit, Pinochle, Yahtzee, Boggle and Uno listed among the many choices. A variety of delicious appetizers and drinks will be served to all as they play, says Mrs. Amatangelo.

Reservations are being taken through February 2 by Ruth Schulenberger at 349-1831. Cost is $16 a couple with reservations limited to 50 couples. All residents of Northville who have lived here less than five years are eligible for membership. Alums and guests are welcome.

Mothers' Club's serving up pizza

Northville Mothers' Club members know a good benefit when they see one. For the third year the club is sponsoring a pizza supper in connection with a basketball game. The pizza supper will be served in the high school cafeteria from 5-7:30 p.m. before the Northville-Walled Lake Central game.

Nancy Perpich is chairing the supper and is assisted by Carole Lower (who is in training for next year's chairmanship.) Tickets will be sold at the door for $2.50 for adults and $2 for students. Club members will be selling them in advance.

Trip east follows double ring ceremony

MR. AND MRS. ERIC FRID

As Jeanne Marion Windisch walked down the aisle of Our Lady of Victory Church to become the bride of Eric Michael Frid, she wore her mother's wedding gown of candlelight satin.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett L. Windisch Jr. of Northville. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Frid of Northville.

Father Frank Pollie officiated at the summer double ring ceremony.

Maureen Windisch was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids in periwinkle Qiana gowns were the bride's sisters Pam Pasly of Ann Arbor and Paula Gibbons of Plymouth and Susanne Foulkrod and Terri Baker of Northville.

Mark Frid was best man for his brother. Groomsmen were Kirk Frid and Scott Boyd of Northville, Steve Zoll of Walled Lake and Dave von-Walhausen of South Lyon. The bride's nephew Danny Gibbons was ring bearer.

A reception for 180 guests was held at The Chalet of Farmington Hills.

The bride is a 1978 Northville High School graduate. The bridegroom is a 1976 N.H.S. graduate. Following a wedding trip to the east coast the newlyweds now are making their home in Brighton.

Parents name newborn sons

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Thelen of Plymouth announce the arrival of their son, Daniel Thomas.

He was born January 2 at Providence Hospital and weighed six pounds, 10 ounces.

The newborn was welcomed home by his sister Betsy, 18 months old.

Mrs. Thelen is the former Marianne Crain of Northville.

Mr. and Mrs. James Crain of Northville are maternal grandparents. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Carl Thelen of Lansing.

Announcement of the birth of their first child, Benjamin David, is made by Connie and David Sherman of Waterford Township. He arrived December 26 at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac weighing seven pounds, 13 1/2 ounces.

Maternal grandparents are Carol and David McLaughlin of Northville. Paternal grandparents are Lee and Fred Sherman of Grand Rapids.

Great grandparents are Charles and Thelma Higgins of Willow Grove, Pennsylvania, and Herschel and Freda Heritage of Grand Rapids.

Methodist seminar focuses on positive parenting

A seminar on positive parenting will lead off a series of classes on parenting at First United Methodist Church of Northville from 5-7 p.m. Sunday.

Jane Berquist, director of Christian Education, reports that Dr. David Hall of the Center for Psychological Counseling in Flint, will lead the seminar. She notes that it has been postponed from the originally announced starting date to avoid conflict with Super Bowl Sunday.

Dr. Hall has led many workshops and parenting groups and comes highly recommended, she states, adding that child care will be available.

Parenting classes will continue for eight Sunday evenings following the seminar, from February 3 through March 24, from 5-6:30 p.m. The classes, Berquist announces, will use the Systematic Training for Effective Parenting (S.T.E.P.) program, which she terms a realistic and sensible approach to child-parent relationships for couples, one parent and a single parent. There will be a $5.50 charge for books and supplies and a $1 per child per evening for child care.

The classes are planned as small group discussions. If they are not filled by the church membership, Berquist states, they will be open to anyone interested.

"Learning more effective ways of relating to your children takes courage, practice and patience ... the courage to be open to and accept new ideas and attitudes ... practice in applying the techniques at home in your own family ... patience for the time it takes to discourage your children's once-effective misbehavior patterns," Berquist observes in explaining the positive parenting goals.

OLV forum topic: Aiding grieving child

"Death, Grieving and Children" will be the topic of the Friday Family Forum at 7:30 p.m. this Friday at Our Lady of Victory parish social hall.

The program is one in a series planned by the church family life committee to focus on some of the concerns facing families today. Anne Evans Moloney, director of religious education, announces.

When a parent, grandparent or friend dies, what is the effect on the children in a family? Are there differences in the grieving process? How do we help kids deal with death?

The Northville Record

Mustangs topple two WLAA foes

By B.J. MARTIN

Don Norton and Mike Hilfinger thawed out their shooting hands just in time to give Northville a 56-53 win over Dearborn last Friday.

After some icy shooting in the first half, Norton scored three unanswered 18-foot baskets in the fourth quarter, then set up a 15-foot baseline jumper by Hilfinger that proved to be the game-winner.

Northville outscored Dearborn 17-13 during the final quarter, thanks in part to the tandem's scoring punch — but thanks also to some timely rebounding from Greg Wendel and John Storm, and some cool-headed play from point guard Kirk Morrison.

In the final minute of play, Dearborn went to the free throw line three times for a one-and-one and a chance to add to the Pioneers' 53-52 lead. All three times the Pioneers came away empty.

After the third miss, Northville got the ball upcourt and started moving the ball against the Pioneer zone defense. With just over 30 seconds to play, Morrison got the ball to Norton on the left wing.

The hot-shooting forward drew out the Pioneer defense and found Hilfinger open in the corner. Hilfinger barely got his shot off over a defender, but it fell for a 54-53 Mustang lead.

The Pioneers rushed the ball upcourt, but missed a perimeter jumper with 15 seconds to play. Storm rebounded the miss and the Mustangs hung on to the ball and the lead.

With six seconds to play, forward Eric Gala was fouled intentionally. Gala coolly stepped to the line and sank both ends of a one-and-one to ice the game.

"The tide finally turned for us," said Northville Coach Omar Harrison. "We'd been outscoring other teams in field goals all season. If we could start hitting our free throws, we'd have a winning record. It was time somebody else missed them against us."

Norton finished the game with 16 points and six assists. Northville's big seniors, Wendel and Storm, combined for 20 points and 27 rebounds. Hilfinger added six points and five assists.

'The tide finally turned ... It was time somebody else missed (foul shots) against us.'

— Omar Harrison
Mustang cage coach

Morrison's eight rebounds helped the Mustangs' cause, but not so much as the junior's steady play at point guard. Morrison did an outstanding job of thwarting Dearborn's double-team pressure defense with sharp passing and ball control.

Earlier in the week, Northville disposed of division rival Walled Lake Western 46-42.

The Mustangs never trailed, holding the Warriors to just 13 first-half points. "We should have won by at least eight points," Harrison declared. "We were up pretty much the whole ballgame, but we couldn't put them away."

One reason was some miserable foul shooting. The Mustangs hit only 10-of-24 from the line against the Warriors.

Hilfinger led Northville with 12 points, Norton scored nine, Wendel seven and Doug May six. Leading Mustang rebounders were Wendel with 12 and Storm with seven. Morrison contributed four steals.

Now riding a two-game win streak, Northville (3-5, 1-4 WLAA) will try to extend it with games this week against Plymouth Salem and Friday at Livonia Churchill. Next Tuesday (January 29), the Mustangs will host division rival Farmington Harrison.

Spikers 3-0 in league

Northville's varsity volleyball team is already halfway to a division title.

A 15-11, 15-9 conference victory over Farmington January 14 and a 15-12, 11-15, 15-8 win over Plymouth Canton last Wednesday landed the Mustangs in a tie for first in conference and division standings. Northville is 3-0 in the WLAA, 2-0 in the Western Division and 4-1 overall.

"With each win we're building a little more confidence," said Coach Steve McDonald. "Our morale is good — people are getting some playing time, and I'm not afraid of putting anybody in the game."

The Mustangs were in fine form Monday against the 2-2 Falcons. A perfect night of serving from Cheryl Spaman and Chris McGowan's 10 good serves in 11 tries led the way. "I felt pretty good about how we served," McDonald reported. "We'd been pretty inconsistent. The girls are still learning when they have to get the serve in. They're getting better at it."

McDonald has found his alternating Erin Ryan with Mandy Olgren in the lineup has worked out well. Ryan has responded with good front-line play while Olgren has been especially consistent in the back row.

Against Farmington, Ryan had nine hits, three for kills, and one dink. Bev Henderson slammed 10 hits with three dinks, and put away five kills.

Although Canton had not won a conference game yet, the Chiefs gave the Mustangs all they could handle two nights later.

"They don't have a real good offense, but they hustle a lot on defense," McDonald said. "Each time it looked like we had a ball headed for the floor, they dug it out. If we hustled like they do, we could win all the time."

The Mustangs bolted ahead in all three games against Canton, and each time the Chiefs fought right back. "It seemed like every time we'd get a big lead, we'd lose our concentration," McDonald said.

Once again, Northville benefited from some strong individual showings. Twelve of Nicki LaRoque's 18 serves were good, and the senior made three aces. Spaman also had a big night, putting 14 of her 15 serves in and aching the Falcons twice.

Ryan turned in her best hitting game of the year. The lanky senior pounded 17 hits, six for kills. Henderson had 15 hits, four kills and one dink, and Spaman and LaRoque combined for 19 hits, four kills and seven dinks. McGowan and Olgren turned in some good back row play, McDonald added.

Northville's game against Walled Lake Western, originally scheduled for tonight, instead will take place tomorrow at 6:30 p.m. at home. The perennially-strong Warriors should be one of the contenders for a Western Division crown this year.

Northville will travel to South Lyon for a non-conference match Monday, then return home to face Plymouth Salem, from the WLAA's Lakes Division.

OLV boys trip Lakers 37-27

Our Lady of Victory's "White" Grade 7-8 boys' basketball team upped its league-leading record to 5-1 (5-3 overall) with a 37-27 victory over Our Lady of the Lakes Sunday. OLV sprinted ahead 15-2 after the first quarter and breezed to the win. Phil Lickman scored eight points, while Matt Scarlett and Derek Dregowski contributed good defense.

The Grade 5-6 boys' team was just nipped by Our Lady of Sorrows 42-39. OLV fell to 4-2 in its league (6-3 overall) in spite of fine performances by Paul Butz and Chuck Taylor.

The Grade 5-6 girls' team fell to 2-4 (4-4 overall) when Our Lady of Sorrows scored with just 22 seconds to play to win 15-13. Ashley MacLean scored six points and had six rebounds, while Maria MacInnis turned in five rebounds and five steals.

Both the Grade 7-8 girls' team and the grade 7-8 boys' "Blue" team remained winless in league play. Sorrows defeated OLV 29-23 in the girls' game despite good play from Sue Alföldy and Dana Roslinski. Sorrows edged OLV 39-33 in the boys' game, although Mike Padden and David Best played well.

Gymnasts top Farmington for first win

Slowly but surely, Northville's varsity gymnasts are climbing toward a respectable competitive level.

A 106.60-101.40 victory over Farmington last Wednesday has the team headed in the right direction.

Mandy Walts registered Northville's top scores in parallel bars (7.1), balance beam (7.55) and floor exercise (7.75), while senior classmate Diane Hale's 8.1 in vault edged Walts' score of 7.85.

Hale had trouble with parallel bars, managing only a 6.55. She scored 6.9 in balance beam and 7.2 in floor exercise. Tonia Hickman scored a much-improved 6.15 in bars and added a 5.4 in beam and 6.2 in floor exercise. Kim Wobermin scored 6.6 in vault, 5.35 in bars and 6.6 in balance beam.

Cheryl Lane was Northville's fourth finisher in vault (6.45) and fifth in floor exercise (4.35), while Missy Smith's 4.75 rounded out Northville's top four floor exercise scores. Kathy Alfinito registered a 6.25 in vault.

At the 16-team Dearborn Invitational Saturday, Northville managed to finish ahead of only three teams. But the team's score of 107.30 showed continued improvement.

Walts recorded her best floor exercise of the season (8.6) and barely missed a 10th-place medal in the event. Walts scored 7.9 in vault, 7.0 in bars and 6.95 in beam. Hale scored 7.75 in floor exercise, 7.7 in vault, 7.3 in bars and 7.05 in balance beam.

Hickman posted a 7.2 in floor exercise. Wobermin scored 5.45 in beam, 5.3 in bars and 5.05 in vault. Lane continued to improve, scoring 6.2 in vault, 6.3 in floor exercise and 5.9 in balance beam. Smith added a 5.8 in floor exercise.

Freeland took top team honors at the meet with 131.90 points.

"We've been improving our scores little by little," noted Northville Coach Michelle Charniga. "I've been able to get just about everybody to compete in each meet, so a lot of girls are getting some experience."

"Some of the girls we're counting on are brand new," she added. "They're doing well for their first year."

Northville (1-1 in dual meets) was scheduled for a home gymnastics meet against Plymouth Canton Monday, but the meet was canceled due to bad weather. The meet has been tentatively rescheduled for Friday.

Beginning at 1 p.m. Saturday, Northville will compete at the Saline Invitational.

Darius Mikalonis broke Northville's 500 yard freestyle record against Ypsilanti

Mustangs drown Chargers

Darius Mikalonis' 5:07.3 clocking in the 500 freestyle last Tuesday didn't propel the Mustangs to a win over Ypsilanti — but it did put the junior tanker's name in Northville High School's record books.

Despite Mikalonis' record-setting swim, Ypsilanti edged the Mustangs 43-40, Northville's closest meet of the season. While Northville took the majority of first place finishes at the meet, Ypsilanti made it up with depth.

"Everybody swam well," said Northville Coach Derek Gans. "If a few more of our fourths had been thirds, we would have had them."

Mikalonis also won the 200 free, turning in a 1:53.3. Other firsts were recorded by Doug Buell in 200 individual medley (2:12.0), Doug Buell in 100 butterfly (55.7), Jeff Bainbridge in 100 backstroke (1:00.5) and Ron Johnston in 50 free (23.8).

The Mustang 4x100 freestyle relay team (Dave Wayne, Buell, Bainbridge, Mikalonis) swam to a first-place time in 3:31.1.

Joel Grasley had a fine meet, taking second in diving with a personal-best point total of 202.0, and registering a 23.1 split in the medley relay.

Gans was much more pleased with his squad's 104-68 swamping of division rival Livonia Churchill Thursday. "Fantastic meet," he enthused. "Some of the races were very close, but our guys really came through."

Both Mustang relay teams won — Johnston, Bainbridge, Buell and Mikalonis took the freestyle relay in 3:34.1; and Bainbridge, Leindecker, Buell and Grasley won the medley relay in 1:50.8.

Northville posted 1-2-3 sweeps in butterfly and backstroke. Taking individual firsts were Mikalonis in 200 I.M. (2:09.8), Buell in butterfly (57.6), Bainbridge in backstroke (1:00.7), and Tom Valade in 500 free (5:38.6).

Valade's personal-best time was an eye-opener. Valade clipped his hand on the split rope on his first leg and then his pair of borrowed goggles slipped off, making it impossible to see for half the event. He swam stroke-for-stroke with Churchill's top distance swimmer, eventually pulling away on the last leg.

Registering seconds were Jeff Pawloski in diving (209.6 points), Johnston in 200 free (1:59.7) and 100 free (53.0), Mikalonis in backstroke (1:00.8), Wayne in butterfly (1:01.2) and John Gass in 50 free (24.5).

Northville (2-2 overall, 2-0 WAAA) swims at Walled Lake Western at 7 p.m. tomorrow and hosts Inkster Cherry Hill on Tuesday.

Robins may be a hockey blue-chip

Northville alumnus Scott Robins has been making a name for himself as one of the up-and-coming hockey hotshots in the Atlantic Coast farm league.

Robins, a center for the Pine Bridge (North Carolina) Bucks is currently second in the league in scoring for the World Hockey Association-owned franchise. Picked from the rookie draft last fall, Robins was named player of the month in the circuit, and he's currently the top-scoring rookie in the league.

Robins will be getting the once-over

Vogt, Candela stay hot, but matmen fall twice

The going got even rougher for Northville's wrestlers last week. As if the flu bug weren't enough to contend with, along came division rivals Livonia Churchill and Walled Lake Western in no mood to be lenient.

Five Mustangs won matches against the Chargers Tuesday, but it was Churchill that prevailed 44-23.

Joel Vogt snapped up a pin at 1:11 of the 185-pound match, and Tim Millen needed just five seconds longer to pin his 198-pound rival. But only those two Mustangs managed to put their Charger draws on their backs.

Dino Candela won a 15-4 decision at 167 pounds and 98-pounder Keith Graham picked up a "major" decision by an 11-1 score. Northville's only other win came from 132-pound John Lazar.

Lazar was trailing Scott Priebe 2-1 until the final 30 seconds of his match, but the senior sprung a reversal to pick up two points and a 3-2 victory.

Three Mustangs pulled up sick the night of the meet. Jason Lazar could not finish his 145-pound match and took a default loss. John McRae also was stricken, but he lasted 5:13 of his 155-pound match before being pinned. Scott Wiley (112) was sick, and freshman backup Brad Guerro wound up losing on a pin in 4:44.

John Baumann eked out a loss by decision at 105 pounds and Paul Maliszewski did likewise at 119. But Maliszewski (126) and Ken Kehoe (138) fell on first-period pins.

Walled Lake Western was equally formidable on Thursday, handing the Mustangs a 47-20 defeat.

Taking advantage of Northville's inexperience at its five lightest weight classes, the Warriors simply registered first-period pins against all five. When John Lazar lost his 132-pound match on a 4-0 decision, the Mustangs quickly found themselves in a 33-0 hole.

Kehoe broke Western's string by winning on a pin at 1:26. Then came back-to-back errors at 145 and 155 pounds. At 145, Dennis Nadeau held a 5-0 lead when he was suddenly reversed and pinned at 5:27 of his match. Dana Letarte held a 5-2 lead in the 155-pound match when he was suddenly flipped over and pinned an instant before the second period buzzer.

Candela and Vogt brought Northville back to respectability with second-period pins at 167 pounds and 185 pounds, respectively.

But Northville could pull no closer. Tim Millen lost on a pin at 2:31 of the 198-pound match. Neither team could certify a heavyweight.

"We've got some good young wrestlers, but we really lack experience," noted Northville Coach Jack Townsley. "All of our five lightest guys have no varsity experience, and that's going to cause us problems until they mature in another year or two."

Townsley said he has been pleased with the performance of the few veteran seniors he does have on the roster — especially Vogt, Candela and John Lazar. All three have winning records this season, and Vogt's 12-2 mark leads the team.

Northville (2-5 overall) will travel to Walled Lake Central at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow, then will go to Algonac on Saturday for the 10-team Blue Water Classic. After their return, the Mustangs will wrap up their conference season with meets against Plymouth Salem and Canton.
