Delays force change in high school plan

By MICHELE M. FECHT

Inclement weather coupled with an unfinished roof, misplaced building materials and potential safety hazards posed by unfinished construction have dashed the hopes of opening even part of Northville High School next Tuesday.

School Superintendent George Bell told the board of education Monday that high school students, grades 9-12, will be registering for split sessions to be held at the former Cooke Junior High facility.

The split schedule will be implemented for a 10-week period, beginning Tuesday and continuing through November 8.

Sessions will run from 7 a.m. to noon for juniors and seniors and noon to 5 p.m. for freshmen and sophomores. High school principal David Bolitho said some flexibility will be built into the schedule to allow students in athletics and other extracurricular activities some leeway.

Bolitho, who currently is working with assistant principal William Hamilton on restructuring the high school master schedule, said all scheduled classes will be offered.

However, he noted the administration still is trying to find an appropriate time to offer courses with a mix of grades (such as 10-12).

The superintendent said he made the decision to close the high school campus following Monday's rainstorm.

Noting that both thundershowers and the potential for rain have stalled completion on the roofing project during the past few weeks, Bell said rain poured through gaps between the existing and new roof during Monday's torrential downpour leaving the facility drenched.

"What if what happened this morning, happened next Tuesday?" Bell asked the board, noting that under the present conditions he could not assure safety for students housed at the

"I will not have kids in room if it is leaking," Bell said. "And there is not a place where the roof isn't leaking."

"The situation is far worse now than it was two weeks ago," he added.

While most of the water left by Monday's storm was cleaned up by custodians and maintenance personnel, administrators noted there was some damage to areas of the facility — including new construction.

New housing increases enrollment

By MICHELE M. FECHT

An increase in new housing combined with residential growth has put a wrench in the school district's enrollment projections for the 1985-86 school year.

School Superintendent George Bell told board of education members Monday that early enrollment projections indicate unanticipated increases at all levels of K-12 with the most dramatic increase in the elementary schools.

In his opening of school report, Bell said the district already has hired three additional teachers at the elementary level as a result of enrollment increases.

He noted that at the end of June there were 1,208 K-5 students. As of August 22, some 1,224 students were enrolled in grades K-5 — an increase of 16 students as opposed to the district's expected decrease of some 50-60 students at that level for the new school year.

The superintendent said the most dramatic enrollment increase has occurred at Amerman where some 44 additional students have been registered. The district anticipated enrollment at Amerman to be about 432 students. As of August 22, some 482 students were registered.

Increases at Silver Springs and Winchester have been less dramatic. The 378 students currently registered at Silver Springs bring enrollment close to

Ayers may run against mayor if more candidates enter race

By KEVIN WILSON

Handicapping this November's city council election just got a lot tougher with the announcement by city council member Carolann Ayers that she has taken out a nominating petition for a possible run for mayor.

Ayers said Monday she is "seriously considering" entering the mayor's race, even though it would force her resignation from the council in the middle of her term. Incumbent Paul Vernon last week declared his candidacy for a fifth consecutive two-year term and Eugene (Bud) Kunz also has nominating petitions circulating.

Candidates for the non-partisan November 5 election must file nominating petitions bearing a minimum of 50 and a maximum of 75 signatures of city electors in order to get on the ballot. Petitions are available in the city clerk's office and can be filed after Labor Day. Deadline is September 30.

A deciding factor in whether she files for mayor, six-year council veteran Ayers said, will be the strength of the field of candidates for city council seats.

"I just hope there are plenty of candidates for council," Ayers said. "To be fair about things, I have to file my petitions in time to allow someone to file for the remaining two years of my term."

Under city charter provisions, Ayers cannot run for mayor without first resigning her council seat. If she awaits the September 30 filing deadline, however, the council vacancy would occur too late for inclusion on the November ballot. Council would then have to appoint a member to serve out the remainder of the four-year term Ayers was elected to in 1983.

"I'd really hate to see council appoint someone to a two-year term," Ayers said. "If I do it, I definitely want my position to be filled in this election."

If Ayers files a mayoral candidacy and resigns from council in early September, other council candidates would have the opportunity to choose to run for either a four-year or a two-year term. At least one winner of a four-year term will be a non-incumbent, since council member J. Burton DeRusha announced that he is not seeking reelection to his expiring term. G. Dewey Gardner is in contention for re-election to council. The two top vote-getters in the November election will get four-year council terms.

Ayers said she began giving serious consideration to a run for mayor after learning that Gardner would not oppose Vernon this year, but would be a candidate for mayor in 1987.

"Personally, I'm disappointed that Dewey did not run," Ayers said. "I think he's ready to be mayor. I'm just not into this programming of things, saying this person will run one year and somebody else two years from now. I understand people have personal and political reasons for doing that, but it's not my style."

Kunz was more critical of Gardner's announcement, calling Gardner's coupled support of Vernon and his early announcement of a candidacy for 1987 evidence of "cronyism. That's a big part of what's wrong with this town and why I'm running. There's too much cronyism."

Ayers said she is interested in running for mayor because "in a small town, it's a good idea to give the electorate a choice. I think I would be an additional, good choice for mayor."

She was critical of the charter language pertaining to incumbent council members seeking other elective positions in city government (when it was written, city electors also chose a justice of the peace, but today the only other elective city office available is that of mayor).

The provision, part of section 5.1 of the charter, requires incumbent elective officers to resign their positions when becoming candidates for any elective office other than to succeed themselves. A further qualification says elective officers need not resign if their terms expire at the same election in which they seek another office. (A Record story last week that said Gardner would have had to resign in order to oppose Vernon is incorrect, according to the latter qualification, since Gardner's term expires in November).

"I know we are slated to review the city charter and I really think it should be looked at," Ayers said of the provision. "It seems to me the charter favors long-term mayors. It definitely encourages a situation where most challengers to a mayor will be people not currently on council. Then, because the challengers are not necessarily the most-experienced or well-informed challengers, the incumbent mayor is almost certain to win."

"I think the election aspect of the charter is definitely something we should consider changing, not just because of my situation, but because it

Record wins NNA awards

For the second consecutive year, Northville Record reporter Michele Fecht has won a top award from the National Newspaper Association (NNA).

She received second place nationally for her feature article, "Facing Death," a story about Northville resident Bill Gears, in the newspaper's circulation category. Record editor Jean Day has been notified.

In 1984 she received first place award for her column, "Remembering Life on the Farm."

Judges in the NNA's 1985 National Better Newspaper Contest also selected "The Record" to receive honorable mention in the General Excellence category in its circulation division.

The Record's sister publication, The Novi News, received third place award for General Excellence in the circulation category.

Judging in the general excellence category includes all sections of the newspaper as well as all editorial aspects — writing, reporting, editing, photographs and other graphic elements, layout and headline writing.

The General Excellence awards are the top honor in the nation all newspaper competition which drew more than 3,000 entries from the country's best weekly newspapers.

Additionally, the Record received honorable mention for "Year in Review" in the special sections' category.

The News also received honorable mention recognition for Excellence in Typography (graphics).

Steve Fecht, staff photographer for Novi/Northville, received honorable mention recognition for a photograph which appeared in The Milford Times last year. The Times is one of six weekly newspapers in the Silger/Livingston Publications chain which includes The Record and The Novi News.

Both The Record and The Novi News also have won numerous awards in the Michigan Press

Outgoing commissioner gives Downs racing dates

One of state racing commissioner William S. Ballenger's last actions — if not the last one before he was replaced Monday by Governor James Blanchard — was to award 88 dates of harness racing between January 1 and April 12, 1986, to Northville Downs.

Rumors that were circulating even as Ballenger announced the early awarding of the dates were confirmed with the appointment Monday of former Wayne County prosecutor William Cahalan to replace Ballenger, a holdover from the Milliken administration.

The 88 dates granted to Northville Downs to begin the harness racing year reflect the maximum number of dates in their application.

What is unknown now is whether the allocations will hold under the new commissioner.

"This is what we don't know — we're going to try hard (to keep them)," stated Margaret Zayti, longtime Downs recording secretary, Tuesday morning.

In awarding the dates, Ballenger stated: "The 88 dates will be one less date than Northville was originally granted for the current year. Unfortunately, Northville Downs and their dates became a pawn in the legal battle involving the sale of the Detroit Race Course, and Northville's dates this year had to be reduced from the original 89 to 78."

"The 88 dates I have allotted Northville Downs represent a long overdue increase of dates for their race meeting, the first such since 1976, when they had 87 dates from January 1 through April 10.

"The award for 1986 reverses a decade-long trend of steadily eroding the number of dates granted Northville Downs through manipulation of the calendar by the owners of Hazel Park and DRC.

"Yet in spite of losing dates year after year during the best racing weather and being forced to run under frequently abominable conditions," the statement continued, "Northville Downs operators have maintained a positive, innovative attitude that has resulted in the largest percentage increase in daily average wagering and state revenue during the past decade of any Detroit-area track."

Ballenger explained, "By adding matinee programs in 1984 and 1985 to accommodate the abundant horse supply during wintertime, average daily betting at Northville has increased almost 60 percent since 1976, even while their date allocation shrank 13 percent."

He said the allocation for 1986, therefore, "rewinds the clock" and restores to Northville the number of dates they once had and that, based on their performance, "they clearly deserve."

As he stated he had begun completion of next year's pari-mutuel horse racing schedule, the commissioner also awarded up to 200 dates of thoroughbred racing to Ladbroke DRC from March 21 to November 16, 1986, and 67 dates of weekend thoroughbred racing to Mt. Pleasant Meadows.

The remainder of the Detroit-area harness calendar — nearly eight months — can be divided between the Hazel Park and Jackson-at-Northville meets, "if and when their applications are received on time," Ballenger had stated.

He initially reported that Ladbroke DRC, Mt. Pleasant Meadows and Nor-

Chamber seeks nominees for Citizen of the Year

Nominations for the annual Citizen of the Year award are being sought now by the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce.

The award, traditionally a surprise to the recipient, will be presented at the annual chamber dinner meeting November 2 at Meadowbrook Country Club.

Individuals as well as organizations may make nominations, chamber president Sherry Spaman said.

She emphasized that "because a nominee wasn't picked in a previous year does not mean that he or she was not a good candidate — I hope we will have return nominations."

Spaman, chamber board member Scott Lapham and Norma Vernon, last year's recipient, are the selection committee for this year's award.

"Just being nominated is an honor," Spaman added.

Nomination forms are available at the chamber office by the well on Northville Road during office hours, 9 a.m.

to 1 p.m., or by calling the chamber, 349-7640.

Nominees may be residents of either the city or township.

Positive contributions to the Northville community, offices held in civic, professional and church affiliations, participation in city or township organizations, hobbies and other interests are considered in selecting the Citizen of the Year.

This will be the 10th year the award has been presented.

First recipient was the late Jan Reef in 1976.

Others were former Northville Mayor A.M. Allen, 1977; the late postmaster John Steimel, 1978; former chamber director Essie Nirider, 1979; attorney Philip Ogilvie, 1980; former Record editor and author of "Northville — the First 100 Years" Jack Hoffman, 1981; former Record publisher William C. Sliker, 1982; city council member and mayor pro tem G. Dewey Gardner, 1983; and Mrs. Vernon, 1984.

Special meeting set for township budget review

A special meeting of the Northville Township Board of Trustees has been called for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, September 3, for consideration of the supervisor's budget proposal.

Under the recently adopted charter township form of government, department heads must submit proposed budgets to the supervisor by the end of August.

According to township clerk Georgina Goss, the budget for calendar year 1986 will include the addition of two or three additional staff persons. Topping the list is the hiring of a new deputy treasurer with credentials as a graduate accountant.

Township manager Bruno Scacchitti

last week sent township board members a memo detailing changes in the treasurer's office he said are necessary to comply with charter township provisions. Former deputy treasurer Sydney Herral has been named administrative assistant while the township seeks a graduate accountant to become deputy treasurer.

Charter township provisions regarding financial reporting are considered much stiffer than the general law township requirements that prevailed prior to May, when the board of trustees voted to incorporate as a charter township.

Besides a provision changing the fiscal year to coincide with the calendar year, the charter township act also requires adoption of a budget for the following year by November 1 annually.

Goss said township treasurer Richard Henningsen will be out of town beginning September 10 and trustee Richard Allen is on assignment for Ford Motor Company in the southwest until late autumn. By scheduling the special budget meeting September 3, she said, it is hoped Allen can attend during his Labor Day break. Awaiting the regular monthly board meeting September 12 would mean proceeding with initial budget preparation without Henningsen, something supervisor

Susan Heintz said she does not want to do.

Offices closing for Labor Day

Both city and township offices will be closed Monday for the Labor Day holiday.

Northville Public Library also will be closed.

When it reopens Tuesday, the library will begin its winter schedule — Monday through Thursday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.; closed Friday; Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Rotary taps another winner

Four Northville residents are among the seven winners in the Northville Rotary Community Calendar drawing held August 20.

Ferguson, James R. Crain and Shari Allen.

Other winners in the weekly drawing are Charles Coe of Mt. Clemens, Dennis Henderson of Wixom and Paul Dobry of Plymouth.

County computer network to enhance citizen services

By KEVIN WILSON

Not busy enough running Northville Township, tracking the People Mover as a SEMTA board member, chairing the Rouge River Watershed Council and serving various roles in the Republican Party, Susan Heintz last month accepted another appointment by county executive William Lucas.

Lucas named the township supervisor to co-chair, with Dearborn Mayor John B. O'Reilly, a committee to coordinate computerization of county records with the needs of local government.

Her hectic schedule notwithstanding, Heintz was clearly excited by the possibilities inherent in the recently purchased IBM system. County officials expect to have most of the system operating for their own in-house uses by the end of 1986, but Heintz said the most enticing element of the plan to local government is to follow.

Property ownership and tax records from the register of deeds, election records from the county clerk and many other bits of information currently available only at the City-County building in downtown Detroit will be accessible through computer terminals in each local government office when the system is completed, she said.

"The land records are probably the one's we'll use most," Heintz said. "Right now, people come into township hall to research a piece of property — find out who owns it, if the taxes have been paid, whether there are any liens on it — and we can't give them up-to-date information."

'The technology ... wasn't even available to do this 18 months ago.'

— Susan Heintz
Township supervisor

Such a visit to township hall yields only the latest name and address to appear on the annual tax bills. But late tax payments, title changes and the like are often recorded in county offices and do not appear on the township tax roll. "We can only help people up to a point, then we have to send them downtown," she said. "This would probably benefit our residents more than some others because we're out here in the corner of the county and it's a longer drive into Detroit."

In essence, the computer network would bring the information to the citizen rather than requiring the citizen to go to the information, Heintz said. "We'd have a terminal in this office and could tap right into the register of deeds records, or the clerk's records, and get the information citizens want right up on the screen immediately," she said.

When the plan was presented to elected community leaders last month, Heintz said, there was some concern expressed about how the cost of operating such a system would be divided and whether the local government would need to hire workers to perform functions presently performed by county employees.

"That's the kind of thing our committee will look at," she explained. "The county is computerizing to make its own operations more efficient and less labor-intensive. Some people are worried that one way they'd do that is lay it off on local governments."

Heintz said she expects Northville Township could simply train its own employees to operate the system without needing to hire additional people. She noted that the current staff has adapted well to the township's own computerized systems and that improved productivity generally offsets any additional work required.

Beyond the record-keeping functions, Heintz said the possibilities of a computer network linking all 44 local governments and the county have barely been examined.

"The technology to do it right wasn't even available to do this 18 months ago," she said. "We won't know until we study it more what other things it might do for us."

Drivers caught at Six Mile and Northville roads Monday morning could have snorkeled their way beneath the overpass. Torrential rainstorms not only flooded the intersection at the overpass but created a mud slide near the Cedar Lakes construction site. Wayne County workers Keith Tesner (above left) and

Anderson takes reins in recreation office

By B.J. MARTIN

Welcome to Northville, John Anderson. Oh, and would you please have the preliminary 1986 recreation budget ready for the township business manager by September 1?

It was just about that quick a baptism by fire for Anderson, who started his duties as Northville recreation director last week. The former Troy recreation supervisor wasn't in a very good position to announce grandiose new programs for the department.

"I've seen some things in our facilities I'd like to change or develop," Anderson says. "But it's really early for me to tell what we can and can't do."

He noted that no sooner would he complete his budget for township officials than he would be faced with another mammoth chore: administering registration for fall sports programs. "And when that's done," he added, "the next immediate thing is getting out our next bulletin. Whether I'll have time (to review the department's long-range plans) after that, I'm not sure."

He identified Ford Field and the training fields west of Sheldon in the township as recreational facilities he would like to upgrade when possible.

"I've been kind of playing with these budget numbers, but I think any expansion of existing programs and facilities might be one or two years away. Right now, there are a couple leaks in the (Community Center) roof. Those can't wait a year."

Anderson hasn't yet begun to hunt for a residence in or around Northville for himself, his wife and his three children — eager as he is to do so. "I haven't had time to look around or to talk to a realtor," he says. "It's a nice area, though."

He concedes the City of Troy's large department spoiled him somewhat.

"One of the biggest things I'm trying to get used to is that there really isn't a full-time park maintenance staff under the department. We're responsible for hiring people, usually kids in school, on a part-time basis, and having to work around their schedule. "I'm coming from a program that had a parks' foreman and 11 full-time workers," he said.

Anderson added that so far he has been pleased with the work of the two other full-time department employees — especially by Traci Johnson, acting recreation director prior to Anderson's arrival on the job August 19.

"It wasn't like I came into the office and there were all kinds of things to be done. Traci had all the things like the bulletin and fall activities registration schedules done. She's a very well-organized person. I was impressed."

Park schedules nature programs

Several nature programs are scheduled for the Nature Center at Kensington Metropark near Milford, including two Labor Day walks.

"Dog Days," a program about August, will be held at 1:30 p.m. Thursday. "Insects and Spiders," a one-hour program about the characteristics and habits of insects and spiders, will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

"Birding," a two-hour walk emphasizing the identification and characteristics of local birds, will be held at 10 a.m. Sunday. Participants should bring binoculars.

"Warm Weather Friends," a one-hour program about those fascinating reptiles and amphibians, will be given at 2 p.m. Sunday.

"The Labadies of Kensington," a one-hour program of discussion and a walk to the Labadie homestead, will be given at 10:30 a.m. on Monday, which is Labor Day.

"Animals Labor, too!," a one-hour walk concentrating on the work that various animals engage in, will be given at 2:30 p.m. Monday.

"Evening Nature Cruise," a 1½ hour tour aboard the Island Queen, will be given at 8 p.m. Tuesday. A park naturalist will be aboard to answer questions and point out park features. There is a charge of $2 per person. Participants should meet at the boat rental dock.

Advance registration is required for all programs, most of which are free. A vehicle registration permit is required. Contact the center at 1-800-552-6772.

Oakland 911 emergency phone system routes calls to proper police agency

Northville City Council likely will consider participating in an Oakland countywide 911 emergency telephone service at its September 9 meeting.

Oakland would be the first large county in Michigan with a countywide 911 emergency system if the joint local-county agreement is approved by the County Board of Commissioners.

The proposal has been referred to the Public Services Committee until all local units respond. Novi is among communities that have already agreed to participate.

The county has offered to fund the entire cost of installing the 911 system. It also would share on a 50-50 basis the annual cost of the service.

Northville's annual cost would be approximately $652. This amount was determined on the basis of a tariff schedule which uses the number of "mainstations" to determine the cost of the service. A mainstation is defined as a telephone connected to a central office with a unique telephone number. Northville presently has 1,325 mainstations.

The local share will rise as the number of mainstations increases. The city's cost also would be subject to any change in the tariff schedule as established by the Public Service Commission.

City manager Steven Walters said the council was awaiting only a cost projection and word about how the system would deal with Northville straddling the Oakland-Wayne county boundary before deciding whether or not to participate.

Northville Township, which is entirely within Wayne County, currently has 911 service. City residents dialing 911 get the township police dispatcher, who must forward calls to the city dispatcher. Council sought assurances that city participation in the Oakland County system could differentiate calls between city and township and that callers in the Wayne County portion of the city would be able to contact city dispatchers through the Oakland 911 system.

County Executive Daniel T. Murphy has suggested the plan would take 18 months to implement.

"Presently there are more than 100 emergency numbers throughout Oakland County, making it impossible for residents to have those numbers memorized should they have an accident away from home. A 911 service would end that confusion," Murphy told the board of commissioners when he presented the plan in July.

The county executive proposed having the county pay for the telephone wire installation ($412,000) and 50 percent of the recurring costs for local communities.

These recurring costs would amount to $292,000 a year for the county government and $292,000 to be split between the 63 local units.

"The county would be responsible for system planning, coordination and liaison of 911 services through the division of EMS (Emergency Medical Service) and Disaster Control," Murphy explained.

Communities would be responsible for on-line public safety dispatch center operations. That means local units would determine where their 911 calls would be taken and what level of service and equipment they need.

Once the 911 plan is implemented, a person anywhere in Oakland County could dial 911 and a local dispatcher would answer. The dispatcher would ask the nature of the emergency — police, fire or EMS — and the location of the caller. The dispatcher would then alert the proper agency.

While the countywide system has been discussed for years, only recently has the technology become available for implementation, according to deputy executive Patrick Nowak.

"Michigan Bell was not ready (until now) to deal with Oakland as a whole," Nowak said.

The problem for the telephone company was the overlap of telephone exchanges and local government boundaries. For example, the "349" exchange serves not only Northville, but much of Novi. The "471" exchange serves Farmington and part of Farmington Hills in Oakland County, plus much of Livonia in Wayne County.

In time, Nowak said, it will be unnecessary for the caller even to give his or her location, because the dispatcher will be able to determine it by computer when the call is received.

"That way, if an elderly person has a heart attack, can't speak but can only dial 911, the dispatcher will be able to know where the call is coming from."

The entire states of Maryland and California are wired for 911 service, he noted. In Michigan, Kalamazoo County is entirely wired. Bay and Berrien counties also are scheduled to implement the system in mid-1986. But none of these counties have a population of more than 200,000. Oakland's population is one million.

A recent public opinion survey of Oakland County residents showed 90 percent of those polled desired a 911 emergency number system, according to Murphy.

Discussion of the service goes back to at least 1972 when then-commissioner Joseph Barakat of Madison Heights introduced a resolution to study the concept. The technology was not available until 1981.

AAA kicks-off campaign

Program focuses on bus safety

To reduce accidents and fatalities involving school buses, AAA Michigan is holding a series of statewide traffic safety education programs as part of its 1985 "School's Open/Drive Carefully" campaign.

"Most deaths and injuries involving school buses occur after students leave the bus and are struck by a passing vehicle or by the bus," stated Robert Cullen, AAA Michigan Safety and Traffic manager. "The major reasons for the mishaps are carelessness by the student or bus driver or the failure of passing motorists to halt for red flashing lights when the bus is stopped."

There were seven fatalities involving school buses during the 1984-5 school year compared to eight the previous year and an average of six over the last eight years. There were 1,448 school bus accidents in 1983-84. No figures are available for the 1984-5 school year.

"In Michigan, 11,000 school buses transport some 985,000 students each school day," he said. "The purpose of our program is to show motorists the correct procedures to follow and to show both parents and school-aged children how to enter and exit the bus and cross the street safely."

The school bus safety program is co-sponsored by AAA Michigan and the Michigan Association for Pupil Transportation and will be held at elementary schools throughout the state.

Cullen pointed out that Michigan law requires motorists in both directions to halt at least 10 feet from a stopped bus displaying alternating flashing lights as it loads or unloads students and not to proceed until those lights stop flashing.

"The school bus stop law has not been adopted in all communities, but motorists should slow down and use caution whenever students are loading or unloading even if lights on the bus are not flashing," said Cullen.

Youngsters should be cautioned that cars do not always stop for the buses' flashing red lights and they should check traffic carefully before crossing the street. Youngsters should be advised by parents to cross at least six feet in front of the bus and never walk behind the bus or near the wheels so they can be seen by the bus driver at all times.

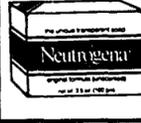

Other safety tips for students to follow include: wait for the bus in a safe place and away from the roadway, follow the instructions of the school bus driver and never retrieve anything near the bus wheels until first alerting the bus driver.

New housing starts ease enrollment drop

the district's projection of 375. At Winchester, approximately 14 more students than projected will be attending school next Tuesday with 374 registered for classes.

Bell said additional staff was hired in order to keep class sizes within the limit established by board of education guidelines. The board directive for the district is to keep the student-teacher ratio at 28 to 1 in grades 1-5 and 25 to 1 at the kindergarten level.

With the addition of one teacher at Winchester, average class size will be 26.8 students. The two kindergarten classes at Winchester will have 25 and 23 students.

At Amerman, where two additional teachers have been hired, class size will be 26.75 students in grades 1-5 with the four kindergarten classes at 21 students per class.

Silver Springs will have an average class size of 27.6 students in grades 1-5. However, the superintendent noted some of the later elementary classes (grades 4-5) may have as many as 30 or 31 students in accordance with teacher preference to keep classes smaller at the lower elementary level. Two kindergarten classes will have 24 students with an additional 21 students enrolled in the third class.

At the middle school, grades 6-8, the district anticipated a severe drop from 833 (as of last June) to 747 students. Bell noted that the grade restructuring attracted additional students previously in the private sector and brought enrollment up to 775.

An additional teacher, reading consultant and other support staff have been added at the middle school level to compensate for the increase. Bell said that while the current enrollment count of 1,320 students at the high school is far from the 1,271 figure projected by the district, he anticipates a considerable leveling off by the Fourth Friday.

Noting that early enrollment projections usually are way out of line at the high school level, Bell said the district is not worried about a dramatic increase.

The superintendent noted that "even with the growth, the declining enrollment is still there."

He said currently 3,319 students are enrolled for the 1985-86 school year — a decline of four students over last June's 3,323 students.

During the past two years, Northville's enrollment has leveled off from its previous four and five percent decline during that past decade.

In 1983, an increase in new housing starts eased the enrollment drop for the first time since the district's peak years in the mid-1970s.

Bell further noted that despite the increases, none of the buildings is anywhere near capacity.

"There is not the slightest qualm in my mind that we closed schools too soon," he said.

While an increase in enrollment should be encouraging, Bell said out-of-formula districts such as Northville (which receives no state aid) are responsible for educating more students without additional funding.

Noting the district "can't afford" additional staff out of its general fund budget, Bell said salaries for new teachers will be paid from monies taken out of the fund balance.

Schools open for new year

Northville's private and parochial schools are welcoming back students with a host of activities and new staff member introductions.

Some 200 students — preschool through eighth grade — headed back to St. Paul's Monday for the start of the new school year.

A new second grade teacher as well as a fulltime music minister joined the St. Paul's staff. School officials said that while there are no additional programs this year, St. Paul's is continuing its Spanish and computer offerings and has a promising music program.

Our Lady of Victory students will head back to the classroom next Tuesday, September 3.

The school is anticipating approximately 275 students in grades 1-8 for the new school year.

Carol Anderson joins the OLV staff as the new early elementary French teacher. John Early also has joined the staff as the new junior high computer instructor and Christine Galli will teach fourth grade.

The school's building program gets under way at the end of September to provide additional space for the new kindergarten to be implemented next fall.

Some 90 students in preschool through 6th grade will begin the new school year at William Allan Academy September 9.

Director Valerie Hambleton reports that two new teachers have joined the staff for the new year. Carolyn Robson will teach the four-year-old preschool class and Catherine Fitzgerald will instruct music classes.

A library aide also has been hired so students may use the recently-opened library four mornings a week.

Cooke to open as temporary high school site

Architect John Argenta told the board that new drywall and ceiling tiles will be taken down and replaced without difficulty. However, he noted the major concern is damage to the terrazzo block floor throughout the corridors of the existing building.

While the district had hoped to save the tiles, both Argenta and Bell explained the floor has suffered water and construction damage.

Noting that the roof cannot be completed until weather conditions clear up, Argenta explained that "98 percent of the roof is not leaking, except at the area that ties into the new construction."

He further noted that water also has come through several roof openings designed for ventilating and air conditioning units. The architect said a helicopter will be coming in Thursday to place the new units on the roof and should close up the last of the holes.

In addition to the roof, neither windows nor doors have been installed due to a supplier's snafu. Argenta said that while windows were promised last week, Pittsburgh Plate has notified the district they cannot locate the glass.

Doors also are somewhere en route to Northville, Argenta added.

Bell recognized that the district's last-minute change in scheduling "appears to be poor planning."

However, he noted the district "has been at the mercy of a whole lot of subcontractors."

"This is not a result of anybody's laying down on the job," Bell said. "It's the reality of the business."

"I apologize to the board and community for any inconvenience this may have caused," he noted. "But I just can't assure the safety of kids. It was marginal in the spring — it would be worse now."

The district will use 28 rooms at Cooke for the split schedule classes. The superintendent said the library will be used as a place for the 52 staff members to work during their planning period. Bell said he will be talking with representatives of the teacher's union to assure that all current contract stipulations are followed.

Six class periods will be offered to students with each class running 45-minutes.

Bell explained that while the district hoped to forego the high school lunch program with the split schedule, Yvonne Stevens, supervisor of food services, said Michigan's Mandatory School Lunch Act requires school districts to provide lunches for all students at all levels.

Stevens, who contacted state officials regarding Northville's situation, said school lunch waiver requests must have been submitted no later than July 1.

Stevens also noted the district would have to pay workman's compensation to food service employees scheduled to go back to work next Tuesday.

As a result of the state mandate and potential workman's comp expenditures, the district will be offering "snack breaks" during both the morning and afternoon classes.

Split scheduling also will result in a revision of the district's transportation times. Though bus schedules already have been mailed to residents, revisions will have to be made to compensate for the new scheduling.

Tom Bailey, administrative assistant for operations, said that bus runs will be one half hour earlier for juniors and seniors on the morning schedule. A detailed bus schedule was expected to be handed out to sophomores and freshmen at today's registration.

Bailey noted that transportation costs will be higher than projected as buses will be running all day. In addition to transporting high school students at midday, the district also is dropping off morning kindergartners and picking up afternoon kindergartners.

While the parking situation still is under consideration, no student parking will be available at Cooke. However, administrators are looking into possible parking for some students at the high school site.

With the high school free of students and staff for 10 weeks, construction crews are expected to be able to move ahead on the project without delay.

While school officials anticipate some students moving back into the high school facility by the close of the 10-week period November 8, it is likely that some classes still will be offered at Cooke until the project is completed.

Obituaries

ANNA BACH

Funeral service for Anna Bach, 89, was held at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at Our Lady of Victory Church. As a member of the church, she was honored as the oldest mother in attendance at Mass on Mother's Day 1984.

Father Egbert Heinlein officiated at the funeral Mass. Interment was at Our Lady of Hope Cemetery in Brownstown Township.

Mrs. Bach came to Allen Terrace in 1979 and, as a resident, participated in the many activities of the Terrace. She died August 21 at St. Mary Hospital.

She was born December 9, 1895, to Joseph and Marie (Godreau) Cloutier of Lake Linden. She was one of 13 children.

She married Nicholas Bach of Hubbell, Michigan, in 1917. They lived in Hubbell for about three years before moving to River Rouge where they resided all their married life. He preceded her in death in 1975.

A homemaker, Mrs. Bach had been an active member of Our Lady of Lourdes Church throughout her life in River Rouge.

She leaves four children, Mrs. James (Alice) McDade of Livonia, George of Las Vegas, Robert of Wyandotte and Bernard R. of Northville. She also leaves 16 grandchildren, 16 great grandchildren and one brother Alfred Cloutier of Warren.

Rosary and visitation were at Casterline Funeral Home Inc.

The family suggests memorial tributes may be made to a charity of the donor's choice or to the building fund of Our Lady of Victory Church.

LAURA GOTTS BECHTEL

Former Northville resident Laura

Gotts Bechtel died August 17 at Park Lake Village Care Center in New Port Richey, Florida.

Mrs. Bechtel was born in Hastings, Michigan, in 1895 and lived there as a girl.

She married Arthur J. Gotts and moved to Northville about 1918. The couple had three children, sons Robert and Arthur C. and a daughter Mary Ebersole, who died in 1973. Arthur J. Gotts died in 1958.

Mrs. Bechtel later married Robert Bechtel who preceded her in death.

She was a member of Mizpah Circle, King's Daughters and Sons, and of First United Methodist Church of Northville.

In addition to two sons, she leaves seven grandchildren and 13 great grandchildren.

Cremation took place in Florida. Memorial services were held August 25 in Florida.

The family requests that any memorial tributes be sent to First United Methodist Church of Northville, P.O. Box 55.

ARNA G. CLARK

Funeral service for Arna G. Clark, 85, of Whitmore Lake, was held August 22 at Ross B. Northrop and Son Funeral Home.

She died August 19 at McPherson Hospital in Howell.

Mrs. Clark, who was born in Dryden, Michigan, January 12, 1900, was related to area residents. She was preceded in death by her husband, Sherman E. Clark Sr., who died in 1981.

She was the mother of Hettie L. Oaks of Redford, Pauline Carter of Missouri, Juanita Grindstaff of Virginia, Sherman E. Jr. of Indian River, Jack I. Clark, Mrs. Polly Mowery, of Whitmore Lake, William L. and Scott F. of Farmington Hills. She also leaves 25 grandchildren and 30 great grandchildren, sister Lizzie McCoy and brother Claude P. Tankersley, both in Virginia.

The Reverend David D. Fredrick officiated at the service. Burial was in Parkview Cemetery in Livonia. Memorial tributes are suggested to Galilean Baptist Church, 28875 West Seven Mile, Livonia, 48152, where Mrs. Clark was a longtime member.

RUSSELL TARROW

Russell Tarrow, a life resident of the area, died August 22 after a lengthy illness. He was 53.

Funeral service was held at 11 a.m. Monday at Casterline Funeral Home Inc. with the Reverend Eric Hammar, minister of First United Methodist Church of Northville, officiating. Burial was in Parkview Cemetery in Livonia.

Mr. Tarrow was born March 22, 1932, in Livonia to Arthur and Josephine (Wells) Tarrow.

He leaves nine children, Edward and Ricky of Northville, Roxanne Kistler of Livonia, Renie Manica of Troy, Randy of Farmington Hills, Rose Baggett of Salem, Rocky of South Lyon, Roland of Plymouth, Beth Michel of Dearborn. A son Russell preceded him in death.

Survivors also include 15 grandchildren and 11 brothers and sisters, Joseph of Atlanta, Michigan, Roland of Plymouth, June Hubenschmidt of Northville, Jean Donaldson in Alabama, Dorothy Weeks of Redford, Stanley of Westland, Sharon Schlacht, Gail Mitton and Janet Mitton, all of Garden City, Shirley Tarrow of Livonia and Joan Dayus of Brighton. He also was preceded in death by a brother, Richard.

Dozen win at Oakland 4-H event

Twelve Northville area young persons were winners at the 1985 Oakland County 4-H Youth Fair, held at the Springfield Oaks County Park in Davisburg July 29-August 3.

The fair brought in 25,000 spectators, 2,000 exhibits and 450 4-H competitors.

Dawn Leland won first place, with an accompanying trophy for the most outstanding effort, in cake decorating. Leland also took a fifth place in clowning and a sixth in sheep intermediate showmanship.

Jenny Urbahns received a third place award in cake decorating, a second in vegetables, first in junior sewing, first in food preservation, first in leather and first in weaving.

Joel Visnyak was a first place winner in woodworking.

Mark Brandon took both a first and third place in electrical category.

Christy Arthur also was a winner in cake decorating, taking third place; she took sixth in clowning.

Cindy Brandon captured a fourth in cake decorating.

Allison Kabel took sixth in pony fitting and showing, fifth in intermediate food and nutrition.

Amie Kabel captured a second in the horse walk trot.

Jason Urbahns received a third place award for vegetables, a third for food and nutrition and a fourth for rockets.

Carmen Lowe received a third place award for pencil art, a third for poetry and a second for prose.

Kim Lowe took a fifth place poetry award.

Carrie Clinansmith received a fifth place award for crewel, embroidery and needlepoint.

First through sixth places in each division were awarded rosettes, with the most outstanding effort within each division receiving a trophy.

Community education registrations taken

The Northville Adult and Community Education Program again will be offering credit and leisure programs for all ages this fall.

Adult high school completion classes are absolutely free for all adults without a high school diploma, for those with a GED certificate and no diploma and for graduates under 20 years of age as of September 1.

Free English classes for the foreign born also are available. Classes planned specifically for senior citizens are free of charge as well and are held at Allen Terrace, Swan Harbour and Main Street School.

Leisure classes for adults, teens and tots range from computers to dancing. Brochures have been mailed to all homes in Northville.

Drop-in hours for registration are 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday at the Board of Education offices on Main Street. Additional evening hours will be from 6 to 8 p.m. Wednesday, September 4 and 11 at the board offices and Thursday, September 5 and 12 at Meads Mill Middle School.

For more information, call 349-3400, extension 212.

Police Blotter

Shotgun death ruled suicide

The August 16 death of a 69-year-old Portis resident has been ruled as suicide by shotgun wound to the head, according to a report from the Wayne County Medical Examiner's Office to Northville Township Police.

Police were called to the scene the morning of August 16 by the victim's son who found his father in the basement of their residence.

According to the police report, the victim, Walter Lindow, apparently shot himself with a 12-gauge shotgun found at the scene.

The complainant told police his father had been depressed over health problems and the loss of a brother. He further noted that he did not hear any loud noises during the time the incident occurred.

A 26-year-old Baintree Circle resident was arrested by township police August 24 on a driving under the influence charge.

According to the police report, Michael Thomas Heary was driving north bound on Bradner at about 2 a.m. when his car went over the curb, across a lawn and struck a tree and wood shed.

Witnesses at the scene told police they heard a squeal of tires and a crash prior to the vehicle coming to a stop in their backyard.

Heary is to appear in court September 24.

Items valued at $250 were stolen from a 1984 Renault parked at Meije sometime between noon and 2 p.m. August 24, township police report.

The complainant told police unknown subject(s) entered his unlocked vehicle and removed a radar detector valued at $175 and a pouch containing two knives and a checkbook.

A set of golf clubs and other items valued at $677 were stolen from DuRovin Golf Course sometime between 5 and 5:30 p.m. August 8, police report.

The complainant told police the clubs were on the south side of the building at the time the incident occurred.

Northville's on tour!

Volunteer guide Bruce Turnbull shows off his home town

By JEAN DAY

At a time when many retirees move south to relax in warmer climates, Northville native Bruce L. Turnbull is staying in the town where he was born and grew up to become one of its biggest boosters.

Appointed earlier this year to a volunteer committee assisting the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce in promoting the community, Turnbull has been serving as a tour director for the growing number of visitors who come to eat, shop and enjoy the attractive downtown and surrounding community.

Last Thursday morning Turnbull had donned his baseball cap marked with a big "N" and was waiting to greet a Dearborn area group — the Highlighters of Dearborn Heights — as their bus rolled into town.

Turnbull mentions that the baseball cap was a gift from Northville athletic director Ralph Redmond when he volunteered as assistant coach of the high school girls' baseball team.

The visitors were accompanied also by Gary Lepak, co-owner of Riffle's Restaurant at 18730 Northville Road. The restaurateur actively has been promoting visits by groups, as have John and Toni Genitti of Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall on Main Street. The Genittis have been bringing groups here through Corporate Travel agency.

Lepak personally has been speaking to senior citizen groups telling of the town's attractions.

"The response has been great," says Lepak, mentioning that some groups now are booking repeat visits.

Those who work downtown as well as regular shoppers can spot the visitors who are given local maps and Northville shopping bags as well as discount coupons from local businesses.

First, however, the Dearborn Highlighters, were given a tour of the community last week by Turnbull.

"I go aboard the bus first," Turnbull relates, "and shake hands with everybody and give them a free bag from the chamber." The white plastic shopping bag has "thank you for shopping in Northville" imprinted.

Following Turnbull comes Lepak from Riffle's. He shakes hands and gives each visitor coupons from local merchants.

So far, Turnbull counts, some 255 visitors have been welcomed this way. About 55 were on the bus last Thursday. "We have a lot of fun and tell jokes," relates Turnbull.

He has developed an itinerary that can be condensed to 30 minutes — or expanded to 2½ hours. Last Thursday's Dearborn Highlighters (a club of "young senior citizens," says Turnbull) wanted to see everything.

First stop on the full tour is the Northville well where Turnbull recalls the days when trains stopped nearby to get water.

"Then we go to the Ford plant, and I tell how it was one of Henry Ford's original plants and how he spent part of his honeymoon in Northville."

From there Turnbull's tour goes to the Mill Race Historical Village where he details how the land was a gift from Ford Motor Company.

"I tell them a bit about how the village began and about its buildings," says Turnbull, mentioning that last week's visitors would have liked to see inside the buildings as well as stroll the grounds. He told them that the buildings are open every Sunday afternoon from 1-4 p.m. from May through fall with docents on duty to relate their history.

Turnbull retired from Sears and Roebuck last year with 15 years' service. Before joining Sears, he had owned an appliance store on Main Street founded by his family and sold to Del Black in 1962 — to become a shoe store. He recalls that the Northville Electric Shop started by his father in 1918 first was located across from M.A.G.S. on the present site of a gas station.

As was customary in those days, the family lived upstairs and he was born there in 1919.

Turnbull points out Ford Field as the tour bus goes through town and the chamber-sponsored Northville Farmer's Market held on Thursdays at Dunlap and Hutton.

Both Turnbull and Lepak mention that the market is one of the reasons that Thursday tours are most popular.

As the visitors reboarded their bus last Thursday at the Mill Race, they continued on a tour that took them past Parmenter Cider Mill and Winery on Baseline. Turnbull notes the business was established originally with "ushering out pay from the Civil War."

Since it was closed, the group went to Foreman's Orchards and Cider Mill on Seven Mile last Thursday. Both cider locations are reported to be popular stops.

"They must have spent three to four hundred dollars, buying peaches and preserves," observes Turnbull.

As the bus group traveled west on Eight Mile, Turnbull says, "I tell them if you're sitting on the left you're in Wayne County. If you're on the right side, you're in Oakland. They get a kick out of that."

Noting that his tour passes all area churches, Turnbull says he points out the old Methodist church building in town and then the new one on Eight Mile, as well as the Baptist Church in town as the bus route covers the historical district area with its Victorian homes.

"I tell them there are 66 homes listed," he mentions.

The tour includes seeing Allen Terrace senior citizens' building.

"I tell how it was built by the city — they want to know how long the waiting list is," Turnbull notes.

"We zoom out to (Maybury) the state park where I pay the $2 admission — the chamber refunds it — and they sometimes stop to use the facilities."

From there last Thursday's group traveled down Beck to Foreman's and then back into town.

"I point out the (Our Lady of Victory) Catholic church and show them where I live (on Eaton Drive)," Turnbull details.

"Last Thursday I asked if they would like to see some of our nicer homes and took a circle through Edenderry," Turnbull relates, noting he pointed out the fish hatchery and told of its history before going to Northville Downs.

"We go right out on the track so they can see the horses exercising. Last week the group said it wanted to make reservations to come to see the racing."

The bus then returned to Riffle's where the visitors had a hot lunch before coming into town to shop.

"We make it fun," sums up Turnbull of his volunteer job. Then the Northville native pauses, saying, "I don't know if they get too often if I'd like it, but right now I enjoy it."

Crafts show is rescheduled

Even though about half the crafts persons who had taken sidewalk spaces for the Northville Arts and Crafts Festival last Saturday showed up, the event had to be postponed when it began to rain heavily.

It has been rescheduled to Saturday, September 7, Del Black, who headed the event for the downtown Northville merchants, reported Monday.

Hours will be the same as originally scheduled — from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Black reported a good-size crowd turned out in spite of the weather until it began to rain heavily.

Brooke's appearance draws big crowd

By PATRICIA N. BOWLING

As a crowd began to swell between the racks of junior clothing, nearly closing off Hudson's main floor entrance Monday, an unsuspecting shopper wondered out loud what all the commotion was about.

"Brooke Shields," responded a several teens clustered around a display of bright, oversized sweatshirts bearing the new Brooke insignia.

The 20-year-old Princeton co-ed feigned surprise at the numbers gathered for her Novi appearance — part of a promotional tour for her new line of sportswear. Although well-received on each stop, she told the group: "I don't think I've seen this many faces!"

Radio personality Colleen Burkhart of WCZY joined Shields on the platform in the corner display window of Hudson's entrance.

"Traveling from city to city, how do you keep your energy up," Burkhart asked.

"I exercise a lot. It really helps me," Shields responded, noting she finds time for a workout every day, "no matter how busy I am."

Shields told the crowd she doesn't have a boyfriend and really hasn't had the time for a "serious relationship."

Instead of pursuing romance, the Princeton junior has been busy designing a new line of sportswear which features king-sized flannel shirts and sweatshirts, denims and bright, wide-wale corduroys. A lively ensemble of plaid flannel shirt ($48), brilliant red sweatshirt ($30) and yellow corduroys ($36) is designed to look casual, but still "put together," Shields explains.

"Instead of just having my name on it, I wanted to be actively involved. And my mother wanted to be actively involved."

Some designs are hers; others are her mother's. The pieces can be "mixed and matched" and "dressed up or dressed down," she explains. "Especially on dreary days, it's nice to be wearing bright, happy colors."

In addition to sharing her favorite sports clothes, Shields shared a few words of advice with the hundreds of local residents that gathered for her Novi appearance: parents and their children "should be friends first — then the parent/child relationship can only get easier;" young girls should stay away from makeup as long as they can; and, "the more natural you can look, the better."

"I'm sure there are girls in the audience who say, 'I want to be just like Brooke Shields,'" Burkhart noted. "How realistic is that?"

"Anything can be realistic if you're willing to try and really work for it," said Shields, who was 11 years old when she had her first modeling job.

Ayers may run for mayor

favors long-term mayors," she said.

Because of her own desire to see vacancies filled by voters rather than council, Ayers said the provision "runs my options short" since she has little more than two weeks to decide whether she will be a candidate for mayor while non-incumbents have until September 30 to file.

That leaves her little time to gauge the quality of potential candidates to fill the vacancy she might create, since the full field of council candidates may not be known until the end of the month.

As of Monday, three potential council candidates (besides Gardner) had taken petitions from the clerk's office. Ron Bodnar, proprietor of the Copy-Boy Print Center on East Main, said he intends to run for council himself.

"I think there's room for some new people there," Bodnar said.

Others signing out petitions were Luigi Folino and Lee Holland. Neither had responded to Record requests for information as of presstime. Folino and Holland may be candidates themselves or could have taken out petitions to nominate others.

Civic Concern moves to Moraine quarters

Beginning October 1, C.A. Smith Civic Concern will have a new home base.

Facilities will be available for the local emergency help organization at Moraine Elementary School, reports Marlene Kunz, secretary.

The organization was begun by the late C.A. Smith to continue local help after he continued to receive requests following the Goodfellow Christmas program 2½ years ago. He had stored supplies and donations in his garage when a central storage place could not be located. After his death they were kept at Meadowbrook Christian Church.

In addition to Kunz, officers chosen in a recent election are Pat Kennedy, president, and Ann Roy, re-elected treasurer.

Anyone wishing to make donations before the Moraine facility opens, may leave them at Bruce Roy Realty, 105 North Center.

Roy may be contacted at 349-8700, Kennedy at 349-1140, and Kunz at 348-8697.

Downs gets more dates

thville Downs had been responsive to his mid-July request to race meet operators regarding the filing of 1986 date applications.

"This permitted me to begin the 1986 date allocation process by granting these three applications about which there really cannot be any question," said Ballenger.

The early awarding as well as the increased number of Downs racing dates delighted local track officials. Zayt was elated Monday in spite of suffering with a double break in her leg at the ankle.

She said she appreciated the commissioner's awareness that Northville had been manipulated out of dates.

As Ballenger issued the dates, against tradition, 10 days before the legal deadline for applications, rumors were circulating in local racing columns of Detroit papers that he was on his way out as racing commissioner.

Zayt said she understood Hazel Park was trying to have its racing dates made part of the racing act and said she opposed such legislation, explaining that "the (racing) dates are the only hammer the commissioner has to keep tracks in line."

If the commissioner doesn't have the threat of withholding dates, she said, he has no clout with a track.

In last week's announcement Ballenger said he also had received applications from Saginaw Valley Downs for 1986 harness racing and from Mt. Pleasant Meadows for quarter horse, appaloosa and Arabian racing, upon which he had planned to act as soon as possible.

He added that, depending on the nature of the remaining applications, he expected to receive before September 2, he was considering holding a public hearing on overlapping date requests.

His departure, however, changes the plans. Downs secretary Zayt said Tuesday that she learned of his replacement by Calahan Monday night from Free Press columnist Al Coffman.

She said Coffman told her the Michigan Harness Horsemen were supporting dates for Hazel Park.

"There's no way we can defend the fact that the state and the horsemen make more at Hazel Park," she said, "but it also is a fact that Northville — racing in the winter — competes with Windsor and the two tracks outhandle Hazel Park even though it's winter."

Blood drives set August 31 to meet Labor Day demand

The American Red Cross is asking area residents to donate blood on Save-A-Life Saturday, August 31. All area donor centers, except Ann Arbor, will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. August 31.

As fall quickly approaches, many people are planning their last summertime vacations for the Labor Day weekend. Because summer months are traditionally slow periods for donating, the lack of potential donors causes an additional shortage in the supply of blood. Also, with the high accident rate during holidays, more blood than usual is needed at this time.

On Labor Day, September 2, the Livonia, Roseville, Southgate and Ann Arbor center will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. for those who wish to donate.

Anyone who is in good general health and between the ages of 17 and 65 years old and weighs a minimum of 110 pounds can give blood. Donating blood is relatively painless, takes less than an hour, and one donation can help as many as four patients.

Seek entries for bridge marathon

Applications still are being accepted for Northville Mothers' Club's benefit bridge marathon for play in ladies' daytime and evening groups.

Chairperson Carol Townsend reported last week that spaces are available for teams in both the daytime and evening groups. She added that the club can pair up interested women who do not have partners.

There are four day groups and three night groups being formed. Interested women should call Townsend at 349-5989 as soon as possible.

Paper wins national awards

Association awards program.

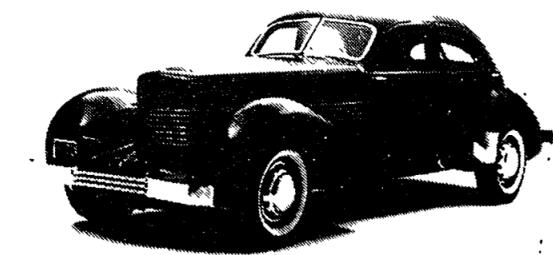

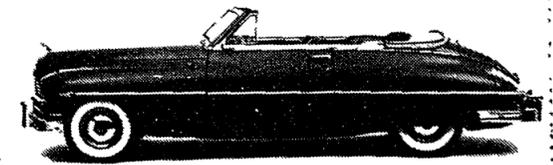

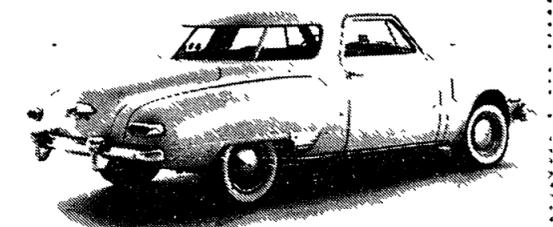

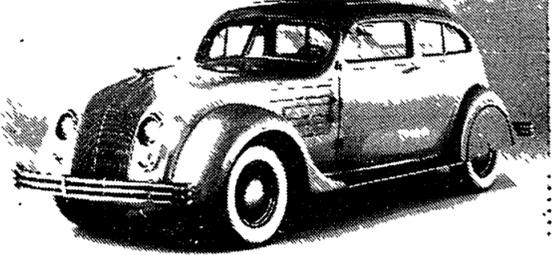

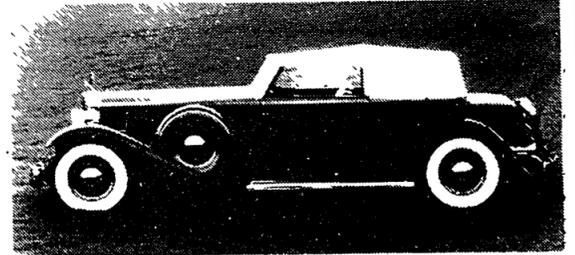

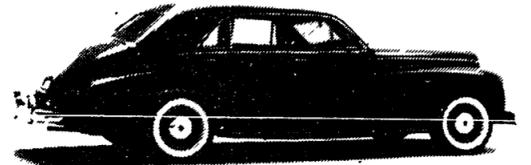

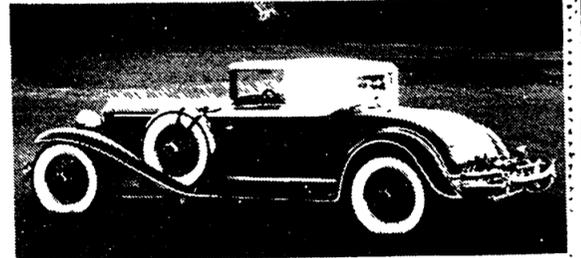

Managing Editor Phillip Jerome said it was gratifying to have both the Novi and Northville newspapers recognized by the NNA as being among the best weekly newspapers in the nation.

"We are fortunate to have a talented, hard-working staff on the Novi/Northville papers," he said. "The awards these people have won on the national level are certainly justified and provide further proof of the quality of newspapers which we are providing the communities of Novi and Northville."

The awards will be presented at the National Newspaper Association convention meeting September 18-21 in Minneapolis when first, second and third place winners will receive plaques and honorable mention winners certificates.

Our Opinion

Amendments needed to resolve charter election provisions

We've wondered for some time what it is about Northville that allows its mayors to serve for such long periods. Now Carolann Ayers comes along and puts her finger on one possible reason.

Leaving aside for now the merits of an Ayers candidacy, consider simply that charter provision which says she cannot run for mayor without first resigning her council seat. We have no crystal ball to tell us what the drafters of the 1955 charter meant to accomplish with that provision, nor why it was left untouched in 1971 when the charter was last amended. But we can hazard a few guesses.

First, it's clear that an incumbent council member who wins a race for mayor is going to create a vacancy on council. The question is when that vacancy is going to occur. Alternatively, an incumbent council member such as Ayers who is at mid-term when making a bid for the mayoralty but loses could, in some systems, continue to serve out the remainder of the council term. It is this latter situation that drafters of the charter presumably meant to prevent — one can argue legitimately that a losing mayoral candidate who continues on council could sabotage the work of the winner. The voters supposedly chose the winner's program, and it ought to be given a chance to work.

Additionally, it could be pretty hard to explain to the electorate that, although a candidate was defeated in November, he or she still had two years to serve before being run off the council (or even re-elected again). We don't think that's necessarily bad, but we can certainly understand how others might and concede to the drafters of the charter their right to prevent such a situation.

But the way the city's system is set-up now, the resignation must come before the incumbent council member becomes a candidate for mayor. Guessing again, we'd say that's to prevent having the incumbent mayor and his/her challenger playing politics at the council table for the two months preceding the election.

If that's the reason, though, why was an exception made for council members whose terms expire at the same election in which they are running for mayor? For the sake of argument, let us use the names of the players in the current situation to explain what we mean. Mayor Pro Tem G. Dewey Gardner could have run for mayor this year (and seriously considered it before announcing that he'll do it two years later) without resigning his seat. Yet Ayers cannot. Leaving personal and political relationships aside, we cannot buy any argument that suggests the situation at the council table would be any worse in the next couple of months under either alternative.

Presumably, the drafters of the charter saw a distinction in that Gardner's seat could be filled with a newcomer at the next election while Ayers has been legally elected to a term that expires in 1987. Clearly, she has to abandon that term to run for mayor. If she didn't and won, there'd be a vacancy immediately after the election which council would fill by appointment. Not good public policy, we'd say. Here you have an election and the next day one-fifth of the council is chosen without reference to the voters.

And, as we stated before, if Ayers ran and lost, continuing her council term has its drawbacks. For one thing, it would make her situation better than Gardner's, and that's not something we'd like either. Just one other bad news sidelight and we'll get on with some proposed solutions: our reading of the charter says that if Ayers resigns in early September, council could name a replacement immediately (there are no minimum or maximum time limits). That leaves the door open for council to create an "instant incumbent" less than 60 days before the election, in effect endorsing a particular candidate. We can't imagine that's what the charter writers had in mind, but it's what we've got.

Students of government and politics can probably see where we're headed by now. What we need is a charter provision that declares the seat of an incumbent member who challenges the mayor vacant as of the day of the election. To be safe, we also need an amendment that says the candidate with the third highest vote total in such an election would get the two-year seat while the first two (as is the case now) get four-year terms. That way, candidates need not specify whether they are running for a four-year or two-year term — the voters will decide for them how long they are to serve.

The one big negative of such a system is that there's a distinct possibility, under current conditions, that there wouldn't be enough candidates to fill out the council. In 1983, only Ayers and Paul Folino, both incumbents, entered the council race. Had one of the other two council members filed to run for mayor on the last day, there'd have been no third candidate to fill out the resulting two-year vacancy. That is really no worse than the situation that could arise this year if Ayers waited until September 30 to resign and file.

In fact, the candidate shortage is an entirely different question and one we intend to continue addressing over the next few weeks. For now, suffice it to say that adjusting the charter in such a way that it opened the door a bit to livelier election contests might be one way to generate more interest in city politics. There is, of course, a more drastic and obvious method of opening up one seat periodically: limit the mayor to a certain number of consecutive terms. If you really got serious, you could limit council terms, too. That would not eliminate the need for the amendments we suggested earlier, but it sure would create an opportunity for periodic infusions of fresh thinking.

Our aim should be a system that favors neither incumbents nor challengers. We hope those chosen in the next month or so to serve on a committee to review the charter make an effort to level the playing field, whether they adopt the methods we suggest or others of their own choosing.

Take him down a peg

By B.J. Martin

The cat's away.

That's right, The Northville Record's and Novi News' head honch, the top banana, the leader of the pack has vamoosed, flown the coop, gone splitsville. We're talking V-A-C-A-T-I-O-N.

We haven't had so much fun since the thunderstorm of '83 zapped every inch of copy going in the next day's papers out of our word processor's memory bank.

Sure, it's not easy without our managing editor around. But do you think we'll give him the satisfaction of letting him think he's indispensable?

Hah.

By the time you read this, Mr. Jerome already will have pored through the paper in search of little glitches. Maybe it's a headline containing a misspelled word. Maybe it's somebody's title we left uncapitalized. Maybe it's a photo caption that has somebody's name wrong.

If they're there, he'll find 'em. And God help us when he does.

Oh, he won't yell. Not Mr. Jerome. He'll do something far more insidious.

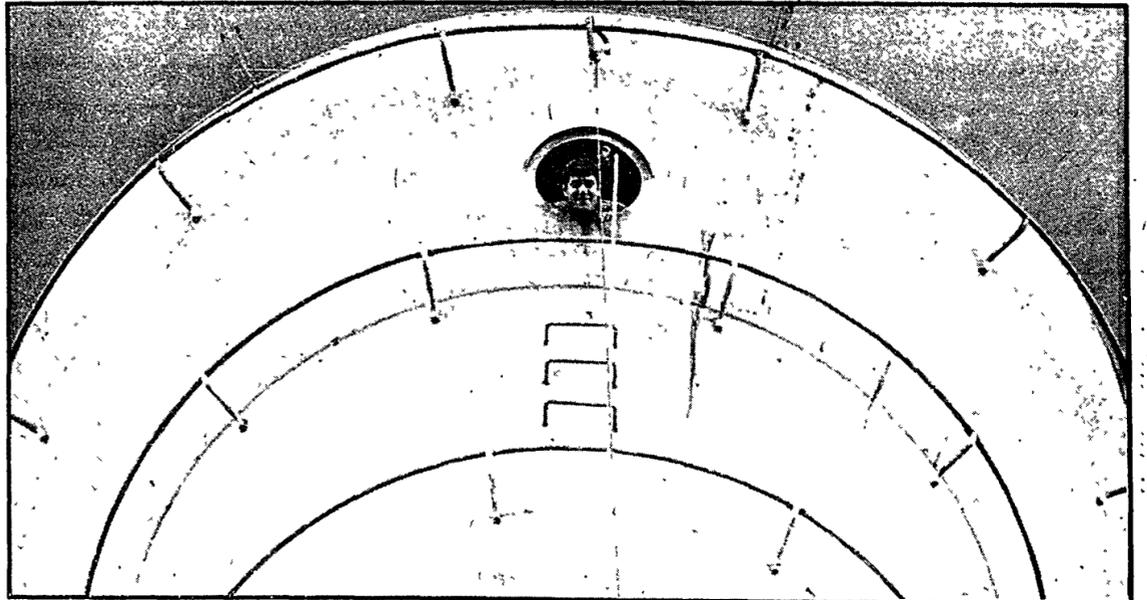

When he comes back after his vacation he'll saunter up to his office wearing a Mona Lisa-type smile which he won't explain. "Well, I'm back," he'll announce, bouncing jauntily on his heels. "Looks like you guys did all right while I was gone."

Brief pause, and then he'll add with soulful sincerity: "Yep, I was talking to our circulation manager, and he said that not too many people cancelled their subscriptions while I was away. I just want to say, I'm really proud of the way you held on these two weeks and kept The News from going completely under."

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

We had toured all the booths and were trying to decide if we wanted to buy anything.

"I liked the stained glass and basketry," she said. "And there were those ceramic tiles in the booth by the entrance. I thought the tiles were particularly nice."

I agreed with her about the stained glass and basketry, and the tiles didn't surprise me a bit. I knew she'd like the tiles. "You don't mean those tiles with the cats on them?" I asked, trying to sound puzzled.

"I thought they'd look nice in the kitchen," she responded. So we bought a cat tile. And then she asked if there was anything I had liked.

gratitude for his compliment. He then poured a coffee into his smug smile and head back to his office.

I'm sure faithful readers of our papers would agree, this is a guy who needs to be taken down a peg or two.

Maybe you noticed the article this week on The News receiving a third-place award for general excellence from the National Newspaper Association. That's right, third place general excellence in the country. So what does Mr. Jerome say when he gets the nice letter from the NNA congratulating him and our staff?

"Who the bleep are these other two papers?"

I'm sure our readers will agree, this is a guy who needs to be taken down a peg or two. I know just how to do it, too.

If you should see Mr. Jerome in the next couple of weeks, collar him and tell him how great the newspaper has been the last issue or two. Tell him they're the best written, best designed, most coherent issues we've ever put out. Don't worry, he won't catch on. The only columns he reads — and re-reads — are his own.

When he starts to fidget and look uncomfortable, go for the jugular. Tell him you wanted to buy extra copies to show your friends, but that all the newsstands had sold out. Ask him if somehow there might be an extra or two somewhere at our printing plant. Tell him you'll offer him double the regular price if he could somehow find just one more copy.

Then sit back and watch. He'll start to look like a guy whose only daughter has just announced her decision to marry the Hell's Angels.

You'll have great fun and you'll be doing us on the staff a favor, too. We'll never have to worry about being short-handed in the office again.

Why? Because Mr. Jerome will never go on vacation again.

"Well, I've been admiring that fiber work the last three years," I admitted. "Maybe I'll buy a piece."

She knew what I was talking about because I really have been admiring the artist's fabric-weaving the last three years. But she wasn't going to let me get it easily.

"You mean the fabric sculpture by that cute little brunette from Rochester? The one wearing the little blue shorts in the back pavilion?"

"I like the colors," I said, ignoring the suggestion I was more attracted by the artist than the art. "Earth tones, but bright and alive."

"That's the artist with the cute little turned-up nose, isn't it? I believe she was wearing the white blouse with the scoop neckline."

There's a certain symmetry about her work that I find appealing," I continued. "Very natural, but there's an orderliness to her composition. You know, order in nature. I feel the message transcends the medium."

"Well," she sighed at last, "if you're determined, go ahead and buy it. But you'll have to hang it in your office. I don't think we have room for it at home."

Philip Jerome is on vacation. This week's column is reprinted from an earlier issue of The News. Oh, and the fabric sculpture is on his office file cabinet.

One of our best is hurt

Jean Day

Regular readers of The Record may have noticed that for the past 10 months we've been trying to gain your attention with eye-catching graphics — especially on the cover of the Our Town section of the newspaper.

Last week, for example, the story of a medical breakthrough that dissolves kidney stones with shock waves through water had graphic notations explaining the process photographed.

In July, similar graphic notations accompanied a sketch of a canoe for an article, "Rolling on the River," about canoeing.

All of these were done under the direction of Sliger/Livingston Publications director of graphics Jeff Lapinski. While his headquarters were in Howell (prior to his being appointed head of graphics Jeff was editor of the South Lyon Herald), Jeff's work made an impact on our readers.

We know this because there has been a definite response to the pages he has made so outstanding. Last week, for example, Ann Chowdhury, who wrote the first-person account of the new method that shatters kidney stone, received calls from others who shared similar problems. We've had a reader make a trip to The Record office to obtain a copy of the article that included a map on where to canoe as she had lost the original.

Since our purpose is to provide helpful, interesting articles that are locally oriented, your response indicates we have been succeeding. That's great.

However, it may be some time before Jeff's talented work sharpens our pages again. Last Saturday he was seriously injured in a motorcycle accident while vacationing in Pennsylvania. According to reports sent general manager Roland Peterson, Jeff apparently was attempting to round a curve on a slippery road and lost control, crossing the centerline and hit an on-coming car head-on. At first, it appeared his injuries were a broken left wrist and broken leg. It was discovered later at the small Pennsylvania hospital where he was taken that he had a torn aorta and a broken neck.

He then was flown to Presbyterian University Hospital at the University of Pittsburgh where he presently is, in critical condition. He will soon be flown to University Hospital in Ann Arbor. The latest report is that there will be no paralysis, though he may have to wear a halo collar for three months. It appears the aorta will heal of its own accord. This news stunned all of us Monday. While we hope for a good recovery, artist Tammie Graves will be filling in.

The motorcycle that Jeff was riding had been used by him regularly as he commuted from his South Lyon home to Howell offices. It was economical transportation while his wife needed their car to travel to Wayne State University to work on her law degree. She had just taken her bar exams a few weeks ago and, while waiting for results, was working as a law clerk for a Lansing firm. He was reported to be vacationing with his brother-in-law, en route to New York. Right now, we're all hoping that there will be good signs in the days ahead.

Even as fuel-economical transportation, motorcycles have had a horror for me ever since the night our telephone rang at home about 3 a.m. My younger brother was a cyclist who rode for the fun and excitement in days when fuel economy had not been heard of. My mother knew the moment the telephone rang that it had to be about my darling brother. It was. The hospital reported he had hit a curb.

We hurried to the hospital to worry through the night with him. Fortunately, he recovered fully. He did give up the cycle, as dad demanded. He became a dirt track driver.

Reader Speaks

To the Editor:
Copy to The Northville Record and Novi News (of an) open letter to the athletic departments of Novi and Northville Public Schools.

About this time of year, young athletes take to the roads. Many of them seem more accustomed to traveling in vehicles than on foot, since most of them keep to the right. This is a hazard both to the runners and vehicles.

I've already had my first close call, which prompted me to check with the Novi Police Department to confirm my recollection that the law requires pedestrians, runners as well as walkers, to keep left "where practicable" when traveling on a road without sidewalks.

For everyone's safety, I urge you to please remind your athletes of this important safety rule.

Let's be safe and keep left!

Sincerely,
Brian Crook

Belt law compliance good

Twice as many Michigan motorists are buckling up since the state's seat belt law went into effect July 1, according to a study just completed by the University of Michigan Transportation Research Institute (UMTRI).

The number of motorists wearing seat belts increased from 25.8 percent in May to 58.7 percent in early August, according to Alexander C. Wagenaar, director of the UMTRI study. That figure has increased substantially since December, when only 19.8 percent of the state's travelers wore seat belts.

The research, sponsored by the Michigan Office of Highway Safety Planning, was based on observations of 12,263 vehicles and 19,896 occupants at 240 intersections statewide from July 17 through August 5.

The largest increase in seat belt use was observed among those age 60 or older, from 21.8 percent in May to 65.9 percent this month. Still, children under age four used restraints more than any other age group, 71.3 percent compared to 60.2 percent in May.

Among four to 15 year olds, use jumped from 31.4 percent in May to 50.7 percent in August. In the 16-29 age group use was up from 23 percent to 53.2 percent. And among those 30-59 years old use increased from 25.9 percent to 61.9 percent.

More women than men buckled up, 62.8 percent to 55.1 percent, a fact also observed in earlier surveys. Occupants of small cars (63.9 percent) were more likely to use seat belts than occupants of large cars (57.2 percent). Riders in pickup trucks were the least likely to use seat belts (46.6 percent).

Regional differences in seat belt use remain, with the highest rate (63 percent) of use occurring in the northwest and southeast regions of the Lower Peninsula and the lowest use occurring in the eastern Upper Peninsula (52.7 percent).

Labor Day travel expected to help state set summer record

Michigan's summer tourism season is basking in its best performance ever and will surpass the dollar and activity levels of the record-setting 1978 season if the Labor Day holiday is as strong as expected, reports AAA Michigan.

"The Michigan Travel Bureau reports that up to $4 billion will be spent on vacation activities in the state this summer," stated James Drury, AAA Michigan Travel Operations manager. "By comparison, total summer spending in Michigan reached $3.6 billion last year.

"Our best tourism year was in 1978 when $2.5 billion was spent that summer, but the Travel Bureau estimates that Michigan travel prices have risen 60 percent from 1978 to 1984," Drury said. "When inflation is considered, the 1978 total would be nearly $4 billion in today's economy."

He also pointed to an improved economy, an upswing in per person travel expenditures and overall good summer weather as fueling the growth in vacation travel dollars spent this summer.

The Michigan Department of Transportation estimates that motorists will drive a record 790 million miles this 78-hour Labor Day weekend, three percent more than last year. The holiday officially begins at 6 p.m. this Friday and ends at midnight, Monday, September 2.

The number of miles traveled in Michigan is up nearly four percent so far this year. If the trend continues, a record 68 billion miles is expected to be driven by year's end, compared to 67 billion in 1978.

Three of the four regional travel bureaus also expect record or near-record tourism this summer. A Southeast Michigan Travel and Tourist Association spokesman labeled the summer "outstanding" and said a recent survey of his membership indicated all had increases in tourism activities.

The West Michigan Tourist Association said strong fishing and golfing activities, coupled with busy cottage bookings and good camping, have helped propel the area to its best season since 1978.

East Michigan Tourist Association officials report some areas along the Lake Huron shoreline have had a 25 percent boost in activity, with an overall 8 to 10 percent increase in summer business expected. The Upper Peninsula Travel and Recreation Association expects a good, but not record-setting, summer.

The Michigan Association of Private Campground Operators estimates overall activity by summer's end will be up two to five percent, depending on Labor Day weekend weather. Camping at state parks is up two percent.

"Requests for AAA Michigan Tour-Books and routings to Michigan destinations are up six percent for the first seven months of this year, including a nine percent increase in July," Drury added.

Nineteen persons died in 1984 Michigan Labor Day traffic accidents, including eight pedestrians and one motorcyclist.

AAA Michigan's "Bring 'Em Back Alive" Holiday News Service will broadcast hourly traffic and tourism bulletins to more than 160 radio stations from 3-11 p.m. on Friday, August 30, 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. on Saturday and Monday, and 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. on Sunday.

The Northville Record

Warrior Era ends, division title up for grabs

By B.J. MARTIN

For the first time in years, more than one school can talk seriously about a WLAA Western Division championship in women's basketball.

At graduation time last spring, Northville, Plymouth Canton, Livonia Churchill, Farmington Harrison and new division member Livonia Franklin bade a happy farewell to the entire starting lineup of the mighty Lady Warriors.

For two years, Western pushed away everybody within reach in the division race. But this time around, Western's just another team in the pack. A division title is within reach of any of those teams, with the likely exception of still-rebuilding Harrison.

But to get to the top, Northville has an important question to answer — one that so far has stumped even Ed Kritch, back for his second year as head coach: Who can replace now-graduated point guard and team leader Kathy Korowin?

The answer could be any of the following: a) Chris McGowan; b) Julie Anger; c) Jenny Stevens; d) Jill Gallagher; e) Anne Griffith; f) all of the above; or g) none of the above. If the answer is anything but "g" Northville will be a bona-fide contender.

"If I could have red-shirted Kathy and Sue Terwin at guard last year and brought them back this fall, I'd go as far as to say we'd be the favorites to win the division," Kritch says. "But right now I can't even say who's going to start at point guard in our first game."

Kritch does have a good idea of who will be the regulars on the front line, though — and they're good ones.

Taller, stronger and smarter, Tricia Ducker is expected to emerge as one of the conference's most dominant forwards this year. The 5'11" junior is a two-time All-Division player and potentially Northville's best cager ever.

Ducker has quickness and leaping ability to go with her height. She can post up, drive the lane, hit the short jumper, dish off assists and even dribble like a guard; on defense she rebounds, blocks shots, makes steals and when she needs to, she can get physical with anyone.

"She always seems to get herself in the right place at the right time — I see no reason why Tricia can't be an all-conference player this year," Kritch concludes.

Michele Siemasz returns to start at the other forward taller (5'9") and more experienced. "She's a fantastic kid; she's our team leader by example, not by her mouth," says Kritch. "She and Tricia complement each other well; Michele's a very consistent, hard-working, unselfish player."

One of the biggest surprises in camp — literally and figuratively — has been 5'11" Sue Schrader. Schrader always was an imposing rebounder, but this year she's added quickness and hustle to her battery of skills. "Sue's in the best shape of her life," Kritch reports. "She's worked very hard during the off-season, and I expect we're going to get some scoring from her with her crashing the offensive boards."

At "shooting" guard, 5'7" junior Roxanne "Rocky" Serkaian provides some scoring punch with her deadeye perimeter jumper. Serkaian has improved the weakest part of her game — her quickness — to the point where she is now a formidable defender as well as an offensive threat.

For two years, people wondered why Anne Griffith, Northville's best distance runner ever, stuck with basketball instead of cross-country as her fall sport. They won't wonder any more. The junior is easily the Mustangs' most improved player this season.

"She's intelligent and fast enough to shore up our zone press," says Kritch. "What had been missing from her game really was confidence. But this year, with hard work, she's gotten much more aggressive." Griffith this season may become not just a starter, but one of Northville's most valuable all-around players.

The Mustangs have still more front-line talent.

Junior Joanne Hinds, a 5'11" center with a good 12-15 foot shot, will spell Schrader when needed. "Having Joanne means we'll have a really solid person in the pivot all 32 minutes of the game," Kritch notes. "That's a very good luxury."

Junior Robin Strunk brings raw talent to the forward corps. At 5'7" the track standout was one of the best young JV players as a freshman before taking the '84 season off. She's back this year, and immediately made an impression as the team's best vertical leaper.

"Robin's been a surprise," says Kritch. "She's picked up our offense and our defense really well; I'm very happy with how she's playing."

Mary Howley, a 5'6" senior, rounds out the Mustang forward corps with varsity experience, and good quickness coming off the bench.

To return to the candidates for the point guard job: senior Chris McGowan at 5'4" brings decent long-range shooting and good quickness and strength for her size on offense. She was an effective substitute in 1984 for the Mustang varsity.

Julie Anger, a 5'5" senior, is a hard-nosed "make things happen" player — scrappy, quick on defense and able to kick a game into high gear with a steal or a dive after a loose ball. Her usefulness on the press and fast break could earn her a starting job at point guard.

An unpredicted starting candidate is Jenny Stevens, a 5'7" sophomore transfer student from Niles. Stevens is possibly the most natural point guard on the Mustangs — a good passer, unselfish and a good ballhandler. But Stevens still has to learn Northville's offensive patterns — by midseason she may have done so well enough to earn the starting nod.

Jill Gallagher, a junior with good all-around athletic skills brings an excellent outside shooting touch and an enthusiasm for the game to the backcourt. She was the leading scorer for Northville's junior varsity last season.

And last but not necessarily least, there's the possibility Griffith may be used at point guard. Besides her physical ability, Kritch notes, she could provide a psychological edge to the Mustang game. With the 5'9" Griffith at guard, the Mustangs would be taller at every position than almost all of the teams they will face this season.

"I'd say I'm cautiously optimistic," says Kritch. "I know that if we work at it and continue to improve, we can have a very good season."

Closing pack time key to winning season

It looks like Northville's cross-country course this fall will mostly be uphill.

That'll happen when a team loses its three fastest runners — and six of its nine varsity letter-winners — to graduation or different kinds of pursuits.

"Yeah, it's going to hurt," agrees Ed Gabrys, longtime coach of the Mustang men's squad. "We have to be like last year's team and put the emphasis on running together. We had one of our best packing teams ever last season, but whether we can do that again depends on our fourth and fifth people."

The Mustangs have time on their side this year, as the top two Northville runners are underclassmen. And it could be the experience and leadership the slightly slower seniors possess could pay off with another winning season.

Leading the way this year for Northville will be junior Kevin Haas and sophomore John

Mustang Cross-Country Coach

Kissinger, each in his second year of varsity competition. Kissinger has under his belt the best Cass Benton course time of anyone on the squad (17:51, a Northville freshman record) while Haas' personal best is just one second slower.

Haas, the leader in early-season workouts this summer, won the Mustangs' scholar-athlete award and was also an academic first teamer in the Western Division last year. He medaled in the Walled Lake Western and Westland John Glenn invitational meets.

Kissinger was the Mustangs' most improved runner last year, and also was a medalist at the Western invitational. This summer, however, his conditioning program has been hampered by allergies. Gabrys predicts it will take about a month for him to completely recover from his slow start with gradually increased endurance work.

But Haas and Kissinger are the only Mustang barriers to record sub-18-minute times at Cass Benton. Senior Kevin Booth will likely join that elite group in short order.

Booth ran a respectable 18:10 at the Cass Benton course three years ago before he moved with his family to Plano, Texas. He's back now, and Gabrys is glad to have him on the roster again. "Kevin's been among our top three runners in most workouts this spring," Gabrys points out.

The runners Gabrys is counting on to keep close to the leaders include senior David Balok and junior Scott Wiley, back for his third year on the team. Wiley's personal best on the Cass Benton course is 18:22.

"Scott's always been a smooth runner," Gabrys notes. "more a 10-kilometer-type runner than a 5K type. But he's worked on his speed and made a lot of progress. He and Haas have been our two leaders this summer."

The Mustangs open their '85 season at 4 p.m. Tuesday, September 3, against old rival Novi at Cass Benton Park.

Northville swimmers excel at state swim meet

Four Northville youngsters — all members of the Clarenceville Swim Club — were among the outstanding swimmers at the Long Course State Swim Championships, held August 1-4.

Altogether, 48 teams participated in the competition, with Clarenceville Swim Club taking fifth overall and second for Age 11-12 Girls.

In Age 11-12 Girls' competition, Pam Holdridge, placed second in the 100 meter butterfly and second in the 50 free and 50 fly. Newton also led off the 200 free relay team, and the 200 medley relay team; both took fifth place. Also swimming on those two relay teams was Northville's Bob Holdridge.

Women's race aids zoo

Now here's a quick way to scout out the Detroit Zoo: Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan are hosting The Blue Zoo 10K, a 6.2-mile race for women on zoo grounds, beginning at 9 a.m. Sunday, September 8.

Trophies will be awarded to the top three teams in several special categories, including mother-daughter, sister-sister, family, corporate and open teams. Trophies also will be given to the top five finishers in the following age divisions: 14 and Under, 15-19, 20-24, 25-29, 30-34, 35-39, 40-49, 50-59, and 60 and Older.

Medals also will be awarded to the first 100 finishers and all participants will receive certificates, a race t-shirt and Bonne Belle cosmetics.

The overall first-place winner will receive an expense-paid trip to the L'Eggs Mini-Marathon in June, 1986.

Sporting goods gift certificates will be awarded in three drawings for participants who register with letters postmarked on or before Friday, August 16, 23 and 30. The entry fee is $6 until August 30 and $8 thereafter and on the day of the race.

Men may participate in a special mile run which features a $3 entry fee (sorry, no t-shirt), free zoo parking and admission, and medals to the first 50 finishers.

All profits from the race will be donated to the Detroit Zoological Society.

Construction snafus snarl schedules

By B.J. MARTIN

With one high school construction snafu after another entangling Northville High School students, faculty and staff, just what will happen to those participating in athletics is still a confusing muddle.

"A lot of revisions are going to have to take place in terms of schedules with the split sessions," said Ralph Redmond, athletic director and assistant principal at Northville. "I think everybody's going to have to be flexible and patient and cooperative."

Redmond will try to meet the school district's physical education commitments with a combination of schedule-juggling, facility-borrowing and lip-biting.

Completion of the swimming pool for interscholastic events could be as far as 10 weeks off, Redmond said, although he suggested it may be available for practices some time sooner. Until it re-opens, swimmers will practice this week at the Northville Swim Club's outdoor pool. Redmond said Monday he is talking to representatives of Schoolcraft College, Novi High School and Livonia Bentley High School about sharing their pool facilities.

Barring construction approval complications, the high school gymnasium should be available for basketball practices some time in September, Redmond said. The first home game of the season will be at the Northville Community Center, but subsequent home games may be scheduled away, he added.

Basketball teams now use the Community Center, Novi High School and Novi Middle School South for practices.

Locker rooms at the Cooke Junior High building are being used by all fall teams. Until the new high school lockers are finished — still a long way off — 80 high school lockers are to be moved to Cooke temporarily. "Some kids will have to change there, then shower and change back and carry duffel bags between buildings," Redmond said.

Outdoor sports schedules may be affected by the construction, Redmond said. In particular, afternoon soccer and tennis games (home soccer games are played at night) which interfere with afternoon class sessions at Cooke, will take some doing to rearrange.

Football and soccer practices until the start of the school year have been held at Meads Mill Middle School. This week, practices, equipment and facilities will be moved to Cooke grounds.

Mustang women harriers aim for crown

Nine runners may not sound like a very big turnout, but first-year women's cross-country coach Ann Turnbull isn't complaining. That's double the number who ran for the Mustangs last fall, and Northville had a regional championship to show for it.

Leading this year's team will be senior co-captain Wendy Nuechterlein, a top-notch varsity harrier since her freshman year. Nuechterlein brings an impressive list of accomplishments with her: she's a returning captain, a state meet qualifier and finished as high as 24th in the state in Class A two years ago.

Nuechterlein battled with injuries last season and won the team's GUTS award for her dramatic late-season comeback, which cemented the regional title for the Mustangs.

Also returning from that team is senior co-captain Sue Blanchard. Blanchard was a third-team all-conference pick last season and should boost her credentials this time around. Pam Cavanaugh, another senior, and Jennifer Goshorn round out the roster of returning harriers. Both also won third-team all-conference honors last season.

This season, Turnbull and men's coach Ed Gabrys, who will assist Turnbull this year, recruited several track standouts to join the cross-country squad. Hurdlers Lynn Bills, a senior, and Kris Marrone, a junior, are out for the first time, as well as senior Tracy Nelson, junior Carol Olson and her team's only freshman, Nancy Belding.

The Mustangs, co-division champions last season, will miss team co-captain Cindy Panowicz. But at least Gabrys is confident the team's improved depth could restore them to contender status.

"The Livonia schools (Churchill and Franklin) are going to benefit from the closing of Bentley," Gabrys acknowledges. "But our kids have always adapted well to that sort of Alamo psychology and worked that much harder. We've always been in the hunt."

Northville opens its season at 4 p.m. Tuesday, September 3 against Novi at Cass Benton Park. Following the non-conference dual meet, the Mustangs will face one more non-conference opponent, South Lyon, before facing North Farmington — a new addition to the WLAA Lakes Division — September 12 and new Western Division team Franklin September 19.

RECREATION BRIEFS

FALL BROCHURE: Northville Community Recreation this week released its fall brochure of department programs and activities. From sports programs for all ages to children's shows and senior citizen programs, there's something for everyone. If you haven't received a brochure in the mail, they are available at Community Recreation offices, 303 West Main.

SENIOR GOLF TOURNEY: Senior golfers of all abilities may participate in the Michigan Recreation and Parks Association Senior Citizens Tournament at Glen Oaks Golf Course in Farmington Hills on Friday, September 6. Tee-off times begin at 7:30 a.m. The nine-hole tournament is divided into four age categories for both men and women. Cost is $4 per person and pre-registration is required. Glen Oaks is located in Farmington Hills on Thirteen Mile between Orchard Lake and Middlebelt roads. For more information or to register call 698-2700.

HOCKEY TRYOUTS: Tryouts for the Plymouth-Canton Hockey Association's fall teams will take place Tuesday, September 3 through Monday, September 9. The association sponsors the following age group divisions: Mites (5-9), Squirts (10-11), PeeWees (12-13), Bantams (14-15), Midgets (16-17) and Juniors (18-20). Players need not be registered to try out for a team, however, players wishing to register may do so at any of the tryouts. For specific tryout times and further information, phone 459-6444.

MICHIGAN TRIATHLON: Two hundred of the best athletes in southeast Michigan will participate in the Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan Triathlon at Belle Isle on Saturday, September 14, beginning at 10:30 a.m. To register call Blue Cross/Blue Shield at 225-8421.

Milford couple finds success with data-processing business

When people think of computers, they think of expensive hardware sitting alone in an air-conditioned room or blinking in four-color monotony on the desk of the resident computer expert.

A Milford couple, however, has found success working in the data processing industry with people — not machines.

Kathi Andonian and Chris Grzanowski live in the Lake Sherwood subdivision and work at Compuware Corporation, a data processing organization in Birmingham which offers computer services and products to companies across the United States and in six foreign countries.

Grzanowski is the assistant director of the Detroit Branch and Andonian is 1984's top salesperson in the Products Division of the company. The husband-wife team began their careers in data processing as programmers, but found that their people-oriented personalities might a different career path.

In his position with the Detroit Branch, Grzanowski is responsible for 330 data processing professionals who work at various client installations in the Detroit area.

These professionals, who are equipped with special skills, aid in computer programming and system design analysis, perform system conversions and provide needed expertise for technical support services.

One of Grzanowski's major responsibilities is recruiting new data processing technicians. The Detroit Branch of Compuware is budgeted to double in size in 1985. This means that Grzanowski and his staff will be hiring some 300 additional people before March 31, 1986.

Surprisingly, this is a tough and exhausting job. Compuware is in competition for qualified professionals with every other data processing firm in southeast Michigan and Grzanowski must sell prospective job applicants on his company's qualities.

Grzanowski says that this particular aspect of his job is easy. Compuware has grown to the largest privately-owned data processing services firm in Michigan, maybe in the United States, by attracting competent professionals and retaining them.

"We're a good company to work for and our record proves it," Grzanowski insists.

Grzanowski spent 17 years in the data processing department of a large corporation before joining Compuware. Compuware was new and growing, and Grzanowski, like many employees, found themselves doing things for the first time.

"I was the first person to systematically study the process of opening a branch," he remembered. "I moved to Baltimore (Maryland) to learn, and assisted with opening the Washington D.C. office."

In 1981, Grzanowski started Compuware's Houston operation and ran that activity for two years.

Andonian, too, worked as a system analyst for a large corporation before she came to Compuware. For a while, she continued as a computer programmer with the company but in 1982 she decided to indulge her skills as a "people person" and applied for a sales position in the Systems Software Division of Compuware.

Andonian educated herself on the technical aspects of Compuware's software products before her interview with the sales department so that when she began work, she needed no training in that area.

Her success was meteoric. She joined the sales staff in 1983 and in 1985 was recognized by the company as "Top Performer in Software Product Sales for the 1984 Fiscal Year."

Also, in 1985 she received the "Super Software Seller" award from International Computer Programs, a trade magazine in the field of data processing. This award is presented to each salesperson achieving over $1 million in software sales for one year.

Recently, Andonian was made sales manager in her division and has responsibilities for product sales in Compuware's southern region. Together, she and Grzanowski handle the people business in what most people perceive as a machine-dominated industry.

Industry spokespersons have likened the data processing field of 1985 to the automobile world of the 1920s. If that is true, Grzanowski and Andonian are poised at the helm of the world of the future.

Business Briefs

JOHN BAKHAUS and his son Bill Bakhaus (above), owners of South Lyon Motors, recently were honored by Rustler Horse Trailers of Bristol, Indiana, for sales of over $1 million in Rustler Products. The Bakhauses have been doing business with Rustler since 1971. Rustler was established in 1966 and South Lyon Motors is the company's first million-dollar dealership. Rustler presented the Bakhauses with a new horse trailer and a plaque.

DUNKIN' DONUTS is participating in a fund-raising drive with the National Institute of Technology Business Club.

Members of the Business Club will sell special coupons at $2.75 which may be redeemed for a dozen free Dunkin' Donuts as well as 50 cents off a dozen regular cookies and $1 off a dozen muffins. The coupons are redeemable at all Detroit area Dunkin' Donuts shops.

David Ward, fund-raising representative, said that Dunkin' Donuts is proud to be affiliated with the National Institute of Technology's Business Club and is looking forward to seeing them achieve their objective.

THE HAMPTON HOUSE RESTAURANT, formerly Henry Huggins, is now putting more emphasis on the family meal.

Located at 134 West Huron Street in Milford and owned by John McMillin, the store has removed several center-room booths and replaced them with tables and chairs to accommodate family dining. The restaurant now seats 64 to 70 people.

The Hampton House is a full-service restaurant during breakfast, lunch and dinner. Feature foods include fish and chips, chicken and chips, shrimp and chips and pizza.

DICK MORRIS CHEVROLET of Walled Lake enjoyed the most successful sale in its history, selling a total of 122 cars and trucks during the sale which ran from August 14-17.

Assistant General Manager Lee Morris reported that the dealership received a special letter of commendation from R.P. Loughman, Chevrolet's Detroit Zone manager, for the success of the four-day event. Other General Motors officials called the dealership with compliments on the outstanding effort, Morris reported.

Dick Morris Chevrolet is located at 2199 Haggerty Road near Pontiac Trail. The dealership is open Monday and Thursday from 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Loans available to help college students

Money Management

The best solutions for meeting the rising cost of college require long-term financial planning. But for someone who is about to begin the fall semester, a more immediate solution is needed.

According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, anyone facing the financial crunch of college costs should be familiar with federal government financial aid programs.

Federal financial aid offers students loans, grants and jobs to help defray rising college costs. If you think you may qualify for federal financial aid and have not already applied for the coming semester, you should do so immediately. Some schools will defer all or part of your payments while your application is being processed, CPAs say.

Of the six federally subsidized financial aid programs, five have some sort of needs test for eligibility. The key factor in qualifying is whether a student is dependent or independent.

Dependent students are those who receive more than $750 a year from their parents, are claimed as a dependent by their parents or live with their parents for more than six months of the year. Dependent students are eligible for federal financial aid based upon their family income. Independent students, however, qualify for aid based upon their personal income level.

One new eligibility requirement has been added to the federal financial program: registration for the draft. All students must check one of several reasons offered in the financial aid application for failing to register.

Here is a rundown of the six federally funded financial aid programs:

• GUARANTEED STUDENT LOANS (GSLs) allow you to borrow money from a bank and have part of the interest paid by the federal government. You need not begin repaying a GSL until six months after you graduate or leave school.

Currently, someone who borrows under the GSL program will pay an eight percent interest rate on the loan. That's about half the rate of consumer installment loans that are being offered by most state lenders. GSL repayment is stretched out over 10 years, which makes any long-term inflationary pressures work to the advantage of a borrower, CPAs say.

You can borrow up to $2,500 a year in five undergraduate years under the GSL program. The actual loan amount is reduced to about $2,300, however, by loan origination fees you must pay the lender.

To qualify for a GSL you must meet a "needs test" if your family's adjusted gross income is over $30,000. But families well beyond the $30,000 income level could receive GSLs, depending on their net worth and the number of children attending college.

• PELL GRANTS are awards given to students who demonstrate a financial need. Unlike a loan, an award under the Pell program does not have to be repaid. However, strict qualifications demonstrating financial need must be met to be eligible for this grant.

As a rule of thumb, a student whose family income is greater than $30,000 probably will not qualify for a Pell Grant. The amount you receive if you qualify varies from $200 to $2,100, based on your financial and the cost of the college you attend.

• PLUS (Parent Loans for Undergraduate Students) offer families a "quick fix" for cash flow problems. PLUS loans should be used by parents to make up for any temporary shortfalls in cash. You can borrow up to $3,000 a year at a 12 percent finance rate, but you must begin repayment within 60 days after the loan is granted. You won't have to demonstrate financial need for PLUS. The CPAs say a family may use this loan if a lump sum of cash is expected in the near future.

Three other financial programs are doled out by individual colleges based upon need. You may qualify for this aid at one college but not another. Much of this money may have already been allotted to students who applied for aid last spring. These three programs are not available on every campus.

• SUPPLEMENTAL EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITY grants also are awarded on campus based upon financial need. Awards range from $200 to $2,000.

Reducing employee stress boosts profit picture

Reducing stress among employees can help generate profits, according to the findings of a Plymouth consulting service.

Dr. Lorraine Colletti of Human Synergistics of Plymouth said that corporations of every description are discovering bottom-line benefits of having employees reduce stress levels and simultaneously increase their management effectiveness.

Colletti is a clinical psychologist and trainer for the one-year-old System for Creating Organizational and Personal Effectiveness (SCOPE), a marked departure from the variety of stress-management seminars now offered.

"Most stress programs are purely topical," said Colletti, explaining that they deal with the effects of stress. "When they are over, you do feel better, but the basic problems remain."

"That's what we at Human Synergistics call an aspirin approach. In contrast, SCOPE deals with the roots, the causes, of stress. It enables us to locate the potholes in each person's psyche, to point out places where they're likely to buckle under pressure."

"Then we give them a proven process for actually rethinking and reframing their problems."

The direct correlation of thinking styles with measurable on-the-job stress is not a new concept. Studies conducted throughout the past decade have shown that by changing specific thinking styles and the behaviors associated with those styles, it's possible to reduce the incidence and intensity of stress.

As one example, the New York Equitable Life Assurance Society in a 1979 study discovered that for every $1 spent on employee stress reduction the company saved $5.52 in attrition, absenteeism, on-the-job accidents and insurance costs.

In another case, a major food wholesaler traced its profits and expansion directly to the participation of its key managers in an extended executive development program implementing the same techniques applied in SCOPE seminars, said Colletti.

During the first of the seminar's two days, participants complete a Stress Processing Report — a multiple-choice assessment inventory that identifies sources and points out vulnerable areas.

draw a lifeline — a map of major life events — and to explore the decisions and behaviors that resulted from the events.

The second day is prescriptive and includes a skills retraining session which teaches a rethinking process for organizational and personal problems.

Hundreds of middle- and upper-level managers who have participated in SCOPE, says Colletti, report the program has a large and positive affect on their work performance. Many say the program has helped them to feel more productive, both personally and professionally, and has led to a sense of greater control over their lives.

SCOPE is one of 84 diagnostic and simulation products offered by Human Synergistics, a management development, consulting and training organization founded in 1970 and headquartered on Plymouth Road in Plymouth.

With associate firms in the United States, Canada, United Kingdom, Europe, Australia and New Zealand, the company is a leader in the field of human resource development.

the fairy godmother's secret is out!

Don't let that "magic wand" fool you! She's tried to make us believe that with a wave of that wand, she can turn pumpkins into carriages, mice into white horses and rags into white gowns: But we know she's just like the rest of us! When we want to turn a baby crib into cash... an older car into a new one... or change from sales clerk to doctor's receptionist... the only magic wand we hold in our hand is a telephone receiver and the only thing we wave is our index finger as we dial the Classified Department of our newspaper! It's like magic the way good things come true for us with the help of Want Ads. And besides, we have a strong feeling that's the way the fairy godmother makes all her magic, too!

LABOR DAY 1985: Far from dead, labor adjusts to a new age

Union ranks may swell with clerical members like Northville Schools employee Cindy Yunk . . .

By KEVIN WILSON

Not too long ago, the approach of Labor Day was marked more often with the sounding of a death knell than with cheers.

Organized labor was under fire. The loss, probably permanent, of more than 2 million manufacturing jobs devastated union ranks. Membership fell from 26 percent of the U.S. workforce to less than 16 percent. Based so strongly in the notion that there is strength in numbers, organized labor seemed to be shrinking away to powerlessness.

Worse, union credibility was under fire both from within and without the ranks. Where labor could count many sympathizers among workers who were not actually union members in the past, unions were taking the public blame from all quarters for economic problems as diverse as the growth in imports and years of inflation.

As union leaders began making collective bargaining concessions, the workers themselves began shouting about "sell-outs" and ignoring the leadership's political endorsements.

Time and again, union members refused to vote for the candidates leadership had selected. The membership decline alone was enough to lessen organized labor's political influence; coupled with the new-found independence of the members who remained, the once-powerful labor bosses found their strength had collapsed all but the most-concentrated industrial enclaves.

It's far too early to say organized labor has solved any of those problems. But the movement is responding to its crisis, changing its worst habits and reshaping itself to survive in a radically altered society.

One thing unions aren't going to do is fade away. Immediate changes may be in store, but the basic idea of workers banding together to protect their common interests will remain at the heart of the movement.

"As long as there are bosses, there'll be unions," former UAW President Douglas Fraser told a Novi News reporter last year.

Norm Fultz, head of UAW local 896 at the Northville Ford Plant puts the case a bit more strongly: "Unions always are going to be justified, otherwise the companies will take advantage of their employees."

That suspicious union credo formed the philosophical core of labor's confrontational attitude toward management in the past, but Fultz's repetition of the basic notion is coupled with an enlightened approach toward the changes his own union has seen since 1981.

"You need the union as much to tell workers what management's doing as you do to tell management what the workers need," Fultz says. "The union's got to be a part of management, as far as helping to keep the company in business."

SHOUTING LESS, IMPROVING IMAGE

Two major changes already evident are a less confrontational attitude in management-labor relations and a shift in the union ranks away from the manufacturing industries (Fultz's local counted more than 200 members four years ago, now there are fewer than 60 employed at the plant) and into the expanding service sector.

The union member of tomorrow is more likely to be a service or clerical worker, perhaps a professional and often employed in the public sector. Even long-time industrial unions are seeking these workers, evident locally in a UAW drive to wrest membership from the ranks of Northville-area mental health workers away from the Michigan State Employees Association (MSEA).

Organizing white-collar workers has never been as easy as convincing industrial employees to join a union: the often better-educated, surely more-conservative, white-collar ranks have been put off by labor's history of shrill accusations against management and an element of leftist politics in the rank-and-file, if not among the leadership.

Janice Arps, secretary/treasurer of MSEA Chapter 71, which represents social workers, nurses, and psychologists at Wayne Community Living Services, an arm of the state Department of Mental Health, says the

. . . to make up for loss of manufacturing workers like Northville Ford plant's Jerome O'Brien resistance to unions is evident among some members of the chapter.

"That's because of the image that it's just wages and benefits," she explains. "There's always some professional resistance, based on the idea that unions just want more all the time."

If that complaint was legitimate in the past, local union leaders say it is no longer the case. Their members, they say, are more interested in issues like job security, working conditions and "respect" from management.

"This union is here to protect us, to keep the standards high," says Bob Gatt, president of the Novi Police Department local of the Police Officers Association of Michigan (POAM). When Novi police organized in the mid-1960s, Gatt says, wages and benefits were low and that was the union's primary interest.

"Today, the Novi Police Department is made up of very professional people," Gatt says. Rather than pushing for more wages and benefits all the time, the union's role today is less confrontational and more involved in acting as a means of communication between management and labor, he says.

"It's no longer shouting matches and foot-pounding," Gatt says. "Rather, it's very amicable discussions that generally lead to mutually satisfying resolutions."

Fultz says one of the best things that came out of revised UAW-Ford relations under a 1982 contract was an element of respect from management for workers' intelligence, coupled with a recognition among employees that efficiency, costs and productivity were not simply management concerns.

"My people take more interest in their jobs on a day-to-day basis," he says. "I get more concerned over cost, I figure the costs myself. Nobody ever cared about that before."

Fultz also credited the profit-sharing provisions of that 1982 contract with providing an economic incentive for a shared interest between labor and management. Northville Ford plant workers got an average $2,000 each last March in shared profits.

Arps says the MSEA members she works with are more interested in gaining a voice in management decisions than in accumulating greater benefits.

"We want to be involved in decisions," she says. "We want some respect for being able to make decisions. The same things apply for professional employees as do for industrial workers. Autoworkers want to see a product that's well-made, we want to provide quality services."

If unions take on a role communicating their members' needs to management, they are also finding a need to serve as a conduit from management back to the members, explaining and educating members about what is and is not possible under collective bargaining, for instance.

Fraser, who has retired from the UAW and now teaches labor relations at Wayne State University, says it falls to union leaders to explain economic reality to the members, some of whom remain militantly anti-management.

Fultz notes that Chrysler workers gave up a profit-sharing clause in their contract that would have provided a tremendous windfall last year in exchange for "a few cents an hour."

In retrospect, it was poor trade-off forced by workers disturbed about the hourly wage differential created when Chrysler employees gave concessions to save the company when it was near collapse.

"The top leadership realizes that you can't kill the goose," Fultz says. "You'll see it filter down to the rank-and-file over time. Workers have to share in the profits and sacrifice when there aren't any profits."

NEW MEMBERS, NEW ISSUES

That kind of flexibility won't produce a return of labor power unless the ranks are greatly expanded, however. Doing so means attracting members from the mass of employees outside the traditional blue-collar ranks.

Labor movement produced gains for everyone

For most of us, Labor Day has come to mean little more than another holiday from work. A day for family picnics, a means of marking the end of the summer months, a signal of the return to school.

At a time when virtually every holiday has moved off its original date in order to accommodate three-day weekends, Labor Day is just another in a string. But Labor Day was the original Monday holiday, designated as the first Monday of September in part to create a three-day weekend.

That Labor Day has become so much part of everyone's life in the U.S. is emblematic of labor's status as an integral element of the social fabric.

Union membership may be a minority here, but unlike the more-radical labor movements of Europe that advocate overthrow of the capitalist system, American labor generally fits into the mainstream.

Though organized labor can be traced back to the 1600s in America, the modern movement is more conveniently dated to the post-Civil War period. Union forces first celebrated Labor Day in 1882 and the movement was strong enough to have the holiday declared a national one in 1894.

The rough-and-tumble of 19th century organizing (in which state militias and federal troops were often called in to break up strikes and union leaders were imprisoned) was revisited in the movement's rebound of the 1930s, leading to several anniversaries this year.

Unemployment insurance, initially a part of the Social Security Act, celebrated its 50th anniversary August 14. This year is also the 50th anniversary of the National Labor Relations Act establishing organizing and collective bargaining rights. It was also 1935 when the C.I.O. was formed and the UAW established as an international union under the A.F.L.

While non-union workers focus on labor's role serving its own members in collective bargaining, the movement's history includes more political activity that affects all workers.

The movement can be credited with such common benefits as vacation pay, employer-paid life and health insurance, paid holidays, child labor laws, overtime pay, worker compensation, pensions, and various legal protections in the workplace.

Former UAW president Douglas Fraser points out that labor has worked for increases in the minimum wage, even though its members never work for that wage.

"I've spent my entire life in the labor movement and I wouldn't have spent five minutes of it if we hadn't taken the broader view of advocating social change and helping the people of this nation," Fraser said last year.

Key dates in history

1882: New York City is host to the first Labor Day parade on September 5 under direction of the Central Labor Union.

1885: Bricklayers are the first building trades group to get a collective bargaining agreement in New York.

1888: The American Federation of Labor (AFL) is founded at Columbus, Ohio, with Samuel Gompers elected president.

1935: The National Labor Relations

Act establishes workers' rights to organize and to elect representatives for collective bargaining.

1935: The CIO is founded. The UAW is founded. The federal Social Security Act, including provisions for unemployment compensation, is signed into law.

1938: The Fair Labor Standards Act outlaws child labor, establishes the minimum wage (25 cents per hour plus time-and-one-half for all hours over 40 per week).

1955: AFL and CIO merge, bringing 16 million union members under one umbrella. George Meany is elected president of the new organization.

Northville Jaycees attend state meeting

By JEAN DAY

A delegation of seven Northville Jaycees represented the chapter at the State of Michigan Jaycees' summer board meeting on Mackinac Island August 16-18.

At the session Teresa Folino, who has been local public relations chairperson, was appointed to the state board as state chair of public relations.

Others attending from the local chapter were Mike Terry, president; Kevin Hartshorne, administrative vice president; Roxanne Kistler, secretary; Doug Boor, Senator; Jeff Campbell, director; and Beth Michel.

The delegates stayed at the Mackinac Hotel, the old Mackinac College building converted to a convention center, and report the accommodations there are lovely. Special guest speaker at the Saturday luncheon was a former Jaycee, Governor James Blanchard. The weekend of seminars, meetings, socials and banquets ended with a bang — fireworks.

Former resident brings a gift

Former longtime Northville resident John Canterbury stopped in town briefly earlier this month to leave a donation to the Northville Historical Society with Fran Gazlay. It was an acrylic depiction of Northville done by the late Catherine Hartley, a local resident and artist who had an art gallery on Main Street in the 1960s in the narrow store where the Bookstall on the Main now is headquartered.

"John Canterbury thought it would be more appropriate if the piece stayed in Northville," Gazlay reported, saying it will be added to the Northville Historical Society museum collection of items that will be on display in a museum in the Mill Race Historical Village in the future.

He noted that Canterbury was instrumental with John Burkman in getting the land for the village as a gift from Ford Motor Company. At the time, Canterbury was associated with Ford and served on the city council.

It's baseball, coffee and cookies for Newcomers

With September approaching, Northville Newcomers are looking for new residents in the community.

President Ina Hacker invites anyone new to Northville to attend the annual Newcomers' membership coffee to be held at 7:30 p.m. September 5 at First United Methodist Church at Eight Mile near Taft.

Any woman living in the Northville school district five years or less is welcome to join the club. Board members will be present to explain club programs, including the monthly Ladies Day and couples' events. The club now has more than 30 interest groups, ranging from crafts and recipe exchange to book reviews.

The $10 annual dues provides for participation in all Newcomer activities that are detailed in a monthly newsletter, president Hacker reports. She may be called at 348-1326, or membership chair Susan Debolt, at 349-8767, for information or for a ride to the coffee.

Northville Newcomers' Alum group will be having a membership tea at 9:30 a.m. September 5 for all new and returning alumnae. It will be given at the home of Marlene Bentham, 20300 Woodcreek. Call her at 348-6318 for reservations. Yearly alum dues are $5. Members who cannot attend the tea are asked to send their checks to Jan Wargo, 41687 Sunnydale Lane.

Reservations currently are being taken for the September couples' event, a Detroit Tigers and Baltimore Orioles baseball game September 13.

On the trip to the stadium in a double-decker bus Newcomers will snack on pizza, beer and wine. Cost is $25 a couple for the evening. Reservations are being taken by Judy Whitely, 348-4438.

Other couple events planned include a sports evening of wallyball and racquetball and a Night at the Races. Ladies Day special events in the planning are a trip to Meadowbrook at Christmastime and a discount shopping spree.

MELISSA FAUST, MARK BERGEL

LAWRENCE THOMPSON, NATALIE CUNIN

Couples announce fall weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Faust of Bloomfield Hills announce the engagement of their daughter Melissa Beth to Mark Alexander Bergel of Northville. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Bergel of 42190 Baintree.

The bride-elect is a graduate of the Hotel, Restaurant and Institutional Management School of Michigan State University. She is employed as a management trainee by Westin Hotels and currently is located at the Westin Oaks in Houston, Texas.

Her fiancé is a graduate of Catholic Central High School and received a B.A. in Communication Arts and Sciences at Michigan State University. He now is vice president of replacement parts division at Grinder's Clearing House in Detroit.

A late September wedding is planned at St. James Lutheran Church in Grosse Pointe.

The engagement of Natalie Lynn Cunin of Novi to Lawrence Scott Thompson of Northville is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Cunin of Cranbrooke Drive in Novi.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Thompson of Parkway Place in Milford.

The bride-to-be is a 1981 graduate of Novi High School and attended Central Michigan University for two years. She is employed by Lautrec, Ltd., in West Bloomfield.

The prospective bridegroom graduated from Milford High School in 1980 and attended Central Michigan University. He currently attends Cleary College in Ypsilanti and is employed by Small Quantity Specialists Inc. of Westland.

An October wedding is planned.

OFFICIAL NOTICE TO THE CITIZENS OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTHVILLE

OF PUBLIC HEARING TO CONSIDER APPROVAL OF A PROJECT PLAN AND THE ISSUANCE OF THE BONDS PROPOSED THEREIN AS SUBMITTED TO THE TOWNSHIP BOARD OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTHVILLE BY THE ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTHVILLE FOR MIJDUB REALTY COMPANY PROJECT

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that pursuant to Act 338 of the Public Acts of Michigan of 1974, as amended, The Economic Development Corporation of the Township of Northville has submitted a project plan to the Township Board for its approval.

Said project plan deals with the construction and equipping of a 40,000 square foot official/industrial manufacturing facility to be owned by and used by MIJDUB Realty Company, and to be located on a project area or site described as follows:

Commencing at the West ¼ corner of Section 2, T1S, R8E, Northville Township, Wayne County, Michigan; thence N 02 deg. 56' 55" W 467.12 feet along the West line of said Section; thence N 85 deg. 12' 36" E 295.00 feet to the POINT OF BEGINNING; thence continuing N 85 deg. 12' 36" E 237.50 feet; thence S 03 deg. 09' 10" E, 666.87 feet; thence N 88 deg. 04' 20" W 300.64 feet; thence N 45 deg. 32' 35" W 51.58 feet; thence N 03 deg. 00' 45" W 142.24 feet; thence N 18 deg. 42' 05" E 47.76 feet; thence N 59 deg. 03' 05" E 112.04 feet; thence N 03 deg. 09' 10" W 97.58 feet; thence N 28 deg. 56' 55" W 48.64 feet; thence N 02 deg. 56' 55" W 215.00 feet to the Point of Beginning. Being a part of the West ½ of Section 2, T1S, R8E, Northville Township, Wayne County, Michigan and containing 4.01 acres of land, more or less. Being subject to easements and restrictions of record, if any.

The street address of the facility is to be determined.

Said project plan details all information required by law relative to said project and its impact on the community. No persons will be displaced from the project area as a result of this project. Said project plan also proposes the issuance of revenue bonds by said Economic Development Corporation in a maximum principal amount not to exceed $2,000,000 to assist in the financing of said project.

The Township Board will meet at 7:15 o'clock p.m., Thursday, the 12th day of September, 1985, at the Northville Township Civic Center, located at 41600 Six Mile Rd., Northville, Michigan, and will conduct a public hearing.

The public hearing shall consider the advisability of the Township Board approving, modifying or rejecting by resolution said project plan and the issuance of bonds as proposed therein.

High school choir is focus of new church music director

Jeff Fowler assumed his duties as new director of music at First Presbyterian Church August 1, including playing for Sunday services — but he isn't playing the organ in the sanctuary for the congregation.

Because of renovations being done in the sanctuary, services presently are being held in fellowship hall where he is providing music on a portable pipe organ on loan from St. Paul's Cathedral in Detroit.

Pastor Lawrence Chamberlain comments that Jeff's playing of the little organ and the general informality are being appreciated, however, as parishioners enjoy meeting in the room where stained glass windows from the former sanctuary are used.

The new organist agrees but is looking forward to playing in the sanctuary soon.

He also last week was anticipating his first meeting with high school members of the Westminster Choir.

He reports that he intends his music emphasis to be on the high school youth choir.

"The chancel choir — I don't know if they (members) realize — has quite a reputation which I hope will continue, but I think a bit more work is needed with the high school choir.

"I'd really like to build up a nice high school choir," he says emphasizing that he feels the members are "young adults, not older children."

Mentioning that practices of the Westminster Choir had been sandwiched between those of the children's choir and the chancel choir, Fowler is changing its practice night to Thursday at 7:30 p.m. "It will be the only choir meeting then and there will be more time. I need to know them and they need to know me."

Fowler notes that in his native Pennsylvania he directed a youth hand bell choir at a Lutheran church in Philadelphia. The group toured Germany under his direction.

"I hope to do something similar here — I want to build up a nice high school vocal choir," he adds.

The elementary and junior high hand bell choir will continue. "I would anticipate a high school hand bell choir developing later from the junior highs," Fowler explains.

Fowler encourages any young singers in the community to come to the Thursday practices. "It's not necessary to be a member of the church to sing in the choir," he emphasizes.

Fowler, who was born and raised in Allentown, Pennsylvania, received his B.S. degree in music education from West Chester University. He continued with private organ study while working full time with the Lutheran church in Philadelphia.

Two years ago he moved to Michigan to begin studies for a master's and doctoral degrees. He has his master's from the University of Michigan and will be working this fall on his doctoral in organ performance with Marilyn Mason at U-M.

For the past two years the organist also has been serving as associate organist/choirmaster at Christ Church in Grosse Pointe.

Mentioning that he heard of the Northville opening from his former boss, Fowler says he sought it as "a challenge with more opportunity."

"It's considered part time, which means for me about three-quarters," he explains.

Fowler, who is a bachelor living in Ann Arbor, is going to have a busy fall as he has promised also to do private teaching "as my schedule permits."

Mill Race ceremony unites couple

Andrea Durst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luke Durst of 1200 Hillridge, became the bride of Norman Preo of Elk Grove, Illinois, in a 5 p.m. ceremony June 1 in Mill Race Historical Village.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Preo of Elk Grove.

Randy Casteel, a friend of the bride, directed a five piece brass ensemble that played for the service. Dr. Wallace Hostetter of Ward Presbyterian Church officiated.

Following the exchange of rings and vows in the gazebo, the bride and bridegroom each presented a long-stem rose to their mothers.

The bride's gown of white nylon tulle was fashioned with a stand-up collar of Schiffler embroidered lace. Venice lace with pearls and sequins adorned the fitted bodice which featured puffed, Juliet sleeves trimmed with a lace flounce with bridal points. A lace hemline flounce extended into a chapel train. A floral wreath headpiece held the bridal veil.

Silk white and pink roses with stephanotis and silk pearls tied with white satin ribbons formed the bridal bouquet.

Bridal attendants were Nancy and Carolyn Durst, sisters of the bride, and Alicia Preo, sister of the bridegroom.

They wore tea length gowns of pink taffeta fashioned with cream-colored lace overlay and carried cream-colored lace fans adorned with pink and white silk roses, stephanotis and pearls. Matching flowers on combs formed their hair ornaments.

Joey Fortin, a cousin of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

Jim Werner was best man. Ushers were John Wolff and Peter Preo, cousins of the bridegroom.

After a reception for 100 guests at the Holiday Inn of Farmington Hills, the newlyweds traveled to Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming where they are employed for the summer. They had met at the park.

The bride is a 1978 graduate of Northville High School.

The bridegroom is a 1978 graduate of Elk Grove High School and a 1983 graduate of Northern Illinois University with a B.S. degree in art education.

MR. AND MRS. NORMAN PREO

New members welcome

LWV plans old-fashioned picnic

An old-fashioned picnic in Mill Race Historical Village is being planned for the fall membership meeting of the Northville, Plymouth, Canton and Novi League of Women Voters from 1-3 p.m. Saturday, September 14.

The general meeting will be a "focus on membership," says Carolann Ayers, chief organizer for the event. She also is planning a one-hour tour of the village with Northville Historical Society docents giving the history of Mill Race buildings.

Assisting with arrangements are Kathy Mutch, a state board member from Novi, Cathy Prince and Dee Richardson.

"It's not even necessary to make reservations — anyone interested should just show up at 1 p.m.," Ayers encourages.

Ayers adds that the local league has an impressive, active membership. In addition to Novi's Kathy Mutch serving at the state level, there have been two state presidents from the league — Bev McAninch and Nancy White. A former member, Jane Watts of Traverse City, now is on the state board.

Also scheduled in September is a local meeting for Novi members. It will be at 1 p.m. September 23 at Country Place Clubhouse. Call 349-6079 to make arrangements to attend.

The membership meeting is being held during League of Women Voters' month in Michigan. In proclaiming September League of Women Voters' Month, Governor James Blanchard recognized the vital role played by the LWV in promoting citizen participation in government and helping to shape public policy.

Local league dues are $27.50. Checks may be sent to Janet T. Correll, treasurer, 8459 Holly, Canton, 48187.

Currently league members are beginning the second half of the 1984-86 National Security Study, adopted by delegates to Convention '84. It calls on members to "evaluate U.S. economic and military aid to developing countries and its relationship to our international economic and political interests."

The consensus report is being done by Deanna Huff. The league also is working on a consensus on health care under the direction of Kari Miller.

Cynthia Fanslow is president of the local league. Dee Richardson is membership chair and Audrey McConachie is bulletin editor.

In addition to studying local and national issues, the league keeps members informed on state concerns. The current report notes that a group of lawmakers have announced a petition drive to make the Michigan Legislature part-time, to meet from mid-January to mid-May.

Lamaze registration under way

The Lamaze Childbirth Education Association of Livonia is offering several series of classes this fall. If your baby is due late this year, sign up now, it urges, because classes should be started two to three months before the baby's due date.

Weekday classes are 7-9:30 p.m.; Saturday classes are 9-11:30 a.m.

Classes open next month are:
• Church of the Savior, 38100 Five Mile, Livonia, on Wednesdays, September 4 through October 9.
• Newburgh United Methodist Church, 36500 Ann Arbor Trail, Livonia, on Mondays, September 9 through October 14.

• Holy Cross Lutheran, 30650 Six Mile, on Saturdays, September 14 through October 19. Another class will start at the same location on Thursdays, September 19 through October 24.

Also, a class just for refresher couples who have been through Lamaze training will be held on Tuesdays October 1-22 at St. Alexander's Catholic Church, 27825 Shiawasee, Farmington Hills.

Classes offer information about pregnancy, labor and delivery, a childbirth film, and breathing techniques, relaxation exercises and comfort measures. The fee is $38 per couple for the six-week series ($28 per couple for refresher). All instructors are registered nurses and mothers themselves. LCEA is a non-profit group which has been in business since 1975.

Also, a free class on breastfeeding and on cesarean delivery will be offered from 7-9 p.m. September 16 at St. Matthew's United Methodist Church, 30900 Six Mile, Livonia.

For information about LCEA classes, contact 592-8618.

Two local dealers featured in Plymouth antique mart

Northville antiques dealer Judy Wilkinson and quilter Doris Cross are among those participating in the Plymouth Symphony League's 23rd Annual Antique Mart September 6-8 at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer Street.

Twenty-two dealers will display a wide variety of antiques and collectibles including primitive furniture, golden oak, caned and rush seat chairs, china, ironstone, Heisey glass, Doultons, American brass and copper, quilts, children's miniatures and toys, baskets and country antique accessories.

Wilkinson, owner of the Carriage Stop in Farmington, will be featuring English and European antiques.

Cross, an auxiliary dealer and owner of Quilts by Doris in Northville, will be demonstrating quilt making.

Show hours will be 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Admission is $1.50 for adults and $1 for students and senior citizens.

All proceeds from the show benefit the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

Three exhibit art

Three Northville artists joined other artists from Oakland, Wayne and Macomb counties in Michigan and from throughout the United States participating in the 12th annual Northville Hills Condominium Association's Art-on-the-Lake show August 24 in Troy.

Among the 100 participants registering were Laurie Fowler and Bill Thelen, who are fiber artists with their home/studio in Northville.

Barbara Teubert, whose specialty is basketry, also was a Northville participant.

Local members attend conference

Barbara Hoffmeier and Ettie Ann Hirth of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Northville were among the more than 8,000 participants attending the 21st biennial International Lutheran Women's Missionary League Convention in Ames, Iowa, July 22-25.

St. Paul's was among the 15 churches in the Pontiac Zone of the Lutheran Women's Missionary League represented at the convention.

The LWML is an auxiliary of The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. It has 200,000 members in 5,600 congregations in the United States and Canada.

Students featured in recital

Music students of Selma Schnute presented a varied program on the piano, violin, flute, saxophone and guitar last Friday morning at First Presbyterian Church.

Piano solos were performed by Erika DiMassa, Katie Coseo, Courtney Hamilton, Jessica Pereira, Shannon Powell, Donna Kadar, Carolyn Curtiss, Gina Knight, Anne Brandenberg, Dirk Boyce, Gary Olson, Paul Coseo, Vance Powell, Allison and Angela Donnelly and Michael Hamilton. Violin soloists were Angel Konarske and Chris Siese.

Flute soloists were Donna Kadar and Gina Knight.

Ensemble selections were by Chris Siese, Angel Konarske, violinists, Gina Knight, Donna Kadar and Angela Donnelly, flutists, Joe DiPonio, saxophonist, and Sean O'Keefe, guitarist.

"NEW" SLEEP AID

Each year we see more and more medicines being switched from the prescription-only to the nonprescription class. One such medicine is the antihistamine promethazine, now available in a product for temporary relief of insomnia.

Promethazine has been prescribed by physicians for a number of conditions for decades. Because promethazine is an antihistamine, it is useful in cold and allergy medications. Promethazine also has antiemetic activity which makes it useful in nausea and vomiting.

The new promethazine-containing sleep aid contains 20 mg of the medicine. In one study patients who were "poor sleepers" experienced improved sleep when they took either 20 mg or 40 mg of promethazine. The 40 mg dose was no better than the 20 mg dose in that study.

Many other nonprescription sleep aids contain diphenhydramine, another antihistamine that was once available only on prescription. One sleep-aid product contains doxylamine, an antihistamine that was popularized in a prescription-only tablet for nausea.

Allergy time? It's easy to spot hay fever, other victims

By SUSAN KAUPPIA

You can spot them a mile away. They sneeze and sneeze or they cough incessantly. They blow their nose, snort, and clear their throat. They rub their watery, itchy eyes and often scratch their red, blotchy skin or hives. They sometimes have dark circles under their eyes even though they sleep a sufficient number of hours daily. Often they exhibit a white line across the bridge of their nose.

You guessed it. The people with these symptoms suffer from allergy and number among 35 million of Americans, from children to adults, similarly affected in one form or another.

Allergies are the most common form of chronic disease in the United States. Twelve million have allergic diseases such as eczema, hives, insect sting and food and drug sensitivity.

Nine million Americans have asthma and nearly 15 million suffer from hay fever. At least 17 percent of the United States population are allergic in some form.

Allergy means an abnormal reaction to something that is usually harmless. These substances or allergens may be inhaled, injected, swallowed, or contacted by the skin.

The number of possible allergens is endless, but they can be broken down into seven major categories.

- 1. Things you breathe (dust, chemical vapors, dust, pollen, molds, cosmetics, feathers, animal danders)
- 2. Things you eat or drink (foods, medicines, beverages)
- 3. Things you touch (soap, fabrics, poison plants, metals, plastics)
- 4. Things with which you are injected (venom from insect stings, vaccines or drugs)
- 5. Things with which you are injected (molds, bacteria, fungi)
- 6. Physical factors (cold, heat, light, sun)
- 7. Emotional factors (conscious or unconscious feelings)

When these various allergens reach the body, they can react in many ways within the body. The same allergen may also affect people differently.

For example, one person who is allergic to chocolate may break out in a rash or hives. Another person may awaken the next morning with swollen eyes or have a severe headache.

Nearly every organ of the body can be affected by an allergen. In hay fever, allergies usually affect the nose and eyes. They can strike the digestive system causing diarrhea or canker sores. They can cause headaches, earaches, hearing loss, and visual problems. In asthma, allergies affect the bronchial tubes and lungs. And in severe reactions, allergies can kill people.

Several years ago the news media carried a story about a band student who ate a candy bar at a football game. By half-time, when he was performing, he keeled over and died from a severe reaction to the ingredients in the candy bar.

How one becomes allergic is not entirely understood by doctors. Generally, one must first be exposed to an allergen and develop a sensitivity to it. That produces the sensitization, while the second or third exposures produce the reaction.

The body's defense system recognizes something that is a foreign substance (allergen) and then produces antibodies to neutralize the foreign substances known as antigens. When the system produces immunity to germs, the body is functioning correctly. Conversely, when the system produces an allergy to some substance that produces hives or coughing, the body is not functioning properly.

For instance, when a person eats something to which he or she is allergic such as melon, the food is broken down in the stomach and intestines. The troublemaking molecules then enter the bloodstream and antibodies are formed to protect the body. Then several substances are released from the body's cells, including histamine. While histamine is always present in the body, great amounts of it are produced during an allergy attack.

The large quantities of histamine cause the body's large air tubes to go into a spasm, causing the tubes to narrow and restrict the amount of air inhaled and exhaled. Also, many glands are stimulated which then pour out large amounts of mucus in the walls of the air tubes, making breathing more difficult.

The histamine also works on the capillaries causing them to open and expand. Because the walls of these tiny blood vessels are so thin, the increase in size caused by the histamine makes them leak fluid to the surrounding tissues. This causes swelling.

It is this swelling that is the source of most allergy problems. If the fluid causes swelling in the lining of the nose, the person will have a stuffy nose and have trouble breathing. When the fluid brings out swelling of the skin, hives are the result.

Allergic reactions differ from time to time because of the person's level of resistance or threshold. Perhaps he or she eats only a small slice of melon one day and experiences no problems. However, on another occasion, the person has an attack after ingesting melon because the threshold was breached.

Many different factors account for the lowering of thresholds and the increase in symptoms. Changes in climate or temperature, an emotional upset, lack of sufficient sleep, strong odors or fumes, poor nutrition, hormone imbalances, and exertion can all create changes in the threshold.

One piece of melon may be all right one day, but on a day when one is tired or upset, there could be a severe reaction.

Unknown to many allergy sufferers is the fact that one allergy can add to another. Maybe the person did not eat enough melon to cause a problem, but if he or she has a problem with odors and walked into a newly painted room a short while later, the two together could push the threshold over its limit.

Because of the complexity of allergies, treatment is not always simple. Sometimes just plain avoidance of the allergen is possible. Not eating melon will certainly help the person who experiences reactions to it.

When reactions are severe or chronic, it is wise to seek out a competent allergist, one who is a member of the American College of Allergists or the American Academy of Allergy.

For your first visit with the allergist, take along a list of all the substances which appear to cause reactions. Include how your body reacted, as well as what time of day or what time of year, whether they happen after any special event, or are worse at particular times.

The allergist may then perform a physical examination and administer various kinds of tests. Some of the tests may involve scratching the skin slightly and rubbing the allergen on the scratch. How much swelling occurs from the allergen tells the allergist how severe is the allergy.

An intradermal test may also be done which involves injecting a diluted extract of the allergen into the middle layers of the skin.

Treatment of allergies can be simple or involved, depending upon the severity or number of allergies one has. The most widely used allergy medicine are the antihistamines which counteract the production of histamine in an allergic reaction.

Allergists may recommend breathing exercises, moving to a new climate, changes in diet, or hyposensitization injections. The latter involves injecting the patient with extracts of the allergen over a long period of time, forcing the body to produce increasing numbers of antibodies to build resistance to the allergen.

The research for the treatment of allergies is continuing. New drugs are being developed and scientists are attempting to correlate allergy information on an international basis but it is not an easy task. Reproducing allergic symptoms artificially in animals is extremely difficult, for example. Great strides have been made in the last 40 years, and doctors tell us new treatment are on the horizon. For the allergy sufferer, it can't come any too soon.

Rapaport, M.D., and Shirley Motter Linde, M.S., published by Simon and Schuster; The Allergy Encyclopedia, edited by the Asthma and Allergy Foundations of America and Craig T. Norback, published by the New American Library; and Parents' Guide to Allergy in Children, by Claude A. Frazier, M.D., published by Grosset and Dunlap.

Synthetic-filled ice cream can irritate

EDITOR'S NOTE: Linda Weiss has spent the last four years doing extensive research in the health field. Her special interest has been in clinical ecology, the study of the ill effects of the environment on man.

Weiss plans rotation diets for victims of ecological illness and has written a self-help allergy resource book entitled, "How to Live with the New 20th Century Illness."

By LINDA WEISS

How many hot summer evenings have you gathered up your children, plus as many of the neighborhood kids as could be squeezed into the family station wagon, and headed for the nearest ice cream parlor?

"Icecreamania" is as American as apple pie. Who can resist a cooling, delicious, mouth-watering banana split made with vanilla, cherry and pineapple ice cream piled high with whipped cream?

In the good old days when ice cream was made of whole eggs, raw milk and sugar in the old home freezer, a serving of ice cream was an occasional family treat and did no harm. Today, in this mass-production synthetic age, it is quite another matter. There is a very good possibility that you are "treating" yourself and your family to something totally synthetic.

Many of today's ice creams are synthetic from start to finish. Analyses show that some typical supermarket ice creams contain in part, the following chemicals:

DIETHYL GLYCOL — a chemical emulsifier used instead of eggs. It is the identical chemical used in anti-freeze and paint remover. Recently the West German government ordered the removal from shelves of all Austrian wines because some of them were found to contain this chemical which was used for sweetening purposes.

PIPERONAL — a substitute for vanilla and a major ingredient in pesticides used to kill lice.

ALDEHYDE C17 — cherry flavoring that is used in dyes, plastics and rubber.

ETHYL ACETATE — pineapple flavor and also used to clean leather.

BUTYL ALDEHYDE — nut flavor and an ingredient in rubber cement.
AMYL ACETATE — banana flavor and used in pain solvents.

So when you order that banana split with vanilla, cherry, pineapple, etc., you may just be getting a tummy-full of chemical soup.

Question — are there any commercial ice creams available today, which do not contain these chemicals?

Answer — yes, there are. Read the labels. Since the summer of 1973 government regulations have required the printing of a list of ingredients on all packages of ice cream.

Question — are there any commercial non-dairy ice creams available?

Answer — there are several milk-free ice creams available as of this writing and more are on the way. One manufacturer is producing a rice-based, maple syrup sweetened ice cream. Another packager is marketing a soy-based, honey sweetened variety.

I repeat the warning — read labels carefully and find out what chemicals are lurking in the product. We have a rule at our house: "If you can't pronounce it — don't eat it."

Are your children presently waiting patiently for you to drive them to an ice cream store? Why not give them a real treat? Let them use this simple recipe to make their own. They may even let you have a taste.

MAPLE-WALNUT ICE CREAM: One cup heavy cream, one and three-quarter cups milk, one and one-quarter cups 100 percent pure maple syrup and three-quarters cup chopped walnuts.

If you don't possess an ice cream maker, all of the ingredients with the exception of the walnuts, may be combined and mixed in a blender.

After blending, add the walnuts, stir well and place the mixture in a bowl in the freezer until firm. Then remove and whip the mixture with electric beaters and refreeze. Thaw for five to 10 minutes before serving. The yield will be approximately one and one-half pints.

For additional product information, telephone Linda Weiss at 313-684-2087.

Related foods may cause problems for sufferers

If you are allergic to a particular food, chances are you will be susceptible to other edibles of the same food group. The following list will alert you to the members of the most troublesome food families:

- APPLE FAMILY — Apple, pear, quince.
- ASTER FAMILY — Lettuce, chicory, endive, escarole, artichoke, dandelion, celuce, sunflower seeds, tarragon.
- BEEF FAMILY — Beet, spinach, chard, lamb's quarters.
- BLUEBERRY FAMILY — Blueberry, huckleberry, cranberry.

Diet Pill Sweeping U.S.

New Super "Dream Pill" Lose Weight As You Sleep!

No Dieting — Eat All You Want

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. — An amazing new super "dream pill" has recently been developed and perfected that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose up to 10 pounds in 10 days. Best of all, it allows you to "eat as much as you want of your favorite foods and still lose a pound a day or more, starting from the very first day until you achieve your ideal weight and figure."

This remarkable new diet pill combines two natural substances which cause adults to lose weight fast by "tricking" the body into acting like a teenager. These nutritional substances, called L-arginine and L-ornithine, stimulate the body's production of growth hormone. Dr. Robert Harris, a specialist in nutritional medicine in Stafford Springs, Connecticut, was recently quoted as explaining: "Growth Hormone may be what's responsible for allowing teenagers to down thousands of calories in hamburgers and other foods and still be thin as a rail."

"Growth Hormone is present in people up through the teenage years, then slowly diminishes with age. But L-arginine and L-ornithine make the body 'think' it belongs to a teenager again, allowing adults to eat as much as they want — and still be thin and wiry."

"Pill Does All The Work"

According to the manufacturer, "the pill itself does all the work while you quickly lose weight with NO starvation 'diet menus' to follow, NO calorie counting, NO exercise and NO hunger pangs." The pill is not a drug! It is 100% safe consisting of natural amino acids just like those found in the foods you eat everyday.

Life Extension Authors Confirm Results

Durk Pearson and Sandy Shaw, graduates of MIT and UCLA respectively, introduced these miracle substances to the public in their runaway best selling book, Life Extension. They discovered the weight-loss effects by accident. Sandy fell and broke her foot and started taking L-arginine because of its well-known healing qualities. Much to her amazement Sandy lost 25 pounds of fat and put on 5 pounds of firm-toned muscle in six weeks. According to Durk's calculations, the pill caused Sandy to lose 400 times as much fat as she would otherwise have lost — without dieting!

Lose Weight While You Sleep

One beautiful thing about these miracle pills is the ease with which they work. You don't have to count calories and you don't have to follow special diets or eat special foods. You don't even have to exercise. The best time to take the pills is just before you go to bed at night. That way, the pounds melt away even as you sleep. You wake up every morning, slimmer, happier and feeling younger!

The super dream pill is already sweeping the country with glowing reports of easy and fast weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Extraordinary Guarantee

Place your order now. If you are not completely satisfied with the thinner "new you" simply return the empty container for a full refund of your entire purchase price. No questions asked. Now what could be fairer than that?

You can order your supply of these remarkable pills by sending $19.95 for a 30 day supply (or $34.95 for a 60 day supply) cash, check or money order to: Life Cycle, 17300 17th St., Suite J-111, Dept. 15, Tustin, CA 92680.

To order by phone simply call Life Cycle TOLL FREE (1-800-453-4903), and use your VISA or MasterCard. Operators are standing by 24 hours a day, seven days a week. If you don't have a VISA or MasterCard, Life Cycle will also accept C.O.D. orders right over the phone! But please don't wait. Order today. You won't risk a thing. Either you get a slender new you — or you get a full refund of your purchase price.

Annual pool party at Northville Swim Club brought out more than swimming caps early this month. Tracey Winter, right, models her balloon headdress. During the party the pool's lifeguards line up for a fun plunge into the water, below, as they presented a show for those attending. Labor Day weekend will be the final plunge as the club located on the hill by the Northville water tower closes for the season afterward. Record photos by Rick Smith.

Unions adjust to modern reality, seek members

There are an estimated 16 million clerical employees in the U.S., only 2.3 million of them unionized. Sixty-eight percent of the non-union workforce is employed by small companies of less than 100 employees each.

Reaching out for those workers has already begun. The five newest AFL-CIO member unions represent flight attendants, hospital/health care workers, school administrators, police and professional football players.

Accommodating their needs requires a different approach, one that departs from labor's tough-guy stances against anything that might result in fewer members or a perceived loss of wages or benefits.

City of Northville clerical employees dropped their affiliation with the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) in 1982 when the union took a hard-line stand on seniority in the face of DPW layoffs. Both clerical and DPW workers were represented by the union, but when AFSCME argued that high-seniority DPW workers ought to be able to "bump" lower-seniority clerical employees, the clerical decertified the union and formed an independent bargaining group.

Arps noted that the state offered MSEA a choice of wage concessions or layoffs three years ago and the union stood firmly against concessions. MSEA represents state workers of all kinds, but the professionals in Northville disagreed with the state-wide position and there was an effort to decertify MSEA in favor of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT), which Arps says some members thought would better represent professional attitudes. The effort failed, but the potential is the same one seen recently with a UAW drive to replace MSEA for some workers.

Arps notes that workers are faced with a sometimes difficult choice in these situations. "Can small groups be as effective?" she asks. "Is it better to have large numbers under one employer, or to have several small groups of people doing the same job for different employers?"

Fultz says he believes the UAW could be effective for workers in small auto supplier firms. "A lot of these small companies could afford to pay more, but they don't because there's no one representing (workers)."

Entertainment

The Northville Record

School starts in a week, but summer's not over yet. For many, the season wouldn't be complete without a trip to the State Fair.

Although the fair opened Friday, there is still time to enjoy all the entertainment and exhibitions it has to offer.

The Michigan State Fair was established in 1849; that makes it the oldest state fair in the nation, and growing each year. About a half million people visited last year's fair. This year should be no different, in that respect, but there have been some new additions.

One of the biggest attractions this year is the series of free concerts, featuring country and western star Willie Nelson (performing tomorrow and Friday), the funk-urban S.O.S. Band (performing Saturday) and the country and western sound of the Thrasher Brothers (September 1).

The series will be presented at 3 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. in the bandshell, except for Willie Nelson, who will perform only at 8:30. The concerts are presented with a general seating arrangement, so come early to get the best seats.

More musical entertainment this year has ranged the gamut from bluegrass to polka at various locations daily. A big band concert will fill the bandshell Labor Day with performances by the Brookside Jazz Ensemble at 3 p.m., the Austin Moro Big Band at 6 p.m. and Johnny Trudell and his Big Band at 9 p.m. But music is just the appetizer. The main course at the State Fair is the agricultural exhibition. And this year, there promises to be more than ever before.

Examples of Michigan's finest agricultural products will be on display in the Amazing Acre of the Agricultural Building. Demonstrations, recipes and samples of fruit, vegetables, meat, dairy products, honey and Michigan wines will all be offered. A restaurant in the building will serve only Michigan-grown foods.

Some unusual Michigan products which will be auctioned off are wool garments made from the fleece of Detroit Zoo animals. All the money raised in this auction will go toward the zoo's Feed the Animals Fund.

Since responsibility for maintaining the state fairgrounds was transferred to the Department of Natural Resources in 1979, improvement of the facilities has been a priority item. Ten million dollars has been spent on buildings and landscaping the grounds.

A $2 million multi-livestock facility was built just in time for this year's fair, providing space for 346 new horse stalls. Some of this year's competing horses will have a new event in which to strut their gait.

A carriage driving competition will feature a number of antique carriages, driven by exhibitors in period costume. Competitors will be judged on the skill of the driver as well as the performance of the horse.

Other new events this year include a national truck pull competition sanctioned by the National Truck Pulling Association, plus a Monster Truck Car Crush featuring "King Krunch," Friday and Saturday.

Hulk Hogan will defend his heavyweight wrestling title tonight in the World Championship Wrestling Title Match. It is one of seven matches in this first-time Michigan State Fair event.

For even more physical pursuits, Saturday there will be a Body Building Championship for men and women. On Labor Day there will be the Miller Lite Professional Arm-wrestling Championship. And tonight, the Queen of Queens Contest will determine "Miss Michigan State Fair" for 1985.

Some of the more popular returning events this year are the Budweiser World Champion Rodeo with its final performance this evening, the Elias Brothers' Three Ring Circus, which will have performances through Saturday and the U.S.A. Demolition Derby September 1-2.

Domestic arts displays throughout the fair will offer tips on baking, canning, needlework and crafts; civic and service groups will have their own special days, and a list of daily events and contests is longer than you've got time to read.

But you do still have time to make it to the fair. And it's only $4 for a full day of entertainment, kids under 11 are free when accompanied by an adult.

The Michigan State Fair runs through Labor Day. Hours are daily 10 a.m.-11 p.m. The Fairgrounds are located at Woodward Avenue and Eight Mile Road in Detroit, just about an hour drive from Livingston County.

SEPTEMBER

What's Going ON

Sounds

MUSICAL NOTES: MONTREUX DETROIT JAZZ FESTIVAL, downtown Detroit The 1985 Montreux Detroit Jazz Festival opens today, August 28, and continues through September 2. ## Country Epicure: Made from good stock dining out

DIANE KOVACS

It is no surprise that the Country Epicure has opened to rave reviews. Much was expected of the new restaurant on Grand River Avenue in Novi.

The restaurant is owned and managed by Jill Angelosante, assisted by her sister Michele Angelosante-Peppo. And if that surname sounds somewhat familiar, it should. The Angelosante family enjoys a very fine reputation for good restaurants and good food in the Metropolitan Detroit area.

Best known perhaps is Chris Angelosante, whose Appe'Teaser restaurant in Milford enjoys an outstanding reputation. Another of the Angelosante siblings, Karen, runs the Toll Gate restaurant at Fairlane Mall in Dearborn.

Because of the family ties, the Angelosante sisters have a wealth of experience in the restaurant business. Jill has worked at both the Toll Gate and the Appe'Teaser as well as managing a small restaurant in Petoskey.

Michele, who at 22 is in charge of the Country Epicure, has perhaps even more impressive credentials. After graduating from the food services program at the Southwest Oakland Vocational Education Center, she headed for the Culinary Institute of America in New York and was one of 15 students to graduate from a class of 30, receiving her degree in March 1984.

Additionally, her impressive resume includes stints at several of the area's most highly regarded dining establishments — Raphael's in Novi, Van Dyke Place in Detroit, Franklin Hills Country Club and Periwinkles in Brighton.

The Angelosante sisters have taken over what formerly was the Saratoga Trunk, a restaurant with a long tradition for good food.

The differences between the Saratoga Trunk and Country Epicure are vast, however. What the Angelosante sisters have done is made the restaurant distinctively their own, completely remodeling the interior to fit their own styles.

Gone are the plush velvet curtains and strongly Victorian decor that marked the Saratoga Trunk. In their place is a warm, friendly "country" setting, done in shades of cornflower blue. A large hutch against the wall of the main dining room further establishes the country flavor.

The influence of the Angelosante's older brother, Chris of Appe'Teaser fame, is in evidence throughout the menu. Featured on the Appe'Teaser menu, for example, is an entree of liver with strawberries, which finds its counterpart at the Country Epicure in calves' liver with grapes ($10.75), slices of calves' liver sauteed with shallots and butter, and finished with grapes, bacon and brandy.

Diners are greeted with a bread basket filled with three types of breads, all made by Michele in the Country Epicure kitchen.

The menu contains 12 different entrees in price from Broasted Chicken Breasts at $8.25 to Roasted Pheasant in a cherry sauce at $16.25. The entrees are accompanied by choice of soup or salad as well as a vegetable.

On our initial visit to the Country Epicure, my companion selected the Calves' Liver with Grapes, while I opted for the Amaretto Shrimp ($13.95), five jumbo shrimp sauteed in butter, flamed with amaretto, served over rice and topped with almond silvers. Both were excellent.

Also noteworthy are the desserts, particularly the pastries whipped up by Michele and displayed on the hutch in the dining room. Michele recently attended the International Pastry Arts Center in Bedford Hills, New York, participating in a one-week seminar on chocolate and another one-week seminar in breads taught by former White House Pastry Chef Albert Kumin.

A whiskey torte is particularly outstanding, while there also are various other torts along with cheesecakes, Italian ices and various liquor dessert drinks.

The Country Epicure offers a more than adequate wine list. Special mention should be made of the service, which is friendly and casual in tone, while still being efficient and attentive.

The Country Epicure is a worthwhile addition to the northwest suburban dining scene, Elizabeth's, the Ah Wok and, yes, The Appe'Teaser.

Homes: Buying or Selling The Livingston Group is the Place to Come.

"One-step shopping" aptly describes the business operation of the Livingston Group Realtors.

Just about everything that has to do with finding, buying or moving into a new home can be accomplished by visiting this growing firm housed in unique and dynamic new quarters at 7600 Grand River in Brighton.

According to Chairman of the Board Joe DeKroub, the office acts as a "convenience center." Skilled people are ready to list and sell houses, service clients and handle closings. The Livingston Group recently added Reliance Mortgage Company to the expansive office building. Customers, as a result, can borrow money without leaving the building.

"Clients don't have to run all around," DeKroub said.

Fred Madley, executive vice-president, said that the Livingston Group is number one in the county. Four years ago the real estate firm opened its doors and sales hit $12.4 million. So far this year it has sold $56 million and anticipates a banner year of $84 million.

The Livingston Group's growth has been phenomenal, triggering an expansion into a totally new affiliate, the Michigan Group, with offices in Ann Arbor and West Bloomfield.

Although the company only recently moved into its new building, Madley said, already plans are formulated for phase two of the building project and construction has begun. An additional building that is bigger than their current one will be built next door. Businesses that are real estate oriented are being eyed as tenants.

Madley said that one reason for the meteoric rise of the firm is the quality service offered by the employees and sales team. They must know "financing thoroughly, understand real estate and offer quality service," Madley said, adding that careful recruiting and selective hiring assures quality personnel.

"We want to make our people happy when they come to work by offering the best possible facilities and professional training," Madley said. He also said they work as a team.

"Our sales team wants to see the company grow as much as themselves," he said. "We draw on experience and raise the standards of our sales team."

Since the Livingston Group stresses the opportunity the clients have of getting everything done under one roof, several specialists are in-house.

A full-time relocation coordinator is available for people who are looking to move outside of the county or the state. There's an advertising marketing group which Madley describes as being very strong. Homestead Title Agency, Inc., a tenant in the new structure offers a complete title service including escrow closings.

The employees and sales team aren't the only ones who help business. A new computer system was recently installed that speeds up the job of being a Realtor® and makes everything more accurate.

"We want to be a leader in the industry," DeKroub said.

The computer also provides a "search program for the future." This means that if a customer has a given amount of money to spend and affordable housing is not available at the time, the computer will keep searching for the right "buy" until it comes on the market.

DeKroub said that his salespeople try to make sure the home-owner listing his property with the Livingston Group gets the most money possible in the shortest period of time.

"We try to maintain our quality service," DeKroub said.

The Livingston Group also builds houses. Three builders are available in the office. Some of their local accomplishments include homes in Brighton Estates, Wood Lake Village, Lake Moraine, and Lakeshore subdivisions.

Office hours for the Livingston Group are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekends. For further information call the office at 227-4600.

BEMS dedicated to energy smarts

Energy efficient buildings will reduce our dependence on foreign countries, cut back the waste of our natural resources and also assist in reducing utility costs of building owners.

BEMS- Engineering, Inc., an engineering consulting firm located at 103 North Center Street, Northville, provides this service for schools, private industry, hospitals and municipalities. BEMS Engineering's present staff consists of 16 people and is still growing.

Bud Kunz, president of BEMS Engineering, stated that the business has been in Northville for the past seven years and is one of the largest consulting firms in the State of Michigan. BEMS' staff consists of administrative personnel, professional engineers and an architect.

At the present time, BEMS Engineering has under construction more than $4.5 million in energy projects. These projects were recommended by BEMS' engineers through a detailed technical study of several buildings. Engineers on the staff wrote the specifications, assisted the building owners in qualifying contractors and are overseeing the projects through to completion. Over a period of ten years these building owners will save more than $4 billion in reduced utility costs.

Larry Kunz, executive vice president, states that BEMS Engineering conducts a total building analysis which includes, but is not limited to, the building structure analysis, roofing consultation with recommendations for repair or replacement, window analysis with recommendations for repair or replacement, and all related building improvements.

Mechanically, all energy using equipment is evaluated. Realistic recommendations are made for upgrading systems to bring them beyond their original design. When the technical engineering and architectural studies are complete on paper, we tear the building to the ground and, piece by piece, reconstruct it to be as efficient as if it were built in the 1980s.

Bud Kunz stated, "Our service is in demand; we recently opened an office in St. Clair Shores. The main reason for our growth is because we are unique. We do it all. We have proven that our method works. We also assist our clients in seeking financing of recommended projects. There is money available for good, sound programs that will show a payback period of less than three years."

Paul Milhizer is in charge of BEMS' Asbestos Control Program. This is a separate division of BEMS

Project engineer Paul Dobry and secretary Renie Diacomio

Engineering. Paul stated that he is working with several school districts in regard to the United States Environmental Protection Agency's "Program for Asbestos Control in Schools." This is a very specialized field.

Years of experience in the field of building analysis and design, along with a working relationship with the Environmental Protection Agency, has resulted in knowledgeable recommendations being made to school administrators, thereby enabling them to adhere to the strict regulations set forth by the E.P.A.

Asbestos is something you can't fool around with; it has definitely been proven to be a health hazard. Therefore, asbestos inspections, analysis and recommendations should be handled with experience and knowledge.

Cougar Vice-President of operations in Novi, Allen Whitfield.

Cougar grows on quality work

The foundation of a successful business is built with quality products and good service. At Cougar Cutting, 25100 Novi Road, that is exactly the type of service and products customers receive.

Cougar Cutting sells Honda replacement engines, generators, boat motors, water pumps, lawn mowers and tractors, along with Stihl Line Trimmers, chain saws, and Ducane barbeque grills. Cougar's main three lines have been rated No. 1 by Consumers Report Magazine.

"Although the products are not cheap, they are the best quality," said store Manager Kevin Schmitt.

"Every year for the past three years, sales have doubled consecutively," Schmitt reported.

The business has been located in Novi for six years. Prior to moving to Novi, the business was located in Livonia.

Cougar Cutting is a family-operated business owned by Ronald J. Schmitt. His son Kevin manages the retail business in Novi while Martin Schmitt manages the finance department and Ron Measel heads the outside sales for the Corporation.

Originally Cougar Cutting started as a construction company for drilling and cutting concrete in 1967. In 1982 the company expanded into the retail business & has been selling power equipment ever since. They also have the same type of business located in Fort Myers, Florida.

In 1984, Honda sponsored a sales contest for all stores that carried Honda products. The store that sold the most Honda products won a trip to Japan, Hong Kong and China. Cougar Cutting won.

One of the newest products available at Cougar Cutting is the Ducane Barbeque. The barbeque has a push button start and a porcelain finish on the cooking grid which makes it easy to clean — but that's not all — the barbeque also has a back burner to reduce flare-ups and burning. Rotisserie attachments also are available.

One of the most popular items sold at Cougar Cutting is the Honda Mower. This mower features rear-wheel drive and a gear-driven system as opposed to a belt-driven system. The engine in the Honda Mower is a four-cycle engine instead of a two-cycle engine which means you don't have to mess with mixing oil and gas. This also holds true with the 4 stroke, light weight Honda boat motors.

According to Honda, Cougar Cutting is one of the largest dealers of Honda generators in southeast Michigan.

One of the nice things about Cougar Cutting is its philosophy on service. "We are very service and quality oriented," Schmitt said.

Keith Branoff, Salesman, demonstrates one of the world's quietest generators — The new Honda EX-650.

"Every year for the past three years, sales have doubled consecutively."

At some companies, you may wait months to have your mower or generator serviced — if that particular company even services what they sell.

Cougar Cutting is noted for its service department. And they service everything they sell.

All damaged equipment is looked at the moment it is brought in, and the mechanics at Cougar Cutting will service the equipment immediately if they can.

Since the business was built on service, all service managers and mechanics working at Cougar are certified through the Honda manufacturer along with Stihl Power Tools. Each mechanic returns to school approximately every six months to learn more about the equipment sold at Cougar Cutting.

Another unique dimension to Cougar Cutting is its delivery service.

If you have just purchased a new mower or any other kind of equipment and can't transport it in your car, Cougar Cutting will provide home delivery. The service is free of charge, but you must live within a 30-mile radius of the store.

In relation to the construction sales of the business, Cougar sells diamond blades, along with concrete saws, cut-off saws (Stihl) and drill rigs. Cougar also serves as a master distribution for W.W. Granger, a power tool warehouse that handles over 30,000 items.

So if you're in the market for any good quality power equipment come & see the CATS at Cougar, they would be pleased to assist you. Remember, for Honda-Stihl-Ducane call Cougar at 348-8864.

New techniques help Novi Dental patients

Dr. Allen Tuchklaper discusses treatment with a patient

To call the Novi Family Dental Center a routine dentist office would be totally inaccurate. The Novi Family Dental Center, 24101 Novi Road, has the most up-to-date equipment in the area and can give you the best smile in town.

Today, there is a lot of emphasis on looking good. Men and women join health salons and fitness centers, and everyone seems to be looking for the perfect diet.

But, the first thing a person notices is your smile.

Thanks to new and innovative dentistry, the Novi Family Dental Center can give you state-of-the-art treatment along with fabulous looking teeth.

Dr. Allen Tuchklaper, DDS and owner of Novi Family Dental Center, is a member of United Dental Associates which provides the latest in dental equipment and a dental plan designed to offer up to 20 percent savings on quality care.

The Electronic Cavity Finder is just one of the many unique equipment items used at Novi Family Dental Center. No picking or pulling is required with this new item.

The Electronic Cavity Finder is a painless way of detecting cavities. A probe is placed on the tooth and the machine registers a number on a screen between zero and nine — zero indicating no cavity and nine indicating a cavity.

The numbers between zero and nine indicate the formation of a possible cavity. By allowing the doctor to detect the formation of a cavity early, steps can be taken to eliminate the cavity before it has a chance to develop. This machine is a major step toward a cavity-free childhood.

To make small children more comfortable at the office, the electronic cavity detector has a smiley face on the screen. When no cavity is detected, the face will smile, when a cavity is detected, the face will frown.

One of the most important services available at Novi Family Dental Center is the MICRO I/D Information Disc. This is a small plastic disc bonded to a stress-free area of your tooth or dentures. It is designed for people of all ages.

With all the missing children in the U.S., the disc is extremely helpful to police and hospital officials.

There are over 40 million Americans who have medical conditions that could be life-threatening in an emergency situation if physicians or medical personnel are unaware of them. With the MICRO I/D, your fears of something like this happening are over.

The MICRO I/D contains any or all of the following information: Name, address, telephone, date of birth, medical alert (diabetic, epileptic, special medications), allergies, organ donor and in case of emergency notify:

The disc costs $15. Dr. Tuchklaper does not charge an installation fee, and a duplicate disc is provided free of charge.

The bonding process to install the disc takes minutes and is entirely painless. It requires no shots or drilling.

One of the most revolutionary techniques in dentistry is cosmetic bonding. Dr. Tuchklaper has been performing cosmetic bonding for ten years.

With cosmetic bonding, chipped or cracked teeth and crowns can be repaired; irregular spaces between teeth are easily eliminated; discolored teeth from tetracycline, trauma or hereditary factors can be color-corrected; and misaligned or poorly-formed teeth in many cases can be reshaped for a more attractive smile.

Cosmetic bonding is a non-surgical technique and can be done without the use of a local anesthetic or drilling. The entire process takes about 30 minutes to complete.

Cosmetic bonding costs one-third the cost of caps and crowns and is a very simple procedure. The bonding will last anywhere from three to six years.

Bonding materials also can be used in place of silver fillings to provide a full set of white teeth.

The "Inter Ligamentary anesthetic" is another new dentistry product used at the Novi Family Dental Center. It is used for numbing teeth.

Instead of having your entire lower jaw numbed for one or two fillings, the Inter Ligamentary Anesthetic only numbs one tooth which causes very little discomfort. Dr. Tuchklaper said he could even pull a tooth with this anesthetic.

For denture wearers, the Novi Family Dental Center has good news — "Newsoft" dentures.

With this new product from United Dental Associates, there is a permanent solution to the problem of loose, sore dentures.

Thanks to a new space age material, Newsoft dentures fit securely and softly, eliminating the need for adhesives and most denture adjustments. Newsoft dentures can be used for new or relined dentures.

To acquaint people with all the unique new dental techniques available at Novi Dental, Dr. Tuchklaper offers free consultations, simply call for an appointment at 348 3100.

Dentistry has changed dramatically over the past five years and Dr. Tuchklaper is keeping pace by providing patients with the latest innovations in dentistry along with quality service.

If you want the most beautiful smile in town, Novi Family Dental Center is the answer.

Mainstreet: Step two for Northville

By Jean Day

Mainstreet 78, Northville's renovation project that — as visualized — has revitalized the city's downtown and drawn both new businesses and customers to the attractive community, is due to be expanded in a second phase.

This will extend the project eastward on Main and along nearby streets, incorporating the areas into the downtown.

City Manager Steven Walters, who guided the innovative program of using "captured taxes" to help achieve the rebirth of Main Street, will be continuing to head the planning. "It could come in 1986," he says, "if downtown development projects materialize as their planners have indicated."

Walters refers specifically to the projected development of the southwest corner of Main and Center streets by the 108 Group, which has held an option on the property and gained approval of its building. The building in the center of town is planned with both commercial and residential space.

Mainstreet 78, begun in 1978 and completed in 1982, was one of the first community projects to use the then-new state-approved Tax Increment Financing. Under the plan the city was able to use tax monies resulting from increased property values in the downtown to pay for $1.6 million in improvements.

From the beginning, local merchants cooperated as streets were torn up to place utility wires underground and improve sewers in the initial stage. Along with new paving came attractive bricked crossways and sidewalk areas for plantings and benches.

The extensive plantings of flowers and trees were the result of a concurrent beautification program in which both individuals and civic groups contributed to the project. Focal point is a four-sided clock on a landscaped island in the center of town.

A town square park was developed across the street from the clock and serves as a place for exhibits and concerts during downtown events.

Merchants individually renovated their store fronts, taking down all overhanging signs and remodeling to the turn of the century period of the new street lights and benches.

The completion of the project — with dedication by then-Governor William Milliken — did not end the city manager's involvement, however.

He began receiving requests from other communities to explain the project. Last spring the City of Howell asked to be the exchange community for Michigan Week because of its interest in the renovation.

"People call all the time asking for his advice — he's very generous with his time," says Walters' secretary Cathy Konrad.

COMMUNITY Federal Credit Union was established in 1952 to serve the employees of the old Daisy Air Rifle Company located in Plymouth, Michigan. At that time Plymouth was a quiet town twelve miles east of Ann Arbor. Since that time the Credit Union has expanded to serve Northville, Plymouth Township, Canton and all of the counties of Otsego and Montmorency.

The member owned credit union prides itself on its customized service programs and the growth would seem to support the fact that they are popular. Since mid 1982 the Credit Union has grown from 25,000,000 to 56,000,000.

The Credit Union Share Draft (or checking) account leads in popularity primarily because of its easy balancing and substantial monthly dividend. Following in popularity are the equity loans which are so convenient for almost all borrowing needs. Behind these are a host of other services.

As the people at the Credit Union put it, "We have strong roots in our communities. As our roots grow deep our branches stretch out through Plymouth, Canton, Northville and our northern district. From savings to loans to commercial financing we've been supporting our communities for over a quarter of a century. We are the little financial institution that's big on people."

She says he averages at least one query or presentation a month at present. In all, Walters' records show he has made 26 presentations, either for delegations coming to Northville or in other communities.

Walters kept a record of the Mainstreet 78 project through slides and shows the transformation that has taken place through before and after slides. In 1980 the presentation was made at the governor's Small Cities Conference at Ferris State College.

In 1982 Walters traveled to a meeting of the Howell Chamber of Commerce, to Burton, Ypsilanti, Dearborn and to the Michigan Municipal League DDA Conference in Ann Arbor. He also hosted interested groups from Mt. Pleasant, Ypsilanti and Rochester.

In the following year, 1983, requests escalated. Walters spoke at the Michigan City Managers' Association meeting in Ann Arbor and went to Charlevoix, Plainwell (Plainwell officials also came to Northville), and to the Milan Chamber of Commerce (Milan officials also came to Northville).

During 1983 Milford, Eaton Rapids, Brighton, Imlay City and HUD (Detroit office) officials as well as the Michigan Department of Commerce Office of Economic Development officials visited Northville.

In 1984 Walters spoke to the Otsego

Chamber of Commerce, in Chesaning and Romeo and hosted Romeo and the Village of Vernon here. In July of this year he spoke in Chelsea.

He also advises other communities that request him to do so about their possibilities.

"Chelsea has a remarkable potentiality for downtown improvements that will include architectural enhancement, convenience and economic benefits for the community," he told civic leaders of Chelsea at an evening meeting at Chelsea Community Hospital.

His optimistic outlook for Chelsea's future was based on Walters' background in Northville's renovation. "The viability of Chelsea's opportunity," he added, "is based on a number of favorable factors. First, a civic development plan generated by a professional firm (Johnson, Johnson and Roy) gives confirmation to the fact that Chelsea is financially and civically capable of a community achievement comparable to Northville's.

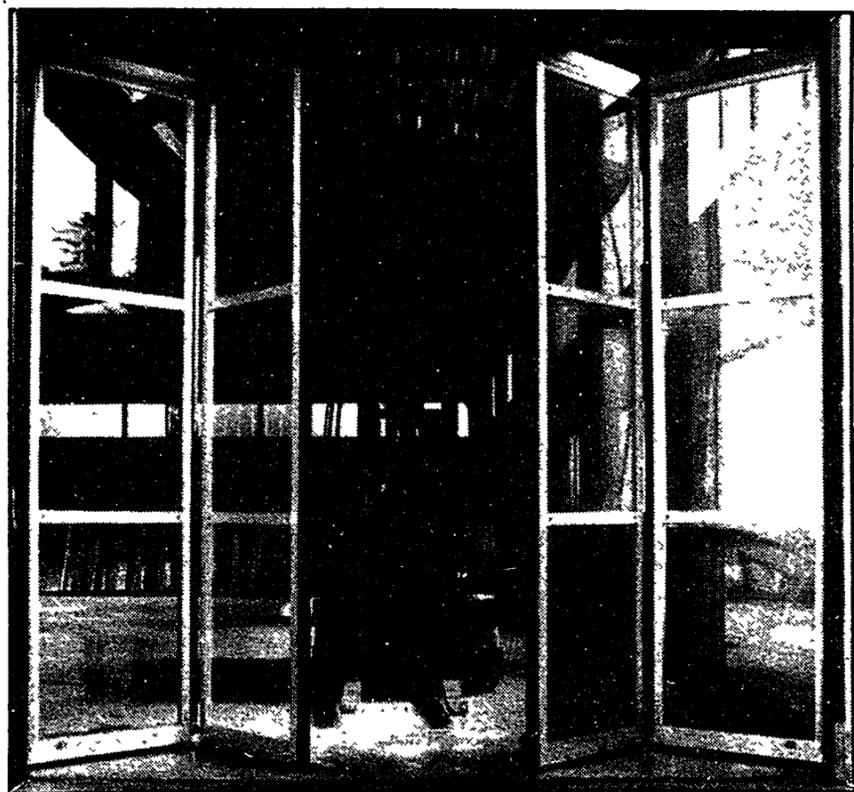

"Second, Chelsea is blessed with a strongly supportive village council and administration. Third, it has full backing of the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce."

Walters reports to audiences such as Chelsea's that Northville's Mainstreet 78 project has not only benefited merchants and attracted new enterprises but has beautified "the heart of the city."

He relates that the renovation has made downtown more pleasant for shopping and for community events and is today a source of pride for residents.

Efaflex, a revolutionary industrial door by Belanger

Belanger

America's cloth pioneer growing in Northville

Michigan put America on wheels. So it's only natural that a Michigan firm gave us the first reliable means of washing cars automatically.

The company is Belanger, Inc., a diversified Northville manufacturer that created the original cloth car-washing system a decade ago.

Belanger actually began developing cloth for carwashing in 1972. Initially, the company sold its cloth for installation on existing carwash equipment. But after evaluating the equipment packages then on the market, Belanger's engineers became convinced that they could build a more efficient system, one designed specifically for cloth washing.

Constructed of high grade aircraft aluminum, the new cloth system eliminated the "hazing" problem associated with the old fashioned bristle equipment. The new Belanger system got cars cleaner and shinier than any system ever had before. In so doing, it revolutionized the carwash industry, and sent sales at the Northville firm soaring — earning Belanger the distinction of being the nation's fastest-growing carwash equipment manufacturer.

Success and innovation are nothing new at Belanger, Inc., a family owned company founded in 1969 on $5,000 capital. The firm's first product was a metal finishing wheel (also called a flap wheel), and Belanger is still the dominant force in the buffing industry today, claiming an 80-percent share of the market.

Originally, Belanger purchased coated abrasives from outside suppliers and converted them to finishing wheels. In 1983, the company began to produce its own coated abrasives to achieve start-to-finish control over the quality of its metal finishing products.

The diversification process is continuing at Belanger. The company is currently expanding its coated abrasives' line beyond buffing wheels to include products such as belts and sheets.

In the coming year, Belanger will enter a major new field when it begins manufacturing the "Efaflex" high speed folding door. Developed in West Germany, the "Efaflex" is lightweight because of its aluminum panels, yet durable because of its steel drive case and frame parts.

According to Belanger engineers, the "Efaflex" has a very fast opening and closing speed (2 to 4 seconds), as a result of its lightweight construction. They also say that the door can accommodate glass, lucite or any one of a number of see-through panels.

To make room for its growing and expanding business, Belanger is constructing a new 40,000 square foot plant on Doheny Drive. Scheduled to be completed in January 1986, the new plant will give Belanger a total of 68,000 square feet of manufacturing space when combined with the company's existing facilities.

Like the existing Belanger plant on 455 East Cady Street, the new building will feature some of the latest high tech machinery, including robotic equipment. Belanger engineers have often designed and patented their own equipment to satisfy their high quality control standards.

Belanger has enjoyed an incredible rate of growth in recent years. Sales have shot up 1400 percent since 1972; 400 percent since 1978; and 200 percent since 1982. Yet company officials are confident that with the opening of its new plant and the continuing diversification of its product line, Belanger's best days are still ahead.

Northville-Novi: Affluent, growing

By Bruce Martin

A snapshot look at the prototypical Northville-Novi resident was cast into sharp focus last spring with the release of a demographics study prepared by a Los Angeles market research firm.

While the image had been somewhat blurry before — there was a vague notion of relative prosperity, of a growing "yuppie" influx and of dramatic population trends, the Urban Decision Systems, Inc. data was profoundly revealing.

For one thing, it substantiated that the wealth of dwellers within a five-mile radius of Center (Sheldon) Street and Main Street in downtown Northville compared quite favorably with more generally acknowledged prosperous types in Birmingham and Ann Arbor.

In fact, the median annual family income for the Birmingham-based study area actually was lower — $45,725 — than the median for Northville-Novi's annual family income of $46,409.

Figures of the study also demonstrated a projected population increase of 3.3 percent between 1984 and 1989 in the area. That may not sound like much, but consider: the firm projected the state's population would decrease by the same percentage during that same time frame. Ann Arbor and Birmingham's populations also were expected to decline.

The study also projected an increase of nearly 35 percent in rental units in those two communities despite recent initiatives in both communities to contain multiple-family residential housing.

Other interesting findings of the study showed that people in the described area spend far more money on just about everything than the state average: 12 percent more on groceries, 32 percent more in department stores and 41 percent more on restaurants. Not surprising that Northville Planning Consultant

Claude Coates has taken to referring to Northville as restaurant capital of Detroit's west suburbs.

Nearly 25 percent of Northville-Novi households have three or more cars to park on their property. That compares to less than 18 percent statewide.

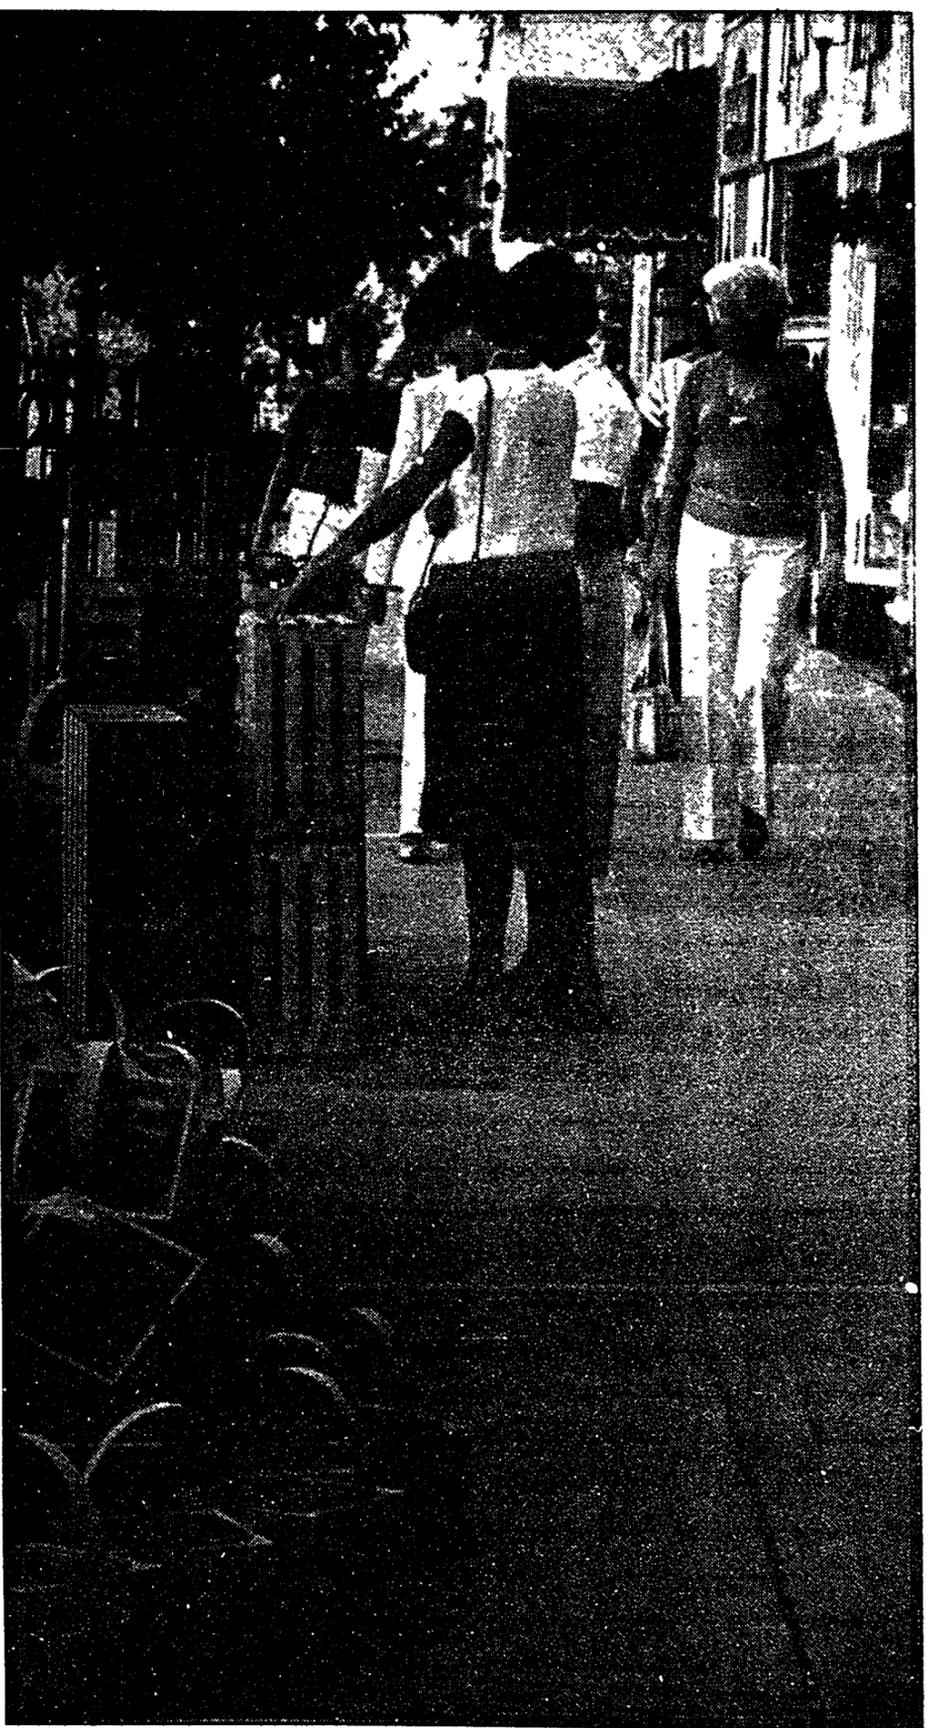

The average single-family detached home in the area is going for $83,568. The average condominium is selling for a brisk $58,549.

You want to talk yuppie? The Novi-Northville area is 67.5 percent white-collar, 16 percent higher than the national average. More than 21 percent of job holders are in professional and technical fields with 17.5 percent in clerical jobs, 15.6 percent in managerial jobs and 13 percent in sales. Only 2.4 percent of the area's citizens are classified as laborers.

What does it all mean? It means the area is growing and developing at a time when other Michigan communities are relatively stagnant. Whether it will overtake Troy-Rochester in the hot suburb sweepstakes remains to be seen.

But the numbers are already causing some problems for the two communities from a development standpoint.

Novi, once a catch-as-catch-can community which, with few restrictions, welcomed almost any kind of business, is now in the throes of a re-examination of its long-range planning philosophy and establishing appropriate development standards.

Northville-Novi residents are buyers

In particular, Novi officials have battled long and hard to convince state road officials that traffic flow on Haggerty Road, a major north-south corridor that connects the urban Detroit area with Commerce Township, Walled Lake and Union Lake to the north in addition to Novi, requires immediate widening and improvement funds.

Meanwhile Northville Township, on record as preferring a bedroom-community approach to development, now faces intense development pressure along the west side of Haggerty Road just west of major freeway I-275.

Already the Eight Mile/Haggerty Road intersection has drawn some major developers: the Novi Hilton, Meijer shopping center, two banks and two restaurants are already entrenched there. More entrepreneurs are eager to latch onto the planned prime office-zoned property south of that intersection.

In response, Northville Township officials are examining a major redrawing of the master plan of suggested development in that area.

And downtown Northville is becoming the site of a major multiple-use structure expected to boost its image as a place for out-of-towners to come to shop. The developers? The 108 Group, Inc. — the firm that commissioned the Urban Decisions, Inc. demographic study in the first place.

Novi Hilton presents 'dream' for business

The sleek impressive-looking building set back off I-275 is Metro Detroit's new hot spot — the Novi Hilton.

The Novi Hilton is surrounded by the suburban cities of Novi, Northville, Livonia and Farmington Hills and couldn't be closer to main attractions in and around the Detroit area.

Greektown, Tiger Stadium, Greenfield Village, Northville Downs, Kensington Metro Park and Detroit Metro Airport, to name a few, are less than 30 minutes away.

Besides providing I-275 travellers with a spectacular site, the eloquent high-tech computerized hotel is every business person's dream — all they have to bring is their brief case, the Novi Hilton has the rest.

The new meeting center has nine conference rooms and a board of directors room. In each conference room there is a wet bar and three tele phone lines.

The 85-seat amphitheater meeting room is geared for any type of projection except rear. The hotel has audio-visual equipment available and other accessories for any type of meeting room set-up. The hotel is literally wired for communication.

The seventh floor is the "executive level". On this floor business persons will be provided with shoe shines, pant pressers, a reading lounge and a complimentary continental breakfast.

Instead of turning the television volume up so you can hear it while you're in the bathroom, the Novi Hilton has televisions installed in each seventh floor bathroom so the on-the-go execs can get the news of the day while getting ready.

Since there are not many places to go for business lunches, the Crystal Swan restaurant in the Novi Hilton provides an elegant atmosphere in which to enjoy fine food and is perfect for business persons and their clients as well as for enjoying an intimate dinner with your spouse.

But you don't have to be a business person to love the Novi Hilton. There are just enough elegant decorating and entertainment touches to draw in-towners for an evening of rest and relaxation.

Aside from the Crystal Swan, the Orchard Cafe family dining restaurant with its oak walls and oak wood planters provides an open and pleasant atmosphere for breakfast, lunch, dinner and delicious Sunday brunches.

For those who want a change in bar scenes, Whispers Lounge just may be the answer.

The lounge features a two-tier island bar, a dance floor, a disc jockey booth and live entertainment.

Outside of Whispers Lounge is a lobby bar, perfect for waiting for guests or friends arriving at the hotel. While sipping on drinks, you may have an overwhelming feeling you're sitting outside if you choose to visit the lobby bar overlooking the hotel pool.

The pool is partially enclosed by a sloping glass roof which connects to an outside sun deck.

The hotel also has a whirlpool, sauna and fully-equipped exercise room for men and women.

Aerobics classes for hotel guests are held regularly around the pool area.

If you're planning on having a party, wedding or anniversary, the 9,000 square foot ballroom should give you plenty of room to mingle with old friends and guests.

If you don't need quite that much room, the ballroom can be separated into four different rooms or a combination of rooms.

Hotel General Manager Gary Seibert said the ballroom has a very elaborate sound system.

To add a little more fun to your weekends, the Novi Hilton offers three different weekend packages.

"Breakaway" is a package for two for one-night available Friday, Saturday or Sunday. Guests have their choice of breakfast or lunch the next day and kids are free. The total price of the package is $66.

"Celebration" is a package for couples honeymooning, celebrating an anniversary or just wanting to have a special occasion. The package is for Friday, Saturday or Sunday. Upon arrival, guests receive a chilled bottle of champagne and breakfast or lunch the next day. Total price of the package is $74.

"Rainbow" is a two-night package — Friday-Saturday or Saturday-Sunday — for two people. Upon arrival guests receive wine and a fresh fruit and cheese basket. Total price of this package is $130.

When Novi Hilton guests arrive, they are not handed a key, but a key card. The key card is inserted into the electronic door lock installed in all the rooms at the Novi Hilton. By using electronic door locks, the hotel can provide maximum security of your items. The Novi Hilton is the first facility in Michigan to feature the electronic door locks.

Other unique features of the hotel include over-sized desks for business persons, extra phone wires in each room for additional phone hook-ups or computer hook-ups, large bathrooms equipped for the handicapped, 24-hour room service, airport transportation service and soundproof glass to block out highway noise. The elevators in the hotel are battery-operated and will continue to operate in case of a power failure.

The Novi Hilton has one of the most up-to-date safety systems too. There are speakers in each room so in case of an emergency, the fire marshal can give all hotel guests explicit instructions. There are also sprinkler heads and smoke detectors in every room.

The Novi Hilton has 237 guest rooms and three luxury rooms waiting for you.

Michigan — the Great Lakes State — is every boater's paradise, but having a damaged boat during peak summer months can put a serious damper on summer fun.

Holes and cracks from storms or dock damage are often unavoidable and cause some boaters to lose valuable boating time waiting for repairs.

At Fred's Custom Boat Repair at 22499 Heslip Drive in Novi, you'll be back on the water in no time.

Every boat at Fred's is serviced within seven to 10 days. The business is conveniently listed in nine metropolitan Detroit phone books. Fred's can service up to a 32-foot boat.

Dean Ayers and Brian Woods, co-owners of Fred's Custom Boat Repair, specialize in fiberglass repairs and custom painting.

"We can fix anything from a small pin hole to a hole someone could crawl through," Ayers said.

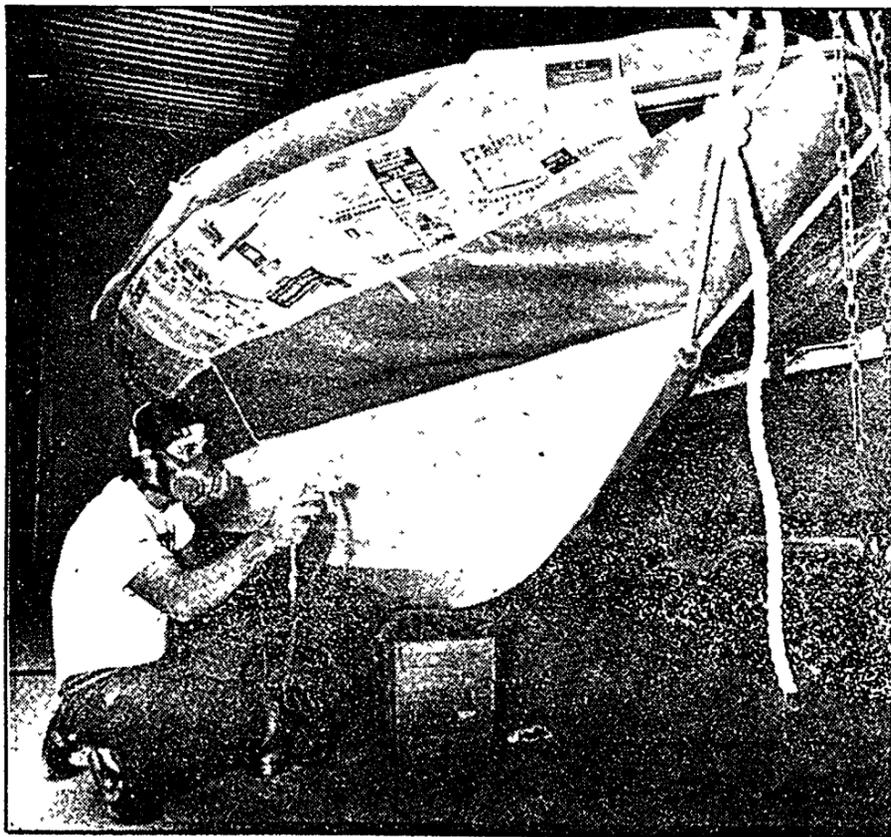

Fred's Custom Boat Repair services all types of boats. The business is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon. Unlike many boat repair shops, Fred's is open year-round to provide boat owners with quality paint jobs and repairs.

But your boat doesn't have to be fiberglass or in need of a paint job to be serviced at Fred's.

Fred's repairs and refinishes wood boats, replaces rotten floors and sub-contracts for motor repair work.

And employees at Fred's realize that a boat isn't a little investment —

customers receive top-quality service and, as the name of the business states, a custom job.

"It is almost impossible to tell where the work was done on a spot repair," Woods said. "You get what you pay for."

The same is true of the paint jobs done by Ayers and Woods; you could almost call them artists.

Boats of all colors are manufactured on the market and at Fred's Custom Boat Repair, touch-ups and paint jobs will match the original color of your boat almost perfectly. Ayers and Woods also do striping.

For customer convenience, Fred's Custom Boat Repair also has a pick-up and delivery service for a small fee.

The prices at Fred's Custom Boat Repair are comparable or better than other boat repair shops. If Ayers or Woods can give a better estimate than other repair shops, they'll do it.

For people who believe getting their boat painted at an auto body shop is cheaper, they're wrong.

Auto-body paint may be cheaper but it isn't high quality paint and won't last as long as paint made specifically for boats. The best bargain for a top-quality paint job that will last can be found at Fred's.

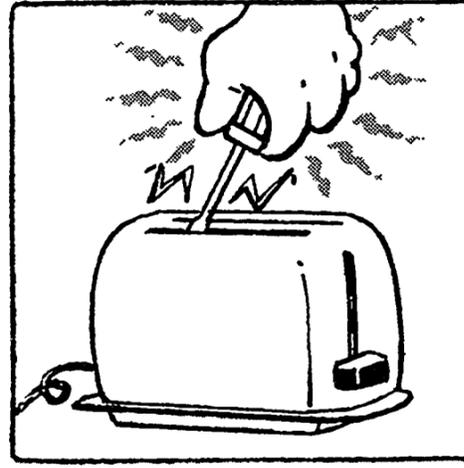

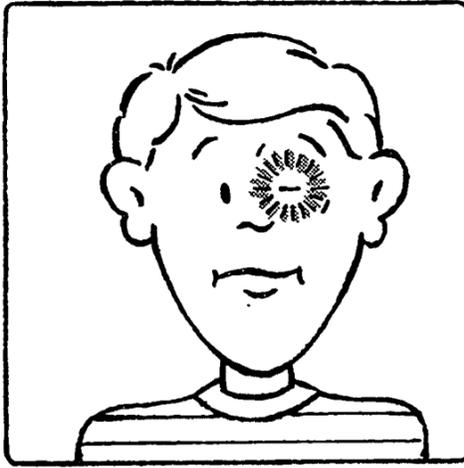

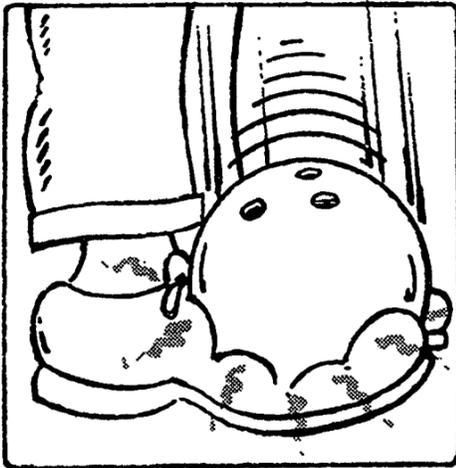

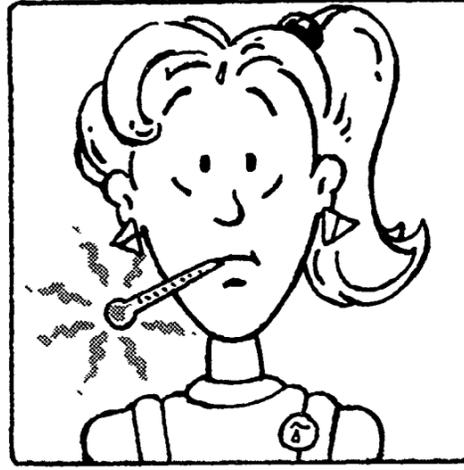

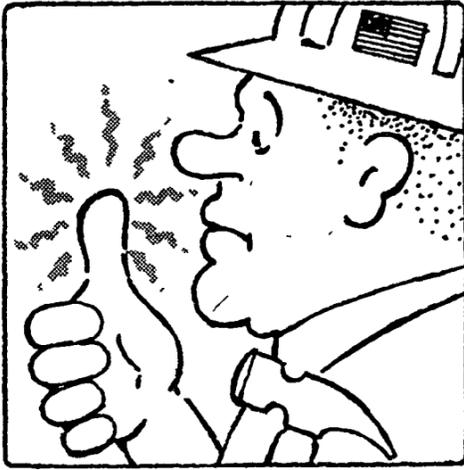

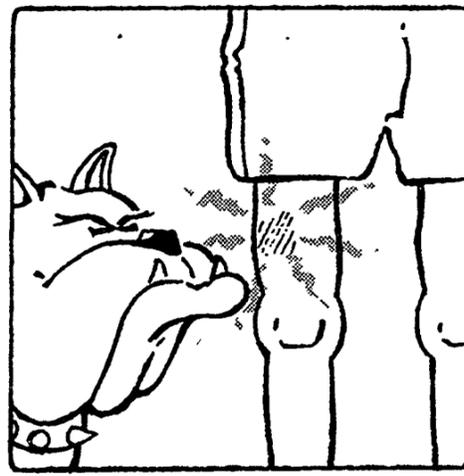

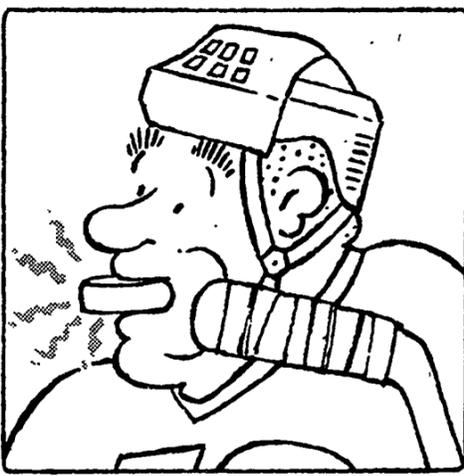

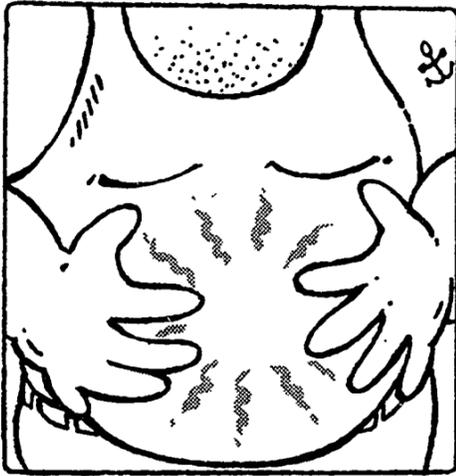

But even if you don't have a boat, Fred's can be of service to you.

"We can repair anything made out of fiberglass," said Woods. "No matter how big the hole, we can fix it."

Spas, holding tanks for motor homes, van tops, showers and even cars are among the items repaired and painted at Fred's. The business also has a contract with the City of Detroit to fix its aerial baskets.

All structural and fiberglass work as well as paint jobs done at Fred's are guaranteed for one year.

Fred's Custom Boat Repair was established in 1963. The first shop was on Eight Mile in Novi and the business was relocated on Heslip Drive in the Novex One Industrial Park six years ago.

Cuts, fractures, sprains, fevers and other minor emergencies happen when you least expect them. And when they do, you need quick, professional attention.

That's the reason Providence Hospital opened the Novi Emergency Care Center (NECC). It's conveniently close to everyone in the Novi, West Bloomfield, Northville and Farmington area. Even better, its team of medical professionals — including members of the Providence Hospital medical and nursing staff — is ready to assist you and your family 24 hours a day, every day of the year.

Haggerty: Just the start for 'hot' land

By Kevin Wilson

While the big development news in Novi and Northville has been the establishment of the Novi Hilton and a Meijer store at the Eight Mile/Haggerty Road intersection, those are only the first and largest indications of a much broader trend.

One of the hottest commercial and office areas in southeast Michigan today is along I-275 between M-14 and I-96. The region includes portions of Novi, Northville Township, Plymouth Township and Livonia. The freeway parallels Haggerty Road, a major north-south surface street, through this segment.

Recent hearings in Northville Township, which intends to revise its planning to take advantage of the prestige office and freeway-related commercial uses its neighbors have seen develop in the past few years, have drawn numerous expressions of interest from developers and land-owners.

Representing a property owner at Eight Mile and Haggerty Road, Richard Neuchterlin of E.N. Maisel & Associates of Southfield called office and commercial development along the corridor "the trend of the future" and noted the service oriented businesses developing in Novi and Livonia.

He further referred to Haggerty Road itself as "an important development corridor with major retail and high rise development" occurring in Livonia, Plymouth and Canton Township.

Similarly, Norman Hyman of Honigman, Miller, Schwartz and Cohn of Detroit notes a great potential for "high rise, signature office development" at Eight Mile in particular and throughout the corridor generally.

"Signature" office structures are those easily seen from the freeway and identified with a major tenant. One benefit to the tenant is that the building also serves as an advertising vehicle, putting the corporate name before highway travelers.

Haggerty Road serves as an enormous service drive for the corridor, linking three exits and two major interchanges. Haggerty's presence concentrates development on the west side of the freeway, though the interstate's influence extends as far as two miles east into Livonia. Easy access is provided by exits at Six, Seven and Eight Mile roads. Four major east-west highways feed into the segment of I-275, which for that short length is also part of I-96.

At the north end, where access is also readily available to Ten Mile, I-96 comes in from the northwest and I-696 from the northeast. At the southern end, M-14 leads to Ann Arbor and I-96 heads for Detroit. And due south on I-275 is a more direct route to Detroit Metropolitan Airport than is readily available almost anywhere in southeast Michigan.

Most of the development in the region has concentrated in Livonia, which had office and commercial zoning in place when developers first spotted the potential. First in was a Holiday Inn at Six Mile and I-275. Now under construction at Six and Haggerty, within sight of the freeway, is a new reservations center for Republic Airlines. When the center opens in mid-August, it is to employ roughly 700 employees and operate 24 hours a day.

Just east of Republic Airlines, nearer the freeway, is the new Cambridge Centre Office park, which plans its first opening next year. Across Six Mile on the north side is another office park. Laurel Office Park is planning to build its second four-story office structure this year after nearly filling its first structure at rents of around $15 per square foot.

Another 23 acres of land at this same intersection is owned by Manufacturers National Bank, which has not yet announced plans.

At Seven Mile, just north of Schoolcraft Community College, is more than 100,000 square feet of office owned by American Community Mutual Insurance Company. The health insurer built 50,000 square feet in 1981 and is adding another 57,000 square feet this summer.

On the northeast corner at Seven Mile is CBS/Fox Video, with a total building area of nearly 300,000 square feet. The under-construction building is to be occupied later this year by 300 employees currently scattered among six buildings farther north and joined by 200 new workers to duplicate videocassettes for national distribution.

It is at Eight Mile that this trend has first made its mark in Novi and in Northville Township. At the northwest corner of Eight Mile and Haggerty is the new Novi Hilton, surrounded by the Orchard Hill Place Office Park. Four buildings totalling a quarter-million square feet are already up in the office complex. Digital Equipment Corporation, Hewlett Packard, Norris Industries and General Electric Medical Systems are already located in the complex.

Recently purchased by the Samelson Group of Bloomfield Hills, the remaining 103 acres in the office park are viewed as prime locations for signature buildings.

Which is also the aim of Northville Township's planning revisions, which will probably allow four-story office buildings for the first time in that community.

The largest buildings will likely be near the new $10 million Meijer store that opened in July at the southwest corner of Eight Mile and Haggerty. Planning for the opposite corner within Northville Township (the southeast) is for freeway-service business—motels, drive-through restaurants, service stations and the like.

Novi has already taken advantage of the nearby freeway exit to attract two restaurants to the northeast corner—McDonald's and Elias Brothers Big Boy. Both opened earlier this year.

As far as Northville Township Supervisor Susan Heintz is concerned, her community boasts two prime freeway-access corridors. Along its southern boundary at Five Mile, the township is within easy driving distance of exits from M-14 at Sheldon (one mile south) and Beck (where the exit is about three miles from the township border).

(Neuchterlin) called office and commercial development along the (Haggerty) corridor "the trend of the future" . . . he further referred to Haggerty Road itself as "an important development corridor with major retail and high rise development" . . .

Plymouth Township has a fully-developed office park on its side of Five Mile and another under construction. Heintz is applying pressure to the state, Wayne County and the City of Detroit in

A geologist would be in heaven at Noble's 8 Mile Landscaping Supply where rocks of all types and sizes can be found in massive piles across several acres of yard.

Noble's, which has been in the landscaping supply business for over 30 years, is located just west of Middlebelt Road on Eight Mile and stocks an eye opening variety of rock and lumber for the landscaping amateur or pro. The business also carries a wide assortment of other landscaping musts, such as flagstones, statues, top soil, gravel, fresh sod, cements, bricks and wood chips. The list is endless.

"We want people to be aware of our variety. We have materials from all over the country to fit all the landscaping needs a person might have," said Ray Noble, 32, owner of the business along with his brothers Tom and Bruce. "We carry a lot of standard landscaping materials plus some unusual items."

"A lot of people don't consider the variety of materials that is available to them if they want to

Rocks are probably the biggest inventory item at the Noble's yard. They come in all shapes and sizes and for a wide variety of uses.

The stone available includes ground covers such as alabaster, brick crush and dolomite from Michigan, Inca gold and salmon crush from Missouri, rainbow mix from Maryland, white marbles from Vermont, red and black crater from New Mexico and west coast crush from California. Prices for ground covers are in bulk rates and range from $2.99 to $5.29 per 75 lb. bag.

Noble's is open seven days. The hours are from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday and on Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sundays weather permitting. Noble suggests landscapers give a call before coming by.

"That also helps us find out what a customer might want so we can be sure to have it," said Noble.

hopes of having the mostly-vacant publicly-owned lands along Five Mile converted to private uses.

Planning proposals in the works would allow a mix of multiple family, industrial, commercial, office, and research and development uses in the area.

That drastic change from Northville

Township's long-standing image as a purely bedroom community has some residents concerned, but Heintz notes that all the development is at the periphery of the township while its heart remains residential.

"We're really lucky in being able to take advantage of freeway access without having a freeway anywhere within our boundaries," Heintz said. "It's an ideal situation that we can provide both the high-quality commercial development and the upscale housing for the people we expect to work there."

Customized Precision Heat Treating and Ion Nitriding

Constantly upgrading their equipment and instrumentation to meet increasing metal performance requirements, Sun Steel has custom designed and has in operation over 60 salt bath furnaces for in-depth heat penetration at temperatures of plus or minus one degree on large or small parts such as metal cutting tools, forming tools, dies, gages, machine and aircraft parts.

Proper heat treatment by SUN was mainly responsible for extending the life of a spade drill four times; for increasing the life of a tractor link punch three times; for bringing about a new dimension of broaching performance by adding more strength and minimizing warpage on broaching tools; for increasing high speed steel form tool life in some plants to a degree that lathe production was increased 300 percent.

Good heat treating takes time as well as know-how. A once-over-lightly process may be less expensive initially, but when total costs are considered, such as scrap rate, in-process distortion, stability, and tool life factors, experienced SUN heat treatment customized to your part helps assure consistent performance.

SUN Steel Treating specializes in high speed steel, hot work steel, and tool and die heat treating. SUN also heat treats alloy and carbon steels.

South Lyon: Eyeing new life downtown

By Chuck Nusbaum

It hasn't been the worst of times, but it hasn't exactly been the best of times, either, for downtown South Lyon.

Faced with its share of vacant storefronts and struggling businesses, officials and merchants in South Lyon's central business district have been exploring several avenues to breathe new life into the downtown business zone.

Perhaps the most significant move to restore vitality to the downtown area is a plan which, though still in the conceptual stages, would expand the boundaries of South Lyon's central business east and west along Ten Mile Road.

Homeowners in established neighborhoods flanking the downtown district were recently invited to share their views on the expansion with a local planning commission, which will continue investigating the proposal.

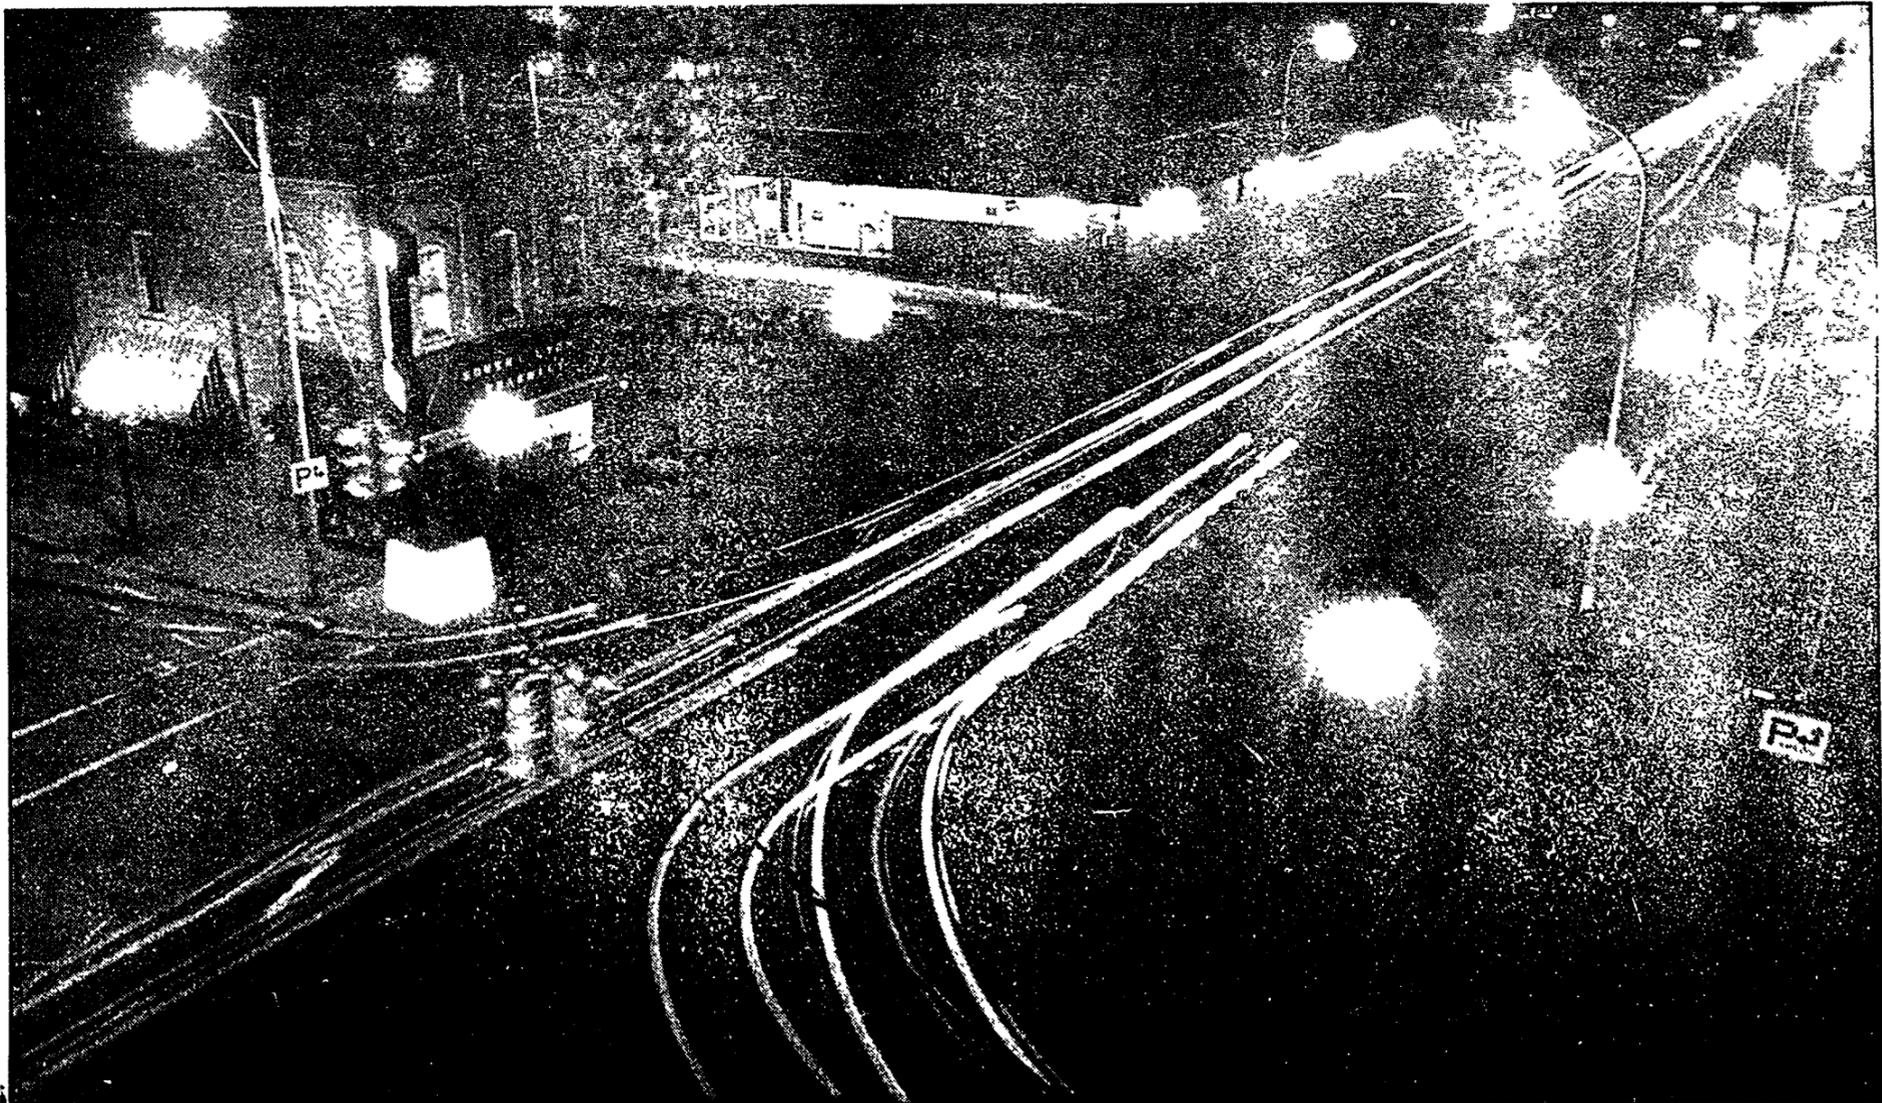

City Manager Rod Cook and other local officials have complained that South Lyon does not have an abundance of land available in the city to support additional office and commercial development. In fact, Cook said things are looking rather "cramped" as far as the city's existing business land inventory is concerned.

South Lyon planning consultant Charles Cairns of Vilican-Leman and Associates said a limited expansion of South Lyon's central business district would complement existing downtown businesses and hopefully improve the economic viability of the entire central district.

"The planning commission feels that if we're going to attract more commercial development in the city, let's encourage that growth immediately adjacent to the CBD. That type of economic development would then work hand-in-glove with plans to improve the CBD and the overall viability of the downtown area," said Cairns.

South Lyon's central business area has experienced some stiff competition in recent years from new businesses that have developed along Pontiac Trail south of the main business district. That competition could become even fiercer, Cairns explained, if other new businesses are encouraged to build in other outlying areas of the city rather than in areas closer to the downtown district.

City planners point out that an expansion of South Lyon's CBD, whether it turns out to be one or two city blocks east and west of town, need not jeopardize large existing homes along Ten Mile Road. In fact, planners are looking into the potential of using some of the residential dwellings to house business similar to those found in downtown areas of Northville and Plymouth.

Some local officials also want the city to investigate the possible construction of a downtown bypass route along an abandoned Grand Trunk Western Railroad line that swings below the CBD from west to east. While the project may be economically prohibitive for the city at this time, some think the bypass would improve downtown business by rerouting much of the through traffic that now splits the central city.

Another plan that could provide a shot-in-the-arm for South Lyon's downtown district is the ongoing commercial assistance program (CAP) sponsored by the Oakland County economic development division.

The program will make over $100,000 in low-interest business loans available for downtown merchants to complete facade and storefront improvements in keeping with the architectural character of the CBD. The local program is expected to get underway sometime this fall.

Still another bright spot in South Lyon's downtown revitalization story is the expected re-opening of a major restaurant in the heart of the central shopping area. A new corporation has formed to completely refurbish the Jimmy Two Restaurant, which has been closed for the past two years pending bankruptcy proceedings.

The new owners say they will soon launch a complete interior and exterior renovation project at the restaurant, which they plan to rename "The Hungry Lyon."

Local officials have insisted that the lack of a major restaurant and gathering place has hurt business in downtown South Lyon, and it is hoped that the new eatery will signal a turnaround in the fortunes of the CBD.

Wilson Marine . . . Their Business Is Fun On The Water

For those looking for the excitement of boating, they need not look any further than the full-service marine dealer in Livingston County, Wilson Marine Corporation.

Wilson Marine is located at 6095 West Grand River, between Brighton and Howell at Lake Chemung. The dealership carries two of the better-known brand names in the industry, Chris Craft and Bayliner. In total, Wilson sells and services eight brands of boating equipment, ranging from manual paddleboats up to 32-foot motor yachts for the big water boaters.

Among their most popular boats are the sport decks. According to sales manager Rick Wilson, the sport deck combines the wide-open area of a pontoon-type boat with the speed of a ski boat. "It is a relatively new concept in boating, and is very adaptable for the Great Lakes area," said Wilson. "Be it skiing, fishing, cruising, or just partying, sport decks do it all so well."

As one of the top ten Chris Craft dealers in the world, Wilson Marine buys in volume and carries a large stock which enable them to pass on better pricing to their customers.

The Dealership is located right on Lake Chemung. "It is a great advantage," admits Wilson. "It allows us to test drive our boats right on the spot before we sell them. Sometimes we take our customers for as long as 45 minute drives as they put the boat through its paces."

Wilson Marine has continued to expand its facilities as the boating industry prospered. Included in their expansion was an additional warehouse and an indoor showroom. "The indoor showroom gives us the luxury of being able to display and show boats year-round. The additional warehouse gives us a total of 50,000 square feet for sales, service and storage," said Wilson.

Another function of a full-service marine dealership is the service department. And Wilson Marine's award-winning dealership is headed up by brother Ron Wilson. Ron keeps his service department humming. He frequently sends his service technicians to seminars and classes on the latest developments in the marine service industry.

Complementing the service department is a well-stocked parts and accessory department. And the ski department carries the famous EP brand skis.

The family-run corporation is headed up by Ken Wilson, father to Rick and Ron, and president of the organization. Ken has developed the business for more than 30 years into the dynamic business it is today.

Rick Wilson talked about the benefits of a boat purchase as an investment, notwithstanding the months of summertime fun it brings to the buyer. A well-maintained boat purchased five years ago can be worth its purchase price right now," says Wilson. "Not many cars bought five years ago can make that claim."

Wilson Marine is open six days a week year-round. Their phone number is (517) 546-3774.

KINETICO VILLAGE & COUNTRY SOFT WATER

Village and Country, located at 8392 Argentine Rd. in Hartland, has been selling and repairing water softening equipment for years.

According to owner Bill Beauchamp, Kinetico is the brand of water conditioner he sells because he finds it can suit his customers' needs better than any other.

It is the only non-electric water conditioner available. And it regenerates itself; it can "go on forever" without worry, he said. Most conditioners have timers which must be set, and they will stop conditioning the water when the timer shuts off.

Not to worry with Kinetico, he said.

Beauchamp said the family-owned business came into the water conditioning business 10 years ago with the help of a friend, Harry Brown, who is in the well-drilling business.

"Today, we've become one of the top ten water conditioner dealers nationwide," he said. Last year, the establishment placed third in sales.

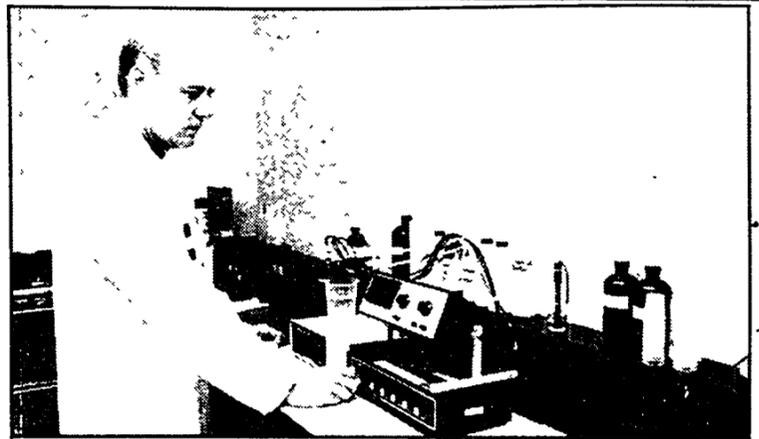

Village and Country also repairs water conditioners as a part of its service. The staff gives its all to repair any brand of water conditioner.

"We're number one in service. You can call us anytime," he said.

For answers to questions about service or about installation of water conditioning equipment, call Village and Country at 546-7034.

Village and Country works in cooperation with the Canton Analytical Laboratory (Cal-Lab) in Ypsilanti. Cal-Lab specializes in analyzing the chemical content of water.

Cal-Lab, which has a contract with

CANTON ANALYTICAL LAB.

Village and Country's Kinetico products and 400 other establishments, can determine if water is safe for drinking.

According to Pete Rekshan, president of the laboratory, Cal-Lab has a complete water analysis package which costs the customer less than a service call would cost. The laboratory works nationwide and charges an average of $49. Rekshan compared that to the few hundred dollars some services charge.

Applications for the water analysis can be obtained at Village and Country, and results are determined in 24 hours.

For more information about the water analysis, call the Canton Analytical Laboratory, at (313) 483-8333.

Kinetico uses no clocks, no electric valves, no electric sensing devices, or any other complicated and adjustable arrangements necessary to regulate regeneration. Kinetico regenerates only when needed. Kinetico is in a class by itself offering a completely new and trouble-free system of bringing an unlimited amount of clean, soft water at the very lowest cost and upkeep.

Kinetico is the pioneer in non-electric, demand water treatment systems and the industry leader in designing innovative solutions for problem water.

Kinetico has a meter that turns as water flows through, measuring the amount of water being used.

Milford: Combining old with the new

If the opinions and plans of its leaders are any indication, the village of Milford will continue to have a warm, traditional yet progressive business district.

Interviews with community leaders show a general appreciation for the work being done to revitalize and restore the downtown area and a sense of awe for what the future holds.

"I think the most significant thing about Milford is its historical background," said Councilmember John Riley. "It was built in the late 1800s and has maintained its character.

"I do think that the businesses should continue working to maintain that same character as much as possible."

Riley commended businesses like the Appe'teaser Restaurant and Baldwin Hardware which have recently undergone extensive and costly renovations to restore the older look.

Appe'teaser owner Chris Angelosante said interior renovations in 1981 were designed to "get a traditional look with a modern flair."

The building's exterior was also remodeled to replicate the original 1880s facade. "We did this because it's the nature of the town," he said.

Councilmember William Upleger agreed with Riley's assessment of the renovations.

"I think that generally the people have done a terrific job as far as restoring the buildings and staying away from the mall concept by having little specialty shops and so on," he said.

Tom Motley, owner of Arms Brothers on Main Street, claims the Milford "look" gives visitors a pleasant feeling about the village.

"We want everybody to feel relaxed and comfortable here," said Motley, a member of the Downtown Development Authority (DDA). "We're trying to get people to want shop here and come back again."

DDA chairperson Chris Smith said the recently announced downtown master plan is indicative of the authority's wish to see the village move forward while keeping the traditional feel.

The major recommendations of the concept include:

- A Central Park development program highlighted by a lodging facility and a boardwalk strung between Prospect Hill and the park. The lodging facility would also serve as a meeting center that would hopefully draw in business from the nearby General Motors Proving Grounds, said Smith.

- Development of the upper Mill Pond area would include the restoration of the Pettibone Mill on the south side of the pond. Expanding the Huron Valley Motel and converting some houses along Main Street into cottages has also been suggested, said Smith.

- The DDA would also like to see an enclosed mall at Prospect Hill which could be extended to Main Street. An atrium inside and a mill-side park on the outside would beautify the area, suggests the authority.

- A riverfront complex on the south side of town is recommended by the DDA. Smith said interested contractors would have to buy out current land and business owners.

"One of our main concerns is that we have all these water resources — how can we use them?," he said.

Most everyone agrees that the future is bright for Milford's central business district, but not everyone is sure how recommended improvements will be financed.

Smith said government incentives, like an Oakland County commercial assistance program (CAP) that will provide over $300,000 in low-interest loans for storefront improvements, will help. But, he added, it will take interested private contractors to make any plans successful.

"There must be people who come in and see the plan and say, 'Yes, I'm interested and think it's a viable community project. When do I begin?'

"At this stage (the DDA) is close to having a final concept. Our next step is to have the plan implemented (by contractors)," said Smith.

So, if there are any contractors out there looking for a warm, traditional setting for a bright, new idea in retailing, contact the village of Milford immediately. Indications are they will be very responsive.

Oakland: Housing, population rising

Highland Township

Between 1970 and 1980 Highland Township's population more than doubled. In 1970, Highland had a population of 8,372 compared to 16,958 in 1980. The most recent data indicates that in 1984 Highland's population was in excess of 18,000. The jump in housing units has been equally as pronounced. Between 1970 and 1980, the number of housing units rose from 2,780 to 5,668, which amounted to a 104 percent increase. Employment figures from 1980 indicate the majority of workers were involved in retail trade or durable goods manufacturing. More recent figures pertaining to per capita income (average income computed for every man, woman and child) are available through the Oakland County planning division. The figures indicate that per capita income between 1979 and 1983 rose from $7,713 to $8,814.

Milford Township (including Village of Milford)

Milford Township witnessed significant increases in population and in the number of housing units between 1970 and 1980. In 1970, Milford Township had a population of 7,256 compared to 10,187 in 1980. The 40 percent rise in population was accompanied by a 61 percent increase in the number of housing units during the same period. In 1970, there were 2,117 housing units compared to 3,406 in 1980. The per capita income in the township jumped from $9,057 in 1979 to $8,814 in 1983.

White Lake Township

Housing units were cropping up everywhere in White Lake Township between 1970 and 1980, according to census figures. In 1970, there were 4,684 housing units compared to 7,569 in 1980. The 62 percent jump in the number of housing units was accompanied by a 53 percent increase in population during the same period. The population in White Lake rose from 14,311 in 1970 to 21,870 in 1980. The most recent data indicates White Lake has a population of 23,500. The per capita income in White Lake was $9,980 in 1983 compared to $8,706 in 1979.

South Lyon

South Lyon experienced a dramatic increase in the number of housing units between 1970 and 1980. The 176 percent increase is almost staggering. The number of units in 1970 totaled 777 compared to 2,144 in 1980. More recent data from 1984 indicates the the number of units are still increasing. The figures indicate approximately 2,205 living units were located in South Lyon. In 1970 population was 2,675 compared to 5,214 in 1980 for a total increase of 95 percent. Figures from 1984 indicate the population is 5,500.

Per capita income in South Lyon was $8,075 in 1979 compared to $9,348 in 1983.

Lyon Township

Lyon Township ranked highly among area communities in the number of housing units added between 1970 and 1980. The number of units grew by some 85 percent during that span, jumping from 1,385 to 2,559. Population increased significantly as well. In 1970, there were 4,500 residents of Lyon Township compared to 7,078 in 1980, marking a 57 percent increase. More recent estimates furnished by county planners put the population figure at approximately 7,500. The per capita income increased from $9,057 to $10,556 during the period 1979-83.

Green Oak Township

This Livingston County community experienced substantial gains in population and housing during the 10-year period between 1970 and 1980. During that stretch, population increased about 42 percent, rising from 7,598 to 10,802. The percentage increase for the number of housing was even higher at 46 percent. In 1970, there were 2,400 housing units compared to 3,508 in 1980.

Salem Township

This township experienced moderate growth in housing and population between 1970 and 1980. In 1970, there were just over 3,000 people living in Salem Township compared to 3,342 in 1980, an increase of over 11 percent. Housing, meanwhile, jumped 16 percent during the same period. In 1970, there were approximately 900 housing units compared to 1,035 in 1980.

Northfield Township

Northfield Township has experienced moderate growth in recent years. Population between 1970 and 1980 jumped nearly 18 percent, rising from 3,975 to 4,672. The number of housing units rose approximately 23 percent from 1,320 to 1,628.

Green Oak: Riding an upward surge

By Chuck Nusbaum

Green Oak Township may have lost out to Spring Hill, Tennessee for the coveted General Motors' Saturn Corporation project, but the community is still enjoying an almost frantic upsurge in new commercial and industrial development.

The township was nearing the $7 million figure in new building projects by the end of July, and that was before the Grand Rapids-based Gordon Foods Company pulled its permit for an estimated $12 million warehouse and distribution center on Kensington Court early this month.

The 260,000 square foot warehouse, which will initially employ close to 100 workers, is the centerpiece of the township's recent economic boom.

Green Oak Supervisor Ronald Niece said there are three simple reasons behind the township's recent success in attracting relatively clean and unob-trusive industrial enterprises.

Number one is accessibility to major markets, according to Niece. "There are three major expressways in this part of the state," he said, "and when two of them (I-96 and US-23) intersect in the township, that helps."

No less than five new or renovated industrial facilities have been built in recent years along Whitmore Lake Road, which acts as a service drive for US-23 traffic south of Brighton. The Thermofil Corporation completed a three-phase renovation project along the stretch, which also serves as the new digs for a Tobin Lakes Studios theatrical backdrop manufacturing facility; the Lowry and Associates computer center offices; and a Brighton NC Machine plant. The new Brighton NC plant has already undergone a $214,000 expansion project since settling in Green Oak several years ago.

Other large industries like Cars and Concepts and Star Manufacturing, which have respectively proposed and completed major expansions in recent months, are within close striking distance of Kensington Road and I-96. Gordon Foods and Peaker Services, the diesel locomotive restoration firm which is in the midst of another $1 million expansion, also enjoy quick access to I-96 from their Kensington Court facilities.

The second biggest reason behind Green Oak's recent expansion boom is the township's attitude toward using federal and state incentive programs to attract new development, said Niece.

Green Oak has been one of the most generous communities in the area at handing out 50 percent property tax breaks allowed by the state, and several projects have enjoyed a double share of kindness by also qualifying for low-interest financing through the township's economic development corporation (EDC).

The Gordon Foods project was also helped along with a $975,000 Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) that was actually funneled through the economically depressed Ingham County Village of Dansville, whose residents will get a crack at some of the jobs produced at the new Green Oak plant.

The Gordon Foods project also serves as an example of the third reason behind Green Oak's boom which, according to Niece, is the community's aggressiveness in seeking out industrial expansion.

Niece credits Jim Thompson of Livingston County's Economic Development Office with tracking down many of the leads local officials then actively

fort into tracking these projects rather than just sitting there and waiting for them to come to us," said Niece. "We could have waited, but we got a lead and went after them."

Niece said he often contacts business developers who are having trouble getting projects approved in other Detroit area communities. Most recently, he inquired after a GMF Robotics plant that was stymied in the City of Troy. He hasn't heard back on that one yet.

Other projects that have contributed to Green Oak's recent building upsurge are a Best Western Hotel/Big Boy Restaurant complex now under construction near Eight Mile Road and US-23; a light industrial facility built by Green Oak Auto near Ten Mile and Rushton roads; and, an Adams and Chamberlain maintenance building and offices at Rushton and Silver Lake roads.

Site plans have also been approved for the Colonial Acres Industrial Park, which will mean construction of at least five 12,000 square foot buildings for "high tech" industries at a site near Ten Mile and Peer roads.

Customers and Employees benefit at Kelly Services

If you're with a business that needs extra help now and then, or if you are a person who is looking for temporary employment, then opportunity is knocking at Kelly Services.

Kelly Services is a customer service, not a job placement agency. Its purpose is to satisfy their customers by supplying qualified Kelly Service employees to do the job.

"The difference between Kelly and other employment services is that we send people out who are qualified and trained in the position that they are filling," explains Mary Spry, supervisor at Kelly Services.

Applicants are first evaluated before they are placed on an assignment. They are tested for skills and then assigned to customers who need help in the clerical, light industrial, or technical areas. There is no fee for those interested in becoming a Kelly Service employee.

"We can benefit a lot of college students who can't commit themselves for a long period of time" Spry said.

Spry also said that once an appli-

Deborah Swartzwelter, supervisor at Kelly Services

cant becomes a Kelly employee, he or she can stay with the service for as long as desired.

The customer also benefits by coming to Kelly Services. Instead of a customer hiring an untrained worker themselves, they can come to Kelly Services and get trained personnel to fill the position for as long as needed.

"Our customers can benefit from the skills of our employees and have the advantage of keeping our employees for only as long as they are needed." Spry said. Many times they just need someone to fill in for an employee who is ill or on vacation. This can be for a day, a week, or a month, she added.

Kelly Services evaluate their customer's needs and then send the most qualified Kelly employee to the customer's location. "We guarantee our employees 100%. The customer must be satisfied with our employees," Spry stated.

Kelly Services is an international operation with branches throughout the United States, Canada, Puerto Rico and Europe.

"Kelly Services is definitely becoming an interest among businesses everywhere," said Spry.

Applicants who want to apply to Kelly Services are accepted on both a walk-in basis and by appointment.

Office hours are from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. For further information call 227-2034.

Kelly Services is located at 7990 Grand River, Brighton.

Artist's rendering of planned resort

Waterfront: Novi sets net for resort

By Patricia Bowling

A good deal of foresight and creative planning on the part of city officials may net Novi one of the most unique developments in metropolitan Detroit. Bids currently are being sought for a lakefront resort project designed to integrate the interests of the community with the interests of a private developer. The resort would be located on about 12 acres of Walled Lake shoreline, near the Thirteen Mile/Novi Road intersection.

The city began purchasing the lakefront property about two years ago. The price tag on the 12-acre chunk of prime real estate, which includes 900 feet of beach frontage, was $500,000.

The property is the former location of the Walled Lake Casino and Amusement Park, which was a regionally-known recreation area. The park included amusement rides and attractions and a lake pier featuring speed boat rides. The casino was a popular night spot for dancing and live entertainment in the late 1940s.

After completing the purchase of this historic site, Novi City Council created the Shoreline Property Site Planning Committee. The committee went to work in January 1984 to establish guidelines and goals for the develop-

If you're looking for the oldest auto glass store in Livingston County and the one with the most experience, it can be found at Abe's Auto Glass Inc.

Abe's Auto Glass is located at 1018 E. Grand River in Howell and has another location at 8200 W. Grand River in Brighton.

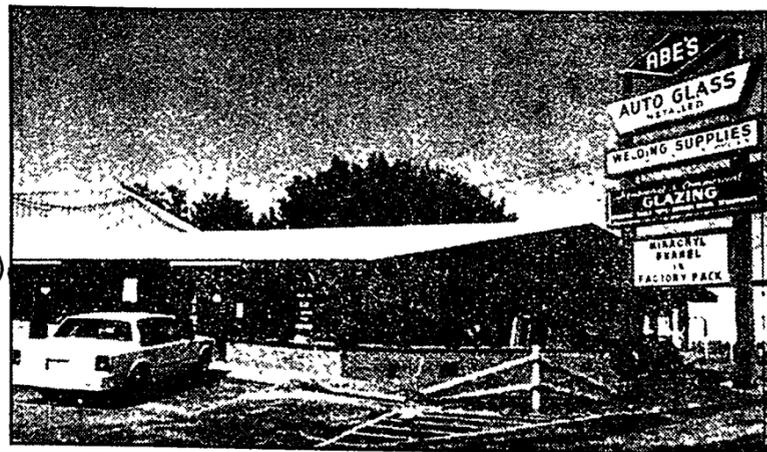

"We believe quality products and workmanship have been the key to our success and are the key to the future of any company," is a phrase that has acted as a part of the business and is still used by owner Stan Lalewicz today.

Abe's Auto Glass has been operating since 1934. It's come a long way from the one store with two employees. The company now employs 26.

Lalewicz said that the Brighton division got its start 30 years after the Howell one. It later moved to a larger facility.

Abe's sells auto and residential glass, auto paint and body shop supplies. The business also deals in welding supplies for home and commercial industries.

But there's more to Lalewicz's enterprises than Abe's Auto Glass. Howell Rental is also a part of the business.

Last year city council also went to work on plans to relocate roadways in the area to accommodate the proposed development. South Lake Drive and East Lake Drive are to be relocated to the south to increase the usable land area and to eliminate a direct thoroughfare through the site.

With design work on the roadways already underway, the city advertised for bid proposals in May. The request for proposals (RFP) lists 11 goals for developing the site, with general upgrading of the lake area the top priority for the project. Other goals include:

- The combined involvement of private and public sector;
- The promotion of a community feeling;
- An indoor community assembly facility;
- Continued control of the lake frontage by the city;
- No conflict with surrounding residential areas;
- Preservation of green space and trees;
- No harm to lake water quality;
- Compatibility with the road relocation and utility systems; and,
- Providing a source of revenue.

The committee considered such items as restaurants, a boardwalk, a community assembly room and a marina or launch ramp as high priorities for the development.

Developers responding to the RFP were asked to describe their specific plans for the site, including cost estimates and a timetable for implementation.

City council had hoped to award a contract on the project by September, expecting a spring 1986 groundbreaking. However, a decision to rebid the resort project may throw a crimp in the schedule.

Although more than a dozen businesspeople or developers expressed interest in the project, only one bid was submitted by the August 1 deadline — and that was incomplete.

While expressing disappointment over the first bidding, City Manager Edward Kriewall told city council recently the mission of the Shoreline committee has not changed.

"We're not necessarily alarmed, but we may have to go to a different bidding process; maybe advertise nationally," he suggested.

The committee rejected the one bid it received and agreed to extend the bid submittal time by three to four months. In the meantime, the committee is attempting to find out why so many of the developers who initially expressed interest in the resort project failed to submit proposals.

"We feel that the potential is as strong as it ever was," Kriewall said.

BARGAIN BARN

Touch of Country Shoppe

A "Touch of Country" and "Bargain Barn" are more than just names of two stores. They're a description of each store as well.

Both stores are located at 5640 M-59 in Howell and are owned by Gary and Geraldine Anscombe.

If you're looking for quality items, both new and used, then Bargain Barn is the answer you've been looking for.

Bargain Barn got started three years ago when Gary Anscombe discovered an excess of equipment and other material cluttering up his construction company. Thinking that the items were too good to just throw away, he decided to sell them in front of a barn. The following week he did the same thing. It was a success. Gary found out that people like to buy used items because they have lower prices but can still be in good condition.

Today Bargain Barn has expanded. Used items are still available and new items are also being brought in. The items that are always in stock include tools and car stereo equipment, which are also sold with a warranty. A lot of things for hobbies, such as telescopes or musical instruments, are also sold. Other items range from glass salt and pepper shakers to new watches to used books.

There's a bigger barn that holds the bigger Bargain Barn items. These items include building materials, motorcycle parts, new exercise equipment, used refrigerators and more.

Bargain Barn doesn't just sell items. They trade and buy them as well.

"Touch of Country" is another store the Anscobes own, located in the same building as the Bargain Barn. However, there is a distinct difference when entering "A Touch of Country Shoppe". The sweet smell of potpourri, the wood floor and country decor make this shoppe unique. "Touch of Country" carries furniture made of oak, mahogany and brass. Some of the items are stoneware, porcelain dolls, duck decoys, wood items and more.

One distinction that separates "Touch of Country" and "Bargain Barn" from other businesses—aside from the obvious old fashionedness both share—is that they are both family operated businesses.

The husband and wife team take pride in having their family members help out with the business. One of the reasons the Anscobes like a family business is because it offers a more personal touch.

"We're friendlier. The people who come in know us and trust us," Gary said. "The customers feel like they're dealing with people, not just a business."

"Touch of Country" and "Bargain Barn" are open Wednesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. They accept Visa, Mastercard and a layaway plan is available.

Ready to Serve You!

Owner/President Arnold Gilbert

THERE IS SOMETHING SPECIAL ABOUT OWNING A CUSTOM HOME

Building a home can be one of the most exciting and creative experiences you can have in your lifetime. It also should be one of the most rewarding. Hauser & Baun Custom Builders, Inc. can make that experience a reality for you.

Hauser & Baun, a new company, is located in Hartland at 11526 Highland Road (M-59) approximately one mile east of U.S. 23.

Company President Arnold Gilbert says there is a need for custom home building within a 25-mile radius of his location on newly expanded M-59. Gilbert says his company can build homes on his customers' lots anywhere in Livingston, Washtenaw, Wayne and Oakland counties.

"The response has been very favorable," Gilbert said.

Hauser & Baun is a "sister company" of Guenther Building Company, one of Washtenaw County's leading home builders and developers. Robert Guenther, owner/president of Guenther Building Company, is Gilbert's partner. Together they have 45 years of experience in building quality homes.

Hauser & Baun's model is a unique contemporary two-story home which also is used to house the company's offices.

An impressive selection of new and exciting homes, ranging in price from $55,000 to $250,000 or more, is offered by Hauser & Baun, including contemporary, traditional, provincial, colonial and Tudor, elevations for ranches, two story, one and one-half story and multi-level homes.

"If we don't have a home for you in our portfolio," Gilbert says, "we can custom design one, achieving energy efficiency and harmony with your family and their surroundings through balance and scale, proportion and shape."

All of Hauser & Baun's plans can be modified to meet your individual and financial requirements.

One very different and interesting aspect of Gilbert's business is that there are actually four different building programs available:

1. Hauser & Baun can build your custom home complete, including all lot improvements.

2. Hauser & Baun will build your foundation and shell, provide allowances, professional guidance and a list of recommended trades in the area, allowing you to sub-contract and control quality.

3. Hauser & Baun will allow you to participate in the construction to any stage of completion you desire and then will do the rest.

4. Hauser & Baun, for the total do-it-yourselfer, will package the entire project.

Hauser & Baun also will obtain low cost construction financing for any of these programs!!

"You can save from 10 percent to 40 percent on your new home without sacrificing the quality you demand," Gilbert said.

"Through our many years of experience we have found that local lending institutions familiar with where your home will be built are the most dependable source for permanent financing," Gilbert advised.

After customers have been shown through the model which serves as the Hartland company's base and have looked over the design brochure, Gilbert encourages them to come in for a home planning session. This helps customers discover what they really want in a home.

For a worthwhile tour: Hauser & Baun is open seven days a week for your convenience, 9-7 Monday through Friday and 1-5 Saturday and Sunday. For those desiring more flexible hours, call 313-632-7880 or 313-971-7300 for an appointment.
