Commission backs away from Haggerty proposals

By KEVIN WILSON

On a 5-3 vote that may have surprised the commissioners as much as it did a roomful of observers, the township planning commission last week rejected proposed amendments to the master plan for the Haggerty Road corridor.

Commissioners' statements prior to the November 26 vote suggested a 6-2 tally in favor of the revisions, which would have allowed more intensive development of property fronting on Haggerty, the township's eastern boundary. Last-minute reservations led several commissioners to back away from the proposal they had argued in favor of adopting only minutes before.

The proposed amendments have been under study for more than eight months. The commission itself initiated the study in response to an increase in rezoning requests from potential developers and to re-examine local planning in light of changes taking place in adjacent communities. It seemed to have fine-tuned a final proposal in October.

During post-vote discussions, commissioners said they still believe changes are required in the master plan for Haggerty, but several said they have reservations about the intensity of development that might occur under the proposal on the table.

'Nobody here voted for 'no change,'" chairman Richard Duwel summarized after a round-table discussion late in the meeting. The commission scheduled a study session last night (Tuesday) to reevaluate the proposals. The meeting was to take place after this week's edition of The Record went to press,

While commissioners Ted Martin and Jerry Chisnell made clear early in the November 26 meeting that they intended to vote against the proposed amendments, the other six commissioners attending the session spoke in favor of the plan's predominant feature — a large-office district occupying virtually all the land on the west side of Haggerty between Six Mile and the Meijer store at Eight Mile.

A series of straw votes before discussion was opened to audience members resulted in tallies of 8-0, 6-2 and 6-2 in favor of the amendments proposed for the sections between Five and Six Mile, Six and Seven Mile, Seven and Eight Mile respectively.

When it came time for a real vote. however, commissioners Kitty Rhoades, Richard Allen (the township chairman Pat Wright and commissioner Larry Sheehan voted in favor of the amendments. Commissioner Marvin Gans was unable to attend. Prior to the meeting, Gans reported to Duwel that he favors the amendments.

The vote was seen as a victory for members of the Meadowbrook Estates Association, a homeowners group from the subdivision north of Seven Mile and directly west of the proposed office district. Officers and members of the association attended the meeting, and their arguments opposing the proposal were presented by an attorney hired to represent the group's interests.

According to association president Bob Johnson, a majority of the subdivision homeowners are opposed to any change in the master plan for the stretch of Haggerty between Seven and Eight Mile Roads. Attorney Glen Valentine argued that the proposed amendments would contradict the preamble to the township master plan which calls for office and commercial districts sufficient only to serve the needs of township residents.

"We've heard the community and the community is vehemently opposed," to the proposed amendments, commissioner Ted Martin said, referrring to earlier discussions of the issue. only support we've heard for this (proposal) is from those residents who are large-property owners."

Citing fellow commissioners' arguments that the township could lose

Board to establish school millage rate

The Northville Board of Education will decide Monday how much of its ex-pired voted operating millage voters will be asked to renew in a special election March 24.

Though the district's entire voted operating levy of 26.5 mills will expire this year, the school board has delayed setting an actual millage rate until amending the 1985-86 budget.

At its meeting last week, the board adopted an amended 1985-86 general fund budget identifying changes in its original budget approved last June.

The newly amended general fund budget shows a slight $28,440 gain in revenues over expenditures for the 1985-86 school year with a $1,050 preschool net for the Moraine Early Childhood Development Center.

Major changes in the district's revenue from its original budget include a decrease in tuition and an increase in interest, according to business and finance director John Street.

Though the district will receive $52,700 fewer tuition dollars than originally anticipated, Anterest targeted at $225,000 in June now is expected to be $275,000 - balancing the loss of the tuition monies.

The amended general fund budget shows an increase of $2,300 in revenue from local sources (which include pro-set the loss. Street also noted that another area showing a significant revenue difference is energy conservation monies. Among the major expenditure changes is an increase in elementary salaries due to the addition of 4.5 teachers at the start of the school year. An additional 1.6 teachers at the middle school also increased the expenditures for salaries at that level. A slight increase was shown at the high school level to allow for an extra period for teachers.

Increases were also noted in the transporation department where an ad-ditional $51,504 was budgeted for salaries, $33,421 for purchased services and $34,880 for supplies and materials.

Street noted that salaries "initially were underbudgeted" and attributed increases to overtime plus the addition of mid-day bus runs.

He told board members the increase in purchased services was due to higher insurance costs and noted the additional costs for supplies was attributed to an expected increase in fuel costs.

Another significant increase was in the area of insurance where an additional $114,499 was added to the $48,000 originally budgeted.

Reductions in expenditures were made in the areas of fringe benefits due to a decrease in anticipated costs for Blue Cross-Blue Shield. Elimination of While revenue from intermediate one clerk in the central office reduced expenditures by approximately $18,400.

death November 21.

By JEAN DAY

The nurses' station on the floor for children 12 and older at Children's Hospital of Michigan in Detroit didn't look much like Christmas with only an orange decorative accent color to brighten the hospital whiteness - until today. A decorated tree, a toy-filled wooden sled, a Christmas wreath, a bear calendar and a box filled with miniature baskets of candy are on their way to the hospital station to provide a bit of cheer for both patients and staff.

They're the gift of Joseph E. and Felicia Manhart of Northville who as he told how he and his wife wanted to do "something really super" for those who had cared for their son during the month after they found he had leukemia. Today Louise Whittington was delivering the decorations and putting them in place personally. The Manharts' son, who turned 12

Tax bills are mailed, error discovered late

By KEVIN WILSON

Along with the first scattering of Christmas cards from those ultra-efficient friends and relations, Northville mailboxes included a perhaps less-welcome envelope this week - property tax bills.

City and township both mailed tax bills November 27. To claim property tax payments as income tax deductions, the bills must be paid by December 31, either by the homeowner or the mortgage-holder.

Township taxpayers may notice that their bills do not reflect the 2.77 percent rollback that applies to only the township operating, police and fire millages. Those millages account for 3.7 mills of the 33.27 mills levied on this tax bill in the Northville school district

(21.2 mills were billed in July for one-half the school tax levy). . Supervisor Susan Heintz said a series of errors resulted in the tax bills going out with last year's township millage rates rather than this year's reduced figure.

"We've been trying to work out a system to pay it back. We're going to be sending out a rebate, obviously, but we haven't worked out the details yet," Heintz said. "(The tax reduction) is something we said we were going to do, and we're doing it."

The rollback should result in a total township operating, police and fire millage of 3.5976 mills instead of the 3.7 mills shown on December bills. With one mill equalling $1 of tax per $1,000 of

'They don't know why it happens and all they can do is attempt to induce remission," his mother explained as she recalled her son's days at the hospital.

The doctors and nurses who cared for Joe all praised his courage and politeness, she reported, mentioning how the nurses who changed his intravenous medications would comment when he would say, "Oh, thank you very much."

A doctor who cared for Joe told the Manharts that "it was an honor" being able to work with him, his mother mentioned with gulet pride.

"Some 20-year-olds act like 12 in the hospital, but Joey was 12 and acted like 20," his mother said.

"He was a water person - he liked to water ski and was a fisherperson. He did everything with us," she added, noting that he was like an only child. The Manharts had lived in the Plymouth-Canton area until moving to Welch two years ago. They lost a 2½ month old son Matthew two years ago in a sudden infant death syndrome.

Sitting with the social worker as she explained about the leukemia was like hearing them say before that they couldn't find any reason for the baby's death," Felicia Manhart said.

Joe had attended Amerman Elementary after the family moved to Northville, but the Manharts decided to send him to Our Lady of Good Counsel in Plymouth when he entered seventh grade this fall. His mother explained this was done with the expectation that

Arthur Weaver sponsors 'stop smoking' program

Smokers who want to kick the habit will have their chance in a program beginning today under the direction of Dr. Arthur Weaver, a Northville resident and associate professor of surgery at Wayne State University, and his associate, John Swanson, M.P.H., health education specialist and resident of Canton.

In a program that has been successful for more than 15 years, the series of evening group therapy sessions, films and a daily personal plan for home or work will be presented December 4, 9-13 and December 16 at 7:30 p.m. in the Little Theater in Plymouth-Canton High School, 46181 Joy Road.

More than 70,000 people have been helped to quit smoking in the program with most coming from the greater Detroit area.

'The stop smoking techniques developed by Dr. Weaver and Swanson have been popularized by television; radio and newspaper articles.

The stop smoking clinic combines, physiological and psychological approaches that, they promise, work. They detail how the craving to smoke can be lessened, how to keep a positive mental attitude, give the physical effects of smoking, behavior modification needed and value clarification.

These and other techniques designed to produce a smoke-free lifestyle will be given in the seven sessions. Special attention will be given to persons needing help with weight control on the last night.

No preregistration is required. A donation will be taken to cover expenses. For more information call 459-

Winds usher in early winter

High winds that accompanied Sunday's snowfall did their share of damage locally and led to predictions that a severe winter could be expected even though it's not officially winter until December 21. When the high winds sent a 25 by 35-foot section of the Masonic Temple roof flying into the air about 7:20 p.m. Sunday, the debris hit an eastbound 1985 Oldsmobile driven by Sandra Lee Burns. As she drove past the building at 106 East Main the debris landed on the hood, deck lid and fenders and caused glass damage, the city officer called to the scene reported.

Building owner J.J. Lineman was called to the scene as a patrol officer noticed the pieces of roof flying off the building. The street was closed at Hutton and the DPW removed the heavy debris.

Students at Meads Mill Middle School . were released from classes in midmorning Monday after downed power lines cut off heat to the facility.

The downed pole on Bradner also cut off power to residents of Whisper Woods and Northville Colony.

By KEVIN WILSON

A $1.1 million budget for 1986 opera-tions of the 35th District Court received Northville City Council approval Mon-day night, with the council noting that the court has become a revenueproducer rather than an expense in recent years.

The budget has increased about five percent over last year and includes five percent raises for Judges James Garber and John MacDonald.

Council approved the budget as recommended by the court advisory committee, which includes representatives of each of the five communities served by the court (Northville, Northville Township, Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township).

Each community must approve the budget. The communities contribute to the cost of court operations under a formula based on court usage. In the past two years, the court has generated revenues in excess of expenditures for all five communities.

For 1984, the court returned more than $300,000 to the communities. Nor-thville's share was about $27,000. For 1985, the return is expected to be about twice last year's amount, with communities expected to reap between $500,000 and $700,000.

Mayor Paul Vernon and city manager Steven Walters noted that start-up costs in the new building in activity at the court.

Anticipating a December 16 closing date on the sale of the bowling lanes property at Main and Center Streets, Northville City Council Monday night agreed to lease the parking lot at the southwest corner of the intersection.

The lot will be used as open city parking, with no time limit, until spring, when construction is expected to begin on the multiple-use building proposed by the 108 Group, which is purchasing the site.

Mayor Paul Vernon explained that the city lease of the property for a nominal fee will allow the parking lot to be covered under the city's insurance policy, absolving the new owners of the requirement to obtain liability insurance.

Such insurance has become very expensive or unavailable to private parties, city manager Steven Walters said, noting that a similar situation arose with regard to a gravel parking lot on the east side of Center Street across from the bowling lanes. "It wasn't feasible to (lease) the gravel lot," Walters said. "The Ten Grand Club (current owners of both properties) couldn't get insurance and came to us suggesting we lease it. But we couldn't get insurance for a gravel lot, either. The paved lot is a different matter."

Walters noted that physical barriers have been employed at several private Housing expense, including debt retirement and building operating costs, are projected at $217,500. Other expenses detailed in the budget total $134,500. Walters noted that no major capital outlays are projected in the budget.

Council members had high praise for the court operations. Walters said the civil docket at the court is now current, meaning that civil cases filed are generally heard within four to six weeks. He also said that the advisory committee and Judge Mac-Donald worked out an agreement to have the court's surplus revenues disbursed to communities in semi-annual payments rather than once per vear.

'There will be one payment in the fall based on the figures as of June 30 and one payment in spring based on the year-end audited figure," Walters said. "For the larger communities, that means a lot. They are getting payments of upward of $250,000 - that's a lot of money to hang onto for that long." Vernon said he was particularly pleased to see the court performing so well.

"Judge Garber promised the court would become self-supporting after a couple of years in its own building, and that promise has been kept," Vernon said. He also praised the turn-around in the civil court docket backlog, which was a problem cited 18 months ago.

sites to prevent cars from parking on property the owners could not insure.

'If we don't do this, I'd expect you'd see a physical barring of the (bowling lanes lot) in the next week," Walters said.

The mayor and the city manager both said the parking spaces in the lot are needed "especially for the next four weeks" and suggested that posting it as a city lot with no time restrictions might make it attractive for use by downtown workers. Many spaces in city parking lots near downtown businesses recently had time restrictions imposed in an effort to keep the most convenient spaces open for use by shoppers.

Artist creates massive sculptures at his Napier home

By ANN CHOWDHURY

The earth felt good under the feet of artist David Barr, so in the 1970s he built his house on four acres of deserted cornfield on Napier Road, and surrounded it with sculptures inspired by basic shapes, the building blocks of nature.

A structurist, he finds structures in the organization of nature and these are reflected in his work.

'I'm interested in the realistic way the world works, the way nature works, the way plates of earth are sliding over each other, the way a tree grows, the way crystals are formed. I tend to want to make the invisible structures of the world visible and the visible structures of the world invisible.'

Barr's home was designed by Larry Booth of Chicago to reflect and mesh with the artist's personality and lifestyle.

In the sparsely-populated farming area Barr claims to have found the best neighbors he has ever had in his life.

The more you get into the country there's a certain kind of tolerance, there's more space and people accept,' he said. "I think if I was doing sculptures in a more developed suburb there would be flak about it. Somebody would object.?

Through leafless trees his house makes a bright yellow splash against the wintery fields. Though it looks modern, Barr said it is influenced by the Palladio villas of the renaissance.

A red-angled roof reaches over the living area, which abuts the flat-topped studio.

A spiral stairway winds from the Etruscan red entrance hall to the blue living area. Climbing through the circular opening in the maple floor, the visual impact of angular ceilings, cylin-drical chimney, diagonal beams and quilt-draped clerestory is striking. Huge leather couches, a grand piano and a flourishing fig tree do not overwhelm the spacious room.

From one wall bursts an explosion of color from an Amish quilt. On another, tribal masks and shields from Africa and New Guinea look strangely at home next to a contemporary relief.

While building the house, Barr had an idea which he has since realized: a 'symbol for unity and communication across political, cultural, religious and geographic boundaries; a work intended to exist mainly in the human mind and belong to everyone who knows of its existence.

The work known as "The Four Corners Project" is the world's largest sculpture using only a minimum of its resources

Its physical components are the four marble corners of a tetrahedron which have been buried so that the imaginary lines which join them form a large tetrahedron spanning the inside of the earth corner is buried on Easter One Island, one on a Greenland ice cap, one in South Africa and the fourth in New Guinea.

The work took nine years and is dedicated to the memory of Barr's sister, Robin Doran, who died of cancer before it was completed. Barr finished his second global project, "Sunsweep," a month ago. A symbol of international friendship, it spans the border of the United States and Canada. It comprises a fragmented, black granite arch, sections of which were ceremoniously placed in three strategic locations.

Bluff, Point Roberts, Washington State.

The coastal sections of the arch reach toward one another, while hand prints engraved on the arches face each other and each side of the border in a gesture of human unity.

"Sunsweep" portrays the path of the sun across the continent and the of-the-Woods, Minnesota, and the longest, friendliest border in world westernmost section on Boundary history.

Since Barr's mother was Canadian, it was a personal and a global statement. The artist financed both projects which represent personal ideals, but stresses that neither of them would have been possible without the help of his family, many friends and officials here and overseas.

"I don't think it's any accident," he said, "that projects like this are coming out of the space age. Man got up in a space ship and looked back and didn't see political divisions, and didn't see a county line or a property line. He saw one globe and realized we've got one set of problems .... Art transcends dif-ferences, and all I am trying to do is find new metaphors to do this ... im-ages that bridge. That to me is meaning and I believe in an art of meaning."

Barr said his position as a professor at Macomb County Community College enables him to meet the financial obligations to his family but his art supports his art.

"I don't want to be dependent on my art. In 25 years I have never made an art work that I didn't believe in as an art work. If no one buys it, my attitude is that if they don't want it . . . I want it. I believe in it and that's enough.

The first artist to serve as a trustee for Michigan Foundation for the Arts, he feels that he has reached the time in life to do what he can to encourage worthy artistic endeavors.

The community of the midwest has been generally encouraging, responsive and helpful to me, and I think that as you grow older you start to feel the weight of that and the responsibility, with a measure of indebtedness," he said.

Barr is probably best known in the art world for his reliefs, some of which are displayed in the Donald Morris Gallery in Birmingham and the Richard Gray Gallery in Chicago.

Others hang in his own home with artifacts from distant corners of the earth.

With them are a series of lithographs documenting the "Four Corners," symbolicaly uniting far flung human endeavors, bridging gaps and melting barriers with metaphors of hope and love.

Men's Night set

There's good news for the man who doen't like Christmas shopping. Twelve Oaks Mall has dedicated one special evening to help him solve his shopping dilemma – Men's Night. The Twelve Oaks' Men's Night will be held tomorrow (Thursday, December 5) from 5:30 to 9:30 p.m. The emphasis throughout the mall will be to make his shopping easy and fun.

Secondly, the stores have scheduled models and extra salespeople to pro-vide personal service. The Eddie Bauer store is even presenting a fashion and gift show in center court at 7 and again at 8 p.m.

Finally, once the purchase is made, Twelve Oaks will gift-wrap packages. Free gift-wrapping will be available at the Santa Service Center in Sears Court.

Planners reject zoning changes for senior village site

By KEVIN WILSON

Citing a growing interest among un-named potential developers of an elderly housing project in the township, the planning commission last week rejected a petition for amendment to the zoning ordinance governing such a pro-

The only property currently zoned for an elderly village is the former Wayne County Child Development Center on Sheldon between Five and Six Mile.

Northville Elderly Development Company (NEDC) holds a lease on the 101-acre county-owned property and earlier this year requested that the zoning ordinance be amended to expand the potential market of renters for its proposed project.

The planning commission action was to "leave the ordinance as written" and not make the changes.

The firm had asked for three alterations in the ordinance language to: Reduce the definition of "elderly" from age 62 to age 55; • Allow a portion of the project, from one-third to one-half the proposed 1,200 units, to be open to tenants of all age groups;

 Allow convenience businesses on the site to be located in such a way that they could draw customers from outside the complex.

Commissioner Richard Allen, liaison member from the township board of trustees, said he was opposed to granting all three changes "as a package" and made the motion to end discussion of that option.

"I feel if we make a change to our RME (multiple family residential elderly) zoning, we open the door to others who'd want the same thing," Allen said. "There are others in-

site with the current zoning."

Michael Kahm, representing NEDC, said the firm still hopes to "work something out" but that its market studies suggest that some change is needed. "We're willing to go to other avenues (than the zoning ordinance) to retain our interest," he said. "If there is one of the three (suggestions) that appears more viable, we'll take a look at that. We're not necessarily interested in trying to package the three together."

But commissioners would not consider the items individually, and Duwel advised that the proposal on the table was for an amendment to the zoning ordinance that would include all three elements.

"At this point, we ought to take the position that we're not going to amend the zoning ordinance and that's that. Get it off the agenda," said Allen. "If they can work around it, fine. If they can't, well, there are others out there. There are proposals for RME at other locations. I don't think that (child development center) location in the township is all that important."

Commission vice chair Pat Wright said she hopes the township will undertake its own market study to examine the potential number of tenants for a housing project meeting the current RME specifications.

"I'm not ready to concede anything to non-elderly," she said. "I don't have a quarrel with a 55 age limit, but I'm not willing to go any farther than that. The last market study was in 1978. I think we're ready for another market study.' Duwel said the commission could recommend that the board undertake such a study, adding that "the fact there are other developers interested is an indication a market exists with the current zoning.

Allen noted that the township began considering the amendments "when there was no one else out there, when it appeared there wouldn't be anyone else. Now there are other interests.

Elementary schools get national honor

Northville Public Schools' three elementaries have been named Centers of Excellence by the National Council of Teachers of English (NCTE).

The school district is one of only four sites in Michigan selected for the honor and among 150 elementary and secondary schools chosen nationwide.

Other Michigan districts honored include Plymouth-Salem High School for its humanities program, Hutchinson Elementary School in Detroit for its READ ON/WRITE ON program and 'Oakley Park Elementary School in Walled Lake for its writing program. The NCTE cited Northville for its "Language Learners and Media Magic" program at the three elemen-tary schools.

An NCTE task force which carried out the search for exemplary teaching programs released its list of winning schools at a news conference November 25 during its 75th Annual Convention in Philadelphia.

The schools named as Centers of Excellence were selected from more than 700 applications answering NCTE's call for descriptions of programs that schools consider excellent and worthy of national recogniton. Schools chosen as finalists were visited this fall by NCTE evaluators, who observed the Roger McCaig, an NCTE on-site evaluator, visited Winchester Elementary School November 5 to view the Language Learners and Media program submitted for con-Magic" sideration by learning consultant Connie Cylkowski.

'We have found that excellence lives in public and private schools, in primary classrooms, in middle schools and in junior and senior high schools." said task force chair Skip Nicholson of South Pasadena High School in California, "We hope that the Centers of Excellence program will answer questions left hanging by recent reports on school reform. Those who are trying to carry out reforms need to see examples of effective English programs."

The English programs judged to be excellent have these characteristics in common, Nicholson said. "They fit their communities, because local teachers took a hand in developing them. They grow; they adapt to changes in local circumstances. They accommodate the diversity of students they serve. They rest on sound theory and research. And they provide, or are part of, a balanced English language arts program.'

state equalized valuation (SEV), the rollback amounts to just over 10 cents on each $1,000. For a house recently sold for $100,000 and therefore showing á $50,000 assessed valuation, the overbilling amounts to a few cents more than $5.00.

"Some people may be getting rebate. checks of little more than a dollar or two, but we're doing it anyway," Heintz said. "We've got a call into our computer people to set up the system to cut the checks."

She stressed that the amount overbilled is a small percentage of the township's own millage and the rebate will not apply to tax levies for the schools, county, community college or parks. While the township collects the taxes for all these, it has no control over the amount levied and simply passes the money along to the taxing agency.

One other small glitch in the township billing this year was the failure by one mortgage lender to notify the township that it would be paying the tax bills on certain properties.

If the lender is paying the bill from an escrow account, two of the three as an informational notice. If the homeowner pays the bill directly, all three copies were sent to the taxpaver. We sent out a note with the bill explaining that if you got three copies, you had to pay your own bill and if you only got one copy, the mortgage company would do it," said Heintz. "But one particular company didn't notify us it would be paying the bills, so we started getting calls from people who got three copies but expected the taxes to come out of escrow.'

By comparison, the city's tax billing went smoothly, said Donna Kohs of the finance department.

City bills, with payment due by February 28, call for payment of these amounts for each $1,000 SEV in Wayne County: $21.20 for one-half the Northville Public Schools levy (half was billed in July), $7.07 for Wayne County. $1.10 for the Wayne County In-termediate School District, 25 cents for Huron-Clinton Metroparks, and $1 for the Randolph Drain assessment. The total is 30.62 mills.

In Oakland County, a slightly lower 28.4391 millage is due to lower county

Gymboree

Fitness franchise attracts tot-sized following

At 10:45 Wednesday morning, some 15 fitness devotees are gearing up for the final leg of their 45-minute workout.

After nearly a half hour of tumbling, climbing and jumping, these exercise buffs are ready for a little teamwork as they gather in the center of the room awaiting direction from instructor Marilyn Cech.

One look at this roomful of dimpled knees, tyke-sized sneakers and saggy diapers should indicate that this fitness program was not exactly designed for body toning.

However, it's not baby fat these tiny tots are out to lose.

At Gymboree, a nationwide fitness program for infants to four-year-olds, the emphasis is on movement and play. According to Mary Michalak, owner behavior. Michalak, an attorney, former special education teacher and mother of two, opened the Moraine center in September — her fourth in the metropolitan Detroit area. With more than 12 Gymboree centers currently in operation in Michigan, it appears that infantile fitness is attracting a devoted following following. Though the program is relativey new to Michigan (within the last two years), Gymboree's beginnings go as far back as 1976 when Joan Barnes, a community center recreation director, opened her first center in California's Marin County.

According to Mary Michalak, owner and operator of the newly-opened Gymboree franchise at the Moraine Early Childhood Development Center in Northville, the program is designed to teach children the essential cognitive and sensory skills through play behavior.

Since that time some 280 franchises have opened in the United States and Canada.

With her three-week-old daughter Hilary sound asleep on her chest, Michalak looks more like a program participant than the owner of a growing franchise (she's looking to open a fifth center next year in either Union Lake or West Bloomfield).

She explains she first heard about the program while listening to a radio program on a return trip from Chicago to her home in Farmington.

After observing the program in Chicago, Michalak signed on last December and opened her first center in April. She notes that Northville's former elementary school is an ideal location for her newest Gymboree center with participants utilizing the gym. Her three other centers all are housed in churches.

While movement programs for preschool students hardly can be considered a new phenomenon, Michalak points out that Gymboree's emphasis is on providing developmental play for children during the formative years.

Classes are divided into three groups beginning with Babygym for infants 3 to 12 months.

"With the infants we work on stimulating body systems," Michalak notes, adding that activities such as "baby boogies" are designed to introduce little ones to new colors, textures, sounds and activities.

The middle group, Gymboree, is for tots ages 1-21/2 years. "This is our most unstructured class

"This is our most unstructured class in terms of group activities," Michalak says. "The attention spans are real short," she adds, glancing around at the roomful of Gymboree participants.

The oldest group, Gymgrads, for  $2^{1/2}$  to 4 year olds, is the most structured program focusing on pre-aerobic exercises choreographed to music.

All Gymboree classes are 45-minutes with sessions running 10 or 12 weeks. Classes are $4.75 per session (plus a one-time registration fee of $10).

Michalak notes that Gymboree is a family affair with mothers. fathers and grandparents participating with little ones.

"We try to have a grandparents' week at least once a month," she notes, adding that classes are offered both daytime and evening to accommodate working parents.

For some parents, such as Marilyn Grech of Northville, 'Gymboree has much more to offer than movement and play.

"Rebecca's been coming since she was 4 or 5 months old," Grech says of her 19-month old daughter clad tin miniature Levis and pint-sized sneakers.

"When she first came she was really shy," Grech adds. "I think it's really brought her out of her shell. "Now I can hardly get her to leave."

For information about the Northville Gymboree, call Mary Michalak at 477-1084.

Chelsea Cloud of Northville (far right) and Andrew Cash of Novi take their turn on the trampoline. As one of Gymboree's more active participants, Andrew (right) tests all the equipment during his weekly regime. ## Colts' Christmas tree sale gets under way this week

Beginning this week, residents can take their pick of some of the freshest Christmas trees anywhere - and aid the Northville-Novi Colts Junior Football program while doing so.

More than 800 newly-cut Christmas trees are due to arrive here from the Grayling area for the Colts' annual sale. They had been expected Sunday evening but were delayed en route due to blizzard conditions in Northern Michigan. While they had not arrived by Tuesday morning, Bill Todd said he expected them very soon.

The Colts will be selling the trees in their familiar location next to Arbor Drugs on Center near Dunlap in Northville. Chairperson Gary Forte reports that the order was increased by 75 over last vear's.

Good Counsel Church where the funeral was held November 23. Father Timothy Hogan officiated.

In addition to his parents he leaves two sets of grandparents, Joseph and Alice Manhart and Felix and Ann Broniak, all of Dearborn Heights.

"It's really devastating," his mother said Monday as she recounted the swiftness of their son's illness. Then she turned to the decorations intended to brighten the season for staff as well as patients on the floor and admired the way Louise Whittington had integrated orange and gold colors with traditional reds and greens in the wreath and tree decorations with ribbons and trim.

"She even found candy canes with orange colors," Mrs. Manhart marvel-ed appreciatively.

While she noted that she would be putting Christmas "on hold" personally this year, Felicia Manhart seemed to find comfort Monday in the thought that the decorations to surround the calendar with its popular "beary Merry Christmas" greeting would provide a bright Christmas note at the hospital.

Plymouth symphony concert scheduled

Guest conductor Carolyn Eynon and the Madrigal Chorale of Southfield will be featured in the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra's holiday concert Sunday, December 15, at 4 p.m. at the Plymouth Salem High School Auditorium.

Eynon, in her eighth season as artistic director of the Madrigal Chorale, is the former choral director of the vocal music department at Andover High School in Bloomfield Hills and the well-known vocal and hand-bell ensemble, "The Jills."

She has taught conducting at the University of Michigan School of Music where she earned her undergraduate degree and currently is a doctoral candidate in Choral Conducting.

The Madrigal Chorale includes ap-proximately 70 men and women volunteer members. The Southfield Choir began in 1914 under the direction of Charles Morse, who founded two separate choruses - the all-male Orpheus Club and its female counterpart, the Madrigal Club of Detroit. Both operated for 64 seasons. In 1978-79, bowing to low interest and financial troubles, the groups combined into the present Madrigal Chorale, acquiring a new home base in Southfield and its first woman director, Carolyn Eynon.

The symphony's selections for its holiday program include Suderburg's "In Dulci Jubilo" for brass and chorale and Resphigi's "Laud to the Nativity." A medley of Christmas music and an audience sing along will conclude the program. An addition to the afternoon's musical program will be Bruce Smith on the Viola d'amore. Smith will be the soloist for "What Child is This" included in the Many Moods of Christmas medley.

The Viola d'amore is an instrument that had its origins in the mid-17th century in Italy. Smith became interested in ancient stringed instruments when he first met George Kelischek at Interlochen in 1960. Kelischek, maker of historical instruments, had recently emigrated from Germany and spent several summers working with Smith on the art of making historical instruments.

Tickets will be available at the box office the day of the concert. Tickets also may be purchased at Beitner Jewelry in Plymouth, Arnoldt Williams Music in Canton" and Hammell Music Inc. in Livonia.

Single concert tickets are $6 for adults, $3.50 for senior citizens and fulltime college students and $1 for students 12th grade and under.

The City of Plymouth is providing a double decker bus as a means of transportation for the Project Foster -Patron recipients. The bus will pick up residents at the Northville Senior Citizens' Center and Wishing Well-Manor in Northville as well as at locations in Plymouth.

There also wil be free babysitting for preschoolers during each concert.

The concert is made possible by sponsorship from the City of Plymouth, a grant from the State of Michigan through the Michigan Council for the Arts and the Plymouth Symphony' League.

Young Ki Kim, 20, of Ypsilanti, was hospitalized after the 1982 Mercury he was driving on Novi Road appeared "to drift over the center line" as it was heading southbound and went into the northbound lane, according to witnesses

A passenger in a 1985 GMC truck headed north was injured when the truck was hit by the southbound vehi-

Kim, who has been released from St. Mary Hospital, told police later that he remembered driving down Novi Road but could not remember the accident. He recalled that he might have felt the back of the car swerve

He said he thought at first he may have had a blowout, but the officer at the scene noted he had checked the tires which were inflated.

The passenger in the second vehicle was taken to Providence Main and was hospitalized for possible spinal injuries. He was reported in fair condition.

Young Ki Kim was ticketed for failure to have his vehicle under control.

Damage estimated at $1,500 was in-flicted on a 1980 Corvette parked in the driveway of a Fairbrook residence November 28. The owner reported to police at 12:57 p.m. that the vehicle had been parked in the driveway from 1 p.m. to midnight when person(s) cut two tires and apparently used a knife to scratch the door, rear fender and deck.

A Walled Lake resident reported his wallet had been taken by a pickpocket at Northville Downs November 26. He said he had gone to the men's room in the upstairs grandstand and had felt someone bump him from behind and felt the wallet being removed.

He said a black male then started to argue with him and then he turned and saw a second black male walking away.

Unknown person(s) stole a 1983 Chevrolet pickup truck from a Ran-dolph residence, it was reported to police at 4:51 a.m. Monday. The owner said it was taken sometime between 9 p.m. and 4 a.m. The vehicle was believed to be locked. It was valued at $7,000.

A window at Hamlet Food Mart was broken by a rock December 2. An officer on patrol discovered the broken window and called the owner who came to the scene. Damage was estimated at $200

Theft of two bicycles from the side of a house on Allen Drive was reported to police December 2. The owner said she last saw a Huffy Moto Cross-type bicycle November 27 and on November 28 noted that a girls' 10-speed Sears bike also was gone. They were valued at $210.

Theft of a $200 radar detector from a 1985 Chevrolet pickup truck parked in a driveway on Yerkes was reported to police November 26. Entry apparently was gained by throwing a rock through the left door window. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $50.

A 1985 Ford Ranger pick up was stolen from the Meijer's parking lot sometime between 10:15 p.m. November 26 and 9:30 a.m. November 27, township police report.

The complainant told police the vehicle was locked at the time the incident occurred.

The stolen vehicle was placed into the Law Enforcement Information Net-work (LEIN). Police have no suspects or witnesses at this time.

Two smoke glass T-tops valued at $1,500 were stolen from a Pontiac Trans Am parked in the driveway of a Ladywood residence sometime between 7:30 p.m. November 25 and 8:30 a.m. November 26.

The complainant told police that a bowling bag also was stolen from the interior of the vehicle. The bag was estimated to be worth $30.

Items valued at approximately $775 were stolen from a GMC station wagon parked in the driveway of a Ravina residence sometime between 10 p.m. November 26 and 8 a.m. November 27, police report.

The complainant told police unknown subject(s) broke the vent window on the passenger side front door to gain entry to the vehicle.

Items stolen included a Kenwood AM/FM cassette valued at $350, an Escort radar detector valued at $250, a $125 amplifier and a $50 vacuum cleaner.

The complainant noted the vehicle was locked at the time the incident occurred Damage to the console and vent window was estimated at $500.

Items valued at $750 were stolen from a 1981 GMC station wagon parked at a Weatherfield residence sometime during the evening hours of November 25, police report.

The complainant stated the vehicle was locked at the time the incident occurred. The front door of the vehicle was found ajar by the complainant the following morning.

Items missing include a $500 AM/FM cassette and a $250 radar detector.

A $600 guitar was among the items stolen from a 1969 Ford parked at a Nottingwood Court residence sometime between 9:30 p.m. November 25 and 5:45 a.m. November 26, police report.

By Kevin Wilson

Well now, we've been saved. The crash program to enforce the 55 mph speed limit on Michigan interstates pushed the number of people violating the law just below 50 percent, saving the state some $10 million in threatened federal highway funds. Don't you feel safer on the highways now? Don't you feel rich? Don't you expect the deteriorating highways will soon start looking spiffy thanks to the $10 million that was "saved?"

Lost amidst the hoopla is that the threatened funding represents just 10 percent of what the state expects to get from the Feds for highways. Also little noted is that it is impossible to make any connection between speed limit enforcement and the reduction of highway accidents, injuries or fatalities.

Supporters base their arguments on figures that don't add up and the obvious assertion that you are more likely to be hurt or killed if you hit something at 70 mph than if you were going slower. I've addressed most of this before, but it bears repeating that the logical extension of their arguments is an even lower speed limit that would soon have us back to the days when cars could only travel behind a man on foot carrying a red flag. What I want to speak to today is my own growing percep-tion that the 55 mph speed limit, like all bad laws, does nothing more than foster disrespect for law in general. More particularly, I think drivers accustomed to disregarding the highway speed limit are beginning to take other traffic laws with a grain of salt as well.

I'm not trying to occupy the moral high ground on this one: my wholly unscientific and unverifiable evidence (of the same quality as most supporting arguments) includes my own driving habits. For instance, there is near my home an intersection posted "No Right Turn on Red/7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Friday." I have occasion to turn right at this corner during the posted times and can't for the life of me figure out why the restriction is there. Sight lines and distances are good, traffic volume is low between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m., and the posting generally doesn't make sense. So I blow it off, scan the area for cops and make my turn when the sparse traffic clears.

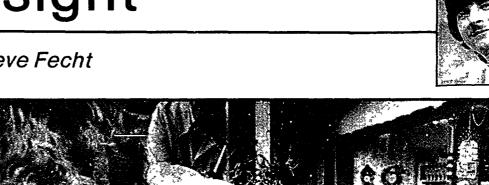

Friends and family have always known me to be scrupulous about signaling lane changes, but noted recently that I'm more selective, choosing to signal before I move over only if, in my own judgment, there's a car close enough that the driver "needs to know." I'm also "pushing" yellow traffic lights much more than I used to, frequently catching a glimpse of red as I go under the signal.

If it were just me, I'd figure I was just getting sloppy and resolve to take more care. But anyone who drives knows it isn't just me. How often lately have you been at a red light, watched it turn green, and had to brake or delay entering the intersection because the driver in the left turn lane across the road turned in front of you without waiting for traffic to clear?

Think a minute. How many red lights have you seen cars drive through? How many stop signs have you seen people disregard? How often do drivers zip through school zones at twice the limit? How many people race to get around a school bus that just turned on its flashers? I've only been driving 14 years and I'm certain these dangerous habits have become more common in that time. My elders tell me they're astonished at the things they see on the road.

So, why is this? Are we just in more of a hurry? Are we try ing to make up the time lost on the slower freeways? I don't think so. I think many drivers, accustomed to choosing their own travel speed and disregarding the limit, have decided they're also qualified to decide whether or not to obey other traffic laws. I also suspect we've raised an entire generation of drivers who, since 55 became the limit in 1974, watched adults regularly violating a traffic law and snickering behind their hands about it. Given that example, do we expect them to take other laws seriously?

There are a lot question marks in this piece, but they all belong to only one major public policy issue: Is keeping a bad law worth the price of devaluating the good ones?

Master plan goals in need of review

Our Opinions

In light of the township plann-ing commission's 5-3 vote opposing its own latest proposal for amendment of the master plan for Haggerty Road, it is time to take a deep breath and re-evaluate the entire issue.

The debate is far from over. As commission chairman Richard Duwel noted last week, "Nobody here voted for 'no change.'' It seems clear that the six-year-old township master plan is inadequate to deal with today's conditions along Haggerty. Though the plan-ners of the late 1970s attempted to anticipate the offects of 1975 and anticipate the effects of I-275 and development in adjacent communities on the corridor, they did not and could not have foreseen the intensity of those effects.

In trying to amend the plan, the current commission went astray by ignoring early discussion of the preamble to the master plan. That preamble, part of a revised plan adopted in 1979 after two years of study, states a generally insular planning philosophy that virtually prohibits Northville Township from allowing any development that falls outside an extraordinarily narrow definition of what belongs in a "bedroom community." If the preamble is retained intact, any change that goes outside that narrow definition contadicts the master plan.

We believe the preamble is too tightly worded and cries out for amendment. While we support a residential emphasis for Northville Township, we find it short-sighted to advocate retention of residential or any other zoning in areas clearly more suited to other uses. Thus we can, without contradicting ourselves, support office and minor commercial development along Haggerty and even Five Mile roads while insisting that Six Mile and Sheldon stay single-family residential. Similarly, we can advocate exclusion of heavy industry but envision a light-industrial/research park as an asset to the community in the right location.. That's what planning is all about - choosing the appropriate locations for various uses of land.

balancing act that must take into account competing interests, legal technicalities, and an all-but-endless list of possibilities. It seems to us unhealthy to include among these criteria the narrow philosophy of a deliberative body that launched its own discussions eight years earlier — a commission made up of different people, facing different problems, in a community that has undergone remarkable change in the intervening period.

We don't find it inappropriate for a residential community, par-ticularly one like Northville Township, to include high-quality office structures at which some residents may find employment residents may find employment close to home. (We must pause here to note that four-story struc-tures, despite the inflammatory rhetoric of their opponents, are hardly "high-rise" buildings, which we would oppose). Neither do we find it inappropriate for a residential community to allow commercial development that commercial development that serves the needs of commuters, highway travelers and visitors to some of those offices. And we don't find it inappropriate for a residen-tial community to allow these land uses in limited regions as a means of widening the tax base and lessening the burdens on homeowners.

Those who drafted the preamble clearly disagree with our ideas of what constitutes a residential community. If the present commission is at all serious about any of the proposals it has made in the the proposals it has made in the past eight months, it must change the preamble to reflect its evident change in philosophy. That won't be an easy task — it may even be more controversial than the Hag-gerty Road proposal itself. But it seems to us necessary if the com-mission is to free itself to tackle changing conditions, not only along Haggerty, but anywhere in the township.

The Northville Record

Determining what is appropriate and where is not a simple matter; it's a complex task subject to hundreds of different criteria, a

The present preamble insists on inappropriate land uses just because they fit in with an emotionally attractive but overly simplistic vision of the community. A more rational planning philosophy is needed — one that relies on a strict zoning ordinance to ease the transitions between districts so designed as to allow the most appropriate use of land.

Revise liquor laws

The intensity of organized opposition to the senate amendment to House Bill 5050, an innocuous measure that would license 200 restaurants statewide to serve beer and wine with meals, demonstrates to our satisfaction the need for a complete revamping of Michigan's Jiquor control laws.

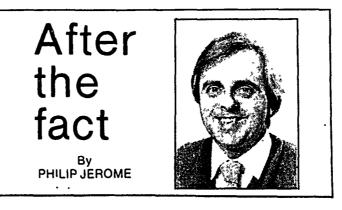

The current system is a patchwork quilt of measures built around a quota system that protects the privileged licensees from serious competition and gives government control over possible over-concentrations of drinking establishments in a small area. The goals may be worthwhile, but any system that needs so many remedial measures to address inequities fairly demands a review and restructuring.

High on the list of needed revisions is the quota that lumps together the "shot-and-a-beer" corner bar offering no more sustenance than a bag of peanuts and the full-service restaurant that serves a glass of wine or beer with a meal. Conceding the notion that the restraint of trade created by the quota system is necessary in order to prevent abuses fueled by competitive fire, these situations clearly don't compete and should be treated differently.

We see no reason that the restaurants defined in the bill (no bar allowed, 65 percent of sales must be food prepared on-site, at least 25 seats, operating eight hours on at least five days a week) should be subject to any state quota for beer and wine service. A license to serve beer and wine, only when accompanied by a meal, should be readily available to these operations with issuance handled by the local governing body.

The opposition from current licensees and other interests to such a liberalized system would be considerable. State restaurant owners and patrons should unite to propose changes that would bring Michigan to a more enlightened stance acknowledging the worldwide, traditional practice of enhanching a meal with moderate consumption of wine or been consumption of wine or beer.

Remember when you were a kid and never knew what to get your dad for Christmas?

And so you'd ask him. And the only thing he could think of was that he really needed another tie. Or sometimes, just for variety, he'd say he needed a new hammer.

Well, now that I'm the age my father was when the only things he could think of that he wanted for Christmas were a tie and a hammer, I know what he went through.

weekend. I listed white shirts, ties, after-shave lotion and . well. I really could use a new hammer. The one I have now is old. and I'm worried the head is going to fly off on the backswing one of these days.

"This is it? This is your Christmas list?" she asked when I announced I was done. "White shirts, ties, after-shave and a hammer. Couldn't you come up with anything better than that?"

"Actually, it's only a partial list," I responded, embarrassed to admit my list was short on creativity.

So I pulled out all those supplements that came in last week's paper and started going through them . . . hoping to find something other than socks to add to my list.

And that's when I spotted it — a gift any man would love to have. Right there on Page 13 of the Herman's World of Sporting Goods catalogue - the Hulk Hogan Deluxe Workout Set.

For $22.99 you get two three-pound dumbbells, a jump rope and a Hulk Hogan poster as well as Hulk Hogan head and wrist bands bands.

"You really think you want a Hulk Hogan workout set?" she asked skeptically.

"Hey, you've got to start somewhere," I replied. "If this workout set is good enough for the Hulkster, it's good enough for me. Who knows, if I stick with it maybe I can market my own Phil-amania workout set five years from now."

Trek leads her home

By Jean Day

The trek is over, and Robin is coming home for Christmas. For parents who regularly see their offspring at holiday gatherings, this might not seem to be a reason to kill the fatted calf and hang out welcome" decorations.

But when your daughter hasn't been home for a Christmas turkey dinner in a decade. it's cause for celebration. Other years there have been excursions to take into the rain forests of Washington State or south of the border into Mexico - and I have spent Christmases without her.

I suspect that Robin's latest venture — the Lamjung Hima Trek in Nepal with tours to India and Thailand following - during the last six weeks will provide plenty of conversation when she does arrive. The challenge of walking across "the greatest mountain range on earth" was one of the reasons she said she joined the Sierra Club trek. Trekking, of course, is walking, lots of walking. Par-ticipants were instructed to begin a regular conditioning program three months before leaving on the trek.

Since there could be no communication from her after she began the trek October 7 until she completed it on the 26th, Robin sent me the travel material so I would know what she was doing. It read like this: "We'll usually be up at 0630, have tea, porridge and biscuits and start walking at 0730. We'll walk until around 1000 and then have a heavy 'brunch' of eggs, sausage, beans, chapaties and tea. We start walking again around 1200 and hope to be in camp by 1500." It also noted that dinner at 1700 usually is chicken but can be enlivened by buffalo, goat or sheep meat and exotic native greens.

While I'm not certain of the number of participants, I'm sure the group must have been a noteworthy sight starting from Fokhara wearing t-shirts and shorts in the Miami-like weather. Since the highest elevation was to be around 15,000 feet, participants were told also to bring along cold weather gear as part of their 22-pound duffle bag allowance. In addition to Sierra Club members there were Sherpa guides, a cook and crew and porters to carry provisions and tents.

The group flew into Katmandu and returned there at the conclusion of the trek, staying at the Hotel Asia "which is reasonably clean with hot water most of the time." The end of the trek dovetailed with a tour of India that included a boat ride on the Ganges, a flight to Agra with a tour of the city that included visiting the Taj Mahal. From Delhi, she flew to Bangkok and the ancient ci-ty of Chaing Mai in Thailand.

When I was a teenager, my lack of athletic ability was so pronounced that I regularly played outfield on the girls' baseball team as captains who picked pitchers, catchers, first basemen, etc. on down the line knew that's where I belonged. My idea of an outing was a bicycle spin to the library or calling a friend to go on a shopping trip. Therefore, I marvel at this daughter who wanders the world under such rigorous conditions. Can this be my offspring who doesn't weigh an extra pound and is so disciplined?

When Robin called from Thailand to extol the lovely hotel where she had had her first hot bath since leaving this country, I began to have hope. Then she added that the shopping there was "fabulous" and that she was buying silk blouses as well as special Christmas presents.

Welcome home, daughter.

to aid phone selection

For many consumers, the more they hear about long-distance phone services, the more confused they get.

To reduce confusion and assist consumers in making an intelligent choice, the Better Business Bureau/Detroit and Eastern Michigan has released a new pamphlet, "Tips on Long-Distance Phone Services."

The pamphlet explains "equal access" in language understandable to customers. The equal access program means that customers of any longdistance company must be given equal access to the highest quality connections available. It was designed to assist in the development of fair competition among long-distance telephone companies.

Equal access not only means con-sistently high quality connections, but also makes using an alternative service much easier. Customers can use either a push-button or rotary-dial phone, and do not have to dial additional digits to use an alternative long distance service.

"Tips on Long-Distance Phone Services" also walks consumers through the entire selection process. To determine which long-distance phone company is best for you involves three basic steps. First, determine how frequently you make long-distance calls. Many long-distance services are worth using only if your average long-distance bill runs $30 or $40 per month. Second, consider the average length of your long-distance calls. Most long-distance services charge customers in one minute increments. And third, where you call is important, too. Phone rates and accompanying charges vary widely. Long-distance calls made within a state may be priced differently from longdistance calls made outside that state.

Mrs. Margaret Monnier

Once you have determined when, how often and where you use long-distance service and know your phone service needs, you're ready to compare what the different companies have to offer.

The pamphlet also explains how to find out which phone companies offer long-distance service in your area and provides a list of questions to ask in order to compare the different companies.

The pamphlet has been added to the Better Business Bureau Consumer Information Series which offers helpful tips on over 80 topics of consumer interest. control of Haggerty zoning if developers were to sue for more intensive uses, Martin noted that residents were also prepared to sue if the present master plan is altered.

'You talk about potential litigation, what we have heard is the promise of litigation from the residents," Martin said.

Addressing the proposed large-office district, Martin noted that no such zoning category exists today in the township and urged that the ordinance be defined before the master plan is changed.

He said the new zoning district should be put up for a referendum vote. "Let the community decide if they'd like to see this new zoning district," Martin said.

He made a motion early in the meeting to reject the proposed amendments. The motion died for lack of supquirements. Under the present twostory office zoning, buildings can be as near as 20 feet to a residential lot line, while one version of the proposed large office zoning would put a 100-foot greenbelt and a 200-foot setback requirement in place for such a building. The proposed zoning restrictions, export from another commissioner.

DeLand, a resident of Meadowbrook

Estates, countered the opposition from his neighbors by suggesting the large office district would help "insulate the subdivision" by requiring sizable greenbelts and extensive setback re-plained by planning consultant Claude Coates, would be based on a formula that makes setbacks larger for taller buildings. Examples shown included a 50-foot tall structure (the maximum to be allowed) that would have to be more than 500 feet from the residential lot balance from $375,347 to $403,787. Bell told the board that "ideally we should have a fund balance of 5 to 6 percent of our budget" which would be $600,000 to $700,000.

He further noted that the district had not "seen the benefits derived from closing to schools" with Moraine's program only in its infancy and Cooke currently used as the high school annex.

The superintendent told board resident to speak out in favor of the proposal was Thomas Handyside, who agreed with DeLand that the large office district proposed would better insulate the subdivision against outside intrusions than is likely under the current zoning. "There is no written or substantiated evidence that shows (property) value will be degraded," Handyside said of the proposal. He described his neighbors' insistence that adjoining properties remain residential as "put ting your head in the sand."

Bernard Baldwin, a resident of the subdivision and a former planning com-missioner, argued that the proposal has wide-ranging implications beyond the Haggerty corridor.

You are on the verge of making the largest change in the history of Northville Township," Baldwin said, citing the potential for large office zoning in similar circumstances along Five Mile Road and the departure from the planning philosophy stated in the preamble to the 1979 master plan. Baldwin helped draft that plan and was the first to raise the issue in discussion of the proposed revisions several months ago.

Cathy McLeod displays Genitti's Gorham doll collection

Northville restaurant adds Christmas shop

Molly Howley and Sharon Wild show off some of the teddy bears in Genitti's Christmas shop

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Many business people spend a lifetime tying to find the best way to market their product, but often retire still in search of that illusive concept.

Then there are John and Toni Genitti, owners of Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall Restaurant and Christmas Gift Shop in downtown Northville.

What started out as a meat market nearly 15 years ago has developed into a great marketing system where the restaurant patrons can browse through the adjacent Christmas and gift shop while waiting to be seated at the popular Italian eatery.

But the most amazing part is that the Genittis stumbled onto the whole set-up, by accident.

'It was an accident, the whole system," Toni Genitti admitted. "The Christmas Shop started out as nothing just a few little gifts - and its popularity just took off. "It's developed so well because people want to shop as well as eat. We give them the opportunity to do both at the same place. Some people end up spending the whole day here between the shop and the restaurant. Now, I wouldn't want one without the other."

To get an idea of just how successful the system is the Genittis have expanded no less than three times since 1979. That was the year the Genittis bought out their next door neighbor, Ellis Electronics, in order to enlarge their floor area. They connected the two shops by actually knocking a hole in the wall, hence the name of their restaurant -Genittis' Hole-in-the-Wall.

In May of 1981, the restaurant was expanded to cover all of the former electronics building. The original meat market was phased out and the extra area was filled up with gifts. The response was so good, the Genittis decided to renovate the basement in order to handle all the new-found customers.

"It was a junk room down there for 60 years," John Genitti said. "It was your typical old business cellar — it didn't even have electricity.'

But with the help of Dedes Brothers Contractors and carpenters like Jeff Moon and Jack Scrivens, the basement was quickly transformed into a private dining area, complete with a bar, that can seat 42 persons. The other half of the basement is filled with Christmas items

"We wanted to expand downstairs for parties and luncheons," Toni said. "It's just big enough to hold a busload of people who want to be together. But now, we've been so busy, it's packed for dinner down there, too."

With the completion of the basement, if the Genitti's decide they want to expand again, there is a major stumbling block.

"Everything just went crazy, the business boomed and we kept on expan-ding," Toni explained. "But now there

Has the possiblity of moving somewhere else ever occurred to them? "We've been asked to move to other towns but we like it here in Northville,"

"We're here to stay," John added, want you to come hungry and leave stuffed. For lunch there is a variety of the thickest sandwiches you've ever seen along with homemade soups and for dinner it's (what else?) Italian dishes. But the big attraction is when the Genittis serve their famous seven course Italian dinners between Thursday and Sunday

The restaurant is described by the owners as having a casual atmosphere

- nothing fancy - just like home. "The atmosphere is like an Italian wedding at dinner," John said. "Except noisier.

Maybe that's the big draw. People like the idea of going out but still appreciate the down-home atmosphere and cooking.

"It's been a really busy, wonderful feeling," Toni said. "Especially since this is a family operation. Everybody who works here becomes family.

The Genittis children, Andy ,10, and Laura, 7, work there, as do both sets of John and Toni's parents. Andy was even born in the back room — how's that for family?

"It started out as just the two of us but because of the people we have working here, we have grown tremendously," John explained. "If you surround yourself with good people, like we have, it makes running a place like this easy.'

is no place to go."

Toni said.

"because we like it so much." At the Hole-in-the-Wall, the Genittis

RONALD G. WALL

DIANE L. WISE of Northville has been appointed agency director of John Casablancas/Model Management in Plymouth — the Detroit affiliate of John Casablancas/Elite Model Agencies of New York and worldwide.

Her responsibilities include interviewing and promoting new models and talent as well as servicing client accounts in the print, film and video industry.

Prior to joining John Casablancas/Model Management, Wise was a staff accountant in the Video Production Division of Grace & Wild Studios, Inc., in Farmington Hills.

At John Casablancas/Model Management, model representation is on a more selective, exclusive basis, the same format as the Elite agencies. Both local and out-of-state models/talent are available for bookings.

RONALD G. WALL has been appointed vice president of marketing for Weber Industries, Ltd., of Detroit and will be responsible for international sales and marketing activities. The announce-ment was made by Richard G. Weber, president.

Prior to joining Weber Industries, Wall was with Chrysler of Canada, Ltd., in Windsor where he held various positions including supervisor of the paint division, facilitator of the employee involvement program and a planner in the paint division. Before that he was a business instructor and consultant at Confederation College in Thunder Bay, Ontario.

Wall holds a master's degree in educational administration from McGill University and a bachelor's degree in business education from Ferris State College.

Weber Industries is a designer and manufacturer of bushed roller chain, gull wing chain, chain-edge conveyor belts, plastic belting and industrial furnace curtains.

TOM ZIELKE, a resident of Northville and 1983 Northville High School graduate, has been hired as a production assistant at Reichald Corporation. He is a recent graduate of the Specs Howard School of Broadcast Arts in Southfield.

As a student at Specs Howard, Zielke studied radio and television production, newswriting, advertising, announcing, sales, editing and broadcast economics. The placement assistance department at Specs Howard notes that it was instrumental in helping Zielke land his job at Reichald Corporation.

Moore is manager of Michel's Baguette at Twelve Oaks. She received the award during the 1985 Twelve Oaks Marketing Conference at the Novi Hilton on October 24.

HAROLD N. HYLAND, CLU, who has offices at 45066 Hun-tingcross in Novi, has qualified for membership in the prestigious Million Dollar Round Table (MDRT). He is a district representative for Lutheran Brotherhood, a fraternal insurance society.

The MDRT is an independent association of more than 17,000 life insurance agents, each of whom must meet strict ethical and production membership requirements. The association is recognized nationally as the standard of life insurance sales performance.

Approximately five percent of the world's life insurance agents are certified as MDRT members each year. These professionals are from more than 50 nations and territories and represent nearly 500 life insurance companies.

Hyland, who joined Lutheran Brotherhood in 1975, offers life and health insurance, annuities, mutual funds and other fraternal benefits to Lutherans in the area. He is associated with Lutheran Brotherhood's Karl Mueller Agency, headquartered in Rochester.

HOLLOWAY CONSTRUCTION COMPANY of Wixom was the low bidder at $9,609,261 for construction of another section of the new I-696 freeway in south Oakland County, the Michigan Department of Transportation announced November 26.

Holloway, which already is doing work on other sections of the eight-mile final leg of the freeway, was the lowest of seven bidders on the project. It calls for construction of seven-tenths of one mile of freeway from west of Lahser Road to Arlington Road in Southfield.

All low bids must be approved by the State Administrative Board before contracts are awarded. Those totaling $500,000 or more must also be approved by the State Transportation Commission.

MICHAEL G. COTTRELL, CPA, has been promoted by the Bloomfield Hills CPA firm of Harry M. Gordon & Company. Cottrell has been promoted to the position of manager responsible for overseeing the firm's accounting and computer operations. A graduate of Michigan State University, Cottrell is a resident of Novi.

TAILGATE COOKING CHEF TOM MACKINNON, official chef of the Detroit Camper and Travel Trailer Show that continues at Cobo Hall through December 8, shows Tim DeWitt (left) how easy it is to cook delicious food shish-kebab-like on wooden skewers and eat it without utensils.

MacKinnon will demonstrate the technique and also make a Michigan Campfire Clambake at the show today (Wednesday) at 3 p.m.. DeWitt is executive director of the show sponsor, the Michigan Association of Recreational Vehicles and Campgrounds. MacKinnon is the "No-Nonsense Chef" on Channel 7's Good Afternoon Detroit, as well as owner of MacKinnon's Restaurant in Northville.

More than 400 travel vehicles from inexpensive pop-up tent trailers to luxury motor homes worth a quarter of a million dollars are featured at the show. Information is available on camping-related items, camping and camping clubs. Hours are 2-10 p.m. today through Friday; noon to 10 p.m. Saturday; noon to 8 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $4 for adults; $2 for ages 6-12; and free for age 5 and under with an adult.

Midwest still features lowest housing prices

Say what you will about the vagaries of winter weather in the Midwest, but recent statistics show it remains a great area year-round when it comes to buying a home.

"The Midwestern tier of states traditionally offers homes of comparable quality at far lower prices than in other areas of the nation," said Robert F. Craver, president of the Metro MLS.

"Some of the best bargains can be found right here in the Greater Detroit area. August figures, the latest available nationally, show a U.S. average resale price of $93,200. The average for the 1,745 sold by our members that month was only $63,636. This compares with an overall average of $67,000 in the Midwest, $92,200 in the South, $111,100 in the Nor-theast and $116,600 in the West.

Median price figures, which indicate half the buyers paid more and half less, offer another comparison, and the Midwest again comes in much lower. August median prices were $77,100 for the nation as a whole with the Midwest median at $59,800. In the South the median was $77,800, while the Northeast showed $91,300 and the West $96,500.

"Our multiple listing service does not track median prices, but in August ours would have been an estimated $57,000,' Craver said.

'The lower prices prevalent here and in other Midwest areas also give buyers a far greater choice in the more affordable price ranges. In August twothirds of the homes sold by our members were less than $70,000 while across the nation there were only about 42 percent in that price range.'

He said Detroit area residents visiting other parts of the country are often surprised by the prices their Michigan homes would command in such states as California,

Massachusetts or New York. The following table compares August home sales by percentages in various price ranges around the nation:

• Under $40,000 - 28.5 percent by Metro MLS, 10.6 percent in the U.S., 21.4 percent in the Midwest, 8.7 percent in the South, 6.4 percent in the Northeast and 2.7 percent in the West.

• $40,000-$69,999 -- 39 percent by Metro MLS, 31.9 percent in the U.S. 43.1 percent in the Midwest, 33.3 per-cent in the South, 25.7 percent in the Northeast and 20 percent in the West.

• $70,000-$99,999 - 19.3 percent by Metro MLS, 25.7 percent in the U.S., 22.4 percent in the Midwest, 27.1 percent in the South, 22.9 percent in the Northeast and 30.3 percent in the West.

 $100,000 or more — 13.1 percent by Metro MLS, 31.8 percent in the U.S., 13.1 percent in the Midwest, 31.2 percent in the South, 45 percent in the Nor-theast and 47 percent in the West.

CPE seminar scheduled by MACPA

The Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants (MACPA) will present a conference entitled "Making the Right Moves in Continuing Professional Education (CPE)" at the Southfield Hilton in Southfield on Tuesday, December 10.

Over 200 certified public accountants are expected to attend the conference which will provide CPAs with information on planning, designing and ad-minstering continuing professional education programs in their firms.

Included in the day-long program will be nine concurrent workshops on such topics as the "National CPE Curriculum - A Pathway to Excellence," "Let Joe Do It — He's Not Busy" and "Run a Program for our Firm — Me?"

A CPE manual also will be included in the registration fee, highlighting such areas as managing the CPE function, the role and responsibility of a firm's CPE coordinator and CPE standards and reporting requirements.

Registration for the conference begins on Thursday at 8 a.m. For more information contact the MACPA Conference Department at (313) 855-2288.

NBD offers new brochure

The busy holiday season is a time for consumers to be particularly careful about the use of their credit cards.

According to the American Bankers Association, losses from credit card fraud will have reached a half-billion dollars by the time the year has ended.

NBD Bancorp has produced a brochure entitled "Prevent Credit Card Fraud," which provides tips on how consumers can take action to assure that they do not become victims.

The tips include ideas not only on preventing credit card fraud, but on what steps the consumer should take if he suspects fradulent activity as well as what can be done once fraud has occurred.

"Prevent Credit Card Fraud" is available by writing Corporate Com-munications; NBD Bancorp, Inc.; 611 Woodward Avenue; Detroit, Michigan 48226. The brochure also can be obtained by calling (313) 225-3935.

For a limited time,* First Federal has cut closing cost to a low...

If you have found the perfect home, get the best mortgage deal from First Federal Savings. We have eliminated high "origination fees" like 2%...3% or even higher charged by some financial institutions.

Our $295.00 flat fee on Adjustable Rate Mortgages** makes it a lot less expensive for your to own a home of your own.*** We do ask that you pay the regular out of pocket expenses (appraisal, credit, survey, title recording, escrows).

And being locally owned and managed helps you get your loan easier, because all decisions are made here by people you know and people who know you.

So contact us today about our low $295.00 closing fee.

At First Federal, we're able to handle almost any loan you may want; whether it involves your home, car, recreational vehicle or a snowmobile. First Federal is a great place to borrow money. It's your financial center, handling everything from checking and savings to loans and IRA's.

*This $295.00 closing fee offer ends December 31, 1985.

**Adjustable Rate Mortgage Loans have a 2• annual cap-5• life cap.

***Offer applies only to single family homes, owner occupant, primary residence

Don't let that "magic wand" fool you! She's tried to make us believe that with a wave of that wand, she can turn pumpkins into carriages, mice into white horses and rags into white gowns? But we know she's just like the rest of us! When we want to turn a baby crib into cash... an older car into a new one... or change from sales clerk to doctor's receptionist ... the only magic wand we hold in our hand is a telephone receiver and the only thing we wave is our index finger as we dial the Classified Department of our newspaper! It's like magic the way good things come true for us with the help of Want Ads. And besides, we have a strong feeling that's the way the fairy godmother makes all her magic, too!

The Northville Record

By ANN FOUTY

Ahhh. Just smell that fresh pine scent. It's part of the Christmas tradition to bundle up and drive to a farm where the family can pick and cut its own Christmas tree.

- .: The following is a list of area trees farms open for those who want to cut their own Christmas tree.

Cohoctah Tree Works, Durand Road, Cohoctah, has 800 trees and is open 10 a.m.-dark on weekends. It has white 7 pine, Scotch pine, blue spruce, white spruce, Douglas fir, Concolor fir and Fraser fir. The business offers tree wrappying. For more information, call 517-546-·0711.

.Wenzel's, 8475 Bishop Rd., Brighton, thas Scotch pines and is open dawndusk. For more information, call 313-233-.7903

Frosty Pines, 7600 Hitchcock Rd., White Lake Township, is open 10 a.m.dark Friday-Sunday. It has Austrian pine, white pine, blue, white, Norway and black spruce, Douglas fir, Balsam fir and Scotch pine. It offers trees over nine feet, greenery, tree wrapping, food and beverages and wagon rides. For more information, call 313-887-9561 or 313-698-9064.

Broadview, 4380 Hickory Ridge Rd:, Highland, is open 9 a.m.-5 p.m. daily and offers Scotch pine, Austrian pine, blue pine, Norway spruce, black spruce and Douglas fir. It also has trees over nine feet, wreaths and garlands, tree wrapping, food and wagon rides. For more information, call 313-887-9192.

Baldwin Road Tree Farm, 1182 Whispering Knoll, Rochester, is open 9 a.m.-5 p.m. weekends and has Scotch pine, Austrian Pine, white spruce, Norway Spruce and Douglas Fir. Trees over nine feet can also be found here. For more information, call 313-652-2381.

Here are some tips from the Auto Club of Michigan for cutting your own tree: •Take a hand saw. Most farms lend saws, but taking your own saves time if all are in use. Axes are banned.

•Cut the tree close to the round. Shake trees in the field to removed old needles. Cut Norway, white and black spruce and Balsam fir trees at temperatures above 40 degrees to help them hold their needles while displayed.

is a gift

forever

If your after-the-holiday blues are compounded as you drag the Christmas tree, one of the main symbols of the season's delights, to the curb for garbage pick-up, you might want to consider a living tree.

It's not a decision to be taken lightly, however, since it may involve some changes in your family's tree traditions. Area Christmas tree experts were hap-pv to share their knowledge to help make your decision more informed.

Carl Joerin at Highland Tree Farm grows all the living Christmas trees he sells. He takes special precautions to increase their chance of survival when they are planted in the yard after their stint of glory in the house.

Though his trees are all sold in the summer to purchasers who pick them out in the field and collect them just before the holidays, it would be good to check that any tree you buy has received the same preparation.

He enjoys about a 95 percent success rate and sells about 300 a year.

All his trees are root pruned earlier in the year. This means that, while the trees are still growing, the roots are trimmed within a certain distance of the trunk to force the tree to put out hundreds of small feeder roots close to the trunk.

These will be included in the root ball" when the tree is dug out so there will be a strong healthy root system close to the trunk.

"We dig them out of the ground the beginning of September to be sure the shock is over by Christmas," Joerin explained.

His smaller trees up to four feet high are put into fiber pots and the larger ones are balled and burlaped.

If you did not pick out a living tree in the summer and would like to try one this year, your best chance is to find a nursery that remains open through the winter, and buy a regular ornamental tree in one of the usual Christmas tree varieties.

Tony Raney of Raney's Nursery in South Lyon said that living trees account for about two percent of his Christmas varieties drop needles more easily than pines and Douglas fir.

 Take twine to tie trees to cars, although most farms provide it.

To help the tree withstand wind while being transported, tie its base to the front of the car.

•At home, immediately place the tree in a stand filled with water. If the tree has been stored for more than two days, cut an inch or two off the base before putting it up, Check water level daily.

•Keep trees in a cool area, away from flames and heating ducts.

tree sales. He usually has some potted up ready and some balled in burlap.

Though the above experts have received positive feedback from customers regarding the survival of the trees, forester Rich Cassidy of Mountain Top/-Green Ridge Tree Service Co. is skeptical about the chances of a tree's survival once it has been brought into the warmth of the home.

resh tree keeps holiday happy

by making it a super safe one. That safety can and should begin at home right in the family room or the living room wherever the Christmas tree is located.

Each year at holiday time, people are killed or injured and property is destroyed through the misuse of holiday decorations. A little care and caution when purchasing the tree and decorating it and the house can help eliminate those tragedies.

A freshly-cut tree is much safer than a tree that is cut early in the fall. Freshly--cut evergreens contain more moisture and will stay greener longer and pose a Iesser fire hazard.

Use the following tests to determine whether a tree has a high moisture con-

 Snap a small branch between your fingers. If the branch breaks easily,

Make this a truly happy holiday season chances are that the tree is too dry. Don't buy a dry tree - the risk of fire in the home is too great.

• Tap the trunk of the tree on the ground. If an abundance of needles drop from the tree, all or part of the tree is dangerously dry.

 Needles that bend and cannot be easily pulled from the tree are a good indication that the tree is fresh. Needles that snap when bent are dry.

After bringing the tree home, immediately remove about two inches from the base of the trunk with a saw. This exposes fresh tissue that will readily accept water. If the tree is to be displayed immediately, stand the trunk in a tree stand that has a large reservoir for water.

Make certain the tree stand has widespread legs so the tree will not tip over readily. Check and fill the stand with water on a daily basis.

Other suggestions to increase safety in the home are:

 Locate the tree away from heat sources, such as heat registers, radiators and televisions, which would dry the tree faster.

· Place the tree away from doors. In case of a fire, a tree located next to a door could block your escape.

• The cooler the room temperature, the longer the tree will stay fresh in the house. Consider lowering the thermostat.

 If the tree is tall, consider stabilizing it with guy wires to the ceiling and wall. Thin wires are almost invisible.

Those paper chains that children make at Christmas are lovely, but should be used to decorate other parts of the house - not the tree. Never use decorations made out of combustible materials on a tree that has lights. If you want the children to help make decorations. let them string cranberries or popcorn.

As pretty as they are, turn the tree lights off when you retire at night for an added measure of safety. That way you can be sure they do not overheat when you are sleeping. Of course, every home should have a smoke alarm to alert the family just in case something does catch fire.

Do not use light-weight extension cords to plug in the lights. If you can't set the tree close enough to a wall outlet to plug in the lights, use only a heavy-duty extension cord and be carefull not to overload the circuits.

Don't allow toddlers to play close to the tree unless an adult or older child is there to watch them. Christmas lights sometimes get quite warm to the touch and most decorations are easily broken. In addition, unless the tree is securely fastened, it could tip over if jostled.

Mitchell-Santos vows followed by island trip

MR. AND MRS. SCOTT PHILIP SANTOS

A wedding trip to the Virgin Islands followed the marriage of Lisa Ann Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Mitchell of 21808 Cumberland Drive. and Scott Philip Santos November 9 at Church of the Holy Family in Novi.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Santos of Fonner Court.

The Reverend Kevin P. O'Brien officiated at the 3 p.m. double ring service. Scripture readings were read by the bride's sisters, Suzanne and Lori Mitchell, and Beth Rabaut. The Prayer of the Faithful was read by the bride's grandfather, Bernard Cebelak of Grand Rapids. Ray Joslin, the bridegroom's classical piano teacher for many years, played the organ.

The bride wore a white, high-necked, fitted gown styled with an illusion yoke and puff sleeves of taffeta and lace. The hemline ruffle of taffeta extended into a chapel train. The entire body of the gown was lace adorned with pearls and sequins.

A wreath headpiece of flowers, lace, pearls and ribbons held the chapellength bridal veil.

The bridal bouquet was a cascade arrangement of white roses, white miniature carnations, stephanotis and California ivy.

Sibrey Szalay was maid of honor in a fitted, carnation red satin gown featuring a pleated front apron which gathered into a large bow in back. She carried a hand cascade of white glamelias, silk stephanotis and red baby's-breath and California ivy. Andrea Rabaut was flower girl for her aunt.

Robert Martin was best man.

A catered dinner at the Overture Recording Studio followed for the immediate family. Guests included the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. B.J. Cebelak, Mrs. F.J. Mitchell Sr., and aunts and uncles of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Muraski and family of Grand Rapids and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Leschina of Berwyn, Illinois; the bridegroom's sister Laura Santos; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Lansing and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wilson of Oneota, New York; and his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Santos of Maryland, New York.

The bride is a graduate of Mercy High School in Farmington Hills and is employed as a dance instructor at Dance Dynamics.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Northville High School and is employed as a recording engineer for Overture Recording.

They are making their home in Nor-thville while their condominium is being built in Walled Lake.

Experts advise extra care of living holiday tree

"You screw up the whole life cycle of the tree," he said. "The normal physiology of the tree is to shut down and go into dormancy as winter ap-proaches, and to unearth, ball, burlap a tree, bring it inside and subject it to a good week of warm weather, that tree will begin to reverse the process as though it's spring.

'It may take in the spring time, just to die later in the year.' He does feel though that if anyone really wants to try a living tree that chances of it surviving are increased by purchasing one that has been root pruned, and following certain precautions that all experts agreed on.

 Keep the tree in the house for a shorter time than you would a cut tree, one week ideally but no more than two.

 Put the tree in the coolest spot available and away from any heat source.

 Use the small twinkle lights not the large ones which produce more heat.

Puppet show set at library

"Little Red Riding Hood" will be presented by the Dick Waskin Puppets at 1 p.m. Saturday, December 7, at the Northville Public Library.

The 45-minute program is free of charge for all school-aged children. Preschoolers are welcome if accompanied by an adult.

A puppeteer since 1972, Waskin is featured annually at the Michigan

Renaissance Festival. He also has performed with the Ann Arbor and Detroit recreation departments and at theaters, museums, libraries, schools and shopping centers throughout the metropolitan area.

This will be Waskin's third appearance at the Northville library. He s a member of the Puppeteers of America and the Detroit Puppeteers Guild.

Lori Osborne, a senior at Northville High School, was selected Northville's Junior Miss November 23 at Franklin High school in Livonia.

Osborne, one of four Northville residents vying for the title, will go on to state competition December 14 in Marshall.

Other Northville contestants were Laura Hepler, Mary McDonald and Sally Searles.

Osborne has been a cheerleader at Northville High School for three years and currently is captain of the varsity squad. A member of the National Honor Society, she plans to attend Grand Valley State College to pursue a career 🗨 in physical therapy.

For her talent presentation, Osborne played piano selections including the theme from "Hill Street Blues."

Carol Lynne Burns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Burns of 20090 Rippling Lane, exchanged marriage vows and rings with Donald Edward Lux in a 6 p.m. candlelight ceremony November 2 at the Hilton Inn of the Palm Beaches, Singer Island, Florida.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lux of West Palm Beach, Florida.

The Reverend John Peace, of the Congregational Church there, officiated under a poolside canopy near the ocean.

The bride's gown of organza over taf-feta was an off the shoulder design with short, puffed sleeves. The bodice was accented with Alencon lace and seed pearls. The chapel length train also was adorned with Alencon lace. A wreath of silk flowers held the bride's fingertiplength veil of English netting.

She wore a pearl necklace and earrings that had been worn by her mother on her wedding day.

Janice Ruff of Lake Park, Florida, was matron of honor.

Thomas Peace of Boca Raton, Florida, was best man. Cliff Ruff of Lake Park was an usher.

A reception followed at the Hilton Inn for 110 guests, who included Gary Burns from Kalamazoo, brother of the bride, and Mary Gwardyak and Nancy Petrozelli from New York, aunt and cousin, respectively, of the bridegroom. The bride, who has been living in Juno Beach, Florida, is a graduate of the University of Michigan. She is employed by Appraisal and Acquisition Consultants as a commercial real estate appraiser.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Palm Beach Junior College and is employed by Atlantic Pool Maintenance.

Both are players on the Professional Beach Volleyball Tour.

They plan a delayed wedding trip to Europe, the gift of the bridegroom's parents, next summer.

Group aids women who own businesses

You've just started your own business and you're consumed with making a go of it. You've taken a leave of absence from anything that pulls you away from your venture. Invitations to join professional organizations are routinely ignored. After all, how can you afford the time?

Perhaps you can't afford not to make the time. At least that's the belief of Northville resident Pam Kosteva, a business owner and publicity chairwoman for the Michigan Chapter of the National Association of Women Business Owners (NAWBO).

"When you've started a new business, you're paddling as fast as you can. You don't have the time to attend organizations when you need them the most," Kosteva said.

The Crestview resident learned the hard way that a professional organization can be a business owner's best friend.

When she and her husband Dave purchased the Cheese & Wine Barn in Plymouth, they planned to operate a local retail business. After the recession reduced their sales, Kosteva found herself wanting to expand into corporate sales. She made the rounds presenting her Cheese & Wine Barn business card, which described her company as "the specialty shop with cozy country charm." She was getting nowhere.

Then a client suggested she change her marketing strategy. Kosteva's new business card introduces her as president of New Departure, which handles catering, business gift programs, promotional incentive awards and speciality food and wine baskets.

She's getting her message across but regrets the lost time and the lost sales

"I did it myself, and it cost me in terms of time and development," Kosteva said.

After she joined NAWBO, she said she found herself picking up "the subtle things" of business ownership in conversations with members. The group "was helpful to me when I was having a difficult time and continues to be helpful in transitional periods.

'Joining this organization is a positive experience for the new, the middle and the settled-in owner. There's a great commitment to pass on what you've learned. These women are willing to share. It sounds overused, but the 'good old boy network' is something we have not had. Women recognize how tough it was for them and are willing Worth, by calling 646-0633.

to pass on what they've learned." Kosteva said she believes women business owners face some obstacles that aren't in place for men.

"When I went out trying to sell to corporations, I'm sure I was looked upon as the housewife who needed to fill her days. I'm convinced that never would have happened to a man. He would have been perceived as expanding his market base.'

She tells of NAWBO president Susan Funk and her difficulties as owner of a Redford firm that deals in truck tire retreads.

"She has a mainly male sales staff. When there are questions that are referred to her, she's treated as a secretary, and customers are reluctant to take her direction. They'll call back the salesman who will find out what she suggested, tell the customer and have no problem in getting them to follow her suggestion.

"Her older clients know her, but she's found she has to become in volved sooner with new clients" to establish her identity and position.

NAWBO, whose members are primarily from the tri-county area, meets the third Thursday of each month. The group will move its meetings to the St. Regis hotel in the New Center, Detroit, beginning in December with a fundraiser for the Michigan Hall of Fame for Women in Lansing.

Membership chairwoman is Shelia Kasselman. She can be reached at her Birmingham business, Net

Mason of the Year: Herman Wedemeyer

Herman A. Wedemeyer was named 1985 Mason of the Year by Northville Lodge No. 186, Free and Accepted Masons, at a special dinner meeting held recently in the Northville Masonic Temple.

Currently serving as secretary-treasurer of the Masonic Temple

Association of Northville, a post he has held since 1966, Wedemeyer is the writer of a column published monthly in the Northville Masonic Trestleboard. featuring research articles of interest to the membership of all Masonicrelated organizations.

He also is the association representative to the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce.

Since becoming a Northville resident in 1959 with his wife Betty, daughter Dianne and son Herman Jr., Wedemeyer has been an enthusiastic member of the Northville Lodge. He was installed as its Worshipful Master in 1972 and has continued to serve the organization in an advisory capacity, conducting installation and memorial ceremonies and assisting the officers and members in their various lodge assignments.

Since his retirement from Ford Motor Company in 1976, where he had been employed as a manufacturing process engineer for 25 years, Wedemeyer has devoted his time to the service of the Masonic Fraternity as well as being an active member of Ward Presbyterian Church in Livonia where he ushers every Sunday and is in charge of the tape recording ministry for the Community Bible Class held at the church every Tuesday morning.

His other accomplishments in the Northville Freemasonry include having served as High Priest of Union Chapter No. 55, Royal Arch Masons in 1965, Thrice Illustrious Master of Northville Council No. 30, Royal and Select Masters in 1974, Eminent Commander of Northville Commandery No. 39, Knights Templar in 1968, serving as Commandery organist and Worthy Patron of Orient Chapter No. 77, Order of Eastern Star in 1975.

Statewide, his honors include having been exalted in the Royal Order of High Priesthood, serving the Grand Chapter, Royal Arch Masons of Michigan as a district deputy instructor for six years, twice general chairman of the Grand Chapter State Convocation Committee, member of the public relations committee, reporesentative of the Grand Chapter, Royal Arch Masons of Manitoba to Michigan. He was elected to the Michigan Grand Chapter Officer line in 1984 and now is serving as Grand Master of the Second Veil. He also holds honorary membership in six outstate constituent Royal Arch and council chapters.

Wedemeyer holds the office of Primate in Prince Edwin York Rite College No. 8; he received the Gold Honor Award in 1973 and was honored in 1975 by the York Rite Sovereign College of North America by being decorated with the York Rite Purple Cross, the highest honor in York Rite Masonry, equivalent to the 33rd degree of the Scottish Rite.

In 1974 he was Knighted in Michigan Priory No. 22, Knights of the York Cross of Honor and is currently Sovereign Master of Crusader Council No. 142, Allied Masonic Degrees, a Masonic research organization based in Plymouth.

Out of state, he is a life member of the Valley of Columbus (Ohio) Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, a Noble of Aladdin Temple, Ancient and Arabic Order of the Mystic Shrine and a Knight in the Royal Order of Scotland.

The annual Mason of the Year program is sponsored by the Grand Lodge of Michigan to recognize those Master Masons who have toiled loyally on behalf of the craft. The program provides opportunity for lodges, districts and the state to honor dedicated and outstanding brothers.

Other recipients of the award include Past Masters Frank Williams in 1984 and Harold Penn in 1983, both Northville residents, and Lawrence M. Miller of Southfield in 1982.

Oops! Holiday dessert recipes need corrections

Local chefs testing the Pumpkin Cheese Cake and Bread Pudding from our November 20 issue alerted us last week to a few errors in the two holiday recipes.

To avoid any casualties for local cooks during the holidays, we are reprinting the recipes from Country Epicure in Novi with the added corrections.

PUMPKIN CHEESE CAKE Basic Crumb Crust:

1½ cups graham cracker crumbs 6 tablespoons butter, melted ¼ cup granulated sugar.

Place the crumbs in a mixing bowl, add water and sugar. Blend well. Press crumb mixture onto the bottom and partly up the sides of a 10-inch springform pan.

Filling:

1 cup granulated sugar 4 large eggs, lightly beaten 3 egg yolks, lightly beaten 3 tablespoons flour 2 teaspoons ground cloves 2 teaspoons ground cinnamon 1 teaspoon ground ginger 1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg 1 cup cream 1 tablespoon vanilla extract

1 pound pumpkin puree Preheat oven to 425 degrees. In a mixing bowl, beat together the cream cheese, sugar, eggs and yolks.

Add flour, cinnamon, cloves, ginger and nutmeg. Beat in cream and vanilla, add the pumpkin puree until mixed thoroughly. Pour the mixture into the prepared crust; bake for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 275 degrees; bake for one hour. Serves 20.

BREAD PUDDING with WILD TURKEY SAUCE

1 loaf, stale French bread 1 quart milk 1-2 tablespoons sweet butter 3 whole eggs 1½ cups granulated sugar 2 tablespoons vanilla extract 1 cup raisins

Dice bread into small pieces, place in bowl, pour over milk and let stand until well soaked.

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Grease a 9-by-13-by-2 inch baking dish with the 1-2 tablespoons butter.

Beat together three eggs, the granulated sugar and vanilla extract. Pour over bread mixture along with the raisins.

IN NORTHVILLE DO NOT CRUSH

For various reasons, some individuals have difficulty swallowing tablets. Crushing the tablets appears to be a convenient mechanism for producing smaller pieces or a powder which can either be swallowed or placed in juice or water before being taken. Most medicines in tablet form can be safely crushed without affecting the active ingredients. There are at least two exceptions, however:

Enteric Coated Tablets: These tablets have special coatings that prevent absorption in the stomach. Tablets dissolve in the area of the intestine just past the stomach. Such coatings protect the medicine from destruction by stomach acid. Enteric coating also reduces or eliminates stomach upset which can occur with some medicines.

Sustained-Release Tablets: Medicines which are intended to be released for a prolonged or repeat effect are made into special sustained release formulations. With these formulations. it is possible to take tablets less frequently (for example two times a day instead of six times a day). Crushing such tablets may cause all of the medicine contained therein to be released at one time.

Guests to sample tasty dishes at annual Mothers' Club and Life Member cocktail parties

Eleven homes will be decorated and open this Saturday evening in the community as Northville Mothers' Club members and the Life Member group host benefit Christmas cocktail parties that have come to mark the beginning of the holiday season locally.

Proceeds from the nine parties of the club will benefit Northville Public School children.

This year the Life Member benefit for scholarships for graduating Northville High School seniors is being expanded into two homes. Neighbors on Woodhill Road, Marge and David Longridge and Jean Anne and Herbert Weston, will host the Life Member parties.

Mothers' Club hosts are Carole and Tom Schaal at their home on Greenridge, Angie and Paul Baetz on East Whipple, Margie and Richard Sievert on Arselot, Karen and John Hill on Rayburn, Roxanne and Ray Casterline on South Rogers, Kathi and David Jerome on Bloomcrest, Carol and Marlow Van Soest on Fonner Court, Sharon and John Lineman on West Main and Sandy and John McRae on Old Bedford.

The hundreds of party-goers attending the benefit Saturday evening will be sampling the following hors d' oeuvres made by members:

MOCK OYSTER ROCKERFELLER

- 2 pkgs. frozen broccoli (chopped) 1 medium onion grated 1 stick margarine
- 1 can mushroom soup 1 small can chopped mushrooms, drained 1 roll garlic cheese

Sliced almonds

This recipe may be made ahead of crackers.

2 cups mayonnaise

2 cups grated parmesan cheese 2 cans drained chopped artichokes (packed in water)

Beat mayonnaise and cheese together. Add artichokes. Place in greased baking pan and bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes. Sprinkle with paprika before baking. Serve with large box of snack crackers. This recipe puffs up while baking.

BACON BITS

1 lb. bacon 1 lb. brown sugar

Pat as much brown sugar on bacon as possible. Bake in slow oven (300 degrees) until crisp. Bake on the oven broiler pan so grease can drip through. Let cool and break into serving size pieces.

Serve on tray with doilies.

LAYERED AVOCADO DIP

3 avocados

1/2 bunch green onions, finely chopped 8 oz. sour cream 1/2 jar El Paso Picante Sauce (not hot) 8 oz. shredded cheddar cheese

Mash avocados. Layer rest of ingredients in order given. Serve with large bag of Doritos.

Serve with snack crackers.

1/2 cup parmesan cheese 1 pkg. frozen chopped spinach 1 pkg. Knorr's vegetable soup mix

Mix all of the above ingredients together, thawing and draining thoroughly the spinach. Chill. Serve with the following vegetables:

2 heads of cauliflower, washed and cut in pieces 2 heads of broccoli, washed and cut in pieces. 2 green peppers, cut into strips, 1 basket of cherry tomatoes, 2 cucumbers, cut into strips, Either carrots or celery.

The recipes will be brought by members to the host homes. Club member Joan Sellen explains that some will be doubled if larger groups are be-ing served. From 50 to 150 guests are expected at each home.

State arts foundation has changed name

After 20 years, the Michigan Foundation for the Arts has changed its name. Its new designation will be the Arts Foundation of Michigan (AFM).

Why the change?

"There has always been an element of confusion between the Michigan Foundation for the Arts and the Michigan Council for the Arts," said A. David Mikesell, president of the newlynamed Arts Foundation of Michigan.

"As you can see," he added, "the names sound very much the same. So we decided to change ours with the hope that contributors and the general public will understand us better. We are totally non-profit and entirely funded by corporations, foundations and individuals. The Michigan Council for the Arts is both federally and state-funded with no private contributions.'

Mikesell says the Foundation's support is directed to individual artists and students rather than to institutions. AFM's programs of grants, awards, scholarships and commissions support excellence by sustaining artists who work and study in the fields of music. dance, theatre, literature an the visual

Since 1966, AFM has awarded more than $1.2 million in grants, awards and scholarships to Michigan artists and students. For information on how to contribute write: Arts Foundation of Michigan, 1703 Fisher Building, Detroit 48202 or call (313) 871-0559.

Luminary kits add to decorations

One of the first purchasers of the luminary kits sold by Northville Rotary Club during the Christmas season will be Northville Mothers' Club. Homes open for the club's Christmas cocktail parties this Saturday evening will have walkways illuminated with the luminaries.

The luminaries are cuffed paper bags containing candles anchored in sand. They give a soft, glowing effect at night and have become popular in the Midwest. The "Little Lights of Christmas," as they are known in the Southwest, have been used there for many years in a tradition that says they light the way for the Christ Child.

A project brought to Northville several years ago by the Nathan Whitesides, the luminaries have been sold here in recent years as a benefit for Rotary Club projects.

In addition to using the luminaries at doorways when they entertain during the holidays, homeowners in several neighborhoods have gotten together to use them on Christmas Eve, in the original tradition.

The Rotary luminary kits cost $6 and contain candles, bags, sand and instructions to make a dozen luminaries. The kits are available at Allen Monuments, 349-0770.

When my doctor at Livonia Cataract Center told us that there was an excellent chance that cataract surgery could help restore my vision, my wife and I were grateful but still a little scared. After all, we really didn't know what to expect.

In his gentle and reassuring way, my doctor told us that with today's advanced procedures, my operation would take only a very short time and I'd be home the same day. There would be little or no discomfort before or after surgery and, if necessary, Livonia Cataract Center would be happy to provide us with free transportation to and from the operation. When the surgery was over, I was very grateful for my doctor's skill and for his kindness. Do you know he called me after surgery to see how I was doing? He even sent us a plant. And my insurance covered the entire fee so I had no out of pocket cost.

imposing brick building that was constructed in the early 1900s to house a manufacturing company.

Specifically, the restaurant is located in a building that once was the home of the Markham Air Rifle Company which manufactured bb guns prior to the time that the well-known Daisy Air Rifle Company was started in Plymouth in the late 1800s.

• Except for the size of the building, you'd never guess that the Plymouth Landing was once the site of a manufacturing operation. Owner Sam Pan-zica has done an fine job of renovating the old factory and transforming it into a rather prestigious office building in addition to the restaurant.

Don't be surprised, for example, if you find yourself seated next to an account executive from the investment firm located on the same floor as the restaurant.

The Landing itself is nicely appointed ... natural brick walls, apparently left over from the air rifle company; heavy, dark-wood beams and plenty of stained glass - stained glass windows and large stained glass murals along the walls.

In short, the whole decor creates a warm, secure, comfortable feeling which is particularly relaxing on cold winter nights when the wind is howling outside.

As for the food, the Landing features a menu which can fairly be described as "extensive" with a total of 34 entrees ranging in price from the breast of chicken in champagne sauce at $6.95 to Alaskan king crab legs and lobster tails, both at $20.95

If the Plymouth Landing has a specialty, it's difficult to tell exactly what it is.

On the one hand, the Landing features a nice selection of eight different veal dishes. There's Veal a la Tosca, Veal Piccante, Veal Scallopini and Veal Parmesana - all at $9.95, as well as Veal a la Oscar, Veal Cordon Bleu, Veal Angela, and Veal Florentina - all at $10.95. Particularly interesting selections are the Veal a la Oscar (veal

Brick walls and stained glass windows enhance the decor of the Plymouth Landing sauted in butter and topped with asparagus spears and king crab glaze with bernaise sauce) and the Veal Angela (thin slices of veal served with zucchini and water chestnuts, topped with a light French Napoleon Brandy sauce).

Despite its selection of veal dishes, the Lan-ding's specialty might also be its selection of fresh fish — filet of sole, broiled Boston scrod, pickerel, lake perch, white fish and rainbow trout at prices ranging from $7.95 to $10.95.

Also available are 10 seafood dishes, prime rib, filet mignon, pork chops, sirloin, chicken and calves' liver.

Dinners are served with a choice of two soups (we recommend the mushroom barley), salad, rolls and broiled red-skin potatoes.

There's also a nice selection of appetizers, including Oysters Rockefeller, Shrimp a la Rafael and Escargot. On our most recent visit, we selected mushroom caps stuffed with crab meat ala dante and found it a most pleasant prelude to the rest of the meal.

The rolls, incidentally, are made fresh daily at the Baker's Rack in Plymouth, which also is owned by Panzica. The bakery also provides pastries for dessert which include cheesecake, large Napoleons and, a personal favorite, apple strudel topped with a warm brandy sauce.

Although a semi-regular diner at the Plymouth Landing for several years, my most recent visit was the evening after the Michigan/Ohio State game. Not surprisingly, the restaurant was filled with people who had attended the game and decided to cap a chilly afternoon with a nice dinner in the warmth of the Plymouth Landing. The Michigan victory and the Landing's food must have made for a most enjoyable day.

Mustang cagers open Friday; •'tough' campaign expected

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Mustang men's basketball coach Omar Harrison admits that the 1985-86 campaign could be a very "tough" one. Don't get him wrong, Northville's team shouldn't have trouble winning its share of games or being competitive, but with so many players on the roster coming from Dennis Colligan's football squad, it makes for a "tough" group of players

"About 80-percent of our team is foot- . ball players," Harrison said. "But basketball is just an all together different ball game -- there's more finesse involved. We want them to think like a basketball player but we do have a lot of quick, tough-nosed players.

The main problem facing Harrison is the task of replacing two front-line players lost to graduation who combined to average over 20 points and 23 re-bounds an outing. John Storm (6-foot-6) and Greg Wendel (6-4) took up a lot of area underneath the basket last season, and carried the bulk of the load on the boards

"I realize that rebounding could hurt us this year if we go against a real tall team," Harrison explained. "We are hoping to offset any height disadvantage with quickness and technique.'

The only current Mustang with con-siderable size is 6-6 senior Matt Hinds who will move into the starting center slot this season after backup duties a year ago.

"(Matt) doesn't have a lot of game experience but he can play," Harrison said. "It just happened that there's always been somebody in front of him that he hasn't been able to beat out. Hopefully this will be his year.

Even though Hinds will likely carry much of the rebounding load, senior forward Don Norton (6-2) will have to pick up much of the slack as well. Norton is Northville's top returning scorer (11.8 points a game in '84-85) and an All-Division player as a junior, but Harrison will need more out of him than just scoring.

"Sure, I look for Norton to be a good scorer, but he's gonna have to contribute more on rebounding too," Harrison said. "Last year Wendel and Storm handled most of it, but this year we need guys like Norton to help out." Senior Mike Hilfinger (6-1) will fill one of the backcourt positions while senior Kirk Morrison (6-0) and junior Steve Grant (6-1) fight it out for the other guard position. Hilfinger started about half the time last season but ended the year much improved. Morrison and Grant will see plenty of playing time no matter who starts.

Paul Newitt (5-11, senior) has the inside line on the forward spot opposite Norton, but 6-2 senior Gary Harper will be used more against bigger teams.

"Newitt is a very good defensive player who is very quick, and that's one reason why we'll probably go with him, but it will depend on what kind of team we're going up against," Harrison ad-mitted.

Junior forwards Dan Magdich (6-1), Donn Hubbard (6-1) and Tony Briningstool (6-4) will provide plenty of depth-up front, while quick Jim Cerretani, the hard working Dave Mc-Creadie and swingman Jack Sylvestre - all juniors - will fill in at the guard positions.

An area that concerned Harrison last year was defense, but the current Mustangs have much more team speed and quickness which could prove valuable at the defensive end.

"We hope to be able to play a stronger defense as a team than we did a year ago," Harrison said. "I mean be able to do more kinds of things, like press full court man-to-man - use our quickness a little."

The Mustangs first opportunity to use the new defenses will be this Friday (December 6) when they open the season on the road in a clash with South Lyon.

Last season, Northville ended the year with a 10-12 overall mark, 5-8 in the Western Lakes conference, good enough for a third place tie in the Western Division. Can the Mustangs improve on that mark?... "To tell you the truth I don't really know what to expect of this team," Har-rison admitted. "I would like to hope we'll be better than last year, but I don't know. I do know that rebounding and a hard-nosed defense will be the keys to our success.

If Newitt, Norton, Hilfinger, Briningstool, Harper and company can play defense on the hardwood nearly as well as they did on the gridiron this fall, the season will be anything but "tough."

Cagers earn respect in 1985; Ducker, Schrader All-WLAA

Mustang center Sue Schrader (right) was chosen to the WLAA All-Western Division team

The Northville girls' basketball program gets about as much respect as Rodney Dangerfield --- that is it did until the 1985 season.

The Mustangs notched an 11-9 overall record, only the second time in school history that a Northville girls' cage squad has topped the .500 mark. The Mustangs beat everybody in the Western Lakes league at least once, except Plymouth Salem, and will have four returning starters back next year.

It's safe to say that the program has indeed turned the corner. But none of it would have happened without some great individual play. As the program has gained respect, so too has top-notch talents like Tricia Ducker, the Mustangs' all-everything junior forward.

On the strength of Ducker's 12.5 points and 10.5 rebounds per game average, Ducker was named to the Western Lakes Activities Association All-Conference First Team. No easy accomplishment, as the Western Lakes is considered one of the top conferences in the state. And only four other players, chosen from 12 teams, were similarly honored.

"She beat out some very, very good players," Northville coach Ed Kritch said. "I felt she deserved (a first team berth) but at the same time, I didn't think that everybody else would necessarily agree - but now I realize that Tricia is well respected in the Western Lakes.

Center Suzie Schrader was the only other Mustang to receive post season honors. The 5-11 junior landed a spot on the All-Western Division First Team. She averaged nearly seven points a game and seven rebounds as well. a"We play a slow-down, defensive game and Suzie's offensive numbers might not be as impressive as some of the others, but it's obvious that the other coaches noticed all the other things she does for us besides scoring like rebounding and defense," Kritch said. "Suzie is sometimes overshadowed by Ducker, but I think she is our most improved player."

Townsley must count on young grapplers

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Coaches never like to count too much on their young players, but Northville wrestling coach Jack Townsley has no choice.

With just three seniors slated to contribute, Townsley will have to find a way for the bulk of the squad sophomores and juniors - to develop quickly if the team entertains any thoughts of improving on last season's 3-11 team.

The situation isn't as bleak as it sounds though, as the Mustangs have some fine but untested talent. One of the bright spots is the large group of wrestlers that turned out this season. Townsley estimated the turnout at about 45, and the large number means plenty of competition in almost every weight division. "We don't have many veterans," Townsley said. "We were young last year, but we're also young this year. We have a lot of 10th and 11th graders out for the team, but many of them are #### new."

The 98, 185 and heavyweight divisions are still wide open, but Townsley has a pretty good idea whom he will be using most of the time in the other spots.

Co-Captain seniors Ken Kehoe and Tim Millen are two returnees who will be counted on for leadership as well as results. Kehoe will hold down the 145pound division while Millen will transfer his talents from the gridiron to the wrestling mat at 198.

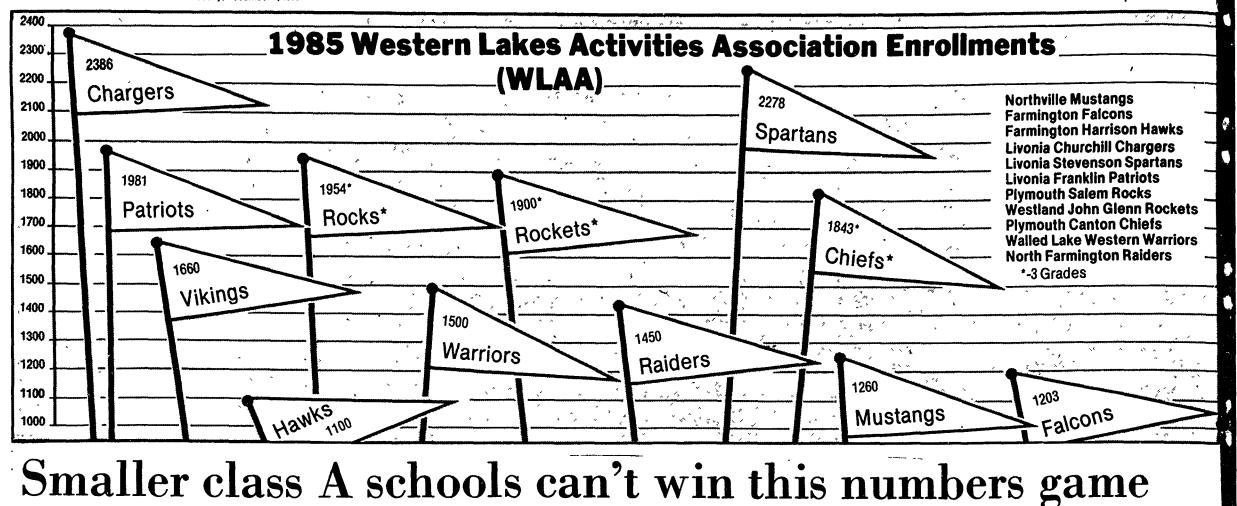

"It's only Millen's second year in wrestling, but he's a great athlete," Townsley said. "His main problem is that we don't have anybody big enough to give him a good work out in practice.

The third senior is Paul Maliszewski who will compete at either 119 or 126, and will likely stay at the 119 spot midway through the year. But sophomore Mike Harrel is an up and coming talent who will also see action at 119 as well.

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

High schools across the United States are assigned letters or numbers to designate size. The purpose is an effort to avoid the "David versus Goliath" syndrome in athletic competition.

With the system, schools with huge enrollments generally compete against other teams with a similar number of students. After all, it wouldn't be fair to expect a tiny school of 200 to be able to field a competitive team against others with enrollments of 1200, would it?

In Michigan, high school rankings use a simple letter system. The largest schools being class A, the smallest class D. In this neck of the woods, Northville High School, with an enrollment of 1,260, would be an example of an A school while Novi Christian High School, with just 58 students, would be class D

While this type of system is used and accepted nationwide, there is an inherent problem with it.

According to the Michigan High School Athletic Association, once a school reaches an enrollment of 1,150 on the fourth Friday of fall semester, it is designated as Class A for the following calender year. The problem: since A is the highest class, any school over the 1,150 mark - no matter how much over will be designated as Class A. It means that Northville High School never competes with Novi Christian High School because of the large enrollment differences but the Mustangs are still expected to keep pace with much larger schools like Western Lakes Activities Association foe Livonia Churchill.

With 2,386 students, Churchill has

'The higher the enrollment, the more chance you have to get the talented players, no doubt about it ... while we get four or five, they get 11 or 12.'

- Dennis Colligan

more than 1,000 more potential athletes to choose from than Northville. Although it's not always the case, you'll generally find that as the total number of students increases, so too does the number of quality athletes.

"I think the smaller schools are playing that numbers game, and the proof is right there in front of you," Mustang football coach Dennis Colligan said. "The higher the enrollment, the more chance you have to get the talented players, no doubt about it. We get our fair share of talented kids but, while we get four or five, they get 11 or 12."

Of the 12 members of the Western Lakes, nine have enrollments ranging from nearly 200 to over 1,000 more than Northville. This situation puts athletics at the "smaller" class A schools at a distinct disadvantage before the players even step out onto the playing field. Subsequently, the very large class A schools (like Livonia Churchill, Stevenson and Westland John Glenn), have the upper hand - not against each other, but against the rest.

Although not presented as an excuse for the lower enrollment schools, it is just another factor, like coaching, that has an effect on the successes or failures of a given athletic program.

Northville Athletic Director Ralph Redmond admits that when the Western Lakes was formed, one of the main concerns was whether or not it would be detrimental to let the larger schools like Plymouth Salem and Canton in the league because of their size. Even though Redmond hasn't seen any evidence that can show the smaller schools are at a disadvantage, he believes there are ways to get around this numbers game.

'You'd like to have the big numbers, but there are ways to make up for it if you don't have it," Redmond explained. 'Like coaching and overall support from the community. 'We have superior coaches (at Northville) and our booster club is much larger and stronger than most of the others. Northville has held its own against these so-called bigger schools. There are probably smaller leagues we could get in, but we like the competition ve get in the Western Lakes."

While Redmond was not convinced the enrollments made a significant difference, Novi Athletic Director John Osborne sure is.

"Over the long run, regardless of the sport, there is definitely a correlation," Osborne said. "It's gonna happen, more often than not, that the school that has the bigger population will win most of the time.'

VISIT HISTORIC

But, according to Redmond, the big schools have a disadvantage, too. He said the student runs the risk of just becoming a number in the larger schools and that in itself can turn potential student-athletes away from competition. But at schools like Northville and Farmington Harrison, more individual attention and instruction can be given.

Although there may be ways for smaller class A schools to offset the larger populations of competing schools, the bottom line is that they have to put more effort into their sports programs. In Northville, the coaches, players and administrators must work very hard and the community must support their efforts to the fullest.

Schrot doubles as manager at U-M

What size shoe does Roy Tarpley wear? Does Antoine Joubert have a girl friend? Is Bill Freider as nervous as he looks on T.V.?

These are unusual questions to ask about certain members of the University of Michigan basketball team, but chances are Christoper Schrot of Northville Township knows all the answers anyway.

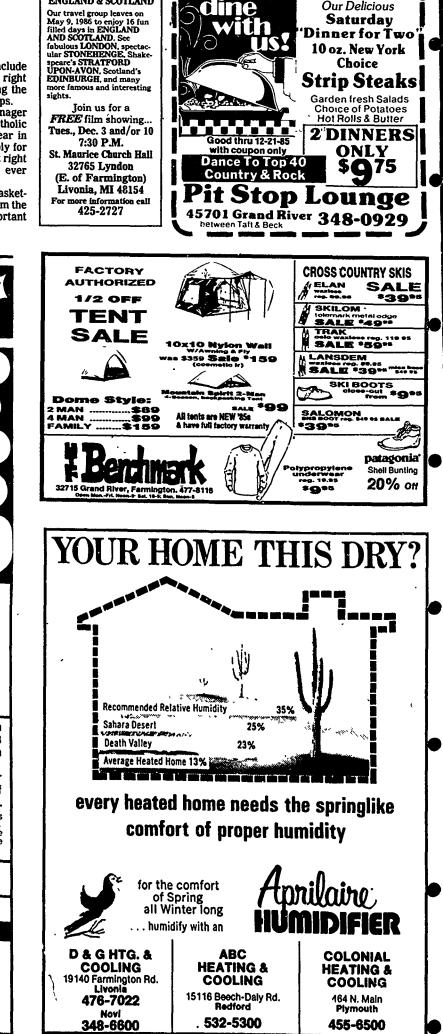

You see, Schrot is a student manager for the currently number one ranked U-M basketball team, and has been for the past three seasons

Schrot, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Schrot, is a junior at Michigan in the Literature Arts and Sciences college but is still undecided on a major. He travels everywhere the team goes. Last weekend Schrot went with the team to Hawaii for the Siversword Classic, and this week he was in Springfield, Massachusetts, as the Wolverines beat Georgia Tech in the Tip-Off Classic.

As the head student manager, Schrot is in charge (among other things) of taking video tapes of each Wolverine game so they can be studied later. Other less glamorous duties include making sure everyone has the right uniforms and the task of bringing the needed equipment on long road trips.

He got involved as a student manager while prepping at Redford Catholic Central and liked it. His first year in Ann Arbor, Schrot decided to apply for the job and was surprised to get it right away. He's been with the team ever since

He may not be able to dunk a basketball, or hit 10 straight jumpers from the top of the key, but he is an important part of the team nonetheless

WSU studies help curb head injuries

Northville Township's Voight R. Hodgson isn't really the violent type, but every day at work, with a flick of a switch, he controls a machine that routinely a) slams a hockey puck b) drops an anvil or c) slashes a lacrosse stick into a head.

Although this might sound like a movie set for a Rambo film, it actually is the Wayne State University Gurdjian-Lissner biomechanics laboratory where scientists are studying the prevention and treatment of head and neck injuries.

Head and neck injuries are responsible for more teenage deaths than any other injury or disease and "may be the most serious medical problem we have in terms of man-years lost to the country because they inordinately involve the young," said Hodgson, professor of biomechanics and head of the biomechanics lab in the department of neurosurgery at Wayne State.

Hodgson isn't alone in his concern about head and neck injuries. Wayne State receives numerous grants each year to study the safety of sports equipment and automobiles.

During a head injury symposium December 4 (today) on Wayne's campus, Dotty Harnden-Creedon is presenting a $1 million endowment — two thirds of which will go to the WSU neurosurgery department and one third to the Michigan Head Injury Alliance. She is making the presentation for her son Vincent Schoenrock in the name of his grandparents.

The symposium, "Head Injury Prevention — Past and Present Research," will feature Judy Ferguson, vice president of the National Head Injury Foundation, and numerous national and international head injury experts. It will com-memorate the 45th anniversary of what many feel was the real beginning of head injury research.

According to Hodgson, medical doc-tor E. S. Gurdjian and engineer H.R. Lissner were among the first in the world to collaborate on head injury research. Together they set up the biomechanics lab at Wayne State, the first of its kind in the country.

More than four decades later, Hodgson noted that the lab has been at least partially responsible for safer cars and especially for safer sports equipment.

"The primary game that got us into sports was football," he recalled. There were as many as 36 deaths in American football in 1968, and our biomechanics lab in 1969 began working on ways to reduce that number through a helmet standard.

"At the same time," he added, "head injuries were getting intolerably high, neck injuries were also getting too high. During the period from 1971-76, there were 21 quadriplegics occurring each year and uncounted numbers of lesser neck injuries.

'In 1976, we announced to the football community that there was only so much we could do with helmets to prevent neck injury, and consequently recommended that the use of the head in blocking and tackling be penalized to such an extent as to discontinue that practice," he explained.

From 1976 to 1983, only 11 persons annually became quadriplegics from football injuries, and in 1984, only five became paraplegics, Hodgon said. "Fatal head injuries have been reduced about 65 percent and neck injuries have been at least cut in half."

Wayne's biomechanics team also has worked on systems to make safer the back-breaking exits sometimes required of armed forces jet fighter pilots. For this research, done several years ago, Hodgson recalled one scientist who submitted himself to comparable forces with a vertical accelerator set up in an elevator shaft on campus.

Fortunately, Hodgson said, the advent of high-technology equipment that accurately simulates the impact effects on humans now is used as a pilot surrogate.

'Frisbie is a very determined kind of kid," Townsley said. "We expect he'll improve as the season progresses."

A pair of juniors, Jason Lazar and Dana Letarte, are still fighting it out in the 155 spot, while junior John Bowman

MSU gets kick out of Novi's Caudell

EAST LANSING - Some day Chris Caudell will probably be a question in a sports trivia game.

The card will say something like this: "What football place-kicker grabbed four varsity letters while playing for two major college teams - one in the Southeastern Conference and one in the Big Ten Conference - between 1982 and 1986?

No doubt some hotshot will come up with Caudell's name and he'll probably throw in the two schools he played for (Kentucky and Michigan State) just to impress his friends.

PBut what are the odds this hotshot could tell you what high school Caudell attended before going on to college? Pretty slim.

: Of course most people in these parts know that Caudell went to Novi High School, graduating in 1981. He was a 5foot-9 inch, 145-pound All-Area kicker who also split time as the Wildcat's signalcaller back when coach John Osborne used that unorthodox twoquarterback system that ended up working fairly well. Remember?

After a two-year stint at Kentucky, Caudell transferred to Michigan State. sat out a season and has been the Spar-tans' starting place kicker in 1985.

"I have a lot more in common with the people here in East Lansing than I did at Kentucky," Caudell explained. "I really like the atmosphere here."

And the people of East Lansing like Caudell too - especially what he's done for the Spartans on the gridiron. In a long line of All-American kickers from Michigan State, Caudell fits in nicely. With the departure of Ralf Mojsiejenko to the NFL, kicking was supposed to be a problem for MSU, but with Caudell handling the chores, the worriers have turned their attention to a more problem area - like keeping Lorenzo White healthy.

Caudell is quietly is having a very fine season. After missing his first extra point attempt against Arizona State in the season opener, he's nailed 26 of 28, including 22 in a row after 11 games. Later in the same game, Caudell made up for it by hitting a 49-yarder. Against Illinois, Caudell connected on a 52yarder - one of the longest kicks this season in the Big Ten.

Head Coach George Perles and his staff have so much confidence in their kicker, that of his 13 attempts, eight have been over 49 yards. That's why Caudell's stats are deceiving. He's made six of 15 field goals during the year, but of his nine misses, five were from over 49 yards and another two were blocked. From inside the 45, Caudell's made four of six.

"I'm getting to the point right now where I feel really confident," Caudell said. "I was a little rusty at the beginning of the season, but it's coming

"I'd like to think I can make any kick inside 55 yards but accuracy is my main concern because it's quite rare for a kicker to have as many long attempts as I've had this year." As a senior at Novi High School, Caudell didn't receive much publicity. Sure the college scouts knew about him and his potential, but major schools very rarely hand out scholarships to kickers unless they were superstars in high school.

Caudell was a great high school kicker who didn't get much of a chance to show off his talents the way a guy like Farmington Harrison's Dave Blackmer. While Blackmer got all the ink as the kicker for the one of the state's top teams, Caudell went relatively unnoticed.

At a kicking camp in Wilmington, Ohio, the summer before his senior year, Caudell impressed the University of Kentucky coaching staff and they invited him to walk on and try to earn a scholarship. So after the '81 season, Blackmer got a full ride scholarship to Wisconsin and Caudell had to walk on at Kentucky.

He won the kicking job as a freshman and hit all four of his fieldgoal attempts in his first season as a Wildcat — a Kentucky Wildcat. The following season, Caudell was eight for 12 in field goals and set a Kentucky record by conver-ting 41 consecutive extra point attempts - but everything was ready to come crumbling down.

A week before Kentucky's appearance in the Hall of Fame postseason bowl game, Wildcat coach Jerry Clayborne suspended Chris for curfew violations and took away his scholarship. He was later asked to rejoin the team and try to earn the scholarship back, but Caudell refused.

Michigan State became interested in Caudell when they found out he was leaving Kentucky. After reviewing films of him in action, Perles told Caudell that if he sat out the '84 season (as required for a transfer athlete), MSU would put him on scholarship in '85. That's exactly what happened and everything has worked out great since. "Chris and I have talked about it," said Caudell's father, Dr. Brian Kostelnick. "There are very few times in life that something like that (the suspension) happens and you wind up in a better situation. Michigan State is where (Chris) should have been in the first place — he's very happy up there." Ironically, with Mosiejenko gone, Caudell had to fight for the starting job with Blackmer, who had also transfered to MSU at the same time. Caudell beat him out in spring practice and Blackmer later quite the team. "I'm glad it winded up that way,' Caudell admitted. "I have a lot of confidence in my kicking. I just don't think I had the publicity like (Blackmer). When we both came to State, it was a good chance for me to see how good I Caudell is well aware that he is following in the footsteps of three great Spartan kickers — Mojsiejenko, Morten Andersen and Hans Nielson. All three, at one time, set the Big Ten record for the longest field goal and each one grabbed All-Big Ten and All-American recognition. Nielson is the only one of the three who isn't actively kicking in the NFL.

MSU's placekicking chores are handled by Novi's Chris Caudell

"I know I'm trying to fill some big shoes," Caudell said. "In the past, (MSU) has had All-Americans, but I figure all that stuff will take care of itself — right now my main concern is helping Michigan State win football games.

Nielson and Andersen actually gave Caudell kicking instruction back in the late 1970s. Kostelnick contacted the MSU kicking coach at the time for advice on certain kicking techniques and was referred to Nielson who, in turn, invited Caudell and his father to go up to East Lansing. Every weekend during spring practice that year, Caudell kicked and learned from Nielson. When he graduated, he worked with Andersen.

'It was great experience for Chris," Kostelnick admitted. "Both Nielson and Andersen were very generous to share their time with him.

Caudell is also a very fine athlete, which is unusual for a kicker. He can bench press 320 pounds and squat 455. Between the ages of nine and 13, Caudell was four times the Junior Olympic state champion in the mile run and one-time national champion. While at Kentucky, the coaching staff went so far as to ask Chris if he wanted to play

"He's got a lot of athletic ability," Osborne said, "but the big thing about Chris is that there's never been anybody who's willing to put in the time and effort like he puts in.

"The key to his success is hard work. For every successful kick you see out of Chris at Michigan State, there are thousands that here been practiced.'

Caudell uses a half-inch tee when he kicks, much shorter than the two-inch tee normally used in college. According to Caudell, the tee gives him more distance without affecting accuracy. It could also give him an advantage if he decides to give pro football a shot because kickers in the NFL cannot use any tee at all.

With another year of eligibility re-maining, Caudell will hold down the kicking chores at MSU in 1986 before entertaining any thoughts of going pro. But with all the hard work he puts in and all the talent he has, Caudell has just as good a shot as any kicker around.

Who knows - maybe years from now Caudell will be a famous kicker and any trivia question about him will be easy to answer.

Vehicle fees rise at area Metroparks

The 1986 Metropark annual vehicle entry permits went on sale December 1. The new vehicle entry and boat rates are $10, an increase of $3 from last year, James J. Pompo, director of the Huron-Cinton Metropolitan Authority announces.

Daily permits will remain at the same $2 rate in effect for the past six years. Senior citizen annual permits will be $5, increased from $2, effective January 1, 1986.

Area residents who may wish to purchase permits as a Christmas gift may do do at the Kensington Metropark office near Milford, or at any metro park office or the HCMA administrative office, 3050 Penobscot Building in Detroit. Permits are not sold through the mail. For additional information call 1-800-552-6772 (toll free).

HCMA director Pompo stated that the increased permit charges for 1986 reflect the increased cost of operations and maintenance at the 13 Huron-Clinton Metroparks throughout the counties of Wayne, Macomb, Oakland, Livingston and Washtenaw.

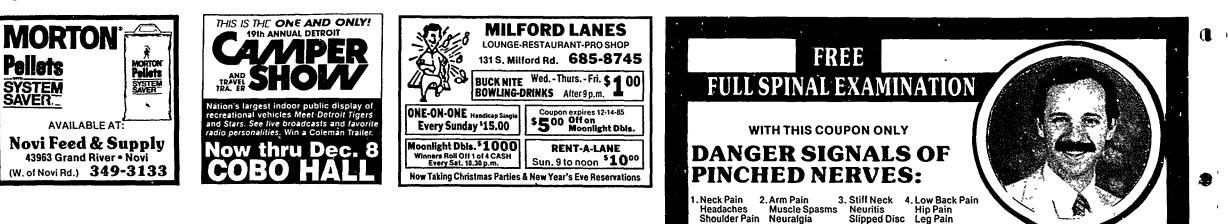

He also indicated that several new facilities have required increased personnel and operational costs during 1985. New sites include Indian Springs near Clarkston, Huron Meadows near Brighton and Lake Erie Metropark in Brownstown Township.

The parks are among the most popular winter playgrounds in southeastern Michigan. Because snow and ice conditions vary from day to day, persons are advised to call before visiting a park.

Kensington Metropark near Milford, one of the most popular in southeastern Michigan, has facilities for ice skating, tobogganing, sledding, cross country skiing (with ski rental service), ice fishing, nature hikes and photography.

General skating and hockey rinks are located on Kent Lake in front of the boat rental building with skating hours from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. weather permitting. The building has a heated lounge, fireplace, restrooms and food service. Building hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and holidays; 2-9 p.m. Monday to Friday; and 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily during the Christmas vacation period, December 23 through January 3.

Hilly slopes at the toboggan area are ideal for sledding and tobogganing with five toboggan runs and a separate area for sledding. A nearby shelter has a fireplace and tables for snacks. Hours are 10 a.m. to dusk, weather permitting

Sue Settles in action at the WLAA meet. Settles took seventh in the 100 butterfly event

Northville swimmers tie for 7th at W

When Northville swim coach Bill Dicks predicted that Livonia Stevenson would run away with the Western Lakes League Championships, he was right. The Spartans grabbed first place for their fourth consecutive WLAA title – nearly 100 points more than runner-up North Farmington in the November 22 competition at Plymouth Salem.

But when Dicks predicted that the Mustangs and Plymouth Canton would fight it out for fifth place, he was way off the mark. Granted, Canton ended up in sixth place but Northville wasn't the team that put them there.

The Mustangs finished back in a tie for seventh place with Farmington Harrison, as Canton nearly doubled Northville's score of 65.

"I didn't think (Canton) would almost double our score but they did have three or four of their divers finish pretty high up and we didn't have any place at all," Dicks explained. "So that made a real big difference.

'For a group that had to work under less than ideal conditions — with no home pool — I think they did very well as a team. We spent more time on the bus getting to and from meets than we did in the water, and that's real tough to do.'

The Mustang tankers managed to qualify for the championship finals (top six) in just two events - the 200-yard medley relay and the 200 freestyle - while seven Chiefs qualified for the finals in six of the 11 races.

Super freshman Sue Settles placed fourth in the 200 freestyle, the only individual Northville swimmer who competed in the finals. Her time of 2:00.62 was the best of her career and was enough to qualify her for the state championships on December 6 at Michigan State.

The team of Pam Wesley, Erika Nelson, Shari Thompson and Settles placed fifth in the medley race (2:03.12) for the team's only other championship flight finish.

In the consolation races (seventh through 12th place), more Mustang swimmers made the cut with Settles again leading the way. Her time of 1:04.05 in the 100 butterfly was good enough for a first place in the consolation finals and seventh overall.

Wesley, another freshman, swam well and placed 11th in the 200 freestyle (2:10.36) and 12th in the 100 backstroke (1:09.06), while Thompson grabbed places in both the 200 IM (2:23.70 for ninth) and in the 100 backstroke (1:08.15 for 10th). Nelson notched an eighth in the 100 breaststroke (1:14.91) and Julie Hilfinger a ninth in the 500 freestyle (5:44.91).

RECREATION BRIEFS

Michigan Bell Service Bulletin

Important: Action you must take if your phone number begins with # 344, 348, 349 and 486.

Now you have a choice of long distance companies for Dial 1 Plus service.

Don't leave that choice to chance.

Watch the mail and make vour choice soon.

If you have not already received it, you soon will be getting complete information from Michigan Bell by mail, along with a ballot listing your choices of Dial 1 Plus long distance companies. Your Dial 1 Plus options and the steps you should take are described in detail. And you will be given the date by which you must make your selection to avoid having a long distance company randomly selected for you.

If your phone number does not begin with one of the numbers above, don't worry. You will be notified when your area is ready for Dial 1 Plus service.

What is Dial 1 Plus?

Dial 1 Plus' is simply dialing "1," plus the area code (when necessary), plus the telephone number to complete a long distance call outside of your LATA. Companies offering long distance service can now offer you the same Dial 1 Plus service previously available only to customers of AT&T.

Don't give up your right to choose.

As part of the restructuring of the telephone industry, you must choose a company for Dial 1 Plus service or such a company will be chosen for you. Should this happen, it will be a random selection by computer. We urge you to make your own choice-because a company selected at random will not necessarily be one that best serves your specific needs. The information you receive will include telephone numbers for the various long distance companies, so you can easily look into their services and charges before you make your choice.

Need more help? Let's Talk!

Michigan Bell cannot recommend a long distance company, but if you have any questions about Dial 1 Plus service, or if you have misplaced the ballot we mailed, just call the Michigan Bell Let's Talk Center at this toll-free number:
