Downs loses six race dates under Cahalan's calendar

By KEVIN WILSON

It looked too good to last, and it was. When former Michigan Racing Commissioner William Ballenger granted forthville Downs 88 racing dates for 1986 back in August, there was some question whether the increase of 10 dates over this year's allocation would hold up under a new commissioner.

The answer is that it didn't. New commissioner William Cahalan last week announced a 1986 calendar that grants the Downs only 82 dates - six fewer than Ballenger had given the track, but still four more than were allowed in

The overall number of racing days at. the Downs will still decline, however, as Cahalan's calendar cuts the Jackson at Northville dates to 61, five fewer than the number allowed in 1985. Combined. the two racing meets will get 143 dates in calendar year 1986, compared with 144 this year.

The 1986 dates for the Downs meet are January 1 through April 5. Jackson's meet in Northville will run October 20 to December 31. Cahalan's calendar notes that only these two meets will be allowed the option of matinee racing sessions.

The news angered Northville city council members who heard it Monday night. Mayor Paul Vernon said the news was not surprising, but disappointing in that it continues the state's practice of allowing only winter racing at the Downs. The city has an interest in activity at the Downs, since it receives a share of the parimutuel tax levied by "The new commissioner cut the dates back to the benefit of Hazel Park," Ver-non-said. "They just continue to take advantage of Northville Downs, giving them the dates in the rotten weather. Because they invested in winterizing their facility, they are punished by being given dates only when the other tracks can't even operate."

Hazel Park was given 168 racing dates for 1986, the same number it had this year. Added to the 1986 calendar is Genesse County Racing at Swartz Creek, Michigan, which is allocated 61 dates between October 21 and December 31. Dropped is Mottville Downs of Three Rivers, which had 64 dates between June and September of Jackson Harness Raceway was given 45 dates between April 10 an June 29 and another 45 from August 20 through October 18. Hazel Park's meet was moved back in the year by a week, starting April 7 and ending October 18. The 1985 calendar gave Hazel Park dates between April 1 and October 12.

Rematch in mayor's race

PAUL VERNON

By KEVIN WILSON ...

In a rematch of 1983's contest, Mayor Paul Vernon will seek re-election to his fifth term November 5 against challenger Eugene (Bud) Kunz.

The election also includes a five-way race for two city council seats, with at least one seat going to a newcomer.

All candidates are being interviewed by The Record staff and asked an identical list of questions. Topics not on the question list are addressed as necessary for each particular can-

The stories below summarize the interviews conducted with 'Vernon and Kunz. Stories about the council candidates and biographical information for all candidates will appear in the October 30 edition of The Record.

EUGENE (BUD) KUNZ

Vernon runs on record

After eight years as mayor, a position he reached after nine years of other city government activities including a stint as a council member, Paul Vernon figures his record speaks for itself.

His priorities for a fifth term would be "pretty much the same" as those he has pursued throughout his career, the mayor said Monday.

Continuing to provide an adequate level of services consistent with the residents' ability and willingness to pay for them," Vernon summarized his goals. "And to continue with the orderly progress of development throughout the community."

The decision to run for re-election, Vernon said, came after he was urged to do so by many people throughout the community. He stressed he is not a reluctant candidate, but chose to run because, "I think the people of Northville deserve another two years of my experience."

Although not yet firmly committed in regard to 1987,

Vernon said this "probably will be my last term."

Responding to challenger Bud Kunz's comments about his poor attendance record, Vernon said the figures cited are probably accurate but noted that most of his absences have been health-related.

"I haven't checked my own attendance record," he said. "But I have talked with the city manager about it and asked if it hindered his job in any way. He said there was no problem. Even when I am not in attendance at council sessions, I am in constant contact with the city

"I think that (making an issue of attendance) is kind of a low blow, considering the health problems I've had in 1985," Vernon continued. "If (Kunz) is really interested in attendance, he would do better to look at attendance over a longer period."

He refused to respond to Kunz's claim that the mayor and other long-term council members have lost en-thusiasm for the jobs. "I don't know what he bases that on, so I can't really respond," he said.

Vernon's re-election campaign of two years ago included a heavy emphasis on getting started with the second phase of downtown development — a goal Vernon said is

"We (the Downtown Development Authority) are in the final stages of forming a recommendation to city council to modify the master plan, because that is the first thing we have to do," Vernon said. The modifications, he said, will "further the development of the CBD (central

Other upcoming goals include repair of city streets, a project already under way. How to pay for those improvements is still an open question, Vernon said.

'We're keeping all of our options open," he said. "The location and nature of the work to be done will definitely be factors (in how the cost is assessed).'

Kunz more aggressive

Personal attention to residents' problems, an active role in communication with other area governments and a more business-like operation of the city are among the traits Eugene (Bud) Kunz suggests would be hallmarks of his administration if voters elect him mayor November 5.

Kunz is running his second campaign challenging in-cumbent Mayor Paul Vernon, having lost to Vernon two years ago. This time around, Kunz is campaigning more actively and aggressively, though he says he does not wish to criticize the current mayor.

"I think anyone who puts the kind of time in that those people in city hall do deserves a lot of credit," Kunz says. "I just think that, after you've been doing something for many years, it starts getting to be routine. Enthusiasm

As evidence, he cited Vernon's attendance record, claiming the mayor missed 28 percent of the council meetings in 1984 and more than 43 percent of the meetings thus far in 1985.

"Some of it is due to health problems," Kunz acknowledged. "But he missed a lot more meetings than those related to his operations."

(A Record check of the figures shows the mayor missed 13 of 30 meetings between the beginning of August, 1984, and the end of August, 1985. That's a 43 percent absenteeism rate. The percentage of missed meetings drops to 38 percent when the mayor's attendance at four sessions in September and October, 1985, are included. Of the 13 absences registered during the period, five were publicly announced as being due to illness.)

Kunz said he would be an active and enthusiastic mayor, and that he expects he would only be in office a maximum of four years. He even suggested amendment to the city charter limiting both the mayor and council members to two consecutive terms in office. Vernon is seeking his fifth term, which would give him 10 years in of-

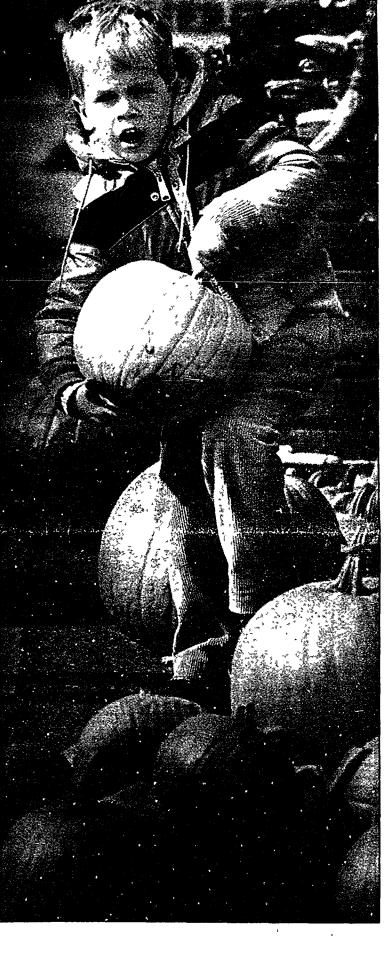

Priorities for the coming term, according to Kunz, are an examination of city finances, a drive toward involving the entire community "instead of a select few on the inside," and a more business-like conduct of city operations. He hits hard on the business side, citing his credentials as president of two corporations (BEMS, Inc. and Energy Efficiency Engineering, both consultants to schools, hospitals and business).

"I feel we have a lot of waste in this city, wasted funds due to inexperienced people," Kunz said. "I've seen bids go out with only one bidder where, if the specifications were done right, you'd get more interest."

Kunz said he would also bring a more business-like approach to the conduct of city council meetings, citing his experience with the city housing commission and zoning board as examples.

Candidates to meet twice

City residents have two op-portunities to hear the two candidates for mayor and five candidates vying for two city council seats at public forums before the November 5 election.

• A Northville Candidates' Night is being sponsored by the Northville-Plymouth-Canton-Novi League of Women Voters from 7:30-9:30 p.m. this Thursday at Northville city hall.

Cindy Fanslow, league president, will moderate the program at which each candidate will give an opening andd closing statement. The audience will have an opportunity to submit questions in writing for response by the candidates. . Candidates to mayor and city council will be guests at the Current Issues Class for Northville senior citizens at 9:15 p.m. next Tuesday, October 29, in the Activities Room at Allen Terrace, the senior citizen complex at 401 High Street. Candidates will present biographical sketches and discuss their reasons for seeking public office in the city.

All residents of the community are invited to meet the candidates and present any questions.

Seeking the two city council seats. open are Ron Bodnars, John Buckland, Maclyn Burns, Luigi Folino and G. Dewey Gardner, whose term is expiring.

Mayor Paul Vernon has filed for a fifth two-year term as mayor. Op-posing him is Eugene (Bud) Kunz, who also opposed Vernon two years

CBD extends another block on East Main

Four residential properties on the south side of East Main near Griswold that were zoned for industrial use have been rezoned and added to the Central Business District.

City council Monday approved the rezoning of the block just west of the Water Wheel Car Wash, abutting the Belanger, Inc. complex. The addresses of the houses on the affected property are 410, 422, 430 and 450 East Main.

Council member J. Burton DeRusha said he hopes the planning commission will amend the master plan of land use to eliminate the resulting conflict between the plan and the zoning map.

City manager Steven Walters said review of the master plan would be done after the commission completes its amendments to the zoning or-

"They are going to look at the master plan in the context of what they've done with the zoning ordinance when that's all done," Walters said. "This may be one of several changes to be done all at

The properties were zoned PR-1 (performance regulated industrial district), the same as the Belanger properties.

But DeRusha and council member Paul Folino both noted that the adjoining development is primarily commercial and that the property is at an entranceway to the business district.

"I've thought for some time that I wouldn't want to see a factory there, even though it was zoned industrial, DeRusha said. Noting that the properties might have been sold to the owners

NHS tightens suspensions :

Northville High School students no longer will leave the school grounds when suspended from classes following the board of education's approval last week of an in-school suspension pro-

Since last Monday, students suspended from class have been placed in a Special Assignment Room for an hour a day or the duration of the suspension period, according to high school principal David Bolitho.

Bolitho told board members last week that the program is designed to enhance the learning process by providing a structured and supervised environment for students who have been removed from class due to behavioral or attendance problems.

Bolitho said students who violate school policy and are suspended often consider the time away from school as a reward, not as punishment. With many Northville High School parents working, the problem is further com-pounded when the student is left at home unsupervised, he added. Bolitho said the in-school suspension will be aimed at three different types of students: those who are suspended from classes, students disqualified due to a violation of the attendance policy and those who need a study period.

Students who have been involved in major offenses (drugs, alcohol, theft, etc.) remain subject to the out of school suspension policy.

"In areas where this program has been implemented there has been a reduction in truancy," Bolitho told board members.

The Historical Society's craft program classes began several years ago in response to a rising interest in creative folk arts and crafts, in addition to providing a year-round use for the buildings in Mill Race Village. With the advent of local craft shops, community education and other craft classes taught in a variety of locations throughout the area, attendance began to dwindle about a year

Building activity still on the rise

Construction permits for buildings totaling $23 million in value were issued in Northville Township during the first three quarters of 1985, building official Troy Milligan reported recently.

"Hopefully, we are progressing with orderly growth - too many (communities) have expanded too quickly and lost control of the development," 'ownship supervisor Susan Heintz said of the building boom. "An interesting. thing right now is that the Six Mile corridor seems to all be going at once. If you ride down Six Mile, you'll see work being done all over."

Through September 30, the building department issued permits for 151 new single-family houses and 26 new multiple-family residential buildings (apartments or condominums). Between them, these new residences total more than $20.6 million in value.

New single-family homes are primarily in previously-existing subdivisions — North Beacon Woods off Eight Mile and west of the city limit, Lakes of Northville on Six Mile at Winchester, and Quail Ridge on the south side of Eight Mile east of Highland Lakes. More are targeted for Maple Hill subdivision on Six Mile just east of township hall abutting Lakes of Nor-

Total value of the single family dwelling permits was placed at $12.35

Multiple-family residential permits are predominantly those issued for Cedar Lake Apartments, just east of structure. Other activity drawing Northville Road and the railroad tracks on the north side of Six, Mile. Total value of the multiple-family permits was put at $8.25 million.

Permits were also issued for four commercial structures with a total value of $2.2 million. These include a medical office building on Six Mile immediately south of township hall and east of the bank plus two new buildings at Doheny Industrial Park on Doheny Drive (formerly Wallis). Small retail structures on Five Mile also contribute to the total.

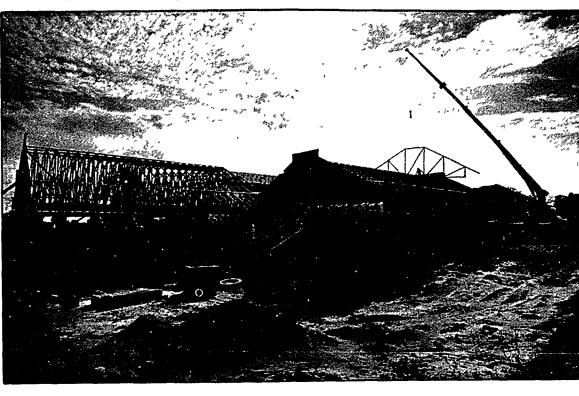

Heintz's comment regarding Six Mile Road development is most evident in the cases of Maple Hill subdivision, Cedar Lake apartments, and the office government attention but not included in the tally of permits issued includes upcoming construction of Northville Colony IV subdivision and Ward Presbyterian Church's plans for a large parcel on the northwest corner of Six and Haggerty.

The building boom is not confined to larger projects, however. Home improvement projects of various kinds added another $600,000 of permit value during the first nine months of the year. Permits for alterations (additions) accounted for 37 structures with a total value of $494,600. Non-residential structures (such as fences and swimming pools) totaled six at a value of $138,000.

Disobedient pupil

Margot Pearsall clearly had her hands full last Monday night. Little Toto, her rambunctious white poodle, could hardly sit still for her dog obedience class offered through the Northville Public Schools Community Education Program. Having missed two weeks of class, Toto seemed utterly confused during the command training. Margot was just plain exasperated. Despite repeated commands to sit, Toto preferred to pull on her chain, dance and let out her ferocious poodle bark. Overshadowed by such classmates as Chevy, a golden retriever; Sprocket, a Bouvier-shepard mix and Mike, a black lab, little Toto was corralled over to the side of the Amerman gym for a little person-to-poodle pep talk. Despite her endless patience, Margot seems to be looking for a little guidance in getting her tiny charge to cooperate (third picture). Despite a somewhat lackluster performance at Monday's class, Toto was told she still will receive her diploma — as long as Margot thinks there has been some progress in the eight-week course. From the look of things, Toto could use a little help from the great Wizard of Oz — or perhaps Dog Obedience II. Record photos by Steve Fecht.

... In the City

City police are checking with the city attorney this week regarding whether to take criminal action against an 18-year-old Livonia resident who hung his vehicle up on a headstone in Rural Hill Cemetery about 8:30 p.m. Sunday night.

The attorney was expected to rule on whether to take criminal action or consider the incident an accident early this week.

The youth, who was accompanied by three other young people, said the leaves prevented him from judging where the road ran through the cemetery.

Police came to the scene after a wrecker was called by the youth to disengage the vehicle.

Which is more dangerous: living with cataracts or having them removed?

Why do many people who are quite sensible put off having cataract surgery? Why are they willing to give up many of life's greatest pleasures and even risk blindness when normal vision is within reach. It's primarily because they're afraid and that's because they've been misinformed.

At Livonia Cataract Center we have performed thousands of cataract removals and lens implantations. We can assure our patients that they have everything to gain and little to fear from cataract surgery.

With today's advanced procedures, cataract surgery takes only a short time and patients usually go home the same day. There is little discomfort before or after surgery, and free transportation will gladly be provided to and from the operation if you need it.

Livonia Cataract Center would welcome the opportunity to give you an unhurried step-by-step description of what you will experience. Call us at 522-0805. We can remove the fear and help you return to good vision.

Kunz challenges city operation

"You do all your homework, all your research beforehand, then take care of business," Kunz said. "If someone goes off on a tangent, you tell them it's time to get back to the topic."

Too often, Kunz charged, the present council follows the lead of the city manager rather than making its own something, which is fine, he's there as a resource," Kunz said. "But no one's sitting up there who says, 'Okay, Steve, that's your input, here's what we want.' No one really challenges Steve because they don't know enough. It should be a case of 'We're in charge and here's what we want.'

. Kunz said he also plans to take an active role meeting with officials of other governments and attending meetings of intergovernmental organizations long as they're of benefit to the City of Northville."

He stressed the value of personal contact in relations with neighboring communities. Benefits to the city from participation in municipal organizations, he noted, include the availability of grants to help finance city projects.

"I think there's a lot of grants out there this city misses out on," Kunz said. "I notice we have a finance director, perhaps that person could be assigned grant-writing responsibility. You'd have to see if that's feasible, but we could use a grant coordinator on

As for downtown improvement, Kunz said he would prefer to see the city "do a little bit every year" rather than formulating plans for several years and then tackling a massive project all at

"They turn to Steve (Walters). "The last time, they spent money whenever there's a question about they didn't have based on a hope of increased tax revenues," he said. "That may be working out, but they did it by borrowing money based on racetrack money we didn't have yet, and then never got. That's how we got into that deficit.

"Our next move in the downtown should be well-budgeted and well-planned in advance. I relate it to my house - I may want stained glass windows, four marble pillars and a sauna, but I don't need them. It comes down to what you want versus what you can af-

He said he sees an inconsistency in limiting some parking lots to two hours while the street parking remains unrestricted. "If we really want to keep the turnover going on the street, the street parking should be two-hours and the lots unlimited. The idea is to make it convenient for shoppers. People who are going to be downtown for a while can use the lots, while people who just want to make a quick stop can use the Necessary road repairs should be paid for by those who benefit from them, Kunz said, basically following current council discussion that would assess the costs for various roads depending on who used them. But Kunz criticized the current administration for letting the roads deteriorate.

"It's obvious that it takes less money to maintain a street than it does to replace it," Kunz said. "The only realistic way to handle it is to budget it as an on-going thing, every year. It should be a priority, not something that gets cut when times are hard."

Kunz said he agrees with the mayor that the city has "outgrown" the charter originally drafted in 1955, but said the council itself should suggest amendments, not an appointed committee or the League of Women Voters.

He added that he is particularly interested in the charter provisions regarding candidacies, suggesting that council members elected for four-year terms be prohibited from running for mayor at mid-term "except in case of emergency.'

As a newcomer to elected city office, Kunz said he would have no problems in relating to the other council members.

"We'd take care of that the very first night. I'd start getting along the first night," he said. "I'd put it right up front, we're a team and we start working tonight for the City of Northville. There's no room for squabbling that would get in the way of working for the Vernon initiated current discussions of amending the city charter by asking the city manager to review the document with particular attention to "limitations imposed by the charter that are not appropriate today.

Vernon will stand on his record

While Vernon is primarily interested in "cleaning up" the charter, he said he is "disappointed that we haven't had more response from people who'd like to be involved with that. I'd hoped someone from The Record would be interested, but only one of you is a registered voter in the City of Northville and I'm afraid that's going to be one of the requirements."

He said he believes recent changes in parking regulations are proving themselves effective in leaving downtown spaces open for shoppers.

"It demonstrates that we're not really short of spaces, but that we're short of desirable spaces. I'm sure we're going to have some glitches," he said, in

Although two of the four council members expressed an interest in his position, Vernon said he expects no difficulty in relating to the council after the election.

"It never has (had an effect)," he said. "Council and I have not always agreed on everything. We've certainly had our differences of opinion; yet the council has been a harmonious and cooperative body.

He said he and the individual members of council are "above" squabbles based on personalities or politics.

Vernon said his activities outside the city as its representative are generally directly related to the city. Intergovernmental relationships are important he said, though it is not always necessary for the mayor to attend meetings of regional bodies such as the Conference of Western Wayne or the Southeast Michigan Council of Govern-

At one time, Vernon said, he estimated his devoted 10 to 15 hours per week to city business, though the total varies widely depending upon what is

As evidence of his effectiveness representing the people of Northville, Vernon noted that his candidacy has been endorsed by every elected representative of Northville in national, state and county government. There are at least two of each, since Northville straddles the Wayne-Oakland county boundary and has representatives on each side of the line.

Pointing out that Northville is not enmeshed in "dissension and controversy" of the sort that makes for lively election contests, Vernon said he is leaving most campaigning until the last week or 10 days before the election and, rather than running against Kunz, plans to "stand on my record."

Child fingerprinting offered free at VFW

Both a Child Identification program and a Lite-a-Bike project to make bicycles visible and safe for night riding are being sponsored by the Northville Post 4012, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Youth Activities Committee from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. this Saturday at the post at 438 South Main.

"It's really a community effort to help people become aware of incidents that, unfortunately, occur too often," said Kerry Bogater in announcing the Child Identification program. She and her husband Donald are cochairpersons of the post youth activities committee.

In the Child Identification program, finger printing will be done by Northville city police officers and Captain Jack Gardner from the Phoenix Correctional Facility. Equipment is being loaned by the Northville State Police Post. The Plymouth K Mart store is donating the film for the program.

Auxiliary members will be compiling children's vital statistics while they are photographed by post members for their parents' records. During the day a movie, "Too Smart for Strangers," will be shown at 9:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Doors will open a half-hour before the film begins. The film features Winnie the Pooh and addresses abduction prevention. It is aimed at ages 3 to 10. In the Lite-a-Bike program reflective material is attached to bicycles to make them visible and and safe for night riding. The free service will be available all day from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

While reservations are not required for either program, sponsors report that reservations would be appreciated for groups, such as scout troops.

For more information or to make reservation, call Donald or Kerry Bogater at at the post, 349-9828, or at

Township fills EDC and ZBA vacancies

Northville Township recently made appointments to fill vacancies on its Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) and Economic Development Corporation

Appointed to the ZBA for the remainfing term of Ralph Foreman, who has resigned, is Karen Sue Kemp Baja, a Napier Road resident and teacher working toward her M.A. in gifted education

A 1977 honors graduate of Western Michigan University, Baja was unanimously appointed to the ZBA, Genitti's one of top 10 pasta restaurants in U.S.

John and Toni Genitti, owners of Genitti's Hole in the Wall Restaurant at 108 East Main, have received a national honor for their

The National Pasta Association has selected the restaurant as one of the 1985 "Pasta Restaurants of the Year.'

In the National Pasta Association's first competition, awards have been established to pay tribute to restaurants which serve pasta "in imaginative ways that increase awareness and enjoyment of this versatile and delicious food."

Joseph M. Lichtenberg, president of the National Pasta Association headquartered in Arlington, Virginia, announced that the Genittis had been selected in a letter to the couple. He said an award certificate and seal will follow

Winners were selectd by surveying television, radio, newspaper and magazine restaurant reviewers in 10 of the country's largest cities - New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, Detroit, San Francisco, Houston, Philadelphia, Boston, Dallas/Fort Worth and Washington, D.C.

The Genittis did not know their restaurant was being considered for the national honor until after they served a customer one evening who identified himself as being from the pasta association and complimented them on the pasta.

The letter then notified them their pasta is a winner.

which rules on requests for variances from the township zoning ordinance.

The 31-year-old mother of four came to township government's attention at a recent public hearing on a rezoning request for multiple-family housing at Six Mile and Sheldon. Trustee Richard Allen particularly noted Baja's thorough prepartion and solid understanding of the planning process demonstrated in her presentation and the questions she asked of the planning commission.

Appointed to the EDC, a quasigovernmental body that provides lowcost financing for private development through issuance of tax-free municipal bonds, is Carl E. Schleh of Ponmeadow

The 30-year-old father of one moved to the township in March, having lived in Dearborn previously. He is a commercial loan officer for Michigan National Bank — Metro West. He joined that firm in 1983 after four years with Security Bank and Trust Company of Southgate, where he served as a credit analyst, credit manager and loan of-Schleh earned his BBA in accounting and finance from Michigan State University in 1978 and is studying for an MBA in finance at Wayne State University. A member of the Plymouth and Northville Rotary clubs, Schleh has dealt with community development projects financed through EDC programs with his employer.

Downs loses six dates

Park, where they've had a decline in the handle for several years, is favored over Northville Downs, where they've been posting increases every year even though they get fewer dates," said council member Paul Folino, who works at the track.

But city manager Steven Walters noted that Hazel Park still has more betting action each day than does the Downs, which must compete against Windsor Raceway.

"The Downs percentage increases are better than Hazel Park's, but Hazel Park still gets a larger handle and that means more money for the state," Walters said.

"If the trend continues, though, that may not hold true in a few years," Folino said. "I think it's so damn un-

The allowance of matinee racing at the Downs was criticized as an inadequate means of rewarding the track for its continuous improvement.

"Matinees don't do the Downs any good, they just increase the state's income,'' Vernon said.

Folino noted that the track must pay its employees overtime wages to conduct a matinee racing card, while the attendance and betting handle are lower than for the evening races. "They break even or make a couple bucks the tax money goes up, but the track really doesn't gain anything and the city doesn't gain, because we have to supply more police time to control traffic, he said. "The only one who makes out on a matinee is the state.'

In recent years, the city interest in the amount of racing has become less direct, as the amount of tax income given the city has been linked to legislative appropriation rather than to the betting handle. The appropriations have been less than the amount the city would have received in prior years, when the revenue share was directly tied to the amount of money bet at the of adjacent industrial land, he said the conversion to CBD zoning would allow better use of the property.

"I personally think this would be a better use in the long run than to have them (used for) parking for the PR-1 development," DeRusha said.

The council action was consistent with the unanimous recommendation of the planning commission, which reviewed the rezoning petition at its October 15 meeting.

At that session, Charles Ely, Jr. represented the owners of the property. He and Phyllis Ely own the house at 422 East Main. B and H Properties, a partnership of Robert Stone and Howard Disbrow, owns the parcels at 430 and 450 East Main and Betty Jane Weaver owns 410 East Main.

Weaver wrote a letter to the commission expressing her support for the rezoning. B and H Properties was one of the original petitioners for the change,

"We thought the buildings were more conducive to central business district use than to industrial zoning," said Ely. The cost would be prohibitive to tear down the buildings and start over. To see (the property) grow in a more man-nerly fashion we'd like to see it go to

Ely previously said he intends to continue using the house as a residential rental property - a use permitted in CBD but only allowed in the previous PR-1 district as a nonconforming use (that is, it was existing when the zoning was changed to industrial).

Policy allows in-school suspension

The in-school suspension program, implemented three years ago at the junior high level, replaces the high school's study skills concept.

Though the philosophy of the in-school suspension is similar to the study skills class, Bolitho said the new concept should alleviate some of the problems which have plagued the current

Though he noted that the study skills program "provided a certain amount of accountability," he pointed out that the concept was "very expensive" requir-ing an additional 1.2 teachers which equates to about $40,000 for the district. He also noted that students dropped from classes - particularly those dropped from multiple courses — exhausted the study skills' materials.

Under the new program, coordinated by Bolitho and his summer intern Judy Colby (assistant principal at Edsel ford High School in Dearborn), a full-time teacher aide will be assigned to cover the Special Assignment Room beginning next semester.

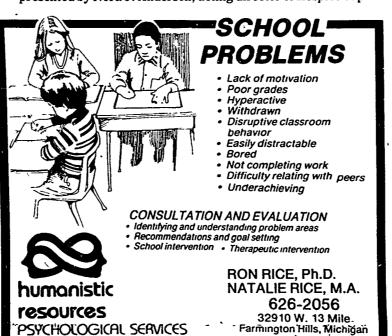

Dennis Faletti, a part-time teacher at the high school, currently is covering the SAR with an aide monitoring students during the last three periods (when Faletti is teaching).

Noting that as many as six teachers were teaching the former study skills program, Bolitho said a full-time teacher aide will provide the consistency and continuity needed for the pro-

Our Opinions

Chapter I ruling a nuisance to all

Though the U.S. Supreme Court's July 1 ruling banning public school teachers from providing auxiliary services at religious-affiliated schools is considered by some to be a victory for the principle of separation of church and state, the decision clearly has been a defeat for public school districts and the parochial students they service.

In Northville, where four parochial schools receive auxiliary services from the public school district, educators have spent the past three months negotiating a new method for providing both remedial and auxiliary services to students in the religious-affiliated schools.

Though it has been more than a month since the start of the new school year, only some parochial students are just now receiving the auxiliary services they are entitled to under both Chapter I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act passed by Congress in 1965 and the Auxiliary Services Act approved by the Michigan Legislature in the same year.

Beginning this week, some parochial schools will begin sending students requesting special services to the public school site for instruction. Nearly all principals at the local religious-affiliated schools have voiced concern that the one hour and 15 minutes away from the regular classroom may prove disruptive to students. However, they also have conceded that a single therapy session a week is better than none at all. On the other hand, one parochial school principal has rejected the public schools' one-hour-per-week proposal on the basis that the service is not equitable when compared with the two sessions offered to public school students each week.

While this issue easily could be interpreted as a squabble between public and private schools, it should be pointed out that the high court's ruling on the issue has placed both private and public educators in an uncompromising situation.

By law, the public school districts are responsible for providing remedial and auxiliary services to parochial students requesting such programs. For the past 20 years, public schoolteachers have gone into religious-affiliated schools to instruct those special needs students. However, when the Supreme Court handed down its ruling banning public schoolteachers from instructing students at the religious-affilated school site, State Superintendent Phillip Runkel ordered Michigan school districts to discontinue the service at religious schools and begin transporting parochial students eligible for the federally-funded programs to the public school or a "neutral site."

For many Michigan school districts — particularly those with large populations of parochial students — the cost of transporting those students is prohibitive. In Northville, where the public schools service only 20-30 parochial students, transportation has been among the primary concerns for the district.

Some have raised the point that Michigan was too quick in its implementation of the high court's mandate. In New York, the State Court of Appeals granted a one-year stay on implementation of the court's ruling on the federally funded Chapter I program. The State of Florida has done the same. The year-long abeyance will provide educators in those states time to digest the ruling and hopefully come to a more equitable agreement' for providing services. It is our opinion that Michigan may have benefitted from similar action.

It should be noted that while the majority of the high court's justices ruled that the former method of providing Chapter I services resulted in excessive entanglement of government with religion, there has never been a single incident of a public school instructor attempting to indoctrinate religious tenets at public expense in the 20 years the program has been in existence. We therefore, cannot comprehend the high court's logic in its ruling. Instead, we are more inclined to agree with the harsh dissent voiced by Chief Justice Warren Burger who noted that the high court's decision "will deny countless schoolchildren desperately needed remedial teaching services funded under Title I."

Burger's observation unfortunately has been realized by some 6,451 Michigan children in private schools.

Fence gaps leave hospital issue open

Well, we finally have a fence, of sorts, at Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital. It was a long fight, and it would be nice to sit back and admire the results for a while.

But that's not possible, because what this community (and this paper) fought for is not what we got. It's close, but no cigar. A fence with enormous holes in it is not a fence — it's a sneaky way of appearing to fulfill a commitment without really doing so.

That there's a serious flaw somewhere is evident in the Northville Township police log, which shows contact with eight walkaways from the hospital in the past week. We were not so naive as to believe a six-foot fence was going to stop the walkaway problem overnight, but we didn't expect it to continue completely unabated, either.

There are two major problems evident to even the most casual observer. The idea of the fence was to reduce the number of walkaways going out the back way so security forces could be concentrated along the unfenced Seven Mile frontage. Neither has happened, primarily because the fence perimeter is not closed — there are openings for roadways, which are the easiest routes for a walkaway to use when leaving hospital grounds. Sure, some patients are going to climb over the fence, but not all are physically capable of that. Anyone can go out an open door, though.

Efforts have just begun to answer the concerns about how the fence we got differs from the one we were promised. Let's all hope it doesn't take another 15 years of fighting to get a few gates installed.

Friendly disagreement

In two weeks, we won't have Burt DeRusha to kick around anymore. His term on city council expires after the upcoming election and he's opted not to run for a third one.

By way of background, you have to understand DeRusha is the kind of guy a young, upstart journalist is supposed to dislike. Give my more liberal impulses free rein, and I'd cast him as Babbitt. He's among the most conservative people I've met, and not at all shy about saying things that make me grit my middle-of-the-road teeth.

Try as I might, though, I can't dislike DeRusha. He can get me really steamed up and ranting about right-wing, small-town politicians. But unless you can muster a lot more political fervor than I can, or you fall among that group of people who take everything personally (and there are dozens rattling around in this town), that's not enough to make you dislike Burt DeRusha.

For one thing, the guy's got a terrific sense of humor. When he drops a witty line in the third hour of a dull meeting, it's enough to make me forget this is a guy who actually agrees with Joseph Sobran. What's better is that I can imply there's something wrong with liking the rantings of ultraconservative columnists like Sobran, and DeRusha won't hold it against me. His sense of humor, in other words, extends to include himself. That's a quality he shares with very few others in public office, and one reporters soon come to treasure.

Honest answers are another one. DeRusha has always given me a straight answer to anything I asked, even when he knows I'll probably disagree, and in print. He's among a very small number of people in public office who I felt never tried to use me for his own purposes, deceptive or otherwise.

All this is by way of giving DeRusha one more kick before he leaves. I'd been saving up this beautiful, tough question to pitch him the next time he ran for election — and then he announced there would be no next time. So I asked him anyway.

You may remember back when Genitti's got a resort liquor license, and council was asked to approve it, that DeRusha was not exactly thrilled with the idea. He's a non-drinker, and really runs liquor license applicants through the wringer. When he finally agreed to okay this one, DeRusha said he did it so Geniti's could serve beer and wine with their dinners. That was okay, DeRusha said, but he sure didn't want to see a bar at Main and Center

Flash forward two years. An application comes to the council table from Genitti's, seeking additional parking space credits for operation of a . . . bar and banquet hall. You Genitti critics can back off — I looked it up, and back in May of 1983, John said he didn't plan to sell liquor or open a bar "at this time," even though he had a license to do so. Two years later isn't "at this time." And a bar in a banquet facility is at least still associated with food — it's not just a watering hole.

So, the writing was on the wall in 1983. The surprise was that the council motion to grant Genitti's request for parking spaces was made by Burton DeRusha, without his customary comment on his distaste for ventures involving alcoholic consumption. This was a guy we'd beat up on in editorials for voting against a chamber of commerce request to have a cocktail party in the "park" beside Getzie's Pub. This is the guy who resisted allowing the Starting Gate to move in next to Open Door church long after eveyone else had conceded it was a good idea.

He had a firm position, clearly stated on the record. Putting his name on the Genitti's motion seemed out-of-character. So I asked him why that happened. Know what he said? "It was probably inconsistent." He said more — that he figured the battle about the license was already lost and not worth bringing up again, that he'd expected liquor sales would eventually come along to make "the $70,000 cost of the license pay for itself." But then he agreed he had been inconsistent. And told me it "was a good question." I'm going to miss having a guy like that around.

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

I was just waking up Saturday morning when she told me the bad news.

"I can't find Clyde," she said, referring to half our notorious cat team of Bonnie and Clyde.

"You know how skittery he is around strangers. Well, the painters showed up at 9 o'clock and Clyde went bonkers.

"He may have run outside, but I don't think so. They're all careful about letting the cats out. Besides I checked outside right after he disappeared and didn't see him anywhere.

. Understand that a missing cat in our house is serious business. I still remember the time we combed every square inch of Maybury State Park when Bonnie didn't show up at the house for supper for five straight days.

But that was a long time ago. Ol' Bonnie and Clyde go out into the park every day now, but they show up for their Tender Vittles promptly at supper time.

So I really wasn't worried about the case of missing cat despite her concern. I was sure Clyde would return home when he felt like it.

And sure enough, I was right. It was during the second half of the Michigan/Iowa game when I heard him meowing outside the window.

At least I thought it was the window. The meow came from the direction of the window, but when I looked outside there wasn't a cat to be seen.

That's when I looked down and saw a kitty nose and whiskers peering at me through the heating vent in the floor.

"He's running around in the heating ducts under the house," I announced, a note of concern in my own voice. "How are we going to get him out?"

I was beginning to have visions of someone with a jack hammer tearing up the concrete floor to rescue one yellow-and-white cat when she informed me there was nothing to worry about.

"He likes to go down there," she said. "Whenever he gets scared he heads for the heating ducts. He feels safe down there. Besides, he collects so much dust that we probably have the cleanest ducts in town.

Taking a friend's job

By B.J. Martin

Patricia Bowling's departure from The Novi News-Northville Record staff is going to be met with about the same enthusiasm as a plague around this area. As the reporter who will take on her responsibilities here, I can assure you I'm a little wary myself.

Patricia was an award-winning writer who also won the respect and often the friendship of many of her acquaintances in Novi and Walled Lake, the areas she covered. They are going to miss her terribly, especially in the first few weeks as they notice she's not there anymore. But I think none of them will miss her more than I will.

As co-workers, Patricia and I go back a few years, even before we worked on Sliger/-Livingston Publications. I will always remember (more correctly, Patricia has made a point of making me always remember) one of our first exchanges of con-

I had been up late working Sunday night and was staring bleary-eyed at a typewriter early Monday morning when Patricia briskly walked into the newsroom, looking crisp and neat as always, and gave me a cheery "Good

I wasn't ready for it. Without looking up I mumbled, "Great. First thing in the morning and I get Mary Tyler Moore.'

Patricia has never forgiven me for saying that. Of course, Mary Tyler Moore probably would never have forgiven me either. Despite that initial exchange, Patricia, her husband Ed, and I have become very good friends — definitely the closest friends I've made in this line of work.

You've heard the expression "A lot of water under the bridge?" There's enough water under our bridge to keep the Soo Locks busy for a few years. And through the roller coaster ups and downs I've had during that time, Patricia and Ed have been a steady pair of friends who would make my life worth living even if there were nothing else. If I weren't such a Michiganian at heart, I'd be tempted to follow them to Chicago. As it is, I hope to make the Windy City a frequent weekend destination.

But let me address Patricia's constituency for a moment. Novi knows me best as a sports writer; indeed sports has been my main subject matter since I've been a professional journalist. My entry into the newsroom and one 21-car collision on an icy bridge across the Missouri River early one sub-zero morning, my hands too frozen to take notes. The quotes were unforgettable anyway.

I never went near the sports desk. It's unlikely the sports writers would have let me.

To get my first professional journalism job here in Michigan, though, I threw "can do sports" on my resume, much as a two-leftfooted actor will nonetheless put "can tap dance" on his resume when looking for Broadway work. Lo and behold, I was hired as a mostly-sports writer.

I knew baseball well enough to secondguess Sparky Anderson, basketball from high school, and soccer quite well from my short time as a modest athletic scholarship recipient (the scholarship was modest, I wasn't) at Columbia College. The rest I had to learn or learn to fake pronto. Thankfully, people often were too kind to call my bluff.

But all the time I was a mostly-sports writer I had my foot in the door elsewhere. I covered school boards, planning commissions, township boards and city councils, never with enough time to do as good a job as I wanted to do.

So I'm looking forward to my stint at the news desk in Novi, even though nobody's likely to forget Patricia's ability to - how'd that go? - "take a nothing day, and suddenly make it all seem worthwhile

Ayers' comments were not needed

To the Editor:

During the city council meeting October 7, I had the opportunity to view our city council in action. I had come to the meeting to participate in a discussion concerning closing all streets from Northville Estates subdivision to Beck Road, upon its eventual paving.

Most of the council are to be commended for their relevant questions and desire to hear arguments for both sides of the issue.

However, councilwoman (Carolann) Avers' comments had no bearing on the issue. She said words to the effect that she objects to the people who want to isolate themselves from the larger community. Sarcastically, she added, "I hope it (closing all access points to Beck Road) will stop all your burglaries and all your speeding pro-

During the discussion, no one implied that Northville Estates subdivision was trying to keep out all non-residents and become isolationists. Visitors are welcome to come and leave through our front entrance.

Also, no one claimed all problems would be solved by this action. We simply want to reduce potential speeding and burglaries by restricting access through the main entrance.

In my opinion, councilwoman Ayers should not express her irrelevant comments, judgemental attitudes and personal views (when they are not pertinent to the issue) during a public meeting.

Vandals need lesson in the Golden Rule

To the Editor:

To the juvenile deliquent(s) who got their kicks from keying (scratching) my blue 1984 Mercury Cougar parked at the Twelve Oaks Mall in front of Sears Saturday night (October 12): when you finally purchase the car of your dreams and you're going without to make big car payments and you drive your car to work to make money for those car payments and, at the end of a long, hard day, you find your dream car scratched from front fender to back, I hope you remember the quote from the Bible, 'Do unto others as you would have others do unto you.!'

P.S. I had just changed my comprehensive insurance to $100 deductible to save some money.

•Fewer highway deaths with seatbelt law

Traffic deaths across Michigan have dropped 20 percent during the first three months that the safety belt law has been in effect compared to the same period a year ago, according to statistics released by the Michigan State Police.

The 20 percent figure applies to vehicle occupants who had safety belts available. Overall, traffic fatalities declined 23 percent for the three-month period over the same period in 1984. Prior to July, fatalities had increased in every month of 1985 except for March, indicating that the safety belt use law has helped to reverse a trend toward higher traffic fatality rates.

Quasar

Mon.-Sat

State police caution that figures on fatalities are preliminary and are subject to adjustment.

"The statistical data continue to support the effectiveness of Michigan's safety belt use law," said Robert D. Burton, M.D., Michigan Coalition for Safety Belt Use chairperson. Burton also pointed out that in actual numbers, 114 fewer people had died on Michigan roads during the July through September period this year compared to the same period in 1984.

"The same types of accidents that would have resulted in death or at least permanent disfigurement or disability prior to the safety belt use law are now resulting in much less severe injuries," said Burton. "And in many cases, people are walking away from these accidents uninjured."

Michigan's drop in fatalities is consistent with falling traffic death rates in other states with safety belt use laws in effect. In the first six months that its law has been in effect, New York State has experienced a 28 percent decline in fatalities, while New Jersey reported 13 percent fewer fatalities for driver and front seat passengers in the first four months that its law was in effect.

In Illinois, officials reported 27 percent fewer motor vehicle traffic deaths in August compared to the average number of deaths which occurred in August the previous five years. Illinois recently reported an even more spectacular 41 percent drop in fatalities for the month of September, again, measured against the average number of deaths in September the previous five vears.

The Michigan Coalition for Safety Belt Use is an alliance of health and medical associations, safety and insurance groups, law enforcement organizations, state agencies and private organizations dedicated to promoting the use of safety belts as a means of saving lives on Michigan highways.

Eva Reame demonstrates how programs are developed

Mark McManus supervises an in-house training session of computer trainers at his Northville office

High-tech era hits Northville's traditional downtown

By ANN CHOWDHURY

Downtown Northville has a reputation for tradition, antiques and handcrafts, but it's not being by-passed by the high

Earlier this year Mark A. McManus brought his Computer Training & Support Corporation to 194 East Main Street. McManus always has been something of an entrepreneur. In his teens he was a certified welder and worked at 90-feet heights on the grain elevators his father installed around Saginaw and in the thumb area of Michigan. He has been accepting new challenges ever since, working in the gift industry, owning at different times a greeting card company, a company for manufacturing display cases, and, more recently, a company which sold computers.

While selling computers, McManus realized there was a need for training and support once computers had been installed in the buyer's business place. To meet this need, he and his partner, John F. Johnson, started Computer Training & Support Corporation.

The new company does not sell equipment, but provides a training service. On staff are 12 trainers who travel around the nation teaching computer users how to utilize specific software packages. (Software refers to the programs that can be run in a computer as oppposed to the physical components, or hardware, of the computer.)

McManus explained, "We select individual software companies, some of which develop packages no one knows how to use, train our people for those packages and send them out to train the user.

Most of the time the company is hired by businesses that sell computers and software to provide a training and support service for their customers. Some of the work, however, is direct service to companies who need their staff trained.

The reason Northville shoppers have not seen hoards of people rushing downtown to be trained is that no training of customers takes place in the company's office. The trainers go to the users' premises to train the operators on their own

McManus feels that a strong training and support service is the secret to success in computer sales.

"One of our trainers was out in Illinois," he said, "where there was a legal firm with 30 employees and a nice office computer system. They-were ready to throw it out until someone went to explain how it ran and what it would do."

"Vice president Deborah Phillips-Pelloni develops many of the company's training programs. She presently is helping Ford Motor Company Climate Control Division convert to a new computer system. The assignment involves setting up the procedures, training the office personnel and converting old documents to the new Another project the company is involved with now is helping to train AT&T sales staff who have just moved into the computer industry.

McManus explained that there is a need for services such as his because it saves companies the cost of hiring their own trainers who will not be needed once the job is done. They can call on Computer Training & Support Corporation when they need trainers and be sure their customers are receiving expert help until they are comfortable with their new equipment. One of the reasons McManus chose Northvlle as his company's headquarters is that his wite Sherri has a gift business in the M.A.G.S. (Michigan Association of Gift Salesmen) building and they wanted their businesses to be

"She buys me lunch," he joked.

On a more serious note, he said that he loves the Northville downtown area and finds the town a very good center from which to work.

The couple plans to move into - and remodel - one of Northville's older homes.

Computer Training and Support Corporation is a contemporary concept, but its president was not immune to Northville's old world charm.

Area Realtors predict continuing strong sales

Declining mortgage interest rates move the affordability index back coupled with rising family incomes above 91." should help continue a strong local home market, according to the Western Wayne Oakland Board of Realtors.

The affordability index prepared by our national organization shows the median-priced existing home is within easier reach of more families than at any time since 1979," said Robert F. Craver, president of the multiple listing group.

"With the national median-priced home at $55,700 in 1979, the median family income of $19,660 represented more than 97 percent of that needed to qualify for the buy."

He said 1979 mortgage interest rates for loans closed were under 11 percent with the median home buyer having a monthly payment for principal and interest of $422.

"The median price in mid-1985 had climbed to $76,500 with interest rates nearly one percent higher," he noted. "This pushed monthly payments to $618. but at the same time median family income has grown to top $27,000 to

He said the index had dipped below 70. in both 1981 and 1982, during the deepest part of the recession when mortgage rates soared to record levels. Monthly payments for median-priced homes climbed to $702. Craver also noted that payments as a percentage of median family income also have declined to 27.5 percent from a high of 36.3 reached in 1981.

'Some Realtors in other parts of the country seem to feel that there is not the market demand for housing experienced in other growth periods," he said. "We don't feel that is the case locally.

"Our sales this year are up nearly 25 percent from last and show no signs of diminishing. Perhaps the high unemployment here during the recession created more demand than elsewhere. Now that more potential buyers are working and have greater confidence in the economy, they are ready to make the move."

Small business owners are sure to feel the effect of President Reagan's tax reform proposal if it becomes law. The Michigan Association of CPAs offers a run-down on the most significant provisions put forward by the President and some ideas on what they'll mean to small business owners.

Keep in mind that the President's tax reform plan is only a proposal. The plan may be altered in Congress over the coming weeks as the debate over tax reform gets into full swing, and it's possible that no tax reform bill will be

TAX RATES - Corporate tax rates would be lowered by the President's reform plan. Here are the proposed rates: 15 percent on taxable income up to $25,000, 18 percent on taxable income between $25,000 and $50,000, 25 percent on taxable income between $50,000 and $75,000 and 33 percent on taxable income of more than $75,000. In addition, these marginal rates would be phased out for corporate income over $140,000. So corporations with taxable incomes of $36,000 or more would pay a flat tax at the 33 percent rate.

DEPRECIATION - Just when business owners began to become familiar with the five-year-old Accelerated Cost Recovery System (ACRS), the President has recommended revamping it. The depreciation method put forward by the President is called the Capital Cost Recovery System (CCRS). "CCRS is similar to ACRS in every way, but for two major exceptions," explains C.W. Phillippi of the Small Business Committee of the American Institute of CPAs.

The depreciable life of property

would be extended, so you'd get smaller depreciation write-offs over longer periods," Phillippi says, "and inflation indexing would be introduced into the formula, so the property being depreciated would have its cost adjusted upward for inflation every

DIVIDEND EXCLUSION -Shareholders in corporations can currently exclude from their taxable income the first $100 ($200, if joint filers) of any dividends they receive. Under th President's proposal, this exclusion would be eliminated. Offsetting this somewhat is another provision in the President's plan that would give corporations a 10 percent deduction on dividends distributed. In other words, while individuals would lose the dividend exclusion, the dividend deduction for corporations would increase the amount of money available for distribution to shareholders. CASH ACCOUNTING - The President's proposal would effectively eliminate cash accounting for some small businesses and require use of the accrual method of accounting. This would apply to businesses with more than $5 million in gross receipts or those that use accrual accounting on financial statements.

The change would force some small service busnesses to pay taxes on income not yet received. Many of these service businesses, such as lawyers, doctors, plumbers, engineers, mechanics and insurance agents, might no longer be permitted to use cash ac-

ENTERTAINMENT EXPENSES -All business owners would lose deductions for entertainment. As part of the President's drive toward simplicity and fairness, country club dues, tickets to the theater and seats for sporting events would no longer bring tax

DEPRECIABLE PROPERTY -Under the current law, small business can write off a piece of property in a single year rather than depreciate it. That's called first-year expensing. If you buy a computer, for instance, you can choose to expense it in the year it is purchased rather than depreciate it over a number of years. Currently, you can expense up to $5,000 a year. But that amount is scheduled to increase to $7,500 in 1988 and 1989 and $10,000 after 1989, in accordance with the Tax Reform Act of 1984. The increases would be eliminated, however, if the

President's proposal is adopted intact. INVESTMENT TAX CREDITS -The investment and energy tax credits are the federal government's way of encouraging businesses to buy equip-ment. Currently, businesses can receive a tax credit for 10 percent of the purchase price of certain property. The President's proposal would eliminate investment credits, including the 25 percent credit on rehabilitation of historic buildings.

PENALTIES — The President's tax reform plan borrows an idea employed by the private sector for those who do not pay their bills. Currently, someone who does not pay a tax bill on time must pay a five-percent per month penalty (for a maximum of five months) on the amount of tax due. The reforms would replace the five-percent penalty with charges for the collection process. The late taxpayer would be required to pay all administrative costs involved with collecting the taxes owed, an amount that rises if collection is drawn out.

BAD DEBTS - Businesses would no longer be able to deduct projected losses on outstanding accounts receivable. Under the reform plan submitted by the President, a business could only deduct bad debts after they became uncollectible.

INDEXING INVENTORIES - A new inflation adjustment would be added for business if the President's proposal becomes law. A business would adjust inventories for inflation. If inventory in a small business costs $1,000 and inflation was running at 10 percent, for example, the inventory when sold would be valued at $1,100. This would reduce the business' taxable income by $100.

This run-down is just part of the tax reform story. Small businesses would face numerous additional rule changes not mentioned here, if the proposal is adopted. You may want to consult your CPA for help in understanding the proposed rules and for assistance in designing a strategy that will ensure you pay no more than your fair share in

GM chief sees record sales for auto industry

Smith says he likes setting records and predicted that the automotive industry will break a new record this year selling 15.4 million vehicles in 1985. If Smith's prediction is correct, the 15.4 million vehicle will top the former record of 15.3 million set in 1978.

'This is only the second time in our history we've exceeded (the 15 million) said Smith. The other 15-million vehicle year was 1978 and the industry topped that year's total by 100,000 last

"It's really a great accomplishment, and in 1986 we're expecting to break that," said the GM chairman.

But he said an '86 record would take good luck and the right things happenng in Washington.'

Among those right things, he said, would be a resolution to the national and trade deficits and passage of the Reagan tax bill. With those factors in place, said Smith, "we don't always have to have a recession."

Assisting car and truck sales in 1985 has been the addition of low 7.7 percent financing. The financing brought sales which "far exceeded our expectations," said Smith.

Asked about proposed economic sanctions against South Africa, Smith said he would oppose them.

"I hope we can work through negotiations, not bloodshed," he commented.

"South Africa is an enormous growing problem, and it has become a world problem. Going back into the 1960s, GM has taken a position against apartheid. We've been working through the system down there to achieve change and not bloodshed."

In South Africa, GM's interests are based in Port Elizabeth where a production facility employs 5,000 people.

General Motors Chairman Roger B. . with South African business leaders in New York to discuss a negotiated settlement. He held a similar meeting with South African business leaders last June to consider ways to end the social strife in that country.

The head of the world's second largest corporation stressed that he intends to see "how we can help -- again I say 'help,' not interfere. About the foreign car market and the growing strength of third-world auto producers such as Korea, Smith said that's why we're working so hard on Saturn." He spoke of American business developing "new management systems" that would bring it into the 21st Century as a strong competitor,

'I hope Ford (and other auto competitors) adopt a Saturn-type approach. I tell you, it's the only thing that'll save us," he said. Smith's focus on "the 21st Century corporation" detailed what he said appears like science fiction but is rather science fact.

He described the "paperless computer-integrated" firms communicating worldwide, noting GM's recent acquisition of EDS computer service company and Hughes Aircraft with its ability to develop software systems. He said its merger with these companies will enable GM to develop new roducts faster than other competitors.

Car companies based in the new century will see an "electronic revolution" that will have suppliers paid electronically and robots programmed by voice commands in production plants.

At dealerships, the revolution will enable customers to place their car orders by computer terminals on-line to

He predicted also that the mid-'90s will hold a shortage of skilled laborers Nonetheless, he said he would meet for the high-tech world.

'Social Security System in no danger' — Cohen

The man credited with being the principal architect of the Social Security System defends the 50-year-old program, saying it is not debt-ridden as critics charge, but rather "sound" and has a $10 to $12 billion a year surplus.

Some 37 million Americans now draw from the system.

Former Health and Education Secretary Wilbur J. Cohen, whose lengthy career in public service started during President Franklin Roosevelt's administration, said in Detroit recently that the public is under a great misconception by believing that Social Security is in trouble.

"Most people believe it's bankrupt, but it's not. It has a $10 to $12 billion-ayear surplus," said Cohen, now 72 and a public affairs professor at the University of Texas in Austin.

Cohen said there is no danger of the Social Security system going broke, even though the ratio of workers to retired citizens is declining. Productivity is rising and this will fund the system adequately, he said.

Once a young researcher who was a member of the circle of Roosevelt's social planners, Cohen is now 50 years later the system's staunchest defender, traveling around the country as cochairman of the Coalition to Preserve Social Security.

He insists that weaknesses in the system were "repaired" as recently as 1983 when changes brought on largescale restructuring of its financial structure. The system now has a "considerable reserve," he believes.

Cohen's one-day visit to the Detroit area was precipitated by his appearance as the dinner speaker before the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Southeastern Michigan, a quasi-governmental health care

The program was, in part, designed to commemorate the Social Security system's jubilee year as well as the 20th anniversary of the Medicare and Medicaid programs.

Today, Cohen says the United States has hit "the lowest point of social responsibility of the last 50 years," and yet the long-time "New Dealer" isn't dissuaded from promoting ideas that will expand social responsibility to improve services for such people as the elderly, pregnant women, newborn infants and the nation's homeless.

A self-described economic-historian, Cohen says the ideas for most social improvements "were germinated when no one was for them."

He proposes, for instance, bold measures such as expanding the for instance, bold Medicare program to include nursing home care beyond the current 90-day limit. "I mean it should be covered for the rest of your life," he said.

And he would include coverage for long-term care at alternative facilities like hospices besides nuring homes. Financing, he proposed, could be worked out with portions paid by the individual, Medicaid and Social Security.

Cohen spoke with deep concern about the care of pregnant women and newborns, who rank high among those malnourished in this country. He advocated solving this social crisis through the development of an insurance plan, a "Kiddie Care" plan modeled after the Medicare program for the elderly, that would focus on prenatal care and the first year of a

Citing that three million children are born each year in the Uniyed States, he said "it's in the national interest for every child to be born wanted and

The need for prenatal care is acute, he said, particularly in addressing infant mortality rates and low birth

He also advocates expanded coverage of prescription drugs under the Medicare Program, which he helped start during the Johnson Administration,

And he says the Medicaid Program eventually should be paid completely by the federal government, as he notes President Reagan proposed five years ago. Currently in Michigan, for instance, the cost is split 50-50 by the federal and state governments.

Though today's political climate may be hostile to adding social programs, Cohen spoke with the perspective of an economic historian. He said most social improvements occur in 30-year cycles. The Social Security Administration was designed in 1935, yet Medicaid, one of its four central components, was not enacted until 1965. The other areas includ old age benefits, death benefits and help for the disabled.

As a young researcher, Cohen drafted the Social Security plan by studying the British plan of 1911, the German plan of 1881 and a host of others.

He held a list of governmental positions including spots in the cabinets of four presidents - Harry Truman, Roosevelt, John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson.

As for the future of Social Security, Cohen believes it must expand as the number of elderly over 65 continues to escalate. "Those people have to have some kind of protection and 60 percent of them vote," he said.

Cohen also supports Congressional efforts to remove it from the jurisdiction the Department of Health and Human Services and place it under a separate wing. "It's just too big. It has 70,000 employees, 1,300 local offices and 37 million drawing benefits," he noted.

During the summer months, Coehn makes his home in Ann Arbor and is a dean emeritus at the University of

013 Card of Thanks

THE family of Donald B. Gidprayers expressed when he was called "home" to be with our Lord. We thank Rev. Robert Beddingfield for his support, and for the beautiful funeral service. We thank Rev. Marion Sherrill for his words of comfort, and Rev. Williams for his kindnesses. We thank the musicians who comforted our hearts during the service.
"Thank you" to those who brought food, and those who watched the children and grandchildren; To the many neighbors, friends, and loved ones who sent flowers, called and prayed for us: To closest friends who served as pallbearers, to the police and medical team who assisted, we say "thank you." To Dick Phillips and staff for their courteous and professional care, to the members of First Baptist Church for their support and for the meal prepared after the funeral. While we miss him dearly, we know that our beloved husband and father is with the Lord because of the gift of salvation he received from Christ thirty-two years ago. Therefore, we rejoice in the fact that we will see him again beacuse of that "blessed hope, and glorious appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ." Titus 2:13. Sincerely, Mrs. Ava Gidcomb.

Halloween, for a lot of us, is our favorite holiday.

The chance to mask our everyday face and transform into someone or something else for just one night is a tantalizing opportunity, for adults as well as kids.

While there's nothing like a great big Halloween party thrown by friends or whoever, it's a tricky thing to organize. So in case you're not booked for the big day, we'll help you get in a ghoulish frame of mind for some Halloween festivities. As Sir Graves Ghastly used to say, "Happy haunting."

PLAYING

BY BRUCE MARTIN

With reports in recent years of abductions, dangerous costumes and the occasional tampered-with candy, Halloween this year may be more literally frightening than in a long time — for parents and for children. But there's no reason children can't enjoy trickor-treating just as much as their parents once did if some commonsense safety suggestions are followed:

□ Only trick-or-treat in familiar neighborhoods and at familiar houses. Plan to follow a route and designate a time to return. Consider drawing a single map route, making sure both child and parent have a copy.

☐ Alert your children to watch for "tricks" in their treats. Make sure they know not to eat anything until they get home and you have a chance to look over the treats for tampered wrappers or anything else suspicious.

☐ To assuage parents worried about the treats their children bring home, Providence Hospital in Novi will offer free x-ray screening of Halloween candy (detects metal objects, not chemicals) from 6-9 p.m. Thursday, October 31 (Halloween). The center is located at Ten Mile and Haggerty ☐ Costumes should be made of light-colored flame-retardant material, and large enough so that warm clothing can be worn underneath.

☐ Masks should be properly ventilated with holes for nose and mouth and large eye-holes for good visibility. Rest of all, use face designs or makeup instead of

Have children wear the mask on top of their head when walking. Pull it over the face only when reaching each home.

Motorists should be extremely careful entering or exiting driveways. Strange as it seems, wearing masks and distracting other drivers have caused serious accidents.

☐ When trick-or-treating, young children should always be accompanied by an adult. Older children should have a curfew.

□ Recidents staying home to distribute treats should keep an eye out for unusual circumstances or actions.

A haunted house sampler

By JEAN DAY

For youngsters too old to trick-or-treat, visiting scary haunted houses is a big part of the Halloween

There are plenty around from which to make a "comparative study." And while they're called haunted houses, two of this year's attractions are really even-more-scary haunted barns.

THE NOVI JAYCEES' haunted house, chock full of gruesome denizers, is located on Novi Road south of I-96 freeway (behind the old Novi Elementary School building). It's open from 7-11 p.m. daily through October 31. Entry costs $2.50, $1.50 for kids under 12.

 NORTHVILLE AND PLYMOUTH JAYCEES have joined forces to open a haunted house located on Five Mile Road three-quarters of a mile west of Sheldon. Hours are from 7:30-10 p.m. nightly through Halloween. Cost is adults $3, children $1.

This haunted house actually is an abandoned dairy barn on Wayne County property — one might call it a Halloween treat from the Wayne County Commission. The county had to displace the Jaycees from their location of the past six years: a cottage at the old Child Development Center now under development for the Jerome P. Cavanagh

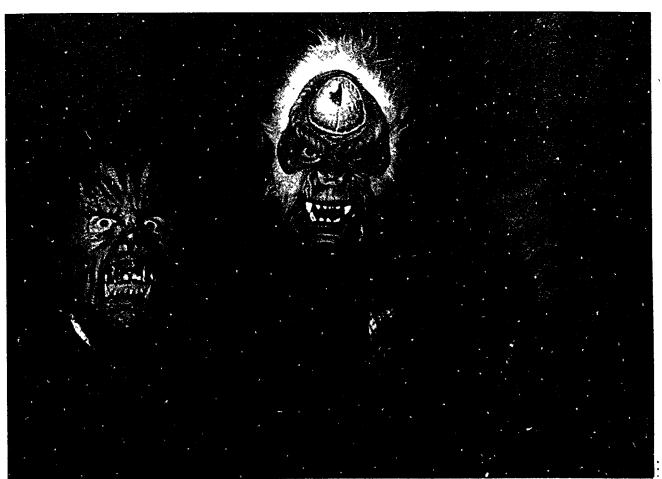

Senior Village housing project. According to Commissioner Mary Dumas, the commission learned the Jaycees were having difficulty finding a new site for the haunted house, a major fund-raiser for Jaycee activities such as Fourth of July fireworks. To help, commissioners instead authorized the use of the temporary site of the barn for a $1 lease.

IN FARMINGTON, ghosts and monsters are inhabiting a haunted store, located in Muirwood Square, Grand River and Drake Road. Cost is $2.50. Call 477-5227 if additional directions are needed.

f2COUNTY 4-H is hoping this Friday will be a cool, crip October night for the opening of its haunted barn located at 5454 Venoy Road in Wayne. It will be open October 25, 26, 27 and 30 from 6-10 p.m.

This is the third year that the Wayne County 4-Hers have run the barn haunted by Dr. Rigormortis and his monsters. Dr. Rigormortis reports that they "have created a maze that has only one true way out. That is, if you can make it out - for I will be looking for subjects to become my cadaver." Visits are a bargain at $1 a person. For additional information, call 721-6576 between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30

MILFORD AND HARTLAND Jaycees are joining forces to haunt at Ironwood Gold Course in Hartland on M-59, three miles west of U.S. 23. Hours are 8-11:30 p.m. October 25-30. Call 684-2795 for additional directions. Cost is $2.50.

These blood-curdling types await visitors to the Novi Jaycees haunted house

Katie Evans wed

Katie Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Evans of 19580 Crystal Lake Drive, became the bride of Floyd Raeon in a 6 p.m. service at Our Lady of Mercy Chapel in Farmington Hills September 28. Father J. Robert Schaden officiated.

The wedding ring given to the bride in the double ring ceremony circled her engagement ring, which was the bridegroom's grandmother's ring in its original set-ting. The service included the lighting of a symbolic unity candle.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Flovd Raeon of Jamestown, New York.

The bride's gown of white satin was styled with a high neckline with sequined lace insets on the bodice and long sleeves. The back was low cut, and the skirt extended into a chapel-length train. A small cap held the fingertip bridal veil of illusion. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and a hint of pink Connie Noftz of Birmingham was maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Sue Owen of Plymouth. They wore navy taffeta gowns styled with v-neck bodices and skirts featuring scalloped hemlines. They carried red roses, beige carnations and pink alstrameria.

Jim Raeon of Coer d'Alene, Idaho, was best man for his brother. Ushers were Ray Roddy of Marietta, Georgia, Michael Evans of Oakland, California, and Mark Evans of Waterford, brothers of the bride.

A reception followed at Mercy Conference Center for 150 guests. Special guests included Clare Walsh, great aunt of the bride, Joe Quinn, a cousin of the bride, and his family, all of Scranton, Pennsylvania, and Sabrena and Sari Raeon, nieces of the bridegroom, from Jamestown, New York.

After a wedding trip to Northern Michigan, the newlyweds are making their home in Canton, Georgia. The bride is a registered nurse employed in Georgia.

Austin Watermans mark 50 years

Last Saturday was Sweetest Day. For the Austin T. Watermans, October 19 has been Sweetest Day for 50 years.

The couple, who attended school together at the old Waterford School on Franklin Road in Northville, exchanged marriage vows on October 19, 1935, before the Reverend William Richards, a former Northville minister, at his home in Belleville.

Since their marriage, they have made their home at 16461 Homer, just around the corner from 43333 Reservoir Road where Austin Waterman was born. Although their mailing address is Plymouth, their home is in Northville

Mrs. Waterman, who was born in Detroit, was Louise C. Steinhebel before her marriage.

She first retired from Burroughs Corporation and then worked in Freydl's part-time. Her husband, who learned truck gardening from his parents, worked in a greenhouse before going to Ford Motor Company. Now retired, his hobby is gardening.

The couple's niece, and neighbor, Eunice Switzler, reports that Louise Waterman "is a collector, especially of plates." The couple had no children. More than 50 guests were to celebrate the Golden Anniversary with the Watermans last Saturday at a dinner party at the Elks Club in Plymouth. Special guests included former neighbors, Dorothy and Doyle McDonald from Tennessee, and family from Texas and

SORE THROAT

Sore throat is among the most common health complaints but, fortunately, is not usually symptomatic of serious health problems. Sore throat is often due to (1) irritation caused by smoke, prolonged talking, or sleeping with opened mouth, (2) irritation caused by drainage associated with allergy, (3) viral infection, and/or (4) bacterial infection. Pain often responds to use of throat lozenges or hard candy. Gargles and lozenges that contain anesthetics (numbing agents) provide temporary pain relief. Aspirin helps relieve both pain and inflammation; acetaminophen relieves pain but not inflammation.

In allergic individuals where drainage irritates the throat, use of an antihistamine and/or decongestant may decrease drainage and reduce pain. Taking such preparations before sleep may be especially beneficial and eliminate sore throat on arising.

Sore throat due to streptococcus infection (strep throat) is best treated with penicillin or substitute antibiotics. If untreated, the bacteria that cause strep throat can produce rheumatic fever, heart valve damage, and kidney damage.

The last thing you need now is problem with your renter's insurance.

Renting fits a mobile America's style.

When you rent, you may have attractive surroundings, tended grounds and on-call maintenance. And you have the freedom to move as your heart or your job takes you—without all the hassles of selling a house.

Although you have all these convenient luxuries, you also have many of the same liability and personal property risks as a homeowner. That's why Auto-Owners Apartment Dwellers Insurance protects the contents of your apartment from loss due to theft, vandalism, fire, water, wind and other losses. It protects you and your family if someone else is injured in an epartment accident.

And if something should happen to your apartment, Auto-Owners pays for your living quarters until you can return to your own apartment. Just ask your 'no problem' Auto-Owners agent about Apartment Dwellers Insurance. It's a good way to insure peace-of-mind.

Good news: Northville's winning, healing and Phil Pendleton rushed for a careerhigh 169 yards — 81 on one dazzling touchdown run — to spur the Northville Mustangs to a waterlogged 13-8 football victory over winless Plymouth Canton

The win lifted the Mustangs over the .500 mark for the first time since their season-opening win over Brighton. Northville is now 4-3 overall and 3-2 in the Western Lakes Activities Association's Western Division.

Last weekend's grid action locked Northville in a three-way tie with Livonia Churchill and Walled Lake Western in the Western Division final standings.

The Farmington Harrison Hawks (4-1 in Western Division) locked up their sixth division title in the last seven years with their 18-7 victory over Walled Lake Western Friday. The Hawks will take on Westland John Glenn (5-0 in Lakes' Division) for the conference championship this Friday night at Glenn. Northville's cross-division game will take place at 1 p.m. Saturday against North Farmington (3-4

Football

The Mustangs and the Chiefs stuck to the muddy ground during Friday night's downpour, with Northville passing just 10 times and completing four and Canton passing nine times and completing just one.

The Mustangs dominated the game statisticaly, running 65 plays for 290 total yards compared with Canton's 23 plays for 38 yards. But the Chiefs twice hung tough on deep Northville drives in the first half, forcing the Mustangs to settle for field goals of 29 yards and 26 yards by Sylvestre for a 6-0 halftime

"I was very glad Jack got us those points," said Northville Coach Dennis Colligan. "I give Canton a lot of credit. They did a good job of shutting us down when we got near their goal line.'

Northville opened the third quarter with two gives to Pendleton at the Mustang 19. On the first, the senior fullback was stopped for no gain. On the second, Pendleton picked up interior blocks from tackle Dan Boland and guard Adam Morris, cut outside behind a downfield block by Don Norton and galloped 81 yards for Northville's longest run from scrimmage this

Canton came back with a blocked punt for a safety, then used a pair of back-to-back personal fouls against Northville to drive to the Mustang seven. From there, quarterback Steve Jenyk ran in a keeper for the game's final score. Northville stopped a two-point conversion attempt.

Pendleton ended the game with a workmanlike 29 carries for his 169 yards, a career high and a season high for any Mustang this year. Tim Millen picked up 59 yards on 13 carries and quarterback Paul Newitt caried 13 times for 24 tough yards.

The Mustang defense again was brilliant, led by Tony Briningstool's 10 first hits and six first hits by Mark Deal, playing his first game since injuring his ankle in the season opener.

Another key player on the road to recovery is Gary Harper. Harper injured his knee in the season opener and was declared a doubtful prospect to return this year. But the senior tailback will resume practices with the team this week and should be in playing condition by Northville's season finale against Novi November 1.

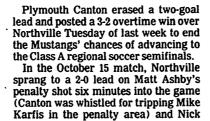

The North Farmington Raiders, whose 3-4 season record includes three overtime losses, will host the Mustangs at 1 p.m. Saturday. Led by 215-pound fullback Steve Goss, the big Raiders will test Northville's run defense.

Chiefs edge harriers for division crown

Last Thursday's battle for cross-country supremacy in the Western Lakes Western Division was everything you could want want in a cross-country

Northville Coach Ed Gabrys called the Northville-Plymouth Canton dual meet, the battle of the unbeaten men's squads, a "back-alley brawl," and indeed, runners from each squad swapped positions throughout the race.

But it was Plymouth Canton who won by a whisker, 25-30.

"We ran the best we have all year," said Coach Ed Gabrys. "Our team has been very consistent all year, and this was really the only close meet we've had."

Close it was. Canton's Jay Swiecki grabbed the first finish just barely ahead of Northville leader Kevin Haas. Haas ran a personal best 17:04 over the Cass Benton course. Canton picked up third and fourth to virtually seal the win, just ahead of Scott Wiley (17:41), John Kissinger (17:43) and Ken Booth (17:53) running fifth, sixth and seventh to take 10th place and Kevin Legel finished 13th four seconds behind him.

Northville's reserves avenged the loss in short order, beating Canton 35-25 to finish their dual meet division season 5-0. Leading the way was David Balok Northville fell to 4-1 to finish runnerup in the Western Division race. The Mustangs are 7-1 overall.

The meet capped a remarkable varsity season for Northville. The Mustangs lost a talented group of seniors from the '84 squad to graduation last spring, and few picked Northville to rebound strongly this year.

"I compared this year's team's times with our times last year," said Gabrys, "and you know what? This team would've won."

Gabrys is hoping the squad's positive mental state will carry over into this Saturday's Class A regional at Royal Oak Kimball High School. Northville is a dark horse candidate to earn a team trip to state, with powerhouses like Far-mington and Hazel Park running in the meet. But Gabrys said he thinks several Mustang runners may qualify Jeff Hoose ran a personal best 18:12 to run at the state meet as individuals.

Women's team, JV are finishing strong

Northville's women's cross-country team clinched a tie for second place in Western Division standings last Thursday by breezing almost uncontested past Plymouth Canton. The Chiefs lacked the required number of runners to register an official score.

The Mustangs ended their division dual meet season 3-2, tying with Canton and Walled Lake Western behind division champ Livonia Churchill (5-0). Jennifer Goshorn was nosed out for first place, but nearly matched her previous best Cass Benton time of 21:48 with her time of 21:51. Northville took the following four spots with Sue Blanchard (22:10), Wendy Nuechterlein (22:28), Pam Cavanaugh (23:11) and Nancy Belding (23:35).

The Mustangs, 4-4 overall, will compete at the Class A Regionals at Royal Oak Kimball High School at 10 a.m.

Northville's women and men reserves competed at the John Glenn Novice Invitational Tuesday, October 15, taking fifth of the 12 teams competing. It was the Mustang' best finish yet at the four-year-old meet.

In the women's meet, sophomore Goshorn placed seventh overall with a time of 22:32 on the John Glenn course. Freshman Belding placed 11th with a time of 23:39.

On the boys' side, John Kissinger placed third overall in 18:02, and Jeff Hoose earned a 13th-place medal, runn-

Harness racing returned to Nor-thville Downs October 14 for the opening of the 1985-86 winter racing season.

Two and three-year-old standardbreds take center stage during October in two divisions of the rich Michigan Sires Stakes. The divisions include the two-year-old filly trotters and the threeyear-old colt pacers.

Silvers KG, owned by Rob Thomasma of Sturgis, heads the eligibles in the two-year-old filly trot. Silvers KG has been in the money nine times in 11 starts this year and has accumulated $36,085 in earnings. Nobella Bells ($22,132 in earnings) and Tarport

The leading contenders among the three-year-olds colt pacers include Keith Crawford's Good By Design and Bank Teller owned by J.D. Cobb of Milford. Good By Design has won six of seven starts this year with total earnings just over $40,000. Bank Teller recorded a mile time of 1:58 at Hazel Park Raceway this year, a lifetime

New biathlon cancelled

A lack of entries forced the cancellation of the Plymouth-Northville Octoberfest Biathlon, according to Traci Johnson, supervisor of the Northville Recreation Center.

The biathlon was scheduled to run October 19 between Northville and Plymouth along Edward Hines Drive. The event was to consist of a five kilometer run followed by a 20K bike race and was to be co-sponsored by the Plymouth and Northville recreation departments.

Only nine applications were received in Northville and 20 in Plymouth when at least 75 were needed to run the event. "We will try to reschedule the (biathlon) next spring because people are generally more active that time of year and you usually get a better turnout," Johnson said, but added, "There are no definite plans for rescheduling

Quiz winner stays hot

Art Thompson of Farmington is on a roll. Three weeks ago he took first place in The Northville Record/Novi News football contest. Two weeks ago he finished second. And last week, Thompson returned to the winner's circle, winning the $15 first prize.

All told, Thompson has won $40 in the grid quiz over the past three weeks.

Thompson was one of three entrants to lead the field with just four misses in last week's contest. He was awarded first place on the basis of the tiebreaker, predicting that Iowa and Michigan would run up a total of 31 points in their Saturday showdown just nine points off the actual total of 22 in Iowa's last-second 12-10 victory.

The second prize of $10 goes to Bob Pode of Ann Arbor who was 16 points off the actual total in the tiebreaker, while the $5 third prize goes to a newcomer — Daren Johnson of Novi whose prediction of 42 points in the Michigan/Iowa game was 20 points off the actual total.

Deadline for submitting entries in the weekly grid game is Friday at 5 p.m. Check out this week's games, submit your entry and you could walk away with some extra spending money. Just ask Art Thompson — $40 bucks for 15 minutes' time over the past three weeks is nothing to sneeze at.

COLTS: Westland Meteors win two

VARSITY: The Coits' offense never got untracked and the Westland Meteors took advantage of numerous turnovers to score a come-from-behind 13-8 win. Doug Cody put the Coits in front 8-6 on a 55-yard interception for a touchdown, and a Garnett Potter kick. The detense again rose to the occasion, as Andy Wayne blocked a punt to give the Coits possession at the Meteor three yard-line. But the Coit stailed to take it in and jurned the ball the Colls failed to take it in and turned the ball right back over to the Meteors. The Colt defense played well, holding the Meleors to just one first down for the game, but the offense couldn't manage to cross the goal line. In the fourth quarter, the Colts drave inside the Meleor 10-yard line but turned the ball over on downs. With 40 seconds remaining, Kevin Delaney picked off a Meteor pass at midfield but again the Colts couldn't capitalize. Runningbacks Jeff Todd and Mark Helfinger gained some good yardage on the ground behind the blocking of lineman James Poindexter, Tony Nichols, Dave Buiz and Steve Uettering for the FRESHMEN: The Colt Freshmen used a tenacious defense and an opportunistic of-fense to shut out the Westland Meteors, 14-0. Chris Barbara's 19-yard touchdown run cap-ped a 62-yard Colt drive to open the game. In the second quarter, Jerry White tackled a Westland runner in the end zone for a safety to put the Colls up 8-0 at halftime. The Colls final score came on a 22-yard run by Danny Walsh in the third quarter. The rugged Colt delense lead by White, Eric Starkweather and Dennis Zielinski' held the Meteors to just 43 yards in total offense.

Mustangs jolt Chargers

By B.J. MARTIN

Remember when Livonia Churchill beat Northville's women's basketball team 34-32 last September?

The Mustangs did. And now Churchill has a sour one to remember.

Northville outscored the Chargers 12-0 in the final quarter to charge from a 29-25 deficit to a solid 37-29

For the first time this season, it was Northville's backcourt that provided the winning margin. The Mustang guard corps of Julie Anger, Jenny Stevens, Roxanne Serkaian and Chris McGowan combined to score 24 of Northville's points. Backup guard Jill Gallagher may have had as good a game as any of them, turning solid defense and good ball control down the stretch.

"All five of our guards did a really nice job," said Northville Coach Ed Kritch. "If you were to tell me at the beginning of the season we could win without any of our forwards scoring eight points, I would have said, 'No way.'

What happened down the final eight-minute stretch - the first quarter one of Northville's opponents has been held completely scoreless?

"We played good defense," Kritch said. "They panicked and during the last four minutes we played very intelligently and with enthusiasm."

Basketball

Northville shooters connected on eight of 13 foul shots in the final quarter.

Tricia Ducker had a game-high 12 rebounds and Stevens pitched in with six steals — in fact, the Mustangs had 16 steals from the guard corps alone

"We had a team effort that worked the whole game," said Kritch. "I'll tell you, if we can get our guards playing that way and our forwards playing the way they're capable, this is going to be a pretty solid team.'

The Mustangs looked anything but solid in a 39-29 loss to North Farmington Thursday. Led by 6'2" center Heather McPhillips, the Raiders jumped to a 13-4 first quarter edge, and Northville pulled no closer than four points through the rest of the game. Last week's split left Northville with a 6-6 overall record, 4-6 in the WLAA. The Mustangs currently trail 9-1 Plymouth Canton, 7-3 Churchill and 6-4 Livonia Franklin in division standings. Walled Lake Western also has a 4-6 record and Farmington Harrison is still winless in 10 conference games.

Northville will take on the Hawks tomorrow, then seek to avenge a loss to Walled Lake Western.

Churchill swims past tankers

Indoor Ring

First-place finishes by freestyler Shari Thompson, breast stroke specialist Erika Nelson and Northville's 400 yard freestyle relay team weren't enough to propel the Mustangs past swim power(boat)house Livonia Churchill last Thursday.

The Chargers handed the Mustangs their second loss in eight meets 103-69, taking firsts in the first seven events before Thompson's 500 yard free broke up the sweep.

By the time Nelson's victory and the victory posted by the 400 free relay were registered the meet clearly belonged to Churchill despite good swims by Sue Settles, Julie Hilfinger, Pam Wesley and Thompson in the free relay.
