State wins a round in fight over DeHoCo

By KEVIN WILSON

State purchase of the Detroit House of Correction for $6.7 million received its first legislative approval from the joint capital outlay committee last week.

In a separate action, funds to operate the prison were included as part of a $46 million supplemental appropriations bill approved by the full senate March 28

The purchase bill approved by the committee, comprised of appropriations committee members from both houses of the legislature, includes neither the moratorium on future prison sitings here nor the 500-inmate population cap sought by local officials in exchange for a state takeover of the prison on the south side of Five Mile Road.

State senator R. Robert Geake (R-Northville Township), a member of the capital outlay committee, did not attend the March 26 meeting at which the bill was approved unanimously. Geake had been expected to introduce amendments to the purchase bill requiring the moratorium and population cap.

Geake said his absence from the meeting was deliberate.

"I did not have the votes to defeat that bill," he said March 29. "I didn't want to be the only one voting 'no' and I couldn't vote for it. It was deliberate that I did not attend."

Noting that capital outlay committee approval is only the first of at least five separate approvals required on the bill, Geake said he believed he would be in a "stronger position" to fight for a moratorium when the bill returns to the full senate appropriations committee.

Asked if his statement that he would

Asked if his statement that he would be the only one voting 'no' if he had attended meant Geake did not have support for the moratorium from other senators, he responded "No. I didn't. I'm afraid that's right."

The bill has been referred to the appropriations committee of the state house. If approved at each stage, it would go to a floor vote in the house, then to the senate appropriations committee prior to a senate floor vote. If the house and senate versions of the bill differ, it would be considered in conference by members of both houses to agree on final wording.

agree on final wording.
State representaive Gerald H. Law (R-Plymouth Township) said he was disappointed in the capital outlay committee action.

"Detroit got what it wanted — it got the money approved and the provision requiring that the state hire the Detroit employees," Law said. "We didn't get anything we wanted."

Northville Township supervisor Susan J. Heintz said she finds the purchase agreement as approved by capital outlay "totally unacceptable. We want to see a lot of things hooked to that — we want the Plymouth State Home land released and the moratorium on future sitings."

Heintz has joined with Plymouth Township supervisor Maurice Breen in efforts to control state use of DeHoCo, arguing that two prisons in Northville Township directly across the street from DeHoCo make for an unfair con-

Churches announce Holy Week services

Christ gave His own body in the form of bread and said, "Take, eat. This is my body which is given for you. Do this in remembrance of me." So through the ages we are sustained by the symbols of His body and blood and we remember in hope the saints who have been sustained before us and those who with us have inherited the promise of eternal life.

Lenten devotional Dr. Jo Taliaferro First Presbyterian Church

Holy Week services are being held in churches throughout the community, leading up to the celebration of Easter Sunday

GOOD FRIDAY SERVICE

An ecumenical Good Friday Service will be held at 1 p.m. at First Presbyterian Church of Northville with Bushnell Congregational and First United Methodist churches participating. The entire community is invited.

The Reverend Lloyd G. Brasure, pastor emeritus, will give the sermon. Participating in the service will be Dr. Lawrence Chamberlain, Dr. Nile Harper, Dr. Jo Taliaferro of the host church, Dr. Robin Meyers of Bushnell Congregational and the Reverend Eric Hammar of First United Methodist.

Under joint musical leadership of the three churches a combined choir will provide music.

UNITED METHODIST

Easter lilies contributed by the congregation will fill the sanctuary of First United Methodist Church in celebration of the resurrection of Jesus Christ in a continuing tradition.

Maundy Thursday Tenebrae Service of candlelighting, hymns, anthems and Holy Communion will be at 7:30 p.m.

Members will participate in the community Good Friday Service at 1 p.m. at First Presbyterian Church.

Three services will be held Easter Sunday. "Knowing the Score" will be the Reverend Hammar's sermon topic at the 7:30 a.m. sunrise service; "Death Is Damned" will be the sermon topic at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services. At 8:15 a.m. the Methodist Men will serve breakfast at the chuch.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN

Maundy Thursday Communion Service at 7:30 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church sanctuary will be preceded by a Seder Meal at 6 p.m. in fellowship hall. Rites of spring

In the countryside around Northville baby rabbits, lambs and foal are affirming that spring really is here. Last week Garnet Potter took his new lambs to the Little Red Schoolhouse on Eight Mile for teacher Anne Lauer, left, and her class of third and fourth graders to feed. "Cory" welcomed the Pepsi bottle of milk. Garnet,12, a student at Meads Mill Junior High, is an active member of 4-H and has been elected a Duke in the Michigan State Rabbit Breeders' Association. Record photo by Steve Fecht.

Annual city Garage Sale faces changes

This year's version of the downtown City Garage Sale May 18 will feature a few new twists, Northville City Council and the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce determined this week.

Foremost is a change of venue. Instead of having residents take spaces on downtown streets, the stalls will be laid out in the eastern half of the city parking lot behind the MAGS building. Downtown merchants are to use the sidewalks for promotions to be conducted in concert with the garage sale. The changed location will be ac-

The changed location will be accompanied by other changes — including downtown parking restrictions and endorsement of the event by the chamber with merchants continuing to operate the sale. The chamber has sponsored all previous editions of the garage sale, but agreed to split net proceeds with the merchants' association at a Tuesday morning meeting of the chamber.

Scott Lapham, who told city council members Monday night that he was "wearing two hats" and representing both the chamber and the merchants, said downtown merchants have found that having the garage sale on the sidewalks has typically reduced business in their stores.

"It's not like the sidewalk sale," Lapham said. "People shopping the garage sale don't go into the shops. The merchants say their business day really hurts that day."

Councilmember J. Burton DeRusha responded that "they're saying take it away, then?"

Mayor Paul Vernon and councilmember Dewey Gardner said the merchants were not intent on abolishing the popular sale.

abolishing the popular sale.

"They're not saying put it elsewhere or take it away," Vernon said. "As I understand it, they'd like to move it, but they're not trying to get rid of it."

"Take it somewhere close by," Gardner said. "I would not want it very far away." Gardner is owner of the IV Seasons florist shop and a member of both the chamber and merchants association.

At Tuesday's chamber meeting Gardner reported his store had had "one of the biggest days since the Christmas walk" last Saturday and attributed it to the craft show at the community building. He said he "could tell by the

Egg hunt slated Saturday

Continuing a longtime, local tradition, Northville youngsters—from little ones barely able to toddle up to those 12 years old—will participate in the annual Jaycee sponsored Easter Egg Hunt at 10 a.m. Saturday in Cass Benton Woods.

This year's chairman, William. Kelly, said the Jaycees again will-hold the hunt in the park, rather than on the high school hill. The move back to the park was made last year under Kevin Hartshorne's chairmanship. Hartshorne's chairmanship. Hartshorne said he did so because of nostalgic memories of hunting for the eggs there when he was a child. In case of bad weather, however, the hunt will be moved to the recreation building gym, which has been reserved by the Jaycees. Anyone in doubt the morning of the hunt may call the recreation department, the Northville City Council Monday moved to fly the flag in front of city hall at half mast Thursday in recognition of Mr. Reef's contributions to the community.

Area residents learned of the death of Mr. Reef, who had been in failing health for some time, last weekend as a black-bowed wreath was placed on the marker at the Northville well. The marker was donated by A.M. Allen and dedicated by Rotary in 1983 in appreciation of his long maintenance of the well and in pride of a "fellow Rotarian for his many community contributions."

Until that time the drilling of well after the old spring had stopped flowing and subsequent purchase of new pump and maintenance had been done by Mr. Reef anonymously.

Mr. Reef, president of Reef Manufacturing, was named the first recipient of the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce Citizen of the Year Award in 1976. His gauge manufacturing firm is located on Seven Mile in Northville.

Service tomorrow for manufacturer Jan Reef

Mr. Reef also holds an honorary degree from Schoolcraft College where he served on the Schoolcraft Foundation for 10 years, including a term as president. He and his wife established the Jan and Nelly Reef Scholarship at the college.

The family suggests that memorial contributions may be made to Schoolcraft College Foundation, Jan and Nelly Reef Memorial Fund, or to the Leader Dogs for the Blind in Rochester, Michigan.

Mr. Reef was named the Jaycees Distinguished Citizen. He was a member of the chamber of commerce and Northville Historical Society and was a 32nd degree Mason, Warren Lodge, F&AM in Massachusetts, King Cyrus Lodge, Moslem Temple Shrine Lodge and Detroit Commandary No. 1, Knights Templar. Mr. Reef sang in the Consistory Choir.

He had supported school sports teams and serviced boys' and girls' programs and was a benefactor to Wishing Well Manor residents. His interests included gardening; he had a greenhouse attached to his home where he spent much time in later years.

He had been a member of his church chancel choir, president of the men's club, president of the session and board of trustees.

He was a longtime member of the adult men's Bible class at First Presbyterian Church. Four members of the class, Philip Fisher, Philip Chase, Thomas Curi and John Long, will be serving as ushers at Thursday's memorial service. Bill Williams, former choir director, will sing a solo at the service.

A native of the Netherlands, Mr. Reef was born June 28, 1896, in Hengelo to Albert and Hendrina (VanWezel) Reef. He married Nelly Pardoen April 14, 1921. He and his wife came to the United States August 9, 1921, when Mr. Reef was 25. They came to Northville in 1956. He had been a tool apprentice in 1941 when he invented the Reef Gauge used for quality control in precision manufacturing. Fight against drug alcohol abuse gaining support

By MICHELE M. FECHT

While drug and alcohol abuse may not be among the subject materials listed in course catalogs, Northville school officials, parents and students are giving these concerns top priority

Through the efforts of the Northville Action Council, an organization comprised of concerned parents and residents, efforts are being made to educate the community about the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse and what can be done to prevent it.

Since its grassroots beginnings more than a year ago, the Northville Action Council has positioned itself as the most vocal opponent of drug and alcohol abuse among the community's youth.

However, up until last month, the group's efforts had gone largely un-

According to William Hamilton, Northville High School assistant principal and NAC proponent, the group's regular monthly meetings helped parents discuss concerns and identify problems, but offered the group little community visibility.

"We've redefined the make-up of the action council," Hamilton said. "We decided there are a lot of different activities we can sponsor which can have a positive effect on the community and

Among the NAC's first offerings was a lecture by Daniel P. DeFer, a Brighton Hospital physician's assistant, who discussed drug and alcohol abuse in a two-hour presentation March 21 at the high school.

Hamilton noted that more than 200 residents turned out to hear DeFer's discussion. He estimated that about 95 percent of those attending were

As part of the NAC's plans to form parent support groups, a survey was passed out to those attending DeFer's lecture in an effort to identify parental

The surveys, which currently are available at the high school office for parents who would like to participate in the support groups, identify a number of concerns from peer pressure, effects of television on children, birth control. dating, shoplifting, driving, anorexia and bulimia, single parenting and much

Following the success of the March 21 program, Hamilton said the NAC hopes to sponsor at least two to three speakers a semester. In addition, the organization also is supporting a host of other efforts, such as the formation of a counseling center for student peer counseling training.

While Hamilton admitted that it's difficult to "assess how serious the problem is as security is very tight at the high school," he pointed out that "we hear from students that on weekends a large number of kids are involved in

"We've heard for so many years — maybe 10-15 — that we have a drug and alcohol problem. I think parents finally have said 'enough is enough."

> - William Hamilton. NHS assistant principal

Hamilton said alcohol is used in the greatest quantity with marijuana use

"There is very little evidence of hard drugs," he noted.

He said the interest generated at the March 21 program is evidence of the growing concerns among parents and their desire to intervene before the problem magnifies.

"We've heard for so many years maybe 10-15 — that we have a drug and alcohol problem," Hamilton noted. "I think parents finally have said 'enough

Students also appear to be taking a hardline stance on drug and alcohol abuse. A group of high school students, with the assistance of counselor Jack Wickens and student government sponsor Doug Dent, recently met with Farmington Harrison High School students to discuss the formation of a local Students Against Driving Drunk

An offshoot of Mothers Against Drunk Drivers (MADD), SADD originated in Massachusetts in 1981 and survives on positive peer pressure.

Like MADD, the group requires that students and parents sign a "Contract for Life" stating that if a student is drinking, he or she will contact a parent for a ride home.

The contract agreement also is reciprocal with parents required to call their child if they cannot drive themselves home.

Hamilton noted that the first SADD project will be to show a film on alcohol use and driving to the entire student

He noted that members of the student government also will be attending Project Graduation, a seminar sponsored by the southeast Michigan Chemical People Coalition. The April 23 seminar will focus on how high schools can promote drug and alcohol free graduations and proms.

Hamilton noted that concerns regarding students drinking and driving intensified this school year when two high school students were seriously injured in separate alcohol-related automobile accidents.

Another NAC sponsored effort, which Hamilton said will be implemented before the start of the new school year, is the formation of student support Counselor Jack Wickens, with the assistance of social workers Ginny Baumgartner and Joe Blake, will be training students to assist fellow classmates with problems and concerns of any nature.

Hamilton noted that "with two new groups coming into the high school," such problems could range from adjusting to a new school to alcohol abuse. Hamilton said another concern which may be dealt with in peer or parent support groups is suicide prevention. He noted that while it is difficult to gage the problem at the local level, national statistics show an alarming increase in the number of teenage suicides. "In society in general, teenage suicide is more prevalent than in the past." he noted, adding that the problem is magnified by the continued increase of alcohol and drug use among voung people. He noted that while a "greater percentage of high school students drink than at the junior high level, there is evidence that the problem begins before a student reaches senior

'I think what's somewhat alarming is that senior high students have indicated they had their first drinking experience in junior high," Hamilton

In the hopes of educating elementary and junior high students about the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse, the Northville Action Council is sending social studies teacher Jane Lauber to BABES (Basic Alcohol and Drug Addiction Beginning Education Series) Training in August. Lauber will then train her community services students in activities which they will present to elementary students about alcohol and

In assessing the positive feedback the schools have received from parents and the community, Hamilton said he hopes it will generate more interest in the Northville Action Council.

The group meets at 7:30 p.m. the second Wednesday of the month in the high school library. Membership fee is

City officials testify in support of race track funds

By KEVIN WILSON

Northville was alone in depicting the presence of a horse racing track as a community asset in recent testimony before the agriculture subcommittee of the senate appropriations committee.

Mayor Paul Vernon and city manager Steven Walters testified before the subcommittee, which is the first to consider the allocation of parimutuel tax revenues to be returned to host cities, on March 20.

The subcommittee made no decision, but is charged with recommending appropriations to the various race track cities for inclusion in the 1985-86 budget. Governor James Blanchard's recommendation is for a five percent increase over last year's figure, giving $2.45 million to six cities divided in proportion to wagering at each.

Northville's testimony stood in stark contrast to that presented by Livonia Mayor Edward McNamara and Hazel Park city manager Don Potter to the subcommittee, chaired by Senator Harry Gast (R-St. Joseph).

While Vernon spoke of a "partnership arrangement that exists between the City of Northville and owners and operators of Northville Downs," McNamara called the Detroit Race Course (DRC) in his city "more of a nuisance." Both McNamara and Potter suggested that the land area taken up by the tracks in their cities would provide more jobs and greater tax revenues at less cost if developed for industrial uses.

The city officials were asked by the subcommittee to spend two hours basically defending the state appropriations to communities with race tracks within their borders.

evidently more pleased by Northville's presentation that detailed the costs of providing police, fire, DPW, waste disposal and road improvement services to serve the Downs than they were by similar reports presented by Livonia for stationing police officers to serve the tracks. Northville's figure was close to $31, which Gast said was a more believable cost. Vernon said in a report to council

Monday night that he believes Northville may be more receptive to the presence of a racetrack because the city is "more developed" and really has no opportunity to locate industrial projects on the track site.

But Vernon and Walters agreed with McNamara and Potter that recent appropriations of parimutuel taxes have been inadequate in comparison to costs.

McNamara said officials of old Livonia Township, when the population was only 8,000, saw annual parimutuel revenues of $500,000 as a bonanza when DRC was built. Today, he argued, the return in real terms has declined

He said Livonia got $500,000 for 30 days of racing in 1950 ($17,000 a day), but only $3,400 a day last year, when DRC produced revenues of $614,000 for the city in 177 days of racing.

McNamara contended that, if his city got the full $900,000 allowed by law in 1970s, then the figure was adjusted for inflation, the amount due would be $2

Northville's testimony focused more tightly on actual costs of providing service to the track, including $404,390 in police-related costs alone. Walters noted that the Downs provided 4.3 percent of the city's property tax revenue had reported an $88 per man-hour cost in 1984, but generated 6.8 percent of the serious crime cases reported, 12.9 percent of the parking violations and 5.7

percent of the total police service calls.

The Northville report also noted more than $1 million worth of capital improvements fully or partially paid for from parimutuel tax returns because they served the Downs.

These included construction of the parking deck ($255,000 of racing revenue, $155,000 from other sources over 10 years), Griswold street extension to provide access from the north ($178,000 worth of racing revenue), construction of the Northville Square parking lot ($200,000 from racing revenue, $220,000 from other sources), Wing Street extension (nearly $100,000, paid by federal grants), South Main repaving (nearly $200,000 from racing revenues) and purchase of an aerial ladder truck for the fire department ($198,000 paid over five years from racing revenues).

The city report also detailed the general fund deficit created by previous slashes in parimutuel revenue sharing. The deficit of $483,151 in June. 1982, had been cut to $299,393 by last June. Walters is projecting elimination of the deficit by this June, assuming that the state makes the full appropriation budgeted for the year.

Walters noted that the deficit has prevented the city from continuing the capital improvement projects to which revenues had previously been

The girl said she did not reply and continued walking. The driver of the car drove ahead, turned west on Nine Mile and then turned the vehicle around so it was facing eastbound on the unpaved section of the road. When the man exited the car as if to walk up behind her, the girl said she ran home and reported the incident to her mother who immediately called police. She said the suspect had a low voice and was wearing a dark blue baseball cap and dark clothing with white tennis shoes. He was driving a multi-colored Volkswagen "Love Bug" which made a loud noise, the girl reported. She was unable to tell police what caused the noise, however.

It was the second suspicious person report involving school-aged children logged by Novi police within the last

On February 19, a 10-year-old girl reported that she was approached by a stranger driving a green station wagon as she was walking on Village Lake

In that incident, the girl told police the man asked if she needed a ride and then parked and got out of his vehicle after she made no reply. The girl ran off through the snow into an open area between two houses in the subdivision.

The suspect in the February 19 incident was described as a white male, 40-50 years old with dark eyes and a wrinkled face. He was wearing a redand-white knit cap with a white tassle on the top, according to the girl's

Troopers block Seven Mile to arrest taxi occupant

From state police . . .

Believing they had cornered an armed man in the backseat of a taxicab, state police stopped traffic in both directions on Seven Mile Road near Meadowbrook the afternoon of March

Police were responding to a complaint filed through a Checker Cab Company dispatcher, who relayed a cabdriver's report that a man in his cab intended to rob him. The driver had stated a belief that the man had a gun.

The suspect, who turned out to be unarmed, had boarded the cab at Eight Mile and Mound Road on the east side of Detroit. When the dispatcher called police, the cab was westbound on I-96 approaching I-275.

Troopers leaving the Seven Mile Road post and headed toward I-275 in response to the call spotted the cab westbound on Seven Mile. According to the police report of the incident, police turned around to pursue the vehicle, which immediately slowed and stopped near Meadowbrook Road.

Police reported seeing a head in the backseat of the cab, which subsequently dropped out of sight "as if the suspect had layed down in the rear seat." The driver of the cab got out and ran back to the patrol car and told police the suspect was lying down in the back of the cab. Troopers at the scene asked that traffic be stopped before approaching the site of the parked cab.

Asked if he had seen a gun, the driver said he had not. Troopers used the patrol car public address system to order the suspect to sit up and raise his hands. Six repetitions of the order resulted in no response from the suspect.

According to the report, a second patrol car then arrived at the scene. One of the troopers from this car approached the first patrol car while the second officer took a position in a wooded area on the south side of Seven Mile. The suspect got out of the cab, the report states, and was ordered to raise his hands. "I ain't got no gun. I didn't do nothing," the suspect reportedly said.

A search of both the suspect and cab turned up no evidence of a weapon. The suspect had a bottle of vodka tucked into his clothing. In subsequent questioning, the driver told police the man had asked him to drive to a street near Seven Mile and Lahser. When told the cab driver would not go that far without money "up front" the suspect reportedly asked about a "flat rate" of $6 for the

The driver said he stopped the cab and told the man to get out, that he wasn't going all the way across town for $6. Then, according to the driver, the

The suspect then directed the driver to turn on Davison, asked that the radio be turned on, and then, according to the driver, said, "Shut the meter off at $5 and there won't be no robbery when we get there." The driver said he did not respond to the comment, but a few minutes later the suspect said, "I already paid you, right?'

The driver said he then turned onto westbound I-96. The suspect, according to the driver, fell asleep in the backseat. The driver contacted the cab company dispatch office by radio and advised that his passenger was going to rob him and that he felt the man probably had a gun.

The dispatcher advised the driver to go to the nearest police station. But, the driver said, he was by this time far west of his usual territory, did not know where a police station was and opted to stay on the freeway, driving at 75 miles per hour in hopes of attracting police at-

The driver said he later saw a freeway sign advising of the presence of the state police post, exited the freeway and was headed for the post when he spotted the patrol car. The driver said he blinked his headlights at the patrol car and, after seeing police turn around behind him, stopped the car. At this point, the driver told police, asked "Are we at Seven Mile and Lahser?"

The driver told police that at no time had he seen a gun, nor had the suspect ever made reference to one. He advised police that the suspect "made him nervous" from the time he entered the cab, smelled heavily of intoxicants, and that the driver believed the man had a gun.

Police are seeking prosecution of the 23-year-old Detroit man. They did not reveal the suspect's responses to ques-

Northville township police are alerting area merchants to be wary of suspicious person(s) following Thursday night's armed robbery of a Speedway gas station at Five Mile and Sheldon roads.

It also was noted that the Speedway hold-up fits the pattern of recent armed robberies which have occurred about every other week in the Plymouth area. According to Plymouth police, a man came into the station at 15255 Sheldon Road about 9:30 p.m. and said he was waiting for a wrecker because his car was broken down.

"During this period he stated he worked at the Detroit House of Corrections in the maintenance department,' the report states.

After waiting almost 30 minutes, the man allegedly grabbed the female cashier and forced her into the back room. He announced it was a hold up and threatened to kill the woman.

After taking the cash, the man turned to leave and told the cashier not to leave ne back room or he would kill her. The man was described as black, in his 30s, about 5-feet-8, short Afro hair, medium build, wearing a burgundy coat with printing on the back and blue pants.

Previous armed robberies in the Plymouth area included two fast-food establishments.

The Kentucky Fried Chicken Store at 1349 Ann Arbor Road was held up at 9:45 p.m. March 8. An undetermined amount of cash was taken.

The Pizza Salon at 9456 Lilley was held up at about 9:15 p.m. February 27. Some $120 was taken.

The Kentucky Fried Chicken robbery involved two black men wearing coats with the hoods up, while the pizza store robbery involved a lone black man wearing a coat with the hood up leading police to believe the incidents were related Plymouth Police Lieutenant Robert Commire said officers aren't certain if the gas station robbery is related to the other two.

However, police do believe the robbers' pattern involves scouting shops out before holding them up. For that reason, local shop owners are being encouraged to call police any time they spot suspicious activity.

In the event a robbery does take place at a store, police suggest employees cooperate with the gunmen and give them what they ask for. Employees should try to remember things such as what the suspect looks like, what type of clothing is worn and what type of vehicle is involved.

A 1984 Chevy was stolen from the parking area of Swan Lake Drive sometime between 8 p.m. March 26 and 6:30 a.m. March 27, township police report.

Budget, raises passed

Township trustees adopted a 1985-86 fiscal year budget of $1.65 million last week, including pay raises for the supervisor and clerk.

Salaries of $19,000 for supervisor Susan Heintz and $15,000 for clerk Georgina Goss passed without comment at the board's March 28 public hearing and budget approval session.

Final budget figures were somewhat higher than those initially proposed during budget hearings in early March, with revenue figures refined to show several thousand dollars more than originally projected.

The new budget also includes approved expenses for the library, recreation and senior citizens' services offered jointly with the city. City approval is required to complete those budgets.

The senior citizen budget was adopted after township and city officials met to discuss a controversial proposal to make the position of senior citizen coordinator a full-time one. In final form, the budget adds to the number of hours to be paid, but keeps the job a part-time one.

Also included, though questioned during the hearing process, is a $1.500 donation to the Northville Jaycees to had a spectacular year. We've got a identical donation contingent on township approval.

Township manager David Lelko told board members that, if the charter township form of government is adopted, the current budget will have to be amended. Charter townships operate on a January 1-December 31 fiscal year while general law townships run an April 1-March 31 year.

A new budget ending this December would have to be drafted if the board votes (likely next month) to incorporate as a charter township. Other provisions of charter township status that would take effect include a requirement for quarterly financial statements by the treasurer and a requirement that a budget for the following fiscal year be completed by November 1.

Last week's budget adoption session included annual reports by the supervisor and treasurer. Both Heintz and treasurer Richard Henningsen praised the township staff, the supervisor repeatedly asserting that Northville Township is "the best" and her intention to make sure it continues that way.

Henningsen said he "thinks we've help offset the cost of the Fourth of July very professional group here and celebrations. City council approved an they've done another outstanding job."

The Northville Record

Our Opinions Geake's absence hurts his district

Why did State Senator R. Robert Geake (R-Northville Township) not attend the meeting at which legislators first approved the state's proposal to buy the Detroit House of Correction?

Geake says he didn't go to the joint capital outlay committee meeting because he couldn't support the bill proposed, did not have support from his cohorts for the amendments that would make the DeHoCo purchase palatable and did not want to be the only one in opposition. He contends his stronger position in the senate appropriations committee will enable him to be more effective when the bill comes before him there.

We question his reasoning. This is an issue of crucial importance to his district, which includes both Northville and Plymouth townships. The point is not to defeat state purchase of DeHoCo, which is presently a prison and arguably an efficient means of acquiring added prison space without imposing an additional burden on the community. The point is to ensure that the townships' acceptance of the purchase translates into concessions by the state that no further prison sites will be required of them and that the prison population be limited to manageable size. If at all possible, the political leverage presented by this issue should also be used to hasten sale of the stateowned Plymouth Center for Human Development to private interests.

Geake's absence from the capital outlay committee meeting at which these issues should have been addressed does nothing to further these aims. That he is a member of the committee should be an asset in the DeHoCo fight his senior position in the majority party is one reason we advised voters to support Geake in his last election. Now it comes time for the community to reap the benefits of that position, and the senator doesn't employ it. In Geake's absence, no one else could raise the local concerns. And, without his negative vote on the record, other legislators who look to the committee decision for guidance see only unanimous approval. Had he attended the meeting, Geake might have suffered a defeat. But, in the process, he could have made clear the position of the Northville/-Plymouth area on institutional uses

Our concern goes beyond this one vote. Why was the senator unable to gather the necessary support from his fellow senators, particularly those of his own party, for conditions to be placed on the DeHoCo purchase? Even if he didn't have enough votes to get his amendments approved, why was he going to be the only one opposed to the purchase bill without them? The support was there from some of the same people when similar concerns were raised a few weeks ago in connection with another bill providing funds to operate DeHoCo. What happened to that support when the actual purchase came up?

At best, the senator has made a mistake which may be corrected later. By taking a walk on this vote, however, he has perhaps indicated to other legislators that the local opposition is not very strong. That perception can hurt efforts at every subsequent stage of the legislative process.

We are puzzled by the senator's reluctance to stand firm on this issue of vital concern to his district. He is unafraid to be defeated, as he routinely is, when proposing radical changes in state welfare spending. Last year, he garnered a lot of publicity for proposing that general assistance payments be eliminated during the summer months. This year he has proposed that the Medicaid program be turned over to private contractors. Both bills were virtually assured of defeat from the outset.

They also assured the senator would get a lot of publicity and please voters who resent paying taxes to support welfare spending. The DeHoCo issue doesn't pay those political benefits. Voting against the purchase bill, as Geake would have had to do if the moratorium and capacity issues were not addressed, might have been perceived as being opposed to the expansion of the prison system. We can't help but wonder whether the senator isn't simply reluctant to stand in opposition to the vast political power arrayed in support of more prisons.

Such reluctance would be understandable, maybe even acceptable, from one whose district was not directly affected. But that is not the case with Senator Geake. We expect our legislators to be willing to take a strong stand on issues of direct concern to this district. A stand opposing the DeHoCo purchase unless local concerns are resolved might be unpopular in some quarters, but should please the voters who actually sent the senator to Lansing.

We suggest that voters keep an eye on Geake's actions when the DeHoCo purchase issue comes back to the senate. We, too, will be watching. A lot of powerful politicians are playing hard ball on the prison issue — if Northville is to have any say at all in the matter, our senator is going to have to come to bat.

Act on fire station

Northville Township ought to give serious consideration to the idea of conducting a special election this year to gain voter approval to sell bonds for construction of a second fire station.

The strong margin by which voters last year approved the land purchase on Seven Mile west of Beck seems indicative of their desire to see this fire hall built. Without a special election this year, it would be August, 1986, before the bond issue could go before the voters. Given the need to sell bonds, solicit construction bids and perform other tasks, it seems unlikely that the new station could be completed before early 1987 in that event.

There are two good reasons to pursue fire station construction earlier " bat — one is the evident voter support for the idea and the second is to avoid escalation in either construction costs or bond interest rates if the project is delayed.

Voter approval this summer could provide a useable fire hall even before that August, 1986, election. The township has prudently included funds for a special election in the current fiscal year budget, just in case a petition is filed in opposition to the move to charter township. The deadline for filing such petitions is April 29, and no one has yet begun circulating petitions. Assuming the charter township election is not needed, we suggest the board consider conducting a special election for fire hall funding. If the charter township election is needed, the fire station issue easily could be included on the same ballot.

Working parent blues

by Kevin Wilson

It had become my new routine. Get the boys, ages 2½ years and five months, out of bed, fed, dressed and packed into the car, together with the load of diapers, bottles and toys that must go with them. Dash across town to the home of whatever kind relative or friend had agreed to watch them that day, pass along detailed instructions about which one ate, slept or played with what, when and where. Then on to work, arriving half-exhausted and totally discouraged.

That doesn't make me special. Parents all over the country go through this hectic process every workday morning. With the right arrangements and some practice, it becomes easier. In a few days, I'd cut two hours out of the time it took, in half-hour or 15 minute increments. I've heard tell of cruel fathers who load all the responsibility for this stuff on their wives without a second thought. Knowing first-hand what it's all about, though, I couldn't do that to anyone I loved. We split the duties, dad serving before work, mom after.

Our carefully-planned child care arrangements, which would have made almost all that fuss unnecessary, fell through at the worst possible time. Working full-time and dashing off in every direction at once, neither of us had the time or energy to find another sitter. It became a circular nightmare, as the lack of time to find a sitter meant more time rushing about, which left less time to find a sitter.

Anyway, this particular morning was the ultimate. Both boys loaded into the car, I climbed behind the wheel only to realized I'd forgotten the diaper bag. No problem, just dash into the house and fetch it. At least it's no problem if you haven't left your keys on top of the diaper bag inside the locked house. And if it doesn't start raining in sheets.

After carefully explaining what was going on to the older child, asking him to entertain the baby and slamming my coat in the car door, I set out to break into my own home. The kitchen window, I knew, was my best bet. The only reason I don't worry about that weak spot in the house's defenses is that the dog lives outside, right under the window. Sixty-five pounds of German Shepherd provides a powerful disincentive to entry.

Since I feed her, I had only to tolerate muddy dog prints on my trousers. Stacking assorted backyard furnishings (a table made from one of those huge spools used for cable, three cinder blocks and a milk crate from the garage), I climbed up and through the window, killing only two plants and breaking only 40 cents worth of returnable bottles. Then slipped in the newly formed puddle, stumbled into the living room and got what I needed

Before opening the car door, I knew it was trouble. I could see the baby's red face, nearly hidden behind his screaming mouth. It wasn't the sound that drove me back from the door, but the odor. What else would a baby do given 10 minutes to sit? The toddler was saying "It's okay Greg, Daddy came back," but the baby wasn't buying. I'd started out with a 20-minute cushion in my schedule. That was long gone, and there was no time to change a baby in a tiny econobox. Off we went to grandma's house.

Ten miles down the road, the baby stopped screaming. But only as long as the car was moving. Which, of course, meant stop-and-go traffic. Incredibly frustrated when I got cut off at a light, I leaned on the car horn. I couldn't hear it for the baby. Sean sat quietly in back, absorbing it all. Every so often he'd tell me he'd seen a truck, or a stop sign, or a Volkswagen. Or echo, "Come on lady, move that heap."

I survived. So did they. There's a new sitter and the crazy stuff may be done for a little while. It was Sunday afternoon that Sean sat in his mother's lap while she vainly struggled to tie his shoes. He picked up a little, diecast toy Corvette and drove it up his mother's arm. "I'm driving you crazy, Mom," he said, peeping under his bangs across the room at me.

It wasn't the first time that line drew laughter from his parents, but I'm begining to think the kid has a vague idea that it's a pun. He's also learning to laugh at life and the curves it throws you. The best part is, he's teaching me the same thing.

Some people have lives that go to the dogs. My life is going to the cats.

In response to popular demand, I try not to write much about the three real-life cats —. Bonnie, Clyde and Bowser, who inhabit my humble abode, eat my food and sleep in my hed

But the real problem is that my catloving wife apparently believes three real-life cats are not enough. It's bad enough that you can't go anywhere without tripping over Bonnie, Clyde or Bowser, but lately my wife is making cats an intrinsic part of her interior design efforts.

We have cat pictures on the walls, stuffed cats on the mantel, cat trivets on the kitchen table, more stuffed cats on the couch and Early American hand-carved cats on the chelves

If you've ever heard Prairie Home Companion on the radio, you know that one of the show's primary sponsors is Bertha's Kitty Boutique in downtown Lake Woebegone, Minnesota.

On a recent show, Bertha's offered a special on designer cats — real-life cats to match any interior decorating color scheme. Bertha should meet my wife. In fact, Bertha might want to take pictures of our home to illustrate how cats can be used as accent

At any rate, I finally had to set down the law last week. I arrived home to find three new cats staring at me from the mantel.

"Aren't they wonderful," she enthused. "Look at them sitting up there. And did you see the little mouse that one of them's chasing? I just couldn't resist them."

"How much?" I asked.

"They're hand-carved by an artist from Ohio," she responded. "He's quite well-known. Has a national reputation. He's one of the leading handcrafters in the United States. He's been written up in all the crafts magazines.

"How much?" I asked.

"His work's on permanent display in the National Museum of Modern Art," she responded.

She never did tell my how much those wooden cats cost, but I suppose I should look at the bright side — at least I won't have to buy them any cat litter.

Law will attempt to get the moratorium amendment added in the house appropriations committee, he said. Failing that, he said he would propose the amendment on the house floor. Asked if he would attempt to insert the amendments on the senate side if Law failed, Geake said "possibly."

Another issue is the number of inmates to be housed at DeHoCo. The state department of management and budget has been seeking 750 beds on a temporary basis, stating that permanent population would be 500.

Law, who attended the capital outlay meeting but is not a member, said management and budget staff members referred to a "compromise" that would allow 650 prisoners, with reduction to 500 required when the nearby Scott Regional prison is oc-

Law said that was the first he had ever heard of such a compromise. Geake said he had refused to agree to the population figures proposed. "There had been some discussion of that (650 figure)," he said "They (DMB) tried to get me to agree to that. I told them I would not, because I don't know that the townships (Plymouth and Northville) would accept that." Law said a population figure higher than 500 might be acceptable only if it were strictly controlled and the local community's other concerns are met.

"I'm very afraid that was is tem-porary becomes permanent," Law said. "It may be that we can write language to ensure that the temporary beds are phased out. If you have to give up a little (on the population issue) in order to get something else, then you'd better have it in writing.'

Local officials had also hoped to challenge a portion of the purchase agreement that calls for the state to hire the City of Detroit employees presently working at DeHoCo. Most of those employees are now laid off, since the county prisoners housed at DeHoCo have mostly been transferred to the new county jail in the Greektown portion of Detroit.

Geake had charged that the Detroit employees were paid substantially more than state corrections department workers. Law said last week he had discovered that was incorrect.

"The problem was that Detroit wouldn't release the salary figures,' Law said. "It used to be the case that Detroit workers made more, but they've had a pay freeze for a while, while the state has been granting in-

Today, Law said, his understanding is that "except for a group in skilled trades that are higher," salaries of the Detroit employees are lower than the state department of corrections payscales.

"They'll have the option of coming to work for the state," Law said. "Some of them may bump into other positions with Detroit. We were afraid the state was going to pay these people more than we pay people in other state prisons. Apparently a lot of that problem has solved itself. You have to go through all the civil service stuff of reclassifying people, but if they're just a normal employee of DeHoCo, they're probably making less than they would with the state."

Heintz, however, said pay scales are less the issue than is holding the corrections department to its word. "All they've done is say we would benefit from having a prison here," she said. "The point is really, this is supposed to promote the local economy and create jobs Supposedly, a 'fringe benefit' of having a prison facility is jobs. Then they tell us they'll have maybe 11 job openings and they have to

What is that? We would assume if they tout all these great benefits, we would have at least some say in their hiring decisions.'

The senate has already adjourned for its Easter break. The house was expected to do so without finalizing arrangements for DeHoCo. Law noted that the state has already got approval to spend $2 million renovating DeHoCo for use, but that the funding is tied to the purchase agreement.

The state's target date to house prisoners at DeHoCo is June 1. 'They've got a real crush on to do something fast," he said.

"The idea is to get the vendors and merchants to park at the Downs that day," Lapham said. "Someone who parks downtown and stays all day takes up a parking space that might serve 30 or 40 customers in that time. If we blockade the other parking areas until 9 a.m., the only place the vendors will be able to go will be the Downs lot. It should work out pretty well for them with their spaces in the MAGS lot."

He said the DPW had agreed to erect the blockades and that the business organizations would station people at each parking entrance to direct vendors and merchants to the Downs area. 'At 9 a.m. we'd open the parking lots

At Tuesday morning's chamber meeting the motion to have monies collected and bills paid by the chamber before the 50-50 profit split was approved on a trial basis, committing both only to this year. Motion passed with Folino dissenting.

The request to split the proceeds from the City Garage Sale "for this year only" was made by Charles Lapham who attended the chamber session with Diana Fisher to represent the merchants' association. Chamber president Sherry Spaman explained the garage sale is one of the counted-upon sources of chamber income along with dues, the farmer's market and flea markets.

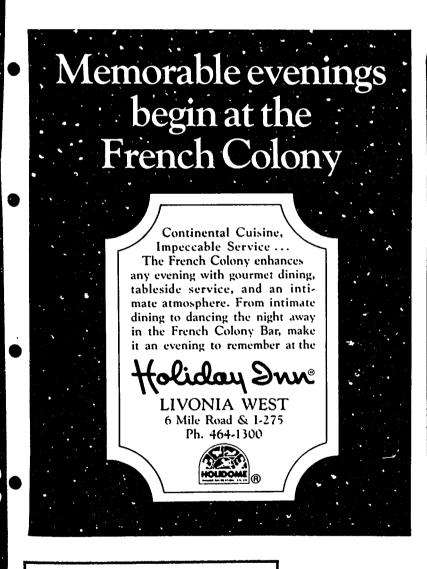

"We have a rather set income," she said, but in recognition of the merchants' association need for funds at this time voted in favor of the split.

Gardner made the motion with Betty Allen, Jean Day and Spaman voting yes. Scott Lapham, who originally abstained, then voted yes to make .a. quorum. It was Scott Lapham, as a chamber member, who originally proposed the garage sale.

Gardner and councilmember Paul Folino at Monday's council meeting made the motion to allow use of the city lot for the sale, and to have parking lots closed until 9 a.m. Council also approved use of city sign boards from May 10 to 18 to promote the sale.

Women trackers look like winners

By B.J. MARTIN

Ann Turnbull sounded like the "before" character in a Nyquil commercial Sunday. But a nasty spring cold couldn't dampen her enthusiasm for the squad she returns to coach this spring — possibly Norlhville's best women's track team in years.

We're going to be stronger than last year overall because we've got better depth," said Turnbull, now in her third year of coaching the Mustangs. "We'll have enough people to fill every event."

There are 35 runners as of this week, among them a handful of potential record-setters.

By now, the story of CINDY PANOWICZ is well documented. The senior enters her last season of prep competition as Northville's all-time best female track athlete, owner of school records in the 220, 440, long jump, 110 and 330-yard hurdles.

This year Panowicz will take aim at D'Arcy Pickren's 14-year-old school record of 5'3" in the high jump. Panowicz already has cleared 5'0" indoors this season and has gone 5'31/2" in summer track competition.

"Cindy's a little out of shape right now. She really needed to take a break last winter," said Turnbull. "We'll try to work her back into long jump, too, to get her ready for the heptathlon after she graduates."

There are only three more seniors on the squad: JENNIFER TRAUSCH, MICHELLE CRAIG and LISA ANDERSON. After a fine sophomore season as a half-miler and high jumper, Trausch sat out her junior year with a work conflict. This season, she should help the Mustangs considerably in those two events.

Craig, a varsity cheerleader for two years, will give Northville depth in sprints, while Anderson bolsters the Mustangs' depth in distance events.

Leading a good crop of juniors is dependable distance runner WENDY NUECHTERLEIN. Blessed with good endurance (she may run the mile, twomile and the two-mile relay regularly), Nuechterlein should improve this season with speed work, Turnbull believes. A good hurdler, LYNN BILLS is nursing a groin injury, and will run distance events until she is again able to do hurdles.

SUE BLANCHARD and PAM CAVANAUGH will be important middle-distance personnel, with Blanchard taking a leg on the two-mile relay team. MARY HOWLEY and SALLY KLENK will help Northville in sprints, and Howley as well in long jump, high jump and hurdles.

First-year trackers TRACY NELSON and JULIE
TRAUSCH, both middle-distance runners, round out the juniors.

Sophomore ANNE GRIFFITH returns after shattering Northville High School's record in the 1,600 meters as a freshman with her fourth-place finish at last yéar's Western Lakes meet. Griffith has also been impressive in discus this spring. Classmate KATHY ALFINITO should help in distance events

SHARI THOMPSON is on schedule to improve her freshman marks in shot and discus. SUE AUSTIN will see time in the 440 and 880. DIANE EUSEBI figures to boost the sprinters and long jumpers when she fully recovers from her Achilles tendon injury. AMY GASSAR will sprint and probably do some shot and discus work.

First-year runners include sprinters CHERYL SKOLARUS, LISA TEUBERT, CAROL OLSEN,

KRIS MARRONE already has vastly improved her personal best time in the 330 hurdles and is running stronger than last season. Also showing strong performances this spring are sprinters SUSIE RAHIMI and KAREN STINSON, both of whom will see plenty of relay work.

There are few freshmen on the squad, but all show signs of becoming valuable trackers in future years. JENNIFER GOSHORN, a fine cross-country runner, will run in distance events from the 880 on up. CHRISTY LENAGHAN has been among the team's sharpest-looking sprinters in the early season, as has ERIN HOLMBERG.

In fact, the freshmen are rich in sprinters. KELLY PADDEN, CHERYL GARR and AMY WENDT also figure in Northville's future plans in short events.

While Turnbull would like to direct at least some of her young talent toward distance events, she feels there won't be too many gaps in Northville's attack this year. "I'd say we may be a little weak in shot and discus because of our inexperience - and we'll have to work on our two-mile relay," she said.

Relay meet's tough going

Northville's women trackers didn't come away from Saturday's Spartan Relays with any points - but then, many of the 60-odd teams in attendance came away emptyhanded as well.

Cindy Panowicz cleared 5'0" in the high jump, but did not place. She turned in a quick 8.6 in the 55-meter hurdles, but even that effort did not land her in the final heat.

Wendy Nuechterlein failed to place in the 3,200 meters, but the junior distance runner appeared to be running strong. Karen Stinson, Erin Holmberg, Christy Lenaghan and Panowicz clocked a solid 3:06 in the 400-200-200-400 sprint medley relay, among the 12 fastest times at the meet. The 4x200 relay team of Lenaghan, Mary Howley, Holmberg and Panowicz ran a good early-season time

Earlier in the week, Northville scrimmaged Ann Arbor Huron. The Mustangs had some good early-season showings from the 4x800 meter relay team (Anne Griffith, Pam Cavanaugh, Sue Blanchard, Jennifer Goshorn), which broke the old school record with a time of 11:04.0.

Mary Howley took first in long jump (15'1") and Kris Marrone placed second (14'4"). Shari Thompson turned in a 26'4'4" shot put, and Griffith launched a 66'61/2" toss in discus. Griffith clocked a sixminute metric mile, and Panowicz turned in good early-season times of 15.79 in the 100 meter highs and 48.0 in the 300 meter lows.

Lenaghan and Nuechterlein placed first in the 200 and the 3,200 respectively. Karen Stinson ran a 64.0 in the 400, and Jennifer Trausch turned in a third-place finish in the Mustangs lose opener to Huron

"They're tough," Northville men's track Coach Paul Osborn admitted. They've got speed, and they're quite strong in field events.'

He was talking about Ann Arbor Huron, who tripped Northville 113-24 last Wednesday to open the Mustang thinclads' '85 season.

Despite the score, Osborn said he saw some encouraging performances at the meet. John Briningstool won the 200 meters in 24.5 seconds, and he clocked a strong 16.6 in the 110 meter highs for se-

The 4x100 meter relay team (Rich Gird, Briningstool, Rick Van Buren and Dana Letarte) clocked a quick 47.4, just two seconds off the school record. The Mustangs' 4x200 relay was also impressive, with Tom Broderick, Briningstool, Van Buren and Tim Millen combining for a 1:40.9.

Saturday, the Mustangs sent 16 entrants to the Spartan Relays in East Lansing, one of the early season's premier track events. Northville did not place in any event, but the meet provided a showcase for some respectable early-season times.

In the 4x200 relay, Irven Meadows, Jeff Harp, Brett Netke and Gird combined for a 1:42. Matt Winquist clocked a 5:08 in the 1,600 and looked strong in the 3,200 as well.

Freshman Matt Ashby went 5'0" in the high jump, where he appears to be potentialy valuable.

'They're about where I want them to be at this stage of the season," Osborn said of the Mustangs. "Most of them are headed for Florida over spring break. Hopefully they won't lose too much of their conditioning.'

Osborn added that sophomore Tony Briningstool has joined the team.

Cinderella II

Last year's championship season will be a tough act to follow for Mustang kickers

By B.J. MARTIN

Northville's varsity soccer team was THE Cinderella story in Michigan prep athletics last

There was an Evil Queen in top-rated Livonia Stevenson, who expected to poison Northville in the state final as easily as the Spartans had earlier in the season.

There were catty stepsisters in the pollsters who rated Northville no higher than seventh in the state as late as the last week of the season, and in rival coaches who were noticeably uncharitable toward Northville when post-season honors were handed

There was a happy ending, just like Cinderella's, of course. But there was one big difference. Cinderella lived happily ever after, while Northville's varsity soccer team has to start from scratch to prove 1984 was no fluke.

Don't be surprised if they do exactly that. "I feel it's a pressure situation for the kids," says Mustang Coach Stan Smalec. "But we can hold our own against any team in the state. We have a lot to prove. The league's gotten better.

"I think defending the championship will work for the girls," he adds. "We have two priorities this year: one, get through the season academically and physically, and two, go as far as we can in post-

"The state finals are 20 games away. We've been there, and we know we just have to play each game and maintain a team approach. But we'll give 'em a

The main reason Northville is likely to return to the top is its tremendous defense, spearheaded by back CHERYL SPAMAN and midfielder KATHY KOROWIN, both seniors.

'In practice the other day, we had the entire forward line work on scoring against just Cheryl and Kathy," Smalec says. "And they never got a shot Spaman returns as one of the Western Lakes Activities Association's top defensive players, an all-division pick last year. "There is nobody as tough as Cheryl," Smalec declares. "No one gets in front of her when she's going for the ball.

"We're trying to find ways to work her into our of-nse," he adds. "She's got a throw-in you can't believe, and by now everyone knows about her kicking ability."

Smalec has already used up most of his superlatives to describe Korowin. Simply put, she's in the first rank of Michigan's soccer players. Her style is classic; she plays aggressive defense, and has speed and endurance to spare. Most of all, she possesses a computer-like field sense that keys Northville's transitions from offense to defense and back again.

Senior co-captains for the Mustangs are JULIE NOWKA and LINDA TOWNSEND. Nowka was an honorable mention back for Northville last season and brings consistency and quiet leadership in the backfield. Townsend will be counted on to bolster Northville's forward line both as a forward sweeper and wing. Classmate JILL BEMER is one of three candidates for a job at left wing and packs one of the hardest shots on the team.

GAYNELLE WAGNER, Korowin's all-division counterpart at midfield, has improved her kicking strength to the point where it complements her aggressive defense. "When she wants a ball, that ball is hers," Smalec says. Another senior midfielder is KERRY LENAGHAN, coming off some knee pro-blems last year. The senior has good speed and a strong throw-in.

There are only two juniors on the team: AMY PREVO and SUE LACHANCE. Prevo, a transfer student from Garden City, has a hard accurate, leftfooted shot and may get some starts at left wing. LaChance doubles as team trainer. "Sue does immeasurable services for the team," Smalec says. "She's a hard worker and helped keep some of our players in the game with her trainer skills. She's a good kid to have on the team.'

There's a bevy of sophomores who immediately will figure in the team's plans after spending their freshman seasons on last year's varsity. With her ability to distribute the ball well on offense, JULIE ANGER is the leading candidate to replace graduated scoring machine Lisa Cahill at center forward. At the opposite end of the field, TRICIA DUCKER returns as the team's regular goalkeeper after an impressive freshman season.

KIM FLADING continues to improve steadily as a midfielder. JILL GALLAGHER also returns from last year's squad, and is playing with improved kicking power and confidence this spring, according to Smalec. JENNY KUFFNER, a halfback sweeper, appears to be the team's most improved player this season, he notes.

ROXANNE SERKAIAN, a tough, strong-kicking defender, doubles as backup goalkeeper. "We'll work her in quite a bit, I expect," Smalec says. MICHELLE CROSS, a quick, hustling-type player, has the makings of a "great fullback," he adds.

NICKI GRASLEY will be a backup midfielder, and will likely see enough playing time to prepare her for regular duty next season.

New sophomore recruits include ROBIN STRUNK and AMY SPAMAN. Strunk was a sprinter/long jumper on the track team last year. Smalec says her technical finesse is limited, but her athletic skills - toughness, speed to burn and a good cross from the wing - make her a strong candidate for a starting job on the line. Amy Spaman plays much like her older sister, Cheryl — she's a defender, a strong kicker, and has good speed and

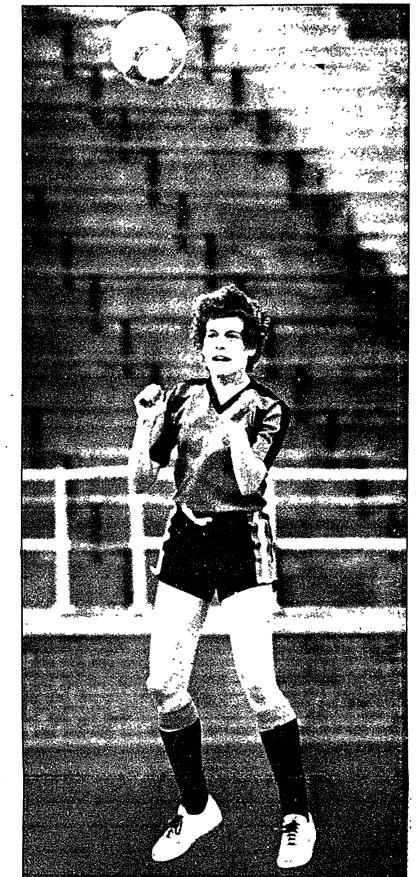

The Mustangs will carry four freshmen. LISA IRWIN provides dependability and ball control skills on the forward line. Tough, gutsy RONA MILLER can play anywhere — she packs an excellent cross and can play at midfield or defense if JODI SMALEC, the coach's kid, will back up Flading or Lenaghan. She uses the field well and is developing into an aggressive defender. JENNY SCHUERMAN possesses the physical skills to be a fine player in the future, and the senior Smalec expects her to start delivering as she acquires confidence and playing time.

Smalec believes his team's speed and ag-gressiveness compares favorably with the other teams in the league, although he expects nemeses Stevenson, Plymouth Canton and Livonia Churchill to push Northville hard, especially in the busier parts of the schedule.

Doug Lyon, a technical medicine student now at Schoolcraft College, returns to assist Smalec. "He works with the defense and on shooting techniques. I don't know how I'd do it by myself.'

Northville opens its season at 4 p.m. today against division rival Farmington Harrison, at home.

Cooke swimmers set a new relay record

With two straight division championships, one might think Northville's varsity swim team may have peaked. But recent performances by young swimmers from Cooke Junior High sug-

Cooke's 4x100 freestyle relay record, formerly owned by upperclassmen tankers Dave Wayne, Lisa Felicelli. John Gass and Ron Johnston, was shattered this season by a team of two girls and two boys: Susan Settles, Debbie Buell, John Warren and Andy Wayne. The old mark of 4:00:00 is now a quick 3:54.6.

"It shows our program is getting better and better," observed
Cooke Swim Coach (and women's varsity coach) Bill Dicks. The team went 5-0 for the third straight year and again won its junior high relay meet.

Dicks also coaches the Northville Gators Swim Club, a team which has played no small part in conditioning many of Northville's top young swimmers. He encourages parents of youngsters interested in joining the Gators to phone him at the high school pool (349-3406).

Local firm serves microfilm market

By MATT SEIDL

It's 6:30 a.m. and most life forms in the same time zone have yet to finish their orange juice. Nonetheless, Ray Dunn, decked out in a sharp suit and tie, already is going about his daily duties as president of Pioneer Microfilm in Dunn, along with 22 employees, make up the firm which is part of a growing business trend throughout Michigan, the United States and several portions of the world.

Microfilming, actually invented in the late 1940s, has taken off recently. Not only are the major corporations using it, but also many smaller and independent businesses.

The reason for the microfilm demand, according to Dunn, is efficiency. "In today's business world, time and space mean money," he said while sitting in his office. "Microfilm has been around a long time, but the last five or six years, the need has become much greater.

"Big companies can't keep storing their folders full of records unless they rent out a warehouse or something," he continued. "Microfilm takes up very little space, and it's organized. You can get to whatever you need in a matter of known as jackets. The process of workers leading toward the finished product is similar to the product — efficient. There are several checks within the system itself to prevent mistakes, something which becomes more uncommon by the minute in business today. The equipment at Pioneer also is fascinating. The photography machine instantly records the documents as the worker passes them over the receiver, and then once the film is developed, there are several time-saving devices which load rolls and fill jackets.

'It's a very interesting process," Dunn agreed. "But I feel there will be more changes in the future which will improve things even more.

"I'm talking about technology," he explained. "For example, pretty soon things may be coming out on laser disks. We definitely need to move with the times, so don't be surprised if some changes occur in the near future.'

Currently, Pioneer uses two types of formats — roll and microfiche. A roll is simply the microfilm rolled up on a roll, while a microfiche is a sheet of microfilm containing rows of microfilm in reduced form.

"Retrieval is the only difference," Dunn commented. "A roll can have 3,000 different images on it. With microfiche, you can locate things a lot easier and faster."

Most of Pioneer's customers are hospitals, clinics and individual doctors. Dunn has dealt with some credit unions as well. To date, Pioneer is involved with 40 hospitals in five different

"I worked in a hospital for 17 years and so did my sales manager, so that's where most of our ties come from." Dunn said. "Hospitals are an obvious place where microfilming is a necessi-

"As for dealing with other companies, it really hasn't been that big of an issue with us," he said matter-offactly. "I guess someday we'll concentrate on some other areas, but hospitals still are where microfilming is needed the most.

Before initiating Pioneer Microfilm, which only has three peers in the Detroit area, Dunn was an x-ray and nuclear technician. He received all his training while in the service at Texas.

"I did this on the side for a few years, but then in 1979, I quit my hospital job and took this up full-time," Dunn remembered. "I think it was a good decision. I'm very happy with what I'm Dunn recently received the 'Employer of the Year' award from the Tri-County Business and Professional Women (BPW) organization. Women dominated this place," he laughed. "Out of the 22 employees, only three are male.'

New law requires state to pay promptly

Businesses which sell goods and services to the State of Michigan now will receive financial compensation from the state when they are not paid on

A law designed to make sure the state makes prompt payments on its purchases from the private sector, Public Act 279, stipulates that the state will have to pay an additional percentage of the amount due as a penalty for late payment.

The financial penalty for late payments will be three-quarters of one percent, or nine percent per year, depending on the length of time that payment

John Galles, executive director of the Small Business Association of Michigan (SBAM), said the new law will be especially helpful for small firms in the state which can least afford overdue payments for projects and services delivered.

'It's high time that the state stop taking advantage of its suppliers and be charged a penalty when it doesn't make payments on time," said

In addition to compensating providers of goods and services for loss of their funds, the legislation creates an incentive for state departments to use more efficient accounting systems because it man-

ROBERT WALKER of Novi has been elected secretary of Delta Dental Plan of Michigan.

Walker is administrative assistant to UAW vice president International Union. He has served on Delta's board since 1977 and is a former president of UAW Local 735.

Delta, a nonprofit service corporation, administers prepaid dental benefits programs for over 1.7 million people in Michigan, including State of Michigan employees and the UAW-bargaining employees of General Motors and Chrysler. It is headquartered in Okemos with a branch office in Southfield.

JAMES PAULEY of Northville has been named to the AAA :Michigan President's Honor Club for outstanding sales efforts in 1984.

The Honor Club is an elite corps of sales representatives who had outstanding success last year in selling AAA memberships and life and homeowner's insurance policies," explained AAA Michigan Sales Director Erwin Judge. A plaque and company pin were presented recently to each member of the President's Honor Club in ceremonies at the Amway Grand Plaza in Grand Rapids.

Pauley is a sales representative at the Farmington AAA office.

Single-family homes top housing market

Predictions several years ago of a shift in housing away from detached single-family homes to condominiums shows little signs of taking place, according to the Metro MLS.

Metro MLS President Robert Craver noted that a recently released survey on homebuying last year conducted by the National Association of Realtors showed nearly nine out of 10 moves were into detached homes. "Almost two thirds of sales were made to repeat buyers which indicates that even veteran homeowners continue to favor this type of housing," said Craver.

The study was based on responses from 1,200 homebuyers throughout the nation and showed a median age of 33 and a median income of $35,950. More than eight of 10 sales were existing homes with a median price of $63,000. New homes had a median price of $78,750.

A financial profile revealed that 40 percent of homebuyers relied primarily on equity from previous homes for a downpayment on a new residence. Another 34 percent were about evenly divided in deriving the downpayment from savings and from loans.

The source for a first mortgage for almost four of 10 buyers was a savings and loan association with another 31 percent using a mortgage banker and 14 percent a commercial bank.

"This follows the trend noted by members of our multiple listing service that indicates buyers are returning to more conventional financing methods," Craver said. "It also was interesting to note that homesellers had lived in their previous home an average of seven years. Only 14 percent indicated that had helped the buyer with financing in the form of a first or second mortgage, installment contract, land contract or contract for deed."

The survey also showed continued strong reliance on professional service in the buying and selling of homes. Seventy percent of sellers used a real estate broker throughout the process and another five percent first tried selling the home themselves and then listed it with a broker. Adding endorsement to broker service, 71 percent said they would use the agent again to sell a house and 74 percent used the same broker to purchase a new dwelling.

Problems reported by those trying to sell on their own included getting the right price, screening buyers, time, inconvenience, understanding and performing the paperwork involved, and selling the home in the expected time.

Auto Club announces auto-leasing program

Beginning April 1, AAA Michigan, the state's largest automotive insurer, will add another member service - offering cars through the Auto Club Leasing Company.

"AAA members may lease any car through this new service but special, discounted rates are available on any of the 25 top-selling domestic vehicles," said AAA Michigan President Jack Avignone. "Our objective is to provide members with the finest and most reasonably priced program available."

Avignone said the spiraling cost of new cars was the main reason that AAA decided to offer auto leasing and that months of study showed a growing membership demand for such a ser-

"Leasing autos has become increasingly popular, and car industry analysists predict that in 10 years lease cars will make up about half of all new car deliveries." he said.

'With Auto Club leasing, there is no down payment and lease payments can be up to 40 percent lower than a monthly car payment," Avignone said.

All auto leasing programs have similarities, but the AAA package offers some features not commonly

There is a base rate of 18,000 miles per year before added mileage charges are made compared to 15,000 miles for most plans, Avignone said. Extra mileage is 6 cents per mile with AAA, but up to 10 cents per mile with some companies.

A small security deposit is required and is refundable when the car is returned in good condition. The lessee is responsible for fuel, normal maintenance, insurance and license plates, and may purchase the car at the end of the lease.

With Auto Club Leasing, added options like extended warranty plans, disability insurance and rust, paint and fabric protection are available for the 24-, 36- or 48-month lease term.

We helped Mary Farley increase her veterans benefits. Can we help you?

When we met Mary Farley, she was facing discharge from a nursing home due to her inability to meet rising costs. Sad, when you consider that, during World War II, First Lieutenant Mary Farley was a dedicated Army nurse who served at the Battle of the Bulge. Mary was always going beyond the call of duty in treating the Allied wounded. She was awarded the Bronze Star plus the Victory Medal.

As a result of Red Cross assistance, Mary was awarded additional disability benefits. With this increased income, Mary was able to afford the skilled nursing home care she needed.

Red Cross services don't end with your military discharge. We help with applications for VA educational benefits, pensions, disability compensation, insurance, medical care and changes in type of military discharge.

If you're a veteran in need of help, call your local Red Cross chapter.

We're accredited representatives of the VA. And we're veterans at helping veterans.

Collectors: A $pecial market

The ads are found often in the Sunday supplements of metropolitan newspapers. They're beautiful ads, too. Full page. Rich, four-color reproductions.

Like the one in the January 13, 1985, edition of Parade Magazine.

Announcing an original porcelain sculpture by one of America's most talented portraitists of animals. "Slowpoke" by Debbie Bell Jarratt. First in a new collection of delightful baby animal sculptures — available exclusively from The Franklin Mint.

· "Slowpoke" is a porcelain sculpture, as the ad explains, of "a mischievous rabbit and a funny little snail." Debbie Bell Jarratt, the artist, has been commissioned by The Franklin Mint to create a collection of porcelain sculptures of baby animals. "Slowpoke," the first in the series, is being offered at "the attractive price" of $45.

The ad makes it abundantly clear that "Slowpoke" is the first in a series. There are more to come. Start your collection now. Don't miss out. Get the entire set. Something you can enjoy, display and treasure.

The Franklin Mint with its substantial advertising budget may be the company best known for appealing to the individual who enjoys collecting things.

But it's hardly the only one. For years and years, companies have recognized that collectors represent a special market... a market that can be tapped time and time again with profitable results.

Take Bing and Grondahl, for example. Back in 1895 the company produced its first Christmas plate. And it's been creating a new ced Christmas plate ever since. A complete set of Bing and Grondahl plates is a valuable possession, something to be envied and adtomired.

The first plate, according to Lenore Crawford, owner of The Plate Lady on Middlebelt in Livonia, sold for 50 cents. Today it's worth more than $4,000.

The company's 1984 Christmas plate sold for $54.50.

There are hundreds of other examples — special edition Norman Rockwell plates or Hummel figurines, to name just two.

Some are great investments — just look at the Bing and Grondahl plates, while others may show no appreciation in value whatsoever.

The question is, "Do some companies produce products designed specifically to appeal to the instincts of people who are addicted to collecting things?" The answer appears to be a definite, "yes."

But if the question then becomes, "Is there anything wrong with it?" the answer appears to be a definite, "no."

Nobody forces anyone to buy anything he doesn't want. And if certain individuals enjoy collecting things — porcelain sculptures of animals, Bing and Grondahl plates or Hummel figurines, who's to say it's wrong?

Besides, some of these collectors' editions do in fact show a marked increase in value, and the happy collector not only indulges his hobby but also has something to exhibit proudly in his home which is at the same time appreciating in value.

Why do we save all those Text by silly things? Linda Theil

Howell psychologist Richard Zipper deosn't know why people collect things. But he knows they do and he thinks it is healthy.

do and he thinks it is healthy.

Linda Harp, a Northville coin dealer, also knows why some people collect things. They think it is profitable.

In either case, the art of collecting objects—whether it be stamps or antiques, salt and pepper shakers or baseball cards, expensive Hummel statues or restaurant place mats—is one of the more popular American hobbies.

Zipper likes the practice because it gives people a way to focus their interests and energy and because it provides a sound way to relate to other people.

"When people have good social interaction they feel better and perform better in their lives," he said.

Hartland Postmaster Tony Kniaz agrees, although his social interaction is more warlike than, say, collecting stamps. Once a month, he and like-minded friends in the Hartland Gaming Association meet_ at the...Cromaine Library to recreate the Napoleonic Wars.

Napoleonic Wars.
They use hand-painted, authentically costumed and equipped lead-alloy infantry, calvary and artillery figures in intricate and precise battle formations. Kniaz is an avid participant whose interest was sparked 15 years ago by the Metro-Detroit Gaming Association.

Association.

The Metro Detroit Gaming Association is one of many around the country for devoted fans of role-playing games such as Rail Baron, Battle of the Bulge and the well-publicized Dungeons and Dragons. Twice a year the group conducts a tournament where gamesters learn what is happeing in the role-playing world.

Kniaz painstakingly paints each of his nearly 900 figures to exact historical specifications.

The battle array is set up according to historical records.

It's demanding, timeconsuming, and, according to Kniaz, well worth the effort.

"It's really interesting," he said. "It gives you an outlet for some of your aggressive tendencies without hurting anyone. It lets you escape a little bit. You can put your mind in an entirely different set of circumstances. It lets your mind go."

Carolmae Hartwick of Cedar

Brook Farm in Howell is also interested in miniatures—only she is influenced by her lifelong involvement with horses. It was only natural, then, for her to expand upon a cast-iron figure given to her by her grandmother—who raised horses on the west side of Michigan—50 years ago.

Since then, Hartwick has accumulated more than 100 horses from Greece, Russia, Germany, Egypt, Israel, Mexico, Canada, England and all over the United States.

Her most unusual horse is made from crushed walnut shells, but her favorite is "a piece made out of coal and it's the ugliest looking horse you'd ever want to see; but, it's from my grandsons."

Among her collection are several dated and discontinued figures from the Breyer Company, a horse-model manufacturer. These pieces add to the worth of her collection which is valued at more than $6,000.

But she would never sell a single piece. "Well, you can't put a monetary value on something like that," she explains.

Not everyone feels the same way. Harp, who runs Just Coins on 1039 Novi Road, Northville, says there is a difference between the "numismatic investor" and the "numismatic collector."

The collector will certainly be mindful of the price of a coin, she said, but the thrill is in the collection. Contrast that with "the investor (who) is investing in coins for the sole purpose of making a profit"

Is there a profit to be made? "Absolutely," says Harp, but there are hazards.

Currently, the coin field is a buyer's market, with values sharply dropping since the inflated days of the early '80s when gold and silver prices soared.

"In 1980 you could buy a gem uncirculated Barbar half for $7,000. We just sold one for $1,900."

Nonetheless, Harp says a good relationship with a reputable dealer and a long-range plan can produce financial benefits for the serious coin investor.

Money matters can play a large role in collecting because, after all, the objects can be costly.

Match books: strike up a collection

Close cover before striking."

But when that match book is empty, don't throw it away. There are collectors looking for almost every unusual advertising cover printed.

Given away by such businesses as dealerships and attractions like Northville Downs, the match books have become collectors' items.

However, Marilyn Petersen of Northville points out, "A true collector never saves match books that have restaurants, motels and hotels, car been used — unless you're desperate for a particular one."

"I paid $1.65 for a match book from Harrod's in London," reported Sue McClain of Northville when asked about overs in her collection last week.

The Harrod item was an elegant variation of the typical inch and a half wide strip with tuck-in cover. It was the old-fashion box that pulls out and has a picture of the famous London store on the cover.

The collector also bought a "Shakespeare" cover from Stratford on Avon. Such special covers are sold in souvenir shops.

Other variations range from a shallow three-quarters of an inch, such as the sleek black folder of Jacques restaurant on Telegraph with the name in script on the cover, to a three-inch wide book from Sesi Lincoln Mercury in Ypsilanti.

Most advertisers, however, stick to the standard width using color or a logo to attract attention. After all, the point is to get the name (and telephone number) of the business in front of as many eyes as possible.

Collectors look for the unusual — the cover advertising a distant or an elegant place.

"Once your friends know you collect them," says collector Petersen, "you're inundated — they think you're interested in everything."

When she is somewhere she would like to have a match cover souvenir, she says, "I ask for one."

That's part of the fun of this particular collection. It's about as inexpensive a hobby as one could find.

While she knows of no local group of match box collectors, Petersen says she has friends who collect and they share duplicates.

She keeps her match books on display in jars of different shapes on two hutches in her family room.

"It displays them — and is safe," she laughs.

McClain has purchased match book holder boards to display her collection.

The oversize two-inch match books given in the Northville Downs clubhouse definitely are a "collectible" wth a sulky driver and horse depicted in silhouette. Similarly, the Lansdowne Restaurant matches boast a picture of the restaurant ship on the cover.

Do most of the match books really carry the message, "Close cover before striking"?

An informal tally of one collection showed that about two thirds do, with variations.

Several, like the Westin Hotels, say, "Be safe — close cover before striking."

Dearborn Inn matches are explicit: "Close cover. Strike match on back."
One warning from Marilyn Petersen: never, never use a match book from your host's collection. "That's an absolute no, no," she says.

Two on a match

Both Sue McClain, left, and Marilyn Petersen of Northville are match book collectors. As they inspect the former's collection, Sue holds her coveted Harrod's book for which she paid $1.65. Most, however, come free for the asking. Record photo by Steve Fecht.

Mothers' Club slates April dinner dance

By JEAN DAY

Some years organizers of benefit balls and dances seem to have no trouble bringing out everyone with dancing feet. This, definitely, seems to be one of those years.

This month Northville Mothers's Club is holding its annual dinner dance April 20 at Meadowbrook Country Club and has signed the Gerry Fenby Four to play for dancing. Both chairpersons, Phyllis Kennedy, 349-1140, and Karen Hill, 420-2718, and all club members have tickets at $37.50 a couple.

As always, proceeds benefit school projects. The evening will begin at 7 p.m. with cocktails with dinner following at 7:30

Candlelight Ball honors society presidents

Northville Historical Society's revival this year of its popular dinner dance benefit filled Mayflower Meeting House right to the balcony and annex room on March 23.

A highlight of the Candlelight Ball was the introduction of past presidents of the society. "I don't think we'll ever be able to get them all together again," observed dance chair Nancy Bohn. Jack Hoffman, who served as president from 1968-69, and his wife Joan, longtime secretary of the society, were honored for their service as they prepare for a move to Indian River.

Other past presidents attending were Fran Gazlay, 1965-66, 1981-83; John Burkman, 1972-73; James Harris, 1974-76; Ray Riddell, 1976-77; William Stockhausen, 1977-78; Bob Daniel, 1978-81; and John Brugeman, 1983-85.

The club, which meets twice monthly from October through March, is one of the oldest women's clubs in the county. President Eden reports the board already is working on arrangements for next year's programs - and, with past president Winters, is thinking toward its 100th anniversary.

Local volunteers among Schoolcraft honorees

Sixteen volunteers from the Northville-Novi area were among nearly 100 Schoolcraft College "friends" honored at the 10th annual volunteer luncheon in March.

Receiving certificates of appreciation and red heart volunteer key rings from our area were Sandra Booth, Steve Cherne, Gloria and Ray Collins, Paul Dawson, Faye Driscoll. Dorothy Gay, Helen Geisler, Glenna Grosh, Barbara Jackson, Connie Lott, Marian Suckow, Darle Tobel, Robert Welland, Grace Wilkinson and Joyce Ziegler. Volunteer Dawson gave the greatest number of hours — 528. In recognizing a total of 9,000 hours of volunteer service during the past year, Jinny Wilhelm, Women's Resource Center Coordinator, said, "These are special people. People who give of themselves.

Northville's stop in birthday celebration

The family of Cecilia Jenkins of Redford Township helped make her 73rd birthday an occasion to remember recently. Twenty five family members, including nine grandchildren and two great grandchildren, had dinner and cake in Northville after traveling to Cranbrook Institute to see how maple sugar is made and visiting its museum.

It's been pretty nervewracking, right? — having to wait a whole week for the answers to the "Olde Northville" quiz which appeared in last week's edition of The Record.

We're not exactly sure how you should grade yourself, but we suggest the following scale: If you got more than 40 of the answers, congratulations - you officially qualify as a member of that special category of elite individuals who can call themselves "Old Northville."

A score of less than 40? Well, 30 correct answers is pretty good, but anything less than 30 means you've got some more studying to do.

Here are the answers to the quiz:

- 1. Belnor was a drive-in restaurant, a popular cruising spot for area teens in the '50s and '60s, located near the corner of Seven Mile and Northville Road.
- 2. B. Ron Schipper coached the Northville High School football team from

ASPIRIN AFTER SURGERY

Aspirin has been available for dozens of years and is found in many homes. It is an effective analgesic (pain reliever), it relieves the inflammation of arthritis, and reduces fever. In the not too distant past, it was discovered that aspirin had an additional action. In relatively small doses aspirin slows clotting of blood and helps prevent strokes and heart attacks.

A new use related to this action of aspirin on blood clotting was recently reported in the medical journal Lancet. Sixty individuals who had heart bypass operations were studied. One group received 100 milligrams of aspirin daily and the other group received a placebo (sugar pill that resembled aspirin in appearance). Tests conduct ed 4 months after the therapy began showed that the aspirin group had less blockage of heart blood vessels and fewer heart beat irregularities of the ventricular type. Benefits with aspirin occurred only when aspirin therapy began within 24 hours of bypass surgery.

The researchers liked the aspirin therapy over standard therapy with anticoagulants because of lower cost and case of administration (once daily dosing and no injections).

Federal Arts Program topic of library benefit

Friends of the Northville Library elected a new slate of officers at the March 13 meeting.

Geraldine Mills was elected president for the coming year with Pat Allen serving as vice president, Edie Dunbar as secretary and Margaret Spigarelli as treasurer. Directors are Val Cook, Sue Fostey and Lois Winters.

The Friends have tickets available for their April 16 benefit "Crisis and Culture: The Federal Arts Program of the New Deal" to be presented by art historian Chris Ruby.

Tickets are available at Bookstall on the Main and the library. Tickets also will be sold at the Marquis Theatre the night of the program.

The benefit will be presented at 8 p.m. at the Marquis'. Admission is $2. In her slide presentation and lecture. Ruby will discuss how the instigation of federal art programs saved thousands of artists from literal starvation during the 1930s Depression. She will explain how government murals, graphics, sculpture, easel paintings, furniture-making and design revealed important cultural concerns of the time such as nationalism, work, family, and the yearning for a lost, heroic past.

One of the murals painted in Michigan was by Carlos Lopez for the Plymouth post office building. Both Lopez and government officials, however, were accused of providing free advertising for a local publication, even though the artist innocently depicted 19th centhury Plymouth in the

Bushnell brings performing arts series to Novi

By MICHELE M. FECHT

It seems fitting that in celebration of its 20th season, the Bushnell Performing Arts Series has added its new Meadowbrook church to the list of program locations.

The renowned series, which has attracted such talents as actresses Ellen Burstyn and Geraldine Fitzgerald as well as the Kenneth Jewel Chorale and the! Detroit Ballet Theatre, gave Northville/Novi residents their first local offering March 19 with a celebration of Johann Sebastian Bach's 300th

. According to Ray Ferguson, Bushnell's minister of music and the bulwark behind the series, the new church offers Bushnell an opportunity to reach arts patrons in the Northville/-Novi community. Prior to the series premier at the new site last month, performances were held at the northwest Detroit church and Temple Beth El in Birmingham.

He said future plans call for at least three primary programs each season to utilize all three locations.

Ferguson noted the Bach celebration at the Meadowbrook church was "very well attended" and provided residents a chance to hear The Detroit Chamber Works (all members of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra) as well as two solo cantatas by soprano Ernestine Nimmons and mezzo-soprano Rosemarie Murch.

season include a performance by the Kenneth Jewel Chorale at Temple Beth El, and a one-woman show featuring actress Celeste Holm at the Detroit church. To close the series, Ferguson is planning what he described as a "tricentennial, triple threat" concert commemorating the birthdays of Scarlatti, Bach and Mozart.

He noted that program locations are determined on the basis of what each facility can accommodate.

For instance, "more than 2,000 people attended the last program at Temple Beth El," Ferguson explained, noting it would be impossible to accommodate that size crowd at the Meadowbrook church with its 300-seat fellowship hall. He further noted that the large pipe organ housed at the Detroit church makes that location a natural for such concerts as his upcoming three composer tribute.

Bushnell minister Robin Meyers credits Ferguson for the program's suc-cess noting that the Wayne State University music professor and head organist for the DSO has distinguished the series by bringing in major talents. Ferguson explained that when he first came to Bushnell some 20 years ago, he found that the church, like most others in the Detroit area, offered music programs and concerts around such holidays as Easter and Christmas. About 10 years ago, Ferguson went beyond the musical programs by bringing in an actor from the Stratford

With considerable funding coming from the Michigan Council for the Arts, the Bushnell Performing Arts Series has been able to offer its programming at moderate prices. For instance, tickets for the Bach celebration were $7

Town Hall announces speakers for anniversary year

Actress Jayne Meadows will lead off Northville Town Hall's silver anniversary season October 10. The lecture series sponsored by Our Lady's League of Our Lady of Victory Church will be held at the Sheraton Oaks-Novi for the third year.

Following on November 14 will be singer-talk show host "Fat Bob" Taylor; Ronna Romney will appear March 13, 1986, with Steven Ford concluding the 25th year season April 10,

All lectures begin at 11 a.m. and are followed with celebrity luncheons, which are open to season ticketholders and may be reserved individually or by the season

Season tickets for the series are priced at $25, same as last season, and will go on sale at the final lecture of the current series on April 18. Mail orders will be accepted after April 18 and may be sent to Mrs. Richard Lyon, Northville Town Hall, P.O. Box 93, Northville, Luncheon reservations will be accepted after June 1. These are $11 each. Sandy Chouinard, this year's chairman, in announcing the anniversary lecturers, said the Town Hall committee was pleased to begin the special season with television, stage, screen and radio celebrity Meadows.

She noted that in response to many requests the season includes a return appearance by Taylor. For its anniversary year Northville Town Hall also has reelected a chairman, Rosemary Palarchio, who will be serving her second two-year stint.

Here are backgrounds of the speakers in the benefit series. (Proceeds are divided with half going to Our Lady's League church projects and half to community organizations in the areas served by town hall.)

She was born in China, where her parents were missionaries, and moved to the United States as a young child. She began her theatrical career as a serious dramatic actress in the Broadway hit, "Spring Again," with Sir C. Aubrey Smith, going on to star in six more Broadway dramas before moving into her first comedy role, "The Gazebo," with Walter Slezak. It was the first of many roles that would establish her as a top comedienne.

Recently she won kudos for her role in the off-Broadway revival of "Once in a Lifetime." Her films include "Undercurrent" starring Katherine Hepburn and "Dr. Kildare" with Lionel Barrymore. Ronna Romney — writer, lecturer, politician, wife and mother of five has been well known throughout Michigan for her church, community and government activities during the past 15 years.

She was introduced to politics when her father-in-law, George Romney, ran for the presidency in 1968. She went on to campaign for Lenore Romney two years later when she ran for the U.S. Senate. Serious collecting can mean 'big bucks'

The fact that collections of "things" do increase in value has had other retail ramifications. Although it was collectors who gave rise to such businesses as The Old Ballpark in Livonia, Just Coins in Novi and The Plate Lady, also in Livonia, the owners of those businesses acknowledge that a percentage of their customers is comprised of people who buy things strictly for investment pur-

"But over the last 10 years, collecting baseball cards has become something of an investment," he said. "The true collector is a little upset because the demand has become so great that it has pushed up the price. It's become an ex-jewelry and supplies. She estimates that her customers are divided evenly between true collectors and investors.

"When someone comes to our store, we have to find out what their true goals are so we can give them the best possible service," she said.

'Some people are just interested in making money, while others are collectors who enjoy the thrill and the challenge of completing a certain set.

'If a person's goal is to make money, we will steer them toward the types of coins we think will realize a good profit in future years. In fact, we only sell the types of coins which we think will appreciate in value and we would be willing to purchase back in a few years."

Harp said the silver, gold and coin markets are quite low at the present time so it's a good time for both collectors and investors.

'We get a lot of collectors when the coin markets are low because they can add to their sets at good prices," she remarked. "But it's also a good time for collectors. We think the gold and silver markets have just about bottomed out so it's a good time for investors to make their purchases before the markets begin to go back up."

Like Walsh and his baseball memorabilia, Lenore Crawford of The Plate Lady is an example of an individual whose hobby led to establishment of a business "I bought plates just for the pleasure of collecting them," she said. "I enjoyed my hobby so much that I opened

Also like Walsh and Harp, she acknowledges that her clientele is comprised of both collectors and investors.

'There's no question that the right kind of plates can be good investments," she said. "I purchased an Edna Hibel plate a few years ago for $40; that same plate is now worth more

"I have plates in my personal collection that I would not sell to a person who wants them strictly for investment purposes," she said. "But I might sell-the plate to a true collector. If I have a collector who wants a certain plate very badly, I would part with it - I know

The Northuille Record

BY NANCY HALE BROWN

Whether it's the mystery of tomorrow or the nostalgia of yesterday, enchantment lingers in museums throughout Michigan.

Any casual or veteran museum hopper can enjoy a variety of science, art, natural history and historical museums a close drive

They can check out space suits at the Jackson Space Center, catch a glimpse of art treasures at the nation's fifth largest museum in Detroit, or learn about the Indians of the Great Lakes region at the Michigan State University Museum.

If that isn't enough, there are classic cruisin' cars in a special exhibit at Dearborn's Henry Ford Museum and 50 hands-on exhibits at the Detroit Science Museum.

Some of the museums are free while others charge a modest fee for adults, with discounts for children and senior citizens. Most have permanent exhibits that are spiced up with rotating special shows that help meet certain individual curiosities.

The Detroit Institute of Arts, for instance, offers a chance to view various styles of art from a widespectrum of periods. But a special exhibit through May 5 will satisfy those interested in "Judaic Treasures from the Czechoslovakian State Collection." Sound interesting?

Any basic back-pocket primer to nearby Michigan museums would have to include the following locations. (A quick phone call to any of them is sure to bring answers to further questions.)

•Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward Avenue, 313-833-7900, 9:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday. Admission is free, but a voluntary donation is appreciated.

The museum houses a large collection of American, African, British, Italian, Dutch and Flemish art. A special feature is "Brunch with Bach," a food and music event every Sunday morning.

Other musical and film presentations are part of the museum's year-round offerings, in addition to special art exhibits.

•Detroit Science Center, 5020 John

R, 313-577-8400, 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Tues-day through Friday; 10 a.m.-7 p.m. Saturday; noon-7 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $4 for adults, and between 50 cents and $3 for children, depending on their age.

The museum has 50 hands-on exhibits and houses Michigan's only space theater. The theater is equipped with a projector which casts a 180-degree image on a domed screen. Seats in the theater tilt back, and this time it will be more fun than a visit to the dentist.

•Detroit Historical Museum, 5401 Woodward Avenue, 313-833-1805, 9:30 a.m.-5 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday. Admission is free, but a voluntary donation is appreciated. The streets of 18th and 19th century Detroit are featured as a permanent exhibit. Other exhibits are presented throughout the year.

Those are just three of 17 museums that are part of Detroit's Cultural Center, according to a spokesperson for the Metropolitan Detroit Convention and Visitors Bureau.

A library, plus other art and specialized museums are located in the same area. Woodward Avenue is the central location of the sites, with John R, East Ferry, East Kirby and Farnsworth as cross streets. Call the visitors bureau at 313-259-4333 for more information.

·Henry Ford Museum, Dearborn, 313-271-1620, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. daily. Admission is $8 for adults, $4 for children ages 5-12, under 5 are free, with senior citizen and other special discounts available.

The museum features 12 acres of world-renowned collections which reflect the dynamic growth of America, particularly between 1800

•Jackson Space Center, 2111 Emmons Road, Jackson, 517-787-4425, 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday through Friday; 11 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Admission is $3 for adults, $2 for students and senior citizens, $9 for a family and children 5 years old and under are free.

A wide variety of historical, cultural and natural science exhibits, including the Upper Peninsula, Indians, Americana, Michigan mammals, birds and fossils are housed in the museum.

Fortuna inn: Food is claim to fame

dining out

DIANE KOVACS

Shortly after arriving at the Fortuna Inn on Pontiac Trail in South Lyon, we were hard-pressed to figure out why it had been so highly recommended by an acquaintance with a proven record of steering us in proper directions in the past.

There was definitely nothing unusual about the location, tucked away among a line of stores in one of the endless comparison shopping centers which have become a part of the suburban scene.

There was nothing particularly unusual or noteworthy about the decor. Although clean and decorated nicely with attractive Oriental prints lining the walls, the Fortuna Inn is not dissimilar from many other Chinese restaurants. And the menu . . . well, with one or two notable exceptions it was similar to numerous other menus from suburban Chinese restaurants. In fact, the menu was amazingly similar to those you would find at China Fair in Northville. The Great Wall in Farmington Hills or Lim's Chinese Garden in Novi. All fine restaurants offering a varied selection of entrees, mind you, but with menus that are basically similar. It wasn't until the waitress began delivering our food to the table that we realized our acquaintance's credibility was still in tact.

There's nothing particularly fancy about the Fortuna Inn . . . un-clothed tables with bottles of plum sauce and packets of sugar stacked against the wall. The wait staff wears more-or-less standard uniforms and manages to compensate for what it lacks in sophistication by being pleasant, personable and atten-

But the truth of the matter is that the Fortuna's Inn main claim to fame is that its food is really quite good and served in abundant quantities.

Our attitudes about the Fortuna Inn began to swing sharply upward with the arrival of the food.

We passed over the won-ton and egg drop soups - staples at all Chinese retaurants, and opted for a chicken mushroom soup which was surprisingly good, thicker than what we have been accustomed to in soups when "eating Oriental" and filled with chunks of chicken and mushroom.

The soup was followed quickly by an appetizer of barbecue pork - bite-sized pieces of pork in a tangy sauce. The Fortuna is to be commended for the size of its portions — the soup and appetizer would have been sufficient to make a hearty satisfying meal all by themselves. However, an early departure would have deprived us of the enjoyment of the entrees, which again were tasty and served in plentiful portions. My companion selected the Mongolian beef, an authentic dish of thinly-sliced beef served with onions in a rich, thick sauce. The dish will be seasoned to your liking — mild, medium or hot. Those who like their food hot should definitely give it a try. My companion chose the middle road and was left wondering how much hotter the "hot" could have been.

I selected one of the Fortuna's specialties — the Salted Shrimp, primarily because Fat Bob Taylor, the famed "Singing Plumber" of local radio fame, recently told The South Lyon/Herald that eating Salted Shrimp at the Fortuna Inn was one of his favorite, things to do. Taylor was right. Not only do you receive 10-12 large shrimp, but the food is quite good, well worth the effort required to remove them from their shells.

Despite our initial misgivings, we ended up enjoying our trip to South Lyon and the Fortuna Inn. The food is good and there's a certain warmth and charm to the staff which made the experience an enjoyable one.

Tucking away glass candy containers is Skip's passion

By PHIL JEROME

There's a divergence of opinion in the Tuck household.

Skip Tuck collects glass toy candy containers. She thinks they're cute.

Don, her husband, doesn't. "Look at that stuff," he says, looking around their Novi home. "It's junk. "Can you believe people actually go rummaging around looking for those things? And they're definitely not

About the only thing positive he has to say about his wife's passion for collecting the little toy candy containers is that they're not worth much.

"When I get home and she tells me she bought some more of those little things, at least I don't have to worry about her having spent a lot of money," he says. "I don't understand the fascination. They're not even worth very much.'

But Skip is indeed an avid collector of the little glass candy containers...so much so in fact that she's joined a club named the Candy Container Collectors of America.

The club is a rather select group with only 140 members across the United States and Canada. But it's great fun, according to Skip, and members correspond regularly in addition to attending an annual convention in Penn-

"You should meet these people," says Don. "All they can talk about is those silly little candy containers. We've gone to California, Texas and Ohio to visit some of them, but it's impossible to talk about anything except the containers.

"You say, 'How's your car running?" and they say, 'Fine. By the way did I tell you about the candy collector I found at a garage sale last week?' "They're real exciting people."

Skip admits to being an insatiable collector of trivia. The walls of her Novi home are lined with all types of "little things" she has found over the years.

Her real passion, however, is the glass candy containers. She figures she has something in excess of 300 of them.
"I got my first one maybe about 15 years ago," she recalls. "We had just bought an old house on Twelve Mile and I was rummaging through some boxes when I came across this little glass lantern - maybe three to five inches high. I inquired around until someone told me what it was."

She found her second candy container - a little windmill - at an old antique shop that no longer exists on Novi Road. "When they told me what it was, it rang a bell. I remembered that I had found the lantern and my collection was

"I kept seeing more and more of them, and just started buying them. I thought they were sort of cute, and they were small enough that I could sneak them in the house without Don seeing

Despite her husband's skepticism, Skip is a big fan.

She says the containers were made from the 1880s through the 1960s. Most of them were made at glass factories in Jeannette, Pennsylvania — which is why the club holds its annual conventions there.

"Most people remember them as being available at train stations and candy stores," she reports. "They were sort of like souvenirs that travelers could pick up along the way. They came in various shapes and sizes, and were filled with little candy pills.

"During the war there were a lot of them in the shapes of tanks and planes and battleships. People bought them to

I thought I had a pretty good collection until I met some of the other people in the club. Very few of mine have the original paint. In fact, the paint has flaked off most of mine and the real purists wouldn't have them. The real purists have containers with the original paint still on them and filled with the original candy.

"I felt like hiding my collection when I saw what some of the other people

One gets the opinion from talking with the Tucks that belonging to the club is more valuable than owning the Skip says the oldest member of the club is an 82-year-old lady named Jennie Long who lives in California and has written two books about the containers. The youngest is a 12-year-old girl named Christie Van Aken of Massachusetts.

"Put Christie's name in your arti-cle," she says. "I'll take it to the next convention and show her. She'll get a kick out of it. She's a real sweetheart."

The club sends out bi-monthly newletters, and members correspond regularly.

"Look at this," says Skip, lifting up a Christmas card from a club member who lives in Texas. "He found a container shaped like Boob McNutt, one of the characters from the old Barnie Google comic strip. Nobody else has one like it and we all envy him. So he took a picture of his Boob McNutt container and sent it out as a Christmas card to make the rest of his jealous."

Skip says she does not collect the containers as an investment. "It's just fun," she claims. "Besides they're not worth very much.

"It's sort of a hobby. I go around to garage sales and flea markets to see how many I can find. My car stops automatically at all flea markets and garage sales.

"I love rummaging through all those old things," she continues.
"It's just a hobby. Something that's a lot of fun, "Plus," she adds, "it keeps me out of the pool halls."

A light of recognition shines in her husband's eyes. "That's true," he says. "I suppose that's another advantage it's been a long time since I've had to drag her out of a pool hall."
