4-story offices get board nod

By KEVIN WILSON

Northville Township has a new master plan for development of the Haggerty Road corridor, including a large office district between Six and Eight Mile roads where 48-foot tall structures would be permitted.

The planning commission adopted the amendments to the master plan after a public hearing January 14. The alterations had been under study for nearly a year and, except for detail changes, were adopted in essentially the same form as had been rejected in a November vote.

Although the height and setback requirements for the office district are governed by the zoning ordinance, not the master plan, commissioners included the broad outline of the new large office district requirements as a condition of approving the master plan amendment, marking the major change since the narrow defeat of the proposal in November.

Assuming the provisions are written into the zoning ordinance as they were discussed last week, the large office district and a new freeway service commercial district would be the only areas in the township allowing four-story structures, with the sole exception of the special zoning class for the proposed elderly village housing complex, where up to six stories are allowed.

The height limit would be 48 feet, two feet lower than had been proposed in November, presumably to discourage construction of five-story buildings which planning consultant Claude Coates said would be possible but unlikely under a 50-foot limitation.

The new office district would also require developers to leave a 150-foot greenbelt where the office district abuts single family uses. The requirement, which creates a natural "buffer" between the offices and an adjacent subdivision, is believed to be the most stringent in Southeastern Michigan. The November proposal had included discussion of a 100-foot greenbelt, but not as a condition of approval of the master plan.

Also included as a condition was a setback formula that requires buildings to be farther away from the adjacent lot in relation to their height and length. The formula included defines the setback as the building length plus twice the height, divided by 1.25. Examples shown placed a four-story building more than 450-feet away from the rear lot line.

Those requirements were not stringent enough, however, for some residents or for three planning commissioners who were strong supporters of a 200-foot greenbelt requirement and who were opposed to the four-story plan allowance.

The vote to adopt the master plan amendment was 4-3 with two commissioners absent. Both of those absent previously supported the 150-foot greenbelt/48-foot height proposal.

As before, the primary opposition came from residents of the Meadowbrook Estates subdivision, which is directly adjacent to the proposed office district: it would extend roughly 1,000 feet west of Haggerty between Seven and Eight Mile roads.

While pleased with the expanded greenbelt requirement since the commission last voted on the issue, Meadowbrook Estates Association president Robert Johnson said four-story buildings are not appropriate in

Smoke from nearly extinguished library fire billows over state prison buildings Monday; embers are visible at right center

Arson believed cause of prison fire

By KEVIN WILSON

Investigators are assuming arson as the cause of a fire that totally destroyed an abandoned library building at the Western Wayne Correctional Facility (WWCF) Monday afternoon.

Emmet Baylor, Jr., prison warden, said only the shell of the all-wood structure remained standing after the fire was extinguished. The building was unoccupied and no injuries were reported due to the two-alarm fire, which was first reported shortly after 4:30 p.m.

The site was still emitting heavy smoke 90 minutes later. Bright red burning embers were visible from the field east of the prison after 6 p.m., and the fire was not totally extinguished until 8 p.m.

The building, Baylor said, was slated for demolition "but not quite this way."

He said the blaze prompted an immediate lockdown at the former Detroit House of Correction (DeHoCo) prison south of Five Mile and west of Beck Road. An "emergency count" determined that no prisoners escaped during the incident.

Baylor said the lockdown, during which the 462 inmates were confined to quarters, was lifted early Tuesday morning.

The assumption that prisoners set the fire is reasonable, Baylor said, since they had recently had access to the structure "and there's no other reason for it to burn." The building is accessible from the prison yard, which inmates were leaving in preparation for dinner at the time of the fire. Baylor said.

Until last year, the building southwest of the main cellblock (the largest building nearest Five Mile), had served as the prison library. When the state took over operation of the institution last year, Baylor said, plans included relocating the library into one of the masonry (cinder blocks and concrete) buildings on the compound. The old library building, once a branch of the Detroit Public Library and built in 1929 or 1930, was one of several slated for demolition.

House turns down liberalized liquor license legislation

By KEVIN WILSON

Legislation intended to ease the plight of restaurants unable to obtain licenses to sell beer and wine with meals was defeated in the Michigan House of Representatives last week.

The House (January 16) rejected on a 36-46 vote with 28 members either absent or abstaining) the Senate substitute for House Bill 5050. Had it passed, the bill would have allowed issuance of special "resort tavern" licenses to full-service restaurants in areas where the population-based quota of liquor licenses has already been filled.

"There are legislators who don't believe in the state quota system at all, who think everyone should be allowed to sell alcoholic beverages. Then there are legislators at the other end, who are reluctant to allow anyone to sell it," said an aide to state Senator Jack Faxon (D-Southfield), a prime supporter of the bill. "Unfortunately, when you try to take a moderate course like we proposed, extremists from both sides vote against you."

Rejection means the only remaining chance of passing the measure would be to strike a compromise in a joint House-Senate conference committee — a step that legislators in both houses say they will attempt.

In its original form, HB 5050 called for the issuance of one additional liquor license in communities that have a municipally owned golf course and was written by state representative Gerald H. Law (R-Plymouth Township).

Law's bill passed the House last autumn, but was amended in the Senate by the addition of language calling for the issuance of 50 resort tavern licenses to full-service restaurants each year for the next five years. The language was identical to a Faxon bill already approved by the Senate last spring.

The Senate-approved version of Faxon's bill was assigned to the House liquor control committee, where it has languished since last June while committee members refuse to send it to the floor. In a bid to bypass the committee chaired by representative Stanley Stopczynski (D-Detroit), Faxon had the measure added as an amendment to Law's bill in November.

Both Faxon aide Gary Hauptmann

'You get out in the boonies, and there's a guy who's got a license that's worth a few bucks, he wants to protect it.'

Representative Gerald Law and Representative Law said the apparent effort to bypass the committee hurt the bill when it came to a vote. Stopczynski opposed the bill on grounds that Faxon and Law should not be able to circumvent his committee to approve legislation.

"Our main problem was that the chairman of the (house liquor control) committee opposed the bill," said Hauptmann. "As a matter of courtesy, many legislators will not vote against the committee chairman's recommendation."

Hauptmann said Stopczynski is unlikely to report Faxon's original bill out to the House floor, which is why Law forced a floor vote on HB 5050 rather than letting it be assigned to committee.

In its Senate form, the bill had been dubbed the "Elizabeth's bill" in recognition of Faxon's openly stated aim of having one of the licenses assigned to Elizabeth's, a restaurant in downtown Northville.

At one time, restaurant owners Douglas and Elizabeth Campbell allowed patrons to bring their own bottles of wine for consumption with meals, but state law prohibits that practice. When Campbell was arrested for continuing the practice last autumn, Faxon renewed his efforts to see the bill approved.

Campbell and other restaurant owners contend that they are unable to compete fairly with other high-quality restaurants that are allowed to serve wine with meals. The new bill would have expanded the number of licenses available without addressing the issue of whether licensing is necessary for wine sales in restaurants.

But Law said he was unable to gain agreement to the measure from his fellow representatives, even when he offered a compromise measure that would allow a one-year-only issue of 25 tavern licenses statewide, reducing the number of licenses to one-tenth that proposed in Faxon's bill.

"The majority of legislators are either: 1) Not interested in being involved with the issuance of additional licenses of any sort or; 2) Live in areas where the MLBA (Michigan Licensed Beverage Association) doesn't want them," Law said.

The MLBA, an organization representing those already licensed within the quota system, opposed the Senate substitute for HB 5050 on grounds that it would have further eroded a quota system that the organization contends has already been compromised beyond reason. The MLBA supports the quota with the argument that too much competition in liquor sales would lead licensees to violations of the law, such as discount pricing or sales to minors.

Repeated efforts to reach a compromise between the supporters of the bill and its opponents failed, Law said, because legislators have too many varied interests to serve.

"We discussed this on the floor for well over an hour," he said. "There was more said on this bill than there has been on some of the immensely complicated economic development measures we've looked at lately."

Law said the present quota system is too inflexible in its treatment of restaurants in communities that attract many tourists or shoppers.

"Anytime you have any sort of artificial system like this, it can't adjust itself," Law said. "You have licenses issued only on the basis of population and the law can't consider those areas that have a high clientele of people who come in to town to shop or to go to some special attraction."

Law said one other problem faced by the bill was a high number of outstate legislators who represent districts where the limited number of licenses

Marian Zayti closes record books

Marian Zayti leaves school post after 34 years

By MICHELE M. FECHT

Though her school days in Northville ended during the Great Depression, it's taken Marian Zayti nearly a half-century to leave the district.

At the conclusion of this week, Northville Public Schools' longest-tenured employee will close the record books she's been keeping for more than 30 years.

"I've had a job I've enjoyed going to for 34 years," notes Zayti from her corner office at 501 West Main. "Northville's my hometown and I've always felt at home here."

"It's been a neat place to live, a neat place to work and a neat place to retire."

Having started her tenure in the district in 1947 as part-time secretary to then-superintendent Russell Amerman (she adds that her starting pay was $1 an hour), Zayti has worked for five superintendents, witnessed the construction of all of the district's present buildings (save for Old Village School and Main Street) and watched three generations of students pass through her record books.

While a handful of colleagues may — on a good day — match Zayti's wit, no one is her equal in the district's history department.

A Northville native, Zayti is a virtual storehouse of information. As the school district's resident historian and keeper of its treasured records, she readily shares her insight with everyone from elementary children spending the day in Mill Race Village to college students combing through records in the district's vault.

The letters tacked to her bulletin board are evidence of Zayti's many trips to the podium at Wash Oak Schoolhouse to recall a little of the district's history.

"I love this note," Zayti says, pulling down a hand-written letter from an elementary student who heard her talk at Mill Race. Pointing to the line where the young student refers to her as both "smart and funny," Zayti retorts: "What more could I ask for?"

"I told Dr. Bell I wanted him to put this in my personnel file."

Noting that her elementary school records are contained in the district's vault, Zayti says she has placed the school system's historical records in the trusted hands of Marge Dobbs, secretary to superintendent George Bell.

"By law, we are not allowed to throw those records out," Zayti says. "There have to be turned over to the Michigan Historical Society."

Though most of her 34 years have been spent in student accounting and fringe benefits, Zayti has worn many hats during her tenure.

Her first job as part-time secretary to Russell Amerman turned into a full time position after she returned from maternity leave in 1955 — the year the district opened Amerman Elementary School.

From there she worked in pupil accounting and then as manager of the high school bookstore — when students used to buy their books.

Zayti eventually worked her way back into the student accounting office where she has kept careful track of the district's student population for more than two decades.

She notes that her pupil accounting job was somewhat more demanding during the years when Northville was an in-formula district.

"When a district's in-formula, we're talking about a couple thousand dollars behind each student," she remarks.

Aside from "filling out endless requests for the state and county," Zayti notes the thrust of her job is keeping track of the district's 3,000-plus student population.

"Obviously, in a district this size, that does not fill my day," she says, adding that she also takes care of fringe

Inmate drives off in prison's truck

By KEVIN WILSON

A Western Wayne Correctional Facility inmate assigned to a work detail at the Five Mile Road prison drove away in the truck he was using to plow snow in the parking lot January 16, escaping only months before he was eligible for parole.

Elmer L. Tankersley, 24, was one of a small group of inmates trusted with a minimum security classification and allowed to drive a prison vehicle, according to WWCF Warden Emmet Baylor Jr.

The inmate was using the truck to fence snow in a parking lot outside the fenced portion of the former Detroit House of Correction when he evidently drove off the grounds and made good his escape, Baylor reported.

Tankersley, a Detroit resident described as a white male, 5-feet-9, 160-pounds with brown hair and brown eyes, bearing tattoos on his right hand and forearm, was last seen at 2 p.m. January 16. He was noticed missing about one-half hour later when he failed to return the truck to the prison garage, according to state police and corrections officials.

Michigan State Police recovered the state-owned, white 1979 Chevrolet dump truck with snowplow at I-275 and I-96 in Novi at 6 a.m. January 17. It reportedly had run out of fuel and was abandoned beside the freeway.

Tankersley, who was serving consecutive sentences on 1983 convictions of armed robbery and possession of a firearm during commission of a felony, was still at-large as of Monday night. Baylor said the escaped man is not believed to be armed or dangerous. He also said police agencies near Tankersley's relatives have been notified of the incident because prisoners who escape often return to their homes or families.

Northville Township police chief Kenneth Hardesty said the prison's notification system, established after eight prisoners escaped in September and early October, 1985, worked well in this case. Notification of the escape, routed through Plymouth Township police, was prompt, Hardesty said.

Baylor said the system worked "perfectly, exactly the way we planned it."

Baylor said he was puzzled by the escape, noting that Tankersley was due to appear before the parole board soon.

Convicted in March 1983 on charges stemming from a 1982 robbery in Oakland County, Tankersley was serving a 2½- to 30-year sentence on the armed robbery charge and the mandatory two-year sentence for possession of a firearm during a felony. His record shows no prior escape attempts during either his current sentence or during time served under 1977 convictions on identical armed robbery/firearm felony charges.

Tankersley's sentencing date, including credit for 119 days served in jail prior to his conviction, was reported by the Department of Corrections as December 2, 1982. With his previously good record, Baylor said the escapee might have been paroled this spring.

"He probably would have had to report every day until March, 1987, but he could have gotten out of prison by, say, June 1 of this year," Baylor said. With all good time credits intact, Tankersley could have been released from corrections department custody in March of 1987.

Baylor said Tankersley had been plowing snow as a work detail for several weeks prior to his escape. The inmate's "nose was clean" and he likely would have received a favorable review before the parole board, the warden said.

"I think it was a spur-of-the-moment thing," Baylor said. "He didn't know he was going to be given the truck for work that day."

Of the 462 inmates at WWCF, Baylor said approximately 10 have minimum security status and are allowed outside the security perimeter under certain conditions. As a minimum security inmate who left custody while outside the perimeter, Tankersley will be reported as a "walkaway" rather than an escapee in official reports, Baylor noted.

Northville Township supervisor Susan Heintz said she was upset to learn of the escape, citing the township's experience with the nearby Phoenix Correctional Facility as an example.

"Nothing like this ever happened at Phoenix," Heintz said. "I don't understand why they let a two-time offender work outside the fence and drive a vehicle."

Televised Valentine messages offered on cable

Area residents have a chance to do something different for Valentine's Day this year — create a televised valentine message for their loved one(s).

Omnicom Cable and the United Way of Plymouth are hoping hundreds of valentine senders will try this new approach to greeting their special someone for a $10, tax-deductible contribution.

Half the proceeds go to United Way and will be proceeded to helping area organizations such as First Step, the girl and boy scouts, and the YMCA.

Four taping dates have been set aside for taping of the valentine videos in Omnicom's studio at 8465 Ronda Drive in Canton. A variety of backdrops will be provided; participants are encouraged to also bring along appropriate props such as a rose or stuffed animal. The valentine senders may wish to be creative and dress in some thematic costume for the taping.

Tappings are set for Saturdays January 25 and February 1 from 1 to 5 p.m. and Wednesday January 29 and February 5 from 3 to 8 p.m. Six valentine tappings will be scheduled each half-hour and senders need to call in advance to reserve a time slot. Messages should be no more than two minutes long — they may be read or recited from memory.

Anyone wishing to obtain a taped copy of their valentine video should bring along a VHS or Beta tape to the studio. Omnicom will record your entire taping session, bloopers and all, at no charge. Anyone wishing to have a final edited copy, or even the raw footage, after the taping session will be charged an added amount. Only one free copy can be made.

The video valentines will be telecast the week of February 10 to 14 between noon and 8 p.m. Each sender will be assigned a time slot so they know approximately when their valentine will air. Time slot information will be given on the day of taping.

Groups may also wish to tape a message — such as a class sending greetings to a teacher. Special group rates are available. There will be an additional 50-cents charge for each person over five in the group.

Omnicom and the United Way hope to make this an annual event. Any questions or wishing to reserve a taping time slot should call the Omnicom programming department at 459-7331 at 459-7335.

Tanglewood auditions set

The Boston University Tanglewood Institute will hold auditions in Detroit for young area musicians interested in attending the 1986 season at Tanglewood, the internationally renowned summer home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Lenox, Massachusetts.

Drawing students from nationwide auditions held each winter, the Institute will offer music programs July 1 through August 26 for gifted musicians of high school and college age.

Prospective students may audition from 3-7 p.m. February 11 at the Detroit Community Musical School, 200 East Kirby. For an appointment, call Mr. or Mrs. Gerald Clark at 273-6716.

Now in its 21st season, the Boston University Tanglewood Institute is operated in association with the Tanglewood Music Center, summer school of the Boston Symphony.

At Tanglewood, the Berkshire Hills estate given to the orchestra in the 1930's, warm-weather concerts are heard each summer by more than 250,000 people.

Institute students have full privileges at Tanglewood, including attendance at all Boston Symphony Orchestra rehearsals and concerts, use of the Music Center's practice and library facilities and admission to all Tanglewood Music Center events.

Of the 10 Institute offerings for 1986, five programs specifically are for high school students: Instrumental, Vocal, Piano, Composition and Quartet. Seminars open both to advanced high school and college musicians include: the Empire Brass, Flute, Harp and Listening and Analysis/Applied Music Study.

Jakubowski will lead state Realtors

By PHILIP JEROME

Conrad Jakubowski believes he may well preside over one of the more successful years in the history of the Michigan Association of Realtors (MAR).

Jakubowski, a Northville resident and president of Novi's ERA Rymal Symes Company, was installed as 1986 president of the MAR during the group's winter convention at the Novi Hilton last weekend.

"It's extremely satisfying, extremely gratifying," said Jakubowski of becoming the 74th president of the association which represents some 51 boards and more than 20,000 Realtors in the State of Michigan.

His ascent to the presidency of the MAR marks a new milestone in the career of the 41-year-old Northville resident. Active in the real estate industry for the past 17 years, he became co-owner of Rymal Symes Company in 1970 and sole owner and president of the company in 1979. ERA Rymal Symes has offices in Novi and West Bloomfield.

He has served as president, vice president and secretary of the Western Wayne-Oakland County Board of Realtors (WWOCBR) in addition to every committee on the WWOCBR board.

On the state level, Jakubowski has been secretary, treasurer and first vice president of the MAR in addition to serving as chairman or a member of the organization's legislative, finance, political affairs, nominating and administrative committees.

He also represents Michigan on the National Association of Realtors and has served on several national committees.

In his capacity as MAR president for 1986, Jakubowski reported 1985 statewide housing figures and housing forecasts for 1986.

While national housing figures for 1985 showed a 4.9 percent increase in the average number of sales, he reported, Michigan experienced an increase of 22 percent, surpassing the national figure by nearly 17 percent.

And while 1985 was a good year for the housing industry, Jakubowski believes 1986 could be even better, although he cautions potential home buyers that the year might also see an increase in the price of housing above the 4.5 percent figure experienced in 1985.

"We are most encouraged by Michigan's performance during 1985," said the new MAR president. "Beyond the comparison with national sales figures, the affordability index reflects the real housing values in this state."

The average home sale price of $54,270 in Michigan was slightly higher than 1984, but still falls well below the national average of $74,600, he noted.

In the metropolitan Detroit area, he added, the affordability index is higher than any of the other 35 major metropolitan areas in the United States.

In looking ahead to 1986, Jakubowski said several unique factors are at work in the market place which might well lead to a substantial increase in the price of housing.

The most significant of those factors, he said, is a shortage of available lots for single-family housing development.

"In 1980 and '81 there was a terrible depression in the housing market," he noted. "Many developers were either foreclosed on or were forced to liquidate their developments at reduced prices."

"It took us into 1985 to absorb all the remaining lots that had been acquired at dramatically lower prices. For the past four years, builders have had the advantage of developing homes on lots that had been obtained at depressed prices. And because the cost of those lots was low, it was reflected in somewhat lower housing costs."

Jakubowski now maintains that there's a shortage of available lots and notes that it usually takes approximately two years from the time the platting process begins to the time that a new home has been constructed and is ready to be sold and occupied.

"I think that builders in 1985 will begin the process of platting additional lots, but for the rest of the year there is going to be a shortage in the metropolitan Detroit area," he said.

"The law of supply and demand lends credibility to the forecast that prices could take a substantial jump this year. We saw a 4.5 percent increase in the cost of housing in 1985 and it will be greater than that in 1986."

"I think we're going to see a restricted market for new housing in 1986 because of the shortage of lots."

Librarian leaves mark on young readers

By MICHELE M. FECHT

In her more than 20 years as a librarian, Mernie Hines has been a guiding force in helping a generation of youngsters progress from Dr. Seuss and Encyclopedia Brown to Mark Twain and Ernest Hemingway.

Having presented her final lesson in library skills last week, the longtime elementary librarian is ready to depart the post she has held for two decades.

In the quiet sanctuary of her basement office at 501 West Main, Hines sorts through a pile of reference cards.

"I'm trying to get things organized for the new person coming in," she says, pointing to the file cabinets and materials.

While she admits she has mixed emotions about leaving her post, Hines says the time was right to retire. She contends her retirement was prompted in part by passage of a new state law which allows educators to retire with full benefits if their years of service and age totals 80.

However, Hines also notes she and her husband, Phelps, have been giving serious consideration to traveling through Europe as well as visiting their five children scattered throughout the country.

Aside from the travel, Hines says she is looking forward to being on the other side of the circulation counter.

"The value of printed material is that it has no time restriction, it's portable and it does not need electricity."

"If it isn't working in libraries, it will be lounging in libraries," she notes.

Reflecting on her long career, Hines says she feels fortunate to have followed in the footsteps of librarians such as Margaret DeKett and Del Gerhardt.

"There was a wonderful base to start with here," she says. "The best part to me was building upon what they already had started."

Among the highlights of Hines' career was the opportunity to build four new libraries — Meads Mill, Moraine, Winchester and Silver Springs. She also witnessed the renovation of Main Street and Amerman libraries.

Hines credits the administration with "providing awfully good support" to the district's library system and notes that former longtime teacher and administrator Florence Panattoni was among the library's staunchest supporters.

"The first 10 years were really exciting because there was a lot of federal money," she says. "At that time the library was always on the cutting edge of things. We really needed to keep on our toes."

While local, state and federal cutbacks have curbed library service during the past several years, Hines says the support of staff and parents has continued to bring innovative programs in to the district's libraries.

Among one of the most successful projects is the elementary publishing center which Hines notes was started by one of her aides.

The program, now offered in all of the district's elementary schools, offers young authors the opportunity to pen their own work. All books are circulated in their respective libraries to share with others.

"I think we've always been alert to innovation as well as keeping the basics," Hines says, noting that today's libraries offer everything from videos and television to storytelling and folk tales.

"We have a lot of learning methods and all different forms have value," she adds.

While she notes that kids today are basically the same as those who utilized the library 20 years ago, Hines says television has had an impact.

"Kids are a whole lot more superficially knowledgeable," she notes. "They know television."

However, despite the advent of technology, books still are the most popular items on library shelves.

"We have just about as much circulation as ever — despite TV," Hines says. However, she's quick to point out that books are changing.

"Book formats are much more lively," she says. "They are real attention grabbers."

"At one time I was convinced (audio visual) would replace books," she relates. "However, the value of printed material is that it has no time restriction, it's portable and it does not need electricity."

"It's the best practical form of information."

NHS drafting teacher leaves 26-year post

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

Arnold Anderson moved to Northville to teach drafting in 1959 and he considers it one of the best decisions he ever made.

Today, 26½ years later, Anderson has retired from teaching but still has all the fond memories and friends to look back on and the satisfaction that goes with it.

When the new Northville High School was built and ready for the 1959-60 school year, the then 31-year old Anderson left his teaching post at Detroit's Cass Tech High School and moved his family to Northville to teach drafting. It didn't take him long to find out it was the right decision.

"I was very happy to make the change and come out to Northville," Anderson said. "Teaching in Detroit was a very good experience but I'm from a small town in the upper peninsula and I just liked the friendliness and small town atmosphere here."

Anderson was raised near Marquette and after a brief stint at Michigan Tech where he studied engineering, he came home to Northern Michigan University and received his teaching degree. Later he attended various schools such as Michigan State and Wayne State to get his masters degree and maintains the drafting, architecture and engineering fields have always been of interest to him.

"I've always enjoyed drafting and it's especially rewarding to teach it in Northville," Anderson admitted. "With the automotive companies and such in the area, there is a large interest in the engineering field here."

"The program (at Northville) is very

High school proper to open Monday

Construction workers, custodians, staff members, administrators and a host of volunteers will keep vigil at Northville High School proper this weekend in preparation for Monday's opening.

Students in grades 9-12 will begin second semester at the renovated site with half-day sessions scheduled Monday and Tuesday. Students will attend first through third hours Monday and fourth through sixth hours Tuesday.

Superintendent George Bell said the half-day schedule will allow staff members additional time to unpack materials and set-up classrooms.

A flag raising ceremony is scheduled for 10 a.m. Monday at the renovated site. Flags which have flown over both the state and national capitals will be presented to the district. Among those attending the special ceremony will be

Senator Robert Geake, R-Northville; Township Supervisor Susan Heintz and Mayor Paul Vernon.

Though far from finished, much of the building is ready for occupancy, according to Bell.

The science and social studies wing — the only area of the building still under construction — will be closed off to students and staff members. The annex will continue to be used for those classes.

Most of the remaining work on the building will be completed while classes are in session.

The superintendent said there will be some inconvenience to staff and students until the building is completed. However, he noted the situation will be not be as bad as last spring.

benefits and voter registration. Though still a small school district by comparison to its larger neighbors Northville's growth over the last three decades continues to amaze Zayti. When I was in grade school the high school gym teacher would have a peasant of the whole school district — K-12 she relates.

Witness to countless changes in the district Zayti says the highlights are almost too numerous to list. I can remember how absolutely thrilled I was when our district had a $1 million budget. Zayti notes adding that construction of Amerman school was another highlight of her more than three decades in the district.

When it was built Amerman was only half its present size she recalls but it looked like a palace.

Zayti recalls that when she started her tenure in the district teachers were paid twice a month and so little that most had to take summer jobs.

Though it was before her time Zayti also notes that during the Depression then Superintendent Russell Amerman paid his teachers in script.

It makes me glad to see teachers can support their families today she says.

Noting that she turned 65 this month Zayti says she is facing retirement with mixed emotions.

She notes she eagerly is anticipating a trip to Hawaii with husband Ben and visits to Vermont and Pennsylvania to see their daughters Judy and Joyce and their grandchildren.

However she says she will miss her post and regrets not being around for the opening of the renovated high school.

I'm very excited about the new high school she says I'm dragging my feet on retirement because I want to see it completed.

Marian Zayti will have a chance to see the new high school facility at a dinner in her honor February 1 in the renovated cafeteria. Members of the community interested in attending should contact Dutch Van Ingen at 349-7400.

good. We've had quite a few students go on to Michigan or Michigan Tech who were able to test-out of some of the introductory courses because of their progress here. That's something that is very satisfying to me.

Anderson's wife passed away seven years ago and his two sons are grown. His youngest daughter followed in her father's footsteps — currently is at Northern Michigan studying nursing. A new law makes teachers eligible to retire if their age and years of teaching total more than 80 years so Anderson '97 decided to take advantage of it and his retirement became effective January 6.

He now plans to spend most of his summers in a cabin he owns near Marquette or travel to places he has never been but always wanted to go — like

New York City and other eastern states. After his daughter graduates from NMU Anderson said he will probably look for some place with a little warmer climate to live but his heart will still be in Northville.

You can't live in a community for 26 years and not make friends — but I've been fortunate. Working and living here has really given me a chance to meet a lot of nice people. It's something I'll always cherish.

One thing Anderson said he will miss the most is the students.

The students at Northville have always been so great to teach he said. It's been a great challenge as well but one I've enjoyed so much.

This community really strives to give its children a good education and if you're a teacher that's an ideal situation to be in.

Our Opinion

Legislature loses logic on liquor law

The inability of the Michigan legislature to reach some form of compromise on the issue of allowing more restaurants to serve wine is indicative of both Lansing's increasing similarity to Babel and the need for regulatory reform of the state's entire liquor licensing system. To the handful of legislators still connected to the real world, we suggest it is time to deregulate the sale of beer and wine in Michigan restaurants.

Rather than addressing the needs of a few hundred restaurants across the state, or the desires of the tens of thousands of citizens who would enjoy wider availability of wine with meals, legislators considering the "Elizabeth's bill" became tangled up in disputes over their own procedures and the viability of the quota system of licensing. Rather than face down a powerful special interest lobby, legislators let less-organized interests suffer while a full quarter of the House failed to cast a vote on the bill.

Sadly forgotten were the proprietors of now-unlicensed restaurants. In the best of times, running a restaurant is a risky venture. Doing so in a marketplace in which one's competitor can gain a stranglehold on the ability to serve wine with a meal would seem to be foolishness, yet that is precisely what Michigan asks restaurant owners to do. We do this despite rhetoric about improving the business climate, particularly for small businesses that create the most new jobs. We do it with the full consent of license-holding business leaders who pay lip service to the notion of a free market while demanding that the state protect them from all would-be competitors.

We in Northville should have a particular interest in the issue — the concentration of exceptional restaurants here is a great asset to a community that strives to keep its downtown alive by attracting shoppers and visitors from outside. But the present state law only imperfectly addresses the need for additional liquor licenses beyond the number allowed by quota.

While the case at hand revolves around Elizabeth's Restaurant, the issue is much larger. Without the ability to serve wine or beer with meals, it is unlikely that Northville could attract additional excellent restaurants. A denser concentration of restaurants here might heighten the competitive pressure, but the resulting reputation would also draw more patrons, and business, to the area.

Communities compete to create such restaurant/- entertainment districts that draw visitors, dollars and jobs. The ability to issue a liquor license is a major asset in that competition. Why then should a larger community (Livonia or Novi, say) have a competitive advantage by sole virtue of population? Is downtown Northville, or even Northville Township, a less desirable site for such a restaurant district simply because the population is below that of its neighbors? We think not.

As individuals who live in this community, are we any less entitled to a glass of wine with dinner in a local restaurant than are those who live a few miles to the north or east? Under the present system, we are.

Ideally, we would like to see wine drinkers allowed to bring their own bottles to a restaurant, just as was being done at Elizabeth's and is reportedly still being allowed, albeit illegally, at other restaurants in metro Detroit. Realistically, we would settle for a strong dose of deregulation as it applies to beer and wine sales in restaurants.

By allowing virtually any qualifying full-service restaurant to serve beer and wine, and prohibiting those thus licensed from also operating a bar on the premises, it might even be possible to further limit the proliferation of bars. If a restaurant owner could serve beer and wine with a license readily available for the mere cost of an application fee, how many would invest the tens of thousands of dollars it now costs them for a full-service liquor license? While many would still want the Class C liquor license to serve cocktails and to build a bar for those waiting to be seated, the economic considerations that prompt such desires would be vastly altered under such a system.

How, though, can reason be expected of a legislature that cannot even agree to allow 25 existing restaurants to add a wine list to their menus? Legislators are all over the map on this issue — some want complete deregulation of all liquor sales, others would gladly support a second attempt at Prohibition. A diversity of views makes for a strong democracy, but only in an atmosphere of mutual respect where it can be agreed that compromise is a worthwhile means of accomplishing society's goals. As an arena increasingly dominated by extremists who will not consider compromise, the Michigan legislature is at risk of sinking into total ineffectiveness when called upon to consider anything so mundane as rational regulation.

Fashionably rumples

By B.J. Martin

"Men's Fashion" is a punchline that will work for any joke. If you happen to be a man, try saying the expression aloud without laughing, or at least smirking. See what I mean?

Sometime around 1967 somebody told men we can't dress like Fred Mertz in I Love Lucy anymore. Ever since then, we've been completely messed up. We don't know what to pull out of our closet or tell the barber these days.

To deal with the problem, we men have developed a set of stock verbal responses to anyone who looks more fashionable than we do. The mildest of these responses goes like this: "He dresses like a fairy." Others are variations on this theme, usually stated with more forcefulness.

So how is it we men wear what we wear? This is kind of hazy territory. All we know is that day in and day out, it's completely wrong, wrong, wrong. After a while, most of us simply get used to it.

We men take our fashion cues from a variety of sources. In order of popularity, they rank something like this: 1. Our boss (providing he is a male); 2. Whatever we can blame on our wives or mothers; and 3. Sears catalogs.

Somewhere further down in the ranking, maybe around 313 or 314 are what women wish were our fashion sources, namely the Fab Four: Esquire, GQ, M and MGF (Men's Guide To Fashion). Playboy would probably fit in there, too, but since most bookstore clerks are women, relying on Playboy for sartorial tips can be embarrassing in the long run. (Here's another thing you can try to say without laughing: "Oh, I'm just buying this Playboy for the fashions.")

The reason The Fab Four "clean" men's magazines rate so far down is because they are too funny. Of them, the funniest is MGF because it tries so hard not to project the effeminate foppiness of GQ. So MGF runs letters from its Definitely Male Readership like "I sometimes want sex without the hassle of dating. How do you find safe, clean prostitutes?" and runs articles like Dr. Ruth's "Are Women Using You?"

M is a lot of fun, too. It has articles that help you deal with problems like yachting burnout and, of course, the 1986 Polo Preview. Esquire wears me out because it's always reappraising something: the Vietnam War, fidelity, liberalism, conservatism, etc. etc. The only thing you can count on is the fashion pages, which every year are titled: "A Return To Elegance." I can't wait for a reappraisal: "A Return to Grossness."

Women typically say we men have an easy lot compared to the numerous fashion decisions they have to make. They daydream that a roomful of people will collapse in hysterical laughter if their sleeves puff out half an inch too far. Maybe other women will, but men won't. We're less concerned about their clothes' exterior than their interior. This is why men rarely compliment women on what they're wearing.

Unlike women, men are not supposed to be too fashionable. The ideal man dresses about two years behind what is supposed to be in style. Right now, I'm getting into the neo-preppy look. Around 1988 I will have to get a haircut that makes my hair stand on its end, and wear diagonal zippers on my jackets.

So if you see me looking kind of rumples and behind-the-times, you should know it's because I am a Real Man and not because I don't know anything about Men's (heh-heh) Fashion.

Spotlights

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

I'd like to report that nobody has tried to register for the Phil Jerome Weekly Weigh Program. And I suppose I could . . . except it wouldn't be the truth.

The sad fact is that I've received several inquiries from people apparently willing to fork over a $6 registration fee plus a weekly charge of 75 cents for the right to step on my scale.

Regular readers of this august journal may recall that last week's column dealt with a new program offered by the Novi Community Education Department called "The Weekly Weigh." For the low, low price of a $7 registration fee and a weekly charge of $1 participants would be permitted to drive to Novi Middle School South every Thursday night to weigh in.

Thinking there must be something more to the program, I called Community Ed Director Clara Porter only to be told nothing was missing . . . that's all there was.

Amazed that someone could collect $7 plus $1 per week for the right to stand on a scale, I announced my own cut-rate weekly weigh program — $6 registration plus 75 cents per week.

It was all in jest, folks. I didn't really mean for anyone to give me $6. And you can be darn sure I wasn't about to let people come to my house to weigh in — not even for 75 cents.

But several people really did attempt to take me up on my offer. As recently as Monday night I had to refund $6 to Guy Cole who tried to register while I was playing Ms. Pac-Man at the Starting Gate.

And Kathy Crawford of the Novi Parks and Recreation Department told me that a group of her friends almost stopped by my house at seven o'clock Thursday morning with their $6 registration fees, asking to stand on my scale.

Crawford also told me Parks & Rec is considering a Weekly Weigh Program of its own.

"We won't charge any registration fee," she said. "You just come in and stand on a truck scale we're going to put in the basement. The cost will be 25 cents per week."

"And the best part," she continued, "is that after you've weighed in a member of our staff will come downstairs and verbally abuse you for being overweight."

Oddities evident in legislative score keeping system

With nine strokes of Gov. James J. Blanchard's pen, state Senator Rudy Nichols became one of the most successful members of the legislature in getting bills passed.

Blanchard recently signed a package of bills to toughen child support collection procedures.

Nichols, a freshman Republican from Waterford whose district includes greater Rochester, worked on a bipartisan team with Representative Debbie Stabenow, a Democrat from Lansing, to win passage in both houses. But because the Legislature enacted the Senate versions of the bills, Nichols' name goes on them.

It illustrates one of the quirks of Michigan legislative politics, where only one bill in a hundred becomes law.

Blanchard's news office even gave credit to Nichols as a prime sponsor of the package.

"Michigan continues to be one of the most successful states in the nation in its effort to collect child support," said Blanchard. The bills and their provisions:

• SB 224 amends the FIOC of the Court Act to specify FOC responsibilities in enforcing support orders and to provide for reporting of information to governmental and consumer reporting agencies.

• SB 227 creates the Office of Child Support, replacing the Office of Central Registry for the Location of Absent Parents. The office is to develop a statewide information system and administer the enforcement of an order of income.

• SB 228 amends the Support and Visitation Enforcement Act to allow a court to require a bond or impose a lien to secure payment of child support orders.

• SB 441 provides for the "interception" by the state Department of Treasury of tax refunds to be used to pay taxpayers' liabilities.

• SB 442, 443, 445 and 446 amends three acts — Family Support, Divorce and Child Custody — to require that orders entered under then be enforceable as provided in the Support and Visitation Enforcement Act.

• SB 444 creates the "Interstate Income Withholding Act," providing a mechanism for the withholding of income in other states.

That gave Nichols a record of nine bills passed out of 29 introduced, one of the best in the legislature.

But legislators, though they frequently seek publicity on bills they have introduced, are quick to point out that numbers don't tell the story.

Lansing's two most powerful lawmakers — Senate Majority Leader John Engler (R-Mt. Pleasant) and House Speaker Gary Owen (D-Ypsilanti) — rarely introduce legislation. Engler has introduced one bill; Owen zero.

Being a member of a minority party hurts. Senator Jack Faxon, a legislative veteran of 21 years, is a Democrat in a house run by the Republicans. The Farmington Hills senator, whose district includes Southfield, is batting zero-for-34.

Sometimes members of one party will tack provisions of Senator A's bill and stick it onto Representative B's bill. The measure may pass, but Senator A doesn't get the credit.

Senator R. Robert Geake (R-Northville) said Democrats in the House did this to his voter registration bill.

Leaders of the appropriations committees seem to have high batting averages, until one realizes that the Legislature must pass appropriations bills every year.

So Senators Harry Gast (R-St. Joseph), the chairman, and James DeSana (D-Wyandotte), the vice chairman, have 3-for-5 and 9-for-31 records of bill passage, respectively.

Representative Carolyn Cheeks Kilpatrick, D-Detroit, has 18 stars behind her name. But they are all technical amendments to existing laws to delete references to the now-defunct Detroit House of Correction. Under the Michigan Constitution, a bill may address only one subject, so it took 18 bills to do the job.

Junior members of the Legislature rarely get bills passed and are well advised to concentrate on what is euphemistically known as "constituent service." Translation: Do odd jobs for the folks back home so you can get re-elected, earn seniority and become effective.

Here's how bills introduced by other western Wayne County legislators fared as of mid-December, when this compilation was made by the Legislative Service Bureau:

Senator R. Robert Geake (R-Northville) — one for nine. It covers increasing the bonding authority for prisons.

Senator William Faust (D-Westland) — zero for 14. Faust last year stepped down as Senate minority leader.

Senator Patrick McCollough (D-Dearborn) — two for 11. One covers the Great Lakes basin compact, the other affects the health code for cities under 40,000.

Representative Gerald Law (R-Plymouth) — one for 19, covering limitations on prison populations. He is in his second term.

Representative Lyn Bankes (R-Livonia) — zero for one. She is a freshman.

Representative Justine Barns (D-Westland) — zero for 13. She is in her second term.

Representative John Bennett (D-Redford) — two for 18. They cover appointment of business referees and county treasurer investment. Bennett is a 20-year veteran whose district includes several square miles of Livonia.

Representative William Keith (D-Garden City) — two for 16. A six-term member, Keith scored big with his law allowing statewide branch banking and interstate banking. Republicans in the Senate had drafted a similar measure but, in a show of respect, passed Keith's version.

Representative James Kosteva (D-Canton) — two for nine. They cover a property tax credit and school aid allocations. A freshman, Kosteva has cultivated the House Democratic leadership.

Think tank report calls for cooperation

Michigan businesses and unions will have to hold down wage increases, and state government must think in terms of "investing" in economic development instead of "consuming" on welfare, according to a think tank hired by the state Senate.

Metropolitan Detroit could reverse its downward slide in both city and suburbs by forward-looking planning, said the Hudson Institute, an Indianapolis-based research firm hired by Senate Majority Leader John Engler (R-Mt. Pleasant).

"We want to get the debate off who's responsible for what and onto where we are going," said Engler at a news conference at which he unveiled the report called "Michigan Beyond 2000." The Senate put up $280,000 of the $450,000 cost for the report.

Engler and Hudson Institute President Tom Bell denied that the report, already the target of Democratic criticism, would be used to maul Democratic Governor James Blanchard in the 1986 election.

"The 'Comeback State' — that's yesterday," said Bell referring to Blanchard's current slogan. "The question here is what kind of state we'll live in tomorrow. This report is not critical of the present administration."

"A cooperative attitude is the message we want to leave," he added.

The Hudson Institute report concentrated its suggestions in four areas: 1) making industry here more cost-competitive compared to other states, 2) delivering government services more efficiently, 3) attracting college educated professionals and retirees here, and 4) adopting strategies toward entire metropolitan areas instead of just cities.

The auto industry's high wages, which set a pattern for much of the state, were seen as "the single most significant cost disadvantage... (and) there is evidence the disparity is growing."

"In 1969 the Michigan average manufacturing wage was 124 percent of the U.S. average. By 1979 the ratio had grown to 130 percent."

Asked if it meant Michigan workers should accept a declining standard of living, Bill Johnston, a senior research fellow with the Hudson Institute, said no. "There needs to be a gradual return to national standards over 20 years. Wages should rise less rapidly here than elsewhere. It needs to be a negotiated agreement. It can't be sudden."

Bell and Johnston said the state can help by reducing workers compensation, unemployment insurance and business tax costs.

State government was urged to target more dollars toward "investment" in human and physical resources — education (particularly in engineering and technologies), highways and economic development.

And it was told to halt the shifting of state funds to welfare.

□ "Despite economic recovery, Michigan's combined ADC (aid to families with dependent children) and general assistance caseload is half again its size in 1979."

□ "Despite economic uncertainty, the state recently chose to add adult dental coverage to its medicaid program."

Encouraged to meet parents with rules

To the Editor:

I am grateful that Novi Hilton Manager Gerhard and Kathryn Seibert are new members of our community. It's exciting to welcome folks of their stature.

In today's culture that is concerned with inhibiting children's psyches by setting rules for them, it is refreshing to find a father who is the authority in his household and who enjoys his family in addition to carrying such impressive business responsibilities.

Reading in the Northville Record that his children aren't allowed outside the apartment without their parents with them for the guests' comfort, that politeness to staff and guests and a dress code are required of them sets a standard we can all respect. Yet, this is balanced with a father who delights in giving his time to be with his boys.

Yes, Gerhard, you "are an asset (and a blessing)" to our community. Welcome!

DENTAL DIALOGUE

NUMBER ONE FREEDOM OF CHOICE

Freedom. The very foundation of America's greatness. The freedom to choose your family dentist is your right, and has long been a tradition. A tradition that makes sense because it puts you in charge. You decide which dentist, which location, and which treatment you receive.

Traditional dentistry gives you the freedom to choose, freedom to change dentists, freedom to say no, freedom to seek specialty care.

But, be aware. Through changes in your employee benefit program, you may now be faced with alternatives to traditional dentistry. These alternative plans are called by different names and may contain restrictions. Some may limit your freedom to choose.

Your family's dental health means more to you than it ever could to anyone else. Can you afford to let someone else make your decisions when your family's dental health is at stake?

Before you give up your precious freedoms, think it over carefully!

You and your family dentist... prevention at its best!

Fire destroys prison library

"Ironically, we transferred the last batch of books out of there only last Friday," Baylor said. "There was nothing in there left to catch fire unless someone set it."

The warden said a trash barrel fire was set in the same building January 16, the same day a prisoner escaped from the institution. Baylor said last week's trash fire and the escape were unconnected.

Asked if he thought the Monday fire was set as a distraction to facilitate an escape attempt, he said that could not be determined and that no escape attempts had been reported. He also noted that the immediate lockdown called for in event of a major fire would have squelched any planned escapes.

Baylor declined to speculate on whether the apparent arson fire was reflective of tension within the state corrections system arising from recent hostage-taking incidents at Huron Valley Correctional Facility in Ypsilanti.

"It's very difficult to tell (if the incidents are related)," Baylor said. "You never know what people are really thinking. This is a medium security institution whereas Huron Valley is maximum security. We try to give people a little more leeway, but you never know what they're thinking."

The building, which Baylor said was about 40-feet long and 10-to-15-feet deep, is flanked by cinder block structures that were not endangered during the fire.

Northville Township.

"I think the essence of Northville Township is residential and rural," said Johnson, whose association earlier threatened legal action if the master plan was amended. "Four-story is setting a definite precedent here. We were wondering if one of the options might not be a referendum. It seems to me this plan is far more acceptable (than the one rejected in November) with the exception of 48-foot. Maybe what we want to do is 40-foot or 36-foot."

Johnson recommended a vote of the residents on the height issue.

He got support for lower buildings from commissioner Ted Martin, who, during an earlier discussion of the issue, had also proposed a referendum vote.

reduces the competitive pressure on isolated drinking spots.

"You get out in the boonies, and there's a guy who's got a license that's worth a few bucks, he wants to protect it," Law said. "That guy talks to his state rep, complains that he has a bunch invested in a license and he wants to know why his rep would vote to issue one for practically nothing to a competitor."

Unlike the Class C license more commonly found in metropolitan area restaurants, tavern licenses allow the holder to serve beer and wine only, not liquor. A "resort" license, in Michigan law, is one issued as an exception to the population-based quota on grounds that the licensee attracts, promotes and enhances travel and tourism in the area, thereby expanding the potential number of customers to be shared among competing licensees.

Representative Law said that in his discussions with opponents of HB 5050 "I presented this as an economic development thing — most restaurants, especially the kind defined in the bill, are entrepreneurial investments. They're family-run small businesses. They increase employment, they promote tourism, they enhance the business climate. For some reason, (opponents of additional licenses) just can't see it that way."

Township's position is not parallel because the greenbelt requirement removes a large segment of the buildable land from possible use. To compensate the landowner for that loss of buildable property, Coates said, it would be appropriate to allow a somewhat greater height.

But commissioner Charles DeLand and Jerry Chisnell sided with Martin in opposition to the 48-foot restriction. Martin made a motion to adopt the master plan amendments with a 40-foot limit. The motion was defeated 4-3.

Commissioner Marvin Gans made the motion to adopt a 48-foot height limit with the master plan amendments. The 4-3 vote, with Gans, Richard Allen, chairman Richard Duwel and vice chair Pat Wright on the winning side, might not have been so close had commissioners Kitty Rhoades and Larry Sheehan been present. Both expressed support for four-story buildings at a study session one week earlier. Rhoades was ill, however, and Sheehan was out of state on business.

Jim Cowie's 'thing' is opening new stores

• Former sociology professor enjoys life as entrepreneur

By PHILIP JEROME

There are two Jim Cowies.

One is Professor James Cowie, Ph.D., author of three basic textbooks on Sociology, former faculty member at Indiana University and the University of Wisconsin, and formerly chairman of the Department of Sociology at Delta State University in Cleveland, Ohio.

The other is ... well, Jim Cowie, local businessman in downtown Northville. The friendly fellow you have seen at various times over the past five years making candy, mixing up a batch of popcorn, selling antiques, running a fabric store and, most recently, opening a crafts shop.

Jim Cowie, entrepreneur.

So which is the real Jim Cowie?

"They're both real," says the man who has been involved in starting up eight new businesses in Northville since 1980 ... the man who received a round of applause from the members of the Northville Historical Commission when he appeared before them last fall to request permission to open Anne's Crafts at 110 North Center Street.

The Jim Cowie who's best known is Jim Cowie, local businessman, he says. But Dr. James Cowie is also a very real person.

"That's the private me," he continues, disavowing the suggestion he has abandoned the "halls of academia" to pursue his interest in retailing and entrepreneurship.

"I still have a large library at home, and I am still deeply interested in the field of Sociology. I'm a businessman, but I'm also a writer. My writing is something that's very important to me."

Cowie also dismisses the suggestion that the two — businessman and sociologist — are mutually exclusive.

"Underneath it all, I'm still an academic," he says. "My mind never leaves my field. And I think that has helped me a lot as a merchant."

"To be successful in business you have to have insight into how people feel, what they like, what they don't like, what they would like to have in their homes. I'm a good listener, a trained listener. And I think some of my success can be attributed to my ability to listen to people and understand what they like and dislike."

Jim Cowie is a hometown boy. His parents moved from Brighton to Northville in 1950, when he was still in elementary school. And he graduated from Northville High School in 1959.

After that he entered college, spending the next 21 years of his life either studying, teaching or writing. He earned a BS in Education from Central Michigan University in 1963 and an MA in Sociology from Central Michigan in 1964.

He taught Sociology at Northwood Institute and Oakland Community College for the next three years and then moved on to Indiana University on a fellowship, teaching and working toward his Ph.D. which he received from Indiana in 1975.

He also spent time as an associate professor in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at the University of Wisconsin before ending up at Delta State University where he served as Chairman of the Department of Sociology for approximately eight years.

Cowie's academic credentials include authoring three basic textbooks and editing a book called "The Sociology of You." He also authored a book entitled "An Ethnography of a Chiropractic Clinic," the only sociological study of chiropractic medicine ever published in book form in the United States.

It was in 1980 that Cowie left Delta State to return to Northville. "It was my full intention to spend all my time writing, which I did for an entire year," he reports.

But then I got a little bored and happened to find a little candy shop over in Old Village in Plymouth which was doing no business at all. I bought it lock, stock and barrel for a song and started to create my own special chocolate recipes.

"It had been my intention to use the candy store as a place I could write between customers, but within four months I was doing a fantastic business. People were coming from all over just to buy candy, and my writing went right down the tubes."

The candy store in Plymouth's Old Village was the start of a whirlwind four years during which Cowie has started some eight different businesses.

With the success of the candy store in Plymouth, Cowie's wife, Shirley, opened an off-shoot at a front counter of what was then Genitti's Meat Market.

"It was nice," recalls Cowie. "We had the candy, and we also had gourmet teas and spices. Before long she (Shirley) was selling more candy in the front of Genitti's than I was in the whole shop in Plymouth so we sold the Plymouth store and doubled the size of our shop in Northville, selling candy on one side and all types of country-craft items on the other side."

Having experienced success selling candy, the Cowies began to branch out into other fields.

In 1982 Shirley opened a fabric shop called Anne's Fabrics (in honor of their daughter) directly across from Genitti's on Northville's Main Street.

"Shirley has this love of sewing and she really knows what Northville people like because they're the same things that she likes," says her husband. "One day she said, 'What Northville really needs is a nice fabric shop,' and I knew it would work because Shirley has very good instincts about the interests of people in Northville."

At just about the same time, the Cowies opened an antique store on Center Street, and Jim began to experiment with gourmet-flavored popcorn — which led to the opening of yet another business.

"We invested in $10,000 worth of stainless steel popcorn equipment and started a company called the Old Northville Popcorn Company in the back of the antique store."

"We sold a little popcorn in the candy store, but the real purpose of the company was to make and wholesale gourmet-flavored popcorn to retailers. We were shipping popcorn to retailers in 11 different states at the time."

As had happened with the candy store, each of the businesses did extremely well. "We had the candy shop and country store at Genitti's; we had the fabric store and a rapidly developing line of crafts supplies across the street; and we had the antique store and the popcorn company. Plus, I was still trying to work on a novel on top of all that," recalls Cowie.

"Out of self-preservation, we decided to divest ourselves of some of the companies."

The antique store was dissolved, and the popcorn company was sold and moved to Walled Lake, although Cowie continued to assist with developing flavors and marketing.

The candy counter/country-store in the front of Genitti's was moved to another location on Center Street to permit the Genitti's to expand their restaurant business. And shortly thereafter, that business also was sold, and still exists as Village Sweets 'n' Treats.

Cowie then opened a bookstore on East Main called the Haunted Book Store, which permitted him to be at home again among books and spend more time writing.

And it wasn't much later that he also got out of the used books business to open his latest venture — Anne's Crafts on North Center Street. The crafts store opened for business in October 1985.

"Fabrics and sewing are Shirley's 'thing.' And crafts are my 'thing,'" he says. "I am now and will be for many years to come the fulltime owner and operator of a most rewarding, thoroughly enjoyable, most creative and entirely satisfying crafts shop."

Cowie emphasizes that Anne's Crafts does not sell finished crafts. What it is a crafts supply store ... selling everything anybody needs to make crafts and specializing in woodcuts, stenciling, basketry, folk art and tile painting and "many other crafts too numerous to mention."

Don't accept Cowie's suggestion that he will be happy and content simply to operate the crafts shop, however. Already he is working on plans to mass produce a unique line of crafts supplies that will be wholesaled to retailers through MAGS — the Michigan Association of Gift Salesman, which is headquartered in Northville at the corner of Main and Dumlup streets.

Cowie tends to dismiss the suggestion that he is a particularly adept businessman.

Asked how a former college professor can start eight different successful businesses during a four-year period, he says simply that he's been very lucky.

At the same time, he offers some advice to others interested in starting a business in Northville.

"Northville is a town in which people can be successful," he says. "It's a small town with small-town merchants. There's a lot of friendliness around, and the merchants make people feel at home here."

"My recommendations to people who want to start a business here is to know your market. Know your customers and know their needs. Know what they want and know where to get it for them."

"People in Northville want the best. They know quality and they want quality. That's why you'll find very little in our crafts store that comes shipped in packages from Taiwan. All our woodcuts, for example, are made in Northville by Northville craftsmen."

"Northville is a small town that has been attractively renovated. People like that. They like the small-town atmosphere, and they like the way they are treated by the merchants. Northville's exactly what it appears to be. Keep that in mind and it's a town in which people can be successful."

Losses from credit card fraud expected to reach $2 billion

A credit card allows people to organize bills and plan their budgets.

But losses from credit card fraud may top $500 million in 1985, according to credit card industry forecasts.

And a report by the American Bankers Association predicts that the bill for card fraud could reach $2.3 billion in 1986 if current trends continue.

Ultimately, this comes out of the pockets of consumers, so card holders should know their rights and what they are financially liable for, according to the Michigan Association of CPAs.

The Federal Reserve places a $50 limit on the amount for which a credit card holder may be held liable when a card is stolen and used illegally. But that $50 limit on each card adds up quickly when you own 10 or 15 credit cards. (Some card companies don't always levy the $50.)

If you report the theft or loss to the card company immediately — before it can be used to make illegal charges — you will not be held liable for that $50. Quick action is the key.

Don't be fooled by a telephone caller who advises you he has "found" your cards and will send them in the mail. It could be a ruse by the thief who is buying time while he uses your card to buy a color television set.

For some people, it may be convenient to join a card protection service, which costs $12 to $15 per year. These services will contact credit card companies for you when a card is reported lost or stolen.

If you have a wallet full of cards, this may be a worthwhile investment because you avoid the hassle of contacting all the credit card companies yourself. But if you hold only a few cards, it may be easier to contact the companies yourself.

In either case, it's wise to keep a list of all your card numbers along with the credit card issuer's toll-free telephone number. Keep that information in a safe place. You can photocopy your credit cards at work or most libraries — just don't throw away any spoiled copies.

One way to avoid becoming a victim of fraud is to read your monthly bill closely. Waiters and store clerks can easily use your card to run off a second transaction slip without your noticing.

In addition, you may want to tear up carbon copies when your credit card transaction is completed. Thieves can take advantage of you by using carbons to obtain your card number.

Also, do not give your card number over the telephone, even to those claiming to need it for survey reasons.

If you must give your card number over the telephone to make a purchase, remember that it could be used in making other transactions. These transactions or incorrect charges will naturally show up on your monthly bill.

You must report this in writing to a card company within 60 days after receiving your bill. A telephone call is not enough to safeguard your rights.

As another defense against credit card crime, you may want to consider cancelling cards you do not use often. Then, if your wallet or purse is stolen, a thief has fewer cards with which to work.

You may find it easy to eliminate a card for a retail store or service station, since many of those businesses are now accepting major credit cards. Keep in mind that there are now fewer differences between bank and travel cards.

To help you decide which cards to eliminate, consider lines separating bank cards — such as VISA and MasterCard — and travel cards — such as American Express and Diners Club.

Travel cards have open lines of credit. Bank cards have credit limits of $500 to $2,000. Bank cards usually charge $12 to $15 annual fees. (Although shopping around, you may find a bank card with no annual fee.)

Travel cards have annual fees of $35 to $50. Bank cards carry interest charges of 18-21 percent. Finance charges begin on the 35th day after the billing date.

Travel cards charge no interest but after 60 days may impose a late charge at a 25 percent annual rate, and your charging privileges may be cancelled. On big-ticket items, travel cards offer special accounts that grant loans at interest rates of 18-21 percent.

Credit card companies are devising ways to put a crimp in credit card crime. The introduction of "smart cards," which house a tiny computer chip that stores information about a card holder, is said to be just around the corner.

This could spell an end to credit card fraud.

DONNA HENRY of Novi (above) accepts congratulations from Ed Kowalewski, manager of Supply and Distribution at Ford Motor Company's Parts and Service Division, for receiving a cash prize equaling the purchase price of a 1985 1/2 Lynx GS hatchback in the company's Management Proposal Program.

Henry, a buyer at Ford Motor Company, has stuffed the company's "suggestions box" with more than 30 ideas over the past seven years and has saved the company more than $100,000.

Her latest idea involved discount sales of obsolete parts to heavy truck dealers.

Ford started its Employee Suggestion and Management Proposal Plans in the late 1940s to enlist employees in the drive for greater efficiency. In the past year more than 15,000 Ford employees have turned in 27,000 ideas, saving the company more than $53 million. The company has presented more than $5.5 million in awards through the program.

GARY W. DORF, FIC, who has offices in Highland, has qualified for membership in the prestigious Million Dollar Round Table (MDRT). He is a district representative for Lutheran Brotherhood, a fraternal insurance society.

The MDRT is an independent association of more than 17,000 life insurance agents, each of whom must meet strict ethical and production membership requirements. The association is recognized internationally as the standard of life insurance sales performance.

Approximately five percent of the world's life insurance agents are certified as MDRT members each year. These professionals are from more than 50 nations and territories and nearly 500 life insurance companies.

Dorf, who joined Lutheran Brotherhood in 1970, offers life and health insurance, annuities, mutual funds and other fraternal benefits to Lutherans in the area. He is associated with Lutheran Brotherhood's Karl Mueller Agency, headquartered in Rochester.

GERALD E. GROSS of Novi has been appointed director of financial accounting and reporting for General Motors Corporation. The appointment was announced by John E. Rhame, General Motors Controller.

Gross, 45, received a BA in accounting from Michigan State University in 1963 and joined the Cadillac Motor Car Division of GM in 1966. Following several assignments in the Cadillac accounting department, he was transferred to GM's Central Office Financial Staff in 1973.

He held a number of supervisory positions in corporate accounting before being promoted to assistant director of financial accounting and reporting in 1984.

Gross and his family reside in Novi.

SCHOOLCRAFT COLLEGE Business Development Center has expanded its services to businesses in western Wayne County by increasing the scope of its present operation and adding a new government procurement specialist to the staff.

Bruce W. Sweet Jr., who has served as a procurement specialist, has been promoted to director of business and industrial services. His new responsibilities will include disseminating technical information on federal contracting, conducting training seminars, arranging for classroom and industry-based training, assembling training-related educational grants and assisting companies in marketing, contracting and monitoring activities.

Sweet will be assisted by John C. Chichester who managed the government marketing division of the Downriver Community Conference before being recruited to head up government procurement for the Business Development Center.

In making the announcement, Dr. Richard McDowell, president of Schoolcraft College, said, "This reorganization adds a new dimension to the services and assistance offered to businesses in western Wayne."

'Home resale market will remain strong'

The current drop in conventional mortgage interest rates to the 11 percent level should continue to fuel the home resale market in 1986, according to Metro MLS President Joanne R. Bryngelson.

"The 765 sales of homes and condominiums by our members in December brought the 1985 total to 17,192," she said. "This was up 22.7 percent from the previous year and only seven percent below the record year of 1978."

"Obviously, much of this gain was prompted by the sharp reduction in interest rates experienced during the year. But we think with so many of the baby-boom generation now reaching home-buying age there is still a lot of pent-up housing demand. The continued interest rate decline should now serve to attract more of these buyers into the market," she said.

Bryngelson said they will find some decline in available homes, particularly of the most popular styles and in the more favored locations.

She reported Metro MLS listed 17 percent fewer homes last year than in 1984.

"Buyers in the metro area also will find home prices continuing to edge up after showing a substantial average price gain last year," she added.

Bryngelson noted that Metro MLS ended the year with a residential sales volume of more than $1 billion for the first time. Reflecting both the increased number of sales and the increase in average prices, the figure was 32 percent higher than a year earlier.

Bryngelson said both buyers and sellers this year would be aided by advanced computer systems installed by multiple listing services covering a four-board area.

"With more timely data banks, we will be able to present buyers with a more up-to-the-minute look at properties available at a given moment," she said.

"Searches conducted by computer terminals in our member offices also will offer detailed reports on features and prices for easy comparison and will be better able to key in locations of buyers' choices."

"We also will be able to present a better picture to sellers of comparable properties on the market and selling prices."

Bryngelson added that sellers of most fairly-priced properties also should find their homes attracting greater buyer attention with listings moving at a faster pace.

"Buyers who delay their decisions may find they have waited too long in many cases," she predicted. "In some of our most popular residential areas, our sales-to-listing ratios already are close to the 100 percent mark."

CPAs offer financial advice for retirees

People who are planning their retirement express concern about many of the same issues. A string of decisions on investments, mortgages, life insurance policies and pension plans presents a financial tightrope.

Although every person's situation is different and has to be dealt with individually, some basic issues commonly confront prospective retirees. Here are some of the most common questions and some answers.

Q. What should I do about my investments when I retire?

A. Change your investment strategy to fit your new objectives, according to the Michigan Association of CPAs. Pre-retirement investments need to be evaluated. Your new objectives should be finding conservative, income-producing investments.

After retirement, income generally drops and your tax bracket drops with it. So take money out of tax-advantaged investments, such as municipal bonds. Perhaps the actual cash yield of corporate bonds will be better now that you're in a lower tax bracket. Those bonds should be investment grade, which are rated AA or better.

It also may be smart to take money out of appreciation-oriented investments, such as stocks with no dividends. To replace them, you may want to consider investing in a "high-yield/no-load" mutual fund. "No-load" means you pay no sales commissions to the company which offers the mutual fund. Many high-yield/no-load mutual funds currently yield about 11 percent annually.

Consider investing in a single premium annuity if you're in good health. With single premium annuities, you pay a lump sum up front and are guaranteed income for life.

Q. What should I do with my home? I have a low interest mortgage with little to repay on it.

A. Retirees and those nearing retirement should not pay off a low interest mortgage, according to CPAs. If the annual interest rate on a Certificate of Deposit (CD) is higher than your mortgage rate, you're better off investing in the CD instead of paying off the mortgage.

Money Management

After retirement, savings should be conserved for emergencies and to supplement pension and Social Security benefits. If benefits and savings are thin, consider selling the home and taking the one-time tax exclusion of $125,000 on residential real estate gains. With this exclusion, persons age 55 and older pay no tax on the first $125,000 in profits from the sale of their principal residence. As an alternative place to live, you may want to consider investing part of the cash from the sale to purchase a maintenance-free condominium in a retirement community.

Q. What should I do with my EE government savings bonds?

A. If they're more than 40 years old, get rid of them, according to the CPAs. They're matured and you're getting nothing from them. If they're less than 40 years old, you may want to turn them in for HH bonds.

HH bonds yield income every six months. You cannot buy HH bonds for cash. They're only available when trading in EE or older E bonds. You get a valuable tax deferral when you make the switch: The interest from your E bonds won't be taxed when you trade them in for HH bonds. Normally, the income on the E or EE bonds is taxed when the bonds are cashed in. For those who cash in a large amount of these bonds, the tax pinch can hurt.

When switching from E to HH, the amount of interest accumulated on the E bonds is stamped on the face of the HH bonds and it's not taxed until you sell the HH bonds. In addition, income from these bonds is not taxed at the state and local level, but by the federal government. HH bonds come in denominations of $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000. You can get a form to make the switch from EEs to HHs at most banks and savings and loans.

Q. As I approach retirement, what should I do about life insurance?

A. Those planning retirement should consider borrowing the maximum amount permissible against a whole life policy by taking a low interest loan on its cash value, CPAs say. Then, reinvest the cash. Currently, you should be able to get a yield that's approximately twice as great as the interest rate in the loan against the whole life policy.

After retirement, pensions and other funds will increase, and the need for insurance decreases. To take full advantage of your lower tax bracket, consider canceling term insurance policies after retirement. Insurance reduces the risk of income interruption for your spouse and children. But when you retire, a pension or other fixed income ensures your spouse and children will have a steady income stream in the event of your death. A joint and survivor pension and other fixed income investments guarantee your spouse will be cared for in case you suddenly die.

Q. How much tax will be due on my estate if I die today?

A. It depends on the size of your estate. In 1985, an estate of $400,000 or less will not be subject to any federal tax. This exemption from federal tax rises to $500,000 in 1986. For 1987 and after, it moves up to $600,000. Anyone with an estate of less than these amounts need not worry about federal estate taxes, according to CPAs.

However, estates over the 1986 exemption level pay tax at progressive rates ranging from 37 to 55 percent. The top rate kicks in on taxable estates greater than $3 million.

This person thought he could drive as well after a few drinks as before. He was dead wrong. Don't make the same mistake.

"My Friend"

Whenever I needed someone — you were there
And I knew that you would always care.
You were there for me when I was down
And you helped me turn my life around.
When I needed you — you were always there.
And I hoped that you'd always care.
We had so many good times together —
I hope those memories will last forever.
Whenever you needed me, I tried to help you the best that I could.
For you were my friend and I thought I should.
I enjoyed doing what I could for you.
For you did the same for me and stopped my life
from being blue.
Though I know these times will not always be
I want you to know that this friendship has meant the world to me.
Through thick and thin, you've been there
And I want you to know that I will always care.
L. Mac

"Cherished Memories"

I hope you never forget the times that we have shared
For they are what I think always made me care.
You were always there
whenever I needed you.
I will always cherish
all the things we do.
Though they aren't much,
they mean the world to me.
I want you to always know that you are the only one for me.
L. Mac

"Friends No Longer"

Our friendship has last for a great many years
Our sweet memories of the past,
of us sharing beers.
But now it doesn't seem that our friendship is gonna last,
For it doesn't mean the same to you as it did in the past.
I thought our friendship would have last forever,
But as I see, it will never.
So I hang my flag at half mast —
For I wished this friendship would have last.

The Teacher Master of Wisdom

I spoke with wisdom
but no one would listen.
I taught of a better way
but no one wanted to learn.
I prayed for peace
yet, they kept on killing.
I died alone
no one cared.

Year of the Scottie

It's the year of the Scottie, they say
This doesn't surprise me at all Those charming, feisty, little dogs that come whenever their master should call!

Bred in farm country bordering Scotland
This wirehaired's bark can alarm
Small enough for a cozy apartment or frisky enough for life on the farm.

The "White Scottie" comes from Poltalloch belonging to the "Duke of Argyll" Personality noted for its sheer brass and assertive friendliness and guile.

One Scotty had the name of "Tiger"
His greatest joy was in picking pockets pleased by his clever accomplishment
He took to hiding a valuable locket.

In this sophisticated setting
This dog used his charm to entertain and his innocence was remarkably uncanny causing no anger or visible disdain

The year of the Scottie, of course!
It's a funloving and whimsical time
The dog that's been picked is perfect playful, yet cunning and sublime.

I hear the song played by the bagpipes
echoing across the mountain and the sea
Let's run in the fields and green meadows feeling young, fresh, and forever free!

In Used Cars

We don't care if you paint your hair blue, rip the sleeves off your shirt or pierce your ear.

But don't smoke just to be like your friends.
Or to be different from your friends.
Or to be anything at all Because with everything we know about cigarettes today, there's only one thing you'll be if you start smoking now

And that's sorry
Sorry you can't get up in the morning without coughing your lungs out. Sorry you can't climb a single flight of stairs without getting winded Sorry that every time you light one up, your risk of heart disease goes up.

If you're already a smoker,
take some time to stop and think it all the way through Right now, it's your decision in the long run, it's your life.

JUKEBOX JAMMING

For a quarter, you get quintessence

By B.J. MARTIN
staff writer

B.J. MARTIN

tonearm thumps down onto the groove of a 45 rpm single.

A pause. Then out of the decomposing woofer blasts something familiar: a Hot Tracks hit or a scratchy oldie that skips until somebody whacks the machine.

Heads start to nod. Toes tap. Somebody starts singing along or feigning a dance-floor move. Suddenly, the quiet joint turns into a party.

The jukebox has quintessence — the perfect manifestation of a quality. Anything added or subtracted would disrupt the harmonious equilibrium of its function.

What can be improved is a jukebox's menu. Its playlist can't simply be tied to the charts — a careful cross-section of the establishment's desired clientele is necessary: its cultural roots, the amount they spend, whether more people want to cry in their drink or get up and boogie.

But for the gathering-place owner wise enough to install a jukebox, we are providing free of charge this sure-fire program of singles guaranteed to keep a steady flow of quarters heading into the slot whatever his patrons are like. Our criteria are recognizability, diversity (no musical artist gets more than one tune), and that magical ability to snatch your attention once the music starts.

By the way, odds are 100,000 to 1 you'll disagree with our picks. Our address is 104 West Main, Northville, MI 48167 if you want to tell us about it.

Hear then, ladies and gentlemen, The Quintessential Jukebox:

A1. ALL OF ME, Billie Holiday. We can be thankful this wonderful tune was resurrected by Willie Nelson and by the makers of the recent Lily Tomlin-Steve Martin movie of the same name. But Lady Day did it best, singing it in her inimitable behind-the-beat swinging style to first-rate accompaniment. One of the greatest recordings ever.

A2. BE MY BABY, The Ronettes. One of many peaks for Wall of Sound producer Phil Spector ("You've Lost That Lovin' Feeling" and "Da-Da-Ron-Ron" are others). Sung with aching teenage melodrama by his wife Ronnie, it's buoyed by guitars, pianos, dozens of backup singers, something like 20 percussionists, and a Wagner-sized orchestra, etc. etc.

CRAIG STRAIN

Little Darlin', the Diamonds; You've Lost That Lovin' Feeling, the Righteous Brothers; You Send Me, Sam Cooke; God Bless The Child and He's A Runner, Blood Sweat & Tears; Beginnings, Chicago; State of Independence, Donna Summer. Don't Touch That Phone, Michael Franks; Hello, Lionel Ritchie; Somewhere, Barbra Streisand.

TOM RICE

Raven, a folk music coffeehouse in Northville. "The songs I picked have a lot of great memories for me," he says.

Cherish, The Association; Moon River, Andy Williams; Classical Gas, Mason Williams; Nights In White Satin, The Moody Blues; Country Boy, Ricky Skaggs; Mister Bojangles, Nitty Gritty Dirt Band; Sweet Baby James, James Taylor; Somewhere (original cast recording); This Land Is Your Land, Woody Guthrie; Ballad of Davy Crockett (from the 'Disney movie "Davy Crockett").

Changes, David Bowie; Born In The U.S.A., Bruce Springsteen; Heat Of The Moment, Asia; 1999, Prince; Revolution, The Beatles; Born To Run, Bruce Springsteen; Another Brick In The Wall, Pink Floyd; Bridge Over Troubled Water, Simon & Garfunkel; We Are The World, U.S.A. For Africa; Change, John Waite.

Good beat, I give it...

Now here was a good assignment: go forth into the Novi-Northville circulation area and bring back a rundown of where to find the coin-op music machine giving the biggest bang for the buck.

We used the Dick Clark American Bandstand rating system ("It's got a good beat, I give it an 80"), giving points for variety, volume, songs per quarter and atmosphere.

In fact, this pilgrimage of sorts would be a good undertaking for any hardy bunch of music fans. Try buying an Ink Spots record, let alone hearing one of their tunes on the radio.

— B.J. Martin

72

THE FARM, 24615 Novi Road, Novi — Fairly predictable programming of contemporary pop and country hits, with "In The Mood" and not much else thrown in for variety. But The Farm must be doing something right — the place is always packed.

80

FRIGATE'S, 1103 East Lake Drive, Novi — Hardly any oldies, but some of the new picks are irresistible — "Super Bowl Shuffle," "Cheap Sunglasses" — and in keeping with the dance-oriented atmosphere at night.

94

GETZIE'S PUB, 157 East Main, Northville — With offbeat selections from the Ink Spots to Madonna, with not one but two Sinatra tunes, Getzie's offers the most eclectic jukebox in the area. Adding Elvis and the Beatles to the playlist could make it perfect.

85

NOVI INN, 43317 Grand River, Novi — The jukebox here is a fun one, with a see-through window letting you see the records play (vertically!) and some off-the-wall choices breaking up the mostly-new programming: "Monkees Theme" and a healthy dose of Motown.

83

PIT STOP, 45701 Grand River, Novi — Definitely audible, the box at the Stop leans on latest hits and "New Nashville" rather than oldies. But there's about 100 to choose from, a plus.

78

PIZZA HUT, 43455 West Oaks Drive, Novi — Nothing here goes farther back than, say, '83, which should make the brand-new Pizza Hut a haven for teenagers in an apres-school mode.

73

STARTING GATE SALOON, 135 North Center, Northville — Very strong contemporary hits, mostly of the rock 'n' rowdy sort. A five-point bonus for including Grady Martin's "Happy Birthday."

84

The jukebox jury delivers its verdict — our top 50

A3. BEER BARRELL POLKA, Frankie Yankovic. Every jukebox must have one polka and this is the one to have, since its lyrics amount to The Party Monster Creed: "Roll out the barrels, and we'll have a barrel of fun..."

A4. BORN TO RUN, Bruce Springsteen. Why this one and not one of those Big New Bruce Anthems? For one thing, this one's long. You get your quarter's worth. For another, it's something Springsteen-come-latelies should hear and old Springsteen fans will still like to hear.

A5. BURNING DOWN THE HOUSE, Talking Heads. There ought to be something on the jukebox for a new waver, but you don't want to scare off the regulars. This danceable party number is a good compromise someone who doesn't like new wave rock might actually like.

A6. BUSTED, Ray Charles. Charles has brilliant country, jazz, rhythm-and-blues, gospel and ballad-type songs, so it's impossible to pick one truly representative song of his. "Busted" is something anybody can relate to.

A7. CECILIA, Simon & Garfunkel. Remember folk music? Some people do, and this sunny, rhythmic singalong tune will keep them happy. Also, you'll be able to hear it, which is more than you can say for "Blowin' In The Wind."

A8. CHEROKEE, Count Basie. You could make a case for his better-known "One O'Clock Jump," but this one's even more catchy and features fantastic musical solos.

A9. DANCE TO THE MUSIC, Sly & The Family Stone. This is the greatest integrated band ever — not just racially and sexually, but also musically. Hard rock met rhythm and blues right here and dance music was never the same afterwards.

A10. DANCIN' IN THE STREETS, Martha Reeves and the Vandellas. Hey, forget Mick Jagger and David Bowie. This is the real one, with a nuclear bomb beat, surging Motown horns and Martha Reeves powering through every verse. It's said the Beatles used to do this one in their early days to bring people into the place they were playing.

B1. DON'T BE CRUEL, Elvis Presley. You really couldn't go wrong programming an entire jukebox with Elvis songs. This one gets the nod over many other good candidates because the bass line in the introduction is such a grabber.

B2. FOR THE GOOD TIMES, Ray Price. If any old Hank Williams song defined Old Nashville, this Kris Kristofferson song sung dramatically with subdued string and rhythm section backing showed New Nashville is capable of occasional greatness as well.

B3. FREeway OF LOVE, Aretha Franklin. The Queen of Soul's comeback masterpiece, one that rates with her '60s hits "Think" and "Respect" for tempo fervor. That automatically makes it first-rate and something old and new fans can love.

B4. GREAT BALLS OF FIRE, Jerry Lee Lewis. It was shortly after this hit Lewis chucked rock and roll for country music, and this hit was at the crossroads of that move. You think of the chorus, but Lewis plays some pretty mean piano here, too.

B5. HEARD IT THROUGH THE GRAPEVINE, Marvin Gaye. An obvious choice, maybe. Many Marvin Gaye fans probably would rather go back further ("Can I Get A Witness") or forward ("What's Going On"). But Gaye's vocals here touch base with his total range, from gritty declamation to arching falsetto notes to a pleading tenderness that's almost a whisper. Plus a great instrumental and backing vocal arrangement.

B6. HEART OF GLASS, Blondie. Here's where disco eased into new wave, with a great drum part and rubbery bass line in tow. The flip side of the single's great, too.

B7. I LEFT MY HEART IN SAN FRANCISCO, Tony Bennett. Why this pinnacle of wimpiness? Because it has an irresistible melody that can be listened to either as a joke or as an example of a very well-crafted song done with virtuosic timing and drama by Bennett.

B8. I SAW HER STANDING THERE, The Beatles. John Lennon and Paul McCartney singling harmony as loud as they can, a George Harrison guitar solo and Ringo Starr pulverizing his drum kit. What more can you ask?

B9. I'M SO LONESOME I COULD CRY, Hank Williams. Maybe the saddest country song ever by the greatest country singer and songwriter ever. It's not one small lament for a lost love, it's one giant lament for lost love, period.

B10. IN THE MOOD, Glenn Miller. Of course. Probably the best-known instrumental tune America has ever produced, and prime swing soundtrack.

C1. I'VE GOT YOU UNDER MY SKIN, Frank Sinatra. Anybody who's going to play Sinatra is going to play Sinatra, so why not go with the real thing. All the hired help will quit if customers play "New York, New York" 20 times a night. This is Sinatra at his upbeat best.

C2. LEGS, Z.Z. Top. Raunchy. Raunchous. Offensive. And funny as well as fun. And what a great fuzz guitar riff and dance rhythm.

C3. LET'S SPEND THE NIGHT TOGETHER, Rolling Stones. Picking one Rolling Stones song for a jukebox is sort of tricky. Oldsters would go for "Satisfaction" or "Get Off My Cloud" while newer fans would prefer "Miss You" or "Start Me Up." This is a good in-between-er, and also a good boy-meets-girl anthem.

C4. LITTLE RED CORVETTE, Prince. This is a great '80s update of a Beach Boys-type song, with his usual lascivious lyrics to boot. Also has a great singalong and clapping chorus.

C5. MACK THE KNIFE, Bobby Darin. Jazz buffs will quibble that Louis Armstrong's version was better — maybe because Satchmo's rough early days in New Orleans might have given him some firsthand experience with the likes of murderer Mack. But Bobby Darin's improvisational punctuations and obvious enthusiasm for the song make his rendition a classic.

C6. MAMA DON'T LET YOUR BABIES GROW UP TO BE COWBOYS, Waylon Jennings and Willie Nelson. Two for the price of one. A nod to the many Willie and Waylon Outlaw Country fans. Also a great singalong chorus. Also a waltz for those who know how.

C7. MAYBELLINE, Chuck Berry. The definitive rock and roll beat, a little bit too crazy and too fast. Also a typical example of Chuck Berry's narrative skills (As I was a motorvatin' over the hill...) and his best guitar solo.

C8. MERCEDES-BENZ, Janis Joplin. A little bit of singalong nostalgia for '60s relics, and as she puts it, "a song of social and political import."

C9. MISTER SANDMAN, Linda Ronstadt, Dolly Parton and Emmylou Harris. This one-shot trio's version lacks the humor and ringing innocence of the Dixie Cups' original, but it's more fun to pick out Dolly's high-note trills, Linda's lush lower harmonies and Emmylou's reedy midrange — those voices have a lot of history among them.

C10. MONA LISA, Nat King Cole. The place has to be pretty quiet for this one, of course. But most pop-music lovers will trade one of these for 10 Barry Manilows.

D1. MY BEST FRIEND'S GIRL, The Cars. The Cars' first hit might have been their best, with its jangly rhythm guitar snippets, weird verses and singalong chant of a chorus.

D2. OLD TIME ROCK AND ROLL, Bob Seger. Seger fans would probably prefer "Night Moves" or "Fire Down Below." But this song speaks for the entire early-'70s-I-hate-disco generation, and that's a lot of people.

D3. PEOPLE, Barbra Streisand. Too mushy, you think? Maybe. But the words are true enough to make the drunks at the bar nod their heads, and the lady sure can sing.

D4. PRETTY WOMAN, Roy Orbison. This goofy party song with its growls and sobbing chorus was so dumb Van Halen couldn't resist covering it. Orbison's goofy obsessive and unrequited love-at-first-sight strikes an appropriate singles-bar tone ("I guess I'll go back home, it's late"), then he ends it upbeat ("Yeah — she's walking back to me"). When women say, "All men are alike," they're right, and we couldn't have a better spokesman than Orbison.

D5. A NIGHT IN TUNISIA, Charlie Parker. Anyone who has no kick against modern jazz will be so glad to see this tune on the jukebox he can't resist. Great solos, great rhythm, and probably the best-known bop-era tune.

D6. ROCK WITH YOU, Michael Jackson. Everybody's sick to death of "Beat It" and "Billie Jean" right? This song from the album before "Thriller" might be his best pure dance song — and the words are an emphatic pro-party statement, very important in a place where people dance.

D7. SAIL ON, The Commodores with Lionel Richie. Probably the best example of a rhythm-and-blues group reaching out to country music for inspiration. Beats the stuffing out of anything Lionel Richie has done since then, too.

D8. SEA CRUISE, Frankie Ford. This is the New Orleans representative, chosen when Fats Domino's many worthy entries may have split the vote. But it deserves inclusion for its tugboat-like saxophones, Ford's wild vocal, and the piano, which sounds like 10 hammers pounding on the keys.

D9. SEND IN THE CLOWNS, Judy Collins. Thousands of people have tried to do this ode to melancholia. Nobody has done it with the taste and understatement of Collins.

D10. STAND BY YOUR MAN, Tammy Wynette. This one separates the good old boys from the wimpy pretenders. Probably the best statement of idealized female love toward us low-life males.

E1. STOP! IN THE NAME OF LOVE, The

Supremes. Not only do people know the words, they know the appropriate gestures to go along with them. The Motown Hits Just Keep On Coming.

E2. SURFIN' U.S.A., The Beach Boys. Sure it's a rip-off of Chuck Berry's "Sweet Little Sixteen." It also makes you want to get up and do The Swim even if you're nowhere near the water.

E3. SWINGIN', John Anderson. One of the best uptempo country songs in years, sung in Anderson's aw-shucks country boy voice backed by horns (!) E4. TAKE FIVE, Dave Brubeck. For "cool" jazz buffs, a classic admired by newcomers and cognoscenti alike, thanks mostly to Paul Desmond's airy theme and sax solo.

E5. TAKE THE A-TRAIN, Duke Ellington. Swing-era folks get aboard here with the harmonized reeds and Ray Nance's crackling trumpet solo. Irresistible. E6. THAT GIRL, Stevie Wonder. Pick a Stevie Wonder hit, any Stevie Wonder hit would do. "That Girl" gets the nod because a) It has a good beat and you can dance to it, and b) He plays his first instrument (harmonica) as well as his latest synthesizers.

E7. THE THRILL IS GONE, B.B. King. Maybe Bobby "Blue" Bland could sing the blues better than the admittedly-great B.B. But hardly anybody could make those guitar strings ring their way through three chords better.

E8. TURA LURA LURA, Bing Crosby. A nice one to play when nobody else is in the place, especially if you're feeling Irish and sentimental. One of the best recorded examples of the verb "to croon" from the guy who defined the word.

E9. UNDER THE BOARDWALK, The Drifters. It has a chorus everyone in the place can sing along to, along with dreamy, summery verses and a catchy little samba beat.

E10. WALK ON THE WILD SIDE, Lou Reed. An anthem of sorts for romantic existentialists, jazz buffs, outcasts, sensualists, grown-up hippies and beatniks — just about anyone who has a sordid past or would like to.

Cold Sore or Canker Sore?

Some individuals who come into the pharmacy for products and information appear to be confused regarding cold sores and canker sores — two entirely different problems. Cold sores is the common name for herpes simplex — a viral infection that is also known as fever blisters. Cold sores frequently occur on the face, on or near the lip. When fresh, cold sores are composed of several small fluid-filled blisters (vesicles). Cold sores can occur inside the mouth on the hard palate.

Canker sore is the common name for aphthous ulcer. These ulcers affect mucous membranes and begin as red spots about the size of pin heads. Within 48 hours, painful ulcers develop. Canker sores usually heal within 10 to 14 days. The cause of canker sores is unknown, and it has been repeatedly shown that they are not due to a virus. Foods, menstrual cycle, stress, and vitamin deficiency have all been considered.

Although neither cold sores nor canker sores can be cured, prescription and nonprescription medicines are available to lessen discomfort. A mouth lesion that is unusual or does not heal may be the sign of a more serious health problem and should be examined by a physician.

The Northville Record

Spikers outlast North; fall to Salem

When the Mustang volleyball squad met a pair of Western Lakes Activity Association opponents last week, there was only one game that could be considered a blow-out, and fortunately for Northville, it came just in time to seal a win.

After dropping a 15-11, 15-10 decision to Plymouth on January 13 the Mustangs bounced back to outlast North Farmington 11-15, 15-12, 15-4 January 15.

As the scores indicate, the three teams were equal in talent, but as was the case in both contests, the team that made the least mistakes came out on top. The split leaves Northville at 4-2 overall on the season, 2-1 in the WLAA.

The first outing matched a tall Salem team with a quicker Mustang squad, but the outcome really didn't have a lot to do with these strengths. The Rocks never came full force at Northville to exploit the height difference and opted for a more finesse-type attack. The move surprised Mustang coach Steve McDonald, but it was successful nevertheless.

"Salem never really went after us," he said. "We kinda got lulled to sleep a few times."

"The girls played well though. We had our opportunities but because it was our first home game, maybe we got too excited and lost a little common sense. We sometimes tried to do too much and we paid for it a little bit."

One area McDonald was very pleased about was serving. The team connected on all but three serves in the two games against Salem for 89 percent.

"We set up the offense and hit the ball well but mental mistakes got us," McDonald pointed out. "We just wanted so bad to play good in front of the home crowd."

Lynn Frellick and Robin Strunk held their own against the taller Rocks. Frellick had 15 hits and three kills while Strunk notched nine hits and two kills. Vicki LaRoque and Dawn Kutcher both had perfect service outings, each connecting on six-of-six.

Two days later, the Mustangs executed a better floor game but had a brief problem serving. In one stretch in the second game, three different Northville players failed to keep the ball in play on their first serve, but the team still pulled out a hard-fought three-game win.

"It was a tough game and we kept doing things that put ourselves in the hole but we managed to play above that sort of stuff," McDonald explained. "I can't

'We set up the offense and hit the ball well but mental mistakes got us. We just wanted so bad to play good.'

— Steve McDonald,
Mustang Volleyball Coach

fault the girls because they played very well in the last two games, but especially in the deciding game.

"I thought we totally dominated (North) in the last game. We had it well in hand."

In that contest the Raiders tried to use a power strategy but the Mustang quickness and jumping ability prevented any real damage.

"Our jumping helped us out a lot," McDonald admitted. "(North Farmington) is one of the few teams to really hit hard on us but we responded and blocked a lot of shots."

Frellick had what McDonald called, "by far her best game of the year." She was good on all nine serves and had 29 hits, seven for kills. Kutcher's serve was again perfect, giving her an outstanding 94 percent mark for the season.

The heart of the spikers schedule is up next with eight straight WLAA Western Division games on tap until mid-February. McDonald said Churchill is very strong and Walled Lake Western has the returnees to fight for the title as well, but Northville is not out of it by any means.

"If we can get off to a good start and continue to build our confidence, we will be a darkhorse," McDonald predicted.

Franklin gives cagers a scare

By NEIL GEOGHEGAN

It was bound to happen.

The high flying Northville cagers, winners of five of the last six games, were up against winless Livonia Franklin (0-5 in the Western Lakes). Sounds like a possible blow-out, right? That's what the Mustangs must have thought.

Actually it was nip-and-tuck the whole way with Northville possessing more luck than skill in a much tougher than expected 60-59 barnburner win over the Patriots last Friday (January 17). The victory improves Northville's overall mark to 6-2, 5-1 in the WLAA, and despite the difficulty, Mustang mentor Omar Harrison certainly isn't complaining about another win.

"I thought we played not to lose rather than to win and it caused us a lot of problems," Harrison said. "But hey, I'm just pleased with the win and what we're doing."

What Northville is doing is winning anyway it can. Close games are the team's specialty but any victory will do. The only league blemish so far this season was a 62-47 decision to unbeaten Farmington Harrison December 19.

"With every win, we get a little more confidence," Harrison explained. "These players want to win very badly and they all are very competitive. All that adds up."

It was a strange outing for the Mustangs. The usual scoring threats like Don Norton, Mike Hilfinger and Matt Hinds all had off days offensively, which immediately signals trouble. But unsung heroes like Kirk Morrison and Gary Harper picked up the slack and ultimately pulled out a win in a game the Mustangs probably should have lost.

"I told the kids before the game that I was worried about Franklin all week," Harrison admitted. "You know that in the back of their minds they're thinking that (Franklin) hasn't won a ball game all season and they will have an easy time with them."

It was anything but easy. Franklin held a slim two point lead after one quarter and it stayed that way heading into the fourth. Northville fell behind by as much as five points on several occasions and always closed the gap but never could manage to pull very far in front.

In the last minute of play, Hilfinger was fouled and hit a pair of free throws to put the Mustangs up 59-57. After a Franklin turnover, Northville had the ball and the lead but turned it right back over when Hilfinger was whistled for an offensive foul. The Patriot's then tied it up with 30 seconds left.

But at the other end, Morrison was fouled as he drove to the basket with 15 seconds remaining and went to the line. He calmly hit the first and missed the second, but it turned out to be the game winner. Franklin's desperation shot at the buzzer was off the mark.

"In a close game like that, all the points are important but Morrison's free throw is what made the difference," Harrison said.

Ironically, Northville did win the game at the free throw line. The Patriots had one more field goal but the Mustangs canned three more from the charity strip. The foul situation didn't help either team, but it may have hurt Northville more. Norton, the teams leading scorer and Hinds, the leading rebounder, both fouled out, while defensive specialist Paul Newitt played very little as he was saddled with foul trouble as well.

"There was almost 50 fouls called in the game and some of them really broke our back and took some momentum away," Harrison pointed out.

Morrison ended with a season-high 17 points on 7-for-12 shooting and Harper chipped in 10 — and the Mustangs needed every point. Norton played his poorest game of the year, hitting just 4-of-17 from the field for eight points while Hilfinger and Hinds also had just eight apiece.

"I feel that Kirk (Morrison) is really beginning to come around," Harrison said. "The more and more he plays, the more confidence he gets."

Next on tap for Northville is Westland John Glenn (yesterday, January 21, after the Record deadline) and Plymouth Canton (this Friday, January 24). Both games will be on the road, bringing the Mustangs' road streak to 10 straight.

Matmen win 3 of 4 at Novi Invite

You can hardly argue with Mustang wrestling coach Jack Townsley when he says that all his young squad really needs is experience.

Northville was scheduled to travel to the Algonac Invitational last Saturday, but Townsley changed the plans and took the team to an innovative tournament hosted by Novi.

It wasn't a typical wrestling tournament, it was more like a seven-way dual meet, with each squad taking on four other teams individually. It turned out to be a smart move as the Mustangs finished with a 3-1 record in the tourney and grabbed a solid third place.

Walled Lake Western took first by beating Novi 45-15 in the last dual meet of the day. Both teams sported a 3-0 record going into the invitational. Northville dropped its opening dual meet to Novi 54-15 but bounced back to win the next three.

"I liked the concept," Townsley said. "It was really a series of dual meets and it was good for everybody, especially the younger wrestlers."

"They got to see a lot of different teams and get a lot of experience, too."

Townsley said all the coaches at the tournament liked the idea, but the biggest backer was Novi coach Tom Fritz, who set the whole thing up.

"The main thing was that the kids got more competition in a day like this than they would if it was an eight team regular tournament," Fritz said. "It was kinda unorganized from the spectators point of view but it was good for everybody. I'm gonna do it again next year."

The Mustangs managed just three wins against Novi. Paul Maliszewski pinned Luchito Mejia at 1:30 of the first period in the 126 match, Ken Kehoe decided Matt Brinker 9-7 at 155 and heavyweight Karl Freydl pinned Mike Bobblish at 1:58.

The loss dropped Northville into the losers bracket where they took on the tournament B team and won 48-24. Freshman Andy Fry (112), Maliszewski (126), John Frisbee (132), Tony Lawrence (138), Kehoe (155) and John McRae (167) all scored pins.

The Mustangs then trounced Redford

Union 63-6 thanks to just two losses and five forfeits. Junior John Bowman (119), Maliszewski (126), Lawrence (138), Dana Letarte (145) and McRae (167) all won on pins. The surprise was a loss by Kehoe at 155, but Townsley claimed it was an illegal hold.

The fourth round saw Northville edge Livonia Clarenceville 36-23 thanks again to four more forfeits. Maliszewski was forced to take one of the forfeits at 126 but wasn't too happy about it. If he would have wrestled and pinned his opponent, Maliszewski would have taken first place in the tournament, but had to settle for a second. Other winners included Keith Graham (105), Fry (112), Kehoe (155), McRae (167), Tim Millen (198) and Freydl (heavyweight).

In addition to Maliszewski, four other Mustangs placed in the top three individually. Freydl took first place honors with a 4-0 record, but three of those were forfeits, Kehoe and McRae both went 3-1 on the day and finished second, while Fry took third with a 3-1 record as well.

On January 16, the Mustangs didn't put up much of a fight against always tough Walled Lake Western and were blown-out 57-18 in a Western Lakes dual meet.

"They are always tough so I didn't expect much and we didn't do much," Townsley admitted.

Northville was pinned in the first four matches to fall behind by a bundle early and ended up winning just three times the rest of the way. Maliszewski pinned Steve Stricken at 3:51 in the 126 bout, Kehoe pinned John Smith at 1:55 and Freydl pinned Steve Boulton at heavyweight.

But the week of work raised the Mustang record to 4-8 overall, 1-5 in the WLAA and more importantly, the team is seeing some real improvement.

"Our kids are slowly getting better," Townsley said. "When you have so many young guys that's what you usually see."

Northville resumes WLAA action tomorrow (January 23) when they host Livonia Franklin.

Rocks dunk tankers

The Northville swim team accomplished just about everything it possibly could last Thursday (January 16) against Plymouth Salem in a Western Lakes match-up. Everything, that is, except winning.

Though the Mustangs fell to the powerful Rocks 107-67, Northville coach Keith Wright seemed happy about the meet. The smile on his was not a result of the team's loss, but its tremendous improvement. And in swimming, that's the name of the game.

In 31 opportunities, the Mustang tankers improved on season best times an amazing 23 times — and very often, they were lifetime bests. It still wasn't enough to pull off the upset, but Wright was still very proud of the effort.

"To see this much improvement just doesn't happen very often," Wright pointed out. "As a coach, you're always hoping that when your team sees excellent competition, they will respond and that was definitely the case Thursday."

"If you look at the score it doesn't look very close but we took five of 11 firsts when we could have just laid down and gotten blown out."

It was Northville's fourth straight away dual meet and the loss drops the season mark to 1-3, 1-1 in WLAA. The Salem contest was originally scheduled as a home meet, but because the refurbished pool still isn't available, it was moved to Salem.

But Wright, ever the optimist, found several reasons why it was a blessing in disguise. The Northville pool has just five lanes, but at Salem, an extra lane enabled Wright to get more youngsters in the pool to compete and they responded with great times.

"If we were in our pool, we wouldn't have seen all the improvement because not as many of our guys would have been able to swim," Wright explained. "We would have loved to be in our own pool, but to me, that's a pretty good trade off. It will definitely help us to get ready for what we want to accomplish at the league meet."

Seniors Doug Buell, Jeff Bainbridge

and Darius Mikalonis were all in mid-season form and consequently accounted for most of the Northville first place finishes. Buell just missed his season best in the 200-yard IM (2:10.6) but won the race anyway. He then came back to post a season best time of 56.0 in the 100 butterfly, good for another first.

Buell also teamed with Bainbridge, Eric Leidecker, and Craig Smith for a win in the 200 medley relay (1:48.6), another season best. Bainbridge's 59.5 won the 100 backstroke and a 51.0 in the 100 freestyle gave Mikalonis a win and a season best time.

Bainbridge, Mikalonis and Leidecker also came within a hair of winning three more events, but the Salem swimmers managed to out-touch each one. The winning time in the 200 freestyle was 1:54.3 and Mikalonis came in at 1:54.5. In the 50 freestyle, Bainbridge missed a first by one-hundredth of a second as did Leidecker in the 100 breaststroke.

But two swimmers that really came to the forefront against the Rocks were seniors Dave Wayne and Craig Smith.

Wayne placed second in the 500 freestyle, third in the 200 freestyle and anchored the second place 400 freestyle relay team. But more importantly, all three events saw Wayne swim to lifetime best times. Likewise, Smith notched lifetime bests with a fourth in the 100 freestyle and anchoring the winning medley relay.

"Those two really stepped forward and made us a much stronger team," Wright said.

With the extra lane, every swimmer on the team had a chance to compete in one of the Mustangs' six relay teams. The fact that all six recorded season best times is just another reason Wright is smiling.

One of the season's biggest meets is fastly approaching and Wright feels the loss to Salem could prove to be a big plus. Northville will tackle Western Division foe Livonia Churchill tomorrow (January 23) in a meet that has been moved to the Chargers home pool.

OLV girls win tourney

The Our Lady of Victory CYO basketball teams resumed their post-holiday play the last two weeks and here are the results:

5th-6th GRADE GIRLS: The Cougars were victorious for the first time this season by trouncing St. Mary's of Redford 24-8. Karen Pump led the way with six points, seven rebounds and eight blocked shots. The team came back the next week and pounded St. Michael 28-10. Pump again led the way with 12 points and eight rebounds and Susie Weidenbach added eight points and 16 rebounds for the winners.

7th-8th GRADE GIRLS: Despite eight points by Renee Larabell and another five by Liz DeMatia, the Cougars fell 43-26 to St. Mary's. But OLV rebounded with a pair of wins and a first place finish at the Pontiac Catholic Tournament. The Cougars beat Our Lady of Sorrows 18-10 in the first round and then clobbered Our Lady of the Lakes 30-6 for the title. Sue Laprad scored a half-dozen in the opening win and Maria MacInnis poured in 10 points in the finals.

5th-6th GRADE BOYS: The "Blue" team pulled out a close one with Chris Barbara sinking a free throw with one second remaining to beat St. Michael 33-32. Tim Reardon led all scores with 21 points.

7th-8th GRADE BOYS: The "Blue" team pulled away in the final few minutes to hand St. Michael a 39-23 set back. Tim Riha came off the bench to score nine points for the winners.
