High school readies for September opening

By MICHELE M. FECHT

With the start of the new school year less than three weeks away, construction crews at Northville High School are working at a fast and furious pace to ready part of the building for occupancy September 3.

Assistant Superintendent Burton Knighton told board of education members Monday that the existing portions of the high school are expected to be ready by the start of the school year.

However, additions to the facility — such as new classrooms (specifically the new science and social studies wing), the media center, cafeteria, activities center, administration and counseling offices, etc. — will not be ready until October with some to be completed in November.

In total, 29 classrooms will be utilized at the high school at the start of the new school year. The district plans to use 24 classrooms at Cooke while renovation is being completed.

Northville High School Principal David Bolitho said that approximately 60 percent of the students and staff will be at the high school facility with 40 percent housed at Cooke.

He noted that both the science and social studies departments will be moved to Cooke along with one business teacher, two physical education teachers, one foreign language instructor and the graphics, electronics and drafting classes. Special education classes will be held in both buildings.

Among the high school classrooms scheduled for occupancy September 3 are art, vocal and instrumental music, some gym classes, home economics, English, computer, foreign language, auto shop, math, marketing and the student store.

Knighton told the board and a handful of residents attending Monday's meeting that painting, lighting and carpeting will be completed in the finished parts of the facility when students arrive next month.

He noted, however, that heating units are not expected to be installed until sometime in September.

With the completion date for the new cafeteria scheduled sometime around the first of October, Superintendent George Bell noted "it is very possible we'll be talking about brown bagging for awhile" — at least a few weeks of school.

Bell also noted an area that may be utilized until the cafeteria is completed.

In addition to the possibility of "brown bagging" lunches for the first few weeks, students also will be toting books until lockers are installed sometime in October.

Sun strokes

Ah, summer. An inner tube, fresh lemonade, munchies, The Beach Boys and a cool lake to beat the heat. For Leigh Bills (from left), Nancy Belding, Pam George, Patti Steinhauer and Christa Spicer, sunbathing at Silver Spring Lake Monday afternoon provided the perfect opportunity to test the waters. The five sunbathers used their raft to store provisions while wading through the water. Record photo by Steve Fecht.

Building boom valued at nearly $20 million

By KEVIN WILSON

If there remain any doubts that the building slump is over, Northville Township has the figures to prove it.

Adding up the reported values of new construction projects receiving building permits thus far this year, the township found $19.2 million worth of new construction and improvements.

The figure does not include the values of three major residential developments expected to receive permits in the next few weeks, nor does it include work begun last year and completed since January.

Township supervisor Susan Heintz said the figures represent such a hefty gain in the tax base that officials have begun contemplating a reduction in the millage rate.

The report compiled by Youth Corps worker Richard Schohl under the direction of township manager Bruno Scacchitti shows permits were drawn for $9.67 million worth of single-family residential construction between January 1 and August 5. The total is made up of approximately equal proportions of new houses (115 units) and improvements to existing properties.

All the new single-family units included in the tally are in previously existing subdivisions — primarily Lakes of Northville, North Beacon Woods and Quail Ridge. All three subdivisions were begun before the recent recession with progress stalled until the industry revived this season.

Permits for 232 units of multiple-family construction were issued in the same period, with a total estimated value of nearly $8.3 million. The major portion of this amount is for the Cedar Lake apartment complex under construction on the north side of Six Mile, between the railroad overpass and Lakes of Northville subdivision.

The total also includes $1.29 million in new commercial construction, dominated by the development of the Doheny Industrial Park off Doheny Drive. The township will collect only half the property taxes it could have from the two buildings in the park, having granted tax abatements to encourage the project.

The commercial property value increase does not include the township's major gain in tax base this season — the Meijer store at Eight Mile and Hagerty where the estimated value is $10 million. Only partially completed last December when the tax rolls were closed, the store will be fully taxed for the first time this year.

Remaining in the pipeline are two single-family subdivisions and one condominium complex expected to get under way before the snow flies.

Developers of the Maple Hill subdivision (on the north side of Six Mile, just east of township hall) are awaiting only approval of drain easements by Wayne County to begin construction on the first phase of the two-step, 150-house project.

Fred Greenspan announced at the township's July meeting his intention of launching construction of his Northville

Konrad takes clerk position

By KEVIN WILSON

Cathy Konrad, personal secretary to city manager Steven Walters for nearly 12 years, was last week promoted to city clerk by Walters.

The appointment fills the vacancy left by the resignation of former clerk Joan McAllister, who took a similar job with the city of Oak Park. The city charter gives the manager authority to hire the clerk. Dismissal of the city clerk requires a council vote.

Konrad started her employment with the city in July, 1972, as a front office clerk and was promoted to become Walters' personal secretary when he arrived in autumn of 1973.

"I see it as a real challenge," Konrad said of her new position. "I enjoyed working with Steve, but after 12 years it starts getting pretty routine. I guess you could say I wanted a change of pace."

She is virtually assured of that as the new clerk, taking office less than 90 days before the city council elections. Under the city charter and state law, the clerk is charged with maintaining voting records and running elections. Under the charter, the clerk is also designated the keeper of all official records, particularly attending city council and planning commission meetings to act as recording secretary and keep the minutes.

"I've done everything (in the clerk's

Two face trial on charge of murder at hospital

By KEVIN WILSON

Ruling that the prosecution had failed to show substantive evidence of premeditation, 35th District Court Judge James Garber last week handed down an indictment on second degree murder charges against two suspects in the May 26 slaying of mental patient Greg Helzerman.

John Foley and Tyrone Williamson were both bound over for trial in Wayne County Circuit Court and an August 22 arraignment date set. A trial date, expected to be in late fall, will be set at the hearing.

Both Foley and Williamson, who were patients assigned to the same Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital ward as Helzerman at the time of the killing, are housed in the Department of Mental Health's Ypsilanti Forensic Center while awaiting arraignment.

Based on the results of a 60-day forensic study Garber ordered in late May, he ruled August 7 that Foley and Williamson were competent to stand trial on the charges. A third suspect was ruled incompetent and returned to the Ypsilanti hospital for continued observation. If found competent within 14 months, he too could be charged with the murder.

In the course of the five-hour hearing August 6 and 7 in Garber's Plymouth courtroom, three NRPH patients testified that they witnessed portions of the assault and identified Foley and Williamson as participants in choking and beating the Van Buren Township man.

Two of the three patient witnesses testified to seeing both Foley and Williamson beating Helzerman in the hallway outside the quiet room where he allegedly was killed. The third said he also witnessed the beating, but did not identify Williamson among those involved at the time.

The testimony represented the first public revelation that any portion of the incident occurred outside the quiet room.

Three NRPH employees, including one who was fired when an internal hospital investigation determined he had neglected his duties the evening of the slaying, also testified regarding events surrounding the Helzerman killing and the subsequent removal of Foley and Williamson to Ypsilanti.

A representative of the county medical examiner's office also testified as to the results of an autopsy of the body.

Special prosecutor Robert Agacinski sought first degree murder charges against both suspects, arguing that beating in the hallway and subsequent relocation to the quiet room showed premeditation.

Agacinski also recalled the medical examiner's testimony that it could have taken up to five minutes to strangle the

Prosecution of patients poses legal problems

By KEVIN WILSON

Crimes allegedly committed within the walls of a state mental institution present police, prosecutors and the courts with special problems that sometimes prevent prosecution, according to those involved in last week's 35th District Court hearing.

Judge James Garber indicted two former Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital (NRPH) patients on second degree murder charges at the end of a five-hour hearing spread over two days (see related story). The hearing served to illustrate some of the special circumstances surrounding crimes reported within the hospital.

Asked if cases emanating from the state hospital are "rare," Garber said, "It depends on what you define as rare" and estimated an average 12 cases a year reach his court, which is the first to hear criminal charges brought in Northville, Plymouth and Canton.

Although no specific statistics are kept regarding crime alleged at NRPH, Michigan State Police Detective Ripp Collins said Northville Post troopers are called upon to investigate a great many more alleged assaults, both physical and sexual, than are ever prosecuted.

Wayne County assistant prosecutor Robert Sage, assigned to the western area of the county, acknowledged that many reported crimes within the hospital are never brought to court.

"We've had problems with it over the years," Sage said. "We've got a problem in that, usually, the complainant is a patient, the witnesses are patients, and there is always a question of credibility."

"Unless we have the workers witnessing what takes place, we have a hard time making a case," Sage said.

In the case of the Helzerman killing, both prime suspects and all witnesses to the alleged beating and strangulation are patients. Special prosecutor Robert Agacinski said he was assigned the case specifically because of the difficulties inherent in the situation.

News Analysis

"Initially, it was assigned to a special prosecutor because it takes some special investigative work to make the case," Agacinski said.

He said he anticipates that defense attorneys will challenge the credibility of prosecution witnesses during the trial. Collins noted that the prosecution was prepared to meet that challenge last week with NRPH staff witnesses who could testify that the patients were capable of separating fact from fantasy.

The challenge wasn't raised in district court, where Garber noted that it probably would not have been productive.

"It's not really at question at this level," the judge said. "I have to accept those witnesses pretty much at face value. Their credibility was not really an issue before me. If their testimony was inherently incredible, say they claimed that an eight-armed monster fell through the ceiling and participated in the killing, I could dismiss that. But otherwise my discretion, in this court, is pretty much restricted."

Although indictments might be possible in some alleged crimes at the hospital, questionable witness credibility makes it unlikely that the prosecutor could gain a circuit court conviction, Sage and Collins said.

Collins said many complaints filed at the hospital "are spurious on their face. Many CSC (criminal sexual conduct) complaints we take are obvious out-and-out fabrications. Most of our CSC complaints never have a staff witness. Then you always have a question about the reliability of your witnesses."

The detective said reports of assaults are often referred to the county prosecutor even though the investigating trooper does not believe a crime took place.

"The troopers will make a report of the complaint, and send it to the prosecutor just to take the weight off their own backs, to let the prosecutor decide not to pursue it," Collins said.

He said he sees no suggestion that the prosecutor is reluctant to pursue cases where police have gathered sufficient evidence to justify a trial.

"I don't believe they've ever turned down a CSC where we had any kind of a solid case," Collins said. "I don't think there's a reluctance to prosecute so much as there's a problem in proving a crime took place."

Garber said his memory of cases coming out of the hospital virtually all include a staff witness.

"They're mostly assaultive kinds of things," he said. "I remember a malicious destruction of property on doctors' cars, several assault and batteries. Generally, those are assaults against an attendant or nurse or something. I don't recall any that were patient-on-patient."

DO YOU NEED TO LOSE 100 LBS.?

—WEIGHT REDUCTION—

Why Do Most Programs Fail?

Because the major focus is on initial weight loss, the scale becomes the focal point. Little concern is given to specific individual needs necessary for the long term maintenance of weight loss and a healthy life style.

The Sensible Approach

The institute's weight control and obesity/risk factor management programs emphasize the individuality and complexity of each case. We stress that participants are required to exert a serious effort to change their life styles. Along with medical supervision by a licensed physician each participant will receive behavioral training, nutritional counseling and individualized exercise planning. The ultimate goal is to provide each participant with the resources to maintain their weight loss for the rest of their lives.

Multidisciplinary Weight Reduction Programs:

- Average weight loss over 72 lbs. The range: 10 to 450 lbs.
- Follow up data show that 60% maintain their weight during 1 year period.

What's more important current scientific literature and patient data show significant beneficial changes in blood pressure, blood sugar, cholesterol and other serious risk factors.

The institute's weight control and obesity/risk factor management programs can best be characterized as carefully monitored, multidisciplinary programs employing contemporary scientifically sound methods to help each individual identify and achieve his or her health goals.

More office, less multiple in Haggerty Road revision

By KEVIN WILSON

Office uses would be more extensive and multiple-family housing more limited under the latest draft of proposed revisions to the township master plan for the Haggerty Road corridor. Closing in on what may become the final version of the plan revision, the township planning commission last week ordered detail changes prepared for review and a possible vote at its August 27 meeting.

Under the latest proposal, more than 4 million square feet of office floor area could be developed in buildings 50-feet high along Haggerty Road. The figure includes the potential floor area for land unlikely to be developed as offices, despite the master plan. One large parcel is owned by Ward Presbyterian Church, another is occupied by the state department of mental health's Hawthorn Center. Other properties unlikely to be turned over to office include private schools, other churches and the Oasis Golf Course.

Deleting those properties from the calculations still shows more than 3.7 million square feet of potential office development — four times the 940,000

"If I was going to move here today I would not buy a house on Haggerty with what's going on in Livonia. We've got to provide some kind of transition."

— Pat Wright

square feet available under the earlier proposal.

Planning consultant Claude Coates drafted the latest proposal after the earlier one was criticized for its reliance on multiple-family and cluster housing development to serve as a "buffer" between office development on the Haggerty frontage and single-family subdivisions to the west.

The major benefit foreseen from extending the office zoning nearly a quarter-mile west from Haggerty is creating a potential for high-quality office buildings on parcels sufficiently large to include their own landscaped buffer areas adjacent to the single family housing.

To make room for such office developments, Coates eliminated the potential for 300 cluster-housing units and reduced the number of possible multiple-family units from 600 to 370. Commissioners ordered a further reduction in the amount of land devoted to multi-family housing among the detail revisions sought.

Although implementation of the plan would require establishment of two new zoning classifications (one allowing for four-story offices, the other a special freeway-service zone that would permit motels and gas stations among other uses), discussion at the commission's special August 6 meeting was intentionally focused on the plan revision.

Commission chairman Richard Duwel said he aims to complete the master plan revisions before getting involved in detailed amendments to the zoning ordinance that would implement the plan.

But there was sufficient discussion of the zoning ordinance revisions to note that the office districts would bear "stiff requirements" for landscaping between office buildings and nearby homes. The latest proposal demands a 100-foot setback from a lot line shared with single-family homes. That entire area would be devoted to greenbelts — no parking area or other use would be allowed.

Several commissioners said they found that alternative a more attractive one for nearby homeowners than the earlier proposal's allowance for apartment buildings or cluster housing developments.

Commissioner Charles DeLand asked Coates whether the economic impact of office development or of multiple-family was "worse" for single family homeowners.

Coates said in 23 years of planning he had never encountered "definitive evidence that would allow me to form such an opinion." No studies have shown an adverse economic impact from adjacent development, he said, and there are no studies demonstrating a difference in the impact of various types of development.

Commissioner Ted Martin raised serious reservations about making any changes in the township master plan to accommodate commercial development about Haggerty Road, citing the "distinct character" of Northville Township as a residential community.

"There's been a great deal of effort, I think, to tie-in the zoning in Northville Township with the zoning in Livonia," Martin said. "There is an effort here to compete with Livonia for development, and I don't think we have to compete. There are two different characters here."

But commissioner Pat Wright outlined the growing consensus for change by suggesting the township's master plan has to take into consideration the changes in adjacent communities.

"I'm all for keeping Northville Township a residential community," Wright said. "However, if I was going to move here today I would not buy a house on Haggerty with what's going on in Livonia. We've got to provide some kind of transition."

Former planning commissioner Bernard Baldwin, a Meadowbrook resident whose home will be near the proposed office district, strongly objected to the plan revisions, particularly targeting the perceived "need to respond to market forces."

"If you look at the preamble to the zoning ordinance," Baldwin said, "you'll see that it says we are not going to compete, we are not going to go after tax base, that Northville is a distinctive residential community."

He concluded a long statement addressing various details of the proposal by saying, "This is a very, very wide departure from the philosophy earlier."

Commissioner Marvin Gans stressed his belief that the township's planning is not motivated out of a desire to compete with its neighbors but rather from its own needs.

"You're not doing something just because it's being done in Livonia," Gans said. "You're doing it because of a unique situation — the freeway. We should take advantage of that in a very nice way in a very nice area."

It was Martin who pressed the issue of keeping multiple family development to a minimum, conceding the commercial applications to a "real consensus that we need a new master plan for Haggerty Road.

"But I question the density," he said. "If we remove the multiple family from some areas, I think it would be more to the liking of most residents."

Commissioner Jerry Chisnell said he was also concerned about the amount of multi-family residential in the proposed plan revision.

Duwel stressed to audience members that the issue under discussion is an alteration of the master plan, not zoning. The plan is a tool used in evaluating future rezoning requests. Developers who request rezonings that coincide with the master plan are likely, but not assured, of gaining approval. Rezoning requests that do not comply with the plan are often rejected for that reason, but exceptions from the plan are sometimes allowed.

Overall, he said, the latest proposal "is a very good plan (that) makes a lot of sense to me," Duwel said.

Coates was instructed to "refine" the latest proposal, deleting some of the multiple-family areas and fine-tuning the area to be planned for office uses.

The commission voted unanimously in favor of that approach. Commissioners Richard Allen and Larry Sheehan were absent. Allen's alternate as the liaison from the township board, James Nowka, was also absent.

Annexation hearing set

A public hearing on the proposed annexation of Parmenter's Cider Mill to the city will be conducted in city hall at 1:30 p.m. August 27.

The state boundary commission has established the hearing date to allow residents of both the city and township to testify on the proposed annexation of 2.26 acres comprising the western portion of the cider mill property.

Owner Verner Bodker of Brighton filed a petition seeking the annexation last February. The property is presently divided between city and township.

Township trustees originally vowed to fight any annexation, then backed down as part of an agreement by which city water service will be extended to Normac, Inc., a growing township industry immediately east of the cider mill on Baseline Road. The city's side of the agreement is not to annex Normac.

The township board voted in March that it would "not oppose" the cider mill annexation.

The boundary commission will make its determination some time after the public hearing, probably after receiving a staff report and findings. The commission may deny the petition, approve it as submitted or approve it in amended form, adjusting the proposed boundaries.

Merchants plan craft sale

In addition to expanding its annual Autumnfest attraction, Downtown Merchants are planning a new summertime event.

A summer arts and crafts show is to be held Saturday, August 24, in the Town Square Park by the clock on Main Street and on Main Street sidewalks.

Del Black, chairman, who has just finished heading the summer sidewalk sale, reports he already has 28 crafts persons signed to participate. There are to be spaces for 40 with 12 still available at $20 each. Interested artists and crafts persons should contact him at Del's Shoes.

The merchants' association also is seeking non-profit Northville organizations who would like to sponsor an event or activity at the Autumnfest which will be held September 27 and 28 in conjunction with the Tivoli Fair sponsored by Northville Historical Society at Northville Downs, reports chair person Dee Richardson.

Any organization interested in finding additional funds for its own projects is invited to contact Richardson at Northville Camera Shop or Kris Broderick at Northville Gallery of Flowers. Contact should be made by August 17.

Kunz ready to run for mayor again

First out of the starting gate for this November's city council race is Eugene L. (Bud) Kunz, who has declared his candidacy for mayor.

Kunz, 62, is a West Main resident who challenged current Mayor Paul Vernon in the 1983 elections and lost on a 513 to 315 vote.

A member of the city housing commission and the zoning board of appeals, Kunz is president of BEMS Engineering, an energy consulting firm at 103 North Center Street. The company has been downtown for 12 years. Kunz has lived in Northville since 1970.

He is the first and, to date, only candidate to pick up nominating petitions. Petitions were made available August 1 and may not be submitted before September 1. Candidates have until October 1 to file petitions bearing the signatures of no fewer than 50 and no more than 75 registered city electors.

Kunz said he has also registered his campaign organization with the county clerk and is "all ready to go." He said he expects to file his petitions with the city clerk "early in September, the first few days after Labor Day."

Recalling his low-key 1983 campaign, Kunz said he is prepared this time to "run a real strong campaign."

Last time I soft-peddled it."

Noting that he does not yet know if there will be any opposition, Kunz said he was undecided about making a second run for office until some "special interest groups" approached him and asked him if he was still interested.

"I wasn't discouraged last time, it's just that the business is growing, we've got two offices now and I wasn't sure if I wanted to run," Kunz said.

Proportionally, 62 percent of the 1983 mayoral vote went to Vernon, 38 percent to Kunz. Voter turnout of 838 was 22 percent of the registered electorate. Kunz ran close to Vernon in Wayne County but was thrashed in Oakland County and lost the absentee vote as well.

As of late Monday, Kunz was the only person known to city clerk Cathy Konrad to have nominating petitions. Terms expiring this year are Vernon's fourth two-year stint in office, and the four-year city council terms of J. Burton DeRusha and Mayor Pro Tem G. Dewey Gardner. None of the three has yet announced his intentions. Vernon was not at the most recent council meeting, having been hospitalized for surgery for the second time this summer.

Korean native finds travel fulfills childhood dream

By ANN CHOWDHURY

"As a boy, I used to dream about meeting different people, learning about different cultures and being a scientist," said Dr. Seong Kwan Rhee of Northville.

That boy who grew up in Korea is now an expert in the friction and wear of materials, active in the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and is frequently asked to lecture in the far corners of the world.

He brings back slides and mementos of his travels to share with his four young children and his wife Mary. Rhee's most recent travel story revolves around a trip to the Soviet Union's Uzbek Republic, where he was fascinated by the differences between that Asian, southernmost region of the country and the more European area around Moscow, which he visited in 1978 as a guest of the Soviet Academy of Sciences.

During this latest visit, Rhee stayed in Tashkent, the capital of the Uzbek Republic. As a Korean-American, he was intrigued by a little-known fact — "About half-a-million Koreans live in the Uzbek Republic. I was very curious and wanted to know more about them."

Official inquiries were blocked, but Rhee did manage to research the Korean population by chance during his visit.

The entire republic, Rhee said, is vastly different from what most people might expect of the Soviet Union.

The people there are a mixture of Oriental and European and speak their own Uzbek language, which is totally different from Russian," Rhee said. "They consider themselves citizens of their Republic before being citizens of the Soviet Union. It's not just like the difference between, say, New York and California. This is culture, race and language."

According to Rhee, the people of the Uzbek area cling to their traditional ways. Many of the women still wear traditional yellow-and-red costumes and the men little black skull caps crusted with rich embroidery. This is a far cry from the more subdued fashions of Moscow.

Though Tashkent's architecture is fairly European, having been rebuilt after a devastating earthquake 15 years ago, nearby Samarkand, which Rhee obtained permission to visit, is "out of another world."

"It is one of the oldest cities in existence," Rhee said. "Arabs came in the 1700s, but until then it was influenced by India and China. It still has its old mosques and Moslems still worship there. It was on the silk routes from the East to Europe, and even has ruins from when the Mongols came down and destroyed everything in the twelfth century."

It was during his visit to Samarkand that Rhee got a chance to contact the local Korean population. He had been denied permission to visit a Korean collective farm, but had not given up hope.

An outdoor market in Samarkand provided the opportunity he sought.

"So many people were milling around selling all kinds of fruits and vegetables," he said. "I saw a number of Oriental ladies and suspected they were Korean. I spoke to them in Korean. They were Korean and they understood me."

The women were 50-60 years old and their Korean dialect sounded old-fashioned to Rhee, but it was understandable.

"When and how did you come to this part of the world?" he asked them.

They replied that they had come in 1937 and were moved there by the government. Rhee suspects that as a result of poor relations between Japan and the Soviet Union at that time, all the Oriental minorities from the border areas around Manchuria were moved thousands of miles away — to the Uzbek Republic.

The women told Rhee they were doing well and living better than they had in the East of the Soviet Union. The soil is much richer in the Uzbek area and they brought rice and vegetables to plant when they were moved.

Even though they work on communal farms, they are allowed to own a small plot of land from which they can sell the produce and keep the profit. Some of them have become relatively wealthy. Rhee was surprised to learn that the Korean population produces 90 percent of the Soviet rice crop.

It is such informal exchanges, and meetings with his fellow scientists, that Rhee really enjoys. "It's always so fascinating to talk to different people and find what they think and how they look at the world," he said, with an enthusiasm that shows he will never tire of living out his boyhood dreams.

Township seeks architect for full-service fire station

By KEVIN WILSON

Bid specifications prepared to seek an architect for design of a new township fire hall to be situated on the west end of Northville Township stirred up a minor controversy among township board members last week.

At issue were specifications seeking design of a fire hall that includes a multi-purpose room with built-in fold-away bunks, a shower, kitchen area and lockers. The proposed building requirements call for a total 5,400 square feet of floor area, divided evenly between bays to house fire equipment and administrative area.

Township treasurer Richard Henningsen took issue with the proposal for 1,400 square feet of meeting room, built-in bunks and kitchen area. He did not question another 1,300 square feet of workshop, utility and storage area and rest rooms.

Fire chief Robert Toms argued that the facilities are needed at present to house firefighters overnight during winter storms, when the volunteer force is put on standby alert.

"The problem in big storms isn't in getting our rigs to go through snow, it's getting the firemen to the rigs," Toms said. "Four to five times a year, I have the men in on 24-hour watch. We get a big snow and the guys have trouble getting through it to answer an alarm — we need to put a minimum level of staff right in with the rigs."

Township manager Bruno Scacchitti noted that a 1980 facilities study said there was a need for two "fully-equipped stations" but that it called for one to be at township hall and the other at Six Mile and Beck. The proposed site is on Seven Mile, west of Beck.

In a report to the board, Scacchitti wrote that their decision should focus on "future needs, useage, and placement of fire stations within the township."

Henningsen said he had not "gotten it into my mind that we need this (kind of

'You get my message, I don't want to get into the full-time fire (department) thing.'

— Richard Henningsen

facility) in both places. I don't like building new meeting space when we have plenty of rooms available over here (at township hall)."

Referring to Scacchitti's memo, Henningsen noted a cost differential of $91,000 projected by eliminating 1,400 square feet of multi-purpose area at an estimated cost of $65 per square foot.

"I have a hard time getting the actual picture here," he said. "You know that $100,000 is a lot of bucks to get out of this township's budget."

Trustee James Nowka said he agreed with Toms' proposal "at that location, and I think we should study it for this particular area (township hall)."

Nowka and trustee Donald Williams made the motion to seek an architect to design a fully equipped station for the Seven Mile Road location.

Trustee Richard Allen said he had been hesitant at first, but that, "Chief Toms' explanation makes a lot of sense to me. Particularly in a rural area, you need someone to man the pumps."

Henningsen continued to probe the proposal, asking if Toms had studied any other departments or analyzed the township's future needs. "You get my message, I don't want to get into the full-time fire (department) thing," he said. "That's what I see coming here."

Toms responded that his vision of the department's future remains primarily volunteer-staffed, but with "five or six full-time firefighters, I think, in about 10-15 years when I'm gone from here and you're gone from here."

Nowka said construction of a new fire station should be based not only on current needs, but on projected future needs of the department, noting that the township hall itself, though less than a decade old, is in need of expansion.

"This (station) is going to be the focus for protecting the west side," he said. "It would be best to build it fully equipped now rather than wait and find we had something inadequate for our needs."

With Henningsen still expressing doubts, Nowka called for a vote on the issue. On a roll call vote, Henningsen voted with the other board members present in favor of a fully equipped station design. The outcome was unanimous, trustee Thomas Cook absent.

The motion allows the administration to seek quotes for architectural firms to design the station. Scacchitti estimated the design cost at $18,000. Bids are to be in percentage of approximate construction cost, with the manager deriving his estimates by working backwards from building cost projections ranging between $220,500 and $351,000.

Hospital fence completion pledged in September

Installation of a fence along three sides of the Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital main campus is to be completed by the end of September, according to state senator R. Robert Geake (R-Northville).

Geake said he has received frequent inquiries regarding the fence since the end of the legislative session and last week reached a department of mental health source who confirmed the awarding of a contract for construction.

"It will be in by the end of September is the word we get now," Geake said August 8. "Materials have been ordered and as soon as they are delivered to the site, construction is to begin. Under terms of the latest piece of paper signed, the work is to be completed by the end of September."

Geake and other local officials have long lobbied to have NRPH fenced in hopes of reducing the number of "walkaways" from the state mental institution.

Mental health department spokesper-sons earlier confirmed that a contractor had been selected and that the fence line, more than one-mile long, has been staked out. Confirmation of Geake's information could not be obtained from DMH offices in Northville or Lansing, neither of which returned phone calls placed by The Record.

The fence is to be standard chain-link type, six-foot tall. It will not follow the entire property perimeter, but will enclose the area that includes patient housing. The frontage along Seven Mile will remain unfenced, but hedges planted two years ago will be left in place. The hedge, planted all the way around the campus, was originally intended as a compromise between local officials who wanted a fence and DMH officials who view a fence as anti-therapeutic.

When it failed to grow into the barrier local officials and residents had expected, pressure to install the fence was renewed.

Mothers' Club phone books out

Telephone directories for 1985-86 compiled by Northville Mothers' Club have been delivered to local residents, Sue Anger, distribution chairman, reported this week.

Anyone who has not received a free directory who lives in the Northville school district should call her at 349-0068.

Prosecution of patients poses problems

Once the prosecutor decides to pursue a case, a whole new set of problems arises. First is whether the suspect is capable of standing trial and assisting in his own defense. The Michigan Mental Health Code states that commitment to a mental institution is not, in and of itself, sufficient to show that a person is incapable of assisting his defense.

Determinations must be made on an individual basis. After 60 days of observation in the Ypsilanti Forensic Center, DMH psychiatrists testified that two of the three suspects were capable of assisting their attorneys.

At last week's hearing, defense attorneys raised two legal arguments expected to complicate the prosecution's case against John Foley and Tyrone Williamson.

Richard Neaton, counsel to Williamson, argued on August 6 that former NRP resident care aide (RCA) Robert Diggins should not be allowed to

'Unless we have the workers witnessing what takes place, we have a hard time making a case.'

— Robert Sage

testify regarding statements Foley and Williamson made the night of the assault in which Diggins alleged that the patients admitted they killed Helzerman.

Neaton said the testimony should be disallowed because Diggins, a state employee investigating a crime, did not read Williamson his Miranda rights. After exploring the objection for some time, Garber ruled against Neaton's argument, though he told the defense attorney the concept "is probably worth pursuing."

The next morning, Kenneth Webb, representing Foley and still trying to have Diggins' testimony stricken, argued that everything his client did or said while committed to a state mental institution was inadmissible under the doctrine of privileged communication between a patient and doctor. Neaton took the less extreme tack, arguing that some of the evidence the prosecution planned to present should be ruled as privileged communication, but conceding that not all statements made in the hospital were protected.

Garber disallowed Webb's objection, noting that law requires protected statements to be made in the course of "examination, diagnosis or treatment." Webb argued that RCAs are part of the "doctor-patient chain" and by definition are treating patients at all times they speak with them.

"This is therapy for these patients, to be able to talk to the attendants," Webb argued. "This attendant is the eyes and ears of the doctor or therapist and anything a patient tells him on the floor he is not allowed to repeat outside."

Agacinski countered with an argument that patients live in the hospital and "not everything they say or do while confined is privileged."

Garber held in the prosecution's favor, saying he does not believe "everything that goes on in that hospital is in the course of examination, diagnosis or treatment."

He later held that a statement Williamson made while confined in a room with a nurse attendant and strapped down to prevent him injuring himself or others did fall under the privilege doctrine, holding with Neaton's argument that one-to-one supervision and confinement constituted treatment.

Garber said Monday that the Miranda and privilege arguments are mutually exclusive. "Presenting them together is an oxymoron," he said. "The Miranda warnings imply that everything that is said not only can, but will be used, in prosecution. On the other hand, to say that everything they say to that person is privileged is legally, mutually inconsistent."

He added that, were he in the defense attorney's shoes, "I'd probably argue both of them and see where it took me."

The judge said he was "more impressed" with the privilege arguments than the Miranda contentions.

"I don't think that hospital attendants are the type of person that is covered by the Miranda ruling," he said. "I think recent Supreme Court decisions show a tendency toward making a clearer distinction among employees of the State."

During the hearing he cited a case which found that school principals are not required to issue Miranda warnings and are authorized to search lockers as an example.

Though the privilege argument looked to be a greater obstacle to prosecution of mental patients, Garber said he did not believe in Webb's contention that all patient communications or activities while committed are privileged.

"If you concede that, it would be well-nigh impossible to prosecute anyone for any crime that occurred inside the hospital," he said. "Mr. Webb contends that all activity there is treatment. I don't believe that. It will be interesting to see how far he gets with that at trial."

In the end, though, Sage said that crime within hospitals will not be solved in the court system.

"What can be done? What can be done about crime at the hospital through the criminal process?" he asked rhetorically.

Special prosecutor assigned to Helzerman murder trial

Because the case is both complex and has received a lot of press attention, prosecution of the two suspects in the May 26 killing of Greg Helzerman at the state hospital here has been assigned to special division of the county prosecutor's office.

The probe unit from which special prosecutor Robert Agacinski was assigned the case is "expanding more into high-visibility, special assignment sort of cases," he said.

Assistant prosecutors working out of the special unit follow each case from beginning to end, from swearing out arrest warrants to a court verdict. They are assigned a lighter case load to allow time for in-depth investigation and research.

Michigan State Police Detective Ripp Collins said the assistance through the probe unit is essential in complex cases such as the Helzerman killing.

"I'm really pleased that we got Agacinski," said Collins, the chief investigator of the alleged homicide. "You saw (at the preliminary hearing last week) the kind of complex legal problems a case this presents. I'm really happy we've got a county prosecutor who has the time to research those issues before he goes to court."

Agacinski said the case was originally assigned to the office because of the perceived investigatory problems of a case arising from a state mental institution. Another criteria for a case to be assigned a special prosecutor, he said, is the degree of "visibility."

"Initially, I got it because it would take some special investigative work," Agacinski said. "But then, it has received some publicity, hasn't it? You could probably say it's a high-profile case."

victim and the statement of one patient that Foley had ceased choking Helzerman and offered the witness "a turn" as evidence of a "plan" and "opportunity for reflection."

Garber said he, too, found the method of killing "kind of vicious. It was brutal." But, he went on to rule that the brutality of the method of killing is insufficient to prove premeditation under law.

He also held that the transportation from the hallway to a room 20 feet away, particularly in light of witnesses' testimony that Helzerman walked into the quiet room without being forced to by his assailants, did not meet the legal test to stand as evidence of a prearranged plan to kill.

Agacinski said Monday that he was somewhat disappointed in Garber's ruling but that "I kind of got the message the first day that he didn't think we had enough for first degree." Agacinski acknowledged that "you have to show the plan existed before the act. We don't have any witnesses to the planning."

He noted that, if new evidence is revealed, it might be possible to have the charges elevated to first degree murder "but you'd have to start all over at the beginning."

Agacinski said he expects a trial date in early November.

Colony IV subdivision on the south side of Six Mile. The final phase of the Colony subdivision is planned to connect with the northern ends of Streets in the Park Gardens subdivision off Five Mile (Parklane, Fry, Maxwell and Marilyn).

Final site plan approval was recently granted the developers of Harbour Village, a 22-acre condominium complex to include 168 units on the north side of Seven Mile Road, just east of Swan Harbor apartments.

Planning was also recently completed for two new small retail shopping plazas and expansion of a third, all on Five Mile Road and expected to be built this year.

Two industrial projects proposed for construction on Gerald Avenue received preliminary plan rejections from the planning commission July 30, but at least one might receive approval in time to start work this season.

School district to refinance bond issue

In the hopes of gaining long-term benefits for the school district, Northville Board of Education Monday approved the refinancing of voted bond monies for the high school renovation project.

Noting that refinancing the $7.75 million bond issue (with an average interest cost of 10.25 percent) was first discussed by board members at a study session in June, Superintendent George Bell said the recent favorable bond market makes it appropriate to move forward with the proposal at the present time.

"Between now and 2010 (expiration date on the issue), the district could save $1.35 million" by refinancing at a lower interest rate, Bell told the board.

John Savage of A.G. Edwards & Sons in St. Louis, Missouri, (one of three underwriters) outlined the refunding procedure to board members and noted that refinancing the district's current outstanding debt could be mean a substantial long-term savings.

"It could mean at least a million dollars or more to the school district," he explained.

In addition to A.G. Edwards & Sons, Inc., underwriters for the refinancing include Erlich-Bober & Company, Inc. and Comerica Bank-Detroit.

Noting that the voter-approved bond issue had an average interest cost of 10.25 percent, Savage said the district "could re-average to 8.5 percent."

Savage pointed out that since the passage of Public Act 157, signed into law June 21, 1984, school districts and municipalities have been able to obtain substantial savings on their existing debts through advance refunding.

The advance refunding allows the issuer (school district) to refund or replace a high interest rate debt with refunding bonds issued at a lower interest rate.

Savage noted that since the passage of Public Act 157, several Michigan school districts have taken advantage of the refinancing provision.

He pointed out that A.G. Edwards & Sons has worked with the Romulus, Brighton and Saginaw school districts in refinancing outstanding debts.

While a timetable for refinancing the bonds has been confirmed, the pricing date of September 3 is subject to change depending on bond market conditions, Savage pointed out.

"The bond market has been stagnate for the last three weeks," Savage said. "However, it appears to be coming back."

"We'll be ready to go at the end of August, beginning of September," he noted. "Whenever the savings is adequate and the market is hot."

Savage noted that while they've identified September 3 for pricing, "we could go into December waiting for a favorable bond market."

"Everybody's going out for refunding proposals right now," Savage said. "The market is getting saturated."

In response to a question raised by trustee James Petrie, Savage said that "another beauty of the refunding is that it is all contingent."

"If the time comes that interest rates go through the roof, there is no expense unless the deal is completed."

"There are really no risks here," Savage pointed out. "It's all to the advantage of the school district."

Trustee bills township for electrical repairs

By KEVIN WILSON

DBW Electric, the contracting firm owned by township trustee Donald B. Williams, last week was paid $1,100 by the township for electrical work done at township hall.

The board of trustees authorized the payment August 8 as part of a long list of bills payable, a routine agenda item. Williams cast a 'yes' vote to pay the bills.

Township supervisor Susan J. Heintz said August 9, after The Record inquired about the payment the previous evening, that she has asked manager Bruno Scacchitti to draft a conflict-of-interest policy for review by the board of trustees at its next meeting.

Williams, a first-term trustee appointed to fill a vacancy a year ago and subsequently elected in November, said Monday night that he did not know the billing might present conflict-of-interest questions and that, had he known, he would have abstained from voting on the payment.

Heintz, who was chairing the meeting when the vote was taken, said that had she been "more alert" she "probably should have asked him to abstain."

She said she was certain Williams, only recently involved in government after years in private business, did not understand the potential for conflict.

Williams said he only supervised the work done by an acquaintance in the electrical field (not an employee of DBW Electric) and billed the township for their services.

He said the township has been "abused" by various mechanical contractors in the past and that the abuse is evident in the condition of township hall. Long-standing problems with the heating-and-cooling system have been a regular topic for board of trustees' concern, as has repeated deterioration of the brick stairway at the main entrance.

Williams said lights had never been changed in the office ceilings since they were installed eight years ago until he supervised the replacement. He said he also oversaw the installation of a new lighting system for the flag pole at township hall, partially in hopes of providing better lighting for the stairway. He also helped install a lighting system beside the steps.

"The thing is, nobody ever takes care of township hall," he said. "They need somebody to take charge of that thing. If there's anything wrong with (DBW Electric doing work for the township) I won't participate, but somebody has to take charge."

Heintz noted that the check paid to DBW Electric for $1,100 covered three separate bills for different types of work. Township purchasing policy requires three separate quotes (not formal bids, but written or oral estimates) and a board of trustees vote to authorize procurements costing more than $1,001. Three separate bills, each less than $1,000, would not fall under the policy requirements.

Williams told The Record in a pre-election interview last year that, if elected, he would not bid on township contracts, conceding that there would be a clear conflict-of-interest if he did. Township policy requires sealed bids only when costs exceed $50,000.

"The kids will rise up to the adversity," the superintendent noted. "They did in the spring."

Bell emphasized that high school classes will operate on a traditional school schedule.

"We feel this is the best plan under the circumstances," Bell noted. "The alternative to this, and the one being kicked around in the community, is split sessions."

"There is no sense in going through the fiasco of split sessions," the superintendent noted, particularly with the project completion date scheduled less than three months after the start of school.

"Ideally I think that by Thanksgiving everything will be done," Bell said. "By that time no one will be in Cooke."

In order for students to have adequate travel time between Cooke and the high school, a 10 minute passing period has been allocated. Classes are scheduled to run 50 minutes.

Bell noted that an asphalt walk currently is being completed between the two facilities to make travel easier.

While the parking situation still is under consideration, the superintendent said it seems likely that parking will be restricted in some areas.

Noting that work crews need access around the high school facility, he said it is possible that student parking may be limited.

"If we have to limit student parking," he noted, "seniors will have the first shot."

Some parking will be available at Cooke.

"We have actually done very well timewise," the superintendent noted. "We can't fault anyone for the delays," he said. "We knew this was going to be the case."

Noting that he's been criticized for "jumping into the middle school" reorganization at the same time as the high school renovation project, Bell said the closing of Cooke has eased the district's temporary housing problem.

"Picture yourself if we hadn't had Cooke right now," he said.

Letters explaining scheduling procedures and the temporary classroom accommodations will be sent to students and parents sometime next week.

To ease confusion during fall enrollment, schedules will specify both classroom numbers and buildings.

Resident assaulted

In the city . . .

One youth has been arrested on a felonious assault charge and a second was expected to be this week as a result of an incident July 20.

Police were called to a city residence on that date on report of a disturbance. The resident reported two white males, 16 to 17 years old, came to the door asking for someone named Daniel. One was blond with curly hair; the other had long, dark hair, police were told by the victim and witnesses.

The youths were told there was no one there by that name. Both the resident (victim) and witnesses reported the two suspects had metal posts in their hands. The resident, who had gone out on the sidewalk, reported he was struck on the right arm and on the back as he turned to re-enter the home.

The investigating officer noted lacerations on the right arm and scratches on the victim's back.

The officer found two posts lying in the front yard and confiscated them. The victim and witnesses said they could identify both suspects and, checking a high school yearbook, were able to give the name of one. He was picked up by police and released on $500 personal bond. The suspect in a statement to police said he had gone to the home but denied striking the victim. He is to appear in court in September.

Four persons were injured slightly in an accident at the intersection of Eight Mile and Sheldon at 11:38 a.m. August 5.

The accident occurred as Alfred F. Schorkhuber, who was driving westbound on Eight Mile made a left turn in front of an eastbound vehicle on Eight Mile. The investigating officer, who stated he noted the smell of alcohol on Schorkhuber's breath, requested a preliminary breath test, which was failed. Schorkhuber was bound over to 35th District Court and released on $500 personal bond.

Police report the Eight Mile-Sheldon construction has caused several minor accidents. On August 10 a Wixom resident was cited for failure to yield when turning left southbound on Sheldon. The other driver, eastbound on Eight Mile, sustained minor injuries.

. . . in the township

A 1985 Lincoln valued at $24,000 was stolen from the Northville Plaza Mall parking lot between 2 and 2:30 p.m. August 5, township police report.

The complainant told police he left the vehicle in front of Perry Drug and returned 20 minutes later to find it missing.

There are no witnesses to the incident. The vehicle was placed into the Law Enforcement Information Network.

Police noted the vehicle was locked and contained an alarm system.

Konrad appointed clerk

office before) but help with the elections," Konrad said of her familiarity with the duties.

She added that she looks forward to taking classes and becoming a certified municipal clerk, as was the former clerk. McAllister rose to become president of the state association of municipal clerks.

Walters noted that the appointment of Konrad fills only one vacancy of three, and creates another. Application deadline for the positions of deputy city clerk (vacated at the end of July when Mildred Hudolin took a job in Pontiac) and for a clerk in the finance department is today, with testing to be conducted Thursday evening.

Those two positions, and the city clerk's, are included in the clerical collective bargaining unit. Konrad was not a member of the bargaining unit as Walters' secretary, since the job entails access to internal management information.

Walters said that, depending upon the size of the pool of applicants and the results of testing, he may select a new secretary from the group applying for the other clerical openings or may have to advertise for someone to replace Konrad.

Since it is possible that the two clerical openings may be filled by current employees receiving promotions, Walters noted that it could be some time before city hall is up to its normal full employment level.

Under the clerical unit's labor contract, current employees get first shot at any openings.

Our Opinions

Law enforcement needed at NRPH

While those accused of murdering Greg Helzerman at Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital must be considered innocent until proven guilty, the rare prosecution for an alleged crime at the hospital raises serious questions about how we protect both the patients in mental institutions and the larger society from the violence evident in the mental health system.

While county assistant prosecutor Robert Sage is probably correct in his assertion that the real solution to the problem is in improvement of the mental health system itself, it is likely that even an ideal system will have to rely on continued enforcement of law through the police and court system if our hospitals are to remain orderly.

Assaultive behavior by some mental patients is a given. The difficult question faced by the legal system is whether the behavior is criminal or simply a symptom of mental illness. Michigan law tries to draw a distinction, allowing prosecution in some cases and not in others. Public perceptions that most patients in state hospitals are violent are far off the mark, though. Just as in society at large, there are far more potential victims than criminals in our hospitals.

Protecting those potential victims, both patients and staff, requires, just as it does outside the hospital, some police authority. Undersupervised and overpopulated institutions are equivalent to dense populations outside with little police protection — those inclined to criminal activity feel safe to take advantage of others, confident that nothing will happen to them as a result.

When three separate patients testify that Helzerman was being beaten in an open hallway prior to the alleged killing, we must wonder if anyone is safe in such a place. Mental competency and individual responsibility aside, that scenario is the equivalent of a mugging in broad daylight. The Helzerman case is only the latest and most astonishing of a long list of assaults reported at NRPH in the past five years. The local court sees cases of patients assaulting staff members. DMH's recidivist rights department deals with cases in which staff are accused of assaulting patients. In those instances, the difficult decision is determining whether the degree of force applied by a staff member is justifiable by patient behavior. Few such cases ever reach the courts.

What is clear to us is that the department of mental health has proven itself incapable of self-protection. Given the facts of this case and others, it isn't difficult to imagine repeated assaults against a patient over a period of time without the perpetrators ever being called to account. Only in a high-visibility killing is the prosecutor's office willing to devote the time needed to make a case involving witnesses who also happen to be patients. If we can prove some patients are sufficiently aware to be held responsible for their actions (and the law says we can), surely we can prove that other patients are capable of testifying against them. Difficult as it may be for the criminal justice system to deal with such cases, until a drastic re-ordering of the way we treat mental patients comes about, it is the best alternative we have available. It ought to be pursued more often.

City deficit news hides real gains

Despite the disappointment at not having fully eliminated the budget deficit as planned, city officials have reason to be happy with the progress made in the past year. News that a $60,000 bookkeeping error left red ink in the books at year-end should not overshadow the $280,000 gain made in fiscal 1984-85.

Assuming that the audit totals agree with the city's, the one-year-only, one-mill tax increase appears to have done the job it was intended to do. In combination with cost-savings made in earlier years that finally came into full play last year (DPW layoffs, for instance, carried with them some unemployment costs in the first year), the millage produced the greatest deficit reduction of this entire sorry episode dating back to 1981.

It should be noted that it was drastic reductions in state payments of parimutuel tax revenues to the city that produced the deficit to begin with, and that some restoration of this funding source (though not nearly to its former levels) is partially responsible for the city's progress.

Local efforts, though, have made it possible to eliminate the deficit and clear the way for more city improvements. Although not abolished by the end of June as hoped, the deficit appears to be gone as of mid-August, and only some terrible mishap in the remaining 10 months of the budget year should leave a deficit at year-end next June. The embarrassment of a human error in calculating the size of the deficit should in no way diminish acknowledgement of what has been accomplished.

Traveler shows spunk

It was hard not to notice her working her way down the aisle of the Boeing 747. The wind had left her hair nearly standing on end; bobby pins were dangling underneath the gray curls. As she took her seat beside us on the plane, I noticed the wrinkles in her pink suit and the stains across the front of her white blouse. When she said "hello," I realized she had forgotten her upper plate.

After spending nearly three hours in Heathrow Airport, we felt considerable relief upon taking our seats in the crowded plane. Looking forward to a little relaxation after traveling at a frenzied pace for more than a week, the anticipated calm was broken when our somewhat ruffled traveler initiated conversation by telling us about the crash of Delta Flight 191.

At that point, we both braved ourselves for a long trip home. What followed were stories of grandchildren heading off to college, travels to places unknown and conversations about the Queen Mother's 85th birthday. I suspected the seating companion was nearing or had surpassed the Queen Mother's milestone birthday.

After lunch, I glanced over to find she had dozed off. In many ways she reminded me of my own grandmother. Since my grandfather's death nearly seven years ago, my grandmother has made her yearly pilgrimage to and from Florida alone. I always have marveled at her spunk. While it certainly would be easier to make her Florida home a permanent residence, she continues to return to Michigan to be with her family during the spring and summer months.

My father's mother had been the same way. After her 90th birthday she continued her travels to California to see her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. If they couldn't come to her, she would go to them.

Up until our recent flight home, I never thought twice about boarding my grandmother on the plane for the trip to and from Pompano. There always is someone to meet her on the receiving end and through her own efficiency (triple checking departure times and seat numbers) there rarely is a foul-up.

I chuckled to think of my grandmother — who is never at a loss for words — talking to her seating companion about her three grandchildren and passing out photographs which date back at least 10 years. My grandfather used to refer to my grandmother as "Flash" because she never left the house without her instamatic.

Though we used to moan and groan every time she'd line us up for the umpteenth shot in the backyard, those photos now are the only documentation of our childhood years. Leave it to grandma — whose eyes were plagued by cataracts and who could barely see to walk down the front steps — to have exclusive photos of my first ballet recital, 10 years of trick-or-treating and more Christmas mornings than I can remember. Her camera was ready the day I visited my grandparents during a spring break trip to Ft. Lauderdale. I'm grateful my patience was intact that day as the photos were the last taken of my grandfather before his death only months later.

While waiting for our luggage after the plane had landed, we kept a careful watch on our seating companion to make sure she could manage her baggage. When her suitcases came around, a man standing next to her helped grab the bags and offered to call her a porter. Much to our surprise, this slightly disheveled woman hoisted a suitcase under each arm, flashed a toothless grin and marched off to the customs desk.

I once again thought of my grandmother. Before we left on our unexpected trip, she had commented that since the recent success of her cataract operation she thought she'd like to do some traveling. While I cringed at the time, I'm now seeing the possibilities of such an adventure.

However, before she leaves I'll have to scrape up a picture where I'm not wearing braces.

After the fact

PHILIP JEROME

Community newspaper editors are called upon from time to time to handle all kinds of problems — some serious, some not-so-serious, some personal.

Yes, it's true — personal.

I'm not sure why. Maybe people see newspaper editors as people who are used to handling problems.

Like the lady who stopped by last week to tell me her husband is upset with her.

"Why do you think that is?" I asked, my voice filled with empathy.

"It has something to do with his golf game," she said sadly.

"It's just that . . . well, he hasn't been hitting them all that straight lately.

"Like the time he teed off on the first hole and his ball hit a tree about 20 years down the fairway and bounced right back to him. It was kind of funny, so I started laughing and he got upset.

"It's even affecting the children," she continued. "He came back from playing a round with our son recently, and the boy was upset. When I asked him what was wrong, he told me his father cheats on the golf course.

"He said his dad hit one ball that went straight up in the air, so he reached out, caught it, dropped it on the ground and hit it again . . . and only counted it as one stroke!"

"Omigod," I said in amazement. "That is serious. Cheating on your golf score is one thing, but cheating on your score in front of your own son is something else.

"Do you have any idea what you're going to do about it?"

"Well, Mike has promised to start taking some lessons, but the pro took one look at his swing and said it looked like there were a lot of problems to correct.

"Other than encouraging him to continue the lessons, I'm not sure what I can do."

"It might be helpful if you would stop laughing when he hits a bad shot," I suggested helpfully.

"Are you kidding," she said. "And miss out on all the fun?"

Law we can live without

By Kevin Wilson

Over the next several months Michigan motorists who thought the seatbelt law was intrusive are going to learn the true meaning of government oppression. Under pressure from Washington, the state police are about to step up enforcement of the nationally mandated speed limit of 55 miles per hour.

That law has been on the books for better than 10 years, but this will be the first intensive campaign to enforce it in this state, excepting a brief period when it was brand new. The state's hand has been forced — a recent study shows more than 50 percent of the state's drivers were violating the limit last year. Exceed the half-way mark two years running and the feds threaten to withhold all of a state's share of federal highway money.

Given the deteriorating condition of the interstate system, Michigan can't tolerate the risk of losing the funds. So we're going to see the highways patrolled from the air in Michigan for the first time in over a decade and an intensive lobbying campaign to pass a law prohibiting sale or ownership of radar detectors. State troopers will be assigned more speed enforcement duties, and we can probably expect to see more radar traps along southeast Michigan's major routes — I-96 from here to Lansing and I-94 between Detroit and Ann Arbor likely to be near the top of the list.

All this expense and bother over a law President Reagan pledged to abolish during his 1980 campaign. All this in the face of a federal study that only months ago suggested the speed limits could be raised to 65 mph on rural interstate freeways. All this despite evidence that people honor the law more in the abstract than in reality.

It's as plain as day to any objective observer that the speed limit is about as sensible and enforceable as was Prohibition. The fact is that Michigan's numbers are fudged — far more than a mere 51 percent of the drivers travel at better than 55 mph. The official figure is an automotive version of the Heisenberg Uncertainty Principle. That's the theory from atomic physics that says the simple act of observing a phenomenon changes it. In this case, the presence of police cars and radar guns (setting off the thousands of detectors mounted in private cars) slows the traffic being watched.

More objective tallies report that 75-80 percent of the motorists on urban interstate highways are violating the speed limit. That's on urban freeways, where the traffic is heavier and the chances of encountering a police patrol car are greater. Compliance on the rural freeways must be near zero. Yet polls purport to show 75 percent of the populace favors the speed law. Either the polls include an abnormal number of non-drivers among the study group (possible if conducted within the city limits of New York, for instance) or there's a vast national hypocrisy at work here.

That contradiction arises because it is virtually impossible for a decent driver in a modern vehicle on today's freeways to travel at only 55 mph. When the speed limit was enacted as an energy-saving measure in 1974, the average car on the road was, by today's standards, overpowered, under-tired, under-braked and handled like an ore freighter. Today's fleet is better in every sense, more capable of travel at 70 mph than were the crates we trusted with our lives at that speed through 1973. The freeways were designed for travel at 70 (even 90 mph, if truth be known). Yet we are supposed to comply with an absurdly low limit, in the absence of any compelling reason to do so, on the basis of some highly questionable numbers.

Most statistics regarding the life-saving effects of the limit are mumbo-jumbo. Figures don't lie, but liars figure. Scare campaigns are mounted every year to tell us the highway death toll went up. But few analyze the figures to say why; the biggest factor appears to be more travel on highways now that the fuel crisis is but a dim memory. Separating the effects of the speed limit from those of safer cars, increased use of seatbelts, anti-drunk driving campaigns and the removal of obstacles from roadsides is virtually impossible. If the "lives saved" figure claimed for every safety improvement were added up, there would be no highway deaths at all — believe all the numbers and you believe in a world where we bring more people back alive than originally ventured out.

It would be absurd to argue that 55 is useless. Any idiot can see that hitting a solid object at 70 is more likely to kill you than is hitting the same object at 55. But the number of lives saved is probably minimal in comparison to the costs both for enforcement and in time lost. (A trip from here to Sault Ste. Marie is more than an hour longer at 55 than at 70 mph — a fact that should bear weight in a state whose second-largest industry is tourism). Those who claim it's worth it if it saves only one life aren't worth your time — if they really believe that, they ought to be campaigning for a speed limit of 25 or 10 mph, or even the abolition of the automobile.

Which is what we're really up against here: an intensive lobbying force that hates cars and would really rather that people stop using them. They're the modern-day equivalent of the blue-nose temperance forces who levered Prohibition into the U.S. Constitution. And their efforts are having the same effect, creating a nation full of people who violate the law on a daily basis. We should have learned from Prohibition that a law everyone violates simply makes criminals of us all and fosters a disrespect for the entire institution of law. In the area of traffic law alone, in my 14 years behind the wheel I've seen for myself a drastic increase in the number of people who travel at 40 in a school zone (a capital offense in my kingdom), run stop signs and red lights and generally behave as if no one else were on the road.

Finding a politician with the guts to tackle this issue rationally is tough — the safety lobby is loud, adept at manipulating the numbers and has a good portion of the national press snowed. That a majority of reporters love writing and hate mathematics makes the front pages prime territory for outrageous statements from Ralph Nader and his ilk. And bad press is not something politicians go after willingly. Consider this column bad press for those who would rather give you a traffic citation than write rational laws. Then write your local representatives — mass civil disobedience alone hasn't gotten the message through.

Why all the bother over parking areas?

To the Editor:

I fail to understand the continued controversy about downtown parking by people who work in Northville.

Northville has ample space for everyone — more parking places than any city or town I have ever seen — close to all stores, convenient, and free! Whenever I do park in town, my car is never more than a block from my primary store — with interesting shops, flowers, and parks in between. I think visitors to our city enjoy each and every block as we do.

I do have some concerns regarding traffic, however:

1. The rate of speed on South Main Street by the Ford Plant. This is clearly posted at 25 mph, but most cars exceed this limit.

2. Regular parking in handicapped spaces by cars without handicapped plates or cards, and cars double parked at doorways or stores, awaiting shoppers.

3. The excessive rate of speed and noise of cars on North Rogers to and from the subdivision over the hill. Clearly, it is not residents of our street (North Rogers) who roar through with loud radios, mufflers and obscene language, and who litter our yards with paper cups and hamburger wrappers.

I feel these problems are of more concern than risking a shopper having to walk a few extra feet to a store.

Thank you,
Jo Lazzari

Law slams Blanchard for insurance bill veto

Governor James Blanchard's executive veto of auto insurance reform legislation August 8 was sharply criticized by state representative Gerald H. Law (R-Plymouth) who called the governor's action "a financial blow to all Michigan auto owners whose rates will now substantially increase to cover the cost of Detroit's inability to curtail its auto theft epidemic."

Law added that the veto of H.B. 4715, reforms in Michigan's "essential insurance" regulations, reestablishes hostilities between Michigan's out-state population and the leaders of Detroit.

"The governor's veto message is filled with vagueness about the real reasons he vetoed this measure, and reflects poorly on his ability to represent the interests of the entire state," Law stated.

"Naturally, Detroit will pay higher premiums because of their car theft problems, but that is no reason for everyone in the state to get slapped with a premium increase as well."

The new legislation would also have established an automobile theft prevention authority which would aid in the crack-down against auto thieves to help keep down future rate increases. The dramatic increase in auto thefts in southeast Michigan is a major source of concern for insurance companies and a motivating force behind the insurance reforms.

In vetoing the bill, Blanchard cited "loopholes" in the bill that he claims could result in unlimited auto coverage premium increases for Michigan residents.

Law countered the governor's claim of loopholes in the act. "Vigorous enforcement by the insurance commissioner is all that is needed to close these so-called loopholes," Law said.

The vetoed bill, which passed both houses of the legislature by large margins, would have set new standards in the state's insurance code to allow Detroit rates to rise, without penalty to other regions of the state.

The state is divided into several "territories" that reflect the occurrence of auto claims. Premiums currently are lower in some parts of the state than others because driving patterns, accident rates and auto theft vary from one region of the state to the other.

The original bill received the support of 74 members of the Michigan House of Representatives and 26 members of the state senate.

"Exactly 100 of 148 state legislators support this free market approach to insurance rates, but yet the governor has decided to simply take the side of the City of Detroit," Law claimed.

"As the law stands now, every time rates rise in Detroit, they will also rise in Wayne County and in every other county in the state; even in regions where auto theft has actually dropped. By vetoing this measure, Governor Blanchard has caused what will be the beginning of an even more serious auto insurance problem," Law concluded.

High school students turn summer globetrotters

For 42 Northville High School students, a whirlwind tour through the cities of London, Paris and Madrid should offer plenty to write about when it comes time for the "What I Did on my Summer Vacation" essay.

The NHS language students and six high school teachers spent two weeks (June 17 through July 1) touring such sites as Versailles and the Louvre in France, shopping at Harrod's in London and relaxing on Spanish beaches.

Travel was by plane, train, bus, cab and hydrofoil, according to high school language teacher Emily Manschot, who helps sponsor the trip every other year.

"This is the biggest group we have ever taken," Manschot said, adding that this year's group had as many French students as Spanish students.

Manschot noted that while the trip originally was planned for Spanish classes, word that the tour would also include stops in England and France generated interest among students in the French classes.

The tour, arranged through Travel International (a California based agency), stopped in the major cities of London, Paris and Madrid as well as some of the smaller Spanish cities.

Students participating in this year's tour noted they did most of their sightseeing in Spain and most of their shopping in London and Paris.

While they visited most of the major attractions on the pre-planned tour, there were a few side trips such as a day at Versailles and a night at the theatre in London.

With students ranging in age from sophomores to Class of '85 graduates, interests varied accordingly.

For instance, Cathy Foster, who graduated in June, noted that "taking humanities really helped."

Manschot pointed out that for many students, particularly those who did not have the language skills or historical perspective, the initial reaction was "culture shock."

Only a handful of the 42 students had been to Europe prior to the June trip.

While most of the students had a hard time pinpointing one highlight of the trip, language teacher Marie Hopkins had little difficulty recalling her most memorable experience.

She noted that she met her brother in Paris — their first meeting in nearly six years.

Needless to say, many of the students documented the family reunion and have been swapping photos for keepsakes.

Manschot noted that while the program is designed to offer students a cultural rather than academic experience, they can receive a little extra credit by writing a term paper the first week of school. Students also kept journals of their trip.

Keegan resigns post as chamber director

The resignation of Kay Keegan as executive director of the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce, to be effective September 1, was accepted at the meeting of the chamber board last Thursday.

Board member Paul Folino made the motion "with deep regrets" as he noted that she assumed the post during his tenure as chamber president.

She began the part-time post October 1, 1979, following the retirement of Essie Nirider. Keegan said she was resigning to have more free time.

Jan Stevenson, board vice president, presiding in the absence of president Sherry Spaman, also expressed regret.

Keegan reported that Helen Geisler, a member of the volunteer committee assisting the chamber, had agreed to fill in until the annual meeting November 2.

At the board's July 18 meeting, president Spaman had stated she feels the chamber needs a full-time director. No action was taken as the board indicated it wanted to study the upcoming budget before making any changes.

Terms of four directors on the board are up this year. In addition, board secretary Midge Haynie announced that she would be resigning this year, although her term runs until 1986, as she and her husband are planning to retire to Fort Myers, Florida.

Terms of Clancy Ely, Terry Fraser, Sherry Spaman and Dewey Gardner expire this year. Fraser earlier had indicated he did not plan to run again, but was absent last week and unavailable for comment.

Jean Day was named chairman of the nominating committee composed of Stevenson, Scott Lapham and David Jerome, whose terms expire in 1986, and Betty Allen and Folino whose terms, along with Day's, expire in 1987.

The election will be held at the annual meeting. Any chamber member interested in running for the vacancies should contact a member of the nominating committee.

Board member Allen was assigned the preparation of an amendment to the chamber bylaws to be presented at the annual meeting. To qualify for tax exempt status, the chamber needs to have the bylaws contain provision for assets distribution in case of dissolution of the organization, she explained.

Keegan reported that a new color brochure about the community has been printed and is available. It contains a map of the Northville area as well as pictures of the Mill Race Village, Ford plant with the ducks, Northville Downs, the Farmers Market, town clock, the well, township welcome sign and Maybury State park.

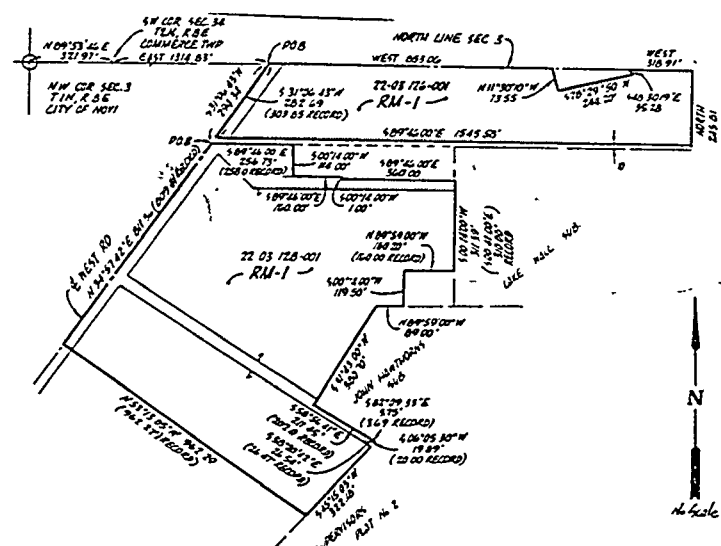

It was reported that the chamber building by the well was repainted in a work bee August 3. Appreciation was expressed to Mike and Betty Allen who organized the work bee and donated the paint.

Peddlers Four focus is 'best of country'

Rebounding from a slowdown in June, existing home sales recorded by Metro MLS climbed 12 percent in July to post a 48 percent jump from a year ago, according to Robert F. Craver, president of the multiple listing service.

Sales for this year are now running better than 23 percent above those in 1984, Craver added.

"The strong sales picture also may be bringing more sellers into the market," suggested Craver. The 3,889 new listings in July topped the previous month by 8.6 percent, but year-to-date listings remain some 17 percent behind the total for the comparable period in 1984.

Impacted by 250 sales of homes valued at more than $100,000, the average price for the month rose to $64,756 — a new Metro MLS record. July also saw sales of another 231 units in the $80,000 to $100,000 price range. The July average represented a 3.4 percent gain from June and an 11.2 percent increase from July 1984.

Signaling the strength of the market, the Metro MLS monthly report showed a sales-to-listings ratio of 49.6 percent. This is the highest level since May 1979, a month in which 486 fewer homes were listed.

The report also showed that conventional mortgages are being restored to 1979 levels when they were predominant. Conventional financing was used for more than 68 percent of sales by Metro MLS members in July to swell the year-to-date figure to 62 percent. Use of land contracts and assumed mortgages dropped to 9.5 and 7.8 percent respectively.

Livonia had the highest sales in the 1,600 square mile territory covered by Metro MLS during July with 195 sales at an average price of $65,564.

There were 149 sales in Farmington/Farmington Hills at an average price of $93,045; 118 sales in Redford Township at an average price of $45,026; 115 sales in Canton Township at an average price of $70,536 and 111 sales in Southfield at an average price of $73,758.

There were 234 Metro MLS sales in Northwest Detroit during July with prices ranging from $19,480 to $35,053.

You can find "the best of country" in Northville at the Peddlers Four on Mary Alexander Court.

The Peddlers Four opened its door to Northville November 1, featuring a wide array of country accents for the home as well as ample craft supplies.

But where's Mary Alexander Court? That's a question that baffles even some Northville residents.

Mary Alexander Court, known as the "alley" to some Main Street merchants, is tucked around the corner from MacKinnon's on Main Street in the downtown section.

The shop is owned by four people — Susan Barnes of Livonia, Marilyn Curtis of Sterling Heights, Joe Krause of Canton and Margene Mieras of Livonia.

The four business partners — all dedicated craftsmen — met at craft shows in Michigan. While each enjoyed showing and selling their work at craft shows, Barnes said the shows tended to get a little "gruesome" after a while.

So, the four decided to pool their talents and money to open the Peddlers Four.

Some of the items sold at the Peddlers Four include Basic Bears, folk dolls, ceramic ducks and limited country prints. Since each of the owners used to sell at craft shows, their own crafts are displayed among other store items.

With the store being so new to the Northville area, the most common statement customers make once they were in the store is, "I had no idea you were back here," explained Barnes.

For shoppers who have ventured down the "mysterious" court, the Peddlers Four was a surprising and very pleasing discovery.

To help aid confused shoppers or adventurous shoppers find the store, Northville City Council has agreed to place a sign by the clock in downtown Northville indicating where Mary Alexander Court is.

Barnes said business is getting better and better as people discover the store. Currently, the owners are funneling their profits into expanding their stock and widening the selection.

For people who are looking for a unique gift or country accents for the home, Peddlers Four may have exactly what you are looking for.

As you enter the store, the aroma of cinnamon-scented candles adds to the store's country-like setting. Candle holders, old-fashioned desks, dried flowers, mats, stoneware, metal folk art and pictures are some of the items to be seen at the Peddlers Four among the dozens of small knickknacks that line the counter and a few walls.

For craft lovers, the Peddlers Four has an entire room filled with different types of yarns and craft accessories, including folkwear patterns to make at home.

The items sold at the store are from various parts of the United States, so chances of finding the same picture or item at another store are slim.

"Northville's where it's at," Barnes said. That is the primary reason the four craftsmen decided to set-up shop in Northville. Barnes explained that Northville can be just as successful as Plymouth when it comes to small, unique shops such as the Peddlers Four.

The decision to open the store was a quick one. Barnes said when they discovered the space was available, the four had several meetings and decided to "go for it." So far, the sporadic decision has been a good one.

The Peddlers Four is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

DAVID L. PLATT of Northville, vice president, procurement and supply, Chrysler Corporation, will serve as an industrial unit group chairman for the United Foundation 1985 Torch Drive.

The announcement was made by R.S. Miller Jr., executive vice president, finance and administration, Chrysler Corporation and general chairman of this year's fund-raising campaign. The industrial unit is part of chapter campaigns, which together raise more than 90 percent of the Torch Drive total.

Although the economy has improved, costs have continued to rise and the demand for agency services continues to be great, the announcement states. This year's Torch Drive volunteer team will be asking, therefore, for increased contributions in order to meet agency needs as well as respond to the changing needs of the residents of the metropolitan Detroit area.

The reporting phase of the 37th annual Torch Drive will run from October 14 through November 7. The United Foundation Torch Drive raises operating funds for 127 charitable organizations in the tri-county area. Last year's Torch Drive raised $50.8 million.

JIM STONER of Northville has been appointed Regional Manager of the Great Lakes Region by the Aro Corporation. The promotion was announced by John R. Hamilton, general marketing manager.

Wolverine is a formulator and producer of refractory coatings, adhesives, facings, bindings and releasing compounds serving foundries throughout the United States.

Robert J. Thibideau, president of Wolverine, said the move was necessitated "due to the tremendous growth and expansion of our business. The larger 50,000 square foot plant has enabled us to add equipment that we just didn't have room for previously. Also, since the plant is located on seven acres of land, we now have room for future expansion."

The new plant includes approximately 4,000 square feet of office space with the rest of the space used for manufacturing and warehousing. New machinery includes manufacturing and bulk handling equipment.

Wolverine's new facility is located at 1109 Decker Road in Walled Lake.

College-bound need 'blue jeans' budget

College students need a "blue jeans budget," says the Michigan Association of CPAs.

"Write yourself a check once a week, and use only that money to pay for entertainment and miscellaneous expenses," recommends CPA Jim Wilson, who teaches a course in personal financial planning to college students. "Cash that one check each week and put the cash in the back pocket of your blue jeans," he said.

College is a good time to tackle the issue of fiscal responsibility. With the rate of increases in college costs outpacing the rate of family income, even students who have financial assistance from their parents need to develop practical habits about spending money.

The average college student doesn't have much discretionary income, so the key to solving their financial problems is budgeting. The hardest part of budgeting is writing everything down; but, it's the key to fiscal success.

To chart your budget, write down your monthly income and expenses for a full year, or perhaps only for the 10-month school year. Once you figure out what your monthly fixed expenses will be, you know how much is left for that weekly blue jeans stipend. If you maintain good records of all your transactions, CPA Wilson says you'll be able to meet your targets and you'll know where you're spending your money.

In the coming weeks, budgeting will be especially important to college students who are facing some big financial choices. Have you thought about the cost involved in living off-campus rather than on-campus?

If you live off-campus you may have better housing and more privacy than living in a dormitory. But do you want to pay for any commuting expenses? Have you budgeted for the utility bills you're likely to pay if living off-campus? How about food?

If you live off-campus, you may want to get renters insurance to protect your belongings. With renters policies, you could get partially reimbursed if your personal property is stolen. And if you're planning to live on-campus, you should check with the school's administration office about dormitory insurance.

Money Management

While property insurance is important, health and accident insurance cannot be neglected.

CPAs say you should make sure that you're covered under your parents' health insurance policy and are not too old to be eligible. Graduate students especially should be careful about this. If you're not an eligible dependent in a group health insurance plan, you should compare the cost and benefits of your college's plan with those of private individual's plan.

Once you decide where to live, you should have a pretty clear indication of what your fixed and discretionary expenses will be. If your fixed and discretionary expenses are greater than your income, there's a simple solution: Get a job.

Colleges offer students jobs on campus as part of the federal financial aid program. The programs are usually based on financial need. If you qualify for the work-study program, you also may want to check out other possible sources of financial aid. The federal government sponsors grant and loan programs which will disburse $16 billion in 1985.

Whether you work in the college work-study program or decide to get a part-time job off-campus, you may have a tax planning question: Should you have money withheld from your paycheck?

A single college student who has no investment income can earn up to $3,430 in 1985 and not pay a single penny in federal income taxes. In other words, you can make $100 a week for eight months of the school year and have no income taxes withheld. And you won't have to file a federal income tax return at all.

Many students who earn less than $3,430 needlessly have money withheld from their paychecks, CPAs say. They make the common mistake of claiming one exemption on a Form W-4, which your employer should ask you to fill out when you begin working. But by simply checking off the "exempt" line on a W-4, you can avoid filing for a refund. The money that would have been withheld usually comes in handy for students.

GTE Sprint announces free long-distance calls

Detroit Metropolitan area residents and businesses selecting Sprint as their primary long-distance service will be offered one hour's worth of free long-distance calls by GTE Sprint.

The offer is directed to customers in the greater Detroit area who become eligible for equal access or "1-plus" dialing during July, August and September of 1985. Customers must sign up prior to their equal access conversion date, set by the local telephone company, to qualify for this offer.

Sprint also announced a program which will allow new customers to try Sprint's Direct Dial Service without risk.

"We designed these promotions to encourage people in the greater Detroit area to use Sprint's Direct Dial long-distance service as equal access gets underway, and to eliminate any risk they perceive in signing up with Sprint by providing a money-back guarantee," said Cheryl Kurtzman, program manager for Sprint's Direct Dial Service.

The one hour of free calls is based on Sprint's night/weekend coast-to-coast rates. Customers in designated local areas will receive a credit for calls made during the second month of usage following equal access conversion.

GTE Sprint is also offering a risk-free guarantee, allowing customers who select Sprint and later choose to change back to AT&T (within 90 days after equal access is available) to receive a credit against the fee charged by the local telephone company. To be eligible for this offer, customers must have signed up with Sprint by the equal access conversion date in their area.

Information about these offers may be obtained by phoning Sprint at (800) 521-4949.

GTE Sprint, a subsidiary of GTE Corp., is the third largest long-distance telephone company in the United States. Its network extends more than 100 million circuit miles onto six continents and reaches more than 80 percent of the world's telephones.

Anhut to preside over state board

John Anhut, president of the Botsford Inn in Farmington, has been elected president of the Board of Directors of the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce.

Anhut has been a member of the board of directors since 1979 and served as a vice chairman since 1983.

State Chamber Directors also endorsed four new policies. The policies include:

- seeking the phase-out and eventual elimination of the tangible personal property tax to improve the state's business climate;
- the establishment of a clearinghouse for information on the cost of business-related crime and passage of anti-shoplifting laws;
- participation in a Chamber Federation Federal Political Action Committee; and
- the establishment of a comprehensive tort reform system.

Anhut stressed the continued challenge faced by Michigan job providers in dealing with economic development and other issues vital to positive growth in Michigan.

"The State Chamber of Commerce is committed to economic growth and can lead the way in the expansion of job opportunities in Michigan," said Anhut.

State senator offers overview of business trends, legislation

In a "continuing effort to inform businessmen and women in the 6th Senate District on business and government issues," State Senator R. Robert Geake (R-Northville) has prepared a report on highlights of small business and industry trends and legislative initiatives reforming day-to-day business operations in the state.

BUDGET: 1985-86

The state budget was approved at $5.9 billion for the 1985-86 fiscal year beginning October 1.

That figure is an eight percent increase over last year's budget totals. One of the big winners in next year's budget is education at all levels.

The largest portion of the budget approved by the Legislature was the Department of Social Services allocation. Michigan's Department of Corrections will receive a $51 million increase to build five new regional prisons.

WORKER'S COMPENSATION

The long-standing issue of worker's compensation reform has finally passed the Legislature and subsequently was signed into law by Governor James Blanchard.

Some key changes: a January 1, 1987, termination date for the law where a new definition of disability will go into effect; a new small claims procedure for cases under $2,000 — no attorneys required; preponderance as evidentiary standard, with substantial standards taking effect October 1, 1986; allowing medical testimony when a party inadvertently fails to provide a deposition.

The result of the negotiations proved that an earlier controversial statement by Attorney General Frank Kelley claiming that the current law did not expire was not shared by experts in the field.

MEDICAID

In an effort to place the $1.5 billion Medicaid program in a private/public sector competitive arena and thus cut soaring health care costs, Geake states his proposal would permit the state to retain its policy-making functions but would contract out the financial risks and day-to-day operations of the program.

"This would ensure the state would pay no more than is absolutely necessary to provide quality care," he reports.

Between 1973 and 1983 Medicaid expenditures increased 237.5 percent while the number of recipients rose 32 percent.

He says, "We must enlist the talents and resources of the private sector to streamline our Medicaid program so it is more responsive to the taxpayers and providers of Medicaid services." The Senate, he adds, has passed the bill and it will receive the attention of the House sometime in the fall.

TAX REFORM

It appears there will be some form of early rollback on the income tax, but the question has not yet been resolved as to when and how. The House of Representatives seeks to set the rollback date at May 15, 1986. In addition, the Senate would like to increase the personal exemption from $1,500 to $1,750 to reflect inflation. The figure has not been raised since 1975.

The House and the Governor want to raise revenues by increasing taxes on banks and insurance companies and establishing a tax amnesty program, Geake says, adding, "I expect this issue to carry over through the summer and be the top agenda item during the new fall session."

BALANCED BUDGET

The balanced budget resolution, a resolution urging Congress to balance the federal budget, has proponents who will make another attempt to push it through the Michigan Legislature this fall with the inclusion of a new provision — "the call for a constitutional convention would be rescinded if the discussion and scope of the meeting goes beyond its intended purpose."

Earlier this year, the Michigan House of Representatives fell one vote short of passing such a resolution. A successful attempt would have made Michigan the 33rd state adopting it — enough to call a convention. Look for this issue to gather tremendous publicity on the national and state level sometime in the fall, predicts Geake.

SMALL BUSINESS FACTS

- The number of small businesses has increased steadily during the past 30 years — they now employ 48 percent of the private work force.
- One of every two new small businesses will fail within the first four years of operation, studies show. Overall, a firm's chance of survival increases with size: firms with 20 or more workers have a 20 percent greater chance of survival than smaller firms.
- Small firms have led employment gains during the economic recovery and expansion.

- Studies show the incidence of innovation among small business workers is significantly higher than among workers in large businesses (by as much as 2.5 times.)
- Almost every energy-related innovation of the past century has come from small business.

FREE PRODUCT ADVERTISING

General consumer products (not industrial) can be listed free of charge in a new joint venture program between the State of Michigan and a private firm. By calling 906-992-7760 company information will be listed on a computerized network which allows other companies to locate in-state suppliers. The name of the program is Michigan Products Information Exchange (MPIE). It is endorsed and promoted by the Michigan Department of Commerce.

LIQUOR LIABILITY INSURANCE

The cost of liquor liability insurance has skyrocketed to the point where approximately 50 percent of the restaurants and bars in Michigan are not insured. However, as much as affordability is the problem, says Geake, the availability of liquor liability coverage is now shrinking. These are legitimate concerns for restaurants, bars, country clubs, bowling alleys and all dispensers of alcohol in Michigan.

CUTTING RED TAPE

Michigan's office of the Business Ombudsman was established in November, 1983. The office helps business clear the channels of communication, simplifying contacts with state government. A response to the caller is promised within 72 hours. The toll free ombudsman's number is 1-800-232-2727.

BAD CHECK PACKAGE

In a new procedure that will make it easier for businesses to recover losses from bad checks, merchants can now sue to recover their losses, plus twice the amount of the check. Penalty provisions against bad check writers have been strengthened, while simplifying the prosecution of offenders. A third protection calls for "code dating" of checks, mandating that the new personal checking accounts have imprinted on the face of each check the month and year in which the account was opened (Public Act 277 of 1984.)

SMALL CLAIMS COURT

The small claims court filing limit, previously $600, has been boosted to $1,000 for 1985 and will increase to $1,500 in 1986, enabling more small businesses to take advantage of the court's quick and inexpensive process.

EQUAL ACCESS TO JUSTICE

Small businesses, occasionally faced with either complying with an unreasonable state requirement or paying the burdensome legal costs of fighting the bureaucracy, can now be reimbursed for the costs of defending themselves against a frivolous state action. Public Acts 196 and 197 of 1984.

WOMEN BUSINESS OWNERS

The Office of Women Business Owners was established in November, 1983, to provide information and help on financing, business planning, management and marketing to women entrepreneurs. Its number is 517-373-6224.

Geake points out that dozens of firms have said "Yes to Michigan" in recent months.

In addition to the decision by General Motors to create 17,000 jobs through its EDS subsidiary and Mazda's investment commitment of $450 million for its Flat Rock assembly complex, Crossett Co. has committed $3 million to a food processing plant in Saline and Steelcase has announced a $40 million expansion of its west Michigan manufacturing facilities.

Monitor Sugar is investing more than $38 million in modernizing and expanding its sugar beet processing plants, Kellogg Company is investing nearly $10 million in Edmore and GMP Robotics chose Oakland County as the site for its assembly, research and office complex and will begin construction in the next few months.

Geake notes that the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce record shows his voting record in support of business is 91 percent.

Builders' group claims favorable home market

With mortgage interest rates at their lowest level in five years, housing construction remains high, and customers across the nation are flocking into the new home market.

With the surge in house shopping, one of the questions asked most frequently by consumers is, "Should I buy now or wait to see if interest rates will drop even more?"

The answer depends on market conditions and each consumer's circumstances. But looking back over time, there are very few instances in which consumers would have profited by postponing a home purchase.

As a general rule, if a person wants to buy a house and can afford to do so, waiting rarely pays. By waiting, a consumer is gambling that interest rates will drop faster than home prices will rise. It's not a smart gamble, according to the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan.

Trying to predict movements in interest rates is very risky. Even expert economists disagree on their predictions. Interest rates can be influenced by national and international factors, some of which can be quite unexpected. For instance, the failure of a savings and loan association or the threat of war in the Middle East could cause mortgage rates to fall. You never can tell.

The cost of waiting can be especially expensive for people who do not already own a home. The American tax system heavily favors ownership. There are obvious benefits, such as the deduction of mortgage interest and property taxes. There also are less obvious ways, such as the fact that you may never have to pay taxes on the appreciation of your unit.

Consumers who are at least 55 years old are permitted a one-time exemption from paying taxes on up to $125,000 in appreciation realized from the sale of their primary residences.

If you are under 55, you can still avoid paying taxes on appreciation realized from the sale of your home as long as you buy another unit which is at least as expensive as the one you sold within two years. With most other investments, you have to pay taxes on your interest or dividends each year.

A house is a heavily leveraged investment — you can earn a lot of money by putting down a little. For instance, if you put $7,000 down on a $70,000 house and in a few years it has appreciated only 10 percent, you still have doubled your investment.

Buying a house also may involve many important non-financial considerations. Owning a house can provide security and stability: no more dealing with landlords, no more worries about condominium conversions, no more threatened evictions or surprise rent increases. Owners are much more in control of their own destinies.

Never rush into a home purchase without first exploring your options. But once you have found the unit and the financing package that best suits your needs, do not hesitate in the hope that you can obtain a better deal in the future.

If you are tempted to gamble on interest rates and house prices, remember that the stakes are high and the odds are against you.

Northville's BEST

A factory? A gas station? Picks are bound to surprise

By B.J. MARTIN

Any time you evaluate side-by-side the disparate architectural styles of a community like Northville — a town built by and for people with strong individual tastes — you're going to strike sparks. That's why we enlisted someone else to take the heat in our project of finding the best buildings in Northville.

Thankfully we found an enthusiastic volunteer in Walter F. Coponen, who caught our eye with his designs for the proposed downtown multiple-use building now being developed by The 108 Group.

In creating those plans, Coponen faced an intriguing philosophical challenge. The building he at last proposed incorporated his respect for the rich history of its immediate environment, yet it wasn't an unimaginative, artificial re-creation of outdated architectural forms. It was a design that acknowledged 19th-century and 20th-century influences.

For that reason, we thought Coponen could provide us with a provocative list of buildings to consider, including some eyebrow-raising choices. We would have been disappointed if everybody agreed with them.

We weren't disappointed.

Among the buildings Coponen selected for their architectural importance and quality are homes, a factory, a diner, and even a gas station. We agree they represent a good cross-section and historical perspective of the community's development.

"Northville always impressed me as an undiscovered jewel," says Coponen. "The way the city is laid out, the different styles of buildings in it... what Michigan city can you compare it to? It's unique, a real architectural jewel."

Clockwise from The Record's front door at Main and Center, then, let's sample some of these gems:

1. SUNOCO STATION, Main Street at Wing: Many people hate this building because its curvy facade is way out of fashion. Coponen admires it for the same reason. "There are very few gas stations like this left," he says.

"That early-50s style of modern architecture tried to capture some of the dramatic style of the cars of that period. If you think about the look of a classic '56 Buick or '56-57 Chevy you'll see some similarities. Those curves are coming back now in some new buildings influenced by the Bauhaus school."

2. 404 WEST MAIN: Previously, this residence was the Ebert Funeral Home and, in the 1890s, a "Gold Cure" treatment center (for alcoholism and drug addiction). "The cupola (archaic term: widow's watch) makes it a good example of Italianate style," Coponen observes. "One of the nicest homes in

Walter F. Coponen

For two years, an upstairs office at 108 North Center has been the headquarters of Walter Coponen and Associates architecture firm. A City of Northville resident and member of the Historic District Commission, Coponen graduated from Lawrence Institute of Technology and has taught at the University of Michigan School of Architecture. Among his nearby professional work is the senior citizens' housing project in downtown Farmington and the new exterior construction at Genitti's Restaurant downtown.

the city." It dates at least as far back as 1864 and boasts attractive interior woodwork.

3. OLD VILLAGE SCHOOL, Main Street: A classic federal-style school building, it was built for $75,000 in 1916. Especially noteworthy are the arches over the Main Street entrances, and choice of materials.

Coponen also admires the newer (built 1937) Main Street School next door, a recipient of national honors for its design. "It's a very clean and simple Bauhaus design," Coponen says. At the time it was built, Northville's self-image as a historic community had not yet been formed, and its bold design was seen as a real sign of progress. "Today, I don't think something like that would fly," he adds.

4. 109 NORTH ROGERS: Another Italianate (Coponen says Italianate and Cottage Gothic styles are Northville's best), the trim is particularly refined and delicate. "I really like delicate woodwork like this," Coponen says with admiration. "Definitely one of my favorites." It was built in 1880.

5. 512 DUNLAP: One of several Dunlap Street homes Coponen highlighted ("Practically any house on Dunlap is going to be great," he says), this Italianate features "a gorgeous tower," Coponen notes. "That was in keeping with the architecture of its time (around 1883), especially in seacoast towns. It was used for light, ventilation and to admire the view." Coponen also admires the woodwork of the eaves supports.

6. 412 DUNLAP: Built by one Mark Ambler in about 1890, the detail and woodwork around the porch make this a classic Queen Anne style residence. "I really love this one," Coponen says. "The scroll supports around the porch are really well done."

7. 317 DUNLAP: This brick Italianate-style home features sharp detail over the windows and an unusually shallow roof ledge. Built in 1882, it boasts twin parlors downstairs.

8. 126 RANDOLPH: An example of the cozy Carpenter Gothic style, this home was built in 1873 and features careful improvements made nearly a century later.

Coponen compares Cottage Gothic trim with paper cut-outs, and indeed, the trim of this home has a fine lacy quality.

9. CLOVERDALE RESTAURANT, 134 North Center: "This is an unusual commercial district building," Coponen says. "It's reminiscent of English row houses with the little dormers cut in it. It really doesn't resemble the surrounding buildings at all. You wonder how it got built where it did."

10. FORD PLANT, Main Street at Griswold: It's a factory, sure. But its incorporation of the water wheel into its overall design turned it into something more, Coponen opines. "It's unique; it does have architectural character and importance," he explains.

Despite a minor dispute over its storage of parts racks in its parking lot — and a lack of vegetation that has since been somewhat remedied — Coponen's a staunch defender of it. "I think one of the most remarkable things about it is its siting. Ever since it was built, it's been an important part of this town. I certainly don't think it's at all detrimental."

Two more structures Coponen wanted to emphasize were difficult to illustrate for the purposes of this article. One is the beautiful Royce home at 547 West Main (on the southeast corner of Rogers).

So effectively shrouded by foliage,

Author Kienzle signed for Friends' dinner

By JEAN DAY

It's just mid-August, but the number of September dates already reserved promises that fall will begin with a full schedule of activities.

Geraldine Mills, president of the Friends of Northville Library, reports she is excited about "one of the biggest money makers anyone could have." Monday evening, September 30, the Friends will hold a dinner for 100 at Genitti's with mystery writer William Kienzle as guest speaker.

"It's all going to be a gift," the Friends' president explains. Genitti's again is donating the dinner, and, when Kienzle, who lives in Southfield, learned about the Friends, he decided to donate his time.

"I think the men will enjoy him," Mrs. Mills adds. At $15 a person, the dinner should make possible many library projects.

Gerry Mills, who was just back last week from a brief vacation at the family cottage at Cedar on the west side of Lake Leelanau, mentioned she also was pleased with the more than $600 raised at the Friends' booth at the sidewalk sale August 3.

Tivoli Fair and Autumnfest coming in September

With a full roster of juried artisans and crafts persons, the Tivoli Fair September 27-28 at Northville Downs is a don't miss weekend.

Northville's downtown merchants are planning to expand activities at the Autumnfest weekend (being held concurrently with the Tivoli Fair) that welcomes the new season. Autumn officially begins September 23.

Dee Richardson is seeking non-profit organizations who would like to make money for their own causes by participating in the Autumnfest. She asks any interested groups to contact her at Northville Camera or Kris Broderick at Northville Gallery of Flowers.

Newcomers, Boosters set September dates

New arrivals in the community are being invited to the annual membership coffee of Northville Newcomers. It will be Thursday evening, September 5, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at First United Methodist Church on Eight Mile at Taft.

Newcomers president Ina Hacker invites all women who have lived in the Northville School District five years or less to attend.

The first September Newcomers' couples event will be a trip to see the Tigers play the Baltimore Orioles September 13.

Northville Boosters' Club again is holding a clambake cooperatively with Northville Charley's. Hold September 15 for this.

Congregation says farewell

Members of the congregation of First Presbyterian Church said farewell to their organist David Heinzman after the Sunday service July 28. As he left to begin doctoral studies in California, he was presented with a "going away" gift of $500 from an appreciative congregation.

Professional finish

The smithy shop nearing completion in Mill Race Historical Village received special treatment as stonework was completed in July by stone mason Cevin Valade, left, who now lives in Wayne but is a former Northville resident and 1969 graduate of Northville High School. A stone mason for 10 years, Valade learned by apprenticing, as Doug Lewis, his assistant, is doing, below. Record photos by Steve Fecht.

Twelve Oaks seeking Fashion Guild volunteers

Sheila Armstrong, marketing director at Twelve Oaks Mall, believes most women have trouble relating to fashions when they're being worn by 6'4" professional models gliding up and down a runway.

So, she's decided to introduce a new concept at Twelve Oaks — a "Fashion Guild" comprised of local women who are fashion-conscious but not professional models.

"I've always admired the attractive shoppers we have at Twelve Oaks and thought it would be exciting to have some of them represent the mall in fashion shows, advertising and public relations efforts," said Armstrong.

"From a marketing standpoint, the Fashion Guild is right on target," she added. "The trend toward using non-professionals in marketing and advertising is a natural outgrowth of identifying with people who are more representative of our lifestyles.

"By using the non-professional, an audience can identify with the fashions and envision themselves in the outfits being modeled."

Members of the Fashion Guild will be selected from applicants by an interviewing process. Modeling experience is not necessary, but applicants should be interested in modeling and fashions, as well as learning to improve themselves.

Application forms and requirements for the Fashion Guild are included in a brochure at the customer service desk in center court. Application deadline is Saturday, August 24.

Coordinator for the Guild will be former Miss America Pamela Eldridge. A Farmington Hills resident, Eldridge has a strong background in modeling, dance, public speaking and personal appearances.

Participants will receive fashion training and guidance as well as many complimentary services and gifts from Twelve Oaks stores. Instruction will be given on modeling, public speaking, make-up application and fashion direction.

Fashion Guild members will model for Twelve Oaks and individuals stores at the mall in fashion shows, photo sessions and seminars. They also will be involved in public relations activities such as working with the media, helping to host special events and participating in speaking engagements.

To improve their fashion consciousness, Affiliated Models will give members a course in modeling skills and techniques. Affiliated Models, the largest modeling agency in Michigan, books models throughout the United States.

Linda Hack, co-owner of Affiliated, said there are many women who have potential to be fashion leaders, but haven't had the information to take them "from pretty to smashingly attractive."

"We are excited about working with Fashion Guild members to help them develop their individual styles to their fullest potentials," she said.

Northville's best buildings

this giant Italianate home was impossible to photograph. "It was a remarkable home when it was first built," Coponen explains. "But what I really admire about it is the way the addition (built in 1977) was executed. It's a textbook example of everything right about how to add onto an historical home."

Also tough to photograph, but certainly well known to all Northville residents, are the downtown blocks of commercial and office buildings along the north and south side of Main and the east and west sides of Center.

"The distinctive front each of the businesses or stores has is really unique in Michigan; there's hardly anything like it at all," Coponen says.

"It's really emblematic to an extent of the different styles that have come and gone — it's impossible to duplicate it. So many downtown areas are all done in one unified style — you lose the buildings' individual character."

How did the different store fronts along Main and Center develop? At one time, the stores lining the streets were all wood — and many still are, structurally. But as individual store owners replaced or improved their individual property at different times, each piece of architecture took on the look of the period when it was built.

While neighboring shopowners probably groaned each time some new-fangled building facade was erected, the blocks' present look is a delightful hodgepodge Northville residents can be proud to call home.

Early lapses doom Northville Blues in NABF World Series

Abolish the first inning and the Northville Blues would have done just fine in the NABF Junior Baseball World Series over the weekend.

Yep, take away that first inning and Northville's representative in the national championship tournament outscored their opponents by a margin of 11-3.

But, oh, that first inning. The Blues were outscored 17-3 in the first innings of their three tournament games, and in the final analysis those early deficits were just too much to overcome.

The team from Pikesville, Maryland, ended up claiming the championship, coming out of the loser's bracket to beat Ace Paving from Bremerton, Washington, two straight games to win the title in the double elimination tournament.

And Ed Harp, coach of the Northville Blues, found solace in the fact that both his team's losses came at the hands of the top two teams.

The Blues dropped an 8-7 decision to Bremerton in the opening round. And then, after knocking off Brooklyn Palmieri from Brooklyn, New York, by a score of 8-6 in the second round, the Blues were eliminated from further contention when they suffered a 6-1 setback at the hands of Pikesville in the third round.

"I think it was significant that we lost to the eventual champions and the eventual runners-up," said Harp. "We had an excellent team this year and we demonstrated that we were in the same class with the best teams in the country."

What he didn't say was that the Blues might very well have demonstrated that they were the best team in the country if only it hadn't been for that first inning.

The pattern was set in Northville's opening game, an 8-7 loss to Bremerton in which the Washington club scored seven times in the very first inning.

The Blues took a 1-0 lead in the top of the first when Jeff Tanderys doubled home John Lobbia. But the lead was short-lived as Bremerton routed Northville pitching ace Brett Loomis with seven runs in the bottom of the first.

Loomis walked the first three batters he faced, gave up a pair of singles and then walked three more batters before Harp brought in Chris Kloc in relief. Kloc was touched for a two-run single by the first hitter he faced, but then settled back and hurled a masterful game, surrendering just one hit the rest of the way.

Despite the early 7-1 deficit, the Blues battled back to knot the score. Two runs in the fifth made it 7-3 and the Blues made it 7-7 with a four-run rally in the sixth as Tanderys belted his second double of the game, and Brett Belliston, Mike Tabaczynski, Eric Kapelanski, Jeff Harp and Lobbia added singles.

The Blues' remarkable comeback proved fruitless, however, as Bremerton scored in the bottom of the seventh to salvage the 8-7 victory. A walk and a sacrifice bunt put Scott Russell on second, and Tom Worthe then connected for a single to drive him in with the winning run. Ironically, it was only the second hit surrendered by Kloc who had held the Washington team hitless since the first.

First-inning woes again troubled the Blues in their second game against Brooklyn Palmieri. But this time the Northville squad was able to come back and pull out an improbable but thrilling 8-6 victory in 10 innings.

Palmieri collected four runs in the first inning as Rafael Espada's home run was the key blow. Northville scored twice in the bottom of the first to make it 4-2. Brooklyn went ahead 5-2 in the fourth, but the Blues tallied once in the bottom of the fourth to make it 5-3 and then knotted the score with a pair of runs in the bottom of the seventh with some outstanding base running.

With Mike Yard, pinch-running for Brett Belliston, on second base with two down, Jeff Harp hit a high-bouncer toward second. Yard who was attempting to steal third never stopped running and came in to score on the infield single as Harp beat the throw to first with a head-first slide.

"It was incredible base running," said the Blues mentor. "I've never seen such hustle by two baserunners on the same play. When Yard came in to score from second base on an infield single, it was just fantastic."

Brooklyn went ahead 6-5 in the top of the eighth, but the Blues again knotted the score when Doug Martin raced home from third on a passed ball. And the Blues won it 8-6 in the bottom of the tenth when Tanderys cracked a long homerun over the left field fence with Martin on second base.

Northville's bid for the championship came to an end in the third round, when they suffered a 6-1 setback at the hands of Pikesville.

Once again, the first inning proved disastrous. Loomis again ran into early trouble, giving up three hits and a walk before being replaced by Kloc with one out. The Blues' defense also suffered first-inning difficulties, committing a total of three costly errors that permitted Pikesville to score all six of its runs.

Kloc again turned in an outstanding relief job, giving up no runs and five scattered hits the rest of the game. But this time the Blues were unable to launch one of their comebacks and ended up on the short end of the 6-1 decision despite outhitting Pikesville 10-9. Harp had three hits, while Lobbia and Tabaczynski each had a pair of hits to spark the offense.

"It was an outstanding series," commented Harp, coach of the Blues. "Kloc was outstanding, giving up just 10 hits in a total of 17 innings."

"Plus our offense was producing. We collected 30 hits in those three games, so we were hitting the ball well. It was the first inning that did us in. We just couldn't get past that first inning."

The tournament wraps up a highly successful season for the Blues who finished with an overall record of 19-6. Northville won the Little Caesar's Amateur Baseball Federation championship with a 17-3 slate during the regular season.

Ideals about athletic values exemplified in local programs

By B.J. MARTIN

This is the second part of Kids Sports, a three-part series on youth sports in the Northville- Novi area.

To twist some familiar lines, to every sport there is a season: a time to win, a time to lose, a time to teach and a time to learn.

That that phrase rings as true, albeit not as profound, as the life-observations of the Biblical poem from which it's adapted says something about how sports is something of a model of life in our competitive society.

Critics who maintain that sports simply reflect our characters rather than mold them are correct to a point — if they are talking about all-too-frequent abuses of the competitive spirit for egotistical reasons.

But in many memorably instructive local instances, it is easy to find examples of the underlying idealism which still exists in athletics — and ways winning and losing seasons alike can become sources of strength and inspiration to participants.

Winning's important but it's not everything

Northville Coach Dennis Colligan completed up an advanced hands-on course in the winning dynamics these last two years. In a tough football conference, the Mustangs were at least as tough as any team except the somewhat superhuman Hawks of Farmington Harrison.

In 1983, Colligan fully expected a winning season — and got one with a crew of experienced seniors. But when they graduated, he frankly expected a mediocre one last year — it was to be a season, he said at the outset, in which success would be measured by how fast his players learned and dedicated themselves to improving and executing together.

Instead of the 2-7 record one newspaper predicted, Colligan's team in 1984 demonstrated unanticipated reserves of ability and dedication, and were the biggest surprise in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

"The important thing about winning," Colligan says, "is watching your hard work paying off when you've dedicated yourself to a cause."

"Football, to me, is the most team-oriented game there is. I think we've been successful largely because we've been stressing cooperation and seeing through our goals as a team. We get our guys to think: 'We can do it, I can't.' I believe that has a lasting effect on developing the ability to work and relate to other people."

A case in point: when running back Van Buren broke the Mustangs' single-season rushing record last year, he treated his teammates on the offensive line to dinner. It's clear Colligan's lessons stuck in the unswollen head of at least one player.

In sports that stress individually-based effort in the pain-staking development of a winner, realistic goal-setting is also a recurring theme. Novi Track Coach Bob Smith's team fortunes rise and fall from year to year like many others — but the dedication it takes for a track team to win meets in the tough Kensington Valley Conference calls for not just short-range goals, but goals attacked and achieved over a period of years.

"We do have a team won-loss record, and it's important," Smith acknowledges. "But with every meet, we've really got 250 won-loss records. Maybe for a freshman runner it's breaking 60 seconds in the quarter-mile so he can get down near 50 seconds by his junior or senior year. I can get as excited about a guy who goes 17 feet in the long jump for the first time because he is developing the winning habits that will help him feel good about himself in later life."

As coach of one of last year's most dramatically improved teams, Northville Women's Basketball Coach Ed Kritich managed to lead his team's emergence from a conference doormat to one of the Western Division's toughest contenders. While Kritich is proud of how his team accomplished that feat, he's equally proud of how they didn't accomplish it.

"I think it's as possible to create a negative attitude on a winning team as it is to create a positive attitude on a losing team," Kritich says. "Coaches have an important influence on youngsters, more than a lot of people realize."

And Kritich is frankly dismayed at how many coaches don't have their players' best long-range interests at heart. "I'd say maybe 75 percent of the varsity basketball coaches I see try to violate, if not the letter, at least the spirit, of MHSAA rules for their own egos."

"It's the kids who get hurt," he explains. "They get them practicing in so-called 'non-required' drills all summer and feed the girls this line that if they keep winning, they'll have a chance at getting college scholarships."

"Hey, the percentage of kids who get college scholarships is so little, it's just not fair to the kids to get their expectations up that way. I refuse to do it."

And losing is not the end of the world

"Some years you have the horses and some years you don't. But I think you can learn maybe more on a losing team as on a winning one," says Novi Football Coach and Athletic Director John Osborne.

Just a couple years ago, Osborne's Wildcats were one of the KVC's most formidable squads, with an explosive offense and a smart defense that emphasized execution and containment.

Last season, at 1-8, the Wildcats lacked experience and size — it was a tough year.

"In a situation like that, you learn to deal with adversity. It can be a humbling experience. But if you can survive, you'll have made yourself real strong."

"When you don't have some of the physical things — size, speed — to overpower an opponent, you're forced to find resourceful ways to win a game — and when we won our Homecoming game last year it was a tremendous thrill."

Northville's varsity softball team faced the opposite problem in its up-and-down spring. It wasn't a lack of talent, but inconsistency in the dedication of some of the team members that in part accounted for the Mustangs' losing season. While their coach, Sue Heinzman, agrees it's all right to have fun, she doesn't discount the value of dedication lightly.

"I'm afraid that if kids don't take the game somewhat seriously, they're not going to learn what it takes to make a commitment to other people," explains Heinzman.

"A lot of our girls were mostly out for themselves. For a lot, their social life was more important."

"If they'd take the game seriously, they'll learn something that will help them later on in life. I think it (dedication) teaches them not to quit and how to give up something for someone else, in this case their teammates."

"To me, that's what teamwork is about. When you're hiring someone for a job, you don't want someone who'll just let her part slide so that you have to make up for her."

Participation rates high in rec programs

While recreation teams in Northville are geared toward learning and participating rather than winning, it's acknowledged that older leagues are proving grounds for high school teams.

In baseball, it's hard to say which is more important to the high school player — summer league or varsity action. But in soccer, there's little question.

"The high school team gets a 16-game schedule, at least," notes Northville varsity soccer coach Dave Yezback. "Before this year, rec leagues offered only eight. This year we'll have 12, which is better, but..."

As it is, recreation soccer leagues serve as a sort of surrogate junior varsity, with two important exceptions: 1. Fewer games, as we noted; and 2. A player can't play on a high school team and a recreation team in the same sport during the same season — therefore he can't be called up to the varsity after proving himself against lesser competition.

Also, there is a rule in Northville youth soccer that applies to all teams: every player must play at least one quarter in each half of every game — while that's good in that poor to mediocre players are able to improve their skills, it means the number of athletes who really get in hard serious play during a fall season is limited to only those players who regularly play on the varsity.

"Sure there's a demand for a junior varsity league," says Yezback. "If you could see the other rec teams, how many players they have who really want to play, you'd know the demand is there. Also, since soccer's such a subjective game to evaluate, having a JV would help coaches if they make a mistake and cut some player who turns out to be really good in a game situation."

Despite limiting the playing time of some particularly talented players, the recreation soccer rules governing minimum participation time are important to follow: coaches, players and parents should all be aware of them.

A rule similar to the play requirement in soccer exists in Northville Community Recreation basketball: each player must play a minimum of eight minutes per half, and no player can play a full 16-minute half.

And in the Northville Junior Baseball League, coaches are required to make certain that each child plays at least two innings in the field. Additionally, every player on the team is listed in the batting order which is followed top to bottom regardless of who is playing in the field during the particular inning.

Local racer hopes successful appeal will yield victory

By KEVIN WILSON

Local race car driver Tim Evans expects to finally discover this week whether or not he won a race July 6-7. What he and the Shelby Dodge Charger team he drove for that weekend believed was a clear victory in class was reported as a second place in official tallies by SCCA workers.

The team, Evans explained, has appealed the ruling that the car driven by Evans, Car and Driver magazine staffer Don Sherman and Charlie Henry was three laps behind after 24 hours of racing at St. Louis International Raceway in the SCCA Playboy Endurance series for showroom stock cars.

An initial protest resulted in a change showing the team's Class SSA (showroom stock A) Dodge Shelby Charger on the same lap as, but still behind, the class-winning Nissan 300ZX of Tom Kendall, R. Max Jones and Morris Clement. This week's appeals board decision will consider the team's evidence that it was clearly ahead of the Nissan.

"What we think happened was that the Shelby team ran two cars, and somewhere in the night the timing and scoring crew gave some of our laps to our other car," Evans said. "They were painted the same, and when you race 24 hours and through the night it would be easy to mix them up. We know the other car was in the pits for about eight laps, and the timing people probably credited it with our laps."

Evans said he isn't too hopeful of being awarded the victory on appeal. "They seem to be pretty intent on not changing the results," the Brookland Farms resident said. "It would be a nice surprise if they did, but we're not counting on it."

The series, a new one this year, was heavily criticized after the first 24-hour race of the season when it took several days to determine a winner.

The second-in-class placing would still remain Evans' best for this season. He was classified last at the Detroit Trans Am when his Fiero broke down after only three laps. He and friend Bill Bayley piloted a showroom stock Pontiac Firebird to a 14th place finish July 4 at Lime Rock, Connecticut, in a six-hour IMSA Firestone Firehawk endurance race.

ferent rules. The IMSA series requires all entrants to use Firestone tires and bans some faster cars (Corvettes and the Porsche 944 turbo). The SCCA series allows the faster cars and carries a major incentive — a $50,000 purse for any overall winner of a race who uses Goodyear tires.

Evans said competing in the two series back-to-back provided an astonishing contrast as he switched from the big V-8 powered, rear-drive Firebird at Lime Rock to the turbocharged, four-cylinder, front-drive Shelby Charger at St. Louis for a grand total of 30 hours racing in four days.

"It was interesting," Evans said. "Thursday night (July 4, after the IMSA race) I got a half hour sleep. Then there was Friday qualifying and the 24-hour race beginning Saturday."

The team clocked a 1:50.55 time around the 2.2 mile circuit in qualifying, good for a 71.6 mph average and the 16th starting position, near the class pole (the front of the field was packed with Corvettes and Porsche Turbos, which between them took the first ten places in the race).

Evans said he is "pretty sure" he clocked the fastest race lap for SSA shortly after dawn July 7, near the end of his last night-driving shift.

"They were telling me to slow down, and someone told me it was the fastest race lap. I didn't really go out to cut fast laps, it's just that the car was running so good," Evans said. "Partially, I think, it's that you have to be so precise at night, then the daylight comes and you can see everything. It was cool, good weather for the engine and we were getting real good power."

Evans, Sherman and Henry guided the little missile around more than 707 laps of the circuit (the Nissan was credited with 710, the other Shelby Charger of Garth Ullom, Jack Broomall and Neil Hannemann with 698 and fourth in class) for a total mileage of better than 1,555. That's an average 65 mph — not much until you figure in the twisty track, hours of darkness and pit stops for fuel, tires, new brake pads and driver changes.

Evans said he doesn't expect that will be his last endurance race of the season. He's lined up to drive the Firebird in an 8-hour Firehawk race at Elkhart Lake, Wisconsin, on September 15, and again in a three-hour Firehawk run at Watkins Glen, New York, on September 28 and 29.

He is still holding open the possibility that, rather than running in New York, he'll be behind the wheel of the Charger again in Ohio. A 24-hour race at Mid-Ohio race course is scheduled that weekend and the Shelby people have asked him to stay available.

It makes a certain amount of sense if you believe, as they do, that he just helped win a race for them.

MORE THAN A RASH . . .

Impetigo is more than a skin rash. It is a bacterial infection of the skin usually caused by Streptococcus and Staphylococcus. The lesions of impetigo are scaly, red, and round. Tiny blisters form and fill with amber fluid or pus. Yellow or brown crusts eventually form over each infected area.

Because children's skin is less well developed than that of adults, impetigo is more common in children. It is a highly contagious condition and can be transmitted from one body part to another and from person to person by contacting the skin lesions.

When impetigo is extensive (several lesions or large lesions), a prescription oral or injectable antibiotic may be needed. A few small lesions will often respond to self-care which includes (1) frequent washing with soap and water to gently remove crusts and (2) application of an antibiotic ointment to kill bacteria.

Antibiotic ointments are available without prescription and contain chlortetracycline, neomycin, bacitracin, gramicidin, and/or polymyxin B. These infection-fighters are often combined so that a variety of different bacteria might be killed.
