Few protest plan changes for Haggerty

By B.J. MARTIN

If residents of Northville Township are alarmed at the prospect of big buildings, more businesses and more traffic along Haggerty Road, they weren't among the several dozen people who attended a July 9 public hearing on that very issue.

Last May, township planners set the hearing to invite comment and suggest modifications to the proposed master plan drawn up by the community's planning consultant firm, Vilcan-Leman and Associates.

The Vilcan-Leman plan calls for a dramatic change in the planning philosophy for the Haggerty Road corridor. While the existing master plan outlines single-family subdivisions for much of the undeveloped land near Haggerty, the new plan would favor cluster housing, motels, gas stations, drive-in restaurants and office buildings.

The four-to-five-story hotel and office buildings which would be permitted under the new plan had been expected to spur the most objections, since the township ordinance now limits building heights to 30 feet.

Instead, public comment mostly centered on concerns that existing planned uses — for example, Ward Presbyterian Church's planned construction at Six Mile and Haggerty — would continue to be allowed (they will, barring unforeseen circumstances) and on slight modifications to the proposed master plan.

A swath of land between Eight Mile and Seven Mile just west of Haggerty which would be used for cluster housing generated the most substantial criticism of the plan. The purpose of the cluster housing classification was to ease the transition of office development alongside Haggerty to the single-family subdivisions to west, said planning consultant Claude Coates.

But Ron Nuechterlein, speaking for property owners in the area, said the 79-acre rectangle wasn't wide enough for effective development for cluster homes.

"We feel we could create a lesser impact if we develop that area for offices and try to ease the transition from the office buildings with effective screening," Nuechterlein said. "We think the township should take a good, hard look at that."

Norman Hyman, representing the interests of the Shapiro family, owners of much of the land in that area, agreed. Calling the proposed cluster zone a "narrow sliver" of land, he said, "It might not be in the best interests of the residential neighbors. If we split up that property (from Haggerty to the single-family subdivisions westward) we'll have two setbacks. We can't really develop and create the best possible buffer that way."

"To ensure the residential neighbors are protected, you could have a larger setback," he added. "This could be brought about by the kind of well-

Plymouth Cer ownership issue under discussion

By KEVIN WILSON

While the state department of mental health has begun transferring patients from Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital (NRPH) to the Plymouth Center for Human Development (PCHD), state and county officials are scheduled to meet next week to resolve the disputed ownership of PCHD.

County officials claim that a clause in the 1957 deed requires that ownership be returned to the county since the state no longer uses PCHD for its original purpose.

County prosecutor and corporation counsel John D. O'Hair said Tuesday that two county officials are scheduled to meet with a staff member of the state department of management and budget

(DMB) on July 22 "just to discuss this situation."

O'Hair, who threatened legal action against the state in a June 18 letter, said this week that he does not expect the issue will go to court.

"I think the provision in the deed is pretty clear," O'Hair said. "I don't expect this to grow into any kind of feud. We'll be attempting to reach agreement while trying to see that the state's interests receive due consideration."

He said William Dietrich, principal attorney with the corporation counsel, and Jim Vollman of the county office of public services will meet with DMB official Herb DeYoung next Monday in an effort to resolve the issue.

PND proposal denied

Northville Township trustees unanimously voted to deny a request to develop a 5.2 acre site on the north side of Six Mile between Sheldon and Beck roads as a Planned Neighborhood Development (PND) of luxury condominiums at its meeting last Thursday.

The proposal presented by Patricia Hann, president of Walnut Lake Development Company, stated that "high quality, energy efficient and aesthetically appealing condominiums" would be grouped around a uniquely luxurious country environment.

She told the trustees she felt the site lent itself to the intent of Section 14.4 (PND) of the township zoning ordinance.

The property, Hann said, contained a log lodge that would be used as the hospitality house of the luxury development.

Trustees, however, pointed out that the property is a landlocked site needing public access.

James Nowka told Hann, "I think you'd have a lot of problems," and said he concurred with the board feeling that what is built will "set the pattern for remaining property in the area."

Trustee Richard Allen commented he would not like to see "another string of multiples along Six Mile."

Treasurer Richard Henningsen noted that the school district also has property not needed in the area and the need was not there for such development.

Hann said the condos would be in the six figure range. Her application noted that the sponsors are lifelong residents of the Northville-Plymouth community and have successfully completed other projects, including a one million dollar Royal York complex in Plymouth and are progressing on a five million dollar complex, The Coves of Northville, in the city of Northville.

The application also stated that the surrounding property, owned by the Haas estate, which borders the school property, also appeared best suited for PND.

In other action the board approved the request of Fred E. Greenspan for an additional one-year extension of the plat covered under the Grandfather Clause for proposed Northville Colony

Northville spared storm's wrath

Thunderstorms and gusting winds which caused widespread damage and power outages throughout much of southern Michigan the first of this week left Northville virtually unscathed.

According to Department of Public Works Supervisor Ted Mapes, Northville suffered "minimal" damage in thunderstorms early Sunday morning and Monday.

Mapes noted the only power outage reported was in the downtown area early Sunday afternoon.

Mapes said the power was out for "about two hours" Sunday along both Main and Center streets.

However, Detroit Edison spokesperson Marty Bufalini noted that about 80 Northville customers lost power after Monday's storm. Power was expected to be restored last night.

Northville Township Police were called out early Sunday morning on two storm-related incidents.

A Sutters Lane resident contacted police at about 7 a.m. Sunday after lightning struck his residence.

Police at the scene observed a hole blown through the roof. Though no fire or smoke was observed, township firefighters were called to the scene to

Local Boy Scout troop participates in Jamboree celebration

By MARILYN MORRISON

Northville Boy Scout troop 755 will be the largest single troop from Michigan attending the 1985 National Boy Scout Jamboree at Fort A.P. Hill, Virginia, July 24 through 30. The Jamboree will celebrate the 75th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America.

Troop 755 is under the direction of Scoutmaster Jim Lapham. Other scouts had to team-up with troops from different cities in order to meet the 36-member requirement.

There will be 38 Northville scouts attending the Jamboree. The troop number for the Jamboree will be 603.

The scouts will be staying at Fort A.P. Hill near Fredericksburg, Virginia, which is the historic area of Washington, D.C., Williamsburg, Yorktown, Richmond and Norfolk.

En route to Virginia, the scouts will tour the Gettysburg Battle Field in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania.

Other sites the scouts will tour include the Washington Monument and Memorial, the Lincoln and Jefferson memorials, the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, the White House, the Boy Scout Memorial, the Ford Theatre, the National Marine Corps Memorial (Two Jims) and the recently dedicated Viet Nam Veterans' Memorial.

At the capitol the scouts will be guided through the famed areas of the Great Rotunda, Statuary Hall, the Brumidi Corridors and the viewing gallery of the House and Senate Chambers.

The day before the scouts depart for home, they will tour Arlington National Cemetery, where the graves of John and Robert Kennedy are located. The scouts also will witness the changing of the guard ceremony at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

The tour is planned to help the visiting scouts learn more about the principles and history of American democracy.

The theme of the National Scout Jamboree, which is held every four years, is "The Spirit Lives On." The theme for 1985 was chosen to reflect the celebration of the 75 years of the Boy Scouts of America.

Assistant Scoutmaster Jim Stewart said 35,000 scouts and troop leaders are expected to attend the Jamboree, including troops from Mexico and Canada.

Scouts from 100 other countries also are invited to send a patrol of eight boys and one leader. These scouts will be integrated in the Boy Scouts of America troops.

City taps contract for water tank

By KEVIN WILSON

Repairing the city's leaky water tank will cost $173,600 council determined Monday night in awarding contracts for the work.

While the total cost is not inconsiderable, it was somewhat lower than city officials had feared repair of the ailing tank might cost. The cost includes more than $154,000 for the actual repairs and $18,000 in engineering costs.

Council opted for repair rather than replacement of the deteriorating tank on the advice of Dixon Engineering, a Cadillac-based firm hired as special consulting engineers for the project.

Bill Dixon told council that repairing the corroded tank will cost nearly $90,000 less than would replacing the steel shell, based on bids submitted by six firms.

Ironically, he also said that the cost might have been as much as 50 percent lower two years ago. The city knew the tank needed repair at that time, but could not put together funding for the project due to the budget deficit. Dixon said the current cost is "at least 25 percent, and maybe 40 or 50 percent higher" than what he would have expected two years ago both because the tank has continued to deteriorate during that period and the industry has recovered and "there is plenty of work to go around now."

Bidding on the project was complex, including both replacement and repair options and a separate contract for painting of the completed water tower.

Awarded the contract for repair was Jetco, Ltd. of Prospect Heights, Illinois. The firm bid an estimated price of $72,600 for repair of the pitted steel.

Pits in the steel will be filled by welding. Jetco's bid estimate was based on a $3 per pit fee (there are an estimated 15,000 pits to be welded) plus the costs of sandblasting ($4,800), weld grinding (at $10 per square-inch, estimated at $2,000) and other repairs. Other bids ranged from $4 to $11.33 per pit repaired.

Jetco is to begin work in August and complete the repair by September 1 so that painting can be done by George Kantoupe Painting Company of Detroit. Kantoupe bid $2,300 to repaint the tower and tank, including an estimated $10,000 cost of filling smaller pits with epoxy at $1 per pit.

Best bids for replacement of the steel sheets that form the tank totaled $254,000 — a difference of $100,000 compared to the repair cost.

But Dixon will have to station an inspector on the site full-time to oversee the repair work (and count the pits as they are filled), so engineering costs of the project rise by $13,000 using the repair option.

Total savings of repair as compared with replacement are therefore reduced to $87,000.

Consulting engineer Edward (Jack) McNeely told council the difference in cost between repair and replacement was much higher than anticipated. When the city prepared to solicit bids, it was thought that replacement of the top hemisphere of the tank would be only a few percentage points higher.

Dixon said he did not understand how the city's water tank came to be in such poor condition.

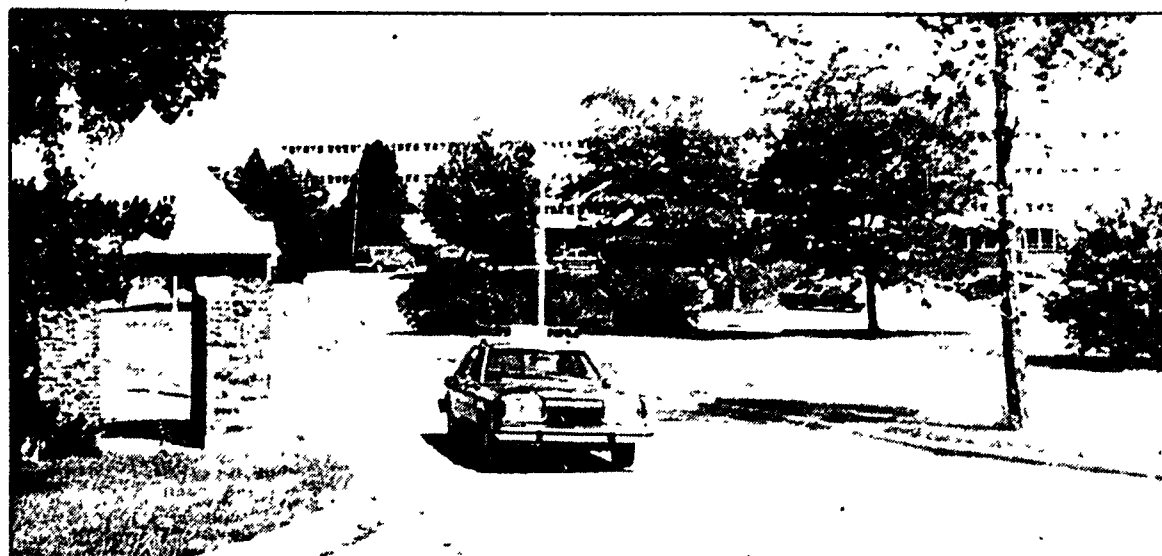

"I've examined a lot of tanks in the Detroit water system and this was the worst I've seen by far," he said. "I don't understand it — it's the same water that goes everywhere, all the way up nearly to Flint."

He noted that the city tank is only 20 years old and that such tanks typically have a life span as long as 100 years. Dixon suggested that "there may have been a bad batch of steel" used in the original construction of the tank.

"If it wasn't inspected within the first year, you probably wouldn't have caught it," he said.

Cathode rods inserted in the tank to prevent electrolytic deterioration of the steel had completely corroded away and were providing no protection when Dixon inspected the tank last year.

After repair, he said, the tank's lifespan should be as long as any new tank. Had the corroded steel been replaced, Dixon projected a need for repainting in the year 2000. With repair, painting should not be needed until 1998. Maintenance and operating costs for the storage tank do not significantly differ between the repair and replacement options, he said.

Mental health staff moved into Plymouth Center main building last week, patients to arrive soon

Northville Township Supervisor Susan Heintz, who says she wants all the PCHD property turned over to the county and then sold to private interests, said Monday that she does not "understand why the department of mental health is proceeding with plans to use the property when ownership remains in question."

Although the so-called "reverter clause" says the state must use the land for treatment of mentally deficient or diseased children, DMH last week moved staff into the facility and this week plans to begin transferring 80 patients from Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital (NRPH).

The patients involved in the new "Fairweather" program are adults, said Heintz, who said she received the information from DMH director C. Patrick Babcock.

The program, one element of a comprehensive plan to reduce overpopulation at NRPH, calls for patients to be assigned to groups of 15 housed within the Plymouth Center 'A' building — the multi-story structure at the corner of Five Mile and Sheldon. The groups are to work together to establish "family living" arrangements in preparation for assignment to community group homes.

DMH contends that this usage is in compliance with the deed restriction since it involves DMH treatment of patients. Department spokesman Tom DeLoach said there is "some question regarding the intent" of the reverter clause's use of the word "children."

DeLoach noted that for many years PCHD housed developmentally disabiled persons over age 21 who were being prepared for community placement. The last residents were moved out more than a year ago under a court order closing the institution issued after revelations of neglect and abuse surfaced in the late 1970s.

Heintz said the township "does not need or want a second mental hospital" within its borders and noted that the new patients are mentally ill rather than developmentally disabled.

She said Babcock related that the state had offered in early June to meet with county officials to resolve the ownership question.

"Babcock told me flat out that they didn't think the reverter meant anything and that the department was just going ahead with its plans," said Heintz. "We obviously disagree."

Summer intern joins Record staff

For the past month regular readers of The Record may have noticed a new byline — that of Marilyn Morrison, a summer intern for the Sliger/Livingston newspapers.

To date she has been working at the Northville Record-Now News office and also has spent a week in the South Lyon-Milford Times office.

Morrison, who is 21, will begin her senior year at Michigan State University in the fall. She is majoring in Summer series gets under way at New Morning

New Morning School in Plymouth will begin its last series of summer classes the week of July 29.

A highlight of the August offerings is "Marionettes" for 7-10 year olds. Meeting on Tuesday and Thursday mornings for three weeks, each student will make a marionette. Papier mache heads, dowel rod bodies and handsewn clothing will require "a lot of hard work and energetic fun," the school announcement promises. Students should bring a light bulb to the first class. Class fee is $36 plus a $4 materials fee.

For students needing review and help with academic skills before September classes, there still are openings in the Academic Summer School for grades 1-5 and grades 5-8. Two-hour daily sessions provide individualized instruction in reading, writing, math and/or study skills.

An educational assessment is done by the instructor, Kathleen Kerekes, M.A., who has a background in learning disabilities. An appropriate program is then planned. Classes are small to provide a one-to-one instruction.

"Bugs and Other Critters" for 4-7 year olds will meet on Monday and Wednesday mornings for three weeks beginning July 29. "Dinosaurs" for 5-8 year olds will meet on Tuesday and Thursday mornings. Enrollment in both these classes is limited.

Summer office hours are from 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Thursday. Interested parents may call the school at 420-3331 to register for classes.

newspaper journalism.

She recalls that winning a Detroit Press Club Foundation Award during her junior year at Plymouth-Canton High School played "a big part" in her decision to pursue a career in newspaper journalism. She won in the editorial category for her editorial on group homes in the Plymouth area.

During the spring term at MSU, Morrison was an intern on the State News. In the fall she hopes to have either the Lansing City Council or the police beat as her assignment. In high school, she worked on the school paper, the CEP Perspective.

At MSU Morrison has been affiliated since her freshman year with Kappa Delta sorority.

She is the daughter of Stuart and Martha Morrison of Plymouth, who came to Michigan from London, Ontario. Morrison has an older sister Cathy, 22, who is studying veterinary medicine at MSU, and younger sisters Mary, 17, in high school, and Carolyn, 11, whose interest is dancing. She also has a brother John, 20.

Sparkler causes vehicle fire on Thorndyke Court

... in the township

Township fire officials determined a sparkler was the cause of a July 4 car fire on Thorndyke Court which resulted in an estimated $9,000 damage to a 1984 Mercury Lynx.

Police called to the residence at approximately 8 p.m. found the vehicle completely engulfed in flames. Township fire officials also were on the scene and extinguished the blaze.

The complainant told police the fire started when her son dropped a sparkler on the floor of the car. Police noted that Lieutenant Rick Rosselle of the Township Fire Department said the fire was accidental.

The complainant also told police her purse was lost in the blaze.

An electrical fire in the dashboard of a 1976 Ford station wagon is believed to have caused an estimated $2,000 damage to the vehicle, township police report.

Eleven arrested at Novi rest area

State police arrested 11 people in connection with alleged homosexual activity in a week-long "decoy detail" operation at the Novi rest area off I-96.

Two are charged with gross indecency for alleged homosexual acts in the public rest rooms. The other nine were charged with accosting and soliciting or disorderly conduct. Northville Post Michigan State Police said.

Detective Ripp Collins of the post said the decoy detail operated every night between July 7 and 12 "and we're going to continue."

The operation was spurred by a citizen complaint. Collins said.

"This man and his son walked in and observed an act of gross indecency, right out in the open," Collins said. "He filed a complaint. The lieutenant has told me this is a matter of high priority and we're going to continue the decoy detail."

Collins said an August 5 arraignment date has been set for all the suspects in 52nd District Court. He said the two charged with gross indecency "were caught in the act" while the others either approached undercover police officers or were observed soliciting other individuals.

He compared the police undercover operation to a similar one at a Canton Township rest area off I-275 that made headlines last year.

"Looking at the number of arrests from this one compared to the Canton one, you can see the level of activity is not as high," he said. "Either that or we got the high-visibility people early in the week and they spread the word quickly. We got a few each night. I wasn't on the Canton detail, but I understand there was much more going on there."

Collins said police saw "a lot of people just wandering around, waiting for someone to hit on them; rather than making approaches themselves."

Fire officials were called to a Winchester residence at approximately 6 p.m. July 4. Upon arrival at the scene, police found the interior of the vehicle completely engulfed in flames.

The complainant told police he parked the vehicle in the driveway at approximately 5:30 p.m. before the fire started.

Township firefighters at the scene extinguished the blaze.

A fire in the plumbing shop on the former Wayne County Child Development Center property caused an estimated $100 damage to the vacant building, township police report.

Police were called to the scene at approximately 4:45 p.m. July 10 by security officers on the property.

Police observed a small amount of smoke coming from the building though no flames were visible.

Police checked the area for accelerants to no avail.

Township fire officials traced the blaze to a pile of trash inside the building. However, there was no determination as to how the fire started.

A Northville township woman reported that vandals cracked the front windshield of her 1979 Chevrolet while it was parked in front of her house on Jamestown Court.

The incident occurred sometime between 6 p.m. July 13 and 9:30 a.m. July 14.

Police checked the car and no other damage was present.

Damage was estimated at $300.

A girls' 10-speed bike was stolen from the garage of a Northville township resident sometime between 10 p.m. July 13 and 3 a.m. July 14.

After hearing noises at the rear of the house and investigating, the complainant said when she went to the garage, the bike was gone and the rear door was unlocked.

The bike is estimated to be worth $120.

... in the city

Someone kicked open the locked door of an unoccupied condominium unit on Charleston Court between 9 and 11 p.m. Tuesday, July 9, city police reported yesterday.

According to neighbors who returned to their residence at 11 p.m. after being away for two hours, they noticed the door to the unit was half-open. Subsequent investigation by police determined it had been kicked open, but that nothing inside the unit had been tampered with. Damage was estimated at $100.

The exterior side-view mirrors of two vans were unbolted and taken by unknown person(s) at almost the same time last week, city police reports stated. Both mirrors of a blue 1982 Ford van owned by an Ann Arbor man and parked in a driveway on Grandview between 10 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. Saturday were stolen.

Between 11:15 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. Saturday, the side mirrors of a red Ford van owned by a Northville man were stolen while the vehicle was parked at Northville Watch and Clock Shop, 132 West Dunlap.

First customers await opening of newest Meijer store

Tuesday morning 40 to 45 customers were waiting for the new Northville Meijer store in Northville Township to open its doors to begin a grand opening celebration that, store director Tom Michals said, will last for several weeks and offer special promotions.

Michals said he opened the store at 6:30 a.m. instead of the scheduled 7 a.m. to accommodate the first customers. They included a group of youngsters en route to Cedar Point who stopped to buy fruit.

The store opening had more than its usual share of headaches for Michals as lighting hit during the weekend storm, leaving the store without electricity. Two generators and a fuel truck were dispatched immediately from Grand Kapids Sunday morning to supply power.

After it was restored, power was lost again in Monday morning's storm. By afternoon, the store had been operating for about five hours with a generator. "But we'll open — even if it's with candles," declared Michals.

The 186,000 square foot store at 20401 Haggerty just east of the I-275 expressway at Eight Mile is set on 35 acres purchased by the company in 1972.

In a press preview last Friday Fred Meijer, head of the company founded by his father Hendrik Meijer in 1934, pointed out that the newest of the company's 54 stores in Michigan, Ohio and Kentucky incorporates latest planning concepts of the company. "This store," said Meijer, referring to the time since the land purchase, "has 13 years of my life."

"The supermarket is as convenient as any corner supermarket," he said, pointing out that the Meijer stores are being redesigned so that the customer walks directly into the produce section on entering the supermarket area doors.

"If you want to buy paint, you can get right into the paint department," he added, noting that in the physical redesign of its newest stores Meijer is "putting great stress on getting in and out fast."

Mentioning that the first of the redesigned stores was the one opened in Brighton, followed by those in Flint and Adrian, Meijer expressed the company philosophy in explaining, "We're putting in more service departments, and we expect them to be honest departments. We like to think our suppliers and customers are all important people."

He said market surveys show the store will draw most of its customers from a radius of the first three miles with the circle widening to five miles.

In addition to the packaged meat department the Northville store includes a service meat counter, cheese shop, bulk foods, fresh seafood and live lobster, oyster and clam tanks, Michals pointed out.

Service departments include a mini photo lab, dry cleaning and a postal substation.

Other special features are a soup and salad bar, deli, cafe, self serve bulk bakery, a Purple Cow ice cream area and personalized, computerized pharmacy. Packaged liquor and wine will be sold in the grocery section.

Last week the store was the scene of much activity as departments were being stocked and the 400 employees were learning their jobs.

"We have some really great employees who have been working hard learning their responsibilities so we can have a fantastic Grand Opening celebration," Michals stated.

Michals joined Meijer in 1967 as manager at Douglas-Holland meat department at Traill-Holland meat store.

Since that time, he has held several management positions, most recently as store director at the Ford-Canton Meijer store.

While that store contains 240,000 square feet, more than 50,000 larger than the Northville store, Meijer said the main body of the new store is about the same size as the back areas and the front entrance areas are smaller.

Each day during the first week of the celebration (through Saturday), Michals said, the first 500 customers will be greeted with a free gift.

In addition, customers will be able to register to win a 1985 Jeep C.M., a Motorcraft three wheeler (all terrain

Fred Meijer heads firm with 'people' emphasis

By JEAN DAY

Fred Meijer, who heads the grocery and general merchandise retail chain of 54 stores that bear his name, plus 36 other Sagebrush stores and 15 Tansy Shops, operates the 51 year old business largely on a "first name" basis.

"I do have a first name theory, mainly to break down barriers," he admits.

It's all part of a people-oriented philosophy that has seen the "one stop shopping" concept of the chain grow from 16 stores by 1961 to the present nearly 100 outlets.

Meijer, the son of Hendrik Meijer who founded the first store in Greenville, Michigan, in 1934, was in Northville for a press conference at the newest Meijer store last Friday before its official grand opening this week.

"You can call it enlightened selfishness — we just happen to think a lot of things we do are right. We get excited about opening a new store. There are things we like to see our store do. We're sincere about honest advertising — we don't think the customer needs to be kidded; so we don't say we're going to blow the doors off," Meijer said.

Noting that the store has more than the usual service departments, Meijer said, "We're putting in more service departments, and we expect them to be honest departments. I like to think suppliers and customers are important people."

"I feel the same way about employees. Treat people like they're the only one you can get instead of as part of the operation," he summed up.

Meijer's philosophy involves "treating people well that expect it the least — minorities, the old, the young, the handicapped, those that can't dress well — I would hope we do that with dignity."

He cited the store's Amigo program of providing motorized and nonmotorized wheel chairs for handicapped customers, noting that the company pioneered in becoming barrier free before state laws required it.

While restrooms in early stores were located on the mezzanine, there always were handicapped facilities on the main floor, he said, noting that the aim is to "make shopping an enjoyable experience." In redesign of the stores, he said, the rest rooms and eating areas now are on the main floor, or an elevator is provided.

Saying, "I believe in clean parking lots — the community shouldn't have to put up with our junk," Meijer related that the company has done several things to make its storage and parking areas cleaner. After finding that burning contaminated the air, he explained, the company went to bailers, compactors and recycling.

"We spent a quarter of a million dollars, which seemed a lot at the time," he said, to compact and bail paper.

"The price of paper went up and we recouped in a short time — a real plus," Meijer continued with a smile.

Mentioning his relationship with his father, Fred Meijer said he was 14 when the founding Meijer started the business, but "he made me feel like an adult. He listened."

The first expansion of the corner grocery store, Meijer recalled, displaying a picture of the Thrift Market, occurred when the bar tenant of the other half of the building moved into the basement to open a rathskeller.

In the expanded quarters the emphasis was on "serve self and save."

In 1942 a second store was opened in Cedar Springs. The headquarters later moved to Grand Rapids with expansion to Ohio and Kentucky coming by 1981.

According to Meijer, it hasn't all been easy. He recalled that the "move into stamps was not a good one, but it was a big move to get out."

About 1967, he related, there was a cash flow problem.

"It was a very dangerous thing for you can't do business with an empty wagon. Most of the people in the company had grown up with us. We invited them and their spouses to a banquet and told them our troubles.

"It's amazing how people will help if they know they're needed," he said.

The company almost went public in 1972, Meijer said, adding he is glad it didn't as, with only 31 stockholders and declaring no dividends. Meijer takes on big mortgages and opens about three stores a year. "Growth is important,"

he said.

Relating that his father made him his legal partner when he was 20, Meijer said the operation had been very informal. He recalled his father's friend, head of the Hamady food chain in Flint, saying to his father, "Why don't you make him president?" years later.

"My father turned to me and said, 'Do you want to be president?' — I said yes, and I was."

Meijer is the father of three sons, one of whom accompanied him on the visit to the Northville store. Would they be taking over the business? That will be up to them, said Meijer.

vehicle), an Armour mini car, a freezer full of Banquet frozen foods and a freezer full of Totino's pizzas.

In addition to the full line supermarket and service departments customers will find more than 20 departments of general merchandise, including women's, children's and men's wear, hardware, sporting goods, housewares and toys.

There are 1,036 parking spaces with 14 designated for handicapped. The store also supplies both motorized and nonmotorized wheelchairs for customers.

There are 27 checkouts with four being express lanes.

The postal substation for domestic mail will be operated by Meijer employees, Northville Postmaster Wallace Cates said Monday. Meijer officials have told him it will be open during the regular store hours of 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Sunday.

However, Cates said, there will be a week day and Saturday postmark cut off at 3 p.m. Sunday mail will have a Monday date.

Corporate headquarters of the company, known as the general offices, are located in Grand Rapids, and Sharonville, Ohio.

When the company celebrated its 50th anniversary in 1984, officials pointed out, it refreshed its stores with a new design, upgraded its offerings and dropped "Thrift Acres" and "Square" from store names

Northville's Class of '75 reunited at Meadowbrook

Sharing some jokes and special memories with old friends was all part of the idea behind planning a 10-year reunion for the Northville Class of 1975.

Friday, July 5, the Class of 1975 held its 10-year reunion at Meadowbrook Country Club.

Approximately 175 people out of a graduating class of 300 showed up to share fond memories with old friends.

And traveling distances didn't keep many of them apart.

Kim Banks, coordinator of the class reunion, said some people came from as far as Germany and Hawaii. Just for fun, the mileage of each person who attended was recorded. In total, 3.9 million miles were traveled in order to attend the 10-year reunion.

At Meadowbrook Country Club, the former classmates were well entertained by a DJ and a hypnotist. The following day they picnicked at Maybury Park.

"We had a fantastic turnout, no one wanted to leave," Banks said. She also said the reunion had a "nice variety" of people. Doctors, models, accountants and even a golf course designer were among the occupations former classmates now hold.

The reunion took about 317 hours of planning and the Northville class of 1975 would like to thank Brian and Gail Mills of the Meadowbrook Country Club for sponsoring the event.

Reunion planned

A reunion of Ladywood High School Class of 1975 is planned for August 24. Interested class members are asked to call 533-2576 for information.

Two store owners close shop at Northville Plaza Mall

While many area businesses report glowing sales, others are not doing so well.

Most recent local business person to announce a closing is Jan Stevenson, who has owned and operated the Bookstop at 42309 Seven Mile in Northville Plaza Mall in Northville Township since February, 1980. She has announced that she is closing the book store July 31.

The first of this month All Seasons flower shop in the Northville Plaza Mall was closed as the bank claimed its assets.

Commenting on lack of traffic in the mall, Stevenson said, "I feel it was never made attractive visually and was never promoted."

Her shop had been flooded in heavy rains earlier. Two weeks ago, it rained again on the books in the back room, she said, firming up her decision to close.

She said the owner had made roof repairs "but they haven't done it right yet."

The book store was begun by Alice Gorgas in 1976 when the mall opened. Stevenson recalled that she worked for the original owner for a 1½ years and then bought the shop. She featured used paperbacks in the back room and new books, including a wide selection of children's books and travel books.

"People realize that the mall has potential," she commented, relating that those who came into the mall found it attractive.

Stevenson a week ago completed arrangements to sell her back room stock to Dan and Diane McCulloch, new owners of the Haunted Bookstore on Main Street.

She said the remainder of her stock will be sold at clearance prices this month and added that she now is "open to what opportunities are out there."

A spokesperson for All Seasons owners Scott Yonker and Dennis Nostrant said they had seen the closing coming and were "almost relieved." Nostrant had headed an association of mall shop operators that tried last year to promote the businesses there with special events in the mall.

Another mall tenant, John Colizzi, owner of the Sawmill unfinished furniture store in the east end of the mall, says he has "no complaints."

In fact, the location has been better for him, Colizzi said, than his previous one on Main Street in downtown Northville.

"We're doing very well," he said last week, noting that he draws much of his business from outside the community. "It's easier for people from West Bloomfield or the east side to find us on Seven Mile," he explained.

"They say, 'oh, I know where that is' — being on a major road helps," he said.

Colizzi said, however, he does not depend on walk-in traffic and mentioned that a new Bible bookstore next door also was "doing well."

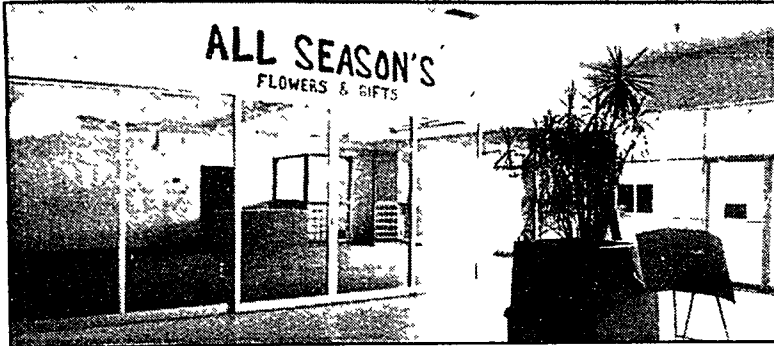

"In all fairness to the mall," he observed, some businesses are doing all right. He added that the Bible store also does a lot of advertising.

The mall is anchored on the west by the A&P supermarket. It also has a Perry Drug Store and a One Hour Martinizing dry cleaner, as well as China Fair Restaurant at the east end. However, the large area formerly occupied by TG&Y store has not had a tenant since that firm moved out months ago.

Our Opinion

Who owns Plymouth Center properties at Five and Sheldon?

State put its cart before the horse

Regardless of the eventual outcome of the dispute between the state and county over ownership of the Plymouth Center for Human Development, the state Department of Mental Health is clearly out of line in proceeding with its plans for the property at this stage.

DMH is willfully and with full knowledge of the situation investing money and staff time in a venture that could easily be halted when barely begun. While we applaud the effort to reduce population at Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital (NRPH), not to mention the provision of genuine treatment for patients who have been merely warehoused for years, using Plymouth Center at this juncture is simply the wrong way to go about it.

State attorneys who may think they can beat the reverter clause that requires the property be returned to the county ought to pay heed to the example cited by county corporation counsel (and prosecutor) John O'Hair. In a very similar case in the past year, the county attempted to gain clear title to land it had been given by the city of Detroit. The county lost. The land and buildings formerly used as a county home for neglected children were returned to Detroit ownership under a deed restriction identical in pertinent details to the one governing the Plymouth Center transfer.

The state may be able to win title to the portion it wants to keep — the high-rise "A Building" — by some convoluted legal interpretation of the word "children" as it was employed nearly 30 years ago in regard to the mentally disabled. But that possibility is nowhere near firm enough to justify the investment of taxpayer dollars — and patient treatment plans — in a program that may be left without a home in short order. And we can't imagine any court allowing the state to proceed with its plans to sell the rest of the property, nor can we envision any buyer putting up the requested $4.4 million for property with a clouded title.

Moreover, by following its present course DMH is only furthering its reputation for completely disregarding local interests. Justifiably or not, DMH operates with a long-term public relations deficit as a result of its controversial community placement programs. Now with a local public relations coup — the fencing of NRPH — only weeks away, the department has proceeded with its plans for PCHD without notifying township hall (from which it receives fire protection) and in direct contravention of the county's expressed wishes.

What the state ought to be doing is working with the county to establish a mutually satisfying solution — that they will meet next week simply underscores the poor timing of the department's move into Plymouth Center. With the potential for a solution so near at hand, it is hard to imagine any harm being done to the program by a few weeks of delay. If DMH really expects to use the main building, it ought to making an offer to buy it from its rightful owner — the county. And ownership of the remaining land, where non-DMH uses have been allowed, should be returned immediately to the county since those uses are in clear violation of the deed restriction.

That suggestion, of course, ignores Northville Township's desire to see all the property put on the block, including the main building. Since it is already surrounded by county-owned property, the potential for having the land converted to private uses (enriching county coffers both when sold and then through property taxes) could be expanded greatly if the township's goal is reached.

Township supervisor Susan Heintz says the township "doesn't need or want another mental hospital" within its boundaries. If DMH director Patrick Babcock thinks he can ignore that opposition to his plans, he ought to place a call to Department of Corrections Director Robert Brown. With his recent experience at DeHoCo as a guide, Brown could enlighten Babcock to the wisdom of paying attention to local concerns.

K mart, meet Bloomie's

By Michele Fecht

As we were about to replace the fourth starter on the not quite four-year-old Pontiac last week (the fourth starter was put in a little more than a month ago), I couldn't help but think of a poster my mother gave me my junior year in college. To avoid offending our more sensitive readers (this is a family newspaper), I'll just say that the gist of its message was "poverty stinks." No truer words were ever spoken.

By 1955 standards, we're getting along just fine in our humble one-bedroom apartment with the concrete slab patio overlooking the latest in low-priced family housing. We have two cars in our parking lot, a dishwasher that scratches my new stainless flatware, four lawn chairs and a $2.99 grill.

While our needs are fairly simplistic at this point in our lives, we're finding that "simplicity" is not the byword for the young, married couple in the 1980s.

For any Americans not living under a rock, the term "Yuppie" more than likely has infiltrated their vocabulary. While most of us have been Yuppied-to-death during the past few years, one has to admit the young, upscale, nothing-but-the-best generation has made its mark. I shudder to think what the history books will say about the grown-up Baby Boomers of my generation. I had hoped it would amount to more than Dior diapers, jacuzzis in the bathroom and Caribbean cruises during odd-numbered years with ballooning in Burgundy interspersed at even intervals.

It used to be that Yuppies looked out at me from the covers of newsmagazines and television screens. Now I talk to them over the telephone, visit with them at their condos and reminisce with them at upscale, suburban restaurants. My oldest and dearest friend — who still wore Love's herbal-scented cologne as a college freshman and drank only Jacare wine and Stroh's — now travels overseas on business, takes sailing lessons near her east coast apartment and skips into Manhattan on the weekends to sip tea at the Plaza, catch an off-Broadway play and shop at Bloomie's.

She's not alone. Other friends are driving company cars, buying their second houses, picking up a little investment property, purchasing home computers, playing polo, hiring financial advisors and starting their own companies. What did I do wrong?

It was easy to cast disparaging eyes on the Yuppie set until I had to look them straight in the face. At the recent wedding of one of Steve's former college roommates, it became painfully clear that we were a tad out of our league. Our compact car (the one with the five starters) hardly compared with the Audis and Fieros filling the parking lot. When the best man greeted me in his Puma cashmere sweater, Rolex watch, Ralph Lauren loafers and Malibu tan, my first thought was that he must be heading to the country club. How was I supposed to know he and his wife had just returned from Puerto Vallarta and had not yet unpacked their cruise wear?

To avoid sounding too envious of my nouveau riche friends, I should say that it's not their success that I find so unsettling. What astounds me is that nearly all of them have attained an upper middle class status before the age of 30. Most are living a lifestyle it took my parents' generation decades to achieve.

Oh sure, I realize the dream of cashmere sweaters and Gucci pumps could become a reality if I'd hone my trade in a more lucrative field. Most of my Yuppie friends admit they haven't achieved their success by doing what they set out to do after leaving college five years ago. Just recently, a friend and former reporter for a small daily took a PR job (media relations, as she likes to call it) with a major corporation. She admits she was only mildly interested in the position until they told her she would make more than double her reporter's salary.

She admits it's been a dramatic transition. Instead of bashing her head against a wall at deadline time, covering meetings until the wee hours of the morning, eating carry-out and fast food three times a day or borrowing money from the petty cash fund until pay day, she now lives in a $500 a month apartment, goes white water rafting on the weekends, works out at her new health club and wears $300 suits.

Now who said Yuppies don't like to compromise?

PHILIP JEROME

Officially, he's known as B.J. Martin to our readers. Around the office we call him Bruce.

His real name is Bruce, but when he started working here a couple years ago he was tired of having people remind him that the Red Wings have a broadcaster named Bruce Martin and asking him if he were any relation. That's why he went to B.J.

At any rate, B.J. wrote a column a couple weeks ago about how he was looking for a woman — a wife, to be specific. He noted that all the other columnists for this paper write about their spouses from time to time and said he wished he, too, had a spouse for those times when column ideas run thin.

Let me tell you, the response to B.J.'s quest for a wife has been overwhelming. The local post office had to put on more staff just to handle the increase in mail from allegedly eligible young maidens who apparently felt Ol' B.J. would be quite a catch and wrote to apprise him of their various and sundry attributes.

Now B.J. doesn't like it to be known, but he's really quite a modest, unassuming fellow. His passions in life are good music, good prose and guacamole. And I don't think he was quite prepared for some of the mail he received in response to his column.

There was one particularly torrid letter from a young lady named Cindy Lou Sheets (hope I don't embarrass you, Cindy Lou), who apparently has read extensively from the Kama Sutra and The Sensuous Woman. B.J. tacked Cindy Lou's letter on the bulletin board, claiming it was a piece of fiction written by — believe it or not — the straightshooter who also writes this column.

But that was the only letter Ol' B.J. let us read. The rest of them he read guardedly at his desk, while his co-workers with mild curiosity watched his face turn various shades of red and scarlet as he devoured what we assume to have been purple prose.

I'm not sure whether B.J. is planning to get in touch with any of the young ladies who responded to his request for a SWF. Frankly, he's not saying.

But there are several of us here at the paper who would like to hear from Ms. Sheets if she's still in town. Just call any time during regular working hours, Cindy Lou.

Fired NRPH nurse a scapegoat of hospital system

To the Editor:
The registered nurse who was recently fired from Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital was a victim of the state mental health system — a scapegoat.

This system is one that allows 47 patients to be housed on a ward with a bed capacity for only 33 patients, forcing some patients to sleep in beds set up in the dayroom so that the dayroom cannot be used for its intended purpose.

This same system deprives patients of adequate professional nursing care by not even having one registered nurse on every ward on the day shift and even fewer nurses available on the afternoon and midnight shifts. At times there have been two or three registered nurses responsible for the entire hospital, and such data has been documented in memos to administration.

These nurses also are held responsible for supervision of ward nursing staff.

As registered nurses, we feel our patients deserve, and we are trying to give, safe, quality nursing care. The nurse who was fired was doing just this. She was not even on duty when Greg Helzerman was murdered, but yet still held responsible.

Our patients require professional nursing care 24 hours a day, but this does not mean it should be the same nurse.

If we allow an injustice like this to go unchallenged, then we are all as much a victim as our peer.

Sincerely,
Registered Nurses
at Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital

Jaycees thank backers

To the Editor:

On Behalf of the Northville Jaycees, I would like to say Thank You to all those who participated in our July 4th celebrations which marked the 25th anniversary of the Jaycees providing community service and leadership training in the community of Northville. This year's events — the parade, barbecue and fireworks — were a great success.

Even though the Jaycees took a financial loss on this year's events, I found it quite rewarding to work for and with the community and provide them with the old fashioned Fourth of July that Northville is famous for.

I wish to acknowledge and give my sincere thanks to all of those who, without their help and support, this would not be possible.

(The list includes area businesses and merchants, automobile dealers, clubs, Northville Downs, the City of Northville, Northville Township and their police and fire departments, Northville Public Schools and "all those others who participated.")

When you have the support of the local merchants, governments and civic organizations, it makes a project of this magnitude much easier to undertake.

It was a pleasure to be a part of this year's celebration and I look forward to next year.

As the last line of the Jaycee Creed states, "We believe that service to humanity is the best work of life."

President 1985-86
Northville Jaycees

Concert succeeds

To the Editor:

The Northville Arts Commission wants to thank all those who made our first concert on the mall such a success. Last Friday evening there was music aplenty, thanks to Richard Balek and the Northville High School Alumni Jazz Ensemble, a group of fine musicians all of whom attended Northville High School, fellows who voluntarily rehearsed for several weeks in preparation for these three concerts (they will repeat this Friday, July 19, and July 16 at 7:30 p.m.).

Thanks are also due John Bueter and the Northville Merchants' Association for the use of their electric cable to provide power to the band shell, and to John and Toni Genitti for furnishing chairs for the musicians.

Come out this Friday and the next one, too, for good listening.

Very truly yours,
C. Phelps Hines
The Northville
Arts Commission

Thanks for Fourth

To the Editor:

Another glorious Fourth of July has passed, and the Northville Historical Society would like to thank the many individuals who helped make it such a grand day in Northville:

John and Mary Jane Brugeman for coordinating all the events at the Mill Race Village for the third year, and their committee of Jim Harris and Fran Gazlay; Kevin Hartshorne, chairman of the Fourth for the Jaycees; Cheryl Gazlay of the Northville Arts Commission for obtaining the Novi Concert Band; Pat Stoner who organized the arts and crafts sale; Virginia Hayward for her tireless efforts dispensing information about the society; Barb Louie who obtained sales of drink and ice cream from the Pom-Pon Girls and Girl Scout Troop 122; both the Mill Race Weavers and Basket Guild for their demonstrations of their crafts; and all the Docents who gave up most of their holiday to open the buildings of the Mill Race Village for all to see.

We are grateful to these people and to all the Jaycees for providing Northville with such a splendid birthday party!

Tying up a few loose ends

By B.J. Martin

The annual spring cleaning of my brain came late this year, so today I'm going to get some of the miscellany rattling around there in the paper and off my chest. Here goes:

JAZZ JUMBLE: The space case who listed in The Record the right time for the debut performance by the Northville Alumni Jazz Band neglected to mention the date. He is duly humbled. To make up for it, I dropped by the concert and found myself feeling even worse when I found out how good the musicians in the NAJB really are. Take it from a jazz fan, they are Excellent, capital E. They will return to the town square park by the clock at 7:30 p.m. FOR THE NEXT TWO FRIDAYS, repeat FOR THE NEXT TWO FRIDAYS.

BUCKLING DOWN: Michigan's new seat belt law finally has made a regular buckler out of me. Among the strange side effects of my new good habit is that I sometimes instinctively reach to my lower left when I sit down in a chair at work.

And while I sit here, I've been wondering what to do with the money I'll save with my reduced car insurance bills. After all, there will be fewer deaths and debilitating injuries now that we're using seatbelts, so our insurance bills will surely go down. Right?

ESCORT SERVICE: Just a few months ago, I was looking at two ways I could finance a new car — 1. Winning the State Lottery; and 2. Winning on Wheel of Fortune. Well, after months of strict budgeting, the reporter now has a new set of wheels, folks. It's an Escort, shiny and bright red. You can't miss it. Neither, it seems, can the pigeons and seagulls with regular flight patterns over my parking area.

I AM THE NRA: The other big investment I made last week was in a water pistol I picked up at Northville Village Sweets & Treats. It's a little green number that's easy to conceal in a pocket (although it leaks a bit), and with which I'm deadly accurate. So now I walk down the street like Clint Eastwood and nobody gets in my way. Go ahead, I tell them. Make my day.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE: I got some surprising feedback from my column in the July 3 edition of The Record. In it, I mentioned a Green Sheet classified ad I'd seen that read: "MINISTER — Will marry you anywhere." I also noted that my standards were slightly more rigid than this fellow's. The next day, a note from the very person who placed the ad was on my desk. Turns out the minister was a she. Brave lady.

Also in that column, I mentioned I was looking for a wife to provide me with column topics. Guess what? I got an offer. A letter from a "woman" whose handwriting bore an uncanny resemblance to that of a certain managing editor at this paper was waiting for me on my desk when I came in the next day.

Fabricating a letter from a woman to me is like giving a dribble glass to a man dying of thirst. But I knew how to handle this. I strode into his office, squinted, and said coolly: "You just made my day." Then I reached into my pocket and let him have it. Right between the eyes.

Salem sewer proposed

A gravity sewer system to serve the hamlet of Salem will be explained at an 8 p.m. Tuesday, July 23 public hearing at Salem Township hall, 9600 Six Mile.

The Salem Township draft facilities plan for alternative wastewater management systems will be explained by representatives of McNamee, Porter and Seeley, the township's engineering firm.

Purpose of the hearing is to present the proposed action and evaluate it and its environmental aspects as required by federal regulations. The "no action" alternative has been evaluated and will also be discussed, according to the engineers.

Comments and views of interested persons on the proposed plan and environmental concerns will be received at the hearing. Written comments can also be sent to Township Supervisor Richard Sackett through July 30. These will be included in the public record.

Copies of the draft facilities plan are available for review at the township office during regular office hours, according to, Township Clerk Nancy Geiger.

Board approves Belanger tax exemption

Following a public hearing before its regular meeting last Thursday, Northville Township Board of Trustees approved the application of Belanger Inc. for an industrial facilities tax exemption certification for a facility to be built in the township's Industrial Development District No. 1 for a period of 12 years.

The project will consist of construction of a 40,000 square foot office/industrial manufacturing facility as well as purchase of new machinery, equipment, furniture and fixtures, the application stated. The site is presently vacant land in an industrial park on Poheny Drive in the township.

In addition to the manufacture of car wash equipment, the facility will be used to manufacture industrial flexible folding doors.

The vote was 6-1 with James L. Nowka voting against the request, stating he felt "12 years is too long. I think it should be for eight."

Treasurer Richard M. Henningsen called the expansion into the township a "good addition to the community."

Supervisor Susan Heintz commented, "We are most happy to have it coming into the township."

The application stated construction of the new facility is expected to begin on or about this week and to be completed about December 31. Timetable for acquisition of machinery and equipment is about November 1 with installation to be completed about April 1, 1986. Total cost, excluding cost of land, is estimated at $1.8 million.

It is estimated that from five to 10 jobs are involved in the relocation from 455 East Cady in the city, with a total of 30 expected to be created within two years of completion of the project.

On July 1 Belanger received approval from city council to have the city EDC financing resolution amended to enable Belanger to lease the new larger facility to be built by Mijdub in the township. Mijdub Realty, the township was told, will lease the building, machinery and equipment to Belanger. James A. Belanger and Lionel E. Belanger are partners of Mijdub Realty.

Representatives explained that the transfer of operations would bring the company's sales office back into the city and would "generate a good 15 additional jobs."

Miny Investment Company, a Michigan co-partnership, received EDC approval unanimously for a proposed new industrial building for steel fabricating to be located on Gerald. The building would be leased to Ideal Fabricators Inc., a firm now located in Novi.

Haggerty plan on track landscaped prestige developments you're seeking."

Kenneth Saundry, who recently acquired property east of Haggerty just north of Five Mile from the Wil-O-Mac corporation, asked that the proposed master plan be adjusted to accommodate a cluster grouping of offices on land that now is used for a golf course — a proposal not much different from one Wil-O-Mac owners had been denied last year.

Continued study is expected on the proposed master plan revisions, and a more complete version of the plan is expected to appear before the commission at its next meeting, Tuesday, July 30.

City plans Eight Mile water system extensions

Extension of the city water system west of Lexington Commons was deemed a necessity by city council Monday night in the first action toward establishment of a special assessment district.

The district coincides with one recently established for sewer system expansion. At least two additional public hearings are required before the city can firmly establish the special assessment district.

The proposed S.A.D. was requested by Guy Barron, a real estate developer planning to construct the Abbey Knolls subdivision immediately east of Northville Estates and Denis Roux, owner of nearly 30 undeveloped lots in the latter subdivision.

But Roux and owners of three homes in Northville Estates said Monday night they would be hesitant about participating in a special assessment if costs were near the $5,800 per lot estimated by consulting engineer Edward (Jack) McNeely.

McNeely said his cost estimates are on the high side by design and actual costs would likely be lower, but not as low as the $3,200 figure Roux said he expected.

The engineer noted that a water system recently bid in Northville Township (at Grandview Acres subdivision) came in with a cost per lot of roughly $5,000. Since the lots are larger in Grandview Acres than in Northville Estates, he said that assessment on a front footage basis might be lower in the city district.

The proposed water system extends a water main west from Lexington Commons along Eight Mile, then follows the proposed street plan for the Abbey Knolls subdivision before entering Northville Estates along Elmsmere. Most of Roux's lots are along Elmsmere. Preliminary plans for the new water system include other nearby parcels that will receive sewer service under the recently approved district.

Township PND project request denied

Estates No. 4, the last phase of that development.

It was pointed out that the economic situation in 1979-80 was the reason the project had not been completed, but that many improvements have been installed.

By a 6-1 vote the board upheld Supervisor Susan Heintz's decision not to allow a lot split of property owned by James M. and Carol E. Bodrie as the resultant parcels would not meet the minimum requirements of the zoning ordinance.

The request for the division would have resulted in an east parcel with 157.71 foot frontage on Franklin Road and a west parcel with 126.5 foot frontage on Waterford Road.

Township engineer Edward J. McNeely's opinion to Heintz noted that the parcels proposed do not meet the minimum requirements of the zoning ordinance. The township attorney gave the opinion that the supervisor had "no authority nor discretion to approve the requested lot split."

The Bodries told the trustees they had made $25,000 in repairs to the house on the property and wanted to sell it and build on the vacant lot. They are residents of Dearborn presently.

David Black, who said he is an attorney and owner of the former Pascoe property in the area, asked the board not to approve the split to "keep the quality of life" in the area.

The Bodries told the trustees they had not expected problems in obtaining the split as one had been granted next door to Mr. and Mrs. Dean York in 1983.

Dorothy York's son told the trustees his mother had no opposition to the split, adding that the Bodries had "done a lot with the old house."

Henningsen asked the Bodries why they had not come to the board initially. The Bodries said they had been told they would have to go to the board of appeals and explained their original plan was to move into the house on the property but that they now found it too large.

Nowka voted to approve the split on the basis of consistency. The rest of the board voted to uphold Heintz with Allen pointing out that the situation was not a "hardship" one and that another split request had been denied recently.

Trustee Thomas L.P. Cook noted that "money is not a hardship" by the zoning definition. As used in reference to the split, hardship is defined as land that cannot be used as intended.

Few lose power in Sunday storm check the electrical wiring. Police estimated damage to the home to be about $300.

Township police also were called to a Lakeside residence at about 6 a.m. Sunday on a report of a downed wire.

Police at the scene found a downed wire in the backyard of the residence and had the dispatcher contact Detroit Edison regarding repairs.

Areas hardest hit by Sunday's storm were the Detroit area, parts of Washtenaw County (especially Ann Arbor) and Battle Creek.

The severe thunderstorms and tornado-like winds caused extensive damage in some areas and left many residents in the lower half of the state without power.

In neighboring Novi, only three areas of the city were reportedly without power following Sunday's storm.

Novi DPW Supervisor Ed Sniakak noted little damage to the area as a result of the storm.

Sandy Lapham and Ginny McSweeney have turned doll-making into a business venture

Local women turn doll-making hobby into small business

By MARILYN MORRISON
staff writer

NOVI — You don't have to be a little girl to love dolls.

For two mothers, Genevieve McSweeney and Sandra Lapham, making and collecting dolls is still very much part of their lives.

McSweeney and Lapham, both Novi residents, became interested in doll-making after attending antique doll-making classes. After the classes, both women began making dolls in McSweeney's basement to sell to commercial businesses.

"It's a contagious hobby. Once you get into it, you get hooked," McSweeney said.

For both women, making dolls not only got them hooked on a new hobby — it also gave them a new business.

After being interested in doll-making for five years, McSweeney and Lapham opened their own store, Doll Treasures, at 41700 Eleven Mile.

Every doll made at Doll Treasures by McSweeney and Lapham is patterned after the original style of the old world doll-makers. The dolls are researched, hand-crafted, and painted and dressed to reflect the period in which they were originally produced.

To make an exact replica, both McSweeney and Lapham spend time at the library reading the history of antique dolls. In their research, they try to find out who the original maker was, why the doll was made, and who it was made for. They also research what part of the country specific dolls originate from.

The price of the dolls varies from $35 to $750, depending on the supplies used to make them, McSweeney said.

The idea to open an authentic antique doll shop was generated by the women's husbands. McSweeney said her husband suggested they open their own shop after seeing several of their dolls.

With overwhelming support from family and friends, the suggestion quickly became a reality.

The store, built by McSweeney's husband, is above the white barn in their backyard. Money to get the business started was provided by McSweeney and Lapham's husbands.

Aside from making dolls — each doll takes a week to make, McSweeney and Lapham offer classes on the reproduction of antique dolls every Tuesday and Wednesday.

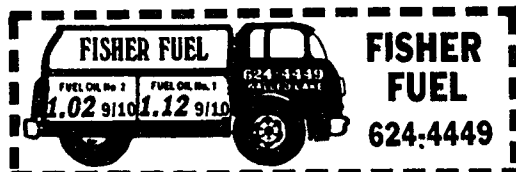

McSweeney said it usually takes a student four weeks to make a doll. At class, everything from shoes to dif-

Good budgeting is first step for strong financial planning

Investing has become trickier in the 1980s, and a comprehensive approach has developed that deals effectively with the new financial environment, according to the Michigan Association of CPAs.

Over the past few years, the pace of financial change has been furious, complicating financial decisions for the average investor. Bank deregulation has unleashed a plethora of new financial products from which to choose. Interest rates lack the long-term stability they once had and new laws continue to flow out of Washington.

What's an investor do to? According to CPAs, you find some answers by designing an investment plan and incorporating it into an overall financial strategy.

Following are some ideas on how to lay the groundwork for your investment plan.

• Set your goals. "A lot of people invest blindly," says Suzanne McGrath, a CPA and investment advisor. "They don't invest with an eye toward their personal goals or plan their investments to fit in with their tax bracket and overall financial picture."

Will your investment income go toward paying your rent or mortgage? Are some of your investments purely speculative? Or are you investing in your child's education?

Money Management

In each case, your investment should be tied to your reason for investing. Married couples should discuss shared financial goals. To help narrow your investment choices, list your goals in order of importance.

• Match goals with investments. You'll want to match the maturity, risk, yield and tax implication of an investment against your goals. Consider the case of a married couple who want to fund their seven-year-old's college education. The couple know they have a 10-year time-frame in which to achieve their goal. They agree that their goal precludes high-risk investing. Once this kind of preliminary evaluation is completed, you can narrow down your investment options still further.

• Evaluate your investment options. "Every investment has specific benefits and drawbacks," says Howard Safer of the American Institute of CPAs' Personal Financial Planning Committee. "That means people should chart the pluses and minuses of each investment option."

Safer suggests evaluating investments and goals based upon four criteria — safety of principal, cash flow, appreciation and tax implications. "Each of the criteria should be weighed on a scale from one to five, with the total not exceeding 10," says Safer. "Then compare how you rate each investment and how the criteria match the ratings of your goals."

Here's how this evaluation grid would work in the case of the young couple who want to fund their child's education. In one column they'd rate their goals for safety of principal, cash flow, appreciation and tax benefits. Across the top of the grid, they would rate two investments between which they are trying to decide. Let's suppose they are trying to choose between a zero coupon bond that would be purchased in their child's name and a dividend-paying mutual fund that is income-oriented.

In this case, the evaluation grid might help the couple decide that the zero coupon bond is a better investment for meeting their goal of financing their child's education. Safety of principal and appreciation, their most important goals, are both satisfied by the relatively secure bond investment. The evaluation grid allows them to see this clearly.

Drawing up a system for evaluation investment options is just one of the factors in investment planning.

Matching goals with investments and designing a system to evaluate investment options are only a small part of a person's investment plan. The major effort of investment planning is directed at incorporating your investment strategy into your overall financial picture.

Your investments should be re-evaluated annually, at the very least, to determine if you are on the right track. You may want to contact a CPA for help.

Proper automobile maintenance means significant savings

Making plans for a vacation should also include cleaning the family automobile so that long-awaited summer sojourn will not be marred by engine problems.

Consumer studies show increasing numbers of drivers enjoy the convenience and often lower prices of self-serve gasoline stations. But they may be inadvertently sabotaging their own cars at the same time.

A study of self-serve customers' automobiles by the Shell Oil Company revealed that 56 percent were at least a quart low on oil, 34 percent were low on engine coolant, 29 percent needed power steering fluid, 28 percent needed brake fluid and 33 percent had at least one tire well below recommended pressure.

For safety and economy-conscious drivers, these conditions spell unnecessary sabotage. But most of them can be overcome by regular, simple checkups and preventive maintenance.

Jim Jaskoske, one of the most experienced Shell Auto Care dealers in the nation, found that most of his customers could put most breakdown worries behind them if they followed these four suggestions.

• A regular checkup and changing of oil and coolant levels, drive belts and hoses. This can help prevent an engine overhaul costing hundreds of dollars that may not only spoil a vacation but cancel it completely.

• Checking and regularly changing the fluid and filter of the transmission can prevent an equally disruptive and expensive overhaul.

• Regular changes of air and oil filters will help prevent costly replacement of piston rings and bearings.

• A chassis lubrication will make the front end ball joints and tie rods last longer, again saving money.

Oil companies try to blend their gasolines for fuel efficiency. One company, Shell, even uses a newly discovered additive to prevent combustion chamber deposits which can reduce engine performance. But this is not always enough.

Ben Visser, a Guinness Book of Records automotive mileage champion and a Shell research engineer, found that several simple precautions may provide up to a 15 percent fuel savings. They are a well-tuned engine, properly-aligned wheels, correctly-inflated radial tires and use of a fuel-efficient 10W-40 motor oil.

So, if a car is driven 15,000 miles a year and averages 24 miles per gallon at $1.20 per gallon, the annual fuel cost is about $750. A 15 percent increase in gas mileage means an annual fuel savings of almost $100 — equivalent, for example, to a day at Disney World for a family of four.

How can these savings be realized? Most motorists, who can raise the hood, can take such precautions as checking and changing fluids, belts, hoses and tires by themselves at little or no cost. Other maintenance requirements can be performed by qualified auto mechanics. They only do the work you authorize, and they guarantee their work.

The pay-off? Trouble-free, safe, more economic driving — not only during vacations but throughout the year.

Twelve Oaks' Pat Harris assists Julie Conner and Kari Ledger check out the listing of available jobs

Twelve Oaks reports no shortage of jobs

If you can't find a job, chances are you're not looking hard enough. Approximately one year ago, the marketing department at Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi created an employment service for the stores in the mall.

Sheila P. Armstrong, Twelve Oaks marketing director, said the service was founded to better serve the stores as well as the general public. "The employment service takes the drudgery out of looking for help," Armstrong said.

At the information desk in Twelve Oaks Centre Court, a three-ring binder can be found at the counter with listings of jobs currently available at the mall. The employment information form indicates the store that needs help, the position available, whether the job is full or part-time, interview times, a contact person and the store manager. The information form also indicates if the position has been filled.

The jobs listed in the binder range anywhere from stock boys to assistant manager and manager positions, although most of the listings are for salespersons.

On July 1, there were 24 job openings including two manager positions and at least a dozen sales jobs.

"The employment binder pinpoints the kind of help individual stores need and is a service that will benefit the stores and the people looking for a job," Armstrong said.

The response from the stores has been very positive and, according to Armstrong, a good many stores use the service.

"A lot of people came in and already knew which positions were available," said Judy Owen, manager of the County Seat.

Wendy Hall, manager of the Children's Place, said that the service was effective and a lot of people came in to inquire about the job. She said she will use the service again in about a week.

The employment service is especially good for stores just opening. Even before the store opens, it can place an employment form in the binder and gather all its employees instead of recruiting them after the store opens.

Armstrong said that Twelve Oaks really hasn't advertised the service to the public. Basically information about the employment binder has spread by word of mouth, but people are becoming more aware of the service, she said.

Armstrong said the emphasis at Twelve Oaks is on merchandising the stores, rather than art or antique shows. The marketing department has created many unique and effective ways of showcasing the store's merchandise and impacting sales. By adding an employment service that benefits the stores and the public, the marketing department has added yet another dimension to its marketing techniques, she said.

Twelve Oaks, located at I-96 and Novi Road in Novi, is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday from noon until 5 p.m.

Small businesses fight higher health care costs

Providing health care coverage for employees is a growing concern for small businesses as the cost of health care continues to rise dramatically.

Although small firms are somewhat less likely to provide group health insurance than are large firms, small businesses can play an important role in curtailing costs.

A report on "Small Business Health Coverage and Cost Containment" issued by the U.S. Business Administration's Office of Advocacy in April presents a discussion of the small business community's stake in health care issues.

Derived from the proceedings of a Small Business Health Care Forum held in January, the report includes the input of Administration representatives, Congressional staffpersons and small business leaders.

Higher health insurance premiums and a lower degree of flexibility characterize most smaller firms' health insurance plans.

Small firms typically pay higher premiums for health care coverage and have less flexibility in the plans available. In addition, their costs are increased because they hire a disproportionate share of older workers.

To combat high costs, some small businesses have been increasing the employees' share of the costs or joining coalitions to share cost control information with each other. Others are able to obtain lower costs by employee leasing or joining associations in order to spread the risks and administrative costs over a larger pool of employees.

The potential impact of the Administration's proposal to tax fringe benefits drew a mixed response from those at the health care forum.

Some contended that small businesses would be disproportionately affected by such a tax because they pay higher premium rates. Others argued that most small firms will not be affected because the dollar amount of the coverage they provide falls below the cap.

Among the other issues discussed in the report are the impacts of Medicare reforms on small businesses and proposals to establish a state rate-setting system which would cover all payers of health care in a manner similar to the Medicare system.

'Prompt Pay Law' in effect

It might make you feel better the next time you have to pay a finance charge on a late bill to know that state government has to do the same thing.

Under the provisions of Act 279 of 1985, state government is required to pay interest to private vendors on all payments not made within 45 days of the due date. Often referred to as the "Prompt Pay Act," Act 279 took effect in April and was a priority of the 1984 Small Business Agenda developed by Governor James Blanchard and the Entrepreneurial and Small Business Commission.

Serious cash flow problems can result for small business when debtor agencies do not pay their bills on time. Under the new law, late payments to businesses will accrue an additional charge of three-fourths of 1 percent per month from the state.

States having similar legislation have found the avoidance of interest costs to be an effective incentive to efficient bill-paying procedures on the part of state government.

Ford engineers pioneer plastic bumper systems

Ford Motor Company is moving a step beyond its competitors in the design and manufacture of plastic bumper systems for cars and trucks in the United States, according to David C. Travis, general manager of Ford's Plastics, Paint and Vinyl Division.

Travis said Ford will introduce new two-piece plastic bumper systems this year in North America on the new Aerostar mini-van and the all-new, high-technology, front-wheel-drive mid-sized Ford Taurus and Mercury Sable.

"These will be the first functional plastic bumper systems of their kind in the United States," said Travis. "Most current systems actually are plastic facias reinforced by steel."

The Aerostar debuts this summer and will be followed by the Taurus and Sable in the fall.

"The new bumpers will be as strong as steel, but 35 pounds lighter than a comparable steel system, less expensive and easier to paint," said Travis. "They also will meet five-mile-per-hour crash standards, will spring back from dents to their original shapes in low-speed crashes and will not rust."

"Because they are plastic, the bumpers can be shaped more easily to compliment the aerodynamic look of Ford vehicles. The new bumpers also have excellent paint adhesion characteristics," Travis said.

The material used for the bumpers—call Xenoy—is a polycarbonate polyester alloy developed for Ford by General Electric Corporation.

The two-piece bumper system will be produced at Ford's plastic manufacturing plant in Milan, using state-of-the-art production processes, including injection molders, linear and sonic welders and computer-controlled automatic material handling operations. The linear welders are the largest of their type in the world.

After they are manually placed in process racks, the bumpers' parts are not touched again by human hands until the final phase of manufacturing. Handling is almost totally by robots, and station-to-station movement is by automatic guided vehicles or an automated overhead electric monorail system.

Robots also paint the bumpers, assuring consistency in a process that will produce an estimated 1.4 million pieces in the 1986-model year.

Statistical process control is an integral part of the manufacturing process, said Travis, further assuring that the parts will meet the best-in-class standards set for the Aerostar, Sable and Taurus.

High-tech bumpers

Front and rear bumpers for the 1986 Ford Taurus and Mercury Sable will be the first of their kind in the United States. They are being produced by state-of-the-art production processes at the Ford Motor Company's Plastics Plant in Milan. Robots, such as shown above removing a Taurus station wagon bumper from an injection molding press, do practically all material handling in the production processes, and station-to-station movement is by automatic guided vehicles or an automated overhead monorail system. Painting also is by robot. The bumpers, manufactured from a polycarbonate polyester alloy called Xenoy, are as strong as steel, but lighter, less expensive and easier to paint. They meet five-mile-per-hour crash standards and will not rust.

Women convert hobby

ferent types of wigs are supplied to students. The classes cost $4 for each 2½ hour session; all supplies are provided.

Each doll made in class is poured from original molds. It takes three days to dry, clean and fire the mold and another three days to paint it. The body of the doll is constructed next with the clothes and hair to follow.

Looking at the attendance in McSweeney and Lapham's classes, it is evident some women never outgrow "the little girl" fascination with dolls.

"Some of the women are in their 30s, but the majority are in their 40s. We even have a few senior citizens," McSweeney said. "It is a very relaxing hobby, and any people come to relax and have fun."

The average cost to make a doll in class is $80.

McSweeney gave a variety of reasons why antique doll-making is popular. She said many senior citizens didn't have dolls as young children and enjoy making their own. Some people make them to hand down to their children; and some people are just doll-lovers, she said.

McSweeney enjoys making authentic antique dolls because they are something she can give her children which are a part of her.

Rolling on the River

By B.J. MARTIN

There's a perspective you get from the inside of a canoe that you can find nowhere else. It has to do with gaining a feel for what used to be called "the lay of the land."

Twisting through the suburbs and small towns of southeast Michigan, defying the ultra-efficient grid of streets and highways, run the rivers and streams that brought people here in the first place.

Viewed from a car, a bicycle or on foot, the land these waterways flow through is mostly unrecognizable compared to its primitive state. But seen from the inside of a canoe as it is carried by natural forces downstream, it's not at all hard to imagine how even familiar areas must have appeared centuries ago.

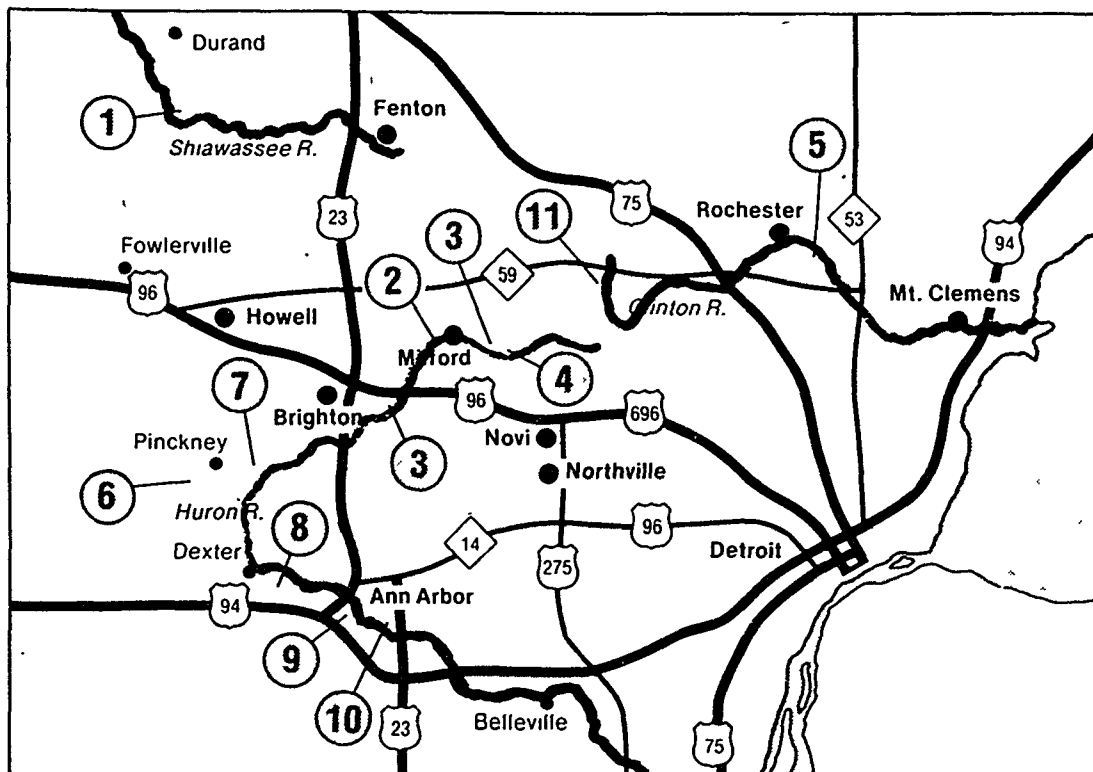

Take, for example, the branch of the Clinton River that cuts through Auburn Heights into Rochester Hills and Rochester.

On a Sunday afternoon paddle along the Clinton several years ago, this writer's heart fairly stopped as a friend and I drifted within several yards of a stock-still great blue heron which was very great and very blue. After we passed the beautiful bird, which stood nearly five feet tall, it flapped its iridescent wings and, hardly disturbing the water as it rose into the air, silently glided just a few yards over our heads and right down the middle of a straight stretch of river ahead.

It's not necessary to drive all the way or even halfway across the state for such adventures — many good rivers for canoeing or rafting are within a drive of just an hour or two, and there are plenty of competitively-priced canoe rental businesses eager for your patronage.

Where to Paddle

(1.) WALNUT HILLS CAMP & CANOE 7685 Lehigh Road, Durand. Walnut Hills offers two-hour and four-hour trips on the Shiawassee River daily May 15-September 15. Rates are $4 per person for the two-hour trip, $6 per person for the four-hour trip, and include downriver pickup. A $5 deposit for each person is required. A short portage is required for the longer trip. Current is moderate, usually 4 1/2 mph. Weekend reservations are available with an advance deposit. Phone host Douglas Talbot at (517) 634-9782 for more information.

(2.) ECO-MILFORD CANOE & KAYAK RENTAL 275 West Liberty. Milford. ECO offers trips of varying lengths, from two-hour-to-five-hour jaunts into Kensington Metropark to three-day trips all the way to Ann Arbor. Reservations are suggested for weekend trips. A $10 deposit and driver's license are required. A daily rate of $14 (less on weekdays) per canoe includes pickup. For $10 a back-and-forth trip on the calm river is available. For more information, call 685-3410.

(3.) HEAVNER CANOE RENTAL 2775 Garden Road, Milford. Heavenr's operation, now with two locations, is a big one — there are 179 canoes at the Milford location — but it's still possible to be put on a waiting list on weekends, so advance registration by phone is advised — the more advance, the better. With fewer than four canoes, no deposit is necessary for reservations. Trips vary from a 1-hour back-and-forth paddle into Proud Lake ($4) to three-day trips to Ann Arbor. The most popular Milford trips let out at various points in Kensington's Kent Lake and last three hours ($13 includes pickup) and all day ($14 includes pickup). Heavenr's other base is at the southern edge of Kent Lake and comes especially recommended in 3 1/2 and 5-hour trips, same rates. For details, call 685-2379.

(4.) WOLYNSKI CANOE RENTAL 2300 Wixom Road, Milford. Wolynski offers a wide selection of trip distances, the shortest a two-hour trip down the Huron to Island Lake. One of the most popular is a 6 1/2-hour all-day trip to Kensington's Kent Lake. Rates are $6 per canoe for the first two hours, $15 for all-day trips. Pickup charge is extra, $10 for four or fewer. A $20 deposit is needed on each canoe. A brief portage around the Milford Dam and at Island Lake are needed, but not difficult. Wilderness camping at various points along the Huron may be arranged. A day or two will suffice for advance notice unless a large group is traveling. For more information, call hosts Bill and Peg Wolynski at 685-1851.

(5.) YATES CIDER MILL 1990 East Avon Road (23 Mile at Dequindre). The Clinton River dam that powers the cider mill turned out to be an excellent place to put in and take out, and the cider a handy post-trip beverage. One-hour, three-hour and four-hour trips down the Clinton are available at $11, $17 and $21 rental rates, respectively. A $20 deposit is required. There are specific departure times for each trip length, so an advance call is advised. There's no white water, but current is brisk in spots. Reservations may be made with a deposit, otherwise it's first-come, first-serve. For details, call 651-1012.

(6.) HELL CREEK RANCH INC. 10866 Cedar Lake Road, Pinckney. Two-hour and four-hour trips on Portage Creek and nearby lakes are available with a canoe rental rate of $3 per hour. No deposit is needed when car is left. Early reservations are recommended for weekend trips. A short portage is required on the longer trip. Current is gentle where it exists. For details, call 878-3632.

Wear a personal flotation device (PFD). Wearing a PFD is not mandatory but state law requires PFDs on board. With canoes being easy to tip, wearing a PFD is a good rule.

Kneel in the canoe. By kneeling, you have a lower center of gravity, thereby reducing the chances of tipping the canoe.

Bring the right stuff. Smart items include knee pads, rope, spare paddle, canteen, sponges for bailing, light footwear, tissue paper, suntan lotion, insect repellent, sunglasses, aspirin, bandages, hat, gloves, bathing suit and protective clothing. P.S. Keep some extra shoes and socks in the car in case your feet get cold and wet.

Tie down your gear. This is important. Gear of any sort should be tied to the canoe. If the canoe capsizes, this will prevent your gear from separating from the canoe. However, do not tie down your PFD; it should be easily accessible in an emergency.

Observe rules of etiquette. Do not litter along the river; carry your garbage out. Avoid using the riverbanks as a restroom. Do not trespass on private property. And leave the alcohol and drugs at home.

Don't leave safety on the road

By MARILYN MORRISON

Michigan's new seatbelt law has drawn attention to safety on our highways — so maybe it's a good time to look at safety on our waterways as well.

Canoeing and driving a car are similar; both demand particular attention to safety precautions. Buckling your seat belt can save your life and so can wearing a personal flotation device (PFD).

Although canoes are not required to wear a PFD, state law does require all canoes and boaters in general to have them on board.

Since canoes are especially easy to tip, wearing a PFD should be the first rule of thumb before taking off. Marine safety experts and canoe rental directors stress that wearing a PFD is far better than leaving it on the bottom of the boat.

Lieutenant Cliff Johnson, marine safety officer, said even the most avid canoeists get bored gliding down the river and start horsing around. Johnson says this is one of the most common ways accidents happen.

"I've known some awfully good swimmers who never came back from canoe trips," he adds.

At most canoe rental locations, trained guides brief canoeists on the hazards of the river and teach them how to get in and out of a canoe safely.

When you get into a canoe, you should stabilize yourself and the boat by placing your hands on the gunnel (sides) of the canoe. It is recommended you kneel in the canoe. By kneeling, you have a lower center of gravity and reduce the chances of tipping.

The person who sits in the rear of the canoe has the most important job; serving as the canoe's rudder.

Jim LaPointe, facility supervisor for Argo and Gallup Parks in Ann Arbor, says that in slow-moving water, only the person in the back is needed to steer. In fast-moving water, the canoe is harder to control and the person in the front also must help steer the canoe clear of any obstacles.

LaPointe suggests that when any type of gear is brought onto the canoe, it should be tied down. This is important because if the canoe capsizes, the gear will not separate from the boat. Even experienced canoeists often overlook rope and finish their trip minus a cooler or tackle.

A PFD, however, should never be secured to the boat. It should be easily accessible in case of an emergency.

Some of the items smart canoeists frequently bring along on long trips include knee pads; bow and stern lines for securing gear; a spare paddle; a canteen of water; a large sponge for a bailer; and tennis shoes, sandals or flipflops. LaPointe also suggests keeping an extra pair of shoes and socks in the car in case your feet are cold when you return.

Some personal items to include when canoeing are Kleenex, which also can be used for toilet paper; suntan lotion and screen; insect repellent; sunglasses with an elastic holder or tie; aspirin and bandages.

Along the line of clothing, a hat with a brim is suggested, along with a waterproof jacket with a hood, a bathing suit, long pants and a long shirt to protect skin from sunburn, and gloves to protect your hands.

When packing gear for a long trip, the weight limit for a 15 to 17-foot canoe is 550 to 700 pounds.

Another way canoeing is like driving a car is that there are some items better left at home when planning a trip — namely, alcohol and drugs.

"Booze and boats don't mix," LaPointe says. Although his parks have no policy against drinking alcoholic beverages, he says intoxicants cause the same problems on the water as on the road.

Other items canoe renters prefer to leave at home include electronic music boxes, knives and axes.

Aside from material items, LaPointe says the most important thing to bring along is "safety consciousness."

Having some knowledge about the river is helpful too, he notes. But on any river, there are some general laws of nature that apply. Placement of the canoe on the river can determine what type of ride you want. Canoeing close to the banks will provide a slow, safe ride because the currents are slower — unless the canoe is going around a curve.

If you have never been canoeing, Johnson suggests practicing a bit in familiar waters before trying to tackle a river. "Anybody can do it, but it takes practice," he explains. "A lot of people golf, but only a few are good at it and the same is true of canoeing."

Johnson adds these reminders about canoeing etiquette: canoeists should avoid littering along rivers, using riverbanks as restrooms, and trespassing on private property.

"Use common sense for a successful canoe trip," he concludes.

'Extravaganza II' to follow first success

By JEAN DAY

Five Northville couples participated in a "Seafood Extravaganza" dinner July 6 that for them must have rivaled the Fourth of July celebration.

Cheryl Cassidy, who hosted the event with her husband Dennis at their home in Northville Estates, reports it all began with a casual discussion among friends about seafood favorites at the Northville Swim Club over Memorial Day weekend. The result, she says, was "the fulfillment of almost everyone's dream," the seafood extravaganza dinner with appropriate wine courses.

Sole responsibility for planning the New England seafood and coordinating the wines fell to Dennis Cassidy, who has become known as Northville's resident wine connoisseur.

In addition to the Cassadys participants included Andy and JoAnn Dalziel, Jim and Carol Koster, Terry and Laurie Marrs and Jim and Martha Nield. Everyone was asked to make a favorite side dish to complement the seafood and wines.

"The seven course 'extravaganza' began with caviar and champagne at 7 p.m. and ended with honey dipped peanuts and Remy Martin — much later," reports Mrs. Cassidy, who adds that the menu was posted in her kitchen to keep everyone on schedule. Carrie Hardin, also of Northville Estates, was applauded by the gourmet diners as the best tureen soup server and chief (wine) glass and bottle washer in the city of Northville.

When a last minute bearnaise sauce emergency developed, a quick call to Kevin at MacKinnon's "had us back on track," she mentions. "Our dream extravaganza dinner was so successful and fun that 'Extravaganza II' is in the planning stages," she says.

The Extravaganza I dinner menu is fun just to read: Course 1 — Sturgeon Caviar with Scandinavian Crispbread; French brie with Wasa German Crackerbread and Chandon Brut Champagne.

Course 2 — Icy spiced jumbo shrimp with mussels in marinated garlic butter served with 1984 Soverain Colombard Blanc.

Course 3 — Cheryl's Pesto Tortellini Soup with 1984 Beringer White Lindandel.

Course 4 — JoAnn's skewered Fruit Extraordinaire with 1981 Chateau Grayeyron White Bordeaux.

Course 5 — Mesquite Barbecued Swordfish Steaks with Chervil Bearnaise Sauce, Carol's vegetable medley and sweetened red cabbage, Martha's almond and raisin rice pilaf, JoAnn's egg-white bundt bread served with 1971 Chablis Premier Cru ("Vallons") and 1974 Chateaux Montelena Cabernet Sauvignon.

Course 6 — Laurie's raspberry almond flan, 1978 Havelock Gordon Late Harvest Riesling, 1983 Scmitt Shhne German Auslesse.

Course 7 — Hand ground French roast coffee with quartered apples, honey peanuts and Remy Martin.

NEW RULES
During 1984, only 15 new drugs (as chemical entities) were introduced in the United States. This was the lowest number for any single year since 1980. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA)—in response to growing concern from consumers and drug manufacturers—has issued new rules which may hasten the drug approval process.

Manufacturers desire to have their products available as quickly as possible in order to begin recouping research costs. Consumers having health problems not responsive to available medicines are in agreement. And we all want new drug products to be thoroughly tested and free of serious adverse effects such as birth defects.

In the past it has taken an average of 19 months for the FDA to approve new chemical entity applications. And no wonder. The typical application averages about 100,000 pages and is not light reading. Regulations published this year may reduce paperwork by as much as 70 percent and take two months off the application process. Other changes in the process involve an improved reporting procedure for adverse effects.

Diane Larsen, who chaired this year's marathon play, reminds participants who are interested in playing in the fall to send in their reservations and checks ($10 a person) as soon as possible.

Those who have not played previously are invited to contact new chairperson Carol Townsend, 349-5989, or her co-chair, Nancy Rossetol, 349-4622.

Teams play once a month from September through May with each other team in the group, meeting at designated host homes at times mutually agreeable. The marathon committee assigns teams to groups.

Tracey Marshall wed in June

Tracey Lin Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Marshall of 20343 Woodhill, became the bride of Lawrence W. Fraser of Birmingham in a June 1 ceremony at First United Church of Northville.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fraser of Birmingham.

The Reverend Eric Hammar officiated at the double ring service. The gold rings the couple exchanged were designed and crafted by the bridegroom's employer and presented as a special wedding gift to the couple.

A graduate of Western Michigan University, the bridegroom holds a B.S. degree in metalsmithing and is working on his master's degree in humanities at San Francisco State University while employed by Walter G.E. Kentzler, Goldsmith.

The bride's waltz length gown and hat were from the Laura Ashley bridal collection. The white cotton dress was styled with a scoop neckline in front that extended into a V-design in back, and three-quarter, puffed sleeves. The white straw hat was covered with white chiffon and tied with white chiffon streamers.

The bride carried a colonial bouquet of white roses, stephanotis, baby's-breath and freesia.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Peter (Kim) DiGennaro of Raleigh, North Carolina, was matron of honor. Bridesmaid was Lisa Moulds, a longtime friend of the bride. They wore waltz length Laura Ashley gowns in a miniature rose print with light iris on a white background and carried colonial bouquets of mixed flowers.

Bruce Herman was best man. Ushers were Scot Matteson, Greg Marshall and Peter DiGennaro.

A reception followed at the Saratoga Trunk Restaurant in Novi for 100 guests. Out of town guests attended from Florida, Arizona, Kentucky, Ohio, North and South Carolina and California.

The newlyweds, who had met while attending Western Michigan University, motored at leisure to a home in San Francisco.

The bride, a graduate of Northville High School, attended WMU and plans to complete her degree in art history at San Francisco State University.

She was honored at pre-nuptial parties given by Mrs. A.B. Kline and Mrs. J.M. McCandless of Northville, Mrs. Ray Fraser and Mrs. James Fraser of Birmingham and Jill Williams and Janice Dziadon of Northville.

The Northville Record

Link competition is tops at tourney

Trophies were presented to 30 junior golfers of the 270 youngsters who participated in the July 8-10 Great Lakes Junior Masters Golf Tournament at Meadowbrook Country Club in Northville.

The field was cut to 144 after 36 holes. Winners in the final day of play in the 54-hole tournament were those who scored the lowest in each age category. The number of trophies awarded was determined by the number of entries in each category.

Among the top performances by Northville golfers was the 81-82-81 (244) carded by Northville's Bob Justus, good for a ninth place in Boys Age 16-17.

Brian DeAlexandris carded rounds of 89-93-90 (272) for fourth place in Boys Age 11-13, and Bryan Reid took sixth in that competition with a 94-97-102 (292).

Varsity golf tryouts due

Monday, July 22, is the deadline for Northville High School boys to sign up for tryouts for the varsity golf team.

So far, 10 linksters have registered, according to the team's new coach, Harold McVicar. McVicar replaces Joe Blake, who resigned the post last month. McVicar, a special education instructor for the Livonia School District, has coached little league baseball and has played golf for 25 years. He was hired two weeks ago by Northville High School Athletic Director Ralph Redmond.

Students interested in trying out for the varsity squad should phone McVicar at 522-5738 before the July 22 deadline.

Skater Swallow to fly south

Just because the mercury's gushing past the top of the thermometer doesn't mean Jerod Swallow's taking a break from his ice skating.

The 18-year-old Northville High School graduate will travel to Louisiana State University next week to compete in the United States Olympic Committee's national summer games — a key early test of leading candidates for the 1988 U.S. Olympic Team.

Athletes for 39 Olympic sports — most for summer games — will be convening at LSU during the week. Only figure skaters, speed skaters and hockey team candidates will represent winter games events. Swallow will compete for the first time as a senior-level skater in ice dance with Livonia's Jodie Balogh. He also has qualified in ice pairs in competition with Rochester's Shelley Propson, but Propson will be unable to make the trip, Swallow reports.

Their travel and accommodations with other athletes from across the country at LSU will be paid for by the U.S. Olympic Committee. Also going to the competition is Novi hockey goalie Mark Gowans (see story on page 4C).

Doug Martin goes headfirst to beat a throw to third base

Mantle League title race heating up

Northville Blue is still clinging to first place in Mickey Mantle conference standings — but a pair of Blue losses last week has tightened up the race considerably.

After losing just one game going into last week, Blue lost twice that many with a 5-4 defeat by Belleville July 9 and a 10-7 loss to Plymouth Salem last Thursday.

Starter Eric Gala pitched well against Belleville, but left with a sore arm and a 4-3 lead in the seventh. But that seventh proved deadly. Belleville rallied for three runs off Gala and reliever Jeff Tanderys on three walks and two singles.

Blue scored twice in the second on singles by Doug Martin, Mike Tabaczynski and Brett Belliston, and twice in the sixth on Martin's single, a two-out walk, and Belliston's single. Martin finished the game with three singles in four trips to lead Northville.

Against Salem Thursday, Blue simply let the game get out of control in the third inning, as their southern rivals rammed out seven third-inning runs and holding Blue to no hits and one run over the final four innings.

John Lobbis doubled once and singled twice in four trips. Jeff Harp had a pair of singles and scored twice, as Brett Loomis went all the way for the loss.

League arch-rival Westland I ended Northville's hopes for a first-place trophy at the Trenton Invitational Tournament Saturday by topping Blue 3-1 in the tourney's second round.

Northville opened the tourney strong, popping Trenton B 6-5 thanks to timely hitting and a brilliant relief pitching effort by Ken Kehoe.

Trenton B jumped on starter Tanderys' early control woes for five first-inning walks, a single and three runs. But Kehoe was practically untouchable from the moment he came to the rescue.

With the bases loaded in the first,

Kehoe fanned the first two batters he faced to end the inning. Then for the remaining six innings he allowed just three hits and one run, struck out seven more batters — three straight in the third — and walked three.

"He's going to see a lot more time on the mound now, you can bet," noted Coach Ed Harp.

While Kehoe was slamming the door on Trenton's offense, Blue bats got on line with Tanderys' singling, moving to third on an error and racing home on Tabaczynski's sacrifice fly in the second.

Martin pitched well in the 3-1 loss to Westland that followed.

Two more Northville runs came in the third on a single by John Lobbis and three straight two-out singles by Martin, Kehoe and Mike Yard.

The key rally came in the sixth, though. With Blue trailing 5-3, Yard singled, stole second and came home on Eric Kapelanski's RBI double. Brad Ebel ripped an RBI triple to tie the game, then raced home with the game-winning run on Harp's grounder to second.

Martin pitched well in the 3-1 loss to Westland that followed.

Northville net tourney defies rain

The guests got the better of the hosts in the Northville Community Recreation/Lipton Iced Tea Northville Tennis Classic July 5-6 at Fish Hatchery Park.

Only four Northville netters made the finals in any of the five brackets of competition (men's singles, women's singles, men's doubles, women's doubles and mixed doubles). The first-seeded men's doubles tandem of Tom Spade and Rob Martin fell to West Bloomfield's Dan Walsh and Jeff Greensberry 3-6, 3-6 in the Saturday final.

Martin advanced to the final of the men's singles match, where the first-seeded Greensberry prevailed 6-2, 6-0. In women's singles, Northville's Carol Noel had to default in the final against Detroit's Joan Gisner. "She had some back troubles," explained tournament director Kerry Hlady.

In women's doubles, Northville's Mary Ann Grey teamed with Penny Wasiak and fell to Westland's Jo Ann Sizemore and Michele Anderson 1-6, 4-6.

Larry Panther of Troy and Hildy Randolph of Southfield combined to win the mixed doubles championship with a 6-2, 6-4 victory in the final over Plymouth's Tom Fisher and Westland's Amy Zellinger.

The title qualified the duo for a sectional playoff berth in the Lipton Iced Tea Mixed Doubles Championship, one of 128 across the U.S. Sectional winners advance to regional competition, and each of the 32 regional champs will win an expense-paid trip to Florida to compete in the nationals.

Altogether, 14 mixed doubles teams, six women's doubles teams, nine men's doubles teams, 32 men's singles players and nine women's singles players participated in the tourney.

"It went pretty smoothly in spite of a little rain Saturday morning," Hlady said later. "There were a few no-shows in the women's singles competition, but we had a good turnout in men's singles and mixed doubles."

A doubles tournament will be hosted by Northville Community Recreation August 24-25.

Local goalie gets tryout with Wings

By B.J. MARTIN

O.K., crossword buffs. What's a six-letter word for hockey netminder that starts with the letter G.

No, not G-O-A-L-I-E.

G-O-W-A-N-S. As in Mark Gowans, an 18-year-old goalkeeper from that hockey hotbed, Novi, Michigan.

Last month the Detroit Red Wings selected Gowans in the fourth round of the National Hockey League draft — the only goalkeeper the Wings picked up, and one of three Michigan natives the pro franchise chose.

"I'd had some talks with Washington (Capitals), but (former Red Wing goalie) Jimmy Rutherford told me not to be surprised if I didn't go to Washington, that I might wind up in Detroit after all," the soft-spoken Gowans said Monday.

"I'm happy about getting picked by the Wings. So far, I've been really fortunate to play for teams that come from this area."

But don't get the idea the '85 Novi High School graduate is ordering his Red Wing uniform just yet.

"Pretty slim," Gowans said of his odds to make the roster this year. "I've been working with Jimmy Rutherford, mostly on little things like how far to come out of the net, how to cut down the angles best. I'm sort of fine-tuning my skills right now."

Red Wing General Manager Jim Devellano will be watching. "We picked some fine players who should develop," Devellano said after the draft, "and you can be sure we'll bring them along properly."

"I'm very satisfied with our draft," the GM explained, "but I don't want the fans to get their hopes too high on these players right away. Remember, we and the other NHL teams are drafting mostly 18-year-olds, and few of them are ready to play immediately, like Steve Yzerman and Lane Lambert did for us a couple years ago."

Before picking Gowans in the fourth round of the draft, Devellano selected forward Brent Fedyk and defenseman Jeff Sharples and Steve Chiasson in the first three rounds.

Gowans was the 71st overall pick in the draft. According to Red Wing scouting reports, he's a "standup goalie with good reflexes and excellent concentration."

A slender 6-0, 160-pounder, he's far from having the stereotypical chunky physical build of a goaltender. He's also far from possessing the typical goaltender's hypertensive temperament.

"I'm kind of relaxed in the goal," Gowans said. "I don't get too nervous. I kind of like the pressure."

Gowans got to know pressure well as the starting goalie for the Windsor Compuware Spitfires last winter. In 36 games with the amateur Ontario Hockey League club, Gowans allowed 162 goals, an average of 4.60 per game. That's a somewhat underwhelming statistic. But then, the Spitfires were a somewhat underwhelming team, going 13-18-3 for the season.

"I was facing 40 to 50 shots a game. The average is about 30," Gowans explained. "This one game we lost 7-5 to Sault Ste. Marie last November there were 72 shots on me. Actually, it was one of the best games I've ever had."

"We had good defensemen," he added, "but our forwards weren't doing enough checking."

Prior to his stint with the Spitfires, Gowans played on Farmington-based teams. He credits in particular his Bantam coach Dave Liimatta for developing his skills.

"He was a big help, taking me to games, spending extra time with me. He was like a second father to me," Gowans said.

One of the NHL goalkeepers he admired in these years was Montreal's big Ken Dryden. "I always liked the way he seemed to be so loose and relaxed in goal, and I sort of picked up on that," Gowans said. He also lists former Red Wing goalkeepers Rutherford and Eddie Giacomin as favorites of his not-so-long-ago youth.

The grownup Gowans, now on the brink of a pro career, will undergo several key tests in the next three months. This month, he will travel to Louisiana for skating sessions with other 1988 U.S. Olympic Hockey Team candidates, then hit training camp with the Spitfires in August and with the Red Wings in September. The Wings have a year to decide whether to offer Gowans a contract, and preseason camps are when he'll get a good going-over.

"The first months are supposed to be the hardest," he acknowledged. But Gowans expects to be ready.

Willerer's no-hit gem boosts win

A no-hitter by Chris Willerer on Sunday capped a 2-2 week for Northville Collegiate, still 1½ games ahead of Garden City for the fourth playoff spot in the Livonia Adray Collegiate circuit. Willerer picked up his third win in three decisions in the nightcap of a Sunday doubleheader against Walter's Appliance. Willerer walked in a run in the fifth to lose the shutout, which had plenty of lucky sevens — seven strikeouts, seven walks in seven innings.

Northville picked up two runs in the first inning on Mark Chambers' RBI grounder after singles by Scott Draper and George Clark. Craig Cotter doubled in Clark.

In the fourth, Greg Ryba singled, stole second and raced all the way home when a passed ball eluded the Walter's catcher's vision.

That play might have been the last laugh of the day, but Walter's had a good chuckle beforehand in a 13-1 rout that opened the twinbill. Greg Ryba took his fourth loss as Walter's scored nine times in the third inning on two errors, six walks and four hits.

Brad Engel went 2-for-2 and scored Northville's only run when he came home on Draper's second-inning single. Beyond that, said Collegiate Coach Bob Peterson, "We just had a complete breakdown of everything."

Wednesday, Northville clipped the Livonia Angels 9-4. Willerer again was sharp, fanning four and walking four, before Mark Pearsall relieved him for the last two innings. Northville scored six runs in the second inning as the Angels fell apart — not unlike Northville in Sunday's opener, Peterson noted.

In that second inning, there were four Northville walks, two Angel errors and only one hit — a leadoff double by Engel.

Clark doubled in Ryba to stake Northville to a 1-0 lead in the first, and a two-run rally in the fourth capped the scoring. Ryba reached base on an error, Chambers singled him in, and then Chambers scrambled home on a fielder's choice. Clark's two RBI led the team, with Zac Childress, Rob Cannon and Ryba adding one each.

Friday, Northville fell to Westland 9-3. Ahead 4-3 in the sixth, Westland pounded in five more runs to make it a runaway. Northville scored in the first on an RBI single by Clark. Jeff Bainbridge drove in a run in the fourth on a sacrifice fly and Scott Swienkowski singled to end Northville's scoring.

Northville (11-14) takes on Garden City in a crucial game in Livonia at 5:30 p.m. tonight.

Tiger fans spell devotion with an Old English 'D'

In the July 3 sports section of The Record, we featured an article on the Mayo Smith Society. The Society, a non-profit national fan club for the Detroit Tigers, receives incoming mail in Northville, where it is read and filed by Northville resident Doug Petroskey. Petroskey offered to share with readers of The Record excerpts of some of the correspondence sent to him by Tiger fans around the country. Here's a sampler:

(From Dennis Wertz, Pacifica, California) "In the name of Coot Veal, Lou Berberet, Paul Foytack and all that is Holy, please enroll me in the Mayo Smith Society."

(From John McKinley, U.S. Air Force, stationed in Crete, Greece) "I guess the only loyalty I can show is the fact that the World Series came on Armed Forces radio at 3 a.m. and I was up pacing as if I were watching it on NBC. I looked like hell at work those two weeks, but it was well worth it."

(From Dale Gowing, Charlotte, North Carolina) "We are a group of dedicated and without-a-doubt displaced Detroiters who have read with interest about the Mayo Smith Society. We are stranded in the cultural wasteland of Dixie. Actually, Charlotte is a fun, progressive, Sun Belt city. But its idea of professional sports is stock car racing. We six ex-Detroiters feel we have lofty qualifications for joining your Society."

"First, we all knew and loved Mayo Smith in 1968. Second, we all hover around portable or automobile radios each night to pick up Ernie Harwell and Paul Carey doing the Tiger games. Third, we eat Hygrades Ballpark Franks and drink Stroh's beer regularly, and wear Tiger caps and t-shirts whenever we watch our beloved boys on TV. Fourth, our loyalty never wavered, even through the lean years."

(From Bob Gartner, Parrsburg, Virginia, about a friend for whom he bought a gift membership to the Mayo Smith Society) "He is not a fanatic in that he doesn't beat his dog or his wife when they lose."

(From Steven Pomerantz, Orlando, Florida) "I don't know what I receive for my membership, but any organization named after one of the most forgettable managers in baseball history deserves some attention."

(From William Ogden, Lake City, Florida) "I am able to get the night Tiger games on WJR here, and spend many nights with Ernie and Paul and LOTS of static . . . from the radio and my wife."

(From Emily Renkert of Royal Oak) "My daddy loves the Tigers. This is Father's Day surprise for my daddy, but please use my name for the membership. I know he would want it that way. P.S. He bought me a little Tigers cap to wear while I watch the Tiger games on TV. Isn't he the greatest? P.P.S. I am six months old. My mommy helped me write this."

(From Billy Ray Stephens, Woodridge, Illinois) "Parrish, Trammell, Whitaker, Lemon, Gibson, Hernandez, Morris Petry. Give me three guys named Grubb, and any three pitchers and you can start printing playoff tickets. Be still my heart!"

(From David Yurelsin, Fords, New Jersey) "I would rather be exiled to a bleacher seat in Yankee Stadium than miss a newsletter and copy of (Mayo Smith Society newsletter) Tigers Stripes. I keep the old ones in a neat little folder and refer to them from time to time. During the year, the folder usually stays in its proper place, in the bathroom, so you know it's getting exposure."

(From Karl Kuchenmeiser, New Haven, Connecticut) "My most favorite event of 1984 occurred after the season ended. On November 27, my wife Elizabeth gave birth to our son, Karl. Elizabeth was wearing my Mayo Smith Society t-shirt at that wonderful moment."

(From Richard Crawford, Ann Arbor) "I continue to think no sight more comely than the turf of Tiger Stadium as one comes up the runway for the first time — day or night — and no uniform more seemly as that of the regal D on home whites."

"Being a Tiger fan is not something I chose; it chose me. Sure last year was great, and I hope for more of the same. But, it's not necessary. Trying to explain such things to unbelievers, of course, is impossible."

"But the existence of a Mayo Smith Society proves that there are other people in the world who understand and need no explanation. It's good to go through 1985 with that knowledge on one's side."

For information on the Mayo Smith Society, write to: Mayo Smith Society P.O. Box 119, Northville, MI 48167.

Stingers win Wolverine tilt

The Northville-based Stingers soccer team took first place at the Wolverine Invitational Soccer Tournament at Schoolcraft College July 7 with a 2-0 win over Sycamore Arsenal in the tourney final.

That was the championship game — but the semifinal was even more exciting, as the Stingers pulled off an exciting shootout victory over arch-rivals the Troy Challengers in the final.

The Stingers and Challengers were tied 1-1, with the Stingers getting the tying goal on a long shot with just a couple minutes remaining in regular time.

After overtime failed to break the deadlock, a tie-breaker shootout was called. Finally after eight shooters, the Stingers picked up the win.

The Stingers feature four state-select team honorees in Abby and Adrienne

BASEBALL:

H LEAGUE: Powered by Matt Osiecki's grand slam and Joey Staknis' seven RBI, the Pirates downed the Cubs 11-3 July 11, to finish 15-1 and H League champions. Joey Staknis was 4-for-4 with a three-run homer for the winners. Chuck Appliance went 2-for-3 for the Cubs. David Horning did it all in the Mets' 12-5 win over the Braves July 8. He smacked a three-run homer and hurled three scoreless innings to lead an 11-hit Mets attack. Michael Mittman was 3-for-3 for the winners, and teammate Brandon Datzel was 2-for-4 with two RBI, a single and a double. Matt Telepe was 2-for-2 with two RBI for the Braves. The Reds defeated the Expos 14-8 July 8, despite Expos homers by Steve Moore (2) and by Chris Cook. John Wilds and Sean Harris each had two hits for the Expos. Gordie Collins racked up seven RBI with a grand slam and a triple to lead the Mets to a 17-7 slugfest victory over the Astros. The Mets scored 10 of their runs in the first two innings to give pitchers Dean Frelick, Clay Cutchins and Brandon Datzel plenty of cushion. Cutchins was 3-for-3 with three runs and three RBI. Bryan Chemott drove in four runs with a 3-for-3 performance for the Astros.

SOFTBALL:

INTERMEDIATE: In the tournament final July 11, the Sunbirds scored five times in the first inning and went on to a 7-4 victory over the Liberties. Jenny Juhasz homered for the Liberties and teammates Allison Downs and Laura MacDuff each went 2-for-3. In the July 10 semifinal, the Sunbirds beat the Liberties 8-5 in a game that saw 25 hits. Cindy MacDuff and Jenny Juhasz hit triples for the Liberties. Cathy Best went 2-for-3 and Mindy Hoover went 3-for-3. Led by Jeannie LaPrad's 4-for-5 hitting, four RBI and home run, and by Allison Downs' 3-for-3 hitting with one homer, the Liberties edged the Travelers 10-8 July 9 in the tournament's first round. The Liberties defeated the Gems 14-8 July 8, in a game that was postponed July 2, then was postponed by rain. Down 8-7 in the seventh inning of the resumed battle, the Liberties scored eight times for the victory. Laura and Cindy MacDuff and Joelle Stephens each had two hits for the winners. Also July 8, the Liberties nipped the Sunbirds 5-4 in a good all-around defensive struggle. Jenny Juhasz, Jeannine LaPrad, Laura MacDuff, Melanie Appligan and Rozann Staknis each had two hits for the winners. The Libs also topped the Aztecs 11-10 that day, getting 15 hits, with Cathy Best's two homers and six RBI leading the way.
