Hansen seeks second in Monday school election

Northville voters should circle next Monday, June 10, on their calendars as a reminder to head to the polls.

With attention focused on district school closings, the high school renovation and the middle school reorganization, this year's school board race seems to have taken a backseat to more pressing issues.

Coupled with the current flurry of activity in the district is the lack of opposition for incumbent Jean Hansen.

Hansen, who ran unopposed for her first term in 1981, once again will be the only candidate appearing on this year's ballot — barring any last minute write-in votes.

Needless to say, voter turnout is expected to be light. While an estimated five to seven percent of Northville voters headed to the polls in recent school board races, officials are predicting Monday's school balloting will attract fewer voters than in the past.

In addition to the Northville school board race, electors also will choose two candidates for the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees.

Schoolcraft incumbents Michael Burley and Sharon Sarris are vying for re-election to six-year seats with challenger Hussein S. Karzun seeking his first term.

Northville board incumbent Jean Hansen currently is serving as president of the school board following terms as vice president and treasurer.

A former teacher, she holds a bachelor of arts and a master's degree in history from University of Michigan and has taken additional courses. For the last two and a half years she has been attending Schoolcraft College in the hopes of adding math to her teaching certification.

She is active in the PTA and has been a member of the American Association of University Women for seven years.

This year she received the "Agent of Change" award from the state AAUW for her work in education.

She has two children: Jennifer, a ninth grader, and John, who is in seventh grade. Both attend Cooke Junior High.

A member of the school board's curriculum subcommittee, Hansen admits one of her key areas of interest is curriculum.

City clerk McAllister leaving for Oak Park

City clerk Joan McAllister has accepted appointment as clerk for the City of Oak Park and will resign her Northville post effective June 14.

In separate actions Monday night, the Oak Park City Council confirmed McAllister's appointment and the Northville City Council accepted her resignation.

"I have real mixed emotions," Northville Mayor Paul Vernon said of the resignation. "On the one hand, it shows Northville can act as a stepping stone to greater opportunities, and my understanding is that this is a greater opportunity. On the other hand, we don't like to lose someone of Joan's caliber."

Oak Park has a population of 26,000 — more than four times Northville's population. It operates under a similar city manager form of government.

Unlike Northville, Oak Park does not require that its clerk reside in the city. "I think I'll stick around (Northville); at least for a while," McAllister said.

Council member Paul Folino made the motion to accept McAllister's resignation "with regret."

"I will definitely miss this, and the people I work with — you come to know everyone so well," McAllister said Tuesday at her office in city hall. She added that it is hard to leave the Nor-

Northville post as "it's exciting working here when so many things are happening."

Of her new job which she will begin June 17, she explained, "It's a challenge, and that's what life is all about."

Because it is a larger city, she said,

Mother Nature drenches NHS

Northville school officials are discovering their biggest adversary in the ongoing high school renovation project may be the ever-unpredictable Mother Nature.

As has been the case for the past several years, water leakage proved to be the culprit in the disruption of classes last Thursday.

Torrential rainstorms which swept through the state last week left more than just puddles throughout areas of the partially-renovated building. Thursday's mid-day storm, which generated wind gusts of up to 50 miles per hour in some areas, caused the biggest problem for staff and students who were relocated to drier classrooms.

School Superintendent George Bell said some of the worst hit areas of the building were the cafeteria, where new construction is under way, and in the science wing, where book and equipment damage was reported and water covered the hallway.

The superintendent said water damage to materials in the science area was caused by leaks in the old roof — not new construction.

The high school has been plagued by roof problems for several years.

"It's all a part of the game," Bell said Monday. "We've been lucky — we've lost very few work days due to weather."

The superintendent said the storm Thursday evening was not as much of a problem as most of water was cleaned up before students and staff arrived the following morning. He said maintenance crews were called to the building at 4 a.m. to begin mopping up water drenched floors.

Bell said administrators are hoping inclement weather will hold off for at least another week — until students are out of the building for summer vacation.

"The tolerance of students and staff has been tremendous," Bell said, noting the aftermath of last week's storm "meant we had to shuffle a lot of people around."

The superintendent said the project has not been delayed as a result of the storm and notes that workers are back on the site. Or rather, most workers are back to business as usual.

A union strike against mason contractors in the tri-county area announced Monday has put another kink in the project. While a contract settlement is expected to be reached sometime within the next few weeks, Bell said the district may have to postpone some demolition work until bricklayers are back on the job. Teamsters who drive transit mix trucks also went out on strike Monday.

Barring any further delays, the administration is anticipating the project will be completed by late November.

Vandals paint school buses

Eight Northville High School senior girls will not be participating in their own commencement exercises a week from Friday night, and those in the group who are honor students will not be accepting awards at tonight's honors assembly.

The actions, announced last Friday by high school principal David Bolitho, are part of the punishment meted out following an evening of vandalism May 29.

According to school authorities and city police, who were called to the bus yard and high school early last Thursday morning, the eight girls armed with cans of spray paint sprayed all 23 school buses in the bus yard and sprayed the word "seniors" on the rear wall at the high school as well as words and "85" on the south end of the swimming pool building and the end of the auto shop.

"Unfortunately, they did not use water (soluble) paint," commented Detective David Fendele, who called the students "idiots but not criminals."

Homefront, workplace offer options to day-care

This is the last in a three-part series focusing on child-care options in the Novi/Northville area.

By MICHELE M. FECHT

When Melva Parsons quit her job as a Ford Motor Company secretary 17 years ago, she shut off her typewriter with few regrets.

"I spent 12 years listening to mothers trying to be mothers over the phone," says the Beck Road resident who has been mother and care-provider to a host of Novi and Northville children for almost two decades.

Her state-licensed care-home is a haven for scores of children — from newborns and toddlers to preschoolers and elementary students. It also is a saving grace for working parents looking for alternatives to day-care centers.

Mothering combined with plenty of TLC is the key ingredient to Parsons' business. As the mother of six (ages 5-27), she has found her system can offer children a loving home situation as well as consistency — something most educators and child-care experts claim is essential for children during the formative years.

While she says her arrangement was born of the love of children, Parsons admits the growing demand for at-home care has made such services a booming business.

Licensed in the early 1970s, Parsons takes care of up to five children at a time and charges $1.25 per hour (her fees were $1 per hour up until this year).

She notes that her hours are completely flexible to accommodate parents required to make last-minute arrangements. She also will take drop-ins as well as "sleep overs" for parents whose jobs demand travel.

While a houseful of children hardly is considered a picnic, Parsons seems to relish her role as surrogate mother.

"I'm into the second generation now," she says, noting that some of the children she cares for are the offspring of former charges.

Noting that she "raises" many of the children from infancy through kindergarten, Parsons says her service has provided her with many "extended offspring."

"Most of the little ones call me 'mama,'" she confides.

The better alternative?

While current studies on the effects of day-care are limited, research seems to indicate that the best insurance for developing a healthy and happy child is finding a quality arrangement.

While model day-care centers can offer a comfortable surrounding for nurturing the intellectual, emotional and social needs of children, many experts argue that such arrangements should never be viewed as a substitute for mothering.

A child psychiatrist for more than 30 years and the director of Hawthorn Center since 1971, Dr. Harold Wright has been witness to both the positive and negative effects of the changing family unit.

Noting that "changes in our culture and economic situation have almost mandated some type of child-care," Wright says parents today are faced with finding the best alternatives that exist.

First and foremost, he notes, is to

Who's Minding Your Children?

"find a situation that's a permanent one."

"Where problems occur with young children is when there is a great variety of people providing care," Dr. Wright notes. "The relationship becomes confused."

"If you have a choice, it is preferable to have somebody come into the home," he says. However, Dr. Wright is quick to point out that such an arrangement often is not possible. For parents with children in day-care centers he suggests they "be careful in choosing a facility — and keep in contact."

While he recognizes that some pre-primary education is advantageous to children, Dr. Wright says early education should never be a replacement for parent/child relations.

"Early exposure to education methods certainly is not more important than parental nurturing," Dr. Wright says.

He notes that another growing concern is the mobility of today's families.

"What worries me a little bit is the defusion of the family," Dr. Wright notes. "I think families and parent/child relationships are so vital to our culture."

"Maybe we need to introduce in the education system the importance of family," he says. "I think we pay too little attention to the importance of keeping the family together."

The working mom's dilemma

When her two-year maternity leave drew to a close last September, Denise Karakashian found herself caught in the crossfire all too common to today's working mothers.

"When I went on leave there was no stipulation for part-time," says the Novi teacher. "Either you went back to work fulltime or you gave up your job."

"I would stay up at night worrying about what I was going to do," says the mother of two. "I didn't know if I wanted to give up my career and I didn't know if I wanted to go back fulltime."

Fortunately for Karakashian, a shared time provision was incorporated

Schoolcraft board candidates answer LWV questions

Voters in the Schoolcraft College District will elect two trustees for full six-year terms in the June 10 election. Three candidates are running.

The district includes the kindergarten through 12 grade districts of Northville, Clanceville, Livonia, Garden City and Plymouth-Canton, plus a small portion of Novi.

Candidates are Michael W. Burley, a Northville teacher who lives in Canton Township; Hussein S. Karzun, a Ford engineer who lives in Livonia; and Sharon L. Sarris, a General Motors communications manager who lives in Livonia.

Burley has served six years on the Schoolcraft board, Sarris, three.

The non-partisan League of Women Voters asked the candidates for 50 words of biographical information and answers to four questions:

1. Why do you want to be elected (re-elected) to the Schoolcraft Community College Board of Trustees?
2. What do you believe is a realistic approach to providing a solid financial base for Schoolcraft College?
3. Do you believe the role of Schoolcraft College is changing? If so, how?
4. If elected (re-elected), how would you maximize cooperative ventures between local school districts and Schoolcraft College as a means of benefiting students at both levels?

Answers are in the candidates' own words.

MICHAEL W. BURLEY, Bachelor of Science in industrial management, M.A. in educational leadership, S.A. in educational leadership, candidate for Ph.D. in administration and supervision. Twenty years in the education business, 11 years as a central office administrator, six years as a board of trustees member, past president of an adult education corporation. Taught in Garden City, Livonia and Northville. Resident of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

1. During the past six years while on the board, many things were accomplished: a more reasonable process of negotiating was implemented, and a much larger Garden City Center was acquired. There is more to be done. That is why I want to be re-elected.

2. The board uses a realistic formula of one-third support from each of the following: state, tuition and local taxes. However, if the state's share drops, there is a shift in the burden to tuition or local taxes. This will cause an increase in tuition or a request for millage.

3. The role of Schoolcraft is changing. In the next six years, there will be more emphasis on re-training and industry-based instructional programs. The number of high school students is declining, yet the number of people between 30 and 35 years of age who need training and re-training is increasing.

4. To maximize cooperation, it is time for members of the Schoolcraft board to visit local boards. In addition, a liaison person needs to be identified between boards, and time should be scheduled on board agendas to make members aware of services at both levels.

HUSSEIN S. KARZUN, I have been a resident of Wayne County for 19 years, eight in Livonia. I am married and have one daughter, 16, who attends Stevenson High School. My wife is a volunteer counselor with the Livonia Youth Assistance Program. I have a bachelor's degree in engineering from the University of Miami, Florida, and a master's degree in business administration from Wayne State University.

1. I would like Schoolcraft College to offer programs which prepare students of all ages for the changing jobs market. As a member of the board of trustees, I believe my technical education and experience will be well suited for this goal.

2. Three programs, financed by local businesses and/or individuals, will provide added income: co-ops, grants and job training courses. These could be achieved by: increasing community interest and support and providing broad-based and balanced programs to students of all ages.

3. Yes, Schoolcraft is located in a district of high mobility residents. To meet the needs of these residents, Schoolcraft must offer: improved higher education, upgraded skills and improved physical conditions.

4. Schoolcraft College programs should be open for more high school students with advanced skills to be able to obtain college credits and save these students time and money in their pursuit of a four-year college program. Schoolcraft must coordinate and sponsor educational, cultural, athletic and recreational programs for high schools in the district.

SHARON L. SARRIS, Manager of employee communication, Chevrolet-Pontiac-GM of Canada Group, General Motors, M.A., University of Michigan.

Appointed to the board in 1982, elected to a two-year term in 1983. Currently treasurer and delegate to the Michigan Community College Association. Selected for national "Leaders of the '80s" program. Co-chair, Southeast Michigan Women's Political Caucus. Member, League of Women Voters, Friends of the Library.

1. I have been an effective and responsible trustee during the last three years. But there are challenges that face the college in the near future. My broad experience and background in education and business will be extremely helpful as the college responds to these challenges.

2. The college must consider all options: potential for increased state funding, additional millage, lease/sale of surplus college land, increased tuition, increased contributions to Schoolcraft Foundation are possibilities. We will be deciding in the near future on some different approaches we will need to take.

3. Yes, because its mission is to respond to the needs of the community. Schoolcraft will take on greater responsibility for occupational training and re-training and perhaps "remedial", post-secondary education. It will offer new courses for new occupations and generally find other ways to distinguish itself from other colleges.

4. Expand programs for K-12 gifted and talented; work with districts to determine mutual roles in community and continuing education; develop re-training programs for reassigned K-12 teachers; share other resources where appropriate. I am committed to expanding these and other cooperative ventures.

General agreement on college's direction

That's what three candidates say about the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees' performance and the community college chief administrator.

"There's no problem I know of," said challenger Hussein S. (Hank) Karzun when asked which decisions of incumbents Michael W. Burley and Sharon L. Sarris he disagreed with.

They spoke recently in a candidates' forum sponsored by the League of Women Voters in Livonia.

Two of the three will win six-year terms on the college board in the June 10 election. The college conducts its elections in odd-numbered years at the same time as school districts in northwestern Wayne County. Northville School District voters will vote for one candidate in the local school district election Monday and will elect two Schoolcraft candidates.

Repeatedly the candidates shied away from questions about the administration's broad hints that in 1986 the voters should be asked for a property tax increase.

Burley, chairman of the board the last two years, called a millage hike, "a last resort. At no time has the board considered a millage. A finance subcommittee is to consider a millage." A Northville district teacher, Burley said he would consider a millage increase "only if it (the lack of one) cuts into the program." Burley said any millage should be "earmarked for a sinking fund" rather than used for operations. "But we're not close to it," he emphasized. He recalled that a previous board said the Culinary Arts addition couldn't be constructed without a millage increase. Although the millage failed in 1979, a scaled-down addition was completed anyway, he said.

Sarris, a General Motors communications manager and former teacher, called the question "an assumption," saying it is "not so obvious" more property tax revenue is needed although it's "certainly an option." Other options are increasing tuition and more state aid.

Schoolcraft's $18 million budget is covered one-third by state aid, one-third by property taxes and one-third by tuition. In two straight years, the administration has hinted broadly that millage should be sought for capital needs rather than operations.

Karzun, a product design engineer in Ford Motor Company's light truck division, said, "Education should be supported at any cost" but felt any Schoolcraft request should be for a short time period. "We should keep pressure on the administration and unions to balance the budget," he said.

A native of Palestine, Karzun said he has a "positive impression" of the incumbents but asked for a chance to bring new blood to the seven member board. President McDowell, in his third year, was generally applauded.

"High marks," said Burley, who chaired the meeting when the board conducted its recent closed-door evaluation. "We gave him a six on a scale of seven. There was no increase in salary. We will discuss that at a June 12 meeting."

"Very pleased," said Sarris. He has taken appropriate leadership roles "there is room for growth."

"He was very gracious to fill me in," said Karzun, who was barred from the closed-door evaluation. He liked McDowell's stress on employee involvement which he said was borrowed from the Japanese and is being used in the auto industry.

Over several years, Schoolcraft has cut its full-time faculty from 160 to a projected level of 152 next fall. The candidates were little worried about the trend.

Sarris called it "something to be concerned about" but noted part-time faculty members can bring flexibility to college staffing.

Burley said the ratio of full-timers to part-timers is 60-40 but that the ratio shouldn't drop below 50-50. He said full-timers "help maintain the quality of the program and protect it."

Karzun said, "The quality of the program depends on the quality of the teachers. I will keep my eye on quality rather than full-time or part-time faculty. There are needs for part time teachers."

The candidates were asked what they see in the six years ahead.

Burley: more advanced placement of students based on competency, no strikes (a high priority) due to "mutual gains" bargaining with the Faculty Forum, more adult education (including re-certification of teachers), more outside funding and possibly expansion of the district into Redford Township and Wayne-Westland.

Sarris: stronger business-industry relationships, more coordination with local districts, and greater efforts to recruit and re-train students and faculty through "creative marketing" of the college.

Karzun: enrichment of technical programs, broad-based and balanced programs. "I agree with a lot of the programs and suggestions."

What unique qualities does each possess?

Burley: "a professional educator 20 years, from preschool to graduate school," has taught educational leadership at Eastern Michigan University.

Karzun: has managed projects (wheel design, with a team of designers, lawyers, marketing and purchasing people at Ford).

Sarris: "knowledge of the community" through corporate and political contacts. "People tell me their opinions. I do my homework and pay attention to details."

School board president all alone on the ballot

Having weathered school closings, redistricting and middle school planning during her tenure on the board, Hansen says she looks forward to "fine tuning" programming at all levels.

"With the emphasis on the high school and middle school, the elementaries have been somewhat overlooked," Hansen notes, adding that one of the board's long-range goals is to place more emphasis on the continuity of the program.

"We have to look at how we are going to meet the needs of each child," she notes.

Polls will open at 7 a.m. Monday and close at 8 p.m.

Voting places, according to precinct, are as follows:

- Precinct 1 (downtown city area): Northville City Offices, 215 West Main;
- Precinct 2 (Silver Springs and Highland Lakes areas): Silver Springs School, 19801 Silver Springs Drive;
- Precinct 3 (Winchester area): Winchester School, 16141 Winchester Drive;
- Precinct 4 (Amerman area): Amerman School, 847 North Center;
- Precinct 5 (Edenderry and Shadbrook subdivisions and King's Mill cooperatives): Northville City Offices, 215 West Main;
- Precinct 6 (Moraine area): Moraine School, 46811 West Eight Mile.

Mugging just another punchline to student comedian

By B.J. MARTIN

So far, the best publicity stunt Ian Chowdhury's managed to pull in his showbiz career was his being mugged en route to the High School Comedy Challenge finals last month.

Chowdhury was on his way to the competition at Pontiac Catholic High School when some young toughs bloodied his lip and nose and robbed him of a whopping one dollar in U.S. currency.

But they didn't rob the 16-year-old Northville High junior of his sense of humor. He won the competition.

"Next time I run into those guys I hope I'm driving," he says.

Not a bad line. Actually, he's not a bad comic, either.

"I almost always seem to get some kind of comic relief role when I'm on stage," Chowdhury says. While that's less true of his role as Syme in Northville High's production of Orwell's "1984," it's definitely true of his portrayal of Whitney in Clarence Day's "Life With Father," and as crotchety 90-year-old Luka in Chekhov's "The Boar."

"That's B-O-A-R," Chowdhury adds.

The latter two plays Chowdhury performed as a student at Alpena High School, where he went to school for three years before his family returned to Northville. He developed a taste for comedy a couple years ago, and began assembling material for routines he tested on friends.

"I told them that I was almost going to be an atheist, but then I realized I wouldn't get any holidays."

— Ian Chowdhury
Comic

for improvisation. "Whenever I see something funny I make a little note of it. I think I'm good at making up stuff."

At the competition last month, for example, Chowdhury forgot one of his bits in the middle of his seven-minute routine. "Since we were at a Catholic High School, I thought I'd go after religion. So I told them that I was almost going to be an atheist, but then I realized I wouldn't get any holidays."

It's understandable that Chowdhury could forget a bit or two. Topics of his comic routines — a blend of one-liner rim-shot toss-offs and authoritative-sounding absurdities — range from Ugandan travel tips and English valley girls to TV commercials and horrible puns and the restaurant business.

"You get a lot of dumb questions in a restaurant," says Chowdhury, who buses tables at a local one. "They'd ask Fidel Castro, 'Smoking or non-smoking?'"

For winning the High School Comedy Challenge, Chowdhury earned a chance to perform at the Comedy Castle at Red Cedars Restaurant in Southfield this Friday.

Comedy Castle, along with Pontiac Catholic High School, co-sponsored the competition, which featured the best comic talent from hundreds of high schools in southeastern Michigan.

"I'm hoping this will lead to some more stand-up comedy jobs," Chowdhury says of the Red Cedars show. "People seem to like me. Until I start talking, anyway."

"I have more fun performing than writing," Chowdhury says. "I'd like to continue doing standup comedy. But what I'm most interested in is movies and films."

He lists Robin Williams, Steve Martin and Bill Cosby as some of his favorites, and he does share a little of their flair

The Raven welcomes an old friend

By B.J. MARTIN

Owner-manager of The Raven coffeehouse Tom Rice didn't have to look far for his next musical artist. Neil Woodward, a performing musician in southern Michigan for nearly 15 years, has taught various stringed instruments at The Giftfiddler off and on since the days it was located on Center Street in the mid-'70s.

"This is almost like a second home to me," says Woodward, now living in Union Lake. "I used to live in Novi in 1975, 1976. That's when I started seeing Tom and teaching."

"I've met a lot of nice people from around here," he says, noting most of his students are from hereabouts.

Woodward said he is looking forward to his Saturday show at The Raven since it will be a setting somewhat different from the pubs he often plays, most recently The Back Seat in Keego Harbor.

"A situation like this is rare anymore," he explains. "To have a place where people come in, sit down and actually listen to you is very different."

Woodward said he will mainly perform his original tunes and a few traditional tunes. "Things that were real popular, but nobody knows who really wrote them," he says.

He describes himself as a "teacher of stringed instruments," so along with his voice, Woodward will showcase his fingers on 6-string and 12-string guitars, mandolin, fiddle and possibly autoharp.

He's also fluent on banjo and dulcimer and lately he has even been teaching balalaika — not an instrument one runs across every day outside of Greentown.

"I like all kinds of musical things," Woodward says. "That'll probably show up in the music I'll be playing." Asked whether any particular artists have influenced or inspired his style, Woodward replies, "Well, some of my instrumentals have been inspired by the instruments themselves. Some things I do lend themselves to a particular context, whether it's acoustic or whether it's rock and roll and I need a band to put them over. I try to be a pure musician, and play the way that seems right for each tune."

"What really appeals to me is something with emotion," Woodward adds. "I really like the blues — a lot of types of music are just different forms of the blues, whether it's folk, old-timey or country music. I mean when Merle Haggard's singing, he's singing the blues."

"To me, that kind of emotion cuts across a lot of styles ... Emotion, that's what I listen for and try to put across in my own songs."

While teaching and playing the occasional pub, Woodward's daily work takes him out to Flint's historical Crossroads Village. There he performs for visitors by the old Huckleberry Railroad. He's at ease with other musicians or playing alone, but he plans to perform solo at The Raven — "Unless there's somebody there I know who I might talk into coming up with me."

Neil Woodward will appear at The Raven, 303 West Main, Northville, for one show only at 8 p.m. this Saturday. Doors open at 6:30 p.m. for the show, and food and non-alcoholic drinks will be served. Friday at The Raven, a "free for all" featuring many local folk musicians will be featured, beginning at 8 p.m. Proceeds from the "free for all" will be donated to Northville Community Recreation. Tickets for both shows are $5 apiece and available at the door, at The Giftfiddler, 302 East Main, Northville, or by calling 349-9420.

Haggerty proposals include freeway business, offices

By KEVIN WILSON

Drivers on Haggerty Road 10 years from now may see a street bound by four-story office buildings, apartments, cluster housing developments, motels, gas stations, drive-in restaurants and single family homes.

Those are the types of development targeted as possible uses for Northville Township frontage along Haggerty in a recently-completed planning study.

Planners last week set a July 9 public hearing date to consider changes to the master plan of land use and the zoning ordinance to allow the proposed commercial development in an area previously planned almost entirely for single family homes. Although acreage devoted to single family usage in the 1,088 acre area under study would remain predominant — there would be 614 acres of single family zoning, enough for 1,233 homes — few homes would be on Haggerty Road itself. The figures are based on the number of existing homes plus the potential lot development.

Consultant Claude Coates offered three proposed amendments to the text of the zoning ordinance and showed a possible master plan land use map. Rezoning of particular parcels would be considered on a case-by-case basis, with particular attention paid to the overall master plan for the area.

The textual changes would add two new zoning classifications — a higher-density office service zone and an additional commercial zone designated "freeway service" — and liberalize the restrictions applied to cluster housing development in the current ordinance.

The new office zoning category (designated OS-2) would be in addition to the current OS-1 zoning class, and would allow taller buildings (up to 50 feet). It is designed principally for general or medical offices and public buildings. Buildings with more than 50,000 square feet would also qualify for secondary uses such as pharmacies, restaurants, barbers, beauty shops and physical fitness areas. Such secondary uses would be limited to 10 percent of the total floor area in the building, require an indoor customer entrance and be subject to stiff limitations on signing.

Minimum setbacks for the OS-2 district would be supplemented by a formula that includes factors for the type of zoning on adjacent property, and the height and length of the building.

The new freeway service category would permit hotels/motels, restaurants (including drive-ins), and gas stations. In certain circumstances, offices would be allowed in the freeway service zones (which Coates recommended for areas near the freeway exits at Six, Seven and Eight Mile roads).

The planning commission could also grant special approval to locate retail establishments such as gift shops and drug stores within a freeway service zoning on grounds that the retail use is one "serving the needs of the highway traveler."

'What we have prepared are possibilities — you'll have to set the policy.'

— Claude Coates
Planning consultant

Building size for the freeway service area is proposed to be the same as for the new office class — 50-foot height limit with similar setback requirements.

Present township zoning requirements limit office and commercial buildings to 25 or 30 feet in height. Coates said most surrounding communities would allow office buildings to be four or five stories and that raising the limits in the township would help encourage similar development. The 50-foot limit, he said, would likely restrict offices to four stories. Planning commission chairman Richard Duwel, by profession an architect with R.A. DeMattia Company, confirmed that information, noting that a 50-foot tall motel might be five stories.

"There are several policy questions that you will have to address," Coates told the planning commission in regard to the proposals. "What we have prepared are possibilities — you'll have to set the policy."

The specific proposals followed an earlier report by Coates' firm, Vilcan-Leman and Associates, demonstrating that the market would support additional office and commercial development proposals for the I-275 corridor.

Based in part on that study, the master plan proposal recommends 31 acres of freeway commercial land, 56 acres of general commercial and 10 acres of local commercial zoning between Five and Eight Mile along Haggerty.

It also proposes 117 acres of office zoning — sufficient to allow more than 2 million square feet of office space. That includes, however, 35 acres of land that are on state property (at Hawthorn Center). Subtracting that 35 acres and the 610,000 square feet of office space that could be allowed there, leaves the total available floor area for offices at 1.4 million square feet.

Coates said that amount of office space might seem very large but that in comparison to other office districts in other communities it is rather small.

At I-96 and Twelve Mile in Farmington Hills, he said, there is a rapidly-developing office district roughly comparable to the I-275 corridor.

"There is 600,000 square feet (of office space) there now, another 100,000 square feet under construction and they've just started," Coates said. "Total capacity there is 5.5 million square feet. In that context, 1.5 million square feet does not seem out of line."

Expanded multiple-family (apartments and condominiums) zoning is also proposed for the Haggerty Road area — there would be 156 acres of such zoning concentrated between Five and Seven Mile. Total units allowed at 7.3 units per acre would be 1,139. It was noted that 35 acres of the multi-family zoning would be on state-owned land — meaning 255 of the projected units would not be built unless the state sold the property for private uses.

The projection also deletes land area between Five and Six Mile presently used for schools, churches and the Par 3 golf course. Should the golf course be rezoned for multiple family, another 197 units of such housing would be possible.

Coates also suggested that cluster housing alternatives be considered as a transitional use between office or multiple family developments and adjacent single family subdivisions. Cluster housing, where all land area is commonly-owned by the residents of the individual houses, is presently allowed only on parcels of less than 10 acres and only where adjacent single family subdivision lots back onto the cluster development.

Coates proposed that 104 acres of land be devoted to cluster housing — 25 acres between Five and Six Mile and 79 acres between Seven and Eight Mile — and that the restrictions be loosened.

The consultant suggested allowing cluster housing that has a side-yard relationship to single family homes and on parcels larger than 10 acres. "I don't understand why your ordinance limits cluster housing to 10 acres or the restriction to back yards without side yards — it would have to be changed if you chose to encourage cluster housing near Haggerty."

Planning commission chairman Richard Duwel said he believes "we are primarily a residential township," but that "there will always be market forces at work in an area such as this one seeking more intensive development."

"I'm in favor of having some orderly plan to guide us," Duwel continued. "We had a study session to discuss this and came up with this general theme. Now we need a public hearing to hear what people think about it."

At Kinder-Care, Donna and Nicholas Standish, 2½, say goodbye

Abuse reports prompting more caution in selection

By KEVIN WILSON

Virtually all the child care authorities consulted for this series commented on the fairly recent discovery of abuse in child care centers. Most emphasized the infrequent nature of such abuse and commented on what parents can do to protect their children and themselves.

"To keep it in perspective," said Ted DeWolf, director of the child care licensing division of the Michigan Department of Social Services, "consider that there are 13,000 licensed day care providers in Michigan serving anywhere from 250,000 to 300,000 children. Last year we investigated 138 complaints and about 50 percent were substantiated. That works out to less than one percent."

He said the "vast majority of facilities are doing a good, honest job of providing a necessary service. The media attention naturally attracted to cases like the one in Niles, Michigan, or the McMartin thing in California really doesn't reflect what is going on in most places."

DeWolf said the publicity afforded such cases has had a dramatic effect in making parents more cautious about choosing child care and in encouraging child care centers to be careful in making hiring decisions.

"I've used this before on several occasions, but it still holds true: some parents take more time buying a car than they do selecting day care," DeWolf said. "We tell parents all the time, you shouldn't just look at price — you've really got to invest a lot of time shopping for the day care situation that's right for you and your children."

He said he is "encouraged" by the increased parental interest in day care issues. "It's unfortunate that it had to be spurred by what is happening around the country, but parent awareness is way up in the past year or two. I'm encouraged by the overall increase in parent inquiries about day care."

Carol Quarterman of the Detroit-Wayne County Child Care Coordinating Council and Joyce Beacom, her Oakland County counterpart, agreed that there has been increased concern in the past year.

Licensed care homes: a booming segment

Parents exploring child-care alternatives often find one of the better choices available is one of the least visible — the state-licensed or registered day care home.

In contrast to the larger child care centers and preschools, the day care homes are just that — neighborhood homes where one or two people, often parents themselves, care for up to 12 children while their parents work.

Although something of a "cottage industry," the home day care providers licensed by the state are coming to stress professional, quality child care in a home environment, according to county and state authorities in the field.

There are a lot of people, primarily mothers, offering to care for children in their homes. But only one-fourth of these have registered or obtained a license through the state.

"Our latest estimates suggest that 90 percent of the day care homes nationally are unlicensed," said Ted DeWolf, director of the child care licensing division of the Michigan Department of Social Services.

"Because Michigan's process is more streamlined than in some other states, we estimate that 25 percent of the homes in the state are registered," he said.

The other 75 percent are evidently operating outside the law. The state's Child Care Organization Act requires anyone caring for unrelated children for a period of longer than four weeks to register as a day care home.

Nine such homes are licensed in the Novi/Northville area according to the latest list available through the Oakland County Child Care Coordinating Council. Both county and state officials said there are active efforts to recruit more home operators in this area to the ranks of the licensed day care providers.

There are two types of day care home provided for under the licensing act:

Law may stiffen center licensing

At present, neither the licensee nor the workers at the larger child care centers undergoes a criminal history check like the ones done for day care home operators.

The recent focus on abuse in such centers, however, has spurred the Michigan Legislature to consideration of extending the requirement to these workers and licensees.

The new legislation, approved by the house of representatives and now in senate committee, would extend the entire criminal history check provisions to child care center licensees (those owning the business or board members of non-profit centers), and add a fingerprinting requirement.

Employees of such centers would undergo a less rigorous check — within five days of hire, the facility the "Family Day Care Home" for up to six children and the "Group Day Care Home" for up to 12 children.

Technically, the family day care home is registered and the group day care home licensed. Both are subject to a children-to-staff ratio of 6:1, with specific limits regarding the number of infants (under one-year old) allowed in each situation.

Both undergo a DSS inspection of the premises to ensure safety, adequate play area and kitchen facilities. Operators are subject to a review of their criminal history prior to licensing.

That screening may help ease parents' minds in the wake of recent news reports of child sexual and physical abuse at child care centers, DeWolf said, cautioning that "it represents a reduction in risk, not a in the 1982 Novi teacher contract providing her with the ultimate solution to her most pressing problem.

Under the provision, Karakashian has spent the past year sharing teaching duties at Middle School North with Cindy Howson.

Howson, also the mother of two, handles the morning classes with Karakashian taking over during the afternoon.

Though the two teachers sacrificed 50 percent of their salaries and benefits as part of the agreement, both contend the monetary loss is meaningless when compared with the peace of mind provided by the arrangement.

Unlike Karakashian, Howson was working fulltime while trying to be mother to two young children as well as homemaker and wife.

After four years of high anxiety, sleepless nights and pure frustration, she went to the shared time arrangement.

Howson, more typical of most working mothers, says she had all the symptoms of "super woman overload."

"I didn't feel I was fair to anybody," she says. "I had to alleviate some of the pressure."

Howson notes that while her career is important, she says "Ideally I would have liked to stay home until the children were in school."

However, like most working couples, she and her husband found they needed the extra income. She also admits she feared that resigning her post would hinder her chances for finding a future teaching job.

Howson also notes that the work/home crisis fell solely on her shoulders.

"My husband and I didn't even discuss the possibility that he would stay at home," she says.

Despite the changing make-up of the family unit, child-care still is a woman's dilemma. While working women seem to be taken on traditional male roles in the workplace, men have yet to feel totally comfortable as overseer of the household.

While men are taking on more child-rearing tasks and providing some reprieve for working partners, there has yet to be a total reformation of the father/husband role.

New hope in the workplace

While business and industry still have a long way to go in recognizing the needs of working parents (see related story), more and more professions are giving employees some assistance in ironing out their child-care quandry.

With a majority of female employees, hospitals are regarded as leaders in offering on-site child-care in the workplace. Other businesses offer flex time arrangements, part-time positions and child-care referral.

In 1982, the Novi Community Schools joined other districts in Oakland County in offering staff a shared-time option. Such an arrangement allows two teachers to take over duties for one classroom.

While the Northville Public Schools do not have the same option, NEA representative Barbara LeBoeuf noted that the district "has been receptive in letting teachers go to half-time positions."

"It is something we would like to see down the road," LeBoeuf notes. "Several districts have implemented it with positive results."

In the case of Howson and Karakashian, the arrangement not only has given both teacher/moms a peace of mind on the homefront but also has given them a new outlook in the classroom.

"Everyday I go in there I feel really good about what I'm doing," Karakashian says. "I give 100 percent."

"I think the district is getting the best out of us."

Latest trend is a center at the workplace

By PATRICIA N. BOWLING

Quality child-care is not just a problem for working parents, it's a problem for their employers, as well.

In the past, only industries with predominantly female employees, such as hospitals and textile factories, concerned themselves with on-site child-care facilities. According to statistics from the Child Care Coordinating Council of Detroit/Wayne County, there were only 18 corporations across the country offering child-care assistance to their employees in the 1960s. By 1974, only three remained.

Now there are an estimated 600 businesses and corporations sponsoring on-site child-care, about 300 of them hospitals.

"Employers are beginning to realize that this is a major concern on the part of their employees," commented Irene Stanko, a program specialist for the Child Care Coordinating Council.

And the concern is not just from female employees. "Now both men and women are concerned with and have responsibility for child-care. So both are looking for new options," Stanko noted.

To continue full-time employment, working parents may have to schedule several different child-care arrangements throughout the week. The result: Stress that affects the on-the-job productivity and morale of both mother and father.

Slowly, major corporations are beginning to take note of the advantages in having child-care as a company benefit. In addition to reducing absenteeism and tardiness, company-assisted child-care is believed to reduce employee turnover, improve worker morale, attract new employees and produce greater worker loyalty, Stanko suggested.

Only one nearby employer, Schoolcraft College in Livonia, has an on-site child-care facility for employees. However, Catherine Dully, assistant director of the facility, notes that providing care for children of faculty members is not their primary purpose.

"We have a two-fold emphasis. The first is to provide a training facility for students (in child care programs). The second is to provide a service for students," she explained.

But the Schoolcraft child-care center also serves the faculty and, to a limited extent, the community.

Throughout Oakland, Wayne and surrounding counties, hospitals provide the only real example of on-going child-care provisions exclusively for employees.

A unique, inter-generational program is underway at Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn. Program coordinator Geri Angel noted the hospital began offering adult day care for the elderly about 1½ years ago. In April, a program for children two months to five years old was added.

"Very gradually and very slowly, we have been bringing the two groups together for activities," she said, adding that the effort has generated an excellent response from employees who have children in the program.

The majority of their 33 children are in the infant/toddler units. "Infant care is so difficult to find. It's a major concern for parents because infant programs are so few and far between," Angel noted.

The child-care center, which is located in a former school building behind the hospital, is now on the orientation program for all new employees of Oakwood. It costs $75 a week for infants and toddlers; $65 for pre-school children.

"It's really very touching and heartwarming to see the infant and toddler room when the mothers get a chance to hold or nurse their babies at lunch time," Angel added.

St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital in Pontiac also runs an on-site child-care facility for employees. They have 75-80 children, with waiting lists in the infant/toddler units.

"The response has been overwhelming," said program coordinator Marcia Harris. Car companies and other private companies have visited the facility to investigate the concept, she noted.

"It greatly reduces the anxiety and guilt if you know that half a block away your child is being cared for by people whose sole responsibility is child care."

Despite the benefits, start-up costs and liability pose obstacles for companies considering an on-site child-care facility for employees. Angel estimated

In-home sitters create an 'underground economy'

By KEVIN WILSON

Once upon a time, when the working mother was a rarity and American mobility had not yet obliterated the extended family from the landscape, children whose parent or parents had to work were watched over by a grandmother or aunt.

Many child psychologists still consider that situation an ideal one — if the parents are unavailable, the next best thing is a caring relative who establishes a long-term relationship with the children.

And many parents would love to see it work that way. But, often as not, grandma and the other relatives are either themselves employed full time or living too far away to offer the help they might. And many a grandparent is unwilling to take on the chore of raising another batch of kids — they've done their time changing diapers and kissing skinned knees and are now busily pursuing some of the things they missed along the way.

The combined effect is a thriving market for babysitters who work in the child's home. Particularly for infants, whose needs for a close relationship with a primary caregiver are well-documented, many parents hope to find a "grandma for hire" rather than turning to the large centers that have many children and many caretakers.

But there is no requirement that people who go into another's home to provide daycare be registered — most of such activity is "off the books." Sometimes, it is in violation of state and federal tax or labor laws. Trying to determine how much of it is going on is virtually impossible.

"It's like trying to measure the invisible man," said Ted DeWolf, director of the child care licensing division of the state Department of Social Services.

The lack of regulation in this area is fairly deliberate, DeWolf indicated. "It's generally assumed that if the parent brings the person into their own home," he said, "that they're accepting a wider range of responsibility to choose the person intelligently. There are some minimal expectations for those (sitters) that receive a DSS payment, we call them Child Care Aides; but we only have contact with them because DSS pays child care costs through ADC."

He agreed that there is an entire underground economy for child care that is unregulated, often unreported and of undetermined size. All statistics available are mere guesswork, since many sitters are doing the job for sub-minimum wage, without paying taxes (both social security and income) or to supplement other income such as social security, general assistance or disability pensions. When that's the case, the sitters don't show up on public files (and, we found, are sometimes reluc-

Council endorses new sewer plan, then badmouths it

By KEVIN WILSON

Within an hour after adopting a new "super sewer" plan, city council members were discussing measures they thought might abolish the last slim hopes of having such a system built.

Council adopted the plan, without making any financial commitment, immediately after hearing a presentation from Richard Hinshon. Hinshon is a state DNR official on temporary assignment with Wayne County in an effort to put together a workable regional sewer improvement project.

He described the revised project plan and urged council to adopt it so that all requisite state and federal approvals can be secured in anticipation that financing may be possible one or two years from now.

A resolution approved on unanimous council vote states the city's "intent to participate in the construction of the project" contingent on an evaluation of the city's need for added sewer capacity and the ratification of a financing plan for the 15 participating communities establishing "affordable local cost" to match federal and state contributions.

But after Hinshon had left, Mayor Paul Vernon told council he had discussed with township supervisor Susan Heintz the possibility of constructing a local sewage storage system as an alternative to participating in the new sewer plan. He said Plymouth Township has also expressed an interest in a storage system.

"Susy (Heintz) told me without qualification that she would support a cooperative effort" for wastewater storage, Vernon said.

By storing sewage during peak flow periods and discharging into the system during periods of low demand, the requirement for added sewer capacity can be reduced or eliminated, consulting engineer Edward J. McNeely has told both the city and township.

Heintz confirmed Tuesday that she and Vernon have discussed wastewater storage plans but said that to her knowledge a three-community cooperative effort is not on the drawing boards.

Such a system might eliminate entirely the requirement that the city nearly double its sewer capacity. Preliminary estimates for a storage system in the township suggest it might cut costs for participation in a county project by as much as 50 percent — more than $2 million — but would not abolish the township's need for added sewer capacity.

"That would likely put an end to the plan, with those three communities coming out the rest of the plan would probably collapse," said Vernon, suggesting that reduced financial contributions from the two townships would increase the costs for the remaining 11 communities in the plan beyond affordability.

McNeely's preliminary estimates for the township suggest, however, that while storage can reduce the need for added capacity such a program cannot entirely eliminate the need for added capacity in the county sewer system. Since that system is already operating beyond capacity (discharging raw sewage into the Rouge River), some improvement/expansion program is needed to allow for future growth in the township.

But Hinshon's revived proposal "may come too late," said Northville City Councilmember Burton DeRusha.

"When they fooled around with it a year ago and the DNR shot us in the foot, they may have signed the death warrant for the project right there," DeRusha said. "There may have been unanimity (among served communities) then. I don't know that they'll ever get it again — particularly with the loss of 20 percent federal money."

Vernon laid the blame for the collapse of the sewer project plan last year directly at Hinshon's feet. Speaking after Hinshon was gone, he said: "He's the one person in the DNR who was stalling the project right along. Now he comes to us as a knight on a white charger who has come to save us from what he himself caused."

Last-minute snag delays DeHoCo

A minor glitch in the legislative process sent the moratorium bill preventing future prison sitings in Northville or Plymouth Township back to the state senate this week.

The bill approved by the senate on a 30-1 vote last week was amended at the last moment by Senator Nick Smith (R-Addison) to delete a clause abolishing the House of Corrections enabling act. The act, which allowed the City of Detroit to establish the Detroit House of Correction, was adopted in the 1890s.

Other legislation in the 1900s DeHoCo package approved by the Senate abolishes the enabling act, but the deletion from the moratorium bill written by Representative Gerald Law (R-Plymouth Township) was done without consulting Law.

"It's a gray area," Law admitted. "It appears that the clause may not be necessary, but then again it might. If we're going to err, I said, let's err on my side. I got into a little argument with Smith over it and people argued with me that it would take another week. But I figured, hey, we fooled around with this thing for eight months now, what's another week?"

Law said he returned the bill to the Senate for reconsideration under legislative rules. Smith has agreed to withdraw his amendment on reconsideration, he said.

Law and State Senator Robert Geake said they anticipate no problems in obtaining approval on reconsideration, followed by house concurrence on another amendment made by Geake.

Once those two steps are accomplished, the entire DeHoCo package will be ready for Governor James Blanchard's signature. The moratorium is the last bill awaiting legislative approval, the house having enrolled the other 18 bills in the package. With the state corrections system operating at 700 inmates over capacity, Blanchard is expected to sign the bills as soon as possible.

That done, the state can complete its agreement to purchase 123 acres of DeHoCo property from the City of Detroit. Nearly 900 acres of the land would remain under Detroit ownership.

Geake's amendment to the moratorium bill restricts use of the Detroit-owned property to uses allowed under local zoning restrictions.

The township has filed a petition with its own planning commission seeking a rezoning of the DeHoCo property in a commercial classification (business, office or industrial). It is presently zoned for single family housing.

Plymouth Township has already zoned the DeHoCo land there for light industrial uses.

The Northville Township planning commission has established a July 16 public hearing date for first consideration of the DeHoCo zoning issue. Planning consultant Claude Coates has been assigned preparation of an impact study of the proposal.

School coordinates summer work

Northville Public Schools currently has applications available for two young adult summer work programs.

The Michigan Youth Corps will operate in full swing again this year by placing 18-21 year olds in a variety of area jobs.

Work sites include state and local parks and recreation areas, state and local highway areas, schools, hospitals and similar locations.

The program is scheduled to operate for six to 12 weeks — 30-40 hours per week. To be eligible, applicants must be Michigan residents and unemployed.

Applications for the Summer Youth Employment Training Program (SYETP) also are available for young adults in the Northville, Plymouth and Canton communities.

The program is offered to students between the ages of 16 and 21 and places them into entry-level jobs in a variety of occupations throughout public and private non-profit organizations.

Participants will receive wages for 32 hours a week for eight weeks from June 17 through August 9.

To be eligible, applicants must live in the Plymouth-Canton or Northville school districts and must be low income or self-supporting.

Others who may be eligible include: students living with unemployed parents; those living with families receiving Aid to Dependent Children (ADC); college students working their way through college and supporting themselves by at least 50 percent, or handicapped youth.

The SYETP will be conducting a special two-day orientation and job skill workshop prior to the start of the program. Attendance at the workshop is required to participate.

All applications should be turned in by June 7.

Applications for both programs may be picked up from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday at the School Board Offices at 501 West Main, or at the M.E.S.C. Office on Joy Road in Canton.

Applications should be turned in as soon as possible, since they will be prioritized.

Further information may be obtained by calling Larry Greenway at 451-6307 between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m.

McAllister resigns as city clerk

The benefits are greater and Oak Park already has budgeted for its clerk to attend conventions and seminars. As clerk, she also will be executive secretary to the city's retirement board.

Oak Park will be sending her to Kalamazoo for factory training on the city's computer system, she has been told.

Presently serving as president of the Michigan Municipal Clerks' Association, Joan McAllister received her certification as a municipal clerk in 1980 and was accepted into the Advanced Academy of International Clerks. She has taken professional training in Lansing and at Schoolcraft and Madonna colleges.

She became Northville City Clerk nine years ago last March, coming from the Novi School System where she at the time was secretary to the high school principal. She joined the Novi School System in 1970, the year she was widowed.

Northville had had several acting city clerks since the death of Martha Milne. McAllister moved to Northville in 1978 with sons Price Jr., now married and living in Westland, and Bob, who is at home and a student at Wayne State University.

Vandals spray paint school buses

Names were not released of the 17 and 18 year olds as the investigation still is ongoing and no charges have been made officially.

School Superintendent George Bell told the board of education Monday that administrators, maintenance workers and transportation personnel were called to the bus garage at 6 a.m. to remove paint from the exterior of the buses before putting them on the road. Estimate of the cost to remove the spray paint and repaint the buses was given at $730. The estimate includes labor costs for overtime.

In addition, Fendelet said, when police reports were compiled, damage also was reported by spray paint on the brick wall at Chatham's on Center Street. The wall which faces the Lutheran school was sprayed with the letters "85". A garage at 410 East also was the work of one of the students, Fendelet has confirmed. Both incidents were reported to police Friday.

Fendelet says he has talked to all eight participants and adds, "and some of them have talked to me." He says he also is talking to parents. From the conversations, he says, he learned that initially "there were to be 20 to 25 participants" in the vandalism.

He says he was given the names of the participants as a result of an anonymous tip. The investigation is continuing. Because some of the license plates on the buses were bent upward, they were brought in to be checked for fingerprints.

School officials have indicated that they expect part of the punishment will be repayment to the high school of costs incurred

Police Blotters

Hospital walkaways recovered in city

In the City...

Two walkaways from the Northville Psychiatric Hospital on Seven Mile were apprehended by city police this week.

At 5:26 p.m. Sunday police responded to a radio report of a subject in the middle of the road attempting to stop cars at South Main at Seven Mile.

The patient, 36, was unshaven and appeared confused, the police report states. On questioning he stated he was a patient at the hospital. The hospital confirmed that he had walked away and sent a security officer to pick up the patient.

At 5:54 p.m. Monday police were called to the Asher 76 station at 357 South Rogers where a 31 year old male was sitting on the grass. He stated he was a patient at the hospital. The hospital confirmed that he had walked away and sent a security officer to pick up the patient.

A Silver Springs resident reported to city police May 30 the theft of a holder and six tapes from the dash of his unlocked car while he was at the library.

A Livonia resident reported to police May 29 at 5:27 p.m. she was driving west bound on Main east of Hutton when she heard a "bang" and discovered the back window of her Dodge Aries was broken by an unknown object.

Theft of a 1984 Ford Tempo valued at $8,500 was reported by McDonald Ford May 31 at 11:06 a.m. The vehicle was parked on the lot. Police still are investigating and the information has been entered into the LEIN network.

Through a LEIN check, Northville City Police May 25 found a 1985 red Mustang reported in the Downs parking lot was a stolen vehicle.

It had been reported stolen from the area of Seven Mile and Northville roads by a Brighton resident. When found, the driver's side door and rear quarter panel were damaged.

Larceny of a purse from a locker at Northville High School was reported to police Monday. Police also received a report of a broken 18 by 20 safety glass window from the inside of the school June 1.

...In the Township

Two drivers were injured in an auto accident May 31 on Eight Mile between Woodcreek and Meadowbrook, police reported.

Steven Fopma, 29, of Detroit, was ticketed for failure to stop within the assured clear distance ahead. He suffered a minor injury to his right elbow when he ran into the back of a car driven by Linda Reeves, 25, of Northville, according to the police report of the accident.

Reeves was treated at St. Mary Hospital for a strained cervical lumbar muscle and a swelling on the back of her head, police reported.

Reeves told police she had stopped her car in the left lane of eastbound Eight Mile while waiting for traffic to clear so she could make a left turn into the driveway of an Eight Mile Road residence when her car was hit from the rear. She said she had her left turn signal turned on.

Fopma told police he saw the traffic signal at Meadowbrook was green and did not realize Reeves' car was stopped until he was too close to stop. Another car in the right lane prevented him from swerving around the Reeves car, he said.

Police checked Reeves' car and found both the brake lights and turn signals operating properly.

A burglary at a West Eight Mile residence netted the perpetrator(s) an estimated $600 worth of goods, including a cornet and black powder musket, township police reported.

The owner of the home near Westview told police he was out of town May 24-27 and returned to find one of his own ladders propped against the back of the house and all interior rooms ransacked.

Police investigation determined that entry was gained through a rear (south) window. The burglar evidently used a flat-bladed tool to pry the window open, the pushed the screen into the house, police determined.

Reported stolen were a 1964 Holton cornet, silver in color and valued at $166.40, a late-1800s black powder musket of unknown caliber which the investigating officer estimated was worth $400, $35 in cash and coins and 99 personal checks that cost the victim $10. The owner was told to report the numbers of the stolen checks to his bank.

Civic Concern seeks help

The C.A. Smith Civic Concern Committee is looking for help.

Civic Concern is a non-profit organization made up of community members who care about helping others. The group meets the third Wednesday of the month at 2 p.m. at Bruce Roy Realty in Northville.

Nancy Denney, secretary of the organization, reported that Civic Concern exists for the purpose of helping you and your neighbors. "No neighborhood in our area is left untouched by someone in need," she said. "The needs vary, but the facts are that we need your help."

Denney said Civic Concern's biggest need is for financial assistance. So far during 1985, the group has served 25 families in dire need of housing, utilities and medical assistance in the Northville/Novi areas.

"We have a constant need for food as we serve 20-25 families and 100-125 people each week with food," she added. "We always have a need for home furnishings — pots, pans, tables, chairs and furniture — plus clothing for people of all ages."

"You may never know your neighbor is in need, but we do and we need your help and concern," she said.

More information about Civic Concern is available by calling Meadowbrook Christian Church at 348-3933, Bruce Roy Realty at 349-8700 or Denney at 349-6559.

Since the suspect had fled on foot, Hardesty said the officers requested that state police tracking dogs be called to the scene. The canine assistance was forwarded from the Flat Rock post of the Michigan State Police.

"With the information from the nephew, the dogs and some information from witnesses, the officers tracked the suspect and located the home he was believed to be inside," Hardesty said.

A search warrant was obtained from 35th District Court Judge John MacDonald in the early morning hours Sunday, Hardesty said. When the search was executed, the suspect was found inside the home and arrested. As of 3 p.m. Monday, the suspect had not yet been arraigned.

d. The Township Veterinarian shall forward a record of all dogs examined pursuant to the provisions of this Section to the Township Treasurer, who shall maintain the same for a period of 90 days.

SECTION XIV.

A law enforcement officer may kill a dog determined to be molesting wildlife and not hunting as defined in this Ordinance.

SECTION XV.

In Recognition

Students reap rewards for activities

In Recognition is a new column in The Record highlighting community achievements and honors of individuals and organizations.

On Saturday, May 4, the Cooke Symphonic Band, under the direction of Michael Rumbell, performed at the MSBOA State Band and Orchestra Festival.

The band took top honors by earning a first division rating. This is the highest possible rating a band can receive at festival. Judges gave the group 28 A's out of a possible 32 grades.

This puts the Cooke band among the finest bands in the state and is equivalent to a state championship title.

Fifty members of the Cooke and Meads Mill forensic teams traveled to the University of Michigan to compete in the 12th Annual Spring Middle School/Junior High School Individual Events Tournament.

The competition, sponsored by the Michigan Interscholastic Forensic Association, drew students from 16 schools in the state. Team members, who have been preparing for the tournament since February, each competed in one of nine different categories in the area of public speaking and oral interpretation.

Winning trophies from Cooke Junior High were Merrilyn Michellitch, first place in Extempore Speaking; Todd Clason, first place in Original Oratory; Jeannine LaPrad, second place in Original Oratory; Nancy Merrifield, third place in Humorous Interpretation and Carrie Bickner, sixth place in Impromptu Speaking.

Meads Mill forensic students who brought home trophies were Chris Leuliette and Lisa Carnes, first place in Duo Interpretation; Mark Dozier, first place in Impromptu Speaking; Mike Method, third place in Extempore Speaking; Avansh Bhavsar, fifth place in Impromptu Speaking and Tom Whelan, sixth place in Humorous Interpretation.

All the other team members from both schools won certificates of excellence, and Northville's junior highs maintained their nine-year record among the top forensic teams in the state.

Northville junior and senior high school students recently took top honors in the Fifth Annual Wayne County Student Writing Competition.

The competition, sponsored by the Wayne County Intermediate School District, recognizes student writings in the categories of short story, essay and poetry.

Cooke Junior High School dominated the competition by taking 31 percent of the awards given in the junior division. Cooke topped its previous four years of consistent awards in the competition.

Winning first prize for poetry was ninth grader Nancy Merrifield. First prize in the essay category was won by Cooke seventh grader Maria Wen. Second prize in short stories went to Kara Goscinski, while second prize in essay went to Erin Carroll.

Sixteen students in seventh and eighth grades were awarded certificates of merit in both essays and short stories — Todd Berlinski and Carrie Bickner. Other awards for short stories went to Scott Belliston, Susan Bickner, Ruth Chesney, Cristen Gazlay, Kim Harris, Teresa McConville, Merrilyn Michellitch and Paul Stoecklin.

Other certificate awards in essays were earned by Jennifer Hansen, Eric Krieger and Jeannine LaPrad. Emily Danes placed with a certificate of merit in poetry.

Dorothea Bach and Carol Pasco worked with the winning seventh grade writers. Mary Freydl worked with the ninth graders.

Looking back on nine winning years sponsoring writing competitions at Cooke, Mary Freydl, chairperson of the English Department, said "the talent is out there. It takes the right class offerings, the support of central office and the local school, and the interest, time and dedication of staff — but there are students who can, do and love to write."

"They only wait to be encouraged, guided and counseled. Of course, the ninth grade moving to the high school will impact on our win record as the ninth graders are the most literate, sophisticated group we have had to work with, but the strong wins at the seventh grade level this year in this contest and The Detroit Free Press contest show what can be done."

In the senior high division, Northville High School student Matt McDonough took a first place in short story. Lisa Felicelli earned a certificate of merit in the short story category.

Northville High School students dominated the senior division poetry category with Wendy Harsch taking second place and Maureen Clancy earning third place honors. Certificate of merit winners in the poetry category included Christine Diehl, Maureen Okasinski and Dawn Schweim.

Luke Kakogeorgiou took a third place award in senior high essay with Denise Colovas earning a certificate of merit.

English department chairperson Nancy Brown and teacher Pat Dorrian Sandbothe worked with the winning writers.

On May 22, an awards ceremony was held to honor students writers.

Cikanek wins honors as aerospace engineer

Harry A. Cikanek III, a 1977 graduate of Northville High School and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Cikanek Jr. of Morgan Circle, has been named an Outstanding Young Aerospace Engineer for 1984.

An aerospace engineer with Systems Dynamics Laboratory in Alabama, Cikanek was presented the Alabama-Mississippi Section of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics (AIAA) Outstanding Young Aerospace Engineer Award for 1984 during an Engineers Week banquet earlier this year.

He is an aerospace engineer in the Servomechanisms and Systems Stability Branch of the Control Systems Division.

He was nominated for the award "in recognition of his contributions both technically and to the community," it was reported in the Marshall Star, publication of the public affairs office at the George C. Marshall Space Flight Center, National Aeronautics and Space Administration, near Huntsville, Alabama.

Cikanek is a 1983 graduate of the Georgia Institute of Technology where he received a master of science degree in mechanical engineering. He was a co-op employee at Marshall during 1980-81 and became a permanent employee in September, 1983.

Dr. Luke A. Schutzenhofer, chief of the Servomechanisms and Systems Stability Branch, reported, "He has initiated significant new research and development efforts in modeling and simulating SSME (Space Shuttle main engine) controls, health monitoring and transient performance."

The engineer currently is studying concepts for real time failure detection for rocket engines during hot fire testing and has "conceived, planned and managed activities related to anomaly and failure detection of hot fire rocket engine systems," the Marshall Star article stated.

In addition, he has "contributed toward implementing and improving a digital transient model of the SSME," Schutzenhofer said. "He has also integrated his activities with the appropriate organizational elements within Marshall and the engine contractors in an effort to produce consistent and reliable results."

Council designates week in honor of Jeffrey Peters

The week of June 16-21 has been declared "Presidential Scholars National Recognition Week" in the city in honor of Jeffrey Peters, the Northville High School senior who will receive the White House award that week.

Mayor Paul Vernon presented Peters with a framed city council resolution Monday night recognizing his selection as one of only 141 Presidential Scholars nationwide.

The resolution stated that city council

"recognizes his accomplishment" and "commends him" for the honor brought to the community.

Peters, accompanied by his family, accepted the award and said he was "overwhelmed" by the recognition.

"We certainly are extremely proud of your accomplishment," Vernon told the graduating senior, noting that the designation as a Presidential Scholar is "the highest honor bestowed on high school graduates."

"WATER PILLS"

According to a 1984 prescription audit, a popular diuretic (frequently called a "water pill") was the most commonly dispensed prescription medicine in the U.S. Diuretics help remove excessive water from the body. One might conclude that a great number of Americans have bodies swollen with fluid and, therefore, require diuretic treatment. Not so.

Diuretics are useful in several conditions characterized by excessive body fluid, including congestive heart failure and premenstrual syndrome. Yet, one of the most common uses of diuretics is treatment of high blood pressure. All individuals with high blood pressure do not have excessive amount of water in their bodies.

A few individuals are allergic or otherwise sensitive to certain of these agents. The most common problem with typical diuretics is hypokalemia, low blood and body potassium levels caused by excretion of potassium via the urine. Symptoms of hypokalemia include muscle aches, muscle cramps, and a feeling of fatigue. Potassium can be replaced in the body by taking a potassium supplement medicine (on prescription) or by ingesting foods that are high in this important mineral.

Dance company slates recital June 20 in Novi

"Hello, Detroit!" is the theme and opening number of the annual dance recital sponsored by the Piazza Dance Company of Northville at 7:30 p.m. June 20 at Novi High School.

The winning Detroit Tigers, Renaissance Center and Ambassador Bridge were inspiration for this year's recital, report the three sisters who run the dance company — Denise Steele of Walled Lake, Marilyn Esper of Farmington Hills and Gina Piazza of Livonia. Tickets for the recital are $4 for adults and $3.50 for children under 12. They are available from the Piazza Company located in Highland Lakes Shopping Center in Northville.

"Hello, Detroit!" is one of three award-winning dances to be seen in the recital. The recent Dance Masters of America state-wide competition awarded first place trophies to all three of the company's entrants. Other numbers include "Heaven Hop" and "The Kids American," both lively jazz routines. The recital also will include other types of dance, from classical ballet to tap and hula.

The three sister-owners are part of a professional Hawaiian-Tahitian revue known as the Hapa-Hula Dancers.

Two high schools slate reunions

Mackenzie High School Class of 1943 will have its 42-year reunion June 21 at the Holiday Inn on West Six Mile at the I-275 expressway. Area alumni are asked to make reservations for the dinner dance with Northville resident Stan Petres, 349-6016, or with Chuck Low, 626-7505.

The 1964 graduating class of Detroit Cody High School is seeking alumni in the area to help celebrate the 21st year reunion.

It will be held October 12 at the new Novi Hilton which is due to open in July. Reservations should be made by calling 277-0570.

Storm damages Marquis

Patrons of the Northville Marquis Theater expecting to take in a discount viewing of the movie "Witness" last weekend instead witnessed the fallout of Thursday's thunderstorms: thousands of dollars of damage to the downtown theater.

"We think the metal door to the roof was open and all that rain just poured in," said owner Inga Zayti. "It was a terrible mess."

Zayti said the worst damage was to the Marquis' remarkable and valuable collection of stage costumes. "At least 80-90 percent of them were completely soaked," Zayti said. An estimate of damages is expected to be available this week.

Rainwater flooded much of the theater too, forcing a shutdown for repairs. Zayti said she expects the working crew she has contracted to have the theater back in working order before June 27.

Day care focus moves to the workplace

start-up costs for the Oakwood facility at about $10,000.

Employers should not expect such centers to pay for themselves, according to one program director. There are on-going costs as well as the start-up costs, and the need for company subsidies should be expected.

Because of the expense of on-site child-care, some companies are seeking other alternatives. IBM, for example, contracts with the Child Care Council of Detroit/Wayne County. The council serves as a referral service for IBM employees, helping them locate the child-care services they need.

"Where there are gaps in service, we have the money to do recruitment and training to try and fill those gaps," Stanko explained.

On June 1, for example, the council will sponsor a conference for recruiting people to provide infant and toddler care. "That's the gap in service right now in Oakland County," Stanko said.

The conference will be held at the Birmingham Unitarian Church at Woodward Avenue and Lone Pine Road. (Registration can be made by calling the Oakland County Child Care Council at 858-5140).

Other companies attempting to provide a child-care benefit include Ford, which offers a child-care subsidy to eligible employees, and Comerica, which will take money off the top of an employee's salary (before taxes) for the purpose of child-care. "It's like a voucher system for child-care," Stanko explained.

The Child Care Coordinating Council receives inquiries from industry, governmental agencies and hospitals about setting up child-care benefits for employees. Later this year, the council plans a conference on employee-sponsored child-care. "It's a real hot topic now," Stanko suggested.

Legislation to require criminal history checks

be sufficient to identify the sexual or physical abuser," said Ted DeWolf, head of the DSS child care licensing division. "Many of them don't have a record, for one thing. But it might deter someone from trying — an abuser, say, who thought a good way to get to children would be working in a day care center might abandon the idea if he or she knew they'd have to submit to a criminal history check."

DSS presently has the administrative authority to demand criminal history checks for child care center licensees but is already operating short of staff, and legislation requiring the checks could also help provide financing to prevent child abuse in centers.

According to the house legislative analysis section, approval of the new legislation could make the state eligible for an estimated $500,000 in federal aid under the Omnibus Crime Control Act of 1984. These additional block grant funds are designated for training providers, state licensing personnel and the parents of children using child care in the prevention of child abuse.

The house analysis states that DSS has already secured a $1 million grant for such training. But without legislation requiring the criminal history check by September 30 of this year, one-half the grant amount would be deducted from next year's allocation.

Precautions advised for tornado season

It's tornado time.

The last few springs have been windy ones for the Northville community, and local authorities are trying to get the word out on how to take precautions in the event of serious windstorms.

First, the difference between a Tornado Watch and a Tornado Warning is this: a Tornado Watch means tornadoes and severe thunderstorms are possible. A Tornado Warning means a tornado has been detected and that shelter should be taken immediately.

When a tornado warning — one three-minute siren blast — is sounded, take shelter immediately. Stay away from windows, doors and outside walls, and protect your head.

If you are in a home or a small building, go to the basement or an interior part on the lowest level (closets, bathrooms or interior halls) and get under something sturdy. Equip yourself with the following: a transistor radio, flashlight and one-gallon container of water.

If you are in a school, nursing home, hospital, factory or shopping center, go to the pre-designated shelter area. Interior hallways on the lowest floor are usually best.

In a high-rise building, go to interior small rooms or hallways.

If you are in a mobile home or driving, leave it and go to a substantial structure. If there is no shelter nearby, lie flat in the nearest ditch, ravine or culvert with your hands shielding your head.

Our Opinions

Candidates rate some voter interest

Why bother? That's a not unusual — and on the surface reasonable — reaction of voters who realize there is no opposition to the one candidate running for the single board seat open in the Northville Public Schools election Monday and who wonder why they should go to the polls at all.

In addition, candidate Jean Hansen is the capable incumbent currently serving as board president.

In her four years on the board, Hansen has served the community's interests through her dedication and commitment. We have been most impressed this past year during her tenure as president. The former teacher was infallible in her handling of district school closings this year. Presiding over three public hearings, Hansen was considerate of the community's concerns without forgetting the district's purpose. Her control, organization and understanding alleviated an emotional backlash and helped promote district unity and a sense of purpose.

A vote Monday will in this instance be one of confidence for a competent, hard working school board member who merits another term. Perhaps that is why she is without opposition.

Northville voters, however, do have a choice to make in the Schoolcraft Community College election, held in conjunction with the local district election. Livonia resident and a Ford engineer Hussein S. Karzun is challenging incumbents Michael W. Burley and Sharon L. Sarris for one of the two seats open.

Burley, a resident of the Plymouth-Canton School District and a teacher in Northville, currently is serving as president of the Schoolcraft Board of Trustees. While we have frequently said we would like to see a Northville resident on the board, Burley certainly has familiarity with the community. Under at-large voting for board seats, it is virtually impossible to elect a resident from Northville, a smaller district in the Schoolcraft district (which also includes Livonia, Plymouth-Canton, Garden City and Clarenceville). Sarris, originally appointed to a board vacancy, earned re-election to a two year term in 1983. She is a General Motors communications manager and a Livonia resident. Even the challenger admits he finds little to fault in their records. We recommend both be returned to the Schoolcraft board.

Strong leaders won prison moratorium

We have to admit to snickering a little when local officials started talking about a moratorium against future prison sitings in Northville. "Sure," we thought, "the state's going to be real willing to set a precedent establishing limits on state authority just because little Northville wants them. Particularly with a Democratic administration and house of representatives."

In this case, we're thrilled to be proven wrong. The state wasn't particularly willing to consider a moratorium initially. But what we've seen as the Detroit House of Correction bills moved through Lansing is that a determined group of local officials and legislators who refuse to relent to pressure can, at least, battle Lansing and City of Detroit to a draw.

While outsiders depict these local figures as obstructionists who unnecessarily delayed the much-needed expansion of the state prison system, we must commend their efforts. At no point did local legislators oppose prison expansion or even try to delay it. They only stood up for the legitimate interests of their constituents. When other political figures in Michigan do similar things, they are commended as "strong leaders."

So here's a pat on the back to the strong leaders we have in this area, including Representative Gerald Law, township supervisors Susan Heintz and Maurice Breen and the township boards who authorized the hiring of a Lansing lobbyist to aid in the fight. Having lobbied Senator Robert Geake for not fully participating early in the process, we must recognize his efforts in the later stages. At a crucial point in the negotiating process he squashed a late amendment that might have allowed more prisons on Detroit-owned land here.

The exertion of political muscle on behalf of a local interest is not often an easy thing to do or a pretty thing to watch, but sometimes it is necessary. When that time comes, leaders from smaller communities deserve the same degree of respect afforded their counterparts in the state bureaucracy or in larger cities. We're happy to say they've earned it.

Daddy's gone a-hunting

By B.J. Martin

The last few weeks you may have noticed our series of articles called "Who's Minding the Children?" If you haven't, then it looks like we've blown a lot of money on promoting it.

Anyway, you've probably been concerned about the fact that my byline doesn't appear on any of the feature articles or any other subject matter related to "Who's Minding The Children?" In order to set your mind to rest, I will explain why I haven't contributed to this important piece of team investigative reporting.

My assignment for the series was to dig up a Househusband and describe what an important part of the emerging American landscape this New Man represents. How he scornfully turns aside the jeering of his macho friends. How he learns the skills of nurturing children and home maintenance. How he has come to appreciate the plain and simple joys of a life devoted to the care and protection of the nuclear family.

It was a story that could write itself. There was only one problem: I would have to make the whole thing up.

For weeks, everybody on our staff went through acquaintances, new and old sources, leads, hunches and so on, trying to dig up one lousy Househusband. Soon, I figured it might be necessary to go outside of our readership area to find such a guy. After a month or so, I was ready to settle for some poor fellow who was just temporarily unemployed and watching the kids till something came up. Even that I couldn't come by.

Oh, the temptation to ad lib it was strong. I can tell you, brothers and sisters. The devil himself put an arm on my shoulder and said, "Make it up, kiddo. You'll bring home an award and become a hero to women's liberationists for generations to come."

But no, my fellow Americans. I cannot tell a lie. Not while keeping a straight face, anyway. And so it is my sad duty to impart this fact: there is no such thing as a Househusband. In fact, judging from the various child-care options reviewed in this ongoing series, I'm not sure there's such a thing as a Housewife. Apparently, Househusbanding is a child-care option whose time has not come quite yet.

Now why is this, I wondered. One would think the Househusband arrangement would suit some men's preferred lifestyle pretty nicely. If John Lennon had stuck to it, he might be stirring up Beatles reunion rumors to this very day.

I used to think it might not be so bad, bowing out of the 9-to-5 clock-punching lifestyle. In the comfort of one's own home, I thought, one could write, read, paint, build, sculpt, compute, play, garden, cook, laze around, work out, catch up with the soaps, raise cucumbers, children or earthworms...

Of course, it doesn't work like that, or else right now we'd be neck deep in books, paintings, crafts, statues, games, flowers, pasta, muscles, cucumbers and earthworms. Surprise, surprise: raising babies is not a part-time job.

So is the absence of Househusbands such a bad thing? You betcha. It means a) we don't make as much money as we used to, since it now takes two incomes to raise a family; b) we don't trust our partner in life enough to abandon the career-based lifestyle and place our security in her (or his, for that matter) hands; c) not many women make enough money to support a family; and d) the separation and misunderstandings between the sexes will continue, with no common ground of experience.

It's getting near graduation time, and high school seniors across the U.S. will be urged by their commencement speakers, valedictorians and salutatorians to Make The Most Out of Their Lives, Be All That They Can Be, and Have It All. I say, don't be afraid to not have it all.

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

"What do you think you're doing?" she asked. It was one of those questions which isn't really a question, but a demand for an explanation.

Not about to put up with any guff, I responded in kind. "What does it look like I'm doing? I'm scaling Mt. Everest. Because it's there."

"No you're not," she replied perceptively. "You can't scale Mt. Everest standing over the kitchen sink. You're washing the empty Pepsi bottles again, aren't you?"

She had me cold. The Mt. Everest line hadn't worked. Didn't fool her for a second. And the carton of empty Pepsi bottles standing next to me on the counter by the sink was in her estimation incriminating evidence.

I don't know why I should have to apologize for washing my empty Pepsi bottles before returning them to the store. But for some reason it drives her crazy.

I'm not a fanatic about it. I don't put every bottle in hot sudsy water and wash the inside with a bottle brush. But I do like the bottles to be clean when I take them back, so I run a little water inside the bottle, swish it around and then take a damp cloth and wash the outside before putting it back in the carton.

Common courtesy, right?

I've asked her to do the same. But do you think she'll take 30 seconds to rinse off the bottle? Definitely not. She just plops it back in the carton. And then has the audacity to criticize me for exhibiting a little cleanliness.

Her position is that if I want to clean something I should wash the windows, polish my shoes or vacuum the inside of my car. It's a valid position. She's probably right.

But then she's never had to return the empties either. And it's the fur from her cats that sticks to the outside of sticky Pepsi bottles that led to my obsession with cleaning the bottles in the first place.

Fortunately, there's a happy ending to this story. I wait till she leaves for work in the morning, check the carton in the back room and rinse out the ones she put away without washing. I dare say the bottles I take back to the store are now the cleanest in town.

Coach suspends students

Two Northville High School students were suspended for reports they were drinking alcohol before the last varsity softball game of the 1985 season.

According to school officials, one senior and one junior were put on a three-day suspension for their violation, a first-time offense.

"That's our policy for any athlete involved in drinking," said Northville High School Assistant Principal Ralph

Redmond. "It fell directly under our handbook ruling."

Redmond said he had learned about the incident from parents who attended the May 24 game.

"It's very unfortunate because the coaches have worked hard with this group of girls," Redmond said. "I'm sure they'd reconsider if they had to do it over again. As far as I'm concerned, it's over and done with."

Reader Speaks

Seniors appreciative

To the Editor:

We the senior citizens of Northville and Northville Township are grateful for having the Senior Activity Center available to use twice a week for cards and games, and classes on other days.

We also are glad to have the services of a senior coordinator again. With the help of the coordinator and two new members on the senior council, it is hoped that we will have increased programming and resulting participation.

The problem of transportation should be helped by the purchase of the new senior bus. This should help in bringing together groups from Allen Terrace, Kings Mill and Swan Harbour to the center.

Great things should be in the future for our seniors.

Mrs. Leon Price
Secretary
Northville Senior Citizens Club

Giving kids a second 'home'

day care home operators in the county.

"We think we provide, and parents prefer, a more natural, family-type atmosphere, particularly for younger children," she said.

She noted also that day care homes have "permanence of care-givers" and that parents can get to know the one or two people caring for their children better than they might at a large center. In the case of older children, the day care home staff to child ratio is smaller than in large centers.

Costs at day care homes are competitive with those of child care centers and often lower, according to Carol Quarterman of the Detroit-Wayne County Child Care Coordinating Council. An average of $45 a week for older children and up to $75 a week for infants.

"Child care costs are generally the fourth highest in a family's expenses, behind only food, shelter and taxes," Quarterman said. "I've seen home economists quoted saying child care should probably not consume more than 10 percent of a family's gross income."

"With costs averaging $2,500 to $3,000 a year per child, you can see that someone earning only $10,000 a year is going to be running 25 to 30 percent," she continued. "It gets to be a real determining factor, particularly for the single parent. It bears directly on whether they can afford to work."

Family day care homes provide service for an average of 50 hours per week at an average $45-$50 a child and ranging up to about $75 a week for infants, Quarterman said. Gillespie quoted an average of $60 to $70 a week.

Both stressed that day care home operators support the idea of parents having a choice of child care alternatives. "We don't think we have to compete with the centers or in-home sitters," Gillespie said. "The demand is just so great that competition isn't a big factor — we like to see parents have choice of types of care."

Joyce Beacom, coordinator of the Oakland County Child Care Coordinating Council, agreed with Quarterman and Gillespie that there are definite advantages to the operator, parent and child in the licensed homes as opposed to the unlicensed ones.

"We encourage people to become licensed," Beacom said. "For one thing, it gives them a track record in case anything comes up, say a child is hurt or an accusation is made of abuse."

Gillespie said the day care home operators "really need a license for their own protection — you have no liability insurance if you're not licensed. You really need a separate policy to do day care."

Other advantages of licensing she cited include a U.S. Department of Agriculture program that reimburses day care home operators for the cost of meals served to children. (The Reagan administration has proposed abolishing the program and replacing it with a means test that would provide Agriculture Department payments only for meals served needy youngsters).

Beacom, Gillespie and Quarterman all mentioned educational workshops offered day care home operators.

"Day care providers are really becoming more professional all the time," Quarterman said. "They're starting to treat the business as a career."

Gillespie said her group's primary goal is to "upgrade the quality of child care." To that end, the organization provides workshops once a month "to teach quality day care. I've been in day care for 10 years now and I still find the workshops educational — you're always picking up a little something new. We focus on things you can do with the children, sometimes on what you can expect from kids at certain ages."

Besides that, Gillespie said minutes after sending her eight charges home for the day, "it's necessary in this business to meet other people who are doing this, exchange information and see that you aren't alone."

tant to talk to newspaper reporters).

The parent who goes into the marketplace seeking such services, then, does so with little guidance and less assurance of success than is available in the structured systems of daycare homes, child care centers and the like.

Many parents seem to find the benefits well worth the risks. Having a sitter come to the home, if you're among the lucky few who find someone trustworthy, reliable and with easy access to transportation, not only may provide stability for the child but also is more convenient for the parent.

Eliminating the need to pack daily diaper bags for an infant or hustle a slow-waking toddler into clothes and car for a rush hour dash to a center miles off the route to work can prove a powerful incentive for harried working parents to seek an in-home sitter.

Pick up any newspaper classified advertising section and the demand is easily seen — there are often several columns of ads placed by parents seeking a "babysitter, in my home." There are far fewer ads from people offering such a service.

But Carol Quarterman of the Wayne County/Detroit Child Care Coordinating Council said her organization is attempting to encourage sitters to start operating out of their own homes and seek the state license.

"We think part of the reason there is a lot of unlicensed activity is that people aren't understanding the advantages," Quarterman said. "There are tax advantages in using your home as a place of business, for instance. A lot of these sitters don't know about the legal requirements such as making sure the parent/employer pays FICA (social security tax). If you pay someone over $50 a month, you have to deduct FICA."

"There's a lot of education that needs to be done, as to who does or does not need to be licensed, about the minimum wage, about deductions for income taxes and worker's compensation," she continued. Quarterman added that newspaper classified advertising sections, evidently for liability reasons, often allow only licensed daycare homes to advertise under a "child care" classification.

There are also liability questions to consider. If the sitter is hurt while in your home, will homeowners' insurance cover the costs of the potential legal suit? Liability and insurance questions may be more favorable to the parent if the employment is entirely within the law, but the answer may vary among insurers and experts advised that parents make inquiries about their coverage before entering into an in-home child care arrangement.

Abuse reports prompt more-caution

"I can't stress enough the importance that (parents) go and visit the provider, get to know the person and the place where they are going to put their children," Quarterman said. "Some parents are under a lot of pressure to find something quickly. We used to get a lot of people who'd call and just want three, references to the nearest providers, pick up the phone and if the first one had an opening, they'd put their child there the next day. We get less of that now. Now people are taking a lot more time."

Both county coordinating councils make referrals to parents who ask, providing a list of licensed facilities within the area the parents choose. Beacom noted that they also have pamphlets and information sheets to help parents sort among the alternatives to find the right type of day care for their needs.

The councils (shorthand form is Oakland 4C and Detroit-Wayne 4C) are non-profit, private organizations that serve as information clearing houses for providers and parents. Both are listed in local directories. The Detroit-Wayne 4C is in Detroit, the Oakland 4C in Pontiac where it shares space with Oakland-Livingston Human Services Agency (OLHSA).

The Northville Record

Ducker, Korowin, Nowka honorees

It must've been hard for Northville's soccer team to hear the score of last Saturday's Class A state championship game.

The Livonia Stevenson Spartans dominated high-ranked Troy Athans for a 5-2 win. Compare that tally to the Stevenson-Northville regional title game, which Stevenson won in overtime 2-1.

But there was consolation in last week's soccer news: nine Northville players were singled out for honors by Western Lakes Activities Association coaches last week.

Even better, sophomore goalkeeper Tricia Ducker was named second-team all-state and senior midfielder Kathy Korowin was an honorable mention all-state pick.

Korowin and classmate Julie Nowka were all-conference selections from Northville. Both are seniors.

Ducker, center back Cheryl Spaman and versatile defender-midfielder-forward Kim Flading were named to the All-Western Division team, and Jill Gallagher, Michelle Cross, Julie Anger and Jodi Smalec were granted honorable mention status.

"I was pleased to see our players get some recognition," Smalec said, although he acknowledged he thought several of the Mustangs — particularly Korowin and Ducker — deserved more.

"But that's the way the selection process operates," he added philosophically. "I can't say we didn't get some support. I think Ken Johnson (coach at Plymouth Salem and a state selection committee representative) was very fair to us."

Korowin has probably been Nor-thville's best all-around player for the last two seasons. The senior scored four goals this year, and collected 36 assists. "Kathy did an outstanding job for us," Smalec said. "She was definitely our leader."

Until she played the last five games of the season with severe ankle injuries, Smalec added, "Her contributions were immeasurable. She was an inspiration to the younger girls on the team."

Smalec called defender Nowka "the most underrated player in the league."

"She didn't attract too much notice because teams tended to stay away from her," Smalec said. "People just didn't score from her side of the field." Despite playing the entire season with a cracked vertebra, Nowka helped anchor a defense that permitted only 156 shots all season, and just 18 goals. Northville played four games in which opponents never even fired a shot.

Flading earned a reputation as Northville's workhorse, an up-and-down the field type player who glued together offense and defense. Smalec said her return next year will maintain Northville's up-the-middle strength.

Spaman, a senior, was Northville's most intimidating player. "A lot of the other teams had players who could score just by physically intimidating the defenders," Smalec pointed out. "Well, nobody intimidates Cheryl. Her kicking got us out of a lot of trouble this season."

Ducker, Smalec contended, was by far the best goalkeeper in the conference, if not in the state. Of 481 shots against the second-year starter, a shot, only 53 goals scored.

Defenders Gallagher and Cross, forward Anger and midfielder-forward Jodi Smalec emerged as increasingly important players as the 1985 season progressed.

That foursome will likely be the nucleus of Northville's 1986 and 1987 season.

Steady Gallagher and speedster Cross will anchor Northville's defense, while Cross and Jodi Smalec began showing signs of becoming explosive scorers.

Sophomore goalie Ducker was picked second team all-state

'Discover Northville Run' this June

Northville's Rotary Club is ready to throw in the towel for this year's Discover Northville Run.

Here's the rub: race directors who in the past have come up with t-shirts, long-sleeved shirts and athletic bags for registered competitors in the event, this year are using towels as the commemorative giveaway to entrants.

"And they're really nice towels, too. We thought that would be something different," chuckles Dick Milder, director of the June 29 event.

That's right, June 29. In previous years, the run had been held in October.

But beginning this year, the date will be bumped up to the last Saturday in June.

"We noticed that we weren't getting too many young people and college-age people running and competing," said Milder. "This way, school will be out and kids will be able to find time to compete."

As in previous years, there will be a one-mile "fun run" for children, beginning at 9 a.m.; followed by the five-kilometer and 10-kilometer races, which both begin at 9:30 p.m. All races begin and end at Northville Downs, Center (Sheldon) at Seven Mile Road.

This year's race will provide computerized results, trophies and ribbons to top sex and age-group competitors, and pizza and refreshments to all participants after the race.

Entry fee is $7 in advance, $9 the day of the race. Proceeds from the event go to Northville community service projects backed by Northville Rotary.

Registration forms can be obtained through the mail by phoning Milder at 478-7330 or by writing to Dick Milder, 20002 Farmington Road, Livonia, MI 48152.

Colts registration due this weekend

Many little league football players dream about playing pro football someday — and this year's Northville-Novi Colts will get at least a taste of that dream when they play one of their season games in the Pontiac Silverdome this fall.

The Colts are scheduled to take on the Garden City Chargers on October 27 after the regularly-scheduled Detroit Lions NFL football game.

Colts directors are making this announcement in conjunction with notification of Saturday's sign-up. Registration will take place from 10 a.m. to noon at the Northville Community Center, or at McNish's Sporting Goods at 10 Mile and Meadowbrook in Novi.

The Colts have three teams: a freshman squad for players age 9-10, junior varsity for players 11-12 and varsity for players age 12 and 13.

Minimum weight is 65 pounds and maximum is 140. Requirements for each age group vary so that teams play opponents of the same age and weight class.

The cutoff date for age determination is September 1.

The Colts have purchased new equipment for this season including 25 new helmets and new improved body pads. Also under consideration are new lightweight knee braces similar to those used in college and by pros.

The Colts uniforms are similar to Green Bay Packers outfits, with gold pants, gold helmets and white jerseys. Each player's name is lettered on the back of his jersey and he keeps the jersey at the end of the season.

Practice begins August 12, and the season ends with a banquet November 5.

BASEBALL/SOFTBALL Tie for 'G' lead

G LEAGUE: The Mets pounded out 14 hits for a 13-3 win over the Padres May 23 despite two home runs by the Padres' George Smoyer. Winning pitcher Mike Lang struck out seven batters in three innings, homered and drove in two runs for the winners. Teammate Bob Forte also homered and drove in two runs and Bob Holloway drove in four runs with a 2-for-3 effort. Chris Harris was 2-for-2 with two RBIs. The Padres beat the Cubs 2-1 in a May 21 pitching duel between the Cubs' Bill Kelley and Glenn Braasch and the Padres' Jeff McDonald, winning pitcher Brad Telepe, and John Schreiber. Cub hurlers struck out 16 and allowed two hits, while the Padres fanned nine and allowed just three hits. Best of all was Schreiber, who struck out the side in each of the last two innings and hit a game-winning solo homer in the fourth. The Mets defeated the Cardinals 11-3 May 20 behind the amazing pitching of starter Mike Lang. Lang worked just three innings but struck out 10 batters (one was safe at first on a dropped third strike). Bob Holloway went 2-for-2 with two RBIs, and Ryan Kiner doubled, tripled and drove in two runs. The Cards were led by Jason Flading's fine relief pitching and the hitting of Scott Leahlitz, who tripled and drove in a run. As of May 21, "G" League standings were as follows: Cubs, Mets 3-0; Angels 2-2; Rangers 1-1; Cards, Padres 1-2; Braves, 0-2; Phillies 0-3.

H LEAGUE: The Rangers' 14-11 win over the Mets May 24 was more a walkfest than a slugfest. Ranger pitchers issued 17 walks to go with their 14 strikeouts while the Mets gave up 13 free passes. The Rangers rallied for five runs in the fifth inning to post the victory. Winning hurler Josh Wiegand and teammate Steve Straley each homered and tripled and drove in four runs. Dean Frelick homered and drove in three runs for the Mets. On May 20, the Rangers topped the Reds 7-1 with pitcher Mark Scholz and relievers James Heitert and Wiegand together allowing just one hit and 18 strikeouts. Mark Fagnani drove in two runs for the Rangers. The Mets thumped the Phillies 15-2 on May 15 behind the 3-hit pitching of Mike Lang, Jeff Cass, Bob Forte and Bob Holloway each had two hits for the winners while Tim Petrosky pitched effectively and singled in a run for the Phils. The Angels handed the Phillies a 10-4 loss May 20. Winning pitcher Todd Bono and reliever Tim Reardon together allowed just two hits. On offense, Bono had two hits and two runs, and Steve Heitert and Kevin McCullough each had two hits for the winners. The Phils were boosted by reliever Kevin Rosinski and the defensive work of catchers Carl Brown and Steve Schultz, plus first baseman Tom Gatti. On May 24, the Pirates downed the Reds 22-10, with Kevin and Eric Shaw homering for the winners, and Bobby Dee, David Murray, Jason Good, Dan Lyczak and Jason Pettie each scoring twice and driving in a run. The Expos downed the Cubs 15-4, even though Cubs pitchers Jason Tarrow, Brian Jackson and Chuck Appleton together allowed only one hit. The Expos were led by the defense of infielders Brian Buser and Matt Popov and John Buser. Pitcher Steve Christianson got the Expos off to a hot start with three no-hit innings against the Expos May 29, but the Expos went on to win 8-4. The Expos were led by Spencer Hooks, who socked a grand slam, by Andy Gentili, who drove in three runs, and by the great glove work of third baseman Chris Cook. The Expos tied the Braves 11-11 when umpires called their game May 28. Matt Popov, Ryan Hyland and David Cummings' bats based the Expos, while Brian Nawrocki, Mike Smith and Matt Telepe led the Braves.

PRIMARY GIRLS: The Sunbirds pecked out 19 hits in a 15-5 victory over the Travelers May 23. Trish Lukomski did most of the damage for the winners, going 3-for-3 and driving in four runs. Winning pitcher Karen Pund (4-0) went 3-for-3 with three RBIs. Brandy Birdsong was 3-for-3 with two doubles and two RBIs, and Katie Wright was 2-for-2 with three RBIs. Molly McCloud was 2-for-2 with one RBI. Shelby Westerhaus doubled and drove in two runs for the Travelers and teammate Dena Biondi had a pair of hits. The Falcons rallied for four runs in the sixth to polish off the Gems 14-11 in a

May 23 game which featured no fewer than 30 hits. "The girls played a great game. They finally look like they're all playing as a team instead of individuals," said Falcons' Coach Pat Wazny. Jody Buttigieg led the winners with a 3-for-3 afternoon, with Becky Nawrot, Sara Christianson, Sara Carney and Jenny Woodside each drilling two hits. Teri Juhasz and Carrie Quint each had two hits. Kaitie Pinkelman and teammates Jill Bartling and Jackie Robb each had three hits.

INTERMEDIATE GIRLS: The Liberties stopped the Phillies 12-3 on May 29 thanks to a 19-hit attack led by Jenny Juhasz (3-for-3, two runs), Jeannine LaPrad (three RBIs), Sue LaPrad (2-for-2, two RBIs), Cheryl Garr, Rozann Staknis and Cathy Best (all 2-for-2). On May 28, the Liberties defeated the Aztecs 6-2 in a good defensive game. Jenny Juhasz and Jeannine Duprad each tripled, singled and drove in two runs for the win. Teammates Mindy Hoover and Laura McDuff each had one RBI. The Liberties socked the Travelers 13-5, getting 16 hits in a May 22 duel. Jeannine LaPrad socked a pair of triples and drove in five runs in a 3-for-3 effort. Allison Downs scored three times, and Kate Holstein, Cathy Best and Cheryl Garr each drove in a pair of runs for the Liberties to offset Jenny Rajca's grand slam homer for the Travelers. Meanwhile, the Gems beat the Aztecs 14-8 behind a pair of home runs and five RBIs by Amy Farnum. Kerry Bulin and Rita Kucharski each doubled, tripled and drove in three runs in the game. Amy Nehs had a pair of doubles. The Gems rapped out 20 hits to topple the Falcons 22-5 May 20. The game was close until a 17-run sixth inning panned out for the Gems. Tammy Wells' grand slam, Dianne Robinson and Audrey Moore each drove in three runs with a pair of hits, and Kathleen Kotarski went 3-for-4 with two doubles. Kerry Bulin and Megan Williams each had three hits to give Kara Kordt an impressive win. May 13, the Gems' Yvonne Beebe slid home in the top of the seventh to give her team an 8-7 win over the Liberties. Kathleen Kotarski homered and Kendra Bulin had a double and triple and three RBIs to lead the winners.

Mustangs 2nd at WLAA meet

To say it was the Northville women's track program's finest moment would be an understatement.

The Mustangs tied for second at last Wednesday's Western Lakes Activities Association track meet at Walled Lake Central — Northville's best showing ever at the annual meet.

"The girls ran excellent," beamed Coach Ann Turnbull. "This year was the most successful we've ever had."

Northville and Plymouth Canton each tallied 76 points — just four short of conference champion Walled Lake Western's 80. Plymouth Salem — the only Lakes Division entry in the top four — was close behind with 71 points.

What accounted for Northville's dramatically improved showing at this year's meet? The biggest factor was that this time Cindy Panowicz's shadow didn't eclipse her teammates.

At the 1984 WLAA meet, Northville scored 48 points, and 40 came directly from Panowicz, who had four individual first-place finishes. This time Northville's senior sensation again won all her events, but scored only 20 individual points.

That was part of Turnbull's strategy, however. "We decided we'd take Cindy out of high jump to give us more strength in the relays," Turnbull said. Result: two first-place relay finishes for Northville. But the way the Mustangs were stampeding, they might have won at least one relay without Panowicz.

Northville won the 4x200 meter relay in 1:46.1, more than four seconds ahead of the Mustangs' nearest opponent. That time, recorded by Christy Lenaghan, Erin Holmberg, Karen Stinson and Panowicz set a new WLAA record.

The Mustangs posted a new school record in the 4x400 relay, with Stinson, Pam Cavanaugh, Lynn Bills and Panowicz clocking a brilliant 4:09.22, just ahead of Canton in 4:10.9.

Panowicz, of course, swept the 100 meter hurdles (15.0) and the 300 hurdles (44.03) for the third straight year.

But this time Northville had some surprises to go with the senior's feats: Sophomore Stinson brought home a first in the 400 meter dash with a personal-best time of 60.7. That made Northville's first-place total five — more first-place finishes than any other team at the meet.

Bills, a junior, took third in the 100 meter hurdles (16.4) and fifth in the 300 hurdles (50.2).

Sophomore Ann Griffith turned in a gutsy personal-best third place in the 3,200 meters (12:23.4) and added a fifth in the 1,600 meters (5:34.8).

Senior Jennifer Trausch picked up an important third place in high jump, sailing 4'10".

Final standings for the meet were as follows: 1. Walled Lake Western, 80 points; 2. Northville-Plymouth Canton, 76; 4. Plymouth Salem, 71; 5. Livonia Churchill, 56; 6. Livonia Stevenson, 51; 7. Farmington Harrison, 25; 8. Farmington, 25; 9. Walled Lake Central, 15; 10. Livonia Bentley, 16.

There goes number 10

Cindy Panowicz notched her 10th Northville High School track and field Saturday with a leap of 5'4" at the MHSAA Class A state finals in Flint. That effort gave her a sixth-place medal to go with her fifth in the 100 meter hurdles (14.75) and her second-place finish in her best event, the 300 meter hurdles (43.87).

State assists businesses in exploring foreign markets

One of the challenges facing Marc Santucci is to convince Michigan manufacturers to offer their products in foreign markets.

Santucci, director of the Office of International Development (OID) for the Michigan Department of Commerce, says Europe, Africa, Japan, China, Australia and the Middle East all offer export opportunities. He readily admits, however, that he does encounter some reluctance among the state's business firms to expand their marketing operations overseas.

"We are making progress," said Santucci. "We're convincing more and more manufacturers of the multiple benefits of exporting. We advise them on the step-by-step basic procedures they need to be successful exporters."

Santucci states that several major success stories have occurred recently. Santucci cited as a primary example the work of one of the OID's trade experts, Russ Leach, who uncovered a pressing need for rough-cut hardwood lumber in northern Italy.

In researching lumber supply needs,

Leach found that the area around Trieste has some 800 furniture manufacturers, both large and small firms.

"Russ also was aware that the Northern Hardwoods Division of Mead Corporation, located in Hancock in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, had an extensive supply of maple timber available," Santucci said.

Leach put together a video sales tape to demonstrate Michigan's ability to deliver lumber to northern Italy. With the help of the U.S. Consulate in Trieste, he began visiting lumber brokers, manufacturing association groups and furniture plants in Trieste. He subsequently persuaded several of the Italian manufacturers and importers to come to Michigan for a personal look at the Mead hardwood operation and other lumber exporters.

The result was an order for 13,000 board feet of maple from Mead's Hardwood Division, their first international shipment.

"Our job is to encourage Michigan manufacturers of internationally saleable products to initiate their own overseas marketing before someone else moves in with a similar product to fill a gap in the world market picture."

State Commerce Department

Auto etching program slated at Twelve Oaks

Novi's Twelve Oaks Mall, Hudson's and AAA Michigan have joined forces to provide a free Vehicle Identification Number (VIN) Etching Program for area residents.

The VIN program will begin today (Wednesday, June 5) and continue through this Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the parking lot adjacent to Hudson's at Twelve Oaks. The program also will be offered this Sunday (June 9) from noon to 5 p.m. at the same location.

The program is designed to combat Michigan's fastest growing crime — auto theft.

In addition to Twelve Oaks, the program is being offered at Briarwood in Ann Arbor, Eastland in Harper Woods, Fairlane Town Center in Dearborn, Lakeside in Sterling Heights, Northland in Southfield, Southland in Taylor and Westland in Westland.

Vehicle identification consists of etching the vehicle's registration number into the windshield, back and front side windows. The etching process takes about 10 minutes and does not harm the window or detract from the vehicle's appearance.

A small sticker in the corner of each front side window informs would-be thieves that the vehicle has been protected.

Etching lanes will be manned by mall personnel and Hudson's employees. A minimum of six people will be assigned to the service, with additional stand-by workers available for periods of peak demand.

The vehicle identification program is a deterrent to auto theft. Thomas Brown, assistant vice president/insurance for AAA Michigan, explained that identified glass requires costly replacement before the vehicle can be sold in the illegal marketplace.

AAA Michigan etches its members' cars at AAA full-service offices and claim centers in southeast Michigan. It provided etching materials and trained mall employees for the mall program.

"We wanted this program to reach the public, and the shopping centers provided the ideal base," said Richard Cascio, Hudson's executive vice president and general manager.

"Shopping centers tend to have the largest aggregate collection of cars in any one area," noted Larry Hunt, director of operations for the Taubman Company, which manages Briarwood, Lakeside, Fairlane Town Center and Twelve Oaks. "The malls also are located near major arteries for easy accessibility," he added.

"According to our estimates, more than one million people will very likely visit the nine malls during these five days. That's the kind of coverage the VIN program deserves," said Robert Jenkins, senior vice president of mall management services and member of The Center Companies executive committee. The Center Companies manage Northland, Southland, Eastland and Westland.

James Humphrey, a Detroit Police Department commander and a nationally recognized authority on community security programs, said community awareness is the necessary first step to security because prevention is better than any cure. "The mall owners are to be commended for their contribution to fight a community problem," he added.

Directions to etching lanes will be posted in the Hudson's parking lot. The service will be offered only in dry weather and temperatures between 60 and 85 degrees.

Oakland Chamber sets local business events

The Oakland County Chamber of Commerce has scheduled two events of interest to local businesses.

A Business Mini-Expo will be held June 12, and a Commercial Energy Audit seminar is slated for June 18.

The Business Mini-Expo will be held at Roma's of Bloomfield on Wednesday, June 12, from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. Roma's is located at 2101 South Telegraph Road in Bloomfield Hills.

The Mini-Expo will consist of booths representing all kinds of businesses throughout Oakland County. Available will be information on everything from yacht leasing to services offered through Oakland County's Economic Development Corporation.

Dennis Wright of Consumers Power Company will conduct a seminar explaining how an energy audit works on Tuesday, June 18, at Roma's of Bloomfield. The public is invited to attend the seminar which runs from 8-10 a.m. The cost of $5 for members and $10 for non-members includes a continental breakfast.

Wright also will provide advice on how small businesses can save on energy costs. Sponsored by the Oakland County Chamber of Commerce Council on Small Enterprise, the seminar is intended to be informative and useful. It is not intended to promote the sale or use of any particular product or service.

Business Briefs

DENNIS R. GALLOWAY

JIM STORM

DENNIS R. GALLOWAY has been named executive vice president of Coldwell Banker Residential Affiliates, Inc. The appointment was announced by Jerry Cole, chairman of the board and president.

Galloway's mother resides in Northville. Galloway formerly served as senior vice president and director of marketing for the firm headquartered in Newport, Beach, California. Coldwell Banker Residential Affiliates is the franchise arm of Coldwell Banker, the nation's largest full-service real estate company. The 79-year-old firm is in turn a part of the Sears Financial Network along with Dean Witter and Allstate Insurance.

In his new post, Galloway will be second in line to Jerry Cole, who recently became chairman of the board while continuing as president. The promotion means a continuation of the Cole-Galloway team which, from Coldwell Banker Residential Affiliates' beginning as a marketing idea less than four years ago, has sparked the fastest growth in real estate franchising today and has seen the emergence of Coldwell Banker as a franchising leader.

JIM STORM will join Farmers Insurance Agency at 43320 West Seven Mile in Northville to select a group of fellow Farmers Insurance Group of Companies' and district managers attending the annual meeting of the prestigious President's Council.

Membership in the council is the highest honor that can be awarded an agent or district manager by Farmers, which includes the nation's third largest automobile and homeowners insurer within its group.

Farmers' key executives gather once each year to review all aspects of the insurance business with their top producers in the agency force. This year's conference is being held in Honolulu, Hawaii.

W.H. Braddock, vice president of sales for Farmers Group, Inc., noted that membership in the council is very select with only 45 of 13,500 agents earning membership this year.

Council members are agents who represent Farmers' affiliated companies in the automobile, life, homeowners and most other types of insurance.

McALLISTER'S HOUSE OF DECORATING in Northville has moved to a new location.

Sharon L. Pry, owner of the home decorating business, reported that McAllister's is moving from its former location at 324 East Main Street in Northville to 144 Mary Alexander Court, also in Northville. Purpose for the move is to increase display space.

McAllister's will open at its new location tomorrow (Thursday, June 6).

Pry reported that the new location will be larger and said the store is being remodeled to accommodate the interior design service. In addition to the interior design service, McAllister's offers wall coverings, window treatments and decorative items for the home. Also available are cornices, headboards, custom bedspreads, upholstery, carpeting, slipcovers and fabrics for the do-it-yourselfer.

Brands names available at McAllister's include fabrics and wall coverings by Greef, Schumacher, Waverly K&W and Van Loit. Other brand names are Georgina Lighting, Frederick Cooper, Hawaii and Baldwin Brass.

CHARLES YOUNG of Northville has earned membership in Lutheran Brotherhood's 1984 Executives' Club. The club is one of the society's top sales honors. Young qualified for membership on the basis of the combined amount of life and health insurance, annuities and mutual funds he placed with Lutherans in the area.

Young is associated with Lutheran Brotherhood's Karl Mueller Agency headquartered in Rochester. Lutheran Brotherhood has over $14 billion of life insurance in force and more than $2.85 billion in assets. In 1984, the society's fraternal activities program allocated more than $20 million in support of its members, the Lutheran Church and society in general.

SUPPLY TECH, INC., of Southfield has appointed Lampe Communications its agency for the promotion of the firm's Buick City-certified "Just-In-Time," order releasing and advanced shipping notice, computer systems which GM is soon to require of all its approved production parts vendors.

Buick City is GM's answer to the highly successful Japanese manufacturing system call Kanban. Supply Tech systems have been installed by a half dozen firms in the past few weeks, but more than 800 are expected to be on line in the next few months.

Lampe Communications is a public relations and marketing communications agency with high tech and other business-to-business accounts coast to coast.

CPAs offer suggestions for home buyers

Making a decision on buying a home demands as much skill as predicting the weather.

You have to guess which way interest rates are heading, decide between hundreds of different mortgages, calculate a budget to make monthly payments and find just the right home.

Buying a home is the biggest investment most people ever make, and it demands some personal financial savvy to get the best deal you can, according to the Michigan Association of CPAs.

Only one in four U.S. households has enough income to support today's median-priced home. Mortgage lenders, facing the highest rate of foreclosures since the Great Depression, are talking about stricter income qualifications for borrowers.

Here's some advice:

QUALIFYING FOR A MORTGAGE: Most mortgage lenders say your monthly housing costs may not exceed 28 percent of your monthly gross income. Your total long-term borrowings, which include your housing payments and any other debts with a term of more than six months, cannot exceed 33 percent of your monthly gross income to qualify for most mortgages.

SHOPPING FOR A MORTGAGE: "There are two things you have to do in choosing a mortgage," says Jim Kropp, a CPA who buys properties for a major real estate firm. "The first is shop and the second is to shop some more."

Money Management

A quick way of shopping is by using electronic mortgage brokers. The largest of these computerized mortgage brokers has 25 lenders from around the nation offering variations on eight or nine different mortgages. This allows you to shop for mortgages from lenders across the country. You can usually request printouts of the mortgage payments from computerized brokers and use them for further comparison shopping.

APPRECIATION: With the current rate of appreciation on real estate remaining steady at about five percent, those who are buying a home as an investment should think twice, says Kropp of the AICPA's Real Estate Committee. "In the case of Yuppies, for instance, it may be better to hold off buying a condo or town house," he says. "It may pay for them to rent and invest their savings in a Certificate of Deposit (CD) rather than tie their money up in a home they plan to sell soon."

Single family homes, by the way, are appreciating at a faster rate than condominiums.

TAXES: If you're buying a second home, you may want to wait until the battle over the budget deficit ends. The Treasury Department's tax proposal would end mortgage interest deductions on second homes, casting some doubt on the market for vacation homes.

SUBSIDIZING MORTGAGES: Find out about any low-interest mortgages that may be offered in your state. However, these programs are usually directed at first-time buyers.

MORTGAGE POINTS are deductible: When you're purchasing a home, any points you pay up front are generally deductible in the year you pay them. You can secure an immediate tax benefit by paying points up front instead of tacking them on your mortgage.

SWEAT EQUITY: If you can't afford the home you want, find one in the same neighborhood that needs to be fixed up. Generally, a home that needs a fresh coat of paint and some elbow grease sells for 10 to 15 percent below its potential value.

FIX-UP COSTS: Painting and cleaning up the house you're selling may get you a tax break. You can get a tax break for any fixing-up done within 90 days of the sale. The paint, the cleaning fluids and the cleaning service you may hire are all deductible. The deduction is figured by subtracting the fix-up expenses from the gain realized in selling the home.

SHARED EQUITY mortgages: Perhaps you're like several million people who want a home, but can't afford the cost. A home buyer who can't make the down payment alone may find a shared equity mortgage is a money saver. Find a partner (who may or may not live with you) and share the down payment, the appreciation and the tax breaks for interest payments.

MORTGAGE INSURANCE: If you can't afford to make a down payment of 20 percent or more on the purchase price, you may qualify for mortgage insurance. Mortgage insurance generally tacks on $15 to $30 on a monthly mortgage payment, depending on your down payment, the mortgage amount and whether you have an adjustable-rate mortgage. Someone who has little cash for a down payment, but is certain to have a rising income, is an ideal candidate for mortgage insurance.

These ideas are just a sampling of the current trends affecting home buyers that CPAs say may be helpful in your quest for the home that's just right.

State explores foreign markets

The original order led to delivery by Mead of another 8,000 board feet of rough-cut that included birdseye maple, white birch and aspen to the Como Company of Trieste, a firm that produces wood veneers for furniture.

Santucci cited the case as a perfect example of a European trade specialist finding the market, bringing the exporter and importers together, and helping expedite the sale through an expert knowledge of the transaction and delivery system.

"Since Michigan is the greatest producer of maple and other hardwoods in the Great Lakes region, it makes good economic sense to me to develop foreign markets for the particular product," said Santucci.

"The fact that Russ Leach speaks Italian fluently also assisted greatly in the successful transaction," he added.

The lumber exports from Michigan to Italy fulfill one of the primary goals of the OED — to assist Michigan companies in initiating or expanding export operations.

OED's second major goal is to attract foreign firms to invest in Michigan through new plant locations or expansion of existing plants and services.

"The communication explosion combined with advanced manufacturing technology means a new product that is doing well in the Midwest and has the potential for universal appeal soon will appear in worldwide markets," said Santucci.

"Our job is to encourage Michigan manufacturers of internationally saleable products to initiate their own overseas marketing before someone else moves in with a similar product to fill a gap in the world market picture."

OED operates offices in Tokyo, Japan, and Brussels, Belgium, to help facilitate trade and reverse investment. Michigan was the first state to set up a trade office in Tokyo and among the first to locate in Europe.

The Michigan Department of Commerce also works closely with the U.S. Department of Commerce offices in both Detroit and Washington on export matters.

"We feel we are barely scratching the surface of the tremendous potential for exporting Michigan products," Santucci said. "We invite Michigan manufacturers to come to us with their overseas marketing questions. We are here to help because increased exports mean more jobs and an expanded economy for our state."

MARC SANTUCCI

Small Business group declares major victory

"Small Business United and small business owners all over the country can claim a major victory now that the U.S. Senate has agreed to retain the U.S. Small Business Administration as an independent agency, complete with guaranteed lending authority."

That's the assertion of John Galles, executive director of the Small Business Association of Michigan.

"Most significantly, the deficit reduction plan, which passed the Senate May 9, will reduce the federal deficit by $56 billion and, at the same time, substantially retain the functions of the SBA," Galles said.

"It's important to note," he added, "that the SBA took its share of cuts in the effort to reduce the deficit. Several programs within the agency — including direct lending programs, disaster assistance loans, and 503 loans — were sacrificed in a $2.5 billion spending reduction over three years."

Galles emphasized, however, that he is very pleased the guaranteed loan program remains intact and that the SBA remains in place to work for more than 160,000 small businesses in Michigan.

Galles said the guaranteed loan program is especially important to Michigan businesses because it assures that the Small Business Lending Corporation (SBLC) remains a vital part of the Michigan Strategic Fund.

He pointed out that the Senate budget proposal concerning SBA is "essentially the package that we lobbied for in Washington."

In April, a delegation of small business owners from the Small Business Association of Michigan joined small business owners from 10 organizations representing 25 states in the annual Small Business United Washington Presentation. In special sessions with Congress and the Administration, the small business leaders called for an across-the-board spending freeze and the retention of an independent Small Business Administration with guaranteed loan programs left in place.

The primary advocate for small business in Lansing and Washington, D.C., the Small Business Association of Michigan represents more than 160,000 small businesses in Michigan, focusing primarily on achieving legislative reforms which will improve the economic climate for small firms.

The scars of an abused child can stay with us all his life.

Many teenage drug addicts and teenage prostitutes report being abused children. Many juvenile delinquents also report being abused as children. And because we pay to respond to those problems, we are all victims of child abuse. Yet child abuse, and the results of abuse, can be prevented. The National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse is a private, charitable organization that knows how to do it. But we need your help. We need money. We need volunteers. Send us your check today, or write for our booklet. Because if we don't all start somewhere, we won't get anywhere.

Help us get to the heart of the problem. Write: Prevent Child Abuse, Box 2866, Chicago, Illinois 60690

the fairy godmother's secret is out!

Don't let that "magic wand" fool you! She's tried to make us believe that with a wave of that wand, she can turn pumpkins into carriages, mice into white horses and rags into white gowns. But we know she's just like the rest of us! When we want to turn a baby crib into cash... an older car into a new one... or change from sales clerk to doctor's receptionist... the only magic wand we hold in our hand is a telephone receiver and the only thing we wave is our index finger as we dial the Classified Department of our newspaper! It's like magic the way good things come true for us with the help of Want Ads. And besides, we have a strong feeling that's the way the fairy godmother makes all her magic, too!

CAMPING

From Bare Bones to Deluxe

Traveling in Style

By Jean Day

Going deluxe in the camping world means traveling the expressways — and byways — in a self-contained motor home. There's no dash in the night or morning run with a tooth brush to the park facility building.

While motor homes are a major investment, they are considered by many traveling families a reasonable "way to go" compared with staying in a motel or hotel.

When you have six children, you don't stay in a lot of motels — at least, not if you're going to travel much. The Ralph Pedersen family of Northville at first solved the problem of wanting to show their children the country by tenting.

"We started tent camping and took the children places we never could afford to go otherwise," recalls Rita Pedersen.

As the number of children grew to six, the Pedersens bought their first motor home and traveled in comfort.

That was about 15 years ago. They're now on their second motor home, which is nine years old but in excellent condition. Mrs. Pedersen points out that the entire family can be together in motor home accommodations. While mobile homes offer comparable space and luxury, they must be hauled behind another vehicle.

"With the two motor homes we've been in every state in the United States and to Canada and Mexico," Mrs. Pedersen relates.

"It's been a lot of fun and a different way to see places. Camping people are nice. We stay where we can hook up to utilities although it (the motor home) is self contained," she explains. She noted that park facilities today are very pleasant, recalling that when they first started traveling in their motor home, facilities were much more primitive.

The Pedersens only have two children still living at home.

A while ago they considered not using the motor home, but, Mrs. Pedersen says, "it's a very pleasant way to travel — we were so used to doing it that we've continued."

Ralph and Rita now meet her two brothers who live in Troy and both have motor homes, she says, "all over the country."

"We met in Knoxville (Tennessee) at the world's fair and have gone to New Orleans."

Having your accommodations right with you is an asset at such events as the world's fair where finding them can be a problem, she agreed.

On Memorial Day weekend the Pedersens had a gathering of the family clan with one son arriving from Minneapolis. Counting babies, she says, there were 16 altogether riding comfortably in the motor home to Mt. Clemens where another son has his boat anchored.

"We've taken gangs to Emily's run and to Pine Knob," their mother adds.

The motor home is kept in a storage park in Plymouth during the winter. "We stock it when we get it from storage and have it ready all summer," says Mrs. Pedersen, noting that it's very easy to "go" when everything is ready. Because the storage park is so near, she adds, it's no problem to return it between jaunts.

Load up the Pack

By Brian Creek

How often have you wished that you had more time to spend outdoors camping, canoeing, or whatever, but the thought of equipment, and remembering to pack everything you were going to need stopped you? It just takes too much work to get ready for a short trip!

But it doesn't have to. You can keep a backpack loaded with everything that you need except for food and extra clothes so that taking off on the spur of the moment can be a reality instead of a daydream.

The Basics

A quality experience requires that you start with good equipment. You need a decent sleeping bag, some form of shelter, a reliable stove, a way to purify drinking water and something to carry it in, a bright-colored wind/rain jacket and medium-weight sweater, candles, a flashlight, and some first-aid stuff.

A map and compass and the knowledge to use them can be pretty important too, if you ever leave the beaten path. Food is nice, but that's a whole book worth of stuff and we don't have room here. Read Fred Powledge's paperback, The Backpacker's Budget Food Book, and shop at the supermarket. You'll eat better and save big bucks over the food that specialty stores sell.

Sleeping Bags

There are so many good sleeping bags on the market that you shouldn't have any trouble finding one well within your price range. The problem is avoiding low-cost bags made with cheap materials and shoddy workmanship.

Find a sleeping bag that fits. Try them on and get one that you can stretch out in and draw the top to your chin without stretching the fabric. The outside and lining of the bag should be rip-stop (tear resistant) nylon, and the stuffing should be a synthetic, like polyester fiber, so that if you get wet you can wring out the bag and still stay warm. Goose or duck down loses all of its insulative value when wet.

Listen to 'Vets'

By Matt Valley

Every summer hundreds of thousands of campers flock to camp sites across Michigan.

Armed with tents, sleeping bags, food, clothing and a variety of other necessities, they set out for what has become an American summer tradition. Everyone it seems wants a taste of the outdoors, especially when the economy is on the upswing.

For the campground veteran, preparing for the trip is no big hassle. Years of experience make the transition from home to the campground relatively easy. If the checklist is complete, the camper is generally well prepared.

But for novice campers, the task of preparing for the excursion poses a little more difficulty. Despite their enthusiasm, they are often unsure of what type of tent they should purchase, what food or clothes they should bring, or even what park best fits their interests.

They can, however, follow some guidelines which will insure they make the right decisions.

MR. AND MRS. MITCHELL N. CROSSLEY

SherrieLea Dunnabeck wed in May ceremony

SherrieLea Dunnabeck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Dunnabeck Jr. of Northville, became the bride of Mitchell N. Crossley in a 2 p.m. ceremony May 18 at Our Lady of Victory Church in Northville.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Crossley, former Northville residents now living in the Wixom area.

Both the bride and bridegroom were escorted to the altar by their parents. Father Frank Polle officiated at the double ring service.

The bride's gown of lace was fashioned with a yoke of illusion embellished with pearls and sequins. Schiffli embroidery detailed the lace stand-up collar. The full skirt with tiers of lace and sheer extended into a four-foot heart-shaped train. A picture hat held her fingertip veil.

Roses and carnations were used for the bridal bouquet.

Honor maid was Vicki Baker, niece of the bridegroom. Bridesmaids were Janet, Patricia and Donna Dunnabeck, sisters of the bride. The bridal attendants' gowns were in rainbow shades of lavender, yellow, pink and blue.

Bob Snyder was best man. The bridegroom's attendants were the bridegroom's brothers Kirk and Clarence Crossley and Miss Jeannine Horner, a lifelong friend. All wore white tuxedos with lavender accessories.

A reception for 150 guests at Dublin Center in Union Lake followed the ceremony.

The bride, a 1982 graduate of Northville High School, is employed at Vision Craft in Walled Lake.

The bridegroom, a 1980 graduate of Walled Lake Western, is employed at S & H Fabricating in Walled Lake.

The newlyweds are making their home in Milford.

His birthday cake celebrated 85 years

By JEAN DAY

Helium balloons and a birthday cake were ordered for Earl Chappell, who has lived most of his life in Northville, as part of an 85th birthday surprise by his daughter Martha Bingley. The party was held May 20 at her home on Allen Drive.

Assisting was the honoree's son Terry Chappell. After retiring, Earl Chappell moved to West Branch for a while but has moved back to Northville where, his daughter says, he lives in the Brookside apartments and maintains his own apartment by himself. He also received birthday wishes from another daughter, Greta Croll, who is in Florida. Eighteen friends and relatives attended the birthday celebration.

Flea market's a cooperative venture for a cause

King's Mill Women's Club is billing its annual flea market being held this Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the green at the cooperative (on Jamestown Circle off Northville Road) as the "biggest of the year." It notes that all profits are used to benefit cooperative projects. Last year new clubhouse draperies were purchased.

In addition to the women's club's own table, individual residents will have tables of "past treasures". There also will be a club table of mini-crafts — all handmade with nothing selling over the mini price of $5. The social club will be offering cakes, pastries, breads and rolls. The pool committee will be selling ice cream cones.

Co-chairs Evelyn Hucal and Margot Pearsall invite everyone in the community to attend. Rain date is June 9.

It's salad time for Country Girls

Members of Country Girls Garden Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association were tossing up favorite salads to take to their election meeting Tuesday at the home of Kathy Alexander.

Lois Winters took over presidency of the branch from Elizabeth Joslin. Other new officers are Camille Bloomburg, vice president; Jeanette Griggs, recording secretary; Lonna Lemmon, treasurer. Marie Cooper is in charge of conservation projects, Marie Schultz, horticulture, and Nancy Malloure, education.

During past weeks club members have been down on their knees planting spring flowers in the downtown beautification program. Another major project of the branch is its Garden of the Month project. "Because we don't get down every street, we're hoping neighbors will call if they have someone in their neighborhood with an outstanding garden," outgoing president Joslin said last week. Calls should be made to Kathy Alexander, 349-3885.

Organist's farewell planned on Toronto train

While they were on a weekend trip to Toronto, members of the Presbyterian choir planned a party for David Heinzman given last Friday with 50 attending at the home of Diane and Tom Larsen. The organist and director of music is leaving to begin doctoral studies in California.

Because of a previous commitment, the organist was not able to go to Toronto with the choir. Noting that he played at a great number of weddings, choir member Elizabeth Joslin asked Heinzman if he knew how many. After checking and relating he "began at age 14" Heinzman reported he has played at 2,000 to date.

Base Line Questers embark on third decade

Base Line Chapter No. 213, oldest Quester chapter in the Northville area, received congratulations from National Headquarters in Philadelphia on its 20th anniversary last month. The chapter was formed in May, 1965.

At the final meeting of the year May 16 Mary Ellen Gibbins turned the president's gavel over to Carol Romanik, newly elected president.

Other new officers are Ruth Mary Atchison, first vice president (programs); Eileen Hlohinec, second vice president (trips); Ginny Wisner, recording secretary; Betsy Northrop, corresponding secretary; and Eileen Sonk, treasurer.

Festival features works of artists, craftspersons

The City of Plymouth and the University Artists and Craftsmen Guild announce the fifth annual Spring Arts Festival, to take place Saturday and Sunday, June 8-9 in Plymouth's Kellogg Park.

Hours for the festival will be 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

The focus of the two-day festival is a juried exhibition and sale of the work of more than 100 artists and craftspersons from Michigan and throughout the midwest.

Among the wide variety of media that will be represented in this exhibit are paintings, photography, sculptures, graphics, ceramics, stained glass, jewelry and fibers. The public is invited to meet the artists and ask them questions about their work and its production.

Jazz will be featured prominently in the festival. The festival stage will present some of metro Detroit's most popular jazz musicians, many of whom have played in either the Detroit or Swiss Montreux jazz festivals. Performers will include Bob DuRant's Big Band, Ron Jackson, Ed Nucelli, Wendell Harrison, the McKinney Cotton Pickers, John Katalenic and Larry Nozaro.

Refreshments will be available from vendors in the "Gathering" directly across from the festival site, or from area restaurants within a minute's walk of Kellogg Park.

May Garden of the Month utilizes antiques as accents

Spring beauty

The picket fence in front of the home of Robert and Jan Juhasz, at 411000 Croydon Court in Northville Colony Estates, as well as the landscaped yard filled with spring blooms caught the eye of committee members of Country Girl Branch, Woman's National Farm and Garden Association, seeking the first Garden of the Month for the 1985 season. It's a yard with daffodils, iris, hoya, peonies, mums, tulips, wildflowers and flowering shrubs, the branch reported, choosing it the Garden of the Month for May. The rear yard is equally attractive as the front with a gazebo as its focal point. Such antiques as a railroad whistle and sign, a water pump, a hoe and bell are accents among the evergreens. Anyone with a friend or neighbor who has an outstanding garden is encouraged to report it to Country Girls' committee chair Kathy Alexander, 349-3885.

Rita and Ralph Pedersen with motor home that has taken them vacationing to all states

Motor home transports family around country in easygoing comfort

Many area subdivision restrictions require that such recreational vehicles be parked in garages or kept elsewhere. While the motor home can take a large group on a day's outing easily, Rita Pedersen says they now limit longer trips to four persons for comfort even though its accommodations will sleep six.

She recalled that, right after moving to their home in the western part of Northville Township in 1979, the family hosted a German exchange student. Their daughter Carol had gone to Germany to live with Sigred's family, and then Sigred visited them for the summer.

"It was fun to show her our country," says Mrs. Pedersen, explaining that the family had driven with Sigred south along the East Coast all the way to Key West, Florida, and to Disney World and Washington, D.C. "Of course, her favorite place was Disney World," she remembered, agreeing that having a motor home made it easier to see such attractions.

John and Lesa Buckland of Northville were one of five families who bought a 30-foot motor home together.

The group of friends went to football games in it and even headed south for the Kentucky Derby.

"But," recalls John Buckland, "the energy crisis about 1980 made us decide to sell."

While they had the motor home, however, he mentioned, each family took it for a week's vacation.

For some persons, "going in style" in a motor home means using it in place of a limousine. Noting that trucks or even today's luxury automobiles have limited baggage space, James Plagens of Northville says he bought his motor home for picking up customers at the airport in order to transport them and their luggage in comfort. He doesn't use it at all for traveling but feels its worthwhile for his purposes. His next door neighbors, however, recently bought a motor home and were enthusiastic about their vacation to Florida, he mentions. For a variety of reasons, going "deluxe" in your own motor home is growing in popularity.

Elmer and Ruth Balko of Northville have a 30-foot Holiday Rambler which they haul to Florida every winter.

"It has a full size bath, refrigerator and furnace — we hook up in Florida, and it's very comfortable," says Elmer Balko. His neighborhood restrictions in Northville require only that the vehicle be placed in a rear yard out of sight of the street; so the Balkos park it at home in the summer.

Planning helps ensure good camping outing

Don't buy a bag rated for arctic temperatures if you only camp in the summer. Get one that suits your style of camping. It turns chilly you can wear a sweater and socks to bed. The construction of the sleeping bag should be neat, with no loose fabric or threads or stuffing hanging out. Nylon zippers are the only way to go (metal rusts, transfers cold, and rips nylon cloth).

Shelter
While a tent is not needed on every trip, having one gives you an option when it starts to rain or the bugs get mean. Go out and look at different tents before buying one. Perhaps you can even rent tents for a while until you find one you like. Be sure that the tent you settle on will work in the conditions you camp in.

Most Michigan campers like extra-fine mosquito netting, and a waterproof rain fly. The tent should be constructed of rip-stop nylon with only the floor and seams waterproofed. Waterproof walls trap in water vapor from breathing and perspiring and rain it back on you all night long. As in all outdoor equipment, make sure that it is well made of quality materials. Check to see that it is easy to set up and has a minimum of parts to lose.

Stoves
For day-to-day cooking duty, buy a backpacking stove. Only stoves that burn Coleman fuel or butane are acceptable because these fuels are almost universally obtainable. For winter camping butane is out since it isn't a gas below about 50 degrees. For summer use, however, it is clean, simple to use, quick starting and very adjustable. Stoves that use Coleman fuel work in almost any weather, once you get them started. These stoves are durable and easy to use after a little practice.

Water
Now that you have a stove, you can boil your water to purify it. But you'll need an extra pack to carry enough fuel for the job. It is much easier to treat drinking water chemically or mechanically. Look at the options in a backpacking supply store and get something.

Unless you get water from a tested source, consider it contaminated and purify it. Get two or three wide-mouthed plastic bottles to carry water in. They are easier to fill and pour from than canteens or small-necked bottles.

Lighting

For a steady source of light, you can use a candle lantern or just stick a candle on a rock or in a tin cup. For quick and bright light when you really need it, keep a flashlight in your pack all the time. A disposable flashlight is fine as long as it is bright. Tape the switch "off" so it doesn't light up your pack. Carry extra matches in something waterproof.

First-Aid
First-aid training should be mandatory for anyone who leaves the road behind. The American Red Cross offers classes in most communities every year. You might also look up Dr. Forgy's Wilderness Medicine (Indiana Camp Supply Books). It covers many maladies that are peculiar to the more active forms of outdoor recreation.

Be ready for anything by taking band-aids, a clean white washcloth, soap, hydrogen peroxide, something to wash bugs and things out of your eyes, your usual pain killer and sunglasses.

The Pack
The most versatile pack for short trips is a medium capacity, internal frame backpack with two pockets. The adjustable shoulder and hip straps (the "suspension system" for the pack) should be about two inches wide and padded. Cordura nylon or canvas are good pack cloths, both are acceptable. Zippers, clips, slides and buckles have got to be smooth-working and rugged. They also have to be securely attached, so check construction quality. Always ask about warranting on everything.

Stuff Bags
You will eventually find that it is infinitely easier to find things in your pack if you compartmentalize with various sized-stuff sacks made of rugged nylon with drawstring closures. You can even color code everything.

Now that you have everything (except food, clothes, and a plastic garden trowel), take it out and play with it. Go out in the yard and set up your new tent. Do it blindfolded. Start up your stove and boil some water. Try it out in all kinds of weather, just in case.

Try out your sleeping bag, check out various sleeping pads to see which ones you don't slide off of.

It's wise to seek advice from veteran campers

"The first thing they should do is to talk to some veteran campers to see what works. They have the experience. Next they should read some books on camping," said Randall Whitsel, executive director of the Michigan Association of Private Campground Owners.

The next step is to decide what type of camping equipment needs to be purchased. Tent camping is recommended for novice campers because it is less costly and tents are versatile and easy to store.

The tent should be furnished with a screened tent fly, ground cloth, ropes, poles, stakes, canvas repair kit, plastic sheet and floor mat. Remember to include a broom.

Beginning campers may find it more cost efficient to rent equipment for their initial outing. By doing that, they are not stuck with a product they do not want or need.

Camping experts say it is also wise to shop for equipment during the fall when there are sales.

"You can also borrow equipment. You don't have to buy the best equipment for it to be satisfactory. Talk to the people in the stores," said Carol Bloom, Camp Dearborn recreation director.

After purchasing the tent, practice setting it up in the backyard at least twice before taking it to the campground. This is to make sure there are no hidden surprises when it comes time to setting up the tent at the park.

A large ice chest is one of the most important investments a beginning camper can make. This allows food to be stored for extended periods of time without spoiling. For convenience purposes, a camper might want to store some dehydrated or freeze dried camp foods in the cooler. Campers might also consider purchasing a Coleman stove, although many parks in the area have outdoor grills.

For sleeping purposes, air mattresses are recommended over canvas cots because they are more comfortable. Sleeping bags will work just as well, however.

The beginning camper should be equipped with some essential tools such as a knife, flashlight, compass and waterproof matches.

As far as clothes are concerned, keep the Sunday suit and shiny shoes at home. Keep in mind camping means roughing it. So don't wear anything that can't afford to get dirty. Most veteran campers will insist on bringing more than enough clothes.

Many a novice camper has been caught in the rain without rain gear. Be prepared for the worst and pack accordingly.

Insect repellent and a first aid kit are also important items many campers forget.

Making a checklist is probably the most important thing campers can do before going on a trip, according to spokesman from Haas Lake Park in Lyon Township. He added there are several camping magazines on the newsstand which can assist the beginning camper.

"A lot of people who come into the campgrounds forget extension cords for the plug outlets. They just didn't plan. It's real important to plan," Bloom said.

Once tent camping has been mastered, camping enthusiasts may wish to try trailer camping. When buying a trailer search for camping seals of approval. Talk to other campers about recreational vehicles and rent one before purchasing it. Make sure the trailer fits your needs and interests before purchasing it.

According to park managers, campers today are frequently traveling to camp sites within a 100-mile radius of their homes. Because camping is so popular park managers say it is necessary to make arrangements well in advance.

Hot Air in Howell

Summer's going to arrive with a guaranteed blast of hot air in Howell on June 21-23. That's the weekend Howell plays host to the first Michigan Challenge hot air balloon competition and festival.

The Howell Area Chamber of Commerce and Southeast Michigan Balloonist Association (SEMBA) will be joining forces to conduct Michigan's first state championship hot air balloon competition.

Crowds of 30,000 to 50,000 are expected to view more than 50 of the top hot air balloon pilots in the country, who will be racing for prize money, recognition and just for the fun of it as the majestic, colorful world of hot air ballooning comes to Howell.

Among those balloonists will be former world champions Bruce Comstock of Ann Arbor and Dave Shaffer of Chelsea; Phil Glebe of Brighton; Blake and Jeane Thomson of Gregory; Gordon Boring of Wall Lake; and Patricia Smith, a Wall Lake school district teacher who was the nation's top female pilot in 1983 and 1984.

Three races—a Hare and Hound, Judge Declared Goal and a Controlled Navigational Trajectory Event—will comprise the official Michigan Challenge competition on Saturday and Sunday, June 22-23. Pilots will be vying for $400 in first-place prize money, $200 for second and $100 for third.

The field of more than 50 pilots makes the Michigan Challenge one of the larger hot air balloon competitions around, which isn't surprising. Michigan is a hotbed for ballooning, according to Lee Reeves, executive director of the Howell chamber.

"There are only 3,000 licensed hot air balloon pilots in the country, and Michigan has 300 of them," she said.

And Michigan is considered an "ultimate flying area," according to SEMBA's Dick Rudiaff, who will be competing in the Howell event. "Not totally flat or hilly, good landing accessibility, lots of water and scenic countryside."

While the hot air balloons and their pilots will be the stars of the festival, the Howell chamber is planning a variety of companion events

"A balloon festival is the kind of event that can put your town on the map. The town will be at its best."

"And it's the kind of event that gets the community working together, helping each other and feeling more positive about each other."

Some of the companion events include street dances Friday and Saturday nights; special horse-drawn carriage rides around downtown Howell; old-fashioned games for all ages on the lawn of the historic Livingston County Courthouse Saturday and Sunday; a helium balloon launch and kite-making contest Saturday; and a bed race down Clinton Street, a fishing derby and antique car show on Sunday.

Plans have been made for a successful event. All that's needed is good balloon-flying weather. That's described as clear skies, stable air with moderate winds of less than 10 knots.

"We're hoping the Michigan Challenge will become one of the best summer events in the state," Reeves said.

to create a special atmosphere for the weekend.

"We're approaching this as a family event," Reeves said. "We have something for everyone. We want the Michigan Challenge to become popular and a tradition for Howell."

Carltons: Something for everyone

dining out

Carlton's is an attractive new restaurant in the Brighton area.

Nestled in a stand of trees as you drive into town along Old Grand River, Carlton's is indeed a most attractive restaurant — on both the exterior and interior.

Outside, the building is pleasant, blending in nicely with its semi-rustic setting.

And on the inside, the restaurant is no less appealing, featuring lots of wood, brass railings and hanging plants with accents of sand and burgundy on the walls and curtains.

By no means a small restaurant, Carlton's is, nevertheless, divided into nicely into small dining areas — each with its own name, The Library, for example — which impart a feeling of cozy intimacy.

It's obvious that the owners of Carlton's did their homework in determining the type of setting which diners find inviting.

The owners have demonstrated the same type of concern in developing the menu, which might well be described as "eclectic," offering something for everyone.

At first, the variety of selections was somewhat disconcerting. Carlton's is potentially a rather elegant dining establishment. And while the menu offered a sufficient number of dinner entrees, it also offered a wide selection of munchies — potato skins and nachos, for example; a wide selection of ice cream and specialty drinks; and several so-called "gourmet burgers" which are so popular these days.

On second thought, however, "eclectic" seems to be "where it's at" with many of the more popular and successful restaurants these days. For proof, you need look no further than the success experienced by Chuck Muer's restaurants, which have done well by offering something for everyone, although the decor of the Muer restaurants carry out the theme of informality to a higher degree than Carlton's.

Carlton's best efforts are contained on its "drink" and "snacking" menus — both of which are "cutesy" while also offering some interesting selections.

The drink menu, for example, offers Pure Peach Pleasure, a drink consisting of rum and peach brandy, colada mix and peaches & cream, and Apple Slush, a concoction of apples and apple schnapps blended in a frozen slush, as well as an assortment of daiquiries, margaritas and Carlton's Crazy Coladas — chocolate, banana, strawberry and raspberry coladas.

There also are several ice cream desserts, including Almonetta — vanilla ice cream, kahula and angelica.

The snack menu, meanwhile, features nachopolis, a cross between Mexican and Greek favorites, and several variations of potato skins.

Unfortunately, Carlton's dinner entrees do not measure up to the promise of the decor or the creativity of the drinks and snacks.

The list of appetizers, for example, consists of French onion soup, seafood chowder, French fries and the vegetable du jour. Where are the appetizers?

Sixteen entrees, as well as several daily specials, are available under the headings of seafood, pasta, barbecue and steak. Dinners are accompanied by a dinner salad and your choice of potato or the vegetable du jour.

On a recent visit to Carlton's, my companion chose the Boston-style baked scrod almonidine, while I selected one of the daily specials — a cordon bleu with chicken and ham. Both were rather average, and the vegetable du jour — green beans with bacon, contained bacon bits instead of the real thing.

Desserts include a hot fudge cream puff, cheesecake (served with Kahana Royale Macadamia Liqueur, if you wish) and something called apple mountain — baked apples over a crushed graham cracker base, topped with a scoop of ice cream and whipped cream.

Carlton's has much to offer. It's physically attractive, and a measure of creativity is apparent in portions of the menu. When the owners apply the same degree of care to the more serious part of the menu as they have to other areas, Carlton's could well become a first-rate dining establishment.

Carlton's, 11600 East Grand River at Pleasant Valley Road, Brighton. Monday through Thursday from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m., Friday from 11 a.m. to midnight, Saturday from noon to midnight and Sunday from noon to 9 p.m. Diners Club, American Express, Visa and MasterCard. Liquor license. 227-5866.
