Petitions seek paving, water for industry

By KEVIN WILSON

A spur to development of the township's primary industrial lands may be on its way in the form of public improvements along Gerald Avenue.

Owners of property along Gerald, the only township-owned street, have petitioned for the creation of a special assessment district to install water and sanitary sewer services, and also to construct a storm drainage system in conjunction with street paving.

George Norberg of McNeely-Lincoln Associates, township consulting engineers, said Monday he hopes to be able to report on the validity of the petitions in time for Thursday's meeting of the township board of trustees.

To create a special assessment district (SAD), owners of more than 50 percent of the land area within it must sign the petition. Two separate petitions have been circulated in the area—one requesting water and sanitary sewer services, the other asking for storm sewers and street paving. Norberg said his initial review of the petitions indicates there are sufficient signatures on each of them to establish an SAD.

Gerald is an unimproved dirt street just west of the Highland Lakes complex and east of the C&O Railroad tracks. It extends from Seven Mile to Doheny Drive (formerly Wallis). Doheny Drive is the road that passes under the railroad at the South Main bend and serves as access to the city DPW yard and other nearby properties.

Wayne County owns and maintains all public streets and roads within Northville Township with the exception of Gerald. Maintenance of Gerald has been a problem, since the township owns no road repair equipment and must contract for service of the road. All township property facing Gerald is zoned for industrial uses and the uniform 0.9 acre parcels along the east side of the street are attracting development interests.

News of the petitions to improve Gerald went public during a July 30 planning commission meeting as a consideration in review of building plans for two parcels, both of which suffered difficulties with storm water drainage.

Jack Doheny, owner of Jack Doheny Supplies and developer of a large parcel on Doheny Drive, said Monday he helped initiate the petition for water and sewer service. The other petition, for paving and storm drains on Gerald, grew out of the one Doheny started.

Noting that his present building receives sewer service through connection to the city system, Doheny said it was a city council action that prompted his decision to seek township sewers.

A request for a "temporary extension" of city water and sewer service to two new buildings under construction on Doheny property (one as a new location for Doheny Supplies, the other to house a portion of the Belanger, Inc. operation) was tabled last month when city council members requested more information about how long the connection would be in place.

"Someone asked, 'How long is temporary?'" Doheny explained. "This is the answer. We have petitioned the

Sidewalk Sale has a banner year

By the end of the first three hours of the downtown merchants' sidewalk sale last Friday, many merchants were reporting sales were the best in history.

That was before the added attraction of crafts and antiques dealers Saturday for which Main and Center streets are closed. Del Black, chairman of this year's sale, said nearly all downtown merchants reported sales were up this year.

"We were up about 50 percent at this end," Black said of East Main merchants.

However, he also noted the "antiques and crafts dealers were delighted."

"They said they had good traffic and good buyers," Black pointed out.

Scott Lapham, who this year assisted Del Black with the annual event, said he felt the Friday crowds were due to people "realizing that last year it became a two-sale sale" for merchants.

The warm weather brought out shoppers even before the scheduled start of 9 a.m. They were waiting as shop owners set up tables on the sidewalks.

G. Dewey Gardner, owner of Four Seasons, said he had done as much business by noon as he had during the entire sale last year.

Judy Bradley of Judy's Country Curtains on Center Street said "Saturday was the big day" at her shop which offered a 10-percent discount on all merchandise.

New merchants to Northville's downtown also expressed satisfaction with the weekend sale.

Darlene Somerville of The Little People Shoppe said they had done better than expected with Friday being their best sale day.

Vera Batt, co-owner of Victoria's Place at the far end of East Main, said they did "very good on Saturday."

"We didn't expect that much," she said, noting it was the first sale for the shop.

Friends of the Northville Library also had their best sale ever, according to Geraldine Mills, president of the Friends.

"It's the most successful sale we've had yet," she noted, adding that the group sold more than $600 in used books. All proceeds from the Friends sale go toward funding library projects.

Other groups manning booths last weekend were the Northville Historical Society, Northville Community Chamber of Commerce, Northville Recreation Department, high school boosters, pom pon girls and high school students selling wares from the Hill Top Shoppe.

City finds deficit was understated

By KEVIN WILSON

It might be hard to tell which is the deeper shade of red in city hall this week — the faces of budget managers or the ink in the books.

A clearly embarrassed city manager Steven Walters reported to council Monday that a misinterpretation of last year's financial statement has resulted in an unaudited 1984-85 year-end deficit of nearly $54,000. That contrasts with the small surplus included in the 1985-86 budget plan Walters prepared.

Walters explained that a misreading of two years' audit reports meant the deficit had been under-projected by $60,995 since mid-1983. Walters, whose duties include being the city treasurer, and finance director Betty Lennox both missed a change in the way municipal fund reserves are reported under state law, he said.

Under the new procedures implemented with the 1983 audit, funds that are not legally encumbered for some purpose are assumed to be available for spending. Two such city funds had been treated as general fund reserves: $36,000 set aside to repay property taxpayers if an Oakland County suit regarding 1983 assessments is won and another $24,995 in unallocated cable TV franchise fees.

Walters said that under new state rules for municipal financial statements, such reserves (created by a council vote and easily re-allocated at council's will) had to be included in the year-end fund balance.

'The irony is that under these new state rules, the bottom-line is no longer the bottom line.'

"The intent would be to keep cities from hiding big surpluses in various reserve accounts while showing a general fund budget close to being balanced," Walters said. "In our case, it worked exactly opposite. Since the funds were considered to be available, they were applied to the deficit for audit purposes. That artificially reduced the deficit figure."

As of June 30, 1984, the bottom line on the city financial statement after audit showed a deficit of $299,393. But two lines higher was the real figure, the one showing the effects of the reserves: $360,388. That happened, Walters said, because the previous year's audit was misinterpreted and what was reported as a June 30, 1983 deficit of $400,383 was actually nearly $61,000 higher than that.

"The irony is that under these new

Parking restrictions adopted by council

By KEVIN WILSON

Traffic control orders restricting some downtown parking to a two-hour maximum were approved by Northville City Council Monday night.

The orders implement parking controls requested by council at its July 15 meeting and apply to a portion of the municipal parking lot bound by West Main, Wing and Dunlap (west of Travel Plans and north of MAGS) and to all of Mary Alexander Court.

The new restrictions are an outgrowth of a parking study instituted by the Downtown Development Authority in response to complaints that some downtown employees and tenants were occupying prime parking spaces that could be better utilized by patrons of downtown businesses.

The two-hour restriction applies to 41 spaces in the southern section of the city parking lot. On Mary Alexander Court, the new order consolidates several others and adds six to 10 spaces not previously restricted, Police Chief Rodney Cannon said.

Council amended the restrictions on Mary Alexander so that the two-hour limit applies only between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. Mayor Pro Tem Dewey Gardner said leaving night hours unrestricted was intended "not to interfere with the restaurant and theater trade of the evening."

As it stands, the new two-hour limit in the parking lot is in addition to a three-hour restriction that applies to another 30 spaces in a different part of the lot. The city lot thus has three different time zones: two-hour, three-hour and all-day.

Gardner questioned the continuation of the three-hour zone. "I'm not sure that will be needed if we put a two-hour limit on the other part of the lot," he said.

Cannon said police intend to monitor the situation.

"Right now we think it will be all right," Cannon said. "We'll be keeping an eye on it. We've notified the people in the buildings around there that this was coming. We'll see what happens."

When questioned, Cannon guessed that 80 spaces would remain unrestricted in the lot. Actual count shows closer to 60 spaces.

Restricting parking in the lot opposite MAGS (Michigan Association of Gift Sales showroom) also raised a concern from Carolann Ayers.

"I think you're going to get a lot of people from MAGS collecting parking tickets," she said. "That whole area is just jammed when there is a show there."

But city manager Steven Walters, noting that the show dates are only once a month and usually only one weekday, said the city has a policy of relaxed enforcement of parking restrictions during the shows.

Charlie Martin wants to put the roll in rock and roll base for a devoted rock and roller. But that's where Charlie Martin is these days.

Martin is best known for his five-year stint (1972-1977) in Bob Seger's Silver Bullet Band; five years many consider Seger's best as a recording artist. During that time, Seger and his backing band recorded "Beautiful Loser," "Fire Down Below," and maybe his best song ever, "Night Moves."

On the best-known recorded versions of those songs, Charlie Martin provided drum accompaniment that was subtle, subtle and dramatic. He played no small role in Seger's emergence during that time as a nationally-respected musician, the quintessential Midwestern rocker.

But Martin hasn't been able to reap the full benefit of that advance. Not yet.

The night of February 22, 1977, Martin was on his way home from a rehearsal with the Silver Bullet Band. "I noticed before the rehearsal my gas tank was on empty," Martin recalls. "I made a mental note to get some gas after rehearsal."

Absorbed in thought after the rehearsal, Martin forgot to fill up. About two miles from his home in Detroit's Rosedale Park, his car coughed to a stop on the service drive to the Southfield expressway. He went on foot for gasoline and on his way back from the gas station, Martin was struck by another car.

"The police report said she was driving about 45 miles an hour when she hit me," Martin says. "She" was a 19-year-old girl driving a borrowed auto. No insurance. No witnesses. "The picture of responsibility," Martin observes wryly. "About five weeks later I woke up in the hospital. People say I was talking during the first five weeks, but I don't remember anything that happened during that time."

The body he awoke with still looked much like the trim, athletic one he had weeks before. But inside, it was a mess. A spinal cord injury at his 12th thoracic vertebra resulted in paralysis from the waist down. There were numerous internal injuries. The major bones in both his legs were fractured by the impact.

If Martin could hardly believe what had happened, the Silver Bullet Band was no more accepting. "For six months, the band continued to use a temporary drummer (Dave Teegarden)," Martin says. "They weren't sure I wouldn't be back. At first they just thought my legs were broken. Eventually they could tell I wasn't going to come back."

After seven months of hospital rehabilitation, Martin was once again able to play music — but his wheelchair-bound condition and susceptibility to infection made touring impossible. "When the band was in town, I could play a few numbers with them on piano. But at that point I didn't think touring and performing with them was a thing I could do," he says.

While his arms and upper body skills were at least as good as ever, Martin was unable to work the foot pedals for the bass drum and high-hat. Technology and Martin's ingenuity eventually conquered the problem. He rigged a device that activated a synthesized bass drum when he hit down on a control switch, and he developed a high-hat snare he could trip with his elbow.

But long before he'd taken up drums, Martin's first instrument was the piano. His confinement to a wheelchair allowed him plenty of time to develop his keyboard dexterity.

"I never considered myself just a drummer," Martin explains. "I've always been interested in writing

Schoolcraft launches new job training program

Schoolcraft college has launched its sixth job training program for local industry — this time training 400 reservationists for Republic Airlines in Livonia.

"We received a $108,000 QuikStart grant from the state Department of Education," said Stuart Baker, direc-

Rotary drawing winners chosen

First monthly winner in the Northville Rotary 1985-86 Community Calendar drawing, held July 30 at the weekly Rotary meeting at First Presbyterian Church, is Richard Jarman of Stanton, Michigan. He won the $300 monthly prize on the calendar sold by club member Bill Tomezyk.

The seven weekly winners of $25 each for July 28-August 3 are Margaret Nauman and Bob Freydl, both of Northville, Ruth Bell of Canton, Dr. Joseph J. Berke of Detroit, Elaine Rosen and Robert J. Romska, both of Brighton and LaVernia Johnson of Livonia.

The grant was announced to the college board of trustees last week by President Richard McDowell, who has made economic redevelopment a prime goal of his administration.

"Tourism is an industry targeted by the governor," Baker said in an interview, explaining why every company is not eligible for a training grant.

"We located the instructors through our Continuing Education program. All have business backgrounds, and all have been teachers," Baker said. "We wanted people who knew the classroom setting and have computer knowledge. They needed some sales experience because a reservationist is a sales position."

The instructors will teach a three-week pre-employment course for persons who will accept flight reservations. Instruction runs in two classes — 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 2-10 p.m.

Baker said three instructors hired by Schoolcraft with the grant went thrc-

Republic's training program. "Republic is pleased with the individuals we selected," he said.

Baker said Republic, which has greatly expanded its service at Detroit Metropolitan Airport, also is adding 180 station agents, 20 passenger service agents, mechanics and flight attendants.

The airlines is building an office overlooking the I-275 freeway near the college.

Using state grants, Schoolcraft has conducted five other employee training programs — one each for the Holiday Inn Holiday, Chi-Chi's restaurant and American Technical Coatings in Livonia, and two for Ford Motor Company in Plymouth Township.

"It's a good opportunity for the college," Baker said. "We can have a credible impact on employee training."

Jim Dwyer joins staff as advertising intern

The Sliger/Livingston Publications advertising staff has a new summer intern to help beat the streets for display advertisements — Jim Dwyer.

Recently Dwyer has been working at the Northville Record/Novi News office. He spent his first month on the job at the Sliger/Livingston office in Howell.

Dwyer, 20, attends Western Michigan University where he will be a junior in the fall. He is studying finance.

He joined the Sliger/Livingston advertising staff after responding to an ad placed in the Brighton Argus — one of the Sliger/Livingston newspapers.

Even though Dwyer isn't studying advertising at school, he has expressed interest in studying Industrial Marketing which is similar to advertising.

He attended Brighton High School and got his first advertising experience selling ads for the year-book.

He is the son of James and Lynn Dwyer of Brighton and has two older family members — Steve, an engineer for Sprint in San Francisco, and Sue (Ripple), a personnel employee at General Motors in Saginaw.

Haggerty discussion on agenda

By KEVIN WILSON

Revisions to the township master plan as it regards the Haggerty Road corridor were to be the main topic for an August 6 special meeting of the planning commission.

Faced with a long agenda July 30, the commission opted to delay its discussion of the Haggerty Road plan until this week. One major revision from earlier proposals was discussed for the benefit of township residents who filled the meeting hall in regard to another item.

Planning consultant Claude Coates outlined the proposed master plan revisions and showed a new map downplaying the role of cluster housing developments as a transitional land use between offices on the Haggerty Road frontage and single family subdivisions further west.

Commissioner Marvin Gans said one of the ideas to be considered would be elimination of the mid-rise (four-story) office zoning along Haggerty, backing up to cluster housing, in favor of low-rise (two-story) offices with more generous setbacks where the office uses about single family uses.

"That would give us lower density zoning, putting less strain on roads and sewers," Gans suggested.

Gans stressed that the proposal was only one of many under consideration. The intent of slating a special meeting this week was so the commission could vote on the proposal if it wished to, but Gans and others stated a reluctance to be rushed into action and implied the final decision may be delayed longer.

A man in the audience, saying he believed he could speak for most residents of Quail Ridge subdivision, said "We would favor less of everything — less offices, less housing. We sort of like Haggerty Road the way it is."

Commission chairman Richard Duwel said he did not believe the township's aim in revising the master plan for Haggerty was a case of "encouraging development" but rather a situation of "responding to the market forces" pressing for a different form of development along the corridor near I-275.

Commissioner Ted Martin told audience members that planners "need your input" and encouraged public interest in the planning process, noting that the predominant opposition of residents to a proposed multiple-family rezoning on Seven Mile was instrumental in the commission's decision to deny the petitioner's request.

Planners deny Northridge rezoning request

Extension of the Northridge housing complex to the north will not take place if the township board of trustees accepts last week's recommendation from the planning commission that property not be rezoned to accommodate the expansion.

Planners rejected the request that 18.7 acres of land north of Northridge be rezoned from R-3 (highest density single family residential) to RM (multiple-family residential). The parcel is bound on the east by Grandview Acres subdivision, on the north by Quail Ridge subdivision and on the west by single-family homes in Highland Lakes.

Residents flooded into township hall to observe the commission action — the meeting room was filled and many homeowners stood in the hallway. There were at least 50 people in the meeting room alone whose primary interest was in the rezoning petition.

The matter was the topic of a public hearing earlier in the month and few planning commissioners added to the discussion heard at that time, when a similar number of residents spoke out against the proposal.

Commission chairman Richard Duwel noted information regarding the rezoning included at least 14 written statements of opposition submitted by homeowners in the area between Seven and Eight Mile roads. Among these was a petition bearing 57 signatures of residents opposed to the rezoning.

Consideration of the request was moved forward on the agenda to become the first business item. The recommendation to reject the request came on a motion by commissioner Ted Martin and was passed on a 9-0 vote.

Although the petitioner was not presented when the vote was taken, Kenneth Dalby arrived shortly afterward while commissioners discussed Martin's suggestion that they initiate an action to change the zoning on the parcel to a less dense single-family classification.

On questioning, Dalby said he had not considered single-family housing as a potential use of the property when he made his offer to purchase.

"I have an option on this parcel," he said. "I haven't given any thought to single-family. I'm not sure what I'll do now. I'll have to consider it."

Drummer Charlie Martin keeps the music playing

Charlie Martin in his Lexington Commons studio

(music) and playing keyboards.

"Still," he adds, "I got it in my mind that performing was a thing of the past. I didn't think people could relate to a performer in a wheelchair. I began seeking other occupational options."

The years since the accident actually have been busy ones for Martin. In 1978-79, he entered a partnership designing and producing t-shirts. An adept maker of catchy phrases, Martin had the raw material to be a success in the t-shirt business. But, as he put it, "My heart wasn't in it, and if you don't throw your heart into something, it's not going to be a success."

After a brief fling at performing concerts, Martin hosted "Not For Musicians Only," a weekly talk show on WRIF-FM. "The show was not just for the performers and entertainers, but also opened up all the facets of rock and roll. We interviewed agents, roadies, lighting and sound technicians... It was a very interesting thing to do."

In 1981, Martin helped launch the Detroit Music Times, a monthly magazine on the local music scene. "Creatively and aesthetically, it was a good experience," he says. "We had everything from rock to jazz to classical music."

"It didn't survive," he says. "1981-82 in Michigan was not a good time to start anything. We were shopping for investors, and all these people who were patting us on the back at first just dried up eight or ten months later."

"That bit I lost some money on, but I consider it a success. Some of our issues got down to Texas, when a lot of Michigan people were moving there."

Performance Magazine, a trade magazine for the music/show tour industry, wanted Martin to contribute. But by this time, Martin's first love, music, began to exert its pull more forcefully.

"I'd started work on a solo album in 1979-80, and I've done some jingle singing," he says. "But in the last nine months or so, I've come to realize that what I really want to do is perform, and that others want to see me perform. So I'm putting together a band."

Instrumental in developing his confidence was Martin's recent experience on local tours. He sat in on keyboards when R.E.O. Speedwagon played at Pine Knob recently. And his set with Detroit-based rock and roll all-stars at the April 10 "Guitar Army" concert in Detroit to benefit Vietnam veterans whetted his appetite for performing.

While singing at the show, Martin actually somersaulted out of his wheelchair while belting out "I'm Down," a manic rock and roll song the Beatles used as their show-closer during tours. The crowd, already excited, went wild. And Martin began to get the idea that maybe performing onstage wasn't a thing of the past, after all.

"There's supposed to be a double album from that concert coming out this fall. But what we're really hoping is for us to get corporate sponsorship for a four-week tour," Martin says. "Detroit's going to host the national convention of Vietnam veterans and we want to headline for them at Cobo or Joe Louis."

Martin would also like to tour with the all-star group as a short-run test of his ability to handle the rigors of touring with his own band. He explains, "When I'm with all these other stars — guys who were with the big Detroit-area bands of the '60s and early '70s, I'm not the main focal point, so if I'm not up to a show, it's no big deal."

"But if it's my band doing the tour, people are going there to see me. I've got to be in good enough shape to do it."

There's not much question Martin has the talent to be a headliner. His self-produced songs are hook-filled rockers and ballads that fit Album Oriented Rock radio formats perfectly. He has a good voice, not unlike Sting's, reedy and clear.

"I'd like to get a band situation that has a strong footing in traditional (rock) styles, but one that's not opposed to using digital synthesizers, even tapes. I'd like to have a real expansive style, maybe a cross between Toto, Jefferson Starship and Santana, but a pop group, one that's going after hit songs."

Martin is also planning to record with Bustin' Barriers, a group of handicapped and senior citizen songwriters and musicians. He is the musical director and co-producer of showcase album for the assemblage, a package he hopes to get produced and released before Christmas.

In the meantime, Martin is recording and practicing at home, a specially-equipped tri-level condominium in Lexington Commons. He has a four-track recording studio in the basement along with enough musical equipment for an entire group.

"I was living in Farmington Hills and looking around for a place to live," he said. "I figured because of my wheelchair, I'd have to get a ranch-style house, even though I really wanted a basement I could use for a studio."

"Well, the realtor showed me this condo with an elevator, and that really opened up my eyes to getting a multi-level home."

The specially-equipped Lexington Commons condominium he lives in with his wife of five years, Susan, suits his needs perfectly, he says.

A quiet neighborhood, maybe. But not in Martin's basement.

OLV blessing

Father Frank Pollie, pastor of Our Lady of Victory Church, gave the blessing Saturday for a renovation project of the church and social hall and addition to the school. Members of the OLV congregation participated in the ground breaking ceremonies for the renovation which followed Saturday's 5 p.m. Mass. The worship area of the church is being renovated with seating capacity expanded 25 percent. The building will be made energy-efficient and the exterior and grounds will be designed to conform with the atmosphere of the downtown renovation project. A new library, curriculum room and larger teachers' lounge is being added to the school. Record photo by Rick Smith.

Schoolcraft trustees consider tax increase

It makes them uncomfortable, but Schoolcraft College trustees know they must talk about a tax increase.

"There's obviously a need for additional millage. I move we set a date for a millage election," said trustee Mary Breen, pointing to March 24 and 31 on her 1986 calendar.

"I'm uncomfortable," said trustee Sharon Sarris of Livonia. She wanted to touch bases first with trustees in K-12 districts — Clarenceville, Livonia, Garden City, Northville and Plymouth/Canton.

"I'm uncomfortable about the way this process is taking shape," added trustee Paul Kadish of Livonia. "When we set the date, that's the time we come out swinging."

Breen's motion died for lack of a second though she insisted, "there's a need to nail down the date." No Schoolcraft trustees are up for election in 1986 and there is no college election.

Trustees decided only to hold a special board meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday, August 14, to discuss revenue needs.

Trustees and administrators were careful not to say how much of an increase in the 1.77 mill property tax ($1.77 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation) they might need, what they might use it for and for how many years it would be levied.

The discussion arose during a three-hour session in July devoted to a five-year plan. Comptroller A.H. Raby, pinch-hitting for business vice president W. Kenneth Lindner, tiptoed into the issue.

In an outline of financial plans, Raby said the two-year college needed "stable tuition rates — no growth above consumer price index" and "successful tax increase — general operations."

But in the text of an earlier version of the plan, a tax increase was discussed in the context of "repair, maintenance or replacement of campus infrastructure elements — roofs, sewer, water, communications, electric, etc." and a new computer.

During the 1970s, the college failed four times to persuade voters to authorize more resources, both through taxes and bond issues.

Raby said the college is "reaching the end of the line" in holding down costs. These have included purchasing supply controls, more automation and energy conservation.

Statistical models show expenses will grow faster than revenues, Raby said.

He underscored the need to refurbish roofs, parking lots, walkways, building entrances, boilers and transformers by saying, "If the hallways are dirty, people assume an institution is not up to par. The airlines have found that if the silver is dirty, the public thinks the engines are not well maintained."

Raby also cited a need for consolidation of the business division, a conference center, small theater and specialized service space for word processing and central duplicating.

A committee studying physical plant needs also saw a need to develop a campus security plan against fire, theft and destruction through surveillance monitoring and extinguishing systems.

"With more traffic in the I-275 corridor, there are more potential security problems," the comptroller said.

Conway Jeffress, vice president for instruction, recommended nine programs be introduced in the next five years. They included:

- 1986 — Laser technician, culinary manager.
- 1987 — Automobile mechanic diagnostician, software technician, recreation technician.
- 1988 — Corrective personnel, optician technician.
- 1989 — Accounting technician.
- 1990 — Radiologic technician.

Jeffress saw a need for introducing competency standards into many programs.

Among trends he noted were fewer transfer students (taking first two years of a four year degree), more career education, fewer students in the traditional 18-21 age group, a "proliferation of state and federal legislation affecting faculty and staff, the lessening of financial support from the state, employee desire to become part of the decision-making process and aging employee groups."

Postal box removed

Northville postmaster Wallace Cates reported Friday that the drive-up mail collection box formerly located in front of the post office on Wing Street has been removed.

This was done, he explained, because of traffic congestion and the potential safety hazard it created.

A new collection receptacle will be installed in front of the post office shortly, he said, but it will not provide curb service as the former one did.

For those interested in using a drive-up collection box, Cates said that one still is available in the south end of the city parking lot directly across the street from the post office.

The postmaster added he would like to make the public aware that tours of the post office are available for groups. The tours last approximately 20 minutes. Call 349-0300 to make reservations.

Hudolin leaves city post

Mildred Hudolin concluded eight years' service as Northville deputy clerk last Friday, having taken a job as an election official in the Pontiac clerk's office.

Hudolin, a certified municipal clerk (CMC), was hired as deputy under former city clerk Joan McAllister, who recently resigned to become Oak Park city clerk.

Hudolin said her new job will be closer to her Sylvan Lake home. Her husband, Herbert, is also a Pontiac city employee as director of public utilities. Before moving to Sylvan Lake, the Hudolins were Northville Township residents.

CITY OF NOVI NOTICE OF ENACTMENT ORDINANCE 85-100.02

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the City of Novi Council has enacted Ordinance 85-100.02, an Ordinance enacted under Act 207, of the Public Acts of 1921, as amended, to permit such signs as will not, by reason of their size, location, construction, or manner of display, endanger life and limb, confuse or mislead traffic, obstruct vision necessary for traffic safety; and further, to regulate such permitted signs in such a way as to create land use patterns compatible with other major land use objectives, to prevent such signs from causing annoyance or disturbance to the citizens and residents of the City, and to repeal Novi Ordinance No. 82-100, as amended.

This Ordinance is declared to be an emergency ordinance which is immediately necessary for the preservation of the public peace, health and safety, and public hearing having been held herein pursuant to the provisions of Section 4 of Act No. 207 of the Public Acts of 1921, as amended, it shall become effective immediately upon adoption. The Sign Ordinance regulating the erection and placement of signs was adopted August 5, 1985, and the effective date of the Ordinance is August 5, 1985. A complete copy of the Ordinance is available for purchase or inspection at the City Offices, 45225 W. Ten Mile Road, Novi, Michigan, between 8:00 AM and 5:00 PM, Monday thru Friday.

Benefit features local chefs

Chef Keith Famie of Raphael's in Novi and chef Bill Riffle of Riffle's in Northville are among chefs from the west side of Detroit participating in a Midsummer Bacchanal benefit for the Actors Alliance Theatre Company Sunday.

Mayor Donald Fracassi and Macabees Mutual Life Insurance Company are sponsoring the benefit from 2-8 p.m. August 11 at St. George's Cultural Center in Bloomfield Hills. The cultural center is located at 1515 North Woodward just north of Square Lake Road.

Ticket prices are $25 per person and $40 per couple. For reservations call the Actors Alliance Theatre Company, 642-1326.

The event will feature complimentary wine and cheese, entertainment by Phil Marcus Esser and Barbara Bredius and an auction of fine art, fine jewelry and gourmet suppers by well-known chefs.

Dr. Albert Scaglione, owner of Park West Galleries in Southfield, has donated $40,000 worth of art to the auction.

Rezoning sought at Six Mile and Sheldon

Rezoning of nearly 300 acres of property at Six Mile and Sheldon roads to allow multiple-family housing (apartments or condominiums) will be considered by the township planning commission at a September public hearing.

The commission last week set a September 10 date to hear public comment regarding the proposals, which would change the zoning on 145.4 acres at the northwest corner and 150.4 acres on the southwest corner of Six Mile and Sheldon from R-2 and R-3 (single-family residential) to RM (multiple family).

Petitioner Occidental Development Limited requested at the June meeting that planners schedule a special meeting to give the company a "feel" for the commission's attitude toward such a proposal. But that request was denied and the firm submitted a formal rezoning petition at the July 30 meeting.

The property in question was formerly planned as a pair of Elro Corporation subdivisions, with site plans approved but no plat recorded in the early 1980s. The site plan approvals have expired.

A 1980 rezoning request would have put more than 35 acres of the land at the southwest corner into commercial zoning. The request was denied, but led to extensive changes in the township zoning ordinance and master plan regulating the development of so-called "convenience shopping centers."

Occidental has an option to buy the property from the George Haggarty Trusts, contingent on approval of the rezoning to allow multiple-family development.

Under the township zoning ordinance, petitions for rezonings that do not comply with the master plan of land use and that affect areas of 10 acres or more are required to submit an impact assessment. Both conditions apply in this instance and an impact assessment has been supplied, planning consultant Claude Coates of Villican-Leman & Associates told the commission.

A preliminary review, Coates said, shows the assessment lacks only the required commentary on how the rezoning is likely to "impact on the future land use of the surrounding area."

A more complete review of the assessment is expected for the commission's September considerations of the issue.

Council enacts time limits on downtown parking areas

"We normally relax the hourly limits when MAGS is in session," Walters said. "That's been the case with the three-hour zone in that lot and I expect it will continue with the new limits."

Cannon confirmed that enforcement efforts are relaxed during those periods and that it is the department's intent to continue the policy.

In a related move, council also upped the fee for violating time limits in restricted parking areas from $1 to $3. The old fee schedule escalated to $5 if unpaid within seven days under the new schedule late payment will cost $8.

Walters said the new fee schedule is more in line with what other Detroit-area communities charge for parking violations. Prior to the meeting, council member Paul Folino said the $1 fee was clearly too low. "All-day parking for $1 would be considered a bargain in a lot of places," he said.

Accounting error disguised size of city deficit

state rules, the bottom-line is no longer the bottom line," Walters said. "The new bottom-line is two or three lines higher on the page."

Fixing the mistake results in two different ways of handling the reserve accounts, with the franchise fees being used to fend off the deficit but the tax suit reserve being retained for that purpose.

Council decided last year that it no longer wished to reserve the cable TV franchise fees (set aside in hopes of applying it to some arts, library or cable-related project). Applying the $25,000 to the budget deficit reduced it to $335,000. The city managed to reserve $281,556 last year to apply toward the deficit — leaving $53,837 at year-end.

Walters had hoped to apply cable revenue fees (still reserved at the time) to eliminate the $18,000 difference between the mistaken deficit figure of $299,000 and last year's reserve-for-deficit of $281,000. But according to the audits, the cable TV fees had already been applied to the deficit.

With council on record that the $36,000 reserved for the Oakland County tax case would be returned to taxpayers one way or another (to Oakland taxpayers only if the case is won, to all city taxpayers if it is lost), Walters said he did not feel free to apply that figure to deficit reduction. It remains in this year's city budget as a general fund obligation.

Walters said he and Lennox had drafted budget amendments that will see the long-standing deficit (once as high as $500,000) eliminated in the 1985-86 fiscal year that began July 1.

The amendments approved by council Monday night show a $34,000 increase in projected revenues and a $20,000 decrease in projected expenditures compared with the budget approved at the end of May.

The major gain is made by nearly doubling the projected federal revenue sharing income expected in the city. When this year's budget was drafted, the talk from Washington, D.C. was that federal revenue sharing (FRS) to local governments would not be paid next year. It appears virtually certain now that FRS will be paid in the federal fiscal year beginning this October.

Thus Walters and Lennox could add $24,000 expected in FRS payments between this October and next June to the $26,800 already expected for the 1984-85 fiscal year between July and October.

The amended budget also projects an extra $10,000 in interest earnings on investments, raising that line item from a May projection of $55,000 to a new total of $65,000.

On the expenditure side, the savings are realized in two insurance programs that city officials learned in July would require lower payments than were budgeted. Reduced contribution requirements for municipal retirement programs saved $17,000 and the city's share of a municipal pool program for worker's compensation is $5,000 lower than had been projected.

Those savings are offset somewhat by a $2,000 added expense for purchase of an IBM personal computer (PC) instead of simply adding a terminal to the city's existing system. The projected $3,000 cost of a new terminal was bumped up to $5,000 when council decided in July to purchase the IBM PC instead.

The new bottom line shows $54,000 available to pay off the deficit — just enough to eliminate the $53,837 of red ink shown on the unaudited year-end report.

Compared to other recent years, the deficit being reported now is small. But it dimmed the good news that the city made $281,556 worth of headway last year.

Dimmed it enough that Walters felt it necessary to introduce the topic with the words: "I'm sorry."

Petitions seek improvement

township to form a sanitary sewer district. Temporary means until we get these township sewers installed."

City manager Steven Walters said further consideration of the temporary extension will be stalled until the receipt of a commitment to a timetable for township sewer construction.

"The concern was that it was opened," he said. "If the township comes back and commits to a special assessment district to be constructed in 1986, that would be all we'd need."

Water service to Doheny's new buildings will be provided by an extension from the nearby Highland Lakes complex. The new water main is constructed by Doheny at his expense. The township board last month approved a pay-back agreement providing for payments to Doheny if and when other properties are connected to the water extension he constructs.

Under the agreement, a portion of the water connection fee paid to the township by each new customer would be routed to Doheny to offset his costs for extending the water main from Highland Lakes. Customers of the water and sewer system face no added costs from the agreement.

Doheny's involvement in the water and sewer petition did not extend to the request for paving and storm drains — his properties are not included in the paving district. Doheny Drive is already paved and his properties drain into Lake Success, a portion of which is within Doheny's parcel.

"In the course of (circulating the sewer petition), some of the tenants down on Gerald said we should do something about paving," Doheny explained. "The township said it wouldn't do anything with paving unless there was already sanitary sewer, so one really follows the other."

Doheny said the growth of existing businesses and the potential for new development is the major impetus behind the petitions.

"The time had come," he said. "Gathering signatures wasn't difficult. It's the easiest thing, nearly everyone we approached asked how they could help. It was just a matter of someone getting it started."

Under an SAD, owners of property benefitting from the public improvements pay the costs of installation. If approved after several public hearings, establishment of an SAD would allow the township board to issue revenue bonds to fund construction of the improvements. Each property owner would then be assessed a share of the cost. The township ordinarily offers property owners a choice of paying the full assessment immediately or stretching payment over a period of time (usually 10-15 years) with interest charges determined by the rate established when bonds are sold.

Township Blotter

Arson is suspected

Township police and fire officials suspect arson was the cause of a July 30 fire in the recreation building on the former Wayne County Child Development Center property.

The fire, reported to township police at 9:45 p.m. July 30, caused an estimated $2,500 damage to the second floor of the facility.

Officers at the scene spoke with a witness who stated she was traveling on Sheldon Road when she observed flames in the upstairs window of the building.

The witness further noted she saw no one in the area at the time of the fire.

Chief Robert Toms of the township fire department told officers the fire was started four to five hours before reported.

Cause of the fire is undetermined.

A set of golf clubs valued at $1,500 was stolen from a bag rack at Brooklane Golf Course sometime between 4:45 and 5:15 p.m. August 2, township police report.

The complainant told police the clubs were in a bag rack on the north side of the building when the incident occurred.

Two dirt bikes valued at $165 each were stolen from the front yard of a Crystal Lake residence sometime between 7 and 9:30 p.m. July 31, township police report.

The two bicycles were parked in the front yard of the residence at the time the incident occurred.

Items valued at $374 were stolen from a 1982 Lincoln parked at Dun Rovin Golf Course sometime between 5:25 and 7:45 p.m. July 31, police report.

According to police, unknown subjects gained entry to the vehicle by breaking the passenger side window.

The complainant stated the subjects stole a radar detector valued at $290, eight cassette tapes worth approximately $64 and a $10 leather case.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $150.

A man's diamond wedding band valued at $330 was stolen from a Marilyn residence sometime between 4 p.m. July 6 and 6 p.m. July 8, township police report.

The complainant came to the township police station to report the wedding band had been stolen from a bedroom table in his home.

The complainant told police he had a party at his residence July 6 and suspects one of his guests may have taken the ring.

On the attack

Township fire chief Robert Toms demonstrates how his department's latest piece of firefighting equipment works. The "attack pumper" is designed to battle grass fires by laying down a heavy curtain of water from nozzles under the chassis while the four-wheel-drive vehicle is in motion. The pumper puts out a much heavier sheet of water than could be captured in this picture — heavy enough to obscure the truck from clear view. Record photo by Steve Fecht

Our Opinions

Bidding process needs re-evaluation

Only under most unusual conditions could anyone sit still for the strange series of events leading up to the selection of a contractor for the city's water tank repair project. As was detailed in last week's Record, the city had to eliminate the low bidder, excuse the second low bidder and allow the third low bidder to adjust his price downward weeks after the bids had been opened.

Either an extraordinary coincidence or a leak of information resulted in two potential contractors re-bidding prices within $40 of each other on a job that initially saw a difference of $30,000 between them. Moreover, the low bidder was released from its obligation to perform at the bid price without sacrificing the bond posted to assure compliance. Altogether, the sequence of events leading up to the award of a contract is clearly questionable.

Individually, each step in the process is out-of-line with prudent practice. Viewing the situation as a whole, however, it appears that the city followed the only course available. Time restraints and the risks of following other alternatives suggest that any other action would be more costly. The result, however, is to cast doubt on the bidding process. While supporting council's action, we urge a re-evaluation of procedures to insure that the city doesn't find itself backed into such a corner again.

One factor that forced the city's hand was time: repair of the water tank must be finished in August so painting can start in September. While funds for the project were not available until the current fiscal year (July 1), the city has known for years that the job was waiting. It should have been evident months ago that money would be available this fiscal year. Bids normally are required to hold for 90 days, and making the city's obligation contingent on the availability of funds is not unusual either. City officials ought to be asking if it wouldn't have been possible to award a contract as much as six weeks earlier.

It might also be time to evaluate the requirements for the posting of bid bonds. In this instance, the requirement was for five percent of the amount bid. Ten percent is often required and the greater potential collection might alter the equation when considering whether or not to claim the bond when a contractor fails to perform at the bid price.

Another complication, and one for which we have no quick-and-ready answer, is that bids on this project were open-ended estimates. Some number of welds, as yet undetermined but projected at 15,000, will be required to fix the leaky tank. Potential contractors bid a "per weld" estimate, with final cost of the contract to be determined by the number of welds actually needed.

While we understand the allure of the idea that final costs might come in lower than the estimate if fewer welds are needed, it doesn't take any particular genius to calculate the odds in favor of cost over-runs on government projects. It might have been worth the added cost to do more in-depth research so that more specific bid requirements could be written (i.e. requiring a flat rate price for 13,000-17,000 welds with a pro-rated allowance for any in excess of 17,000).

Altering any one of these conditions might have saved the council some grief and, possibly, the taxpayers some money. Handed a lemon, council made lemonade. That was good as far as it went, but it is incumbent on city leaders to make sure it doesn't happen again.

Challengers keep incumbents honest

With city council nominating petitions being made available this week, voters should hope a wide range of candidates make themselves available for consideration. Those accustomed to a free flow of ideas during an election season must share our discouragement with the usually somnolent state of city politics.

Quiet political scenes can be interpreted in several ways. One would be to say voters are satisfied with what they have, or at least that the government has done nothing to make anyone angry enough to try to change things. Another interpretation is that voters are simply apathetic — they don't care how the government operates or who runs it. Something else may be at work here. Northville has a peculiar attitude about incumbents — a simple declaration that an incumbent is seeking re-election or election to a vacancy higher up the chain of command is usually enough to insure an uncontested walkaway. We find the reluctance among potential candidates to run against an incumbent a frustrating and puzzling attitude.

In a sense, there are two council positions and the mayor's job "open" every two years. No elected official gets, needs or deserves a lifetime appointment. Yet if no one challenges their re-election bids, that is precisely what they get. Surely those waiting for the rare vacancy to come along think they can do as good or better a job than the present leaders. If so, why not give voters the real choice of continuing with the government as it is or making changes?

For all its accomplishments (and we mean no disregard for the considerable gains made), we believe Northville City Council is long overdue for some new blood, some fresh ideas, a different perspective from the one that has dominated for so long. Even the best of us grow stale if not prodded into new ways of thinking from time to time. The least-experienced council member, Carolann Ayers, has served six years now. The latest-elected is Paul Folino (who filled out an unexpired term and was re-elected two years ago). He has served on council prior to a hiatus ensuing after a lost bid for the mayoralty.

We're hoping to see candidates in this year's city elections who exhibit sufficient gumption to challenge the established order. Such candidates would be doing city voters a service by holding incumbents' feet to the fire. In the absence of a challenge, we believe, elected officials can and do become arrogant, less respectful of the citizenry and close-minded. Wise people guard against those tendencies in themselves, but it is only the extraordinary few who can do it when all the evidence suggests they are invincible. Even in those instances in which an incumbent warrants re-election, the challenger is a key element in making our system work. Northville sees far too few of them.

A lesson in reality

By Kevin Wilson

"I think I can speak for everyone in my subdivision when I say we'd like less of everything."

Those words were spoken by a concerned resident at a Northville Township Planning Commission meeting, but they could have come out of any such meeting in any of the fast-growing suburban communities in the metropolitan area.

The target of this comment was a proposed change in the township's master plan of land use that would accommodate the pressure for commercial development along Haggerty Road where it is nearest to I-275. But the target could have been anything suggesting continued growth: a rezoning request, a site plan for a new apartment complex adjacent to a subdivision, announcement of a new shopping center opening.

Community planning is a mainstay of suburban newspaper coverage. From a reporter's standpoint, it often makes for good copy as the interests of people like the homeowner quoted above contrast with those of owners of nearby as-yet-undeveloped land.

It also provides some astonishing quotes. Without meaning disrespect for the legitimate fears of the homeowner quoted above, it should be noted that he hails from one of the township's newer subdivisions. The no-growth philosophy he advocates would have left his property part of a wild field, contributing to the "rural atmosphere" he suddenly wants to protect. That few self-important homeowners can even perceive the irony evident to everyone else just makes it more astounding. Managing editor Phil Jerome tells me his all-time favorite quote from a Novi official is this: "The last person to move to Novi wants to be just that — the last person to move to Novi."

The cruel fact that seems to keep such people on edge is that if you want to be surrounded by vacant land, you have to buy it. That big field next to your subdivision belongs to someone, who has certain rights regarding what can be done with it. If it is zoned for multiple-family housing, you can count on an apartment or condominium complex coming in no matter how much you paid for your property next door. Which is why a prudent purchaser checks the surrounding zoning before dropping a bundle on a house.

What few buyers seem willing to confront is the news that buying a one-acre lot gives one a right to control one acre. It puzzles me. It seems amply evident to anyone that a house in a subdivision is suburban, not rural, in character. The old farm house that used to occupy the subdivision property was rural. No one would buy that old house, or could afford to buy it at the price the owner was asking. But many people wanted to buy houses in the subdivision. For a group that votes in such profusion along conservative Republican lines, there are an awful lot of people who protest the simple workings of market forces.

If the blind spot regarding a property owner's right to build on his property (and that the right applies whether one intends to live on the parcel or not) is puzzling, it is compounded when the same people mutter complaints about all the taxes they pay and the lack of services. The plain and simple truth of the matter is that governments have an interest in development since it brings in added tax revenue without raising the rate charged to other taxpayers. And those taxes pay for services. The big store on the corner pays far more taxes than the homeowner, most of the money goes to the school district, and the store doesn't send one kid into the schools.

Do the reporters and the government officials who deal with this stuff on a daily basis a favor — press for good planning that minimizes the conflict among various land uses. Holler good and loud if someone tries to build a blight on the landscape, keep an eye on the density of development and how it affects traffic and public utilities. But spare us the complaint that you want your subdivision to be surrounded by woods and fields. If that's what you want, buy the woods and fields. But don't be surprised if the asking price is equal to what the owner could make by putting in 150 new houses.

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

"Joyce told me a funny story that happened to a friend of hers," she said one night as we sat down for supper.

"It seems that her friend has a pair of pet geese who she calls 'the guys.'"

"What's so unusual about that?" I asked.

"That's not unusual. I didn't say it was an 'unusual' story. I said it was a 'funny' story, and if you'll give me a chance I'll finish it."

"Well, it seems this friend is also taking an aerobics class with a bunch of her neighbors this summer. One of the neighbors has a swimming pool, so the ladies in the class put on their bathing suits twice a week and do their aerobics out by the pool."

"Well, one morning they're doing their aerobics when one of the ladies notices the geese are heading out toward the highway. So she tells the other lady she'd better rescue them."

"And the lady with the geese goes running out in the front yard wearing her bathing suit, waving her hands and yelling, 'Hey, guys. Get back here right now.'"

"I still don't see what's so funny," I admitted. But she told me I was interrupting again, and if I'd just give her a chance she would finish the story.

"Well, what she didn't realize is that there's a bunch of workmen out fixing the road. And when they saw her come running around the corner of the house in her bathing suit, waving and yelling, 'Hey, guys. Get back here right now,' they started waving and yelling back."

"She just about died from embarrassment."

"Geez, that is kind of a funny story," I acknowledged. "I think I'm going to use it for next week's column."

"Don't you dare," she warned. "The poor woman has already been through enough humiliation."

"It'll be alright," I assured her. "I'll conceal the identities so nobody can figure out who it is. The only ones who'll know are the ladies in the aerobics class. Of course, they may kill me. But community journalism requires a certain amount of risk-taking."

Far from Peace on Earth

by Pat Bowling

The first week of August may seem a peculiar time to recall a special Christmas Eve, but this particular December 24th always comes to mind about this time of year.

It was quite an unusual Christmas Eve in 1981. I had spent much of the day — seven hours, in fact — on a train meandering its way along the southwestern coast of Japan. I remember enjoying the solitude of traveling alone as I gazed out over farmland and fishing villages. I felt adventuresome, ready to put a mere four months of language study to the test.

It was mid-afternoon when we pulled into Hiroshima station. With a confident stride, I set out to explore the city. My confidence soon lapsed, however, and I decided to hail a cab rather than continue trying to figure out my crumpled map. "Peace-u Park-u," I told the cabbie, adding the appropriate vowels for a Japanese pronunciation of Peace Park, my desired destination.

After scolding me mildly for traveling alone, he whipped down several side streets and arrived at the park entrance. I exited the cab to find myself directly in front of the fragmented shell of the Hiroshima Industrial Promotion Hall, now known as the A-Bomb Dome. It was one of the few structures left standing on August 6, 1945, after the explosion of the first atomic bomb.

I tried to imagine the entire area surrounding the dome ravaged by the blast, but I could not. The dome had a peaceful blue sky and the clean lines of modern high-rise architecture as its backdrop now. The scene left an impression, but one that I feared would fade.

I snapped a few pictures, carefully framing the ruins with the contemporary skyline in the background, then hurried on to the Peace Memorial Museum. I balked at the gift shop inside the entrance, wondering what on earth they could be selling, other than postcards of the well-landscaped monuments I had just skirted.

I began my walk through the small museum, wondering if the Japanese tourists viewing the same exhibits were taking note of the presence of an American. I felt somewhat ill at ease.

Peering through the glass display cases, there was no longer any need to draw on my imagination for an image of this city as it appeared 40 years ago. There before me was a reproduction of the city as it looked on Monday morning, August 6, 1945, after the bomb exploded 1,850 feet above the Honkawa Elementary School. For the first time, I had a sense of the destruction.

I remember only a few of the glass-enclosed objects I viewed after that; a watch stopped at exactly 8:16, a clump of hair, the shredded uniforms of elementary children, a scorched bookbag. Pictures were displayed showing the grotesque defects developed by those who survived but suffered chronic illnesses caused by radiation.

I felt a strange numbness as I left the museum. In school I had been taught the bomb was dropped to end the war. "My God," I thought as I walked toward the arch-shaped stone cenotaph at the center of the park, "there must have been another way, a better way."

I paused at each of the monuments on my way out of the park. Thousands of multi-colored paper cranes made by school children hang from one monument that is dedicated to the children that perished in the bombing. According to an old Japanese belief, cranes can live for 1,000 years. The tradition of folding 1,000 paper cranes as a gift for someone who is hospitalized continues to be a gesture symbolizing health and long life.

I took several more pictures when I returned to the site of the A-Bomb Dome. I can distinguish these in my photo album from the ones I took when I entered the park. They are close-ups of the gaping windows and twisted metal sticking out from the walls of the dome. They are not framed artfully with trees or contemporary buildings in the background. They are my reminder of the numbness I felt in a museum filled with relics of death and destruction, and of an odd Christmas Eve that I will always remember during the first week in August.

Competency hearing rates suspects in hospital killing

A hearing to determine whether three state mental patients are competent to stand trial for the May killing of Greg Helzerman at Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital was scheduled at 3:30 p.m. on August 6.

The hearing, to begin at 1:30 p.m. and not expected to finish until after the Record went to press, follows more than 60 days of psychiatric evaluation at the Department of Mental Health's forensic center in Ypsilanti.

Judge James Garber was to hear the results of those evaluations and testimony from various experts for both the prosecution and defense. If Garber finds the men competent to stand trial, they will face homicide charges brought after state police investigation. If found incompetent, the patients would be returned to the forensic center for periodic re-evaluation.

Department of Mental Health psychiatrists reported that two of the three patients allegedly involved in the killing should be capable of assisting in their own defense. Robert T. Foley, the man police charge was the leader in the beating and suffocation of Helzerman, is one of the two.

Helzerman was killed Memorial Day weekend while he rested in a "quiet room" on the NRPH young adult ward. DMH fired four staff members and disciplined three others it found responsible for a lack of supervision on the ward.

Most of the employees are contesting the disciplinary measures and firings.

DO YOU NEED TO LOSE 100 LBS.?

—WEIGHT REDUCTION—

Why Do Most Programs Fail?

Because the major focus is on initial weight loss, the scale becomes the focal point. Little concern is given to specific individual needs necessary for the long term maintenance of weight loss and a healthy life style.

The Sensible Approach

The institute's weight control and obesity/risk factor management programs emphasize the individuality and complexity of each case. We stress that participants are required to exert a serious effort to change their life styles. Along with medical supervision by a licensed physician each participant will receive behavioral training, nutritional counseling and individualized exercise planning. The ultimate goal is to provide each participant with the resources to maintain their weight loss for the rest of their lives.

Multidisciplinary Weight Reduction Programs:

- Average weight loss over 72 lbs.
- The range: 10 to 450 lbs.
- Follow up data show that 60% maintain their weight during 1 year period.

What's more important current scientific literature and patient data show significant beneficial changes in blood pressure, blood sugar, cholesterol and other serious risk factors.

The institute's weight control and obesity/risk factor management programs can best be characterized as carefully monitored, multidisciplinary programs employing contemporary scientifically sound methods to help each individual identify and achieve his or her health goals.

John Luke has bikes for recreation or competition at his store in Milford

Business is 'going uphill' at bicycle shop in Milford

By THERESE PETERSMARK

The bicycle business is going uphill. At least it is at Milford's new bicycle shop called (what else?) The Milford Bicycle Shop.

The establishment has been opened since May 1 and John Luke, owner and manager of the store, is confident about sales.

"Business is revitalized," Luke said. According to Luke, more people than ever are buying bikes. He said the reason for the increase is because more people are using them "for a need and not just for recreation."

"People who buy bikes use them to stay in shape or for competition purposes," he said.

Luke also said the newly-opened store has experienced an increase particularly in the sales of technically-advanced bicycles.

The most popular of the technically-advanced bicycles are the "all terrain bikes." These bikes are ready to go over what the name says, all terrain. They're made for traveling over dirt roads and through rough areas.

"They're a trendy bike," Luke said. "These bikes are becoming more popular in our sales."

According to Luke, more people who ride bikes in races and other kinds of competition choose the bikes because they're made to stand this type of surface more than other bikes.

The prices for "all terrains" range from $150 to $750.

"It all depends on what type of bike you're looking for and what your needs are," Luke said.

The shop also carries brand names like Panasonic, Mongoose, GT, which is a brand of the MX bike, and Takara.

"We have all four main brands that go to 20 speeds," Luke said. "Although the highest we usually sell is 18."

Panasonic, their main brand, is available in 30 different types of bikes at the store.

Luke said the store is stressing its sales in Panasonic because of the good reputation the brand name has behind it.

"It also will help us take the small-town approach to business by standing behind what we sell," Luke said.

Luke said part of the reason for opening a bike shop in Milford is because the stores take a "small town approach" to business and that, he feels, is the only way to keep customers happy.

At Milford's Bicycle Shop there's still more to their sales. Luke said salespeople spend time with customers to find out what their needs are and try to find a bike that will meet those needs.

The Milford Bicycle Shop also deals in special orders to fit people properly. Luke said the proper fit of a bike is extremely important and, too often, people ride bikes that are too big or too small for them and make extra work for themselves.

Another part of Milford's Bicycle Shop is a bike repair service. They do service on bikes that are bought both in or out of the store.

"We want to make sure everyone comes out happy," he said.

One customer who apparently came out happy was Lorie Pechette. Pechette recently bought three all terrain bikes at Milford's Bicycle Shop.

"I didn't end up spending a lot of money on a bike," Pechette said. She also said Luke helped her decide what type of bike would be most appropriate, and that high cost and a good bike doesn't necessarily go hand-in-hand.

Business Briefs

DeLAMILLEURE & DeLAMILLEURE, a law firm, has opened offices in Novi in the Michigan National Bank Building at 24101 Novi Road.

The firm is operated by brothers Richard and Joseph DeLamielleure, who have a combined total of 38 years in the legal profession.

Richard J. DeLamielleure attended the University of Michigan on an athletic/academic scholarship, graduating with a BA degree with a concentration in Economics in 1961. He attended the University of Michigan Law School on an academic scholarship and graduated with honors in 1964. He also was a member of the University of Michigan Law Review. He was admitted to practice in the State of Michigan and the Federal Courts in January 1965.

He played minor league baseball for the Minnesota Twins and resides with his wife and five children in Ann Arbor.

Ronald DeLamielleure attended the University of Notre Dame, graduating cum laude with a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in 1959. He obtained a Master of Education degree from Wayne State University in 1965 and earned his Juris Doctor degree from Detroit College of Law in 1968. He was admitted to the practice of law in Michigan and the Federal Courts in 1968 and was admitted to practice before the U.S. Supreme Court in 1972. He is an arbitrator for the Attorney Grievance Commission, State Bar of Michigan and a member of the Novi Chamber of Commerce.

He played freshman baseball and was a boxer for three years at the University of Notre Dame. He and his wife, Sandra, reside in Canton with their two children.

The firm decided to locate in Novi because it considers the city a growing, dynamic community.

DeLamielleure & DeLamielleure's areas of practice include personal injury, real estate, business law, corporations, wills/probate, divorce/domestic relations, drunk driving, license restoration. The office number is 349-2977.

CADILLAC ASPHALT Paving Company of Novi was the low bidder on a major project of the Michigan Department of Transportation — the reconstruction of 3.5 miles of US-24 (Telegraph Road) in Dearborn and Dearborn Heights.

Cadillac's low bid of $4,048,130 announced June 24 must be approved by the State Administrative Board.

THE ANDERSONS of Maumee, Ohio, have welcomed Turfgrass, Inc. of South Lyon as the newest distributor of its lawn care products. The addition of Turfgrass, which serves lawn care professionals throughout the state of Michigan, brings to 30 the number of firms in the Andersons' distribution network.

Turfgrass is owned and operated by Gene Johanningsmeier, who established the business in 1970.

"Turfgrass will be a tremendous asset to The Andersons' distribution system because of the scope of the area it can serve and because of the professional knowledge and expertise of Gene Johanningsmeier and his staff," said Bob Scobee, Professional Products Sales Manager for The Andersons Lawn Fertilizer Division.

Johanningsmeier has been involved in the Michigan turf care business for 26 years. His firm has built an excellent reputation in the industry. Working with Johanningsmeier in the Turfgrass business are his wife, Barbara, and two sons, Doug and Keith, both of whom have academic backgrounds in turf management and broad field experience.

Turfgrass now is coordinating product delivery, sales and stocking of the Andersons' Tee Time products for customers in the Michigan area.

The Andersons is a diversified agribusiness headquartered in Maumee. The company's Lawn Fertilizer Division serves the professional lawn care industry in a 35-state area from the Rocky Mountains to the east coast.

In addition to lawn fertilizer production and marketing, the firm's other businesses include grain merchandising; agricultural fertilizing blending and distribution; corn cob milling; wholesale distribution of seeds, chemicals and farm supplies; and retail mass merchandising.

Oakland coalition aims to end turf wars

A new coalition of private and government representatives has been launched in Oakland County aimed at boosting economic recovery and stimulating new business.

Its first chairman predicted the organization would serve to solidify interests and reduce "turfdom battles" over where a particular plant should be located.

Called the Oakland County Community Growth Alliance, the 40-member advisory and planning body is a response to action by the Michigan State Department of Commerce. The state encouraged 30 of these groups to form across Michigan to stir regional development.

In Oakland County, representatives come mostly from local governments, local EDCs (economic development corporations) and local chambers of commerce with some members from colleges, universities, businesses and utilities. Two members represent labor (the UAW and AFL-CIO).

"The concept here is to set aside individual concerns and look at the county's needs. If we can do that, then I think we can get something done," said Philip J. Meagher, the Oakland County's first chairman and executive director of the Southfield Chamber of Commerce.

"The aim is to unify the state," he said. "One reason the state developed this program was to do away with a divide-and-conquer approach. A certain amount of competition between local communities has to exist, but there's a point where it's self-defeating."

"If Auburn Hills, for instance, can't sell a particular high-tech plant, why shouldn't some other part of the state be aware of its interest? It's for everyone's advantage."

County Executive Daniel T. Murphy praised the group's formation and its effort to "consolidate the efforts of the hundred local economic development organizations in the county, as well as the state."

Representatives met for the first time in an organizational meeting in July and elected officers. Besides Meagher, other elected officers include vice chairwoman Patricia Lewis of the Greater Rochester Chamber of Commerce and secretary Robert C. Dieball of Waterford Township.

Joseph Joachim, director of the Oakland County Economic Development Group, is the group's non-voting executive director.

He said there are 26 separate EDCs, quasi-governmental groups that issue industrial revenue bonds in Oakland County, and some have different initiating programs on their own.

The new group will help them by providing information and coordinating projects, Joachim said. It will have no hired staff, but will receive staff support from the county's Economic Development Group.

In addition to increased cooperation among county agencies, he said the group will work to spot duplication of efforts and help pool resources.

Joachim said the alliance has four key goals:

- To develop the area by retaining and attracting business.
- To establish a small business assistance program with a possible center for this purpose.
- To develop a procurement center where information on government contracts at federal and state levels would be made available to local small businesses. Currently, interested local businesspeople are referred to a center operated by the Downriver Community Conference. Oakland County had one years ago, but it was abandoned for lack of money, Joachim said.

• To develop "incubator facilities" to nurture new businesses. Such centers subsidize new businesses by providing business space and some clerical staff until the business is running, he said.

When John Deere builds an economy rider, only the price is stripped down.

Cornfields

Acres and acres of cornfields, standing tall like soldiers growing the ground below.
The small green stalks grow and mature, eventually bearing arms, yellow ears of corn.
Then the stalks grow old and brown
as they begin to dry.
It is time for harvesting.
The golden stalks no longer dance
in the wind.
Fall is near.

Gayle Billingsley

Pressure

My mind is an empty room.
A cold room with no furniture.
A small window located to the side is always shut.
Sometimes I live in this room, in the Farthest corner, looking toward the window
I shiver like a dog just let in from the storm.
It is raining outside, rain the weight
Of expected obligations and demanding responsibilities.
I am in the room, but I can still Feel the rain, its sting, its pressure.

—Pam Fisher

Freedom

I am not a slave living on a ball and chain carried by a master's hands, as if I was a blind man's leader dog
Made to do something on command, when they want.

You may feel, hear, taste, smell, see, but that's not a free life: you're a fly in a jar with air holes, living someone else's life, no decisions to make for yourself.

Not me! I'm a poet, choosing my own words, doing what I want, when I want.
No one chooses my words for me, people don't make me feel what I feel.

I am myself,
living my own life.

—Pam Fisher

Teddy Bear Love

Teddy bear love is a special love
Unconditional in every way
There for you at all times
At any given time or day.

Teddy bear's are centuries old
Created in Europe with special hands
For children to hold and cuddle
Then made popular in other lands.

Do you remember your first teddy bear?
And the way you felt when he was near
You knew he was your best friend
Stronger than your greatest fear.

At night when it thundered and stormed
And I peered out the bedroom blind
I would have gotten up and ran
But he was warm and safe and kind.

The day of my first big dance
He sat looking me in the eye
A little worn with a tear in his arm
We had secrets, him and I!

When no one else could understand
He was the closest kind of friend
Tattered or older, I loved him so
Around life's road we'd bend.

I see him reflecting in my mirror
All the memorable days gone by
I see him as part of my future
A love that will never die.

Have you experienced teddy bear love?
Inanimate but alive and real
Comfortable as your favorite shoes
The coldest heart he'll steal.

Joanna Dorf

With a Thought About Creation

With a thought about creation
I spent a pensive day
Reflecting on all God's works and the image of man's array.

The snowflake and its magical wonder
Each with its own intricate design
The Christmas trees with their sparkle
And the scent of fresh and wooded pine.

Water life so mysterious and deep
The porpoise, starfish, and whale
Sea shells, coral, and sand
And the winds shifting gale.

Did we not fashion our air flight
From the wings of birds and fowl?
As they soar toward heaven above
And down again to the earth below.

Is there a million types of plants
Each unusual and different too
Leaning toward life in the sun
And bathing in the morning dew.

Can we duplicate the colors of flowers
When they are wet from a raindrop's tear?
Or try to count a million stars
On a moonlit night so fresh and clear.

We cannot interfere with His plan
When destiny designs those we meet to teach, inspire, or lend a hand along the road we must complete.

The inventor was surely a genius
Moving swiftly as does the spirit of God
Going forth and giving to all nations
These gifts from his heavenly abode.

I, too, must be part of your creation
And what is it that I should do?
To harmonize with the others
In laud and praise of my creator, you!

—JoAnna Dorf

Dawn

Time and sunlight cascade together within the early morning hours.
The dove calls her gentle tune, breaking the stillness, her lone figure perched high in the trees
as if she alone, owned the world in all of its mighty expanse.

G Finding your way along the Grapevine

A novice's guide to the World of Wine

By MICHELE M. FECHT
staff writer

For the infrequent wine buyer, a stroll through aisles filled with German Kabinetts, Napa Valley Zinfandel and French Bordeaux can be more than a little intimidating.

However, before anxiety has you reaching for the California Coolers or the "two-for one" bin, consider a word of advice from the proprietor behind the counter.

With wine consumption increasing at a fast and furious pace in this country, liquor shop and party store owners are stocking their shelves with everything from Eastern European and Spanish wines to vintage bottles of Chateau Lafite Rothschild and Dom Perignon.

Therefore, it is not surprising that local shop owners Jim Roth of Good Time Party Store, Morey Jergis of The Vintage Wine Shoppe and Jim Spagnuolo of The Liquor Shoppe had more than a few words to say on the subject.

For Morey Jergis, who started out making wine in his father's shop in Bagdad, "recommending wine is more like a hobby."

Jergis, who has been at his Ten Mile and Meadowbrook location seven years, helped man his father's three wine shops before coming to the United States 18 years ago.

Having owned shops in both Ann Arbor and West Bloomfield before moving to Novi, Jergis says he has catered to different clienteles in each area.

Noting that Ann Arborites — particularly students — would easily spend $20-$30 for a bottle of wine and that the well-heeled West Bloomfield crowd bought out most of his $85 1975 vintage Dom Perignon, Jergis says the majority of his local customers are looking for the quality wines in the $5 to $10 range.

"I give them the best for less," he notes, adding that price along with name recognition and impressive labels often have little to do with the contents of the bottle.

Though the majority of his stock is in the French, Italian and German wines, Jergis says he also carries large quantities of California wines, particularly Zinfandel, which he notes is gaining widespread appeal among wine drinkers.

In addition, Jergis says he frequently recommends Greek, Romanian and Spanish wines — particularly Spanish champagnes which currently are considered among the best on the market.

Premiat from Romania also is a good buy at under $3 per bottle.

For those looking for a good jug wine, Jergis recommends Inglenook, Almaden or Robert Mondavi.

He notes that "with more people getting into wine every day," it is imperative that shop owners know about the products they're selling.

"Always ask," Jergis advises novice buyers, noting that row after row of reds, whites and roses can be mind boggling.

He says the inexperienced wine drinker most often finds the German wines — particularly Liebfraumilch and Piesporter — more appealing than the dry whites or reds.

He notes the German wines from the regions of Spatlese or Auslese are considered among the best.

For anyone looking at the reds, Jergis suggests checking the vintage with the shop owner to make sure the wine is not too young to drink.

For the customer looking to buy wines in quantity, Jergis offers a 10 percent discount per case (mix or match). He also will order wine (as long as it is sold in Michigan) with two to three days notice.

Jim Spagnuolo has completely remodeled the store founded by his grandfather on downtown Northville's Main Street to blend with the town's turn of the century look, and also has increased his stock of wines. He says his customers today drink more wine than in the past.

"People are breaking away from hard liquor," he notes, "and wine has become very popular. Other than that, wine is a fun experience."

His customers are changing to wines for this experience, he says, as he cites a white zinfandel from California, Charles la Franc as a typical one "to drink anytime."

This, he explains, is a pleasant tasting white wine with pale blush color that's "good all around, not necessary to drink with a meal but excellent with cheese and crackers." It's a reasonable $5.59.

For people looking for accompaniments for specific main dishes wine shop owners can help. Spagnuolo, for example, chooses Kenwood Sonoma County (California) Sauvignon Blanc, "which has a dry finish and straw color," as excellent with poached salmon.

As an excellent accompaniment for a hearty steak, Spagnuolo says he recommends a 1980 California wine from Alexander Valley, Jordan estate bottled Cabernet Sauvignon. "It's a dry red wine, very well balanced," he notes.

Among the French wines, Spagnuolo stocks and recommends the dry, French Chateaufort du pape, which, he adds, means "new home of the pope."

As he recommends the black-bottled Sandeman founders reserve port from Portugal, Spagnuolo mentions that "port is just now coming into its own with people as they enjoy it at the end of a meal instead of cordials."

He adds that his recommendation is "a good port at a reasonable price — while it's not a vintage port (which would cost $30 and up) it's a good port at $13.59.

Tucked along the bend on Seven Mile at Northville Road, the unpretentious facade of Good Time Party Store belies an interior containing row after row of Cabernet, Zinfandel, Chardonnay and Riesling.

Recognizing his "well educated" clientele, proprietor Jim Roth says his wine stock reflects the eclectic tastes of his customers.

Like Jergis, Roth points out that the "per capita consumption of wine is increasing," making it necessary for shop owners to not only increase their stock but diversify their selection.

Some recommended stops along the 'road'

Recommended by Dennis Cassady:

1. (Champagne) Chandon Blanc de Noir, California, $12-$14. Blush-pink tinge made from Pinot Noir grape.
2. Beringer Chenin Blanc, vintage, $7. Soft, white wine to complement chicken or seafood.
3. Chablis Premier Cru, 1975-80 vintage, $8-$11. Dry, complex white to go with turkey.
4. Chateau Montelena Cabernet Sauvignon, 1973-76 vintage, $15. Dry red for duck or lamb.
5. Grand Coronas Reserva, 1974-76 vintage, $10. Smooth with a lot of fruit to go with filet mignon or prime rib.

Recommended by Jim Spagnuolo:

1. Kenwood, Sonoma County (California) Sauvignon blanc, 1984, $9.39.
2. Clos des Papes Chateaufort from France, 1982, $11.19.
3. Sandeman Founders Reserve Port to from Portugal, $13.59. To end a meal.
4. Cabernet Sauvignon, Jordan Estate 1980, California, $21.69.
5. Charles la Franc California white zinfandel, $5.59. Good, anytime, especially with cheese and crackers.

Recommended by Jim Roth:

1. Champagne) Freixenet Cordon Negro, $6-$7.
2. Louis Dupre Vouvray, $4.99-$6.99. From the Loire Valley region, light white wine.
3. Winger Domgarten Riesling, $5. Soft white, low in calories.
4. Charles LeFranc White Zinfandel, 1984, $5.49. Light, on the fruity side.
5. Pineau des Charentes, $10. After-dinner wine of pure grape juice with a hint of cognac.

Recommended by Morey Jergis:

1. (Champagne) Moet & Chandon, extra dry, $18-20.
2. Kendermann Piesporter Goldtropfchen Spatlese, $12.
3. Nicholas Pouilly-Fuisse, $16.
4. Barton & Guestier Vouvray, $6.99.
5. Saint-Emilion (Barton & Guestier) Cabernet Sauvignon, $9.89.

How to choose along the grapevine

"People buy pretty widespread," he notes. "However, dollar-wise I would say more is bought in imports."

To keep abreast of what is happening in the wine market, Roth says he does a lot of reading as well as works with the French, Italian and Portuguese consultants.

Roth also says he relies on the recommendations of regular buyers who know their wines.

He notes that while the wine market constantly changes, some of the most popular wines sold in his shop are the German Liebfraumilch and Piesporter Goldtropfchen.

"The whites have always stayed big," he says, adding that another "one people are really beginning to enjoy is the white Zinfandel from California."

Aside from the French, Italian and German imports, Roth says some of the best buys on the market are Yugoslavian, Australian and Spanish wines — particularly the Spanish wines from the Rioja region.

While table wines are the staple of his wine market, Roth notes that champagnes and after-dinner wines also are gaining an audience. In champagnes, Roth notes the Spanish Freixenet Cordon Negro at $6-$7 a bottle is an excellent value. For an after-dinner wine he recommends Pineau des Charentes — a pure grape juice with a hint of cognac ($10 a bottle) or Japanese Fuki plum wine ($3-$7) served over crushed ice.

Roth notes that while many people tend to shy away from Michigan-produced wines because of the after-taste, "some are coming on a lot better." He recommends Good Harbor, produced in Leelanau, as one of the better state-produced wines.

While shop owners may have the inside track on the wine market, nearly all would agree the consumer with a knowledge of wines can be a valuable asset when stocking a shop.

Among the well-educated clientele referred to by Jim Roth is local connoisseur Dennis Cassidy.

A wine hobbyist, Cassidy has hosted wine tastings for such groups as the Northville Historical Society, and was a former buyer for a local liquor shop.

'Labels mean nothing — you don't have to spend a lot'

— Dennis Cassidy
Wine hobbyist

Though he admits his first exposure to the world of wine was making home brew with a couple fraternity brothers in college, Cassidy now is considered a resident expert.

An antique oak freezer housed in the living room of his Northville home contains wines reflective of Cassidy's discerning tastes — from the 1972 Australian Cabernet Sauvignon to a 1973 Chateau Mouton Rothschild.

"I usually keep a supply of about 50 wines," Cassidy notes. "Usually reds." Cassidy, who began studying wines about eight years ago, says he's gained most of his knowledge from reading.

"I buy a lot of literature," he notes. "You have to read a lot."

Among the guides Cassidy recommends is Hugh Johnson's Pocket Encyclopedia of Wine (Simon and Schuster, $8.95). He also notes that wine columns in food sections of newspapers or magazines such as Gourmet or Bon Appetit are good reference guides on the latest wine trends.

Cassidy also suggests writing to vineyards such as Inglenook or Gallo, which will send information pertaining to mixing wines and food, grape varieties, etc.

However, he notes that one of the best guides in selecting wine is the shop proprietor.

According to Cassidy, the first rule of thumb for the novice buyer is: "Don't be intimidated."

Cassidy says many inexperienced buyers will make the mistake of opting for the high price tag or the interesting label.

"Labels mean nothing," Cassidy emphasizes, adding that a higher price also does not guarantee a better wine.

"A novice can fill up a wine cellar buying all vintage wines for $5 to $6 a bottle," he notes.

"You don't have to spend a lot," he adds, noting the best bargains for red wines currently on the market are those from Spain — particularly from the Rioja region.

"For that type of wine, dollar for dollar it is the best value," he says.

"Wines from Italy are the second best value," Cassidy notes, adding that Spanish and Italian wines marked "reserva" are considered top quality because they are stored longer in wooden barrels.

"As far as white wines go, a good value is some of the German Cabernets," he says. "The prices come down on those."

He also notes the Vouvray (from the Loire region in France) also "are a good bet."

Cassidy explains that some of the best values currently on the market are wines coming out of Algeria, Yugoslavia, Romania and Bulgaria. Most are selling for $2.50-$3.50 a bottle.

He notes that some Premiat wines from Romania are "exceptional quality for the price."

Among the wines growing in demand is the Chardonnay, Cassidy says, noting that it's become California's second most popular wine other than Cabernet.

"It's tough to find one under $8," he adds.

Though he noted California "very seldom has a bad vintage," Cassidy said the quality of the California wine is varied.

On the other hand, he said the French may have a bad season because they lack the technology of their California counterparts.

In the area of champagne, Cassidy notes those from Spain are the best value.

He also recommends Chandon Brut (about $14 a bottle) which he describes as "probably the best California champagne."

While Roth, Jergis, Spagnuolo and Cassidy can provide some local expert guidance for finding your way along the grapevine, all agree the true test of a good wine is what appeals to the buyer.

Teri Bongiovanni married at St. Paul's

A wedding trip to Florida followed the marriage of Teri Francis Bongiovanni of Northville and John Jude Wozniak of Westland.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Delores Barber of Northville and Eugene Bongiovanni of Highland. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Dorothy Wozniak of Westland and the late John Wozniak.

The Reverend Charles F. Boerger officiated at the double ring service at 4 p.m. May 18 at St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

During the service Laura Santos sang the "Wedding Song" accompanied by organist Warren Zabell. Phil Benstein played the "Trumpet Voluntary" and "Trumpet Tune." Mothers of the couple were presented with yellow roses in the ceremony.

The bride's gown of Chantilly lace and matte taffeta was fashioned with a scalloped neckline with pearl beading on the yoke. A gathered skirt below the dropped waistline extended into a chapel train. A Juliet cap of matching Chantilly lace held her fingertip illusion veil.

All-white silk roses, carnations, stephanotis and baby's-breath formed the bridal bouquet. The bride also carried a lilac-and-white handkerchief made by her late grandmother, Mary Bongiovanni.

Mary Barber, sister of the bride, was honor attendant. Bridesmaids were Kim McKnight, a cousin, Celeste Friday and Carol Blough, sister of the bridegroom. They wore strapless, lilac taffeta gowns and white, lace-trimmed shawls. They carried arm arrangements of three lilac roses and baby's-breath tied with lilac ribbons.

The bride's niece, Megan Abbotts, was flower girl in white taffeta. She carried a small basket of flowers.

Michael Wozniak from Pennsylvania was best man for his cousin. Ushers were Andrew Chilkiewicz, David Buckwinkler and Dennis Blough, brother-in-law of the bridegroom. Megan's cousin, Christopher Abbotts, was ring bearer.

A reception for 175 guests followed at the Chalet of Farmington Hills. Out-of-town guests attended from Florida, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma and Canada.

The bride, a 1979 graduate of Northville High School, is employed by Michigan Bell. The bridegroom is a 1975 graduate of John Glenn High School in Westland; he attended Henry Ford College for two years and is employed by Sears Roebuck.

WRC slates fall lunches

A series of fall luncheon meetings is scheduled by Schoolcraft College Women's Resource Center.

Conducted in Le Gastronomique Restaurant of the Waterman Center on the Haggerty Road campus from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. each month, the luncheons are open to interested women of the community.

September 20 the new series will lead off with "A Positive You." Janan Fakhoury of Image Builders will relate "how self-image and self-esteem can affect performance and success."

October 18 the Dolly Eitenhofer Design Team will present fall and winter hair fashions by the Beautiful People Hair Forum of Plymouth.

November 22 will focus on "The Magical World of Jewelry Start to Finish" presented by Mary Catherine Doyle, graduate gemologist of Sidney Krandall and Sons.

Luncheons are $7 each with reservations to be made at least five days before the luncheon. They may be made by mail or by telephone, 591-6400 extension 430, with Visa and Master Card.

Luncheons prepared by the college culinary arts department include soup or crisp salad, buttery croissants, gourmet entrees with fresh vegetables, French pastries and beverage.

New Japanese 'Super Pill'

Insures Rapid Weight-Loss

No Dieting — Eat All You Want, Pill Does All The Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA — An exciting new "all natural" weight-loss "Super" Pill developed by the JMA (Japanese Medical Association) has just been approved for distribution in the United States. Reportedly, it can guarantee that you will lose more than a pound a day without dieting, from the very first day until you reach your ideal weight and figure. News of this "Super Pill" is literally sweeping the country. It's called Amitol and there has never been anything quite like it before.

What makes Amitol so thrilling and unique is its reported ability to flush calories right out of your body. Amitol is completely safe, it contains no drugs whatsoever. Its ingredients are derived solely from the Konjac root which grows primarily in Northern Japan.

Why the Konjac root? It has been used in Japan for over 1600 years to produce rapid and natural weight-loss! Japanese studies verify that Konjac root actually prevents fat producing calories from being absorbed into your system. They say it does this by surrounding much of the fats, proteins and carbohydrates you have eaten with a protective viscous coating which is then gently flushed out of your system. And according to Japanese research this produces absolutely amazing results.

And who can disagree! Amitol (although brand new to this country) is already being called by many people, "the most exciting weight-loss breakthrough of the century." In fact, every where there are reports of easy and fast weight-loss from formerly overweight people (in all walks of life) who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Company Offers Extraordinary Guarantee

You now can purchase Amitol direct from the North American distributor, and it comes with an extraordinary guarantee.

If you place your order now and then follow the simple instructions for a period of 30 days, you must be completely satisfied with the dramatic visible results or just return the empty container and Dyna Labs will immediately send back your entire purchase price. This guarantee applies regardless of your age or current weight level. What could be better than that! It's just that simple. If you've tried to lose weight before and failed, you no longer have an excuse. Amitol is available, it's easy and it works without dieting.

Best of all, ordering Amitol is simple, fast, and reliable! Simply call Dyna Labs Toll Free: (1-800-441-5454) Ext. 911, and order with your credit card. If you don't have a credit card Dyna Labs will also accept C.O.D. orders right over the phone! All orders are shipped immediately by UPS, which means no delay and no orders lost in the mail!

$19.95—30 day supply, or $35.95—60 day supply. Operators are standing by and will be glad to take your order. You can order 24 hrs. a day, 7 days a week! Please don't wait to call. You really do deserve to be thin!

CALCIUM ANTAGONISTS

Only a few years ago, the "calcium channel blockers" were heralded as a scientific breakthrough in the treatment of angina, chest pain resulting from inadequate blood flow to the heart's vessels. Calcium blockers interfere with the movement of calcium within certain cells.

The first available agents were nifedipine, verapamil, and diltiazem. It is now believed by many that calcium channel blockers may also be useful in high blood pressure as well as the following conditions:

MIGRAINE HEADACHES: There has never been a universally effective treatment for migraines. The calcium blockers may, however, decrease the frequency of attacks.

RAYNAUD'S DISEASE: Raynaud's disease is characterized by spastic constriction of blood vessels in the extremities. One calcium blocker, diltiazem, may reduce the severity and frequency of attacks.

STROKE: Because calcium blockers are vasodilators, it has been suggested that they may be effective in increasing blood flow to the brain, thereby preventing stroke.

The Northville Record

To get most out of sports, don't ask most out of kids

By B.J. MARTIN

Despite the recent so-called boom of interest in physical fitness, a cohesive philosophy of physical education and athletics has never really emerged from American schools or public recreation programs.

It's not simply a matter of the north differing from the south, or even a matter of one state differing from a neighboring state. It varies locally, from school district to school district, from community to community, even from school to school.

An instructive example is the approach to youth soccer in Novi and Northville. Northville's youth soccer program separates boys and girls and offers leagues, tournaments and travel teams for players even under age 10.

Newspaper publicity for even the youngest players is not only welcome, to a large extent, it's expected.

In Novi, the parks and recreation department does not encourage such competitive intensity at such a young age. In fact, older boys and girls play on the same teams and don't venture out of the city limits. Sometimes, bizarre rules for youngsters are occasionally adopted (No heading the ball, for example).

Even if one explains this sort of minor discrepancy as one by-product of a culture that values diversity, the question remains whether either community has the right idea.

The Romans had a sensible phrase for their physical education philosophy: Mens sana in corpore sano. A sound mind in a sound body. Taking that as our general goal, an examination of what we consider child's play may be worthwhile.

The role of sports in our culture really needs no elaborate documentation here. It's enough to note that in some form, everybody decides how deep his or her involvement with sports should be.

Generally, sports serve four functions: they fulfill our urge to play; they strengthen the body; they allegedly develop character; and they entertain.

Of those four functions, it's entertainment that gets prime coverage in the sports pages week to week. When you read about a twisting reverse slam dunk or a somersaulting touchdown pass reception, the subject really is entertainment—entertainment provided by performers with specially developed skills.

It would seem, then, that the other aspects of sports—as something fun, character-developing and healthy—get comparatively short shrift. In a newspaper sports section, that's understandable—the glamorous aspects of local sports make more interesting reading.

But when we're deciding how to best encourage our children's participation in sports or when we're evaluating the athletic programs of our schools and cases, and in part three, we'll examine ways to improve our children's physical education.

Child's Play: Don't look, Ma

If there's one rule coaches and parents of youngsters in sports should keep in mind, it's this one: Children would much rather play a lot for a losing team than sit on the bench for a winning team.

Repeated studies have upheld this simple fact, and yet it continues to be ignored frequently. Coaches should keep in mind additionally that parents would rather see their kids play a lot for a losing team than watch them ride the bench for a winner.

It's a sad fact that in the U.S., more than three-quarters of all organized sports participants quit by the age of 15. Nearly half of them quit for one reason: lack of playing time.

Parents deciding on a sport for their youngster should keep the following in mind:

- The best sports to encourage in a youngster are "lifetime" sports with an emphasis on aerobic conditioning: swimming, biking, jogging and racket sports are among the most practical and safe.

- If your child is interested in organized team games, it's not a bad idea to find out the prospective coach's approach to athletics is—and then double-check practices to make sure. While coaches often give lip service to "learning the game," and "developing teamwork and reaching goals," stories of verbal abuse, overexerting youngsters and out-and-out cheating are far from rare.

- Despite all the padding and safety measures in the rules, some sports are safer than others. Studies report hockey and football are the two sports most likely to incur serious. To put it in perspective, one study established an ratio of fatalities and permanent disabilities per 100,000 participants. Hockey was way out front with 4.16 per 100,000; football had a 2.38 ratio, lacrosse was 2.25 and wrestling was 1.96.

- Parents should be careful not to put pressure on their children when competing, and should not dismiss their child's feelings about losing or bench-warming.

- Studies have suggest that children who exclusively or almost exclusively

Women's varsity teams start pre-season drills

If anyone still needed reminding, summer is just about over—it's time for Northville High School's fall sports teams to get in gear for the upcoming season. Construction remains to be completed on many of the high school's facilities, so students should be especially alert to the times and locations of team practices.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL: Junior varsity practices will begin at 6 p.m. Monday, August 12, at Cooke Junior High School. Head Coach Ed Kritch encourages incoming freshmen interested in basketball to attend the daily summer sessions.

WOMEN'S TENNIS: Daily varsity and junior varsity women's tennis tryouts and practices will start up at 9 a.m. Thursday, August 15, at the Northville High School courts. Coach Uta Filkin suggests players call the Northville High School main office (349-3400) for additional information.

WOMEN'S SWIMMING: An organizational meeting for high school women's swim team candidates and their and parents will be held at Cooke Junior High School tomorrow (Thursday) at 7 p.m. Coach Bill Dicks reports practices will begin Monday, August 12 at a time and place to be announced.

For additional information on athletic programs at Northville High School, contact school offices at 349-3400.

New equipment will keep Colts kicking

The Northville-Novu Colts little league football teams still are welcoming new signups, particularly for the freshmen squad (age 9-10).

Nine-year-olds on the freshmen squad can weigh a maximum of 115 pounds. Ten-year-olds can weigh a maximum of 110 pounds. One hundred forty pounds is the maximum allowable for varsity players (age 13).

The Novi-Northville Colts offer community youngsters freshman, junior varsity and varsity competition on three 25-player squads. About 100 local families participate in the Colts program. Girls may sign up for cheerleading teams; so far 30 already have registered.

A new twist on this year's teams should be fewer knee twists—thanks to a successful Christmas tree sales program last winter, the Colts will be the first little league football team in the area completely equipped with newly-developed preventive knee braces.

Every player on the team will be issued single-sided knee guards, which will shield knees at all points of flexion and extension, reported Head Coach Bill Todd. Uniforms and equipment will be distributed this weekend.

"It's a good experience we provide for the kids," Todd added. "It provides them a chance to learn the game and have some fun. We're really looking forward to seeing how well the new knee guards will work for us."

All but one home game on the Colts 1985 home schedule. All but one home game will be played at Northville High School, the exception being the 1 p.m. September 29 game against the Plymouth Lions at Novi High School.

At 1 p.m., September 15, Northville will host the Ann Arbor Wolverines; at 1 p.m. October 6, the Westland Comets; at 4 p.m. October 20, the Westland Warriors; and at 11 a.m. November 3, the Ypsilanti Braves.

A special treat will be offered October 27 when the Colts will play a league game at the Pontiac Silverdome following the Lions-Miami Dolphins game.

Colt practices will be held from 5:30 p.m.-7:30 p.m. Monday-Friday at the Northville High School athletic field, beginning next week.

For additional information about the Northville-Novu Colts little league football program, phone 349-8774 or 349-9151.

play in adult-organized leagues and teams have a reduced ability to think for themselves, make their own decisions and develop their creativity more slowly.

• Co-ed teams are not necessarily better for either boys or girls. In fact, recent research indicates quite the opposite. Psychologist Richard Galdston notes that, when left to themselves, boys and girls divide into same-sex groups for sports and games with only rare exceptions. Such behavior, he notes is normal for pre-pubescent children.

"They will not cross the sexual line unless someone comes along and forces them to," Galdston says. "They know better."

Indeed, while girls often develop size and strength faster than boys prior to the onset of puberty, they rarely are boys' equal in speed and agility. In most cases, boys run faster than girls by age 2½.

In fact, the Ambulatory Pediatrics Association concluded in a 1979 study that girls are better off developing self-confidence and athletic skills amongst themselves in preparation for the time they do become sexually segregated in sports. Often, girls who continue to play alongside boys even after the onset of puberty, will not transfer over to playing amongst themselves, and identify themselves as accessories (cheerleaders and players' girlfriends) to the boys as they get older.

"Advocates of integrated sports for postpubescent children," the APA study reported, "may in fact be doing girls' sports more harm than good."

• The National Association for Sports and Physical Education has developed a Bill of Rights for Young Athletes (see accompanying article). It's worth checking out.

High Schools: Many vs. the few

When sports were first introduced to the high school curriculum, the goal was to develop a program that recognizes various levels of ability so that youngsters would be aware of their achievement and improvement, though the performances might be far from perfect.

The program's top end soon became the dominant: interscholastic competition, a select group of the most adept athletes from each school competing against each other. While critics in the last couple of decades have charged this sort of emphasis on individual glamour exists at the expense of a more general improvement of athletic skill, there really has been no fundamental change in response: no minimum time of play requirement for substitutes, no efforts to arrange schedules for reserve teams, no rules prohibiting "running up" scores.

Often such criticisms are viewed as carping — that it isn't fair for lesser-skilled athletes to detract from the best athletes' opportunity to compete at

Youngsters declare rights

The National Association for Sports and Physical Education has developed the following Bill of Rights for Young Athletes, based on the recommendation of physical educators and child care workers:

1. The right to participate in sports;
2. The right to compete at a level in keeping with peers' maturity and ability;
3. The right to qualified adult leadership;

4. The right to play as a child, not an adult;
5. The right to share in the leadership and decision-making of the sport in which they participate;
6. The right to participate in a safe and healthy environment;
7. The right to proper preparation;
8. The right to an equal opportunity to strive for success;
9. The right to be treated with dignity;
10. The right to have fun.

their peak ability. Carried to its extreme, defenders of the status quo argue, we might as well give slow cross-country runners a head start.

Not inappropriately, such "fairness" measures are likened to socialism: where there's less competition, there's less impetus to excel. But the judgment that there's nothing more at stake here than the fragile egos of slow, awkward types may very well be off-base.

According to psychologist and educator F.S. DuBois, when young people do not participate in sports, "the scales are heavily weighted against their successful social and emotional adjustment. They frequently are headed for trouble because they have not had the opportunity to learn how to win humbly, to lose gracefully and to endure physical discomfort in order to attain a goal."

"In short," DuBois concluded, "they have not had the advantage of learning the discipline of good sportsmanship so necessary for a happy adult life."

But acknowledging DuBois' viewpoint that competitive sports are important to character development is different from acknowledging the difficulties of following through on providing them. The current interscholastic sports budget at Northville High School is $106,600 — already more than double the physical education budget.

"That covers coaches salaries, transportation, facilities and space, referees..." says Athletic Director Ralph Redmond. "We'd like to have more reserve teams, but we're looking at a community with only one baseball field, a softball site we're still developing, and only this year are we going to have two gyms."

In Novi, the entire athletic department budget — minus transportation expenses — is about $160,000. That covers even adult and special education expenditures.

The troubling aspects of such budget restraints are even clearer when one notes demand. Northville High School's high school's varsity soccer team this fall must pare down more than 50 tryouts to a roster less than half that size. Many players fortunate enough to make the team will spend much of the season on the bench, particularly in critical game situations.

At both high schools, physical education classes are designed to encourage good fitness habits by providing instruction in diet and health in addition to exercise. But lacking the ability to provide interscholastic reserve teams, school officials in Northville are looking inward to provide competition. Redmond thinks the new high school construction will lead to an expanded roster of athletic program offerings.

"The philosophy of intramural programs is being redefined at the junior high school level right now," Redmond explains. "It could be down the line, we'll be looking at an intramural program at the high school, maybe even go into bowling, sailing, or horseback riding."

Harden Harvest Sale Specials!

Oak Chairside Chest

Special Offer $293

Reg. $584 after sale

The rich graining of solid oak combined with Harden craftsmanship make this chest an exceptional value. The finished back provides additional versatility. Measures 24" wide, 14" deep, 24" high.

Cherry Chest

Special Offer $293

Reg. $598 after sale

Delicate filigreed brass fittings give an extra touch of elegance to this go-anywhere chest which features a completely finished back. Harden's abundant supply of their own cherry wood makes this offer possible.

Limit two chests per customer, no mail or phone orders, please. Prices may not include delivery.
