Insurance increase puts tighter clamp on school spending

A nearly 270 percent increase in the Northville school district's insurance costs will result in some budget belt-tightening for the forthcoming school year.

School Superintendent George Bell told board members Monday that the anticipated $100,000 increase will have a definite impact on next year's balanced budget.

"We put together a budget which recognized a potential 50 percent increase in insurance costs," Bell said. "Now we're looking at a 270 percent increase."

The superintendent said he anticipates that most of the additional costs will be offset by savings in other

Glenna Davis named school board president

By MARILYN MORRISON

Glenna Davis was elected president of the Northville Board of Education Monday night at the board's annual organizational meeting.

Bids also were awarded for the high school renovation project/equipment as recommended by the board.

Other new officers for the 1985-86 school year elected unanimously are David R. Llewellyn, vice president, Christopher J. Johnson, secretary, and Karen Wilkinson, treasurer.

Final recommendations of architect John Argenta for the balance of the equipment items for the high school renovation project also were put into action by the school board Monday night. Prior to board approval, the recommendations had been thoroughly reviewed by the administrative staff, the board was told.

For the new school year, the high school will be receiving new shop equipment and shop furniture; a library security system; a high density science storage area; fitness center equipment; vocal music risers; lecture room tables; athletic and student hall lockers; science and general casework; cafeteria tables and chairs; student chairs and desks; teacher and office desks; round and rectangular tables; business typing desks and drafting tables; and library furniture.

The budget for the High School Renovation Project called for a total expenditure of $980,000 for equipment items. Previous items already approved and the items approved at Monday's meeting represent a total expenditure of $873,648.

All items were approved with the library furnishings given conditional approval as board member Douglas Whitaker requested the library consultant to okay the choices.

All the new equipment and furniture is expected to arrive at the high school prior to the start of school.

The Cost Savings Task Force final report for 1984-85 reported a total savings of $245,106. Quantifiable savings occurred in personnel (by reducing the building secretary year), the sale of surplus equipment and redistribution of surplus equipment, transportation — field trip use, energy conservation and the summer tax collection. ## State attempting to retain Plymouth Center land

Despite the controversy over funding and property rights to the Plymouth Center for Human Development, state mental health employees are rapidly converting the center to a mental health facility.

According to township officials, mental health patients already are being transferred to the Center — flouting a request from the Wayne County Executive's office to return the property to the county according to a recently uncovered title restriction.

State administrative officials have known for several months that title to the Plymouth Center for Human Development property was in question, but have yet to take any steps to address the issue.

In fact, local legislators and officials have said in recent weeks, the state was alerted to the so-called "reverter clause" in the 1957 deed to the property before Wayne County had learned about it.

Under the clause, the state's title to the 250-acre parcel is supposed to be returned to Wayne County if the property is used "for any purpose other than as a hospital for mentally diseased children and/or mentally deficient children."

Those words were written into the deed by which the county gave what was the Wayne County Training School to the state. County prosecutor John O'Hair, acting in his capacity as corporation counsel, issued a letter to department of mental health (DMH) director C. Patrick Babcock June 18 asking that the property be returned. The department's official position for now is that the issue is being reviewed by its attorneys.

Meanwhile, recent versions of a state spending bill have included provisions to fund the conversion of the main building at Plymouth Center for use as a mental hospital to relieve overcrowding at Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital (NRPH). The same bill has included a clause authorizing the department of management and budget to seek buyers for property O'Hair said "is not the state's to sell."

That idea should not have been a surprise in Lansing.

"The state attorney general's office found (the reverter clause) several months ago," Northville Township Supervisor Susan Heintz said.

At the time, she noted, the township was attempting to obtain clear title to some park land on Beck Road it has purchased from the state. And Representative Gerald H. Law (R-Plymouth Township) was drafting a bill

Meijer Thrifty Acres opens doors Tuesday

There won't be a ribbon cutting, but the first 500 customers who shop at the new Meijer Thrifty Acres when it opens next Tuesday morning on the southwest corner of Haggerty Road at Eight Mile will receive a free gift.

The Northville Township store is the firm's sixth in the greater Detroit area. Meijer Grand Rapids headquarters reports that the 175,000 square-foot complex also incorporates a "new look inside and out" with many special features, including a full service meat department as well as a packaged meat department.

Shoppers during the grand opening week will be able to register for such prizes as a three-wheel all-terrain Jeep and a freezer full of banquet fare.

Store director Tom Michals will have a staff on hand of more than 300 employees. While supervisory personnel was being transferred from other stores, the firm hired mostly local help otherwise.

In addition to special values during opening week, shoppers will find a store "as easy to shop in as any supermarket or hardware." Grand Rapids headquarters reports. It will feature wide aisles that will accommodate wheel chairs which will be available for customers' use.

The $10 million project was projected to pay $100,000 a year in real and personal taxes, which will go to the Northville School District, Northville Township and Wayne County, township Supervisor Susan Heintz noted Monday. It was built in part with local EDC financing.

Heintz added that the township is "very pleased with the way the store is situated and with its landscaping."

Picking winners

One of the first duties of Wes Henrikson, who assumes presidency of Northville Rotary Club this month, is presiding at the initial Rotary lottery drawing with Mary Ware. Seven winners for July 1-7 were drawn at the ceremony in Mill Race Historical Village during Fourth of July festivities. Participants who purchase the Victorian Village Community Calendar for July, 1985, through June, 1986, receive a number that is placed in the Rotary lottery. Daily $25 winners will be chosen throughout the year with monthly and a grand finale winner also to be drawn. Tickets are returned to the hopper, the club explains, so it is possible to win several times. First winners are Dixie M. Cocagne of Northville, William R. Wright of Northville, Jack's Meat Market in Novi, Thad E. Diebel of Livonia, Elizabeth Spica of Livonia, Mark Eckhout of Plymouth and Doris A. Cheadle of Flint.

Dog owners beware

Northville Postmaster Wallace Cates wants the public to be aware of a potentially dangerous situation which could cause a delay in the delivery of the mail. Many dogs on mail delivery routes are running free during the summer.

The postmaster is seeking the cooperation of dog owners in confining their pets. "An attack by your dog could lead to discontinuance of mail delivery to your address and the neighborhood (if the dog runs loose)," he states.

Attacks by dogs are painful and costly not only to the victim but to the Postal Service and the owner.

"Please do all that's possible to see that an incident, such as a dog bite, does not happen in our community," Cates asks.

Old Glory unfurls

To two past commanders of V.F.W. Post 4012 went the honor of raising the American flag in official dedication ceremonies of the flagpole in front of the post on South Main immediately following the Fourth of July parade. William Widmaier raises the flag while George Bays, far right, salutes after assisting. Post chaplain Mike Myers gave the dedication prayer and Mayor Paul Vernon, at left with his wife Norma, briefly outlined the flagpole and South Main beautification project. Post Commander Carl Baker, third from left, officiated at the ceremony. Wayne County Executive William Lucas, who had been invited to participate, arrived in town but, apparently unaware of the exact dedication schedule, walked at the end of the parade line-up with his wife and continued to other commitments. ## City council examines charter amendments Possible amendments to update the Northville City Charter are being reviewed by the city attorney. City council made the decision to seek the attorney's advice July 1.

The charter, enacted in 1955 and amended in both 1964 and 1971, should be revised to bring several provisions into line with subsequent state statutes that modify or void chapters of the charter, city manager Steven Walters advised.

In a report prepared at the request of Mayor Paul Vernon, Walters listed seven potential changes that could be considered if the charter is amended.

Walters noted that the boundary description is out of date, not reflecting annexations since 1971, the date set for council elections is inconsistent with state law, and the procedure for calling special meetings does not comply with the state Open Meetings Act.

His report also states that the charter-mandated two percent penalty and six percent annual interest charge for late tax payments is "lower than all other local taxing units" which charge four percent penalties and 12 percent interest. The low fees make "non-payment of taxes a cheap way to borrow," Walters said.

Interest rates charged on special assessments paid over several years are tied, under the charter, to the interest charge for city taxes. State statute has since been changed to allow interest rates on special assessment to equal the interest rate being paid on municipal bonds issued to construct a project, Walters pointed out.

The charter also makes reference to the County Board of Supervisors — a body which no longer exists.

Chapter 15 of the charter deals with the municipal court. Such courts were eliminated by state statute several years ago.

Excepting those provisions, Walters said he found the charter "an overall excellent document which conforms to the model Council-Manager charter in all important respects." He added that the city's charter "wisely avoids" specifying numerical limits on purchasing procedures "which can get so out of date with inflation over a period of years."

Post-polio help available

Area residents who are experiencing post-polio problems and who would like to participate in a local support group are asked to call the March of Dimes in Southfield at 423-3200 to indicate interest.

"Many people who have had polio years ago are experiencing problems now," explains Violet Cariveau of Walled Lake, saying they could benefit from a local group. She presently attends a Troy group which will hold its next meeting at 7:30 p.m. July 16 at First Presbyterian Church of Troy, 4328 Livernois. Interested former polio patients are invited.

Dr. Kamienecki received the B.S. degree in chemistry from Wayne State University in 1981. She will begin her internship at Botsford General Hospital in Farmington Hills. She resides at 42738 Lyric Court with her husband Allan and sons Doug, 14, and David, 8.

TODD ASHLEY VINCENT, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. David Vincent of 584 Reed, received a bachelor of arts degree in history from Allegheny College.

He is 1980 Northville High School graduate.

LISA EHLERT and TINA STOECKLIN, both Northville students at Kalamazoo College, recently completed three-month career development internships.

Ehlert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Ehlert, was employed in the legal department of Detroit Edison.

Stoecklin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stoecklin, completed her internship in the Conservation Department of Potomac Electric Power Company's Energy Management Division in Washington, D.C.

Both were among 140 Kalamazoo College students who spent one-quarter of their sophomore years gaining experience in the field. Eighty percent or more of the college's students participate in the career development program.

The college is actively involved in the preparation and follow-up for each student. Director Ed Baker says the program is unique because the students are sophomores and they participate full-time in the 11-week program.

City Police Blotter

Two traffic incidents reported last weekend

Northville city police reported that several complaints were received that fireworks were being sold in the city, including last week at the farmer's market. While called fireworks, Chief Rodney Cannon explained, the merchandise being sold was under a Class C license and consisted of smoke bombs, sparklers and snakes, all permitted under the license.

He stated that the city can't refuse permission for such merchandise to be sold and added that it is the same type as is sold in such stores as Kmart.

One resident reported destruction of a mail box on East Street. The report stated that a large firecracker apparently was placed in the box and exploded.

Michael J. Staisil of South Lyon was cited for careless driving at 7:46 p.m. July 6 after his car was reported by witnesses as coming west on Eight Mile down the hill toward Novi Road at approximately 50-55 miles an hour, going out of control end over end into a Novi Street utility pole.

Staisil, who was alone in the 1981 Ford passenger car, was reported crossing the center line on Eight Mile at the Novi intersection. Witnesses think he struck another eastbound vehicle in the oncoming lane and lost control. He was reported "going end over end" across Novi Street, striking the curb and hitting a utility pole and sign.

The driver, who was wearing his seat belt, was taken by CEMS ambulance to Botsford Hospital.

City fire fighters responded to a fire call shortly after 11 p.m. Sunday on Taft Road. Fire Chief Jim Allen said that the fire in a vacant house just north of Cooke School on Taft was confined to one room.

A motorcyclist was arrested for reckless driving through Northville Estates at 11:57 a.m. Sunday. Michael Gerald Bates, 18, of 47500 Eight Mile, was seen by the officer entering Northville Estates and traveling at speeds over 40 miles an hour. The officer reported Bates drove the motorcycle with the front wheel off the ground through streets in the subdivision. He was stopped at Eight Mile and Beck as he left the subdivision.

Police noted they have received complaints from residents of excessive motorcycle traffic through the area.

Theft of a Raleigh chrome bicycle with red wheels from in front of Arbor Drugs was reported to police at 3:29 p.m. July 2. The information was entered into the police LEIN network.

City police are investigating a felonious assault complaint of Dale A. Clark of Northville. Clark reported he was struck from behind as he bent over to enter his vehicle about 8:11 p.m. Saturday, June 29, on the northwest section of the upper level parking deck.

The report states he came to the back door of Genitti's restaurant bleeding from a three to four inch long cut over his left ear. Three white men were reported seen leaving the lot and traveling west on Cady in a late model Chevrolet.

A Livonia resident reported finding a three foot long indentation on the driver's side of his vehicle when he returned to city lot No. 2 about 5:40 p.m. June 28. It had been parked in the lot at 11 a.m. that day. Damage was estimated at $200.

Education workshop slated

A free, 90-minute program, "Now is the Time," is being offered by Schoolcraft College to provide information and assistance to persons who are thinking about their future educational plans.

Designed by the college counseling staff, the program will be presented twice, first on July 22 and again August 14, at 7 p.m. in Room 200 of the Liberal Arts Building on the campus at 18600 Haggerty.

The workshop is open to the public. Discussion topics will include: Education and Your Career, Organizing Your Time, Financing Your College Education, Being Successful and College Credits — You May Already Have Some.

Following these presentations, time will be allotted for a question and answer period. Catalogs, fall schedules and admission forms will be available. The college counseling department may be contacted at 591-6400 for other information.

Anyone attending the workshop may be admitted to Schoolcraft by paying a one-time, $10 application fee.

John Webber, director of counseling at Schoolcraft, explained the need for such a program. "We feel that there are many people in the community who would like to go to college, but they have questions about a number of important considerations, which may be holding them back," he said.

Crowds throng Mill Race

Mill Race Historical Village was the scene of many post-parade activities on the Fourth of July as arts and crafts booths, below, were set up outdoors under sponsorship of Northville Historical Society and all buildings were open with docents on duty for visitors to tour.

The Jaycees also held the traditional chicken barbecue and dunk tank throughout the afternoon.

Danny Deegan, 6, at left, checks out his makeup in the mirror at the booth of the Northville Arts Commission which featured mime painting to raise funds for its projects.

Climaxing the day-long celebration were the Jaycee fireworks at dusk which ended in a spectacular finale that illuminated the sky. City police estimated they were watched by as many as 8,000.

Tony Craig wears souvenir of his police school experience

Craig's among Student Troopers

By MARILYN MORRISON

Northville resident Tony Craig was selected as one of the 54 teen-agers from Michigan to sample the life of a law enforcement officer — and he couldn't have been happier.

Craig has been interested in law enforcement for a year and a half and was delighted to participate in the Student Trooper Program at the State Police Academy in Lansing June 23-28.

The career oriented program, now in its 17th year, offers Michigan high school juniors the opportunity to live the day-to-day schedule of a police recruit.

During the five-day stay at the academy, Craig was expected to follow a rigorous schedule.

Throughout the week he was up a 5.45 a.m. for physical training. At 7 a.m. breakfast was served. The rest of the day was reserved for classes in fingerprinting, narcotics, self defense, women in law enforcement, child abuse, police patrols and marksmanship. At 10 p.m. Craig headed to bed for a well deserved sleep.

All classes are taught by Michigan State Police personnel with assistance from county and local police agencies. The students experience all aspects of police training through classroom lectures, guest speakers and in-field sessions. Every hour of the program is made as realistic as possible.

Craig said he enjoyed all the classes at the Student Trooper Program but had one in particular that he really enjoyed.

"The fundamentals of marksmanship was my favorite class because I like to hunt," Craig said. At the academy, the students used .38-caliber guns and were given 10 rounds of ammunition. The shooting range was 15 yards. In this particular class, Craig received a score

"The program is really good experience. I suggest that anyone interested in law enforcement go into it."

— Tony Craig,
Northville High School senior

During physical training the students would have to stand at attention for approximately 15 minutes before the day's activities got under way. Craig said this was not always easy.

Making the bed correctly also was important. If a student made his or her bed incorrectly, the odds were almost 100 to one they'd be making it again, Craig noted.

James H. Bonham, the second term commander of the American Legion Post in Northville thinks very highly of the program.

"The program is supposed to be one of the best. The students take the same training as the state troopers but their training only lasts a week," he said.

The entire cost of the program ($185) is covered by local American Legion Posts. The Northville post sponsored Craig. The money paid for Craig's room and board and books used during class.

The Student Trooper Program also received approval from Craig's father.

"The kids go and spend a week at the academy and learn to understand and respect what law enforcement is," said Paul Craig. "It's really quite a program."

Craig graduated from the academy with 51 other students interested in pursuing law enforcement as a possible career. The original class consisted of 54 students, two dropped out halfway through the course. Craig said one boy dropped out because he thought it was too hard, and the other caused a scene with an officer and was expelled.

Craig will be a senior at Northville High School this fall. His future plans include pursuing a job in law enforcement. Craig said he is not sure what area of law enforcement he will enter, but has expressed interest in joining the State Police force or studying to be an FBI agent.

Plymouth Center conversion proceeds despite county protest

seeking to have the Plymouth Center property sold.

"Evidently, the people in management and budget asked the attorney general to find the title to the park land (north of the Scott Regional Prison site) and, while they were at it, asked for the title to Plymouth Center at the same time," Heintz said.

When the attorney general found the deed, and the reverter clause, the news filtered its way through to Law. Law initially saw the reverter clause as a problem.

"I've been telling them to contact Wayne County and see if they can't work something out," Law said at a press conference when the state acquired the Detroit House of Correction. "Our next big push is going to be to get that land sold, and I don't think the county is going to let the state sell something it got for free — not without at least paying something to the county."

County officials didn't learn of the clause from the state administration or attorney general's office, though.

"Gerry (Law) went to the attorney general's office and demanded a copy of the deed," Heintz said. "He sent me a copy. I sent it to the county executive's office."

Bill Johnson, press secretary to county executive William Lucas, acknowledged that "somebody outside the county government" was the first to provide the information about the deed. "We directed it to the corporation counsel, who subsequently sent the letter to the state asking that the land be returned to us," Johnson said.

Plymouth Center has been closed for more than a year under a court order issued in the late 1970s after revelations of abuse. When asked why the county had taken so long to assert its claim, Johnson said: "Well, the state didn't try to sell it until recently, right?"

Senator R. Robert Geake (R-Northville) nearly succeeded in having the sale authorized late last year. Earlier in 1984, he pushed through an appropriation to have the property appraised for sale. The figure determined by state appraisers was $4.4 million for 218 of the 250 acres, deleting the portion DMH plans to convert in its plans to reduce NRPH population.

Geake's bill authorizing the state to sell the land barely missed approval at the end of the legislative session in December.

Even earlier, more than 18 months ago, the department of corrections was studying the site's potential for conversion to house prisoners.

Why wasn't the reverter clause referred to on those occasions? Or when various portions of the grounds were rented to users outside the state department of mental health, including the department of natural resources?

"No one knew about it," Heinz replied. "It would have been a nice argument to have on our side when we were fighting the prison."

Law was less charitable when the issue was discussed in late May.

"Why these guys didn't find it during their so-called study to put a prison there, I don't know," he said. "I don't understand these people. You'd think if you were talking about putting a prison somewhere, you'd look to make sure you could use the land for that."

The prison proposal was abandoned in early 1984, with Governor James Blanchard issuing a firm statement that the site was "unsuitable" for housing inmates. Blanchard's position remained unchanged even as Detroit Mayor Coleman Young was attempting to revive the proposal during the recent DeHoCo debate.

Although Heintz, Law and Geake have all spoken out in favor of having the Plymouth Center property sold to private interests, Johnson and O'Hair said there has yet to be any determination of what the county might do with the land if it succeeds in wresting it away from the state.

"We have no immediate plans for the property," Johnson said. "We're pursuing the legal issue. Under the terms of the agreement reached in 1956, the property should return to the county."

Meanwhile, the county has an audit under way regarding all the land it either has an interest in or owns outright. "That's been under way for quite awhile," Johnson said, acknowledging that the effort hadn't revealed the reverter clause.

Assuming that the issue is settled during Lucas' term as county executive, Johnson offered a jesting hint as to what might become of the Plymouth Center property.

"You know, the man's said: 'Everything in Wayne County is for sale except the politicians.'" and B.J. Martin

Store hours will be 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Sunday.
Northville Postmaster Wallace Cates announced last week that a Postal Contract Station will be established at the new Meijer store and will begin servicing the public on the opening day of the Meijer store, July 16.

This Postal facility will offer all domestic services; however, the Meijer station will not have the capability to handle Foreign/International mail or transactions, Cates stated.

Insurance rates go up

areas without dipping into the district's fund equity.

The district, insured through the Michigan Association of School Board's program for the past two years, was notified earlier this year that the MASA's company Celina was pulling out of Michigan — leaving Northville and many other school districts without a carrier.

According to John Street, director of business and finance, the district put out bids for a new carrier in May. The only bid received by the district was from Maplewold — at a rate 270 percent higher than last year.

Street said the increase is a reflection of the current insurance market.

He noted that companies previously wrote policies at low rates making up the costs through interest.

With lower interest rates, Street said companies no longer have that "cushion" and have made up the difference through higher premiums.

He also noted that there is 25 percent more demand for insurance in Michigan than capacity and that many companies which previously insured school districts no longer are doing so.

Street also said the district has two insurance agencies currently working on securing general liability insurance for the district. He told the board Monday the district at present is without this coverage.

Citizens' Committee came up with the idea for the Cost Savings Task Force.

Due to the success of the Cost Saving Task Force, the board recommended that it continue to be implemented. By making employees aware and publishing how much things cost, the schools can improve conservation of those items, said Llewellyn.

The School Bus Transportation Program for the 1985-86 school year will offer all students in grades K through 12 who live outside of one and one-half mile from their assigned school bus transportation.

Students in grades K through 12 who live less than one and one-half miles from their assigned school will be transported from designated stops only. Kindergarten children will be dropped off at the end of the a.m. session and picked up prior to the p.m. sessions at points close to their homes.

Park slates weekend fair

Kensington Metropark will be featuring two days of activities at the nature center and farm center. The theme of the program is "County Fair".

The program will be held at Kensington Metropark near Milford on Saturday and Sunday, July 13-14. Events generally begin at 10:30 a.m. each day and are designed to provide fun and learning for persons of all ages.

The overall theme of special events offered in July by the Huron-Clinton Metroparks is "Life Be In It".

"Life Be In It" is the slogan used by the National Recreation and Park Association in promotional efforts to make everyone more aware of the importance of participating in parks and recreation programs.

Most events are free, except for the usual charges involved in competitive events and a vehicle entry permit (Annual $7; senior citizens $2; daily rate $2) is required.

For additional details on any event, phone 1-800-552-6772 (toll free) and ask for the park sponsoring the event.

Trucking firm given site plan approval

Farmer Brothers, a gravel trucking firm, won site plan approval for development of its property on Chubb Road just south of Five Mile from the Salem Township Board on July 2.

Several stipulations attached to the plan by the township planning commission were affirmed by the board in granting approval. Farmer Brothers, which will run its nine gravel trains from the Chubb Road location, will be required to use a haul route that does not include travel through the hamlet of Salem.

The company is also prohibited from filling in wetlands or changing the natural water flow through the property.

SUMMER TAX BILLS HAVE BEEN MAILED to township residents, according to Treasurer Suzanne Witthoff.

She added that a special board of review session will be held at the township offices July 16 to check only clerical or bookkeeping errors related to the bills.

Witthoff said it is important that any taxpayer finding such an error call the township office at 349-1690 immediately to request time with the review board. Property owners who wish to challenge assessments can only do so in March each year, the treasurer added.

Salem taxes can be paid at the township office or at the Salem branch of the State Savings Bank.

TOWNSHIP RESIDENTS DISSATISFIED with the chloride-brine dust control applications spread by the Washtenaw County Road Commission can get an additional application by requesting it from the road commission. Supervisor Richard Sackett said the cost for the additional application would be $15 for each 300 feet in front of a residence.

Sackett said the township has received several complaints that the original chloride application was less than effective. He noted that this may have been due to a heavy rain soon after it was applied. The board said the second regular treatment contracted for by the township would probably not be applied until late August for fall dust control.

TOWNSHIP CLERK NANCY GEIGER, in her position as office manager for the township, is now entitled to "up to five paid personal days off per year with no accumulation from one year to the next," the board decided. Last year, in writing up the duties of the office manager (a full-time position), the board had allowed only a two-week paid vacation for the office manager. The elected township clerk position is considered a part-time job.

The question of paid personal time arose when Geiger asked for two days off preceding her daughter's recent wedding. Sackett said he realized at that time that no allowance had been made for such an occurrence in the job description. The supervisor added that even when Geiger is not on duty, she is generally available by telephone for office questions.

Permit dispute rages in township

By KEVIN WILSON

Is Northville Township Supervisor Susan Heintz wielding her growing political clout to favor one property owner over another? Or is she just demanding a stricter interpretation of building regulations than some of her predecessors may have done?

Donald Keeth, a lifelong resident of the area and a man interested in selling some property he owns near Pickford, contends Heintz deliberately blocked his efforts to obtain a building permit. Acquiring the permit was a precondition to sale of his land to the Albert Sants, Keeth's attorney stated.

"I frankly don't why she's doing this," Keeth said. "I don't understand — all I can guess is that somebody is swinging a mighty big political club."

Heintz says she is doing no such thing. "That's just ridiculous," she said. "Politics is not involved here — this whole thing started because Mr. Keeth apparently decided he was going to do this a certain way. And that's not the way we do things."

Keeth says his applications for a building permit, beginning in early May, were repeatedly rejected on Heintz's direct order to building department official Troy Milligan.

"Troy told me he couldn't issue a permit — that he was ordered not to," Keeth said. "I asked him who told him not to, and he said 'The powers that be.' I asked if that meant Susan Heintz and he said I'd have to ask her. She told me she ordered the permit withheld until I got some approvals from the county. I got the county permit, and they still wouldn't give it to me."

Milligan declined comment on the issue for publication, referring all inquiries to Heintz and township clerk Georgina Goss.

After he threatened to sue in a June 26 letter from his attorney, Keeth obtained a permit June 28. He said that date was the end of his deal with the Sants — if no permit was obtained by that time, the sale was to fall through.

The permit issued, however, was made subject to several conditions before construction can begin, one of them central to the township administration's argument that the county office of public services (successor to the road commission) must clear the plan first.

Keeth's property, now vacant, is the product of a 1973 supervisor's lot split on Pickford. The split separated Keeth's parcel from one now occupied by a home owned by Robert Hartman. The only access to Keeth's land, which is south of Hartman's, is via Frances Street.

But Frances is not really a street. It's a dedicated county right-of-way only 43 feet wide and totally unimproved. Until May 17th when Keeth started building a driveway, there were trees growing on it. County road standards require 60-feet of width. The right-of-way used to be 86-feet wide, but the western 43 feet were vacated (abandoned for road use) several years ago, Heintz said.

"Mr. Keeth's real problem is with the county," the supervisor said. "He needs a permit to use or work on the county right-of-way. He never got one and went out and built a 12-foot driveway on the county land back to his property."

Keeth admits building the driveway, but argues that several other similar situations have been allowed in the township. "It's none of her business anyway," Keeth said. "What's the supervisor doing messing around with building permits? That's not right. No one stopped these other lots."

Heintz says the township building code and two board of trustee resolutions (passed in 1970 and 1972) require that no permit be issued until the access question is resolved through the county. If any similar situations ever existed, she added, they don't now.

"Anywhere I can find a driveway on a county right-of-way, the street has been vacated — there are no dedicated right-of-ways with driveways on them that we can find," she said.

Keeth's permit is conditional on having the county okay the access route by one of several methods:

- Vacating the remainder of Frances south of Pickford and having an easement or right-of-way assigned to the property owner (similar to what has been done in other like situations);

- Completing a road to Wayne County specifications (which Keeth says is impossible because he can't build 60-feet wide, and he further contends is too expensive a proposition merely to gain access to one residential lot);

- A waiver from the county allowing a road not meeting specifications;

- A valid 'street protection permit' allowing Keeth to use the right-of-way in the manner he proposes but retaining the county's right to eventually build a road there.

Keeth argued that he already has a street protection permit, issued shortly after his building permit was rejected the first time.

"But that was issued by mistake," Heintz said. "The county called and told us it was a mistake — it's not valid."

Keeth claims the county is reluctant to deal with the situation at all since someone, he suggested it was the Hartmans, placed several phone calls opposing his project.

"I'm not sure who called, but the county said it had received dozens of calls on this," Keeth said. "Someone called county commissioner Mary Dumas, she called Sheriff Robert Picano, we had a deputy out there and for a while my driveway was barricaded. But they came out later and took down the barricades."

Heintz noted the barricading. "I had nothing to do with that — it was all through the county people," she said. "My whole role has been in regard to the building permit and trying to find out what the county's doing."

Keeth has heard all those comments, but still argued that "political clout" was blocking his sale.

"Why would you talk to a supervisor about a building permit?" he asked. "They're trying to keep anyone from building on that lot — I don't know why. Someone doesn't want that lot used. Hartman doesn't want anything built there."

Heintz said that she has spoken to the Hartmans regarding the issue, but that there is no political influence at work.

"I've met Bob Hartman maybe three times," she said. "Twice I've talked to him since this came up. And I met him once before when I was clerk and he came in asking about (Keeth's) piece of property."

The clash between Keeth and Heintz reached a peak in early June when the property owner confronted the supervisor in township hall.

"She threw me out of her office," Keeth said. "First they told me she wasn't in. When they finally admitted she was in the office, I barely started talking when she just blew up. That woman talked to me like she was a drill sergeant and I was a raw recruit. She just said the meeting was over and wouldn't listen to anything else."

Heintz admits losing her temper and throwing Keeth and the buyer, Sant, out of her office.

"He came in at 4:45 demanding an appointment," she said. "I wasn't even in to work — I stopped by on my way somewhere with my boy to pick up some things to take home. I was confused when I saw Sant. We'd already spoken with Sant's attorney and I thought we were working things out."

Heintz's version of the conversation differs from Keeth's contention that he "was real polite — I'd hardly opened my mouth when she started in on me." Heintz says Keeth wasn't so polite.

"I get upset when people make accusations. I get real angry when anyone implies I'm on the take," she said. "He made that allegation about Mr. Hartman and political reasons and I lost my temper."

"I shouldn't have done that," she continued. "I'm not proud of it. But, yes, it happened."

Clerk Goss was also in the room at the time. Keeth said Goss tried to calm Heintz down, but that the supervisor would hear none of it.

Goss said she was taken aback by Heintz's anger, but not completely surprised.

"Mr. Keeth had made some pretty nasty implications and allegations before she got mad," Goss said. "I'd never seen her that angry, though."

The Northville Record

Our Opinions

Commission's right at Allen Terrace

We had hoped the power struggle between city council and the housing commission was drawing to a close several months ago when the two seemed to open up avenues of communication that had been firmly shut.

But that doesn't seem to be the case. Three recent situations point up the differences between members of the two public bodies. In its review of the housing commission's revised by-laws, again when considering a performance evaluation program for city department heads, and most recently in rejecting the commission's request that the housing director's salary be increased, city council has consistently aimed for broad authority over the operations of Allen Terrace and the other programs in the department.

It is a fairly common situation in government that an elected body reviews the activities of an appointed one. Depending on the specific structure and function of the appointed board or commission, the degree of independence varies. Whenever the issue of "Who's in charge?" arises, as it does in the council-housing commission discussions, there are two ways to think about it.

By some lights, it's best to have the elected body bear most of the responsibility. After all, the government belongs to the people and the elected officials are the ones who must answer directly to the voters. Appointed boards and commissions, however, are often designed that way precisely to provide some isolation from the political process — to prevent them getting involved in the "give and take" of politicking and the vagaries of periodic elections. To be sure, nothing in American government is completely removed from politics. Even an appointed commissioner who wishes to continue in that capacity must keep an eye out for the desires of those who make the appointments — whether that is the mayor, the council or any other elected group.

Still, our reading of the state law that authorizes cities to own and operate senior citizen housing suggests that the legislature wanted housing commissions to be among the more independent appointed bodies. So far as we can see, the council's major authority over the commission should be its appointive power — if a commissioner is performing against the will of the elected government, then that commissioner would be replaced when his or her term expired. But the day-to-day operation of the housing programs would be left to the commission and the housing administration.

One means of determining who should be in charge is to "follow the money." State law is structured to create municipally owned senior housing that is self-supporting, but allows for some taxpayer support through the city. Through its early years, the operation of Allen Terrace required large city subsidies. That is less and less the case. The current commission and director have made great strides toward financial independence. Rents, state rent subsidies and other revenue sources (i.e. administrative fees for overseeing local rent subsidy programs in private developments) now pay most costs of the operation, and the degree of city support required has been reduced to where DPW services are the biggest expense. Those can be offset by a "payment-in-lieu of taxes" allowed for by law.

What we have here, then, is a housing operation that is nearing the ideal we believe was intended by state law — a self-supporting entity that, thanks to its municipal ownership, provides senior citizens with affordable shelter. That accomplishment should make for some relaxation of city council control. Instead, we see council reaching to pull in the reins and assert authority.

The contrast is even more striking when compared with several other entities. Consider the shared services the city operates with the township (recreation, library and senior citizen services, the latter recently combined with recreation): although these operations require consistent financial support from taxpayers, the appointive commissions sometimes seem to have more authority than the less-dependent housing commission. Admittedly, the council and township board don't hesitate to step in when they see these commissions doing something they don't like (most recently in stifling an attempt to make the senior citizen coordinator a full-time position).

We are not arguing that the housing commission should be exempt from council review — clearly, the city owns the property and appoints the commission to oversee its operation. Rather than have council involved in every detail, however, we would prefer to see a more relaxed approach. Perhaps personalities are involved in the current clash between council and the commission. If so, council would be better advised to look to the appointive process to solve particular concerns than to implement rigid policies that unnecessarily restrain the commission from going about its business. A city council is, after all, a legislative body, not an executive one.

Fourth's a record

By virtually everyone's count, Northville's Fourth of July celebration was a winner. The parade, marking the 25th anniversary of Jaycees' sponsorship, took 90 minutes to wind its way from the Downs along Main Street past the reviewing stand and south on Rogers. Bands and dancing groups entertained in front of the judges at city hall where the largest crowds gathered.

Police chief Rodney Cannon estimates the crowd along the parade route at 4,000 with double that number watching the fireworks at dusk. They also are sponsored by the Jaycees. Before the parade, crowds filled the Masonic Temple where Union Chapter served breakfast. The first annual "Satin Sheets" bed race sponsored by the recreation department was pronounced a "smashing success" to be repeated next year.

Mill Race Historical Village was the focal point of activity after the parade with Jaycees serving barbecued chicken and an outdoor craft show held under Northville Historical Society sponsorship. Docents were on duty to answer visitors' questions in the buildings which were open.

It was a great day to celebrate our country's Independence right at home.

'Away from the office'

By Kevin Wilson

Kevin Wilson is on vacation. In his absence, we are printing a column he wrote as darkness approached last Friday night. You didn't think a small weekly newspaper was going to spring for Mike Royko or something, did you?

What we need is a new phrase here. While I'm officially "on vacation" this week, that implies something that just isn't going to happen.

What I really am is "away from the office." I almost said "off work" but that would be wrong, too. What I'm doing is catching up on the billion-and-one little things around the house that are neglected when the parents of two children under the age of three are both employed full-time outside the home.

Modern society needs a word that describes this sort of non-vacation vacation. Since late June, when I had to begin notifying people they wouldn't find me in the office this week, I must have been asked 20 times, "Where are you going?" I really feel like I'm letting people down when I say "Inkster." Heck, I even feel let down myself when I say it. But I'll never be able to say "Northville" if someone doesn't start catching up with this house before the repair bill approaches our total decade of equity.

Being away from work for a week not only gives me and Toni 80 hours we would not otherwise have to tackle household chores, but at least another 20 we won't have to spend packing diaper bags, loading children in the car and driving them to and from the day care home. Of course, that full 100 hours will also require that we care for our own kids. In other words, I don't expect our home is going to look like something out of Architectural Digest before we're due back at work.

All the same, we ought to get a few tree limbs pared back, clear the underbrush out of the drainspouts, repair the side door where the dog has chewed it to bits, progress on the bathroom redecorating (that's been on hold since half-completed last autumn during my last non-vacation — prior to the baby's birth), and generally get the place into some kind of order.

Some people do these things on weekends. When we are both at home only every third weekend (leaving the other to fend off the children alone on the other two), it's been all we can manage to catch up with the dishes and laundry on weekends.

Of course, the at-home vacation always creates all kinds of unreasonable expectations. Running through my mind have been plans to catch up with all the old friends I haven't talked to in months (of course, they'll be working, or away on real vacations), write a few letters (ever try that with a three-year-old in your lap?) and give the cars thorough scrubblings, oil changes and tune-ups. Maybe if I keep my hands busy enough, I could quit smoking.

That's not to mention idle daydreams of enjoying the fruits of our labors by sipping iced tea and soaking up a few rays in our newly tolerable backyard while absorbed in a good book (the mental image includes a cigarette — drat). Most elements of this fantasy are probably shared even by those whose lifestyles include a stay-at-home parent and every weekend off — it's a rare thing with two boys aged "starting to crawl" and "almost three."

Every true American knows, though, that going on vacation means spending money. And only money you don't have. This applies to stay-at-home vacations, too. This is because you also try to catch up on unfinished shopping. The boys need summer clothes. Mom and Dad need summer clothes. I don't expect Mom and Dad are going to have much luck in this department unless they can squeeze into a size 24 months or 4 Toddler.

Spending money brings to mind all those other wishes that could be worked into one week off. Those trips to Boblo, the zoo and Belle Isle we've talked about taking the kids on, the visit to Trappers' Alley, even visiting with the kids' grandparents for more than an hour or two. The closest I'll probably get to wish fulfillment will probably be pushing the new lawn mower we got two weeks ago. Always wanted one that started easily and had a sharp blade. Toni tells me this one works great — the lawn sure showed it.

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

For the first time ever, I am stooping to a "dissa and datta" column — a collection of random thoughts and ideas. It's what column-writers sink to when they aren't able to come up with an idea for a real column.

Dissa and Datta No. 1: My wife isn't real happy with the columns about her yellow shorts. Says she won't be able to wear them in public anymore because people will discover I made them sound a lot more impressive than they really are.

I assured her nobody takes my column seriously.

Dissa and Datta No. 2: Toni Genitti of Genitti's gave me her own "yellow shorts" story. Toni said she was calling a restaurant she and her husband John wanted to visit to ask about the dress code.

"When they said dress was 'informal,'" she reported, "I asked if shorts were permitted. You know what the guy said? 'How are your legs?' Can you believe that?"

"I told them it was John who wanted to wear shorts."

Dissa and Datta No. 3: I am informed that I have a new reader — the daughter of a lady named Cheryl who was the topic of a recent column about husbands who buy green MGs for their wives.

Cheryl told me her daughter is a regular reader since being told her mom and dad had been singled out on two occasions for column topics. Hi, Cheryl's daughter.

Dissa and Datta No. 4: I got a letter several weeks ago from a local architect in response to the column I wrote about architects who promise "next week" and deliver "next month."

Walter Coponen assures me most architects meet their deadlines and deliver "next week" when they say they'll deliver "next week."

Dissa and Datta No. 5: The builder of the addition to my home has moved "on-site," as they say in the building trades. He admits to accepting the project with some reluctance after discovering I'm likely to write columns about his progress — or lack of it. Ah, the power of the press.

Dissa and Datta No. 6: Hey, deese "dissa and datta" columns are semi-fun. I attribute it to television commercials and USA Today. Watch out, folks, this is semi-heavy. It has to do with the limited attention span of the contemporary American reader. Anything longer than 30-second spots on television or eight-inch stories in USA Today are likely to lose the attention of the listener or reader.

July 4th participants express appreciation

To the Editor:
Three cheers for te Jaycees — it was a wonderful Fourth of July parade and fireworks display!
Northville Band worked very hard to give a wonderful performance. Please arrange, next year, so the fire engines and other vehicles with sirens do not follow our band in the line up. Thank you.

Maryann Cardno

To The Editor:
The First Annual "Satin Sheets" Bed Race sponsored by the Northville Community Recreation Department on July 4 was a smashing success!

We'd like to thank all the teams who participated: Gormondo II, Northville Junior Baseball, Bed Bugs, Dads' Club and Team Goebel. Hope you all join us next year for a bigger and better race.

Another thanks goes to the City of Northville Police Department who kept the intersections clear during the race.

To help make the Bed Race an annual community event, the recreation department would like to personally challenge the city and township personnel in next year's race. Any takers?

See you next July 4!

Cooke staff members thank students, parents

To the Editor:
The Cooke Junior High School staff would like to thank the P.T.O., Mothers' Club, parents and students for their fine cooperation and support over the year in making for a better school.

The hard work and dedication by so many to provide the school with valuable learning materials and equipment, and to arrange for the book fair, teacher appreciation luncheon, fun day, etc. are all very much appreciated.

We look forward to your continuing support in the new school year.

Sincerely,
Cooke Junior High School Staff

Owner praises boys for return of dog

To the Editor:

In a world where we are all too quick to judge and too slow to praise, I would like to extend my heartfelt thanks to two young boys who took the onus upon themselves of reuniting a tired, disoriented dog with its rightful owners.

Whoever you are — wherever you are, bless you, boys.

Accident victim appreciates assistance

To the Editor:

While visiting at a friend's home in Northville I read an article about a lady thanking some good people who helped her in a crisis.

I would like to do the same as I was an innocent victim of a hit and run auto accident on Thursday, June 13, a very caring lady and her husband asked for the telephone numbers of my family.

And I would also like to thank the Northville police who did and are still trying to find the red vehicle with broken head lights and maybe windshield. Maybe someone can come to my aid again.

Thanks everyone,
Ruby Roudabush

Peddling to somewhere

by Pat Bowling

A beautiful Saturday morning, and I'm sweating more and more with each revolution I force on the pedals of my cycle. Not the two-wheeled version — which would make more sense on a day like this — but one of those exercise cycles that attempt to simulate the long, uphill battles and breathless downhill breezes of a real bicycle ride.

Watching the digital numbers accumulate on the timer in front of me, I feel as if this effort should be toward something more than burning off a few calories. I could be in training — perhaps for a cross-country bicycle trip. That's the kind of adventure vacation I could get enthused about this summer.

Those who have experienced one of these extended bicycle trips seem to agree it's one of the best ways to see the country. I interviewed two such adventurers several years ago. I caught them on a short interlude in Indiana, halfway between their point of origination — Boulder, Colorado, and their destination — Hanover, Pennsylvania.

The two young women were traveling across country with no more than a water bottle, a sleeping bag and a tent strapped on to 33-pound, 10-speed bicycles. They shared food, aching muscles, occasional exhaustion and a sense of satisfaction with each mile of pavement they traveled. "We may only go 60 miles a day, but we really experience that 60 miles," explained one.

I'd prefer a somewhat shorter jaunt, I think. Last week I heard the author of an adventure vacation guidebook describe a one-week bicycle hike through Vermont in the fall. Could there be any better way to experience and enjoy the brilliantly-colored New England countryside in autumn? Now there's something worth peddling for!

If not in training for a bicycle vacation, perhaps there's some other adventure for which this weekly exercise of stationary peddling might be useful. Hiking, for instance.

I've only ever really been hiking once. I had years of 10- and 15-mile Girl Scout hikes from one camp to the next, but only one honest-to-goodness, carry the tent and food and sleep with the wildlife foot hike.

The week-long vacation in Colorado Springs was intended as a reunion of sorts — two of us from Indiana drove out to visit an old friend who moved to the mountains after graduation. At some point along the way (probably under the heat of a noon sun in Kansas) we came up with the idea of a hiking/camping adventure in the Rocky Mountains.

Of course, none of us had ever "roughed it" in the wild. So we recruited a more experienced acquaintance, a fellow by the name of "Rocky" (honest), to serve as trail guide and carrier of the heaviest backpack.

Our little group of three adventurers and one experienced climber hiked eight straight hours the first day. We set up camp in a grove of trees on the side of the mountain just before sundown, built a fire and fixed Lipton cup-o-soups for dinner. Small animals scurried around, over and, we feared, through our little tent all night. The next morning we gathered together a small pack of peanut butter and jelly sandwiches and set out for the top of the mountain.

Even with only lightweight packs, it was a grueling hike. But, like the bicyclists peddling from one state to the next, we experienced that mountain. At its summit we encountered a rain and hail storm, then watched as the clouds dispersed and the afternoon sunlight danced on a glacier-fed lake surrounded by pink, purple and yellow Rocky Mountain wildflowers.

That's the kind of vacation I could revel in this year. Anyone know of any week-long bicycle or hiking trips in Michigan? Enough of the exercise cycle. I'm ready to hit the road.

Geake among voter registration reform advocates

It's back to work for supporters of proposed legislation to reform Michigan's voter registration law.

This is the third go-around with the voter registration issue, the previous two having won bipartisan legislative approval only to meet with vetoes from the governor's office.

Reform advocates, including state senator R. Robert Geake (R-Northville), hope the third time will be the charm. Geake and several co-sponsors from both parties introduced the latest bill, saying it has been altered to solve problems cited by Governor James J. Blanchard in his second veto message.

Entitled the Voter Integrity Program, Geake's new bill has been co-sponsored by the senate's majority and minority leaders.

"This is a simple, honest bill which would make voter registration more accessible and help alleviate concerns expressed by certain groups that sponsor registration drives," Geake said.

"Simply, we are making registration easier and cleaner, without creating unnecessary administrative burdens for local clerks."

The previous bill, vetoed last fall, was tailor-made in response to a veto message issued by Lieutenant Governor Martha Griffiths, who rejected the original bill while Blanchard was out-of-state.

"I addressed the concerns expressed in the original veto message," Geake said. "But (Blanchard) raised new ones in his second veto message. This third attempt responds to his latest obstacles."

The measure is supported by the Michigan Municipal Clerks Association (MMCA), of which former Northville city clerk Joan McAllister is the president. The law would reduce the length of time voter registrations must be kept on file when the registered voter does not show up at the polls.

At present, the names of registered voters who do not vote are typically listed on an "active" voter file for four to five years, then must be kept in an "inactive" file until 10 years after the registration was issued or the last time the voter appeared at the polls.

During that 10-year period, the registered voter may vote without having to re-register.

'Satin Sheets' bed race newest Fourth of July event

Northville Recreation Department this year added a new event to the Fourth of July schedule: a "Satin Sheets" bed race before the 10 a.m. parade.

Groups formed teams to push the decorated beds down Main Street as quickly as possible.

Mustangs Football Dad's Club, at right, finishes last of the five teams — but had great fan support, causing the big grins on the faces of Don Morgan, Mary Jo McDonough, Ed Stephens, Bill Greer and Anne Holloway.

Newcomers Alumni formed the Coronary Comets team, left, but became disqualified as not all five team members crossed the finish line — as required.

Recreation Department sponsors already are planning next year's race with even more competition.

Salem gives site approval

the fire committee for review and recommendation. They ranged from $749 for a canvas tank to $1,117 for a tank of synthetic material.

INSPECTION OF THE ROOF at the Rider house, which was formerly used as an office by the township board, will be undertaken by Sackett, Trustee Ferman Rohraff and Township Building Inspector Lawrence Bidwell. The committee will then bring to the board recommendations for repair of the roof, as well as repair of a window in the business office and paint or stain for the outside of the township hall and offices.

THE TOWNSHIP PLANNING COMMISSION was charged by the board with recommending a local regulation for satellite dishes and making some changes in the mobile home ordinance. Treasurer Suzanne Wiffhoff asked that the mobile home ordinance be reworded so that temporary occupancy could be allowed at any construction site (residential or commercial). Currently, the ordinance only allows temporary occupancy of a mobile home on a site where a permanent home is being constructed.

A SPOKESPERSON FOR THE SALEM HISTORICAL Committee and senior citizens withdrew his letter asking for use of the former Rider home for a museum and meeting place. Henry Dolan asked the board, however, if it does plan to demolish the house. Sackett responded that original plans for the Village Green office site at Salem call for that area to eventually be expanded for township office parking but did not include demolition of the building.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY has won approval from the Washtenaw County Road Commission to place a buried cable along the south side of Six Mile from Pearl Street to Currie Road. Sackett said no action was required of the township board since it will be placed within the road right-of-way. He added that any private drain lines cut during the project will be replaced by the phone company.

THE MICHIGAN TOWNSHIPS ASSOCIATION, after reviewing new insurance programs available to townships, is not recommending any of them at present, according to a report by Geiger. The clerk added that the MTA is working to make municipal insurance packages more marketable to carriers. The township board recently renewed its insurance coverage with the Burnham and Flowers Agency and expressed its satisfaction that it was able to do so since many municipalities have had their insurance canceled.

Lapham's now serving professional women

Women inspect fabric samples at Lapham's trunk showing

Northville store reaches out to serve women who work

By MARILYN MORRISON

Lapham's in Northville hosted its first Trunk Show June 29, featuring the meticulous tailoring of Cricketeer suits, skirts and blouses for women.

Traditionally, Lapham's was a men's store until five years ago when Scott Lapham and his mother, Maxine, decided it was time to add women's tailored suits. Before that time, Lapham's Clothing and Tailoring Shop at 120 East Main did women's alterations for 30 years.

With thousands of professional women in the working world and only a few companies that make tailored suits, the idea to sell Cricketeer suits at Lapham's has been a good one, the show sponsors report.

"There are not many companies that make tailored women's suits," Scott Lapham said.

Lapham explained that in Michigan there are only three stores where women can go to buy top quality suits. Cricketeer suits are professionally styled and semi-hand-tailored to shape a woman's figure.

In the Detroit area, Lapham's is one of the top sellers of women's quality suits, and their customers are not exclusively Northville residents.

"Some of our customers even come from out-of-state to buy suits," Lapham said.

At the June 29 Trunk Show, approximately 45 to 50 women came between 9 a.m. and noon to choose their favorite colors and styles of suits along with sport coats and blouses. A continental breakfast of fruits and non-alcoholic beverages also was served.

Many of the women who attended the show held different jobs in various fields, such as law, finance, real estate and sales, but all were looking for the same thing—a nicely tailored suit.

At the show there were eight suit models and eight skirt models from which to choose, along with seven blouse styles.

Among the most popular styles were the four button suit and a belted suit jacket that helped to accentuate the figure.

The most popular skirts were A-line skirts, (basic skirts with a slight gather at the waist) that hit midcalf. As for blouses, the most popular style was an eight pleated front with an attached bow tie.

While there was no real trend toward any certain color, Lapham said the dusty pastels went over very well. Other popular colors included tans, ivories, pinks and navy pinstripes.

Luxury cruising not limited to upper incomes

Travelers in search of an unusual summer getaway will find they can choose from diverse cruises ranging from the Caribbean to Alaska.

"Luxury cruising today is no longer just for the upper income traveler," said Charles Lentz, AAA Michigan Travel Sales and Promotions manager. "According to the Cruise Line International Association (CLIA), half of all cruise-goers earn $25,000 or less."

"Even on a limited budget, you can find a cruise to suit your interests," said Lentz. He noted that the trend in cruising is toward the informal with shorts, sun dresses, swimwear and cover-ups the most popular attire.

"One of the attractions for the budget-conscious cruise-goer is that the price usually includes meals, accommodations, on-board entertainment and air travel to and from home," he said.

Lentz recommended that travelers determine why they want a cruise before booking one. If warm weather is the motivation, a Caribbean, Mexican or Hawaiian cruise may be the answer. For spectacular scenery, an Alaskan venture is hard to beat. Other cruises specialize in big-name entertainment while some offer children's activities.

"As you carefully decide what kind of cruise you want and how many ports of call you would like to visit, you should also think about price," said Lentz.

In general, the longer the cruise, the more expensive. Cabins with a view cost more than inside rooms. However, less expensive rooms are usually booked first.

One of the most popular AAA trips this summer is a seven-night Caribbean cruise aboard the deluxe Nordic Prince. The ship departs from New York for a four-day stay in Bermuda, where famed pink-tinted beaches, trendy shops along Front Street, golf courses, night clubs and 375 years of settled history can be explored.

Flights depart from Detroit and Grand Rapids to New York where passengers board the ship.

Prices start from $1,140 for AAA members and $1,215 for non-members, including air fare, for the trip which departs August 24 and September 7. The average Caribbean cruise last winter cost $1,300.

For those who prefer more ports of call, the Song of America departs September 29 for a seven-day cruise with prices starting at $1,105 for AAA members and $1,300 for non-members. Sailings also are available July 28 and October 27 with prices starting at $1,170 for AAA members and $1,300 for non-members. The trip includes air fare from Detroit or Grand Rapids to Miami, Florida. Ports include Nassau, San Juan and St. Thomas.

The more adventuresome traveler with a little more time will enjoy a 10-day visit to Alaska with three nights aboard the Island Princess. The "Gold Rush Country Reverse" tour departs September 10. Ports of call include Juneau, Fairbanks and Anchorage. Prices, including air fare from Detroit to Seattle, start at $1,825.

Merrill Lynch slates financial seminar for female investors

No matter how much money you have, managing it in today's changing economy can be a difficult balancing act. You have to stay ahead of inflation and increasing taxes, and at the same time, put some of your funds to work for the future.

That's the advice offered by Ann Benson, national investor information specialist with Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, who will present a seminar called "Investing for Women: How to Get a Grip on All Your Financial Resources" at the Catherine McAuley Health Center Educational Auditorium in Ann Arbor on Wednesday, July 24, at 7 p.m.

The auditorium is located at 5301 East Huron River Drive in Ann Arbor. Featured will be a panel of investment specialists including account executives with Merrill Lynch's Ann Arbor office and local tax and insurance experts. Refreshments will be served.

Benson, who has conducted financial workshops for thousands of women throughout the country, will cover such topics as determining personal investment objectives, choosing a financial advisor, getting information about securities and avoiding common investor pitfalls.

The seminar is free, but a $10 tax-deductible donation to the Catherine McAuley Health Center is requested. For more information or reservations call Merrill Lynch at 996-1156.

Benson noted that a recent survey by the Investment Company Institute showed that about 36 percent of the women who play an active role in their financial affairs do not feel comfortable making financial decisions because of lack of experience or education.

Understanding the basics of investing can provide some of the confidence needed to assume control of your personal finances, she said. One of these basics is knowing whether you are in a position to invest. The answers to the following questions can help:

- Can I cover living expenses comfortably—food, clothing, shelter?
- Do I have adequate insurance to protect myself and my family in case of illness or death?
- Do I have enough available cash to meet emergencies that may arise?

If you answered "yes" to all three, you can start to plan for the future. If you are new to investing and lack experience and education, prudent professional advice can help. To find it, shop around.

Benson said there are three steps to follow:

- Evaluate the reputation of selected advisors. You might seek referrals from friends who have developed successful relationships with investment advisors and account executives. The financial pages of your local newspaper also are a good source, since they have articles and advertisements concerning these services.
- Inquire about the range of investment services available from each of these firms. The firm of your choice should have an extensive research staff that continually monitors developments in a wide range of industries. The firm also should be a member of all major stock exchanges and be able to provide services that allow you to trade in many investment vehicles, such as options, municipal bonds and commodities.

• Sit down and meet with the investment firm's account executive. He or she should take a serious and thoughtful interest in your financial situation and overall investment objectives—not just in deciding which stock or bond you should buy. Is the account executive a good communicator? This is important since clear and consistent communication is essential to a successful relationship. Finally, do you feel comfortable with the person?

"The most significant factor in successful investing is having a system or discipline and being consistent with it," said Benson. "In other words, you must first determine your personal investment objectives and then select the proper vehicles to achieve those goals."

"Furthermore, you should review your holdings periodically to make sure they continue to meet your objectives."

Benson said there are three primary investment objectives: 1) Safety of principal income (protecting money from the eroding impact of inflation and preserving capital for future use); 2) Income (seeking highest current yield available in investments of acceptable quality); and 3) Long-term growth (increased value over a number of years—reinvestment of investment income helps compound growth).

A fourth objective, she said, cuts across all the others—tax-saving opportunities. Your tax bracket may indicating that you should be seeking tax-favored or tax-deferred vehicles. Most investors, however, prefer to diversify their investments to meet a variety of objectives.

— Ann Benson, Merrill Lynch

Benson said account executives can help provide guidelines for better investing, but each woman ultimately must make her own investment decisions. She offers a few general dos and don'ts.

1. Be Informed: Investigate before you invest. Whatever your objectives, you should get as much information as possible about the company you want to put money in. Your account executive can provide you with research materials on specific companies, as well as the economy in general. Valuable information is contained in your target company's quarterly and annual reports, such as earnings record and investment return.

You can compare the company's record to the earnings records of others in its industry. This information appears in newspaper financial pages, business magazines and brokerage reports.

Check both the company's and the industry's growth prospects with your investment firm. For instance, a company that looks extremely promising today may be at the peak of its cycle. On the other hand, a company that isn't doing too well may be at the end of a downward cycle. Generally speaking, when the outlook brightens or the industry actually starts to improve, the performance will be reflected in the stock price. Remember—you're investing in the future, not the past.

2. Monitor investments: Many investors put good thought into their investments for awhile, then sit back and let their returns grow. But good investments can turn sour. Too many people don't monitor their investments, therefore, they sometimes find that their initial care was wasted.

Check your security's closing price and trading volume daily in your newspaper, and periodically consult with your account executive for a possible change in the firm's recommendation.

News of company developments, industry reviews and economic forecasts can be found in newspaper financial pages and business periodicals. One important reason you must monitor your investments is so that you can determine when to sell.

3. Don't fall in love with your stock: A lot of work goes into it—you follow it every day in the paper and read the company's annual and quarterly reports. It becomes a very comfortable, familiar thing, but there are times when it's smart to end your relationship.

4. Don't put all your eggs in one basket: It takes effort to make a single investment and an even greater effort to make several investments. Diversifying your portfolio can be well worth the effort, however, since it can minimize your risk.

Following these four rules, said Benson, will not assure success in the market, because there are no guarantees. But it should result in more intelligent, better informed investment decisions.

Handbook offers answers on working women's rights

Women's legal rights as they pertain to jobs and job opportunities have changed significantly in the past two decades. Yet, many working women are still uncertain about these rights and about the protections and sources of assistance offered to them under federal and state law.

A recent publication by the U.S. Department of Labor outlines women's legal rights as they apply to employment and explains how women can assert their job rights.

The guide covers on-the-job rights, dealing with promotions, training, maternity leave, sexual harassment, union participation, Social Security, retirement and more.

The guide also provides explanations of what women should do if they believe any of these rights are being denied or violated, and lists the names and addresses of federal and state agencies responsible for enforcing these laws. Samples of official complaint forms also are included.

The fact-filled handbook has been prepared especially for today's working woman in government or private industry and is designed to prepare those women about to enter the job market. Employers and supervisors will find it an invaluable aid in their day-to-day dealings with employees.

Copies of the handbook cost $12.95 and can be obtained by writing to: Federal Reprints, Post Office Box 15301, Washington, D.C. 20003.

Chamber schedules seminar

A seminar entitled "Keeping Pace with a Changing World" will be offered at Roma's of Bloomfield on Tuesday, July 16, from 8-10 a.m.

The seminar will be presented by Tom Colatruglio, area manager for Ralph Nicol's Corporation's Dale Carnegie courses in southern Michigan.

"How often have we heard someone say, 'Things are different today than they were a few years ago,' or 'People's attitudes now are just not the same as when we started in business,'" asked Colatruglio. "This seminar will provide help for the businessman in dealing with these problems."

The public is invited to attend the seminar. The cost of $5 for members of the Oakland County Chamber of Commerce and $10 for non-members includes a continental breakfast.

Reservations may be made by calling 335-6148 or 644-3683.

who want a nice suit for a special occasion, the Cricketeer suit is very popular. "Each year sales grow more than we anticipate at our level and the factory level," Lapham said.

At the Trunk show, Cricketeer sales representative Kathy Johnson said Lapham's took more advance orders than stores 15 times its size.

"We just can't get them in fast enough. We'd quadruple our business if we could," Lapham said.

Cricketeer clothing ranges in price. For a sport coat, prices range from $145 to $325. The suits range anywhere from $225 to $475. The Cricketeer blouses, which are all cotton (pima cotton), cost between $45 and $65.

For professional attire, Lapham's suggest skirts and bow ties which keep working women professional yet feminine. Pants and regular ties are not recommended.

The Cricketeer 1986 spring fashions provided women with hundreds of swatches to choose from, and Lapham said his customers "were like kids in a candy store."

Due to the success of their first Trunk show, the Laphams say they definitely plan on having another.

"The show was very much a success. Most of the women who came never had that kind of experience before. They could have anything they wanted," Lapham said.

"The show was very much a success. Most of the women who came never had that kind of experience before."

— Scott Lapham

By ordering suits in advance, each customer saved 15 percent and was granted free alterations. Lapham's is approximately eight to 22 percent lower in price than other sellers and has women fitters available.

Lapham's will celebrate its 75th anniversary this summer. The business was originally purchased by Charles Ponsford in 1910 and featured items for men, women and children, plus fabrics, sewing materials and a large stock of blankets.

Ponsford successfully operated the business until his death in 1932. In 1937 his daughter, Mrs. Beth Lapham, liquidated the merchandise but retained ownership of the building until her death in 1981. During the time Mrs. Lapham vacated the building, several businesses rented the store, most important of which was a store specializing in woolsens.

'Headhunters' prowl corporate jungles for executive talent

Beware, all you missionaries of the corporate denomination. Headhunters abound in the Metro Detroit area. Their fires are banked, their cauldrons are bubbling over and their spears are sharp. And it's your head they may be after.

But fear not. Your noggin isn't going to become a shrunken trophy on some savage's waist. You just may find yourself a few rungs higher on that ladder of success thanks to their efforts.

These latter-day headhunters are clad in business suits, not loincloths. Instead of blowing poison darts, they dial telephones. In fact, some of these civilized folks really resent being called headhunters.

"Search and recruiting specialist" is what one of them, Larry Gipson, prefers. It's on his business card along with his company — Career Forum. He's one of 12 headhunters and a headhuntrss doing business in the same building on Crooks Road in Troy.

Headhunters are job placement specialists for middle and upper management types, who may want to swing from one high-powered position to another. Headhunters provide the vines for such swinging.

A headhunter "surfaces candidates" for an employer, according to Don Oshnock, a "search specialist" whose company is called The Trident Group.

"In other words, we'd get an order from an employer telling us he's looking for, say, a chief financial officer with certain specifications," said Oshnock, who co-owns the building with four partners. "Then we'd go out and find this person for him."

Candidates are surfaced (heads hunted) in the best gumshoe tradition of pounding pavements, putting miles on cars and pushing telephone buttons. Hours are long — no 9 to 5 jobs here.

"We do a lot of phone calling," said B. Hans Becker, whose firm bears his name. "For example, if I talk to you and you say you're interested, well I don't want to take your company's time, so I'll say, 'Why don't I give you a call at home tonight?'"

Added Oshnock: "It's a pressure business. You get it from the employers and from the candidates. Often you're trying to bring together two people with vastly different personalities."

Not all headhunters are held in high esteem by the moguls who manage the hunting grounds.

An executive of a large corporation in Southfield made the distinction between legitimate executive search firms and what he distastefully calls "employment agencies."

"Sometimes they're regarded about the same way vacuum cleaner salesmen are," the executive said of the latter group. "I have my secretary trained to screen these people out. I won't even talk to them."

"But Becker, who claimed to have had his own head hunted more than once during his days as an executive, defended his profession.

"No one's going to come for us unless he or she is unhappy where he or she is," he said. "In other words, if you have a happy employee, I could stand on my head . . . and it wouldn't prompt that employee to leave the company."

"If the employee is unhappy (maybe he or she feels limited in advancement or underpaid for what he or she does) then, of course, he's ready to come and talk to me."

"Quite simply, we tell them about a position that's open. If they're interested, they'll talk to us."

Ken Bumbales, whose business card identifies him as a recruiter for the Bumbales Group, is a recruiting specialist who objects to the term headhunter.

"If a company is taking good care of people, they should have no worry," he said. "People we're trying to isolate for whatever reason — more opportunity, more growth, more potential, more money — we can put into higher organizations."

"When I place somebody, I expect them to stay there for their entire careers," Bumbales added.

Bumbales said he gets 80 percent of his clients from cold-call speculation. It's more difficult, he said, finding Mr. or Ms. Right to fill positions.

"I'll probably make up to 85 phone calls and talk to people not normally looking to make a change, but may be interested in a better opportunity for themselves."

Business directories are primary sources.

"I would say there's a 90 percent chance just in terms of walking off the street, I won't be able to help a person," said Bumbales. "We're geared for very specific assignments."

Most headhunters enter the profession with extensive business careers behind them. Oshnock was a regional sales manager for an insurance company. Bob Ransdell, another occupant of the Crooks building, was president of a medium-sized company.

Bumbales, an auditor for a major accounting firm for four years and employed by a larger recruiting company for 3½ years, has been in business for himself about six months.

"I always wanted to be my own boss," he said.

Added Oshnock: "We draw people from many different fields. The more varied the background is the better they're able to apply their skills to our business."

Now, about the headhunter's fee. It's usually based on the salary of the hunted and paid by the employer.

013 Card of Thanks

DEAR friends, neighbors and family, we would like to express our thanks, and love to all of you for your calls, cards, flowers, and food brought in,
during the recent and sudden passing away of our mother, Louisa Grill. The support, encouragement and strength you shared and gave to us, a special thanks to Reverend Amstutz, and Keith Liverance.
Thanks so much, Bernie and Bob Miller, Norm and Jan Grill and family.

OUR deepest thanks for the many cards, visits and phone calls while Bud was sick at home and until his death in the hospital.
Words cannot express our appreciation to our friends and relatives for the floral pieces, mass cards, contributions to various charities and St.
Mary's Bell Fund. We will never forget Father Sinatra's comforting words, the ladies of St. Mary's for the lovely lunch they served and the kindnesses shown by Mr.
Lynch and Sons Funeral Home.
Alma Wakefield and Paul & Kathleen Hayes
and family

THE family of Charles J. Cain wish to sincerely thank all the friends, neighbors and relatives, for their kind thoughtfulness and sympathy shown us during the loss of our loved one. May God bless each of you. A very special thanks to Keith Liverance, of the Liverance Funeral home, and to Bob Smith, of the liv-

How to keep your child away from drugs.

Arming them in a suit of steel might help. But once they leave your home, they're really on their own.

What can you do?

Learn to recognize the symptoms of drug abuse. Look for failing grades in school. And irrational behavior. But most importantly, keep your lines of communication open with your children. Encourage them to tell.

you if they get offers of drugs. Show them you understand about peer pressure and how tough it is to walk away. Teach your children to resist offers of drugs with a simple no.

For the booklet, "Parents: What You Can Do About Drug Abuse," write: Get Involved, PO Box 1706, Rockville, Maryland 20850

SUMMER READING

Story by B.J. Martin

Summer! The weather's hot and sunny, and everybody is playing softball or tennis, swimming, running, water skiing, horseback riding, mountain climbing, gardening, canoeing, sailing, backpacking, and doing all sorts of other invigorating, healthy things.

Don't worry. We're not going to suggest you go along with such lunacy. We know our more refined readership prefers to spend summer sensibly. Bobbing atop gentle waves on an inflatable raft, perhaps, or swaying back and forth in a hammock rocked by soft breezes.

And we know you'll agree there's one piece of summer rest and relaxation equipment that's as crucial as a good sunscreen. No, not a six-pack. A book. Maybe it's a nice, trashy paperback we can peek around at the beach. Maybe it's a sprawling epic perfect for a week-long getaway. Whatever your literary preference, we've compiled a list of summer reading bound to take your mind off the heat.

The suggestions, highbrow, lowbrow and middlebrow, come courtesy of Brenda Burrell and staff of the Novi Public Library; Anne Mannisto and staff of the Northville Public Library; Berclay Ruschak of Bookstall on the Main in Northville; and John Lawton of B. Dalton Bookstore in Twelve Oaks Mall, Novi. A nice blend of academia and mercenaria, we think.

So pull out your Foster Grants, unfold the chaise longue and crack open one of our summer reading picks. But remember — you WILL be quizzed on all the material at the end of vacation.

Children

New editions of children's books, with special attention to illustrations, have revived interest in several classics, says Jane Brown of the Novi Library. Among the favorites of library visitors, she says, are Johanna Spyri's Heldi (Random House, $18.95), Daniel Defoe's Robinson Crusoe (Scribner's, $18.95), and Washington Irving's Rip Van Winkle (Sleepy Hollow Press, $6.95).

Brown also recommends a pair of realistic contemporary books available at the library, such as Beverly Cleary's Dear Mr. Henshaw, a story for children in grades 4-6. Cleary tells the story of Leigh Botts, whose parents are divorced, through the young girl's letters.

Avi's S.O.R. Losers also is set in a realistic frame. It's about the South Orange River soccer club, whose players each learn to have qualities of excellence, but not on the field.

Northville's Mannisto says Robin McKinley's The Hero and the Crown (William Morrow, $11.50) is a good fantasy for junior high-age young people. In it, hero Aerin, with the guidance of the wizard Luthe and the help of the blue sword, wins the birthright due her as the daughter of the Damarian king.

For younger children, there are Alvin Schwartz's More Scary Stories to Tell in the Dark (Harper & Row, $11.50), which contains traditional and modern-day stories of ghosts, witches, vampires, scary songs and "jump" stories, and three entries in Cass Sendak's educational series, Roads, Skyscrapers and Tunnels (available at the Northville Public Library).

Mysteries

Local mystery writers sprang immediately to minds of our contacts. William Kienzle's latest murder mystery, Sudden Death (Andrews, McNeel & Parker, $12.95) continues Kienzle's tradition of using Detroit-area settings, this time centering on the high-stakes world of professional football.

The newest of Birmingham novelist Elmore Leonard's addictive mysteries, Glitz (Arbor House, $14.95) also has been a quick local mover, with its tale of suspense and action in Atlantic City's gambling casinos.

Mannisto suggests Cleo Jones' Prophet Motive (available at the Northville Public Library), in which the author draws on her deep understanding of the power and contradictions of the Mormon faith to create a tense mystery involving the murder of a Mormon bishop.

Mannisto also favors Michael Hardwick's Sherlock Holmes, My Life and Crimes (Doubleday, $16.95), in which the famous sleuth, retired from wartime service to the British governments, recounts the details of his encounter with the nefarious Moriarty.

Flaherty enthusiastically recommends Ed McBain's Lightning (Arbor House, $15.95), which chronicles two female detectives in New York City's 87th precinct as they track down a rapist.

Harry Kemelman's brand-new gripper, Someday the Rabbi Will Leave (William Morris, $15.95), follows an amateur sleuth who tries to clear a young neighbor of the hit-and-run killing of a local hood. Now in paperback is Norman Mailer's foray into the macho mystery genre, Guys Don't Dance (Ballantine, $4.95).

Non-Fiction

In the non-fiction field, 1985 may be remembered as the year they started plugging illustrated celebrity health and diet guides for men. John Travolta and Jim Palmer are the pioneers in this field, with Travolta's appearance-geared Staying Fit (Simon & Schuster, $15.95) and Palmer's overall conditioning guide, Jim Palmer's Way To Fitness (Harper & Row, $17.95).

The latest in women's celebrity shape-up guides is Brooke Shields' On Your Own (Random House, $17.95). Actually, it's a fine guide for teenagers to develop a comfortable self-outlook (she actually comes out in favor of virginity — parents can always hope that notion will take hold) to go with a trim figure.

A little out of Brooke's age bracket? Try Sonya Friedman's Smart Cookies Don't Crumble (G.P. Putnam & Sons, $15.95), described as "a woman's guide to making it in the '80s."

Thomas Peters' In Search of Excellence (Warner Books, $9.95) is on the mark for the business-oriented '80s.

Son of the Morning Star (available at the Northville Public Library), Evan Connell's critically-acclaimed re-creation of the battle of Little Big Horn. A more recent historical theme is contained in Jimmy Carter's The Blood of Abraham (Houghton-Mifflin, $15.95), the former prez's penetrating analysis of Middle East conflict.

Don't think a book on farming can be interesting? E.J. Kahn's The Staffs of Life (Little, Brown & Co.) may prove you wrong.

Biographies

Now in paperback is Rosalynn Carter's First Lady of Plains (Fawcett Crest, $3.95), a recollection of episodes in her husband's years in office, and her work in the field of mental health.

Something on the summer game? Try Ernie Harwell's red-hot Detroit area-best-seller, Tuned to Baseball (Diamond Communications, Inc., $14.95), featuring memories and observations from the Hall of Fame broadcaster's 25 years at the microphone for the Dodgers, Giants, Orioles and Tigers.

A controversial portrait of noted anthropologists Margaret Mead and husband Gregory Bateson is With A Daughter's Eye (Morrow, $15.95), written, indeed, by the couple's daughter, Mary Catherine Bateson.

Also in the offspring author category is the lively My Mother's Keeper (Morrow, $17.95), B.D. Hyman's lively tell-all bio about actress Bette Davis. Now in paperback is Joan Collins' juicy autobiography, Past Imperfect (Berkley Books, $3.95), which recounts Collins' (ahem) extraordinary romantic life with surprising humor.

The first volume of Gloria Vanderbilt's much-anticipated biography, Once Upon A Time, traces the heiress' first 17 years and paints an intimate portrait of her powerful American family.

B. Dalton's John Lawton says two authoritative biographies of musical performers have been hot sellers: Jerry Hopkins' David Bowie (Macmillan, $17.95) and David Ritz's Divided Soul (McGraw-Hill, $16.95), about his friend Marvin Gaye.

America's never-ending fascination for the Kennedy family has a new source in the paperback version of Peter Collier and David Horowitz's The Kennedys: An American Drama (Warner Books, $4.95), an exhaustively annotated and researched review of the Kennedy history.

Fiction

Several of our sources thought we should now praise famous men — two of them in particular — about their latest works. John Irving takes up the multi-faceted theme of abortion in The Ciderhouse Rules (William Morrow, $18.95) on our list. Another automatic best-seller is served up by Steven King, with Skeleton Crew (G.P. Putnam's Sons, $18.95), a collection of 22 short horror stories.

Lawton casts a vote for a pair of paperbacks, among them John Updike's raunchy seriocomic look at mysticism and suburbia, The Witches of Eastwick (Fawcett Crest, $4.50), and Gore Vidal's historical novel, Lincoln (Ballantine, $4.95).

Erich Segal checks in with his frankly autobiographically-based The Class (Bantam Books, $17.95), in which he follows five members of Harvard's Class of '58 into the real world.

William Katz's Surprise Party (Warner Books, $3.95), in which one Marty Snow plans to kill his wife, while she plans a surprise birthday party for him.

Mannisto recommends books by a pair of lesser-known novelists, including Olive Anne Burns' Cold Sassy Tree (Tricknor & Fields, $16.95), which portrays a Georgia Town through the eyes of Will Tweedy, whom she describes as "one of the most entertaining narrators since Huck Finn."

Betty Sue Cummings' Say These Names (Remember Them) (Pineapple Press, $14.95), relives the Seminole War through the eyes of Indian See-ho-ko, while treating readers to a feast of Indian history, folklore, religion and habits. (Both available at Northville Public Library).

Humor

Garry Trudeau's most successful clone, Berke Breathed, serves up Penguin Dreams (Little, Brown, $6.95), containing excerpts from Breathed's topical, daffy, occasionally hallucinogenic comic strip, "Bloom County."

Gary Larson's The Far Side Gallery (Andrews, McNeel & Parker, $6.95) also is a fine diversion for people with a warped sense of humor.

The ever-prolific Roy Blount has a hilarious collection of essays newly in paperback, What Men Don't Tell Women (Viking & Penguin, $5.95). Blount's style might be summed up as good-old-boy-gone-weird tongue-in-cheek.

Two books with the same aim — causing one never to take what one says or does seriously — pursue this goal with equal effectiveness, albeit in completely different approaches. In The Experts Speak (Pantheon, $9.95), authors Christopher Cerf and Victor Navasky put together what they call the definitive compendium of authoritative misinformation.

In their clever send-up of the coffee table books "Gnomes" and "Faeries" with their Humans (Simon & Schuster, $15.95) Mike Dowdall and Pat Welch take an objectively quizzical look at the Dumb Things We Humans Do.

Trip includes reunion of friends in Istanbul

By JEAN DAY

Back from vacationing in Greece and Turkey, Virginia Hayward spent part of the Fourth of July at a table at the entrance to Mill Race Historical Village offering passers by membership applications and other materials of the Northville Historical Society which administers the village.

Officially she's corresponding secretary of the society, but she also wears other hats. Right now she's making arrangements for the third printing of Jack Hoffman's book, "Northville — the First 100 Years." She reports that the society has plenty of the paperbacks on hand, but the more expensive hard cover books have gone through two printings. She thinks the popularity of the hard cover edition is due to the fact that many are given as gifts. All profits from the book go to the historical society's projects in the village.

Mrs. Hayward left in mid-May for Athens and was there during the Greek elections. From Athens she went to Istanbul for a reunion with former Northville resident Yuksel Anisoglu, who was visiting her mother there. The Anisoglus retired to St. Petersburg, Florida, but for the past two years also have been having a condo built on the Bosphorus where they intend to spend two or three months a year. Both Yuksel and her husband Rahsan have mothers living in Istanbul. Construction is behind on their condo, Virginia Hayward relates, but that is a typical situation as Turkish workers seem to have an easy-going attitude.

Here's an invitation to tour Pine Grove

Residents who knew and worked with Georgene Sloan at Schoolcraft College Women's Resource Center — where her special projects were single parent programs and Building Better Boards — are finding she has a new affiliation since moving to Clarkston recently.

She is the new administrative coordinator of the Oakland County Pioneer and Historical Society which has offices at Pine Grove, the Governor Moses Wisner House at 405 Oakland in Pontiac.

She's hoping that former friends and any groups interested in history will pay a visit to the house built in 1845 and furnished to the period. The pre-Civil war governor's estate and grounds are open for drop-in visits every Tuesday through Thursday in July and August from 1-4 p.m. Also there are tours by volunteers.

On the job for just three weeks, the new administrator points out that for residents in the Oakland County portion of the city this is "your museum." It operates with an Oakland County grant and donations. Special events upcoming are an ice cream social on the grounds August 4 and a Victorian Christmas exhibit in December.

Gifts are her introduction to celebrities

By ANN CHOWDHURY

Barbara Orto of Northville does not feel that teenagers should have a monopoly over pop stars. Being over 30 might even have helped her get chosen to present roses and carnations to Julian Lennon when he performed in Detroit for the first time earlier this year.

When it comes to obtaining encounters of the most enjoyable kind with a favorite celebrity, Orto is becoming something of an expert.

"Perhaps," says Orto, a nurse by profession and a township resident, "it was because my bouquet was so large, or because I was older and acted calmly when the others were so pushy and excited, that the promotion company girl picked me out of the 26th row and brought me up to the stage."

When Julian came to the edge of the stage, grasped her hand and reached for the flowers, Orto felt rewarded for the years of interest she has invested in the Beatles.

Within a few weeks of meeting Julian, Orto was enjoying a 10 minute conversation with his mother, Cynthia Lennon.

Cynthia stopped in Detroit to promote Ray Coleman's new book, "John Lennon."

Orto had hoped to be part of the Kelly and Company studio audience, but, as there were not enough seats, she joined the overflow audience in an adjoining building.

"When it was over," she remembers, "I volunteered to deliver the list of names of those who had not been able to get into the show to the studio. I thought I just might run into Cynthia."

Orto lucked out, for — as she relates — "there she was signing out of the guest register!"

She was rewarded by a hug and a kiss from Cynthia, to whom she had earlier sent a gold necklace by a studio messenger. She had included a letter with the gift, thanking her for encouraging Julian in a musical career.

Author Coleman obligingly took a photograph of Orto with Cynthia Lennon and posed for one with Lennon.

Orto's interest in photography has helped her make contact with other celebrities. She once took a picture of Frankie Valli in a concert and sent it for him to autograph. He obliged.

She advises other fans not to take photographs until the end of concerts, however.

"That's when the entertainer is less distracted and making bigger gestures, so you get a better picture," she explains. "It's also when the promoters are less testy about cameras because their minds are on getting the people out."

Orto explains she feels that "writing to performers and sending them gifts is a way of saying 'thank you for what you have contributed to the music business,' but only if you have a genuine feeling and admire their artistry and profession."

"It's not just a way to buy yourself in."

Ward adds missions pastor

Reverend James L. Kilgore has been named New Missions Pastor at Ward Presbyterian Church, a prominent leader in the area of world missions.

The church supports over 136 missionaries around the world with a budget of $700,000. Ward is one of the few churches across the country which have full-time missions pastors.

With over 80 members of the Ward congregation interested in full-time missionary work, Kilgore said he envisions an expanded program in missions as he seeks to accomplish the task of world evangelization.

His goals include implementation of an in-depth training program for potential missionaries, developing a missionary resource center, and nurturing a deeper awareness among the Christian community of its responsibility to follow the Lord's commission to disciple all nations.

Ward Presbyterian recently purchased 139 acres in Northville at the corner of Six Mile and Haggerty roads. The property currently is in the planning and development stages.

Missions Secretary Brenda B. Trapp

said Ward is committed to progressing toward national leadership in the area of world missions.

THREE EYE SOLUTIONS

Many individuals obtain relief from eye irritations caused by wind, environmental pollutants, and chlorinated water through the use of nonprescription eye solutions.

OPHTHALMIC DECONGESTANTS: These solutions contain a vasoconstrictor which shrinks the blood vessels and are valuable in treating "blood-shot" or reddened eyes. Prolonged use of ophthalmic decongestants is not recommended because they may produce rebound congestion.

ARTIFICIAL TEARS: Tear-like solutions are useful in bathing the dry eyeball. These are especially valuable for use by older persons who do not have adequate tear production or those who have eye infection or who may have experienced eye injury. Many of the products contain methylcellulose or polyvinyl alcohol to improve eye contact time.

EYE WASHES: Most of the commercial eye washes contain low concentrations of boric acid or sodium phosphate along with preservatives and other ingredients. Depending on ingredients present, such solutions may reduce swelling, fight minor external eye infections, and provide a soothing effect to the eyes.

Local scouts heading for Big Sky, '85

Julee Lautzenheiser and Christine Winnicker, both Cadette Girl Scouts in Northville Troop 122, have been selected from applicants across the country to represent the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council in Montana and Ohio.

Julee Lautzenheiser, daughter of Maurine and Gerald Lautzenheiser, will attend "Across the Big Sky" July 30 through August 17 at Big Sky Girl Scout Council, Great Falls, Montana.

Lautzenheiser is one of 43 girls who will retrace the travels of Lewis and Clark and experience past- and present-day Montana in a rendezvous in the Rocky Mountains. A canoe trip down the Missouri River, going by wagon train through the Missouri Breaks, dancing to a fiddler's tune, digging for sapphires and experiencing different local traditions are all part of the experience ahead for Lautzenheiser.

Lautzenheiser attends Our Lady of Victory School, where she is in the chorus and is a cheerleader.

She enjoys canoeing and is an experienced canoeist. She has interest in history and says she's looking forward to the opportunity to combine the things she enjoys with new things and exploring new places. Christine Winnicker, daughter of Rita and Ralph Winnicker, will attend "Spectrum '85" July 18 through August 2 at Buckeye Trails Girl Scout Council in Dayton, Ohio.

"Spectrum '85" offers a wide range of activities including experiences in art through mime, choral, reading, drama, songs, folk dancing, creative writing and poetry. In addition the Girl Scouts attending will enjoy sports such as archery, swimming, canoeing, horseback riding and staying at a ranch camp and exploring caves. They will attend a ballooning demonstration, a bluegrass festival and a water carnival as part of this event.

Winnicker also attends Our Lady of Victory School, where she is a cheerleader. She has been a Girl Scout for eight years and is an experienced camper and horseback rider. "I chose this event because of the wide range of activities and I am always ready for a challenge," Winnicker said.

Senior Girl Scout Kelly Wells and adult volunteer Ruby Monk from the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council were selected by Girl Scouts of the United States of America to attend a national event near Ten Sleep, Wyoming. Both Wells and Monk are attending "Windows on Wildlife" June 30 through July 14. The event is being held at the Girl Scout National Center West, a 14,000-acre site bordered by the Big Horn National Forest near Ten Sleep.

Girl Scouts from across the United States have been selected to participate in this two-week event which includes learning about wildlife management, field studies of plants and animals and outdoor education techniques.

As an adult volunteer Ruby Monk has served Huron Valley Girl Scout Council as a Junior leader, a Cadette leader and a day camp director. Currently she is serving as council trainer, day camp advisor and member of the Volunteer Personnel Committee.

Monk's specialty is outdoor training. She looked forward to this event as an opportunity to increase her knowledge and skills in new outdoor education techniques.

"My main love in Girl Scouting is training. I'm always looking for new things to add to our Council's Outdoor Training Program," Monk said.

through laboratory projects and lectures by practicing women engineers. Participants are chosen on a competitive basis with a strong background in mathematics and science required. Kilpatrick, daughter of John and Janet Kilpatrick, Nuechterlein, daughter of Ron and Penny Nuechterlein, and Griffith, daughter of Robert and Valerie Griffith, all attend Northville High School. Lickman, daughter of Joseph and Patricia Lickman, will attend the Engineering and Management Institute in the fall.

The Northville Record

Nearly 500 runners 'Discover Northville'

Nearly 500 runners turned out to Discover Northville Saturday, June 29, in the sixth annual run sponsored by Northville Rotary.

The first contestant to cross the 10K finish line was Novi's Doug Kurtis, a world-class marathoner and winner of Michigan Runner magazine's 1985 "Runner of the Year" award. Kurtis was running exhibition, however, so first-place honors in the 10-kilometer race went to Warren's John Des Rosiers with a blistering time of 32:52.

The top women's 10K finisher was Kathy Irwin-Grover of Bloomfield Hills. Irwin-Grover turned in a time of 38:47 to cross the finish line nearly three minutes ahead of her nearest female competitors, Northville's Marjorie Banner and Blair Miller. Banner, Miller and Cindy Benedict took three of the top finishes in the women's 10K run.

In the five-kilometer race, Dearborn's Ihab Hamka clocked a 16:05 to take the winner's trophy, 18 seconds ahead of his nearest challenger, Garden City's Philip Schmitt. In the women's 5K, Farmington Hills' Sarah Montgomery clocked a 20:34 to nose out Redford's Ellen Henry by 17 seconds.

No times were recorded in the one-mile fun run, but Northville runners posted four of the first five finishes in the race, won by Eric Newton. Meredith Piner was the first girl finisher. Forty-seven kids competed in the event, and some went on to run in the following races.

Among the most outstanding individual efforts in the run was Bill Boyd's remarkable 10K time of 34:43, which took first in the age 40-44 category. A similarly age-defying feat was Novi's Hugh Sweeney's 5K time of 18:47, which took top honors for men age 50-59.

Northville's best metric race finishes were turned in by Harry McFall, first in the 60 and older men's 5K competition, Banner, first in the women's 30-34 10K category, and Craig Cowden, tops in the men's 14 & Under 5K run.

By B.J. MARTIN

When Northville Blue chalks up the reasons it occupies the top spot in Mickey Mantle Division standings, most of the blackboard will be covered with one word.

P-I-T-C-H-I-N-G.

How good was Northville Blue's pitching last week? Brett Loomis and Doug Martin only fired back-to-back complete-game shutouts of Westland Federation I and Westland Federation II to lift Blue's record to 13-1 as of Saturday.

On Tuesday, July 2, Northville and Loomis beat Westland Federation I, which at the time was 11-0.

"Loomis walked two guys in the first and then he just slammed the door," said Blue Coach Ed Harp.

Slammed the door, then hermetically sealed it, Harp might add. In seven innings, Loomis struck out eight hitters, allowed four hits and walked four. Most impressively, he struck out the side in the fourth, beginning with the Westland I cleanup hitter.

Northville turned three double plays to help Loomis. Only once did a Federation runner reach third base.

Jeff Tanderys scored Northville's go-ahead run in the second when the short-stop's double was followed by consecutive singles by Ken Kehoe and John Lobbia. Northville added an insurance run in the fifth when Kapelanski took first on a passed ball third strike, Martin walked and Kehoe drilled a second RBI single.

Kehoe had three of Northville's seven hits in the game. Lobbia was 2-for-3 with a pair of singles.

Westland Federation II, supposedly the weaker of the two Westland squads, fared no better at the plate against Northville on Saturday. But this time Jeff Harp's RBI sacrifice fly provided the game's only run to give Northville a 1-0 win.

This time Doug Martin had The Right Stuff. Even though Martin allowed five hits, no two came in one inning and only one Westland Fed II batter reached third base.

In fact, Westland Fed II never put two runners on base in the same inning. Martin struck out eight and walked two for the win.

Northville wasn't much hotter at the plate, collecting only four hits, all singles, none of which did any damage.

Consecutive one-out walks to Tanderys and Kehoe set the table in the fourth. Then Coach Harp played a hunch and called for a double steal.

"I had to get something happening," Harp said later. "It was getting late."

Something did happen. The pitch skipped past Westland Federation II's catcher to put Tanderys at third and

ADVERTISEMENT— New Japanese 'Super Pill' Insures Rapid Weight-Loss

No Dieting — Eat All You Want, Pill Does All The Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA — An exciting new "all natural" weight-loss "Super" Pill developed by the JMA (Japanese Medical Association) has just been approved for distribution in the United States. Reportedly, it can guarantee that you will lose more than a pound a day without dieting, from the very first day until you reach your ideal weight and figure. News of this "Super Pill" is literally sweeping the country. It's called Amitol and there has never been anything quite like it before.

"Flushes Calories Right Out Of Your Body"

What makes Amitol so thrilling and unique is its reported ability to flush calories right out of your body. Amitol is completely safe, it contains no drugs whatsoever. Its ingredients are derived solely from the Konjac root which grows primarily in Northern Japan.

Why the Konjac root? It has been used in Japan for over 1600 years to produce rapid and natural weight-loss! Japanese studies verify that Konjac root actually prevents fat producing calories from being absorbed into your system. They say it does this by surrounding much of the fats, proteins and carbohydrates you have eaten with a protective viscous coating which is then gently flushed out of your system. And according to Japanese research this produces absolutely amazing results.

And who can disagree! Amitol (although brand new to this country) is already being called by many people, "the most exciting weight-loss breakthrough of the century." In fact, everywhere there are reports of easy and fast weight-loss from formerly overweight people (in all walks of life) who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Company Offers Extraordinary Guarantee

You now can purchase Amitol direct from the North American distributor, and it comes with an extraordinary guarantee.

If you place your order now and then follow the simple instructions for a period of 30 days, you must be completely satisfied with the dramatic visible results or just return the empty container and Dyna Labs will immediately send back your entire purchase price. This guarantee applies regardless of your age or current weight level. What could be better than that! It's just that simple. If you've tried to lose weight before and failed you no longer have an excuse. Amitol is available, it's easy and it works without dieting!

Best of all, ordering Amitol is simple, fast, and reliable! Simply call Dyna Labs Toll Free: (1-800-441-5454) and order with your credit card. If you don't have a credit card Dyna Labs will also accept C.O.D. orders right over the phone! All orders are shipped immediately by UPS, which means no delay and no orders lost in the mail!

Michigan Arsenal takes first in Wolverine soccer tourney

By B.J. MARTIN

Outscoring their opponents 17-2 in six games at the Wolverine Invitational Soccer Tournament at Schoolcraft College this weekend, Michigan Arsenal claimed the 19 & Under championship.

Arsenal climaxed the tourney with a 1-0 win in the final over the Forest Park Buckeyes Sunday afternoon. It was the seventh time the two teams had met head-to-head in a tournament final.

Northville's Steve Starcevic scored the match's only goal less than a minute into the second half when referees awarded Arsenal a free kick about 25 yards from the Buckeye goal.

Steve Smith chipped a pass to the far post 10 yards out as Starcevic raced from his defensive sweeper position for the header. Starcevic got his head on the ball as he collided with the Buckeye goalkeeper and the ball caromed into the net.

"It was a beautiful pass," said Arsenal Coach John Starcevic. "In the quarterfinal the day before, we had exactly the same thing happen, except it was reversed. Steve Smith took the pass from Steve (Starcevic) and scored the game's only goal.

"Some of our best forwards are in Europe trying out for professional teams there," Coach Starcevic said, "so we play a lot with overlapping backs. The whole structure of our team stems from the backs. In part, that's because we've had a lot of injuries. We could only suit up 14 for the tournament."

While marred with occasional unsportsmanlike conduct — perfectly understandable under the tourney's emotionally grueling six-games-in-three-days schedule — the final proved to be a rugged, skillfully-played soccer battle.

Referees handed out several yellow cards and gave a red card to one Buckeye striker.

"Play got pretty rough on the field, but as soon as the final whistle blew, both sides were friends again," said Coach Starcevic. "It was a really well-played game. I wish a lot of youngsters could have seen it, because so few American youngsters get a chance to see really good soccer."

Arsenal, which sports a 25-3 record this year, has three local residents on the roster besides the younger Starcevic: Pete Stoyanovich, Doug Landefeld and Eric Pense.

The squad easily routed Libertyville, Illinois 6-1 and Pasesetter Premier, Toledo, 3-0 in the Wolverine Tourney's opening matches Friday. Saturday morning, Arsenal topped Midland 4-1 to advance to the tourney quarterfinals.

Arsenal's 1-0 win on Steve Smith's goal over Windsor Running Shoe Saturday afternoon landed the Michigan team in the Sunday morning semifinal. Arsenal defeated league rival Detroit Cosmos 2-0 for the right to play the Buckeyes in the final.

Michigan Arsenal will travel to Long Island, New York the first weekend in August to defend their '84 championship of the Smithton Kickers International Tournament. The tourney will host several top-notch European youth soccer teams. Arsenal has won the tourney twice.

Hines hosts fun day Sunday

Wayne County Parks officials will close a section of Hines Park Drive to traffic for the second time this summer in order to host a day of family activities in the county park.

This Sunday, between 9 a.m. and 3:30 p.m., Hines Park Drive will be closed between Ann Arbor Trail and Newburgh Road, just southeast of Northville Township.

Wayne County residents and visitors are encouraged to participate in any of the activities planned for the day. A bicycle decorating contest will be held at noon near the intersection of Ann Arbor Trail and Hines Drive. At 12:30 p.m. a tricycle "drag race" will be held at the same location.

All day, bicycling and walking will be encouraged as part of the "Walk Michigan" program. Automobiles may be parked at Newburgh and Hines Drive or at Parcenville Elementary School at Farmington Road and Ann Arbor Trail.

For additional information or to pre-register for activities, phone Colleen Wittkopp at Wayne County Parks and Recreation (261-1990).

Collegiate in driver's seat for playoffs

By B.J. MARTIN

Northville Collegiate safely belted its way into the driver's seat for a playoff berth Sunday with a solid 5-1 win over Garden City.

Going into the battle, Garden City and Northville were tied for fourth in Livonia Collegiate baseball standings, and there was plenty at stake — the four top teams in the league qualify for the postseason playoffs.

With two weeks remaining in the regular season, Northville Collegiate is now a game ahead of Garden City. Walter's Appliance, Redford Little Caesar's and Livonia Adray have clinched the other three playoff spots.

In Sunday's game, Northville righthander Dan Zang allowed one first-inning run, then mowed down the Gardeners like a Snapper. He struck out only three and walked four, but Northville's three-run second inning broke a 1-1 tie and gave Zang all the cushion he would need.

Outfielder Greg Ryba and Mark Chambers opened the second with back-to-back singles, then a sacrifice and a walk loaded the bases for Scott Swienkowski. Swienkowski laced a two-run single and Chris Hauser squeezed home one more. Northville added another insurance run on Zack Childress' RBI single in the fourth.

Earlier in the week, Northville routed Westland 10-2 and was edged by Walter's Appliance 4-3.

In Wednesday's victory, Chris Willerer finally regained his pitching form after months of nagging injuries, and fired a five-hitter for the win.

Getting errorless support from his teammates, Willerer absorbed two runs in the first inning, then blanked Westland on two hits the rest of the way for his first win.

Northville exploded for six second-inning runs on a walk, four straight singles by Brad Engel, Scott Draper, Childress and Mark Chambers, and Craig Cotter's two-run triple.

Cotter finished the game 3-for-3 with a single, double and triple, and three RBI. Draper also had three hits, all singles. Northville had 11 hits altogether.

Thursday's loss to first-place Walter's was as disheartening for Northville as Wednesday's win was inspiring. Northville native and Walter's Appliance center fielder Steve Frellick raced home with the winning run for Walter's on a hit-and-run play and an outfield throwing error.

All the game's scoring came in the first three innings, as starter Ryba pitched well enough to win, but took the complete-game loss instead.

Northville threatened in the bottom of the seventh, putting two runners aboard with two out. Ryba slapped a hard grounder to first base that would have tied the game had it gotten through. Instead a throw to winning pitcher John Frazier barely beat Ryba to the bag.

George Clark was 3-for-3 with two singles, a double and two RBI for the afternoon. Clark now leads Northville with a .353 batting average.

Northville (9-12) will take on the Livonia Angels at 5:30 p.m. today, Westland at 5:30 p.m. Friday and Walters in a noon doubleheader Saturday. All games will be played at Livonia's Ford Field.

Ryba, Northville's .333-hitting outfielder, will represent Northville in the Livonia Collegiate League all-star game at Tiger Stadium, 10 a.m. Monday, July 15. The local squad will take on the Detroit Adray All-Stars.

Also playing in the All-Star game will be Walter's Appliance's ace left-hander Doug Doyle, a former Northville High School standout. Doyle is 5-0 this season and packs a 0.80 earned run average.

Seven-year-old slugger Heidi Zimmerman of the Mariners goes after a high pitch in a recent T-Ball game at Amerman Elementary School. Parents do the (underhand) pitching in this circuit, and all the players make contact one way or another. Heidi beat out a single with this swing. Record photo by B.J. Martin.

BASEBALL: Come-from-behind rally

H LEAGUE: The Reds broke their season-long jinx with a solid 10-7 victory over the Mets June 27. A live-run second inning gave starter Steve Moore and relievers Ryan Smallwood and Sean Miles all the cushion they needed to provide the win. Greg Meehan paced the Reds with a three-run triple, while teammate Jamie Heitert socked a double and contributed several fine fielding plays. Mike Husak and David Morelli's defense also helped the Reds. Gordie Collins was 2-for-3 with three RBI and David Horning tripled and doubled to lead the Mets. Met Mike Miltman doubled and drove in two runs. Late-game punch lifted the Pirates to a 7-6 come-from-behind win over the Dodgers July 1. Trailing 6-4 in the sixth, Matt Osecki blasted a two-run homer to tie the score, then Chris Shepard drove in Joey Staknis with the game-winning hit in the same inning. Staknis, Osecki and Justin Cataldo each had two RBI for the winners. The Pirates blanked the Astros 11-0 in a rain-shortened game July 2. In two at-bats, Eric and Kevin Shaw each had two hits, one of Shaw's a home run. Staknis clobbered two home runs for the Pirates, who had 11 hits. The Braves defeated the Pirates 9-6 June 28, led by the pitcher Mike Smith, who struck out seven in relief of starter Jim Pilot. Scott Conway paced the Braves offense with a triple and a single, two runs and three RBI. Jim Pilot had two RBI and Matt Telepo had three runs for the winners.

SOFTBALL: Sunbirds outclout Libs

INTERMEDIATE GIRLS: "Too much power on the Sunbirds," observed Liberties Coach Joe Staknis, as the Sunbirds flew past the Liberties 12-5 in a July 1 encounter. The Sunbirds exploded for five runs in the first inning and scored four more in the third. Altogether the Sunbirds accumulated 19 hits to the Liberties' 13 hits. Hitting standouts for the Liberties were Cindy MacDuff, who doubled, tripled, drove in two runs and scored two runs; Heather Salgot, who was 2-for-3 with two runs; Jenny Juhasz, who was 1-for-3 with two RBI; and Cathy Best, who was 3-for-3.
