No applause for new fence at hospital

After years of fighting with the state to get a fence erected around Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital, Northville Township officials said last week they were not satisfied with the results.

"The state did put up a fence," police chief Kenneth Hardesty told the board of trustees October 10. "I, personally, am not real impressed with it, though."

The fence was completed recently. It is a six-foot chain-link fence that runs along three sides (south, east and west) of the hospital, largely through wooded areas where it is all but invisible to the casual observer. The green fence does not follow the perimeter of the state-owned land, instead enclosing only the area housing patients.

But openings in the fence may prevent it from doing its intended job of reducing the number of patients who leave the hospital without authorization, the police chief charged.

Hardesty noted a large gap in the fence near the hospital powerhouse and other gaps where internal roads pass through the fence.

"They've also not secured the front (along Seven Mile) like they said they would," Hardesty added, noting that a guard house constructed at the main entrance is unoccupied.

"Is it true that there's no gates?" asked treasurer Richard Henningsen.

Phone transition tangles the lines

A change in telephone equipment and phone numbers at township hall did not go off as smoothly as had been hoped for last week.

Township manager Bruno Scachitti said the first inkling of trouble came about 15 minutes after the lines were switched over onto a new Michigan Bell Centrex system last Thursday.

"I tried to place a call out, and the operator came on the line and asked me to deposit change, like into a pay-phone," he said.

Right after that, the system crashed and was down for five hours, he reported. Initially, callers who dialed the former number (348-9000) were simply told the number had been disconnected — the phone company did not supply the new number (348-5800).

For a short time, the only phone line operating was the 911 emergency number connected to the police dispatch office. The police and fire business lines were the first restored to operation, then the township office lines.

Once the problem with the lines was straightened out, township personnel began training for use of new Excuteone equipment installed and put in.

State prisor to be secure official vow

By KEVIN WILSON

Ten separate measures will be taken to improve security at Western Wayne Correctional Facility (WWCF) before any additional inmates are housed at the state prison, Michigan Corrections officials said last week.

Meeting with the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees October 8, WWCF superintendent Emmet Baylor and Corrections Department Deputy Director Dan Bolden outlined a series of security improvements to be made at the former Detroit House of Correction and said inmate population would be capped at 350 until local officials agree that the facility is secure.

Prompted by the escape of eight inmates within a single week, the measures announced last week address all the concerns raised by local political and law enforcement leaders during a tour of the facility October 4, plus some other issues corrections officials noted.

Steps announced last week are:

- Sealing of all steam tunnels and manholes. Manhole covers were tack-welded in place last week, but since access is required for maintenance, a bolt-down system will be installed that can only be opened from the top by maintenance workers. Baylor noted that the two escapes through steam tunnels came after inmates removed a set of bars intended to secure the entry in

NHS move-in date set

By MICHELE M. FECHT

Northville High School students are scheduled to begin second semester classes in the newly renovated facility following the board of education's approval Monday of a January 27 move-in date.

The board's approval to begin classes at the renovated site will put students in grades 9-12 back into Northville High School proper in 15 weeks.

The board approved the proposed move-in date following discussion of a projected completion schedule submitted by Elgin Builders, contractors for the renovation project.

The schedule, the first brought to the district since the contractors began work on the project, puts the high school completion date at January 1 or before "barring any unforeseen events."

According to the contractor's projections, four sections of the building are scheduled for completion this week. Other sections will be completed sometime between now and late December. The science wing will be the last area finished with a completion date targeted for the week of December 21.

"This is a legitimate schedule," project architect John Argenta told board members Monday night. He noted that should work be completed the last week of December (as scheduled), the district will have a six-week grace period before students occupy the facility.

Argenta noted that many of the problems which plagued the project for the past several months have been alleviated. "Materials that have been delayed up until now are all here," he said, noting that some sections of the

Enrollment dips, but not by much

Despite a loss of 67 students in comparison to last year's enrollment, Northville Public Schools still came 51 students shy of its anticipated loss of 118 for the 1985-86 school year.

Assistant Superintendent Burton Knighton told the board of education Monday that with 51 more students than anticipated for the new school year, the district hired four additional elementary teachers and 1.6 additional staff members at the secondary level.

Enrollment figures outlined at the board's meeting Monday night show a reduction at all levels.

Only a slight reduction was realized at the kindergarten level where 195 students are enrolled in comparison to 204 last year.

Though a nearly 200 student decline has occurred at the elementary level, this year's implementation of the middle school realignment has resulted in

Parochial students still not getting auxiliary services

By MICHELE M. FECHT

Though it's been more than a month since the opening of school, students attending parochial schools in the Northville area still are not receiving remedial instruction or auxiliary services as a result of a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling.

Private and public school officials have been negotiating a new method for providing both remedial and auxiliary services to parochial school students since the high court handed down a ruling in July banning public schoolteachers from providing such services at religious-affiliated schools.

The court ruled that while the private school students are entitled to the federally-funded programs, the prior method of sending public schoolteachers into the parochial schools violates the excessive entanglement clause of the constitution separating church and state.

In response to the high court's mandate, State School Superintendent Phillip Runkel has stated public school districts are responsible for transporting parochial students to a neutral or public school site for instruction.

In Northville, where four parochial schools receive auxiliary services (speech and language, psychological evaluations, social work and services of educational consultants), the issue has created considerable concern among parents and educators in both the private and public sector.

'Auxiliary services are for all students. The parochial school students should receive the services as the public school students receive them.'

Sharalene Thompson

Sharalene Thompson, principal of Our Lady of Victory School, says she feels the decision has created an inequity in the services offered to parochial and public school students.

"Auxiliary services are for all students," she notes. "The parochial school students should receive the services as the public school students receive them."

Noting that historically five percent of Our Lady of Victory students have received services — usually in the area of speech and language therapy — Thompson says the new ruling already has had a significant impact on her students.

She explains the Supreme Court decision has two basic parts. First, that public schoolteachers cannot teach on the "religious school site" and second that it demands equitable — not equal — services for children attending private schools.

"When students are forced to leave their buildings and travel to another site, equity is lost," she notes, referring to the proposed plans for transporting parochial students to the public schools for speech and language therapy.

Though Our Lady of Victory is working with public school officials to finalize arrangements for bringing together parochial students and public schoolteachers, OLV has rejected all proposals brought forth from the public school district's central office.

The most recent proposal which offered therapy for one hour and 15 minutes a week at a public school site was rejected on the basis that OLV officials felt the "service was not equitable to our students."

Pointing out that public school students receive therapy twice a week, Thompson says she feels OLV students are entitled to the same arrangement.

She also notes that to take students out of the classroom for one hour and 15 minutes is disruptive to their regular school day and takes away from instruction time.

Helen Belz, principal of Christian Community School, voiced similar concerns for three of her students needing speech and language therapy.

Noting that Christian Community students are scheduled to begin therapy next week in one hour and 15 minute sessions once a week at Winchester, Belz says she has some concerns about the loss of instructional time.

"It's inconvenient in terms of the length of time students will be away from instructional activity," she explains, noting that prior to the new ruling public schoolteachers took students out of the classroom for half-hour sessions.

Wayne Loontjer, principal of St. Paul's Lutheran Church School, explains that while six of his students needing speech and language therapy are scheduled to begin sessions next week, the decision for transporting students to a public school site will rest with parents.

"We'll have them transported to a public school site only if we have parental permission," he notes, adding that some parents may choose to forego the service depending on the severity of the speech or articulation problem.

"It involves quite a bit of time away from the classroom and that's a concern," Loontjer notes, adding that St. Paul's students are scheduled to be serviced in two separate sessions on Tuesdays and Fridays for one hour and to operation Monday.

"The whole new system is up and running now," Scacchitti said Tuesday morning, acknowledging some confusion, particularly in transferring calls within the office, as workers adopted to the new system.

Northville Public Schools will soon adopt a similar Centrex and Executive phone system, and Scacchitti said he wishes them the best.

"The schools' system is at least three times the size of ours," he said. "If they have the same problems we do getting started, I feel sorry for them."

Estates streets will be closed

All five Northville Estates street exits to Beck Road will be closed off when Beck is paved early next year.

City council agreed October 7 to resident requests that all the streets become dead-ends, leaving only a single entrance/exit from the subdivision onto Eight Mile Road.

Council's order specifically closes Dunsany, South Chigwidden, Battledford, Holmbury and Elmsmere from the east Beck Road right-of-way line to a point 20 feet east. The closing is effective when streets are temporarily closed for the construction.

Police and fire officials recently recommended keeping at least one of the streets open, while the city planning consultant suggested two of the five should be left open.

But Northville Estates Civic Association president John Hardin presented a petition signed by 77 percent of the homeowners in the subdivision requesting that all five exits be closed, and council agreed to do so.

An earthen berm will be constructed along the Beck Road frontage, crossing the former intersections, when the road is paved between Eight and 10 Mile roads. Construction is tentatively scheduled next spring and is to be paid for by a combination of federal, state, county and city road construction funds.

"A lot of people said that for one of the five to be left open would be nice, as long as it wasn't theirs," Hardin said. "Since no one wanted their own street open to Beck, we decided it would be better to close them all."

Council member J. Burton DeRusha said he thought the "subdivision might be better served by leaving Elmsmere open," but his comment was greeted with a chorus of shouts from residents opposed to the suggestion. DeRusha is himself a resident of the subdivision, but said he intends to sell his home in the near future.

Long-range plans call for Elmsmere to be connected to a new subdivision to be constructed to the east of Northville Estates, but there is no firm timetable for construction.

Hardin noted, however, that with sewer and water service soon to be extended to the area, residents expect development along Elmsmere and in the adjacent subdivision will occur soon.

"That will provide a second entry to the sub that should address the emergency access question," he said.

Homeowners told council they wanted the streets closed in hopes that limiting access would reduce the number of motorists driving through the subdivision to avoid the Beck/Eight Mile intersection, the number of speeders on the streets and the number of burglaries.

Council member Carolann Ayers, although agreeing to go along with the subdivision's request, said she had "problems" with the attitudes expressed by the residents.

"I have some problems with subdivision developments feeling they are a subdivision development unto themselves and not part of a larger community," Ayers said. "I have a problem with some of the attitudes of closing yourselves in and closing other people out. I certainly hope that if all the streets are closed, all the speeding stops and all the burglaries end—but I think that's an idealistic view, not a realistic one."

When reference was made to an entrance to an adjacent subdivision being available later, Ayers noted that "those residents may not want you driving through their subdivision."

DeRusha, meanwhile, recalled a request to abandon that portion of Elmsmere at the Beck Road end to allow a buildable lot to be placed there, and recommended that the right-of-way be retained by the city.

"Later, we should have the option of re-opening that street if it just doesn't work out," DeRusha said. "It's only money. Presumably, it would be the subdivision that asked for it to be reopened, and they would be assessed for the cost. Just don't give up the right-of-way."

Noting that Beck Road has an entry to I-96 on the north and to M-14 on the south, Mayor Pro Tem G. Dewey Gardner said the long-range plans of both Oakland and Wayne counties would make Beck a major artery serving the area.

"The long-range planned use would be much greater than what we see now on Haggerty Road," he said, explaining his support for residents who wish to close off entrance to their subdivision from Beck.

Rejected zoning request may be reconsidered

Residents who watched the township board of trustees deny a rezoning petition for the expansion of the Northridge complex on Seven Mile Road may think that's the end of it.

They've got another think coming.

The Dalby Corporation petition to rezone 18.7 acres from single-family to multiple-family residential uses was, indeed, rejected on a unanimous 4-0 vote of the trustees.

But, supervisor Susan Heintz said Friday, it is likely that the board will reconsider its action because no Dalby Corporation representative attended the meeting to present the company's side of the issue.

Since it appears the township rather than the developer may have made the mistake that resulted in the corporation's absence from the meeting, Heintz said, the board will likely reconsider its action.

Kim Radtke of the Northridge Association spoke against the rezoning petition during the October 10 meeting, suggesting among other objections that the present road into the complex could not withstand the traffic of an expansion of the size contemplated.

But when Heintz asked for a representative of the petitioner, none was present. Told that Dalby Corporation had been mailed a copy of the agenda on Tuesday, the board proceeded to discuss the issue briefly and vote to deny the request.

Both treasurer Richard Henningsen and Heintz remarked on the petitioner's absence, but proceeded, with Heintz commenting that "Dalby has done a lot of business in this township — they know what the schedule is."

On Friday, however, a letter was received at township hall from Dalby Corporation requesting that action be tabled until November. A company representative contacted by the township, Heintz said, noted that the township agenda had been received, but that it bears the notation, "Tabled at the petitioner's request."

The company evidently misunderstood the notation, Heintz said.

"The clerk's office put that on there to remind the trustees that this item had been tabled in September," Heintz said. "But the petitioner evidently took it to mean we had received his request and would table it another month."

Further complicating the issue is the petitioner's claim to have attempted contacting the township by telephone only to receive a message that the telephone number had been disconnected.

The township launched operations with a new phone system and a new number last week, and for a period of five hours Wednesday callers were told only that the old number had been disconnected and were not given the new number (it's 348-5800).

In order to reconsider the board vote, one of those who voted to deny the petition must move for reconsideration. With only four of the seven board members present last week, that means Heintz, treasurer Richard Henningsen or trustees Donald Williams or James Nowka can move reconsideration at the next meeting.

Clerk Georgina Goss and trustees Richard Allen and Tom Cook will be allowed to vote if the issue is reconsidered and they are present. Unless one of the original four voting on the issue alters position in the intervening month, the result would be the same.

Districts set for Gerald improvements

Special assessment districts to pave Gerald Avenue and provide storm drains, sewers and water service to adjacent properties were approved by the township board of trustees last week.

With a large portion of the Gerald frontage lying within city boundaries, township officials said they would approach the city with a request for assistance in financing the improvements.

"The problem is that we cannot, legally, assess properties that do not appear on our tax rolls," supervisor Susan Heintz explained.

The city's DPW yard and one private parcel within city limits about Gerald, which is the only township-owned street (all other township thoroughfares are either county roads or private streets).

All told, there is roughly 1,000 feet of city land adjoining Gerald that could benefit from the improvements. The DPW yard is approximately 700 feet deep, and another 300 feet of Gerald Avenue frontage is in private hands.

Leon Bonner, owner of several affected properties, protested that, if land within the city limits is excluded from the cost of the improvements, other property owners would be assuming a disproportionate share of the burden.

Cost of the paving and storm drainage plan was estimated at $655,000 while the water and sewer extension costs were put at $380,000.

Bonner suggested the township turn the street over to Wayne County, which could assess paving costs to all benefiting properties. Heintz pointed out that Gerald is only 50 feet wide, too narrow for county specifications.

But Bonner persisted in arguing that the project should not be undertaken if city properties are to benefit without being assessed a share of the cost.

"I can't imagine that being a morally justifiable allocation," Bonner said. "It might be legal, but it's not right."

Heintz said Friday that the township would approach the city in hopes of getting a voluntary contribution toward the cost, but stressed that there is no legal obligation for any city property to pay for improvements to a township road.

Trustees established two separate special assessment districts for the improvements. They differ in that the water and sewer district includes the Doheny Industrial Park property on Doheny Drive (formerly Wallis) while the paving and drainage district does not.

Also, property fronting Seven Mile is excluded from the water and sewer district (since it has service available from Seven Mile) but included in the paving district when it abuts portions of Gerald.

Establishment of the district is the first of several steps required before the improvements can be made and the cost charged to benefiting property owners.

Architect selected for new township fire station

An architect has been chosen to design the township's proposed west-end fire station.

Township trustees last week selected TKACZ and Associates to do first-phase design work for $12,500. The staff recommendation leading to the appointment was altered from the September meeting, at which Coquillard/Dundon/Peterson and Argenta was the recommended firm.

Bruno Scacchitti, township manager, said the change was made in response to comments by trustees who said they preferred the fixed-rate proposal of TKACZ over the percentage of cost proposal submitted by Coquillard.

"Also, it was a smaller firm, we knew who the architect was and we liked the concept drawing he submitted, he drew it from the RFP (request for proposal)," Scacchitti said.

At the earlier meeting, some trustees had questioned the recommendation of Coquillard, noting that the firm was the architect for the high school renovations.

Although other trustees defended the firm, stating that delays and problems with the high school project were not the fault of the architect, Scacchitti said some concern about the association with the high school "was probably in the back of my mind" but not the deciding factor in his recommendation.

The two firms had bid almost identical costs, but Coquillard's was based on six percent of actual construction costs while TKACZ bid a fixed price of $19,500, which township staff determined was about 5.9 percent of expected costs.

Treasurer Richard Henningsen questioned the awarding of any architectural contract immediately, asking whether the fire hall project had been placed in the perspective of other township building plans.

"You know, we've got another department in this building (police) that's in cramped quarters and a study of expanding this hall is in the works," Henningsen said. "The only question is, is it your priority right now to build the fire station or to take a look at the other things?"

Fire chief Robert Toms responded that the fire hall architectural work has to be done before definite cost projections can be made for construction.

"We have to go at least this far just so we'll know what we're talking about," Toms said.

Henningsen, acknowledging that "if I lived out in that area, I'd want this built right away" was the first to cast his vote on the roll call, which turned out 4-0 in favor of awarding the architectural contract.

Board rejects endorsement of fund drive

Any little goblins who darken Northville Township doorways this Halloween to solicit funds for the Michigan Humane Society will have to do so without the support of the township board.

The society has slated a Halloween fund drive to continue construction of its animal care facility in Westland, which backers contend will be "the finest total care facility in the country" when completed.

Youngsters soliciting funds for the society will carry canisters for donations to the building program. But the Northville Township board of trustees last week rejected the society's request for permission to solicit funds here.

Raising the specter of liability, treasurer Richard Henningsen moved and the board unanimously approved a denial of the request.

"The reason is our public liability if we condone collections by young people in nighttime hours," Henningsen said. "It raises some liability questions I don't think we want to deal with."

The board voted 4-0 to reject the request, with trustees Richard Allen and Tom Cook and clerk Georgina Goss all absent.

Juniors!

"BLOOD THINNERS"

Anticoagulants, commonly known as "blood thinners," prevent the formation of new blood clots and prevent existing blood clots from becoming larger. Anticoagulants do not dissolve blood clots nor do they actually "thin" the blood (decrease viscosity).

The first anticoagulant administered in hospitals is often heparin, a product usually obtained from the tissues of domestic food animals. Heparin is given by injection—into either a vein or the fat layer beneath the skin. Heparin is a useful "first" anticoagulant because it acts instantly. It even prevents clotting in blood stored in bags.

The most popular anticoagulant taken by the convenient, painless oral route is warfarin, an agent that reduces the liver formation of at least four clotting factors. Several days are required for warfarin to act fully.

Even aspirin is an anticoagulant and is often prescribed in low daily doses to prevent the clumping of blood platelets. Other medicines used for this purpose include dipyridamole and sulfinpyrazone.

Runaway boxcar accident still a mystery police say

Michigan State Police have completed their investigation of an October 3 accident in which runaway boxcars hit a car at the Seven Mile railroad crossing, killing one woman.

Trooper Marvin Nunn, who did the investigation, said the accident report has been forwarded to the Wayne County Prosecutor's office.

"They'll have to decide if there's anything or anyone to be charged as a result of the incident," Nunn said.

He said police are unable to determine just how the boxcar brakes were released while they sat at a siding near Grand River and Novi Road. The two linked cars loaded with auto parts rolled away from the siding and onto the mainline, passing through several intersections before hitting a car at Seven Mile, killing Calene Yokich, 68, of Florida and injuring two others.

According to police reports, two Chessie System workers had set the cars on the siding and taken a 20-minute break. It wasn't until they returned from the break that they realized the cars were gone. Safety gates and signals did not operate at the intersection because the Saginaw-based dispatcher was not aware there was anything moving on the tracks.

"The brakeman advised that he did set the brake," Nunn said. "And I have a report from one of the Chessie System's maintenance men showing the brakes did work properly."

Nunn said it was obvious the brakes were in operating condition because Trooper David Haire used them to stop the runaway boxcars as they rolled south toward Six Mile Road after the collision.

Chessie System officials were also reported to have completed their investigation of the accident, but none could be reached for comment prior to this week's Record press deadline.

VFW programs target safety for youngsters

Both a Child Identification program and a Lite-a-Bike project to make bicycles visible and safe for night riding are being sponsored by the Northville Post 4012, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Youth Activities Committee from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, October 26, at the post.

"It's really a community effort to help people become aware of incidents that, unfortunately, occur too often," said Kerry Bogater in announcing the Child Identification program. She and her husband Donald are co-chairpersons of the post youth activities committee.

In the Child Identification program, finger printing will be done by Northville city police officers and Jack Gardner from the Phoenix Correctional Facility. Equipment is being loaned by the Northville State Police Post.

Auxiliary members will be compiling children's vital statistics while they are photographed by post members for their parents' records.

During the day a movie, "Too Smart for Strangers," will be shown at 9:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Doors will open a half-hour before the film begins.

The film features Winnie the Pooh and addresses abduction prevention. It is aimed at ages 3 to 10.

In the Lite-a-Bike program reflective material is attached to bicycles to make them visible and safe for night riding.

The free service will be available all day from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

While reservations are not required for either program, sponsors report that reservations would be appreciated for groups, such as scout troops.

For more information or to make reservation, call Donald or Kerry Bogater at the post, 349-8828, or at home, 981-3520.

The post also is planning a youth hayride from 5-10 p.m. this Saturday for children of members who are from 7-17 years old. It will include a hot dog roast. Reservations at $4.50 each should be made with the post.

Security improvements at Western Wayne promised

the first instance, and broke through a 4-inch thick steel door the second time. Tunnels entries are now being sealed with brick.

• Security screens are being installed in the administration building by the third week of October, Bolden said.

• The perimeter road surrounding the security fence is being improved so that it may be used on a constant basis.

• The department has already purchased two four-wheel drive Chevy Blazers to patrol the perimeter road. Guards in the vehicles carry shotguns and are the only armed guards at the facility. Bolden said both vehicles would patrol the perimeter during the prime escape hours between dusk and midnight, while a single car would be on patrol at other times.

• Michigan Bell representatives were to visit the prison last weekend to discuss alternative means of linking communications with area law enforcement agencies. They also were to determine how telephone lines to the facility may be buried. Overhead lines, Bolden said, presently cross over the fence and may provide a means of escape.

• Other escape routes could be over the roof of the food service building and the roof of the main administration building. Bolden said an E-field (electronic detection system) will be installed atop the food service building to protect that means of egress, while either an E-field or concertina wire will be installed atop the administration building.

• Within a week, a liaison council of local government and law enforcement personnel and corrections officials will be established. Initially, the council will deal only with WWCF issues, but may eventually be consolidated with similar efforts regarding Phoenix Correctional and Scott Regional Correctional facilities, both on the north side of Five Mile.

• Baylor is to begin meeting weekly with local law enforcement agencies.

• Bolden said he would expedite the appointment of an assistant to Baylor — the appointee's primary duties would be community and media relations.

• Prior to the break-outs, Bolden said, he had contacted a consultant to review security at WWCF. The consultant is a former warden of the state's Ionia facility and has retired after 28 years in corrections.

Inmate population will not be expanded until state representative Gerald Law (R-Plymouth) and senator R. Robert Geake (R-Northville) are satisfied that the prison is secure, Bolden said. He later said the review could be delegated to local law enforcement agencies if that is what the legislators prefer.

"I won't sit here and guarantee no escapes," Bolden said. "I can't guarantee that. But I can guarantee you that we are going to start doing things right."

Also attending last week's session was Jim Curran of the department of management and budget (DMB), who announced that "in order to move quickly" all renovation and construction work at WWCF would be contracted on a time-and-materials basis rather than going through the time-consuming competitive bid process.

Other work being done at the facility includes installation of a second electronic detection system along the perimeter fencing. The E-flex system was in place before prisoners were moved in, but the second system (known as Omni) was not installed until last week, Bolden said.

The two systems work together to warn corrections officials of attempts to escape through the fencing. Once both systems are installed, WWCF will boast the same perimeter security as the nearby Phoenix Correctional Facility, which has experienced only one escape from the secured area in five years of operation.

Most questions directed to the corrections officials from both board members and area residents dealt with how the department intends to notify its immediate neighbors, mostly single-family homes, that an escape has taken place.

Bolden noted that in Ypsilanti, where the department operates both men's and women's Huron Valley Correctional facilities, neighbors have established a telephone chain. When an escape alarm is posted, local law enforcement personnel contact one person in the neighborhood who starts a chain of phone calls contacting all residences.

But residents here stated a preference for a siren or some electronic means of alerting neighbors directly. Plymouth Township supervisor Maurice Breen suggested a beeper-like radio system similar to that used by volunteer firefighters, with each home equipped with a receiver so that the prison officials need only push a single button to sound alarms in all nearby residences.

Breen asked Curran if the state would provide "maybe $500 seed money" to establish such a system. Curran was non-committal, but said that "if that's what people want" the proposal could be studied.

Bolden and Curran both said they would prefer to establish a means of notifying residents after consultation with area law enforcement agencies, which typically handle such notifications near other state facilities.

"If we have to contact the residents, that takes time and delays us contacting and working with the law enforcement people to try to apprehend any escapees," Bolden said.

Prison measures welcomed

Last week's announcement of measures to improve security at Western Wayne Correctional Facility (WWCF) pleased area leaders, though most remained critical of the Department of Corrections for moving inmates into the former Detroit House of Correction before it was secure.

Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen said he was impressed with the rapid response of the state, noting that an October 4 tour of the facility was followed with a response by October 8 — the intervening period included a weekend.

"Dealing with organizations and bureaucracies like the ones we're dealing with in this situation, there's been some very quick action," Breen said.

Corrections department deputy director Dan Bolden said the swift response was necessary because "we intend to be credible."

Northville Township supervisor Susan J. Heintz said at last Thursday's board of trustees meeting that she, too, was impressed that the state is attempting to rectify its mistakes.

"I feel the state has taken a giant leap forward to improve security at Western Wayne Correctional Facility," Heintz told her township board in a report on her attendance at the Plymouth Township meeting. "I feel a lot better about it today than I did even as late as Tuesday (October 8) morning."

Also attending the Plymouth meeting from Northville Township were police chief Kenneth Hardesty and trustees Donald B. Williams and Thomas L.P. Cook.

Other area leaders attending the session included state senator R. Robert Geake, representative Gerald H. Law and Wayne County Commissioner Mary Dumas.

Hardesty said he was "very unhappy" about the lack of notice to area law enforcement agencies when the escapes occurred, particularly noting that the same personnel operated the facility under Detroit ownership and had notified police promptly during that period.

"We meet with them for the first time October 15," Hardesty said. "I'm not going to accept anything less than immediate notification (of escapes). It was just a short time ago in Ypsilanti when residents heard gunshots from inside their corrections facility (Huron Valley) and that's how the county knew that something was going on there."

Both Heintz and Hardesty emphasized that, although WWCF is across the border in Plymouth Township, they believe Northville Township has reason to be concerned about it.

"We do not consider this a Plymouth Township problem, we consider it a community problem," Heintz said.

Of escapes, Hardesty said "they can run north as easily as they can run south," noting that one of three escapes since apprehended was found in Wixom and presumably passed through Northville Township en route.

There was general agreement among local officials that the escapes happened because the Department of Corrections moved inmates into the facility before security measures were up to standard.

Dumas said as much at the October 8 meeting, saying "it's a shame there wasn't time for a shakedown of that facility before you moved that many prisoners in there."

Dumas, who was deeply involved in the county's own search for and subsequent construction of new jail facilities, noted that the DeHoCo site was rejected by the county as too expensive to rehabilitate with sufficient security for county prisoners. After the meeting, she said her recollection of the county study was that it would take $30 million to renovate DeHoCo properly. The state budgeted $13 million, according to Law, and has not yet dipped deep into that figure.

The only Republican county commissioner, whose district includes Northville, Plymouth and Livonia, said the news of the escapes might damage further efforts to locate new prisons elsewhere in the state.

"We're trying to convince the City of Detroit to accept their share of state facilities," Dumas said. "This kind of thing is not going to help that effort in the slightest."

HOMECOMING '85

Mustang fans kick up their heels

Northville High School's 1985 Homecoming no doubt will be one for the history books. While the Mustangs' defeat over Livonia Franklin capped a week of festivities, a class competition held last Wednesday proved a resounding success and brought school spirit to an all-time high. The eagerly anticipated crowning of Northville's newest king and queen clearly was one of the highlights of last week's homecoming. The new queen, Nickie La Roque (at right) and king Hutch Kerns (at left) received a royal welcome after Friday's crowning. However, it was last Friday's football game which brought fans to their feet. Don Norton, (below left) is congratulated by Phil Pendleton after his first touchdown catch. Below right, players and coach Dennis Colligan celebrate victory as fans goes wild (center right). Jeff Peters (far right below), last year's homecoming king, keeps the audience in suspense before passing on his crown to Hutch Kerns.

Police Blotter

Redford man dies, truck leaves road

Township police are investigating the death of a 76-year-old Redford Township man involved in a single-car accident on Six Mile west of Beck around 3:25 p.m. last Thursday.

The victim, Frank George Seitz, apparently lost control of the small pickup truck he was driving. However, police have not yet determined the cause of the accident.

Results of an autopsy conducted last Friday have not been released by the Wayne County Medical Examiner's Office.

A 19-year-old Livonia man was arrested by township police last week for reckless driving near the intersection of Haggerty and Five Mile roads.

Township officers on routine patrol were traveling east on Five Mile at approximately 10:45 p.m. October 9 when they noticed a 1977 Pontiac LeMans enter the intersection at Five Mile and Haggerty at a high rate of speed. Township police, approximately 20 feet from the intersection, saw the driver run the red signal on Haggerty and turn onto Five Mile.

The officers observed the vehicle cut across the westbound Five Mile lanes.

Police noted the vehicle was squealing tires and sliding toward the southside curb. They also noted the license plate was not mounted to the vehicle.

After stopping the vehicle, the driver told police he was traveling about 50 miles per hour and that the brakes on the car had not been working properly for the last couple of months.

He further stated he could not stop the car for the red light.

One of the officers inspected the vehicle and found both front tires to have the metal inner cord showing through treads which were badly worn.

The officers noted an odor of intoxicants coming from the driver's breath. The driver was read his PBT rights and the officer administered one test with a .03 percent blood alcohol count.

The driver was arrested for reckless driving and is to appear at 9 a.m. November 12 in 35th District Court.

Fire caused an estimated $2,000 damage to a 1978 Plymouth Horizon sometime around midnight October 10.

The complainant told police he was traveling on Six Mile west of Haggerty when he noticed flames coming out of the wheel wells.

City raises salaries of non-union supervisors

Salary increases of approximately seven percent were granted six non-unionized city employees retroactive to July 1, 1985.

City council authorized the increases, costing a total additional $10,628, after a closed-door session October 7 to discuss labor negotiations, including the salaries.

All city unions have signed contracts, but one is seeking a contract re-opening to discuss benefits given one bargaining group and not another. City council discussed the request during the closed session, but took no action on it. Since supporting information for the non-union raises has an impact on the negotiation issue, city manager Steven Walters did not release the computer sheet detailing the data.

Council did not discuss the raises in detail except to accept Walters' report and recommendation that "given the excellent performance of all the non-union employees still subject to salary adjustment" and "(unreleased) financial limits outlined above, I see no basis for granting other than a uniform salary adjustment."

The non-union personnel affected are all in supervisory positions: the city manager, police chief, DPW superintendent, finance director, housing director and DPW foreman.

In addition to the salary increases, these employees will also receive term life insurance benefit improvements equivalent to those given city police: $60,000/$120,000. The city's total additional cost for the benefit increase is $1,210 per year, Walters said.

The affected employees, their former salaries and their new payrates are:

• City Manager:	1984: $41,808	1985: $44,860
• Police Chief:	1984: $36,400	1985: $38,979.20
• DPW Superintendent:	1984: $35,942	1985: $38,521.60
• Finance Director:	1984: $28,080	1985: $30,076.80
• Housing Director:	1984: $25,667	1985: $27,539.20
• DPW Foreman:	1984: $23,358	1985: $24,960

CONFESS

Because we sin War Corruption Hunger Disease. Short tempers Long feuds Broken homes Shattered dreams All betray our sin

Luther said all of us were "saints and sinners at the same time" That our wills were captive to the chains of sin The same thing Paul said, "All have sinned and fallen short of the glory of God"

Lutherans confess. Because what we deny in doctrine our lives betray And because confession is the first step toward discovering the deeper truth of God

We are forgiven Justified by grace as a gift. Freely Faithfully Forever We are forgiven

Readers Digest art collection at Meadow Brook

Local residents who tour Meadow Brook Hall at Christmastime or with garden clubs have a special reason to make a trip to the mansion on the Oakland University campus in Rochester between October 18-22.

Meadow Brook Hall has been chosen as one of only eight exhibition sites in the United States and Europe for the Reader's Digest collection of painting and sculpture and is the only U.S. location where the display will be open to the public.

Following private, invitation-only showings of more than 30 masterworks of art hosted by Reader's Digest, the exhibit at Meadow Brook Hall will be open to the public for five days beginning this Friday.

The 37 oil paintings, pastels, watercolors and sculptures, the largest number of works owned by Reader's Digest ever assembled for a single show, consist chiefly of French Impressionist works from the 19th and 20th centuries. In all, there are more than 3,000 works in the collection, which is considered to be one of the finest corporate collections of Impressionist art in America.

Hours for the public tours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday, Saturday, Monday and Tuesday. Admission during these days is $2 with touring access to first and second floors of the hall, a 100-room historic home which serves as a cultural center for Oakland University.

Sunday admission from 1-5 p.m., is $4 for adults, $3 senior citizens over 64, $2 children under 13 and OU affiliates. No reservations are required.

The "Selections from the Reader's Digest Collection" will be on view by invitation only in New York City, St. Paul and Chicago. It will be open to the public in Stuttgart, London, Milan and Paris.

"We want friends of Reader's Digest to have an opportunity to see these major works of art. Until now many have only been displayed in the offices and halls in Pleasantville," said Reader's Digest chairman George V. Grune.

Among the 25 well-known artists and their works included in the exhibition are: Claude Monet's Water Lilies, 1918; Marc Chagall's The Three Candles, 1939; Amedeo Modigliani's Portrait of Jeanne Hebuterne, 1918; Edgar Degas' Pink Dancer, 1896; Pablo Picasso's Jester, 1905; and Pierre-Auguste Renoir's Young Woman in Blue Going to the Conservatory, 1877.

Also represented in the collection are Raoul Dufy, Paul Gauguin, Vincent Van Gogh, Gaston Lachaise, Henri Matisse, George Seurat and Edouard Vuillard, among others.

Each work in the collection was selected by Lila Acheson Wallace, who, with her husband, DeWitt Wallace, founded Reader's Digest in 1922.

Mrs. Wallace began collecting in the early 1940s. She purchased works, not for their value, but for their beauty and simply because she "fell in love with them."

As she once told a reporter: "If I could not live without them, I bought them. It's like a husband. If you can live without the man, why marry him?"

Art historian John Rewald notes in the introduction to the exhibition catalogue: "Only those can be called collectors who buy with a purpose — a purpose totally divorced from the 'investment angle' — and assemble through their careful choices a cohesive group of works of art that mirrors their individual taste and inclinations. Lila Acheson Wallace was such a collector."

Polish your Polish dancing

You don't have to be Polish to participate in the Polish Centennial Dancers of Plymouth expanded dance classes.

The Centennial Dancers are welcoming area adults interested in learning the basic Polish ballroom dancing, featuring the polka, Oberek and waltz.

This fall they also are offering an advanced Polish ballroom dancing class for those who already know how to do the polka.

In addition, dance lessons in the Polish heritage will be offered students four years old and older; the classes will include Polish American and American novelty numbers for variety.

Special lessons for boys and teens are continuing.

This fall classes are being instituted for preschoolers, ages 2-4.

Marty Pack of the Wisla Adult Song and Dance Ensemble will be teaching the boys' class, joining the teaching staff of Angie Cislo and Gail Wilenius, director Joanne Ygeal announces.

Adults participating in a new Polish ethnic class will learn about Polish customs, foods, cities and culture. Christmas customs of Poland and how to use them in homes here will be featured.

In July, 1986, the Centennial Dancers will be going to Poland on a deluxe tour to cities and mountain villages. Reservations are being taken now.

For further information about the classes and the tour call Ygeal, 464-1263, or Christ Gniewek, 459-5696.

District court solicits bids for public defender work

An increasing number of defendants appearing in 35th District Court lack the financial resources to hire their own attorneys, prompting the court to seek bidders on an expanded public defender contract.

Court administrator George Wiland said he expects a 20 percent increase in the number of public defender hours in the next year, so will bid that work among area law firms.

D'Avanzo & Meconi of Canton Township has provided legal services to indigent defendants at the court since July, 1983. The contract called for 300 hours' service annually.

Wiland is projecting 360 hours will be needed.

"What happened (to prompt the bid solicitation) was (D'Avanzo & Meconi) put in more hours than they agreed to and petitioned for greater fees," Wiland explained.

"They do a good job," Wiland said of the firm. "I would be more than happy to let them continue. But, because the condition of the bid has changed... we feel in all fairness, bids should be open."

Wiland attributed the increase in public defender hours to an increase in court cases generally. "The sheer increase in numbers itself will result in more people asking for representation," he said.

Bidders have until November 8 to get their proposals in to Wiland.

Only two conditions — other than being duly licensed — have been established for attorneys who want the job of public defender for the 35th District Court.

Single practitioners are banned due to inevitable conflicts of availability that result during the practice of law. And all bidders must reside or have an office within the court's jurisdiction, which includes Canton, Plymouth and

'We felt if they are taking money out of the district, they ought to be paying rent or taxes in the district.'

— George Wiland
Court administrator

Northville townships and the cities of Plymouth and Northville.

"We felt if they are taking money out of the district, they ought to be paying rent or taxes in the district," Wiland said.

Last year, D'Avanzo & Meconi won with a bid of $7,140 for 300 hours service — an average hourly rate of $23.80, well below the going rate for private representation.

Wiland said he doesn't expect a dearth of bidders — as many as nine firms have sought the work in prior years.

While the public defender fee revenue is low, more lucrative spin-off business may accrue to the firm.

"What happens is, there is ancillary work to be had," Wiland said. "They might represent someone (as public defenders) in a driving under the influence of liquor case, then down the line, (the defendant) might want you to handle a divorce (at full fees)."

Wiland added that a firm might bid for the work to help pay the salary of a young, unestablished attorney on staff whose caseload is light enough to take on the job of public defender without working additional hours.

"Some of these firms have a young lawyer who may have been with them a year or so and add this to his hours at no additional cost to the firm, pick up additional revenue and maybe pick up some new clients," he said.

The ultimate selection of a public defender is up to Judges James Garber and John MacDonald.

All defendants are entitled to representation in criminal proceedings — at public expense if necessary, the Supreme Court has ruled.

The 35th District Court has jurisdiction over ordinance violations, drunk driving offenses and less serious crimes classified as misdemeanors. Public defenders provide representation during pre-trial hearings, during trials and at sentencing.

Persons who claim to be indigent usually are ruled to be so after a few cursory questions about their employment status and property ownership, Wiland said. "We don't go into any investigation."

Taxpayers who foot the bill shouldn't feel unduly burdened paying legal fees for the indigent, Wiland said.

"In the event of conviction, part of the sentence is restitution for defense fees. We have relatively good success getting court-assigned counsel fees back," he said.

Oakland will refund 1982 taxes to city

Cities and townships in Oakland County will be receiving a "rebate" if a resolution introduced before the Oakland County Board of Commissioners last week wins approval.

And chances that the resolution will be approved are high, according to County Commissioner John Calandro (R-Nowi).

Calandro is a co-sponsor of the resolution. In fact, he's one of 17 co-sponsors.

All 17 Republicans on the commission are co-signers of the resolution, and, inasmuch as Republicans enjoy a 17-9 majority on the county board, approval seems highly likely.

If (or when) the resolution is approved, the City of Novi stands to receive a rebate of approximately $65,000.

The City of Northville would receive a rebate of approximately $10,000. And Novi Township, the smallest township in the county, will have its coffers improved to the tune of $788.

Calandro estimated that the funds would become available in the 1986 calendar year.

Calandro said the intent of the resolution dates back to a tax dispute between Oakland County and the Michigan Tax Commission in 1982.

At that time, the State Tax Commission said that residential properties in Oakland County were not assessed according to their true market value and imposed a factor of 1.0599 on all residential property in the county.

The action created an uproar, due in part to the fact it was imposed at the height of the recession, and the county commission filed a lawsuit challenging the State Tax Commission.

At the same time the lawsuit was filed, the county commission approved a resolution which, in effect, said the county would not allocate any revenue increases generated by the imposition of the 5.99 percent factor on residential property. Instead, the resolution called for the increased revenues received by the county to be set aside in a special reserve fund.

The reserve fund now totals $2.8 million.

The case against the State Tax Commission ultimately went to the State Supreme Court, which ruled the 1982 factor on residential property throughout the county would be permitted to stand.

"The position we're in now is that we lost the lawsuit and have $2.8 million in a reserve fund," noted Calandro. "Now that the suit has been resolved, what do we do with the $2.8 million?"

"It's my position and the position of my Republican colleagues on the commission that the money in the reserve fund should be returned to the cities from which it was collected."

"That's what this resolution will do," he added.

Specifically, the resolution states that the $2.8 million reserve fund will be allocated to local cities and townships in proportion to the 1982 residential taxes paid by their residents.

High school project to be completed by January 27

"I don't know of any major items that are not on the job at this point."

Argenta noted that the "only area in question" is the science wing which still is under construction. He said the science rooms will take additional time due to the installation of lab equipment.

Roofing on the cafeteria and activities center areas of the facility also needs to be completed.

Argenta noted that two separate crews will be coming in to work on the roof areas. However, completion is contingent upon the weather.

"What we need is 10 days of Indian Summer," School Superintendent George Bell noted, adding that roofers cannot spray the polyurethane roof if there is rain or a risk of rain.

Though Mother Nature has played havoc with the project up until this point, board members learned Monday that no leaks were found in the roof after last Saturday's thundershowers.

The architect also mentioned that he met with the state fire marshal for a preliminary inspection of the facility last Wednesday and that there should be no problems at the time of occupancy.

City council member Carolann Ayers questioned the architect about whether there are financial penalties charged to the contractor for delays.

Argenta noted that while there is no penalty clause in the contract, the contractor has his own costs to consider. He also pointed out that the contractor is looking to complete the renovation as soon as possible in order to move on to his next scheduled project.

"There has been a lot of activity in terms of overtime," Argenta noted.

"The mechanical and electrical contractors have been working every Saturday for the past two and a half months," he said, adding that roofers have worked up to 70 hours per week in some weeks.

The superintendent also noted that the current demand in the building market has depleted the numbers of workers available for construction projects.

"The market is so good that they could walk off our job today and have three jobs tomorrow," he noted, adding that one of the steel crews working on the high school site was brought in from Pennsylvania.

The board's discussion of the project's progress was prompted in part by concerns aired by Stewart Kissingner of Reed Court.

An architect with two sons currently attending Northville High School, Kissingner told board members he felt the current split shift scheduling was hurting education at the high school level.

"I don't think the education of young people is being addressed by the district," Kissingner said, noting that he has heard similar concerns aired by parents in the community.

"I think the education is going to suffer," he added, citing specifically the impact of shorter class periods and a modified curriculum to accommodate for a lack of materials or available space.

Though Kissingner's remarks preceded the board's approval of the January 27 move-in date, he told board members they "have to address a construction schedule for the high school."

"I think you have to come up with an honest appraisal of when you're going to be in that building," he noted.

The superintendent said that while he has not heard concerns aired by others in the community, there were some areas of the high school — specifically library services and engineering classes — which have been a problem.

High school principal David Bolitho noted that, while not an ideal situation, library materials currently are being transported to the annex as needed.

"Students have access through teacher requests," he said.

In addressing the issue of shorter class periods, Bolitho noted that the 10 minute reduction in the regular 55-minute class period has not had significant impact on the curriculum.

He said that should the district open part of Northville High School and divide students between the renovated site and the annex, students would only gain five extra minutes per class period due to a 10 minute break between classes.

Barb LeBoeuf, a teacher at the high school, said that while there "has been a certain amount of difference" in the curriculum with the shorter class period, "there is a far less waste of time."

"Everybody's made adjustments to allow for the shorter time," she said. "I think everyone — the kids especially — have done a marvelous job."

Fence garners no applause

"That's correct," Hardesty responded.

Supervisor Susan Heintz said the adverse publicity being given problems at the hospital might make the state more receptive to local requests for improvements.

"Now would be could time to ask for (gates), because that hospital's under a lot of pressure right now," Heintz said.

Hardesty reported that last month a walkaway patient from the hospital crossed Seven Mile and stole a bicycle from a homeowner.

"We apprehended him, but the incident points out that they need to secure the frontage," the police chief said. "Supposedly, with the fence in place they can beef up patrols along Seven Mile, but with those gaps in there I'm not sure they'll be able to do that."

Hardesty regularly meets with hospital security forces and officials and said he would raise the fence issues at the next meeting.

"I think we really ought to push it, like Suzy says," trustee James Nowka commented. "We've been working on defensive measures for the past 15 years. There's no sense in quitting if we're not happy with it."

Department of Mental Health and Northville state hospital officials have consistently failed to return Record phone calls seeking information about the hospital and the fence. No such phone call has been returned in more than a month.

Schoolcraft ponders development of I-275 land

The public will get its chance October 23 to tell Schoolcraft College trustees whether to develop commercially 15 acres of college-owned land at Seven Mile and I-275.

"It's not our choicest piece of land, from an educational point of view," said trustee Rosina Raymond of Livonia.

The hearing will begin at 7 p.m., an hour prior to the start of the regular 8 p.m. board meeting.

"We want the public to come. It's not just for developers," said trustee Harry Greenleaf of Livonia. The community college's seven trustees intend to make a decision by November 13.

The board's first decision will be the simple legal question of discontinuing the parcel's designation as public land. The board is a long way from deciding which developer to deal with in seeking commercial tenants.

The land is at the southwest intersection of Seven Mile and the freeway. It's the northeast corner of the college property which faces Haggerty a half mile away.

To the immediate west is an insurance company office. Across Seven Mile is CBS Fox video production studio, now under construction.

In a 1970 land use plan, the college parcel is shown as a parking lot for a fine arts center — a structure which voters rejected four times in the '70s. Today it is grass and weeds.

Purchased for $4,200 an acre as farmland in the 1960s, the land today is worth $175,000 an acre. But it's not for sale.

In introductory remarks at the hearing, the public, according to the trustees' script, will be told:

"We prefer not to give up the title to the property. We may want to change the use of this property to achieve maximum benefits for the college and the community."

And later: "We plan to use the services of an established, experienced developer who is able and willing to develop this project as a joint venture with one or more financial partners and the college."

Preliminary thinking is that the college as landowner would collect 20 percent of the rent from commercial buildings on the site.

much of the reduction in those grades. Last year, 1,214 students were enrolled in grades 1-6 with 1,019 students enrolled this year in grades 1-5.

At the middle school, 759 students are enrolled in grades 6-8 in comparison to last year's enrollment of 902 students in grades 7-9.

The high school enrollment figures show 3,230 students enrolled in grades 9-12. Last year, 3,297 students were enrolled in grades 10-12.

Despite the grade structure realign-

"The total project would be added to the tax roll and add to the business investment and economic development of the community," the script states.

"The college could later sell the land or buy out the interest of the development, among its options."

ment and the high school's current split scheduling, the district has managed to retain its previous teacher-pupil ratios and class sizes.

At the kindergarten level, the average class size is 21.67 students in comparison to last year's 22.67.

At the elementary level, average class size is 26.13 students — a slight drop over last year's 26.98.

Average class size is highest at the middle school at 29.03 — a slight increase over last year's 28.34.

Proposed budget ready for township hearing

The proposed 1986 fiscal year budget for Northville Township is available for public examination beginning today. The board of trustees will meet October 28 to conduct a public hearing and adopt the budget.

The rare Monday board session Halloween week allows a few days before the legally-mandated October 31 deadline for final budget adoption in charter townships.

Township treasurer Richard Henningsen reported at last week's board meeting that the committee system adopted for drafting of the 1986 budget is "working fairly well" with both the finance and personnel committees meeting on a regular basis.

Bruno Scacchitti, township manager, said the budget documents available today (October 16) would show only the projected 1986 figures, without comparisons to prior years. Detailed budget worksheets showing the changes will be available at the public hearing, he said.

Changes included in the general fund budget plan include a small property tax millage rollback on the revenue side and the addition of two employees, including the establishment of a community development department.

CITY OF NOVI NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Planning Board of the City of Novi will hold a public hearing at 7:30 P.M. EST on Wednesday, November 6, 1985 in the Novi Public Library, 45245 West Ten Mile Rd., Novi, MI to consider the following City initiated rezoning request:

Proposed Zoning Map Amendment No. 18.407 to rezone land located on the N. side of Thirteen Mile Rd., E. of Decker Rd., (Sidwell No. 50-22-2-400-002) from R-A Residential Agricultural to MH Mobile Home District.

ORDINANCE NO. 18.407 ZON

Our Opinions

Reject state offer

Wayne County officials would have to be pretty dim-witted to accept the state's offer of a negotiated settlement resolving ownership of property at Plymouth Center for Human Development. For whatever reasons, the state assessor's evaluation of land and building values at the institution are distorted in such a way that the state could realize a windfall by selling property the county gave it at no cost — at best, the county would realize only a small portion of the actual value.

There can be little value for a potential developer in the structures the state has erected on the land, yet the proposal on the table suggests nearly all the property value is in those buildings. Plymouth Center occupies a key intersection with ready access to the M-14 freeway. Nearby property has been used for commercial and industrial park development, and similar zoning is proposed for the public lands if we can ever get the state and county to free them for development.

Location, the availability of utilities and the acreage available are the primary assets of the property — all assets that accrue to the land, not the buildings sitting on top of it. Yet the state offers the county less than $80,000 for 13 acres at one corner (which it intends to keep for its own uses) and less than $1 million for 165 acres at the other corner (which it intends to sell to private interests for $4 million, to be deposited in the general fund). A developer who got the land for the prices the state proposes would consider the deal an absolute steal.

County assessors, who are now performing their own study of the property, likely as not will come up with figures skewed more toward the county's interests. Presumably, negotiations would continue to try to strike some compromise. There has to be, and is, a better way.

The county should realize it holds all the cards in this little game. The state has already conceded, by making the current offer, that the land really belongs to the county under terms of the 1957 deed by which the state acquired the land at no cost. We are sure that, if the ownership question ever got to court, the county could walk away with everything — land, buildings and the proceeds of the sale. To be sure, the state is entitled to some return from its investment in installing utilities, and if some buyer comes along for the buildings, that portion of the value could fairly be returned to the state. A sense of fairness tells us that, but the law and courts need not be so generous.

No one truly knows what Plymouth Center lands or building are worth until they are put on the market. The county would be wise to negotiate an agreement that requires a division of the property value only after that portion west of Sheldon Road is sold. If it sells for $4 million to someone who intends demolition of the buildings, then the county would get most of the money and the state that share corresponding to the cost of extending utilities to the site. If the state can actually find a buyer for the buildings, it would get a greater share of the proceeds.

We'd even extend the after-sale clause to include the value of the 13 acres the state wants to keep — let the western portion be sold and apply the same per-acre price to the retained land.

We don't expect the state would agree to such an arrangement readily. There is considerable risk (we consider it a virtual certainty) that such an arrangement would all but eliminate any state profit from disposal of the property. But those are the terms under which the state accepted the land 28 years ago — the deed said that if any portion of the property was ever used for purposes other than treatment of mentally diseased or mentally deficient children, title would revert to the county. Having accepted those terms, the state has no business trying to wring a profit out of the deal. If it insists, the county should go to court. One way or another, the market should be allowed to decide what the property is really worth.

Go for another 25

Last Thursday Northville Town Hall launched its silver anniversary year with the appearance of Jayne Meadows at the Sheraton Oaks in Novi. She will be followed by Bob Taylor, Ronna Romney and Steven Ford. The selection of both locally and nationally known celebrities has become part of the town hall board's formula that has spelled success for the lecture series over the past 25 years.

While other lecture series in the Detroit area have floundered for lack of supporters, Northville Town Hall sponsored by Our Lady's League of Our Lady of Victory Catholic Church has continued to attract artists and audiences. From the beginning, it has been a well-organized effort run by dedicated workers.

This is all the more remarkable when one realizes that the entire operation is a volunteer effort. All proceeds are shared — with Our Lady's League receiving half and worthy charities in the communities from which Town Hall draws its audience the beneficiaries of the other monies. This year 20 charitable organizations received Town Hall Board of Awards grants. They supported camping, beautification, cultural (including library gifts) programs, aid to the needy in both Northville and Novi. First Step in Western Wayne County to help prevent family violence was a major beneficiary this year as was New Horizons of Oakland County which received a donation toward construction of a new facility in the Novi area.

We can wish Northville Town Hall only continuing success — and say "thank you" for sharing generously with our communities.

What news do you use?

By Kevin Wilson

Readers frequently ask how we go about choosing which stories get in the paper, particularly when they see a story about Northville in their daily newspapers or on the evening TV news yet don't find it in The Record. This week, I'm face to face with one of those choices and thought I'd let you look over my shoulder and second-guess all you like (not that you need my permission).

"Why isn't there a story in The Record about that doctor at the hospital? It's right under your nose. It's been on the front pages of the Detroit papers, and Bill Bonds is doing a great job exposing the whole sordid mess."

Uh, yeah, right. That's the toughest call of the week. There isn't a story in The Record because we felt we could do very little to better inform people about what's going on and there are more productive uses of our time. That sounds a little lame until you consider there are only three writers on this staff and an awful lot happening at once.

In other words, while the big papers and the TV stations have reporters assigned full-time not only to the Department of Mental Health, but even to just this one story, our reporters are busy attending local government meetings, tracking police activities and chasing other stories. This week, the "other stories" include follow-ups on the prison escape issue, the runaway railcar accident and the installation of a fence at the state hospital. Simply verifying and repeating the news about the hospital doctor that you've read and seen on TV in the past week would likely take as much staff time as these last three stories put together — and we wouldn't be telling you anything really new.

Time constraints are not the whole story, though. Faced with a blockbuster story about allegations that a state hospital doctor has engaged in homosexual relations with patients, one of whom is a murder suspect, why on earth did we put a higher priority on stories about the fence, prison and railroad, not to mention school, sports and other news? The answer can be summed up in two words: Local Impact.

What's more useful information to someone living in Northville: the suspension of a doctor from the state hospital staff, or the possibility of being hit by a railroad car as you cross the tracks at Seven Mile? Is your sense of security in your hometown violated more by poor treatment at the psychiatric hospital or by news about what's going on at the state prison eight inmates recently escaped from, or even by the construction of a fence around that same hospital? In the final analysis, even the new phone number at township hall, the rejection of a rezoning request, paving plans for Gerald Avenue and Beck Road, the salaries of city officials are all more likely to directly affect Record readers' lives.

But it's not even that simple. We'd like to cover the on-going state hospital story in addition to these others. We're even affiliated with newspapers in Brighton, Milford and South Lyon that could use some help in their continuing coverage of the Shawn Moore murder case. And you can argue that the way Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital operates is a major concern in this community — poor treatment inside correlates to increased walkaways, if nothing else. We've delved into some NRPH-related news, such as the Greg Helzerman murder case, on precisely that basis.

Why one story and not another? In the end, we have to assume that Record readers also have other sources of news, and look to us for only the most local stories. If we can add something significant to what others have reported, even if it's only a different and local perspective, then we should. If we can't, then we're wasting the reader's time and using up space on the page that could be devoted to more useful information.

We can only hope our analysis of what readers expect of us is accurate. We respond to what we hear from our readers, either in direct comments to our staffers or in letters to the editor (even better, because they can be shared more widely). The particular story discussed here is such a classic illustration of what we are, and are not, providing Record readers, that I, for one, would love to hear what you think.

Fall frolic

It was a fun project which I enjoyed doing. I got the idea because I'm on a committee that's planning the 25th reunion of my Northville High School graduating class, and one of the other members of the committee is none other than Sharon Hench Pretty, who was our homecoming queen.

Sharon's son by her first marriage, Mark Messner, is a starting defensive tackle on the University of Michigan football team. Interesting stuff, right? I thought so and decided it would be fun to see what else I could find out about former homecoming queens from both Northville and Novi high schools.

I thought the hardest part was going to be finding the names of the former queens. As it turned out it was the easiest. All I had to do was look at the front pages of this newspaper for the month of October back to 1950 — and there they were. Nice big pictures of each and every homecoming queen.

It left me with a good feeling on two levels. First, I think it's nice to live in a community where people put stock in such things as homecoming parades and homecoming games... a community where you run into your neighbors while you're watching the homecoming parade.

And, secondly, looking back through past editions of our newspapers made me feel proud about being part of an organization which helps perpetuate that "small-town" feeling by doing corny things — like putting pictures of homecoming queens on the front page.

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

All that might sound pretty elementary, but it's surprising how many people get confused about the different terminology for items which appear in the paper.

That rather lengthy introduction is to inform you that this column is really the world's longest by-line. "By-lines" are those little things which appear at the start of a story which tell you who wrote it.

At any rate, I did the story about past homecoming queens which appears on the front page of this week's Our Town Section.

Drowning in antiques

By Michele Fecht

When my mother decided to go into the antiques business a few years ago, I thought it sounded like a terrific idea. After all, most of my mother-daughter livelihood was spent scrounging antique shops and flea markets, milling through antique shows and heading off at the crack of dawn to auctions in places unknown.

We even planned vacations around antiquing (much to the younger siblings' chagrin). An avid collector for many years, I had considerable enthusiasm for my mother's new line of work. I envisioned weekend buying trips unearthing newfound treasures and leisurely afternoons spent researching new acquisitions.

However, that was before I disintegrated a contact lens with metal polisher while cleaning a brass bed, pulled endless muscles while helping load and unload the van, rubbed my hands raw while sanding a set of oak pressed back chairs and missed attending Michigan State's homecoming because I promised to booth sit (outside) on a cold, damp autumn Sunday.

I first noticed my enthusiasm waning when mom started accumulating inventory. Remember now that this is a woman who still has her dance costume from the third grade, a box full of Sonja Henie skating programs and at least a decade's worth of Look, Life, National Geographic and Holiday magazines stored in the basement.

Pack rats should not become antiques dealers. As the inventory grew, sitting room in our five-bedroom home quickly diminished. We only saw the kitchen table and counter tops at Thanksgiving and the first weekend in December when we baked Christmas cookies. Other furniture such as chairs, sofas and tables disappeared beneath stacks of boxes filled to the brim with "inventory." No one parked in the two-car garage and a path had to be cleared in the basement for the meter reader.

During the holidays, we would ravage through the inventory to decorate the house. Brass candlesticks were placed on the fireplace mantel, an antique child's rocker put near the hearth and baskets stuffed with ivy. With not a single storage space remaining, the only way to disguise mom's business was to put the items to use.

I've heard that divorce is common in the antiques business. From personal experience, I don't think that separation is only among husbands and wives. My mother was quite distraught last year when I announced my October wedding plans. It wasn't my getting married that brought on her distress but the fact that I chose the busiest month of the year on the antique circuit. Not only did I have to work around the college football schedule and the World Series, but I had to make sure mom wasn't doing a show.

However, the true test of our family's fortitude came earlier this year when mom moved from the five-bedroom home to a house half its size. With most of the old furniture sold in a garage sale, moving should have been a breeze. Wrong. Even though the moving van was splitting at the seams with inventory, we still had three loads of junk to haul from one house to the other.

As one would expect, the new house has a decor similar to the old one. Boxes line the walls of the family room, hallway and foyer and one of the three bedrooms houses nothing but inventory. The barn behind the house is stuffed to its rafters with antique pieces in miscellaneous stages of disrepair and the cat is the only one brave enough to venture into the basement (and that's only when she has to use her litter box).

As if that isn't bad enough, mom has developed some sort of complex about her business. She actually believes Steve broke his ankle last week to avoid helping her load the van.

Survey reveals support for school-starting bill

Nearly two-thirds of Michigan's registered voters favor starting school after Labor Day, according to results of a recent statewide survey by the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce.

An overwhelming 64 percent of those surveyed indicated they favored a proposal establishing the same uniform opening date in September after Labor Day for all Michigan public schools. Only 27 percent said they opposed the proposal.

The Novi school district starts classes prior to Labor Day, while classes in the Northville schools start after Labor Day.

When asked if their travel and recreational activities in late August and early September would be affected if all Michigan public schools were to open after Labor Day, 15 percent said they would increase, 3 percent said they would decrease (a net increase of 12 percent) and 79 percent said their travel plans would remain about the same.

The Michigan Travel Bureau estimates that a 12 to 15 percent increase in travel by Michigan residents would mean an additional 250,000 to 300,000 trips, which would increase direct travel expenditures by about $25 million.

"The survey results indicate that there is strong support across the state for a post-Labor Day opening of schools," said State Chamber President James Barrett.

Barrett said the favorable response "is encouraging, particularly because it cuts across all segments of our society and all areas of the state. Legislative action to require schools to open after Labor Day would give a substantial boost to the tourism and travel industry of Michigan from late August to early September."

The State Chamber, local chambers of commerce, Michigan Restaurant Association, Michigan Lodging Association and the Michigan Association of Private Campground Owners are involved in a joint effort to obtain approval of House Bill 4461 to establish a uniform post-Labor Day opening for Michigan's public schools.

Sponsors of HB 4461 are Representatives Tom Alley (D-West Branch), Pat Gagliardi (D-Drummond Island) and John Pridola (R-Harrisville).

"This legislation is intended to foster a more vigorous recreation and tourism industry in Michigan. The travel industry is becoming increasingly important to the state's economy," said Barrett.

"There is a great deal of variation among Michigan school districts as to their opening dates. Many schools open before Labor Day, causing family vacation, camping and fishing trips to be cut short or even cancelled," he added.

"The State Chamber supports HB 4461 because we believe that starting school after Labor Day would enhance economic activity in the travel-related sector, which already is one of the fastest growing and most recession-proof segments of the Michigan economy," Barrett said.

He pointed out that Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas, Texas, South Dakota and Minnesota have adopted post-Labor Day school opening laws. A number of other states have school opening bills before their own legislatures.

Missouri's travel and tourism industry realized a 25 percent increase in business for the period of August 19 through Labor Day in 1984, compared to the previous year. This resulted in about $40 million in increased gross revenues and $1.6 million more in state tax revenues, and was traced directly to that state's new uniform post-Labor Day school opening law, according to Barrett.

He also noted that the Arkansas Hospitality Industry Association reported a $29 million increase in recreation-tourism business in late August and early September as a result of a comparable 1983 law.

Good Shepherd moves into new facility

Sunday was a special day for Pastor Gene E. Jahnke and the members of his Good Shepherd Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Sunday was the day that Jahnke and the congregation of the young church held dedication services for their new building at the corner of Nine Mile and Meadowbrook Road.

"It was an unforgettable day," remarked Jahnke in the aftermath of dedication services. Large crowds attended both morning and afternoon services, he reported.

"After five years of holding worship services in rented facilities, it was a thrill to finally have our own building. We dedicated the building totally to God's service, and we plan to be busy using it for just that."

Jahnke presided over the 10 a.m. service which marked the first time the new building had been used for worship. Special guest at the 4 p.m. Festival District Service was Pastor Rodney Schwab of Our Savior Lutheran Church in Westland. Schwab had served as interim pastor at Good Shepherd prior to the arrival of Jahnke.

The Reverend Jahnke previously had served associate ministries at Hope Lutheran Church in Detroit and in St. John Lutheran in Wauwatosa, Wisconsin.

The new building is a far cry from the church's humble beginnings. Good Shepherd was founded in September, 1980, and held its first service at Novi Middle School North. In August, 1982, the location of worship services was moved to the Novi Community Building, where they have been held ever since.

Good Shepherd is a mission congregation of the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod, a worldwide denomination known for its adherence to Biblical teachings.

The congregation began construction of its new building last April. Jahnke said the 2,300 square foot facility initially will serve as a worship, educational and fellowship building. Future plans call for the addition of a separate educational wing and expansion of the sanctuary.

"Many hundreds of hours of volunteer labor went into the landscaping, painting, staining and construction of chancel furniture," Jahnke reported.

"I'm so proud of our people for all the work they put into this project," he continued. "The appearance of the building is important to all of us because it is God's house, and we want others to be attracted to God's house."

Jahnke added that everyone in the community is invited to come by and see the new church. Sunday worship services are held at 10 a.m. and are followed by Sunday school at 11:15 a.m.

"Everyone who stops by will receive a very warm welcome," he promised.

The Allen Organ in the new building was purchased from St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Northville when it installed its new pipe organ. St. Paul's is affiliated with the Missouri Lutheran Synod.

College hosting speaker to boost career planning

They get pretty aggressive at Schoolcraft College when it comes to touting the Career Planning and Placement Service for students and townsfolk.

Dr. Jim Tunney, a National Football League referee and motivational speaker, will be on campus at 8 p.m. Thursday, October 17, in the Waterman Center on campus at 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

"It helps attract business attention to the college," said Dr. Jeane E. Pike, who directs CPPS. "And he'll teach students how to sell themselves to prospective employers."

Tunney's speech is entitled "Here's to the Winners." Tickets are $10 each.

He will cover success through visual imagery, a positive winning attitude, overcoming failure, goal setting, teamwork and the value of giving. An educator for 27 years, Tunney is president-elect of the National Speakers Association.

"Tunney fits these lectures in between games," Pike said.

Last semester, the CPPS presented Morris Massey, popular management lecturer, to a sellout crowd. He was the first in what is expected to be an annual series. Pike's current budget allows one such speaker a year.

Pike's office will help any student find at least a part-time job to help pay college expenses to the commuter campus. "We also do career counseling for students, alumni and the community. We can help you look up information on careers and do career testing," Pike said. "You can come in off the street, or make an appointment."

Pike, who has a Ph.D. in counseling and guidance from University of Michigan taught three years at Kellogg College in Battle Creek and joined the new-born Schoolcraft College in 1964, organizing and teaching secretarial science courses and coordinating student advising.

She also has worked in the offices of student activities, admissions and counseling. She has headed CPPS since 1982.

The CPPC has been expanded in recent years, reflecting president Richard McDowell's emphasis on service to industry and the public's concern with jobs in southeastern Michigan's changing economy.

Pike and the CPPC also hustle prospective employers, talking up the college's nearly 50 career programs in allied health, business, liberal arts, public service and technical fields.

Often throughout the year, CPPC announces seminars and workshops for people seeking jobs or career changes. Among the topics are resume writing, interviewing techniques, job searches and career planning. They're free.

Educators voice concern

15 minutes at Amerman Elementary. He explains St. Paul's students are being serviced in two sessions as some of those requiring therapy are kindergartners who only attend school Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Sister Theresa Tanburo of Our Lady of Providence notes that the bulk of their Chapter I services are provided by the Woodhaven school district.

While the local school district does provide physical therapy, Tanburo says that for the most part public schoolteachers are coming to the school to evaluate and train OLP staff.

While the Supreme Court ruled that instruction cannot be provided at a religious-affiliated school site, public schoolteachers may continue evaluations and consultations with parents and staff on nonpublic school premises.

The high court's recent ruling on the Title I decisions stems from two cases, Aquilar v. Felton and Grand Rapids v. Ball.

In Aquilar v. Felton, the dispute centered on New York City's federally funded Chapter I program for disadvantaged students which provided remedial reading, math and counseling to educationally disadvantaged students of parochial schools by sending public school teachers into the secular schools. In a 5-4 decision, the court ruled that such practice was in violation of the excessive entanglement clause of the constitution.

In Grand Rapids v. Ball, the issue centered on two programs — Shared Time and Community Education — which provide classes to nonpublic school students at the public expense in classrooms located in and leased from nonpublic schools.

The high court ruled that the Grand Rapids School District could not use state funds to operate a shared time program which used public school teachers to teach music, art and physical education to parochial students in facilities leased from religious-affiliated schools. In a 5-4 decision, the Supreme Court held that both programs had the effect of advancing religion.

Thompson says she feels it is unfortunate that the State of Michigan was so quick to implement the mandate this school year.

Noting that the New York State Court of Appeals has granted a one year stay on implementation of the Felton decision (the Felton case originated in New York), Thompson notes Michigan may have benefited from similar action. Instead, she notes, that the state took the "hard line" approach because it originated the Grand Rapids shared time case.

Thompson notes that the Felton decision also referred only to the federally-funded Chapter I programs and made no reference to the Auxiliary Services Act of Michigan.

Emphasizing that she does not want the issue to be "interpreted as a fight between public and private schools," Thompson says she recognizes the hardship placed on the public school district in having to transport students.

For Northville Public School officials, transporting students is the crux of the problem — at least for this semester. With the entire bus fleet on the road from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. and with mid-day stops for high school and kindergarten students, working out bus arrangements to the parochial sites has not been an easy task.

Jacob Strecker (above), a CPA from South Lyon, is teaching a course at Schoolcraft College which teaches horse owners how to employ sound business principles in operating their businesses.

CPA offers business class to horse owners

Jacob Strecker, a certified public accountant (CPA) from South Lyon, has joined forces with Schoolcraft College to make sure area horse owners will no longer be getting the business.

The college approached Strecker prior to the current fall semester to ask if he would coordinate and instruct a class dealing with the managerial aspects of horse ownership. Strecker agreed shortly after, and the result was an eight-week course called "Business Management for Horse Owners."

The eight-week course began September 18 and will conclude November 13. It is held every Wednesday evening from 8-10 p.m. at the Forum Building on Schoolcraft's main campus.

"It's going great," Strecker said. "We had planned to have 30 students in the class, but the response was so good that I gave out 10 more overrides."

"The course definitely will be offered again in the winter. Right now, it's kind of a preparatory class. The college is considering a certificate program in Equine Arts and Sciences, and maybe even a degree program somewhere down the line."

"Horses are big in this area, and people are starting to realize that. There's a lot of interest in a class like this because it can help the average horse owner. It could be a future trend."

— Jacob Strecker, CPA
Strecker & Carey, P.C.

Strecker of Strecker & Carey, P.C. in downtown South Lyon earned his undergraduate and masters degree at Central Michigan University. He has had five years of experience with the international accounting firm of Arthur Andersen & Co. and six years experience teaching accounting and income tax courses at Eastern Michigan University and Cleary College.

With South Lyon being considered by some as the horse capital of Michigan, and Michigan having the third largest concentration of horses in the United States, the idea to originate the program should prove productive.

Strecker designed the course, which features discussions on such topics as government registrations, income and expense accumulation, Internal Revenue Service considerations and horse syndications.

The course is geared for experts and beginners, along with people who may already have a business or are considering starting one.

Strecker said that the IRS watches horse owners very carefully. During his course, he gives his students tips on how to insulate themselves from challenges from the IRS.

According to Strecker, the IRS wants to declare the horse business a hobby. As a hobby, you may not have any income the first year, but rather $10,000-15,000 in expenses which you can't deduct — unless it is established as a business.

In order to establish horse farming as a business, you have to prove the intent to make profit, said Strecker. To do this, there are at least a half-dozen determining factors.

Most taxpayers who own businesses name and register their business. They have a separate bank account and accounting records, they have insurance and state registrations and they have some type of business plan to earn profits.

To side step problems with the IRS, Strecker stressed the importance of establishing a business status. "The horse business is a legitimate business and you can't let them (IRS) pick on you," he said.

Strecker does not own a horse, but since most of his clients are horse owners, he has absorbed a great deal of knowledge. He said the only problem with the management course is that he is forced to jam 11 or 12 weeks of material into eight weeks.

"We hope to expand," he said. "I'm on the curriculum board for the Equine Arts and Sciences program, and there's been a lot of discussion regarding that matter. The material easily could be broken up into two or three courses."

"Horses are big in this area, and people are starting to realize that. There's a lot of interest in a class like this because it can help the average horse owner. It could be a future trend."

Registration for Strecker's winter course will begin soon at Schoolcraft College. Applications are available at the Continuing Education Office at Schoolcraft or at Strecker's office, located at 127 North Lafayette.

More information can be attained by calling Strecker at 437-5730 or Schoolcraft College at 591-6400, extension 410.

Realtors on schedule for banner sales year

With a September gain of 36 percent above a year ago, local home resales remained on target through the first three calendar quarters to set a new annual record, according to the Metro MLS.

Sales by members of the multiple listing organization through September reached 13,963, just four short of matching the total for all last year.

"We also are just about a thousand sales behind the pace in the record sales year of 1978," said Robert F. Craver, Metro MLS president. "If we can continue the near 26 percent increase we are recording over 1984, our year-end sales total should be about 200 units above the 18,430 units our members sold in 1978."

Craver said this year's sales increase has been well spread throughout the 1,600 square mile territory covered by Metro MLS members. Above average gains were reported for Birmingham where 287 sales are 64 percent above a year ago; Dearborn Heights, 622 and 50 percent; Canton Township, 741 and 47 percent; West Bloomfield Township/Orchard Lake, 127 and 44 percent; Southfield, 307 and 32 percent; Livonia, 1,450 and 30 percent, and Farmington/-

Farmington Hills, 988 and 30 percent. "We also are noting substantial increases in many of the outlying rural townships," Craver said. "Included are White Lake with a 60 percent gain, Lyon, up 45 percent, Commerce/Wixom up 35 percent and Highland up nearly 30 percent."

He noted that sales gains are being accompanied by a continuing recovery in average prices from the stagnant growth rate of a year ago.

"Our year-to-date average is $62,360, which is 7.5 percent higher than it was at this time last year," he said. "The September comparison shows a 10.3 percent jump to $62,730."

"All of our member offices appear to be sharing in the improved market with a sales-to-listing ratio staying near the 50 percent mark. Sales gains, however, appear to be eating into the available housing stock with listings down about 14 percent from a year ago."

"Buyers this year are not finding it quite as easy as those last year in finding a home in the location and price range they want. Chances are if they wait to make a buying decision, the preferred home may already be sold," said Craver.

Northville man's book tells how to make toys

Jim Hasenau, who worked in wood model and pattern shops all over the United States as a young man, later put his knowledge to use in building toys for his four young children.

The wooden toys he built as a hobby appealed to friends and relatives enough to involve him in making them as Christmas presents for his family. Forty-five years later, he says, many of these toys have been kept by these families and are in use today.

Now partially retired, Hasenau, who has written 11 how-to books, has written a new book, Toys Wooden, that he terms a "teach yourself to make wooden toys book." It's out just in time to make some wooden toys for Christmas giving — or the book itself may be a present for a do-it-yourselfer.

The patterns, he says, are for toys a parent and child can finish in one evening. Some are so easy to construct that even a small child can help.

Children, Hasenau explains, can make his bug box or plant sticks. He also includes patterns for a bird or cricket cage.

To emphasize the appeal of wooden toys, Hasenau mentions, "there is an old European saying, 'toys are for parents of unborn children.'"

The book contains full-size patterns for the toys. Hasenau adds that the instructions keep measuring to a minimum. Patterns are of classic toys such as small airplanes, sleighs, trains and animals that will last for years, he says, noting that the toys can be made with simple tools.

"They are designed to be made with a minimum of skills and will easily match those sold in cottage industries all over the world. Hasenau mentions that such toys "are amazingly expensive" if purchased at craft shows.

Toys Wooden includes illustrations for making wheels. It also details methods for multiple production of simple woodworking projects. These systems greatly improve the output of the amateur or professional artisan. Hasenau notes, as many are interested in participating in craft fairs.

The 104-page book by J. James Hasenau is available by mail from Holland House, P.O. Box 42, Northville, MI 48167. It is $8.95 plus tax and $1.50 postage.

Tips for obtaining financing

Money Management

Obtaining financing for an existing or a new small business can be difficult. After all, most small business owners are experts in the product or service they sell, but they're not experts in finance.

What's an entrepreneur to do? According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, before setting foot in a bank or meeting with a prospective investor, owners of small businesses should be prepared to demonstrate how they will repay a loan or give a return on an investment.

"Financiers are basically merchants whose stock in trade is money," says Daniel A. Giannini of the Small Business Committee of the American Institute of CPAs. "They want to put their money behind people they trust." The first step in gaining the confidence of a prospective lender or investor is to present a detailed business plan. "For people just starting a new business, it can be real tough to find seed money. And even if you have a successful business and track record, you need to prove it," says Giannini. "Making a good presentation is half the battle in getting debt financing."

You'll need three financial forecasting tools: projections of operations, cash flows and a balance sheet. It's probably best to consult with a CPA for help in drawing up these three forecasts because doing them accurately and in a proper format can make a difference to a lender.

An operating forecast shows what you expect to be left over — if anything — after outlays for materials, payroll and overhead for rent, utilities, shipping and other administrative costs. A cash flow projection displays where you expect your money to be coming from and going to. It shows how much cash will be coming in from sales, accounts receivable, loans and capital contributions by the owners.

It will also show how much and when you will lay out cash for business costs, equipment purchases and loan repayments. The last forecasting tool you'll need in your quest for debt-financing is a balance sheet. It should show assets and liabilities in your business. For all three of these forecasting tools you'll need 12 monthly projections for the coming year and annual projections for the next four years.

"Most lenders don't have the time to pore over the forecasts you'll need to draw up," says CPA Giannini. "But when they do review your forecasts, they usually do so selectively. So you'll have prepared a lot of information that may not be asked for."

When the lender looks at your projections, credibility is important. If your profit forecasts are too optimistic, you may lose credibility. So it's usually best to be conservative. In fact, you may want to draw up an additional set of forecasts, based on worst-case scenario, to assure a lender that you have adequately planned for downside risks.

If your cash flow forecast indicates a continuous need for financing, you may want to consider applying for a "revolving line of credit." A revolver, which is also called accounts receivable or inventory financing, uses receivables or inventories as collateral. Revolvers are especially appropriate for new businesses, because your credit line grows with your business. A commercial bank or commercial finance company is the most likely source for loans tied to inventory or receivables.

The biggest advantage in dealing with a commercial finance company is that it is usually willing to grant loans to businesses that might not qualify for bank financing. But the effective interest rates on these loans are generally higher.

Revolving lines of credit and accounts receivable financing lessen the likelihood that a business owner will make the common mistake of financing long-term needs with short-term loans.

"Too often entrepreneurs try to start their businesses with short-term or other loans requiring a fixed payback," says Giannini. "They fail to recognize that, as they grow, increased volume creates greater financing demands."

As an alternative to borrowing in order to finance the purchase of fixed assets, such as machinery and vehicles, you may want to consider a long-term lease arrangement. Here too, interest rates may be higher than with bank financing. But with a lease arrangement no debt will be shown on a balance sheet.

The CPAs recommend small business owners approach debt-financing systematically, putting together the financial forecasting data, charting the costs and examining how to pay back what is borrowed. A smart planning technique for existing businesses is to do all of this when debt financing is not needed. Commonly, companies only resort to borrowing money in the throes of a crisis. That's precisely the time when lenders are least likely to be supportive. The CPAs recommend applying for a credit line when you can make a strong case for your business.

Ancestors

There is grey granite in my soul,
a legacy from hard-lipped Yankees who braved the rage of kings and cold Atlantic seas to scrape a living from alkaline, unyielding soil.

They worked with a proud passion from chilling dawns to mist-hung eves.
They took the water and left the wine,
ate lean boiled beef,
plain potatoes and brown bread;
slept straight as pharaohs and rose to toil again until Earth ceded what they willed.

They knelt not, even to the Almighty, offering Him instead stiff spines on spartan pews, and relentless penance for the flaming sins that fired their hearts and burned their loins.
Do not expect, then, forgiveness for my wounds.
They bore their anguish silently scorning those who bloodied them and their own pain.
Remember, when you think of me,
there is grey granite, in my soul.

Martha Forstrom

I'm Alive

It's raining rose petals,
The fresh fragrance of roses surrounding me, Mountains of laughter
echoing!
All around the universe.
The water's running down a rippled stream,
I see your reflection
A hand reached from the sky and touched me with this 'Fantastic' feeling, Of love and 'energy'
like I've never felt before,
'I'm Alive'
Alive Again!"
The 'Spirit' in me has been revived
Again!"

Lynn Kozlowski

Everybody Says

Everybody says —
Stop the war!
Fight no more!
Let's have an end!
"Have Peace again."

"Everybody says"
Help Ecology!
We'll help — you'll see,
make Pollution end!
Let's breathe again!

Everybody makes like they care.
Everybody has a song
to sing.
But does anybody
do anything?

I Wish

I wish I were a tree,
Then I could see the sun,
And the sky that seems so dark,
When the day is finally done.

And watch the rain clouds gather,
Just to see the raindrops falling
On the freshly planted corn.

And when the summer leaves me,
I'll just stand straight and stare;
And watch the cold, cold ice and snow,
And never without a care.

But then I couldn't move an inch,
Only when the wind would whirl.
And Then I stop and think ...
I'm glad I am a girl.

B. Bayha

Men

They aren't very dumb,
And they aren't too smart.
But still each girl
Gives one her heart.

They hurt you, cheat you, they even lie.
It almost makes a girl wanna' cry.
And though they're cruel, there ain't no doubt,
Just go through life trying to live without.

B. Bayha

Soliloquy

As I walk beneath the white clouds,
And sunny skies above;
I think of the coming summer,
The season that I love.

With its birds a chirpin'
In the green tall trees,
The frogs a croakin',
And the cool fresh breeze.

The crickets singin' late at night
And the sun in the day that shines so bright.
The cool soft rain as it hits the ground;
The tall rich grass all around.

The lakes and streams, all cool and nice.
No more snow and no more ice.
The flowers fresh as they can be,
And fields as far as you can see.

These are all of summer's joys,
For men and women, girls and boys.
I love them all, these many reasons;
This is why summer is my favorite of seasons.

B. Bayha

These Things, I love

Unpretentious people, a warm friendly face
Swooping seagulls, pigeons, and a dove
Birds chirping early in the morning
These are some things that I love!

Long, starlit walks with cozy chatter
Rocky shores with white sifting sands
People who listen with their hearts going barefoot, and holding hands!

The innocence of a sweet child's face dreamers and philosophers talking together clean puppies, and sitting on the grass deep blue skies, and sunny spring weather!

A peaceful lake, with pine trees and birch
The morning call of an owl and a loon Bonfires and roasting marshmallows on the beach under the stars and the moon!

Walking in the woods on soft fallen snow bundled up with a wool coat and a scarf coming in to a blazing, hot fireplace to hot chocolate, love, and a open hearth!

I love people that aren't afraid to shed a tear or let their true feelings come out and show Shouting from rooftops, if it makes it better letting the one that they love really know!

Boats that drift and troll in the water
Orchestra music and dancing close with another
Childhood memories that are happy and dear
The fun of having a big, older brother!

Golf courses early in the morning or close to the evening, just before sunset Thunder storms that pass very rapidly leaving the earth moist, cool, wet!

Breathe in life, don't ever stop!
decide what things you love the most Express your desires with your closest someone Share your coffee, orange juice, and toast!

Let the evening come, while you're waiting on an old-fashioned swing, look high above to the sky that is pink on the horizon
You'll know just what things that you love!

JoAnna Dorf

Teddy Bear Love

Teddy bear love is a special love
Unconditional in every way
There for you at all times
At any given time or day.

Teddy bears are centuries old
Created in Germany with special hands
For children to hold and cuddle then made popular in other lands.

Do you remember your first Teddy Bear? and the way you felt when he was near You knew he was your best friend stronger than your greatest fear.

At night, when it thundered and stormed and I peered out the bedroom blind
I would have gotten up and ran but, he was warm and safe and kind.

The day of my first big dance
He sat, looking me in the eye
A little worn, with a tear in his arm
We had secrets, him and I!

When no one else could understand
He was the closest kind of friend lattered or older, I loved him so around life's road we'd bend.

I see him reflecting in my mirror
All the happy days gone by and I see him as part of my future
A love that will never die.

Have you experienced Teddy Bear Love?
Inanimate but alive and real comfortable as your oldest shoes
The coldest heart he'll steal.

Give Me Time

I want to love you,
I want to need you,
I know I want you to love me, too.
Just give me time Understand this heart of mine has been hurt before
And soon
I'll throw caution to the wind and learn to love again with you.

Winter Woods

Within the winter woods
time has separated the chaos from the serenity now found so sublime.
Life balances upon dawns of everlasting hope and horizons of bountiful thoughts ... and as I write the passages of seasons stored away so long,
the meaning of life's renewal has at last been found.

Winter

The day goes down slowly
as December snowflakes fall gently to the cold earth.
The late afternoon is fringed in lace as the naked woods become covered with the white shawl of winter's loveliness.
The sun fades, releasing to the stillness
another evening of subtle beauty belonging only to the lady that is winter.

For You

Snowflakes gather their little mounds outside the window today.
I touch this gentle season with dreams, thanking you for all the yesterdays ... giving you my today within this small verse ... and ever behold you in all visions of tomorrow ...
throughout this wintry season and all seasons that follow.

Winter

The gusts of winter take the breath away ...
leave you gasping—
yet, for more?
It is as if there is a rage within to burst through the elements and chill to soar through the air almost crazed and frozen to free the soul beneath the blanket of snow
that is winter.

Hired Man

He lived alone
In a lean-to shack
With a cord of wood
Cut and stacked out back;
Cooked his meals
On a wood-burning stove,
Trued bicycle wheels
In his bike-stacked shop.

He heard "what he would"
As my mother said,
At better than sixty could Still pitch a wagon of hay,
Drive a team, do a days
Work in the sun without shirking,
Took only small pay,
Yet never seemed lacking.

I see him still,
Bent backed, toiling
His white shock of hair
Stuck under his cap,
Leveling a haycock
With sure strokes of his fork,
Scratching his stubble chin —
His humble, hermit's grin.

Ah, Summer

Summer's over, just about;
(It just began last Sunday)
Let's hope what follows
Won't last long
And summer starts on Monday!

The Truth of Love

Love.
It stems from deep within the soul of mankind.
It is his heart ... his being.
Many search for wisdom or other worldly roads, yet the person who knows love is the one of greatest wealth ... he knows of joy, utter simplicity, and even the songs of the small sparrow.
He knows life is all its power ... experiences all to the fullest.

He, too, knows the pain when people close off entrances to their lives ... or hurt him, and yet it is gentle pain.
For he knows that those who are cruel feel greater pain.

He finds the simple wisdom of life ... reaches for the good ... sharing love.
He continues life, giving thanks to each day and his total freedom of self, seeking the great mountains that are truth ... the warm suns and horizons that belong only to those who love.

Springs Blossom

The breezes are subtle as the little birds chirp noisily within the branches.
The airs are fresh and clean caressing the skies and lands below.
Sunshine peeks cautiously over the bend,
smiling her smile of warmth.
A breath of spring
awakens lightly
the early morning and it is a moment suspended ...
a loveliness known to the soul ...
the beauty of a gentle season
blossoming.

Birth

Seeds planted ... blooming forth the colors of life, tangled webs of darkness unfold to bring upon the earth
the bud of spring's season.
From under the winter shield and pale grey despair is the miracle of the earth's power to recycle
the past ... away ...
far away
into the ground to dry ...
drying.
The green stems of hope come forth longing for the nourishment of peaceful suspension
as it is time to find a place to grow beneath the sun.

In A Pine Grove

Brown carpet of needles,
Winter or summer,
The sun slides in Spilling light spots that shimmer.

O the pine scent,
The tent of spiked limbs,
Sealed seed cone,
The raging wind held to a moan.

David Bourns

Elegy

Wooden wheels wrapped in iron, iron spokes,
Teeth rusting in gray silt of idle years,
All riderless that metal seat astride
Worn cultivator in this run-down shed.
Hung harrow prickles on the rough-hewn wall;
Smooth as sweat, plow handles rear in shadows,
Focus in a blunted share no earth shall heed.
Wagon tongue's laid end to end on seeder bin;
Oak whippetrees, ring tipped, would still draw true
These implements forever out of gear.

Old tools, horse drawn, in long-gone springs,
Abandoned now to ultimate decay —
The last field tilled, the harvest home is done;
Come round to silence all that earnest toil.
Now men and horses grace the ground they broke —
These last remains their austere elegy.

David Bourns

Hayfield Before Dusk

Haycock shadows stretch
Across the stubble field,
The wind is gone,
Thistle down creeps, catches
In played stalks, slips free;
Sun and moon share pale sky.

Whippoorwill, whippoorwill,
From the distant wood
He sings his fill,
Then all is still.

David Bourns

Migrating Ducks

High V prows
The Autumn sky,
Forty wings row
Cloud and air,
Slant weave
A rippled shadow —
O what honk and gabble
Mingle o'er the lake!
Their passage leaves
A winter wake.

PASSING THE CROWN

TEXT BY PHILIP JEROME

DELORES BELL JENNINGS
Northville — 1950

Delores Bell Jennings has the distinction of being Northville's first-ever homecoming queen.

"It started as a fund-raising project for the N Club. They had canisters all over town with pictures of the queen candidates on them," she recalls.

"The candidate who got the most money got to be homecoming queen. It wasn't at all like it is today."

She recalls that the 1950 Homecoming game was played on a chilly night. She confesses, however, that she does not remember who Northville played or who won the game.

The queen and other members of the court were presented on the field during halftime ceremonies in a brand new Ford convertible. "We wore suits," she adds. "It wasn't until later that the queens started wearing formals."

Delores later married Ron Jennings, a 1950 Northville graduate. He currently is plant manager of Quaker Maid Ice Cream in Detroit. They still reside in Northville and have had four children — three sons and a daughter who passed away two years ago. All three of their sons followed in their father's footsteps and played football at Northville High.

JOAN PERRY IVERSEN
Northville — 1955

"Who do you want? Joan Perry?" asked Joan Perry Iversen when called Thursday afternoon.

"Yes, Joan Perry, Northville's 1955 homecoming queen," came the reply. And then she started laughing. "That was a long time ago," she said. "Do you remember that?"

"They announced the queen over the P.A. system at the end of school on Friday," she recalls. "I remember sitting in class waiting to go out to the parade when they announced my name. It was a big surprise. A lot of fun."

"We rode in convertibles in the parade and were presented during halftime of the homecoming game. It was a chilly night, but it was clear. It was really a very nice night."

Northville's 1955 homecoming queen married Per Iversen, a 1952 Northville graduate. "We met while I was a junior in high school and I dated him during my senior year," she recalls. "He was there on homecoming night."

Except for a brief stint in Livonia, the Iversens have lived in Northville ever since, raising three children — David, Kristy and Douglas. They're both retired now and recently sold their home on Orchard Drive to move into the Lexington Condominiums.

October. Falling leaves. Crisp, cold nights. Apple cider.

Football games. Wolverines and Spartans. Northville Mustangs and Novi Wildcats. Tailgate picnics. And, of course, homecoming. Floats and parades. Homecoming games and dances. Grads returning to their alma maters, renewing old acquaintances, visiting favorite teachers or professors.

And what's more symbolic of homecoming than the homecoming queen?

Wouldn't it be fun, we thought recently, to look up the names of all the homecoming queens at Northville and Novi high schools. And wouldn't it be fun to call some of them up. Ask them what they remember about that grand, glorious night when they reigned over homecoming festivities. And find out what they're doing now.

And so we did.

We discovered that Northville had its first homecoming queen in 1950. Selecting a queen was started by the varsity club as a fund-raising project. "Votes" cost a penny apiece. Novi's first queen didn't come along until 1968, the first year that Novi had its own high school.

We ended up making contact with a total of eight former queens. And while generalities are dangerous, we did observe certain "trends." Very few, for example, remembered the name of the homecoming game opponent or what team won the game. A fair number of the former queens ended up marrying their high school sweethearts.

One thing they all agreed on, however, is that being homecoming queen was indeed a wonderful experience.

DIANE LUCHTMAN SCHRADER
Northville — 1958

"Sure it was a thrill," says Diane Luchtman Schrader, when asked how it felt to be Northville's 1958 homecoming queen.

"You were supposed to be nonchalant about that type of thing, but it really was a thrill."

"In those days all the students from seventh to 12th grade were in the same building. I was so shy in junior high; I remember how much in awe I was of the older girls... how I admired the girls who were queen ahead of me."

"The other nice thing was that the queen was elected by the students. It was nice to know you had been selected queen by the people you went to school with."

Diane is married to N.C. Schrader, owner of Schrader's Home Furnishings in Northville. Her husband was an All-State tackle on the '58 Mustang football team.

The Schraders still reside in Northville and have two children. Steve, 19, is a sophomore at Miami (Ohio) University and plays on the football team there. Daughter Susie, 16, is a junior at Northville High School and plays center on the basketball team.

DAWN McALLISTER BUDA
Northville — 1965

"Today it's not at all like it was when I was in school," says Dawn McAllister Buda, Northville's 1965 homecoming queen.

"In those days all the candidates campaigned to be queen. I remember my slogan — 'Don't be a dead head — vote for the red head.'"

"It was great fun," she adds. "We got together after school and made campaign signs to put on the walls. I think campaigning was one of the best parts."

Most of Dawn's homecoming got rained out. The parade was cancelled because of rain. And it was raining too hard for the queen and her court to be presented at halftime of the football game.

"It was very strange," she says. "There were six of us — three seniors and the three underclassmen — all dressed up in our formals and walking around the high school all by ourselves."

Today, Dawn is an interior designer and a co-partner in Designer's Choice in Northville. Her husband, David, is a contractor, and they have four children — Wendy, Kimberly, Scott and Andrew.

Would she like one of her daughters to be homecoming queen some day? "Absolutely," she says. "It was quite an honor to be chosen. I think I appreciate it more every year that goes by."

STACEY EVANS BECKER
Northville — 1968

What does Stacey Evans Becker remember about being Northville's 1968 Homecoming queen?

Well, she remembers that it was a cold night. But she doesn't remember who Northville played or who won the game.

She also remembers walking into the Homecoming dance in the cafeteria after the game. "They had a big throne set up for me with my name in great big letters with sparkles all over them. It was really nice."

Like several other former Homecoming queens, Stacey eventually married her high school sweetheart, Gary Becker. Although he graduated from Northville the year ahead of her and was a student at Wayne State University on her homecoming night, he returned to attend the dance with her. That was nice, too, she says.

Today, the Beckers reside in Novi's Meadowbrook Lake subdivision with their three children: Betsie, 8; Gary 7; and Andy, 1. Gary is district sales manager for Federal Express in Southfield, while Stacey is a special education teacher and musical therapist at Hawthorn Center. She also is director of music at the Northville Methodist Church and accompanist for the Novi Choralaires.

MARY DAWN WITHERS
Novi — 1974

They sure do, says Mary Dawn Withers, Novi's 1974 homecoming queen.

"It was really cold," she recalls. "It had rained earlier in the day and it was a dreary night. We were sitting on the back of a convertible and had the heat turned way up, but it was still cold out there."

Mary Dawn says she was flattered at being elected queen. "What was nice was that my sister, Jeanne, was sophomore class representative the same year. My father escorted me on the field at halftime and my older brother escorted my sister, so almost the whole family was involved. I felt very, very proud."

"The other thing I remember was that just about everybody in Novi was at the game — all my neighbors and even the man from the drug store. Everybody attended the football games in those days."

Today, Mary Dawn is a second grade teacher at Novi Woods Elementary School.

MARY FISHER
Novi — 1975

Mary Fisher remembers being totally surprised when she was elected Novi's 1975 homecoming queen.

"It was a shocker," she says. "Homecoming queens were usually cheerleaders; I was really shocked when they announced my name as queen."

She also recalls being awe-struck by the entire experience. "You have to remember that I was just an old farm girl," she laughs. (Actually, her father, Herb Fisher, is an electrician and owns Fisher Electric in Novi).

"I had to go to the homecoming dance after the game because I was queen and I remember that I had the shortest dress in the whole place."

"I was country," she adds. "This old farm girl didn't know how to handle all this homecoming queen business."

"I remember getting three dozen roses when I was crowned during halftime. I also got a dozen roses when I came back the next year to crown the new queen. That was nice because I really like roses. I also got to keep my crown."

"The whole thing was really great. I have a lot of wonderful memories."

The day after high school graduation, Mary took a job as a clerk at Del's Shoes in Northville. "I've been there ever since," she says.

MELISSA FAULKNER
Novi — 1978

"It seems like ages ago," said Melissa Faulkner, when asked what she remembered about being Novi's 1978 homecoming queen.

"I remember being extremely honored," she says. "It was an honor just to be a candidate, and when they announced my name as queen it was quite a thrill."

"It was a very cold night, but it didn't faze me at the time. I remember being escorted out on the field by my father. He was on my right side and I was gripping his arm very tightly — partly because it was cold and partly because it's really nice to have your father with you at a time like that. It was a very special moment."

Melissa is the daughter of Richard and Irene Faulkner. Her father is captain of the Novi Police Department.

"One of the most thrilling things occurred right after they announced my name and put the crown on my head," she says. "A ton of people came rushing up to congratulate me. That was special, too. So many people seemed genuinely happy for me."

Melissa recently received her MA degree in Communications from Purdue University. She lives in Lansing and works as a public affairs officer for the Michigan Townships Association.

'Art Nouveau' program follows opening

By JEAN DAY

A large crowd of about 230 members and guests attended the opening luncheon of Northville Woman's Club at Meadowbrook Country Club October 4. New president Pat Eden opened the club's 93rd year wearing a corsage that came with good wishes from immediate past president Lois Winters.

In keeping with tradition, the day honored past presidents. Geraldine Kohs, who served as president from 1962-64, responded for the past presidents.

Pat Hahn of Great Shape Salon and Spa, Amy Gunter of New Gal in Town, and Larry Christoff of Onyx Furs commented the fashion show for which members modeled.

Club to focus on Art Nouveau Friday

Dr. Michael Farrell, adjunct curator of education at the Detroit Institute of Arts and the Staten Island Museum, as well as associate professor of art history at the University of Windsor, will be discussing the Art Nouveau movement at Northville Woman's Club at 1:30 p.m. this Friday. The meeting in fellowship hall of First Presbyterian Church is a guest day, Marion Roller, chairperson of the day, announces.

He will trace the movement that began in Europe and was familiarized to Americans in the works of Tiffany. He notes that the Art Nouveau influence was unique in the countries in which it appeared — France, England, Austria and Belgium. It was a style, he says, that revolted against the machine-made idea. The concept produced furniture, jewelry and architecture characterized by exoticism and luxuriance.

In addition to his other activities, the speaker is engaged in restoring an 1872 Gothic revival mansion in the heart of downtown Detroit and is a leader in the movement to reawaken interest in the city's architectural heritage.

Mary Esther Fountain's masterminding benefit

When Mary Esther Fountain accepted a seat on the board of the Michigan Cancer Foundation, she says she didn't realize that almost immediately she would be heading a fund raising drive for the South Western Wayne Regional Service Center. It's to raise funds for operating expenses of the regional center.

Noting that about $4,000 has to be raised, the longtime Northville volunteer looked at an area where she has expertise: she's organizing a series of card parties in the communities involved.

She's asking women to host parties of friends who will pay $5 a person to play. The hostess will receive a tax deduction for luncheon food and prizes. Mrs. Fountain is hoping that parties will be arranged by November 15 — with her or assistant Mary Childs in Plymouth.

"We had to come up with something new," says Mary Esther Fountain, adding, "If it's successful, it will be an annual thing."

Popular ski-skate sale's set for November 2

Families with outgrown or unused skis, skates and other sports equipment should mark November 2 on their calendars. That's the date for the annual Ski and Skate sale sponsored by Northville Mothers' Club.

Chairperson Sue Todd reports that the event is moved to Meads Mill Middle School this year. The club is charging 15 percent of the sale price with proceeds to be added to the club's general fund for school projects. Equipment may be brought to the school from 4-6 p.m. November 1 and from 8-9 a.m. November 2. The sale will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Schoolcraft Foundation slates Night at the Downs

Schoolcraft College Foundation's second annual Night at the Downs fund raiser is set for November 4 at Northville Downs. The buffet dinner will be at 7 p.m.; post time is 7:30 p.m.

A $25 donation includes admission to the track and clubhouse, racing program, reserved tables, tax and gratuity. Tickets are available now from Foundation members or the Office of Institutional Advancement. Call 591-6400, extension 218, to make reservations.

'Letting Go' is WRC topic

"Letting Go" will be the topic of an open forum series tomorrow (Thursday) sponsored by the Women's Resource Center at Schoolcraft College.

Presenter will be Richard Todd, a psychologist from Orchard Hills Psychiatric Center. Participants will discover how to deal with the loss of a loved one — whether it be through widowhood, divorce or children leaving home.

The session is scheduled from 7-9 p.m. in Room B200 of the Liberal Arts Building on the Schoolcraft campus.

Attendance is free — no registration is required. For further information, call 591-6400, extension 430.

Jayne Meadows opens Town Hall anniversary series

By PATRICIA N. BOWLING

"When you were raised the way my mother was raised, you want to be a missionary," Jayne Meadows explains. "When you were raised the way I was raised, you want to be an actress."

Meadows' mother rejected her family's wealth and instead became a missionary in China.

Meadows, on the other hand, grew up on the banks of the Yangtze River with few friends, few toys and secondhand clothes.

"I didn't have many friends, but I had a doll with seven heads," she recalls. With the interchangeable heads, she could have a Japanese doll in a kimono, a Dutch doll with blond braids and wooden shoes, or any one of five other variations.

"Later in life . . . I discovered that I related very strongly with that doll.

In last Thursday's Northville Town Hall appearance at the Sheraton Oaks in Novi, Meadows recalled four of the most challenging roles of her career — all taken from the award-winning series, "Meeting of Minds," created by her husband of 32 years, Steve Allen.

For each program Allen resurrected a panel of historic figures. Meadows researched and wrote many of the women and performed eight herself.

"I always hated history," she admits. But her exhaustive research of the characters for "Meeting of Minds" brought history to life.

Meadows made her characters memorable by performing the lesser known side of their personalities. In playing Cleopatra, for example, Meadows insisted that she be brilliant and witty, rather than sultry and seductive.

Cleopatra was among four "Women of Power" the 59-year-old actress shared with the Northville Town Hall gathering last week. Exposing the obscure side of each personality, Meadows brought back Florence Nightingale, Susan B. Anthony, Catherine the Great and Cleopatra.

"They were all human beings with shortcomings, problems and conflicts in their lives. It was the conflicts and their solutions to those conflicts that made them so exciting to me. These were the things that attracted me to these women."

While men are considered successful if they hold powerful positions, women typically are considered villains if they wield power and influence, Meadows notes.

"But to me, a powerful person is simply someone who gets things done . . . or who makes changes in society."

Florence Nightingale was such a person. The English nurse and hospital reformer is remembered for her aid to soldiers of the Crimean War, during which she earned the title, "Angel of Mercy."

"But the real Florence Nightingale was a neurotic, angry . . . deeply religious, aristocratic beauty," Meadows said. "She also was an opium addict."

Florence Nightingale's rejection of her aristocratic upbringing to work as a nurse in the squalid, infection-ridden hospitals of England reminds Meadows of her own mother.

"This powerful woman could have been in my own family — she was so much like my mother."

After the Crimean War and several years spent establishing hospitals and nursing schools, Nightingale "retired" to a room she kept in London. For 53 years, Meadows says, Nightingale never left her bedroom. During that time she became addicted to opium.

When her mother and sister died, Nightingale, then 88, finally ventured out of her room. She died at the age of

'I didn't have many friends, but I had a doll with seven heads . . . later in life, I discovered that I related very strongly to that doll. And that led to what I am today — a character actress.'

Jayne Meadows

Nightingale's riches to rags tale contrasts with another of Meadows' characters: Catherine the Great.

Catherine the Great was an impoverished German princess when she arrived in Russia at the age of 14. She fell so in love with Russia she changed her name, her religion, even her hair color to appear more Russian.

After being taken under the wing of the reigning Empress Elizabeth, Catherine was married off to Peter III in one of the most extravagant weddings in history. But its sole purpose was for Catherine to produce an heir.

"Unfortunately, Peter was impotent, infantile and sadistic." After nine years, Catherine finally had a child — but by a lover, not Peter. After plotting Peter's death, Catherine became czarina and ruled for 35 years. She was influenced by the writings of Voltaire and Montesquieu — which, according to Meadows, Catherine read for entertainment during her dismal years with Peter. After only six weeks on the throne she freed all slaves and abolished slavery.

Like Catherine the Great, Cleopatra is remembered more for her licentiousness than her political prowess. When asked by her husband to portray Cleopatra on "Meeting of Minds," Meadows protested. "I'm too tall, too old and too New England to play that sex kitten, Cleopatra," she responded.

In doing so, Meadows discarded the stereotype image of the Egyptian queen. There would be no scanty costume, no gold snake bracelets coiling her forearms.

"I wanted to play her more brilliant than all the other men at the table — and with a biting sense of humor."

Completing Meadows' quartet of powerful women is Susan B. Anthony. "She was almost impossible for me to act because she was so saintly."

Born to Quaker parents in Massachusetts, Anthony was a teetotaler and an abolitionist — neither very popular in her day. But Meadows soon found in this character the strength and fortitude that enthralled her with all the others she had played.

Anthony had declared: "Unless women have power to vote and to stand up and speak, I can't do anything about alcohol and slavery."

When an organization known as the Sons of Temperance would not let women join, Anthony promptly founded the Daughters of Temperance. She fought for equal pay for women and decent pay for all workers at a time when factory girls made 11 cents for 14 hours' work.

"In Susan's day," Meadows noted, as if the woman from the history books were a personal friend, "no woman was allowed to go to high school."

"In Susan's day," she continued, "a gathering like this (Town Hall lecture) could never take place."

In 1872 Anthony was arrested, tried and fined for attempting to register to vote in Rochester, New York. After more than 60 years in the forefront of the women's rights movement, she died in 1906.

Meadows, who admits to suffering from depression, says she draws inspiration from these women of the past. In future presentations, she plans to add her own mother to the end of the "Women of Power" — a lecture she wrote just three weeks ago and performed for the second time last week.

"Now, talk about a powerful woman!" Her mother and father gave their lives for China, Meadows says, taking nothing out but poor health.

"I wish I were more like her. She's the most remarkable person I've ever known, my mother."

Despite the bouts of depression, which she says she combats with regular exercise, Meadows describes her life as "magical" because of her parents and her husband.

The Northville Town Hall series is a non-profit program sponsored by Our Lady's League of Our Lady of Victory Church. All proceeds go toward charities in area communities.

Following Meadows in the Silver Anniversary season will be "Fat Bob" Taylor, currently host of WJR's Great Weekend, on November 14.

Ronna Romney will be the third speaker on March 13, 1986, and Steven Ford will conclude the year April 10, 1986.

Ex-gang head to speak

Nick "The Greek" Pirovolos will be the dinner speaker at the Northville, Plymouth, Livonia Full Gospel Business Men's monthly dinner meeting at 7 p.m. Friday at the Farmington Plaza Sweden House Restaurant.

Pirovolos was known as the "judge, jury and executioner to anyone who crossed him," say meeting sponsors, noting that he was the leader of two gangs and one of Cleveland's most wanted and feared men.

NICK PIROVOLOS

His life was engulfed in crime, not only in Cleveland, but also in Chicago and Las Vegas. He was known to police as a tough gang leader and terrorist. After an armed robbery that almost cost him his life, he "was introduced to Jesus Christ and became a new man" while in the intensive care unit of the Ohio State Penitentiary in Columbus, sponsors report.

President John Holland may be called at 420-2361 for more information and dinner reservations, which are required. Cost is $6 a person. Visitors also are welcome at the program alone, which begins at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Hunter heads Center program

"Heart to Heart: Sharing Christ with a Friend" is a new program of the Church Growth Center, Corunna, Indiana. The center is headed by Dr. Kent R. Hunter, a native of Northville and son of Delores and Wallace Licorish, former residents who now live in New Port Richey, Florida.

The Heart to Heart program was written by the Reverend Steve Wagner, a Lutheran pastor from Carrollton, Texas, and a workshop presenter for the center. Hunter describes it as "a seven-lesson learning experience which provides outreach training for every Christian." A kit of materials is available from the center.

New Japanese 'Super Pill' Insures Rapid Weight-Loss

No Dieting — Eat All You Want, Pill Does All The Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA — An exciting new "all natural" weight-loss "Super" Pill developed by the JMA (Japanese Medical Association) has just been approved for distribution in the United States. Reportedly, it can guarantee that you will lose more than a pound a day without dieting, from the very first day until you reach your ideal weight and figure. News of this "Super Pill" is literally sweeping the country. It's called Amitol and there has never been anything quite like it before.

"Flushes Calories Right Out Of Your Body"

What makes Amitol so thrilling and unique is its reported ability to flush calories right out of your body. Amitol is completely safe, it contains no drugs whatsoever. Its ingredients are derived solely from the Konjac root which grows primarily in Northern Japan.

Why the Konjac root? It has been used in Japan for over 1600 years to produce rapid and natural weight-loss!

Japanese studies verify that Konjac root actually prevents fat producing calories from being absorbed into your system. They say it does this by surrounding much of the fats, proteins and carbohydrates you have eaten with a protective viscous coating which is then gently flushed out of your system. And according to Japanese research this produces absolutely amazing results.

And who can disagree! Amitol (although brand new to this country) is already being called by many people, "the most exciting weight-loss breakthrough of the century." In fact, every where there are reports of easy and fast weight-loss from formerly overweight people (in all walks of life) who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Company Offers Extraordinary Guarantee

You now can purchase Amitol direct from the North American distributor, and it comes with an extraordinary guarantee.

If you place your order now and then follow the simple instructions for a period of 30 days, you must be completely satisfied with the dramatic visible results or just return the empty container and Dyna Labs will immediately send back your entire purchase price. This guarantee applies regardless of your age or current weight level. What could be better than that! It's just that simple. If you've tried to lose weight before and failed you no longer have an excuse. Amitol is available, it's easy and it works without dieting!

Best of all, simply call Dyna Labs, fast, and reliable! Order call Dyna Labs Toll Free: (1-800-441-5454) Ext. 911, and order with your credit card. If you don't have a credit card Dyna Labs will also accept C.O.D. orders right over the phone! All orders are shipped immediately by UPS, which means no delay and no orders lost in the mail!

$19.95—30 day supply, or $35.95—60 day supply. Operators are standing by and will be glad to take your order. You can order 24 hrs. a day, 7 days a week! Please don't wait to call. You really do deserve to be thin!

The Northville Record

Harriers unbeaten; trip Warriors 24-35

Ed Gabrys' prediction that last Thursday's Northville-Walled Lake Western men's cross-country battle could be decided by five points turned out to be wrong.

And he couldn't be happier.

In a showdown of the unbeaten-division rivals, Northville prevailed 24-35, led by Kevin Haas' sensational 17:09 clocking at Cass Benton, just one second off his previous best.

Haas took first, but it was Northville's 4-5-6 second wave and 8-9-10 third wave that cemented the meet in the Mustangs' favor.

John Kissinger in 17:42, Scott Wiley in 17:43 and Ken Booth in 18:01 snapped up fourth fifth and sixth, while Jeff Hoose, Kevin Legel and Tim Munsell finished in eighth, ninth and tenth, respectively.

Despite cold and muddy conditions, Booth dropped four seconds from his previous best time at Cass Benton, and the other Mustang times were very

Northville's unbeaten JV won easily 17-38, led by Greg Newton's 18:49 clocking, his best ever at Cass Benton by 10 seconds. David Balok and Kirk Kabel followed him in identical 18:59 times.

The Mustangs placed eighth overall at the Redford Union Cross Country Invitational the previous Tuesday. Winner, as expected was Farmington with 97 points, edging Dearborn Edsel Ford with 103 and third-place Walled Lake Central with 122. Northville had 185 team points, 16 behind seventh-place Redford Union.

Haas was eighth finisher at the meet in 17:08, his best Cass Benton time this season. Kissinger was Northville's next runner with a personal-best 17:41 for 28th place.

The Mustangs can wrap up a division title if they can defeat Plymouth Canton in tomorrow's 4 p.m. dual meet. Canton ran sixth at the RU invitational; so a close meet is expected.

Mustangs net second

Kathleen Kotarski and Heidi Robins might be Northville High School's third-best doubles team. But the tandem was number one last Wednesday, taking a conference championship in third-flight doubles with a 6-3, 7-6 win over Lakes Division champions Emily Snow and Mary Pelloni of Livonia Stevenson.

All three of Northville's doubles teams advanced to the conference final with Western Division champions. At first doubles, Dorothy Zielger and Lisa Felicelli topped Michelle Khurana and Tina Heath of Plymouth Canton in straight sets for a division title, then fell to Stevenson's Laurie Lenox and Tonya Petouhoff in the conference final.

At second doubles, Jennifer Millgard and Lauren Oliver battled to a 7-6, 4-6, 6-4 win over Livonia Churchill's Angie Bengtson and Stephanie Peterson 7-6, 4-6, 6-4 for a division championship. Then the duo fell to Plymouth Salem's Kelli Theard and Lara Wiklund in an equally hard-fought conference final 6-4, 5-7, 6-8.

Third singles player Abby Edwards made it to the conference finals with a division championship in tow. Edwards beat Canton's Jennifer Croll 2-6, 6-2, 6-4, then lost to Salem's Lisa Belsky 0-6, 0-6

Final standings for the conference meet put Salem first with 23 points and Northville second with 17. Based on combined dual meet and conference playoff results, however, Northville ended up in a fourth-place tie with North Farmington, with Salem earning a first-place ranking.

Northville finished a very respectable fourth at the Class A Regionals at Ann Arbor Friday. Abby Edwards made it to the semifinals of third flight singles before she was eliminated 7-6, 4-6, 0-6 by Kelly Higgins of Ann Arbor Pioneer.

All four of Northville's singles players and all three doubles teams made it past the first round of competition, but eventually ran up against formidable opponents from perennial state powers Ann Arbor Huron and Pioneer.

Northville upsets unbeaten Chiefs

Northville may have picked up its most important basketball victory in years last Thursday, when the Mustangs stunned state-ranked, unbeaten Plymouth Canton 32-29.

Playing at Canton's gym, Northville raced ahead 12-6 in the first quarter, 20-10 at the half and never again trailed. The closest the Chiefs could pull was to within three points in the final quarter.

"I told the girls this would be the night to beat Canton if it were going to happen," said Northville JV Coach Pete Wright, subbing for Northville Coach Ed Kritch. "We knew Canton might be looking ahead of us to Thursday's game against Salem. But hey, we just outplayed them."

Susie Schrader led Northville with 10 points — six during the Mustangs' first-half charge. Playing her best game ever, according to Wright, Schrader shut down the Chiefs' inside game and crashed the boards with Tricia Ducker, who rebounded in double figures.

Canton kept charging back, eventually closing the gap to 28-25 in the fourth quarter. But when Northville slowed the ball down and Canton was forced to foul, the Chiefs kept fouling the wrong player.

That was Chris McGowan. McGowan connected on four of five free throws in the final two minutes — that's 22 of 26 this season for the sharpshooting junior guard.

Northville opened the week two nights before against Westland John Glenn, falling 45-34. The Mustangs led the Rockets by six at the half and by three after three quarters, but when John Glenn took a 32-31 lead with six minutes to play, things quickly unraveled for the Mustangs.

Usually good free throw shooters, Northville could connect on only six of 17 Tuesday night.

Although she wasn't immune to the free throw shakes, Ducker played a fine game, scoring 11 points, grabbing nine rebounds and making seven steals against John Glenn. Roxanne Serkaian played her best half of basketball this season, scoring six of her eight points in the first two quarters.

Tankers third at relays

North Farmington surprised no one by taking first with 93 points, followed by West Bloomfield with 69, Northville with 56, Farmington Harrison with 40, Farmington with 37 and Novi with 33.

Taking Northville's lone first was the 200 breast stroke relay of Diane Ford, Jenny Clark, Julie Hilfinger and Erika Nelson. The Mustangs picked up one second place: the 400 individual medley relay, in which Nelson, Hilfinger, Sue Settles and Shari Thompson combined for a 4:44.8 clocking.

Northville placed third in the 100 sprint relay, the 50-100-150-200 crescendo relay and a close 200 butterfly relay.

Westland John Glenn dropped Northville's season mark to 4-2 with a 92-79 edging of the Mustangs on Thursday. Individual event winners were Settles in 200 free and 100 fly, Nelson in 100 breast stroke, Pam Wesley in 50 free, and Northville's 400 freestyle relay team.

Newitt fuels Mustang win

Northville climbed back to the .500 mark in style Friday night with an impressive 14-3 victory over division rival Livonia Franklin in the two squads' first-ever encounter.

At the center of the victory: senior Paul Newitt, who played the best game of his athletic career. The Mustang quarterback was seven of 13 passing for 104 yards and both Northville touchdowns. He rushed for 51 yards on seven keepers.

As if that weren't enough, Newitt turned around and played linebacker on defense, recovering a Patriot fumble and making an interception.

Northville scored its 14 points on two Newitt touchdown passes, one just before the half and one that capped an 87-yard, 16-play march in the fourth quarter. Jack Sylvestre kicked both extra points.

Down 3-0 on Bob Solnikowski's 20-yard field goal, Northville struck back with a minute to play in the first half. Dropping back to pass at the Franklin 14, Newitt scrambled away from pressure, found his primary receiver covered, his secondary receiver covered, and then found split end Don Norton running around waving his arm in the air. Presto — 14-yard touchdown.

The Mustangs' second TD came on Newitt's 29-yard strike to Norton — this time he was the primary receiver. Norton faked, broke a step past the Patriot secondary and again Newitt found the lanky split end.

But if you want to talk heroes in last week's game, you want to talk defense. Northville had a lot of it.

In fact, Northville's had a lot of it all season. Opponents have managed only 10.1 points per game against the Mustangs. But the Mustangs looked especially tough against Franklin.

"It was a really physical ballgame," said Northville Coach Dennis Colligan, who doesn't say that sort of thing every week. "I mean, our guys were really popping them and we were getting popped right back."

Some of the hardest hits were delivered by Don Norton, Jim Ceratanni, Matt Kozler and Jamie Craik — the Mustang secondary. Franklin completed only seven of 20 passes, mainly due to crushing hits delivered by those four defensive backs. Craik had six first hits, Norton five, and Ceratanni made an interception. Blitzing often, the Mustangs recorded six quarterback sacks — three by Mike Hilfinger and one apiece by Tony Bringsfool, Dan Boland and Brett Belliston. Tackle Boland and linebacker Tim Millen made their presence felt with five first hits each.

Paul Newitt was hero of Friday's 14-3 win

Franklin was held to just 121 yards total offense in the game, and only 10 came through the Patriots' vaunted passing attack.

Phil Pendleton was the Mustangs' workhorse, gaining 82 yards on 24 carries. Thanks largely to the hard-hitting running back, the Mustangs picked up 16 first downs against the Patriots.

Northville (3-3 overall, 2-2 WLAA) received some bad news when quarterback Hutch Kerns broke a collarbone in Friday night's game. Kerns is lost for the season.

Northville's Booth a winner

Drum roll, please. For the first time this season there's a perfect entry in The Northville Record/Novi News weekly football contest. Kenneth Booth of Northville copped the $15 first prize by correctly predicting the winner of all 13 of last week's games.

Four entrants submitted entries with just one mistake, invoking the tiebreaker to determine second and third place winners. Second prize of $10 went to Art Thompson of Farmington, while the $5 third prize goes to Fred Schmidt of Livonia, who miscalculated Purdue's victory over Illinois and was four points off the actual total in the tiebreaker.

One person failed to predict a winner in the tiebreaker game. Entrants are reminded that they must pick the winner of the tiebreaker as well as predict the total number of points both teams will score.

Kickers click in Ypsi win

It won't make the Mustangs feel much better about Wednesday's 2-0 loss to Farmington. But the previous day's 3-0 win over Ypsilanti was much more important.

Steve Yezback on assists from Matt Ashby and Nick Morris, left wing Walt Wittrick on assists from Yezback and Dan Magdich, and Matt Peltz on assists from Yezback and Chris Anderson each scored in the first half to give Northville an easy 3-0 win over Ypsilanti in both teams' pre-regional qualifying game. Ypsi never seriously threatened in the second half.

The win earned Northville a shot at a second pre-regional match, scheduled for last Tuesday night (after press deadline) against Plymouth Canton. If Northville can defeat the Chiefs, the Mustangs will enter regional playoff action on Friday against the winner of this week's West Bloomfield-Nowi playoff battle.

With their third game in three days (Northville edged Livonia Franklin 2-0 on Monday), the Mustangs sustained a slight letdown in a 2-0 loss to Farmington on Wednesday.

"We just couldn't put the ball in the net," said Coach Dave Yezback, "and we had chances. Fred Cahill hit some perfect crosses from the wing and there was nobody there. We just couldn't put it together."

A match against Livonia Churchill scheduled for 11 a.m. Saturday was cancelled by referees due to the poor condition of Northville's soccer field following Friday night's rains and the football game.

"I agreed with the decision," said Coach Yezback. "It was just a mess."

The game will be rescheduled depending on the outcome of Churchill and Northville's playoff games.

Warriors squeeze by Mustangs

Walled Lake Western barely edged Northville 26-29 last Thursday in one of the closest Western Division matches all season.

The Mustangs fell to 2-2 with the loss, but there was good news on the horizon. While the Cass Benton course was muddy and the weather cold, freshman Nancy Belding continued to improve her times. Running as Northville's number-four runner behind Wendy Nuechterlein, Sue Blanchard and Jennifer Goshorn, Belding clocked a 23:20, good for seventh place, and six seconds better than her previous best at Cass Benton.

Nuechterlein finished second overall with a time of 22 minutes. Blanchard was fifth in 22:24, Goshorn sixth in 22:45, and Pam Cavanaugh ninth in 23:48. Kris Marrone dropped three minutes from her previous best at Cass Benton for a 17th-place 27:35.

The Mustangs also competed at the Redford Union Invitational the previous Tuesday. Northville took eighth with 194 points. Winner was Farmington with 79 followed by Dearborn with 91, and Trenton with 97.

Blanchard led Northville entries this time with a 28th-place 22:14 at Cass Benton. She was followed by Goshorn in 22:30, Cavanaugh in 22:47, Nuechterlein in 23:05, Belding in 23:26 and Carol Olsen in 26:06.

Northville (2-2 Western Division) will take on Canton at Cass Benton at 4 p.m. tomorrow.

RECREATION BRIEFS

YOUTH BASKETBALL: Northville Community Recreation is now accepting registration for youth basketball teams. Boys and girls in grades 3-12 are encouraged to participate. Player rating and basketball clinics will be held November 9 and November 16 at the Northville Community Center. Coaches, referees and a scorekeeper are needed.

NORTHVILLE SKI CLUB: Open to all boys and girls age 12-17, the Northville Ski Club is designed to assist and instruct the beginning skier through a complete instructional lesson program. A Friday night ski trip is planned each week to local ski areas. Buses leave at 6:30 p.m. for each trip. Last year's members may renew by mail or in person November 1-15. Packets will be available beginning October 28. New members may register from 6-9 p.m. November 19-21 at the Community Center.

OCTOBERFEST BIATHLON: Northville Community Recreation and the City of Plymouth Recreation Department are co-sponsoring an Octoberfest Biathlon Saturday, October 19. All ages are encouraged to take part in this five-kilometer (3.1-mile) run and 20-kilometer bicycle event. The race begins at the Northville Community Center at 8:30 a.m., continues through Edward N. Hines Drive and finishes at the Plymouth Community Center.

Windisch an all-leaguer

The good news is, Northville's Kirk Windisch landed a spot on the all-Western Lakes Activities Association golf team last week with his sensational round of 79 at the WLAA Tourney.

The bad news is, Northville's other linkers were as far off their games as Windisch was on his at the October 7 match. J. Moore's 86 was as close as any Mustang got to Windisch's sizzling round. Moore was followed by Mark Stephens and Ron Demeter at 87 each, and by Mike Oglesby, who shot an uncharacteristic 104.

Over the back nine of the course, Stephens was possibly the hottest shooter at the tourney. After carding 54 for the first nine, the junior fired a 35 over the second half of the course.

The Mustangs also took fifth in Friday's Class A Regionals at Hilltop in

Golf

Plymouth. Northville's total was 344, just 10 strokes shy of third-place Salem. Redford Catholic Central took first place, followed by Livonia Churchill in second.

This time, Moore led Northville with an 85 followed by Demeter and Windisch with an 86 each.

Stephens carded an 87 and Ric McCulloch an 88 to round out Northville's scoring.

"It's been a very good year," said Harold McVicar, who completed his first season of coaching varsity golf at Northville. "I really enjoyed it."

"We're definitely going to be one of the ones to watch next year," he added. "We're losing only one varsity regular (Demeter) to graduation while the other teams in our conference were very senior-heavy this year. It should be interesting next season."

COLTS: JV team holds off Steeler sweep

VARSITY: The Colts dropped a high-scoring thriller to the Plymouth Steelers 34-22. The Colts rallied from a 20-0 halftime deficit with touchdown runs by Doug Cody (24 yards), Heath Meyers (16 yards) and John Barbara (five yards), but fell just short. The Colt defense was led by Bob Townsend, who was in on 12 tackles. Erasmus Morfe was in on 10, and Andy Wayne and Mike MacDonnell nine each.

JUNIOR VARSITY: The JV squad held off a Steeler sweep with an exciting 14-13 win, their fourth of the season against one loss. The JV team handed the Steelers their first loss in five years, thanks mostly to big plays. Early in the first quarter, Colt linemen Matt Goebel, Bobby Holloway and Ryan Kliner broke open a path for Jeff Todd to block a Steeler punt. Jason Stolberg grabbed the loose ball and dashed 50 yards for a Colt TD. The Colts' second TD came on a one-yard dive by Mike Yankowski, who bulled his way to paydirt behind offensive

My House My Self

Chances are you're reading My House because the home you have isn't the home you want.

That circumstance isn't as unusual as it should be. It's rare to have any input on the design and construction of one's house beyond the choice of whether to buy it or not. Since Americans move on the average every seven years, most likely you live in somebody else's idea of what a home should be.

You don't have to settle for it.

"We tend to personalize our environments at work," says Walter Coponen, a Northville architect. "A guy who works in a factory might have a locker, that's distinctly his. A trucker's cab probably has a lot of little details that reflect his personality. If you work in an office, I can probably look at your desk or work cubicle and tell a lot about what kind of personality you have."

"But in many cases, that philosophy doesn't get carried through to our homes... There's not much emphasis being placed on creating a home that's just for us, one that fits the interests and potential needs of an individual family."

Take a step back from your home for a moment and judge it unsparingly. What don't you like about it? Is yardwork too difficult to keep up within your busy schedule? Is there more room than you need to heat? Have you always wanted to put in an addition, a greenhouse, a foyer, a deck, a garden?

*Take a step back and think:
'Can my house make me happier?'*

What you need to do is approach your home from an architectural standpoint, taking stock of the structure's resources and untapped potential. Often the best person to help you develop that perspective is an architect.

Whether conceiving an office complex or making blueprints for an addition to a cottage, architects are concerned with making the world inhabitable. Their training gives them resources the average homeowner can't draw on — engineering, comprehensive knowledge of building materials, design, historical perspectives, construction costs and more.

That often-arcaic knowledge might make him an intimidating consultant, except for one thing — the successful architect wants to make his clients happy.

"Architects mostly like to work on big projects," Coponen attests. "But I'm not saying we have to go out and design the Taj Mahal. Some award-winning houses in architectural publications are often very small, sometimes just a small addition on the back of someone's house. What we look for is the way a project fits one's lifestyle, whether it has good design.

"Ultimately the degree of our usefulness is measured by whether the owner says after the project is through, 'This is perfect for me,' I'd say my job was a success. I could design something I think is great for me, but if the owner doesn't like the way the light comes in or something else about it, I'd be as disappointed as he is."

Coponen says, "There's no reason someone can't call and say, 'Can we talk to you for 15-20 minutes about this renovation we have in mind?' Occasionally, one of us will say he's too busy, but usually we're happy to talk to people. Sometimes we'll tell them they can do more than they'd even thought possible. Sometimes we'll tell them it's impossible to do what they want in their present home. But it doesn't cost them a dime to find out."

Often when an architect undertakes a home design project, he gets to know his client as a friend. "Even if it's an addition, you get to know the person, the kids, the in-laws. Sometimes it takes a lot of time," Coponen explains.

Sometimes the major projects a homeowner undertakes can take years — even decades — to reach fruition. In such instances, the kind of long-range planning an architect can provide can help chart a course that's more economical in the long run.

"What you hate to see is someone to put in this big project, then decide a few years later it's not what he or she wanted, and watch them tear it out and start over from scratch," Coponen says. "With a guide, with a plan you can work at in phases, in time you can arrive at what you're really after."

"The sky's the limit," he adds. "We're always looking for alternatives. If it's shelter of any kind it should give you pleasure. It should make you happy. You should wake up in the morning and be in a good mood just to be living in a place that's right for you."

Interior View

Whether building an addition to your existing home or starting out on an entirely new house, you wouldn't think of undertaking the job without a professional architect to direct the proceedings.

And you wouldn't pick the first name under "Architects" in the Yellow Pages, either.

You would probably spend a fair amount of time checking out a variety of architects before finally selecting the one you think is right for you. You'd talk to friends who have had work done for them, check references, ask to see examples of their work, even arrange personal interviews to make certain that you and the architect you choose see eye-to-eye.

The same type of thought should be put into the selection of an interior designer to decorate that house or addition after it's been completed.

Sharon Pry, owner of McAllister's House of Decorating on Mary Alexander Court in Northville, agrees that it's important to find a designer with whom you feel comfortable.

"A lot of our business comes from referrals," says Pry. "People will see our work in the home of a friend or neighbor and, if they like what they see, they'll call us when they want some assistance in designing their own home."

"Most often," she adds, "they'll come in to our shop to see the types of things we have available and talk to us personally to see if we're all on the same wavelength... to determine if we can work together."

Pry stresses that it's important to have a good relationship with a designer "because we're the ones helping you decide how you're going to live... how your personality and lifestyle is reflected in your home."

According to Pry, redecorating a complete home or just a single room should be a most rewarding experience because you'll enjoy living for years to come in an environment that's an expression of your tastes and personality.

"Such an important opportunity," she says, "brings you into partnership with the interior designer — a partnership that is your most critical key to the success of the endeavor."

To make sure the partnership is successful, Pry offers the following suggestions:

- Express yourself completely. The designer should know your lifestyle, daily living patterns and the degree of your adaptability or desire to change. Talk about your likes and dislikes in styles and colors, she advises. Let the designer know exactly how you feel about suggestions.

- Know your interior designer. Designers are individuals with likes and dislikes just like anyone else, said Pry. Make sure you have the ability to understand each other and that misunderstandings are not allowed to exist.

- Don't be afraid to talk about money. Pry said financial considerations are an honest, fair subject of discussion. Degrees of design and installation often can be adjusted to fit budget restrictions.

- Keep your mind open to alternatives. While homeowners are entitled to a fixed concept of what they hope to achieve, they also should be willing to listen to other suggestions. Professional interior designers have a wealth of ideas and resources at their command. A willingness to listen to those suggestions may well open up a new perspective that helps the homeowner improve upon the goals he wants to achieve.

"What you learn from the partnership is that the professional interior designer can take you far beyond what is often called decorating," says Pry.

"Interior design is the ability to change the dimensions of space, to custom design precisely to your requirements — to call upon resources that are literally worldwide in origin," she adds. "It is this scope and depth of knowledge that will always be your best assurance of a truly professional partnership."

Antiquery

Whether it's country furniture and folk art or investment-grade period pieces and porcelains, antiques can provide a myriad of options when decorating.

While many avid antiquers use their homes as showplaces for their varied collections, decorating with antiques is not solely for those with roomfuls of 18th or 19th century furniture and accessories.

Northville resident Carol Nordell, promoter of the Great Lakes Antique Show and a longtime collector, notes that antiques can be integrated within contemporary room designs as well as rooms with a more traditional look — often, a contemporary gallery-type setting can be a most effective stage for prize acquisitions.

"Antiques are timeless," Nordell explains. "If you like a clean, contemporary look, antiques such as Amish quilts, folk art and textiles work very well."

With its simple lines, Shaker furniture also works well in contemporary design — particularly for those looking for an uncluttered style.

While the current craze for the "country look" has brought hordes of new buyers into the antique marketplace, Nordell cautions against purchasing antiques solely for decorative purposes.

"The first rule of thumb is that you should like it," she says. "Next you should judge a piece for its quality."

"Try to buy the best of what you can afford."

While collectors can appreciate the history and uniqueness of antiques, many have difficulty showcasing their various pieces.

"Cluttered" is a word often associated with antique decor — and for good reason. While Victorians may have found it fashionable to fill their parlors with velvets, lace and knick-knacks, 1980's homeowners are not likely to copy their turn-of-the-century forebears.

Nordell says a common mistake of many collectors is purchasing a piece because it's the right shape or size for a hard-to-fit wall space or corner.

"People should not be so concerned with measurements," she says. "They are restricting themselves so much that way."

"We rearrange to fit the piece," she says of her own collection. "We're not so concerned with size or shape."

"Obviously you can't buy an eight-foot cupboard with seven-foot ceilings," she says, "but you can rearrange."

She also points out that decorating with antiques often results in too much of the same thing. While personal taste dictates how much is too much, Nordell says that many people grow tired of the same look.

"We love country," she says of her own collection. "But even we get tired of a total country look."

Noting that most of the rooms in her home are decorated with country pieces, Nordell says she and her husband Eric are looking at using more refined period pieces in their dining and living rooms.

In addition to mixing antique pieces, today's collectors also need to be careful mixing their antiques with contemporary sofas and chairs as well as accessories.

"Upholstered pieces you virtually can't buy old," she points out. Consideration should be given to style and fabric when choosing upholstered pieces to compliment antiques.

For those using antiques as a focal point for their decor, upholstered furniture may be among the only contemporary pieces in the room design. Antique cupboards, tables and chests often are complemented by antique brass, baskets, decoys, folk art items, samplers, prints and rugs.

However, even purists will admit one modern convenience which cannot be discarded despite its lack of authenticity is lighting. When decorating with antiques, selecting lamps and light fixtures can be tricky.

"When you're decorating in early American, you have to have something that can blend in," says Pat Wright, co-owner of the West End Company in Northville.

Her shop, distinguished by its custom-made lamps, has been catering to predominately antique-oriented patrons since its opening in 1979. In fact, many of her customers are antique dealers and decorators looking for lighting to complement antiques.

"When we got started in this business the American country craze was really beginning," she says, adding that as a collector she knew the difficulty in finding proper lighting to blend with antique decor.

With her business partner Dr. Gordon Forrer, Wright began converting old crocks, spools and candlesticks into lamp bases and making shades of old fabrics.

She notes that when they first opened their shop in 1979, they used only authentic materials for both the bases and the shades. Quilt tops, homespun, coverlets, blankets and ticking were used for the shades to complement the antique bases.

Wright says that with antique fabrics becoming harder to find and much more costly, she now uses reproduction

Childproofing

Keep kids and home safe from each other

If you have children, or if they've been known to visit you at home, two of your biggest concerns are keeping kids safe around your house and keeping your house safe around the kids.

Which is more important depends on what kind of furniture you have and what kind of children. Since furniture is usually easier to replace, let's first look at how to keep children safe around your house.

The first thing to do is get on your hands and knees. Literally. When you see things at a child's-eye level, you may be surprised at the things you'll find that can absorb youngsters' attention: electrical outlets, knickknacks that can crash down on a child's head, worn electrical cords, cupboards full of household chemicals, and all sorts of sharp edges.

Electrical outlets can be rendered harmless with safety plugs. Worn wires you ought to replace whether you have children or not. Blunting sharp edges — the bottom of a suspended mirror, is also handled with little time and effort.

It's a good idea to move to a higher place — best of all, a locked cabinet — the kinds of lyes, bleaches, polishes, charcoal, and lighter fluid that invite the orally-fixated child.

Other things to consider are installing temporary gates, handrails and light switches at the top and bottom of stairways, buying non-skid mats instead of throw rugs — especially in the bathroom

Outdoors, it won't hurt to keep sharp garden tools and power machinery out of children's reach. An often-neglected chore is cutting off loose branches to prevent avid tree-climbers from accidents.

As for keeping your house protected from kids' occasional destructive impulses, it's wise to avoid investing in delicate furniture until the children are safely grown out of their reckless years — the Chippendale had better wait, or at least ought to be kept in a locked room.

Think "used" and think "durability" when acquiring furniture. Touches like furniture covers or arm guards on sofas and chairs and inexpensive tablecloths for wooden tables for spill-prone kids may return the investment in spades.

Best of all, find ways to deflect kids' attention from the good stuff by outfitting rec rooms and kids' bedrooms with durable, simple, easy-to-clean materials.

The best floor surface for a child's room is a resilient, easy-to-clean vinyl. It'll outlast all the stages of a child's growth, and if it's a neutral color it'll adapt easily should the room's color scheme is changed.

Similarly, unpainted furniture a coat of paint can change from primary colors to subdued pastels as the child grows up can be a prudent investment as well.

Fan- tastic

Staying warm or cool all year can be a breeze

Somewhere in the pantheon of Great Inventions — lower than the wheel, higher than television — rests the often-overlooked fan.

Everyone knows in warm weather fans keep air circulating and people cool. But not many consider that many kinds of fans are equally useful during cool months.

Warm air rises, consequently much of it is trapped near the ceiling. By using reverse-direction ceiling fans to push warm air down to the living area, not as much heat need be generated from a furnace, wood-burning stove or other type of heat generator.

A person who would not feel comfortable with the thermostat set at 68 degrees can be quite cozy with a ceiling fan running. In fact, a lower thermostat setting often is recommended when a ceiling fan is used, and of course, the lower one's thermostat, the lower one's heating bills.

While ceiling fans work with any type of heating set-up, many people with wood-burning stoves find them especially useful. The hot air emitted from a flaming hearth often rises up and out of the room. With a fan on the ceiling, that toas-

The consumer may wonder how much of those fuel savings go out the door with the cost of powering the fan. Actually, ceiling fans cost very little to operate. When one is running at moderate speed, it uses no more energy than lighting a 150-watt light bulb.

Ceiling fans are equally useful for augmenting air conditioners' effectiveness. A fan can reduce the effective temperature of a room by six to eight degrees. An air conditioner set at 82 degrees used with a ceiling fan, therefore, can be as effective as an air conditioner set at 74 degrees without a ceiling fan.

One obvious advantage of purchasing a fan instead of an air conditioner is the cheaper price. Doug Shaw, of Sutton's Hardware in Howell, says one of the smartest energy-saving cooler-offers are portable fans that rotate from side to side. While they keep air moving and the user cool, they have the additional advantage of portability: the power required to cool a person or an area can be directly focused. Try that with an air conditioner.

Breaking The Mold

They call them "cookie cutter" homes — homes in a condominium or subdivision in which housing units look as alike as if stamped out by a giant cookie cutter.

It's understandable. To add variety is to add expense, and cookie cutter homes are nothing if not streamlined for efficient construction. But let's face it, the slight variations in one or two floor plans repeated block after block do little to lessen the feeling of sameness.

Homeowners (or apartment tenants) in cookie-cutter neighborhoods need not live in cookie-cutter interiors, however. With a little creativity — and, yes, a little expense — a uniform home can be given a refreshingly distinctive look befitting the homeowner's personality and life style.

Many condominium developers allow pre-construction buyers to customize their unit, which opens new possibilities for creating a more personal home in a community of look-alike exteriors.

For example, at Crosswinds West Condominiums in Novi, developer Bernard Gliberman has gone to great lengths to encourage owners to customize their units.

"We've had people turn two bedrooms into one or two bathrooms into one. They've opened kitchen walls. Some have spas in the basement," Gliberman says. At least 10 percent percent of Crosswinds West homeowners ordered customized basements, he adds.

Gliberman has provided 300 options for new condominium owners, including several different mirror treatments and eight different fireplace options. An on-and $20,000 on customizing units at Crosswinds, Gliberman said. The average expenditure for options is about $5,000. These improvements not only create a distinctive atmosphere in each unit, but they improve its value and marketability as well.

Although you don't have to be a professional designer to make a room unique, you might wish to seek assistance if you're planning major changes — especially if coordinating colors has never been one of your strong points.

According to Vic Caroli of Random House Interiors, a variation in window treatment can have a dramatic impact on the appearance of a home interior. Windows not only offer the opportunity to add color to a room, but depth and texture, as well.

Balloon shades are particularly elegant, but Caroli suggests they be left for a seldom-used window.

"They're really very decorative, but they're not very practical," he noted. "If you let (the balloon shade) down, you have to work hours to get it right again."

A cornice is a frame that hangs down over the top of the draperies, concealing the rod. The cornice typically is covered with the same fabric as the draperies. Cornices provide variation in window treatment — without the fuss of a balloon shade.

A set of mini-blinds in every window has become almost as common as traditional tie-back draperies over sheers. Coupling the mini-blinds with a "lambrequin," however, can add color and depth to the window and reduce the flat effect produced by blinds.

A lambrequin is a wide frame surrounding the window. It stands out from the wall several inches, providing depth to the window treatment. When covered with fabric complimentary to the shade of the blinds, the lambrequin offers a unique, contemporary appearance to windows.

The use of accent colors on woodwork and crown moldings is an extremely simple way to add variety to a living room, dining room or other area that, save for the furniture, seems to look like every other home in the neighborhood.

Crown moldings, which are placed along the top of the walls against the ceiling, are not expensive, but they can be difficult to put up, Carroll warned. "Most walls are not that straight," he noted. Therefore, even mounting is tricky.

To avoid the difficulties of hanging crown molding, Carroll is using more dentil molding — a similar decorative woodwork that is mounted several inches below the ceiling. Like crown molding or floor molding, this woodwork can be painted in accent colors to coordinate with wallpaper, upholstery, carpeting or window treatment.

"But what's replacing crown moldings now is border wallpaper," Carroll noted. Besides being much easier to hang, border wallpapers are typically inexpensive and easy to coordinate with other room colors. These can be hung at the top of the wall along the ceiling, or, like the dentil moldings, dropped down several inches.

these border papers as an accent around a doorway or window.

The use of mirrors has become a common practice in condominiums because they create an illusion of additional space. When coupled with the use of skylights — another popular con-

"They're very decorative, but hardly practical," Carroll said, noting decorative mirrors collect dust and require frequent cleaning.

Shelving and collectibles give personality to otherwise stark wall surfaces

Translucence

What decorating accent gives sparkle to either a contemporary or vintage Victorian home?

The answer, as a new generation of home renovators is finding, is stained glass windows.

Young couples search for old stained glass windows at salvage shops and antique dealers, while established homeowners are commissioning contemporary designs at businesses such as Tiffany Art Glass in Northville.

There also are growing numbers of do-it-yourselfers who learn the technique of glass making to create their own original designs for their home. That's what Sharron Dargatz did for her home in North Beacon Woods subdivision in Northville Township. An occupational therapist by profession, she created the stained glass for the double doors that are a focal point in the entry.

Primarily in green and gold colors, the doors are a "contemporary interpretation of the fleur de lis," their creator explains.

Finding an old stained glass window to fit an existing window frame is usually "sheer luck," but there often are ways to utilize a piece of stained glass whose fit is not quite the same as an existing window. The stained glass piece can be encased in a wooden frame and hung in front of an existing window. Sometimes picture frames can be used, and sometimes a picture framing shop will make one to order.

The work can be hung on two study chains from the ceiling in front of the

Lynda and Terence Heaton of Northville were able to install old stained glass windows in both their kitchen and powder room. The window in the kitchen is in golds and yellows and was hung over the existing window. Lyndia Heaton says they installed "s" hooks from the ceiling and attached chains.

The window in the powder room — in blue and red colors — was added in the window frame.

The Heatons purchased both of their windows from a dealer in Birmingham, also a professor at Oakland University and interested in old glass.

"I understand that now his interest is in clear, beveled old glass, which I think is more sophisticated," Lynda Heaton mentions.

In one local home, the owner created architectural interest at a stair landing by replacing a clear glass window with and old stained glass one. A handyman, or carpenter, usually can adjust the window frame to accommodate a window that is a near-fit.

If going the economy route for stained glass works, it's a good idea to stay alert to where urban renewal projects are forcing commercial buildings and churches to be demolished. Often windows can be obtained directly at the site. Many lovely examples of stained glass waiting in antique and secondhand shops to brighten the homes of new owners originally were obtained this way.

Though Wright always used damaged fabrics, she says even those have become too costly to cut into shades. The same holds true for some of the materials used for the lamp bases — par-Fortunately, the current craze in antiques has made quality reproductions more readily available.

Wright says that while contemporary lamps such as brass will mix well with some antique decor, reproduction lighting or lamps are usually the best bet when decorating with antiques.
