Lobbying group blocks approval • of bill licensing restaurant wine

By KEVIN WILSON

Proponents of legislation that would expand the number of beer-and-wine licenses available to restaurants are having a tough go of it in the Michigan House of Representatives, where the organized opposition of the Michigan Licensed Beverage Association (MLBA) is being felt.

At issue is the so-called "Elizabeth's bill" targetted at granting tavern licenses (beer and wine sales for consumption on the premises) to restaurants, such as Elizabeth's in Northville, that meet certain criteria. The legislation would bypass Michigan's quota system for liquor license distribution in order to allow designated restaurants to sell wine or beer with meals. The MLBA, which represents bar, restaurant and hotel owners who already hold licenses, opposes exceptions to the quota. Efforts to pass the bill Tuesday morning generated a floor battle that produced a 55-48 vote to send House Bill 5050 to the house liquor control committee, according to state representative Gerald Law (R-Plymouth). The vote was later overturned on reconsideration, but another vote doesn't come up until December 3.

The vote to refer the bill to committee was the first test of the measure's support on the House floor, and showed proponents of the legislation to be at least eight votes short - 56 votes are needed to assure passage. The delay to next week gives the bill's supporters time to try to gather the needed votes. "To refer it back to committee will kill that bill," Law said Tuesday. "We don't want it to be sent to committee because that's where the MLBA is strongest An earlier bill with identical wording

• Holloway denied expansion license

By KEVIN WILSON

Citing evidence suggesting that groundwater contamination in the Napier Road area is the result of leaks from the Holloway Landfill, the Wayne County Department of Health has asked that the company's application for a license to expand its operation be denied.

Noting that preliminary examination suggests that residents with wells in the area are safe, the county also has decided to test several residential wells for contamination.

Wayne County was only notified of the potential contamination in early November, although the Michigan DNR and Washtenaw County health

In a letter to the DNR's Jackson office, Brown cited evidence that the landfill lining has failed in at least one location, allowing liquids and gas from the landfill to migrate into surrounding groundwater.

Brown's letter suggests that "additional work is needed to define the source and extent of the contamination" and outlines further investigative efforts that Wayne County authorities believe are needed. The letter also opposes a consent agreement being negotiated between Holloway and the DNR that would order immediate remedial measures east of Napier (excavation and removal of sand and soils believed to be contaminated) in exchange for approval of

District refinances 1983 bond issue

Anticipating a savings of nearly $1.5 million, the Northville Board of Education approved the refinancing of $8.9 million worth of bonds in a special call meeting Friday morning.

Prompted by the current favorable bond market, the school board approved the sale of the district's 1983 bond issue for renovation of Northville High School (at an average interest rate of 10.75 percent) at a lower interest rate of a lower interest rate.

"The district will save about $1.45 million over the life of the bonds,' Street said, adding that the savings will come at the end of the bond issue in the year 2008.

The district first discussed refinancing its 1983 bond issue last June and approved the refinancing proposal in August.

The district is able to refinance its bond issue in accordance with Public Act 157, signed into law June 21, 1984. The provision allows school districts situation since spring.

According to township supervisor Susan J. Heintz, the DNR has admitted to not recognizing that Napier Road was a county boundary and failing to contact Wayne County authorities when contaminants were found east of Napier.

After examining reports prepared earlier this year, Wayne County authorities disagreed with the conclusions that the contamination was primarily the result of road brining and feedlot substances east of Napier, con-cluding instead that the "landfill is strongly suspected of contributing to the environmental contamination," according to Wayne County health director Glenn Brown.

Brown argues that there is insufficient information available to know if excavation is the proper means of addressing the problem and contends that Holloway's license application be denied while further investigation is conducted.

"Should the Department of Natural Resources elect to enter into a consent order and issue the landfill license, this department hereby requests to be made a party to the consent order," Brown wrote. "Since the environmental contamination exists in Wayne County, and proposed remedial measures are to be taken in Wayne County, it is appropriate for a Wayne County agency to be directly involved in the drafting and implementation of the consent order.'

Restaurant ordinance amendment recommended

After months of phrasing and November 19 Planning Commission rephrasing, the Northville City Planning Commission finally recommended approval to the city council of an ordinance that better defines potential new restaurants and outlines where they will be permitted to locate in the area

The commissioners voted 7-0 during a meeting in favor of an amendment of four sections of the current zoning ordinance. The amendment specifically defines four types of eateries: sit-down restaurants, sit-down and drive-in/thru restaurants, take-out restaurants and home deliver restaurants.

If the city council approves the ordinance, all restaurants defined as either Drive In/Thru or Home Deliver will not be permitted to build or locate in the Central Business District.

A major stumbling block in the recommendation process was questions raised about the proper wording and destinctions between the different types of restaurants. The commission, in previous weeks, had trouble defining phrases like "Drive In" to the satisfac; tion of all the members.

άŢ

A public hearing about the proposed ordinance will be held January 6 at Northville City Hall. The city council will act immediately following the hearing.

Supreme Court upholds exemption on foster homes

The Michigan Supreme Court last week upheld lower court decisions ruling that state-licensed adult foster care homes are exempt from local restrictions

The 6-0 vote November 21 dashed the hopes of cities such as Livonia and Southfield, which wanted to see local zoning restrictions applied to group homes

The issue is of interest locally, where strong opposition was .voiced when several group homes located in the township. While local officials opposed the sitings, and residents argued that their property values would be damaged, the furor died down after the homes opened.

The issue reached a fever pitch in Livonia, however, and that city eventually brought suits against three statelicensed homes in areas zoned for single family use, concentrating on issues of zoning violations, building deficiencies, deed restrictions and licensing procedures. The three Livonia cases and a similar one filed by a Southfield subdivision association centering on placement of mentally ill persons in group homes, were con-solidated for high court consideration. The unanimous court opinion (Justice

"We don't want to do away with them, just change the language and give cities more participation in their placement."

— Lyn Bankes

Dorothy Comstock Riley abstained) upheld rulings in favor of the group home program handed down by Wayne Circuit Judge Roland Olzark and Oakland Circuit Judge Robert Webster.

Livonia city attorney Harry Tatigian and Mayor Edward McNamara said the only recourse cities now have is to get legislators to change Public Act 218, which sets up and defines the group home system.

Representative Lyn Bankes (R-Livonia) said legislators are researching possible changes to make group home placement "more manageable. We don't want to do away with them, just change the language and give cities more participation in their placement."

Assistant Attorney General William

Basinger, representing the state Department of Social Services, said the supreme court decision based on arguments made in May, 1984, supported the state position fully.

"We won on every point," he said. "Our position on how the public act should be interpreted was upheld in every way.

Detroit attorney Jon Garrett, who represented group home owners and operators, said the decision marked "a ig day for the handicapped."

Garrett said the ruling means "handicapped people have the right to some foster-family type of living. They are not restricted in any way other than there can't be two facilities within 1,500 feet. They can have access to any neighborhood they desire."

Tatigian called Livonia's position a "zoning issue" and said the challenge was not one involving the rights of mentally handicapped or mentally ill persons

An unofficial court summary of the 12-question case made these major points:

 "Adult foster care facilities remain exempt from local zoning ordinances." The court found that local zoning cannot be used to defeat an important purpose of the licensing act.

 "An adult foster care facility providing care and supervision for six or less persons is engaged in a residential use of property," refuting arguments that group homes are businesses improperly located in residential districts. A challenged section of the state zoning act "does not impermissibly divest home rule cities of constitutional and stautory authority ... Local ordinances must give way to conflicting constitutional and statutory provisions."

• The state licensing and zoning acts "do not unconstitutionally delegate legislative authority to the Department of Social Services ..." as one suit charged.

• State laws "provide for adequate notice and for an opportunity for a hear-ing prior to licensure of adult foster care facilities, and provide for a fair and impartial decisionmaker." The decisionmaker cited is the DSS director and the department's hearing officers. "All adult foster care facilities may provide foster care to mentally persons," though in practice not every mentally ill person is a "proper can-didate" for such placement. • Deed restrictions were not violated by adult foster care small group homes. 'Any increase in traffic and parking problems with regard to all the homes is no greater than that which could have arisen had a large traditional family occupied the homes."

Winter Awareness Week observed in Michigan

Governor James Blanchard has declared the week of December 1-7 as Winter Awareness Week and urges the public to learn how to protect themselves from the hazards of severe weather and to take steps to reduce risks for a safe winter season.

Snowy and icy roads, overexposure and frostbite due to extreme cold, overexertion from snow removal, isolation in homes due to heavy snowfall and the increased probability of residential fires due to the use of wood and kerosene as alternative fuels are a few of the pitfalls of a Michigan winter. Captain Peter Basolo, director of the State Police Emergency Management Division, offers some suggestions to ensure a safer winter season.

He cautions the public to pay attention to weather advisories and act accordingly. When a severe storm is predicted, don't go outside unless you absolutely must. Layers of protective clothing are more effective than a single layer of thick clothing. Avoid over-exertion and exposure.

Make sure your car is in good condition, properly serviced and equipped for winter driving. Keep the gas tank full and have emergency supplies such as a shovel, flashlight, and blanket

Automated library system's on-line

Northville Public Library last week became the 10th member of the Wayne-Oakland Library Federation (WOLF) to go on-line with a computerized circulation system that will streamline library operations.

Library Director Anne Mannisto said Northville is in the vanguard of an automation movement that began about four years ago.

"We are going to be the smallest online library to date," she said, adding that automation eventually will extend throughout the WOLF system.

Two years ago, the Northville library began registering patrons and issuing plastic cards with a numbered barcoded label - informally called a "zebra." Each of the library's 30,000 volumes also have been barcoded.

A major advantage of the automated system is that it eliminates paperwork in the check-out process, Mannisto said. With the new system, patrons present their library cards at the circulation desk where a staff member passes a light wand over the zebra numbers to record the transaction.

Under the former sign-out system, patrons filled out charge slips for each item borrowed.

. With the new automated system, patrons will be required to have their · library cards with them to check out materials, Mannisto said. Northville and Northville Township residents should have a green Northville card. Cards from other WOLF libraries also will be accepted. The card is free, but a $2 fee will be charged to replace lost or damaged cards. In addition to making the check-out process easier, Mannisto noted the new automated system provides more efficient access to books available at other libraries. Northville and other automated WOLF' libraries share a data base linking all their holdings.

When a book is not on a shelf in Northville, staff members can check the computer to determine its status elswhere.

"We will have instantaneous information as to where books are," Man-nisto said. A book can be held at another library for the patron to pick up.

Automation also will improve the library's interloan capability which allows patrons to borrow books from other WOLF libraries.

Though library personnel have been training for several months on the new system, the staff still is learning new techniques, Mannisto said.

"The best way for patrons to help is to have their library cards ready when they come to the desk," she explained.

Mannisto also urged patrons to clear up existing overdues during the startup phase of automation. The maximum fine is $2 for an adult book and $1 for a children's book, or a maximum of $10 if all overdues are brought in at once.

Under the new system, the computer will generate overdue notices with bills for overdues mailed to the patron. The computer also will send notices of unpaid fines on books already returned and will generate bills for replacement on lost books.

Volunteers from the Friends of the Northville Public Library and other groups have donated "many hours" to help prepare for automation, Mannisto said. Tasks included barcoding books, entering patron data on the computer and placing due-date labels in books.

Civic Concern appeals for food donations

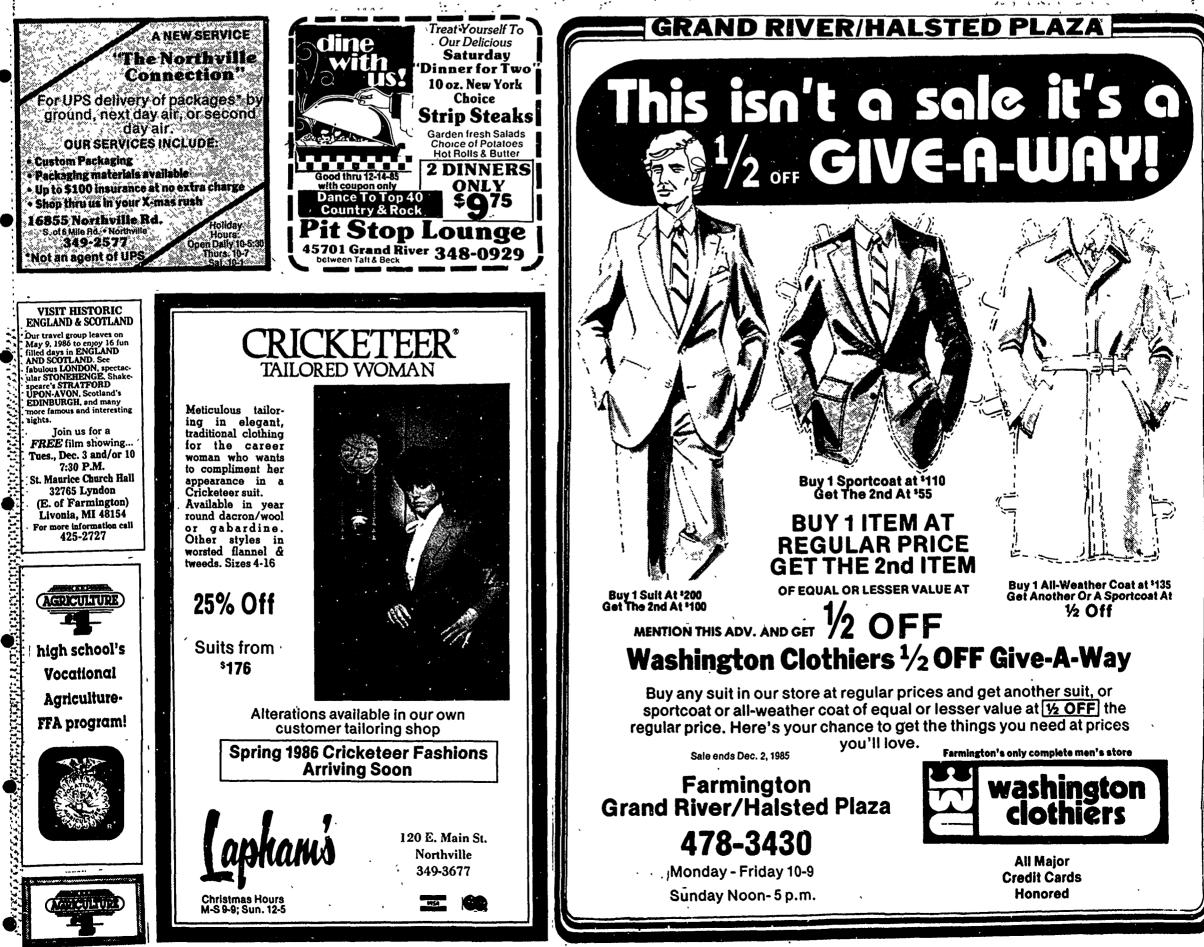

C.A. Smith Civic Concern, the local charitable organization, is anxious to increase donations of food to fulfill the demand from needy families through the holidays

Marlene Kunz, secretary of the organization, reports that the Salvation Army ordinarily provides 85 boxes of food to Civic Concern for the holiday period. This year, that source is not forthcoming and the organization is falling ween 25 and 27 families per week," Kunz said. "We're down to about five boxes right now with the holidays com-through the holidays."

Those wishing to make tax-deductible donations of food or money can contact Kunz at 348-8697 or call Bruce Roy Realty at 340-8700 and ask for Sherry or Ann.

Bo meets car, Bo loves car

By B.J. MARTIN

It almost sounds like car theft: A pretty lady tells the people at Ford she needs a car to make a "planned" movie. Lo and behold, she drives off into the sunset in a gleaming white $24,000 Lincoln Town Car. Free.

But it's understandable. Bo Derek is the kind of woman it's hard to say "no"

If they minded the giveaway, the folks on the second shift at the Wixom Lincoln-Mercury Ford assembly plant ast Thursday didn't show it. Assembly One workers in jeans and T-shirts and white-collar good old boys alike whooped it up when Bo and filmmaker husband John Derek dropped by to pick up their new car and watch workers put on its finishing touches.

The California couple's planned novie tentatively is called Drive. It's a Saga woven around the — let's face it, httle-documented — concerns of modern-day cattle ranchers. Bo plays the heroine.

As Bo explained it to swarming paparazzi at the plant, she and John are planning to make an "old-fashioned, (Frank) Capra-like film about people supporting each other." But she added it's doubtful Drive will have enough gas to make it to the theatres by this time important part in the movie, as a symbol of the ranching lifestyle, the Dereks explained.

"It's not written yet," Bo said. Got to admire her candidness.

"It's to reflect a status symbol thing," John Derek said. "They're cer-tainly on a par with anything coming out of Europe."

"We looked around for the most comfortable car we could find," Bo said. "We looked at about everything. And I've been saying for years we need to buy American.'

So, you're wondering, how did Bo look as Ford execs gave her the VIP tour of the assembly line and factory?

Well, Bo stayed pretty well covered up in a navy pea-coat, brown pants and off-white sweater - you could say she was about two-tenths exposed. But the parts you could see were California tawny, a shade in short supply in the Wixom plant. Her once multi-braided blonde hair was now in one big braid that reached all the way down her back. According to the well-scrutinized star of 10 and the less-acclaimed if equally visually enticing Tarzan and Bolero, she "might" stay covered up for Drive. We'll see.

She shook hands, signed autograph upon autograph and smiled the way anybody getting a free $24,000 car might. Plant cafeteria cook Ken Beattie surprised Bo with a one-day-late birthday cake (her 29th birthday, she reported).

Bo's next stop was in Ann Arbor to deliver a pep talk to the world's secondmost-famous Bo - Schembechler, that is - whose Wolverines were gearing up for Saturday's showdown with Ohio State. "I wish we could stay for the game," she said. "But we have to get back on the road."

Yep, being a star isn't easy. Except when buying a car.

Novi sets hearing for convention center district ordinance

By B.J. MARTIN

December 18 could become the point of no return in creating a new convention center area in central Novi.

That's when Novi City Council will conduct a public hearing on whether to institute a convention center zoning district designed earlier this year.

The district would waive the city's five-story building height limitation and give developers a legal location for what is expected to be an eight-story addition to the Sheraton Oaks hotel.

The expanded hotel would adjoin the planned one-story fashion/exposition center — which lately has been going by several different names.

After preliminary discussion months ago simply referred generally to a "convention center," developers officially referred to the projects as the Midwest Fashion Center and the Midwest Exposition (or Expo) Center when introducing "project plans" and requesting bond approvals from city officials.

But Bankers Trust Company, the firm which will place the $16 million worth of City of Novi Economic Development Corporation development bonds which will finance the project, has referred to the project as the Sheraton Market Hall-Convention Center and Apparel Mart. Bankers Trust has given the Dallas Market Center Company (an entity related to Trammell Crow), which is backing the expo/fashion center, until December 31 to deliver the bonds in definitive form. After that date, changes in federal tax laws are expected to tighten restrictions on bondbacked projects.

In the meantime, fashion/expo center developers and City of Novi officials are doing their best to cooperate on ushering through the project approvals by the December 31 deadline.

Developers have said the entire project might have to be scrapped if the deadline can't be made, but Dallas Market Center representative Tom pieces will fall together. "I'm very pleased with the city staff and we're looking forward to becoming part of your community," Murray told members of city council and the Novi Planning Board in joint session Monday. At the joint session, the board gave its approval to "project plans" for the expo/fashion center.

"Project plans" differ from site plans in that specifics of building, traffic, engineering and landscaping are not addressed. "In effect, it's a philosophical approach we're taking, explained Ernest Aruffo, chairman of the planning board.

City attorney David Fried advised Murray said he "anticipates a lot of the planning board members the only criteria they are empowered to use as a basis for evaluating project plans are: whether the land included in the project plans is economically sufficient; whether the project plans are in reasonable accord with the Master Plan; whether the project plans are practicable and in the public interest; whether public services would be adequate for the project; and whether a change of zoning is reasonably necessary for the project to proceed.

Concerns over other aspects of the project, Aruffo pointed out, could be addressed in the planning board's review of preliminary and final site plans for the project in December.

While the board approved the project plans 8-1 (only Isabel Collins voted "no"), several concerns the board has with the project were illuminated in its discussion of the project Monday.

Collins angrily complained the project plans contained little useful information about the project. "I have about a million things I wanted to ask," she said. "I think it's bad business to vote on something we don't have any information about.'

One concern was Board Member Charles Kureth's point that there exists no provision in the Master Plan for a convention center. Kureth and Board Member Joseph Toth additionally pointed out existing city fire equipment is insufficient for fighting a fire in an eight-story building.

Which is more dangerous: living with cataracts or having them removed?

Why do many people who are quite sensible put off having cataract surgery? Why are they willing to give up many of life's greatest pleasures and even risk blindness when normal vision is within reach. It's primarily because they're afraid and that's because they've been misinformed.

At Livonia Cataract Center we have performed thousands of cataract removals and lens implantations. We can assure our patients that they have everything to gain and little to fear from cataract surgery.

With today's advanced procedures, cataract surgery takes only a short time and patients usually go home the same day. There is little discomfort before or after surgery, and free transportation will gladly be provided to and from the operation if you need it.

Livonia Cataract Center would welcome the opportunity to give you an unhurried step-by-step description of what you will experience. Call us at 522-0805. We can remove the fear and help you return to good vision.

Santa Claus rides into Northville

Sunday's Christmas Walk one of the most successful in its more than 30-year history, according to local merchants and business owners.

"The crowds were fantastic," said Dewey Gardner, owner of Four Seasons Flowers and Gifts and winner of this year's President's Award for window decoration.

"Most of the merchants I've talked to said they had record-breaking sales," Gardner remarked, adding that downtown stores were jammed with shoppers throughout the afternoon.

The newest feature of this year's Christmas Walk proved to be among, the most popular events last Sunday. Gardner noted that the downtown parade, which started at the Northville Community Building and routed down Main Street to Mill Race Village, attracted throngs on onlookers.

Heading the parade in a horse-drawn carriage were Northville Mayor Paul Vernon and Township Supervisor Susan Heintz.

Santa and Mrs. Claus, special guests in this year's parade, were dropped off at the Town Square park where they spent the afternoon accepting Christmas lists from eager youngsters. "Santa said he has never seen a

In addition to holiday fanfare and shopping, throngs of participants gathered in town to view the decorated windows of merchants and business owners.

Judges in this year's window decorating competition included Kay Keegan, past executive director of the chamber; City Clerk Kathy Conrad and Township Clerk Georgina Goss. For the second time, Four Seasons languished in the house liquor control committee since early June, according to aides to Senator Jack Faxon (D-Southfield), author of the legislation.

The bill was written around the needs of Elizabeth's, where a policy of allowing patrons to bring wine with them recently ran the owners afoul of the law. It would not allow the licensees to install a bar and targets the new licenses to restaurants where the availability of beer and wine is considered a necessity for economic purposes.

Faxon recently made another stab at passing the measure by adding it as an amendment to HB 5050, which in its original form deals only with granting additional licenses to municipally owned golf courses and was introduced by representative Law. In its original form, Law's bill was approved by the committee and agreed to by the MLBA. The floor battle yesterday focused only on Faxon's amendment.

Law gathered support for the golf course licenses, although they also are exceptions to the quota system, by agreeing to a compromise making the legislation applicable only in counties with a census population of more than 1 million. In effect, that limits the bill's impact to Oakland and Wayne counties. He said Tuesday he will explore the possibility of similar compromises on the Faxon amendments.

"I don't know yet if (the MLBA and house committee members) are willing to compromise, but we're going to find out," Law said. "If they're going to say 'no' to everything, I want to know right away."

Noting that the only discussion thus far has dealt with Faxon's legislation that calls for 50 licenses annually for four years to be issued statewide, Law said there are several possible compromises.

"Maybe they'd agree to it if we try limiting it to counties over 1 million (population)," I.aw said. "Or maybe we'll go for just one year, so there's only 50 licenses instead of 200. Or give it a one year trial period and look at the next three years after that. There are a

Such compromises might be reached in committee, Law said, but he would prefer to tackle the issue on the house floor to expedite matters.

"If it winds up in committee, it can take months to get the bill back out places like Elizabeth's can't wait that long," Law said. "For now, we're going to do a band-aid approach to try to get something out of this for Elizabeth's and, I assume, some other places in similar circumstances."

It goes on to explain that a restaurant in the Sit-Down catagory cannot have "any exterior window opening which permits food and beverages to be picked up ... for consumption off the premises or within an automobile on the premises."

A Take-Out establishment is categorized as "a restaurant where food and beverges are purchased but not generally consumed on the

Vernon presses for regional master plan

Northville Mayor Paul Vernon is leading a drive to consolidate planning functions among several communities. almost single-handedly championing the idea in communications with the leaders of Novi and Northville Township.

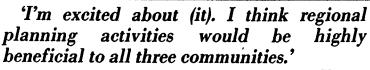

Vernon, having noted an article in a municipal publication outlining a cooperative master planning venture elsewhere in the state, began touting the idea in late October. In his earlier discussion of the concept, Vernon said a master plan of land use that encompassed both the city and township of Northville could justifiably target downtown Northville as the major commercial center for the area while Northville Township has the potential for extensive light industrial

A key element in Vernon's support of such community-wide planning is that the city and township share a school system and development in either area would increase the tax base of the school district.

Conditional confusion

Legal advice suggesting that a rezon-ing can be made conditional on a developer's plans — in direct contradiction of a principle widely used in local planning - sent the Northville City Council into brief confusion November

At issue was the R-3 (multiple family) zoning at East Street and Baseline, where the planning commission recently approved a site plan for a 12-unit condominium complex.

A review of city records, however, suggests that the zoning was changed in 1976 because the developer at that time had planned only eight units - far fewer than allowed by the R-3 classification.

A restriction to eight units was cited in the city council motion approving the rezoning, but was not made a part of the actual amendment to the city zoning map, since there is no provision for additional restrictions beyond those contained in the zoning ordinance itself.

· A standard planning assumption in both the city and township is that rezoning cannot be conditional - if the zoning class defined by the ordinance allows a certain density of units, height or building setback, the developer is free to build to those standards and cannot be held to more restrictive ones.

But city attorney James Kohl, in reviewing this particular city case, noted that some court decisions have supported the notion of putting restrictions on a rezoning if the local zoning ordinance specifically allows conditional zoning

Northville's ordinance does not ad-dress the issue and city manager Steven Walters suggested two potential responses - either establishing a city policy, on record, which says zoning is never subject to conditions, or calling a new public hearing for the purpose of making the zoning ordinance as it applies at East and Baseline subject to the conditions stated in the 1976 city council motion

After a wide-ranging discussion during which council member Paul Folino strongly supported the idea of imposing restrictions on zonings and Carolann Ayers opposed it, council decided to take the first course, affirming its longstanding policy of not imposing conditions on zoning.

Mayor Paul Vernon initially said he thought the idea of imposing restric-tions should be investigated, but after detailed discussion of the mechanics of the situation decided against that course. G. Dewey Gardner took a split course, citing council's long understanding that conditions were not possible as reason to oppose a rezoning of the property in question, but suggesting that future rezonings might be made subject to conditions in light of the legal advice. New councilmember John Buckland had little to say on the subject but eventually sided with the majority. Ayers, as the most vocal opponent of the conditional zoning, argued that it would create, in effect, "a separate zoning ordinance for every piece of proper-ty in the city" as varying restrictions were placed on each parcel.

While not going so far as Ayers, Gardner said he thought it would be wrong for council to attempt to impose conditions on a 10-year-old zoning decision.

"I'm not saying it's wrong (to impose conditions), but it would be wrong in this case," Gardner said. "It is and always has been council policy that conditions cannot be imposed on zoning."

Folino, who said he has argued with city attorneys over this very point, was encouraged by the evidence of court decisions in favor of conditional zonings and wished to establish such a system here

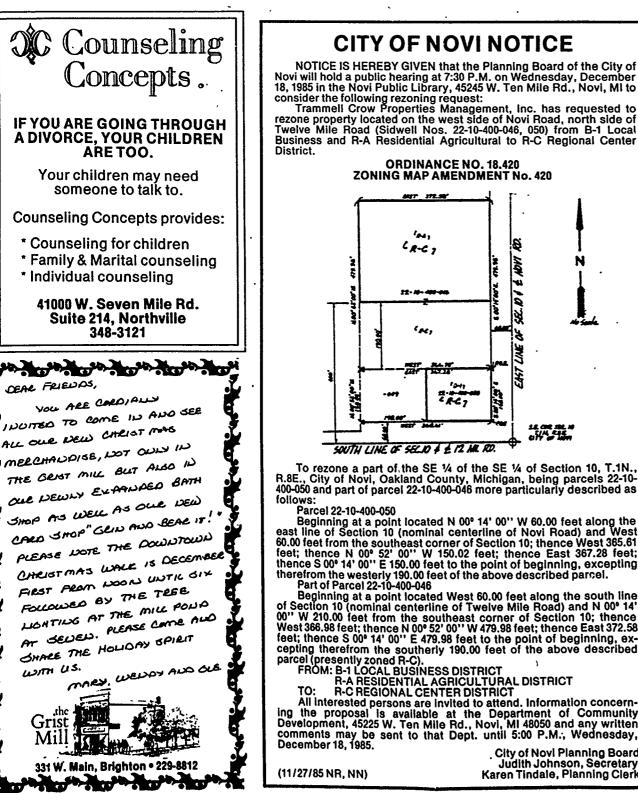

Citing situations in which developers show proposed site plans that entice the city to alter zoning, then never build the proposed project, Folino said condi-tional zoning would protect the city and insure that the projects desired when a rezoning is approved are actually built.

"To me, a developer comes into a community, makes these great promises, gets the zoning he wants, takes the money and runs," Folino said.

But other council members argued that such situations suggest that planners and council should review rezoning requests on the merits of what a zoning class allows rather than what a developer proposes.

Walkin' Jim Stoltz returns to Raven

By B.J. MARTIN

This Saturday, the Raven will close the way it opened -- with Walkin' Jim Stoltz at the microphone.

Stoltz was the first musical artist to perform at The Raven series when Northville music entrepreneur Tom Rice resurrected The Raven last year. Unfortunately for Rice, Stoltz may be the last (see related story).

In the year since he last appeared here, Walkin' Jim has continued walkin', most recently out east around the Smoky Mountains. Last December, the Montana resident stopped walking long enough to put out a self-distributed record, Spirit Is Still On The Run on Lone Coyote records.

Spirit features 11 tracks Stoltz calls homemade songs."

"Ten were written out on the trail. They're back-country songs," he explains. "They've been getting a lot of good reactions from people."

Stoltz's music draws on imagery from the great outdoors gathered from his observances as, literally, a walker. Stoltz has logged thousands of miles walking from place to place across the U.S., from mountains to seasides even across deserts.

"Desert walking's not so bad," he says. "You just have to go the right time of year. This one time I nearly died on a desert in southern Idaho because I went at the wrong time of year ... I've had a lot of narrow escapes. That's part of the appeal."

"Walking the back country, you get a sense of what was out there before man came along and messed it all up," says Stoltz. "When you go out for months at a time and meet challenges as you face them, it becomes a big boost to your self-confidence."

"Sometimes it's like I walk right through that time barrier," he adds. "When I play, I try to consider that and bring that across.'

Through the spacious, mellow pace of his songs and his primeval, expansive lyrics, Stoltz says he hopes to "get people back in touch with nature, with the planet and with themselves."

Walkin' Jim Stoltz will perform at 8 p.m. this Saturday at The Raven, 303 West Main, Northville. Tickets are $6 and available at The Gitfiddler music store. Doors open for refreshments and snacks at 6 p.m. For additional information, phone 349-9420.

Tom Rice closes door on Raven coffeehouse

"It's our last show, but I know it won't be our last show," said Tom Rice. When the folk music patrons file out of The Raven coffeehouse after Walkin' 'Jim Steltz's musical program Saturday night. Rice will close the door on his ambitious entrepreneurial enterprise behind them.

When Rice, owner-operator of the Gitfiddler music store, opened The Raven last year, his hopes were The Raven could fly again, and offer western suburbanites a chance to hear acoustic music in an intimate setting. His ideal was based on the old location of The Raven in Southfield, a regular stopping place for many outstanding folk artists and a favorite hangout for Rice in the '60s and early '70s.

The new setting, not entirely by choice, was in the Northville Community building downtown. While not really a bad place to hear music, it was far from the ideal setting needed to succeed purveying music somewhat out of step with predominant musical tastes.

Smart

In the months that followed its open-ing last year, Rice hunted for several alternative locations in the area. But none worked out to his satisfaction or to the dictates of his pocketbook. With sparse turnouts for several recent programs, Rice said he will have to deep-six The Raven until a more suitable roost can be found.

"I didn't want to set it in a bar," Rice explained. "I like having a family atmosphere, a place you can actually listen to the musicians. But I've got to admit it, we're just taking too much of a loss this way.

Rice said he may consider opening The Raven again, perhaps in a quiet bar setting. "Maybe someplace that serves nice imported beers, the kind people won't be chugging on all night and getting crazy.

'It was a good test of the market," Rice said of his venture. "I'm still con-vinced it's there. We'll just have to sit back for a while and see what the future holds."

WALKIN' JIM — Walkin' Jim Stoltz, the first performer to open at The Raven coffeehouse in Northville, will make a final appearance Saturday night. Stoltz most likely will be the last artist featured at the year-old coffeehouse which will close its doors after Saturday's performance.

Mayor's proposal

12-A-THE NORTHVILLE RECORD-Wednesday, November 27, 1985

Tots tout TV toys

By Kevin Wilson

We hope township officials take seriously Mayor Paul Vernon's suggestion that planning functions of the city and township could be more unified.

We believe most people in this community consider themselves Northville residents, rarely making a distinction between city and township. Township residents generally consider downtown Northville *their*downtown and city residents take advantage of the parks and other amenities in the township without regard to the boundary.

There is strong logic, too, behind Vernon's contention that residents of both city and township benefit when the tax base of the school district is expanded. With the schools levying the vast majority of the property tax, it is to everyone's advantage to spread the burden. To some degree, accommodation has already been made on the planning front. In the past few years, township planners have abandoned a master plan that would have allowed commercial development at Six Mile and Sheldon. That potential competition only a mile from downtown Northville was not in the community-wide interest, though it would have been a good thing for the township tax base.

That's not to say there is no place for commercial land uses in the township — there is a strong argument for some business uses along Haggerty and along Five Mile to serve the high traffic volumes near the freeways. Those are detail considerations, though, that we hope can be tackled in useful discussions between city and township planning authorities. The mayor has the right idea — let's get the ball rolling. It's happening. The kid is barely three years old, and already he spent most of Saturday morning leafing through an advertising flyer from one of the big toy-store chains that came with the Sunday funnies, telling Dad: "I want this, and this, and this, and this."

Suspecting we had entered new heights of normal childish greed, I asked what he would do with one particular item he had pointed to several times. "I don't know," came the reply. "I don't know what it is."

There's still hope: greed has not yet overcome that innocent childhood honesty we all admire, but rarely emulate. Why would he want something when he doesn't know what it is? "It has wheels."

He's consistent. Last year's Christmas list was three words long: Cars and trucks. The mall Santa tried to pump him for more, even suggesting standards like blocks, trains and rocking horses (this guy isn't working in a mall for nothing), but Sean just shook his head; all he wanted was cars and trucks.

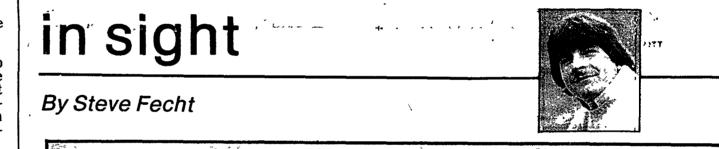

This year, though, we're getting detail. And, not surprisingly, brand names that are trumpeted on the limited selection of commercial TV shows he gets to watch. Most Saturday morning stuff is still off-limits in our house. There's Sesame Street and maybe one network cartoon show (Muppet Babies is his usual choice though his folks often press for Bugs Bunny). If we don't turn it off, Dad takes over, hunting up stuff like This Old House and auto racing telecasts.

Still, the kid finds enough commercials to fuel his toy lust. Thus far his list includes something called Drive-N-Play (he calls it "Driving Play," which is probably a better descriptive title and shows he has more respect for grammar than do most marketing types), a targeted-at-boys doll named "My Buddy" and the Cookie Counter, an educational electronic gizmo starring Cookie Monster of Sesame Street fame. I'm waiting for the big bombs to drop, though. His list of television favorites recently expanded to include Knight Rider and I don't expect it will take long for him to discover there are toys out there patterned after the show's star: a talking Pontiac Firebird. He likes two other evening network shows — Cosby and Highway to Heaven. Neither, fortunately, has yet been exploited to turn little children into walking toy advertisements that assault parents at the point-of-purchase.

Sharp parents may have noticed that none of the shows mentioned are leaders in the increasing number of programs that are little more than continual advertisements — the Smurfs, Rainbow Brite, Transformers, Masters of the Universe, etc. That's partially by design, partially by luck, and partially because Sean may be a smidgen young to fall into the target market. I swore before he was born that I'd have no Smurfs in my house. The first one arrived before he was a month old. We've since been infiltrated by Care Bears, Masters of the Universe characters, a Cabbage Patch product and various others.

By design, (also known as saying "no") these shows are not normally on our viewing list. By luck, Sean is either too young or too smart to pay any attention to them when a well-meaning adult tunes in one of these atrocities. He looks at it a minute or two, decides it's boring and goes off to play with cars and trucks or ask an adult to read him a story. If the set stays on anyway, he comes back to watch the commercials.

I think the kid is on to something: the shows are intrinsically boring because all they really are is commercials. Meanwhile, commercials are getting more creative out of necessity — they have to do something to get people to wake up. Nope, the kid's all right. The one I worry about is his little brother, the one-year-old who started walking last week. He toddles up to the set, points to the people on the screen, babbles something at them, and waves good-bye when they go away. I keep seeing that scene in "Poltergeist" when Drew Barrymore stares into the TV set and says, "They're here."

MEAP scores show disruption minimal

Though we normally hesitate to compare student scores on the Michigan Educational Assessment Program, this year's performance by Northville fourth, seventh and tenth graders is deserving of comment.

In a year of considerable changes, the district should be proud that students gave one of their best performances on the MEAP with a higher level of achievement attained on every objective in both mathematics and reading.

District scores improved in four areas with a dramatic increase seen at the seventh grade level in mathematics. This year's fourth graders gave a sterling performance in both mathematics and reading with 96.6 percent of the students accomplishing 75 percent or more of the mathematics objectives and 94.1 percent accomplishing 75 percent or more of the reading objectives. the resiliency of children and the dedication of the teaching staff.

Despite the closing of two schools, implementation of the middle school program and split scheduling at the high school, Northville students retained their high level of performance on the statewide testing program.

While MEAP is only one measure of student achievement, we believe this year's performance should help dispel the critics' claims that this year's districtwide changes have adversely affected the educational level of the district. The Northville Record

As one administrator pointed out, this year's MEAP results have taught the district something about While the students clearly are deserving of praise, we believe much of the credit for their success goes to the teaching staff which managed to stay on task despite the changing environment.

As Dolly McMaster, director of curriculum and instruction, pointed out to the board of education, this year's performance will be a hard act to follow.

Keep to cable topic

We hope Northville City Council (and particularly Mayor Paul Vernon) can tone down the rhetoric and focus attention on the issue at hand when next it considers the transfer of the local cable television franchise to Harcharan (Harry) Suri.

Suri's citizenship or national origin should have no bearing on the franchise transfer issue, and we were frankly astonished to hear Vernon comment on it at the most recent council meeting. (Suri is a native of India but holds permanent resident status in the U.S. and has been here 18 years). Similarly, the mayor's broad-brush allegations of graft and corruption in the cable television business, which he attributed to unspecified "press reports" without any supporting evidence that applies to Omnicom, Capital Cities or Mr. Suri, was unwarranted and irrelevant.

The only question needing answered before transferring the local cable franchise from Capital Cities to Suri, who has an agreement to purchase Omnicom as part of the ABC-Capital Cities merger and FCC-required divestiture, is whether the new company can meet the franchise obligations. Such a review might include an inquiry into the new company's financial stability and its owner's qualifications to run such a system — and by all accounts Suri is highly qualified. Even that may soon be a moot point, as federal law deregulates the industry and removes local controls.

If other jurisdictions were going beyond inflammatory rhetoric such as we've heard here recently and were actually using such irrelevant criteria as citizenship or isolated reports of abuses by other firms as criteria in granting franchises, the federal deregulation must surely come as a welcome breath of fresh air to the cable industry. City council would be wise to overlook its more provincial perspectives and address this issue in its proper legal and ethical context.

"What do you think you're doing?" she demanded sternly as I walked through the door for dinner one night.

"I'm coming home for dinner, my pet," I responded sweetly, perplexed at what I had done to incur such a gruff greeting.

"Oh, no you're not," she corrected me.

"What you are doing is walking on our new carpet with your shoes on. That's what you're doing. Take your shoes off right now."

By this time, I was already a good 10 to 15 feet into the living room so I turned around and started to retrace my steps to the entrance way.

Band wagon

"Freeze, turkey," she ordered. "Take those shoes off right now. Do not walk back across the carpet. Do not pass go. Standright where you are, reach down, take off your shoes, then clean. up the mess you've already made."

I complied, of course. I'm smart enough not to mess with someone who pumps iron in her weightlifting class three times a week. But I'm beginning to be a little concerned about the practicality of living in a house where you have to take off your shoes everytime you walk in the front door.

The addition to the house is just about completed; and that: includes brand new carpeting throughout most of the interior. It's nice carpeting, too. Particularly the off-white — should I call it ecru — in the living room.

I mean it's nice to look at, but what good is carpeting if you: can't walk on it?

"Have you thought about what you're going to do when Dave and Kathy and Doug and Jane bring all their children over for Thanksgiving?" I asked timidly.

"I'm working on it, but I haven't come up with a good solution yet," she answered matter-of-factly. "Maybe we could ask everyone to take off their shoes at the door and wear slippers."

"There are some other possibilities," I offered, feeling a twinge of courage seeping back into my bones. "I could stand outside and hose everybody off just before they come in. Or maybe we should just have the new carpet polyurethaned."

By B.J. Martin

"Wait a minute," you're thinking. "I just saw B.J. Martin a couple days ago and he doesn't look like that picture.'

He didn't much look like like it before. But since last Friday, the resemblance is farfetched indeed, because in my first-ever midlife crisis I took a razor to my beard and lopped off every hair. I'm still thinking about whether to whisk off the mustache as well.

Mostly, this move has met with approval in my workplace, but for me it still takes quite a bit of getting used to. My beard and I have been very attached these last few years. It's with a tinge of melancholy I bade it farewell.

Now anybody who makes a drastic change in his or her appearance is asking for trouble. But with the possible exception of a very long-to-very short haircut, bidding adieu to one's facial fur is the most traumatic.

So why did I take it off, take it off, take it all off? I'm still trying to figure that out. Part of it may have been a desire to see if the cherubic baby face underneath the beard had aged any. It has, a little bit. The last time I was beardless, I looked about 16, about seven years younger than I really was. Now I look like a 21-year-old with inexplicably thinning hair.

I'm sure some will interpret it as a sign that I no longer relate to those fondlyremembered revolutionary days, that I've sold out, gone mainstream, become a - that "Y"-word. Naah. I'm just going under cover 🤉 and overexposed for a while.

The Northuille Record

Cagers lose; make early exit from districts

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

It seems like such an injustice. To see a team like the Northville girls' basketball squad come so far in the 1985 season, only to make a quick exit from the state district playoffs to a team ranked in the top 10 statewide. But nobody ever told coach Ed Kritch and his squad that bringing the Mustang basketball program into prominence would be an easy chore.

For the third time this season, Northville lined up against powerful Plymouth Canton, the owners of just two losses in 20 regular season tries. In the two previous meetings, each team had triumphed once. But this was the rubber match - the one that really counted. The winner advances, the loser goes home.

The Chiefs took the three game miniseries 2-1 though, by shrugging off the pesky Mustangs 41-30 last Thursday at Canton to advance to the second round. Northville, on the other hand, packs up the equipment until next year, but the '85 season was anything but unsuc-

"We're very happy with what we've accomplished," Kritch said. "More than maybe the wins and losses, we went out for 21 games and we were very competitive for all 21.

"We're happy with the brand of ·basketball we are now able to play." With an 11-9 record, the current

Mustang squad is only the second team in Northville girls' basketball history to top the .500 mark. Of those nine defeats, all were 11 points or less and five of those were by less than two baskets.

Only three players on the 13 team roster will graduate, and Kritch will have four starters back and six of his top eight returning for a very promising campaign in 1986.

- The Mustangs jumped on Canton in the first quarter and raced to a 14-11 lead on a shot at the buzzer by Tricia Ducker. For a team that averages just 36 points a game, Northville's offensive firepower surprised even Kritch. But the Mustangs went cold the rest of the way, scoring just eight points in the next two quarters and Canton grabbed the lead

"We played extremely well in the first quarter — about as well as we are capable of," Kritch said. "We jumped on them quickly, like we wanted to, but "they responded in the second quarter.' The Chiefs scored four straight in the last minute of the first half and went to the locker room with an 18-17 ad--yantage - their first lead of the game.

"I thought we kinda let them off the hook," Kritch explained. "(Canton) was behind the whole half but when "If there was one factor that deterthey got the one-point lead at the half, I think it was a mental lift for them." In the third, Canton came out gunning and outscored the Mustangs 11-5 to take a seven-point lead into the last stanza.

"They shot the ball very well in the second half," Kritch said. "It wasn't anything we did or didn't do, it was just that they played well. That's why they are ranked so high.

"To have a shot at it in the fourth, we had to play a perfect quarter and hope that they missed their free throws."

With the lead hovering around seven, Kritch consistently put the Chiefs at the free throw line in the final two minutes but they responded by hitting four-of-six to dash any Northville hopes.

Ducker paced the Mustangs with 12 points and five rebounds, while Ann Griffith came off the bench to chip in six. Northville hit just 11-of-34 from the ding. "If there was one factor that determined the outcome, it was that Canton beat us on the boards," Kritch said. "It surprised me that they outrebounded us like they did because it was the first time this season it was a problem for us.'

As was the case in all three meetings between the two teams, the outmanned Mustangs gave Canton a tough fight the whole way. Maybe a little too tough, as the Chiefs were bombed 47-34 by Livonia Churchill two days later and eliminated from the state playoffs.

"I really believe that we took a lot out of them," Kritch said. "We've been their nemesis all year."

In 1986, with four starters returning with another season of experience under their belts, Northille could be the nemesis of all the Western Lakes teams.

Two Mustangs on All-Area cage team

When one looks at the rosters of the five area girls' basketball teams, it sometimes appears that the junior varsity team was printed up by mistake.

Several juniors and sophomores, and even a few freshmen, are playing varsity hoop this fall. It's not like the olden days when seniors ran the show and underclassmen pulled the curtain.

Of the 10 players on the Sliger/-Livingston East all-area teams, only three are seniors. Joining the 12th graders are three juniors, three sophomores and one freshman.

There are two possible reasons for this unusual situation. First, girls are learning basketball at an earlier age, therefore in position to contribute as soon as they enter high school. Second, somebody has discovered a fountain that not only preserves age, but also develops basketball ability.

While deciding, here's a look at the Sliger/Livingston East all-area teams:

including me," Lion coach Ron Shanks commented. "I knew she had potential, but I had no idea it would blossom so early. She definitely was instrumental in our championship." Howell led the Lions in scoring (14.5), rebounding (11.1) and shooting percentage (49.5), and was second in free throw percentage (65.5). Her strengths, according to Shanks, are outstanding quickness and anticipation. TRICIA DUCKER, Northville, forward - One of the area's most consistent players, this 5'10" junior averaged 12.5 points and 10.5 rebounds in 1985. She scored in double figures in her last 11 games and also rebounded in double digits during her last seven. Ducker's been a starter for the Mustangs since her freshman year and has led the team in scoring each of the past three seasons. She's the heart of a Northville defense which ranks as one of the area's finest, giving up just 30.7 points a game, and she was named to the Western Lakes Activities Association first team. work is finally paying off for Tricia," Mustang coach Ed Kritch said. "She is, without a doubt, one of the finest players in the area. She can score from the inside, score from the outside and is 'a fine all-around defender,' JILL WHITEMAN, Lakeland, center "-- "Jill is a coach's dream," Lakeland boss Sherry Bell said. "You never have to worry about her effort. It's 100 percent all of the time." That effort has made Whiteman one of the top inside players in Oakland County. The 5'11" senior averaged 14 points and 16 rebounds this fall, and played her best basketball during the second half of the season. "She's really come along," Bell added. "There are very few girls who can run and jump like Jill, and she's also very strong. The one thing I've been most impressed with is her improved outside shooting." ANDREA NELSON, South Lyon, guard - When this 5'11" junior graduates in 1987, she will be recognized as one of the top female athletes ever to come out of South Lyon High School. Already one of the best softball pitchers in Southeastern Michigan, Nelson is dynamite on the basketball court. She led the Lions to their first-ever Kensington Valley Conference championship this season, averaging 13.0 points. 5.7 assists, 3.7 steals and 3.5 rebounds. She also converted 45.7 percent of her field goal attempts. "She can do it all," South Lyon coach Ron Shanks said. "She's the franchise. At point guard, she runs our offense better than anyone ever has, and on defense, she's always coming up with the big plays."

ANGIE SHEFFLER, Milford, guard Sheffler had to make a big role adjustment from shooting guard to playmaker when backcourt partner Kelly O'Connor was injured midway through the season, but the 5'3" senior answered the challenge with ease. 'Angle had played some point guard before Kelly got hurt, but now she's doing it all the time," Redskin coach Don Palmer said. "She has a lot of athletic ability, so the switch wasn't a real problem. She's been our stabilizer this year." Sheffler is averaging 7.2 points and 2.6 assists, but her main strength is defense. According to Palmer, she's a "pest" for opposing offenses and creates a lot of opportunities for Milford.

SECOND TEAM

NATALIE PETERLIN, South Lyon, forward — A non-starter early in this season, Peterlin really came into her own during the last 10 games. "I don't think she's reached her potential yet,' Lion coach Ron Shanks said. "Natalie has a lot of tools to work with, like quickness, leaping ability and great hands. She's really given us a lift dur-ing the second half of the season." Peterlin, a 5'10" sophomore, averages 6.0 points, 5.1 rebounds, 2.6 assists and is third on her team in steals.

LORI MONTANTE, Milford, forward - Redskin coach Don Palmer knew his team was defensively sound before the season started, but he also knew he needed some offense. So, the veteran mentor brought up this 5'6'' freshman. 'Lori's a pure shooter," he said. "We had to have someone who could put the ball in the hole." Montante has played up to Palmer's expectations, leading Milford in scoring with an average of 11.4 points per outing. She also is averaging 4.5 rebounds.

SUZIE SCHRADER, Northville, center — This 5'11" junior averaged seven points per outing, but the statistic is deceiving when one considers that she played for a squad which averaged just 36 points. Schrader also chipped in with seven boards a game and anchored a stingy Mustang defense. On defense, her most impressive ac-complishment was holding Plymouth Canton's center to zero points in three contests this season. "She's come very far this season," Northville coach Ed Kritch said. "She's by far the most improved player on our team."

PAULA HAYES, Lakeland, guard -This 5'8" senior is one of the area's most aggressive players, especially on defense where she constantly is creating problems for the opposition. "Paula does a lot of things for us," Eagle coach Sherry Bell said. "She leads the team in assists and she's second in steals and points. She's a very streaky shooter, and when she's hot, she can carry us." Hayes averages 11.1 points, 4.3 assists and 3.2 steals per game.

LISA McCARTHY, Novi, guard - A small player (5'2") with big talent, Mc-Carthy averaged 13.4 points during the 1985 season, including a school record 39-point performance against Lakeland. Just a sophomore, McCarthy has made great strides this season. "She's kinda the heart and soul of our team," Wildcat coach Bill Ayotte said. "She's the best offensive player we have and she's got a lot of guts. Lisa is a competitor and my best player."

Shanks has done a superb job molding one of the area's best-ever girls' basketball teams. Because of his outstanding performance, the 39-year-old Shanks has been named Sliger/-Livingston East "Coach of the Year" for 1985.

Nelson, a 5'11" playmaker for the Kensington Valley Conference champions, has had a superb 1985 campaign. She has averaged 13.0 points, 5.7 assists, 3.7 steals and 3.5 rebounds during the '85 campaign.

Even more impressive is the fact that Nelson's only a junior, and will be back next fall to terrorize opposing teams. Because of her outstanding effort this season, however, she has been named Sliger/Livingston East "Player of the Year."

Meyers goes to Bulgaria to compete

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Not many high school athletes get the chance to travel to Europe and compete in their given sport — but then again, very few are as talented as Northville's Melissa Meyers.

The 16-year-old junior at Northville High School is one of the premier rhythmic gymnasts in the United States. Meyers returned from Sofia, Bulgaria in mid-October after spending three weeks in Europe and competing in the Prize of Sofia competition along with 34 of the world's finest in the field.

The U.S. is still quite far behind the Europeans as rythmic gymnastics is still relatively unknown, but with young performers like Meyers, the American outlook gets brighter every year.

"The popularity of rythmic gymnastics is much better in Europe it is here," Meyers pointed out. "People don't know too much about it yet in the U.S., but the '84 Olympics helped a lot." Meyers travelled with four other members of the Detroit Metro Rythmic Gymnastics squad and team coach Rosa Litvakova. A flight from Detroit took the U.S. representatives to Munich, West Germany where they picked up a train that wandered through Austria, Switzerland and Yugoslavia on the way to Sofia - the capital city of Bulgaria.

The meet lasted two days, but the American entourage stayed an extra two weeks to train and learn new routines and elements from the Bulgarian national team.

We asked the other gymnasts questions and they showed us some new things after the meet," Meyers explain-We got to know some of them real ed. well and became friends."

Meyers' performance was - in her opinion — as fine a routine as she's ever completed. Her effort was good enough to place third among the U.S. gymnasts and in a tie for 26th overall.

"(Melissa) is a totally different per-son after going to Bulgaria," Litvakova said. "Now she's so much better and, understands so much more than before. You have to remember that she was go-ing up against the finest in the world."

The other participants included girls from Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary, Greece, Poland, East Germany, Spain from 11 to 25. "I gained a lot of valuable experience because it was my first international meet," Meyers said. "Once you have experience in an international meet, it's easier for you to compete in the United States Nationals."

The cost of the trip was about $2,000 per person and was financed mostly by Meyers' parents and donations from local businesses.

Although she currently ranks in the top 15 in the United States, only the top 10 make the Olympic team. Needless to say, Meyers has her goals already clearly mapped out.

•Realtors note strong home resale market

October sales of 1,442 homes by members of the Metro MLS continued to reflect the strong residential resale market expected to end the year near the record level of 1978.

The multiple listing service reported October sales were up 3.9 percent above the 1,388 recorded in September and some 22 percent above those of last October. The sales gain over 1984 through the first 10 months is 24.7 percent with total units only 6.8 percent behind the 1978 pace.

"With residential dollar volume already past $962 million, we will enjoy our first billion dollar year in home sales," said Robert F. Craver, Metro MLS president..."With the lower average home prices of 1978, the total dollar volume that year reached only $819 million."

Craver said the year-to-date average resale price for homes in 1985 was $62,447 — up some $4,600 from a year ago or 7.9 percent. He noted that this represents an increased number of higher priced homes being sold as well as a general increase in home values

While home listings are down about 14 percent from last year, today's buyer will find a much greater selection than those in 1978, he said. "Extending through all price ranges, our members are marketing about 30 percent more homes now than in 1978.'

The good news for home sellers is a sales-tolisting ratio running above 51 percent, compared to about 33 percent a year ago. This means that the average home is spending considerably less time on the market before being sold.

"While it is still a buyer's market, our members are reporting greatly increased traffic through their offices and open houses being held," Craver said. "Despite the market success enjoyed so far, there are still a lot of serious buyers around, so we expect the annual gain to persist through year's

By SUSAN KAUPPILA

Setting up a new business is always tough, but if one is facing struggles in one's personal life such a venture could be disastrous.

But for Grace Zimmerman of Highland Township and Donna Williams of Novi, it was the opposite. Grace was newly divorced and Donna was a single parent about to have a baby when they launched their photography studio April 1, 1982.

"I needed it (the business) after the divorce. It had been 25 years and five kids," Zimmerman said. "For Donna, she was facing parenthood. We were both scared."

Today the two owners of Gracon (pronounced Grace-on, "Grace" for Zim-merman and "on" for Donna) are working nearly seven days a week and enjoying every minute of it.

We are grateful to have two high school contracts - Lakeland and Milford — and have weddings booked until next November," Zimmerman said proudly.

"We also have students coming in from 12 other high schools . . . from Fenton to Ann Arbor to Birmingham," Williams added.

While the pair is undoubtedly successful today, the fight to reach it has been an uphill battle. Being females in a field pretty much dominated by males has given them a lot of headaches.

"Being a woman . . . that's the biggie. They try to walk on you. There is also a tremendous amount of dirty politics from other photographers that really surprised us," Zimmerman said.

When the women started out, they had no contacts and no promises of any work. But within the first week they had booked a wedding with a couple while seated around a card table at their unfinished office at Colonial Village on Milford Road in Highland.

Then, too, the women were both well known. Williams had served eight years as a photographer with two different studios so she had a following. Zimmerman had lived in the area for nearly 10 years and had been doing photography on the side, taking horse shows and weddings.

The pair, in fact, met while Williams was a photographer and Zimmerman was a clerk at a Union Lake photo studio. "I told Donna, 'some day I am going to call you and we are going to start our own business,' "Zimmerman related.

Although being female has been tough in the business end of their studio. both say just the opposite is true in the sitting room or out in the schools with oungsters.

"Women have the upper hand in the sitting room," Zimmerman explained. They can handle things more freely. Donna can tell the girls to fix a strap that is showing or a boy that is tie isn't right . . . nobody gets upset. She is so warm with those kids and she relates to them. They level with her, too," Zimmerman said of her partner.

When it comes to weddings, the team. "We women work as a team. thoroughly enjoy it. As women, we see things . . . like hair that is sticking out that men don't. Brides really like two women fussing over them," Zimmerman continued

The partners definitely take on a glow when they talk about students. "We are so overwhelmed by their warmth and rapport with us. They wave and yell out to us ... it's great to know that we mean something to these kids," Williams said.

"It is an extremely happy situation to be in. They come here for their senior pictures, come back for their weddings and then bring in their babies," added

Center reports Social Security findings

There is more to Social Security than benefits for persons over 62 years old. Consumer Education Research Center, a non-profit national consumer organization, has thoroughly researched the benefits available through the Social Security system and finds that of the 40 million persons now getting benefits, more than 10 million are under-62 and, of these, the average age is only 30.

Since 1977, the center has been updating its findings and publishing books including all new benefits. The 1985 edition of Consumers Guide to Social Security Benefits has just been issued and is available from CERC-SS Guide, 439 Clark Street, South Orange, New Jersey 07079 for $5 (including postage).

The guide offers consumers of all ages an awareness of the benefits they are entitled to under the latest laws and also shows how to find how much has been deposited in their Social Security accounts by themselves and their employers.

The center's executive director, Robert L. Berko, says the study found that billions of dollars go unclaimed each simply because those entitled to benefits don't know they are eligible and don't apply. No one gets benefits without applying, he says.

Among the findings of the center's study group and included in the guide are:

• In some cases, parents of a deceased worker are eligible for benefits even if they never paid into the system. • Many' children are eligible for benefits even if their parents never paid into the system.

· Minor children and a surviving spouse of a person who has worked under the Social Security system for as little as one day in each of six annual quarters can collect benefits.

 Income from investments, interest, annuities, rentals and royalties are not considered in determining eligibility. Nor is income from a business in which a person was part owner if payments are made as retirement benefits.

• The Supplementary Security In-come program (SSI) provides benefits to aged, blind and disabled persons and can be paid to those who own a house or other assets. And a lein cannot be taken against these possessions and a person cannot be disqualified because they have relatives financially able to take care of them.

• A divorcee is eligible for benefits when her ex-husband starts collecting retirement or disability payments if she is 62 or older and was married for at least 10 years.

· "Even if you are eligible, you will not receive checks unless you apply and you can't apply without knowledge that you might be eligible," says Berko. "Consumers Guide to Social Security Benefits how to apply for money and other benefits, where to apply and what to say.'

• The study and book were done, the consumer leader says, because the center had been contacted by so many people who had been frustrated in their attempts to get information from local Social Security offices. In many areas the telephone lines are constantly busy and even when a receptionist was reached it was difficult to get the information desired.

Personal visits to the offices take time and even then, unless the potential applicant has some suspicion they are eligible for specific benefits, they usually aren't told of their entitlements. This is especially so now that the administration has reduced the ratio of local office employees to potential recipients.

Consumers Guide to Social Security Benefits is available for $5 from CERC-SS Guide, 439 Clark Street, South Orange, New Jersey 07079.

Women start business

Zimmerman.

To build up their student business when they first started out, the women asked students from both Milford and Lakeland to take their proofs to school to show their friends. As word spread, they obtained more business.

One of the biggest battles they en-countered was when the contract photographer for Milford High School would not include students who had been photographed by Gracon in the annual school composite.

When an angry mother found her youngster's photo missing in the composite on the graduation program, she demanded action from the Huron Valley Board of Education. Fron then on, the school board agreed to include all youngsters, regardless of the photographer, in the school composites.

While their often 12-hour days of taking everything from senior pictures, basketball teams, horses and babies is starting to pay off, the partners know have already hired two full-time persons to help out in the office.

we lose that personal element with the

they have endured has made them better persons. "What we are within us has grown and matured through the ups and downs. The little things don't bother us anymore. We say, 'I can handle this crisis,' "Zimmerman noted.

"I guess our philosophy is, 'You be good to people and it comes back to you.' That's the way it has been for Donna and me," she concluded.

Gracon Studio is located at 1419 South Milford Road, one mile south of M-59 in Colonial Village, Highland. The telephone number is 313-887-8666. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Friday and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturdays or by appointment.

Don't let that "magic wand" fool you! She's tried to make us believe that with a wave of that wand, she can turn pumpkins into carriages, mice into white horses and rags into white gowns: But we know she's just like the rest of us! When we want to turn a baby crib into cash ... an older car into a new one... or change from sales clerk to doctor's receptionist ... the only magic wand we hold in our hand is a telephone receiver and the only thing we wave is our index finger as we dial the Classified Department of our newspaper! It's like magic the way good things come true for us with the help of Want Ads. And besides, we have a strong feeling that's the way the fairy godmother makes all her magic, too!

Clean out your garage with a garage sale and clean up on savings with the help of a classified ad in the Monday Green Sheet and/or the Wednesday Green Sheet. Beat the rush and call us before 3:30 p.m. on Friday with your garage sale ad.

Sheet and/or the Wednesday Green beet. Beat the rush

The Northuille Record

A tale of two shoppers.

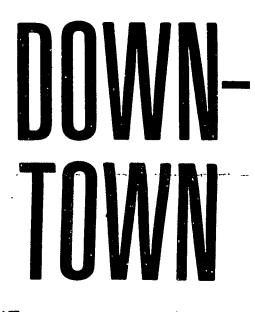

'The Great Outdoors isn't so great when you're lugging a dozen shopping bags through the snow all day.'/B.J.

'Ever try to park at a mall? You'd better come armed.'/Philip Jerome

Martin

Every so often you get an invention that makes so much sense you have to abandon the old way of doing things.

Try telling your boss you'll be late for work because you've decided to sell your car and commute via horse and buggy instead.

Try telling your spouse that instead of using a washer and dryer, you'd rather the laundry be done with a washboard and a tub.

And yet fogies like Phil Jerome posit we should bypass The Mall, one of the greatest breakthroughs of the 20th — get that Phil, 20th century — to shop in quaint little shops downtown. Sure, Phil. And I'll ditch my video screen and start writing my news stories on parchment with a quill pen.

Why do I like malls? Let me outline a not-sohypothetical yuletide scenario in which all my shopping is done in one day:

□ 9:30 a.m. Saturday, December 21 and I haven't one item of holiday shopping bought yet. Do I panic? Nosirree. I take a leisurely walk around the upper floor for exercise (if you hit every nook and cranny, it's one mile) and to case the windows for sales.

□ 10 a.m. I go to The Coffee Beanery, buy a large cup of Mocha Java, a bag of Jamaica Mountain Mist and a bag of Amoretto Decaf for grandparents, then head for the information desk. There I get my mall directory with a map giving direc-tions to any of the 170 stores here. I need the directory to keep track of 'em. Since last Christmas, 30 new stores have moved in, from Scandinavian Furniture to Godiva Chocolatier.

□ 10:15 a.m. Check my coffee bags and coat at the Santa Service Center. Note outdoor temperature is five degrees. Think of Phil and tighten laces on my sneakers.

10:25 a.m. Stop at Benetton and buy a scarf for Mom. Again. She never wore the last three I got her, how many times can I be wrong? □ 10:40 a.m. Stop at Eddie Bauer and buy a Swiss army knife for Pop. He'll never use it, but he'll get hours of enjoyment showing all of the things it does to his friends at work.

□ 10:55 a.m. Stop at Recordland and get the latest album by the Psychotic Robotics for my weird brother. Ask the cashier to give me an opaque shopping gag. 11:05 a.m. Stop at Things Remembered and have dad's new Swiss army knife engraved while I brunch at Michel's Baguette and wonder if the Swiss army is not a contradiction in terms. □ 11:30 a.m. Begin stopping at each of the 52 women's clothing stores and each of the four department stores to find something I think my sister will like.

□ 5:15 p.m. Realize I can get her a gift certificate good at any one of the stores so the brat can pick it out herself. Do so. Realize the soup and croissant at Michel's Baguette didn't have enough staying power. Stop at A&W and load up.

D 5:50 p.m. For fun, sit and watch parents try to drag their kids out of Circus World.

□ 6:30 p.m. Pick up newly-engraved knife con-taining Pop's rank and serial number in the Swiss army.

Giggles. Figure I'd better get them in the mail pretty soon.

7:40 p.m. Stop at Santa Service Center, pick up all goods and coat and hike out to the car, now buried under two feet of snow. Put presents in trunk, return to Jonathan B Pub for small fortification. Resolve to master mail-order next year.

In real life, Phil Jerome and B.J. Martin are happy to shop both in the downtown area and at the mall. They also like to argue.

Malls are the just desserts of types like Mr. California, Mr. Pop Culture types like B.J. "I 'I Think Andy Warhol Is a Serious Artist" Martin.

Martin is that rather yuppie-looking individual who's writing the story on the other half of this page. Look at that picture of him. Do you honestly believe he's someone to trust? Truthfully, now, would you let your daughter go out with someone who looks like that, let alone tell you how to do your shopping? Of course not.

Somebody around here once observed that Northville is Novi's "downtown" and Twelve Oaks is Northville's "shopping mall." I thought that was a pretty fair description.

But the easy job ahead of me now is to say nice things about shopping downtown versus shopping in a regional shopping center. So here goes:

Mall - shmall.

Malls are nice; they really are. But can you really beat shopping in a good, old-fashioned homey downtown — particularly one like Northville's? We're talking Christmas shopping here. And Christmas is a traditional, old-fashioned holiday. Chestnuts roasting by an open fire . . . over the river and through the woods . . . all that kind of stuff. Downtown, you can still see snow-capped streetlights trimmed with real boughs. Stores with names of real people. Ever try to complain about something to Mr. Penney? Well you can walk in any day and have a chat with Mr. Schrader, Mr. Lapham, Mr. Getzie .

And another thing — it's easier to find a parking space around Northville than it is at a regional shopping center. Let's face it, driving around a mall hoping a parking place will open up can be pretty exasperating.

Plus - and I don't know why this is - but it seems that you're more likely to get into an argument about who saw a vacant parking place first at a shopping center than you are in a downtown. Mall proponents, like Ol' B.J. next door, like to yammer about the wider selection of goods and merchandise at a shopping center. I won't argue the point. But I will assert that you can find more lovely gifts than you could ever hope to buy in good, old-fashioned downtown Northville.

All those great aunt-and-uncle kind of gifts available at Anne's Crafts. Floral shops that deliver like IV Seasons. Christmas knick-knacks like the miscellany at Genitti's. Bike shops. Classy restaurants like MacKinnon's and cozy ones like Crawford's. Antiques. Christmas trees, for Pete's sake.

And then there's the people factor. People in a downtown are friendlier. There's something about the relaxed atmosphere of shopping downtown that you iust don't find in a mall. There's not as much hustle and bustle. People actually smile and say "Hi" to each other.

But the best part of shopping downtown is the merchants themselves. A lot of them were here when the mall was some pipe dream ages in the future. They can just about tell you what to buy everybody on your list, and you ignore their advice at your own peril.

My all-time favorite "Shop downtown" story happened right in Northville.

My wife and I were shopping at Freydl's for a shirt for my father but couldn't remember what size he wore. I said he wore a "large;" she insisted he wore a "medium."

We argued back and forth a few seconds when I spotted Charlie Freydl behind the counter at the back of the store.

"Hey, Charlie," I called out. "What size shirt does my father wear?"

'He takes a 'large,' " came the sure and immediate response.

Try finding that kind of service at a regional shopping center.

Kids to do their holiday gift buying at school shops

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Northville PTA-PTSA column which appears the last Wednesday of each month September through June is compiled by volunteer Linda Handyside. AMERMAN

. The Nut and Candy Canister orders have been processed and delivered. Congratulations to second-grader Chris Schifter for being Amerman's top seller. He is the winner of a bike and several other prizes. The first Junior Entertainment Series (J.E.S.) Program of this school year was conducted Tuesday, November 19. Students were entertained by the Oakland Community College Theater Group as they performed improvisations revolving around a moral theme.

Grades 1, 2 and 3 celebrated Thanksgiving with a turkey trot fun run around the school at recess on Tuesday, November 26. First and second graders also enjoyed moving from station to station participating in physical movement activities related to Thanksgiving. These activities were coordinated by Mr. Pallas, the physical education teacher. The Kindergarten classes dressed as Indians and Pilgrims and held their traditional Thanksgiving feast.

The next PTA meeting is Tuesday, December 3 at 9:30 a.m. in the multipurpose room. All school parents are welcome.

Amerman students will be given the opportunity to Christmas shop for all those special people on their lists at the Christmas Shoppe from Tuesday through Thursday, December 10-12. Each class will be assigned a time when they can come and shop. There will be items for everyone ranging in price from 15 cents to $6. A gift list with prices will be sent home so parents can guide their child in making selections. For everyone's shopping convenience, the Shoppe will be open until 6:30 p.m. December 10 and 11. Anyone donating handmade gift items should turn them in to the office by Monday, December 9.

• The annual Family Christmas Sing-A-Long will be Monday, December 16 from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. This will be an opportunity for families to share Christmas spirit as parents, children and teachers gather in the Amerman courtyard for the tree-lighting ceremony, bonfire, carols, hot chocolate and cookies.

Parents and children will have a chance to try out their new Christmas gifts of skates at Amerman's roller skating party Thursday, January 16, at Bonaventure's Roller Rink. Mark your calendar for an evening of family fun.

The Amerman Handbook and family fan-outs for an emergency closing have been distributed. A special thanks to PTA volunteers for their diligent efforts on these projects.

SILVER SPRINGS

Silver Springs students will have an opportunity to complete their Christmas shopping early by purchasheld at 2:40 p.m. and the program will be presented to the public at 7:30 p.m.

Friday, December 20, will find Silver Springs students celebrating the beginning of Christmas vacation with parties, gift exchanges, and as a special treat, Santa Claus himself will stop by for a visit.

There will be no regular PTA meeting in December.

Several activities are planned for January. The next roller skating night will be January 21 at the Skatin' Station. Skate nights are always fun family outings, and a sure cure for the winter doldrums.

January 24 will be a teacher work-day, with no school for students, and on January 27, Silver Springs will host the Northville Board of Education meeting. January 28 Silver Springs PTA will resent a community favorite, the Family Night Supper. This year's menu will feature pizza, salad, beverage, and lots of goodies. This evening is a great way to get together with friends and neighbors.

The next regular PTA meeting will January 21 at 9:15 a.m. All interested in being part of Silver Springs activities are invited to attend.

WINCHESTER

November has been a busy month at Winchester. Our annual book fair, chaired by Judy Amatangelo, was Thursday, November 14. A wide variety of reading materials for all interests and levels was offered to students. Proceeds from this go back to the Media Center.

JoAnn Brummet reports that 263 students participated in selling canisters which contained candy or nuts. Look for those to be delivered shortly. She also mentioned the top sellers were Jennifer and Brian Glinski, who sold a total of 186 canisters. Congratulations to them and everyone! The first Junior Enrichment Series was Friday, November 22. A program titled "Wonderful World of Chemistry" brought to us by Mobil Ed entertained and awed all in attendance.

The first of two editions of the Razzler News will be in full circulation for students to read during Thanksgiving break. The paper keeps all informed regarding individual classrooms, school and scout activities. Chairperson Sharon Romine assures a very newsworthy paper.

The holiday season is almost upon us and with that comes Santa Store, December 5 and 6. Many hard-working elves are busy making handcrafted items, as well as providing other items, for Winchester students so they may have the privilege of being able to shop for their families and friends right here. This is under the direction of Lia Burghardt, Lynn MacIver, Linda Petroskey, and Margo Smith.

The first grade classes of Martha Sartori, Lou Wolfe and Marion Yockey enjoyed their first trip to Maybury State Park on Tuesday, November 12. The classes make the trip as part of the science and language arts program in the fall, winter and spring. They watch and enjoy the changing seasons. Farmer John took the boys and girls around the area and discussed how the animals prepare for the long winter to

MEADS MILL

Have you visited the Mill's Media Center recently?

What a stimulating place to spend time doing research, reading or working on the Apple computer. Robert Stover has developed Library Skills Stations to help the students further develop their research skills:

 DICTIONARY DIG — teaches students how to locate and use "specialized" dictionaries; TREASURE HUNT - teaches location and use of almanacs;

• DEWEY DERBY - teaches location and use of many reference books; CATALOG CARD SEARCH teaches usage of the card catalog and how to locate books by using it;

• AUTHOR, AUTHOR - teaches some of the finer authors' names and books they have written.

Your student will be working at each of these stations sometime before the school year ends.

Need ideas for Christmas gifts? A book may be particularly appropriate for your child. The Great American Book Fair will be December 12-17 in the Media Center.

We've all known that Meads Mill students are talented in many areas. This was again evident in November as Sandra Craig organized and produced the Meads Mill Talent Show. Enthusiasm of the students was high, and 60 students were selected to participate in the successful event. In case you didn't get to see it, Robert Stover videotaped the entire show. The tape is available for viewing in the Media Center, can be checked out overnight for home viewing, or you can wait to see it via Omnicom.`

English can be fun! That's the message Dorothea Bach is promoting. Her seventh grade English classes are participating in Read magazine's Letterwriting program. Each of the classes has been assigned a middle school in the United States and is writing personal letters to pen pals in Eagle River, Alaska; Chico, California; Geneso, Illinois; Kansas City, Kansas; and Rice Lake, Wisconsin. The first round of letters were sent out to celebrate National Letter-Writing Week.

Mrs. Barbara Willoughby and Mrs. Mary Freydl have tapped some of the talent in the eighth grade. Five students have been selected to submit essays to the "America and Me" writing contest sponsored by the Farm Bureau Insurance Group. The top 10 winners in the state will be honored at ceremonies at the State Capitol as well as receive savings bonds. A big "Thank You" goes to all the teachers who recognize student strengths and promote them in and out of the classroom setting. Mrs. Freydl's Video Productions Core Elective students will enjoy a showing of the work produced by the class. Parents are invited to the December 7 viewing.

Counselors have developed a profile for the Metropolitan Achievement Test and Otis Lennon Test of Mental Maturity which will be mailed home to all sixth grade parents as soon as the county finishes the scoring. This should take place toward the end of November.

Counselors met with all seventh grade students the week of November 18 and also are scheduled the week of December 2 to do the California Occupational Preference System. The COPS is a pilot program for students in the area of career exploration. The idea . is to expose students to careers which best match their interests.

Counselors will be training parent volunteers to facilitate the Michigan Occupational Information System. The MOIS is a micro-computer career search used by all eighth grade students. The program will be in December.

The staff at Meads Mill and the PTSA wish you a Happy Thanksgiving. The next PTSA meeting will be December 9 at 9:15 a.m. -Betty House

HIGH SCHOOL

November 16 was a great day for the class of 1989, despite the rain. With the help of parents, 60 freshmen walked the streets of Farmington, Novi and Nor-thville handing out AT&T handbills. Before the day was over, they had reached 12,000 homes and made almost $1,000 for their class treasury.

Shirley Klokkenga, class sponsor, coordinated the fundraiser with AT&T and saw to it that the kids got a pizza lunch break at noon.

referred by their homeroom teachers to the Curriculum Specialist Program, principal or assistant principal. It is hoped a stronger relationship can be established between the schools to enhance student activities.

Attention all juniors and seniors: If you have a job or would like a job which offers training that culd lead to a future vocation, be sure to check out the high school Co-Op program. It currently has close to 100 students participating. They all have at least one class on their schedules which is related to their jobs. In January, Co-Op students plan to collect empty bottles every Saturday to help defray costs of an appreciation breakfast they plan to give for their employers in May.

The big Teddy Bear raffle is here. Raffle tickets which are $1 will be on sale now through December and the drawing will take place December 20. The cuddly teddy bear is no small item. It has a retail value of $200. Buy a ticket and help the marketing class stock their new store for next semester; maybe you'll even win Mr. Bear.

The first choir concert of the season was a complete success in terms of music and attendance. Family and friends filled the United Methodist Church on Eight Mile and gave the choirs a standing ovation at the end of the concert to show their appreciation. On December 18 the choirs and band instrumentalists will hold a joint concert at the high school auditorium. This will be a free holiday event you won't want to miss. It begins at 7:30 p.m. All parents interested in singing the Hallelujah Chorus with the choir for this evening should contact choir director Mary Kaye Price, who will give you the dates for rehearsal.

The National Honor Society will conduct a canned-food drive during the week of December 2. Students are asked to bring in whatever they can to support this worthy cause. The Honor Society will also hold their annual Christmas stocking sale on December

Other activities include a Student Congress Dance December 13, following the first Junior Varsity Basketball game of the season against Churchill. The Symphonic Band will be featured. at half-time. On December 19, the choir will sing at the Novi Hilton during the noon hour. Parents and friends are in-1 vited to attend.

OLV

The 1-4 graders at OLV school will have an exciting addition to their program this year.- Beginning in September, the French language will k be taught, expanding the existing program of French being taught to 5-8 graders. As we are learning colors and counting in French, the new program will include vocabulary words, identifying common objects at home and at school in French.

It promises to be an interesting year for the students of Our Lady of Victory! The Curriculum Specialist Program at OLV is in full swing! Students in our Junior High Chorus have begun working their voices in preparation for the holiday season.

The eighth grade newspaper staff has been meeting for several weeks to organize the Cougar Chronicle for this school year. Students in grades 1-6 that have been ing gifts for family and friends at the annual Silver Springs PTA Holiday Shop December 4 and 5. Gifts available at the shop are on display in the showcase in the school lobby. Students should bring a grocery bag and enough money to purchase the gifts they want on their assigned shopping day.

Students in the Glee Club and first and third grades will participate in the Silver Springs Christmas program December 5. A dress rehearsal will be come.

Thanks to PTA president Pat Howe and vice president Judy Shattuck who compiled a membership directory of Winchester PTA members. The next PTA meeting will be Wednesday, December 4 at 9:30 a.m.

Historic Holly and Battle Alley Presents Dickens Days

•Weekends; Thanksgiving thru Christmas

"Fun is Everywhere in Historic Holly"

By SUE SCHELLENBERG

Merchants in downtown Holly are gearing up for the 12th annual Dickens Festival which will begin November 29 and run each weekend through December 22.

The shopkeepers are especially excited about the event this year because of the renovation work which has been done through the effort of the village's Downtown Development Authority (DDA).

DDA chairperson, Donald Winglemire of Winglemire's Furniture, says the revitalization program was put into effect in September of 1984 and completed last August. During the 11 months of work, Main Street was transformed by new sidewalks, brick neckdowns, and lighting and additions such as benches and trees. Junction Street, a new oneway street, was also created.

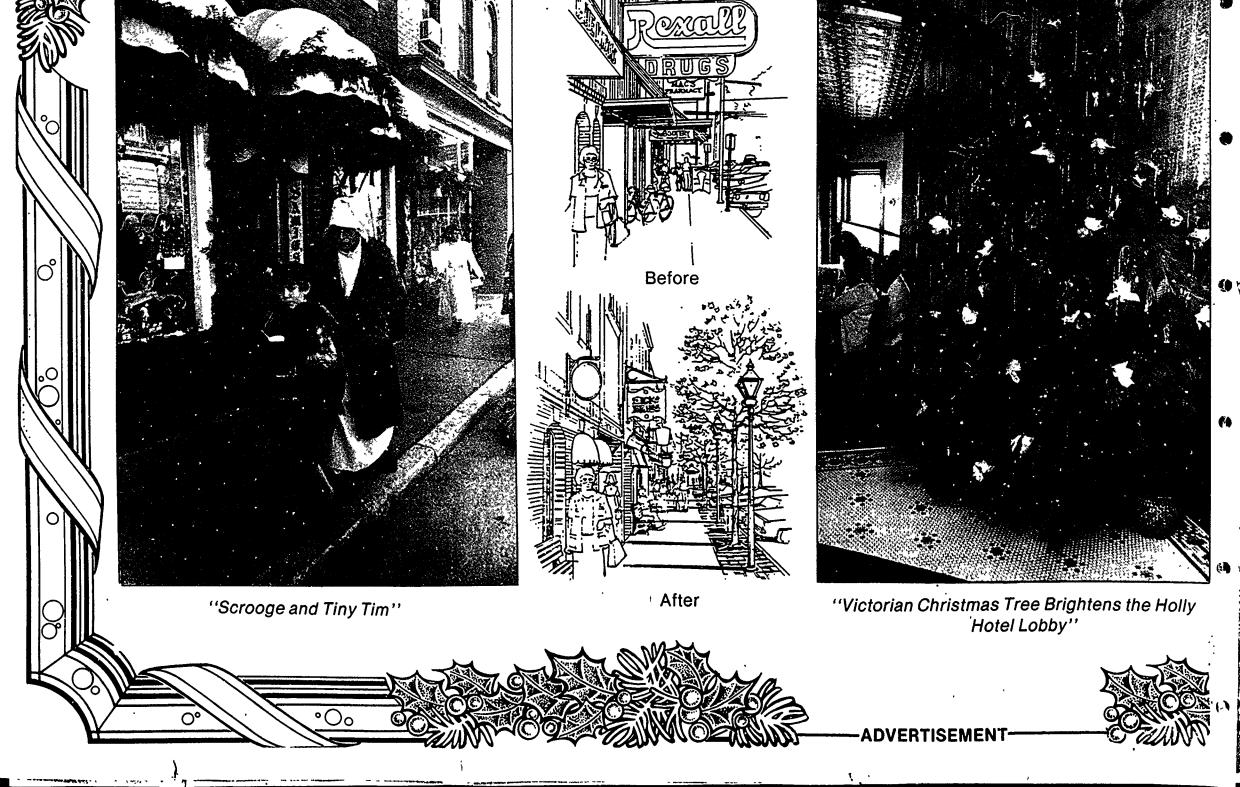

Battle Alley was included in the project. The street was closed to through traffic and new sidewalks were constructed.

A source of pride to Alley merchants is the new lighting in their street. Lila Mirsky of Lila's Place, located in the Arcade, says the light heads are from the famous London Bridge. "The lights were put aside when the bridge was dismantled and shipped to us," Mirskey said. "Special blubs were installed to give the area a warm glown and enhance the 19th Century atmosphere." While the lamplight has a soft, candlelight feeling, it is strong enough to read by according to Mirsky.

The business people are pleased with the final product of the DDA'S program, and are confident that visitors to Holly during the holiday festival will be equally impressed.

The celebration began 12 years ago when several of the merchants got together and came up with a plan to draw shoppers to the community during the holiday season, and at the same time provide them with the opportunity to relive history in a fun way. So, "An Olde Fashioned Christmas" was born, which led to the Dickens Festival a few years later.

Research continues in quest for causes and treatment of PMS

MARCIA LEE

When you feel that "mood indigo" and you're a woman of reproductive age, can you blame it on body changes occurring in the days just preceding your menstrual period?

For some women the answer appears to be yes. Dubbed pre-menstrual syndrome (PMS), the symptoms - emo-tional, behavioral and physical - are causing women in increasing numbers to seek medical treatment.

But there is no proven treatment, no well-defined cause, and experts cannot even agree on how many women suffer from PMS.

Up to 90 or 97 percent of women are said to admit to having some form or degree of PMS. But estimates vary widely on how many of them suffer significant emotional and physical symptoms. Some researchers claim 58 percent, while others report figures as low as 3 to 15 percent.

Most experts believe that severe symptoms are rare. Women don't "go crazy" once a month. About 10 percent require or seek treatment for their symptoms, while only about 2 to 5 percent find them disabling. PMS is not the same as dysmenor-rhea, the term used to describe the moderate to severe lower abdominal cramping and back pain that many women feel during menstruation. The most common symptoms of PMS are depression, irritability, anxiety and mood swings. A smaller number of women report anger, nervousness, food cravings, and a few, suicidal feelings. Also common are physical complaints headache, bloating, fatigue and insomnia.

PMS has been linked with criminal violence, suicide attempts, psychiatric emergencies, marital discord and child battering. In 1980, two women in England — one had killed her lover and the other had threatened to do so - were acquitted when PMS was judged a mitigating circumstance in both cases. In 1982, in the United States, a judge, ruling on a case of child battering, stated, "Inasmuch as eruptions of the are admissible evidence at mind criminal trials, why then should proof of physiological eruption of the body likewise not be admitted?"

First described in the medical literature in 1931, PMS was not included as a separate diagnostic title in the "International Classification of Health Problems in Primary Care" until 1978. Today, as more women recognize its symptoms and seek treatment, PMS poses a challenge to health professionals, who must face a host of unanswered questions.

"The main problem," says Jean A. Hamilton, M.D., former head of the biology of depression research unit of the National Institute of Mental Health and now in private practice in Washington, D.C.," is the heterogeneity of the affected population and the wide variety of symptoms. We have to find ways to tease apart these sub-groups." The only convincing test for determining whether or not a woman suffers from PMS is for the patient to keep a diary for three consecutive months to find out whether her symptoms cor-relate with the time just preceding menstruation.

When put to this test, about 80 percent of all patients who think their anxiety or depression is linked with their menstrual cycle find that it is not, ac-cording to Judith Abplanalp, Ph.D., assistant professor of psychiatry and behavioral sciences at the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston.

If these symptoms are not related to the menstrual cycle, further psychiatric or medical evaluation and treatment are indicated, according to Howard J. Osofsky, M.D., psychiatry discipline chief for the Menninger Foundation in Topeka, Kansas. For example, psychotherapy and the antianxiety drug alprazolam (Xanax, Upjohn) are frequently recommended for anxiety and associated depression.

Theories about PMS abound, but there is a dearth of solid studies to prove or disprove any of them. As a result, most treatments - over 327 have been suggested — are ineffective. They make some women better and others worse

The problem is compounded by the placebo effect. In testing a medication for therapeutic usefulness, an inert, substance called a placebo is given to some patients for comparison. Often, patients with PMS receiving the placebo report as great or greater improvement of their symptoms as the group receiving the drug.

Progesterone, a hormone that cir-culates principally during the second half of the menstrual cycle and during pregnancy, has been used extensively and enthusiastically for treating PMS since the 1950s, especially by the British gynecologist Katharina Dalton.

However, when controlled trials were conducted, no clear evidence of progesterone's effectiveness for treating PMS emerged. Two trials failed to report any therapeutic benefit, while one found beneficial effects, the greatest improvement occurring dur-ing the first month of treatment.

Oral contraceptives, particularly those with a high concentration of pro-gesterone, have been recommended for alleviating the symptoms of PMS. But these also produce inconsistent effects. A decrease in depression has been noted with their use, while others report aggravated mood swings.

Vitamin B-6, sometimes prescribed for PMS, can be suppressed by estrogens - another hormone group released during a particular time of the menstrual cycle. But again, there is no convincing evidence that vitamin B-6 and salt. relieves the symptoms of PMS.

In fact, high doses of vitamin B-6 may be dangerous. Doses of 250mg per day or more can cause a variety of neurological disorders, including numbness in the feet, hips, hands and face, according to Gary Shanold, M.D., assistant professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Chicago Medical Center.

Exercise, on a regular basis, can decrease PMS symptoms in some patients. Exercise increases release of endorphins, naturally occurring brain chemicals that enhance mood. One theory states that excessive exposure to, followed by abrupt withdrawal of, endorphins can affect one's moods, leading to the swings characteristic of Diuretics, often prescribed for PMS, have been used too often, according to Robert L. Reid, M.D., assistant professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Queen's University in Kingston, On-tario. In his view, only a minority of women with PMS .show true premenstrual weight gain or swelling. Dietary factors, according to Dr. Reid, may contribute to fluid retention in women who consume excessive amounts of sweet or salty foods during the premenstrual period. For this reason, many clinicians recommend diets low in sugar, caffeine, chocolate

And now baboons are suspected of displaying symptoms resembling PMS. A recent study by Glenn Hausfater, Ph.D., professor of biological sciences at the University of Missouri in Columbia, has reported that female baboons eat more and are less social before the onset of menstruation

The study lends support to the idea that PMS is rooted in physical or chemical changes in the body rather than in psychological distress.

Judith L. Vaitukaites, M.D., a pro fessor of medicine at the Boston University School of Medicine, reminds us that dysmenorrhea was thought for a long time to be psychological rather than physical. Not until systematic, controlled studies were completed did the role of prostaglandins — natural hormone-like substances — become clear. Today, women with dysmenorrhea can be treated with drugs that affect prostaglandin synthesis. Motrin Tablets (ibuprofen) — a nonsteroidal anti-flammatory drug — is widely used to relieve menstrual cramps.

Dr. Hamilton believes that we are at the beginning of a whole new generation of exciting research on PMS. "We have identified the critical problems and the future looks bright. In the next five years, we can expect to get the results of these experiments, and we look forward to new, clear answers to our questions about PMS," she said.

Floral gift can last for years

Some people just love to hunt through stores for the perfect gifts and enjoy the bustle of Christmas. They find wrapping presents a creative experience and never have last minute panics.

If you don't fit into the above description, hate shopping, are all thumbs when it comes to wrapping, or are just plain busy, sick or exhausted there's help at the local florist.

Of course you can still shop at the florists if you are well organized and have all your holiday arrangements well in hand. The florist shop is a place where you can choose something beautiful, thoughtful and seasonal, which will bring real pleasure to almost everyone on your Christmas list.

Mary Schraffenberger at Florals by Steven in South Lyon said poinsettias and fresh centerpieces usually run neck and neck as Christmas favorites and fall into the same price range - anywhere from $15 to $25.

At the higher end of the price scale is a long, low centerpiece with several candles, velvet ribbons, Christmas novelties and mixtures of pine, fir and holly. Schraffenberger said she has known people able to keep arrangements until April by pulling out the many fresh flowers which can be replaced.

Roberta Bearup, owner of The Village Florist in Milford, has noticed that poinsettias are usually the choice of the older generations with Christmas arrangements being the choice of the younger set.

She reminds shoppers to consider the recipients working hours and advise the florist if a late delivery would be necessary.

Remember that it gets dark early and the driver might not be able to read house numbers after dark. At this time of year it is too cold to leave an arrangement on the porch, so allow plenty of time for unusual circumstances.

Even floral gifts can be tailored to decorator colors advised Carol Jackson at Flowers by Jackson in Novi. Popular colors this year are mauve and slate blue and sure enough there is plenty of mauve and slate blue greenery!

Touches of these colors can also be introduced in containers ad trims.

For a less expensive but still delightful gift, Jackson suggests a Cricket Box ($10) which includes fresh cut flowers, a candle and some holly.

Dewey Gardner of Four Seasons Flowers in Northville said a popular item for the holidays is a fruit basket.

These cost from $30 and can contain your selection of fruit, candies, nuts and cheeses with, of course, a plant. Popular plants are miniature poinsettias or. azaleas, or new this year, a tiny living Christmas trees. The trees are specially pruned and come from 6 to 18 inches in height.

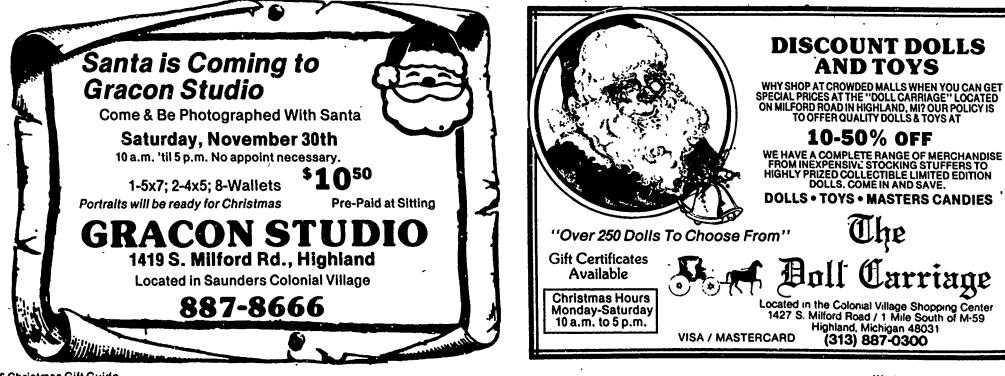

"They think it's spring already and can be taken outside when the weather is warmer," Gardner said.

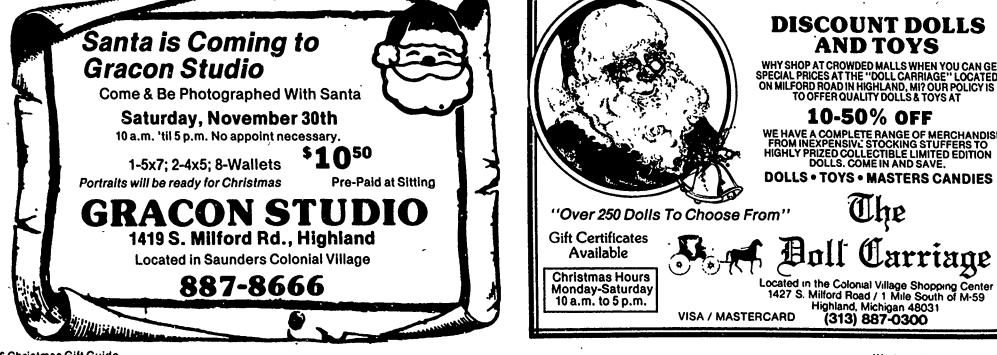

Lea McLeod with Bakman Florists in South Lyon said he thinks the FTD Candle Glow Bouquet will be a favorite this year. It features a hurricane lamp with a candle, traditional greens, fresh flowers and pine cones. Its price varies based on variations you choose, however, prices start at about $30.

McLeod reminds shoppers that if they wish to send flowers out of town the wire services shut down the day before Christmas.

Most of the florists said that things are pretty much picked over by the last few days, so try not to leave things to the last minute.

All of which goes to show you can save yourself a lot of time and struggles with paper and bows but still select a beautiful, fragrant and always welcome gift by visiting or calling your local florist.

Long after the Masters Of The Universe have been vaporized, after the Cabbage Patch Kids wilt, after the Care Bears go into permanent hibernation, we will still be able to count on many familiar toys being around.

You won't see Raggedy Ann run out for a chic hairstyle and business suit. You won't see Lincoln Logs reincorporate as Reagan Aluminum Siding. They'll still make Tonka Trucks from metal, Tinkertoys from wood and Play-Doh from goop kids can swallow by the handful and live.

These are toys that have stood the test of time. Generation upon generation has brought them back by popular demand. They have achieved a blue-chip status in the volatile market of children's toys. Take them off the shelves and you may as well replace Santa Claus with Super Smurf.

We talked to toy war veteran David Ehret, a merchandise manager for 10 years at K-Mart, about how familiar holiday favorite toys are holding strong in this area.

Crayola Crayons: Crayola's attempts at branching into watercolors and other art media haven't worked as well as the firm hoped — maybe because the original idea turned out to be quintessential. "Even though our storebrand crayons are less expensive, Crayola's still the one they prefer," says Ehret. "We have a hard time keeping them on the counter."

Erector Set: Ideal's metal toy was most kids' ideal toy when it was heavily promoted 15-20 years ago. While Ideal has added mechanical devices to its reper-

The collecton of timeless toys was made possible through the cooperation of Circus World at Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi. Special thanks to store manager Gary Blaskay. toire, the firm now plays catch-up to newcomers like Robotics build-a-robot kits. Still a staple at toy-specialty stores, at big distributors it has increasingly become a rarity.

Etch-A-Sketch: The old Ohio Art brainstorm holds remarkably strong, and has boosted its stock lately with extras. "They have accessories that attach to the screen you can use to draw things. It's a very reasonable toy," says Ehret. "It's a good basic item — we sell 12 every two weeks, I'd say."

Lincoln Logs: Playskool's stackable materials for budding architects are an endangered species on shelves where they have to fight for survival against motorized and heavily-promoted construction toys. But Lincoln Logs are still capable of selling out at child specialty stores.

Play-Doh: "It's still a real good seller," Ehret says. "We even sell them by our checkout counters, it's such a good impulse item. They make a good product."

Raggedy Ann: "She's here to stay," Ehret says of the 68-year-old soft doll based on the children's stories of Johnny Gruelle. "She's not setting the world on fire, but she's an old standard. Hug-A-Bunch dolls are still doing well, along with a lot of other soft sculpture dolls like Cabbage Patch dolls and their imitators.

"Actually Cabbage Patch dolls are already starting to fade," he adds. "There's something to the fact you can still walk in and buy a Raggedy Ann for 10 bucks. It's a good product."

Teddy Bears: The Care Bear craze along with market swings have brought teddies back into vogue and they probably have never sold better. There are stores around that practically specialize in teddy bears. "They're kind of a standard," agrees Ehret. Tinkertoys: The colorful wooden dowels and spools don't move the way they used to with majors like Meijer and K-Mart, but Tinkertoys are holding strong in toy-specialty stores. "Their popularity has died down quite a bit," Ehret observes. "L'Eggo is a lot more heavily advertised. All of our stores have a five-foot display stand.

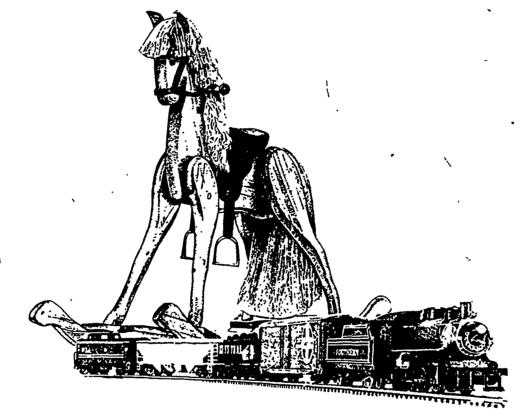

"Tinkertoys are considered primitive toys. They have no motorized parts; that's probably the main thing."

Tonka Trucks: If they don't sell like gangbusters, it's probably because their durable metal construction has kept so many in service. "They're good sturdy trucks, but they've cut back a lot; many of their models have fallen by the wayside," Ehret says. "Even their old red fire engine doesn't move the way it used to."

Trains: Hobby shops hold sway in the toy train war, where nostalgic dads and kids will keep them chugging long after the last real one is derailed. "We've had to cut back because the hobby shops can do more than we can," Ehret admits. "A lot of people like to buy their train piece by piece and we don't carry accessories."

Other toys that still hold off challenges from more fashionable and promoted competitors include stocking stuffers like jump ropes, yo-yos and squirt guns. Even Slinky is surviving long after its advertising has died out. "We even still carry ball-and-jacks sets," Ehret points out. "Sometimes it's surprising what toys just seem to be good year after year."

Little Beth Kemp, 3½, proved a model subject for our photo illustration of timeless toys. While the Raggedy Ann proved a cuddly favorite, Beth went home with a Slinky.

The perfect time to give athletes winter equipment

By the time Christmas rolls around, snow and cold weather are usually a daily fact of life.

It's wintertime, and to the athlete, wintertime means winter sports. Softball, golf and football are out. Crosscountry skiing, skating and sledding are in.

So when you're trying to figure out what gift to buy for the sports enthusiast on your list, think winter.

"Around Christmastime, we mostly just sell winter stuff," said Columb Harrison of Gell's Sporting Goods in Novi. "We sell a lot of cross-country skis. That sport is really picking up in popularity. Every year, it (sales of ski equipment) seems to get better and better."

Gell's, like most sporting good stores, offers several cross-country skj packages. For one price, you can get skis, poles, bindings and boots. At Gell's, the packages start at around $75. At Leist Sporting Goods in Howell, cross-country ski packages go over big when the holidays roll around.

"We sell a whole lot of them," said'. owner Jeff Leist. "For the last few years, we had a $60 package that we sort of flooded the market with. It really went over big."

This year, Leist's store is pushing an $80 ski package. The skis are made by Finland's Lampiñen Company.

Another extremely popular winter sport is sledding and tobogganing. "We sell a lof of those around Christmas," Leist said.

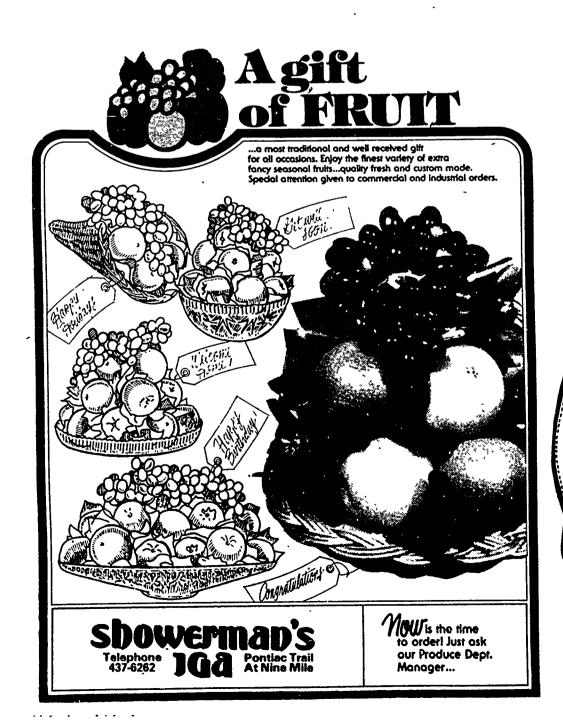

When you're talking price, there is a wide range when it comes to sleds and toboggans. It varies from the little red plastic sleds (quite popular among younger kids), which start at around $5, to the big, padded wooden toboggans, which start at $40.

Other popular winter sports gifts are skates (both hockey and figure) and hockey equipment.

The hockey player on your list might want a new stick (starting at $10) or pads. Pucks (which sell for $1 or so apiece) make great stocking stuffers.

Sports equipment isn't the only thing that puts a smile on the athlete's face come Christmas morn. You have to have something to wear while playing these sports, too.

Wednesday, November 27, '85

GEAR

"We sell a lot of ski gloves and down jackets and things like that," said John Palma, owner of the Action Sports Center in Hartland. "A lot of people like to buy clothing as gifts."

Another popular clothing item come Christmas are varsity jackets for high school jocks. Leist, who carries varsity jackets for a number of area schools, sells quite a few of the jackets every year at Christmas.

"Parents like to buy them for their kids, because it kills two birds with one stone," Leist said. "It gets a lot of parents off the hook. They would have to get their kid a varsity jacket eventually, so getting it as a Christmas present saves them some money.'

A lot of people also scour the sporting goods stores in search of gifts for the sports fan on their list. Items bearing the names of college or pro teams are very popular gift items.

"We sell a whole lot of Michigan and Michigan State stuff," said Jim Weber, the manager at McNish's Sporting Goods in Novi. "We sell t-shirts and sweatshirts and jackets - all sorts of clothes. We also sell a lot of mini footballs and basketballs with the school name on them. (Detroit) Tiger stuff is also really popular."

If the athlete on your list is into hunting and fishing, you have a wide range of gifts to choose from. And come Christmas, these types of gifts are popular.

"A lot of women like to buy their husbands guns," said Gell's Sporting Goods owner Harrison. "Christmas seems like a good time to get a new gun, so a lot of women like to buy them for their men. It's a pretty popular gift item."

Archery equipment (bows, arrows, targets, etc.) is also a popular gift for the sportsmen, as are fishing accessories (rods, reels, lures, fish-finding gadgets). So if you have a sports lover on your gift list, first find out what sport he or she likes. Then happy shopping!

Cross County ski packages (pictured at left) are among the biggest sellers during the holidays. Other popular items includeweights, aerobic shoes and a hockey pucks. Sports equipment was provided by Liest Sports, Inc. in Howell. Sliger-Livingston/Camille Mc-Coy.

Poultry is big in the kitchen

Get all your ducks in a row this year as you choose the "in" Christmas present for the kitchen.

Everyone knows that a kitchen with pleasant surroundings is a magnet to those that come into a home. To work, to socialize or to eat in, the kitchen is one of the most used rooms in the home. Making it fun to come into can be a joy.

Here's a little help from those in the know — the store owners who sell items for the kitchen.

Stores specializing in kitchen items and knickknacks show rows and rows, shelves and shelves of ducks, geese and chickens.

There is also a smattering of cows, pigs and horses. Use of all these farm animals to decorate walls, tableware and serving dishes would make Old Mac-Donald proud.

But the hottest domesticated farm animals are geese and ducks.

Prices and items have a variety of range. For those on a tight budget, salt and pepper shakers from Heritage Gifts and Flowers in Hartland may do just fine. Or a cookie jar with geese from The Grist Mill in Brighton would fill a vacant spot on the kitchen counter.

The geese motif is used on napkin rings, trivets, casseroles, towel racks, honey pots, mugs, jars, stencils, bookends and pitchers, just to name a

For those who like new appliances, this year's hottest selling items, according to Candance Baker of Hudson's, include T-Fal, Sunbeam's Oskar, the Cuisinart DLC-X Superpro and Donvier's Ice Cream maker.

T-Fal comes in a variety of cookware pieces and prices, but the set that seems to be going the best is the threepiece fry pan, she said.

It is coated on both the inside and outside for fatless cooking and easy cleaning. That costs $19.99.

Oskar, priced at $69.99, is a smaller food processer than has been on the market in the past. It has been designed for easy cleaning.

Cuisinart Superpro is a large food processor for $199. It comes with 12 utensils.

Donvier makes ice cream with no electricity, no ice and no salt. The interior of the ice cream maker is removed and placed in the freezer for several hours prior to use.

No electricity translates into hand cranking the ice cream. It might not be so bad, though - the directions said it takes about 20 minutes to make the ice cream

Donvier is selling for $29.95 for a unit which makes a pint and $39.95 for a quart maker

Strolling into either the Yankee Peddler at Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi or into Salt Box and Creative Windows in Brighton, aprons with matching potholders are in prominent view.

This year, they come in muted colors with floral patterns.

"I sell a lot more aprons," said Lois Brandt, owner of The Kitchen Shoppe in Brighton, which also carries aprons. "People like them for gifts."

The Kitchen Shoppe has a wide assortment of gadgets (good for stocking stuffers), which people also seem to want, she said. There are strawberry hullers, heart-shaped egg rings (so a fried egg will be heart-shaped), mushroom brushes, pie birds, magnets, garlic storers, dough presses and garlic ropes.

"People are going for old type (kitchen items) that their grandmothers used," Brandt said. In particular she mentioned the strawberry huller and pie birds.

The store also has bay leave wreaths, which stay usable and flavorful for months, decaffeinated teas and cookbooks for any age.

. Wood is still very important in the kitchen, said Mary VanPeursem, owner of The Grist Mill. Wood utensils, stencils, towel racks, spice cabinets, cork boards and the like are much in demand as people turn to the country-kitchen look.

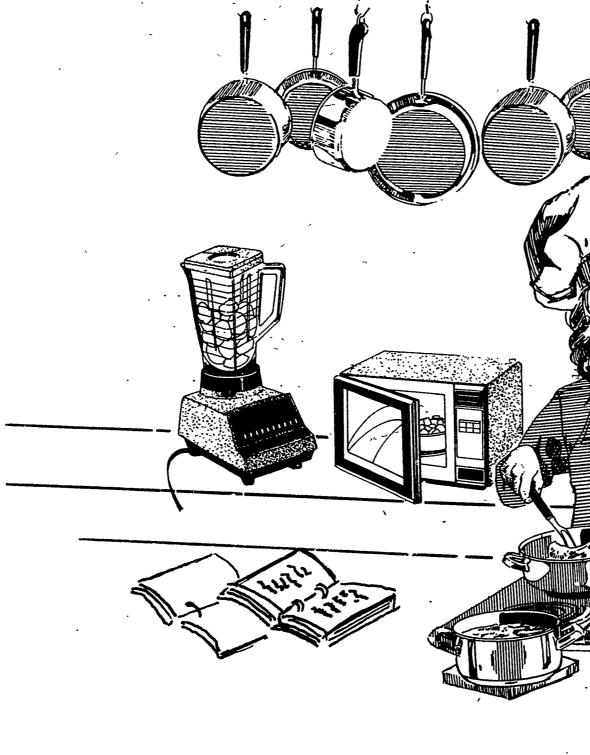

Victorian ideas, such as potpourri in lace coverings are sneaking into the stores now, she said. Also colors are changing from the traditional slate blue and mauve to dark green.

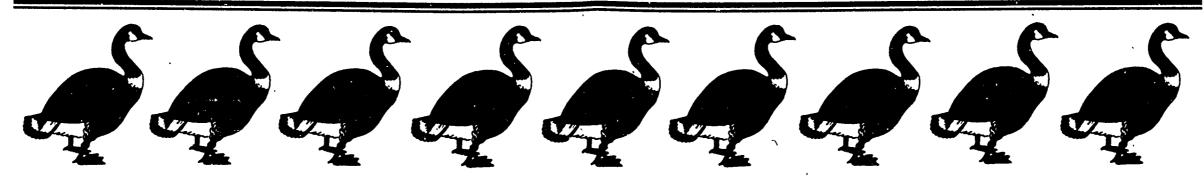

For those who pop into Grandma's Attic in Brighton, embroidery hoops secure a piece of material with a cat, pig, rabbit or a duck as the focus of the artwork. Doorstop mice ($28) are items that the store can't seem to keep in stock. It also carries doorstop ducks.

As can be seen in the Yankee Peddler, as well as other stores, dishes with the Christmas theme are also strong this vear.

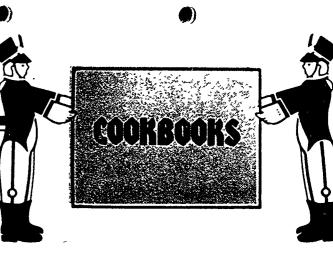

Dishes are generally decorated with Christmas trees or wreaths.

Microchips meet mistletoe...

They're not the least inexpensive Christmas gifts to buy your loved ones, but electronic gadgets can be a family favorite.

Come Christmas Day, many holidaygoers will be seen under the Christmas tree toying with their new videocassette recorder, stereo or possibly even a microcomputer.

Some electronic gifts are novelty items while others serve more practical purposes. Take the the radar detector for instance. It's ideal for the family who does a lot of traveling, according to Julie Hammon, a sales person at That's Entertainment in South Lyon.

"We're getting a lot of requests for them since the police have cracked down on speeding motorists," said Hammon. Radar detectors range in price from $100 to $300, Hammon added.

Character phones and cordless phones are two novelty items which are in considerable demand during the Christmas season, according to Mike VanSlambrouck, sales manager at Radios, Knobs, Speakers and Things in Pontiac.

Snoopy, Garfield and Mickey Mouse are among the most popular character phones, said VanSlambrouck adding that prices generally range from $50 to $90.

Enhanced technology has helped make cordless phones a popular gift item, VanSlambrouck said.

"The big complaint used to be false ringing. That is, when your neighbor's phone rang so did yours. That problem has been solved. The design of them is just a lot better now," he noted.

VanSlambrouck said prices for cordless phones range from about $49 to $200.

For persons who do a lot of heavy driving, a cellular phone would be an ideal gift. Rather than having to stop at a pay phone to make an important call, one would be able to dial direct from the car phone. The starting price for cellular phones is about $1,100. "People who are looking to buy video recorders should know what type of recorder they want. Otherwise, it's possible you may pay more for somthing you really didn't want."

For families who can afford them, computers are still a popular Christmas gift. But computer dealers said interest in home computers has waned con-

"The computer software today is more education and business oriented as opposed to video games," said Bob Doyle, president of Friday's Girl Incorporated in Lyon Township.

Scott Worcester, corporate salesperson for Computer Horizons based in Livonia, concurred with Doyle adding

"the swing is away from the home market." Worcester said that parents today are buying microcomputers for their kids, who can use the machines to do their homework.

ELECTRONICS

"The microcomputers can compensate students who don't have a lot of access time to computers at school. That's / the real advantage to having one," said Worcester. Microcomputers are not a cheap investment, however. Worcester noted that Computer Horizons microcomputers start at about $1,200.

Car stereos are another favorite gift item during the holiday season, according to David Laikind, assistant manager for Haney's Stereo in Waterford.

"Christmas is just a convenient time to buy little Johnny what he wanted for the car," said Laikind.

An AM/FM cassette deck manualtuning car radio costs about $85. That does not include speakers, however, said Laikind. The average price for a new car stereo is about $400, Laikind said adding that some people spend as much as $3,000 on car stereo equipment.

Laikind recommends shoppers to do to things before making a stereo purchase. "First, know how much you want to spend and stay within that limit. The second thing to do is shop around and make sure the stores you go to let you play with the equipment they have to see if you like it," said Laikind.

According to Laikind, consumers today frequently request their radios include such extras as digital clocks and tape search, whereby the system automatically flips to the start of a desired song.

In the hobby department, radio controlled air planes, boats and submarines are big selling items, according to John Doliber, owner of the Shutter Shop in Milford. "There's a little kid in all of us," said Doliber. Start up costs can range anywhere from $30 to $500 depending on how elaborate people want their toys to be, said Doliber. Computerized video games have fallen in popularity in the last few years, according to Doliber. "The electric trains and toys will always be there, but I think we're getting back to more board games and doll figures." It would be impossible to mention all the electronic items on the market. Rather, the gcal was to pick your brain and stimulate gift ideas. As you have read, it really isn't difficult to give this vear's Christmas shopping spree an electronic twist.

Area salespeople said the biggest electronic craze of all this Christmas season may be videocassette recorders and accompanying cassettes.

Many consumers, we're told, are building up their film libraries by recording their own shows on blank tapes instead of prerecorded. During the holidays, children's Christmas movies also are on sale at some video stores. Christmas movies can be purchased for as little as $10 or as much as $30.

Video recorders range in price from $250 to $500, according to Hammon.

Stuff for a sock can be found down the block

Once the stockings are hung by the chimney with care, What can Old Mr. Santa stuff in each little pair? Is it trinkets or trivets when you've run short of time, Why not jingle your sleigh bells to the town five-and dime? There's a D&C Store on Brighton's Main Street, They have playthings and sundries and good things to eat. We're not saying you'll find things for five or 10 cents. But you'll find reasonably priced goodies for both ladies and gents. For the kiddies there's all kinds of neat little toys, Like cars that spin and flash and make all sorts of noise. Our personal favorites, if you'll allow us our moods, Are a nifty bunch of racers that go by the name of "Fast Foods." "Pepe Taco", "Frankie Furter", and "Mick Burger" really fly. And they look just like the dinner fare that all their names imply. For Mom they've got some beauty brushes in a handy-dandy case. Or a festive box that holds sweetener if she's worried about her waist. For Dad there's always socks and stuff, but give the man a break. They also have Swiss Army-style camping knives and tiny travel irons, for goodness sake.

"Little Dreamer" pencils are favored by many little girls, They come with a tiny set of crayons and erase with colored swirls. -For those impossible to buy for, come here and take a look, They still sell packages of Lifesavers wrapped up just like a story book. But if you want something irresistible, and really kind of neat The store has cuddly little lambie-pies that when you turn them give a bleat.

There's also a shop down South Lyon way that sells some unusual wares, You'll find Geri's Hallmark Shop smack in the middle of Brookdale Square. Besides the cards and wraps and stuff, they have Christmas gifts galore, They even have a special stocking stuffer display that greets you at their door.

That's where you'll find something called "Night Before Christmas Mice," A whole family of lovable rodents that are sure to make you look twice. Baby Mouse wears a polka dot diaper and a silly little grin, Your little ones can adopt these pets for much less than a fin. If giving ornaments for Christmas has become a family tradition, This place is well prepared to assist you on your shopping mission. They have trimmings that will light up when you hook them on your tree. Just plug them into your light bulb string and let them dangle free. Another bulb contains the pages of a story, and what's more They include a special poem by a man named Clement Moore.

There's some clever little doo-dads for all the tiny nips, Like a "Ready Rocket" pencil case and cartoon-like "alligator" clips. They have some shiny, sturdy metal cars made in China of all places, The ice cream wagons, buses and fire trucks all have names and faces. With candles and their holders this store has shelves a-teeming, For the holidays they're red and green with Christmas trees and stars agleeming.

If you're looking for a perfect gift for those who think utility is nice, They have windshield scrapers with a sheepskin mitt to keep your hands out of the ice.

You say you bought this neat stuff but your stocking's looking crummy? Then how about a fuzzy animal that comes equipped with a gift pouch in its tummy?

With all that Christmas turkey, the dips, the pies, the breads, It's becoming quite apparent that we'll look like blimps with heads. But there's a place in Novi that could help us out a lot, McNish's Sporting Goods and Trophies can help eradicate that pot.

For starters there are jump ropes to help us exercise, And Hacky Sacks are still the rage, now that's quite a surprise. They have sweatbands for the head and wrist and other spots, I guess Plus shirts and shorts and socks and shoes and other athletic dress. A must for every Christmas sock is a pair of "Stinky Pinkys," Which are pouches full of chemicals that keep your shoes from smelling stinky. And have you heard that there's a breakthrough in wrist and ankle weights? Spenco makes a soft and comfortable knitted pair that'll burn calories off your plates.

For the jogger in the family who runs around all night,

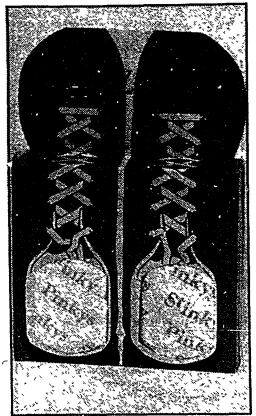

McNish's sells a wrist wallet with strips that reflect the light.

And you say your Uncle Waldo caught a foul fly at the ballpark with his face? Then why not buy him a desktop baseball holder complete with a gold plated base?

If you still feel uninspired, we really don't know what to say Except take your socks and stuff them, and have a Merry Christmas Day.

Among the biggest sellers in stocking stuffers are (clockwise) 1. Lifesavers packaged as books. An old favorite which has withstood the test of time; 2. Stinky Pinkys. A must for the those who live in sneakers and 3. "Fast Foods" metorized racers. Almost look like the real thing.

Give your kids the world - in books

Remember the good feeling of "losing yourself" in a place such as Camelot as you read about King Arthur and his knights or the scary feeling you had of swirling through the air with Dorothy on her trip to Oz?

Maybe you preferred Nancy Drew mysteries or the Hardy Boys as you grew older. Whatever your favorites, you probably loved books from the time your mom or dad held you close and read to you when the pictures meant more than the words.

The world of books is still fascinating to children, young and old, and it is a way to gain all kinds of knowledge and skills not offered by any other forms of study or play. For those parents and grandparents who don't know what to buy but who want to encourage learning, we suggest they give books for Christmas.

To help you focus on a few selections, we asked some area librarians and merchants to list some new arrivals as well as several old favorites.

Book, a collection of songs, poems and things to do for a family Christmas at $14.95. The "Picture Book of Cats" by Yoko Imoto, is an award winner of lovely illustrations for little ones. It's priced at $7.95. "The Book" for children at $9.95, is a lovely hardcover collection of 200 stories from the Bible. All are available at the Lyons Book Den.

the poems and dowings of Shel Silverstein

At Jan's Hallmark in Howell, the most popular "best sellers" are the Little Golden Book series of old favorites such as "Frosty the Snowman" and "Rudolph, the Red-Nose Reindeer," in paperback at under $1 each. Hallmark has also created this year a Christmas ornament which incorporates the book, "The Night Before Christmas." The child pushes a button on the top of the ornament which turns the pages of the miniature book. It's priced at $13.

Teenage fiction selected by Leslee Niethammer, librarian at the South Lyon Public Library, includes "One Special Year," a turn-of-the-century story of a teenage girl, by M.A. Perez at $12.95. "Trial by Wilderness," written by David Mathieson and priced at $11.95, is the story of one survivor of a small plane crash in British Columbia. "The Chimpanzee Kid" by Ron Roy, priced at $11.95, will appeal to teenage boys. It is the story of Harold who is interested in helping animals and his friend Bennie, the Chimp. skies, storms, rainbows and sunsets for d-12 year olds.

"Tales of King Arthur" by James Riordan is "a must for any older child interested in the Knights of the Round table." Priced at $11.95, it is suggested for children age 10 and up.

If you are looking for educational nonfiction books for children, Brown suggests "The Computer Primer for Gifted Beginners" by Ann Cavanaugh for 8-12 year olds. It includes computer history, uses, software, programming, charts, graphs and useful information on computers at a cost of $19.95.

A "Dictionary for Children," published by Macmillan at $10.95, is a good book for the elementary age child (6-10). A real come-on to learning, according to Brown.

For parents who are into exercise, there is a new book for kids 4 and up to learn about keeping in shape. "Albert, the Running Bear's Exercise Book" by Barbara Isenberg and Marjorie Jaffe takes the child through Albert's experiences with a new friend who teaches him how to exercise. In paperback, it is priced at $4.95. For those who would like to help their children keep Christ in their Christmas celebrations, His Bible and Book House in Brighton has "The Night Before Jesus," written by Herbert Brokering and published in hardcover by Concordia at $5.95. It is a poetry version of Jesus' birthday with lilting rhymes similar to "The Night Before Christmas." The total Christmas message for children is contained in "Santa, Are You For Real?" by Harold Myra at $4.95 at His Bible and Book House. "Innkeeper's Daughter" by Jill Rriscoe is the story of Jesus' birth through the eyes of a child, the daughter of the keeper of the inn where there was no room for Mary and Joseph to sleep. This book, with beautiful pictures, is priced at $5.95.

At Bookstall on the Main in Northville, one of the fastest selling perennial favorites is "Corduroy" by Don Freeman. For children 2-8, it comes in hardcover at $9.95 or in softcover at $3.50. Another old favorite redone is "The Teddy Bears' Picnic" with a recording of the song by Bing Crosby. It's repackaged for Christmas at $14.95. "Grandpa" by John Burningham at $8.95 features a little girl and all the questions she asks her grandfather such as, "do worms go to heaven?"

For ages 11 and up, the Bookstall has the "Sweet Valley High" series on current social situations at $2.50 per book. Cynthia Voigt's "Building Blocks" is for boys, fifth grade and up, at $2.25 in paperback.

The Little Professor bookstore in Brighton recommends "The Kids' World Almanac of Records and Facts" by Random House at $4.95 for children 10 and up. Basically like an adult almanac, it contains facts of interest to preteens. "Nutcracker" by E.T.A. Hoffmann, about the famous Christmas ballet, earned high grades from B. Dalton Books at Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi where it is on sale at $12.79 until Christmas. "The Sweet Smell of Christmas by Patricia Scarry at $5.95 features scratch and sniff scents of the holidays. And, for everyone, there is the classic favorite, "Miracle on 34th Street" by Valentine Davies. A beautifully illustrated story, it is available at $15.95. For ages 6 and up, the Milford Book Shoppe, recommends "Giraffe and Pelly and Me" by Roald Dahl, author of "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory." In hardcover, it is $11.95. For little ones, "Santa's Beard is Soft and Warm," a Golden Touch and Feel book, is $4.95.

"Where the Sidewalk Ends" by Shel Silverstein received the most votes from bookstore salespeople as a relatively new old favorite that is still very popular. It's available in hardcover for $13.50 at all area bookstores.

"Only One Woof" by James Herriot, the popular English veterinary author of "All Things Great and Small," earned commendation as one of the most popular new books for young and old alike. About an Old English sheepdog, it is beautifully illustrated and priced at $9.95 in the hardcover version at Milford Book Shoppe, Bookstall on the Main in Northville, Lyons Book Den in South Lyon, Little Professor and Poor Richard's Book Store, both in Brighton.

Officer in Charge Wayne Heffington asks holiday shoppers to mail early this year, to make certain that mail is addressed correctly (including Zip Codes), and that packages are wrapped correctly so cards and parcels reach their destinations in plenty of time for the holidays.

"Normally we handle about 14,000 pieces of mail a day — including cards, letters and packages. During the holiday season, volume goes up to about 35,000 pieces," said Heffington. "We in the Postal Service take pride in carrying your messages of love and joy. Mailing early helps us deliver the messages on time."

Christmas memories from Dutch country

When memory keeps me company And turns the smiles to tears The Christmas Eves of long ago Come through the mist of years.

Back in the foothills of Pennsylvania where the Dutch really like to celebrate, Christmas Eve is the most important night of the year. This is because the little white church on top of the hill has turned the holiday program over to the Sunday School.

With the parents on hand, it is a real celebration. Most of the students are asked to deliver a recitation on the platform in front of the pulpit. And that has been the means of starting young men and women off on a lecture tour when they grew to adulthood.

BUT THE MAJOR event is the presentation of awards for winners in the Sunday School attendance for the year.

When the winners are announced, they must parade up the aisle and receive a book as the prize. This seems simple. But The Stroller got interested and made a bid for the all-time record.

His chief rival was a girl on the other side of the room, and it always was a battle to see which of us would be declared the winner.

After he got started in the race, his goal was set at 20 years. And year after year, he was called up front and handed a book.

One year, his hopes seemed dim when he was stuck in the snow on a Sunday morning, and it seemed that he wouldn't be rescued in time for the school to start.

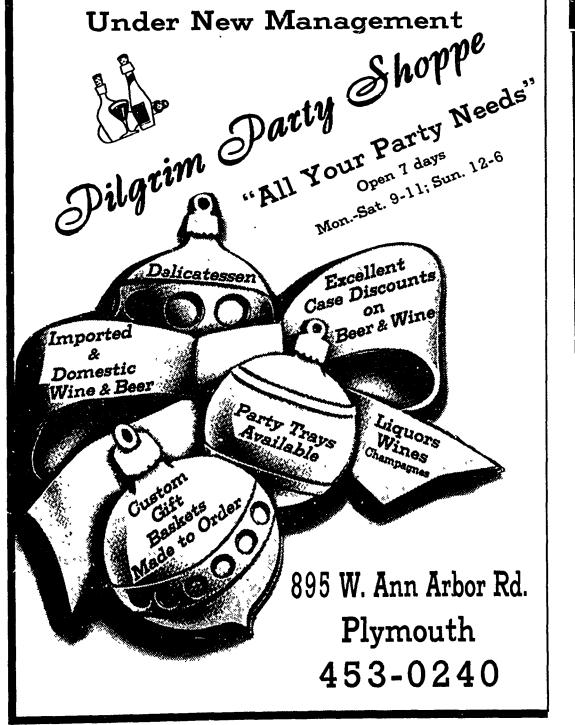

Fortunately, a man came along and lifted him out of the drift and walked with him to the school and got there just in time.

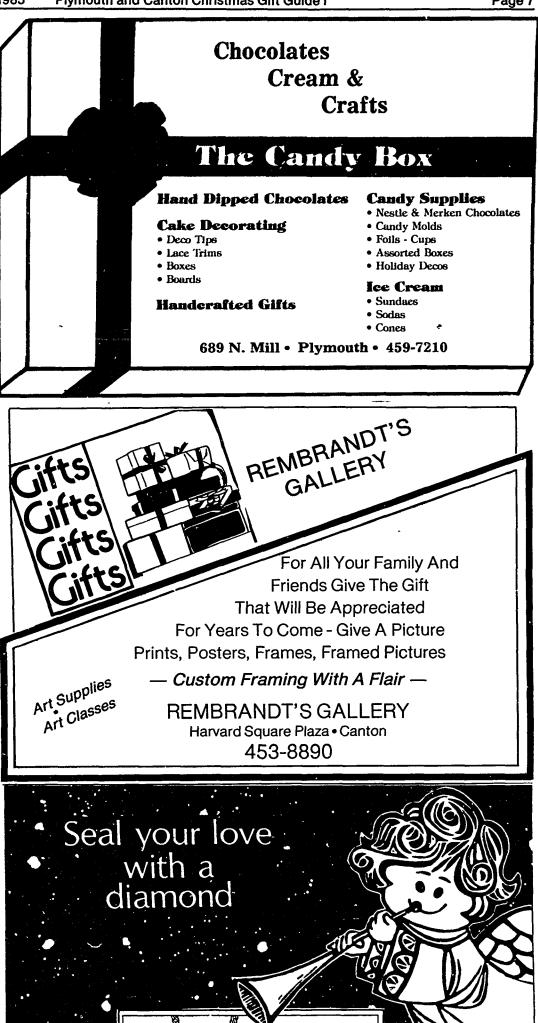

Finally, as the years passed, he came to the 20th and got the real surprise when he was awarded a gold medal with all the details inscribed. It was always his choice posession.

But all good things must come to an end. And after he came to Detroit in 1924, one evening the thieves broke into his home and took the medal.

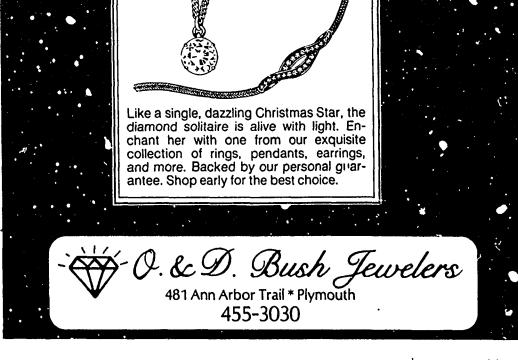

Mayme the young woman finally got her medal. But with miles separating us,

Christmas memories: sacred and mystical

By Alvia Lewis staff writer

(The following Christmas column was written by Alvia Lewis, a New Jersey native transported to Indiana, who is spending her first yule holiday in Michigan this year. She shares these memories with us.)

Ever since I was a little girl growing up in New Jersey, Christmas was a sacred, as well as mystical day.

Sacred because of the birth of Jesus, and mystical because there is truly something beautiful and ever present in the air during the holiday season.

Our home always smelled wonderful, what with scented candles burning and the Christmas tree and Mom's mince meat cookies baking.

Even our dog, Sandy, knew there was something special in the air. From the kitchen he quizzically watched Mom and I in the dining room wrapping gifts, and he truly looked forward to his own stocking filled with a new hair brush and various and sundry treats.

My best friend, Amy, is Jewish, and when we were growing up, we looked forward to Christmas with the greatest of zeal. She enjoyed visiting our home to look at the Nativity scene under the Christmas tree and I enjoyed visiting her home to look at their Hanukkah tree — a 4-5-foot branch painted white and simply decorated with white, silk birds and colorful, miniature paper fans and umbrellas from Chinatown in New York City.

The branch was always the victim of some monstrous autumn storm. Rescued and placed securely away in the garage or on the side porch by Amy's mother, Louise, the branch, I suspect, would have been taken away by the sanitation engineers.

Tiny white lights enhanced these orphan-like branches that came to life year after year. Their simplicity and modesty, I recall, captured the meaning of Christmas like no other branch or tree or part of a' branch I've ever seen.

The memory is one I shall cherish always.

We, of course, always enjoyed exchanging gifts on Christmas Eve; one year at Amy's house, the next at mine. The mystical part of this affair was that we were so different in religious belief, yet emotionally linked during Christmas.

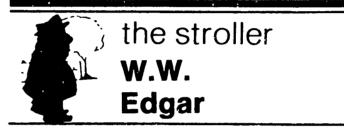

Amy lives in Georgia now with her husband, Jimmy. I live in an apartment in Michigan some 900 miles away. The last Christmas we spent together was almost six years ago.

And to this day, my Christmases continue to come to life because of the love, understanding and respect that my Jewish friend and I shared so many years ago.

Christmas is a time when we all recollect the memories of our youth. For Shannon Whittaker, one of her memories of the future will be 1984 when she was the littlest angel in a pageant put on for senior citizens. BILL BRESLER/staff photographer it is unknown if she kept going or quit when there was no longer a contest.

WHILE THE medal was gone, the experience of reciting a poem on Christmas Eve fit in fine out here in the Midwest when he was asked to join in the afterdinner speakers.

And in the fond memories is one where Mother sat on the seat next to the aisle. And when he was asked to come forward and recite, he heard her say to a neighbor, "That's my boy."

He never spoke any better.

When the exercise was nearing completion, there was always a stirring noise. Before it subsided, Santa Claus had come down the chimney and made his appearance before all Sunday School students.

And then he passed out the first pre- mas Eves will always keep him company sents of the year — a box of candy and an orange.

These became very important gifts as they were taken home and placed in the forever - even if the gifts are only an stockings before they were hung. So, it was only natural to see the orange when placed in the stockings hung at the chimyou came down the steps on Christmas ney. morning to see what Santa had brought.

THIS WAS the highlight of a typical Christmas back in the foothills. Times may have changed things, but they'll never take the spirit of Christmas away in the little white church on the hill, even if that program and the attendance race is now just a memory.

The little white church is still there. It was its bell that sounded the Armistice that ended World War I. And it has been the focal point for many things through the years.

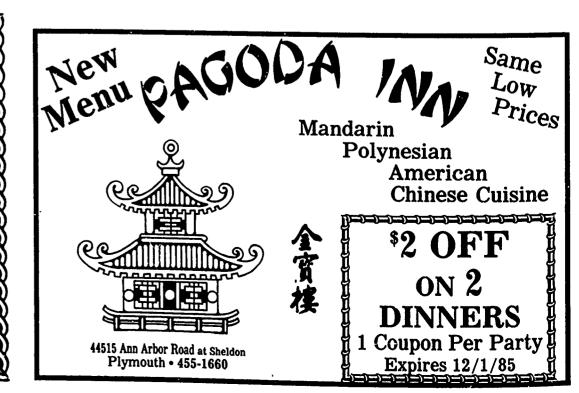

But nothing has ever surpassed the interest among the townspeople like Christmas Eve when we delivered our recitations and walked up front to get the winning prize for the attendance race.

That's why the memory of those Christas Santa Claus heads for the chimney about town.

It is a holiday type evening that lives orange and a small box of candy that is

And a Merry Christmas to you.

Telethon to help feed the needy

The Plymouth Salvation Army and Omnicom Cablevision have joined hands again in 1985 to conduct the "Baskets Filled With Love" food drive/telethon to help feed families and individuals in the community.

The effort was introduced in 1984 as a joint effort between the Salvation Army and the cablevision company serving Plymouth, Canton and Northville to provide food to the needy.

"We're looking forward to a successful year," said Pete Smith, 1985 Telethon chairman and associate producer for Omnicom. "More than 30 participating companies, churches, service clubs and schools have 'love boxes' placed so that canned goods and dry goods can be collected."

The drive will run through Saturday, Dec. 7. The 10-hour telethon will be cablecast live from Omnicom's studios on Ronda Drive in Canton on Dec. 7.

This year's telethon organizers include Lt. Larry Manzella, commanding officer of the Plymouth Salvation Army Corps; Maria Holmes, Omnicom acting program director; Carol Bannerman, Omnicom production intern; and Smith.

"This year we're expecting an even greater response from our community. I am overwhelmed at how well the concept of 'Baskets Filled With Love' food drive has been received by all the people I've been contacting.

"More than 50 'love boxes' are expected to be delivered, making it possible for you to donate your canned or dry goods to feed those in need this holiday season."

The telethon is scheduled to run from noon to 10 p.m. Dec. 7, Smith said, but will continue as long as pledges of support are being called in or as long as canned goods are dropped off at the studio.

Fun and entertainment also is planned for the telethon with visits from celebrities.

LAST YEAR'S telethon and food drive resulted in some 30,000 canned goods being donated and some $2,000 in contributions.

For the Salvation Army, its collections from Christmas Kettles last year were $4,000 higher than in 1983.

"This increase in donations and food allowed the Salvation Army to expand its assistance to more than 230 families for Christmas 1984, not including more than 100 families fed at Thanksgiving," said Manzella.

"It's important for people in the community to realize that there are people hungry everywhere. Many people might have been turned away last year if it had not been for the generousity of these communities to help others in need," Holmes said.

"I went to the Salvation Army after the food drive and telethon were over, and I saw the many hundreds of people who came in for assistance. Many were in need of clothing and other assistance as well as food.

"We have a responsibility," added Holmes, "as caring people of the community to lend a hand to our neighbor especially during the holiday season. When you give of yourself, you will really find that the wonderful feeling of giving is what Christmas is all about."

Smith said residents can start dropping canned goods off now at either of Omnicom's offices, at 8465 Ronda, Canton, or
