First dip

Record-high temperatures, bright sunshine and an inviting lake proved too tempting for buddies Rich Cole, 12 (from left), Scott Conaway, 9, Jay Carlsen, 10 and Brett Barringer, 11. The four friends were discovered Monday at Highland Lake while taking in the rays after school. While the idea was to use the rubber raft as a means of transportation, most of the fun was capsizing their vehicle half-way across. Though April usually brings one final blast from Old Man Winter, the warm weather has given just about everyone a good dose of Spring Fever. Record photo by Steve Fecht.

Planners vote to okay proposal from 108 Group

By B.J. MARTIN

Plans for the proposed six-story multiple-use building to be built at Center and Main streets downtown got an important "go-ahead" from the city planning commission last week — but three commissioners said they fear the building could disrupt Northville's "small-town character."

At their April 16 meeting, commissioners were to decide two issues involving the proposed structure, which would contain apartments, shops, offices and a restaurant.

First, commissioners were to decide whether the project's site plans deserved approval. Second, commissioners were to decide whether to recommend city council approve the project.

City council usually does not review proposed private construction. But in special cases it may veto a multiple-use building if council believes its construction would not be in the city's best interest.

And the issue of whether The 108 Group's large brick-and-glass structure would be in the city's long-range interest divided the city's usually homogeneous planning commission last week.

When it was moved to approve the site plans and to advise city council to likewise approve the project, commissioners David Totten, Jay Wendt and John Hardin voted "no."

Their "no" votes were narrowly defeated by the "yes" votes of Commission Chair Jerry Mittman and commissioners Charles Freydl, William Demray and Luke Durst.

Speaking against the recommendation to council, Commissioner Wendt contended that rental costs and insufficient market demand could bog down the project in much the same way the Northville Square (M.A.G.S.) building

Teachers notified of pending layoffs

By MICHELE M. FECHT

Pink slips will go out to 21 Northville teachers as a result of further decline in the school district's enrollment and the consolidation of programs anticipated for the 1985-86 school year.

At the board of education's meeting Monday night, assistant superintendent Burton Knighton noted that while the district is required to notify teachers of layoff, he expects that at least "half if not more" of the 21 teachers would be recalled once the district has a handle on next year's program needs.

"Our intent is to recall as many people as possible as soon as we know the program schedule," Knighton said, adding that the administration hopes notification to recall can go out before the end of the current school year.

He told the board that projected enrollment for September, 1985, is 3,209 K-12 students — a decline of 114 students over the 1984 Fourth Friday count.

Knighton said the administration's projections were based on input from building principals, a review by consultant Keith Goldhammer and the Michigan State University Stanfred Projections.

"In the past, they have been pretty accurate," Knighton said of the projection figures.

The assistant superintendent noted that while past staffing reductions primarily have been related to the decline in student enrollment, this year's changes also are influenced by the closing of two schools and the middle school reorganization.

Knighton said tentative staffing for the 1985-86 school year calls for the reduction of 6.4 full time equated teachers in the elementary, secondary and support staff.

He noted that approximately 4.2 of the teachers would face layoff as a result of declining enrollment. While school closings would result in the reduction of 4.9 teachers, he noted that the middle school reorganization calls for an additional 4.9 teachers due to the increase from a six to seven hour school day.

Consolidation and program considerations resulted in the reduction of one special education staff member. A reorganization of the high school study skills also will account for the reduction of 1.2 teachers.

Since program selections have not yet been finalized for the 1985-86 school year, teachers tentatively scheduled for part-time assignments also will be pink-slipped.

In the Special Education Program, Knighton said the district is anticipating a slight increase in student enrollment from the October 1984 Fourth Friday count of 190 students to approximately 200 students for September, 1985.

He noted that while attrition and reconsolidation of two special education classrooms resulted in the reduction of one teacher during the course of the 1984-85 school year, no further recommendations are being made to cut staffing.

The SEP professional classroom teachers and support staff will be at a level of 33.5 full time equated teachers for September, 1985, compared to 34.5 last September.

City budgets for reduced property taxes

By KEVIN WILSON

Complaints about the upward spiral of governmental costs should be muted in the City of Northville this year.

A projected 1985-86 fiscal year budget presented for the first time Monday night shows an overall reduction in the general fund and a tax decrease for homeowners.

The proposed general fund budget, revealed at council's first planning session for the fiscal year beginning July 1, totals $2.47 million compared to a projected year-end total for 1984-85 of $2.58 million. Last year's budget figure was $2.49 million.

One major difference is elimination of the need to repay a deficit carried over from the prior year (see related story). Without a deficit to deal with, the city will be able to reduce taxes by some amount between 1.0 and 1.5 mills (one mill equals one dollar tax per $1,000 of equalized valuation), city manager Steven Walters said.

"We don't have all the figures in from the county yet," he explained. "There is still a calculation to be made about how the DDA fits in. I've put in 15.1 mills, but suspect that may have to go up by a few tenths after we figure in the captured taxes."

Operating millage will drop from 16.68 mills to some figure higher than 15.1 mills but lower than 15.68 mills, consistent with council's pledge that a one mill increase levied in 1984 was a one-time-only deficit reduction measure.

The city's downtown development project was financed through a bond sale backed by "captured taxes." Tax revenue generated within the Downtown Development District due to increased property values (as opposed to tax rate increases) is directed to repayment of the debt incurred for downtown improvement.

Until separate figures are available

'I've put in 15.1 mills, but suspect that may have to go up by a few tenths after we figure in the captured taxes.'

— Steve Walters, city manager to show how much tax revenue must be directed toward debt retirement (last year it was $41,200), Walters said he could not establish a millage rate to meet the city's operating needs.

In addition to the millage reduction, residential property owners will see a minor (less than one percent) decrease in the assessed values of their homes. The tax cuts are small — no homeowner is going to open a tax bill and leap for joy — but should be noticeable when compared with last year's bills.

By contrast, commercial property owners will see a small increase in assessed values that should be offset by the millage reduction.

Reports aren't all finalized yet, but Walters projects a city-wide state equalized valuation (SEV) of $85.18 million compared to last year's $82.91 million. The increases include not only raised assessments, but also property improvements and new investment in the city.

One mill of property tax last year generated $82,900 in revenue for the city, Walters said. This year, one mill is estimated to produce $85,100. But there is a catch.

"Northville Downs is challenging their assessed valuations rather aggressively," Walters said. "Judging by their posture at the local board of review, I'd anticipate they are going to take their case to the state tax tribunal."

If the Downs succeeds in having its property values decreased significantly, Walters said, the city could lose up to $2,100 per mill. That would mean each mill of tax would bring in $83,000 — barely improved over last year.

Walters said he used this $83,000 figure in drafting the proposed budget and setting a millage rate intended to generate roughly $1.25 million. Property taxes would make up roughly one-half the city's revenues.

Other revenue sources include the city's share of state parimutuel tax revenues together with the shared revenues from both the state and federal governments.

Walters has conservatively projected only $13,000 in federal revenue sharing receipts, assuming that this expenditure will be eliminated from the 1986 federal budget. Federal revenue sharing is one of the most hotly-debated targets of budget-cutters in Washington, D.C. but many other communities (including Northville Township) have assumed that payments of some kind will be made in 1986.

The $13,000 projected in the city budget represents a payment due in July, which is the last quarter of the 1985 federal fiscal year but the first quarter of the city's 1985-86 year.

Council also reviewed in brief spending plans for the coming year. Walters noted that early settlement of multi-year contracts with city employee bargaining units allowed budget planners to use specific figures in projecting labor costs.

"These all include the five percent wage increases we negotiated," he said. "It's really nice to have those precise figures available instead of trying to guess what we might settle on."

On first review the spending plans seem to project a year of consolidation in city general fund operations, with few new projects of any sort. There is a combined $35,000 plan for repairs to the roof at city hall and minor exterior improvements (replacing some wood siding with aluminum for instance) that is split between the current fiscal year

Citizens tapped to pick new township manager

By KEVIN WILSON

The search for a new Northville Township manager got under way in earnest this week with a committee meeting to review applications for the position.

Four-year township manager David Leiko concluded his service April 18 and began work as assistant city manager in Mentor, Ohio on Monday. Application deadline for those seeking to fill the vacancy was April 19.

Township treasurer Richard Henningsen, to whom the manager reports, said 28 applications had been received as of Monday morning. The Township Manager Search Committee was to conduct its first meeting Monday evening to begin sorting through the applications.

Henningsen noted that many of the applications were received late last week and that he is accepting those mailed by April 19. Since he had only a few candidates for the position early last week, he added, he contacted major universities in Michigan and "unofficially" suggested that applications might be accepted as late as this Friday.

The opening had been advertised through the International City Managers Association (ICMA) newsletter and by posting to major Michigan colleges and universities.

"We've got a pretty good cross-section of candidates," Henningsen noted. "There are people from our own state schools, David's (Leiko) university (Pittsburgh), and some of them are experienced. We have everything from totally green with just an internship or two, to people with a lot of experience."

There are a few local applicants for the position, Henningsen said, and others hail from as far away as Colorado, North Carolina and Arizona.

Monday's committee meeting was to begin the process of winnowing the field down to the best candidates, the treasurer said. He noted that a few applicants did not appear to have the necessary education or experience in management, fiscal policy or budget administration.

"Most of them are in the field, though," he said. "They have degrees in public administration, political science, or management or they have management experience. Most are in public administration."

Henningsen said he would like to have the field narrowed down to a handful by the next board of trustees meeting date (May 9) and has targeted May 15 for making a final selection.

When the new township manager would start is still an open question, as experienced people likely have to serve notice to their current employers while those just completing their educations won't receive degrees until mid-June.

"Since I've taken the position that the job is suitable for a new graduate, I wouldn't want to set a date that would keep them out," Henningsen said.

Members of the search committee, in addition to Henningsen, are township trustees Richard Allen and James Nowka, labor consultant Richard Ambler and Kathy McNally. Henningsen said he hopes to add another woman to the committee membership before getting too deeply into the process for a newcomer to contribute.

"I tried a few people, but they either didn't have the time or said they didn't know enough about the township operations to make a contribution," Henningsen explained. He noted that the committee that selected Leiko included only one woman — then-trustee Susan Heintz, who is now supervisor.

Salem Township board okays budget, spending

The Salem Township Board changed its usual procedure of spending federal revenue sharing money on township roads during its April 2 final public hearing on use of the funds.

At the suggestion of township resident James Fulkerson, the board decided to use the funds "either for the new fire truck or for roads, whichever is needed." During the first public hearing at the March 30 annual meeting the consensus was to continue the practice of using the dollars for dust control on township roads.

The township is anticipating only $6,000 from revenue sharing this year, a cut of half the funds received last year.

BIDS ON A NEW TANKER TRUCK for the township fire department are due to be opened May 7. The township budget for the 1985-86 fiscal year includes $127,000 in anticipated expenditures for the fire department. About $100,000 of this is expected to be used for the tanker.

Fulkerson recommended that the board reserve its revenue sharing funds in case the tanker bids come in higher than anticipated.

Trustee William Taft, liaison between the board and the fire department, said the chassis for the tanker could be available relatively soon after the bid is let — 100-120 days.

THE BOARD FORMALLY APPROVED April 2 the $431,082 budget that was presented at the annual meeting, with a couple of changes. Supplies for the treasurer's office were upped from $500 to $2,000 at the suggestion of the treasurer who said postage for mailings alone could use up more than the original $500.

Moved from the contingency fund to the "hall, office and appendencies" item was a total of $10,500. Originally the hall and office item had been estimated at $4,500. When the "appendencies" were added at the annual meeting, Clerk Nancy Geiger told the board that some additional funds would be needed.

The total expected disbursements now stand at $313,175 with an additional $117,907 in the contingency fund, Geiger explained.

Appendencies were specifically discussed as "the old Rider house" next to the township hall which was formerly used as township offices. It is now used for some meetings and for storage of records.

Salem Township senior citizens and members of the township's historical society have been asking the board to allow the house to be used for a museum and meetings. The seniors pointed out some repairs that may be due on the house and urged the township board to include the house in its budget rather than demolish it.

Supervisor Richard Sackett has said previously that the house could perhaps be moved to a new location since more parking area is needed at the township hall.

At the April 2 meeting, Sackett told the concerned senior citizens that he is currently working on a plan which he feels will provide a solution to the problem of having a place for the historical society and the senior citizens. He said he had received a verbal telephone commitment but would need to get it in writing. He said he hoped to have a presentation ready by the May 7 board meeting.

Sackett explained this after senior citizen Henry Dolan has presented a resolution that the people of Salem be allowed to vote on what will be done with the former Rider house and asked that the society be allowed to display antiques there.

NEWS BRIEFS

White Cane Sale set

This is White Cane Week for Lions Clubs throughout the state, and although Northville has no independent chapter of the club anymore, members will be selling white cane pins on streets and in shopping areas Thursday and Friday.

Remaining members of the Northville Lions Club that disbanded four years ago have joined the Plymouth Lions Club and members will be soliciting funds this week, according to Louis Morton, chairperson of this year's drive.

Funds are used to purchase eyeglasses for needy children, and large print books for the library in the Northville area, Morton advised city council by letter recently. Council granted approval for the fund solicitation on city streets.

Lions Clubs generally focus on sight conservation, aid to the blind and community service. Among other projects funded in part by the White Cane Drive are:

- Leader Dogs for the Blind;
- White canes and braille watches for the blind;
- Michigan Eye Bank Research Center Building Fund;
- Glasses, eye examinations, hearing aids and hearing exams for needy children in the Plymouth/Northville area. Plymouth Lions spend more than $2,000 a year on children's eyeglasses.
- Penrickton Center for blind and deaf children;
- Welcome Home apartments for the blind.

The club also collects used eyeglasses and hearing aids, which may be given to any club member. The donated glasses and hearing aids are repaired and forwarded to needy people throughout the world.

Kinzel in skating show

Fifteen-year-old Carlene Kinzel of Northville, a sophomore at Northville High School, will be one of the featured performers in the 14th Annual Ice Company figure skating show this week at the Southfield Ice Arena.

Kinzel is appearing in her second year as a soloist in the show, which features a cast of more than 200 precision ice skaters in numbers such as "Ice Aerobics," "Salute to Fred Astaire," "African Safari," and "Detroit Tiger Salute."

The family-fun show will be held at 7:30 p.m. today through Friday, at noon, 4 and 8 p.m. Saturday, and at 1:30 and 5:30 p.m. Sunday. For ticket information, phone 354-9357.

Charter may prohibit council actions on holiday Mondays

By KEVIN WILSON

Northville City Council may have erred in conducting regular meetings on Mondays that were also legal holidays. City attorney James R. Kohl recently advised that such meetings appear to violate the city charter and suggested council review its minutes and reaffirm any action taken at meetings on holidays that involved contracts.

City clerk Joan McAllister said she requested Kohl's opinion out of concern about the charter language and a recent meeting conducted on President's Day in February.

Council normally meets on the first and third Monday of the month. Meetings are often rescheduled when a major holiday coincides with the regular meeting date. But McAllister and city manager Steven Walters, both of whom get days off for legal holidays, have agreed several times to attend council sessions conducted on minor holidays.

Councilmembers, who regularly work some of the holidays given government employees, chose not to change their meeting date that fell on President's Day. Walters noted that Veteran's Day is another holiday that often coincides with a council meeting.

But Kohl pointed out that the city charter states: "Whenever the date fixed by this charter for the doing or completion of any act falls on a Sunday or legal holiday, such act shall be done or completed on the next succeeding day which is not a Sunday or legal holiday."

The charter does not mandate the meeting date, allowing council to establish its own schedule. But, Kohl said, "it is my opinion that any action taken by the council on a Sunday or legal holiday could be successfully attacked by the other party to the contract."

He noted that the charter language says action "shall" be taken the next day, not "may." Kohl said no Michigan cases speak directly to the issue of decisions made on Sundays or legal holidays, but many cases emphasize the controlling nature of charter language.

McAllister said the only case she could discover that involved a council meeting conducted on a holiday and ratifying a contract was on February 18. The legally recognized holiday honoring the birthdays of presidents Washington and Lincoln was that day.

Although city hall was closed for the day, council met that evening and ratified its labor agreement with the Northville Police Officers Association. For safety's sake, council voted again Monday night to ratify that agreement.

Walters and Mayor Pro Tem Dewey Gardner noted that council will now have to be more careful to avoid holiday meetings. Walters said council need not meet on the Tuesday following a Monday holiday if it changes its regular meeting date by a motion at an earlier meeting.

"You can establish whatever meeting date you want," he said. "This appears to say that if you keep to your first and third Monday schedule without changing it, you'd have to meet on the Tuesday. But if you reschedule the meeting beforehand, you can move it to the following Monday or whenever."

Schoolcraft readies tuition increase

A $1.25 per credit hour tuition increase is likely when Schoolcraft College students return for fall classes.

Without taking final action, the board of trustees recently adopted a revenue projection of $18.4 million for the fiscal year beginning July 1. It's $1 million higher than the current fiscal year.

The projection calls for levying the full voted property tax millage of 1.77 mills for operations ($1.77 per $1,000 of equalized valuation) and 0.14 mills for debt retirement and receiving an estimated 6.5 percent increase in the state appropriation.

"Schoolcraft College got a five percent increase in the governor's budget," President Richard McDowell told trustees. "The House Appropriations Committee is recommending an 8.5 percent increase for Schoolcraft."

Currently, Schoolcraft charges residents of the college district $28.75; non-residents from Michigan, $39.50 and non-Michigan residents, $59 per credit hour. A fulltime student takes 12-15 credit hours.

An increase of $1.25 would bring the resident rate to $30. Tuition increases for non-residents typically have been greater. But the board did not discuss these as it gave routine approval to the revenue projection supplied by W. Kenneth Lindner, vice president for business.

In addition, the community college charges a $10 application fee, $5 registration fee and student services fee of 50 cents per credit hour.

The projection is $1 million higher than the current year's $17.4 million operating budget. Lindner estimated a two percent growth in enrollment. The budget — both spending and revenue sides — will be the subject of a public hearing, probably in June.

In addition, McDowell said the college is applying for $3 million in capital funds from the state.

In other money matters, the board of trustees:

- Awarded Foster Sprinkler Company of Southfield, low bidder at $13,900, a contract for installing an automatic underground sprinkler system to cover three soccer fields.

Target date for completion is June 1;

- Received gifts of 4,000 pounds of scrap steel (worth $400) from Industrial Metal Fabricators Company of Detroit for use in the welding program;

- Received $100 from Elizabeth Bulger of Sun City, Arizona, and $25 from Claire B. Moyer of Port Angeles, Washington, both for the Michael Bulger endowment fund;

- Tabled for later discussion a request from Michigan Bell Telephone Company for an 800-foot easement on college land. Bell wants to erect a 20 by 30-foot prefabricated building to house cable terminals.

- Learned the Schoolcraft College Foundation's membership has topped 400; that its total fund is $98,000 and is likely to reach $100,000 before year's end; that its first service club member, Zonta Club of Northwest Detroit Area, has been admitted for a $1,000 minimum donation. Sandra Florek, assistant to the president and staff member for the foundation, said half the money came from a single $50,000 bequest from the estate of Jerry Young.

It worked — budget deficit is all but gone

By KEVIN WILSON

Northville stands ready to unload a millstone — the general fund budget deficit that has plagued city operations for the past four years.

City manager Steven Walters told city council Monday night that the deficit should be eliminated by the end of the current fiscal year June 30. That will allow a property tax decrease of more than one mill this year, despite a decline in residential property values.

The bad news was that the deficit was much larger than was projected in the 1984-85 fiscal year budget compiled last year at this time. Instead of the $182,135 figure anticipated in the budget, when the auditors finished their review the figure in red ink was $299,393.

But the good news eclipses the $117,000 difference. The combined impact of a one mill tax increase earmarked for deficit reduction with spending restraint swallowed up the $182,000 shortfall as planned. And other revenues are available to make up the difference.

Most prominent is a nearly $100,000 gain in racetrack revenues. The state legislature appropriated $98,000 more than the $592,000 figure budgeted for the year.

Combined with nearly $25,000 in cable television franchise fees that the auditors classified as a reserved fund balance, despite council never having specified a use for the money, there is sufficient unallocated revenue as the city enters the final two months of its fiscal year to pay off the remaining deficit.

All that remains is for council to approve a budget amendment allocating the funds toward deficit reduction, Walters told council in a special meeting to study a proposed budget for the 1985-86 fiscal year beginning July 1.

Ironically, it was the city's reliance on the parimutuel tax revenue that now looks to be the savior of the deficit reduction plan that produced the red ink in the first place. Michigan's fiscal crisis of the early '80s led to repeated cuts in the amount of money returned to cities hosting horse racing tracks.

Those cuts, poorly timed in relation to the city's spending patterns, produced a deficit of roughly one-half million dollars. The city chiseled away at that figure in succeeding years, gradually paring the deficit to its current manageable size.

Walters noted that the city has another $36,000 reserve fund balance in its general fund that state treasury department officials would likely view as money available to fight the deficit, if it were needed.

That money is earmarked in connection with a suit filed by Oakland County against state-mandated increases in property values throughout the county in 1983 — a time when county officials contend that poor economic conditions resulted in falling property values, not rising ones.

If the county is successful in its suit, Oakland County taxpayers would be due a repayment of some kind. Walters said it would likely take the form of a reduction on future property tax payments rather than a direct rebate to the taxpayers.

The average homeowner would gain $30 to $40 if the county's suit is successful, he said. If the suit is unsuccessful, the $36,000 will be returned to the general fund and "in effect would reduce taxes for all property owners in both Wayne and Oakland counties."

Approval granted development plans

Two of the few remaining undeveloped property parcels in the city finally are slated to get some occupants.

Both of the parcels are located on the northeast side of Eight Mile and Taft roads, and site plans outlining the proposed construction on both parcels received unanimous approval from city planners at their April 2 meeting.

Developer Patricia Hann received approval to build 38 condominium apartments — 33 two-bedroom and five one-bedroom units — in six two-story buildings. The buildings are arranged in a circle surrounding a landscaped pond (with a waterfall) traversed by two bridges. All feature covered parking garages.

Developers Norman Naimark and Gerald Sule of Southfield received conditional preliminary approval to build 26 two-bedroom units in the parcel immediately north of the Gas and Go service station at the intersection of Eight and Taft.

The approval process for Naimark and Sule has been complicated by the difficulty of pinpointing a convenient automobile access route to his site, which varies topographically from a minimum of 884 feet above sea level at its southwest corner to 917.1 feet above sea level at its highest.

The conditions which commissioners imposed on Naimark and Sule include resolution of the developers' request that the city Board of Zoning Appeals waive an ordinance rule which would prevent them from building as many as 26 units — the number Naimark said he considers the minimum to ensure the parcel's developmental profitability.

Commissioners also made approval contingent on developers' agreement to install a catch-basin to contain some of the site's rainwater runoff. Naimark told commissioners that requirement posed no serious problem.

Projected city budget smaller than last year

Helping to keep spending levels down on a year-to-year comparison is the completion of payments on some installment loans taken out in 1979 and 1980 when city revenues still looked strong and healthy.

In the past year, the city completed a five-year payment plan on an ITT telephone system and four-year plan on a jet vector purchased by the DPW. Together, these payments totalled $25,000 last year.

This year marks the last payment on the aerial fire truck purchased in December, 1980. One more $36,000 payment and the city has completed that $118,600 (counting interest costs) purchase, freeing the money for other uses, Walters noted.

No similar large capital expenditures are planned in the current general fund budget.

But unforeseen circumstances, Walters said the coming year should see some gains made in other funds. Repair of the aging water tower should be started before the current fiscal year ends, some comprehensive plan to catch up with delayed street maintenance should begin next year and the city should be able to start accumulating money in its public improvement fund (PIF) for the first time since 1981.

DeHoCo purchase debate at a critical juncture

By KEVIN WILSON

Local officials were sensing a turning point this week in the debate over when and how the state might purchase the Detroit House of Correction.

State representative Gerald Law (R-Plymouth Township) said Tuesday he had reached "an understanding" with the department of management and budget late last week that appeared to clear the way for the purchase to go forward.

But, he cautioned, Governor James Blanchard was meeting with Detroit Mayor Coleman Young Tuesday to discuss Young's repeated assertions that the state should also utilize the vacant Plymouth Center for Human Development site as yet a fourth state prison in this area.

"Young seems to have this hang-up about Plymouth Center," Law said. "He's even been shown Blanchard's press statement from a year ago saying Plymouth Center is not suited for use as a prison, yet he keeps pounding away at it."

Law said the outcome of the Tuesday meeting between the governor and the mayor of the state's largest city will determine the degree of cooperation that he and other local officials will offer regarding the DeHoCo purchase.

"We've bent as far as we're going to go — either we have a deal right now or we're just going to toss it in and go all out to try to stop the purchase of DeHoCo," Law said.

He explained that a series of daily meetings between local legislators and management and budget officials had hammered out an arrangement evidently satisfactory to both sides.

"We conceded to them a 650-prisoner temporary limit on use of DeHoCo with the population to go down to 500 on a permanent basis either January 1, 1987 or upon completion of the Scott Regional prison, whichever comes first," Law said. "If they go beyond that time, it would require approval of the local government, which would be Plymouth Township."

Law was also in the process of making substantial changes in a bill he introduced calling for a moratorium on prison constructions in areas that already had one or more prisons unless the local government approves.

"Essentially, I narrowed it down so only applies to Plymouth and Northville Townships; there's a clause that says this only applies to communities with these institutions: Phoenix, Scott and DeHoCo."

Law said the state administration found his bill acceptable in that form. If the governor's office were to support it, Law's bill would be practically insured of approval in the Democratic-dominated House — the biggest obstacle to its passage.

"We believe we have a deal," he said Tuesday. "If it turns out that we don't after Young is done, we're done talking. We'll just do whatever we can to stop the sale."

COLD FIGHTING TISSUES
Results of tests at the University of Wisconsin Medical School may have a dramatic effect on the future spread of cold viruses. The research involved two similar groups of volunteers who played cards together for 12 hours. In one group, half of the persons were experimentally infected with rhinovirus (a type of virus that can cause the common cold). At the end of 12 hours, 52% of those who did not receive the virus "caught" colds from those who received the virus experimentally. In the second group, individuals who received the rhinovirus used a specially treated tissue to blow or wipe their noses. Not a single person in this group "caught" colds from their experimentally-infected neighbors.
As a result of this research, Kimberly-Clark has developed a tissue that is designed to kill cold viruses before they spread to others. The virus-killing layer of the tissue is treated with citric acid, malic acid, and a detergent. The company is quick to point out that these tissues do not cure the common cold. Larger studies involving individuals who actually have colds will determine if such tissues have a role in the prevention of the common cold—one of man's most persistent ailments.

Memorials set for Soper

The Northville Board of Education Monday unanimously approved a citizens' committee recommendation to name the new high school forum in memory of Nancy Soper, former assistant superintendent for instruction.

In addition to naming the forum, the board also approved a recommendation to establish a "Memorial Speakers Forum Foundation" to which memorials could be contributed in the name of any person or organization and established a "Nancy J. Soper Outstanding Achievement Award."

The former Northville administrator and longtime educator died February 27 after a long battle with cancer.

Kay Kepner, chairperson of the six-member citizens' committee, said the group met April 16 to discuss an appropriate manner for recognizing Nancy Soper's contributions to the district.

Other committee members included teacher Mary Fredyl, principal Milton Jacobi, school board trustee Chris Johnson, attorney Jack Couzens and resident Lois Hoffmeister.

Kepner noted that the "committee as a whole felt strongly regarding the Memorial Foundation in that it would establish an on-going program for the Northville Public Schools."

She further noted that the Outstanding Achievement Award would be presented at the annual PTA Founders' Day Dinner to a member of the school community who has made the most significant contribution within the year.

The award would be handled with a continuing plaque at the board of education office and one awarded to the nominee.

Josh White, Jr. is taking steps to expand his horizons onstage

Josh White, Jr. next on bill at the Raven coffeehouse

By B.J. MARTIN

For a local legend, Josh White, Jr. is pretty real stuff. Ambling up for this interview in a powder-blue jogging suit and Adidas, he looks more like a track coach than a well-traveled, much-admired musical artist.

White is this weekend's attraction at The Raven Coffeehouse, and probably the best-known of the performers who have appeared there so far.

Part of his fame descends from his late father, Josh White Sr. Part comes from his White's frequent appearances at the original Raven Gallery coffeehouse in Southfield for years. Part comes from his coast-to-coast musical tours and identification with humanitarian causes. And part comes from his career as a recording artist. He has recorded six albums, and plans another one or two, perhaps by the end of this year.

That sort of history tends to inflate a person's ego like a bicycle pump. But while White radiates an infectious optimism ("I try very hard to believe in people and be positive," he says), he's actually quite modest and soft-spoken, even about his considerable accomplishments.

Most recently, White has tested his theatrical abilities — a natural extension of his being a stage performer since his youth. Last year, White began a touring one-man theatrical/musical show in which he portrays his father, an important American folk singer in the 1950s.

"I first tried it at the Boar's Head in Lansing," White says in an amicable, soft-spoken voice. "Most recently I did it at Oakland Community College last November... I look at my father through the play much like Hal Holbrook did with Mark Twain, as far as a one-man presentation."

"It's something I want to do three, four, six, seven times a year," he says, adding his next scheduled theatrical show will take place July 25 in Muskegon.

"I try very hard to believe in people and be positive."

— Josh White, Jr.

For this weekend's engagement, however, the emphasis will be on Josh White The Younger, and it promises to be a special one for the artist.

"An old friend of mine, Bill Alberts, lives here in Northville," he explains. "He's a very talented guy I met at The Stables in Lansing. Bill's going to be working at Mountain Jack's Friday night, but I'm hoping we'll be able to do one or three songs together in the first show."

Another reason this weekend's shows will be special to White is that he is contemplating a year-long respite from performing in the Detroit area, and the Raven gig could be his last for quite some time.

"There really aren't that many venues around the area that have worked out for me lately," he explains. "I used to work the (original) Raven for a three-week engagement four times a year, and it's been hard to get that kind of working arrangement."

That might change if the future of folk music is as bright as White believes. "It makes sense," he says. "Electronically, we can't go much farther than we have. It's gotten to the point where one person can go on stage with electronics and do all the music by remote control."

"So I think acoustic sounds might be coming back. I think there's a growing awareness of some of the injustices and military involvements under our country's present direction, and there's a segment of people whose needs aren't being addressed in popular music. I think folk performers seem to rise to the occasion at times like this."

White's musical tastes and influences are eclectic, and his repertoire ranges from his originals to songs by folk-oriented artists like Gordon Lightfoot and James Taylor, and lesser-known tunesmiths.

"Lately I've been listening to country a lot," says White. "I like interpreting country songs in my own style, a little bit of blues, a little bit of fingerpicking. I'd love to play like, say, Bob Gibson. I just do what I'm capable of."

"With country," he explains, "you can hear everything the singer says. I may not agree with what he's singing about, but I respect his saying it right up front."

With a lot of music that's popular now, the production style takes over the substance of the music. I hear a lot of groups in which the singer's voice is buried (by louder instruments).

"I don't know if I'm appreciating what I'm hearing," he laughs. Then he emphasizes: "I don't want to be negative about it, though. I really like all kinds of music."

He also likes confounding expectations. Mostly known for simply arranged folk songs, White once recorded a lavishly produced LP with a 22-piece orchestra. His last album, Almost Alone went to the opposite extreme — it was just White and his guitar, his first completely solo record.

"I like that album a lot since I didn't put myself in someone else's hands," he says. White plans to do his next album also in a solo setting, and possibly independently produced. "I'm hoping to do a children's album and a Christmas album this year, too," the Detroit native adds.

Josh White, Jr. will perform shows at 7:30 and 9:45 p.m. Friday and Saturday night at The Raven, 303 West Main, Northville. If all four shows sell out, there will be a fifth show at 7 p.m. Sunday. For ticket information, phone 349-9420.

Chamber dedicates tourney to Walt Ellis

Northville Community Chamber of Commerce's annual golf outing is being named in honor of the man who chaired its arrangements for many years. It is to be called the Walt Ellis Memorial Golf Tourney.

Mr. Ellis died August 14, 1984; with his wife Berenice he operated the Bookstall on the Main and was an active supporter of the chamber.

The outing will be June 15 at Godwyn Glen Golf Club on Johns Road at Ten Mile. This year's arrangements are being made by Stan Johnston and Clancy

Ely.

Price is $30 a person for 18 holes and a buffet dinner. Separately, the events are $17.50 and $12.50. Prizes will be awarded. Tickets are available by calling the chamber office, 349-7640, between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. week days.

Officials support new development

Would a six-story building containing apartments, offices, a restaurant and stores disrupt Northville's small-town atmosphere?

Among officials contacted and queried about the issue, the answers are predominantly favorable. Here are remarks made by officials who could be contacted:

MAYOR PRO-TEM G. DEWEY GARDNER: "I was surprised (about the planning commission's split vote). My personal impressions of the building are very good."

"I think it'll provide a nice bridge from downtown up to the M.A.G.S. building. I like the fact it's being built on a hill, and I think its design won't detract from our downtown atmosphere. If it had been a square, boxed-off six-story building, I probably would have been opposed. But I'd rather have it on the four corners than have it spread out around the outside of the downtown area."

"I think it will act as a catalyst for creating a two-level downtown, which I think is just right for a hilly area like we have—I can't think of anything better than to have a two-level approach with lots of little shops and inns and out."

"Speaking as a public official looking to build a tax base, it's everything we could possibly hope for, and something we didn't think would ever come to pass."

PLANNING COMMISSIONER JOHN HARDIN: "I don't object to the architecture. My concerns are, 'Is this in scale with the city, and will it be desirable if Northville is to maintain its present atmosphere?'"

"Something I've found I enjoy is the small-town character here: it's something you get to know and love. I agree with the Master Plan that it's something worth keeping. I see the project and I ask, 'Will it be good for Northville? Is it desirable?'"

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT COMMISSION CHAIR ROBERT BRUECK: "They haven't been to the EDC for financing, and I'm not sure they will. From what I understand, they may already have some backers in mind."

"Personally, it sounds like a good idea. That corner has been kind of a hole for quite some time. What I've heard other people say has largely been positive."

CITY MANAGER STEVEN WALTERS: "It's very encouraging, because it's the first major sign that businesses are reacting to the downtown redevelopment plan. We've had a lot of smaller-scale improvements, but this (next stage of downtown improvement) really required some major development."

"I think they've done a real nice job of keeping the building from looking like a large mass. I think it'll be surprising how nicely it'll fit in with the other buildings downtown. It's going to look very imposing when you're coming into town from South Center, but from the north it will look almost lower than the surrounding buildings, even though it's not."

Most vocal opponent explains his vote

By B.J. MARTIN

Fortyish, trim and despite his chain-smoking apparently in decent health, Jay Wendt seems somewhat too young to be a curmudgeon.

But in his last few years as a city planning commissioner, Wendt's earned a reputation as a stickler for detail on proposed development and redevelopment in the city. He does his homework. He reads the ordinance. He knows what he can insist on from developers, and he hasn't been afraid to make a few uncomfortable with some pointed questions.

He knows how to use his position on the commission to influence developments. While Wendt may not try to strike fear into developers' hearts, they know they had better have their act together if they want his nod.

His recent opposition to the proposed multiple-use building at Center and Main streets downtown is prime Wendt curmudgeonliness. Most officials and business people have been enthusiastic about the project and are eager to meet the changes and challenges it would pose to Northville's identity.

Wendt is more wary. He didn't try to filibuster a delay on the issue—and wound up losing a 4-3 vote in favor of the project. But he hasn't backed off his opinion that there exist some potential

"There's some quaintness to the town that's all part of the puzzle. I'm the kind of person who's willing to gamble to keep the town the way it is."

— Jay Wendt, planning commissioner problems with the project. He discussed some of those concerns last Friday.

"I think there are two basic types of people in Northville," Wendt said. "There are the real old-timers, the ones who have been here since it was a founding city and want to see it stay the same."

"Then there's a second group of people who came here 10-20 years ago, saw the renovation of the downtown. And that group tends to consider itself true Northville-ites."

"I feel like I belong to the second group. They were the ones who saw the Northville Square situation and see in this (The 108 Group) project some of the same things that went on 15 years ago."

a six-story building. But with those peaks, it's going to look like eight stories.

"I'm scared it's going to look out of place on that corner. I like the way the downtown stores are now all divided up. Even though they're all about the same height and width, they all have an individual uniqueness to them, whether it's the way they're painted or the marble front on the bank. I'm scared this new thing is going to stand out like a sore thumb."

Returning to the project's economic and residential desirability and the high rents (some more than $1,000 per month) developers have suggested are possible, Wendt continued: "There's no indication people will pay that kind of money to live there."

"Now they (developers) say they've done some studies comparing this area's wealth to that in Birmingham or Ann Arbor. Well, our planning commission just got through processing a developer who said his studies showed the high end of the rent scale in the area was in the $700 range. Now granted, maybe people will want to spend an extra $100 a month to live downtown. But will they pay that much more?"

"So what happens if they don't get had encountered early financial difficulties.

"It brings to mind what happened with the M.A.G.S. building. I see it happening all over again. We're trying to force a big development in a small town," Wendt said.

Project architect Walter Coponen disagreed.

"The big difference between Northville Square and this is that Northville Square had one primary use," Coponen said. "This is a multiple-use structure. We have offices, a restaurant, stores, residences... It's a place that doesn't close, one that people use 24 hours a day."

Speaking to the economics issue, Coponen cited the findings of a study that showed the incomes of households located within a five-mile radius of the project compare favorably with other southeast Michigan areas where similar or even larger-scale projects had succeeded: downtown Birmingham and downtown Ann Arbor.

Wendt countered, "This is not Ann Arbor and it's not Birmingham." Commissioner Hardin seconded that point.

"I don't object to the architecture, and I don't want to get involved in whether there's going to be vacant space," Hardin said. "My concern is with the scale. Will it be desirable if Northville is to maintain its present atmosphere?" he asked.

Totten said while he was not strictly opposed to the project, he thought more time was necessary to consider it. "I've had a lot of information coming at me pretty fast," he told fellow commissioners. "I'd recommend some kind of preliminary approval so we have a little more time to think it over... I guess I'm asking for a slow-moving steamroller."

Absent from the meeting because of business conflicts were commissioners Lesa Buckland and James Cutler. Contacted last Thursday, Buckland said she thought she would have sided with the majority had she been able to attend. "I agree with the concept," she said. "I think Northville needs something like that."

Cutler, also contacted Thursday, said he had "no idea" how he would have voted.

City Council is scheduled to weigh the project at its meeting Monday, May 6.

PTA-PTSA News

Public schools prepare for closings, middle school

EDITOR'S NOTE: Northville PTA-PTSA News, published the last Wednesday of each month September through June, is compiled by volunteer Linda Handyside, who correlates material from the publicity persons in the Northville Public Schools. Jeanette Westerhaus does St. Paul's Lutheran School News and Cindy Nuttall, Our Lady of Victory.

AMERMAN

Amerman's principal for the new school year, Milton Jacobi, was introduced at the April 15 PTA meeting. Officers for next year's PTA also were elected. The new board members are: Terry Doyle and Sheila Norgren, co-presidents; Norma Beemer, vice president; Betty Baird, secretary and Pat Belloli, treasurer.

Congratulations to Carol Kapusky and her hard-working Am-A-Gram staff for receiving the Newsletter Award from the Michigan State PTA. The presentation was made at the State Convention in Saginaw April 20.

Counselors from Northville's junior highs were at Amerman April 16 to discuss the transition from elementary to middle school with fifth and sixth graders.

Amerman's annual Spring Flower Sale has begun. This year, flowering plants such as petunias, geraniums, marigolds, begonias and impatiens are available. Order blanks are to be returned today. Moraine School also has order blanks for any Moraine parents who may want to make an order. Pick-up day will be May 22 from 1:30-3:30 p.m. in the gym.

Fourth and fifth graders are getting ready for their camp outing at Camp Grindley on May 1-3.

Kindergarten Round-Up will be the week of May 7-10. Any child who will be 5 years old before December 1 is welcome to attend and be given a School Readiness Test.

The last J.E.S. program of the school year will be the Living Science Program to be presented to all grades on May 14.

This program is being paid for with funds raised from the successful Current Magazine Sales.

May 21 will be Fun Day at Amerman. An orientation for Moraine students attending Amerman in September is being planned along with outdoor Field Day activities.

Amerman students are busy practicing for the All-School Musical to be held May 30 at the high school auditorium. The theme will be international, covering music and information from all over the world. Parents are asked to help with costumes.

The next PTA meeting will be at 9 a.m. Monday, May 20, in the Amerman library. Everyone is invited to come and meet next year's officers.

Rita Gordon

MORaine

May 1 will be Library Balloon Launch Day at Moraine. Each student will launch a balloon with the theme, "Pig Out on Books." The balloons will have the theme printed on them. They will be tagged with the student's name and address of the school. Returned tags will be displayed in the library for students to see how far the balloons traveled.

On May 7, the fourth grade will visit the Impressions Museum in Lansing.

Storyteller Pamela VanderFloeg will visit Moraine May 9. She will have two sessions on the history of Michigan.

Our Art and Science Fair begins May 9. This is open to all students in grades 1-6. May 9 also is the date for our annual ice cream social. There will be a band concert May 23.

The kindergarten is looking forward to a trip to Maybury May 31.

April 17 was International Day at Moraine. Everyone was encouraged to dress in a costume of another land. This was to excite everyone's interest in our upcoming musical show, "Moraine International."

Moraine is privileged to have Kathleen Leo working with some of our students in a poetry workshop. Two or three students were selected from each classroom. The workshops are being filmed and will be shown on cable TV.

Our publishing center again has been a great success. According to Norma Beemer, 165 books have been published thus far.

Brenda Norman

SILVER SPRINGS

The fine arts are flourishing at Silver Springs this spring as students are being presented with a variety of cultural experiences to heighten their interest. Tomorrow the fifth and sixth grades will have an opportunity to expand their literary horizons when they are presented with poetry by a real poet, Kerry Thomas.

On April 26, the Intermediate Band will visit Meads Mill and six budding Silver Springs authors will attend the Young Authors Conference at Oakland University.

On April 29, May 1, 3 and 6, poet Kathy Leo will visit the school and work with students in all grades on poetry writing.

On May 2, the Wonderful World of Chemistry will be presented in assembly at 9:30 and 10:30 a.m. This is an outstanding program, sure to interest all our young scientists.

On May 8 at 7 p.m., our student poets will present an Evening Poetry Recital in the Rondelle. The students will be reading their own works.

May 9 will be Silver Springs' Annual Festival of the Arts. The festival will include a band concert, art recognition and the science fair.

Kindergarten Orientation will be held May 7 and 9. Families with children who will be entering kindergarten this fall will be receiving complete information in the mail.

Silver Springs' traditional Fun Run will be held May 21. This year's Fun Run will be made even more special with the inclusion of some of our new students who will be coming to us from Moraine and Amerman schools.

The next PTA meeting will be held at 9:15 a.m. May 14. The list of board members for the 1985-86 school year will be voted on at this time. Even though most board positions have been filled, more help is always needed and volunteers are welcome. If you are interested in Silver Springs and want to be involved, plan to attend this meeting.

WINCHESTER

Our smiles and heartiest congratulations to next year's PTA officers: Pat Howe, president; Judy Shattuck, vice president; Sharon Schultz, secretary; and Cheryl Walro, treasurer. Also, congratulations to the 1985 Spelling Bee winners: Nishi Goyal, Kelly Skowronek, Tim Petrosky, Brit Davis, Catherine Donkers and Michelle McQuaid.

Winchester's March Roller Skating Party was a great success. Barb Weix organized the parties this year along with the "Winchester Toronto Trip." Families were invited to join the fun for the weekend and ride the train to Toronto where they went to the science museum.

Lynn MacIver and Linda Phillips "wrapped" up the Campbell Soup Label Contest with our biggest year ever. Books and general playground equipment will be purchased with the proceeds.

Our teachers will be honored at a teachers' appreciation luncheon today. Mary Koostra and Kathy Allan will be hosting.

In the Publishing Center, Roxanne Koche, Sharon Morency and Lonnie George along with their many volunteers published 372 of the Winchester children's original stories.

Cheryl Walro and Margo Smith have engaged a magician for the final J.E.S. presentation. He will be at Winchester at 1 p.m. April 26.

On April 29, the Winchester book swap will take place. Each child brings in books to exchange. The child writes a summary and sales pitch in order to obtain a new book.

Nancy Trabin has taken charge of making sure each child will have an opportunity to purchase a yearbook.

Kindergarten Round-Up will be held during the second full week in May. The children will be tested for total development in insure they are ready to start school.

On May 22, the second, third and fourth grade students will be participating in Hobby Day. At the same time, the other grades will be enjoying Career Day.

COOKE

Cooke eighth and ninth graders will be eligible this year for the President's Academic Fitness Award. Those students who have a Cooke career grade point average of 3.25 through last marking period will receive a certificate signed by the President of the United States and a pin. These will be awarded the last day of school at the Awards Assembly. Ninety-three Cooke students will receive this award. Congratulations to all these students.

Jeff Radwonski, Cooke counselor, reports plans for the middle school are on schedule. Step one, orientation for the students at the four elementary schools, took place the week of April 15. Step two, registering for electives by the students, will be the first and second week of May. Step three, the students visiting Meads Mill, date to be set. Counselors for the middle school will be Mr. Radwonski for all three grades with students whose last names start with A-L and Dave Adair for students with last names beginning with M-Z.

Cooke's band is going to have a busy next few weeks. April 24 is their concert at Cooke at 7:30 p.m. May 4 the band will travel to Romulus High School for a band festival. May 7, the band will participate in National Music Week by performing at Twelve Oaks Mall.

Mr. Wizzard's "World of Energy" will be coming to Cooke May 3. This presentation will be held second hour for all eighth graders.

Student Council will be having officer exchange day with Meads Mill. Cooke officers will spend one day at Meads Mill and then the officers from Meads Mill will visit Cooke. Dates still have to be set.

Cooke's Choir will be presenting the musical "Grease" at 7:30 p.m. May 3.

There is an Inservice Day on Wednesday, May 22 — no afternoon classes.

Plans are progressing for Cooke Fun Day. This promises to be a great end to this school year and mark the closing of Cooke Junior High.

MEADSMILL

The Meads Mill PTSA and the Cooke PTO would like to invite all interested parents to a joint meeting at 9:30 a.m. May 8 in the Meads Mill Cafeteria. The 1985-86 school year will be discussed. There will be a tour of the building after the meeting.

There will be the installation of PTA officers at 7:30 p.m. May 15 in the cafeteria. The Meads Mill band will present a concert immediately following the PTA meeting.

The PTA's JES funds will be supporting two upcoming programs for our students. On May 2, the Cranbrook Institute of Science will be sending out Melissa Pletcher to put on a science assembly for all 7th graders. The assembly is entitled "Physics Wizardry." The world of physics will be explored in this exciting science show exploring light, colors, lasers, electricity, pressure, energy and more.

The second program will be presented to the 8th graders on May 31 from 8:15-9:15 in the media center. The program will feature Larry Krabill and his tales of the Civil War period.

On May 17, the choir will be performing the musical "Charlie Brown" for the Winchester and Silver Springs elementary students. The program will be repeated for parents and family at 7:30 p.m. May 21 in the Meads Mill Cafeteria. We hope you will attend.

The Northville Board of Education will be meeting at 7:30 p.m. May 20 in the media area at Meads Mill.

A Creative-Writers-In-Schools Program will be held in Northville through May 7. Poet Kerry Thomas will be writer-in-residence. His work with 9th graders and teachers will culminate May 16. Some of the objectives of the program are: develop a positive image of contemporary poetry; develop a "liking for" poetic expression; improvement of contemporary poetry for writing skills; improve teacher competency in the skills of teaching poetry and provide a positive learning experience.

NORTHVILLE HIGH SCHOOL

Spring is worth singing about so Mary Kay Price will be taking her mixed choir to Lansing May 2. There they will perform on the steps of the State Capitol to entertain the noontime crowd with their songs of spring. The choir will host its annual spring concert at 7:30 p.m. May 23 in the high school auditorium. Admission is free. It also will give the choir members an opportunity to show off their new outfits (tuxedos for the boys, dresses for the girls) thanks to everyone's support through the purchase of cheese, pumpkin bread and a spaghetti dinner plus a generous donation from the Northville-Mother's Club.

"The Wizard of Oz" production concluded a very successful run March 30.

Tax time's come, tax time's gone, and you missed opening an IRA... AGAIN?!

Michigan National offers the EASY IRA™

Tax time is over, and you didn't open your IRA. You could have saved a lot more money on your taxes. Michigan National has a great way to make sure you have enough money for next year's IRA.

It's called the Michigan National EASY IRA Easy, because we'll automatically deposit money into an EASY IRA from your checking or savings account, all year long. So when tax time rolls around, your IRA — and tax break — are all set up.

Just stop into any Michigan National Bank, tell them how much you want deposited into an EASY IRA every month, and you're all set.

It's that easy. But hurry. The sooner you start, the more you'll have to deduct from your taxes next year.

Spelling Bee jitters

Twenty Wayne County students — including four from Northville — recently participated in the Regional Spelling Bee competition at Our Lady of Victory. The Regional Bee, sponsored by Lawrence Institute of Technology, brought together some of the county's top spellers. Among those were Northville residents Laura Williams, a student at Meads Mill Junior High, Matt Scherkenbach from Our Lady of Victory, Dorothy Nelder of Silver Springs and Catherine Donkers of Winchester. The winning speller in this year's competition was Michael Hansen (above) from Pierce Junior High School in Redford. Michael was awarded an engraved Webster Dictionary and the opportunity to compete with other regional spellers in the state competition. Matt Sherkenbach, (at right) watches the remainder of the competition after misspelling "heighten." Matt was the youngest student competing in this year's contest. Record photo by Steve Fecht.

Director Kurt Kinde reports they were able to meet their expenses and make a sizeable profit. In traditional manner, Mr. Kinde recognized selected students with most professional on and off stage awards. For "most professional on stage," he awarded Anne Griffith for her role as the Wicked Witch of the West and Dave Dore as the Cowardly Lion. "Most professional off stage" was given to Lori Hoffmeister for her work on set, Mark Brandon for special effects and Richelle Harrington for assistance to the director. These awards are most prized by the students because they realize it recognizes the diligent work they have put in during the three months prior to the play's opening. Making choices among 100 or so students who work on the production is not an easy one. Mr. Kinde's words of praise for everyone are clear evidence that he appreciates even the smallest contribution to making the play a success.

May 7 the Honor Society will hold induction ceremonies at 7 p.m. in the auditorium. Currently the society has about 60 members. The choir will entertain with a few favorite tunes.

A band concert is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. May 9. May 20, the Foreign Language Club will sponsor its annual International Dinner. This year it will be held at Cooke Junior High and all 9th grade language students are invited to attend.

The Senior Class will hold its Senior Prom May 17 at the Hyatt Regency in Dearborn. Their theme song will be "One More Night." It will begin at 8 p.m. and conclude at 1 a.m.

May 22 has been chosen Teacher Appreciation Day at the high school. Parent Advisory members will host and provide the food for the luncheon that day.

The band and choirs will hold a free (donations only) car wash April 27 in the bank parking lot at Center and Dunlap.

OUR LADY OF VICTORY

The last general meeting of the PTO for this year will be held tomorrow (April 26). This also is the election meeting for the officers of the board for next year. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Social Hall. Everyone is encouraged to attend and vote.

Junior High Career Days has been the focus of attention for seventh and eighth graders at Our Lady of Victory this week.

Tryouts are finished and the cast has been selected for the upcoming school play, "The Frankensteins Are Back in Town." Performance night will be 7:30 p.m. May 15.

Everyone is anxiously awaiting spring and the Fifth Annual PTO Spring Flower Sale. Bill Braund is the chairman this year and has high hopes of another successful sale topping last year's. The date is May 17 and we hope all you flower lovers will take this opportunity and help us in this fundraising event.

The third and fourth graders at Our Lady of Victory visited the Youtheatre at the Detroit Institute of Arts for a performance of "Young Tom Edison."

Moraine fun fair

Students at Moraine Elementary School celebrated their annual "Fun Fair" with a host of activities including games, prizes and good things to eat. Elisha Sutton, 6, above, tried her hand at the Tarzan and Jane rope swing game. The object of the game was to swing across the mat (containing paper alligators) grab the (ring) banana and return to the starting spot without falling in the water. Elisha appears to have mastered the game — with a little help from some PTA moms. Record photo by Steve Fecht.

Wendt describes ideas behind negative vote

tenants? We're back to square one . . . "Northville's wealth may be comparable to those other areas. But it's a different kind of wealth. In Birmingham they wave flags to show they're wealthy. Northville's is more hidden . . . I know our people don't want to be a downtown Birmingham or Ann Arbor."

Asked why officials such as Planning Consultant Ron Nino and other commissioners did not share the intensity of his concerns, Wendt said, "My understanding of Ron's job is that he is to be a help in pointing out to members of the commission, none of whom are planning experts, that is interpreting, the zoning ordinance, and to pass along the experience he's had as a planner."

"If you look at this (project) carefully, you'll see you don't read anywhere whether Ron recommends whether it's legally feasible."

Referring to city-paid officials' support of the project, Wendt added, "I would ask myself if I were a person in Steve's (City Manager Steve Walters) position trying to figure out how to get additional taxes and parking revenue into the city, where would I look?

"I know most of that money goes to the schools. But it's his job to run the city in the most economical way possible. I don't dispute that he has the city at heart. We just differ on the ways to serve it best."

"We do need additional dollars in town," Wendt said. "The tax burden is a lot greater with our very small business tax base . . . But it seems to me people who live in Northville who are paying hefty tax bills are doing it for a reason. There's some quaintness to the town that's all part of the puzzle. I'm the kind of person who's willing to gamble to keep the town the way it is."

"We have to decide whether we want to be Northville or Birmingham. And so many people say to me they want to be Northville."

Wendt knows the odds are stacked against his point of view prevailing when city council considers the building May 6. But he plans to do whatever is possible to help the project should it be approved and financed. "If they are going to have it, I hope it'll be successful," he explains. "Because if it isn't . . ."

Seven retire from Schoolcraft

The faculty at Schoolcraft has been considered stable, with nine-tenths of the 155 at full seniority under the Faculty Forum contract. But last week the college announced seven instructors will retire:

- Charles W. Castillo, speech professor since the college opened its doors in 1964. Considered inspiring by former students, Castillo earlier taught at Delta College, the University of Colorado and Syracuse University. Active in the community, he judged oratorical contests and served on many college committees such as instructional affairs and accreditation;
- Robert W. Jones, composer-in-residence for three years under a Ford Foundation grant and music professor since 1972. A keyboard artist at piano and harpsichord, Jones has written much church music, a cello sonata for a Detroit Symphony member, and a fanfare, opera, symphony and viola concerto for the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

- Ruth M. McCormack, nursing professor since 1972. She previously taught 13 years at Henry Ford Community College, St. Lawrence School of Nursing in Lansing and Providence Hospital in Detroit.

- Raymond L. Naslund, accounting professor since 1966. Earlier he taught in Michigan public schools and spent eight years in industry.

- W. David Perkins, English professor since 1964. He previously taught four years at the University of Michigan.

- Kenneth W. Russell, climate systems instructor since 1975. He previously taught eight years at Detroit's Cass Technical High School and has 23 years' experience in other technical instruction. Russell prepared test questions on heating and air conditioning for the state Department of Licensing and Regulation.

- M.S. Sanborn, business education professor since 1965 and coordinator of the college's cooperative office training program. She also served on the state Department of Education's post-secondary cooperative vocation education committee.

Board grants three sabbatical leaves

Three Schoolcraft College faculty members will use sabbatical leaves for research and study from Germany to Hawaii and many points in between.

They were the only three applicants to seek leaves this year, President Richard McDowell told the board of trustees earlier this month.

Mary Jawor, English professor; Patrick Newman, student activities counselor, and Delavan Sipes, electronics professor, will receive full pay for a semester and be replaced by part-timers, according to Conway Jeffress, vice president for instruction.

Without hesitation, trustees approved the leaves.

Jawor, a member of the English department faculty since 1964, will use the fall semester to visit Germany and Hawaii to compile materials for a children's literature course at Schoolcraft. Working with another author, she also will compile a poetry text for children consisting of modern German poetry and folk literature.

Newman, adviser to the Campus Globe newspaper, will spend 26 weeks starting with the fall semester to review college publications and prepare training programs for their development.

Newman's work is expected to aid both the Globe and the college's overall marketing effort. He will attend workshops, visit other colleges, review Schoolcraft publications and prepare design-style manuals. Newman has been at Schoolcraft since 1970.

Sipes, a faculty member since 1965, will complete work on his dissertation for the doctorate degree in higher education at the University of Michigan. His subject will be the alternative energy courses at community colleges. Sipes will be off campus from January through August of 1986.

Hog slopping among Kensington offerings

Several spring nature programs are upcoming at Huron-Clinton Metropolitan.

At Kensington "Evening Encounter with Spring," to help participants explore the evening with senses of hearing, smell and touch, will be presented at the park near Milford at 7 p.m. April 25.

"Birding Bonanza," a two-hour walk to discover migrating birds which requires participants to have binoculars, will be held at 10 a.m. April 28 at Kensington.

"Our Awakening Wildflowers," a program to unveil spring woodland varieties, will be held at Kensington at 2 p.m. April 28.

Kensington Farm Center will give an opportunity to slop the hogs and feed other animals in a program, "Slopping the Hogs," at 4 p.m. Saturday, April 27. Participants also will be able to milk a cow.

All programs are free of charge, but advance registration and a vehicle entry permit are required. Call 1-800-552-6772 (toll free) to register.

New Japanese 'Super Pill' Insures Rapid Weight-Loss

No Dieting — Eat All You Want,
Pill Does All The Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA An exciting new "all natural" weight-loss "Super" Pill developed by the JMA (Japanese Medical Association) has just been approved for distribution in the United States. Reportedly, it can guarantee that you will lose more than a pound a day without dieting, from the very first day until you reach your ideal weight and figure. News of this "Super Pill" is literally sweeping the country. It's called Amitol and there has never been anything quite like it before.

"Flushes Calories Right Out Of Your Body"

What makes Amitol so thrilling and unique is its reported ability to flush calories right out of your body. Amitol is completely safe, it contains no drugs whatsoever. Its ingredients are derived solely from the Konjac root which grows primarily in Northern Japan.

Why the Konjac root? It has been used in Japan for over 1600 years to produce rapid and natural weight-loss! Japanese studies verify that Konjac root actually prevents fat producing calories from being absorbed into your system. They say it does this by surrounding much of the fats, proteins and carbohydrates you have eaten with a protective viscous coating which is then gently flushed out of your system. And according to Japanese research, this produces absolutely amazing results.

And who can disagree! Amitol (although brand new to this country) is already being called by many people, "the most exciting weight-loss breakthrough of the century." In fact, everywhere there are reports of easy and fast weight-loss from formerly overweight people (in all walks of life) who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Company Offers

Extraordinary Guarantee

You now can purchase Amitol direct from the North American distributor, and it comes with an extraordinary guarantee.

If you place your order now and then follow the simple instructions for a period of 30 days, you must be completely satisfied with the dramatic visible results or just return the empty container and Dyna Labs will immediately send back your entire purchase price. This guarantee applies regardless of your age or current weight level. What could be better than that? It's just that simple. If you've tried to lose weight before and failed you no longer have an excuse. Amitol is available, it's easy and it works without dieting!

$19.95 30 day supply, or $35.95 60 day supply. Order immediately by sending a check or money order to DYNALABS, 270 N. Canon Dr., Ste. 1255 (Dept. U-21) Beverly Hills, CA, 90210. (Enclose your return address). Credit card holders can order by simply dialing toll free: (1-800-367-2400) 24 hrs a day, 7 days a week. Either way your order will be promptly sent. Please don't wait. # Woman injured in crash on Five Mile

In the Township . . .

A 32-year-old Livonia woman suffered minor injuries in a two-car collision at Five Mile and Haggerty last Friday evening, township police report.

According to police, the woman was driving west bound on Five Mile at about 40 miles per hour when a vehicle pulled out of the McDonald's parking lot and struck her car.

The accident occurred a little after 11 p.m.

The township officer at the scene discovered an unoccupied silver Mercury in the middle of the road. A rust colored import was found on the south side of the street partially on the curb. The victim, the only occupant in the vehicle, was injured, but conscious, police noted. She was transported to St. Mary Hospital by Community EMS for treatment.

The officer at the scene said a crowd of youths had gathered in front of the McDonald's. Several unidentified persons in the crowd told police the occupants of the Mercury were in the restaurant restroom.

The driver of the vehicle, a 17-year-old Livonia resident, was located inside the restaurant. She told the officer at the scene that she had not seen the other car prior to pulling out into Five Mile.

Police noted in the report that the driver could not produce a driver's license but had other identification and vehicle papers.

Police detected alcohol on her breath, but noted she was not intoxicated. She submitted to a Portable Breath Test and police noted a blood alcohol content of .07 percent.

She was issued a citation for failure to yield right of way.

Items valued at $2,295 were stolen from a 1982 Honda Accord parked at Oasis Golf Center on Five Mile sometime between noon and 3 p.m. April 24, township police report.

The complainant told police the vehicle was locked at the time the incident occurred. He said unknown person(s) smashed the rear passenger side vent window to gain access to the contents of the vehicle.

Items stolen included a J.C. Penney VCR valued at $1,200, a J.C. Penney video camera valued at $830, a $79 carrying case, and $80 battery and a tripod valued at $89.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $45.

. . . In the City

A Redford Township man has been arraigned in 35th District Court on charges connected with a theft of a cashbox containing $800 from the Northville Public Library February 28.

Scott R. Leesun, at the time of the theft a custodian at the library, will face a court exam Thursday, May 2, following his entry of a not-guilty plea. According to police, Leesun confessed to the theft, but none of the stolen money could be recovered.

A Sony Walkman, a radar detector and a raincoat together valued at $623 were stolen from a car parked at Center and Cady streets April 16.

The car, a Ford LTD owned by Hallmark Marketing Corporation of Kansas City, was left in the parking lot on the northeast corner between 9:15 a.m. and 6:05 p.m. There were no signs of entry, although its driver said he had locked the doors.

A Northville man reported to city police last week that unknown person(s) caused $180 damage to his automobile while it was parked in front of a home on First Street between 4:45 p.m. Friday and 7:30 a.m. Saturday.

According to the report, the man discovered Saturday morning the windshield of his two-door Pontiac Sunbird had been cracked by what appeared to be gunshot from a B.B. gun.

Local students to compete in MSU Science Olympiad

A team of 15 Northville High School students will compete this Saturday in the Michigan Science Olympiad Tournament at Michigan State University in East Lansing.

The Northville team is among 100 other district teams which qualified to compete in the state tournament. They will be competing in events such as rocketry, bridge building, anatomy and science bowl.

ter and Craig Kozler. The Northville team was among 20 Wayne County secondary school teams qualifying for the state competition at the Wayne County Regional Science Olympiad Tournament held at the University of Michigan-Dearborn March 30. Forty-four schools were represented at the county competition.

At the county tournament, Eric Wheatley and Mike Weyburne received Olympic-style gold medals for their Solar Heating event, and Luke Kakogeorgiou accepted a silver medal for a biological competition, "Name that Organism." The team also merited a silver medal for Bridge Building.

Quality. It's as important in diamonds as in anything else you own.

And quality shows—in a fine diamond, a home, or an automobile.

Quality in diamonds is determined by the 4C's: Cut, Color, Clarity and Carat-weight.

Cut is the precise formula for cutting a diamond to allow the maximum amount of light in. Color refers to the different gradations from exceptional white to yellowish. Quality is also determined by Clarity, the degree to which a diamond is free of interior and exterior inclusions. Finally, there is Carat-weight, the size of the diamond.

Orin Jewelers is the expert where quality diamonds are concerned. Orin's can answer your questions on quality and can show you quality diamonds in all price ranges. Orin Jewelers understands how important quality is to you in anything you own.

Obituaries

ALBERT H. SCHEUNEMANN

Funeral arrangements were made by Phillips Funeral Home.

SIDNEY JOSEPH ALANEY

Funeral services for Sidney Joseph Alanev of Vassar, Michigan, were held Friday, April 19 at Collins Funeral Home in Caro. Mr. Alanev was born in Northville August 8, 1923, and died at home April 18. He was 61 at the time of his death from a brief illness.

Mr. Alanev is survived by his wife, the former Nancy Snider, whom he married July 10, 1962. Also surviving are Mr. Alanev's four sisters: Mrs. Cameron (Pat) Chisholm, of Newberry; Mrs. Clyde (Myrtle) Stark, of Coopersville; and Mrs. Ida Rozbon and Mrs. George (Virginia) Rull, both of Muskegon. He was preceded in death by his brother, Mr. Roy Alanev, Jr. He leaves several nieces and nephews.

Mr. Sidney Alanev was a general laborer in construction until his recent illness. He had lived in Vassar 14 years.

Memorial gifts may be donated to the charity of one's choice. Mr. Alanev was buried at Indian Fields Township Cemetery, Caro.

Albert H. Scheunemann died April 14 at the Martin Luther Home in South Lyon where he had resided for the past seven years. He was 93 years of age.

The son of August and Wilhelmina (Kurginski) Scheunemann, he was born June 18, 1891 in Greenfield. Elizabeth Webruss became his wife March 26, 1913 in Greenfield. She preceded him in death in January 1983.

Mr. Scheunemann was a long-time member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Northville, where his funeral was held April 17 with the Reverend Charles Boerger officiating. Burial was in Glen Eden Cemetery.

The Scheunemann family moved to South Lyon from Redford in 1933. Mr. Scheunemann was a farmer and had also worked at the Methodist Children's Home in Redford.

Survivors include two sons, Elmer of South Lyon and Norman of Highland; one daughter, Mrs. Le (Alice) Van Atta; one sister, Mrs. Emma Scheel of South Lyon; three grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Residents study Salem Township budget

Approximately 60 Salem Township residents recommended for approval a proposed budget of $431,082 for the 1985-86 fiscal year at the annual meeting March 30.

The budget includes anticipated revenues of $252,300 and a balance carried forward of $178,782 for a total of $431,082. Expected disbursements are pegged at $302,675 with a contingency fund for miscellaneous and emergencies of $128,407, making a balanced budget of $431,082.

One big item budgeted for purchase in the coming year is a new tanker for the fire department at approximately $100,000.

Township Clerk Nancy Geiger said, in explaining the financial statement items, that delinquent 1983 taxes of $22,071 had come in through Washtenaw County at $22,071, as a surprise to the board. This amount increased the balance on hand more than was anticipated, Geiger added.

With no salary increases proposed for any township officials or employees, the citizens voted unanimous approval of the salaries. In making the motion for approval, Elizabeth Hugg commended the board for their action in not asking for raises.

Salem senior citizens, with Henry Dolan acting as their spokesperson, sought to clarify whether the former Rider house next to the township offices was included in the maintenance budget. The house is part of the township's Village Green complex. Dolan said the concern is whether the board is ignoring maintenance of the house in the budgeted expenses.

Salem Supervisor Richard Sackett said the question was not proper under Roberts Rules of Order, which had been adopted by the board at the outset of the meeting. He asked Dolan and other concerned citizens to bring the issue to a regular township board meeting.

But Dolan said it was proper budget discussion and that the seniors had been told that the building had to be moved. He asked whether this could be done without a vote of the people.

Sackett insisted that the question should properly be brought to a regular board meeting and tempers flared briefly until the senior citizens were assured that it would take a vote of the electorate before the board can "buy or sell" property belonging to the township. This can be done either by voice vote or ballot at an annual or special meeting for that purpose, according to former Salem Supervisor Philip Brandon.

Dolan did succeed in getting the board to change the expense item in the budget to read "hall, office and other dependencies" instead of merely "hall and office."

Salem residents have sought, unsuccessfully, for sometime to get the board to allow the house (which was formerly used for township offices) to be used by the Salem Township Historical Society for a museum, meeting place and storage and as a meeting place for the Salem Senior Citizens.

Earlier this year Sackett said he hoped that the house can be moved from its present site through a government grant so that the property can then be used for expansion of the township hall parking area. He said he hoped something could be worked out so that the seniors and the historical society would be able to use the building in a new location.

In other action Saturday, township residents approved the State Savings Bank and Comerica as depositories for township funds, approved The South Lyon Herald as the township's official newspaper for notices and set the first Tuesday of each month at 8 p.m. as the regular meeting date of the township board.

During a hearing on federal revenue sharing funds, a motion to continue to use the funds for township roads was approved unanimously. The township is anticipating a cut of 50 percent (from $12,000 in 1984 to $6,000 in 1985) in the revenue sharing funds due to a Reagan administration proposal to reduce the distribution this year.

Holloway Construction wins DNR's approval

The Holloway Construction Company has won approval from the air quality division of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) for a conditional use permit to burn landfill methane gas as an alternate fuel at its asphalt plant on West Six Mile in Salem Township.

The plant was originally set up to burn fuel oil.

The conditional use permit was issued following an April 16 public hearing before the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission (MAPCC). The meeting was attended by seven representatives of Citizens for S.A.L.E.M. (Salem Area Local Environmental Management).

Robert Miller, executive secretary of MAPCC, said the commission listened to the citizens' concerns and took "close to an hour on the issue. It is the commission's position that the air quality would not be aggravated by allowing the use of the methane gas as an alternate fuel. In fact, the commission felt that the air quality might even improve with the use of the methane."

Barbara Fulkerson of the Salem citizens group said she expressed concerns to the commission that even a small amount of air pollution could affect residents from three different directions — through the air, water and plants grown in gardens.

"We already know that one test well near the landfill is rising in its pollution content," Fulkerson added. "Methane used as fuel is a relatively new concept and no one really knows what the long-term effects will be. I am concerned that no one commission is looking at the effects on the air, water and produce altogether."

Fulkerson said that Charlie Muntin, another member of the Salem citizens group, spoke to the commission about the possibility of methane burning adversely affecting the air for the children at Salem Elementary School.

Ali Riddering, another Salem resident, told the commission about having cleaned her windows prior to some methane burning tests last fall. Two days later, after methane had been burned, she again wiped one of the windows and found a black residue on her cloth, Fulkerson reported.

"We never really thought the commission would do anything different than allowing the permit," Fulkerson added. "But we wanted to express our concerns. When Getty Oil (the methane-recovery firm) made its presentation last year at the Salem Township board meeting, the representatives said that the asphalt plant could burn the unrefined methane which still has some water in it, according to my understanding.

"If that water is contaminated and the fact that at least one test well shows contaminants seems to indicate that it is, then won't those contaminants be going into our air during the burning process?"

CITY OF NOVI NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Planning Board of the City of Novi will hold a public hearing at 8:00 P.M. on Wednesday, May 15, 1985 in the Novi Public Library, 45245 West Ten Mile Rd., Novi, MI to consider the following use:

Writer guides women in finances

In this "liberated" society where more and more women are assuming positions of administration, management and control in the workplace, is it possible they still feel insecure about their own money?

It may be a "New World" for women, but Sylvia Auerbach, author of "A Woman's Book of Money, a Guide to Financial Independence," says money management still retains a masculine connotation in the minds of many women.

"If a woman controls the money, somehow we think she's less feminine," said Auerbach at last week's lecture in the Northville Town Hall series at the Sheraton Oaks in Novi.

Auerbach, who also authored "Your Money, How to Make it Stretch," is an editor and writer for Publishers Weekly and the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Much of her writing focuses on helping women feel more secure in managing their own finances.

"We still have the feeling that if we make more money than men, they're not going to like us; they're not going to date us," she noted.

But now, more than ever, it is important for women to not only feel comfortable managing their own money, but to take a more active part in the family finances, as well.

"It used to be that you worked for a short period, got married, had children and that was it. Well, that's not it anymore."

Whether she is young or old, married, divorced or widowed, a woman needs to be concerned about her financial future, Auerbach suggested.

Women used to be financially secure as long as their husbands were making a good living. If the marriage ended in divorce, the ex-husband still was responsible for supporting his former wife with alimony payments. If a woman was widowed, she could usually count on her husband's insurance to support her.

But alimony is no longer required in divorce settlements, and despite the continued requirement for child support, single mothers now are becoming known as the "new poor."

"We still have the feeling that if we make more money than men, they're not going to like us; they're not going to date us."

— Sylvia Auerbach
Town Hall speaker

And as for that life insurance, women should keep in mind that they are living longer, and, therefore, the money has to last longer.

"It's very important for us to understand about money and to know something about the family finances," Auerbach told the women at last week's lecture.

Typically, even if both husband and wife work, it is the man who has primary control of the finances. "We have held the secondary roles. We have been the backup," she explained.

Instead of this traditional approach to family finances, Auerbach suggested husbands and wives share money management responsibilities. In particular, decisions on life insurance and wills should be made together, and the records for these should be accessible to both partners. For bills, investments and bank accounts, a couple should have a filing system they both understand, Auerbach recommended.

She further suggested a new vocabulary for couples working together on the family finances. For example, "budget" might be replaced with "family plan."

"The word 'budget' implies no fun. No spending," she commented.

"Allowances" for family members also needs a new slant in the home with jointly-controlled finances. "Allowance implies control, and people don't like to be controlled. Instead of telling (a family member), 'This is your allowance,' you should say, 'This is your share.'"

Auerbach's recommendation that the home be considered a place of employment was enthusiastically received by last week's audience. Applause punctuated her suggestion that the spouse with household responsibilities be considered an employee of the "home office," while the spouse working outside the home be considered in the "field of office."

To avoid fighting over money, couples might instead schedule "grievance sessions" to air their money concerns. "Talk about what went wrong, not who did what wrong," Auerbach suggested. "And stay away from personalities like, 'You're just like your mother.'"

Such adjustments in the way a couple handles its financial matters relieves some of the burden that husbands traditionally have carried and, more importantly, helps wives become better prepared for the time when they become financially independent.

Whether single, married, divorced or widowed, the woman who determines to take control of her finances will have much to learn.

"There is no such thing as the perfect financial plan," Auerbach noted. "If you're confused by all these new options to save money and make money, and you think maybe you're not doing enough, don't worry. You probably are. You just can't do everything."

If you think your investments are not doing as well as they should be, be open-minded and try to make some changes, she suggested.

"Does it mean you need a financial planner? That's a trendy thing now. If you haven't been approached yet, you probably will be."

But Auerbach cautions women about blindly trusting anyone who identifies themselves as a certified financial planner. She recalled the experience of one widow who was suddenly left with a large amount of money. The woman allowed a financial planner to invest the entire amount. But the planner failed to keep in touch and didn't explain why her statements continually reflected losses. She ended up losing several thousand dollars. "And I'm sorry to say I don't think her case is untypical."

"I'm not knocking the profession. Financial planners can be very beneficial," she added. "But there are bad apples in every field."

Anyone considering an investment through a financial planner should try to get references before agreeing to the investment, Auerbach suggested. The planner should be able to show you examples of plans he or she has worked out for other clients with finances similar to your own. He or she should explain to you in detail why he has recommended certain investments for you, Auerbach said.

Such financial planning is "a lot of work," she noted, and fees and/or commissions are paid the planner for his or her expertise. These also should be fully explained to the client.

"The financial planner cannot be sure you understand the terms and risks involved (in the investment). This is where the widow went wrong. She was so afraid of appearing stupid, she didn't ask the right questions," Auerbach cautioned her audience about making the same costly error.

"No planner can insist you carry out a plan," she added. "You have to evaluate the plan and decide whether you want to carry it out."

Once the investments are made, Auerbach encouraged the women to continue monitoring their accounts. "You can never totally abdicate, tempting though it may be." She recommended reading the financial columns in newspapers and magazines for up-to-date advice on investments.

"Times are different for women," Auerbach admitted. But as women become more secure with managing money, there will be greater equality for everyone, she said.

Our Lady's League of Our Lady of Victory Church, sponsor of the Northville Town Hall Series, is the recipient of one-half of the proceeds from the series. The remaining half is distributed by the Board of Awards to various charities. The Board of Awards currently is seeking letters of request from organizations which would like to receive a portion of these proceeds. Application deadline is May 30.

How to check a financial planner's credentials

There are several ways to check the credentials of an investment firm or an individual investment planner.

Anyone can become a certified financial planner simply by taking a mail order course from the College for Financial Planning in Denver, Colorado. A directory of certified financial planners in Southeast Michigan may be obtained by calling or writing the International Association for Financial Planning, Southeast Michigan Chapter, P.O. Box 100, Garden City, 48135, 525-4010.

More stringent requirements and regulations are applied to financial planners who deal in securities. By law these individuals must be registered with the National Association of Securities Dealers (NASD). The NASD is akin to the National Bar Association in the legal field. Firms registered with the NASD also must be registered with the Michigan Department of Commerce, Securities Bureau, Lansing. Anyone may find out if a particular firm is registered with NASD by calling the Securities Bureau at 517-373-0880.

Our Opinions

Court plan worked

News that the 35th District Court is now on a sound financial footing after a few years of requiring budget subsidies from the five communities it serves is proof that constructing a permanent court building was the right idea.

There was some sentimental loss in the creation of the Dunbar Davis Hall of Justice. For some, the small town feeling of the Plymouth/Northville area was enhanced by the notion of travelling judges who held court in city halls throughout the district. Once the population had expanded, however, that arrangement became increasingly awkward.

The problem was not only that the number and variety of court cases grew, but that the five governments in the district were also growing and had better uses for the spaces occupied by the court. Judge James Garber has pointed out that, while the old system resulted in revenues for the communities, the income was largely consumed in the costs of providing a court room and ancillary services.

Moreover, record-keeping was difficult and scheduling became a nightmare. A permanent home for the court was the obvious solution. But not so obvious that the cost was of no concern. Particularly after the court began operations in its new home and needed financial subsidies to stay afloat, there were worries that what was supposed to be a self-supporting institution had become a drain on community budgets.

Garber and the governmental representatives to the court's advisory board kept urging patience, asserting that the start-up costs would soon be history and the court would no longer burden the communities it serves. That has at last come to pass, vindicating the decision to build the new courthouse.

The notion of charging violators a fee for "court costs" and for assessing probationers for the cost of having society keep an eye on them makes clear the intent of the law to provide a sort of "user fee" for financing of the court system. What is not intended is to make the courts a revenue source for local government — though the legendary "speed traps" and similar debacles in some communities prove that courts are often misused this way.

Although the 35th District Court has turned into a revenue source this year, citizens need not feel alarmed that the court is being misused. For one thing, the positive revenue return will have to continue for several years simply to make up for the massive infusions of cash that were needed in the recent past. What we see is not "profit" but a one-year "revenue surplus." The returned revenues assist in paying police officers for the time they spend in court testifying, and are related to the fine schedule charged by local ordinance. In the ideal system, the court operation would pay for itself, then return sufficient revenue to the communities to pay for their own related costs. In some years, the revenue may exceed this amount, in others it may fall short.

So it is not the revenue itself, though it is welcome, that justifies the court construction. Rather, the revenue is a "scorecard" that tells us the court is now running efficiently. In large measure, that is due to consolidation in one building. Those with the wisdom to foresee that eventuality deserve our gratitude.

Lelko set the tone

By being the first to occupy the position, David Lelko has established a role for the manager of township government. The heightened professionalism and improved efficiency of the government speaks well for the job he has done in the past four years.

Credit for the improvements in township government should really be spread around — virtually the entire elected leadership was changed along with the creation of the manager position. But Lelko certainly deserves a full share of the credit for the way he responded to the challenge he was given.

In choosing to hire a recent graduate, pay a relatively low salary and limit his authority, the township knew it could not expect to have its first manager stay for more than four or five years. The greatest enticement offered was the opportunity for career growth. That the township has filled its promise in this regard is amply demonstrated in Lelko's ability to land a new job as assistant city manager of Mentor, Ohio.

In return for that valuable experience, Lelko offered a series of fresh ideas that included computerization of township operations and a revitalized emphasis on serving the citizenry. Skilled and dedicated township employees were inspired to do their best under Lelko's administration. Given the radical changes made, there was the dangerous potential for harmful friction in office operations — Lelko deserves credit for keeping such effects to a minimum. Without questioning the valuable contributions made by earlier township governments or by the elected officials, it is clear that Northville Township needed this kind of operational leadership precisely when Lelko gave it.

The new manager will step into a smooth-running, efficient government and be able to address other challenges, thanks to Lelko's efforts in establishing the basics. He, in turn, is able to move on to greater opportunity. We wish him well.

Lest we forget . . .

By Michele Fecht

As the first quarter of 1985 comes to a close, it appears that considerable reflection and remembrance has taken hold.

In the past month alone, we have looked back on the 10 years since the fall of Saigon and the 40th anniversary of liberation of such unforgettable places as Bergen-Belsen, Buchenwald and Dachau. It's also been 70 years since the massacre of more than a million Armenians by their neighboring Turks and a decade since this nation's memorable march on Selma.

Lest we forget any of these historical events, magazines, newspapers and local and national television have inundated us with special reports, analyses and reflections marking these milestones and the years since their passage.

On the coffee table in my living room, a stack of magazines highlighting the Vietnam years, teeter on the verge of collapse. Fading newspapers are piled in a corner on the couch. All await my undivided attention; they deserve close scrutiny.

Though a hectic schedule has prohibited me from delving into any of these reading materials, I fully intend to devour each and every article. I'm among those readers who never tire of such reflective accounts. While the media often is criticized for what some would call its "excessive overkill" of such issues, hindsight often provides a much different perspective of our past.

Those of us unscathed — or perhaps untouched — by such events, tend to let the burden of such trials rest on the shoulders of others directly involved. When the last American troops were pulled out of Cambodia, I was trying out for my high school cheerleading squad and worrying about passing my driver's test. My indifference to the Vietnam War at that time perhaps was related to my youth. However, I believe that indifference directly reflected the times. Recuperating from Watergate and on the verge of our nation's Bicentennial celebration, Southeast Asia was far from the minds of many Americans.

That was not the case for those returning from the rice paddies and jungles or those who lost a husband, father, son or brother. Their war on the homefront became as intense as that on the battlefield. It took this country many years before reconciling its participation in that conflict. Though we've finally recognized those who gave their lives and the veterans who returned home, the legacy of Vietnam still eludes us.

I think a similar parallel can be made to those who suffered persecution under the Nazis. I grew up in a family surrounded by grandparents, aunts, uncles and cousins. I now know that many of my contemporaries had only their parents to call family. Grandparents, aunts, uncles, cousins all had perished in concentration camps.

What I find so difficult to fathom about the survivors of the Holocaust is their total loss of roots. In many cases there is no history — save for memory — that other family members existed. Their former European villages and towns no longer survive. There are no graves marking their place of rest. No photographs of what they looked like.

While we welcomed many surviving Jews to this country after the war, few sympathetic ears would hear their tales of horror. It has taken many nations decades to come to terms with their indifference toward the Jewish plight at the hands of the Nazis. So many years of silence has made it nearly impossible for many victims to discuss their experiences. In fact, only now are many of the survivors talking for the first time about the atrocities they endured. Perhaps because they are an aging breed. Forty years from now, few will be able to recall first hand what happened at places such as Auschwitz.

Such recollections and remembrances on occasions marking the end of conflict or racial tension, religious persecution or international strife serve a valuable lesson for those of us who need to be reminded that history can indeed repeat itself — if all is forgotten.

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROMÉ

We had just arrived at a rather posh party for a rather posh event at the Meadowbrook Country Club last Saturday when I was approached by an old friend.

"Have you ever noticed," he asked, "that when people of our generation arrive at parties like this, the husbands and wives usually head in opposite directions?"

In as much as my spouse already had disappeared to some place on the opposite side of the room, I was struck by the validity of his observation from a personal perspective.

And a quick survey of the other people in the room appeared to verify that his observation was correct generally as well as specifically.

I acknowledged that his theory seemed to be valid and asked if he would care to expound on his observation.

"No," he said, "but I would like to discuss it in a bit more detail."

"Close enough," I conceded. And then sat back to wait for what I expected would be a discourse filled with overtones of John Updike's philosophies regarding contemporary society.

Unfortunately, he never said another word about it. He asked me to guess how much his suit had cost. And he explained to me the advantages of having a home on a large lot.

But not another word about why husbands and wives of our generation head in different directions upon entering a party.

And it bothered me the rest of the night. Is it because you see your spouse all the time anyway, so you seek out conversation with different people when attending a party?

Or maybe it has something to do with reverting to learned behaviors . . . behaviors learned in high school when you went to a dance in the gym after the football game and the girls huddled on one side of the room and the boys huddled on the other.

As the evening progressed, however, I developed another theory . . . albeit a theory fraught with a certain chauvinistic flavor. When was the last time you were able to carry on a truly meaningful conversation with a girl about Sparky Anderson and the Detroit Tigers?

Sobering the workaholic

By B.J. Martin

We call it "cranking copy." At a newspaper I once worked for, it was the very measure of a journalist's professionalism. It became a matter of pride to see who could churn out the biggest volume of words, words, words. Our self-esteem was directly tied to the amount of copy we could "crank."

It should go without saying (but I'll say it anyway) what sort of effect these kinds of demands have on the quality of one's writing. When one is suddenly presented with practically a whole page of empty space close to deadline one must think of something to say and pronto, even if it reads like the periodic table of elements.

It became a macho thing, especially when we still used typewriters. I would swagger into the office, a mountainous stack of stapled, double-spaced typewritten 8½x11 sheets of cheap paper under my arm and slap it down on the copy editor's desk with a resounding thwack. Mister Copy Crank was here. Get him some coffee at once.

Of course, the guys who were working state and county beats could always outthwack me. The more you cover bureaucracy, the more prone you are to writing in its language.

Wants the senior coordinator to stay

To the Editor:
It has come to my attention that Marlene Kunz is concluding her work with the Senior Citizens group of Northville this weekend. I am very much saddened by this knowledge. I cannot see by any way how she can be replaced by anyone who has the interest of the senior citizens of this district that Marlene has shown.
We (Mrs. J.F. Wood and myself) have been citizens of Allen Terrace for over two years. One of the bright spots of our residence in Northville has been our association with Marlene. She has made the last two years more pleasant than they would have been without her gracious smile and willingness to do little unexpected things she does for we "olders."

For instance, on our way to see the Tigers play last year the bus (Northville School Bus) broke down on the highway (I-275). Marlene actually ran a half-mile to a house where she telephoned the garage for a mechanic to care for the disabled bus. He came with a different bus and we proceeded to the game. No complaint on Marlene's part.

Another time, going to a game, when we arrived at Tiger Stadium we were told all tickets were gone and no chance to get in and see the game. Marlene found by courteously inquiring who was in charge and after finding out was able to get us tickets to see the game. She will go to any odds to care for her senior citizens.

Marlene is a very necessary "stepping stone" between the authorities and the senior citizens of Northville. Please try to persuade her not to leave. We need her and love her. I feel all Senior Citizens will agree with me in my feelings.

Sincerely Yours,
John F. Wood, DDS.

Aide to Senator Levin given expanded duties

Stephen Serkaian, 28, has been named special assistant to U.S. Senator Carl Levin (D-Michigan). He has served as a press aide to Levin since his first Senate campaign in 1978 and most recently was the senator's campaign press secretary during the reelection campaign of 1984.

Serkaian assumes responsibility for a wider range of communication projects while retaining his role as a spokesman for Levin.

A 1974 graduate of Northville High School, Serkaian earned a bachelor's degree from Central Michigan University in 1978. He subsequently studied at The American University in Washington, D.C., obtaining a master's degree in public relations.

Serkaian is the son of Nick and Catherine Serkaian of Bloomcrest Drive in Northville and grandson of Mary Ayanian, a resident of Allen Terrace.

Engler nominates Geake for legislative conference

State Senator R. Robert Geake (R-Northville) has been named by Senate Majority Leader John Engler to a post as delegate to the National Conference of State Legislatures' (NCSL) State-Federal Assembly, on the Health and Human Resources Committee.

"Senator Geake was selected because of his expertise in this critical area," Engler explained. "I know that he will offer special insights to the committee and bring away new knowledge and ideas that will prove helpful to Michigan."

The State-Federal Assembly serves as a forum for discussion among its individual state members, identifies issues of critical concern and informs legislatures of developments in state-federal relations. The Assembly meets three times each year to consider state-federal matters having a significant impact on legislative actions and to formulate policy recommendations for approval by the conference.

The Assembly is comprised of 11 committees: Agriculture and Food Policy, Education and Labor, Energy, Federal Taxation, Trade and Economic Development, Government Operations and Regulation, Health and Human Resources, Law and Justice, Natural Resources and Environment, Pensions, Transportation and Communications, Federal Budget.

John Nichols takes command

Galway Drive resident adjusts to new county post

Novi police chief Lee BeGole will tell you he's the number one cop in the city. Now by virtue of rank, he's got competition from another Novi resident — Oakland County Sheriff John Nichols. While Nichols actually has a Northville mailing address for his Galway Drive residence, he is a Novi city resident.

But make no mistake — this is a friendly competition. The two veteran police officials agree that cooperation will be more important than competition as the two departments forge a new relationship over the coming years.

Building bridges and mending fences are the responsibilities that Nichols, who works in Pontiac, sees as immediate priorities.

Nichols describes his job as "tuning up" the sheriff's department.

He plans to improve the efficiency of the operation by establishing a better chain of command and wants to "restore discipline and morale in the department." Wherever possible, employees in plain-clothes will go back into uniform.

Through staff meetings and improved communications, he intends to "open the department up instead of having all these little enclaves where everyone guards his own little bailiwick."

Nichols believes his methods already are working. "So far the response has been magnificent, confirming my belief that it was a good department that just needed a little tune up."

He also will pay more attention to the jail, an operation he says has "suffered from the former sheriff's neglect."

The jail operation is one of Nichols' major concerns. "I intend to pay a great deal of attention to the jail operation myself and actively seek ways to improve the situation without spending $14-$15 million for a new jail."

After evaluating the jail, he believes portions of the building can be converted to create more cells and add approximately 120-150 beds. "It's a mid-term solution, but it could save us $25 to $50 a day in transportation and time spent transferring prisoners. We want everyone back where the budget says they should be."

Nichols also plans to realign some department jobs out of existence. "We'll be reducing the publicity-

'We're working constantly to avoid the image that we are the saviors of democracy or a panacea for all social ills.'

— John Nichols,
Oakland County Sheriff

seeking programs and relieve people doing cushy jobs they're not supposed to be doing — like going around in a dog suit," he said in a criticism of former sheriff Johannes Spreen's use of the McGruff program.

In the name of the cooperation he is attempting to promote, Nichols has deputized local police chiefs and officers who wanted to be deputized.

For communities like Novi, which have their own full-time police departments, the sheriff intends to provide more of the services they cannot perform themselves. The portion of the city of Northville north of Eight Mile also is in Oakland County.

"The idea is to give smaller departments the services they need, not the services I think they need."

As problems in the department are cleared away, Nichols will focus on the services it "can and should be providing." He explained that local police chiefs will be asked for information on the kinds of services they need.

"I won't send in cars unless the chief wants them there. One of the main advantages is that local chiefs don't view me as a threat. The former sheriff was viewed as a grave threat."

"There is a great deal of work to be done... fences to mend, wounds to heal. We're working constantly to avoid the image that we are the saviors of democracy or a panacea for all social ills. But we do want to help. We'll sit down and discuss things — and we're not going to make a spectacle for the whole county to see."

"This is going to be a different kind of operation," Nichols said. "When police are fighting police, or other levels of government, or the criminal justice system, the only ones profiting are the thieves. We're going to have a more cooperative attitude."

Nichols plans to work on providing services that are needed "across the face of the county." His difficulty will be overcoming the disparate nature of communities that range from rural northern Oakland County to completely developed southeastern cities and partially developed cities in other areas.

"In a concentrated city with a complete department and full service, the needs are completely different than the rural department where they don't even have their own patrol cars."

Tracking dogs, rapid laboratory facilities, investigative services and undercover operations are among the operations he believes the sheriff's department can someday provide local departments.

"Hopefully in the next couple of years we'll successfully address these needs and establish a degree of credibility between everyone — with citizens, the board of commissioners, the courts and the prosecutor."

Comments regarding the problems he saw in the way Johannes Spreen ran the sheriff's department are sprinkled throughout a discussion of Nichols' goals. He decided to run for the office after becoming discontent with the way Spreen was running the department.

"I was not happy with what had happened to a good department. I felt the county deserved a better management system than the then-sheriff was giving it."

In-fighting within the department particularly bothered Nichols. "It's not in the best interest of anyone to be at odds with people you have to get along with. I knew the department was poorly managed and there was constant bickering."

Nichols got a portion of his education regarding the problems within the department first-hand when he served as Spreen's undersheriff for three years.

That job ended when he decided to apply for chief of Farmington Hills Police Department after he became concerned he might not retain an appointed position in case Spreen should be unseated. Nichols spent the next seven years in Farmington Hills, where he brought stability to a position that had been undergoing turnover on a regular basis.

From his position in Farmington Hills he watched what he considered to be the gradual decline of the sheriff's department, leading to his decision to run for the job. Yet running for sheriff was not Nichols' first bid for public office.

Nichols was only the second man in 108 years of Detroit police department history to work his way up through the ranks, from patrol officer to commissioner. But he gave up his job as Police Commissioner, the top post in the Detroit department, to run for mayor against Coleman Young. After 31 years in the department, Nichols ran for mayor and lost to Young by a margin of 16,000 votes.

After his defeat, he spent a short time working for a private security agency and then was hired by Spreen as undersheriff.

"I've been in three different levels of government, so I've learned a few things about getting along with people. I've been the top cop in a city with a strong mayor and managed to get along. I was the chief in a smaller city with a weak mayor system of government. And I've worked as undersheriff. I've managed to exist there and leave with a good taste in everyone's mouth."

He intends to operate the same way as sheriff as he has in other positions. And yes, Nichols is going to try to make it the best sheriff's department in the country.

"If that happens it will because the potential is there," he said. "It's like a jockey riding a winner — you just give him his head and he wins for you. I'm sure the department will do just that."

Family ties help Northville furrier offer top quality

When Larry Christoff opened Onyx Furs in downtown Northville the month before Christmas, customers who climbed a flight of stairs to his showrooms at 133 East Main found it to their advantage that he had family well established in the fur business.

"I have cousins in Montreal and Germany, who have been making and designing coats for more than 20 years," he explains. "My cousin in Europe works for large designers — some of my coats contain designer labels."

Because he buys directly from his sources who go to the fur auctions to buy their skins, Christoff explains he is able "to sell for considerably less," citing prices as much as $1,000 below normal for some Canadian furs. He mentions that he even has had a customer come from Canada — normally considered a bargain country for furs.

"I was pleasantly surprised at the reaction to the shop and our merchandise," Christoff says, reviewing his Christmas business. "I realized that it would take time to get acquainted, but now I am hoping to expand — hopefully to double the shop size — by next season."

Christoff says he still hopes to "stay between the traffic lights" in downtown Northville but would like a main floor location.

He wants his emphasis to be on the high quality of his furs and likes to show customers the fine workmanship in sewing the skins.

The most popular selling fur at Onyx? Christoff points to a collection of sapphire (gray) and black diamond mink coats with luxury details that include embroidered linings.

He says casual furs, such as the cat, lynx, coyote and Mongolian sheep, are popular. His furs run from a high of about $6,000 for the black mink to as low as $80 for a black and white stripe sheepskin vest. He also stocks such accessory furs as hats, collars and whimsical earrings.

A popular specialty that Christoff calls "sporty and very practical" is a Persian lamb that reverses into a Caberdine (taffeta) raincoat. Mentioning that he had donated this item to the Channel 56 auction, Christoff said he had been pleased with the response. He noted that this is one of his especially well priced items. Now on sale, it is selling under cost at $640.

State's employment figures reported at all-time record

Although the number of workers without jobs rose slightly in March, the number of workers with jobs during the month reached an all-time high in Michigan, according to Richard Simmons Jr., director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC).

Statewide seasonally adjusted employment reached a record 4.041 million during March, an increase of 51,000 from February. The previous high had been 4.024 million in July 1979.

MESC's seasonally adjusted labor force data goes back to 1970.

The growth in employment occurred despite an increase in unemployment as the state's seasonally adjusted jobless rate edged up to 9.3 percent from 9.2 percent in February. There were 414,000 jobless workers in March, a gain of 11,000 over the previous month. A year ago in March 1984, Michigan's unemployment rate was 11.4 percent with 496,000 out of work.

CAREER COUNSELING CENTER, INC., has opened an office, serving salaried non-union employees on Orchard Lake Road in West Bloomfield. The center serves management employees whose jobs are threatened by reorganization, merger, age or sex discrimination, demotion and performance reviews as well as for educational purposes to unthreatened employees, which includes counseling, classes and seminars.

V. Paul Donnelly, founder of Career Counseling Centers, said the company represents a new approach to solving the soul-wrenching problems caused by threats to job security. Donnelly is a Detroit attorney whose 12 years of specializing in the field has developed for him a national reputation as the champion of the non-union salaried employees for a wide range of "not so wise" acts by their employers.

Donnelly says times have changed and management employees are fighting back. "Now when a person in management feels mistreated, he or she can seek assistance from Career Counseling Center. It provides an easy, inexpensive first step, which is far better than doing nothing and may eliminate the need for a law suit," he said.

DAVID HILL of Northville has been named secretary of the newly formed Southeast Michigan Chapter of the Association for Finishing Processes of the Society of Manufacturing Engineers. Hill is supervisor of manufacturing engineering for General Motors Corporation.

Other officers of the new chapter are Ronald Ziegler of Durr Industries, president; Dinesh Bhushan of Durr Engineering and Management, vice president; and Tom Ladoski of Kerr Machinery, treasurer.

DR. KENT R. HUNTER, a native of Northville, now a Lutheran pastor and director of the Church Growth Center in Corunna, Indiana, will be among representatives from many parts of the world as he attends the Church Growth International Conference August 18-26 at the Full Gospel Church in Seoul, Korea.

The conference is open to any pastor or lay person.

Conference speakers are Dr. Paul Y. Cho, pastor of the Full Gospel Church in Seoul; Dr. Robert Schuller, pastor of The Crystal Cathedral in Garden Grove, California; Dr. Pat Robertson, host of the 700 Club, and president of the Christian Broadcast Network; and Dr. Donald McGavran, former professor at Fuller Theological Seminary, author, lecturer and authority on church growth.

Dr. Hunter may be contacted at the Church Growth Center in Corunna, Indiana, 46730, for more information.

SME selects Northville GM executive to receive prestigious Whitney Award

Reuben R. Jensen, a longtime Northville resident and recently retired executive vice president of General Motors Corporation, is the recipient of the Society of Manufacturing Engineers' 1985 Eli Whitney Memorial Award.

He is cited for his "extraordinary inventiveness as a manufacturing engineer and his superior management abilities which have enhanced production technology and led to improved automotive products."

The award will be presented at the SME's awards and annual banquet May 6 at the Westin Hotel in Detroit.

The banquet is the highlight of the SME 1985 International Tool and Manufacturing Engineering Conference and Exposition to be held at Cobo Hall May 6-9.

Jensen, who retired in 1984, was an executive vice president of General Motors Corporation and a member of GM's Board of Directors since 1974.

He was responsible for worldwide components and power products operations, in addition to worldwide truck and bus operations. He originally joined GM's Detroit Transmission Division in 1946 as a machine tool and die engineer.

Over the years Jensen has demonstrated his outstanding abilities and inventiveness as a tool and process engineer, a master mechanic and a manufacturing engineer.

His many credits in manufacturing engineering include: tooling for the first "400 THM" Torque Converter type Hydraulic transmission, and tooling and process innovations for the production of the M-16 rifle and the 20mm cannon for fighter aircraft.

Beyond the tooling and processing accomplishments, Jensen was instrumental in establishing product and process engineering procedures for new design proposals. He also helped establish a value analysis program at General Motors' Hydra-matic Division.

Jensen is a member of the University of Michigan's School of International Business Advisory Board in Ann Arbor. He has received honorary doctorate degrees from Cleary College in Ypsilanti and the University of Nebraska in Lincoln, Nebraska. He is a member of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

Jensen also is active with the Boy Scouts of America and has been serving a term on the National Board of Directors. When appointed, he noted that he has been active in Boy Scouting all his life and is an Eagle Scout.

Family ties help Northville furrier

The Onyx fur collection includes coats for men. Noting that he does not deal in furs of endangered species, Christoff showed one of his favorite coats made of otter fur.

"The beauty of this coat is that it's dressy but doesn't overpower and can last 15, 20 or 30 years. Though the initial price may seem high, a coat like this is timeless," he explained.

Through participation in area fashion shows, several for churches, Christoff said he is gaining a clientele that comes from Birmingham, Grosse Pointe and Southfield as well as the immediate area.

"Anything (the customer wants) that we don't have, we can make," he promised. When a custom-made coat is ordered, he said, skins can be bid for at auction.

Christoff said he is happy to inform customers how to tell quality furs and how to check workmanship.

Minor alterations are done at the shop. Larger ones are sent out.

Christoff added that he has been doing quite a bit of business in remodeling outdated coats and stoles. If the skins are in good condition — and Christoff was emphatic about this — he is willing to work with a customer to update or remodel.

"Sometimes, in older coats, the skins are dried out. I won't work with them because the customer will just be disappointed. They will soon split."

Otherwise, stoles often can be made into jackets. Coats can be restyled with new collars and trim. For example, he said, a fox or coyote collar could be the accent on another fur.

Why are customers climbing the stairs to Onyx to buy furs they probably won't wear for six months? Christoff said it's because — in addition to his end-of-season prices — skins are costing from 30 to 55 percent more at auction and "that translates into higher prices next season."

Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday and by appointment evenings and Sunday.

State employment

Simmons said that improving conditions in Michigan's labor market encouraged 62,000 people to enter the statewide work force in March, which pushed the work force to a record high of 4.455 million. Much of the employment growth occurred in the retail trade, service and construction industries.

"The strong performance in the state's labor force during March erases some of the skepticism we had in February with the large drop in unemployment," Simmons said.

In February, Michigan's jobless rate reached a five-year low. Since January, the state's labor force has grown by 59,000 and total employment has climbed 128,000.

COMPARE FOR YOURSELF

Compare for yourself and discover why MRV™ means More RV Value for your dollar!

It all starts with the MRV Thermacore® laminated sidewall construction. Interior paneling. Polystyrene foam insulation. A 3-ply luan barrier. Mesa fiberglass exterior. All bonded together and encased by a tubular aluminum frame. Built to withstand the rigors of the road and provide you with a solid value all the way to trade-in time.

Whether it's our affordable top-of-the-line Kingston or our number one selling Freeport, you're sure to find value that can't be beat.

In the Kingston, solid oak cabinet doors with designer mesh inserts set the stage for affordable elegance. Plus, the alluring atmosphere of indirect lighting. Velvet easy-care fabrics. The luxurious look provided by decorative shadow boxes. Now compare the price. You'll understand just what we mean by More RV Value for your dollar!

Before you buy, compare the MRV value at your nearest dealer. It may prove to be an invaluable experience for you.

FROM OUR 1984 MILLION DOLLAR SALES CLUB
...AND MAKING OUR FIRST QUARTER OF 1985 THE BEST EVER

We'd like to say thanks for allowing us to serve you and in turn making this our very best first quarter. Since our affiliation with ERA Real Estate, part of the Commercial Credit Financial Network, so many have been able to take advantage of our special services. It's been great to hear you say: "There really is a difference in real estate companies."

Baby Gotta' Best Friend (a song in D major)

Baby gotta best friend
To cry on his pillow
Gotta' shoulder she can lean on Gotta' ear that she can fill
Well you can have your best friend
And you can have mine
Everybody needs somebody
To fill their head with lies

You say you've got somebody
To help you through your times
You say you've found somebody
That keeps you straight in line
You say you've got somebody
Who makes life more than a riddle
Sounds like you've got a new best friend
To cry on his pillow

You can have your new best friend
And you can have mine
You can have your shoulders
And you can have your lies
You can have your whispers
That get you through the night
But you better watch your new best friend
Cuz' he's workin' double time.

We All Have Our Reasons (Blues in A major)

Out on the edge of town
Living alone
Living' like an outlaw
With rules of your own

You know what's right and wrong
It's not like you were told Ridin' the edge
Drivin' alone

Aint it a shame
How you carry the load
You carry your load
And I'll carry mine
Time has its own way
Of straightenin' lines.

I'm tired of hearing
How hard you've tried
I'm tired of waiting
Next in line
I'm tired of feelin'
Lost and confused
We all have our reasons
To have the blues.

Cross to Bear (Ballad in D major)

You can sit in your ivory tower
Watch your minutes turn into hours
Be the judge of what's right and fair
Well that'll be your cross to bear

That is your cross to bear
It's yours, cuz' there's no one there
To help you to carry the load
That's how you made the story go

Imagine being by the riverside
Someone's whispering little lies
But it's just your fingers in your hair
Baby that is your cross to bear

When you're tired of bein' alone
Want to turn your house to a home
Where you look you'll find no one there
Well that is your cross to bear

Baby got to carry that load
It's more than you can hold
But you gotta' carry the load
Anyway . . .

Well I'm goin' to the edge of time
Where you just gotta' draw the line Between myth and what is fact
You have no idea where that's at.

Cabinetmaker David VanDerworp applies a coat of stain to drawers of a vanity under construction in his workshop

VanDerworp and Barrett Strong install bay window in Novi

By KEVIN WILSON

Virtually every home woodworker has thought about it. Perhaps on a Saturday afternoon in the workshop, at the end of a particularly frustrating week at work.

Maybe the career just isn't satisfying — hours and hours of effort go into a project and at the end you have nothing to show for it, no way of knowing if all that time was productive or a waste.

But at home in the shop, sanding out the finish on a footstool or constructing a perfect dovetail joint, there is a sense of accomplishment. Coaxing the wood into just the right shape, assembling the pieces and bringing out its warmth and life with a fine finish brings a sense of creativity that no task accomplished in an office can offer. In your hands, then in use somewhere in the home, there is a tangible bit of evidence that you've done something valuable.

At such times, the thought arrives: "Maybe I should do this for a living. Gather a few more tools, expand the shop and chuck the day job."

For most, that's as far as it goes. An enticing daydream to help pass a weekend afternoon.

David VanDerworp up and did it. He tossed in a career as a community college sociology instructor, abandoning a tenured position in the field to which he had devoted years of study, and started making things out of wood.

For a living. With self-taught skills. While raising a family.

Ask what was wrong with teaching sociology and VanDerworp pulls no punches.

"You mean aside from my fellow teachers, the students and the administration? Nothing," he laughs. "Really, it just wasn't satisfying."

He explains his inability to determine whether he was doing anything useful as a teacher, his vain efforts to find some way of measuring whether or not his students were actually learning anything of value.

"In contrast to cabinetry, the rewards of teaching are so ephemeral. In teaching, it's very difficult to tell if you're doing anything. You feel that you've done well, but you can't know. I tried, got involved in a big study trying to find a way of assessing teaching effectiveness," he says. "But we really didn't come up with anything."

While struggling with those frustrations, VanDerworp was finding satisfaction making furniture.

"I'd always done it as sort of a hobby, my dad did woodwork. Dad put an addition on our house, he built his own boat," he recalls.

"Then, we were living in Lebanon, N.Y., while I was teaching. Nearby there was a Shaker museum that had all this furniture in it. I was really attracted to it and started making reproductions."

The reproductions came out nicely enough that he started selling them to friends. And that eventually led him back to southeast Michigan where he had grown up and, ultimately, to Northville where he started his own woodworking business — North Village Cabinetry.

"When I left teaching, I had sort of a five-year plan to own my own business," he explains. "Then things sort of changed on me and I ended up going into it a lot earlier than I'd anticipated."

Taking a one-year leave of absence from his teaching job, he had planned on working for friends from college (his degrees are from Wayne State and the University of Detroit), who had operated their own business building decks and doing small construction jobs each summer.

VanDerworp had worked with them. When his friends couldn't find work after college, they simply continued their business.

He and his wife Nancy moved to a rented home on Baseline in Northville about five years ago with their two girls, Meghan who is now 10 and Kate who is six years old. "It was kind of traumatic," VanDerworp recalls.

Only two years into his five-year plan, VanDerworp stared into the abyss. His friends folded up their business and his family's lifeline came to an end.

"Fortunately, just before that time my wife and I were in downtown Northville and saw that there was this store open for rent," he said. "We talked about getting it and starting up on my own, then thought better of it. We decided to wait until we had more set aside. Two weeks later, my friends told me they were closing up their business. Right away I checked, and the store was still available."

The store, at 107 East Main in the Uptown Shops, serves as a showroom for VanDerworp's work. There are Shaker shelves, clocks, larger pieces of furniture, and many photographs of work commissioned through North Village Cabinetry.

"It's a really good location — we specialize in country kind of items, and that's what several of the other Uptown Shops are doing, too," he says. "The people who go up there are already in tune with the style of the things I do."

What VanDerworp does is a wide range of carpentry and cabinetry. Hearing the title "cabinetmaker" inspires visions to most of an artsy-type putting together furniture all the time.

But North Village Cabinetry is a different sort of

Papal Confession highlights vacation

By JEAN DAY

"That's all it was — a case of being in the right place at the right time," says Judy Beyersdorf of her daughter Jenny's being selected as one of 12 persons from among thousands in St. Paul's Square in Rome on Friday of Holy Week to receive the Papal Confession.

She explains that she and her husband Tom with Jenny, 13, and Peter, 11, arrived about three minutes before noon to see a mob of people already there, hoping to catch a glimpse of Pope John Paul II. "The kids couldn't see anything," she relates, "so Jenny and Tom sat on a railing. A man came up and asked Jenny if she were Catholic. When she said she was, he asked if she would be interested in having a Papal Confession. She said she would and was escorted in an entourage to the Pope."

Jenny was the 11th of 12, her mother says, mentioning that afterward people "came up just to touch her." Jenny reported to her family that Pope John Paul II had asked how old she was and mentioned he was somewhat hard for her to understand.

Mrs. Beyersdorf understands that such Papal Confessions were instituted by the present Pope and occur once a year on Good Friday. Afterward, the Beyersdorfs watched the Today Show filming in Rome and saw Victoria Principal, who was standing by Jenny when she was selected.

Rome was a stop on the Beyersdorfs' 16-day trip that included visits to Ireland, London, Brussels and Dusseldorf, Germany. Judy Beyersdorf says she especially enjoyed Ireland — "It was everything I pictured it to be."

For Jenny, the trip and the Papal Confession followed other honors in a big year. Earlier, she was a DAR award winner. Her Cooke classmates are hearing of her experiences in the journal that she kept of the trip, as did her brother.

OLV invites community to Meadowbrook party

Called Cocktails '85, the party being given by Our Lady of Victory School at Meadowbrook Country Club from 6-9 p.m. April 28 is a repeat of last year's successful event.

"It's our way of extending ourself to the community," explains OLV principal Charlene Thompson. She emphasizes that everyone with an interest in the school is invited to attend. A string ensemble will be playing and "people will get to know the OLV educators as people" over hors d'oeuvres. Cost is $14 a person and reservations may be made by calling the school, 349-3610.

Window framers

Standing by one of the stained glass windows that illuminate the sanctuary and narthex at First United Methodist Church on Eight Mile at Taft are, from left, Don Graham, Jim Frisbie and Charles George. The trio framed and installed six stained glass windows in time for the Easter celebration at the church. Three were moved from other locations and originally had been in the old church on Dunlap Street. Three were designed by Frisbie and made with Graham's assistance in a time consuming project. Record photo by Steve Fecht.

Church classes under way

Two adult education programs currently are being offered by the First Presbyterian Church of Northville. One is entitled, "Begin with Good-bye." It is a film series designed to help understand and deal with: changes in our lives; job loss and retirement; heart attack; death of a loved one. The class is led by Pastor Jo Taliaferro. A second course is entitled, "Shalom: The Concept of Peace in the Bible." This class is using a shortened form of Kerygma curriculum as a study guide. Old and new testament passages are being studied which deal with peace and love making as a part of the believer's Christian calling. Discussion is being led by Pastor Nile Harper. Courses start at 6:30 p.m. sharp and end at 7:25 p.m. They are preceded by a light supper at 6 p.m. Call the church office, 349-0911, to make reservations.

thing. VanDerworp estimates that 50 percent of his work is in construction carpentry — primarily building decks or framing-in additions. The decks are stylish, designed for the house, specific location and owner's needs.

Another 40 percent of VanDerworp's business is design and installation of built-in shelving and cabinetry — such as those found in home libraries, dens and offices.

Only 10 percent of his work is in stand-alone furniture. He notes one current commission for a computer desk designed to fit into a country decor — it's a drop-top desk, custom-designed so that when it is closed it looks like an old-style drop-top desk but when open it accommodates a personal computer and associated items.

"I get the most satisfaction, probably, out of built-ins," VanDerworp says. "It's the problem-solving aspect I really enjoy. Designing built-in cabinets for a specific location and use, then figuring out how to build it. With furniture, you're often doing the same thing over and over, but with built-ins, every one is a different problem."

"The other thing I like about them is their permanence — if someone pays the money to have me do a library, for instance, I know it's going to be there a long time," he explains. "It's not like a bookshelf where they may decide to give it away or sell it when they move next month."

Similar "problem-solving" rewards are involved with his work on backyard decks, VanDerworp offers. Some of the more elaborate ones include a gazebo as part of the design, and even the simplest are formed with angles and shapes that provide much more landscaping interest than the standard rectangular decks.

"My construction work is a little break from the cabinetry," VanDerworp notes. "Carpentry is not as precise, you don't have the little details to chase around. And it helps keep the business afloat."

VanDerworp is a member of the Michigan Woodworker's Guild, and recently convinced the guild to conduct a meeting on gazebo design and construction at Northville's Mill Race Village, scheduled May 5. Many members of the guild, he notes, are involved only in furniture-making or artistic wood-working, and he found it difficult to convince them to take an interest in carpentry, even in the exacting form of a gazebo.

"Cabinetmakers sometimes look down on carpentry," VanDerworp says. "Members of the guild tend to lean that way, toward particularly fine work. They do really excellent pieces — I couldn't even approach the level of some of them, they're artists. I'm not an artist — I'm a craftsman."

He characterizes his choice of a Northville location as a fortunate one. "We picked Northville mostly because it reminded us of Hudson, New York, which we'd really liked," he explains. "It's a similar sort of town — Hudson is a very old, pre-colonial town with extensive downtown renovation. Northville is just the right size, too. We tried living in the country, way back in upstate New York, and found it was just too isolated."

When he moved his family here, VanDerworp says, he didn't know the community was as upscale as he soon found it was. Working primarily in Northville and Novi, he notes, he has an ample market of proud homeowners who both appreciate fine cabinetry and have sufficient income to commission custom-made pieces.

Now the VanDerworts live in a 100-year-old house on, believe it or not, Carpenter Street in Northville. VanDerworp complains that his home workshop area is too small, and his own home still doesn't have the library he planned for it or all the renovation work done.

"Like the shoemaker's children who have no shoes, the cabinetmaker's house needs work," VanDerworp laughs.

One of the reasons his own home doesn't get the attention VanDerworp would like to give it is that North Village Cabinetry is doing so well.

He notes that he taught one semester of sociology at Schoolcraft Community College last year "and lost money doing it."

Bushnell arts program features John Neville

Acclaimed Shakespearean actor John Neville, renowned baritone Leslie Guinn, members of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, the Kenneth Jewell Choral and the Bushnell Chancel Choir will perform when the Bushnell Performing Arts Series presents a free concert at Temple Beth El in Birmingham this Sunday (April 28) at 7:30 p.m.

Temple Beth El is located at Telegraph and Fourteen Mile in Birmingham.

The program will include performances of Belshazzar's Feast by William Walton featuring Leslie Guinn, and Arnold Schonberg's The Kol Nidre featuring John Neville as narrator.

Also included will be Samuel Barber's Adagio for Strings and Fantasia on Hebrew Tunes by Prokofiev.

Leslie Guinn's baritone voice has won him a prominent place in the music world. He has appeared regularly with major American orchestras, and in 1983 made his European debut with the Stuttgart Opera. He currently is professor of voice at the University of Michigan and Artist-in-Residence at the Aspen Music Festival.

John Neville has been delighting audiences with classical performances since 1947 when he appeared in Richard II. For the past two years he has been a member of the Stratford Theatre Company in London, Ontario, as an actor and director. This year he appeared in Love's Labour Lost, Merchant of Venice and Separate Tables.

He has made numerous radio and television appearances and will become Artistic Director of the Stratford Festival after the 1985 season.

For more information call the Bushnell Congregational Church at 272-3550. The Bushnell Performing Arts Series receives support from the Detroit Council of the Arts and Michigan Council for the Arts.

High school reunions set

Those with questions or information about classmates should call 624-4456 during the evening.

All former Our Lady of Sorrows students, faculty and friends are invited to an all-class reunion planned June 22 at the Sorrows Church Hall in Farmington.

Tickets for the dinner and dance are $15 and can be obtained from Carol (Ab-falter) Gassel, 875 Grant, Clawson 48017 (589-9114) or Kathy (Denies) Pen-ywitt, 23672 Cass, Farmington 48024 (477-9644).

Lowrey High School of Dearborn's Class of 1950 is planning its 35th year reunion September 21.

For information, call 274-4064.

Local volunteers assist cancer society crusade

More than 210 volunteers will be going door-to-door throughout Northville and Northville Township from April 27 to May 6.

Coordinating the crusade in the Northville area will be Jan Paver and Jeanne Ambler.

April is Cancer Control Month when volunteers call on their neighbors and friends with life saving information about cancer. Last year, 3,100 pieces of educational literature were distributed in Northville and more than $5,800 was raised during the Residential Drive.

For 1985, the education focus is cancer of the colon and rectum. According to the American Cancer Society, colorectal cancer is one of the most curable forms of cancer and also one of the most misunderstood.

Most people believe that it is an uncommon type of cancer; in fact, about 134,000 cases will be diagnosed in the United States this year.

Approximately 1,225 of these cases will be in Wayne County. The American Cancer Society reports that almost three out of four colorectal patients can be saved if the disease is found early and treated properly.

Information about cancer detection and prevention, including brochures entitled "Colorectal Cancer - Go for Early Detection," "Nutrition, Common Sense and Cancer" and cancer's seven warning signals "Listen to Your Body" are available from the Wayne County office of the American Cancer Society, 6227 North Inkster Road, Garden City, 48135 (425-6830).

In addition to the Cancer Control Month crusade, the American Cancer Society of Wayne County is sponsoring its annual seminar, Mastectomy Update '85, from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. tomorrow (April 25) at Roma's of Livonia, 27777 Schoolcraft.

Mastectomy Update '85, for women who have had breast surgery, includes a variety of activities designed for mastectomies such as prosthetic vendor displays and a discussion panel composed of J.F. Meeker D.O., surgeon, and Reach to Recovery volunteers Betty Hurd, Dorothy Newman, Jeanne Prom and Bernestine Pearson.

A luncheon buffet follows the panel discussion with a fashion show in the afternoon.

The fashion models are Reach to Recovery volunteers who will model fashions from several local clothing shops and vendors.

Among the models in the show are Northville residents Marilyn Golden and Barbara Lowery.

Displays are from 2:30-3 p.m. Anyone interested in attending the event should make reservations at $8 per person by calling 425-6830.

The Northville Record

Hartman's hitting powers two wins

By B.J. MARTIN

Between Doug Hartman's three-run homer off the side of the space shuttle in his first at-bat of the season and the last out of Tony Craig's four-hit pitching gem Friday, Northville showed it's going to win its share of baseball games this season.

The Mustangs opened their season with a wild 9-7 loss to South Lyon on Monday, hammered Hartland 10-6 Tuesday, then edged Farmington 2-1 in their Western Lakes conference opener Friday.

Northville might have been 3-0 had Coach Bob Frellick broken his rule about breaking in his pitchers' arms gently. Starter Chris Willer and Keith Dutkiewicz in middle relief yielded just two runs and two hits through three innings apiece against South Lyon.

Willer, expected to be Northville's ace this year, retired nine of the ten batters he faced, giving up a double and a run on a wild pitch in the third. Dutkiewicz did much the same, retiring six batters before giving up a run on a walk and a double in the sixth.

But despite a 7-2 lead going into the top of the seventh, the Mustang bullpen couldn't corral the Lions. In their final frame, the Lions scored seven times on two home runs, three singles, two walks and an error to pick up the victory.

The loss spoiled a big afternoon for Hartman. The power-hitting right fielder was 3-for-4 with six RBI.

After walks to shortstop Jerry O'Brien and left fielder Dutkiewicz in the first inning, Hartman stepped to the plate and mashed a fat fastball way over the fence in left — into a strong wind.

Northville added two runs in the third on Chris Hauser's double, an error, a walk and Hartman's two-run single. In the sixth, the Mustangs racked up two more runs on an error, an RBI single by catcher John Norton and — naturally — a bases-loaded single by Hartman.

A second game between the two teams lasted fewer than four innings before darkness rendered it unofficial.

In Tuesday's 10-6 win over the Eagles, Northville packed all its offense into one inning, a 10-run first. Although the Mustang bats were silent afterwards, that was plenty of room for Kelly Bell and winner Brett Loomis, both pitching in relief of starter Chris Dominique.

"We should have scored lots more," said Coach Frellick, noting Northville had stranded runners in scoring position in every inning but the last. "That worries me a bit," he said.

Northville's 10-run explosion started with a walk, an error and then consecutive RBI singles by Dutkiewicz, Hartman, Mark Deal and Norton. Left fielder Fred Cahill followed with an RBI double, and then five straight batters drew walks — all before the first out was recorded.

Dutkiewicz collected three singles in three trips and had two RBI. Hartman, Deal, Norton, Cahill, Dominique, Scott Peterson (who doubled and singled later), Chris Hauser and O'Brien — the entire starting lineup — each collected one RBI in the wild first inning. A second Mustang-Eagle game was cancelled due to darkness.

Things were more quiet in Friday's 2-1 win over Farmington. Center stage belonged to Craig. The junior righthander scattered four hits, struck out three and walked only one batter.

"That says a lot for our defense," Frellick pointed out. Indeed, Northville committed just one error, with shortstop O'Brien and right fielder Hartman in particular playing outstanding defense.

With the score tied in the fourth, Hartman made a spectacular grab of a long fly and his long throw to the plate held a Falcon runner at third, where he remained.

Tom Ross, pinch running for O'Brien after O'Brien singled in the fifth, scored Northville's winning run when he sailed home on a bases-loaded wild pitch to Hartman.

Until then, Northville's only run had come when third baseman Scott Peterson walked, stole second and came home on Hartman's RBI single in the first. The Falcons answered in the first on a single, a walk and an RBI double, but Craig shut them down thereafter for the win.

"Tony wasn't really in trouble at all," said Frellick. "He was throwing hard and that made his change-up very effective. He did a good job of keeping the ball low, and with our defense, that helps."

Kickers rip Chiefs, league race heats up

Senior striker Jill Bemer opened two consecutive games with two consecutive goals to propel Northville past conference foes Farmington and Plymouth Canton last week.

The two wins boosted Northville's Western Lakes record to 3-0 going into last Monday's battle against Livonia Stevenson.

Northville Coach Stan Smalec conceded he was a little "surprised" at the Mustangs' ability to dominate Canton. He had expected the Chiefs to be one of the strongest opponents the Mustangs would face this year.

But Northville scored three times in the first half and won easily, 4-1. Bemer scored three minutes into the game, driving a low liner into the right corner of the Chiefs' net on assists from Kathy Korowin and Michelle Cross. Cross and Kerry Lenaghan assisted on Bemer's next goal, at 7:50.

Canton's only score came on a defensive snafu which resulted in the Mustangs scoring on their own net — a mistake that cut Northville's lead to 2-1 midway through the first half.

But the outcome of the game never appeared in doubt, as Northville outshot the Chiefs 20-3. Left wing Jenny Schuerman added an insurance goal on a cross from right wing Robin Strunk with five minutes to play in the first half.

Throughout the second half, Smalec tinkered with his lineup, working all his healthy players into the game in different combinations. Amy Spaman, usually a defender, scored her first-ever goal on a scramble after a cross from Schuerman five minutes into the second half for the game's only goal.

Fullbacks Julie Nowka and Cheryl Spaman turned away any chance for a Canton comeback with their usual outstanding defensive work. The Chiefs did not manage any difficult-to-handle shots on goalkeeper Tricia Ducker.

Two days before, the Mustangs trampled Farmington with nearly equal ease for a 6-0 victory, outshooting the rebuilding Falcon team 22-8.

Corner kicks by Korowin led to the first two goals of the game, again both scored by Bemer. At 12:08, Bemer vollied in a perfect corner from Korowin, and at 20:52 she scored again, this time on a rebound of a shot by Julie Anger off a corner by Korowin.

Cross made it 3-0 when she intercepted a Falcon pass, broke in on goal and popped in a shot from 18 yards out at 31:49.

Twenty-six minutes into the second half, Anger chipped a shot over the Falcon goalkeeper's head for a 4-0 lead. Korowin and Cross assisted.

Co-ed trackers 'get hardware'

The River Rat Relays are one of the more interesting track meets in the state. Host Ann Arbor Huron doesn't keep team scores. Boys and girls run on the same relay teams, except for the pole vault relay, which has yet to go co-ed. Medals go to teams who finish in the top six in each event.

And as Northville men's track coach Paul Osborn put it, Northville "got some hardware" at last Saturday's running of the meet. Of the 14 events, members of Northville's varsity men and women track teams combined to place in six.

Northville took fourth in the long jump relay with Cindy Panowicz, Kris Marrone, Tom Broderick and Dana Letarte, and fourth in the mile relay with Brett Netke, Jeff Harp, Panowicz and Karen Stinson.

Under near-perfect track and weather conditions, Netke's lead leg was a stunner. He clocked a 49.0 split in the 440 and was clocked at 21.0 over the first 220 yards. Either of those splits would be a Northville High School record if he were running the events individually.

Until Saturday, Netke was usually assigned middle distance work. But after getting a good look at the senior's sprint ability, Osborn simply said: "Things are going to change."

Northville took fifth in the pole vault relay, with Broderick, John McRae and Rich Naszradi qualifying for fifth on the strength of Broderick's 9'6" vault.

Northville's shuttle hurdle relay team of John Briningstool, Tim Millen, Panowicz and Marrone also turned in a fifth-place finish, as did the 880 relay foursome of Millen, Briningstool, Panowicz and Christy Lenaghan.

The Mustangs placed sixth in the four-mile relay with Alan Griffith, his sister Anne Griffith, Jennifer Goshorn and Naszradi. Griffith cracked six minutes with a 5:50 split and Goshorn posted a strong 6:06 split.

Competing individually in field events, Northville picked up personal bests from Anne Griffith in discus (70'2"), Julie Trausch in discus (71 feet) and Shari Thompson in shot (30'5").

Softball nine close, but no victories yet

Northville's varsity softball team kept getting warmer and warmer in its search for this season's first win.

It wasn't anywhere near South Lyon, who slapped the Mustangs out of their spring-break mindset with a 26-3 mercy killing on Monday.

It wasn't around Hartland, who roughed up the Mustangs 12-5 the following day.

But it wasn't too far from Farmington, who squeaked past Northville 10-7 in both teams' Western Lakes conference opener.

"I was pleased with Friday's game. We showed a lot of improvement," said Mustang Coach Sue Heinzman. "If it hadn't been for two key errors and a couple of walks that forced in runs, we probably could have pulled that one out."

Indeed, Friday's game marked a return to some degree of respectability. Lori Housman pitched the full game, striking out three and walking 13. If 13 bases on balls sound like a lot, consider that Northville pitchers Lisa Crawford, sore-shouldered Sue Schrader and Housman combined to issue 36 in Northville's first two games.

The Farmington game also had Northville's best offensive showing so far. Jackie Matteucci, Housman and Schrader each collected two hits, and Michele Siemasz pounded an RBI triple.

Northville's big inning was the four-run fourth. Schrader and Siemasz walked and Dorothy Ziegler brought in both with a double. Julie Kaestner doubled in Ziegler and Matteucci scored Ziegler with an RBI single.

Kim Richcreek had a good afternoon, scoring Chris McGowan with an RBI single in the fifth and playing outstanding left field.

In the season opener, South Lyon hurler Andrea Kozarean held the Mustangs to just three hits. McGowan scored the first run of the season when the catcher singled, stole second and third, then sailed home on a first-and-third steal play.

A walk to Crawford and an RBI double by McGowan gave Northville a run in the fourth. Ziegler singled home Julie Cass for Northville's last run after Cass walked and stole second in the fifth inning.

In Tuesday's loss to Hartland, Northville opened fast, taking a 4-1 lead after two innings. Northville scored three runs in the first inning on three walks, six stolen bases, and two passed balls. But the Eagles jumped on a slew of walks to score six times in the third inning. They never trailed again.

Matteucci was the only Mustang with more than one hit, going 2-for-4 with two RBI. One RBI came in the second when she singled home Kaestner from second, and one came in the seventh when she doubled home Richcreek. Crawford took the loss, as she did against South Lyon.

Northville will host Livonia Stevenson at 3:30 p.m. today, then travel to Walled Lake Western for a game at 3:30 p.m. Friday.

Saturday, Northville will host an all-day tournament featuring several of the state's best prep softball teams: Class A state champion Belleville, Class B state champion Allen Park Cabrini, North Farmington, Novi, Plymouth Salem, Wayne Memorial and South Lyon. Games will be at Ford Field and Fish Hatchery park.

Mustangs 'in driver's seat' with net win over Hawks

The early-season showdown between Northville and Farmington Harrison lived up to its advance billing. It took a marathon three-set match between Northville's first singles ace Terry Michelitch and Harrison's Ken Davidson, a defending league champion, to settle the overall match.

Michelitch won it, rallying from a 3-6 first-set blowout with a 7-5 win in the second and an 8-6 win in the third, finished just before sunset. The first-singles win broke a 3-3 deadlock to give Northville the victory.

Michelitch, a junior transfer student from New York, was playing in only his second match for the Mustangs. But with the pressure on, Michelitch was at his best.

Davidson battled from a 1-5 deficit in the third set to 5-6. According to Northville Coach Dick Norton, that's when Michelitch got the word the outcome of the entire Northville-Harrison match rested on the outcome of his individual match.

Michelitch proceeded to win two of the next three games to drop Davidson for set and match.

"Terry was just exceptionally tough," Norton said. "He's an entirely different player from Arvind (Sreedharan, Northville's first singles player last year). Terry likes to serve, volley and get up to the net. He plays a very aggressive game."

It was no cakewalk in the other matches, either. Northville's second, third and fourth singles players all fell in two sets. It took some gutsy three-set wins from all three Mustang doubles teams to post the win.

Don Norton and Mark Reitenga won the first doubles match 6-2, 0-6, 6-4; Mike Reitenga and David Kaminski won the second doubles match 6-1, 6-7 (5-7 tie-breaker), 6-1; and Don Hubbard and Mike Tabaczynski won their third doubles match 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

The victory over Harrison, Coach Norton said,

Lions run down men trackers

Track powerhouse South Lyon swept firsts in all but two events to hand Northville's men's team its first dual meet loss April 16.

Only Northville's two-mile relay and 880 relay teams thwarted the South Lyon string of first-place finishes, as the Lions downed Northville 105-32.

In the two-mile relay, Irvan Meadows, John McRae, Alan Griffith and Jeff Harp combined to clock an 8:56.6, while in the 880 relay, Tom Broderick, John Briningstool, Matt Hubert and Tim Millen combined for a 1:39.3.

"It's going to take us some time to rebuild," said Northville Coach Paul Osborn. "But I feel pretty positive about our performances."

For good reason. The Mustangs found two long jumpers capable of consistent placements in Tom Broderick and Dana Letarte. Broderick sailed 19'2" for a second and Letarte went 18'7" for third. Broderick took second in pole vault with a 10'6" effort, and Brett Netke added a third in discus with a 93'11½" heave.

Netke clocked a 55.5 to take second in the 440. Also placing second were Alan Griffith in the mile (4:58.5), Tim Millen in the 330 low hurdles (44.5) and

"Kind of puts us in the driver's seat as far as the division goes. We just have to remain consistent the rest of the way."

Northville was anything but consistent against Farmington on Friday, but the Mustangs still managed to pull out an easy 6-1 victory.

Michelitch, for example, played well for most of his first singles match, but his 6-4 and 6-1 set wins sandwiched a 1-6 loss. In first doubles, David Merrifield and Kaminski won their first and third matches easily, 6-3 and 6-2, but dropped a 1-6 set in the middle, too.

The pattern was again repeated at second doubles, with Don Norton and Tabaczynski pulling out a 6-4, 1-6, 6-4 win. Mark Reitenga won a 7-6 (7-4 tie-breaker), 6-4 match at second singles; Mike Reitenga won third singles 7-5, 6-2, and Kirk Morrison and Hubbard won the third doubles match impressively, 6-2, 6-3. Kaminski fell 3-6, 6-4, 3-6 at fourth singles.

The Mustangs opened their season the previous Monday, easily trouncing Brighton 7-0. None of the matches even went three sets.

Michelitch won his match untouched, 6-0, 6-0, as did the third doubles team of Tabaczynski and Hubbard. Only third singles player Dan Boland encountered the most resistance, using a 7-4 tie-breaker to take his first set 7-6, then winning the second set 6-2.

Merrifield at second singles, Kamieniecki at fourth singles, Mark Reitenga and Norton at first doubles and Mike Reitenga and David Kaminski all won their matches easily in two sets.

Northville (3-0) travels to Livonia Stevenson to take on the tough Spartans today at 3:30 p.m. The Mustangs head for Walled Lake Western for a 3:30 p.m. match Friday, then to Novi for a non-conference grudge match at 3:30 p.m. Monday.

Jeff Harp in the half-mile (2:16.9).

Taking thirds for Northville were Letarte in the 100 (11.0) and Briningstool in the 220 (24.9).

A meet against Walled Lake Western set for last Thursday was postponed until next month because of a scheduling conflict. Northville will host division rival Plymouth Canton tomorrow at 3:30 p.m., then travel to Belleville Saturday for the Tiger Relays.

Women's team nipped by Lions, too

Despite three individual firsts from Cindy Panowicz, South Lyon toppled Northville's women's track team 77½-55½ to open both squads' dual-meet seasons last week.

Panowicz and the Lions' top athlete, MaryFran Peterlin, went head-to-head in their specialties — the 110 and 330 hurdles and the high jump — and Panowicz won each encounter.

"Cindy's right on schedule in the hurdles and doing very well in the high jump," reported Coach Ann Turnbull. Panowicz

Kickers win two

Senior striker Gaynelle Wagner scored her first goal of the season on a solo breakaway with eight minutes to play, and Korowin buried a header from a corner by Anger with two minutes left for the game's last score. Once again, Smalec worked all his players into the game.

Jenny Kuffner, playing several positions, was particularly strong in the second half, spelling Korowin. Jill Gallagher also turned in a solid game at midfield.

"I'm really encouraged by how hard the girls have been working," Smalec said. "They've been staying after practice for hours working on their timing."

"I don't know if it's the pressure of having the state championship or what. But Anger, Berner, Cross and Flading have been working on their offensive timing — and their crosses have been getting awesome. Anger's corner kicks are starting to come around, too, and that's going to help us."

Northville hosts Livonia Franklin at 7 p.m. tonight and will not be in action again until Monday, when the Mustangs travel to Plymouth Salem.

Local four lift cagers

Four Northville athletes were among the members of Plymouth Ward Church's basketball team, which claimed a Multi-Area (state) championship last month with a 67-60 victory over Saginaw March 24.

Teams were drawn from Church of Jesus Christ Latter-Day Saints congregations and friends from across the state. Competing on the Plymouth Ward cage squad were brothers Brett and Scott Belliston, plus Fred Cahill and Jeff Harp, all from Northville.

Plymouth Ward had advanced to the final with a 47-46 semifinal win over Williamston.

Architectural drawing of the new Chapel-Mausoleum

Architectural drawing of the new Pieta Niche unit

OAKLAND HILLS MEMORIAL GARDENS

Since 1929

Oakland Hills Memorial Gardens proudly announces a new Chapel-Mausoleum to be completed in 1985. This beautiful and durable structure will be constructed with the finest marble and granite stonework, custom-made stained glass, and hand-carved oak doors and trim. The 208 foot long Mausoleum offers 900 crypts and 1000 cremation niches.

Pre-construction prices, now available, are comparable to conventional burial; from $3790 for two crypts. Terms up to 60 months are arranged. Detailed information can be forwarded to your home upon request.

Oakland Hills offers complete pre-arrangement programs to accommodate any preference including above ground mausoleum crypts, conventional burial with bronze memorialization, and a cremation program with niche units. A pre-need arrangement is less expensive and includes free credit life insurance, a transfer program and a child protection plan. It also allows you to make these arrangements under the best of conditions so your family will not have to under the worst of conditons.

Funeral costs add up

BY NANCY HALE BROWN

Most people will some day be involved with funeral expenses and the costs of other post-death activities.

And although it may not be pleasant to plan a funeral ahead of time, prior knowledge of funeral costs is usually in the best interest of the consumer, according to the National Funeral Directors Association.

A consumer who studies cost data will learn that funeral expenses and other costs vary depending on the goods and services requested. Although not every funeral is exactly the same, the majority of selections have some common basic aspects.

Costs which specifically involve a funeral home include staff services, the use of facilities and equipment, transportation and the casket. Most funeral homes also have burial vaults and other types of outer enclosure for the casket. Clothing is among the other items that can be selected from the funeral director.

In 1981 most funerals cost between $1,500 and $3,000, according to a study done by the funeral directors association. But those costs did not include professional services, facilities, transportation, caskets, vaults, cemetery or crematory expenses, monument or marker, and other miscellaneous items, such as flowers, burial clothing and newspaper notices.

The cost ranges of outer enclosures, such as vaults, sectional units and wood boxes are: vaults, $450 to $5,000; sectional concrete boxes from $95 to $300; and wooden boxes from $60 to $200, according to the association.

Another cost to keep in mind is related to a cemetery. There are two kinds of cemeteries: the traditional and the memorial park. Traditional cemeteries permit a person to select a monument or marker. A memorial park usually requires uniform markers that are level with the grass.

In most cemeteries, the cost of an individual grave ranges from about $75 to $500. And the costs of opening and closing the grave generally range from about $50 to $400.

Other options for burial include a mausolea, or cremation. A mausolea offers above-ground burial for $700 to more than $10,000. Burial sites include indoor crypts with corridors or rooms to accommodate visitors, and outdoor crypts facing lawns or gardens. Individual crypts in indoor mausolea start at about $700. Outside garden crypts start at about $450.

The approximate cost of cremation (reducing the body by direct flame) ranges from $35 to $200. Survivors may wish to keep the residue in an urn. Bronze urns to hold a single remains range in price from $100 to more than $250. Bronze urns for more than one cremated remains cost between $100 to more than $500.

Another cost to keep in mind when it comes to cremation is that when the cremation is a distance from where the death and/or funeral takes place, transportation charges could exceed those of the cremation.

Once the type of funeral is decided on, a monument or marker is usually chosen. Bronze markers start at about $235 and granite markers cost about $250 and up. The cost of both can run higher depending on size, material, design and craftsmanship.

At best, making funeral arrangements is trying. Making decisions in advance is becoming more and more common. Four factors should be considered when making advance decisions, especially when pre-financing is included, according to the association.

- Review the effect of any advance planning on the survivors.

- Review the pros and cons of planning now for a situation that might not occur for many years.

- Realize that over the years funeral homes may experience some change in personality and funeral merchandise being described.

- When pre-financing, note that the terms and conditions are usually governed by state law. No money should be paid in advance of need without a written agreement.

The agreement should fully state the procedure for pre-financing and provide adequate safeguards for both the consumer and the funeral home. The family should also be aware of what recourse is available if it moves away from the funeral home's service area, or decides to terminate the agreement.

Organ donation possible option

BY NANCY HALE BROWN

"The Gift of Life" and "Put a Miracle in Your Pocket" are phrases used to promote an alternative to consider before death.

Richard Pietroski, transplant coordinator at the Organ Procurement Agency of Michigan, located in Ann Arbor, said that organ donation after death is an option worth considering.

But who makes the decision of whether a person will make an anatomical gift effective upon his death to prolong the life of another person? The decision, Pietroski said, begins with an individual who should discuss the option openly with his loved ones.

Once the decision is made to donate an organ after death, the person should obtain a label from the agency in Ann Arbor or a Secretary of State office to attach to the back of a driver's license.

The label allows the person to indicate whether or not he will donate a kidney, middle ear, pituitary, skin, bone, any organ, body for study, or eye. There also is room on the label for a medical alert and blood type.

The label must be signed by the person who wants to donate an organ and a witness who is among those who definitely will be immediately present when the person dies.

Any person over the age of 18 can be a donor. Anyone under that age must have the permission of a parent or legal guardian.

"If something happens, the witness will still need to sign a form at the hospital before the organ is donated," Pietroski said.

The legal order of kin who can make a final decision on whether an organ is donated in the absence of the witness, Pietroski said, is: spouse, adult son or daughter, mother or father, adult brother or sister, legal guardian, other person obligated to dispose of the body.

Within four to eight hours after brain death has been declared, organs can be retrieved by a surgical team from Ann Arbor, Pietroski said. The organs are stored in refrigerator conditions for lengths of time that depend on the organ.

A kidney, for instance, can be stored for 36-48 hours before it is transplanted. A heart can only be stored for up to four hours.

After the organ is removed, the body is released to the family. The organs are then distributed based on patient need, medical compatibility tests and geography, without regard to sex, race or creed.

The identity of the individuals who receive the organs must remain confidential by law, and the donor's identity, in turn, is not revealed to them.

Although a family is not paid for making a donation, they will not be charged additional costs related to the donation. Funeral costs, however, remain the responsibility of the survivors.

However, traditional burial may be forgone at least temporarily if the body is donated in total to a medical school for examination by students.

The program at Michigan State University is coordinated by Milvet Strickler, a mortuary science licensee with the Department of Anatomy.

For more information about the program, call the department at 517-353-5398.

To get more information about the organ donor program, call the procurement agency at 1-800-482-4881.

Grief over the loss of a loved one is a normal emotion.

But if the grief becomes too intense and lasts too long, it can be pathological.

That's the counsel of Stephen P. Stocker, an ACSW and executive director of Psychotherapy and Counseling Services with offices in Northville and West Bloomfield.

"The intensity and the duration of the grief are the keys," said Stocker. "It's perfectly normal to be depressed when someone close to you passes away. But if the depression persists to such a degree that it inhibits the person's ability to function, counseling is in order."

Stocker said the psychology of loss involves four separate stages that everyone has to go through.

First, the individual who has lost someone close to him or her must accept the fact that the death occurred. Then, he must allow himself to feel the pain of the loss. Third, he must be willing to accept his environment with the absence of the loved one. And, finally, he must be able to invest emotional energy in a meaningful relationship with someone else.

"It's amazing how many people have trouble accepting the fact that the death has, indeed, occurred," he said. "Initially, we all attempt to deny the reality of death. We say, 'there must have been a mistake' or 'it can't be true.'"

"It's when the denial goes on for an indefinite period, as it sometimes does, that it can create real problems."

As an example of denial, Stocker cited the case of a Detroit cab driver whose daughter died when she was six. "Ten years later, the cab driver became absolutely convinced that one of the little girls he drove to school every day was his daughter."

A milder example of the same symptom is the parent who will seal up the room of a child who has died tragically. "The death of children is very hard to accept," said Stocker. "Those things just aren't supposed to happen."

"It's normal for a parent to want to preserve the memory of that child, but if two years later the child's room has not been changed in any way, the parent's grief may have become pathological."

Allowing yourself to feel the pain of the loss is the second phase of the grieving process. Surprisingly, said Stocker, a lot of people can't do it.

FECHT

Stephen P. Stocker: People have trouble accepting death

Handling grief is key to coping with death

He cited the case of an Ann Arbor woman who had lost a daughter. A year later, the woman showed up in Stocker's office with numerous physical ailments. "During the course of the therapy, the woman said she had never sat down and cried about her daughter's death because she was afraid she 'wouldn't be able to stop' if she ever started," Stocker said.

"She had accepted the fact of her daughter's death, but she had been unable to let herself feel the pain."

The third phase of grief is accepting the environment without the loved one's presence. "You have to be able to accept your life without the loved one present," Stocker explained. "It can be particularly trying for a husband or wife who has lost his or her spouse. All of a sudden, the wife, for example, finds herself without her her husband, lover, income-earner, show-shoveler, companion and friend. How well she adjusts to life with that absence is a sign of how well she can handle the grief."

The final stage of the healing process is being able to invest emo-

'It's perfectly normal to be depressed when someone close to you passes away.'

tional energy in another relationship. "Someone who loses a spouse may not be able to date someone else for a year. That's not abnormal," said Stocker. "But if that situation persists for a period of five years, it may be a sign of pathology."

"The pain of the loss was so great, the mourner may not permit him or herself to make that type of emotional investment with another person. That sort of avoidance may prevent the pain of another loss, but it also deprives the individual of the joys involved in a meaningful relationship."

Stocker said the inability to resolve the grief over the loss of a loved one is often manifested in physical or psychological ailments as the years go by. He noted that it's not unusual for people who have not resolved their grief to become agoraphobic, for example.

Additionally, Stocker notes that it's not at all uncommon for an individual to feel anger toward a loved one who's passed away.

"It's a perfectly normal emotion," he explained, "but it's also the hardest emotion to admit. For example, if a husband loses his wife, he may have feelings of anger toward her for passing away in such an untimely fashion. 'How could you have done this to me? Why did you abandon me? Who's going to take care of the kids? Who's going to be my companion?'"

"Feelings of anger toward the deceased are quite normal during the grieving process."

"It's the individual's ability to give vent to his feelings . . . to admit his emotions and then move on with his or her life that demonstrates he is dealing successfully with grief."

By DANIEL GRANTHAM

Estate planning and wills aren't something most people want to think about while they are alive, but the person who gives proper attention to both matters both prevents many difficulties for his heirs and gains some control over how his property is dispersed.

"A will provides you with the flexibility of speaking after your death," says Brighton attorney David Park.

Park says the "natural aversion" to discussing death-related topics can be conquered by considering a will as part of personal budgeting.

What happens if the inevitable is ignored? In the event of a death with no will, state law requires the property to be divided among "blood relatives," Park says. This group includes spouses and children, but does not provide for grandchildren, former spouses or friends who might wish to have some of the possessions. The law does not allow the property to be given to charity either, he added.

One of the most common misconceptions about wills, Park says, is that they allow the family to avoid probate court. A will can simplify the court procedure, but the ownership of the property must be decided in court even if a will exists, he says.

Wills aren't just for dividing property, adds Park. Parents can use the document to nominate a legal guardian for their children should they be unable to care for them. Wills also allow the holder to appoint the person who will administer an estate, Park says.

My Last Will and Testament

Where there's a will, there's a way to plan

People have also used wills to state what they want done with their body after their death—asking that they be cremated or that their body be donated for scientific use. Donating organs cannot be done through a will since they must be removed quickly after death, but a will can make others aware that you want to donate in the event of death, says Park.

Once the will is made it is important to update it as your financial and personal situations change. "It should be revised periodically," Park says. "It should grow with the individual."

Tax savings are another important reason for having a will, Park says. No will can prevent taxation, but there are methods which allow a person to save on the amount of taxes the state and federal government collect from the estate.

An estate valued at more than $400,000 is susceptible to federal estate taxes which range between 18 and over 50 percent, says Park, adding that he recommends estate planning for people with holdings above that level. "Estate planning preserves the assets and distributes them in such a way that has nominal tax consequences," he says.

Estate planning might mean setting up a trust fund or using gifts to distribute your property. Gifts are one of the least used and easiest ways to distribute goods, Park says. A person may give up to $10,000 per individual each year without incurring taxes on the donation. Donors giving more than the limit are required to pay taxes on the amount exceeding $10,000, he says.

Putting your valuables in a safety-deposit box is not the ideal method of estate planning, Park says. In the event of death the box cannot be opened by an heir without the supervision of a bank official and the opener is required to inventory the contents of the box. The contents are then added to the total inventory of property and could be subject to taxation.

Park recommends estate planning be done by a lawyer specializing in the field since federal estate laws are rapidly changing. "In the last nine years there have been three or four massive changes in the federal tax," he says.

What about the do-it-yourself route?

"It is possible for a person to draft their own will," Park says, adding that in an emergency situation "it's much better to try to make your own than to die without it." Still, he advises people have their own lawyer draw up the document. Individuals without an attorney can contact the State Bar of Michigan or their local bar association to receive the names of lawyers handling wills and estate planning.

Cremation provides a choice

BY ROBERT WATERS

Death and dying and the disposal of our earthly remains has largely been a spiritual and religious event sanctioned by the church, overseen by the government and supplied by the funeral business.

But for the past 100 years in England—and more recently in the United States—the concept of economics and practicality have revamped the business end of dying and sent many families seeking a more rational and at times more meaningful way to say goodbye to their loved ones.

Cremation, which was legalized in England in 1884, has become quite popular in that country and continues to attract so-called rationalists and environmentalists concerned with the ecological and space-saving advantages it offers over traditional burial.

According to author Jessica Mitford in her book "The American Way of Death," more than 35 percent of England's population is cremated when they die and of those, 90 percent have their ashes scattered or "strewed" as the clergy calls it.

In the U.S., cremation is legal, sanctioned by the majority of religions and is available in most areas, but hasn't grown in popularity as it has in Europe.

The reasons for the lack of growth, according to area funeral directors, is the availability of land for earth burial; the familiar association of fire or burning with Hell; and, the relatively insubstantial difference in cost between cremation and traditional burial.

'The concept of burial ties into our traditions a little better than cremation.'

Thomas Lynch of Lynch and Sons Funeral Home in Milford said there was an increase in cremation in the U.S. during the "sweeping social changes of the '60s," but that the number has leveled off in recent years.

He said of the 500 funerals performed each year at the three Lynch funeral homes, only about 40 to 50, or approximately 10 percent, involved cremation. The figure is eight percent statewide.

The low number, he said, is the result of tradition.

"The concept of burial ties into our traditions a little better than cremation," explained Lynch. "And our ideas about fire and being burned and the way that relates to our concept of Hell, has a lot to do with many people's negative attitude towards cremation."

In addition, Lynch argued that the position that cremation saves "earth space" by replacing burial is largely erroneous.

"The United States is the most land-rich country in the world, so the argument that cremation saves space doesn't make much sense," Lynch said. "And talking about using up space, what about all the golf courses and go-cart tracks?"

Richard Phillips, owner of Phillips Funeral Home in South Lyon, said that although cremations at his establishment have increased from "maybe one or two every three years during the 1950s and 1960s" to about 10 during 1984, he feels the number will remain relatively low.

He said the cremation process can "make it a little difficult for the family to accept the fact of death when the body is not viewed."

On the other hand, Phillips said an April 1984 Federal Trade Commission ruling has loosened restrictions relating to cremation which may increase its popularity.

He explained that although the state requires a proper death certificate and a medical examiner's approval to perform a cremation, the regulations surrounding the "cremation case" have been relaxed.

He said that as of the 1984 ruling, families can make their own cremation case (what the body will be burned in) out of just about any type of material.

Some families, he said, use funeral home-supplied basic wooden coffins, while others use a cardboard casket or even a canvas sack. But others, he said, often opt for the expensive metal coffins.

Donald Keehn of Keehn Funeral Home in Brighton said cremations are much more popular along the west coast and in Florida than in the midwest. He said about 11 percent of his funerals involved cremation.

What is done with the remains of those cremated, said Keehn, often depends on guidelines in the will of the deceased, or is left up to family members.

"The family can retain the remains and scatter them on private lands, but not on public property or over public waters," explained Keehn. "Or they can arrange to have the remains placed in special cemetery plots or in a small mausoleum."

Although many believe the lower cost of cremation is its best advocate, actual figures show that cremation expenses vary along the same lines as earth burial and tend to be only slightly less expensive.

Among the three funeral homes contacted, cremations and traditional earth burials ranged in cost from about $200 to $3,500.
