Plymouth Center feud stalls DeHoCo bill

By KEVIN WILSON

A war of words erupted between Detroit Mayor Coleman Young and western Wayne County officials last week, centering on Young's repeated insistence the Plymouth Center for Human Development be utilized as a fourth state prison in this area.

The argument put a halt to progress toward state acquisition of the Detroit House of Correction, which local legislators had expected would receive approval of the House of Representatives last week.

Heights of the verbal sparring included Young's assertion that western Wayne County officials are "not doing their fair share" in accommodating needed prisons and State Senator R. Robert Geake (R-Northville) responding that "Coleman Young does not run the State of Michigan."

It appeared that the Plymouth-Northville axis got the best of the argument when Governor James Blanchard, despite the pressure from Young, said the Plymouth Center proposal was "not realistic."

Blanchard's remarks, however, were couched among other statements that he may soon "get tough" with communities that appear to be blocking the state's steamroller effort to expand prison capacity. He noted legal provisions that would allow the state to give leaders of local governments 90 days to select a prison site. If they fail to do so, the state would select its own sites.

Local legislators have been politicking hard to ensure that a state takeover of DeHoCo is accompanied by a bill capping the number of prisoners who may be housed in the three prisons along Five Mile Road and calling a moratorium against any future prison sitings in either Northville or Plymouth township unless approved by local government.

Local efforts have also centered on having the Plymouth Center property sold to private interests for development, with a pending township zoning proposal suggesting the land could be used for multi-family residential, office and industrial projects.

Young's verbal blast demanding that a Plymouth Center prison precede selection of a Detroit prison site disrupted what appeared to be a budding agreement between local and state officials clearing the way for the DeHoCo takeover.

"They wanted a May 1 deadline (on the purchase) and we were ready to do that," said State Representative Gerald H. Law (R-Plymouth Township). "Now, we're going to go past that. We probably won't even have it through the House by then, and it has to go the Senate and then the governor. Everything's held up now, basically due to the posturing of the City of Detroit."

Law said he thinks the only result of Young's outburst will be delay. Press reports had Young criticizing the agreed-to 650-inmate cap for DeHoCo, which will be renamed Western Wayne County Correctional Facility, and the moratorium provision forbidding additional prisons in Northville or Plymouth townships.

"He (Young) may have helped us, we'll have to wait and see what happens when this all dies down," said Law. "I think maybe the governor's people are beginning to understand why we've been insisting on a moratorium. As long as those other facilities are there, we don't have any assurances unless we have it in black and white that no more prisons are expected of us."

Law was clearly agitated by Young's comments, calling them "ridiculous. He keeps talking vaguely about this site in Plymouth, which is actually in Northville, to show you what he knows."

Unlike many other suburban legislators, Law has studiously avoided demanding a Detroit prison site as a precondition to acceptance of prisons in his district, but he bordered on such a position a few times in the past week.

"The felons are running on his (Young's) streets. They're not running on my streets. Somewhere along the way he's going to have to face the fact that the crime problem is largely a Detroit problem," Law said. "(The DeHoCo purchase) is sitting waiting to move. We're taking the position that the DeHoCo bill does not move without the moratorium bill going with it. The longer they wait, the longer felons are running on Coleman Young's streets,"

Law eventually made clear there is no change in his position regarding a prison in the City of Detroit. "Our deal

In the middle of Monday night's special meeting of the township board of trustees, supervisor Susan Heintz requested a five-minute recess at around 9 p.m. in order to accept a telephone call.

After the recess, which took closer to 15 minutes, she informed the township board that the phone call was from "someone in Lansing" in regard to the ongoing legislative debate regarding prison siting issues.

'I can tell the board it looks extremely good, 'A Heintz' said. 'It looks extremely good for getting a moratorium, for a cap on the number of prisoners at DeHoCo and for no prison usage at Plymouth Center."

The legislature was not in session Monday, customarily opening the week on Tuesday. Heintz said after the board meeting that if her information proved reliable, the DeHoCo purchase and the moratorium bill could receive approval in the House of Representatives this week.

Heintz noted press reports on Monday that Governor James Blanchard had again stated that he would not support a plan to utilize Plymouth Center for Human Development as a prison.

She declined to identify the person to whom she spoke on the telephone. Asked that person's political party affiliation, she responded "there is no party affiliation." Speculation that the person was a state governmental staff member resulted in no response. Others with no party affiliation likely to have the information Heintz relayed are representatives of the township's Lansing lobbying firm, Karoub &

Charter township incorporation complete

By KEVIN WILSON

Mark this date on your calendars Northville history buffs: Monday, April 29, 1985.

That's the day Northville Township incorporated as the Charter Township of Northville on a unanimous vote of the oard of trustees meeting in special session. For the record, the motion was made by trustee James Nowka and seconded by trustee Donald Williams. All members of the board were in attendance.

"Congratulations to the members of this township board," said Supervisor Susan Heintz after the vote, "we are now a charter township."

Actually, township attorney Nels arlson advised, "there's some amoiguity in the law about when you become a charter township."

A liberal reading of the state law would say the incorporation was effective as soon as the board vote concluded. But as an insurance factor, the township is following provisions requiring notice to the Michigan Secretary of State and the Wayne County clerk's office. That's when the clock ran out on the 60-day waiting period after the board's February 21 vote to announce its intention to incorporate as a charter township. In that period, not a single person took out a petition opposing the measure.

To be sure the timing was right, the board waited 60 days from the date the intention to incorporate was first published as a legal notice in this newspaper — February 27 — rather than 60 days from its vote beginning the

The special meeting to consider the incorporation was announced last Wednesday and a legally posted notice was placed on the bulletin board in township hall.

Township officials were saying last Tuesday, April 23, that they had not yet decided whether to meet in special session or simply to wait until their regular board meeting May 9.

Movement toward incorporation began after the township received a legal opinion stating that if the charter was adopted by township board vote rather than by referendum, the township would not be authorized to levy the five mill property tax alloted in the charter

City council to study downtown expansion

By B.J. MARTIN

City council is expected to decide this month whether Northville's downtown business district should expand to include property on the south side of Cady Street and the east side of Center.

If council approves the idea — already endorsed by city planners — the half-block of Cady Street property immediately east of Center, as well as all property on the east side of Center from Cady to the Northville Downs parking lot, would be rezoned from Race Track and Related Uses to Central Business District.

The zoning change would permit property owners in the described area to use their land for stores, offices, parking lots and other businesses — exactly as downtown Main Street property owners may do.

The proposed expansion is the upshot of a rezoning request made by James and Robert Perkins, owners of Wooden Shovel Antiques, 341 East Main Street.

The pair appeared before city planners April 2 to ask that two of the 10 affected lots be rezoned so that they can move an antique store and office into the house at 209 South Center.

In reviewing their request, planning commissioners agreed it would be in keeping with the city's long-range planning goals if neighboring property were also rezoned. The city's master plan has advised that the property's long-range use should not be residential.

In recommending the property would be well-suited for business use, city planning consultant Ron Nino advised commissioners: "The success of Downtown Development Authority activities is evident in the rate of new developments. This development suggests that the CBD is not large enough to respond to its marketing success.

Beniker Gang' features 1982 NHS graduate

By JEAN DAY

If the reclusive James in "The Beniker Gang," which opened last weekend at area movie theaters, looks familiar, he very well may be. Jeff Alan-Lee, who plays James, one of the leads in the story of five youngsters who band together to become the Beniker Gang, is known to former classmates and friends here as Jeff Lee.

After graduating from Northville High School in the Class of 1982, Jeff headed for the Big Apple with his sights firmly set on an acting career.

Now 21, he is a junior at New York University in the undergraduate drama department and has just completed his first feature film which previewed in Texas last Wednesday.

He also has appeared in an off-Broadway play, "Losing It," and is a veteran of more than 60 commercials, the latest for Three Musketeers candy bars. The son of the E. Thomas Lees of 16723 Old Bedford, Jeff was known as a "song and dance man" from the time he began entertaining when he was nine years old. By the time he was 16, he was acting in area theater guild plays and flying to auditions in New York.

He entertained on the Bob Lo boats and appeared with the Michigan Opera Theater.

At 16, he won the lead role of Jerry in the television series, "Jerry in the Circus," which ran for 52 weeks on ABC-TV. He appeared in his own television special, "The Magic Balloon."

At the time he told The Record, "We'll go anywhere" as opportunity beckoned.

In the off-Broadway comedy, "Losing It," at Provincetown Playhouse in Greenwich Village, Jeff played "The Kid" in the three-person production which ran from October 31 through mid-November. Set in rural Tennessee, the story concerned two good ol' boys deserted by their wives and an innocent teen, "The Kid," who unwittingly helps them address their web of hurt and self-

DiComo tapped to plan township hall expansion

Planning for expansion of the township hall building will begin soon under a contract approved by the board of trustees Monday night.

In an item added to the agenda of the special meeting for consideration of incorporation as a charter township, the board approved a contract with Kamp DiComo Associates, P.C. of Livonia for the schematic design phase of the ex-

The contract, for a maximum of $12,420, calls for the architectural firm to produce a general proposal recommending methods by which the building at 41600 Six Mile can be expanded.

The schematic design would show how much space should be added and to what part of the present building the new construction should be attached.

A five-year old study prepared by township planning consultants Villican-Leman Associates demonstrates a need for additional space at township hall, particularly for storage areas and larger police department quarters.

Treasurer Richard Henningsen recommended the contract for expansion design, noting that the recommended maximum is the total allotted toward the project in the current

'I suppose if you get right down to it, I couldn't adequately explain why I didn't go out looking for three companies to bid on the job. I wanted something beyond the strict seller-buyer relationship.

> - Richard Henningsen Township treasurer

Asked by trustee Richard Allen why he had not sought bids from other architectural firms, Henningsen said he preferred for this phase to be done by someone who understands what I'm trying to do here," noting that Kamp Dicomo Associates principal Donald DiComo is a community resident who has done much work in Northville.
"I suppose if you get right down to it, couldn't adequately explain why I didn't go out looking for three companies to bid on the job," Henningsen said. "I wanted something beyond the strict seller-buyer relationship."

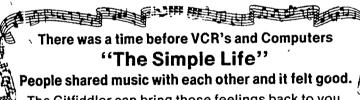

Allen found that explanation satisfactory and no other trustees questioned the procedures. The contract was approved on a unanimous vote.

Henningsen added that he would be exploring means of financing the expansion project, noting that trustees have requested that some other funding source supplement any general fund investments in the building.

Township officials have long acknowledged that the township hall, constructed under a federal grant program in the late 1970s, was inadequately sized from the beginning.

A major shortfall of the design, township officials said, is the lack of storage areas. Portions of various rooms have been devoted wholly to storage of records, equipment and supplies, there being no other space in the main part of the building.

> for space, as records fill up much of the main room and other areas are sized to accommodate only a few officers at a Other improvements planned at township hall, beyond expansion of the building itself, include more paved parking in front of the building and

Council examines millage reduction in budget study

Looking at a 1985-86 budget projection that incorporates a tax decrease for city residents, city council members Monday night observed that it was the first time in three years that they had enjoyed studying the budget.

The proposed budget reduces millage from the current 16.68 mills to 15.40 mills in the budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

In addition the Randolph drain assessment is reduced from 1.20 mills to 1.0 mill. City Manager Steve Walters told the council that he expects the drain millage to continue to drop every year as the tax base increases.

"I think it's a workable budget in its reductions that still leaves an improve-ment fund with a cushion," Walters told mayor pro tem G. Dewey Gardner, who presided in the absence of Mayor Paul Vernon who is ill, and the other council

The paving assessment for South Main remains at .50 mills in the projection. Walters anticipated the half mill levy would continue for at least another year "until the Wayne County Road Commission begins to kick in its parimutuel tax rebates from the state were increased in the projected budget from the 1984-85 figure of $592,000 to $710,000, Walters said, on the advice of State Senator R. Robert Geake of Nor-

During the budget study session the DPW and beautification budgets were discussed.

D.P.W. superintendent Ted Mapes received high praise from Gardner and other council members.

"Even if our trucks are old, they still look nice," Gardner observed as he praised Mapes' "absolutely superb Mapes' recommendations included replacement of a 1975 tractor and mower for a new 4-wheel drive tractor with snow plow and larger mower at a trade-in cost of $10,000. He noted that the recommended purchase would make it easier to plow parking lots and city courts. Residents last winter had objected to delays in snow removal on cul-de-sacs and courts.

Mapes also gained approval for his recommendation of a new type of salter that is more conservative in dispensing salt. While noting the manufacturer council said it would be worth doing at only a 10-percent savings, which would pay for the $7,000 piece of equipment in three to four years.

The D.P.W. budget also included purchase of two new snow plows ($5,800) and replacement of a half-ton pick-up truck ($10,000) which was retired last fall when it rusted out.

The list of D.P.W. vehicles provided by Mapes was viewed with interest by the council as it included a 1954 half-ton van and a 1949 tractor rotary mower.

Walters warned council that the next D.P.W. budget will have a major expenditure in a $40,000 dump truck and a street sweeper.

The usually dull budget session brightened, however, as Mapes detailed how the city happens to have the 1954 van which, he explained, is used for equipment for maintenance work at Rural Hill Cemetery.

"Bud Hartner found the van, a Wonder Bread truck with a Lincoln body, in a farmer's field. He told the farmer, 'I'll give you $125 and not a cent more.' The farmer said, 'sold,' so we overhauled the motor and have used it at the cemetery ever since," Mapes said, adding that there's one problem. "We have no title for it."

The proposed beautification budget has been increased from $5,000 to $8,000. Gardner, who also serves on the city beautification commission, noted, "We really need the money — we spend

He pointed out that the areas beautified have been growing and will continue to do so with planned downtown expansion. Walters added that over $58,000 of beautification work has been done with donations which still come in at the rate of about one a month

However, he said, the city could not expect them in the amounts of the past when benches ($500 each), trees ($100) and tree guards ($250) have been given. He said all projected trees and benches have been purchased but about 50 tree guards are needed.

A flagpole for South Main boulevard was included in the budget without cost, he added, as the V.F.W. Post had indicated it would make the purchase.

Council member Carolann Ayers ask. ed what was happening about the shrubs planted last fall that did not survive the winter in the South Main land. scaping and was assured they will be replaced by the nursery.

The council is expected to study the housing commission budget for Allen Terrace later this month, probably at a special session May 13, Walters said,

The budget is expected to be adopted in its final form at the May 21 council

City police auction May 18

"An invitation to a reception with Governor James Blanchard and Michigan Week activities are causing changes in Northville City Council's meeting schedule this month.

Because council members and city manager Steve Walters had received personal invitations to an evening reception at the governor's mansion in Lansing from 6-7:30 p.m. next Monday evening, council Monday delayed its May 6 meeting hour from 8 p.m. to 9:30

Northville Township officials also have received an invitation to the same reception. Supervisor Susan Heintz attended a similar event in April when the top elected officials from 15 western Wayne County governments gathered at the governor's residence. City mayor Paul Vernon had been invited but was unable to attend due to illness.

City council member Carolann Ayers said she understood about 200 officials from western Wayne County had been invited to next Monday's reception. Detroit City Council members attended a similar reception on Monday.

Rather than simply cancel next week's council meeting, it was necessary for the city to schedule the 9:30 p.m. session in order to call the budget hearing for May 21 and to re-set the sewer assessment roll hearing date.

Walters said he expected the late evening meeting to be brief with a meeting probably called for May 13 to discuss such other pending city business as the rezoning recommendation for Cady and Center from the planning commission. He also an-ticipated the council would study the housing commission budget then.

Date for the second regular council meeting of the month already was changed from May 20 to May 21 because of the mayor exchange day program May 20 during Michigan Week. The city is teaming with Brighton for the annual exchange.

Also on the agenda is student law day next Tuesday when high school students spend the day with city officials to experience "government in

Novi Bowl-A-Thon enters its third year

NOVI — Want to go bowling to support a worthwhile cause?

If so, Novi Youth Assistance (NYA) is looking for volunteers to participate in heir third annual bowl-a-thon. The bowl-a-thon will be held at the Novi Bowl on Novi Road on Saturday, May 18, at 10 a.m.

Joyce Hellenga, co-chair of the annual event, said this year's goal is to raise $6,000. "The tremendous community support of this event in the past has shown that the people of Novi want more programs to benefit youth and prevent delinquency and substance abuse," said Hellenga.

"NYA can provide these programs with the funds raised from another successful bowl-a-thon.'

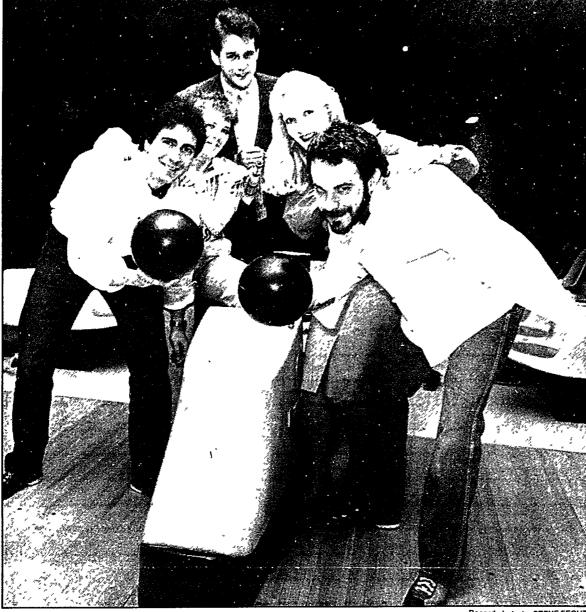

Again this year, the NYA Bowl-a-thon will feature celebrity emcees. Returning as hosts are Gary Cubberly, host of P.M. Detroit on WJBK-TV 2, and Keith Famie, chef at Raphael's in the Sheraton Oaks. They will be joined this year by Tom MacKinnon, chef at MacKinnon's restaurant in Northville.

Bowlers from civic organizations, the city council, city administration, Novi Police Department and the Novi schools along with other Novi residents will be competing for highest scores and the most money pledged.

Anyone interested in bowling or sponsoring a bowler is asked to call NYA offices at 349-8398.

NYA is an organization made up of citizen volunteers, assisted by profestional staff, whose purpose is to help youth and their families deal with problems and thus help prevent juvenile delinquency.

The group hopes to achieve its goals by sponsoring educational and recreational activities for youth. NYA programs include summer camp scholar-ships, a drop-in center for teens and parenting classes such as STEP and STEP/Teen. NYA also administrates The PLUS program in which adult volunteers are paired on a one-to-one

Rotary calendar will soon be available

Northville Rotary Club announces that its Northville Community Calendar has gone to press and will be available for sale in a few days.

The calendar will run from July 1, 1985, to June 30, 1986, Rotary reports, inasmuch as it also is a lottery calendar.

As well as listing functions of various Northville community organizations, the calendar offers opportunity of a $25 drawing for each day of the year with a bonus drawing of $300 at the end of each month. In addition, Scott Lenheiser reports for the club, as part of the July 4, 1986, celebration in Northville, a grand prize of $3,000 will be awarded.

Depicted on the calendar are hand-drawn sketches of selected houses in the City of Northville by C. Phelps Hines and vignettes of Victorian ladies.

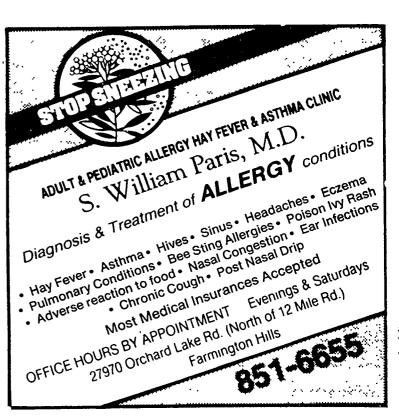

The calendar may be purchased from any Rotary member for $25. Written requests should be sent to the Northville Rotary Club, in care of First Presbyterian Church of Northville, 200 East Main.

An attachment card bearing the purchaser's name and calendar serial number will have been detached and stored for drawing purposes. All cards drawn will be returned to the barrel, Rotary officials explain, so it is possible to win multiple times. All state lottery license regulations have been complied with, they add.

Proceeds from the sale of the Northville Community Lottery Calendars will be used to benefit the local community through Northville Rotary projects. The Northville Rotary Club says it sees this calendar as a continuing project to be followed up each year with sales to begin May 1.

"It is an innovative way to support the Northville community, to know the activities of Northville organizations and perhaps to win extra money," states Lenheiser for the club.

Geake also praised Blanchard for his legislators are citing Blanchard's previous rejection of Plymouth Center as a potential prison site. On February 16, 1984, Blanchard issued a press release abandoning plans for a Plymouth Center conversion that had capacity with the legitimate but competing interest in local development projects that increase the community's tax base.'

That decision led state corrections of ficials to return to an earlier plan to construct a new, prototype regional prison at Five Mile and Beck, adjacent to Phoenix Correctional Facility. That prison, since named Scott Regional Correctional Facility, is now under construction and slated for completion next

Deed to Center property may prohibit prison

By KEVIN WILSON

Any plan to convert Plymouth Center for Human Development to a state prison, as Detroit Mayor Coleman Young suggested last week, would likely run into the same problem that has been delaying sale of the property to private interests.

State Representative Gerald H. Law (R-Plymouth Township) introduced legislation in February calling for sale of the land only to find there is a "reverter clause" in the deed to the property.

Law's bill has been pending ever since while state officials investigate their legal authority to sell the proper-

The clause, a normal one in such cases, was included when Wayne County transferred the property to the state in 1957. Under its terms, ownership is to revert to Wayne County if the state ever uses the property for any purpose other than mental health treatment for children.

"We're trying to get it cleared up so we can get it sold," said township supervisor Susan Heintz. "Nobody knew about it until just recently. We've got to find somebody in the county to sign off on it.

The land was deeded to the state by the now-defunct Wayne County Board of Supervisors. County government has gone through two structural incarnations since then, and Heintz said it is an open question whether the board of commissioners or the county executive now has authority to waive the provisions of the reverter clause.

Heintz said it was "unfortunate" the reverter clause had not been discovered earlier, noting it may have been useful in late 1983 and early 1984 when the township was fighting the state corrections department proposal to use Plymouth Center as a prison site.

That proposal was subsequently abandoned on the order of Governor James Blanchard, who said he was acting on the recommendations of the departments of correction and of management and budget.

Law mentioned the reverter clause as one possible tool in any renewed fight against prison siting at Plymouth Center, but noted that the governor did not support Young's proposal and said he did not expect the state to seriously consider adding a fourth prison to this

The reverter clause would also appear to block the state department of mental health's plan to use the Plymouth Center 'A' building as part of a plan to reduce crowding at Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital by mov. ing some patients.

The clause specifically states that the mental health care offered on the site must be "for children" if the state is to retain ownership.

Heintz said she hopes the reverter clause issue can be settled rapidly so that the land can be sold. Several developers have expressed an interest in the land, she said, and some have been waiting patiently since State Senator R. Robert Geake (R-Northville) introduced a sale bill in late

Geake's heavily-publicized bill was deleted from the legislative agenda near the end of the session in December as legislators rushed to complete other

Charter township changes are outlined

By KEVIN WILSON

 Township attorney Nels Carlson attended Monday's meeting to outline the changes that will occur in township government as a result of incorporation as the Charter Township of Northville.

Carlson pointed out that the charter for an incorporated township is one prescribed by state law and included in the enabling statute. The form of the government may be unincorporated (that is, returned to its previous general law status) only by referendum vote after four years as a charter township.

The most immediate and visible change is likely to be the alteration of the fiscal year — from an April 1 to March 31 period, the township moves to a calendar year fiscal operation.

The township now has 60 days in which to prepare and adopt an interim budget ending December 31 of this year. That budget will be barely under way before mandatory procedures toward adoption of the 1986 budget must begin.

As a charter township, the budget adoption procedure is more formal. Department heads must present proposed spending plans for the following year by August 1 of each year. The supervisor then must present a proposed budget to the township board by September 1, and the board must adopt its fiscal year budget by November 1.

There are other charter requirements regarding what information the budget must include and requiring quarterly financial statements from the treasurer.

In other matters, Carlson told the board that procedures will continue as they were unless the charter specifies something different.

As an example, he cited the salaries for township trustees. As a general law township, the board has established

'You may have to do something more (to get annexation protection).'

- Nels Carlson Township attorney

trustee salaries on a yearly or monthly basis. As a charter township, payments to trustees can be set on a monthly basis, but trustees will not collect their pay unless they attend the township board meeting that month.

A more visible change will be that the charter requires two readings of any proposed ordinance prior to adoption. A general law township can adopt an ordinance at the same meeting at which it is introduced. This is forbidden by charter and final adoption of an ordinance must occur at a later meeting. Proposed ordinances must be published prior to adoption "at least once," though Carlson noted that publication of a synopsis version meets this requirement.

Carlson also pointed out provisions of the charter which allow the township to adopt by ordinance a compensation commission. Such commissions establish the salaries of township elected officials and their determinations are final unless rejected by a twothirds vote of the township board.

He also noted a provision allowing charter townships to designate a "superintendent" who would be assigned many of the administrative duties of the three top elected executives. Trustee Richard Allen characterized the superintendent position as a "strong manager," adding, "I don't think you'll see any support from this board for that."

Treasurer Richard Henningsen said the township intends to hire a new township manager, not a superintendent

Trustee James Nowka questioned Carlson regarding the protection from annexation, noting a clause that Nowka said "makes this no better than what we have now."

But Carlson and township supervisor Susan Heintz both said the state boundary commission considers more seriously the annexation of a charter township than it does parcels of general law township. In many cases, annexation procedures are more formalized if the township is incorporated than if it is

One portion of the charter exempts certain townships from annexation except under strictly defined circumstances. Northville Township evidently falls under the provisions of this exemption except for one item — it requires that the township provide solid waste disposal (trash pick-up) either itself or by contract.

Carlson was instructed to research court law regarding the exemption. He suggested that the township's licensing and regulation of private trash collection services operating within its boundaries might be defined as a "contract" for legal purposes.

"You may have to do something more, I don't know," Carlson told the board. "If it is something you are concerned about, it could be researched."

Heintz said the township likely would not select a single solid waste disposal service. If further action is needed, she said, it might be to formalize the licensing provision and make sure of strict enforcement.

must be voted on by the electorate.

Incorporation as a charter township is perceived as a method of strengthening a township's legal position in fighting annexation attempts. Consideration of charter township status was renewed early this year after the city declined a request to extend water service to a Baseline Road industrial concern, suggesting annexation of the parcel as an alternative.

Annexation concerns have moved the township to the brink of adopting charter status several times in the past decade, but the property tax issue always put a halt to it. A vote of the board for incorporation in 1979 failed and periodic discussions since resulted no action as trustees shied away from the five mill authorization.

Senior Village project on hold, leases conflict

Plans for construction of a senior citizens' village on the grounds of the abandoned Wayne County Child Development Center have stalled—again.

For the third consecutive month, Northville Elderly Development Company has asked the township planning commission to table consideration of zoning amendments designed to accommodate the development. The amendments had been on the agenda for Tuesday's meeting of the commission.

Township supervisor Susan Heintz said there is an open question regarding the terms of the company's lease as it relates to plans to construct ,"market rate" housing open to all age groups on the site.

Wayne County leased the property to the quasi-governmental Wayne County Economic Development Corporation (WCEDC), including a clause demanding that the land be used only for senior citizen housing.

WCEDC subsequently sub-let the property to Northville Elderly Development, but this lease spelled out development plans that included 600 units of market rate housing.

"Obviously, there is a conflict between the leases. It makes no sense for us to go forward with zoning changes if the lease isn't even settled," said Heintz.

The zoning amendments are primarily aimed at allowing the market rate housing, which is not a permitted use under the special RME (multi-family residential, elderly) zoning class assigned the property. The county lease to WCEDC cites the RME zoning provisions as they existed in 1981 as the determinant of what may be constructed on the property.

"It's possible the lease will have to go back before the Wayne County Board of Commissioners," Heintz said.

In addition, Heintz said she is concerned about the company's plans regarding financing. Under certain forms of government financing, a non-profit group owns and operates the elderly housing units, which become non-taxable.

Another open question regards the land value. Since the land is still county-owned and leased (a 99-year ground lease) to the developer, township officials are unsure about whether the land itself would be tax-

Benefit projections for the project have always assumed that all land and buildings would be subject to property taxes and subsequently projected more than $2 million a year would be contributed to school, county, township and community college tax revenues.

"That's all unsettled now," said Heintz. "We're going to be pushing to make the whole thing taxable. That's about all we can do right now."

Heintz met with WCEDC and company representatives in the past week to monitor progress of the project and make the township's desires known.

Water department may finance project

Township trustees may soon recommend that the water and sewer department finance construction of water lines in the Grandview Acres subdivision from its own funds, to be reimbursed by a later bond issue.

Such projects are generally financed through municipal revenue bonds, but township clerk Georgina Goss has recommended that the Grandview Acres project bond issue be done in conjunction with the planned larger bond issuance to finance the Haggerty Road that the township's bond counsel has advised that bonds should not be issued closer than three months apart in order to get the best rates.

Goss told the board Monday night

The Haggerty Road sewer program is on hold pending the results of a legal challenge raised by owners of the Dun Rovin Country Club. Goss said current projections are that the legal challenge will be settled within three to four months, clearing the way for construction of the massive project.

It would be best, she suggested, if the Grandview Acres project were funded in the same bond issue. But given the uncertainty of legal action, the Grandview Acres project will likely be ready for construction before the revenue from Haggerty Road bonds can be

The estimated $380,000 cost of the water service extension could be financed by the reserved fund of the water and sewer department with the township pledging to pay interest on the money invested, Goss said. Since property owners within the special assessment district will be paying interest one the money, there is no cost to the township, treasurer Richard Henningsen advised.

The board did not take any formal action on Goss' recommendation, stating instead a preference to wait until construction bids for the project had been solicited and a contractor chosen.

Vehicle break-ins reported

In the township...

Items valued at $725 were stolen from a 1983 Thunderbird parked at a Five Mile business sometime between 6:30 and 7:30 p.m. April 25, township police report.

The complainant told police unknown subject(s) smashed the driver's side window to gain access to the vehicle. Officers at the scene found a large rock on the front passenger side seat. A radar detector valued at $250 was stolen from the visor on the passenger side. Other items stolen included a briefcase valued at $275 and a $175

Olympus camera.

A five-shot Smith-Wesson revolver valued at $300 was stolen from an Innsbrook residence sometime between 6 a.m. April 8 and 8:30 a.m. April 23, police report.

The complainant came to the Northville Township police station to report the theft and said he noticed no signs of forced entry.

The complainant told police the gun was in a nightstand drawer at the head of the bed. He further said he had no reason to look for the gun until April 23, when he noticed it missing.

A radar detector valued at $250 was stolen from 1985 Oldsmobile parked at Oasis golf center sometime around 8:30 p.m. April 24, police report.

The complainant told police unknown person(s) stole the radar detector from the driver's visor. No damage to the vehicle was found.

Our Opinions

Model of 108 Group proposal, seen from Center Street (east) side

Downtown building would help, not hurt

One would think the reaction to plans to put a big, classy building on top of the parking lot at Center and Main would be one of universal relief — relief that at last the underdeveloped parcel would serve a purpose appropriate to its location. Instead, it has prompted criticism from some that it is going to turn Northville into "another Birmingham."

People in Birmingham probably would get a big chuckle out of that. They have a fine city, one which integrates homes, businesses and public buildings with surprising grace. Just about any suburban city would be well advised to imitate Birmingham.

Northville, of course, isn't just any suburban city. Just as Williamsburg, Virginia, is better off not trying to become Toronto, so Northville probably is better off not trading in its irreplaceable old-fashioned charm for new-fashioned charm.

For that reason, we can't say the hearts of city planning commissioners Jay Wendt, John Hardin and David Totten aren't in the right place. Wendt and Hardin in particular have qualms about The 108 Group's proposal to erect a multiple-use building which would add a new element to the city's skyline.

But let's look at that proposed building. Take away the 16-foot roof peaks — put there in a conscious effort to help the building blend in with its surroundings — and it is hardly taller than the buildings which stand on the other three corners of the Center and Main intersection. Where it faces Main Street, it will be shorter than the buildings on the other three corners.

It's also not bad looking. Brick exterior. Wrought iron details. Walkways which interrupt the building's verticality. Attractive use of glass and lighting. Setbacks designed to accommodate shrubs, trees and benches. The way the project would screen the view of the old Winner's Circle building probably would improve the appearance of downtown Northville more than anything that has been done in years.

Especially compared to the community impact created by an institution the scale of Northville Downs, The 108 Group's proposal looks positively modest. It is not going to turn Northville into Birmingham. It might make some Birmingham residents wish they lived in Northville, however.

All of those considerations are aesthetic, of course, and so they are the most subjectively evaluated. But of the project's economic impact, there is little question. Successfully completed, the project would be positive. Enormously positive.

Northville residents already pay a high price for their small-town atmosphere, and that price is going to get higher. Development pressures are increasing in neighboring communities, and so will residential property values — and taxes. One way to help relieve local residents of an increasingly unreasonable tax burden is to allow the downtown business area a chance to grow naturally.

And in this case, the growth would indeed be natural. The people directly involved with the project are not outsiders who couldn't care less what happens to the building once it goes up. Paul Hoffmann and John Standish, the duo behind The 108 Group, have run businesses in downtown Northville for some time and intend to remain here.

The project's architect, Walter Coponen, is a longtime city resident who lives and works practically in the shadow of where the building would be erected. Both Coponen and Hoffmann plan to retain control of its future design and usage. That gives the building Northville roots. Wherever the financing comes from, decisions about what businesses and what people move in will be made by individuals who are part of the city.

Our endorsement of The 108 Group's proposed multi-use project as presented is wholehearted and enthusiastic. We are eager to have it for a neighbor. We urge city council to approve the project concept with equal enthusiasm.

Expand city's CBD

While it has prompted the most conversation, The 108 Group's proposed building isn't the only issue greatly affecting downtown Northville right now.

Northville City Council must decide whether to accept a recommendation from city planners that Northville's Central Business District be expanded to include the houses on the south side of Cady between Center and Church, and the houses lining the east side of Center between Cady and the Northville Downs parking lot.

For many of the same reasons we support The 108 Group's proposal, we support the addition of those parcels to the Central Business District. The property will expand Northville's business tax base and continue the very successful revitalization of the downtown area.

In addition, the rezoning is fair to property owners who were hand-cuffed by the property's former "Race Track and Related Uses" zoning. Under that zoning restriction, development was confined to either residential or racetrack (presumably parking) purposes. The rezoning in effect forces Northville Downs' owners to bid competitively if they want to buy the land, which is as it should be. It's not the city's prerogative to give the racetrack special treatment.

What is Young's plan?

By Kevin Wilson

What is Coleman Young doing?

That's the question on the lips of politicos from Detroit to Lansing this week as they try to analyze the Detroit mayor's latest outburst of anti-suburban rhetoric. Shortly after leaving a meeting with Governor James Blanchard April 23, Young started muddying the waters of the prison site selection process.

Young says the state needs more prison beds now and that suburban officials in general, and these from Plymouth and Northville specifically, are not cooperating. He practically demands that the abandoned Plymouth Center for Human Development be turned into a prison, despite Blanchard's statements that conversion is "not realistic."

From that base, the mayor is quoted saying he will abandon efforts to find two prison sites within his city unless 2,000 additional beds are found in the suburbs. Presumably, he means 2,000 more than the 1,400 that those "uncooperative" Northville and Plymouth communities already have agreed to accept. That 1,400 figure is 300 more than would be housed in Detroit if and when Young ever comes through on his pledge to find two sites.

The question is, what good does it do Young to blame the suburbs for the prison overcrowding problem? Whatever else one may think of him, it must be acknowledged that Young is a smart and shrewd politician — he likely would not be pounding away at this theme had he not previously calculated some benefit to himself or his city from doing so.

Of course, Young's recent enlightenment to the crime issue is one apparent reason. If Detroit is actually going to start doing something about crime in the streets, particularly if it is to do so before Young stands for reelection, it needs prison capacity immediately. New prisons constructed in Detroit likely wouldn't open for three years, but conversions of places such as Plymouth Center could be under way before election day. That may also explain Young's frustration that the Plymouth-Northville area likely will succeed in allowing "only" three prisons and in having capacity at DeHoCo limited to 650 inmates when he wants 1,000.

What this doesn't explain is the inflammatory rhetoric or the timing. By all accounts, Young's outburst has slowed down state acquisition of DeHoCo — the Plymouth-Northville folks had reached agreement with the state. If the need for prison cells was all that was on Young's mind, he'd have been better off keeping quiet and taking credit for the DeHoCo sale.

Which prompts the speculation about Young's motives. What else is at stake? Ask out here and you get different, pure guesswork, answers. One person I spoke with suggested Young just "hates white people." Another suggested Young may be setting up a trade-off — he'll shut up about Plymouth Center in exchange for support on something else.

Neither rings true. My own pet theory goes like this: Young is finding it harder than he thought to find two prison sites in Detroit. In fact, making good his promise to do so would likely cost him some votes. Atop that, in selecting the first site Young said he wouldn't force the prison down people's throats if they objected. Hearing that, they naturally objected. Combined with the rumor that Young's aims include a landslide reelection victory (just winning isn't good enough) and you begin to catch my drift.

Young needs out of his promise to build prisons in Detroit, but wants to present a strong anti-crime posture. At the least, he needs to delay Detroit prison site designation until after the votes are counted. Scenario: Young is defeated on suburban prisons, so he abandons the Detroit site search. The state gives him 90 days' notice, then picks the sites for itself. Or the 90 days expire after election day and Young picks sites just before the deadline, but after the votes are in. And blames the suburbs for all the problems along the way.

Just remember, the threat to abandon Detroit prison siting came after Young met with the governor. And Blanchard started talking about the 90-day provisions at the same time. This could be fun to watch.

After the fact

By BHILLP JEROME

Well, the new neighbors have arrived. Completely moved in. And strolling around their yard on weekends just like we do.

You may recall that several weeks ago I confessed that my wife had caught me spying on the newcomers while they were unloading their truck — trying to figure out just what type of family was moving in next door.

And I'm happy to report that they seem like real nice people. Young professional couple with a couple of kids...little ones who knocked on our door the day after they arrived to ask if we had any little ones who could come out to play.

At least I thought they were real nice people until Mrs. New Neighbor stopped me Sunday as I was mowing the lawn.

"You always pick up the grass clippings after you mow?" she asked, observing the spiffy grass catcher bouncing merrily along behind my riding mower.

I told her that I did. And then she said something that sent chills up and down my spine.

"Andy does, too," she said, speaking of her husband.

"Oh, yes," she continued, "Andy's a real fanatic when it comes to mowing the lawn. He never mows it twice in the same direction. If he mows north and south one week, he'll mow east and west the next. It's better for the grass that way; you get a nicer lawn."

Just what I need, I thought — competition in next door.

I pride myself on the appearance of my lawn. I try to mow regularly — twice a week during the spring, if necessary. And I really do pick up the grass clippings. Don't want them to develop into thatch that chokes the voung grass.

But I don't mow opposite directions every other week. And I don't go crazy if my trusty old grass catcher doesn't pick up every erant blade

But it's obvious that I'm going to have to clean up my act, as well as my lawn. If Ol' Andy thinks his lawn's going to look any better than Phil Jerome's green carpet, he's got his work cut out for him. Ahhh, competition in the suburbs.

Residents oppose further expansion of prisons here

copy sent to The Northville Record of a letter addressed to State Representative Gerald Law, Senator R. Robert Geake, Northville Township Supervisor Susan Heintz, Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen, Plymouth City Manager Henry Graper and Northville Mayor Paul Vernon.

The board of directors of Highland Lakes is concerned about the increase in the number of institutions and related inmates. One third of Northville Township property is currently used for institutional purposes (all within a five square mile area of the 16.8 square miles which comprise Northville Township.)

Highland Lakes Condominium Association is comprised of 691 units with approximately 2,000 registered voters. We are concerned about the potential erosion of our property values that will result when our security and safety are threatened.

Representing the interests of Highland Lakes' residents, the Highland Lakes Board of Directors urges adoption of a legislative ban on any additional public institutions, state or county, in Northville Township. This ban should prohibit penal institutions or correctional facilities of any kind within the township.

Your support in preventing further threats to our safety and property values is appreciated and expected.

Sincerely, Joseph G. Sattler, President Highland Lakes Condominium Association

Chamber backs school plan for child care

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following letter is a copy provided to The Record of one sent to Northville school superintendent George Bell, dated April 15.

Dear Dr. Bell,

Recently a coalition of nursery school owners serving the Northville Community asked to address the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce regarding the Northville School's plans to establish a nursery school in the Moraine building.

The Chamber Board understood their concerns, but at the same time, we had to address the issue of free enterprise and the school's responsibility to the Northville taxpayers to keep the Moraine building operational. The Chamber Board supports the School Board's decision providing the price structure for enrollment is such so as not to put other nursery schools in a non-competitive position.

The Chamber Board would have preferred to see a private business locate in the Moraine building. Since there were no other viable offers, we feel compelled to endorse the School Board's decision as long as the Moraine nursery school is comparable to other schools in the area.

Sincerely, Charlotte A. Spaman, President Northville Community Chamber of Commerce

Fire brought out best

To the Editor:

We wish to express our appreciation to the Northville Township Fire Department for their prompt response to the fire at our home on Fonner Court "first truck in seven minutes, tanker in 12 minutes" - and for their help in containing the fire basically in our gargage - then for caring enough to come back to check on "how we were doing." Since we were on vacation, we do not know what everyone did for us, but we do know that Tim Keiser called the fire report in, that Mr. Anderson of Northville Clock Shop was passing by and started pounding on our doors yelling "fire," that Jack and Carol Mann did so much for us and also called the fire report in. We are very grateful to you.

Also we wish to thank Ron Barnum and Paul Folino for their help.

To our friends and neighbors who prayed for us, who called, and sent notes and showed in so many ways your concern, we can never thank you

And most of all we thank God, who did a mighty work and from whom comes all our strength.

I've watched those "Reach out and touch" Ma Bell and AT&T commercials and felt I was in semi-communication with Daughter on the West Coast - at least those monthly billings indicated I was trying. However, I knew the long-distance "touch" wasn't working the weekend I asked where she was planning to vacation this year.

From Seattle, which boasts a colony of at least a half-dozen area young people who have decided to make city on Puget Sound home, Robin already had been to Hawaii, Alaska and China. Previously, she had toured Central America. Still, I didn't expect the response of "Nepal" when I mentioned vaca-

As she talked about Katmandu and the Himalayas, I knew it was time for a visit. Intuition was right, and the visit was great. Seattle might be compared with San Francisco: on a smaller scale, it's a seaport town with Pike's Peak market a daily attraction for seafood, produce and wares of craftspersons. Lining the waterfront are import shops. antiques warehouses and eateries.

The city itself wraps around lakes Union and Washington and is worth a visit if only for such seafood restaurants as Hiram's on the Locks and Ivar's. Back to Nepal. Robin was serious. An ice pick and mountain climbing hard hat on her dining room table represented one reason. The young woman who goes to her computer analyst job in Evan Picone suits comes home to don the hard hat and other mountain climbing gear. She spends weekends scaling the Olympic Mountains which are only an hour or so away by car and are a major attraction for the young career people settling there.

As she talked of climbing the lower reaches of Mt. Everest on the border of Nepal and Tibet, it was apparent that the highest mountain in the world is the ultimate goal of a climber. I might never understand the lure of this sport but was able to realize this daughter has prepared for it. She mentioned the courses and instruction she has received. daughter's desire to view this splendor.

While she enthusiastically detailed her plans - "with sightseeing in Thailand if I have time" - I was exploring how to include Victoria, the beautiful garden city in British Columbia, in my week's visit. I wanted to try the new hydrofoil that had gone into operation four days earlier. A Boeing product, the hydrofoil links Victoria with both Seattle and Vancouver, Instead of a four or five hour ferry ride through Puget Sound, the hydrofoil flys on the water at 50 miles an hour to make the trip in less than two hours. The hydrofoil seats 250 passengers and looks much like an airplane inside. Even had stewardesses.

Because the hydrofoil leaves in the evening from Victoria, it was possible to have traditional high tea at the stately Empress Hotel overlooking the harbor. High tea there is reputed to "out-British the British" as waiters and waitresses set up linen cloth covered tables in the large lobby. It is served in silver pots with the crumpets arriving under a silver-domed dish to be followed with tea sandwiches and tarts. If you go, be sure to make reservations; they are required even if you're staying at the Empress.

I don't think Robin was too impressed with my recital of the tea ritual when I returned to Seattle, but she was interested in the hydrofoil's smooth performance. I think we may have more in common than the fascination for the Taj Mahal.

Women trackers bag a Tiger Relays runner-up trophy

Claiming four first-place finishes — In the 440 relay, Kristy Lenaghan, more than any other team — Northville Susie Rahimi, Erin Holmberg and brought home a runner-up trophy from the Tiger Relays at Belleville High School Saturday.

The Mustangs accumulated 46 points, second only to Plymouth Canton's 60, and ahead of the remaining nine teams at the meet, including Western Lakes teams Plymouth Salem and Farm-

Senior co-captain Cindy Panowicz was named Athlete of the Meet for her participation in all four first-place relays. As Northville Coach Ann Turnbull put it, "Everybody ran great.

That's why we won (second place)."
"Great" was the word, all right. Northville's 440, 880 and mile relay teams posted school records in first-place finishes at the meet.

Panowicz clocked a 52.89 to break the old Mustang mark of 53.0.

In the 880 relay, Lenaghan, Holmberg, Karen Stinson and Panowicz clocked a 1:50.1, breaking the old mark of 1:51.3.

In the mile relay, Stinson, Pam Cavanaugh, Lynn Bills and Panowicz total of 14'2" — almost six inches more turned in a 4:13.7 to eclipse the previous record of 4:18.0.

"I expect those four girls will be training hard," Turnbull pointed out. "I think we have a chance to go to state in the mile relay, and they can only im-

The Mustang four-mile relay team placed fourth overall, with Wendy Nuechterlein, Jennifer Goshorn, Shari Thompson and Ann Griffith teaming up for a 24:35 timing. In the two-mile relay, Jennifer Trausch, Nuechterlein, Sue Blanchard and Griffith turned in a 10:51.7, good for a fifth-place finish.

Plymouth Canton and Northville met two days before in a conference dual meet. Canton's advantage in depth and in field events lifted the Chiefs to a 90-38

The Chiefs swept discus and long jump and claimed first in shot put and high jump to take a commanding lead even before the running events began. Even a record-setting two-mile relay time of 10:41.0 turned in by Griffith, Nuechterlein, Blanchard and Cavanaugh couldn't win the event.

"Every time those four improve their time in that event, it'll be a new school record," Turnbull pointed out. "I expect we'll see that record fall some more times this year."

Northville picked up individual firsts from Griffith in the mile run (5:46.0), from Lenaghan in the 100 yard dash (12.1), and from Panowicz in the 110 yard hurdles (15.5) and 330 hurdles (47.0). All those times are bests for the Mustangs so far this year.

Northville's only other first came in the mile relay, with Stinson, Cavanaugh, Bills and Panowicz combining for a first-place time of 4:29.5.

Taking seconds for the Mustangs were Panowicz in high jump (5'0''), Stinson in the 440 with a personal-best time of 63.0, and Nuechterlein in the two-mile with a 13:15.0 clocking.

Thompson gave Northville a third place in shot put with a heave of 25'4".

Kris Marrone's personal best of 55.99 was good for third in the 330 hurdles. Lenaghan took third in the 220 with a time of 28.51; Blanchard was third in the 880 in 2:48.29; and Goshorn placed third in the mile with a time of 6:07.0.

Northville's next meet will be at home against division rival Farmington Harrison at 3:30 p.m. tomorrow.

In Monday's 5-2 win over Canton, the Mustangs swept the top three singles and the top two doubles matches.

Terry Michelitch remained unbeaten at first singles by dropping Canton's Paul Hathaway quickly, 6-2, 6-2. At second singles, Mark Reitenga defeated Tom Roggenbeck 6-3, 6-4, and at third singles brother Mike Reitenga posted a 6-3, 6-4 win over Mo Mayharoar.

At fourth singles, Doug Kamienecki struggled to a 6-7 (1-7 tie-breaker), 2-6 loss to Don Cavell.

David Kaminski and John Merrifield won a 6-3, 1-6, 6-4 battle over Canton's Paul Reed and John Overhall at first doubles, while Don Norton and Mike Tabaczynski took their second doubles match also in three sets, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1, over Steve Jones and Chris Koelsch.

At third doubles, Donn Hubbard and Kirk Morrison were narrowly edged by Mike Burg and Steve Scholl 1-6, 6-2, 5-7. Walled Lake Western on Friday was an almost too-easy victim. Northville pulled all six regular doubles players in favor of reserves and the reserves still trampled the inexperienced Warriors for a 7-0 win.

Only one match went three sets — Jeff Stewart and Mike Todd lost their first set against Western's Dan Nall and Stacey Shelly 2-6 before railying 7-5, 6-3. Michelitch, Mark Reitenga, Mike Reitenga and Kaminsky won the first through fourth singles matches in easy straight-set fashion.

At first doubles, Eric Gala and Dan Boland won 6-1, 6-1 over Western's Mickey Hanon and Lauren Earl. Avenish Bhavsar and David Hall topped Mike Kocias and Mike Wissick 6-2,

Spartans nip Mustang kickers in rematch

The spoils go to Livonia Stevenson.

Most expected the April 22 encounter between the undefeated Spartans and Northville - the first since the two squads met in last year's state championship soccer game - to be nothing short of a war.

And a war it was. Stevenson triumphed 1-0, scoring the game's lone goal with six minutes to play.

It wasn't a particularly pretty one. The ball skipped past a Northville defender and was picked up by a Spartan striker who punched it past Northville goalkeeper Tricia Ducker.

"I think the problem was that we got tired toward the end," said Northville Coach Stan Smalec. "It's a lot like the situațion we had when we played Stevenson early in the '84 season. I didn't leave the subs in long enough to get in the flow of the game, and you could tell our starters were getting realworn out by the end.

learned this time."

Smalec noted his team really had had no difficult challenges this season prior to the game against the Spartans. "I think we had a hard time adjusting

"I guess I'm like a mule. I should've after playing Harrison the week before," he said. "To go from a team that doesn't even get a shot off against you to going against Stevenson is a difficult adjustment to make.

"Actually, I'm kind of proud about how we handled ourselves. There wasn't anyone hanging their heads after the game. It was just a really good

It was one Northville could have won, too. Kerry Lenaghan, Jill Bemer and Michelle Cross all had good scoring opportunities in the first half. But several of their best chances were thwarted by some outstanding goaltending by Stevenson's Doreen Beagle.

The Mustangs held the edge early on, but the Spartans dominated late in the second half. A late-game Spartan flurry kept Tricia the busiest she has been all season. Ducker handled 21 shots on

"I saw some things we need to work on," Smalec said. "We're still experimenting on the front line. And we've got to do something to avoid getting caught offside quite so much.'

The Mustangs easily trampled Livonia Franklin 4-0 on Wednesday. With several players smarting from recent mild injuries, Smalec used the opportunity to get a look at all the players on his roster. But even his benchclearing couldn't help the Patriots, who mustered just three shots on goal.

Bemer broke the ice with a goal assisted by Kim Flading and Nicki Grasley at 14:02. Winger Robin Strunk followed with a pair of goals at 26:04 and 38:18 respectively.

Strunk's first goal resulted from a scramble in front of the Franklin net. Her second came on a breakaway set up by Kathy Korowin and Jenny Kuff-

The only second-half goal came off the foot of Jodi Smalec, and the freshman's first-ever varsity goal was a pretty one. Smalec broke in from the left wing and turned loose a left-footed shot from 18 yards out that beat the Franklin goalie cleanly.

The defense continued the fine play it turned in two nights before, with Korowin, Cheryl Spaman, Kuffner and Julie Nowka dominating their turf. Roxanne Serkaian and Grasley did a good job subbing at midfield against the Raiders, Coach Smalec noted.

softball teams in the Western Lakes conference last week - Plymouth Canton, Livonia Stevenson and Walled Lake Western - and came away with three losses, two by just one run.

"It's the tough part of the season right now," said Northville Coach Sue Heinzman. "The second half (of the season) we should be much improved.

'We lost one-run games to Stevenson, who's ranked seventh in the state, and to Western, and they're always good," she added. "So I'm optimistic. They were both good games and our kids played really well.

Really well except Monday, that is. Not much went right in Monday's 21-7 division loss to Canton. Starter Lori Housman and Lisa Crawford each had control problems, issuing 16 walks between them. Northville's defense sagged too, as five errors contributed to Canton runs. The Chiefs jumped ahead to stay with a seven-run second inning.

Until the sixth inning, Northville's only run came in the second on singles by Housman and Julie Cass, and Julie Kaestner's sacrifice fly.
In the sixth, the Mustangs posted six runs on five walks, a single, a run-scoring sacrifice fly by Vicki Robins and Mina Rahimi's two-run double in her first varsity at-bat. Cass and Jackie Matteucci each had two hits, while Kaestner, Dorothy Ziegler, Chris McGowan, Robins, and Kim Richcreek each collected one RBI. Against Stevenson Thursday, Spartan pitching ace Lisa Bokovoy slamed the door on Northville for the first four innings while her teammates picked up nine quick runs. Northville rallied off the Spartan bullpen for eight sixth-

DOUG KURTIS

Northville took on three of the best inning runs, and Bokovoy returned to the mound just in time to kill the rally and pick up a 9-8 win. In that wild sixth, the Mustangs collected five walks, and RBI singles by Richcreek and Housman to cut the lead to 9-3. On a double steal, Sue Schrader darted home from third to cut the Spartan lead to 9-4. That's when Bokovoy returned to the mound. But even the hard-throwing righthander had trouble putting out the fire. McGowan greeted her with a two-run double to make it 9-6 and Matteucci followed with an RBI single, trimming the lead to two runs.

With two runners aboard, Sue Schrader lifted a sacrifice fly to score : Matteucci. But the rally died there.

"If they hadn't brought Bokovoy back 👵 in, I'm sure we would have won," said ... Heinzman. "We were on a roll . . . Our defense started to catch on. Jackie . played very strong defense at shortstop; and Julie (Kaestner) made three outstanding catches in center field."

Housman went the distance to pick up the loss and did quite well, working seven innings, striking out one and its walking three. "They earned their runs, which is a big improvement," Heinzman said. "Making them hit the ball instead of walking in the runs is a 20, 1 100 percent improvement."

A three-run rally in the seventh landed the Mustangs one run shy of beating -Walled Lake Western in a 13-12 seesaw encounter Friday.

Mustang bats were ringing against & the Warriors, but the Warriors were hitting, too. Housman took the loss, allowing 17 hits, walking six and fanning

Down 13-9 in the sixth, the Mustangs rallied for three runs on singles by McGowan, Robins, Kaestner and Richcreek. But a baserunning error killed the rally. Robins led the charge for Northville with two doubles, a single and three RBI. Cass, Michele Siemasz and Kaestner each had two hits, with RBI going to Schrader, Siemasz (2), Kaestner (2), Richcreek (2), Dorothy; Ziegler and McGowan. Northville hosted an eight-team tour-

Northville (0-6, 0-3 WLAA) will travel

DRUG ALLERGIES

The chances of having an allergic reaction to a drug are less than 3 in a 100 for most drugs, and no chance at all for some of the drugs. In order for the reaction correctly to be called allergic, a compound called a hapten must be formed. For example, when penicillin interacts with certain body proteins, a hapten is formed. There are several different types of allergies involving drugs. Some of the more common include:

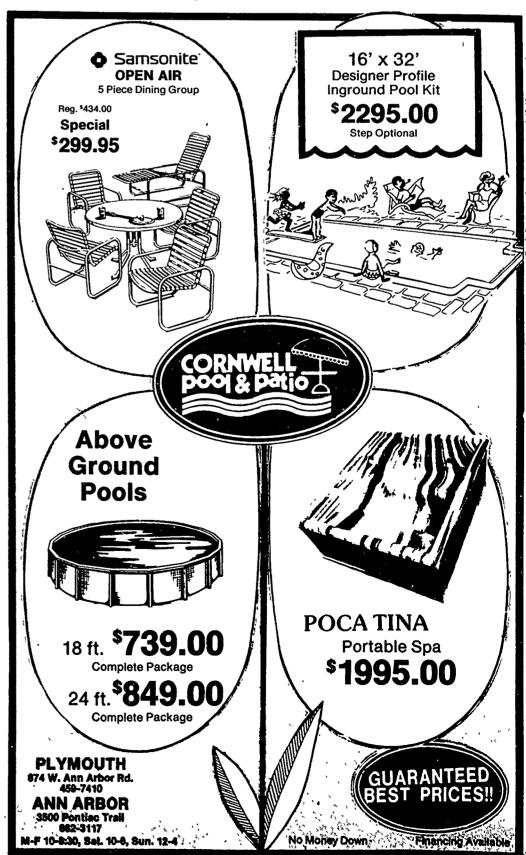

1. FIXED ERUPTIONS - Some oral drugs such as the barbiturates and tetracyclines cause an eruption at fixed or specific sites on the body.

2. CONTACT DERMATITIS - Some topical drugs sensitize the skin so that redness, blisters, and itching occur. The preservatives in some of these medicines actually cause the allergic

3. HIVES-Drugs which produce hives include penicillin, hydantoin-type seizure medicines, phenylbutazone, and some tranquilizers.

4. ANAPHYLAXIS . This is the most severe and potentially life-threatening type of drug allergy. In severe cases, the victim may experience asphyxiation. This reaction is rare.

Losses to conference rivals Plymouth Canton and and Livonia Stevenson last week took a little of the euphoria out of the Mustangs' 11-2 pasting of '84 state baseball champion Walled Lake Western on

But aside from the Mustangs' 5-2 loss to Canton Monday, Northville Coach Bob Frellick was by no means unhappy with last week's results.

"Our pitching is stronger and our offense is really starting to come around," said Frellick. "We started hitting against Stevenson and against Western we picked up right where we left off.

Indeed, after last week's trio of games, Northville Boosted its team batting average to .309 - a jump of more than 80 points over the first week of the

Tony Craig's five-hitter against Western was Northville's outstanding pitching performance of the young season. The junior righthander walked just wo, struck out 11 and allowed just one earned run for his second win in two appearances this season. Northville bats exploded for all 11 runs in the first two innings. The Mustangs turned a walk, RBI doubles by Chris Hauser and DH Jeff Bainbridge, John Norton's sacrifice fly, an error and a wild pitch into four first-inning runs.

In the seven-run second, nine Mustangs batted, ripping three singles and two doubles and picking up two walks. Northville picked up consecutive singles in the fourth and seventh, but Western choked off the rallies both times.

Second-baseman Hauser had a big day, going 4for-5, driving in two runs and scoring twice himself. Leadoff hitter Tom Ross and Bainbridge each reached base four times and scored twice, with Bainbridge driving in two runs. Mark Deal and Scott Peterson each added two singles to the 14-hit Mustang barrage.

In Wednesday's 8-6 loss to Stevenson, the Spartans broke a 6-6 deadlock with a pair of sixth-inning runs resulting from a single, triple and sacrifice fly.

Northville picked up two runs in the third on two wild pitches, a walk, a single and Hauser's two-RBI double. In the fourth, the Mustangs turned a pair of walks, a hit batter, Norton's RBI triple, Ross' tworun single and Peterson's RBI single into four runs.

Ross was 2-for-4 with two runs for the day, while Hauser was the only other Mustang with two hits.

Brett Loomis pitched all but the final out to take the loss, striking out five and walking seven. Five of Loomis' free passes came in the second, shortly after an afternoon downpour had rendered the ball too slippery to hurl accurately.

Northville's starter against Canton, Chris Willerer, was in trouble most of the day Monday en route to a 5-2 loss. The Chiefs had just five hits off Willerer, but the righthander issued eight bases on balls. The Chiefs stranded 10 baserunners in the Canton picked up a pair of runs in the third inning on a two-run homer, added two more runs in the fifth and one in the sixth.

Meanwhile, Northville batters managed just three hits, one of them right fielder Doug Hartman's second homer of the year, a solo blast in the second Northville threatened in the third on Deal's leadoff triple, but failed to score. In the seventh, the Mustangs put the first two runners aboard on walks, but brought only one run home.

The week's split toppled Northville's record to 3-3 (3-2 WLAA). The Mustangs are scheduled to host Plymouth Salem at 3:30 p.m. today, travel to Livonia Churchill for a divisional battle at 4 p.m. Friday, and host another division opponent, Farmington Harrison at 3:30 p.m. Monday, May 6.

Milford woman develops system for facial fitness

By MATT SEIDL

"Looking good" is without a doubt ne of the primary concerns of people coday. There's concentration on hair tyles, clothing styles and even what type of automobile one drives.

Most will agree, however, that hysical fitness is where "looking "ood" all begins. Keeping one's mid rection slim and all the other key spots firm is a worry of millions every day.

Just a few years back, the running "raze skyrocketed in popularity. Then, suddenly, aerobic exercise classes dominated peoples' interests. So what's the newest fitness idea?

Well, according to a Milford woman named Carol Ewing, much greater emphasis should be placed on facial

For several years, various face lifts have been the lone solution to ridding one's face of wrinkles and sagging. However, Ewing, a University of Michigan graduate who has done lengthy research on facial improvements, currently is offering an alternative to spending a five-figure sum of money for a lift surgery.

"The program I have deals with developing facial muscles, which in turn will improve one's skin such as eliminating wrinkles," said the 36-year-old White Lake Township resident, who is president of Facial Fitness Inc. in downtown Milford.

'The results can be the same as a face lift, but it's simply a great deal less expensive," she added. "The only drawback is that you have to do the 'vork yourself."

Ewing, who was born in Wyoming, has studied facial anatomy and various 10rms of facial exercise since 1978. It wasn't until 1983, however, that she developed a proprietary system of facial exercise using specially designed facial weights, and a unique method of skin protection to avoid deepening already existing lines.

'I'm what you would call a pioneer in this field," Ewing said. "There's no school that teaches these methods. It's been a long road, but I feel the work has paid off. I feel the program is solid."

Ewing remembers when she initially became intrigued with facial fitness.

'It was right after I had my second child and was getting this rather huge wrinkle right here," she said, pointing to the base of her nose between her 'eyes. "It really got to me for some

'So what I did was start to research it, and I just got deeper and deeper into the whole thing. I'm actually glad I got the wrinkle," she laughed.
As for the wrinkle, there's no sign of it any longer.

Ewing's program begins with a demonstration session. It's then up to the customer to decide whether or not he or she wishes to continue.

From there, Ewing and the customer discuss the facial fitness process, and then together analyze the customer's

"It's not like we sit down and I tell her how bad her face is," Ewing explained. What happens is the customer fills out a questionnaire and then we go over it together and discuss the problem

"You have to understand that this is a very sensitive subject with some people. The program here is very personal and confidential." Following the discussion, the next step is described by Ewing as "taping up." Small strips of surgical tape are placed in strategic spots on the forehead, nose and around the eyes. 'We then start on the problem areas,'

One of the main techniques used by Ewing is progression with small weights. The weights are taped to the face and remain on while various facial exercises are done. "The key to good skin is not dumping an $80 jar of cream on your face, but developing the facial muscles," Ewing asserted. Some people don't even know there are muscles in the face area.

Carol Ewing of Facial Fitness Inc. consults with a customer won't get the sagging and wrinkling. There's no cream in the world, though, that can cure wrinkles."

Ewing added that cream is helpful to the surface of skin, but the root of the problem is where most of the concentration needs to be.

Currently, most of Facial Fitness's customers have been women ranging in age from 20 to 60, but men can be treated as well. "A wrinkle on a man's face is a sign of being distinguished, though," Ewing joked.

Ewing, who recently filed for a patent, has high hopes for her company.
"I think this is going to launch an industry," she said. "My dream is for every aerobic facility, there will be a facial fitness facility as well.

'Nobody can stop the clock on life, but if you look good and feel good, it makes things a lot better. The possibilities are endless."

Michigan Saying "Yes" to Big Bucks

Text by Rich Perlberg/Art by Jeffrey Lapinski

Luring travelers to say yes to Michigan tourism is a growth industry. That's because the business of the increasingly competitive world of tourism is a vital cog in Michigan's sometimes fragile economy.

Whether they be beach-seekers from Brighton or schussers from Chicago, those seeking recreation and relaxation do more than populate tourist attractions. They also spend coins—lots of them.

Tourism added $11.4 billion to the state's economy in 1984, according to the Michigan Travel Bureau which uses a ripple effect formula based on the assumption that each tourist dollar turns over 1.78 times. "The money that is used to pay a motel bill is in turn used to buy supplies, pay the election bill, pay salaries, buy groceries," says Al Sandner, director of marketing and promotion for the travel bureau which is an arm of the state.

Commerce Department.

Such spending places tourism as the state's third most important industry, ranking behind manufacturing and agriculture. Nationwide, Michigan is among the top 10 states in tourist dollars.

"It's an extremely important tourist industry in Michigan," says Sandner. Dogged by a sluggish business climate, the State of Michigan began courting the tourist with a passion in the early '80s, using slick brochures and professionally-prepared television commercials as a major part of the "Say Yes to Michigan" campaign. Exact figures were not available, but Sandner says there was a significant increase in the tourist trade from 1981—the year before the campaign started—and 1983. Last year, an estimated 47 million tourists spent a night somewhere in Michigan. About half of those were from The tourist attractions vary with the desires of the tourists. There is the uniqueness of Mackinac Island, the excitement of the nation's fifth largest city, the history of a Greenfield Village, festival of festivals, the Midwest skiing mecca and the beauty of a fall color tour.

But for the outdoor enthusiasts the possibilities are nearly limitless. Start out with 3,200 miles of fresh water shoreline, more than any other state. Add to that the 19 million acres of forest which covers half of Michigan. Then throw in 11,000 inland lakes and 31,000 miles of rivers and streams.

"I can't think of any place else that can match all of those," says Sandner.

"That's what our TV ads for the summer are going to stres

Forget the Alamo. Forget Houston and Dallas. Forget Forget the entire Sun Belt.

The simple truth of the matter is that we have it all right here in Michigan.

The point is that Michigan is a pretty wonderful place to be. And if you haven't yet attended the Tulip Festival, the Bavarian Festival, the Cherry Festival or any of numerous other festivals, you're not taking advantage of the wonders this state has

Here are some suggestions:

Tulip Time: Few, if any, Michigan festivals are more famous than Holland's Tulip Festival, which this year is scheduled for May 14-17.

The biggest attraction during Tulip Time is the tulips themselves. The people of Holland plant hundreds of thousands of tulips along eight miles of Tulin Lanes." There's a lot more to do during Tulip Time, of course. Take in Tulip Island which has the only authentic Dutch windmill in the United States. There's also the Netherlands Museum, Delftware factory and wooden shoe factories.

Another special attraction is the performances of the Klompen Dancers - nearly 1,400 high school students performing Dutch folk dances in wooden shoes and authentic costumes from the various provinces of the Netherlands.

Highland Games: After you've gotten a taste of The Netherlands, you're ready' for Scotland. The Highland Festival and Games will be held in Alma on May 24-26.

The three-day festival begins Friday night with the broadsword dancing competition followed by a Scottish Pub and Dance at the Alma Armory.

Things get warmed up on Saturday with more Highland dancing, solo piping and drumming competitions, the Royal Scottish Country Dancers and all types of various Scottish athletic events. There's even a Border Collie Sheep Herding exhibition at noon on Sunday, followed by the U.S. Open Pipe Band Championships.

Bavarian Festival: Wilkommen to the Bavarian Festival (June 8-14), Frankenmuth's annual tribute to its European forefathers. Polkas, good German beer, all kinds of Bavarian food served up at Frankenmuth's world-famous restaurants.

The 27th annual Bavarian Festival parade with over 100 entries will kick things off on Sunday, June 9, at 1 p.m. And there are hundreds of things to do the rest of the week.

Much of the entertainment will take place in the Spas Platz (big tent). Featured performers include Myron .Floren, the popular accordion player from the Lawrence Welk Show, and Jerry Murad and his Harmonicats.

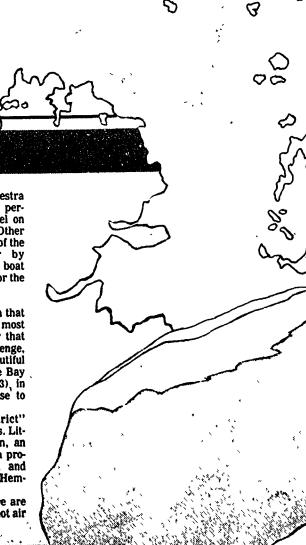

Lilac Festival: Believe it or not, some Michiganders have never been to Mackinac Island. The Lilac Festival (June 7-16) is a great excuse to remedy that situation if you're one of them.

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra will open the festival with a performance at the Mackinac Hotel on Friday, June 7, at 8:30 p.m. Other festival highlights include tours of the island, either on foot or by horsedrawn carriage; sunset boat cruises and the coronation ball for the Lilac Queen.

Historical Festival: Some claim that Little Traverse Bay is the most beautiful site in the state. Why that statement is open to challenge, nobody can deny that it's beautiful country and the Little Traverse Bay Historical Festival (June 21-23), in Petoskey is an excellent excuse to Petoskey's "Gaslight District" features chic shops and galleries. Little Traverse Historical Museum, an 1882 railroad station, contains a procupine quill basket collection and memorabilia of authors Ernest Hemingway and Bruce Catton.

As for the festival itself, there are quilt shows, antique shows and hot air balloons.

Newcomers list plans

By JEAN DAY

Ina Hacker was introduced as new president of Northville Newcomers at the group's spring membership tea April 18 at Mill Race Historical Village. She will take over the presidential duties from Judi Amatangelo at the end of this season.

Still upcoming are a mini home tour May 8 and the annual dinner dance May 18, which will be held at Botsford Inn.

President Hacker will be heading one of the community's largest social organizations with a current membership of 156 couples.

The membership tea was attended by 70 women who viewed a demonstration of flower arrangements for entertaining presented by Dewey Gardner and Louise Whittington of IV Seasons. Arrangements were created for picnics, baby and wedding showers, among others.

New board members for the coming year were introduced. They are Mary Kay Lambert, assistant newsletter editor; Susan DeBolt, membership, who may be called at 349-8767; Leasa Carney, interest groups; Nancy Baidas, art; Patty Kondratko, treasurer; Teri Farhat, vice president; Kathy Neumaier and Sue Hart, ladies day events; and Kathy Arenz and Christine Knapp, couples' events.

Newcomers taking dinner dance reservations

Reservations are being taken through Thursday for the Newcomers dinner dance to be held May 18 at Botsford Inn. Playing for dancing will be the band, "Breezin".

Christine Knapp is taking reservations at $38 a couple; she may be called at 348-1279. This event is open to members, alums and guests.

Mini home tour's an instant success

The 50 reservation limit set for Newcomers' tour of four local homes was reached within two days after announcement of the popular event, reports Sandy LeGrant. From 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. May 8 the lucky ones with reservations will tour four homes of varied decor before lunching at the Magic Pan Restaurant at Twelve Oaks.

Homes that will be on view are the Robert Daniel residence on Five Mile; the contemporary home of the Dr. John O'Dells on West Main; the country home of the Kevin Clarks in Lexington Commons; and the John Becker home in Edenderry.

The Daniels' historic home was moved to its present site from Haggerty Road when Schoolcraft College was built and restored by its owners. Bob Daniel is a past president of Northville Historical Society.

The home of John and Bobbie O'Dell is a contemporary with a two-story great room. It was built about 20 years ago by local builder Tony Bauss. "It's a country house" is the way Mrs. LeGrant describes the home of Kevin and Linda Clark. She adds that the home of John and Ilene Becker is "eclectic contemporary.

With the biyearly home tour which was sponsored for almost two decades by the Women's Association of First Presbyterian Church and the Northville Historical Society discontinued, it's not surprising the Newcomer tour was booked immediately.

Cooperative Preschool taps new officers

Mary Rupley was named president of the Northville Cooperative Preschool at the annual election meeting April 3.

Other officers for the 1985-86 year are Karen Sutton, first vice president; Marie Carlson, second vice president; Mary Reece, secretary; Kris Billings, treasurer: Debbie Buker, editor of "Kid Bits"; and Melissa Dore, membership chairperson who may be reached at 455-4460.

Michigan's selling its neighbors on attractions

The Michigan advertising strategy includes aggressive marketing in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota and, to a lesser extent, St. Louis and Kentucky.

Chicago, whose residents have made "Michigan vacations a tradition," is the single most important market for the Travel Bureau, says Sandner. Chicagoans are historically attached to Lake Michigan," he says.

Michigan is a nice place to visit, even if you live here and the marketing plan includes state residents. In addition to boosting the tourist trade, the campaign also improves hometown attitudes about Michigan.

"I think it builds a certain amount of pride when you see a real knockout ad about your home," says Sandner, adding that the campaign "projects a positive image of Michigan. People who live here are realizing what a unique place we have.

The sell Michigan approach has other uses besides tourism. Business and industry use Travel Bureau material for employment recruitment purposes and for employees who are transferred to the Wolverine State.

But the main focus is the tourist especially with nearby locales fetchingly inviting tourists to "Wander Indiana," "Escape to Wisconsin," visit the "Happy State" of Illinois, or travel to Ontario ("Friendly, familiar, foreign and near").

Michigan more than holds its own, says Sandner. "As far as I know it has worked," he says, adding that a comprehensive research project is in the than perfect..."

Sandner says the emphasis on Michigan may also counteract some of the bad-mouthing that comes, ironically, from the state's own residents.

"In a lot of ways we've been so spoiled," he suggests. "We take a lot for granted. Then, when something is less be ready to come back.

Sandner has a ready response for those critical of his home state. "I tell them, 'If you think somewhere else is so darn great, go there and then talk to me

A year or two later, he says, they will

Church Women United plan May Fellowship Day

An ecumenical worship experience open to all interested women of the community is planned for May Fellowship Day next Friday, May 3, by Church Women United. The annual event that brings Christian women from many traditions together to address their social concerns will be held at 10 a.m. at Northville United Methodist Church, Eight Mile at

This year's theme, "Our Piece of the Action," sponsors report, is designed to challenge church women (who traditionally are involved in caring for victims of social inequities) to deal with root causes and to become directly involved in action that brings about social change.

Sherry Springer, a peer counselor at the Women's Resource Center at Schoolcraft College, will speak on "Family Instability Through Broken

Michigan Church Women United's annual state assembly was held in Pontiace April 18-20.
The theme was "Changing Families — Unchanging God."
Anna Bell Gotts, Dorothy Carey, Georganne Spindler, Judy Somershoe and Sharon Buell attended from the area and report noted speakers included Bishop Judith Craig, Dr. Doris Younger, who is general national director, and Lieutenant Governor Martha Griffiths.

They participated in workshops on such subjects as, "Grieving One Day at a Time," "Parenting Teenagers," "Television and the Family" and "Child Abuse."

They report that Church Women United works closely with such other organizations as Church World Service, CROP, WICS (Women in Community Service) and United Nations.

British expert views family as critical in childhood

By ANN CHOWDHURY

A firm belief that family influences ilay a major role in mental health bolstered by both clinical experience and documented research studies formed the basis for a lecture, "Family Influences on Personality Development," by a world leader in the field last month at the Marquis Theater.

Mental health practitioners packed the Northville theater to hear the spry. 78-year-old John Bowlby, M.D., Sc.D., from Great Britain, main speaker for this year's Dubo-Rabinovitch lecture series sponsored by the Hawthorn Center Association.

Bowlby is Honorary Consultant Psychiatrist at the Tavistock Clinic, condon, England, where he headed the Children and Parent Department from 1946 to 1968, and a past president of the International Association of Child Psychiatrists.

He is an expert in relationships between infants and parents, and the impact of these relationships on personalidevelopment and psychological disturbances. His morning speech generated an avalanche of questions which he enthusiastically tackled in the afternoon of the March 20 program. (See related story).

Early in Bowlby's career he encountered infants who had been taken from their families into isolation Hospitals, as was the practice in those days when contagious diseases struck. When the children returned home after several months, they were unable to form any emotional attachments to their families, Bowlby related, and grew up emotionally isolated.

He reported they showed anti-social and destructive behavior patterns. Bowlby described the studies which linked depression in women, and antisocial, destructive behavior in men to the early loss of a parent or a broken

Using data from many such sources, Bowlby developed what has become known as his "attachment theory."

He told his audience, "A great many disturbances of personality development can be understood as due to an individual having developed a disturbed pattern of attachment behavior during nfancy, adolescence and the rest of his

"Attachment behavior," he said, "is any form of behavior which retains one individual in close proximity to another. By proximity I mean within communication range." He explained that for an older child communication range can mean access by telephone.

Keeping proximity to a stronger, wiser, more experienced creature is "a good insurance policy," not only for humans but for most other species. "You are likely to be safer . . . so attachment behavior is an important component of human nature, biologically given, over eons of evolutionary Bowlby said he feels it is a basic need. "As feeding ensures survival, sexual behavior ensures reproduction and attachment behavior ensures protec-

Usually the child's main attachment figure is the mother, though most children have several favorite trusted people — father, grandparents and older brothers or sisters. They are people the child can trust to give them care, comfort and reassurance.

Attachment relationships involve the whole gamut of emotions from joy and affection to jealousy, anger and grief, the audience was told.

Attachment is the term used for the child's relationship to the older figure. The term "bonding" is used for that person's relationship to the child. Bonding assumes care-giving.

When attachment and care-giving behaviors are adequate. Bowlby said, the child will explore his world. He referred to a study which psychotherapist James Anderson did in a London park. It illustrated typical attachment behavior and exploration.

The behavior of mothers and children in the park were observed and documented: a mother and her 21/4year-old son entered the park. The mother sat on a seat and the child played close to her.

At intervals the child would wander a short distance to explore and then run back to his mother. He would make some form of contact with her and, if she acknowledged him, he was reassured and left on another little tour of discovery. If she ignored him and continued reading without looking up at him, he would not explore again until he had been acknowledged.

This behavior, "exploration from a secure base," Bowlby said, carries on throughout life.

An older child goes to school but enjoys coming home to mother. Later he may stay with friends but is thankful to come back home. College students, he continued, are happy to return home at intervals, and adults look forward to coming home from work.

'Exploration is a function of security," Bowlby explained, noting he feels a secure base is important for a child's normal development, and that evidence indicates its absence or severe disturbance can cause psychological problems later.

'As parents we have to be attentive, we have to be responsible . . . we must be there in case," he said.

His ideas on separation anxiety differ that we are only anxious in the face of imminent danger. Bowlby contends that, since the familiar is usually safe, people feel secure in a familiar situation with people they know. Strangeness has a potential for danger; therefore, strange situations are explored more confidently if there is a secure base or attachment figure to which one can retreat should danger oc-

"We are biologically programmed to be apprehensive and fearful in certain situations which indicate increased risk . separation is an increased risk, and proximity to an attachment figure is the best insurance policy we can take

The ways in which a person's thoughts, feelings and behavior develop from infancy onward can be explained by two theories, according to the speaker. The first he called, "developmental pathways," the second, "representational models."

Developmental pathways, he said, refers to the development of personality as a continuous process of interaction between what is genetically given and what is experienced.

"It's an interaction between nature and nurture which begins at conception and continues until the end of our

At any age Bowlby sees a person as a 'current product' of these influences.

'Real events in the environment are having an impact for good or ill right through life, and I do emphasize this way of looking at things because it is at variance with so many clinical models which have certain phases of development." he said.

"Representative models" are impressions which we build in our minds, our pictures of our geographical environment and our personal environment, he explained.

"Children build up a representation of parents very early on . . . they expect a parent to behave in this way or that way, and, because they have these expectations, they respond in certain predicative ways." Bowlby said he feels children build up remarkably accurate pictures of their parents' personalities and what kind of behavior to expect of them.

In addition, a child builds up an image of himself or herself, he said, "as being a certain age, of a certain sex, with certain physical characteristics, certain abilities, certain deficiencies and emotional attributes.'

A child's image, Bowlby explained, is built from his own first-hand experiences, and from input of others. If a mother tells a daughter she is ugly, the daughter will grow up believing that.

"Parents' opinions weigh enormously heavily," he said. "I do believe that many adverse self images which we treat in our patients have been the product of what a child has been told by an influential figure, the parents usually being the most influential."

Bowlby said he feels, "We can be confident that secure attachments, mutual trust between a parent and child, support and a secure base lead to emotionally secure people. They are the people who become self-reliant, capable of close, loyal, friendship bonds

. of giving good care to others, particularly their own children and grandchildren. People of that sort, who we all like, we all value, are people who have grown up in stable, secure and predictable homes, with a great deal of emotional support."

Anxious, depressed, vulnerable, clinging people who are inclined to turn to their own children for support and security have often had early separa-tions from their families, or disparagement from attachment figures, he said. Bowlby said that some people grow up to be compulsively self-sufficient, avoid personal relationships and pour contempt on sentimentality and explained that early rejection by parents encourages these trends.

'They've been rebuffed so often they decide emotional relationships are too painful . . . so are best avoided." These same people can be desperately lonely inside and long for the type of relationship they dare not form.

People who become compulsive caregivers, but who cannot seek care for themselves, have often had rough childhoods without the experience of having been cared for, Bowlby said.

Though further research is needed, Bowlby said he feels that psychopathically detached people, who trust no one, and are destructive and anti-social, are often the victims of very adverse experiences, including battering as children. They dare not form relationships with anyone.

Bowlby referred to studies done by Mary Ainsworth which indicate that of life produce healthy patterns of attachment in children, who then grow up into cooperative, cheerful people.

"A securely attached child is a happy child, a rewarding child to care for. The anxiously attached child is a more awkward customer. These early patterns, having started, tend to settle in, but need not do so.'

The intervention of a good attachment figure can sometimes return a child to a healthy developmental Bowlby described a sensitive mother as one who acknowledges her child's needs and is able to respond to them in an appropriate manner.

Special writer Ann Chowdhury received her initial training in her native England and then obtained her master's degree in Child Development maternal sensitivity and appropriate and Family Life at Eastern Michigan University.

Following his lecture, "Family Influences on Personality Development," noted child psychiatrist John Bowlby, M.D., Sc.D., spent the afterdoon answering questions from audience members attending the Dubo-Rabinovitch lecture.

The following are excerpts from the question and answer session:

QUESTION: Please comment on the growing dependency of increasingly jounger children on peers, rather than adults, as role models.

"I am exceedingly concerned . . . I think in this country the importance of the peer group has been terribly exaggerated . . . If you look at undeveloped societies, particularly hunting and gathering societies, you'll find that in any one small band of human beings, of 60 or so, with perhaps 20 children, that the children are of all ages, from of to 20 years old. Peer groups are a synthetic product of industrial society

"In many societies two or three peers may be common, but a lot of beers, such as in our society are totally unknown. For most children, most of the time, peers come and go. They are very friendly and things look fine, but it's not a strong, emotionally charged relationship. Occasionally it is, but often it is not. If you ask an older person to recall a childhood friend, they have difficulty recalling anyone who was of emotional significance to them . . .

"These relationships don't carry much emotional significance and I think it is much better for children to have as role models the right sort of

"All our information about children's capacity to parent others, and this is one of the criteria of the role model, show those who have been well cared for as children are the ones who care well for others in later life

How does a child respond when another child is in distress and crying? We know there is a big variation. Some children are very concerned and take actions designed to be of assistance to the distressed child. Others couldn't care less, and occasionally a child will abuse the crying

"Those who show concern and incipient care-giving are those who have been well cared for by their parents, and children who have been abused are the ones who are abusive to the crying child. I wouldn't want my children or grandchildren to rely on the peer group for their models.'

QUESTION: What do you think about the increased mobility in our society and the resulting decreased availability of extended family members?

"I think it's a bad thing. Of course, it's unfashionable to deplore the shift from extended families to nuclear families, to isolated single parents, but all the evidence is that this is not favorable to the children's health or happiness. One of the crucial variables we've learned out of the studies is that securely attached children with stable, supporting families, are the happy ones, and of course they are not only happy, but they make others happy, too. If we are concerned with the happiness of the world, there's no doubt that secure, stable families is where it all starts.

"The great advantage of the extended family is that when things go right, it doesn't matter too much, but when there's a crisis, illness, death or disaster, the extended family is a wonderful insurance system.

'It's the best social security system that anyone ever designed. Because there are fewer extended families than there used to be, we have to build in all our social services. Heaven knows, many of you are engaged in social services and I don't want you to think I regard your services as dispensable. They are not. In fact, they are dreadfully inadequate. We do our best. We supply some security and assistance if we can, but we are never adequate. This is a sad fact, but I think it's true. That's a question I find easy to answer but it's not easy to ex-

QUESTION: Please comment on the grief and mourning process in adults and children.

"My emphasis has always been, 'Let's look at the similarities before we look at the differences.'

"There was a time when it was thought that children could not mourn. Well it never struck me as being in the least true. I think some very misleading ideas have been derived from children whose mourning had gone wrong, so it was necessary to look at what happens to children whose mourning has been assisted rather than impeded. "One of the things which is very difficult for anyone who has lost a close attachment figure to register and accept, is that this person is not going to return . . . one we all find exceedingly difficult to come to terms with . . . for children things are even more difficult for two reasons.

"One is that children are so often inadequately informed. They are not told the truth. They are told the parent has died, but without any occasion to satisfy themselves as to what really happened. Adults who are suddenly bereaved desperately want to talk about it. What happened? Why did it happen? Could it have been avoided?

"Insofar as adults are desperately in need to confirm what happened, to try to understand, children are really the same. The only difference is they don't get the opportunity . . . they are only given inadequate information and they are not in a position to challenge it, question it and explore it.

"Of course, for the surviving parent this is a very difficult time. That's one reason that an independent counselor can be of assistance.

'The other thing is that children's knowledge of the world is less than that of an adult. Very frequently they've not learned much about the nature of death.

"Irreversibility is the most difficult concept for anyone to come to terms with, and for children it's even more difficult, and therefore it's even more important to give them the opportunity to challenge and question it.

.. Bereavement is a very tragic blow to all ages. It is more particularly so for children, because the child is even more in need of an attachment figure than an adult. I say even more because, heaven knows, adults are, too, but with children it's more imminent and urgent, and consequently more difficult if they suffer a loss."

QUESTION: In recognition of the importance of attachment behavior during infancy, please comment on the following issues relating to working mothers and dual-career families: (1). The ideal amount of maternity

(2). The number of hours away from a parent the young child can tolerate. (3). Optimal child care arrangements when mother must work.

"The ideal amount of maternity leave? I'd say a long, long time. I don't think you can lay down any type of limits. The number of hours away from parents a young child can tolerate we simply don't know. It all turns on the nature of the substitute care. That is the key issue.

'Quite obviously where there is the right sort of maternal figure who substitutes for mother when she's not there, things work out very well. A familiar person who acts as a substitute mother for a few hours a day; everything runs very smoothly. Very difficult to arrange, unfortunately. Of course, grannies are the best of all. They are scarce, but insofar as they are available, that's a very good

"As for child care arrangements, so many care facilities are inadequate. There's inadequate staff, staff turnover; the children aren't happy. I mean you've only got to measure the number of smiles versus the number of blank faces between the child at home and the children in a day nursery. There are some pretty simple measures of emotional expression that are not very reliable.

"Again I come back to this happiness measure of children. They are happier at home than in group care

. I'm talking about children under 21/2, let's say. As children get older, of course, they enjoy a play group or a small nursery group; that's quite differnt. Children in their first or second year want a responsive, attentive maternal figure . . . The principle is quite simple, the details distinctively difficult and the practical implementation of these things very difficult in-

"The awful truth is that if you have an adequate staff in quality and quantity for day care, you price yourself out of business. I'm afraid I'll have to say that I don't think there's any future in day care, simply because I don't believe the community will ever pay sufficiently for the amount of substitute mothering required, and I would go on to say that if the family would go on to say that if the family doesn't do it, no one else is going to 1

A single, white trillium is a thing of beauty. But miles of hillside covered with the early spring blossom become an unforgettable sight that annually draws wildflower enthusiasts to a winding strip of road south of Cross Village along Lake

The distinctive wildflower with its three white petals covers the hillside along state route 119 between Cross Village and Harbor Springs around Memorial Day.

The winding road hugs the high bluff and offers spectacular views of Lake Michigan, as well as of some of the elegant homes built around the turn of the century.

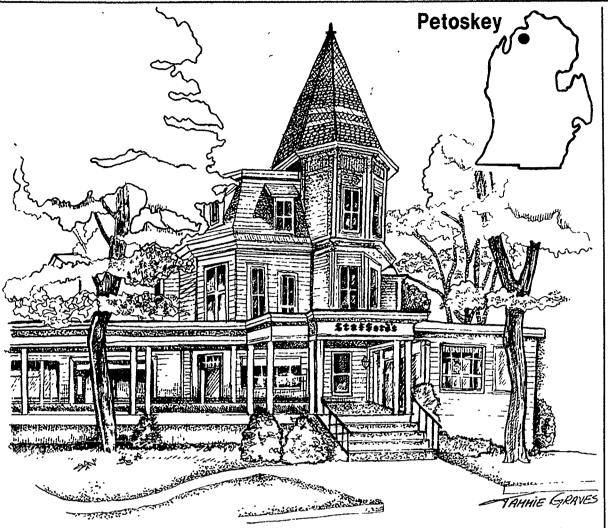

It's also possible to spend the weekend at Little Traverse Bay in the midst of impressive Victorian cottages built about 1880 by those who had amassed fortunes in lumber and mining. At Bay View, four miles northeast of Petoskey on U.S. 31, the Bay View Association was formed by the Methodist Church in that era and the Bay View Inn established in

As Stafford's Bay View Inn, it continues today as a country inn with food and lodging. The spreading, three-story white building with wide front porch is a Registered National Historic Site.

It's situated on the south shore of Little Traverse Bay with views of the harbor and Lake Michigan.

The inn offers both food and lodging in freshly decorated rooms. It has 22 rooms with private bath and an inviting dining room where tables are set with crisp white linens in an elegant mood.

Staying at the inn is a different experience from spending the weekend in one of the luxurious motel complexes that abound in the area. There are spacious rooms reminiscent of a British country inn on the main floor and a wide porch where guests can sit and rock and watch the harbour.

View is fine from here

It is rated deluxe in the directory of the Travel Bureau, Michigan Department of Commerce. Rooms are $74-$80 a day for two with full breakfast included.

Those who have summer homes anywhere within driving distance of the inn make it a regular stop for lunch or dinner. The waitresses are pleasant and welcoming, as are hosts Stafford and Janice Smith.

The dining room is open for breakfast, lunch and dinner with the menu including fresh fish as well as steaks and chops. The dinner menu prices range from $12.50 to $14.50. Because the inn is located in the historic Bay View Association, the proprietors explain they cannot serve liquor.

House guests, in addition to strolling through streets of the Bay View Association and admiring the Victorian cottages with their charming gingerbread details, will find plenty to do. The inn has its own private beach, and the veranda is a great spot to sit and people-watch.

The shops of Petoskey and Harbor Springs offer fashionable clothing, crafts and antiques.

In the 'spring, especially, rock hounds search the shore from Petoskey to Frankfort for the distinctive Petoskey Stones, actually the remains of an extinct coral and designated as the state stone.

Harbor Springs is another area of distinctive homes. Only horse-drawn wagons and carriages are allowed on Harbor Point, which was developed in the Victorian era when families arrived about the Fourth of July to stay for the season.

There are many artists' studios throughout the area, and just north of Harbor Springs on SR 119 is the Chief Blackbird Museum with authentic relics and handwork. Cross Village still is an Indian community.

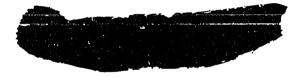

In addition to the drive north to Cross Village, it's possible to make a loop trip south to Walloon Lake and back around Lake Charlevoix.

Stafford's Bayview Inn is open daily from May 15 this year through the end of October.

Emma's:

A pleasant little restaurant

dining out DIANE KOVACS

Emma's fits right in with the Penniman Avenue shops in downtown Plymouth.

There's a shop specializing in wicker wares, a surprisingly good little art gallery featuring the works of some of the area's better-known artists, Muriel's Doll House, another shop that specializes in cut and dried And then there's Emma's, a quaint little restaurant that fits in comfortably with its neighbors. In fact, you have to pass through a book store to get to Emma's. And if you turn right instead of left, you'll end up in a small gift gallery featuring handcrafted items. Emma's belongs on Penniman Avenue. It's also a most pleasant little restaurant, best known perhaps for its choice of salads during the lunch hour but also a nice place to stop for dinner.

The owners have decorated their restaurant to create almost a garden atmosphere . . . light, airy and comfortable with plenty of plants hung from the ceiling to give a feeling of freshness.

A small tree occupies a prominent spot in the middle of the restaurant, and there are bare-wood floors, pictures of flowers by local artists lining the walls and a magnificent Tiffany glass window, preserved from one of the town's historic homes, hung against a side wall.

Emma's gained its popularity first as a luncheon spot, featuring a variety of fresh green salads and superb pastries. The salads are still a mainstay, but the restaurant has now expanded its fare, placing greater emphasis on its dinner entrees

The salads deserve a special note, however, not only for quality but also for the variety of selections. Eight different salads are listed on the menu, including Hawaiian chicken salad ($5.25), Greek salad ($4.25) and Topopo, described as a Mexican volcano salad with refried beans, seasoned ground beef, shredded lettuce, guacamole and sour cream over tortilla chips at $5.95.

Don't order it if you're not hungry - there's plenty to eat. Our recent forays to Emma's, however, have been for dinner.

The salads are available after five o'clock, of course, but the menu also contains entree selections of steak, chopped sirloin, broiled scrod, gulf shrimp and bay scallops, ranging in price from $7.95 for the chopped sirloin to $9.95 for the Penniman Avenue steak

Also available are nightly specialties. And it was the special entrees which attracted our attention on our most recent visit to Emma's. My companion selected the young beef liver flambe - tender young beef liver lightly sauteed in butter and garlic, and flambeed with cognac before serving at $7.95. I chose the barbecued short ribs only to discover they were no longer available that evening, so opted instead for Chicken Italiano — skinned chicken breast, marinated in Italian seasonings and served over white rice ($6.95). It was excellent . . . a light tanginess permeating the tender chicken.

Dinners are served with choice of soup or salad, potato, vegetable, rolls and butter. Cream of broccoli is a standard among the soups and is highly recom-

Emma's also gets high grades for its pastries. The dinner rolls were excellent, and one of the highlights of dining at Emma's is waiting for the waitress to hand you the list of that evening's selection of desserts.

There are a variety of tortes and cheesecakes. Some of them memorable, like the peanut butter & chocolate chip cheesecake I devoured on one occasion. Or the amaretto cheesecake I inhaled on another. If the bread pudding with whiskey sauce is listed among the evening's selections, don't pass it up.

If we had a complaint about our most recent sojourn to Emma's, it was the quality of the service, which really should be improved. The sour cream we requested for the baked potato never did arrive. And water glasses were filled only after several requests.

It's too bad and we trust the owners will take steps to correct it. Otherwise, dining at Emma's is a most enjoyable experience.

Students master poetry skills

By MICHELE M. FECHT

Though John Milton never wrote about the sensations of eating pizza or equated "green apples with crunchy green balls," such poetic license is gaining attention in Northville's four elementary schools.

Since March, select elementary students have been fine tuning their poetry skills with the help of poet-inresidence Kathleen Ripley Leo.

Assisted by a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts (written by elementary librarian Mernie Hines), Leo has been conducting workshops in grades 1-6 to help students master the elements of poetry writing.

"I always stress to children that you have to have people believe in your world," Leo explains. "Then they will believe in your poems."

A noted poet in her own right, Leo brings to students considerable background and experience.

Though she holds a B.A. in literature from Western Illinois University and a master's degree in Latin American Literature from University of Pittsburgh, Leo says she did not "start writing seriously" until after her two children were born.

Her first book, "Inner Timbres" recently earned kudos from Ann Arbor poet Edward Morin in his review last month in The Detroit News.

A private press publisher, Leo also has spent the past six years screening works from other writers for her company, Sylvan Publishing.

Student writings are not unfamiliar to Leo. Coordinator of the Wayne County Student Writing Competition, she is responsible for gathering essays, poetry and short stories from some 220 junior and senior high schools.

She notes that her current elementary workshops are comprised of about 12-15 students chosen by classroom teachers. She stresses that workshops take in a wide-range of talented students - from the learning disabled to the gifted.

Leo meets with students at each of the elementary schools for four days and then hosts an evening performance of the students' works for parents. The workshops also are being videotaped for cable.

"We start out learning what poetry is," she says. "We go through how to paint a picture; how to tell a story."

In learning the elements of poetry, Leo says she stresses to students that they "have to give themselves space.

'We pick a world we want to go into, such as a volcano," she says. "We go into that world and describe what we're

"By using the five senses we can start to use fantasy," Leo explains, noting the poems focus on favorite foods, sounds and feelings. (See related Leafing through a stack of student writings, Leo says she has been astounded at some of the creativity.

"Kids are really very imaginative," she says, pulling out a "body poem" where a student has noted that "ears are like lima beans stuck to your head.' She explains that while most students have had some exposure to poetry, the workshops have offered more concentrated study of the writing form.

"They always want to know if poems have to rhyme," Leo points out. "We're not actually going into form — it's more

"We get into creative arguments," she says, noting that even the youngest students will challenge assignments.

She points out that describing emotions is another essential element highlighted in the workshops and she has encouraged students by having them "try to make up little vignettes about feelings.''

She also notes that students "do observation poems where they are required to watch somebody or something for a couple of days." Such observa-tions have ranged from watching dad shave in the morning to observing a tree in the front yard.

Though she'll be completing the final series of workshops at Silver Springs elementary this month, Leo says she's hoping the program will be continued next year for those students interested in the workshop but not chosen for this vear's program.

"My point is not that everyone is go-ing to become a poet," she says. "However, this helps them to learn things in a more creative way.

The following are poems written by elementary students in Kathleen Leo's poetry workshops. Writings are from students at Amerman and Winchester and cover such topics as favorite foods, feelings and observations. Moraine students just concluded their series and Silver Springs students will begin their workshop this month.

10 danger signals you should watch for

If you have any of the above symptoms, it could mean you are heading for a critical health problem. Taking care of minor health problems now can prevent serious illness later. To guard your own wellbeing, call for an immediate check-up.

If you have any of these symptoms, Chiropractic can help you!

Are drugs and surgery the only answer? No!

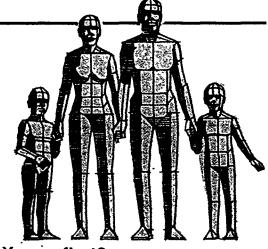

Aren't you tired of going from doctor to doctor looking for relief, trying to find someone or something to ease your pain and suffering? Have you been told your pain is just in your head and caused by your nerves (but you know it's real). Why not try chiropractic care.

Chiropractic is the natural health science. It is the health science that does not use drugs or surgery. Chiropractors realize that when your body suffers from aches, pains and discomforts these symptoms are actually warning signals of your declining health and should be attended to immediately. Chiriopractors are "cause doctors" and seek to locate and correct the cause of your health problems and thereby give you relief from painful symptoms.

We offer you the unique opportunity to find out if your health problem is due to nervous system interference.

Why be sick when you can be well.

CHIROPRACTIC QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

- 1) How much education do chiropractors have?
- A. Chiropractors go through as much scholastic training as MD's do. Many of the teaching text books are the same. If Chiropractic had not been proven to work, the majority of insurance companies would not cover chiropractic services like they do presently.
- 2) Chiropractors say they can cure anything & everything! Is that true?
- A. Chiropractors DO NOT say that! No health care profession has all the answers. But many health problems that you would normally think could be associated with the spine, do respond very well to chiropractic care.
- 3) Would it hurt to have a chiropractor work on your back?
- A. No. The correction of misaligned bones (vertebrae) in the spine by a chiropractor is NOT painful and actually is pleasant ("it feels good") to most people.
- 4) Once you go to a chiropractor do you have to keep going?
- A) No! Once the cause of the problem is corrected there is no longer any need for frequent spinal adjustments. Most people, however, choose to go occassionally afterwards just to give their spine a check-up and keep everything in good shape. Other people then mistakenly think that their friends/family had to keep on going, when in fact they simply wanted to, but didn't absolutely have to, except to maintain their improved health.

- 5) Do you always have to have X-rays first?
- A) No! Not all cases require X-rays. Some cases do require X-rays be taken so as to "see" the problem area, but certainly not all cases.
- 6) How long does it take before you feel any better?
- A) Most peoplé begin to feel improvement within just days (sometimes just hours) after beginning treatment. The length of time required depends on the type of problem and how long it has been present.
- 7) If I leave it alone will it go away by itself?
- A) Aches and/or pain is a warning sign by your body that something is wrong. Any pain that comes and goes or lasts for more than a day or two should be checked-out, before something more serious possibly results.
- 8) It's easier to take a pill; then I don't feel the problem so much.
- A) Swallowing a pill is exactly what the drug companies want you to do. But pills never correct the cause of the problem. They only cover the pain/problem up for a while.
- 9) Is chiropractic care expensive?
- A) Compared to routine medical care, chiropractic care is quite inexpensive. Most insurance companies cover chiropractic care, and for people with no health insurance coverarage out office has inexpensive family plans or individual rates. Nearly everyone can afford good chiropractic care.

Sometimes the pain was so bad I had to miss work

When asked what I thought my health problems were, I told Dr. Miller about my headaches. Yet I wasn't sure what caused them. All I knew was the fact that these problems interfered with my daily routine. Sometimes the pain was so bad I had to miss work.

When I went to see Dr. Miller it was just one week before I noticed improvement. I also noticed other changes in my health. I found I felt generally better and had more energy even though I thought I was fine.

I found out about chiropractic through a friend of mine who was also a patient at the Miller Chiropractic Center. He urged me to try chiropractic care after months of unsuccessful medical care. I would recommend people go to the Miller Chiropractic Center. I'd be the first to

"I'd be the first to admit that I thought chiropractic wasn't going to work like I'd read about, but I must admit I was really wrong!"

admit that I thought chiropractic wasn't going to work like I'd read about, but I must admit I was wrong! Now that it's worked so well for me when the pills I was taking didn't I can honestly recommend it to anyone reading my testimonial.

It was difficult to sleep at times

My health problems were caused by my job in construction and also by an automobile accident I was in. It caused me to have shoulder pain or bursitis, also I started getting headaches and general back pain.

These kinds of problems interfered with my daily routine. Sometimes the pain was so bad I could not do my job. Then I'd come home and could not sleep half the time.

"After attending the Miller Chiropractic Clinic I noticed improvement immediately."

After attending the Miller Chiropractic Clinic I noticed improvement immediately. I even noticed other changes in my health. I found out about chiropractic when my wife received excellent results with Dr. Miller after she was relieved of her back pain which began with our second child. This is when she insisted I go.

I started feeling better in about 3 days!

My health problems were caused because of scoliosis along with severe back pain and also neck pain. Although these problems didn't seem to interfere with my daily routine the back and neck pain were there.

I was surprised that I started feeling better in just about 3 days. With the back pain and neck pain I seemed to notice improvement.

To my surprise I noticed other changes in my health. Even my sinus problems have become much less severe. And because of Dr. Miller's Chiropractic Center I feel I no longer need my medication.

"To my surprise even my sinus problems became much less severe!"

My family doctor suggested I go to the Miller Chiropractic Center for my back pain. That's how I found out what chiropractic could do for me.

If anyone wanted to know my opinion of chiropractic care I would definitely recommend Dr. Miller. It sure did help me!

HEADACHES TAKE MANY FORMS

It is surprising for most people to learn that there are so many different forms of headache. Just about any kind of head pain will be called a headache and most people will experience more than one type, at different times. Some are quite mild, while others are violent and throbbing. It may build up slowly, or occur with lightning like speed. At least one type is always preceded by a warning sign. Some are triggered by changes in temperature, by allergies, tobacco, alcoholic drinks, fatigue, emotions, and similar factors.

The headache pain may cover the entire head, only the back, the forehead, one side, or just a small area. The pain may be a hot or burning sensation, splitting, boring, sharp, stabbing or bursting, vise-like, like a circular band, or like a heavy weight pressing down on the head.

Some headaches last only a few minutes, but return again and again, 20 or more times a day. Others will last for hours, days, week or even months, without any change or any sign of relief.

Major nerves of the head and scalp

A Cause of Headaches

The most common cause of headache, is nerve irritation in the neck. A neck has seven complex bones called vertebrae. They support the head and form a protective canal for the spinal cord.

There are 48 joints in the neck, makcord must pass between the joints and their supporting muscles and ligaments. The branches separate into millions of individual fibers, forming a sensorying it the most flexible, most vulnerable part of the spine. Nerves from the spinal control web in the neck, head, shoulders, arms and hands.

Motor nerves from the brain carry signals that control the functions of the body. Each sensory nerve sends signals of sensation and pain, to the brain, from one small area. Irritation of a nerve anywhere along its length, can cause a pain to be referred to the pass of origin. All the nerve in the body either pass through, or are intimately involved with structures in the neck. Therfore, irritation of nerves, caused by a structural disorder of the cervical spine or neck, can cause a pain in any part of the body, or the head.

Choice of Treatment

Headache is a symptom and the persistent recurrence of any symptom, is a definite cause for concern. A sensible person would not continue to treat a persistent toothache with pain-killing drugs, when modern dentistry is availble. Why make this mistake with any headache? Why fool around with potentially dangerous drugs when an effective and realistic solution is available?

Chiropractic is a healing profession that deals with the structural causes of disease. It has an effective solution for most headache problems.

During our five years in Northville our clinic has helped thousands of people just like you get rid of their various types of pain and health problems.

We can help you!
